

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 5, 1926

NUMBER 1

HE SLEEPS IN DEATH

THE death of John Edgar Cross occurred at his home in Oregon, Illinois, on the evening of October, 2 1926. He had been in failing health for more than two years, though he was regular at his office in the discharge of his duties until early in July, last.

The deceased was born February 1, 1861, in Pine Rock Township and lived his entire life in the county of his birth. He was one of five children, namely, John, Flora, Alice, Jane and Ernest, who were born to James L. and Mary, nee Rathbun, Cross.

On November 2, 1887, he united in marriage with Nellie Booth, to whom were born Leroy, Clarence, Cecile and Maude.

About 1894 Bro. Cross professed a confiding faith in Jesus Christ, uniting with the brethren of the Antioch Church of God, near Chana. Though quiet and reserved his sterling qualities made him one who was sought out for responsibility for church activity—first at Antioch, afterward at Oregon.

Bro. Cross spent his life as an educator. He early began teaching school, continuing till 1907, when he was appointed to be Assistant County Superintendent of Schools. In the election of 1910 he was chosen to the office of Superintendent, which position he held till death—but three months less than twenty years in all.

Bro. Cross was one of the founders of The Restitution Publishing Co., and The Restitution Herald. He was a member of the Executive Board from its incorporation in 1911 until his death, and was one of the few who apportioned and paid the annual deficit.

In 1923 he was sought out for Treasurer of the General Conference of the Church of God. This position he held till, because of his failing health, he was relieved in August 1926.

In the death of Bro. Cross the church and Ogle county must suffer the loss of a capable, worthy, and honored man.

He is survived by his ever faithful widow; by three children—Clarence, of Chilton, Wisconsin; Mrs. Ward Scott, of Lockport, Illinois; and Mrs. Roland Stilson, of 312 E. South St., South Bend, Indiana; by 13 grandchildren; by one sister, Mrs. Jane Rummell, and one brother, Ernest, both of Rochelle, Illinois.

In deference to public wish the funeral services are being held this October 5, at the spacious Coliseum rather than at the Oregon church.

He has fallen asleep under the enemy, death, but for years previous to that fall he was an earnest believer and servant of Him who is the resurrection and the life. Those who knew him sorrow not as those who have no hope.

F. L. Austin.

* * *

WHAT IS TRUTH?

THIS question asked by Pilate of the Savior with reference to Himself and the kingdom, John 19:

36-38, pertains with equal force to many of life's problems. The finite mind is brought over and over again to "its wits' end" in trying to fathom the meaning or the reason of life's circumstances. We are prone to reason that because one lives a clean, pure life, exercising careful and faithful trust in God, therefore, he should be particularly relieved from having to endure sin's heavy hand. The record of the Scriptures does not bear out this reasoning. There was no guile in the mouth of our Lord; His finger touched no sin; His lips spake no wickedness—and yet from without sin threw around about Him its steely arms and drew Him down to bitter death. It was because of the righteousness and godliness of Stephen that sin from without hurled the heavy stones, bruising

(Continued on page 13, Column 2)

Brother John E. Cross

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart. And the shepherds returned, glorifying God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.—Luke 2:8-20.

Greetings of the Season to All

Christmas
1926

New Year
1927

GIVING THE GIFT OF GIFTS

By R. H. Judd

"To give knowledge of salvation to his people for the remission of their sins, because of the tender mercy of our GOD whereby the dayspring (sunrising) from on high shall visit us, to shine upon them that sit in darkness and the shadow of death".—Luke 1:77-79.

CHRISTMAS time is supremely the time of great rejoicing, of union of hearts and of giving and receiving gifts. Jesus Christ said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive", and surely each of us knows this from happy experience. Oh, the pleasure it gives us to be able to give, and give of our best to those we love! Some of us, indeed, are mournful because we have not the means that others have to express our love by some substantial gift. But stay, what, after all, are the real things in this life, the things that abide? They are not the things which we can handle, and upon which we can put the "Hall mark" of our name, but they are "the things that are not seen", those which form the character which knits us together in sympathetic union to those we love, and which in some small measure are reflected in the gifts which we bestow.

We may have often wondered why John the Baptist was probably the lowliest of the prophets with regard to the things so commonly desired among men. Was it not that he might have nothing of his own to give, so that he might realize, as some of us need to realize, that he was only the channel through whom God Himself might be glorified? His one objective was to GIVE, not his own, but that which had already been given to him; for no man can give that which he himself does not possess. Matthew draws a beautiful picture of the worldly poverty of John the Baptist. First he represents him as a man with a great message, no less a message than that "the kingdom of heaven is at hand"—GOD'S messenger and the forerunner of a KING. Then, as if to throw the whole attention of the reader on the message rather than the messenger, he says, "this same John" had his raiment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins, and his food was locusts and wild honey. Better still, John himself recognized, and not only recognized but acknowledged his own unworthiness. It is to such men (and women) as these to whom GOD intrusts the greatest gift that man can pass on to man.

Then, what is the gift? Listen. "To give knowledge of salvation to his people for the remission of their SINS", and remember that this privilege is yours also; to possess, to pass on, and still possess. Some tell us that salvation is prospective and not a thing of knowledge. Again and again the Scriptures echo the words "that ye may know", and if there is one thing in this world that man needs to know and to have, it is "knowledge of salvation . . . for the remission of sins".

It is "because of the tender mercy of our GOD" that you and I are possessors of this boundless gift; "for GOD who commanded the light to shine out of darkness (think of it, for none but GOD could do that) hath shined in our hearts". Why? That we may "GIVE the light of the knowledge of the glory of GOD in the face of JESUS CHRIST.

*Then give as you never gave,
This gift of the GOD of Grace,
The knowledge that Jesus came to save
Sinners of the human race.*

*Then give as you never gave,
Because He gave to you
The knowledge that Jesus came to save
From sins of the crimson hue.*

"Wherever Christ went, fear fled away. They who learned of Him had no more dread, but walked with serene souls through the hard places. They, in their turn, carried the blessing of peace with them. So it comes to us, keeping our Christmas feast with joy and gratitude and love. We celebrate the abolition of fear. We look about us, and perceive also that the kingdom of peace has much wider boundaries than it had a year ago. We look above us, and over all is the Eternal Father regarding us with unimaginable affection"—Dean George Hodges.

THE TWELVE SPIES

By Auntie Wince

IT WAS in the days of Moses. The children of Israel were in the wilderness of Paran, marching for Canaan, and they very much wanted to know what kind of land it was that God was going to give them for a possession.

So they chose one man out of each tribe to go and settle the question. They found it a good land, flowing with milk and honey, there were so many cows and so many bees. And the fruit—what an abundance of luscious fruit there was!—pomegranates and figs and grapes; such great clusters of grapes that it took two men to carry one cluster. We have fine grapes in our country, but not such grapes as that.

Caleb and Joshua were for going up at once to take possession of that lovely land. They were sure they could do so without any trouble, but the rest of the spies were afraid. They had forgotten God, had forgotten how easy it would be for Him to paralyze the arms of all those dreadful Anakins, Canaanites, and Perizzites. God did not like it. He was angry because of their lack of faith in Him. When He told them so they concluded to go and try their strength in fighting against these dreaded giants. God forbade this and told them positively that He would not go with them if they did, but they were a headstrong people. Like a little girl who steadfastly affirmed that there were seven children in her father's family, though two were dead, these Israelites would go and fight, and of course they were beaten with fearful loss. And worse yet, instead of being permitted to go straight ahead into the beautiful land of promise they were made to turn right about and begin a mazy wandering that would not end until every rebel among them was dead. Men think it a little thing to disobey God. But listen: It is dangerous business. Nothing is ever gained by refusing to obey, but, O, how much is lost, how much that can never be regained!

When life is done, we cannot go back and travel the road over again. No matter how unsatisfactory our record may be, it must stand. We can not change it nor blot it out. We may toss wildly on our beds, and scream and cry and plead for more time as I once heard a young girl do, but it will avail nothing. It will be too late. NOW is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation.

The morrows go by on eagles' wings. "Time and tide wait for no man."

"Take the name of Jesus with you
Child of sorrow and of care;
Take the name of Jesus with you,
He will all your burdens bear."

The spies left God out and they lost the land. All will lose it who forget Him.

THE THRONE OF DAVID

By Jas. A. Patrick

I HAVE before me a little book in which the author, C. R. Nichol, tries to prove that Christ is now sitting upon David's throne. Why? Because he wants to make it appear that the kingdom was set up on the first Pentecost after Christ's resurrection, and that Christ is now reigning over His kingdom seated on David's throne. The argument is very ingenious, too.

Let me give you some of his argument:

Christ Promised David's Throne

"Luke 1:32. 'He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David'.

David's Throne Is the Lord's Throne

"1 Kings 2:12. 'Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.' 1 Chron. 29:23. 'Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father.'

David's Throne Is in Heaven: an Oath

"Psalm 89:35-37. 'Once have I sworn by My holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before Me. It shall be established for ever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven.' Psalm 11:4. 'The Lord's throne is in heaven.'

"As the throne is in heaven, and Christ was to be given that throne, He could not be seated on it till He went to heaven where the throne is. But the kingdom was to be established from the time He took the throne.

Kingdom Established: 'from Henceforth'

"Isaiah 9:7. 'Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever.'"

The above is the argument of Mr. Nichol and you can see that he is quoting Scripture. Has he established the fact that Christ is now on David's throne? If so, he has also established the fact that the kingdom began at the time He took the throne. And our people, and others who argue that Christ is now on David's throne, might as well stop arguing that the kingdom is yet in the future and stop praying, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."

The Scriptures quoted above seem to teach what Mr. Nichol wants them to teach—That Christ is now reigning on the throne of David, and that the kingdom is in existence now. Do they teach these things? No. Why do they seem to teach them? Because Scripture has not been compared with Scripture. There is one other Scripture which Mr. Nichol quoted which I will quote here. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His throne." This was quoted to prove that Christ is on David's throne. Does it prove it? Certainly not. It proves just the opposite. The "My" throne is a different one from the one in which He is sitting when the language is uttered. What throne is His throne? David's, according to the other Scriptures quoted.

Was David's throne in heaven? Certainly not. David was never in heaven and is not there now, according to Peter. The Lord had two thrones. One on which He sat in heaven and the other on which David, Solomon, and some others sat and administered the affairs of Israel under the Lord's directions.

Christ and His followers are to reign on the earth according to Revelation 5:10. And yet, some would try to make it appear that "on" means "over". It is true that epi, the Greek word rendered "on" in the above text, is sometimes translated over, as in the following text, "Whom the Lord hath made ruler over (epi) His household." And in order that this text should mean what some want Rev. 5:10 to mean the ruler would have to rule from the house top in order to rule "over" in the sense that it is desired that epi should be taken in the text in Revelation. Some try to prove that "over" means position and that one ruling over must be above the ones or the thing ruled. "I will make him ruler over many things." Must he be above them in order to rule over them? Doesn't King George rule over England? Is he above it in position?

The position that Christ will not reign on the earth is taken by many, especially the I. B. S. A., to bolster up another position, held, I fear by some of our people. That is, that Christ is not now a being with flesh and bone, but some sort of spirit. I hardly know what they do mean. They claim that He is a spirit being, but fail to tell us what that means.

However, the language of Scripture is clear on this point and there need be no misunderstanding as to what it teaches. Christ said, "Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself: handle Me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have." Could language be plainer? And yet, it is said that Christ meant to say to them, "As YE see Me have", with emphasis on the word "ye". That is, He didn't really have any flesh and bone, but assumed them for the occasion, just as it is said that God assumed "back parts" in order to show Himself to Moses. Is it possible that our Father and our Savior are imposters? Could one pretend to show that which he did not possess and not deceive? Did Christ have flesh and bone or not? What did He mean when He told Thomas to feel of the hole in His side and the nail prints in His hands? What did Paul mean when he said, "Now that He ascended, what is it but that He also descended first into the lower parts of the earth? He that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, that He might fill all things." Eph. 4:9, 10. In Matthew 28:6 the angel said to the women, pointing to where Christ had lain, "Come, see the place where the Lord lay." It was the Lord that had lain there. What constituted the Lord as He lay there? Flesh and bone. That is what He said He had after He had risen from the dead. And Paul said the same one that went into the grave was the one that ascended up on high. I guess we had better take the Bible as it reads and not try to spiritualize it away.

WHY CONTINUE?

By Mrs. Edith Mann

DEAR EDITOR: In reading your daily paper, I see quite frequently these headlines, "Gone to the Spirit World", "Passes to the Maker", and "Gone to His Reward". Do you know that such lines are a contradiction to the teachings of the Bible? In the ninth chapter of Ecclesiastes we read, "The living know that they shall die; but the dead know not anything." In the tenth verse we read, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest." In the seventeenth chapter of Job we read, "If I wait the grave is mine house." In the 146th Psalm, verse 4, we read, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."

May I ask what need there would be for a resurrection, if we go to our Maker at death? We are plainly taught that when Christ comes, then, and not until then, will we receive any reward. 2 Timothy 4 tells us Jesus will judge the quick (living) and dead at His appearing and His kingdom. We are plainly taught that Jesus will set up an everlasting kingdom when He comes; that there will be two resurrections.

Now space and time forbid me giving all the references I would like to, but if these are not enough to prove that the grave is the resting place of the dead until the resurrection, I can give you many more. There isn't a place in the Bible that tells us we have an immortal soul. In 1 Timothy 6:16 we read of who only hath immortality. Eccl. 12:7 tells us the spirit returns to God. But if you are a Bible student you will know that the word spirit was translated from the Hebrew word "ruach" and means breath. The word breath in Genesis 2:7 is "neshamah". In Eccl. 3:19 it is "ruach". God told Adam in Gen. 2:17, "thou shalt surely die", and the third chapter, nineteenth verse, "for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." Many people prefer to believe the Devil, but I believe God.

I sincerely hope you will publish this article, as there are too many people believing the Devil's lie, that was started in the Garden of Eden, when he told Eve, "Ye shall not surely die."—Commercial Review, Portland, Ind.

JESUS CHRIST—WHO IS HE?

NUMBER 14

By R. H. Judd

PSALM twenty-two is perhaps one of the most prominent Messianic Psalms, for there we have some of the prophetic utterances of the Christ in the bitterest hours of His human experience.

Can we attempt to fathom the depth of feeling contained in those words, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" Look back over His ministry as He journeyed on His "Father's business" and daily sought to do His Father's will. Look back on the days and nights spent in prayer and intimate communion with Him whom He told His disciples was His God and their God also. There is published, I believe, a Bible bearing the title, "The Emphatic Bible", showing to the reader the correct words on which emphasis should be placed. But to one who has passed any appreciable distance along life's pathway there will be little difficulty in rightly placing the emphasis here. Surely it will be, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" In the Garden all forsook Him and fled. He could understand that, for was He not "touched with the feeling of our infirmities"? Paul said, "All men forsook me", but in the joy of realization he added, "The Lord stood by me". Oh, the contrast. We speak of agony of mind, but surely the bitterest cup of all must be that He who knew no sin must Himself be forsaken of God because He bore the sin of others. Up to the very last He had realized the presence of God, as is evidenced by His prayer in the Garden, but now when the guilt of your sin and mine was actually upon Him God had to forsake Him that He might redeem them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.

But for a moment let the curtain drop over this awful scene, and let us again ask the question, "Who is He?" Some wishing to do Him honor say that He is God—the great "I AM"—the one and "only true God"—"He that liveth for ever and ever." To whom then does He raise this awful cry, "Why hast Thou forsaken Me?" They tell us that God died. Who, then, is represented by "Thou", and to whom does the "Me" refer? Paul tells us "He was obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." Reverently we ask it, To whom was God obedient?

Passing over other verses let us now turn to verse 30: "A seed shall serve him; it shall be accounted to the Lord for a generation." It was to the Jew a distinguishing mark of God's favor that his "generation" might be well accounted. Jesus Christ had none, but God accounted to Him a seed that should serve Him, even the seed of Abraham by faith—"a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and peoples"; and, as we shall see later, the Scriptures add, "He shall see His seed, He shall prolong His days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in His hand."

Psalm 45:6—"Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: the sceptre of Thy kingdom is a right sceptre" is the next important allusion to Christ to gain our attention. This is frequently quoted in support of the doctrine that Jesus Christ is God in the strictest sense that that word conveys. We need to give it careful consideration. Apart from Paul's citation of it in Hebrews 1:8, as having direct reference to Christ, the context itself as contained in verse 7 (and also in Heb. 1:9) gives abundant evidence that the word "God", as applied to the one spoken to, is used in a different and subjective sense to the one spoken of. Few realize that the Hebrew word "Elohim" here translated "God" is applied not only to the one true and living God, but to angels, also to idols, and under certain circumstances even to men; hence the context alone can decide the import of its particular use. It must therefore be apparent to the most casual thinker that to apply the words "thy God" in any reference whatever to Him who is "God over all" would be contradictory in the extreme, for God Himself owes allegiance to none.

Psalm 72: Time forbids consideration of the many detailed references to Christ in the Psalms, but we cannot pass by those in the seventy-second Psalm. On most of these comment is needless. Clear and concise in expression their appeal is vibrant with human experience and expectancy. For instance: verse 4, "He shall judge the poor of the people, He shall save the children of the needy, and He shall break in pieces the oppressor"; v. 7, "In His days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth"; v. 14, "He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence: and precious shall their blood be in His sight." This last is a very probable reference to those who suffer death for His sake. If so the next verse as rendered by the Revised Version is a beautiful comment, v. 15, "And they shall live; and to Him shall be given of the gold of Sheba, and men shall pray for Him continually, they shall bless Him all the day long." Verse 17, "His name shall endure for ever: His name shall be continued as long as the sun: and men shall be blessed in Him: all nations shall call Him blessed." The marginal rendering of this verse is exceedingly interesting and is given as the direct rendering of the Hebrew. "His name shall be—shall be as a son to continue his father's name for ever." To some minds there is suggested in the first part of this something in the nature of a blank check, viz., His name shall be: "Jesus", "The Door", "The Way", "The Truth", "The Life"; and the second is ample vindication of the truth that "all power is given" unto Him.

Psalm 89:19—"Then thou spakest in vision to Thy Holy One, and saidst, I have laid help upon one that is mighty, I have exalted one chosen out of the people." Verse 27—"Also I will make Him My firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth."

Psalm 110—Verse 1: Another remarkable Messianic Psalm, the first verse of which Christ Himself made use of to confound the Pharisees when He asked them directly and pointedly, "What think ye of Christ?" "Whose son is He?" They say unto Him, "The Son of David." Tactfully Jesus admitted their answer as correct and skillfully followed up the advantage thus gained by asking, "If David then call Him Lord, how then is He his Son?" The Pharisees left the question unanswered. It is remarkable that Matthew, Mark and Luke record the incident, but John omits it. Many to-day endeavor to make use of the passage to prove the Deity of Jesus the Christ, failing to see that two distinct Hebrew words are used for the word "Lord". The first has direct reference to Jehovah, and this is made clear in the translation by printing the word in capitals, LORD. The second use of the word is the translation of the Hebrew word that implies homage to one who may be God, angel, or man, whoever may be the one spoken to. Apart from any knowledge of Hebrew, the casual reader surely must observe that two personalities are necessarily involved, for one speaks and the other is spoken to. Both, therefore, cannot be in actual fact the one God. Scripture is clear that Jesus Christ is the son of David, but Scripture is also abundantly clear that God (the only true God) has "given" to Him a name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow". Hence David rightly calls Him, "Lord".

Verse 4: "The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." In Hebrews 5:5 Paul quotes this passage in proof of the priesthood of Christ. Thus we have added to the honor of Prophet and King the honor of Priesthood, and it is interesting to note how steadfastly these three aspects of the Messiah are kept in view by the Sacred Record.

NOTICE—The writer desires to make up a complete set of his articles on "The Trinity" which appeared in issues of "The Restitution" and would be much obliged of readers of "The Herald" could kindly help him with spare copies, as he has failed to get the return of one complete set formerly in his possession. Address R. H. Judd, Grafton, Ontario.

COMING! A GREAT DRAMA

By A. E. Bloom

JUST outside the city limits of a great metropolis of the West, stood an immense sign, glaring with red and yellow lights and bearing the words, "Coming—The Passion Play." Thousands watched for its appearing with anticipation. The popularity of this play has stood the test of changing generations. Conflicting creeds have failed to dim the interest of humanity in it, and "The Passion Play" is still proclaimed the greatest dramatic achievement that the world has produced.

But a far greater drama than this is coming. The proclamation of its appearing has been painted on the sky and heralded from the courts of heaven. Prophets of old have announced it. The Chief Actor Himself gave the setting and the manner of it. It is the greatest topic of the Bible, and the one most frequently mentioned. All the apostles faithfully told of it. The angels of heaven, who played a great part in the first advent, bear testimony of Jesus' second appearing. Signs down through the years have announced it to every generation.

The drama will be essentially modern—in fact, more modern than any ever given; yet it will be based on the history of the world since Eden. It was planned by the Ruler of the universe more than six thousand years ago. Bleak and long have been the years of waiting since the Chief Actor promised to perform the great drama. The announcements of it have been unheeded by the masses. Soon, now, the vast curtains will be rolled back, and every eye will see the great consummation of the plans.

The last great scene of this world's history is the theme of the Old Testament prophets. Sometimes they merge the first appearing into the second; but the doctrine is there. "Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you: searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow." 1 Peter 1:10, 11.

Christ Himself, the Chief Actor in the coming event, announced it. He not only promised to come and receive His redeemed ones, but He told them the manner of His coming. "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (Matt. 24:27). Then a little later He told His followers, "And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven" (24:30). Christ meant that He should return after the signboards had announced the staging of the great scene, for in the verse before He says, "Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken" (24:29). And then He shall appear. Verifying His statements, He said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away" (24:35).—Our Hope.

Now Is the Time to Work

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Eccl. 9:10.

If you've any work in view,
This is God's message, friend, to you;
With all your soul now do it.

Let there be now no delay,
If for God you've aught to say,
With all your soul now say it.

If to service for the Lord
You stand pledged by your own word;
With all your soul now serve Him.

ONE OF THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES—WATCH IT!

THAT there will be a partial restoration of the Jews in unbelief in Palestine, and a Jewish government formed with a governor placed over them by the powers guaranteeing the protection of the new state, is what the Zionist movement is working for. And it will come when we see a new Jewish state formed in Palestine. It will mark the commencement again of the national life of Israel.

The king over this temporary Jewish state will be an antichrist. How shall we recognize him as antichrist? 1 John 2:22. This is the antichrist, even he that denieth the Father and the Son. The Word of God is authority for the statement that the coming antichrist will be a rampant atheist. He will declare himself an unbeliever in both the Father and the Son.

Then to name some other character as being the antichrist, who is known to be an avowed believer in both the Father and the Son, although he may be an ignorant worshiper of both of them, is to lead people astray.

This king over the temporary Jewish state, is spoken of in Dan. 8:23, 24 as the king of fierce countenance. Dan. 9:27 says he will make a covenant with the Jews for one week, seven years, and break it in the middle of the week. In Dan. 11:36 he shows his atheistical character: "And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god (when transgressions are come to a full), and shall speak marvelous things against the God of gods, and shall prosper until the indignation be accomplished (which will be at the end of the seventieth week): for that which is determined shall be done. Neither shall he regard . . . : for he shall magnify himself (as being supreme) above all." This event has not yet become an historic fact, as the character here spoken of does not appear until "transgressions are come to the full".

Judging from the present awful wicked and corrupt condition of affairs, the cup of transgressions is near to overflowing. Out of this caldron of corruption the blasphemous atheist, who recognizes no god higher than himself, who will be the "little horn" of Dan. 8:9-12, and who will be known as the king of fierce countenance, will have undisputed control of affairs for the space of three and one-half years. He "shall prosper till the indignation be accomplished." The king of fierce countenance and the "man of sin" are the same person. 2 Thess. 2:3, 4. Let no man beguile you in any wise for it (the day of the Lord's coming) will not be except the falling away come first, and the man of sin (a person, a king) be revealed, the son of perdition, he that opposeth and exalteth himself against all that is called God, or that is worshiped (the papacy never did that), so that he sitteth in the temple of God setting himself forth as God.

This clearly shows the rampant, atheistical character of the person described as the antichrist, the "man of sin", the "son of perdition", the king of fierce countenance.

We frequently hear the papacy referred to as being the antichrist. Now, right here I wish to ask a few plain questions:

Can anyone show from history, giving the date, where the Roman Catholic Church officially, through its councils or Pope ever denied both the Father and the Son?

Will any person who claims that Papacy is the "man of sin" please quote from history and give time and place where any Pope ever opposed God and exalted himself to the extent of claiming to be superior to the Great Eternal as an object of worship?

Will any person who may claim that the king of fierce countenance is Papacy please quote from history, giving time and place, where any Pope ever spoke marvelous things against the God of gods?

Please also show that the Popes of Rome do not regard God but do magnify themselves above all mentioned in Dan. 8:4 about the little horn, that he shall speak words against the Most High.

Please give proof from history when it has been the practice of the Popes of Rome to speak evil things against the Most High. To fail to produce the proof asked for is to fail to prove that the characters spoken of represent Papacy.

These several characters represent one person, but never a succession of Popes.

The beast of Revelation, "antichrist", man of sin", little horn, etc., all refer to one person, an atheist.—Extracts from the late W. H. Wilson's book "Destiny of Russia, and the Signs of the Times.—Selected by Mrs. A. J. Chaplin.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—October 10—Col. 2

Mem. V. 8

THE meat of the Colossian letter is doctrinal rather than practical. The first portion, beginning with 2:8, deals with the fact that the Christian is dead in Christ, while the second doctrinal portion, Col. 3:1, deals with the fact that the Christian is alive in the new, that it, in the risen Christ. Paul begins, v. 9, with the assurance that Christ is filled entirely with the characteristics or properties of the Divine, even of God. The Greek here used for "Godhead" is nowhere else used in the New Testament. Christ being of such characteristic is incomparable with man concerning whom the traditions and philosophy of man greatly mar. Therefore, "Beware", v. 8. Verse 9 assures that the Christian has been made full (same word as "complete", v. 8) in Christ, and that this same Christ is the head of the chief of rulers and of their authority or power. Not only is the Christian full or complete in Christ, but in Him they are circumcised also "in the stripping off of the body of the flesh".—Rotherham. That is, in our baptism we are buried with Him "into His death", Rom. 6:3, "even into death", Rom. 6:4, a stripping off or a renouncing of the old order of life just as Christ freed Himself from the dominion or over-lordship of sin—"in that He died, He died unto sin". Therefore, having died unto sin, in His resurrection sin and "death had no more dominion over Him", Rom. 6:9-10. Man, to get into relationship with Christ, one with Him, must with Him or through Him die unto the old man, even unto sin, that he may be in position to arise and walk in newness of life.

Monday—October 11—Col. 3

Mem. V. 16

THE second great doctrinal truth of the letter is emphasized in this chapter: "If ye then being risen with Christ". But one cannot be risen with Him unless he shall have previously died with Him, and having died with Him there is the certainty of the resurrection with Him. In just such measure or degree as one to-day, in this present, mortal existence, dies with Christ through faith, repentance, obedience, in like measure and degree is he raised with Him; raised by the power of God; raised free from the condemnation which sin would thrust upon Him; free in Christ who is alive from the dead, liberated from sin's encroachments; free in life. Therefore, says Paul to all such, "Set your affections (margin, 'your mind') on things above, not on things on the earth". His reason is given in verse 3, and the hope is announced in verse 4 that when Christ "who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory".

Because of these great bed-rock truths, and because of the fact that certain ones at Colosse had individually embraced them, Paul, therefore, exhorts each one to "mortify", that is, put down, destroy, conquer "your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry: for which things' sake the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience." Paul thus reveals to the Colossians how that practical, every-day Christian living results from, is the fruitage of, the great doctrinal truths of the Scripture. And he bases them all upon the great fact of the death of the individual to sin with Christ, from whom the Christian receives all his fullness of Christian ability, and upon the further fact that the Christian is no longer dead in Christ but risen with the risen Christ into the favor and blessing of God.

Tuesday—October 12—Col. 4

Mem. V. 12

Wednesday—October 13—1 Thess. 1

Mem. V. 3

Paul rejoices because of their joy and hope and patience in the Lord Jesus Christ, and assures them, v. 4, of their "election of God". In verse 8 he mentions how that their faith to God-ward is spread abroad; so that we need not to speak anything". They had "turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for His Son from heaven".

Thursday—October 14—1 Thess. 2

Mem. V. 19

Friday—October 15—1 Thess. 3

Mem. V. 13

Notice Paul's beautiful prayer in their behalf, vv. 11-13.

Saturday—October 16—1 Thess. 4

Mem. V. 16

PAUL exhorts the brethren to steadfastness and then engages in a brief word of instruction for their comfort. They were perhaps sorrowing because of their dead. Paul's assurance was that "the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." This "caught up together" is very definite in the Greek, not that the living are caught up and united with the raised dead previously caught away, rather that the dead are raised before the living are changed, fashioned like unto the raised, and together, the raised and the changed living are caught away, in one group, in one body, at one and the selfsame time to meet the Lord in the air. This particular instruction of Paul was given that they should not be ignorant and that they might have comfort. It also gives the present-day Christian knowledge of this one great work. The giving of life to the Christians will all take place at one time, whether sleeping or waking. At the call of the Master the Christian meets Him with all others who are called unto that marvelous change, fashioned like unto His glorious body.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

THE HERALD IN NEW FORM

THE HERALD appears this week in new form. The change is in harmony with our effort to improve the paper continually, week by week. We believe that this form permits of a better paper through better service. We ask for suggestions from all Herald readers, always, with a view to improving its columns and its service.

We also solicit the aid of all to increase its circulation.

NEW CHURCHES

THE BRETHREN of the Dixon, Illinois church have given all an example of what results from a decision to prayerfully undertake increased service for the Master. The Dixon church is of few members. Meetings have formerly been held in a third floor Hall hard of access by the members and most uninviting to strangers.

The brethren longed for a church building. The lot was presented. Then all proceeded to work harmoniously and zealously. Each of four or five, after contributing all they thought they could, proceeded to personally borrow on 10 year notes sufficient to nearly complete their building. At time of dedication they had their $5000 property all financed excepting about $500.

Let's take lesson from Dixon, Eldorado, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, all of whom have this year been in the New Church business.

PRESSING TOWARD THE MARK

SOMEONE has said: "The greatest thing in life is to live." To this I feel bold to reply that greater than just to live is the earnest effort to live so as to attain unto the greatest height made possible by God.

The more one's mind meditates upon the beauteous grandeurs of God's plans and purposes the more he realizes the great prize held forth for man. The inspiration and invigoration consequent on reaching and ever reaching toward this prize makes for spiritual strength and courage with which to surmount obstacles in pressing toward the mark for the prize. And the more one engages in this great effort the more does he discover that the very best method to pursue, as in every race of life, is to at all times rush straight toward the mark.

It is said of "Red" Grange, who was the noted football star in 1925, that the secret of his great success was that whenever he grasped the ball his one and only thought seemed to be to reach the goal. Interference from the opposing team apparently did not enter his mind. His own team was trained and practiced in protecting him in his race and in opening a way for him through his opponents' line. Thus, his one strenuous effort was to reach the goal.

The Christian to-day has a goal to reach. Victory therein is indescribable. Would that each and every person consecrating himself to the effort would disregard absolutely not only the opposition but the allurements of the present life and press with all possible strength toward the end in view.

Our Savior has opened the way; He has cleared the path; He has said that none shall be tempted above that which they are able to bear, and that with every temptation a way of escape shall be provided; He has promised to be with His disciples to the end of the world.

Not only this, He has opened wide the gateway out of death itself. Sin's death trap with its wide-open door has been engulfing all men throughout the centuries. But Christ our Lord opened the exit-door from death,—opened it by way of resurrection unto life. Christ has opened the way for us to reach the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

There remains but one thing for us to do, namely, to faithfully and persistently hasten with all due earnestness and zeal toward the mark.

The Christian's race, however, does not consist of fleetness of foot; it rather consists of heartiness of service. To Christ's disciples He gave but one parting commission: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature". That was the race assigned to those for whom He had cleared the way that they might attain unto the mark.

Service. Christ served. He served at all times; He served in every way imaginable; He served that He might clearly manifest to the people the great heart, the great life, the great love of God toward men. The Father called Him to His own right hand, and as He was about to depart He left this one commission to His disciples. And this commission comes down through time unto us.

Herald readers, let us unite in every possible way and carry out collectively as well as individually these great duties before God in behalf of man. Let us search with utmost care for the purity and truthfulness of the Gospel and then unite in utmost zeal for its proclamation and dissemination unto the world of God's children. Let us "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus".

* * * *

HERALD RECEIPTS

Alice Williams; Mrs. J. W. Wilson.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. Alexander D. Donaldson, 37 S. 12th Ave., Mt. Vernon, N. Y., is much disappointed that neither time nor strength permit him to yet resume his articles for the Young People's Page.

The Herald is most thankful to Bro. Donaldson for his untiring and hearty cooperation in this Christian labor. It is regrettable that a change of work has greatly shortened his hours for his writing and that his strength is less than in past years.

Bro. Samuel E. Haney, 2437 S. 17th St., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, has been suffering a recurrence of severe neuritis which has disabled him for writing.

CAMPAIGN FALL

Yes, this is campaign fall in a great many states.

We have caught the spirit just enough to put on this subscription campaign. And we are serious about it. Can't we have a good big response this time. Organize your Sunday School, Church, or Berean Society and work for the Wall Map of Palestine.

You can use it and we need the subscriptions.

On with the good work.

MICHIGAN

Bro. Arley Townsend was taken to the Blodgett hospital in Grand Rapids, Friday, September 10, for an operation for appendicitis. Although he was in severe pain for a few days after the operation, he is now convalescing nicely at his home.

The Patrick family enjoyed very much a visit from Bro. and Sr. Benn and Bro. Daniel Kent of Dayton, Ohio, a short time ago. They were on their way to Beulah, Michigan, where they expected to spend their vacation. Bro. Benn was also trying to dodge Mr. Hay Fever, who lays a heavy tribute of sneezing and coughing on him every fall. Bro. Benn seems to be recovering nicely from his very severe illness of some months ago.

The meetings which Bro. Patrick has been holding at West Bowne have created an interest. On the 19th of September the West Bowne folk repaired to Dutton where services were held morning and afternoon, with pot luck dinner between. Bro. Patrick preached in the morning and Sr. Woodward in the afternoon. Bro. Patrick preached again in the evening at West Bowne. On the 26th an all-day meeting was held at West Bowne with three preaching services and a pot luck dinner at noon.

The fall conference will be with the Grand Rapids brethren in their new church on the south side, October 22, 23, and 24. The dedication of their new church will be made at this time.

All brethren of the state are earnestly urged to be present at this meeting and cooperate in planning for and carrying the state work.

Fred E. Hall, Secretary.

OHIO

DOUBLE WEDDING

At the home of Sr. Etta L. Elton, Delta, Ohio, occurred a double wedding on September 12, at which time her daughter Maud Marie became the bride of Ora Biery, and her son Glen took unto himself Iris Moore for a wife. Both young couples will make their homes in Toledo, and our best wishes go with them.

This is to introduce to the household of faith the names of Jean Knife and Miriam Kessler. These two girls, although yet in early teens, of their own volition requested baptism on September 26. Accordingly, having witnessed a good confession, they were the same afternoon inducted into the saving name of Christ. How thankful we are that they have felt the need of the Savior in youth instead of waiting until the best of life is gone to give the rest to Him. Jean and Miriam may each be addressed at Route 2, West Milton, Ohio.

It is worthy of more than passing notice that the parents of each of these girls obeyed the gospel only a few years back. They have been trying to raise their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord", and now we behold the fruits of their labors. God grant that throughout the ages to come those fruits may yet remain, a glory to God and to His Son our Savior.

M. W. Lyon.

INDIANA SEPTEMBER REPORT

Sermons: Rensselaer, 2; Burr Oak, 2; Lakeville, 1; Roll, 2.

Money Received: Rensselaer, $25.00; Burr Oak, $5.00; Plymouth, $15.00; Ernest Logan, $5.00; Lakeville Christian Church, $5.00; Roll, $18.00.

Expense: $11:13.

The Lord willing, we are expecting to begin a special meeting at Burr Oak October 13.

J. H. Anderson.

The special meetings at Argos, Indiana, are being continued throughout the week.

Word is received that Bro. S. J. Keever and wife of Frankfort, Indiana, were overcome with gas in their home. Bro. Keever was 71 years old. Another instance of the uncertainty of life.

ILLINOIS

There will be preaching services, every Sunday of October, morning and evening, at the new Dixon church. Bro. Paul C. Johnson will speak on the 10th and Bro. J. Arthur Johnson on the 17th.

SALEM MEETINGS

According to present plans a series of meetings will be held at the Salem Church, near Marshall and Martinsville, Illinois, beginning Tuesday night, October 12 and continuing over Sunday, October 24. Let us all get behind this meeting and help make it a success.

F. E. Siple.

Bro. Paul C. Johnson plans to fill Bro. Siple's appointment on the Kewanee, Macomb, Ripley trip, October 14-17.

Will all who have any friends or relatives located either permanently or temporarily in Chicago and who are members or would be interested in our church work, please send the names and addresses to F. E. Siple, Oregon, Illinois, right away. An effort will be made to get in touch with all such and establish a larger work in the city, and we need the names this month.

THE DIXON CHURCH

Sunday, October 3, was a large, important day, and one which will remain bright in the memory of the Dixon church for many, many years. Their beautiful, new chapel all completed, the doors were thrown open and the public invited in to help rejoice as they solemnly dedicated their labor to God.

The little house was packed to capacity, with chairs filling every aisle. Bro. F. E. Siple filled the pulpit at the morning and night services, and Bro. F. L. Austin gave the dedication address in the afternoon. Brethren and friends were present from Oregon, Adeline, Aurora, Tampico, Rock Falls, Rockford and other points, and the Oregon choir filled the choir loft at the afternoon and night services.

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

An evidence of the value of Berean work is just now very apparent at Dixon, Illinois. Were it not for the faithfulness with which their Society has been kept going through the past years the beautiful little church which now gladdens their hearts would not be. They have been permitted to have preaching services only on an average of once per month, but on the other Sundays they have met regularly for class work even though they had to rent a third floor hall, but — perseverance, then success, is the old, old story.

* * *

So, even though you may not have a minister all the time remember Paul's exhortation: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." Heb. 10:25.

* * *

Little drops of water falling continuously throughout the years will wear a course through the hardest stone. So the regular efforts in Christian service will, even though small, accomplish visible results in the course of time.

* * *

If you are longing for peace and contentment don't overlook the fact that Solomon says of God: "But whoso hearkeneth unto Me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil." Can you think of any condition of mind more desirable?

* * *

You Ought—that is, You Owe It!

I owe what?

1. I ought to use my talents in the service of God. Mark 14:8—"She hath done what she could." If I can I ought.

2. I ought to obey God rather than men. Acts 5:29.

3. I ought always to pray and not to faint. Luke 18:1.

4. I ought to bear the infirmities of the weak. Rom. 15:1.

5. I ought to be consistent. Jas. 3:10.

6. I ought to give the more earnest heed to the things I have heard lest I let them slip. Heb. 2:1.

7. I ought to walk to please God. 1 Thess. 4:1.

* * *

BEG YOUR PARDON, ILLINOIS.

The Berean Editor owes Illinois workers an apology. We promised faithfully to see that the "Self-denial Month", October, was sufficiently announced, and, behold, October is here before we got it said. However, this is just the first of the month, and furthermore, you couldn't forget it now if you wanted to. Let's all get together on this, and for this one month, refrain from the many unnecessary luxuries in which nearly all of us indulge so frequently. Throughout the month lay aside each day or each week the amount thus saved and then at the end of the month send it to the state Berean Treasurer, Bro. Paul C. Johnson, Oregon, Illinois, and state that it is Self-denial money. If each would do this think what the sum would mean in advancing the work, and in bringing smiles to many away the tears from the faces of many unfortunates.

* * *

Were you on time at the last Berean service? and did you help the leader keep the attention of the class on the subject?

* * *

We have heard some say, "I don't know whether I will be saved or not. I don't know that I am good enough."

Where is your faith and trust in Him who gave His life for you? Cease doubting and throw your fears away.

Put your trust in your heavenly Father and your elder Brother, Jesus the Christ, and your faith and "The Faith" will be your whole comfort either in joy or sorrow.

"They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about His people from henceforth even for ever." Psa. 125:1-2.—Jessie M. Wilson.

How Readest Thou?

Ecclesiastes 9:10

"'Tis one thing, friend, to read the Bible through,
Another thing to read to learn and do;
'Tis one thing, too, to read it with delight
And quite another thing to read it right.

"Some read it with design to learn to read,
But to the subject pay but little heed;
Some read it as their duty once a week,
But no instruction from the Bible seek.

"Some read to bring themselves into repute,
By showing others how they can dispute;
Whilst others read because their neighbors do,
To see how long 'twill take to read it through.

Some read the blessed Book, they don't know why;
It somehow happens in their way to lie;
Whilst others read it with uncommon care,
But all to find some contradictions there.

"One reads with father's specks upon his head,
And sees the thing just as his father did;
Another reads through Campbell or through Scott,
And thinks it means exactly what THEY thought.

"Some read to prove a preadopted creed,
Thus understand but little what they read;
And every passage of the Book they bend
To make it suit that all important end.

"Some people read, as I have often thought,
To teach the Book instead of being taught."

—Unknown.

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH
LESSON 3 OCTOBER 17, 1926
LESSON TEXT: DEUT. 32:45-52; 34:1-8
RESPONSIVE READING PSALM 116
DEUTERONOMY 32:45-52 and 34:5-8

Golden Text: Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints.—Psalm 116:15.

FOR STUDY

Review: Through what test was Israel put in last week's lesson? Why? and what were its results? Why was this a necessary part of God's process of building the people of Israel up as His chosen nation?

The New Lesson: This week's lesson takes place near the close of the forty years of wandering in the wilderness declared upon Israel by God because of her unbelief. According to God's purpose, Israel had by this time entered into the belief which will enable her to enter the promised land. Moses' work among the people of Israel is finished, and in this week's lesson we find him giving his last instructions as lawgiver and spiritual leader and giving over his leadership through death.

I. The Last Instructions of Moses. Deut. 32:45-47. To what does "these words" refer? Read various commentaries concerning the book of Deuteronomy to get a conception of the book as a whole. What word shows that Moses realized that the people must do more than hear with their ears? What is the difference between hearing with the ears and hearing with the heart? Which involves the emotions, desire, and willingness?

Did Moses consider the teaching and commanding of children to observe God's law a solemn duty of parents? Is it wise to command children to observe God's laws even before they can fully understand its why's and wherefore's? Did Moses speak, in verse 46, a sound principle of nation building? What is the relationship between a nation and its homes? Does authority to issue a command carry with it authority to enforce it? Need such authority and commands in a home be harsh and arbitrary?

What reasons does Moses set forth to back up the instructions of verse 47? Analyze the statements, "It is not a vain thing for you", and "It is your life".

"The Bible makes a true distinction between physical life and spiritual life, between life which is merely eating and drinking and sleeping and such temporary things, and life which is thinking and loving and aspiring and serving and worshiping, and such eternal things. The Bible is enormously helpful in the material life, and the most prosperous and powerful nations on earth are those that give most honor and heed to the Bible; but this is because the Bible ministers primarily to the higher life, the ruling and achieving life, the endless life."

II. Moses' Death Predicted. Deut. 32:48-52. Why was Moses, the friend of God, not permitted to enter the promised land? Vs. 51 with Num. 20:2-13. Note that Moses smote twice with the rod, though he was only told to speak. Also that he said "we", making no direct reference to God.

By God's seemingly extreme severity toward this small lapse of faith (small when compared with Moses' usual great faith) we are taught that the progress of God's nation rests in no least degree on faithless pride and strength of men. It is enduring because it is entirely of God.

III. The Death of Moses. Deut. 34:1-8. What assurance did God grant Moses that His covenant with Abraham should be fulfilled? When and how was Moses confronted with the idea of himself supplanting Abraham in this covenant? Why did he resist such an idea? Would he, then, rejoice in the assurance that the covenant would be fulfilled? Why? Why should we rejoice?

What was Moses' physical condition at the time of his death? May this not be evidence of his close fellowship with God? Is it necessarily so? (Think of Paul.)

FOR CLASS

Give a summary of last week's lesson and the part its events had to play in the building of Israel into a chosen nation.

For this week's lesson follow the lesson outline in the study section.

"The career of Moses was full of bitter rebuffs and disappointments. It furnishes a shining illustration of the ultimate and glorious triumph of a disappointed man."—Rev. David James Burrell, D.D. Moses was rejected by his people and exiled to Midian for forty years. The people rebelled against him repeatedly, including his own sister and brother. Their unbelief doomed them to forty years' wandering in the wilderness. Finally Moses himself was barred from the Land of Promise by his sins. A career of disappointment! And yet a career of deathless glory!"—Rev. Chas. H. Parkhurst, D. D.

The Golden Rule Class of the Church of God Sunday School at Oregon is made up of the younger, unmarried people. A meeting of the class is held one evening of each month for the purpose of transacting such business as may come up and for the discussion of ways and means of bettering the Sunday School and Church work.

GREAT MEN'S SAYINGS ON CIGARETTES AND TOBACCO

By David A. Anderson

TO the late Dr. Orisen Swett Marden, author of "Pushing to the Front", which contains a chapter on "The Cigarette", that has been called "the greatest indictment on the cigarette ever made", do I owe largely for the following quotations. I have also made use of the little leaflet, "Anti-Tobacco Day Helper", published by David C. Cook Publishing Co., Elgin, Illinois.

"The use of the cigarette and tobacco is becoming so widespread that America is in grave danger of joining, before many generations have passed, the list of nations wherein tobacco and degeneracy go hand in hand." The superintendent of the National Anti-Cigarette League says that every day from twelve to fifteen hundred boys begin smoking cigarettes, so rapidly is the habit spreading. This means an army of five hundred thousand recruits annually.

O. T. Willson expresses himself thus: "The medical and other professional fraternities of the country and world should join hands in an endeavor to bring the subject before the federal government. Every State Legislature, every city government, all societies of the various kinds, and every church body should give it the broad publicity and active support it so richly deserves."

Upon the harm of the cigarette to the body Thomas A. Edison has expressed himself as follows: "Acrolein is one of the most terrible drugs in its effect on the human body. The burning of ordinary cigarette paper always produces acrolein. I really believe that it often makes boys insane. I can hardly exaggerate the dangerous nature of acrolein, yet that is what a man or boy is dealing with every time he smokes an ordinary cigarette."

"The Commercial West", a banking and industrial paper of high standing, said in a recent issue: "The cigarette is not North American. It is an infection from inferior breeds of people. Among all Latin-American, tropical, and sub-tropical peoples the cigarette is the universal accompaniment of lippy, sloppy humanity, weak-legged and cob-brained. That a few good stiff-backed North Americans can inhale the infection and yet remain stiff-backed and clear-minded, is no apology for the cigarette. It is but proof that the North American had an ancestry that didn't do as he does."

Hudson Maxim, inventor, scientist, and the world's leading expert on gunpowder and high explosives, says: "If all boys could be made to know that with every breath of cigarette smoke they inhale imbecility and exhale manhood, and the cigarette is a maker of invalids, criminals and fools—not men—it ought to deter them some. The yellow finger stain is an emblem of deeper degradation and enslavement than the ball and chain."

Many employers never hire cigarette smokers. The U. S. Weather Bureau has excluded cigarette users from its employ. Marshall Field and Co., Chicago; Montgomery Ward and Co.; Heath and Malligan; Carson Pirie, Scott & Co.; and the Swift Packing Co. are at the head of a long line of producers and distributors who have refused to employ cigarette users.

Ex-president Taft, himself, says, "I never smoke."

Dr. Winfield S. Hall, professor of Physiology in Northwestern University, says: "Every school-boy knows that when athletes are in training for a contest, they are obliged to abstain absolutely from every form of tobacco. Under its influence the young man is less alert and has less endurance."

Chief Justice Brewer, of the U. S. Supreme Court, said: "The cigarette is the American abomination. No cigarette victim can climb to the top of the ladder."

Dr. A. C. Clinton, of San Francisco physician to several boys' schools, says: "I am often called to prescribe for boys for palpitation of the heart. In nine cases out of ten this is caused by the cigarette habit. I have seen bright boys turned into dunces, and straightforward,

(Continued on next page, column 1)

WITH OUR CHILDREN

BY DAISY NOKES

Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto Me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 19:14.

Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.—Ephesians 6:4.

MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH

To the children of other Sunday Schools.

Ask Mother if she won't help you with this lesson; for in many Sunday Schools the children will be taught that Moses was carried to heaven. God's Word says in the 34th chapter of Deuteronomy, verses 5 and 6, that Moses died and was buried. Nothing at all said about going to heaven. You know Satan first started that story in the garden of Eden. Which are you going to believe, the great Jehovah or Satan?

MOSSES had worked for God a long time. He was now one hundred and twenty years old. One day the Lord had him go up into a mountain where he could see the promised land that God had given to the children of Israel. God would not let Moses enter the land; for he had not obeyed Him one time. I will tell you about it. Once when the Israelites had no water God said, "Moses speak to the rock and water will come forth". Instead of obeying exactly as God wished, Moses hit the rock twice with his rod and took the praise to himself and Aaron, for the miracle. Moses said to the people—"Shall we (Moses and Aaron) bring you forth water out of this rock?" That was wrong; for it was all God's doings. Moses should have spoken to the rock and when the water came forth, said, "Our great God gives you this water."

You see, children, God wants all to do just exactly as He says, and then give Him the praise. That is the way Jesus did, you remember, for He would say, "The words that I speak unto you I speak not of Myself: but the Father that dwelleth in Me, he doeth the works."

Now, I could have put that in my own words, but there is something so beautiful about the way Jesus says things that it sounds like music. Doesn't it?

Ask yourself—"Am I obeying 'exactly' like Jesus; or just 'almost' like Moses?"

Joshua was to be the leader after Moses died on the mountain and was buried by God. No one knows to this day where is his grave. The people loved him. They wept thirty days.

Some people who don't study their Bibles will tell you that it does not make any difference what you believe just so you are good. God's Word tells you exactly what to believe.

Others will tell you sprinkling is just as good as baptism. God's Word tells you exactly. Jesus went down into the waters, and God says to be buried with Jesus in baptism.

* * *

Our first letter for the contest which was announced in The Herald of September 14 is from Miss Louise Walden, Hernands, Mississippi, Route 2.

Good for you, Louise.

SERVICE

By William Hunt, Jr.

AS JESUS was walking along the shore of the Sea of Galilee, He saw Simon and Andrew fishing. He said unto them, "Come ye after Me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." They then lay down their nets and followed Him.

The first always leads to the second. The whole ministry of John, the herald, was summed up in pointing Jesus out to others. That was his service. All true service begins in personal contact with Jesus.

The beginning of John's contact with Jesus that day, and of Andrew's, was in looking. We do not see Jesus with our outer eyes, as did these men in the Gospel narrative. We must listen first to someone telling about Him. Our experiences with Jesus affect the eyes of the heart. That lonely, sore-hearted woman on the Nain road looked with startled wonder out of those tear-dimmed eyes of hers as Jesus began talking to her dead son. That was one of His first miracles.

Looking at Jesus changes us. Living with Jesus makes us look like Him. Looking at Jesus changes the world for us. We have new ideals and ambitions.

Prayer precedes true service and produces it and sweetens it. After you have had personal contact with Jesus you draw someone else, just as John and Andrew did. Constant personal contact with Jesus is the beginning, ever new, of service.

ON CIGARETTES AND TOBACCO

(Continued from preceding page)

honest boys into cowards by cigarette smoking."

Dr. J. J. Kellogg relates the following: "A few months ago I had all the nicotine removed from a cigarette, making a solution of it. I injected half the quantity into a frog, with the effect that the frog died almost instantly. The remainder was administered to another frog with like effect. Both frogs were full grown and of average size. The conclusion is evident that a single cigarette contains poison enough to kill two frogs. A boy who smokes twenty cigarettes a day has inhaled enough poison to kill forty frogs."

Magistrate Crane, of New York City, says: "Ninety-nine out of a hundred boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years who come before me charged with crime have their fingers disfigured by yellow stains."

Let every boy or man using tobacco ponder seriously over the following questions:

"Does your use of tobacco spiritually benefit you or your neighbor?"

"Does it benefit you morally?"

"Does it benefit you mentally?"

"Does it benefit you physically?"

"Does it increase your own happiness, or that of your family, or neighbor? If not, what right then have you to use it?"

"Does it bring any financial returns to you?"

Professor Wm. McKeever, of the Kansas Agricultural College, after a thorough study of the "Cigarette Smoking Boy" presents, among other facts, the following:

"For the past eight years I have been tracing out the cigarette boy's biography and I have found that in practically all cases the lad began his smoking habit clandestinely and with little thought of its seriousness, while the fond parents perhaps believed that the child was too good to engage in such a practice.

"I have tabulated reports of the condition of nearly two thousand five hundred cigarette-smoking school-boys, and in describing them physically my informants have repeatedly resorted to the use of such epithets as 'sallow', 'sore-eyed', 'puny', 'squeaky-voiced', 'sickly', 'short-winded', and 'extremely nervous'."

In view of this abominable vice what do we say? What do we do? What can we do? In the first place we can go ahead with a good example. In the second place, we can exhort those under our influence to leave tobacco alone. Can we not look forward to the time when the manufacture and sale of tobacco in our beloved land shall cease?

There are moments in the history of God's people, in which the tenderness to man becomes unfaithfulness to God; and it is of the utmost importance to be able to discern such moments.—Selected.

THOUGHTS FOR THINKERS

There is much difference between imitating a good man and counterfeiting him.—Franklin.

CREATIVE POWER OF THOUGHT

As you think, you travel; and as you love you attract. You are to-day where your thoughts have brought you; you will be to-morrow where your thoughts take you. You cannot escape the result of your thoughts, but you can endure and learn, can accept and be glad. You will realize the vision (not the idle wish) of your heart, be it base or beautiful, or a mixture of both, for you will always gravitate towards that which you secretly most love. Into your hands will be placed the exact result of your thoughts; you will receive that which you earn; no more, no less. Whatever your present environment may be, you will fall, remain, or, so rise with your thoughts, your vision, your ideal. You will become as small or as big as your dominant aspiration.—James Allen.

* * * *

There are two good rules which ought to be written upon every heart. Never believe anything bad about anybody, unless you positively know that it is true. Never tell even that, unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary, and that God is listening while you tell.—Henry VanDyke.

* * * *

There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit.—Romans 8:1.

* * * *

The guidance of our mind is more important than its progress.—Joubert.

WHAT IS TRUTH?

(Continued from front page)

his being and beating out his life. It was not because of any wrong committed that Paul was bound and carried to Rome, there to suffer repeatedly, until finally, for the good he had done, he was thrust into death. Examples could be multiplied. The great truth that stands before all is that by one man sin entered into the world and death, with all of its amassed sorrow, by sin. Sin's deadening influences have been constantly increasing throughout the centuries until the human race is wrapped around and around with many of the biting and stinging results therefrom.

God, realizing all these saddening circumstances of sin, has implored man not only for his own individual welfare, but for the welfare of the race to refrain from sin, yea, to urge forward in the pathway of true, godly righteousness.

Nor can man possibly free himself from these fearful conditions, but in the midst of all, even when by analysis he traces all these heart-rending conditions back to his own conduct and realizes that they are the natural and consequent results thereof—in the midst of all this God's love is wonderfully manifested in that He sent His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish as a result of the sting of death, but that he might have life, the gift of Almighty God.

Nor is this the greatest gift which God has offered. Greater than this, at least added to this, is the gift of righteousness with all of its consequent fruits of peace, health, quiet, and, under these conditions, life eternal.

The greatest truth of all for man to learn, and learn thoroughly, is that he is wholly dependent upon the God of the universe, and that God doeth all things well.

IN OUR WORKSHOP

Doings at Headquarters

A VERY BUSY PLACE

THE BUSIEST WORKSHOP known in the writer's lifetime is the National Bible Institution at Oregon, Illinois. Not only is it busy in the sense of daily activity, but in still another sense it is a busy place in that the one great ideal has been and always is to carry forward among us, as a people, God's assigned work. There are so many phases to Christian life. There are so many ways for activity, so many ways for service. In fact, Christianity should infuse its characteristics into every phase of business effort, into every social activity, into every labor of life—everything that the Christian does should be Christian. And so, at Headquarters, those here engaged are constantly striving to advance Christian truth and Christian development in every direction. Every business effort is made with only one objective, namely, to aid the Church of God as a whole in approaching nearer and ever nearer unto the purity and greatness of Christianity.

GOLDEN RULE HOME

IN GOLDEN RULE HOME the summer and fall weeks have not only been utilized with a view to making pleasant and mutually helpful the lives of the members of the Home, they have also been utilized in making preparation for comfort during the chilly winds of winter. A thousand quarts of fruit and vegetables have been sealed in glass jars; coal is in the basement. At the present time different makes of mangles are being studied in order to secure for the Home laundry, as a gift of the National Bereans, the best possible machine for the needs of the Home.

Different ones are studying with a view to making application for membership in the Golden Rule Home circle.

GREENHOUSE

PRICES, PLANS, MATERIALS have been under consideration for some time to re-heat section No. 1 of the greenhouse. As stated last week, the Survey Committee at the General Conference approved of the necessity of replacing the old heating system. This we are working on as rapidly as possible.

Heavy frosts prevailed throughout the section of Oregon, Illinois, upon the morning of September 26. All outdoor flowers, most of the corn, and other crops were killed by this frost. We are, therefore, thrown earlier than usual entirely upon the cutting from plants grown under glass. The new crops of chrysanthemums and carnations have started, cyclamen are almost ready, and other flowers will be coming along apace.

Remember, this is all Christian service—to advance Golden Rule Home benefits.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

WE ARE DEEPLY ANXIOUS to see The Restitution Herald circulated more largely—anxious because we feel that much good can be done in this way.

At Headquarters we are putting forth every ounce of energy which we possess to the end that this, and all phases of the work, may prosper abundantly. But for The Herald circulation we are again dependent upon the cooperation of our readers. We earnestly solicit this cooperation to the fullest in an effort to extend the circulation by many hundred during these fall months.

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,	Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer,	Oregon, Illinois
F. A. Stilson, Secretary,	Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

YEAR BOOK

WE ARE ALSO ANXIOUS to get all data possible immediately for the compiling of a year book for the Church of God. The Washington government and different bureaus are continually making requests of us for such a book. It is impossible for us to gather this information only as the people send it in, and most of our very best workers have failed to write one word in response to our repeated calls for names and addresses of church members, data relative to church property, Sunday School, Berean, etc. Headquarters cannot do the field work and the home work without adding much more expense to the labor. Everyone, please send us this information.

THE GENERAL WORK

HOW ABOUT THAT suggestion regarding a small contribution for the work of the National Bible Institution. We are not asking for pledges; we are merely asking for information as to what each one feels that he can probably do.

It was decided at the last conference to discontinue the mail order work of the greenhouse, the profits from which we had hoped—after one more year—would provide annual funds for Bible Training Class or other phases of the work. Therefore, these funds we can no longer hope for. In fact we must suffer the two years' loss already incurred in the preparatory development of this branch. If now we are to prosecute the Headquarters work as has been hoped the whole brotherhood—from young to old—will need to contribute regularly thereto. God willing, the Home is provided for through the Greenhouse; and, we are praying and working hard that the print shop shall take care of the regular annual deficit incurred in publishing The Restitution Herald. But the only source of income for the Headquarters' office, for Bible Class, for the general work, is from regular contributions.

Seriously, we urge immediate consideration of this by all.

WE MADE A MISTAKE

"WE made a mistake in last week's issue of the Times. A good subscriber told us about it. The same day there was a letter in our postoffice box that didn't belong to us. We called for No. 98 over the telephone and got 198. We asked for a spool of No. 50 thread and when we got home found it was No. 60. The train was reported 30 minutes late. We arrived at the station 20 minutes after train time, and the train was gone. We got our milk bill, and there was a mistake of 10 cents in our favor. We felt sick, and the doctor said we were eating too much meat. We hadn't tasted meat for two months. Yes, we made a mistake in last week's issue of this paper."—Fostoria (Ohio) Times.

MEDITATION, OR HYMN TITLES IN PATCHWORK .

By Chloe Chaplin Sims

SOFTLY and tenderly while Jesus whispers, somebody knows it is Jesus. All our sorrows and our cares draw us nearer. He surely means me, just as I am since I have been redeemed. He leadeth me nearer the cross, just when I need Him most. Precious moments near the cross! Ever will I pray, "Raise me, Jesus, to Thy bosom; take me as I am; abide with me. Jesus, Savior, pilot me; take my life and let it be all for Jesus." Let Him in; trust His precious love. His love can never fail.

The sun will shine again; growing clearer every day. All the way my Savior leads me, bringing peace to my soul. Blessed assurance; it is well with my soul!

Love divine! O could I speak! What is making life so dear to me? There is glory in my soul. The morning light is breaking. A day of rest and gladness! The haven of rest. Mine is a fountain, glorious fountain. Wash me in the blood, and I will be whiter than snow.

Stand up for Jesus; only trust Him; what a friend! Glory to His name. My Jesus, I love Thee; I love to tell the story. I am trusting, Lord, in Thee.

Guide me, O Thou great Jehovah, even me, even me. I love Him more and more; He is so precious to me. Jesus paid it all, what more can He do? That sweet story! Jesus and His love, His love for me. The half has never yet been told. Blessed be the name! All hail the power of Jesus' name. Look to Jesus, look and live. Count your blessings over and over again. Count it all joy; the way of the cross leads home. O that will be glory! There's a great day coming when the roll is called up yonder.

Leaning on the everlasting arms, I will never cease to love Him. Jesus, lover of my soul, I may cross home to Him. Keep my heart singing where He leads me, onward and forward, nearer, My God, to Thee. O how I love Jesus! He took me in, He loved me so. I am satisfied with Jesus; I will not forget Thee. A wonderful Savior; I love Him. Your Savior is calling—the hour of prayer.

He is calling somebody. Why not you? Come to Jesus.

Joy to the world, O happy day! Jesus shall reign! Onward, Christian Soldier, God will take care of you. Jesus soon is coming: what a gathering that will be!

One sweetly solemn thought: the time hastens on, I am nearing the gates, is my name written there?

Something for Jesus' lovingkindness; sing, O sing the praise of Jesus. My Father knows the land of endless day. Doing His will, shall we meet beyond the river in the sweet by and by?

Holy Bible, book divine,

Precious treasure, thou art mine.

I am going home. Amen.

“WHERE DO WE GO WHEN WE DIE?”

YOU say, “If we have done right while we live, we shall go to heaven, of course; and, if not, then to ———.” Here, perhaps, you falter. You are not sure, but you think, “to hell.”

Will it surprise you to be told that the answer is entirely untrue; that, in point of fact, when we die, we ARE DEAD, and go not anywhere, except to the grave, there to remain until the hour of resurrection arrives with the coming of Christ? It will, no doubt, surprise you very much, and make you angry, perhaps. But if you are of a reasonable mind, you will cool down, and ask, “Is it so?” You will enquire after the evidence, and, if you search long enough, and thoroughly enough, and earnestly enough, you will find it. You will discover

1. That the body of man is man.

PROOF: “God made man of the dust of the ground.”—(Gen. 2:7.) “The first man was of the earth, earthy.”—(1 Cor. 15:47.) “I (Abraham) am but dust and ashes.”—(Gen. 18:27.) “He knoweth our frame: He remembereth that we are dust.”—(Psa. 103:14.) “Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return”—(Gen. 3:10).

If the body of man is man, then it follows that when the body dies, man dies, and that, consequently, it is impossible for a man, at death, to go to heaven or to hell.

2. That the life of man and the spirit of man is not man, but the invisible yet real energy or power of God by which all creatures live.

PROOF: “God giveth unto all LIFE and BREATH and all things”—(Acts 17:25). “In His hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind”—(Job 12:10). “If He gather unto Himself His spirit and His breath, all flesh should perish together, and man should turn again unto dust”—(Job 34:14, 15). “That which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts. . . . Yea, they have all one breath”—(Eccl. 3:18). “The spirit (at death) returns to God who gave it”—(Eccl. 12:7).

If the life and spirit of man are not the man, but the power of God by which the bodily man is enabled to live, it follows that the return of that life to God when death happens, is not the going back of the man, but the going back of the life which existed before the man was made.

3. That the Scriptures testify that no man has ever gone to heaven.

PROOF: “No man hath ascended up to heaven”—(John 3:13). “David is not ascended into the heavens”—(Acts 2:37). “The heaven even the heavens are the Lord’s, but the earth hath He given to the children of men”—(Psa. 115:16).

If David hath not ascended to heaven, how can we hope to do so?

4. That according to the Scriptures, the dead have not yet entered into a state of reward.

PROOF: “These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them and embraced them,” etc. (Heb. 11:13). When the seventh angel sounds, “Thy wrath is come and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto Thy servants, the prophets”—(Rev. 11:15-18).

If the dead are not in a state of reward, how can the popular doctrine be true which sends a man to his reward when he dies?

5. That according to the Scriptures, the dead are in a state of complete unconsciousness.

PROOF: “The dead know not anything. . . . Their love, hatred, and their envy is now perished”—(Eccl. 9:5). “In death there is no remembrance of Thee; in the grave, who shall give Thee thanks?”—(Psa. 6:5). “The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence”—(Psa. 115:17). “The grave cannot praise Thee: death cannot celebrate Thee.”—(Isa. 37:18).

If the dead are unconscious, they cannot be enjoying heaven or suffering in hell, as popular theology teaches

6. That according to the Scriptures, the time for the dead to be judged and rewarded is at the resurrection, when Christ comes again to the earth.

PROOF: “Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just”—(Luke 14:14). “The Son of man shall come in the glory of His Father with His angels: Then shall He reward every man according to his works”—(Matt. 16:27). “The Lord Jesus Christ shall judge the living and the dead at His appearing and His kingdom”—(2 Tim. 4:1).

If the dead are not to be judged till Christ comes, what room is there for a doctrine that sends them straight away to be judged as soon as they die?

7. That the reward of the righteous, besides immortality of nature, is inheritance of earth.

PROOF: “Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth”—(Matt. 5:5). “Such as be blessed of Him shall inherit the earth”—(Psa. 37:22). “Those that wait upon the Lord shall inherit the earth”—(verse 9). “The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth”—(Prov. 11:31). “I will give unto Thee (Christ) the uttermost parts of the earth for Thine inheritance”—(Psa. 2:8). “We shall reign upon the earth”—(Rev. 5:10).

If the reward of the righteous is the inheritance of the earth, clearly that system must be wrong which teaches that their reward is to consist of translation to “mansions above the skies”. Look into the matter and deliver yourself from tradition and embrace the glorious truths contained in the Scriptures.—Selected by H. H. Hawkins. This article may be had in tract form.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON; ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 12, 1926

NUMBER 2

ARE YOU READY?

By Auntie Wince

IT IS a solemn question, one often repeated, which the Lord requires.

It often remains unanswered, because it cannot be answered in the affirmative. But why should it not be?

True, His coming is to be "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye", and we are to watch lest we be taken unawares, but surely we care, for we would do that much were we looking for an earthly friend. How much more when looking for the Lord from heaven, especially when His coming fixes our destiny for endless years!

What we then are we must remain. We cannot change our dress. Whatever our character may be it must remain. We will have had our chance and it will have gone by for ever.

If we have lost out in the race, whose fault is it but our own? We are told to "redeem the time because the days are evil". What does that mean but to buy it back for God, use it in His service?

Were we filling a very important place in the President's cabinet or in the court of the King of England, we would not be found idling away our time with a set of drunken sots at the gambling table, or dancing away the precious hours with flying feet in the dance hall. We would be found at our place whenever required, faithfully attending to whatever business belonged to it. And that a man be found faithful, is what

We cannot be ready for the coming of Jesus unless every piece of work allotted to us is done according to commandment. It is out of the question.

We are not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together. The place where His followers meet for prayer, praise, and exhortation should be to us the dearest spot on earth. It is, to many of us. And no relative is more dear than is a true disciple of Jesus. Just so should it be with the doctrines taught in His Word. To be ashamed of them is to be ashamed of Him.

"Ashamed of Jesus? Can it be?"

A mortal man, ashamed of Thee?

Ashamed of Him whom angels praise,

Whose glory lasts through endless days?

No, when I blush, be this my shame,

That I no more revere His name."

Millions have gone to the martyrs' stake rather than give up the truth. Nothing but death could silence the lips of those dear, brave men of old whose names will never be forgotten. How our hearts thrill as we think of them, and how we pray that if the test should come, as it now seems possible it may, we may be as brave!

*Stand up, stand up for Jesus
Ye Soldiers of the cross;*

Disappointment

Dis-appointment---His appointment. Change one letter, then I see

That the thwarting of my purpose is God's better choice for me.

His appointment must be blessing, though it may come in disguise;

For the end from the beginning open to His wisdom lies.

Dis-appointment---His appointment. Whose? The Lord's who loves me best Understands and knows me fully; who my faith and love would test.

For, like loving, earthly parent, He rejoices when He knows

That His child accepts unquestioned all that from His wisdom flows.

Dis-appointment---His appointment. No good thing will He withhold.

From denials oft we gather treasures of His love untold. Well He knows each broken purpose leads to fuller, deeper trust;

And the end of all His dealings proves our God is wise and just.

Dis-appointment---His appointment. Lord, I take it, then, as such,

Like the clay in hands of potter, yielding wholly to Thy touch.

All my life's plan is Thy molding; not one single choice is mine.

Let me answer, unrepining, "Father, not my will, but Thine."

—Author Unknown.

*Lift high His royal banner,
It must not suffer loss.
From victory unto victory
His army will He lead,
Till every foe is vanquished
And Christ is Lord indeed."*

And the best way to vanquish foes is to teach them the truth. There is plenty of this work to do. Men all around us are so ignorant! Some of them believe that Jesus will not come for thousands of years. How can they get ready for His coming unless we help them to come into a true, a living, a present faith?

Wake up, dear fellow-soldiers, we know not but that Jesus may come to-morrow, but if He does not, we may save some. I shall work on till my eyes fail and the pen drops from my hand.

I may not reach a single person in a saving way, but I may help you to help others. God grant it may be so.

IN MEMORIAM

The following selections from the two Ogle County papers will be appreciated by many Herald readers. They clearly reveal the esteem in which our esteemed Brother, John E. Cross, was held.

MOST ESTEEMED

AT THE close of a lingering illness, John E. Cross passed away at his home here Saturday evening. There is no man of our acquaintance who was more generally respected and loved than Mr. Cross. His long years of public life, his ever fairness in his dealing with the public and the handling of various questions that came before him in his work, his cheerful manner, and his honesty and integrity endeared him to the people of Ogle County."

* * * * *

"A mixed quartette composed of Mesdames Robert Etnyre and C. F. Mammenga and Messrs. F. E. Siple and Ben Carpenter, sang 'Abide With Me' and 'Lead Kindly Light', and Mrs. Mammenga sang 'No Night There'. Mrs. Frank Rogers on the piano and Franklin Lundstrom on the violin rendered beautiful music.

"The floral offerings were most beautiful, bespeaking the high regard and love expressed for the deceased by a large circle of friends.

"Rev. F. L. Austin preached the funeral sermon and Rev. Siple gave a splendid tribute to the deceased, which we believe expresses the sentiment of the entire community and was as follows:

"There have been very few occasions in the history of the days gone by when the people of Oregon, and the citizens of Ogle County have had their hearts as universally touched by sorrow as they have been touched by the event which calls us together to-day. There is always sorrow in connection with death, for death came through sin, and is an enemy to the race upon which it preys. But it is necessarily true that the more far-reaching has been the acquaintance, the work, the influence of the individual, the more far-reaching is the sorrow and feeling of loss.

"There have been very few persons in the history of Ogle County who have been as generally known by the boys and the girls, by the men and the women, as has been John E. Cross. Having spent almost his entire life in school work, and the past twenty years in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools, his name was a household word the county over, and reached far beyond the borders of our small neighborhood. But, it is one thing to be known, and quite a different thing to be respected. There have been many persons who, because of the nature of their work have come to be known by hundreds of persons. However, in all of my experience I have never known a man whose acquaintanceship went so far, and who was so universally loved and respected.

"There were those who differed with him in his religious convictions—there were those whose political views were different. There were those, also, whose judgment varied from his in regard to administration of school affairs. But in my eleven years of residence and labor in this county I have yet to find the first individual who really doubted the honesty, the sincerity, the integrity of Mr. Cross. That is something that can be said of only very few people in all this world.

"It is, then, not just a family that mourns to-day. It is a community at large. Not only had Mr. Cross been active in school affairs, having built up one of the most successful county offices in the state of Illinois, but in the business, fraternal, and social circles of Oregon he had a place of endearment.

"With reference to our religious denomination, let me say that we as members of the Church of God recognize most keenly our loss. Not only our small organization of which he was such a stalwart pillar, but our State Conference, of whose Board he was a member for so long, and over which for a period he presided as president, and also our General Conference for which he served as treasurer as long as health permitted.

"Uncle John, as the boys and the girls, the young men and the young women loved to call him, has fallen asleep. But though he rests from his labors, his works do follow him, and the influence of John E. Cross will ring down through the ages."—Ogle County Republican.

A Heritage for Future Generations

"THIS community, which for years was his home, Ogle County as a fraternal entity, the schools, educational faculty and intellectual strata of this region and earnest men and women throughout Illinois, share with the bereaver family, profound sorrow and sense of poignant loss, in the death of John E. Cross, for years superintendent of schools in Ogle County, worthy citizen and beloved man.

"For months past, a multitude of friends have experienced solicitude and increasing suspense in the developing condition which predicated with hopeless certainty an ultimate fatal result and observed with aching hearts the manifestation of fortitude with which this fine, true man faced the inevitable. Stricken more than two years ago, he began with typical adherence to duty to prepare for the moment that reached termination about eight o'clock, Saturday evening, October 2.

"No soldier ever faced death with more intrepid courage. During all that stressful period, pregnant with fleeting hope and poignant dread, no repining syllable was ever uttered by John E. Cross. A veritable captain of his soul, he moved smilingly in the performance of his duties, kept faith with himself, with his fellow-men, with his God, with unswerving courage that seemed a very benediction to his family and friends.

"Some men seem to have been born to the sphere to which their life-effort is adapted. This was essentially true of John E. Cross. To the realm of educator he brought talents that coordinated with signal harmony in the service to which his career was devoted. Fundamentally a teacher, he possessed withal, exceeding executive ability and the capacity of dealing with people in a manner assuring attainment of results. His personality invited confidence and his accomplishment invariably vindicated the faith reposed in him. His purpose throughout his service as teacher and as official in the educational realm (and in his perspective, the scope of teacher was of continual fulfillment) sought as its goal, the building of character, in which essay, his own worthy, loyal life was a verile exemplification. Devoid of tendency toward controversy, he nevertheless maintained with fearless fidelity a purpose to which conscientious discharge of duty committed him.

"John E. Cross was recognized to an exalted degree as an authority in the educational realm, not only in Ogle County, but throughout the state. Possessing an exceedingly high character, staunchly adhering to cherished ideals, fearless and faithful in the performance of duty, devoted to his family, loyal to his friends, he exerted an influence for good, both by personal example and through the channel of public advocacy, of vigorous and lasting effect. He was a worthy citizen, an able and a conscientious public official and a consistent Christian."

"The funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon from the Oregon Municipal Coliseum, the spacious assembly auditorium being better adapted to accommodate the large concourse of friends from all parts of the county and beyond, desiring by their presence at the obsequies, to accord a last tribute of honor and affection to one richly meriting the esteem of all.

"The obsequies were in charge of Rev. F. L. Austin, assisted by Rev. F. E. Siple, and opened by Scripture reading from the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians. The text of Rev. Austin's discourse was, 'If a Man Die, Shall He Live Again'—Job 14:14. In his memorial, Mr. Austin dwelt upon the character of John E. Cross, in part, as follows:

"Judging from expressions and sentiment manifested regarding the life of John E. Cross, it is no exaggeration to say to-day in the words of Israel's King David, on the occasion of the death of his great captain, Abner: Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day. For according to general mention of the life-work of John E. Cross and solicitude shown during the months of his illness, the man whose memory we are paying tribute at this moment, has been a great man and a prince in Ogle County, the county of his birth and of his service and death. He has been a prince in his home where his anxious concern for the righteousness and welfare of his loved ones has been paramount. He has been a great man in Ogle County, where for many years his sterling faculties have been devoted to the upbuilding of the childhood of the county. He has been a princely leader in the molding of character in this community and county to the upbuilding of better and nobler purpose for present and future effectuation. He has been a great man for his God. First, last and all the time, John E. Cross has stood firm for God. And it is because he submitted in a large measure to the molding of his life by God, that he became a great man and a prince in his home, in his county and in the service of God."

". . . . In tribute to the memory of Mr. Cross, the Oregon schools were dismissed Tuesday afternoon, and in his honor all business establishments in Oregon were closed during the period devoted to the funeral. The flag was displayed at half-mast on the court house tower and on the city hall. The board of supervisors personnel acted as honorary pall-bearers. Interment was made at Washington Grove, beside the son, who preceded him in death."—Ogle County Reporter.

I AM THE RESURRECTION

"I AM THE RESURRECTION." What joy and comfort there was in these words of Jesus as recorded in John 11:25 when He stated to the sorrowing sisters, "I am the resurrection and the life".

Ever since the first deception in the garden of Eden, the introduction of sin and by it death, the world had been going down man by man under the power and dominion of death. Defeat was upon every hand and none was able to stay his brother from death. The words of Jesus were filled with hope. These words were made even more hopeful when upon the third day after His crucifixion the Savior moved among various of His former acquaintances and showed them openly that though He had been dead He was alive again. Then upon the isle of Patmos He heralded a message which has been floating upon the air for these nineteen centuries, "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore, amen; and have the keys of hell and death".

"Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

THE FARMER'S ANSWERED PRAYER

I SAT down to read a portion of God's Word in a Pullman sleeper early one morning, when a young gentleman, an entire stranger, in passing, paused, and upon inviting him to a seat by my side, he gave this experience, says a writer in the Sunday School Times.

"I am a 'bond' salesman from Chicago. Returning from Freeport, Illinois, one day, I discovered that I should reach Chicago too late for my work in the office that day; so I determined to stop off at a small town between trains and pay my old friend a visit. It was to be a surprise. Upon going to his home, I found the house locked up, and the neighbors informed me that my friend had gone away for a three weeks' stay. This was a disappointment.

"A wait of five hours for the next train confronted me, but I determined to make the best of it; so I walked out into the country to pass away the time, and came upon an aged man in a field by the roadside, who was slowly turning hay, preparing it for the barn. After exchanging greetings, I engaged the old man in conversation, but I soon discovered that while he was very courteous and kind in his replies to my questions, he kept at his work. The thought came to me, "Why not help him?" Telling him my disappointment, I took an idle fork standing near by, and side by side we worked and talked. When the hay was all raked up and gathered in small heaps, I found that I must return to the station. Extending my hand to bid him good-bye I remarked that my disappointment had been turned into genuine pleasure by his acquaintance.

"Holding my hand, he said, 'Let me tell you something before you go. This morning, as we awoke, mother and I talked about getting up this hay. I remarked that I was feeling so badly that I feared I should be unable to accomplish the task; but mother encouraged me, and assured me that the Lord would help me. At family prayers we both asked our heavenly Father for His help. I arose feeling refreshed, and felt sure that in some way He would help, but,' he added, as he pressed my hand tighter and a tear glistened in his eye, 'I really did not expect the Lord to send a man from Chicago with kid gloves and patent-leather shoes to help me do it.'"

*"It may not be my way,
It may not be thy way;
But yet in His own way
The Lord will provide."*

THE POWER THAT OVERCOMES

We are well able to overcome it.—Num. 13:30.

RECALL the interesting occasion of the text. Twelve men chosen from the heads of the tribes of Israel had returned from searching the land of Canaan. The spies were not agreed in their reports. All the searchers excepting Joshua and Caleb, discouraged the people, saying, We are not able to go up against the people; they are stronger than we; the land eateth up the inhabitants; the men are of great stature; we saw giants there, the cities are walled up to heaven. But Joshua and Caleb declared that the land flowed with milk and honey, they showed the fruits that they had gathered there, and gave the assurance, "We are well able to overcome it."

The people sided with the faithless and fearful. They lifted up their voices, and wept. They wailed, Would God we had died in the land of Egypt! or, would God we had died in the wilderness! Let us return into Egypt! They rebelled, and bade the congregation to stone those who would go on, and choose another leader.

Human nature is ever the same. Do you not see this graphic picture of faith and non-faith still in the world? Interpret those conditions in terms of present states of mankind. That same conflict is taking place over and over again, though in different external form. Take any war for illustration. There are always those who say that the cause of justice will be defeated, and those who sacrifice in a righteous cause. Our nation is ever progressing toward a state of higher and universal justice, peace, and good will. There are those who have faith in continued advancement, and with courage and faith enter into the battle against the evils that disquiet us. On the other hand there are those who think that the world is growing worse, and who see only defeat in the end. In this struggle, though the enemies appear as giants, and the fortresses of crime appear walled up to heaven, and we appear so feeble, let us know that the Lord is over it all and that we are well able to overcome.

The sterling lesson is individually applicable. All the parties to the conflict are in the minds of each one of us. The rebellious, faithless congregation that would go back into bondage is the type of our doubts, fears, and discouragements. Caleb and Joshua are our faith, courage, and will to go on in the conquest of self, assured of the Lord's presence and power to victory. Not one of the doubting ever entered the promised land. Nor will we ever gain a victory and find peace if we fear and rebel. Do not let weakness and fear prevail within us. In calm assurance let us go on, not for a moment doubting that we are well able to overcome all the enemies of the Lord's promised peace.—Our Hope.

DISCOVERIES CONFIRM BIBLICAL NARRATIVE ARCHAEOLOGICAL FINDINGS OF IMPORTANCE ARE MADE NEAR NABLUS

RUINS of the first Hebrew settlement in Palestine after the parting of Abraham and Lot have been discovered near Nablus—the Shechem of the Old Testament—by the International Archæological Expedition, headed by Professor Ernest Sellin of Berlin University, says a despatch to The Daily Express from Jerusalem.

The excavations revealed, among other things, the walls, gates, and towers of the city where Abraham built the altar to sacrifice Isaac and where Jacob buried his idols, and where, according to tradition, Joseph was buried.

There also were found the remains of a Canaanitish temple and Baal images.

WHY CONTINUE?

HERE'S THE ANSWER

EDITOR Commercial Review: Dear Sir—I am wondering why the writer from Union City, in a recent article in your valuable paper concerning the conscious existence of the soul after death did not give us more Scripture references from the New Testament.

I wish to call the reader's attention to a few (for there are many more) Scripture references in the New Testament. That the soul exists after death in an interrupted state of consciousness there is no doubt. There are many passages of Scripture which clearly sustain this doctrine, a few of which we will quote. Matthew 17:3, "And behold there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with Him." As to Elias, he no doubt appeared in the same body that was translated. His appearance therefore has no direct bearing upon the question before us. But with Moses the case was very different, for he had died and was buried in the land of Moab. When, therefore, he appeared to the disciples of our Lord on the Mount of Transfiguration he must have appeared as a disembodied spirit and hence this fact establishes the conscious existence of the soul after death. Matthew 22:

32, "I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob." "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." It follows therefore that the conscious existence of the soul is not interrupted by death. Luke 16:22, 23, "And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried; and in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom." The phrase, Abraham's bosom, the Jews understood as the resting-place of the pious dead. In this parable what does it most naturally and clearly teach? To this there can be but one reply and that is—it shows that the souls of the righteous enter immediately after death into a state of felicity and the souls of the wicked into torment.—Alpheus A. Turner in Portland, Ind., "Commercial Review."

Reply in the next issue of The Herald.—Editor.

"It is just as much our duty when we discover that we have been in error to admit the mistake as to resist the intimidation when we are in the right."—Unknown.

"It is not the fact that a man has riches which keeps him from the kingdom of God, but the fact that riches have him.—L. Booth.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD

THESE lines from Mrs. Matilda Edwards, portray the gradual fall of the Church, whenever she dares compromise with the World. It will not do and can only mean loss of power for good, and end in irretrievable ruin. The lines of the author are here freely adapted to bring out the thought of the present writer.

"The Then and Now"—Once it was different.

Then the Church and the World walked far apart
On the changing shores of time;
The World was singing a giddy song,
And the Church a hymn sublime.

"Come, give me your hand," cried the merry World,
"And walk with me this way."
But the good Church hid her snowy hand,
And solemnly answered, "Nay.
I will not give you my hand at all,
And I will not walk with you;
Your way is the way to eternal death,
And your words are all untrue."

Why does the church not stand for her own purity now as then? The tempter, true to his evil character, persisted in holding out many temptations such as worldly pleasures, leisure and wealth, until the condition has been reversed, and Now:

Half shyly the Church approached the World
And gave him her hand of snow:

The old World grasped it and walked along,
Saying in accents low,
"Your dress is too simple to please my taste.
I will give you pearls to wear,
Rich velvets and silks for your graceful form,
And diamonds to deck your hair."

The Church listened,

And then looked down at her plain white robes
And then at the dazzling World,
And blushed as she saw his handsome lips
With a smile contemptuous curled;
"I will change my dress for a costlier one,"
Said the Church with a smile of grace.

Not yet satisfied,

"Your house is too plain" said the proud old World,
I'll build you one like mine:
Carpets of Brussels and curtains of lace
And furniture ever so fine."
So he built her a beautiful, costly house,
Splendid it was to behold;
Her sons and her beautiful daughters dwelt there,
Gleaming in purple and gold.

Bazaars and shows in the halls were held,
And the World and his children were there,
And laughter, and music and feasts were heard
In the place that was meant for prayer.
She had cushioned pews for the rich and great
To sit in their pomp and pride;
While the poor folks, clad in their shabby suits,

Sat meekly down outside.

The angel of mercy looked at the Church
And whispered, "I know thy sin."
Then the Church looked back with a sigh and longed
To gather her children in.
But some were off to the midnight ball,
And some were off at the play,
And some were gambling in gay saloons;
So she sorrowfully went her way.

But the sly old World gallantly said to her,
"Your children mean no harm, Merely indulging in innocent sports."
So she leaned on his proffered arm,
And smiled and chatted and gathered flowers,
As with him she walked along,
While millions and millions of precious souls
The road to destruction thronged.

"Your preachers are too old and plain,"
Said the gay old World with a sneer:
"They frighten my children with dreadful tales
I like them not to hear.
They talk of a burning day and pain,
And the darkness of endless night;
These things should never be spoken of
Or mentioned to ears polite.

I will send you one of a different stamp,
Brilliant and gay and fast,
Who will tell the people to live as they wish,
For all will be saved at last.
The Father is merciful, great, and good,
Tender and true and kind;
Do you think He would save one child
And leave the rest behind?"

So he filled her house with gay divines,
Gifted and great and learned,

And the plain, old men who preached the cross
Were out of the pulpits turned,
"You give too much to the poor," said the world,
"Far more than you ought to do.
If the poor need shelter and food and clothes,
Why need it trouble you?"
Then the Church held tightly the strings of her purse,
And gracefully bowed her head,
And simpered and said, "I will give no more,
But will do, sir, as you have said."

So the poor were turned from her door in scorn,
And she heard not the orphan's cry,
And drew her beautiful robes aside
As the widows went weeping by.
And the sons of the World and those of the Church
Walked closely hand and heart,
And only the Master who knoweth all
Could tell the two apart.

The church sat down at her ease and said,
"I am rich, and with goods increased,
I have need of nothing, naught to do
But to laugh, and dance, and feast."
The sly World heard her, and laughed in his sleeve,
And mockingly said aside,
"The church is fallen, the beautiful Church,
And her shame is her boast and pride."

And a Voice came down through the hush of heaven
From Him who sat on the throne:
"I know thy works, and how thou hast said,
"I am rich and hast not known
That thou art naked, poor and blind,
And writhed before My face.
Therefore, from the Book I will blot thee out,
But the meek shall share My grace. (Rev. 3:17.)"

This old poem with so much of truth I have selected from an old scrapbook.

—Mrs. A. J. Chaplin.

WHAT IS THE USE?

By Mary A. Woodward

USE of what, Sweetheart?
Why, this eternal brain racking thought! These sleepless nights! These years spent away from home comforts,—here, there, yonder! Who has cared? Who are bettered because of it? Who will be saved because of all this sacrifice?

Why, Sweetheart, what is the matter with you this morning? Are you sick? You surely are blue. This is not like you—always so brave, so ready to go and do, and now so distressed.

True, we have toiled through many weary years, and now when we are too weak and weary to do more, it is hard to be laid aside as worthless, when we can see so much to be done, and so few willing to do; but is there not much comfort in thinking that you have done your work as well as you knew how to, and that many have been brought to the feet of Jesus—many who have fallen while life's battle was on, fallen, but who have left the blessed assurance of faith, and hope?

They sleep in Jesus. And by God's help you have taught them the way of life. Be satisfied, beloved, with the strength God has given you and He will still, in His own way, care for His own. Not one will fall or fail if he puts his trust in Him; lose self in the love of Jesus;
"walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called."

We must not try to carry the burden of God's work alone. These mortal bodies are too weak. God knew what we needed to help us, and sent us these words by the Psalmist, "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee: He shall never suffer the righteous to be moved." Praise God for these words; and for Peter's exhortation, "Casting all thy care upon Him; for He careth for you".

So beloved, leave your heartache, your troubled thoughts, your hard problems with the One who knows just how to solve them for us, and has promised to do it.

He never fails.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—October 17—1 Thess. 5 Mem. V. 8

THE introduction of this chapter emphasizes the distinction between "they" and "us". The world and the church thought are very different.

The "day of the Lord" is the especial subject. Note, he is not writing about the coming of the Lord. He is writing about "the day of the Lord"—which is very different. Here it is the DAY OF THE LORD that is to come "as a thief in the night". And that DAY is seemingly drawing very, very near. That day has to do largely with the people of Israel, that people which just now is so prominent in the affairs of man.

LET US NOT SLEEP AS REGARDS THE COMING OF THE DAY OF THE LORD.

The church is "not appointed to wrath" during that day; the world is. See Isaiah 13:6-11, and several other scriptures. Notice that it is always THE day of the Lord.

How opportune are Paul's exhortations in the closing part of the chapter; also his prayer, v. 23.

Monday—October 18—2 Thess. 1 Mem. V. 12

Verses 7, 8, and 9 are hard to be understood in that the Greek noun has been translated in the verbal form. The following is quoted from "The Day of the Lord", by E. W. Bullinger, page 107.

Those concerned will be already at "rest", with Him "when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels; in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction (driven away), from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power, when HE SHALL COME to be glorified in His saints and to be admired in all them that believe . . . in that day." (2 Thess. 1:7-10.)

The tense here (in verse 10) is not the simple future tense of the indicative mood, but it is the second aorist tense of the subjunctive mood, (Greek omitted), and can mean only shall have come. In verse 7, "when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed" is not a verb at all, but a noun, (Greek omitted), and means at the revelation (lit., at the Apocalypse).

So that "at the Apocalypse" of Jesus Christ, the Raptured ones of 1 Thess. 4 will already be at rest. They have their "tribulation" now (vv. 4, 5). This is the teaching of verse 7.

But when the time comes to "recompense tribulation" to the world, then Christ will already have come to be glorified in His saints. For "in that day" He "shall have come" to take them up to be with Himself, "for ever with the Lord." This is the teaching of verse 10.

Tuesday—October 19—2 Thess. 3 Mem. V. 13

This is a very large chapter and merits much more attention than is possible in these notes.

Paul is anxiously correcting wrong impressions in the minds of his brethren. The word "Christ", v. 2, is "kuriou" which always means "Lord"; and Paul beseeches them not to be troubled "as that the day of the Lord is at hand". That day will not come before there shall have come "a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed", v. 3. He will "be revealed in his time", v. 6, before the coming of Christ, for he will be destroyed "with the brightness of His (Christ's) coming."

This man of sin will "come after the working of satan with all power and signs and lying wonders", and with all manner of deception. The reason is "because they receive not the love of the truth". "For this cause God shall send them strong delusion", etc., v. 11, "that they all might be damned". How wonderfully this compares with Rev. 13 where "power" is given to the great beast unto whom the dragon gives his power; and to the second beast which exerciseth the power of the beast. These marvelous works deceive—if it were possible 'the very elect', Matt. 24:24. Not the "elect" composing the church, for they will already have entered their "rest", 2 Thess. 1:7; but the elect of Israel and of Gentiles who, in that "day of the Lord" are being gathered out as firstfruits of the national phase of the kingdom. For is not Christ to reign over the literal house of Jacob, Luke 1:32, 33, from whom He will turn away ungodliness? Rom. 11:26.

Note the touching prayer at the close of this admonition.

Wednesday—October 20—2 Thess. 3 Mem. V. 1

Thursday—October 21—1 Tim. 1 Mem. V. 5

Friday—October 22—1 Tim. 2 Mem. V. 8

Saturday—October 23—1 Tim. 3 Mem. V. 15

* * * *

GIDEON BIBLES FOR DOLLAR STEAMERS

"The DOLLAR STEAMSHIP COMPANY, Sanfrancisco, California, is to place a Gideon Bible in each stateroom of its entire line of ships. One thousand one hundred Bibles were ordered by Captain Róbert Dollar who pays the cost. This is a suggestion for other steamship lines to consider. They will be solicited."

HOW TO BE A REAL MAN

"The one thought and ambition of every college man should be to be a public official without vice, a private citizen without wrong, a neighbor without reproach, a Christian without hypocrisy, a man without guile, submissive to law, obedient to authority, thoughtful, kind, and above all, loyal to country and self."—Attorney General Sargent.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

ON page 18 will be found two clippings from the local County papers which state in their own way some of the outstanding facts with reference to our much lamented Brother Cross. These clippings are given in the hope that those who did not know Brother Cross in person might form a more accurate idea of the sterling qualities of the man who, until recently, has been treasurer of the General Conference of the Church of God.

His death occurring late Saturday evening and the regular Sunday work at the church plus dedication services at Dixon permitted only time to rearrange the front page of last week's Herald and hastily write the short statement that was there found. The selections on page 18 give fuller statement with reference to him.

The General Conference, the Illinois State Conference, and the Oregon Church have all suffered severely in the death of Brother Cross.

Barring personal wound occasioned by this loss it was not so difficult or sad to lay him away in death. Not only did he have strong, true faith in God and Christ our Lord, but he evidently, so far as man could see, lived true to that faith. In the hour of sorrow it was indeed a strong relief to have a living and intense expectation that at the morning of the call of our Lord and Master with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God our late Brother will come forth victorious over sin's domain to be crowned with life immortal.

The Herald takes this opportunity of extending to our beloved Sister Cross and her family the deepest and truest sympathy of all those who knew him personally and of those who knew him by report from others. May the Father's richest blessing rest upon and abide with them throughout the remainder of life's pathway.

The Michigan people have reason to be edified in that the brethren about Grand Rapids have practically completed their new church building. It is hoped that the dedication services set for October 24 in connection with the quarterly conference which begins October 22 will be largely attended and that a real spiritual uplift will result therefrom. This is one more evidence of "how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity".

* * * *

We turn with confidence to the brotherhood, and especially to present Herald subscribers, to receive their cooperation in helping all possible to increase the subscription list of The Restitution Herald. We are anxious that The Herald shall reach every home, if possible, of the Church of God.

It is desired to make The Herald a medium which will keep its readers fully informed as to the activities of our church labors in the various fields. It is also the desire that The Herald shall be a true helper in the home and in the church. It is the constant desire to give the best possible articles on Scriptural subjects for the edification spiritually of one and all. We ask the earnest cooperation of every present reader to aid in enlarging the subscription until this goal can be realized.

Look at Brother Stilson's offer with reference to premiums for securing new subscriptions. Get your Sunday School members or church members working collectively, each one to receive a premium for the individual subscriptions sent in and having the opportunity of clubbing together to receive an additional premium of a wall map for the Sunday School room, church room, or any other purpose desired.

FIVE YEARS OLD

THE National Bible Institution is just a little over five years old. It has grown in those five years. All children do, even though they do not become so very strong at that age.

But the National Bible Institution has not only grown, it has also gained strength and experience, and has come to be no small factor in the affairs of the Church of God.

The writer's question is not, What is this Institution at this time? so much as it is, What is it to become as years go on? The National Bible Institution is the creature or the people—of people who are in earnest, who are prayerfully anxious to use it as a force for Christian good in the world; of a people who realize that it is now and always will be just what the people make it. In itself, or by the lone efforts of a few at headquarters, this Institution will never be "worth its keep". It will be what the earnest, prayerful cooperation of the people make it.

Here at Headquarters we have a vision of possible growth and usefulness which encourages us to devote unreserved time and strength in constant effort to further its growth with utmost ability. We do this the more cheerfully because we know that there are many who are likewise, from their respective places, earnestly pressing the work forward.

(Continued on page 29, column 1)

HERALD RECEIPTS

Bro. Stilson is working every minute on the new heating installation at the greenhouse, and Herald Receipts must needs be left till next week.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Meetings are starting this Tuesday night at the Salem church, near Marshall. Bro. Siple and the brethren there need your prayers for the success of the work. The meeting is to continue till the 24th.

* * *

Special meetings are being planned for Ripley and the new Dixon church during November.

* * *

A start has been made toward filling the unsightly hole between the Oregon church and the Rock river. The plan is to terrace this ground and make a beautiful lawn of it. Some job!

* * *

We are very sorry to report that Sr. Helen Lewis, of the Church of God at Ripley, was hurried to Blessing hospital at Quincy for an appendicitis operation on September 22. At last report she was improving slowly.

MICHIGAN

The Michigan Quarterly Conference will be held October 22 to 24 in the new church building on the south side of Grand Rapids. The dedication service of the new building will be held on the 24th.

This is the fourth church building to be dedicated by the Church of God in 1926.

* * * *

We are glad to report that Sr. Emma Cronk, R.F.D. Vermontville, who fell and broke her hip last June, is beginning to get around without crutches. Drop her a line of cheer.

* * * *

Sr. M. A. Woodward spoke at Dutton Sunday, October 10. Bro. Patrick will speak there on October 17.

GENERAL ITEMS

Read that article—Five Years Old—on Editorial Page. Read all of it.

* * * *

Our Hope editor writes: "You have made a big improvement in the form of your paper. I like it."

Thanks, Brother:

* * * *

Sr. Cross and Family desires to express through The Herald their sincere thanks to all who have so kindly remembered them during the sickness and on the occasion of the death of their late Loved One—Bro. John E. Cross.

Like Sheep We Stray

By C. L. VeNard

How oft do we stray from our Father's side,
To follow along with the thoughtless throng,
Lured by worldly pomp and pride?

Blindly we grope for the pleasures untried;
We may have our fling, we may dance and sing,
But down in our hearts we're not satisfied.

For in serving two masters, we've had our fill;
And now we're tossed, on the billows 'most lost,
Till we hear His voice, "Peace, Be Still".

Then humbly we ask, on bended knee,
"Lord, help us to walk, and live, and talk;
Making a personal Friend of Thee;

Forgetting self, as the suffering we see;
So busy each day, at work by the way,
That with us pomp and pride cease to be."

For we know that the harvest is white.
Yet the world goes by, with a scoff and a sigh,
Not prepared for the coming night,

When Jesus shall come in His glory,
Whom God in His love, shall send from above,
Confirming the dear Old Story.

NEW SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

Premiums for securing new subscriptions for The Restitution Herald:

- 1 New Subscription—A Pocket Map of Palestine.
- 2 New Subscriptions—A copy of "Will It Pay to Become a Christian?"
- 3 New Subscriptions—A beautiful Scripture Wall Motto.
- 4 New Subscriptions—Smith's Bible Dictionary.
- 5 New Subscriptions—Crudden's Concordance.
- 10 New Subscriptions— A $4 Bible.
- 25 New Subscriptions— A $10 Bible.

In addition to the above, if those sending in new subscriptions will mark their subscriptions to be credited to a certain Sunday School, or Church, or Berean Class; and if the sum total of all new subscriptions thus accredited to any named Sunday School or Church or Berean Class shall total 20, we will present said Sunday School or Church or Berean Class a New Testament Wall Map of Palestine.

For instance, if the Sunday School at Cleveland, Ohio, or at Eldorado, Ill., or at Dixon, Ill., or at Grand Rapids, Mich. (our 1926 "New Church" builders), will get their scholars—old and young—working for new subscriptions, we will give to each individual worker a premium as stated above for the number of subscribers they respectively send in, and in addition to this, if the sum total of all subscriptions sent in by all of the workers of such a Sunday School or Church or Berean Class shall total 20, we will give that School, Church or Class an additional premium of a New Testament Wall Map of Palestine. If the sum total of subscriptions of the workers for any one School, Church or Class shall equal 40, we will give

(Continued on page 29, column 1)

CHILDREN'S PAGE

BY DAISY NOKES

JOSHUA, ISRAEL'S NEW LEADER

Can you say the Golden Text? "Fear not, for I am with thee."—Isaiah 43:5.

OVER and over again God told Moses and Joshua that He would be with them if they would only obey. God is caring for us just the same to-day. Can you say the verse about God's being with us? "The Lord is with us." Don't you think that these are two good verses to say when we are afraid in the dark, or of the storms and lightning?

God was with Moses and told him everything He wished him to do. One day He told Moses to take Joshua and place his hand upon him and before the people give him charge as the one to take his place.

Joshua was to lead them to their new home. They were camped on the river Jordan and could look over and see the land God had promised them. Can you find a map in the back of your Bible showing the river Jordan and the promised land?

God told Joshua that there would be no man stronger than he, for, God said, "I will be with thee, and not fail thee nor forsake thee", and, "Be strong and very brave, and obey My laws. If you think about them day and night you will succeed."

There were about two million people under Joshua's care. Before them was the river Jordan. How would they get over it with no boats? The land was filled with giants. How would they get the land? God had said, "Fear not, for I am with thee", and Joshua believed and obeyed God.

We sometimes think we can't do work for the Lord Jesus but if we will just try we will become strong and brave like Joshua.

In this lesson, as last Sunday's, teachers will be telling little children that Moses went to heaven, his new home. Try as you will you cannot find that God's Word says so.

The children that are taught to believe Satan's falsehood get all mixed up and can't understand our dear Lord's resurrection. Then when they are grown they get so discouraged trying to understand the Bible, that they give up and say the Bible isn't true. If they had someone like you to start them on the straight road, how happy they would be. No one ever got lost on a straight road.

ABOUT THE FIVE PRIZES

DEAR girls and boys: Did you know that every one you win for Jesus means a star in your crown when Jesus comes to give rewards to His workers? Don't you want to be a worker? Begin right now and answer this little Hindu boy's question.

"Why do you make so much of Jesus? My parents have taught me:

(1) God is not a person; (2) Jesus was only a teacher; (3) When we die our souls live on in birds, cows, flies, etc. If we kill a fly we might be killing our grandmother. We call this transmigration of souls. (4) Jesus has chosen a Hindu, who can work miracles to talk for Him and give the world a message, which he will soon do. (5) Tell me what your parents have taught you.

Would like to hear from some of our J. I. M. (Jesus Is Mine) children, also waiting for some more from Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, and Canada.

Contest closes October 30, 1926.

HABITS

By Lillian Railton

HABITS are those tiny, golden links, uniting to make a chain that forms character. And character, which is crystallized habit, is the thing in us for which Christ suffered and died. How important that we, as Christians, watch our habits, so that we cultivate a Christ-like character. We read of Jesus' habits, Luke 4: 16, "And He came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up: and, as His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and stood up for to read". It seems He went there to give good; for we gather from many passages that He did not receive much spiritual uplift. Indeed, by the time He had finished His discourse, they wanted to kill Him.

How many of us are as faithful to our Father's house, going to give comfort and uplift by our presence? We have tasted of the good things of God and by faithfulness we may let our light shine for Him. What our example means we may never know until we meet in eternity.

There are many habits which take us away from Christ, and if indulged in are sure to make us slaves. One of these is gossip—hearing and telling a bad bit of news of another. It may be true, but perhaps it is not. How hard it is not to tell or say the unkind word. This little verse has helped me:

If you your lips would keep from slips

Five things think of with care,

Of whom you speak,

To whom you speak,

And how, and when, and where.

It used to be considered, a few years ago, a disgrace for church members to smoke, play cards or dance. Now it is part of the church life of many. Be a sport: and have a good time; the young people are admonished.

Auntie Wince says, "It is hard for our young people to be Christians." It means much self-denial and ridicule to abide in Christ and follow His example. Have you noticed, though, the wonderful promises to the overcomer? Rev. 3:21 says, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne". Also verses 5 and 12 and many others. It surely is a huge reward for self-sacrifice. Let us, dear young Christians, show that we are a "peculiar people", and by letting our light shine help some weaker one.

Your body is the temple of the living God. See 1 Cor. 3:16, 17. Shall we say things and do things that will weaken our mind and body, so making them unfit for the dwelling place of God?

Habits tie us down and make us slaves. You remember the story of Gulliver, who went to sleep in the little man's country. Being afraid of him, they tied him down with thousands of tiny threads, and he was their captive.

May we be true students, studying the Scriptures daily, and the bad little habits will die, making us free in Christ. Like Enoch we, too, may walk with God.

I heard a story which I will tell you in closing:

A poor man was standing in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, gazing at that beautiful picture, "Jesus, the Light of the World", by Holmen Hunt. The tears stood in his eyes and he was lost in love and admiration. It was closing hour and the caretaker touched him on the shoulder, saying, "My man, we must close up now." He slowly backed away, as he said, gazing into the face before him, "Master, Master, help me to serve You, and make me a blessing as You were."

May we, too, see our Savior's face.

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

JOSHUA, ISRAEL'S NEW LEADER

LESSON 4 OCTOBER 24, 1926
 LESSON TEXT: NUMBERS 27:15-23; JOSHUA 1:1-10
 RESPONSIVE READING: PSALM 105
 JOSHUA 1:1-9

Golden Text: Be strong and of good courage; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Joshua 1:9.

Memory Verses: Joshua 1:8, 9.

FOR STUDY

Review: What marked change was made in Israel's national life in last week's lesson? Why was not Moses permitted to go into the promised land? What does this teach us about the soundness of Israel's national development? What were Moses' last words to Israel?

The New Lesson: In this week's lesson Israel has passed through her forty years of wilderness training in faith, the need of which became so evident when the spies brought back their reports. Because of this background of training she now has the faith that will enable her to step out on God's word into the land He has promised her fathers. Moses realized this before his death, and again, as at the time God tested him, he showed his clear conception of God's purposes and his loyalty to them, by his concern over the leadership of Israel after he should be gone from her.

I. Israel's New Leader Appointed. Num. 27:15-23. How did Moses manifest his concern over Israel? Why is this a wise and sincere way of showing interest and concern over anything? Why was Moses concerned over Israel? V. 17, also Num. 14:15, 16. Moses had two sons, Gershon and Eliezer. Why, do you suppose, did he not seek the leadership for them? How did God make known His choice? Think through the various ways in which God may and does speak to people. How was the transference of leadership, by God's authority, to be made known to the people? When did Joshua give evidence that he possessed the prime requisite for true leadership ability? Why does faith in God fit one for leadership?

II. Joshua Assumes His Labors. Joshua 1:1-10. When, and under whose direction, did Joshua assume his work? In what preparatory work had Joshua been serving before the death of Moses? How did God refer to Moses and his work? Why does "servant of the Lord" signify strength and dignity, and fearlessness rather than weakness, and servility, and fear? What was to be Joshua's particular part in fulfilling the Abrahamic covenant? Since God has given this land to Abraham and his seed, why has it been a bone of contention among the nations for so many years? In what words does God tell Joshua that obedience is still the basic requirement in Israel's national growth? What reason did Joshua have for being strong and of good courage? Was Joshua ready to go to work immediately? From whence came this readiness in knowledge of work to do, of existing conditions, and of God's purposes as it is shown in verses 10, 11. Is God's name often on the lips of Israel's leaders? Was His influence the dominant influence, or was it an influence called upon formally just before an important undertaking? Contrast Israel's leaders with the leaders of other nations in this respect.

Think through the foundation of Joshua's promised success and the kind of success that would rest on such a foundation.

Why did God bring Israel into the promised land? Psa. 105:43-45. Does He have this purpose in mind for Israel's sake alone, or does He have in mind the welfare of all nations through the spread of the influence of obedience from this central point?

FOR CLASS

What stage of Israel's national development was considered in last week's lesson? How did God make it clear that no least part of Israel's national development should be due to man's self-assumption (and therefore unbelief in Himself)? What emphasis was laid upon the fact that obedience was the basic requisite in Israel's national development?

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

THE new Berean Class we promised you a couple of weeks ago has materialized. On Saturday night, October 2, a couple of car loads from Oregon drove to Rockford, Illinois, where more than twenty were gathered at the home of Sister (Mrs.) Martha Walls, and assisted them in organizing a Senior class. They are starting out with fourteen members, and every indication is that they are going to do splendid work. The officers are: President, Miss Frances Walls, 1016 North Ave.; 1st Vice President, Miss Dorothy W. Lyon, 215 North First St.; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Mabel Lindsay, 1202 Eighteenth St.; and Secretary-treasurer, Mr. Herbert Kasper, 1807 Ridge Ave.—all of Rockford, Illinois. May God direct the class to the advancement of the cause of truth.

* * * *

And now comes Burr Oak, Indiana, to the front with a brand new Junior class. Miss Fern Hatten, the Secretary and Treasurer, writes the following interesting information: "The young people have organized a Junior Berean Class here in Burr Oak. We are in full swing for business this winter. We have learned all the books of the Old Testament, and are starting on the New Testament now.

"We also made a rule that if any of the members do not know the memory verse they should pay a fine of one cent.

"As it is getting cold weather we are going to meet at the homes for our classes. We are taking turn in leading so each one has a chance at it. We are also going to start drill on the Bible by having someone give references all through the Bible, to see who can find them first.

"We have chosen 'O, To Be Like Thee' for our Class Song, which we open our meeting with. The least in attendance has been nine, and the most seventeen.

"The officers are: Leta Osborn, President; Myrle Hatten, Vice President; Fern Hatten, Secretary and Treasurer."

Good for Burr Oak! And that was a real good write-up, Fern. Tell us more about it later.

This makes three new organizations reported since conference; one Junior and one Senior in Illinois, and one Junior in Indiana. Come on, now, it is time for some of the other states next.

* * * *

The Chicago Bereans on October 3 decided just what need they would boost financially this year. For a number of years past they have been following this custom of selecting a definite place to push, and pushing. Thinking that they might inspire other societies to choose a definite object, they have sent the following suggestions, and they are so well worded that we publish them just as they sent them:—

"Our Berean Editor has asked societies to report any ideas or plans for work. Here's one.

"Look over the field of activities in National, State, and local work. Decide in your Society where you think "your bit" can help the most. Don't be afraid to lend a helping hand outside your own community. Then decide how much "your bit" shall be—five dollars, ten dollars, twenty-five dollars, or more. Set the time limit for raising the amount you have decided upon and then see how much fun you will have in reaching your goal.

"Some may ask what activities there are that we Berean Societies can help along. Well, last year there was the N. B. I. twenty-five dollar Christmas club. The N. B. I. certainly will have no objection to receiving twenty-five dollars or more or less at any time. There are three congregations that have built churches this year. In all probability none of these have been completely paid for as yet. A boost in this direction wouldn't come amiss. There's the N. B. I. students' class room which needs materials of various kinds; the National Berean treasury which never has enough to meet the demands; the Wince Fund; your own conference needs; some one needy individual; etc.

"Some societies have been working toward such a goal every year for several years and they wouldn't miss doing it for anything.

It surely is a good game. Try it!—remembering what Paul said to the Philippians about giving in Phil. 4:17—"Not because I desire a gift; but I desire fruit that may abound to your account."

* * * *

One sister in writing in says: "How about this? 'If every Berean were just like me, what kind of a Berean column would our column be?' If you find the true answer is, 'It would be a minus quantity', won't you please begin at once to mend your ways?"

* * * *

Oh, yes, Illinois, how much have you saved during the first two weeks of October for "Self-denial Month"? There is a double advantage to this. It does us good to refrain from luxuries at times, or even to make sacrifices, and the accumulations therefrom can bring much happiness to others.

NEW SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

(Continued from "Among the Churches" on page 25)

a New Testament Wall Map and an Old Testament Wall Map; for 60 ye will also add a map of Paul's Missionary Journeys; for 80 subscribers a fourth map; and for 100 subscribers we will give a set of five different maps in a wall cabinet.

Thus these 1926 New church builders, or any other church, can not only boost their local work by getting The Herald into every home, but they can get needed Wall Maps for their Sunday Schools.

Now, let's get busy.

In addition to soliciting home town folk, let each one write acquaintances, near and far, for their subscriptions.

A new subscriber is one who has not regularly received The Restitution Herald since May 1, 1926.

We will mail sample copies to help you if you send names and addresses.

Mail subscriptions and remittances promptly as taken, and add to your club week by week.

To the first 50 new subscribers we will send, gratis, a copy of The Visitor.

Campaign closes December 7th.

THOUGHTS FOR THINKERS

"Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life."—Proverbs 4:23.

"Whoso loveth instruction loveth knowledges but he that hateth reproof is brutish."—Proverbs 12:1.

LOVES secret is to be always doing things for God and not to mind because they are such very little ones.—F. W. Faber.

PRIMARY CLASS IN EVOLUTION

Problem No. 66

CAN a monkey sin? Can an angelworm feel remorse? Can a katydid suffer pangs of conscience? Can a swordfish worship its Creator? Can a reptile curse God or the devil? Can a butcher bird repent of evil deeds?

From which brand of ancestry did MAN actually inherit these numerous attributes?—Selected.

FIVE YEARS OLD

(Continued from page 24)

WHAT IS IT?

The National Bible Institution is the central working body of the church as a whole. It is that portion of the church as a whole that does for each local church, and for each state conference that which is beneficial and advantageous for all. It does these things for one and all cheaper and more efficiently than any one can possibly do for self alone. Quantity production is the slogan of the day. It is that which all institutions strive for. And this Institution, by doing things for all can do them much cheaper for each because of the fact of doing them for all—thus turning out larger quantities.

Here are a few of the things that this Headquarters is trying to do for the whole church:

First, a Home has been equipped through which to afford assistance to those who, because of loneliness or financial condition, may be benefited by its service.

This is for all the church.

Second, The Herald is being continued under this Institution for a service to all the church. The interests of one and all are being served according to the best judgment of the people in conference assembled, and in accordance with the best ability of those at Headquarters, to accomplish. It would be a financial impossibility to publish a paper for just one person, or for just one church. But, in serving all, the quantity becomes larger and the service can be accomplished with correspondingly less expense to each.

Third, We are needing Sunday School literature for ALL. This, too, can be accomplished if one and all can see their way to cooperate in producing the same. That is, if all will get behind such an effort and BOOST. The advantage would be a literature for ALL. All need the service. All need the literature. The National Bible Institution exists to provide just such service—service which is practically impossible to the single individual or to the single church congregation. But it is possible when ALL unite in assisting in the production for the common good, and unite in subscribing for the service.

Fourth, We need to encourage evangelization. This, too, can be better and more economically provided when we unite in the labor.

In these and many other possible ways this Institution is for the common good and for the economic and efficient service of all the individuals and of all of the churches.

HOW CAN WE BOOST THIS WORK ALONG?

First, it must be recognized that this is a continual work just the same as is the local work of any church a continual work. And inasmuch as this work is for the common good of ALL of the churches it therefore merits the common support of all of the churches and of all of the individual members of the Church of God. No one can afford to leave the care and support of this Institution alone to others. The more that a local church has at stake the more seriously should that church give heed to the upkeep and security of this Institution. Every such church needs more than any other the best possible paper that we can put out; it needs more than any other the best literature—Sunday School, Young People's, Evangelistic; it needs the best evangelistic aid; it needs the best Home aid; in short, the more a given local individual or church has at stake the more does he or it need the services of this central bureau of production

IN OUR WORKSHOP

Doings at Headquarters

FIVE YEARS OLD

(Continued from page 29)

and of exchange.

Second, just as no pulpit was ever instituted for the purpose or with the expectation that its services would provide an earning income, so also can there be no income from the mental study and service that is rendered in the production of or the providing for these various services. All this must in the future as in the past be maintained constantly by the continuous cooperation of the brotherhood as a whole. Headquarters has been putting forth earnest effort to the end that all mechanical labor should return to the Institution an earning sufficient to fully cover the cost for such production. (And, we have been endeavoring to provide and build a department that would be wholly a revenue producer—once it came to be properly established. This last has, by common judgment, been set aside, so that from now on there is nothing of that idea in mind.) But the mechanical effort will probably never pay for the study and mental service that must be constantly and continuously rendered; nor for the general administration expenses. In this it is and must remain the same as with a local church—the expense of spiritual benefits must needs be covered by the physical effort of the many.

Therefore, for the uplift of the work one and all should unite for the common support of that which is for the common good and edification of all. By this we mean regular and continuous support.

It should not be necessary for the individuals of the local churches to render per capita nearly as much for the maintenance of Headquarters as they render per capita for the maintenance of the local church, or for the state conference work. But if one and all would unite in rendering a small regular cooperative support for the Headquarters work, then these various phases of service which can be made so beneficial to the isolated individuals and local churches and state conferences can be maintained. Without such support such Headquarters work cannot possibly be continued for any great length of time.

LAST YEAR'S NOBLE EFFORTS

Last year the church did nobly indeed. But here at Headquarters we feel sure that the people as a whole do not have proper vision of that effort. A little over Five Thousand Dollars were contributed for the new section of the greenhouse. But this was an investment; it went into property. Upwards of Two Thousand Dollars were contributed to the Wince Fund. This likewise was an investment; it went for future upkeep.

These efforts were noble. They are praiseworthy, and everyone should recognize a service performed in them. But the fact that the individuals and societies contributed for these two investments left the Headquarters with scarcely nothing to operate on currently, therefore, operation expenses have for many months past been greater than income to cover them. We have reached a time when it will soon become necessary that funds to cover operation expenses shall be forthcoming in good amounts or else the non-revenue labors will need to be greatly curtailed. Our mechanical labors together with the Home are being provided for with the earnings of the mechanical efforts, but this statement does not pertain to the administrative work, the editing, the providing of copy for publishing, etc., etc.

HOW TO GROW

It was to cover these continuous overhead expenses and to provide a margin which would be available for gradual growth as conditions warranted that some months ago the brotherhood was solicited to endeavor to provide annually on the basis of Ten Dollars per capita per annum, some more, some less. We asked that one thousand times Ten Dollars be set as our goal. The attainment of such a goal would give us constant revenue for all overhead, and a considerable amount for gradual expansion and growth that the National Bible Institution might increase in its effectiveness of service year after year continually.

Growth makes for happiness, for contentment, for satisfaction. Let us grow. Let each one stop to recognize that the central headquarters is for the certain advantage of the local church, of the isolated individual, of the cause as a whole. It is not in any sense an added expense for the local, excepting as the local church and individual undertake through this central bureau to accomplish greater service for the Master. And here is one thing that is distinctly in evidence in Headquarters: Those local churches and those states which are cooperating best are the ones which in return are receiving best aid and are growing locally and are reaping best results therefrom.

Let us push. Let us do it now—immediately. Let us do so continually.

Let us, for the present, discontinue the method of pushing some particular phase of general work—greenhouse, Wince Fund, mangle, etc.—and let us unite and boost the work as a whole. This done, let us take care of the specials out of a fund maintained for upkeep and growth.

Let us start now, immediately, and do according as God has prospered us.

All together. Let's grow.

THE JEWS RETURN TO PALESTINE

By Sophie Irene Loeb

How They Go Back To The Land

I HAVE what I want and I do not want any more than I have." This sums up the philosophy of the life of Lazar Jaffe, one of the pioneers of Palestine, whom I met at Nahalal, a flourishing Jewish colony.

Although Jaffe and his family have been here fourteen years, this colony is only four years old. A neighbor, formerly of Ukraine, voiced practically the same sentiments as she showed me about the four acres of vineyards, vegetables and flowers.

"Ah, yes, here we have real sholem (peace)," she said. "We can work out our own salvation without being molested by hostile changing governments and revolutionists. Very soon we will have our little farm paid for—my husband, my child and I. Life will be easier—and what more can one want?"

And so you go from one little house to another—all of them temporary abodes. When the land has been tilled and more money has been made permanent structures will be built to take their places. And the constant, courageous spirit of the pioneer meets you at every door, willing to bear hardships, but happy in the doing.

No one can possibly visit these colonies as I have and not be impressed with the fact that it is the spiritual life behind it all that is fast, very fast, putting each family on a footing that will eventually lead to easy street.

COOPERATE IN GOVERNMENT

One of the interesting features of these colonies, especially the one at Nahalal, is the unique cooperative local government, that is made up of small committees to attend to certain sections of community interest.

For instance, Jaffe, who explained the system, told me about the committee on sickness. When any man in the family is taken ill and cannot continue his work the committee calls on a group of workers to aid with the sick man's work until he is well again. And furthermore, this work must be done before their own, so that no one may plead he has his own work to do first. This is the invariable and unbreakable rule.

Neither do they impose taxes here on any one who is unable to pay. There is a common market proposition—that is, each man's products are sent to a central store and from there taken to market. If he wishes to purchase anything he gets it at this store and it is charged to him. Very little money is passed until each gets on his feet, as it were.

The colonies, as they have developed, are of two types—one in which the settler, the pioneer, owns and cultivates his own farm and depends on this as his source of living. The other kind is where the colonists join in a sort of guild in which the entire colony owns all the land, equipment and resources on a cooperative basis and all share in the return. In some sections these people live in large buildings and eat at one community table; in others they have separate homes and regular individual home life.

LEARN IN COMMUNITY SETTLEMENTS

There are various reasons why settlers come to Palestine. The chief and fundamental reason, however, as stated several times, is the patriotism and the spiritual motive for creating the national home. Others come to get away from the hardships inflicted on them in the countries of Europe where they have lived to a more friendly environment.

The community method of settlement was developed because in the early colonization many immigrants came who had no knowledge of agriculture and therefore could not very well own an individual farm. The community plan was of value in that the skilled worker shared his knowledge and his fortune with his less adaptable brother. Many of the individual settlements have been built up by those who have seemingly graduated from the guild colonies.

What makes the colonies of Palestine so unusual and the development so attractive and interesting to all the experts who come here is the fact that the proposition is well thought out before it is accomplished. Nothing is haphazard. Road developments heretofore have grown through many years without any definite prospective. In these activities, however, those behind the movement, and the settlers themselves, have a definite knowledge of what is to be done from the origin of the colony until it is in a flourishing condition. In other words, the work is planned and then the plan is worked.

Also, the present settlements in rural communities have the advantage of the experiences of all countries. Not unlike the most advanced city planning, certain rural developments have been standardized. Those things that will thrive are well known; thus the most successful and the best-known plans are adopted.

ENTHUSIASM OF COLONISTS

It is most inspiring to visit these colonies and see the zeal and the enthusiasm and the interest with which they work. It was not always this way, however. When the first settlers came they were made up of people who had no agricultural experience. Not only this, but a large number of them came from countries whose climate and conditions were entirely different from that of Palestine and these people came to learn a new method of living—out in the open. Also, they had been accustomed to receive individual pay for their individual work, and the cooperative method of dividing the results of their joint labor was new.

They soon realized, however, that as they advanced in knowledge and were able to go their own way it was easy to obtain their own plot and develop their own farms.

Experts who have visited Palestine are very enthusiastic in their belief that the development of these colonies will create a rural life unprecedented in the history of any country. As one explained to me, what has been done in Florida and southern California can be reproduced in a like measure in the valley of Esdraelon and on the slopes of Mt. Carmel.

I have visited new purchases of land of these colonization centers—thousands of acres—and was accompanied by Charles Passman, vice-president and general manager of the American Zion Commonwealth, which works in cooperation with the Palestine Land Development Company—a society founded for the purchase of land in Palestine.

Perhaps there is nothing more indicative of the new life that is springing up in Palestine than a motor trip through the Jordan valley and the valleys of Esdraelon and Jezreel, which from the beginning of Biblical history has been the route of travel.

VALLEYS BLOSSOM WITH LIFE

On the mountain sides of the Judean hills are the old terraces on which, in the ancient past, flourished many olive groves and vineyards and gardens. But they now present a sad picture because they have been left so long to decay and stand fruitless. The great contrast that is noted the minute you enter the valleys, however—green growth, vegetables and fruit that greet you on all sides—speaks volumes of what is being accomplished.

Irrigation has brought the change in the last three or four years. The barren soil has been planted to orchards in which abound oranges, bananas, date palms and all kinds of vegetables. There are large wheat fields and corn fields as well. And the water that has made this luxurious growth possible has been pumped from the Jordan.

Although the irrigation enterprise has proved expensive, very soon hydro-electric development, which is under concession will reduce the costs appreciably.

The biggest work of the Jews in rehabilitating the homeland has been the settling of the colonies. There are eighty-nine of them, with a population of 18,000. Forty-three of these colonies have recently been established by the Keren Hayesod. They have more than 3,000 inhabitants, of whom 2,324 are workmen. There are 687 working-animals in these forty-three colonies and 27,302 fowls. Buildings numbering 1,050 have been erected.

"DRUMS OF PEACE"

ON June nineteenth fifteen thousand women pilgrims entered Hyde Park, London, beating "drums of peace", to be welcomed by a symbolic figure of peace in flowing white robes. It was the most remarkable demonstration against war ever seen in that country.

Thousands of these women walked from faraway towns and villages. Some of them started nearly a month before from the furthest corners of England, Scotland and Wales, gathering adherents on the way and finally converging, in ever-swelling columns, on the national capital.

Belonging to every shade of political opinion and every order of religious faith, these ardent pilgrims, most of them bereaved by war of a husband, father or son, united in one great sisterhood of the open road whose creed was arbitration and whose slogan was "law, not war".

As they marched along they preached and made converts like the pilgrims of old, carrying staffs with waving banners which bore their message. One of these, entitled, "The Unknown Warrior," showed a little boy in a paper helmet holding a wooden sword. Another, "Canon Fodder" was a picture of a baby in his mother's lap.

Tacked on the staffs were the names of the towns and villages through which they had passed and in which the pilgrims' peace resolution had been adopted at public meetings. These were their army's "victories."

The march entailed great hardship for the older women, some of whom dropped by the wayside, some continuing the journey in any sort of vehicle which would give them lifts. If they boarded a bus the driver would do his bit by paying their fare.

But Dr. Ethel Williams, 70 years old, walked all the way from Leeds, 200 miles away, and others not much younger from Land's End, Edinburgh, Norwich and Carlisle. Four miners' wives, two of them grandmothers, walked from Liverpool.

Finally, in four huge battalions, each headed by a woman on horseback, the army entered London, marching over streets with war-like ardor throughout the afternoon. "Operation orders" directed their movements so that they arrived at Hyde Park almost simultaneously.

There they gathered around twenty-two platforms from which speakers of both sexes fired a barrage of words. The speakers included Lord Parmoor, Lady Barlow, Ellen Wilkinson, Margaret Bondfield, Laurence Housman and other famous feminists.

Tremendous enthusiasm greeted the final passing of a resolution calling upon the British Government to take the initiative in the disarmament conference proposed by the League of Nations and demanding arbitration of all disputes.—Selected.

* * *

There is more real and lasting happiness obtained in life by making sacrifices for the happiness of others than by seeking joy in one's own selfish way.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 19, 1926

NUMBER 3

GOD JUSTIFIES ONLY THE UNGODLY

"To him that worketh not but believeth on Him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is reckoned for righteousness.—Rom. 4:5.

TO THIS one scriptural fact I wish to call your earnest attention, namely, God justifies the ungodly. He does not justify all ungodly men, but on the other hand He justifies none but ungodly men.

Men seem to think that because they have been wicked and ungodly God requires that they shall reform, in fact, that is, that they shall change their character from one of wickedness to one of righteousness, before God will accept and receive them through Christ.

This is not true. Romans 4:5 distinctly says that God "justifieth the ungodly" who believe. In fact, such are the ONLY ONES who can be justified. The righteous are already just. The ungodly are not only the only ones who need to be justified, but they are the only ones can be justified. The just are already just and cannot be justified. God is just. He cannot be justified. Man is unjust. He must be just before he can be saved.

Man cannot justify himself—cannot make himself righteous. Therefore he cannot save himself. Unless, then, some outside power shall take hold of him and justify him he is hopelessly submerged in sin, the wages of which is death.

God is that outside power.

Man sinned of his own volition and act. He could do that. And doing that he brought upon himself all of sin's misery and sorrow and grief and death. But, much as man may wish, he cannot redeem himself from that condition into which, against God's instruction, he placed himself. He is like one in the quicksand—much as he may regret having stepped in, and much as he may wish to step out, and much as he may will and determine to step out, he, nevertheless, even in despair, finds it impossible to release himself from his sinking condition, from certain doom. Only an outside power can restore his feet to solid ground. In like manner, only outside power can justify the ungodly.

What, then, does a just God require of the ungodly that he may be justified?

First, that he recognize the truth of God's word that man is sinful and cannot save himself; that he will give in, submit, to God's help. He cannot "work" himself up to salvation. His every effort is sure to "work" himself deeper into sin. Trusting in self, failing of trust in God, is the principle reason for his first sin, and continued trust in himself will only continue his way therein. The first requisite unto justification is that man shall exercise implicit faith in God. "To him that believeth on Him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is reckoned for righteousness".

Second, "While we were yet sinners Christ died for us."

Romans 5:8. "The Lord laid on Him the iniquity of us all."—Isa. 53:6. "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."—1 Cor. 15:57.

Now faith knows of one way only of manifesting itself, namely, by service, obedience, the works of faith. There is such a vast difference between "works" as put forth by the carnal man and the works of faith! The first is activity with a view to attain unto a given end; the second is activity because something has already been attained. "Works" work toward an end, while faith works because of established faith. "Works" is a presumed cause with a view to results; the works of faith are the result of which faith is the cause.

"Faith", known by its obedience and service, "is reckoned for righteousness", justification.

The Good Seed

*O God, by whom the seed is given,
By whom the harvest's blest,
Whose Word, like manna showered from heaven,
Is planted in our breast;*

*Preserve it from the passing feet,
And plunderers of the air,
The sultry sun's intensest heat,
And weeds of worldly care!*

*Though buried deep or thinly strown,
Do Thou Thy grace supply;
The hope of earthly furrows sown,
Shall ripen from on High.*

"WEAVERS AT THE LOOM OF LIFE"

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

WE READ in Job 7:6 of Job's days that were passing "swifter than a weaver's shuttle". Not only were Job's days passing thus, swiftly, but your days, also, and my days are passing with the same swiftness.

God has given us these days and placed each of us at His great loom of life. It belongs to Him. You are not your own, you are bought with a price, even with "the precious blood of Jesus". The days of our life are the warp that runs from the cradle to the grave. We are the weavers. Each one weaves into that warp either such materials as will stand the inspection of the Judge of all the earth when He comes to inspect our finished product, or faulty material which will bring sorrow and the loss of the prize. He has offered to bring the prize of the High calling in Christ Jesus to those who have perfect work; that they shall be rulers together with Him in the great resurrection age, and be associated with Him in all His work.

And so, dear reader, how careful we should be as to the kind of threads we are using. For we must have only that which will stand the test throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity. God says He will bring every man's work into judgment, whether it be good or bad. Be careful what you weave.

The judgment day is fast approaching, and our days, like Job's, "are passing swifter than a weaver's shuttle".

Work while it is day; for the night cometh wherein no man can work—the night of death.

HOW MANY HELLS ARE THERE?

By John W. Burget

"And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged every man according to their works.—Rev. 20:13.

IN THIS hell the people are dead. This hell is what we call the grave. Pharaoh, king of Egypt, went down to the grave. Ezekiel 31:2, 15. The next verse says, "I made the nations to shake at the sound of his fall, when I cast him down to hell." These scriptures teach that grave and hell are the same.

"The rich man also died, and was buried; and in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom", Luke 16:22, 23.

In this hell the rich man was alive. This rich man nations. Those nations hated the Jews, and the Jews and it was buried among all other nations. Those nations hated the Jews and the Jews were persecuted and tormented for hundreds of years. The Jews are the only people whom God cast into a hell alive. They are also the only people who pass through the living hell and then go down through the Adamic death to the grave, or their second hell.

PAIN IS A FAITHFUL SENTINEL

By Samuel E. Haney

AFTER the operation the patient complained of much pain. The surgeon replied, "Your pain means safety in your case; and I must be notified the moment pain ceases, as that would mean mortification has set in, which must be quickly combated by another operation."

Christians of experience, through their militant battle for Life, "by way of the Cross", will readily note the analogy.

Child of God, have you no difficulties to combat with; no disappointments; no sickness of self or loved ones; everything going prosperously and smoothly? Do "all men" (the world) "speak well of you"?—Luke 6:25, 26. If such be the case you are to be envied by the world, but pitied by your brethren in Christ. Better report your case to the Great Surgeon at once; for spiritual mortification has surely started. Serious danger is ahead unless a few amputations be made!

It is written, "And ye have forgotten the exhortation which speaketh unto you as unto children, My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of Him: for whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the Father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons", Heb. 12. The Lord says, "As many as I love (Isn't it glorious to be singled out as one special, unique in His sight!), I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore and repent".

No chastening—pain? Something is wrong: the operating table is your place. Jesus says (symbolically) "If, then, thy hand or thy foot ensnare thee, cut it off, and throw it away; it is better for thee to enter LIFE crippled or lame, than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the aionian fire. And if thine eye ensnare thee, pluck it out, and throw it away; it is better to enter LIFE one-eyed, than having two eyes to be cast in the burning of Gehenna—everlasting death.—Emphatic Diaglott."

Our trials and troubles create "an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ—if we are exercised (trained, Emphatic Diaglott) thereby", 2 Peter 1:11.

"IT IS A SAD weakness in us, after all, that the thought of a man's death hallows him anew to us; as if life were not sacred, too."—George Eliot.

THE NATURAL AND SPIRITUAL BODY

"It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. And so it is written, The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit. Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual."—First Corinthians 15:44-46.

IN his Second Epistle to Timothy, 3:16, Paul says, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness," etc. And while it is natural for believers to be content with the mere assurance of resurrection, it is surely but right, when the Holy Spirit has given us certain details regarding it, that these should be read carefully and reverently, that their import may be intelligently grasped. In this connection our thought should not be, "Is this essential to salvation?" but rather, "Are we, as Christ's servants, at liberty to neglect it?"

From remarks made in different quarters, it is evident that a certain confusion of thought prevails with respect to what is meant by the expressions, "natural body" and "spiritual body". Ordinarily the terms "natural" and "spiritual", as here used, seem to be regarded as equivalent to "mortal" and "immortal". Some indeed seem to regard the expression "spiritual body" as denoting "spirit-body". How far such conceptions are from the actual truth will appear as we proceed.

Whatever difficulty may exist with respect to any particular scripture is often settled by reference to other scriptures in which similar expressions occur. In the same epistle, 2:14, the terms "natural" and "spiritual" are used in a way which ought to settle at once their meaning in the passage under discussion. "Now", says Paul, "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." What is here meant by "the natural man" is too obvious to admit of doubt: it is simply the animal or sensual man—the man who lives after the flesh. To him the things of God are foolishness. Nor can they be otherwise as long as he remains so; ere he can judge them aright, a complete change in his moral nature must take place.

To the same effect speaks the great apostle near the beginning of the eighth of Romans: "The carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." Here the expression "carnal mind" is used instead of "natural man"; but in both cases the outcome is practically the same: in the first, hopeless inability to discern the things of the Spirit of God—they are mere foolishness; in the second, hopeless enmity to the law of God.

That the word "natural" as used in the passage before us means, carnal, animal, sensual, is proved from two other scriptures in which the Greek original is the same. The first is James 3:14, 15—"If ye have bitter envying in your hearts, boast not and lie not against the truth. This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish." The second is Jude 18, 19: "There should be mockers in the last time, who should walk after their own ungodly lusts. These be they who separate themselves, sensual, not having the Spirit."

In both scriptures the Greek word (psuchikos) rendered "sensual" is the same as that rendered "natural" in 1 Cor. 2:14 and 15:44-46. That being so, the conclusion is irresistible that the word "natural" as used to describe our present bodies means not mortal or corruptible, but sensual, animal—under the sway of the senses or animal passions. So, then, when Paul speaks of the natural body he means one in which the animal or sensual nature predominates. This contention, it will be readily admitted, is borne out by Weymouth's rendering of this passage: "An animal body is sown, a spiritual body is raised. As surely as there is an animal body, so there is also a spiritual body."

The meaning of the word "natural" having been thus definitely ascertained, there can be little doubt as to the meaning of its opposite—"spiritual." As the former implies all that is embraced in sin or sinfulness, so must the latter denote all that is embraced in righteousness—that, as the present body is by its very nature sinful, the resurrection body (of believers, of course) is essentially sinless. Born again in the final and most absolute sense of the word, they neither sin any more nor die any more; "on such the second death hath no power".

It is worthy of note that Paul here gives very special attention to the spiritual aspect of the resurrection; of other aspects he makes but a passing mention. Thus: "It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: it is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power." Not that these are of themselves unimportant—far from it—but rather that their importance is so very obvious as to call for no particular notice. With the last aspect—"it is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body"—it is very different. Moved, as we so largely are, by the sight of the eyes and the hearing of the ears, we are apt to overlook its momentousness and its sublimity.

Of this element in human nature Paul was keenly conscious. The treatment of our Lord by His own people is an eloquent example. Had He come in all the pomp and splendor of a great earthly potentate—the head of a tangible world empire—all classes would have hailed Him with wild rapture as their great Deliverer. But because He came as the "Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief", the One who was to save His people from their sins, they would have none of Him. They felt no need of such salvation; all that they longed for was deliverance from the iron yoke of Rome and the possession of great temporal power and glory.

Now, as the Jews fell into the deadly error of exalting political emancipation above spiritual salvation, so are believers in danger of regarding the resurrection as deliverance from the power of the grave rather than as deliverance from bondage of sin. As a matter of fact

The Christ

*A man of sorrows he, and the guest of grief,
Who walked in quiet life's humble ways
And suffered all the slurs and dull dismays
Which crush on mighty souls. His day was brief—
A sudden splendor reft with storm. Belief
On Him grew dim, though great hearts walked through haze
Of doubt, and fogs of death with shouts of praise,
And knew Him glorious and acclaimed Him Chief.
But now He stands, strange, unaccompanied, vast,
Tall as all solemn, purpling mountains are,
The while majestic centuries crumbling waste
The blood-sweat travail of His soul is past;
He hath throned Love and wrought Redemption far;
And who "believeth on Him shall not haste".*

—William A. Quayle.

it is both; but what we too often overlook or forget is that it was sin that "brought death into the world and all our woe," and that not until the cause is wholly removed can the effect pass away once for all.

The resurrection has thus a twofold aspect—deliverance from sin, the cause; and deliverance from death, the effect. And viewing the matter as far as possible from the Divine standpoint, it is evident that the two deliverances cannot well be regarded separately: they are one and inseparable. An immortal, indestructible body with a sinful nature is an unthinkable thing, and would prove an unspeakable curse instead of an unspeakable blessing. The last state of mankind would be worse than the first.

Death, be it noted, is not a mere misfortune, but is a curse—the direct result of sin. "As by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men; for that all have sinned". (Rom. 5:12.) And as James says, "When lust hath conceived it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." Paul tells us also that "the sting of death is sin". That is to say, the fact that death is the consequence of sin is that which intensifies or aggravates its sting. The deplorable thing about death, as about many another calamity, is that it "needn't have been". Had our first parents given heed to God's warning instead of believing the serpent's lie, death would not have entered into this world. We are prone to think that had we been placed as they were we should have acted differently. Such imaginings, however, only show how little we know ourselves. Well has Jeremiah said, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" And when tempted to look down in self-righteous pride on Adam and Eve, let us remember how sadly Peter was humbled when giving expression to similar feelings.

So that we have no ground whatever for thinking that we would not have done as our first parents did. How they reasoned themselves into the belief that they were doing right in accepting the tempter's suggestions we have no means of knowing. Possibly their delight at the prospect of partaking of the forbidden fruit banished all other thoughts. Anyhow, all that can be affirmed with certainty is that, even after the announcement of the curse and the expulsion from the garden of Eden, they had but a faint conception of the terrible consequences with which their daring disobedience was fraught.

Yet even in their own peaceful home they were soon to behold in miniature the tragic issue of their folly. Little did they imagine that of their own flesh and blood, in a fit of bitter envy and jealousy, one son would slay another in cold blood, and when taken to task by God, would show the most callous indifference, concerned only at the punishment that was to follow.

Less than two thousand years afterwards, as men began to multiply upon the face of the earth, the tiny streamlet of bloodshed had developed into a mighty ocean; for we are told that "the earth was filled with violence" — insomuch that "it repented Jehovah that He had made man on the earth."

What "filled with violence" means, the history of Europe since the Balkan War of 1912-13 reveals with painful significance; and the possibility of even worse happening at any moment, as Bolshevism and Fascism, etc., rear their defiant heads—makes one shudder as he tries to imagine it. Yet it is all just as our Lord said to His disciples shortly before His crucifixion: "As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man." Truly, as Paul says, "that is not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural."

But Paul does not leave us with this bald, dispiriting statement. He now takes occasion to go back to the heads of the two races—the one whose sin brought death upon all; the other whose victory over sin and the grave wrought life and immortality to light. "The first man Adam became a living animal; the last Adam is a life-giving Spirit. Nevertheless, it is not what is spiritual that came first, but what is animal; what is spiritual came afterwards. The first man is a man of earth, earthy; the second Man is from heaven. What the earthy one is, that also are those who are earthy; and what the heavenly One is, that also are those who are heavenly. And as we have borne resemblance to the earthy one, let us see to it that we also bear a resemblance to the heavenly One." (Weymouth.) It will be noticed that the last clause, which in the Authorized Version is a prediction, in Weymouth becomes an exhortation of great practical consequence.

In these verses we have epitomized the character and history of two sections of the human race, each in association with its great head. As the first fell before the wiles of the Evil One, so have his posterity partaken his character and consequent destiny—earthy, and doomed to corruption. As the second vanquished the great adversary, so will His spiritual posterity—those who are His by faith, those who are “born again”, “born of water and of the Spirit”—partake of His heavenly character, and finally, like Him, triumph over death and the grave.

When we ponder the matter soberly, we are not surprised that Paul dwells so much on this aspect of the resurrection; for though presented last in order, it really lies at the root of all the others—apart from it they would simply have no place. As Paul himself tells us in a previous verse, “the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.” Its root-cause, sin, must be destroyed first of all. In its glory, in its sublimity—in any light in which we seek to view it—this aspect positively transcends all human conception. Selfishness and self-indulgence, which lie at the root of our own miseries and those of others, will then be left behind with our mortal bodies. All that now tends to drown men in destruction and perdition will have passed away for ever. We are told that we shall be like Him—JESUS—for we shall see Him as He is; not with our present sin-blurred vision, but with that Spirit-bestowed vision which will enable us to know fully even as we are now known. The greatness of God’s love in all this, and our own utter unworthiness of it, ought to beget in us feelings of the deepest humility as well as of fervent love, and to inspire us more than ever to walk worthy of the high vocation wherewith we are called.—G. Winter, in “Words of Life”.

“OVERSIGHT of one’s self is the first requirement for a judicious oversight of others.”

THAT ALL MIGHT BE DAMNED

THIS strong language of 2 Thessalonians 2:12 must not be studied by itself. Only by including the whole context can one get the full thought of the inspired apostle. He establishes this statement upon the fact that the believers love not the truth; they rather accept the deceitful teachings and workings of the wicked one previously mentioned. They disregard the mighty works of the eternal God in the creation itself, the unmeasured power manifested in maintaining the heavens and the earth as also in the maintaining of life upon the earth. They ignore all these things as well also as the wonderful miracles wrought by God through His Son Jesus in Judea and Galilee, and the greater miracle of preserving His Son’s crucified body from corruption and of raising it to life and immortality after three days.

Instead of allowing these tokens of power and of authentic word to become evidences worthy of confidence in God, they turn to the lesser evidences just as the Egyptians did when the “magicians did likewise”. Therefore, “for this cause”, because of this persistent disbelief in God and persistent belief in the falsifications of man—therefore, “God shall send them strong delusions” through that wicked one.

WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT?

UNREST, overturnings, changes, uncertainties stalk darkly through many nations. Azrael broods over a world in travail.

Before crushing endeavors and broken ideals the League of Nations falters.

On four continents the dragon’s teeth are sprouting sabers and bayonets. The hemispheres are bathed in the red of a setting sun. Civilization halts and shudders in its onward march.

China is disrupted. North opposes south. A Manchurian warlord sits before the gates of Peking.

The stagnant Orient stirs mutteringly against the encroachments of the advancing Occident.

Convulsions of nature thwart the building of the new Japan. Congested with man-power, she frets inside confining walls.

Under the whips of denationalized anarchists, one-sixth of the earth’s land surface falls into decadence and disuse. The dark cloud of Russia dims the sky line of many lands.

Mexico trembles on the brink of revolution and religious war. New war clouds lower above the Balkans.

French mobs stone Americans and jeer at the traditional friendship of the nations, the while France is tottering toward bankruptcy and repudiation.

England, saved from debacle only by a fortunate chance, is a caldron of unrest, with a stubborn coal strike paralyzing her industrial ganglia.

In the Far East the Philippines clamor for “independence”, the while rival world powers wait to fall to blows over possession of the islands the moment they forsake the aegis of America.

Religious riots are spilling blood in the streets of Calcutta. Hindus and Mohammedans, Brahmans, Buddhists, Parsees, and Aryans wait only for the lifting of the restraining “white” hand to fly at each other’s throats.

Earth’s oldest city, Damascus, lies in ruins where overlords and underdogs have clashed. France turns from a Pyrrhic victory in Morocco to fresh conflict in Syria.

Egypt elects an abettor of assassins to premiership at Cairo as a red rag to the British bull. In the southern half of the Dark Continent the menace of the colored race keeps Cape Town and Johannesburg isolated outposts of colonial imperialism.

Italy, Spain, Poland, Greece, Portugal grasp at the straw of military dictatorships. European democracies fumble and fail before financial emergencies.—Los Angeles Times.

Let's Play

*Let's dream like a child in its playing,
Let's make us a sky and a sea;
Let's change the things 'round us by saying
They're the things that we wish them to be.
And when there is sadness and sorrow,
Let's dream till we charm it away;
Let's learn from the children, and borrow
A saying from childhood: "Let's play."
Let's play that the world's full of beauty;
Let's play there are roses in bloom;
Let's play there is pleasure in duty,
And light where we thought there was gloom.
Let's play there are birds blithely flinging,
Their songs of delight to the air;
Let's play that the world's full of singing,
Let's play there is good everywhere.*

—Anonymous.

LITTLE CHILDREN, LOVE ONE ANOTHER

By Auntie Wince

WE ARE wondering why the apostles should thus address the followers of Jesus. To be sure, it is a title of endearment. And John, if we guess aright, had a loving heart, but it seems to me that in using it he not only wished to admonish them to be kindly affectioned one toward another in brotherly love, but also to remind them of the close relationship that existed between them and their heavenly Father, for where there are children there is always a father. And it is natural and right that children of the same father should hold each other dear. There should be no quarrels, no misunderstandings. Given the same lesson-books and the same easy, pleasant tasks to perform, why should they make any mistakes? And yet they do. Professing to be children of God and to believe the Bible in its entirety, from Genesis to Revelation, they are divided into numerous sects with widely differing beliefs, many of whom will on no account meet and commune with each other.

And rightly so, for what harmony or love could there be between people holding such discordant views?

But to us who believe in the sleep of the dead, the destruction of the wicked, and the near coming of Jesus and His reign upon the earth, it is one of the sweetest delights of life. For we do love one another just as children do brought up at the same fond mother's knee.

It is a beautiful love that will go a long distance, face any danger, to meet and commune with those who believe the dear Savior in whom we are trusting for endless life. We watch eagerly the coming day; we watch the dawn of every returning morn. "Will He come to-day?" is ever the question on our lips, and this being so, the command, "Little children, love one another" takes on a new and added significance, for we want none of the dear ones to miss gaining the crown. And that they may not, we must do our utmost to help them keep step with Jesus. It is no time now to forget our high calling. It is no time now to forget that there are dear ones very close to us who will perish if we do not lift up the warning voice.

Snatch them as brands from the burning fire.

Some of your friends have made up their minds that they will do as nearly right as they know how, without yielding obedience to God's positive command to repent and be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, sure that they will be saved on their own merits.

Show them how vain such a hope is, there being no name given under heaven among men whereby we must be saved except the name of Jesus. His name is the only name that can cover sin.

LIVING WATER

THERE is a proverb which says, "We never miss the water till the well runs dry." We seldom have occasion to understand the meaning of that saying in this country, but in many other countries the conditions are quite different. In Palestine, around which most of the Bible history is centered, there are months in every year when no rain falls. Throughout all the country there are springs; but in the summer many of these dry up. Those which give fresh, cool water all the year round are called "living springs", or springs of living water. Some of these are built round with stones, covered and sealed, only to be opened and used in cases of extreme necessity. If you turn to the 13th chapter of Zechariah, you will read, "In that day there shall be a fountain opened . . . for sin and for uncleanness. Those of us who have learned to know and love the Savior have been cleansed in that fountain by faith; but in that day the Lord will reveal Himself to sight.

In Palestine when water gets scarce in the towns and cities, men go into the country and fill large water bottles at these living springs. These bottles are made of porous clay, which keeps the water cool. The men come back to the cities and sell the water. They go along the streets tinkling two little metal cups to announce their coming, and call, "Ho! ye thirsty one, come ye and drink." In Isaiah 55, when the Lord is pleading with His people through the mouth of the prophet, He uses phrases which are familiar to them, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat." Other water-sellers cry, "Living water, the gift of God." When our Lord met the woman of Samaria at the well, and said, "If thou knewest the gift of God, and Who it is that saith to thee, 'Give me to drink,' thou wouldst have asked of Him, and He would have given thee living water." The words "living water" did not surprise the woman, but she could not understand how the Lord could have living water when He had no vessel to draw with. What a gracious result followed this conversation with the woman! Many of the Samaritans came to the Lord, and received that living water which springs up into everlasting life.—Selected.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine."—2 Tim. 4:2.

Sunday—October 24—1 Tim. 4 Mem. V. 13
Monday—October 25—1 Tim. 5 Mem. V. 2
Tuesday—October 26—1 Tim. 6 Mem. V. 10

THIS epistle is called by some a pastoral epistle. In it Paul instructs Timothy, his son in the faith, that he might know how he ought to behave himself in the church of God, 3:15.

In chapter 3 he is instructing about those things that pertain to the "mystery of the faith", v. 9, that is, the "mystery of godliness", v. 16. For one to maintain faith and godliness in himself it is well to know the things here taught.

"The office of a bishop" "seems to have a twofold sense of inspection, or oversight, and guardianship".—Critical Lexicon. "In the New Testament used of elders, denoting the watchful care pertaining to them".—Critical Lexicon.

While the apostles, and pastors and evangelists were all elders, yet they were not the only elders. Titus was sent, 1:5, "to ordain elders in every city".

The elders, then, were to guard well and watch those over whom they were placed that they might keep each one in the purity of the faith, and present them unto our Lord at His coming. It is a most responsible position. Proper behavior in the church of God was requisite.

Just as chapter 3 instructs for the comprehension of things having to do with the "mystery of the faith", so chapter 4 instructs in those things which have to do with opposite development, which might be called "the mystery of iniquity". It has to do with "the latter times". These conditions result from departing "from the faith". The next step is only natural—"giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils". V. 3 can hardly refer to the Roman Church as that church commands only the celibacy of priests and monks and nuns. Spiritism is said to "enjoin being united only to the 'spiritual affinity' and has wrecked many homes". Animal food is also said to be discouraged by the same. "Latter times" conditions of ungodliness are here taught.

Paul's thoughts return in chapter 4 to the proper conduct toward elders and one another. Observe v. 17.

Verse 8 is often misunderstood, not noticing the context. He is writing about the duty to widows. The first upon whom the Christian duty falls for caring for the widows are those of her house—"children or nephews"—which latter word is the same as is sometimes used for "grandchildren". Verse 8 undoubtedly refers to these whose bounden Christian duty is to care for the widow of "their own house". Children and kin not concerned in doing this are "worse than an infidel".

Chapter 6 continues these instructions. V. 16 tells of Him "who only hath immortality".

Wednesday—October 27—2 Tim. 1 Mem. V. 5
Thursday—October 28—2 Tim. 2 Mem. V. 15
Friday—October 29—2 Tim. 3 Mem. V. 16
Saturday—October 30—2 Tim. 4 Mem. V. 13

The Second Epistle to Timothy is thought to be the latest of Paul's writings. "It was written during his second imprisonment at Rome, within a short time of his martyrdom (4:6). "When 'all they which are in Asia (cp. Acts 19:10) be turned away from' Paul, he exhorts Timothy, his 'son', therefore to 'be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus'". Two things are particularly emphasized,—“Preach the word”, 4:2, and “the things which thou hast heard of me . . . , the same commit thou to faithful men”, 2:2.

Every cause is followed by its result. And Paul's deep, pure faith in God sensed for him an abundant reward clearly visualized: "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness". This was sufficient. Life's success was measured by that "crown". It is unfading, 1 Peter 5:4, will never vanish away, may never be appropriated by another; it is his, for ever.

Furthermore, "the righteous Judge" will give it him "at that day"—the day of His appearing, the same day that He shall judge the quick (living) and the dead", v. 1.

And, "not to me only, but unto all them also who love His appearing". How beautifully are the Savior's words fulfilled in Paul's life as here revealed: "My peace I give unto you".

"Faith which worketh by love" is here to be seen in majestic splendor.

There is something pathetic in this his closing epistle as he, stolid and calm in faith, surveys life and peers into the distant future, and assures,—“I am now ready to be offered”. Like Abraham of old (only in this instance it is the parent to be offered instead of the "son"), Paul had spent a life climbing the mountain for sacrifice. The height has now been reached by him, the altar prepared and the fuel laid. He is "now ready", and waves back one parting salutation and benediction to his "dearly beloved son" in the gospel,—“Preach the word”.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

TRUTH

"Sanctify them through Thy truth: Thy word is truth."—John 17:17.

THE UNIVERSE and all that therein is is one great whole. In a complete and perfect condition, pure and untarnished by sin, all is to be in perfect harmony and agreement with all of the other elements that, together, make up the whole. This is God's ideal consummation as revealed in the sacred scriptures. There will be no war, part against part: the lion and the bear and the lamb and the calf and the child and the serpent will all lie down together, unendangered, unmolested. Man will no more war against man nor nation against nation. All will continue in true relationship with all of the rest of the universe.

Such a condition is one of perfect truth.

Truth of every kind is in perfect harmony with every other phase of truth. Truth cannot be in discord with truth.

Man's big task of life is to discover and discern truth, then to control self to live in accord therewith. This is really the one big thing before him.

Christ's prayer was that His disciples might be sanctified through truth, even truth as announced in God's word.

Truth must be found by man. It exists—some within him, some without. In some way he can and must find it if he is to possess it. It is sought for in God's word as being the one source where it should be found in its unadulterated purity, in its wholesomeness. It is sought for in nature, everywhere. Much of the life of the specialist of whatever upright walk in life is the result of his having sought for and found a measure of truth.

The Christian is a specialist. He searches for truth in the word of God. He then seeks to truly control himself so that he will be the living embodiment of that truth. It is this that makes him of value, of value to God, to man, and to himself. He is of value in just such proportion as he stands firmly for God's eternal truth.

THE CHURCH

The church, that is, the organization of man, is not what man should live for. Every church is built upon a foundation of certain declared statements of principle. These principles are presumed to be principles of truth. The church should not be organized with a view to sustaining the church as such, but rather to be used as an instrument by which and through which to hold forth the truth as discerned by the church.

That individual, who, believing certain things to be true, nevertheless forsakes them to seek carnal gratification, seems to regard truth as of little consequence.

How often it is that we find an individual of the Church of God and its truth living in isolation from others of the same truth who, because of such isolation, fails to stand for the truth which he professes and often drops it altogether in exchange for human association in other religious groups. Is not such an individual hiding the truth which he believes he has found? Unless very careful he thus neglects to inspire the child of his home with the truth of his own finding and sends him out where, perhaps, he and his will spend several generations before they discover the truth which should have been theirs continuously.

It is truth that we are after. Finding it, we should live by it and in every way discover it to others. For truth is truth forever, to all. Therefore, every person owes it to himself, to his God, to his fellowman, THAT HE SHALL STAND NOBLY AND FAITHFULLY FOR EVERY DEGREE OF TRUTH WHICH HE POSSESSES.

TO-MORROW

So many of us fail to live for to-morrow. The Israelites would make themselves golden gods to lead them back into Egypt regardless of the difficulties of the journey rather than to face the duty of entering the land of promise and looking ahead for the benefits that should accrue to the children of to-morrow. The same story is ever relived. Too many, altogether too many, measure life and life's success alone with reference to the effect of that success immediately upon self. This principle is itself error. There is no valued to-morrow except on the sacrifice of to-day. There is no scholastic development except by the sacrifice of days of study and research. There is no proficiency of profession except as results from the hours of sacrifice in practice. There is no large Christian ability except as results from the sacrifice of the individual who is looking to the common good of all to-morrow.

Therefore, the writer urges most earnestly that each and every Christian of the Church of God who firmly believes he has a measure of truth in its purity shall devote life, in whatsoever circumstance he may be placed, to the upholding of that truth. Let us remember that we are of value to God and to man in proportion as we stand firmly but kindly for truth. And if the Church of God is an organization that aids us in finding, standing for, and working for truth then let us use it and encourage it, always with truth in view.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ANNUITY BONDS

Full information regarding National Bible Institution Annuity Bonds will gladly be supplied to all inquirers.

* * *

Will some one having a copy of tract—"God's Word and Man's" by "Reed" please lend and mail same to National Bible Institution for a few days?

* * *

Bro. F. A. Stilson and family spent last week end at Plymouth and South Bend, Indiana.

* * *

Bro. Silas Claypool, his wife and eight month old son have been spending their vacation with relatives and friends in Marshall, and incidentally attending the meetings at Salem Church. Bro. Silas was one of the well known young people at Illinois Bible School in 1917.

* * *

Sr. Ward Scott recently returned to her home at Lockport, Illinois, after spending two weeks with her mother, Sr. Nellie Cross, at Oregon.

* * *

The meetings at the Salem Church are progressing nicely. Splendid weather, and good attendance at last report. Some of the Casey people were over on Wednesday night.

* * *

Sister Margaret Lyon graduated from the nurses training school at West Suburban Hospital, Oak Park, Illinois, on Tuesday, October 12. We congratulate her on the quiet determination which has led her to this success. She does not leave the institution till early next summer.

* * *

Bro. F. E. Siple is making plans to assist Bro. Melville Lyon, pastor of the Brush Creek, Ohio, Church, in a series of meetings at that place the last of November and first of December.

* * *

The little tract entitled, "Where Do We Go When We Die?" is not yet off the press. Orders will be filled as soon as printed

* * *

A CORRECTION

On page 34, first Column, last paragraph, the second line is erroneous. The lines should read:

"In this hell the rich man was alive. This rich man was the Jewish Nation. God overthrew the Jewish nation and it was buried among all other nations", etc.

GRAND RAPIDS DEDICATION

The dedication service of the newly completed church at Grand Rapids, Michigan, will be held Sunday, October 24, in connection with the Quarterly Conference.

I am sorry for having failed to previously announce the location of the new Grand Rapids church where the Michigan Quarterly Conference will be held October 22, 23, and 24.

The church is located on the corner of Abbie and Jefferson Streets, one block south and two blocks east of Herzog Inn, ure of the services.

Friends coming from a distance will please notify the pastor by mail or otherwise, and provision will be made for their reception and entertainment. Address: G. E. Marsh, 448 Elmwood Ave., Niagara Falls, New York.

* * *

The Dixon, Illinois, appointment next Sunday, morning and evening, will be filled by Bro. F. A. Stilson.

* * *

Appointments at Oregon next Sunday will be filled by Bros. J. Arthur Johnson and Paul C. Johnson.

* * *

The County Board of Supervisors has appointed Bro. Leland T. Hanson to position of County Superintendent of Schools, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bro. John E. Cross.

* * *

COMMUNICATIONS

"October 5" is a "Dandy" good paper. Full of good things. Do it some more.

Sorry to know of Bro. Cross' death. His life was well lived. Our loss is a cause of real sorrow.

A. J. Eychaner.

* * *

Dear Bro. Austin: I am very much pleased with the change in form of The Restitution Herald. It is easier to handle, more attractive and modern in appearance, and much more convenient to file or bind, to say nothing of the obvious advantage of being able to give an entire page to each of the various departments. Congratulations.

G. E. Marsh.

* * *

Restitution Herald: Enclosed you will find money order for $4.00. Three-fifty is tithing money given me by _____ to be used in the Lord's work. Fifty cents I added to it. We decided to us this money to put The Restitution Herald into four homes for six months each. (Names and addresses followed.)

Signed: _____

That's cooperation. Thanks!—F. A. Stilson.

* * *

A WORD OF PERSONAL APPRECIATION

In the death of our dearly loved brother, John E. Cross of Oregon, Illinois, I feel that the entire church has sustained a most serious loss. Through his association with The Restitution Publishing which is located in Division St., about two miles south of the city limits.

(Continued on page 45, column 1)

Texas Conference Boosters—Every Session.

Bro. Patrick will of course be there, and also Bro. Austin, two of the best, as you all know. Let us fill the church to overflowing.

Fred E. Hall, Sec'y.

1348 College Ave. N. E., Grand Rapids.

* * *

ANNUAL ALL-DAY MEETING

The annual all-day meeting of the church at Niagara Falls, New York, will be held Sunday, October 31. A cordial invitation is extended to brethren everywhere to attend this gathering. This would be a splendid opportunity to visit the "senic wonder of the world" and at the same time enjoy the union meeting of the brethren of Fonthill, Ontario, and Niagara Falls, New York. The program for the day will be as follows:

10:00 a. m., Sunday School; 11:00 a. m., Sermon, "Faith"; 3 p. m., Sermon, "Hope"; 7:30 p. m., Sermon, "Love".

Special music including several excellent solo numbers will add to the pleas-are a demonstration that such leadership cannot long exist in God's scheme of world-management. Solomon, out of his own experience in his search after wisdom, has left for us a clearly stated body of truths, observance of which are necessary to spiritual life. After all, it is not the leaders that count in our personal lives, but the truths which have been evolved through them. Some of Solomon's truths are found in this week's lesson.

I. The Beginning of Self-Control. Prov. 23:13, 14. During childhood is control inherent or must it come from without? Many people object to this scripture on the grounds that it justifies the brutal and unreasoning, angry use of the rod in child discipline. But any scripture must be given its balance by considering it in the light of other scriptures, and surely such interpretation as the above can not be put on these verses when we keep in mind the Scriptural teachings concerning love and mercy.

The context of these very verses goes on with a father's fine appeal to a son's reason and filial affection. We should keep in mind that "rod" stands for government and control external to the person himself, and that often the most effective government (outside of self-control) is measures in which the whip plays no part; and that effective government is never the rod used in anger and hatred, as it is so often used on weaker peoples, including children.

II. Applying the Rod. Verses 15-35. These verses record a fine example of applying the "rod", external government, to the end that internal government—self-control—may be accomplished.

Verses 15, 16. Analyze these verses to find the appeal to the affection between father and son. Note the use of the word "heart", laying emphasis on the emotions.

Verses 17, 18. What is the father's first appeal to his son that he may have wisdom in his heart? Last part of v. 17. Why is this a basic requirement of wisdom?

Verses 19-28. In what does wisdom consist according to v. 19? What is one of the right ways? Vs. 20, 21. Do these verses contain the idea of self-control and the yielding of the physical self as instruments of righteousness? What does failure to exercise this control and this yielding do to a person? Can one develop in mental and spiritual life in such a condition of drowsiness? Last part of v. 21.

What does the father set forth as an aid to the son's guidance of himself in the right way? Vs. 22, 23.

Verses 24-26 contain another appeal to filial affection. Does v. 26 sound like applying the rod in brutal anger, subjugating through fear? Is it not rather an admonition for the son to observe the father's ways in love and respect, and to use his own mind to seek wisdom and understanding? What kind of a father, only, can and will appeal to a son to observe his ways?

Against which of the excesses named in Gal. 5:19, 20 is the father admonishing in vs. 27, 28?

In vs. 29-35 the Father gives a rounded-out picture of the uncontrolled life. It is interesting to note that the drunkard is chosen as the shining example. The use of alcohol, or any other poison, for pleasure undermines every phase of self-control necessary to healthful living.

What are the physical, outward evidences of inner drunkenness? Do vs. 30-32 teach temperance in the use of alcohol, or any poison, for pleasure, or do they teach abstinence? What is the first effect of using such poisons for pleasure? Last part of v. 31. Another translation is "goeth down smoothly". What is the last effect? V. 32. Do we handle adders with temperance or abstinence?

What is the inner evidence of drunkenness? V. 33. What is the effect on the mental powers, common sense, and judgment? V. 34.

Is lack of self-control a force that increases of itself? Verse 35.

III. Prohibition and Self-Control. Prohibition is one phase of the rod, the external control of human beings. As an aid to inner self-control it is right, but we should bear in mind that it can not take the place of self-control, and that it can not of itself produce self-control in the individual or in the nation. At best, it can be only a temporary aid. That which is necessary to the accomplishment of self-control is just such teachings, examples and influences (first of which is fear of God) in the home, as we find depicted in to-day's lesson. Without this in the home all the prohibition and all other forms of external control must fail. It is this work from the home base and in individuals that distinguishes the Christ's kingdom as an institution of world salvation from all other institutions designed to save the world. The Christ works from the inside out with individuals. It is a slow process, but sure and eternal in its effects. Man's method is from the outside in, with large groups, at best accomplishing only restraint and only very temporary in its effects.

How widespread is the type of home relations depicted in Proverbs 23 in the homes under present-day national control?

FOR CLASS

Follow the line of thought in the study section.

IT WOULD be thought a hard government that should tax its people one-tenth part of their time, to be employed in its service. But Idleness taxes many of us much more, if we reckon all that is spent in absolute sloth, or doing nothing, with that which is spent in idle employments or amusements, that amount to nothing. Sloth, like rust, consumes faster than labor wears, while the used key is always bright, as Poor Richard says. But dost thou love life, then do not squander time, for that's the stuff life is made of, as Poor Richard says.—Benjamin Franklin (The Saying of Poor Richard.)

"DE GROWLIN' of some of some folks don't amount to nuthin'. Hit's like de thunder what makes all de fuss atter de lightnin' done got dar an' 'tended to de business."

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

The new Rockford, Illinois, Berean Class had sixteen present at its second meeting, twelve being regular members, with four visitors, and they had a very interesting lesson. The officers are taking hold of their work nicely, and we pray that the effort may mean much to all of them as time goes on.

* * * *

Berean work at the Salem Church, near Marshall, Illinois, has been probably the strongest factor in holding together and developing the work at that place. Special meetings are now in progress, and it is very encouraging to have such a fine group of young people always present ON TIME, to have them fill the choir seats without being asked, and take an active part in the meeting in every way. The training that comes from a well organized Berean Class means much to any church, and, incidentally, it means much to an evangelist who comes and tries to hold a meeting.

* * * *

It is also noticeable that the strongest support that the state conferences receive, and that the General Conference receives, comes from the places where the Berean work has been well organized. One little group that we know has, both financially and morally, put to shame many places of much larger membership in its support of the State and General Work. As Bereans they pay their dues regularly, and they make up special amounts in addition.

* * * *

How are you Illinois Bereans progressing with "Self-denial" month? As individuals and societies will you have nice amounts saved to send to the treasurer the first of November?

* * * *

The Rockford class, the other night, had up for discussion the question, "Will the Golden Rule operate successfully as a business principle in the commercial world of to-day?" Comments both pro and con were offered. If anyone would care to write some short remarks on this point we would be glad to publish them.

* * * *

And how about "Love your neighbor as yourself", and "Do good unto all men, specially to those of the household of faith." Is there a difference in the degree and kind of love one should bear for a brother or sister in the church, and that which he should hold for a neighbor in general? Some comments on this point will be gladly received, too.

* * * *

Send articles both long and short to the Berean Editor. Those which are too long to be used on this page will be placed elsewhere in The Herald. As Bereans we are anxious for the success of the Church work in general, and since The Restitution Herald is our church organ we are anxious to support it in every possible way, regardless of what page our articles may appear on. The Herald Editor is desirous of more articles for the paper in general, so come on, Bereans, brighten up your pens and your wits, and send in articles, long, short, or indifferent, and if we do not have room for them on the Berean page we will see that they go to boost the other pages of the paper. If the rest of the church won't properly support the paper with articles let us show them that the Bereans will. The Bereans have started and backed almost every successful move in the church for the past number of years, and we are still able and willing.

* * * *

There is nothing in the world that will develop one's interest and determination like opposition. If you want a person to do something just begin bucking and opposing, and every ounce of fiber and manhood in him will rise to accomplish the task. Many a young person goes wrong because of the wrong attitude of relatives and friends. Love will draw a person where force can never drive.

* * * *

Likewise meeting opposition to the truth is a good thing. It arouses a person to the defense and causes much study and thought. We have witnessed some striking instances of this recently. But the one who has been following the example of the ancient citizens of Berea and searing the Scriptures daily has a wonderful advantage.

* * * *

Why not surprise the whole class this week by learning your memory verse perfectly? You cannot imagine how handy these verses, well committed, will be to you in future years.

* * * *

Then, too, if you learn your verse each time someone else will get ashamed and learn his.

THOUGHTS FOR THINKERS

"THE DARKEST shadow across our path is our own shadow which falls inevitably when we turn our back to the light."

"PERSECUTION has been the common lot of many of God's faithful servants, and the sad part of the matter is that in many cases it originated with the so-called people of God themselves."

EASTERN WIT AND WISDOM

To HIDE one lie a thousand lies are wanted.

A loving disposition is a river without a ripple.

The elephant walks on, though all the dogs may bark.

Ants find their own way to the place where there is sugar cane.

OF COURSE MINISTER HAD TO HEED FLOCK'S OPINION

THE LATE ODAM WAGNALLS, the New York publisher, reproached a magazine editor one day for never printing translations in his magazine.

"Here are Anatole France and Knute Hansen and a dozen other wells of genius for you to draw from," he said. "Why don't you draw?"

"Because," said the editor coldly, "the public prefers native talent."

"You remind me," said Mr. Wagnalls, "of the country minister who never used the Lord's prayer."

"Why don't you use it, man?" a friend from the city asked.

"Well, you see, we don't need it," said the minister.

"A sublime prayer like that! And you don't need it? Come, now, even a chap as gifted as yourself can hardly equal a prayer like that, can he?"

"Ah—er—no," the minister simpered, "but my flock thinks otherwise."

A WORD OF PERSONAL APPRECIATION

(Continued from page 41)

Company, and with the work of the General Conference and National Bible Institution, he has come to be known to many brethren who have never enjoyed the privilege of meeting him face to face. Even these isolated ones have learned to regard the influence and judgment of Brother Cross, in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the church, highly. But it is we, who have known him personally for years, and who appreciate his services in the past fully, who feel his death the most keenly.

He is sleeping now. In the morning the Lord of Life shall call him and place upon his brow the laurel-wreath of eternal glory!

G. E. Marsh.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Geo. H. Holly; Ethel Critchfield; Ethel Davenport; Mary A. Williams; C. H. Belshaw; Ellen Riesener; F. A. Johnson; Dorothy Lyon; Mrs. F. T. Rogers; Mrs. Wm. Hadicke; J. L. Maggard; A. Seitz; Eld. A. R. Pitts; Leland Bernard; Verna Chaplin; Ruby Chaplin; W. E. Wharton; Sarah E. Goldsmith; C. B. Compton; Mrs. Roy Coleman; Mrs. Lillias Sweeny; Mrs. Mae Mick; Fred Doll; Mary Doll; Mrs. Paul Magnus; Mrs. Dora Morgan; Mrs. H. A. Gesin; Mrs. J. Limkelde; Mrs. P. T. Hollenback; C. E. Rutland; Mrs. P. W. Ogan;

WINCE FUND

Previously mentioned	$2532.16
Maybelle Hanson (Illinois)	15.00
Ruchie Alexander (Louisiana)	1.00
Total	$2548.16

HELPING FUND

Mrs. Wm. Hadicke	$2.00
------------------	--------

* * * *

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIOAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c.
 God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.
 The First Resurrection, 100 for $2.50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.
 A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Each

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate: .05
 Robison vs. Conner
 Earlier Life-Truth Exponents .15
 Will It Pay to Become a Christian? .25
 The Visitor, 212 pages .50
 The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages
 Illustrated. Suitable for Gift. .90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

Wall Mottoes Priced from 10c to 50c each
 Gospel in Song 40c; 45c; and 50c each
 Per 100, $30.00; $33.00; 40.00

IN OUR WORKSHOP

Doings at Headquarters

BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

HERE has been no response to the announcement repeated in The Herald in August and September that we were prepared to conduct a Bible Training Class, beginning October 5. We did not try to urge or even persuade different ones to enter this class. There were different reasons for this. One is that we have felt all along that we are not properly equipped to rightly conduct such a class. No one knows better than the writer the great disadvantages under which this class has worked in the past. Not only are we not yet properly equipped for this work, but the writer was unable to see how it would be possible to provide the equipment for this year. The announcement was made because others, who likewise knew of the circumstances, urged that it was the proper thing to do. The writer feels deeply that it will be far better for all concerned to advance other work already undertaken and plan on establishing this class next year with better preparation therefor. Effort will be made to further the work with those who are on the ground and who have been studying from the beginning.

* * * *

THE NEW HEATING SYSTEM

THE new instalation of heating in section 1 of the greenhouse was completed on October 13. The installation was made entirely by our regular employees at an expense of something over Three Hundred Dollars for material.

* * * *

This is an example of what was referred to on page 24, under title, "Five Years Old". This portion of the heating was in need of repair before we bought the property, therefore, the work now finished is mostly improvement, which has required added investment and which has increased our assets by at least the value of the materials purchased, and can not rightly be charged to operating expense. The value of the property has grown by this amount.

Now it is to take care of just such natural, and sometimes necessary growths that we earnestly ask for a regular and steady financial contribution, year after year. This contribution is also continually essential in order to finance correspondence, secretarial, office, and editorial labors which are not chargeable against other departments, and from which there is no income.

Let's hear from many who will undertake to contribute a certain small amount year after year.

* * * *

The third cutting of alfalfa has just been harvested the excessive rainfall during the past six weeks having made it impractical to cut sooner.

The print shop has been busier than usual for the last few weeks. Indeed, Brother McGraw has been on the road a number of days hunting up job printing. Not only have a number of jobs been secured, but figures are being quoted on several more that have been tendered. Extra effort is being made to increase the amount of commercial work in this department.

* * * *

We were just a little bit surprised a few days ago when it was found that just 147 subscribers to The Herald were more or less in arrears on their subscriptions. For two years past it has been the custom to mail notice to each subscriber at the time of the expiration of his subscription. This not only necessitated the expense of between Two and Three Dollars postage each month, but also the expense of the time required to send these notices. Then several have taken some offense because of this method. We are hoping that we can dispense with this item of expense and labor in the future.

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President, Oregon, Illinois
 L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
 Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
 L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois
 F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:12; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION

By Mrs. Edith Mann

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to thank you very much for publishing the article I wrote to you a few days ago. I also want Mr. Turner, whose views were published in Wednesday's paper, to know that I was very glad to see his article. It is just exactly what I was praying for. There are too many people in the world to-day who know so little of the wonderful truths taught us in the Bible. They are too ready to take for granted, that it is the truth they are hearing from many of our pulpits to-day, instead of searching the Scriptures themselves. God has given the most of us intelligence to rightly interpret the Scriptures if we will but use it. We read in 2 Tim. 3:16, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness". 2 Peter 1:21, "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." Do you not think that when Job said, "If I wait, the grave is mine house." that it was God talking through Job? And do you think God lies?

I believe you are mistaken if you thought I insinuated in my writing that the "soul" was in a conscious state after death, because I did not. In fact, I don't believe that we have a soul that departs from us at all and I have the Bible to prove it. Let us go back to Genesis 2:7, "The Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Man certainly was a lifeless soul then before God breathed into his nostrils, wasn't he? So I consider that you, Mr. Turner, are a living soul, and so am I. Do you really believe that there is a place of torment where the souls go? Some of them then that have been dead hundreds of years are going to get more torment than others, if your theory is correct. Would you take the worst enemy you have and put him in a place of torment and torment him forever and ever? By the way, they would have to have some life about them to realize their torment, and the Bible teaches "life" or "death". Rev. 20:14, "And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death." So if hell is the place of torment Jesus Christ is going to do away with it when He comes.

The word hell is translated from the Greek word "hades", and the Hebrew word "sheol", meaning the grave. Now let us see if Christ was not in hell. Acts 2:31, "He, seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that His soul was not left in hell, neither His flesh did see corruption."

What is a parable? and why did Jesus teach in par-

This article is a reply to "Why Continue?", page 21. Both articles were first published by the Commercial Review of Union City, Ind. The author's smiling way of replying to the one who attacked her previous statement deserves the attention of all, as do also her conclusions as to the Scriptural records.—Editor.

ables? Matt. 13:10, "And the disciples came, and said unto Him, Why speakest Thou unto them in parables? He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given."

In the parable of the sower, do we take that literally? Most assuredly not. It is plain to be seen that all of the parables were one thing said and something else meant. That is the definition. I do not know why people are so ready to take the parable of the rich man and Lazarus as literal. May I ask why did the rich man go to hell? The Bible does not say anything but that he was rich and fared sumptuously every day. If that be the case, then just because he was rich and fared sumptuously every day he was sent to a place of torment. But wait, I believe you said it was the soul that went, but it certainly was the "man" here. Has a soul eyes and a tongue? And I wonder how far some water on the tip of your finger would go in cooling a fellow's tongue? I believe I would call for the fire department if I were in a place of that kind. And there must be a way of communication if the rich man could lift up his eyes and behold Lazarus in Abraham's bosom. If a man is going to be condemned for being rich and fared sumptuously every day, I will wager that there are a lot of fellows in Portland and elsewhere who are going to be condemned. And must we be beggars and have sores and let the dogs lick us to get into Abraham's bosom? If we take that parable literally, then we must take all of them that way. And you students of the Bible know that a parable is not to be taken literally.

Now let us see if we cannot straighten things out. We will go back to Gen. 13:14, 15, 17. (After reading my quotations from 2 Tim. 3:16 you know I have a right to go to the Old Testament, for the New says so!) What do we find in Gen. 13? That the Lord God promised Abraham and his seed, this earth for an everlasting inheritance. You will see by reading Heb. 11 that Abraham never received it, but he died in faith believing that he would. Who are Abraham's seed? Gal. 3:27-29, "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

In the parable of the rich man and Lazarus the rich man represented the Jews; Lazarus, the Gentiles, had come for crumbs of truth (gospel) from the lips of Jesus. Rich man died and buried, i. e., Jews died nationally and were scattered or buried as a nation among other nations, but they are individually alive in their national grave. The beggar died, but was not buried, he simply died to his former condition. He was carried to Abraham's bosom, i. e., was elevated to a condition where he might partake of the promises made to Abraham.

All blessings which come to us through Christ were promised to Abraham. Gal. 3:27-29 (which I quoted before). We are no longer strangers to the promises. We are justified by faith in the promises made to Abraham. Rom. 5:1 and Gal. 3:24-29. Individually alive in their national grave the Jews are in torments; they are a hiss and a by-word. Abraham is the father of the Jewish nation. The cry of the Jew for relief since their destruction as a nation has been to the Gentiles. Impassable gulf—difference in faith between Jew and Gentile.

What does Paul say in 1 Cor. 15:12? "Now if Christ be preached that He rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?" Verse 13, "But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen". Verse 14, "And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." Verse 15, "Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God, because we have testified of God that He raised up Christ; whom He raised not up if so be that the dead rise not." Verse 16, "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised". (I am quoting Bible.)

Eccl. 9:3, "This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all: yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead." It seems to me that certainly this passage of Scripture and what Paul says in 1 Cor. 15 are linked closely together.

Rev. 20:5, 6, "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ and shall reign with Him a thousand years." If we have a soul that goes to heaven or some place, why a resurrection? Rev. 21:8, "But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death." If it is death, then it cannot be life. And you would have to have life to be tormented. Doesn't Christ say in Rev. 1:18, "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen, and have the keys of hell and of death"?

1 Thess. 4:16, "For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead (who? the dead!) in Christ shall rise first." (This is the first resurrection.)

Psa. 49:15, "But God will redeem my soul (What? Soul.) from the power of the grave." Ezek. 37:13 "And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves,

O My people, and brought you up out of your graves . . . and shall place you in your own land." Psa. 37:9, "For evil-doers shall be cut off: but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth." Verse 11, "But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Verse 18, "The Lord knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever." Verse 34, "Wait on the Lord, and keep His way, and He shall exalt thee to inherit the land; when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it." Verse 38, "But the transgressors shall be destroyed together; the end of the wicked shall be cut off." (Does "destroyed" mean eternal torment?)

Now as to the transfiguration on the Mount, that was simply a vision, just the same as Peter saw in Acts 10. Moses represented the law and Elias the prophets. The transfiguration was performed as more evidence that Jesus was the Son of God.

Up to the time of Christ's coming they had the teachings of the law and the prophets, but now God had confirmed His Son in their presence. "This is My beloved Son: hear Him." Acts 2:29, "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried and his sepulchre is with us unto this day." Verse 34, "For David is not ascended into the heavens". Doesn't that speak of David himself? It surely doesn't mean a part of him, for it says "David" and "he".

Now I have given you plain references in God's own Word whereby you can see that the "soul" goes to the grave, and you may point out dozens of places where you "think" it "shows" that the soul goes elsewhere, but I challenge anyone to find one place in the Bible that "says" so.

What kind of a being was Christ after His resurrection? Didn't He say, "Handle Me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see Me have"? And when we are resurrected we will be like Him. Phil. 3:21, "Who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body". I know the Scriptures say that "flesh and blood" cannot enter the kingdom of God, but Jesus says "flesh and bone". And the same flesh-and-bone Jesus that ascended into the heavens shall so come "in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven", Acts 1:11.

It is too bad I cannot quote all of the Bible, for we take it all. We do not add to, or take from.

May the Lord lead us into the ways of truth and righteousness, and when Jesus comes, may we all then have abundant entrance into His everlasting kingdom, is my prayer.

"TAIN'T"

*"Tain't what we have, but what we give;
Tain't where we are, but how we live;
Tain't what we do, but how we do it:
That makes this life worth goin' through it."*

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 26, 1926

NUMBER 4

THE INSPIRED BOOK

By Dorothy Magaw

AT the present time when evolutionists are subtly destroying the people's belief in God as the creator of man, as told in Genesis, and are substituting instead the theory of his having evolved, through aeons of time, from an infinitesimal speck of life which came from nobody-knows-where to his present condition of physique, emotional ability, intellect, and spiritual life, and when other equally destructive critics tell us that the Bible is no more inspired by God than any purely historical or chronological work, our minds sometimes become confused with conflicting lines of reason, and for the time being, we are in danger of losing our mental and spiritual equilibrium. But our minds and our hearts should not be troubled, for the whole question finally comes down to the one single question of authority.

What shall we take as the authority for our beliefs? Shall we accept as final the theories, the opinions, the unproved experiments and investigations of these non-Christian evolutionists, or shall we accept the Bible as our authority? If we can prove to our own minds and hearts that the Bible is the inspired Word of God, then we can accept without question the Bible's account of the origin of man, and consequently God's plan of salvation.

The study of the actual fulfillment of Biblical prophecy is the key that will unlock the door of doubt, and it is the most powerful weapon against unbelief and infidelity. There are many prophecies in the Old Testament which later were historically fulfilled. Among them are:

1. The prophecy of the sufferings of Christ, told in the twenty-second Psalm.

2. The prophecy concerning Christ's burial, resurrection and purpose of His death, found in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah.

3. The prophecy predicted about 200 years before the birth of Cyrus, found in the forty-fourth chapter of Isaiah, which named Cyrus as the Persian king through whom the return of the Jews from Babylon was to be accomplished.

4. The prophecy concerning the history of the scattered Jewish nation, its suffering, and tribulation, as found in the twenty-eighth chapter of Deuteronomy.

5. The prophecy foretelling the siege and capture of the city of Tyrus by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, found in the twenty-sixth chapter of Ezekiel.

6. The prophecy of the future kingdoms after Nebuchadnezzar's reign, as shown by the interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream, recorded in the second chapter of Daniel.

These are but a few of the literally fulfilled prophecies of the Bible. There are many more. When we stop to consider that all of these prophecies were written from 200 to 700 years before their actual fulfillment, we can not help but believe that they were the inspired Word of God, for there is no other known book that contains anything like the fulfilled prophecies which our own Bible contains.

Therefore, since we have proved the Bible to be authentic and God-inspired in the line of prophecy, we can do nothing but accept it wholly as the inspired word of God, including the account of the origin of the earth and of man as told in Genesis. (OVER)

Make Thy Way Mine

Make Thy way mine,
Father, hold Thou my hand;
The way is steep:
I cannot see the path my feet must keep,
I cannot tell, so dark the tangled way,
Where next to step. O stay:
Come close; take both my hands in Thine;
Make Thy way mine.

Lead me. I may not stay;
I must move on; but oh, the way!
I must be brave and go,
Step forward in the dark, nor know
If I shall reach the goal at all—
If I shall fall.

Take Thou my hand,
Take it! Thou knowest best
How I should go, and all the rest
I cannot, cannot see:
Lead me: I hold my hands to Thee:
I own no will but Thine;
Make Thy way mine.

—Author Unknown.

If we could but remember that the evolutionists as a whole have not a humble or reverent spirit, and that they also lack the peace of mind and the joyful heart, which is possessed by the Christian, perhaps we should not be so likely to sympathize with their theories and speculations.

The third verse of the eleventh chapter of Hebrews is one that we might well remember. "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear."

THE BIBLE

JUDGED by human standards, man is far better prepared to write a Bible now than he was when our Bible was written. The characters whose words and deeds are recorded in the Bible were members of a single race; they lived among the hills of Palestine in a territory scarcely larger than one of our own counties. They did not have printing presses and they lacked the learning of the schools; they had no great libraries to consult, no steamboats to carry them around the world and make them acquainted with the various centers of ancient civilization; they had no telegraph wires to bring them the news from the ends of the earth and no newspapers to spread before them each morning the doings of the day before. Science had not unlocked Nature's door and revealed the secrets of rocks below and stars above. From what a scantily supplied storehouse of knowledge they had to draw, compared with the unlimited wealth of information at man's command to-day!

And yet these Bible characters grappled with every problem that confronts mankind, from the creation of the world to eternal life beyond the tomb. They have given us a diagram of man's existence from the cradle to the grave, and they have set up sign posts at every dangerous point along the path.

Let the atheists and the materialists produce a better Bible than ours, if they can. Let them collect the best of their school to be found among the graduates of the universities—as many as they please and from every land. Let the members of this selected group travel where they will, consult such libraries as they like, and employ every modern means of swift communication. Let them glean in the fields of geology, botany, astronomy, biology and zoology, and then roam at will wherever science has opened a way; let them take advantage of all the progress in art and in literature, in oratory and in history—let them use to the full every instrumentality that is employed in modern civilization; and when they have exhausted every source, let them embody the results of their best intelligence in a book and offer it to the world as a substitute for this Bible of ours. Have they the confidence that the prophets of Baal had in their god? Will they try? If not, what excuse will they give?

Has man fallen from his high estate, so that we cannot rightfully expect so much of him now as nineteen centuries ago? Or does the Bible come to us from a source that is higher than man—which?

I would call you back to the Bible and to Christ. If I have succeeded in doing this, I have accomplished my purpose. But I shall be happier still if among you there is one young man whom I have been able to help, one who to-day has been brought to accept the Christ—one who has been made stronger to resist temptation and whose conception of life's possibilities has been enlarged—for one life, filled with the love of God and devoted to the welfare of his fellows, can bring incalculable blessings to a community, a state, a nation, or a world.—Evangelical Christian from an address at a Bible Conference by Mr. Wm. Jennings Bryan.

NEGLECT OF THE BIBLE

WE are indeed in "a dark place", but we have a light bright enough to guide us through it. "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed in your hearts as unto a light that shineth in a dark place" (2 Peter 1:19). We have indeed an enemy who is full of guile; but if we avail ourselves of our Bibles, "we are not ignorant of his devices" (2 Cor. 2:11).

Unfortunately for the whole world, the light of prophecy, given for the special purpose of guiding us through the present darkness, is sadly neglected by Christians, and we can safely infer to whose influence this neglect is due. The effects of the power of the deceptions that are in the world are not by any means confined to unbelievers. All human beings, so long as they are in "this present evil world," are to some extent under the influence of that power. The spiritually-blind man does not upon conversion receive clearness of vision, but is in a perturbed state wherein he "sees men as trees walking." The regenerated soul does not step out of gross darkness directly into the fully light of truth. On the contrary, the path of the justified man is rather "as the light of dawn, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day" (Prov. 4:18, R. V., margin). Hence the general neglect by Christians of the "more sure word of prophecy."

Satan does not lose his interest in a man when he is converted to God. On the contrary, it is after the new nature is given that the conflict begins (Rom. 8). Not that the regenerated man can ever fall into Satan's hands again, for none of the Good Shepherd's flock shall ever perish, nor shall any be plucked out of His hand (John 10:28); but the influence of the Christian upon the unbelieving world can be limited. Hence it is the desire of Satan to arrange compromises between the believer and the world, and so occupy the time of the former with the affairs of the latter that he shall exert no influence for the saving of souls, and have no time for the study of the Word. Neglect of the Bible, and particularly of prophecy, thus directly serves Satan's purposes; whereas all Scripture is profitable, and is given by God to the express end that the man of God should be "thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Tim. 3:16, 17).

Thus it is that, through the influence of the world upon all mankind and particularly because of the ascendancy which the world has been steadily gaining in the nominal and professing Church, the light of prophecy is neglected, and the above-quoted passage is treated as if it read, "we have a very uncertain word of prophecy, to which you do well to pay no attention whatever."

But God's people are waking up to the recognition of this neglect, and are beginning to realize the importance of studying that part of the Word which contains yet unfulfilled prophecy. This awakening is indeed one of the many and increasingly numerous signs which indicate the near approach of that long-expected time of the restitution of all things which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began (Acts 3:21). . . . In the power and light of His sure Word of prophecy it is possible, nay, it is easy, to withdraw our affection from the world and from the things that are in the world. In that light we may view with perfect tranquility the disintegration of all that is connected with this present visible order of things; for though "the world passeth away and the lust thereof," nevertheless we, who believe the Word of God, "look for new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness" (2 Peter 3:13). — From "The World and Its God," by Philip Mauro.

IS YOUR BUILT UPON A ROCK?

By T. C. Eggerking

THEREFORE, whosoever heareth these sayings of Mine, and doeth them, I will liken unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of Mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it."—Matt. 7:24-27.

So is the house of one who builds his house of faith upon that rock of salvation, that "stone which the builders rejected", Lu. 20:17, even Jesus the Christ. Those who build on that rock have a foundation that never fails. When trials and tribulations beat against the house; when the storm of adversity strikes it; when the flood of sorrow and suffering assails it and would sweep it away; then we can see the wisdom of a firm foundation. Although beset on every side with dangers, though the flesh lust exceedingly against the spirit, yet withal if our faith is built upon the true Christ, our foot is not moved.

Though the darkness comes and we do not see clearly the way of escape, "we are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed".—2 Cor. 4:8, 9.

"Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me", Psa. 23:4, and we begin to realize the significance of the twenty-third Psalm, where it is written, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me," and "If God be for us, who can be against us?"—Rom. 8:31. We see in a measure that the "sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us", Rom. 8:18. Then, too, we are assured that "neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord", Rom. 8:38, 39.

So, how can a house fall if built upon a foundation that never fails? It is anchored to one that "dieth no more", Rom. 6:9; one who passed through all the trials and tribulations that can assail flesh; one who suffered manifold the pain we go through and therefore understandeth our frame.

"There is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus", 1 Tim. 2:5, and we know He said that "this is the Father's will which hath sent Me, that of all which He hath given Me, I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. And this is the will of Him that sent Me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on Him, may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day."—John 6:39, 40. So we too can "count it all joy", James 1:2, when we are permitted to "suffer with Him, that we may be also glorified together. For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."—Rom. 8:17, 18. "We shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is", 1 John 3:2, and no longer will we be "children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness". Eph. 4:14, but will have life in ourselves, even as He has life in Himself. Sorrow, pain and tribulation we will not know, death shall be "swallowed up in victory". 1 Cor. 15:54, and we can indeed rejoice and sing, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

Life eternal, without end, and life in abundance is the portion of those who answer the call when the "Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."—1 Thess. 4:16, 17.

When we have that rock as our foundation, how futile for man to ridicule us, to attempt to tear down our house of faith; though he beset us with persecutions, though he steal our goods, yet he shall not prevail, for "vengeance is Mine; I will repay, saith the Lord", Rom. 12:19; and, though the wicked one does seem to flourish, yet we know that the "Lord shall laugh at him; for He seeth that his day is coming".—Psa. 37:15. They shall not prevail against a child of God, I say, for One who is indeed almighty "disappointeth the devices of the crafty, so that their hands cannot perform their enterprise. He taketh the wise in their own craftiness."—Job 5:12, 13. They go to the dust and rise no more. "He that diggeth a pit shall fall into it; and whoso breaketh a hedge, a serpent shall bite him. Whoso removeth stones shall be hurt therewith; and he that cleaveth wood shall be endangered thereby."—Eccl. 10:8, 9.

Though David was surrounded with enemies, yet the Lord prepared a "table before" him, Psa. 23, in their presence. Though Paul was persecuted and, as he says in 2 Cor. 11:24-28: "Of the Jews five times receive I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep, in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils of mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils among false brethren; in weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches", yet we see that the combined efforts of a nation were not sufficient to tear down his house of faith.

We find that shortly before he was "ready to be offered", 2 Tim. 4:6, and the time of his departure was at hand, he said, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I HAVE KEPT THE FAITH; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing."—2 Tim. 4:7-8. Christ, the Rock upon which Paul built his house, was a foundation that no man could move.

So, we who worship the true God shall be held firm. "He will not suffer thy foot to be moved, Psa. 121, (Is not the foot the "foundation" of man?); and, ". . . God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."—1 Cor. 10:13. "The LORD is thy keeper; the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night."—Psa. 121:5, 6.

Not so is the house built upon the sand—not so is the house that is built upon earthly desires, wealth or the things of the present life. While all is apparently well with that man in his prosperity, while he feels strong, while his house glitters with the luxuries of the world, though he lack nothing and is might within himself—I say, though he may be surrounded by friends innumerable, though his house be built of pure gold—yet it shall fall. For when the evil days come, when reverses strike him, he shall be as a ship without a rudder. When the flood of sorrow hits him, his house shall fall, for it is built upon the sands. He has not sought God but has rested in his own puny strength, vainly puffed up in his own fleshly mind, putting his trust in the deceitfulness of riches which turn to ashes in his hands when the winds blow and beat "against that house". "A horse is a vain thing for safety; neither shall he deliver any by his great strength", Psa. 33:17; and, "There is no king saved by the multitude of a host: a mighty man is not delivered by much strength."—Psa. 33:16. Though we saw him ". . . spreading himself like a green bay tree, yet he passed away, and lo, he WAS NOT; yea, I sought him, but he could not be found."—Psa. 37:35-36. We know that his end was destruction and that his glory did not "descend after him". Psa. 49:17.

"He that trusteth in his riches shall fall", Prov. 11:28, so place not your trust in wealth; "for riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven".—Prov. 23:5. Seek not to build your house upon the shifting sands of other men's fancies; seek not glory and honor of man; mould not your house upon the sand because many other mansions are established thereon. Build not your house upon the sand because the multitude erect their dwellings thereon. Though your house be built upon a rock in the wilderness, though you have no neighbors, yet I know that you are safer than he who liveth in an immense structure, in a thickly populated section, having companions by the score, for his house shall not stand—it has no foundation.

And although "strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life", Matt. 7:14, yet the Truth is simple. We come to Him with a contrite heart and humble spirit, we seek him in sincerity and in truth, we get rid of a lot of preconceived ideas, learn who the true God is, learn a little of His plan, the REASON and necessity of a perfect sacrifice, we believe in our hearts and confess with our mouths that Jesus is the Son of God; we are baptized and begin to build our house of faith upon that Rock of Salvation that cannot be moved. We learn, our strength increases, wisdom, understanding and our love of the true God increases; we are raised in a "newness of life", Rom. 6:4, "behold, all things are become new", 2 Cor. 5:17. The glitter of the world and the things therein fade and the peace of God, better felt than explained, settles upon us. Our eye becomes more and more single, our treasure is above instead of below; we learn patience, and terrors which beset the average one are not with us. Our house is built upon a rock and though the winds blow and the floods come, it shall not fall; for it is established upon that Rock of Salvation which cannot be moved, Jesus the Christ, the Son of the Living God, now on the right hand of God awaiting the time when He shall again return and gather unto Himself those that the Father gave Him.

"I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto Myself; that where I am there ye may be also."—John 14:2-3. "For yet a little while, and He that shall come will come, and will not tarry", Heb. 10:37. "Surely I come quickly", Rev. 22:20. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

The Waiting Ones

*There are some among the blessed
Waiting, watching every day,
Peering through the misty shadows
To the clear and lighted way;
Listening in the dusky twilight,
Waiting even in the night,
'Mid the toil and heat of noonday
Bending forward to the light.*

*And they speak in eager whispers—
"Can we see His chariot yet?"
"Will the Master come this evening?"
"Will the heavenly Friend forget?"
So they stand, these earnest servants,
Waiting, watching evermore,
For the clouds to part asunder,
And reveal the open door.*

*There are dark-browed ones among them,
Looking through their eyes of night;
There are fair-haired little children
Peering up with faces bright;
There are aged pilgrims, longing
For the Master's spoken word;
There are some in every country
Waiting, watching for the Lord.*

*But they take their daily duties,
And perform them as for Him;
And they read His loving message
When their eyes are tired and dim.
They are living lives of blessing—
Lives of love for His dear sake,
While they wait with eager longing
For the morn of joy to break.*

*He will come, and will not tarry;
He will fold them to His breast;
He will make His watchers happy
In a calm and holy rest;
He will give them satisfaction
For their days of waiting here;
He will fill them with joy unceasing
When the Master shall appear.*

—Selected.

THE RESURRECTION LIFE

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

ONE of God's children has said, and surely it is true, that Christ is the cure for all the ills of this world. Through the first Adam, a curse came upon all mankind; through the second Adam a cure is offered. Christ is not only our Savior but our Life-giver and Healer. In Him the Christian lives, moves and has his being; for he should be rooted and grounded in the faith once for all delivered to the saints. The Christian life is a growth, and just as the little child's life would be retarded by the lack of food, so the Christian's spiritual life is injured if he does not feed upon the Bread of Life. David said, "In Thy word do I meditate day and night." This is what we should do.

We find in Rom. 1:17 and again in Gal. 3:11, "the just shall live by faith". We are to obtain our physical life and strength by looking to God constantly for it. There must be a constant abiding faith if we wish to be of service to God, and if we wish to be ready when He comes. This is the resurrection life of Jesus Christ abiding within us, which we must have if we belong to the church spoken of in Heb. 12:23. We must be in Christ and He must be in us. By Christ's presence within us He accomplishes in our lives what we can not do ourselves. He is our life now. Col. 3:4. He quickens us. Rom. 8:11. And we must have this life if we would be like Him when He comes.

God alone can accomplish this work of redemption for the blessed Book says, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it."—Psa. 127:1.

Christ alone has immortality, 1 Tim. 6:16. We are redeemed by His precious blood now, but when He comes, we shall be like Him. Then we also shall have immortality. Now we are mortal beings, subject to death, but kept alive spiritually by strength from Him daily.

There are many ways by which we may prove that we are His children. A good proof is found in Heb. 3:6, where we learn that if we rejoice in the hope of seeing Christ, and if we continue to abide in Him, we shall belong to His household when He comes. Blessed assurance—a foretaste of glory divine! We are being purified through this hope by the Spirit's work within us now, 1 John 3:3, and we shall escape the corruption that is already here on the earth. 2 Peter 1:4; Luke 21:36.

But before we are enabled to obtain this most precious life from the Life-giver, and before permanent peace can be established in the human heart, there must have been a relationship established between God and the individual, through which we know we are His children. Until that time, every living soul, no matter how royal his blood may be, belongs to the first Adam, and is still under the curse.

Jesus said when here on earth, that they (the unbelieving ones) would die in their sins, unless they believed that He was the ever-existing One. There is no other way into the kingdom of heaven. And when Christ has opened the gate we shall find that "the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever." Isa. 32:17.

Does your Sunday School want quarterlies of our own publishing? Answer before November 6. See page 62.

If this relationship is maintained there will be a constant growth, and the word of God becomes a revelation to us as we meditate upon it day by day. "The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."—Prov. 4:18.

Nothing but a living Christ within can be our hope of glory. Everything else will go down in the coming judgment, but if we are secure in the Rock of Ages, our anchor will hold fast through the storm.

Dear reader, are you acquainted with the Rock of Ages, whom to know, John 17:3, is life eternal? In the words of Charlotte Murray:

*"Do you know Him, not His doctrines,
Not His wisdom, love and power,
But Himself, the Friend unfailing
In afflictions' darkest hour?
Is He with you as a Person,
Not a presence, vague, unreal,
But a living, loving Savior,
Who our every need doth fill?"*

JOHN NEWTON

JOHN NEWTON was a bad boy who ran away to sea, and finally to Africa in order that, to quote his own words: "I might be free to sin." Sold at last to a negress, herself a slave, he was nearly starved by his brutal owner till he actually lived on the crumbs that fell from her table, and raw yams that he dug by stealth at night. His clothing was reduced to a single shirt, which he washed in the ocean and hung to dry while he hid among the trees. But even then no thought of a better life crossed his mind. Escaping from this slavery, he mingled with the natives and accepted their base life and horrid superstitions. No civilized man ever sank much lower, but the power of Jesus laid hold of him and made him first a sea captain and then a clergyman of the Church of England. It was this man who wrote such familiar hymns as: "Safely Through Another Week", "Come, My Soul, Thy Suit Prepare", "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken, Zion City of Our God", and others indicative of his own experience: "Amazing Grace, How Sweet the Sound, That Saved a Wretch Like Me", "One There Is Above All Others, Well Deserves the Name of Friend", "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds in a Believer's Ear". If ever you are near the Bank of England, in the old city of London, go a block to Newton's church, St. Mary Woolnooth, and there read the epitaph he wrote for himself:

Sacred to the memory of John Newton, once a libertine and blasphemer and slave of slaves in Africa, but renewed, purified, pardoned, and appointed to preach that Gospel which he once labored to destroy.—Bible Magazine.

YOUR PLACE

By Auntie Wince

*"Just where you stand in the conflict,
There is your place.
Just where you think you are useless,
Hide not your face.
God placed you there for a purpose,
Whate'er it may be;
Think He has chosen you for it
And work loyally."*

PRETTY well said, Mr. Poet, whoever you are. We are so apt to think we could do so much more and better work if we could only stand in someone else's shoes. But who knows if God does not? The likelihood is, we would not do half as much or as well. Let the mason try mauling rails for a single day; or the type-setter, sawing wood; or the school teacher, mowing hay in the marsh. They would find it tiresome business. We can learn and practice different trades, but a good printer is not made into a skillful carpenter in a minute, nor vice versa. Neither can a fine writer become an accomplished artisan in a day. Keep your place. Do not pretend to be what you are not.

You cannot sing if you have never learned, nor make public speeches if you have had no training. Keep your place. I do not mean that you shall not climb. It is your business to go up; but not to turn aside, or to sit down. Keep on climbing. There is plenty of room higher up. The higher up, the more room. Go as high as you can, and all the while you are climbing be as helpful as you can.

*We were not made to walk alone:
We ourselves are braced by others.
We firmer stand in icy roads,
When hands are closely clasped by brothers.*

In all good works join forces, a soldier cannot do much single handed. It is hard to break a solid rank of men. They support each other. Rome knows this only too well. She fights against Protestantism en masse—and would win her battle were not God in the battle against her. Do not faint: never, never give up the struggle. We have not yet done fighting for our faith. There are still places where we would have to suffer and die for our faith did not the government of the country protect us. Faith is dearer that costs us something. It does not cost us much in either England or America. We do not have to die or give up our faith, but instead, are even more highly esteemed because we are Christians.

We wonder how it would be if death stared us in the face? Would we die sooner than give up? I trust so, for to give up would be to lose all, forever.

Keep your place whatever of trial or suffering may come. The end is near. Soon, very soon, Jesus will be here. It may be to-morrow. Be ready.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—October 31—Titus 1	Mem. V. 5
Monday—November 1—Titus 2	Mem. V. 12
Tuesday—November 2—Titus 3	Mem. V. 5
Wednesday—November 3—Philemon	Mem. V. 10
Thursday—November 4—Heb. 1	Mem. V. 14
Friday—November 5—Heb. 2	Mem. V. 10
Saturday—November 6—Heb. 3	Mem. V. 6

THE majestic and sabbatic style of this epistle rivets one's attention to its marvelous instructions. Granting that Paul was the author of this letter, which authorship, by the way, is questioned by many capable students, one cannot but feel after feasting upon the many beautiful thoughts contained in this epistle that the apostle did indeed "have great heaviness and continual sorrow" in his heart, Rom. 9:1-3, for these his brethren and kinsmen in the flesh.

God will surely have mercy upon the Hebrews. Think of their intensive training which for centuries since the day of their marvelous experiences in Egypt, in the wilderness and in their settlement of the promised land, had not only been literally woven into the warp and woof of their every individual life, but had been riveted into their hearts and intellects in the plastic age of every new-born generation for fifteen centuries. Moses and the law was the one only religious training which mechanically entwined their every life around Jehovah their God. Angels spoke for God to Moses, 2:2, see also Acts 7:53. Moses and Aaron were the human messengers of God to them. The Aaronic priesthood was planted firmly in their heart's embrace through works of the most inexplicable kind, excepting as taken by faith. Prophets inspired with the mind of God Himself had confirmed Moses and the law with "Thus saith the Lord", throughout Israel's every national experience. And now they are brought face to face with the declaration that one greater than Moses is here; that a priesthood superior to the Aaronic has come to be established; that a new covenant must supersede the one in which they, for generations, had been so thoroughly schooled. On top of all this they had come to thoroughly claim the assurance of God that they were His own particular, peculiar people above all people. How could a people thus schooled, thus trained, thus experienced, after frequent punishments, both national and individual, for deviations,—how, I say, could a people of this history lightly, readily, flippantly drop the old and seize the new? Surely, there is more or less of religious consistency in the attitude taken by that people.

Nor had the God of love o'erlooked all this. God had borne witness, Heb. 2:4, "with signs, and wonders, and divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost", that the words spoken by Jesus and confirmed unto the Hebrews by His followers were God-given words unveiling God's plans for the new day that was dawning, not over Israel only but over all the world.

And so with great compassion and tender yearnings the writer in the first and second chapters undertakes to convincingly reveal that Jesus is greater than angels, their law-giver, or their high priest. And in the epistle he tenderly yet firmly admonishes his Hebrew Christian brethren to firmness and continuity of faith toward the Christ.

Majestically the apostle introduces the chapter by that word which means more than all other words, of whatever language, "God". God had spoken to the human race in times past in many different ways, in many different times. Nothing strange that he should choose yet a different way in this their present time to speak new things to man known as yet only to the infinite wisdom of the Creator. Therefore, with this analysis the apostle continues by saying that God "hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son". Startling as the statement might be, incredulous as they might consider it, nevertheless, the apostle's introduction is wonderfully strong and beautifully tender. In one brief sweep of thought the third verse declares something of the glory and greatness and power of that Son as well as assuring that all our sins were purged by Him, after which the God of love and power had seated Him "on the right hand of the Majesty on high". The latter clearly revealed that He was made "much better than the angels".

That this is all in harmony with the teachings of the law and the prophets, Paul next cites numerous passages from various Old Testament writers showing how Jehovah had in His prophetic announcements distinguished between the angels and His Son, always placing His Son, the Messiah of Israel, above the angels.

Chapter two is introduced by the argument that if the word given of God through angels was steadfast, "and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward", then the word that the Father is now speaking through His Son, 1:2, must be of even higher moment and concern. Therefore, "How shall we escape if we neglect"? He then recalls to their mind how that God had borne witness as to the authenticity of these words with signs, and wonders, and such like, and then moves naturally to the point that God never placed the world to come in subjection to angels; rather this future age was prophetically declared to be for the Messiah who was Jesus.

In chapter three he introduces the high priests of the old and of the new. Never does he belittle the works and words of God as manifested in those former days, but, after giving full and thorough value to all that God had ev-

(Continued on page 64, column 2)

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAFLET

IN CHANGING the form of THE HERALD October 5 it became necessary to change the form of The Sunday School Leaflet. The Leaflet of November 8 is thought to be of too large page. Therefore the Sunday School Lesson in this Herald is printed in form so as to make the Sunday School Leaflet of better size. See page 62.

* * * *

OUR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Do you realize, dear brother, that the Christian of tomorrow is the child of to-day?

Do you realize that the shaping of the child life for or against Christianity is very largely in the hands of those who handle the child during the first few years of its life?

Do you realize that the Sunday School, speaking generally, is by far the largest factor in all organized religious activity for bringing the child unto recognition of Christian principles? The home comes first; but after that is not the Sunday School next?

The writer believes that the assumptions suggested in the foregoing questions are absolutely true. He believes that much more intensive effort should be directed toward the education of the child. He further believes that the adults who devote themselves to this effort find themselves advancing in Christian thought and action much more rapidly than do those who take little or no responsibility in church work. Action produces benefit to the actor.

In looking back over thirty years of pastoral work, he is absolutely sure that the greatest growth in church membership has come through the application of effort by way of the Sunday School.

With these things in mind the writer feels very earnestly that the church should concentrate in a united effort to strengthen morally and spiritually every effort with the youth of our homes. He believes that the Sunday School is, to date, the best system known by which to render this effort.

* * * *

IN

THE WORD "by" in the phrases, Heb. 1:1, 2, "by the prophets" and "by His Son", means vastly more than by, in the sense of agency. The word literally is "in" with the sense that God—in His mind, thought, word—was in the prophets, and in His Son. Thus He spoke in

"the prophets", and in "His Son". Thus they of old and we heard and hear God's own very words.

* * * *

HOW SHALL WE ESCAPE?

"How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?"—Heb. 2:3.

THE APOSTLE has been comparing the position of the angels in the economy of God with that of Christ. He has shown how great is Christ's exaltation in comparison with that of angels. And yet God has been faithful to His every word uttered by His angelic servants; and every transgression and disobedience of that word—especially by Israel—has received just recompense.

If this be true of His word spoken in His lesser servants, how much more surely is it true of His word spoken in Christ His exalted Son!

And is not the same eternal truth equally vital to the Gentile of the twentieth century as it was to the Jew of the first century? It is Christ by whom He hath purposed the fullness of all things.

Is the earth to resound with the glory of the Lord? It shall be realized in and through Christ—His Son—in whom He hath spoken to us "in these last days".

Is man to be thrilled with righteousness that shall cover the earth? It shall result from the patient, loving, forgiving service of Him unto whom all power in heaven and in earth is given.

Is there to be a firstfruit of mankind garnered for particular presentation unto God in the Holy of Holies? It shall be called and selected in Christ Jesus, the High Priest of that Holiest chamber of His Father's future abode with men.

Looking unto all this unspeakable consummation, the Father, in due time, spoke unto us through His Son, declaring a new covenant through Him, the new Mediator. This new covenant, equally with the old, is filled with love's promises, revelations, exhortations, warnings, reproofs,—with the tenderings of unthinkable rewards for true-hearted faith and with the assurances of certain chastenings and severance for opposition or indifferent negligence.

There is none other unto whom to turn. God has appointed Him over all mankind and over all things. He is the supreme One, who shall judge all—"the world"—in righteousness.

How then, "shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

We are glad to know that Bro. Haney is recovering his health.

* * *

Bro. J. W. Williams will be at Waterloo, Iowa, on Sunday, November 7, and at Hillisburg, Indiana, on Wednesday and Thursday, November 10 and 11.

* * *

Sr. Wm. Hadickie has returned from Los Angeles, California, where she went last May to doctor with a specialist. She received no benefit while there. Her physical condition remains the same. She is again located at her home, 201 North C Street, Arkansas City, Kansas. She would be pleased to hear from those of like precious faith.

* * *

The Sunday School at Arkansas City consists of 25 members. We have an average attendance of 18. The Berean Outlines are used by the adult and junior classes. We meet at the home of Bro. A. J. Chaplin each Sunday at 10:00 a. m. If anyone of like precious faith is in Arkansas City over Sunday an invitation is extended to you to meet with us for worship at 702 N. B St.

* * *

The recent flood at Arkansas City, Kan., rendered many people temporarily homeless. Both the Arkansas River and Walnut river flooded the lowland and those living near either river had to abandon their homes. Among them were Baker and Fisk families of our brotherhood, the third time in three years. So they have decided to stay on higher ground and will have their houses moved to more safe locations.

* * *

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God in Minnesota met on Friday evening, October 1, with the church at Bergen. Elder T. A. Drinkard of Eden Valley delivered the opening sermon. On Saturday morning and afternoon Elder Drinkard conducted some very good Bible study lessons. Elder Clyde Randall of Mora preached Saturday evening.

The Sunday morning love-feast, which was led by Sr. Savage, was followed by a sermon by Eld. Jas. Martin. Bro. Randall preached in the afternoon, this being the final service of the conference.

On account of the rainy weather that has prevailed for the past month, putting the work back, many were unable to attend, so the number of visiting delegates was smaller than usual, but those present received much good from the services.

Mae Randall, Conf. Sec.

LET THE SUN SHINE UPON THE "SHUT-INS"

Mrs. (Sr.) N. R. Wilding, 3350 M St., Lincoln, Nebraska, was hurt in an auto accident 2 years ago, since when she has been a shut-in—bed-fast most of the time. November 15 is the date of her 77th birthday anniversary. Let's flood her room with friendship's sunshine—

(Continued on page 61)

THE CHURCH OF GOD AT BLAIR NEBRASKA

It is located on West Washington St., 3 blocks from the main business block of the city. It was purchased from the Presbyterians in the early fall of 1925. There is here a present membership of 39. The church lost 2 members through death during the last year, Sr. Wright and Sr. Appleby, both of Kennard, Nebraska.

Sunday School is at 10 o'clock every Sunday morning and Bible Study every Wednesday evening at 7:30. We have preaching only when one of our evangelists stops over for a few days with us.

The building is paid for. There are yet many things to be done in the way of repairs. Some new steps are needed and we are at present using mostly borrowed seats.

Many of our members live a number of miles away and it is impossible for them to come every Sunday, so our average attendance at Sunday School is about 15 and our Bible Study attendance is only 7 or 8.

Anyone visiting in our city or passing through, will be very welcome to meet with us for worship. We have 2 very able teachers, Bro. M. D. Newell and Sr. Carrie Free, and have some very good and interesting lessons.

Mrs. Birdie Krogh, Secretary of local Ladies Aid.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

BY DAISY NOKES

THE FALL OF JERICHO

By Daisy Nokes

BEFORE the people of Israel could enter the promised land they had to cross the river Jordan. They had no boats and there were no bridges.

Some said, "I don't believe we can get across." Those that loved God answered, "The Lord is with us, so we need not be afraid. God will make a way. God told Joshua what to do.

Twelve white-robed priests carried the ark, or box which held the most holy things, to the edge of the river. Just as soon as their feet touched the water, the river parted making a path for them to walk on the firm, dry ground. Then Joshua said, "Come on, take your tents, goods, children and all, for God is holding back the river until His people, the children of Israel, have gone over. The priests with the ark will stand in the middle of the river till all have crossed. Then they will also come carrying the holy ark of God."

This the people did. I think that they thanked God and were so happy to know that their God was so great that even the big river would obey Him.

They were now in the Promised Land, the land that God long before promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob for an everlasting possession. Abraham never even set his foot upon the land, but when Jesus comes again they are to be resurrected, and made to live again, and will then dwell in that beautiful country for ever.

Soon they came to Jericho, a city with a high wall around it. Here again God told Joshua what to do. Wicked people lived in the city. They felt very safe with their high walls, and tightly closed gates. Some climbed up onto the walls and watched the Israelites.

Joshua had the men form in line and march around the city once each day for six days. First came the soldiers blowing horns, then seven priests dressed in beautiful robes carrying the pretty ark, then more soldiers and last the rest of the company, marching quietly. Only the shrill music of the trumpets was heard. Don't you think the people in the city must have thought this very strange?

Everything was done exactly as God told them to do and on the seventh day God gave them victory. They arose early and instead of once marching around the city, they went around it seven times. Nothing happened until the last or seventh time around, when the priests blew with the trumpets a loud, shrill blast and Joshua said, "Shout, for the Lord hath given you the city."

So the Israelites gave a great shout and God caused the walls of that great city to fall down flat so that they easily won the victory. Jericho was the firstfruits so all that was in it was to be given wholly to Jehovah.

DEAR CHILDREN: One mother writes me that her little nine year old boy enjoys the Bible Stories and wants a J.I.M. (Jesus Is Mine) pin, not only one for himself, but one for his boy chum. When mothers teach early the story of our Savior and His coming kingdom on earth, it brings out the love in the children's hearts and they want their chums and playmates to know the good news. Are you telling others? I hope this mother will have her little boy try for one of the prizes by answering the little Hindu boy's question. Just answer in your own words as you would if some child told you that Jesus was only a teacher like some other men. Children whose mothers don't search the Scriptures are being misled. When such children are near you will you give them a stone when they ask for bread? Let us hear from all the J.I.M. girls and boys.

"IF I ONLY HAD THE TIME"

SOME boys will pick up a good education, says Success, in the odds and ends of time, which others carelessly throw away, as one man saves a fortune by small economies which others disdain to practice. What young man is too busy to get an hour a day for self-improvement?

You will never "find" time for anything. If you want time, you must take it.

If a genius like Gladstone carried a little book in his pocket lest an unexpected moment should slip from his grasp, what should we, of common abilities, resort to to save the precious moments from oblivion?

"Nothing is worse for those who have business than the visits of those who have none," was the motto of a Scottish editor.

Drive the minutes, or they will drive you. Success in life is what Garfield called a question of "margins". Tell me how a young man uses the little, ragged edges of time while waiting for meals or tardy appointments, after his day's work is done, or evening—what opportunities!—and I will tell you what that man's success will be. One can usually tell by his manner, the direction of the wrinkles in his forehead, the expression of his eyes, whether he has been in the habit of using his time to good advantage or not.

"The most valuable of all possessions is time: life itself is measured by it." The man who loses no time doubles his life. Wasting time is wasting life. Some squander time, some invest it, some kill it. The precious half-hour a day which many of us throw away, rightly used, would save us from the ignorance which mortifies us, the narrowness and pettiness which always attend exclusive application to our calling.

Four things come not back—the spoken word, the sped arrow, the past life, and neglected opportunity. —Success.

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

THE FALL OF JERICHO

LESSON 6 NOV. 7, 1926
 LESSON TEXT: JOSH. 6:12-20
 RESPONSIVE READING: PSA. 66
 JOSHUA 6:8-16, 20

* * *

Golden Text: This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. —1 John 5:4.

Memory Verse: Isaiah 41:13.

* * *

FOR STUDY

Review: Week before last we left the people of Israel under their new leader, about to enter the promised land. Recall the outstanding characteristics of this new leadership.

The New Lesson: In this week's lesson we come to one of the high lights in Israel's national development. For many months after leaving Egypt Israel was put through certain events that depicted to her her scant realization of the power of the God whom she worshiped, her destitution of faith in that power, and her need of that power. These events found their climax, and the picture was fully painted in all its poverty of faith, when the children of Israel responded to the majority report of the spies and clamored to return to Egyptian bondage. Then followed the forty years of faith-growth in the wilderness, which reaches its climax in to-day's lesson, The Fall of Jericho, a test which reveals to Israel that God was able to accomplish in her what He had set out to do, namely, develop her into a people of faith through whom He would overcome the Jerichos of all the world. The fall of Jericho also brings Israel's faith to the climax of its development, for faith develops even as it is being tested. The more keen the test the higher is the point of development reached.

In order to get a good background for the lesson, we shall sketch through Joshua 2, 3 and 4.

I. Rahab and the Spies. Joshua 2. Read the chapter for the points of chief interest to our lesson:

(1) A spying out of the land that sees not the enemy as giants and the children of Israel as grasshoppers, but the enemy does "faint because of us."

(2) One from the lower strata of human society perceiving the forward march of Israel's God in resistless power, and showing willingness to be swept within its saving current. (This is no justification of the immorality of the ignorant lawless. It merely depicts this class perceiving God's power through Israel, and submitting to Him as the one God of the universe. Rahab, the harlot, did this much more easily than Israel's most law-abiding citizen. Paul had to be struck with blindness before he received this spiritual insight. The lesson for us is this: As lawfulness is developed in our lives, through environments and through the direct interposition of God's hand, let us not lose that spiritual insight which recognizes God's power in that development, and God as the God of the universe.)

(3) A third point in the story is the scarlet cord. Of what may it be the symbol? For what two classes was it the means of salvation from Jericho's fall?

II. Crossing the Jordan. Joshua 3 and 4. Note the prominence of the Ark in this event. Why was it given such prominence? How was the influence of the event preserved for future generations? Why was Israel's crossing the Jordan managed in this way? 3:10. Israel, with all her wealth of experience, had not yet become fully conscious of the presence of the living God in her midst. God graciously administered another lesson. We, when our weak efforts to preach and live the gospel seemingly fail to bring results in people's lives, grow discouraged and pessimistic. Of course we have much more reason to grow impatient than God has. Our nerves are much more sensitive to spiritual stupidity than are God's. We have such abounding faith and goodness that the lack of it in others grates like a saw. We note, however, that Jesus, in the face of rebuff and failure, kept in close and sympathetic touch with those who needed faith and goodness because they lacked it. But then, Jesus claimed no goodness for Himself. Perhaps that is the secret of the difference between Him and us, that makes us tend to draw our skirts around us and say, "What's the use?"

III. The Fall of Jericho. Joshua 6: 12-20. Read the story carefully. Note the continued prominence of the Ark. Show that the Ark is symbolical of God's social law for man as it centers in and radiates from the Christ. Describe the process by which God used His people, following the Ark, to overthrow Jericho. Were the leaders military or religious leaders? Try to put yourself in the place of the people of Israel as they marched around the city knowing that they were being watched by the great military men of the city. Do you think that during the whole of the seven days your thoughts would be entirely thoughts of faith? What active part, besides walking, were the people permitted to take? v. 16. Was this "shout" the means of throwing down the wall, or was it an expression of joy based on faith that God would throw down the walls? Note the language, "Shout, for the Lord hath given you the city", and that the shout came before the downfall. Was this test a keener test of faith than the command to go forward and fight would have been? Why?

"Accursed to the Lord", v. 17. Another version has it, "devoted to the Lord". Devoted for what purpose? What was the extent of the destruction visited upon Jericho? For what purpose was God uprooting the Jericho type from the land? Was it right and wise for Him thus to slaughter men, women, and even innocent children in order that He might plant deeply there the roots of the nation in which He had decreed should evolve knowledge of and reverence for Himself and His law, and above all faith.

Look for the points of contact between this lesson and your own personal life.

* * *

FOR CLASS

Make the connection between this and the lesson two weeks ago.

Discuss this week's lesson according to the three topics listed in the study section. Show that the events in this lesson are one of the climaxes in Israel's national development.

BARRIERS BROKEN DOWN

"The opposition of that relative; the hatred of that persecutor; the strength of that passion; the tyranny of that habit; the untowardness of our circumstances—these are our Jordan. How easy life would be if only these were other than they are! Give me Canaan without its Jordan! But God permits the Jordans that He may educate our faith. Do not look at the troubled waters rushing past; look at the Priest, who is also the Ark of the Covenant. Follow Him. It may seem as if He is leading thee into certain destruction; but it shall not be so. When thou comest to the dreaded difficulty, be it what it may, thou wilt find that because His feet have been dipped in its brink its waters are shrunken, its violence is gone. The river-bed is dry."—F. B. Meyer.

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

THE BEREAN EDITOR enjoyed the privilege of attending a meeting of the newly organized Junior Berean Class of the Salem church, near Marshall, Illinois, on Sunday, October 17. There were fourteen in the class, and they all took an active interest. Ruby Hendrix, the leader that day, did real well. Much credit is due to Sr. Edna Wood, who organized and supervises the class.

* * * *

Salem church has a real Senior Berean Class of Young people, too, and both Seniors and Juniors file into the choir pews for church services. The other night we counted twenty-six young people in the choir. Can you show me a church which does not have Berean work that can beat it?

* * * *

One of our classes, in studying the lesson on forgiveness, recently had up the question: Shall we wait for our enemies to ask forgiveness before granting it?" And that raises another question: "Is forgiveness simply a one-sided matter, or does it require action from both sides?" There is no doubt but that a person can stand with open heart, ready to forgive, and thus hold no grudge or enmity for the other, but is forgiveness really complete until the other party gets to the frame of mind where he desires and accepts the forgiveness? Jesus, on the cross, said, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." Thus our Savior's part in holding out forgiveness to them was performed, but are they forgiven? Does not the heavy penalty of Christ's blood still rest upon them? We feel that the forgiveness will not be complete until "they shall mourn for Him as one mourneth for his only son," Zech. 12:10. In that day they will realize the need of the proffered offer, and receive the Savior's gift.

Still another point is, "Does to forgive mean to forget?" For instance, suppose a girl in company with a man who claims to be a Christian has been wronged or insulted in such manner as to show the baseness of his thoughts and desires toward her. Suppose that afterward he comes and begs her to forgive him, but every indication is that fear is the prompting motive of the request. There is no doubt but what she should forgive him and hold no grudge or desire to do him harm, but shall she forget? or shall she rather always remember, and never allow opportunity for the recurrence of such an event? To forgive evidently does not mean to forget, for it is by these experiences of life that we learn and develop and profit. We forgive him, but we have learned his weakness, and we should never forget what it is.

* * * *

And it is not only valuable to have ascertained the other person's weakness, but still more to learn our own. Knowing the other person's weakness we can do the things to draw out his noblest side, and avoid any appeal to his lowest. Knowing our own weakness, through temptation, we can learn to develop strength in that direction. To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

* * * *

Don't rush through your class study too rapidly. There are lots of practical problems that lie near the hearts of different ones, and if a leader will tactfully draw them out, some very interesting and profitable discussions will often develop.

* * * *

It draws us closer together to talk over the problems that weigh upon our minds.

A Summary of Life

A little rain,
A little dew;
A cloud, a stain,
A speck of blue.

A spark, a glow,
A star, a ray;
Thus ebb and flow
Our night and day.

A little sun,
A little breeze;
Then summer gone,
Then naked trees.

A trice, a while,
A month, a year;
A child—a smile,
A man—a tear.

A little mirth,
A little sin;
An hour on earth,
The next—within.

—New Palestine.

THOUGHTS FOR THINKERS

FINISH every day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities, no doubt, crept in. Forget them as soon as you can. To-morrow is a new day. Begin it well, and serenely, with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense: with all its hopes and invitations to waste a moment on the yesterdays.—Emerson.

* * * *

"IT IS WELL to remember that a mule cannot pull while he is kicking, and he cannot kick while he is pulling. Neither can you."

"If you wish to learn the highest truth you must begin with the alphabet."

* * * *

"A GREAT SOUL on an errand for God does not lose self-possession, however great the commotion."

* * * *

"THE man who follows what others think is making himself a weakling."

* * * *

Read page 62 about Sunday School Quarterlies, and write at once.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

(Continued from page 57)

yes, more—with spiritual sunshine.

* * *

"I want to see our paper the very best, or among the very best, and anything I find that I think might be of interest I will send and you can use your own discretion about publishing same."

That's a fine spirit.—Ed.

If every reader contributed just like me, What kind of reading would our paper be?

* * *

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

There is time yet for you to get in with the first fifty new subscribers to be sent in before the end of the campaign, December 7. "The Visitor" is now being mailed to those entitled to it, and if you do not receive your copy promptly notify the office.

Some have already earned the "Cruden's Concordance" and "Smith's Bible Dictionary". These are fine premiums to those who are studying the Bible, and teaching Sunday School classes. While the response has been gratifying, we have not had to work overtime to take care of the new subscribers; so keep them coming. What others are doing you can do also.

* * *

TENT MEETINGS

Bro. N. H. Geiselman, 212 W. Hillsborou Ave., Tampa, Florida, wishes to announce through The Herald that he has a 40 foot round tent equipped for electric lighting, tent organ, etc.

Anyone wishing to secure his services with tent this winter for evangelistic work is invited to correspond with him at above address.

Bro. Geiselman makes no charge for his services, nor does he take collections at his meetings. He relies wholly upon the free-will offerings of those attending his meetings and of others who feel directed to cooperate.

ILLINOIS

Bro. Siple will speak at Dixon on next Sunday, October 31, instead of the first Sunday in November.

* * *

Special meetings at the Ripley church are to begin on Thursday night, November 4, and continue over two Sundays, closing on the 14th.

* * *

Bro. Wm. C. McGraw, our printer, was called to Macomb, Illinois, Saturday because of the serious illness of his father. A telegram came Sunday notifying us of his death.

* * *

And let's all get ready for a big meeting at the new Dixon church to begin on Tuesday night, November 16, and continue over the 28th. This is the first effort of that kind in Dixon's history, and we are praying for much good.

* * *

Sr. Thayer and son, Lyle, spent last week in Indiana with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Shafer, and other friends in quest of a much needed rest. Bro. Thayer went over the week end, and returned with them Sunday afternoon.

* * *

At last report, meetings at the Salem church were progressing nicely. Favorable weather, and good attendance were making the work pleasant for all. Some additions are anticipated. Several car loads from Casey participated in the all-day meeting of October 17.

* * *

THREE OUT OF FOUR

Bro. L. H. Nokes and family live on Route 7, Lincoln Park, Rockford, Illinois. They have had their share of late: Bro. Nokes awakened from sleep with the room black with coal oil smoke; Sr.

(Daisy) Nokes fell from the porch and injured her ankle; Sr. Elseleone had her tonsils removed on the 21st; Bro. Fred is the only hale-and-hearty one in the family.

* * *

INDIANA

Bro. and Sr. J. H. Willey, of Plymouth, Indiana, are spending the winter with his son in Seattle, Washington. He reports good health. They would be glad to have brethren in that vicinity call on them at 3217 McClintock Ave.

* * *

Sr. Rolland Stilson returned to South Bend, Indiana, Sunday October 24. She had remained here with her mother since the death of Bro. Cross, October 2. Sr. Cross accompanied them as far as Lockport, Illinois, where she will remain for some time with her daughter, Sr. Ward Scott.

* * *

ARGOS, INDIANA

From September 22 to October 10 Argos held their special meetings with good services each evening, except for two or three evenings when rain hindered many from attending. The last two Sundays dinner was served in the basement of the church, which added to the fellowship of the meeting. At dinner the closing Sunday the writer was presented with a watch from the church as a remembrance of them, and we can assure all that we shall never be able to forget them.

Sunday afternoon seven were baptized in a nearby river, as a great blessing from God, both to the new members and the church as a whole. They are Dorothy, Evelyn, Norma, and Ruby Railsback—four sisters, Miss Jessie Hutchison, Miss Muriel Railsback, and Mr. George Wisely. May God bless each of them in His service.

Sydney E. Magaw.

IN OUR WORKSHOP

Doings at Headquarters

SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE

FOR many months we have been puzzling ourselves concerning the Sunday School Leaflet or something to take its place. We have asked repeatedly through The Herald for the names of our members and the names and memberships of our various churches, that we might compile the data for a year book. So very few have interested themselves sufficiently to comply with this request that we are still practically without information. But in jotting down churches and Sunday Schools from memory it was found that less than one out of four subscribe for the Sunday School Leaflet.

This leaflet is sold at Five Dollars per year for fifty copies which equals Ten Cents per copy per year or one-fifth of One Cent per Sunday per copy. The income per year has been about Eighty Dollars, while the printer charges the N. B. I. a little over Three Hundred Dollars per year for publishing, making a deficit of Two Hundred Twenty Dollars per year. (Besides this publishing there is the editing and so forth as well as Sr. King's contribution of copy.) If these Sunday School Leaflets were being used by practically all, then the benefit would be proportionately equalized as well as the deficit. But observation teaches that the majority of our Sunday Schools use literature from other publishing concerns.

In view of the foregoing, and after careful consideration, we are inclined to think that the following would be a practical and just solution of this puzzle:

First, if the leaflets are continued after December next, the prices therefor should be increased sufficiently to cover cost of publishing, that is, the price should be multiplied by four. We feel sure that if this were done most of the subscribers would immediately discontinue subscription therefor.

Second, in the place of the leaflet we suggest the publishing of a Sunday School quarterly for seniors and adults to cost Six or Seven Cents per copy per quarter, this to be followed in the near future with a quarterly for juniors and afterwards with a third quarterly for primaries.

To make this possible financially it would be necessary for us to feel that we would secure immediately three times the demand for quarterlies that we now have for the leaflet. Present estimates indicate that even then we would not quite break even financially for the publishing.

We want to state this plainly: Whenever we talk about publishing we are talking about a mechanical work at the print shop, publishing in this sense does not include the preparation of the copy, nor the editing, nor the proof reading; these items are distinct and separate from the printers duties. The same is true with reference to The Restitution Herald and everything else printed at The Herald plant. Editing is a separate item from printing.

This price for quarterlies is the average price for similar quarterlies as put out by other houses. The price indicated is a very close price and would be no more than we feel should be charged for the leaflet should its publication be continued after this year. We fully realize that it would be hard for anyone to decide that they want the quarterly without even knowing what it would be like. On the other hand, it is essential that the N. B. I. shall have an idea of the number of copies that will be wanted in order to know whether to undertake to publish a quarterly for the first quarter of 1927.

✕ If there are enough subscriptions to justify publication, we will, D. V., have a quarterly ready for January 1, 1927. BUT WE MUST KNOW AT ONCE! We must know how many quarterlies will be taken for the first quarter of 1927, at 6 or 7 cents per copy per quarter, the same to be continued according to needs if the publication merits your patronage.

It is because so many appeals have, in the past, been made for a Sunday School Quarterly that the matter is considered at all.

The matter is now put squarely up to the church. All who want such a publication, and who will patronize it, please SAY SO IMMEDIATELY. The decision rests on YOU—THE BROTHERHOOD. Your answer is needed at the earliest possible date, and, to be considered, must be here not later than Saturday, November 6.

Announcement of decision will be made in Herald of November 9.

No little preliminary planning and investigating has been done for weeks past; and, to make possible the publication in ample time for January 1, 1927, this work will be prosecuted immediately.

—○—
"It is not enough to know, we must also apply; it is not enough to will, we must also do.—Goethe.
 —○—

CHURCH PAPER QUILTS

"PUBLICATION of the Illinois Baptist, issued weekly by the Illinois Baptist State Association, has been ordered suspended by the board of control. The paper has been published by Dr. W. P. Throgmorton for twenty-one years. Suspension was ordered because the paper did not pay financially."

A TRIBUTE TO THE BIBLE

TWENTY-TWO years ago, with the Holy Spirit as my Guide, I entered the wonderful temple of Christianity. I entered at the portico Genesis, walked down through the Old Testament art galleries, where pictures of Noah, Abraham, Moses, Joseph, Isaac, Jacob, and Daniel hung on the wall. I passed into the music room of Psalms, where the Spirit swept the key board of nature until it seemed that every reed and pipe in God's great organ responded to the tuneful harp of David, the sweet singer of Israel. I entered the chamber of Ecclesiastes, where the voice of the preacher was heard; and into the conservatory of Sharon, and the lily of the valley's sweet-scented spices filled and perfumed my life. I entered the business office of Proverbs, and then into the observatory room of the Prophets, where I saw telescopes of various sizes pointed to far-off events, but all concentrated upon the bright and morning Star.

I entered the audience room of the King of kings, and caught a vision of His glory from the standpoint of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, passed into the Acts of the Apostles, where the Holy Spirit was doing his work in the formation of the infant church. Then into the correspondence room, where sat Paul and Peter, James and John penning their Epistles. I stepped into the throne room of Revelation, where towered the glittering peaks, and got a vision of the King sitting upon the throne in all His glory, and I cried:

*All hail the power of Jesus' name,
Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown Him Lord of all!*

—Selected.

“HOW COME dat de folks what's always singin' 'Heaven is my home,' sends fer de doctor w'en dey think de time hab come ter go dar?”

RESTITUTION HERALD: Enclosed you will find money order for $4.00. Three-fifty is tithing money given me by ———— to be used in the Lord's work. Fifty cents I added to it. We decided to use this money to put The Restitution Herald into four homes for six months each. (Names and addresses followed.)

Signed: ————

That's Cooperation. Thanks.—F. A. Stilson.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word “Soul”, 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c.
God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.
The First Resurrection, 100 for $2.50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.
A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate:	Each
Robison vs. Conner	$.05
Earlier Life-Truth Exponents	.15
Will It Pay to Become a Christian?	.25
The Visitor, 212 pages	.50
The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages
Illustrated. Suitable for Gift.	.90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

Wall Mottoes Priced from 10c to 50c each
Gospel in Song 40c; 45c; and 50c each
Per 100, $30.00; $33.00; 40.00

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President, Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois
F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the “restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began”, Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE HOME AS A PICTURE

By Sydney Magaw

CHILDREN obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise; that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth."

Out of the entire Ten Commandments there appears only one command which carries a promise. It is the command, "Honor thy father and thy mother." The promise that follows is, "that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee."

We see a tendency to-day for children to become less and less respectful to their parents, evidently, it being a fulfillment of Paul's prophecy that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, haughty, railers, "disobedient to parents."

There is no need for proof showing that it is right for children to obey their "parents in the Lord". On the other hand, if the parents expect complete obedience from their children let them first be "in the Lord". In one way, we are all children of God and, surely, God who has created us has more right to expect obedience from a parent than that parent would have a right to expect from a child which is really little more than loaned for a few short years.

The home is the place where a child gets its first training; where it is taught to obey its parents. What that child becomes in later life depends largely upon whether or not the parents were "parents in the Lord". If the parents are Christians they will "train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

The training a child gets at home depends more upon what it sees than what it hears. We might think of the child as a camera, and the home as the picture. The child is being taught by the home picture. The child serving as a human camera is the greatest camera there is. Most cameras have but one lens, but the two sharp little eyes of the child equip it with two lenses. The lenses of this camera are ever ready to take a picture and do not have to be focused, but the eyelid serving as a shutter permits one picture to be taken after another as quick as a flash. The child's eyes can be turned up or down or to either side, and they are snapping off pictures of the home every day, every hour they are awake. "What have they seen in thine house?" What kind of a picture is your home?

Someone has said that home is where we are treated the best and grumble the most, but a better definition would be, Home is the place where grew our fondest memories or the saddest. What we did at home always remains with us, what our parents taught us clings to us as a heritage, but what we saw there, the pictures we took with our eyes, is a part of us. We have our fondest memories, or our saddest, back at home.

In one home the pictures that the children get are those of a shiftless father, a gambler, drunkard, one who swears, who robs his wife and babes of necessities and cheats himself of the true comforts of religion.

In the other home the pictures that the children get are those dear memories of mother rocking the babe to sleep with a Christian song. Father is remembered as the Sunday School teacher. He loved his family, gave a word of thanksgiving at each meal, and read to us out of the Bible about Jesus.

For twenty-one years the child takes these pictures, and then leaves home. All those pictures remain recorded back in the mind. By and by God develops those pictures and the world sees the inside of his parents' home by the life the man lives.

Is there a picture of the Savior hanging on the wall in your home? Did you thank God for the food on your dinner table? Did you read a portion of the Bible aloud for the family? Will you teach your children to pray? Will you be a good Christian? Will you be a parent "in the Lord"? Your life is the one great home-picture that will determine the happiness and usefulness of the children you expect to obey you.

Let us be "parents in the Lord", and then it will be right for our children to obey us. Home to them will be the place where grew their fondest memories.

"DUTIES demand concentration. They train the mind in keeping on the job, and thus help to develop it to its best."

Are you in for a series of Sunday School Quarterlies published by the National Bible Institution? Read page 62 and radiograph your order TODAY.

DAILY SCRIPTURE READINGS

(Continued from page 55)

er done up to that time, Paul tries faithfully to lift the Hebrew mind up another step in the stairway of God's revealed plans and show them a higher work and a higher word through Jesus Christ the new High Priest. While Moses has been a faithful servant "in" all his house, Christ was "a Son OVER His own house; whose house are we".

Read often and meditate deeply on this epistle and gradually the deep, wholesome earnestness of the apostle in behalf of his brethren, his kinsmen according to the flesh, and their relationship to Christ will enfold your whole being and inspire you with ever increasing faith in God and His Son.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 2, 1926

NUMBER 5

STONE WALL

By F. A. Stilson, Secretary

YOU know the proverbial stone wall? Well, we are "up against it". We mean financially. Our bills are in arrears and are beginning to worry us.

We have tried many times to present our financial needs to the brotherhood but usually the response is insufficient to meet our needs let alone our wants. We are glad, however, to make exception to this statement when on previous occasions,—the "Christmas Pledges", last year and the drive for the Wince Fund in the spring following, which placed two of our brethren in the comforts of Golden Rule Home,—the brotherhood responded so well.

NEW TOY

When this work was begun four or five years ago, everybody (no, not everybody) seemed willing and ready to do all they could to push the work forward, and responded to every appeal for help, until within recent months, when it began to be noticed that contributions were falling off. So we wonder whether we were not like a child with a new toy, who casts it aside when once the newness has worn off.

But what we need, and need it badly, is money, yes, $2000 is needed to settle old accounts, pay our coal bill, back salaries, new heating of one section of the Greenhouse, etc. We have just been passing through the difficult months of the year when outgo is heavy, with very little income. Every means is being taken to save money, and some are working twelve to fifteen or more hours a day to keep things moving.

PLAIN FACTS

These are some of the plain facts which are staring us squarely in the face. We are doing all in our power to advance the work, but we cannot succeed unless we have your support.

WE WONDER

if it can't be made a Thanksgiving offering this time, but you need not wait until the 25th, we need it now.

Come over to Macedonia and help us. Thanks! Thank you!

A GLIMPSE OF HOME

By E. O. Stewart

WHEN the evening shadows gather, and the last golden sunbeam fades away over the western hills, it reminds us of the fact that we are one day nearer Home.

Home is the most wonderful of all words. What a hallowed name! How full of enchantment! How dear to the heart! Home is the magic circle in which the weary finds refuge; it is the sacred asylum to which the careworn heart so often retreats to find rest from the toils of life. Ask the lone wanderer as he plods his tedious way, bent with the weight of age and white with the frost of many winters. Ask him what is home. He will tell you that it is a green spot in memory, an oasis in a desert, a center around which the fondest recollection of his oppressed heart clings with all the tenacity of a youth's first love. It was once a glorious, and a happy reality, but now it rests only as an image of the mind. The human mind often reverts to the scenes which marked its early pathway, when the unbroken home circle presented a scene of loveliness vainly sought but in the bosom of a happy home. O, those happy hours! It makes us feel like saying:

"Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight, Make me a child again just for to-night."

Imagine yourself standing around the old fireside at night after the busy day's work is over; standing again at mother's knee and feeling her soft, warm fingers as they fondle your hair. Imagine you are young again. Think of all the youthful expression upon your face.

Are those lovely home ties severed forever? Shall we never be permitted to gaze into those eyes again? Are those lips which spoke to us in other days, closed with an eternal hush? Shall the heart strings which were tuned in harmony, never vibrate again? Shall the now pale, faded cheeks never again possess their youthful color? Has the grim monster, death, severed these ties and faded those cheeks forever? O no! There is to be a grand Home Coming. Those lips shall speak again. Those eyes shall, some sweet day, be again permitted to gaze with wonderous joy upon those smiling faces. Those pale, faded cheeks will be given back the color of youthful days. For man's flesh shall be fresher than a child's flesh. He shall return to the days of his youth, Job 33:25.

After my skin worms have destroyed this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, Mine eyes shall behold Him and not another, Job. 19:26. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust . . . the earth shall cast out the dead. Isa. 26:19. They shall see eye to eye when the Lord shall bring again Zion. Isa. 52:8.

Those old prophets of long ago were often permitted to have the veil lifted and to gaze with rapturous joy into the scenes of the great beyond, in which the mighty ocean shall roll to shore her dead; when the voice of the Son of God shall penetrate the deaf ears of death; when amid the lightning's flash and the thunder's roll the clods of the valley shall part asunder, rent by an unseen power, and those loved forms shall come forth.

O, what joy unspeakable, and full of glory. It is the time for shouting. Who could refuse?

But who shall be the first to shout? It is the Savior. For He shall descend with a shout, 1 Thess. 4:16. No wonder He shall shout, for it is then He enjoys the firstfruits for which He paid so dearly on Calvary's rugged cross. Soon the shout is heard to earth's remotest bounds and the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away, Isa. 35:10. The gates of Paradise shall then swing ajar, revealing the most wonderful home the eyes of man have ever been permitted to see. Then the wide, spreading plains shall swell into hills of beauty, and the mountains of God shall rear their lofty summits heavenward, and on those vine clad hills and lovely plains God's despised and persecuted people shall at last find a haven of eternal rest.

*Don't you want to cross over where Jesus shall reign,
And join the bright angels on Eden's fair plains?
I want to be gathered with all the redeemed,
Just over in Eden where the fields are all green.*

*Then on let us press, for Jesus is near,
And comfort each other with words of good cheer,
With zeal ever bouyant and courage ne'er slack,
Be true to your King and never draw back.*

"WHEN PAUL was invited by the philosophers of Athens to speak to them, he did not hesitate. They were learned men, but so was he—learned in the Gospel of God. He was perfectly familiar with every detail of the subject he had to present, and it was to him a privilege to speak. We are especially impressed with the simple dignity of Paul's salutation, "Ye men of Athens". This was an appropriate title—they were meeting as men upon a common platform. He did not deride them nor pounce upon them as heathen and idolaters, although he did inform them that he perceived that they were very religious. It is not always wise to affront the people you later wish to persuade. It is often more wise to displace the false by the introduction of the true. It is better to uplift a Savior than to deride the idols."

"BECAUSE I LIVE, YE SHALL LIVE ALSO"

By N. H. Geiselman

* * * *

IF the enemies of righteousness would rise up, as of old, and destroy this Book, I would plead with them, before they did, to give me this one text, where Jesus says, "Because I live, ye shall live also."

I would bind these faithful words upon my brow and inscribe them upon my memory, and not forget. Yes! and like a torch of liberty I would bear them aloft within my hand, that He that runs might read that we have not labored in vain, but that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty and the liberty Jesus promised conquers both death and the grave. Therefore, let us be unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord.

Were I to be led to the stake as others have been for this faith, by His grace I would show my willingness to go. Only let me be comforted by these words of Jesus, "Because I live, ye shall live also." "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

The destruction of death, and of him that caused it, will be the last trophy to grace the triumphs of faith's mightiest Chieftain, the Son of the living God. It is not a wonder, then, that we love to sing that beautiful hymn:

*Wonderful words of life;
Sing them over again to me;
Wonderful words of life.*

A LAMP UNTO YOUR FEET

* * * *

"Oh, that old lantern wouldn't help any. Unless I can have a light that will show me the way more than one step ahead, I'll just take it alone in the dark," the young man replied lightly when the mountaineer offered him a lantern to light him on the way down the rough mountain path to the station.

"I have always found, my friend," the old man replied quietly, "that one step is as much as any man can take at a time, and when you have taken that step in the right direction, this old lantern, dim as it may appear to one accustomed to the glare of the city, will light you on to another step. Long ago I started in the pathway of righteousness, but my understanding was dim and uncertain. I found that by the light of the gospel I could take one step at a time, and not once did I stumble when I carried that light. I have come a long way and can't see the end of the path yet; but I know that while I carry the light I am enabled to take another step ahead."

Thoughtfully the young man took the proffered lantern; and as he picked his way down the rough path he pondered deeply the lesson of the old mountaineer. He needed just that to help him decide a question that had troubled him for a long time.

"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season."—2 Tim. 4:2.—Selected.

WHAT IS FAITH?

* * * *

*Little Mary stood on the kitchen floor,
Gazing down at the old trap door
Into the cellar dark and damp.
She could only see a little lamp
At her papa's side; she knew he was there,
For she saw him herself go down the stair,
And now and then she could hear him speak,
Though the voice seemed far away and weak.*

*"Papa," she called, in her baby tone,
"Are you there, dear papa? I'm all alone."
"Why, yes, little daughter, be sure I am here; Jump, and I'll catch you, do not fear."
"Papa, it is dark, I cannot see.
Where are you, papa? Do come for me."
No, daughter, jump; I will hold you fast.
Come now,"—and Mary jumped at last.*

*He held her trembling in close embrace,
And pressed a kiss on her baby face,
While a simple lesson the child he taught,
A lesson she never in life forgot:
"My dear, that's the way to obey the Lord;
Though you cannot see Him, believe in His Word;
He will say, 'Here am I,' to every call;
Trust Him, he never will let you fall."
—Author Unknown.*

DO YOU WISH TO SUCCEED AND RETAIN SUCCESS?

By Myrle Hatten

* * * *

GOD promises you prosperity and blessing if you faithfully carry out His loving command to tithe.

To tithe is simply to pay ten per cent regularly of your income, wages, increase or profit, to the Lord God.

The Lord returns it to you with profit and great blessings. Trust God and tithe and your financial worries will cease. God is faithful and true and loves you.

Read God's promise in Malachi 3:10-12. The challenge from God to prove and test Him on His promise of a blessing is stated in the tenth verse very clearly: He promises to pour out a blessing from heaven upon those who tithe, so that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

It is God's love for us that points to His way for our greater and lasting success; that teaches us to profit, with always an assurance of better things and of peace of mind over our personal financial matters.

God is the owner of everything. Haggai 2:8, "The silver is Mine, and the gold is Mine, saith the Lord."

You honor God when you accept His promise and tithe, and God blesses you with plenty for thus honoring Him.

Is it not reasonable to believe that God who made the plan for our redemption by the Messiah, Jesus the Christ, with eternal salvation and joy in an after life, would also make plan for our financial blessing and rest from care while living on earth.

God tells us to rest for Him one day in seven for our own good; that we will accomplish more and do it easier on the remaining six days of the week. God tells us to rest for Him one dollar in ten—to give this dollar to His works, that the remaining nine will go farther and produce greater results than the ten would have done. This, too, for our own good. God asks us to prove Him. "How shall I tithe?" Set aside regularly one-tenth of your increase (before taking out your living expenses) and devoting it to the work of the Lord God. Separate your tithe money from your own funds fairly and honestly and keep separate accounts.

"What shall I do with the tithe money?" Read Leviticus 27:30-32. The tithe is the Lord's. It is holy unto the Lord. It is God's and you are His steward. Pay it to the Lord as your loving gift. Give it the Lord in up-building God's kingdom, using your best judgment as carefully as you would regarding your own money; give to foreign and home missions and to religious enterprises of the church or denomination that you are identified with, to those poorer than yourself, to the destitute, to evangelistic and missionary purposes.

"Thy word is true from the beginning."—Psa. 119:160.
God cannot lie.—Titus 1:2. *

"For what if some did not believe? Shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar."—Rom. 3:3-4.

"Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock."
—Matt. 7:24-25.

Believe and be happy. Rejoice. Tithe with a glad heart. Trust God. Be patient. He will keep His word. God is true and faithful for ever. Praise the Lord. Be not afraid, only believe. Rejoice with thanksgiving.

ABOVE THE STORM

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

* * * *

A STORY is told of a party who was climbing a mountainside and a terrific storm came on. We must give this up, said the men to their guide. "Take us back." The guide smiled and said, "I think we'll soon be above the storm." Sure enough, it was not long before they were above the storm. All was quiet, and the sun shining, though the storm still raged in the valley below.

Christians should do as this guide said, keep on climbing, don't stop or go back; go on and cheer others on, so that they, with you, can rise above the storm and dwell in the sunlight of God's love.

A MORNING PRAYER

* * * *

Lord God, help me to see the folly of calling myself a Christian, if I am content to do no more, to aim no higher than I did before I called upon me His great name. And, Father, if Thy work is making little progress in my home, my neighborhood, or my church, help me to search honestly for the fault in my own heart and life, depending upon Thy Spirit for light to find it, and for power to rid myself thereof.—A Herald Reader.

o

IS YOUR HARP HUNG ON THE WILLOWS?

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

* * * *

YOU have all, no doubt, read the one hundred thirty-seventh Psalm. There we are told that the children of Israel, while in captivity, were asked to sing one of the songs of Zion. It seems to have touched a tender chord in their hearts, for we read that they refused to sing. They hanged their harps on the willows, and wept by the river of Babylon when they remembered Zion, and said, "How shall we sing the songs of Zion in a strange land," and to a strange people.

The thought came to me as I read over again these words, how like these captive Israelites are we—strangers and pilgrims on the earth, travelers toward the promised land, yet captives awaiting our sentence to the prison-house of death. Its doors swing out to receive every one of us. Like the children of Israel, we, too, sometimes forget God. We sit down by the river of Babylon. We hang our harps on the willows, and refuse to sing the songs of Zion. We refuse to go on in the service of the Lord. And we weep, too, not because we remember Zion, but because we who have been enlightened know that the command is, "Come out of her, My people." So in sorrow we sit by the river of Babylon, or Babel, in wanting to be like other people. We fail to see the pierced hands held out to us in loving supplication. We do not see His thorn-crowned brow of sorrow; nor do we see the crimson blood that flowed from His wounded side, or hear the voice in anguish say from the cross of Calvary, "It is finished". Finished? Yea, for you and for me.

Let us arise from the river of Babylon, attune our harps again to the songs of Zion, and say:

*I'll travel all the way to Calvary;
I'll walk the way that He has marked for me;
I'll follow to the end,
For He's my dearest friend;
I'll follow all the way to Calvary.*

o

"No one can stop you from thinking what you please, but it is unwise to express freely to people at large ideas which do not conform to public opinion. Nature evidently had this thought in mind when she gave us two eyes and two ears, but only one mouth."

THE POWERS OF THE WORLD TO COME

By Rufus A. Curtis

* * * *

THE powers that are alluded to by Paul in his epistle to the Hebrews, that will characterize and dominate the world to come, because of their need and frequency, for the subjugation and blessing of "all nations" and "families of the earth", to the glorious reign of Christ, are doubtless miraculous powers, such as was witnessed on the day of Pentecost, when the apostles were "endued with power from on high." (Acts 2:4, 22; Luke 24:49; Heb. 6:5; Psa. 2:1-8; 72:6-9, 11, 17-19; Gen. 12:3; 22:15-18; 26:3-5; Gal. 3:8, 16.)

The earth itself is groaning beneath the curse, as well as her toiling, sorrowing millions, who have been "made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope." (Gen. 3:17, 18; Rom. 8:20-23.)

It will require the exercise of miraculous powers to reverse all this, but it will be accomplished in due time, for Jehovah has declared that a time is coming when "there shall be no more curse". (Rev. 22:3; Isa. 51:3.)

Now the falling tears are mute witnesses to the fact that there is still sorrow, pain, separation and death abroad in the earth; but in "the world to come" a blissful picture is portrayed by the inspired prophetic delineation of that age: "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away". (Rev. 21:4; 1 Cor. 15:25, 26, 54.)

"Thorns also, and thistles" are evidences of man's disobedience; but in the world to come "instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree, and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off." (Isa. 55:13; Gen. 3:17-19.)

Now, as in the days of Noah and Lot, the earth is rapidly becoming "filled with violence", and lawlessness is becoming rampant in every country on the globe. (Gen. 6:5, 11; Luke 17:26-30; 2 Peter 2:5-8.) The earth has been drenched with the blood of martyred millions, and wars and rumors of wars still furnish a large part of current history. (Matt. 24:4-14; Mark 13:7.)

The powers of the world to come will be called into requisition by the Prince of Peace, to cause "wars to cease unto the ends of the earth." (Isa. 9:6, 7; Psa. 46:9.) When His "judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants will learn righteousness." (Isa. 26:1-9.)

When the word of the Lord shall go forth from Jerusalem, the metropolitan city of the world to come, "they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." (Isa. 2:2-4.) Rebellious nations should meditate upon the tragedy that befell Sennacherib's army, as recorded in 2 Kings 19:32-37; Isa. 37:33-36; 52:4.

In the language of the poet, Byron:

*The Assyrian came down like a wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming with purple and gold,
And the sheen of his spears was like stars on the sea,
When the blue waves roll nightly on deep Galilee.*

*And the angel of Death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed,
And the form of the sleeper waxed deadly and chill,
And his breast but once heaved and forever grew still.*

The powers of the world to come, when brought into action, can speedily and effectually "put down all rule, and all authority, and power. For He must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." (1 Cor. 15:24-26; Psa. 2:8-12; 149:5-8; Luke 19:14, 27.) It will be a thorough work of either reclaiming the penitent rebels, through the goodness of God; or for the obdurate and impenitent sinners, putting them away like dross forever. (Rom. 2:4; Psa. 119:118; John 3:14-16.)

Through the intervention of the miracle-working powers of Jehovah, or His duly accredited agents, intense fire was rendered harmless to Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego (Dan. 3:13-25); stormy winds and boisterous waves were subject to His control (Mark 4:35-41); "all manner of sickness, and all manner of disease" were healed, through the efficacy of this miraculous power, that God manifested through His dear Son (Matt. 4:23 and 24). Through its agency, Jesus turned water into wine (John 2:1-11); He cured the impotent man of his infirmity of thirty-eight years' duration (John 5:5-15); He healed a woman which was diseased with an issue of blood of twelve years' standing (Matt. 9:20-22; Luke 8:43-48); He healed Simon's mother-in-law of a great fever (Luke 4:38, 39); He healed ten men that were lepers" (Luke 17:11-19); He gave sight to the blind (Mark 8:22-25; 10:43-52); He gave pardon to the penitent sinner (John 8:1-11). But amidst the varied manifestations of His love and miraculous power, none can eclipse the scene at the little town of Bethany, about two miles distant from Jerusalem. Here He raised Lazarus to life again, after he had lain in the grave four days". Here His tears mingled with those of the sorrowing sisters of Lazarus. "Jesus wept." "Behold how He loved him"! This was the exclamation of the Jews who witnessed this marvelous manifestation of power by Him who has "the keys of hell and of death". (John 11:1-46; Rom. 12:15; Rev. 1:18.) He raised the widow's son, of Nain (Luke 7:11-14); He raised Jairus' daughter to life again (Luke 8:49-55).

Through the exercise of miraculous power vested in Him, He could feed the hungry multitudes. On one occasion He fed "four thousand men, besides women and children". (Matt. 15:32-38.) On another occurrence, when He manifested His supernatural power, He allayed the hunger of about five thousand men. (John 6:5-13.) After they had eaten to satiety, His disciples gathered and filled twelve baskets with the fragments, in harmony with Jesus' instruction to "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost."

Have we not in these divinely recorded instances of the powers of the world to come, as manifested by Jesus and His co-workers, who had "tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come", sufficient evidence to kindle hope in our hearts concerning "the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began"? (Rom. 15:4; Acts 3:19-21.)

*That restitution, Lord, we wait,
Though circling years move slow,
Since exiled from our blest estate
Six thousand years ago.*

THE CHRISTIAN SPIRIT

By E. O. McCullough

* * * *

THERE is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh: that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled (brought to light) in us, . . . They that are (walk) after the flesh, do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are (walk) after the Spirit, (do mind) the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His (Christ's). Rom. 8:1-9.

Therefore to be in Christ Jesus does not free us from condemnation, but the action of walking not after the flesh but after the Spirit brings about the freedom spoken of. Let us, then, consider the proposition as it is set before us. We cannot render any form of explanation as to application until we have given a modern rendering as to the conditions as they exist to-day. We then must find out where we stand in relation to those conditions. If our ideas are vague as to our position we should find out a means of action that will place us in the desired condition by application.

Brethren, we, as a whole, are prone to take for granted that to believe and be baptized is to be saved without further effort. We rely upon faith which we make, a faith without works, rather than to show our faith BY our works.

Dear brethren, I am grieved about the action of the church as a whole, and I fear for some of its members. We are inclined (and I am not an exception to the rule) to think that having Gospel-light we can unravel the so-

(Continued on page 79, column 1)

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

THE DEATH OF MOSES

THE JOURNEYINGS of Israel from Egyptian bondage to the promised land has been the study of the Sunday School series of lessons for a number of weeks.

After having been God's agent to liberate His chosen people, and after having served as their leader and as God's mediator for forty years, Moses was denied entrance into the land of promise. The Lord, Num. 27:12-14, said that Moses should not enter the land because he "rebelled against My commandment in the desert of Zin". See Num. 20:7-13. At Deut. 1:37 Moses declares, "the Lord was angry with me for your sakes, saying, Thou also shalt not go in thither". The Lord also refused to grant Moses' prayer for entrance, Deut. 3:26.

The Lord had made a covenant, Deut. 5:2-6, with Israel at Horeb. It was spoken to them, Gal. 3:19, "by angels in the hand of a mediator". That Moses was that mediator is evident from Deut. 5; Ex. 20; and other scriptures. He stood between the Lord and them. The Lord directed him, see Ex. 20:22, to speak the words, promises, laws, to Israel. Being God's spokesman, he, like Jesus in the new covenant, is undoubtedly referred to in Heb. 9:15-19, as representing or standing for the Testator. Jehovah Himself was in truth the Testator both of the covenant at Mount Horeb and of the new covenant at Mount Zion. However, He appointed Moses to speak for Him at Mount Horeb and Jesus to speak for Him at Mount Zion in the days of His ministry. Each one, Moses and Jesus, accepted the appointment and engaged therein. As such, each one bore responsibilities like unto those of the testator.

But no testament, or covenant, Heb. 9:17, is of force "while the testator liveth". It seems very evident to me that Moses' death in Mount Nebo not only confirmed the position of Moses and the security of the covenant, but also, being mediator, his death brought the covenant into effect. Immediately thereafter, the testator being dead and therefore the promises of the testament being at any time due, the children of Israel entered into the land of covenant. So also in the later covenant, Christ must die, did die, before the new covenant became operative; and while the time for entering the fulness of the promises is not yet due, nevertheless, those engaging under the new covenant, by faith anticipate its promises, and await the day of their fulfillment.

True, Moses is spirit rebelled against God, therefore, the justice of his death outside of the land of promise. But, true again, Moses deeply repented and petitioned God's forgiveness. While forgiveness was undoubtedly granted him, nevertheless, "for your sakes" he died in the wilderness, as Aaron, the high priest, Moses' mouthpiece, had "died in Mount Hor". Deut. 32:50. Together they performed the offices of a mediator, and stood for and represented God the great Testator. And, inasmuch as they were human, mortal, the testament declared by them would not become operative while as yet the testator liveth.

* * * *

A BETTER HOPE

THERE are several striking characteristics in the book of Hebrews. One of them begins with Hebrews 7:19, where the bringing in of "a better hope" perfects or completes, in that by it "we draw nigh unto God".

BETTER things are mentioned in the rest of the epistle with seemingly cumulative force. In the 22nd verse the "better covenant" is mentioned, while in 8:6 "better promises" are referred to. "Better sacrifices" are made note of at 9:23; a "better substance" at 10:34; a "better country" at 11:16; a "better resurrection" at 11:35; and a "better thing" at 11:40.

In chapter 1 Christ is pointed out to be better than angels, while in chapter 3 He is described as better than Moses. In the 4th chapter Christ is better than Joshua, in the 7th chapter He is better than Aaron, and in the 10th He is better than the law.

All this certainly presents to the person of faith a "better hope" with brighter prospect and grander future than did Moses and his law.

* * * *

THE ARTICLE on the front page entitled "Stone Wall", states plain facts briefly. We have eliminated certain efforts that the brotherhood was hesitant about pressing to a successful termination, but we will be able to continue any non-supporting phase of our effort only as maintained by the many.

Read the article again.

* * * *

VICTORY

THE VICTORIOUS consummation of all of God's purposes has been committed to Christ.

God is Sovereign of the universe. None can victoriously resist His will. Man's freedom of choice is limited—bounded by the progressive and certain fulfillment of the will and purpose of the sovereign God.

To the tried, tested, and perfected Christ, God has committed sovereign power for salvation, restitution, and

(Continued on page 75)

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

WE anticipate being able to report the organization of another Senior Berean class in Illinois by next issue. Keep up the good work.

* * * *

No direct report has been sent to this department, but we have learned indirectly of the organization recently of a Senior class in Houston, Tex. We hope they will have an interesting and profitable class, and that we may hear from them occasionally.

* * * *

Now that October is over, Illinois Bereans may send their "self-denial" money to Bro. Paul C. Johnson, Oregon, Illinois, the state treasurer. It is hoped that the amount will be large, that there may be happiness on the part of those who have sacrificed, and happiness with those for whom it serves.

* * * *

One of our Senior classes recently completed the lessons on the life of Paul. His life's record is certainly an inspiration to anyone who feels that life's path is pretty hard to tread. One point that ought not to be overlooked is that Paul had the very best education of his day, and from a worldly standpoint could have been a great success, and likely could have become wealthy. But he sought neither honor of men, nor riches. Instead he gave his education and wonderful ability to serve God, even in face of bitterest trials and persecutions. Those to-day who have ability in worldly lines sometimes feel it is quite a sacrifice to give their service to the Gospel cause, but Paul counted it all joy, and even the severest trials he considered not worthy to be compared to the joy which shall be revealed. Let's have more men like Paul.

* * * *

"TAKE HEED WHAT YE HEAR"

Mark 4:24

This is a very important counsel—"Take heed what ye hear." The things we hear enter into our lives and become part of our being; they give form and color to our character. There have come infinite blessings from the printing press. There are thousands of good books, whose pages are like leaves from the tree of life, for the healing of the nations. But there are also thousands of evil books, whose pages reek with poison, and scatter influences of moral and spiritual death. With all this great mass of books, good and bad, it is vitally important that we take heed what we hear. We would not eat poisoned food; why should we take poison into our souls?

If we open our ears to the evil things that are continually spoken on all sides, and that come to us on vile printed pages, our hearts will become foul and unclean, and our lives will be debauched. We should shut our ears to all that is unholy. Many a now utterly ruined life dates the beginning of its debasement from the moment when an impure word was whispered in a listening ear, or when a vile book or paper was secretly read. On the other hand, every beautiful life has been made beautiful by what it has heard. We are saved by words. Pure, true words are transforming.

The Bible is simply a book of words; but every word contains a revelation of some beautiful thing in character or attainment which we should strive to reach. We should always gladly, because we may safely and profitably, hear the words of God. Then we should open our ears to the voice that speaks in every good book. We should take heed what we hear. Then we must not forget the Master's other counsel, "Take heed how ye hear." We should hear thoughtfully, reverently, obediently, letting the good words of God into our heart, that they may transform our lives.—Lottie E. Young.

* * * *

You can all help make this department more interesting and more profitable if you will. Our thought is that there should be brief news items as to how various classes are getting along sent in frequently. Also, if in your class some question comes up which seems not to be satisfactorily solved for all, write up some questions, and the Berean Editor will either comment on them himself or get someone else to answer. And then, again, if some real good point is brought out in your class discussions, write it out briefly. Others beside your local class need the advantage of the good thoughts. And as to articles, send them in, long or short, and all for which there is room will go on this page, and the others will be credited as Berean and put in other parts of The Herald. Help us to make this department a most interesting part of the paper.

* * * *

How about a birthday shower for one of our older sisters? Mrs. N. J. Wilding, 3350 M St., Lincoln, Nebraska, will be 77 years old on November 15. She is the grandmother of Sr. Ola Hornaday, and has been an invalid for some time. Send her a card.

DAILY SCRIPTURE READINGS

Prepared by F. L. Austin

* * * *

Sunday—November 7—Heb. 4	Mem. V. 15
Monday—November 8—Heb. 5	Mem. V. 12
Tuesday—November 9—Heb. 6	Mem. V. 19
Wednesday—November 10—Heb. 7	Mem. V. 19
Thursday—November 11—Heb. 8	Mem. V. 1
Friday—November 12—Heb. 9	Mem. V. 24
Saturday—November 13—Heb. 10:1-18	Mem. V. 10

AFTER showing in chapter 1 that the prophetic utterances extol Jesus much above angels and therefore His word above their word, and after earnestly cautioning in chapter 2 that inasmuch as God's words through the angels "received a just recompense of reward" it was therefore evident that His words through Christ would likewise be thoroughly executed; he then calls attention in chapter 3 to Christ as the great high priest of the new covenant over a different house.

The people of Israel, under the words of the angels through Moses, lost their proffered rest because of faithlessness on their part. The writer therefore cautions earnestly, chapter 4, that those engaging in the new covenant shall not lose their proffered rest for similar reason. He asserts, v. 9, that "there remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God", but he also assures throughout the chapter that Christ, who is Messiah and Priest as well as Son of God, is the One whose words must be heeded if we are to enter into its promises. And to the end that the promises might be sure he reveals, vs. 14-16, the greatness, as also the sympathy and understanding of Christ, "a great high priest".

Chapter 5 reveals that not only was Jesus high priest, but that in accordance with the rule established by God in the Aaronic priesthood so Jesus also, v. 3, should "offer for sins". His priesthood was after the order of Melchisedec. He had no predecessor in His office; He should have no successor. He was the beginning of this new priesthood order, and He should finish it. Therefore, all of its duties must be executed by Himself as also all of its blessings accomplished by Himself. In fulfilling these great labors He presented Himself a sin offering unto death. Through all the sufferings leading unto this offering and in the offering itself He was perfected, completed, in resurrection. This was a most mysterious thing to Israel. It was also well nigh beyond the grasp of Christians, especially Israelitish Christians. When they had need of this strong meat, v. 12, they were only able to receive milk.

These earnest followers of Christ were therefore urged, chapter 6, to leave the beginning words of the doctrine of Christ and to advance in their vision and comprehension of Him that they might enjoy visions of the larger, the more expansive beauties of God's plans, being consummated through this One who had been so cruelly rejected by the adherents of Moses, the mediator of Mount Sinai. From verse 13 the apostle shows the posi-itive relation of God's promise to Abraham to its fulfillment in Christ. His promises of ancient days anticipated Christ the true and perfect seed. God's word to Moses was immutable, but He confirmed His word by an oath, that is, by assurance based upon His own existence. This, too, was immutable. By these "two immutable things" we "have a strong consolation" as "we lay hold upon the hope set before us". This is altogether made possible by Christ only because that He has been "made a high priest for ever".

Abraham was the great patriarch through whom all the promises of God have come. Nevertheless, he paid tithes to Melchisedec, 7:6, and received blessing from him. This is evidence that Melchisedec was greater, v. 6, than Abraham. However, Levi, v. 9, of whom was the Aaronic priesthood, also paid tithes in Abraham. Thus, Levi and Aaron were less than Melchisedec. Christ, made a high priest after the order of Melchisedec, was therefore likewise greater than Aaron or Levi, or Abraham their progenitor. But the Levitical priesthood, v. 11, did not bring to perfection, that is, to completion the cause or the people beneath it. This was sufficient for a change, and the fact is, v. 12, that the priesthood being changed from the tribe of Levi to the tribe of Judah, as well as from the status of Aaron to that of Melchisedec, "there is made of necessity a change also of the law", for the law prescribed duties and services particularly for the tribe of Levi in its service unto the whole house of Israel. Said law pertained not at all to any priesthood of the tribe of Judah, therefore a change of the law was a necessity. The former law and priesthood, v. 16, were "of a carnal commandment", while the new law relating to the new priesthood is effective because of "the power of an endless (indissoluble) life"; thus, v. 18, "a disannulling of the commandment going before". For the law made nothing complete; it was "the bringing in of a better hope" which did this. Again, those priests were so made without an oath; not so of Jesus of whom, v. 21, "the Lord sware . . . , Thou art a priest for ever". But as much as an oath-made priest is superior to one not oath-made, "by so much", v. 22, "was Jesus made a surety of a better testament". Also, they "were made priests", v. 23, consecutively and numerously because of their mortality and death, while Christ, v. 23, "continueth ever". By virtue of this endless life, v. 25, "He is able (powerful) also to save them" completely. The greatness and marvelousness of Christ as high priest is thus more wonderfully explained in chapter 7.

In chapter 8 the inspired writer sums up the things which he has spoken. We have a high priest, v. 1, seated at God's right hand. He is a minister, v. 2, of the true, that is, the real Holiest and the real tabernacle, the one "which the Lord pitched", established, fastened permanently. As minister it becomes Him to direct and oversee all of the activities of this, God's real and eternal tabernacle. This He is doing. And in doing this as, v. 6, "the mediator of a better covenant", the first covenant becomes old and, v. 13, "is ready to vanish away".

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

CALEB'S FAITHFULNESS

LESSON 7 NOV. 14, 1926
 LESSON TEXT: JOSH. 14:6-15
 RESPONSIVE READING: PSA. 27
 JOSHUA 14:6-15

Golden Text: I wholly followed the Lord my God.—Joshua 14:8.

FOR STUDY

Review: Why were the events of last week's lesson one of the high-lights of Israel's history? How did God again make it evident that man's power and wisdom were in no degree the source of Israel's development into a nation?

The New Lesson: This week's lesson makes it evident that, although Israel was not permitted to claim to herself any of the power that was making of her a great nation, she was not, nevertheless, a weak do-nothing people. As soon as faith had reached the point of development demonstrated in the fall of Jericho, the people began to exercise their full powers to accomplish the work God had set for them to do. Having made the fullest demonstration of faith that it was possible to make, namely, submitting to inactivity when God commands, they went forth in full activity to conquer the nations around them.

A part of the lesson is not pleasant to contemplate. War can never be beautiful, but it loses some of its horrors when it is viewed as an evil controlled by God to His own good purposes and to man's final welfare. That this is true is clearly demonstrated in this week's lesson. Beside this truth, that is so necessary to faith in God, the lesson depicts the truth of God's faithfulness to His promises to individuals.

I. The Conquest of Canaan. Josh. 7 and 8. We shall not try to consider the full story of Joshua's fightings in Canaan. We need only that much of it which shows that not the least brick in the foundation of Israel's national life could be sin and faithlessness. All such must be hewed out. Sketch through chapter 7 to discover the sin that caused Israel's first defeat after the fall of Jericho. What extreme measure was taken that Israel might better realize with whom she had to deal? Was the act, in itself, such a terrible offense or was it the spirit of self-assertion in disobedience back of the act that called for the severe punishment? Was the punishment for the reformation of the sinner or for the good of the group? Is such punishment, then, sometimes wise even though there is a growing tendency among reformers, toward only punishment for reformation of the individual?

Did Joshua show a high type of faith when he was forced to face his first defeat? vs. 7-9. How did God show His disapproval of Joshua's failure to discern the trouble? Note that even though Achan made full confession of his sin, he and his family had to suffer an extreme penalty. From man's limited viewpoint and power this was wrong. Can you discern the rightness of it from God's universal viewpoint and power?

Read the story of warfare in chapter 8 until you get a full appreciation of the horrors and cruelty of war. Keep in mind that, in and of themselves, barring God's direct influence in their lives, which they had received, but not at their choice, the Israelites were no better than the people of Ai. To all appearances they were even worse, for they had, time and again, turned their backs upon the direct manifestations of God's power with which they had been favored. Now answer these questions: Was God back of this warfare and the victory that went to the Israelites? vs. 1, 2, 27. For what purpose—that His chosen people might be rewarded for their goodness? Read carefully verses 30 to 35. Were all peoples of the earth as much included in this purpose as were the people of Israel? Recall the Abrahamic covenant of which this event was a partial fulfillment. Is the cruelty of this war, which was God's war, more than counteracted by the goodness which has come from it and will yet come from it in larger degree as Israel becomes in fact and in fullness the repository of God's law, and teachings, and of true worship?

II. Review of a Strong Life: Joshua 14:6-11. We skip over the rest of the record of Joshua's conquest of Canaan and of the dividing of the land among the twelve tribes, and come to Caleb's part in the lesson—Caleb, the man who, with Joshua, had so bravely stood by the report that was in harmony with God's purpose. Pick out from verses 6 to 11 the characteristics that go to make a strong character. What verse reveals that Joshua was true to his convictions? What was one of the results to Joshua, personally, of following the Lord wholly? v. 11. Do you think that a part of following the Lord wholly consists of such mundane things as eating, and drinking, and living (physically) wisely and temperately?

A Small Promise Fulfilled. Joshua 14:12-15. We have been considering some of the promises, world-wide in their scope, which God has covenanted Himself to fulfil concerning the children of men. In these verses we have recorded the fulfillment of a promise of forty-five years standing, made to an individual. Though God is busy at all times managing world activities to the end that world promises may be fulfilled, He never loses sight of individuals nor of His promises to individuals. Not so with ourselves. Sometimes we have abounding faith in God as General Manager of world affairs, but draw back reluctantly when it comes to admitting His power in individual daily affairs. We feel that this strikes at the roots of individuality and personality. On the other hand we are sometimes so engrossed with the idea of God in our individual daily affairs that our own little phase of life shuts out all else. It is well to strike a balance by realizing that God manages national and world affairs by managing individual affairs.

Was Caleb imbued with the idea of carrying forward God's work? v. 12.

FOR CLASS

What crucial point in Israel's history was considered in last week's lesson? How was it made very clear that God was the source of the power that was to overcome Canaan?

What was the next point of attack after Jericho? Describe the downfall of this city, emphasizing God's intolerance of the spirit of self-assertion in disobedience, the effectiveness and the rightness of punishment for reformation and for group welfare, and the horror and cruelty of warfare against Ai from the viewpoint of God's purpose.

Tell the story of Caleb's part in today's lesson. Why should it help us to realize and appreciate God's hand in our individual lives? Show that Caleb furnishes an example of temperate and right physical living.

— o O o —

"God was ready for them in Canaan; the old corn waited for their food. So there is stored up for every one that will forsake sin and obediently yield to God's leadership blessed food—forgiveness, conscious pardon, blessed assurance, rest of soul, peace like a river."—Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D.D.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Are you going to build one step by which to scale the "Stone Wall" of page one?

* * *

Services at Dutton, Mich., at 11 a. m., Sunday, Nov. 7, conducted by Sr. M. A. Woodward.

* * *

Demonstrations of different makes of mangles are proceeding weekly at Golden Rule Home. They're great—the mangles.

* * *

Sr. (Miss) Maybelle Hanson left Chicago, on Oct. 24, for her home in Oak Park, Minn. She expects to remain there till Christmas.

* * *

Golden Rule Greenhouse has been enjoying a good crop of fine chrysanthemums—just when everybody in nearby towns were begging for them. They were early and FINE SAMPLES.

* * *

Sr. (Mrs.) Frances Elvey and two daughters left Chicago, Oct. 15, to motor down to Oneca, Florida, to the home of one of the two daughters. They will visit relatives and friends, en route.

* * *

Grading below the conference building in Oregon, which was continued vigorously last week, must now be rested till the fall work about the gardens and greenhouse is completed.

* * *

The Departments in The Herald are arranged differently this week in an effort to overcome certain disadvantages of previous arrangement. We hope to discover an arrangement that can be made more or less permanent and regular.

* * *

On Saturday, the 23rd, Bro. McGraw was called from The Herald print shop to the bedside of his father, Calvin McGraw, at Macomb, Ill., who was on the 24th stricken with death, following several weeks of weakness due to old age and heart trouble.

How comforting the assurances of Christ that He has the keys of death and of the grave.

* * *

Bro. Sydney Magaw and family have moved to Bain, Minnesota, for a short time while they engage in gospel work with the brethren of that place. Sunday School was organized, Oct. 24, and preaching services started. If plans carried another Sunday School was organized at an outlying point on Oct. 31, and three sermons delivered.

Bro. Magaw is a willing worker in these lines and we pray the Father's blessing to attend him.

* * *

The Editor enjoyed a very pleasant season at the Michigan quarterly conference, which was also the occasion of the dedication of a new church building at Grand Rapids.

A small but well built and very attractive church has been built there. The auditorium is well seated with opera chairs, while the full basement is arranged with furnace and kitchenette at one end leaving a good sized room with tables and chairs where the junior portion of the Sunday School have their classes, and where dinner and supper were served to all comers on the 24th.

The brethren are working with a will to increase the work about Grand Rapids. May God's guiding hand lead them aright.

* * *

SALEM, ILLINOIS

Meetings at the Salem church, near Marshall, Ill., came to a close on Sunday, Oct. 24. Although weather and roads at the close were bad, we enjoyed good weather and splendid attendance throughout nearly all of the two weeks. Several from Casey cooperated in the all-day meetings on both Sundays. Two young men were obedient to the gospel, and were baptized on the 24th. They are, Harry Goekler, and Ray Galeener, both of Martinsville, Ill., Rfd. This locality presents a good field for future work and development.

F. E. Siple.

* * *

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Meetings started at the Burr Oak, Indiana, church, Oct. 14, and continued with good interest till Oct. 24. A social meeting was held every evening at 7:00 o'clock, and church at 7:30.

Bro. J. H. Anderson gave some very good sermons, that held the interest of an average attendance of fifty. We hope the success of Bro. Anderson will continue.

Myrle Hatten, Sec.

* * *

We are glad to receive a number of expressions regarding The Herald in its present form. Excepting that the loss of its old familiar appearance is regretted by one subscriber, the expressions have all indicated appreciation of the change.

Dear National Bible Institution: On Aug. 30 death took my dear daughter, aged 62 years, leaving the Jay Graham family of six to feel her loss greatly. The writer of this sad news is 84 years old. I am real well and am surely thankful for my being so and also to know the precious words of promise of eternal life through Jesus Christ. He is soon coming to raise the dead and change the living to immortality. Then will be brought about the saying, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

I would be very lonely without The Restitution Herald with its profitable Scripture lessons.

O, we find this kindergarten period very short at its longest. O, that the household of faith in Jesus' coming may have its lamps trimmed and burning when He comes.

Mrs. J. H. Brown,
Sylvan, Washington.

BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ: I am offering my father's (W. H. Wilson) books for sale for Christmas gifts.

Christmas is coming soon, at which time we celebrate the birth of our Savior. He is a gift to us, that through Him we may have life and a position in His kingdom. We are expecting Him to come soon, so let us work, for there is much seed to be sown.

Let us spread the literature that will sow the seed and bring forth fruit to life everlasting. The list of books is as follows:

Pine Woods Bible Class, 90c ea; 6 for $5.00
Students Text Book, 45c ea; or 5 for $2.00
Revelation Made Easy to Understand

25c each
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times

25c each
Can You Believe, by H. V. Reed

20c per doz., or 75c for 50
This offer will last till January 1, 1927.
All orders will be promptly filled. Thanking you in advance.

Your sister in the one hope of His coming,

Jessie M. Wilson.

HERALD RECEIPTS

F. P. Murphy; Mrs. Carrie Hilsabeck; Anna Cady; F. H. Knodle; Austin Claypool; Ida Eastman; Mrs. Ida M. Eldridge; R. C. Railsback; Mrs. F. L. Miller; Mrs. Thomas Briggs; Mrs. Ada Daniels; G. E. Coats; G. C. Coats; Mrs. Harriet Reed; J. W. McIrwin; Walter S. Koontz; L. M. Howell; J. C. Smith; Mrs. I. H. Brown; Mrs. James Hendricks; Mrs. S. H. McRoberts.

WINCE FUND

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Murphy $3.00

VICTORY

(Continued from page 70.)

purging. Sin's persistent effort of opposition can only fail continually and finally. Victory is with Him who is Sovereign and with Him to whom has been given sovereignty, and all those who faithfully ally with them are certain of continued and final victory, like as were those who stood for Moses with outstretched hands before the Amalekites.

"Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

REPORT OF ILLINOIS BIBLE SECRETARY

BELOVED GIDEON BRETJIREN: Acting as your state Bible secretary, I herewith submit to you my annual report.

Up to present date, Illinois has placed a grand total of 64,621 Gideon Bibles in the hotels and institutions of our state. We have placed a total of 4,122 Gideon Bibles during the past fiscal year. We have on hand real orders, twenty-one of them, for Gideon Bibles unfilled with a total of 7,175 Gideon Bibles wanted and no Bible money on hand to cover. We have conducted many services during the year and many conversions have resulted. Four hundred special Gideon Bibles have been placed in the Speedway Hospital in Maywood and six Gideons with choir have held services there. Eight Gideon Brethren have promised to see that the following cities are Bibles:

Mendota, Moline, Maywood, Austin, Belvidere, Polo, Galesburg, Kankakee, and Decatur. Decatur will require fully 500 more Bibles.

Quite a delegation of Illinois Gideons went to the recent state convention of the Wisconsin Gideons at Milwaukee and assisted in the Bible work.

Brethren, the harvest is ripe, "Let's go," as dear Brother Huyck expressed it, and "Let's Do" for the Master and for the traveling man. No other class of traveling men can do this Bible work quite so well as the Gideons.

Yours most sincerely,
"Till He Come"

Ernest L. Vogel, Sr.
—Selected.

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION National Bible Institution

Publishers of
THE RESTITUTION HERALD
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President, Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois.
F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIOAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Crist?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c.
God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.
The First Resurrection, 100 for $2:50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.
A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

	Each
Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate:
Robison vs. Conner	$.05
Earlier Life-Truth Exponents	.15
Will It Pay to Become a Christian?	.25
The Visitor, 212 pages	.50
The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages
Illustrated. Suitable for Gift.	.90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

Wall Mottoes Priced from 10c to 50c each
Gospel in Song 40c; 45c; and 50c each
Per 100, $30.00; $33.00; 40.00

A LASTING FINISH

By a Friend

* * * *

IT used to puzzle me why my smile was rubbed off so often by tribulation. I would have some great joy and just feel great when—bang—everything would seem to go wrong. I'd grit my teeth and hang onto my smile (though it was rather a sickly one), determined not to have it rubbed off. But off it would come—sooner or later. In fact, it seemed that not until it did come off would things improve. Then it seemed once more that the smile was put back—only to be rubbed off again.

I sat one day and thought, Why, what's the good of joy if sorrow comes to destroy the shine of it? It seemed like waste. But, let us consider. You have a piece of furniture or an automobile with a lasting finish. Now then, to produce that finish the painter put on several coats of varnish. After each coat the article shone and glistened or smiled. Then the painter would rub it down till the shine was gone. When finished, however, a lasting finish (or smile) was produced.

So it is with the believer in Christ: the smile is rubbed off many times; but the everlasting finish will be at the resurrection. No more rubbing then, but a smile that will be permanent.

The world, too, produces a finish, like a cheap piece of furniture; the varnish (or smile) is put on and not rubbed off. But this finish is only good for a short time—it fades, and when it is gone it is gone for good.

Far better to be rubbed down (even though it hurts) many times and last, than a quick, smooth finish that quickly fades and returns no more.

—o—

A CRUSADE IN WHICH CHURCH-SCHOOL TEACHERS SHOULD ENLIST

* * * *

ON a recent visit our ambassador to the Court of St. James commented humorously upon the English habit of "grousing." It seems that "grousing" differs from criticizing in that it is a habit, a set of the soul. It is really quite a national habit, Mr. Houghton thinks; the average Englishman takes actual pleasure in painting the dark side of things. Likening that to the American habit of chewing gum, Mr. Houghton says: "It exercises the same muscles, is just about the same strain on the intellect, and it affords a certain amount of comfort."

The habit is an easy one to acquire. There are numerous "grouser" in our land who do not realize their set of soul. Let us make sure that we do not fall into the habit concerning our over-discussed "problem of youth". There always has been a youth problem and there always will be. Shall we not accept the fact, and start a crusade to discourage the making of the errors of young people en masse a topic of conversation and a theme for newspaper articles, essays and books?

Here is an excellent bit of advice from an editorial in a recent religious paper: "When a man draws near the age of fifty, he ought, conscientiously and courageously, to correct his judgments of the deeds and spirit of young people about a dozen times a day, and especially if his relation to them is not very intimate and revealing. And in seeking to make such correction he ought to start on the assumption that the younger generation is likely to be better rather than worse than the older one was when it was at the same period. But whether better or worse, youth must make its own adventure in life, and it never will accept too much direction or control from those of riper years. And however much age may be able to give such direction and control, it can only be helpful as it is wise and understanding."

What is it that "grouser" criticize in the young people who attend church schools? (We are not speaking here of the youths who commit approximately seventy-five per cent of the crimes in our land, for they do not come from church schools.) They are called Sabbath-breakers, giddy, irresponsible, pleasure-seeking, irreverent, religiously indifferent. Could not the same accusations have been made with equal truth of our generation in our youth? And is our generation guiltless of these indictments now?

Do young people take automobile trips on Sunday instead of attending church and school? Who sets the example, if not their elders? Do young girls prefer to sleep on Sunday morning in order to recuperate from late Saturday evening affairs? Do their mothers never claim Sunday for rest from the card parties and social whirl of the week? Do high school and college students find Sunday useful for catching up in their studies? Do their parents never use the day planning their work, making out their income tax, attending to various miscellaneous jobs?

Young people are giddy and pleasure-loving. Are not their parents? Bishop Edwin Hughes says that he is not so much alarmed about "the sixteen-year-old flappers" as he is about "the flapper of forty-five to sixty". A famous teacher is wont to say, "The more I see of the average parent, the more highly I think of the average boy."

Shall we term our youth irreverent because they are impatient of convention and outworn tradition? All young people of to-day are by no means religious or even religiously inclined. They never have been in any generation, and they never will be. But as great numbers as ever are to-day loyally accepting the principles of Christ, and more than were the youth of former days to make them operative in service for others. In the past, youth talked more about religion, but it may well be doubted whether youth thought as much about religion as a life to be lived.

"Youth is bold as the knights of old were bold

To salvage the best that the centuries hold."

The right-minded young people to-day want to make this a better world, a warless world; they want to abolish the evils of the present social order, to reconstruct society on the basis of justice and good will; they dream of a larger world friendship and new internationalism, for they believe that Christianity should be effective in all life's relationships.

Can we not agree with a happy worker among young people who speaks of "this splendid, bewildering, adventurous, hopeful, new generation"? Let us rejoice in

CHILDREN'S PAGE

BY DAISY NOKES

CALEB'S FAITHFULNESS REWARDED

THE golden text for to-day is, "I wholly followed the Lord my God." Caleb, one of the two brave spies, said this.

Did you ever see a sail-boat on a lake with its sails opened out full and wide? The wind moves the boat by pushing against its sails. Caleb was like a sail-boat. He loved to do God's work so well that he opened up his mind and heart and always did as God wished. We, too, can be like sail-boats and let God direct us.

Joshua was the other brave spy. Now God likes to give good gifts to His children, so He made Joshua the leader of his people and promised to reward Caleb when they should enter their new home.

After a time they were safe in the promised land. God had been with them and helped them to drive away the bad people living there who did not love God.

One day Caleb came to Joshua and said, "God promised me a reward. I wholly followed the Lord my God."

Joshua let Caleb choose a part of the land to be his and his children's.

Now, if some men to-day were given their choice of land, they would choose the best, but Caleb did not. He left the best land for others and chose the rough, hilly part where it would be hard to raise the food for his family and make comfortable homes. This was very unselfish, don't you think? He had wholly followed the Lord and deserved the best, but he was so willing to do the hard things and was prepared for hard work when the time came.

"Be ye therefore ready", is another good memory verse for us to learn.

DEAR CHILDREN: You may win a prize. Why not try? We want to hear from more boys and girls, so will give you until November 30. Maybe we can find space to print some of them in the paper. Let us hear from every one of you.

Here are the names of some more "J. I. M." workers: Elma Jones, Daisy Webb, Lois Lamberson, Bobby and James Allen. These little folks are trying to tell others the "glad news". One "J. I. M." worker in California is sick and unable to walk much, but one day she walked to a Sunday School and gave a talk about "The Second Coming of Jesus" to a children's class. Hope to hear from her again.

the independence and enthusiasm, abounding energy and earnestness, high idealism and intolerance, can't and hypocrisy, of our youth, and look to them to meet William Carey's challenge: "Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God."—Tarbell's Teacher's Guide.

IN THE DAYS OF THY YOUTH

By Verna Thayer

* * * *

REMEMBER now thy Creator in the days of thy youth. Eccl. 12:1. Over and over again are we admonished in the Bible, to remember or bring back to mind the everlasting God, the Creator of all things. But here, we are especially asked to remember God in the days of our youth.

Do not wait to call upon the Lord when our life's work is nearly over, when we have nothing to offer Him but a wasted, useless life. It does not matter what phase of work in life we decide to follow; we live, grow, and develop each day, even from our very childhood, that we may serve better in that phase. We do not feel satisfied if we let one day slip by without having attained something that has developed us more perfectly for life's work. Why not so with our Christian walk of life?

"In the day of thy youth" is the time to start our walk with God. Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right. Prov. 20:11. The things that we do in childhood, day after day, develop in us habits and desires that we use in later life. Let us, then, develop such things that will help to build for Christian character.

True, many, many times we encounter hardships and discouragements, but why fear? Hath not God said, "Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not, dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of My righteousness." Isa. 41:10. "And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good? But if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled; but sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear: having a good conscience; that, whereas they speak evil of you, as of evildoers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ. For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well doing, than for evil doing."—1 Peter 3:13-18.

Let us, then, earnestly follow our Father "in the days of our youth" and give to Him our best in life, and when we come to the end may we be able to say as did Paul, in 2 Timothy 4:7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith". May our walk be as that of the just, whose path, Prov. 4:18, "is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

JESUS CHRIST—WHO IS HE?

No. 15

By R. H. Judd

WE NOW come to the study of our subject in that portion of Scripture known to us as "The Prophets", and we hope to verify our earlier remarks that as revelation proceeds the predictions concerning the Messiah increase not only in their number, but also in their interest and their significance. We may further add that in some instances they embrace subjects relating to both the first advent and the second that is yet to take place. The prophets of Israel rank high in literary attainment. Even if that alone is the point of comparison with the great of other nations, they stand without a peer, but when the subject matter of which they write is also considered, it cannot be denied that they are unparalleled in the world's classics. The themes upon which they touch are both varied and sublime, and the language by which the message is borne wafts as on snowy pinions from the very precincts of the Almighty, bringing man into touch with his Maker. Greatest among themes which vibrate from their inmost soul is the wonderful truth that the Creator of the starry host above them, can stoop down to "reason together" with men concerning their sin, and that the LORD JEHOVAH hath "laid upon Him (the Messiah) the iniquity of us all."

ISAIAH 7:14

One of the peculiarities of Scripture prophecy is that it often conveys a message for the time present that has for its purpose also the foreshadowing of a greater event yet to come. Such seems to be the case in this instance. Matthew is the only evangelist who cites this prophecy as having reference to the Christ. For that reason, and because of the evident reference that Isaiah 7:14 has to events then happening, some have endeavored to maintain that Matthew's application was not justifiable. Still another objection raised is, that although His name was to be called Emmanuel (God with us), not once in all the history of His earthly life was He called by that name. How is this to be accounted for? Two possible explanations occur to one's mind, both of which seem to be appropriate.

The first is that though the actual name "Emmanuel" was not used during His human ministry, its meaning, "God with us", was amply exemplified in the title, "Son of God", which was made use of by Himself and by others. (See John 10:36; Mark 5:7; Matt. 14:33.)

The second explanation is that while this name was predicated to be His by Isaiah, and again at His birth, yet the time of its adoption was not for the first advent, but the second. This may or may not be correct, yet there are good reasons for the suggestion. The name appears in but one other passage in Scripture, viz., Isa. 8:8. There it occurs in connection with the land that is His by promise, and of which He is the rightful Heir. Then, in that day, through Him, will God dwell with men as could not be done in His capacity of Sin-Bearer for the sins of the sons of men. The recognition of this fact alone would justify Matthew in his quotation of Isa. 7:14. We shall have occasion later in our study to again refer to the need for avoiding indiscriminate application of names given to the Messiah. Each has its appropriate application in its own time and place. To apply names now that have primary reference to our Lord's second advent—when He comes "apart from sin unto (complete) salvation" is a not infrequent cause of doctrinal error, and of confusion in the understanding of the Word.

But we must not overlook what many consider to be the main subject of this prophecy, namely, the fact of the Virgin Birth. Whether it is the main theme will depend almost altogether upon the viewpoint of the student and the enquirer. Surely, the fact of His presence, rather than the way by which He came is the fact of vital importance. Even so, God has not revealed the manner of the coming of His Son without purpose, whether it be at the first advent or whether it be at the second. The use of the name "Emmanuel" in connection with the land, is of added interest because it is a connecting link in a chain establishing the right of the Messiah to the throne of David. But, someone will say, "What has that to do with the virgin birth?" We answer, "Everything," for had Jesus Christ been the son of Joseph by natural descent, He would, according to Jer. 22:30, forever have been debarred the occupation of David's throne, hence the virgin birth, in the providence of God, became an absolute necessity of historical significance, and the very wording of the genealogy of our Lord in Matthew's gospel is changed to accommodate this unique fact. Such remarkable coincidences are utterly beyond the power of man to bring about.

Further evidence that Jesus Christ was not the son of Joseph is borne out by the facts that the writers of the New Testament (27 books in all) regarded the Lord Jesus as the Son of God in a sense which they accorded to no other person in any period of the world's history. Ten of the books speak of Him fifty times as "the Son of God", the Son of the Highest", and fifteen refer to Him eighty-six times as "the Son", or as "His Son", or "My Son" in relation to God. Thus in the New Testament we have one hundred eighty-six direct references to the divine sonship of Jesus the Christ. Six times only is He spoken of as "the son of Mary", the "son of Joseph", or as the "son of the carpenter". Sixteen times is He spoken of as "the son of David". That He should, on occasion, naturally be identified as the son of Joseph is but additional evidence of the sincerity of the writers of the New Testament in recording facts. Even in our own time a child known to be of different blood to his "parents" is by common custom and courtesy recognized as belonging to them. The question has been asked, "Whom did Mary mean when she said, 'Thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing'?" The reply is given by asking another question, "Whom did Jesus mean when He said, 'Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?" Again, can anyone read the life story of Jesus Christ without observing how frequently, and how sincerely and naturally He spoke of His Father. Whom did He mean? Certainly, not Joseph. Did any other man so speak before or since? Truly, they said, "Never man spake like this man." That God in a number of instances in ancient times intervened to impart fertility to women who were barren is abundantly attested in the Scriptures. There was Sarah the wife of Abraham, Rachel the wife of Isaac, and Hannah the mother of Samuel. Others might be mentioned. The same God who, by His Spirit, visited and blessed the women of old to make them fruitful, caused Mary to conceive by the "power of the Highest".

"Orthodoxy" maintains that owing to the virgin birth two distinct natures, human and divine, were thus combined in the one person of our Savior, each being able to act and speak independently of the other, "sometimes as God, sometimes as man". We hope, D. V., to touch upon this interesting topic when we come to the gospel narratives.

BY keeping the eye "single" the body will be led by that one eye, right along the "strait and narrow path that leads to life". And as we go, let us be careful not to judge another; for "every man to his own master stands or falls". After all, salvation is indeed an individual matter. Let charity prevail, and remember the words of Christ, "Let him that is without sin cast a stone at her."—T. C. E.

THE CHRISTIAN SPIRIT

* * * *

(Continued from page 69)

called mysteries of the Bible and that we are exempt from the unrighteous actions of others who have erroneous doctrine. In so doing we bring condemnation upon our own heads, for we are wise only in our own conceits. If we take a second thought we can see that error in doctrine does not cause one to be carnally minded. Think of the thousands that were martyred during the fifteenth century—martyred for upholding Christ against the Pope of Rome—though they possessed only a small ray of the truth that we have to-day.

It is nothing in the world but the rebounding manifestations of the lives we live. No man can lay the blame on some one else; for he is equally responsible himself. He is ruled by his emotions whether they be good or bad.

Physics of the mind or psychology says, "Man's actions as are controlled by the mind are infrequent and singularly executed, but the life that he lives, complicated actions that are so common place that he gives them no thought, is ruled by his emotions or feelings: and that these feelings are so vague the individual does not notice them or their power. But when several individuals gather into one body these individual feelings are manifested and its power sways to a certain extent the group as a whole. This power rules the group in the same manner as it does the individual in that it controls the actions in a subtle way, inexplorable, yet potent in power in demanding an attainment to its ends in view. These manifested feelings create a form of life for the group that may be called atmosphere, group environment, a condition that brings about a need of formality. When men follow some formality or other in the actions of a group of individuals, they establish that atmosphere in the group and it becomes a part of its life."

"For a group to be ruled by its mind in order to do a singular act, the group must think as one individual instead of several individuals separately."

"No individual can do the thinking for the group. The individual must produce a thought or resolution before he can act. The group must do the same. The law of thought production is an opinion drawn from a source of information by the individual compared with other opinions and facts and a conclusion or resolution formed. No man can force a conclusion on another. Each must do his own thinking, and a group must think as one, each draw up an opinion, discuss all opinions and decide on a conclusion that is agreeable to all; then action can be had provided the atmosphere or manifested feeling is in accordance with the action in mind."

"The power of this atmosphere is recognized when the feelings of the group conflict. It creates confusion and no honest conclusion can be drawn up by the group. Because the confusion of feelings creates a tension of atmosphere, that acts on the nerves which in turn kills interest and causes an antagonistic feeling to mar the life of the group, individually and as a whole."

Therefore, brethren, by studying these facts about ourselves we can see what causes strife among our brethren; why some of our churches are spiritually dead and have so little interest in Christian work other than advancing our own theories—conclusions which we try to force on some others when their minds are so constructed that it is impossible for them to accept them as the truth.

But we will ask, What about this formality that creates or establishes this worldly or heavenly atmosphere or spirit? How does it affect us in trying to live a Christian life?

We know, brethren, that one of the fundamental laws of procedure of this world, where the action of groups of individuals is concerned, is: Make every friend and relative a stranger and enemy in order to do business and to fully protect self-interests.

The world uses this policy in doing business. It has been practiced so long that it has become established in the minds of the people and when they go out to hear a minister of the Gospel their feelings manifest an antagonistic spirit. They want their interest gratified regardless of the other fellow.

These people are detrimental to the church. In Bible classes they form their conclusions before they come to class, and, following the worldly maxim, or policy, they guard these conclusions with self-interest and will not change them a whit for the benefit of the class as a whole.

They are carnally minded; they create a worldly spirit; they cause confusion which in turn creates a tension that is nerve racking and that kills interest in the subject, because a conclusion cannot be formed by the class as a whole. They are, therefore, a detriment because the class cannot succeed. Because one man believes a certain way he should not try to force it on a class.

Therefore, brethren, I am grieved for the church as a whole and I fear for some of its individuals; for, as a whole, they create an opposing spirit, and individually they create strife, contention, and unrest, which in turn destroys interest, sets examples which cause the young people to lose faith, and cause a general falling away from the truth, simply because of being carnally minded, because of following the worldly maxim. Some may not do this intentionally, but it is the only form of group-procedure the world knows of; therefore it is so deeply impressed on the human mind that when we gather together in groups these imbedded ideas create our feelings and they in turn manifest the spirit or atmosphere of the group, and it in turn creates the very life of the group.

Now, brethren, I ask you one and all: Is that worldly maxim a continuation of the clear conscience toward God that we had at baptism when we died to the things of this world, in that we were buried with Him in baptism to arise and walk in a newness of life. Think about it.

Brethren, should we not establish a new (heavenly) maxim, then do an act so as to make an impression on our subconscious mind (that which rules our emotions and feelings) in accordance with the maxim which in turn would cause our feelings to manifest a heavenly spirit or atmosphere in accordance with the things we are doing: studying the word of God.

This maxim is divinely expressed in: "Love thy neighbour as thyself"; think not of thyself more highly than thou ought to think; "Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love"; "in honour preferring one another"; "Be not wise in your own conceits"; "Bless them which persecute you"; "Be patient in tribulation, fervent in spirit; serving the Lord."

Imprint this maxim upon your subconscious brain in order that it may in turn suggest to your consciousness the opposite feeling to that of the worldly maxim. These statements in this new maxim are extracted from the Bible in irregular order, but are so arranged as to bring out the meaning opposite to the worldly maxim and at the same time be brief enough to be easily memorized.

Then with this Christian spirit manifested it is an easy matter to bow down in prayer to the Father through His Son and through the Spirit, and mortify the deeds of our bodies that we might live. And, being led by the Spirit of God, we know that we are the sons of God. Then with uplifting psalms we are ready to do the services of the Lord, to wit: that to our faith (we) add virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity; that we present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God which is our reasonable service.

A SAFE INVESTMENT

* * * *

YOU know how and where you could invest money, if you only had it, so that you could be comfortable and independent all the rest of your days! Perhaps you are correct in your way of thinking. But again, perhaps you have overlooked something. Your investment might be disappointing. And if the dividends come as you dream, you might not be so cozy in your comfort as you see it in your mind's eye. The comfort that comes from too much independence is always in danger of frost. But let's not argue. You haven't the money just now, anyway.

Then why not invest yourself? That feeling of independence, if you had too much of it, would exclude you from the very finest joys of friendship, and from a wide circle of most desirable friends. The investment of yourself would bring these things into your life as certainly as the sunrise brings the day.

Don't wait around for a chance to be somebody and to invest yourself. If you have a forgiving spirit and a kind heart, you are probably the greatest capitalist in your community. Cultivate your eye for investment opportunities. Every one of them will be safe. Every one will bring dividends. The whole community needs you. They need you every day. Your capital will increase with every investment. Your dividends will overwhelm you. They will make you more than "comfortable and independent". They will bring you into your own.

There had been a funeral in a country schoolhouse. After the service an elderly woman with a broken heart was seating herself in an automobile for a long ride homeward. Her coat, not too heavy for the cold wind that was blowing, had no button for the collar. She was so much occupied with her sorrow that she took little heed to her comfort. Her throat and chest were not cared for. There were a dozen bystanders. One of these, a younger woman, as the automobile was about to start, stepped upon the board and with little touches of the hands and looks of the eyes that said plainly, "I am suffering with you", she drew the coat together and pinned it. There seems to be no need of a recording angel to set down things like this, for who ever forgets them?

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 9, 1926

NUMBER 6

NO MORE OFFERING FOR SIN

By F. L. Austin

THE beauties and grandeurs of the New Covenant, which God has promised to make with the house of Israel, are indeed many.

Not the least of them is the one great Scriptural truth that atonement under the New Covenant is accomplished once for all time. And because of this great truth "there is no more offering for sin", Heb. 10:18. Of old, it is said in Heb. 10:11, "Every priest standeth daily ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices which can never take away sins: but this man (Jesus), after He had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God; from henceforth expecting till His enemies be made His footstool. For by one offering He hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified." He "needeth not daily, as those high priests to offer up sacrifices ; for this He did once, when He offered up Himself".

With our Savior, as it was with the Mosaic ritual of sacrifice, the offering proper was made without the holy place. In olden times a God-appointed priest carried of the offering into the holy of holies, the place of God's presence. The officiating one, Aaron and his successors, did the service of God. It was God's request that the blood of the atonement sacrifice was brought unto Him into this holiest room. It was because of God's designed purpose that it was so ordered. So with our Savior. He was crucified outside, even in the midst of profane Jewish antagonism. Kindlier hands laid Him away in a newly hewn sepulchre. From sin's chamber of death God called Him through resurrection into new, second Adamic, life to ABIDE continually in the holiest condition of all, a quickening spirit. 1 Cor. 15:45. Having entered this holiest condition, the condition of God, a few days later God seated Him at His own right hand, He still occupying the same holiest condition.

It was upon this most solemn atonement day that Israel annually under God's law and covenant of Mount Sinai, received through the atonement sacrifices, forgiveness of their various transgressions of the law and were reestablished and reinstated into the mercies and blessings of the promises attending that law and covenant.

Likewise it is through the atonement accomplished by our self-sacrificing Savior that the individual, whom- soever he may be—Jew or Gentile—having approached God through faith, receives of the efficacy of the atoning blood of Christ, our Lord, even the forgiveness of sins. Thus atoned, the individual stands before God, not only with all statutory offenses cancelled, but with those of life itself forgiven, and with life cleansed, purged, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

It is for this reason, namely, to enter into covenant relationship with God through Jesus Christ, that one obeys from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered, Rom. 6:17, and is buried with Christ "by baptism into death", Rom. 6:4: "that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father (even into the holiest of all, God's established positions), even so we also should walk in newness of life—even the life of Christ.

Having received this atonement which is once for all time, the individual thereafter is entitled to that grandest of all grand privileges in the Christian career, to approach the Father at all times and to obtain that forgiveness which frees him from sin and its snare. "There remaineth therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit", Rom. 8:1.

Who can measure with finite mind this unspeakable privilege provided for man by God through His Son Jesus Christ? It takes one by hope into everlasting abode with God. Not so in fact, yet, for as yet we are unable, to lay off in fact the carnal nature. Death and death only can do that. And to be received bodily into the presence and abode of God the individual must become in fact a new creature with the old, carnal, mortal, finite laid aside and with the new, the immortal, the spiritual established. Thus we enter into the spirit of Paul's statement in 2 Cor. 5: "We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

All this is accomplished because of the fact that by one offering for sins our great High Priest, Christ, has entered for all time into the holy of holies, "having obtained eternal redemption".

"KNOWING THE TIME"

By W. S. Hottel

"And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed."—Rom. 13:11.

THESE are pertinent words and words that we should ponder deeply in our hearts. It is well for us to know the time. It is well for us to know what hour of the day or night it is. It is well for us to pause and to look around us and take our bearings. Let us get alone with God, and think, and pray, and listen to His voice. We are apt to be so busy, so occupied, so engrossed that we get out of breath from the rush. Let us catch our breath and get quiet before God. Above all, let us get our Master's Word and know that we are going forth from Him.

The rest of this striking verse tells us just where we are. It is night, but "the night is far spent; the day is at hand." It is time to awake out of sleep. It is time to get up so as not to be found sleeping after sunrise. It is time to put on the armor, for we are in the midst of foes, and the battle is on. It is time to put off the night clothes, these do not become us in the day time, neither will they do. We need to put on the Lord Jesus as our enrobing and go forth to walk with Him, and work for Him, and fight His battle until the glad hour shall strike, and Heaven and earth shall say, "The Lord has come."

*"Jesus is coming His saints to release,
Coming to give to this warring world peace;
Sinning and sighing and sorrow will cease;
Jesus is coming again!"*

—Selected.

BOOKS

By Auntie Wince

WE value books because of their contents, a blank book for what can be put into it, and other books for what is already there. But, if our books contain nothing that will make us wiser and better we had best be without them; or, if they are not used, of what advantage are they to us?

Books become our friends only when we become intimately acquainted with them. Even a book of reference is not of much account if we know nothing of what it has to give us.

Make friends of your books, use them, go over them again and again. Commit fine passages and poems to memory, you can do it. Even the busy housewife and the toiler at the loom can lay by a lot of lovely things. Tack up a poem in some handy place near your washpan, for instance and when you go to wash your face catch a line, the next time another, and keep at it until the whole thing is memorized. "Let patience have her perfect work".

You can read books in much the same way, only for this purpose you must snatch the longer intervals of time. One young girl committed many choice poems while turning the old-fashioned spinning wheel.

A lady said to me the other day, "I never expect to read another book. How much she will miss! We might as well say, "We never expect to make another friend."

Keep on reading until your eyes get too dim to see. You think you must know what is happening in the world to-day, and it is very important that you should. You would not know whether we were near to the end of the gospel age or not if you did not read. So study books and most of all the Bible. It gives light in a dark place till the day dawns and the day Star appears.

BREAD UPON THE WATERS

'Mid the losses and the gains,
'Mid the pleasures and the pains,
And the hopings and the fears,
And the restlessness of years,
We repeat this promise o'er—
We believe it more and more—
Bread upon the waters cast
Shall be gathered at the last.

Gold and silver, like the sands,
Will keep slipping through our hands;
Jewels, gleaming like a spark,
Will be hidden in the dark;
Sun and moon and stars will pale,
But these words will never fail:
Bread upon the waters cast
Shall be gathered at the last.

Soon, like dust to you and me,
Will our earthly treasures be;
But the loving word and deed
To another in his need,
They will unforgotten be!
They will live eternally—
Bread upon the waters cast
Will be gathered at the last.

Fast the moments slip away,
Soon our mortal powers decay,
Low and lower sinks the sun,
What we do must soon be done;
Then what rapture if we hear
Thousand voices ringing clear—
Bread upon the waters cast
Shall be gathered at the last!

BURNING UP A GENERATION

By Mrs. Melba Glanton-Arlington

DURING the last few weeks we have been much concerned about the terrible hurricane of Florida and the storms and cyclones of the east and west. People are eagerly sending money and food to these stricken areas, which is a wonderful thing to do, but, are we just as eagerly helping to rescue the victims of a gigantic whirlwind of smoke, which is sweeping the world?

Are you aware of the fact that we are in the midst of a plague which, if not halted, will cause a great decay of future generations? I am referring to the cigarette habit. The manufacture and sale of cigarettes has increased by the thousands in the last two years. And why? Because our women are smoking, too.

It is bad enough to see our men, young and old, smoking things which we know are injurious to life, but when the women help to lower the standard of morality, we must take heed. But you say, "The cities have women smokers but not our smaller communities." There you are wrong. This great evil has spread into towns of only a few hundred population.

A short time ago a prominent young lady was discussing with me the object of smoking. She told me that nearly every girl in her "set" smoked when away from public observation. I asked her why these young people liked to smoke, and she said, "Why, because it's fun and it looks very elite."

Do you really think it fun to destroy humanity? It is indeed a very serious question. Another has said that she smokes because the best women do. In my opinion the best women are the ones who uphold the standard of cleanliness and virtue, regardless of how much money they may possess.

A few weeks ago I was shocked to learn that a young woman whom I had always admired for her beauty and goodness had learned to smoke. She is a leader in the church and social life of a community. Not long ago a very prominent woman entertained at dinner. After the dinner had been served, she decided to pass the cigarettes, just to try out her guests. I am sorry to say that every woman smoked one, except the hostess. How I admire that woman, for it certainly took courage, and one need only look upon her face to see the stamp of fine character and know that she is a lady.

I am going to receive criticism, ugly remarks and black looks for all these things that I have said, because men and women do not like to hear bad things about their earthly "gods", even though they are true. However, I have said them in love and because I have a son and daughter growing up with the next generation, and it does no good to mold life after the habits are formed.

Nicotine is a deadly poison, and I say frankly that the cigarette habit is just as dangerous as the morphine habit; it works just a trifle slower. Even the dictionary tells us that tobacco is a narcotic plant. When you see men and women become ill for days, walk the floor for hours at a time, unable to eat or sleep, trying to break themselves of the habit, as I have seen them do, can we actually defend this drug and say it is not harmful? It requires only an hour to form the habit, but it takes weeks to break it.

A very prominent judge in New York says that every one of the hundreds of boys and girls brought into the juvenile court smoke cigarettes. Last year I was in a position to watch the young boys, nine to eighteen years old, on their way to school. They would congregate by the dozens in secret places and smoke; the older boys furnishing the "smokes" for the younger ones. My boy may sneak out and smoke, but it won't be because he hasn't been warned at home; and just because he is my boy will not make the offense any less deplorable. A little boy once said, "I have a wonderful daddy, and when I grow up I want to be just like him." That very day his much ashamed father smoked his last cigar, and his reward is a fine, manly son, ready for college, unstained with nicotine.

Tobacco irritates the nerves, deadens the powers of resistance and weakens the heart and lungs. With this knowledge can we look into the future and see what the next generation will be? I believe the loveliest picture in the world is that of a pure young mother holding her innocent babe. Is that picture to be replaced with one of a mother holding her baby in one arm while she reaches for a cigarette with the other?

I am appealing to the women especially. Please try to help stamp out a deadly plague that will ruin our boys and girls. It took the honorable and upright women of our nation to put forward the temperance movement, and when it comes to another deadly serpent creeping in to destroy our loved ones, they can come forward again, if necessary.

It is love for humanity and the desire to do my bit for God's great kingdom which prompts me to say these things. The spirit of love goes with it.

RELIGIOUS JOURNALISM EXPENSIVE

OCTOBER 14, The Christian Advocate, published by the Methodist Episcopal Church in New York City, stated that some prominent ministers and laymen of the Presbyterian Church had been trying to devise means to endow a strong and representative Presbyterian periodical, but had not succeeded.

They agreed that such a paper could not be conducted without an annual deficit of twenty thousand dollars. To meet that shortage they sought to raise an endowment of four hundred thousand dollars.

The statement is interesting as showing the financial sacrifice at which a clean, high-class periodical, such as most Protestant Churches publish, must be produced.

The cheap and untidy periodicals of Rome can be maintained because the papal machinery compels advertisers to patronize them. But able and deserving Christian and patriotic journals with endowment must rely on the benevolence of appreciative friends to supplement their meager incomes and meet their expenses.

Without such favors in substantial amounts from those financially blessed and in less sums from many others it would not be possible for periodicals which are doing work of inestimable value to continue their existence. Pioneers in reformatory movements seldom lay up treasures on this earth. Their reward awaits them where moth and rust do not corrupt and thieves do not enter.— The Protestant.

MY RESOLVE

To live as gently as I can;
 To be, no matter where, a man;
 To take what comes of good or ill;
 And cling to faith and honor still;
 To do my best, and let that stand
 The record of my brain and hand;
 And then, should failure come to me,
 Still work, and hope for victory.
 To have no secret place where in
 I stoop unseen to shame and sin;
 To be the same when I'm alone,
 As when my every deed is known;
 To live undaunted, unafraid
 Of any step that I have made;
 To be without pretense or sham
 Exactly what men think I am.

—Edgar A Guest.

THE TRINITY AND DEITY OF CHRIST

(This article, though written primarily for the "Toronto Globe", is at the same time offered to Herald readers. Bro. Judd's numerous letters to the "People's Column" of The Globe, one of Canada's greatest dailies, draw frequent response and no little favorable comment.—Ed.)

Editor of The Globe: In The Globe of Oct. 21, Mr. Judd, in courteous manner, which I desire to reciprocate, challenges the several positions taken in my letter of Oct. 12, on the Trinity and the Deity of Christ. I said that the Christian Church in all her branches, without exception, holds both these doctrines. He denies this. Will Mr. Judd name any branch of the Church, Roman Catholic or Protestant, that does not hold both these doctrines? He brands the Athanasian creed as "an absurdity". Well, Mr. Judd believes that man's body is human, his soul is human, and his spirit is human; but these three humans are united in one person. In like manner the Athanasian Creed says: "The Father is God, the Son is God, and the Holy Spirit is God. And yet there are not three Gods, but one God."

The Father, in addressing the Son, says, "Thou", and the Holy Spirit, in addressing the Father or the Son, says, "Thou", and this implies personality.

By the Savior's own direction baptism is to be administered in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. And the Apostolic Benediction includes the names of the three persons in the Godhead.

Man is both mortal and immortal—mortal in respect of his body and immortal in respect of his spirit. There is no such conflict between the teaching of Scripture and the teaching of the Church as Mr. Judd asserts, on that question. I am glad to see he avows loyalty to the Bible, and I hope, in view of his intelligence, he may come to a fuller and clearer knowledge of it.

W. T. McMullen.

EDITOR "The Globe": Some reply will be expected of me to Dr. McMullen's letter in the issue of October twenty-ninth. Though, in his letter, Dr. McMullen would limit "the Christian Church" to the "Roman Catholic and Protestant" denominations, he would, I feel sure, be personally slow to aver that all outside of those denominations would come under the fearful anathema of the Athanasian Creed and therefore "perish everlastingly".

The true Christian Church, in the mind of the writer, is made up of those who (irrespective of the denomination to which they are by nature born) "believe (in the heart, as Paul would say) on Him (note the pronoun and number) that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead, who was delivered up for our offences, and was raised for our justification" (Rom. 4:24, 25, R. V.). But the Doctor will expect an answer from the point of view of his question. That he should include on a par with his own denomination the Roman Catholic Church, as being an integral part of the "Christian Church", is perhaps not surprising in these days of apostasy from Scripture truth. Does the Doctor know nothing of the Christadelphian body—"the sect everywhere spoken against"? Or, has he never heard of the Churches of God, whose reverence for the Word of God is not short of his own? Neither of these accept the doctrine of the trinity, or the Deity of Christ as the latter is held by "orthodoxy".

As to the "absurdity" of the Athanasian Creed, let any of your readers carefully read it in its entirety, and then honestly declare whether my statement is not in full accord with truth. How, I ask, can "every person by himself be God" . . . and "yet there are not three Gods, but one God."

If Dr. McMullen can bring us to a "clearer knowledge" of this matter which he himself styles "a mystery", he will perform a feat hitherto unaccomplished by any man, past or present. With reference to the word, "Thou", said to be used by the Holy Spirit in addressing the Father and Son, will the Doctor kindly quote one passage where such actually occurs? As to the baptismal formula, there is much embraced in its exegesis, but seeing the Doctor does not practice baptism (see Rom. 6:4, R. V.), it is somewhat amazing he should quote Matt. 28:19. If he would read "Holy Spirit" in place of "Holy Ghost", it would help him in the elucidation of his difficulty. Also if he would bear in mind the fact that the Lord Jesus Himself said that the Holy Spirit "proceedeth" from the Father, it would be knowledge gained, for the Holy Spirit is "the power of the Highest" (Luke 1:35). Language is applied to the Holy Spirit that cannot by any rule of grammar be applied to personality, and is never, under any conditions, applied to either the Father or the Son. On the other hand, impersonalities are sometimes personified in Scripture.

Dr. McMullen states that "man is mortal in respect to his body, immortal in respect of his spirit." He also says, "There is no conflict between the teaching of Scripture and the teaching of the Church on this matter". Then let us have the Bible statement, clear and emphatic, that "man is immortal in respect of his spirit"—body and soul the Doctor himself rules out. The suggestion of the "three humans" is the most novel idea I have met with for some time, and there have been several of late in "The Globe". Verily, if there were seven gods, they would find an illustration in the rainbow.

Several of your correspondents, including yourself in Editorial, have said Jesus Christ "distinctly claimed Deity". Why do not our friends quote Scripture for their statement? Obviously they cannot. He appears to have denied being the Deity in John 10:36. Had He claimed Deity He could rightly have been stoned according to the law of Moses which He Himself upheld.

In conclusion, I may say, that I have a religion that is based upon God's Word, which can be expressed in the language of God's Word, and which meets the needs of my head and my heart, and is in full conformity with facts as we know them.

There are other questions bearing on this important matter (for surely the knowledge of God is the most important) that I should like to ask the Doctor for the benefit of others, but fear I have already exceeded the space allowed by a generous Editor.

Yours in Christian bonds,

R. H. Judd.

A DOLLAR A DAY FOR READING THE BIBLE

A COLPORTER was recommending the Bible to a man at the close of a meeting in a western town. The man refused the book, saying he had his "fill" when he was a boy. He told how his father always made him read it Sunday afternoons, until he never wanted to see the inside of a Bible again. He declared that he would not pay five cents for the finest Bible ever published, and that he wouldn't read it for less than $1.00 a day.

At that moment, the evangelist who had come up unobserved, spoke to the man, saying, "Brother, I'll take your offer. Pick out the best Bible in stock, read a chapter that I suggest every day, for the fourteen days that I will be here, and when I go, you come back and I'll pay you $1.00 for every day you have kept your agreement, and make you a present of the Bible besides."

The man could not gracefully decline, and so accepted the offer, picked out the finest Bible and took the list of Scripture passages to be read, and left. He was not at the meeting the next night nor the following night, and on the fourth day the colporter and the evangelist began to wonder what had become of this man. They kept praying for him though. The next night he was at the meeting. However, he managed to get away before anyone could speak to him; and thus he came intermittently and always left before services were out, and in this way eluded the brethren who were trying to speak to him.

Seeking Refuge in a Barn

On the twelfth day they decided to call on him. As they came to his house, on a small farm a few miles from town, the farmer's wife greeted them, and, when they inquired about her husband, told them that she could not imagine what had come over him of late; that for days he had been spending hours in the barn; that he seemed so pre-occupied and somehow changed that she would be very glad if they would find him and see if they could help him in some way.

They went to the barn where they found him on his knees in prayer. Beside him on a feed box lay the open Bible. He was praying his way into the kingdom of God. Thoroughly penitent, longing for forgiveness of his sins, he had found his Savior through the reading of the Word.

It is needless to say that the evangelist did not need to pay the $1.00 per diem price agreed upon, nor would the farmer accept the Bible as a gift—he paid for it. —Pittsburgh Advocate.

"THE persistent effort to give everybody a lift when possible; to make everybody with whom we come in contact a little better off; to radiate sunshine, cheer, hope, good will; to scatter flowers as we go along: not only brings light and joy to other hearts, but opens wide the door to our own happiness."

GOD'S BOUNTIFUL PROVISION

"Thou preparest a table before me. . . . My cup runneth over.—Psalm Twenty-three.

And indeed has He not "filled us with the finest of wheat" (Christ's body broken on our behalf—commemorated by the breaking of "Bread" at our meetings), and indeed has not God bidden us to come and eat freely of the fatness of His table and drink freely of the fruit of the vine (commemorated by the wine at our meetings, symbolizing the blood of Christ)? He has not withheld any good gift or perfect gift, but abundantly has He bestowed blessings innumerable. Out of the mire, He has set our feet upon the "strait and narrow path that leads to life", He has strengthened us with might in the inner man, our strength has been renewed and by His might are we in the world, yet not of the world.

In fact, "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof", and what can we render unto Him for all our benefits?

We can take the "cup of salvation", for that is well-pleasing in the sight of Him from whom all blessings flow. Amen.—T. C. Eggerking.

"Some men are brooding o'er the past, to some the future seems a thing to make them stand aghast, it spoils their midnight dreams. But I have found that dreaded woes don't often come on time; and if they do, we take their blows with fortitude sublime. . . . At all events it doesn't pay to brood o'er coming ills; why not enjoy this present day, and from it get some thrills."—Walt Mason.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

RELIGIOUS LITERATURE

THE matter of enlarging our religious literature has been earnestly hoped for for years in the past. But the problems connected with such an effort are many. Very few people have opportunity to realize what these problems are. The little selection on page 83, entitled, "Righteous Journalism Expensive", will show what some of the stronger denominations are wrestling with. This is but one of many similar such statements. All religious effort is dependent upon continued, though varied, cooperation of the brotherhood. There is no such undertaking that is self-supporting or even approximates self-support. If the author's services are not contributed gratis, then the difficulty is increased the more.

This can possibly be better understood when we succeed in grasping the fact that the current general literature of the land is practically altogether sustained by advertising space carried with it. Our daily papers which we cherish so highly usually give no more than one-tenth to one-quarter of their space to news or literary articles. The balance is advertising. The same is true in different proportions with the magazines and other periodicals that are circulated. It is the advertising that defrays the costs and provides the profits. It is necessary for a religious organization to grasp these facts if a religious literature is to be maintained.

Therefore as we launch out in an effort to provide Sunday School literature in answer to a query of several years past, it is hoped that one and all will realize something of the tremendous responsibility and care and ANXIETY that must be borne by those who undertake to make the effort possible. While we need every constructive criticism that can be offered, we also need the heartiest cooperation from one and all. A statement relative to the quarterlies will be found on page 93.

* * * *

BENEFITS OF ORDER

MAN is created with ability to choose. He has his natural likes and dislikes. He visualizes his ideals. He has the power to endeavor to so order his activities as to realize his aim in life. It has been proven by long experience that the man who systematizes his work with a view to a given accomplishment is the one who, generally speaking, makes greatest success.

The Scriptures build much upon this same principle. Habit is recognized throughout the Sacred Word. Not only the habit of man's natural inclination, but also the cultivated habit is emphasized.

Sister Myrle Hatten in last week's Herald called attention to a system which God prescribed for His chosen nation, Israel. That system was to be their habit of procedure. It came to be regular action with them. The result was regular, continual thought of God with like service unto Him. The performance of every transaction of life brought consideration of God definitely before the mind.

The matter referred to is the matter of tithing. Every income to the individual was tithed. The tithe belonged to Jehovah. It was a system for them to follow. This system became a habit. Thus in this respect their entire activity had order and system connecting their labors to God. Thus God was brought more and more prominently and vividly before their minds. Every labor of life in being planned included God in consideration. Undoubtedly this consideration of God and God's wishes modified many of their aims and decisions. They could hardly aim at efforts which would eventually displease God while they were expecting to devote a tithe of the income of the effort to God. Such would not be well-pleasing to Him.

The benefits to man from tithing are not alone pecuniary. They are moral as well. And in the Christian life, being moral, they tend to encourage spirituality. The system of tithing can not be emphasized too seriously or too strongly. Besides adopting the system which the wisdom of God approves as a proper and just system, one thus habituates himself to orderly service and procedure in life—Christian life. Such orderliness must result beneficially.

It is difficult to improve God's methods.

* * * *

FAITH

WITHOUT faith it is impossible to please God. And this word "please" evidently means vastly more than just to tickle or thrill. It undoubtedly has in it the thought of "satisfy".

To live before God so that He, being satisfied with us, approves of our aims and efforts, is to be "perfect" before Him, even as He is perfect. This is in full agreement with the truth that, through Christ, He purges us from all sin; washes us in the blood of the Lamb.

How?

Through faith. Faith, which pleases, satisfies God is reckoned for righteousness, for a man of faith is a man of work—steady, constant, hard work.

* * * *

"THOSE who have the presence of Christ, need never shrink or fear."

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

WE have no official report as yet, but understand that on Monday, October 25, the brethren at Casey, Ill., met at the home of Bro. and Sr. Allen Weaver and organized a Senior Berean class. This has been needed for a long time, and we pray that much good may come from this movement.

* * * *

The benefits of meeting in church and class work frequently were fully realized by Paul, who spoke in Hebrews 10:25, as follows: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." Frequent association together in the cause for which we stand causes us to be strengthened materially for life's work. Worldly organizations recognize the principle, and hence a sales organization calls its members together regularly and they talk over their experiences, and some expert helps them unravel their problems. But in our Christian service there is even more reason to meet regularly, for it is only in this way that we can come to really feel the family ties that should bind us to one another as brothers and sisters. Contact, and sympathy with each other's trials, cause a closeness of feeling, and the greatest weakness of the church today is the lack of that feeling. Difficulties in the church are nearly always traceable to lack of understanding and proper feeling between certain individuals.

These facts all being true, can you not see the wonderful opportunity for Berean work to help unify and strengthen the cause at each local point, as well as in a larger way the country over? Let's all go to these services, and put ourselves into the work.

* * * *

"And so much the more as ye see the day approaching." This part of the great apostle's statement should be especially heeded by us to-day as world events and developments so clearly foretell the approach of the time of the end. The tendency to live simply for the thrills and satisfaction of the present life has been increasing steadily, and will continue to increase. Reverence for things sacred, and for purity of life becomes more and more scarce, and the young person out in the world hears and sees and feels the vulgar side so much that it takes the staunchest kind of character to stand the test and keep untarnished. And even the person with the staunch character needs the association with and encouragement of others who are trying, too. And he needs inspiration from frequent contact with God's Word.

THE BAPTISM OF JESUS

By Esther Sealine

JOHN THE BAPTIST was preaching in the wilderness of Judaea, saying, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." He also preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. People went out unto him from all the land of Judaea, Jerusalem and from the region round about Jordan. Confessing their sins, he baptized them in the river Jordan. Then came Jesus, when He was about thirty years of age, from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him. It may seem strange that Jesus, being without sin, should request baptism.

John refused him, saying, "I have need to be baptized of Thee, and comest Thou to me?"

Then Jesus answered him, Matt. 3:15, "Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness.

John baptized Him in the river of Jordan and Jesus went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, He saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit of God in the form of a dove descending upon Him. And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Mark 1:11, "Thou art My Son, in whom I am well pleased."

* * * *

"The Church should be kept the source of spiritual life and power. Never before did the world so need emphasis upon the 'faith of our fathers living still.'"—Rev. B. Allen Reed.

* * * *

FAITH AND WORKS

THERE is keen irony as well as truth in the suggestion that a faith which has no deeds often has abundant talk. The people who least live their creeds are not seldom the people who shout loudest about them. The paralysis which affects the arms does not, in these cases, interfere with the tongue. James had seen plenty of that kind of faith, both among the Pharisees and Jewish Christians, and he had a holy horror of loose tongues (James 3:2-12). That kind of faith is not extinct yet, and we need to urge James' question quite as much as he did: "Can that faith save?" Observe the emphasis of "that" which the Revised Version rightly gives. . . . Emotions and beliefs which do not shape conduct are worthless. . . . Motion is the test of life. A "faith" which does nothing, which moves no limb, is a corpse.—Maclaren.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—Nov. 14—Heb. 10:19-39	Mem. V. 25
Monday—Nov. 14—Heb. 11:1-19	Mem. V. 3
Tuesday—Nov. 16—Heb. 11:20-40	Mem. V. 33
Wednesday—Nov. 17—Heb. 12	Mem. V. 1
Thursday—Nov. 18—Heb. 13	Mem. V. 8
Friday—Nov. 19—James 1	Mem. V. 27
Saturday—Nov. 20—James 2	Mem. V. 8

IN FULL ASSURANCE OF FAITH

THE apostle not only reveals that peace of mind which attends all who have complete, intrepid faith, but he exhorts the same full assurance unto one and all Christians—"Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience". In former times they had had their "bodies washed with pure water", but Paul is anxious that the conscience might be "purified from dead works", 9:14, and, to that end, that they should draw very close unto Him who is in the holiest place and that they should, v. 23, "hold fast the profession of faith without wavering."

PROVOKE UNTO LOVE AND TO GOOD WORKS

What a high, laudatory aim this is. To consider one another's interest and to encourage, enthuse, inspire, provoke the other unto greater love and unto more of good works. To this end he exhorts them,—“not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together”, but with constant recurrent assembling, to “exhort one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching”.

This last aptly applies to the people of to-day, in that the day of the return of Christ is evidently rapidly approaching. How much, therefore, the necessity of frequent assemblage and constant exhortation for encouragement. How earnestly should we encourage with our own presence and service every appointment for assembling for study and worship.

THIS IS FOLLOWED BY SOLEMN WARNING

“There remaineth, therefore, no more sacrifice for sins”. Christ has died once for all. He will never repeat His atonement sacrifice. And for those who have really entered into Christ, “who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come,”—for such it is “impossible” “if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance: seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh”. Such a crucifixion, being a purposeful repetition at heart of that heinous affront and by one who has tasted of the goodness of the atonement and its fruits, would apparently require a new atonement offering for reconciliation. But inasmuch as there remaineth no more such sacrifice it follows that there can be “but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversary”.

FAITH

All of the foregoing hopes and blessings to be realized in and through Christ are by the apostle built definitely and positively upon the one great principle of faith, chapter 11. Faith is the ground of confidence upon which all hope rests. By way of illustrating even the temporal benefits that result from faith the apostle has listed many examples of the past dispensation, showing how that each and every instance of true heart-faith and -service unto God has been manifoldly rewarded by Him.

Nor is one's conduct resulting from faith, alone and altogether miraculous. For who has not observed that the individual possessing calm but fervent and complete faith in his aim and effort moves forward unhesitatingly in the face of any and all circumstances. So the one serving God, if he hears God's word of guidance and God's promise of victory and final reward, moves with a serenity and simple boldness that verifies the heart conviction and trust, and gives confidence of victory.

Therefore, in view of all of these illustrations,

LET US RUN WITH PATIENCE THE RACE

And to this end Paul earnestly exhorts, chapter 12, that we look unto Jesus as the One who not only introduced faith before us, but the One who also finished by faith. Faith can only be built upon reliable information, and Christian faith can be built only upon the understood Word of God. It is only when one understands that God “is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him”, that one begins to exercise faith toward God. As the revealed word comes to be more and more fully understood, so faith increases, service increases, the zeal in the race toward the mark increases, and one more and more presses toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

LOOKING UNTO JESUS

It is not sufficient to look back upon the faith of Abram or Moses or Daniel, chapter 11. Their rewards “have not yet been fully realized, not being yet due”, and therefore the lesson of faith, though great, is incomplete. We are to look unto Jesus whose manifest faith has been rewarded far beyond that of any other person, for He being raised unto a new, a second Adam life, has passed beyond the bounds of any yet remaining in the nature of the first Adam or still congealed in death awaiting resurrection. Therefore, look to Jesus, observe Him, and press forward.

(Continued on page ninety-four)

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

JOSHUA RENEWING THE COVENANT
LESSON 8 NOVEMBER 21, 1926
LESSON TEXT: JOSHUA 24:1-28
RESPONSIVE READING PSALM 107
JOSHUA 24:14-22

Golden Text: Choose ye this day whom ye will serve but as for me and my house we will serve the Lord.—Joshua. 24:15.

FOR STUDY

Review: During the conquest of Canaan, after the fall of Jericho, how did God make it clear to Israel that disobedience could have no part in her national development? Recall other times when Israel's progress toward nationalism was checked for a similar reason. Has this absolute and direct loyalty to the one living God ever been required from any other people in their national development? Why not?

What does the story of Caleb in last week's lesson reveal concerning God?

The New Lesson: In this week's lesson we find Israel in possession of her land and thus much nearer the goal of nationalism which God has in store for Abraham and his seed. The possession of land is one of the basic requirements of nationalism. In possession of her land, Israel begins definitely another phase of her national growth—the development of customs, ideals, and institutions which should be the full expression of an inner life lived in harmony with God's will. This week's lesson makes a wise beginning in that direction.

I. The Purpose of History. Joshua 24:1-13. Read carefully Joshua's resume of Israel's history. Where and through whom did it begin? Were these men called because they were worshiping God? VV. 2, 3. Whom does Joshua set forth as the dominant figure in Israel's history? What array of evidence does Joshua build up to show Israel that all she is and has are hers through God's power? What verses contain the climax evidence? Can you recall other times when the leaders of Israel reviewed her history in public gatherings? Do any of the Psalms give a resume of Israel's history? Name some of the New Testament teachers who did the same thing. By what concrete devices was Israel's history preserved for posterity? Toward what central truth did all historical evidence point? Deut. 4:33-39. Can individual history serve the same purpose to individuals, if the individual takes time to recall and study his history?

II. The Value of History. Joshua 24:14-18. History does not depict the existence and supremacy of God for the mere sake of pressing home that conviction on the minds of men. It has a definite value in the lives of nations and individuals, and this value is definitely set forth in verses 14 and 15. What is it? Does this value accrue benefits to God or to men? Give reasons.

When God first took Israel out of Egypt, He did not put the matter of obeying Him up to the choice of the people. He merely overpowered their unbelief by a display of miracles, Ex: 4:1-9. At this point in her development He leaves the matter to their choice, uninfluenced by signs and wonders. The explanation for this difference is found in the difference between the backgrounds of experience for the two periods. Can you show that at this period Israel had a good basis for judging whether or not it was evil to serve the Lord, a basis which was lacking when she left Egypt?

Let us use care in judging harshly those individuals who do not respond readily to the same stimuli to which we respond. No two people are developed equally, perhaps. How did the people respond to this privilege of choice? On what evidence did they base their choice? Why could not any other people in the world at that time have made the same choice? Were the people of Israel nearer to the realization "that the Lord, He is God in heaven above and upon the earth beneath, there is none else" (See Deut. 4:39), than they were when they first entered into law covenant agreement with God? Compare the words of their first agreement, Ex. 19:8, with the words of this renewal, Joshua 24:16-18. In the first there is mere agreement to do. In the second there is definite acknowledgment of God's power and of personal relationship with Him.

Did Joshua have the least doubt as to his choice?

Does the background of one's experience have anything to do with the choices one makes? Does an occasional review of one's history have any influence on choosing?

III. A Home Thrust. Joshua 24:19-28. There is an apparent contradiction between v. 14 and v. 19. But v. 23, with Matt. 6:24, brings harmony. After leading the people to making a definite outspoken choice (always a good thing to do) Joshua then reveals to them something of the depth of that choice, a depth that reaches to the innermost recesses of the heart and of the inner life.

He first tells them pointedly that they cannot serve God, vs. 19, 20. (Read the last clause of v. 19 as a part of v. 20 to make harmony.) Then he brings from them the admission that their words would be a testimony against them in case they should fail, v. 22. Lastly, he deals his telling stroke, v. 23, showing why they cannot serve God.

After this process do you think Israel's agreement (v. 24) would be an expression of a deeper realization of what serving God meant? Was God gaining headway with His purpose in Israel? How did Joshua provide for the commemoration of this advance in Israel's development?

Leaders in all nations provide for the commemoration of great events in national development. And the leaders in all nations, except those in Israel, make the memorials point to and commemorate their own great strength and wisdom. The leaders in Israel invariably make their nation's memorials point to and commemorate the greatness of God's strength and wisdom. The memorials are simple in construction, and thus not even man's workmanship is permitted to detract the people's consciousness from the God they commemorate.

Truly Israel is a peculiar people.

FOR CLASS

What truth is demonstrated in the story of Achan's disobedience studied in last week's lesson? Why does it contribute to faith in the soundness of Israel's national development and in her future influence in world affairs? Why does the story of Caleb, studied in last week's lesson, contribute to faith in God?

At what stage in national development is Israel in this week's lesson? Discuss Joshua's resume of Israel's history, its chief point of interest and its purpose.

Discuss the value of history in the lives of nations and individuals, from Joshua's viewpoint. Bring out the relationship between one's history and his power to choose. What definite growth does Israel's renewal of her covenant relationship with God show?

What is the value of memorials as used in Israel and as used in other nations?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. Siple's Adeline appointment will be filled next Sunday by Bro. J. Arthur Johnson.

* * *

The Dixon, Ill., church has announced services Sunday, Nov. 14, by Bro. Paul C. Johnson.

* * *

Sr. Esta Lansbery is spending a week with her parents, Bro. and Sr. W. V. Lansbery, at Casey, Ill.

* * *

The Oregon Sunday School has ordered 100 Sunday School Quarterlies. It's a cheap way to evangelize, is the idea. Every Sunday School visitor will receive a copy.

* * *

Attention is called to an appeal of Sr. Orpha Sanford to be found on page 96.

* * *

SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLIES See Editorial, "Religious Literature", on page 93

Receipt of orders for Sunday School Quarterlies from the following named localities, is hereby acknowledged. God willing, quarterlies will be mailed early in December. We cannot hope to issue quarterly for primary classes this time.

All others wanting these quarterlies must notify us at once that we may know how many to print. For price, see page 93.

South Bend, Indiana	35
Ripley, Illinois	36
Marshall, Illinois	40
Bear, Arkansas	6
Eldorado, Illinois	30
Brush Creek, Ohio	50
Washington, D. C.	3
Gladbrook, Iowa	18
Hammond, Louisiana	35
Grand Rapids, Michigan	50 or 40
Oregon, Illinois	100
Waite Park, Minnesota	50
Corvallis, Oregon	25
Cleveland, Ohio	100

I personally thank you, each one, for your prompt reply. May God's guidance lead us each in righteous service.

F. L. Austin.

* * *

Fall evangelistic work is being pushed as energetically as possible. The meetings at Ripley, Ill., are now in full swing and will continue over the 14th. Bro. Siple then returns to Dixon for two weeks work with them before going to Ohio for a meeting at Brush Creek.

* * *

Sunday School Quarterlies are mentioned on page 93. We hope that there will be a wholehearted cooperation in this forward step.

A PUNCH

Lest we forget, the Subscription Campaign does not end until December 7.

It is evident that those, who have interested themselves in the effort to increase the circulation of The Restitution Herald, have set an example of what can be done when a sincere effort is made. You can do an acceptable work in proclaiming the precious truths of God's Word by helping to increase the circulation of The Herald. A good brother wrote in sometime ago and said he probably would never have known the truth as he now views it, if it had not been that a friend sent him a copy of the "Herald" some years ago. Make the effort and see the results.

* * *

Sr. (Miss) Phoebe Densmore, of Kewanee, Ill., was married on Oct. 23 to Mr. Orville Lind, also of Kewanee, and the young couple plan to make their home in that city.

* * *

DIXON BAPTISMS

On Sunday, Oct. 31, we spent the day with the brethren at the new Dixon (Illinois) church. Good audiences greeted us at both the morning and evening services, and we observed that the Sunday School was nearly double what it used to be before the church was built. In the afternoon we had the privilege of baptizing four young people, and we now present them to the household of faith. They are Mildred, Alvah and Merle Drew. Rt. 5, Dixon, Ill., and Roy Grobe, Rt. 2, Dixon, Ill. May the Father strengthen them for life's work, and show them how to assist in the cause of truth.

F. E. Siple.

* * *

BACKING IN MINNESOTA

Dear Bro. Austin: The St. Cloud Sunday School will need 50 quarterlies. I have written to some of our other Sunday Schools but do not know if any will use them or not. Our Sunday School chairman, Dorothy Magaw, is sick with flu and unable to put it before the Sunday School, but if the N. B. I. publishes the quarterly the conference will do all it can to have them used.

Yours in the Master's service,

Mrs. T. M. Savage.

Will Sr. Savage please pardon the publication of a private letter. I want to say that of all of our state conference boards will follow the above example and encourage a free use of our own quarterlies (and other literature) we can, as finances warrant, gradually increase our publications till all of our wants are supplied. All such cooperation as the above is very helpful.—Editor.

* * *

GRAND RAPIDS SUNDAY SCHOOL REPORT

The first Sunday at the new church, Oct. 24, dedication Sunday, the attend-

OXFORD TEACHERS' BIBLES

You will find an Oxford Teachers' Bible, with its wonderful References and Helps, an invaluable aid in preparing interesting and helpful Sunday School lessons. The Helps are arranged in alphabetical order, like a dictionary. They are accurate, comprehensive and up-to-date.

CHRISTMAS OFFERINGS

Catalog for Bibles and other books, most of them at 12½ per cent discount from regular prices, will soon be ready for mailing to all who make request.

Assortment Christmas Cards at $1.00 per packet. Each assortment contains cards of varying values ranging from 5c up. Big value. Cash with order.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

ance was 105 and the offering was $11.14. Oct. 31, attendance 77, offering $7.03.

Church attendance good. Berean meeting, weekly on Sunday evenings at 6:00 o'clock.

"Pray for us that the interest still may grow, and that all may be done to the honor and glory of God and our Savior Jesus Christ; that this effort may be a true light to the community."

May it so be, and may we have frequent reports of the advancement.

—Editor.

* * *

INDIANA REPORT FOR OCTOBER

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Burr Oak, 12; Plymouth, 1; St. Louis, Mo., 2; Blush, Mo., 4.

Baptisms: 2.

Money received in Indiana: Pleasant View, $27.00; Rensselaer, $25.00; Plymouth, $15.00; Burr Oak, $40.50; Conference Board, $4.44. Expense, $11.94.

J. H. Anderson.

* * *

LETCHER, SOUTH DAKOTA

Restitution Herald: Bro. Adams came October 14, and began meetings in our school-house the next evening. While with us he preached twelve sermons, setting forth the truth in his plain, forcible manner, exhorting us to stand steadfast in the one faith and not to compromise with error.

In these last days when error is so prevalent it is good to know there are a few that are preaching the truth, regardless of anything else.

Some interest was manifested, and we still have hopes that some here will denounce the world and accept the truth.

Your sister in faith,

Inez Titus.

BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ: I am offering my father's (W. H. Wilson) books for sale for Christmas gifts.

Christmas is coming soon, at which time we celebrate the birth of our Savior. He is a gift to us, that through Him we may have life and a position in His kingdom. We are expecting Him to come soon, so let us work, for there is much seed to be sown.

Let us spread the literature that will sow the seed and bring forth fruit to life everlasting. The list of books is as follows:

Pine Woods Bible Class, 90c ea; 6 for $5.00
 Students Text Book, 45c ea; or 5 for $2.00
 Revelation Made Easy to Understand .25c each
 Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times .25c each

Can You Believe, by H. V. Reed
 20c per doz., or 75c for 50

This offer will last till January 1, 1927. All orders will be promptly filled. Thanking you in advance.

Your sister in the one hope of His coming,

Jessie M. Wilson.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it force attention—often consideration. It is inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20c per Doz; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10c per Doz.; 60 c per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Single Copies 3c; 12 for 12c—Cost of Mailing

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c

God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c

The First Resurrection 100 for $2.50; 12 for 40c; each 5c

A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per doz.

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Each $.05

Debate: Robison vs. Conner .15

Earlier Life-Truth Exponents .25

Will It Pay to Become a Christian? .50

The Visitor, 212 pages, .90

The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages, illustrated. Suitable Gift.

Oxford, Cambridge and Bagster Bibles Wall Mottoes priced from 10c to 50c each

Gospel In Song, 40c; 45c; and 50c each Per 100, $30; $33; $40

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
 F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

Well Again

'Fore I was sick I never knew
How good things were, but now I do!
To stretch your hands above your head,
And run, and feel the breeze! And bed
Is comf'table when you don't stay
Right in it hours and hours each day.
Now when I'm hungry I can eat;
And all the flowers smell so sweet.
I'm glad I'm well, and it is spring—
I'm glad of every single thing!

—Selected.

QUARANTINED

By Auntie Wince

QUARANTINED. It is a long, strange word. It makes us think of dangerous, contagious diseases, of people closely shut up in their homes, of doctors coming and going and of fear and alarm everywhere.

But this is not the kind of quarantine I am thinking about. You are thinking of disease—I am thinking of sin; for wrong-doing seems to be just about as catching as the measles or small pox.

Put a boy in school who cheats in his games, and how soon the thing will spread. Tommy is nice. Tommy played false. Why should not I? It is such fun to fool the boys. And it can't be very wrong or Tommy would not do it. That is the way children reason, if they reason at all.

But listen, Nettie, John, Eva, Peter, Edward and Frank, you can never make your deeds half-way wrong and half-way right. They are either the one thing or the other. If you tell only part of the truth you are lying. If you break, only in part, a promise made to mother, you are breaking it.

Never do wrong things. Quarantine yourselves. Not behind closed doors, but behind ironclad, unmovable, unshakable principles.

You all want to be somebody in the world—fine carpenters, doctors, lawyers, authors of books, travelers in far lands. But to be what you want to be in the future, you must be what you want to be now. Idle, vicious boys do not make noble, successful men. Shape your ideal and keep working up to it and, by and by, Nettie, Joan, Ada, Peter, John, Nathan, Frank, and all the rest of my faithful workers, will be heard from, if you are sure to take God with you on the journey and to abide by His counsel.

Auntie Wince has traveled with Jesus more than 80 years, and He has never left her, never failed her.

Make Him your friend. Put yourselves in His care. He alone can quarantine you from sin.

*We have careful thought for the stranger,
And smiles for the sometime guest,
But for our own the bitter tone,
Though we love our own the best.*

—M. E. Sangster.

TEXAS IDEALS

UST below are two statements of manly Christianity as understood by a couple of Texas boys, age twelve years. With such ideas as these as a foundation for their efforts toward leading a life of Christian usefulness, there is little danger that they will ever be other than a credit and an honor to the homes from which they came, and a living testimonial to the faithfulness of the laborers in the Sunday School they attend.

"A Christian is a clean-cut man; he is a gentleman; he does not use profane language. He is a follower of Christ, and believes that He is the 'Son of the living God'. He will help the poor and weak. He should obey his mother and father; be reverent in prayer. He will be silent in God's house, and will attend church regularly every Sunday. He will always tell the truth. If he is working, he should give one-tenth of his wages to the church.

"He will take part in the things that are given by the church, and he will always be a true follower of Christ."—Wm. Mellen.

"I think a true Christian should confess Christ and take up his cross and follow Him. A Christian should be ready to suffer for Jesus if need be, and to express love and loyalty to Christ. A Christian should remember Jesus by taking part in the communion reverently. Every Christian believes in the resurrection, that Jesus died and rose. We should never forsake Him; He knows our difficulties because of His own life on earth, and He is ready and willing to help us when we call upon Him."—Harry Lee Rabe.

—Selected.

"God gives to every soul as much blessedness as it is willing and ready to receive."

* * * *

"THE girl who does her own task, whatever it is, bravely and well, seldom has time to criticize others."

* * * *

"NO ONE can hold an evil image in the heart without its materializing sometime in daily life."

DOINGS AT HEADQUARTERS

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

WE ARE much pleased with the prompt response of several of our Sunday Schools regarding quarterlies. While the demand thus far indicated is not sufficient to cover the cost of publishing, yet we feel that the deficit will be less than it is in the publishing of the Leaflet as at present.

Besides, by publishing quarterlies we can gradually enlarge the service and supply quarterlies for the primary departments as well.

It has been decided, D. V., to publish a quarterly for the First Quarter of 1927, the same to be arranged, if possible, for the Adult and Intermediate grades, and Home Department. Further mention of this will be made in next issue.

We shall endeavor to have these quarterlies ready for mailing by the first of December. This will be very difficult to accomplish and it may be a few days later before same can be mailed.

We cannot afford to print more copies than will be wanted. The time for printing ALL that will be wanted is when we go to press. After that it will be too late to increase the number. Therefore, will not every interested person quickly assist by sending in a statement of the number of quarterlies wanted. The price to those who have already notified us will be the same as was formerly announced, namely, Seven Cents per copy per quarter. But the regular price in quantities of five or more to one address will have to be Eight Cents per copy per quarter, Thirty-two Cents per year, for all future orders. Single copies, Ten Cents per quarter, Forty Cents per year. If in the future the price can be reduced, we will gladly do so.

Now may we ask for the heartiest possible cooperation and support in this effort. It is true that the first issue can not be all that we would like. The decision has been necessarily delayed until now and it will be impossible to secure for this issue help from different ones as desired. But if the brotherhood will cooperate and assist, we feel satisfied that we can put up an acceptable quarterly very soon.

Suggestions and helps will not only be gladly received, but are urgently solicited.

THE MOUNTAIN IS SCALED BY CONTINUED CLIMBING

IN AUGUST, 1925, the General Conference instructed the Executive Board to build a new greenhouse and make other improvements estimated to cost $5000. Later we were asked to provide upwards of $2500 to the Wince Fund that two of our aged and homeless ones might be cared for at Golden Rule Home the balance of their lives.

The first financial objective was reached on schedule time last December 24; and the second was so nearly reached in June that at that time Bro. and Sr. Williamson were received into the comforts and care of Golden Rule Home.

These accomplishments not only show the earnest good intent of a large brotherhood but they also show what can be done when we stand together and work as one toward a common goal. It is this common, united spirit of aim and service that, under God's blessing and guidance, has given to the National Bible Institution its steady growth. Beginning at nought in August, 1921, its gross property valuation had mounted on December 31, last, over and above all liabilities—and after having borne the expense of organization and development as well as that of maintaining its religious and charitable labors—to $27,684.65.

For a people who, until 1921, was putting forth no general organized effort, it would seem that this showing is excellent. The office, at least, feels like commending one and all who, either morally or financially, have assisted to the accomplishments of these results.

LIKE THE PULPIT

But like the pulpit, there is a lot of this work that can never produce a money return. It is a constant non-remunerative service. Continued or increased accomplishment means continued or increased service. Therefore it can continue only as its friends continue its maintenance; and it can grow only as its friends increase in number and assistance.

MONEY SIDE-TRACKED

As soon as we undertook the new greenhouse the receipt of funds for current service and upkeep began to diminish. As we entered upon the $2500 Wince Fund objective, these funds, for current service formerly sufficient, became less and less.

DEFICIT

The result is that we have been running behind every month this year until we feel that something must be done.

This deficit is not in the earning departments—Print Shop, Greenhouse, Home, Floral Shop; it is in the office, and this in spite of the fact that some are working ten to fifteen hours per day every week. This work and this expense are occasioned by a large correspondence, editorial work, administration of N. B. I. activities and church interests in general, none of which is chargeable to the earnings of the departments.

MUST HAVE FUNDS

For this accumulated deficit we need—must have— funds. We have carried the slow summer and fall months along till now, when, in some way, we must have $2000.

We place this frankly before our friends, confident that one and all will respond. By each doing a little the whole amount can be quickly raised and we can steadily advance in our climbing toward higher levels of service in His name.

If all will unite in making a Thanksgiving offering, this item will be quickly cared for and a relief given to the office force that will permit of increased service.

Confidently and anxiously we await the Christian response of the brotherhood. A convenient form will be found on the next page.

F. L. Austin, Manager.

DAILY SCRIPTURE READINGS

(Continued from page eighty-eight)

JOY SET BEFORE HIM

It was because of anticipated joy that our Lord endured the cross and despised the shame. What exceeding great and unspeakable joy must that be which enabled Him to endure therefor so much. And what was this joy? Was it the mere anticipation of being honored above others, sitting over them? Rather, the whole history of our Lord's doings force upon us the conclusion that the greatest joy of our Savior was the joy realized from service unto others—others weaker than He, needing His strength. It seems most true that the joy anticipated by Christ was the joy of the larger service to be rendered by Him when He, as perfected High Priest in the holiest abode with God, should come to be able to serve His brethren with a fullness and greatness as yet impossible for Him to serve. But, reaching the exalted position and authority in God's holiest place, He would be able to issue forth the great blessings of complete atonement, complete reconciliation, complete forgiveness unto those who should come to God through Him. This great, unspeakable, unmeasurable joy was sufficient to cause Him to endure the loss and despise all shame that could be heaped upon Him by poor, erring, sinful man.

Look to Him.

ORIGIN AND NATURE OF JESUS CHRIST

By Rena Endsley

WE find the first promise pointing to our Savior in Genesis 3:15. The Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. "But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Gal 4:4, 5. "For the law made nothing perfect; but the bringing in of a better hope did: by the which we draw nigh unto God." Heb. 7:19. "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth." Rom. 10:4. "Concerning His Son Jesus Christ our Lord, who was made of the seed of David according to the flesh; and declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead". Rom. 1:3-4. "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, He would raise up Christ to sit on his throne (David's throne)." Acts 2:29-30.

"But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honor; that He by the grace of God should taste death for every man. For it became Him, for whom are all things. . . . in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings. . . . For as much then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their life time subject to bondage. For verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham." Heb. 2:9-10, 14-16.

"Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ." Gal. 3:16. "Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people. For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted." Heb. 2:17-18. "Though he were a son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." Heb. 5:8-9. "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an ensample, that ye should follow his steps: who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth." Heb. 2:21-22. "For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh but quickened by the Spirit." 1 Peter 3:18. "And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary. And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art highly favored, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women. And when she saw him, she trembled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be. And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary; for thou hast found favor with God. And, Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shall call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord

God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." Luke 1:26-35. "And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." Luke 2:10-11. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. . . . And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." John 1:1, 14. "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. Butter and honey shall he eat, that he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good" Isa. 7:14-15. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth, even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." Isa. 9:6-7. "And in mercy shall his throne be established; and he shall sit upon it in the tabernacle of David, judging, and seeking judgment, and hasting righteousness." Isa. 16:5. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God.

. . All thing were made by him". "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, and have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of Life; (for the life was manifested and we have seen it, and bear witness, and show unto you that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us). 1 John 1:1-2. "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds; who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the . . . Majesty on high; being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son. And again, when he bringeth in the first-begotten into the world, he saith, And let all the angels of God worship him. And of the angels he saith, who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire. But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom." Heb. 1:1-8.

We must believe that Jesus Christ came first as a mortal babe, for we have found in God's perfect word that He was made perfect through suffering, and that He learned obedience by the things which He suffered. Had He been made a deity at His birth, he could not have suffered, neither could He have died. And Paul says in Rom. 10:9, that if thou wilt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shall believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead thou shalt be saved. He could not have been raised from the dead if He never died. Then if we believe Christ was born a deity are we not believing in a false christ whose origin and nature are described and taught by the so-called smart and learned men? Truly the preaching of the cross is to them who perish foolishness; but unto us who are saved it is the power of God. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent. God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise: and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty. 1 Cor. 1:18-21, 26, 27.

Jesus said, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be who go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Matt. 7:13-14. Again Jesus said, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say, unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able.

Then how important it is to find the strait gate and enter in just as Jesus has commanded, and travel the narrow road which Jesus tells us leads to life, the eternal life.

What a glorious hope. Is it not doubly worth searching to know our blessed Savior just as God has revealed Him.

CONVENIENT FOR CLIMBING

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $ _____, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name _____

Street _____

Post Office _____

State _____ Date _____

AN APPEAL

For Those of Our Number Who Are In Need

"The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself"—Solomon.

MANY of you know how this relief work among our church people has been carried on in the past five years; how the aged ones have been cared for; help given families where there has been sickness and death, and to widows where the work they get to do is not enough to provide for their children; helping in homes where death has taken the mother and left little children. Sometimes the oldest, when but a child itself, will try to care for the younger ones while the father is at work.

Winter will very soon be here and I am again asking you to help me care for these families as I have previously tried to do. Funds are needed for clothing, fuel, rent, provisions and medical aid. I am sure you all know this kind of work cannot be carried on without financial help. Is there a worthier cause?

There have been a few very faithful contributors, some sending a donation each month. Isn't there someone that has never known the joy of giving to lighten the burdens of our unfortunate ones who need help?

That you may know something of how the help given to our people is appreciated I will quote a few expressions from letters received, similar to many others. Some refer to help given last winter.

"I want to express my thanks to you for what you have done. If you only knew my thoughts, sometimes wondering how I could get some clothing and other things, and how you have helped me out. I pray God to allow me in some way, or my children, to do as much for someone else, because I know from experience how this all is. May God's blessings be with you in your work."

This from an aged sister, living alone, in a little three-room house, to whom, with the help of the brethren, I have sent a monthly allowance for the past two years: "I am so happy to think that I have someone to care for me and provide a living for me. I cannot keep the tears from my eyes when I think back how I had to live. Thank God it is all over."

"We received the box you sent us and are more than thankful for it. I didn't expect you to send us new blankets. Second hand ones would have been good enough. No matter how old, I would have mended them. You have added cheer and many comforts to our home, which we could not have had otherwise. May God bless you. God helping, I surely will help you and your work if ever I can. Thank you again for the money and the lovely things you sent us."

"We received box and check; got the comforter all done. I think we will get along now for the winter and keep warm. The bed blankets you sent are nice and warm. The dresses fit the girls nicely and they surely are enjoying their new night gowns sent them. We are all thankful to everyone of you for what you are doing for us."

"Received the box and also the check you sent. It sure is a big help to us; don't know what we would do without your help. I get tired toiling, being left alone in the world with the children (5). I should not complain. I try not to, but get pretty blue some times."

"The clothes you sent to me, I do not know what to say to you for them, but must use that poor, frail word—Thank you. Cannot frame words that will express to you my appreciation for your Christian kindness."

"Thank you for the check. Oh, you do not know how I appreciate your thoughtfulness of me in sending the check. I do not know what I would do without your help. May God's blessings be yours."

"I received your dear letter to-day and will say that when I read it it seemed to me I was sure I had one confidential friend. What we have suffered in pain and grief only God and myself know. God bless you for your kindness and thoughts of us. I am sure it will come back to you in rich blessings. We have never been very well off, but I realize we were rich compared to our circumstances now."

"Received the nice box of oranges. They are fine. We would not have had any such had the dear sister not sent them. We can't afford to get them, you know. They taste so good to me since I am sick so much. Dear sister, those bed blankets are nice and warm. We would have gotten very cold this winter without them."

"I received the check all right. Was so thankful to get it for I was nearly out of money. I took $5.00 out of my other money to pay my taxes. The other half will come due next June. God bless you."

"We received the nice, warm blankets you sent us. Now we won't have to lay and shiver with the cold. I feel like, Thank you, isn't enough to say, so will ask God to bless all our helpers and comfort you with His blessing, as you have comforted us. I never had such a nice present."

There isn't a scripture in the Bible more full of truth than the one found in James 1:27—"Pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction".

We do not want any of the children in our families to go to school in need of warm clothing or food, or the aged one in their humble little homes to be trying to get comfort out of reading their Bible when they need fuel and provisions.

The Golden Rule was given to us by One whose hand was extended in mercy and in helpful grace to others. He taught that we are all members of one family and that it is pleasing to God to comfort and cheer one another.

Those wishing to respond to this appeal please send your donations to my address.

Mrs. Orpha Sanford.

174 Cedar Street, Aurora, Illinois.

Chairman National Berean Relief Committee of the Church of God.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 16, 1926

NUMBER 7

SO IS THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD

By Alice B. Curits

IN this world the sons of God shine as lights, Phil. 2:15, but hereafter, Jesus says, "The righteous shall shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father".—Matt. 13:43. Daniel expresses the same thought in chapter 12:3, when he says, "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever". These texts are very beautiful illustrations of what the children of God will be in the resurrection.

Paul may have had these scripture passages in mind when he said in 1 Cor. 15, "There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead."

In this chapter Paul has been answering the queries, "How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" Taking grain as an illustration, he shows that the old grain must die in order that the new grain shall grow. He says the new grain is not the old one that was sown, but is true to form and type of the grain that was sown. He then shows the analogy of the process of grain reproduction to the change of man at the resurrection. At death man is sown a weak, natural, corruptible body; he is raised in power and glory, a spiritual, incorruptible being, possessing the likeness and personality of his former self. Being created in God's image, he is now also in God likeness. David says, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with Thy likeness."—Psa. 17:15. Man like the grain, comes up from the death state true to type. Christ said, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."—John 17:15. Christ is that "corn of wheat" that died. He is the true seed, and type or firstfruits of the harvest. All who have been "born again" are the "sons of God", and have received "the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father." If we are children we are "heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ". Christ's name is named upon us and "we have the mind of Christ".—1 Cor. 2:16. "The manifestation of the sons of God" takes place at the resurrection, when Jesus shall change our vile bodies that they may be fashioned like unto His glorious body, Phil. 3:21. So we shall be true to the Christ-type, "Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at His coming". As we think of the resurrection, it will be a miracle; but to God there are no miracles, he works by laws and ways we cannot understand.

That there will be great ones, and little ones, in the kingdom would be inferred from Matt. 11:11. Here Jesus, speaking of the greatness of John the Baptist, says, "He that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he." Paul's statement in 1 Corinthians 15 teaches the same truth. He says, "One star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead."

The thought that the resurrected saints, like the stars, differ in glory, should cause no one worry, or disappointment. We behold infinite variety in God's created works, and infinite variety indicates infinite power and wisdom. No two leaves of the forest seem exactly alike; the pebbles on the sandy shore are a little different from one another; we have the changing seasons; the zones producing a variety of temperatures; the rising and ebbing tide; the gentle zephyrs and the death dealing tornado. There is no monotony in this life; each day is a new creation, and "God's mercies are new every morning". Even among the bright and holy angels exist different orders, as is evident from the names angel, archangel, cherubim and seraphim. That God's law of endless variety with its types of beauty should exist in the future should not be surprising to us.

All who are so blessed as to attain to a place in His kingdom will be glorious and perfectly happy; for they shall dwell with Him, and "in His presence is fulness of joy, at His right hand are pleasures for evermore." Not a drop of joy could be added to fulness of joy. No feeling of envy on the one hand or superiority on the other, will shade the splendor of that happy time. Each will feel that he has the position that he is best qualified to fill; each heart will be full of love and gratitude to the Father for the blessings that are his.

There are two strikingly beautiful texts in the Psalms, one in Psa. 81:6 reads, "I removed the shoulder from the burden: his hands were delivered from the pots (margin, baskets)." The second text is in Psa. 68:13, and is as follows: "Though ye have lain among the pots, yet ye shall be as the wings of a dove covered with silver, and her feathers with yellow gold." This text, like many others, may have twofold interpretation. It refers primarily to the Israelites under Egyptian bondage. Look upon the Israelites, toiling early and late under the lash of their merciless taskmasters; soiled with sweat and dust; broken in spirit; too weary to think or pray, except now and then a face is appealingly lifted heavenward as if to implore help from God. The scene changes; the burden is removed from the tired shoulder, the enslaved are made free by God's strong arm and become a conquering and illustrious nation, from whose number came prophets, priests, and kings. Through sin they lost their prestige, and the blessings they once enjoyed as God's chosen people. But blessings manifold greater than the former ones will be theirs, when God regathers and restores them to their ancient land. Under the glorious reign of Jesus they shall be beautiful as the dove with wings of silver and her feathers of gold.

In contrasting the present life with the glorious future life, we know that a change as wonderful as the one expressed in these two verses of the Psalms must take place in us; for while Israel is to be the head of the mortal nations during the millennial reign, we, if we attain to the first resurrection, shall be the bride of Christ, his queen attired in gold of Ophir. Psa. 45:9.

Praise God for His great salvation, and for the hope of such a blessed resurrection and endless life. Let us strive, as did Paul, counting all things as loss, that we may be found in Christ; that we may know Him and the power of His resurrection.

THE EARTH MADE OVER

By H. H. Hawkins

AND Thou renewest the face of the earth. Psa. 104:30. At the time of Adam we find this record, "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat of the herb of the field".—Gen. 3:17, 18.

"Yet man is born unto trouble as the sparks fly upward".—Job 5:7. "Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble".—Job 14:1. These are conditions that have existed down through centuries to this day.

The prophet informs us that there is a time coming that will be quite the reverse. In fact, we can see the "fig tree" budding forth. "He shall cause them that come out of Jacob to take root: Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit".—Isa. 27:6. "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert place shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose".—Isa. 35:1. The Psalmist says, "Let all the people praise Thee, O God, then shall the earth yield her increase and God shall bless us". We are told that the world passeth away, and the lust thereof. Now, it is being filled with unrighteousness, murder, deceit, hatred, boasting, disobedience to parents, and such things.

These are conditions of the last days, as men become lovers of our own selves, unthankful, and lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. Ecclesiastes 1:4 says, "The earth abideth for ever". Psalm 37 and Proverbs 10:30 inform us that the righteous are to remain on the earth (not in heaven), so we must conclude that it is the condition on the earth that is to be renovated.

God has promised through His prophets a change in physical conditions, the restoration of Eden, and the healing of the nations.

The first creation was the Adamic creation, during a time of sin, suffering, and hardship for all the children of Adam; this to fit the worthy, the tried, and tested, for the new creation—they who are counted worthy to attain the resurrection from among the dead, who can die no more, and are the children of the resurrection.

A perfect planet takes thousands of years to complete. The Genesis account, and God speaking to Job (38:4-9) shows creation is a gradual process, and that there was a time when this planet was not fit as a habitation for man.

Students of physical science claim we are living in an incomplete planet, where normal and perfect natural life is not possible. The history of the human race for the past 6000 years reveals a reign of sin and death, owing to physical conditions over which man has no control. Psalm 82:5 says, "The foundations of the earth are out of course", and Isaiah 13:13, "out of place". So then, it is evident that physical changes must be expected in the restoration to Edenic conditions. The disappearance of the ice fields, which I understand have receded 130 miles in the last 25 years, is one of the means God is using for the restitution of all things, Acts 3:19-21, to make this planet a fit habitation for the "new creation", and "saved of the nations" when the tabernacle of God will be with men.

Many signs are now in evidence that the world is changing and has been for centuries. The world is changing socially, politically, and religiously; and out of this confused, troubled, and restless world (a symbol of the sea that will be no more) there is being gathered by the word of light, truth, and knowledge, a people that will form a new heaven and earth in fulfillment of the divine promise, "Behold I make all things new".—Rev. 21:1-5. "And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and His servants shall serve Him".

God created this earth not in vain, and formed it to be inhabited, and His word shall not return unto Him void. (Isa. 45:11, 18.) And the desolate land shall be tilled, and become like the garden of Eden. "I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it".—Ezek. 36:34-36.

May we keep our eyes Zionward and look forward to the coming of our Lord and Master, and may we be among those that "shall sit every man under his vine, and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid."

LIFE IS NEVER well used when it is held dearer than duty."

THE LESSON

*A teacher sat in a pleasant room,
In the waning light alone;
Her head was bowed in anxious thought;
With the work and care the day had brought
She had faint and weary grown.
And the task which seemed in morning's ray,
As she thought of it now, at the close of the day,
When weary with toil and faint with care,
Seemed more than human heart could bear.*

*Since the scholars had left her, one by one,
Nearly an hour had flown;
She had given them each a kind good night;
And while they lingered her eyes were bright,
But they dimmed with tears when alone,
She had borne the burden the day had brought,
The daily task she had faithfully wrought,
And now, to solace her weary mind,
A lesson of life she sought to find.*

*For work and cares of the day she scans,
But no lesson from them receives.
"The day has no lesson for me," she said,
"A lesson I'll read in the Book instead;"
And she opened her Bible leaves,
When lo! the lesson she'd sought in vain
To draw from her faint and weary brain,
At once from the holy page she drew,
Though always the same yet ever new.*

*"Establish Thou the work of our hands",
'Twas this that met her gaze.
The words went up from her lips like a prayer,
And as she read she treasured there
A lesson for many days.
Not alone for her may the lesson be,
Let it come as well to you and me;
Let our prayer be the words of Holy Writ;
"Yea, the work of our hands, establish Thou it."
—Selected by Rufus A. Curtis*

"BE STRONG IN THE LORD"

By Samuel E. Haney

THE unbelief of the believers is appalling. Indeed, it is one of the varieties of life to see men and women acting out their belief in God.

The devil, through human instrumentality, has been battering at the Ransom for nineteen hundred years. But the "Old Rugged Cross" stands as invulnerable in the hearts of true believers as it did when the cruel spikes pierced the hands and feet of the Son of God.

These attacks usually come from conspicuous quarters: theological teachers, priests, and preachers. These men believe "Christ died for our sins"; but, with rare exceptions, their tongues and pens belie them. Many doubt that "Christ poured out His soul (life—nephesh) unto (actual) death".

Inasmuch as blood is the basic element of life, the doctrine of trans-substantiation of wine into the blood of Christ for the purpose of remission of sins thereby, is both a denial of the Ransom, given once for many—all,—and blaspheme. Jesus, with His last breath, said, "It is finished", John 19:30.

Many believing "Christ gave Himself a Ransom for all" attach a kind of codiciliary addendum to the Ransom by claiming Christ died for the church, while the church's experience—sufferings—is necessary for the redemption of the world.

Others, believing God's Word, disdain the shedding of blood for the remission of sins, Heb. 9:22. This doctrine ignores the Ransom.

The mass of leaders and laymen do not really believe man is commanded to "seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life"; and that, "divine nature" is a promise for faithfulness unto the end, Rom. 2:7; 2 Peter 1:4. Note Jer. 38:20.

The devil knows that in belief and faith in the blood that flowed on Calvary lies the release of the race from the curse of death, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive". He also knows that God's Word is a guarantee that every functioning mind is to be "drawn" to Calvary's great tragedy—"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me".

The clergy knows that the only baptism taught in the New Testament is immersion, yet they sprinkle a few drops of water on infants and call it baptism. These wise (?) "blind leaders of the blind" remind us of the student who asked a college professor what two and two make. "Foolish question", he replied; "a two-year-old child would say, 'Four.'" "But," insisted the student, "I sometimes find two and two make twenty-two". See Rom. 1:21,22.

We have been considering a few doctrinal points of the unbelief of the believers; let us note some practical phases. Does believing in the Lord Jesus Christ, alone, save us? No. "Devils believe, and tremble".—James 2:19.

Does faith? No.

Does knowledge? No.

Does talking save us? No. If it did, some of the greatest hypocrites would be saved.

People of the world have faith and knowledge; and talk much.

"Well," one may ask, "if these things do not save us, what will?"

We answer: Belief, faith, and knowledge are but prerequisites by which "good works", action, must coordinate. Coordination is as essential in the business world as are finance and knowledge; it is even more so in the religious world.

Jesus said, "Whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life". This means believing in His and His apostles' teachings, John 17:20, as well as in His mission on earth.

Many make a selection out of the heavenly message, doctor a few others, and discard the balance in order to make the way of salvation easy and smooth. This class of Christians shirk their duty when obedience causes inconvenience, financial loss, ostracism, or offense. If such think they are following Christ their actions belie them.

Jesus said, "Follow Me." Christians believe He said this. Do their actions indorse their belief when they attend questionable places of amusement—lewd moving pictures, theatres, etc? Or when following the latest diaphanous fads of apparel, and other Babylonian habits? Or when they give their paramount thoughts and endeavors to the things gratifying to the weak, carnal flesh? In refusing to "Humble themselves" as commanded, 1 Peter 5:6, leaving the Lord to do the humbling by His heavy, chastening hand in the bitter school of experience—is this following Christ?

The old maxim, "Can't carry water on both shoulders", is more applicable in the Christian warfare than in any other pursuit.

If we follow Jesus, let us do so one hundred per cent. If we desire to hobnob with the world, let us be consistent, and go the limit. It is glorious to suffer for the name of Christ, 1 Peter 4:12-16. While, on the other hand, the world's sweet savor has a bitter—sometimes, fatal—sting to it, Rom. 8:4-8.

Anything to avoid being classed "a peculiar people", Titus 2:14, seems to be the popular slogan with many. The world says, "Take a chance". Many Christians seem to have caught the same spirit. Remember foolish Esau. He took a chance; and lost out.

It is far better that our talk and acts be copied after the heavenly One, that our bodies, too, may eventually undergo the "change", and we be "like Him"—immortal, divine.

Remember, it is easy to go down into Egypt, but mighty hard to get back to the promised land.

To discount one's belief means a shattering of one's faith.

One must believe in a thing or a person to exercise faith therein.

One can only go so far as one's faith extends. But there would be no limit to what one could do if he had the belief and faith of Abraham, Elias, (Jas. 2:23; 5:17, 18), and Daniel.

But when Jesus said, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith"; and, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" He likely had in mind about all of us.

Isn't it about time we take God seriously, and cease trifling with Him and His Word?

Most anyone who is normal loves a beautiful rose—despite the thorns. But God loves the ugly little seed that is put into the ground and dies—loves the rose before it is a rose.—Contributed.

THE STONE WALL

THE success of our General Conference is dependent upon the liberality and loyalty of the brothers and sisters of the Church of God. Only a few may realize that the growth and success of any industry depends upon this loyalty and liberality of its members in both work and money.

Each member of the Church of God may be interested in its success, but that interest must be manifested at the place where there is a need of help. No institution can thrive without both work and money. It is evident that the work can be supplied if we have the money to pay the wage earners. No comforts in the N. B. I. can be supplied without money. No seed will develop, without labor to plant and care for its growth, to supply food for the workers, and the members of the Home.

We see the urgent need of help in the statement made in The Herald of November 2 by our Secretary, of being financially up "Against a Stone Wall". It is evident upon reflection, that the N. B. I. can scale the wall, and have all means necessary if the members of the Church of God will do at once as follows:

1. Let all who now tithe their income send to the N. B. I. office at once, all, or a portion of the tithe.
2. Those who contribute of their means for Christian work, send what you can without delay. It is needed now.
3. Those who cannot send money now, could you send in your contribution now as a promisory note, bearing interest from date; which possibly could be used at a bank, or otherwise, until paid.

The following is the Scriptural plan, and, without doubt is the surest way, and returns the best profit to the giver. It is the best plan because it is God's plan—the tithing plan.

The brethren may be interested here in the results of my garden of about one acre. The products were apples, currants, gooseberries, strawberries, raspberries, cherries, asparagus, peas, and grapes. They sold for $155.04, the tithe of which is 15.50 which I enclose herewith, to the "Herald" office to be used for the Lord's work at Oregon. It is my opinion, that if all our brethren paid a tithe of their income for the Lord's work, there would be more than enough for all purposes of the N. B. I. and God's blessing would follow.

It was not our purpose to produce more than we needed for our own use, but the Lord abundantly blessed us this year; and we want to make a thank offering to the N. B. I. of the Lord's portion, which we enclose for the work.

Those in the office and directing and doing the work for us need encouraging by giving them the needed means in money for the many avenues of expense for success in results. And with your money contributions add the appreciations due the managers and the help that makes the wheels go round.

Are you going to build one step by which to scale the "Stone Wall"?

A. J. Eychaner.
Anna B. Eychaner.

STEPS TO SALVATION

No. 2

By Jas. A. Patrick

SOME time ago I wrote No. 1 of a series of articles entitled as above and expected to continue it in succeeding numbers of The Herald, but poor health has so incapacitated me that I have been unable to do the work immediately before me as it should have been done, so I have neglected The Herald and its interests.

In the former article I tried to show the necessity of a proper belief in God in order to have a Bible faith as required by Hebrews 11:6. This is the first step toward salvation, because it is impossible to please God without a proper faith in Him. Then nothing else avails if we have not a Bible faith. All our efforts are in vain.

According to Acts 20:21, repentance toward God would be the second step in our search for salvation.

Why repentance toward God? Because "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Every sin is against God. If I should slap one of my brethren in the face, that would be a sin against God first. If I should curse him, it would be against God first. Why? Because I have violated the law of God first of all. Had I obeyed the law, I had not sinned against my brother.

So when we come to believe that God is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him, our next step is to repent toward God.

In order to have faith in God we must obey Him. I like to study the pen picture in the sixth chapter of Isaiah. Isaiah was evidently meditating about God. Then he had a vision. "I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and His train filled the temple. Above it stood the seraphims: each had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly. And one cried unto another and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of His glory." As Isaiah contemplated God as revealed to him in the vision and heard the seraphims say, "Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts", he saw God in all His holiness and in contrast saw himself in all his sinfulness, in all his unworthiness; then he was led to cry, "Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts."

When Isaiah saw himself in the light of God's holiness, saw his own sinful, undone condition, he at once acknowledged his condition and sought cleansing. God immediately answered by sending one of the seraphims with a live coal from off the altar and touched his lips and said, "Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin is purged."

In connection with repentance toward God in Acts 20:21, we have another step that is closely associated with it—"faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ". In this verse it is Paul saying, "Testifying both to Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ."

When one sees himself as sinful and lost because of such a condition, he begins to cast about for a remedy. God always points the way to the sincere seeker. So He tells how to get rid of sin by repentance toward Him and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

Why faith toward Christ? Christ said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by Me." "I am the door of the sheep." "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, is a thief and a robber."

The above quotations make it very plain why it is necessary to have faith in Christ. He is the door, He is the way, He is the life. If men are to get into the kingdom and have life they must get in through Him.

BENEFACTOR AND BENEFICIARY

The universal blunder of this world is in thinking that there are certain persons put into the world to govern, and certain others to obey. Everybody is in this world to govern, and everybody to obey. There are no benefactors and no beneficiaries in distinct classes. Every man is at once benefactor and beneficiary. Every good deed you do you ought to thank your fellow-man for giving you an opportunity to do, and they ought to be thankful to you for doing it.—Phillips Brooks.

"THE EFFECTUAL, FERVENT PRAYER OF A RIGHTEOUS MAN AVAILETH MUCH."

By Auntie Wince

DO you believe it, dear saints of God? Do you believe that Auntie Wince could actually do better, more effective work, if you presented your petitions to God on her behalf every day?

That is the obvious meaning of this scripture. We are in duty bound to pray one for another. God hears and answers our prayers. If he did not, why should we pray? Men pray and rain is withheld; they pray again and rain is sent. Men pray and victory comes. It matters not whether the ranks of our army be many or few, God saves just the same as was proven over and over again in our British and Indian wars. We were kept by the power of God. He held our hand, directed us when and where to shoot. It is useless to deny the directing hand of God. Just as long as we believe and trust Him just so long will He be with us as He was with Israel of old, and He will never leave nor forsake us.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

WE WANT to thank all those who have aided us in our effort to secure a correct list of the membership of the Church of God throughout the country. We have received several completed questionnaires and a number of individual names and addresses. We will, at the earliest possible date undertake to compile these and to publish information in Year Book form resulting therefrom. We are anxious to receive as complete information along this line as possible. Any not having furnished the same for themselves or for their churches are urgently solicited to send in at once.

* * * *

A BIG LITTLE ARTICLE

HOW MUCH of deep, practical truth there is in Sr. Wince's little article, "The Effectual Fervent Prayer"! What an up-lifting sensation if we could all be assured that with evening rest and with morn's awakening Christian was everywhere praying for Christian! What an inspiration if we could know that on Sunday morning and at midweek prayer service, like the progression of light from the ever rising and advancing sun, so the voice of prayer for one another and for the cause of Christian truth would with the hour of day advance across the land from the distant east to the most distant west!—no moment but what a fresh voice would pick up the prayer just finished by another; constant prayer for one another!

The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. It always has; it always will. How deeply does the writer sense the words of two medical attendants, mutual strangers, both of the same import,—“Mr. Austin, It is nothing that I have done. I cannot understand.” Their words were with reference to their earnest efforts to restore the health of Mrs. Austin. Both were surprised and certain that to their treatments could not be ascribed the improved conditions.

But the writer knew effectual fervent prayer had been repeatedly addressed to God that He would guide and bless as He only knew best.

Fervent prayer brings blessings even though our whole wish is not granted in the way, and at the time we may feel to desire.

* * * *

WORKS THAT ABIDE

IT IS INTENSELY interesting and encouraging to realize that the reliable and enduring characters of the human race are men of God. So also with the fruits of man's labors—the reliable things, the enduring things are the fruitage of those efforts that have been wrought in harmony with God's instructions. As examples:

Moses was one of God's characters. He heeded God's directions rather than the advice of those who gave no heed to Him, or who opposed Him. Moses advanced; his cause continued; his nation endured, even surviving the fearful test of centuries of dirorganized dispersion among all other nations—for it is to-day rapidly coming back into its own. But what has become of Pharaoh, the opponent of Moses? and of Egypt, Pharaoh's charge?

The statutes and ordinances of Moses have become the rock foundation of the constitution and judicial machinery of every principal nation of earth. But what has become of the sub-structure of Egypt, Babylon, Greece, or any other ungodly people or nations.

The world of to-day is resting upon Abraham, Moses, David, Solomon, Daniel, Jesus, Peter, Paul, John, Luther, and that type: men of God, of faith, of deeds, of perseverance, of patient hope; and this in spite of the resentful, opposing works of Raameses, Nebuchadnezzar, Xerxes, Alexander, Nero, Brutus, Darwin, Huxley, Napoleon, Mohammed, Confucius—men who labored in the wisdom of self or even opposed God, whose works loomed

(Continued on page 107, column 2)

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Calista Glotfelty; C. M. Gale; Sarah Manuwal; Nora Johnson; Mattie Benjamin; Mrs. Teresa Martindale; Hugh Glover; Seraphine R. Cleek; Emory Ritenour; Carl Ritenour; Mrs. E. E. Lakin; Mrs. W. L. Kuhns; Mrs. A. M. Scroggs; Mrs. Allen Claypool; Mrs. Emily Harris; Geo. M. Hazard; Mrs. Mae Mercer; Mrs. Mattie Jeffrey; Mrs. F. F. Summers; Mrs. Sadie Kerr; Mrs. Julia Ordnung; Mrs. H. C. Eby; Mrs. Tennie Long; Ida Jeffrey; Levi Coffin; Osby Claypool; Nelson Morton; Hugh Logan; W. A. Reid; Emily Blackwell; Chas. Sanders; Louis Colings; Mrs. J. S. Maggard; Mrs. M. L. DeCounter; Mrs. Emma Murray; E. M. Moran; Mrs. F. Moran; Ruth Bauserman; Anna E. Sleight; Mrs. Bert Forester; Mrs. Clarence Woods; Horace Pierce; O. E. Sinclair; W. I. Hunt; Chas. Dunn; D. L. Halstead; Beulah Slater; G. A. Pence; Elizabeth Oakley; J. C. Nixon; Flossie Hardy; C. H. Adams; R. A. Curtis; Elsie Doll; Philip Curtis; W. W. Roll; Mrs. Nettie Huffman; Emma Upton; Ray Galeener; Edna Wood; Ruth Hendrix; Ophir Claypool; A. MacFarlane; A. Nardone; Leslie Henderson; Emma Troth; Wm. Thompson; D. S. Kirkpatrick; Helen G. Pier; Harriet Boice.

* * * *

WINCE FUND

Previously mentioned	$2551.16
Mrs. Ida Jeffrey	5.00
Mrs. Mattie Jeffrey	3.00
Total	$2559.16

* * * *

HELPING FUND

A Friend	8.00
----------	------

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

BEREAN work knows no seasons. It is just as valuable in winter as in summer. In fact, one gets more out of a thing that is hard to do than one that is easy, so when we have bad roads, snow, or storms to contend with, and still go, we are bound to be benefited.

* * * *

One class recently spent an evening studying "our high calling". So many religious people fail to realize that there are different callings, or stations of service and of salvation. God's plan is large and complete, and has provided for the different classes of people in the different ages of time. There were standards of service for each different dispensation, with different degrees of knowledge; that is, God has revealed Himself and His plan a little more fully to those of each succeeding period. And so those who have qualified under different conditions will be granted salvation under comparatively different conditions. We must always remember that salvation is for service. The future reward held out is not that of idleness or uselessness, but the opportunity of serving with Christ under ideal conditions. But always in large undertakings there are varying standards of service, and so it will be in the kingdom of God. To us is offered the opportunity of being like Christ, the highest position of the ages. Is it worth while?

* * * *

Probably the most important lesson for us to learn in life (and often the hardest) is that God actually guides and controls the affairs of men. The more readily we learn, the less suffering for us. An impudent, disobedient child has to receive much more punishment and correction than one which quickly learns to obey the parents. Likewise those of us who rebel against God's ways, and insist on wanting to do things in our own way, must necessarily tread a harder path in life. Consider the children of Israel. When obedient God prospered them, and when disobedient they suffered until the lesson was learned. In similar manner the great king Nebucadnezzar was humiliated and caused to roam the fields till he learned that the most High ruleth in the kingdoms of men and setteth up whomsoever He will.

For us to learn that God rules, and that He directs things for our best interests, will save us much suffering and humiliation in life.

* * * *

"For he that cometh to God must believe that He is". After all, that is the big test and the big problem. Who is there but what at times has found himself doubting the reality of God? But before one can render acceptable service, or do the things God wants him to do, all such doubts must be eliminated. But, if we are absolutely assured that God is, how can we refrain from doing as He has asked?

* * * *

THOUGHTS FROM A CHICAGO BEREAN

IT IS interesting to notice just how many ways in the Bible Christ is referred to as a stone

The spiritual Rock, giving drink to those who thirst after righteousness, and from which the living waters flow. Ex. 11:6; 1 Cor. 10:4.

The Chief Cornerstone to the church. Eph. 2:19, 20.

A stumbling block to the Jews (at His first coming). Rom. 9:32, 33; 1 Cor. 1:23.

A headstone to Israel (at His second coming). Zech. 4:7; Psalm 118:22.

A stone cut without hands to the Gentiles. Dan. 2:34.

A stone of judgment to unbelievers. Matt. 21:42-44.

We see Christ, then, as a stone over which Israel stumbled, by which the Gentile power will be broken, and unbelievers crushed, but to whomsoever will, a spiritual rock from which flow the living waters of salvation.

* * * *

A GLORIOUS BOOK

IN reading the Bible messages one is often astonished at the homely vehicles used for teaching the thoughts. Baskets, birds, flowers, sand, millstones, houses and many other ordinary articles become conveyors of divine truth. And such is life. In and through all that is ordinary to us there is divine truth that may be gained through comparatively little study. To lift one's eyes to a star-studded heaven is good. But to see in that heaven the magificence of God is better. To God's own, all environment becomes a glorious book in which are read the living truths of a living God—Richard E. Lentz.

* * * *

If the Scriptures distributed by the Japan Agency of the American Bible Society during 1925 could be piled up, copy by copy, they would run up into space about 14,316 feet, or 1,849 feet higher than the peerless mountain Fuji.

* * * *

Love never says, "How much must I give," but, "How much CAN I give?"

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—Nov. 21—James 3	Mem. V. 17
Monday—Nov. 22—James 4	Mem. V. 17
Tuesday—Nov. 23—James 5	Mem. V. 11
Wednesday—Nov. 24—1 Peter 1	Mem. V. 25
Thursday—Nov. 25—1 Peter 2	Mem. V. 9
Friday—Nov. 26—1 Peter 3	Mem. V. 15
Saturday—Nov. 27—1 Peter 4	Mem. V. 16

THE Epistle of James, though questioned by some, was undoubtedly written by "the Lord's brother", Gal. 1:19, who was one of the "pillars", Gal. 2:9, and who gave the "sentence" of the apostles and interest of the church at Jerusalem, Acts 15:13, 19.

This Epistle is understood by many to have been the first New Testament epistle written, probably before many Gentiles had accepted Christ's teachings, that is, while as yet the church was composed principally of Jewish stock and before the mysteries of the Gospel were revealed, as later declared by the Apostle Paul. Thus the character of this epistle is largely Jewish. It contains much reference to Mosaic custom, law and promise, and analytically is comparable with Old Testament teachings, as is the sermon on the Mount.

The Course of All Ages Affected by Speech

After exhorting the brethren, James 3:1, "Not many teachers become ye, my brethren! Knowing that a severer sentence we shall receive"—Rotherham, James then continues to show that the teachings of individuals determine not only the course of individual lives, but also the course of nations. Therefore, verse 2, "if a man stumble (Roth.) not in his words (his teachings) the same is a perfect man."

As the bit guides the horse and the rudder the ship, so the words imparted to others guide and influence their actions, even the actions of the world as a whole. It was not so much the assassination of Serbia's prince as it was the fiery words which followed said assassination, that provoked, developed, and continued the great world war. Words caused actions, which affected the entire earth of mankind.

Therefore James' exhortation to utter words of knowledge, verse 13, and above all, verse 17, to be guided as to words by "wisdom that is from above".

Experience Proves God More Helpful than Man

"Wars and fightings among you", 4:1, come "even of your lusts". And in all the struggle, verse 2, man "can not obtain". His ways are the ways of weakness; his aims are selfish, sensual; his ends are disappointment. "Ye have not", verse 2, "because ye ask not". Verse 3, "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask basely" (Roth.) "in order that in your pleasures ye may spend it". Here is the answer to the oft repeated question, Why are our prayers not answered?

So many of man's aims and efforts are prompted by the ideals of the carnal and selfish nature. Even many religious aims are prompted by the selfishness of pride, pleasure, and such like. All such aim and effort is not only in estrangement with God, but even though the aims are accomplished in large degree and the results appear to be great, yet if they are of carnal lust they only weaken and disrupt life, both individually and nationally. "God resisteth", verse 6, such. James urges, verse 7, that the Christian submit himself "to God". "Draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you". Verse 10, "humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and He will lift you up".

God "is law giver, who is able to save and to destroy", verse 12. In opposition to Him man is helpless. He is like the morning dew or the grass of the field—impotent. God's way leads eventually to righteousness, peace, and restful satisfaction, as is indicated by prophetic statements relative to the perfected conditions yet future.

Prophecy

It would seem that the apostle in chapter 5 predicts that the result of man's way and method, as referred to in previous chapters, will tend to greater and greater evil and weakness as time goes on. The result will be one of class division, hatred, and strife. These friends of carnal effort will continue unto the coming of the Lord, but, verse 8, "be ye also patient; establish your hearts: for the Lord draweth nigh". Regardless of the time of the return of our Savior, James sees the results of human effort as weakening and deteriorating more and more until changed by the active presence of Him to whom all power has been given. This truth should be most encouraging to the people of the present day.

While James wrote to the twelve tribes scattered abroad, 1:1, yet those twelve tribes have probably never appreciated his epistle. But in connection with the coming of our Master the great truths of this epistle will stand out prominently to the Israelitish student, even as they stand now before Gentile Christians. With such counsel to his Christian brethren, James commits them in their thought to God.

"Is Any Man Sick among You?"

"Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick". "Confess your faults one to another", "pray one for another", 5:14.

All of these beautiful exhortations are treasured more and more in proportion as we submit, 3:7, ourselves to God.

(Continued on page 111)

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

GIDEON AND THE THREE HUNDRED

LESSON 9 NOVEMBER 28, 1926
LESSON TEXT JUDGES 7:1-25
RESPONSIVE READING PSALM 27
 JUDGES 7:1-8

Golden Text: Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might.—Eph. 6:10.

Memory Verses: Joshua 24:14, 15.

* * *

FOR STUDY

Review: Relate the story of Israel's renewal of the law covenant under Joshua. Why were renewals necessary? Did this renewal show a keener conception, on the part of Israel, of what a covenant with God means, than did the first time that she made a covenant with God?

The New Lesson: The new lesson takes us into a period of Israel's history which is characterized chiefly by periods of faith and obedience followed by periods of decline in faith and disobedience. It was, therefore, a time during which Israel received a very fundamental training in faith-thinking, a thinking the most difficult of all thinking to acquire and one which, when perfected, brings one near to that goal which God set for Himself when He said, "Let us create man in our own image". Just how difficult is this phase of God's creative work is indicated somewhat by the fact that Israel, the people first subjected to God's faith-training process, are at this time, after alternating centuries of high faith and abject unbelief, approaching a lower depth of unbelief than they have ever before experienced. In spite of this, however, God is not failing. Israel shall yet be a crown of glory in the hands of the Lord and Gentiles shall yet see her righteousness, and Jerusalem shall become a praise in the earth, and the Lord will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all nations, as the earth bringeth forth her bud. Isa. 61:11; 62:2, 3, 7.

I. The Period of the Judges.

The Book of Judges. "The Book of Judges describes the three centuries following the conquest of Canaan that were the 'iron age' of the nation. The Hebrews were ruled by judges, often local, varying greatly in ability and influence. The book relates the deeds of thirteen of these, the most prominent being Deborah, Gideon, Jephthah, and Samson. The Hebrews believed that Samuel wrote the book; in that case, certain portions incorporate earlier writings, and other portions were inserted later. The book is full of graphic stories, each bearing a warning and a lesson for all time."—Amos R. Wells' "Introduction to Bible Study".

"Book of Declension, we must call it, the Dark Ages of the Israelitish people. Its key-word, 'Forsook' (2:13); its key-thought, 'Forsaken' (2:23). Deny God, and he will deny you."—Rev. J. W. Weddell, D. D.

In this book "we have six apostasies, six servitudes, six cries to God, and six deliverances. Also one attempted deliverance ending in failure. The purpose of the book is to reveal the perpetual proneness of the human heart to fall away from God and the everlasting faithfulness of Jehovah."—Rev. Martin Anstey.

"The Judges were military dictators with religious authority, a sort of union of the warrior and the religious reformer. This may be called the age of heroes. As men were needed, they were raised up for particular emergencies."—Robert A. Armstrong, L. H. D.

II. Gideon and His Army. Judges 7:1-8. Gideon was one of the judges raised up by God to deliver Israel from the effects of one of her declines into unbelief. The story of this decline and its effects and of Gideon's call and preparation is found in Judges 6. Sketch through it noting the depth of Israel's decline, the extreme humility and lack of confidence under which Gideon was laboring, God's patience in dealing with him, and the final result. Note also the challenge which the father of Gideon threw at Baal. Why was God so persistent in staying by faithless Israel—because of His love for Israel personally and for no other reason? How did Gideon call together the army? Did God know that all the people who answered were not answering through faith? How did He guard against this lack of faith acting in behalf of Israel? How many chose to remain because they were not afraid? It would seem that these, at least, could act for Israel, but God knew that even these were too many to serve His purpose. What was that purpose—just to save Israel? V. 2. What second test did God devise and what was its result? It is not revealed what this device was a test of. We note, however, that man's judgment took no part in it. Not even self-judgment was permitted. As far as we can discern the device was a purely mechanical one. Perhaps it served to distinguish between those who were not afraid in their own strength and those who were not afraid in God's strength. It is beyond man to distinguish this difference even in his own heart. Man is prone to magnanimously ascribe his wonderful accomplishments to God even as he secretly follows his own way and almost unconsciously trusts in his own strength. God's test alone reveals the difference.

III. The Victory. Judges 7:9-25. Was Israel's leader a man who was trusting in his own strength? Could God work through such a weakling? It was not the dream that strengthened Gideon's hand, as God promised, but the knowledge that the Midianites recognized him as a man back of whom stood the God of Israel. The Midianites, by some means, had recognized this fact even before Gideon himself had fully recognized it.

With his hands thus strengthened Gideon was able to devise and execute a rather novel scheme of attack. Note that his plan centered around the care of the Midianite fear. Last part of verse 18.

Fear in the heart is always the vantage point for the enemy, be he physical or spiritual. Therefore faith is strength.

Compare the victorious Gideon with Gideon the former. Judges 8:22-27. Did he yield to self-pride?

CHRISTMAS OFFERINGS

Catalog for Bibles and other books, most of them at 12½ per cent discount from regular prices, will soon be ready for mailing to all who make request.

Assortment Christmas Cards at $1.00 per packet. Each assortment contains cards of varying values ranging from 5c up. Big value. Cash with order.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. and Sr. A. J. Eychaner have changed their address for the winter to 507 Franklin St., Tampa, Florida.

* * *

"Hurrah for the Sunday School Quarterlies! At last! It is fine to see such a splendid response to the announcement last week."

* * *

It is gratifying to hear from Bro. Samuel E. Haney, 2437 South 17th St.,

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, that he is gradually recovering his health again. He hopes soon to be able to write more regularly for The Herald.

* * *

DIXON MEETING

The Special Meetings at the new Dixon church begin to-night, November 16, and will continue over the next two Sundays, closing November 28. Let's all get together and help make this a great boost to the cause there. Your presence, your thoughtfulness, your prayers will help. Services at 7:30 each night.

* * *

MICHIGAN NOTES

Bro. Patrick's appointments are as follows: November 21 and 28, morning service will be held at Grand Rapids and evening service at West Bowne; December 5, morning service at Coats Grove, evening service at Grand Rapids. The following three Sundays of December the services will be at Grand Rapids and West Bowne.

The attendance at the new church in Grand Rapids has gone beyond the expectations of the brethren there. October 31 there were 77 in attendance at Sunday School and about 60 at the preaching service following; November 7 there were 84 at Sunday School and nearly 100 at the preaching service in the evening. The Berean class, which is held on Sunday evenings, is also very well attended.

Bro. Lawrence Bridegam, conference treasurer, who sold his farm some time ago, has had a sale and sold off his live stock and farm machinery, and has moved to Grand Rapids where he will make his future home. His father and mother will make their home with him, for the winter at least, and care for the little daughter, Mary Ellen.

* * *

NO ARMISTICE DAY

No armistice was declared in the Subscription Campaign on November 11. It was the biggest day yet for new subscriptions. We are glad to note that different ones have seemingly set their mark at Smith's Bible Dictionary or Cruden's Concordance. We are in hopes that several more may get in line for these offers. 4 new yearly subscriptions for Smith's Bible Dictionary and 5 for Cruden's Concordance. For the other offers, see Herald of October 12. Three weeks remain before we close the campaign. Keep them coming.

F. A. S.

* * *

SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLIES

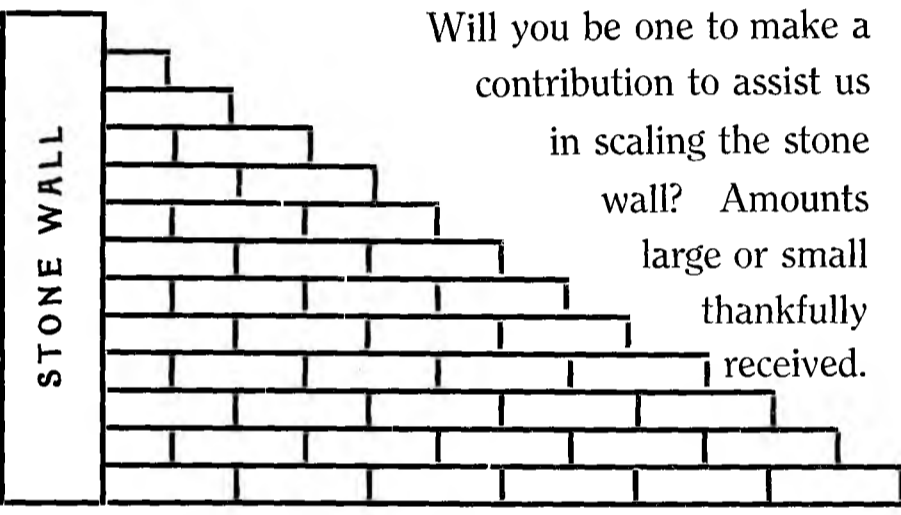

Work is being pushed just as fast as possible in preparation for our contemplated Quarterly. We are hoping to adapt this quarterly so that it can be truly helpful to all ages beyond the primary pupils. For use in the primary classes we are hoping to arrange to sup-

THE STONE WALL

Step by Step we move, one at a time. The first step is the hardest one. It is the foundation step on which all the others rest. $300 dollars are needed to build it. Fourteen have rendered assistance by contributing to the extent that this first step is half built. $2000 to scale the wall. Will you help us over?

F. A. S.

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $-----, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name -----

Street -----

Post Office -----

State ----- Date -----

ply helps of a more fitting character.

The more helpful the cooperation given to this labor, the more beneficial can it become to all. The Church of God can, under God's help, publish and distribute widely, religious literature in abundance—if all will unite to do a helpful part. And, if all will aid, the weaknesses and errors and imperfections can be the more quickly remedied in a large degree. It is one of the most opportune ways of service. Let's Work!!!

5 or more to one address, 8 cents per copy per quarter; Single copies, 10 cents per quarter. 40 cents per year.

One or more will be printed for you if you order now, AT ONCE, before the printer starts.

* * *

MINISTERIAL LIST

The following is a list of the ministers of the General Conference of the Church of God under date of November 15, 1926.

ARKANSAS

Humphreys, R. A., Bear.
Jones, Owen, Driggs.
Weaver, C. E., Havana.

FLORIDA

Geiselman, N. H., Tampa.

ILLINOIS

Austin, F. L., Oregon.
Johnson, J. Arthur, Oregon.
Johnson, Paul C., Oregon.
Siple, F. E., Oregon.
VanVactor, D. E., Evanston, 912 Hamilton Street.

INDIANA

Anderson, J. H., Michigantown.

IOWA

Howe, C. W., Waterloo, 1036 Newton St.
Jones, A. M., Eagle Grove.
Williams, J. W., Gladbrook.

KANSAS

Sweet, L. J., Topeka, 305 E. 8th Street.

MICHIGAN

Patrick, James A., Caledonia.
Woodward, Mrs. M. A., Lansing,
223 W. St. Joseph St.

MINNESOTA

Magaw, Sidney E., Lester Prairie.
Randall, C. E., Mora.

NEBRASKA

Cowles, J. E., Moorefield.

OHIO

Conner, L. E., Cleveland,
13906 Chautauqua Ave.
Lyon, M. W., Dayton, 37 Ashwood Ave.

NEW YORK

Marsh, G. E., Niagara Falls,
448 Elmwood Ave.

OREGON

Darby, A. W., Gresham.

TEXAS

Bradley, A. S., Mullin.
Geisler, E. E., Dallas.
Stewart, E. O., Sweetwater.

VIRGINIA

Sheets, H. A., Maurertown,

OHIO

Evangelistic meetings begin at Brush Creek November 24, and will continue over December 12, omitting the first Saturday night. Bro. F. E. Siple will assist, and an extra good series of meetings is in prospect. Every member in this vicinity is asked to do two things: attend each service; bring a neighbor with you. Work and pray for success.

M. W. Lyon.

WORKS THAT ABIDE

(Continued from Editorial Page)

big for a time, but which have since faded, decayed, or greatly diminished.

Like the massive pilings of masonry built deep down in the earth for foundations upon which to build magnificent superstructures, so God's men of faith have built deep in the midst of the race the foundations, works of faith in God, upon which the mighty superstructure of God's everlasting kingdom will soon be commenced.

* * *

TRACTS AND BOOKS

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20c per Doz; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10c per Doz.; 60 c per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Single Copies 3c; 12 for 12c—Cost of Mailing

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul",
100 for 25c; 12 for 5c

God,
100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c

The First Resurrection
100 for $2.50; 12 for 40c; each 5c

A Letter to a Friend,
10c each; $1.00 per doz.

CHRISTMAS OFFERINGS

Catalog for Bibles and other books, most of them at 12½ per cent discount from regular prices, will soon be ready for mailing to all who make request.

Assortment Christmas Cards at $1.00 per packet. Each assortment contains cards of varying values ranging from 5c up. Big value. Cash with order.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager
Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

ANNUITY BONDS

FOR MAKING GIFTS

For information regarding the advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

CHILDREN'S PAGE

JOSHUA RENEWING THE COVENANT

By Daisy Nokes

Owing to sickness Sr. Nokes was unable to get this article to The Herald in time for last issue.—Editor.

CHILDREN, can others see Jesus in you? Do you always say kind things? Do you always do kind deeds? If you can answer, "Yes," to these questions, then you are like Caleb who lived such a good life that he could say, "I wholly followed the Lord my God." Caleb had obeyed God in everything. He had planned to do just the work that would please Him. Now, that is what God wants you little ones to do, to think and act so that other children can see the kindness of Jesus in you.

Then, are you like Caleb in this way? He had prepared himself, by obeying and serving quickly, for which faithfulness God gave him a reward. Are you working to fit yourself for a prize. King Jesus is coming soon and will bring rewards to you, if you, like Caleb, are ready and fit. Are you watching and ready for one of His prizes or rewards?

In these Sunday School lessons it is good to learn what these men did, but the best thought for children is to see how they point to Jesus. The whole Bible is a sign board pointing the way to a home with Him. "Be ye therefore ready".

You remember Joshua was the name of the other good spy. Now what reward did God give him? He had fitted himself to be a leader, so God gave him the rulership over the people. Caleb had fitted himself to take care of the soil, so God gave him his choice of the land.

Joshua was a very good leader and knew how to get along very well with his people. Now, he was getting old and thought that he must soon close his eyes in death.

Joshua knew that some of the people still thought of other gods besides the true Jehovah God, so one day he called them all together and said, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve; but as for me and my house we will serve the Lord." This meant that even if they did serve idol gods he and his family would be faithful to the true God. He was brave and stood for what he knew was right. He was a pattern for others to follow.

The people said, "We are ready to obey and worship Him."

Joshua wanted, then, to be sure, so he told them all about the kindness of God to them. Again they replied, "We will serve the Lord."

Joshua then told them that they could not worship God and idols too. He knew it was not always easy to do right. He told them some more about God and said, "You hear each other. You have all promised to serve and obey God." The third time they answered and said, "The Lord, our God will we serve, and His voice will we obey." So he wrote down the promise that the people had made. Then Joshua had a great stone rolled under an oak tree and set up where all could see it. When they looked at the stone they would think of their promise or covenant to serve and obey the one God.

All of these lessons can be taught so well to small children by the use of sand pile, or drawings on blackboard or paper. Mold sand into low hills and place twigs here and there for trees. Use little sticks for the people. You could cut out of paper a simple figure for Joshua.

You don't have to be much of an artist to draw even on paper if you have no blackboard, for your class, or the little ones in your own home. They remember for a life-time lessons taught in this way. Just make straight marks for people. If you are too good an artist the children will think more of you and your drawings than of God's Word that you wish to teach.

GIDEON AND THE THREE HUNDRED

By Daisy Nokes

GRANDMA had some nice pop corn which she had saved for the children this winter. She put it on a table, on the summer porch. Now what do you suppose happened? Some little mice found their way in and had a great feast. They could not eat all, but nibbled first on one kernel, then on another, running all over with their dirty little feet, so grandma had to throw all away. Mice are little thieves. We don't like thieves, do we?

Do you know that sometimes people are thieves like these little mice?

I will tell you about some thieves and how God frightened them.

Every year the people of Israel would plant their corn and wheat, but just as it was ready to be gathered into their barns, or to be ground up into meal to make their bread, some thieving people would come and turn their sheep and cattle into the fields and eat up all the grain.

They cried to God in their trouble. God heard and chose a big, brave, young man named Gideon to work for Him.

Gideon blew on his trumpet and some men came to see what he wanted. "You go tell the men to gather here, for God is going to show us how to conquer these bad thieves." So many came that God said, "I do not need so many men, for then they will say you soldiers drove out the enemy. I want just a few careful men, so all the people will know that I, the Lord, can do great things." God wanted careful, brave men who had lots of faith.

Gideon sent all the men home who were afraid, or had families to care for. Still there were too many. God said, "Gideon, send them all down to the water to drink and I will pick out the careful ones."

Most of them got down on their knees and lapped up water like a dog, their mouths to the water, while 300 of them took up some water in their hands and looked around while they were drinking. These were the careful ones God wanted. Gideon gave each of the 300 men a trumpet to carry in one hand and a lamp set down in a deep pitcher so that the light could not be seen. They marched quietly up as close as they could to the enemy. They could hear them talking and shouting. It was about ten o'clock before all became quiet and Gideon knew that they had gone to bed. The soldiers then moved closer and surrounded the tents. Gideon blew his trumpet first, then all blew their trumpets and shouted, "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon." Then they broke their pitchers, letting the lights shine out and making a great rattle on the rocks. The bad thieves were suddenly awakened and were so frightened that they ran away as fast as possible and never bothered the people of Israel in this way again.

QUESTIONS

1. Who heard the troubles of the Israelites?
God.
2. How did God help them?
He chose a leader, Gideon, and 300 helpers and told them what to do
3. Did they do as God said?
They obeyed exactly, even though the enemy was many; they knew God would help them win. They were not afraid to do right.
4. What should we be ready to do?
To obey.
5. Can you say the Golden Text?
"Be ye therefore ready."—Luke 12:40.

A WORD TO PARENTS

TO MOTHERS: Teach the little ones the love and kindness of God in giving us food, homes, clothing, and, best of all, the Bible, His Holy Word. Lead them to wish to make every day a "Thank You Day". The thankful child is the one most willing to obey.

Who will be to blame if your child is not ready when Jesus comes?

"Be ye therefore ready."—Luke 12:40.

—Daisy Nokes.

"Those who never retract their opinions love themselves more than they love truth."—Joubert.

COMMUNICATIONS

DEAR Editor: It has been some time since I have written an item for your paper and before my eyesight fails entirely I must speak a word for my Savior.

In an article in The Restitution Herald Supplement of September 7, 1926, I found that in many cities there are members of the church of God. In some way they are like sheep lost in a forest. Well, dear brother, that is just my way of feeling—no elder or minister here. I am an old lady, isolated. There is no church here, and no evangelist to teach one. I feel like the Ethiopian, in answer to Philip's question: Understandest thou what thou readest? And that poor man said, How can I, except some man should guide me? (Acts 8:31.)

When I can walk ten blocks I attend the Christian Church here, but it is a long walk for poor eye-sight and for one as old as I am. But I enjoy the sermons. I can get good out of most any denomination. I know whom I believe and I do so hunger and thirst after God's great truths. I live 18 miles from Eagle Grove, Iowa. That is the nearest Church of God, so I am compelled to stay home. Yet I receive so many blessings from my heavenly Father that I do not realize that I live all alone. God is with me. I have no fear, but it will not be long that I walk to any church. I want to be ready any time that Christ shall come; for He will surely come.

Many thanks to Brother Lindsay for the Messenger of Truth; to Brother Patterson for all those good tracts; to Sister Donaldson for Words of Life; and to all you dear sisters for your kind cards, letters, and tracts.

Your sister in Christ Jesus,

Mrs. E. Pendleton,
1132 Third St., Webster City, Iowa.

EXTRACTS FROM PERSONAL LETTERS

"I think the last Paper was the best we ever had. Mrs. ——— said, I read it and cried, it was so good. All seem to be well pleased with the change of paper."

(Signed)—————

Sister ——— will send an article for the paper to-day, and I will try and mail an article also, ere long. I think you have greatly improved the paper, not only as to its convenience, and general appearance; but also as to its typographical excellence, quality of paper, and religious instruction, especially in your editorial department. It is a matter of deep regret to me, that my finances are such that I cannot help, as I would like to do, knowing as I do, your present needs at Oregon. However, I can look to a source that can help in every "time of need", even "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think". Heb. 4:14-16; Eph. 3:17-21; Rom. 8:28. I am praying daily for you and your co-laborers in the Gospel work at Oregon, Illinois.

As ever, yours,

(Signed)—————

THE "GRAND CLIMACTERIC"

By Geo. Johnston

SOME time ago I met a lady who boasted that she had read the Bible from cover to cover more than a dozen times, but I wonder what her answer would have been had the question been put to her which the apostle Philip addressed to the Ethiopian eunuch: "Understandest thou what thou redest?"

That it is necessary to closely examine every sentence, and every word in the Scriptures if we would fully grasp their purport is a lesson which I long since learned; and many statements which on casual examination appeared trivial I have later found to be of the utmost importance. No trivialities are to be found in the Bible; every word contained therein demands our earnest attention.

Several years ago while writing a treatise on the Book of Daniel I was halted by a statement which occurs in Daniel 5:31: "And Darius the Median took the kingdom, being now threescore and two years old."

The ages of few prominent Hebrews at the time they performed notable actions are recorded in the Bible. Why, then, should the age of this Median ruler be so explicitly stated? This is the question which I endeavored to solve, but which baffled all my efforts for several months.

That Darius died when he was 63 years old, I was quite aware, and that other prominent men died at that age I also knew, and at length it occurred to me there might be some special significance attached to the number "63". Further study revealed the fact that the number 63 is a very peculiar and important one, as I shall presently explain.

The fact that 63 is a mystical number I gleaned through my own unaided effort, and I naturally assumed that I now knew something not known to any other person. That assumption, however, was soon scattered to the winds. In one of our local newspapers there is a column headed, "Queries and Answers", and looking over this column some months later, I observed the following query: "What is the 'Grand Climacteric'?" The answer was as follows: "The word 'climacteric' is derived from the Greek 'klimakter', meaning the step of a ladder or stair. The first climacteric, some assert, is the seventh year; the others are multiples of the first, as 14, 21, etc.: 63 is the 'grand climacteric' and, according to astrologers, the dangers attending this period are supposed to be great—critical points, as it were, of one's health and fortune. The grand climacteric was supposed to be fatal to most men, its influence being attributed to the fact that it is the multiple of two mystical numbers, 7 and 9."

Particulars regarding the "grand climacteric" are given in almost every encyclopedia, as I later discovered; but no mention of the following facts will be found there, for the simple reason that, so far as I know, no other person but myself has any knowledge of them.

What is it that distinguishes the number 63 and places it on a pedestal of its own? The remarkable fact that every individual who founded or established an empire, a kingdom, a religion, or a doctrine, the principles of which were opposed to those laid down in the Scriptures, died at the age of 63. Could we have clearer proof that God holds the life of every human being in His power?

To ascertain the age of a person who died many centuries ago is sometimes a difficult matter, but each of the following individuals occupies such a prominent position in history that his age at death is easily learned.

Constantine the Great, founder of the first so-called Christian empire—the Byzantine—born A.D. 274; died A.D. 337; aged 63.

Theodosius the Great—the first Roman emperor to be baptized in the Catholic faith. He immediately decreed that thenceforth Catholicism should be the only religion permitted in the Roman empire, that the churches of "heretics" should be seized or destroyed, and the "heretics" compelled to renounce their creeds. Born A.D. 332; died A.D. 395; aged 63.

Ambrose, Archbishop of Milan, originator of the doctrine that the church is mightier than the state, and the first priest to claim and exercise authority over emperors and kings. This doctrine was at the root of every European war down to recent times. Born A.D. 334; died A. D. 397; aged 63.

Mohammed, founder of the religion known by his name. Born A.D. 569; died A.D. 632; aged 63.

Pope Gregory the Great, first pope to exercise regal power in the newly-formed Holy Roman empire, established the doctrine of the Mass on a firm basis. Born A.D. 540; died A.D. 604; aged 63.

Benedict of Nursia, founder of Monachism in the Western Roman empire. Born A.D. 480; died A.D. 543; aged 63.

Gregory of Naziansen, the first Catholic patriarch of Constantinople, and president of the Council of that name, at which the doctrine of the Eucharist was adopted, and that of the Trinity ratified, also died at the age of 63, as did Gregory of Nyssa, the chief supporter of those doctrines. Other names might be mentioned, including that of Peter Abelard, the founder of Rationalism, but the above are sufficient to show that the number 63 has a special significance.

The number 63 seems also to have a predominating influence in the various periods of time named in the Bible prophecies and in other writings.

The Israelites wandered in the wilderness for forty years, and that period was the prototype of the much longer term of seven full times, or 2520 years, during which they were to be scattered over the world. In 2520 the number 63 occurs just 40 times. It would therefore appear that each year spent in the wilderness represented 63 years of their long dispersion.

Each of the great empires, the Roman, the Byzantine, and the Holy Roman, lasted for a period of 1260 lunar years, and it is needless to point out that this figure is divisible by 63 just 20 times. Also, in the 630th year of these empires an event occurred which was the direct cause of its downfall 630 years later.

There are other interesting facts in connection with the number 63 (and also with the number 9) but comment thereon must be postponed to a future occasion.

DAILY SCRIPTURE READINGS

(Continued from page 104)

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER

Elect Strangers

Four different translations before the writer each state that the word "elect", in verse 2, in the original Greek precedes the word "strangers" in verse 1. The text thus reads, "elect strangers scattered through . . . according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through the sanctification of the spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ".

The word "scattered" refers to the dispersion of Israel. Thus the Apostle Peter is addressing the Christians of the race of Israel who are scattered through the various provinces, but who, regardless of their racial connection, have come to recognize the blood of Christ as effective unto them.

It is by Christ, verse 3, that these same Israelitish people have been begotten again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Peter then emphasizes, verse 4, the grandeur that follows. Their hope points them "to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and that fadeth not away". Their former anticipated inheritance had never been realized. Sorrow and privation had attended Israel for centuries. Not only is their new hoped-for inheritance unfading, but it is reserved (preserved, Roth.) for them.

The change of hope held up by these Israelitish brethren was undoubtedly greater than Gentiles of the present century can possibly appreciate. The difference between the promises through Moses and those through Christ were great indeed. These new hopes introduced them to new trials of faith, which in turn would introduce them to new honor and new glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ. It was this greater salvation, this greater hope, that the prophets anxiously awaited, though feebly, if at all, understood by them. "The sufferings of Christ had been testified unto those prophets as also had the glory that should follow". It is well to note that in most, if not all of the prophetic utterances of Christ the mention of His suffering was accompanied by a statement concerning His glory that should follow. In Isaiah 9:6, we have the announcement of the birth of Christ followed immediately with a great exaltation which the Father designed for Him. In Isaiah 53, He bears our sins with the result, verse 12, "I will divide Him a portion with the great, and He shall divide the spoil with the strong". Psalm 2, the heathen rage against Him, but the Father sets Him upon His holy hill of Zion. Many other prophecies speak of Christ's sufferings and His following glory.

Apparently the Jews of the Savior's day stumbled at the sufferings of Christ and therefore could not anticipate His glory. But to those whom Peter is addressing, his exhortation is that they shall recognize the achievements for them through the sufferings of Christ and have corresponding assurance not only of His glory, but of their glory with Him. Therefore he exhorts them, verse 13, to soberness; to obedience, verse 14; to holiness, verses 15, 16. His reason is given, verse 18, "Ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things—but with the precious blood of Christ". It was through this process and transformation that they had been brought to a newness of life, verse 23.

In harmony with all the foregoing, Peter exhorts in chapter 2:1, to "lay aside all malice . . . and all evil speaking", and as those who are born to a new and different life that they should "desire the sincere milk of the word". After citing Christ, verse 4, as a living stone, he then, verse 5, compares them to lively stones, even a spiritual house, "a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices". Peter teaches how, through Christ, they had been brought from a forsaken and desolate position and had been made to be a "people of God", verse 10.

In all of this it is plainly taught that their new status required of them that they do much, verse 13, "for the Lord's sake". Their lives should be lived as unto Him, and their efforts performed with a view to a service unto Him. In the world they were to live so true and faithful as to cause others, verse 12, to glorify God in the day of visitation.

Peter continues his exhortation to clean lives in Christ, even though they must suffer for well doing, 3:17. In doing this they would only be repeating what Christ had done when He, verse 18, "suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God". He then shows how that in the end of His sufferings Christ died in the flesh. While death meant to His enemies that Christ was for ever removed as an obstacle to them, yet it meant little unto God, for God raised Him—no longer in flesh, but in spirit. (The word "by" in the phrase "by the spirit" is the same word as the word "in" in the phrase "in the flesh". In the Greek both are "in". The article "the" is absent before both "flesh" and "spirit" in the Greek.)

The baptism which these Christian Israelites had evidently engaged in is spoken of in verse 21 as being of definite value unto salvation. It is by the process of baptism that they had buried the old man, Rom. 6:3, 4, from which death and burial they had been raised to walk in newness of life. The illustration emphasizing this is that of Noah who was saved by the very elements which destroyed all unprepared by God. So death is the factor which destroys all unless God, by His saving power, saves therefrom. And baptism into Christ, even into His death, and a present calling forth from the same unto a newness of life—a seal of the Holy Spirit—gives assurance of final salvation by God to all who "walk in newness of life". Wherefore, "baptism doth also now save us".

THE "PAINFUL MOUNTAIN"

THE VOLCANIC Alaguez, geologically next-to-kin to the Great and Lesser Ararats, rouses itself from a long slumber, and in a few moments Alexandropol and a score of Armenian villages in the plain below lie in ruins, with hundreds dead and several thousands of surviving wretches injured or homeless.

The earthquake came at a time when the Armenians, with the aid of American relief organizations, had just hopefully begun upbuilding their communities after a period of devastating wars. It was as though the hands of men had not perpetrated desolation enough.

For as far back as historical research is able to penetrate, the country now called Armenia has been the scene of racial, religious and political upheavals. Its geographical position, between the Persian gulf and the Mediterranean in the south, and the Black and Caspian seas in the north, placed it squarely in the pathway of expanding kingdoms and empires. Over it, for centuries, surged tides of conquest and pillage, now eastward, now westward, always lapping their way up the slopes of Armenia's plateaux and grim, snow-capped mountains. It is one of the wonders of history that through the constant swirl of converging rivalries anything more than a geographical name has survived to this day.

Even in dim pre-Biblical legend, the land which we designate as Armenia figured as a victim of natural disaster. It was on the peak of Mt. Ararat, after the waters of the deluge had submerged everything below, that Noah found salvation for his ark. In our own time, Ararat forms the focus of boundary lines dividing the people of Armenia between three foreign oppressors—Russia, Persia and Turkey.

It is not strange that the Turks call Ararat, Egri Dagh, "painful mountain", and that ancient local superstition surrounds its lofty eminence with an almost personal malevolence.—Detroit Free Press.

DEATH STALKS IN BIBLE LANDS

UPWARD of 400 persons have been killed, hundreds of others mortally injured, and 100,000 made homeless by earthquakes which have destroyed the greater part of Leninakan, a city of 40,000 inhabitants and twelve thriving towns in the vicinity. The whole of Armenia has been terrified and the destruction amounts to millions of dollars.

Frantic efforts are being made by soldiers of the Red army, firemen, and American relief workers to extricate those buried alive.

"Leninakan, seat of the largest American orphanage in the world, is like a vast sepulchre of ashes. From time immemorial Leninakan, formerly Alexandropol, has been a gigantic amphitheatre, due to the activity of Mount Ararat and Mount Alaguez in the tertiary period, but the city never before experienced such a violent and disastrous upheaval as that which leveled nearly all human habitations on the great Leninakan plain Friday night.

Giant Fissures in Mountain

"The second shock, which was fivefold stronger than the first, tore open giant fissures in the great volcanic mountain of Alagoz, which is 14,400 feet high and gleams with perpetual snow.

"The buildings occupied by the American Near East Relief were among the few that escaped destruction. Although there were more than fifty American doctors, nurses clerks, and relief workers in the structures at the time, all escaped harm. Not one of the 9,000 Armenian orphans in their charge perished.

"At the first sign of the earthquake, which came while the Americans were at supper, with the crashing of windows, loud cries of the orphans, and violent oscillation of the buildings, the nurses, led by Miss Janet Mackay of Buffalo, Miss Dorothy Stratton of New York, and Miss Belle Bass of Rome, Ga., mobilized the terror-stricken youngsters. Directing the older children to sing Armenian folk-lore songs, the nurses marched them all to places of safety.

Lot's Old Home Wrecked

"Karakala, famed in Biblical lore for having given shelter to Lot and his three friends, is like a shell torn city in devastated France. The new buildings in that place were completely shattered, but it is believed that the American relief workers escaped."—Chicago Herald and Examiner, Oct. 24, 1926.

"A VISITOR in an Australian home inquired of his host's little son, 'Do you go to school now?'

" 'Yes, sir.'

" 'And what do you learn—reading, writing, sums?'

" 'Oh, yes, and I learn religion, too.'

" 'Religion?'

" 'Yes, I learn the little religion which teaches that we all come from Adam. But my older brother is in a higher class; he learns the big religion and that teaches that we all come from monkeys.' "

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 23, 1926

NUMBER 8

A Thanksgiving Prayer

By J. E. Rankin

* *

*We come, O Lord, these Autumn days,
With hymns of gratitude and praise.
Harvest of gold the plains adorn,
Rich fruits roll forth from Plenty's horn;
Thou givest treasures from the rocks;
The little hills are clothed with flocks;
The seas are with their burden white,
And new Thy mercies day and night.*

*For changing seasons as they go,
For Autumn's leaf, for Winter's snow,
For the green verdure of the Spring,
For life in plant and life on wing,
For Summer with its ripening heat,
For hopes the rounded years complete,
For morn and noon, for night and day,
For light that marks our onward way;*

*For all the blessings of Thy hand,
For freedom in fair freedom's land,
Pursuits of thrift that bring us wealth,
For schools and churches, peace and health,
For commerce, yielding up her stores,
Brought for man's use from distant shores;
For countless gifts, O Lord, we raise
Our hymns of gratitude and praise.*

*Thou settest man in families,
And all his wants the earth supplies;
Of children, be they far or near,
Of children's children gathered here,
We thank Thee for Thy gracious care,
And lift for them the secret prayer,
As clustered 'round each social board
We eat and drink, and praise the Lord.*

MASTERPIECES

By Samuel E. Haney

THESE are two pictures in the world (of which there are many reproductions) portraying the greatest gift ever made in the universe. One is "Christ before Pilate, the other, "Christ on Calvary", by Michael DeMunkacsy. These pictures were purchased by the late John Wanamaker at a fabulous price; and are now priceless. They are exhibited in the great Wanamaker store, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

I have a habit, when feeling a little discouraged—bluish—to drop in and see them.

Each of these pictures contains about thirty life-size characters. In one Christ stands facing Pilate with a majestic pose, oblivious of self and the howling, jeering mob about Him. "Christ on Calvary" is the most heart-rending scene imaginable—enough to make a heathen cry. Strong men weep as they longingly gaze at these master works, reminding the world of the ignominy, suffering, and sacrifice of the Son of God, who "humbled Himself"; "who was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor, that ye (we) through His poverty might be rich".

But there is still another tragedy to this drama—Gethsemane. It was here that the greatest battle ever fought on this earth took place. No human aid: His disciples slept through it all.

For a few moments the destiny of the whole human race wavered in the balance.

It was a blood-sweating battle between the natural and Spiritual. Had the natural man—flesh—won, there never would have been an awakening from the "sleep" of death—no life beyond the tomb.

But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ"! 1 Cor. 15:51-57.

There yet remains another phase to this drama; and it is here that we see the Star of the whole tragedy—God, from whom "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from . . . the Father of lights", James 1:17.

Again, "Thanks be unto God for His (this) unspeakable Gift", Jesus Christ, 2 Cor. 9:15.

Christ not only died to redeem us from the sentence of death, but to make us happy while sojourning in this dark, sinful world; yea, even more—according to our faith, heal our sickness and pain: "With His stripes (and wounds) we are healed", Isa. 53:5.

The sweetest continuous period of my life was three years spent entirely alone with my Unseen Companion, in a mountain region. None so precious!

Now, dear reader, to what degree do you and I appreciate this great Gift of God's? and His dear Son, "who gave Himself" a ransom for ALL? Does all this suffering and sacrifice excite a reciprocal spirit in us?

Hear the plea, "My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways." Prov. 23:26.

Having done this, Paul urges us on, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Surely this is a "reasonable" act! God gave the very best He had to save us, even when we were rebels to His sovereignty. Should we not give Him the best that we have—ourselves—wholly and unreservedly to be used in His service; to His honor and glory; and for the edification of our brethren?

One of the most unfortunate sights to behold these days is "enlightened Christians" with knowledge of the imminence of the Second Advent, flitting away their time, money and talents on the things appealing to the natural man: things that are inimical to their preparedness to meet Him at His coming. (Matt. 9:37). O, how sad!

How selfish this! Surely, "Many are called—but few are chosen".

To be ready, O, how important!

—THR—

THE NEED OF A DEEPER SPIRITUAL GROWTH

By Carrie Wile Chambers

The following article was read on Berean Day of the General Conference held at Oregon, Illinois, August 3 to 15, 1926.

IN OUR brief course of life, we all start from infancy. We are unconscious of our very existence, as well as the objects that surround us, and we are profoundly ignorant of the dark and dreary future which is spread out before us. We differ through life in our information, as well as the part we play in the drama of life, and we will finally differ in the life to come.

But our differences, to a greater or less extent, will depend on our own work, or exertions. What will be the effect of the environments that surround each one? Some members of the human family will become wise, by continual labor for knowledge. Others will live idle lives, wasting each opportunity, and often, corrupt and degraded, will reap the reward of their wicked and wasted lives in deepest misery; for we read, " whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

In looking round us, out over the world, what do we see? Is there any need at all that something should be done? Do we need a Deeper Spiritual Growth? We know that everything that has life must grow, or die; as there is no standing still in nature. If we do not use certain parts of our bodies or brains, they become withered and finally, useless. We can't stand still and magnify the name of our Redeemer. We must either go forward, or become a dead plant in Christ's vineyard. He commanded all such to be cast out, as cumberers of the ground. Their room is needed for plants that will bear fruit.

Jesus grew in "favor with God", and Peter says we must grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ." And are we satisfied or contented unless we can grow in grace and knowledge, A Deeper Spiritual Growth?

Is there any way we can obtain that knowledge and growth? Will it not depend upon each of us, as to how much we grow, by the efforts we put forth to obtain that growth and knowledge? We must do the work in order to get it. Are we wandering aimlessly through life, just because we are here? We have been placed here for some purpose and work. Are we filling our mission? God doesn't create things in vain. Is there nothing we can do that will be a help to someone, brighten some one's pathway, or lead or help some one to see a ray of light who is groping in darkness, and discouraged? By helping some one, our burdens become lighter. Jesus tells us to "bear one another's burdens". Paul tells us what to do: Study to show thyself approved of God. Jesus tells us how to do it: "Search the scriptures", all telling us there is something to do.

Yes, it's work, and work doesn't hurt any of us. One may say, "I don't want to do that, and neither do I care for such", and that is the very one to whom those scriptures speak; for a willing, anxious student doesn't need to be told what to do. During our schooldays we often learned to get things right, by first getting them wrong, and could the more easily get them correctly. We learned that actions had reactions, and that knowledge comes from experience. And how often have we heard it said, that "experience is a severe teacher"? The lessons learned from it are often very hard and severe ones. It has been said, "The greater the cross, the brighter the crown."

Each one of us has a niche, a corner, in which to work; we are expected to do that work; and it is our duty to God, to humanity, and to ourselves, to do that particular work. So we must "brighten the corner where we are". And we need go no place to find it; for we are in it. Isn't it surprising how much work there is in that little corner? No one can do it for us, and if it is ever done, we must do it ourselves. You and I will have to be judged by the work we have done in that particular corner.

Our Savior, the Auditor, is coming ere long, to balance the books we have kept, and we wonder if there will be any credit on the ledger when He comes?

*"Don't waste your time in longing
For bright, impossible things;
Don't sit supinely yearning
For the swiftness of eagle's wings
Don't spurn to be a rush light,
Because you are not a star,
But brighten some bit of darkness
By shining just where you are.*

*"There is need of the tiniest candle
As well as the garnished sun;
The humblest deed is enobled,
When it is worthily done.
You may never be called to brighten,
The darkened regions afar,*

*So, fill for the day, your mission,
By shining just where you are.*

*"Just where you are—
Just where God bids you stand;
Though down in the deepest shadow,
Instead of the sunlit land,
You can carry brightness with you,
That no gloom or darkness can mar:
For the light of a Christ-like spirit
Will be shining wherever you are."*

(Concluded in next issue)

—————THR—————

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

They are still coming in. Two weeks yet to go. Let the last two weeks be the best two.

—————THR—————

BOOST OUR QUARTERLIES

By Lawrence M. Howell

FOR years past Church of God Sunday Schools have been largely using quarterlies published by other denominations. Where schools demand quarterlies, as many do, and could not be induced to use the Leaflets prepared for our schools for the past several years, no other course seemed open.

However, the condition is now changed. Announcement has been made in The Restitution Herald that quarterlies are to be issue by our own denomination for the period beginning January 1, 1927. In view of the fact that many of our brethren have wanted such literature, this should be welcome news.

As announced in The Herald of November 9, not enough have yet been ordered to pay all the costs of publication. It seems to me that we have enough Sunday schools in the various states so that if all would just order their literature from our own publishers such deficit could be wiped out.

By using quarterlies from most houses our teachers are compelled to correct errors in doctrine every little while if we would not have our children and others led astray. The literature of our friends, the Advent Christians, has been used by some of our schools. But even they do not believe in the Millennial or Restitution age, or the restoration of Israel.

Now that we are to have our own quarterlies I see no good reason why all our churches should not use them. They will harmonize with our own faith, and surely we owe it to our church to use our own Sunday School literature. Seriously, brethren, don't you really think so?

I notice that several of our Indiana churches have not yet responded. I know brethren from various schools there and in other states that have not been heard from. If you are using other quarterlies why not change now to our own literature when your help is most needed? If not using quarterlies because our church had none, your opportunity has come.

Sister Alta King deserves great credit for her sacrifices and untiring effort preparing leaflets for past years. Now that they are to be discontinued January 1, why not everybody push our new quarterlies. Your help is needed right now. Let all boost our own literature from the outset and make it a real success. Don't push the matter aside for "a more convenient season", but earnestly consider it and act promptly.

Faithfully yours,

Lawrence M. Howell.

—THR—

WORRIED

By M. A. Woodward

YES, worried! We are living in days of many bank failures. We invest and hope it is a safe investment. To be sure moth and rust may corrupt, and thieves may break through and steal; but we have had our money there for years and feel quite safe.

But one beautiful morning when the whole family is happy, singing for joy, a sharp knock comes to the door and a neighbor enters. Usually so jolly, we are surprised to see the worried look in his eyes.

"No bad news, neighbor?" we say.

"Well, yes, bad enough. Our city bank is closed.

Alarm is seen in all faces. "Our bank failed? Why, all we have in this world is in that bank. Yes, and we had just put our tax and insurance money for the coming year there. Is there no hope?"

"None. The doors closed this morning."

This is the story of many banks to-day, and we need not look for better times in the financial world. There is cause for worry for those who are "laying up treasures on earth".

O, I am not finding fault with those who are wise enough to lay by for a rainy day. But to the wise, who are investing for eternity, there is a vast difference between laying by in store against the day of need, and hoarding money selfishly, or for future generations. Better, far better lay up treasures in heaven, where moth and rust cannot corrupt. Future generations will not live as we have. Let them take care of their age, and we, who should be wise as we wait for the Son from heaven, let us work for Him while we wait for His coming.

There are a few who are working too hard, sacrificing too much, that others may reap the results of their toil. There should be many working, not a few. There is coming a time when "many are called and few chosen" will sound a death knell to some one. Who will constitute the few who are chosen? I want to be among that number. Don't you?

Would you like above almost every thing else to see your son or daughter living for Christ? Yes, but I don't know how to tell them so that they will become interested. Well, if you cannot, then furnish a way for some good teacher to give them the initiative. So many are hungry for the truth. Our young men are anxious to study so they may be able to go and preach the gospel. Will you help them?

Do not worry, dear workers. Our Father is rich. The gold and silver are His, and sometimes He takes from us if we do not use it rightly and give to His work. We need not worry, but ask Him for what we so much need. Do not doubt His word. He has said, "Ask and ye shall receive". Our Banker never, never had a failure. He pays 100 per cent and is sending out encouraging messages like this all the time, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in Mine house, and prove Me now herewith, saith the LORD, of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3:10.

Whatsoever things ye desire when ye pray believe that ye shall receive them, and ye shall have them.

Believe. No use asking unless you do believe. Don't you suppose God knows what is necessary for His work? Why should we worry, or try to tell God how to provide for His own work? He knows all about it and in ways most unthinkable to us, He makes provision for it all. He says, pray. Keep these needs before your mind.

Keep this always before your prayer: God has all wisdom, I need not fear; He is all wise, I need not tell Him; He has asked me to pray, I will obey. And while I ask, some child of His is saying, Yes, Lord, it is Thine; take it and use as Thou dost desire. No matter how tangled the skein, He will wind it for His glory into a beautiful ball ready for use. Just keep on believing and praying.

I want to tell you a little story: Many years ago when Michigan was a mass of beautiful forest trees, Elder Woodward (my husband) and Mr. Pullman (of Pullman car fame) worked together for days and days, felling beautiful hard wood trees. And Mr. Pullman was always talking of what fine lumber they would make for his wonderful scheme. He would say: BENJ., I am going to invent the most wonderful sleeping coach you ever thought of, something that can be fastened to the car and be raised and lowered at will. Then they would both stop work and laugh, and Mr. Woodward would say: It cannot be done. Well, you will live to see it done, Mr. Pullman would answer back; and some day I will take you for a trip and let you use the coach. Then what a laugh they would have!

But it was done. Mr. Pullman had thought in his mind night and day; he was never discouraged; he felt sure of his job. And how the public loves to ride in those fine sleepers.

Brethren, do not forget to work and pray. Give the best you have to give; love enough to sacrifice for His work. If the Lord is soon coming you will not need much longer that which will ease the tired brain of the daily worker; for while we wait for His return we must occupy; we must think; we must plan. "Thoughts are the cause: conditions are merely the effects." We cannot pray without thinking; God knows the meaning of our thoughts; and will grant the things we need. We are laying up treasures in heaven. What are some of them? True love to God; trust; faith in His word; loyalty to His cause. Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building. David said, Trust in the Lord with all thine heart. Are we doing that, or is it just half way trust? If we are, we need not worry. He will provide all the necessary $2000, and more.

"In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct thy paths."

God, help us to trust.

—THR—

"SOME Christians are road-menders. The smooth the road daily for others to travel over."

—THR—

ARE WE READY?

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

The harvest is past, and the summer is ended, and we are not saved.—Jer. 8:20.

IT is sad to contemplate that the summer days are gone, the harvest past, and we have not the full assurance of faith that we are in a saved condition. Have we brought in any sheaves for Jesus? The fields are white but the reapers few, and the golden grain stands in the field waiting for the reapers. It would seem that Jeremiah's lament was for God's chosen people: they had let the harvest pass and the summer days end, with all the golden opportunities for service pass unheeded; and by their careless indifference, they were losing God's grace and favor, and were in an unsaved condition.

In this little verse is another lesson. How many summers have come and gone since you heard the gospel message? How many harvest days have past since God called you to seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness? And you have said, I am too busy now; the world calls me to its service; I will come some time, at a more convenient time; but not now. So the summer days end, days of youthful vigor when man is at the Zenith of usefulness; when he is fully able to bring in the golden grain for Jesus. But the winter time of life finds him unsaved, because he has not surrendered himself to God.

Dear reader, did you know God says His Spirit will not always strive with man? It is dangerous to trifle with things eternal. Seek Him while He may be found peradventure He may hide you in the day of His wrath; For behold the Lord cometh out of His place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity, and the people for their sins. We do not know how soon that time will be. It would seem, from the present trend of events, that God will not delay much longer His judgment.

Be ready to meet Him in peace.

—THR—

"USE high faculties and they grow. Forget them and they will fade out for ever."

THANKSGIVING

THANKS be unto God for this dear privilege: to speak a word to my heavenly Father, He who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus the Christ forasmuch as your labor is not in vain in the Lord, 1 Cor. 15:57-58. Every year, the last Thursday in November, this whole country is reminded of the grace of Thanksgiving. This is a gain in thoughtful living, but, dear readers with us (I say "us," but perhaps I should say all of God's children), everywhere should have the love of God in our hearts to be thankful every day of our lives for all His tender mercies, His loving kindness: He is so tender and kind at all times. I am truly thankful. We are so apt to forget this virtue, for it is truly a virtue, as well as a grace, that such a reminder is provocative of much good. So, dear ones, everywhere, let us praise our heavenly Father for all His loving kindness and watchful care over us. It is through Him and by Him that we live and move, and have our being. Let us rest assured that He who watches the fall of the little sparrow, if it falls to the ground, will watch us. So let us praise His holy name and shout for joy that God gave His only begotten Son to be crucified upon the cross that we, wretched worms of the dust, through Him (Christ) can be made perfect. Oh, dear ones, let every day be a day of thanks giving; for we know not the day or the hour that Jesus will come to claim His Father's children. Let us be ready, having our lamps filled and plenty of oil, having on the breast plate of salvation.

God be with you all until we meet.

Your sister in the soon coming kingdom,

Mrs. E. Pendleton,

1132 3rd St., Webster City, Iowa.

—THR—

WHAT IS THIS MONSTER?

I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world.

I have destroyed more men than all the wars of nations.

I am more deadly than bullets, and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest siege guns.

I steal, in the United States alone, over $300,000,000 each year.

I spare no one, and I find my victims among the rich and poor alike the young, the old, the strong and the weak. Widows and orphans know me.

I loom up to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor, from the turning of the grindstone to the moving of every railroad train.

I am everywhere—in the house, on the street, in the factory, at the railroad crossings and on the sea.

I bring sickness, degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me.

I destroy, crush and maim; I give nothing but take all. I am your worst enemy.

I am Carelessness.—Toledo Blade.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

Your editorials must necessarily be written by your assistant editor this time. We are indeed depressed that our beloved Sister Austin has gone the way of all the earth, but, with the glorious hope of resurrection life before us, we have that peace of God that passeth all understanding.

* * * *

This morning the sun shot his golden beams into my room and flooded it with the brightness of a day without clouds. We look to the day when the "Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in His wings"—a day without clouds.

* * * *

BEAUTY

As we view the things about us, we are often heard to remark, "How beautiful!" Beauty is an assemblage of lines, colors or qualities that we see in a thing which makes it pleasing to us. That which is beautiful to one person may not be beautiful to another. When I journey forth from my home in the morning, my eye may be attracted by the spider's web across my path, with the morning dew sparkling on its silken threads, and I say, "Beautiful!"

As I travel on I come to broad, fertile, level fields, with growing grain waving in the gentle breeze and bathed in the golden sunlight. I think, "How beautiful!"

Or I may, perchance, gaze upon the winding river as it courses its way through field and wood, leaping joyfully over the rocks in its path, then stretching out in a broad, placid, gently flowing stream, and I exclaim, "Wonderfully beautiful!"

It was only the other day that Nature laid her new white coverlet of snow upon our fields and lawns, giving everything an appearance of cleanliness and purity that was indeed beautiful.

And so every-where about us, in the galleries of beautiful paintings, in the hall of music, in the garden of roses, the high bluffs and mountains in contrast to the valleys between, if we are looking for grandeur, we will find it there.

But beauty is not always a thing which appeals to the eye alone. Sometimes it is qualities which find response in the finer, nobler self, so the poet speaks of hands, feet, etc., as being beautiful.

*"Beautiful hands are they that do,
Deeds that are noble, good, and true.
Beautiful feet are they that go,
Quickly to lighten another's woe."*

Yes, beauty grows out of service. To the Christian, the Bible is full of beauties.

The fifty-third chapter of Isaiah prophetically speaks of Christ as follows: "He hath no form nor comeliness, and when we shall see Him, there is no beauty that we should desire Him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from Him; He was despised and we esteemed Him not." But Isaiah also says, "Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty". And was he not beautiful even when He was here to walk among men and serve them? Yet, He was only beautiful to them who knew Him. To the Jews, there was no comeliness in Him; to the disciples, He was beautiful because of His character and service.

What makes the Christian beautiful? There is the "beauty of holiness", "holiness without which none shall see the Lord". "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!"

All through the centuries human kind has tried to make its appearance beautiful by adorning.

Should not the Christian do as much? Peter tells it after this manner: "Whose adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." An unseen sculptor is chiseling, chiseling, day by day at your very self, and the process continues so long as life shall last. If you would be beautiful, as a bride adorned for her husband, hold before you the mirror of God's truth, and there watch the image, the inner man, grow more and more, "unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."—F. A. S.

(Editorials concluded on page 126, column 1)

—THR—

HERALD RECEIPTS

H. W. Patterson; J. E. Orchard; Mrs. Will Scott; Mary D. Goodyear; Earl Gesin; Mrs. Wm. Lansbery; Chas. Hickox; Mrs. O. W. Umphrey; Mrs. Margaret Donaly; Mrs. Robena Morrison; Mrs. Etheal Foehr; S. E. Boyer; Edith R. Burke; Catherine Ritenour; Nellie Grant; Clara E. Hoffman; Mrs. Gideon Logan; Mrs. Katie Davis; Wm. Fey; Wm. Laning; Frank Laning; Mrs. Mary Dean; Mrs. W. M. Emerick; Dwight Laning; Herman Laning; Alta King; Mrs. J. D. Van Derweele; Mrs. J. E. Roose; J. H. Adams; Mrs. Sarah Harper; J. E. Boyer; Albert Siple; Mrs. F. V. Blakely; Mrs. Belle Hartman; Eugene M. Hall; Mrs. Edna McNabb; Mrs. Lena Hawley; L. E. Conner; J. Wamsley; Cecil Wright; L. G. Jaeger; J. C. Rankin; F. J. Dart.

HELPING FUND

Mrs. Hanna Michaelson

$5.00

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

THE new Senior Berean Class organized at Casey, Illinois, on October 25 consists of fifteen members. The officers are, Mrs. Eunice Weaver, President; Mrs. Bertha Partlo, Vice President; Wm. Lansbery, Secretary-treasurer. The class meets once each week at the different homes, with the different members of the class acting as leaders. One good custom they follow is that of opening each meeting with roll call verses.

* * * *

AN ANSWER

In The Herald of October 19 Brother Siple asks for comment on Mark 12:31, "love thy neighbor as thyself", and Gal. 6:10, "Do good to all men especially unto them who are of the household of faith", and asks the question, "Is there a difference in the degree and kind of love one should bear for a brother or sister in the church and that which he should hold for a neighbor?"

In Luke 10, we find that our neighbor is one that will help us when in need, help us when we are afflicted, poverty stricken, in trouble of any kind. It seems to me that it would be easy to love a person like that as ourselves, as it might not be possible for us to exist if it were not for them. I don't think we could love a brother or sister with a greater degree of love. But when it comes to our doing good, if we haven't in our power to help both we should help those in the body of Christ. But would it not lessen our love for our neighbor just because we were in a position so that we could not help him. Our love would be just as great even if we could not help him when in need.

Inez Titus.

* * * *

ECHOES FROM AN OREGON CLASS

The Oregon Berean Class recently enjoyed a very interesting study of lesson 57, "Living Epistles". Have you ever started on the day's duties with a feeling that nobody cares, that no one ever had such trials to surmount, that temptation was greater than the strength to resist? A letter comes, perhaps, from a very dear friend, a letter full of love, encouragement and trust. How the day has changed! The prospect that once was gloomy, brightens immediately and your outlook on life is so different!

We are all living epistles of one sort or another. What a dreary old world this would be, to be sure, if none of us lived an epistle of companionship and comfort! Let us strive to be epistles with which people love to come in contact, epistles full of faith in God and our fellowmen, epistles that radiate sunshine and good cheer, never forgetting that "he that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as He is pure."

Mary Gesin.

* * * *

The above suggests still a further thought to the Berean Editor: each person will really be a living epistle whether he wants to be or not. Others are bound to read your life. But, just as some literature is uplifting in its nature, while other is debasing, so the influence of some lives will inspire to high and noble acts, while others will lead to the downward path.

It is true that one's life and acts may be misunderstood at times. There are persons who misunderstand even the best of literature. But in the long run your life will be correctly read by the majority of those who come in contact with you.

The big question, then, is: Will our life be an epistle of strong, beautiful, loving phrases that will make others rejoice that they have known us?

* * * *

THE SMILE CURE

A specific for ills

Which are common to man,

Are the thrills of a smile

And anyone can if he will

Indulge in a smile.

So smile when you rise in the morning,

And smile at the busy noon.

Smile when the sun is setting,

And smile by the light of the moon.

For it's always worth while to practice a smile

Whatever the time or the place,

And you'll set the style

If you smile all the while

And set the whole world a new pace.

—Selected.

* * * *

Some of the classes have recently been studying Lesson 51, "The Tree of Life". That is a large subject, with so many possibilities. We would like to have different Bereans write comments for the benefit of others. If you see some typical value to the tree, if you observe in it some illustration of God's plan of salvation, tell us about it, please.

DAILY SCRIPTURE READINGS

Sunday—Nov. 28—1 Peter 5	Mem. V. 7
Monday—Nov. 29—2 Peter 1	Mem. V. 21
Tuesday—Nov. 30—2 Peter 2	Mem. V. 21
Wednesday—Dec. 1—2 Peter 3	Mem. V. 18
Thursday—Dec. 2—1 John 1	Mem. V. 7
Friday—Dec. 3—1 John 2	Mem. V. 14
Saturday—Dec. 4—1 John 3	Mem. V. 2

On account of the death of Sister Austin, comments on the Daily Scripture Readings must necessarily be omitted this week.

—THr—

HOW THE SPADE VERIFIES SCRIPTURE

TRANSLATED into six hundred languages, the Bible is "more read in China than Confucius, more read in India than the Vedas, more read in Italy than Virgil, more read in Greece than Homer." World-wide therefore, is the concern with which the progress of archaeological research is watched as it endeavors to determine the truth of Scripture. What results are being obtained now that "the whole of the lands where the Biblical scenes were enacted—that is, Egypt, Palestine, Asia Minor, and the Euphrates Valley—are subject to the spade of the excavator?" Only the other day, Bishop H. M. DuBose wrote from Nablus, Palestine, reporting that excavations directed by Professor Sellin at Shechem had accomplished "the validation of the Bible stories relating to the history of Abraham and Jacob." Meanwhile, the results achieved at Shechem "tremendously strengthen the argument for the common origin of the Genesis stories of the Garden of Eden, the Fall, and the Deluge in a family of Semitic nations in the north, on the borders of Asia Minor."

Bishop DuBose's report appears in the New York Times, and the same issue contains also a review by Mr. P. W. Wilson, of archaeological achievements in general as they are affecting the credibility of Bible narratives. Far from disturbing our faith in them, archaeology now tends to sustain it, Mr. Wilson finds, and much that was once considered myth turns out to be history. For example, the story of Babel. That "seemed to be a myth," but—

"It is no myth any longer. Early mankind believed in worship on a mountain. When there was no mountain, they built one. In Ur of the Chaldees, to-day, excavators from the University of Pennsylvania have been uncovering what looked like a huge rubbish heap, but proved to be an immense pyramid temple, similar to what may be seen in Mexico, a staged tower, 195 feet long, 150 feet wide and 60 feet high, standing on an artificial terrace and oriented to the cardinal points of the compass.

"It is what Chaldea meant by Babel. And a work so immense could only have been completed by a community politically united. The Scriptural statement, therefore, that the building was interrupted by a confusion of tongues—that is, by a divergence of race and culture—is rendered self-evident."

Abraham must have seen this tower, and, as Mr. Wilson tells us, "Dr. D. L. Wooley of the Pennsylvania expedition finds that Ur was subject to disastrous wars." Invaders from Persia over-ran the country at about the time of Abraham. "Out of such miseries Abraham emerged, a heroic figure. The excavation shows us that he emigrated from a highly elaborate community." Indeed, we are brought even closer to him:

"Damascus, the most ancient of extant cities in the world, still marks the detour northward by which Abraham, in his journey to Palestine, avoided the desert. And the mosque of Hebron covers a cave which corresponds precisely to that grotto of Machpelah so carefully purchased by Abraham for the burial of his dead. Few have been shown the interior. Among them was King Edward VII. But coffins, purporting to be those of the patriarchal family, are preserved. And there is one curious coincidence. Rachel is absent. According to the Scriptural record, she died suddenly, and had to be buried at Ramah. During Allenby's advance, the mosque was deserted and a certain Colonel Meinertz Hagen happened to wander into it. Attracted by the little cenotaph of Abraham, he passed through a small doorway cut in the rock, and so down a passage to a cave where was a long block of stone with four upstanding colonettes. He was at the grave of the patriarch without realizing it."

Meanwhile, the story of Sodom and Gomorrah interests Dr. W. F. Albright, director of the American School of Oriental Research at Jerusalem. He lately visited the Dead Sea, and, according to Mr. Wilson, he believes that Sodom and Gomorrah "lie within its waters." We are told, he "has noted the asphalt deposits mentioned in the Bible as 'slime pits', and, while he dismisses the theory that a volcano overwhelmed the cities, he is working out what he believes to be the true cause of the disaster."

Other famous cities of Bible times are already surrendering their secrets, which often verify the Scriptural account of them. Says Mr. Wilson:

"The land of Canaan, into which the Israelites migrated, was, so we read in the Book of Joshua, strongly fortified. The cities were walled up to heaven. To-day the foundations—uncovered by Prof. W. F. Bade, of Berkely, California—of Mizpah, a word meaning watch-tower or fortified outpost, are found to be fifteen feet thick. The battle-field of Armageddon or Megiddo, is dominated not only by the ancient city of that name, under excavation by Dr. Clarence S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, Dr. D. H. Higgins and Dr. Edward DeLoch of Chicago, and others, but by Bethshan, where Saul's body was exposed and rescued. There are proofs of Egyptian occupation, and on Mount Carmel, to mention but one case, Prof. Breasted has picked up a tablet which mentions Sheshonk or Shishak, the Pharaoh who in the decadent days of King Rehoboam stripped Jerusalem of her

(Continued on page 125)

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

RUTH AND NAOMI

LESSON 10 DECEMBER 5, 1926
 LESSON TEXT THE BOOK OF RUTH RESPONSIVE READING RUTH 4
 RUTH 1:14-22

Golden Text: Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.— Ruth 1:16.

FOR STUDY

Review: With what period of Israel's national development did last week's lesson deal? What were its chief characteristics? What contribution would Israel's experience during this period make toward her development?

The New Lesson: This week's lesson shows a beautiful side of the period of the Judges. The following commentary gives a general view of the Book of Ruth, but the Book itself merits reading:

I. Ruth's Loyalty. Ruth 1. The story of this lovely little book, though of the time of the Judges, brings the reader into an atmosphere very different from that of the fierce inroads of savage tribes, the desperate resistance, the fighting and the murders, that occupy so large a part of the Book of Judges.

"The object of the book was to exhibit the self-sacrificing love of Ruth, though she was a Moabitess, a foreigner and originally an idolater; therefore the story is one among many evidences that the ancient Jews had broader sympathies than is often supposed. Its object is also to praise the kindness and public spirit of Boaz, and his fidelity to law and custom. Also one of the leading purposes of the book is to set forth an interesting chapter in the ancestral history of the great King David, while the writer, how unconsciously! pictured one of the most remarkable and significant of the human progenitors of the Messiah who was to come."

The frank, pure viewpoint of marriage and its purpose which the Book of Ruth presents is a strong contrast to that viewpoint of marriage which does not take into consideration the God who instituted marriage, nor His purpose in marriage. The courtship of Ruth is a standing rebuke to the roadside courtships of darkness and the courtships of the movie picture type—courtships which have no thought of true marriage in them.

The Book of Judges presents to us the picture of Israel's national life during the first years of her history in her land of promise. It is a picture that presents many ugly aspects—faithless disobedience, idolatry, war and bloodshed. The Book of Ruth is a balance to the Book of Judges. It presents to us a picture which shows that, in spite of national degredation, God's principles of righteousness and progress were at work as leaven in individual lives and that the influences which were finally to culminate in the Christ, the Savior of all nations, were having their way.

Not for one moment in Israel's history has God forgotten the progressive fulfillment of the (covenant He made with Abraham).

I. A Moabitess Becomes Identified with God's Special People. Ruth 1:1-22. Read the story. How and why did this change come about in Ruth's life? Judging from the relationship between Ruth and Naomi, what were the home influences that would have induced Ruth to make her choice? Would a Hebrew marriage controlled by belief in God as against a heathen marriage controlled by idolatrous beliefs, have anything to do with her choice? Verse 8 gives just a touch of the home life of these two Moabitess women with Hebrew men. Does Naomi herself show any degree of factional religious and racial hatred? Vs. 8, 9.

Ruth can hardly be called a patriot. But did she make a wise choice? Is it a choice that all peoples will finally make?

A Moabitess Becomes an Ancestor of Israel's Christ. Ruth 4. The courtship and betrothal of Ruth is summarized in the following commentary on Ruth 2; 3. It is quoted because it helps us to view it in the light of the customs of the time and thus to dispel the disapproval which present customs tend to give it.

"By chance—but by chance that was divinely directed—the Moabitess set to work in a field belonging to Boaz, a rich man and a relative of her dead father-in-law, Elimelech. Here she was allowed to glean, and she made the best of her time. It was hard work, constant bending over and carrying her slowly increasing burden in the hot sun; but Ruth did it gladly for love of Naomi.

"In the course of the morning Boaz himself came from his house in Bethlehem to note the progress of the work and encourage the workers—not to labor himself or even to superintend the laborers, for he had a servant who was acting as superintendent. We get a glimpse of the man's religious nature in his greeting to the reapers, 'The Lord be with you,' and their hearty response, 'The Lord bless thee.' Boaz was not afraid to carry his religion into his secular life, to the great gain of both.

"Boaz's keen eye caught sight of Ruth, and at once he asked who she was. When he learned he was pleased, for he had heard of Ruth's fidelity to her mother-in-law, and his own faithful spirit recognized a like spirit in her. Promptly calling Ruth to him, he bade her not to glean in other fields but to remain in his, where she would be safe from harm, and where, when thirsty, she could drink the water drawn by his young men from the famous well by the city gate. 'The Lord recompense thy work,' Boaz added nobly, 'and a full reward be given thee of the Lord, the God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to take refuge.' These words may be said to be the central text of the Book of Ruth.

"Law-abiding Boaz. According to Eastern custom, all marriage arrangements were made by parents for their children, and Naomi had by no means forgotten that it was her duty to provide a suitable husband for Ruth. More and more her mind turned to Boaz, who had shown that he held the noble-hearted Moabitess in high honor. Moreover, he was a kinsman of Elimelech, and it was regarded by Hebrews as the duty of a near kinsman of a dead man to marry his widow, if she had no children, in order to perpetuate his family line. The kinsman who wished to step thus into the place made vacant by death threw his garment over the widow; and when Ruth, at Naomi's bidding, went to Boaz as he lay asleep on his threshing floor (an exposed spot in the open field) and asked him to throw his garment over her, she was simply suggesting that he do his part in accordance with the ancient custom of his people and by use of the accepted symbol. It was a great compliment which Ruth thus paid a man so much her senior, and Boaz was immensely pleased that she had chosen him and had not honored and blessed some younger man. Weighing her down with grain as a present for Naomi, he sent

(Continued on page 123)

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. T. J. Ellis, of Waterloo, Iowa, is recovering nicely from what was nearly a nervous breakdown and Sr. Ellis is recovering from a heavy cold, or the "flu".

* * *

Sr. Mattie Matthews, of Fonthill, Ontario, has been in St. Catharines hospital for a little while, treating for general health conditions.

* * *

Sr. Lilian Railton, of Fonthill, Ontario, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Maurice Guest of Fredonia, New York. Her general progress is westward with expectation to reach Illinois by holiday season.

* * *

WILL FILL APPOINTMENTS

As I will go to the state of Colorado in April to hold some meetings, I can spend the months, May and June, in some of the other Northern states. If any wish my service in May and June, they may write me as soon as convenient and we will arrange it.

Yours for Service,

E. O. Stewart,
Box 485, Sweetwater, Texas.

MRS. F. L. AUSTIN

Mary Stone Chase was born September 2, 1874, to Samuel and Martha Chase, at Martin, Michigan. In May, 1895, she was married to F. L. Austin, and four children came to grace their home: Ruby M., William Lloyd, Mary Martha, and Effie Ethel, all of whom, with the husband and father, live to realize their loss.

Through years of suffering Sister Austin has been an outstanding example of patience and fortitude, with a ready smile for those who dropped in to see her, with full appreciation for every kindness or consideration shown.

She was baptized by Bro. L. E. Conner in 1892, and has been a very devout follower of Christ to the last. Peaceful sleep came to end her sufferings on Wednesday, November 17, 1926.

Funeral services were held from the church at Oregon, on Friday, November 19, and burial was made in the cemetery nearby.

F. E. Siple.

* * *

DIXON MEETINGS

The special meetings at the new Dixon church are progressing very nicely. Extremely stormy weather, with the winter's first blizzard slowed up attendance part of the first week, but at present writing things are going fine, with bright prospects for the rest of the week. Meetings close next Sunday night.

* * *

A REPORT

Bro. Siple came to Ripley and began a series of meetings November 4, delivering ten sermons. Meetings closed with Sunday morning services, November 14, on account of weather conditions. Bro. Thomas Lewis was baptized in the all-saving name of Jesus Christ, following the Sunday morning services. We not only rejoice in this one consecrating his life to Christ, but we trust that all have been strengthened and encouraged by this meeting together and that we will be more able to meet life's trials. When our Savior shall appear may we receive the blessings He hath promised to all that love His appearing, is our prayer.

Tessa Laning, Secretary.

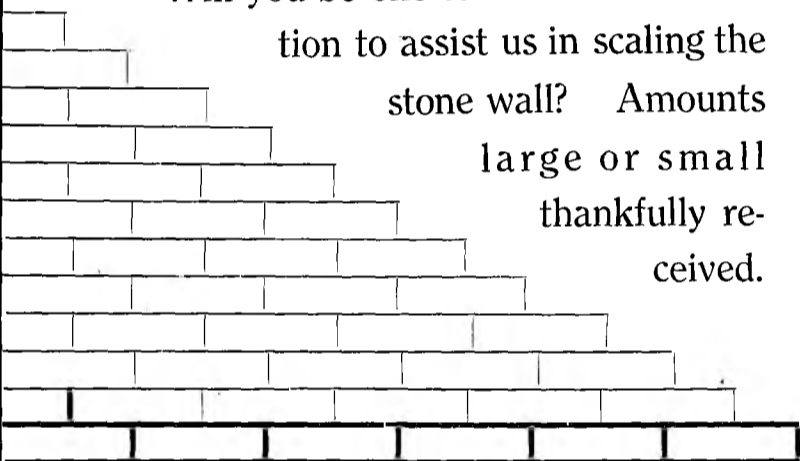

* * *

MICHIGAN

The number in attendance at the Grand Rapids Sunday School on November 14 was 97. They expect to go over the top Enough has now been paid in to pay for the new pipe in number one greenhouse. Thanks! It is hoped Thanksgiving will put us well up the steps.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $-----, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name -----

Street -----

Post Office -----

State ----- Date -----

on Sunday the 21st. The attendance at the preaching service was good.

Since the attendance at the services in Grand Rapids seems to be better in the evening than in the morning, and the West Bowne folk would rather have morning services during the winter, it has been decided to change the order of services and have the services at Grand Rapids in the evening. So the following will be the order for the winter after this month: Bro. Patrick will be at Coats Grove in the morning of Sunday, December 5, and at Grand Rapids every Sunday evening. On the the other three Sunday mornings in December, the morning services will be at West Bowne. Every four weeks the services will be at Coats Grove in the morning.

BRETHREN, LISTEN!

How does this sound to you, Sr. Woodward? We both went to church Sunday. There were 97 at Sunday School, and $7.00 in the collection, and such a nice lot of well-behaved children, with the house full for church. O, I am so elated over this good work, I cannot express my joy. Now, isn't that encouraging?

I should say, YES! But, beloved, while Grand Rapids is so blessed, do not forget that it means long, tedious Sundays, every Sunday (unless I can occasionally relieve the monotony) for others who are now deprived of Bro. Patrick's good sermons entirely.

To these I want to say, Be patient. It is much better for we older ones to suffer this loss than some others.

Remember the work in Grand Rapids is, for the present at least, purely evangelistic. These dear people, and especially the children, have perhaps never had the opportunity of hearing the Word of God as you and Bro. Patrick are telling it to them. They have not known of a Christ who is coming soon, or of the blessings promised in God's beautiful new earth.

Instead of repining, then, over our loss, let us renew our prayers for the advancement of the work; let us work in sympathy with all they are trying to do; let no ill feeling arise to keep the spirit of God from doing its blessed work. But may our prayers be more fervent, our sympathy and help be all we can spare. The dear people there have worked so diligently, earnestly, hopefully that God must be pleased with them. They have made some mistakes. Who have not, "for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God"? We are all resting in His mighty love, because of His wonderful promises to us.

So, brethren beloved, in Grand Rapids and elsewhere, keep at work and do not forget to pray God to keep you humble, earnest, God-fearing people. Think of the great responsibility resting upon each of you, the responsibility of guiding those young minds aright, setting them examples of piety, brotherly love, unselfish devotion to God's work. It means so much to be guides to the young, to tell them the story of Christ's love, that they may catch the thread of divine thought, and desire to be Christians.

But God can and will help us in all this. May He pity us in our weakness, and strengthen us in every good work, is the earnest prayer of M. A. Woodward.

A Thanksgiving Prayer

Dear God, we thank Thee for this day,
As to Thee, in prayer, we come.
We pray Thy name be a sacred word
In this, our earthly home.

We thank Thee, God, for the food and health
That come to us each day;
And may Thy divine presence be
With us along the way.

We thank Thee for Thy wondrous love,
That we each hour receive;
And know that Thou art ever near,
If only we believe.

We thank Thee for the promises
Thy Scripture doth reveal;
That Thou to us will come again,
Our Spiritual wounds to heal.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL
RUTH AND NAOMI

(Continued from Sunday School page) her home, promising to do all that she wished, and as speedily as possible. "The man will not rest," said shrewd, old Naomi, 'until he have finished the thing this day.'

"The cause of the delay was the fact, well known to Boaz, that there was a man who was a nearer kinsman to Elim-elech than he himself was. Eager as Boaz was to wed Ruth, this nearer kinsman must be given his chance first. The episode is a fine example of putting right before desire, justice before pleasure. No home can be happily founded except upon order, self-control, and a profound regard for the laws of God and man."

The story of how Boaz met the legal requirements of his time is found in the first part of Ruth 4 and is followed by the story of his marriage and the birth of his son, who became the father of Jesse, the father of David. It is a beautiful story by which many modern homes may profit.

The whole Book of Ruth pictures to us the influence of God working among His people and producing simple, wholesome living, even during the darkest periods of national degradation.

BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ: I am offering my father's (W. H. Wilson) books for sale for Christmas gifts.

Christmas is coming soon, at which time we celebrate the birth of our Savior. He is a gift to us, that through Him we may have life and a position in His kingdom. We are expecting Him to come soon, so let us work, for there is much seed to be sown.

Let us spread the literature that will sow the seed and bring forth fruit to life everlasting. The list of books is as follows:

Pine Woods Bible Class, 90c ea; 6 for $5.00
Students Text Book, 45c ea; or 5 for $2.00
Revelation Made Easy to Understand

Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times 25c each
Can You Believe, by H. V. Reed 25c each

20c per doz., or 75c for 50

This offer will last till January 1, 1927. All orders will be promptly filled. Thanking you in advance.

Your sister in the one hope of His coming,
Jessie M. Wilson.
625 Long Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD
Published by the
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

ANNUITY BONDS
FOR MAKING GIFTS

For information regarding the advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON - ILLINOIS

CHILDREN'S PAGE

RUTH AND NAOMI

By Daisy Nokes

ONCE upon a time there was a little girl whose name was Sadie. Sadie lived with her cousins in a beautiful home. Such a pretty place it was, too! Most any child would have been delighted to call it home. Parties, dances, picture shows, pretty dresses were all her little cousins talked of. But Sadie was not happy.

One day a sweet faced old lady came to visit in the home. Each evening she gathered the children around her and would tell them the love stories of Jesus. How Sadie did enjoy them!

When it came time for the lady to go home Sadie begged to go with her.

"Why, little girl, I am poor and live in a small house," said she.

"I don't care for that, I know I would be happy there," replied Sadie.

"Are you sure? You can have lots of fun here playing with your little cousins," said the lady.

"No, I don't care for the parties. Of course I love my cousins, but I'd rather go with you and go to church and Sunday School and hear about Jesus. This beautiful home is too busy to know Him."

So Sadie chose to live with the poor old lady where she could learn about God's holy Word.

Now I will tell you about a woman named Ruth of Bible times who left her home, relatives and friends to go and live in a strange country where she could learn about the true God, Jehovah. She lived in the land of Moab where the people worshiped idols. Years before a mother, father, and two sons had come to find food there from the land of Israel. They worshiped God. The mother's name was Naomi. Ruth married one of Naomi's sons and another Moabite woman named Orpah married the other son. They all six lived happily together in one home. After a time trouble came to them and death took the father and the two sons, leaving the three women alone. They felt very lonely.

Naomi was so homesick for her own country and relatives where she could be with other that loved God, that she planned a long journey on foot to go back to her homeland.

Ruth and Orpah walked a ways with her. Then Orpah kissed her goodbye and went back to her people.

Ruth said, "Don't ask me to leave you, for I want to go with you; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried."

Ruth was very brave, for it might be very hard for her to live among strange people. She was willing to give up father, mother, sister, friends, and country to go back with Naomi and learn of the true God. She never thought of coming back, for she even wanted to be buried there.

You see she would rather be poor and be where she could worship God than live in plenty with worldly people who had idol gods, around her.

Ruth and Naomi traveled a long, hard journey of about sixty miles and reached Beth-lehem in April in time for the barley harvest. All the people came out to greet them. "Is this Naomi?" they asked. Sorrow had so changed Naomi's face that they hardly knew her. They were sorry when they heard her story and were glad to welcome Ruth.

QUESTIONS

1. Why did Naomi and her family leave Beth-lehem?
To find food.
2. What happened to father and sons?
They all died.
3. Who went back with Naomi to Beth-lehem?
Ruth.
4. What did Ruth show for Naomi?
Love and helpfulness.
5. Why did not Ruth stay with her parents and idol gods?
She loved the true God.
6. Would you be willing to give up whatever keeps you from loving and serving Jesus?

—THR—

COMMUNICATIONS

DEAR BROTHER AUSTIN: Enclosed is a P. O. Order of two dollars for one copy of The Restitution Herald.

I would be very happy if I could send some help to you for Golden Rule Home, but am an inmate of a home for aged women; have been for ten years. Am in my eighty-eighth year and have been in the faith since twenty-two years of age, and hope to live till our Lord comes.

Yours in the one faith,

Mrs. Helen G. Pier,
225 Mt. Pleasant Ave., Newark, N. J.

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

TO THE PUBLISHERS OF THE RESTITUTION HERALD.
DEAR SIRS AND BRETHREN: I write a line to congratulate you as to the new form and appearance of your excellent paper. You can now in a more efficient way herald the good tidings of the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began.

Now a question: Will someone of your very able writers please inform me if the thousand years spoken of in Revelation 20:6, 7 apply to the same period and time?

I remember one expositor who took the position that Satan had already been bound and loosed. The binding taking place between the sixth and seventh centuries when the Justinian Code went into effect and was loosed at the beginning of the French Revolution, 1790, one thousand years later.

And further, to those of your writers who believe what is known as The Rapture, or calling away of the church, I will say that this view is a deviation from divine truth and void of prophetic facts and meaning. I don't think anyone will be called until He comes to reign, and even then there will be order regarding the transition. Mathew 24:40-41. Then two shall be in the field and two grinding at the mill together. One shall be taken and the other left. The unfaithful and unprepared will be taken—taken unawares as to this greatest of events—His coming; while the faithful and prepared will know the meaning of it.

Your brother in hope of the Lord's soon coming,

J. E. L.

(Editor) Here is a chance for some good articles on this subject. Who will respond. F. A. S.

HOW THE SPADE VERIFIES SCRIPTURE

(Continued from page 120)

treasures."

The Israelites of Samuel's time were still living in the Bronze Age, and the only iron came overseas "and therefore through the territory of their enemies, the Philistines. Hence the passage, 'There was no smith found throughout all the land of Israel.' (I Sam. 13:19). The chosen people had to take their tools to the Philistine in order to get them sharpened." Recent discoveries shed light upon this, and Mr. Wilson continues:

"Our version reads that they had a file for the mattocks. And in Hebrew the word translated mattocks was pim. It did not make good sense. But there have now been picked up small stone weights, inscribed pim. They show that the Israelites had to pay about one-third of a shekel (silver), or 21 cents, for having an edge put on a tool."

Further discoveries shed light upon Canaanitish barbarity. The Philistine offered up human victims on their altars, and "in some cities of the Holy Land temples have been laid bare which were dedicated to terrible rites. Significant are the skeletons of women and children. So we read,

"The 'abominations' of Moloch and Baal, which included passing children through the fire, are no longer imaginative. And the terrific imprecations of Samuel and Elijah leading their nation against the practice of these horrors, are restored to the basis of ethics. The very altruists who have been so shocked by the stern language would themselves use no different language if they were confronted by the same moral agony. At Bethshan, the actual pillars, reared to the Baal and the Ashtaroth and denounced by the Hebrew prophets, have been identified."

In Samovaria, Dr. G. A. Reisner "has excavated the palaces successively occupied by Omri, Ahab, and Jeroboam II. Among his interesting "finds" was "an alabaster vase belonging to Ahab". At Jerusalem, meanwhile, Professor Macalister of the Palestine Expedition Fund—

"Has uncovered, so he claims, the actual wall of the City of Melchisedek, King of Salem, who blest Abraham with bread and wine. The ancient date is demonstrated by the potsherds in the rubbish cleared, which belong to the Bronze Age. It may fairly be said that this carries back the story of Jerusalem to 2,000 years before Christ, and possibly earlier.

"Secondly, Professor Macalister has identified the later walls of the city as it was held by the Jebusites. It was over this wall that, when David began his siege, the defenders leaned as they taunted him with the words, 'Except thou take away the blind and the lame thou canst not come in hither.'

"Thirdly, Professor Macalister has traced the foundations of David's 'tower of Millo'. And much of the wall, which, after the captivity, Nehemiah rode around, has been mapped out.

"It will be remembered that it was Joab who surprised the Jebusite garrison by climbing up what is called in our version 'the gutter'. That 'gutter' has been found. It is a stream, running out of a spring in a deep grotto under the Jebusite city. The Jebusites cut a vertical shaft to the spring and so obtained a well of water. Joab proceeded through a more or less horizontal tunnel to the foot of this shaft, and then ascended the shaft into the unguarded room where women came to draw water."—This article is reprinted from "The Faith", in which it appears by permission of the New York "Times" and "The Literary Digest".

—THR—

STEPS TO SALVATION

No. 3

By Jas. A. Patrick

THE first step to salvation is faith in God, Heb. 11:6. The second step is repentance toward God, and in connection with this step is the third step, "Faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ."

In my last I tried to show the necessity of faith in Christ. When one comes to see himself as a sinner and lost, he will cast about to find some way to remedy his condition. As faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God (Rom. 10:17), and the seeker has found his way to God through hearing the word, and by the same word has learned of his lost condition, and has found that Christ is the only Way out, he will search further in order to learn what has to be done in order to get into this Way. Then he will hear the voice of the Father saying, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye Him." Matt. 17:5.

When the seeker hears these words, he turns to the words of the Son and to the words of His followers, for the words of the great salvation were spoken first by the Lord and confirmed unto us by them that heard Him. Heb. 2:3.

Paul says, "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Rom. 10:10. It is necessary, then, to confess with the mouth when one has believed. The eunuch was made to confess his belief in Christ by word of mouth before Philip baptized him.

When the eunuch requested baptism, Philip answered, "If thou believest with all thine heart thou mayest." What was he to believe? He answered, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Did that include anything else, or was it sufficient that he acknowledge that Christ is the Son of God?

Paul adds to what he said about confessing with the mouth the following: "And shall believe that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Rom. 10:9. Then we not only must believe that Jesus is the Son of God, but we must believe that God raised Him from the dead. Does the man that believes that Christ went to paradise with the thief the day they were crucified believe that God raised Him from the dead? If not, can he be saved? Is not a Bible belief in man's nature and condition in death necessary before one is a fit subject for baptism.

Again, we hear Christ saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel." Since the gospel is good news and the gospel of the kingdom is good news of the kingdom, it is necessary to believe the gospel of the kingdom. But it seems that this need not complicate matters greatly, because if one has a correct understanding of man's nature the rest follows in logical order. If man goes to the grave at death and is in an unconscious condition, then it is necessary for Christ to come and raise him from the dead if he is ever to live again. It is easy for the man who has a correct understanding of man's nature to believe in the personal coming of Christ and the establishment of the kingdom upon the earth.

I do not believe that it is necessary that one understand all the details of the operation of the kingdom, because if it was he could never grow in grace and a knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The next step to salvation is obedience in baptism. This phase of the subject I will leave for consideration in a future article.

NINETY-SEVEN

That's the number reported in attendance at Grand Rapids Sunday School, November 14. Have you been watching the growth in numbers of this new school. It started October 24. The first Sunday was church dedication day, when a larger than normal attendance was present. Each Sunday since has registered an increase. There is a wonderful opening in that community and it is hoped that the anxious workers there will seek God's constant guidance unto His great praise and honor.

* * * *

Have you seriously thought about the Quarterlies? How about one for your private use, if you are an attendant of another than one of our own Sunday Schools. Several are ordering a single copy at ten cents per quarter; forty cents per year. Read Bro. Howell's boosting article.

ROMAN MASS AT LEAGUE OF NATIONS OPENING

UNDER A LONDON date line of September 6 the Roman hierarchy exploited in the clip-sheet news service from its national political headquarters in our Capital City a rather boastful statement that mass celebrated by a Jesuit opened the session of the League of Nations Assembly. Attendance of Sir James Eric Drummond, the Roman Catholic secretary general of the League, was noted and it was stated that all the Roman Catholic powers were officially represented at the mass. The clip-sheet item was as follows:

"London, Sept. 6.—Father C. C. Martindale, S. J., will preach at the Pontifical High Mass to be celebrated in Notre Dame Church, Geneva, at the opening of the annual session of the League of Nations Assembly, next Sunday. The Catholic Powers will be officially represented at the Mass and Catholic statesmen and Catholic officials of the Assembly, including Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League of Nations, will attend.

"Father Martindale, who writes and preaches more than any other English priest, will fly to Geneva. He has several times traveled by airplane to congresses in Central Europe.

"This is the first time an Englishman has been chosen to deliver the sermon at the Mass celebrated in connection with meetings of the League."

Though it appears that the mass was not strictly an official function of the League Assembly itself, it is equally apparent that it was designed to impress the public as at least quasiofficial. It was for that purpose exploited in this country by the hierarchy. Indeed, the presence of the League secretary and official representatives of the Roman Catholic powers did much to make it actually semiofficial.

From the birth of the League of Nations the Pope has fully intended to dominate or wreck it. It was after the secret audience of Pope Benedict XV and President Wilson in the Vatican throne room that the latter designated its present Roman Catholic secretary general for the office he holds. That was apparently done to facilitate the papal ambition touching the institution. It thus appears that the ambition was active before the League was born.

When the Assembly met last March to admit Germany, demand was immediately made that the permanent Council seat provided for Germany should be offset by three additional permanent seats for Roman Catholic powers. It was persistency in that papal contention that defeated at that time the admission of Germany.

The embarrassing situation was cleared up temporarily in September by a compromise which so enlarged the Council as to enable Roman Catholics to retain control. The compromise also gave certain leading Roman powers virtually permanent seats without making them avowedly so. The struggle of the Nordic and Latin peoples for control of the League will continue till the Vatican triumphs or the League goes to pieces.—The Protestant.

MAN NOT AN INDESTRUCTIBLE SPIRIT

AN OPEN LETTER

By Dr. A. W. Taylor

MY dear Doctor and Brother: I duly received your reply to my criticism, for which I thank you.

Assuming that you and I are both honest, and men of ordinary intelligence, which we both believe is the case, we certainly agree that the God who created man in His image and likeness not only is able to reveal His will to man, but that He has done this and has conveyed it to His intelligent creature, man, in such terms as to be understood by those to whom He makes His revelation.

Your statement, hypothesis, "that man is spirit and is therefore indestructible", is not sustained by the infallible Word of God. It is an assumption, that lacks evidence to sustain it. You claim that "the spirit was created in the image and likeness of God before the body was formed." Allowing this to be the case (which is plainly not true if the words of Genesis are true), is it true that God has created what He cannot destroy, as you assume is the case? This to me is preposterous. Not only so, but it is plainly opposed to the plain statements of God's Word. In Genesis 6:7 we read that "the Lord said, I will destroy man whom I have created, from the face of the earth".

The only way that this statement can be harmonized with your hypothesis is to assume that God did not mean what He said. In Psalm 145:20 we are told that "The Lord preserveth all them that love Him; but all the wicked will He destroy". These statements teach us that the wicked, meaning wicked persons, are to be burned up "root and branch". See Mal. 4:1; and Psa. 37:10, 20. In Matt. 3:12 wicked men are compared to chaff to be burned up with fire unquenchable; and in the parable of our Lord in Matt. 13:40-42. He tells us that "as therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world (or age). The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of His kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth". If this language does not teach the utter and complete destruction, extermination, of all them that do iniquity, then this fact cannot be expressed by human language and symbolism. Every where in Holy Scripture this truth is as plainly stated and taught as it is possible for any other truth to be taught—both in plain, simple language and as taught by object lessons, as "stubble that shall be burned up", and "leave them neither root nor branch"; or chaff that will be burned up. And as our Lord says, "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned".

Must all these plain statements be made to mean something entirely opposite from what is stated? And, for what reason? Simply to make the Holy Scripture harmonize with your hypothesis that "Man is spirit and therefore indestructible"; and yet the Bible says, "but all the wicked will He (Jehovah) destroy".

Now, my beloved brother, the question is not whether I am an "annihilationist", or any other "ist" or "ite"; but, "What does the Bible teach?"

Now, my dear Doctor, you may or may not be surprised that I am surprised that in accepting divine revelation, you do not accept as true the terms used by the divine Revelator. The terms He uses are that man was created. The record reads, "And God said, let us make man in our image after our likeness." Nothing is here said concerning the spirit, here He tells of what He proposes to do. The next verse tells that He did what He purposed to do, namely, "So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him." Not a word or intimation "that the spirit of man was created in the image and likeness of God before the body was formed", as you affirm was done. Then, in chapter 2, verse 7, we read further, that "the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground". Here we are told that it was the man that was created in the image and likeness of God, before the breath of life was given or breathed into his nostrils. After this the man became a living creature. The word used, as you are aware, is as used in Gen. 1:21, 24 and applied to "whales" and "beasts". Further, in Gen. 5:1, this is the generation of Adam, "In the day that God created man, in the likeness of God made He him". And further, we read, "All the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died." So Adam was dead. The record reads, "and he died".

I know "the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die". But our Savior tells us he was "a liar" from the beginning. And it is evident if we accept "divine revelation" that he did lie to the woman; for this revelation says that Adam, the man Adam, died, that is, he ceased to live. Further, we are told, "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not anything."—Eccl. 9:5. Again, Job tells us that man dieth and wasteth away, yea man giveth up the ghost (nephesh) and where is he? Where is the man? "Mar-lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Why not accept these plain, easy-to-be-understood statements of facts of divine revelation? The spirit of life, God-given, when it returns to the Giver, man and beast alike cease to live. They are dead. And man will not awake out of this sleep of death until God calls him from this sleep, as it is plainly taught that He will do; as Job says, he will wait all the days of his appointed time till his change comes. "Thou shalt call, and I will answer Thee; Thou wilt have a desire to the work of Thine hands". Job's only hope was resurrection.

Why not accept this Biblical term that men in death are asleep?

As Jesus was raised from the dead, even so shall them that sleep in Jesus be raised and caught up to meet the Lord in the air, "and so shall we ever be with the Lord".

ROMAN CATHOLICISM AND PROTESTANTISM
IN THE EYES OF SOLOMON

By C. E. Rutland

WALKING one day through the Book of Ecclesiastes we met "the great orator, the son of David, King in Jerusalem". We noticed that his hair was turning white with age. Interpreting our look, he smiled and said, "One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh, but the earth abideth for ever." "The earth abideth for ever"! The words fell from our lips in surprise. We had been taught that the earth was to be destroyed! Could we believe our ears? He read the doubt in our mind, at the same time saying, "The wise man's eyes are in his head, but the fool walketh in darkness." However, he added, "one event happeneth to them all". We surmised he was speaking of death and were about to speak when he interposed with a question.

By this time we had approached nigh to what appeared to be huge stables, and as he interrupted us he stretched forth his hand and asked us if we were familiar with 2 Chronicles 9:25, to which we immediately replied, "Solomon had four thousand stalls for horses and chariots and twelve thousand horsemen." "Quite true," he remarked, and added: "I have seen servants upon horses, and princes walking as servants upon the earth." But what I was going to say had reference to "the one event." Expecting to hear something unusual, we followed him to the stables. Death had preceded us. Two of his favorite horses had sickened and died and were lying there in their stillness. Not the quiver of a muscle, nor the heaving of a flank! Solomon was much moved and we would have withdrawn ourselves from his presence, but he turned toward us gravely and said, "I have somewhat to say to you concerning the estate of the sons of men, that God may prove you and that ye may see that ye yourselves are beasts (are but as the horses) and before you become offended let me hasten and say, that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath (or spirit) so that in death a man hath no pre-eminence above the beasts: for all is vanity."

We were Roman Catholics and Protestants—"a mixed multitude"—and we thought it high time to protest against being on a level with the beasts in death, and we are afraid we replied with considerable anger when we said, "It is perfectly true that your horses are dead, and that many of our friends and relatives are dead also, but most of them are in heaven, some of them are in purgatory, and some of them are, alas! in hell-fire being tormented alive! That is to say," said we, "their spirits are; not their bodies."

He looked at us solemnly and steadily for a moment and advised us to call in and see Proverbs 25:8 on our way home; and then continued he, "Yea, they have all one spirit (or breath). All go unto one place, and all are of the dust; all turn to dust again."

Men were hustling and bustling about. Huge graves had been dug in the earth; chains were attached to the horses, and they were dragged, silent and unresisting, into the "pit of corruption".

We walked away feeling depressed and startled at what we had seen and heard, but Solomon was persistent in his preaching. He caught up with us as we approached the gates and, with somewhat of a twinkle in his eyes, said, "Remember, now, whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest. For who is exempted? With all the living there is hope: for a living dog is better than a dead lion. For the living know that they shall die, but the dead know not anything, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten. Also their love and their hatred and their envy is now perished."

We refused to listen to any thing more and hastily made our exit, and once outside of Ecclesiastes we breathed more freely. Just imagine that man telling us that "the earth is to abide for ever". The very idea! And then to tell us that our breath or spirit, is just the same as that of the beast, and that we all go unto ONE place, when we, as good Protestants, believe there are two places to go to, and our Catholic friends have three places to go to. And to crown it all he says, "The living know that they shall die, but the dead know not anything", as if our dead friends were not alive in heaven or hell or busily engaged in getting out of purgatory! We certainly had little use, as Catholics and Protestants, for Solomon's ridiculous ideas.

We decided to look up something about his education on our way home and see where he got all this foolishness. We kept thinking about Proverbs 25:8 and also pondering in our minds those words which refused to leave us: "The wise man's eyes are in his head, but the fool walketh in darkness", and in a very unsettled frame of mind we turned in at 1 Kings 4:29 and discovered that "God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the sea-shore. And Solomon's wisdom excelled all the wisdom of the children of the East Country. For he was wiser than all men—than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, and Chalcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahol, and his fame was in all the nations round about."

When we found that Solomon's wisdom was God-given there was a division among us. Some preferred to cling to what they had learned as children, but others would link their faith with Ecclesiastes; for "The wise man's eyes are in his head, but the fool walketh in darkness."

—THR—

"WHOLESOME laughter goes with the right sort of mind. Beware of the neering, coarse, or cruel laugh."

"Look ever and lovingly for the good in others, and you will find it."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 30, 1926

NUMBER 9

THE WORTH OF A MAN

By Lyman Booth

EVERY man is the sum total of his qualities. We can know no man's worth or value until we have taken an accurate inventory of his traits of character, be they virtues or vices. His real worth is measured by the amount of good or ill he does, and not by the amount of wealth he controls.

Society, in general, places great value upon those whose deeds are known to be morally upright. They are reputed to be good citizens, liberal and philanthropic, who minister to the wants of the poor and needy. They stand high in public estimation, and command the respect of others by virtue of their reputed good qualities.

The element that adds most to the value of an article is its endurance, the power to resist the ravages of time and change. This law holds good in material or immaterial things. When applied to man it denotes his worth or worthlessness.

In the first chapter of Peter's second letter he mentions seven elements of goodness which, if one possesses, he shall never fall. They give him that manly and spiritual strength and courage that enables him to pass safely through trials, temptations and conflicts. He places charity at the top of the list. Paul, in 1 Corinthians 13:13, says it is the greatest of the three graces, faith, hope and charity. Originally charity meant the purest love to God and man, but at present it is almost universally applied to some form of almsgiving, thus diminishing its true significance.

The wealth of character is acquired by a steady and continuous growth, like the accumulation of worldly wealth. Peter has told us how to acquire it, and our Lord has told us where to place it for safe keeping. Peter has given us the greatest mathematical problem to be found anywhere. Although it is simple addition, yet it is so difficult of solution as to require a lifetime of patient application to its principles to obtain the correct result. He begins with Faith as the foundation upon which the other elements of character must be added, namely, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity.

The root of the word "add" is "chorus". Not a chorus of voices, but a group or company united in one band by taking hold of hands, the last one taking hold of the first, thus forming a complete circle. Peter has given us a circle of properties or qualities in which each acts as a support to all others. Beginning with faith, taking hold of virtue, and continuing until we find charity, the crowning virtue, taking hold of faith, and all clinging together, forming a most perfect and harmonious union, one that can withstand all the pressure of evil.

To begin with, faith is implanted within us by the gift of those most precious promises, by the means of which we may be made partakers of the divine nature. Peter declares faith to be the foundation upon which a Christian life is to be erected. Every believer in Christ must build upon it the excellencies mentioned by Peter. Each is a separate stone which must be added to the structure. Faith stands upon the solid foundation, the rock, Jesus Christ. Then to faith we must add virtue, which originally meant energy, strength, force. It indicates a willingness or readiness for active labor. Then add to your faith-force, strength, and let it be manifested by manly effort to do the will of the Master.

To virtue add knowledge. Unless force is properly directed it may prove to be an injury. Therefore we should exercise practical knowledge or wisdom, in order that our force, energy, and efforts may be directed to our own good and to that of others. When energy and wisdom unite and stand upon faith they will produce harmonious co-operation of right principles, pure thoughts, practical plans, fruitful in generous and noble deeds, crowned with perfect success.

To knowledge add temperance, and to temperance patience. Here we find two elements that are so closely related as to appear to be a mixture of enjoyment and suffering. To practice both we need self-control, self-government; the power to resist altogether or to the limit. The condition which renders temperance necessary may require extreme patience, hence temperance must bear up and oppose suffering with a passive force in the form of patience. They seem to furnish provision for almost all the excellence that can be demanded of men. But men are not living alone. Goodness must be more than personal and divine, it must bear a social aspect as well. When temperance and patience have the mastery over self we find two traits of character in action next to godliness; therefore, add to godliness brotherly kindness, love of the brotherhood, love for the household of faith. It is this fraternal tie that binds, in one, all Christians, and which unites all those who profess to be heirs with our Lord to the promises. The love of god-like men approaches near to the love of God. When we add charity to godliness we become intensely philanthropic and benevolent. Our love becomes universal, embracing in its folds all mankind. This is not a mere sentiment, but a deep, earnest conviction as to its nature, a real persuasive, persevering and effective doing of that work which entitles one to the right, through faith, to partake of the divine nature.

The life we have in Christ begins with faith and is made perfect by adding thereunto Peter's rule of practice. We begin our Christian education by believing, and graduate in that holy affection which makes us partakers of the divine nature. We can advance no further until we are clothed upon with immortality. Therefore we must continue, while in the flesh, to abide in love. He that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him; for God is love.

The worth of a man in possession of all these Christian virtues is more than millions in gold. He is exquisitely beautiful because in him those pure qualities are to be found so perfectly blended together that they show forth a noble and lovely being.

The fear (love) of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and wisdom is knowledge, and knowledge consists in all that our minds contain, from whatever source derived or by whatever process obtained; the aggregate of facts, truths or principles acquired or retained by the mind. But the knowledge about which Peter has written, has come to us through God's word, the same as described in Job. 28:16-19. It can not be valued with the gold of Ophir, with the precious onyx, or the sapphire. The gold and the crystal can not equal it; and the exchange of it shall not be for jewels of fine gold. No mention shall be made of coral or of pearls; for the price of wisdom is above rubies. The topaz of Ethiopia shall not equal it, neither shall it be valued with pure gold. If the world were gold, if it were one emerald or topaz, its value would not equal the value of a righteous man. This is taught by our Lord when he said, What is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world and lose himself, or be cast away. Luke 9:25. If he owned the earth and lost himself, he would lose all; both the earth and himself, a double loss. This is the question that should concern every man more than all others. It implies that his salvation is infinitely more important to him than anything he can get or lose. Nothing the world offers can make up for the loss of it, and if lost, where could he find an equivalent in value for it?

He who has received those things that pertain unto life and godliness through the knowledge of Him who hath called us to glory and virtue, and who has received those exceeding great and precious promises that will entitle him to the divine nature is worth more, in our Father's estimation, than rubies. He who is thus blessed would not exchange his bank account in heaven for the wealth of the world, because his treasures are where moth and rust cannot corrupt and where thieves cannot steal, and he is entitled to life and peace and joy for evermore.

If this be the worth of a man, I am wondering what the inventory of my deeds will disclose. Will it be gain or loss?

—————THR—————

A SAINT'S INHERITANCE

By Rufus A. Curtis

THOSE that trust in the Lord with all their heart, and in all their ways acknowledge Him have the satisfaction that an unseen hand directs their paths; and the wisdom of their Guide can cause them to inherit substance; even an incorruptible and undefiled inheritance that fadeth not away, ready to be revealed in the last time, Prov. 3:5, 6; 8:21; 1 Peter 1:3-5, "knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ." Col. 3:24.

The good things to come such as our eternal redemption, eternal weight of glory, and eternal life are linked with the promise of eternal inheritance. Heb. 9:11, 12; 2 Cor. 4:17; John 10:27, 28; Heb. 9:15.

It is the height of folly to try to dismiss the subject under consideration with a wave of the hand, and up-lifted eyebrows, and the oft-repeated expression, "It makes no difference to me, where the inheritance of the saints will be located, if I am lucky enough to share in it, wherever it may be." In God's eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord, nothing is left to luck or chance. Eph. 3:11. "For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God Himself that formed the earth and made it, He hath established it, He created it not in vain, He formed it to be inhabited. I am the Lord; and there is none else." Isa. 45:18; Gen. 1:26. With the plainly declared purpose of Jehovah in creating the earth to be inhabited, we feel assured that His word will not return unto Him void, but will, in the fullest measure, accomplish his purpose. Isa. 55:8-13. The earth will not become an unsightly cinder, and be stricken from the sisterhood of the worlds; for it "abideth for ever"; and God hath decreed that righteous people shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of His planting, the work of His hands, that He may be glorified. Psalm 104:5; Eccl. 1:4; Jer. 60:12-22; 2 Peter 3:13. The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's; but the earth hath He given to the children of men. Psa. 115:16.

Saints are joint-heirs with Christ, and as such they will share with Him in the uttermost parts of the earth for their possession. Rom. 8:16-17; Gal. 4:7; Psalm 2:8.

This glorious inheritance, covenanted to the fathers—Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Acts 3:13—was not to be a temporal inheritance, but was to be for ever. Gen. 13:14, 15, 17; 26:3; 28:13. To disbelieve the testimony is to forfeit all claim to the inheritance; for "without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that cometh to God must believe the He is (or exists), and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him". Heb. 11:6. How can you believe in God as a rewarder if He has said nothing about a reward? If He has, and you reject His statement, your position is not an enviable one; for "he that believeth not God hath made Him a liar." 1 John 5:10; Rom. 3:3, 4; Luke 17:22. If He has spoken about a future inheritance for His people, but has couched His statements concerning it in such uncertain terms that one man's guess is as good as another's, as to what the language really means, could you term such language a revelation, emanating from an all-wise Creator?

We have a good criterion to go by, in following the example of Jesus, in appealing to the testimony of all the scriptures to settle disputed points in theology. Luke 24:27; Isa. 8:20. Our statements should be "according to the scriptures". 1 Cor. 15:3, 4; Acts 26:22, 23. "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen." 1 Peter 4:11; Jer. 23:20-32. The blessing of all nations through faithful Abraham and his immortalized and glorified seed constitute the very gist of the gospel message! Gen. 12:2, 3; Gal. 3:6-9, 16, 26-29; Rom. 6:3-9; 1 Cor. 15:51-55.

"For evil doers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth." "But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." "For such as be blessed of Him shall inherit the earth, and they that be cursed of Him shall be cut off." "The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever." "Wait on the Lord, and keep His way, and He shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it." Psalm 37:9, 11, 22, 29, 34. "The upright shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it. But the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and the transgressor shall be rooted (or plucked up) out of it". Prov 2:21, 22; 10:30; 11:31. God's beloved Son has spoken: hear ye Him. "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. 17:5; 5:5; Acts 3:19-23.

—THR—

EXTRACTS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENCE

"Enclosed is a check for — to help you get over, under, or around that stone wall. I do hope others that can, will rally to your aid so that you can, at least, meet the debts that are pressing you."

* * * *

"Enclosed is a check for — to be credited to our little girl, —, as a thanksgiving offering. We will be interested to read that many are sending in contributions to help scale the "stone wall". It was a good idea to start it."

* * * *

"Enclosed is — to help buy a little "mortar" for the "stone wall".

OUR VISION OF THE FUTURE

By N. H. Geiselman

THE struggle between good and evil has lasted a long time, and who of us that have thought at all have not asked ourselves the question, Will evil prevail for ever? or, will not good triumph at last? Maybe God has had a wonderful purpose, a wise purpose, in permitting these conditions to prevail through the centuries; maybe evil is abroad that there might be merits for good. However that may be, it is almost a crime nowadays to be benevolent; and, strange as it may seem to us, the most god-like suffer the bitterest persecution. Notwithstanding all this, Paul teaches us that these are light afflictions, and that they are but for a moment, and that they work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

Now we are standing in the presence of the dead, and in the presence of the dying, and the skeptic asks, What of the dead? or, What of the dying? He is not quite sure just what to say about them, but the infidel boastingly says, "Death is an eternal sleep and death ends all." If that be true then are we of all men most miserable. Yes, if that be true, then let us, like Paul, recommend the philosophy of the Epicureans, namely, Eat, drink, and be merry; for to-morrow we die, and that is the end.

But Paul also says, "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept." Firstfruit implies second-fruits unmistakably. Thus hope springs up within the human heart and the vision of a new day dawns within us.

In this vision of a new day; we see a world redeemed from the bondage of sin and death; where kings reigned in arrogance and splendor we see their thrones mingling with common dust; where once an aristocracy of idleness fattened upon the lives and properties of the people of common toil, under an unjust and plutocratic system of legislation, we see these unjust systems driven from off the earth and man made free indeed, and, thus made free, he receives a just reward when the kingdom work is finished. There will not be a slave, either to sin or to the avarice of our fellow man. Then the forces of nature will be so controlled and operated by divine arrangement that they will perform the tiresome tasks that have been performed by the slavery of common toil; then that glorious part of the angels' song sung at Bethlehem and which remains as yet a future event, shall meet its fulfillment, namely, Peace on earth and good will toward man. And as those beautiful words go forth from lip to lip, they will meet the same response in every heart, until the very angels join in the happy anthems of eternal praise, and Heaven and Earth, with their mixed voices fill this earth with the words of life and song.

I have read somewhere in the Book of books that the kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ; and He shall reign for ever and ever. What a wonderful thought. There will not be an exile in all the land when the redemptive scheme is completed. There will not be a fellow in a single cell; not a beggar with outstretched hand, crying for bread to be found anywhere; but a people redeemed and made comely and fair: perfect in body, perfect in mind, perfect in character; and the energies of this redeemed world turned to the interest of God and man until the very earth shall be canopied with love unfeigned and love un-failing.

—THR—

“Straightforward” is a fine Christian adjective. It belongs to truth and advance.”

Lord Thy Pleasure Take

“*If I have faltered more or less
In my great task of happiness;
If I have moved among my race
And shown no glorious morning face;
If beams from happy human eyes
Have moved me not; if morning skies,
Books, and my food, and summer rain
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain;
Lord, Thy most pointed pleasure take
And stab my spirit broad awake.’*”

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—December 5—1 John 4	Mem. V. 16
Monday—December 6—1 John 5	Mem. V. 3
Tuesday—December 7—2 John	Mem. V. 4
Wednesday—December 8—3 John	Mem. V. 7
Thursday—December 9—Jude	Mem. V. 21
Friday—December 10—Revelation 1	Mem. V. 9
Saturday—December 11—Revelation 2:1-11	Mem. V. 10

(We regret that the emergency of circumstances made it impossible to prepare notes on the Daily Scripture Readings in last week's Herald. Also, inasmuch as the interruption has occurred and it will be impossible to go back even briefly to connect the former notes and at the same time give space to notes on Revelation, it seems best not to take space for any notes on the remainder of the epistles, but to begin at once with notes on Revelation.)

THE writer is convinced that the Book of Revelation is one of the most important portions of scripture for the present-day student. He was formerly a strong exponent of the thought that Revelation was to-day mostly historical. His present strong conviction is that this book pertains nearly altogether to events that will yet occur in “the day of the Lord”.

“Revelation” comes from the Greek word apokalupsis, from whence the English word apocalypse is derived. Its meaning is, to reveal, uncover, unveil. It is stated in verse 1 that the book is a revealing, an uncovering, or unveiling of Jesus Christ. God gives to Him this unveiling. Its object is to show, or point out “unto his servants”. Few people in the early Christian days gathered anything like a vivid vision of Christ's wonderful activity in the day of restoring all things as spoken by the mouth of the prophets. The Book of Revelation gives a vivid picture of Christ in those coming days. As the restoration pertains first and largely to Israel and as the great social upheaval of the day will pertain to that restoration, it therefore seems quite reasonable to accept the prevailing literary characteristic of Revelation as indicative that the book pertains largely to that chosen people of God. If this be true, then we are not to look for much therein directly relating to the church. Its burden of prophecy and testimony is with reference to the redemption and establishment of God's chosen nation.

The word “shortly”, in verse 1, is not the word which means “soon”, but rather “speedily”, “rapidly”, that is, once the work of unveiling Christ starts it will be accomplished with great speediness. Verse 3 indicates a blessing to the reader and the listener of the words of this prophecy and to the ones who keep themselves in accord therewith.

The book is addressed by John, v. 4, to the seven churches in Asia. Much could and should be said relative to these churches. Perhaps it will be opportune at some later time to write more largely concerning them. Asia, in the days of John, referred principally to what is now termed Asia Minor.

It will be well for the reader to not only notice carefully reference to the seven spirits, v. 4, but to take note of the many sevens that are referred to in this great, prophetic book.

Positive statement is made in verse 7 that Christ will return even to the Jews, “they also which pierced Him”, in the clouds, in manner that “every eye shall see Him”. At the time of this vision the unbelieving Jews especially were strong in their attitude that the world was rid of Christ. John assures that the reverse is true; He will come again; all will know Him.

There is no indication in verse 9 that the Apostle John was banished in persecution “in the isle that is called Patmos”. True, this has been the prevailing suggestion for centuries, but there is not another suggestion in the text itself, namely, that John was in the Isle of Patmos “for the word of God and for the testimony of Jesus Christ”? Just as Jesus was led of the Spirit even so may John have been led of the Spirit unto Patmos where he should receive this extraordinary vision of prophecy.

Verse 10 holds one of the keys, if not the key, to the understanding of the Book of Revelation. A careful analysis of this verse is most important. "I came to be in spirit in the Lord's day" is the reading of the Rotherham translation; "I came to be, in spirit, in the Lord's day"—Concordant Version; "I was in spirit in the Lord's day"—Diaglott, Interlinear. The Greek preposition for "in" and "on" in this clause is "en" in both places. It would seem that John was carried away into the Lord's day; he was there in spirit, not in fact; for the Lord's day, according to Old Testament and New Testament scripture designates the period of time when God will take back unto Himself from the Gentiles that power which was given unto them when Daniel revealed to the king the great metallic image and stated to Nebuchadnezzar: "Thou art this head of gold". Four or more successive empires were indicated in that metallic image, but at its close the God of heaven is to set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed. Dan. 2:44. When God takes again unto Himself this authority over the earth it will no longer be man's day, 1 Cor. 4:3, margin, but the Lord's day.

It was into that day that John in spirit was taken and the things of that day were revealed to him, things which, when the day is ushered in, will eventuate speedily, v. 1.

In the interest of truth it seems as though mention should be made of the frequent use of the term, "the Lord's day". Nowhere in scripture do we find this term applied to our Sunday, or first day of the week, or resurrection day of Christ. Such an application and usage of the term is not only unscriptural, but also is very confusing unless the user of the term carefully explains to his hearers or readers the fact that he is not using the term according to scriptural usage, but rather to please his own sense of euphony and beauty.

In the phrase "the Lord's day" the word "Lord" is written in the possessive form. It is the same phrase as is elsewhere many times worded with the preposition "of" rather than the possessive of "Lord", where it reads, "the day of the Lord"; both phrases are possessive. Paul uses this phrase in 1 Thessalonians 5:1, stating, "yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night". It is the day that is to break unexpectedly in this instance, not the Lord Himself; it is the day of the Lord in which, according to Paul's further statements, they shall say peace and safety, but sudden destruction will come upon them.

Isaiah refers to this "day of the Lord" in 13:6 as a cause for howling, when sorrows and pains shall take hold of man. In verse 9 he describes it as a day "cruel both with wrath and fierce anger"; the stars of heaven shall not give their light, v. 10; "the sun shall be darkened", v. 11; the world will be punished. These things, says Isaiah, are characteristic of "the day of the Lord", that is, "the Lord's day". It is spoken of again in Isaiah 2:12 where the verses which follow give a very graphic statement relative thereto. Joel 3:9-17 tells us that not only will the judgment of the valley of Jehoshaphat, v. 12, take place in "the day of the Lord", v. 14, but he also says the sun and moon shall be darkened, v. 15, "and the Lord also shall roar out of Zion"; "the heavens and earth shall shake: but the Lord will be the hope of His people, and the strength of the children of Israel". It is "the day of the Lord" that Zechariah refers to in 14:1-4, in which nations will be gathered "against Jerusalem to battle"; "and His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives". The reader is urged to look up other scriptures describing the conditions of "the day of the Lord" and note when it is, relative to the coming of Christ, that these conditions are to be fulfilled. Christ Himself, in Matt. 24, speaks of the time of the nations gathering against Jerusalem to battle, of a time of trouble, and, v. 29, of the darkening of the sun, moon, stars, and the shaking of the power of heaven, and says that it is immediately after this that the sign of the Son of Man shall appear in heaven. But Old Testament prophets, as well as those of the New Testament place the darkening of the sun, moon, and stars immediately after the terrors of revolution which will upheave the social world and be followed immediately by the coming of the Son of man in the clouds of heaven, when every eye shall see Him. All this is in "the day of the Lord" when God, having taken unto Himself the sovereignty of the nations of the earth, will first reduce existing opposing governments as Egypt and Pharaoh were reduced when God took hold of His people to release them from the iron furnace of Egypt. So, in the soon coming days when God shall begin the work of awakening and releasing Israel from her world-wide unbelief and dispersion it will be the day of the Lord and God's work in breaking the stony hearts of Israel, and Gentiles will bring on a day of trouble such as never was since there was a nation.

It is into this day that John in spirit was caught away and saw Christ unveiled before him in Christ's active labors relative to the work of that day. What John saw was to be sent to the seven churches which were in Asia, v. 11, undoubtedly the seven Asiatic churches of the time of the day of the Lord; for these epistles to these several churches were epistles of encouragement for strength, edification, to enable them to overcome midst all the serious emergencies and trials of the period with which the day of the Lord surrounds them.

In his vision he saw seven golden candlesticks. This is evidently a symbol, but the symbol is explained definitely and positively to John in v. 20 by the statement, "The seven candlesticks are the seven churches". In the very midst of these candlesticks or churches John saw one "like unto the Son of man". The description given here should be familiarized by every Bible student not alone in a general way, but familiarized in the very language. In His right hand were seven stars. Here is another symbol, but here, too, the symbol is explained definitely by the words, v. 20, "the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches". It is said by some students that the word "angel" was a regular term applied to a certain official in the various churches of the Jewish synagogues. Christian churches use the terms, pastor, evangelist, elder, bishop, but not the term angel.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

I wish to express the sincere appreciation of myself and family for the many letters and messages received from different ones in expression of sympathy on account of the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. F. L. Austin.

We have undertaken to answer each correspondent personally but find it a physical impossibility to write to each one promptly and at the same time keep up the work at the office. We, therefore, desire in this way to assure one and all of our heartiest appreciation.

F. L. Austin and Family.

* * * *

TO OUR SUNSHINE FRIENDS

If the writer can be pardoned for using the columns of The Herald for a more or less private purpose, he would like to say a word to the many friends who have been sending Sunshine greetings and tokens to our late beloved wife and mother. And this word is addressed not only to those who have already sent such tokens, but to those whom, we understand, were scheduled and dated for similar tokens in the future, the names of whom we have no knowledge.

Mrs. Austin was very much benefited by these heart-cheering rays of Sunshine. The very fact that the time of their arrival was irregular and uncertain caused her to be interested in every incoming mail; and practically her first search was to discover the sender's name. The thought of the friendship of many whom she had never met, as well as of those whom she knew, was the buoyant, inspiring feature of Sunshine Greetings.

Endeavor has been made by one of the family to mail a recognition of the receipt of all these tokens, but we wish, at this time and in this manner, to extend to one and all who were engaged in this service of love the heartiest appreciation not only of Mrs. Austin herself, but of each member of the family, for the labor and service thus rendered. We earnestly pray the Father's blessing upon each and every participant.

F. L. Austin and Family.

* * * *

"WHAT MANNER OF LOVE",

In 1 John 3:1 John calls attention very forcibly to one of God's gracious gifts tendered to the children of men: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God".

Let us pause in an effort to realize the depth of meaning in these words. The apostle evidently uses the term "sons of God" as expressive of a distinction between some of the descendants of Adam and others. Some are to be exalted to the relation of sons unto God; others are not to be so exalted. This relationship introduces one into the family of God; it establishes him as a member of that family, enjoying all of the kindly blessings and provisions of its Father.

The people of a given family have interests in common with each other which are of no interest and no concern to those outside of the family. Therefore, those outside of the family tie do not understand or comprehend the meaning of the conduct of the family members one toward another.

The same is true in God's family. "Therefore, the world knoweth us not because it knew him not". The moment a person becomes an earnest, faithful, loyal, dutiful member of a family, that moment does he begin to live for the family as a whole. So with the individual becoming Christian: he forsakes the world; he loses interest in its activities, in worldly ambitions, in worldly pleasures. And, withdrawing himself unto a closer service in God's family, the world fails to comprehend the changed attitude of such Christian individual.

* * * *

TWO

That Five Dollars reported in Wince Fund this week by Elsie Moore is from Sr. Elsie Moore's Sunday School class of two members of nine and ten years old. This small class has not only been attending to the current needs of its own Sunday School but has gone over the top with Five Dollars for the Wince Fund. One feels like saying, "Well done, good and faithful ones."

Other classes have remitted to the N. B. I. work, but this is the smallest class, of which we have record, to do so much. THANKS!

HERALD RECEIPTS

E. C. Gates; G. W. Wogoman; Mrs. Roy Cronbaugh; Mary Wolf; J. M. Brush; Mrs. Merrit Knodle; Mrs. Eva H. M. Fletcher; Ida Orem; Jas. H. Pier; Russell Searer; Harold Kessler; Mrs. S. E. Black; Emma Niesley; Mrs. Amy Johnson.

WINCE FUND

Previously mentioned	$2559.16
Mrs. Eva H. M. Fletcher	3.00
Elsie Moore	5.00
Total	$2567.16

HELPING FUND

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wogoman	$1.00
----------------------------	--------

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

IF any individual Bereans, or Classes have any spare copies of Junior Berean Book, No. 2, please mail them to Miss Anna E. Drew, 629 North Galena Ave., Dixon, Illinois. If she can only get three or four it will be a great help, as her class has grown, and the books are out of print.

* * * *

A Letter from Bro. Geisler, at Houston, Texas, says, their Berean Class is growing and they anticipate a larger work in the near future. Good, keep it up!

* * * *

Some of the classes have recently been studying the lesson on Prayer. How wonderful it would be if more of us could really learn the value of the opportunity—prayer. The Christian who at frequent intervals retires to a quiet place that he may talk with his heavenly Father is the one who really draws close to God and his life will radiate that influence.

The admonition of Jesus to His disciples in Matthew 26:41 shows how much value He placed upon prayer: "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." Even Jesus Himself realized the need, and hence the early morning prayers on the mountain side, or the midnight prayer in Gethsemane. It would have been impossible for even Him to live the life that He lived without constant touch with God, and He therefore urged His follower to watch and pray, lest the weakness of the flesh make it impossible for them to follow the dictates of the spirit.

The church which is really a praying church, is one in whose very atmosphere the presence of God may be felt. More earnest, devout prayer on the part of the individuals as well as the church as a whole, would cause all to be more thoughtful, kind, and Christ-like, and therefore avoid most of the dissensions, unkind words, and hurt feelings that so often are to be found in religious circles.

* * * *

While many of us might dislike to admit the truth of it, yet David tells us in Psalm 10:4 that pride is what keeps a person from prayer. And really, when you stop to think about it, could anything be more true? Pride makes one feel self-sufficient. Humility causes him to realize his weakness, and his need of God's guidance and help, and when he realizes that he will ask for it. True prayer is an evidence of humility.

* * * *

One of the advantages of group prayer is that it helps to center the minds of all on a definite purpose, and upon certain definite things. This is of double value. First, the Father hearkens unto fervent prayers thus unitedly offered, and, second, the minds of all being focused upon certain definite things, each will do all in his power to accomplish the ends in view.

After praying for God to do, or accomplish something, don't sit down and fold your hands while waiting for Him to do it. But rather go forth to the task, expecting Him to guide you and give you the ability and strength.

"God helps those who help themselves", is rather a homely expression, but it contains a wonderful grain of truth.

A great advantage of private prayer is that when alone with God one can open his heart and speak freely the things he cannot say before others. It is then we can really and fully confess our mistakes and weaknesses, and ask the Father's forgiveness and help.

* * * *

Psalm 37:4 reads, "Delight thyself also in the Lord; and He shall give thee the desires of thine heart." The basis of acceptable petition, then, is to be interested in, and concerned about the things that pertain to God and God's plan. Jesus carried a similar thought in John 15:7, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." When one asks for things to be consumed upon his own selfish desires he can hardly be said to be in accord with the sentiment of such texts. But God willingly grants our petitions when they are in accord with His will.

* * * *

Remember, please, that the other Bereans over the country would like to hear from you. As Berean Editor we warn you that if you do not write, we will. So the only way to keep us still is to send in copy enough that there will not be room for ours!

* * * *

A BLIND WOMAN'S GIFT

A poor blind woman in Paris once put twenty-seven francs into a plate at a missionary meeting. "You cannot afford so much," said one. "Yes, sir, I can," she exclaimed. On being pressed to explain, she said, "I am blind and I said to my fellow straw-workers, 'How much money do you spend in a year for oil in your lamps when it is too dark to work nights?' They replied, 'About twenty-seven francs.' So," said the poor woman, "I found that I could save so much in the year because I am blind and do not need a lamp, and I give it to shed light to the dark heathen lands."—The Wesleyan.

THE NEED OF A DEEPER SPIRITUAL GROWTH

By Carrie Wile Chambers

(Continued from last week)

We have come to the time in the world's history when there seems to be nothing but confusion. Distress on every hand, unrest among all mankind, men's hearts failing them for fear of the things that are coming on the earth, old mother earth in turmoil on land and sea, and wickedness of the vilest kinds, everywhere. And the end is not yet. Jesus tells us these are the beginning of sorrows. "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." So it looks like it is necessary for such things to be, and they preceded His coming. The world is uneasy, and fearful that something is coming. Why can't they take God at His word, and believe what He has given us in it? Because they are in the same condition as the eunuch, when Philip asked him if he understood, and he said: "How can I, except some man guide me?" And again, "How shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?"

A teacher! Is it any wonder Jesus' command was, "Go therefore, and teach all nations"? Aren't the Bereans helping to do that work? And how badly we need more work. Our time is getting short, as the night is far spent.

Does it make any difference with God, as to what you and I believe and think, in regard to what God says in His word? That word is the rule by which we must be governed. Just notice He always says, "I will", when speaking as to what He will do, and when speaking of what we should do, it is always "thou shalt". Is there any way of getting around those imperative sentences, or do we want to change them? God is a God of love, justice and mercy; for God is love. Could language describe Him better than those three little words—God is love?

"Many are called but few are chosen." "No man can come to Me except the Father, which hath sent Me, draw him" "For it is God which worketh you, both to will, and to do, of His good pleasure."

Jesus said, "I can of Mine own self, do nothing . . . I seek not Mine own will, but the will of the Father, which hath sent Me." "For they shall all know Me, from the least of them, to the greatest of them, saith the Lord". "And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord." Has there ever been a time in the world's history that all men have been taught of the Lord, or known Him from the least to the greatest? Yet God says that they shall be taught, and all of them; so it looks like it must be done some time. And if it hasn't been done in the past, it will have to be done in the future, as it is not being done now.

"Every tongue shall confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, and every knee shall bow at the name of Jesus". Has there ever been a time that such was the case, or is to-day? Has all of Adam's race been taught, or known there is a God? How many untold millions are lying in the grave, locked in that huge vault, and with them, are their talents, unused? That casket of death contains all kinds—the good, bad and indifferent. How many worthy ambitions and talents are suddenly smitten and crushed by the powerful enemy, death, and locked in that huge vault?

Were not those talents given to be used? Does God create things in vain? Listen to what our Savior and Redeemer says: "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore. Amen; and I have the keys of hell and of death." Will He ever use those keys, and unlock that vault? What does He say about it? "The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear, shall live." How many shall hear? It says, "dead", which means the ones who had lived. Again He says, "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which, all that are in the graves, shall hear His voice, and shall come forth." What a merciful Redeemer, to take, or bring everybody out of the enemy's hands and land.

"Many are called, but few are chosen." And why chosen? The Revelator says, "priests of God, and of Christ". What is a priest, but a teacher? God says they will all be taught of God, and who will do the teaching? Aren't those priests to do that work? God is love, and those priests will teach the gospel of love; as they are the priests of God and of Christ. They will teach that gospel of love after the return of Christ; as they are co-workers with Him, when all will be taught of God.

What a wonderful opportunity to teach and correct the wrong, to instill that gospel of love, and drive out the hatred from those warped characters, the result of the curse. Their work will not be completed in a short time, the tearing down of sin and its results, teaching, changing, lifting, till the curse is removed. Jesus and His co-laborers will stick to their task till the work is completed. "And there shall be no more curse."

Friend, wouldn't you like to be one of those teachers, and help in that wonderful work of restoration? The Master is coming soon to begin that work. Now is the time that those teachers are being selected, or chosen for that work. The door of opportunity to enter for that work is open now, and you may enter. Will you accept it? Will we be worthy to be among that number—the ones of the high calling—immortalized ones—the ones who overcome and sit down with Christ on His throne? "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations". Our Savior is coming in the near future to call His own, those of the high calling, so there is going to be a final home-coming, a family reunion take place when He comes, where there will be no more goodbyes. If there are shouts, they will be of gladness.

*What a meeting and a greeting that will be!
When each other's face we'll see!"*

If there are tears, they will be for joy. Then our faith and hope will be lost in realization and love.

*Just to do the best that lies in us each day,
Just to gleam the sunbeams, and toss the clouds away,
Just to keep on hoping, though disappointments grow,
Just to let a healing smile follow the teardrop's flow.
Just to be as loving as we can, and kind and true,
Just to keep the golden rule in every thing we do.
Just to count the blessings, with the ills of life,
And our heaven-helped victories over sin and strife.
Then, as we onward journey toward life's setting sun,
May we be among the ones to hear the words, "Well done".*

Never before in the history of the church has there been a greater need for workers than at the present time. In the closing days of this Gentile age, when evil is increasing on every hand, and false doctrines are being taught, divisions are creeping in, some falling under the mighty tests that the enemy is hurling, weakening God's forces. For divisions weaken, but unity strengthens. The enemy knows his time is short, and he is making more desperate efforts than ever before in his deceptions.

Were it not for the grain of salt here and there in the corrupting world it seems that human history would have been completed long ago. Precept amounts to nothing when example suffers. What does the world care about the kingdom of God, since Satan's empire is so alluring and sweet? Isn't the world joined to its idols? What fellow ship has light with darkness?

One trouble with us, and very often the main trouble, is applying scripture to the wrong epoch of the world's history. We grow, develop, become stronger by exercise; for that is what we need in order to grow mentally, physically, and why not spiritually as well? Jesus has commanded us to work. This is the age in which we must work. Where, or how, would your and my salvation be worked out if we don't do it? Arn't we told to do that work? So we need to be busy and work.

If there is A Deeper Spiritual Growth among us as a people, won't there be a much broader opportunity for more and better service in the Master's cause? And that's the cause in which we want to do that work—the vineyard. And there is just one in which we want to work; for Jesus said, "My vineyard".

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

THE BOY SAMUEL

LESSON 11 DECEMBER 12, 1926
LESSON TEXT 1 SAMUEL 1; 2; 3
RESPONSIVE READING, Psalm 119:1-16
1 SAMUEL 3:1-10, 15-19

Golden Text: Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth.—1 Sam. 3:9.

Memory Verses: 1 Sam. 3:19, 20.

FOR STUDY

Review: Bring out the contrast between the picture of Hebrew life given us in the Book of Judges and the picture given us in the Book of Ruth. Does the latter picture have anything to do with the fulfillment of the Abrahamic covenant? Did the former?

The New Lesson: This week's lesson brings us near to that period in Israel's history during which the transition from judge rulership to king rulership was made. We shall see in this lesson how God prepared and called the one who was to guide Israel during this transition period. The call and preparation came during the judgeship of Eli, who was both priest and judge, the next to the last judge in Israel. During the decay of his influence God began to prepare a new judge for Israel, one firmly founded by birth and early training in loyalty and obedience to God.

I. The Birth of Samuel. 1 Sam. 1 to

2:11. Analyze the influence of Hannah upon Samuel toward making him a man of God. Consider her influence both before and after his birth. Suppose all children were born into the world under the influence of Hannah's attitude rather than under the influence of that attitude which regards children as the result (often unwelcome) of natural mechanical law, exclusive of God's intelligent direction. Under the latter influence would children have a fairer chance to become people of God?

The breadth and depth of Hannah's religious conceptions are depicted in chapter 2:1-10.

II. The Decay of Eli's Influence. 1 Sam. 2:12-18, 22-26. What was the secret of this decay? Was this picture of Israel's priestly services similar to the priestly services in heathen religions? Did God make Eli's old age an excuse for his weak administration?

What was to be his punishment? How did God begin His rebuke to Eli? Verses 27 and 28.

III. The Growth of a New Influence. 1 Sam. 2:18 to 3:21. In the midst of Eli's weak regime, silent forces were at work preparing the new that should supplant the weak: first a mother's instinct and love and religious convictions and loyalty; second, the unobtrusive education and training of a little child in the service of God, both a mighty power toward righteousness though, for the most part unheard.

To what is the work of the child Samuel contrasted in verse 18? Would these yearly visits from Hannah have any influence in the life of Samuel? Is it reasonable to suppose Hannah ceased praying for Samuel after her first prayer for him was answered in his birth?

Tell the story of how Samuel received and answered his first direct call from God. How many times did he hear the voice of God before he heard it with hearing ears? Who helped him to recognize it? How does the story incidentally depict Samuel's willingness to help, his patience, and his love for Eli? Was Eli looking for some such message?

What was the result to Israel of Samuel's growth? Vs. 19-20. Contrast this with v. 1.

FOR CLASS

Contrast briefly the Book of Ruth with the Book of Judges.

What period of Israel's history is considered in this week's lesson.

Relate the story of Samuel in order to show the non-miraculous means by which God manages His affairs among men. Did the miraculous enter at all into Samuel's preparation? May we regard his call as miraculous? Are some of the ordinary influences which we usually regard as non-miraculous really miraculous, that is, inexplicable by known law?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

If someone who knows the address of Mrs. John W. (Lydia) Wilson, will forward same to this office, it will be much appreciated.

* * *

Sr. Lilian Railton my be addressed temporarily at 23 Clinton Ave., Fredonia, New York.

PRINTING OF ALL KINDS
Send your job work to us for estimates.
* * *

Bro. Everett Stilson, of Purdue University, spent Thanksgiving with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Shafer, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Stilson, at Plymouth, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Logsdon, of Ke-wanee, Illinois, are the proud parents of a seven and one-half pound girl who arrived on November 17. Her name is Shirley Alberta. Mrs. Logsdon will be remembered as Sr. Vena Densmore.

* * *

Sr. E. Pendleton desires to add the name of Sr. Orpha Sanford to the other names mentioned in her letter of November 16, as one to whom she is especially grateful for kindnesses rendered.

* * *

Bro. F. A. Stilson and family spent Thanksgiving and the week-end at the home of Sr. Stilson's parents, Bro. and Sr. Hugh Shafer, Plymouth Indiana, who on Thanksgiving day celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary.

* * *

DIXON MEETINGS

Our series of special services at the new Dixon church came to a close last Sunday night, November 28. Throughout the two weeks the attendance had been very good, and the audiences gave the best of attention. This was our first attempt to hold a meeting of that kind in Dixon, and it can be readily understood that a work of that kind in a city is a very different matter from the same kind of work in a rural district.

The main object of the meeting was to establish the fact of our church in the mind of the people of the city, and let them know what we stand for. This effort, we feel, was a success, and that success is partly due to Sr. Miller who acted as press agent and put a splendid write-up in the daily paper each evening.

Last Sunday morning, before communion service, the right hand of fellowship was extended to the four young people recently baptized, report of which has already been made.

We trust the time will not be far distant when the Dixon church will swing free from all its debt, and arrangements can be made for full time pastoral work.

F. E. Siple.

* * *

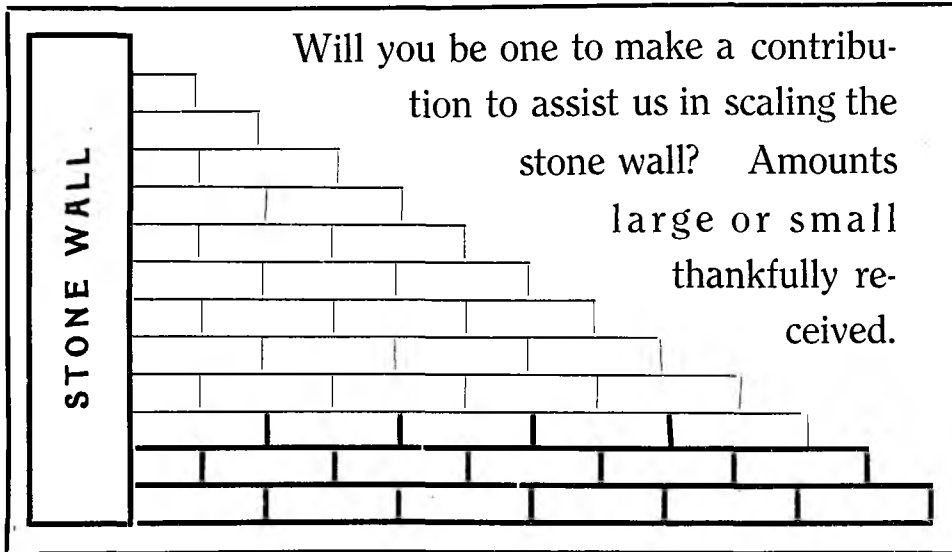

CENTRAL WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

The next Quarterly meeting of the Central Washington Conference, will be held in Wenatche, Washington, December 3 to 5. All who can possibly come are invited to attend and worship with us.

These meetings are a source of strength and inspiration to all who come. The time is short. Soon the Master will call. Who will be prepared to hear and answer that call?

The last conference meeting was held in Cashmere, Washington. There was a splendid attendance, some coming from

The Stone Wall does not seem as high and strong as at first. The response in finances and words of encouragement have lifted us considerably, for we realize that not even a stone wall can stand before the onward march of the Church of God,—that true body of faithful ones, who strive continually to exalt Christ above the things of this world, and do all to the glory of God, that they may be found in Him.

One more $50.00 stone and the three largest steps will have been scaled toward the summit of the Stone Wall.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $_____, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name _____

Street _____

Post Office _____

State _____ Date _____

long distances to hear again the glorious gospel of the coming Savior and kingdom, to meet with the consecrated ones of like precious faith, to converse with them of the hope of eternal deliverance. How it thrills our very beings to know that the coming of the Lord is drawing very near. We read of fearful loss of life and property by earthquake, cyclone, and tornado which are ravaging many sections of the earth's surface, of fearful disasters on land and sea which cause men's hearts to fail them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming upon the earth. We see, saddest of all, so many of our own brethren who once were faithful and flushed with zeal for the cause of truth, grow lukewarm, then cold and indifferent, then slump back into the world again.

Then we look again, and we see the Jew, after centuries of exile among the Gentile nations, once again setting their faces Zionward, and with patriotic fervor, again building up the waste cities and reclaiming the lands which have been so long desolate.

We see the nations holding peace conventions, associating themselves together that war might be outlawed, but at the same time girding themselves by horrible inventions for the destruction of human life.

Brothers and sisters, if you are discouraged, cheer up, these things we see passing before us, and they all mean that Jesus soon will come. Are you ready?

—A. L. Corbaley.

* * *

N. B. I. DOINGS

JOHN A. RAILTON SEED COMPANY

Arrangements have been perfected with Bro. John A. Railton whereby he will continue the mail order seed business which the Golden Rule Nurseries had added to its work. Bro. Railton had had charge of this division of the Golden Rule Nurseries in the past and expects to continue the seed phase of the work along the same lines as it has been handled in the past. It will be operated under the name of JOHN A. RAILTON SEED COMPANY, and he will be glad to continue serving one and all of the Golden Rule Nursery patrons.

The JOHN A. RAILTON SEED COMPANY will be issuing a seed and bulb catalog for 1927.

Our Golden Rule Greenhouse will continue its retail and wholesale lines locally and will also be pleased to serve any of The Herald readers wherever located, with greenhouse and nursery products whenever practicable. No catalog will be published.

* * *

SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

The Sunday School Quarterly is being pushed just as rapidly as circumstances will permit. The entrance of the enemy death into our midst has set the work back for a week or more, but, D. V., the Quarterly will be in the hands of our Sunday Schools well in advance of their needs.

Orders continue to arrive for these Quarterlies at eight cents per copy per quarter. We are pleased to get every one of these, and, lest any might be disappointed later we again advise that after we "go to press" on these supplies we will be able to supply any late demand only so long as a very limited supply shall last. We need to know the number wanted so that we can print enough.

The general theme for the first quarter of 1927 is "Studies in Christian Life". It is taken up by subjects and is an excellent line of study for isolated brethren to study by themselves. For this purpose the Quarterly will offer many suggestive thoughts. Single copies 10 cents each, postpaid.

* * *

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

The present effort to increase our subscription list is drawing to a close. December 7 is the last day. Any letters bearing December 7 post mark, however, will be accepted and premiums sent accordingly. We are hoping that the last mail may bring in several more new subscriptions.

* * *

TRACTS AND BOOKS

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20c per Doz; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ: I am offering my father's (W. H. Wilson) books for sale for Christmas gifts.

Christmas is coming soon, at which time we celebrate the birth of our Savior. He is a gift to us, that through Him we may have life and a position in His kingdom. We are expecting Him to come soon, so let us work, for there is much seed to be sown.

Let us spread the literature that will sow the seed and bring forth fruit to life everlasting. The list of books is as follows:

Pine Woods Bible Class, 90c ea; 6 for $5.00
 Students Text Book, 45c ea; or 5 for $2.00
 Revelation Made Easy to Understand

Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times 25c each

Can You Believe, by H. V. Reed 25c each

This offer will last till January 1, 1927. All orders will be promptly filled. Thanking you in advance.

Your sister in the one hope of His coming,

Jessie M. Wilson.
 625 Long Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD
 Published by the
 NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
 F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager
 Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CHRISTMAS OFFERINGS

Catalog for Bibles and other books, most of them at 12½ per cent discount from regular prices, will soon be ready for mailing to all who make request.

Assortment Christmas Cards at $1.00 per packet. Each assortment contains cards of varying values ranging from 5c up. Big value. Cash with order.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 Oregon, Illinois

CHILDREN'S PAGE

THE BOY SAMUEL

ONCE there was a woman named Hannah. She had no little children to love and she was very lonely. She and her husband, Elkanah went up to the temple in Shiloh to worship God.

"I will tell God all my troubles, here in this temple," said Hannah to herself. She prayed to God, but only her lips moved, so no one in the temple heard what she said. Tears ran down her cheeks while she talked in a whisper to God. "If you will give me a son, he shall belong to you, O Lord", said she.

After a while God sent a dear little baby boy into her home and Hannah loved him very, very much. She remembered her promise to give him to the Lord, so Samuel was God's boy and she wished to start him working for the Lord right away.

One day when Samuel was three years old Hannah led him to the temple to Eli the priest and said, "I have brought my little boy to stay with you and help you in the care of God's house. God gave him to me in answer to my prayer, and now I give him back."

There were many things which Samuel could do to help. He was kind and loving and very quick to obey.

Four times every year when the moon was full the people gathered to the little hill of Shiloh, brought their gifts and worshiped God. Samuel's mother, too, came down from the hills bringing him a little coat.

Samuel was learning all the time and his special work was to run errands for Eli who was very old. He also kept the lights lit in the temple and opened the door.

Eli had two sons of his own who were priests but they were bad men. Eli should not have allowed them to be priests.

One night as Samuel lay asleep, he was awakened by a voice calling his name. He thought it was Eli and he answered at once and ran to the old priest's bedside and awoke him. "Did you call me?" asked Samuel. Eli said that he had not, and told him to go and lie down again. The little boy did as he was told and lay down. Then the voice called another time, "Samuel, Samuel." The boy jumped up and ran to Eli again and said, "Here I am, for you called me. But Eli said, "No, I did not call you. Go back and lie down." When this happened three times Eli understood that it was God who was speaking to Samuel, and so he said, "Go, lie down and if the call comes again, say, "Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth."

Little Samuel heard his name for the fourth time and answered in the words of Eli. Then he heard a voice telling us that God was angry with old Eli on account of his wicked sons. It was a terrible message for the boy Samuel to hear against his old friend Eli.

He could not understand, but he lay there till morning. Then he got up and opened the wooden doors of the great tent church.

Eli called him and asked what God said. Samuel told the old man every word, and hid nothing.

A QUESTION

Do I sometimes keep things back or say what is not true because I am afraid I will be punished?

Little Samuel was brave and told the truth although he knew Eli would not be pleased. Jesus has told us that God is a God of truth, and so little Samuel was working faithfully for God when he kept nothing back.

—THR—

COMMUNICATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD: On Thursday, November 6, Bro. Williams brought to a close a ten day meeting at Clinton, Missouri. This was the third meeting for Bro. Williams at that place. At all the meetings the attendance and interest have been good. Bro. Williams is an earnest, convincing speaker, and tells the old, old story of salvation by and through Jesus Christ in such a simple, appealing way that we wonder why every one does not understand and accept the great truths of the gospel.

Yesterday I went to visit a friend in the hospital, who will probably be an invalid the rest of her life from an automobile accident. I have known her several years. She has been much interested in studying the Bible. Often she has come to our Bible class. She was always seeking, but seemed never able to find. It was all so deep for her she always said, but she earnestly wanted the peace of God. I had not seen her for several months. When I stepped into her room her face looked transfigured; she looked so happy; she stretched out both hands to me and said, "Oh, Miss Ida, I have found that joy I have always coveted. I know Him now. That accident has been the richest blessing I ever received."

She picked up her Bible and pointed to a verse and said, "Read that. That promise made so long ago is to me. Do you wonder that I am happy?"

This is what I read: Psa. 37:3,—"Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed."

Oh, if we could only grasp that scripture in all its fullness, we would not be afraid to let go a little of the substance of this world that we call our own; there would be no need of the brethren always having to plead with us to give to the Lord's work.

Let each one that claims the name of Christ give toward the work of God, in some branch of the work and there would be plenty and to spare.

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in Mine house, and prove Me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open to you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

—Mal. 3:10.

We have had a good, long vacation with the folks at home and are back in St. Louis ready for a winter's work. Sr. Leota Hanson attended the meeting at Clinton. There are only four of us of the faith there. We had a spiritual uplift and we believe that much good was done; for God has said that his word will not return unto Him void.

Ida Vogel.

—THR—

INDIFFERENCE

By C. E. Randall

THE spirit of indifference has separated many individuals from God. When people become indifferent to God and of their duties to God, they by their own actions and conduct separate themselves from God. Our attitude and actions determine our relationship with the Father. In this way we are told to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling.

Nations rise and fall according to their relationship with God. "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." The same is true of individuals. The history of Israel fluctuates according to their attitude towards God. When they walked before God in truth and uprightness of heart and obeyed God in all things, Heaven's choicest blessings were given them. When they became indifferent to God they were beset on every hand by the great weight of sin which they brought upon themselves by their withdrawing from God. Israel's sad and tragic journeyings among the nations of the world had its beginning with their indifference toward God.

The wages of this national sin have been hard and bitter. Israel's bitter experience should be an example to those who are alienating themselves from God because of their attitude of indifference.

Indifference brings a person to a condition of lukewarmness, a position which is most displeasing to the Father. In the Revelation He warns against lukewarm professing Christians, saying, "I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot I will spue thee out of My mouth".

It is hard for our church leaders to accomplish a definite, outlined program because of the indifferent, lukewarm attitude which so many of us possess. When we become indifferent to God we grow lukewarm in Christian service; when we get lukewarm we become disinterested; and when we get disinterested we withhold our support and the work suffers.

There are many, many things that cause a person to become indifferent to Christian service. The care of this world and the deceitfulness of riches do more to choke out the word than anything else. The old Adam nature of grabbing all that can be grabbed is so deep-seated in our lives that few get far enough in Christ to rid themselves of that disposition which is the "root of all evil".

In caring for the material things of life, we so often forget the spiritual. We put off till to-morrow the spiritual things to make room for the passing material things of to-day.

If we want to become indifferent to Christian service, shift responsibility; let others do that which God has enjoined upon us. Inactivity will soon bring us to the place where we won't care whether the church work prospers or not—yes, even to the frame of mind of discouraging any effort to advance God's work because inwardly there is a fear that it will cost us something in time or money.

Sin is so prevalent and common that we become slack in keeping ourselves separated from iniquity. Thus our love waxes cold, our faith simmers out, we become indifferent, at last failing to gather together for Christian worship—dead, yet living. "To him that overcometh, and KEEPETH My works UNTO THE END, to him will I give power over the nations." No man can occupy and keep God's works who is lukewarm and indifferent in Christian service.

Christianity is measured in terms of service. Service and indifference are opposites. One destroys the other. Christ was never indifferent to the Father's work. To be Christ-like excludes indifference.

May we be more Christ-like and be always diligent in doing that which the Father bids us do.

—THR—

THE NEW HEAVEN AND NEW EARTH

By Auntie Wince

CAN it be possible that we who are now living of the saints of God will never pass through death, but will look with the very eyes that we now possess upon the new earth in its changed and glorified state? I have been thinking of this as I lay awake in the lonely night watches.

The world has grown very old. The time for the Master to come is here. The wedding bells have sounded, the wedding march is being played in the distance. Louder, clearer, sweeter, it sounds.

*"Are you ready? Are you ready?
Should the Master come to-day?"*

Or will some be found without a wedding garment, chasing the precious hours away with flying feet in the mad halls of revelry?

Watch, lest ye be taken unawares. "What I say unto one I say unto all, watch." God has given us signs whereby we may know that the coming of Jesus is only a mile or so, as it were, away. Well may we sing in ever increasing notes of gladness:

*"Lift up your heads, desponding pilgrims,
Give to the winds your needless fears,
He who has said, 'Redemption's nearing',
Soon is to reign through endless years."*

How the words have cheered us! How they cheer us still! A little longer yet, a little longer yet, and He will come.

"LOVEST THOU ME?"

By M. A. Woodward

"Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me more than these?"

WHAT was Christ trying to do with Peter? Remembering how promptly He rebuked the young man who addressed Him as "Good Master", we are assured He was not asking this to exact any personal worship from him. Was it then to remind him of his many weaknesses? For so far, since Peter had joined the Christ class he had made many mistakes, had shown many weaknesses. Were these questions to try Peter? to bring out his real thought of what it meant to love the Christ? to live the Christ life? Peter, do you really love the Christ thoughts, ideals, principles, faith? His pure spiritual concept of love to God and man? His willing forgiveness of wrong? I think this is what was in the Master's mind. He was testing the man before Him; for He had a mighty work laid out for him and he must be prepared for it. Christ knew Peter better than Peter knew himself.

Let us go back a little. How differently Christ addressed him after the last supper had been partaken of, and He had talked to the twelve as they left the table—or rather the eleven. He turned to Peter, as though He Himself was startled by the thought, "Simon, Behold, Satan hath desired to have you, that he might sift you as wheat: but I have prayed for thee, that thou fail not: and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." Peter evidently felt the rebuke and quickly answered, "Lord, I am ready to go with Thee, both into prison and to death". Perhaps he thought he was, but the Lord knew what tests of faith He was about to pass through, what humiliation, what heartaches. How human Peter was, not an hour, perhaps, after that he slept when his Master asked him to watch with Him; and the next hour he was ready to defend Him with the sword. A little later, in the supreme hour of the Master's apparent need, when the mad mob was spitting in His face, jeering at Him, reviling Him. He could hear Peter denying Him, cursing, swearing that he never knew the man. And while the words were yet warm in his mouth, "the cock crew", and all flashed on Peter's mind that the Lord had said, "Before the cock crow thou shalt THRICE deny Me.

One look at that face drawn in agony and he saw himself as Jesus saw him. Bitter tears came to his relief—tears of true repentance. The proof of it was his future work for God.

Now he could say of a truth, "I love the Christ ideals; I know His power to save; for He has forgiven me."

But it is all over now, the crucifixion, the burial, the three days, and they see Him in the old, familiar paths. They talk with Him for forty wonderful days. Then, on one of these summer mornings Jesus asks His disciples to go with Him to their beloved Olivet. There they have heard Him pray, preach; have seen Him feed the multitude. But to-day something unusual is to happen. This is their farewell visit with Him. He wastes no time, but tells them of their future work, and while they listen with wrapt wonder He is taken from them. Try as they might, their hands could not catch Him. He is gone! And only for the angels' comforting words they must have gone home broken hearted.

They turned their steps toward Jerusalem. The disciples, His mother and other women, all met in the house of prayer, and there in prayer and supplication they remained until other duties called them. O, what busy days those were; for Pentecost was fast approaching, and they must be there; for Jesus had told them to tarry in Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high. It was this power that carried them through the many hard places they had to pass.

"Peter, when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." Peter's voice was the first one heard declaring, "These men are not drunken as you suppose." And when he was once started he could not stop talking. What a sermon he did preach that day!

"Simon Peter, lovest thou Me?" "Yes, Lord, Thou knowest that I love Thee." And God and His dear Son did know it. How? By thy works thou shalt be justified.

How is it with us, beloved brethren? Is our love for the Christ sleeping as was Peter's? Will it take pain and heartache to reveal our love for His cause? to take away some of our selfishness? to prove what His love means for us? Lovest THOU Me? Let us answer by doing His work well—in season, out of season; always on the alert for something to do.

God help me and you.

—THR—

ANOTHER BRIGHT IDEA FROM SCIENCE

A GENTLEMAN writing in The Pathfinder of October 30, 1926, says, "Man Older than Ape". He claims that the ape is a descendent from man, not man from the ape. So says Prof. Max Westenhofer, of Belin University. As evidence, Prof. Westenhofer points out that the young of the chimpanzee resembles human beings much more than do the adult chimpanzees. Besides, he says that certain inner organs of the human body indicate that the ancestors of man lived for a time in water. Strangely enough, according to the German scientist, these peculiar characteristics are absent in apes, which show that the ape represents the subsequent development and proves that man is the older form of mammal.

Now isn't that another sample of science "falsely so called"? Instead of being classed as a son of the ape, he prefers to be called the father of one. While I do not think his theory speaks very well for either the man or the ape, there is one idea which might, if true, favor his position more than it does Prof. Darwin's that is, that man can degenerate into an ape, which speaks more for the ape than for the man, because the ape is still the ape he always was; he hasn't changed any for thousands of years, while men are continually making monkeys of themselves.

A JEWISH STATE POSSIBLE

ZIONISM took on a new significance recently when a corporation headed by some of the most important Jews of London was launched to industrialize Palestine, thereby firmly rooting Jewish colonists who have been induced by racial sentiment to throw in their lot with the project which the late Israel Zangwill had widely popularized in his novels as well as his powerful appeals to Jewish nationalistic aspirations.

Pinhas Rutenberg, a wealthy London Jew, Russian born, an engineer by profession, who heads the new company, receives the credit for converting opposition of leading Jewish bankers to sympathize with the plan of industrialism. After bitter opposition he succeeded in winning over the active support of Lord Reeding, former viceroy of Egypt, J. D. Rothchild, Sir Alfred Mond, Sir Hugo Hirst, and other Jews of the highest standing. The company is capitalized for five million pounds and proposes to make Zionists of Palestine and the trans-Jordan self-sustaining by controlling the waters of the Jordan and other streams in Palestine and Transjordan, and by development of irrigation and hydro-electric power. "This event", says a dispatch from London, "may turn out to be the most important step so far in the economics of Zionism."

It is so long since the Jewish race possessed a national home and consciousness and since their success economically has been in finance and trade rather than industry that the Jews themselves have been slow to respond to the appeal of Zionism. Yet immigration of Jews into Palestine since 1920 is reported to have averaged 2000 a month, despite the absence of a well organized plan of economic development. Meantime under the British mandate for Palestine, a civil government was set up, with a Jew, Sir Herbert Samuel, as high commissioner, civil and religious courts were organized, many laws modernized and a new code of commercial laws introduced. Malaria, with which Palestine was infested, has been stamped out. Private funds exceeding eight million dollars, largely subscribed in the United States, have been expended in various constructive lines, including education and agricultural colonization. The Syrian boundary has been adjusted and Palestine newly defined, the ancient Palestine extending from Dan to Beersheba.

When Charles M. Sheldon returned to Topeka from a trip to Palestine last spring he appealed to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose gift of ten million dollars for an archaeological museum in Cairo had been rejected by the Egyptian government, to finance a badly needed water supply in Palestine. Precisely this is the first objective of the corporation announced in London for the industrialization of Palestine. The London despatch states that "preliminary work is under way in Haifa, Tiberias and particularly in Tel-Aviv, a new Jewish city which has become the Miami of the Near East." The government itself has selected Haifa as the seaport for improvement at a cost of several million dollars.

Zionism, therefore, is a more hopeful project than at any time since General Allenby wrested the Holy Land from a Turkish rule that had continued for more than 400 years. If the Jewish people desire to re-establish a Jewish nationalism, after the lapse of 25 centuries, the possibility is open to them, though they have, perhaps, a long way to go before obtaining independence of British or League of Nations overlordship. There are about 16 million Jews in the world, of whom 10½ millions are Europeans and 3¼ millions live in the United States and Canada. All Asia, including Palestine contains but 600,000, and Palestine at this time probably 140,000.—Selected from Kansas Farmer by Mrs. A. J. C.

—THR—

"IN A RECENT London meeting of Zionists Bernard Baron gave to Gen. Allenby, conqueror of Jerusalem, the guest of the occasion, a check for $15,000 for the Zion cause. The general said, 'All that Zionists need now is moral and financial support.' "The reason for the success of Zionism is its absolute belief in the cause. The effect of Zionism on Palestine is a most marvelous one. Palestine to-day is the corner in the Near East which is quiet and peaceful, prosperous and contented', Lord Allenby declared."

—THR—

HAND-TO-MOUTH THINKING

By G. E. Marsh

THERE is too much hand-to-mouth thinking being done by business men in these days", declares a recent writer in a commercial journal, and I question if what he says of the business man is not equally true of the one engaged in religious work. We recognize the importance of the responsibility God has placed upon us; that there is no other means provided for the salvation of death-doomed humanity save the gospel. We know that unnumbered thousands of men and women who are still "strangers to the covenants of promise" and "without hope . . . in the world" are dying daily on every side! Yet we spend our time in thinking of the little problems that pertain to carnal and temporal things, and devote our efforts to the discussion of minor points of doctrinal difference among ourselves!

These countless millions are dying! They are dying without hope! They are dying without God! They are dying with no knowledge of the mighty power contained in the gospel! They are drifting amid the breakers above the cataract's brink, while we stand safely on the shore, the life-line in our hands, and calmly and ponderously discuss with each other as to what God will do with them in the ages to come!

Remember! You and I can lay up no treasures in heaven, that we do not gather in to-day. All that we may eventually do under the reign of Christ, will not add a single star to the crown of rejoicing we hope to receive at the Lord's coming. It is only that which we do now that will bring "sure reward" on that day.

IMMORTALITY

THE VOICE OF MANY WELL-KNOWN MEN ON LIFE AND DEATH

THE true faith putteth (setteth forth) the resurrection, which we be warned to look for every hour. The heathen philosophers, denying that, did put (set forth) that the souls did ever live." "And ye, in putting them (the souls of the dead) in heaven and hell and purgatory, destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. . . . If their souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good case as the angels be; and then what cause is there of the resurrection?"—William Tyndale.

"The immortality of the soul is neither argued nor affirmed in the Old Testament."—Bishop Perowne.

"The doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and the name, are alike unknown to the entire Bible."—Olshausen.

"In fact, no such doctrine is revealed to us." "The wicked are never spbken of as being kept alive, but as forfeiting life."—Archbishop Whately.

"Eternal fixity and duration belong only to those who are in accordance with God."—Dean Alford.

"I wish with the greatest possible emphasis to state that, in my own experience, the reception of this doctrine, in my own experience, the reception of this doctrine (Conditional Immortality) has not only not enfeebled and especially in the doctrines of Incarnation, the Atonement, the Regeneration, but has given to all these doctrines a firmer hold on my intellect, my conscience, and my heart."—R. W. Dale, D. D.

"Christianity treats man not as immortal, but as a candidate for immortality."—Dr. Parker.

"With St. Paul for our guide we shall not readily be persuaded to accept the idea that the gospel has propounded to us the natural immortality of all human souls as a portion of the Christian religion."—W. E. Gladstone.

"My mind fails to conceive a grosser misrepresentation of language than when five or six of the strongest words which the Greek tongue possesses, signifying destroy or destruction, are explained to mean maintaining an everlasting but wretched existence. To translate black as white is as nothing to this."—Dr. Weymouth.

"Life to the godless must be the beginning of destruction, since nothing but God and that which pleases Him can permanently exist."—Dr. Thomson, Archbishop of York.

"Hope in death can only spring from the principle of Immortality, and this principle has no root save in Christ."—Principal Tulloch.

"Since I have reached and rested in the conclusion that the ultimate doom of the impenitent is death, and not eternal life in agony, a great black cloud seems to have rolled away from the face of God, and I see Him, not only as my loving Father, but as the Father of all His creatures."—Professor Butler.

"For not far short of a quarter of a century now I have lived in the belief that the view which has been designated 'Life in Christ' is the real teaching of Scripture. That view is expressed in the words, taken not metaphorically, but in a straightforward manner, 'The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ.' . . . The more I think of it, the more vain appear to me to be all attempts to establish man's immortality on a physical or metaphysical basis."—Professor Sir G. G. Stokes, Bart.

"The advocates of what they call 'Conditional Immortality' have done good service by exposing the baselessness of the popular doctrine of the intrinsic and endless permanence of the human soul. They have also done good service by demanding a reconsideration of the whole matter, and by protesting against a theory long dominant in the Christian pulpit, which, as I believe, goes far beyond the teaching of Holy Scripture."—Professor J. Agar Beet.

"All teaching which makes the soul immortal by virtue of a primitive essence is concealed pantheism."—Professor E. Naville.

"If we examine the writings of the earlier fathers, Barnabas, Clement of Rome, Hermas, Ignatius, Polycarp, Justin, Theophilus of Antioch, Irenæus, and Clement of Alexandria, we find them all faithful to the apostolic doctrine of the final destruction of the wicked. The dogma of everlasting torment did not creep into the church until she yielded to the influence of Platonic philosophy."—E. Petavel, D. D.

The above is taken from a tract issued by the Conditional Immortality Mission of Loondon, England.

This article will be printed as a tract and may be had at 10c per dozen; 60c per 100 postpaid, of NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon Illinois—Publishers of The Restitution Herald, a weekly religious paper devoted to Biblical research and Christian edification: $2.00 per year.

—THR—

OUR SHADOWED FEASTS

SO OFTEN in our gatherings in church or home, even on the most memorable occasions, we are not fully and wholly united. What is wrong? Some one has been betraying Christ. For Christ prayed then that His disciples might be one. We would do well to ask ourselves, or rather to ask our Lord, "Can it be I that am breaking the loyalty, the unity, of the cause of Christ?" The disciples were better than we; each inquired concerning himself. We are all too apt to look around at others and to forget to examine our own consciences. If the family group is unhappy, and some one is surely to blame, "Lord, is it I?" If the class is going to pieces, or the school is running down, and some one is neglecting duty, "Lord, is it I?"—Selected.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 7, 1926

NUMBER 10

Is Your Light Shining?

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

ANOTHER of the gigantic attempts to destroy the authenticity of God's Word was made recently in the form of a debate under the head of "Life's Purpose", Dr. Wunder, of the Baptist Church tried to defend the Bible against the well-known criminal lawyer and atheist, Clarence Darrow, who took the negative side. The result of the debate was that Mr. Darrow was awarded the decision by a vote of eight to three.

It is surprising beyond degree that one who claims to uphold the Bible standards as Dr. Wunder does, should even attempt to challenge such a man as Mr. Darrow; one who needs no introduction to the public; one whose views of God and the hereafter were well aired on two former occasions. And now he comes out again, unconcerned of the consequences of his reasoning, and says that the kingdom of heaven is a "myth" and calls it all "bunk". Here we have a man who is considered by the general public to be a wise man, yet he either implies or states in the course of his argument that he has no hope, no faith; believes there is "no hereafter, no heaven, no soul, no God"; and last of all, that "life has no purpose". He calls them all "bunk". Could you imagine a gloomier picture of despair? What discouragement this might bring to one who was wavering or not rooted and grounded in the faith; and think of the disastrous effect such remarks and such teaching would have upon the growing generation! No wonder lawlessness is on the increase when such ideas are being broadcasted!

God's Word says, "If the foundations be destroyed, what shall the righteous do?" God help us; for the foundations are surely destroyed by such reasoning. What can God's children do under such conditions? Shall we sit back and enjoy the wit and humor of the crowd? Or are we, as God's children, in duty bound to lift up our voices and sound the alarm in the face of such rank atheism and higher criticism?

Yes, we are told plainly our duty in Ezekiel 3:17-20, that we must give out the Word of warning, and then we will have cleared ourselves before God. If we do not give out the warning, "their blood shall be upon us"; and God, in that case, will hold us responsible for withholding the light that we had. God is never unreasonable in what He expects of His children, as we

(Continued on page 153)

The Mysteries of Ancient Days

By George Johnston

No. 1

This series of articles, which will be run weekly for several months, is one that the Editor is very glad to recommend to Herald readers for earnest study. The author has put into very interesting form many thoughts that have taken years of study to accumulate. While these thoughts are different from many which our readers are used to, yet they will bear most careful consideration. One feature of the thoughts suggested is that in so far as they may be true they aid greatly in convincing the doubtful mind of the authenticity of the Book of books, the Bible. It is for the study of all scriptural subjects in just such straightforward, interesting, non-argumentative style that the Editor would personally rejoice could we issue a periodical under some such name as "Bible Investigator", in which periodical this series of articles should rightfully appear.—Editor.

ACCORDING to the general understanding of the early chapters of Genesis, Adam was the first human being that ever existed, and the ancestor of the whole human species. Scientists insist, however, that men and women lived and died in this world whole millenniums before the days of Adam, and that the various races of mankind are not related one to the other in any way. Thus, the Bible and science, which should be in perfect harmony, are far otherwise. What, then, is the cause of their seeming antagonism?

That the various races of men are not connected by ties of blood was the conclusion reached by Dr. S. G. Morton, the founder of the American school of ethnology, after examining a great many human skulls collected from every portion of the globe. He summarized his views as follows:

"It is clear that our species had its origin not in one but in many Creations. . . . If all the varieties of mankind were derived from a single type we ought to find the approximation of this type more and more apparent as we retrace the labyrinth of time, and approach the primeval epoch of history. But what is the result? We examine the venerable monuments of Egypt, and we see the Caucasian and the Negro depicted side by side, master and slave, twenty-two centuries before Christ; while inscriptions establish the same ethnological distinctions eight hundred years earlier in time. Abundant confirmation of the same general principle is also found on the numberless vases from the tombs of Etruria; the antique sculptures of India; the time-honored ruins of Nineveh; and from the undated tablets of Peru, Yucatan, and Mexico. In all these localities, so far removed by space from each other, and by time from us, the distinctive characteristics of the human races are so accurately depicted as to enable us, for the most part, to distinguish them at a glance."

During the seventy-odd years that have elapsed since the foregoing was written scientists have not been idle, and much additional evidence has been procured which shows conclusively that the various races of men are distinct one from the other. The blood, skin, hair, glands, muscles and nerves of no two races are similar. Color is not permanently affected by change of climate; the negro on this continent still retains his original hue; and the white man born in a tropical land differs in no way from his ancestors.

The conclusions reached by scientists are based almost entirely on the minute and laborious study of human anatomy, and consequently a great many people refuse to accept them for the reason that they appear to be in conflict with the second chapter of Genesis, in which the creation of Adam is described. But Adam and Eve were undoubtedly white-skinned people, and according to the laws of nature, their descendants from that day to the present must resemble them, not only in color of skin, but in every other physical attribute.

The foregoing is not the only subject on which the Bible and science appear to be in conflict. According to Bible chronology, less than six thousand years have passed since Adam was created. But skulls and other relics of human beings have been brought to light in various lands which anthropologists assure us belonged to individuals who lived thousands of years earlier in time; and in almost every land of the world buildings and other structures have been uncovered which apparently were ancient six thousand years ago.

The extent of territory submerged by the Flood is another disputed question. According to the general belief, the whole world was inundated and all its inhabitants destroyed with the exception of the Noachian family. Scientists maintain, however, that it was confined to a particular region, and the proofs which they submit appear to be incontrovertible.

Apart altogether, however, from scientific deduction, it is certain that Adam was not the progenitor of the whole human species, and that the Flood was not universal. In various writings made long before the dawn of the Christian era, we are told many things concerning ancient events, and those writings support to the utmost the conclusions at which scientists have arrived after years of patient investigation. But, paradoxical as the statement may appear, while on the particular questions named the conclusions of scientists are correct, the Old Testament records are also correct. The apparent discrepancy is due to two causes. In the first place a certain Hebrew word, which in the English form appears many times in the Bible as a common noun, was in ancient times used both as a common and as a proper name, a fact only recently learned through the decipherment of the cuniform writings of ancient Babylonia. Secondly, the word in question bears to-day a meaning much different from that which it bore, or could bear, a few centuries ago. Hence, the seeming antagonism between the Bible and Science on the above named subjects is not due to any error on the part of the Sacred writers, the translators, or the scientists, but to causes which no human being could have foreseen or controlled.

—THR—

NOTES FROM MY BIBLE

By Lyman Booth

JUDGE NOT MATTHEW 7:1; LUKE 6:37

THE world is, no doubt, full of unjust judgments. It was concerning such that our Lord was giving a word of caution, such as needless, uncalled-for, uncharitable, and, worst of all, hypocritical judgments. What He was disapproving most of all was the spirit in which they were rendered. If we avoid this unholy spirit, and exercise the spirit of love, we are warranted in sitting in judgment upon a brother's actions. Sometimes we are compelled to exercise a discrimination between parties to protect our own honor, and for our own guidance in like circumstances. He condemned the violation of the law of love; for where the law of love is supreme there will be no harsh, unjust criticism—no unmerciful judgment.

THE SAME MEASURE SHALL BE MEASURED

MATT. 7:2; LUKE 6:38

If we give just measure the same will be given us in return. If we measure other's characters by speaking ill of them, through envy or jealousy, we are likely to be paid in like terms in return. Too often men look into the hearts of others to find something to condemn rather than to praise. The larger part of the world is guilty of this practice without realizing it. If we exercise as much zeal in correcting our own defects as those of our fellows, our own might appear larger and our neighbors' less.

SHALT SEE CLEARLY MATT. 7:5; LUKE 6:42

When we can free ourselves from the habit of censuring others, and seek for the good in our neighbor instead of the evil, we shall then be prepared to help him. The spirit of charity is healing, while harsh criticism is irritating, even to the extent of engendering strife and enmity. So long as there remains a mote in our own eyes we cannot see clearly that which is in our neighbor's eye. When every particle of foreign matter is removed from our own eyes we may see not only the beam in our neighbor's but also the way to remove the same without injury. The warning is directed against the wrong spirit in which the "casting" is done. We forget too often to make proper amendments ourselves, we forget that we have been unjust and disobedient. If we rebuke another not in the spirit of meekness and love, but in scorn, we humiliate him and add to his displeasure. There are times when a rebuke given in the spirit of Christian love is not forbidden, but we are exhorted to exercise this grace, but only at the proper time and in the right temper. If we refrain from exercising it when needed we are neglecting a duty we owe our brother. Too often we forget the exhortation given by James 5:20, "Let him know that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." Notice the words, "shall save". In their use James implies that we are saviors under God; for are we not workers together with Him, has He not taken us into a fellowship of His work and agreed to share His grace and glory upon all our Christian endeavors? Because of this we should esteem it a very high honor, and therefore we should labor diligently to render suitable returns to Him for the trust imposed in us.

We may err from the truth, and perhaps do many times. I believe all Bible characters, except our Lord, made mistakes, and their errors are on record, and we may be led into error; but not beyond recovery: even into grievous wrong, but we can not hide our imperfection behind their cloaks. From the words, "convert him" we get the thought that we must restore him from his error. There is no greater or more noble Christian act of charity than to restore those who have gone astray. To aid others is to add to our own strength. Every attempt we make to lead others into a right perception of the truth as it is in Jesus helps us to a better understanding of it. If we would learn, we must teach; for teaching serves to clear our own minds. Teaching reveals deficiencies in us little thought of before. It will cause us to feel more keenly the truths we try to impart to others, and will urge us to closer study in order that we may be able to give a correct answer to him that asketh us.

GIVE NOT THAT WHICH IS HOLY. MATT. 7:6

This is a technical term for the meats offered in sacrifice upon the altar of God. No unclean man was permitted to eat of it, much less a dog. To the Jew the dog was an unclean and odious animal. If a Jew even touched a dog he was counted unclean, unholy and referred to as a dog; hence not permitted to eat of sacrificial meat.

The mote in our neighbor's eye and the beam in ours may justly represent the wrongs in the lives of both. When one guilty of great wrongs assumes to correct one who has committed a trivial offense he is exposing himself to the harsh criticism of being called a hypocrite, and he may be met with a stinging rebuke, such as we have often heard, "O, you are no angel, I think I am as good as you." That may be what our Lord would call "turning and rending" the one who casts pearls before swine. The thing for such an one to do is to say nothing about little offenses until he has corrected his own errors. When freed from them he may see more clearly how to free his neighbor from his. Few see their own faults, no matter how large; but can see other's faults, though small. The reason for this is, he is looking ing outward and not within. The remedy for this evil is "Light"—that light which is shed abroad by the Word of God, that light which illumines the mind, the intellect, and which enables one to detect the good from the evil.

"God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." It is He who commanded light to shine out of darkness, that hath shined in our hearts. The Glory of God is a phrase which, in the Hebrew, carries with it the idea of surpassing light. He who possesses this light will see most clearly how to remove the dark clouds of error and mysticism from the minds of others.

—THR—

Philip Brooks once said, "I do not believe any man ever yet genuinely, humbly, thoroughly gave himself to Christ without some other finding Christ through him."

—THR—

ARMISTICE DAY

By Sidney Jackson

AT eleven o'clock on November 11, men stood with bowed heads and quieted hearts throughout the world, while they remembered the dead and gave honor to those who fought in the Great War."

These were the opening lines of an article in the Grinnell Scarlet and Black, the semi-weekly of that college. The writer went on to say, that in the library of that, my college, little attention was paid when the whistles blew the eleven o'clock signal. Bitter lament was shown throughout the article because of the lack of loyal appreciation and regard which the writer seemed to feel that we owed to those who fought in that dreadful mistake—the World War.

I noticed by the home paper that there were those in my own home town who apparently failed to show their regard for the sacred eleven o'clock of November eleventh.

It does seem that at eleven o'clock on each anniversary of Armistice Day we should bow our heads and meditate quietly for a minute. But it seems that our meditations should be along a rather different line than worshiping those who lost their lives in the war of 1917 to 1918. Our meditations should rather be of thankfulness that after a year and a half of unchristian conduct in wilfully killing our fellowmen, we and others awoke to the fact that it was really getting us nowhere excepting further from God. The whole war was a mistake as most of us will admit after a little thought and in giving our unbiased opinion, and so I say, let us, at eleven o'clock on each eleventh of November, gravely bow our heads and thank our God that we are out of the war, and pray His guidance and control that we may never again prove so foolish as to declare war on any of these, God's children. It is human nature to become aroused and want to fight, and only God can control that tendency; so let us place ourselves in His hands and yield ourselves to the molding of the great Potter.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—Dec. 12—Rev. 2:12-29

Mem. V. 25

Monday—Dec. 13—Rev. 3

Mem. V. 5

IT seems quite evident that the letters to the seven churches of Asia, chapters 2 and 3, were letters to be used for encouragement by those true to Christ during the days of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, no nor ever shall be. These days were in the day of the Lord, the day when God shall take the rule of earth unto Himself. It will be God's day over man. The change between the methods of God in His day and the methods of man will seemingly cause such violent opposition to God by man that the time of trouble will surpass all others. But God's way will overpower.

These letters are to encourage the faithful of the chosen people and of the would-be Christian who has not been judged of the class of the body of Christ that have been caught up to meet the Lord in the air.

Space forbids much reference to the Old Testament scriptures which these letters indicate.

Tuesday—Dec. 14—Rev. 4

Mem. V. 1

Chapters 2 and 3 seem to be a parenthesis set in for explanation and encouragement. Chapter 4 really begins the work of Revelation, the work that chapter 1 introduces.

John beheld a door open in heaven. Remember that John was in the day of the Lord; he was in spirit. What he saw was a revelation, a revealing. The door was open; a voice spoke to him which said, "Come up hither, and I will show thee things which must be hereafter". Thus in spirit in the Lord's day, John was caught away to heaven. Mortal imagination can hardly picture the scene.

And "a throne was set in heaven", v. 2. The word "set" is in imperfect tense. It was not yet furnished, that is, John saw the throne in the process of being set, placed. It was different from the eternal throne of God; it was a new throne, dominion, government, being then and there established for the work that "must be hereafter". The description of Him upon the throne, v. 3, can better be understood after comparing Isa. 6:1; Ezek. 1 and 10; Dan. 7:9; and such Old Testament scriptures.

In reading to-day's lesson the truth-seeker will do well to get the fuller picture from the Old Testament scriptures and to endeavor earnestly to imagine before him the described picture. For all this tabernacle and the temple, both of which God Himself was the architect, should be carefully studied. As with the building of the tabernacle, Ex. 25:9, everything was to be made according to the pattern given by God, so with the building of the temple, 1 Chronicles 28:11-21, everything was God-planned, God-specified; and David spoke, v. 19, according as "the Lord made me understand in writing by his hand upon me". In this service of David, 1 Chron. 24, there were 24 courses of elders or priests which served before the throne of God in the Holy of Holies. We have the like number and position around the throne set in heaven in Revelation 4:4.

The word "beasts" in this chapter 4 is from the Greek word "zoa" the meaning of which is "living ones". It is not to be understood as beasts in the sense of wild beasts in Revelation 13 or the present day common usage. The names of these beasts are identically the same as the names of the four cherubim in Ezekiel 1 and 10, in both which places the cherubim surround the throne. They are the same as the four principal standards, namely; those of Judah, the lion; of Dan, the eagle; of Reuben, the man; and of Ephraim, the ox; which always stood round about the tabernacle of ancient days. They were the cherubim by which the tabernacle, God's abode, was surrounded. But in the Holy of Holies of this tabernacle, at the mercy seat which was God's real seat or throne in His tabernacle of abode, He was still surrounded more closely by that which were the the cherubim. These cherubim, Ex. 37:6-9, were made of the same piece of gold as was the mercy seat, and God sat upon, was sustained by the mercy seat. But in Rom. 4:25, Paul as told by Christ, Gal. 1:12, says that God set Christ to be a propitiation. In the Greek he says God set Christ to be a hilasterion, which latter word is identical with mercyseat elsewhere in the New Testament. See Heb. 9:5. And with the Greek word for mercyseat throughout the Old Testament. Thus God, Rom. 4:25, made Christ to be a mercy seat, a mercy seat on which or through which God is to govern in righteousness the world. But in the old tabernacle and temple the mercy seat and the cherubim were of one piece. In the New Testament, which states that the mercy seat stood for Christ, that which is one piece with Christ, made out of His bone and His flesh, is none other than the church, Eph. 5:32 and 31. But the cherubim of the Old Testament were pictured by the four living creatures, lion, eagle, man, ox. These are the same four living ones found in Revelation 4:6-8. They are also round about God's throne. It is the throne recently set, the one which John saw placed, v. 2. And if he saw the throne in the process of being placed, then, the throne having been placed, he saw its occupant take its seat; he saw the four living ones come close by; he saw the twenty-four elders take their position farther out; he saw the whole picture in its making, apparently to the writer the establishment of the church in the air, "to meet the Lord in the air", and to gather with Him around the special throne of judgment, while He shall proceed to Judge Israel preparatory to the establishment of His kingdom.

Wednesday—Dec. 15—Rev. 5

Mem. V. 13

In the right hand of the one on the throne is a scroll written within and without and sealed with seven seals. The scriptural illustration and antecedent of the use of scrolls will be found in Jer. 32:6-12. In reading this, one must remember the duty of a kinsman. See the Book of Ruth and also Leviticus 25. Here, Jer. 32:9-12, a scroll sealed within and without is used. In it was a record describing such things as the title of the possession to be redeemed. Its terms might be read from the outside reading and again they were sealed within, that they might not be altered. The same is true in Rev. 5. God has given man a wonderfully complete record of the redemption of Israel to her promised land. Jesus is the next of kin; the time is ripe; the throne has been set; the cherubim have been gathered as also the twenty-four elders; and the Lamb which was slain with this in view, is ready to take up the work. Immediately, vv. 8-14, a song or redemption was sung by the four living ones and the twenty-four elders such as the world has never yet heard. The very heavens themselves reverberated with the joy that was being introduced by the fact that the rightful heir had taken the book and was about to open its several seals and establish the redemptive work.

Thursday—Dec. 16—Rev. 6

Mem. V. 9

Seal one is opened, v. 1. Immediately one of the living creatures of 4:8 voices the exultant word, "Come". This particular word "come" has no special meaning indicating "move toward me"; it is used for come, go, do, act, and such like. It simply means "proceed", whether coming or going. Notice definitely this fact: It is in the Lord's day; it is yet future; it is the opening of the first seal, and with this opening there is one from the throne exultantly cooperating with Christ in the remarkable word "come", or "do". To whom it was addressed is not definitely stated.

Immediately a horseman proceeds upon a white horse. Horse in Old Testament scripture was never used for beast of burden; he was always used for service or royal battle; he was primarily used in war. See Prov. 21:31 and compare Psalm 3:8. The rider evidently was a warrior; he was crowned with a bow in his hand; his mission was to conquer. This horse was white. He compares very favorably, to the mortal eye, with the horse spoken of in Rev. 19:11 where Jesus in the close of tribulation comes forth upon a white horse. It is possible that this white horse of Rev. 6:1 refers to the great war strife that shall be ushered in by the false christ or antichrist throughout that great day of trouble.

It is one thing to open a record of title and take possession of a deeded property; it is quite another thing to dispossess the old tenant from that land or that possession. So, here, as soon as Christ begins to open the scroll and claim possession the opponents begin to strenuously oppose Him. Herein arises the great tribulation. The first to oppose Him is the false christ, the antichrist system whose opposition continues throughout the day of tribulation.

He opens seals 2, 3, and 4 successively. At each opening one of the four living ones, chapter 4, makes proclamation. Those four living ones are present. If they are the church, then it is the church present with Christ, cooperating under His direction in that great redemptive struggle. The opening of each several seal antagonizes the opponents to Christ's work. Thus, as seal after seal is opened, opponent after opponent enters in and trouble only increases continuously during these times. Seal 5 is opened, v. 9. Some of the faithful of that day are encouraged even though they are informed that they, like their brethren, are likely to be slain by the great opponents. Nevertheless, according to the letters to the churches, the overcomer, the one of true, continued faith in Christ, shall gain victory and reward. These slain ones under the altar are probably again mentioned at Rev. 20:4, 5. Under the opening of the sixth seal, which does not open until the first five are opened successively, sun, moon, stars, all nature of heaven and earth shudder and quake and the rulers of man's day, tremble extremely; "for the great day of His wrath is come".

Friday—Dec. 17—Rev. 7

Mem. V. 14

In chapter 7 is rest. Angels of God are instructed to hold the tempest until God's servants are sealed in their foreheads. A definite, positive number from twelve several tribes of Israel, God's chosen people, are sealed. The word "seal" is the word used by Greeks and Latins for branding their war slaves just as Americans brand their wild cattle and horses. These are sealed in their foreheads. Not only do they, themselves know of the seal, but every opponent upon life's street will be able to read. What contrast between those sealed with the seal of God and those sealed with the number or name of the beast, Rev. 13.

Later, 9-17, is another number, a great number out of every nation gathered in upon the throne setting and round about as in chapter 4, but they are before the throne. These come out of great tribulation, v. 14, even the tribulation of that day.

Saturday—Dec. 18—Rev. 8

Mem V. 3

It is after this parenthetical that the seventh seal is opened. Unlike the opening of any of the previous six, this one is followed by deadly silence in heaven. Immediately afterward the opposition attendant upon this opening proceeds. But this opposition continues throughout the balance of the book to the close of chapter 19. The opposition of all of the sealed continues. What a great medley of confusion and distress. This seventh seal work is first accompanied by the introduction of seven special angels each of which performs a definite, given work. It makes one think of the plagues in Egypt, of God's miraculous interposition concerning sea and earth and heavens in days gone past when the waters were divided, when the earth quaked, when the heavens were darkened—definite, literal, physical catastrophes in earth, yet to come.

—THR—

"Daylight will peep through a very small hole."

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

WE REGRET that Bro. Austin has been forced to stop all labor and be confined to his home for a few days.

The strain he has been under, caused by the press of work and home, has brought him to this present state. He hopes, after a few days of rest, to be able to resume work on the quarterly, that it may go out on time, then an extended rest is urged by his doctor to prevent serious break in health.

* * * *

QUARTERLIES

Some are wondering whether our new quarterly will be a real one. Yes. Sixty four pages, adapted to upper one-half of the school, is the plan, and we think some of the best quarterlies on the market may compare favorably with it.

* * * *

CHRISTMAS CARDS

So many letters have come in inquiring about our Christmas Card Circular, that we feel some mention should be made here. We did not put out a descriptive circular this year. We are printing a good many personal cards at five cents each, for 25 or more, printed to order, but are unable to send out samples. Our dollar packet of assorted cards is an exceptionally good value, selected from our counter stock.

* * * *

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

The campaign closes with the going out of this issue. The effort has been well worth while, not only from the financial benefit derived from an increased subscription list, but from the better point of view, that of disseminating the good news of things to come, and Life through Christ.

The premiums will be sent out soon. Some must be ordered now from publishers or dealers. This could not be done until we knew how many to order. Be patient.

* * * *

"Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor to him that fell among the thieves? And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise."—St. Luke.

* * * *

Have you planned for a series of meetings sometime this winter?

* * * *

We are glad for the report that the new Grand Rapids church is "too small". We are sorry they did not build it large enough.

The Christmas season is here We would like to make our Christmas number herald forth the true Christmas spirit. A goodly number of articles along this line would be very acceptably received. Get them in promptly, not later than December 16, if you want them to appear.

* * * *

"WHAT WE SHALL BE"

"It doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." Although received into the family of God to-day yet the individual is not advanced unto the fulness of his inheritance until Christ shall come. At that time, John says, "We shall be like him".

There are different way in which one might be like Christ; physically, morally, or in His glorified state. The question naturally arises in the study of this scripture, 1 John 3:2, as to what this likeness consists of. The answer may be partly inferred by the explanatory clause which follows, namely, "for we shall see him as he is". To see Christ physically even in His glorified body would hardly be a means for fashioning one like unto such glorious body. But for the individual who is permitted in the family of God to see Christ in His activities, in His teachings, in His service of life—to thus see Him face to face and realize definitely, positively the meaning of His work would be ample reason why every earnest, loyal person would endeavor in the fulness of strength to be like Him in such conduct and service of life. And with the futher assurance that all such will then be immortal, "fashioned like unto his glorious body", Phil. 3:21, thus having strength and ability for service, it seems practically certain that each such one will pattern accurately after the Savior's great life service and be, like Him, working the great works of forgiveness, restoration, resurrection; the works of breaking the oppressor, removing the curse, the work of refashioning the earth till all things be made new.

To be thus like Christ is a prospect most entrancing.—F. L. A.

—THR—

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. R. Rice; T. J. Ellis; Mrs. Jas. Cassen; Mrs. Sarah Hook; E. W. Moses; B. F. Cook; Mrs. Emma Condent; Mrs. Hulda Thompson; Albert B. Eyster; J. S. Lyon; Chas. Gesin; Mrs. Dan Coffin.

WINCE FUND

Previously mentioned	$2567.16
Mrs. Ada Eldridge	3.00
Total	$2570.16

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

A LETTER from Bro. E. W. Moses, of Houston, Texas, contains the following items concerning the Berean work in that city:

"The Houston Berean Class was organized in September of this year with ten members, with Gerald Moses as President and Miss Neva Moses as Secretary-treasurer. They have met regularly every Sunday night at the home of Bro. E. W. Moses, and some very interesting lessons we have had. The first of November Bro. E. E. Giesler and family moved to Houston and he has preached for us the last few Sundays and has given us 'meat in due season'. A number of others have attended and seemed to be interested."

* * *

"The Houston class is planning on having Bro. E. O. Stewart with them the first part of December and expect to have a 'feast royal' studying the Word. We would like to see as many as can get here to meet with us."

* * *

"Bro. and Sr. F. B. McCollough have moved to Houston for the winter as well as Bros. George and Leslie Brown of the Goldthwaite Class and are a welcome addition to our numbers. We would be glad to see any who wish to escape the icy blast of the northern winters come this way and enjoy our mild winter and study with us."

* * *

One of our societies, in studying the lesson on the "Tree of Life" recently, brought up some interesting points and questions. Among them was this one: Did Adam and Eve ever eat of the tree of life? The idea seems to have become quite frequent that they did not, and that to have eaten would have made them immortal.

* * * *

So far as we know, however, there is no scriptural foundation for this thought. The only evidence we have ever heard advanced is Gen. 3:22, 23, and the part concerned reads as follows: "And now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: Therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden." The construction of that sentence does not justify the thought of once eating giving immortality. The adverb forever goes with the verb eat as well as the verb live, so that so far as the sentence is concerned the thought may be that one would have to eat forever of the tree in order to live forever. That, we understand to be the true situation. The tree contained life, else God would not have named it as He did, but it took continual access to the tree to give continual life. Hence, when Adam and Eve were driven out, and no longer could get to it, they began to deteriorate physically, and died.

* * * *

But the tree of life was a type of Christ. God planted the tree—God produced the Savior. And while Jesus possesses life for all who will come and take of Him, yet one nibble of His gospel does not give immortality. We must continually come to Him, eat of His fruit, be filled with His message, and produce His works. Separation from Christ will cause us to deteriorate and die just as surely as separation from the original tree had that effect on the first members of the race.

* * * *

Another sense in which the type carries out is that the tree of life existed for a time upon the earth, growing as other trees grew, then was removed, but is to be established upon the earth again in the future as a blessing to the nations. So, likewise, Jesus existed upon the earth once, growing, and living as other men grow and live, then was removed and is not seen to-day on earth, but is to be established again at His second coming that through Him all families of the earth may be blessed.

* * * *

Again, looking at the tree of life was not sufficient. To get its benefits one would have to walk up to it, pick its fruit, eat, and assimilate it. So, looking at Christ from a distance will not suffice. We must come to Him, take His fruit, make His teachings and principles a part of our lives.

* * * *

Was the tree of life literal? The same kind of language is used with reference to it that is used for other trees of the garden, all of which grew out of the ground. The fact that it was clearly a type or symbol of Christ does not argue against its being literal any more than the fact that Joseph was a type of Christ would argue that Joseph was not a real man. If we consent that Joseph was a genuine man, why deny that the tree of life was a genuine tree?

* * * *

These are only a few of the many points that can be discussed on this fruitful topic. If you have some good points or questions send them in,

JESUS CHRIST—WHO IS HE?

No. 16

By R. H. Judd

IT will be noticed on reference to the margin of the Revised version that Isaiah 8, in the Hebrew, has 23 verses, and that chapter 9 begins with verse 2 of the English translation. Thus Matthew, in citing this passage, in order to give full force to his message quotes Isaiah 8:23 and 9:1. Like many another writer he realizes that the subject matter of a picture is often greatly enhanced by the background upon which it is drawn, hence the background is taken from Isaiah 8, while the picture itself is contained in chapter 9. Let us look briefly at the history contained in these verses. The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, Galilee of the Nations, is the specified arena of interest. In the days of Asa king of Judah, the people of this district were carried away captive by Benhadad king of Syria, casting over the land a shadow as "the shadow of death". So lasting was the blight thus given to the district that even centuries later, in the time of Christ, it was thought impossible that "any good could come out of Galilee." (See John 1:46; 7:41, 42, 52.) But although, as in the present day, those who should have known did not know, it was nevertheless, very definitely foretold that "a great light" should shine upon and shine forth from Galilee.

But why call it "Galilee of the nations"? Was it not because other nations had been planted there by Benhadad? Thus is accounted for the scorn of the people of Israel for the land of Galilee, and the cause of their failure to be a blessing to the people within their gates.

But God Himself had not forgotten the "land of the shadow of death". The prophet Isaiah, after speaking of trouble, darkness, and anguish, closes the chapter with these words as rendered in the Variorum Bible, "Yet (it doth) not (continue) dark, where (now) is affliction; as in the former time He brought to shame the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, so in time to come He bringeth it to honor, even the tract by the sea, beyond Jordan, Galilee (or the district) of the nations." "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined." Many of the references to the Messiah which the Pharisees themselves accepted were not so specific as this, yet they emphatically declared (see John 7:52) that "out of Galilee ariseth no prophet".

But why is this passage so detailed in description? Why say "beyond Jordan"? Is there not a hint here that He who "came to His own and His own received Him not" will yet fulfill the promise to Abraham that in him shall all nations of the earth be blessed, even those "beyond Jordan"?

We now come to that well-known prophecy of Isaiah 9:6—"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of peace." Many Scripture prophecies are spoken both in the present and the future tense. Often in the present tense so as to indicate thereby the certainty of fulfillment. Yet, while thus making use of the present tense, the future tense also frequently occurs, and in such a manner as to shew clearly that all parts of the prophecy do not come to pass simultaneously. Note how this is the case here—"Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; . . ." This portion of the prophecy is spoken in the present tense. Again we would ask, Why? Is it not because it has reference to that portion of it which has already been revealed, and mainly because the prophet desires to express his belief that a promise of Jehovah once given may be regarded as in the realm of practical accomplishment. The actual fact itself is, therefore, spoken in the present tense, the things that are to spring from it are revealed in their true futurist aspect. Viewed in this light we can see that the text divides into two natural divisions, and realizing what we now know, but was then not understood, it is not difficult to see that two distinct periods of the life of the Messiah are here referred to.

It is from this verse that those who advocate the underived deity of the Lord Jesus (for if He was "co-eternal with the Father" it could not be otherwise), seek to draw the proofs for their proposition. In their eagerness to give glory to Him whom the Father has already glorified, and will yet glorify, they fail to note a crucial weakness in their application of Scripture statement. The very part of the prophesy which they quote to prove that the Messiah (Jesus Christ) was and is GOD—GOD ALMIGHTY—when carefully read actually disproves their contention, for if their hypothesis were true the names mentioned would already be His, and it could not therefore in any right sense be said that He "shall be called" by them. Commentators favoring the "orthodox" view have almost invariably endeavored to connect the first of these names with the margin of Judges 13:18, with the obvious objective of affirming the preexistence of the Messiah. Several important considerations conspire to prove the error of this conception. We have already noticed one, and it is formidable, but others of equal force line up along side of it.

Judges 13:18 has reference to "an angel of the Lord" and, according to Hebrews 1:5, "unto which of the angels said He at any time, "Thou art my Son . . ." cannot possibly apply to the Messiah. Further, it will be noticed that each of the names mentioned in Isa. 9:6, is a compound name. The first name is therefore Wonderful Counsellor. Moreover, Judges 13:18 gives no mention of a name in either text or margin.

The child has been born, and in a double sense the Son has been given to the sons of men, and to the sons of Jacob in particular; but not yet has He been called by these names, which, like all other Hebrew names, are of characteristic and definite purpose. So truly is this the case that we feel justified in extending the consideration of this prophesy in another issue, and we anticipate that the interest of the reader will be drawn forth in reverend acknowledgement that such a remarkable prophecy "came not by the will of man."

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

SAMUEL, THE JUST JUDGE

LESSON 12 DECEMBER 19, 1926
 LESSON TEXT 1 SAMUEL 7; 12
 RESPONSIVE READING PSALM 44
 1 SAMUEL 12:1-5, 13-15

GOLDEN TEXT: Direct your hearts unto Jehovah, and serve Him only.—1 Samuel 7:3, R.V.
 Memory Verses: 1 Samuel 12:22, 24.

FOR STUDY

Review: Describe the circumstances of Samuel's birth and early training. Did God have a particular purpose in his birth and training? What change in Israel's national life was imminent?

The New Lesson: In this week's lesson Samuel is carrying on the work for which his birth and training fitted him, and through him God makes the transition, desired by Israel, from judgeship system of government to kingship.

I. Repentance and the Return of the Ark. 1 Sam. 7. The Philistines were among those idolatrous nations which God did not destroy through Joshua, for purposes of His own. Judges 3:1-4. The story of their activities against Israel during the period of the Judges is told in 1 Samuel 5 and 6. Recall that for which the ark stood and the place where God has decreed it should center, then account for the disastrous results which followed man's attempt to remove it from that center.

The return of the ark to Israel described in 1 Samuel 7:1-2 did not mean deliverance from Philistine bondage. This deliverance was a part of Samuel's first work as Judge. Did he begin by raising an army and working up patriotism? Did the change which Samuel called upon the people to make require a mere breaking of idols? Were the strange gods the idols of stone and wood, or were they the things which were integral parts of their daily lives? Read carefully verse 3. How was the defeat of the Philistines accomplished? V. 10. Does fear sometimes drive people to God? vv. 7, 8. Is this the best and highest connection between God and man? How did Samuel provide a memorial of this added step unto national freedom? What is the value of such memorials?

The story of Samuel's judgeship in Israel is briefly summarized in vv. 15-17.

II. The Transition from Judgeship to Kingship Government. 1 Sam. 12.

1 Samuel 8; 9; 10; 11 tell the story of the last years of Samuel's judgeship, the people's desire for a king "like all the nations", and the first work of Saul's kingship. Chapter 12 gives Samuel's official farewell as judge over Israel.

Verses 1-5. Was the character of Samuel's rule over Israel the cause of the people's desire for a king? What did they set forth as their fear concerning continued judgeship? 1 Sam. 8:5. Was kingship government a guarantee against this evil? What was the real motive back of the demand for a king? v. 5 (last part).

Since a kingdom is God's approved and decreed type of government for Israel, Israel was not choosing a type of government contrary to the type God had in mind for her. Her sin lay, not in choosing a king, but in the motive that prompted her to choose a king.

VV. 6-15. Why does Samuel relate for Israel a summary of her history? Note that he relates such incidents as prove that God had gone before them as King. Thus he reveals to them that they had failed to recognize God as King. Note also that though Israel had failed to recognize God as King, God does not release His rulership over them. He now rules by giving them what they want—a king "like all nations". How does Samuel make it clear, in verses 14 and 15, that, though they now had a king, there was no real change in rulership?

VV. 16-19. In spite of Israel's many years of experiencing God's salvation power, she still stood in need of "signs" as an influence to draw her to God—a weak device, but one which is always used in early stages of development. Jesus was the first of Israel's leaders to refuse to make spectacular use of "signs", and He refused only when they were demanded in the spirit of pride and prejudice.

VV. 20-25. Study Samuel's advice to Israel? Is it good advice for us to follow? Analyze vv. 21, 22. Could Israel's wickedness defeat God's purpose in Israel? What is that purpose? (First part of v. 22). Does the assurance that God will not forsake Israel mean that God will not punish the people for wickedness? V. 25.

FOR CLASS

What great change in Israel's development takes place in this week's lesson? How was last week's lesson connected with this?

Discuss Samuel's first great work in Israel?

Read and discuss 1 Samuel 12 as outlined in the study section.

IS YOUR LIGHT SHINING?

(Continued from front page)

all know, neither does He expect us to be radical, but tells us we should let our light shine, for if we do not, He can use some one else in our place. God does not need us, but He loves us, and wants us to learn obedience by the things we suffer, and we need God more than ever in these perilous times.

God's Word repeatedly tells us that such conditions would come upon the world toward the close of the Gospel Age, when men would be "heady" and "high-minded". But had we been told ten years ago that affairs would go to such an extreme it would have seemed impossible. The Bible is our only guide.

Isaiah must have had a vision of this day and age when he prophesied in chapter 59:14-15, "And judgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off; for truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter. Yea, truth faileth, and he that departeth from evil, maketh himself a prey: and the LORD saw it, and it displeased him that there was no judgment." In Luke 21:35-38 we are told to "watch and pray" always, that we may escape the "snares" that are coming upon the earth. May God keep us from listening to anything that is contrary to the teaching of His Word, for these are the "snares".

(Continued on page 156)

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

On account of Bro. F. L. Austin being absent from the pulpit December 5, Sr. Woodward and Bro. J. Arthur Johnson did the speaking at the Oregon church.

* * *

"Meetings going fine here with big attendance", is the report from the Brush Creek Church, Ohio. Bro. F. E. Siple is assisting the pastor, Bro. M. W. Lyon, in this series.

Bro. J. E. Cowles recently preached four interesting sermons at Blair, Nebraska. A fair attendance, considering weather conditions, is reported.

* * *

Sr. Frances Blakely has been in the Blodgett Hospital for several weeks, and may be there for some time yet. Time hangs heavily on her hands. Help to lighten it by sending her a card. Address her at Grand Rapids, Michigan, care of Blodgett Hospital.

* * *

Sr. Susan Williams, of Ashton, Illinois, has come to Golden Rule Home for the winter.

* * *

A Bible class, which meets at the homes, has been started at West Bowne. The first meeting was held at the church. The evening was very stormy, and there were only seven present. The next Wednesday evening it was held in one of the homes and there were 18 present. All are adult and are very much interested. The subject being studied is the question raised in Psalm 8:4, "What is man that thou are mindful of him?"

* * *

Bro. Percy Murphy, who has been soliciting job printing for some time, has sent in his resignation and is contemplating entering a business for himself. We are not informed of the nature of his new venture, but we wish him success. He assures us he will continue to boost for the N. B. I.

* * *

The new church building at Grand Rapids is too small to accommodate the Sunday School. It will soon have to have one side knocked out. There are one hundred chairs and there were one hundred nineteen at Sunday School on Sunday, November 28. The Grand Rapids folk are working very hard and are deserving of the success that is coming to them. Plans are afoot for a Christmas program.

* * *

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Lucerne, 2; Burr Oak, 1; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Hillisburg, 8.

Baptisms: 2.

Money Received: Pleasant View, $23; Rensselaer, $25; Bro. M. Feters, $5; Burr Oak, $5; Plymouth, $15; North Salem, $6; Hillisburg, $25; Conference Board, $6.67.

Expense: $10.67.

I want to thank Bro. M. Feters, Burr Oak and Plymouth churches for a Thanksgiving remembrance.

On Wednesday, November 10, J. W. Williams began a special meeting at Hillisburg. He was there until November 22. After he left we continued the meeting until the 29th. There was good attendance and good interest. Bro. and Sr. Verne Plummer, and Bro. and Sr. Ray Elmore were baptized into the Christ as a result of the meeting.

J. H. Anderson.

$2000 is our goal. It is our present need. The fourth step will put us over the half-way mark. We appreciate very much the interest and cooperation that has been shown so far in this appeal. We also appreciate the letters received which have voiced a strong desire to help, but present circumstances being such that they are unable. We are only expected to give in proportion as the Lord has prospered us. We are hoping that we may go "over the top" by the end of the year.

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $-----, a Thank Offering to aid
in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name -----

Street -----

Post Office -----

State ----- Date -----

PERSONAL DANGERS

By M. A. Woodward

EVERY moth learns for itself that the light in the lamp burns, but still, night after night, as soon as the lamps are lighted the slaughter begins and leaves its wingless and dead lying around. The light is beautiful, warm, attractive, and, unscared by the appearance of their mates, the foolish creatures rush into the flame and drop, hopelessly singed, their little lives going out.

We look down upon the insects and think of them as inferior beings. We pity them because of their foolishness and helplessness, yet, there is a large class of people reproduced by every succeeding generation that does as the moths do, and dies as they die. They learn nothing by experience or observation; they draw no conclusions save those fatal to themselves. Around varied and brilliant temptations they gather night after night, and, with singed wings or lifeless bodies, they strew the ground around them. No advice, no expostulation, no sense of duty, moves or holds them from doing over and over again the foolish and dangerous things that blight their manhood or womanhood for ever. If they were moths indeed they could not act more foolishly or be more stupid. They are so far under the domination of the animal nature that, without any remorse of conscience, they sacrifice themselves in flames which the world's experience has shown to be fatal.

A single passion, which need not be named, further than to say that, hallowed by love and a legitimate gift of life to life, it is as pure as any passion of the soul, is one of the lamps around which these human moths lie in myriads of disgusting deaths. Sensuality in all its loathsomeness is one of the growing evils of this age. Go into the city, village, country; into our public schools, dance halls, and many other public places, and its rottenness is seen and felt. Parents, teachers, and friends can do our children no greater favor or show no more love than to carefully explain to them this growing evil and the utter wretchedness to which it leads.

All have two paths before them and the opportunity of choosing which they will take. They may throw themselves away on a few illegitimate pleasures which are for only a few moments and which will surely bring them to shame and disgrace, with all the elixir of life drained from them; or, choosing the other path, may grow up to become strong men and women, to be loved, respected, and sought after. Which will you choose? No one can choose the right path too soon. Wine, cigars, cigarettes, are all burning lamps by which the human system is weakened and burned.

But our doctors use these things, you say? Yes; more is the pity, for they know the deadly effects upon the body.

I have known several doctors to die of the awful drug habit. They knew it would kill them at last, but they were human. They liked the effect while it lasted and walked into the fire and died miserable, pitiless deaths.

Do you want the same experience? Do not try it, for it is terrible. Be wise, and be saved by others' sad mistakes. Wine, cigars, cigarettes, all lead toward the same death at last. Users of them soon learn that their hearts are being weakened, their brains slowly losing their power to think swiftly or wisely. But the habit, once formed, is so hard to break!

The millennium with a grog shop or tobacco stand on each corner is just as possible as that you can be a perfect man or woman indulging in any or all of these habits.

My dear young friends, you are all in the same danger to-day. I would fall on my knees and implore you to refrain from indulging the first time in any of these deadly habits. Then there will be no danger. God will help you if you ask Him to strengthen you for the battle. You will surely be tempted as others are and have been!

Touch not, taste not, handle not.

—THR—

Whoever, by a Christian word he speaks or by a Christian life he lives, brings a new soul to see the perfect life and take the perfect grace, has poured out of his full hands a blessing on his brother that leaves utterly out of sight any gift that riches can bestow on poverty.—Lyman Booth.

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION
National Bible Institution
Publishers of
THE RESTITUTION HERALD
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President, Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois
F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

THE SAVIOR'S BIRTH

By Daisy Nokes

DO you know, children, that God loved you so very much that He gave you the best Christmas gift you could have, the gift of His dear son, Jesus? "He loved us and sent His Son", is the memory verse. Can you say it?

People now are thinking about giving gifts to one another, but they forget almost entirely about the greatest gift that was ever given to mankind, the gift of our Savior Jesus.

Long ago a great many people came to Bethlehem. They came from all parts of the country, walking over the rough, stony roads, so they were very tired and wanted to rest. Among them was a man named Joseph, and Mary, his wife. They, too, were very tired, but could find no room in the inn, or hotel. At last they went to a stable near the hotel and lay down on the soft hay to rest and sleep. That night Jesus was born in that stable. Mary wrapped Him up warmly, and laid Him in the manger, the place where the cows and horses eat hay.

It was not very cold in that country, although it was Christmas time. The grass was green and near the city some shepherds were out in the open taking care of their sheep. Shepherds talk quietly together and watch lest some little sheep should stray away or a strange animal sneak in and harm them. The sheep lay down to sleep; for they knew that the good shepherds would watch carefully.

Suddenly the sky was all lit up with a bright light. It was bright all around them. They were much afraid. Then an angel said to them, "Fear not, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people for unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

Suddenly the sky seemed to be filled with angels, singing and praising God.

It was a wonderful sight to them, and to hear an angel speak and so many angels sing so sweetly, was indeed very wonderful.

"Let us go and worship this wonderful King", said they when the angels had gone. They came to Bethlehem and found the little baby wrapped in baby clothes, in a manger, as the angel had told them.

They were so happy that they thanked God for His goodness in telling them and told every one they met the wonderful news.

QUESTION

Am I happy, like these humble shepherds were at His first coming, to tell others that this "very same Jesus" is coming again?

IS YOUR LIGHT SHINING?

(Continued from page 153)

We know Mr. Darrow has one of the keenest of minds, and is considered a great thinker. He seems to have a way of reasoning his way out of every truth. He is a materialist, and although he seems to imagine almost anything within the scope of the five senses, he absolutely closes every avenue of approach to God's Word and the truth. He seems to draw most of his conclusions from the present state of society, which the Bible says is going to pass away completely; for Satan is the god of this world, and conditions will continue in his hands until our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, shall come from heaven and make restitution of all things.

"No hope, no purpose in life". How different from our beloved Paul's experience when he says, that eye hath not seen, nor ear heard of the glories that are laid up for them who love the Lord; but God hath revealed them to us through His Spirit. Then, too, the words of Solomon come to mind. Let us stop to see what his vision of heaven and of God was when he built that magnificent temple. Solomon had a great God; for he said, "But will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have builded."—1 Kings 8:27. We may have as big a God as Solomon if we wish. We are the choosers.

Mr. Darrow says, "Heaven is a myth and bunk. What would you think of me if I told you I was going to a place I had not seen? I can't see how any man can say he has a purpose when he can't see what that purpose is. Life has no purpose. Man clings to these feverishly in spite of his own credulity, like a shipwrecked sailor hanging to a floating raft, with a bottomless ocean ready to swallow him up." This is Mr. Darrow's idea of life. But he adds that he thinks, "We should be kind to one another as we make this perilous voyage through life." We have nothing against Mr. Darrow personally, God forbid that we should harbor unkind feelings toward anyone; for we could not continue as God's children if we did, but we wonder who Mr. Darrow thinks he is, to make such slighting remarks and sweeping statements against an Almighty God. His own statements have condemned him; for we are condemned or justified by our own words, Matt. 12:37. Every skeptic or critic that has tried to attack the Word of God has made no effect whatever upon the Book of books that has stood and will stand the test of the ages. God's word cannot change, it is the "same yesterday, to-day, and for ever". The pity of it is that there are always plenty of people who flock to hear such blasphemy, as he tries to put forth, and this is where the harm comes from; for one can never tell how much harm such ideas can accomplish.

He says, "Man is insignificant." Yet God loved mankind enough to send His only begotten Son into the world to die for our sins. Can that love ever be measured? And this life which Mr. Darrow thinks originated from other life is what God says is like grass; for we find in 1 Peter 1:24, "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away, but the word of the Lord endureth for ever." But eternal life and immortality come through the Gospel only. It is the old nature without a knowledge of God that is like grass and that is utterly condemned. There is no hope for those who have rejected the only source of life, light and immortality; these are found only in Christ. The Christian knows that the mortal soul is subject to death, until Christ's spirit, through the new birth, comes to dwell within the body. Our great hope is, that we are to become immortal at Christ's coming. Thus, eternal life and immortality come thru the Gospel. There is no hope in our old natures, God utterly condemns them. When one is born again, God impacts His life and nature to us daily through His Holy Spirit abiding in us. Until that condition takes place in our lives, we are walking in the absolute darkness. The kingdom of heaven is a real kingdom, and is coming without observation or outward show in spite of all the efforts of men to the contrary. God's Word is and must be true, though every man be a liar. If God should permit men and women to enter into the kingdom without a new birth, we would have the same conditions again as we now have on earth, which is fast ripening for judgment. If Christian people would be as willing to stand fast in the truth as Satan's agents are willing to attack it, critics would not have such a following as they have to-day, and their power would soon be broken, but as long as they have followers, they will have power.

Think of the influence such ideas have upon the growing generation. What a stumbling block such teaching is, as, that all we have is the present life! No wonder there has been so much increase in crime, and our penal institutions are becoming filled with young boys. Statistics show that crime has greatly increased within the past five years. Of course, it would be so when such teaching has gone abroad through the country. If there is to be no reward for good behavior, or any punishment for sins, why should there be any effort? It would lead them to think, as a criminal once said, that the only crime was in being found out. As long as they could "get away with it" they were all right; for there would be no penalty in the face of such teaching; which, without question, would lead to an increase in crime. Boys and girls are doing things now that we never heard of or even thought of fifteen years ago. Where shall we put the blame, if not on such erroneous ideas and teaching.

Some people are beginning to be alarmed. Many will awaken some day to realize that it is too late; that they had been asleep, and that their growing children had been drinking in all this wicked teaching, and formed ideas which led to wicked lives; and they will see a harvest that may bring much grief to them: for the Book of books is true wherein it says, "Be sure your sins will find you out." We cannot deceive God. We may think so for a time, but we are only deceiving ourselves. It cannot be otherwise; for the consequences of sin are disastrous unless checked somewhere. But how shall this be accomplished? To God they do not turn, hence go on and are punished. Sin often gets such a hold on men that they are unable to turn to God. How urgent it is that parents understand the necessity of molding the youthful mind by their own good examples and motives, that disastrous thoughts like these may not control children's lives.

Much blame is always laid upon the mothers and fathers of to-day, and the Bible plainly teaches that they will have their share of remorse and suffering to bear for not reproving their own, but let us strike at sin in its hideousness where it is deeprooted, and let us not fear to say that it is the intellectual giants and higher critics that are undermining the faith of the people of to-day.

We are truly in the perilous times of 2 Timothy 3:1. Twenty years ago no church would have permitted any higher critics to enter its doors, and they would have called them atheists then, which is their proper name; but to-day their ideas seem to be welcomed and considered "as food for thought". We are fast advancing in the apostasy. Every man's opinion, no matter how contrary to the Bible it may be, is given consideration, and those who tell the truth are laughed at.

But, let us look at the hopeful side of it. We know that all these conditions point to a time not far distant when there will be an end of all sorrow, and suffering, crime and all forms of sin and deception with which the world is filled to-day. The fact that knowledge is being increased as it seems to be, is a sure sign of the end. God's Word is being revealed in a remarkable way, which brings joy to the child of God. However, with the truth, Satan always sends the false, and sometimes the imitation is very close. Undoubtedly we are in the time of trouble such as never was. Dan. 12:1. Daniel fainted when he saw a vision of the end time. All through the prophetic books and especially in the Book of Daniel, as well as the Book of James, we learn that there are to be great extremes before Christ comes. We need not look far to prove that this is true in the social, political, commercial, and ecclesiastical world.

Let us see what the condition of the true Christian is, compared to the wicked. "Many shall be purified and made white, the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall be saved." Dan. 12:10. Here we find one extreme.

Dear reader, you have the privilege of being in this purified class. What a blessed privilege it is! None are denied. It may mean sorrow, suffering, and persecution to stand for the truth, but it can't be long, so let us be faithful in giving out the light we have and standing firmly for the truths we know can never change.

—THR—

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

STEPS TO SALVATION

No. 4

By Jas. A. Patrick

BUT without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."—Hebrews 11:6.

"Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."—Romans 10:17.

When one has heard the Word, and has been led to see God in all His holiness, and been led to see himself in all his unworthiness; then he is ready to cast about for a remedy.

"Repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ", Acts 20:21, is the next step he will find in his study. And the seeker will find that his sins cannot be remitted until he has met the requirements laid down for him in the Word he is hearing.

If he continues his study in all sincerity, he will hear the master saying to his disciples, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth, and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned."—Mark 16:15, 16.

As belief is made a prerequisite to baptism, and, as infants and children, who have not come to the age of accountability, cannot believe, we will drop them from our consideration in this study.

"He that believeth, and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." It is sometimes argued that baptism is not really necessary, because Christ did not say, "He that believeth not and is not baptized shall be damned." There was no need that Christ should repeat the words, "is not baptized"; for one that does not believe will not be baptized, and if he did it would do him no good. He that believeth not shall be damned", expresses all the truth necessary and does not minimize, one whit, the force of the command to be baptized.

The enquirer may naturally ask, "Is this the only text that makes baptism essential to salvation?" No, it is not. But even if it were, it would be enough, unless some other statement qualified this one or made an exception to it. There is no such exception or qualification, and there are other statements just as strong as this one. In Matthew 28:19, after the Master has told the disciples to go into all the world and teach all nations and baptize them, He says, "Teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever I have commanded you". He not only commanded the disciples to teach and baptize the seekers, but enforced it by stating it in a little different way: "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you". What had he commanded them? To teach and baptize. Then they are to teach them to observe all these things. Do you think that one of them is non-essential?

Peter tells us, 1 Peter 3:20, 21, that eight souls were saved by water during the time of the flood, and then adds, "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us." The Emphatic Diaglott renders this verse, "An ark was being prepared, in which a few, that is, eight persons, were carried safely through the water. And immersion, a representation of this, now saves us." Noah and his family had to go into the ark and were carried through the flood and were saved. Christ is our antitypical ark.

"For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal. 3:27. How do we get into Christ? By baptism. It was necessary for Noah and his family to get into the ark in order to be saved. It is necessary for us to get into Christ to be saved. The Bible reveals but one way of getting into Christ—baptism. Can we be saved without getting into Christ?

Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into His death? For if we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection." Rom-6:3-5. Let us read this last statement negatively. If we have not been planted in the likeness of His death, what then? Is there any promise of us being in the likeness of His resurrection? There is but one answer. No.

Peter, on the day of Pentecost, told the inquirers, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." From this saying of Peter's it appears that sins are not remitted till after baptism. In the text above quoted from his epistle he says that it is not the putting away of the filth of the flesh. No, baptism doesn't wash away one sin: the blood of Christ does that, but "it is the answer of a good conscience toward God", and till that answer is given in full obedience, one's sins are not remitted.

Since we have learned that baptism is one of the very necessary steps to salvation, and since we know that the majority of those that profess to be Bible teachers are broadcasting the idea that it doesn't make any difference whether one is baptized or not, what should be our attitude toward such teachers and teaching?

Suppose a man, who is ignorant of their value, should fall heir to $100,000 worth of government bonds, and suppose that someone should persuade him to part with them for little or nothing because of the owner's ignorance of their value; what would we call such a person? Such a person is only depriving one of temporal things, while on the other hand, it is eternal life that is the prize. We are ready to cry, Thief, when one steals our purse and steals trash. What should we cry when a man robs another of eternal life? If Baptism is essential to salvation, and a teacher tells the seeker that it isn't necessary and causes him to neglect it, the teacher is causing that person to lose his eternal life.

I hope to conclude this subject in my next article. In it I will try to show what baptism is, and why it is essential.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

By N. H. Geiselman

ONE of the signs of the times is the high cost of living. Anciently famine burst upon the people suddenly and without much warning to the masses, owing to the fact that the food products were hoarded by the aristocracy during times of strife.

Records show us that in Constantinople following an invasion of that phase of the Roman Empire that twenty-five thousand died in a single day of starvation. It was want and starvation, scarcity of bread on the part of the common people that led up to the French revolution. Under the pressure of hunger, one woman went up to the Queen's palace beating upon a tin pan and begging for bread for her starving children. The repulsion of the queen was severe, telling her if she had no bread to go home and make cake, that it was cheaper.

The hypocrisy of the clergy and those in power led to the elimination of God from the heads and hearts of the common people and it became "infidel France", thus preparing the way for the onslaught of the common people against the aristocracy.

The famine that threatens our people is unlike, in a way, the one that incited the French revolution, but one just as sure and just as real. Our civilization is threatened with a creeping famine under the guise of the high cost of living; a famine creeping upon us slowly, steadily, like a snow storm in the night, unheralded until it is here. It is like a slow palsy, which will eventually paralyze our civilization with a revolt of which France was but a shadow.

The advance in the price of food-stuff, clothing, house rent, et cetera is enormous. The incomes of the masses do not mount up to the demands of those in power. Those in power are fighting the high cost of production and holding the laboring classes down to the minimum of existence. Only a few years ago the laboring classes could have a few of the luxuries of life along with the necessities. Now, the luxuries are denied and many of the wholesome necessities are substituted with unwholesome products. Such condition cannot always last. There is a time when patience ceases to be a virtue, especially is this true when hunger and want on one side meet needless extravagance on the other. Such condition can only ripen into a set hatred which ultimately will terminate into a revolt. The laboring elements will rise up in such a revolt as is indicated in the fifth chapter of James where it says, "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. . . . Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you."

Such conditions are ripening to prevail on the one hand, to be met with revolt on the other, and the battle will be one in which the rich will seek refuge and protection in the governments and the governments will try to protect them. This will be met with a life and death struggle on the part of labor, and will be the second manifestation of this time of trouble.

Personally, we think that political and ecclesiastical systems are out of harmony with God and His riches. Law will go down in this as in the French revolution; all religious restraint will be forgotten. This being the case it will let in that more serious condition, namely, the reign of anarchy or the battle of Armageddon. It is called Armageddon because it will be fought like the battle of the ancients on the hill and valley of Magiddo, a hand to hand struggle.

So, studying the signs of the times, we feel safe to say that we are gradually merging into the time of trouble spoken of by Daniel the prophet, and confirmed by our Lord's utterance, namely, a time of trouble such as never has been since there was a nation, or ever will be again, and of which the angry seas of Galilee was but a type. The troubled waters indicating the troubled peoples of all the earth, and our only safety is that at the opportune time our Captain will bid the angry seas be still, and usher in that glorious kingdom for which we have so long prayed, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." O, that it might come in the period of our day. It would be the most glorious tidings to us in the world.

*Only a little while and our fighting will be over,
Only a little while and our tears will be wiped away.
Only a little while and the power of Jehovah
Will turn the night of darkness into eternal day.*

*Only a little while and fears that oft surround us
Will to the memories of the past belong.
Only a little while and the Love which sought and found us
Will turn our sorrows into a glorious song.*

*Only a little while; for the time is drawing nearer:
Soon we will see the dawning of the blissful day.
We still pray, O Lord, make our vision clearer,
And guide us still in Thy holy way.*

*Only a little while, but still we pray for strength
And patience day by day.
O, fill us with the deepest adoration;
For we want to meet our Savior in His way.*

—THR—

THERE SHALL BE no bootleggers nor realtors in the kingdom of God, "But they shall sit every man under his vine, and under his fig tree; and none shall make him afraid."—Haney.

—O—

"THE ENGLISH government has guaranteed a loan by the government of Palestine for $22,500,000. This is some money for a little country like the Holy Land. It is to be spent on roads and ship docks."

PAPAL GRIP ON LEAGUE COUNCIL

NOTWITHSTANDING the capers that Spain and Brazil have recently been performing, the papal countries continue to hold down exactly half the seats in the League of Nations Council, while the other half are so distributed as to render cooperation among them difficult and doubtful. On September 16 the assembly elected the following nations to nine nonpermanent Council seats: Belgium, Chile, China, Columbia, Czechoslovakia, Holland, Poland, Roumania, and Salvador.

The permanent Council seats are held by France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy and Japan. Consequently the whole fourteen members that now sit in the Council as enlarged at the instance of the Papacy are as follows:

Belgium	Roman Catholic
Chile	Roman Catholic
China	Non-Christian
Columbia	Roman Catholic
Czechoslovakia	Protestant
France	Roman Catholic
Germany	Protestant
Great Britain	Protestant
Holland	Protestant
Italy	Roman Catholic
Japan	Non-Christian
Poland	Roman Catholic
Rumania	Protestant
Salvador	Roman Catholic

Twelve of the powers seated in the Council are nominally Christian and two, China and Japan, are non-Christian. Seven of the twelve are Roman Catholic. Only two of them, Great Britain and Germany, are Protestant in the strict sense of the word. Holland is usually ranked as a Protestant country, but much of the time its ministry is dominantly Roman Catholic. Czechoslovakia and Roumania are not Roman Catholic and are therefore classed as Protestant.

But the Council stands seven Roman Catholic, five Protestant and two non-Christian powers. In the struggles for control of the Council during the last year, it has been clearly demonstrated that the Nordic and Latin powers are vying for the mastery, and the Nordics are now overwhelmingly outnumbered and must depend on the Slavic and Mongolian powers to give them equal numerical strength with their Latin adversaries.—The Protestant.

—THR—

*"A laugh is just like sunshine,
It freshens all the day,
It tips the peak of life with light,
And drives the clouds away;
The soul grows glad that hears it
And feels its courage strong;
A laugh is just like sunshine
For cheering folks along."*

IMMORTALITY

By Auntie Wince

MY SUBJECT to-day will be Immortality. I know of no other subject that could more deeply interest the readers of our Restitution Herald.

Ever since we were old enough to know anything about the question of Life and Death, the thought that we might live for ever by taking the course of life marked out for us in God's Word has been a marvelous thing.

To come into life as little, helpless babes, and by observing and obeying the commands laid down in God's holy Word attain to a life that will go on forever, is truly a marvelous thought. And that, too, after this poor, mortal frame has been laid hold of by the devil; has been put out of commission and has been ground by the mill of time to a handful of ashes and "scattered to the winds of heaven". How can that senseless dust live again? much less live on for endless years?

Yet it can and will live. I believe it unquestionably. God tells no lies. We know for a certainty that the dead shall live beyond death if found worthy. We know this because Jesus has been dead, and is alive again to die nevermore. Death cannot reach Him. He has ascended into the heavens and is seated at the right hand of God, making intercession for us.

No one can shake my faith in the absolute truth of this. How can any one doubt? And yet millions of people do doubt.

I do not believe that the wicked will live for ever. God has made no promise of a perpetual life to them, but instead has flatly assured them that they shall be blotted out and be as though they had never been. What a sad fate to be like an insect, caught in the flame of a candle! or like a poor toad that some careless pedestrian has set his foot on! I want to live beyond death. I want to see the beauty of the age to come. And of all the ages beyond. No one has dreamed, no tongue can tell what wondrous beauty lies hidden beyond the curtains of the future.

We shall "mount up on wings like eagles; we shall run and not be weary; we shall walk and not faint"; see as we are seen and know as we are known.

There shall be no more death; neither sorrow, nor crying; neither any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

I want to be there! I want to be there! No suffering is too great, no loss too much, to endure if only we can gain the life that goes on through endless years. Do not faint, do not be discouraged, do not give up, dear soldiers of the cross.

What we endure is as nothing when compared to the conflicts and sufferings of our brothers in the days of the inquisition. Go read their story whenever you get discouraged, and work on, fight on, with renewed faith and courage until your race is run, or until Jesus comes.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 14, 1926

NUMBER 11

GROWING UP INTO CHRIST

By Samuel E. Haney

AND he gave indeed the apostles, and the prophets, and the evangelists, and shepherds and teachers, for the complete qualification of the saints for the work of service, in order to the building up of the body of the Anointed One; till we all attain to the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to a full grown man, to the Measure of the full Stature of the Anointed One."—Eph. 4:11-13, Emphatic Diaglott.

Evidently our great Teacher runs His school on a five-track system: apostles, prophets, evangelists, shepherds, and teachers; and intends every pupil to keep going, as Peter advises, i.e., "Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." And as Paul practiced, "Stretching forth towards the THINGS BEFORE, I press along the line, towards the PRIZE of the HIGH calling of God by Christ Jesus".—Phil. 3:13, 14, Emp. Dia.

How derelict Christians have become! almost to the point of ignoring the many admonitions to "perfect holiness in the fear of God", 2 Cor. 7:1. Probably one in a thousand has a desire to study God's Word.

While there are many well-known reasons for this shameful condition, it is the writer's belief that there is one paramount factor responsible for it all—the devil. This, I think, is accomplished by the evil one getting a measure of control of the mind of Christendom. And then by switching humans onto a single-track system it is an easy matter to control both their mental and physical activities, and to make their religion well nigh nugatory.

Evidence is not lacking to prove the devil's influence in all human affairs.

It would be interesting to know the havoc our enemy has wrought by keeping man constantly in pursuit of one idea (Mono-monos).

In time this mental derangement develops to a monomania state—lunacy on one thing or subject. The victim's traits being bigotry, self-centeredness, narrow mindedness, and an annulment of progress in knowledge: he has but one objective—a hobby or a theory. Such a person has a reason, or rather, a self-justifiable alibi for every word and act his styptic mind produces.

We wonder what percentage of so-called civilization would pass an impartial mental inspection. Doubtless the morons would outnumber the normals.

Mono insanity is both the most prevalent and mildest of all forms; and is revealed in all walks of life. Selfishness, finance, politics, and religion make fertile soil; the latter being the most pronounced. The religious mono thinker's mind is hermetically sealed—he doesn't know how to let go.

One way of trapping monkeys is to bore a hole into a cocoanut remove the milk, and therein place a small nut, strongly scented, that is the animal's favorite food. The monkey reaches in and gets hold of the nut; but finding he can't get it out, squeals. The watching trapper then climbs the tree and gets his prey. This poor creature, too, hasn't sense enough to let go. Probably this accounts, in part, for Mr. Evolutionist's advocacy of the monkey theory.

I once received a letter from a teacher in a sect from which I had withdrawn. The writer stated, "I am very sorry: had you but come to me for advice before taking the fatal step I could have saved you from slipping back into darkness; and from the loss of the hope of the precious promises". Superfluous to say, this was an unusually sad case! A padded cell may now be this poor man's abode.

A couple of luminous fables: An inmate of an asylum, sitting on the yard wall and seeing a man running wildly by, called out, "Where are you going?" "I'M going for a priest; my wife is dying!" The crazy (?) man yelled back, "Mister, you are on the wrong side of this wall. Better cut around the square to avoid Dr. Jones' office. Should he see you, he will run you in."

A farmer taking grist to the mills meets a man who asks, "What is that you have in the bag?" "Wheat in one end, and a stone in the other." "But why not dispense with the stone," asked the man, "and divide the grain, putting a half in each end?" "No sir, Mister, you can't fool me with your new fandangles. My father and grandfather always carried this stone to mill, and I shall too."

All things considered, the Lord's words are truly applicable now, i.e., "For the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of Light".

Were Christians to make the Bible their text-book of life, taking the plain, simple words of Christ, and His authorized teachers (apostles) as the source of truth, the amount of mental and physical torture they could escape would amaze them.

And were they to abandon, much as possible, worldly way, and entirely, self; and faithfully follow Christ, their lives and bodies would be much benefited, though the cost be the loss of worldly friendship, or even isolation. For these are the days of crucial testing that will keep the Lord's little ones constantly and skillfully on the defensive, barring the assaults of self, the world and the devil.

A most vitally pertinent question at this time: "For the great day of His wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"

But come what may, the faithful ones—one here and one there—shall never be alone; for "A mind wholly devoted to doing the will of Another is a mind at rest, not from word, but in work. To be yoked to an invisible Power; to live in comradeship with an invisible Companion, is the secret of perpetual youth".

In such a propitious atmosphere and spirit one can grow, "to a full grown man, to the Measure of the full Stature of the Anointed One."

THE FEW

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

*The many travel the well-paved way,
Content with the common lot,
But the few break out from the crowd about
And go where the throng will not.*

*The few stand to the hazard's risk
And bend to the dreary load.
The few will try for the hill tops high
And carve for themselves a road.*

*The many wait till the path be known
And the way shines smooth and clear,
But the few will turn with the will to learn
To fight with the thing called fear.*

*The many will never desert the old
Or fashion a pathway new,
For the man who leads to the greater deeds
Comes always out of the few.*

*The many will sit at their ease by night
Content with the joys they see,
But the few are thrilled by the urge to build
To the greater joys that be.*

—o—
"Many people say, 'Life is poor picking.' No wonder; they never planted anything."

* * * *

"When the bucket of love is let down into a human heart it seldom comes up empty."

THE JOYFUL HOMECOMING AND REUNION OF THE SAINTS

By Rufus A. Curtis

IN this transient life of ours, many are the happy reunions and home-gatherings of relatives and friends that have been separated from each other chiefly through marriage and migration. But joyful as are such reunions, there is always an admixture of sadness as the hour of separation draws near, and hands are clasped again in token of friendship, and "good-byes" are spoken, and oftentimes silent tears are wiped away from furrowed cheeks of aged parents or relatives and they are left again to their loneliness.

From such transient reunions, with their intermingling of joy and sorrow, expectancy and regret, I now turn my thoughts to a reunion that has all the essentials of joyful expectancy, without any of the disquieting effects of being again separated.

To banish our fears, Jesus has said, "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."—Luke 12:32. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Rev. 3:21. "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."—Luke 1:30-33. See also Amos 9:11-15. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory", and into its enduring honors his "jewels" will be invited, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."—Matt. 25:31, 34; Mal. 3:16-18; Daniel 2:44; 7:18, 27.

The first Adam's dominion was forfeited by disobedience, and regained by the obedience of the second man, the Lord from heaven, who will "reign over them (the restored house of Jacob, Ezek. 37:15-28) in Mount Zion from henceforth, even forever. And thou, O tower of the flock, the strong hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion, the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem."—Micah 4:8; Gen. 1:28; 1 Cor. 15:45-47; Luke 1:32, 33; Micah 4:1-7; Zech. 9:9, 10.

THE REUNION OR CHRIST'S FOLLOWERS "OUR GATHERING TOGETHER UNTO HIM"

"And I say unto you, that many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 8:11. "And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God."—Luke 13:29.

If our adorable Lord and Master could eat and drink with a few of His disciples after he rose from the dead, what a festive occasion may we anticipate when the glorious home-coming of His people takes place, at the com-

(Continued on page 175, column two)

GOD'S PURPOSE IN THE PRESENT AGE

By E. O. Stewart

SIMEON hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles (nations) to take out of them a people for his name. The prophets of old agreed to this also. After I have visited the nations and selected from them a people for My name, after I shall have completed the church as one new man, as joint, equal, heirs with Christ, I will then return to My people (Israel), and I will build again the tabernacle of David that has fallen down, and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up. What for? That the residue of men (blinded Israel) may seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles (nations) upon whom My name is called. (Acts 15:14, 16; Eph. 2:15; Rom. 8:17; 11:25, 26.)

ISRAEL'S PROMISES SURE

They are as sure as the ordinances of the sun, moon, and stars. Hear God's unconditional, oath-bound promise. If these ordinances depart from before Me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever. (Jer. 31:36.)

That they do cease, as a nation, for a time is plainly stated. But, that they shall be a nation again before Him, is also clearly taught. Hear it. For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king and without a prince and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim: afterward shall the children of Israel return and seek the Lord their God, and David their king; and shall fear the Lord and His goodness in the latter days. (Hosea 3:4, 5.) This must, undoubtedly, be the residue of men who are to seek after the Lord spoken of in Acts 15:16. Then the Gentiles shall see Israel's righteousness and all kings, her glory; then they shall be called by a new name which the Lord shall name. (Isaiah 62:2.)

Blindness in part is happened unto Israel until the fulness of the nations be come in. (Romans 11:25.) The fulness of the nations spoken of here is the fulness of iniquity. A similar statement was made to Abraham concerning the Amorites. But in the fourth generation they (Abraham's seed) shall come here again, for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full. (Gen. 15:16.) Then, when the nations shall have filled up their cup of iniquity, God will rise up to His prey, and gather the nations that He may pour upon them His indignation, even all of His wrath. Then He shall turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent. (Zeph. 3:8-10.)

This period of indignation is spoken of by Paul in Romans 2. Hear it. But after thy hardness and impenitent heart treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God: who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, He will render to them eternal life: but unto them who are contentious and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, He will render indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentiles; but glory, honour and peace to every one that doeth good, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentiles.

There is no respect of persons with God; for as many as have sinned without law, perish also without law, and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law. (Rom. 2:5-12.) The word perish in this verse is what generally bothers our minds. We are inclined to think that this is eternal, never-ending, in its effect.

Let us go back to the flood, and we can see a similar condition. Paul says, Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses even over them that had not sinned like Adam sinned. For until the Law (given by Moses) sin was in the world, but sin is not counted where there is no law. Innocent children perished in the flood, while beasts were taken into the ark and saved from the wrath. The world of mankind perished in the flood, but is that condition eternal in its effect? If it is not, then why make this future indignation eternal in its effect. Christ declares, that at the coming of Christ, conditions shall be as they were in the days of Noah. Note Paul's statement: Every soul of man, both Jews and Gentiles who do not obey the truth shall perish, in the indignation and wrath. (Rom. 2.) All that do not perish shall receive eternal life. Now, if the condition in which Paul says they shall perish is eternal in its effect, and if it includes all who do not obey the truth, who will be there to seek the Lord after He shall raise up the tabernacle of David? To whom shall the Lord turn the pure language, that they may call upon His name? (Zeph. 3:8-10.)

Paul says, Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for, but the election hath obtained it, and the rest (residue) were blinded. Then, tell me, who are the rest that were blinded? It is all except the election. This certainly is the part that is blinded. But how long is this blindness to continue? Paul says, Until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. (Rom. 11:25.) Then the Deliverer shall come out of Zion, and turn away ungodliness from Jacob; for this is My covenant unto them when I shall take away their sins. As touching the gospel, blinded Israel are enemies for the Gentiles' sakes, but, as touching the election, they (blinded Israel) are beloved for their fathers' (Abraham, Isaac, Jacob) sakes. And God will take them from among the nations and gather them out of all nations, and bring them to their own land, then sprinkle clean water upon them and they shall be clean from all their abominations. A new heart He will put within them. (Ezek. 36.)

This is age-to-come-work, after the church has been taken out. Then judgment will be executed in justice to the nations by Christ and the church. The decision of that judgment will be eternal.

—THR—

"He that hath no children doth bring them up well."

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—December 19—Revelation 9 Mem. V. 11

IT IS impossible to comment at all thoroughly on these chapters of Revelation in the very limited space that it is proper to take in The Herald for these notes. Suffice it to say that there is no definite reason for presuming that Christ revealed Himself to the apostle in symbolic language difficult of understanding. Similar events are recorded regarding the plagues of the Egyptians and other Old Testament affairs.

The opening of the seventh seal, chapter 8, introduces events which are at first classified under seven trumpets. Five of these receive no further classification; the remaining three, chapter 9, are further classified as woes. The bottomless pit, v. 1, is from the Greek word abussos, the meaning of which is unfathomed, boundless. It occurs in Luke 8:31 and Romans 10:7 by the word deep. It is also found in the Greek Old Testament at Genesis 7:11; 8:2; and elsewhere. The locusts of this trumpet woe and their work are carefully described. The sixth angel or second woe tribulation, is located about "the great river Euphrates". The expression, v. 15, "prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year", does not, from other translations, refer to a period of time equal to the total of these several numbers, but rather that the four angels loosed were prepared for a given hour of a given day of a given month of a given year. The moment for them to strike was specific. The result was terrible. The necessity was because of the unrepented works of verses 20 and 21. Such works of man are rapidly accumulating, indicative of a rapid approach to a condition commensurate with this of vv. 13-21.

Monday—December 20—Revelation 10 Mem. V. 8

The seventh trumpet and third woe have not yet sounded. A parenthesis is introduced to the apostle. Encouragement is therein offered to some of the faithful who are overcoming as in chapters 2 and 3.

Warning is mentioned in v. 7, "the mystery of God should be finished" "in the days (plural) of the voices of the seventh angel".

Tuesday—December 21—Revelation 11 Mem. V. 1

A new feature is here revealed. The temple of God is measured, also they who worship in the temple of God are measured. This word temple does not include the court or anything more than the Holy and Most Holy places. Two terms defining duration are here used. One is in months of the Gentiles; the other is in days of the two witnesses. Both terms are of same length of duration.

The two witnesses have power—power regarding heaven; power regarding earth. Their power evidences that they are approved by God. It aggravates God's opponents. When their work is fulfilled, v. 7, the beast of the bottomless pit kills them. The report at once flies to the ends of the earth. In less than three days, congratulations and gifts are rushed to Jerusalem. Such would be impossible in any day previous to now; and the gifts are hardly possible even now. This scene is evidently yet future. It is both distinctively Israelitish and Gentile in character. After three days and a half the spirit of life from God "will enter into them". There seems to be no reason why we should undertake to symbolize this plain narrative. We look for its literal fulfillment. These things may, perhaps, be included under the second woe.

"The seventh angel sounded", v. 15. This is the same as mentioned in 10:1. The sounding does not occur until 11:15. At this time "there were great voices in heaven, saying, the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever". This declaration is evidently the conclusion of the whole matter. The book then proceeds to narrate of those things that must take place during this seventh angelic trumpet, leading up to the conclusion.

The twenty-four elders rejoice, v. 17; the nations grow angry, v. 18; the temple of God in heaven opens; the ark is seen; lightnings, voices, earthquakes, and hail are witnessed on earth.

Wednesday—December 22—Revelation 12 Mem. V. 1

Whether twelve is another parenthesis or not may be questioned. It refers to a great wonder (margin, sign) in heaven. This is not literal. The record so states.

Space forbids much suggestion. The Scripture only, interprets these signs.

Sun, moon, stars, are used only in Joseph's dream and are interpreted as meaning father, mother, and sons of Israel. Evidently this indicates race of woman. Michael is Israel's prince, Dan. 10:13, 21; 12:1. The dragon (whosoever) is overcome by the blood of the Lamb, v. 11. The woman flies to the wilderness for "time, times, and half a time", a period equivalent to 1260 days, and 42 months, chapter 11.

We suggest that the one hundred forty-four thousand be considered regarding the man child, after the birth of which the nation is scattered into the earth, Zech. 14, for its last dispersion.

Thursday—December 23—Revelation 13 Mem. V. 10

The beast of seven heads and ten horns has identical characteristics, v. 2, of the four beasts of Daniel 7, the same number of heads with the same beastly traits, the same number of horns. The beast has the same ending. He exercises authority over the same people, he has similar power; in many ways the description accords with that of a federation of Daniel's four beasts. This beast of Revelation 12 continues in authority till its destruction, 19:20. This destruction is at the same time as the destruction of Daniel's last beast. "Power was given unto him", evidently from God, just as He sustained Pharaoh for a period. His rule, v. 7, was to overcome saints and to exercise dominion over all.

The second beast, v. 11, has a different appearance but strengthens the power and authority of the more ferocious one. Like the two witnesses, chapter 11, he performs wonderful signs and works. (The magicians did likewise). He literally deceives, v. 14, "them that dwell on the earth". Paul says, 2 Thess. 2:9-13, it is "because they have not the love of the truth", "for this cause God shall send them strong delusion".

The witnesses, chapter 11, had witnessed the truth; the woman, chapter 12, is witnessing the truth; the one hundred forty-four thousand, chapter 12, witnessed to the truth; the overcomers, chapters 2 and 3, witnessed to the truth; the lamb-like beast, chapter 13, like the magicians of Egypt, brings similar marvelous works. They rush to this deceit; they accept the mark in their foreheads or hands. It is man's number, 6, extended into three columns, 666. Destruction follows.

Friday—December 24—Revelation 14 Mem. V. 15

The one hundred forty-four thousand appear on Mount Zion with the Lamb. Conditions are developing rapidly. God's faithful and the followers of the beast and of antichrist are rapidly grouping into huge opposing forces. God's people are constantly evidencing God's supreme support. An angel appears, v. 8, announcing the fall of Babylon. Babylon is specified as that great city, of whose wine and wrath the nations were drunken. The sickles are introduced, v. 14, and the harvest of the grain, v. 16, and of the vintage, v. 18, were gathered. Compare, point by point, with Joel 3:9-17. It is near the close of the day of trouble preceding the arrival of the Lord for His throne.

Saturday—December 25—Revelation 15 Mem. V. 3

We now discover that under this seventh angelic trumpet there are seven angels having the seven last plagues. "In them is sealed up the wrath of God". When these seven angels shall have finished, God's judgment of wrath will have ended. These plagues are presented to the angels, v. 7, by one of the four living ones in, "seven golden vials, full of the wrath of God".

These angels begin, chapter 16, their work and continue till apparently all the inhabitants of earth are melted by the terrible accumulation of wrath from God, necessary to soften the stony hearts of rebelliousness.

The tomb of Tut Ankh Amen, as well as those of other Egyptian royalties, is cut into a solid ledge of limestone. The pyramids and the Sphinx also are made of this stone.—S. E. Haney.

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

By Grover Gordon

A PARABLE is a comparison or likeness. Jesus taught in all the parables something concerning either himself, or the kingdom of God. So we must find a lesson in this concerning one or the other.

He was talking to the Pharisees, the strictest sect of the Jewish religion. (Acts 26:5.)

The rich man can be identified by the way he is clothed. Esther 8:15 and Exodus 28:1-6 show that the Jewish priests dressed in purple and fine linen.

Proverbs 10:22—The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich. Romans 9:4 shows that the covenants giving of the law and service of God and the promises were given to the Israelites. They were rich in the Lord's blessing and clothed in purple and fine linen.

Compare Lazarus with the life of Christ. Matthew 8:20 shows Jesus was in the same state as the beggar—"The Son of man hath not where to lay his head". St. John 1:11, "He came unto his own, and his own received him not." Thus He lay at the rich man's gate. Isa. 53, He was bruised for our iniquities, and by his stripes we are healed. Surely he was full of sores. In Matthew 5:17 Jesus says He came to fulfill the law and prophets. In John 5:39 He says, Search the scripture, for they testify of me.

These were the crumbs the Israelites were letting fall from their table. Jesus, in fulfilling the prophecies, was feeding on those crumbs.

Mark 7:25-29. Here was the Gentile woman asking for blessing. Jesus said, It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it unto the dogs, referring to the Gentiles as dogs. The Gentiles have accepted the sacrifice which Christ made (licked His sores) while the Jews rejected it.

In Luke 16:22 we find that both the rich man and the beggar died. Jesus died on the cross before the Jewish nation was overturned by the Romans, and their temple destroyed as Jesus had foretold. Gal. 3:16 and Heb. 2:16 show that Jesus took on Himself the seed of Abraham (was carried to Abraham's bosom).

Ever since the Jewish nation was overturned by the Romans, they have been persecuted and tormented, crying for the Messiah, whom they believe is coming from Abraham. Up to this time no one but the Jew could call Abraham, father. Likewise, Abraham calls the rich man, son.

During the life of the Jewish nation they received good things, while Jesus was persecuted. Now we see Jesus Crowned with glory and honor, Heb. 2:9, while the Jew is persecuted.

Ephesians 2:13-15 shows that Jesus has bridged the gulf that was fixed, but the Jew or rich man will not accept it.

Another evidence that the rich man represents the chief priests of Israel, is found in Luke 16:27, 28. Evi-

(Continued on page 168)

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

NOTICE

The Sunday School Leaflet edited by Sr. Alta King will be discontinued at the close of this year. Five or six subscribers to this leaflet have not yet replaced it with the new quarterly. If these schools will want the quarterly they should notify us at once, of the number they will need.

* * * *

CHRISTMAS GIFT

As we have done in other years, we will make a special subscription rate of $1.50, if you want to send The Herald as a gift.

If you want to send as many as five subscriptions, the price will be $7.00.

* * * *

SAMPLE COPY WEEK

We are going to designate the first week in January as Sample Copy Week. If each one who is interested in some friend, wishes them to see a copy of The Herald, as an invitation to subscribe, and will send in the name with address, we will mail a sample of the issue of January 4. We must have the names in sufficient time to know how many extra copies to print. We will insert a statement somewhat as follows: This sample paper is being sent to you by a friend who is anxious that you become a subscriber.

* * * *

BIBLE CATALOGS

The Herald has been carrying the announcement of our Bible Catalog. We were depending upon the Bible house to send us electrotypes of Bibles and type sizes, etc., to make up this catalog. They have been so slow in getting these to us that we will be unable to get the catalog out on time. We are very much disappointed, as we know also that those who have made request for it, must be, but it will be impossible to furnish a catalog this year. However, if any know the kind of a Bible you wish, and can get us the description and about what price you would want to pay, we will do our best to make a satisfactory selection.

* * * *

Hope is a desire coupled with expectancy. Last week we hoped that the last day of the Subscription Campaign would bring in a goodly number of new subscriptions. Our mail of the 8th and 9th, bearing postmark of December 7, brought in the largest list of new subscriptions yet. Armistice Day, November 11, was our next best day. Thanks!

A BODY UNITED

It is only with a united effort that any organization can move forward, and especially is it true of a church.

The Apostle Paul uses the human body to illustrate the church, the body of Christ.

There must be harmony, unity of effort, a singleness of purpose, and that, to exalt our Lord and Master, or it cannot succeed. But we need have no alarm about the unity of the body of Christ; for there can "be no schism in the body." "All things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." God sets every member in the body as it pleases Him and He will make no mistake.

Let every one walk worthy of the vocation wherewith he is called, with all lowliness and meekness, etc., Eph. 4:1. It is when we exalt self that we get into difficulty; for he that exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted. Therefore exalt Him.

* * * *

STRENGTHEN YOUR CHURCH

THAT TIME of year is approaching when many of the churches hold their annual meetings and arrange their work for the year.

Few seem to realize the untold advantages of the local church. It is not so much an association for the free discussion of special and peculiar tenets of religious doctrine as it is an organization for the assistance of one another in Christian strength and growth. The assistance will undoubtedly utilize all of the general and special tenets of religious doctrines that can be discovered in the Bible, but they will be used as aids to an ever larger end, and will not be used as representing the end to be achieved. Christianity, living daily in and with Christ, is the one, ever-present value of the church.

For this purpose every community of believers where as many as two or three can gather together, should, in justice to themselves as in honor to God, arrange for regular and frequent assembly for mutual edification according to the best scriptural understanding known. This association should not only be an association for assembled service, but one for constant, daily cooperation in Christian growth, cooperation in daily experience and in struggle as well as in study and prayer. For such a banding together in Christ, God, than whom none better knows how, and regarding whose instruction, no human wisdom can improve, has specially and authoritatively instructed His ever called-out one.

(Continued on page 174, column two)

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

This space reserved for Berean items and articles which Bro. Siple promises will be published as they are sent in.

GODLINESS

By Millin Stevens

DEAR FOLKS, the first thing that enters my mind is, "What is godliness?" It is answered by taking God as an example.

In the beginning God made heaven and earth, and everything was good. Now, does not this show love, pride, sincerity, purity, and a faith that something great and noble would be accomplished?

God was not selfish, but made man and gave all this to him. Was not God showing every thing that could be called noble and good in this act? and did not man have everything that could be desired to make him happy? He had nearly everything: all, but a companion to share his joys. God saw his want, and made woman by taking a rib from Adam. Then man lived happily and peacefully on earth, leading a godly life, trusting wholly in the guidance of God, and God found delight in him.

Eve was in the Garden and Satan persuaded her to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, and immediately she knew good and evil. She saw that it would be impossible to live, with Adam on one plane and with her on another, so she gave the fruit to Adam and they were both sinners, having disobeyed God.

Here was the first time that God's great work had a mar in it. The result was that Adam and Eve were cast out of the Garden of Eden, and, quoting from God's word, we read, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken". Thus, man must die once for the sin committed in the garden.

Man has come down through the ages reproducing and dying; some serving God and others the lust of the flesh, or serving the devil, who offers only sorrow, death, and disgrace to his followers.

The world was corrupted with sin, but now we have a great sacrifice, the greatest sacrifice, in my opinion, that could be made. God gave His only Son for this sin-cursed world. Quoting from God's word, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." This Son, Jesus by name, born of the virgin Mary, came to earth for the purpose of redeeming the world from sin. As a boy he worked and helped Joseph as a carpenter, living as other boys do until he was twelve years old. His folks then took Him to Jerusalem with them to attend the passover. While there, He conversed with the wise men, surprising them with His questions and answers. Here, at the age of twelve, He showed the knowledge of old wise men.

Year by year, he grew in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man until, at the age of thirty, His great life-work began.

He was baptized by John and performed many wonderful miracles, healing the sick, raising the dead, comforting the people, preaching the glad tidings of salvation, and the hope of the life to come.

Then came the time for the supreme sacrifice to be made. Jesus could save others, Himself he could not save. But by being nailed to the cross and suffering untold agony, hanging between heaven and earth on two rude sticks with nails driven through His flesh, slowly bleeding His life away. His love was so great that, in the time of his greatest suffering, He asked God to forgive them, for they knew not what they did. Could anything be more noble or better? No. There could not be.

Jesus, all through His life, trusted wholly in God's guidance and did no wrong. He was perfect, godly in all His modes of life, and is a perfect example of godliness.

He rose the third day and became our Savior, that we through faith and baptism for the remission of our sins, and faithful obedience to God's laws, might obtain life eternal.

True, we must die for the sin Adam committed, but we, in death, are freed from that sin, and our place in the next age will depend on our mode of living in this life.

The joys of this life are greatest in the service of the Lord. By this I mean that a person who is serving the Lord will get more joy, happiness, and real satisfaction out of this life than the person who thinks only of worldly things; and he will get everlasting life, the greatest blessing of all. Then we will live with Jesus and never know sorrow, death, or trouble of any kind.

Is not that worth striving for? Give it a trial, and live a godly life, serving the Lord, your Savior and mine, and by so doing be ready to help the Master in His greater redemptive work. It will not only secure happiness in self, but the influence will radiate as a hot fire, and will draw others to Christ.

—o—

"It is the overcomers, those who are meet for the Master's use, those who are dead to the world and alive to Christ, that will constitute that favored class whom the Lord, when He cometh, shall gather together as His firstfruits."—Lyman Booth.

—o—

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

(Continued from page 165)

dence that the Levites are the priests is found by going back to his father's house. Levi had five brethren Gen. 29:34; 30: 19-20.

Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.

In the last two verses of this parable, Jesus foretells the chief priests what they will say and do.

Matthew 27:41-43. If he be the king of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him. (But if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent. Luke 16:30.)

Matthew 27:62-66. The sepulchre was made sure.

Matt. 28:1-15. The chief priests paid money to the soldiers to say His disciples came by night and stole Him away. They would not believe though one rose from the dead.

With Our Sunday Schools

Lesson Prepared by Alta King

THE SAVIOR'S BIRTH

LESSON 13 DECEMBER 26, 1926
 LESSON TEXT LUKE 2:8-20
 RESPONSIVE READING ISAIAH 11
 LUKE 2:8-20

GOLDEN TEXT: Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people.—Luke 2:10.

FOR STUDY

Our studies have centered around the development of the nation of Israel. In this week's lesson we consider the great central purpose for which the flesh nation of Israel was developed, the fulfillment of which purpose makes possible the spiritual development of Israel, which development shall bring about the salvation of the world. The central and climax purpose of flesh Israel was the birth of Christ through the promised seed. Up to this point in her history, God has dealt with Israel through law, its condemnation and fear, through spectacular signs and wonders, and through forms and ceremonies. We have seen how signally these influences failed to develop the people of Israel into a spiritual people, a people in harmony with the God of the universe. At best, they produced only short periods of submission and obedience. But fear, and wonder based on the spectacular, and worship through forms and ceremonies being transient the submission and obedience they produced were transient, and the spirituality of Israel, up to the birth of her Christ, was nil, except for the few who caught the vision of the Christ as He was pictured in the law, the forms, and the ceremonies of their worship. Through this vision these few entered into spiritual communion with God and His plans and purposes in the Christ. And even these did not reach full spiritual development. See 1 Peter 1:10-11; Eph. 3:4-6. The tangible, living presence of the Christ Himself was necessary to such development. It is this great manifestation of God's favor to Israel and to mankind that is considered in this week's lesson—favor through which, only, He can accomplish His great purpose of bringing man into His image and His likeness. Since the birth of Christ, true and full spirituality, communion with God's mind and spirit, has been possible and has been developing in the minds of men. Even through the Christ the process is slow, as each may know by examining his own mind and life, and by this fact we are made to realize something of the great distance between the Creator and the highest of His created works.

Unless we can realize what it means to be taken up and out of the works of the flesh, listed by Paul in Gal. 5:19-21, into the fruits of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, temperance—we cannot realize the favor and the gift God gave us in the birth of Jesus.

I. The Birth Predicted. Luke 1:26-37. By whom and to whom was it predicted? Was Mary to receive a favor from God's hands? Did Mary interpret the predicted birth to be different from the usual births? V. 34. Did the angel tell her that she was mistaken, or did he support her interpretation? V. 35. What was to be the result of the overshadowing of the Holy Spirit? Last part of v. 35. What did the angel tell Mary in order that she might have some basis of belief in what had never before taken place? Is the fulfillment of prediction of things that are outside the realm of man's experience any more beyond human understanding than are the things that have taken place? Is ignorance of "how" a thing is done, ignorance of the laws by which it is done, a reasonable basis for denying the possibility of doing it? If so, would it not be necessary to deny birth and living, and thinking, and almost everything in life? Why deny the simple miracles of the Bible when greater miracles are being enacted every day before our very eyes?

II. The Birth Announced. Luke 2:1-20. Through what circumstances was the birth of Jesus accomplished in humble environments? VV. 1-7. Since the first step in spiritual development is humility before God, it is fitting that he who was to be the means of spiritual development should be born in humble circumstances.

To whom was the birth first announced? VV. 9-11. Why to shepherds? Was the announcement intended for them alone? What were the good tidings of great joy? Was the babe the Christ, the Lord? Why? Luke 1:35.

Were the angels sure of the babe's Christship and Lordship, or did they postpone praise until after Jesus had been tried and perfected? What was the basis of praise to God? V. 14. Did the shepherds keep the announcement to themselves? Did those who heard comprehend fully what they heard? Did even Mary? Do we, even to-day? How, only, may we know this favor and this gift?

FOR CLASS

With what have the quarter's lessons been dealing? What is the relationship between this week's lesson and the quarter's lessons.

Discuss the birth of Jesus as God's favor to Israel and to man.

Read and discuss the prediction of Jesus' birth, and the story of His birth?

* * *

THE ORIGINAL CHRISTMAS

"Jesus did not begin to be Savior when the shadow of the cross fell upon Him at the end. The Savior was born at Bethlehem. The hands of the Bethlehem Babe were infant hands, but they were the hands that would afterward be nailed to Calvary's cross. He was born not to make a holiday, but to save the world, and to save it at any cost. Our shallow, superficial, good-natured Christmas festivity is far from what Bethlehem meant. Mary knew in part, the Wise men knew in part, the angels knew in part. The heart of God knew altogether. Perhaps one of our highest services in modern life would be to recover Christmas for Jesus Christ and His real purpose in the world."—William F. McDowell, in "Tarbell's Teachers' Guide".

Sunday School Quarterly

The Truth Seekers' Series of Sunday School Quarterlies offers both textual and topical helps on the study of the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons. It is a book of 64 pages with colored cover, well printed on good paper. Its introductory pages offer notes on the subject of the quarter, as a whole. The Golden Texts and Lessons are printed in large, clear type. The Setting of the Lesson is given as to time, locality, and general circumstances. Besides a careful study of the text and an additional study of the lesson Topic, it has a treatise of the Golden Text, Topics for Study, Questions, etc. Supplementary studies and Bible Dictionary of terms are on the closing pages.

Prices, Cash with Order
 Per quarter, 8 cents.
 Per year 32 cents.

Address all correspondence and remittances to—

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 Oregon, Illinois

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. and Sr. J. H. Willey, who are spending the winter with his son at Seattle, Washington, were privileged to attend the North-west Quarterly Conference at Wenatchee, December 3-5, and meet many old friends, as well as to enjoy the good sermons from the pulpit.

* * *

INDIANA

Another Union Berean Class has been organized at Burr Oak, for the smaller children. It has five members. A great deal of interest is being shown, especially in song and prayer. Miss Myrle Hatten is their teacher; Donald Hatten, Secretary; and Gerald Osborn, Ass't Secretary.

Louise Marilyn arrived at the Home of Bro. and Sr. D. Hatten of Culver, Indiana, on December 7, 1926. All are satisfied, so she is expected to call it home.

* * *

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

"Our Sunday School has increased steadily very Sunday since we started. On December 5 we had 121 in attendance, including several grown-ups. Revival meetings are being planned to be held after holidays.

TRUTH SEEKERS' SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLIES

Most of the orders for Quarterlies contained no definite name and address to whom to mail order. Some were indefinite as to number wanted. To avoid errors, will all please confirm their orders, stating exact number wanted per quarter, and the name and address to whom same are to be mailed—both plainly written. It will save bookkeeping if remittance accompanies order.

Address all communications to National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

It was expected to have these quarterlies ready for inspection by December 5, but unforeseen hinderances have made this impossible. The work is far enough advanced to assure quarterlies for use the first Sunday of 1927.

* * *

Sr. Woodward and Bro. J. Arthur Johnson filled the pulpit at Oregon again on Sunday, December 12. Bro. Austin is regaining his health and it is hoped he will be able to occupy his place by another week.

* * *

PRIZE WINNERS

We are glad to announce the names of the prize winners in the Bible essay contest.

- Thornton Ritenour (Va.) 7 years
- Louise Walden (Miss.) 11 years
- Cora Davidson (Okla.) 12 years
- Stella Cochran (Ind.) 14 years

We hope that the prizes will reach you in time for Christmas.

* * *

Bro. Paul C. Johnson spoke at the Adeline church morning and evening, December 12.

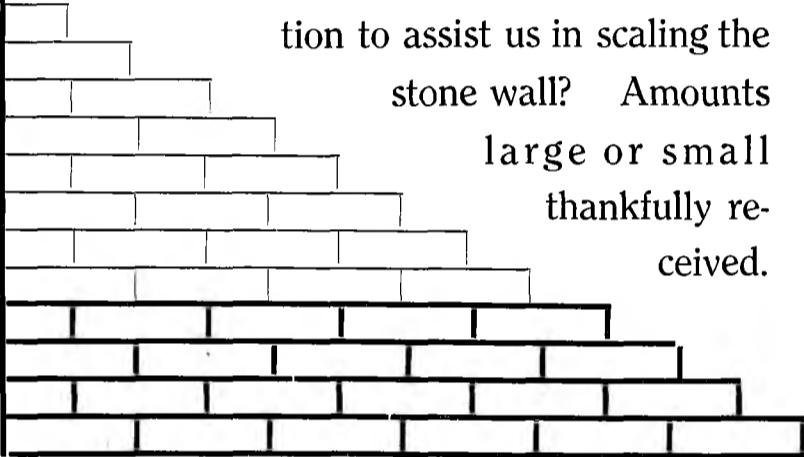

* * *

IOWA REPORT

The monthly appointments have been, for the most part, regularly kept since conference. The first Sunday in December was given to Waterloo instead of Gladbrook. We had a very enjoyable meeting in the forenoon at the Starbuck home in Cedar Falls. A number from Clarksville, Gladbrook and the local city were present. We observed the Communion Service at this meeting for the sake of those baptized at the close of conference, after communion service at that time. At night we met in union service with the Christadelphians at their building, and had a good attendance of both congregations. The sermon was on "Unity", pointing the way to dissolving differences between denominations, and avoiding the evils of schism. We

The steps are now one-half built. This has already been of great help in easing up the financial situation. Now for the second $1000.00.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $_____, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name _____

Street _____

Post Office _____

State _____ Date _____

missed Bro. and Sr. Ellis from the evening meeting, as he was taken ill in the afternoon.

The fourth Sunday in each month will be given to Waterloo during the winter months till we begin again at Hickory Grove the fourth Sunday in April. They are so scattered there that they do not try to meet during the winter. Our meetings there are usually well attended, by both members and others. The last time we missed Sr. Fish, as she was kept home by an attack of lumbago. Absence from services is almost an unknown thing with her. The families of Chester Dickinson and Tom Cummings were preparing to start overland for California, to be with the family of Earl Bowen for the winter.

The fifth Sunday in October we spent at the meeting near Clinton, Missouri. Weather and roads were excellent, but the meeting was not so regularly attended as last year. Most of them are already church members, and while they are friendly and commended the services, their curiosity seemed to be about satisfied, and we did not seem able to hold their interest.

We arrived home Saturday morning and left at night for the meeting at Waterloo, and from there went on to Kewanee, Illinois, for a day, and from there on through Chicago, en route for Indiana, stopping one day on the way at Rensselaer for one sermon. At Kewanee and Rensselaer, both, we had very enjoyable times in the truth, and visiting with old friends who accorded such an enthusiastic welcome. At both places I found some new members, not known to me before, and a good interest in spiritual things. Arriving in Frankfort November 10, I soon was able to get out to my father-in-law's some at Boyleston, and began the meeting at the church north of Hillisburg that night, continuing over two weeks, and Bro. Anderson continuing another week. This was the first opportunity in eleven years since we left there that I had the privilege to visit relatives and old friends leisurely; for every recent visit was a hurried call for funerals of other brief visit, and it was the most enjoyable time I had had in many a day, to be able to visit them leisurely. We had a very good meeting, with some baptisms. My wife's parents returned with me to spend the winter, as they are at an age when they need the care of someone, and we considered this the easiest way to do it. He was baptized a few day after we arrived home. This completes the family in the church.

Bro. Jones filled the appointment at Stanhope in my absence, but I have not learned who filled the place at Koszta.

We have resumed our study of Romans at Gladbrook since my return.

Ray Allard is to have a sale soon, and will move to town in the Spring.

Preaching at Gladbrook on first Sundays, and Bible study Tuesday nights.

J. W. Williams.

* * *

We are glad to announce that The Herald Print Shop has just acquired a new Boston Wire Stitcher which will take the place of the old stapler. This will help to cut down the time and expense in mailing out The Herald, as well as on many other jobs.

* * *

Mrs. F. L. Austin

Many of our readers will remember Sr. Austin as she appeared in her days of health and vigor, and will appreciate this likeness of her, taken several years ago.

* * *

TRACTS AND BOOKS

10c per Doz.; 60 c per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Keep an assortment on hand. Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

ANNUIITY BONDS FOR MAKING GIFTS. For information regarding the advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION OREGON - ILLINOIS

BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ: I am offering my father's (W. H. Wilson) books for sale for Christmas gifts.

Christmas is coming soon, at which time we celebrate the birth of our Savior. He is a gift to us, that through Him we may have life and a position in His kingdom. We are expecting Him to come soon, so let us work, for there is much seed to be sown.

Let us spread the literature that will sow the seed and bring forth fruit to life everlasting. The list of books is as follows:

- Pine Woods Bible Class, 90c ea; 6 for $5.00
Students Text Book, 45c ea; or 5 for $2.00
Revelation Made Easy to Understand 25c each
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times 25c each
Can You Believe, by H. V. Reed 20c per doz., or 75c for 50

This offer will last till January 1, 1927. All orders will be promptly filled. Thanking you in advance.

Your sister in the one hope of His coming,

Jessie M. Wilson.

625 Long Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CHILDREN'S PAGE

THE WISE MEN OF THE EAST

By Daisy Nokes

ONE day the people of Jerusalem saw a strange sight. Some wise men from the East rode through their streets upon camels, with camel clothes of green and yellow hung with fringes of tassels and white shells.

"Where is the young child that is born to be King? We have seen a new star in the sky and have followed all this long way here. We are seeking the King", said they to the people.

"We do not know. The only king we know is King Herod who lives in a white palace on the hill," the people replied.

The wise men shook their heads and rode on asking others until all the people wondered.

Perhaps the people gathered around looking at their pretty clothing, their cloaks of blue brodered with gold and their turbans of red and brown, and at the bundles tied to their saddles.

Always the wise men said, "We are seeking the child king."

Some of the people were so unkind as to laugh and make fun, but this did not make the wise men give up their search.

Somebody told the old king, Herod, that some strange wise men had come to worship the little baby who was to be King of the Jews.

Herod called the wise men into his palace and talked with them.

"You go to the town of Bethlehem and there hunt carefully until you find the young child King. When you come back be sure to stop and tell me where you found Him so that I may go and worship Him also," said the king.

Now, Herod was such a bad, cruel man that he really did not mean what he said. He would do the young child harm, if he found where He was.

When the wise men started for Bethlehem God sent the star again ahead of them to guide the way.

How glad they were that God was leading them! They had spent a great deal of time and money, and had been in great danger from robbers and wild beasts.

All the stars shone very brightly, but this one was a miracle star and brighter than the others and it came and stood still, right over the place where the child lay.

Mary was astonished when she saw the wise men on camels. She invited them to come in, but they would not come until they had opened the bundles tied to their saddles and taken out the presents they had brought from their home country. Mary and Joseph were very poor and must have felt quite rich on account of these gifts.

The wise men knelt and thanked God for his kindness in bringing them to see this wonderful baby. "King Herod is coming, too," they said.

Mary felt worried when she heard this for she had heard of the wickedness of the king. That night the wise men had a dream. God told them not to tell Herod but to go home another way. They came and told Mary and Joseph their dream and did as God had told them.

They came to seek Jesus; and they found Him.

"HE HELD HIS PEACE"

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

I SAID, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue: I will keep my mouth with a bridle, while the wicked is before me. I was dumb with silence. I held my peace, even from good; and my sorrow was stirred. My heart was hot within me; while I was musing the fire burned: then spake I with my tongue.—Psalm 39:1-3.

I just wonder how many of us ever had a like experience and came out of it as victorious as David did. If you ever had such an experience, you will appreciate his self control. He said in Psalm 38:18 that "Mine enemies are lively, and they are strong; and they that hate me wrongfully are multiplied." In v. 12 he said, "They lay snares for me: . . . and . . . speak mischievous things, and imagine deceits". David certainly had enough to make the fire burn while he mused about the things his enemies were trying to do against him. But he says, though his heart was hot within him, he held his peace, he was as a dumb man. David seemed to know pretty well what would happen if he retaliated just then. He perhaps would say something that would be sinful, and which he would be sorry for, so he manifested wonderful self-control and in this is a pretty good lesson to take home to self.

It is human nature to speak while the fire is burning. Did you ever do this? If you have got beyond that, you are getting a good hold on self; for he that can bridle his tongue, is better than he that taketh a city. I did not think we put much stress on that part of the scriptures years ago, and sometimes when we heard our faith ridiculed, or someone, even of our own number, bring forth new thought, we would call him to time right then. Often there were others present, strangers who listened to this disagreement and left in disgust. Then, too, it has happened this way in attending meetings of another denomination, to openly criticise the speaker. What was ever gained? How many people were ever taught anything by this mode of procedure? I venture, not one. But if we allow ourselves to indulge in criticism, they think us to be egotistical, and all the influence we might have had is destroyed because we did not bridle our tongue.

The Psalmist says, I held my peace, even from good. He knew he was right and they were wrong, but right there was no place to speak. So while the fire burned, he held his peace. Afterward he spoke all that was in his heart.

Let us learn a lesson from the Psalmist.

o

THE MYSTERIES OF ANCIENT DAYS

By George Johnston

No. 2

THERE are some important facts in connection with the Old Testament which seem to be completely overlooked by the majority of people. In the first place, it was written exclusively by the Hebrew scribes, primarily for the benefit of Hebrew readers, and it was not until the first century of the Christian era that its pages were thrown open to the world at large. Secondly, though it contains a great deal of history, it is solely the history of the Hebrew nation, and other nations are merely referred to in so far as the actions of those nations affected the Hebrews. Thirdly, all the nations referred to in it were of the white race. There is no mention whatever of any colored nation, even in Genesis 10, wherein we are supplied with a summary of the tribes and nations by which "the earth" was peopled after the flood. Fourthly, since its history deals only with the Hebrew nation, it follows that its geography relates only to that part of the world in which that nation resided—Western Asia.

In the cuneiform writings discovered during the past century, there are many allusions to a place called Eridu, but whether that name originally denoted a country or a city was for some time uncertain. The question was, however solved by Professor A. W. Sayce, the noted archæologist, and in a footnote in "The Higher Critics and the Monuments", he states:

"The position of Eridu caused it to play an important part in the primeval history of Babylonia. Much of the oldest literature of the country was connected with it, as well as the beliefs and ordinances of religion, and the traditions of primitive culture. It was, in fact, to Eridu that the Sumerian Culture-god, Ea, belonged, together with his son, Merodach, the Sun-god, and Babylon itself, the chosen city of Merodach, would seem to have been a colony of the old maritime state."

Here, it will be observed, Professor Sayce concluded that Eridu was the name of a state; and later investigations have shown that he was correct, for Eridu was, during many centuries, the name of all that region known to us as Western Asia.

The language of the Babylonians was of the same family as that spoken by the Hebrews—Semitic. Originally, however, the speech of both nations was identical. Owing, possibly, to the humidity of the climate in which they lived, the Babylonians lost the power to properly pronounce any word in which certain sounds occurred, a fact which is at the root of a great many misconceptions concerning the events of ancient times. The chief sounds which the Babylonians could not produce were those represented in the Hebrew alphabet by He (H), Cheth (CH), Theth (TH), and Tzaddi (TZ). These sounds abound in the Hebrew language, but are entirely absent from the writings of the Babylonians. It follows, therefore, that by means of a few simple rules it is possible to transform almost every Babylonian word into a Hebrew one, and to ascertain its true meaning, and how it was used. The sound indicated by Tzaddi when it occurred at the beginning of a Hebrew word was dropped altogether by the Babylonians; when it formed the final sound they transformed it into "du".

Throughout the Bible the word "earth" occurs over and over again, and always as a common noun. "Earth", however, is merely the English form of Eretz, and Eretz and Eridu are identical terms in different languages. It follows, therefore, that in hundreds of instances in the Old Testament when the sacred writers were thinking and writing only of Eretz, or Western Asia, their words are applied by us to the whole mundane world. Is it any wonder, under these circumstances, that the Bible and true science appear to be in conflict? The latter is dealing with the whole world; the former with a clearly defined and comparatively small region. Had the proper noun, Eretz appeared in the Bible in every passage where it was so used by the Hebrew scribes, there would never have been the slightest doubt concerning the antiquity and relationship of the various races of mankind, and the extent of territory submerged by the flood.

But, while the word Eretz was the original name of Western Asia, it was also used as a common noun, meaning simply and solely land. This is not the only instance, however in which a single term was used both as a proper and as a common name. There is, for instance, the word adam, which appears as man in numerous passages of scripture. It was also applied to the first white male as a proper name; and as Adam he has been known throughout all the age. Similarly, the term eretz which originally denoted the ground or soil on which Adam and his descendants trod, became the name of the particular region in which they lived.

It would seem as though the word earth was destined to test the faith of humanity in the Revealed Word, and there may be more truth in this supposition than some might be disposed to admit. However that may be, the fact remains that while the word earth was, down to a few centuries ago, understood and used solely in the same sense as land, it is used by us to-day as one and the same as world. Thus confusion has been added to confusion, and misconception to misconception, until, at the present time it would be difficult to find two persons whose conclusions concerning ancient events are in agreement.

That human beings existed long before the creation of Adam is plainly shown in various passages of scripture, and in some of these the true sense of the sacred writer's words has not been obscured by the appearance of the word earth. It is the common belief that after the murder of Abel by Cain only three human beings remained on this globe—Adam, Eve, and Cain. But in the story of Cain, Genesis 4, it is clearly stated that "Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east side of Eden." Nod and nomad are identical in meaning; and, therefore nomadic tribes or nations must have dwelt, and did dwell, in close proximity to Western Asia. It was by these people that Adam and his immediate descendents were instructed in the rudiments of knowledge, and that the earliest cuneiform writings were inscribed.

SIN, THE SINNER AND THE SAVIOR

By R. H. Judd

"Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities."—Psalm 51:9.

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon."—Isa. 55:7.

PEOPLE may talk about the Bible as they please. Some may even reject the truth, that it is God's inspired Word, but there still remain two facts from which no man can escape. What are the facts?

The first one is that SIN abounds. What sin is we do not need to explain. We know it as a fact of experience in our lives, and the lives of others. Its blighting influence is so well recognized that it requires no definition, nor can any other work make its meaning better understood. King David cried, "Hide Thy face from my sins . . .", and there is not one of us but knows full well what David meant, and to whom he made that heart-searching appeal. Who is there who reads this page who would not, with the writer, echo the words of David, "blot out all mine iniquities"?

The second fact is that the Bible and the Bible alone recognizes this awful fact and has a remedy for it. No other book has a remedy for sin. Nor is it the sins of a nation with which it is primarily concerned. It is the sins of the individual.

Let us note again the text quoted above. "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." And what is the remedy that the Bible offers to the sin-burdened individual? Surely it is forgiveness, and none but GOD can forgive: none but GOD can "abundantly pardon".

"Who forgiveth ALL thine iniquities". Not one only, but ALL—not others, but mine. And looking back on my life I ask, "How can GOD forgive such sins as mine?" Once more the answer comes in the words of that wonderful Book, "The Lord hath laid upon Him the iniquity of us all."

Then what must I do to be saved?

"If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved: for with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Rom. 10:9-10.

Saved from what? The wages of SIN is DEATH". —Rom. 6:23.

Saved to what?

"The gift of God is eternal LIFE through JESUS CHRIST our Lord."

*Sound the Gospel of grace abroad,
Life in the Living Lord;
Spread the news of the gift of God
Life in the Living Lord.
Mortal man requires it,
God above inspires it,
Tell it around: let it abound:
Life in the Living Lord.*

*Pardon, power, and perfect peace
The words of that life afford,
Never, then, let the tidings cease
Of life in the Living Lord.
Open wide the portal
Unto every mortal,
Tell it around: let it abound:
Life in the Living Lord.*

Those earnestly desiring to know further concerning the way of salvation, and of JESUS the Savior from SIN, are invited to correspond with the Editor of "The Restitution Herald", Oregon, Illinois, or with the writer or the giver of this article.

STRENGTHEN YOUR CHURCH

(Continued from Editorial Page)

In every community where, in the apostles' days, there was a group of such ecclesias—called-out ones—they are known in English as being "a church" For each such church the apostles provided that elders—bishops, presbyters—and deacons should be appointed. These were for teaching, leading, shepherding, strengthening, serving, aiding, encouraging, the members of the church. The Christians appointed to these positions, offices, were those of highest and best qualifications for the positions. They were those who would be diligent, persevering, and Christ-like in their labors to perfect living truth in the daily conduct of those of the church. Like Christ, they would sacrifice self-will and struggle to discover and establish God's will in the lives of those of the church.

So, to-day, also. The annual meeting of the church, soon to be held, should be a meeting of deepest and most prayerful purpose, to discern those most approved of God for leadership and service in God's own church. Then, by formal and intelligent agreement, the church should accept such for leadership and service.

Many churches are literally killed by uninterested, indifferent, and unfitted officers. No small responsibility for this rests with the church for its inadequate concern of its own affairs.

Prayerfully plan your annual meeting that it will arrange to strengthen your church in the year 1927. SELECT OFFICERS WHO HAVE MINDS TO WORK, who are enthusiastic, WHO YEARN TO FOLLOW GOD'S INSTRUCTIONS.

STRENGTHEN YOUR CHURCH.

THE ROYAL CHARTER

THE Royal Charter had been around the world, and was at last homeward bound. She had reached Queenstown and then sailed for Liverpool. The message was telegraphed to Liverpool that she was almost home. Dr. Taylor was then pastor in that city, and the wife of the first mate was a member of his church. THE ROYAL CHARTER never came to Liverpool. Men waited all night on the dock straining their eyes to get a sight of the vessel. The Lord Mayor was there, bands of music were there, thousands of people were there to give her a welcome. But THE ROYAL CHARTER never came in. She went down in the night with almost all on board. They came to Dr. Taylor and asked him, "Will you go and tell the wife of the first mate?" So he started off to tell her. As he laid his hand on the door bell, the door flew wide open, and a little girl sprang out, saying, "O, Dr. Taylor, my papa is coming home to-day!" The preacher said he felt like an executioner as he walked into the house. He found the table laid for breakfast and the wife of the mate said to him, as she stepped forward, "O, Dr. Taylor, this is indeed a privilege, and if you wait a little you may sit at the table with us, for THE ROYAL CHARTER comes in this morning, and my husband is coming home!" Dr. Taylor looked at her a moment, while he steadied himself, holding on to a nearby chair, and then said, "Poor woman, your husband will never come home! THE ROYAL CHARTER went down last night, and your husband is lost!" She threw up her hands, and as she fell she cried, "O, my God, so near home and lost!"

How is it with you? —Selected.

"Some people cultivate sensitiveness. It is more to our advantage that we learn to harden ourselves against the shafts of spiteful tongues, and to bear with equanimity and fortitude both insults and injuries."—L. Booth.

ARE WE SELLING THE GOSPEL TO PROSPECTS ONLY

By G. E. Marsh

THE high-grade salesman is the one who creates a demand for his goods where such demand did not exist before. He does not depend entirely upon ready-made "prospects", whose interest has already been roused in his product or in one of a similar nature offered by another salesman; but he goes out and makes prospects for himself. He builds up a sense of need in the minds of those who had never heard of such goods before. One great advantage of such salesmanship is that the market is his own. No one else can claim customers made under these circumstances. They are far easier to hold than are those buyers who constantly change from one dealer to another. They are more apt to be permanent in their allegiance.

Are we endeavoring to sell the gospel to "prospects" only? That is, are we confining our efforts exclusively to people who are already spiritually inclined, and who know something about the Bible and the conditions of salvation?

It is true that we must carry the message to all men, even to such as particularly understand and who are conscientious in their convictions; but should we not go farther than that? Should we not reach out into the highways and byways of the world, where men actually "know not God" and seek to be master salesmen of the gospel, that we may build up the temple of God with material drawn from the hitherto untouched rocks of the quarry, as well as from the partly polished stones of other and less perfect structures.

H. G. Wells, in an article in The American Magazine, says, "Wealth, notoriety, place and power are no measure of success whatever. The only true measure of a successful life is, the ration between what we might have been and what we might have done, on the one hand, and the the thing we have done and the thing we have made ourselves, on the other". We would add that our opinion of a successful life is, to make ourselves, by the grace of God, worthy of immortality, and a place in God's kingdom.—S. E. Haney.

THE JOYFUL HOMECOMING AND REUNION OF THE SAINTS

(Continued from page 162)

ing of the Lord Jesus Christ, and "our gathering together unto him"! Acts 10:40, 41; Gen. 49:10; 1 Thess. 2:19; 2 Thess. 2:1; Eph. 1:10.

Jesus said, "I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Luke 22:29-30. Words are inadequate to describe the blessedness of "those servants, whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them."—Luke 12:37. "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God" with such a royal Host, as the King of kings, and Lord of lords to serve at the marriage supper of the Lamb. Luke 14: 14, 15; Rev. 19:7, 9, 16.

*"We'll all meet at home in the morning,
On the shore of that bright, crystal sea;
We'll know and be known by our loved ones,
What a gathering that will be."*

FOLLOW THOU ME!

WHAT does it mean, after all, to "follow Christ"? We hear so much about it. Jesus was constantly speaking about it Himself. We realize the importance of it—yes, the absolute necessity for it, if we are to be Christians ourselves in more than name. We may admit the axiom, and still our minds may remain foggy as to just what "following Christ" actually signifies, writes Alfred Lowry, in The Friend.

First of all, to follow Christ certainly means something else than trying to re-live His life on earth. Wearing sandals and a seamless robe, learning to speak Aramaic and wandering about Palestine, preaching sermons from hilltops, would not be following Him in any real sense, certainly not in the sense He Himself had in mind. We should all be agreed on that point.

But some of us might define the expression as "trying to do what Jesus would do to-day, if He were to return to earth as a human being." This, at first sight, may appear a sound definition, yet, I believe it to be quite as open to criticism as the foregoing one, and quite as far from what He meant. In the first place we really have no way of knowing just what He would do, if He were here in the world to-day. Any conjecture we might make would remain—mere conjecture. We might, it is true, be pretty certain of a number of things He would not do, and these convictions can be of untold value to us as we go along through life. But a few of us could be content with living a wholly negative life. We want our religion, if we have one, to consist in something more than a mere long list of the things we don't do. When we meet people of that sort, we cannot help feeling how pinched and narrow their lives are, how much they miss of beauty and loveliness, how far they are from that more abundant life about which Jesus spoke to His disciples. When we are walking to a certain place, and come to a crossroads where signposts point the way, it may be helpful to know we're not to go down that road, or that, if we are to reach our destination. But unless there is a board bearing the name of the town to which we are bound, we are still left uncertain of our course.

It is impossible to know just what Jesus would do, and even if we did know, down to details, it would be quite hopeless were we all to start doing the same thing. The absurdity of such a course would soon manifest itself. It is, for instance, improbable that Jesus would come as a locomotive engineer. That, in no way, implies that Christians engaged in that highly useful occupation should at once give it up. But supposing it were definitely known that Jesus was coming as an engineer, would that mean that His faithful disciples, everywhere, should all flock over into that profession? Decidedly, He had something else in mind, when He told us to follow Him, than this idea of "trying to do what He would do to-day".

A third, and much more rational, interpretation of His injunction is held by many earnestly sincere persons. Briefly expressed, they might say that they try to do nothing of which they feel Jesus would disapprove, and to work zealously for those things which, they feel, are in harmony with His teachings as recorded in the New Testament. This would be to them "following Christ", and they would look forward eagerly to that glad day, when they should "come again with rejoicing", bringing their sheaves with them. . . .

But I am convinced that there is a still more excellent way of following our perfect pattern, and that is by the way of Obedience. Jesus revealed God as our Father. How? By living the life of a wholly obedient Son. There is a wonderfully illuminating sentence in Hebrews to the effect that "though He were a Son, yet learned He obedience". So, we, too, if we would follow Him in the way He meant, must learn to be obedient, just as He was, to the will of our Father. This is, of course, but a clumsier way of putting George Fox's famous dictum, "Mind the Light!" We must mind the light, not counting the cost, whether we see a reason for what is required or not, whether our family or friends are led in the same path or not, whether anyone was ever before, or will be again, led in the same path or not. "What is that to thee? Follow thou Me!" Can anyone study Christ's life and fail to be struck with the implicit character of His obedience, and by the way He carried that obedience through to the tragic end, "for the joy that was set before Him"? As Paul described it to the Philippians: "He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death". With this thought in mind, of Christ's perfect obedience to the will of His Father, read again the prayer recorded in John 17. . . .

If we may return to the figure of the sheaves: . . . the quantity of sheaves is of distinctly less importance than the kind of grain that has been harvested. It is not how much good are we doing with our lives? But rather, are we doing that which is required? Are we willing to be pliant in God's hand, and to be used in the special, and it may be peculiar, ways for which He has need of us, or are we stubborn servants, willing enough, perhaps, to work, but with headstrong notions as to what we want to do, and how, and when, and where? Do we do a piece of good work and pray that it may be blessed? Or, do we remember that, if we are doing the right thing, the blessing must needs follow without our worrying over it? Do we insist on seeing results? Or, are we content to let that part take care of itself, and, like Stephen Grellet, preaching in the deserted lumber camps, to seek only the reward of peace, which we know will come, if we really try to be, as Peter put it, "obedient children"?—Selected.

All the graces of Christianity always go together. They so go together that where one is wanting all are wanting. Where there is faith, there is love, and hope, and humility, and where there is love, there is also trust, and where there is a holy trust in God, there is love to God.—Lyman Booth.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 21, 1926

NUMBER 12

The Rejoicing of Angels

*Hark! what mean those holy voices,
Sweetly sounding through the skies?—
Lo! the angelic host rejoices;—
Heavenly hallelujahs rise.*

*Hear them tell the wondrous story,
Hear them chant in hymns of joy;
Glory in the highest—glory,
Glory be to God on high.*

*Peace on earth, good will from heaven,
Reaching far as man is found;
Souls redeemed and sins forgiven,—
Lord, our golden harps shall sound.*

*Christ is born our King anointed,
Heaven and earth His praises sing!
Oh, receive whom God appointed,
For your Prophet, Priest, and King.*

—Selected.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

By Dorothy Magaw

MERRY CHRISTMAS! How many millions of times this greeting is given the world over! How many hearts are made a little lighter and how many more faces have a smile at its sound! It helps to make people happy; wee children, school boys and girls, business people, fathers and mothers, grandmothers and grandfathers; people who have lots of money and cleaning women who have three small children to care for; people who have to work on Christmas Day and the more fortunate ones who have a holiday; sick folks and well ones; newsboys, janitors, policemen, doctors, nurses, teachers, grocerymen, milkmen, and everybody who is at all human. Sometimes it even causes a flicker of cheer in the hearts of the grouchy ones, like Scrooge. Merry Christmas is in the air; it meets you on the corner and walks along with you all the day, and then the next day it is with you again. People joyfully shout it to you and the shop windows and streets silently speak it to you. You can not get away from it if you would, and would not if you could.

And Christian, opening his door in the morning to the milkman, says to himself "I wonder if this milkman knows why he says 'Merry Christmas!' I wonder if he has accepted as his Savior the Jesus whose birthday he is celebrating. I wonder if he stops at least once on Christmas Day to talk with his own heart and to give thanks to God for sending His only Son to this earth as the Savior of men. I wonder if he ever thinks of this verse from Revelation, which says, 'Behold I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him and he with me. He that overcometh, I will give it to him to sit down with me in my throne, as I also overcame and sat down with my Father in his throne.'"

Later on in the day his policeman friend greets him with, "Merry Christmas!" and he wonders if he remembers about the star that shone over Bethlehem's manger, and about the wise men who came from the East their precious gifts to give to the new-born King.

Then there are all the other folks he knows, the groceryman, the elevator boy, the bus driver, the man who takes the car with him every morning, and he wonders if they think seriously about Christmas, whether they ever think about the angels who sang carols in the sky and told the shepherds to fear not for "behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all the people: for there is born to you this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord. And this is the sign unto you: Ye shall find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger." And then he wonders if they have followed the command that Peter gave to the multitude at Pentecost, "And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For to you is the promise and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call unto him."

After thinking about these things, Christian says to himself, "It is my business as a Christian to find out whether all these people understand what 'Merry Christmas' means. I shall ask them—and perhaps among them all, there will be one whom I can help, one who has wondered about its meaning, and who wants to know. Then with the story of the first Christmas, I will give him these verses, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not the Son into the world to judge the world; but that the world should be saved through him.'"

THE MYSTERIES OF ANCIENT DAYS

No. 3

By George Johnston

IN the ancient manuscripts of the Old Testament the Hebrew word eretz occurs more than 2000 times; and in the Greek and Latin translations it is invariably rendered ge and terra respectively. These terms all mean and denote one and the same thing—land. In the Authorized Version, however, they appear as land 1458 times; earth 677 times; and country 135 times. From the fact that land appears in the great majority of instances it is evident that the translators fully understood that such was the true meaning of the original, and that they used the other terms merely to avoid the monotonous repetition of a single term. The same thing is done by every writer of the present day.

The scholars appointed by James I., in 1604 to produce the Authorized Version were instructed that "The ordinary Bible, read in the church, commonly called the Bishop's Bible, is to be followed, and as little altered as the original will permit." The Bishop's Bible was published in 1568, and, very naturally, it also was largely copied from earlier translations, more particularly that of Coverdale, which appeared in 1536. In those days the word earth could not be used as it is to-day, for the simple reason that little or nothing was then known of many of the lands which are pictured on our modern maps, including the American continents. It was not until people began to migrate to the newly discovered lands, carrying with them the word earth that it gradually assumed the sense of world.

In the Comprehensive Commentary, published nearly a century ago, when the authenticity of the Bible was doubted by but few people, a long chapter is devoted to explaining how, when, and by whom the Scriptures were translated into the English language. After lauding the various translators and pointing out the excellencies of the Authorized Version, it concludes as follows:

"We should not be dealing fairly with our subject, however, did we confine ourselves to an exhibition of the higher and more excellent qualities of the English Bible, and put out of sight or pass over in silence the defects or other imperfections by which it is characterized. Our object is to give a faithful impression of its critical character and value; and this can only be done by an unreserved examination and statement of its faults as well as its excellencies.

"The Authorized Version of the Bible having been made at a time when the critical apparatus for ascertaining and restoring the purity of the text was very defective, it must partake, of course, in very large degree of those imperfections of which mention has been made in Section V. But, independently of those imperfections, which belong to all the early versions in common, the following intrinsic and peculiar blemishes are considerable in the English translation:

"There is a want of uniformity in the mode of translating, the absence of 'an identity of phrasing' as the translators themselves call it, which greatly impairs its value, both in words and phrases.

"Of Words. Passing over many others that may, perhaps be deemed nearly synonymous, as fountain and spring; dwellingplace or habitation; shield or buckler; mitre, diadem, or hood; to wail, to mourn, or to lament; we find the same word translated law, statute, decree, and ordinance; coat-of-mail, habergeon, and breast-plate; fort, hold, stronghold, castle, munition, and bulwark; vessels, furniture, and instruments; nations, Gentiles, and heathens; stuff, armor, and weapons; pattern, likeness, form, similitude, and figure; heaven, heavens, the heavens, and air. This is calculated to embarrass and perplex the reader."

The lack of uniformity in translating the word eretz has resulted, not merely in embarrassment and perplexity, but in a catastrophe greater than any other of which we have knowledge—the shattering of the faith of multitudes of people in the integrity of our Sacred Book. But the whole blame for this cannot be placed on the shoulders of the translators; much of it must be borne by those of later times, who, knowing that in the course of time words have a tendency to alter in meaning, and that the original meaning of eretz, ge, and terra was land, have taken no steps to have the word earth removed from our Bible and replaced by the correct term.

It would be impossible, within a limited space, to refer to all the scripture passages in which the word earth occurs. It is only necessary to quote a few, however, in order to show that it is due to the want of uniformity on the part of the translators that much, if not all of the antagonism between the Bible and archæology, ethnology, and geology is due.

Behold, the LORD maketh the earth (eretz) empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof."—Isa. 24:1.

In this passage it is perfectly clear that earth is merely used as a substitute for land. If the term denoted the whole habitable world, we might reasonably ask where its inhabitants could possibly be scattered. The real thought of the translators is, however, plainly shown in the third verse of the same chapter, which reads: "The land (eretz) shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled: for the LORD hath spoken this word."

"And he (the LORD) said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left. And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts. And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coast of Egypt: very grievous were they; before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such. For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened; and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt."—Exodus 10:12-15.

Throughout these verses the word eretz occurs numerous times, and is rendered land on every occasion but one—"for they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened". The translators knew that the plagues were visited only on the Egyptians, and

(Continued on Page 190, column 2)

GOLD, FRANKINCENSE, AND MYRRH

By Susan Coolidge

Gold, frankincense and myrrh, they brought to the newborn Christ—

*The Wise Men from the East—and in the oxen's stall,
The far-brought precious gifts they heaped, with love
unpriced;*

And Christ the babe looked on, and wondered not at all.

Gold, frankincense and myrrh, I, too, would offer Thee;

*O King of faithful hearts, upon Thy Christmas Day;
And, poor and little worth although the offering be,
Because Thou art so kind, I dare to think I may.*

I bring the gold of faith, which, through the centuries long, long,

*Still seeks the Holy Child, and worships at His feet,
And owns Him for its Lord, with gladness deep and strong,
And joins the angel choir, singing in chorus sweet.*

*The frankincense I bear is worship, which can rise
Like perfume, floating up higher and higher still,
Till, on the wings of prayer, it finds the far, blue skies,
And falls, as falls the dew, to freshen heart and will.*

*At last I bring the myrrh, half bitter and half sweet,
Of my own selfish heart, through sacrifice made clean;
And break the vase, and spill the oil upon Thy feet,
O Lord of Christmas Day, as did the Magdalene.*

*"Gold, frankincense and myrrh"—'tis all I have to bring To Thee, O Holy Child, now throned in Heaven's mid!
Because Thou art so kind, take the poor offering,
And let me go forth blessed, as once the Wise Men did.*

—Selected by Glenn M. Birkey.

Daily Scripture Readings for 1926

Prepared by F. L. Austin

Sunday—December 26—Revelation 17	Mem. V. 7
Monday—December 27—Revelation 18	Mem. V. 20
Tuesday—December 28—Revelation 19	Mem. V. 9
Wednesday—December 29—Revelation 20	Mem. V. 12
Thursday—December 30—Revelation 21	Mem. V. 4
Friday—December 31—Revelation 22	Mem. V. 17

The subject of this chapter is Babylon. If it were not that Babylon itself is represented by a woman and then that it is, in verse 18, named definitely as "that great city", it would be easy to think that Babylon referred to some system such as is understood by the majority of Bible students.

In chapter 18 Babylon is further described as a sea port city, rich in merchandise and transportation. As a city it is also a system, municipality. It is supported and furthered by the great political power of which it is the head, perhaps the capital city. The capital letters of 17:5 indicate that all capitalized words form the name. There is nothing in the Greek to indicate how many words should be thus written. The Companion Bible in the notes reads as follows: "And upon her forehead (she had) a name written, a secret symbol, BABYLON THE GREAT, the mother of harlots and of the abominations of the earth". This capitalization gives both the name, BABYLON THE GREAT, and the secret symbol, "the mother of harlots and of the abominations of the earth". There is much scripture in both Old and New Testaments to indicate that Babylon is yet to be quickly re-established and to occupy a headship of terror over the earth in the closing months of Israel's time of trouble. Read Jeremiah 50 and 51; Isaiah 21, and others, and, comparing history and facts, determine whether Babylon will yet be overthrown in connection with Jerusalem's overthrow of Zechariah 14.

The beast, 17:8, is apparently the beast of seven heads and ten horns of chapter 13, which is there interpreted as a kingdom. Verse 10 reads, "and there are seven kings"; the Emphatic Testament reads, "and they are seven kings"; the Diaglott reads, "and the kings are seven"; margin of Companion Bible reads, "they". Instead of seven kings being different from seven mountains of verse 9 the Greek text states that these seven heads in another figure are seven mountains, the interpretation of which is, "they are seven kings". Thus the beast of Revelation 13 and 17 is governed, in this picture, by seven principal kings.

The ten horns of verse 12 are ten lesser kings. These, v. 14, make war with the Lamb and those who are with Him. But these seven kings are a part and parcel of the beast carrying the woman. They continue until God's word shall be fulfilled, v. 17.

Chapter 18 is a continuation of the description of Babylon, while 19 brings us again to the fall of this great city at which time the voices of much people in heaven shout, "salvation, and glory . . . unto the Lord our God". His work is declared, v. 2, to be a work of righteousness. Immediately, v. 4, the twenty-four elders and four living ones of Revelation 4, from the throne call forth, "Amen". A voice, v. 5, praises God, and verse 7 declares that the marriage of the Lamb is come. Immediately, v. 11, heaven opens and Christ as a conquering Warrior rides forth on a white horse which is the true in contrast with the imitation carrying the anti-christ of 6:1. His name is written upon His thigh, v. 16. The assembly of the ages takes place in the following verses when, v. 19, "the beast, and the kings of the earth and their armies" and the false prophet of 13:11-17 are subdued and destroyed. This brings us not only to the end of the power of the beast, the power of the false prophet, the power of Babylon, but it brings us also to the complete end of Gentile times at which time the kingdoms in fact "become the kingdom our our Lord and of his Christ", Rev. 11:15.

We have now reached the end of the seventh seal and of all seven. We have come to the completion of the opening of the book with seven seals, Rev. 5. Chapter 20 reveals briefly the work of Christ following a period of a thousand years. The period itself is but barely mentioned. Record of the work of this time will be more largely found in Old Testament prophecy.

First, before passing the thousand years, the Revelation describes a resurrection, v. 4, of "the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus". Compare 6:9. These live and reign with Christ a thousand years. They are evidently additional to the church itself which is caught away to meet the Lord in the air, 1 Thess. 4:16, to escape the day of wrath, 1 Thess 5:9 and 2 Thess 1:7, which the Revelator has been taking us through. "The rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished". Also, previous to this thousand years, Satan is bound. His loosing and the final statement of Scripture concerning him are mentioned in verses 7 and 10. Verse 12 and 13, which seem to speak of the resurrection of all dead, locates the event as being beyond the thousand year period and also after the destruction of Satan. Evidently it is no then present work of Satan that causes many to be overwhelmed with the second death.

The unveiling given to John on Patmos of Jesus continued beyond the period of restoration and very briefly gives to us one of the very few scriptural announcements of the new heavens and new earth condition. It informs us that the time is coming when God will again dwell with men, 21:3, reminding us of the brief reference to God's presence with His creation in the Garden of Eden. There is seemingly no suggestion in the Scripture that God chooses to be isolated from mankind of His own making, but there is abundant evidence that so long as man presumes to oppose God and sin against Him that so long God refuses to be a direct companion or associate with men.

All causes of sorrow, pain, and death are for ever foreign to the new earth. The beautiful city of God's abode is briefly described both as to material structure and as to personnel thereof. It would be most pleasing to dwell largely on this topic were there space.

Chapter 22 describes the results of the removal of the curse. It also reveals to us that the Tree of Life mentioned in Genesis 2 and 3, which was removed immediately the curse was pronounced upon earth, will be reinstated immediately the curse is removed. Its leaves and fruit will again become the perfect food and sustenance for the people of earth. To the writer, it seems that there is no suggestion that the Tree of Life in Genesis 2 and Revelation 22 stands for Christ. The Tree of Life is described in Genesis only as a provision of God that would perpetuate man in the mortal nature which made it necessary for him to partake thereof. Christ's work is very different in that the life He gives becomes permanent and independent, immortal. Such nature of life is never indicated as resulting from participation of the Tree of Life.

P. S. The writer has enjoyed very much the reading of the New Testament throughout the year and compiling notes on the text thereof. He can only hope that a few, at least, of the readers have received as much benefit from the study as has he.

It had been hoped that a similar study could be given to the Old Testament, running possibly over a longer time, but it is found impossible to keep up all the different lines of work and pretend to do justice to studies like these. The Daily Scripture Readings will, therefore, be discontinued for the present.

Gratitude is extended to those who have expressed benefit through this work.

Can He Care?

Among so many can He care?
Can special love be everywhere?
A myriad home—a myriad ways,
And God's eye over every place?

Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

UNITED STATES CHRISTMAS TREE OVER JERUSALEM

CHRISTMAS season this year finds the Bible lands once more disturbed by fighting and with less of that atmosphere of "peace on earth, good will toward men" which is the conventional greeting of Christian feast days.

In Jerusalem, which stands on a lofty plateau, as if holding itself aloof from the quarreling Mohammedan Druses and Christians in the valleys below, the missionaries of American Near East organization are providing hospitality for pilgrims, tourists, and refugees in the spirit of the season.

Weary pilgrims from far countries are climbing the roads to the city, 2500 feet above sea level, to rest in hotels, hospices, and convents before filing out the single road to Bethlehem to worship at the marble manger which marks the traditional spot of the birthplace of Christ.

Americans provide Christmas Tree

There will be a distinctly American touch to this year's celebration. With funds sent from the United States, the American Y. M. C. A. is providing for the first time in history a community Christmas tree which is to be for all denominations—Jews, Christians, and Mohammedans. The tree will be set up in the field of Boaz, where the shepherds watched their flocks by night, and it will be lighted by electricity and decorated like the community trees in the United States.

Thousands of pilgrims and tourists will see the tree as they come over the road from Jerusalem on foot and by donkey, horse and automobile. Among those who will walk are 700 children from the Holy Cross and St. James orphanages of the Near East Relief. They will be part of a picturesque crowd of American and French priests, Spanish and Italian monks, English tourists, and native country people who will greet each other, "May your day be happy and blessed."

Will March to Church

This procession will start the day before Christmas and pass David's well and the white domed burying place known as Rachel's tomb, winding up in the courtyard of the Church of the Nativity.

All of Christmas eve and Christmas the people will squeeze through the small doorway of the fortresslike wall of the church and emerge into the nave where Roman Catholic church services will be conducted. From a corner of the church a pushing, jostling throng will wind its way down the poorly lighted, slippery stone steps to the grotto, where the people will kneel and kiss the brass-star on the floor and the manger and pray.

Much the same scenes will be witnessed on January 7, when the Orthodox Christians have their nativity festivities from their wing of the church. The Americans, who formerly held their festivities on January 19, have announced that they will henceforth hold them on the Orthodox Nativity day.—Selected,

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

THE BIRTH OF CHRIST

Once again the blessings of almighty God have continued our lives and we are permitted to experience another anniversary of the birth of our Lord and Master. This anniversary season has come to be that season which in all the world attracts more attention than any other. It is really heart saddening when one stops to contemplate that the effort to express devotion and gratitude on account of the birth of the Redeemer and Savior should be expressed in terms of commerce, feasting, pleasure-seeking, and so forth, to the extent that it is. Not only the unchristian, but the Christian, also, is given over more and more to the converting of this beautiful anniversary occasion into an occasion of carnal activity.

In the name of our Master, the writer bespeaks a spirit of truer devotion and service upon Him whom the Christian pretends to honor.

* * * *

ELDERSHIP

IT IS BOTH uplifting and overwhelming when one holding the position realizes something of the greatness of the responsibility placed by God upon an elder, a pastor, Sunday School teacher, superintendent, etc. Such persons prayerfully consent to accept the responsibilities of their several offices sometimes, not always, realizing that every individual over whom they thus preside is dependent, more or less, upon said elder or other officer for salvation. Peter, in his first epistle, 5:1-4, likens the elder to a shepherd. A shepherd's duty is not only to protect his flock against enemies—this is a minor responsibility—his chief duty is to manage and provide for food and maintenance of his charge.

So with the elder, pastor, teacher; each stands before God with God's people in his keeping. A day of reckoning is coming. It will be a happy day for that elder who can approach his Lord with the statement, "Those whom Thou hast given me, I have lost none". Read 1 Thess: 2:19, 20.

With such outstanding opportunity and responsibility upon the leader in our church work, how very considerate and prayerful should a congregation be when they gather to choose from among their number one to be their elder. We would not knowingly select an incompetent doctor, an incompetent school teacher, an incompetent laborer. How much more particular should the Church of God be to choose a competent, godly teacher and director for shepherding and guarding the high interests of each Christian whose first objective is to come off conqueror through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Even before gathering in your next annual business meeting to choose elders and officers, consider this great subject in prayer to God and in careful consideration and study.

* * * *

PREMIUMS SENT OUT

The premiums on the Subscription Campaign have been mailed. If any who are entitled to some gift do not receive it promptly, just let us know, that we may look up the matter. Errors will happen in the rush of work and it is necessary for us to be "checked up" or we may never know our mistakes.

* * * *

SAMPLE COPY

Remember the first week in January is designated Sample Copy Week. Send in names and addresses of those you wish to receive a copy of The Herald with a view to interesting them in the paper and its promulgation of gospel truth.

Keep conscience clear, then never fear.—Franklin.

HERALD RECEIPTS

D. B. Jackson; Vern Todd; Dan K. Lehman; Mrs. R. S. Sullivan; H. J. Stadden; Mrs. Diana Murphy; Glyn Starbuck; R. L. Funk; Mrs. Martha Platts; Edward Clark; Mrs. E. D. Eaton; Mrs. Irene Margrave; Miss Lucille Claypool; Will Hardesty; D. F. Beck; W. O. Jenter; Roy Hazard; Allen Hazard; F. C. Beck; Mrs. Minnie Rogers; Jessie L. Graves; J. C. Waggoner; A. J. Hoke; Ferne Moore; Mrs. W. A. Brainard; I. L. Fowler; F. M. Robinson; Mrs. Pearl Shellhaas; Edith Halcomb; Melvin A. Snyder; Albert Eberhardt; Jacob Doll; Mrs. H. H. Kent; Mrs. O. W. Harvey; Ray Jones; Chas. Pearson; A. O. Demmit; Ethel Lehman; Mrs. Belva Knife; Mrs. George Kessler; Mrs. J. W. Brower; Elgin E. Curtis; G. H. Antonides; N. S. Westfall; Mrs. Glenn Strock; Mrs. John Macy; Perry Pearson; Mrs. Martha Pearson; H. M. McInturff; Mrs. Harry Unterkircher; Mrs. Emma Oaks; John Sweet; V. C. Railsback; Mrs. Ira F. Wilson; J. F. Carpenter; Forest Carpenter; Mrs. James Buchanan; Mrs. Olive Corbaley; Mrs. Geo. Corbaley; Mrs. Hugh Longman; Mary F. Cook; Mrs. L. V. J. Kimball; Gilbert Bottolfs; Elvin Campbell; Howard Huey; Mrs. Louise Moran.

Not how much you make, but to what purpose do you spend?—Ruskin.

* *

HELPING FUND

Mrs. and Mrs. Enos Elton	$1.00
--------------------------	--------

* *

WINCE FUND

Previously mentioned	$2570.16
Mrs. C. A. Gray	$1.00
Total	$2571.16

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

Due to an oversight at the office a Berean item of last week was placed on the wrong page.

* * * *

Bible class work is just as profitable in the winter as any other time, but when the mercury hangs around zero, and the snow is knee deep it takes a little more faith to keep it up.

* * * *

If we be dead with Him, we shall also live with Him.
—2 Timothy 2:11.

* * * *

Lesson 52, on The New Heavens and New Earth, opens the windows of Holy Writ upon the most beautiful scene of all ages of time. That period is the fruition of God's plan of the ages. All dispensations and scenes of the past, present, and immediate future are simply parts of the plan, steps leading up to the great heights of perfection and completion, and each prophetic description is simply a window opened upon one part of God's perfect garden, paradise. As one cannot expect to understand or appreciate all of a large court or garden by a view through one window, so one little prophecy of the New Heavens and New Earth cannot be expected to reveal all. But by comparing the many different descriptions we get views as from many windows.

* * * *

Peter says, 2 Peter 3:13, Nevertheless, we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. Righteousness is rightness, the opposite of wrongness. There are so many things wrong in these days in which we live. Doubts, and fears, and misunderstandings,—these things are all wrong. Strife, envy, heartache and care,—but the new heavens and earth will know none of these things.

* * * *

The change referred to above is made possible by the inauguration of the King of Kings. Zech. 14:9, And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord and his name one. An absolute monarch does not have to be hampered by the opinions or wills of others, but may freely and completely execute his own wishes. Hence the goodness or badness of an absolute monarchy always depends upon the character of the monarch himself. That being the case, it can readily be seen that when there shall be but one Lord, and that the Son of God, full of love and compassion, nought but righteousness could possibly continue.

* * * *

Furthermore, those of us who are selected by the gospel to-day, and who qualify by lives lived in harmony with our Lord's teachings, shall be joint-heirs, to assist the great King in that grand work of the coming age. Study 1 Cor. 6:1, 2; and Rom. 8:14-17. No such noble ambition ever filled the breast of any man or woman as that, to have a part in bringing righteousness to this old earth and its inhabitants.

* * * *

And so Christ shall reign, using His saints as helpers, and through them the curse shall be lifted from the earth. If you want a word picture of the result when the curse is gone, read Isaiah 35, or Psalm 72. In contrast to to-day can any heart remain untouched when considering such descriptions? Isaiah insists that even the mountains and hills shall break forth into singing, and trees of the fields shall clap their hands. In other words, no more briars, thorns, or thistles, but even nature itself shall breathe happiness to God's people. Isa. 55:12, 13.

But all other difficulties, and things that are wrong in life simply lead in the direction of, and point toward one thing—death. Death is the logical result of all these other things which merely contribute to that end. Hence the removal of all which is wrong takes away death itself, and leaves the picture of Revelation 21:1-4. No wonder peace shall reign in the new heavens and new earth!

* * * *

But righteousness will be enjoyed then by those who develop it now in accordance with gospel teachings.

* * * *

Peace and fear are opposites, and cannot dwell together. And fear is inevitably coupled with haste. Consider, then, the last words of Isaiah 28:16, "He that believeth shall not make haste."

How comforting it is to have a faith and trust in God that will take away all fear, and leave calm, thoughtful deliberation! Is that kind of faith yours?

* * * *

This same Jesus, . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven.—Acts 1:11.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

We are running the first lesson of the new quarterly in The Herald as a sample of what the quarterly will be like in its arrangement and development of the Sunday School lesson. Many of The Herald readers who have not subscribed will be able to judge this new venture by a study of this lesson. Read it over.

LESSON I.—January 2, 1927.

THE CHRISTIAN A FOLLOWER OF JESUS.

Mark 1:16-20; 2:13-17; 1 John 2:6.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 2:5-11.

GOLDEN TEXT

He said unto him, Follow me. And he arose and followed him.—Mark 2:14.

SCRIPTURE LESSON TEXT.

MARK 1:16-20

MARK 2:13-17

1 JOHN 2:6

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time. Probably in the spring of the first year of Christ's ministry.

Place. The first scene took place on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, midst the industry of the day; the second at Capernaum, on the Northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Circumstances. Simon and very probably John had been disciples of John the Baptist, John 1:36. They had heard him call Jesus the Lamb of God. They had been invited by Jesus into His abode, John 1:39. They had witnessed His first miracle, John 2:2. Thus, for several months, they had been repeatedly attracted by Jesus. In the meantime Jesus had been tempted in the wilderness; John had been cast into prison; the fame of Jesus, on account of His marvelous miracles and wisdom, was on all lips.

A STUDY OF THE LESSON TEXT

16. Sea of Galilee. See Dictionary, page 62, Casting a net. No noun, "net", in Greek; thought included in the verb "casting". As he saw fish in the water, the fisherman "cast" or threw his cone-shaped net to capture and draw his catch to land. Differs from the dragnet or seine of Matt. 13:47, which was sometimes many rods long, and from the bag-net of Luke 5:4-9, which was set in deep waters, the opening of which was closed from the boat for securing and raising the fish.

17. Come ye after me. This explains Acts 1:21-22. Later, Mark 3:14-19, Jesus called them officially. Fishers of men. An implied resemblance. The Christian is to draw men out of the lower life of the carnal unto and into the spiritual life of Christ. He is God's fisherman, casting, not with snares, but with the word of God in order to draw man to a larger and eternal life in Christ.

18. Straightway. Immediately. A word characteristic of this Gospel which sets forth the activities of Christ as Jehovah's Servant. The Greek word is used by Mark 26 times of Christ; while by Matthew only 5 times; by Luke once; and by John twice. Forsook . . . nets. Their vocation; their livelihood; their all. Instant service. And they followed him. The following of Andrew and Peter consisted first in going where Jesus went up and down the narrow, stony paths of Palestine in His performance of duty. But it meant more than that. Not only did they follow Him over hills and through valleys but they followed Him in thought, gradually drinking deeper and deeper of the great truth which He was daily revealing ever more clearly to them. It consisted in making Christ their choice in all of life's phases; accepting Christ's friends as their friends. They followed Him in His great thoughts until they were overwhelmingly convinced that He was one with the Father, and that to follow Christ was to follow God Himself. This is the attitude to be reached by whoever would be a true follower of Jesus Christ.

19. A little farther. Fishermen scattered all along the shore. Mending. Also busy men.

20. Straightway. "Mark's swift adverb again." Straightway, was the Savior's manner. Left . . . father . . . and went. Left father as well as vocation. There must have been reason for this prompt compliance. See setting of the Lesson.

Mark 2:13. He went forth again. Soon after. Meantime His fame had spread greatly because of astonishing miracles, 1:21 to 2:12. Resorted . . . taught. "Kept coming . . . kept teaching."

14. Levi. Matthew himself, 9:9, gives the name "Matthew", which means "the gift of God". At. In charge of. Another busy man. Receipt of custom. "The custom house".

15. Sat at meat. "Reclined (at tables)." Publicans. Tax-collectors. Sat . . . with Jesus. Probably Levi's old friends assembled in honor of Jesus. Jesus accepted the honor and many followed Him.

16. Said. "Kept saying." How. Why.

17. Physician. Jesus was, and is, the true physician to prescribe for man that which would heal him of the world's sins. His whole life was that of a Healer. He healed men's bodies of diseases, their minds of sins, their corpses of death. It was not wrong for Him to mingle with sinners; for He mingled with a view to aid, to heal. So with His present disciples; mingling to lift the other is praise-worthy.

1 John 2:6. Abide. To dwell, remain, continue. In Him. In the dative case and denotes being or remaining within, with the primary idea of rest and continuance.—Comp. Bible. Ought. "To owe, to be indebted; (then) to be bound, to be obligated (to the performance of and duty)."—Crit. Lex.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Introduction. This is the first lesson of the series of twelve announced for the study of The Christian Life. This lesson and those following should each be studied carefully from that point of view. The series begins with this first subject: The Christian a follower of Christ. Not only the lesson text, but all other known scriptures should be used in the discovery of the best understanding of this theme.

The Christian a follower of Jesus. He is all this and more. The Christian will gladly follow Him. to do so is his joy. But one can quite fully pattern after the morality, and purity, and charity of Jesus and still not be a Christian. For example, consider the Hindoo, or a non-religionist, or moralist, who practices many or all of these things while at the same time he ignores or opposes Christ. For anyone to claim Christianity merely because he follows Christ in some of the most practical instructions for daily life, without faith in Christ, is to put himself in the position of Matt. 7:21-23, namely, "many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not . . . in thy name done many wonderful works?" And then He will declare, "I never knew you." A Christian is one who, in addition to following Christ in a matter-of-fact way, is a new creature in Christ the risen Lord. 1 John 1:3; John 17:23; Gal. 2:20.

The Call. It is interesting to note that Jesus called humble, though busy men. The mere fact that some were fishermen does not indicate at all that these were men of non-importance; for ishing was a leading pursuit in that day and place. The narrative shows that Christ selected individuals of activity, of initiative. Nor has that principle ever been changed. The call, through the gospel of Jesus Christ, reaches the ears and hearts of earnest, active people much more readily and forcibly than it does the lives of idle joy-seekers or people of leisure. It takes such people to follow the active, busy, strenuous Christ, who, always about His "Father's business", ever served His Father's family, of the sons of Adam. The sick, afflicted, destitute, sorrowing, dying; the sinful, debauched, wretched children: He served them all. He was busy.

The Response. To follow Jesus is to lead a busy life. It requires diligent concentration on Him and His work, Phil. 2:2; It necessitates a knowledge of Him and of His Father to be gathered from that Book of books, the Bible, John 5:39; It requires obedience to His works, John 14:21-23; it requires, also, that all of one's faculties be devoted to the learning of Him and then to the executing of His ways with all of one's strength; to straightway leave all self-interest and work for His interest. "They forsook their nets and followed him."

The Result. To truly follow Christ is to fully accept and receive Him and His way. With such, Christ and the Father make Their abode, John 14:23; Eph. 2:19-22. They are by God set in the body of Christ, 1 Cor. 12:18-27; they grow up into Christ, Eph. 4:15; are joined to and supplied by Him, Eph. 4:16; and become new creatures, 2 Cor. 5:17. As such, they are Christ's, Gal. 3:27-29; His joint-heirs, Rom. 8:17, of all things, Heb. 1:2, to be fashioned like unto Him, Phil 3: 20-21; Eph. 5:25, 31, 32, and made recipients of eternal life, 1 John 2:21; Rom. 6:23, through Him, John 6:39. The result is Christians in the truest sense now; and Christians who will have become glorified and fashioned like unto Christ, associated with and empowered by Him in that day when He shall come to be glorified in His saints

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

Be following me! And, arising, he followed him.—(Rotherham) Mark 2:14.

Follow Me. Have you ever sung the song, "Where He leads me I will follow"? Did you sing it with the spirit of understanding? We cannot follow Him half of the way and gain the crown. We must go with him "all the way". To follow Him, we must leave the world. It means a cross. No cross, no crown. But why falter, when He leads the way. When Peter asked Jesus, "Be hold, we have left all and followed thee: What shall we have therefore?" his answer was, "Ye which have followed me, in the regeneration, when the Son of man shall sit upon the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging (or ruling) the twelve tribes of Israel". If we follow Him now, He will have a reward for us as well.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Why Jesus Calls. Following Jesus consists first in answering a call. It is primarily a call to be saved. First of all, Jesus was introduced as "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world". Everyone who follows Him must naturally avoid sin more and more as he progresses. "Augustine, as a wicked young man, thought he saw 'an ideal hung in the sky' for him when he felt called to surrender to Christ". Truly Christ's is a call for an emancipation from sin unto righteousness and life eternal.

Service. His call is one to service. By service one should not think of Christ as a helpless man, a beggar, or an object of charity who needs to depend upon the help of others to enable Him to accomplish His service unto God. The opposite is truth. Service is that thing which perfects, enriches, qualifies the one serving for the position of his ideal. If Christ be our ideal, all the service we render is one that fits us for laboring more perfectly in and with Christ to do His work. Following after Jesus is, first of all, a service without which there is no advancement toward perfection.

A Venture. To follow Jesus is the greatest venture of life. Every new undertaking is a venture, and every one makes many of them in life. Entering college is a venture, matrimony is a venture, engaging in a business or profession is a venture. One enters any of these fields, not for the simple experience, but for the results that will accrue therefrom. Following Christ is a venture and must first be preceded by faith in Him. The end in view is salvation for the individual, and a perfection of the earth and a restitution of its people as an ultimate end.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES.

Topic: Receiving Jesus as Savior, our Lord.

The more ideal one's vision of Christ, the more interesting is the constant study of His life and His ways. For us to intelligently and earnestly receive Jesus as Savior requires that we shall continuously study His ideals, His purposes, and His methods. One never becomes too old to learn. In fact, life-long students of Christ and the Bible repeatedly state, in the closing years of life, that they have reached the point where the ideals of Christ appeal to them as never before. To receive Jesus as Savior one should, like James and John, like Peter and Andrew, leave all interests in whatever degree necessary and study and serve Christ our Lord. This is not saying that everyone should discontinue professional activities in his service unless it be that constant effort is required in furthering the purposes of Christ. But it does mean that each individual should not only willingly, but anxiously utilize his every power of life and employment in a service of Jesus Christ.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS.

Topic: What it means to follow Jesus.
The galley slaves, urged by the lash, and the sharp irons of the master, performed their tasks and then, under the same lash were driven at night like beasts into their rooms for sleep. The opposite should be thought of when one thinks of following Christ. Instead of following Christ under compulsion, one should follow in love. Instead of being a hard, cruel master, Jesus has proven Himself to be one most tenderly loving and kind and merciful. His object has been, and is, to lead His followers on t higher ground and finally into life ever lasting. To follow Him is to earnestly seek His will and desire to perform i with one's heart and love.

APPLICATION

As we hear His call, let us leave al and follow Him.

We decide our whole future—our eter nity—by our answer to the call of Christ

JUNIOR CLASS.

Topic: Enlisting with Christ.

There comes a time in every line of work when a person must begin to practice the things which he is learning. Likewise, there comes a time in the life of every individual when he should begin to follow Christ and practice His instructions. That time is right now for you; the younger you begin to serve your Lord the easier it will be for you and the more expert will you become in practicing His teachings in every-day life. Notice that there is something very striking and attractive in Christ's life: not only children came to Him, but busy men left their business and followed Him continuously.

APPLICATION FOR ALL.

Jesus is the greatest teacher of all time. He teaches with one object in view, namely, to benefit those taught. His one constant aim is to bring man to salvation. This is a long step from the life of sin and wrong. The earlier one attends school after he is old enough to study, and the more earnestly he listens to his teacher, the more quickly will he gain his education. Likewise, the earlier in life one starts to learn earnestly of Christ, the greater opportunity does he have of gaining a full knowledge of the Savior and of the way which leads unto life.

PRACTICAL TRUTHS

Whenever God calls a man it is to make something better of him. It is to those who are faithful in little things that strength is given for higher duties. "The call of Jesus comes with force to all."

Sit with sinners if you are strong enough in Christ to maintain your own character and draw them with you.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

Christ's manifested authority.

The people's heed to His calls, even to the leaving of occupation and home.

The meaning and manner of fishing for men.

The opportunities of one who follows Christ.

The responsibilities of one who follows Christ.

The result of following Christ.

Christianity, what is it?

QUESTIONS.

Were the disciples workers, or people of leisure?

What were their vocations? Did they make service to Christ their whole duty? Should we?

Was it proper to reprove Jesus for eating with sinners? Explain how He benefited them. Tell different ways by which people who accepted Christ's call were made better.

Where does true Christianity end? Is there any other way to attain unto this end than by following Christ? Name and discuss the steps of a follower of Christ from the call to the final end or result.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

We are sorry to inform our readers that Sr. Dorothy Magaw has had to write her Christmas article from the Miller Hospital, St. Paul, Minnesota. She has already spent more than eight weeks there trying to get over bronchitis and has been unable to write previous to this. No doubt she will be pleased to hear from her many friends, especially at this season of the year.

* * *

Sr. Lilian Railton, of Fonthill, Ontario, arrived in Oregon last week to remain indefinitely with Bro. and Sr. J. A. Railton.

Bro. and Sr. Dale E. Rouch of Norrie, Wisconsin, are the proud parents of a baby girl. We can imagine Dale wearing a pretty broad smile.

* * *

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

One of the most enjoyable meetings we have been privileged to work in for a number of years was the one recently closed with the Brush Creek Church, near Dayton, Ohio.

This work was done in connection with Bro. Melville Lyon, who has been serving as pastor there for the past year.

While some of the weather was far from favorable, yet splendid crowds were on hand throughout the full two weeks. Many of the members and friends at this place have been made dear to us through years of association, as it has been seven years since our first meeting there, and many have been the return trips in that cycle of seven.

Two young men, Sunday School boys, were baptized on the closing day,—Forest and Harold Pearson, sons of Bro. Clyde Pearson, Tippecanoe City, Ohio. While two is not a large number, yet we all felt that the value of our meeting together was not at all measured by that figure. The growing interest and earnestness within the church itself, and in the community was very encouraging.

Bro. Lyon is working hard and conscientiously to hold up the standard of truth there, and we pray for him, and for the church and for the community God's richest blessing.

F. E. Siple.

* * *

Bro. R. C. Railsback of South Bend, Indiana, suffered a light stroke December 11. He was enjoying the day very much, it being his 85th birthday anniversary, with friends and remembrances, until about six o'clock in the evening, when he became unconscious for two hours. He rallied but is not in very strong condition as a result.

* * *

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAFLET

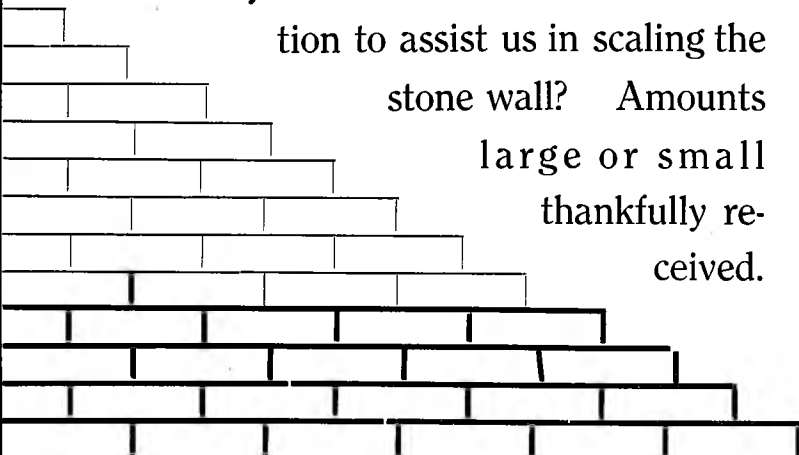

The last Sunday School lesson of the year 1926 was published in last week's Herald, and with it ends the lesson leaflet which has been published for fifteen years. The church has not only been demanding something more than the Lesson Leaflet, but in many instances has been purchasing quarterlies of other houses, even though the doctrinal aspect of said quarterlies was unsatisfactory. Though there is not proper working capital, library or equipment to rightly provide for publishing Sunday School quarterlies, yet the effort is being put forth to present to the church—and to all—a Sunday School quarterly with the hope that religious education shall be gradually and continuously encouraged unto the honor of God.

It is believed to be of advantage to compile the quarterly at this office of publication. It is the intention, after the first quarter, that 3 or 4 different authors shall prepare different independent phases of each lesson. We hope that Sr. King will find it convenient to be one of this number.

In the meantime, The Herald is glad

The steps are now one-half built. This has already been of great help in easing up the financial situation. Now for the second $1000.00.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $-----, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name -----

Street -----

Post Office -----

State ----- Date -----

to convey to Sr. King a depth of appreciation by many for her faithful, untiring and gratuitous labor as Editor of the Sunday School Lessons, and of the Lesson Leaflet. The Herald is also hopeful that the time will soon come when her services can be wholly employed in religious education.

Until further notice the Sunday School Lessons will appear in The Herald, adapted from the Truth Seeker's Series of Sunday School Quarterlies.—F. L. A.

* * *

Bro. F. L. Austin again filled his place in the pulpit of the Oregon church, last Sunday, morning and evening, after a two week's absence for recuperation and rest. So far as the congregation was able to determine from his discourses, he was back to old form and gave us meat in due season—Christmas Season.

* * *

In announcing the prize winners in the Bible Essay Contest last week, the name of Oklahoma Davidson, age eight years, was omitted from the list. All winners please notify Sr. Daisy Nokes, Lincoln Park, Rt. 7, Rockford, Illinois, whether you have received your prize.

* * *

SOME CHRISTMAS POEMS

IT CAME UPON THE MIDNIGHT CLEAR

"We shall never tire of reading this magnificent hymn. It will go down through the ages until the coming of the millennium."

It came upon a midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth,
To touch their harps of gold;
Peace on earth, good will to men,
From heaven's all gracious King,
The world in solemn stillness lay,
To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled,
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lowly plains,
They bend on hovering wing,
And ever o'er its Babel sounds
The blessed angels sing.

With all the woes of sin and strife,
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strains have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And man at war with man, hears not
The love-song which they bring,
Oh, hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing!

And ye beneath life's crushing load
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way,
With painful steps and slow,—
Look now! for glad and golden hours,

Come swiftly on the wing,
Oh, rest beside the weary road,
And hear the angels sing.

For lo! the days are hastening on,
By prophet-bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes 'round the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth,
Its ancient splendor fling;
And the whole world give back the song,
That now the angels sing.
—Edmund Hamilton Sears, in 1850.

* * *

A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM

"A little child shall lead them
Along their earthly way.
A little child shall lead them,"
I hear the Prophet say.

"A little child! Who is he?"
The shepherd's startled cry,
The angels tell the story,
From the heavens in reply.

'Twas shepherds first who found Him,
Who sang the angel's song,
Then wise men came and worshiped
Messiah—promised long.

And now, throughout all nations,
O'er all the earth they sing,
The angel's song of glory
And the coming of the King.

"To Bethlehem! To Bethlehem!
Oh, find and follow me,
The little Child, God's only Son,
Will lead to victory."

* * *

CHRISTMAS

By Alice B. Curtis

The wintry sun but dimly shines,
The trees are wreathed with snow,
But brightly in our peaceful homes,
The Christmas candles blow.

And in our breasts sings Happiness,
Though we were once forlorn.
For in our hearts in very truth,
The Savior has been born.

In vision bright, there comes to us,
That other Christmas Day,
When, angel-watched, earth's future King,
Slept on the fragrant hay.

The startled shepherds, bathed in light,
Heard of the Savior's birth,
And the glad news the angel told
Has spread throughout the earth,

The questing wise men came to Christ,
Along their starlit way,
Before Him lay their precious gifts,
And to Him homage pay.

A radiance to guide mankind,
Has shone upon the earth,
Since Christ, the bright and morning Star,
Had here His humble birth.

The song of peace the angels sang,
Has swept around the world,

And o'er the earth the flag of peace
Shall one day be unfurled,

And evermore that flag shall float,
The Prince of Peace shall reign,
And with angelic melodies,
The earth shall ring again.

If we would see the heavenly King,
And hear the song that day,
Then, like the wise men, we must walk
Along a starlit way.

And we, like them, must bring a gift
To offer at His shrine,
One precious gift He will accept,
Your loving heart, and mine.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

10c per Doz.; 60 c per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Keep an assortment on hand.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager
Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

THE CHRISTIAN A FOLLOWER OF JESUS

By Daisy Nokes

DEAR children, how many of you have heard the Galilee song? It begins: "Oh, Galilee, sweet Galilee, where Jesus loved so much to be". Why not find it in your song book and sing it? Ask mother to help you find the Lake of Galilee on the map in your Bible.

Jesus liked the great out-door. The country in which He lived is warmer than our country. It must have been very pretty around the Lake of Galilee, with its palm trees and green grass. Jesus was often on the lake or walking near it.

One day Jesus saw two brothers, Peter and Andrew fishing from a boat, with a net. They would cast the net into the water and then pull it up and empty the fish into the boat.

Jesus said to the men, "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." Jesus meant that He wanted them to help Him teach people of the Kingdom.

Peter and Andrew quickly obeyed and went with Jesus. This showed that they were glad and willing.

Soon they saw a ship out in the water. In it were James and John, who were two more brothers and their father and some servants. They were busy at work with their nets. Jesus called to James and John, for He wanted them to help also.

When they looked up and saw that it was Jesus calling they left all and rowed to the shore in a small boat. They did not wait to help finish their work, but came at once. They loved Jesus so much that they showed it by minding right away.

One day Jesus and His four helpers saw a man named Matthew sitting at his bench, busy at work. He was a stranger to Jesus, yet Jesus went up to Him and talked kindly. Matthew closed up his work shop and followed Jesus. He, too, was glad to come at once when Jesus called.

Matthew wanted others to know Jesus and love Him too, so he got up a great feast and invited many people. While they were eating, some other men who were not invited walked in. In that country when any one is having a party, any person can go and watch them while they eat.

These men tried to find fault with Jesus, but you will find that Jesus always had His answer ready. Ask mother to tell you their question and the reply of Jesus.

QUESTIONS

Am I a follower of the Lord Jesus?

Can I say the Golden Text, "And (He) said unto him, Follow me. And he arose and followed him",—Mark 2:14?

THE INN THAT MISSED ITS CHANCE

(The Landlord Speaks, A. D. 28):

*"What could be done? The inn was full of folk!
His honor, Marcus Lucius, and his scribes
Who made the census: honorable men
From farthest Galilee, came hitherward
To be enrolled; high ladies and their lords;
The rich, the rabbis, such a noble throng
As Bethlehem had never seen before,
And may not see again. And there they were,
Close herded with their servants, till the inn
Was like a hive at swarming time, and I
Was fairly crazed among them.*

*Could I know
That they were so important? Just the two,
No servants, just a workman sort of man,
Leading a donkey, and his wife theron,
Drooping and pale,—I saw them not myself,
My servants must have driven them away;
But had I seen them, how was I to know?
Were inns to welcome stragglers, up and down
In all our towns from Beersheba to Dan,
Till He should come? And how were men to know?*

*"There was a sign, they say, a heavenly light
Resplendent; but I had no time for stars.
And there were songs of angels in the air
Out on the hills; but how was I to hear
Amid the thousand clamors of an inn?"*

*"Of course, if I had known them, who they were,
And who was He that should be born that night,—
For now I learn that they will make Him King,
A second David, who will ransom us
From the Philistine Romans,—who but He
That feeds an army with a loaf of bread,
And if a soldier falls, He touches him
And up he leaps, uninjured? Had I known
I would have turned the whole inn upside down,
His honor, Marcus Lucius, and the rest,
And sent them all to stables, had I known.*

*"So you have seen Him, stranger, and perhaps Again will see Him. Prithoe say for me,
I did not know; and if He comes again
As He will surely come, with retinue,
And banners, and an army, tell my Lord
That all my inn is His, to make amends.*

*"Alas Alas! To miss a chance like that!
This inn that might be chief among them all,
The birthplace of Messiah,—had I known!"*
—Amos R. Wells, in The Sunday School Times.

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained strangers unawares."—Heb. 13:2. And how much greaer our privilege may be, especially when we consider our Master's words, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

GOD'S PLAN OF SALVATION

By Ed. F. Elton

IN the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God."—John 1:1. "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made and all the host of them, by the breath of his mouth."—Psalm 33:6. And He says, "I am the Lord that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself."—Isaiah 44:24. And "God created man in his own image", Gen. 1:27, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it, Gen. 2:15-17. But Adam and his wife did eat the fruit thereof, Gen. 3:6, and by their disobedience brought sin into the world. But God, in His love, gave His word to the woman, the promise of a savior. To the woman he said, Thy seed shall bruise the serpent's head, Gen. 3:15. He gave the same promise to Abraham: "and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed", Gen. 22:18.

Paul, speaking of it, says, "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ."—Gal. 3:16.

And God tells how it was to be: "Behold, a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."—Isaiah 7:14. The angel Gabriel was sent from God into the city of Galilee named Nazareth to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph of the house of David, and the virgin's name was Mary. He said, "Hail thou, that are highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women." "And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favour with God, and behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shall call his name Jesus".—Luke 1:26-31. "And there were in that same country, shepherds, . . . keeping watch over their flock by night. . . . And the angel said unto them, Fear not, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."—Luke 2:10-11.

And when Jesus was about thirty years of age He was baptized by John. "Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward and hungred. And when the tempter came to him he said, If thou be the son of God, command that these stones be made bread."—Matt. 4:1-3. "But he answered and said, "It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live." Deut. 8:3. In the next temptation the devil said, It is written; and quoted Psalm 91:11-12, but Jesus was ready with, It is written. Deut. 6:16. Jesus always came back with, It is written. See Matthew 4:1-11. He here shows us how to combat temptation, and we must believe in Him, Acts 16:31, believe in His teaching, and do what He tells us to do. He said "Whosoever, therefore, shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 10:32. "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead thou shalt be saved."—Rom. 10:9. Jesus said, "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish.", Luke 13:3, 5, and "He that believeth and is baptised shall be saved", Mark 16:15. Peter said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins". Acts 2:38. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ . . . and if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."—Gal. 3:27-29. "Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith . . . and take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God."—Eph. 6:13-17. Then if you are tempted to speak ill of any one, say, It is written, "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, . . . this man's religion is vain."—James 1:26. Or, if you see any one that has yielded to temptation and needs a helping hand say, It is written, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself", and, "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."—Rom. 13:10.

A BIBLE FOR EVERY MAN

ALTHOUGH "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork", only in the Scriptures are His spirit and His heart revealed. The Bible is the Book for men of all ages and all generations. The open Bible, reverently read, is a power for righteousness. The man who heeds its warnings and reads its precepts is assured of greater happiness and health and peace of mind, and if not of prosperity at least of greater joy in the things he has. The man who tries to live without the Bible, who disregards its precepts and flouts its warnings, may flourish like the green bay tree for a time, but the reckoning is certain. The Bible is every man's Book, and it should be in the hands of every man, and, until it is thus widely spread, civilization will falter and fall short of the ideal of Christ.—Selected.

THE OLD-TIME CHRISTMAS

By Leona

WHAT has become of the old-time Christmas, with its simple joys, the special home gathering, the little stocking hung behind the old heating stove, little, inexpensive exchange of gifts, in the family group, and among friends. How we all looked forward to the coming of Christmas! Mother would make pop corn balls, and get some apples if they did not have any, and some candy, one little present—a doll, perhaps, for the girl, and some little toy the boys would like, a knife, marbles, some little thing they could play with. Then Christmas morning, how they would all scamper to see what good, old Santa had left for them!

Then there was the story of the Christ child, told over and over again to the wondering little group, and how eagerly they would listen to it!

Then Christmas was a real joy. It did not take so much to make people happy as it does now in later years. It is not that we think of Christmas as the day to honor our Savior's birth, and as such, meet together to worship and adore Him. But it is made a day, and a night of feasting and revelry. I wonder just how well-pleasing in His sight this kind of program is. And, as one of the clerks in a large department store said to me a few days ago, Christmas, each year, becomes more and more a burden. Everyone expects that if you give a gift it must be something expensive, or at least the dollar sign must be visible on the article given. Unless it is, it is not appreciated. People do not see back of the gift the heart that prompted the gift. It may be it was in itself insignificant, yet loving thought for the one receiving the gift, made the sender remember the friend and want him to know he was not forgotten.

Just to show how Christmas, in these days, is being commercialized, I will tell you of a little circumstance. A very dear friend to whom I had given a little remembrance last Christmas, told me that she was through giving expensive presents to her people, that they never gave her anything in return, as much as she gave them. Think of expecting to receive in return, dollar for dollar, at Christmas time. She is not the only one who puts the money value in gifts above the love and thought that prompted the small remembrance. No wonder Christmas has become a dread, and sleepless nights and anxious days precede and follow. This day, of all days, should be one when burdens are lifted from the heart, and songs of praise and thanksgiving to the Giver of the most precious of all gifts, our Savior and Redeemer, should ascend to the throne of grace. Children should be taught the reason why we celebrate Christmas, and why we give gifts to each other on that day; and, as Jesus gave all He had, His life, for us, let us also remember that many, many times when we are the recipients of some little gift at this Christmas season, perhaps, out of the givers' meager stores, they gave all they had to show to us their love, so let us be thankful and make them happy by our appreciation, and let us try to get back to the real Christmas spirit of rejoicing that, in Bethlehem was born a Savior many years ago, and that the song sung by the angels, Peace on earth and good will to men, will be, ere long, a realized fact instead of a prophecy.

THE MYSTERIES OF ANCIENT DAYS

(Continued from page 179)

Egypt alone is mentioned. They certainly cannot have imagined that the whole habitable world was punished because the ruler of Egypt refused to comply with the demands of Moses. It is clear, therefore, that earth was used in this instance simply to avoid the monotonous repetition of land.

"And the LORD said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: for all the land (eretz) which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth (eretz): so that if a man can number the dust of the earth (eretz), then shall thy seed also be numbered. Arise, walk through the land (eretz) in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee."—Gen. 13:14.

In this verse eretz appears twice as land and twice as earth. The latter term, however, was used for the same reason as stated in the preceding paragraph. The translators never intended us to believe an impossibility—that the descendants of Abram would be as numerous as the atoms of dust in the whole world.

"The earth (eretz) is the LORD's, and the fulness thereof; the world (thebel), and they that dwell therein."—Psalm 24:1.

In this brief passage two distinct Hebrew words appear and they are represented by two distinct English terms. This shows clearly that to the minds of the translators earth and world conveyed entirely different meanings.

In Jeremiah 51, which deals with Babylon, the phrases, all the earth and all the land, are used indiscriminately. In the original, however, eretz alone is found.

From the following quotations we not only learn clearly that to the translators earth and land were synonymous terms, but we gain some idea of the particular territories which formed the state known to the ancients as Eretz or Eridu.

"Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia; that he made a proclamation throughout his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The LORD God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth (of Eretz); and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem which is in Judah."—Ezra 1:1-2.

Here we find Cyrus claiming sovereignty over all th kingdoms of Eretz, a claim which he would never have made had it not rested on a firm foundation. Royal proclamations were worded just as carefully and as accurately in those days as they are at the present time; and no monarch would claim to be ruler of the whole world. Many nations known to Cyprus were neither conquered nor attacked by him; and the region which fell into his possession was exactly that known to the ancients as Eretz, and to us as Western Asia.

"And king Solomon passed all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom. And all the kings of the earth sought the presence of Solomon, to hear his wisdom, that God had put in his heart. And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and raiment, harness, and spices, horses, and mules, a rate year by year."—2 Chron. 10:22-24.

While it is possible that Solomon exceeded all the kings of the world in wealth and wisdom, it is quite evident that no rulers or others from distant parts of the globe sought to Solomon to hear his wisdom. The phrase, all the earth, must, therefore, be limited to the region within which it was possible for his admirers to travel comfortably to and from Jerusalem, "year by year". Neither is it assumed that they were traveling all the time, but that they visited Solomon at regular intervals. The region, therefore, designated all the earth cannot have extended very far in any direction from Jerusalem, especially in those days of slow traveling on the backs of beasts of burden. The translators were fully cognizant of these facts; and the phrase all the earth meant to them exactly what all the land would mean to us. The word Eretz, however, is here a proper name, and, as such, should appear in our Bible.

Many people are under the impression that at some future time all the inhabitants of the world shall be converted, and live in a state of perpetual happiness. There is not the slightest hint of such circumstance in any part of the Bible. It is into Eretz that the redeemed Israelites and others shall be gathered at the end of this age; it is there that the great kingdom of Righteousness, with Jerusalem for its capital, shall be established; and it is there that "He shall reign from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of Eretz", Psalm 72:8.

If the word earth were removed from our Bible, and replaced by land or Eretz it would be seen clearly that as regards the antiquity of humanity, the relationship of the various races of men, and the extent of the Noachian period Deluge, the sacred writers and archaeologists, ethnologists and geologists are in perfect agreement: and a certain religious sect which insists that the earth is flat would have the satisfaction of knowing that its arguments are quite logical. While Western Asia is not exactly flat, it is certainly not globular in form.

Even should it be proved that the word earth was used in the days of the translators as it is used to-day—as a designation of the whole terrestrial globe—the arguments set forth herein would still hold good. It is not on the words of the translators but on those of the original writers that our dependence must be placed; and various Hebrew scholars are unanimous in declaring that land is the only English term which correctly expresses the original meaning of eretz, ge, and terra.

When we clearly recognize that Biblical history and geography relate only to Western Asia it becomes quite easy, with the aid of various ancient writings, to learn the identity of the early invaders of Western Asia; of the giants referred to in Genesis 6, and in other passages; of Azazel; of the "children of men"; of the builders of Babel; and of others who figure in the early records.

CHRIST THE PRINCE OF PEACE

CHRIST gives to the individual believer the peace of God, and the day draws nigh when He shall bestow that peace upon the world. Christmas is the day of supreme gladness. Christianity came in with a song. The song of the Nativity is the song of songs, for it has given birth to a world of singing. There was not much singing before Christ came; there is not much to-day where He is unknown; but where He is loved and served, joy and gladness obtain, and sorrow and sighing flee away."—William L. Watkinson.

"Undoubtedly Count Tolstoi is perfectly right when he says that we cannot overcome evil by resisting it. As John Bright declared, 'Force is no remedy.' Love is the only remedy. Trustfulness and good will are the only irresistible weapons."—Hugh Price Hughes.

"That devil's theory, that war is the primal law of nature, the importation of which into human life serves to excuse its frauds and cruelties, is a slander on our brethren of the air and the forest. We need not fear for the work of Christ in bringing peace on earth. It falls into line with the original work of God."—Rev. Walton W. Battershall, D. D.

"You commonize and belittle this peace if for a moment you identify it with the mere cessation of war, greatly as that is to be desired. The peace of the heavenly song is salvation in all its vastness and wealth. It is one of the many names for the unsearchable riches of grace. This peace is the peace of God that passeth all understanding."—Rev. J. Morgan Gibbon.

"Peace, in its deepest sense, can never come to any one who has not the spirit of good will, and peace has been coming to men of good will in all parts of the world wherever Christ has been accepted and obeyed as the Personal Savior of men."—Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D. D.

"Our Savior is especially called the Prince of Peace because He brought down peace to man, coming with a message of free pardon from the Father; and because He planted and fostered peace within man; peace of conscience, peace of heart, peace of a mind at ease about worldly matters, and peace and union among brethren."—Augustus William Hare.

JESUS BORN IN BETHLEHEM

By M. A. Woodward

BETHLEHEM, the town exalted above all other places on earth (except Jerusalem) by this glorious event, is five miles south of Jerusalem, on high ground, 2350 feet above sea level. Its name means "The House of Bread", and it is the center of a region of great fertility, with many fields of grain, vineyards, and orchards of figs and olives. The place has strong military possibilities, held a Philistine garrison in David's time, was fortified by Rehoboam, and near it Herod the great had a citadel where he was buried.

Bethlehem is famous throughout Bible history. Rachel died and was buried near the town. A branch of Caleb's family came from Hebron and settled there. There lived Boaz, Naomi, and Ruth, ancestors of our Lord. There lived their descendants, Obed and son Jesse, the father of the great King David, the shepherd and poet king who was Christ's most distinguished earthly ancestor. David tended his sheep in the upland fields where the shepherds of Christ's time cared for their flocks.

Bethlehem to-day has more than 10,000 inhabitants. It is a walled town with several gates. The houses are mostly small, but well built.

"The town is the market of all the district round, which is rich in agricultural products. For many centuries Bethlehem has also been famous for the manufacture of souvenirs, which are sold to pilgrims and tourists, not only here, but in Jerusalem and Damascus and Beirut. Rosaries, paper-cutters, cigarette holders, and stamp boxes are made from olive wood, the bituminous 'Moses Stone' from the Dead Sea is shaped into little vases and paper weights, and mother-of-pearl is carved into elaborate bas-reliefs of sacred scenes. The shopkeepers are busy and energetic, and a prosperous, self-respect seems characteristic of everything about the place."—Lewis Gaston Leary, Ph. D.

THE ROMAN CENSUS

Our Lord was born, according to tradition, on December 25, and in that mild climate the fact that the shepherds were with their sheep in the field at night is no objection to the date. The year was D. C. 5, (near the close) or four years before the opening of our Christian era, the error having been made by the calculations of the Roman abbot, Dionysius Exiguus, who established our present date in the sixth century. At the time of Christ's birth, of course, dates were reckoned in the Roman fashion, and Christ was born near the end of the year A. U. C. 749, or 749 years after the founding of Rome.

The Roman emperor at the time of Christ's birth was Augustus Cæsar, the powerful and magnificent ruler whose reign was the Golden Age of Rome, the age when literature and arts flourished, and the Roman Empire was at the height of its power. . . . The Emperor Augustus decreed a census throughout his world-wide realm, probably as a basis for taxation. The Roman method was to enroll every man in the city where he lived, but the Jewish method was to require every one to repair to his ancestral home. Therefore, Joseph, the carpenter of Nazareth in Galilee, was compelled to journey southward to Bethlehem in Judea (66 miles in a straight line) because he was descended from King David. Joseph took with him on this journey his betrothed wife, the Virgin Mary, whose child, conceived of the Holy Spirit, was soon to be born according to the word spoken to both Joseph and Mary by the angels, (see Luke 1). It had been legally necessary for Mary to go with Joseph to the census, but in any case she would have wished to be with Joseph at this time (read Matt. 1:18-25). The journey, however, must have been long and arduous for her, even though she did not make it on foot, as Joseph doubtless did, but rode on a donkey.

NO ROOM IN THE INN. Bethlehem in those days was probably much smaller than now, and certainly much poorer. It was greatly crowded with all the Bethlehem families returned to the home town to be enumerated. The place possessed only one inn, and that may have been nothing but a khan or caravansera, consisting of an enclosed place surrounded by open recesses of which the paved floor (leewan) is raised a little above the ground. There is often no host, and the use of any vacant leewar is free, but the traveler pays a trifle for food, water, etc. If the Khan be crowded the traveller must be content with a corner of the courtyard or enclosed place among the cattle, or else in the stable. The stable is often a limestone cave or grotto, and there is a very ancient tradition that this was the case in the khan of Bethlehem. If, as is most probable, the traditional site of the nativity is the real one, it took place in one of the caves where St. Jerome spent so many years as a hermit, and translated the Bible into Latin (the Vulgate).—J. W. Farrar.

With this history of the first hours of life of our beloved Christ, will it not bring to our minds many serious thoughts, especially as the day of his birth draws near?

God had the whole human family in His hand on this eventful night. It was not only to bring, as the angel sung, "Peace on earth", but for Him hardships, sorrow, pain, sleepless nights, hours of prayer on mountain top, tired feet as He hurried in His later years, from place to place to perform the many tasks so necessary to fulfill His mission of love, compassion, and duty. He must educate His disciples for apostleship. He told them when He should finally be taken from them, He would ask the Father to send them His Holy Spirit as a comfort for them, to guide them into all truth. He had to teach in world terms, for He would soon be gone and they must know how to go on without Him, and so, through the we are blessed with the knowledge of Christ's life there was the blessed assurance of a life to come at His so return.

For that we are praying, Come Lord Jesus, come quickly.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 28, 1926

NUMBER 13

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

By Lyman Booth

IN Acts 9:15 we find these words, "For he is a chosen vessel unto me." They were spoken by our Lord to Ananias directing him to go to the house of Judas for Saul of Tarsus. At first Ananias hesitated, saying, "Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to the saints at Jerusalem: and here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all that call on thy name; but the Lord said unto him, go thy way; for he is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel."

Ananias went his way as the Lord directed. He found Saul and putting his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Spirit. And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales; and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized.

This brief account gives the most striking example and meaning of repentance to be found. He was on his way from Jerusalem to Damascus to bind Christians and to take them before the great high priest for punishment. But Jesus met him, smote him blind, then sent him to Ananias, who told him what to do. He did it without hesitation, and 'straightway preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God."

From that time on he became the outstanding figure in the early church. No other disciple ever grasped more fully the meaning of our Lord's command, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

His obedience to the heavenly vision was instant, whole-hearted. He did not think of looking back, nor did he fear any hindrance or difficulties that might come to him. His convictions were clear and decisive, intense and deep. His courage was too strong to admit of failure, and with boldness he faced a world of privations and dangers for the preaching of Christ, and that, too, to his former associates. Whereas he had led them in their hatred and persecutions of Christ and his disciples, he now strives with as much zeal and earnestness to turn them along with himself to the service of his revealed Lord. Whereas he had most bitterly opposed his Lord in previous days, he must now bear testimony that, if possible, he might counteract the great evil he had done. How astonished and amazed his former associates must have been upon noticing the change. They could easily see that it was real and void of hypocrisy.

At the time of his conversion he stood upon the very pinnacle of worldly honor with his own nation, and no doubt in full view of financial success, and when we consider that he turned from those things to cast his lot with Christ and His disciples, and to have entered a course of self-sacrificing labor and extreme suffering, which befell him during the remaining years of his life, would seem, of itself, to be full and complete evidence of the truth of the gospel as taught by Christ and his disciples.

Our Lord knew the kind of a man that was needed to go before kings, and to all other classes of men, to preach His gospel, and He saw the necessary requisites in Saul of Tarsus. He knew the man should be a pure Jew by birth, educated with the deepest and fullest learning, both in their law and the traditional interpretation the Rabbis had put upon them. It was also quite necessary that he should speak the Greek language, also that he should be acquainted with the Gentile thoughts and habits, which would enable him to successfully refute the Grecian scholars and teachers. All these qualifications were united in Saul. His natural qualifications were marvelous, for he was ardent, and universal in his regard and feeling for others; very sympathetic. He could adapt himself to every one's position, even to becoming "all things to all men". He could make other men's joys and griefs his own. His tears mingled with those of the sorrowing, and broken-hearted. Such was the mind and heart of the man whom Jesus chose to carry the glad tidings of His coming kingdom and glory to all nations, eventually bringing about the greatest revolution in all the history of men.

With the exception of the resurrection of our Lord, and the gift of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost, the gospel has no testimony which equals the conversion of Saul. Its influence has been felt all along the centuries, shaping and molding character for future glory in the ages yet to come. Though he sleeps in Jesus his marvelous works still survive the wreck of empires and nations.

Although Paul preached Christ in the synagogues, "that he is the Son of God", yet he, like Moses and Elijah, was led to the quiet of Arabia for the preparation of his great work his Lord would have him perform: the study of the Old Testament Scriptures in their new light. To reflect upon his previous career, and the heavenly vision which revealed to him the Messiah of prophecy in the person of Jesus of Nazareth whom he had so bitterly persecuted. Here he, no doubt, received visions of the many emergencies of service in later years. Here also was shown him the things he must endure for the Master's sake. As God takes time to fit men for the work He would have them do, so Paul was given three days of blindness, three years of meditation and study, to which were added five years of practice before starting out on his missionary journeys to all nations.

After this period of preparation he returned to Damascus. He went directly to their synagogue, with even stronger faith and zeal, bearing spontaneous testimony for Christ. His views of the truth of the gospel were wider and his forceful arguments were such that his opponents could not refute his teaching. Since he thoroughly knew their views, it was an easy matter for him to meet and overthrow their arguments. His refutation of their arguments were so plain and effective that it angered them, and they sought to kill him. They drew the governor of Damascus into a conspiracy to kill him. But he made his escape. From an overhanging window of a house upon an unguarded part of the wall the disciples let down into the open country, thereby making his first escape from the mob of persecuting Jews. This experience was but the beginning of the many things he should suffer.

Escaping from Damascus, he made a brief visit at Jerusalem. His own account of this visit will be found in Gal. 1:11-18. His chief motive in visiting Jerusalem was to see Peter and James. They doubted his sincerity and would not receive him into their confidence until Barnabas interceded in his behalf. Barnabas, being a citizen of Cyprus, a city not far from Tarsus, had met and learned from Paul the story of his conversion, took Paul to Peter and James and told them of the marvelous conversion he had undergone. Then they received him and he abode with Peter fifteen days.

What transpired at this first meeting of the fishermen of Galilee and the tentmaker of Tarsus, the chosen vessel, the chosen Pharisee, who saw Jesus in the heaven; one the apostle of the circumcision: the other, the apostle of all the Gentiles, is related in the Scriptures in few words. What took place between those holy men, what they may have said of Jesus of Nazareth, who suffered, died, and was buried, who had risen and ascended and become the head over all things to the church, and what of Christian love and devotion was felt, has not been revealed and hence we are left to form our own conclusion which can be none other than favorable.

He very effectively proved to Peter and James his divine mission, two veteran apostles. He entered the synagogue of the Grecians and boldly taught where Stephen taught, and preached the same Jesus of Nazareth, and successfully refuted their arguments. The only way in which they could silence him was to seek his death. Peter and James tried to prevail upon him to flee the city for his personal safety. In Acts 22:18-21 is given the account of a vision and command to leave Jerusalem and return to his own home. This command he obeyed, and then followed a long interval in the history of this most noble and fearless defender of the gospel. During this interval he seemed to remain in comparative retirement, preaching as other apostles did, without special appointment, as occasion called or the Spirit dictated. The interval is of uncertain length. Some claim this period is the chief part of the history of the perils and suffering which he recites to the Corinthian brethren, including two Roman and five Jewish scourgings, and three shipwrecks. During this period he labored alone and unaided by human hands, which labor prepared him for the wider field of activity to which he was called when Barnabas visited him at Tarsus to seek his help for the work with the church at Antioch.

Before proceeding further, let us inquire a little into the history of Barnabas. Who was he? In Acts 4:36 we read, And Joses, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas, (which is being interpreted, the son of consolation) a Levite and a citizen of Cyprus, having land, sold it, and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet. He was afterward called Barnabas, and said to be the first known convert from the priestly tribe of Levi, who immediately began a long and useful career by the willing consecration of a portion, at least, and it may have been all, of his possessions. It was he who took Paul to Peter and James, and was also associated with him part of the time on his missionary travels.

We find that Barnabas generously consecrated his possessions to the common good of the brotherhood. He was "one of the multitude of them that believed, who were of one heart and one soul: neither said one of them that ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common." With that consecrated company there were no factions or divisions, no jealousy, no party spirit on the part of any. No desire of distinction marred the harmony and peace of their company. They fulfilled the first law of the Master. It was the mutual and holy love that served as a sacred bond of their union, the ruling principle of their life and actions. They regarded themselves as one family, with one purpose to serve the Lord, with common needs, common joys and sufferings. This is the kind of perfection of that union for which our Lord prayed to be manifested in the church. It showed as a pattern what all should aim to realize and enjoy in the spirit, a principle that should characterize the disciples of Christ, the spirit of fellowship during all time, that the strong should help the weak, "especially of the household of faith".

PEACE

By Samuel E. Haney

"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be fearful."—John 14:27, R. V.

WERE this declaration to have come from finite man, be he ever so great and powerful, history and experience would discredit the wisdom of taking it seriously. But it comes from the Son of God, who, as the reward of faithfulness unto death, even the death of the Cross, has been granted immortality, "all power", and is able to fulfill His promise in detail. And if we are not enjoying this peace that Jesus provided for us, the fault is ours: we are consciously or unconsciously groveling in the miasma of this world, to some extent.

Has there ever been a time in Biblical or profane history when the gentle dove of peace was so badly needed as now? There are about seventy independent nations at the present day. Is there one of them civilly and internationally tranquil and peaceful? There never was a time when the race was as anticipatory of trouble both between nations and individuals as to-day. And notwithstanding, Jesus said, "Put up again thy sword into his place: for all that take the sword shall perish with the sword", we see virtually all nations standing attention and vying with one another in the construction of diabolical instruments and material for the destruction of lives and civilization. And further, the fact that the largest and most powerful nations are denominated "Christian", makes the problem the more perplexing. But this mental confusion is due to illogical reasoning, if there is any reasoning done. And as nations are composed of individual humans, a similar spirit of aggression, distrustfulness, and deception should be expected.

Are there scriptures to prove these deductions? Yes, many. Jesus, referring to these days, said, "And ye shall hear of wars, and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled . . . for nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places". Matt. 24:6, 7.

Jeremiah saw these days—"The spoilers are come upon all high places through the wilderness: for the sword of the LORD shall devour from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: no flesh shall have peace."—12:12.

Haggai saw both nations and people in their final heterogeneous scramble for the survival of the fittest—"And I will overthrow the thrones of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen; and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother."—2:22.

Jeremiah and Proverbs on the individual: "Take ye heed every one of his neighbor, and trust ye not in any brother: for every brother will utterly supplant, and every neighbor will walk with slanders. And they will deceive every one his neighbor, and will not speak the truth: they have taught their tongue to speak lies, and weary themselves to commit iniquity."—Jer. 9:4-5. "The poor is hated even of his own neighbor: but the rich hath many friends."—Prov. 14:20.

Now, do current events, relative to nations and peoples, check up with these prophecies?

The reason the text of this article is so inappropriate with conditions of nations and peoples (the world) is, it was never intended for them: the world knows nothing about this heavenly peace; neither can it.

The promises of "peace" of the text is to a "you" class, whom Paul classifies thus: "For our conversation (citizenship, commonwealth, R. V.) is in heaven": and, ". . . by whom (Christ) the world is crucified unto me (you), and I (we) unto the world". Phil. 3:20; Gal. 6:14.

Jesus, answering Pilate, said, "My kingdom is not of this world." And, in addressing the "you" class He said, "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you."—John 15:18.

This seems to catalog the beneficiaries of our text as separate and distinct from the world, a people who "have the mind of Christ". 1 Cor. 2:16.

Any one who is too drowsy to recognize the world's current events checking up with the foregoing prophecies needs a strong stimulant.

This "peculiar people" have complied with certain qualifying conditions that brand them heterodox of Christendom; and disqualifies (misfits) them for this world. Not that the world does not recognize them as true disciples of Christ, but their persistence in living a consistent Christian life makes them barnacles to society, sometimes even to church societies.

This reminds us of the Lord's remarks to the Jews: "Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not." John 7:28.

The rejecters of Christ knew not God who had sent Him. Neither are the rejecters of the advocates of the truth, as it is in Christ Jesus, acquainted with Him (Christ) who sends the "you" class to preach the Gospel.

Those who, on account of self-complacency and arrogance, rejected Christ and His message suffered the consequence a few years later—A.D. 70. And the same class of our day, actuated by the same spirit, will, by their refusal to comply with God's explicit mandates, bring on their nemesis—a just retributive punishment.

When "He came unto his own, and his own received him not"; and finally succeeded in having Him crucified, the climacteric doom of the haughty, stiffnecked Jews was sealed.

Reader, can you discern a similar spirit developing in our day? That prophetic song sung by the holy angels at His nativity is destined to be gloriously fulfilled soon—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Hallelujah!

T H O U G H T

"As he thinketh in his heart, so is he"—Solomon.

THE basis of the thought-life of the child of God is the Word of God, and as he meditates therein day and night, "whatsoever he doeth shall prosper" (Psa. 1:3).

The thought is mother to the word and deed. Every sinful act and angry word is born in our heart and mind before it is openly expressed. When we consider that our thoughts influence our life, our character, and even our appearance, how diligent we should be to set a guard before our mind. As we read in the Word of God that it is the Searcher of hearts, what a desire it should inspire within us to earnestly seek purity of mind.

Evil Thoughts. Many are troubled with thoughts that are utterly repulsive to them, and from which they recoil with horror. John Bunyan, in "Pilgrim's Progress", gives a picture of a believer so tempted. Christian, the principal character of the book, was passing through the valley of the shadow of death. Suddenly his ears were assailed by the most awful blasphemies. The poor man thought that they came from his own mind, but the fact was, they came from evil spirits.

Is it a sin to have sinful thoughts? That depends on the attitude we have towards them. If we listen to them and entertain evil suggestions then that yielding is sin. In that case we should repent and hasten to the Lord for cleansing. On the other hand, if we recoil from them as from a loathsome and deadly thing, we can depend on the Lord to do His part and keep us from defilement.

Catherine of Scienna was horribly tempted with vile and impure images of the imagination. She suffered great agony in wrestling against them. At such a season, she was conscious of the presence of the Lord Jesus, and cried, "O my Saviour, my Lord, why didst Thou forsake me?" "My child, He answered, "I have been with thee through all." "What, my Lord! in the midst of these foul thoughts and vain imaginations?" "My child, yes, and I was in thy heart all the while, and that is why thy will will not consent to the thoughts and images presented to thee."

Proud Thoughts. "For I say, through the grace given unto me to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think soberly according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith" (Rom. 12:3). Thoughts of pride are very subtle. They may arise during times of great blessing and spiritual exaltation. Perhaps we have a free time praying or testifying, or we have had a rich anointing in delivering a message. We are greeted with smiles and words of approval from our friends. Then instead of keeping sober-minded, and looking to the Lord, we are taken off our feet by our success, and we whisper to ourselves, "Congratulations, you did fine!" However the next time we try to speak the Lord mercifully lets us fall in order that we may see our own insufficiency. The result is we are humiliated because we did not hum- ble ourselves.

How may we avoid proud thoughts after being used of the Lord? Paul answers thus, "Think soberly according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." That is, we are to have a right understanding of our place in the Lord's service, and a proper conception of our gifts and talents. We are not to over-estimate our ability, and go forth to stagger the people with our eloquence or attainments; neither are we to under-estimate our talents and refuse to perform any service on the ground of our inability. Let us recognize that every good gift is of God, and that He is to receive all the glory for the results obtained by their use.

Vain Thoughts. "For if a man thinketh himself to be something when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself" (Gal. 6:3). Children live much in their imagination. They love to picture themselves as great heroes, cowboys, etc. It is possible for grown-ups to indulge in this same kind of day-dreaming, and waste their time building air-castles. Take for example, a young man called to the ministry. Instead of seeing the work, hardship, and self-sacrifice the Lord's work entails, he puts his imagination to work, and looking forward, pictures himself as a great evangelist, facing an immense audience, and preaching like a whirlwind. Not that it is wrong to have holy ambitions to do the Lord's work, but our imagination is apt sometimes to lead us astray and make us think we are something when we are nothing. Let us pray the Lord to give us a true vision of the world with its great need, and a vision of the part we are apt to take in the supplying of that need.

Anxious Thoughts. "Be careful for nothing, but in everything, by prayer and supplication, let your requests be made known unto God, and the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:6, 7). Worry is one of the most common of afflictions. From this, as well as other afflictions, Christ came to deliver us. Paul in the above scripture gives us a sure cure for worry—"Let your requests be made known unto God." Requests for financial help, requests for the solution of family, business, and spiritual problems—bring them all to the throne of grace, and cast all your care upon the Lord, "for he careth for you." And what will follow? "And the peace of God" will keep your hearts and minds. It is a fact that many of the things we worry about never come to pass, and if they do come to pass, worry will not help them; but, thank God, prayer will.

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Phil. 4:8). The best way to protect ourselves from bad thoughts is to keep ourselves occupied with good ones. One day some young men who had been sorely tempted came to a man of God and asked him if he were sometimes tempted. "Yes," he replied, "but the suggestions of the enemy find no lodgment because my heart is occupied with Jesus." The above quoted scripture, exhorting the Philippians to think of things just, pure, lovely, virtuous, and praiseworthy, might be summed up in three words—"Think of Jesus." When impurity assails, think of His holiness; when harsh thoughts arise, think of His love; when anxious thoughts trouble, think of His promises; when vain, ambitious thoughts trouble, think of His poverty and sufferings; and when proud thoughts arise, think of His humility.—Myer Pearlman.

If you cannot preach the gospel, live it. Be true and devout, and He who ever seeks the souls of men shall find His way to some of them through you.—L. Booth.

TIME OF THE END

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

(Daniel 8: 17, 19, 26; 11:35, 45; 4:5, 6)

HERE a lesson is given us in Daniel's visions which well shows what is meant by the "time of the end", and some of the things that will precede that time, or come in the "time of the end".

The time of the end spoken of in Daniel begins with the violation of the covenant made with the Jews to restore the temple services and sacrifices, which is yet future. This covenant will be made with the Jews by the prince that shall come, Dan. 9:26, 27. He will confirm the covenant for one week with the Jews. One week in the scripture means seven years. In the midst of the week, he will violate the covenant and cause the sacrifices and oblation to cease. Hence in three and one-half years after he makes the covenant he breaks it, Dan. 9:27. This king will represent himself as God, Dan. 11:36, 37, and the king shall do according to his will and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself, abhor every God, and shall speak marvelous things against the God of gods. He will establish his palace in Jerusalem, Dan. 11:45, and he shall plant the tabernacle of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain. Matt. 24:15. When ye shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth let him understand) he is the "man of sin", 2 Thess. 2:3, 4. "Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so the he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God."

He is the antichrist, 1 John 2:22. "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son. He is the desolator of Dan. 9:27. The little horn of Dan. 7:25, 26. (Read them.) While this evil king reigns, he is an irresistible conqueror, Dan. 11:36, 45.

The scriptures seem to indicate that this evil king is an infidel Jew, Dan. 11:37. It is said of him, Neither shall he regard the God of his fathers, nor regard any god; for he shall magnify himself above all. But in his estate, shall he honor the god of forces, and a god whom his fathers knew not shall he honor. (Read all of the eleventh chapter of Daniel. If you haven't read it lately it may be a surprise to you.)

How long shall this evil king prosper? Until the indignation be accomplished, 11:36.

Jacob's trouble, the terrible persecution of the Jews takes place during the tribulation period, and is called the "time of the end", "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation", 12:1; "tribulation such as was not since the world began, no, nor ever shall be", Matt. 24:21, 22. This time of trouble extends over all the earth. Matt. 24:22 says that except those days should be shortened there should no flesh be saved. The only ones who will escape this time of trouble will be those who have been perfected, and are ready to rule and reign with Christ. When the call goes forth, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him", the bride will hear the call, 1 Thess 4:15-17; for the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. (Note that He comes alone at this coming and does not come to the earth.) Then will this prophecy of Isa. 26: 20, 21 meet its fulfillment. Come, my people, enter thou into thy chamber, shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, (how long?) until the indignation be overpast; So we find that the bride of Christ shall be hid during the tribulation period. (Why?) Let the Scriptures answer the question. God says, "Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I will also keep thee from the hour of trial that shall come upon all the world to try them that dwell upon the earth, until the tribulation period is ended.

After the church has been removed and the reign of the antichrist begins, transgression will have come to the full. It is a dark picture, but it has a silver lining even though the unwise virgins who had their lamps but no oil must go through the trial. Many shall be purified and made white, and we see a still brighter picture.

Immediately after the tribulation of those days, not before or during the tribulation, but immediately after, shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven, and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory, Matt. 24:29, 30. Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of His saints to execute justice and judgment with the coming of the Messiah in power. Gentile world-dominion ends. The antichrist will be consumed with the spirit of His mouth and be destroyed by the brightness of His coming. The kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ, and of that kingdom there will be no end.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

AGAIN I use The Herald to thank the many friends for Christmas Greetings. As yet we have been unable to reply to a half of them individually.

F. L. Austin.

* * * *

SAMPLE COPY WEEK

REMEMBER, next week is Sample Copy Week. Send in names with complete addresses and a paper will be sent.

* * * *

TRUTH SEEKERS' SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

LESSON Number Two for the first quarter of 1927 will be found in this issue of The Herald. Orders for nearly 1100 copies have been received for this first issue. This is evidence that the people are anxious to receive a real quarterly. But this evidence throws responsibility yet more heavily upon the shoulders of those responsible for the production of this service. Every effort has been put forth to make this quarterly a real help in the study of the lessons selected by the International Committee on Sunday School Lessons.

On account of the unavoidable delay occasioned by death and sickness the date of printing was forced over into the congestion of holiday work. To avoid possible lateness on this account Lesson Number One has been mailed in advance to all schools which ordered. We hope to mail the Quarterlies within a week.

* * * *

"SOUL IS UNSOLVABLE"

MAN'S Heart seems to be the controlling force in human anatomy, but science will never solve the mystery of the soul. This view was expressed by Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher, professor of surgery at Loyola University. Dr. Kreuscher was asked to comment on the statement of Dr. Charles Mayo, of Rochester, Minnesota, that "science is baffled by the soul".

Dr. Kreuscher also said, "I do not believe science will ever determine what controls life and makes the human body run."

The above is taken from the Chicago "Herald Examiner" of Dec. 27, and we agree that science will never fathom the soul so long as they work upon the assumption that the soul is a vital living entity separate and distinct from the body. We invite science to a study of the Bible if they wish light on this subject.—F. A. S.

ADIEU—FOREVER

WITH this issue THE HERALD bids adieu to the grand old year Nineteen Hundred Twenty-Six, with no privilege of ever re-entering its portals again. It is gone—never to return. All of its grand opportunities, its stores of untold treasures, its suns of cheering brightness and of glowing warmth, its clouds of sombre black and moistening rains, its golden days of labor, its silvery moon-lit eves of song and meditation, its leaden nights of peaceful rest and restoration—all for service that glows the heart, strengthens power, ripens life—these all have passed. And as the God of Heaven, standing guard at this exit door, watches you and me step out—forever—the searching question from His ever-merciful face, "What have you done in the use of these days of added life to aid Me in preparation for the great, unmeasured eternity?" strikes deeply into life's heart.

What of peace and good-will; what of charity and mercy; what of gentleness and goodness; what of forbearance with the mistakes and errors of others; what of fellowship that voluntarily places another heart and shoulder beneath the common loads and labors of life, fellowship that shames the spirit of back-biting and evil thought—what of these have you and I, in the name of Him whose natal day we have just observed, contributed to rectify earth's wrongs and to uphold its glorious God-given truths?

On either side of the pathway of the year have been walls of wailing alternated by glittering sun-lit fields mottled with cooling shades. Against those "wailing-walls" we have passed the saddened lives of "children" of God who, weakened by despair, have by compulsion halted momentarily life's march and, unable longer to refrain, have sought relief by welling the pent-up tears. Your life and mine, have they added more of strain, and brought nearer to the point of breaking those hearts high loaded with responsibility and toil, or have you and I with

(Continued on page 206, column 2)

* * * *

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. John Kirker; Mrs. G. W. Simpson; Emma Tilley; Dale Rouch; Frank W. Wilson; Mrs. May Moore; Mrs. Maggie Jacobs; Mrs. A. D. Hanna; Mrs. J. B. Gaspar; Mrs. Bert Sheets; Mrs. Ada Simpson; Mrs. L. H. Ralston; John Fyfe; Mrs. F. W. Burchell; Mrs. R. C. Kirkley; John H. Hampton; Manson Huffer; Miss Belle McCandles; Hugh Huffer; Mrs. Thelma Stout; Mrs. T. Pascoe; Mrs. Richard Simonds; Luther Vale; Mrs. Herman Lewis; Mrs. E. E. Bradney; Humbert Bradney; S. T. Shirley; Mrs. N. A. Church; Mary Weldon; Mrs. W. H. Davis; Inez Walker; John P. Long; Effie M. Long; Sarah E. Smith; Samuel Metheny; Mary E. Carter; Henry Zentz; O. P. Clough; Mrs. E. A. Morgan; Harley Cramer; Grace West.

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

It would almost appear, from the correspondence of the past two weeks, that more people read our page in the issue of December 14, when there was nothing on it, than ordinarily read it when it is full! Good, that's why we did it, and we're glad to find out that the page is looked at occasionally, anyway.

* * * *

But please remember that your Berean Editor was appointed to edit the page, not to produce all the copy. Other societies are interested in your society, so let us know what is going on.

* * * *

One of our well-known Berean workers sends in the following:

KEEPING CHRISTMAS

Are you trying to stoop down and consider the needs and the desires of little children; to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself if you love them enough; to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear on their hearts; to try to understand what those who live in the same house with you really want, without waiting for them to tell you; to trim your lamp so that it will give more light and less smoke, and to carry it in front so that your shadow will fall behind you; to make a grave for your ugly thoughts, and a garden for your kindly feelings, with the gate open—are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas. Are you willing to believe that love is the strongest thing in the world—stronger than hate, stronger than death—and that the blessed life which began in Bethlehem over nineteen hundred years ago, is the image and brightness of Eternal Love? Then you can keep Christmas. And if you keep it for a day, why not always. But you can never keep it alone.—Henry Van Dyke.

* *

Good news drifts in from the Casey, Illinois, Berean Class. Although only a few weeks old this class is doing good work, and the attendance is very gratifying.

* * * *

Lesson 53, Man's Day, furnishes food for a great deal of thought and study. Two special days, or periods, are given emphasis in the Scriptures, Man's Day (the present) and the Lord's Day (in the future). The frequent expression, "Lord's Day" as applied to Sunday or the first day of the week, has no Scriptural foundation whatever. The Scriptural term does not refer to a day of the week, but to a day or period of God's judgments, in contrast to this, the day of man's judgments and the defilement of man.

* * * *

Consider carefully the memory verse, 1 Cor. 4:3, "But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment (day, margin): yea, I judge not mine own self." If a man is serving in carnal pursuits for carnal ends, then he is dependent upon the judgment of men, else success cannot possibly be his. But Paul was explaining that his concern was not to rank high in man's eyes, but "He that judgeth me is the Lord."

* * * *

I sadly fear that too many of us who call ourselves Christians have been roped in by the prevailing tendency and sentiment of man's day, and are overly anxious as to our own standing in the judgment of men. From the human standpoint it is beautiful and pleasant, of course, to be idolized and patted on the back by the people with whom we associate. But he who plays to the crowd in that way receives what he serves for, and that praise of man is his reward. Paul was working for a different kind of reward, and even though man might criticize, yet the reward for which he served was more than worth all the toil and heartache he might undergo.

* *

But I like to remember that Paul had friends,—real, true, close, personal friends. He did not play to the popularity of the crowd; he did not ally himself with the sentiment and tendency of man's day,—but there were those who admired his ability, his character, his fearlessness to stand for the right, and he was loved by them. After all, how much richer and sweeter it is to be truly understood and loved by a few, than simply to have the short-lived and empty acclaim of the throng!

* * * *

But there is another side to this same subject of man's judgment. Many a person has been disheartened and discouraged for life's tasks because those who should have encouraged and cheered him have condemned. We judge to-day, and condemn, by the things that we see and hear. Because of this oftentimes our judgment is
(Continued on page 206, column 1)

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON II.—January 9, 1927

THE STANDARD OF CHRISTIAN LIVING

Luke 6:27-38

Devotional Reading: Matthew 5:10.

GOLDEN TEXT

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psa. 119:105.

SCRIPTURE LESSON TEXT.

LUKE 6:27-38

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING.

Time. In midsummer.

Place. Probably "the Horns of Hattin", Kurn Hattin, a double-peaked hill west of the Sea of Galilee. The level space below the double crest may be "the plain", 6:17, of which Luke speaks.

Circumstances. Following His temptation Christ's startling miracles had attracted all. Humble ones were humbled more; haughty ones were maddened. Having spent the night in the mountain in prayer, after choosing out twelve apostles, Luke 6:12-16, He comes down to "the plain" where a great multitude have come to learn of Him. To this fervent, eager multitude He teaches, for the first, those astounding truths.

A STUDY OF THE LESSON TEXT.

27. But I. Emphasis on "I" in emphatic contrast with Jewish teachers who had interpreted God's word at Lev. 19:18 to mean, love friends and hate enemies. Matt. 5:43. You which hear. Heed; hear with intention of putting into practice." Love. Greek "agapao", to regard; esteem; cherish with reverence." (See Study of the Subject.) Love your enemies. Do them good; have kind regard for their rights and needs; "If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again."—Ex. 23:4. "If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat."—Prov. 25:21. The lack of such love is the open door which turns loose and encourages every known thought and act of sin. Do good. Do well for them; that which is for their good. Hate you. The opposite of love. Love draws extremes together, hate scatters asunder; love unites, harmonizes, builds, perfects, while hate disintegrates, confuses, razes, blights. For inspired explanation read Rom. 12:19-21.

28. Bless. "Speak well of, praise."—Crit. Lex. Curse. "To wish or pray against anyone"; to wish evil toward. Despitefully use. To threaten; to insult.

29. "Resist not evil". Matt. 5:39. The Scriptures regard men as equals. Parent has authority over child; governments have rights over subjects; God is supreme over man. But the children of a home are equals; the subjects of a nation are equals. All in their respective classes should refer wrongs to their common head. But Adam's sons and Christ's followers are of different families and have different methods of government. Christ requests that all wrongs of Christians shall be peacefully adjusted by submission to Him, and that evils imposed by the Adam family shall be endured, till God, the rightful Avenger, shall act. Rom. 12:19.

Coak. Outer robe. Coat. Tunic, under, less expensive, linen garment.

30. Give. Love for one's brother man is given as the prompting motive that should inspire the conduct in all these instructions, including that to give. Compare 1 Cor. 13, where "charity" is "love".

31. And as ye would desire that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. This is the one comprehensive standard of life for His followers. It can be maintained only as one is prompted by true love toward all. Compare John 3:16.

32. Love them which love you. Common custom among all classes.

33. Love enemies. Uncommon practice. Such will be adopted, Rom. 8:15, to become children of the Highest, who too is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil.

36. Merciful. "Pitiful, compassionate for the ills of others." Greek word occurs only here and James 5:11, meaning "tender mercy". Is this a divine explanation of Matt. 5:48, where, after Matthew records the same general teachings, he says, "Be perfect"; that is, complete, full grown, finished? Is this perfection enjoined as regards full compassion toward others as the Father is compassionate toward all?

37. Not. This word here is a double negative, meaning positively, do not. Judge not not be judged. Do not decide against, for you are to be perfectly merciful. Condemn. The result of "judging"; "the decision arrived at; the sentence pronounced". Do not do it; instead, do as you would that men should do to you: "be merciful". True justice requires that one shall be judged according to the same rule by which he judges. Read Matt. 7:1-5. Forgive. Forgiveness is the one only way by which any person, other than Jesus, can become Christian, or be saved. "Forgive and ye shall be forgiven." "If ye forgive not neither will your heavenly Father forgive" you, Matt. 6:14-15. Give given. Give not only food and raiment, but "love", blessing, prayer, "good", "mercy", and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down running over.

Greater than Moses. Christ gave a construction regarding the words of Moses different from any that had ever before been presented. He did so, Matt. 7:29, as one having authority. Our lesson committee has selected Christ's interpretation of certain Mosaic words as the standard of Christian living. Christ's words here evidently place Christian living above and beyond Old Testament living; for Christ introduced into Moses' words far more than did Moses himself. Christ's proffered effort to alter the Mosaic code so as to harmonize with His standard of life seemed like a man endeavoring to put a patch of new cloth upon an old garment, it didn't work. Not that Christ endeavored to do something which resulted in failure, but that He proved by His interpretation or application that a conversion of Old Testament rules unto His standard was not only inopportune, but ineffective. Accordingly, in due time, He later established a New Covenant in which He is the sole leader, as Moses was the sole leader of the Old. Christ was never authorized of God to displace Moses as leader under the Old Covenant. Until Christ had established a New Covenant He was not a new perfected Leader, nor had He established a new standard. Till then His words and works clearly revealed the coming of something far greater than the words and leadership of Moses. This greater word was found in the New Covenant and its law. It is to this new standard, not to the old Mosaic standard, that Christians should look for guidance in following Christ.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

The Standard of Christian Living. To Christ must be granted the right to set His standard of Christianity. None other has any right or privilege of modifying, amending or in any least way changing His standard. To obtain Christian blessing, one must conform to the Christian standard of living. In the Bible and the Bible only has His standard been recorded.

Love. Repeatedly did Christ designate love as the one great commandment of service. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart thy neighbor as thyself."—Matt. 22:37-40. "Love your enemies", Matt. 5:44; "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity (love) it profiteth me nothing."—1 Cor. 13:1-3 to 13.

What It Is. Love in all of this class of texts is from the Greek word "agapao". According to the Critical Lexicon its meaning is, to regard, to esteem, to reverence, to love. It has no reference to the emotion, or passion of love. The Greek word for expressing love as an emotion (either pure or impure), is "phileo". Phileo seems to be selective in its application; agapao is general. When John wrote, 3:16, that God "loved the world" and arranged whereby "whosoever" desired might be saved, he used the word "agapao"; but God's love for those who especially pleased Him, John 16:27, is described by the word "phileo".

"Love" in this study is the love that sanely and justly regards and esteems every man, and expresses that esteem by true service.

Exercised toward Enemies. We patiently and tenderly aid the neighbor prostrated by fever. Like service should be pressed upon the one prostrated by sin, or by enmity, or by cursing.

Such is love according to Christ's established standard.

Exercised toward All. Were all to love all others, there could be no enmity, no cruelty, no offense, no strife, no personal or national wars. Universal love would be universal peace. This condition will yet prevail under Christ's coming rule of righteousness. In the meantime, Christ is calling to His aid a select people of faith in Him and His ways whom He is empowering, preparing, and qualifying to rule with Him in the work of restoring man to a day of complete peace, love. These people are to comply with this new standard now. It is their way of serving Christ by serving His friends and His enemies. Such service approves them for His future needs.

Results. 1. Upon others. It manifests to them the love and mercy of the all-powerful God and of those allied with God.

2. Upon Self. Love suffers long—it is kind; it envieth not—it is contented; it thinketh no evil—it is peaceable; it beareth all things—it is patient; it believeth all things—it is confident; it hopeth all things—it has vision, faith; it endureth all things—it is victorious; it never fails.

Love fills one with that upon which all works and promises of the law and the prophets depend.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

"Thy word is a lamp (lantern) unto my feet, and a light unto my path." But be sure your feet are on the right path. Did you ever go out on a dark night with a lantern? The light did not shine far, just a few steps ahead of you. So it is with God's word; we cannot see far ahead, but as we proceed along the path of righteousness it keeps far enough ahead to light our way. A light will reveal the hidden things. So does God's word. Some love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil and everyone that doeth evil hateth the light. Christ was a lamp for He was the light of the world, and if His words dwell in you richly, you will also be a lamp to others.

Be asking, and it shall be given you: be seeking, and ye shall find: be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.—

Rotherham) Matt. 7:7.

The thought seems to be one of perseverance in asking, seeking, and knocking. Keep on asking. It is because of persistence that He will answer. But know ye that God is our Father and knows what we have need of before we ask. He knows what is best for us. He does not always answer in accordance with our will, but in harmony with His own great will. He sometimes says, "No." He granted to Israel a king when they asked. Do you think it was for their good?

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

There are several standards presented in the Bible. God is the Originator of all. They differ for different people and for different times. To Noah was given one standard; to Israel another; to the Christian another.

Christ took the standard of Moses and showed how there must needs be changes in it to conform to His standard for His followers.

The teachings of Moses were a God-given standard for high-quality national structure. They were principally given for that purpose. There are none better anywhere. Everywhere statesmen of highest rank so affirm.

The teachings of Christ are a God-given standard for church and for individual development and for such they must be adopted. In many particulars they are different from those of Moses, being greater. They cannot be applied en masse to national use. No nation of to-day could long survive on Christ's standard. Therefore, it is impossible for Church and State to be united in this age.

APPLICATION

Let us heartily adopt the highest standard presented by God.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES.

Topic: Christ's Christianity Is for Man.

Christ was God's spokesman on the subject of Christianity. The standard He gave was God's standard. None other will do.

Love, as defined by "good will" and "helpful service", is the framework around which this standard is built.

With perfect love toward God, one heartily adds faith, repentance, baptism, and a new life of service: all in glad oneness with Him.

With perfect love toward man—all men—one turns the wounded heart and the numbed cheek away that he may present the unwounded side with which to render the service of help.

Man has termed this, "The Golden Rule".

Grasping the standard of Christ is like grasping the hand-rail of a passing train, it takes you with it. Therefore,

"Be ye perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

INTERMEDIATE CLASS.

Topic: Christianity Is Man's Great Aid.

Every cow, canary, cat, or cabbage shown at a County Fair or World Exposition that possesses the prescribed characteristics is given the "Blue Ribbon". Someone competent names the required markings. These characteristics are not given to hold any back—they are given to announce the good and acceptable. Every entry getting the "Blue Ribbon" is better—not for the ribbon, but for being fit to be in that class designated by it.

God has shown the markings that fit one worthy of salvation. Salvation is the "Blue Ribbon"; it is First Prize. The qualifying marks are named and taught in the Christian standard, the Gospel. Christ has given the standard. None can change it. It is called, "The Golden Rule". Everyone is better if possessing every mark named therein, applying its full measure. One of these marks is "love"; another is "forgiveness". People who are trying for this "prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus", Phil. 3:14, must have these marks, this standard, to win. There are others: faith, repentance, baptism, Christian life.

Study God's Bible of life-rules to learn His standard and His many ways to help young people to become perfect therein.

JUNIOR CLASS.

Topic: The Only Rule for Christians.

Christ was a man created by God just as the first man Adam was created by God. He was created in a different way, but created, nevertheless.

God has told through Christ the rules for becoming—not a lawyer, nor a doctor, nor a farmer—but a Christian man. And Christian men will be given "eternal life", Rom. 6:23. These rules are given in the Bible for reasons similar to those reasons for which rules are printed in your arithmetic: they are facts; they describe the only way to work the problem, or live the life; they should be known.

Christ's rules become the standard of Christian life. He gave them because they are true. Any different, opposing, rules are false. Therefore, there is no Christian standard other than Christ's.

Christ gives a standard that one is able to keep if he so desires. Like a kind, faithful teacher, He is always ready and keen His rules. His standard. This and anxious to teach, help, even forgive and bless the one who really tries to learn is what is called, "The Golden Rule". "Golden" probably because gold has great value.

Love God, love man—friend and enemy—believe God, repent, be baptized, live Christ's life. These are some of the rules for Christian life which, if heeded, result in salvation.

Learn them. Live them.

TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION.

Christ's standards—for acceptance.

The inadequacy of judicial law.

The adequacy of the perfect law of God.

Christianity as a world influence for this age and coming ages.

QUESTIONS.

Define a standard.

Is there a standard of Christian living? If so, by whose authority?

Is it practical? for our day? Has priest, king, or layman the right to change it?

Name several points in Christ's standard.

What is Bible love? What assurance have we that the exercise of love, kindness, etc., toward evil doers will not encourage the doing of evil?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

In response to a request, Bro. F. L. Austin hopes to speak at the Baptist church at Rochelle, Ill., Sunday, Jan. 9.

* * *

Glad word reaches The Herald that Bro. R. C. Railsback of South Bend, Indiana, is considerably improved after his recent attack of sickness.

* * *

Bro. Everett Stilson of the Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., is spending the Holidays with his parents, Bro. and Sr. F. A. Stilson, at Oregon.

Recent reports stated that the two older children of Mr. and Mrs. Evo Compson of the Blanchard, Mich., church were seriously low with scarlet fever.

* * *

Sr. Susan Williams of Ashton, Ill., is spending another winter in Golden Rule Home. This is her third winter there and she says that she likes it the best of all.

* * *

Bro. and Sr. W. L. Austin of Oregon went to her parents, Bro. and Sr. C. A. Stowe, Holbrook, Nebr., for the holidays.

Mrs. Austin expects to extend her visit for a few weeks.

* * *

Bro. J. Arthur Johnson, of The Herald force, was in Indiana over the week end looking after personal matters. He also was expecting to speak in the Burr Oak Church last Sunday morning and evening.

* * *

Sr. Hugh Shafer and six others from Plymouth and South Bend, Indiana, not quite content to fully break up the customary Christmas gathering of the family, drove in to Bro. and Sr. F. A. Stilson's, Oregon, at nine o'clock Christmas night. Sr. Shafer was anxious to see her daughters, Sisters Stilson and Thayer, and her grandchildren on Christmas Day.

* * *

THE SERVANT AND MESSENGER

Dear Editor and Friends: The Weekly Servant has just arrived. May we who love the Lord, never in this evil world get too old to learn.

Our Weekly Messenger always has good food for the hungry soul and meet for the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your heart through faith.

Your brother in hope of life when the Chief Shepherd shall appear,

R. A. Humphreys.

* * *

LETTER TO THE CHURCH

Dear Brothers and Sisters: I am still in the race for Eternal Life and have a hard road to travel. My wife died one year ago, leaving me to take care of our little girl. I can't get to work much of my time, but have not suffered much yet. I want all to pray for me that I may be able to take care of her. Please send me a letter or a card. I do like to get a letter from any of the brothers or sisters, as they seem so near to me. The kingdom will soon be here. Will you be there? I want to meet you there.

Your brother in Christ,

J. W. Garret,
Greenville, South Carolina, Rt. 3.

* * *

GREETINGS

(Too late for Christmas number)

Dear Brethren and Sisters: I wish to greet each one through The Restitution Herald and wish all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I enjoy The Herald so much I can hardly wait for each copy to come. It is the only preacher I have here in an isolated place. We have no church near here of our faith. And the Restitution Herald seems a God-Send to me and my little boys. They

We now have a good start on the second $1000.00. Each stone laid represents $50.00. Let's see that the steps are finished soon.

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $-----, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name -----

Street -----

Post Office -----

State ----- Date -----

read the Children's Page and greatly enjoy it.

I want to say that it certainly takes bravery in these trying times to stand firm, for there is everything to try and pull one away from the faith these days, so it seems.

I often get so sad and discouraged here, for there is no one to turn to who believes as we do. But after I take all to God in prayer I am rid of a burden.

Won't some of you dear sisters write to a poor, old, lonely, aged sister out here. She is a member of the Church of God. But I just had a letter from her and she is so lonely and so crippled-up she can't get to church and lives all alone. She is nearly eighty years old. Send her a word of cheer, as she loves to read good Christian letters. Her address is, Mrs. M. E. Kendall, Hamilton, Montana, 502 N. 2nd St.

I often wish that we could have a good minister here somewhere close. But this is a thinly settled country and most all around are Catholics and Lutherans.

I would like to have you continue sending The Herald and will send you the money as soon as I can, as I don't want to miss a copy—it is so interesting now.

With Christian love.

A Sister in Christ.

Mrs. Iva B. Poff,

Ringling, Montana.

* * *

GREETING AND EXHORTATION

Dear Brethren: As the joyous Christmas season draws near, we are again reminded of the precious gift of God's dear Son to us that we might have life. If we accept this gift we may gain eternal life and dwell with Him through the countless ages of eternity.

Dear reader, do you want to fit yourself for the Kingdom of God? God will do His part. He is the Potter and we are the clay. If we yield to Him He will make us into goodly vessels fit for the house of the Lord. If we resist and try to have our own will instead of the Lord's we may become marred in His hands, and if we become too much marred, we might become vessels fitted to destruction.

At this season when we give our gifts let us have the true Christmas spirit and not give for show. Giving where needed, and giving useful presents would be pleasing to God.

Let us not forget the greatest gift ever given.

Your sister in Christ,

Hanna Barber.

* * *

THE NEW YEAR

We are nearing the close of the Old Year and are stepping into the door of a New Year. Will we be able to look back upon this year and feel that it has been worth while to live? Have we made the world better by our acts of love and true fellowship? Have we boosted the cause of righteousness, helped the weary workers, or hindered them because of our own selfish aims? Have you realized a little more the real needs of the home life and are you becoming more and better acquainted with the children God has given you? Do they come to you with their little childish troubles—so very real to them—asking for sympathy and help to bear it all? Do you give them the love they are craving? They will soon be away from the home tree, out in the cold, wide world. Let them know now that love always awaits them where Father and Mother are.

Did you stop, just the other day, to help lift that weak, weary brother, and show him there was yet hope and help for him, or did you pass him coldly by and leave him to die, hungry for human sympathy?

Have you written that letter to the sick shut-ins? O, Old Year, how many faults we would like you to cover up, and help this clean New Year to show us our mistakes and help us overcome them by doing much better in the days of 1927.

M. A. Woodward.

* * *

WANTED! HELP WANTED!

A Christian young man, single, willing to commence at the bottom and learn the business thoroughly—in its mechanical, clerical and selling departments—and then specialize where best adapted and most needed.

For this position a Christian young man is wanted who—

Is Clean, Honest, Industrious—with a Vision;

Has a High School Education or Better;

Is good in Spelling, Grammar and Rhetoric;

Has an eye to the Artistic;

Is Accurate—but NOT Slow;

Is a Good Business Mixer;

INTENDS TO MAKE GOOD.

The Restitution Herald needs such a young man. It will pay living wages from the start and increase as proficiency warrants.

A good place for a good man.

Address

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

* * *

On these pages items pertaining to church work and church people that are of interest and benefit in general will be printed from week to week. It is of much more benefit to the work to announce appointments in advance than it is to merely announce afterward that a service has been held.

The objective of these pages is to boost the work and encourage workers.

Each congregation will do well to select some one to keep the brotherhood informed of its local aims and progress, its problems and encouragements. Try to get all copy into The Herald office by Friday—not later than Saturday—of each week.

ANNUITY BONDS

FOR MAKING GIFTS

For information regarding the advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON - ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

THE STANDARD OF CHRISTIAN LIVING

By Daisy Nokes

IN to-day's lesson Jesus said, "Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you." This is a good verse for us to learn.

Some little girls and boys find it very hard to obey, but Jesus is the pattern that we are to follow and He loved His enemies, and God gave Him a reward. All little children, if they will follow Jesus now, will some day receive a reward.

Some little folks love their friends, but hate their enemies. Is this right? To hate enemies is not the Jesus way and it will make enemies. Jesus tells all to show by their lives that they are following Him.

If a boy hits you and you hit him back, you are not obeying Jesus, you are not trying to "overcome evil with good". Once a man slapped Jesus. He never slapped back, but told the man something that would be for him good.

Jesus never did or said a wrong thing and He always said what was good for people when He talked. Many times He kept still when people were unkind to Him and that is the best way for us to do.

The lesson tells us not to "pay evil for evil", or "get even". If you try being kind to your enemies, after a time it will make them ashamed of their ways. If you have kindness in your heart, their unkind words or acts will do you no harm.

The most wonderful rule ever given is the golden rule, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." There would be very little trouble in this world if all would follow this rule, but selfish people will not obey it.

If the mothers would teach their children when little this rule, there would be no stealing, no fault-finding, no bad stories about others, no murders, etc., so you see when men are bad, we know that there was something wrong with their training when they were little folks. It is not enough for mothers and fathers to read this rule to children, but it must be given in babyhood so that it will touch the heart, and start the love seeds growing. It takes a little more time, but it is far more important than houses or lands.

Another thing Jesus tells us is to be careful about judging others, and not to find fault with one another. Do people ever think that you mean to do wrong when you do not? Some are too ready to think that others mean to do wrong. This is not right, so we must not judge others in this way. When they do us wrong we must forgive and pray for them as Jesus did.

THE MYSTERIES OF ANCIENT DAYS

By George Johnston

No. 4.

IT is obvious that the older the world has grown, the more difficult it has become to solve certain problems. Could we communicate with individuals who lived in the early days of the Adamic age they could supply us very quickly with more information concerning the relationship of the various races of men, and many other questions that are puzzling the minds of scientists to-day, than they could hope to gain by many years of laborious research and study. While it is impossible for us to communicate with those who have departed this life it is not impossible for them to communicate with us; and they have left us in their writings the answers to many of our problems. In the ancient literature of the Hebrews, and other nations of Western Asia, of the Hindus, the Greeks, and the Egyptians, there are many references to pre-Adamic people, and even in our Bible allusions to them occur.

Of all the ancient writings, few, if any, supply us with fuller and clearer information concerning early days than the Book of Enoch. From that book we not only learn that people of another race entered the garden of Eden, but also what they did there, and how their actions affected Adam and his descendants.

Most of the contents of the Book of Enoch are embodied in the Scriptures, and literal quotations from it occur in Jude, and in other books, both of the Old and New Testaments, showing that it was not only regarded by the Hebrews as part of their sacred literature, but that it had a very large circle of readers. Had the Book of Enoch been in circulation a few centuries ago it is probable that many of the religious and scientific beliefs current to-day would never have been heard of, but, unfortunately, it disappeared from public cognizance some thirteen centuries ago, and was only brought to light again in 1773, when a copy, written in the ancient language of Ethiopia, was found in an Abyssinian monastery. It was not, however, until 1821, that a translation by Archbishop Lawrence of Cashel, Ireland, appeared, but owing to the belief then prevalent that the arts of reading and writing were unknown in early days, it was not given the attention or the credence which it deserves. Lawrence's translation was, naturally, somewhat inaccurate, and it is only within modern times that Enoch's book has been successfully interpreted. One Ethiopic word, however, of but two letters baffled all attempts at elucidation, and not until the present year has its real meaning been ascertained. That word is "ir", a word which occurs in various Semitic languages, and in many ancient writings. It also appears three times in Daniel 4, where it is translated "watcher", though what meaning we are supposed to attach to this term is would be difficult to determine.

In the preceding article it was pointed out that among the sounds which certain Semitic nations were unable to properly produce was that indicated in the Hebrew alphabet by Tzaddi (tz). When it formed the ending of a word they transformed it into du; if it occurred at the beginning it was dropped altogether. Recognizing this fact we add to ir the missing sound, and have the Hebrew word tzir, which means a foreigner; one from beyond Eretz. Tzir was used to denote both angelic and human visitants, but when it was applied to the former it was always preceded or followed by the word holy. The word tzir occurs but once in our Bible, Joshua 9:4, and there it is translated ambassador, a term which is very nearly correct; for an ambassador is never a native of the land at whose court he officiates.

When we clearly understand what ir means there is little difficulty in learning the identity of the deceiver of Eve, of the writers of the earliest cuneiform records, of the giants referred to in Genesis 4:4, and of other ancient people.

In various parts of the Book of Enoch we read of the invasion of Western Asia, in the days of Adam and Eve, by numerous ir, and in chapter sixty-nine we are supplied with the names of the leaders of these invaders, and a description of their actions:

"The name of the first, Jeqon: that is the one who led astray all the sons of God, and brought them down to the ground, and led them astray through the daughters of men. And the second was named Asbeel: he imparted to the sons of God evil counsel, and led them astray so that they defiled their bodies with the daughters of men. And the third was Gadreel: he it is who showed the children of Adam all the blows of death, and he led astray Eve, and showed the shield and the coat of mail, and the sword for battle, and all the weapons of death to the children of Adam. And from his hand they have proceeded against those who dwell in Eretz from that day, and for evermore. And the fourth was named Penemue: he taught the children of Adam the bitter and the sweet, and he taught them all the secrets of their wisdom. And he instructed them in writing with ink and paper, and thereby many sinned . . . And the fifth was named Kasdeya: this is he who showed the children of Adam all the wicked smittings of spirits and demons, and all the smittings of the embryo in the womb, that it may pass away, and the bites of the serpent, and the smittings which befall through the noontide heat, the son of the serpent named Tabeat."

These are certainly strange statements; but, perhaps, the most remarkable is that concerning Gadreel, whom we are told "led astray Eve". For many centuries the world has been taught to believe that Eve was led astray by a serpent, but here we are told—what our common sense might have caused us to understand—that it was an ordinary human being, a serpent-worshiper, who deceived the mother of the white race.

Who those people were, and where they came from, will be explained in the next article.

NAME OF THE CHURCH

By J. W. Burgett

JESUS saith unto the apostles, But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said: Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

"And Jesus answered and said unto him: Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona:: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matt. 16:16-18.

Christ is the rock upon which He built His church (not churches). He also said that the gates of hell should not prevail against it (not them). Only one rock; only one church.

And on the day of Pentecost, fifty days after Jesus went into heaven, the apostles were baptized with the Holy Ghost, and upon that very day there were added to the church about three thousand souls, Acts 2:41, 47.

These scriptures prove that the church was in existence at that time. But before that time, before He died, before He went into heaven, Jesus prayed to the Father and said, "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are." John 17:11. The Father gave to Jesus the church, and Jesus prayed to His Father, asking the Father to name the church by the Father's name. The prayers of Jesus were always answered, for Jesus said, "Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me, and I know that thou hearest me always." John 11:41, 42.

Wherefore, Paul exhorts the brethren to feed the church of God, which He (Christ) purchased with His own blood. Therefore God has answered the prayers of Jesus and named the church by His (the Father's) name.

Paul also said, "I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God." 1 Cor. 15:9. Those who stoned Stephen to death laid their clothes at the feet of Paul, for he was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem: as for Saul (Paul) he made havoc of the church. Acts 8:1-3. Paul said later: "For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jew's religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it." Gal. 1:13. Saul was a disbeliever in Christ and was the leader of those who persecuted the church of God, but Jesus converted Saul and called his name Paul. Paul also wrote letters "To the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints." 1 Cor. 1:2; 2 Cor. 1:1.

Do you want more Scriptural evidence that the name of the church is the church of God? Here it is: Paul says, "Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, not to the church of God." 1 Cor. 10:32.

"Judge in yourselves, Is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered? Does not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him? But if a woman have long hair it is a glory to her: for her hair is given for a covering. But if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God." 1 Cor 11:13-16.

If your stomach is empty, fill it at home, for Paul says that you should not eat the Lord's supper when you are hungry, or drink wine till you are drunken. He says, "What? have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God." 1 Cor. 11:22.

Yes! We have two more evidences that the name of the church is the church of God. For we read that the Thessalonian brethren became followers of the churches of God. 1 Thess. 2:14. And Paul said in 1 Tim. 3:5, "If a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?"

"Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it." Eph. 5:25.

"And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence." Col. 1:18.

BEREAN ITEMS CONTINUED

(Continued from the Berean Page)

totally wrong. Having observed some human weakness in a person who claims to be striving for noble heights, we shrug our shoulders, lift our eyebrows and wag our tongues. And many times our feeling and action is completely unjustified, because the person before God was innocent of any actual wrong. When you and I are done with life it will be much better for us if our record shows that we have done our best to encourage others, even to the extent of overlooking an actual wrong, than that we have discouraged by suspecting a wrong that never existed.

* * * *

If, however, you are one of those who feel themselves to be falsely condemned, just remember that the condemnation is the judgment of man's day, and, after all, what does it matter? If you are doing your best before God to be noble, let man say or do what he will. The heavenly Father looks down into the heart. He knows the motive, the purpose, the effort, the sacrifice. If you do not fear to stand in the "Lord's Day", why be afraid of "Man's Day"? Press nobly on in spite of it all, and be kind even to those who make it the hardest for you.

* * * *

There are three kinds of givers: the flint, the sponge, and the honeycomb. To get anything out of the flint you must hammer it and then you get only chips and sparks. To get water out of a sponge you must squeeze it and the more you squeeze the more you will get. But the honeycomb just overflows with its sweetness.—A Church Bulletin.

"The harvest of life depends in part upon to-day's sowing and cultivating."

ADIEU FOREVER

(Continued from the Editorial Page)

joyful mein paused to bind their wounded member or to mend their broken toy, paused to dry the tears with sweet words and acts of friendly sympathy and start them again on life's way of glad service?

The Grand Old Year is finished. But He who stands at its out-passing door holds before us one all-gracious word: "Forgiveness." In the name of His dear Son He will blot out forever every wrong that is truly repented of. Before passing from this room of life to the next, into which all must enter, let us each pause before Him who is the God of the universe and obtain His merciful pardon for the sin-stains of the year just finished; and pass into the New, washed in and through His Son who taketh away the sin of the world. Thus with error cancelled and with some "credits" granted let us pass on to 1927 with hearts renewed by faith, to engage its days and nights of service and of opportunity as unto Him who died for us that we might share His victory through coming ages.

* * * *

A WELL ORGANIZED CHURCH

Just as all of the members of the body are needful, so also, says Paul in 1 Cor. 12:12-27, all of the members of the body of Christ, the church, are needful. God has a place and a work for every one. Not one is unnecessary. Those members which might by some seem to be less honorable are the more needed, says Paul, as he speaks by Christ, Gal. 1:12.

Every evidence is that God is perfecting the church, Eph. 4:12, for one of the greatest works in all of God's plans, and that man should by all means discover from that one only reliable source, the Bible, careful details of God's construction and maintenance thereof. The church is no organization of trivial and passing moment. It is the guardian of Christian life in the individual; it is the union of all of the members to bear the infirmities of the weak, to encourage the downhearted, to turn the erring brother to Him whose ways are right; it is the ambassador of Christ to a dying world.

With what prayer should the members of the several local units of the church gather from time to time to study the local needs and select and appoint officers from among its numbers for the Godly responsibilities of observing and providing for the needs of the whole church; men who will realize that they are stewards of God over members of the body of Christ.

Make your annual business meeting of the church one of the very highest importance and service.

COMMUNICATION

EDITOR, The Restitution Herald. Dear Sir: In your issue of November 23, you published a letter containing a question by one J. E. L. and I have waited to see an answer. He asks for an answer from one of your able writers and seeing none as yet have replied, another J. E. L. will submit one, not very able, of course, but I will submit it nevertheless.

He asks whether the thousand years spoken of in Revelation 20:6, 7 apply to the same period and time. Yes.

The sixth verse tells some things that will take place while Christ is reigning, or the saints are reigning with Christ and the seventh tells something that will follow.

I fail to see how any other conclusion can be drawn from the reading if we are to stick to the Word.

Again, he makes a statement not easy to be proved, viz., "Of those who believe in the rapture or calling away of the church—this view is a deviation from divine truth and void of prophetic facts and meaning." Matt. 24:40-41, "Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left." Notice the comparison between J. E. L.'s explanation and the one made by our Lord. J. E. L. says the unfaithful and unprepared will be taken, yes, taken unprepared, while the faithful and prepared will know the meaning of it. Now notice our Lord's explanation in Luke 17:37, when asked concerning the "Where". "Wheresoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together." Now, if your correspondent will turn to 1 Thess. 4:16, he may read, "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout . . . and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them (the ones raised) in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air".

Now, according to our Lord, who are the ones taken? And so, even as the eagles are attracted to a body or carcas, so the righteous are caught up to meet with their Lord. A joyful meeting? Well, I say so. The rapture? Most wonderful! Order regarding the transition? Most assuredly, Christ the firstfruits, afterward they that are Christ's (when?) at His coming. 1 Cor. 15:23.

Let us, then, dear brethren, make our calling and election sure (be sure you are in Christ) by repentance, faith, baptism, and arising to walk the new life in Christ Jesus, and continue faithful unto the end. Rev. 2:10 and others.

J. E. Lent.

Rt. 1, Ridgville, Ontario.

AS a fire goeth out if it be not maintained with wood; so, likewise, love groweth cold which is not mixed with good works.—Cawdray.

CURSED be the social lies that warp us from the living truth.—Tennyson.

HOW PROHIBITION IS DEBAUCHED

ACCORDING to a Poughkeepsie Associated Press dispatch of September 18, which appeared that day in The Evening Star, of Washington, D. C., Congressman Hamilton Fish, of the twenty-sixth New York district, who is a son of the Secretary of War of the same name in President Grant's Cabinet, had made a speech in Poughkeepsie the previous day, wherein he said:

"Prohibition enforcement in New York is a 'travesty'. Federal agents are chosen by wet district leaders of New York, and ninety per cent of them are alien-born and not in sympathy with the Eighteenth Amendment."

How unfortunate it is that the people are not permitted to know how completely prohibition enforcement is kept in wet hands! The foregoing meager press dispatch was so brief and inconspicuous as it appeared that it will escape the notice of most readers of the papers. It was apparently intended to do so.

If a Roman Catholic Tammany Hall Congressman, instead of an Episcopalian and Mason, had delivered a typical triade against prohibition and had included in it laudatory statement touching Secretary Mellon and his wet enforcement regime, it would have been reported in extenso and printed in the newspapers under startling headlines.

But a referendum is pending in New York to decide whether the people of that great state will obey the Constitution of the United States which their state legislature ratified. Under such conditions the press handles truth stated in a public speech by a dry Congressman with extreme caution. It is not permitted deeply to impress the voters.

The same day that Mr. Fish made the foregoing statement the Treasury Department virtually pleaded guilty to the charge of having turned New York State over to the wets. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews announced that Roscoe Conkling Harper, of Buffalo, was being appointed prohibition administrator for the New York district, with headquarters at Buffalo.

This magazine has no information as to whether Mr. Harper is any dryer than his wet predecessor appointed by the same man. But the change, whether for the better or the worse, gives the wet-controlled press an opportunity to divert attention from the shocking conditions denounced by a dry and patriotic Member of Congress and to impress the public that the wet Treasury Department is trying to improve the service.—The Protestant.

—THR—

LOOK out for the young man who speaks of his father as the "Governor," the "Squire," or the "Old Chap." Look out for the young woman who calls her mother "Maternal Ancestor," or the "Old Woman."

"The eye that mocketh at his father and refuseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out and the young eagles shall eat it."—Proverbs 30:17, Talmage.

THE PROGRESS OF ZIONISM

The New Palestine of December 10 prints this Editorial of the Baltimore Sun of November 26.

WE hope many of our readers have followed the articles Mr. Henry W. Nevinson has been writing on the Zionist experiment in Palestine.

They have been worthy of everyone's notice simply as tales of a journey in the land whose story is a tender and priceless possession of the vast majority of Christendom. Few there be, among the writers of our language, so gifted as Mr. Nevinson in technique and in background to recount the happenings of travel back and forth in that land.

But the articles from Mr. Nevinson's pen have had another value. They have given, we believe, the clearest picture that has been presented in this country of the life that is led by the pioneers in the attempt to rebuild a Jewish national home in the ancient home of the race. And what a picture!

Young men and young women, drawn almost wholly from nations in which the Jew has been oppressed for centuries and has been made a furtive dweller in the byways of great cities, are back upon the land, digging and planting and harvesting, making the rivers to yield them power; draining marshes to the dual end of guarding health and increasing tilable area; setting out trees in a sunny, dusty land, experimenting impartially with individualistic and communal settlements, avoiding hired labor—and all the while keeping in contact with the new movements of European thought.

Behind them grow villages and towns, planted to conform to meet the needs of a steadily spreading agriculture, and to produce the simpler necessities; behind the villages and towns stands Jerusalem with its university for the youth of the race; behind the whole are massed many Jews throughout the world, a very large number of them, including the most generous, being natives of this country who mean to stay in this country and rear their children here, but cherish as their hearts' deep desire the restoration of the children of Israel to the soil they made sacred.

And permeating the whole enterprise, as Mr. Nevinson shows, is the wonderful genius of this wonderful race for organization, and its marvelous capacity for sustained enthusiasm and for sacrifice in the name of racial ideals. Whatever the fate of the experiment, it is to-day, in truth, one of the most inspiring and thrilling ventures of all that followed the war.

Those who have sympathized with the aspirations of the Zionists, but who have doubted the practicability of their vision, will find a distinct measure of reassurance in the story Mr. Nevinson tells of progress already achieved, when that story is linked with the possibilities as he sees them. What of the native Arabs? has been the question in many minds. Mr. Nevinson reports that although there are 150,000 Jews in Palestine, plus the approximate 700,000 Arabs, the total population is still less than one-fourth the number that Palestine may support. He puts that possible population at 4,000,000 at least, and it may very well be that the improvements the Jews have in contemplation, and the application of highly developed technical skill, may make possible the support of a larger population.

And what of relations with the Arabs? is another question often asked, with many forebodings and certain evidence of danger. On that point, Mr. Nevinson's article printed yesterday may be read with profit.

By the "Hadassah" society, named after Esther and supported by the Jewish women of America, they are diffusing knowledge of health and fitting treatment, especially for children, among Jews, Arabs, Christians, and all races or religions without distinction. (I know, because I have seen the mothers bringing their babies to the Hadassah centers in Jerusalem, and have gone round with the nurses into Arab and Christian homes.)

Assuredly, this is a venture that is conducted in the spirit and manner of the best of the Jewish people, and one that merits the thought of enlightened minds throughout the world. It may become at once a great practical achievement and one of the world's romances.

"Don't build on any man's foundation. Christ is the only foundation you can build on to please God. Each of us is individually responsible for the way we build, and the sooner we shake loose from all man-made institutions, the sooner we become meet for the Master's use."—Lyman Booth.

DOES RELIGION MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

A CHRISTIAN should be different from those who are not Christians. Some people have an idea that a Christian is one who has believed something, and is therefore saved, no matter what he does or does not do. It is sometimes said that the only difference between a Christian and a person who is not Christian is that the first is a sinner who is saved by grace and the other is a sinner who is not saved. The New Testament writers statement are usually careful not to say from what the Christian has been saved. The New Testament writers declare repeatedly that Jesus came to save people from their sins. One is not saved by his character, but Christ saves a person from a bad character to a good character. No one is saved because he is good, but one who is not good has not been saved at all. One could never, by works of righteousness, remove the guilt of past sins. When one turns from those sins in sorrow and shame, with a steadfast purpose to live in them no more, trusting God to forgive him, God, in love and mercy, does forgive. Then one enters into fellowship with God, just in the degree in which he lives a righteous life.—J. Sherman Wallace, in "Young People".

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 4, 1926

NUMBER 14

A DEPARTMENT OF PEACE

BY F. L. AUSTIN

WE have departments of war, prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs, police, and all kinds of experts giving their whole highly trained abilities to the convicting and punishing of wrong-doers; but we have no expert agents of peace in the employ of the government for the studying, discovering, and furthering of Peace. We train men for intensive manufacture, commerce, finance, law, who many times use these advantages criminally for personal benefit at the loss of opportunity, property, or life itself by others. Then we spend millions of dollars to detect these selfish wrong-doers and punish them.

As to war, President Coolidge has just delivered himself of a statement that practically pledges him to labor for the lessening of the spirit therefor. While at a convention of university students at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, last week the question of passing resolutions to urge the abolishing of army drills on the "nation's campuses" as a part of University education, was extensively discussed, and, according to last reports read, had ever probability of being passed in resolution. Prof. Coe, of Union Theological Seminary is reported to have said, "Why should we have a war department and not a peace department in our government?"

These expressions in high places are grand. They are fitting adieu to the passing old year; they are greetings of inspiration to the New Year just entering. Would that these thoughts could at once be put into practice and into execution.

The Christian Worker's Surrender

Laid on Thine altar, O my Lord divine,
Accept this gift to-day for Jesus' sake.
I have no jewels to adorn Thy shrine,
Nor any world-fame sacrifice to make;
But here I bring within this trembling hand
This Thou alone, O Lord, canst understand,
How when I yield thee this I yield mine all.

Hidden herein Thy searching gaze can see
Struggles of passion, visions of delight;
All that I have, or aim, or fain would be;
Deep loves, fond hopes, and longings infinite.
It hath been wet with tears and dimmed with sighs,
Clenched in my grasp till beauty hath it none!
Now from Thy footstool where it vanquished lies,
The prayer ascendeth—may Thy will be done.

Take it, O Father, ere my courage fail,
And merge it so in Thine own will that e'en
In some desperate hour my prayers prevail,
And Thou give back my gift, it may have been
So changed, so purified, so fair have grown,
So one with Thee, so filled with peace divine,
I may not know or feel it as mine own,
But gaining back my will may find it Thine.

—Unknown.

PEACE I GIVE

Not in this present form of government by Gentiles of whom Nebuchadnezzar was the God-appointed, golden head, but in the government which God will "set up", "which shall never be destroyed", will this condition prevail. In the meantime, the Nations of the world are in sore need of departments of peace.

Foreign as such a thought may be to Bible students, nevertheless, God has provided just such a department. That department is found under the name of the Church of God. Christ the great Exemplar of Peace is its Head. In no sense is it a part of Gentile-made government, but it is in the midst of the people, having been called out from them, and is the present exponent, both by precept and by practice, of this principle for which the "groaning creation" suffers.

Christ always stands ready to fully bestow upon the willing Christian His peace. It may not be just what some would expect it to be, but it is that peace which went with Him through toil and temptation and passion and made Him acceptable to His Father.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Christian Church is the only present voice that is in any position to train men and women for this department of life. It needs experts in the truest sense—experts of peace. Peace can never be provided by the government or through the government. But God Himself has provided for it. It requires millions and millions of money—but not so many millions as does war; it requires days upon days of labor by thousands of men who have the greatest of true pride in their noble pursuit—but not so many millions as do war and “justice”; it requires True Hearts, Pure Hearts, Hearts and Lives devoted to the God, not of war, or of gold, but to the God of the universe, the Creator of “every good and perfect gift”.

A NEW YEAR'S AIM

May this little section of the whole Church of God pledge itself that throughout 1927 and all coming years it will train its members to be experts in the pursuit of that peace which passeth understanding and give its every effort to comfort the groaning creation therewith by calling therefrom all possible into the new life in Christ.

STEPS TO SALVATION

By Jas. A. Patrick

No. 5

IN the preceding articles of this series I have tried to show the steps necessary to be taken in order to obtain salvation. In the last one preceding this it was shown that baptism was one of the very necessary steps to salvation.

Now I wish to show what baptism is and why it is essential.

Christ told His disciples to go into all the world and teach all nations and baptize them. Did they follow His instruction? and how did they do it? What did they do to the ones that were baptized? There is a variety of opinions regarding this subject. Some claim that the how of baptism is immaterial. Christ said those that believed and were baptized would be saved, and those that did not believe would be damned. The Savior's words put the matter in a very serious light. Salvation depends on what we do in the matter.

Let us follow the example set by Christ and the disciples as far as possible and see if we can get any definite information on this subject.

In the third chapter of Matthew we find John preaching on the Jordan, and we read, “Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized in Jordan confessing their sins.”—Matt. 3:6. It will be noticed that they were baptized in Jordan. The Jordan wasn't baptized on them, but they were baptized IN Jordan. In the eleventh verse, “I indeed baptize you with water”. It is very significant to note that the word translated “with” is from the same Greek word that is translated “in” in the sixth verse. They were baptized in Jordan, and John says that he baptized them in water. Is it possible that such language could mean more than one thing? In Mark 1:8 we find the same form of words used, for John said that he baptized them in Jordan. Then in the ninth verse we are told that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized of John in the Jordan. And we read in Matthew 3:16, “And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water.” Jesus went into the water in order to be baptized in the Jordan, and when He was baptized He had to come up out of the water. Comment is unnecessary in this case. The language itself shows very plainly what was done. And when we read of Philip and the eunuch that “They went down both into the water, and he baptized him”, we have more evidence as to the manner in which the act was performed.

It might be said that it is quite plain what I believe as to the method of baptism. Yes, it is quite plain, and what makes it quite plain? I have used only scriptural language. If it is plain, it is the Bible that has made it plain.

“But”, it might be asked, “if baptism is by dipping or immersion why doesn't the Bible say so in plain language?” It does. Usually when Bible students are asked how they know that baptism means dip they refer to the Lexicons and say that the word baptize, etc., is defined as dip, plunge, or immerse. But we have a much better commentary than any that has been written by men—a divine one. Five times in scripture, Matt. 26:23; Mark 14:20; Luke 16:24; John 13:26; Rev. 19:13, the Greek word for baptize occurs where it has no reference to baptism, and in such case it is translated dip. It is very clear what the translators understood the word to mean when they translated it. In the places where the word refers to baptism they did not translate it, but transliterated it—expressed the Greek word in English characters.

With this thought in view, let us turn again to the cases of Christ and the eunuch. “And Jesus, when he was dipped, went up straightway out of the water.” And Philip and the eunuch “went down both into the water, and he dipped him.” If they had sprinkled in those days instead of dipping the language in these cases would have been much different. There would have been no need of going down into the water, and if they hadn't gone down into it they could not have come up out of it. “John baptized in Enon, because there was much water there.” No need of much water to sprinkle, but much is needed to dip.

This thought of baptism fits in very well with Paul's usage of the term, “buried with Him by baptism into death”. You can't bury people by sprinkling a little water on them. Again, “If we have been planted in the likeness of His death”. How do you plant corn? Not by sprinkling a little dirt on it.

It is a significant fact that only once in scripture is it said that water alone is sprinkled, and God is to do that when He gathers Israel to their own land, Ezek. 36:25. Sprinkling has an entirely different usage from baptism, especially in the New Testament. “Elect according to God the Father, through the sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ."—1 Peter 1:2. "And to Jesus the Mediator of the New Covenant, and the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than Abel."—Heb. 12:34. "Having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water."—Heb. 10:22. What is used to sprinkle the conscience? The blood of sprinkling. What washes the body? The waters of baptism.

Why is baptism, dipping, essential? When we are converted, we crucify the old man with his lusts and affections. When one is dead the next thing is burial. We typify the death and burial of our old natures. We are told that Christ died and was buried and rose again. We picture His burial and resurrection, and our own if we die ere He comes. It not only shows our faith in these things, but is a monument of evidence to the fact that Christ died and rose again. Let men scoff if they will, but every time a believer is immersed in water he sets up a living monument of evidence to the fact that Christ was buried and rose again. Would anything but burial in water answer these purposes?

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD.

By Lyman Booth

(Continued from last week)

THE spirit of the Master and His gospel, in justice, demands a portion of our worldly goods, as well as the personal sympathies and counsels of the more gifted and favored believers in the interests of the less favored. I might say with safety that no other subject is treated with more emphasis than the consecration of earthly possessions; but I fear that the lesson has been imperfectly learned by many.

In the city of Jerusalem Jewish prejudice would cast out the poorer laborers from all kinds of employment and thereby leave them destitute. This was the case for several years, as may be learned by Paul's gatherings in almost every city where he preached.

In contrast with this beautiful picture of church fellowship and holy consecration of worldly goods we find another. One of sadness and ruin. The evil of the human heart crept in among the little band of our Lord's followers. We have noticed Barnabas and his true-hearted sacrifice. We now notice Ananias and Sapphira illustrating falsehood in a very daring and impious form, in presenting a counterfeit offering, covering their names with shame and disgrace, which hitherto had signified "grace and beauty." The lesson to be learned by this comparison shows the source of good and evil. It reveals the operation of the Holy Spirit in Barnabas, and the unholy spirit of Satan in false and unfortunate professors. It isn't strange that Satan should pile his trade of deception among the members of the infant church; for it is in line with his methods from the beginning. It has been said that Good and Evil travel side by side through the ranks of men. Paul realized this fully; for he said, "When I would do good, evil is present with me."—Rom. 7:21. So he came to Adam and Eve. To Cain, the firstborn. To Nadab and Abihu, in the beginning of Israel's national existence, and afterward to Achan in the early establishment of their power in the promised land. His boldest effort, which was without effect, was when he came to Christ at the very beginning of His labors. As he always appears at the beginning of every movement while it is young and faith is feeble, so he thought to undermine the power and life of the church in its infancy.

With respect to the sad doom of Ananias and his wife, be it remembered that it was a miracle of judgment for wrong doing. There had been many miracles of mercy, and many more followed during the ministry of the apostles. It was even so under the law of Moses and the prophets, mainly miracles of mercy. Those of judgment were only at long intervals. During Christ's ministry He did only one miracle of judgment in which He inflicted death upon a barren fig tree, making it a type of the barrenness of the Jewish nation.

The purpose of God's direct judgments, in both the Old and New Testament times was to give needed warning in such manner that it would be heeded. For this reason the first Sabbath-breaker was stoned, Num. 15:56. The first sacrilegious theft of Achan was visited with death upon him and his family, and now the first act of deception and falsehood in the church, under the cloak of piety, was adjudged and speedily punished. These and others of like nature demanded and received open judgments of God that His people might take warning, and that the guilty might learn the lesson that God can see sin while it lurks in the heart.

What prompted Barnabas to seek Paul's help was the hope and prospect of a large ingathering, and the prospect of a permanent prosperity for the church. He naturally turned to Saul of Tarsus. He, no doubt, recognized in him the qualifications for an effective ministry. Without consulting the other apostles he sought Saul and they returned to Antioch and labored together for one year. Gradually Paul was brought into prominence; for as yet he had not been especially ordained by the Holy Spirit to his world-wide ministry. By the united labors of these unordained disciples the first Gentile church was established at Antioch. It became a new center around which the interests of the church among the Gentiles was to circulate from that time forward. The church at Antioch occupied the same relation to the Gentiles as that at Jerusalem did to the Jews.

It was at Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians, the name being applied to them because of their peculiar doctrines and practices as compared with other sects. Since their faith, their hope and love were centered upon the person and work of Christ it was very appropriate to call them Christians. The name implies "like Christ". It is evident that those who called themselves disciples of Christ must have separated themselves from those who did not believe the gospel.

(Continued on page 223, column 1)

THE MYSTERIES OF ANCIENT DAYS

By George Johnston

No. 5

THE people who entered the Garden of Eden and by whom Adam and Eve were led astray, evidently came from India, and there are many indications that they were members of that branch of Turanian stock known as the Dravidian.

"Thirty-five years ago no one would have thought of connecting pre-Aryan India with archaic Babylonia, and if a solitary fact pointing that way was once in a while picked out by an exceptionally inquisitive and observant mind, it was suffered to remain unexplained, as a sort of natural curiosity; for the inferences it suggested were too startling to be more than hinted at. Eminently such a mind was the late Francois Lenormant, and he laid great stress on the use of the word mama as early as the Rig-Veda, to denote a definite quantity of gold—a word which can be traced to ancient Chaldea, or Semitic Babylonia, with the same meaning, and which afterwards passed into the Greek monetary system (mna, still later latinized into mina). Well, this little fact simply points to a well-established commercial intercourse between Dravidian India (for the Kolarians never came as far west as the land by the Indian Ocean) and Babylonia or Chaldea. And now, years afterwards, chance brings two more discoveries, individually as trifling, yet, linked together, the three form a chain of evidence as complete as it is strong. In the ruins of Mugheir, ancient Ur of the Chaldees, built by Ur-Ea (or Ur-Bagash) the first king of United Babylonia, who ruled not less than 3,000 years B. C., was found a piece of Indian teak. This evidence is exceptionally conclusive, because, as it happens, this particular tree is to be located with more than ordinary accuracy: it grows in Southern India (Dekkan) where it advances close to the Malabar coast, and nowhere else; there is none north of the Vindhya. Then again, the precious vocabularies and lists of all kinds of things and names which these precise old Babylonians were so fond of making out and which have given us so many startling surprises, come to the fore with a bit of very choice information, namely, that the old Babylonian name for muslin was sindhu, i. e., that the stuff was simply called by the name of the country which exported it." (Vedic India: Z. A. Ragozin.)

In both the Bible and the Book of Enoch it is clearly shown that the people who led Adam and Eve astray were serpent-worshippers; and that peculiar form of religion has flourished in India since prehistoric times. The Hebrew word translated serpent in Genesis 3, is nachash, and there are in the mountainous regions of Northern India at the present time two distinct tribes or nations which bear this name. One is of the white race; the other is of Dravidian stock; and, apparently, the ancestors of both played an important part in the early history of Western Asia.

The colored invaders, Enoch tells us, instructed Adam and his children in the arts of reading and writing; and the more ancient of the cuneiform writings recovered from the ruins of Nineveh and other places during the past century, are written in the agglutinative form of language spoken by the Dravidians at the present time.

The individuals named by Enoch were heads of tribes, and they were accompanied by a great many of their respective followers. Hence, while Adam and Eve were still pure and sinless, and the only white-skinned people in existence, they were suddenly surrounded by thousands of colored heathens of both sexes; and it naturally followed that throughout the whole of the antediluvian period the colored invaders in Western Asia largely exceeded in numbers the white-skinned natives, and that they were the rulers of the land. It is therefore in no way surprising to find that the early records of Western Asia were written by the hands and in the language of the colored nomads. But it was not the Divine intention that the cradle of the white race should become the property of the invaders. Certain peculiar events, therefore, took place, which shall be described later, and these resulted in the total destruction by the Flood of every colored individual within the boundaries of the white man's land.

WATCH

By Samuel E. Haney

"But know this, that if the master (householder, Emphatic Diaglott) of the house had known in what hour the thief was coming, he would have watched, and not left his house to be broken through."

"Be ye also ready: for in an hour that ye think not the Son of man cometh." Luke 12:39, 40, R. V.

THIS is a case in which God expects us to be more prudent than the devil.

As the writer understands it, verse 39 is parabolic, admonishing us to profit by the devil's oversight.

The parable being in the past tense does not diminish the effect of its intended objective, i. e., verse 40, which is future tense; time being no factor with God. Rom. 4:17.

To paraphrase, had the "master" (devil) of the "house" (Babylon) known the "hour" the "thief" (Christ) would come he would have watched, and not have permitted him to break through (into his house, Em. Diaglott).

This parable is being fulfilled in our midst in all walks of life, in statecraft, finance, churchianity, and society there are as many opinions as men. Confusion is in evidence on all sides of every question; yet, the "master of the house" seems to be so incited, intoxicated and abstracted as the result of 6000 years of sinful rule, whose harvest has been death and its concomitant parts—sickness, suffering, misery, etc.—that he seems oblivious of cause and its inevitable effect. Were he on the watch, he would not allow his house to be broken through; but would, by allowing his unconscious dupes, both leaders and plebeians, to "read the handwriting on the wall", accomplish a duplicate of General Allenby's coup d'etat at Jerusalem; and "without the firing of a shot", that great city, Babylon, would avoid "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation". In a word, the devil would capitulate on unconditional terms. But prophecy must be fulfilled: death is his only ultimatum, Heb. 2:14.

Is this not a momentous lesson for us? We see Christians all about us asleep and drunk in this night of gross darkness, 1 Thess. 5:7; and you and I, reader, prone to drift thitherward.

Let us keep in mind that the Light on His words is shining brighter to-day than it did in our forefathers' days; and that God expects proportionally more of us.

And also, this world's darkness intensifies heavenly Light. To follow what our fathers accepted as truth is likely to be flimsy pretense in God's sight to-day.

Paul pleads, "Let us who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet the hope of salvation", 1 Thess. 5:8.

True, it is not intended for us to know the literal hour or day of our Master's return. Hence, "Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the Master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning.

"Lest coming suddenly, He find you sleeping", Mar. 13:32-37.

But it is possible for us to know approximately by current events, prophecy, and chronology, the year of our King's return. Therefore, "take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time (exact time) is", v. 33.

"And He spoke to them a parable; Behold the fig tree, and all the trees; when they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand. Verily I say unto you, this generation shall not pass away till all be fulfilled", Luke 21:22-33. The budding trees, both spiritual and carnal, have well nigh attained fruition.

These are the signs of the times that the devil's vassal slaves are too "drunken with the wine of her fornication" to observe.

Many classifying themselves Christian, and recognizing the cause and effect of these "perilous times" choose to serve "strange gods"—things gratifying to the "old man" that is supposed to be dead. Such a procedure terminates in death, as of yore. Joshua said, "If ye forsake the Lord, and serve strange gods, then He will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that He hath done you good." "And the people said unto Joshua, Nay; but we will serve the Lord"—Joshua 24.

How ungrateful to turn from God and His dear Son after that He hath done us good—shown us the way of eternal life; and to then idolize the gaudy things of Satan's house, this world! Such conduct prevented the devil (and his unconscious devotees) from "watching", and brought about his final trouble.

The darkey's testimony is more than ludicrous: "I's done shot craps. I's stole chickens. And I's carved some white trash wid ma razor. But, breddern, dere am one thing I kin say, I's never lost my religion."

We smile at this, but, all things considered, there are a great many professing Christians—and they are not illiterate either—that have the darkey beaten the proverbial mile.

Yes, they think they can hold onto their religion with one hand and everything the flesh craves for with the other. But Paul says, "They that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."—Rom. 8:5, 6.

Dare we question Paul?

To trifle with the flesh, these days, gives Satan a death-strangling hold. But Jesus' remedy works every time, "Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve."

"Then the devil leaveth Him, and, behold angels came and ministered unto Him", Matt. 4:10, 11.

How refreshing those periods in which we are freed from the enemy's power! For "if the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed"—in spirit and body.

Therefore, let us not blindly emulate the world (and a large majority of Christians) by submitting our minds and bodies to the evil one's dictations and slavery.

But, "Be ye also ready: for in an hour (instant) that ye think not the Son of man cometh."

BEHOLD, THE BRIDEGROOM COMETH!

*Oh, slumbering virgin daughters,
Awake, awake, awake!
Oh, trim and fill your lamps with oil,
Thy wedding garments make.*

*Hark! the midnight cry is sounding,
The Bridegroom comes to-day,
Behold! the bright and morning Star,
Is far upon His way.*

*The trumpet sounds, the heavens part
And flood the earth with light;
The Bridegroom comes to meet His bride,
Arrayed in spotless white.*

*Behold the glorious dawning,
See what the morning brings,
"The Sun of Righteousness arises
With healing in His wings."*

*Behold the lowly Nazarene!
Behold the earth made new!
His kingdom come, His will be done,
In earth, and heaven, too.*

—Anna May Swearingen.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

SAMPLE COPY WEEK

As advertized, this is Sample Copy Week. Subscribers have sent in the names of many friends to whom they have asked that Sample Copies be mailed.

Friends of The Herald Family: Gladly do we greet you with these samples. In behalf of your friends, we ask for your careful perusal of The Herald. In its columns you will find studies on the Christian life; studies of the promises and prophecies of God; studies of current events, of investigation, of church and Sunday school problems; and miscellaneous studies; all presented with a view to real Christian uplift.

After reading this copy, we will be glad to receive you as a regular subscriber. Or, at your request, we will gladly send you another sample copy.

* * * *

To avoid the strain of confusion and interruption, and in compromise with the doctor's urge to leave in December for a rest, the Editor has been doing his work at his home for nearly a month. This has left Bro. Stilson, aided by Sr. Stilson till 10 to 1 o'clock many nights, to take full responsibility at the office. These inexperienced ones have had their hearts more than full during a very busy month.

Only the most urgent correspondence has been attended to.

Assurance has been given the doctor that his urgings will be heeded and a rest taken very soon.

* * * *

SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Studies in Christian Living is the theme of study for January, February, and March. It is an exceptionally good series of topics, one by which every Sunday school, every home, every Christian can profit without measure.

What opportunity for the Sunday school teacher!

How would it do for the pastor, the evangelist, to, in part, sermonize on the same line?

As the Sunday school is truly the nursery of the church, may the Sunday schools be greatly benefited and the church increase this quarter.

* * * *

ALL SIGNS POINT TO THE CHURCH

The Christian church is the one only witness among men that God has established to hold aloft the glorious light of His truth as manifested in and through Jesus Christ. God has, from the beginning, manifested His purpose to govern the people of earth so that all dwellers should abide in perfect peace and continue without fear of evil, harm, or death. This condition is as certain as the word of God is certain. The earth is to be peopled with a select people who will elect God's ways and help in such living. The whole earth will be filled with His glory. Christ is the One appointed of God, and empowered by Him, to accomplish this.

During Christ's absence He has assigned to His followers the task of holding up His cause and work. See Mark 15:15, 16; Eph. 3:10.

As we enter the open door of 1927 there is so much that calls for the church to stand in the front line of duty with every member alert to loves anxious service. The ways of the church are no more the ways of the world than were Christ's ways in Judea and Galilee the ways of the Jews or the Romans. Her duty is to hold up in life as in words the ways of Christ. The more the world may retreat from God's way, the greater will be the contrast of the church before man.

May it be ours to discern Christian privilege and duty and engage faithfully therein.

* * * *

DOINGS AT HEADQUARTERS

The rest of The Herald being full, a few N. B. I. notes are being permitted on this page.

Though all hands have daily worked hard for long hours the Truth Seekers' Quarterly is not yet off the press. And the editor and helpers are working full time to keep copy to the press as fast as wanted.

The first three lessons of 1927 have been mailed in leaflet form to all Sunday Schools ordering quarterlies. These have not been sent to subscribers for single copies. This delay was first caused by death, then by sickness; in November and early December, which threw most of the work into the year-end rush caused by extra holiday work and customary urgent demand for year-end work.

The quarterlies are nearly ready for mailing,—will be mailed in a couple of days, God willing.

Work will start at once on future Quarterlies, which will go to press respectively on the first of March, June, September, and December of each year.

With the publishing of this Number 1 of Volume 1, many, many things have been learned and worked out, and many more things have attracted attention, but have not yet been worked out.

We earnestly solicit suggestions and criticisms from all. If you THINK that the type is too large or too small; the pages too few or too many; the divisions too inclusive

(Continued on page 223, column 1)

HERALD RECEIPTS

Remittances acknowledged next week.

National Berean Department

M. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

HAVING just crossed the threshold into another year, we trust that Bereans everywhere will awaken to the opportunities for service. It is really a serious and sacred thought to realize that time when passed, can never be recalled, or any of its acts or thoughts changed. The record of 1926 is made, and you cannot alter one act, or remove one thought that went into that record.

* * * *

But 1927 is before us, clean and white,—its pages yet unsoiled. One by one, with each setting sun, these pages shall be folded back into eternity's record, with their acts of righteousness and wrong, and their thoughts of good and bad. Once past, the record forever remains the same. Let us be a little nobler in 1927 than we were in '26, and let us make use of the opportunities to do our part in the Lord's work. The Berean Editor wishes the best and richest of life's blessings for all of you.

* * * *

A PRAYER

Our kind heavenly Father, we thank thee for the privilege of gathering here to-night. Be with the ones that are not here. Thou knowest the cause of their absence. Give them strength for the upbuilding of thy cause. Now, kind heavenly Father, help those in our families, that they may do Thy will. These favors we ask in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

By Miss Marguerite Zechiel of the Junior Berean Class No. 2, of Burr Oak, Indiana.

* * * *

The following two articles were written by two young members of Oregon's Junior Berean Class:

* * * *

The Berean lesson I am going to tell you about is "The Boy Jesus". The memory verse is Luke 2:49, "And he said unto them, how is it that ye sought me, wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"

Jesus mother and Joseph went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover. The first passover was held long ago, when the Israelites were slaves in Egypt. God brought punishment upon the Egyptians because they were so cruel to the Israelites; the last one was the death of the oldest child in every home where the blood of a lamb was not sprinkled on the door posts. This happened in the homes of the Egyptians, but not in the Israelites' because God prepared them beforehand.

Jesus was twelve years old when He went up to Jerusalem for the feast of the passover. When it was time for Joseph and Mary to return home Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem. They went a day's journey before they missed Him. They thought He was with some of the other people. It took them three days to find Him. At last they found Him in the temple, talking to the doctors and lawyers, listening and asking questions.

They were all astonished because He was so bright. His mother said, Son, why hast thou dealt thus with us? Behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing. Jesus said He must be about His Father's business. His Father was God.

Then He went home with them and was obedient in all things. "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favour with God and man."—Luke 2:52.

Alice Gesin.

* * * *

THE CRUCIFIXION OF JESUS

After the passover supper Jesus and His disciples went into the garden of Gethsemane and Jesus told all the disciples to stay there and watch with Him; for this was just before His crucifixion. He took Peter and James and John, and they went a little farther, and Jesus fell on His face and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me. Nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.

Then Jesus went back to his disciples, and they were asleep. Then Jesus said to Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour? He said unto Peter: Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

Then Jesus went the second time and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.

Jesus went the third time and prayed, saying the same words.

He cometh to His disciples and sayeth, Sleep on now, and take your rest. Behold the hour is at hand, and the son of man will betray me into the hands of sinners. Then they went to Pilate after Jesus was betrayed. They gave Judas a lot of money for telling who Jesus was. Then Judas was sorry that he had betrayed Jesus, and would not take the money the priests and elders gave him. They took the money and bought graves or tombs.

Peter was sitting by a stove in the temple when a woman said he was a follower of Christ. Then Peter denied Jesus, saying he was not a follower. Then the cock crew twice and Peter remembered what he had said, and went out of the temple.

They put a purple robe on Jesus and mocked Him, and put a crown of thorns on His head.

(Continued on page 223, column 1)

TITHING

By Rufus A. Curtis

THE practice of tithing, or giving a tenth part of one's income, is not only very ancient, it is also very commendable; for it helps to equalize the burdens that fall to the lot of God's people, else some may be eased and others burdened, 2 Cor. 8:13-15.

Bearing one another's burdens is plainly enjoined, if we would fulfill the law of Christ, Gal. 6:2; Rom. 15:1-4.

To give to the Lord's cause with a willing mind, we should first give our own selves to the Lord, fully realizing that we are not our own, having been bought with a price, 2 Cor. 8:5, 12; Acts 20:35.

Our giving should be characterized by cheerfulness and liberality. "But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound toward every good work."—2 Cor. 9:6-8. Rom. 12:8.

Haphazard methods are not to be relied upon; for sometimes haste may be required in the kingdom's business, 1 Sam. 21:8. "Let all things be done decently and in order."—1 Cor. 14:40.

To the Corinthian church Paul wrote, "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God has prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come."—1 Cor. 16:2.

Abraham gave tithes to Melchisedek king of Salem, and priest of the most high God, after his return from the victory over Chedorlaomer, and his confederated kings, who had captured his nephew, Lot, whom Abraham brought back, Gen. 14:18-20; Heb. 7:1, 2, 4.

Jacob gave a tenth unto the Lord. "And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me, and keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace; then shall the Lord be my God: and this stone which I have set up for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee."—Gen. 28:20-22.

Under the law, the Israelites were required to give "all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree"; for it "is the Lord's: it is holy unto the Lord." "And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord."—Lev. 27:30, 32.

The children of Levi were to have "all the tenth in Israel", for their "services of the tabernacle of the congregation". Num. 18:21, 24-28; 1 Sam. 8:15, 17. "Moreover he commanded the people that dwelt in Jerusalem to give the portion of the priests and the Levites, that they might be encouraged in the law of the Lord. And as soon as the commandment came abroad, the children of Israel brought in abundance the firstfruits of corn, wine, and oil, and honey, and of all the increase of the field; and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly. And concerning the children of Israel and Judah, that dwelt in the cities of Judah, they also brought in the tithes of oxen and sheep, and the tithes of the holy things which were consecrated unto the Lord their God, and laid them down by heaps."—2 Chron. 31:4, 6, 11, 12.

Blessings follow in the line of obedience.

"Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst forth with new wine."—Prov. 3:9, 10.

Under the law, the Israelites not only gave tithes, but they also gave free will offerings.

Should not we, who are under grace, do as well?

"Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."—Gal. 6:6-8.

"If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?" "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel."—1 Cor. 9:11, 14.

King David's example is worthy of emulation. Araunah the Jebusite offered king David "oxen for burnt sacrifice, and threshing for wood", "And the king said unto Araunah, Nay; but I will surely buy of thee at a price; neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing. So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver."—2 Sam. 24:22, 24. Psalm 50:5.

"Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3:8-10.

"Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."—Luke 6:38.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, it cost approximately $9,607,336 to run the government each day.

When our King becomes King over all the earth, love will be the medium of exchange. Then the dirty dollar, "the love of which is the root of all evil", should be reduced to pulp and made into a great statue announcing to the world, LIBERTY! "On earth PEACE, GOOD WILL toward men!"—S. E. Haney.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON III.—January 16.

THE CHRISTIAN'S USE OF THE BIBLE

Deut. 6:4-9; 2 Tim. 3:14-17.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119:9-16.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119:105.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING.

Time. Just before the death of Moses, B. C. 1451; 2 Timothy, written by Paul, about A. D. 67 or 68.

Place. To the east of the Dead Sea; Paul in prison in Rome; Timothy in Ephesus.

Circumstances. After having been God's spokesman for forty years, repeatedly attesting before them marvelous miracles from God, and having experienced the death of all who left Egypt with him excepting those who then were children, and Joshua and Caleb, Moses, having been informed that he could go no farther, assembles his nation of youthful adults and children to whom he repeats God's words, a fitting and closing act for God. Second Timothy, Paul's last epistle, was written from the Roman prison after long imprisonment and frequent hardship, shortly before his martyrdom, 4:6, to Timothy his "dearly beloved son" in the Gospel, 1:2, for whom he much longed. 1:4; 4:9, 11, 21.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

The Bible is the Book of books. Throughout, God is its avouched Author. Its 66 books were dictated by Him at intervals during 1600 years to 36 inspired stenographers chosen to record its God-revealed promises, statutes, ordinances, instructions, outlines, purposes, helps, destinies for man, as well as to faithfully record many sinful, designing, death-defying words and deeds of God-opposing men and angels.

The Best Book in the World. From childhood to old age one finds thrilling stories of true life, of ideal hope, of crowning awards, of sin's failures, of love divine: inspiration for all. Its instructions are the best; its jurisprudence is second to none; its preview of life stands alone; its conviction of sin is absolute; its victory is complete. Its literature is without a peer; its authenticity has withstood every attack; its ideality is divine. From every angle of vision the Bible is the best book in the world.

How to Get Help from the Bible. Study it. Open and honest study will early reveal its unquestionable reliability. Then study it to learn and apply, not to quibble and question. From the brightness of youth's morn to the glory of life's evening, study it for its truth. The Bible was written to be believed, not to be questioned or reasoned. Its greatest truths are beyond man's reasoning abilities, supernatural. They can be received and known only by faith, not by the incompetent finite to measure the incomprehensible infinite. Study it with prayer for ability to grasp its natural truth-facts and to accept its revelations of the supernatural. Study it daily throughout life.

Teach it. The teacher is the greatest learner. It is one thing to satisfy one's self with knowledge; it is quite another thing to learn so as to teach another. Teaching is one's best instruction. Teach it in the home; teach it in the Sunday School; teach it at all times.

Defend it. Defend it because of its evident worth. No other book has promoted such world-wide, varied uplift for man. A true-hearted defender realizes a worth and becomes an increasingly reverent admirer.

Live it. Only by living its truths can one gain the help offered by the Bible. Many leaders in political parties, being government officers, apparently regard their first duty to be to legislate and "carry on" first of all for the strength of their party. National interest is second. Again, many versed in Bible apparently feel that one's principal Christian duty is to live for denomination. Genuine truth is of secondary importance. Not so. He that knoweth his Master's will and doeth it not shall be beaten with many stripes. He that knoweth and "doeth" builds upon a rock. The truths of the Bible become eternal life to those who do them.

How to study the Bible. The Bible is a much continued letter from God, man's truest friend. Study it earnestly, prayerfully, to obtain God's intended thought regardless of any conflicting thoughts of men.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

"Thy word is a lamp (lantern) unto my feet, and a light unto my path."—Psa. 119:105.

But be sure your feet are on the right path. Did you ever go out on a dark night with a lantern? The light did not shine far, just a few steps ahead of you. So it is with God's word: we cannot see far ahead, but as we proceed along the path of righteousness it keeps far enough ahead to light our way. A light will reveal the hidden things. So does God's word. Some love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil and everyone that doeth evil hateth the light. Christ was a lamp for He was the light of the world, and if His words dwell in you richly, you will also be a lamp to others.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

No other book in the world is so much printed, sold, bought, read, and studied as is the Bible. Approximately 25,000,000 Bibles and portions of the Bible are annually distributed. The Bible is the most influential book for good in existence, this in spite of its open opponents and injurious friends.

The small portion existing in Moses' day was devoutly studied by the small nation of Israel. There were no printing presses, no paper, only parchments and skins. Therefore treasured portions of hand written scriptures were, like jewels, bound on forearms, and foreheads, and were fastened on door posts that all might learn.

It is "profitable".

This God-appointed method of personally learning the Scriptures and applying them is what made Israel then; it is what is drawing Israel back to Palestine now.

Words are conveyors of thought. Thought put into practice shapes action; action determines all development. Therefore, the planting of the thoughts of God into the life of man molds man for God.

The Christian, ever dutiful to Christ, continually sends God's word "into all the world", Mark 16:15, to transform man into action for God.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

The necessity that revelation be of God.

The importance of having a single Head over the universe—one God.

The necessity of having absolute confidence in God and His word.

The power of the word for enlightening, converting, furnishing.

QUESTIONS.

How many books in the Bible? By how many authors?

What is the need of the Bible?

Explain the ability of the Bible as stated in 2 Timothy 3:16.

What signal, fundamental truth does Moses declare in the lesson's opening?

What four acts are required?

From whom did Timothy learn the Scriptures?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

The appointment at Adeline, Illinois, will be filled in regular manner next Sunday by Bro. Siple.

* * *

Bro. and Sr. Amos Osborn, of Culver, Indiana, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, December 28.

* * *

On January 9, the morning services at the Oregon church will be conducted by Sr. M. A. Woodward, and the evening service by Bro. Paul C. Johnson.

* * *

Bro. Simon Hatten, of Culver, Indiana, is suffering the effects of his third stroke of apoplexy. His condition at present is serious.

* * *

Bro F. L. Austin will speak at Rochelle, Illinois, morning and evening, Sunday, January 9.

* * *

Quite an epidemic of colds is sweeping Oregon and three or four of the Golden Rule Home family have been affected.

* * *

Bro. Everett Stilson left this morning for Purdue University to pursue his course in Electrical Engineering.

MICHIGAN

There were 143 present at the Grand Rapids Sunday school on December 19. There were about 275 at the Christmas exercises on Thursday evening. On Sunday after Christmas, there were 116 at Sunday school. That was a good showing considering the fact that it was the day following Christmas and a number of our own people were not there. The evening preaching services are well attended.

The Bible class at West Bowen is increasing in attendance and interest. There were 28 present on Wednesday evening, December 30. Only adults were counted.

Bro. Merle Patrick, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, spent the holiday season with his parents at Caledonia.

Bro. K. N. Woodward, of Caledonia, fell and fractured his hip a short time ago. Bro. Woodward is a son of Bro. Benjamin Woodward who played so large a part in the Michigan work some years ago.

Sr. Hewett, of 1247 Ionia Ave. S. E., Grand Rapids, suffered a stroke of paralysis a short time ago and is confined to her bed except as she is lifted into a chair. It will please her very much if you will drop her a card.

Sr. Francis Blakely, who has been in the Blodgett hospital for some time past was able to leave that institution on Wednesday before Christmas and is now with her daughter in Lansing.

Sr. Lois Blakely is at home from Ann Arbor to spend the holidays with her parents in Grand Rapids.

Sr. Dorothy Briggs of Blanchard expects to enter Butterworth hospital soon, to begin training that will fit her to be a nurse.

* * *

GEORGE H. ANTONIDES

Was born at Salem, Montgomery County, Ohio, April 6, 1859, and died near Tippecanoe, Ohio, December 25, 1926, at the age of 69 years, 8 months, and 19 days. When a young man, he and Sr. Lydia Pearson were united in marriage. Three children were given them. One died in infancy and two, Bro. Lorenzo, of Argos, Indiana, and Sr. Clara Underwood of Tippecanoe, Ohio, are still living. Sr. Antonides fell asleep in the summer of 1919. There are some brothers and sister and six grandchildren living.

Bro. Antonides was baptized into Christ several years ago by Bro. F. L. Austin. Since that time he lived a devoted life.

We now have a good start on the second $1000.00. Each stone laid represents $50.00. Let's see that the steps are finished soon.

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

STONE WALL

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $_____, a Thank Offering to aid in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name _____

Street _____

Post Office _____

State _____ Date _____

He was a great lover of the truth, ever ready to talk of the things pertaining to Eternal life.

Funeral services were held in the Brush Creek church December 27, at 2 p.m. After the services he was laid beside his sleeping wife to sleep until Jesus comes.

J. H. Anderson.

* * *

WAUKENABO, MINNESOTA

The present church of God work at Waukenabo is the outgrowth of five former series of meetings.

The first meeting was held near here at Esquagama in the first part of July, 1925. Previous to this, word was sent, asking if a meeting would be desired, and the reply was that it would be no use to try. The objection was that the people were interested only in fishing, boating, dancing, and other sports. It was not long, however, until an interest was shown in the services.

The second meeting was held at the Wagner school house about ten miles from the Esquagama locality. Several families live near the school, and though the meeting was short the interest was good.

A third meeting was held here, too, in August, and another meeting this past June.

God helped and rewarded the efforts from the very beginning, and many lives were surrendered to Him. July 12, 1925, 6 were baptized into Christ. On August 23, 14 more were baptized and 3 early the following morning before we left. On June 6, 1926, 5 more were added to the church.

Then Waukenabo arranged for a meeting, which lasted just one week, but the "power of God unto salvation" called 9 to follow the Master. Many others were interested, and an effort was started to keep up the work.

About October 20, Mr. Schoonmaker drove his car down to Lester Prairie and brought us back to the north country, a trip one way of nearly 175 miles.

The church work has been progressing well since, with Sunday school and regular services each Sunday. The people are poor, pioneering in a new country, but in them lies a human heart that responds to the call of God, and that is cheered by the promises of a King and kingdom of righteousness.

A certain king, in the Bible we're told,
Made a supper for kinfolk bold.
Then out went the servants to bid them dine

At the supper of the lord divine.

But the excuse of oxen and land and wife
Stood as a barrier to eternal life;
For this is the feast the lord divine
Gave for his chosen to come and dine.

Then these were forbidden to taste of the feast,

And others were invited from among the least:

Some poor, some naked, some crippled and blind
Were these who came to the master, kind.

And so in this world at the present time.
We find it's the weary that's helped to climb:

For the Savior will carry or lighten his load,

And make the rocky, a smoother road.
Sydney E. Magaw.

Dear ones of Minnesota, remember Bro. Magaw and family by your prayers and support, that he may bring many more to a saving knowledge of Christ.

Mrs. T. M. Savage.

* * *

JOHN CULVER LINDSEY

Was born March 11, 1880 at Marshall, Minnesota, and passed away November 19, 1926, at 2500 James St., Shreveport, Louisiana.

He was united in marriage to Myrtle E. Gainey, May 13, 1900, to which union were born six children, Louise (Mrs. J. S. Foretich), Russell, J. C., Jr., Dorothy, and Walter (Jack).

He was baptized in the Church of God about fourteen years ago by Bro. O. J. Allard in which he held firmly to the end.

Funeral services were held at the home Saturday afternoon, November 20, Rev. Preston Gray officiating, assisted by Rev. Millard Baggett, both of the Christian Church. Two songs were beautifully rendered by the Christian Church quartette, The Old Rugged Cross and Beautiful Isle of Somewhere, the first being one of his favorites.

He leaves to mourn besides his wife and children, four sisters, Mrs. L. C. Anthon of Hammond, Louisiana, Mrs. Grace Gainey of New Orleans, Louisiana, Mrs. James Delaney, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, and Mrs. B. E. Halverson of Van Nuys, California; also two brothers, George and Norman Lindsey of Cook, Minnesota, and a host of other relatives and friends. The beautiful floral offering gave expressions of the love and esteem in which he was held, not only by friends, but by the whole community.

We feel that God thought him worthy of being taken out of this world of pain and sorrow, and that he is peacefully sleeping, awaiting his Master's call on the resurrection morn to take his place in the restitution of all things.

We desire the prayers of all the brethren, that we may be able to bear this dreadful bereavement and be as well prepared at least, as was he, to meet our Savior.

He was laid to rest in the Forest Park Cemetery.

Written by One Who Knew Him Best.

* * *

TO THE OLD YEAR

I smiled to see you ushered in
A babe with glowing cheek,
And not a care to fret you then;
Too young were you to speak.
And being with you day by day,
This have I come to know:
You've been so friendly in your way
I grieve to see you go.

I watched you leap from infancy
And fling away the horn
You held when first you came to me,
The day that you were born.
'Twas then I planned all I should do—
Not once would I resign
To serve a pledge I'd made to you
I'd always toe the line.

And now I ask of you, Old Friend,
As you are soon to leave:
Have I been faithful to the end,
Or were you known to grieve
Because of me—some little deed
Which I had planned to do,

And failed—because I did not heed
My promises to you?

Before you go I want to say
You've brought a store of good
To this old world, and leaving, may
We have this understood:
I'll bear your lessons well in mind,
That when my course is run,
My passing, too, may leave behind
Some good—as you have done.
—C. T. S., in The Detroit News.

* * *

The following lines were written in memory of Brother George H. Antonides, by Ora L. Worley.

Brother George, while our hearts are bleeding
Over the spoils that death has won,
We calmly say to God in heaven,
Father dear, Thy will be done.
And so, dear George, we calmly bid
The last and sad farewell;
But long with joy when Christ shall bid thee
Come forth to life and health.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

THE CHRISTIAN'S USE OF THE BIBLE

By Daisy Nokes

HOW many of you children received a Bible as one of your Christmas gifts?

Have you heard any stories from the Bible at home? Do you ever ask your mother or father to read a story to you from the Bible?

When Moses lived and taught the people, he told the parents to gather their children together in their homes and teach them the love of God. To teach them of God, was to be always in the parents' minds. What ever they did, whether they sat down in the house, or took a walk they were to make the children think of the heavenly Father.

The people of Moses were given some rules to obey. These rules were to be written where they could see them any time, and learn them by heart.

"Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

Maybe you think that the little Israelitish girls and boys should have lived close to God when their parents were so carefully taught by Moses; but no, they did not. The children of the people living around them did not know about the true God and worshiped idols of wood and stone. The Israelitish children played with them, and sad to say, were led to think those old idols were gods. So you see that it does harm to children, to be with those who do not love the true heavenly Father.

Timothy was another good man who loved God. Once Paul wrote to him and told him not to forget the Bible stories that his grandmother and mother had taught him when a little boy. These Bible Stories made Timothy believe in Jesus. He never forgot them in later years.

Now in the last days before Jesus comes again, the Bible tells us that some will not believe in Jesus and will make fun of God's holy word.

QUESTION: Am I learning now, all that I can, so that no one can take away my belief in Jesus?

* * * *

A PRIZE STORY

Here is one of the prize answers, written by a little boy, seven years old. I wish every mother and father could see these carefully written pages. How happy the parents of such a child must be; for, like Timothy, he has been early taught the truth and is not backward in telling what he knows. So many children will say, "I know, but I can't explain." We ought to have a Berean class in every home, where the children are taught to have their answers ready.

We have selected prizes to give to these children, that will be a comfort to them through all their lives.

MY ANSWER

Here are some verses I think will answer some of the Hindu boy's questions.

Genesis 1:26, 27, "And God said, Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him. Male and female created he them."

If God is not a person He could not have made man in His own image. Also read 1 Timothy 4:10.

Jesus was not only a great Teacher, but our Savior. He is the Prince of Life, Prince of Peace, a Redeemer for all that will accept Him through obedience. He is the Son of God.

Matt. 3:17, "And lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

When we die we all go to the grave, Psalm 6:5, "For in death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" God told Adam, if he ate of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, that he should surely die, that does not sound like anything left from us to go somewhere. Such statement as Matt. 7:15, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." Christ never gave anyone power to perform miracles except the apostles, neither did He give Hindus such power. My mother and father have read Bible Story books to us and we often read the Bible. I am seven years old and am in the fourth grade. My father is our teacher and we read a chapter in the Bible every morning in school.

I would like to have a J. I. M. pin. I would like to know what I must do to get one.

Thornton Ritenour Cleek.

Warm Springs, Virginia.

THE following lines are said to have been found written in Lord Byron's Bible after his death:

*Within this awful volume lies
The mystery of mysteries;
And happy they of human race
To whom our God has given grace
To hear, to feel, to read, to pray,
To lift the latch and find the way.
But better they had ne'er been born
Who read to doubt, or read to scorn.*

YIELDING AND RECEIVING

By Ruth Raeburn Jones

THE TWO words of our title are the keywords to the victorious, overcoming life that is the heritage of every believer. It is first by yielding all we are and all we have to the Lord, and then by appropriating moment by moment by faith all that Christ has accomplished for us by His death on the Cross, that we enjoy this life of victory.

Many believers are very ready to receive from Christ; they have the desire for His blessings and victory, but they forget that preceding the receiving from Him, is their yielding to Him. As long as we are reserving any part of our being, circumstances, possessions, etc., we cannot expect to be overcomers. The least part retained for self, sin or Satan, will rob us of the full victory. It is the yielded instrument that the Lord can fill and use.

Would you expect that a man could take care of your garden and cause it to be beautiful and fruitful, if you did not yield it to him? It is only when you hand it entirely over to him that he can work out his knowledge of agriculture, dig, plant, and cultivate it, and produce in it the fruits that you desire. As long as you are meddling he cannot have his full right of way. When you take hands off he can go ahead. Furthermore, it is very foolish for you to worry after you have yielded your garden to the care of such an accomplished agriculturist. He understands his work and your worry will not aid anything.

Apply this to your life. It is like a garden. Hand it over to the Lord. He is the expert Agriculturist. He can capably take care of it and will produce in it fruits that will be to His glory and to your blessing.

Yielding implies a constant "Yes", a continual "Amen" (So be it) to Christ. Too many believers want Christ and— It is not all for Christ and Christ for all.

When we are thoroughly yielded to Christ, we understand Paul's experience, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me" (Gal. 2:20). It is as if someone should come to our door, asking who lived here, and we attempted to answer. We would stammer out: "I—I live here; yet not I exactly; Christ liveth in me—Christ lives here."

This life, however, is only possible because we have yielded to Him. All has been handed over to Christ. He has entire rights and complete ownership. We have given up all. Christ has all.

The next thing necessary for entering into this victorious life is receiving—appropriating by faith Christ's life and sufficiency. We get a glimpse of what Christ has for us in Paul's message to the Ephesians, "That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of Glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of His calling, and what the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints, and what is the exceeding greatness of His power to usward who believe, according to the working of His mighty power" (Eph. 1:17-19).

We know that our finite minds can never fully grasp the riches of His grace and the wonders of the things which He has prepared for them that love Him. But that does not hinder us from believing and receiving, whatever the need for our physical and spiritual life may be.

Again the Apostle says, "God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (2 Cor. 9:8). Could we ever doubt His ability or power, after such a passage? The promise is here, clear and plain, and it is up to us to believe and receive it.

So many believers have the opinion that in every time of need and difficulty they must go to the Lord and petition Him long and earnestly that He begin to operate to supply their need. The fact is, however, that the provision had been made—all made—long before the need arose. He foreknew every need and made provision for it. Now all that is for us to do, is to reach out by faith and receive that which He has provided for us. How simple! Yes, so simple that many of us have for years groped about and groveled in bondage and slavery looking for some great deliverance or experience, when we could have enjoyed perfect freedom and victory every moment by simply yielding and receiving.

The victory is given unto us through Christ in His perfect work on the Cross. It is offered us as a gift and we have but to accept it as we would a gift. Our working, struggling, praying will not give us this victory. We have simply to accept it by faith and it is ours.

A certain man of God, to whom God has entrusted a glorious work among His people, had fully proven to him that God had made provision for his needs long before they arose. He says, "Something happened the other day which has opened up to me a new understanding of His finished work and the glorious past tense which He, in His love, has revealed to me. As I opened the mail one morning, to my delight and thanksgiving, I found there a letter from a trust company notifying us that a bequest of $1000 had been left for the work by a man whose name was not familiar to me. I at once shared the good news with the other workers, and our hearts were filled with praise to God for His wonderful token of His presence with us. Then I began to wonder who this person might be who had made this gift. We began to search our records to see if he had been a contributor. However, the records did not contain his name, and we were at a loss to know who it might be. A few hours later, in talking over the matter, the name of this particular person seemed to come back simultaneously to several of us, and almost together we mentioned the fact that we believed he was the young man who twenty years ago had told my father, that in making his will he had set aside a gift for our work, and that although he was still young, some day we would be benefited by it. This proved to be a fact. Here was a gift which we felt very especially came at this time to meet a particular need in the development of the work, which God has so wonderfully blest, and yet more than twenty years ago God had not only thought of this need, but caused that the provision for it should be made then."

HELP THAT HARMS

It is said that if the butterfly is assisted in escaping from its Chrysalis, its wings will not develop properly. The reason is, that it is the struggle to escape which forces blood into the wings and expands them. And to make the struggle unnecessary is to hinder rather than help the creature which seeks to soar into a larger world. The necessity of overcoming difficulties always develops and expands.

Do not ask that all obstacles be removed. To surmount obstacles is to ascend to a larger, fuller life. The Christian life without trial and temptation and their consequent struggle is likely to be a partially developed life. To struggle with and overcome environment is the way to ascend to higher realms of life.—Presbyterian Advance.

A REVIEW OF THE YEAR

By Sister Woodward

TO me this has been a year of great good spiritually, as I have read the many splendid articles in The Restitution Herald. I have often grieved because of the loss of our beloved old-time writers, who have nearly all dropped out of its columns; not because they have lost heart or faith in God or His cause, but age has weakened the stiffening fingers, the eyes are dim, and the brain is a little too tired to produce the splendid articles we used to read with so much interest. But how wonderfully God has provided others with hearts as warm, and faith as strong, to keep the work moving along.

Bro. Booth is always running over with good thoughts. How I love his articles. And dear, faithful Auntie Wince, age has not deadened her heart-bursts of trust and faith. How we have walked together, lo, these many years, and she has always been so true, so faithful! I hope I may be present when she is crowned with joy eternal; for then I, too, would be among the crowned ones. And Sister Daisy Nokes, what a splendid talent she has for the children! How they will grow to love her, as she leads them to Christ! And say, beloved, if you have not read Sister A. J. Chaplin's article in The Herald of December 28, "The Time of the End", get the paper and read it now before you finish washing the dishes, "lest you forget". She has that subject well boiled down, and in such a concise, lucid manner!

The editorial page is always full of good, spiritual food. The Berean page, always so interesting, even the blank page of December 21 must have set some to thinking of neglected duty. And that page, Doings among the Churches! Where is the one who does not look at that page first when he opens the paper? I count one who does. And Bro. Samuel E. Haney always says something to soothe and inspire the reader. And another who has kindly come to us with his years of research and faithful study, I hope none will condemn his articles until they have given them prayerful study. Bro. George Johnston is a Bible student and his articles, "The Mysteries of Ancient Days", are well worth your time to read and study. They will grow more and more interesting with every article. I am glad for those who have the time, ability, and desire to study these intricate themes and give them to the world.

We are also thinking of others who so faithfully spend time and abilities to interest the readers of The Herald.

May God bless and keep all for further duties and work, is the prayer of the writer.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15).

GOD'S PEOPLE are not expected to bring the whole world to Christ in this age. Such an expectation is false and is based upon a false interpretation of Scripture and God's purpose for the present dispensation. But they are responsible to bring the message concerning Christ to the whole world.

The responsibility to bring the message of Christ unto the ends of the earth does not cease so long as we have a life to live for Christ, lips to speak, a heart to feel, feet to walk, hands to give and a privilege to pray, and so long as we have a gospel to proclaim and a whole world waiting for it. May the dear Lord stir our hearts so we may be "moved with compassion" toward the lost and do all in our power to bring them the Gospel. The Christians of the first century of the Christian era fully realized the missionizing power of the Gospel of Christ; and with burning zeal for the salvation of the whole world, set forth to preach it, and their preaching of the simple Gospel outshines and eclipses all modern methods and means by which the professed church seeks to reach success. A real missionary church is a live church, a church on fire for God, and a church that knows and enjoys continual blessing and success.—Selected.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

DEAR Brethren of the one faith, Happy New Year to all: As we stand at the portal of a new year, let us look back and see what we have accomplished in the Lord's work in the past. Perhaps many of us feel that we could have accomplished much more, but the year is gone and we cannot help that now. But here we have a new year, full of great opportunities for us all. None need to be idle. Don't be discouraged because you cannot do great things. There are plenty of smaller ones to be done: so many branches of the work. Some are fitted for one and some for another.

I would like to suggest that each of us renew our subscription the first of the year if we are in arrears, and that we also subscribe for an extra copy for a year, so that we may file one for future reference, and have the other to distribute.

Dear brethren, let us start in this year with greater zeal than ever before. This may be the last year we have to work. We do not know when the Lord may come. He might come before the year is gone, but let us work so we will not be found idle if He should come at any time.

Let us encourage one another and work in harmony in the Lord's work, and we may be able to accomplish much.

May the Lord bless you all.

Your sister in Christ,

Hanna Barber.

DOINGS AT HEADQUARTERS

(Continued from Editorial Page)

or too exclusive; the treatment of the Text or of the Subject right, wrong, or otherwise: your early expression is urgently requested.

As you look over the quarterly, you will discern several different treatments of the lessons: "F. A. S." has written the "Golden Texts"; "M. A. W." has written "Juniors". These several divisions have been made with the desire to have some student write "Practical Applications", another write "Senior and Adults"; another, "Topics for Discussion"; etc.: each to specialize on his respective division and thus give the greatest possible variety of thought and instruction in every lesson, and avoid the one-man-rut that is so customary.

Please AT ONCE send us your mind, that we may the better and more promptly proceed to the next issue.

I thank all for their forbearance with regards to this first issue.

F. L. Austin.

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

(Continued from page 211)

Their regard for Jesus and their obedience to His commands, their confession of Him as their Lord and King, was the cause of their receiving such a noble title. It refers to the office of Christ, the anointed of God, and not his name. This title is a protest against all religious titles ordained by men. Before this they were called Nazarenes, or Galileans; but they called themselves disciples, believers, brethren, or saints.

(To be continued)

NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

(Continued from Berean Page)

They even took Barabas out of jail and asked the people who should be free. They said, Barabas, and he was let go. Pilate asked the people what they would do with Jesus and they said, Crucify Him. Then Pilate said there was no fault in Jesus, but the people said, Crucify Him. So Jesus was put on the cross. The people in those days said it was not lawful for anyone to let a person hang on the cross on the sabbath, so Jesus was taken down from the cross and was put in a tomb. After the sabbath Mary and Mary Magdalene went to the tomb and seeing Jesus was not there began to weep. Jesus was standing by. When Mary knew that it was Jesus she told the disciples and they were all glad to see Him again.

Lyle Thayer.

OUT FROM BONDAGE

BY SYDNEY E. MAGAW

*The Egyptian yoke was sorely pressed,
And Pharaoh's men were cruel,
When in that land God's people blest
Strove under Egyptian rule.*

*The Nile sped, and never dreamed
Its part upon the scene;
For in its flags a babe was screened
From searching slayers, keen.*

*'Twas then the Royal Princess came
And took him for her own;
And Pharaoh did not fear his fame
'Til Moses was full grown.*

*'Twas Moses whom the Lord had planned
Should free those toiling slaves,
And lead them to the Promised Land
Beyond the Red Sea waves.*

*'Tis Egypt now we see in fear
For Israel is set free
And now 'tis Pharaoh's shout we hear,
"We'll trap them at the Sea."*

*Before the Sea stands Israel's hosts
Disheartened though set free,
For now they hear Egyptian boasts,
"We've trapped them at the Sea."*

*"Stand still", they hear the prophet say,
"The Lord shall fight for you."
God says, "Go on, and do not stay,
For I shall lead you through."*

*The waves roll back for Israel's band
Like massive walls of foam
To guide them toward the Promised Land,
On,—to their future home.*

*And now beneath those seething waves
Lies Pharaoh and his band,
In sadder plight than ever slaves
Were mastered in his land.*

*Oh! Pray for the voice that says, "Go on";
When hope is lost in fear;
For then the victory's almost won,
The Promised Land is near.*

REVIEW OF PALESTINE EVENTS

AMONG other things which The New Palestine of December 10 prints in its review of Palestine events are found the following:

ON Wednesday, December 1, the House of Commons voted for the resolution introduced by the government to authorize the exchequer to guarantee a loan of 4,500,000 pounds ($22,500,000) to the Palestine government for the construction of a Palestine harbor and other improvements in the country, states a despatch from London to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

Major Ormsby-Gore, understate secretary in the Colonial office, announced that there will be no change in the English policy in Palestine. The Balfour Declaration which has stood as the British policy, has been justified. Palestine, which many thought to be a liability, is turning out to be an asset, he said.

Sir Frederick Wise asked the parliamentary secretary of Overseas Trade as to the value of the imports into Palestine from the British Empire. Arthur Samuel, head of the Department for Overseas Trade, in reply to this question, stated that the total amount of goods imported from the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland amounted to 432,435 pounds, from the British dominions, 71,024 pounds, and from foreign countries 3,270,585 pounds.

The Jewish colonization work in Soviet Russia was brought into the discussion of the loan by Lt. Com. Kenworthy. During the debate, Kenworthy taunted the British government, declaring that "the wicked Bolsheviks are giving land to the Jews in the Crimea for nothing. The Soviet government is also lending money for that purpose. However, I believe that the call of Palestine is too strong to the Jews for the Russian colonization to have any effect. Nevertheless, Russia's action is such a contrast to the action of the British in Palestine, that it constitutes a slight danger to the Zionist effort", he said.

Major Ormsby-Gore interjected that the Crimean land is given free because it is confiscated. "We are not confiscating land in Palestine," he said.

Kenworthy replied that Mr. Ormsby-Gore was misinformed. The land in the Crimea was not confiscated but was former crown property. "The British government has also former Ottoman crown property in Palestine, but is not putting it to the best of use," he stated.

"The LORD shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the LORD; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody." "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garment, O Jerusalem, the holy city: . . . Shake thyself from the dust." These prophetic words of Isaiah (51:3; 52:1, 2) were recited in Jerusalem, the place where they were pronounced, at a celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Jewish National Fund.

M. M. Ussishkin, head of the Jewish National Fund, in reviewing the work of the Fund, declared that it was impossible to remain satisfied with the present achievements of the Fund in redeeming the soil of Palestine. He appealed to Jews throughout the world, urging the necessity of hastening the Fund's activity, declaring that "history cannot wait. A time may come when Jews will be prepared to acquire the land, but the land may not be available."

Those who desire to go to the top should look well to the foundations.—Selected.

THE LAST MINUTE

HOW people do work at the last minute! For hours and days they will delay and neglect and dawdle their time away, until they come to the point where delay is no longer possible, and then they will develop a most astonishing power and capacity for work, throwing their whole souls into matters which they have long neglected, and finally coming out flurried and often belated, suffering loss and causing inconvenience to others by their procrastination and neglect.

It is very important to be able to work quickly and energetically in times of special emergency, but it is yet more important to learn to take time by the forelock, and to do promptly and betimes the things that must certainly be done, and can be done much better in season than out of season, and after long and needless delays.

A great lesson which people should learn is to do their work at the beginning of the day instead of at the end; when they have the time before them, instead of when most of the time is gone beyond recall. The Word of God urges people to promptness in all Christian duty, and the voice of inspiration says, "Behold, now is the accepted time, behold, to-day is the day of salvation." A little while later our opportunities will be gone;—the present is the hour for improving privileges which, once gone, will return no more.—H. L. Hastings.

SALESMEN WANTED

TO SELL OUR GUARANTEED VEGETABLE AND FLOWER SEEDS IN THE FOLLOWING STATES:

ILLINOIS	NEBRASKA	MINNESOTA
INDIANA	IOWA	KENTUCKY
MICHIGAN	KANSAS	WISCONSIN
OHIO		MISSOURI

Make good money during the winter and spring months. Previous experience not essential. Liberal Commission. For further particulars write

John A. Railton Seed Co.

Successors in the Mail Order Seed Business to Golden Rule Nurseries.

Oregon

Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 11, 1927

NUMBER 15

LET US THINK!

By E. O. Stewart

IT is assumed that men must have immortal souls distinct from their bodies to do the thinking, inasmuch as matter cannot think. This is also considered quite a strong evidence in favor of the immortality of the soul.

To the careless thinker, this might seem plausible; but a little careful criticism will show there is no reliable proof to sustain this assumption. It is as equally true that matter cannot see, hear, feel, taste, smell, or talk, as that it cannot think; but it is a fact that animals do see, hear, feel, taste, smell, and even think. Have they also "souls" distinct from their bodies to do the thinking? Who says, Yes? Will any one claim that animals have immortal souls, as truly as men, because they can see, hear, feel, smell, and think? Such an idea you know is absurd!

When it is said, "Matter cannot think", the statement is correct, if reference is made to matter inorganic, or to that which is organic if it is destitute of animal life. But is it true that organic matter, endowed with life cannot see, hear, feel, taste, smell, talk, or think? All known facts answer with a tremendous, No.

There can be no life without a personal organism in which it is contained. Life has no independent existence. It does not live by itself. It has no attributes. It is never found excepting in living, organic beings. There can be no consciousness before there is life; and as there can be no life without an organism, it follows that there cannot be consciousness without an organic body. There cannot be consciousness without senses. But in order to have senses there must be an organism to contain them. Will any one assume that the senses of men and animals are not material? If they can see, hear, feel, smell, and think without them why were they made? If man can be a living being without a body, and at the same time see, hear, feel, smell, taste, and think, why is he cumbered with a body? If he can walk without material feet and legs, handle without material hands, see without material eyes, hear without material ears, talk without material organs of speech, and think without material brain when he is dead, why not also when he is alive? It seems very strange that any one could ever believe in bodiless, living beings. It is impossible to conceive of such nonentities. They are beyond the reach of imagination.

Shall we limit the power of the Creator, and say He cannot so organize matter, that it can think as well as feel pain, see and hear? The fact that He has done it ends all controversy.

Who can explain that wonderful and powerful agent, electricity? It is easily produced by rubbing together two material substances. Is it an immaterial, conscious spirit? Certainly not. It is no more wonderful that a natural brain should produce thought, than that the rubbing together of two material substances should produce electricity. He who assumes there must be in the brain an immortal spirit to do the thinking, may just as reasonably claim that there must be a similar spirit in the plant to do the growing. It is no more difficult to tell how matter can think, than it is to tell how it lives; yet it does both.

It is said by theologians, The eye of man does not see, the ear does not hear, the brain does not think; but that it is the immaterial, immortal spirit in man that sees by means of the eyes, hears through the ear, and thinks by the help of the brain. Then, how could the spirit see, hear, and think when eyes, ears, and brain are dead? As it is a fact that animals see, hear, and think, have they also immaterial, immortal spirits that use the physical organs for seeing, hearing, and thinking? A theory that requires such conclusions must be false, therefore, unscriptural and unscientific.

But says one, The narrative of "The Rich Man and Lazarus", in Luke 16, proves the distinct conscious existence of the immaterial spirit from the body.

This narrative is taken by men who have already assumed that the spirit has a distinct conscious existence from the body, then they turn to this narrative to prove their assumption.

Lazarus died and was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom. Men assume that this means, The body of Lazarus died and his spirit was carried to Abraham's bosom. Let us remember that it also says concerning the rich man, The rich man also died, and was buried. Lazarus died and was carried. If the statement, Lazarus died and was carried, means that his body died and his spirit was carried, then we must contend in fairness in interpretation, that when it says, "The rich man died and was buried", it means that his body died and his spirit was buried. Notice Lazarus died and was carried; The rich man died and was buried. If the spirit of Lazarus was carried, then the spirit of the rich man was buried.

It is difficult to understand how an immaterial spirit could have an immaterial finger, and on that immaterial finger an immaterial tip, to be dipped in material water to cool an immaterial tongue.

This parable has no reference to the condition of the spirits of these two men between death and resurrection. The rich man lifted up his eyes, but there was a long time elapsed between his national burial, and the time when he shall lift up his eyes in torments. Christ, in talking to the Jews, said, "There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out".—Luke 13:28.

Blindness in part is happened to Israel until the fullness of the nations be come in. Rom. 11:25. Their eyes are darkened and their backs are bowed down now. Rom. 1:10. They do not see Abraham in the kingdom now. They have chosen their own way, and have forsaken the Lord, the Fountain of living water, and hewed themselves out broken cisterns that can hold no water. Jer. 2:13. They will not realize this until they lift up their eyes at the close of this age, then they shall see Abraham in the kingdom and long for the water to cool their tongues; for they shall find themselves in the broken cistern without the water of life.

Man's breath goeth forth and in that very day his thoughts perish. Psa. 146:4.

The Bible, science, common sense, and good reason, all unite in affirming that the dead are unconscious, and that life, reason and consciousness shall return to man only by a resurrection from death. So let us cherish that grand doctrine of resurrection, and comfort one another with these words, "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air:" then we shall ever be present with the Lord. 1 Thess. 4:16-17.

The national industrial conference board says that the aggregate of active and inactive persons on the payrolls of all governments in this country numbers close to 3,400,000. This amounts to one in twelve of all persons sixteen years of age or over who are gainfully employed. But this small matter (small in the Lord's sight) will be attended to by Christ and those having qualified for such a glorification "when he comes to be glorified in his saints".—S. E. Haney.

Eleventh hour salvation may be safe, but it is hardly honest.—Selected.

JESUS CHRIST—WHO IS HE?

By R. H. Judd

No. 17

(Isa. 9:6, continued)

IN our last we pointed out that the names in this verse which are applied to the Messiah were to be His, they had not in any sense been His, nor were they applicable to one then existing. That these names do not prove JESUS CHRIST to be the One whom scripture represents to be the "ONLY true GOD", as so many today are endeavoring to teach, is borne out by several considerations apparent to anyone who will give careful study to the language of this remarkable prophecy. The very opening of this wonderful 6th verse of the ninth chapter of Isaiah, declares that the Messiah here spoken of is Himself a Gift, and therefore He cannot be the Giver of all good gifts as a contemporary magazine states in its Christmas issue. The fact that the Messiah "is given", instinctively calls to the mind of the reader that much loved and well known verse, John 3:16, "God so loved the world that he GAVE his only begotten Son . . .", and most reference Bibles connect these two passages by the marginal references. The words, "FOR UNTO us a child is born, . . ." also emphatically demand the recognition of a Giver, separate and distinct and superior to the Son who is given. But apart from these evidential facts, the names themselves present added testimony that He of whom they are spoken is not, and cannot be, identical with Him who thus presents His Son. The verse following, viz., v. 7, shows plainly that the names given have reference only to a period prophesied of the Messiah that did not obtain during any portion of his first advent, which was the period of His humiliation and not the period of His exaltation and kingship. True, during the time of His earthly ministry, His identity as King of the Jews was clearly established. So much so that even the common people recognized Him as the "Son of David"; and when Pilate placed the inscription at the top of the cross, "This is Jesus the King of the Jews", both the actions and language of those who opposed Him evidenced that it was no new claim. But, even so, the Christ was then only generally known by the name which was in keeping with and descriptive of the character of the mission for which His first advent was designed. (See Matt. 1:21.)

That the names of the Messiah, to which we are about to direct special attention, do not apply now, and, therefore, cannot rightly be applied in the manner so commonly done, is proved, if the reader will carefully observe that they are given subsequent to the statement, "the government shall be upon his shoulder". It is when that has taken place that the scripture adds, "and his name SHALL BE CALLED Wonderful Counsellor, mighty God, everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."

Not once in the Gospels, or in any of the epistles are these names applied to the Messiah as names given to Him. Other instances occur in scripture where GOD has predicted the name and character of the individual before his birth, and in each case it has been fulfilled literally. Why not so here; for the language is quite as specific? "Has he not said, and shall he not do it? Surely the one who accepts this promise and purpose of JEHOVAH will be among those who will be privileged, in the day of its realization.

Now then, let us come to a brief consideration of these names by which, as scripture declares, the Messiah "shall be called". Let us take them in the order in which they are named, though in passing it may be well to call the attention of the reader to the obvious fact that the last mentioned could not at any time be appropriately applied to Him who is GOD alone, nor does scripture ever so apply it.

The first in the list is, as we have already stated, "Wonderful Counsellor". This rendering is given in the margin of the Revised Version and is also upheld by the following noted commentators, Dr. H. Ewald, Dr. A. Knobel, and Rev. Dr. T. K. Cheyne. Taking this translation as correct for the reasons stated, it is interesting to note that it embodies in the personality of the Messiah that very characteristic for which King Solomon prayed so devoutly on his accession to the throne of Israel, and for which he received the approbation of Jehovah.

Of the four names mentioned in this prophecy, probably that of

MIGHTY GOD

has drawn forth the greatest amount of comment. Barnes, the noted and widely approved commentator, renders these words, "Strength of God", and when we consider that the name is given by GOD to the Messiah, and that in Genesis 31:29 the same word is translated "power", we can readily see the correctness of such a rendering; for only by the power of GOD could the GOD-given Messiah become the

"WONDERFUL COUNSELLOR".

Dr. W. Gesenius gives us the rendering, "Mighty Hero", and not without reason; for the same Hebrew word is applied to Nimrod, to Joshua's 30,000 men and even to false gods, showing evidently that, like most other words, it has both primary and secondary meanings of varied significance. When "the government shall be upon his shoulder", how beautiful and appropriate to know that He to whom GOD gives wisdom for Counsel, He also gives strength.

"THE EVERLASTING FATHER"

How JESUS the Messiah, Himself the SON of GOD, could rightly be called "The Everlasting Father", must be a puzzle to any Bible student whether he be considered "orthodox" or otherwise. It is, therefore, not surprising to find several renderings put forward by Hebrew scholars, men of unquestioned ability and character. The Revised Version gives as the marginal reading, "Father of Eternity", and Dr. Scofield says the marginal readings of the Revised Version are to be preferred. The Chaldee renders the expression, "Man abiding for ever"; the Vulgate, "Father of the future age". In this connection, it is interesting to note that kings have often been called the "Father" of their people. Bishop Louth gives the translation, "Father of the everlasting age". Thus, by careful comparison the basic meaning surely is not difficult of apprehension, and in a sense in which no other individual can be, JESUS CHRIST will be "the Father of the Everlasting age".

"THE PRINCE OF PEACE"

This is the fourth and last name given in this wonderful prophecy. If it be true that GOD reserves His best until last, then surely this is the best name of the four, and it is only when "the government shall be upon his shoulder" that the culmination can be peace. But before the government can be upon His shoulder, something else must be there first. Let the reader turn to that beautiful parable of the lost sheep in Luke 15:5-7. We read in Exodus 23:20, 21 that GOD'S name was to be in the angel who was promised. It is stated that this angel could not pardon transgression. If true of him that GOD'S name was in him, then how much more true must it be of the Messiah who was foreshadowed by type and prophecy as the one through whom transgression should be forgiven! Viewed in this light the difficulties disappear.

The prophecy becomes more real, more understandable, more true, because in harmony with God-given revelation, and more precious because he who put his shoulder to bear the burden of our sin will yet carry the government there and the issue will be peace—peace everlasting in the everlasting ages, "and his name shall be THE PRINCE OF PEACE".

Trust

Exodus 14:15

When we cannot see our way,
Let us trust, and still obey;
He who bids us forward go,
Cannot fail the way to show.

Though the sea be deep and wide,
Though a passage seem denied,
Fearless let us still proceed,
Since the Lord vouchsafes to lead.

Though it seems the gloom of night,
Though we see no ray of light;
Since the Lord Himself is there,
'Tis not meet that we should fear.

Night with Him is never night,
Where He is, there all is light;
When He calls us, why delay?
They are happy who obey.

Be it ours, while we're here,
Him to follow without fear!
Where He calls us, there to go,
What He bids us, that to do.

—Unknown.

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

By Lyman Booth

(Continued from last week)

AFTER Barnabas and Paul had labored about one year at Antioch there came a call from Jerusalem for aid for the poor in Judea. Agabus, one of the prophets, declared there would be a famine in the land, which came in the days of Claudius Cæsar. Upon receiving the news of distress, every one at Antioch, according to his ability, determined to send relief to the brethren in Judea, which they sent to the elders at Jerusalem, by the hands of Barnabas and Paul.

Shortly after they returned from Jerusalem the church and its leaders were engaged in worship and fasting for some special purpose. It was at this meeting that the Spirit said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." Obedient to this command, another meeting was held, a service of prayer and fasting, at which time they laid their hands on Barnabas and Paul and sent them away.

This was not Paul's call to the apostleship, but rather a summons by the Holy Spirit to the great work and function of his office. The facts as given in the scriptures concerning his apostleship are very similar to those concerning the twelve. Christ called the twelve to follow Him, and He, by a personal and miraculous manifestation called Paul. The twelve did not go out into the world until after they had been endowed by the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost, and so, not until Paul was similarly endowed, did he enter fully upon his apostolic labors. His superior culture and training which he had acquired, and his special training during his retirement amply qualified him for the work which was to be intrusted to his hands by the Master. The record states that the church laid hands on them and sent them away; yet it is immediately added that they, being sent forth by the Holy Spirit, departed. We have now arrived at the time when they start on their missionary journey.

They departed from Antioch, guided by the Holy Spirit to the westward where lay the Gentile world, with its culture, its intellect and arts, instead of eastward toward the primitive land and home of Judaism, and thus Salamis, a town on the Island of Cyprus witnessed the beginning of their missionary labors. They preached in the Jewish synagogues everywhere they went until their message was openly rejected. It was their custom to go first to the synagogues; for the reason that the Jews, who were God's first objects of mercy, were most likely to be found, and to them was given the first opportunity of receiving the glad tidings.

But here, as at many other places later on, they met with evil which they turned to good account. One Sergius Paulus, who was reputed to be a man of intelligence, like many Roman patricians, encouraged pretenders of occult learning and all professions of magic arts. It was here that they met one of this class, a renegade Jew, who falsely laid claims to super-human powers in magical workings. His name was Bar-jesus or Elymas. But Paulus having a desire to gain fuller knowledge of the truth turned from Elymas to Barnabas and Paul. This magician sought to interpose his sophistries and denials in an effort to overthrow the truth. But his efforts were overruled by God and became the means whereby truth was shown more clearly.

Here was an instance where truth and falsehood met in open conflict, in which the result was a victory for God's truth; for Paul, in the presence of the governor, denounced Elymas as the "child of the devil", who was considered by cultured, yet deceived, Romans as a revealing sage, but whom Paul charged with having an excess of deceit, and also charged him of being a perverter of truth and righteousness, and upon him Paul pronounced God's judgment for his deceit and impiety. Instantly he was smitten with blindness. So great was the effect upon the governor that he accepted Paul's words as the word of life.

Of Paul's missionary journies I will write more fully in another article under the title of "Paul's Missionary Journeys". I will now confine these notes to a partial account of his true character, labors of love and self-denial.

Although Paul was a Jew, he was a Roman citizen, born to the freedom of that vast empire. Now that he had laid hold of the glad tidings of the kingdom, the whole empire became his parish in which he could labor, and he determined to use his strength and time in preaching God's salvation to all men everywhere. Although Peter was the first to preach to the Gentiles, neither he nor any of the twelve went into the way of the Gentiles preaching as Paul did. I find no record of any Gentile convert being baptized by them into the fellowship of the Jewish believers from Pentecost to the destruction of Jerusalem. When Paul made his noble plea in self-defense before the council at Jerusalem, at which time Peter and James made a plea for forbearance, the only concession granted to them was that the Gentiles should be let alone.

It was Paul who hurled back the challenge to ill-bred Judaism, and stood alone in the early church for the equality of all men before God, and salvation by faith in Christ without the ceremonies of the law. This is demonstrated by his great argument in his letter to the Romans. With the word of command that bade him "Go", he dared to leave his associates at Antioch and start on his first missionary journey, bearing the cross to other nations. It was he who first resolved, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, to preach the gospel in Europe. A bold and most momentous move for one with a message so unpopular as the one he published! It was Paul who walked out into the great Roman world while the other apostles remained in Palestine and labored under different limitations. To carry the gospel message to all Gentile nations, and to stand before kings and governors required a man of great personality; one who could encounter the Rabbis in their synagogues, and the proud and haughty magistrates in their courts, and the vain philosophers in their halls of learning.

Christ had found such a man in the noble-minded Paul as the champion to carry his banner of Christianity into the strongholds of Satan. It isn't strange that the Sanhedrin should be filled with rage and moved with envy when Gamaliel's pupil should bow before the Lord and become an ambassador of the cross to the Gentiles.

Though he was unsupported by any earthly power, and with prejudice on the part of some of the church, despised and oppressed by the Jews, he went forth bearing the whole armor of God to conquer the continent, and to exterminate false ideas of religion that were rooted and grounded in the traditions of centuries. Except for the grace of God which was bestowed upon him abundantly, 1 Cor. 15:10, he went forth alone and undertook the gigantic task of transforming Christianity from being the religious cult of a subjugated province at the foot of the Mediterranean, into being the religion of all races and ages. While the other apostles almost dropped out of notice, he, with his clear vision, burning enthusiasm, and tireless ambition, has filled the succeeding centuries with God's great revelation.

(To be continued)

I will recollect I am only one, I can not do everything, But I can do something. What I can do I ought to do, And, by the grace of God, I will do.

A BIT OF CHURCH HISTORY

By Hanna Barber

IN about 1844 the Wilsons came over from England and taught the things we now believe: the coming of Christ to establish His kingdom in the earth, the mortality of man and the resurrection of the dead, the restoration of Israel, etc.

In 1853 Benjamin Wilson published a monthly paper, "The Gospel Banner". In 1864 he published the Emphatic Diaglott. In 1868 his nephew, Thomas Wilson, published the "Watchman". Later he published the "Last Days", which publication was discontinued a short time before his death in 1922.

Bro. George Storrs published a magazine in New York previous to 1850 which taught the mortality of man. This is not a new doctrine, but the same gospel of the kingdom which the disciples were sent out to preach. They were commanded to preach, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand". This is what we want to teach. We do not know when He will come. Many dates have been set and many people disappointed, but the Lord would have us ready at all times so that when He comes we will not be sleeping, but will be caught up with Him in the air, and so shall we ever be with Him.

THE SURE WORD OF PROPHECY

By Grover Gordon

DO we use prophecy as a sure word? I'm afraid, not altogether, some one will read some prophecy that is not yet fulfilled and instead of waiting for the fulfillment will give his own ideas of how it is to be. Jesus did not use it in this way. "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears".—Luke 4:21.

When the disciples of John the Baptist came and asked, "Art thou he that should come or look we for another?" Matt. 11:3, Jesus answered and said, "Go and show John again those things which you do hear and see, the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised up and the poor have the gospel preached to them."—Matt. 11:4-5. This is the actual fulfillment of the prophecy of Isaiah 61:1.

We read in the Book of Matthew so many things which happened in the early life of Jesus fulfilling the words of the prophets.

Probably the best evidence we have of the sure word of prophecy at the present time is found in Nahum 2:4, concerning the chariots (automobiles) in the day of his preparation.

"The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings."

In reading the prophet Jeremiah I found two things of which I believe we can say as Jesus did, "This day is this scripture fulfilled." One is Jeremiah 31:23, "As yet they shall use this speech in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I shall bring again their captivity". By reading current events, we find there is a university located on the Mount of Olives, teaching the Hebrew language which is fast becoming the spoken language of that country.

Another is found in Jeremiah 30:21, "And their nobles shall be of themselves, and their governor shall proceed from the midst of them". We now see a Jew as governor over that country. Some might question this being a fulfillment, but we read on to the twenty-fourth verse of this chapter: "In the latter days ye shall consider it."

It seems that in these latter days people are becoming interested more in how God will save people in some future age than in the present one. Such seems to me as words of no profit. We would do well to heed the charge Paul gives Timothy, "Of these things put them in remembrance, charging them before the Lord that they strive not about words of no profit, but to the subverting of the hearers."—2 Tim. 2:14.

"Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."—Matthew 6:34.

"Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation."—2 Cor. 6:2.

Let us use it as a sure word of prophecy; instead of giving our own ideas of what God is going to do at some future time, let us show what He has done and is doing now.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

REMITTANCES

We are highly pleased to note that only about 5 per cent of Herald subscribers are in arrears on their subscriptions. Only a few of this number are back for any great amount and we would suggest that you look at the label and see just how you stand. If you find the label marked 26, or even 25, this would indicate that you are not paid up or have not received proper credit and in either case we would be pleased to hear from you.

As the quarterlies have also been mailed we would be glad, upon receipt of them, to receive your remittance if you have not already done so.

Because of the Editor's absence, the rest of this page is filled with current events.

Be sure to read his article concerning Truth Seekers' Quarterlies on page 238, under the heading, "Doings at Headquarters".

WHY?

IN 1819 Mehemet Ali of Egypt presented to the British Government Cleopatra's Needle. Why, I wonder didn't he give it to Italy, Germany, France, Russia, or Spain. Apparently when given it was a white elephant: not the kind with capacity for eating hay all night and all day . . . , but still some elephant. I can imagine the consternation of British officialdom of how to get it home, because the wooden ships in those days were not built to carry elongated pebbles of such size on the open sea. It lay on the Egyptian sands fifty-eight years after it was given to the English, as the records show that in 1877 it was loaded into a special cylindrical ship built for it, and started for England, but was lost, and supposed to have been foundered in the Bay of Biscay.

I had heard Dr. Wild stating from his pulpit that it would not be lost for ever, but would yet be found and taken to England as a witness of God's care and oversight of His chosen people, Israel, located in the British or covenanted Isles. Evidently the Creator and Governor of the world had a different plan for this waymark than dropping it to the bottom of the sea; for after floating around some weeks, wrecked and lost, it was sighted, taken in tow, and finally landed at its destination. And to-day it stands in the heart of the greatest city of the world, on the Thames embankment, London, not only as a mark of the place or origin of Ephraim Israel, but also of the brotherhood between the United States of America and Great Britain, offspring peoples of Joseph's two sons born in Egypt before the Exodus. . . .

As children they, no doubt, played around these two monuments, likely claiming one each. And to-day, they have them in reality, one in New York, and the other one in London. And again . . . America and Britain have all Israel's heraldry between them; your coins and seals of state carry the marks of your origin.—The Road Builder.

RUSSIAN CAVE WALLED WITH ICE

Another one of Earth's mysteries and marvelous beauty spots is the subject of the following A. P. wires dated, Moscow, Russia, December 29, 1926.

A cave twenty-six miles long and a half mile deep, with a chain of grottoes of extraordinary beauty and wide corridors hung with mammoth icicles, has been discovered near the town of Kungur, province of Perm, in the Ural Mountains. A big, underground river is believed once to have flowed at the bottom of the cave.

The roof of the cave is a mass of iridescent snow crystals, which reflect all the colors of the rainbow. About a mile from the entrance is a small lake of pristine purity. Near the lake was found rare archæological objects from the time of the Persian King Cyrus, in the fifth century before Christ.

Beyond the entrance were unearthed military fortifications built by the bandit Ermak during his military campaign in Siberia in the fifteenth century.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE Palestine Government has undertaken the repair of the Tomb of Rachel, which is situated four miles from Jerusalem, states a despatch to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. The Chief Rabbinate of Palestine and the Jewish Community Council of Jerusalem submitted a protest to the Governor of Jerusalem when it was learned that the repairs had been intrusted to an Arab contractor and were to be carried out by Arab workers. The protest declares that Rachel's tomb is one of the Jewish Holy Sites in Palestine and, in accordance with the provisions of the Palestine mandate, should be the care of the Jewish community.—The New Palestine.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Merritt Knodle; H. H. Hawkins; Mrs. Allen Weaver; Levi Gabrielson; James Stilson; W. D. Tilton; L. N. Hogarth; Mrs. Richard Pascoe; Geo. Rennard; Mrs. T. W. Glass; Chas. E. Anderson; Ruth Booth; Mrs. J. C. Thomas; S. J. Wilson; Hanna Barber; J. D. Jefferies; Mrs. N. A. Church; Fred J. Doll; Jesse Harrold; S. W. Harlan; Mrs. Jessie L. Cross; Mrs. J. M. Reid; Mrs. Alice Emerson; Mrs. Newton Davis; Mrs. G. V. Misner; Homer Hendrix; Mrs. Bart Vincent; Silas Claypool; W. I. Barber; Mrs. DeWitt Dauntler; Mrs. E. Pendleton; Mrs. Mina Crosby; Mrs. C. A. Bartholomew; Mrs. J. C. Lindsey; Mary Rynearson; Anna E. Drew; A. Nichoes; Chas. Burnside; M. W. Burnside; Mrs. Edna Smith; Esther Vorpe; Homer Smith; Mrs. Elmer Winfrey; S. G. Elton; Mrs. Anna M. Wertz; Vernon Lansbery; Mrs. John Walrath; Mrs. H. E. Russel; Arthur Hornaday; Mrs. Bettie Kilmer; Mrs. Mary C. Moss; Bessie Thomas; J. A. Barr; C. A. Stowe; Mrs. J. H. Davis.

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

The Berean editor spent a part of last week in Chicago endeavoring to get in touch with various members and friends of the church. We hope in the near future to help organize a Berean class on the south side, as we have several persons down there who are so far from the class which meets on the north and west that it would take them five hours each Sunday to go to church and back. Several from over the states have written us, giving names and addresses of friends and relatives in the city who might be interested. If there are any who know of others please send in their names.

* * * *

The Senior Class at the Salem Church, near Marshall, Illinois, has been doing good work, and they have some very interesting meetings. Word from there says that in studying the lesson on "The Tree of Life" some questions came up which they could not get answered to the complete satisfaction of all. One of these was, "Will the tree of life be restored before or after the curse is removed?"

* * * *

We commented on that lesson in this department, issue of December 7, 1926, but the above particular point was not mentioned. We will appreciate it very much if others will offer thoughts on the subject. It is one of the large, beautiful studies of the Bible.

* * * *

On the particular question at hand we will simply drop a thought or two here, and then leave it open for comments of others.

* * * *

The tree of life existed in Eden; God's original Paradise, before sin entered,—but man was never associated with the tree of life after the transgression. So far as we know the scriptures never connect man under the curse with the tree of life. The promise of Revelation 2:7 is that the overcomers will eat of the tree in the Paradise of God. But Paradise carries the thought of beauty, perfection, freedom from the curse. The 20th chapter of Revelation covers the thousand years, or millennial reign of Christ, and the 21st chapter follows by describing the new heavens and new earth, and then comes the 22nd showing that it is then, in the new heavens and earth following the millennium that the tree of life shall grow upon the earth again. No statement of its reinstatement till the curse is gone.

Next!

* * * *

"One cannot help another without helping himself."

A LETTER OF THANKS

DEAR CO-WORKERS: I wish to sincerely thank you for your help during the year that has just ended, and for the special donations sent me at Christmas time to be used for Christmas cheer. To you who send me donations with request that no acknowledgement be made on receipt of them, or your names made public in any way, I take this way of thanking you.

From this special fund I provided gifts for young and old; things to gladden the hearts of the children, and to the older ones, warm clothing and extra money for Christmas dinners.

I wish I could thank each one of you personally and tell you of the many messages of love I received from our dear ones, who are so grateful for what has been done for them, not only at Christmas, but in times of need.

I also wish to thank you for the happiness you have given me. The work I am doing is a labor of love and I am glad to give of myself.

May you have a blessed and glorious New Year.

Mrs. Orpha Sanford,
Chairman, National Berean Relief Committee of the Church of God.

* * * *

The Junior Berean Class of the Salem Church re-organized Sunday, January 2, 1927, and elected the following officers: Teacher, Harry Goekler; Secretary, Ruby Hendrix; Assistant Secretary, Pearl Wright.

The classes have always been well attended, and it has been real beneficial to the children. We hope during the next year, with God's help, to make it of even more value to every one that attends.

* * * *

An Illinois sister selects and sends the following for our page:—

LIFE AND LIGHT

THE PRAYING LEGION

Christ's soldiers fight best on their knees. The praying legion is the thundering legion, and chases the enemy before it.

Leave tomorrow with God. Some of us are at times much embarrassed by the circumstances of life. Like a man who looks out of a railway carriage at night and sees nothing, so some of us often look towards to-morrow and see no light. This fear of to-morrow is the wet blanket of the Christian's life. Act rightly now; do your duty to-day and never mind to-morrow.—W. Birch,

MOSES AT THE TRANSFIGURATION

By J. R. Norrie

A DIFFICULTY has sometimes been felt in accounting for the presence of Moses on the Mount of Transfiguration. But the explanation, as so often happens, is so near and simple that it is overlooked.

Our Lord had given this promise to His twelve disciples: "There be some standing here, who shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom."—Matt. 16:28.

THE PROMISE EXAMINED

There are three different accounts of the promise—Matthew, Mark, and Luke—which are practically identical, and agree in three special particulars. (1) The promise was only to "SOME standing here", not to all the twelve. (2) It was to be realized before they died. (3) They were to "SEE" something, viz.:—

The Son of man coming in his kingdom, Matt. 16:28.

The kingdom of God come with power, Mark 9:1.

The kingdom of God, Luke 9:27.

Another peculiarity about the promise is that it is immediately followed, in all three records, without anything intervening, by an account of the Transfiguration. This "vision" took place about a week after the promise had been given, and it was seen by only three of the disciples, who were commanded by the Lord to "tell the vision to no man until the Son of man be risen again from the dead", Matt. 17:9. So far as these two points go—the time and the number of those who witnessed the scene—the terms of the promise were thus fulfilled, but what about the thing witnessed? Did the Transfiguration correspond to that? Most certainly it did. Attention must be drawn again to the precision and uniformity of terms in all three cases.

WHAT WAS NOT PROMISED

It was not said in any case that the kingdom of God was to come in their lifetime, but that they were to "see it". The question arises, Can we see a thing that does not really exist? Yes, we can. Have we any instances of this in the Bible? Yes, many, in both Old and New Testaments. Take Daniel and John for examples. "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of Days; . . . and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him. . . . I beheld . . . until the Ancient of Days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom."—Dan. 7:13-22. The Book of Revelation is full of visions of things not yet come. "I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; . . ."—Rev. 20:12. These are samples of how God enables men to see things that have not yet come to pass.

WAS MOSES REALLY THERE?

Some readers find a difficulty with the word "vision". It simply means "anything seen, or anything imagined to be seen, as the view from a hill top, or a dream in the night". All the other persons in the spectacle were real, and there is no good reason to suppose Moses was different, especially in view of what Jude says, v. 9: "Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring against him a railing accusation." There is no other reference to this in the Bible, but we gather that the Lord had need of Moses to appear with Him on the Mount of Transfiguration. Michael was appointed to carry out this purpose, but the devil, who claims the dead as his property, since he was the wicked agent by whom sin was introduced to the human race and death by sin, resented this invasion of his domain, but had to give way to the messenger of the Prince of Life. The letter to the Hebrews puts the dominion of the devil very plainly when it says: "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he (Christ) also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil, and deliver them, who through fear of death, were all their lifetime subject to bondage."—2:14, 15.

WHY MOSES WAS NEEDED

But why was Moses required on the Mount of Transfiguration? To give a complete representation of the coming kingdom of God. The Old Testament said, "When the Lord shall build up Zion, He shall appear in his glory".—Psa. 102:16. The Apostle John says, "We beheld his glory (at the Transfiguration), the glory as of the only begotten of the Father".—1:14. John was one of the three privileged to see the Transfiguration, and so was Peter, who writes, "I . . . am a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed".—1 Peter 5:1. And again, "We have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the POWER and COMING (two expressions used in describing the promise of the three) of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount".—2 Peter 1:16-18.

The fitness of the transaction on the mount to represent in type the essential features of the coming kingdom is at once manifest. (1) Jesus, as He prayed, was transfigured. His face shone as the sun. His raiment was white as the light, so as no fuller on earth could whiten them. (2) He talked with Moses, brought back by Michael from his lonely grave on Mount Nebo, type of those blessed and holy ones who shall be raised from the dead by the Lord when He returns. (3) Elias (Elijah), type of those saints who shall be alive when the Lord returns, and He shall change the body of their humiliation, that it may be conformed to the body of His glory. (4) The sleeping disciples, types of the world lying in wickedness, unconscious and unconcerned about the tremendous crisis now approaching in the establishment of one King in all the earth, and the overthrow of all human governments.—Words of Life.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON IV.—January 23.

PRAYER IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Mark 1:35; 14:32-36; Matthew 6:9-13.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 63:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you.—Matthew 7:7.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Prayer. Prayer in one phase, is an effort on the part of man to express his complete confidence in God as an intelligent, powerful, and merciful Sovereign. It is a means of communicating with one's Maker. Such communication is Christian living. It is not only beneficial, it is undoubtedly essential. It is a part of Christian life.

The Bible is full of prayer. Abraham often spoke directly to God. When the law was afterward given the faithful, obedient people of the law also spoke with God. The one was under one system of approach, the other under another.

The Christian has still a different approach to God and thus his prayer is often from a different viewpoint and with a different force.

The subject of prayer in the Scriptures should be carefully studied. The one English word represents several different Greek words. "Euchomai" means, "to speak out, utter aloud", hence to wish or vow, Acts 26:29; 2 Cor. 13:17; James 5:16; while "proseuchomai" means, "to pray to". The former is a general term for "prayer"; the latter is restricted to prayer to God. "Herotao" means, "to ask or request the person to do (rarely to give) something, implying familiarity, equality. It is never used of our prayers to God, but it is used of Christ's prayers to the Father."—Crit. Lex. See John 14:16; 16:26; 17:9-15, 20. The word which was proper for Christ to use was not proper for man to use, and the word which was proper for man to use toward man was improper for man to use toward God. Such distinctions carefully followed in the Bible reveal the fact that prayer was solemnly regarded by God, by Christ, by humble worshipers.

In the Closet. True, Christ taught His disciples, Matt. 6:6, to pray in the closet. This does not indicate that Christ prohibited them from praying elsewhere. The intimacy and earnestness of confidence which, on certain topics, one expresses when alone with God makes it far more helpful to engage in prayer alone at such times. Jesus often went to the wilderness or the mountain or the isolated place at the close of a day of hard work, or in preparation for a day of strenuous service, and alone prayed with His Father. It evidently gave Him power and vision of life. It gave Him confidence; it gave Him source of support beyond anything that could be tendered by nearest human friends.

But Christ also taught group prayer. Witness that memorable prayer of John 17, when, alone in the upper room with His apostles, following the Last Supper, He breathed forth the prayer of the ages as He stood in group with His eleven anxious apostles. How much of strength His out-breathed prayer must have bestowed upon the lives of trembling followers; also how much of real growth and strength is wafted over the lives of others who are gathered properly for prayer!

What edification, when one in earnest, intelligent devotion, brings his heart and soul in vocal communication with the God of the universe!

Prayer has accomplished untold benefits in the lives of group members who have assembled with a view to prayer. Witness Paul upon the seashore "where prayer was wont to be made", Acts 16:13; witness the friends of Peter gathered in the room for prayer as Rhoda announced Peter's knock at the door, Acts 12; witness the prophesied prayer of the four living ones before the throne of God in Revelation 5:9; and more, many more. For lonely, earnest prayer, witness Daniel pouring out his heart's confession of Israel's wrongs in Daniel 9:1-19.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

There can be no victorious Christian life without prayer. Attitude regarding prayer reveals attitude regarding God. Prayer was provided by God. He must have had a reason for it. It requires preparation of heart and mind for proficiency in prayer. The Christian addresses his prayer to God, in Christ's name, John 14:15. The Christian earnestly longs for God to rule. This is the first petition of Christ's model prayer,— "Thy kingdom come". Christian prayer does not command God, but seeks God's better rule.

The Christian is anxious for God's supreme will to prevail,— "Thy will be done". Christian prayer does not map-out for God, but seeks expression of His will to exalt self thereunto.

Christian prayer seeks daily strength from God,— "Give us this day our daily bread". It implores His forgiveness for the wrong exercise of strength,— "forgive us our debts".

The Christian confidently hopes for God's mercies, hopes God will not judge according to deeds, and prays,— "Abandon us not to trial", Diag., "but deliver us from evil".

The Christian recognizes that to God belongs all kingdom development, all accumulation of abiding power, all unspeakable glory; and prays for the controlling, the empowering, the blessing of self for truest accord with Him.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

Be asking, and it shall be given you; be seeking, and ye shall find; be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.—Matthew 7:7, Rotherham.

The thought seems to be one of perseverance in asking, seeking, and knocking. Keep on asking. It is because of persistence that He will answer. But know ye that God is our Father and knows what we have need of before we ask. He knows what is best for us. He does not always answer in accordance with our will, but in harmony with His own great will. He sometimes says, "No." He granted to Israel a king when they asked. Do you think it was for their good?—F. A. S.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

.A man of the flesh, by his own strength, cannot live the life of Christ.

Prayer brings Higher Life to aid man to live beyond his natural strength.

The value in a Christian life of prayer.

QUESTIONS.

What is prayer? Is it necessary?

Is prayer private or public, or both?

What was the petition of Christ's prayer in the garden? Was it answered? See Hebrews 5:7.

Is the saying, "Practice makes perfect" applicable to prayer?

Name the petitions in Christ's "after this manner" prayer.

Apply Christ's prayer to present Christian living.

To whom is prayer addressed?

Are Christians free to ask more than they have faith they will receive?

May people not "in Christ" pray?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Born to Dr. and Mrs. A Chisholm, of 1616 Grand Ave., Kalamazoo, Michigan, December 20, 1927, a daughter, Florence. Both mother and daughter are doing fine.

* * *

Sr. Almeda Glotfelty, who has been very ill from an infection in her face, complicated with neuralgia, is greatly improved, although she still suffers to some extent.

* * *

Sr. Almeda Wertz, of Washington Boulevard Hospital, Chicago, and her brother, C. M. Wertz, of Rockford, Illinois, planned to eat their dinner on New Year's Day with their mother in Lanark; but their plans were suddenly changed. On December 31 Almeda submitted to an emergency operation for appendicitis in the hospital above mentioned. Condition reported, favorable.

* * *

Besides having charge of three churches, Bro. H. A. Sheets, Maurertown, Virginia, has been teaching public school since last September. His usual week-end work consists of delivering two sermons and teaching two classes. In October he conducted a two weeks' evangelistic meeting at Browntown in addition to his public school work.

He reports that the work is progressing nicely in Virginia. "All are well and working."

On January 3 he writes of one church, that it is "highly pleased" with the first lesson of the Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly. Of another, he says the "people report the quarterly as far more satisfactory than any yet tried here."

* * *

REPORT FOR DECEMBER, 1926

Sermons: Pleasant View, 1; Rensselaer, 2; Burr Oak, 1; Plymouth, 1; Hillisburg, 1. One funeral at Brush Creek, Ohio.

Money received: Pleasant View, $25.00; Rensselaer, $25.00; Burr Oak, 5.05; Plymouth, $15.00; Hillisburg, $12.50; Conference Board, $29.14.

Expense: $11.69.

J. H. Anderson.

* * *

THE PEACE OF GOD

We ask for peace, O Lord!
Thy children ask for peace;
Not what the world calls rest,
That toil and care should cease,
That through bright sunny hours
Calm Life should fleet away,
And tranquil night should fade
In smiling day,—

It is not for such peace that we would pray.

We ask for peace, O Lord!
Yet not to stand secure,
Girt round with iron pride,
Contented to endure:
Crushing the gentle strings,
That human hearts should know,
Untouched by others' joys
Or others' woe;—

Thou, O dear Lord, wilt never teach us so.

We ask Thy peace, O Lord!
Through storm, and fear, and strife,
To light and guide us on,
Through a long, struggling life:
While no success or gain
Shall cheer the desperate fight,
Or nerve, what the world calls,
Our wasted might:
Yet pressing through the darkness to the light.

It is Thine own, O Lord!
Who toil while others sleep,
Who sow with loving care
What other hands shall reap:
They lean on Thee, entranced
In calm and perfect rest:
Give us that peace, O Lord!
Divine and blest,
Thou keepest for those hearts who love
Thee best.
A. A. Proctor, in The Christian.

We now have a good start on the second $1000.00. Each stone laid represents $50.00. Let's see that the steps are finished soon.

A THANK OFFERING

National Bible Institution,
Oregon, Illinois:

Enclosed find $-----, a Thank Offering to aid
in furthering the work of the Gospel.

Name -----

Street -----

Post Office -----

State ----- Date -----

THE WAY OF OVERCOMERS

By Samuel E. Haney

TO HIM that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Rev. 3:21.

Overcome what?

Although "many men have many minds", apart from God's word, no person is competent to give a requisite answer to this momentous question. So it behooves us to (1) go to God's word: search the scriptures and get first-handed information; (2) Introspect our hearts and minds; (3) after a careful recapitulation, figure out our status "in the Lamb's book of life"; for "every one of us shall give an account of himself to God", even of "every idle word", Rom. 14:12; Matt. 12:36.

Brethren, this excels the double entry mode of book-keeping. This word is a mighty sharp instrument: "The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than a two-edged sword." No slipslop work here! Our Judge is as exacting as He is merciful. Remember that idle, frivolous words affect our characters.

All bookkeepers know that a cent error is harder to locate than is a hundred dollar error; and Christians of experience know that the little sins are more treacherous than the large, conspicuous ones. How necessary it is to watch our step these days! It is the only way to get life through the blood of the Lamb. It will not do to wait until the next age to put on the finishing touches of our salvation, as many imagine they may.

Moreover, knowing that words and acts are the fruition of thought, how important that our minds are kept clean by Paul's advice, "Whatsoever things are true", honest, just, pure, lovely, of good report, virtue and praise, "think on these things", Phil. 4:8.

Not only our lives, but the substratum and power of our bodies are influenced by our mode of thinking: Faith, peace and joy mean free breathing, expanded pores, cells and arteries; while fear and worry close the tubes and subways of the body. Paul would have our bodies, as well as our souls (lives) free, and working smoothly.

Pardon the apparent diversion.

Question: Overcome what?

Answer: Self, the world, and the devil.

"And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto death", Rev. 12:11,—death of self. Self is the "old man", flesh personified, which at baptism is dethroned by the "new man" in Christ Jesus, and is reckoned by God as dead. Paul says, "For I know that in me, that is in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing: . . . O wretched man (Lamentation of the 'new man'.—S. E. H.) that I am! Who shall rescue me from this body of death?"—Rom. 7:18, 24. (Last clause quoted from Diag.—Ed.)

Self got the mastery of Peter and Judas Iscariot which would have proven fatal to both had not Jesus prayed for Peter, that his faith fail not, Luke 22:31, 32.

There are many Peters these days who think the Lord dwells preeminently in their hearts while self is constantly cropping out. Peter had great love (fighting love) for Jesus, but in a showdown, self prevailed. Then through bitter weeping repentance came.

To get rid of self is a prerequisite act to the overcoming of the world; for trying to overcome the world while self is a part of it is worse than a man trying to lift himself from the earth by his bootstraps. We cannot take self and the world into the kingdom. So let us rid ourselves of both, and strive earnestly for a place on our Master's throne.

To the extent that we keep self subjugated we are immune from Satan's attacks. "For whatsoever is born of God ('Born of water and of the Spirit'—Jesus, John 3:5.) overcometh the world".1 John 5:4.

"They (my disciples) are not of the world, even as I am not of the world".—Jesus.

"Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God. Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God".—James.

"As he is (was) so are we in this world".—John.

"If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you".—Jesus.

These texts should suffice to give us our status in
(Continued on page 239, column 1)

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President, Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois.
F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

PRAYER IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

By Daisy Nokes

ONE night Jesus ate supper with His disciples. He had washed their tired feet. This showed that He was ready to do anything for those whom He loved.

After the meal was over He felt very sad and lonely; for He knew that bad men were planning to do Him harm. So they went for a walk till they came to a garden. Here He told some of them to wait at the gate while He took three of them, Peter, James, and John farther into the garden.

"I am so sorrowful", said Jesus, "you wait here and watch".

Jesus walked a little ways beyond and fell on the ground and prayed to God.

Then He came back to Peter, James, and John, but found them sleeping instead of watching. He woke them up and said sadly to Peter, "Could you not have watched with Me one hour?"

He went again to talk with His heavenly Father, and came back and found them fast asleep. He left them and went the third time to pray and said to God, "Not My will, but Thine, be done".

Jesus was all alone and so sad, but God sent an angel from heaven to comfort and give Him strength. The heavenly Father answers prayer.

One day He taught His disciples the prayer that we know as "The Lord's Prayer". How many of you can shut your eyes and pray this prayer?

"Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen."

BLESSED CHEERFULNESS!

BLESSED BE CHEERFULNESS! It is promise at the dawn. It is preparative of rest when we lie down to sleep at night. It is coin current in all social experiences. It is like a breath of wholesome outdoor air in stuffy rooms. It is a claim on attention and remembrance. It is even an element in the divine satisfaction when we are told that "God loveth a cheerful giver". When the cynic and the grumbler come into the room we are glad of an excuse to leave. When some cheerful soul comes breezing in we sit up and pay attention and forget our grudges against life and fate. And in our most discontented hours, even when we take pains to conceal our own disheartenments, are we not inclined to be intolerant of other people's gloom?—Rufus A. Curtis.

WHAT IF THEY HAD QUIT?

A DREAM

By C. K. Ober

I BEHELD in my dream, and five men—Peter, Andrew, Matthew, John, and Paul—sat on a hillside, looking out over the Sea of Galilee. It was twenty years after the "Day of Pentecost", and they had met by appointment to talk over a crisis in the lives and programs of three of their number.

The work was going hard with them. Paul had suffered the loss of all things; Peter had left all to follow Christ and was finding it hard to support his family; and Matthew had just had an attractive proposition at a large income to return to his old place in the custom house.

Peter, as usual, opened the discussion. He said, "Simon the tanner has inherited the estate of his brother, who was a fisherman and an old friend of mine in Bethsaida, and he has offered to give me a complete fishing outfit, boats, nets, and tackle, with an established trade at Capernaum. It looks like a providential leading, especially as my wife's mother has opened a boarding house in Capernaum and it will cost us almost nothing to live with her while we are getting started again. I can make a good living and a little more by fishing five days in the week, and I will have all my Sundays for evangelistic work in cities around the lake. I am getting along in years and am afraid I can't stand the pace at which I have been working. And, then, too, I need the money."

"Paul said, "Aquila and Priscilla have been greatly prospered in the tent-making business in Ephesus and have offered me a position at a good salary, to open a branch in Philippi and from there to develop and supervise their interests in the principal cities of Macedonia. I can do this work; it will not be any harder for me than the care of all the churches, and I will have abundant opportunity for Christian work and can lay by a little something for a rainy day which I can see is coming."

Matthew said, "My story of the life of Christ is having a large sale and is bringing me in enough to pay my expenses, but my business experience tells me that I ought to have a larger margin. Persecution may come and sales would fall off. I have a chance now to take my old position, and I know that I can make enough out of it, not only to support myself and family, but to take care of the rest of you if you should get into trouble. And then, too, I will have more leisure for writing and can probably help the cause more in this way than by traveling about the country."

Andrew said, "Peter, do you remember the day when you thought you had lost your wife's mother? Do you see that sand beach over there? That is where we beached our boat after the miraculous haul of fish, and where we quit the fishing business, and where the Master said, 'Fear not, from henceforth thou shalt catch men.' How long a time is 'henceforth'? Do you see that hillside over there? That is where the Master fed the five thousand, and I can see the very spot where that lad stood when I asked him to give up his lunch for the Lord to multiply. Don't you remember the look of compassion and longing on the Master's face when He looked out over the multitude and asked us to pray that laborers might be thrust forth into His harvest? If we are going to continue to pray that other men may rise up, leave all, and follow Him, can we do less?"

John, who was leaning against Peter, felt a big tear fall on his hand, and looking over to Paul, he saw his jaw set, the old fire came back into his eye and the old war-horse look into his face, and quietly he said, "Men I don't think we need to talk about this any more; let us pray." And as they prayed, the things of time and sense receded; a light breeze rustled in the the nearby treetop, reminding them of that "rushing mighty wind" of the day of Pentecost, and of the marvelous power with which Peter had preached the gospel on that day; they seemed also to see the Master Himself standing on the shore, just a few rods away, and to hear Him saying to them again, "Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a draught," and "Fear not, from henceforth thou shalt catch men."

They looked, and the evening caravan for Tyre was just swinging into sight. "Good-bye," said Paul. "I must catch the next boat for Ephesus, and I will get Aquila to put up the money for a campaign in that old city that will shake the whole of Asia."

"Good-bye," said Peter. "Andrew and I will just say, Good-bye, to the folks and we will have time to join the midnight caravan for Babylon, and may keep on East as far as the land of Sinim."

"Good-bye," said Matthew. "There is a group of publicans down in Jerusalem who were going in with me on this tax-gathering proposition, but I will get them to join me in financing a five years' campaign in Egypt and up the Nile as far as Ethiopia. I have heard from the Ethiopian Treasurer that practically the whole country is open to us and he believes that all of Ethiopia will soon stretch out its hands unto God."

"Good-bye," said John, and he sat there alone till the stars came out and the waves on the beach, impelled by the rising wind, sounded like the voice of many waters, and he said to Him that stood by, "Lord, do not charge this thing against them. I have felt that way myself at times, as Thou knowest, and I would have left this work but for the fact that Thou didst prevent and strengthen me. They, too, are ready to live and to die for Thee, as I am.

"I thank Thee for Andrew, for his deep life and steady faith. If it please Thee, let him stay and work with Peter and then the one who can chase a thousand shall put ten thousand to flight.

"And now, Lord, let us see Thee ever before us, ever hear Thy voice and walk and work with Thee, and we will not fear what men can do unto us."

A sudden storm broke over the lake, and I awoke, and as I thought upon the dream I heard the voice of a modern John calling to me out of his rich experience:

*"Go labor on, and be spent,
Thy joy to do the Father's will;
It is the way the Master went.
Should not the servant tread it still?"*

*"Go labor on, 'tis not for naught,
Thy earthly loss is heavenly gain;
Men heed thee, love thee, praise thee not,
The Master praises. What are men?"*

*"Go labor on while yet 'tis day,
The world's dark night is hastening on,
Speed, speed thy work, cast sloth away,
It is not thus that souls are won."*

The only real way to prepare to meet thy God, is to live with thy God so that to meet Him shall be nothing strange.—Lyman Booth.

RELIGION SEEN AS HEALTH AID

THE ultra-microscopic bids fair to raise the average span of man's life to seventy years, or more, by aiding science in the treatment of disease, Dr. William J. Mayo, noted surgeon of Rochester, Minnesota, said in an address on October 25, before the Canadian Club in Montreal.

"The future of medical science," he said, "lies in further investigation of the ultra-microscopic field, and as the microscope carried the average age of man from 20 to 58 years, so the ultra-microscope bids fair to raise it up to three score and ten—or more."

Dr. Mayo laid great stress on the value of religion in healing. He said that the appeal to the emotions, which existed before the practice of medicine, is not to be ignored. He described spiritualistic seances as the work of fakers, who first "deprive their victims of their sense of sight, the most important means of obtaining true knowledge, by taking them to a dark room and there conjuring up fraudulent conceptions."

"I cannot speak too highly of the work done by churches in hospitals," he said, "and I consider it would be better for the world if more time still were given to endeavors of this kind, and less to establish man-made institutions."—Detroit Free Press.

DOINGS AT HEADQUARTERS

SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

THE quarterlies were mailed last Friday—1100. Subscribers living at the most distant points should receive their copies in time to distribute Sunday, the 16th, for use Sunday, the 23rd. Realizing that it would be impossible to get the quarterlies to destinations in time for distribution a week in advance of use of lessons, the first three lessons were mailed to ALL schools as leaflets. This extra expense was wholly borne by F. L. Austin personally and will not enter into the cost of the quarterlies.

Work has already started on the next issue which is scheduled to go to press March 1, and made ready for the mail March 10, for Sunday School distribution March 27.

Preparatory work on these lessons should have been made six months ago. Until there is opportunity to get lessons written well in advance there must, of necessity be more or less of confusion with possible inability to keep schedule.

Effort was made to secure a map for inside front cover. Only one house was located that would furnish this, and that house wanted only $40 for the cut to use. This price is impossible unless our subscription is more than doubled. Effort was made to get illustrations for the lessons. The Providence Lithographing Company was written but the correspondence necessarily entered into details that, if completed, would have delayed still more, the publication.

These and other matters must be taken up as circumstances will permit.

EXTRA WORK

Much gratis work has been contributed by Oregonians the past two months, much of which has been owing to extra work occasioned by these quarterlies.

Forty-seven Sample Copies were mailed last Friday to localities where it was presumed that there are Sunday Schools or should be Sunday Schools of the Church of God, and where in most instances the people would be aiding their own cause very much by patronizing their own publishing house.

THE MORE COPIES PRINTED AND SOLD, THE BETTER OR CHEAPER CAN THEY BE MADE, TO EACH.

So here is a chance for extra work by all. First: Help to perfect the quarterly by writing the National Bible Institution of the many defects therein—that they may be rectified hereafter. Second: GET BUSY RIGHT NOW, AND HELP TO GET THESE QUARTERLIES INTO YOUR OWN AND OTHER SUNDAY SCHOOLS. SOME OF YOU PREACHERS AND ELDERS WHO ARE THE LIGHTS IN YOUR CONGREGATIONS, GET BUSY AND HELP A LITTLE. Others also, everybody, if interested in seeing the Church of God advance, should be willing to do all possible to spread the work. Third: Send Ten Cents for a copy for yourself—if you are an isolated member. There are a hundred extra sheets printed, ready for making up if called for. This is the best Ten Cent reading that the N. B. I. has put out this year. It is an excellent tract; put it into the hands of the best Sunday School workers in other Sunday Schools. They will get a point or two that will do them good.

Let's Go!

Help us to help you by helping yourself to our help. The financial success of this effort depends on multiplying the subscription list. Only large lists are profitable to any publishing house.

In the meantime, do not neglect to hustle suggestions for correction and improvements to Oregon.

* * * *

COSTS

Few people have reason of the "costs" in the production of Church work. The majority appear to think that all that is needed is to tell someone to "Go Ahead", that the rest is automatic. Not so.

The great big cost in any undertaking is in getting started. This cost is unavoidable—AND IT IS BIG. To the inexperienced it seems almost impossible that it could possibly be so much.

This cost is in no way justified unless all hands are going to take hold and build the initial efforts into something very much greater. And in a congregational matter it must of necessity be commonly understood that in no instance can any particular effort suit everybody perfectly. To be perfectly satisfactory and successful each effort must be the work of a single individual. But this is in every way impossible; besides, statistics show that more than 60 per cent of these efforts are complete failures, and experience proves probably 90 per cent are unsatisfactory, even to the originators. So, in a congregational matter it should be a well settled rule that when the people as a whole decide on an undertaking, all should give perfectly loyal support to the effort. If the work is improperly managed, or teaches improper principles, then ALL should, as one, make proper changes in management and KEEP RIGHT ON PULLING AND PRAYING TOGETHER, AS ONE, FOR THE GROWTH AND SUCCESS OF THE WHOLE UNDERTAKING. This reduces costs of every kind.

In the new Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterlies: It costs just as much to prepare the lessons for the first printed book as it would for a million books; it costs just as much to set the type, to make the form ready, etc., to make one book as it would to make many thousands. Now, to do all of this for only one book, would be prohibitive; for two books it would cost just half as much per each; for ten, one-tenth; etc. By far the largest cost of printing the quarterly was in getting it ready for the printing press to run. It makes little difference in cost whether, after the press starts printing, a hundred extra copies are run or not. A matter of a few minutes and a few extra sheets of paper would tell the story. But the cost comes in getting the "copy" ready, into type, on the press; then, after the printing is over, to take the type off and distribute. These are the costs.

The same thing is true with the printing, weekly, of The Herald. The getting ready and the cleaning up costs are identically the same whether 1500 copies are printed or whether 50,000 are printed. The extra time for printing, the additional paper, ink, mailing, etc., are the only extra cost.

Getting Ready

Getting ready is where the BIG COST is. Are you going to operate a silver mine? To get the hole dug, the plant started for the first hour will cost thousands of dollars. The costs thereafter are, in comparison, trivial. Going to operate a railroad? To level the right of way, lay the track, build stations for telegraphers to move the trains safely,—to get the first train READY TO GO is the Great—BIG—Cost—. To put the second train out costs little in comparison, in fact it helps to divide the cost of maintaining the trackmen, agents, etc., along the line.

Our Church work is just the same. The Great Big Cost is in GETTING READY.

Now, in proportion as all will get hearts and souls under the work and unite in multiplying the demand for the work that is largely Gotten Ready, in some such proportion will the work cheapen and grow.

The Restitution Herald could be printed at much less cost per subscription if the subscription list were multiplied by 2, or 3, or 4, or 50.

So the work of the Church of God is a matter of Costs. The more carefully all will realize this the better will it be for the work.

As all unite to carry forward the work systematically and earnestly, the work will, under God, prosper. This Church stands for some of the richest and choicest promises of God. The world is literally hungry for them. But we do not unite to the full opportunity to produce results at economical costs.

Let's work as one. It is better in every way.

THE WAY OF OVERCOMERS

(Continued from page 235)

this world, and with its devotees; and the fact that no one can follow both Christ and the world and become an "overcomer". So let us examine ourselves and ascertain whether we are honestly trying to overcome the flesh and the world, or whether we are being overcome by these enemies. Or, are we just drifting with the tide, and getting nowhere?

As for overcoming the devil, this is a small matter if we comply with the foregoing. Take for granted that the devil is a "yellow", skulking coward, and you have his number. James says, "Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you." Ambuscading, and kicking a fellow when he is down are samples of his bravado.

As the writer understands it (pardon the intrusion of personal views), the "overcomers" will consist of daily-cross-bearing-saints who shall have yielded everything that was inimical to their spiritual growth in the stature of Christ. They will constitute the bridal class; and the living ones will escape the approaching trouble by God's miraculous intervention.

The "foolish" ones are now ubiquitous as flies in August.

Note: The "wise" ones are voluntaryist, while the "foolish" ones are conscriptionist. Of the former Jesus says, "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my words unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron", etc.—Rev. 2: 26, 27. Let us meet our Lord with a happy, courageous, rather than with a shameful, pusillanimous spirit.

Jude, referring to the "foolish" ones, says, "And of some have compassion, making a difference: and others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garment spotted by the flesh".

Paul says, "If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire".—1 Cor. 3:15.

These "foolish" ones will be merely guests at "the marriage supper of the Lamb", Rev. 19:9, after the marriage shall have taken place.

Next we locate them by David: "The King's (God's) daughter (overcomers) is all glorious within: her clothing is of wrought gold. She shall be brought unto the King (Jesus) in raiment of needlework: the virgins (foolish ones) her companions that follow her shall be brought unto thee. With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought: they shall enter into the King's palace".—Psalm 45:13-15.

The "foolish" one's accession to "the King's palace" will be attained by God's merciful bath of fire, burning out self—the world and the devil—cleansing their ring-streaked, speckled, and spotted garments.

Jesus says, "My yoke is easy, and my burden is light". Such is the case with those that are in the world, but not a part of it. But, O, how galling is His "yoke" to many Christians; made so by their obstinacy in yielding all on the sacrificial altar! Heb. 12:1. And how heavy the burden!

Were such dear ones to know what they are missing, they would quickly drop their cumbersome load at the feet of Jesus, and continue the journey with lightsome and gladsome hearts.

WE AGREE with Rowland Hill when he says: "I would give nothing for that man's religion whose very dog and cat are not the better for it."

Let us pray, and learn the sweet influence of frequent communion with our heavenly Father.

SOME CURRENT EVENTS

A DISMAL HOPE

While there are not a few who are convinced that the Anglo-Saxon race has a prominent place in fulfilling prophetic announcements relative to the end of this Gentile age, yet it must be true that not by any concerted effort of man will "Peace on Earth" be attained. The Prince of Peace is, by the same prophecies, declared to be the God-appointed Power to bring in this ideal.

However, in this connection, the following news item from The Philadelphia Enquirer of December 30, last, is suggestive of man's ideality, even though he relies upon impossible man for results. It reads as follows:

"If the British Empire and America will work together for the rehabilitation of Europe, and the promotion of peace, there is hope for mankind. If they do not, nothing mankind can devise can possibly succeed."

"This was the burden of the plea made by Prime Minister Stanley M. Bruce, of Australia, to the three American audiences which greeted him to-day at the Bankers' Club, the English Speaking Union reception at Roosevelt House, and the banquet of the Pilgrims at the Hotel Biltmore in the evening.

"The friendship between English speaking Commonwealths, he pointed out, was the 'silver lining' to the dark clouds which appear to be hanging over civilization at this hour.

"The economic reconstruction of Europe first and the question of disarmament are the two immediate tasks which face the allied Anglo-Saxons of the world, Mr. Bruce continued. Cooperation between the British Empire and the United States to be 'rammed down the throat of the world, if necessary', he advised.

"At the Pilgrim dinner, Mr. Bruce paid tribute to the American ideal of self-government as the agency which was responsible for the present happy status of the British Empire.

"Had Australia, with her freedom loving and independent people, been in existence in the days of your War of Independence, I say, without hesitation, that she would have been up on your side', he said."

SOMETHING ABOUT MEXICAN AFFAIRS

In issuing a statement on December 19, last, in reply to a recent "pastoral letter" of the Catholic hierarchy in the United States setting forth its views on the religious controversy in Mexico, Arthur M. Elias, Consul General of Mexico, made the following statement, according to an Associated Press news item from New York.

"The Mexican Government,' Mr. Elias says, 'is happy indeed to have this particular issue—the issue of the Catholic Church in Mexico versus the Mexican people—judged by American standards,' as the pastoral letter asked.

"He says that the fundamental tenet of the American people is religious freedom and tolerance, attained in the First Amendment of the Constitution adopted in 1791, and then asks, 'What was the situation in Mexico?'

"Mr. Elias recites the struggle of the Mexican people for independence and asserts that at the time that struggle began the Holy Inquisition still existed.

"So dominant was the Catholic hierarchy,' he continues, 'that it was able to write into our Constitution, not merely that the Catholic religion would be the State religion, but that none other would be tolerated.'

"There began, he declares, and is still in process the struggle to attain what the American people achieved at the time of their independence.

"The Mexican people thought they had achieved it in the middle of the last century when Benito Juarez managed legally to separate Church and State, but he states that although the reform laws remained on the statute books, they were nullified in practice and in fact.

"In concluding, Mr. Elias says:

"It is true that there exists now in Mexico restrictions to limit the political activities of the clergy which do not exist in the United States.

"It is true that there is an attempt now being made in Mexico by legal means to limit the further perpetuation of superstition and ignorance among the Mexican masses.

"Such conditions do not exist in the United States and could never exist because in America there has been tolerance and religious liberty.

"If the Roman Catholic clergy in Mexico would confine themselves to their spiritual duties, then the so-called religious question—which is not a religious question at all—would have been settled long ago."

"The average Christian is so ingratiated with this world's elite, and its kaleidoscopic panorama that one might as well try teaching a tortoise to climb a tree, as to try alienating him from his idols. Too top-heavy."—Haney.

SALESMEN WANTED

TO SELL OUR GUARANTEED VEGETABLE AND FLOWER SEEDS IN THE FOLLOWING STATES:

ILLINOIS	NEBRASKA	MINNESOTA
INDIANA	IOWA	KENTUCKY
MICHIGAN	KANSAS	WISCONSIN
OHIO		MISSOURI

Make good money during the winter and spring months. Previous experience not essential. Liberal Commission. For further particulars write

John A. Railton Seed Co.

Successors in the Mail Order Seed Business to Golden Rule Nurseries.

Oregon

-

Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 18, 1927

NUMBER 16

HE COMETH!

BY C. E. RANDALL

THE SIGNS indicate that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, that it is even at the door. All signs, as given by prophets and Christ, point to the near unveiling of Him, who shall be crowned King of kings. What a glorious thought, that our Savior returneth soon! This hope, this expectation should be an incentive to every weary sojourner traveling to the "city of the great King" to press onward. The way may seem hard and the burdens heavy, but it "worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory".

The path to Golgotha was rocky and rugged and the crude cross was heavy, but Christ considered the results worth the sacrifice. The nearer He reached the victory grounds, the more weary and tired He became. The nearer we reach the dawning of the new day, the more heavily will iniquity bear upon us. The hope of His returning will help us to be ever faithful, watchful, waiting, considering the "mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" greater than all effort and sacrifice.

If we believe the Scriptures, there need be no speculation as to the certainty of His coming. It is the foundation of all scriptural hope, the pivot around which all of God's plans and purposes will be finally consummated. The second coming of Christ and the establishment of His kingdom is the golden thread of hope upon which all the beads of scriptural truth are strung.

God's promise that the seed of the woman would crush and destroy the serpent, is meaningless apart from the fulfillment of the promise of Christ—"I will come again". Before sin and death—man's great enemies—can be destroyed, Christ must come and reign to put down all rule, and all authority and power, and destroy the last enemy, death. If we want sin destroyed and death vanquished, let us live for His coming and pray, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

The tidings that "He cometh" is as good news from a far country.

The promise to Abraham, that he should be the heir of the world, and that in his seed all families of the earth should be blessed, can only be realized by Christ coming in power and glory and taking unto Himself

(Continued on page 252, column 2)

THANKFUL!

BY M. A. WOODWARD

"Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Eph. 5:20.

ARE we able to do this? It is required of us if we would be right before God.

But we did want so badly to go to that Christmas dinner. Mother will be so disappointed. And I cannot see any good reason for its happening just this way.

Wait, I am not the only one who is disappointed; the rest of the family wanted to go as badly as I did. Then it is up to me to do my part in making the whole family have a joyful time in spite of the great disappointment. But what shall I be thankful for? Thankful that I am well enough to care for these little ones; that I may show a spirit of love and patience with them; that I may get nearer to their troubles, for troubles are so real to a child. Let them know that mother loves them too well to complain at these unavoidable conditions. Yes: we are thankful that this sickness was not unto death. Yes, we are thankful for the growth of mother-love in the heart that understands the childish troubles more and can help them. The husband has grown to understand the home attachments more, and the children love him with a tender, childish love they did not know before. Yes, this has been a blessing in disguise, and I believe many of the happenings of life that are sore troubles to us at the time prove to be great blessings in disguise.

Another blessing: I called one day at a cozy, little home and was met at the door by my friend. I knew something was wrong when I looked at her. "Well, Belle, what is wrong?" I said. "Why?" she asked. "You look as though you had been drinking vinegar or eating lemons," I said. "Well," she said with a laugh, "I am sour; I have sat here and sewed and thought unpleasant things until I am sour all through."

"I was just thinking of how mean Alice talked about me, and how ugly I talked back, until I just hate myself and every one else."

"Phsaw! my dear! Throw down that sewing and come out in God's beautiful sunshine and you will soon feel better." We had not gone far when we met Alice.

She hesitated just a moment, then spoke: "Belle, I was just coming over to tell you what an ugly crab I was the other day. I am so ashamed and sorry for all I said and did, and I want you to forgive and forget about it. Will you, Belle?"

"Indeed, Alice, I was as much to blame as you, and if you will forgive me we will start over and not let such small things annoy us again."

Were those girls thankful for anything? Did it make any difference with their lives as Christians when they acknowledged their mistakes and made them right. Belle went home so happy she could sew and sing and be ready to greet the children with a smile and the husband with a kiss, and the home was a happy place, because—just because—those two women made every unjust word right.

I once read this: "If your surroundings are not what you wish they were, try to make them better. If you cannot, then try to put up with what you have." But it does not make them better if we are grouchy and unpleasant about it all the time. If we have kind friends who are doing their best to make us comfortable, and we act so unthankful for it all that no one cares to come near us because of our fretfulness and unkind actions, we are to blame, not them, for being unhappy. Let us have enough of the thankful spirit in us to prove to God and to our friends that we are willing to work thankfully in the corner God has placed us in, for there is work in that little corner that none but us can do.

The apostle was right when he wrote those words to the Ephesians. There is always something that might be worse and we may be thankful for all things, even though "all things" may seem very hard.

Get the habit of looking on the bright side of life, for there always is a bright side; always the cloud with the silver lining, and above it is the gracious smile of God. And, as His child, He is looking to you for an answering smile. Have one ready even though it may be through tears; His tender love is waiting to help you bear the sorrow or the trial. Trust Him and be thankful.

GOD SHALL WIPE AWAY ALL TEARS

REVELATION 21:4

BY N. H. GEISELMAN

TO THE minds of many, the Book of Revelation presents a peculiar aspect, and seems to be difficult of understanding. This is due to the fact that it was written in such a symbolic way, metaphor and symbol, and used to represent great events and changes in world history. God's story of the age in which we now live and of the great work yet to be done in the age to come is such that "none of the wicked shall understand". But to the saints of God, those aided by divine wisdom, it unfolds itself in a grand and sublime way, dealing with events of the greatest moment and leading them on and on until the climax of the great plan of human redemption is complete.

The word revelation itself indicates a revealing of something. Then there is a command as from a mighty one, "seal not the sayings of this book". So we must conclude that Revelation, like the other books of the Bible, was written for our learning, that we might be thoroughly equipped in the things of God. In the course of its teaching it refers to events of the greatest moment. Mighty elements rock the earth; mighty angels fly; the tumultuous earth reels and trembles under the power of these events until the seals are opened, the vials of wrath poured forth, and Satan bound so that he should deceive the nations no more. Not only does it deal with these passing events, but it reaches far into the future, when the dead shall be raised, the judgment shall sit, and the groaning creation shall at last be delivered from its bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God, and man and his home shall be redeemed.

Among the interesting things we find in this book is the language of our text, "God shall wipe away all tears". Tears are an index of the condition of the heart, whether they flow because of great joy or intense suffering. The indications are that John was connecting tears with suffering, sin, and death.

You doubtless recall that this apostle was banished to the Isle of Patmos and there served in a rock quarry. While in this circumstance he was carried forward in vision to the Lord's day. Of the same day Jesus says of Abraham, "Father Abraham rejoiced to see my day and was glad." Not the day of His Aaronic priesthood, but of His Melchisedec order, an order yet future, when He shall come to bestow His gifts and blessings to a needy world. These scenes, standing before John, in which wickedness, extreme wickedness on one hand, and righteousness and loyalty to God on the other, played their important parts, were dramatic indeed. John doubtless saw a man chained to a post (one of the inquisitional horrors) and left there until wasted with hunger and thirst, he was placed with his head in such a position that the sun would shine directly into his eyes. To make his sufferings more excruciating his tormentors lifted the eye lash with a knife so the sun could shine directly in the eye-ball.

In contrast with all this, John saw the triumphs of the redeemed through the mercies of Him who loved them and gave Himself a ransom for them; with their victory he saw the tender, loving hand of the Almighty wiping their tears away.

The act of wiping our tears away, brethren, is God's way of saying, Your sorrows and sufferings are ended, banished from this world for ever. There could have been no tears before sin entered this world and there will be none when sin is banished—banished from the world for ever.

O how every heart longs for the coming of the Lord, and for the time when God Himself shall tabernacle with men and not only fill us but our homes with His glory.

*Such hope, like the gleaming tapers' light,
Adorns and cheers our way,
Though dark and dreary be the night,
Such hope emits a brighter ray.*

ABOUT PROBATION

An Address at London Conference by J. R. Norrie
SELECTED BY A. C. BOYER

STRICTLY speaking, this is not a Bible subject, for the word does not occur in the Authorized Version. It has crept in once, however, into the Revised Version, in Romans 5:4, where it takes the place of the word "experience". The original Greek word employed here is quite different from krisis, the word usually translated "judgment". The subject of "future probation", however, has been persistently held up by a section of the religious community who make this idea a prominent feature in their propaganda, and unsettle the minds of many Christians, while some are carried away by their plausible but erroneous interpretation of certain scriptures. The safe and reasonable principle of understanding obscure passages by plain ones seems in some cases to be reversed, and plain passages are bent into harmony with a questionable view of an obscure one.

A certain class believe in post mortem probation—probation during death—a variation of the Roman Catholic idea of purgatory, in spite of many plain statements in Scripture such as:—"The dead know not anything", Eccl. 9:5; "The dead praise not the Lord", Psa. 115:17; "If the dead rise not, then they also who are fallen asleep in Christ are perished", 1 Cor. 15:16-18. This phase of probation has been so long and fully exposed that it is not necessary to do it now. Attention will therefore, be confined to post-resurrectional probation. An appearance of reasonableness attaches to this view at first sight, which disappears on a closer examination of Scripture.

JOHN 5:29

Great stress is laid upon this verse as supporting post-resurrectional probation—"they that have done evil, to the resurrection of damnation" (R. V., "judgment"). The Greek word here is krisis, which occurs 49 times; 41 times rendered judgment, 3 times condemnation, 3 times damnation, twice accusation. Here is how Probationists deal with this passage:—"Any English dictionary will inform you that the word 'judgment' means 'trial', and that the word 'trial' means 'probation'." It is very painful to have to deal with such a bold perversion of facts as this quotation shows. No English dictionary of any standing says that "judgment" means "trial", and that "trial" means "probation". Even if an English dictionary did say this, the question would not be settled. The real question is what did krisis mean when used by the New Testament writers in the first century, and what did "judgment" mean when the Authorized and Revised Versions were printed? It will be admitted on all hands that the ripest available scholarship was used in the preparation of both versions. Further, if probation is the true meaning of krisis, it should fit all the occurrences of the word. Let us try it. Here are some examples of how the transposition would work. Does judgment mean probation in the following?—

Matt. 5:21.—"Whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment" (probation). See also verse 22.

John 5:22, 27, 30.—"The Father hath committed all judgment (probation) to the Son, . . . and hath given him authority to execute judgment (probation) also . . . As I hear, I judge, and my judgment (probation) is just."

See other passages in John's gospel, viz., 7:24; 8:16; 16:8, 11.

Acts 8:33.—"His judgment (probation) was taken away."

2 Thess. 1:5.—"A manifest token of the righteous judgment (probation) of God."

1 Tim. 5:24.—"Some men's sins are open beforehand, going before unto judgment (probation)."

Heb. 10:27.—"A certain fearful looking for of judgment (probation)."

James 2:13.—"He shall have judgment (probation) without mercy; and mercy rejoiceth against judgment (probation)."

2 Peter 2:4, 9.—"If God spared not the angels that sinned . . . to be reserved unto judgment (probation) . . . The Lord knoweth how to . . . reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment (probation) to be punished."

1 John 4:17.—"Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment (probation)."

Jude 6 and 15.—"The angels who kept not their first estate he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment (probation) of the great day. . . . The Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment (probation) upon all."

See also Rev. 14:7; 16:7; 18:10; 19:2.

John 3:19.—"This is the condemnation (probation, judgment, R. V.), that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light."

James 5:12.—"Let your yea be yea, . . . lest ye fall into condemnation (probation, R. V., judgment)."

Matt. 23:33.—"Ye serpents, how can ye escape the damnation (probation, R. V., judgment) of hell?"

Mark 3:29.—"Is in danger of eternal damnation (probation)."

Other passages are:—John 5:29; 2 Peter 2:2; Jude 9.

The mind which seriously surveys passages like the above and finds in them proof that judgment and probation are equivalent terms cannot be complimented on its clarity of vision. The most charitable but sorrowful and inevitable conclusion open to the unprejudiced reader is that, in such a case, there is an utter disregard of facts, or a presumed ignorance on the part of the readers.

(To be continued)

EVERY DAY

We are living examples;

—Some one reads our epistle;

—We should do some deed of worth;

—We are dependent upon God.

—Should be a day of thanksgiving;

—Brings Christ's coming nearer.

C. E. Randall.

EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT WORKABLE

THAT the hue and cry about the Eighteenth Amendment being non-enforceable because of its being so unjust is largely the fluttering of a mother bird to distract attention from a nest full of cherished birdlings, is again evidenced in a statement given to the press by United States district attorney for the district of Chicago and several nearby counties, Edwin A. Olson, upon the eve of the expiration of his term of office. Mr. Olson's term expired with the year 1926. His management of his office has been cause for many other officers of the law to openly fail in giving, what to many fair-minded, observers, seemed just, legal, and common sense support in the handling of the fearful crime wave. That this crime wave is more or less the direct creation of people whom the citizens elect to office, or who are appointed to their respective positions, and who are paid from the millions of taxes collected from the people, is suggested in more ways than one. Though The Herald has no desire or intention of meddling with the affairs of government, it is, nevertheless thought best to "pass along" to its readers some of the utterances of this man, who, to say the least, is apparently in no partnership with the bootlegger, nor with that large class of attorneys who, protected by their robes, shrink not from openly resorting to any and every method to puncture, rip or tear the law so as to allow law breakers of whatever hue to gain their liberties and pursue their devastating works upon harmless and innocent victims.

According to the Chicago Herald and Examiner of December 30, Mr. Olson said in part as follows:

"My office has convicted over 6000 bootleggers in the past four years, a larger number, I am told, than any other prosecuting office in the country. We have secured more twelve-month padlocks than any other office in the United States.

"I have had occasion to study the bootlegger at close range. I know the network of his protection, from the gunman in the 'Valley' clear up to the hypocrites who sit in high places.

"The booze business could not exist in any community without the protection of crooked officials. The liquor law has not made officials turn crooked. It has only provided already crooked officials with an added source of revenue.

"Grafting officials who protect the bootlegger for a price are the same grafters who have always protected gambling, prostitutes, dope peddling, thievery and other forms of crime.

"It has been estimated that the graft collected from booze, vice and crime in this district amounts to the princely sum of $30,000,000 a year.

"The influence of thirty millions of dollars of yearly graft money is a force to be reckoned with in politics. It reaches into high places. It finances campaigns. It will stop at nothing to prevent the prosecution and punishment of its beneficiaries, or to discredit and destroy any honest public official who refuses to touch its dirty money or to listen to its seductive offers of political advancement.

"My four years' experience has convinced me that the manufacture and sale of liquor as a business can be stopped in this district, whenever the government receives proper cooperation from local law enforcement officials.

"The most effective weapon to enforce prohibition is by injunction, but local authorities refuse to invoke that remedy in the local courts. Section 23 of the Illinois prohibition law gives the cooperation counsel of the City of Chicago the same power to close by injunction as the United States district attorney has under the Volstead act. The Circuit, Superior, and County courts have jurisdiction to hear such cases.

"The Chicago police department brings into my office the evidence of about thirty padlock cases a month, and these, together with an equal number from the prohibition department and private agencies, are disposed of by a federal judge.

"My office has taken and is now taking every padlock case tendered by the police department, and has always and is now, thoroughly cooperating with every law enforcement agency both public and private. We have only three judges in the Federal District Court; and they must handle all litigation, both civil and criminal, arising in nineteen counties, containing more than one-half the population of Illinois.

"There are fifteen times as many judges in Cook County who can hear injunction cases. Suppose that the 6000 policemen in Chicago, instead of filing thirty padlock cases a month with me, where one judge can only give a few hours a week in the hearing of such cases, would file fifteen times as many per month in the local courts.

"Is it not safe to assume that if the federal government could close more than 2000 places in four years, the corporation counsel, with an appropriation of more than $600,000 a year, and the state's attorney of Cook County, with an appropriation of $500,000 a year, and with fifteen times as many judges, could have closed 30,000 places in four years?

"Is there any one who believes that if seven hundred and fifty million dollars' worth of real estate, instead of fifty million dollars' worth had been padlocked during the past four years, the manufacture and sale of liquor as a business would now be in existence in Chicago?

"Yes, liquor laws can be enforced, but not by politicians. The law enforcement machinery must be placed in the hands of those who believe in their enforcement and enforceability. That day is not yet here, but it is on the way.

"The Volstead act has given the government a weapon by which recreant officials can be driven from power. The office of sheriff loses its attraction to politicians when they find that the county bastille must be run as a jail, and not as a pay-as-you-go plan hotel.

"Other law enforcement offices will, no doubt, become less desirable when it finally commences to dawn upon the untterrified that a public office calls for the performance of certain duties and that lining up 'the boys' is not one of them."

Cases involving 10,000 defendants have been handled by his office in four years, Mr. Olson says, with acquittals in only 125 cases. Total sentences to jails and penitentiaries were 1,745 years. Fines and penalties collected totaled $2,603,637.77—$1,752,445.51 from defendants in criminal cases.

"The fight we are fighting is in part a fight against ourselves, a fight against appetite, unrighteous thoughts and unholy desires."

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

By LYMAN BOOTH

(Continued from last week)

WHEN we consider Paul's youthful environment, we find it had much to do in fitting him for the life of service to which the Lord called him. His native city at the time of his birth was the rival of Athens and Alexandria as a place of learning. Strabo, a Latin author of fame, was a student at Tarsus when Paul was a boy. The great philosopher, Apollonius was a student also at Tarsus. When Julius Cæsar wanted an instructor for his successor, Augustus, he went to Tarsus and got Athenodorus. There has come to us also one Aratus, the Tarsian poet, whose works have been translated by Cicero, from whose writings Paul quoted in his stirring sermon on Mars Hill, (for we are his offspring). This and other quotations from Greek and Hebrew poets are evidences of his familiarity with Greek and Hebrew literature. In 1 Cor. 15:33 he quotes from a play composed by Menander, "Evil communications corrupt good manners". Also in Titus 1:12 he uses an epigram from Epimenides in which the Cretan character is summarized in the words, "The Cretans were always liars."

Even if he never attended the university under whose shadow he was reared, the mere circumstance of having spent his youth in such a city, no doubt, had a very beneficial influence upon a mind like his. From infancy he must have been familiar with the sight of Roman soldiers marching through the streets of Tarsus, bearing aloft the Eagle, the emblem of Rome's iron will and power. He grew to young manhood under such environment, and, no doubt, felt as others did, a pride in the fact that he was a part of the great empire, which had extended its rule and authority to the ends of the world, and had all nations tributary to the proud city on the Tiber River, a city in which the glory of earthly kingdoms had reached its extreme height. It is said that a bridge still stands at Tarsus, a relic of Rome's great thoroughfares, under whose arches Paul may have passed many times.

Paul's hereditary qualifications may have had much to do with fitting him for his life-work, to which he was called by the Holy Spirit. Bishop Wilson has written the following: "Almost every man of note in the Bible had a pedigree on which he might look back with pride. When God wants a 'Chosen Vessel' He takes the precaution to provide for it before it is needed." Paul's parents were "Hebrews of the Hebrews", and they must have exercised most careful parental training in his youth as the time to store up knowledge, as helps in wisdom and grace. I dare say he never squandered his life-force by the use of cigarettes and other harmful indulgences like the present-day youth. The fact that he acquired so great learning indicates that he looked forward to a career of great importance, and, therefore, his ambitions must not be imperiled by mistakes in early life; for he who was destined to be a "Chosen Vessel" must be prepared for the strain of the stormy sea.

When he was about thirteen years old he went to Jerusalem and sat at the feet of Gamaliel, who, perhaps, was one of the most successful, if not the most profound instructor of his time. Under his instructions, Paul was nourished in the rich inspirations of Hebrew literature and history, and later became a member of the sanhedrin. He must have become thoroughly imbued with the Old Testament writings, for we find him quoting them in every turn,—in every emergency in life's struggles. No unlearned fisherman, though bold as Peter or as lovable as John could preach, write, calculate, like Paul, whose whole life was one strenuous, ever-increasing process of intellectual culture, and of spiritual development. His labors verify the statement that the preaching that has been the most effective, and has stirred to action the lazy, selfish masses, and uplifted people out of sensual degradation has always been the preaching by men who have lived close to the word of God.

His means of acquiring knowledge was not confined to parchments; for Tarsus, Jerusalem, Antioch, Athens Damascus, the rocks of Sinai in Arabian solitude, Ephesus, and Corinth, and last of all the "Mistress of the world" were laid under tribute to prepare this "Chosen Vessel", sent of God to overthrow false religion, and for the destruction of idol-worship by preaching a universal gospel. It would seem that Providence superintended his education. Languages and civilizations were his textbooks. He found congenial companions in every city, teachers in all races, and great opportunities everywhere for doing good, for which the God of Abraham was his governing power and the cross of Christ his abiding inspiration. He said, "What things were gain to me, these things I counted loss for Christ, and I count all things but loss, for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord." To him the knowledge of Christ gave new splendors to every purpose in life, and revealed the heights of all hopes and aspirations. It did far more for him than heredity and secular schooling. His epistles show that he was constantly delving deeper and deeper into his exhaustless theme—Christ in whom are hid all the priceless treasures of divine wisdom and knowledge. "It pleased God . . . to reveal His Son in me"—one of the most significant expressions of spiritual biography in the literature of the world.

(To be continued)

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

SIN'S PRESSURE ELEVATES RIGHTEOUSNESS

THE TEMPTATION of our Lord and Master affords the Christian a most inspiring example in his own Christian experience. It is true that human nature many times naturally leads and inclines toward the things that are sinful. To those who are inclined toward evil, evil inducements naturally have a pull downward, but to the individual who does not have such inclinations or who is firmly reaching for righteousness, such evils have a tendency to press the individual away from the wrongs. It seems altogether true that there was nothing in our Savior's life which caused Him to joyfully incline toward a wrong; rather, His joy was toward the right and, as such, the evil pressed Him away from the wrong.

A portion of air liberated under a heavy volume of water immediately begins dodging currents and obstacles, always ascending. If, in dodging, it turns behind or into an inverted hood it ascends until trapped, there to remain; but if it avoids traps, it bounds around every obstacle in its urge to reach the highest level.

Christ was liberated amidst the heavy pressure of the sin of death. The pressure did not entice Him; the heavier it was, the more was the urge to rise above it. He avoided all traps and attained to God's right hand.

Man to-day finds himself liberated in his Christian profession amidst sin's heavy weight. Some are seduced, they become entrapped; others seek earnestly His way, avoid the traps, and are crowded by sin into higher levels.

Temptation lifts the Christian who is in Christ's way.

* * * *

MYSTERIES

THERE SEEM to be varied and opposite understandings by Herald readers regarding the articles in past Heralds entitled "The Mysteries of Ancient Days". The Editor has made careful inquiry of different readers, and, in addition, letters have been volunteered. From these we find that some are very much pleased in that the articles offer study and research for a better and larger understanding of the Scriptures. They feel that the author presents a line of thought which confirms, strengthens, and establishes the Scriptures as a source of truth and as a Book of promises for complete reliance. Some others feel that the author's position denies Bible statements and falsifies God. These differences are mentioned, not for the purpose of criticism relative to the articles, but for the purpose of revealing to Herald readers the one great fact that is always present, namely, honest people, reading the selfsame sentence, often construe it diametrically opposite to the construction given by other equally honest readers, and frequently opposite to the earnest and honest intentions of the one presenting the thought. It seems almost impossible that able, well-meaning people could gather such extremes of thought from the one and selfsame series of statements. But such is the fact; such has always been the fact; such always will be true. How carefully, then, should each and every reader endeavor earnestly to discover the author's earnest intent and refrain diligently from allowing self to inject one's own thought or interpretation into the author's intent, and then, worse still, to injure others by the persistent presentation of one's own, injected interpretation, making the author responsible.

When these articles were first started, it was mentioned in this column that they were really not the type of articles for which The Herald was intended. They were offered, not because of editorial sanction of the things stated, but because they were well written, after evident wide study, and were presented in a way to aid others in deeper and wider research along Biblical lines. But inasmuch as the articles are evidently misunderstood, and are not likely to benefit as was intended, the Editor has reluctantly decided to discontinue publication of them. In this decision, he asks the author's kind forbearance.

* * * *

The first of three articles on Future Probation will be found elsewhere in this issue. Its author sets forth many inspiring truths relative to the church. These should not be confused by the readers with numerous other glorious truths relative to the restitution work that is to be entered upon at the return of our Lord in the establishment and completion of His throne and kingdom nation. See Acts 3:21; Rom. 11:25-27; Isa. 2:2-5; et al.

(The Editorials are continued on page 255.)

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Cora Cole; Mrs. H. C. Starbuck; Mrs. Isaac Fish; Mrs. Geo. W. Young; Henry Partlow; Mary E. Elton; Geo. Renner; Zoa Hamilton; Lucy B. Groat; E. E. Groat; Vernon Groat; R. E. Griner; Mrs. B. C. Bratcher; Wm. Birkey; Mrs. J. M. Harkenberry; Mrs. E. H. Wyman; Mrs. Elizabeth Frier; Mrs. E. B. Eccles; Mrs. N. J. McLeod; Howard H. Moore; Mrs. Edith Titus; Madeline Gardiner; Mrs. Arthur Knott; Mrs. Curtis Edson; C. F. Nelson; John Threatkill; M. Fetters; Mrs. David Long; Mrs. John D. Bronk; Emma B. Smith; Mrs. M. A. Lillybridge; E. T. Renner; A. B. Wilson; C. L. Furry; Elizabeth Beyer; Mrs. John Jacobsen; Jessie Upton; J. C. Peck; Chas. W. Howe; Mrs. H. H. Harrington; Daniel Fraser; Mrs. John Howard; Mrs. Sarah Austin; Mrs. Albert Logsdon.

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

FOUR from Oregon motored to Rockford, Illinois, on Saturday night, January 8, and cooperated with the Berean class there. This is a young class, but it is doing splendid work.

* * * *

Thursday, the 13th, was spent with the Bereans at Kewanee, and Friday at Macomb, Illinois. The worst blizzard of the season seriously hampered the work on this trip, but we are glad to report that things are progressing very nicely.

* * * *

Taking a general glance at our church work in its various branches and departments the country over, we are struck with the seriousness of one prominent fact: We lack the proper spirit of cooperation. Have you ever figured out the advantages of and possibilities in cooperation?

* * * *

We hitch up a team of horses, but there is difficulty in handling even a moderate load if one pulls ahead first, and then drops back as the other starts. However, if they keep the double-tree straight and both lay to steadily together, it is amazing what they can accomplish.

* * * *

A twelve cylinder Packard motor is capable of developing a tremendous horsepower, but this is true only when each one of the cylinders fires at the exact time necessary to cause it most successfully to cooperate with the other cylinders. When the timing is off, and the explosions work against each other the whole valuable mechanism is simply a useless mass.

* * * *

The reason we, as a church, have not accomplished more in years gone by is because we are too much inclined to act like the untrained team, or explode "out of time". We possess a vast amount of the most valuable of talent in almost every line of life, but when each horse pulls for himself, the load pulled is small.

* * * *

This is not only true in a general sense, as regards the church as a whole, but where is there a local church, or a Berean class of which the same thing may not be said? Look your own class over. Is it doing all you would like to have it do? If not, what about you who are its personnel? Forget the little, petty peeves and jealousies and differences of opinion that amount to nothing after all, and each put a steady shoulder to the wheel and PUSH!

Then when something worthwhile has been done, think of the satisfaction that will fill your heart as you realize that you helped make it possible.

* * * *

This morning we spent two hours stuck with a big bus in a drifting sea of snow. The zero temperature made it very unpleasant outside, so some would rather sit in the bus than get out and help. But just now we are comfortably warming our feet by a hotel radiator—how thankful we are that we pushed!

* * * *

The work of the kingdom age will be a work of cooperation. This is our training period. Will we be needed then, or will the Christ be able to use us if we fail to learn the lesson of cooperation?

* * * *

Pride makes one want to pull alone—to star for himself. Humility recognizes weakness in self and in others, and realizes the need of putting the strength of all together for the common good. Let's be humble!

* * * *

An Ohio Berean sends the following:

*Across the loom—the silver shuttle flies—
While slowly grows the weaving—day by day—
A scarlet thread, a gleam of gold and then—
Perchance we've naught but gray.*

*Till hearts grow faint and eyes grow dim—
As through our fingers slips the loosened skein—
Until the master weaver, bending low—
Bids us take up the task again—*

*And, lest we fail—he gives—his gift of dreams.
So after all—what have we but the dreams—
These dreams that haunt us always—everywhere—
We cannot see the finished pattern now.*

*But it grows wondrous fair—for dreams of faith—and dreams of love—
Shine through the shadows that seemed dark with tears—*

*And all this tangle we call life—
Grows glorious—throughout the years—
For after all—what have we—but our dreams.*

(1 Corinthians 2:9)

* * * *

"Of the spoken word thou art the slave—but of the word not yet spoken, thou art the master." An old proverb.

PRESENT FULFILLMENT OF PROPHECY

By Robert T. Lore

WONDERFUL is the fact that the prophecy given by Jesus, recorded in Matthew 24 is rapidly being fulfilled in this, our day. The events foretold by our Lord are being heralded throughout America by newspapers and magazines. Yet, how many there are who are blind to the fact!

In this chapter, we note the events to occur during this age, and on to its end. So we read:

"Many shall come in my name . . . and shall deceive many"; "wars and rumors of wars"; "famines, and pestilences"; "earthquakes in divers places"; "many . . . shall betray one another, and shall hate one another"; "false prophets shall arise"; "iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold"; "this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached . . . for a witness unto all nations"; "and then shall the end come".

False Christs

Two false messiahs and one reincarnation of a false god have been announced to the public: Abdul Baha, Agag Khan, and Krishnamurti. Baha, with six million followers, exclaims:

"Christ was the highest until I came, and now it is the duty of mankind to listen to me, instead of listening to the teachings of those who preceded me."

Again: "Theosophists claim that when the divine spirit has fully manifested itself in Krishnamurti he will bring a new era of 'peace and good-will' into the world."

"Wars and Rumors of Wars"

Those who have closely watched the news dispatches have seen this prophecy in fulfillment—while representatives of nations sit at the peace table of the League of Nations, war is raging in certain sections up to this present minute. Those who are leaning upon the League of Nations are leaning upon a broken crutch.

"Famines and Pestilences"

Time and again have we noted reports from various sources. Recall the awful toll of lives taken by the "Flu"—estimated at 25,000,000!

"Earthquakes in Divers Places"

The writer has possibly 80 to 90 reports of earthquakes in such localities as Alaska, New England, Florida Keys, China, Manila (50 quakes in 48 hours), Formosa (79 shocks in one day), Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Hampshire, Central America, Europe. Surely in "divers places". In the United States and territories, 230 quakes were recorded in the first three months of 1925.

"Many . . . betray . . . hate one another"

What terrible news comes through the press each day, of betrayal and hatred. To behold it in "birds-eye" view, is sickening and should spur us on to the more rapid spreading of the Gospel. Also, of abounding iniquity and the coldness of the masses toward God and the Gospel, need no proofs here.

"Crime has increased 400 per cent since 1910. In 1910 there were 50,000 divorces, last year there were 165,000, an appalling increase. Social diseases kill 300,000 annually."

In 2 Timothy 4:3 we see the prophecy of the departure from the faith. Through the press is coming the awful portrayal of this apostacy; from certain missionaries comes the cry from their breaking hearts because of the spread of modernistic, infidel teaching on the part of those who are supposed to preach the Gospel. Rev. James M. Gray, D. D., says:

"This conflict to-day between modernism and evangelical truth is, perhaps, the most insistent effort ever made to destroy the faith of our fathers."

" . . . Gospel . . . Shall Be Preached . . . for a Witness unto All Nations; and Then Shall the End Come."

That we are near the fulfillment of this prophecy of Jesus, is apparent when we read:

THE LAST STRONGHOLD YIELDING.

"At a recent meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, it was reported that four missionaries . . . had crossed the Persian-Afghanistan border and were located within Afghanistan.

"Afghanistan has, up to the present, been the most absolutely closed mission field in the world."

Return of the Jews

One of the astounding movements of this day is the present return of God's covenanted people to their homeland of Palestine. The writer could give pages of news concerning this profound event, and has in his possession photographs and reproductions showing the wonderful rebuilding taking place in that erstwhile dead, barren land. A prominent Jew recently announced that indications point to the coming of the Messiah.—Selected by Glenn M. Birkey, from "Gideon Magazine".

SIX HUNDRED SIXTY-SIX

DEAR BRETHREN: For the benefit of the new readers of The Herald, I submit the following:

V	5	L	30
I	1	A	1
C	100	T	300
A	0	E	5
R	0	I	10
I	1	N	50
V—U	5	O	70
S	0	S	200
		Total	666
F	0
I	1
L	50
I	1
I	1
D	500
E	0
I	1
Total	666

On the Pope's crown in the Vatican Museum are these words, which mean, Vicar of the Son of God.

Lateinos equals Man of Latium.

Latium—City from which the Romans derived their language.

Hanna Barber.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON V.—January 30.

THE CHRISTIAN OVERCOMING TEMPTATION

Luke 4:1-13; 1 Corinthians 10:12, 13.

Devotional Reading: Romans 8:31-39.

GOLDEN TEXT.

In that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.—Hebrews 2:18.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Temptation. To tempt is to make trial of. It is generally used in a good sense, in order to ascertain the character. It is also used in a bad sense with ill intent. Crit. Lex.

Christ's Temptation. God draws or leads on by better, higher, nobler objectives. He never leads downward, entices to evil. James 1:12. It was the "well pleased" God who led Christ by His Holy Spirit into the wilderness. He was led by the Spirit of God, Luke 4:1, for good. The only effect the evil then present had on Christ was to increase His distaste for it. The Puritan zealots fought the fire by which they were tried for evil spirits. They were not enticed by the fire. Christ vanquished the evils speedily; He was not enticed by them. Never. In no evil sense did He linger longingly upon the words of the devil. Quickly He swung His "sword of the Spirit" with, "It is written", and speedily freed Himself from the tempter—from the fires of the evil.

Christians Are Tempted. Christ was wholly tempted, "in all points", Heb. 4:15. So also is every Christian wholly tempted, tried, tested, before he is assigned to fulness of new life and its full duties. When he is tried he receives the crown of life.—James 1:12. Trial is essential to the Christian life. God tries every son whom He receives. Heb. 12:6. The pain of a fiery trial lasts only so long as one remains in the fire, clings to the wrong.

"An idle mind is the devil's workshop", is too true. An idle, pleasure-seeking generation is much induced to evil. Such are hardly Christian, hardly "babes in Christ". The Christian with an aim may be led of the Spirit of God midst any or all grades of evil. He uses them as problems to be solved, as battles of faith to be fought. He gains his bread, his authority, his ability, elsewhere; and the victory of the test gives Him exceeding weight of glory. 2 Cor. 4:17.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

For, in that he has suffered, seeing that he was tempted, he is able, those who are being tempted to rescue.—(Rotherham) Heb. 2:18.

The glorious thought, "he is able"! He was tempted in all things like as we and, because He was victorious, became a perfect example of one who could conquer. "He suffered" in the hour of temptation. How is there suffering in the hour of trial? It was an inner, mental suffering and not one of excruciating pain.

So, when we are face to face with temptation, we will yield easily without pain or will fight it off with the rest depend on your own strength alone. God will help by providing a way of escape. But, better still, avoid the path that you know will lead you in the way of temptation. Then if we do fall in temptation, remember we have an advocate with the Father, our Lord and Savior, and He will help if we come to Him in prayer.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Christ's vision brightened daily with His continued progress. Evidence on evidence attested that He was being developed for ever larger service for God. His temptation must be considered in the light of these facts.

Similar God-announced truths have been flashed upon the dome of sin's dark night that hopeful, trustful saints might visualize bright hopes from God: sons of God, Rom. 8:16, 17; like Christ, 1 John 3:2; glorified, Phil. 3:20, 21; immortalized, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; service, 2 Tim. 2:12,—all attesting a preparation by God for future status and power for the church. For such, temptation by God is not a drawing unto evil but a means of rising above it. It is Heaven-given opportunity.

The student, the athlete, the laborer, the business man, all demonstrate their abilities in their several lines mastering difficulties. Hindrances and oppositions produce growth.

Christians are schooling and preparing for invigorating service with Christ in breaking all oppression, Psa. 72:4, in the age to come. They will do this in His way, not in man's way. Temptation affords opportunity for those loving Christ's ways to rise therein by mastering, in His way, would-be inducements to oppose Him.

God allows no other temptation than such as is human by nature and assures He will make a way for escape. 1 Cor. 10:12, 13.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

The Temptation of Jesus: Was it a test concerning status in the family of the first Adam, or for position in the second Adam family?

The temptation of the Christian: Is it with reference to natural life, or to spiritual?

Discuss the advantage of temptation.

QUESTIONS.

What is the meaning of the statement, "Jesus being full of the Holy Spirit"?

Was Jesus led into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit, by His own inordinate lusts, or by the devil?

Being the Son of God, and full of God's Spirit, did the temptation problems originate from the Holy Spirit, from Himself, or from some other source?

What is the purpose of temptation?

Is temptation necessary for Christian development?

Does God enable the earnest Christian to gain victory?

Temptation is a ladder by which the Christian climbs.

Temptation accomplishes two things: It does not make a Christian a sinner, it reveals the sinful traits in him which nature craves to satisfy, and which satisfied, strengthen sin: it does not make a sinner a saint, it reveals opportunity to strive to conquer sin, which striving strengthens and increases Christian life.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. and Sr. Sydney E. Magaw, after several weeks of diligent and effective gospel work at Bain, Minnesota, and its environs, are about to leave for their home at Lester Prairie, Minnesota.

Bro. Magaw is one of the ministers who is dotting the country with Heralds, this, in cooperation with the Minnesota Conference.

* * *

Sr. Hazel Logan, of Plymouth, Indiana, is reported to be recovering nicely from scarlet fever. Her father, Bro. Marshall Logan, is suffering somewhat from a trouble of some different nature.

* * *

Bro. Austin is leaving at once for a few days of relaxation.

* * *

Sr. M. A. Woodward has gone to 227 W. St. Joseph St., Lansing, Michigan, stopping enroute for a few days at Kalamazoo.

* * *

At least one horse and cutter and a few bob-sleds have been seen on Oregon streets the last week. Such sights are almost so ancient as to be "new", especially to some of the younger ones.

* * *

The Ripley, Illinois appointment for last Sunday was canceled because of snow. Bro. Siple spoke at Macomb Friday evening, but a telephone call to Ripley brought the word that the highways were completely blocked.

* * *

The death of Sr. Eva Norris, wife of W. H. Norris, occurred at their home hospital in Aurora, Illinois, January 12, 1927. The funeral was conducted January 15 by Bro. F. L. Austin. Obituary will appear in these columns, D. V., next week.

* * *

Sr. Dora Morgan, Box 1787, Breckenridge, Texas, asks if there are any of the brotherhood living in or near Breckenridge. "If so, I would appreciate hearing from them."

Any one able to inform her of others of the faith living near may be the means of not only aiding her at this time, but possibly of organizing a new work in that vicinity later.

Dear Restitution Herald: We wish to extend to all who sent greetings to our mother, Sr. N. J. Wilding, on her 77th birthday, November 15, her heartiest appreciation for the many letters and cards received, which came from either coast and so many different states.

Mother was very poorly at the time, and we had to hold the messages for her and read them to her. She has been confined to her bed for three months. At this writing she has gained some in strength and is able to sit up a short time each day.

Nettie M. Daharsh.

* * *

Bro. and Sr. Nelson Morton, of La Porte, Indiana, members of the church at South Bend, may be addressed at 3212 University Avenue, San Diego, California, where they are visiting while the snows drift about their old Indiana home.

Bro. and Sr. Morton are examples of the work of The Herald. Several years back a copy of this paper fell into their hands. Without the voice of evangelist, they became convinced of the truthfulness of its teachings and, as a result, went to South Bend, where they were baptized by Bro. R. C. Railsback. May they wear the crown of righteousness.

Send The Herald to your friends.

* * *

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

The St. Cloud Church of God held its first business meeting of the year on January 5, when the officers were elected and music and visiting committees were appointed. The church has had regular preaching services conducted by Bros. T. Daubanton and T. M. Savage. The evening services are well attended. Our Sunday School has an average attendance of seventy.

We find it a good way for the church to keep in good working order, by meeting and making plans the first of the year for the church work.

Instead of having a Christmas program, and giving the children presents this year, we gave sacks of candy to the children and sent baskets of groceries to needy families. At the evening services Bro. Daubanton preached, and the choir sang a number of Christmas carols. In this way we felt it to be the true Christmas spirit of giving in His name.

Mrs. T. M. Savage, Church Clerk.

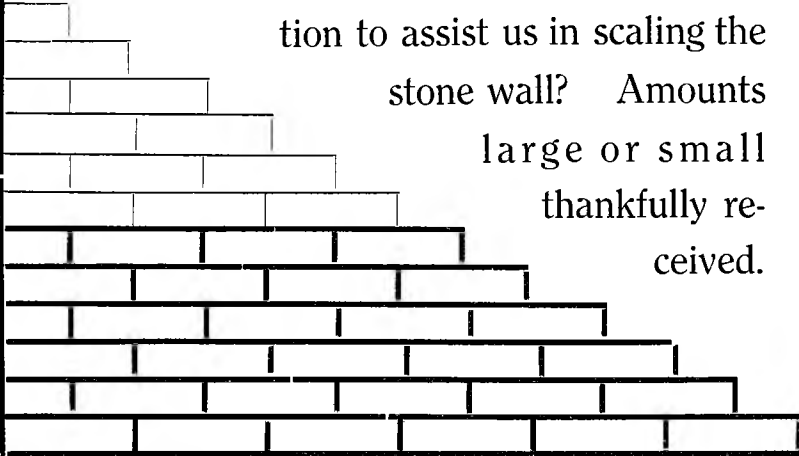

* * *

FRANK O. GRAY

Was born May 23, 1864, and died December 30, 1926. He was 62 years 7 months and 10 days old.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

His first wife preceded him in death and was buried in the Arapahoe (Nebraska) cemetery in which he was laid to rest by her side.

He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, Edith; and two daughters, Mrs. Greta Poff, of Seattle Washington, and Mrs. Glenva Cooper, of Portland, Oregon; two grandchildren; and one step-son. He also leaves his mother and one brother in Washington; two sisters and three brothers in Missouri; and two brothers in Wisconsin; also other relatives and friends in Nebraska, where the early part of his life was spent.

He was a member of the Church of God, and lived a consistent Christian life.

He was received at the home of his brother-in-law, D. F. Prime, at Arapahoe, Nebraska, Tuesday morning to await funeral services, which were held in the Christian church, and conducted by Elder J. E. Cowles, of Moorefield, Nebraska.

* * *

LET YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL
RING TRUE TO CHRIST

Whence comes crime? Could we locate its origins, much human misery could be prevented. The Washington Voice declares that it appears in about 40 per cent greater volume among aliens than among native-born Americans. To some extent, therefore, it is a matter of immigration control. Wiggam suggests it comes from a comparatively small element in our population. He says that, "In Indiana, nearly all crime is committed by about one hundred families". Therefore, a wider study of eugenics may disclose another means of prevention.

Whatever light eugenics or experts in immigration restriction may throw upon the beginnings of crime, churchmen know of powerful factors working in crime-prevention. Captain Duncan Matheson of the San Francisco police recently said to the Commonwealth Club there: "In this country we have fallen down completely in the administration of justice. We are making criminals faster than we can take care of them. But", he added, "in all of my police experience I have seen but one boy who had graduated FROM BOTH HIGH SCHOOL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL COMBINED come into the hands of the police."

In this day, when America holds the record for murders, when our very Republic is being tested, as never before, by a minority advocating nullification of a Constitution they cannot amend, the churchmen may well tell Captain Matheson's story to his unchurched neighbor. He can remind the latter that the taxes paid for the cost of crime do not go for Sunday School graduates.

LOVING WORDS

Loving words are rays of sunshine
Falling on the path of life,
Driving out the Gloom and Shadows
Born of weariness and strife.

Often we forget our troubles
When a friendly voice is heard.
They are banished by the magic
Of a kind and helpful word.

Keep not back a word of kindness
When the chance to speak it comes;
Though it seem to you a trifle,
Many a heart that Grief benumbs

Will grow strong and brave to bear it
And the world will brighter grow
Just because the word was spoken.
Try it. You will find it so.

Selected by L. A. C.

* * *

CHRISTIANITY.

The meaning of this word is of first importance to whoever would be Christian. It means more, vastly more than a mere following after a teacher, as an apprentice follows after a master workman; more than following one who is an example in things noble, and pure, and true even though that one be the Lord Jesus Christ.

Christianity is the life of him who lives the life of Christ.

A Christian as revealed by Paul's preaching, as taught "by the revelation of Jesus Christ", Gal. 1:11,12, is one who is in Christ; who is a new creature, 2 Cor. 5:17; who is likened by Paul, 1 Cor. 12:18, 27, unto a member set in the body of Christ by the will and good pleasure of God.

To become really a new creature one must be changed from his original life, that is, must first become dead to the nature of the Adam family in order that he may be given the life of and participation in, the new family, the family of Christ the second Adam. Such change is impossible for man himself to make. One and only One can perform this work; that One is God, the Creator of both of these families.

This new standing is the direct favor and gift of God, and in no measure can it be accounted as the result or fruitage of man's work. In Rom. 6 and Col. 2:12; 3:1-13 Paul vividly recites this truth and exhorts, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above". In such newness of position and standing, Christianity is the fruitage, the outflow, the result of the activity of one who is in Christ. While it will, as it ought, be a life of cleanliness, of purity, of kindness, of love, yet Christianity is not to be determined exclusively by such characteristics.

The Christian not only follows Christ the Teacher, but he also become a teacher in fact or example. He not only patterns after Christ the great Workman, but he also becomes a workman similar to Christ. Christianity is more than following, it consists in living the Christ-life.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it force attention—often consideration. It is inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

10c per Doz.; 60 c per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

20c per Doz.; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

Single Copies 3c; 12 for 12c—Cost of Mailing

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul",
100 for 25c; 12 for 5c

Keep an assortment on hand.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager
F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under Act of March, 1879.

Subscription Rates—51 issues per year, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50c. Samples free.

Receipts—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

THE CHRISTIAN OVER- COMING TEMPTATION

BY DAISY NOKES

OUR last Sunday's lesson was about talking to God in prayer. Did you learn the Lord's Prayer? Some little folks, when asked to pray in Berean class, give this prayer that Jesus taught to His disciples. He taught them to say: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." So you see Jesus taught that God's kingdom was to be on earth, a real kingdom, and He would be King and rule and make those happy who love and obey Him.

Now we will tell you about to-day's lesson.

When Jesus was thirty years old, one day He went to the river Jordan where His cousin, John, had been preaching about Jesus and was baptizing in the river, those that believed. Jesus asked John to baptize Him just as he was baptizing the other people. When He was baptized God said, "Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased". So Jesus pleased God, and if we are to please God we must believe and be baptized as He was.

Now Jesus knew that He must start on His great works for the heavenly Father. He had been a good boy at home, always obeying His parents quickly. He never allowed bad children to influence Him. He learned to say, "NO," to everything that was wrong, when He was young. This helped Him to say, "NO," to temptation when He became a man. After He was baptized He went away where He could be alone for a while. Perhaps He wanted to think and pray and get ready for His great work. He had been in the wilderness forty days and gone without food and was hungry. All about Him were stones and He could have turned them into bread; for God had given Him great power to do miracles. Satan knew how hungry Jesus was and said, "If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread". Jesus knew the scriptures and gave him an answer from God's word. Satan then promised Him the kingdoms of this earth. Again Jesus gave him a scripture answer.

Again Satan tempted Jesus. This time Satan wished Him to throw Himself off the high temple, depending on the angels to save Him from danger. To this Jesus also gave an answer from God's word.

Then Satan left Him and God sent angels from heaven to feed and care for Him.

* * * *

QUESTIONS

Do I know Bible answers to say when tempted to do wrong? We will be tempted as long as we live.

What little word must we learn to say to wrong? (No.)

Who will help us if we ask Him? (Jesus.)

Will some of you write me a letter to be put in this column, telling what you believe about baptism?

Mrs. Daisy Nokes,

Lincoln Park, Route 7, Rockford, Illinois.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. NOKES: I certainly do thank you for this nice little book you sent me. It was real kind of you to remember me so nicely. I like the story about the sheep. My father keeps a lot of sheep. I have a sheep. I sold her lamb this fall and put the money in the bank.

Mamma read something to me about the "J. I. M." pin. I have been wondering if you still have any yet and what I must do to get one. I like very much to have Bible stories read to me. Hope you have had a nice Christmas.

Very truly,

Thornton R. Cleek,

Warm Springs, Virginia.

You will receive your "J. I. M." pin soon, Thornton.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. NOKES: In answer to the question of the little Hindu boy, I would say:

We believe that God is a person. We believe that Jesus was the Son of God and came to the world as the Savior of man, and that He is now at the right hand of the Father. But soon He is coming back to set up His kingdom on earth. And His saints will dwell here with Him forever.

I am a little girl, eleven years old.

Louise Walden,

Herando, Mississippi, Route 2.

HE COMETH!

(Continued from front page)

that kingdom, whose right He alone possesses.

Do we want the kingdoms of this world to become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ? If so, say the word to bring back the King. His kingdom is the only one that can and will bring peace to this sin-cursed world. Man has failed in all his governmental attempts. We cannot expect peace and good will to be everywhere present as long as the kingdoms of this present order exist. The soon coming Prince of Peace is our only hope. Pray that we may be found watching, waiting, when He returns; for we know not the day nor hour of His returning.

MELCHISEDEC

BY C. E. RUTLAND

SEEING that "It is the glory of God to conceal a thing: but the honour of kings is to search out a matter", we step into the fourteenth chapter of Genesis and the eighteenth verse to find ourselves confronted—minus any ceremonious introduction—with Melchisedec, king of Salem, bringing forth bread and wine as a priest of God most high.

How does he come by his priesthood? Why is he termed Melchisedec? What does his priesthood signify?

Where and who was he before he met Abraham and blessed him? All these questions arise in one's mind. Standing at the door of Psalm 110:4, we find it testifying of a certain one, and saying, "The Lord hath sworn and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedek."

Our pulses quicken at this saying, for we are now hearing of an order of priesthood that is to abide for ever—an everlasting priesthood! Our interest deepens. We recall to mind the Apostle Paul's statement in Hebrews 7:15 wherein he declares that after the similitude or likeness of Melchisedec, there ariseth another priest who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life. In this whole 7th chapter Jesus is plainly referred to as being a fulfillment of the "Melchisedec order".

God wraps everything up in bundles for we who are the called to open and pry out, hence we have to march back to Hebrews 7:2 to unlock the meaning of the name, Melchisedec. Paul ably assists us and we perceive that it is "first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also . . . King of peace."

Now we are progressing very nicely, and are on safe, scriptural ground in believing that the name, "Melchisedec", embodies within itself everlasting life, righteousness, peace, and kingship. It is furthermore written of Melchisedec that "he was without father, without mother, (without pedigree, margin), having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God; abideth a priest continually". Is there any room for doubt as to the intent of the apostle's meaning in regard to genealogy concerning Melchisedec? Hebrews 7:5 deals with the Levitical priesthood and verse 6 goes on to say, "But he whose descent (margin, genealogy) is not counted from them received tithes of Abraham." This is the sense, then, I take it, that Melchisedec's genealogy was "NOT COUNTED" from the Levitical tribe and in this sense, therefore, he was "without genealogy".

Also he was without father and mother. That is to say, he claimed no sonship from, and hence no claim to priesthood through being born of a Levitical father and mother under the law.

To speak Levitically, then, he was fatherless and motherless. Neither had he "beginning of (Levitical) life" as a priest, because "the law maketh men priests who have infirmity", and Melchisedec, whoever he is, does not typify "beginning and ending", or infirmity, but rather "consecration for evermore", whereas of the Levites it is written, "they truly were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death". What a man this one must be, then, who, appearing to Abraham as stated, is "without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life, and having been made like to the Son of God, remains a priest for the continuance".—Diag.

It now being proven that the Levitical priesthood was not counted nor considered as a type of perfection that was to continue in everlasting life through the King of righteousness and peace, where are we to find what God, in His wisdom, has seen fit to conceal, the type to our blessed Lord, "who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life"?

Consolation of consolations! Here comes Amos the prophet! Isaiah the prophet, too! They are good men and bear good news! This is the glorious message! "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." "Remember the former things of old: for I am God, . . . and there in none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done". We got the first message from Amos 3:7, the second from Isaiah 46:9, 10.

These compelling messages leave us no room to doubt that "the end has been declared from the beginning", neither can we disbelieve that our gracious and eternal Father has cleverly tucked away in some portion of His blessed writings, information relating to and expounding every event and outstanding personage mentioned in Scripture. Truth is there, indeed, covered prophetically either by a bold declaration or in a picturesque and typical manner. There is nothing accidental in God's Book. Experience has taught us that apparently trifling incidents and sayings recorded in the New Testament have a deep religious and doctrinal relationship and association with "Moses and the prophets". God's word is all providential, hence, when we read in Jude, verses 14 and 15, that "Enoch also the seventh from Adam prophesied" of certain ones, we pause to ask ourselves the question, Why is Enoch the seventh from Adam? Why mention seven in connection with Enoch? Not accidentally, we may be sure, but providentially! Every "Berean" knows the number seven signifies completion or perfection—a finished work.

Let us use one illustration of this principle applied as it was in the times of plague upon Egypt prior to Israel's departure. The first three plagues were poured out on Egyptians and Israelites alike; the last seven, or God's completed program, on the Egyptians only. Seven gives us a key, then, to unlock information regarding Enoch, and what do we find?

We find Moses in Genesis 5:22, declaring, "Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, . . . and all the days of Enoch were three hundred and sixty and five years: and Enoch walked with God, and he was not; for God took him."

To this Paul adds in Hebrews 11:5 that "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, . . . for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God." Here is the type, then, to the Lord Jesus Christ who is a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec, as will be those also associated with him in governing "the nations upon earth".

Enoch, the seventh from Adam! Not permitted to see death! A king among the righteous sons and daughters of the Almighty! King of righteousness and King of peace! Life—not death—his portion! A fitting and glorious type of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who was, to use another expression, "head and shoulders above His brethren." The seven-stemmed lightstand of the Diety—the accepted members of the "seven Ecclesiastics", the members of the "seventh from Adam"—all who belong to the "translation class" will shortly, we believe, constitute that "seventh" or "Enochian angel", that Melchisedec priesthood that shall turn away "blindness from Israel", darkness from the Gentiles, and fill the whole earth with God's glory.

May this be the happy portion of all those who are striving lawfully to enter into the kingdom of God.

EVIL IN GOOD

BY R. H. JUDD

THE Evangelical Christian and Missionary Witness seeks by frequent repetition to make known the fact that they "will never knowingly handle any literature which is not in accord with the fundamentals of the Word of God."

Of course that statement is from their point of view, for from any other viewpoint what the scriptures declare and what the "Evangelical Christian" declares are strikingly at variance. This terrible reality is vividly brought out in an appeal for funds on behalf of a Leper Mission in India:

Two lepers, brother and sister, had, for three weeks, made earnest but unavailing appeal for admission into the Home. Accommodation did not permit. Disappointed, heartbroken, and in despair, the sister committed suicide by drowning. Rightly, the Society makes known its needs by the publication of this pathetic incident, and we hope that some hearts will be touched to give. But what else does the Evangelical Christian state by implication? After stating that the sister "jumped into the river to end her misery", it adds the words "so she thought", thus hoping to gain the further sympathy of its readers by the suggestion that instead of entering that condition "where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest", her miseries were only increased by life in another sphere—an eternal hell of torment.

Oh, the cruel irony of such a thought! The framers of this appeal for funds with their own, every need supplied, thus dare to cast a slander on the GOD of love, and a libel on His name, in that they charge Him with wickedness immeasurable and unspeakable. "He that hath My Word, let him speak My Word faithfully."

A QUESTION

THE VALLEY OF DRY BONES

QUESTION: Please give the meaning of the valley of dry bones in Ezekiel 37.

The word "valley" in Ezekiel 37 is the same word as "plain" in Ezekiel 3:22, 23; 8:4; etc. It may refer to a plain lying between the mountain ranges in that district.

God tells Ezekiel the exact meaning of the vision. First, the hand of the Lord carried Ezekiel "in the spirit of the Lord, and set him down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones". It is similar language with evidently like meaning as is found in Ezekiel 1:1, 2; 8:3; where he was carried in vision to stated places. Whether this is the valley of Megiddo, which in Joel and elsewhere is cited as the valley of great battle like unto great battles in the same valley in former days, may be a question. There are suggestions in the context that such is the case. God expressly tells Ezekiel, v. 11, "These bones are the whole house of Israel", and in expressing it as the "whole" house and then afterward mentioning the house of Judah and his companions and the house of Ephraim and his companions it is evident that the word "whole" refers to the entire twelve-tribed nation, rather than to either one of the divisions of the nation as they were understood in the days of Ezekiel. The whole house, the twelve-tribed house, is to bestir itself and is to receive new breath. The word "breath" is "ruach", the same as the word "spirit" in nearly all Old Testament references.

The following vision of the two sticks united, with the explanation, vv. 21, 22, that God will unite the two houses of Israel and make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel, indicates that this reviving of the bones refers principally to the reviving of the scattered people of Israel in which scattered state the nation, as such, was dead, lifeless, unable to reinstate itself. Such newness of national life must of necessity be the gift of God. In this sense, regarding the bones as Israelites everywhere, the valley would necessarily refer to the face of the earth wherever Israel is scattered.

That definite, literal resurrection of individual Israelites may also be included in the vision is possible. This would be in harmony with other scripture statements.

Such regathering is the work of the Messiah for whom Israel was praying when our Savior was born in Bethlehem. That He will yet regather Israel is definitely stated in Rom. 11:26; Matt. 19:28; et al.

"If you are tempted to lose patience with your fellow-men, stop and think how patient God has been with you."

DOINGS AT HEADQUARTERS

Golden Rule Home is glad to report health and happiness in its family.

MANGEL

We have been waiting for some time for completion of transaction so announcement could be made about the Mangel. Several machines have been demonstrated to Sr. Thayer and others. The Home has not been without a demonstrating sample of a machine since the first one was put in over three months ago. Machines that have been highly recommended, and which are undoubtedly A-1 for some places were found to be inadequate for an institution of this size where so much bedding is washed. Selection has been made of a $160 machine concerning which further statement will be made as soon as the company representative at Rockford, Illinois, has time to complete the deal.

The last week of the old year and the first week of 1927 gave the heaviest floral trade for funerals experienced in our history. The demand for flowers throughout this section has been greater than the wholesale market could supply.

It is pleasing to report that Mr. Bergstrom has had an extra good crop of carnations just at this time, every bloom of which has been sought by wholesale buyers at prices much in advance of usual retail figures. Of course the local retail trade has been first attended to.

THE FOLLOWING voluntary letter and its announced contribution is gladly given place in The Herald. As a favor in the general office, we ask that each one responding to this effort will kindly sign full name with accurate and complete address carefully written.

Sister Elma Wilson, or whom she may designate, will kindly look after furthering the work according to the intention of the Holbrook Willing Workers.

The National Bible Institution office is grateful for the cooperation. It should be explained, however, that there is no direct indebtedness against Golden Rule Home itself; it is indebtedness against other cooperating property.

F. L. Austin, Manager.

DEAR BRO. AUSTIN: At a recent meeting of our Willing Workers Society we voted to start what we wish to call a church membership drive, for the purpose of raising a fund in which every member of our church, every where, can have a part.

The amount asked from each one is only twenty-five cents. This money we wish to be paid on the indebtedness of the Home at Oregon, Illinois.

To start this fund we are enclosing Ten Dollars, which has been contributed by forty members whom we have been able to see personally.

Through The Restitution Herald we wish to send out the plea to each and every member of the Church of God to make this small contribution to a representative fund, that each one may feel that he has a little part in helping in the common cause of raising the indebtedness on the Home

Signed by Committee appointed to start this drive.

Elma Wilson,

Holbrook, Nebraska.

EDITORIAL

(Continued from Editorial Page)

The Herald heartily congratulates Our Hope, of Mendota, Illinois, on the completion of its excellent new Hope Press Building.

This achievement is a monument to the faithful work performed, not only in the publication of the weekly organ of The Western Advent Christian Publication Association, but also in the printing of hundreds of thousands of Christmas cards, tracts, etc.

This well-lighted, spacious building should greatly facilitate and increase their service.

* * *

IN READING Sr. Barber's article, entitled "Six Hundred Sixty-six", the reader should distinctly remember that the letter valuations are as used by the Latins and the letters themselves are the spelling of Latin words. Numerous words of varied meanings and uses may be likewise computed, giving the same result.

* * *

HOW TO STAND IN TEMPTATION

TEMPTATION IS not a hideous monster to which weak man is subjected by an all-powerful God. Rightly understood, it is one of God's rich blessings making it possible for man to find his weaknesses and correct them in his Christian growth. Temptation is a testing. True, the wrong is present. It has certain appeal—to the one accustomed to sin, wrong has a strong appeal. This, usually, is not the temptation. The temptation is the test showing one's strength to master the wrong.

Just as ability to run a race is increased by previous thought and practice or testing, so Christian life is strengthened and developed by the testing called temptation. We need it—much Christ is our teacher, trainer, for and in these tests. He teaches us the Christian ideals; He shows how to handle them best.

He assures us victory—IF we persevere in His way.

CHRISTIANS ARE NOT CHRISTIAN

Dr. Jerome Davis, Professor of Practical Philanthropy at Yale University, became diagnostician to the United States, says the Philadelphia Inquirer of January 10, as he detailed the evils and ills of the present mode and trend of national life and prescribed its cure.

Dr. Davis wanted it understood that he was speaking from a Christian platform and a Christian position, also that "he loved our country dearly".

His theory was that the United States, as a nation, takes too much pride in material advances and great strides and not enough pride in human and spiritual relations to the rest of the world. He cited that about 85 per cent of the population is admittedly Christian and that 15 per cent are atheists, and added that "considering the average 'atheist' as living a Christ-like life, I would choose those who lived a religious rather than those who merely had a conviction and stored it away for use one day a week.

"Every one of the teachings of Jesus is being violated frightfully", Dr. Davis went on. "We are confronted with problems of sex, race, wealth and others. Roger Babson tells us that 5000 new millionaires were made during the World War. Greed was running rampant while our boys were being sacrificed in Europe. Eighty-two per cent of our population earns less than $2000 yearly in wages. Look at our lynching record. It is mounting again."

Leaving America for a moment, the doctor took up the question of his topic, "Christianity and International Relations." In international relations, he said, America needs to know the truth. That, unfortunately, is a very hard thing to know, he added.

"Among the barriers to truth are the complexities of the problems and the 'compartment thinking' of many people. By compartment thinking, I mean that people have a different pigeonhole in their mind for everything, but that things never are reasoned out in their relation to other things.

"The very fact that we call ourselves a Christian nation and are confronted with the inadequacies of our social structure, proves that we do not apply our Christianity to every day life, but that we 'pigeonhole' it for Sunday."

Then the doctor returned to the United States and continued his recital of its ailments. He cited ex-Secretary Fall and his "little black bag". He swung his axe of criticism at the Pennsylvania Senatorial race, and added that "men have spent millions to be elected."

"But they haven't uncovered any $100,000 in a little bag in Soviet Russia. No corruption has been found in the department of justice of the German republic.

"I'm not condemning our government; I love my country dearly. I'm just trying to make you realize that we have mental pigeonholes. What would we say of such goings-on in a foreign country?"

"We should be more tolerant. We should shake off the bias of our social heritage. Our civilization is a wonderful thing. The only thing wrong seems to be with the content."

Then war came in for its share. He suggested that war "be portrayed to the youth of the land as it really is".

Then he turned his guns on America again by asking where she was going, and by answering himself that she was "going on the road that leads to hell".

"Intervention in Nicaragua, Mexico, China, and the Philippines, the refusal to recognize Soviet Russia and the inter-Allied debt policy give the world to believe that America is 'sleek, rich and comfortable.'"

STRONGHOLD OF CHURCH IN CITY

The following, unmarked, is clipped from a Chicago paper:

Cities have a big lead over the country in church attendance, according to Rev. F. D. Goodwin, former head of the national rural division of the Episcopal Church, a speaker recently at a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Chicago in State-Lake Building.

Eighty-three per cent of the members of the Episcopal Church in America are residents of cities, Rev. Goodwin said. Of the 55,000,000 persons living in country districts, only 9,000,000 are members of any church.

The fault is with the churches, Rev. Goodwin believes.

"We do not realize how the country has changed, due to improved roads, automobiles, radios, advanced methods of farming, etc.," he said. "The church is still struggling along with ancient methods. Still we wonder why we have failed to reach the country people."

"The greatest work that is given us in this world is the building of character, which is all we can carry with us when we move on."

SALESMEN WANTED

TO SELL OUR GUARANTEED VEGETABLE AND FLOWER SEEDS IN THE FOLLOWING STATES:

ILLINOIS	NEBRASKA	MINNESOTA
INDIANA	IOWA	KENTUCKY
MICHIGAN	KANSAS	WISCONSIN
OHIO		MISSOURI

Make good money during the winter and spring months. Previous experience not essential. Liberal Commission. For further particulars write

John A. Railton Seed Co.

Successors in the Mail Order Seed Business to Golden Rule Nurseries.

Oregon

-

Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 25, 1927

NUMBER 17

O JERUSALEM, JERUSALEM!

BY SYDNEY E. MAGAW

THOUGH Jesus was strong in denouncing the life and doctrine of the Pharisees, He was filled with sorrow as He looked over their city, Jerusalem. That city was more sacred to Him than to them. From the Holy City He was to reign, a stronger than King David. Jerusalem was His city, the city Jesus knew would some day crown Him the King of kings. But as He viewed Jerusalem then, He saw it as a doomed city, because its proud people refused their King.

Then, with voice of prophecy, He bade her a sad farewell: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

To speak such words of doom upon the Holy City must have brought deep grief to Jesus; but Jerusalem answered His farewell with only her mocking cry, "Crucify him."

In the year 70 A. D. the temple, their house, was destroyed, but only a few may have remembered that Jesus had foretold it. The curse was not only upon the temple, but also upon the whole "house" of Israel. As literally as the temple fell, so did all Israel fall and come under the curse of desolation.

As any nation would mourn the death of its leader, so does Israel suffer the loss of hers, though she knows not why.

How long shall Israel wait for her King? How long must the temple lie in ruins? O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, when will you have your throne, your King, and kingdom?

That day will come. It is nearing! Then "ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." Oh! Jerusalem! Your King is coming back; for "this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go". You shall see the prints of the nails in His hands, and know that it is Christ your King. Then you will praise Him, and crown Him King upon the throne of David,

"whose right it is".

"Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints." "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him".

"They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory".

O Jerusalem! Prepare for your coming King. Rejoice, and sing, "Behold, he cometh", for soon "ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord". Then "out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem".

"Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever."

"Righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins. The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them." "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

WITNESSING

BY LOTTIE E. YOUNG

IN THE first verse of the Gospel by John, we read these words, "There was a man sent from God whose name was John", and later on we learn what his mission was, John truly had a wonderful work to perform, but the question arises in my mind as to whether we, too, have not a definite work to do. People sometimes suppose that such men as Moses and John and Paul were exceptions. They truly had their own specific mission; God sent them on definite errands, but do not we common people have something to do by which we can show to the world that we are followers of the greatest Teacher who ever came to instruct men? Even though we never saw God in a burning bush nor received a commission from His lips, still I think we have a work to do for Him.

Are we doing in this world what He wants us to do? This is an important question and we should not stop short of an honest answer to it; for we shall have to give an account some day of the manner in which we have used the "talents" He has entrusted to us. Any life is a failure, no matter how rich or famous it may be, if it does not accomplish that which God sent it into the world to do. We find our work and mission by simple obedience to God and submission to Him, and we miss it by taking our own way rather than God's.

One of the duties of every Christian is to bear witness of the Light. The Bible says that "the spirit (or life) of man is the candle of the Lord"; but in our natural state the candle is unlighted. It is capable of being lighted, but until the Holy Spirit touches it and sets it ablaze, even as at Pentecost, it is dead and dark. When the candle is lighted, however, it shines within us and makes us light. Thus it is that we bear witness of the Light; it is Christ in us that shines; our light is but a little of His light breaking through, and every one that sees us, sees in us a few gleams of the true Light.

There is another way also in which we may bear witness of the Light. We cannot save any perishing one or give life which shall never end, but we can point lost and dying ones to Christ, the great and true Light; we can tell others in their need and sorrow of the fulness there is in Christ. We should bear this witness to Christ in many ways. We can do it by our words, telling what He has done for us. If a physician heals us, we speak his praise among all our friends. Why should we not thus bear witness of Christ? We can bear witness, too, by our lives, showing in ourselves what Christ can do for others who will come to Him. We should all be good witnesses, true representatives, never giving any wrong impression of our Master by word or act. Let us remember that men and women are reading us far more diligently than they are reading the Bible, and show ourselves as worthy "living epistles" which can be read with profit to all.

Do It

If you have a kind word, say it—
Throbbing hearts soon sink to rest;
If you owe a kindness, pay it—
Life's sun hurries to the West.

Can you do a kind deed, do it,
From despair some soul to save;
Bless each day as you pass through it,
Marching onward to the grave.

Days of deeds are few, my brother,
Then to-day fulfill your vow;
If you mean to help another,
Do not dream it, do it, now.

—Selected by A. J. C.

THE COURAGE OF FAITH

BY JAMES A. FRANCIS, D. D.

"He brought them out that he might bring them in."

THEY have left Egypt. They have made the long, hard trek from where they probably crossed the Gulf of Suez, an arm of the Red Sea, to the very border of the land that was the ancestral home of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Let us have clearly in mind that as far as material civilization is concerned the tribes that now inhabited the land that we call Palestine were on a much higher plane than the Hebrews. The latter were rude, desert nomads, and the long sojourn in Egypt had not entirely robbed them of this character. The tribes living in Palestine were settled agriculturists, had walled cities and, to a considerable extent, carried on an interchange of foreign trade. The very fact that after Jericho was destroyed there was found among the ruins an expensive Babylonish garment speaks volumes and means that this country at the western tip of what is known as the "Fertile Crescent", was inhabited by a people who had moved a long way upward in the scale of civilization.

This does not alter in the least the fact that yonder nomads, with their goats' hair tents, camping on the border between the farm land and the desert, have arrived at some conceptions of God which not only lifted them higher than the Canaanites, but which are destined to remake the map of the world.

A scouting party was organized, one man from each of the twelve tribes, and they were sent to spy out the land as far north as Hamath, the pass that leads out of Palestine toward Damascus. It took them forty days. The likelihood is that they divided their party and divided the territory. They have come back and rendered their report. There is a majority report of ten, and a minority report of two. The interesting thing is that while they had all seen the same things, the appraisals on their return by the ten and the two are widely different. The ten said, "It is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof." The two said, "It floweth with milk and honey." These last even brought a bunch of grapes so large that it had to be carried on a pole between two. The ten said, "The inhabitants are giants. We were in their sight as grasshoppers, and so were we in our own sight." The two said, "We are well able to take it."

They all viewed the same country and the same people, but with what different eyes! What made the difference? The ten looked at the strength, or rather the weakness of Israel, and the might of the people who inhabited the land. The two saw both of these but added in their calculations the strength of Israel's God. No truer picture of the two frames of mind that have always obtained was ever drawn. It is a parable for all time. It means that the kind of vision with which we approach a situation is quite as important as the situation itself. From the point of view of what is called "hard common sense", the ten were right. How could this horde, so rudely armed, with no country to fall back on, no base of supplies, attack and conquer these strongly entrenched people in the land they had occupied probably for centuries?

But, we will say to this committee of ten, "Gentlemen, have you counted all your resources?" "Are you not the children of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: "Did not Jehovah make certain definite promises to them?" "Has He not renewed these promises to Moses in your own generation?" "Have you forgotten what happened in Egypt and at the Red Sea?" "Are His promises a dead letter?" "Hath the Lord said it and shall He not do it?" You looked to the Canaanites like grasshoppers. How did the Canaanites look to Him? He taketh up the isles as a very little thing. "Lebanon is not sufficient for a burnt-offering". "He setteth the stars in their courses." "He is God Almighty in heaven and on earth." He is your real base of supplies. Why not count on Him? This is exactly what the two did.

Behold the result. The ten men who believed that they could not enter and conquer, never did, enter, and the two who believed it could be done lived through the long period of waiting and came to their inheritance in the land of promise.

There was probably the same division in the multitude that there was among the twelve spies; a majority accepting the report of the majority, and a minority ready to accept the report of the minority. We say it reverently—there was nothing else for God to do with a people in that state of mind but to march them back into the wilderness and let them wait until that entire generation had passed away and the new generation had taken their place, in whom dwelt a different spirit.

In response, indeed, to the stinging reproof of Moses, they then and there made an abortive attempt to enter, but were beaten back. Indeed, they were beaten before they started. The attempt itself was an act of disobedience. A gesture in imitation of faith without the real faith to back it up is a poor, silly thing.

What lessons shall we draw for our later day from this old story? God is always calling His people to do the impossible. The impossible becomes possible when we look with the eye of faith. Judson said, "The prospects are as bright as the promises of God." When we view our tasks, whether they be the conquest of our own sinful nature; whether it be the upbuilding of the church of God; whether it be the remaking of society for His kingdom, or whether it be the entering of some territory heretofore unclaimed by the people of God, the issue is always the same. "All things are possible to him who believeth", while the life of unbelief always spells failure.—Adult Leader.

*"Spirit of love, at evening-time,
When weary feet refuse to climb,
Give us thy vision, eyes that see,
Beyond the dark, the dawn, and thee."*

THE MOUNTAIN OF LIFE

BY SIDNEY JACKSON

A FEW years ago two young Englishmen announced that they were going to climb Mount Everest. They spent some time in conditioning themselves for the adventure, and then one morning started out to climb. When they first announced their intentions a certain "hard-headed" business man asked them what they expected to find when they reached the top. What was the use of it all?

Their answer was that they expected to find the top.

Less than a week after their start up the mountain, the papers came out with large headlines, telling of the two frozen bodies lying far up on the mountainside. These two young Englishmen had given their lives in an effort to find something which, after being found, would, in all probability, be of no physical value. The only reason known is that they had been drawn by the calling of the unconquered peaks.

We, too, have a mountain to climb, but it is a different kind of mountain. Our mountain is the mountain of life which leads into the kingdom of God. To say that it is easily scaled, would be folly; for it is a long and hard journey, but to the "little children" there is the voice of Jesus Christ, the King, calling, calling, calling.

In the attempt to climb this mountain, as in the attempt to scale Everest, there are scoffers who ask, "What is there at the top when you get there?" We can answer, "A home with our Savior".

What if we do stumble and tire. Our Master will aid us. And if we fall, yet try to continue, He, in His infinite mercy, will reach down to us and lend us a helping hand.

We, too, will die in the journey, but if we die with our faces looking up toward the wonderful summit, our Christ, the great Shepherd will come out on the mountain and carry us on into the fold, that everlasting kingdom, whence there is no death. Thus may we "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus", knowing that in the end His promise will take us into the kingdom; for He has said, "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened."

? "AS UNTO THE LORD" ?

ACCORDING to the compilations of the economists, the average American is now spending $5.02 a year for jewelry and 15 cents for art. He is spending $27 for joy riding and $1.28 for the work of the church. He is blowing in $3.00 for ice cream and 98 cents for books. He is spending $45 for fancy foods and 8 cents for the salaries of the professors. He is giving up $4.15 for soda water and 6 cents for ink. He expends 11 cents for health service and 65 cents for coffins.—Exchange.

THE TESTIMONY OF THE GOSPEL

BY SAMUEL E. HANEY

"And this gospel (good tidings) of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world (inhabited world) for a testimony unto all nations; and then shall the end come."
—Matthew 24:14, R. V.

AS WE peruse this subject, let us note the testimony's effect upon mankind. With the possible exception of two small nations this prophecy has been fulfilled. And God, in this instance, as is His custom, has given "good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over" to the inhabited earth.

James tersely gives us God's object of the Gospel's promulgation, i.e., "to take out of them (Gentiles) a people for his name", Acts 15:13, 14, adherents of His dear Son, for a future specific purpose of tremendous importance.

Through the printing press, which God brought forth opportunely, the Gospel has been printed in the necessary languages and dialects to meet all requirements. And He has had a Bible placed in virtually every home in Christendom. True, few understand the Gospel, or have a desire to give its pages even a cursory investigation. But that is no fault of God's. He has done His part; and man, with a functioning mind, has his part (choice) to perform.

However, to say the least, every adult professing Christianity knows that between the two lids of the great Book lies the story of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who came to the earth to save sinners; and that for this purpose, He "was delivered (suffered death) for our offences, and was raised again for our justification".—Rom. 4:25.

Nineteen hundred years ago the Lord "sowed good seed" (truth), and "while men slept" (became derelict) the enemy sowed tares (error). Now the harvest time is here. And what a big crop it is! Statistics give us 600,000,000 humans in the "field". We often wonder how many of the Lord's consecrated little ones are among them. Doubtless, few. But from the very facts that these millions have taken the name of Christ, Christian, and that God has made such copious and timely provisions for their education and enlightenment, it would seem He should expect them to be serious and consistent about their profession. For God did not give up His dear Son to be persecuted and crucified only to be treated as "an unholy (common) thing". Heb. 10:26-31.

No one has ever trifled with God's Word with impunity; and to jest with it now, at the end of the age, is playing with "fire".

"Many are called (all that recognize and accept Christ as their Savior), but few (wise ones) are chosen". Read the parabolic story, Matt. 22:1-14. "A man which had not on a wedding garment", v. 11, illuminates the subject. This "man" symbolizes the "many" of Matt. 7:22, 23—"Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied . . . And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity".

Jesus says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments"—not some but all. Every one knows that the world's ways are perverse to Christ's ways. Hence, it is a mistake to suppose that the people, apparently unconcerned about matters religious, know nothing about Calvary's tragedy. They quickly disabuse our minds when serious trouble or sickness overtakes them. A friend of mine, dying of suicide, caused by his god (money) slipping from him, called for his son, and said, "Son, learn all you can about Jesus Christ, and never be a coward like your father."

Yes, the great bulk of Christians are cowards, and ashamed of Jesus and His teachings. They figure on slipping into "heaven"—the kingdom—by some hook or crook. But the writer believes the Lord's precept and practice proves they misconstrue His standard of clemency.

In John 15 Jesus refers to the "world's" conduct toward His disciples—a befitting application to-day. He then shows, v. 22, how His teachings manifest the works of the devil—sin; and affect fallen man: "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloak (excuse) for their sin". Verse 6 clarifies the frightful position of unregenerate man, now facing the wrath of God: "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned".

Paul informs us that this is what the Christian escapes: "Saved from wrath through" Christ: as we, "were by nature (the flesh) the children of wrath, even as others".—Rom. 5:9; Eph. 2:3.

Then the great apostle explains the only safe ground, the Solid Rock, Jesus Christ: "Now if we be dead (dead to self and the world) with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him", Rom. 6:8,—live forever with Christ. GLORY!

Peter says, "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God (consecrated saints): and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?" There can be but one inference about the "they that obey not the gospel", they must have had knowledge of the gospel to "obey not". The inhabitants of the Fiji Islands cannot disobey the gospel, having never heard it.

"AND THEN SHALL THE END COME"

The end of what? Many things. A few of the foremost importance: the end of the gospel call for "a people for his name"; the end of Satan's reign; the end, by gradual elimination, of the "works of the devil". And who can enumerate the innumerable concomitant phases that have been leading up to death by such a diabolical regime of 6000 years!

Man's 6000 years of estrangement from his Creator; and under the domination of the evil one! O, what a saddening condition such an existence has entailed!

John's version: "And there came one of the seven angels which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come hither; I will shew thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters: with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication".—Rev. 17:1, 2.

And the finale: "And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath".—Rev. 16:19.

Dear reader, there is but one exit of escape from the fierceness of God's wrath—Jesus Christ; and Paul's position is germane in all cases: "But God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world."—Gal. 6:14.

This means an unconditional surrender—no compromising with self (the old man), the world, and the devil.

"A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother."—Proverbs 18:24.

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

BY LYMAN BOOTH

(Continued from last week)

LET US now consider some of the uses of this chosen vessel. Consider the number, the variety, and the greatness of Paul's gifts and achievements. What of the literature he gave to the world? What of the communities he transformed? the public sentiment he elevated? the many abuses he corrected? the leaders he raised up? the great thoughts he expressed? the churches he organized? and best of all, the souls he saved? He wrote thirteen of the twenty-seven books of the New Testament. He may have written more, but if so, they are lost. His writings are like a lighthouse on the seashore that guides the mariner safely into the harbor. They shed their effulgent rays across the centuries, guiding wandering seamen safely into life and glory. If we read the Romans or Ephesians, or the fifteenth chapter of 1 Corinthians, the eloquence of profound thought will greet us pleasantly. His conceptions of the possibilities of a gospel for Gentile as well as for Jew will show the wealth of Spiritual power and thought equalled only by the words of Jesus and the prophecies of Isaiah.

The universality of the gospel was the chief and transcendent characteristic of Paul's teaching. It brought as much beauty and grandeur into his mind as the Copernican theory did to astronomers, which taught that all bodies in our planetary system circle around the sun, from which they all receive their light and heat. So, Paul viewed the gospel as the central sun around which Jews and Gentiles alike could receive and reflect the same light, and all work in harmony in one grand purpose—fellow-members of the one body, fellow-heirs, and fellow-partakers of the promises. Paul's intellectual and spiritual grasp of the world-wide significance of the gospel and its power to save, enables us to understand why his preaching was "in demonstration of the Spirit and power".

His executive ability was seen in his faculty of quick and permanent organization. It is one thing to convert men, and quite another to lead them on to perfection. In his first journey, his efforts were directed to the primary work of salvation and the organization of churches. His second was to the confirmation and establishment of the churches firmly in the faith. Indeed, what there is of firmness in the church to-day may be largely credited to his powers. How he brought things to pass is illustrated by his work at Ephesus. At the close of his ministry, it was said, "All they that dwelt in that province of Asia had heard the word of the Lord Jesus." He won souls wherever his footsteps led him. At Lystra he found and won Timothy; at Philippi, a company of noble women; at Athens, a member of the Areopagus; at Antioch and Corinth, many; and at Rome, multitudes.

We look upon Paul as a great moral hero, without a peer, except his Lord. The things that were lacking in Christ's sufferings fell mercilessly upon him; but what cared he for pain and poverty; the scorn at Athens; the weeping at Miletus? He had faced the rulers at Jerusalem, Felix, and Agrippa. He had been stoned at Iconium, and the enraged mob at Lystra trampled upon him and cast him out for dead. He had fought with beasts at Ephesus. He had been shipwrecked at Malta, and summoned before Nero. Still he marches onward in his eventful career. "He hears afar the Allelujahs of martyrs ringing round the amphitheatre", and he cries, "What mean ye to weep and to break my heart? None of these things move me."

If we search the pages of history and of the Scriptures, where will we find, among God's hardest workers, deepest thinkers, and greatest leaders, Paul's equal? It seems to me that from that memorable day on his journey to Damascus to the day he was offered up at Rome he did more for the world's future than has ever been done by mortal man. Where was there ever so much wisdom, manly heroism, genuine goodness and greatness embodied in one person?

May I ask what was the crowning service of our "chosen vessel"? Be it remembered that he was a Roman as well as a Jew. He could make friends more easily with a Roman soldier than with a Jewish priest. Turn to the close of his epistle to the Roman brethren, where he mentions more than twenty friends and only three of them were of his kinsmen. He was a Roman by birth when only a small number of her millions were free men. Out of six hundred thousand, five hundred thousand were slaves.

(Continued next week)

"When everything goes crooked and seems inclined to rile, Don't kick, nor fuss, nor fidget, just you smile."

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

BY SCOURGING, God tries every son whom He receives. Hebrews 12:6.

To those exercised thereby, testing yields "the peaceable fruit of righteousness". Heb. 12:11.

Fire consumes only combustible matter; sin tempts only those taking pleasure therein.

Sacred history proves that God provides a way for every man loving Him to escape from all allurements.—F. L. A.

* * * *

REPORT YOUR WORK

A LETTER from a Sister in Iowa in which she complains of the lack of church news of that state, is also true generally. We have given a department of the paper to just this phase of the work, "Among the Churches", and also "Berean Department". We personally know that a great percentage of the Herald readers turn to this department first upon receiving the paper. It is the department which keeps up the personal interest in the general field.

In view of this, we would suggest that some person in each of the different localities appoint someone to report the items of a general interest concerning the work. If no one is appointed,—well just appoint yourself. Make your items brief and to the point.—F. A. S.

* * * *

PRAYER

PRAYER IS DEFINITE.

Its employment certifies belief in a prayer-hearing and a prayer-answering God.

Without such a definite belief, prayer is a useless mockery. That philosophy that teaches that prayer is useful only as it exercises the mind to higher thought is non-biblical. It presumes a deaf Creator, not to be disturbed by His weak, finite creatures.

Prevailing prayer must be in accord with God's plans. That is, a murderer's prayer for a gun could not be granted. A Christian's prayer for punishment upon his enemy is contrary to God's working rule; it could not be granted. Likewise, "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts".—James 4:3. Such is contrary to God's working plan of righteousness. It cannot be conceded.

God's plans are to build man. He especially helps the Christian who by faith reaches beyond the ability of the natural man; seeks help. He cancels sin, Acts 2:38; He strengthens to walk in newness of life, Rom. 6:4; He forgives even until seventy times seven; He guards as seen in the instance of Peter in Acts 12:5; He helps, guides, strengthens, throughout life. Therefore, in order for prayer to prevail, the one praying must learn the will and wish of God. Such are found only by a careful, thorough, and continuous study of His Word.

The disciples were constantly with Jesus and beheld Him on numerous occasions applying Himself in prayer to God. Not only had they seen this, but they had observed the definite, repeated responses of God in answer.

—F. L. A.

* * * *

CHRIST IN US

TENNYSON SINGS:

"O, for a man to rise in me,

That the man I am may cease to be!"

And what a great thought if we think of that one to rise in us as Christ!

Paul says, "I delight in the law of God after the inward man", Rom. 7:22, and also exhorts, "Put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the NEW man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness."

We build up the inner man by feeding him. His growth in us is, to a great extent, the result of our thoughts, our meditations. Paul says, "Be renewed by the spirit of your mind". Then how can this inner man be built up in one who has his mind occupied with the impure; who is an habitue of places of questionable character, or chooses companions among the worldly, pleasure-mad class who have no thought, and less regard, for the finer spiritual things which build up the Christ within us?

If we would put off the old man with his lusts, we must not seek his companionship. We will find him in our presence often enough at best.

To build up the Christ in us we must feed on Him. We are not feeding on Him except that our thoughts and meditations are on Christ and things concerning the gospel and redemptive work,—the spiritual.

O, that we might say with Paul, "The love of Christ constraineth us;" and, "that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again".—F. A. S.

HERALD RECEIPTS

O. Williams; Mrs. Edw. Twibel; Hattie A. Gearhart; Daniel V. Davis; Wm. G. Ford; Zola Stedman; A. Gilbey; Mrs. R. Overholt; Mrs. Sadie Clark; James Moore; Flossie Houston; Mrs. Chas. E. Miller; Mrs. M. O. Webster; Mrs. O. J. Dorsey; Mrs. W. H. Lindsay; Silas Overton; Mrs. Thos. Beadle; Mrs. Henry Stowe; Sylvester Logan; Mrs. Ed. Canaan; Mrs. Edwin Dopp.

HELPING FUND

Hattie A. Gearhart

$3.00

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

THE OREGON class had a very interesting lesson on January 16, the subject being, Assurance, Lesson 67. Webster defines assurance as meaning firm persuasion, full confidence or trust, freedom from doubt, the utmost certainty.

* * * *

If a man has been able to accomplish certain physical feats in life, he naturally has assurance that he can do those same things again. So is it also, that certain experiences in one's religious life give him convictions and assurances that all the argument in the world could not take from him.

* * * *

One of the texts referred to in the lesson that deserves a great deal of consideration is 1 John 5:13, "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life", etc. The big question is, can we know that we are saved?

* * * *

Personally, we feel that one should never come to that place in life where he feels that he positively will not and cannot sin, and therefore say, "I know I am saved." Such a position appears to us as being one of pride and self-confidence, and always recalls, "Let him who thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

Yet, on the other hand, if one has honestly, sincerely, and intelligently applied himself to the word of God, and obeyed its precepts to the extent of experiencing the Father's forgiveness and guidance, then that person has a right to feel himself in line for salvation up to the time then present.

* * * *

There can, then, be a certain legitimate feeling of the certainty of salvation on the part of the Christian, who has experienced God's favors and forgiveness in the past, and therefore has a deep assurance and conviction that the Father will be true to future, promised blessings. In fact, it is this assurance that gives the Christian a consolation in life that is far richer than anything the worldly person can know. This calm trust and confidence in God carries a person through the severest of storms, and makes it possible for him to make sacrifices, and meet temptations and trials that otherwise he could not cope with.

* * * *

But, let him always bear in mind that there is still a liability of failure. He is not saved yet. He must continue to fight. He that shall endure to the end, the same shall be saved, or "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

* * * *

"Ideals live only as we strive toward them."

* * * *

GOLDEN RULE

A Missouri Sister found the following on the Golden Rule, and sends it in for the benefit of Bereans everywhere:

IF ALL OF US could always do unto others as we would have them do to us as individuals, as a community, as a state, and as a nation, what a different world we would make our little sphere!

This living of the Golden Rule is the greatest need of the world's industry, it is the greatest need in the home, it is the greatest need in humanity, it is the greatest need even in our churches.

The Golden Rule can be applied with advantage, not only in business and in industry, but also in all the relations of life.

The application of the Golden Rule on a large scale must begin with each of us as individuals, for the community and the states are merely aggregations of individuals.

Let us make 1927 the best year of service for the others in our entire experience; then we will show our religion, whatever it may be, by our works. If we desire to look at the matter from a purely selfish standpoint, we will find that the way to secure the greatest happiness for ourselves is to serve our neighbors and humanity.

* * * *

"For many people the rain seems a little more wet on Sunday."

* * * *

"The time to make the most of to-day's opportunities is to-day."

* * * *

We are accustomed to discount the promises of God in a way that would utterly dishonor any human being.—Sarah F. Smiley.

GOD

BY H. H. HAWKINS

"The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."—Psalm 14:1.

A GREAT many in this day and age deny the reality of God and declare that the Creator of the great universe has neither body, parts, nor passions, and exists in nature only. "I am the LORD, and . . . there is no God beside me".—Isa. 45:5. The words, "I am", certainly must convey the thought of material existence. It is very consoling to believe that we have a real, material heavenly Parent that exists and is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him.

"From the place of his habitation he looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth."—Psa. 33:14.

"His eyes are upon the ways of man, and he seeth all his goings".

(Christ) "who is the image of the invisible God".

Suppose we consult Webster as to some of the words just stated for their real meaning: HABITATION—place of abode; IMAGE—a representation or similitude of any person or thing—copy or likeness; LIKENESS—that which resembles something else.

Now, as we have some of these things cleared in our minds, let us turn to some passages, and let them bloom out some more wonderful thoughts from the only source of information that we can rely upon.

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."—1 John 3:2.

"God thundereth marvelously with his voice; great things doeth he which, we cannot comprehend."—Job 37:5.

"The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry. The face of the Lord is against them that do evil."—Psa. 34:15, 16.

"Behold, God is great, and we know him not, neither can the number of his years be searched out."—Job 36:26.

"God judgeth the righteous, and God is angry with the wicked every day."—Psa. 7:11.

"Who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see".—1 Tim. 6:16.

"Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding".—Isa. 40:28. "Yea, before the day was I am he: and there is none that can deliver out of my hand".—Isa. 43:13.

"God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."—John 4:24.

"The Spirit of God (invisible power) moved upon the face of the waters".—Gen. 1:2.

"God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."—1 John 4:16.

"I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me."—Prov. 8:17.

Attributes of God such as spirit, love, kindness, etc., are descriptive terms, denoting the characteristic properties of God; these attributes, in themselves, cannot be God; but the above references seem to indicate personality, and that God is a Being of glorious spirit substance. The universe everywhere manifests design, and whenever there is design, there must be the operation of an intelligent mind.

In the Scriptures, God is emphatically called "the living God". And there are ascribed to Him "head", "hair", "throne", "garment", "feet", "hands", "voice", "smell", "eyes", "ears", "face", "mouth", "heart", "nostrils", "mind", "thoughts", "breath", "form", "soul", "spirit", "dwelling place", "person", etc. When these terms are applied to man, they at once convey very definite ideas to the mind, implying "body and parts", Why do they not mean similarly when applied to God?

Jesus said at the great Sermon on the Mount: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God", not a phantom without body, form, or parts, but see God, a glorious, just, and holy Being.

We understand that "his greatness is unsearchable", and have in a small way tried to point out the reality of God, and that He is something more than just a part of nature.

If God is not a person, He could not have made man in His own image.

"For therefore . . . we trust in the living God", "who only hath immortality", "who is the Saviour of all men, specially of those that believe", "to whom be honor and power everlasting. Amen." 1 Tim. 4:10; 6:16.

MY DAILY CREED

*Let me be a little kinder,
Let me be a little blinder
To the faults of those about me;
Let me praise a little more;
Let me be, when I am weary,
Just a little bit more cheery;
Let me serve a little better
Those that I am striving for.*

*Let me be a little braver
When temptations bid me waver;
Let me strive a little harder
To be all that I should be.
Let me be a little meeker
With my brother that is weaker.
Let me think more of my neighbor
And a little less of me.*

—Selected.

Salvation not only saves from sin, but gives work to those who are saved. Therefore true Christians are faithful workers.—C. E. R.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON VI.—February 6.

THE PRACTICE OF CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP.

Matthew 25:14-30.

Devotional Reading: 2 Corinthians 9:6-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy lord.—Matthew 25:21.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

This again, is one of a series of studies to discover active Christian life for to-day. While the parable of our study has to do with the coming of our Lord and with regard to servants at that time, yet to-day's study is an effort to learn present Christian duty while yet the Lord is absent.

Christian service of all kinds must necessarily be prompted by the devotedness of the servant to the Lord. In this devotion every true servant will utilize all of his powers for the purpose of increasing his own qualifications, as well as for the purpose of accomplishing for the Master.

Like servants of the parable, all Christians have different abilities. Man can approximate the degrees of his own ability by the degrees of success in the pursuit of life's labors. It will be noticed that the Savior presented the parable so as to require more of the man of five-talent ability than of the one of two or of one. That is, He required all of the ability of each servant. Undoubtedly this is the great lesson which He is teaching for to-day. The one with the ability to accept the command of Mark 16:15, and go forth to preach the gospel will undoubtedly be held responsible for the use of such. Should he hide his talent under carnal ambition it is evident, from the Lord's illustration, that He will regard him as a wicked and unfaithful servant. The same is true of Christian service in whatever line the Christian may possess ability.

The minister of the gospel is not more bound to use his full time, power, and life for the service of his Lord than is the man of commerce, of farming, of finance, or of any other activity of life. Each should regard that "not I, but Christ" that "liveth in me", He doeth the work. This requires that nothing in any line or work of life shall be done by the Christian excepting as it can be done under the direction and approval, and in the service of, the Lord. Col. 3:23; Eph. 6:6, 7. In such service and in such labor every Christian is steward of his strength, his time, his life, his all, for Christ. Rom. 12:1, 2.

In all but two instances the Bible use of the word "steward" is from the Greek "oikonomos" which is the same word that is translated "dispensation". The meaning of the word as applied to an individual is, a house manager, one who manages servants, tasks, affairs—acts for the master.

It is very evident that any individual giving himself to Christ, as a disciple or Christian, gives himself wholly from that time on. He manages his own strength, facilities, revenues, abilities—everything—for his Lord. The Lord, upon His return, will evidently, from this and many other scriptures, award each of His disciples, not according to his apparent success in life, but according to his faithfulness in utilizing life's powers for His work. The particular field in which any individual shall best prove himself faithful to his Lord is that field in which he is best fitted to serve.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

Well done! good and faithful servant! over a few things thou wast faithful, over many things will I appoint thee: enter into the joy of thy master.—Matt. 25:21, Rotherham.

It is worthy of note that the Master did not require any high degree of success, but he did require faithfulness. The reward comes because of faithfulness. The servants faithfulness was measured or judged by his works.

Your faith will have its reward. We must prove ourselves able and willing, by an earnest, consecrated life of faith wrought with works, to do service for Him in the age to come. God will not give out the compliment, "Well done", to a lazy Christian. Faithful service, also has its reward in this present life. If you would climb upward in position and standing among men, it must be the result of genuine service if it be lasting.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Christian Stewardship. Stewardship is the same in every field of action. It embraces the need of one person for the service of another. The one needing the service needs it because of his superior ability which cannot be fully exercised without the aid of others. Those who render aid are called servants and those servants who have charge of particular phases of the master's affairs are called stewards. As such, they should devote their best abilities to the managing of that phase of the master's work which is committed to their hands.

God is a master. His greatness is unmeasured. He has always used stewards. Adam was one. He failed. Noah was a steward; Abraham was another. So also were Moses, Samuel, and others. Jesus was God's greatest Steward. He committed to Him the affairs of saving the world from sin, of removing the curse from the earth, of redeeming Israel to its kingdom position. These amazing labors for God required all the ability and service of our Lord. He was faithful—faithful to death. God rewarded Him. Heb. 1:8, 9.

Jesus is a Master. His greatness cannot be measured. He needs servants in His work. He has, through the gospel, called to all the world for servants. Christians. To these He has committed certain portions of His affairs: witnessing for and of God; proclaiming the gospel; building the church; caring for the members of the church; enlightening the world; and other affairs. This all requires ability. It requires ability to manage self and others—managing ability for temporal things: property, labor, everything in life. Like the steward in any particular business enterprise, so the Christian steward should devote his entire life and strength to the conduct of the affairs of His Master, Christ.

The Sunday school teacher is a steward of the scholars of his class regarding their Christian education and development. The pastor is steward of the congregation and as such is answerable to his Lord. The church is, in a measure, the steward of the gospel—to proclaim it in its mission of salvation and to exercise watch-care over those in whose hearts the Word, as seed, lodges.

Christ developed the parable story to teach that He Himself would reward, not according to largeness of gain, but according to faithfulness, according to use of strength and ability.

The reward will be realized at the Master's return. See 2 Tim. 4:7, 8. In the meantime, each and every servant is left to use his own discretion as to the faithfulness of his devotion throughout life to his Lord.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

The Christian as a slave, servant, to Christ.

The meaning of steward in relation to servant.

God as a Master.

Christ as a Master.

The work of God allotted to Christian stewards.

The work of Christ allotted to Christian stewards.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. Sydney Magaw writes that plans have been made to continue the work at Bain, Minnesota, for another month. Therefore, he will not return to Lester Prairie, as was stated in last Herald, until the last of February.

* * *

In last week's Herald, Sr. M. A. Woodward's address was given as 227 W. St. Joseph St., Lansing, Mich. It should have been 223. Correspondents please note correction.

* * *

Bro. Austin has slipped away for a few days, we suppose to get accustomed to leisure before he takes a more extended vacation.

* * *

The office is particularly busy at this time of year closing up the work and preparing statements for the past year.

* * *

A letter from Sr. Clara Chaffee indicates that they have been enjoying (?) some real winter in the "Sunny South". Sr. Chaffee expects to take up her residence again at Golden Rule Home about the middle of March.

After filling his regular fourth Sunday appointment with the Chicago brethren Sunday morning, Bro. Siple spoke to the Oregon congregation Sunday evening, January 23.

Bro. Paul C. Johnson filled the Oregon pulpit Sunday morning.

* * *

Bro. F. E. Siple plans to fill the pulpit at the Dixon church both morning and evening on Sunday, January 30, and also the following Sunday, February 6. The extra Sunday is due to the fact that there are five Sundays in January this year.

* * *

MRS. EVA M. NORRIS

Mrs. Eva M. Norris was born to Samuel and Sarah Jackson at Naperville, Illinois, in 1853, and died at Aurora, Illinois, January 12, 1927. With the exception of seven years lived in Kansas from 1878 to 1885, Sr. Norris lived her entire life, after three years of age, in or near Aurora. In November last she and her husband celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary in their pleasant home at 520 S. Broadway, where he, after loving and faithful service through life, through sickness, through death, hopes to continue to abide. Besides her husband, there remains of her immediate family, one brother, D. B. Jackson, of Los Angeles, California, to mourn her loss. Their only child, Mrs. Clara Rupp, died several years ago.

Sr. Norris was a life-long servant of our Lord, faithfully advocating the beliefs and hopes of her staunch parents, which she heartily believed were the promises of Sacred Writ. Though absent from any "Church of God", she was a faithful worker with the few who could meet together in her city and faithfully labored with heart and purse to convey the gospel of salvation to others.

The Herald commends Bro. Norris to Him who is Victor over all the foes of man and who has assured His every saint of a grand, triumphal resurrection.

* * *

"GOD CANNOT BE TEMPTED WITH EVIL".—James 1:13.

"Evil", in N. T. refers both to the principle of "depravity" as a phase of "disposition", and to the act of exercising that disposition and acting depraved, evil. The former is referred to by the Greek word "kakos", the latter by the Greek word "poneria". The word "with evil" in James 1:13 is "kakos", being the dative case and plural number of "kakos". "Kakos", in plural, James 1:13, assures that God is not depraved in any manner, does not have bad or depraved disposition of any kind, while the dative case, represented here by the English preposition "with", states that He does not move, tend, or incline to it.

"Cannot be tempted" is here translated from the verb "esti" which is the present tense of the verb "eimi", "to be", and from the word "apeirastos" which means "inexperienced, or untried, or incapable of being tried";—Anal. Lex.; "incapable of being tempted, temptation-proof."—Crit. Lex.

The whole phrase then states that God does not possess bad or depraved disposition; "cannot be tempted" to such; and does not tempt "any man" in that way.

Therefore, when man is tempted toward such, the temptation cannot be of God. God's whole instruction, assistance, and provision has always been away from such. Surely He does not induce any with such leadings.

Own lusts. The construction of this term also is dative, plural. It means, "earnest desire; . . . ; specially, impure desire".—Anal. Lex.; "desire which attaches itself to or upon its object. It is used exclusively of sinful desire, . . .".—Crit. Lex.

Enticed. "Properly to entrap, take or catch with a bait." Therefore, when tempted, one should never say, "I am tempted, (trapped, baited) of God."

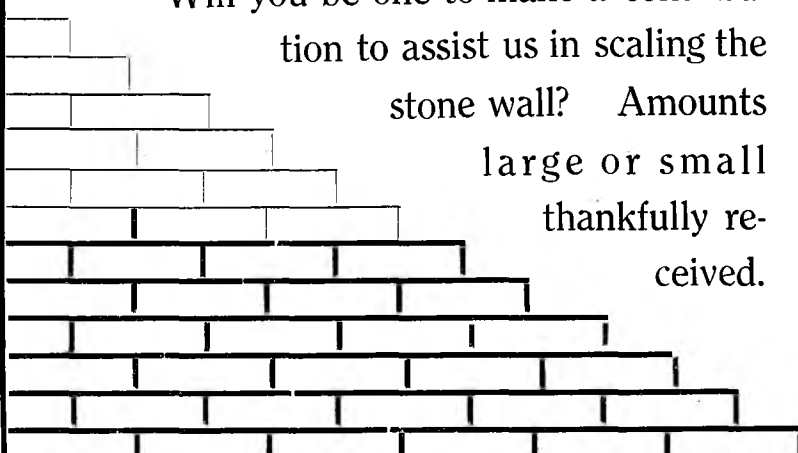

The steps are steadily, but slowly, going up. They now indicate that nearly $1500 has been contributed, for which we are very thankful. But we are in great need of the remaining $500 of the $2000 requested. We wonder if the brotherhood will not rally to our assistance and get this matter out of the way. With this done it is hoped the regular contributions will suffice to keep up the current need as we go along.

The print shop is more than paying its way, also the greenhouse. Golden Rule Home is operated at a loss and the office, which includes the editorial work, has very little income outside of contributions. This is where we fall behind and will continue so until the profits from our industrial efforts will be sufficient to meet all demands.

F. A. S.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

WORSHIP IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

IT IS not easy to conduct a helpful service of worship in the Sunday school, but it is important, fully as important as instruction, and the superintendent is the one mainly responsible for it. If he, with the help of the pastor, will plan as carefully to lead in worship as the teachers study and plan to teach, he will render a good service to the entire school.

Talk over these plans at the Sunday school workers' conference and enlist the cooperation of every officer and teacher. For example, have the assistant superintendent act as head usher, with as many helpers as he needs to keep late comers from disturbing the program of worship. Be sure that the secretary, treasurer, and other officers drop their other duties for the time and that no one is moving about the room during the service. Help every teacher to lead his class to enter into the spirit of worship. During the church service, we lay aside other things in order to unite in worship. Why not in Sunday school?

If all the school, or those above twelve years, meet together for the opening service of worship, adapt the songs, Scripture-reading, and prayers to the twelve-to-fourteen-year-old pupils. If the service appeals to them, it is almost sure to appeal to the older members of the school. Get expressions from the teen-age classes as to the hymns, responsive readings, prayers, and talks they like best.

When little or no time and care are given to the preparation of a service of worship, the result is disorder, confusion, and general lack of interest on the part of the pupils, and a sense of weakness and shame on the part of the leaders.

When the service of worship is brief, not over fifteen minutes, and well-adapted to those who are most difficult to control; when every part of the room is provided with helpers to keep order and to secure united attention, it becomes a joy and satisfaction to the leaders, and an inspiration and help to the pupils.—Selected.

“God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; . . . that no flesh should glory in his presence.”—1 Corinthians 1:27-29.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIOAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word “Soul”, 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c. God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.

The First Resurrection, 100 for $2:50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.

A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate: Each

Robison vs. Conner $.05

Earlier Life-Truth Exponents .15

Will It Pay to Become a Christian? .25

The Visitor, 212 pages .50

The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages

Illustrated. Suitable for Gift. .90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,

Oregon, Illinois

L. E. Conner, 1st Vice-pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.

Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.

L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois.

F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the “restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began”, Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

THE PRACTICE OF CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

BY DAISY NOKES

GOD HAS given us so many things and been so good to us that we should be ready to do our best for Him each moment of the day, not just on Sunday, but on every day in the week. Whatever we do, wherever we are, we should strive to please Jesus; then some day He will say to us, "Well done". He gave us hearts to love Him, eyes for studying the Bible, ears for hearing the troubles of others, hands for helping, feet for carrying us to places where we would not be ashamed to have Jesus find us. Can you think of other ways in which you can work for Jesus?

Jesus tells a story about a man going away for a time into a far country. He called three servants to him and told them that they were to take care of his things while he was away. To one of the servants he gave five piles of money, as he knew a lot about money making. To another he gave two piles of money. To the third, the master gave one pile of money. He told each of them to make the money earn more piles while he was away.

The first servant was ready and quick to please the master, and he worked hard and made five more piles of money, so that now he had ten piles of money to give to his master when he returned.

The second servant went to work and did his very best work for his master. He made two more piles of money, so that he had four piles to give back.

Now comes the sad part of the story about the third servant. He was very selfish and lazy. He did not have a loving heart like the others, that wanted to please the master. He could have tried, at least, and the master would have been pleased. This lazy and selfish man dug a hole in the field and buried the money out of sight where it could not do anybody good.

When the master came home, he called his three servants to him. The first two told how they had worked and what they had made. The master was so pleased that he said, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things." These two must have felt very happy to receive such a reward for their work.

The third servant brought the one pile of money and began to say unkind things to the master. That was very unkind, for the master had been good to trust him with the money at all; but bad people are always ready to accuse good people of being bad too.

The good master was not pleased with this servant and told him that he should have put the money in the bank where others could have used it. The master took the money and gave it to the one who had ten piles of money, because he would work so hard to use it. The bad servant was shut out of the house where the others were having such a happy time.

THE FIRST MAN AND THE FIRST WOMAN

BY MRS. VERNA C. THAYER

Memorize Genesis 2:7

THE FIRST man was Adam. Do you know how God made him? He made the first man out of the dust of the ground. No doubt he must have looked much like a statue when he was first made. He had arms, but they could not move; legs, but he could not walk; eyes, but he could not see; a heart, but it was not beating. Then God breathed into his nostrils, or nose, the breath of life, and what do you think happened? This man Adam was alive. He could move, see, hear, and think the same as you and I.

But Adam must have a home. So God planted a garden and placed Adam in this garden to live. It was called the Garden of Eden. It must have been a very, very beautiful place. Every tree that was beautiful to look at, or that had fruit that was good to eat was placed in the garden. Two trees especially were there, the tree of life, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

Through the garden ran a sparkling river, which divided into four parts as it reached the outer edge of the garden.

God placed Adam in this garden and told him to care for it. God said, "For food, you may eat freely of every tree, but one. Do not eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. If you do you shall die."

Adam named all the animals, the birds, and all living creatures that God made. But Adam must have been lonely, for he had no one to help him or to talk to him. God decided that He did not want Adam to live alone in the garden. He said, "I will make an helpmeet for him." He caused Adam to fall into a deep sleep, then He took a rib from his side, and formed a woman out of it. Her name was Eve.

Then the two, Adam and Eve, lived together in the Garden of Eden. But one day the serpent, or snake, came to Eve and said, "Did God tell you not to eat fruit from some of the trees in this garden?" Eve said, "He told us we could eat of every tree that was in the garden, but one, the tree of knowledge of good and evil. If we eat of that tree we shall die." "Oh, no, you will not die," said the serpent, "you'll just be much wiser if you'll eat of it. You'll know all about good and evil things, and be wise as gods." Poor Eve! She believed the lie the wicked serpent told her, and took some of the fruit and ate it and gave some to Adam and he ate also. They did not need to wear any clothes before this, but now they felt ashamed and made them clothes of fig leaves.

In the cool of the day, God came walking through the garden. He did not see Adam and Eve, for they were so ashamed that they hid themselves. God called, "Adam, where are you?" Adam said, "I was afraid, so I hid; for I was naked." God said, "Who told you that you were naked? Have you eaten of the tree that I told you not to eat of?" "Eve gave me some of the fruit and I ate it," said Adam. "The serpent deceived me and I ate of it," said Eve. God said to the serpent, "For this, I will make you go upon your belly all the rest of your days, and you shall be cursed above every animal." God said to Adam, "I am going to cause thorns and thistles to grow in the ground, and you will have to work to make your living."

So God drove Adam and Eve out of the beautiful garden, and placed a flaming sword that turned in every direction to keep them out of the garden. Don't you imagine they were very, very sorry because they had disobeyed God?

HAVE WE A LIGHT IN OUR DWELLING?

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

AND the Lord said unto Moses, stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even a darkness that can be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven, and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days: they saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days. But the children of Israel had light in their houses.

We are told in the scriptures that what happened during bondage of the children of Israel, and then during their wilderness journey was written for our instruction.

What lesson can we find in this? To me, the thick darkness over Egypt corresponds to the times that are approaching the world. Even now we are in the twilight of that thick darkness. Darkness covers the earth and gross darkness the people. Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after the things that are coming on the earth. In many things they, the world, admit their complete failure. There were never more frequent disasters than in the last twelve months—cyclones, tidal waves, mine disasters, storms on land and sea, with terrible loss of life; business failures, bank failures, everything getting pretty dark. Crimes of every kind are on the increase.

Joel 1:16—Alas for the day of the Lord is at hand, and as a distinction from the Almighty shall it come. Joel 2:1, 2—Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm, in my holy mountain let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the Lord cometh; for it is nigh at hand. A day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness. Ask yourselves the question, Is this prophecy beginning to be fulfilled? If so, "Is there a light in your house"? Our lesson says, "There was a light in all the dwellings of the Israelites." Do we, who also claim to be God's chosen people, have a light in our dwellings? Can the beacon light be seen through the darkness, telling to the world that we are God's children? "Ye are the light of the world." Let your light shine. Let us not put it under a bushel, but let it shine, that others may see our good works, and glorify our Father which is in heaven.

I can imagine when those three dark days fell upon the land of Egypt, so very dark they could not see one another, that from their (Israel's) dwelling places, twinkling here and there in the darkness, they could see the light in the dwelling of the Israelites, and know God was with them. It will be a serious thing for us if we have not a light in our dwelling, the light of the glorious gospel; for we are admonished to let our light shine even more and more unto the perfect day. If we who ever have had the light and let it grow dim and finally go out, which it will do unless we keep it supplied with the oil of constant service, we are trampling the word of God under foot and counting the blood of the covenant wherewith we have been sealed an unholy thing. For such there remaineth no more a sacrifice for sin, but a fearful looking forward to judgment. If we want to escape this, let us arise from our slumbering attitude, trim our lamps, and get ready, peradventure He will hide us in the day of His wrath.

"Hypocrisy is the legitimate offspring of pride and vanity."—Haney.

A CHRISTIAN'S BODY

GOD MADE our bodies, they belong to Him, and we should use them in such ways that righteousness shall be promoted, that God shall be pleased, and that spiritual interests shall be served.

The Christian should never despise his body, but he should seek to develop it for health and efficiency. There have been those who, in the name of religion, have subjected the body to indignities and torture. Others have ignored the body and have even declared that it has no real existence. Some have even refused to bathe the body on account of fancied religious scruples. All this would have seemed strange to Jesus and His disciples.

Anything that hinders the efficiency of the body is unchristian and sinful. To neglect to care for the body externally, or to take anything into the body that is harmful, is unworthy of a follower of Christ. It is a Christian's duty to always keep the body as healthy, as capable, and as attractive as possible. No Christian has a right to say, "I do not care how I look."—Selected.

JESUS TAUGHT RESPECT FOR LAW

BY KATIE DAVIS

JESUS told the Pharisees to render unto Cæsar the things that were Cæsar's and unto God the things that were God's. He knew their evil hearts; He knew they did not respect law as they should. Jesus may not have had sympathy with Roman law, but He taught the people to respect the law as long as it did not cause them to sin against or usurp that which belongs to God. I believe church and state should be separate. The church should not meddle in affairs of the state, but do the work God intended it to do,—the teaching of His word and things pertaining unto salvation and the kingdom of God. He told the disciples, "My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight". Put up thy sword. The church should not fight with carnal weapons, but with the "sword of the Spirit", putting on the whole armor of God against the wiles of Satan. A good soldier is not without his armor.

In Mexico the Roman Catholics are at war with the government. President Calles says that all obey the law but Roman Catholics. He deported priests because of their meddling in politics. They respect no law but the Pope's law. I think he is justified in the stand he has taken to free Mexico from the slavery of Catholicism. The history of the dark ages when the Papacy and the Roman government were combined shows that no freedom exists where they rule.

Daniel, the prophet, tells of the rule and downfall of all earthly kingdoms, and of the kingdom of God, not made with hands to break in pieces all other kingdoms. And God's kingdom shall stand forever. Jesus also tells of the time of trouble. When we see these things coming to pass we know the end is near, and the final victory of the church, when her redemption is complete.

We must respect the laws of our country as long as they do not force us to break the divine law. Should a government arise that would force us to worship what God forbids, we would have to refuse or accept the mark of the beast. God's true people in ages past gave up their lives rather than receive his mark. The shining light of the prophecy stood forth to guide them, and it shines to-day, as in a dark place, as a light to those who know and love their God and keep His word. Be not deceived, is Paul's injunction, he that endureth to the end shall be saved, and they that turn others to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever in God's kingdom. The Lord is our hope; in Him is our strength. His grace is sufficient for us if we trust in Him, and believe His word, and keep His commandments. Paul said we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers of darkness, those in authority. We know all things will be fulfilled, and perilous times will come, and men's hearts will fail them, looking after the things coming on the earth.

Let the words of Paul comfort our hearts, and stablish us in every good work unto the coming of the Lord. Blessed are those whom the Lord shall find watching.

Walk in the light of the truth that you fail not, lest He cometh unawares. Let your lights be burning. Be not overcome with the snares of the world, but be ready for the Master when He comes. Pray for one another, encourage one another, and do not forget the Golden Rule: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise"; for if a man says he loves God and hates his brother, he is a liar, and no liars, or anything unclean, can enter into God's holy kingdom. Amen. Even so come Lord Jesus.

ABOUT PROBATION

BY J. R. NORRIE

(Continued from last week)

JOHN 1:9

THAT was the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." This verse suffers much at the hands of Probationists, or believers in the "Fair Chance" theory, as it has been called. The Greek text is ambiguous, according to the Cambridge Bible for Schools and Colleges, and other authorities. It has been variously rendered by different commentators. The phrase "that cometh" may refer either to the light or to the man. The true way to get the right meaning is to compare with other scriptures, and construe it in harmony with their general sense. It is argued that here "God" has promised to enlighten every member of the human race, and that He is, therefore, now under an obligation to keep His promise. This is quite a mistake, and a wrong interpretation of the passage. There is no promise in it, but a simple statement of the result of Christ's coming into the world. It is admitted He did not enlighten "every man" who came into the world at that time. The Pharisees and others heard but rejected His message. Our Lord said to them: "Ye will not come to me that ye might have life", John 5:40. Here, then, is one class which, on the Probationist's own showing, will never be enlightened; for those Jews had an opportunity of hearing and accepting the gospel but rejected it, thus destroying their chance of hearing it after resurrection.

Common sense and a little reflection show that the future probation view is really an impossible one. Christ knew from the beginning that He and His message would not be accepted by the great mass of the people, yet He went on with His message, thus knowingly destroying the chance of thousands obtaining an opportunity of hearing it in the Millennial age under conditions more favorable for its reception. This extreme and unsupported sense of John 1:9 is untenable because of other passages such as John 5:28; Acts 24:15; 1 Cor. 15:22-23, which are silent about probation, while dealing plainly with resurrection.

The expression "every man" in this passage is also improperly applied. It can mean only those who are willing to receive enlightenment. Christ is not willing that any should perish, but no one is compelled to receive the gospel, or to enter His kingdom. Paul told the Colossians, 1:23, that they heard the gospel "which was preached to every creature which is under heaven." Surely "every creature" is as comprehensive as "every man". Either every person was enlightened in the apostolic age or he was not. If he was enlightened, he had no need for a future opportunity. If he was not enlightened, then he had rejected the light which had been brought to him, and had forfeited any claim to a future chance. Either way future probation is found to be a fallacy, and we are thrown back on our common sense to see that the provision is ample, suitable and available for all, but every one does not accept of it. To use a simple illustration, it is just as if we were to say, "The London Parks are provided and sufficient for all, but all do not use them."

One mistake into which probationists fall is in giving an absolute and unlimited sense to the word "all" when it occurs in this controversy. A little examination of the New Testament usage shows that it is often employed in a narrow and limited sense. Here are a few out of many examples:—

Matt. 3:5 and 10:22.—"Then went out to him all Judea and all the region round about Jordan." "Ye shall be hated of all men."

Mark 1:37 and 5:20.—"All men seek for thee." "All men did marvel."

John 3:26; 4:39.—"All men come to him." "He told me all that ever I did."

See also Acts 4:21; 17:31; 19:19; 22:15.

1 Cor. 10:33.—"I please all men in all things."

Heb. 12:14.—"Follow peace with all men."

Thus a good many extraordinary and incredible things could be proved by adopting an irrational system of interpretation which only leads to confusion and absurdity.

(Concluded next week)

CHRISTIANS REACH THE HOLY TOWN

PARTICIPATE IN CHRISTMAS EVE SERVICES

THOUSANDS of Christians," says a daily despatch, "of all sects, were converging in Bethlehem to-day to participate in the Christmas eve services in the Church of the Nativity which is built over the stable in which Jesus Christ was born, 1926 years ago this month. It is estimated that about 4,000 visitors would be present for the Christmas observance, which is vastly different there from that in the countries where St. Nick and his toy-filled pack is the major figure. Green Christmas trees are unknown there. Instead of the exchange of presents, there will be rejoicing and singing of carols. The ceremony of singing, praying and worshiping will continue through Christmas eve until noon, Christmas day.

"Many pilgrims who already have arrived believe that Jesus Christ is coming on earth a second time and that His return is rapidly approaching. Jesus is again coming to the world, an old Arab merchant told the United Press, but this time He will not be born in a stable and laid in a manger. He will come as a King, a great King. All unrighteous people will perish, but those who have lived according to their light will be saved. All nations will bow to Him and accept Him as their Lord. The same belief prevails among many Christians throughout Palestine. They said Jesus would return soon and that henceforth the world would live in peace and brotherhood."

"This mode and method is in harmony with the belief of the Church of God, in Holbrook (Nebraska)."

"S. W. HARLAN."

REVELATION TWELVE

BY A. W. TAYLOR

I HAVE read with interest the daily readings on Revelation in The Herald. May I offer a few thoughts:

I do not expect I understand all that is written in this book; but if we take the explanations in the first chapter, it must help us to understand other symbols and what follows.

The first chapter, verse 20, tells us the stars are the messengers of the seven churches, the candlesticks are the churches. In the 12th chapter, the woman crowned with twelve stars and clothed with the sun is the true church. The twelve stars are the twelve apostles; the sun with which she is clothed is the gospel new covenant; the moon, the old covenant under her feet. The Dragon, pagan Rome; the man child was Constantine the Great. She travails and brings forth a man child. Forty prophetic weeks, 280 days symbolic of years from A. D. 33, Christ's resurrection, brings us to A. D. 313, when Constantine the Great accepted the Christian faith and issued his famous edict granting civil and religious liberty to Christians, and deposed—cast down—from civil office and power all pagans. They, the Christians, overcame pagan Rome by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony. They loved not their lives unto death. Over the gate of his palace Constantine had a picture of himself with his foot upon the Dragon which was thrust through with a dart and being thrown into the sea, or bottomless pit, if you like. The church was nourished from the face of this Dragon for 1260 symbolic days or years. From the Justinian edict to bring all into one Catholic faith upon pain of death in 532-533, 1260 years brings us to 1792-1793, the French revolution, when paganism came to the front, as it then did, and now is deceiving, if possible, the very elect in modernism and evolutionary unbelief.

Bishop Newton's Dissertations on the Prophecies gives the foregoing views in part on Revelation 12.

While the church was in the wilderness of Papal Roman supremacy, the two witnesses—the word of God and the church—were in sackcloth mourning during the same time, but at its close they were slain, as was done at and in the French revolution when the Pagan beast from the bottomless pit slew or killed them. After three and a half years they came to life, and the word of God and the Protestant church were caught up to the symbolic throne of God. Bibles given to the church and world from then on to the present.

Amen and amen.

SEARCH FOR ARK OF THE COVENANT

The following, dated, Jerusalem, Palestine, January 7, is of interest to all lovers of Bible truth, whether or not Nebo be the proper place to search for the Ark hidden by Jeremiah at the time of the overthrow of Jerusalem. The article, probably a United Press despatch, reads:

Search for the ark of the covenant, the most sacred thing in the worship of ancient Judaism, soon will begin in Mount Nebo, where, with history records, the ark was hidden in the sixth century, B. C., by the prophet, Jeremiah.

A. J. Futterer, president of the American-Jerusalem Bible Institute, of Los Angeles, has arrived here to make the search. Futterer is one of those who believes that many of the ancient prophecies of the Bible are on the eve of fulfillment. It was because of his belief that he came here from California to search for the relic of Judaism.

The ark of the covenant was precious and sacred because it contained the tables of law given to Moses by God on Mount Sinai. Just prior to the Babylonian captivity, Jeremiah hid the ark in a cave on Mount Nebo. Thereafter there is no record of the ark having been found, but according to a prophecy in the apocryphal work of Maccabees, the ark will be found in Mount Nebo at the time when the Jews are gathered again in Palestine.

Since the war and the resultant encouragement of Jews to return to the Holy Land there has been a remarkable movement of the Jews toward their old home. Futterer said he was confident that the present situation fulfills or soon will fulfill the conditions of the prophecy.

After working a survey of Mount Nebo, Futterer applied to the Trans-jordania department of antiques for a lease on Mount Nebo. As soon as he gets it, Futterer said he would begin the search.

NEWSPAPER POLL ON BELIEF IN GOD

AMERICAN churches are to use daily newspapers to find out how many persons in this country believe in God.

The question, "Do you believe in God?" and eleven others will make up a questionnaire to be submitted to newspaper readers all over the country by the church advertising department of the International Advertising Association.

THE QUESTIONS

The Questionnaire will ask:

Do you believe in God?

Do you believe in immortality?

Do you believe in prayer as a means of personal relationship with God?

Do you believe that Jesus was divine as no other man was divine?

Do you regard the Bible as inspired in a sense that no other literature could be said to be inspired?

Are you an active member of any church?

Do you regularly attend any religious services?

Would you be willing to have your family grow up in a community in which there is no church?

Do you regularly have "family worship" in your home?

Were you brought up in a religious home?

Do you send your children to any school of religious instruction?

Do you think religion in some form is a necessary element of life for the individual and the community?

ASKS PAPERS TO PUBLISH TOTALS

Newspapers are to be asked to print these questions daily and publish daily totals of the religious poll. Names of those answering will not be published.

Charles Stelzle, publicity counsellor for the church advertising department, said the facts developed by the poll "will, no doubt, be startling to large numbers of church leaders whose opinions concerning the state of mind on religion have been based upon a comparatively limited personal acquaintance, mainly with those sharing their opinions.

"Nobody is in a position to secure this data quite as well as the newspapers. They will make a unique contribution to the religious life of the nation by giving the country the information thus obtained. The non-sectarian nature of the questions will permit everybody to participate."

Prominent ministers all over America are connected with the campaign.

—Selected by G. M. Birkey.

"ABOVE ALL we need to remember that, within the limits of our plasticity, the law of habit is always sure to act. It does not concern itself primarily with great moral issues, but with the ordinary things which we are apt to deem trivial. And it has no exceptions. There is only one safe rule to follow: Refrain entirely from actions you do not wish to become habitual. Keep absolutely apart, both in mind and in life, the things you want kept apart. There is no moment of life too valueless, no action or attitude or thought too insignificant for habit to take account of and fasten upon us."—Luther A. Weigle, in "The Pupil".

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 1, 1927

NUMBER 18

THE BOOK NOBODY KNOWS

By G. E. Marsh

MANY more copies of the Sacred Volume have been printed and distributed throughout the world than of any other book that was ever produced. It has been translated into more languages, it has been made available to more people, than any other book. Yet it remains to-day, as a popular author has recently declared, "The Book Nobody Knows!"

The reason for this peculiar lack of knowledge concerning the Bible is two-fold. First, it is the Word of God, a revelation of the divine mind and purposes, and therefore transcends the limits of carnal, human comprehension. Jesus declared that "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."—John 4:24. For "the natural (margin, unspiritual) man receiveth not the things of God: for they are foolishness unto him; and he cannot know them, because they are spiritually judged (or, examined)."—1 Cor. 2:14. "The mind of the flesh is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be."—Rom. 8:7.

The reason why the Bible is "the Book nobody knows" is because the world in general is unspiritual, and the truths of the inspired Volume must be spiritually discerned. The Father makes the difficulty plain in Isaiah 55:8, 9: "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith Jehovah. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts."

This is undoubtedly the chief reason why millions of people who possess the Bible neither understand nor appreciate it. It is impossible for them to do so. Their understandings are darkened by their carnal lusts and passions.

Let us not err, however, regarding this matter! There are portions of the Bible—very large and important portions indeed—which even the man who is "dead in trespasses and sins" can understand. These portions of the Scriptures are addressed to such people, they are intended for such people. Certain parts were written that the minds of worldly men might be aroused by them. These truths contain the "good seed of the kingdom", which, when planted in the hearts of sinful men, spring up into the new life of the Spirit, transforming the unspiritual man into a "new creature in Christ". When this miracle is accomplished, the one to whom the things of God were "foolishness" is brought to see the beauty and to feel the power of God's marvelous truth! In a general way, however, the Bible is still a closed Book to many who possess it, and even to a majority of those who read.

The second reason why the Bible remains "the Book nobody knows" is because its truth is inexhaustible. Regardless of how long or how faithfully he may search its pages, the devoted student finds that its message continues to be both refreshing and new. The longer he "seeks for wisdom and the reason of things" within this

The Daily Walk

*Help us to walk through troubled seas,
As Israel did of old;
May Thy strong arm and loving care
Our faltering steps uphold.*

*The clouds behind, the light before,
Thy Mercy Seat between,
May these our guidance ever be
Throughout this earthly scene.*

*May we hold out a helping hand
To all who pass our way
Until they see the light of Truth
Clear as the shining day.*

*Through that dark hour which all must pass
May we e'er feel Thy hand,
As we journey on through this Wilderness
'Til we enter the Holy Land.*

—M. A. Monk.

limpid Lake of Truth, the more fully he realizes his own inability to plumb its depths! He may make the Bible "the man of his counsel", his constant companion and guide throughout the journey of life, yet will he never grow weary of that close association nor tire of the communion he so much enjoyed at the start.

In a measure the inexhaustibleness of the Bible lies in this: Its truth is adaptable to all times, to all conditions, to all men. There is much within its pages which was closed to the understanding of our fathers, but which has been made eloquently clear to us by the revealing light of recent events. No doubt there are many other passages uninterpreted and uninterpretable to-day, which the recording finger of Time will point out plainly to other men of later days. And when at last, in the fullness of God's appointed time, the promises of faith are fully realized and the hopes of the world are obtained, and "all men shall know the Lord from the least to the greatest of them", then, perhaps, I do not know, the Bible will cease to be "the Book nobody knows", and come to reflect in the minds and hearts of all mankind, with effulgent clarity, the glory, the wisdom, and the boundless love of Jehovah of hosts!

In the eyes of the law (in U. S.) a person is considered innocent until proven guilty, regardless of indictments: but in the eyes of the world every person is dealt with as though he were a rogue until innocence is proven. Such is the pass that SELFISHNESS has obtained.—Samuel E. Haney.

THE MATCHLESS MAN OF NAZARETH

WE may search the lists of all creative geniuses, and we shall find nowhere a human mind that could have originated the Christ of the four Gospels. History abounds in illustrious names, names representing all great fields of human achievement. Cæsar and Napoleon in war, Demosthenes and Cicero in oratory, Plato and Shakespeare in philosophy and mastery of human psychology, Homer, Dante, and Milton as creators of immortal epics, not to mention unnumbered others in diverse and distinctive achievements, are overtopping names in the galaxies of genius. In all history we can find names of no higher creative power.

Yet to none of them can we ascribe genius equal to the creation of the historic Christ. What is more, and in itself vastly significant, the discerning judgment of civilization does not give to one nor to all of these characters together any such moral homage as it pays to the Man of Nazareth. Charles Lamb has somewhere fittingly suggested this contrast.

If the historic immortals, including Homer, Socrates, and Shakespeare, could appear before a congress of the world's intellects that body would unanimously rise to its feet in expression of its homage. But if Jesus Christ were to be ushered before such an assembly its members would fall upon their faces before Him.—Selected.

CHOOSE . . . WHOM YE WILL SERVE

By Heber G. Bayliss

JOSHUA 24:15

IT MAY seem superfluous to many to suggest such a topic as we have selected for a lesson, but there are times in our lives when it seems necessary that we again decide or redetermine that we will serve no other god than the one true God and His dear Son.

When Joshua placed this question before the people whom he had been leading, it was not because they had just become acquainted with Jehovah God, and that their leader was desirous of having them make a choice between Jehovah God and the gods of the people whose land they had just acquired. On the contrary, the children of Israel, and their forefathers before them, had been serving the true God for many years, and during the previous half-century had experienced many remarkable manifestations of the superiority of Jehovah God over all the other gods of the nations.

Why, then, the question?

It was because of the existence then of the same weaknesses of human nature as we are beset with now, a tendency to become neglectful under conditions of peace and prosperity. The Jewish people were about to settle down into the land in quiet, and Joshua knew then, as we know now, that if ever there is a hazardous time, it is when our enemies have left us in peace, and we are enjoying prosperity and abundance.

Let us take heed, who think that we stand, lest we fall. We are enjoying at present a quiet and undisturbed possession of all of God's blessings, with very little outward difficulty or persecution. Someone might ask, do you mean to infer that we could ever go so far as to divert our affections from the true God to the worship of idols? No, not in the sense of worshiping literal idols, or false gods, such as the heathen nations of Joshua's day worshiped, and such as even certain people of our own day bow themselves unto. We do not believe that our danger lies so much in that direction as it lies in the fact that there are many influences in these days which may easily detract from our whole-hearted service of our loving Savior, and cause us to more or less bow ourselves down to things which are not worthy of our homage any more than if they were idols of wood or stone. We find many Christian people to-day thinking far too much of such things as money, fame, pleasure, automobiles, ease, and luxury. It is not that these things are sinful in themselves; it is because of our tendency to devote unto them much more than a fair share of our time and consideration. There are some of whom we might say that they have all the marks of sincere Christians, yet how often do they have to stand on guard, and choose whom they will serve, the decision being between service to God and service to self!

It is very easy to think lofty thoughts, and possibly even to talk about them, but unless we see to it that our brother is warmed and filled, or ministered unto in any one of the many ways in which it is possible for us to minister unto him, how little will our lofty thoughts profit us! The person who waits to render some spectacular service to the Lord, or to do some great thing, will never find the opportunity of doing it, because all the worthwhile things of life consist of the accumulated total of little things well done. Have we ever stopped to think that there is nothing that the Lord directly requires at our hand? The cattle upon a thousand hills are His. All the silver and the gold are His. So things done in His name must be the little things which each of His children requires, and in the doing of which we are credited with having done them unto Him.

Another error which perhaps many of the Lord's followers fall into is that of self-effacement. Humbleness is spoken of as a virtue, and it is perhaps needful that we be careful not to think of ourselves too highly. I believe, however, that many good things are left undone because of the belief held by some that they have not the ability to do this or that work. They make comparisons of their own accomplishments with those of others who seem able to do better, and conclude that they have not the necessary ability to succeed. While it is a discreet person who is willing to acknowledge his own limitations, yet God has so arranged things that there are many ways in which service can be rendered. We must be watchful lest we find that we are making excuses for laziness, or love of ease, or other similar considerations which prompt us to claim that we cannot do things because of lack of ability. It might not be amiss here to remind ourselves of the word of the Lord to Zerubbabel, in Zechariah 4:6, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

Getting back to our text again, after Joshua had recommended them to make a choice of whom they would serve, which choice carried with it the thought of continued service to whichever god they chose, he tells them of his own decision: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

These words of Joshua's were not merely some lofty utterance of the moment, soon to be forgotten. They were words of heartfelt conviction, the result of a long lifetime of experience of good things from the hand of the Lord. Many years prior to this, at a time when Joshua was about forty or forty-five years of age, and in the prime of life, you will recall how he and Caleb stood out against the other ten spies who brought back an evil report of the land of Canaan, and made the hearts of the people faint. In later times, when reference was made to this matter by Caleb, he reminded Joshua of the Lord's promise to them because he wholly followed the Lord. This is evidence that their confidence in Jehovah God was strong at that time, and no doubt had greatly increased as a result of their years of experience. All of this reminds us that if we are to gain our Lord's approval it will be after years of experience and demonstration of our desire to serve and obey Him at all times. As the Apostle said, "Be instant in season and out of season."

I hope that these few words, expressed at this time, may be the means of stirring up any lagging spirit, and that we may all concur in Joshua's choice as to whom we shall serve in the days that lie before us. If our service be rendered faithfully in the little matters as they come to us, then we can rest assured that in the Lord's good time we shall hear those gracious words, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."—The Kingdom Scribe.

THE TRINITY QUESTION

BY R. H. JUDD

TO the Editor of The Globe: Would you kindly allow me a few words in response to Mr. Oliver's letter in your issue of December 22? Surely such a doctrine of the nature of the doctrine of the Trinity as expounded by the Churches, and the creeds of men, as, for instance, the Athanasian Creed, requires some very strong Bible proof to sustain it—proof that is both definite and conclusive, for no man except in loyalty to what he honestly believes to be the Word of God could possibly accept it in harmony with his God-given reason.

But does the Bible teach us there is one God, or does it teach us there are three Gods? There can be no compromise between two such questions. I maintain, as a Bible student of many years, and as one who was brought up to believe in the doctrine of the Trinity, that when Scripture is accepted in its clear and emphatic statement it does not teach the doctrine of the Trinity, but, on the other hand, it denies it. The numerous passages such as Isaiah 45:5-6, which were written for the express purpose "that we may know," cannot possibly bear more than one meaning. They necessarily mean what they state, namely, that "God is one," and they further emphasize it by adding, "and there is none else."

Such passages as Matt. 28:19, and others referred to by your correspondent, only teach the Trinity by implication, and even then the implication is capable of being disproved, and these passages can be brought into harmony with Isaiah 45:5-6, whereas passages such as Isaiah 45:5-6 cannot be made to teach the Trinity. Will Mr. Oliver quote one passage from Scripture which emphatically teaches three personal Gods—"God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit"? Scores of passages can be brought forward to maintain the teaching that "God is one," and "there is none other but He." Moreover, the doctrine, "I am God and there is none else, there is no God beside Me", can be expressed in Bible language, and can be brought into harmony with every other Scripture, but those who maintain the doctrine of the Trinity are obliged to obtain their results by implication and inference and by using language that cannot be found in Scripture; in fact, language to express it has to be coined, which is ample proof that it cannot be a Bible doctrine.—Selected for The Herald by Author.

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

By Lyman Booth

(Continued from last week)

ALL of his life Paul had been gravitating toward Rome. He had never seen the great city of his citizenship; but now, after many years, "obedient to the heavenly vision", he finds himself drawn toward it by an irresistible attraction. He must have been at his best both mentally and spiritually when, about the year A. D. 54, He "purposed in the spirit . . . saying, . . . I must also see Rome." Acts 19:21. In that very year there ascended to the throne of Rome the incarnate son of Paganism, and began the reign of Nero Cæsar. Was this apostle ascending a higher throne to oppose him? Paul said, "I must go to Rome." The mighty hand that made the world laid upon him the necessity of going, and he could not, like Jonah, turn aside. In his letter to the Romans, he wrote, "I am ready (literally eager) to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome." After his terrible experience at Jerusalem, "the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul; for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome."—Acts 23:11.

Finally, in the coast town of Cæsarea, the psychological moment came. He had been imprisoned for two years. Three times he had made his defense and as many times, returned to prison under some apparent, legal excuse. His commission from Christ commanded him to preach the gospel at Rome. When brought before the provincial judge, he cried, "I appeal unto Cæsar." This was a privilege of Roman law; but how many Christians on earth, in like circumstances, at such an hour, would have braved the Juvenal's horror and John's Black Babylon. Nero's fiery and bloody Rome? Well he knew that if he went to Rome, his Ephesian brethren would never see his face again in this life.

Although the twelve remained at Jerusalem or visited the nearby cities and towns of Abyssinia, Arabia and those along the Euphrates, Paul struck for the great strategic centers, "where stood in posing grandeur the citadels of Diana and Jupiter," and attempted the overthrow of all the idol gods of the Pantheon.

The whisper of the angel during the storm was most significant in this connection. He said to Paul, "Fear not, thou must be brought to Caesar." The sea was boisterous, the waves ran high, the Euroclydon was shrieking and tearing away the sails and masts, the ship was falling to pieces, and all on board were in despair. Every soul might have been lost in that plunging main. Paul was on his way to Rome. He had to reach his appointed destination. Below the deck all cargo, (grain), traffic was to be lost, hopes involved in that voyage were to be lost; but there was a vital consideration. To have suffered Paul to drown would have been a greater loss than a ship of Alexandria with its cargo.

There is an ancient epic which represents God as the poet and humanity as the hero. Every student of history should recognize divine influence in the growth of Rome's power, as preparing the way for the spread of Christianity. God had been dealing in Palestine with His chosen people Israel, revealing His will through great and momentous events, fine personalities; manifesting Himself "by particular interventions and fixed laws, by visions; and perpetuating the memory of these heavenly scenes in social ordinances, in religious rites and literary compositions. So in Italy He had been raising up another people and making them strong, to wisely organize, and skillfully to build and clear away the national boundaries of antiquity, and bind the many nations together by bonds of common law and language; and also building those interminable white roads on which the "feet of Christ's chosen messengers should be swift and beautiful." Within the last few years scholars and thinkers have been clearing away the rubbish of antiquity and making clear to our minds how great a part was played in carrying out that providential purpose by this holy and devout man—our Lord's chosen vessel.

This vast empire extended, at this time, from the Atlantic Ocean on the west to the Euphrates on the east, and from Scotland on the north to the wild cataracts of the Nile on the south. All former great empires had crumbled and become subordinate provinces of Rome. Italy, Greece, Egypt, Asia Minor, Gaul, Britain, and parts of Germany, all were under the iron heel of Rome.

Julius Caesar, whose personal power was so well balanced and controlled, "who with equal ease could polish an epigram, or organize an empire," "whose Imperial idea of which he was the first embodiment," had proved the central force of European political history. This mighty Julius did "bestride the narrow world like a Colossus." But the stride, however, was far too great for those who came after him. Such a giddy elevation turned the heads of his successors, and led to disaster. A freak of ill-temper became the curse of the imperial family. Tiberius, Caligula and Nero were all maniacs, and not many of their kin were sane. No family of men has yet been developed with faculties commensurate with this expansion of power. Since the death of Augustus Caesar (whose seal was a sphinx) there appeared but one single man with thought and ambitions great enough to match the power of the Caesars. In Paul, the apostle of the Gentiles, God had raised up a man, and made him big enough to discern and use the glorious missionary opportunities of the vast Roman Empire.

The twelve might remain at or near Jerusalem to the end of their days, the Caesars might fail to "follow the cloud," but God had the right man, in the right place, and at the right time to carry forward his "eternal purpose". Although from the beginning of his missionary labors Paul had availed himself of the Roman provincial organization, he adapted himself to it or rather constrained it to serve his purpose. When the Jews attacked him he said, "I am a Roman citizen," and when the Romans sought to attack him he said, "I am a free-born Roman citizen." His deliberate purpose was to claim the whole world for Jesus Christ, all the world which Rome had brought into the unity of a common government. There fore we see him stationed at the heart of that magnificent world-wide empire, from which went forth the vital current of universal citizenship.

(Continued next week)

BLESSED ARE THE MEEK

By Samuel E. Haney

"Happy the poor (in spirit) for their's is the kingdom of the heavens. . . . Happy the meek; because they will possess the land. . . . Happy the persecuted on account of righteousness; for their's is the kingdom of the heavens."—Matthew 5:3, 5, 10, Emphatic Diaglott.

ONLY three sentences are being referred to at this time. The greatest sermon ever preached is that of Christ's recorded in Matthew five. Beginning with the third verse and ending with the eleventh, we find the first word of these nine sentences to begin with "blessed" in the A. V., R. V., and Weymouth, while the word "happy" appears in Rotherham and the Emphatic Diaglott.

According to Funk and Wagnalls these words are interchangeable, i. e., Blessed—to bring happiness; Happy—blessed, blissful. With the writer it is glorious to be blissfully happy; and many years of experience, both as a part of the world, and apart from the world, has taught him that this old crooked world, with all its gaudy trappings, much of which verge to the bestial, salacious, knows nothing of heavenly blithesome happiness. For this world's happiness is meagerly interspersed among mental and physical agony—people pay well for the pleasure they get from the devil: "The wine of the wrath of her fornication" always has an unpleasant afterclap.

"Happy the poor—in spirit". Elsewhere Jesus emphasizes the point, "And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted (turned, R. V.), and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whoso shall receive one such little one in my name receiveth me. But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea".—Matt. 18:2-6. Such love and guardianship are beyond our pigmy minds.

Is it not well to take an inventory of stock on hand, and learn, by the Word and the spirit, whether or not we are allocated as "little children"?

This thought becomes pungent when we consider there are three classes of Christians these days, i. e., wise, foolish; and "Christian" by name, only—just a part of the world, whose religion is confined in, and limited to a church certificate.

It is possible these days to be rich in spirit as the late Balshazzar, and as poor in purse as Robinson Crusoe. And it is possible, but hardly probable, for a man possessing $100,000, and for a woman with twelve-ounce diaphonous raiments, much abbreviated, to be "poor in spirit".

As a parity, a blue whale, the largest animal extant, can enter New York harbor. But none has ever been seen there.

But when misfortune or sickness overtakes the indifferent Christians they suddenly become a bunch of "smoking flax"—until the clouds roll by.

Yes, the demoniac spirit of these closing days of Gentile Times is surely producing many nondescript "friends", John 15:14, 15, of Jesus. He may not be able to recognize some of them when He comes.

"Happy the meek; because they will possess the land": A Christian should not be dubious; but his temperament should be dualistic in character. He should have the mien of a future king and judge, and "a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart".

While Jesus tells us to "take no thought for your life", needs of our bodies, Matt. 6:25-34; yet, the writer thinks the Lord does not desire us to be so "meek" as not to take thought of our acts. We should strive to have our acts well planned in advance, and not follow the customs of this mad, crazy world by thinking after acting.

This world is having a thoughtless, hilarious time of it now, but ere long it is going to have an awful sickening period of thinking. O, how agonizing is a drunken sickness!

Then it will be that the "meek will possess the land", a material possession where they will reside forever.

"Happy the persecuted on account of righteousness: for their's is the kingdom of the heavens". Strong's gives the Greek definition of persecution virtually the same as the English. And Funk & Wagnalls' is: afflict, distress, harass, harry, hunt down, molest, oppress, torment, worry, abuse. Excepting death, it would be difficult to surpass this for diabolicalness. But history does not except death (murder); for during the dark age from the seventh till the sixteenth century, when Papacy had undisputed sway, many saints were put to death by their fiendish tormentors on account of their stand for righteousness. And a similar condition would obtain to-day were it possible for the evil one's same class of emissaries to carry out his will.

Enough of the dark side of this picture! Let us return to the bright, "happy" side.

How interesting it would have been to see those "five thousand men, beside women and children", that followed Jesus, and whom He fed so copiously! Very likely they were more hungry for His precious words than for the food He miraculously produced.

"Happy are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled". The writer practices moderation in all things excepting the Word. After a thirty-year's voracious feast, he still has a gluttonous appetite; not that he has not been filled, but just wants more. I wonder how many of my readers are hungering and thirsting after righteousness. I feel sure,

(Continued on page 286, column 2)

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

ABOUT QUARTERLIES

In a former issue we asked for opinions and criticism about our quarterly from those who have had occasion to examine and pass judgment. Since then reports have not ceased to come in and most of them show that they have pleased. Extracts from some of these letters will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Some Wonder

How we can sell it for the price. Well, of course, we can't, unless our subscriptions for it will reach a sufficient number to bring down the cost per copy. It cost us 12 cents each to print this first quarter. We will need to double the circulation in order to make it pay out. But the loss is no greater than was the loss on the Sunday School Leaflet which had been printed so long.

Work on the next quarter is well under way. In the meantime, let everyone push the circulation both in schools and for single copies.

It is, no doubt, a worthy effort and the present loss in $$$ is our investment in the Gospel Work.

In Speaking of Losses

The Herald, as has been announced many times, also shows a loss, as it has every other year. An increase in its circulation of about 250 to 300 subscriptions would put it on the paying side.—F. A. S.

* * * *

"O YE OF LITTLE FAITH"

"Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? . . . Wherefore if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

In these words, "O ye of little faith," our Lord and Master is rebuking their anxious thoughts and cares for the things of this life, and adds, "Therefore take no thought, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or, 'Wherewithal shall we be clothed?' (For after these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things."—Matt. 6:25 to end.

In the eighth chapter, verse 24 and on is recorded the incident of the storm on the sea and the Master, being asleep, was awakened by his disciples when they were alarmed about their safety. This time He rebuked them for their fear when He said, "O ye of little faith".

In Matthew 14 we have the record of another disturbance of the sea. "And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them walking on the sea." The disciples thought it was a spirit (phantom) and were afraid. Jesus spoke unto them, saying, "Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." Peter said, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water. . . . But when he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord save me".

Jesus rebuked Peter because he doubted. "O ye of little faith, wherefore didst thou DOUBT?"

Again Matthew, in the sixteenth chapter, records the words of Jesus as follows: "Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees". They reasoned among themselves, saying, "Is it because we have taken no bread?" Jesus rebuked them this time for their reasoning. They had just been fed, a multitude, on seven loaves and a few fishes, and then reasoned as to whether He referred to the physical bread.

"O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread? . . . How is it that ye do not understand that I spake not to you concerning bread that ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees? Then they understood that he referred to the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees."

Shall our Lord and Master say to us, "O ye of little faith", because we have been concerned too much about the cares of this life and forget that, "he careth for us."? or, as we are traversing life's sea in this fourth watch of the night, and have been overtaken by the storms of adversity and have forgotten that He will carry us through? or, when Jesus has said, "Come unto me", we doubt and wonder whether, after all, "Jesus saves", and doubt the atoning power of His precious blood? or, are we to be found reasoning among ourselves about the mysteries of His words and neglecting to do the little services of love in His name?—F. A. S.

Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.—Phil.2:3-4.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Herman Ruhn; Mrs. Alpha Addington; Mrs. Jas. Kincheloe; R. H. Judd; Carl Bunch; Barbara Leamon; Mrs. Fred Martin; John D. Davis; Mrs. C. L. Stewart; Leo Behrends; Jake Petersen; A. K. Richardson; Arthur Richardson; Mrs. Beth Mosher; Mrs. Ruth Townsend; Roy Coleman; Melvin Burnett; J. E. Cowles; Andrew Harbert; Harry A. Sheets; Miss Marie Jeppesen; Mrs. Sadie Leamon; Mrs. Ora Burnett; Mrs. Ada Huff; Mrs. Lizzie Melvin; Mrs. John Eneberg; D. F. Prime; Mrs. A. M. Cronkite; E. E. Mills; Mrs. Mary Burris; Mrs. C. C. Ezell.

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

THE tract department is just a little low in supplies at the present time, but plans are in progress to build up a good stock at once. Some tracts that are recognized as good will likely be reprinted, and some new ones written. If you have any desires or suggestions the committee would appreciate hearing from you.

* * * *

A few have spoken to us personally with reference to some questions we ran in this department a few weeks ago. It appears that each one was waiting for someone else to send in the answers, and was disappointed that no one did. Yes, so were we. If we could all unbend, and each do a bit to make this a Berean family page it could be very profitable for all of us.

* * * *

Sr. Mittie Chandler, who, with her husband, is spending the winter in Dixie land, writes the following for our columns:

DEAR BEREANS: May I renew acquaintance through the Berean column of The Herald?

I confess that for the past year I have been somewhat of a slacker, due to sickness and other misfortunes. At Christmas time my husband and I came to Houston, (Texas), to visit our son and family, and we soon got in touch with Bro. and Sr. Moses, bless their hearts. They sent Bro. McCullough, Bro. Geisler and family over to get acquainted next night. They came and took us to Bro. Moses' home to their Berean class, and such a live class they are! To hear how they handle the precious truths of the Bible was a feast to us isolated ones who were so hungry to hear and mingle with those of true faith.

The following Sunday at night Bro. Geisler spoke—subject, The Voice of God. And he gave us much food for thought. Words fail us to express all it meant to meet with such wonderful, kind-hearted and trusting people.

We will want to see and hear more of them at the Texas State Conference this year.

Submitted in Christian love,

Mrs. Mittie Chandler.

Home address, 2648 E. Admiral, Tulsa, Okla.

* * * *

The following is written by another of our Junior Bereans. Several of our Junior classes are doing excellent work and the Bible lessons learned at that age are the ones that stay with them through life.

THE BOY SAMUEL

When Hannah prayed to God for a son she said, "If thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life."

And God answered this prayer, sending a little baby boy which Hannah called Samuel. After the child was weaned Hannah took him to the priest, Eli. Samuel had such duties as to light the lamps in the temple, etc. His mother made him a little coat every year and took it to him.

One night he had finished his duties and he and Eli had gone to bed. Samuel heard someone calling him, so he went to Eli's bedside and said, "Eli, you called me. What do you want?" And Eli said, "No, I did not call you, go lie down again." Samuel heard the voice again and he went to Eli again and Eli told him to go to bed again and if anyone called to him again to say, "Lord, thy servant heareth." So Samuel went back to bed. Again he heard the voice and he said, "Lord, thy servant heareth", and God told Samuel that Eli had sons who were very wicked and must be punished. God also said that Samuel should tell Eli that his sons were wicked and were going to be killed. Samuel didn't want to tell Eli what the Lord had said, but Eli insisted and Samuel told him. Of course this made Eli very, very sad, but he was glad Samuel had told him.

At this time the Philistines and Hebrews were at war. Eli's sons were at the head of their army. They brought out the Ark of God thinking that they would win if they did so, but God did not like this, so He let the enemy defeat them, and Haphni and Phinehas were killed. Eli was sitting on the gate waiting for word of how the war was getting along. Soon up came a messenger, telling Eli that his sons had been killed. Eli was so amazed that he fell over backwards off the gate and broke his neck.

After Eli's death, Samuel was made judge over the land.

Marjorie Siple.

Eleven years.

* * * *

"Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we let them slip. For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast; how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

PREPAREDNESS TO MEET OUR LORD

BY RALPH S. KIRWIN

DO we realize that the long years of our Lord's absence are now in the past, and we stand not a great many months away from the day when we shall meet our Lord? What a solemn and yet joyful thought this is as it crosses our mind, and very closely connected with it is the question, Are we prepared to meet our Lord?

The temple, when it was in building, was all prepared and made ready where the raw material was found, and then assembled, the finished product, into a grand and glorious building. We are to be pillars and stones in the spiritual temple of the new Jerusalem. All of us are now passing through the preparatory stage, that should fit us in every way for a place in the kingdom. No one who has started in the race toward life eternal, has found it a path of roses, or always smooth traveling. Every one of us who, passing through our trials and troubles, has our mind centered on the great object ahead, can see through the gloom of this present life, the bright star that shines so clear and steady, and tells us that as its light can penetrate the present darkness, so we can also come into the place where that light will shine with unveiled glory in the presence of our glorified Lord.

When we entered the race as newborn babes this star shone clearly to us, but how much more we appreciate its light, as we view the passing years and have its continued comfort that the world lacks and never appreciates. Many men in worldly pursuits have a star ahead of them, so they think, but on reaching their goal, find it only to be a mirage and now their lives are drawing to a close. How much fuller and richer is the life of a saint, who has remembered his Creator in the days of his youth, and being fortified against the evil days and autumn of life, can look upon this star as a living, beautiful reality, rejoicing in its ever increasing light with joy unspeakable.

The Lord takes the greatest pleasure in the man or woman who renounces the pleasures of this world in the spring of life, and then lives before Him with a heart grateful for the heavenly wisdom thus received.

Wisdom to those who have stood many years in her service bestows a crown of glory which is the meek and contrite spirit that the Lord says is the most valuable thing in His sight. We may often stop and hesitate as to whether we are developing that beautiful character in God's sight. See how our Lord developed that character, and then we shall know the various steps necessary for our development. The very first words that come to our minds are, "I do always the will of my Father in heaven." See the beautiful daily life of our Savior. His Father's will reigned supreme in His heart, and He never hesitated to show it in His daily life or conduct. He spoke, thought and walked before God, and then closed each day in sweet communion with His Father, having a heart richly endowed with glory, which God set before

Him as a reward for His faithfulness. After living each day perfectly in God's sight, and having learned obedience through the things that He suffered, He was prepared, when the day arrived, to make that supreme sacrifice by which He has now passed for ever through the veil of mortality, and is a victor holding out a tender feeling right hand to guide us safely into the grandest gathering this world will ever witness.

Christ exercised His mind in the things of God to such an extent that His Father spoke in His presence as, "My beloved Son." While we can never attain the heights to which Christ rose, yet we can have our minds carried away in the spirit, and behold the glory that is yet to be revealed in the earth, in which we hope to be stars that shall shine in the brightness of the firmament.

As we travel on toward the kingdom we will notice that our minds will hesitate at a certain place while we wonder whether we will ever be able to comprehend the beauty and wisdom that lies a little farther on! yet if we will diligently pursue our daily life in God's way we shall feel that we have grown stronger in the spiritual upbuilding of the man of God. As we continue our race a great fact becomes a living part of our minds, that we shall never be without access to the life-giving water that flows from the "wells of salvation." The flower of the truth that has been planted in our minds will never bloom, unless we daily gather to drink of that water. There the Savior stands holding in His hand that hidden manna of which we shall eat when we enter into that boundless life that shall be an eternal praise to the great Creator. We shall then behold our Savior face to face in the full glory of our God.

If, after the pattern of our Savior, we would lead our daily life, we shall be prepared to meet our Savior in whatever day or hour He may call. We shall be able to stand before Him with clean hands and pure hearts to hear those welcome words that will be ample reward for our trials. Let us then join hands with our Savior, and soon we shall receive the blessing from the Lord and righteousness from the God of our salvation.—The Faith.

TOIL ON!

*Toil on! Toil on! How just a debt
That Jesus bids us pay!
For how can human e'er forget
The crucifixion day?*

*Toil on! Toil on! Oh! Christian true,
Life's struggles can not last;
Soon Christ shall come and reign anew,
The Victor of the past.*

—Sydney E. Magaw.

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. I will say of the LORD, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust. Surely he shall deliver me from the snare of the fowler".—Psalm 91:1-3.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON VII.—February 13.

MAKING THE HOME CHRISTIAN.

Ephesians 5:25 to 6:4.

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 13:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Let us love one another: for love is of God.—1 John 4:7.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Making Our Homes Christian. This is one of the most practical Christian duties of any individual. Christianity increases, fills the earth, only as Christians themselves exercise Christian influence upon others. The first place for this influence to be felt is the place nearest one's own life and heart, in the home, upon each other. It is a bounden Christian duty for husband and wife to seek to build each other in Christian character and service. 1 Cor. 7:12-16. Because of the mutual oneness revealed in the lesson text, each can have no better interest in the other than to aid and encourage the perfection of Christian character.

Children. No greater service can be rendered the child than the service of instructing and assisting the child in Christian life.

Inheritance. Parents not only provide for current benefits of home and child, but in practically every case keep in mind a certain provision which the child may inherit upon the decease of the parent. This is undoubtedly, in principle, in harmony with the great laws of God. But the greatest inheritance to build for the child is an inheritance of the promises of God. Witness Abraham, Gen. 17:7; 22:18; 26:3.

Christian inheritance is provided only through Christ, the Head of the church. It is at once the leading opportunity and duty of parents, not only to promote this inheritance for the child but to prepare the child to be anxious for its reception.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

Beloved, let us be loving one another; because love is of God.—John 4:7, Rotherham.

Love is the foundation of the "Peace of God". It was our Lord and Savior who gave the commandment, "Love one another as I have loved you". But we find it hard to force ourselves into the life of doing, of giving little things for others, of stepping out and beyond our own little selves, conquering our desire for self-gratification, of surrendering our pride just to cheer and comfort the needy and those dependent upon us, of denying a little good here and there; but it is the only way to have that lasting peace and calm repose. "Love is the Queen of Graces. It outshines all the others, as the sun outshines the lesser planets."—Thomas Watson.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Present Service. Today the world has come to regard that the greatest services that can be rendered the home and the child are to provide wealth and education. Both these relate to temporal blessing and advantage. It is very regrettable that many Christian parents regard an education in Biblical truth of much less importance to the child than an education in the temporal matters of the day. Not only is the Bible crowded out of the public school, but it is crowded out of the individual life by excessive labors and duties, both legally and parentally forced upon childhood. It is undoubtedly true that in all education Christian education should take the precedence. No child should be so engaged in material things as to prohibit the careful study and thought of things of God.

Again, the daily rush of the age often prohibits both parent and child from religious effort. Sunday, the day which the nation allows for worship and rest, is more and more crowded with business and pleasure to the detriment or extinction of religious development and service. To make the home Christian, Christian parents everywhere should throw every weight of influence to Christianize the methods of education, the methods of labor and duty, the methods of pleasure, so as to give Christian study and practice their full, unstinted opportunity and service.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

Recent conditions which have changed the environment of youth.

Adjusting home and training to meet them.

Christian homes as bulwark of Christian church.

The mutual relation of Christian home and Christian church.

QUESTIONS.

What makes up a home? When is it a Christian home?

What are the reciprocal duties of husband and wife? Of parents and children? What should be the measure of a man's love for his wife? Should it be mutual? Does the reward for obeying parents pertain to Christian families? In what sense are husband and wife one flesh?

When can it be said that children are brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord?

What are some of the present-day factors which complicate home problems for Christians?

What constitutes a Christian? Is Christianity taken hold of by the person, or does the person take hold of and become Christian?

PREPARATIONS FOR CHRISTIANITY.

Preparation for Christianity began as early as Abraham. God gave to Abraham certain great, definite, extensive promises and assurances. God "swore by himself", Heb. 6:13, 18, that these promises were certain of fulfillment. Four hundred and thirty years afterward, Gal. 3:17, because of sin into which man was dragging God's promises. God, Gal. 3:19, through Moses, added the law with its covenant. This did not annul, or abridge, or qualify God's promise to Abraham. It rather protected, guarded, and assured it.

This covenant and "added" law could not cure sin. To do so would be to cure the flesh, change it (perhaps give it new nature). This it could not do. It was weak through the flesh. Rom. 8:3.

But when the promises were made, God added still another, a new covenant, Heb. 8:7-12. Responsibility for this new covenant was vested wholly in Christ.

Followers of Christ should be followers of His covenant. For standard or method of living the Christian life, one must appeal to the new covenant, to the teachings of our Lord.

Studies in the Christian Life this quarter lead the student into studies of the new ways, methods, and results introduced by Christ, the new Leader, the new Spokesman for God. To the end that He might be relied upon as One to whom all could turn in trust and confidence, He humbly prepared Himself for the cruel death of the cross, long foretold, by which death He forever sealed the one tremendous truth, namely: "This is my blood of the new testament (covenant) which is shed for many for the remission of sins".—Matt. 26:28.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

The pleasing growth of the Grand Rapids Sunday School will be noted under Communications on another page.

* * *

Bro. Siple reports an excellent attendance and interest at the new Dixon, Illinois, church, especially in the morning, on Sunday, January 30. They are hoping to have another good meeting next Sunday.

* * *

The Oregon Sunday School has outgrown its present quarters. Plans are being made to so arrange that the members of each class will be able to keep their attention centered on the things taking place in their own class.

* * *

Bro. H. A. Sheets writes that "sickness has hit Virginia hard. Many are confined to the house with severe colds, while pneumonia, scarlet fever, and measles are holding sway in some places." May the time soon come when this condition will not prevail.

* * *

Bro. Austin left Friday morning, January 28, for a few weeks of vacation. Bro. Paul C. Johnson has charge of the Oregon church work as assistant pastor during his absence.

* * *

Answering an inquiry, It is understood that Sr. Elma Wilson desired those who wished to unite in a twenty-five-cent-each contribution against indebtedness at N. B. I. headquarters to remit same to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. This is in answer to queries on this point.

* * *

Sr. Daisy Nokes, Lincoln Park, Route 7, Rockford, Illinois, has recently been suffering a series of sick attacks. She was improved the first of last week, and her parents, Bro. and Sr. Fred Seymour, returned home. Her condition, however, the last of the week necessitated their return to aid her.

It is regretted that Sr. Nokes feels unable to continue her articles in The Herald to the children, notice of which has just been received. Effort will be made to secure another correspondent for this work.

* * *

Bro. L. Bridegam, Treasurer of the Michigan Conference, has found it necessary to change residence from Dutton and may be addressed at 101 Hall St. S. W., Grand Rapids, Michigan. Following Sr. Bridegam's sudden death in the middle of last summer, our brother has disposed of his farm and possessions near Dutton and has moved with his little daughter to the above mentioned address for different labor. His mother, Sr. Ellen Bridegam, is with him.

* * *

Bro. Marshall Logan, of Plymouth, Indiana, was taken to the hospital on January 25 for an operation. Reports did not indicate how he was recovering.

SIMON M. HATTEN

Son of Edward and Catherine Hatten, was born in Winamac, Pulaski County, Indiana, January 11, 1856.

He was united in marriage to Nancy Ellen Voreis April 13, 1878. To this union were born eleven children: Will, of Chatsworth, Illinois; George, of Hobart, Indiana; Charles, of Kemmerer, Wyoming; Pearl Zekiel and Min, of Culver, Indiana; Earl, of Hammond, Indiana; Arthur, Blanch Loser, and Lewis, of Culver, Indiana; Nellie Clifton, of Plymouth, Indiana; and one infant daughter that died at birth. In addition to immediate family, he is survived by one brother, Edward Hatten, of Britt, Iowa; and a host of relatives and friends.

Apart from ten years spent in Nebraska, he lived in and near Culver, Indiana, all of his life.

Five years ago he suffered a severe stroke of apoplexy. Three years later he suffered a second stroke which further reduced his physical strength and impaired his speech. The third final stroke occurred only a few weeks ago, and from that time it was a slow, losing fight.

He departed this life January 18, 1927, at the age of 71 years, and 7 days.

Three years ago he affiliated with the Church of God at Burr Oak, Indiana, and has been a faithful attendant as far as his physical condition would permit. He died with a full assurance of a better life to come.

J. H. Anderson.

* * *

"LIFE'S LITTLE DAY"

Lord, for to-morrow and its needs,
I do not pray;
Keep me, dear Lord, from stains of sin,
Just for to-day.

Keep my heart pure, O Christ,
Clean swept, I pray;
Help me to conquer self,
Just for to-day.

Help me to bend my pride,
Help me to pray;
Let others be preferred in all,
Just for to-day.

Let Thy love conquer doubt,
Cast fear away;
Let me be firm in faith,
Just for to-day.

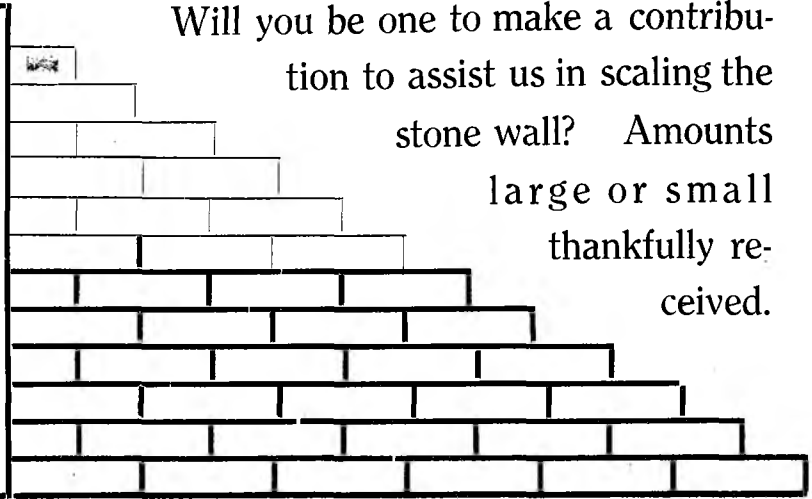

Lord, for to-morrow and its need,
I do not pray;
But guide me, guard me, use me, Lord,
Just for to-day.

Selected by Iva Huffer.

Our record shows that $455 are still needed to put us over the "Wall". Not so much if a goodly number will respond, but it will mean a great deal to us if it comes in promptly.

F. A. S.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

SOME COMMUNICATIONS

VERY MUCH PLEASED

The following communication is self-explanatory. It is given place in The Herald to call attention to several points.

It is true that the quarterly, as issued, is larger and embraces more than was intended when the price was announced. It is also true that other quarterlies of equal proportions are bringing 10, 12, and sometimes 15 cents. Effort is being made to improve on last quarter and it is quite possible that after this coming second quarter the price will either have to be increased to 10 cents or the proportions of the quarterly diminished.

The communication follows.—

DEAR BRO AUSTIN: The Quarterlies arrived and we think they are just fine. The Adult Class say, "They are far superior to anything we have used yet," and the teachers of the younger classes find they are excellent help. One of them said they had more ideas than her teachers' quarterly. The Sunday School here is more than satisfied and as yet has no criticism to offer only concerning the price. We voted to send you ten cents each instead of eight cents and please accept our order for sixty quarterlies for the next quarter—might send for more later. We think they make excellent literature to hand out to any who may come to church or Sunday School even though not a regular attendant. Our idea in raising the price is, we are afraid you might not be able to keep it up at such a low price and would soon cease to publish them and we would lose out on something we need so much.

We had one hundred fifty-one at Sunday School this morning which is the largest attendance we have had. There has been a very good interest at the special meetings Bro. Patrick has been having here. And there is a "Ladies Aid Society" being started. The ladies of the community around the church are very interested. There is much work to be done out there.

Secretary Grand Rapids Sunday School.

* * * *

AS ANOTHER SEES IT

The quarterlies are on a par with the general run of quarterlies. That means, as I see it, that they are predigested food and require very little thought and genuine study on the part of the pupil. They follow (Continued on page 287, column 1)

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIOAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Crist?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c.
 God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.
 The First Resurrection, 100 for $2.50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.
 A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate:	Each
Robison vs. Conner	$.05
Earlier Life-Truth Exponents	.15
Will It Pay to Become a Christian?	.25
The Visitor, 212 pages	.50
The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages
Illustrated. Suitable for Gift.	.90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,	Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave.,	Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St.	Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer,	Oregon, Illinois
F. A. Stilson, Secretary,	Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

MAKING THE HOME CHRISTIAN

By Daisy Nokes

DEAR CHILDREN: How do you start each new day? When you first awaken in the morning what are your first thoughts? Do you thank the heavenly Father for His loving care, and ask Him to help you be kind to all? If you do, you are starting out right, for God is pleased when we are thankful and ask for His help.

Jesus was once a little child like you. His parents had taught Him to obey, so when they told Him to do anything He obeyed quickly. He never stopped to ask why, but would mind right away. Now this pleased God, for little children who learn to quickly obey their parents will quickly obey God. Jesus grew wiser and stronger every day, and you, too, may become like Him if you are a good child now and honor your mother and father. To honor means to respect and look up to, and not to think that you know more than they do. They are older and always know what is best for their children. Some naughty boys call their parents the "Old Man" and the "Old Woman". Do you think that is right? Does that show respect and love for parents? Such naughty boys grow to be bad men.

Some naughty children say unkind things about the food they have to eat. They say, "I don't like to drink milk. I want pie or cake." Does this show respect to mother? Mother knows that good home-made bread is much better for children than pie and cake. Mother knows that coffee and tea or strong drinks like beer and wine will make them sick and weak. Our example, Jesus, always ate what his parents set before Him and never said unkind things about the food.

The lesson for to-day was written by Paul. Paul was a great minister who went around to different churches to preach. Sometimes he wrote letters to the churches, when he could not get there. He wrote a letter to the people at Ephesus telling them how to have Christian homes.

Now we all want Christian homes to-day, so Paul's letter is good for us all. He told parents to love and respect each other that they might be happy. He told them to teach God's Word lovingly to the children. He told them God's rule for children was, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right." Paul says this is the first commandment with promise. The promise is that all children who honor their parents will live long on the earth. After this he tells the fathers to bring their children up in the fear and love of the Lord.

QUESTIONS

1. To whom did Paul write a letter?
To the church at Ephesus.
2. What is God's rule for children?
Children, obey your parents.
3. What did the boy Jesus do?
He obeyed His parents.
4. Whom did Jesus please?
He pleased His heavenly Father. Will you try to please Him too?

* * * *

A BIRD STORY

*It's strange how little boys' mothers
Can find it all out as they do,
If a fellow does anything naughty,
Or says anything that's not true!
They'll look at you just a moment,
Till your heart in your bosom swells,
And then they know all about it—
A little bird tells.*

*Now, where the little bird comes from,
Or where the little bird goes;
If he's covered with beautiful plumage,
Or black as the king of the crows;
If his voice is as hoarse as a raven's
Or clear as the singing of bees,
I know not—but this I am sure of—
A little bird tells.*

*The moment you think a thing wicked,
The moment you do a thing bad,
Are angry or sullen or hateful,
Get ugly or stupid or mad,
Or tease a dear brother or sister—
That instant your sentence he knells,
And the whole to mamma in a minute,
That little bird tells.*

*You may be in the depths of a closet,
Where nobody sees but a mouse;
You may be alone in the cellar,
You may be on the top of the house;
You may be in the dark and the silence,
Or out in the woods and the dells—
No matter! wherever it happens,
The little bird tells.*

*And the only contrivance to stop him,
Is just to be sure what you say—
Sure of your facts and your fancies,
Sure of your work and your play;
Be honest, be brave, and be kindly,
Be gentle and loving as well,
And then you can laugh at the stories
The little bird tells.—Wide Awake.*

PRAYER

BY GEORGE HENRY DOLE

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.—Matt. 7:7.

PRAYER is not merely asking for something; it is giving something, giving the whole heart to the Lord that His will may be done in us and that we may do His will.

God does not need to be instructed. He knows the human heart to its depth, and all things to eternity; for as all life proceeds from Him, He knows what has been and will be.

God does not need to be persuaded, for with infinite ardor He yearns to bestow His whole power, wisdom, love and joy upon us. Does a loving mother need to be persuaded to care for her child?

Yet the Lord bids us ask, seek, knock. To ask is of the lips; to seek is of the heart; to knock is of the hand. The text means that He will surely answer those who serve Him with lips, the heart, and the hand. Only such can He answer; for otherwise His sacred gifts would be used wrongly and bring a deeper transgression. It would not be helpful if the Lord cast His pearls before the swine of selfish desires, or gave that which is holy to the dogs of natural desire.

The Lord bids us not only to ask, but to importune. This He does, not that He may be persuaded, but to intensify our desires and prepare us appreciatingly to receive and worthily use His gifts. Cultivating the fields does not change the rain or the sun. Prayer does not change the Lord, but the petitioner, and, better prepares him to receive the doctrine that drops as the rain and the sunshine from the holy city. As one is prepared, the Lord can give; so He urges us to ask, fervently to pray, to importune.

Prayer is communion with God. For a moment the earth within us keeps silent, and the Lord comes into His holy abiding place. Light, comfort, peace inflow. That is not a mere communion of words, but a communion of the spirit. His Holy Spirit. Let us identify it. Have we not risen from prayer with courage renewed, the soul refreshed? Have we not felt the inflow of soothing peace and quickening joy? That power so silent seemingly, is omnipotent. It admits of unending increase. It is the Lord, the Lord answering prayer.

"If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." Marvelous promise! It is infallible. If this promise seems not fulfilled, the cause is within ourselves. Our wills are not one with His. Our thoughts are not according to His wisdom. He sees our weaknesses, knows that we would default, and therefore withholds until we are prepared. It cannot be otherwise; for He created us to give Himself to us, to bestow the fullness of heaven's blessings upon us. There is no other way to receive them than to use them. Ask from His love, and according to His wisdom. Let the spirit of prayer be, "Thy will be done," not mine. Thus pray unceasingly, firmly assured that He always answers true prayer.

ABOUT PROBATION

BY J. R. NORRIE

(Continued from last week)

THE FUTURE OF SODOM

ANOTHER passage which suffers at the hands of believers in future probation is Ezekiel 16:48-55: "I shall bring again the captivity of Sodom and her daughters. . . . When thy sisters Sodom and her daughters shall return to their former estate . . . then thou and thy daughters shall return to their former estate." On the strength of these statements it is maintained that all the identical inhabitants of Sodom who perished, when Lot escaped, will be resurrected "in view of their future welfare".

A little patient examination of this passage will show that this is a hasty and mistaken view, although, on the surface, it looks plausible. Jerusalem is here described as an immoral woman, Samaria as her "elder sister", Sodom as her "younger sister"; all, with their daughters, were corrupt. It is twenty years since I first lectured against the probationists' erroneous views on this passage, and pointed out that the places named are, by common figure of speech, addressed metonymically, that is, using the name of one thing for that of another related to it. For example:—"Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judæa, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan."—Matt. 3:5, 6. Ordinary intelligence realizes that the inhabitants are here meant by the names of their dwelling-places. It is so with this passage in Ezekiel, but the people are addressed collectively as units and not as individuals. Sodom is spoken of as a unit, and a restoration is promised covering an inhabited country as regards prosperity, population and moral purity. There is no hint of resurrection in the passage. The best explanation of a Bible difficulty is to take a Bible explanation, and the history of Job furnishes a parallel, where we read:—"The Lord turned the captivity of Job; . . . also the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before".—42:10-13. Yet Job did not get back from the grave then his seven sons and three daughters, nor were the identical sheep, camels, and oxen raised from the dead, but he got other seven sons and three daughters, and his flocks and herds were doubled. To turn again the captivity of a place or person is simply to restore to a former condition, and this shall undoubtedly be done when "they shall build the old wastes, raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations".—Isa. 60:4. The very same language is used about Moab, Jer. 48:47; Egypt, Ezekiel 29:14; and Israel, Deut. 30:3, and over and over again, later on. We have been asked, "What is the moral purity of a land?" possibly in derision; for the answer is supplied from the same source, "referring to the inhabitants of a country under the name of the country."

(OVER)

Another remarkable case of personal terms being used in a collective or national sense is to be found in Zech. 14:5; "Ye shall flee as ye fled before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah, King of Judah, and the Lord my God shall come and all the saints with thee", etc. Uzziah reigned about 300 years before the days of Zechariah, and, if we read this passage in the severely literal way demanded for Sodom, we are faced with this extraordinary condition, that there were a number of Jews in Zechariah's time about 300 years old, who fled from an earthquake nearly three centuries previously! More wonderful still, they must be living yet at the respectable age of 2700 years, and must remain alive until the Lord comes, and be able to flee from another earthquake then with alacrity! Surely this beats the record both for longevity and Bible interpretation, and our "Fair Chance" friends may be left to ponder this unique distinction.

WHAT ABOUT CHILDREN?

I feel compelled to make a slight digression here upon a point not strictly cognate or necessary to a consideration of our subject, but which is forced upon us by mistakes regarding our position upon the salvation of children. We are accused of holding what is called "the narrow Conditional Immortality plan of salvation, which involves the unreasoning and heartless extermination of millions of innocent children!"

For sixty-eight years I have maintained, from the Bible, that immortality is not an inherent quality of the human race, but the free gift of God to those who believe in Jesus Christ, to be bestowed upon them when our Lord returns to raise those whom He finds worthy, and to establish His everlasting kingdom upon earth. Twenty-eight years ago I wrote an article in our official organ, Words of Life, entitled, "What about the Children?" denying that there was anything antagonistic in Conditional Immortality to a belief in the Salvation of Children. I have seen no reason since to change my conviction, which has grown stronger with the years since I used these words: "There is nothing inconsistent between the two things. They lie alongside of each other. They are not identical, they are complementary and harmonious." This is not spoken from the standpoint of a mere theorist. I can claim to speak experimentally as well as theoretically, and to know for half-a-century the heart-hunger of those who have put away a vacant chair, to miss a little face from the table, and a happy voice ringing in the ear.

It is recorded of our gracious Savior that "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd," and also that "He shall gather the lambs with his arms, and carry them in his bosom"—Isa. 40:11. I have not a shadow of doubt that if, when the happy resurrection morning dawns, and in the unspeakable mercy of God I stand arrayed in the white robe of immortality, a little hand which used to rest in mine is absent, and I ask the Lord about it—I have not a shadow of doubt that this little hand shall be restored, or there shall be such a sufficient reason for its absence, that I shall be able to say with undimmed eye,

"Good is the Word of the Lord."

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Let me close by stating a few general principles or leading considerations which should guide and control our minds in studying this much disputed question.

1. There is no direct or unequivocal statement in the Bible that a "Fair Chance" of accepting the Gospel will be given after resurrection in the millennial age to those who had not heard it in the present life.

2. Only two classes are mentioned in the Bible as being raised from the dead—the just and the unjust.

3. Only two awards are indicated—life and death—as following resurrection.

4. All the Lord's judgments are righteous, and no hint is given of a class raised to probation, a word never used in the New Testament.

5. Those who in the present life have not been under the law will not be judged by the law, but by the work of the law written in their hearts, in the day when God will judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ. Rom. 2:6-12, 15, 16.

The Lord asks us to trust Him, and there are still secret things that belong unto Him. "Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face. Now I know in part, but then shall I know even as I am known".—1 Cor. 13:12-13. And the apostle Paul, in finishing his great argument and discourse to the Romans upon faith, as the means by which the Gentiles as well as the Jews become heirs of God and partakers of the great salvation, in spite of the abundant revelations he had received, cannot withhold his eloquent and glowing testimony to the unfathomable, inscrutable Divine decrees and power: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen."—Words of Life.

BLESSED ARE THE MEEK

(Continued from page 277)

every one; for we all are, "the common people"; and it is as of yore, "And the common people heard him gladly", Mark 12:37. The "rich"—in spirit—heard, and now hear Him also. But there are two ways of hearing, viz., by the head, and by the heart. His message seldom gets below the chin of the rich in spirit and purse, these days. But when the Glad Tidings get into a person's heart its recipient at once follows up the Stream to its source, "A river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High. God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early", Psa. 46:4, 5.

If such is not the case with us, "poor, common people", it is not God and His dear Son's fault.

NEW BEATITUDES

Blessed are the old-fashioned people who have not forgotten to carry their Bibles to church and Sunday School.

Blessed are the old-fashioned people who have not yet learned to read the morning daily paper more of a Sunday morning, before church time, than they read their Bibles.

Blessed are the people who have not bowed the knee to "what the people say".

Blessed are the people who will not cater to the world to make money for the Lord.

Blessed are they who fear the impurity more than they do ecclesiastical opinions.

Blessed are they who have learned that purity and right are bigger than all the world.

Blessed are they who have found out how to maintain their justified walk with God.

Blessed are they who have found out the omnipotence of inward loyalty to God.

—Selected.

SOME COMMUNICATIONS

(Continued from page 283)

the spoon-feeding system of teaching as does nearly all of our education. Growth in spiritual thinking requires digging for hidden treasures, and not just swallowing what some one else has thought out. I know that teaching that makes the other fellow work is the hardest kind of teaching to do, but it is the only kind that really accomplishes education and growth. It is in this that most teaching fails—the lack of thought-provoking suggestions and questions. This is my chief criticism. Otherwise I think they ought to accomplish just about what all quarterlies accomplish in various Sunday Schools.

* * * *

FROM CALIFORNIA

DEAR HOUSEHOLD OF FAITH: When The Restitution Publishing Company was organized, I was a member of the board of directors and its first president. We were stockholders and general promoters securing subscriptions whenever possible, but for the past five years, through misunderstandings and wrong information, thus creating wrong impressions, I have done nothing to promote this phase of the Master's work. However, our eyes have been opened to the true situation and we are now ready to take up again our share of the burden and promote the paper, which we see has been much improved under the present management.

The new quarterlies are just fine, and must fill an urgent need among our brotherhood. Enclosed you will find a check to help scale the Stone Wall.

Yours in the Master's service,

Ezra C. Railsback,
1020 South Burlington Ave., Los Angeles, California.

PALESTINE NEWS ITEMS

From "The New Palestine"

NEW YORK is asked to subscribe $2,500,000 to the United Palestine Appeal.

Every year we approach the task of winning the largest Jewish community in the world with trepidation and anxiety. It is a great agglomeration of Jews, divided into sections, parties, congregations, interests intertwined and separate, with all sorts and conditions of men, hard to penetrate, hard to talk to, but it is nevertheless that community upon which the success of our Palestine effort largely depends. One-third of the total of $7,500,000 is to be gathered in Greater New York.

We call upon all Zionists and upon all Jews interested in Palestine, now to come forward and to make Palestine for the period of the campaign the outstanding fact in the Jewish life of Greater New York. The volunteers, the collectors, the organizers, the propagandists will all be doing only one fragment of the work. Let each do what he or she has to do with a consciousness of its value in making the success which we await.

* * * *

Companies of several countries have asked permission to investigate the mineral and other possibilities of the Dead Sea with the view of later obtaining concessions to exploit such products commercially, states a despatch from Jerusalem to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Chemists from the Hebrew University and other Jewish experts have been investigating the various salts and depths of the sea. An Australian company has also been making various investigations with the cooperation of the government geologist, it is stated.

* * * *

A trolley car, the first in Palestine, will shortly connect Haifa and the new Jewish residential suburbs on Mt. Carmel, it is reported in a cable from Palestine. The Palestine Electric Corporation, which is exploiting the Rutenberg Concession, owns half the stock of a corporation with capital of $200,000 formed for this purpose. New residential quarters are being built up all over the Carmel overlooking Haifa and the Mediterranean, and the building movement will receive new impetus on both sides of the track. The Carmelia and Red Carmel suburbs owned by the American Zion Commonwealth, New York, are expected to benefit particularly, owing to their more advantageous position.

* * * *

The Soviet government has granted permission to three hundred Zionists, including members of the He'chalutz, and the Zeire Zion, now exiles in Siberia and other regions, to leave for Palestine, according to a report by the Warsaw Yiddish daily, Hajnt, states a despatch to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. The report states that each person must pay $110 for his passport. The expenses of the journey for the group would amount to $75,000. The Hajnt has issued an appeal to the Zionist public to collect this sum. A public subscription has been opened by the paper.

ANGER

Selections by M. A. Woodward

ANGER begins in folly, and ends in repentance.—Pythagoras.

The fire you kindle for your enemy often burns yourself more than him.—Chinese Proverb.

Anger is the most impotent of passions. It effects nothing it goes about, and hurts the one who is possessed by it more than the one against whom it is directed.—Clarendon.

He that would be angry and sin not must not be angry with anything but sin.—Seeker.

To be angry is to revenge the faults of others on ourselves.—Pope.

Never forget what a man has said to you when he was angry. If he has charged you with anything, you had better look it up.—H. W. Beecher.

If a man meets with injustice, it is not required that he shall not be roused to meet it; but if he is angry after he has had time to think upon it, that is sinful. The flame is not wrong, but the coals are.—H. W. Beecher.

Keep cool and you command everybody.—St. Just.

A man that does not know how to be angry does not know how to be good. Now and then a man should be shaken to the core with indignation over things evil.—H. W. Beecher.

There is not in nature a thing that makes man so deformed, so beastly, as doth intemperate anger.—John Webster.

Life appears to me too short to be spent in nursing animosity or registering wrong.—Charlotte Bronte.

The greatest remedy for anger is delay.—Seneca.

When a man is wrong and won't admit it, he always gets angry.—Haliburton.

He who can suppress a moment's anger may prevent a day of sorrow.—Unknown.

To rule one's anger is well; to prevent it is still better.—Tyron Edwards.

When passion is on the throne reason is out of doors.—M. Henry.

He best keeps from anger who remembers that God is always looking upon him.—Plato.

He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city.—Solomon. Proverbs 16:32.

A diamond has no light in itself, it is only a bit of carbon. Put it in a cave and it will give no light. There is no light in it in its natural condition, but bring it out into the light, grind its sides down into numberless little facets, and it will reflect the light of the sun in marvelous beauty. So it is with us. When God has cut away a good deal in us that is worthless and brought us out into His marvelous light, we too will flash back His glory and beauty with wondrous power. Where does the cloud at sunset get its beauty?—Selected.

WISE EVANGELISM

GOD INTENDS that we shall win people in their youth. Then their hearts are tender and sensitive. Then they are religious and often ready and eager for entrance into the spiritual life. But we let the springtime of life pass, and then try by some great effort to create religious impressions and win to Christ. We work hard, we spend thousands of dollars, and at the best, get disappointingly small returns. The reason is very apparent. We have waited too long.

How much better it is to work with God in the constructive years of life, winning to Christ in youth, developing Christian habits of physical living, the Christian way of living together, and Christian habits and attitudes of mind. When a man comes to maturity with such a development, he has a Christian character that will stand and that will powerfully influence for good his day and generation. If we are wise we will work with God in His seasons.—Albert H. Gage, in "Evangelism of Youth".

CHRIST

- Is coming soon;
- Is coming personally;
- Is coming visibly;
- Is coming for His bride;
- Is coming to sit upon His throne;
- Is coming to judge the world;
- Is coming to renew this earth;
- Is coming—be prepared.

C. E. Randall.

"Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold the reward of the wicked. Because thou hast made the LORD, which is my refuge, even the most High, thy habitation; there shall no evil befall thee".—Psalms 91:8-10.

SALESMEN WANTED

TO SELL OUR GUARANTEED VEGETABLE AND FLOWER SEEDS IN THE FOLLOWING STATES:

ILLINOIS	NEBRASKA	MINNESOTA
INDIANA	IOWA	KENTUCKY
MICHIGAN	KANSAS	WISCONSIN
OHIO		MISSOURI

Make good money during the winter and spring months. Previous experience not essential. Liberal Commission. For further particulars write

John A. Railton Seed Co.

Successors in the Mail Order Seed Business to Golden Rule Nurseries.

Oregon - Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 8, 1927

NUMBER 19

“SHALL NEVER DIE”

By F. E. Siple

IT WAS a broken-hearted Martha that went forth with tear-stained cheeks to meet her master and said, “Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died.” But though torn with grief and sorrow at the death of her brother, Lazarus, yet observe her extreme faith in Jesus as she adds, “But I know, that even now, whatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.”—John 11:22.

It is plainly evident that Jesus had emphasized the teaching of resurrection in His visits in their home, and that Martha had not always been busy with household duties, for when the Master said to her, “Thy brother shall rise again,” she immediately replied, “I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.” There was no question in her mind as to what death meant. Her brother had fallen asleep in death, and she did not consider him alive in any sense, but she did confidently look forward to the resurrection day realizing that he would awaken to new life then.

This knowledge of the facts of death and resurrection which Martha had received from the lips of the Savior, is the knowledge that the Bible would impart to all of us if we would quietly listen to its teachings, banishing all preconceived ideas.

The Old Testament writers have plainly stated man's nature, and the fact of death as the opposite of life, over and over again. In Psalm 146:4 David, in speaking of man at death, says, “His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish.” Or, according to Psalm 6:5, in death there is not even any remembrance of God, or ability to give Him thanks. In fact, so far as the condition of death is concerned, man and beast die alike and go unto one place, Eccl. 3:19, 20. Furthermore, he that has died has no knowledge of anything that takes place with friends or loved ones left behind. This latter point is especially referred to in Job 14:21, where, in speaking of a man in death, the patriarch says, “His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them.” This is in accordance with the thirteenth verse of the same chapter in which he has prayed for death, for the end of his sufferings and trials, that he might be laid away in the grave till a set time, and then be remembered.

It is that set time, the resurrection day, that the New Testament talks so much about, showing us that the only hope of life for man beyond death is in being awakened out of death's sleep in the morning when the new day dawns. Immortality is not possessed by man to-day, but is a thing to be sought for by patient continuance in well doing. To those who thus seek it will be given. Rom. 2:7. This gift will be put on at the resurrection, 1 Cor. 15:52-54. Furthermore, immortality will be conferred upon the body, not upon an invisible nonentity. Phil. 3:20, 21.

All of this Martha understood and believed. There was no question in her mind but what her brother would rise on the resurrection day, but it was the time then present that was worrying Martha. She and her sister were left alone, and they needed their brother. The Master, observing her great faith, said to her, “I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?” There ought to be no difficulty in understanding this language if one carefully considers the whole conversation. “Though he were dead, yet shall he live”,—when? The time under consideration has been named in verse 24, “the resurrection at the last day.” In similar manner consider the next statement, “whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die”,—when? The same period of time is still the basis of the Master's language. What He has actually said, then, is that if a person believes in Him, though he die, yet he shall live again in the resurrection at the last day, and if he has not died, but is living and believing in Him at the last day then he shall never die.

This is in accordance with 1 Cor. 15:51, “we shall not
(Continued on page 303, column 2)

A SOLEMN CHARGE

BY RUFUS A. CURTIS

PAUL, with his whole soul aflame for the spreading of the good news of the coming and kingdom of the Prince of Peace, gives this solemn charge to Timothy, his "own son in the faith": "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; Preach the word, be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine."—2 Tim. 4:1, 2. It would seem that no one could give such a solemn charge, before God and His Christ, and the far-reaching results of the judgment of both the quick and the dead, without having reasons weighty as eternity, to enforce his charge to "preach the word".

As Paul's prophetic vision swept the oncoming ages, and he beheld the development of the great apostacy, he exclaimed, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry. For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."—2 Tim. 4:3-8. See also 2 Thess. 2:1-12; 2 Peter 2:1-15; 1 Tim. 4:1-3.

Paul's eyes were at times suffused with tears, and his loving heart was burdened with "great heaviness and continual sorrow" for his "kinsmen according to the flesh", as he contemplated the truth, and their relation thereto. Phil. 3:17-19; Rom. 9:1-5.

The one who gave Timothy his solemn charge to "preach the word" has also given him a reason for being "instant in season", in view of the perilous times that were foreseen. "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away. For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts, ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth."—2 Tim. 3:1-7. See also Luke 18:8; 17:26-30.

Above this Babel of confusion in religious matters, "ask for the old paths", "the good way", "and walk therein". Jer. 6:16; Mark 11:22.

THE GREAT TRIBULATION

BY SYDNEY E. MAGAW

THERE is a message in the story of the flood for the world to-day. Noah's preaching, the ark, and the flood are prophetic pictures that portray another "time of trouble" and another ark of safety.

"As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

As the people grew tired of the preaching of Noah, so "the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine." "They shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." As in the last days before the flood men scoffed at Noah and said a flood would never come, so "there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his (Christ's) coming?"

As surely as the flood came will Christ come. He "is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance".

For years Noah preached, but few heeded. Then the flood came. Noah and his family were safe in the ark, but the scoffers were out in the storm. It was a great time of trouble. Oh! that we might see a lesson in this picture! As Noah preached, so the "gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." When the end of this age comes there will be another great time of trouble for the world, very similar to that at the time of the flood. "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be."

When the ark was lifted up on the waves of the flood it was too late for the lost to hear and accept the preaching of Noah. Once more a gospel hope is being proclaimed, and now is the time to accept. "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." And as "ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."

Once the people hungered to hear the voice of Noah. A similar time is coming when the world will hunger for the very message that it mocks at now. "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord: and they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the Lord, and shall not find it."

To the world will come trouble as it did in the days of the flood. "The kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and chief captains, and the mighty men and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"

Who shall be able to stand? Who will it be? The Bible answers. "At that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time THY PEOPLE SHALL BE DELIVERED, every one that shall be found written in the book." Oh! that we might be among the number to have our names on the Lamb's book of life! Let us turn to God and learn of His ways. "He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall: but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; and they shall walk and not faint."

During this great time of trouble "there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders", but Christ, the true King and Messiah will not be here then. "Wherefore if they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not." Those days will be real dark days, with none to guide, for the righteous shall have been caught away to be with the Lord. Just as the ark was raised up on the waves above the time of trouble, so will the righteous be raised up to meet their King in the air, up above the stricken world.

Daniel, centuries ago, prophesied that "many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake" at this time of trouble. And Paul tells us that even the righteous dead shall be raised up from the graves to be "caught up" with the living righteous "to meet the Lord in the air". "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." "This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years."

Such is the salvation of those who put their trust in God, who come into Christ, our Ark of safety. For "immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken: and THEN shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

Just as the ark of Noah rested again after the flood, on Mount Ararat, so will the Lord with ten thousands of His saints return to Mount Zion after the great day of God's wrath. Then the Lord and His chosen shall reign.

THE TRINITY QUESTION

BY R. H. JUDD

TO THE EDITOR OF THE GLOBE: I notice Mr. Oliver's comments on my letter of the 4th, inst., and I would ask you to kindly allow me the privilege of brief reply. There was no intimation of "modernism" in my letter, nor would any fair-minded reader of it make the ingenious suggestion that I should "abandon Scripture." He would, on the contrary, frankly acknowledge that it was my evident earnest desire that Scripture should be the foundation of this most important question, and that my appeal to Scripture was at least definite and clear. Mr. Oliver charges me with having a "profound misapprehension of what is known as the doctrine of the Trinity." Well, I gave the Athanasian Creed as indicative of what is known as the doctrine of the Trinity. If I am right in so doing, then it is Mr. Oliver and not myself who is under misapprehension—profoundly so. He then says: "There is but one God—on this we are agreed." But, sir, had there been agreement on this point there would have been no occasion to discuss it. It was Mr. Oliver's tantamount assertions that there are three Gods that gave rise to the ventilation of the question, as contained in my letter. Further, he says: "Our business is not to analyze but to accept what the Scriptures teach." Without commenting on the first part of this sentence, I think I may in all fairness claim that it was the very purpose of my letter to adopt the attitude of the latter part, viz., to accept Scripture in its clear and emphatic statement.

Mr. Oliver next proceeds to generalize on passages in the Gospel of John, the Acts, and the Epistle to the Hebrews, and says in reference thereto: "No one can read into these passages anything but the clearest setting forth of individual personality." No true Bible student has a desire to "read into" Scripture that which is not there, and I made it clear in my letter of the 4th, inst., that many of the passages quoted by Mr. Oliver are capable of more than one interpretation, but that passages such as Isaiah 45:5, 6, are not so, and I am prepared to sustain this contention. As to the personality of the Holy Spirit, language is used of the Holy Spirit which is utterly incompatible with personality, and it is a remarkable and indisputable fact that such language is never used of God the Father or of Jesus Christ His Son. Such a fact must strike at the very root of the doctrine of the Trinity, for two cannot make a trinity. It is not one "word" only that believers in the doctrine of the Trinity are obliged to express in terms that are not Scriptural, but such is a common tendency of trinitarians, owing to their inability to express their doctrine in clear Bible statement.—Submitted to The Herald by Author.

PAUL A CHOSEN VESSEL UNTO THE LORD

By Lyman Booth

PAUL found conditions at Rome the hardest in every way that he had ever experienced, and yet he did his greatest work for God at Rome, and for humanity in a Roman dungeon. He wrote to the Philippians (Phil. 1:12, 13) that his imprisonment "had fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the gospel; so that his bonds in Christ were manifest in all the Palace and other places". The Revised Version shows that the term here translated "Palaces" is a collective noun denoting the whole body of the Pretorian Guard (the flower of the Roman army) rather than any of the buildings and so we have a flood of light thrown upon the work he did. His cell became a college of foreign missionaries. What though he had but one pupil at a time and he a soldier of the Emperor's guard, to whom he was chained. That soldier might be ordered at any time into German forests to fight the tribes that infested the southern shores of the Baltic; or might be sent beyond the Alps to wage war with the valiant defenders of Gaul; might be directed to cross the stormy channel to fight the Britons. As each watch was relieved and soldier followed soldier, some six or eight every twenty-four hours, "Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ", educated his soldier companion in his story of the Cross.

We can not overestimate the value of such a method of evangelization of the Roman Empire. One writer has written, "On the few square feet of space allowed him, Paul erected a fulcrum with which to move the world." He writes to the music of the chains upon his wrist (Col. 1:5, 6) that the gospel "is in all the world and bearing fruit and increasing". Until the last great day none can tell how extensively was sown broadcast the seeds of truth by the soldier preachers of Nero's guard, captured by the captive Paul for Christ. More than a century later "Tertulian marveled that the Roman army was almost entirely Christian". The wonderful success of Paul's labors had been felt throughout the army and changed forever the course of Christianity from the east to west, from Asia to Europe.

Finally the hour arrived when Paul stood before Nero, in whose presence he bore himself with such high heart and loveable manner that souls were won out of Caesar's household for Christ. The livid pages of Tacitus and Suetonius tell us who were in Nero's "Golden House" at that time. "The saints of Caesar's household". (Phil. 4:22.) While that Golden House was nothing more than a den of the worst type of sensuality, yet, out of it Paul rescued some souls, proving that Jesus can save from the uttermost depths of degradation to the uttermost heights of glory. Among the Latin slaves and Briton's savages none were so low but that Jesus could rescue and lift them up; none so black but Jesus' precious blood could make them white. Though laboring in chains and housed in a dungeon the "chosen vessel" laid the foundation of an everlasting Empire that shall stand through the eternal ages, after all earthly empires shall have given place to the King of kings and Lord of lords.

The apostle whose ear had caught the groans and sighs of travailing creation, he who thought so much on Christ's scheme of salvation, that scheme that included all nations, now writes his masterpiece, the Epistle to the Ephesians, the crown and consummation of all his teachings, called by Coleridge "the profoundest and sublimest book in the world." In Romans the thought of Salvation by Christ outshines the dark trammels of Jewish traditions, and spreads itself over the wide field of history. In Ephesians the idea of Christ's gospel becomes cosmical and overlaps the bounds of time showing that the final and sublime vocation of the church will be to teach the wisdom and love of God as manifested in Christ our Lord.

The burning of Rome was the greatest holocaust of history. It burned for nine days and nights. It left nothing but ruins of the temple and tower and Nero's Golden House. The city was about the size of greater New York. Whether Paul perished in the flames, in the arena, or at the hands of the headsman, or as a human torch in Nero's garden is not definitely known. It matters but little which, for he was prepared for either. Nero's crown was tarnished by crimes of the deepest dye, while Paul's is one of incorruptibility, and undefiled and that fadeth not away. No imperial purple was his, but his robe will be pure and spotless, and white as snow. In place of the Mamertine prison and the dismal dungeon he will share the eternal joys and liberty of the house of many mansions, not made with hands, a city which hath enduring foundations, whose builder and maker is God.

In going to Rome, he went forth to certain victory, and met death in the discharge of his duty. He went, but not alone. He trod the path to a martyr's doom with his eyes firmly fixed upon the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus (Phil. 3:14), facing death with that peace of God which passeth all understanding. Obedient to the heavenly voice, he went to Rome; and under adverse circumstances he preached the gospel to everyone who would listen. He spread the Glad Tidings near and far, giving hope to the despondent, light to those in the dark shadows of sin, peace to the troubled, joy to the sorrowing, visions of freedom for the slaves, rest for the weary, and songs of rejoicing for the broken-hearted, to the overcomers, crowns of eternal glory, and robes of dazzling white.

When he had finished his labors, with perfect composure we hear him uttering these words, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."—2 Timothy 4:6-8.

He had fought and gained the victory; had finished his course and won the prize. Nothing remained but to die. He was ready, and was unafraid to meet death.

He had no quarrel with it, he had fought it out and was willing to leave the decision in the hands of the righteous Judge. Like a person, after a hard day's work, lies down at night, so Paul welcomed the close of his day of struggle against Satan and sin, and we hear him exclaiming, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand". Death could not turn his eyes from the prize toward which he had been so long pressing. He had striven successfully through grace given to win the gift of grace. Finally to exalt the grace of God which had been bestowed upon him so abundantly, by which was given him strength and courage to labor and suffer that he might win this precious gift of grace, he concludes his matchless teaching with these, his last words, so full of confidence in God, and calm resignation to his sacrifice which he was willing to make that he might glorify his Master's name: "The Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and shall preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom. To him be glory unto the ages of ages."

(Concluded)

EVIL THOUGHTS

By Katie Davis

THOSE things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile the man. For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies."

The mind and heart are evil. When we commit sin, it comes in our mind first. Therefore, we see how important it is to think right and not be hasty even in our thought. Keep the mind filled with good things, then we can have a pure heart.

Should we, if we are pure-minded, judge or condemn others? or should we do all in our power to help them see their error? I am often made sad to see women who profess to be true followers of God uphold murders and revenge on young girls. Does it not show a vicious spirit and a wicked and perverse mind? Did not the Lord say, "Vengeance is mine; I will repay"? Why do not those older in years warn the young and not despise them? Why is it that a man's sins are overlooked and the young and unprotected girl is the victim of vicious older women who should think of her own daughters? How unjust are they in their judgment of others through their lack of wisdom. How different from Him who said, "He that is without sin . . . let him first cast a stone".

Everyone loves the unselfish person who is always ready to forgive and not bear malice. It often does much to soften the heart of the vilest sinner and turn him to God. Those who know the sweetness of self-sacrifice and joy that comes through God's wonderful love that fills the heart to overflowing want others to know and enjoy this great happiness.

Sisters of the faith, be kind and considerate of others. Would you untangle a lamb caught by thorns and briars and keep it from the devouring wolf? Then help others see the good and wonderful Shepherd who will save the sheep and whom it is a joy to serve. I have on my wall a picture of the Good Shepherd and His sheep, and when I am sad or feeling blue it is a comfort to look at that picture and think of the good that might be done in a world of sorrow and sin.

THE WAY OF OVERCOMING

BY PAUL C. JOHNSON

IN a recent Sunday School lesson we studied the subject of "The Christian Overcoming Temptation". While studying this lesson this question came to mind: Isn't it possible that things which come to test us come in somewhat the same order as those things which God used to test Abraham?

He was first told to go into a land which the Lord said He would show him and afterward give him. Abraham believed this and went. Later another test came and in this case he gave Lot the first choice of the land which lay before them. And so each test which came took a little more faith than the preceding one. Then came the greatest test of all. He was told by the Lord to offer his son, his only son, and heir of the land and blessings which had been promised to him, upon the altar as a burnt offering. From all indications in the record as given in Genesis twenty-two he went about this task without wavering, for he had learned in the previous tests that the words of the Lord were faithful and true. Hebrews 11:17-19 tells us that "By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac . . . accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead". Because of his growth in faith as the different tests came he was called "the friend of God" and also "father of the faithful".

The way in which the Lord has instructed each of His faithful ones in times past has been in the same progressive way. The simple foundation-lessons have been given first. Then as the pupil has learned each lesson some problem which has required more experience and knowledge to work out has been given to him. And so, on and on, he has gone until he has attained that position of perfection toward which the Father has been leading. One step at a time is God's method of procedure.

It was in this way that David came to be a man after God's "own heart"; and Jesus of Nazareth came to be "the Christ the Son of the living God". Each of these was led from the simpler things of faith to the more difficult until he was able to contend with the most difficult without wavering.

So it is with us, as faithful ones in Christ. We are led by the Spirit of God from one task or temptation to another until we can face the greatest without doubting God's power and ability and willingness to help us through it. The assurance is always present, and with each experience it grows, that we will not be tempted above that we are able, and that with each temptation there will be a way of escape provided.

The lesson of "The Christian Overcoming Temptation" is one at which each Christian is working every day of his life.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

A STUDENT of psychology in the University of Wisconsin killed himself on January 23 in order to find out "how things are over there". He expects to communicate with a fraternity brother. It would be interesting if this could and would be done, and why not if in death they have only "passed on"?—F. A. S.

* * * *

ON ANOTHER page will be found a selected article, The Time Element in Consecration. Don't let it escape a good reading.

* * * *

WE ARE also pleased to publish The Coming of Christ and What He Is Coming for, which is one of the stories written for the childrens' essay contest.

The article shows that even a child can "search the scriptures".

* * * *

THE SEDUCER

A CLIPPING from a Philadelphia newspaper reveals the fact that authorities there have arrested a man and four boys, ages 15 to 18, and two truck loads of printed matter which on account of its nature is barred from the U. S. mail. It included hundreds of alleged art magazines and pictures, and the order book also captured, shows that these goods have been going into nearly every state in the union.

Numerous complaints from parents of high school students reveal the fact that their boys and girls were purchasing this obscene literature.

On every hand our youth are confronted with the seductive influences of evil. Solomon says, "The righteous is more excellent than his neighbor: but the way of the wicked seduceth them". Prov. 12:26, which equals, A righteous one guideth his neighbor: but the wicked one leadeth them astray. Parents, neighbors, and Christian friends must be ever on the alert, to safeguard the youth of our land from the evil about them. "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse".—2 Tim. 3:13. This is Paul's prophecy and warning, therefore, there must be no let-up in our efforts to "train up a child in the way he should go".—F. A. S.

* * * *

THE DANGER OF LITTLE SINS

THE following from Guthrie is well expressed: "Be fearful of little sins. Take alarm at even an evil thought, wish, desire. These are the germs of sin—the floating seeds which drop into the heart, and, finding our natural corruption a fat and favorable soil, spring up into actual transgressions. These, like the rattle of the snake and hiss of the serpent, reveal the presence and near neighborhood of danger. The experience of all good men proves that sin is most easily crushed in the bud, and that it is safer to flee from temptation than to fight it."—F. A. S.

* * * *

IF YOU would bask in the sunlight of God's love and have the word as a lamp unto your feet, don't lag behind. You will probably get lost in the dark if you do.—F. A. S.

* * * *

TIME flies. We are gliding rapidly into the spring months when we look out with renewed energy on life and behold anew God's creation in all its beauty. The usual time for a revival is also passing. If you have not had a special meeting in recent months, why not plan one yet this spring?—F. A. S.

* * * *

The tongue is a little thing, but it fills the universe with trouble.—Josh Billings.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mary J. Calkins; W. A. Hicks; Warren Knodle; Stephen Walker; Joseph Rosser; Lewis E. Lindsay; Martha Walls; Mrs. Amanda Cramer; Mrs. Nellie Penrod; Zenas Murphy; Mrs. Chas. E. Blomquist; Mrs. J. W. Dismukes; Mrs. Fannie LeCrone.

* * * *

HELPING FUND

Clifford Wilson

$5.00

ARE YOU A GENTLEMAN?

A WISE MAN once defined a gentleman as one who Carefully avoids whatever may cause a jar or jolt in the minds of those with whom he is cast;
Makes everyone at ease and at home in his presence;
Doesn't bring up topics that might cause irritation to another;
Makes light of favors while he does them;
Never gossips or slanders;
Never takes unfair advantage of another;
Is never mean in disputes but always fair and generous;
Never gives out sharp sayings for argument;
Bears no malice;
Is kind to another intellect inferior to his own;
Is always just;
Never inflicts pain;
Respects weakness in human nature and makes the proper allowance for it.

Measured by this rule of manly conduct, are you a gentleman?—Alice Crowell Hoffman.

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

SOME more questions have recently been asked on the subject of the tree of life. We gave some of our views in the issue of December 8, but will be glad to receive thoughts from others.

* * * *

Sr. Fannie LeCrone, of Helena, Oklahoma, writes: "We have an interesting union Berean class here. We have five denominations represented, and we take turns in giving lessons. I lead this week--subject, David the Type of Christ. We brought out many points of truth that are being manifested in this present time."

* * * *

Berean work is especially valuable because classes like the above can be organized even where only one or two members of the faith live. In this way others are taught gradually until they become candidates for baptism, and thus the Berean work feeds the church.

* * * *

Bro. Sidney Jackson, though busy with college duties at Grinnell, Iowa, finds time to read his Bible, and wisely observes that it is wrong to increase a young person's knowledge of other books, and not the Bible. And then as a matter of encouragement to others he sends the following article on Comfort.

* * * *

COMFORT

WHAT a wonderful thing is comfort! What do we need so much in a time of sorrow or trouble as comfort? Mankind was so made that we long for it in time of sorrow. It warms our bodies when they are chilled with sadness and the comfort of God warms our souls when they are chilled with sorrow. It is wonderful to feel the presence of God when for a time we have missed Him through misunderstanding. The God "who comforteth us in all our tribulation that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God" is the same God which is our Father in Heaven, and to Him we may turn in all times of need. How many of us, in the busy routine of daily life, are apt to forget for a time that even the things of this material and economical world may be made less burdensome if we will only carry the questions to Him who has said, "He who cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." Even in school life it is easy to drift away from a close connection with Jesus; for with studies piling up and reports to write it is hard to find time to study God's Word. It is hard to get the tired brain interested, but if we will only go to Him about it, things will iron themselves out and the sun will again peep through the clouds and make us glad that we had the courage of conviction which made us turn to our Savior. Our Jesus made a wonderful promise when He said, "If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it. If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father and he shall give you another Comforter that he may abide with you for ever." What more could we ask than has been promised us here? "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

* * * *

COMMENTS

Dear Bereans: The Herald, a faithful messenger, for January 25, 1927, has come brim full of good things for the inner man. Prov. 25:13. The article, "O Jerusalem", by Bro. S. E. Magaw, so touchingly leading the band of co-workers, reminds us of the words of David and Jesus, "Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, the city of the great King." Swear not by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. See Psa. 48:2, R. V. The great King being weary in His journey was reproved by a Samaritan woman for asking her for a drink of water. Please see the result, John 4:6-22.

Sister Lottie E. Young has a good article. "Witnessing" reminds us of John the Baptist's words in John 3: 27-30, "Ye yourselves bear me witness that I said I am not the Christ. He must increase but I must decrease." John established no church. See John 10:36-41, "John did no sign". But Jesus Christ, through His apostles, established "the church of God" by signs and wonders. Acts 2:22; 5:12-42; 19:11-16. John the Baptist's ceremony, if it is recorded, is in Acts 15:4, preparing a people to meet Jesus Christ in human nature. See Matt. 11:7-13. Jesus Christ's formula is recorded in Matt. 28:19, 20.

Then, on page 270, we have "Jesus Teaching Respect for Law", by Sr. Katie Davis, which is sound indeed. Jesus knew they did not respect law as they should, hence His teaching. John 1:17; Acts 3:22-24.

Something "About Probation" reminds us of Peter's preaching to the Gentiles. Acts 10:34, 35. When Peter was convinced he ordered Cornelius, once his friend, to be baptized in water thus sealing faith in Jesus' blood. Rom. 4:11-13, 23, 24.

Each article is worthy of mention, but space forbids.

Your brother in hope of life when the Chief Shepherd shall appear,

R. A. Humphreys.

WE MUST BELIEVE AS THE SCRIPTURES TEACH

BY J. T. AULD

CAN we believe error and be saved? Let Paul speak. "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins"—According to what Plato said? No!—"according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures."—1 Cor. 15:1-4. Now, Paul gives us to understand that if we want to be saved we must believe Christ died, soul and body, as the prophets foretold in the Scriptures. I hear someone ask, Where do the prophets say in Scripture that Christ's soul died? "My strength is dried up like a potsherd; and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws; and thou (God) hast brought me (Christ) into the dust of death."—Psalm. 22:15.

Dear reader, do you believe it? If not, read what Jesus said of Himself. "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore."—Rev. 1:18.

Paul informs us that our faith is vain if we believe not that Christ died (soul and body) for our sins—according to the Scriptures. "Yet it pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul (life) an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand."—Isaiah 53:10.

David, speaking concerning Christ, foretold of His death and suffering. He said: "Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell (the grave); neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption."—Psalm 16:9, 10.

How about the Jews that did not believe the Old Testament Scripture concerning Christ's birth, death, and resurrection? Is it not necessary to believe the Scriptures? I verily think so.

Now, if David said Christ's flesh should rest in hope, who dare say in this age of the world that He would have no use for His flesh body? Paul said, "We are members of his flesh and of his bones". Jesus, after His resurrection, said: "It is I (the same that died) handle me and see." If the Son of David according to the flesh, and Son of God according to the Spirit by a resurrection from the dead, is not the flesh that came from David's body, how could He be heir to David's throne? Or, in other words, if it is as C. T. Russel says, "Our Lord cast off His flesh-body and it is dissolved into gas", we have no Savior at all.

Let us see if what the Scriptures say about our Lord Jesus came true. Hear Peter: "For David speaketh concerning him (Christ), I foresaw the Lord always before my face; for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved. Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope: because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell (the tomb), neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou hast made known to me (Christ) the ways of life; thou shalt make me (Christ) full of joy with thy countenance."—Acts 2:25-28.

Why should Christ's flesh rest in hope if He would have no use for it? And why keep it preserved from corruption if He was not to take it up as a trophy into heaven, and there present Himself as the true Son of David, heir to his throne? Son of David, Son of God, the firstfruit of the human race to glory and immortality? How will the Jews see Him (Christ) if it is not the same Son of David? But He is now spiritualized by the power of God unto immortality for evermore. Yes, our Lord to-day is the same Jesus that was put to death on the cross. (Zech. 12:10.)

The above prophets settle all cavil. This same Jesus of which the Scriptures speak, did come as they had declared. If Paul and some of the other apostles should awake now and ask some of the creeds what church they represent, some would say Methodist, Baptist, Lutheran, Dunkard, Holy Trinity, Moravian, Nazarene, Unitarian, etc. The apostle would wonder and ask: "Please explain." They would have to say it is a worldly gathering for banqueting or feasting. But I imagine Paul would say: "Before my death I belonged to the Church of God in Jesus Christ, but I know nothing about such churches."

Yes, things have changed, and instead "men are teaching for doctrine the commandments of men".

Jesus said to the Sadducees: "Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God."—Matt. 22:29. Yes, dear reader, it is for our salvation, to know the Scriptures. Christ's own apostles did not understand the Scriptures foretelling His resurrection from the dead, John 20:9, but they all believed afterward that He died and rose again as the Scriptures had said.

The eunuch believed what the Scriptures said about Christ. "The place of the scripture which he read was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth", etc.—Acts 8:32-38. The eunuch believed on Jesus as the Scriptures hath said; and I believe, brethren and friends, we all have to do likewise. If we don't Paul said all his preaching was vain, and our faith is vain also. I. Cor. 15:1-4. Christ's disciples believed Christ was raised from the dead, according to the Scriptures. For after He was risen they said, "When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them, (before his death); and they believed the Scripture, and the word which Jesus had said."—John 2:22.

(Continued next week)

Chaim Nachman Bialik, the Hebrew poet laureate, caused somewhat of a sensation in Palestine when, in an address in Tel Aviv last week, he severely criticized those who publicly desecrated the Sabbath. He called upon the Jewish intelligentsia of Palestine to observe the Sabbath and severely condemned the playing of football on Saturday.—The New Palestine.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON VIII.—February 20.

SERVING IN AND THROUGH THE CHURCH

Matthew 5:13-16; Acts 2:42-47.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 3:14-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.

We are God's fellow-workers.—1 Corinthians 3:9, S. R. V.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

"Church" is a word peculiar to the New Testament. Its Greek derivation is "ek-klesia" of which "ek" means "out" and "klesia", coming from "kleo", means "to call". Properly, "those called out", "called out ones". It is used in Acts 7:38 of Israelites in the wilderness. The church of God is Biblically explained as being composed of individuals called out from the human race for special service with God's Son. There are two uses of the word in the New Testament: First, "church" as a whole refers to the entire group of all those in the gospel age who are being "called out" for this company, Acts 20:28; Gal. 1:13; second, the local division or group of the whole, 1 Cor. 1:2; Acts 16:5. Christ who is the Head of the church, Eph. 5:23, is the risen Christ who is a quickening Spirit. 1 Cor. 15:45. In no sense can He be reckoned carnal. His call by the gospel, Mark 15:16; Acts 13:46, is to the people of the Adamic race and nature to come out of, leave, forsake, the carnal ways and to become reckoned one with Christ, the new, spiritual Man. Rom. 8:9; Eph. 5:30. The New Testament church is an assembly of people who are following Christ with a view to activity, service, growth, as directed by Christ the spiritual Leader. The church is spiritual. See 1 Cor. 3:17; 6:15, 17; 2 Cor. 6:16-18; Eph. 2:18-22.

Church not Political. While the church is in the world and is a service of God in behalf of the world, yet the church itself, being spiritual, is wholly and entirely distinct from man's form of government, non-political. In Daniel 2 and 7 is definite information that God committed the political management of humanity unto man. Nebuchadnezzar was the first to whom such government was given. This arrangement continues until Christ returns to take unto Himself the kingdom. Dan. 2:44; 7:13, 14. In the meantime, Christ is calling out of all nations individuals whom He is assembling into a church. These are spiritual. The carnal nation and the spiritual church being contrary to each other cannot work together.

Service by the Church. The service of the church to God and Christ is therefore a spiritual service of devotion and action to carry God's truer, higher thoughts and ways unto the world. The service of the church to the world is that service of revealing the ways of God. Its service is the best aid that the world can have from man, far better than any aid which the church could possibly render by carnal or governmental service. Therefore, its duty is to serve, continuously, in its own field of spiritual activity, spiritual development.

'THE GOLDEN TEXT.

We are God's fellow-workers.—1 Cor. 3:9, Rotherham.

In John 5:17 Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. It is a grand thing for the Christian to have the assurance that he is a fellow-laborer with God. But to be good co-laborers there must be a unity of purpose and aim, and that purpose and aim must be in harmony with God's will. We get encouragement from Paul's letter to the Philippians, 2:13. He tells them to work out their own salvation with fear and trembling, and then adds, "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do his good pleasure." If it is God working in us, then, who should have the glory?—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Work as one. Salt. One grain of salt would not ordinarily exert an influence upon a mess of pottage, but several grains combined would give savour and preservation. The church is similar. It is made up of many individual particles. Each individual member is as much called by Christ through the gospel as any other individual member. In order to salten the earth with the savour of spiritual life it becomes necessary that Christians shall work together as one body of people under one Leader. Christ is that Leader.

Light. Every individual member of the church, like Christ Himself, is a light to the world. But like the little match that would undertake with its light to illuminate the countryside, so the individual Christian in the church would accomplish much less than as though it were associated with myriads of others. Again, like the electrically illuminated boulevards extending for miles through the country with lights frequently established, all attached to one feeder and system, so are Christians united to one Head, Christ, to illuminate the world.

Duty. One who has received spiritual blessings from God is in turn bound to serve his fellowmen so that they may become recipients of like blessings. Serving through the church is the constant duty of each and every member of the church. No Christian service can possibly be replaced by service, ever so good, in a non-Christian manner.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

God made nations, Acts 17:26; God made church: The difference between serving as a member of a nation and serving as a member of a church.

The church as a light in the world.

The church as a present habitation of God. Eph. 2:22.

The church as a medium for manifesting the will of God. Eph. 3:10.

QUESTIONS.

Define church.

Was the congregation of Israel, Acts 7:38, the same church as the church of God; Acts 20:28?

What is meant by salt, light, candlestick, city, in the lesson?

Is the church an aid and strength to the individual member?

Whence does a member in the church gain his position? 1 Cor. 12:18, 27, 28; Eph. 5:31, 32.

Is the individual member duty bound to the church?

Name different ways in the individual may serve the church.

Name different ways in which the individual Christian may serve the world.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sr. Ethel Austin is spending a few days in Chicago.

* * *

Bro. Siple will fill his regular second Sunday appointment at the Adeline church Sunday, Feb. 13.

* * *

We trust Bro. Austin is enjoying his "Rest-Cure". As he was leaving we told him to forget us if he could. We have not heard from him.

* * *

Bros. Paul and Arthur Johnson were pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening, February 1, by a visit from their father, Adolph Johnson of Sac City, Iowa.

* * *

Sr. Chas. Gesin of Oregon is at Forreton, Illinois caring for Sr. Anna Smith's children while Sr. Smith is in Chicago attending the funeral of her father-in-law.

* * *

Sisters Earl Thayer and Floyd Stilson of Oregon are spending a few days at the home of their parents, Bro. and Sr. Hugh Shafer, Plymouth, Indiana. Sunday, February 6, was Sr. Shafer's birthday anniversary.

* * *

The Golden Rule Class of the Oregon Sunday School held a meeting last Saturday evening, February 5, at which Sr. Vivian McGraw was elected president and Bro. J. Arthur Johnson, secretary-treasurer. Some of the meetings of this class have had much to do in improving the Sunday School and church work.

The services at the new Dixon church, Sunday, Feb. 6, were largely attended, indications being that if they had regular pastoral work they would soon need a larger church. The weather was ideal, and quite a number motored from distant points for the morning service.

Their Sunday School attendance ranges from 50 to 75, a large per cent of which will be found between the ages of 7 and 14. This indicates splendid future prospects for the church.

* * *

MICHIGAN THRILLS Sunday, January 30

Well, we had them last Sunday, and if anyone interested in the growth of Michigan's religious work would enjoy just such a thrill, come to the new church in Grand Rapids and you will certainly get all you are asking for.

Bro. Hall's family were all up very early Sunday morning studying the quarterly, and preparing to go to the church early to do any necessary work before the Sunday school hour. Early as it was, when we reached there, three young people were already there; and they kept a steady line of march until 10:30 when 131 had arrived. Promptly, on time, Bro. Townsend, the Superintendent, announced the hymn; and what a jubilee sounded forth from nearly all these throats! After the preliminaries, six classes marched to the basement, as Sr. Townsend played the piano, and even then the church was nearly filled with the three remaining classes. A week ago the attendance was 151, but bad, slippery roads and sickness kept several away to-day. The enthusiasm of all gave one a taste of spiritual life long desired.

We are sorry to learn of Bro. Patrick's illness. He had announced his subject for to-night as Baptism and as he had been holding a series of meetings for the purpose of educating all on Bible themes, and this subject seemed next in line, I was asked to deliver it. I had no idea I could fill Bro. Patrick's place, but did my best and that was all I could do. I had the very best of attention from old and young and at the close of the meeting found several "almost persuaded", and I feel sure that with some earnest visiting among them there may be acknowledgements of acceptance of the good news of salvation. For this we ask your united prayers.

We understand that Bro. K. N. Woodward and wife are in a serious physical condition. I will try to see them and Bro. Patrick in Caledonia this week.

About three weeks ago the boys of the intermediate class of this Sunday School had a Father and Son banquet which was greatly enjoyed and added to the interest of the school. The occasion was one in honor of the boys' class which recorded the highest attendance for a given time.

Next Thursday at 1:30 p.m. the sisters of the church and women of the vicinity will meet in the church basement for the purpose of organizing a Dorcas society which will seek to relieve the needs of many mothers with families having no sewing machines. visit the sick, and seek many other ways of doing good.

Sr. Holly's mother, Sr. Watts, is with her now and is enjoying comfortable health although unable to walk or help herself but very little.

Sr. Hewitt is still very sick and must have constant care.

Bro. and Sr. Geo. Benaway have been quarantined for scarlet fever for the last four weeks, but expect to be released next Friday.

M. A. Woodward.

* * *

REPORT FOR JANUARY, 1927

Sermons: Hammond, Louisiana, 16; Hillisburg, Indiana, 1; Culver, 1; St. Louis, Missouri, 2; Blush, Missouri, 4.

Baptisms, 1. Funerals, 1.

Money received in Indiana: Hillisburg, $12.50; Conference Board, $37.50.

Note: The Conference Board does not pay funeral expenses. (I don't think they should.) When the relatives do not pay, I have to pay and give my time.

J. H. Anderson.

Still going up. A few more blocks; a little more mortar; then over the top. Let's go! F. A. S.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual Business Meeting of the Church of God at Oregon, Illinois, was held January 17.

The church work is very much benefited by the faithful work of the choir under the direction of Sr. Bernice Rogers. Bro. Austin gave a talk on church finance and the importance of tithing. He suggested that the largest amount be given to local work, second to work of the State, and third to National work. He also emphasized the fact that all three of these labors were necessary.

Reports of the different phases of the local work were given. Each showed good work in its line.

In the election of officers that followed Delos Andrew was elected trustee for one year to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bro. Cross. Fred Knodle was re-elected trustee for three years as his term expired this year.

Mabel Andrew was re-elected Secretary, and Elizabeth Ordnung was re-elected treasurer. Leland Hanson and Arthur Johnson were elected Deacons, with William McGraw and William Hardesty, Assistant Deacons. Sr. Julia Ordnung was elected Deaconess, with Sr. Mary Gesin for assistant.

The church work is very much benefited by the faithful work of the choir under the direction of Sr. Bernice Rogers.

Bro. Austin gave a talk on church finance and the importance of tithing. He suggested that the largest amount be given to local work, second to work of the State, and third to National work. He also emphasized the fact that all three of these labors were necessary.

Mabel Andrew, Sec'y.

* * *

BEHOLD! BEHOLD! HE COMETH!

Behold, thy King cometh.—Zech. 9:9

Behold, behold, He cometh,
The everlasting King!
O earth, rejoice to meet Him,
O floods, His praises sing!
He comes to bring His glory,
And make our sorrows cease;
O earth, take up the story,
And hail the Prince of Peace!

Behold, behold, He cometh,
To wipe away our tears;

Long have we waited for Him,
Lo, He, our God, appears!
The King in all His beauty
Soon shall our eyes behold,
And dwell in His fair city,
And walk the streets of gold.

Behold, behold, He cometh,
With many a flaming crown;
All kingdoms fall before Him,
Before Him kings bow down:
Angels and men adoring,
Low at His footstool fall,
With singing go before Him,
And crown Him Lord of all.

Behold, behold, He cometh!
At midnight sounds the cry;
Ye virgins, rise to meet Him,
The Bridegroom draweth nigh:
Oh, let your lamps be burning,
Oh, watch, and wait, and sing,
Till Christ, from heav'n returning,
The crown of life shall bring.
—H. L. Hastings.

* * *

Remember me, O Lord, with the favour that thou bearest unto thy people: O visit me with thy salvation; that I may see the good of thy chosen.—Psa. 116.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIOAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Crist?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c. God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.

The First Resurrection, 100 for $2:50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.

A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Each

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate: Robison vs. Conner $.05

Earlier Life-Truth Exponents .15

Will It Pay to Become a Christian? .25

The Visitor, 212 pages .50

The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages

Illustrated. Suitable for Gift. .90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,

Oregon, Illinois

L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.

Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.

L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois.

F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

SERVING IN AND THROUGH THE CHURCH

BY DAISY NOKES

Memory verse: Matthew 5:14.—“Ye are the light of the world.”

How many of you can sing, “Jesus Bids Us Shine”?

*Jesus bids us shine,
With a clear, pure light,
Like a little candle
Burning in the night,
He looks down from heaven,
Sees us shine, you in your Small corner and I in mine.*

Jesus loved the great outdoors. He often spoke to the large crowds of men, women, and children outdoors. Wherever He happened to be He stopped and preached to them. He taught His disciples while walking along the road.

One day Jesus went up to a mountain and sat down and taught His disciples the most wonderful sermon that ever was spoken.

He said, “Ye are the salt of the earth”, and “Ye are the light of the world.”

Now you all know that salt makes our food better. He wished His disciples to be like salt and make other people around them better. He also wanted them to be lights in the world.

Why do we use lights? To light the way in the dark. Jesus had taught the disciples about the kingdom. They were told to go into all the world and preach the gospel, the good news of Christ's coming kingdom here on earth. The people did not understand about the kingdom, it was dark to them, so the disciples were to teach them and light their way. The disciples were to be lights.

You, too, can be lights to lighten the way for other little girls and boys who don't understand God's plan.

Children who hope to be with Jesus when He comes again are good children. They want to be fit to be with Him. They are kind to others. If children could only see the troubles of other children they never would say naughty things or be unkind. They would feel sorry. Others would then see their good works and they, too would want to be ready and waiting when Jesus comes. They would then be serving Jesus by helping others.

After Jesus had gone to heaven, those who loved Him came to be together. They put all their money and goods together and each one was cared for and they all shared alike. They loved to go to church and help in the service. Twice a day they went to the church. Besides this they had meetings in private homes, where they met and thanked God and talked over things about Jesus. These people were called the early church. Each one was a light to those people living around.

Who is the great, shining Light from whom they got their light? Yes, Jesus is the great Light of the world?

QUESTIONS

What did Jesus call His disciples?

Salt and Light of the earth.

What did He want them to do?

To make others around them good, and light the way so they, too, could find the way to Jesus.

We wish to thank Sr. McClelland for her kind letter on baptism. We can easily use it for the children.

THE COMING OF CHRIST AND WHAT HE IS COMING FOR

By One of Our Juniors

CHRIST is coming in the person of a man and immortal Savior. “This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner”.—Acts 1:11.

“I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven”.—Dan. 7:13.

“And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.”—Matt. 24:30.

“And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.”—Luke 21:27.

“And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.”—John 14:3.

“And to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to come.”—1 Thess. 1:10.

“For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first.”—1 Thess. 4:16.

“When he shall come to be glorified in his saints”.—2 Thess. 1:10.

“Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him”.—Rev. 1:7.

I think that is sufficient proof of His coming.

He is to set up a kingdom on earth and to reign as King.

“Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all.

Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might."—1 Chron. 29:11, 12.

"And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established (or prepared) in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we shall walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."—Isa. 2:2-4. See also Micah 4:1-3.

"Then shall the moon be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously."—Isa. 24:23.

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."—Isa. 9:6.

"And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever."—Dan. 2:44.

"And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 8:11.

"And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Matt. 19:28.

"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats: and he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."—Matt. 25:31-34.

"But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom."—Matt. 26:29.

"And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. He said therefore, "A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return."—Luke 19:11, 12.

"Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not of this world:

if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence."—John 18:36.

"When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"—Acts 1:6.

". . . confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God."—Acts 14:22.

"And the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen."—2 Tim. 4:18.

"Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?"—James 2:5.

"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."—Rev. 11:15.

"And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night."—Rev. 12:10.

The Holy City coming down from God out of heaven. "And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."—Rev. 21:2-4.

"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."—Rev. 22:12.

These are the reasons why I believe Jesus Christ is coming to the earth.

I have twelve hundred words in my story. I am twelve years old. My name is Cora Davidson.

(This little girl lives way down in "The Land of Cotton", and was very busy helping mother and father during the cotton-picking harvest, yet she took time to give not only one reason for her hope of the dear Lord's coming, but many reasons.—Daisy Nokes.)

—o—
"One hill cannot shelter two tigers."

—o—
"A jewel is a wonderful thing to possess. But it remains always a single jewel, and nothing more. A seed may seem poor in comparison, yet from one precious seed, whole harvests may some day have overspread a continent. The noblest lives are more like seeds of example and effort than they are like jewels."

NOTES FROM THE TRAINING CLASS

By Mary A. Gesin

THE Tuesday night training class at Oregon has been studying a very profitable and interesting series of lessons dealing with methods of teaching especially with reference to Sunday school and church work, with Bro. Floyd Stilson as teacher. In the text books we are using, pupils are classed according to age into seven groups, ranging from early childhood to the adult, and methods of dealing with them are being studied with special application to each division. How best to reach the pupil in the different ages, find the point of strongest appeal, and guide his activity into the proper channels, are some of the problems we are trying to solve.

In the first group, early childhood, those under six years of age, the fact that stands out most prominently is the impressionability of his mind. How important, then, that the proper impressions are received. His activity at this age, and in fact through several succeeding years, must be used and directed rather than repressed. His love of stories forms a strong point of contact in Sunday school work.

In middle childhood, ages six to nine, we find this same activity more controlled and reasoning power awakening to form ideas of right and wrong. The teacher should be consistent, open and sincere in answering the child's questions. At this age we find the child's ideals very pronounced and his imitative power leading him to be like those nearest and dearest to him. The influence of teacher as well as parent, is greatest at this age.

Later childhood, ages nine to thirteen, marks a distinct advance in the development of many characteristics which are apparent more fully in later life. The child is no longer self-centered, but begins to be interested in his companions. He does not imitate his elders so much, but rather those of his own age, fixing his own standards of right and wrong. In short, he has "ideas of his own", which often conflict with those of parent and teacher. These ideas should not be ridiculed or repressed but molded and guided into principles which make for upright, self-reliant manhood and womanhood. At this age, Jesus as a man who accomplished things very much worth while, will make His strongest appeal. The child will learn to love Him for what He did rather than for what He was.

Memory is said to be best in these years, which emphasizes the importance of storing away gems of Scripture for use in adult life.

This is also the habit-forming age, and habits formed in this period are more lasting than those formed at any other time of life. Instincts found in every child, among which may be named shyness, sympathy, modesty, sociability, jealousy, love of praise, are being developed into habits. For a habit is nothing more than an instinct yielded to repeatedly. How important, then, that we endeavor to cultivate desirable instincts and eliminate those undesirable before they have become fixed into habits difficult to eradicate.

In another issue we will consider the next two divisions, early and later adolescence.

PEACE, WONDERFUL, ABIDING PEACE

By Edward J. Orr in "Our Hope"

"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth, give I unto you."—Words of the world's Redeemer in John 14:27.

THIS is the peace that comes to him who is filled with the Holy Spirit. "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control"—Gal. 5:22. These are the words of Paul, and if any man was prepared to speak advisedly concerning the fruits of the Spirit, it was surely the great apostle to the Gentiles. He suffered all kinds of hardships, persecution, hunger and thirst, heat and cold, but he said: "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I may finish my course, and the ministry I received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God."—Acts 20:24.

The unsaved man has no conception of the Spirit-filled life. "The word of the cross is to them that perish foolishness, but unto us who are saved it is the power of God."—1 Cor. 1:8. To such it is like speaking in a language of which he has no knowledge. But the lives of Spirit-filled people will finally convince the thoughtful, that in the hearts of such persons is a propelling force, leading them to loving service for others, and to be anxious for their salvation.

The worldly, self-indulgent, pleasure-seeking church members do not realize what is their great privilege to enjoy, and that they are disobeying God, who commands them to "be filled with the Spirit", as their birthright, if really and truly "born again", according to the requirement of the Gospel. In view of the impending Second Advent of our Lord, every professing Christian should be fully prepared to meet Him. Every one should pause and take stock of his or her real preparation, for the greatest event which has ever, or will ever, visit this old world on which we live.

When the sign of the Son of man appears in the firmament, and the myriad angelic host appears, how would you like them to find you at the card table, the dance, dressed in shockingly immodest garb worn by women and girls of to-day? And violating the divine command respecting "the putting on of gold or costly apparel", denuded of the long hair which Paul said was given her for a covering and the glory of woman? 1 Cor. 11:15.

Policemen say that they have to be very careful nowadays in making arrests of female disputables, since respectable women make so much use of cosmetics, bob their hair, and all dress alike. It is not so long ago since Christians were known because of their plain dress, and the absence of jewelry. When men professing to be followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene did not attend horse-races, theatres, smoke and such like, and were "living epistles known and read of all men". Their words and their lives gave proof that they "had been with Jesus", and learned of Him.

The Spirit-filled man or woman has no desire for anything their Lord has forbidden. They don't take their children away from the house of God on Sunday, but rather lead them there. They pray with and for their children at the family altar. They attend the prayer-meeting and all the means of grace. They liberally support the Lord's cause with tithes and offerings. They are kind to the sick and relieve the needy, and are always full of peace and joy, no matter what befalls. They can sing at all times—

*Oh! the peace the Saviour gives,
Peace, I never knew before;
And my way has brighter grown,
Since I've learned to trust Him more.*

ANXIETY

Selections by M. A. Woodward

ANXIETY is the rust of life, destroying its brightness and weakening its power. A child-like and abiding trust in Providence is its best preventive and remedy.—Tyron Edwards.

Do not anticipate trouble, or worry about what may never happen. Keep in the sunlight.—Franklin.

How much have cost us the evils that never happened.—Jefferson.

It is not the cares of to-day, but the cares of to-morrow that weigh a man down. For the needs of to-day we have corresponding strength given. For the morrow's needs we are told to trust. It is not ours yet.—G. McDonald.

Anxiety is a word of unbelief or unreasoning dread. We have no right to allow it. Full faith in God puts it to rest.—Horace Bushnell.

When we borrow trouble, and look forward into the future and see what storms are coming, and distress ourselves before they come as to how we shall avert them if they ever do come, we lose our proper trustfulness in God. When we torment ourselves with imaginary dangers, or trials, or reverses, we have already parted with that perfect love which casteth out fear.—H. W. Beecher.

He is well along the road to perfect manhood who does not allow the thousand little worries of life to embitter his temper, or disturb his equanimity. An undivided heart which worships God alone, and trusts Him as it should, is raised above anxiety for earthly wants.—Geikie.

Let us be of good cheer, remembering that the misfortunes hardest to bear are those which never come.—J. R. Lowell.

Anxiety is the poison of human life, the parent of many sins, and of more miseries. In a world where everything is doubtful, and where we may be disappointed, and be blessed in disappointment why this restless stir and commotion of mind? Can it alter the cause, or unravel the mystery of human events?—Blair.

Sufficient to each day are the duties to be done and the trials to be endured. God never built a Christian strong enough to carry to-day's duties and to-morrow's anxieties piled on the top of them.—T. L. Cuyler.

Take therefore no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.—Jesus, Matt. 6:34.

“WHATSOEVER YE DO”

“WHATSOEVER YE DO in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus”.—Col. 3:17.

If each Christian would adopt the above verse as his or her watchword for the year 1927, what a change would be noted before the change of the year. How often we do things for our own glory or our own advancement is only too well known by each of us.

To literally carry out the thought of this passage would mean to some that present occupation would need to be changed; to others it would mean a different standard of living; to all of us it would mean a change of habits. Shall we not all keep in mind this admonition throughout the year in our daily routine, in our contact with others, in building for the future and in the use of the funds which the Lord has entrusted to our care.—Moody Bible Institute Monthly.

The Word of God determines man's destiny according to his beliefs and actions.—C. E. R.

“SHALL NEVER DIE”

(Continued from front page)

all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.” Also 1 Thess. 4:16, “For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air”.

There was no suggestion in the Savior's language that to believe in Him then or now would keep a person from dying. It is a recognized fact that physical, Adamic death comes just as quickly to a Christian as to a person who does not believe in Christ. Belief in the Savior is not intended to keep a person from dying the natural death of mortality, but rather to make one worthy of the better resurrection. And so the Lord explained further that those living and believing at the time of the resurrection would not pass into death, but would be changed from mortality to immortality, translated into the likeness of the Son of God Himself.

It is for us, then, to recognize Christ as the Law-Giver, the Resurrection and the Life, to consecrate ourselves to His service, and to order our lives so that though we die yet shall we be raised, or if still living at His coming, we shall never die.

THE TIME ELEMENT IN CONSECRATION

THE consecration of one's life must obviously include the consecration of his time. Because of the splendid uses to which it may be put, and because of its relation to eternity it must be regarded as a sacred thing, to be used thoughtfully and under the sway and direction of a serious and worthy purpose in life. It is important for a man to learn to value time. "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Thus, wisely prayed the Psalmist. The proper valuation of time is the beginning of wisdom and lays the foundation of great achievement. Edison is a wonderful genius, but no doubt his value and thorough use of his time has had as much to do with this success as his towering genius. Indeed, hard work and the proper use of time constitute a larger part of genius than we imagine they do.

Time is so valuable as to be invaluable. "Dost thou love life?" asked Benjamin Franklin. "Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff that life is made of."

"Time wasted is existence, used is life."

The consecration of our time means the consecration of our lifetime.

"Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth before the evil days come." To remember God and establish right relationship with Him in the day of youth is to open the doorway to a lifetime of service. Life is the gift of God. He has a right to its consecration for lifetime service. It is the part of a shirker to neglect God through a lifetime and then seek His forgiveness when he is ready to die. Death-bed repentance is better than no repentance, and God never turns an earnest and true seeker away, but it signifies the wasting of a lifetime from the standpoint of God's purpose for man. The soul may be saved at the last moment, but the lifetime has been lost—lost to the service of God. Billy Sunday says: "Death-bed repentance is like burning the candle at both ends and then blowing the smoke in God's face."

If God is to get the benefit of much service on the part of an individual, it is a practical necessity for him to make consecration of his life in the days of his youth, for a very small percentage of those who do not come to Christ in youth, ever come to Him at all. Carefully prepared statistics show that sixteen out of twenty, or eighty per cent of all Christians become Christians before they are twenty years of age. Only four per cent of all Christians become Christians after they are twenty-five years of age. If you have not become a Christian by the time you are twenty-five, the chances are twenty-five to one against you that you ever will. The days of youth are great, God-given days in which to decide for Christ and make possible a whole lifetime of faithful and fruitful service.

Consecration of our time means also a proportion of our time definitely set apart to the service of Christ. One of the commonest excuses for failure to participate in Christian activity is "No time." No man has a moral right to so fill up his time as to have no time for Christ. The Sabbath Day is a standing witness to the fact that some of the time is God's to be used for His highest and holiest purposes for the glory of God and the good of man. "No time" is a mere excuse. It is a part of the business of living to find time for God—time to worship and time to serve Him.

Hannah More has well said: "He who cannot find time to consult the Bible will one day find he has time to be sick; he who has no time to pray must find time to die; he who cannot find time to reflect is most likely to find time to sin; he who can find no time for repentance will find an eternity in which repentance is of no avail; . . ."

To live a whole life in right relationship with God, to give Him a just proportion of our time in definite service is to bring our time under the sway of a true consecration. In doing this we redeem the time and not merely use it. We transform it into eternity by living it aright.—Young People.

THE World War of 1914 to 1918 was the greatest catastrophe that has yet afflicted the human race. Whatever its causes and whether it could have been avoided or not, little good and much evil has come out of the War.

But one good thing resulting from the War cannot be denied. The Great War made possible the realization of this dream of many centuries which has inspired the finest intellects amongst the Jewish people for generation after generation. So far as Great Britain is concerned, speaking as an old Parliamentarian and a member of the Party which is the alternative Government to the present administration, I can say with confidence that Great Britain will do her part and will conscientiously fulfill the terms of the mandate and the Balfour Declaration.—J. M. Kenworthy, in The New Palestine.

THE government statistics of Palestine showed that the country has a population of 641,000 Moslems, 158,000 Jews, 78,000 Christians, and 10,000 of various other denominations.

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 15, 1927

NUMBER 20

BE YE SEPARATE

BY SAMUEL E. HANEY

"And with many other words he testified, and exhorted them, saying, Save yourselves from this crooked (perverse, Emph. Diag.) generation."—Acts 2:40, R. V.

WHY did Peter caution and exhort the disciples with such an awe inspiring ejaculation?

Let us review the events of Acts 1 and 2 that led up to such a successful and happy consummation by noting particularly the high lights.

After many months of fellowship and tutorage the disciples' Yokefellow and Leader began giving them the saddest and most amazing surprises of their lives, when He said, "A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father." "They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? We cannot tell what he saith". Read John 16:16-17.

Now the time of His departure had arrived, and without the restoration of the kingdom of Israel, which was the paramount desire of His disciples: "When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" He discountenanced their request by saying unto them, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in his own power."—Acts 1:7. He thus diverts their thoughts by explaining how they were to be put to work as love-slaves, "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."—V. 8. This was His last oral, face-to-face message. The happenings next must have produced the saddest period of the disciples' lives: "And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

They then (about 120) returned to Jerusalem and retired to an upper room where, upon their own initiative, they selected, by lot, a successor to Judas; and Matthias was chosen. Had they not acted so hastily they would have had the guidance of the Holy Spirit; an endowment they received at Pentecost. God, however, had selected Saul of Tarsus. See Rom. 1:1; Acts 9.

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance. And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven. . . . and every man heard them speak in his own tongue"—seventeen different languages. What amazement, seeing that the speakers were all Galileans!

"They were pricked in their heart" as the result of Peter's discourse, Acts 2:14-36, "and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter replied, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."—Verse 38.

The foregoing days of surprises, for both disciples and the world, are soon to occur again.

About a hundred years ago world-wide constructive surprises began: Robert Fulton's steamship "Clermont" made its first trip on the Hudson when the first foreign missionary movement was being launched. In 1825 Stephenson built his first railway locomotive. In 1838 the first steamship crossed the Atlantic under steam power alone. In 1844 the first long-distance telegraph system was successfully demonstrated. But Benjamin Franklin's discovery of the identity of lightning with the electric fluid seemed to breed a multiplicity of surprises.

Some fifty years ago destructive surprises began gnawing like "canker" (gangrene) at church, finance, society, and state. Paul's prophetic description of the church: "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears: and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables". In twenty years the dollar has depreciated sixty per cent, or more. Society (society first) and Christianity have become so amalgamated that a physician's microscope could not develop a distinction. And, as for state, lawlessness has well nigh constructed its Juggernaut to crush law and order as its victims.

The religious unity of Latin America and the immensity of China and its population are rapidly becoming the most fearful and perplexing problems that statesmen have ever wrestled. And wrestled with they must be; first, mentally, and then, as all tokens indicate, a finale of might and main. Selfishness, the underlying cause of sin, has cast the die. These two Goliaths, Catholicism and the yellow man, are forcing the issue by courting trouble.

All are familiar with the religious status of the Papal church; but few realize the greatness of China and its people. A compendium: China covers more square miles than the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Norway, Spain, and Japan all put together. It has a larger population than the United States and all Western Europe, including Germany and Italy. Some of its twenty-two separate provinces are larger than either France or Germany. The dialects in many of these provinces differ so that people cannot understand each other, though they are all Chinese. About one in every five of earth's inhabitants is a Chinese. China is now having civil strife, but it will soon be united, shoulder to shoulder, fighting its invaders.

It was at the close of the law dispensation, when the evil spirit's "bounds" were becoming loosened, that Peter addressed Israel after the flesh. And now, in the closing days of the Gospel dispensation when the evil spirit's "bounds" are again relaxing, no advice could be more important to Israel after the spirit (all Christians) than the apostles' admonition, "Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit", and "save yourselves from this crooked generation". R. V.

We read of Noah's day: "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually"—Gen. 6:5. It was thus in Lot's day and also at the destruction of Jerusalem, the greatest holocaust of history, when 1,250,000 souls perished. But of the inevitable catastrophe man now faces, it is written, "A time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation". The inference is that this is the crookedest generation of all time. Metaphorically speaking, were "that great and mighty city Babylon", with its citizens ("our citizenship is in heaven".—Phil. 3:20, R. V.) incinerated it would make crooked ashes.

In the face of these conditions, the above being but a skimming, how important that every soldier of Jesus Christ, 2 Tim. 2:1-4, be zealous in sounding the alarm, "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty". God sets His seal to this promise.

OLD WINE IN NEW BOTTLES

Selected by Alice B. Curtis

NO man also having drunk old wine straightway desireth new: for he saith, The old is better." So spoke Jesus. He often used striking illustrations in order to make Himself clearly understood. We think there can be no misunderstanding of His meaning here. Old wine is better than new. There is a seasoning that age confers upon it. The older it is the better it becomes. Old wine represents the one eternal, unchanging religion that has been in the world since the days of Abel. It grows better with time; it improves with age in every individual experience, yet it cannot be improved upon by art, science, invention, or evolution of man.

"Anything that is new in religion," said Mr. Wesley, "is not true." God has to prepare the old wine of the kingdom by the various dispensations. The old wine again and again has had to be put in new bottles, but has itself remained the same. No new wine is needed, only new bottles for the old. The bottles have changed their shape, material and style with the increasing ingenuity of man; but the old wine admits of no substitute. Many have desired new wine because of the new bottles: but while the new wine is not adapted to old bottles, old wine adapts itself to either new or old bottles.

We have respect and bow with veneration to those gray-headed truths which by their age prove their fitness to remain. We believe in the "survival of the fittest" And the fittest is that old wine of the kingdom that retains its life and fire. It exhilarated Abraham, made glad the heart of Isaiah, lifted Paul above the depression of his environments and intoxicated the church at the Pentecost. And there has nothing better been found for the modern church. We deprecate the search or desire for anything as a substitute.

Make all the new bottles you will, but there is nothing better than the Old Wine. We like old wine because it has passed the transition period. It is fixed. The church universal must come back to these old tried truths. Old wine imparts new vigor. The oldest is really the newest in the kingdom of God. Christianity is a life-force in the soul, and every departure from their ends in formalism, ritualism, decay, and death.—The Indianapolis Star.

JESUS CHRIST—WHO IS HE?

No. 18

By R. H. JUDD

HEBREW names are generally full of interest, and Bible names often have considerable significance as well as interest. I have marked in one of my Bibles the meanings and purposes of the various books of the Bible. Isaiah, means "Salvation of God", or "God saves", either of which is appropriate and significant of the theme of the book. Those who have followed my writings for some years past will have noticed my endeavor to give prominence to the thought that Salvation is of God. So many, in their desire to give honour to him "who died for us", seem to forget this great fact that "God saves". This wonderful thought is not only conveyed by the name Isaiah, but it permeates the whole book. In other parts of Scripture, God seems to stand, as it were, behind His representative, but here in this supreme matter of the salvation of man, when the time has come of which we indicated in previous articles, for a deeper and fuller revelation, God Himself stands forth in the grandeur of His majesty. Can we wonder, then, that this book of Isaiah is without a peer in the realm of literature, sacred or profane? It opens with a picture of SIN almost unparalleled in its pithy portrayal, it ends with its destruction in language that can leave no dubiety of its ultimate fate; but in between these extremes there is given us a plan—GOD'S PLAN—of Salvation.

Little by little we have been watching the gradual unfolding of the story of Him who is the pivotal center of its circumference, until in our human weakness we have felt the need of Divine interpretation in relation to its achievement, even though so far, "the half has only been told".

We cannot stay to quote all that is said of the successful carrying out of that which is foretold of the Messiah, who, up till now, at any rate, in regard to his nature is never represented in any other than human relationship. These facts are beautifully harmonized in Isa. 11:1, 2.

That the Messiah is to be of "THE STOCK OF JESSE" is put in all the baldness that language can display, and then, lest human reason should stagger at the greatness of the task laid upon Him, Jehovah reveals the fact that "the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, and the spirit of knowledge and the fear of the Lord, and he shall be of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord." Again in chapter 42, verse 1, God Himself speaks as if this were already done—"I have put my Spirit upon him . . ." Later, in the 61st chapter, part of which was quoted by our Lord, the source of power to be manifested by the Messiah is again given—"The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me . . ."

It is a wonderful study, the study of the Spirit of God. Job makes known to us the fact that GOD by His Spirit "garnished the heavens", 26:13. David declares that its presence is universal, Psa. 139:7, 8. And Paul of that same Spirit testifies that "in him (GOD) we live and move and have our being". Acts 17:28.

It is often contended the Jesus Christ (the Messiah) is the Creator of heaven and earth, but in this 42nd chapter of Isaiah GOD Himself lays claim to that honor, stating that He who created the heavens and the earth, also was the GIVER and sustainer of the Messiah who was to come, and that His glory (the glory of creation already spoken of) would He not give to another. Verse 9 is of particular interest in this connection. "Behold the FORMER things ARE come to pass . . ." What "former things" if not the things of creation already referred to? ". . . And NEW things DO I DECLARE, before they spring forth I tell you of them." Again we ask, What "new things" are referred to unless it be those just declared relating to the Messiah?

Very brief allusion must be made to the 49th chapter before we pass on to that well known passage, Isaiah 53. That the early verses of this chapter have reference to the Messiah is generally conceded, especially so are verses 5 and 6. In verse 5 the obvious inference is that the Messiah is called of GOD from the very commencement of His being. All through prophecy, as here, the primary mission of the Messiah is to "the tribes of Jacob". But GOD regards that as "too light a thing" for so faithful a "Servant", and further promises Him that He should be GOD'S salvation "unto the ends of the earth". The writer does not think that in this instance the word "earth" (eretz) is limited to any geographical portion of the earth as we now understand that word. Doubtless the word has more limited usage than is generally supposed by many Bible students, but such an interpretation would be entirely out of place here; for in that case the comparative extension of the honor would be extremely small. The present wonderful increase of knowledge, and the breaking down of all barriers between nation and nation encourages the belief that the prophecy will be literally fulfilled the world over.

We now come to the 53rd chapter of Isaiah. Probably no other passage among the prophets has made both Jew and Gentile to gaze in bewildered wonderment at its predictions. That it has definite reference to the Messiah cannot be questioned, much as the Jew would like to contest it. The passage really begins at the 13th verse of the previous chapter, and the designation there of the Messiah as GOD'S "Servant" identifies it with the prophecies we have just considered. It is interesting to note the change of the Revised Version from "prudently" to "wisely", and the high esteem in which wisdom is held as being a prominent characteristic of Him who is the theme of our studies. Hitherto the varied aspects of prophet, priest, and king, have each had share in prophecy. That of Sin-bearer has been shadowed in type and is now foretold in fact, and that, too, with a precision and definiteness not exceeded in any given phase of prophecy. The uppermost thought throughout the passage is that the suffering was not on His own account, but for the sins of others: "He was wounded for OUR transgressions, he was bruised for OUR iniquities, and the chastisement of OUR peace was upon him, and with his stripes WE are healed." "For the transgression of my people was he stricken". "He shall bear THEIR iniquities". "He bare the sin of many and made intercession FOR THE TRANSGRESSORS". These are some of the expressions occurring in a short passage of about 8 or 9 verses. Did time permit, much, very much, interesting comment might be made on this absorbing passage of Scripture, which is a marvel of condensed statement concerning the Messiah. We can only stay to point out some of the most remarkable features in the prophecy. Whether verse 4 can be interpreted to mean that the Savior suffered much sickness and pain may be open to question. We are, however, given at least one Scriptural interpretation in Matthew 8:17. There, the evident meaning is that He bore them away, and in exactly that same sense did He bare our iniquities. Thus is taken away one of the main supports of the doctrine that JESUS CHRIST was by nature "sinful flesh".

Verse 5. "He was wounded for our transgressions." The Variorum Bible tells us, He was "pierced for our transgressions" is the literal rendering of the Hebrew.

Verse 8. Here the study of the various possible renderings is well worth while. The underlying thought seems to be that none of His generation (contemporaries—Variorum Bible.) considered (cared) that He was cut off from the land of the living, even though the sentence of DEATH was really due to them—not Him.

Verse 9. Variorum rendering—"Men appointed his grave with the wicked and with the rich man his tomb." The Revised Version—"And they made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death." I quote on the authority of another that the word "rich" is in the singular and the word "wicked" is in the plural. (Note—If any reader can suggest why the word "death" in this verse, is in the margin said to be "deaths" the writer would be pleased to have the information. Reference is given to Ezek. 28:8, 10, but no explanation.)

Verse 10. "It pleased the Lord to bruise him." Why? One can only conjecture the reason to be that GOD looked beyond the suffering to the glories that shall be revealed. Paul did the same, for he said, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." If Christianity is a fact, IT IS A GREAT FACT, for the life that now is, and "for that which is to come."

WE ARE always getting ready to live, but never living. We have many years of technical education; then many years of earning a livelihood, and we get sick, and take journeys for our health, and compass land and sea for improvement by traveling, but the work of self-improvement—always under our nose—nearer than the nearest, is seldom engaged in. A few, few hours in the longest life.—Emerson's Journal.

I must work the works of Him that sent Me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.—John 9:4.

KINDNESS

LIFE IS made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles, and kindness, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.

The drying of a single tear has more of honest fame than shedding seas of gore.

Kindness is a language the dumb can speak, and the deaf can hear and understand.

A kind heart is a fountain of gladness, making everything in its vicinity freshen into smiles.

Kind looks, kind words, kind acts, and warm handshakes—these are secondary means of grace when men are in trouble and are fighting their unseen battles.

"I expect to pass through life but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do any fellow-being, let me do it now, and not defer or neglect it, as I shall not pass this way again."

Kind words produce their own image in men's souls, and a beautiful image it is. They soothe and quiet and comfort the hearer. They shame him out of his sour, morose, unkindly feelings. We have not yet begun to use kind words in such abundance as they ought to be used.

Each one of us is bound to make the little circle in which he lives, better and happier, bound to see that out of that small circle the widest good may flow. Each may have fixed in his mind the thought that out of a single household may flow influences that shall stimulate the whole civilized world.—Selected.

THE BIBLE

*On a hill stands a beautiful tree;
Its fruits are all golden and fair,
Its leaves and its treasures are free
For all who will to it repair.*

*Its leaves, O mystery profound!
Are for nations to eat and not die;
Its branches with music resound,
Its splendors enrapture the eye.*

*Tho' thousands by night and by day
Have feasted and gathered in store,
Have borne its rich bounties away;
Its fullness remains evermore.*

*On Zion's fair mount you behold
Its form in rich grandeur arise,
There glitters its green and its gold,
There lifts its tall head to the skies.*

*It was planted by infinite love,
From the hills everlasting it came.
Truth eternal, they call it above,
But, Bible, on earth is its name.*

Selected by Mrs. E. Pendleton.

MODERN SCIENCE VERIFIES THE BIBLE

Sketches from an article taken from "The American Weekly"

THE work of exploration in Bible lands, which was interrupted by the great war, is now proceeding with increased energy. At the present moment there are twelve expeditions of Bible scholars and archaeologists busy in Palestine alone. Almost every month discoveries are made of fascinating interest which throw new light upon the leading characters of the Old and New Testaments and confirm in unexpected ways the truth of the Scriptural narratives.

Three of the most notable achievements of the scientists, are the locating and uncovering of King Ahab's "Ivory Palace" in Samaria where Jezebel, the enemy of the prophet Elijah, was dashed to death from her window at the command of Jehu; the excavating of the Moon God's temple at Ur of the Chaldees, the birthplace of Abraham, which takes the Bible story of the Tower of Babel forever out of the realm of fable; and the rebuilding, from its ruins, of the actual synagogue at Capernaum, where the Savior preached and performed the miracle of driving out the evil spirit from the lunatic. The Ivory Palace was found by an expedition from the Harvard University, which has resumed its work in Samaria, abandoned in 1914 at the outbreak of . . . hostilities. Its foundation and lower rooms were covered by the Palace of Herod, which in its turn was destroyed. The scientists have cleared away the remains of the latter and are now uncovering those of the earlier structure. There is no doubt however that they have found the actual place described in 1 Kings. . . . Samaria was in those days the rich capital of the northern kingdom of Israel, and many wonderful monuments of the time still remain fairly easily accessible to the excavators' spades.

The work of the associated expeditions of the Pennsylvania University Museum and the British Museum of Ur has entirely confirmed the Biblical story of the Tower of Babel. There the scientists, attacking what at first sight seemed only a huge rubbish heap, have uncovered the gigantic temple of the Moon God. It was an immense affair, pyramidal in shape, and it towered a hundred feet in the air, and possibly twice that. It was used not only for worship of the gods of the Chaldeans, but as an astronomical observatory. Abraham must have seen it often. It was probably the last thing to remain in his sight as he journeyed out of Ur at the command of Jehovah. It was made of brick for stone, and slime for mortar just as the Bible says it was, the slime being a peculiar clay with hard-sticking properties. . . . There was a huge tower built of burnt brick and mud even as the Bible had said. The men who built it did think, that by making it high they could get closer to their gods, and literally, as Genesis puts it, erect a structure whose top might reach unto heaven. . . . From these facts science was able to read the underlying truth of the Tower of Babel, and the confusion of tongues.

". . . It was discovered by the scientists from ancient records they dug up, that Ur was invaded by a race speaking another language, whose soldiers sacked the city, put an end to the worship of the gods in the great tower, and took away hundreds of its citizens as slaves to other parts of the world. Here was clear confirmation of the Biblical statement. The Lord did confound the language, . . . and scattered them abroad upon the face of the earth. In other words, all the essential facts of the Old Testament records are absolutely verified. . . .

Every day sees new discoveries made in this field, and a whole flood of light may come from it concerning the early history of the human race. . . . Tablets of clay, inscribed in ancient cuneiform script that looks like arrowheads, and written many centuries before the time of Abraham, have been deciphered and confirm other passages in Genesis. The very word Eden as found in the phrases, "The Garden of Eden", is at last explained as the common word for "plain" in the ancient Sumerian language, so the simple meaning is the "Garden of the Plain" and so called because it was located in a great plain. . . .

The story of the Deluge has been found on the tablets in many versions, but in each and every one there is more than a reminder of the Bible story, for the description of the building of the ark, and the sending out of the dove and the raven to ascertain whether or not the flood had receded is on all of the tablets concerning the Deluge.

The most interesting discovery of all, to Christian and Jew alike is . . . the finding of the ancient synagogue in Capernaum. The ruins of this synagogue have been so well preserved that it is being put together on its original site, stone upon stone, column by column, so that in a few months at latest it will be possible to stand in this ancient place of worship and reconstruct in imagination one of the greatest scenes in the life of the Savior.

Professor Flinders Petrie, the distinguished English archaeologist, has made extensive excavations at the foot of Mount Sinai, where, as every Bible student knows, Jehovah handed the Ten Commandments to Moses. There he found not only a large Egyptian temple dedicated to the goddess Hathor antedating the time of Moses, but also eight tablets written in an ancient script, which Petrie could not decipher. A translation of them has been made by Professor Hubert Grimme. Grimme, who is the professor of Semitic languages in the University of Munster, Germany, thought he saw in the carved script traces of the ancient Hebrew, and at last he came to one tablet that so arrested his attention that upon it he concentrated all his great learning; for there in the ancient tracings were two names that neither he nor any other scientist would ever have expected to find together. The first was that of Hatshepsut, and the other was Jahu of Sinai. Hatshepsut he knew of course was that great queen of Egypt who had reigned about 1500 years before Christ, and Jahu of Sinai was . . . Jehovah, the God of Israel. What were these two names doing together?

Painfully, slowly, the scientist unraveled the characters, one by one, and when the last word of that ancient

(Continued on page 317, column 1)

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

TWO NEWS items, "King's Prayer Changed", on page 320, and "Sun Spots", on page 318, in this issue show that while man is longing for peace, he is confronted with Science which predicts that war and plagues await him.

* * * *

WORLD CRISIS

THIS CHALLENGING picture of the present-day crisis is reprinted from an editorial in the November Jewish Missionary Magazine.

Political Commotions.—What unrest appears among the nations of the earth! All manner of social disturbances, economic distress, strikes, unemployment, and dissatisfaction with the rewards of labor and the gains of business make statesmen stagger as they seek a solution that will bring peace to society. Legislatures in many modern states grope uncertainly after practical answers to their problems or utterly fail to function at all. Dictators arise in land after land. Poland is restive, wondering if her dictator will grasp the kingly crown. Mussolini holds Italy in his hand as he seizes the authority of an entire cabinet and wields such power as none has enjoyed since Napoleon Bonaparte. All Europe awaits in fear and trembling the next step he will take. Swiftly and silently he gathers the forces that are to weld into one the members of the former Roman Empire. The League of Nations steps uneasily, afraid and yet wielding more and more power. Its tenure of life is insecure. Its membership changes, and though Germany has entered the League, the fear of Teutonic vengeance disturbs the sleep of statesmen and the specter of a Russo-Germanic Mongolian alliance lurks ever in the background of European politics. The mightiest war of all history was waged to end war, yet the nations are more heavily armed than ever. It is an amazing spectacle for angels and men.

Moral and Spiritual State.—The world's awful need of Christ finds his Church engaged in consorting with the world to perfect human society and abolish war, and, except for a small remnant of faithful witnesses and their supporters forgetful of her sole task of evangelization. Great masses that profess the name of Christ are going into apostasy. The chief division of so-called Christianity has become Babylonian and seeks to mount the beast of worldly power now rising about the Mediterranean Sea. Possessing unparalleled wealth, the evangelical divisions of Christendom find themselves unable to continue their full task for lack of offerings, and are confronted in many fields of high promise with retrenchment, to their utter shame. Heathen fields were never so white to the harvest, but church boards cut down their budgets. Moslem lands were never so open and ready for the truth, yet the call for workers goes unanswered. And all the while crime and lawlessness grow like weeds in nearly every land. When Christ most needs a strong church, pulsating with life and vigor, Modernism and worldliness eat out the heart of her strength. Instead of watching for their Lord to return and solve the vast problems of lost humanity, multitudes of ministers and laymen postpone His coming and seek by worldly means to make their own millennium. No wonder the nations groan with pain, and hope dies out in countless hearts.

Israel's Reviving Nationality.—The world shows three signs of our Lord's return such as were never seen in like degree in any other day; the reviving of Israel, the apostasy in the churches, and the growth of lawlessness. These three stamp our time with special significance. Two thousand years of exile find the Jews fully scattered throughout the earth, yet turning with unwonted hope and vigor to their ancient homeland. Over one hundred thousand Jews have entered Palestine since 1919. This "budding of the fig tree" marks a national revival apart from faith in Christ, which can end only in new disaster of unparalleled magnitude and suffering because of their acceptance of the antichrist. By continued rejection of Jesus the Messiah, in the face of increasing light as to his person and relation to the nation, the Jews are swiftly preparing for their final, awful act of rebellion against their true Lord and Savior. All these things make our time peculiarly amazing and significant. "Watchman, what of the night?" The watchman said, "The morning cometh, and also the night."—Isa. 21:11, 12. —Bible Faith Mission Standard.

* * * *

Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted.—Matthew 5:4.

"Blessed" as used here is from the Greek, makarios and means "happy". And how can one be happy who mourns? How could we enjoy the starry heavens if the sun never set. There are blessings rich and deep which we cannot know until we mourn.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Martha Taylor; Mrs. Lilian Railton; Mrs. Annie Horgan; Ray Carpenter; Mrs. W. L. Canode; Floyd Carpenter; Morris Kent; Mrs. Thos. Savage; Alice Kerr; Eugene F. Moses; Grover Gordon; L. C. Anthon, Jr.; W. R. Anthon; Mrs. L. C. Anthon; Mrs. A. P. Trousdale; Horace Haines; Lee Sutherland.

National Berean Department

M. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

BY request we led the class at Rockford, Ill., Feb. 12, the lesson studied being No. 23, on war, but special attention was given to the tribulation period.

* * * *

Any religion which does not recognize the coming and kingdom of Christ, does not, of course, realize the approach of a Scripturally predicted "time of trouble". But peace is not to come to this earth through man growing gradually wiser and more Christ-like and thus rising above strife and discord into an era of righteousness and love. The vast majority of human beings are just as cruel and selfish and inclined to strife now as they were thousands of years ago. War is just as frequent and cruel as in the generation when the Savior was born.

* * * *

The purpose of this age or period of time is not to develop peace among the nations, nor even endeavor to "convert the world." No such plans or efforts were ever announced by Jesus or His disciples. But rather, the object is to call out a people for His name. This fact is emphasized over and over again in such texts as Rom. 8:28, 30; 1:7; 1 Cor. 1:2, 24; 1 Peter 2:9.

* * * *

That the world at large would develop even more and more of a warlike condition previous to the coming of Christ is evident in the Master's own sermon on the signs of the times recorded in Matt. 24:6-8; Joel 3:9-14.

* * * *

But when the proper number shall have been called out by the gospel, and developed and trained for the work which the Master will need them for in the next age, then this age will close. At that time the dead in Christ shall rise, and the living in Christ shall never die, but be caught up to meet their Lord in the air. 1 Thess. 4:13-17; 1 Cor. 15:51; John 11:23-26.

* * * *

The period of time during which the saints shall be caught up with their Lord is a very important one. For them it will be the culmination of glory and happiness, for they will be immortalized and joined with the Bridegroom as His bride, and instructed and prepared to help Him in the great work that lies beyond.

* * * *

It will be far from a condition of joy that will prevail over the earth at that time, however, for the warlike tendency will have reached its height, and the greatest struggle of the ages will break forth, engaging every nation in its throes. The vortex or center of strife and bloodshed shall fall in Palestine, the valley of Jehoshaphat, near Jerusalem, at which time the Jews who are going back to the homeland at the present time shall drink the last dregs of the cup of indignation. Before Pilate they asked that the blood of Jesus be upon their heads. It has rested there, bringing untold sufferings for nineteen centuries, and the worst is not yet. A few references bringing out the thoughts of this paragraph are: Joel 3:2, 14; Zech. 14:1; Isa. 66:16; Ezek. 39:4, 17; Dan. 12:1; Matt. 24:29.

* * * *

But the darkest part of the night is just before the dawn, and so the dark clouds of this terrible period will roll away at the breaking of earth's new day. The personal and visible appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ with His glorified saints will put an end to the war, and usher in everlasting peace. His throne and kingdom will immediately be established, and those who have been called out and glorified will be His helpers in the great work of ruling the nations. It is then that the song, "Prince of Peace", will find its fulfillment, and the Son of God will in reality be King of kings, and Lord of lords. Matt. 25:31; Zech. 14:1-5; Joel 3:13-15; Matt. 24:29, 30.

* * * *

It is through sufferings and trials and sacrifices that the beauties of character are developed in this life, and it is through sufferings that the world's beauties shall be developed for the ages to come.

* * * *

Let us, then, heed the admonition of Luke 21:36, and indeed watch and pray that we may be worthy to escape the great time of trouble, and stand before the Son of man.

* * * *

ABOUT THE TREE OF LIFE

DEAR BROTHER IN CHRIST: To all the dear ones that are looking for His kingdom. The Bereans have asked if the Tree of Life is still blooming. Don't you think that Christ is that Tree of Life now? All of those that are baptized and take of His body and blood are grafted into His life, or tree. That is the way I understand the Word. And He will reign from sea to sea, and from one end of the earth to the other.

Your sister,

Amy Johnson.

* * * *

"A lazy man cannot be a real Christian, and a Christian cannot be a real lazy man."—J. S. Wallace.

WE MUST BELIEVE AS THE SCRIPTURES TEACH

BY J. T. AULD

(Continued from last week)

IF Christ were not risen what would have been the result? Paul said, "Let us eat and drink; for tomorrow we die", 1 Cor. 15:32, and all hope of a future life is lost. Yes, we had better believe the Scriptures.

"Hath not the scriptures said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?"—John 7:42. Let us see if the Scripture said so: "The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; He will not turn from it; Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne."—Psa. 132:11.

Now, dear reader, if David had a body—and I believe he had—so sure will Christ have (and has) a body, a body of the fruit of David's body, or the whole plan of redemption will have to fail, and God will have to turn from what He said. "And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days reasoned with them out of the scriptures, opening and alleging that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ."—Acts 17:2, 3. So Paul reasoned with them and gave them the proof from the Scripture that it was the very Christ that rose from the dead that had hung on the cross, and no other.

Our Lord, after He rose from the dead, was an immortal being. He opened the Scriptures and said, "O fools, and slow of heart (understanding) to believe all that the prophets have spoken: ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into glory? And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself".—Luke 24:25-27.

After the apostles came the reformers: Tyndale, Justin Martyr, and others. So let us proceed to quote some of their sayings.

"If you have fallen in with some who are called Christians (like it is to-day) but do not admit this (truth) and venture to blaspheme the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, who say there is no resurrection of the dead, and that their souls, when they die, are taken to heaven, do not imagine they are Christians; but those who are right minded Christians on all points are assured that there will be a resurrection of the dead, and a thousand years in Jerusalem, which will then be built, adorned and enlarged (as) the prophets Ezekiel, Isaiah and others declare."—Justin Martyr.

"The heretics, despising the handiwork of God, and not admitting the salvation of the flesh, and the promise of God, contemptuously pass beyond God altogether in the sentiments they form and affirm that immediately upon their death they shall pass into the heavens."—Irenæus.

"Will you lay aside your habitual arrogance, O man, who claim God as your Father, and maintain that you are immortal just as He is? Will you inquire, examine, search what you are yourselves; who you are; of what parentage you are supposed to be; what you do in the world; in what way you are born; how you leap into life? Will you, laying aside partiality, consider in the silence of your thoughts that we are creatures either like the rest, or separated by no great difference?"—Chapter 2:16, Arnobius, A. D. 208.

"The lamp of the wicked shall be put out."—Solomon.

"How blessed and wonderful are the gifts of God—life in immortality."—First Epistle of Clement, A. D. 100.

"In putting departed souls in heaven, hell, and purgatory you destroy the argument wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. And the Pope joined the spiritual doctrine of Christ and the fleshly doctrine of philosophers together. And because the fleshly minded Pope consenteth unto heathen doctrine, therefore he corrupteth the Scriptures to establish it. If the souls be in heaven, tell me why they are not in as good case as the angels be and then what cause is there of the resurrection?"—William Tyndale.

Thank God, His word is not altogether perished from the earth, as there are a few that still believe the truth as it is written.

Now for the sayings of those that came out from the old whore, the papacy, the mother of harlots, in modern days.

"I permit the Pope to establish articles of faith for his followers; such as that the bread and wine are transmitted in the sacrament; that the divine essence is neither generative nor generated; that the soul is the substantial form of the human body, and himself the ruler of the world and king of heaven, and God on earth; and that the soul is immortal; and all the numberless prodigies of the Roman dunghill of decretals."—Martin Luther.

This quotation shows a radical difference in the belief of Luther and those that profess to be his followers today.

"Immortality in the Sacred Scriptures is never applied to the spirit of man. It is not the doctrine of Plato (the heathen) which the resurrection of Jesus proves. It is the immortality of the body of which His resurrection is a proof and pledge. This was never developed till He became the firstborn from the dead."—Campbell.

Hear the great preacher, Richard Watson, minister and bishop of the M. E. Church. Speaking of the nature of man, he said: "The philosophical difficulties which have presented themselves to this opinion appear chiefly to have arisen from supposing that consciousness is an essential attribute of spirit; and that the soul is naturally immortal; the former of which cannot be proved, while the latter is contradicted by Scripture, which makes our immortality a gift dependent on the will of the Giver."—Vol. 2, page 82, A. D. 1834.

Adam was made a living soul. Gen. 2:7.

(Concluded)

"Some thing to please Thee, Father, we would learn; some little deed to thank Thee with, instead of words; some little prayer to do, instead of say."

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON IX.—February 27.

MAKING THE COMMUNITY CHRISTIAN

Galatians 5:13-25.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 6:10-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.—Ephesians 5:11.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Making the community Christian necessitates converting the entire community. Conversion is the only means of becoming Christian. No community, in its every citizen, becomes converted to Christ. Therefore, there can be no real Christian community till after Christ shall have come.

Christ is above man; His ways are above man's ways. His effort through the gospel is not to perfect man's established ways but to inject new ways through new life.

Christ's teachings of His new ways and life antagonized the community to crucify Him. The apostles, living above the community in the life and the ways of Christ, antagonized the community to intensify its ways and to stone and imprison them. They converted many people and accomplished untold good to the community, but they did not convert any one community; they did not make one community Christian.

Following their orgies of destruction many were pricked to the heart and were added to the church. Acts 2:37, 47.

That God's plan does not contemplate Christianizing the community in this gospel age is evident from Christ's words, "When the Son of man cometh, shall He find faith on the earth?" It is also evident from 2 Thess. 2:1-12; 1 Tim. 4:1-3; 1 Thess. 5:1-10. The book of Revelation throughout teaches the same.

This does not paint the picture black. The overflow of Christian influence upon the community has given it its sense of godliness and its vision of hope. Christianity holds before the community its one window of hope. Through this window the community beholds within, Christian truth and hope as evidenced in the life of that Christian who not only lives after the Spirit but who also walks after the Spirit. Gal. 5:25.

The common effort of the church to become a part of the community for its good is undoubtedly deteriorating both church and community. Many cities where the church gives so much of its effort to exercising control over the municipal efforts are evidence; the communities are growing more and more corrupt and are carrying the church personnel down with them in the crash.

In this whole matter, 2 Cor. 6:17 is most applicable; Gal. 5:13-26 gives the method and Matt. 5:16 states the result.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

And be not joining in fellowship in the unfruitful works of the darkness, but rather be even reproving them.—Eph. 5:11, Rotherham.

Last Sunday we were exhorted to be fellow-workers with God. To-day we are warned against fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.

When you see the unfruitful works of darkness, do not join them, but rather reprove them. Ye are in the world, but not of the world. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and I will be a Father unto you". 2 Cor. 6:17. "Unfruitful"! Works that bear no lasting, abiding fruit, as the fruit of the Spirit, which is in all goodness and righteousness and truth: a fruit for the Master's use.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Making the Community Christian. The community as such must of necessity be operated by the municipality and state government. The church and Christianity are operated by Christ. Christ has given no authority for the church to enforce Christianity upon the community. He has given authority for the individual to withdraw from human bondage and to partake of the liberty of Christ.

To make the community Christian is an ambition of man, not a command of Christ or of Scripture. To do so would be to ally church and state. Our lesson text gives a most practical illustration of such an effort. It is true, always has been, probably always will be, that works of the flesh and works of the Spirit are contrary. They cannot be harmonized.

Under opposite laws the state and church never can be one. To make the community Christian would be to destroy the community and establish the church in its stead.

Reversely, the Christian is one living and walking by the Spirit. As such, he is to bring forth, not works, but fruits as designated in Gal. 5:22, 23. These fruits are undoubtedly those referred to in Matt. 5:14 as making the Christian the light of the world.

The only method today for Christianizing the community is by example and teaching. Therefore the necessity of Christian devotion in these lines.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

God's establishment of law. Gal. 3:19.

Liberty as taught in Gal. 4:22 to 5:1; the sense in which there is no law against the fruits of the Spirit.

To what extent is the community amenable to Christian law?

QUESTIONS.

What is the meaning of liberty, v. 13? What is its use? What is the foundation principle upon which such liberty is safe to practice? When biting and devouring, v. 15, is one exercising himself in that liberty?

What is the meaning of, v. 16, "to walk in the Spirit"? Does "shall not", v. 16, have the force of "can not"? In what sense do the flesh and the Spirit lust against each other? What is the meaning of their being contrary?

What is the freedom announced in v. 18? What law is referred to?

Are the works of the flesh, vv. 19-21, contrary to the natural God-given inclinations of the flesh? Why and when are they wrong?

What is the meaning of "inherit", v. 21? Give the distinction between "fruit", v. 22, and "works", v. 19.

In what sense have those in Christ, v. 18, crucified the flesh?

What is the difference between "live" and "walk", v. 25?

To what extent shall the truths of the Spirit be applied to the community?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. R. C. Railsback, of South Bend, Indiana, is much improved, and is again able to walk. He attended church services on Sunday, February 6.

* * *

Sr. Lawrence Howell, of Mt. Sterling, Illinois, is in the Holmes Hospital at Macomb, Illinois, recovering from a serious operation.

* * *

Last Sunday, February 6, our crippled brother, Bert McClain, was consigned to his little bed, within the embrace of mother earth, to await his call at the resurrection. He was firm in the faith, and how he longed for the Master to come and restore all things! He was 65 years of age and had not walked for 41 years, so was compelled to go around in a wheel chair. He is at rest, peacefully sleeping and waiting. Another name to be dropped from the mailing list, as the enemy death has been victorious. No wonder we long for the Savior and King to come, and rule the world in righteousness and mercy!

Carrie Wile Chambers.

* * *

VIRGINIA

Bro. and Sr. J. H. Andrews, Woodstock, Virginia, are the proud parents of a big girl, born January 31. Bro. Andrews was recently appointed to the mail service and says one can never tell what he is liable to find in the parcel post.

Sickness is abating in Virginia, but mud continues and Bro. H. A. Sheets found it advisable to walk across the mountain to his appointment rather than chance to the "flivver". But in spite of the mud being hub deep, the fifth Sunday in January found almost full attendance, some of the elderly sisters walking three miles to attend.

* * *

Sr. Azalia Winfrey, of the Oregon High School faculty was suddenly called to her home, Bosworth, Missouri, by the serious condition of her brother, Bro. Ferd Winfrey, who has just undergone an operation for appendicitis.

* * *

Bro. J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Oklahoma, writes of the death of his mother, Sr. Sharpton, of Bristow, on December 4, 1926, at the age of 84 years; and also of the death of his wife, Sr. Mary J. Morgan, on December 18. They sleep in death, awaiting the coming of the Savior.

Due to an oversight in the office, mention of this was not made earlier.

* * *

CALIFORNIA

The Los Angeles church desires to introduce to the household of faith Bro. Wayne and Sr. Georgia Thompson, of Tulare, California. These young people came over two hundred miles to be baptized into the all-saving name by Bro. J. E. Hammond, of Anaheim, California, after having studied God's Word under the guidance of their mother and Sr. Railsback, and coming to a conviction of the necessity of obedience thereto.

They, with their mother, Sr. Levona Thompson, are isolated, but they are a great help to the Los Angeles church; for they promote the work in a financial way. Bro. Hammond and daughters, Anna and Martha, have also decided to unite their efforts with us in promoting the Lord's work in this wicked city.

Sr. Azorah Scroggs, whom many of our eastern brethren remember as assisting her father, Bro. J. S. Hatch, in former years in the gospel work, is frequently called upon to sing the songs of Zion.

Circumstances were such that it became necessary to change our place of meeting, and all visiting brethren will find us each Sunday from 10 to 12 a. m. at 1359 1/2 West 24th St., just east of Vermont Ave., in a commodious little hall.

Ella Wyman, Sec'y.

* * *

MICHIGAN

Sr. Hulda Myers, of Grand Rapids, suffered a stroke Saturday, February 5, and is in serious condition.

Sr. M. A. Woodward may be addressed at 223 W. St. Joseph St., Lansing, Mich.

Work in Grand Rapids

If those who worked so hard to produce the S. S. Quarterly could know how much it is appreciated even by the one church in Grand Rapids, knew how earnestly every part or division is studied and talked over, those earnest, tired workers would feel well paid for their effort to produce this work.

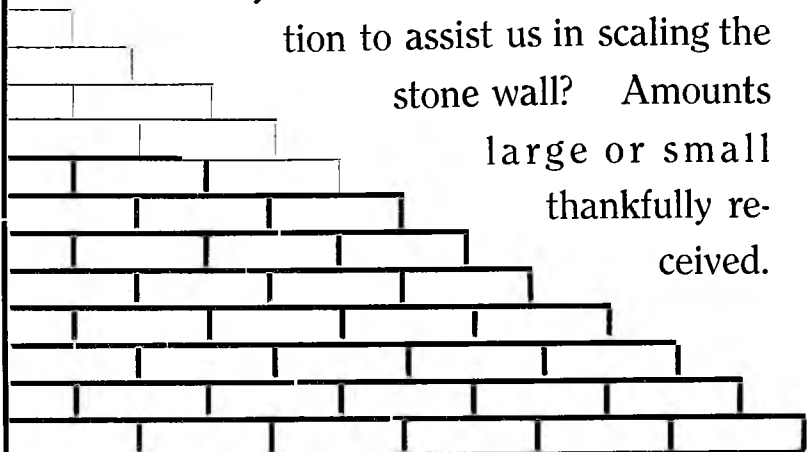

On Sunday, February 6, with the roads, a glare of ice and the whole earth covered with the same treacherous material, we reached the church expecting but few there. It was our surprise to find the house well filled and more kept coming until it was filled, and the only way to make room for all to sit down was to march six classes to the basement the remaining three classes could then begin the work of the hour. The Secretary's report showed, to our surprise, 146 present. And such enthusiasm all over the house! I just felt like shouting, and did inwardly, many times.

I went with Sister Pixley to deliver some much needed clothing to a family that is sending four children to Sunday School. While she was hastily dressing one child, Sisters Slocum and Townsend entered with more clothing for two other children. When we left, the mother and four children were about ready for Sunday School, so grateful, so happy! And this is the way the church is improving on the talents the Lord has given them, and there is enough work there for many Still going up. A few more blocks; a little more mortar; then over the top. Let's go! F. A. S.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

all the time.

I spoke for Bro. Patrick two Sunday evenings. I am very glad to report that he is improving in health, and was able to be at church Sunday evening. He was tired from having spoken once, and had traveled about 48 miles through the day, so I relieved him, but he expected to be present with the church the next Sunday evening. And how they all love to hear him preach! Several have told me they never heard any one speak who told them so much about the Bible and in such plain words that all could understand.

The young people of the Club have bought a bell and it is to be installed before next Sunday. The church women and those of the new church community residents have organized a Dorcas Club and hope to do much among the needy ones.

We are not to suppose these earnest workers have no obstacles confronting them. They have; for there are always some who are not quite satisfied with prevailing conditions and are ready to find fault. So they must stop—stand still while they ask God to guide them in the right way before they go any farther. These experiences are worth while; for they teach us patience and love, and cause a deeper growth in the spiritual life. We pray God to give you all grace for every time of need, keep you all humble, and working for the glory of God and not for man's glory.

Yours in the work,

M. A. Woodward.

* * *

Sr. Woodward sends word of the death of Sr. Malinda Ludington, Cutlerville, Michigan, some time in December. Sr. Ludington was 89 years old and "had been a member of the Church of God for nearly 40 years. Though not aggressive, she was a quiet, consistent Christian. She was not so situated as to attend services often, yet she 'kept the faith' and was ready for the quiet sleep which we trust will not be long. Bro. Patrick officiated at the funeral."

She also writes of the death of George Ludington, 63, son of Sr. Malinda Ludington, some time later.

"Mr. Ludington was a very unique figure among us. He was an almost constant reader of the Bible, and had committed the entire New Testament to memory, together with the books of Isaiah, Daniel, The Psalms, and other books of the Bible, and still remained outside the fold. He had persuaded others to accept Christ, had witnessed their baptism, and still when I said to him, 'What about George?' he said, 'O, Sr. Woodward, do not ask me. I am too wicked to try.' I learned later from his brother that a very heavy cloud hung over his life, of which he never spoke, fearing some one would be hurt by it. But before he died his brother told him it had been lifted and he had nothing to fear. He said, 'Then I am ready to die.'

"O, I am so glad all judgment is left to the loving Father in heaven."

* * *

The last days of my life until to-day,
What were they, could I see them on the street,
Lie as they fell? Would they be ears of wheat,
Sown once for good but trodden into clay?
Or golden coins, squandered and still
To pay?
Or drops of blood dabbling the guilty
Or such spilt water as in dreams must cheat.—By C. Rossetti.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c.
God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.
The First Resurrection, 100 for $2.50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.
A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate:
Robison vs. Conner	$.05
Earlier Life-Truth Exponents	.15
Will It Pay to Become a Christian?	.25
The Visitor, 212 pages	.50
The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages
Illustrated. Suitable for Gift.	.90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,	Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave.,	Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St.	Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer,	Oregon, Illinois.
F. A. Stilson, Secretary,	Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2.00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

DEAR CHILDREN: We are all so sorry Sr. Daisy Nokes is sick, and cannot write to us for a while! So do you not think it will help her if you send her notes telling her how glad you will be when she regains her health? Her address is Lincoln Park, Rt. 7, Rockford, Illinois.

And in the meantime, you help me, and we will try to get on until she is better.

I, too, shall be glad to hear from you.

Sincerely,

Lois Hunt,

1111 Blaine Ave., South Bend, Indiana.

MAKING THE COMMUNITY CHRISTIAN

BY LOIS HUNT

COME, children, let us take an imaginary ride. Here we go—first into the country. What a beautiful home! Yes, the house is small, but how neat everything is! See the lovely trees and grass and the garden and flowers, and the happy, busy people! And here is another one much like it! These people must be neighbors, and enjoy being friends!

But, alas! See this farm! Oh, it is not a happy-looking home, nor are the people happy-looking. What is the trouble? Why, see the uncut grass, the weeds, the dirty yard, and the machinery and tools sitting about out in the weather to rust. We do not want to stop here! Here is another just as uncouth! These families must be friends, but not helpful ones! What do you suppose they talk about when they visit one another? The best way to do things, how to farm better, how to serve God and live worthily? I fear not.

We ride on. Here is a neat, busy, prosperous village. Here is a village all drab and uninviting.

We reach the city. Here is a part of town we want to hurry through because the district is so untidy and the people so cross-looking. But drive more slowly here. We like to look at these little homes and the families in them.

Now, haven't you seen these very conditions on real rides?

Let us go home. In which of these "communities" do you live? Let us look about us. What can we do to help our neighbors, and thus ourselves?

Let Paul tell us in his letter to the Galatians. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." We must love one another. If all did this we would need no laws against stealing, fighting, killing, boot-legging, and unclean living. We must try to help one another say kindly words, and tell about the wonderful things God has promised to all who love Him. All who love God have love, joy, peace, faith, and are long-suffering, gentle, good, meek, and temperate. That means happiness in well-doing.

And it all begins with you and me. Do we love God and try to follow the example Jesus and Paul have given us? Do we study our Bibles daily and attend the services available?

Or, do we think we are too young now and will try when we are older? No, we are just the right age, and this is the very best day to begin. And how shall we begin? Why, as Sister Daisy Nokes told us a few weeks ago—begin right in our own homes. Then, our neighbors, seeing how happy we are, will want to imitate us, and their neighbors will want to be like them and so on.

However, remember it all begins with you and me, and loving our neighbors.

ROXIE

BY S. ROXANA WINCE

ROXIE was a little girl who lived in a double log house hidden away in the thick woods of northern Indiana more than eighty years ago. You never saw a little girl dressed as she was dressed. Her mother had bought some unbleached muslin and, making a dye of smartweed and other weeds, had colored it yellow. From this muslin she made Roxie's dresses. The waists and skirts of these dresses were perfectly plain. But what did Roxie care when she knew of nothing different? But by and by peddlers came with pretty prints, and her mother bought her a "Sunday-go-to-meeting dress" from one of the lighter pieces. How happy she was, for calico then was thought to be as fine as silk is now. And to have a calico dress of her very own to wear to meeting—wasn't it wonderful? And her little sister, and baby Willard, and even mother could have pretty print dresses now. And father and the boys did not have to wear homespun shirts and breeches any more. Nor would she have to knit stockings and socks. How glad she was. She did hate to knit.

But Roxie did not get out of work as easy as she thought she was going to, for one day her father drove the sheep into the log stable and catching them one by one clipped off their coats of wool. It was full of spanish needles and Roxie had to sit down with mother and help pick these out. It was slow, tedious work, but Roxie did not whimper. She wanted a new dress and she would get it all the sooner if she helped get the wool ready to be woven into cloth. Old Mr. Dodge would take the fleece when the dirt was picked out and make it into rolls on his carding machine, and Roxie and mother would spin them into yarn on their big spinning wheels and wind them into skeins on their reels—one hundred and twenty threads to a cut, (if I remember correctly) and four cuts to a skein. Roxie got to be a very expert spinner. She could even excel her mother in the fineness and evenness of her threads, and this despite the fact that she was father's helper in the bean, berry, and sweet corn patches and took the supervision of them herself when he died.

She is living still and though she will soon be ninety years old she prides herself on the neatness of her garden and flower beds. With few exceptions she has kept in good health all these years and so has been able to do much for the cause of her Lord. Her life has been a busy, happy life, and she looks forward to the coming of Jesus joyfully and hopefully, because then she expects to receive a crown of glory that fades not away. The time is near when the thousand-year reign with Jesus will begin. We do not know what is beyond that thousand years. We are not told. But we do know that those who receive a crown of life will wear it for eternal years because the life given them is an endless life. Is not such a life worth striving for? "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." No monarch of earth can give you a crown such as Jesus will bestow. Let no man take it from you.

MODERN SCIENCE VERIFIES THE BIBLE

(Continued from page 309)

writing had been translated the distinguished scientist confessed that he sat staring at the stone in awe, for what lay before him was an actual message from Moses, inscribed by his own hand more than 3000 years ago. There were eight lines and they read as follows: "I am son of Hatshepsut, overseer of the mine workers of Sinai, chief of the Temple of Maua and Jahu (Jehovah) of Sinai. Thou, O Hatshepsut, wast kind to me and drew me out of the waters of the Nile, and thou hast placed me over the temple which is on Sinai."

Lo, out of the forgotten past had come, apparently, the voice of the great law-giver, naming the princess who had saved him from the Nile. "Thou drew me out of the waters", read the stone. "I drew him out of the water", says the Bible, quoting Pharaoh's daughter. "He became her son", says the Bible. "I am her son", says the stone. Such similarity in phraseology could be no mere coincident, Professor Grimme thought. The time the stone had been inscribed was about 1500 B. C., and this is the date Jewish tradition gives for Moses' life. The writer was certainly a Jew, since he wrote not only in the ancient Hebrew script, but used Hebrew words. Furthermore, the other tablets bore the names of other men of Israel No one but Moses himself could have inscribed those characters on that tablet, argued Professor Grimme. . . . It does not seem possible that there could have been two babies of the Israelites, each of which was drawn out of the waters of the Nile by a daughter of Pharaoh and in each case adopted as a son. If so, the Bible certainly would have mentioned it. . . .

A month or so ago American excavators at Shechem made discoveries confirming the Biblical statement that Jacob and Abraham lived there. The well of Jacob is probably one of the best preserved of all the Old Testament sites.

The excavations at Bethlehem, conducted by Professor Breasted of Chicago expedition, has brought to light not only the wall upon which the body of Saul was placed after the battle of Megiddo, 1 Sam. 31:10, but much more bearing upon the worship of Ashtaroth, as detailed in the Bible.

From Assyria comes another monumental confirmation of Scriptural narrative, made all the more convincing because of its difference and independent testimony to the historic truth of the Bible. In the ruins of Nimrod, mentioned as Calah, Gen. 10:11, an obelisk carved out of black stone was discovered and taken to the British Museum. It bears the record of thirty-one campaigns waged by Shalmaneser II., King of Assyria, and among these is one against Jehu, King of Israel. On the obelisk Jehu is pictured bowing down as he brings his tribute, and the inscription reads: "The tribute of Yahua (Jehu), the son of Khumri (Omri), bars of silver, of gold, and of lead, a royal sceptre and spear shaft."

The French Archæological School is excavating at Ain Duo near Jericho. The University of Chicago is hard at work at nearby Megiddo, under Professor Breasted. The British School of Archaeology, with headquarters at Jerusalem is digging at Esdraelon. The Palestine Exploration Fund are at work at Askalon, also at the ruins of Gaza. The Palestine Jewish Exploration Society are excavating at two places near the Sea of Galilee, uncovering the ancient city of Tiberias. There are American expeditions at Kireth Siphu, and other sites. . . . The most remarkable feature of all the discoveries is that almost without exception they tend to confirm and explain the Bible from different angles.—Selected by Mrs. A. J. Chaplin.

"Coming nearer to Christ does not mean creeping into refuge from our sins and sorrows; it means going out stronger to conquer our sins and overcome our sorrows. It means power, not weakness."

Fifty years ago the greatest menace to society was the illiterate ruffian with a dark lantern whose chief aim in life was robbery with murder and incendiarism as a precautionary means of retreat. To-day the polished debonair gentleman meets you in daylight, pulls an automatic and says, "Stick 'em up." Preso!

Nevertheless, in our day the spirit and acts of the "flapper" constitute the greatest menace to civilization, state and society by hastening just such a state of immorality and degradation as that which brought God's wrath upon Sodom and Gomorrah as "an example unto those that after should live ungodly".—Samuel E. Haney.

NOTES FROM THE TRAINING CLASS

BY MARY A. GESIN

IN our previous notes, we considered the first three divisions of childhood, early, middle, and later, with special application to each, methods of reaching the child during the different periods of his development, and the point of strongest appeal. The next two divisions given in the text-book we are using are early and later adolescence, the former covering the ages of thirteen to sixteen, the latter, seventeen to maturity.

Early adolescence is a time of rapid physical growth, more noticeable in girls than boys during the first half of this period, reversing the order in the second half. Along with development of new physical powers, comes a transforming of spiritual and mental life, in fact, a new birth. During the later years of early adolescence, the boy begins to feel the urge to make a choice of his life work, the advantage of earning his own money. Along with this new desire, develops a new vision, a striving to put into practice the ideals that have been rooted in his character during preceding years—ideals of loyalty, self-sacrifice, honesty, and kindred virtues. He no longer weighs values according to standards set by his companions; his horizon widens and he recognizes the worth of unselfishness, though he may not always choose the better course.

Reasoning powers are being developed rapidly and doubt is characteristic of this period, a demand for the "why" of everything being very much in evidence. But youth is open minded and if he is taught the truth, he will generally accept it readily. Here comes the teacher's responsibility in knowing just what he must teach, and in teaching the truths of the Bible, clear and logical statements of belief should be presented.

As early adolescence is the time of expansion, so later adolescence is the time of selection, and with it comes individuality. This fact must be appreciated by the teacher to obtain the best results. Many contributing causes, such as heredity, environment, education, enter into the determination of individuality, and these must be considered in order to reach the pupil upon a plane of sympathetic understanding.

The fact that many of this age leave home for work or school, leaves them open to loneliness and temptation, which should offer an opportunity for service to the teacher or older persons with whom they come in contact. The young man and the young woman who are away from parental restraint, sometimes show a tendency to disregard early religious training and this period in their lives is vital to their later well being. If they are successful in work or study, they do not feel the need of it. If the teacher is able to interest them in church work by giving them real responsibility, many problems solve themselves.

Near the close of later adolescence comes "the danger line in religion". Statistics show that there is a time of special religious awakening at the age of twenty, but less than one-sixth of the conversions take place after that age, and the chances are a thousand to one against conversion after thirty. These studies show the time for the greatest opportunity of reaching youth and guiding his life into channels of greatest usefulness in the worship of God and the service of man.

SUN SPOTS

SUN SPOTS are responsible for the present epidemic of influenza, in the opinion of Prof. A. L. Tchijevsky, of Moscow University. Prof. Tchijevsky is the scientist who, in a paper sent to the recent convention in Philadelphia of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, predicted another great war in 1929, due to solar agitation.

He told the correspondent that the combined electrical influence of the sun upon the earth had increased bacterial activity to the point where whole countries are affected by disease.

Most poisonous bacteria are harmless for humans, he explained, provided they are not acted upon by the sun. He believes that by isolating the human organism from solar influence and submitting it to special electrical treatment a quick and effective cure for influenza will be found.

He also ascribes typhoid fever, hydrophobia, and bubonic plague to sun-spot activity.

"Man," he said, "is the slave of the sun and its vast electrical power. Alike in health and sickness, his welfare and behavior are not regulated by Providence or the unstable human will, but by the sun's electro-magnetic force upon the earth, which is one common organism of which man is only a part.

"My theory, that the present spread of influenza throughout the world is due to sun spots, is brilliantly supported by the history of epidemics for the last thousand years.

"For example, the greatest cholera plague occurred during the periods of maximum sun-spot activity and declined sharply when the activity reached its minimum. These sun-spot periods occur regularly in cycles of eleven years."

Predicted War in 1929

Prof. Tchijevsky's paper to the meteorological section of the Association for Advancement of Science during its meeting in Philadelphia in December, said all great wars had followed periods of intense sun-spot activity, and continued:

"In 1927 and 1929, when the eleven year period of sun-spot activity attains its maximum and when this maximum will coincide with the maxima of two other periods of sixty years and thirty-five years, there will be great human activity of the highest historical importance, which may again change the political chart of the world."—Public Ledger—Philadelphia.

MELCHISEDEC—WHO WAS HE?

BY MRS. CLARK McCLELLAND

FOUR hundred and twenty-seven years after the flood Abraham and Melchisedec walked together. And when Abraham returned after the battle of the kings, Melchisedec met him. Melchisedec was king of Salem at that time. Jerusalem went by that name in those days, and Salem is still retained in Jerusalem.

Now who was Melchisedec? Well, we will say Shem. And why? Because he was the oldest head of a tribe at that time, and for that reason he was made king. Shem lived five hundred two years after the flood and was in the lineage for Christ. Abraham also was from his line, and we get the true Jew from him, for Judah is a son of Jacob who was Abraham's grandson.

Now Melchisedec is his official name as we find in Heb. 7. And as he did not come from the tribe of Levi, he was a sworn-in priest, and in that respect was a type of Christ. Heb. 8. Another type, Melchisedec brought bread and wine to Abraham after he returned from the slaughter of the kings. Gen. 14. Here we see a king administering to one of lower rank, and we find Jesus doing the same thing at the last supper. Then we find the antitype. Melchisedec was a king-priest and Christ will be a king-priest when He returns to this earth, but not before; for He must fill the office of our High Priest until then.

Yes, brethren, I firmly believe, from a study of history and the Bible, that Shem was Melchisedec; and I believe he was the man that superintended the building of the Pyramids—but that may be a mistaken idea, the date being uncertain.

We find in this that the Melchisedec priesthood was of a higher order than the Levitical, and as there were no priests among his father or mother, he was without father or mother in that respect. We can say the same in regard to Christ, for He sprang from Judah, of which tribe Moses spoke nothing concerning priesthood. Heb. 7:14.

We have to read very carefully in order to get a glimpse of some of the deep things of God, and the types are very helpful, but the antitypes must fit the types.

There are ten things for which no one has ever yet been sorry. These are:

1. For doing good to all.
2. For speaking evil of none.
3. For hearing before judging.
4. For thinking before speaking.
5. For holding an angry tongue.
6. For being kind to the distressed.
7. For asking pardon for all wrongs.
8. For being patient toward everybody.
9. For stopping the ears to a talebearer.
10. For disbelieving most of the ill reports.

STANDARDS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

BY EMMA C. RAILSBACK

MAN'S righteousness, when compared with God's righteousness, is as filthy rags. The apostle Paul wrote of Israel that "they being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." He says further that God's righteousness is revealed to man in His having given the Gospel of Christ, through belief of which, man may obtain salvation. So that through faith in the promises of God, He has reckoned man to be righteous, when as yet he has done no righteous works, and even though sin and death passed upon all men, because of the disobedience of the first pair, yet God in His goodness and mercy has provided a clear and definite plan whereby man may become righteous before Him.

But now we see the whole world lieth in wickedness, and what is the cause? The apostle James writes: "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin when it is finished bringeth forth death." So then lust is the cause of the present appalling state of wickedness of the inhabitants of the earth. The moral standards of mankind are being broken down. Educators are advocating freedom and liberty in thought and action in every sense of the word, and the result is that we find ourselves living in a public moral atmosphere such as existed in the days of Noah, and Sodom and Gomorrah. There is deception of all kinds, among men in every walk of life, and particularly among those setting themselves up as spiritual guides, teaching others to do thus and so, yet making no effort to practice the very precepts they pass out. We are living in the time of which our Savior spoke: false prophets and teachers with the power to deceive; and the apostle said, "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof".

In searching the Scriptures we find that our heavenly Father has established the same standard of righteousness for men as for women, Lev. 20, and that sin is sin in the sight of God, whether committed by man or woman.

It was left to the Pharisees of our Savior's day to demand punishment of the woman for the sin of which they let the man go free. John 8:3-11. Drinking, smoking, and cursing have long been practiced by the male species of the race, but now that the female is following the example of the stronger, we hold up our hands in horror. And truly the present condition is enough to make men's hearts fail them for fear, and yet those who know that all these conditions have been foretold have reason to lift up their heads and rejoice.

"We all like to feel that we are useful, but we can't get that feeling unless we are willing to work."

AT HOME AND AT EASE

By the Right Hon. J. C. Wedgwood in "The New Palestine"

THE best impression that I carried away from Palestine is the self-confidence of the Jews. Whether it was in Tel Aviv or in the colonies, they were at home. The Chalutz, swaggering down the streets of Jerusalem, was not worrying about what anybody was thinking of him. What he wore was right, what he did was right, what he thought was right. The reaction he produced in other people did not matter. Even the Jew getting into the train at Kantara stretched his legs as he sat down and felt at last at his ease and at home; the little worries of being an exile had gone. The Englishman has never felt like an exile anywhere; the Jews have, and this strange transformation into a people with a country has evidently worked a marvel.

It does not strike a visitor that the Jews are only a small minority in the country. The Arabs are tucked away in villages, the Jews are the intelligentsia and visibly there are a great many of them; so one understands that the Jew really feels that he is now in his own country with his people all around him. The Government leaves him alone, too, and lets him manage his own affairs, so that he lives in a republic of his own inside the State. In fact, all his life is a wonderful approximation to complete political and economic freedom, so that my most abiding impression of Palestine is of a young, self-confident population—at home.

. . . . In Palestine the peasantry is free, nearly all the Arabs farm their own land; very few are the Jews who remain working for employers, they all want land of their own. And whether you go to the individualist at Nahalal, where each man farms his own land and has his own house and his own fields, his own vine and his own fig-tree, or whether you go to Daganian, where 20 families live as one, working for each other in marvelous selflessness—in all these colonies the people make no complaints, the children do not beg, they are not even shy, they are so certain that they are all right that they do not even need to assert it.

KING'S PRAYER CHANGED

MARKED changes in the prayer of the king will be one of the alterations in the new prayer book of the Church of England decided on by the bishops and shortly to be submitted for Parliament's approval, it was understood recently. Instead of two prayers, one for the king and the other for the royal family, a single prayer probably will be adopted "for the king and all who act under his authority." Where the old prayer included the phrase, "Strengthen him that he may vanquish and overcome all his enemies", the new book will include a plea for peace.

Modern conditions have led to further alteration in the prayer for the nation. Industrial peace will be mentioned and the words, "stillest the outrage of a violent and unruly people" will be omitted, it is understood.

The above, taken from a London news item in the Philadelphia Inquirer, is published because of the ring of "Peace" therein contained.—F. A. S.

HIS CRUCIFIXION

By Mrs. RICHARD SKEELS

TURN with me to the nineteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, and read it through. It needs no analysis or interpretation. It needs to be read slowly and thoughtfully. If one can read it through and not feel the tears welling in his eyes as he reads, there is something the matter with that one's heart. This story has touched the world as no other ever written.

The hands and the feet that, more than 1900 years ago, were "nailed, for our advantage, to the bitter cross" have made that cross the symbol of our redemption. That cross is the great object-lesson revealing to us, to the end of time, two truths that otherwise we might have missed. The first is that God loves us. The second is that sin will ruin us. For there we learn that God is always doing what Jesus during His all-too-brief life was doing, giving Himself in loving service and sacrifice that we might be saved. There we also learn that sin will always do what it did at Calvary, kill that which is best, and purest, and holiest in human life.

But that death was not in vain, for it has caused many to hate sin and turn to God as no other event in all history has done. Before the cross of Calvary sin loses all its allurements and stands revealed in all its hatefulness. And to-day, as ever, that cross is saying, "No man is so low that he may not be saved, and no man is so high that he does not need to be saved." And we can almost hear the pleading appeal, "Thou must love Me who has died for thee."

Oh! that we might have the desire to be filled with the knowledge of His will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding that we might walk worthy of the Lord in whom we have redemption through His blood, even the forgiveness of sins.

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 22, 1927

NUMBER 21

WORDS

BY LYMAN BOOTH

WORDS are peculiar and mysterious things. We use them without giving them much serious consideration. Some employ few, others many and all are, in most instances, very careless in their use of words.

Webster says, "A word is a vocal sound or combination of vocal sounds used as a symbol to embody and signify an idea or thought." Words are the vehicles of thought, to carry from our mind to another an idea. A thought arises in one person's mind and if he desires to convey it to another he employs a word or combination of words to make his thought known. Those words are the invisible shapes of air waves produced by the skillful tools of tongue, lips, throat, and lungs. All, except the lungs, operate under the direct control of the mind. The lungs perform their work independently.

Thus the construction of words may erect a structure far more enduring than steel or granite, and yet, strange as it may appear, these fleeting forms are but the great highway thrown up between man and man, and between the dawn of creation and the end of time.

A word may vanish with its utterance or it may outlast anything man can make. Words have overturned and torn down empires, and on the ruins thereof have constructed new governments.

Words are the clothing we put upon our thoughts before sending them forth upon dress parade. A thought of love will be arrayed in expressions of tenderness and devotion, seeking to do others good. A thought of enmity will wear the garb of malice or hatred, intent on doing injury to others. "A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger."—Prov. 15:1. One tends toward peace and strength; the other to strife and weakness.

Beneath the superstructure of all our great institutions will be found foundations firmly laid in words of lasting and abiding endurance. All laws, charters, and creeds are considered as nothing until given strength and validity in appropriate words, and approved by those in authority.

Great men have taught that the sword is man's greatest and most effectual implement of warfare; others rightly claim the pen is mightier, because it is armed with words. Some of the greatest battles have been word battles against the strongholds and armies of error and ignorance. Ignorance is the mother of envy, murder, strife, and war. In this school she educates her children, from which they graduate in the deadly conflict.

Words have power in proportion to the authority of the speaker. The foreman in a public work, the superintendent in a factory or mill, the general on the battlefield all exercise their power in words. Seeming defeat has been turned into victory by a few encouraging words.

The Two Words

*One day a harsh word rashly said
Upon an evil journey sped,
And, like a sharp and cruel dart,
It pierced a fond and loving heart;
It turned a friend into a foe,
And everywhere brought pain and woe.*

*A kind word followed it one day,
Flew swiftly on its blessed way;
It healed the wound, it soothed the pain,
And friends of old were friends again;
It made the hate and anger cease,
And everywhere brought joy and peace.*

*But yet the harsh word left a trace
The kind word could not quite efface;
And, though the heart its love regained,
It bore a scar that long remained;
Friends could forgive, but not forget,
Or lose the sense of keen regret.*

*Oh, if we could but learn to know
How swift and sure one word can go,
How would we weigh with utmost care
Each thought before it sought the air,
And only speak the words that move!
Like white winged messengers of love!*
—Selected.

When the Union and Confederate forces were pitted against each other at Winchester, the fate of war seemed dark and gloomy for the Union troops; hope had almost fled; despair was written on their faces; utter and lasting defeat seemed inevitable; they were almost exhausted; but listen, a messenger is seen in the distance riding swiftly along the battle line shouting: "Sheridan is coming! Sheridan is coming!" Those words renewed their courage, revived their hope, and turned defeat into victory.

Dear reader, how goes the battle? Does the way seem dark and gloomy? has hope fled and left you in despair? has your courage failed? are you faint and weary? If so, lift up your heads, and let your hearts rejoice; for a greater than Sheridan is coming, coming soon: for down through the ages a voice has been shouting all along the battle front, "Jesus is coming! Jesus is coming soon!" He will vanquish every foe, and crown His faithful with endless life and unfading glory.

Where is the gallant Sheridan, and the hosts he urged on to victory? He is at rest, and but few of those brave boys in blue remain to relate the story of that dreadful struggle. Soon, only the silent words of history will be able to impart any information concerning their heroic deeds and their splendid victory. Their fame and glory may fade away as the memory of man shall fail to recount them. The dust and mold of years will hide their glory. But when our Captain shall come He will be accompanied with myriads of holy angels, Jude 14, and His works will never be forgotten.

In the glory and majesty of heaven He will come to Zion, not to bring war and desolation, but to bring peace on earth. He is coming as the Prince of Peace, to sit on David's throne. To Him all nations will yield obedience. His kingdom, though small at first, will eventually extend from the river to the ends of the earth, and His glory shall spread from sea to sea. When that happy time shall arrive then will be brought to pass the WORD spoken by the great Jehovah, "But at truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the GLORY of the LORD."—Num. 14:21. That word has been echoing through the centuries and will continue until "all is in God and God in all".

*"That good time hastens on, soon the morning will dawn,
When the King shall in glory descend;
We expect soon to join all the bright, holy throng
In the kingdom that never shall end.*

*"All the prophets of old saw a beautiful world,
And they looked for the same with delight;
And apostles have told of a city of gold,
Where the Lamb is its glorious light.*

*"Oh! we long to be there, where no sorrow or care
Can disturb that sweet, heavenly rest,
And we hope soon to share in those beauties so rare,
In reserve for the good and the blest."*

THE FIRST MINISTERIAL UTTERANCE OF THE LORD JESUS

BY E. W. BULLINGER

WE have it in Matthew 4:4, immediately after His consecration for His office of Prophet.

The Old Serpent comes to the Second man, the last Adam, not in a garden of delights, but in the wilderness. He questions again the truth of God's words, the echo of which, "This is my beloved Son," had scarcely died away: "If thou be the Son of God."

What are the words of the Lord's reply?

"IT IS WRITTEN."

This is the Lord's first ministerial utterance.

Could language tell us more pointedly and plainly that we are again on the same battle-field in which the truth of God's Word is at stake?

"It is written." What was written? What can be written but words? How can it be possible to have writing apart from words?

And yet there are those that tell us that the Bible "contains the Word of God," but that it "is not the Word of God." That its thoughts are inspired, but not its words. But again we ask, How can thoughts be written down without words? It is by words, and only by words that thoughts can be made known.

When Milton dictated his poems to his amanuensis, did he communicate his thoughts and leave his words to the choice of another? Are not the actual words, and even the spelling and rythm of them, vital to the whole matter? Are not the choice of the words and the scanning of their syllables the very essence of what made the result Milton's, and not that of his amenuensis?

"IT IS WRITTEN"

This is an utterance which settles such questions for ever; and closes the mouth of Satan and all "his ministers". 2 Cor. 11:15.

At least, it closed the mouth of Satan; though men's mouths will be open and vent their blasphemies until they are closed in judgment.

Three times did the Lord Jesus use that first utterance, "It is written," and three times did He utter no other than the words written, until He dismissed the Old Serpent with the rebuke: "Get thee hence, Satan."

Is it not as significant as it is remarkable, that when the Lord delivered up His trust, having finished the work which was given Him to do, He again, three times, referred to God's Word written in John 17:

"Thy word is truth", v. 17;

"I have given them Thy WORD", v. 14;

"I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me", v. 8?

Does not this fact speak to us? Surely the fact that the Lord's ministry began and ended with a three-fold reference to the Word of God emphatically assures us that—

THE BEGINNING AND END OF ALL MINISTRY IS THE WORD OF GOD.

—How to Enjoy the Bible.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH TO THE COMMUNITY

BY J. W. WILLIAMS

FOR the welfare of both parties it is urgent that both the church and the community understand what may properly be expected of the church by those who are not of it. This is urgent, first upon those who do not belong to the church, so that they may know definitely why the church is divinely set in their midst, then they are intelligently able to accept of the benefits offered by the church. And it is equally urgent upon the church to understand its calling, so that it makes no mistake in its opportunity and service to those outside its group, lest it fail in its mission in the midst of those who so much need what the Father has so graciously given it, and called it to offer to the others.

As a steward of the Head of the church, and by limitation of the wording of the subject, which reads, "The Responsibility", not of the community to the church, but "of the Church to the Community", the writer of these lines must take the view-point of a member of the church, and tell both parties what the community has just reason to expect of us.

Since the Scriptures are the sufficient and only source of Christian information, it doubtless will be freely granted by both parties that our mutual relations are fully set forth in the Bible. Therefore, we shall immediately pass by all arguments of public opinion on this subject from those who are not a part of the church, and all ancient custom and practice of religious bodies, and, discarding opinion and mere reason, from any and all, within and without the church, come at once to inquire from our Guide-book, What is the calling of the church? What is to be properly expected of us by those outside? Not what they, perhaps, do expect, but what do our Father and our Head expect of us, and so what may the community properly expect of us? To the Scriptures, then, for our answer.

In 2 Timothy 1:9 we read of the church called with a holy calling; in Ephesians 1:18, a prayer that we may know the hope of His calling; and in John 17:18, that His people are sent into the world as He was sent into the world by His Father.

Now, we find in John 14 that He represented His Father, for there He said, "He that has seen me has seen the Father". So then, the church is called out of the community for the purpose of representing the Christ in His absence. Then the community may expect of the church whatever Christ has in His love within His will for them. And He has left His representatives this instruction, "Occupy till I come". Then they are to continue what He started to do. What that was may be learned from Acts 1. Here Luke classifies His service as consisting of the things He taught and the things He did. That is, His words and His works. The preaching of the gospel embodied His words, and as to His works, we read that "he went about doing good". So then, the community may properly expect of us that we be faithful in telling the good news and self-sacrificing in giving ourselves and our all to save those about us. But whether the ministry go beyond the gospel in the words heard from the pulpit, and whether the individuals or the organized church fulfill all that is implied in the expression, "doing good", or perchance overstep what is intended in the expression, we shall, perhaps, have occasion to consider further.

The Master again said, "Ye are the light of the world", and counseled them to have care that their eyes be single in their focus upon Him as Master, and not double, partly toward the mastery of mammon, lest the otherwise light in them be darkness. Again, Paul informed the Philippians that they shone as lights in the world, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, and that their light consisted in holding forth the words of life, and to the Corinthians that they had this treasure in earthen vessels, so the credit would be God's and not theirs, just as the Lord in calling him told Ananias that Paul should be a chosen vessel to bear His name. For we read that there is salvation in no other name. That the credit may be to God and not to us, as Paul says, is also revealed in the above words of Christ that His people are the light of the world, for their light is there declared to be "good works", and that God is to be glorified by these works, for they are of His grace. Thus from Philippians and Matthew together we learn that the light consists of gospel preaching and Christian living, just as we discovered above from other scriptures. And since God gets Himself glory from the shining of the church, it is evident that we represent the Father in representing the Son, which is as logical as it is scriptural, since we represent Him and He represented the Father. No wonder Paul called it a high calling. For any business a person has to transact with God must be done through the church. Salvation is in its custody. Plenty of service for the church in this calling, without going aside into other words or works.

So the Master said, "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature", adding later, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me". So Paul, in similar manner says, "Preach the word", and also speaks of himself and his colleagues as stewards of the mysteries of God, and says that such stewards should be faithful. Then let the church be faithful to this dual calling of preaching the word and doing good works, remembering the great apostle's other words, that this preaching is not to be with worldly wisdom of words, lest it obscure the light of the cross. For those whose ears must be tickled with rhetoric are apt to miss the tone of the Shepherd's voice.

Again, the calling of the church is revealed in John 15, where He said He chose them and ordained them that they should go and bear fruit, which he showed as consisting in fulfilling the commandment of love. He who loves will preach and live Christ. As the Master said, "For their sakes I sanctify myself that they may also be sanctified through the truth", so the church will seek

(Continued on page 335, column 2)

THE TABERNACLE OF DAVID

BY GROVER GORDON

TABERNACLE: tent, hut or house, never used in reference to throne.

We read of the house of David which the Lord promised to build for him. After the Lord had given David rest from all his enemies, 2 Sam. 7:1, David desired to build an house for the Lord, but the Lord told Nathan, the prophet, to tell him, "Also the Lord telleth thee that he will make thee (David) an house". 2 Sam. 7:2-11.

He then explained what He meant by house: "When thy days be fulfilled and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build an house for my name, and I will stablish the throne of his kingdom for ever." 2 Sam. 7:12-13. Does this scripture refer to Solomon? "I will be his father and he shall be my son."—2 Sam. 7:14.

Let Paul answer this question. "For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son?"—Heb. 1:5. It surely has reference to Jesus the Christ.

Hear what Zacharias said when he was filled with the Holy Ghost and prophesied: "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the HOUSE of his servant DAVID; as he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began: that we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hateth us; to perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant; the oath which he swear to our father Abraham."—Luke 1:67-73. After he had finished prophesying concerning the Christ he spoke of his own child. "And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways."—Luke 1:76.

Going back to Acts 15, there was a dispute regarding the conversion of the Gentiles so Paul and Barnabas went to Jerusalem to confer with the apostles and elders concerning this matter. First, Peter gave his testimony, and then Paul and Barnabas told what wonders and miracles God had wrought among the Gentiles. Acts 15:1-12. Then "James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at the first DID visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name", Acts 10, "And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written". In other words, it is a fulfillment of the prophecy which James quoted, Amos 9:8-10. The prophet was writing how the house of Israel would be sifted as corn is sifted in a sieve, then he said, "in that day". James said, "After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle (house) of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up." Acts 15:14-16. What for? "That the residue (rest) of men MIGHT seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things."—Acts 15:17.

Since the time of Jesus, the horn of salvation of the house (tabernacle) of David, was raised up all nations were told to seek the Lord, Acts 17:27, which before was thought to be to the Jews only—"but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent."—Acts 17:30.

Paul, speaking to the Gentiles, said, "that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world."—Eph. 2:12.

"He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David."—Luke 1:32.

Nathan said this seat or house of David that should be the Son of God was the one that would build an house for the Lord. 2 Sam. 7:13, 14.

"But Christ as a Son over his own house; whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end."—Heb. 3:6. Jesus said, "Upon this rock I will build my church."—Matt. 16:18. "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."—Eph. 2:19-22.

MESSAGES FROM JESUS

BY MIRIAM HOFF FETTER

*Wondrous messages from Jesus,
Oh, how much they mean to me!
I would ever keep my heart-trobs
Tuned to His infinity.*

*List, how sweet and clear His words are
As they float upon the air,
To my soul in meditation
Waiting on the Lord in prayer.*

*Even in the busy market,
Where the world goes hurrying through,
I can pick up words of guidance,
Words of wisdom, tried and true.*

*And how oft when worn and fretted
With the busy day's routine,
Jesus' messages come bringing Joy and peace where cares have been.*

*Oh, the air is filled with good things
To build up the man within;
But we'll miss them if our own hearts
Are not tuned to "listen in".*

THE FRIENDSHIP OF BOOKS

By S. ROXANA WINCE

MAKE friends of your books, close friends. To do this you must not have too many. You cannot walk the lanes and explore the woods if you have a big crowd at your elbow, not to your own satisfaction. And just so it is with your book companions.

Better know one good book well than have a mere speaking acquaintance with a dozen. And how can you introduce your book friends to others if you do not know them yourself? You surely would make awkward work of it, just as I shall to-night when my book friends: the Cook sisters, Longfellow, Whittier, Bryant, Browning, and dozens of others, are not at my elbow save in the fading memory of old age. And even thus, what a comfort they are.

"Rock me to sleep, mother, Rock me to sleep", still has power to woo the drowsy head. And "There's a better day coming, a morning promised long, When girded right with holy might shall overthrow the wrong," to remind us of the millennium now so near at hand. These snatches of song are the yoke-fellows of the lonely traveler. They help and cheer him on his way, brightening many a rough and miry piece of road.

Sing! comrades, Sing! It is better than crying.

Talk with your books. Talk with them every day. I knew a man who did; and he kept up the practice as long as he lived of reading and translating a little every day from other languages into that of his own, and when he died he was considered an accomplished linguist.

Moments count; make good use of them. Books, good books, are among the most helpful friends. They keep right on talking when other voices are silent. We cannot hush them even in the wakeful hours of midnight. Their restraining power is on us wherever we are, holding us back from going wrong. And how much better and happier we feel to have something to talk about than Miss Smith's much beflowered dress or the latest style of hats. Talk of your papers, books, and sometimes, Oh, can you? will you talk of the Bible? You certainly can bring up some very interesting and entertaining questions. Try it and see.

Adam and Eve sewed fig leaves together and made themselves aprons. What did they sew with?

"I THOROUGHLY believe in a university education for both men and women, but I believe that a knowledge of the Bible without a college course is more valuable than a college course without the Bible. Everyone who has a thorough knowledge of the Bible may be truly called educated, and no other learning, or culture—no matter how extensive and elegant—can be a proper substitute."—Dr. William Lyon Phelps, professor of English Literature at Yale University.

THE GREAT TRIBULATION

By JOHN W. BURGET

O JERUSALEM, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate."—Matt. 23:37-38.

"And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? (the temple) verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down."—Matt. 24:2. "And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies then know that the desolation thereof is nigh."—Luke 21:20. "But woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give suck, in those days! for there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people. And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21:23-24. "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be."—Matt. 24:21. "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come."—Matt. 24:14.

When Titus the Roman general captured Jerusalem, that ended the Jew's dispensation and was the beginning of the great tribulation and wrath upon the Jews which has lasted for nineteen hundred years. But now, in this age of the world, since the world war, we see the great tribulation coming to an end; for now we see the Jews gathering back to their home land, Palestine.

Jesus said, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." Paul said the gospel "was preached to every creature which is under heaven; whereof I Paul am made a minister".—Col. 1:23. Therefore Jesus meant the end of the Jewish age, because this prophecy was fulfilled in the times of the apostles. But we are living in the time after the great tribulation has ended, after the Gentile age has ended; in those days when the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars of heaven shall fall, and the powers that are in heaven shall be shaken, Mark 13:24, 25.

"And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory. And then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven."—Mark 13:26-27.

Jesus said, "Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass, till all these things be done."—Mark 13:30. This generation began when the tribulation upon the Jews ended, at the end of the world war.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

YOUR CONVERSATION

"Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ."—Phil. 1:27.

"Conversation," as used here is practically the same as in Phil. 3:20, where it is used as follows, "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ." The word means, "citizenship." In Phil. 3:20 it seems to carry the idea of a government of which we are citizens and as citizens we have rights and privileges as such.

But this citizenship does not merely grant to us rights and privileges but carries with it Responsibilities.

Therefore, Paul could say in Phil. 1:27, "Let your conversation (citizenship) be as it becometh the gospel of Christ: that . . . I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel."

A citizen is required to live in harmony with the laws or rules of his polity. The Israelites were held to strict adherence to their laws. So, also, Christians must have a conduct, a behavior that becometh, makes beautiful to those about them the gospel of Christ. Christ is our Sovereign, our Head, but the world knoweth Him not. He has chosen us out of the world that has rejected Him. The Christian is a foreigner, a stranger, a sojourner, and as such does not have political privileges where his Sovereign does not reign. But we look forward to the realization of our Hope; to the time when our King reigneth, and He shall begin the work of subduing all things unto Himself.

What a glorious hope to have the assurance from our Lord and Savior, that even we may be granted a place in that great redemptive work of the ages.—F. A. S.

* * * *

RABBI STEPHEN S. WISE

Of the Free Synagogue of New York, recently addressed the Knife and Fork Clubs, of South Bend, Indiana, on the subject of Judaism and Christianity, their agreements and disagreements, and the prospect of the future.

Many of the Herald readers will remember that in recent months Rabbi Wise caused no little ripple among Judaism because of his remarks concerning the personality of Jesus.

Referring to that sermon given in December, 1925, he said, "One disagreement is over the personality of Him whom you call the Lord Christ, and we Jews call Jesus. For us, He is a Jew—the Jew of Jews, the Hebrew of Hebrews. I said that Jesus was a real man, not a myth; that He was a man, not a God; that He was a Jew, not a Christian. I said that Jesus was the literal fulfillment of the prophecies, a radiant exemplar of all that my fathers for centuries before Him had dreamed and taught and commanded unto men.

"Just because there is some misunderstanding between Jews and Christians because of the manner of His death, I said to my fellow-Jews that is no reason why we Jews should not claim Jesus".

Rabbi Wise attributed much of the Jewish indifference to the fact that "Christianity by its Christlessness toward the Jew made its name more and more a term of horror to my people because they had always associated their innumerable hurts and wrongs with Christianity.

"We Jews are not beggars at the table of your spiritual opulence; we are the proud inheritors of a great tradition which contains the mightiest names of the earth."

In commenting on unity of Judaism and Christianity, he suggested that Christianity might display a little more unity within itself.

He declared that, "Jews do not want tolerance; the word connotes a stooping of Christian to the Jew. I do not want Christian tolerance; I want Christian fellowship, or leave me alone. But something better than toleration is coming; yea, is come. It is appreciation and fellowship out of which comes cooperation:

"The forces of evil are always united. The forces of good have always been divided. Let's unite the forces of good and divide the forces of evil."

* * * *

SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLIES

We have received very many more late orders for Quarterlies than we expected—we're not complaining in the least. Thanks. However, we did not print quite enough extra covers, and having thrown down the type, we have been binding the lessons in a plain cover.

Please send in your orders for the second quarter early so that we may know better how many to print.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Lottie Sealine; Mrs. Cliff Ristrim; Arvid Sealine; Anton Sealine; Elmer Berggren; Mrs. Nettie Lundquist; Frank Hill; Wm. J. Marme; Mrs. Eva Phelps; Mrs. D. M. Spencer; Geo. W. Smith; Curtis Vance; Mrs. Ida Marsh; M. O. Craton; Geo. L. Holley; Albert Siple; Mrs. Catherine Townsend; E. Dorothy Magaw; Elsie Bradley; Geo. Slack; Mrs. Henry Nixon; Jas. Kessler; Alma Orr; Mrs. Gertie V. Long; Esta Lansbery; Mrs. Eva L. Underwood; I. C. McChesney; Fred Shain.

HELPING FUND

A Sister

$2.00

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

BROTHER TURNER, Chairman of the Social Correspondence Committee, is very anxious to get hold of names to increase their correspondence lists. He urges all ministers to send him the names and addresses of newly baptized ones, and if there are any isolated or shut-in brothers or sisters who would like to receive social letters of cheer and encouragement, those names should be sent in. Mail name and correct address to Harry E. Turner, Boise, Idaho, Rt. 3, and state any particulars that will assist the committee in writing the right kind of letters.

* * * *

The social correspondence committees, both senior and junior, have been among the strongest features of Berean work for a number of years past, and no one is in quite so good a position to realize that as the minister who travels a great deal. Here, there, and everywhere, we have come in contact with individuals whose lives have been cheered and who have been encouraged and inspired to new activity in life's work by the friendly, sympathetic, understanding social letters from others.

* * * *

The minister often gets lots of credit for going out and bringing new members into the fold. But many times certain quiet individuals who stay at home and write letters have had much to do with holding them in the fold and giving them courage to live. In God's economy there is surely as much credit to the latter as to the former.

* * * *

All of this makes us query as to whether or not our local church and Berean work in the various places could not be much more effective if it included more of the right kind of social effort. By social we have no thought of the frivolous, or to gaiety, though those things may have their places. But the members should learn to know each other better, should get together frequently in gatherings other than for Bible study, at times when the various problems and plans can be informally discussed and considered. They should learn to be a family and to feel like brothers and sisters together.

* * * *

It is because our denomination has been very lacking in keeping up the social side of life that so many of our young people have associated with those of other organizations, and thus made their friendships and marriages, leaving all thought of the church in the background. We have not lived up to our responsibilities and opportunities in these things, and the membership has dwindled in many localities,

It is a fine thing to be a good Bible student and be able to explain the difficult points that arise in class work. But it is a much finer thing to be able to reach the hearts of men and women, boys and girls, in a way that makes Christianity practical; to be noble, but at the same time be human and thus cheer and encourage others.

* * * *
P R A Y E R

By Mabel Lindsay

A STUDY of the life of Jesus shows that He often sought communion with His Father in prayer. If we would be Christ-like we should cultivate the habit of prayer. We have been told to pray, and we have Christ's example and He gave to His disciples and to us the form of a perfect prayer that we need not ask amiss. There is a depth of thought expressed in each clause of this prayer.

Our Father. It is a great privilege to be allowed to say, "Our Father". How thankful we should be that we can approach the Father and commune with Him.

Who art in heaven. The idea of God being in a definite place assures us that He is a real and definite being.

Hallowed be thy name. Here we pray that we may regard God's name as sacred. We prove that we do this when we lead holy lives. When we live otherwise we profane the name of God.

Thy kingdom come. To those who believe that the kingdom is yet to come this petition means a great deal. We believe His kingdom will come and with it wonderful blessings for us, and so it is right that we should pray for the kingdom to come.

Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. If all of us on earth could submit ourselves to God's will; if it were done on earth as it is in heaven, the earth, too, would be a heavenly place. We believe and we pray that the time will come when this will be so.

Give us this day our daily bread. God gives, even to the unjust, food and necessities for their daily use, but the just acknowledge that their benefits come from Him and thank Him for them. In this petition we imply our faith in God to provide for us.

And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. Here we acknowledge that we have sinned and that we wish to be forgiven. Therefore it is necessary for us to cultivate a forgiving spirit—not always an easy thing to do—and we need the help of

(Continued on page 235, column 2)

OLD AGE

OLD age ought to be the happiest time of life; it can be the happiest time of life; but often it is anything but happy, and is rather a time of discouragement and regret.

Human experience and divine truth both give us abundant reason to look forward to old age with eagerness, not with fear. Russell H. Conwell, the famous Baptist preacher and lecturer, who died a little more than a year ago at the ripe old age of eighty-two after a lifetime of extraordinary activity and achievement, has the following in one of his sermons:

"The Earl of Halsbury when ninety-nine years old prepared to celebrate the century mark by giving England a revised edition of her laws, amounting to twenty volumes. The great artist Titian painted one of his greatest pictures, "The Battle of Lepanto," when he was ninety-eight. Von Moltke was in active service at eighty-eight. Goethe finished "Faust" when eighty-two. Six months later he died. The astronomer Galileo was seventy-three years of age when he made some of his greatest discoveries. Socrates began to study music at the age of eighty. Cato influenced the world more after he was eighty years of age than during all his previous life. Ludovico at the great age of one hundred and fifteen wrote the memoirs of his own times."

If men can celebrate their old age by merely human achievements of this sort, how much more may the Christian look to God for supernatural strength and joy toward the end of a long life! The glory of the Gospel is that it is always superior to human conditions. Circumstances never can get the better of it; it enables us always to rise above them. And the Scriptures contain peculiarly precious promises and assurances of what God offers to do for those who trust Him when the "earthly house of this tabernacle" begins to dissolve.

The various writers of the Psalms knew God, and knew that His strength would not fail when theirs did. Thus a psalmist writes: "O God, thou hast taught me from my youth: and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous works. Now also when I am old and grey-headed, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come". Here was a man in good old age who had known God from boyhood. He counted confidently on God's continuing strength to the end of his life, that he might be a living witness of those divine resources to all who were watching him. God never changes, and human nature never changes, and if more people of advanced years to-day would confidently make this their prayer there would be more "living epistles" proving to the world the faithfulness of God.

For old age apart from God is not attractive. Only the light of Christ indwelling one at such a time can irradiate the life with beauty. The writer of the Proverbs knew this when he said, "The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness". Christ is the only "way of righteousness" human beings can ever know.

Some of the promises made by God to Israel as a nation are equally applicable to the individual believer. The old age of Israel, when she recognizes and receives the Lord Jesus Christ as her Messiah, as God has covenanted she shall do, will be the best part of her national life, better than any part that has gone before. Equally true is this of the individual who trusts God, and to whom He says as He did to Israel: "Even to your old age I am he; and even to hoar hairs will I carry you: I have made, and I will bear; even I will carry, and will deliver you". That promise reminds one of the Twenty-third Psalm, especially in its climax: "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever". There is no room for fear or discouragement at the end of a life like that.

Nor does a glorified old age depend, under grace, upon a lifetime of righteousness. If this were so there would be no hope, at the end of their lives, for those who have wasted and misspent their lives. The miracle of God's grace through Christ as Savior is that He can make the last years or days of a misspent life glorious. This puts no premium upon sin; but it does put a premium upon God's forgiveness of sin and restoration from its ravages. Over and over again old people have turned to Christ as Savior, and have found that they did not need to wait . . . to enter into the joy of their Lord; . . . God can and will blot out the past, instantly, for any aged one who turns to Christ in repentance and faith. And on the other hand God can keep any young believer walking in newness of life for more than three-score years and ten. So that the best that each has known of Him will be only bettered toward the end.

The Apostle Paul knew the secret of happy old age, and he wrote, after telling something of the sufferings and troubles through which he had had to pass; "but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day . . . while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen".

The late Dr. A. J. Gordon used to tell of an old man whom he once met singing. "Friend," said Dr. Gordon, "why should an old man be so cheerful?"

"Not all are," was the reply.

"Well, then, why are you?" asked Dr. Gordon.

"Because I belong to the Lord."

"And are none others happy at your time of life?" asked the preacher.

"No, not one, my friendly questioner," said the old man, as his form straightened. "Listen to the truth from one who knows, and no man of three-score and ten shall be found to deny it. The devil has no happy old men."—Taken from "The (Toronto) Globe".

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON X.—March 6.

SHARING THE GOOD NEWS

Acts 8:4-8; 2 Corinthians 5:14-20.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Ye shall be my witnesses.—Acts 1:8, S. R. V.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Sharing the Good News. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."—Rom. 10:17.

Faith in God as revealed in the Bible is a first step toward salvation. This comes by hearing the word of God.

God has committed His word to faithful believers throughout the centuries, who in turn passed it on to others. Only thus would the word of God have reached mankind.

The gospel of Christ seemed to be very different from the law of Moses. Christians were believed by many to be enemies of God. Therefore, they were bitterly persecuted. To escape the persecution many Christians migrated to distant countries, as later did the Pilgrim Fathers. But, wherever they went they proclaimed the gospel. Thus, persecution was a means of distributing the good news.

To distant Corinth Paul wrote that he was an ambassador for Christ. It was for him to proclaim Christ's truths of salvation and to receive believers into fellowship with Christ. "Necessity" was "laid upon" him, 1 Cor. 9:16, 17; "woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel!"

This is the way God has provided for distributing His call. As ambassadors Christians are sent to the human race to solicit individuals for the service of God.

The plant may make millions of autos, but unless there is a strong, well-organized sales force but few will ever be called for. Distribution is an element of great value in every undertaking.

Christians are the distributors of God's gospel. The work will employ every ability and talent of the church. The extent of the work of reconciliation to-day is a responsibility on the church. No member of the church can avoid this responsibility. Each one is individually responsible to the full extent of his own strength—be that strength of whatsoever kind of ability one possesses.

It is the greatest work of these centuries.

Faithful stewards will become faithful ambassadors for Christ.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

Ye are my witnesses.—Acts 1:8.

A witness is a memorial, evidence, or proof of an agreement, transaction, or an existing fact. In Genesis 21:29-30 we have the account of seven ewe lambs being a witness or evidence that Abraham had digged a well and he was, therefore, the owner. Genesis 31:46-52 records a witness as being a heap of stones. In Joshua 22:26-27, a witness, which was an altar in this case, was to bear evidence that Israel had promised their service to God. Thus many are the examples in scripture of witnesses in various forms. Two witnesses were required to establish any charge. Num. 35:30; John 8:17.

Christ, in speaking to his disciples, said, "Ye are my witnesses." They were to bear testimony to the world, that Jesus the Christ was truly the Son of God. They attested to this fact by suffering persecution and even martyrdom.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

Bible. The inanimate, lifeless Bible unless circulated by man among men would remain where and to whom it was spoken and written. It requires the active and energetic labors of its friends to present its message to others. The duty of proclaiming the gospel message has been given by God to His servants for them to administer till the return of His Son. This duty involves the use of all abilities, including those most fully developed—all under God's direction. This requires particular dedication of individuals to the service that is offered them.

Christ. Christ is the Savior of the world. The only way for man to receive salvation is to obey Him, and obedience requires knowledge. The method left for acquainting men of Christ is through His words, records concerning His own works, and the prophecies pertaining to Him. These things can and must be told the world by those who have enrolled in His service. Here lies the great opportunity and duty of the Christian.

These labors require the activity of every known ability of man. Each should use his ability in its fullest capacity.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

An ambassador for Christ.
Christ's death for all.
Living unto Christ.
Christ's love that constraineth.
God's use of persecution.
God's dependence on men for gospel distribution.

QUESTIONS.

What is the gospel?
Of what use is it?
How do the gospel and reconciliation combine?
How qualify for evangelizing?
Define "ambassador for Christ".
What is the meaning of "for" in the statement, "Christ died for all"?
Does God need evangelists? Pastors? Elders?
Should Christians sacrifice for others' salvation?
Name different ways to help in evangelizing.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sr. Azalia Winfrey has returned to her school work in Oregon and reports that Bro. Ferd is much improved.

* * *

Sr. Dorothy Magaw, who has been at Miller Hospital, St. Paul, Minnesota, writes that she has appreciated the thoughtfulness and kindness of the many people who have sent her greetings during her recent illness. Her address is still Miller Hospital.

* * *

We have a few copies of Peloubet's Select Notes on the Sunday School lessons for 1927 at $1.90; and also of Arnold's Practical Commentary at $1.00. These books are good helps for Sunday School teachers. National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

* * *

On the back page of this issue you will find an advertisement of Calling Cards. In this we present to you a new method in printing of society work, especially visiting cards as the one item most universally used. While this new method is a process work, it should not be confused with the many similar processes, none of which seem to be satisfactory in every detail. Copper-plate engraving, as you well know, is universally recognized as the correct form of printing for social use. It is usually detected by lightly running the finger over the printed surface. If the type feels rough you naturally conclude that it is engraving. To obtain this "rough feel" you gladly pay from $2.50 to $6.00 per 100 cards, depending upon the style of type. "Reliefagraph", as our new method is known, gives you this same feel and surface at less than the cost of the copper-plate alone.

Therefore, we call your attention to the "Our Line of Cards" article.

* * *

INDIANA NOTICE

Bro. Paul C. Johnson is scheduled to speak in South Bend on Sunday, March 6, morning and evening; at Plymouth on Monday evening, March 7; and at Burr Oak on Tuesday evening, March 8. If there are any other points in Indiana that would like his services on this trip it can be arranged.

Bro. Johnson is one of our young ministers from the training class, and this will be his first trip to Indiana. Let all in the vicinity of these churches take notice to this announcement and arrange to hear him if possible.

F. A. Stilson.

* * *

SOUTH BEND CHURCH MEETING

On Wednesday evening, February 2, the members of the South Bend church met at the home of Bro. and Sr. Richard C. Railsback for a business meeting.

The original membership list was read. This included a number of the brethren who have since fallen asleep to await the Master's call as well as those who have moved away. This list is to be revised and brought up to date and an effort made to persuade all members living in South Bend to make connection with the local organization.

It is the present intention to have a minister more often during this year with the thought of increasing in numbers and strength in the Master's work.

Bro. Rolland Stilson was chosen Elder to assist Bro. Richard Railsback. Bros. Lynn Leighty and Lewis Romine are to have the work as Deacons; Sr. Lydia Railsback, Treasurer; Sr. Lois Hunt, Secretary; and Sr. Dessie Fox, Pianist.

* * *

MICHIGAN

The Michigan brethren are urged to remember the Conference Treasury at this time as funds are running quite low.

L. Bridegam, Treas.
101 Hall St. S.W., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sr. M. A. Woodward writes: "I have done some visiting and calling since I left Oregon. I have in all visited 30 homes. Sr. Hewitt, Grand Rapids, who is recovering from a recent stroke, can walk about 10 feet in 5 minutes. Sr. Hulda Myers, Watson, is almost helpless from her recent stroke. Sr. Eunice Fish of Sanoma is totally blind and quite deaf. All were glad to hear of the work in different places. I was enabled to visit each of these through the kindness of friends who drove their autos."

Bro. Patrick is recovering nicely from his attack of "gout" and is able to take up his work again.

About thirty adults in attendance at the West Bowne Bible Class on Wednesday evening, the 9th, inst., shows that the interest is still keeping up. This was after four weeks without any class, owing to the meetings at Grand Rapids and Bro. Patrick's illness.

Bro. and Sr. Harold Simpson have been on the sick list for some time, but at last report were recovering nicely. There is much sickness throughout this section.

Sr. Dorothy Briggs, of Blanchard, has entered Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids to take training that will fit her for the position of nurse.

Bro. K. N. Woodward was taken to Butterworth Hospital a few days ago. His condition was considered quite serious. However, they found that the fracture in the hip was doing nicely. With hospital care his chances are good for recovery.

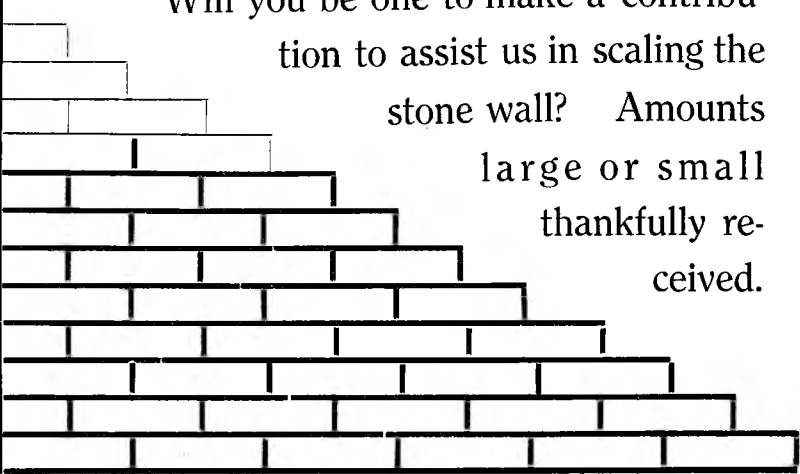

Bro. Patrick is to hold a public discussion with a Latter Day Saint in the near future. The discussion will probably be held at Alto, some time the first of March.

Still going up. A few more blocks; a little more mortar; then over the top. Let's go!

F. A. S.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

STANHOPE, IOWA

In a recent issue of The Herald I noticed a request for reports from Iowa.

I'm sure we do all enjoy to read what our neighboring states are doing as well as the churches in our own state. But why do we not report? It surely cannot be that we are ashamed of what is being done, at least that is not the case here, probably we are only a little neglectful.

Everything has gone along nicely, no bad storms, the roads have been good, and the folks have been in fairly good health. We have met once a month since conference. We had occasion to have Bro. Williams with us twice in January. Bro. Jones took Bro. Williams' place in November when he was out of the state. We have met at the homes this winter. Bro. Williams usually comes on Saturday, then we have a Bible lesson Saturday evening in which the children take good interest.

One of the children gives a Bible story Sunday forenoon, besides the usual sermon forenoon and evening. The usual good attendance and interest is manifested.

Esther Sealine, Sec'y.

* * *

IOWA REPORT

January was a busy month, as we had some extra meetings at places off the regular course. We had planned to go to Waterloo the last Sunday in December, but owing to local conditions there we changed to the first Sunday in January, and stayed home for the Christmas Sunday, though this gave us no Sunday in January at Gladbrook. But we keep up our weekly study Tuesday nights, unless hindered by bad roads or other cause. We kept the regular appointments at Stanhope and Koszta the second and third Sundays, with the usual attendance. At Stanhope we meet now in town, at the home of Melvin Drake. We always have some of the outside public present. One Saturday night the Christian pastor was present with his wife, and the principal of the school with his wife. We put in an extra visit at Stanhope in January, as the evangelist was already near, and the Ackerson family expected to leave soon for California, and wished to meet again before leaving, so we met Wednesday and Thursday nights on my way from Eagle Grove to Lake View for the fifth Sunday.

After being at Waterloo the first Sunday and the fourth one, we met at Clarksville on Monday nights, at the home of Bro. Seitz, and from there I went on to Eagle Grove both times, where we met at the home of Bro. Mead, who is quite poorly in health. At Waterloo we meet for study Saturday nights at the W. H. Allard home in Cedar Falls, where we also have the forenoon sermon on Sundays. A number of outside friends come.

On Sunday nights we meet at the Christadelphian chapel in Waterloo, and have a very good time together in joint meeting with them.

At Lake View we met at the home of S. C. Sonnichsen for the sermons Friday and Saturday nights, and the two Sunday sermons were at the home of Sister Glass in Sac City. Our own members and families were all we had present at Sac City, but at Lake View we always have several others.

At Gladbrook the last Sunday we had preaching there were seven of the outside public present, a number of whom had never been with us before.

During January we had 17 sermons, 5 lessons, and 1 story to the children.

We lately consulted Henry Field's at Shenandoah as to broadcasting some sermons from there. They replied saying their program is filled till April and stipulating that we furnish our own musical part of the service and make the sermon 15 minutes in length, so we will likely not do anything further about it.

J. W. Williams.

* * *

IOWA NEWS

Bro. and Sr. I. Fish celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary at Maxwell December 29th. Their son Arthur is taking a course in salesmanship at the University of Commerce at Des Moines.

Sr. Rosa Fish was with the Stanhope brethren for the regular appointment February 13.

Miss Neta Cronbaugh, of Koszta, daughter of Warren Cronbaugh and wife, came to the Evangelist's home with Vernon E. Young, February 9th, where they were quietly married. The couple went for a short visit to his sister at Grundy Center, and will live on a farm near Koszta. Mrs. Young will finish her school term. She has been a very successful teacher in Iowa County, and her service will be missed there, and also in the home, where she has been of good help to her mother. Mr. Young bears a good name as an industrious farmer, and we wish them happiness and success.

Bro. G. P. Allard has taken a temporary leave of absence from the bank at Fort Dodge, and is officially interested in a new coal process. The coal is atomized and the risk of explosion in the old process powdered coal is eliminated, and the process seems very promising. It would have to be something more sound than flowery talk of a promoter to enlist his attention, and we hope he will find it all he expects. Sr. Allard is slowly gaining her former good health, for which we all are thankful.

Sr. Petty, of Sac City, has had some poor health again this winter, but is improving, and seems to lose none of her old-time mental vigor.

Sr. Margaret Moore expects to return to Waterloo from Washington in the spring. She has been visiting her daughter Viva for over a year.

Bro. T. J. Ellis is improved in health, but needs to take especial care of his health and strength, so is not always at our meetings at Waterloo.

Francis Jones is living in the upstairs of his father's home at Eagle Grove, and working with him in the Grand Union Tea business.

Bro. O. J. Allard is at Long Beach, California.

Bro. Levi Gabrielson and family, formerly of Sac City, are at Keokuk. They have purchased a small acreage at the edge of the city there.

Sr. Seitz has taken a few violin lessons since July, and has learned to play remarkably well for one of her age and little instruction.

* * *

OBITUARY

Oliver Otis Howard was born in Polk County, Iowa, February 29, 1883, and died at his home at Marathon, Iowa, February 13, 1927, at the age of 42 years, 11 months, and 13 days. His death came almost instantaneously, occurring at 4 a.m. while he was in bed, being caused probably by heart failure or brain hemorrhage.

The family of his father came to Sac County when he was 2 years of age, and at the time he was 18 they came to Buena Vista County, where he has since resided continuously, being a prosperous farmer, and a popular neighbor.

He was married to Miss Laura Garton, September 4, 1907, and three sons were born to them, one of whom, Archie, died at the age of three and a half years. Allen and Raymond, the other two, with their mother survive. He also leaves his aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard, of Marathon, and four brothers, his twin brother, Oscar, at Reading, Minnesota. Robert, at Mora, Minnesota, John, at Rapid City, South Dakota, and Fletcher, at Sac City, Iowa; and two sisters, Mrs. E. L. Mayclin, at Mora, Minnesota, and Mrs. J. H. Wilson, at Marathon, who with many other relatives and friends mourn his sudden and untimely death.

The funeral was held in the M. E. church at Marathon before a very large assembly of relatives and neighbors, the writer speaking mostly from the 12th verse of the 90th Psalm, "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom", after which he was laid to rest beside his little son to wait for the call to life for those who sleep the final sleep.

J. W. Williams.

The Children's Page

SHARING THE GOOD NEWS

BY LOIS HUNT

EXTRA! EXTRA! EXTRA!

JESUS IS COMING!

WOULD not that be good news to see in the morning paper? Yet, how many would welcome it? Not those who are living merely for a worldly "good time", without thought for a "good time" in Christ; not those who think of themselves only and their own selfish wants.

However, it was good news long ago to the sick, blind, lame, and sorrowing.

Jesus had ascended into the heavens, but His disciples were teaching the things He had taught them. They were so filled with desire to bring others to Jesus that they went everywhere "sharing the good news".

In Jerusalem there was a learned man, named Saul, who loved God and thought he was best serving Him by hurting the followers of Jesus. He had even permitted his associates to stone Stephen to death. To escape a like fate, the disciples fled in every direction. Wherever they went they talked about the Master and His helpfulness.

Philip was one of these disciples. He went to Samaria, and not only did he preach Christ to them, but performed many miracles—healing the lame and sick in mind and body. The people were so happy that 'most everyone gave heed. Don't you think they would want to tell other people about their joy?

And what do you think happened to this cruel-hearted Saul? Well, as he was on his way to Damascus to persecute the Christians there, the Lord smote him with blindness for three days, and caused his heart to become changed. As the people who had been healed wanted to tell of their faith, so Saul—now Paul, wanted to tell of the wonderful thing that had happened to him. He devoted the rest of his life to telling about Jesus and His coming; and wanting people to be ready to meet the Savior.

When Paul could not preach to others he wrote them letters. In one of his letters to the people of Corinth he told them how Christ so loved us that He gave His life for us, and then rose again. If we want to come into Christ we must be baptized—buried in water and brought up again, as Christ was covered in the tomb and resurrected again. Then, after we are baptized, we are like new creatures—our sins are all forgiven and blotted out, and we can start all over again, trying to live for and like Jesus.

Paul said we could be "ambassadors" for Christ. What did he mean?

Men sent from one country to another to represent that country, take a message, or settle some question are called ambassadors. So we must represent Christ and take His message wherever and whenever we have the opportunity. Will you be His ambassador? Will you share the good news with your friends, invite them to your meetings, write letters to others, and give of your spending money to the Sunday school and church?

Are you a "J. I. M." boy or girl?

SOMETHING TO DO

TO THE CHILDREN: A few weeks ago there was an editorial in The Herald which said that 250 or 300 more subscriptions to The Herald would help so much in publishing this paper.

Now why cannot you be news boys or news girls and ask your neighbors or acquaintances to subscribe?

The reward for this service would be far more worthwhile than the dolls, skates, etc. most newspapers offer for new subscriptions.

Won't you try? Each subscription would help, and you would thus be "sharing the good news".

Lois Hunt.

A LITTLE WAY DOWN STREET

MY BOY, you came in rather late last night. and this morning, when your mother asked you where you were, you said, "Down street." Then when she wanted to know whereabouts down street; you said, "Oh, just a little ways."

Now, I don't think you intended to lie to your mother. As a rule you are a truthful boy, and your mother can believe you. But I wonder if you know how far down street you were last night. You were right when you said you were "Down street." Whenever a boy comes home late at night, and is afraid or ashamed to tell just where he has been and what he has been doing. I know as well as he does, and his mother knows, and everybody who knows anything about boys knows, that he has been down street.

And more than that, my boy; I know that he has been a long way down street. A long, long way. Have you a map of your route last evening? No! Well, never mind; we know you were down street, and we can make a map in a minute or two. Sit down here, and we'll see how far a boy travels when he leaves home after supper, and goes down street a little way and doesn't get back until ten o'clock or later.

Here is your home, this bright little spot like a star on the map. The sweetest, purest, safest place this side of Heaven; the home where, from father to baby, they love you better than all the rest of the people in all the big, wide world. Now, when you start from here and go down street, somehow the street always has a down grade from home when you sneak out after night. See how far you get from respectability and self-respect, when you reach this corner, "just a little ways down," where you loafed—eh? Well, I'll say, loitered, if you prefer it—where you loitered last night. Here are the fellows with whom you loitered. You had to meet them here, because you can never meet them in your home, for two reasons. In the first place, your father wouldn't permit one of them to come into his house, and in the second place you would be ashamed to invite them there, whether your father forbade it or not. Sweet gang for your father's son to loiter with, isn't it? It is a long ways from your respectable home, from your father's guests, to this corner down street, isn't it?

Then—look on the map, my boy—see how far it is from manliness and decency. Two ladies hurried past this corner, friends of your mother; possibly they had been spending the evening at your home. Thank Heaven, they could not see you as you slunk back into the dark doorway; feeling like the sneak that you were; and, as they passed by, one of the loafers with whom you were loitering shouted an insulting remark after them. Your cheeks burned in the dark, at that. Didn't your home and sisters seem to be a thousand miles away just then?

See, too, how far you were from purity. Some of the boys told some stories; do you think you could report them to your sisters? Don't you wish this morning that you could forget them for ever? Don't you wish you had never heard them? Don't you know your mind will never again be as pure and innocent as it was before you went "just a little ways down street" last night? While you were listening to these stories, punctuated with profanity, the dear ones at home gathered in the living room, were thinking of their dear, sweet boy who was "just a little way down street". Then the lights went out one by one, the house was still, and only the loving mother waited anxiously and sleeplessly for the boy who was down street. It was a long, long way down street to her, and what a steep grade all the way down.

And it was a long, long way from the truth. When you evaded your mother's question and said you were only "a little way down street" the lie in your false heart looked guiltily out of your eyes as it rose to your lips. Just see where you were; you, ordinarily a brave, manly, truthful boy, turned into a coward! You would fight, I know, if any boy called you such names, but just tell yourself the truth; don't lie to yourself. Were you not ashamed to tell your mother where you were? The "half lie" you told your mother is like all half-breeds, it has all the worst traits of the vilest race and none of the virtues of the best.

"But," you say, "a boy doesn't have to go with toughs and ruffraff when he goes down street; there are some mighty nice boys go down street at night." My boy, I know it; there are some "mighty nice boys" go out of nights, but they are not so nice when they come back. You can't select your company on the street. The corner is free for everybody. There is no exclusiveness in street company. There is no safe "corner" for you after night except the chimney corner. And when you leave that, and spend your evening on the street, and give no account of your doing on your return beyond the bold statement that you were "just down street a little way," we know, with pain and sorrow, that our boy has locked up in his mind and heart shameful, guilty things that he dare not tell. It is a long way to the corner just down the street.—Selected.

The Federal Bureau of Entomology is preparing a list of every known economic pest on the North American Continent. A place should be reserved for the idler who has a half-hour to spend, and who spends it with some one who hasn't.—Seattle Times.

"PROGRESS IS ADDITION"

By Paul C. Johnson

RECENTLY in reading what a certain author had to say about the finding of things that were worthwhile in life and how to obtain them we found this statement: "Progress is addition".

And how true this is! If one is to gain vast material possessions he must get a start and then add to. As soon as the addition stops the progress toward greater possessions stops.

A child is born into the world. He has no ideas of his own. But not long after birth the process of addition begins and it continues till the child reaches maturity. Addition has changed the child into the man or the woman that it has become. Note the pitiable and awful result where such has not been the case.

This is also true in the Christian life. If a Christian has come to a standstill and is not learning more of God and of His Son from day to day he is not progressing. Peter says that exceeding great and precious promises have been given to us. But there is necessity for addition, so he goes on to say, 2 Peter 1:5-7, "And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity." There Peter has named a list that will keep anyone busy at adding all the days of his life if he wishes to tackle the problem. And it is by that addition that we "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

"Progress is addition." Are you adding?

NOTES FROM THE TRAINING CLASS

BY MARY A. GESIN

THE notes from our previous studies have been dealing with the pupil in several divisions from early childhood to adult life, the chief characteristics of each period and the resultant opportunity for guidance by the teacher. We will now consider forces that are at work in every stage.

In earliest childhood, we find only instinct guiding the child's activities, a trait which the child does not acquire by experience or habit, but which is a natural tendency. All of the instincts which humans display, do not appear simultaneously. In fact, new interests develop new instincts, and the child is at all times eagerly searching for something on which to expend his energies. This is of great importance to the teacher—the faculty of knowing just when to present knowledge that will make its strongest appeal and serve the purpose of greatest usefulness in later life.

Kirkpatrick classifies the human instincts as follows: individualistic, parental, collective, social, adaptive, and regulative. The last three named are the ones with which we are most concerned in our work of teaching the truths of the Bible. The first—the social instincts—are those concerned with the pupil in his relation to other persons, sympathy, affection, altruism. The second—the adaptive instincts—are those concerned with his relation to his surroundings, curiosity, imitation, adaptability. The third—the regulative instincts—are those concerned with his moral growth—the formation of ideals and its effect on his life.

As stated in our previous notes, an instinct once used is no longer an instinct. It has added two things—a habit and an idea. The results accruing from the use of an instinct determine future action. Thus we see the importance of cultivating desirable instincts that will lead in the right direction and form the basis of desirable habits. We must begin as early in life as possible to establish habits that tend toward upright moral and mental growth, primarily because youth is plastic and habits are easily formed and easily discarded. Merely to refrain from forming undesirable habits is not sufficient. All our energies should be bent into forming desirable habits.

Our teacher, Bro. Stilson, gave us a very good lesson on "the will". He showed us that the first determining factor of an act of will is the presence of several ideas from which to choose. We get these ideas from previous experience, under given conditions. In order to develop a strong will, one's mind must treasure the right ideas and discard the wrong. This is the second step in determining our course of action, and is what we call "judgment". It is one of the last faculties to be acquired by the pupil. Thus we see that to get the right ideas before the mind and then to act promptly upon them is most important in securing a strong will. The third step is developing a desire for right—a centering of the affection on things worth while. In our work of teaching, we should not present the abstract principles of the Bible without making practical application of them in every day life. Help the child by providing an incentive to do right, for his will is determined by his feelings as much as by his ideas.

In closing we can put into no more fitting words the following from the author of our text book, Luther A. Weigle: "The final secret of strength of will is the grace of God. There is no love like His, no feeling mightier than the sense of His presence and help. Not upon ideas and sheer effort of attention merely, not even upon the strength alone that comes from earthly affection need the wills of men rely; they may lay hold of the love and grace of an almighty God. The experience that Paul records in the seventh chapter of his letter to the Romans is true of all humanity. He who fails of his own strength to free himself from 'the law of sin and death' may yet live to 'thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord.'"

IF CHRISTIANITY is a fact, IT IS A GREAT FACT, a fact for the life which now is, and for that which is to come.
—R. H. J.

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION
National Bible InstitutionPublishers of
THE RESTITUTION HERALD
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager

F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer,
F. A. Stilson, Secretary,Oregon, Illinois
Oregon, Illinois
Oregon, Illinois
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

NOT FEELING BUT FAITH

THERE are many who think—or at least this is indicated by many expressions—that Christianity is largely a religion of feeling, emotion, or sentiment; that its chief evidence to its devotees is the feeling which it arouses.

It is freely granted that this misconception of Christianity exists among many professed Christians. They are only Christians when they are wrought into an ecstasy of feeling at revivals, under powerful exhortations, or at some warm social meeting! Unless such excitement, incitement, or association continues, the religion wanes. Such religion must necessarily be ephemeral and shallow.

Christianity is based on life union with Christ Jesus; and the channel of that life, the bond of that union is faith, faith in God's eternal, omnipotent Word. Genuine, lasting faith is absolute submission to God persistently maintained. The soul yields to God's commandments, yields the sin God's law condemns, yields himself that God's promises may work out in him the will of God, and grasps joyfully the forgiveness, the righteousness, the life, the joy there is in Christ Jesus. Faith to the Christian is just what the trolley is to the electric car; it connects with the life of God, the Source of power.

The Christian's confidence, therefore, is not based on feeling, but on God's Word. And that word does not change. Feeling may be absent, emotion may die away, but God's Word abides. We are sinners; but Christ purchased us as sinners; and we, therefore, confess our sins and yield all to him. He forgives the sins, for so He has promised. It matters not whether we feel like it or not, the sin is forgiven, because we have submitted to the conditions, we have made connection with the Power which takes the sin away. In that promise we may rejoice. Satan may recall those sins by taunting us with them; we may be grieved by seeing their results before us; dark clouds may at times shut out the light of heaven; but God's Word changes not, and our faith rests on the Word. The sins are forgiven, for God has spoken.

This faith will be more manifest in the time of trial. The worldling and Christian may walk together in sunlight and prosperity with little to distinguish between them; but let sorrow come, business reverses take place, friends forsake us, our good name be reviled, death remove loved ones from our presence, then it is that faith is tested. He whose hope is based on the seeming, the feeling, the immediate surroundings, will fail, while he whose hope is in the sure promises of God, will stand secure in Christ Jesus. His house cannot fall; it is founded on the Rock. This is genuine Christianity and its basis. Would there were more of it.

*O, for a faith that will not shrink
Though pressed by many a foe;
That will not stumble on the brink
Of poverty and woe.*

—Selected by Mrs. H. B. Cramer.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH TO THE COMMUNITY

(Continued from page 323)

holiness of life, to re-enforce its words by the stronger influence of example. There is a proverb that the world has in its book of wisdom which says, "Practice what you preach". But the Master's command is the reverse of this, for in Matt. 5 He says, "Do and teach them", that is, Preach what you practice. It will save a large part of the words.

Another way in which the calling of the church is expressed is in Ephesians 2 and 1 Corinthians 3 and 6, where it is said that the church constitutes a temple in which God dwells by His Spirit, again showing that we represent God. And Peter speaks of this living temple as showing forth His praises, just as the Master said that men would glorify God for the good works of His disciples. But these living stones that Peter mentions are elsewhere warned of the evil of becoming stumbling stones, by works of darkness instead of light. In this style Paul reminds the Jews in Romans 1 that the name of the God they worshiped and represented was blasphemed among the Gentiles because of their sins. As much as to put it this way: When the community sees a professed Christian cheating and lying, it naturally concludes, This people's God must be like them, since they represent Him, and since His association with them and His doctrine make them act in this way.

Two missionaries of an unusual denomination were at a small town in Indiana. One of them was taking a walk down the railroad track while the other ridiculed the station agent for his faith in the personal return of Christ. Said the missionary, pointing to his companion down the track, "What if I should tell you that was Christ coming there?" The agent glanced in the direction indicated, and answered, "Oh, I would know that was not he". "Why so", said the other. "Because he has a pipe in his mouth", replied the agent. Tobacco smoke is poor incense, and a pipe does not well represent Him who followed not after the flesh.

(Continued next week)

PRAYER

(Continued from Berean Page)

God's power to do this.

And lead us not into temptation. We pray that God will guard and help us so we may not yield to the temptations of worldly sin and error, believing that temptations come from there and not from God. James 1:14.

But deliver us from evil. Keep us apart from the evil of this world and eventually grant us a place in the kingdom where there is no evil.

For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory. The power to forgive and save belongs not to any man but to God and the glory also is His.

May we pray this prayer with sincerity and understanding.

PALESTINE IMMIGRATION AND EMIGRATION

BETWEEN December, 1919, and November, 1926, 97,129 immigrants, of whom 93,959 were Jews, came to Palestine, according to a report from Palestine. Despite critical economic conditions in 1926, 12,174 Jews entered the country from January 1st to October 31st, a figure almost equaling the total (12,626) immigration of Jews during the latter half of 1921 and the whole of 1922. However, 5,911 Jews emigrated from Palestine during the first ten months of 1926 as against 1,503 for the 1921-22 period in question.

Of the 12,174 Jews who immigrated to Palestine between January-November, 1926, 8,800 were admitted on labor certificates (vouched for by the Zionist Organization); 2,100 were dependents of persons already resident in Palestine; and 1,200 possessed of private capital. The chief countries of emigration were Poland and Russia.—From "The New Palestine".

RIGHTLY DIVIDING THE WORD

BY R. H. JUDD

THE Bible certainly is not a book which can be understood by all—indeed it was never intended to be so. If it were now understood by all it would cease to be divine. Its varied portions are addressed to persons in varied circumstances and conditions. Some are addressed to the sinner, and as all men are sinners, such passages are meant for all and can be understood by all. Other passages are addressed to those whose whole outlook on life has been changed, and therefore cannot be understood by the former. Even those who rightly class themselves among the regenerated, and whose whole desire is for the truth, find it no easy matter to keep preconceived ideas from finding a lodgement in their interpretation of Scripture.

Even though we take into consideration the varied circumstances and temperaments of the Sacred Writers, there are two or three basic lines of interpretation that aptly apply to all literature, sacred and profane. Two main classes of passages occur: Passages that are definite, having but one interpretation, and that the literal; and passages capable of more than one exegesis. As it is essential to sacred literature that harmony prevail, it is obvious that it can be brought about only by finding for the second class of passages an interpretation that will be both legitimate and in harmony with the first class. When that is done reasonable assurance is attained that the interpretation is correct.

A further line of argument, very similar, has been of inestimable value to the writer in his study of Scripture; and others, ministers and laymen, to whom he has "passed it on" have testified to its value. In any specific study, get some one basic fact. Cling to that, for facts cannot be overthrown, and you will be surprised how quickly corroborative evidence—real evidence—accumulates round that first basic fact as time proceeds. You will then never doubt that the Bible is divinely inspired. True, one has to take into account the writer and the time and place of the writing. That is necessary in all literature.

The above suggestions will, I feel assured, be found helpful and workable.

TELL me with whom thou art found, and I will tell thee who thou art.—Goethe.

If you wish to be held in esteem, you must associate only with those who are estimable.—Bruyere.

Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners.—Bible.

No company is far preferable to bad, because we are more apt to catch the vices of others than their virtues, as disease is more contagious than health.—Cotton.

It is best to be with those in time, that we hope to be with in eternity.—Fuller.

Reduced Price Sale of Correct Calling Cards

There is always a need for calling cards; when making a formal call of course,—but the present vogue is to use these dainty cards to invite guests to parties, to send with gifts and to carry short messages.

These are the genuine Reliefagraph cards made without plates. The delicate lines and raised letterings of the most expensive engraving is preserved.

At the Sale Price, it pays to keep a supply on hand.

Correct Styles for your selection

- 1 Mrs. Horace Ross Whitney
- 32 Mrs. Charles R. Wallace
- 9 CORNELIUS O. KETCHAM, M. D.
- 19 Miss Mary Alice Jenkins
- 25 Miss Carol Jeanne Carson
- 30 Mr. George Bryan Weston

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY
MARCH 1st. to 15th.

100 Cards $1.50 100 with Panel $1.75

Other Styles and Samples at Our Stationery Department.

The Restitution Herald
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 1, 1927

NUMBER 22

THE CONSECRATED THREE

BY LOTTIE E. YOUNG

THOUGH the church is nearly two thousand years older now than when the Apostle Peter preached the sermon which caused three thousand to take on the all-saving name, I wonder if its needs to-day are much different from what they were when the great apostle to the Gentiles—Paul—dedicated himself to the service of the Master? A study of the Book of Acts will show, first, the necessity of preachers and teachers to go in all directions to awaken an interest in the minds of the people who have been lulled to sleep with teachings as fatal as when the worship of Jupiter and Mercury was prevalent; men who will take for their main theme that which runs through the first teachings of the apostolic church—the Kingdom of God and the Name of Jesus Christ—and who, like Paul, will preach on “righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come”. It is not likely that we have a Paul or Peter in the ranks of the present day church, but we may have a Barnabas and Andrew, who first brought these greater lights to a knowledge of the work the Master would have them do. It needs men full of the spirit of Christ to be willing to give up thoughts of material gain in this world and brave all the discomforts attendant on those who are willing to go where duty calls them to preach Jesus. It is one thing to sing, “Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord, to Thee,” and quite another to LIVE wholly set apart for the Master’s use.

And besides these heads, each member of the Church of God should consider himself or herself a missionary, or messenger, to all those with whom he comes in contact. How faithful the early Christians were in this respect may be seen when, even during the lifetime of the men who had been with Jesus when He walked this earth, the news of the Gospel had penetrated all parts of the known world, and all ranks of society, from the members of Caesar’s household to the slaves therein, were ready to testify to their faith in a risen Savior, even to the giving up of life itself. The words GO and GIVE are closely associated in the Bible, and those of us who stay at home should surely not do less than practice the missionary spirit of “giving till it hurts” to the carriers of the Master’s command, “Go ye therefore, and teach all nations”. Jesus Christ was the great home missionary even as His immediate followers became bearers of the good news to far-away people.

Though there have been many generous and self-sacrificing souls in our little churches, as a body we have not practiced self-denial. We believe we have the truth, and are apt to think we know more of the Bible than the denominations about us, but when the subject of tithing, or proportionate giving to God’s work is discussed, most of us are quite content to think that was part of the Jewish ritual and we have nothing to do with it, as we are in the days of abundant free grace, forgetting, as the colored pastor reminded his hearers, that it has to be “piped” to those who have not been so favored. Let us remember that ALL our earthly blessings come from God, and render unto Him not only tongue service, but a “baptized pocketbook” as well. We cannot be true followers of the Lord Jesus unless we SACRIFICE something to His cause; for He said, “If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me.” A cross is formed by the upright of God’s Word crossing the reverse of man’s will, and it is very hard yielding our desires to the point that our Great Example did when He prayed to the Father, “Not my will, but thine be done.”

A current saying is: “What’s everybody’s business is nobody’s business”, and this has been carried out in large measure by the Church of God. Jesus Christ said, “I must be about my Father’s business”, and His last recorded words to the twelve told them what their work should be. A neutral man is apt to be “unstable in all his ways”, and more than one example is given in the Bible where punishment is meted out to such. How dreadful the thought that some day, instead of hearing the words, “Come, ye blessed of my Father”, we should hear the King say, “I was hungry and ye fed me not”, and receive the punishment instead of the blessing! There are men to-day perishing for the Bread of Life. What are we doing in any way to feed them? Are we making the King’s business our business? or are we making all kinds of excuses, pleading poverty for the Master’s

(Continued on page 351, column 2)

SANCTIFICATION

BY LYMAN BOOTH

IN our Lord's prayer in John 17:17 we find these words, "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." This was given in behalf of His disciples. Sanctify comes from a Greek word meaning, a setting apart of a thing or person for God's use or purpose. This setting apart for our Lord was and is a gradual process to be accomplished by a continual drinking in of His Father's word. It will grow and become stronger and more firm and enduring as we learn and do His will.

We may have to pass under the blows of His chastening rod, and through the purifying and cleansing fire of the Holy Spirit; but if so, it will serve to draw us closer to Him, and our service will mean to us a strict sanctification, a cleansing and making holy, and to Him, a rejoicing.

With our Lord it was a pure and entire sanctification of self by His complete submission to His Father's will. It meant the entire possession of His sinless humanity, together with His fidelity in speaking the truth of God, which served as sufficient cause to His apostles for their sanctification, and as a perfect pattern for them in their Master's service. If this was sufficient cause for their sanctification, cleansing and making holy, is it not also sufficient for all believers in God's truth?

He had just asked His Father to keep them from the evil, the poisonous element which surrounded and pressed strongly upon their renewed nature, this as a protection to them from harm; but "Sanctify them" is asking for their advancement and completion of the work just begun in sanctification.

The desire and true aim of every Christian life is consecration wholly to God, and therefore our Lord said, "I consecrate myself." Every thought and every act of His was devoted to doing His Father's will, and the care and protection of His followers, and hence He said, "For their sakes I sanctify myself," that is, consecrate or devote myself, "that they also might be sanctified through the truth."

This was not intended for His apostles alone, but also for His church, for every member of it. Jesus set Himself apart, and consecrated Himself as a priest to offer an efficacious sacrifice, He as the victim, the Lamb; doomed by Himself, consecrated by Himself, yet chosen of God to be offered on the holy altar of divine righteousness.

The meaning of "giving himself for us" seems to be what our Lord calls "sanctifying himself"; and the ultimate end of His sanctification of Himself would appear to include all that Titus, 2:14, describes by redeeming us from all iniquity, and purifying to Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. In the giving of Himself for us, Jesus was the purchaser; the price paid was Jesus.

Sanctification, justification, and purification begin when one enters the Master's service and increase with each step along the way, and become complete when freed from mortality. If Christ's death has been of any avail to us, it will be shown in our progress, by our zeal in good works, the same as a good tree bears good fruit, or a sweet fountain sends forth sweet water.

The sum of our Lord's teaching seems to be this: Christ gave Himself for sinners that He might make them holy, a treasure for Himself; and the sign by which they are known as His is the zeal in well-doing. The one thing most needful for this attainment is very aptly, though crudely expressed in an Indian's prayer, when he asked for a "clean, white, true, and big heart, large enough to fill the whole body". We need our bodies full of heart and our hearts full of Christ, full of faith and love; then we shall be, indeed, zealous of good works.

While it is impossible to please God without faith, good works are not to be underestimated; for they are the full expression of holy principles, the outward sign of living, active faith.

Only they who are sanctified through the truth and consecrated to the Master's work can properly claim membership in the body of Christ. When Paul mentions the union of the church with Christ under the beautiful image of bride and bridegroom, he declares it to be the purpose to present the bride to her Lord, "holy and without blemish". He offered the strongest possible appeal to the Christian for an unspotted life. Paul placed a very high estimate upon this purity. He mentions it and by way of emphasis repeats it, and not being satisfied repeats it again, as if words were too feeble to express to us his conception of its blessedness. First, this church is sanctified and cleansed, then it is without "spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing"; and then, as a fitting climax, it is "holy and without blemish".

The relation of Christ to the church is the same as that of husband and wife. He is not to rule over her arbitrarily, but with the power of His love, yielding Himself to her as a part of His own being, as His other self, making her partaker of His joys and possessions; patiently and meekly bearing her weakness, and in every way promoting her temporal and spiritual welfare, sacrificing Himself for her, even to His life, as Christ has given His life for the church, thereby continually sanctifying and purifying her with His blood, and gradually raising her to the position of a spotless bride, and finally to full participation in His glory and blessedness. This makes the sanctification and moral perfection of character the highest and noblest end of conjugal life and love.

Paul lays great stress upon the consideration of the bride's identity with her husband. His allusion is to the mystery of the woman's origin from the body of the man. Being taken from his side, she is his other self. "As no man ever hated his own flesh", so in "nourishing and cherishing" his wife, he simply loves his own flesh.

His second argument is the analogy between the husband's love and that of Christ for the church. The immense sacrifice whereby Christ gave Himself "finds its type" but faintly in the consecration of the husband, when, forsaking all past associates and fellowships, he cleaves unto his wife and devotes himself to her alone. How happy is such a union, and how beneficent is the effect of true conjugal intercourse between the two, when she by her tenderness softens all that is harsh and rough in his nature, and when he with firm kindness trains, upholds, and develops those pliant graces which bud and bloom as they gracefully twine 'round his manly strength! For such a union with our Lord let us daily live, and for it pray without ceasing.

In Christ every believer is born of God, is His son; and so they are not only brethren one with another that are thus born, but Christ is not ashamed to call them brethren. Heb. 2:11. God's only begotten Son has made many sons of God. He bought Himself brethren with His blood. When they abandoned Him, He approved them; when they sold Him, He offered them redemption; when they outraged Him, He offered honor; when they put Him to death, He offered them life. Have we any reason to doubt that He will freely give us of His heavenly gifts if we consecrate our services to Him?

ON WHICH ROAD WILL YOU TRAVEL?

BY RUFUS A. CURTIS

AS "it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps," it is imperatively necessary to heed the admonition of the Lord, "Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." Jer. 10:23; 6:16. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber."—John 10:1. See also John 14:6. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."—Matt. 7:13-14. See also Eph. 5:1-7.

As there are two ways, one of them broad, and easy of access; and the other narrow, and with but few travelers, so there are two destinations to be reached. There are two goals to be attained. The wide gate and broad way "leadeth to destruction"; the strait gate, and narrow way, "leadeth unto life". The destiny of the two classes will be according to the road they have traveled, and the characters they have developed. "Say ye to the righteous, that it shall be well with him: for they shall eat the fruit of their doings. Woe unto the wicked! it shall be ill with him: for the reward of his hands shall be given him."—Isa. 3:10, 11. "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."—James 4:17. See also Luke 12:47. "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death."—James 1:15. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Rom. 6:23. See also John 14:6. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."—Gal. 6:7-8. "The way of transgressors is hard", "they are utterly consumed with terrors", but "light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart". Prov. 13:15; Psa. 73:1-10, 16-19; 37:38; 97:11.

The possibility of attaining unto everlasting life, by heeding the Master's words to enter in at the strait gate and follow the narrow way, is emphasized over and over again in the Bible. Out of the multitudinous references to conditional immortality, I will cite a few that are so plain that they need no comment. "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:14-16. Everlasting life is associated with the world to come, and cannot be obtained apart from Jesus, who is the resurrection and the life. Luke 18:28-30; John 11:25, 26. Jesus and the resurrection are our heavenly Father's means of bestowing immortality upon men who are now mortal and corruptible. Acts 17:18-20, 30-32; Job 4:17; Rom. 1:22, 23; Isa. 26:19-21. For those who walk in the narrow way mortality will yet "be swallowed up of life"; "for this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality", when "death is swallowed up in victory". 2 Cor. 5:4; 1 Cor. 15:53, 54, 57.

This is the complaint of the Prince of life: "And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life." Acts 3:15; John 5:40. "And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day."—John 6:40. "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."—1 John 5:11-12. Abide in Christ, and "when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory."—Col. 3:4. See also John 15:4-6.

May we earnestly seek "the path of life".—Psa. 16:11.

SPEAKING-TRUMPET RESCUES

"THERE was a terrific wreck off the coast of Italy. The captain of the life-saving crew, instead of manning the lifeboat, stood on shore and shouted directions through a trumpet to the drowning sailors. The report that went to the government said: 'We rendered what assistance we could through the speaking-trumpet, but the next morning there were 20 bodies washed ashore.' And the church that uses its pastor as a speaking-trumpet and fails to man the lifeboats with the entire crew and push out to save the lost who are going down will be responsible for a great company who will one day be thrown upon the shores of a Christless eternity."—Every Member Evangelism.

PAUL'S JOURNEY TO ROME

By SAMUEL E. HANEY

THERE are several interesting and impressive similitudes between Paul's voyage to Italy, Acts 27, and the Old and New Testament accounts of the journey of the Christian to the kingdom.

Paul's Christian career was unique and inimitable. Colloquially speaking, he was a God-made man for a specific purpose that no other man could have obtained. He was not ignorant of the consequence of an appeal to Cæsar. But nothing could dissuade him; as on a previous occasion when Agabus warned him of the danger awaiting him at Jerusalem, his reply to his solicitous friends was, "What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus".—Acts 21:8-14. Martin Luther had the same self-abnegating spirit: "I shall go to Worms if there be as many devils there as there are tiles on the housetop."

Paul's appeal: "Festus answered Paul, wilt thou go up to Jerusalem?" He replied, "I stand at Cæsar's judgment seat . . . I appeal unto Cæsar". "Unto Cæsar shalt thou go", was Festus' sentence. Acts 25:9-12.

After Paul's masterly oration, Acts 26, which almost melted King Agrippa's stony heart, he said unto Paul, "Almost thou persuadedest me to be a Christian", v. 28. Paul was the mental master of all he met in Rome: "Felix trembled" before him, Acts 24:25; he convinced the highest court that he was not "worthy of death or of bonds"; and that he "might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar".

Our lesson from the above is, first, ascertain God's will; then, without considering cost or danger, Go and Do!

There are some things God cannot do. He cannot make a person accept His Son as his personal Savior; neither can He make use of a coward or a skulker in His vineyard.

Paul's voyage to Rome versus the Christian's voyage to the kingdom: Opposition and suffering from the beginning: "And when we had launched from thence, we sailed under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary (against us)".—Acts 27:4. Paul is transferred from ship Dramittium to ship Alexandria. We often change ships en route to the kingdom.

Paul, seeing danger ahead in landing, involving the ship and their lives, gave out an admonition, but the centurion (Julius) accepted the advice of the pilot and the owner of the ship rather than Paul's, vv. 9-11. This is often the way of Christians, preferring the advice of the wise ones of this world, particularly when money and pleasure are involved, to that of following God's Chart and Compass.

The pilot, losing control of his ship in a euroclydon—cyclonic—wind, "let her drive", vv. 14, 15. This is the way of it when we try piloting our own ship; often compelled to "let her drive". But typhoons should not bother us when our Pilot is at the helm. By lowering the mast they avoided the quicksand, v. 17. Sometimes, to avoid beds of quicksand, it is well for us to lower mast. Trouble for all—276 souls—increased rapidly. They lightened the ship; but the third day they cast out freight, and furniture, R. V., and Strong, vv. 18, 19. Trouble still multiplying indicated the inevitable; "all hope that we should be saved was then taken away", v. 20. We get to such a pass occasionally. But our troubles could be averted, as could theirs have been had they listened to God's mouthpiece: "O men! you ought, indeed, having taken my advice, not to have loosed from Crete, but have avoided this injury and loss". V. 21, Emph. Diag. We would not be running aground and onto cliffs were we to comply with the recorded advice of this great apostle.

In the midst of danger comes Paul's customary words, "Be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me". Vv. 22-25. "About midnight" they drew near shore. Sounding, they found 120 feet; a little farther, 90 feet. Then, fearing the rocks, they cast their anchors, vv. 27, 29. It pays to make frequent soundings, lest the evil one via the flesh, get hold the helm. Chaos next, vv. 29, 30. But "except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved", v. 31. Good apostolic, spiritual doctrine; except we abide in the ship (Ark) Christ Jesus, we cannot be saved. To leave the ship means much, "And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."—Luke 9:62.

Paul advises the taking of meat for their health, "For there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you". Read 1 Cor. 10:3; Heb. 5:14; Luke 21:18. Paul wins all, and becomes master of the situation. "He took bread, and gave thanks to God in the presence of them all." They partook, and were of "good cheer". Vv. 35, 36. Our lesson: "Proclaim God's message, be zealous in season and out of season; convince, rebuke, encourage, with the utmost patience as a teacher".—2 Tim. 4:2, Weymouth.

The pivotal point of our subject is making a landing; as was the case with Paul and his associates. All would have been lost but for the Holy Spirit and Paul's guardian angel, vv. 23, 24. Such is the case, also, with us in our voyage to the kingdom of God; we can never reach the haven of eternal rest and bliss on our own independent action.

And now that our soundings show we are getting into shallow water, "the sea and the waves roaring"; sandbars and cliffs being in evidence all about us, men's hearts are "failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming", we should arouse ourselves to the fact that we cannot be saved with our ship loaded to her gunwale with this world's glittering and gaudy things. But, like the ship Alexandria, we are required to "cast out" even our dearest earthly treasures to make a landing during these cyclonic winds and tempestuous seas.

They held onto their most essential freight—wheat, v.

38—till the last. But it, too, had to be sacrificed. God demands a sacrifice of everything, even our love and affection for things gratifying to the "old man", read Rom. 8:10-13, through which the evil one operates. James says, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."—James 1:27. Even should one reach shore without the necessary sacrifices, one could not get by the Port Inspector, whose message to the church of the Laodiceans is recorded in Rev. 3:14-18.

Where the ship Alexandria and our ship fail to analogize is, while the former carried a valuable cargo of wheat, and was unmolested by man, our ship carrying the most worthless and unpopular cargo that can be carried, from the world's viewpoint, is subject to piracy from every quarter. Why this paradox? Read 1 Peter 5:8-10.

THE PARENTS' DUTY TO CHILDREN

BY ED F. ELTON

YOU frequently hear parents say, "I am going to give my children a good education, as that is all I can give them." If they mean just book learning, the children will have a very poor chance in life. Nearly all our tramps and criminals are educated people. They were led to believe they were above work or that work was degrading. Work was the first commandment God gave to man. He told Adam to replenish the earth and subdue it, Gen. 1:28, and He put him in the garden of Eden and told him to dress it and keep it, Gen. 2:15.

The first duty parents owe to their children is to teach them obedience and industry. Paul said, "Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged."—Col. 3:21. In other words, do not impose on them, "but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."—Eph. 6:4. Moses, when he gave the commandments to Israel, said, "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gate."—Deut. 6:4-9. In other words, let your every act be guided by God's commandments, "Take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life: but teach them to thy sons, and thy sons' sons."—Deut. 4:9. Paul, speaking to Timothy, says: "I thank God, whom I serve from my forefathers with pure conscience, that without ceasing

I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day; greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy; when I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also." 2 Tim. 1:3-5.

Why should we teach God's commandments to our children? "That the Word of God be not blasphemed."—Titus 2:5. Solomon says: "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6. Notice it says "train", not force, or break him to it.

Christ is the Savior of those who are anxious to be saved.—C. E. R.

THE RECORD KEPT

Selected

*It was only a cup of water, with a gentle grace bestowed,
But it cheered the lonely traveler upon the dusty road;
For the way was long and dreary and the resting places few,*

And the sun had dried the streamlets and drunk up the sparkling dew.

*None noticed the cup of water as a beautiful act of love,
Save the angels keeping record away in the land above;
But the record shall never perish, the trifling deed shall live;*

Our Savior demands but little from those who have least to give.

*It was only a kind word, spoken to a weeping little child;
But the thread of grief was broken and the little one sweetly smiled;*

*And nobody stayed to notice so tiny an act of love,
Save the angels keeping record in the wonderful book above.*

And she who had spoken kindly went on in her quiet way, Nor dreamed such a simple action should count in the last great day.

But the pitying words of comfort were heard with a song of joy,

And the listening angels blessed her from their beautiful home on high.

It isn't the world-praised wonders that are best in our Father's sight,

Nor the wreaths of fading laurel that garnish fame's dizzy height,

But the pitying love and kindness, the work of the warm caress,

*The beautiful hope and patience and self-forgetfulness;
The trifle in secret given, the prayer in the quiet night,
And the little unnoticed nothings are good in our Savior's sight.*

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

THE NEXT QUARTERLY

THE print shop is at work on the next issue of the Sunday School Quarterly. We asked for suggestions for improvement, and several have asked that the pages be numbered. Of course this was an oversight in the first issue. The quarterly promises to become very popular, at least among our own people.

Several of our late orders were made up with unprinted covers, as the number of printed covers was exhausted, and we did not wish to add further expense by resetting the forms.

To avoid a like situation with this next issue, it would help us greatly if new orders would be sent in promptly. We understand several more schools are intending to order for next quarter.

It will help us if schools will order in same name as before, or if you wish them sent to another name, please mention to whom they were sent for first quarter.

ORDER NOW!

* * * *

"WHOM DO MEN SAY THAT I AM?"

THESE ARE the words of Jesus to a disciple who answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

But all persons were not able to answer as truly as did Peter, for he had received this revelation from the Father in heaven. This was surely a great blessing to Peter to know that the God of heaven should reveal to him, a mortal man, this wonderful truth, "Thou art the Christ". Others without this assurance from the Father, had various other opinions as to His identity. For instance, the wise men said He was the "KING OF THE JEWS".

This was in itself a glorious fact, with a foundation laid deep in the prophetic writings of old, and further emphasized by the guiding star in the East. Yet it was evident that they had no thought other than that of a literal king over a literal, earthly kingdom, and that a kingdom of Jews. These men were "wise" in the Scriptures, but had not discerned in the many types and shadows contained therein, the One who was to atone for the sins of the whole world. Still, others did not see in Him so much as even a king, but to them He was only

THE CARPENTER THE SON OF MARY.

John the Baptist had gathered a deeper meaning of Him and so could proclaim to the world, "Behold the

LAMB OF GOD,

which taketh away the sin of the world." He saw in Him more than a man, more than a king, more than a burnt offering upon the altar of sacrifice. He saw the One who should lay down His own life as the spotless Lamb of God, that He might take away the sin of the whole world.

But there was one man in Jerusalem, just and devout old Simeon, to whom was revealed wonderful things, and that when Jesus was only eight days old.

Therefore, he could say, because it came by the spirit, "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word: for mine eyes have seen which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." Thus the salvation that Simeon saw was not to the Jew only, but to the Jew first and afterward to the Gentile. A Glory to Israel; a Light to the Gentiles.

THY SALVATION

Yes, He is the One who will bring glory to Israel which has been a hiss and a byword among the nations; the One who will bring honor to Israel which has been made to bear the shame as of one who would crucify their Lord.

It is He, who will come to awaken those sleeping in the dust of the earth; it is He, who will finally subdue all things unto Himself; who will intercede before the throne of the Father for those who will come to Him in faith believing. Is He your Savior?

HERALD RECEIPTS

I. O. Rogers; Mrs. Jennie McDonald; Alma Hall; L. M. Rathbone; Otto H. Momsen; Mrs. N. S. Hoeg; Mrs. Ida Murray; C. H. Maack; Mrs. Alice Scott; Mrs. Gertrude Axland; Mrs. Alice Chase; Mrs. Mildred N. Heise; E. R. Drabenstatt; L. B. Boggs; W. H. Moore; Mrs. Elias Thorene.

* * * *

HELPING FUND

Ruchie Alexander $3.00

In all unbelief there are these two things: a good opinion of one's self, and a bad opinion of God.—H. Bonar.

* * * *

Unbelief does nothing but darken and destroy. It makes the world a moral desert, where no divine footsteps are heard, where no angels ascend or descend, where no living hand adorns the fields, feeds the birds of heaven, or regulates events.—Krummacher.

* * * *

"Life is the laboratory in which Christian teachings are tried out."

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

THE BEREAN Society was organized for the purpose of encouraging systematic Bible study. To honestly search the Scriptures so as to determine the truth or falsity of the different teachings is the only way in which one can grow in grace and in knowledge.

* * * *

Some have felt that only one side of the matter ought to be presented, but we feel that an honest, open consideration of the different views will add to one's comprehension of any subject. It was with this in mind that we urged others to express themselves on the "Tree of Life," after giving a few thoughts ourselves. In response, the following article has been sent in, and we suggest that you all read it carefully, as its thought is quite different from some which we gave, and you need the advantage of different ideas.

* * * *

THE TREE OF LIFE

By Alma Orr

IN THE Berean Department of The Herald of January eleventh, there was given a question as follows: "Will the tree of life be restored before or after the curse is removed?" After expressing his own opinion, Bro. Siple invited others to comment on the subject. Since there were no restrictions given limiting the comments to expressions harmonizing with his view, I will venture to express my own thoughts on the subject, though no doubt they will be entirely different from those of the majority of Herald readers.

First, I would like to ask, Why the question? Where do the Scriptures say, or even remotely imply that the tree of life was ever removed? In Gen. 3:24 we read that God placed cherubims and a flaming sword at the east of the garden to keep the way of the tree of life. Nothing is said about destroying or removing the tree. On the contrary, it proves that the tree still existed. I wonder what idea the majority of Herald readers have in regard to the tree of life and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil? Do they think of them as being literal trees growing out of the ground and bearing fruit that could be gathered and eaten? If so, do they think the tree of the knowledge of good and evil was also removed? If it were, how do we get a knowledge of good and evil at the present time? If it were not removed, where is it?

Bro. Siple says, "Man was never associated with the tree of life after the transgression." I would say that there has been one instance at least where man has partaken of the tree of life since the transgression, and that is Christ's resurrection to immortality. Surely, Christ has partaken of the tree of life.

My idea of the tree of life and of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil is that they are both figurative terms, and they are both still in the garden (the earth) as they were originally. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil is easy of access and is being freely eaten of to-day. The tree of life is guarded by cherubim and the flaming sword. Cherubim is the plural for cherub, and cherub in the Hebrew signifies fullness of knowledge (Cruden). The word of God is said to be the sword of the spirit in Ephesians 6:17. Hebrews 4:12 says the word of God is sharper than any two-edged sword. Taking the two symbols together, the cherubim and the sword, we find that the way of the tree of life is guarded by a knowledge of God's word. No one may partake of the tree of life without first coming to a knowledge of God's word. Coming in contact with the sword till they are "pricked in their heart", as they were on the day of Pentecost, brings death—death to the Adamic body—and a grafting into the body of Christ. If this relationship continues till Christ comes, or they shall fall asleep in death, they may partake of the tree of life. Those who fall asleep will partake of the tree of life (put on immortality) on the other side of the river (death). Those who are alive at His coming will partake of the tree of life on this side of the river. Rev. 22:2.

* * * *

For those who would study it critically, we ask the following questions: In Gen. 2:9, what Hebrew word is translated tree? Is the same word used for tree of life and tree of knowledge as that used for the other trees of the garden? What is the literal meaning of that word, and does Moses mean what he says when he tells us that those trees grew out of the ground, and were pleasant to the sight and good for food?

* * * *

For those who would study this critically, we ask the If so, was the tree of the same verse a literal tree? Does the fact that a thing is literal argue against its being a type of something else, also? Joseph was a type of Christ. Does that mean Joseph was a myth and not a literal man?

* * * *

We will be glad to receive other comments on this subject. It is a good field for thought.

"I KNOW"

BY J. T. AULD

IN all ages from the creation of man where God has revealed Himself, and where man believed God's Word he could say, "I know." To have a definite knowledge of any truth should never be questioned.

So we read: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God".—Job 19:25-26. Job knew he would see God in his flesh being a perfect human being like, and of the nature of the first Adam, before he (Adam) sinned—"very good".—Gen. 1:31. "I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee."—Job 42:2.

"I know that the Lord is greater than all gods: for in the thing wherein they dealt proudly he was above them."—Exodus 18:11.

Elisha knew: "And Hazeal said (to Elisha), why weep-est my lord? And he answered, Because I know the evil that thou wilt do unto the children of Israel".—2 Kings 8:12.

Isaiah knew: "For the Lord God will help me; therefore shall I not be confounded: therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be ashamed".—Isa. 50:7.

Rahab knew: "And she said unto the men, I know that the Lord hath given you the land and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land faint because of you". Josh. 2:9. How did Rahab know? Because she believed "how the Lord dried up the water of the Red sea"; and what Israel had done to the two kings of the Amorites, vv. 10, 11. This constituted all her faith that we have any account of. She believed the history of what Joshua had done by the power of the Lord God of Israel. And when she heard it and believed she was saved from death with all her house and "perished not with them that believed not".—Heb. 11:31.

The wise man said, "I know that it shall be well with them that fear God".—Eccl. 8:12.

Under the law they were admonished to fear God, but perfect love is taught in the gospel of the Christ.

Martha, the sister of Lazarus, knew: "Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day".—John 11:24.

Paul said: "For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock".—Acts 20:29. We all know Paul's prophecy came true, for millions of the children of God have been put to death by the apostasy. He also adds: "Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them".—V. 30. Did Paul know? Hear him, "And their word will eat as doth a canker: of whom is Hymenæus and Philetus; who concerning the truth have erred, saying that the resurrection is passed already; and overthrow the faith of some."—2 Tim. 2:17-18.

Paul knew the resurrection did not occur at death; but "when Christ who is our life, shall appear; then shall ye also appear with him in glory".—Col. 3:4. The immortal-soul theory, going to heaven at death without a resurrection, and preaching sky kingdom is not according to the holy Scriptures. This I also know.

Why do men question our knowledge of knowing the gospel of Jesus Christ when we have so many witnesses that testify to the truth and say they know what they affirm, and believe the same? I know and believe all things spoken by Christ and His apostles without seeing Him just as surely as those who walked and talked with Him. Proof—Jesus saith to Thomas: "Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed".—John 20:29. "For the which cause I also suffer these things: nevertheless I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day."—2 Tim. 1:12.

Now the child of God in Christ Jesus knows what Paul committed into Christ's care. Paul committed his life into the care of Jesus: "For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God". For "when Christ who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory".—Col. 3:3-4.

Timothy was up to date in his day: "And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures".—2 Tim. 3:15.

We know that we are the sons of God by adoption: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him".—1 John 3:2. "And we know we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness. And we know the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him (in Christ, not in Abraham nor in the Abrahamic covenant, but in Christ) that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life."—1 John 5:19-20. Remember, you cannot put new wine (new covenant) in old bottles (old covenant).

The devil knew and surely we should be as wise as he. In fact, we are admonished to be as wise. Rev. 12:12. The unclean spirit knew Jesus and said: "Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God."—Mark 1:24.

In know that all true believers, baptized into Christ, who add to their faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, (and circumcision? No!), and patience shall be saved to immortality. And I know for a surety that men out of Christ who have been justified by faith before Christ's resurrection shall be redeemed to the nature and perfection of the first Adam before he sinned. If they are not, Acts 3:21 will never be fulfilled.

(Concluded next week)

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON XI.—March 13.

MAKING THE WORLD CHRISTIAN

Matthew 28:16-20; Acts 16:6-15.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 60:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations.—Matthew 28:19, S. R. V.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

Making the World Christian. This is one of the huge labors of Christ. It will be done. There will be a condition which has been joyfully named, "The Golden Age". For such world-wide, everlasting work the God of all wisdom has revealed His method. Having thoroughly trained One by testing He has given Him complete Authority in heaven and in earth. This authority "has (just) been given" according to Matt. 28:18, as defined by Comp. Bible. Its scope is over every thing, Eph. 1:20-23; Phil. 2:9-11. For this work God has given Him a throne, Psalm 2:6; Heb. 1:8; Ezek. 21:25-27; Luke 1:32. This throne will be turned over to Him at His return, Matt. 25:31, and with it His promised authority, v. 32. Till then His world-wide authority is held in abeyance and He sits with the Father, Rev. 3:21. In the meantime, His ambassadors, 2 Cor. 5:20, are taking out "a people for his name", Acts 15:14, by covenant, 1 Cor. 11:25; Matt. 26:27, 28, whom the Father places into His body, 1 Cor. 12:18, 27, over whom He now has authority, Matt. 28:20.

In the exercise of this authority over His church of Christians, Christ is training a Helpmeet. This helpmeet is for service in His larger work when He shall sit upon His throne in the exercise of "all authority", 2 Tim. 2:12. Its members are called "firstborn", Heb. 12:23, similar to the firstborn of Israel. (Cf. Rom. 15:4.) These firstborn, and these only, are invited into the holy of holies of the "true tabernacle" with Him, Heb. 8:2, beyond the mortal flesh, Heb. 10:19, 20, first having been "fashioned like unto" Him, Phil. 3:20, 21; 1 John 3:2, with immortality, 1 Cor. 15:52, 53, as His joint-heirs, Rom. 8:17. For this unspeakable adornment the church will be caught up to meet Him at His coming, 1 Thess. 4:16, 17, to be completely empowered for full service with Him.

The Head and His helpmeet having been tested and authorized, the work of Christianizing the world, as a world, begins. His throne is occupied, Matt. 25:31; His authority extends world-wide, Psalm 72:8; Israel is re-established, Matt. 19:28; Gentiles are drawn by her light, Isa. 59:20 to 60:3; and many, accepting His authority, "walk in his paths", Isa. 2:3,4, the paths of Christ, becoming His followers. See Isa. 60:12.

The results of world-wide Christianity will be abundance of peace, Isa. 2:4, on earth, Luke 2:14, for ever, Psalm 72:7.

World-wide Christianity can only follow Christ's presence upon His throne in the full exercise of His God-given authority.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

Going, therefore, disciple ye all the nations, immersing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit.—Matt. 28:19, Rotherham.

Jesus began His work by selecting disciples and preparing them for their work. After His resurrection, Jesus gave them this command. The work was definite; the field unlimited.

Their duty did not end when they had left all and followed Him. They must carry the message on to others. Sometimes we find people who have a good deal of satisfaction in the fact that they have accepted the call and put on the all-saving name, then sit down to await the coming of our Lord and King, and receive a crown. They may fail.

"Go ye therefore".—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

No one before Christ was to blame that the Gentiles had not been brought to God's law of the Mosaic covenant; for God had never intended it for them. No one to-day is to blame that there are unchristian heathen; for God has not yet set His hand to make the world a Christian world.

The world will be Christian in God's appointed time. He is constantly working to that end, has been for nearly 6,000 years. To-day He is perfecting a church in preparation for this final work.

Making the world Christian is a lofty Biblical ideal announced by God. The church should be working for it all the time. The immediate work is preparatory. No final touches in this age, but the beginning.

The church's present duty to this end is to devote every portion of every kind of ability and resource to the conversion of men into the church and to the perfecting of the church unto the fullest and truest possible service of Christ. Every honorable vocation of life should be consecrated to this work. Eph. 4:1-13.

* * *

NEW AND BETTER.

The Christian life is the life of him who is following Christ. To follow Christ is to follow Him, not in the beginning of His life, but to follow Him as the completed, perfected Christ. Just as Moses, after a period of testing, came to be a leader with authority when he became God's spokesman of a covenant, so, also, Christ, after first being tested by word and work, came to be a new Leader, when He became God's Spokesman for a new covenant. Matt. 26:28. God's two covenants to Israel are enforced by two distinct leaders, Moses and Christ. Christ is a prophet like unto Moses in that He is the Spokesman for God of a covenant and promise standing by itself, distinct from the covenant and promise which Moses at Mount Sinai was spokesman. Thus the introduction of Christianity into the world by Christ was the introduction of a new and better thing unto man, and the Christian life is a new, a better, an advanced type of life.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sr. Grace Flewelling, 220 Lake St., Lancaster, New York, has been ill for several weeks, suffering from nervous breakdown. Sr. Grace was formerly a helper in the N. B. I. office.

* * *

MINNESOTA

Bro. A. E. Welliver of Eden Valley recently underwent a serious operation. At present he is at home but needs the prayers of the household of faith.

Many of the other members of the Eden Valley congregation are on the sick list.

C. E. Randall spent two Sundays with the Eden Valley Church. Bro. Savage has also been doing supply work.

On account of bad roads, services at Mora will be discontinued for a few Sundays.

The attendance at the regular meetings of the Ladies' Aid throughout the winter months has been very good.

On February sixth Brothers T. A. Drinkard of Eden Valley and T. M. Savage of St. Cloud exchanged pulpits for preaching services. We all enjoyed hearing them preach.

February twentieth we had eighty-seven at Sunday School. Brother Fred Daubanton is superintendent and is working to get the school back to its old number of a hundred, and over.

Brother Clyde Randall of Mora visited some of the people at St. Cloud this week. He never fails to instruct us in the truths of the Bible. Come again, Bro. Clyde.

The Minnesota Quarterly Conference will be held at Eden Valley, beginning March 17 and continuing over the following Sunday.

Brethren try to be present at these meetings; and bring your Bibles, as we have a number of good Bible readings.

Mrs. T. M. Savage.

* * *

SOUTH BEND, INDIAIA

The Golden Rule Ladies' Aid met fourteen strong with Sr. Lydia Railsback, completed two quilts, and started two more for the Bible School.

* * *

ILLINOIS

Bro. Earl Thayer, of Oregon, Illinois, is spending a few days visiting his parents and friends near Plymouth, Indiana. He spoke to the South Bend congregation, Sunday, February 27.

Sr. Lillian Railton, who has been visiting at the home of Bro. John Railton, of Oregon, was called to Fredonia, New York, to care for her sister, Mrs. Maurice Guest, who is ill. Correspondents please note change of address.

Bro. Austin expects to return to Oregon the latter part of this week to again take up his work.

Sr. Susan Williams, who has been spending the winter at Golden Rule Home, returned to the home of her daughter in Ashton, Illinois, on January 27.

Sr. Daisy Nokes, who has undergone a serious operation at Mayo Brother's hospital, Rochester, Minnesota, is much improved and is expecting to be able to return home next week.

* * *

IOWA

Bro. and Sr. A. J. Eychaner write from Tampa, Florida, that they are well, and enjoying the fine, balmy weather of the South.

Sr. Carrie E. Hilsabeck, of Marshalltown, is making her home with her sister, Mrs. Ogan, at 607½ West Church St. Their brother, Alexander Williams, of San Diego, Cal., is in very poor health, owing to extreme age. His daughter, Mrs. Benny, of Stark, Kansas, has been out there, with her husband and family, for some time, to care for her father.

Bro. Ray Allard, of Gladbrook, has moved into town, and purchased the dray line, which he is running.

Bro. Floyd Carpenter, of Sac City, has been in very poor health, but is better.

Sr. H. S. Hunt's mother, Sr. Mead, is staying with her this winter.

* * *

OBITUARY

Ethel Peace, Greenville, S. Car., died February 6, 1927, at the age of 29 years. She leaves to mourn their loss, her husband, W. L. Peace; father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Elrod; four sisters; and one brother. She was a member of the Church of God at Guthrie Grove, where she was buried to await the resurrection of the dead. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Eld. Biggerstaff, Baptist minister of Greenville. We spoke words of comfort from the words of Martha and Mary to the Savior, "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died"; the hope of a resurrection; and kindred truths. We laid her in the grave to await Him who said that all in their graves shall hear His voice and come forth: so we wait for Sister Ethel Peace.

M. O. Williamson

HELP-US-OVER

Still going up. A few more blocks; a little more mortar; then over the top. Let's go! F. A. S.

STONE WALL

Will you be one to make a contribution to assist us in scaling the stone wall? Amounts large or small thankfully received.

39
	1
		2
	3	4
38	5	6
	7	8	9
	10	11	12
	16	15	14	13
37	15	18	19	20
	25	24	23	22	21
	26	27	28	29	30
36	35	34	33	32	31

OUR LINE OF CARDS

NO DOUBT you have always wanted a neat, first-class visiting card, but thought that engraving, while exactly the class of card you wanted, was beyond your reach. Now we offer you "Reliefagraf".

"Reliefagraf" gives you every appearance of an engraved card. Correctly worded, neat, raised lettering, and has that "feel" of engraving. Moreover, "Reliefagraf" is permanent. It will not scale off, nor dull with the ordinary usage. It saves you the expense of buying a plate from which you obtain your engraved cards. "Reliefagraf" cards cost but little more than the engraved cards after you have your plate made.

Our service in "Reliefagraf" extends to wedding announcements, invitations, commencements, business cards, letterheads, social stationery, in fact, we can offer you exceptionally low prices in "Reliefagraf" on whatever you stand in need of in the way of commercial or society printing.

Members of the graduation classes can save from one-third to one-half over engraved cards by using the "Reliefagraf" method, and as we have 24 styles of type to choose from, we can usually match their announcements.

Read our ad on the back page and then send us your order for 100 cards. Even if you already have some printed cards, you cannot afford to miss this wonderful sale price.

"The parent can do no greater service to the religious development of the child than so to meet the dawning reason as to beget perfect faith in the parent. He thus lays the best of foundations for the the child's faith in God—the heavenly Father."

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

TRACTS AND BOOKS

A Tract slipped into each friendly letter is direct—personal. Handed to a Friend or Stranger it forces attention—often consideration. It is an inexpensive, straight-to-the-mark presentation of Gospel Truths.

Keep an assortment on hand.

The following are priced to cover costs only, including postage. Some are priced to cover simply costs of mailing—wrapping and postage.

Order from, and make checks and money orders payable to NATIOAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois.

20 cents per Dozen; $1.25 per 100

What Must I Do to Be Saved?; Readings on Immortality; Spiritualism; The Rich Man and Lazarus; The Thief on the Cross; Miguel Servet.

10 cents per Dozen; 60 cents per 100

Life! Life! Eternal Life!; Obedience; Essential Truths; God's Promises; The Resurrection; How Much Do You Believe in the Lord Jesus Crist?; Where Do We Go When We Die?

Cost of Mailing—Single Copies 3 cents; 12 for 12 cents

The Resurrection; Where Are the Dead?; The Gospel of the Kingdom of God.

A Study of the Word "Soul", 100 for 25c; 12 for 5c.
God, 100 for $1.75; 12 for 30c; 3 for 10c.
The First Resurrection, 100 for $2:50; 12 for 40c; each 5c.
A Letter to a Friend, 10c each; $1.00 per dozen.

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, Debate: Each
Robison vs. Conner $.05
Earlier Life-Truth Exponents .15
Will It Pay to Become a Christian? .25
The Visitor, 212 pages .50
The Song of Our Syrian Guest, 60 pages
Illustrated. Suitable for Gift. .90

Oxford, Cambridge, and Bagster Bibles

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION

National Bible Institution

Publishers of

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President, Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer, Oregon, Illinois.
F. A. Stilson, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Children's Page

MAKING THE WORLD CHRISTIAN

By LOIS HUNT

JESUS and His disciples were partaking of the "Last Supper". He told them of many things that were soon to come to pass—His arrest, sufferings, death, resurrection. Then He said, "But after I am risen again, I will go before you into Galilee".

All the events took place as He had said.

Again after His resurrection Jesus told the eleven disciples to meet Him in Galilee. Must not they have been eager to see their Messiah, whom they had so sorrowfully given up? Can not you see them hurrying to the mountain where Jesus had appointed to meet them? And can not you see them worshipping Him?

He spake unto them, saying, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth". Then He gave them a command that they should go to all nations baptizing and teaching the things He had taught them. And He promised to be with them alway—that is, with His power, helping them in their great work.

However, Jesus Himself was taken up and a cloud received Him out of their sight.

Ten days later the Holy Ghost came and so filled the apostles that they were able to speak in different languages, and perform miracles and wonders.

Peter became the first leader; a church was organized and the work well planned. Then Saul began to persecute the Christians, so that they fled in every direction—teaching wherever they went. Soon, Saul, himself converted, became the most ardent preacher of all. In our lesson he and Silas and Timothy go forth on what is called Paul's Second Missionary Journey. In Acts 16: 6, 7, 8, 11, 12 read the course over which the Spirit led them.

At Troas Paul saw a vision—a man of Macedonia praying him to come over and help the Macedonians. Paul immediately obeyed the summons of the Lord, and went to Philippi. He was thus extending the teachings of the gospel from Asia into Europe.

In this city, Philippi, lived a good woman named Lydia. On the Sabbath she heard Paul speaking during the meeting by the riverside, and her heart was so touched that she and her whole household were baptized.

She then prevailed upon Paul and his helpers to stay in her home—in this way doing her share toward "teaching the nations".

And so the teaching continued—other journeys, letters, and exhortations. As the nations advanced to other parts of the world, other leaders arose; and so it comes down to us.

Now, how are we going to carry out Christ's command: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations"? Let us first pray God to show us the way and give us strength and wisdom to continue in that way. We must then trust Him and obey all the instructions He has given. We must now prepare ourselves by studying His Word, so that we may be Christ's helpers in His kingdom. In the meantime, continue to tell what Christ has in store for those who work for Him. If you can thus bring one person to Christ you have done true service. Let us try!

1. Find Galilee on your map. Then the places mentioned in Acts 16.
2. Why were there only eleven disciples?
3. How was Christ's command obeyed?
4. How can you help make the world Christian?

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH TO THE COMMUNITY

By J. W. WILLIAMS

(Continued from last week)

We are told in 2 Corinthians 3 that the members of the church are "living epistles, known and read of all men". Their responsibility as to works will be well rendered to the community when the epistles thus read will spell out the same message as of old, when the enemies of Christ took knowledge of the disciples that they had been with Jesus, as Moses' face shone after his communion with his Lord.

The relation of the church to those outside is succinctly stated by the Master in John 17 as in the world but not of the world. And the beloved apostle later bade his "children", as he called them, not to love the world nor the things in it. But herein is a perplexing difficulty, for God so loved the world that He gave His best treasure. The distinction lies in the different concept intended by the word "world" in the two occurrences, for the world that the Father loves is the people in it, while the "things" that John bids not to love are expressly stated by him as being the three fleshly desires of the flesh, and the eyes, and the pride of life. This makes evident why the mediæval effort to escape the world by avoiding people in the seclusion of the monastery and the cloister was so unavailing in the effort to escape sin, for the corruption within the walls made manifest the fact, as stated by John, that the world to be avoided is the three lusts named, and they took those within the cloistered walls. The relation of the church to the community is not to be the Pharisaic attitude of refusing to associate with publicans and sinners; for then how can we get within earshot of them to speak the good news? So there can be no better statement of the relation than that given by the Teacher when He said, in but not of the world. So the church is neither to avoid nor imitate the community life. A preacher in a nearby city has gained much praise from his outside neighbors by going to their club room and smoking freely with them, presumably endeavoring to be "all things to all men to gain some", as Paul said. It is a question not open to much discussion whether he gained them or they gained him, for while such a course is not open to condemnation for his association with them in the club, it is open to John's condemnation of loving the lust of the flesh, for it is generally conceded that the attraction of tobacco smoke lies in the odor. The only, but all-sufficient law governing the conduct of members of the church is love toward those without, so when Paul would be all things to all to gain them it is evident that his "all" was limited by what would be of benefit to them, for he himself said that love works no ill to his neighbor, so if I drink with drunkards to win them, have I benefited or only further injured? Paul stoutly repudiated the calumny of his enemies that he taught, "Let us do evil that good may come". He therefore bids the church in Ephesians 4 to walk no longer as Gentiles outside walk, but to put off the old man with his deeds and put on the new man. We are not to imitate the world so as to please them, but live the higher life to attract them upward. Salvation does not consist of approbation of evil practice, but deliverance from it. It is not justification in sin, but out of it. A few years ago a Kansas City preacher said, as printed in the "Star", "I would have a monkey show right here in my pulpit if it would save men," which is all very well when we say "if", but some go beyond, and for all that we find written that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation, a spectator might conclude from some pulpit practices that monkey shows are the power of Satan unto the delusion of those who behold them.

An effort has been made to justify some practices of the church not found in our written instructions by advising that we fight the devil with his own fire. So the church in some places seems to have gone into the movie business, and a Nebraska preacher once gave for Sunday evening sermons a chapter of an original novel of his own production. It was said he succeeded in getting a large audience of young people, and while we were not present, it is safe for us to say, especially at this distance, that he probably had a good sprinkling of their elders among the young people in the audience. He who starts in fighting the devil with his own fire will soon find that the devil dares to use fire that even a self-respecting human being would be ashamed to use. A white colonist who would argue and practice such a proverb in Indian fighting would soon learn to his sorrow that a tomahawk is not an equal weapon in combat with a savage. Paul says, "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal", so he bids us to "Take the sword of the spirit, which is the word of God", and the Master forbade Peter to use a Roman sword. But despite this, a picture was printed in one of our newspapers during the late war, showing a Roumanian priest blessing a fierce-looking shell before it was to be sent on its mission of destruction.

We are not called to entertain the world. The pulpit is not a stage, nor a film screen. Nor is it a court room. The Teacher refused to decide a controversy of two brothers over an inheritance, and when a female criminal was brought before Him with the plea for Him to sentence her, He condemned the lawyers instead, making short work of their case by causing their precipitate and shame-faced flight, without their stopping to fling a single stone, and the criminal, instead of sentence found forgiveness. For said He, "I came not to judge the world, but to save". Will we not be more likely to gain sinners to Christ by mercy than by court proceedings? So Paul says, "Judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come". Then is it not outside the functions of the church to lobby for an arbitration board for the compulsory settlement of capital and labor disputes, or have anything to do with such controversies, since the One we represent refused all such cases?

And in like manner, neither is the church an adjunct to the detective bureau or the police force. An Indiana preacher, in busying himself with suppressing the illicit liquor traffic in his city, followed a drayman to a residence where he was delivering liquor, and the drayman broke the preacher's jaw with the big end of his whip. He likely thought he suffered for righteousness' sake. But while we sympathize with such suffering, we are of a different opinion. How soon will that drayman be won to Christ by that preacher? The Lord always steadfastly refused to join the Pharisees in such work of executing the law. And if justice had been given in Pilate's court, how could the world have had a sin offering?

Neither, as Mr. Lloyd George recently said, is the church called to stop war. If such had been our calling, we know we should inevitably fail, for we read that there will be a war in progress at Jerusalem when the church age closes, as Zechariah reveals, and Isaiah says it is in the coming kingdom age that nations will beat their swords into plowshares and learn war no more. So ending war is not the work of the church, but the work of the kingdom. Paul fitly asks how can a man who does not rule his own family be an elder and rule the church, and in like manner it may be asked, How can the church stop war in the world when we have wars and fightings among ourselves as James says? Our present work is to grow up in grace till we be fit for a larger task, for the Teacher told His disciples that as long as they were disputing as to which would be the greatest in the coming kingdom they would none of them be ready to sit on their thrones over the tribes of Israel when the kingdom did come.

(Concluded next week)

THOUGHTS ON LIFE AND IMMORTALITY

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

THE Scripture says that God only hath immortality. 1 Tim. 6:16. He is the Fountain-Head, the only source of eternal life. If the first Adam had been obedient to God's will, he could have been made immortal, but disobedience lost to him right to immortality, and a flaming sword and cherubim kept him away from the tree of life lest he should eat and live forever. Gen. 3:22, 24.

Jesus, the second Adam, obtained immortality by or through obedience. Phil. 2:5-8, "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." As His reward for obedience He was made immortal. Verses 9-11 say, "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

We have learned that to gain immortality Jesus had a great work to do, that to Him immortality was not a free gift bestowed upon Him by the Father, but a reward for obedience to the will of the Father, even the death of the cross. Think of the agony of that prayer, "Father, remove this cup from me, if possible. But not my will but thine be done." Jesus had to go down into death to receive immortality and be exalted. Had He failed in one thing He, like the first Adam, would have lost all. But He triumphed over death and the grave, and He exclaimed in rapturous victory, "Fear not . . . I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore . . . , and have the keys of hell (or the grave) and of death".—Rev. 1:17, 18.

If we would gain immortality, we, too, like our Savior, must earn the reward; then if we are faithful unto death we will receive the crown of life and be exalted as kings and priests of God and Christ and rule with Him the thousand years. This class is called the "blessed and holy" on whom the second death hath no power, neither can they die any more. They are in the first resurrection. Rev. 20:4-6.

The Apostle Paul tells us, 2 Tim. 1:10, that our Savior Jesus Christ brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. I think we have found the light on immortality, but what about life? What light did Christ's gospel bring to light about life? All Bible students admit that the first Adam drew down into his ruin the old creation. Rom. 8:19-27. And since the first sin wrought the moral ruin of the race, the explanation is simple. Death is universal. Rom. 3 to 14. All die—sinless infants, moral people, religious people equal with the depraved. For a universal effect there must be a universal cause. That cause is a state of universal sin. But this universal state must have had a universal cause. It did: the consequence of Adam's sin. It follows that physical death from Adam is due to a universal sinful nature—our inheritance from Adam. All die in Adam. 1 Cor. 15:20-22. "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." Rom. 5:12, "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Verse 15, "But not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many." Verse 18, "Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life."

When Jesus made the atonement and purchased the keys of death and the grave, He not only brought to light the fact of an immortal resurrection, but of a mortal resurrection of all who had died in Adam. That power He had received, and He said that He had the keys (not key) to unlock the prison-house, not only of those who are to rule and reign with him, but to all who have gone down in death. This was what He brought to light through the gospel. It was what Paul preached, or rather, gave in his plea before Felix, Acts 24:15, saying that he had "hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust". John 5:28 says, "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

Two classes are brought to view here. They cannot be those who are to receive immortality, for they are with Christ, ruling and reigning with Him when the judgment takes place. Their resurrection is a special one and previous in time by a thousand years; these come not into judgment for life. The free gift which was given to mankind, and brought to light by the gospel, was a universal resurrection from the Adamic death. The late John L. Wince once said, "the plaster must cover the sore." As the first Adam brought death to all the race, Jesus, the second Adam, brings a release from death. No wonder His shout of triumph, "I am he that liveth, and was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore, and have the keys," etc. Yes, He had been in the enemy's land, but had burst the prison fetters, and came out victorious. Some marveled when He raised to mortal life several people. And He told them, as perhaps we would say, "Why, that isn't anything, sometime I am going to raise to life every dead person, that all who are in their graves shall come forth." So when the sea gives up the dead, and the earth casts out her dead, there will not be any dead for a time at least. All will come into judgment and be rewarded as their works have been; those who have their names written in the book of life are saved, and those who have not go down in the second death.

Reader, do not ever expect to escape the judgment. God says that in justice and mercy He will sit in judgment.

I believe in a universal resurrection, a judgment day, and that there are those who will die the second death, for the Bible says so.

ANSWERED PRAYER

By T. L. WAUGH

WHILE we are assured that all prayers offered according to God's will, will be answered, we have no assurance that they will be immediately answered. This is an important consideration, for many are continually offering up prayers, many of which are not answered till long after, and some never.

We pray among other petitions "Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven"; but the latter is contingent on Jesus' coming.

At the same time we see a remarkable increase in iniquity and crime, and we see no betterment in human affairs, meanwhile, the tide of sin is rising, threatening to engulf the nations of earth.

While we pray daily that the will of God may be done here as it is done in heaven, our prayers will never be answered till Jesus comes the second time to restore order to our wrecked world and establish His kingdom.

There are other petitions which center around the resurrection, such as the meeting of loved ones who are in death's embrace, but who will be raised to life anew, for through Christ, the second Adam all will come forth from the grave.

Jesus said: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Here we have the assurance that the words of our Lord will not fail: All His promises are sure, and will be fulfilled in due time.

Let us not cast away our confidence which will have a great reward; and while the answer may be delayed, it is only for a time.

We should maintain our faith in the face of all seeming discouragement, and though from a human view things may look dark, there is light beyond the clouds.

God's power is unlimited and His plans will be carried out to the letter, regardless of all human ideas.

Scoffers abound and God's Word is rejected as the Scriptures have foretold; but this only proves to us the nearness of the Second Advent.

Jesus the Great Deliverer will soon appear, and summon a godless world to judgment.

Sinner, where will you appear if your peace is not made with God? You are running a terrible risk. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"—Our Hope.

EYES THAT SEE NOT

By S. Roxana Wince

EYES have they, but they see not." Of how many people can this be said? They hear, but they do not understand. Their understanding is darkened. They hear the truth plainly preached but do not take in its significance. Of course, Jesus is coming. They believe that, they say, just as firmly as you do, but they go on adding farm to farm; buying, selling and getting gain just as if the coming of Jesus had never been heard of. I am wondering if this is the proper attitude of one who is looking for the Master to appear at any moment. Surely not. "Let the door be on the latch." "Watch, . . . lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping."

Surely, He is nearer now than when we first believed. Babylon, Medo-Persia, Rome, and Greece are all behind us. We have heard the startling midnight cry, "Behold, he cometh. Go ye out to meet him". If it was midnight then it must be morning now, and the waiting time nearly over. See to it, O Church of God, that you put not off your bridal dress. The time is waxing late. The morning dawns. Any moment now the bridegroom may be here. The ready ones will go in to the marriage. Are you ready should the Master come to-day? No other chance awaits you. To lose now means to lose forever. "And they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut." It will never be opened to you again. "Now is the accepted time . . . now is the day of salvation." Make use of it.

THE CONSECRATED THREE

(Continued from front page)

cause, although we do not deny ourselves luxuries? "Ask great things of God, expect great things of God", but let us each do his part, as God works through men and women by the personal touch.

If we feel this way we will add to consecrated men and consecrated money a third "M"—consecrated management of same—somebody to whom the money should go for the support of the men in the field, and a headquarters for the publication of needed literature: in other words, a central committee representing different parts of the field, such as I believe we now have in the National Bible Institution at Oregon, Illinois. We realize that every home and every business must have a head to plan and carry out its work, and if the Church of God is to achieve success as a light-bearer, it must also have a central working body for that purpose. We, as a church, have been too haphazard in our methods, too little attention being paid to business methods in connection with the Lord's work, and, as a consequence, the results of the laborers have not been what they should be. Let us wake up at once, and remember the consecrated M's—Men, Money, Management—and by the use of this splendid team accomplish much for the Master.

POWER IN THE GOSPEL

THE man who is afraid to preach a great Bible truth for any reason, whatsoever, is unfit for the pulpit. The man in the pulpit must fear God so much that he has no fear of men, and he must love men so devotedly that he will proclaim God's truth to them whether they will hear or whether they will forbear.

That wholesome fear of God which would suffer anything and all things rather than offend Him lifts a man above the fear of men, of all mere human powers and circumstances, and gives him rest of soul, a joyful confidence in the power of God's Word and a holy courage to proclaim the truths of the Bible and take the consequences.

There is power in the gospel. We are taught that "the Word of God is quick and powerful". It will produce results. It will compel men to think. There are those in every congregation and community who will say to the preacher filled with the fear of God and the love of men, "Preacher, thou hast said the truth." There is something about the truth of God that justifies it, that so illuminates the mind of man that he recognizes it and though he may be depraved and sinful he admires it.

There is no greater man than the true preacher of the gospel, who is not seeking applause or office or money, but is seeking the glory of Christ in the salvation of human souls, who feels the call of God within him and the power of God upon him, who believes Bible truth with all his heart, who feeds upon it and who would rather break it as the Bread of Life to his fellowbeings than to have all the honors and all the wealth of all the world.—Selected.

"He that sayeth well and doeth well is to be commended; but better yet is he who doeth well and sayeth nothing."

IN THE second century they brought a Christian before a king who demanded that he recant and give up Christ and Christianity, but the man spurned the proposition. Then the king said:

"If you don't do it I will banish you."

The Christian smiled and answered, "You can't banish me from Christ."

The king got angry and said, "Well, I will confiscate your property and take it all from you."

The man replied, "My treasures are laid up on high: you cannot get them."

The king became still more angry and said, "I will kill you."

"Why," answered the man, "I have been dead forty years; I have been dead with Christ, dead to the world, and my life is hid with Christ in God."

"What are you going to do with such a fanatic?" said the king.

UNBELIEF

Selections by M. A. Woodward

NARROWNESS is the mother of unbelief. Obtain a broad outlook if you would agree with God in your philosophy and be able to transmit God's own thought into your life.—Joseph Cook.

No man is an unbeliever, but because he will be so; and every man is not an unbeliever, because the grace of God conquers some, changes their wills, and binds them to Christ.—Charnook.

Disbelief in futurity loosens in a great measure the ties of morality, and may be for that reason pernicious to the peace of civil society.—Hume.

One day when D'Alembert and Condarest were dining with Voltaire, they proposed to converse on atheism; but Voltaire stopped them at once. "Wait," said he, "till my servants have withdrawn; I do not want to have my throat cut to-night."—G. B. Cheever.

Reduced Price Sale of Correct Calling Cards

There is always a need for calling cards; when making a formal call of course,—but the present vogue is to use these dainty cards to invite guests to parties, to send with gifts and to carry short messages.

These are the genuine Reliefagraph cards made without plates. The delicate lines and raised letterings of the most expensive engraving is preserved.

At the Sale Price, it pays to keep a supply on hand.

Correct Styles for your selection

1 Mrs. Horace Ross Whitney

32 Mrs. Charles R. Wallace

9 CORNELIUS O. KETCHAM, M. D.

19 Miss Mary Alice Jenkins

25 Miss Carol Jeanne Carson

30 Mr. George Bryan Weston

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY

MARCH 1st. to 15th.

100 Cards $1.50 100 with Panel $1.75

Other Styles and Samples at Our Stationery Department.

The Restitution Herald
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 8, 1927

NUMBER 23

ZION'S AWAKENING

BY LYMAN BOOTH

"Awake, awake, stand up, O Jerusalem, which hast drunk at the hand of the Lord the cup of his fury, thou hast drunken the dregs of the cup of trembling, and wrung them out."—Isaiah 51:17.

YES, awake, awake, O Zion, arise, Jerusalem; for thy night of slumber is almost over, shake off your chains, and throw aside your robe of sackcloth; for thy day of bright promise draweth nigh. The dawning of peace and joy begins to light the tops of thy sacred mountains, and thy valleys once more begin to put on their robes of gladness; for the sun of righteousness is soon to rise with healing in His beams, filling thy desolate borders with plenty. Awake for thy King shall soon appear, and will dispel thy midnight darkness, which lasted long and has been cheerless and cold. Thy roamings have been far and wide; cruel shame and dreadful anguish hath filled thy cup to overflowing. Though thine eyes have been dimmed by weeping, yet I bid thee dry thy tears; for soon thy King is coming in glory. Your wailing place will be changed to one of worship and praise.

Thy sons are now returning to thy barren wastes, which are beginning to be tilled once more. Thy sunny hills and mountain slopes are being crowned with the vine and the olive tree to supply the wine and oil. Again thy gray-haired fathers and blooming maidens may soon repose in the shade of trees of their own planting, with none to molest or make afraid. In the vale of Hebron shall again be seen the luscious grapes of Eschol, Num. 13:23, and the pomegranates and the figs. The plain of Sharon will be carpeted with richest green. Once again the orange groves near Jaffa shall bud and bloom in beauty and be laden with fruitage rich and rare. Thy gentle hills and lowly vales shall bloom with flowers sweet and fair, filling the air with their fragrance. Thy once deserted streets and ruined walls shall be rebuilt. More grand and beautiful will be thy homes and temples; more glorious will be thy thoroughfares and more peaceful; for there shall be upon the bells of the horses, "HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD". Zech. 14:20.

Lift up thy head, O Zion, and rejoice; for brighter days are near thy door. Many new towns and hamlets are dotting thy hill-sides and vales: from near and far-off lands Israel's sons and daughters are flocking to thy borders where many will find prosperous and happy homes. Cheer up, O Zion, and listen to the locomotive's piercing whistle as the train moves majestically across Sharon's verdant plain, while Judah's holy mountains echo the shrieking and rumbling of the railway train. Through thy gates, O Zion, shall pour the commerce of western nations to India's distant shores, and Syrian cities will hail its coming with delight. Hark, O Israel, lift up your head, O Zion; for soon on your watch-towers, faithful watchmen, true and bold, will herald the glad message of your King, proclaiming His return in glory, from whose throne will flow a flood of blessings to every land and nation.

Already thy suffering children are fleeing from the cruel nations, seeking shelter and safety in thy borders, little knowing that it is the Father's plan to drive them home to thee. For more than two thousand years thy history has been a pathetic story, one you do not understand,—a country without a people, and a people without a land. But thanks be to Him who leadeth through dark and dangerous paths, ye have His promise that ye shall be gathered from every race and clime, back to Zion's holy land, in His appointed time.

A little season remaineth to end your tribulation and dispersion; for the gospel which ye once rejected has yet to finish its work of selecting from the nations a people for the royal name of Him whom ye slew. From among your rivals, the Gentile nations, the Lord must bring His own. To Zion clad in bright array they will come, and while a darker cloud of despair and gloom may overshadow you, and you be besieged with armies many times stronger than Pharaoh's hosts, and though certain death may confront you, He will rescue with the same mighty hand with which He overthrew the Egyptian hosts. God rescued Israel from the Egyptians, and guided them through the Red Sea, and He will rescue you from the Red-sea of Armageddon. Then, after the smoke and din of battle shall have past you will look with loving eyes to Him who saves you from that dreadful struggle, and for the first time in your long and eventful history you will recognize Jesus as your Savior, and then, like as when Israel witnessed God's deliverance from Pharaoh's army, you will behold a more wonderful deliverance from the oppressor's rod; for the Lord shall bare His mighty arm before the nations' eyes, and unto Him they will turn and learn righteousness.

Then awake! awake, O Zion, now awake; for the hour of thy deliverance is soon to come, when Jerusalem shall put on her robes, and shine forth as the sun. Then lift up your voice in joyful song and tell thy wandering sons no longer to sigh; for ye are nearing the dawn's welcome light, when the long hours of weeping and wailing shall ever be past, and thy King in His beauty shall appear, bringing good tidings of great joy to thee and blessings to all nations.

*" 'Tis then with His ransomed He'll reign,
With justice and with power;
Then hasten, Lord, and come again,
And bring that joyful hour."*

WAR! WAR! WAR!

BY C. E. RANDALL

WHEN the disciples inquired of Christ what would be the sign of His coming and of the end of the world, He replied by saying: "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet."—Matt. 24:36.

This prophecy and its fulfillment is one of the plain and easy-to-be-understood signs of the last days. It does not concern the "end of the world" but does point to Christ's soon returning.

War comes from lust and evil which is seated within the heart of man. James 4:1; Matt. 15:19. This being the source or breeding place of war, murders, etc., we can expect them to increase as men's hearts become more sinful and wicked. Paul, in his letter to Timothy, says: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived". This statement proves beyond a question of doubt that men's hearts are going to become vain and their imaginations are going to grow evil continually.

The ungodly condition of the Antediluvian world was a type of the world as it will exist previous to Christ's returning. Matt. 24:37-39.

The nearer the "Lord's Day" arrives, the more evil will be the desires and purposes of lustful man, resulting in the increase of war. Nations are not only preparing for war by increased equipment, but are waking up the mighty men of the age, and assembling all the inventive minds in an effort to produce more destructive methods of warfare. The outcome of intense preparation will result in the further fulfillment of Christ's end-time sign, "nation rising against nation".

It is true that powerful agencies are working for peace—universal peace. Such has been true since Abraham returned from the slaughter of the kings. Every peace and safety cry has met the same fate—"sudden destruction cometh". 1 Thess. 5:3. Peace, permanent peace cannot come until the cause and source of war (which destroys peace) has been destroyed, which is lust. Peace agencies, though sincere in effort and purpose, cannot eliminate lust. This can be accomplished only by a complete change of heart. A change of heart comes through a surrender to Christ; such a surrender requires full and complete obedience to all the requirements of Christ. Christ is the way of peace.

Inasmuch as the nations are forgetting God—glorifying in their own strength—guided by the human god of lust, we need not expect anything other than the fruitage of lust, which is war, strife, and commotion. Nations are rising against each other as never before. They are setting, as it were, over a powder magazine and we know not how soon some lustful nation or power will touch off the fuse.

The United States has withdrawn several thousand marines from mail service and has stationed them in two different countries. Right or wrong matters not, they are there and no one knows what the outcome of such action will be. Powerful forces are at work in this country agitating and fomenting public sentiment against our neighbor republic, Mexico, trying to get this country to sever diplomatic relations. This country is rife with "rumors of wars". Europe is in a seething pot of strife, revolution, anarchy, militarism. Asia produces the "yellow peril" which gives a question of concern to all nations. No matter where we look we can see the god of lust tremendously busy. All nations are shaping themselves for the greatest war of the ages, the final war of all time, a war in which they will crush themselves.

The prophets speak of the time when Israel returns to the homeland, taking the wealth of the world with them; returns to restore the waste places and to rebuild the desolate land, and to inhabit with assurance of safety. But the lust of the wealth drives the hordes from the north countries to come against the mountains of Israel as a cloud, and as a storm, to take a spoil, to take a prey. Ezek. 38 and 39. With all nations assembled in the Valley of Jehoshaphat, God will use Israel as His battle axe and weapons of war. The outcome of this final war will be the setting up of the kingdom of God. Then will nations beat their swords into plowshares, their spears into pruning hooks. Until the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ, nation will rise against nation, there will be wars and rumors of wars.

Nations have risen through war, they likewise perish. The history of the nations has been the "survival of the fittest." If we want peace, let us say the word to bring back the "Prince of Peace". The multiplied wars and rumors of wars in these closing days are simply signs of the nearness of Christ's returning, and should not trouble us, but cause us to look up and lift up our heads, knowing that our redemption draweth near.

TEMPTATION

By George Henry Dole

In that He Himself suffered being tempted, He is able to succor them that are tempted. Heb. 2:18.

IT brings the Lord near to realize that He suffered and was tempted as we are. He is not a stranger to our afflictions and burdens. He blazed the trail to the mountain top. He went through the spiritual wilderness where none watched Him. He felt that agonizing loneliness, depression, and abandonment when in the awful gloom the soul cries, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Sweat-drops of blood fell from His brow. A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, He tenderly sympathizes in divine tenderness, mercy and love. Nothing is wanting in Him to be near always.

Trials are afflictions that come from sicknesses, natural losses and disappointments. Temptations are deeper than trials. They are essentially conflicts in the mind between falsity and truth and between evil desires and good desires. They are battles in the spirit against unrighteousness, which take place in the regenerating.

Temptations are of different degree, becoming deeper and more subtle with advancing age, if one is regenerating. This is essential for the cleansing and rectification of the internal of the mind. "Thou desireth truth in the inward parts: and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom." These deeper temptations do not come to the wicked, and the Word tells that they are not in trouble as other men are.—Our Hope.

TRUTH AS PORTRAYED BY CLOVEN HOOF

BY C. E. RUTLAND

"Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is cloven-footed, and cheweth the cud, among beasts, that shall ye eat."—Leviticus 11:3.

THE law, "being a shadow of good things to come", Col. 2:17; Heb. 10:1, and the form and knowledge of the truth, Rom. 2:20, we can profitably look at the above text for a few moments in an endeavor to figure out what this statement, as given by Moses in Leviticus, shadows forth.

We get a further statement on this matter in Deut. 14:6, to the effect that "every beast that parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into two claws, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that ye shall eat."

It might be well to emphasize the point once more, that the Mosaic law is still the best system of hygiene ever devised, but its main object was to foreshadow truth, as the apostles frequently state; and that they were no idle words of prayer uttered by the Psalmist when, from the fulness of his heart, he exclaims, "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."—Psalm 119:18.

In dealing with the subject of animal life and the consuming of flesh for Israel's food, there is a constant distinction drawn between clean and unclean beasts, and we do not have any great difficulty in finding a right application of this in the New Testament; for Peter there records, in Acts 10:11, 12, that he "saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth: wherein were all manner of four footed beasts of the earth." In reading through until we come to the 28th verse we find Peter's explanation and solution to clean and unclean beasts in these words, "God hath showed me that I should not call any man common or unclean."

We can logically and scripturally ask ourselves the question, then, what kind of a man would be typified by the animal that divided the hoof and chewed the cud? and why was it pleasing to God that that type of beast was to be considered "clean" and good for Israel to eat? What form and knowledge of the truth does this statement contain?

Let us compare scripture with scripture and see what results. Let us say that every animal that divideth the hoof is fully qualified to walk on sloping, difficult, and even rocky places—instanced by the sheep—and is assuredly an indication of sure-footedness. Is it not true that the Christian's "walk" is extremely difficult in "the midst of a crooked and perverse" generation? The apostle exhorts us to walk in wisdom towards them that are without, "walk as becometh the gospel". This walking requires the cloven hoofs to carry us over the rough places, where men of faith must tread.

The same is true of the "cud chewing" animal, which brings its food into a fine state of mastication through additional chewing, a constant turning over of the food. What kind of a man would this cud chewing animal typify? Surely the saints of God have not far to seek for the answer. Jeremiah gives us a key in stating, "Thy words were found, and I did eat them." The Psalmist declares, "The entrance of thy words giveth light." Jesus said, "He that eateth me shall live by me", and, "the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." This type of cud chewing man, who delights to meditate upon God's word, is the cud chewer, the one to whom Jesus could say, "Ye are clean through the words which I have spoken unto you."

These beasts are typical of the men in whom God delights; for "he taketh not pleasure in fools", and shows us clearly that the knowledge of the truth demands much more than a knowledge of the fact that man is mortal and that Christ is coming to establish His kingdom.

Under this type and others we are face to face with God, as the weigher of men's actions.

What are we to finally conclude from Leviticus 11:3-8? the camel, the coney, the hare, the swine? If you will note carefully, you will observe that some of these divided the hoof, but did not chew the cud; the others chewed the cud but did not divide the hoof. Neither were to be accepted as food; they were to be considered unclean.

God requires more than theory, He demands action, but not the action of a naturally moral man. Action must be in accordance with the revealed will of God. The cud chewing and the dividing hoof must be combined, and form no part of the present systems of "will worship", that men, ignorant of "the righteousness which was in the law", have heaped unto themselves.

FRIENDSHIP

BY N. H. GEISELMAN

HE THAT hath friends must show himself friendly." I saw this text in The Herald a week or so ago and it reminded me that not so long ago I heard those words quoted, and the authorship credited to Shakespeare. But it so happens that these are the words of Solomon, who lived many, many years before Shakespeare was ever born. It is astonishing to the ones who are familiar with the sacred Scriptures to know how many of its noble utterances are credited to modern thinkers rather than the authors to whom they justly belong. Modern men may have more cunning than the men of olden days, but for profound wisdom and noble thought there are none to-day who can measure up to a Moses, a Solomon, or a Paul.

In studying our subject we are going to find out, if we can, the real meaning of the word "friendship", or at least what Solomon thought it meant. In trying to find this out we are not going to the ethics of a modern society, neither are we looking to a twentieth-century civilization for the answer. But we had rather seek this information from the noblest science and safest instruction ever given to mankind, and this knowledge illustrated with characters which called forth and exhibited to us the purest love and most sacred devotion. I am inclined to think that we use the word "friend" or "friendship" in too loose a way, and with but little thought as to its real meaning. How often do we hear it said, "Bro. Geiselman, shake hands with my friend, Mr. Smith," or "Shake hands with my friend, Mr. Brown," when Mr. Smith and Mr. Brown may be real enemies of God and His righteousness? or in a legal way, "John Daw, shake hands with your friend, Robert Roe," when John Daw and Robert Roe may be the bitterest rivals in the practice of the law. In the first instance, the word "friend" is used as a mere introduction or a part of a phraseology in use to form an acquaintance. It is not so used in the Bible. The words "friend" and "friendship" from a Bible viewpoint have a deeper meaning; a more intimate relation should exist than a mere acquaintance. I am going to try to give you what I think Solomon meant by the language of this text. I think he meant that there must be a deep, quiet, but mutual, esteem, founded upon an affection which calls forth the profoundest love and the most sacred devotion, one for the other. He emphasizes this thought in the latter clause of the verse where he says that we have a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

Our Lord, in His ministry, put forth the strongest effort possible to instill this spirit into the hearts of His early followers, that they might have a heart-knowledge of their obligation, one toward another. On one occasion He established with them a golden rule, saying, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." It was the intention of the law to force men into this loving obedience, which it could only fail to do; for it lacked that assimilating power back of it that molded the character and endued the subject with divine love and grace. John 1:17 says, "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." The law gives knowledge of sin and is exercised against the disobedient. But we can never legislate men into the righteousness of God. It comes from another motive, not of fear, but of love. So the precious gospel of the Son of God comes to us with its entreaties, "Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another". In 1 Peter 1:22 we read: "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently." That word "fervently"—with fervor—means intensity of feeling, zeal, warmth, a melting of heart sympathy and love into a oneness of interest. This is most beautifully illustrated in Acts 2:41-47. Verse 44 says, "And all that believed were together, and had all things common." Verse 46 says, "And they continuing daily with one accord . . . did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart."

Solomon says a true friend loveth at all times. This was true in the lives of Jonathan and David. It was true in the blessings administered from Joseph to his brethren. It was exemplified in the life of Abraham when he gave Lot the choice of the land, and afterward rescued him from the king of the North and saved him from ruin and death. It was profoundly true in the life of our blessed Lord, the grandest of all men. Every lesson He taught His disciples, every prayer He offered for them, every exhortation He gave to them was prompted by the spirit of a father's love, and manifested that loving friendship that knows no bounds. One day He was talking to His disciples about a vine. (They evidently were looking at a vine, for it is said of Him that there was nothing that the eye beheld but He would make an object lesson out of it for the benefit of His disciples.) Some of the branches of this vine were dead, some were weak and had but little life in them, while other branches were full of life and fruit. And when He made the application of this parable, He applied it to Himself: "I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman. Every branch in me that beareth not fruit He taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bear more fruit." Turning to His disciples He said to them, "Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you. Abide in me, and I in you." And such oneness of interest and loving service will magnify the will of God and bring fruit to the glory and honor of His name. "As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love." Jesus then told them if they would do this He would not call them servants but friends. "The servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." Such a friendship is divine because it comes from God. It is more precious than rubies or fine gold.

*Friendship is a priceless gem,
Richer far than pearls or gold;
But the saddest thing of earth
Is a friendship that is cold.*

*Let our friendship prove serene,
Never marred by wintry blasts,
But be friends for evermore,
As we have been in the past.*

THE TRANSCENDENT LIFE

IF I can speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but am destitute of Love, I have become a loud-sounding trumpet or a clanging cymbal.

If I possess the gift of prophesy and am versed in all mysteries and all knowledge, and have such absolute faith that I can remove mountains, but am destitute of Love, I am nothing.

And if I distribute all my possessions to the poor, and give up my body to be burned, but am destitute of Love, it profits me nothing.

Love is patient and kind. Love knows neither envy nor jealousy. Love is not forward and self-assertive, nor boastful and conceited.

She does not behave unbecomingly, nor seek to aggrandize herself, nor blaze out in passionate anger, nor brood over wrongs. She finds no pleasure in injustice done to others, but joyfully sides with the truth.

She knows how to be silent. She is full of patient endurance.

Love never fails. But if there are prophecies, they will be done away with; if there are languages, they will cease; if there is knowledge, it will be brought to an end. For our knowledge is imperfect, and so is our prophesying; but when the perfect state of things is come, all that is imperfect will be brought to an end.

When I was a child, I talked like a child, reasoned like a child: when I became a man, I put from me childish ways.

For the present we see things as if in a mirror, and are puzzled; but then we shall see them face to face.

For the present the knowledge I gain is imperfect; but then I shall know fully, even as I am fully known.

And so there remain Faith, Hope, Love—these three; and of these the greatest is Love.—1 Corinthians 13, Weymouth's Translation.

GIFTS OF THE SPIRIT

BY GEORGE MITCHELL

TO ALL who are acquainted with the covenant made with Abraham and his seed, Christ, Gal. 3:16; and with the covenant made with David, that he shall never want a man to sit on his throne; and with the angel's announcement to Mary that she should have a son and that the Lord would give Him the throne of His father David, and that He would reign over the house of Jacob for ever, which includes the restoration of Israel and the things concerning Jesus Christ:

There is another step to take to be one of God's family: "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." 2 Cor. 6:17, 18. And if a son or a daughter of the Lord God Almighty, you are a brother or sister of the Lord Jesus by adoption. You are entitled to the privileges of the family of God. Read what Jesus said to the woman of Samaria, John 4:10,—"Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith unto thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water." V.12,—"Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle?" Jesus answered, "Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again: but whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." Verses 23, 24,—"But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

We cannot worship Him in spirit except the spirit dwell in us, which is the comforter, "the earnest of our inheritance".—Eph. 1:14; 2 Cor. 1:22. God "hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit", which every believer should have, 2 Cor. 5:5. Rom. 8:9,—"But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you".—Rom. 8:11. Please read the whole eighth chapter of Romans. Hear the Lord's pleading from heaven. Rev. 22:17,—"And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." See also Isaiah 55:1.

WILL YOU COME?

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

HONOR WHERE DUE

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE is a scriptural injunction that should be given heed to many times. In this connection, it should be said that no little honor is due to the office force of the N. B. I. for the extra work that the workers have done in the last three months.

For nearly three months the writer, F. L. Austin, has attended very little to the managing duties of the N. B. I. and of Headquarters. This has thrown no little extra work upon the shoulders of others.

We desire in this way to express by word, at least, thanks for this labor and for the cooperation.

* * * *

LIKE HIM

IT IS A BEAUTIFUL thought that is presented to the Christian in the first verses of 1 John 3. For given reasons "we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." The way in which one is to be like Christ as referred to in this scripture is to be like Him in distinction from what the Christian now is, in his natural, mortal, corruptible situation. It is to be fashioned like unto His glorious body. This is, perhaps, one of the greatest, if not the greatest ideal that is held before the eyes of the advancing Christian. To lay off this mortality as mentioned by Paul in 2 Cor. 5, and to be clothed over with immortality like Christ as also indicated in 1 Cor. 15:53, is to transfer the Christian thus changed, into an entirely new type of existence. It is for this newness that the apostle says in 2 Cor. 5 that the Christian now groans; groaning lest Christ shall not return before the hour when the mortal shall be changed to immortal; groaning lest the Christian shall lay down in death and become entirely unclothed.

But again, John says in 1 John 3 that the one who has this hope in Him purifies, purges, cleanses himself. He does not wait until that day of absolute change, but rejoices to-day in his earnest effort to change the thought, the ideal, the aim of life, and purify himself in such manner after the fashion of the purity of Christ.

Again, this very development in the present day can but indicate to the world one's own abiding hope in Christ; for with this hope and its attendant purification of life, one's manifestation to others can but be pronounced and emphatic.

* * * *

BETTER GOODS BRING MORE TRADE

SOME MONTHS AGO The Restitution Herald was altered in form from eight to sixteen pages. Many letters and words of appreciation because of improved form and increased size have been received.

Because of this improvement a number of new subscribers have been added to the list, whose remittances and interests not only assist in repaying the increased cost of publishing The Herald, but whose interest in the work as a whole becomes both moral and financial asset to the cause as a whole. Both local and national labors are thus strengthened.

This is as it should be. It is necessary for those really interested in this work to enthuse themselves in advancing the work by increasing the service to all. This increase must always be advanced to those whom we would interest.

As this work is always the work of the Church as a whole—not the work of a few—all are urged to cooperate in advancing the circulation of The Herald in every field.

* * * *

TRUTH SEEKERS' SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY

THE NEXT ISSUE of Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly will be supplied with a four-color map of Palestine. This is an important improvement over the first issue.

The Headquarters office appreciates greatly the many favorable words and constructive suggestions regarding the first number.

It will be necessary to advance the price of the Quarterly at once from 10 cents to 12 cents per copy per quarter for single subscriptions, and from 8 cents to 10 cents per copy per quarter in quantities of 5 or more to one address. However, all orders already received will be filled at the old price.

"Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Cor. 15:57).

HERALD RECEIPTS

Harriette Woodard; Mrs. C. M. Southwick; Rollie S. Brewer; Leona Loegrave; Ed F. Elton; Mrs. J. T. Howell; Mrs. Eva E. Collins; R. S. Lindstrom; Dr. H. M. Gale; T. W. Bates; Howard L. Appleby; C. E. Hatch; J. W. Cooper; Mrs. S. J. Elton; C. W. Coleman; Mrs. R. W. Thompson; Mrs. Wm. Keyser; W. Y. Pippin; Mrs. Edith Rossiter; Wm. Eckert; Mrs. Annie M. Drew.

* * * *

WINCE FUND

Previously mentioned	$2571.16
Wm. H. Moore	5.00
Total	$2576.16

National Berean Department

H. C. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

HAVE YOU STARTED TITHING YET?

* * * *

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY

Sr. Lois Hunt's, Something to Do, on the children's page not long ago was fine. Here's another for Bereans:

Won't every Berean buy at least one Truth Seeker's Quarterly to give away? Hand it to a Sunday School teacher in some other denomination. He or she will surely be grateful for the lesson helps.

It is our opportunity to scatter truth, and to advertise our publication.

The next quarterlies will be off the press shortly. Send in your orders NOW.

E. K. H.

* * * *

The Burr Oak, Indiana, Junior Berean Class using Book No. 1 is having very interesting classes, and has increased its membership from five to ten—doubled.

* * * *

The South Bend Berean Society held its annual election February 24 with the following results: President, Ruth Hardy; Secretary, Maude Stilson; Treasurer, Lydia Railsback.

* * * *

The Rockford, Illinois, class enjoyed a very interesting study recently on the two salvations of Lessons 24 and 25. There was some difference of opinion on the subject of old and new covenants, and we will be glad if our editor or others will help us to rightly divide the word of truth in regard to this special topic.

Is the old covenant the same as the old law given to Moses? Are those who have taken the name of Christ living under the new covenant now? If so, why are not those conditions prevalent which God says will exist when the new covenant is established. See Heb. 8:11, and other references.

D. W. L.

* * * *

It is good to find differing thoughts in a class; for otherwise there would be little incentive to carefully study things out.

We will give our thought briefly to the questions asked above and then will be glad to hear from any others who wish to add a further thought.

Yes, the old covenant is that which was given through

Moses, and it was never given to anyone but Israel.

The new covenant was brought into force by the death of Christ. Heb. 9:15-17. But the new covenant has jurisdiction only over those who willingly accept Christ, and it recognizes no distinction between Jew and Gentile.

The conditions of the perfection spoken of in Heb. 8:11, were to be brought in when Israel should have the new covenant written in their hearts, as is shown in verse 10. It will be written in their hearts when they accept Him, and they will do that when He comes in power to establish His throne. See Zech. 12:10 to 13:1.

Those who believe in and accept Christ to-day come under His, the new, covenant, and have the advantages thereof. When the day comes that all those living on the earth will be members of the Christ family, then all the earth will resound with the blessings of the new covenant.

* * * *

Dear Bro. in Christ: I was reading in The Herald of February 15 about "The Tree of Life".

According to my understanding, God planted a garden in Eden for Adam and out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, Gen. 2:8, 9. This was before Adam had sinned, at which time God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, and placed a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life, lest he eat and live forever, Gen. 3:22-24.

Therefore, there is not, in these present evil times, any use for the tree of life, neither can be, until the last enemy, death, is destroyed, when the tree of life will again be instituted "for the healing of the nations", Rev. 22:2, the nations who have not immortality in the new heavens and the new earth. Christ's body, or his church, will have immortality and will not depend upon the tree of life.

Submitted in Christian love,

Mrs. C. H. Nye.

Love is the joy of service so great that self is forgotten.

* * * *

We have committed the Golden Rule to memory; now let us commit it to life.—Edwin Markham,

"I KNOW"

BY J. T. AULD

(Continued from last week)

DEAR friends, do you suppose that the bride, the Lamb's wife, will sit around under her shade trees, vines, and fig trees? No! The above prophecy is applied to the saved of the nations both past and future. Christ and His bride are a special family, His bride having been selected out from all the nations of the world, Jew and Gentile, and named a holy nation, royal priesthood, to be made kings and priests over the nations of the earth, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David included as subjects. King George is now in possession of his dominion and before his brother died he was an heir. Christ and His bride are heirs to all things and will be elected, at His coming, jointly to take possession of the throne of His father David, to reign over the nations of the earth.

Listen: Let us say my father at his demise gave me 100 acres, the old homestead, worth $10,000. I owe no one any thing. I mortgage it and run through with all it is worth. I am bankrupt. A friend comes forward and redeems my home and pays the mortgage off, and does so gratis. Am not I restored? Is not this restitution? Am I not restored to my former estate? Now I have nothing more, nothing less than I had at the beginning.

Now, to illustrate, I am not entitled to any thing more than what I lost. Adam lost life (animal, soul life) and his dominion and all the glory he may have derived from being a perfect head of the human family. He sinned and lost all, both life and his dominion, and incurred death on all his posterity.

Now, dear ones, be honest about this matter. What did it require in Christ to do to restore Adam's race and nature to where he was before he sinned and lost all? The prophet said "man could not redeem his brother". So God offered His only begotten Son as a free gift to the world to redeem all men, on conditions set forth prior to Christ's death to the Adamic nature, and an earthly home, and will always remain earthy. But now, during this age, since His death and resurrection, He is taking out a people for His name, called the children of God. God is forming a new body in Christ Jesus, new creatures, a new family "created in Christ Jesus" of a higher nature, like unto their head, our elder Brother, a divine nature. The divine nature, immortality, life within themselves were never offered to any people prior to Christ's ascension.

The great salvation was first spoken of by the Lord Jesus. Heb. 2:3; 2 Peter 1:4. If it was first spoken of by our Lord, why do some say it is the same gospel preached to Abraham and that Abraham will be a partaker of the great salvation? If this salvation was first spoken by Christ and confirmed by them that heard Him, how could any one previous to His day be partaker of these promises? The new covenant was not in force previous to Christ's death.

A covenant is of no force until after the death of the testator, Heb. 9:16, 17. Abraham was a friend of God, but not a son. The first Adam was a son of God by creation. The second Adam was and is a Son by birth and resurrection from the dead. This I also know.

I know that no one except the body of Christ is eligible to be heir of and ruler in Christ's kingdom. To be heir of the kingdom and a subject of the kingdom are two different propositions. I know that the first man Adam was made a living soul; the last man Adam, a quickening spiritual being, of a higher order and nature, far above the nature and power of angels. 1 Cor. 15:45. Now, I know the first Adam could not rule in righteousness because of sin. I know the second Adam, the Lord from heaven, will rule righteously. Psalm 9:8; 50:6. The nature of the first Adam and the nature of the second Adam run parallel—the first earthy, the second heavenly. 1 Cor. 15: 37-49.

Immortality is a free gift, and I know the Adamic nature will never attain unto it. It is only offered to this new family created in Christ Jesus in this age. And the offer of immortality will cease when the fullness of the Gentiles comes in. This will complete the number of Christ's co-workers.

The men of the United States elected Mr. Coolidge for President of the U. S. by a free ballot. It was a free-will offer by the people. This was bestowing a great honor upon Mr. Coolidge. Now, if one mortal man out of all the people of this government can be so honored above his fellows, and angels are so much greater in power and nature than mortal man, why do you think it a thing incredible that God should call an election to elect a king that is now in possession of immortality, and will reign and rule over all the habitable world together with his bride chosen out from the world?

This I also know, that this new family of immortalized kings and priests shall rule over the first Adam's race. Psalm 2:8; 21:4; Micah 5:2; Zech. 6:13; Rev. 2:27; 19:15; 5:9, 10. This family is neither Jew nor Gentile. It is composed of the children of God in Christ. I also know there is no greater royal family in heaven or in earth, God and David being the fathers of Jesus according to the holy spirit and also according to the flesh. This makes the Son and His body heir to all things both in heaven and earth. What better title do you want to be heir to David's throne?

Dear ones, cannot you see the difference between this great royal family created in Christ Jesus and the natural man created in the first Adam? All that have not been baptized into Christ in order to be partakers of this divine ROYAL family nature, will be subjects in the kingdom. No one can be heir to the kingdom except he be adopted into this new family formed in Christ Jesus.

This I also know: I know God will not let the true in heart be deceived; for Jesus said so in Matthew 24:24. God gave His Son as a free gift, and in Him is offered immortality just in and during this age, Rom.

(Continued on page 367, column 1)

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON PREPARED BY F. L. AUSTIN

LESSON XII.—March 20.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

John 14:1-3; 2 Corinthians 5:1-10; 1 John 3:2-3.

Devotional Reading: Revelation 21:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT.

In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.—John 14:2.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT.

The Christian's Hope. Practically all Christian prospect is the outgrowth of the facts stated in these texts.

His Hope Is in Christ. As has been realized throughout the quarter's lessons, all Christian hope must rest in Christ, through whom all is to be realized. Hence, when Christ announced His departure, John 14:2, it meant discomfort to the uninstructed believer. His assurance was, "I will come again, and receive you unto myself"; not only as an official receives a visit from a layman, but receives in the sense of making him like unto Christ Himself, accepting him into Christ's own position and estate.

House from Heaven. In 2 Corinthians 4:14-18, the Apostle had been expressing his hope. Like the Psalmist in Psalm 116:10, who had spoken because he had believed, so also Paul, v. 13. His speech, v. 14, was of resurrection by Christ. He would not faint, even though his outward man perish, v. 16, knowing that the inner man was strengthened constantly and that the like afflictions would accomplish eternal weight of glory. He made these statements because of the fact introduced by the word "for", 5:1, that if our earthly house (outward man) perish, we would live by virtue of a house provided by God. The groaning, v. 2, is in contrast with the "earnest desire" not to be found unclothed, dead, at the return of his Lord, but living, that he might be clothed upon with that new, permanent, abiding condition appropriate for one being received, John 14:3, by Christ. How beautifully this harmonizes with Phil. 3:20, 21, "fashioned like unto his glorious body". It embraces resurrection, immortality, incorruptibility, everything pertaining to the new order and type of life granted by God to the faithful upon the return of Christ.

Like Unto Him. It is all summed up in this comprehensive statement by John that the Christian shall in fact be like unto Christ. John does not know yet the appearance of such condition. He knows, however, that it will prevail because "we shall see him as he is", and the word here used for "see" does not mean merely to behold, but rather that we shall be so constituted as to be capable of comprehending, realizing, Christ, which can be only if we are like Him, thus experiencing with Him.

As a result of attainment unto this hope, the Christian, having become qualified, enters with Christ into all the glad work of restoring the earth to its Edenic beauty and thus realizing finally the fulness of God's promises, the completeness of hope.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

In the house of my Father are many abodes; but, if not, I would have told you; because I am going away to prepare a place for you; and, if perchance I go away and prepare a place for you, again I am coming, and will take you near unto myself: that; where I am, ye also may be.—(Rotherham) John 14:2-3.

House equals household or family. In God's family, there are many abiding places. There is a sequence of thought or events in these verses. (1) Father's house has many abiding places. (2) Christ went away to prepare a place for you. (3) He will come again, just as He went. (4) He will receive you when He comes. But you must be in His house, His family, in order that you may be worthy.

This brings us to the question, How do we get into this family? the house of God. See also Col. 4:15 and 1 Tim. 3:15.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

All hope is based on life. "If a man die, shall he live again?" has been a question upon millions of tongues through centuries past. Life, in and of itself, without proper surroundings, is undesirable, but the brightest hope is unattainable without life. The Christian's hope is not fully realized in this life. If so, he would be, 1 Cor. 15:19, "of all men most miserable". Future life is an essential to Christian hope.

It is the gift of God, Rom. 6:23. Without this gift there could be no life, no hope. Christ's assurances, John 14:2, 3, that he would receive his disciples unto Himself was an assurance of resurrection as well as an exalted position therein. John repeated the assurance in his first epistle, 3:2, in the words, "we shall be like him".

I will come again. All life and hope is everywhere in scripture predicated upon the return of Christ. The life, the hope, the fulness of Christian realization will be experienced here upon earth. The earth was made for man. Psalm 115:16. This hope embraces also the glorification of earth, its renovation, purification, completion by Christ following His return.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION.

The reality of Christ at second coming, Heb. 9:28. The place and the preparation.

The nakedness of 2 Cor. 5:3.

Like Christ. Purifying self as He is pure.

QUESTIONS.

What caused sadness of the disciples?

What is the meaning of "house", 14:2; "mansion"; "abode", 14:23?

What would Jesus do while away?

Why is He coming back?

What is the meaning of earthly house? Of house from heaven? Of clothed? Tabernacle? Groaning?

What is earnest of the Spirit?

Explain appearance before judgment seat of Christ.

Give comprehensive statement of the Christian's hope.

C. O. D. C. O. D.

The article on "House" to appear in this issue of The Herald, as per reference in Supplement of Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly, will, D. V., be printed next week.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Bro. F. E. Siple spent last week in Chicago on business.

Sr. Ethel Austin left Oregon Monday, March 7, for Cedar Falls, Iowa, where she expects to enter the state college for the spring term.

Sr. Nellie Cross is again in Oregon, after spending several weeks with her daughters in Lockport, Illinois, and South Bend, Indiana.

Sr. Clara VeNard was recently rushed to a hospital in Macomb, Illinois, for an emergency operation. Last report was that she was doing well.

Sr. Wm. McGraw of Oregon left Thursday, March 3, to spend a few days in Macomb with her mother, Sr. Clara VeNard, and other friends.

Sr. M. A. Woodward was at last reports in Lansing, Michigan, detained there on account of a cold. She had hoped to be in Detroit, Michigan, at this time.

Bro. and Sr. E. Cedric Pope and little son Cedric Allan, and Sr. Glendora Muselman visited Oregon friends Tuesday, March 1. Bro. and Sr. Pope are living at Cortland, Illinois, where Bro. Pope is serving as pastor.

A long distance message on Saturday, March 5, conveys the sad news of the death of Wanda, infant daughter of Sr. Vene Densmore Logsdon, Kewanee, Illinois, and calls Bro. Siple for the funeral on March 7.

The editor met with the brethren at St. Louis, Missouri, on Monday evening, February 28, at the home of Sr. Gertrude Logan. A number were gathered for services. It is far more difficult to arrange service programs in the big cities than in the small towns.

Sr. Viola Eaton Kuhns of Stockton, Illinois, is recovering from a stroke of paralysis which she suffered on February 24. At present she is being cared for at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. Vanderhyden, Mt. Carroll, Illinois, where she may be addressed.

BACK AGAIN

The Editor of The Herald returned to the office a few days ago and is beginning to take up the work again. He received no little rest, and although it would take much longer for complete return of strength, yet he feels like entering into the work once more.

* * *

IOWA

Sr. Anna Fales, of Marathon, is making her home in Storm Lake this winter.

Bro. and Sr. Starbuck's daughter, Mrs. Palmer and family, are moving back to Cedar Falls from Independence, where Bro. Palmer has had a second hand store.

James Cassen, of Waterloo, has had very poor health recently, but is better. It would seriously cripple the evangelist's lodging facilities if anything serious happened to Jim.

John Oaks, of Gladbrook, had the misfortune to have a horse on which he was riding fall on his knee and hurt it quite badly, so he has been taking an enforced rest. John is quite a cowboy, and since the horse was an old, quiet one, the accident detracts nothing from his reputation as a rider.

J. T. Cronbaugh, of Marengo, a member of the Koszta congregation, is in poor health, but is able to be up some. His brother C. C. is in very good health, considering that a year ago or so he was in the hospital with a broken hip. His wife had a very severe attack of sickness in the winter, and their daughter, Mrs. Bean, was called from Des Moines to care for her. She was up at last reports.

* * *

MICHIGAN

Grand Rapids had a record Sunday School attendance of 169, Sunday, February 13.

* * *

INDIANA

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY, 1927

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Burr Oak, 1; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Hillisburg, 2.

Money Received: Pleasant View, $14.00; Rensselaer, $25.00; Burr Oak, $5.00; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $6.00; Hillisburg, $25.00; Conference Board, $21.09. Expense: $11.09.

J. H. Anderson.

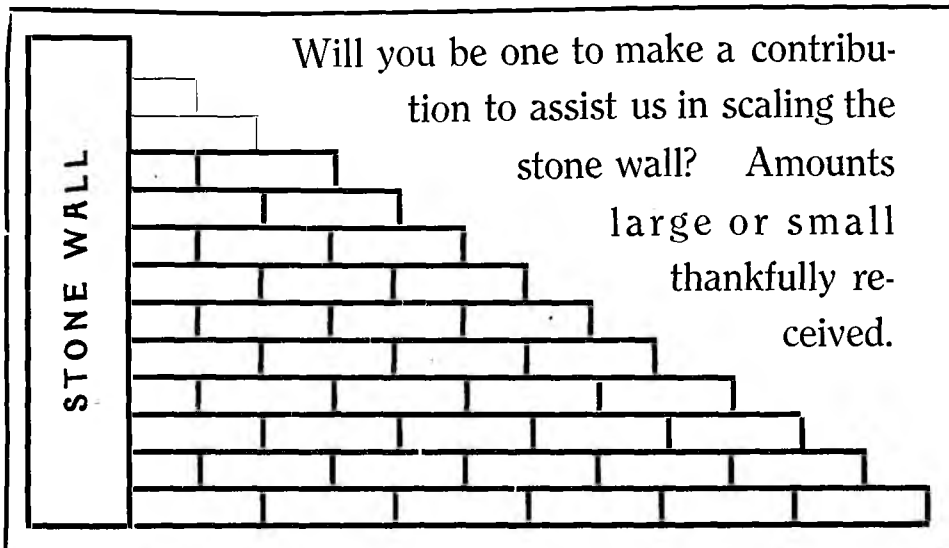

* * *

NELLIE MYERS WILSON

We were called upon to lay away in her final resting place, on March 5, Sister Nellie Wilson, of the Oregon church. Born forty-eight years ago at Mt. Morris, six miles from Oregon, she spent almost her entire life in this vicinity. The only exception was a brief period at Indianapolis, Indiana, which terminated disasterously in 1913 by the tragic death of her husband. Left with five children, she proved herself a worthy mother, and now that she has them all practically raised to maturity, she falls asleep in death, her task well done.

HELP-US-OVER

Still going up. A few more blocks; a little more mortar; then over the top. Let's go! F. A. S.

Sr. Wilson believed and obeyed the gospel some years ago, and her faith held true through the varying scenes of life.

F. E. Siple.

MARJALENE ETHEL BJORKLUND

Marjalene Ethel was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bjorklund, Albert City, Iowa, October 25, 1926, and passed away February 21, 1927, at the age of 4 months and 27 days. The little girl was ill only a short time, and is sadly missed by the parents and little brother, Carl Allen.

Sr. Bjorklund was formerly Ethel Titus, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Sam Titus. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer.

This is the second sudden death in this family this winter, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Carlson losing their baby boy of five months, just before Christmas. Sr. Carlson was Josephine Titus, also a daughter of Bro. and Sr. Sam Titus.

All are trying to bear up bravely under their bereavement, realizing that it is but for a time; being confident that the time until Jesus comes is short, and being firm in the belief of the resurrection.

A. M. Jones.

RUTH MINNIETTA CARRELL

Eldest daughter of Bro. and Sr. Charles and Francis Elvey, was born at Northfield, Illinois, December 20, 1865. She was united in marriage with Benjamin F. Carrell, May 9, 1888, to whom were born Charles Elvey, who died in infancy, Elvey F. Clarence A., and Harold E. Carrell. Her husband preceded her in death May 19, 1925. In this family she was an ever faithful wife and mother.

In youth of life Sr. Carrell avowed her faith in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, and was obedient in baptism. To this faith she was loyal till death, February 10, 1927, at her home at 621 N. Long Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

She is survived by her three sons, her mother, Mrs. Francis Elvey, and sister, Dr. Elizabeth E. Williams.

Buoyed with the comforting hope of her resurrection at the coming of God's Son, her loved ones gently laid her in rest in Forest Home Cemetery of Chicago to await His call unto life and immortality.

* * *

A PERFECT MAN.

The promises of God, opening to frail man the beautiful vista of the future, are most beautiful indeed, but they are no more beautiful than are the beautiful harmonies of Christianity brought to view in the Studies of the Christian Life in the lessons of the first quarter of 1927.

Nothing is more beautiful to a man than the picture of A PERFECT MAN. Not only is such a One revealed in these lessons, but they also instruct in the tender kindness of God in providing for poor, mortal man, that he may "grow up into" Christ and, when He shall have come, "be like Him"—perfect.

Life is sweet. Immortality through Christ, with its ceaseless moving of life through the ages, is sweeter. But sweeter still to contemplate is man who, under the sweet graces of God's love, grows up into Christ and, being "like Him", is worthy of whatever God may bestow upon him—even immortality. The lessons of this quarter teach how any one may become all this in and through Jesus Christ.

Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly

A long-felt want has been provided in the publication of Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly, and is being much appreciated. The Quarterly is larger and better than was anticipated;

—The demand has been nearly twice as great;

—And the orders keep coming.

The next issue, nearly ready for printing, has promise of being still better;

--It has three additional writers: F. E. Siple, Alta King, G. E. Marsh;

--And a four-color map of Palestine for the first 1000 copies, and for all- if possible.

Provide one for every Junior, Intermediate, and Senior of your Sunday School Five or more copies to one address: Per quarter, 10 cents each; per year, 40 cents each.

If you're not in Sunday School you'll want a single copy: per quarter, 12 cents; per year, 48 cents.

—A beautiful four-color New Testament Map of Palestine. (The number furnished with these maps may be unavoidably limited to a previous estimate of quantity needed.)

We ask for your immediate order for next quarter, that we may be sure to print as many as needed. Please help us to help you by sending your order At Once—unless you have already sent an order for the Second Quarter.

The prices are now as follows:

—1 to 4 copies are 12 cents each per quarter; 48 cents each per year;

—5 or more copies to one address are 10 cents each per quarter; 40 cents each per year.

(All orders having been received at old prices will be filled as paid in full.)

ORDER BLANK

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

Gentlemen:—

Please send quarterly to the undersigned copies of the Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly, beginning with April, 1927, for which we agree to remit quarterly, in advance, the sum of $.....

When for use by a Sunday School please fill out the following:

These are for use by the

Sunday School at

Please find enclosed the amount of $....., in payment of the above order for the quarter (or year) beginning

January April July October, 1927

Signed (Plainly)

IF LADY, SIGN "MISS" OR "MRS"

Street or Rfd.

Town State

The Children's Page

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE

BY LOIS HUNT

WHAT is a Christian? A follower of Christ.
Why be a follower of Christ? Because in Him is our hope.

For what do we hope? Never-ending life with Christ as His helpers.

The early Christians and apostles hoped for the same thing. They hoped Christ would set up His kingdom at that time. So you understand their disappointment when, at the "last supper", He told them that He was going to leave them. "Whither I go, ye cannot come," He said. Whereupon, Peter asked where He was going, and why he, Peter, could not follow Him now. Christ then replied that their hearts should not be troubled, because He was going away to prepare a place for them, and that if He went He would come back again so they could then be with Him.

Now, did this mean that when people die Christ has a place all ready for them to come to in heaven, or that He will come for them then? No, He had twice said they could not go where He was going. He was trying to teach them that if they were baptized into Him they would have a resting place or share with Him upon His return as a part of His church family. Then their hope would be fulfilled.

Later Paul wrote to the Corinthians, telling them that if they died and were buried they would be raised again; for they must appear before Christ that He might reward them for the good or bad things they had done in their lives.

Did that mean the Corinthians only? No, it means all Christians.

Again, the Apostle John gives a message even more clear, telling us that we shall be like Christ when He appears. Isn't that a real hope? Do not you want to be like Christ, and live for ever where there is no sorrow, and do wonderful things like He did?

John says we must try to be pure even as Christ is pure. We must think pure thoughts, and keep our bodies pure. Let us pray God to help us!

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Write me, telling how you would answer anyone who said that John 14:2, 3 means "going to heaven".

2. Who can make the longest list of the hopes of a Christian?

3. Memorize John 14:2, 3 and 1 John 3:2, 3.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH TO THE COMMUNITY

BY J. W. WILLIAMS

(Continued from last week)

Again, the church is not called to convert or save the whole community, the whole world, in the present age; for here again, if such had been our calling, we know we should fail, for the Teacher said that at the close of the age, when He returns, it will be as it was in the days of Noah and of Sodom. And if Noah had been assigned the task of saving the whole community, he would have had to be preaching yet, with no respite in sight. The ark was not large enough to contain all his neighbors, and since the size of it was limited by divine instruction, the divine expectations as to the number who would enter are evident. The present task, as to the number of the community who are expected to leave it and become a part of the church, is stated in Acts 15:14, where James says it is to take out of the ones surrounding it a people for His name. So if the church is taken out or separated from the rest, it is evident that the rest are to be left behind. If the perfect Teacher did not find it possible to convert all who heard Him, would He ask more of us? If we cannot convert our own town, can we convert a whole town in China or India? If we must wait for the conversion of the world before we see our Lord coming in the clouds, we shall never see Him, for He said to the contrary as to the conversion of all before He comes.

The Master prayed that His people might be one, that the world might believe that the Father had sent Him. So one hindrance in the church to more success in the community is the numerous sects, fighting each other. In many places such a spectacle is the only religious evidence in sight. But right here observers may err. It is made plain in such scriptures as 1 Corinthians 12 and Ephesians 4 that the Master's prayer for a united people was answered; for here Paul says that His people were one, and it is found in such scriptures as 1 Corinthians 11:18-19 and 1 John 2:19 that sects are not a part of the true church, so that the true church is not sectarian, but consists of those who are united to the Head of the church, and not severed from each other. So the community must not make the mistake of accepting everything as Christian that goes under that name, but discern the true members who individually or collectively belong to Christ.

And another mistake that the community, or individuals of it, may make is to conclude that the church endorses every act of each of its members. Here the church owes the duty to the community, to itself, and to erring ones, of rejecting from its communion those who have forfeited all right to such association, and this duty is sadly neglected, let it be freely confessed. Such scriptures as 1 Corinthians 5 make plain our duty in this respect, and those who are of the classes named there should be treated as we are bidden to do. But the outside community, also, errs on this point; for no sooner does a member fall short of the ideal than one or more in the community cry out, "hypocrite," and use this as a reason, or perhaps, as an excuse, for refusing to become a part of the church. But the fact that your little child, while learning to walk does not walk as uprightly as yourself is not sufficient reason, in your estimation, for you to thrust the little one out of your family. You say to his critics, "Give him time to grow up. He is not doing this intentionally to be praised as a clown, so he is not a hypocrite. Come back later and observe his walking." In similar way the apostle explains the grounds upon which members who are weak in their steps, (and who is not?), may be properly kept in the church and nourished that they may grow, for in the next chapter, 1 Corinthians 6, he explains that all who are justified by faith from a former life of sin are now not sinners, even when they sin, but are members of the Lord's body, on the way to perfection. And if the Lord endures them in their failings, as His representatives, shall not fellow Christians endure them as their associates? And shall not the community endure them as neighbors while they acknowledge their weakness and seek to grow in grace? The spirit of self-righteous aloofness is the essence of Pharisaism.

The real meaning of hypocrisy is made clear by the Teacher in Matthew 6. He said the Pharisees were hypocrites on three counts, in their almsgiving, their praying, and their fasting. For true almsgiving is for those who receive, while they gave for personal gain of praise by those who looked on; true prayer is for heavenly ears, while they said prayers for the ears of men, to receive praise; and true fasting is an observance for heavenly eyes, but they fasted for the observance of those who would praise their devotions. Effort after an ideal which entails some failure to reach it is not hypocrisy, but hypocrisy is intended deception. It is doing one thing while pretending to do another. So that a person who nominally is a member of the church for sake of customers at a store, or for the sake of marrying a lamb in the flock, without any thought or intention of assuming the real relation thus seemingly imitated, is truly a hypocrite.

But in this and all other false charges the Christian need not defend himself by any complaints or efforts to justify, seeing the Father has pledged to vindicate His own, even to the point of turning all curses into blessings and making all things work together for good to those whom He has called. Therefore, we are told by our apostle not to fight for our rights in court, but to return good for evil, and thus overcome evil, not with evil, but with good.

Then, in conclusion: The church is engaged in a persistent and organized effort to absorb as many of the surrounding community as it can, as many as it can by the means of the gospel in word and work, as many as the Lord of harvest by His grace calls into our fellowship, and we heartily welcome all who will come. And "whosoever will may come".

But we steadfastly refuse to use for the gospel words of attraction any political speeches, or literary book reviews, or scientific discussions, or any other of the words of the wisdom of the world, for if that had been words of life, the world would long ago have saved itself by its own gospel. But we have a different story to tell. It is not praise for moral attainment or glory in the progress of the world, but the testimony that the things of flesh are insufficient and unsatisfying, and that there is only one thing that is worthy of whole pursuit, and only one cure for the world's ills. Not social service, but individual, one by one. Not reformation, but regeneration. Not ice cream, but heavenly sunshine. Not soup, but salvation.

(The above was prepared to be read at a community meeting at Gladbrook, Iowa, January 28, instead of a speech requested by the committee, as the writer was absent from home at the time.)

(Concluded)

— o —

SUBSCRIPTION INFORMATION
National Bible Institution
Publishers of
THE RESTITUTION HERALD
Oregon, Illinois

F. L. Austin, Manager F. A. Stilson, Circulation Manager

Executive Board

F. L. Austin, President,	Oregon, Illinois
L. E. Conner, 1st V. Pres., 13906 Chautauqua Ave., Cleveland, O.
Mrs. T. J. Ellis, 2nd Vice-president, 319 Cutler St. Waterloo, Ia.
L. T. Hanson, Treasurer,	Oregon, Illinois
F. A. Stilson, Secretary,	Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD is published weekly, fifty-one issues per year, at $2:00 per annum; $1.00 for six months; 50 cents for three months. Sample copy free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both the old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March, 1879.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE RAPTURE

By J. E. L.

IT is evident that my brief communication of previous date in no way meets the approval of J. E. Lent. As to a statement made by me, he says that it is "not easy to be proved". Of course I am not viewing it in that way, and will say that the Apostle Paul in 2 Timothy 4:1 says, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; . . ." In this verse "appearing" and "kingdom" signify one event and it is obvious that the apostle's hope was in meeting His Redeemer at His coming to reign. Job also relied upon this hope, Job 19:25, 26. Jesus said to His chosen followers at the last supper, "I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." Prophecy applies to and points to His coming to reign: therefore, my statement is right as to its application.

I will further say that I fail to see the comparison mentioned by J. E. Lent.

In regard to Luke 17:37, in view of the fact that our Lord, always with sublimity and reverence, spoke of His church as the church triumphant, I am, therefore, entertaining the impression that He was referring to a condition and not place. Again as to this verse, is it not conclusive that the great Teacher is making a statement as to things definite, and therefore, that He is making a definite statement as to its definition? Quotations from Matthew and Luke made by J. E. Lent and myself are not full proofs of the translation of the elect saints, but rather infer that through and by His coming a condition will develop in which one will be accepted and the other rejected. Yes, the prepared will not only know the meaning of His coming, but will also experience the meaning of it by being changed from mortality to immortality, to be forever with the Lord. "Order!" And while it was rightly applied by J. E. Lent as to the quotation made by him it also applies to other phases of this subject, as to the called-out ones. To eliminate it would make confusion as to plan and purpose regarding this momentous event, a joyful meeting. Yes, ecstasy! for "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

I will also say that if a calling of the church for a period is in accord with the divine plan, I have no objections to offer; for I have no theory to sustain only that the Word be rightly divided and interpreted. The prophet Daniel, in looking down the vista of time, writes up this world's history from the overthrow of the kingdom of Babylon until the Ancient of Days shall sit. In coming to the end of time the prophet received instructions to close the words and seal the book, the exact time of the Lord's coming not being given. Yet it is revealed in the prophet's written events,—as they transpire and terminate. In view of this and numerous other sublime prophecies, in both Old and New Testaments,

I will continue to look forward to His coming through and by this source of divine truth, knowing that the time is at hand, even at the door.

(J. E. L. says above, "I fail to see the comparison mentioned by J. E. Lent." 'J. E. L.' stated in Herald of November 23—"The unfaithful and unprepared will be taken—taken unawares . . ." The Editor does not understand that J. E. L. infers that such will be "taken away" in any sense, but rather that they will be "surprised, startled"—"taken unaware".

But by J. E. Lent's article in Herald of December 28, he apparently understood 'J. E. L.' to infer that the "unfaithful" will be taken away by the Lord.

Is there a mutual failure by these two writers to understand each other's statements?—Ed.)

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING

By E. O. STEWART

THESE are two phases of the second coming of Christ. The first phase reveals Him as a thief; the second phase reveals Him to the world. This second phase is described in Rev. 1:7 as follows: "Behold he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him." In order for those who pierced Him to see Him, they must first be raised from the dead. When Christ descends with a shout, the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we (the living in Christ) shall be caught up together with them (the dead in Christ) to meet Him in the air. 1 Thess: 4:16-17. This is His second coming as a thief. The reason His coming here is spoken of as a thief is because the thief comes at a time when he is not expected. But the church will be looking for Christ. Paul declares, "Ye, brethren, are not in darkness," that He shall come upon "you as a thief". As He comes as a thief the world will be slumbering in darkness, a good time for a thief to quietly steal his desired treasure. And this is just what Christ will do. "One shall be taken and the other left." Those who are ready and watching He takes. He doesn't come as a thief to this class. His coming as a thief is to those who are not watching.

Shortly after the church shall have been stolen away, the unclothed woman, Rev. 12, flees into the wilderness where she, like Israel of old, shall be protected from the future Pharaoh (Dragon). The two witnesses shall then stand before the god of this world, like Moses and Aaron stood before Pharaoh, King of Egypt. While these two witnesses stand before the god of this world the unclothed woman is protected by the power of God just as Israel of old was protected in the land of Goshen. The two "ascended up to heaven . . . and their enemies beheld them." Rev. 11.

Soon the 7th trumpet is sounded, the witnesses are killed by the god of this world and for three days and a half they lie in the street of that great city which is so corrupt that it is spiritually called Sodom and

(Continued on page 367, column 2)

I KNOW

(Continued from page 360)

2:7, that He may select a bride for Himself. Shall we say God is partial? Nay verily! Did not God say, "Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honour, and another unto dishonour?" Who is it in this 20th century who believes that all of the Adamic nature who will be saved will inherit immortality? If all are of the divine nature, who would be subjects for the kings to reign over? Christ would not reign over His own body, would He? Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and David are not of this royal family. David, in speaking of Christ, called Him Lord, Matthew 22:45.

Do you suppose immortal beings will be sitting around under vines and fig trees when the curse is removed? Do angels have to depend upon the food of the earth to subsist? How much less will Christ and His body?

Stop; and think of this "high calling of God in Christ Jesus", "the great Shepherd of the sheep". I know Abraham was called out from his father's house to be heir to and possess (in the future) the land of Canaan—an earthly calling, to enjoy earthly blessings. Christ and His bride's calling is an heavenly calling to be heir of all things. "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon (Abraham and David? No!) us (the children of God), that we should be called the sons of God".—1 John 3:1.

Dear ones, can you comprehend the magnitude of this heavenly calling? Do you know (If you don't, I do.) that when the resurrection, translation, and birth of the spirit occurs, they can go where they please, and have power over the elements? John 3:8. I know that no one of the saved under the different ages prior to this will be worthy to come forth in this first resurrection only the body of Christ. Here is proof: "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world (age to come, millennium), and resurrection (out) from the dead (ones left in), neither marry, nor are given in marriage".—Luke 20:35. See also Rev. 20:5, 6. Do you not see that no one shall be worthy of that world (age) to come except Christ and His bride of all that have died from Adam down to the age to come?

You may ask how I know this special heavenly calling to form this new family in Christ Jesus. Here it is: "Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest (Christ) of our profession Christ Jesus".—Heb. 3:1. Here Paul warns us to consider this matter, arguing the difference between Moses' house and Christ's house which has more honor than Moses, Heb. 3:2, 3. I know, beloved, that we must denounce the world and all manner of sin: "Ye are not of the world even as I am not of the world". I know that those in Christ are now sitting in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: "And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus." For what purpose? "That in the ages to come he (God) might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through (Abraham? No!) Christ Jesus".—Eph. 2:6, 7. No, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Daniel, and David are not in this new covenant.

New family: "Wherefore henceforth know we no man (in Christ) after the flesh". "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new".—2 Cor. 5:16, 17. Christ is the firstborn from the dead of this new family, firstborn of the spirit to die no more, Rev. 1:18, the "firstborn of every creature" of this family.

May God help us to distinguish between the two families—the earthy and the heavenly.

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING

(Continued from page 366)

Egypt, where their Lord was crucified". Their bodies are not buried, but lie in the streets in the sight of men. Why is this? Why, the report went out when Christ, "their Lord", was buried, that His disciples came and stole His body away, and reported that He had risen from the dead. And the Bible says that report is common among the Jews unto this day. The god of this world is going to make sure that no such report shall go out concerning these two witnesses. As these two witnesses prophesy, one of their prophecies must be that they shall rise after three days. The god of this world will not permit them to be buried because of this. He does not realize that he is doing something which shall cause his followers to turn against him. He just announced that he was God, and seated himself in the temple of God. 2 Thess. 2:3, 5. He has just set up an image and caused it to speak, making image-worship compulsory like the ancient king of Babylon. Here is the future Egypt. The two witnesses are killed because of their refusal to recognize him as God and would not worship the image, just as the three Hebrews of old were cast into the fiery furnace. As the two witnesses lie in the street the people of the earth send presents of congratulation to the god of this world because of his wonderful victory over the two witnesses who represent the true God. The god of this world views the same with satisfaction as he stands, the seeming conqueror of all that oppose him.

Three and one half days later the scene changes. The sign of the Son of man appears in the heavens. Awe stricken, and with fear, the kings of the earth shut their mouths. The two witnesses stand upon their feet. A voice is heard, saying, "Come up here," and they ascend up to heaven and their enemies behold them. Rev. 11.

Soon the seventh trumpet reveals Christ to the kings of the earth, when they shout to the rocks and mountains to hide them. This is the time when He shall come with clouds and every eye shall see Him, and they which pierced Him, and all kindreds of the earth shall wail

(Concluded on page 368, column 2)

LESSONS ON WASHINGTON CONGRESS

THE American Jewish congress held its Washington session February 20 and gave an excellent account of itself as an enterprise reflecting the strength and ideals of the articulate, progressive groups in American Jewish life. The American Jewish Congress is practically the only general Jewish body in America which offers a free platform for the interchange of views on important Jewish problems. This session registered the feeling of indignation of American Jewry with regard to the unfair treatment accorded Jews by the Roumanian Government, which maintains its traditional, treacherous attitude toward its Jewish citizens, and which, under the treaty which placed within its sovereignty the Jews of Transylvania and Bessarabia, now contains millions of Jews. It gave expression to views with regard to the restriction of immigration, which deserve and will have commendation and approval from all sections of American Jewry. It sanctioned the reorganization of the Committee of Jewish Delegations, and agreed to finance the enterprise and to send an American delegation to attend a Conference on Jewish Rights during the coming summer. It gave a place on its platform to Senator Owen and to Senator Borah, who prefaced a brilliant discussion of American foreign policy with highly important words of encouragement for the Zionist movement. The remarks of Senator Borah were occasioned by a remarkably effective address by Dr. Weizmann, who preceded him and who analyzed the Jewish situation in an impressive and convincing manner. This session of the Congress, as during previous sessions, was dominated by the personality of Dr. Stephen S. Wise, whose leadership gives the Congress dignity and resonance.

SENATOR BORAH SAYS:

"... 'Without firing a shot.' That was a magnificent sentence to be interpolated in the great cause for which Dr. Weizmann spoke. It was characteristic of the speaker and of the race for which he spoke. The Zionist movement is one of the most thrilling incidents in the whole history of the world: A race which has honored and helped to build every civilization under the sun now seeking to establish a home for itself! It is a stupendous enterprise, worthy of the vision, the intellectual power and the moral courage of the people for whom it is presented, and I trust sincerely that it will be the success that has been prophesied here to-night." —From an Address Before the American Jewish Congress.

DIRECTOR OF PALESTINE ANTIQUITIES

THE British Colonial Office has asked for applications for the position of director of Antiquities in Palestine, and has announced that candidates may apply up to March 15, according to a despatch from London to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. The duties of the Director include the administration of the Department of Antiquities and the Government museum; the supervision of excavations conducted by non-official persons and bodies, and the conservation of historical monuments in the territory.

REMAKING PEOPLE AND LAND

"THE building of a National Home takes us into all manner of paths. We have to change people's nature; (to convert city psychology into farm sense is harder than a merely material transformation. We have to plant oranges on sand dunes, and erect schools on former marshes. We have, it appears, even to alter the physical feature of the country; to change the course of rivers as well as to clothe denuded hill sides. The work now proceeding to regulate the direction of the Bible-known River Kishon is of absorbing interest. It is part of the reclamation scheme being executed by the Keren Kayemeth to prepare the ground for colonization by the Keren Hayesod. This ancient river has a most uneven bed. Not only does it wind awkwardly across the Esdraelon plain, but it is far from level. Hence when, in summer, the sources dry up, pools of water remain stagnant in the depressed parts. These pools, of course, breed malarial mosquitoes. The engineers' task is now to cut channels through the high ground which blocks the water flow and to remove the grasses which impede the stream. To drain off the water from the lowest depressions suction pipes will draw it to wells dug on the bank, one well opposite each hollow. This water will mean a double gain, for it will be used for irrigation purposes. In our own days Jews will be able to point to greater changes on the face of Palestine than it endured for hundreds of generations."—Elias M. Epstein, in The New Palestine.

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING

(Continued from page 367)

because of Him. This is when He comes with ten thousands of His saints to execute judgment. Jude 15. It is then that the saints shall judge the world. 1 Cor. 6:2.

It is after He comes with His saints that all nations are gathered before Him and He separates them. The saints (the church) help Him in the work of separating and judging the nations. This looks to me as though it would convince anyone that the sheep spoken of in Matthew 25:32 are not the church. If they are you can surely see that there will be just two classes, namely, sheep and goats. If the sheep are the church, and the church is to reign with Christ over the nations, how, in reason's name, can you find any nation for them to reign over, seeing that there are none left but sheep after the goats are destroyed? Now I believe you see this. If you can't I would like to see someone who could make it plain. Explain fully how the sheep spoken of in Matt. 25 can be the church if 1 Thess. 4:16-18 and Jude 15 are to have any place in the Scriptures.—The Coming Age Herald.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 16

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 15, 1927

NUMBER 24

THE LIGHT OF A PERFECT DAY

BY SAMUEL E. HANEY

Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John 8:12.

ONE-HALF of our natural lives is spent in artificial light and unconscious slumber. But Christ's finished work will prove Him to be the spiritual light penetrating and illuminating the mind and soul of every person dwelling on this planet, in spite of the fact that today this Divine Light is an infinitesimal quantity.

All of God's special blessings are distributed conditionally and discriminately. David says, "Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart": simply by conforming to God's requirements. Job's description of man's dark, wearisome journey in this wilderness of sin: "Are not my days few? cease then, and let me alone, that I may take comfort a little, before I go whence I shall not return, even to the land of darkness, and the shadow of death (Job will 'return' under another regime); a land of darkness, as darkness itself; and of the shadow of death, without any order, and where the light is as darkness."—Job 10:20-22.

Isaiah's prophecies (42:6; 49:6) of Christ as the light are quoted in the New Testament, "A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel."—Luke 2:32. "For so hath He set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth."—Acts 13:47.

For a time the light was confined to the house of Israel; Jesus commanded His disciples to avoid the Gentiles, "but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Matt. 10:5, 6. But in due time it was given officially (by Peter to Cornelius) to the Gentiles—all qualifying, irrespective of color or nationality. Paul said, "For he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh: but he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God."—Rom. 2:28, 29. See Rev. 2:9. Here we find the Lord and Paul spiritualizing the law; placing the Jew where he belongs under the new covenant during the Gospel dispensation; making Egypt a type of Babylon; and the "house of Israel" a type of spiritual Israel—Christians.

With these thoughts in mind, is not the following very significant? "And the Lord said unto Moses, stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hand, toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days: they saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings."—Ex. 10:21-23.

Modern "Egypt"—Babylon—is well described by Zephaniah, "That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble, and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness. . . . And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the Lord: and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as the dung."—Zeph. 1:15-18.

These terrible divine predictions, though now in an incipient stage, are in evidence throughout the world.

What is the consecrated Christian's duty under these circumstances? Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid."—Matt. 5:14. And again He said, "As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world."—John 9:5. Thus He turns over the luminous work to His disciples all through the present age. Paul said, "That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation (age, generation, time—Strong's), among whom ye shine as light (luminaries Emph. Diag.) in the world."—Phil. 2:15. "For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light."—Eph. 5:8.

Christ's epitome is, "And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be manifest, that they are wrought in God."—John 3:19-21.

Light is sure to engender antipathy, "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you."—Jesus, in John 15:18, 19.

Why this hatred? Light! Because the world is nocturnal while the faithful disciples are luminous. It is difficult to get a rat or a bat out into the sunlight. According to Christ's teachings and example, harmony between light and darkness is as impossible in the spiritual as it is in the physical world.

We see by the foregoing that letting our light shine—at all times—is not a matter of choice, but an incumbency, which if shirked will cause spiritual deterioration.

But why is the Light so unpopular, even among confessing Christians these days? The price! For the price of allowing this light to shine increases as the daily increase of temptations weakens the resisting power. And many after receiving it, finding the price of retention so high, and its engrossment on their pleasures and comforts, allow cataracts to grow over their spiritual vision.

By allowing our lights to shine continuously—which is one way of preaching the Gospel—the world will consider the space we take up preferable to our presence. This is the point at which many "walk no more with him"—join the nominal class. The baptismal "fire" becomes too warm for the "old man". Luke 3:16; 12:49-53.

Christendom, professing Christianity, prefers obscene moving pictures, the "fox trot" and the "charleston" to that of listening to or contemplating the WAY of life through Jesus Christ who is the Light of the world; and the only WAY of life.

We cannot occupy a place on our Master's throne unless we emulate Him in "overcoming". And to accomplish this we must go forth, and suffer with Him without the camp—bearing His reproach. Rev. 3:31; Heb. 13:12-13. This means much on these troubled waters. But, like the mariner in a heavy mist, we must keep our foghorn tooting, not for personal safety only; for that would be selfish, but to warn our drowsy brethren, that they may escape participation in the imminent, awful condition that John saw—men striving to hide themselves in dens, and beneath rocks and mountains to avoid the face and wrath of the Lord. Rev. 6:15, 16.

Did Job prophetically see this vision? "There is no darkness, nor shadow of death, where the workers of iniquity hide themselves."—Job 34:22.

But, thank God, John saw another vision! "And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the Light thereof. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light; and they shall reign for ever and ever."—Rev. 21:23; 22:5.

The Editorial Page has some suggestions to Herald writers.

HOW CAME I HERE, AND WHY?

THE INFIDEL'S SCIENCE

By Lyman Booth

ELLA Wheeler Wilcox, in the Inter Ocean, under date of February 29, 1899 gave to the world the following poem.

*I know not whence I came,
I know not whither I go,
But the fact stands clear
That I am here
In this world of pleasure and woe;
And out of the mist and murk
Another truth shines plain—
It is in my power
Each day and hour
To add to its joy and pain.*

*I know that the earth exists,
It is none of my business why,
I can not find out
What it's all about—
I would but waste time to try.
My life is a brief, brief thing;
I am here for a little space,
And while I stay
I would like, if I may,
To brighten and better the place.*

*The trouble, I think, with us all
Is the lack of a high conceit;
If each man thought
He was sent to the spot
To make it a bit more sweet,
How soon we would gladden the world,
How easily right all wrong,
If nobody shirked
And each one worked
To help his fellows along.*

*Cease wondering why you came,
Stop looking for faults and flaws,
Rise up to-day
In your pride and say:
"I am part of the first great cause,
However full of the world,
There is room for an honest man;
It had need of me
Or I would not be—
I am here to strengthen the plan."*

The gifted and talented authoress has given us much of cheer and comfort in the above lines; yet, without giving us a definite answer as to how and why came I here.

This query has baffled the wisdom and knowledge of the wise men and philosophers of all nations. The learning of Greece and Rome never answered it. Heathen mythology is silent as to the voiceless tomb, and evolutionists, such as Darwin, Huxley, and Spencer searched diligently for many years without arriving at a satisfactory solution of the problem of life. Atheists are as much in the dark as ever, and infidelity still denies with vehemence that there exists an all-wise, all-powerful, creative and sustaining power. There are many scientific men who accept the vague theories and guess-work of a few leaders, most of whom disagree among themselves. There are other men equally as scientific, and equally as logical, who see nothing but folly in all man-made, fine-spun theories.

A widely accepted theory is, that this world was once an immense body of "fire mist," hotter than oyster-soup or anything of which we have any just conception, that in the course of ages it has cooled, condensed and solidified so that we can walk on it without burning our feet. This is called science, by some, and so described by Alexander Winchell, Professor of Geology in the university of Michigan. On the other hand, another scientific man teaches that instead of the "fire mist," the world began in exactly the reverse condition, one of extreme cold, and that it gradually began to heat till it became capable of sustaining life, and that it is gradually getting hotter and will continue till bye and bye it will become too warm for Sunday School banquets.

The Hindu says the world was hatched out of an egg; the Chinaman tells us that it was hewed out of granite; while the Grecian philosophers talk of a fortuitous concourse of atoms; and other modern speculators talk of Nature, Force, Law, Hot-mist, Exereme cold, Monad and Mud. No theme has more, or greater attractions for the average skeptic than the various theories concerning the manufacture of worlds without the help of an Almighty Creator. Some claim that it all happened by chance; but they fail to tell us how it happened to happen. Still those same men dislike to venture on a blind chance. They would prefer to walk than take passage on a train which was run without a time card, conductor or engineer. Talk about the world being run by chance! If it were, those same people would want to get off. They would be be frightened worse than a darkey in a graveyard at the hour of mid-night.

The Egyptians once boasted of their greatness, of their wisdom and knowledge but have left no reasonable account of the creation more satisfactory than those advanced by our modern scientists. But in their king's palace one of lowly estate was reared who proclaimed the glory of the Eternal God, whom he worshiped as the Supreme Creator.

Our modern skeptical friends say Moses was mistaken. They say they believe in "the survival of the fittest." So did Moses. I believe the fittest has survived. The God of Israel who was worshiped then is worshiped now. And to Him, in every land and among the purest and noblest people, every day, from that time to this, has ascended praise, thanksgiving and supplication. But where are the Egyptian's magnificent temples? Where is their culture, where are their sacred serpents, holy hawks, consecrated crocodiles, monkeys, and cats? Where are the gods of Egypt and of other nations? Lost in oblivion, cast to the moles and bats, mutilated, battered, crushed and burried in the ruins of their own temples, while Moses' God still survives.

Moses said, "In the beginning God created heaven and earth." Others say that He did no such thing, that there

(Continued on page 383)

JESUS CHRIST—WHO IS HE?

No. 19

By R. H. Judd

The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound; to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord . . .—Isa. 61:1-2.

RECENTLY a correspondent in the "Toronto Globe" made the surprising statement that "It is not our business to analyze, but to accept what the Scriptures teach." One can readily understand that such a declaration will find wide concurrence because of the seeming loyalty it expresses for the Scriptures. The real question is, however, if blind acceptance of any statement can in the best sense be considered as honoring the One who made it. Loyalty of that kind does not generally result in a robust or an intelligent faith. It is perfectly true that we are called upon to accept what the Scriptures teach, but thank God there is another fact that is equally true. God Himself does call upon us to "reason together" with Him, and no faith in God's Word is ever made the weaker because of reverent and careful analysis. We get a splendid illustration of this in the verse heading this paper. The wording is sublime, and meditative consideration of the meaning of its various parts, first separately, then collectively cannot be otherwise than invigorating.

The message is put into the mouth of the Messiah by Isaiah the prophet, and the deep reverence of the speaker is apparent at the very outset. Twice in the same sentence does he seek to draw attention to the greatness of the One of whom he speaks by pointed reference to Him by name, thus incidentally showing his own identity to be distinct from and dependent upon the One to whom he thus pays fitting tribute. In other words, he seems to say, "The works that I do are not mine, but His."—"the Spirit of the Lord God is upon me"—"the Lord hath anointed me"—"He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted." Doing the works of God by the power of the Spirit of God, He, unlike the first Adam, rejected the temptation "to be as God" (see Gen. 3:5, R. V.)—"he considered it not a thing to be grasped to be equal with God, but made himself of no reputation."

We may sometimes be asked what proofs we have of the Messiahship of Jesus the Christ. We would reply that we have much here in the fulfillment of this very verse. Of what other prophet of God could it be said that God had anointed him for the purpose of preaching "good tidings to the poor"? (See margin.) Were not the messages of those who had gone before the Christ largely messages of denunciation and of warning against the rich and those who had misapplied the blessings of God? Note the contrast. The Messiah was to preach "good tidings", and that "to the poor". The question then comes, "Did He?" Christianity deals with facts, so again we ask, "Did He?"

One has but to read the simple stories of His life by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John to be convinced that He did. Again and again and again is the record made that "great multitudes followed him"; and it is distinctly stated that "the common people heard him gladly". No man ever had such audiences because no man ever had such a message—a message of life to dying men. Take the next—"He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted". Here the reader will find a reference to Psalm 147: 3—"He healeth the broken in heart and bindeth up their wounds", margin, "grief". Then call to mind that "he was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief". Little or nothing is known of nearly twenty years of the life of our Lord, but it is significant that that period of His life was spent in the district which had gained the unenviable reputation of being "the land of the shadow of death—Galilee of the nations." Twenty years is no small portion in molding the life of any man. The circumstances that will harden most lives will draw out the sympathy of others, and "acquaintance with grief" can be made either a millstone of despair to one's self, or through God a means of practical compassion for others. We all know how the sorrows of others touched the heart of the Lord Jesus as shown in the cases of Mary and Martha, the widow of Nain, yes, and even the thief on the cross.

But we are not yet done with that wonderful verse. The next commission given to the Messiah is "to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound". The full significance of the first part of this statement can hardly be understood without a careful reading of Exodus 21 and Jeremiah 34, wherein is depicted the departure of the children of Israel from Jehovah's law of liberty for every man and every woman in servile bondage to his fellow-man. With regard to the latter part we notice that two possible renderings are given in the Revised Version, and that although the revisers have relegated to the margin the words "the opening of the eyes" and have retained in the text the words "of the prison", they have been careful to put the latter phrase in italics. Surely this would tend to show that there is indicated here relief from mental and spiritual bondage as well as from the physical bondage of the oppressor. It is well known that when reading this passage in the synagogue at Nazareth, our Lord did not read further than the words, "to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord." He had not come then to proclaim "the day of vengeance of our God". Reference to the margin of this second verse will give us a reading which is full of interest, viz., "the year of Jehovah's good pleasure", and if the reader will turn back to Leviticus 25:9, he will there find abundant reason for and a very satisfying explanation of such a happy consummation as "the year of the Lord's good pleasure", for there atonement and liberty are ordained of Him.

Some two or three important passages still remain for the consideration of the Old Testament portion of our study. To the writer the study has been one of helpful interest, and he earnestly hopes that it has been the same to the reader. The writer wishes to warmly thank those who have so kindly expressed appreciation of these articles, and have also intimated desire for their issue in more permanent form. All that can be said at present is, that the matter is being considered. Further expression of opinion would be appreciated. The passages yet to be considered are Jeremiah 23:5, 6; Dan. 9:26; and Micah 5:3. It will be almost impossible to go through the New Testament in quite the same manner, for the task would be too great and the interest of the reader would not be sustained. The study of the living Christ should be of greater interest than of One not yet come to the sons of men, interesting as that has been. Nothing, however, approaches so closely to the hearts of men and women as the living, throbbing personality of One who has actually lived, actually died, and now actually lives again on their behalf. No story of man can ever touch it for sublimity, for no man has ever done what has been done by Him to whom God gave the Spirit without measure.

Grafton, Ontario.

"THE COMING OF THE LORD DRAWETH NIGH"

James 5:8

By Grover Gordon

GO TO now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire."—James 5:1-3.

By the next statement you will find this condition to exist in the last days: "Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days".—James 5:3. This scripture has always been applied to the struggle between capital and labor, but the mistake in that is failure to note that James speaks of a certain class of labor. "Behold, the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields (farmers), which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of sabaoth (hosts). Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you".—5:4-6.

The cry for farm relief which has been going out for the past six or seven years is a fulfillment of this scripture. This cry has reached as high as the head of this nation, and he has vetoed it. James says it will reach the ears of the Lord, which is the only relief to be had. "Be patient therefore, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." James 5:7, 8.

James tells us how we may be prepared for that day in the remaining verses of the chapter.

FUNDAMENTALISM VERSUS MODERNISM

By Charles W. Howe

IN Mark 1:27 we read words spoken by the people of Capernaum who had been listening to the teachings of Jesus and had just witnessed a great miracle which He had performed. They asked, "What thing is this? what new doctrine is this?" Their question suggests two thoughts: first, that a doubt is always cast over that which is considered to be new: and, second, that the old ground which seems to be true from its long acceptance may not be the pinnacle of truth. That which was thought to be new was true, in this case, and the old viewpoint fell short as far as truth was concerned.

This attitude of the Jews was not at all unique; for there has ever been a constant controversy between the conservative and the progressive elements of the religious world. Christ was not the first to gain the disapproval of those who wished to let well enough alone. When He spoke to His disciples of the persecution which they must needs endure, He said, Matt. 5:12, "For so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Even Noah, that "preacher of righteousness," fell under the fan of the conservatives of his day by preaching something new. So, in this regard, Christ was no exception to His predecessors. By preaching that which did not appeal to the conservative class of His day, He received the same disapproval as they who had gone before.

Since the time of Christ the old controversy has continued. The reformers who preached against the irregularities of the Catholic Church received the anathema for their pains. The Baptists, when they came out of the Church of England in the seventeenth century, were persecuted because of their dissension. It was because of this persecution that they were forced to make public in 1660 their creed which was so much like our own faith. The persecution of the Quakers by the Puritans is another evidence of the conservative element and its attitude toward the ones who felt that they had found some new truth.

To-day we see the same attitude in evidence. We see it when we show our conservative friends, of other sects, our difference of viewpoint. Sometimes, I fear, it is seen when we try to show one another, what seems to be some newly recognized truth. It is seen, very clearly defined, throughout the width and breadth of the land in what is called Fundamentalist-Modernist controversy.

With a controversy of such magnitude going on all about us, we naturally wonder which side we should take, or if we should take part on either side. In most of the churches the membership is actively engaged on one side or the other. We have even heard some of our own faith take side with the Fundamentalists. We have also heard some call themselves modernists because they objected to the ultra-conservative methods of the other party. Of course one has the privilege of thinking as he pleases, but we wish to raise the question, Is either position consistent with truth.

Are you a Fundamentalist, brother? I doubt if you really are in spite of your claims. Just because you may accept the fundamentalist position concerning creation or concerning the miraculous conception you are not necessarily, therefore, a fundamentalist. True, you both have fundamentals, but are not your fundamentals different, on the whole, from theirs? What if you should tell them your conception of truth? Would it not brand you as a modernist among them? For instance, although the Bible teaching does not include a hell of eternal torment, an immortal soul, or the deity of our Savior, yet an open assertion concerning the doctrines of Scripture origin as here suggested would be enough to brand one as being of dangerous, modernistic tendencies.

Fundamentalism is the modern name for the conservative element which has, throughout all ages, hindered the progress of truth. Perhaps this has been done unwittingly through a great zeal to protect what was considered as truth from the inroads of its enemies. The Pharisees of the Jews were the fundamentalists of their day. Their fundamentalism led them to reject and crucify their anointed King. The Roman Catholics were fundamentalists of another kind. In their fundamentalism they burned heretics at the stake and did all in their power to prevent the Reformation, thinking it to be the introduction of some new doctrine and practice. To-day the Orthodox Protestant Fundamentalist is striving to check the search for truth by the same old weapon, excommunication.

As for the Modernist, be his position true or false, he has this much in his favor: he, at least, makes room for advancement. From the same standpoint even infidels have, perhaps, unwittingly befriended the truth. In their open opposition to the old conservative element, they have weakened their erroneous positions to the ex-

(Continued on page 376)

The writer of this article leads pleasingly up to and concludes with truth that should be fundamental to all in these modern times. He does not ally himself with either of the schools of his theme, but urges the followers of Christ to persevere in searching for the truth of God which is fundamental at all times—from ancient to modern days.

The points should be well taken.—Editor.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

LIFE

THIS AND OTHER continents have been aroused because of the extraordinary effort and accomplishment in maintaining life in one Albert Frick, of Chicago, from Sunday, March 6, to Thursday, March 10, 108 hours, by artificial breathing. He was attacked by Landry's disease, a form of paralysis which paralyzed the breathing muscles, making it impossible for him to breathe of his own volition. Artificial respiration maintained life during this period of 108 hours.

Scientists, both medical and other, have expressed many scientific ideas relative to the case and relative to life itself. After recognizing the high ideals and the noble efforts of both science and comrade in this effort to sustain life for a fellow-man, it seems more than ever convincing that science owes it to God, the Maker, to acknowledge Him as the one great life-giving force. Seemingly every minutia of the organism has been studied and explored in man's effort to reach the depths of existence and life. And yet it is discovered that with the failure even of some of the least organs or muscles to function, life can but cease.

Truly life is beyond the power and ability of man to produce or to sustain.

* * * *

C. O. D.

"COLLECT ON DELIVERY" is a very good rule not only in business, but in all of the affairs of life. It is not altogether displeasing for certain ones who have abundantly established credit to collect even previous to delivery, but as a usual thing few people care to pay for goods before they are delivered in good order.

The same is true with reference to Christian effort. God has required that an individual shall deliver himself in good, faithful, Christian condition and development before He will pay him the price or the reward that is offered. That is, God does not first remunerate the Christian with immortality, after which requiring that the Christian shall deliver to Him the essential preparatory development. Rather, He asks the Christian to consecrate, give, bestow, fully, thoroughly, and after such delivery he receives, collect from God, the great reward of immortality.

The same thing is undoubtedly true with reference to the church, to the evangelist, to any worker. Before the church can expect to collect from the community a hearty response and cooperation in the work of the church, the church must deliver largely, abundantly, and attractively, those things which the church has to present to the community. The evangelist or pastor also cannot expect to collect either approval or finances from his fields of labor excepting he shall first deliver Christian goods to those people in quality and quantity worthy of the collection which he expects to receive.

C. O. D. is good. Collecting ahead of delivery seldom works.

* * * *

A VISIT WITH CHURCHES

WE HOPE to plan the work so that the writer, F. L. Austin, may be able to visit several of the churches and districts, beginning next month. Several requests for services have been received which will take us southwardly, westwardly, and northwardly. If there are still other churches in these directions which would care to have me call when taking such trip, it may be possible to arrange date for same if request is received soon.

* * * *

SUGGESTIONS TO HERALD WRITERS

THE HERALD is deeply grateful to all of its many literary contributors for their faithful services in writing articles for its columns. It is regrettable that the hearty thanks of The Herald and its readers is the only remuneration possible for this service.

Much of the manuscript comes well and legibly written, requiring very little time to prepare it for the typesetter. Perhaps some of our writers could readily aid the office by observing the following simple rules:

Write plainly;

Always space lines well apart;

Typewriter copy should always be double spaced; handwriting, wider still;

Always have a full inch of margin all around the page;

If convenient use paper of the regular letter-head size—about 8½ inches by 11 inches; but Never use paper wider than 9 inches; nor longer than

(Continued on page 383, column 1)

—o—

HERALD RECEIPTS

J. H. Willey; Elizabeth Lent; Mrs. Geo. W. Johnston; Mrs. Jessie W. Donaldson; Mrs. John Crysler; I. M. Abbott; Al Cordill; Amos Osborn; Willis J. Conable; Mrs. Carl Stuhler; C. V. Hutchings; Mrs. D. F. Gainey; Mrs. A. J. Chaplin; Mrs. Mary J. Calkins; Mrs. Laura Pentland; Mrs. Mary A. Chapman; Mary McRae; E. Howard.

* * * *

HELPING FUND

J. H. Willey	$3.00
Miss S. H. Michell	3.00
Mrs. Emma C. Railsback	1.00
I. M. Abbott	10.00

National Berean Department

H. E. Siple, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lydia Railsback, Pres.
621 S. Fellows Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Idona Romine, Cor. Sec.
1506 South High Street
South Bend, Indiana

Mrs. Emma Garard, Treas.
714 S. Broadway
Dayton, Ohio

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

TITHING WAS GOD'S PLAN FOR MAN. THAT MEANS ONE-TENTH OF YOUR NET INCOME. HAVE YOU A BETTER PLAN?

THE Berean editor is very happy to note a marked increase in the interest in the Berean Department the past few weeks. Items, articles, and questions have been coming in nicely. Keep it up.

* * * *

Don't forget that now is the time to order the Sunday School quarterlies for the second quarter of 1927. See the announcement in Herald and send in your order before it is too late.

* * * *

DEAR BEREANS: I note with interest your department in The Restitution Herald. I would like to express a few thoughts on Lesson 67, Assurance—firm persuasion, full confidence.

Yes, it must be full persuasion. Almost was not enough when Paul asked King Agrippa if he believed, the prophets. Paul's reply was, "I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, . . ."—Acts 26:28-29.

Paul was so fully persuaded, Rom. 8:38-39, "that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Yet, with all this confidence we can not say we are saved. When a certain ruler asked Jesus, saying, "Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Jesus replied, "Why callest thou me good? none is good, save one, that is, God."—Luke 18:18-19. We cannot say we are saved in our mortal condition (and can only receive immortality at the resurrection of the just) but we do have confidence, and assurance that there is a crown of righteousness laid up for us if we finish our course, and fight the good fight of faith to the end.

In Genesis 17:1 God appeared to Abram and said, "I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect." In Matt. 5:48 Jesus said, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." Abraham was asked to walk before God and be perfect before he received the covenant of promise. It should be the hope of the Christian to attain to that perfection when he receives his reward.

As obedient children, we should not fashion ourselves according to lusts, but "as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation; because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy."—I Peter 1:15-16.

*"Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine,
O, what a foretaste of glory divine!
Heir of salvation, purchase of God,
Born of the Spirit, washed in His blood."*

It is this blessed assurance and whole-hearted confidence in the promises of God that strengthens our faith and helps us to grow in grace and in knowledge of the truth.

Sarah Manuwal.

* * * *

LOVE

LOVE IS one of the most essential things that a Christian should have.

In Matthew 22:35-40 Christ was asked which was the great commandment in the law. His answer was, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." By this we can see that if we follow the teachings of Christ we must have love for God and our fellow-men.

The reason that God sacrificed His Son was because of the love He had for the world, and we should, to the best of our ability, return this love by obeying His commandments.

Jesus, while eating the last supper with His disciples, said unto them, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this all men shall know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

If all men knew they were Christ's disciples because of the love they had for one another, why, then, can not we have the same kind of Christian love for one another and be His disciples also?

There are many ways by which we can show our love for our fellow-men, but the question may some time arise as to what is the greatest way in which we can show our love to our friends. In John 15:13 we have the words of Jesus as follows: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Thus, we can see that this is the greatest love that we could have and while it is improbable that any of us will have to show this kind of love, we should keep in mind the fact that Jesus gave His life for us because He loved us.

Harry Goekler.

FUNDAMENTALISM VERSUS MODERNISM

(Continued from page 373)

tent that men have begun to think for themselves. It may seem strange, but the doubt must always be raised, else the old rut, with all its errors, is forever trod. For instance, if Martin Luther and others had never doubted the teachings and objected to the practices of the Roman Church, the world would still be in Catholicism. Although doubt must be raised if progress is to come, a note of warning might well be sounded at this point. Doubters often go astray and turn from truth altogether. They fall down because they doubt negatively. They doubt and reject and build nothing in place of the old ruins. Doubts will often force themselves on the mind. It cannot be helped, especially if one is seeking for truth instead of placidly following a cut and dried creed. When one doubts it should be constructively, that is, to seek out truth and to build up truth in the stead of error. If one should be called a modernist from this standpoint, because he is reaching out after truth, well and good. We fear, however, that those accused of being modernists are destructive rather than constructive in their attitude. Such an attitude should meet our disapproval even as we disapprove of the ultra-conservative position.

Where, then, should the follower of truth stand regarding this great controversy? Should he not even be progressive regarding his search for truth? Yes, indeed, the truth which was buried under the darkness of Papal superstition must be uncovered. One might be inclined to think that to be progressive he must ally himself to the modern thought of the age. This is not only unnecessary, but well nigh impossible, considering truth as a whole. How can one count himself in a class where, too often, much error is retained and but little truth gained, or, worse yet, one error exchanged for another? And so, modernly speaking, the progressive truth seeker of to-day should be placed in a class by himself. He is not an adherent of this "ism" or that "ism", but of the Word of God.

A great objection to the term modernist, as applied to the progressive truth seeker of to-day, is that true religion and true doctrine are not modern. It is not the product of recent generations. It did not originate in the days of the Reformation, nor in the Roman Church. The truth seeker does not go to the doctrines of any church whether Protestant or Catholic, nor to the conclusions of any church council held since New Testament times to find what God's revealed truth is. True religion is ancient rather than modern. Moses and the prophets spoke concerning things which eventually came to pass in the sacrifice of Christ which made the old faith a great reality. And these men lived a long time ago. Christ, Himself, was the Cornerstone of the church and the foundation of all true Christianity. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Christ Jesus."—1 Cor. 3:11. Jesus was not modern, but lived in ancient times. We read of Him, "the Truth", and of all truth of God in the Bible. Truth can be found nowhere else. The Bible is an ancient Book. This is the source of information to which one must go in his search after truth.

The conclusion of the whole matter is this: When we find previously unknown truths revealed in the Bible, we have found nothing new, but have simply rediscovered one of the ancient ruins, as it were, which had once been evident to all beholders, but which had been buried deep under the superstition and erroneous doctrines of the middle ages. And so, when we present to others, what seems to be a new doctrine, if we have builded truly on God's word, we have in reality presented something old. We cannot accept the fundamentalism of the fundamentalists, nor can we take all the modernism of the modernists as our foundation, but we can take as our foundation the old, and yet ever new, Word of God. And so, neither a fundamentalist nor a modernist, the true follower of Christ ever goes back to the fountain head of revealed truth and from it endeavors to show himself approved, "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

The Editorial Page has some suggestions to Herald writers.

"HOUSE"

By The Editor

THE word "house" as found in 2 Corinthians 5:1, and which text is a part of the Sunday School lesson for March 20, is used in different ways in the New Testament and is, therefore, a word of difficult understanding. Its primary meaning is, a building for housing people, animals, or things; a shelter. From this primary meaning is derived a secondary meaning which refers to the family occupying, or sheltered by, the building. From this secondary meaning is derived also still another meaning which refers to the family of any given ancestry, like "the house of David," the house of God. Some of these derived meanings are indicated by a slightly different termination of the word. The word as used in 2 Cor. 5:1 differs much from that used in the second verse; the two words are in contrast. The second one is found in the New Testament only in this place and in Jude 6 where the English word is "habitation." The house which is from heaven is in contrast with the "earthly house" "made with hands" of verse 1. This phrase, "made with hands," perhaps gives us the key that defines the meaning of the word as used.

The Greek word "not-made-with-hands," 2 Cor. 5:1, is the negative of the same Greek word, "made-with-hands" in Mark 14:58 and Col. 2:11. It is contrasted with something that is "made with hands." The word "hand" is, in each instance, the same word as the word "hand" in Acts 7:25, 35, 41 and elsewhere. "By the hand of the angel," Acts 7:35, is evidently an expression indicat-

WITH OUR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

LESSON XIII.—March 27.

REVIEW: STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

Devotional Reading: Revelation 7:9-17.

GOLDEN TEXT.

If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments.—John 14:15, S. R. V.

ing that it was by the agency of the angel. Frequently "hand" is used with this meaning, that is, the meaning of agency—the agency of man, the agency of Moses, the agency of the angel. It is further evident that "hand" in 2 Cor. 5:1 has a similar meaning. "House not made with hands" evidently means a house not of the agency of man; man is not an agent in its construction. It is a house directly the workmanship of God.

It is further evident that the word "house" in 2 Cor. 5:1 refers to the mortal body of man. While it is true that God is the Creator of man, it is further true that in every instance He is using man as the agent in the production of these our mortal bodies—they are made by hand, by man. Paul is promising to the Christian another structure or house or body, one that shall not be the product in any sense of human agency or even of such angelic agency as God may have used in the construction of Adam, but that this new house or existence shall be the resurrection house or body which, Paul assures, is directly the work of God.

This same thought is given by the Savior relative to Himself in Mark 14:58, where Jesus says, "I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands." It is evident here that He is referring to the temple of His mortal existence, made by the agency of man, but that the new temple following His crucifixion would be His resurrected body made entirely of God without the agency of man, that is, of "hands."

