OCTOBER—RALLY MONTH

“Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. Let all your things be done with charity.”— 1 Cor. 16:13, 14.

OCTOBER HAS DAWNED. It is that month when, in the northern clime, the leaves take on their multi-colored hue, old nature preparing to enfold herself in the drapery of winter and rest. At this season of the year the spirit of the Church of God seems to incline more and more into a Rally effort. Each year the sentiment is stronger in this direction. It is strongly suggested that October be a Rally Month for the whole church, that not only the Sunday School but every phase of church work shall be prosecuted the fullest possible. We suggest that evangelistic efforts be put forth this month with all possible strength.

The Christian church is the one agency of the Father in this present day through which He is proclaiming the gospel of salvation to a dying world. The world is rapidly approaching the great change that will take place at the coming of our Lord. May then the church be strong in the Lord; may it “quit” itself fully and be true to its calling.

To this end we urge that October be used in every possible way to arouse the indifferent members of the church, to awaken new vision of God's truth, to create new ideals of service, and that with this Rally of devotion and Christian spirit the church everywhere will press its work and its influence among the people.

Let us Rally, not with the thought of a temporary arousing, but with the thought of holding the gain that may be made and with this increased strength to accomplish more for our Lord by our service to the people for whom He died.

DANIEL PRAYED

AND I SET MY face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes: and I prayed unto the Lord my God, and made my confession, and said, O Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments; we have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments: neither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land."—Dan. 9:3-6.

—o—

A PECULIAR PEOPLE

WHO GAVE HIMSELF for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works." Titus 2:14.

Christians are of all people peculiar. They are peculiar in their zeal toward God; they are peculiar in their trust in God; they are peculiar in that, having voluntarily come out from among the people, their aims, activities and devotions are such that the people cannot understand them. With Paul in his letter to the Corinthians, the things which Christians visualize and to the accomplishment of which they consecrate life, are foolish unto the non-Christian as are also the Christians themselves.

Just these things are those which the Father looks for in the Christian. The Christian is called to deny "ungodliness and worldly lusts". He is called to "live soberly, righteously, in this present evil world".

Thus the Christian stands for something altogether different from what the non-Christian world stands. In the accomplishment of his ideals he lends himself with all the enthusiasm and strength of his being. The Christian has the highest aim in all the world. His is a life of greatest activity, a life of most continuous perseverance, a life dedicated with all of his abilities. These are things that make him peculiar.

For such Christ gave Himself "that he might redeem us from all iniquity". The great accomplishments of Christ necessitate these peculiar people in accordance with Him. It is in this sense that the apostle speaks of them as being peculiar. Let no one confuse the meaning of that word "peculiar" by applying it to some little unimportant characteristic of self. Such is not the meaning in which the word is used in this beautiful text.

Let us provoke ourselves unto love and good works. Let us see to it that the position which we severally hold in God's church is well served and the work well done. Let us awake in the light of faith in the strength of God's Spirit and "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus". May zeal for Christ, zeal for truth, zeal for faith, characterize each one before the world.

"THAT THE DEAD ARE RAISED"

NOW THAT THE DEAD are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him."—Luke 20:37, 38.

So important is the truth of the resurrection of the dead that Jesus paused before the ears of the Sadducees who denied that there would be a resurrection and assured them of its great truth, quoting God's words to Moses at the burning bush. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were dead. For centuries Abraham had been in the grave when Moses appeared before God. Jesus said to the Sadducees that God's statement to Moses was proof that the dead would be raised: "That the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob . . . for all live unto him". Death has no power to annihilate from God's hand. Not one but whom God has power to raise. Those patriarchs had long since gone back to the ground from whence they had been taken, but Jesus confirmed anew the glad promises and assurances of God which were declared in the early centuries of man's time.

Paul emphasizes the importance of this truth when he says in 1 Corinthians 15: "If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen". Furthermore, if the dead rise not Paul brings out the truth, v. 18, that "they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished". Without a resurrection there is no possible re-living and no continuance of life in any manner following death, extinction of life. With the resurrection, life is again provided, immortality is made possible.

To the Thessalonian church Paul adds, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him".

OUR BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

WE ARE GLAD to announce the opening upon Monday, October 1st, of our Bible Training Class for 1928-29. Five students are entering the class, four for the first year and one for the second year. The program for this Bible Class was considered at length at our last General Conference. Much discussion, pro and con, was presented. It was after careful and deliberate consideration that the board was directed to continue class work.

It is questioned whether very many of our members really appreciate the meaning of this Bible Class work. A Bible student is always shaping his life, molding his characteristics and altering his life's activities in such way that his influence must unavoidably affect many round and about him, both for the present mortal day and for all time to come. It seems to me that the importance of Bible work stands far above that of any other work known to man. He who engages in deep heart-study of God through God's Word is studying for eternity. He who thus studies with a view to representing God must faithfully before his fellowmen in the Sunday School room, in the Berean class, in the pulpit, in the home, study to engage in a service to man and to God that is greater than any or all other service.

For the Church of God to maintain a Bible Class from which workers may go forth into the various districts of the church into the many homes of the people is to maintain an evangelistic labor of the greatest kind.

It is urged that every member of the church will realize that the only way in which this work can possibly be done is for the church as a whole to carry the work. It is not enough to meet in General Conference and present a program for the board to carry out. The board must have the continued, unceasing cooperation of the church. The board or any member of the board can do only a little part. Immediately our expenses will increase. For the last three months the church has fallen short from providing the money necessary to carry on the labors ordered for the good of the General Conference and the work as a whole. It is unavoidable but that for the execution of the program as ordered, the church must immediately provide more funds. The funds recently invested in the Linotype cannot be used to carry on the clerical, editorial, secretarial, and Bible Class work.

Let us one and all learn by practice both the meaning and the joy of continuous, repeated cooperation in all of this line of labor. Let us cooperate to the end that we may aid willing ones in the preparation for life work in gospel activity.

THE TOASTING PROCESS

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. recently sent out a pamphlet concerning their toasting process and the wonderful (?) endorsement Lucky Strike cigarettes have received on the part of physicians. One physician answered them as follows:

The American Tobacco Co.,
111 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Gentlemen: You have favored me with your brochure of the "Toasting Process as applied to tobacco."

To be entirely frank with you, it is biased, unfair, misleading, dishonest. It is based on selfish commercialism. It is un-American and detrimental to the best interest of our nation.

You deliberately and with malice pretense, if I may be so impudently candid, give figures only of such physicians and dentists as seemingly favor your nefarious goods. You make no mention or reference to such as may hold contrary opinions and convictions.

It is possibly true that cigarettes,—the most disgusting form of tobacco using, may not harm some types, such as carry their brains under a large waistband, for instance; but they are unequivocally hurtful to refined, nervous organizations of men, and especially to women.

I know no greater crime against civilization particularly our own America, than your debauchery of our Youth and Womanhood by your pernicious and wickedly persistent advertising of cigarettes. Verily, "these be the kind that enter into men's houses and lead silly women captive."

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

I recognize the folly of this letter, but since you presume to send me your carefully prepared and misleading letter, I am excusable if I acknowledge it by a conscientious reply. Personally, as a man, citizen and physician, I cannot too strongly condemn the use of cigarettes, particularly by youth and woman. Very respectfully yours,

Ernest Crutcher, M. D.

LIKE JESUS

By Alice B. Curtis

O to be like Jesus, the Savior meek and mild,
Lowly in heart and gentle, loving, and undefiled,
Though He was rich, for our sakes He became poor that we, Might share with Him in His glory, when King of kings He shall be.

O to be like Jesus, who is the sinner's friend
Who teaches us how we may win the life that shall not end,
Made higher than the heavens, He came as one who served,
And from the path of duty our Savior never swerved.

O to be like Jesus, the spotless Son of God,
Who to save man from sin and death, the road of suffering trod.
His precious life-blood crimsoned, and stained grim Calvary,
The Just died for the unjust to pay sin's penalty.

Let us strive to be like Jesus, counting earthly things but dross,
Let us follow in His footsteps daily taking up the cross,
May our lives be spent as His was, ever doing deeds of good,
And sometime we shall be like Him, if we live the lives we should.

Soon He will come in glory, from His place at God's right hand.
And before Him, who can read the heart, each one of us shall stand:
Those who have truly loved Him, and have served Him through the years,
We are told shall be like Jesus when the blessed Lord appears.

What happiness it gives us, how wonderful it seems!
This truth more precious is to us than all earth's golden dreams.
It satisfies our longings, it irradiates the years,
To know we shall be like Him, when the Lord we love appears.

THE HOLY SPIRIT

By F. L. Austin

HAVING A NUMBER of times been requested to express his understanding of the subject of the "Holy Spirit" the writer has decided to again state his thoughts thereon in a few short articles.

Like every other basic subject in the Bible, that of the "Holy Spirit" cannot possibly be rightly studied by itself. Standing alone, disassociated with other Bible truths, the subject is of little moment, but in its right association it is one of the most important subjects in the Bible. Nor can other subjects be satisfactorily understood without a more or less thorough understanding of this one. "Few subjects," says E. W. Bullinger in his work, THE GIVER AND HIS GIFTS, "are of greater importance, or fraught with weightier consequences to our theology, than this."

The reader is asked to unite with the writer in laying aside every prejudice regarding this subject and with open Bible prayerfully study this theme with an earnest desire to understand it as fully as possible in the manner in which God intended it to be understood.

HOLY

The "Holy Spirit" is not a single word in any Biblical language, nor are the words so united as to make them inseparable. "Spirit" in the phrase "Holy Spirit" is the same word, coming from the same root, as does the word "spirit" in every instance of the Bible. It is the word "holy" that sets this phrase off by itself. Nor does the word "holy" signify anything else than that "spirit", when used in this phrase, has been set aside from other "spirit" for some special service or purpose.

"Holy" is never used in the Bible to particularly indicate righteousness, or purity, or godliness, or anything of that kind. "Holy" has the same meaning whether it is used of "holy men", the "holy land", the "holy place", the "holy city", the "holy day", the "holy spirit", the "holy hill", Aaron's "holy garments", the "holy nation", or of any other noun. It means "set apart" or designated for a special purpose. And Rotherham adds, "For a special purpose in a good sense." It does not so much as hint that the particular land, or city, or hill, or garments, or man, or spirit, is righteous because of being called "holy".

The word "saint" with a few exceptions in the Old Testament is, throughout the Bible, the same word as the word "holy", other than that "holy" is the adjective while "saint" is the noun. The two words refer to the same condition. A saint is a person who has been set aside, has been declared holy, for a special work. Thus a holy man is a saint. It is not customary to say that the holy vessels of the tabernacle were saints, nor that the holy land was a saint. "Saint" is used with reference to a person, while the adjective "holy" may be used with reference to any object, animate or inanimate.

Therefore unless there is some other expression to indicate the meaning of the word "spirit" in a particular text, the word "holy" would only indicate that "spirit" as modified by this word was merely "spirit" of the same order as "spirit" in common, excepting that it was set apart for some special purpose or use.

Your days with gladness crown,
And from His own abundant store
Send many a blessing down."

TO-DAY

Build a little fence of Trust
Around to-day;
Fill the space with loving deeds,
And therein stay.
Look not through the sheltering bars
Upon to-morrow.
God will help thee bear what comes
Of joy or sorrow.—M. B.

IT WAS JESUS Himself, not a bullock or an he-goat, who bare our sins. "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree."—1 Pet. 2:24. No substitution here, as in the God-given instructions to Moses. There the high priest confessed sins upon the head of a bullock, or of a goat, and, after slaying the sin-bearer, its life blood was taken into the holy of holies. But Jesus "bare our sins in his own body".

None can appear before God in his sin—either in sin as introduced by Adam, or in sin as introduced by himself. Righteousness is essential for one to abide with God. Jesus bare our sins, "that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes we are healed".

Easter will mean more to him into whose life this eternal truth sinks deeply. "In his own body" he bare our sins—ours. We "were healed".

INSPIRATIONS FOR EASTER-TIDE

CROSS-WEARING

I am crucified with Christ,
With Him nailed upon a tree,
Not the cross, then, do I bear
But the cross it beareth me.
Solemn cross on which I died—
One with Him, the Crucified.

Shall I take that blood-stained cross—
Cross of agony and shame?
Cross of Him who fought my fight?
Cross of Him who overcame?
Shall I deck myself with thee—
Awful cross of Calvary?

Shall I drag thee through the crowd
Mid the laughter that is there?
Wear thee through the giddy waltz,
Bound upon my neck or hair?
Awful cross of Calvary—
Shall I deck myself with thee?

Shall I make that lowly cross
Minister of woman's pride?
Drawing eyes to me that should Fix upon the Crucified?
Awful cross of Calvary—
Shall I deck myself with thee?

Shall I call this glittering gem
Made for show and vanity—
Shall I call this gaud a cross—
Cross of Him who died for me?
Shall I deck myself with thee,
Awful cross of Calvary?

"If I in Thy likeness O Lord may awake,
And shine a pure image of Thee,
Then I shall be satisfied when I shall break,
The fetters of death and be free.
I know this stained tablet must first be made white,
To let Thy bright features be drawn.
I know I must pass through the darkness of night,
To witness the coming of dawn."

"Oh, I shall be satisfied when I can cast
The shadows of nature all by;
When this dreary scene from my vision shall pass,
And there is an unclouded sky.
I feel that bright morning is now drawing near,
When earth's fairest features will fade.
'Tis then in Thy likeness O, let me appear
In glory and beauty arrayed."

SINAI AND CALVARY

There are two mountains hallowed
By majesty sublime,
Which rear their crests unconquered
Uncounted generations
Have gazed on them with awe—
The Mountain of the Gospel,
The Mountain of the Law.

From Sinai's cloud of darkness
The vivid lightnings play,
They serve the God of vengeance,
The Lord who shall repay.
Each fault must bring its penance,
Each sin the avenging blade;
For God upholds in justice
The laws that He hath made.

But Calvary stands to ransom
The earth from utter loss,
In shade than light more glorious
The shadow of the Cross.
To heal a sick world's trouble,
To soothe its woe and pain,
On Calvary's sacred summit
The Paschal Lamb was slain.

The boundless might of heaven,
Its law in mercy furled,
As once the bow of promise
O'er-arched a drowning world.
The Law said—As you keep me
It shall be done to you.
But Calvary prays—Forgive them,
They know not what they do.

Almighty God! direct us,
To keep Thy perfect Law!
O blessed Savior, help us
Nearer to Thee to draw;
Let Sinai's thunders aid us
To guard our feet from sin,
And Calvary's light inspire us
The love of God to win.
—John Hay.

Gethsemane, can I forget,
Or here Thy conflict see,
Thine agony and bloody sweat,
And not remember Thee!

When to the Cross I turn my eyes,
And rest on Calvary,
O Lamb of God, my Sacrifice!
I must remember Thee.

"JESUS NAZARENUS REX JUDAEORUM"

(The following is the last poem written by Mr. Janvier, and unpublished at the time of his death.)

In the gray twilight of a dreary morn,
A Prisoner stood, defenceless and forlorn,
While, to a Roman judge, with boisterous breath,
His fierce accusers clamored for His death.

It was the Christ, rejected and abused;
The King of kings, His sovereign claim refused;
The Son of God, abandoned and betrayed,
An Outcast, in the world which He had made.

It was His chosen people whose demand
That timid judge was powerless to withstand;
And, while their baseless charges he denied,
He gave their Victim to be crucified.

His chosen people! Those He loved and blest;
Whose little ones He folded to His breast;
Who cried more fiercely, as unmoved He stood,
"On us, and on our children, be His blood!"

Oh, Holy Savior! May Thy grace reverse
The dreadful import of that reckless curse;
And, on their children, Thy atonement prove
"The Blood of Sprinkling," through Redeeming love!
—Francis De Haes Janvier.

O morning Star! O risen Lord!
Destroyer of the tomb!
Star of the living and the dead,
Lift up at length thy long-veil'd head,
O'er land and sea Thy glories shed;
Light of the morning come!

Speak, mighty Life! and wake the dead,
Like statue from the stone,
Like music from long broken strings,
Like gushings from deserted springs,
Like dew upon the down's soft wings,
Rouse each beloved one!

F a r westward,
where the venerable mountains rise as if to greet t h e stars, t h e traveler sees a solemn sign in the snow — the Holy Cross. The sailor in summer seas looks up at night and beholds in the heavens the Southern Cross. In cathedral shades, where prayers echo through the aisles and sweet child-voices chant anthems half divine, the worshiper adores the Roman Cross. There is a lovely flower in whose heart the hand of God has set the Passion Cross. The Knights of the Middle Ages bore on their blazoned banners the Rèd Cross. And we may behold them all, and even wear upon our breasts the Cross in gold or pearl; but not until we clasp hands in brotherhood of sorrow have we seen the real sign of the cross — not until we feel the pain, the joy, of loving sacrifice—do we know the deepest meaning of the Cross of Christ.

MY PALESTINE TRIP

By Mrs. Elnora Skinner

BETHELEM IS FIVE MILES south of Jerusalem and is a town set among the hills. The houses are much like boxes and their gardens are terraced. Here is the Church of the Nativity erected over the birth place of the child Jesus. It is situated in the center of the town. Two factions control the church, the Armenians and the Greeks. The stable and the manger are reached by a winding stairway that goes into a cave paved with marble. The site of the nativity is marked with a gold star in the pavement. Rachel's tomb is one place not covered with a church and may be the actual place of her burial.

We next made our trip to the Dead Sea which lies twenty-six miles from Jerusalem descending three thousand seven hundred ninety feet. Its level is thirteen hundred feet below the Mediterranean. It is fifty miles long and from six to ten miles in width. No vegetation grows very near its shores because of the salt which it contains. A few office buildings are here preparing the way for the chemical factories to be erected for the extraction of minerals and chemicals.

Jericho is now a city of squalid huts and lacks any interest only as the place where the Israelites fought their first battle west of the Jordan in their conquest of Canaan.

Now I must tell of the improvement of part of Palestine. We made part of the trip to Jordan and elsewhere along well paved highways in up-to-date American cars. The highways are concreted much wider than those of America and the sides are set with palm trees. There have been one half million trees set out in the past few years. One sees on the highways a sight probably not seen in very many countries in the variety of the modes of travel. Flashing along the highways one can see occasionally Packard cars, Fords, Chryslers and other makes, camel trains, men driving donkeys laden with produce and women carrying loads upon their heads.

On our return trip from the Dead Sea we had occasion to witness the impulsiveness and hot tempers of our Arab drivers. In going up a steep hill the car ahead of ours suddenly slowed up and stopped. Our driver did his best to avoid hitting the other car, but he bumped it a little, which so enraged the other chauffeur, that they both leaped from their seats and were pummeling each other. As the other cars drew up their chauffeurs joined in the fracas. The men of the party finally had to separate them so as to continue the trip. Our driver was pretty badly battered up and his nose and mouth were bleeding. Arabians are speed demons such as we have in this country. Many times the speedometers were registering seventy, but the distances were measured in kilometers which are about two-thirds of the English mile, and their speedometers register in kilometers.

One of the afternoons when we had arrived at Jerusalem to go with the main party another party and myself drove out to Nablus (the ancient city of Shechem.) It is situated between the mounts of Ebal and Gerizim, where Joshua separated the tribes having one-half of them to stand on one mount and the other half on the other mount. Here the blessings and curses were repeated that had been written or spoken by Moses. (Deut. 11:29; 27:12, 13; Josh. 8:30-35). Shechem was the first capital of the northern kingdom until Omri became king. He built Samaria six miles distant and made it his capital.

Farther to the west is the valley of Ajalon where the Israelites won the long day battle against the Amorites when the sun stood still upon Gibeon and the moon in the valley of Ajalon. (Josh. 10:12-14).

On our return trip from Jerusalem to our ships at Haifa we took motors and went through the scenic hills of Judaea to the Sea of Galilee. We passed through sites and towns too numerous to mention that were crowded with Biblical history. Ten miles north of Jerusalem is the Arab city of El Bireh, the ancient Beeroth, where the boy Jesus was missed by His parents. As we went on, mounts and ruins were pointed out reminiscent of former times innumerable. Galgalla the old Gilgal where Elijah lived before being taken up into heaven; Samaria the old capital of Ephraim and where King Ahab had his ivory palace; Dothan where Joseph was let down into the well and later sold to the Midianites going to Egypt; Jezreel the ancient town of King Ahab and Jezebel his wife and where stood Naboth's vineyard; Nain on the slopes of little Hermon where the widow's son was raised to life (Luke 7:11-18); Endor also on little Hermon where dwelt the witch that King Saul consulted. At Shunen on the slopes of little Hermon there is a good view of the valley of Jezreel sloping down to the Jordan. East of the Jordan can be seen the mountains of Gilead.

Then comes Mount Tabor the finest mountain of Galilee rising rapidly to a great height. It figures very early in Jewish history. Here Deborah assembled ten thousand warriors who swept down on Sisera's host at Megiddo. (Judges 4). The pass leads through to the plain of Sharon at the southern extremity of the Carmel Range. It is known as the mount of transfiguration, where the Christ was transfigured before His disciples. It was before this mount also that Napoleon fought the famous battle with the Turks.

A little further on after passing the new Jewish settlement of Balfouria one sees the pretty town of Nazareth spread out upon a number of hills and valleys and it reminds one much of the Savior's words; "A town upon a hill cannot be hid."

(Concluded next week)

Would you throw away a diamond because it pricked your hand? One good friend is not to be weighed against the jewels of all the world. If there is coolness or unkindness between us, let us come face to face and have it out, quick, before love grows cold!—Robert Smith.

GOD

Notes, by R. H. Judd

JEHOVAH

THE WORD ELOHIM occurs 56 times in the first three chapters of Genesis; 2470 times in the Old Testament. Several commentators have supposed that "Elohim" is one name of GOD and "Jehovah" another, and have endeavored to divide the Pentateuch into "Elohistic" and "Jehovistic" divisions, and to thus discredit the authorship of Moses. The theory breaks down on examination. Others have endeavored to maintain that the two words are synonymous. They are not so. There is the same difference between "Elohim" and "Jehovah" as between Deus and Jupiter, or homo and Petros—the one expresses the race, the other the individual—for instance the man Peter.

"ELOHIM" answers to our word GOD or Deity, and is therefore used of false gods as well as the one true and living God. "JEHOVAH" is the personal name of the living GOD. This distinction is strongly marked in the words of Elijah, "If JEHOVAH be Elohim (God) follow him, if Baal, then follow him." Here it would be impossible to change the words "Elohim" and "Jehovah", or to say "If Baal be Jehovah". There is an essential difference in signification, and though Jehovah is the true GOD, and the true GOD is JEHOVAH, and therefore sometimes either might be used, yet in consequence of the essential difference there are cases where there is a peculiar propriety in using one rather than the other; and there are other cases where one must be used and the other cannot. As JEHOVAH is the proper name of GOD it does not take a genitive case or a suffix. It is therefore impossible to say in Hebrew "the Jehovah of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob", or my, thy or our Jehovah.

For the above information I am indebted to Prof. A. McCaul D. D. in his Mosaic Record of Creation. He was one time Professor of Hebrew in Kings College, London, England.

See also article by R. H. Judd Herald Dec. 12, 1922.

ECHAD

In his Fundamental Doctrines of the Christian Faith Rev. R. A. Torrey D. D.

says on page 69 that this word "denotes compound unity, not simple unity." Prof. Angel made the same statement in The Evangelical Christian published from Toronto. What are the facts? This Hebrew word occurs over 500 times, and the instances where it may be said to denote compound unity are comparatively rare and instances cited by them actually disprove their statement. To deny that "echad" denotes simply unity is a seriously misleading statement coming as it does from two such prominent men. Following are a few instances where the word occurs denoting simple unity—Gen. 2:21; 42:11; Exodus 29:23; Joshua 23:10; Num. 29:26; 2 Kings, 7:8 and scores of others. For further details see Herald Feb. 27, 1923, page 171.

See article March 6th, 1923, page 179.

"US"

No proof whatever that "us" in Gen. 1:26 has reference to the trinity.

In many scores of passages throughout Scripture the pronouns, "I", "myself" "me", "he", "himself", and the definite article "the" unquestionably teach the unity, and not the trinity of GOD.

The distinctions made between GOD and the promised Messiah show as clearly as language can express, that two distinct personalities are in evidence throughout the whole of the Old Testament. The relationships maintained are absolutely incompatible with the doctrine of the trinity.

The same is true throughout the New Testament. In both Testaments, if the context is taken into account in those passages often quoted in support of the doctrine of the trinity, it will be evident to any careful reader that they lend no real support to that doctrine. Take for instance Psalm 45:6, 7. Perhaps no passage is more frequently quoted in support of the belief that Christ is GOD, but reference to the context will show that "God" in the first instance is used in a secondary sense to its use in the 7th verse where the words "thy God" evidence the fact that He (Christ) owes allegiance to GOD.

The famous passage beginning at Isa. 9:6 is another such. If the student will notice that the names given "shall be called" when "the government shall be upon his shoulder."

The futility of basing important doctrines or inference must be apparent, and in due time its weakness will be made evident.

OVERHEARD IN AN ORCHARD

Said the Robin to the Sparrow:

"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin:

"Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no Heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."

THE BOOK OF THE REVELATION OF JESUS CHRIST

By Dr. A. W. Taylor

Chapter 20

A CAREFUL STUDY of this book reveals the fact that the entire events symbolized up to the twenty-first chapter have reference entirely to the present age and dispensation up to and including the judgment day and no part thereof refers to a future age or dispensation. This being true, how can it be shown that the events described in Rev. 20 take place in the present age?

A careful study shows that this is true of this chapter as well as every other chapter, excepting the two closing ones.

Here we are told that the dragon is bound and shut up, "that he should deceive the nations no more" for a certain period of time. This fact shows that nations were existing that could and would have been deceived had not this deceiver been shut up. Now then as the nations, "kingdoms of this world", become our Lord's at or during the sounding of the seventh trumpet the nations that could have been deceived by the dragon have ceased to have existence, as we learn from Daniel 2. The nations are driven away and no place found for them in the days of the kings symbolized by the feet and toes of the image of Daniel 2. When the God of heaven sets up an eternal, never ending kingdom, then the "kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." No deceiver can ever get into that kingdom. Hence it is that this imprisonment of this dragon must be in this present age while there are nations who would be deceived were he not shut up as was done for a period of time. When he is let out he immediately goes "out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the sands of the sea." So there are nations in the four quarters of the earth after this dragon is let out and he deceives them—a work he was not permitted to do while he was shut up in prison.

But when the kingdoms of this age become our Lord's, as we are told they do thus become at the sounding of the seventh trumpet, then the time of the dead that they should be judged is come and the reward to the prophets and saints is given and the wicked are destroyed: all of which takes place at the close of the present age, at the sounding of the 7th trumpet, and can not mean in a future age or dispensation.

Thus it is shown that these events must and do refer to events of the present age. This is clearly taught in this chapter. When we have seen this to be true then we are prepared to inquire what does this dragon symbolize, and when and how have these events taken place in this age? The dragon of Rev. 12 is a symbol of Pagan Roman Government which was succeeded by Papal Roman Government at which time, A. D. 313, all pagans were deposed from civil authority, and offices. It was then that the dragon was cast out from the symbolic heaven. He had deceived the whole earth but, he was suppressed then not bound, and shut up until the time of Charlemagne the latter part of the 8th century A. D., when all pagans were either to accept the Christian religion, as held by the Roman Catholic Church whose head was the pope, or they were put to death. Thus and then was the dragon of paganism completely shut up and remained imprisoned for a thousand years, until the time of the French revolution. The Roman Catholic yoke was broken and atheism proclaimed to be the religion of France and of the world. We have abundant evidence of the work and deception of this dragon of atheism especially in Russia, the Gog and Magog of Bible times, and their propaganda is going forth like frogs in the spirits of devils, gathering the deceived nations to battle, "numberless as the sands of the sea-shore."

Evidently the fire of the wrath of God is next in the order of God's program in connection with the Great Day of His wrath and the Judgment Day. Behold He cometh as a thief, when peace and safety is being said, as at this present hour is the case, then sudden—unexpected, unlooked for—what? What, but the day of Doom?

(Though the HERALD is unable to harmonize the foregoing conclusions, especially those relative to Rev. 20, with Bible statements, yet place is gladly given to them that readers may profit by the study.—Ed.)

DECEITFUL CALM

The winds are still! The sea lies all untroubled
 Beneath a cloudless sky! The morn is bright
 Yet, Lord, I feel the need of Thee redoubled.
 Come nearer to me in this blaze of light!
 The night must fall; the storm will break at length—
 Oh, give me strength!

So well, so well I know the treacherous seeming
 Of days like this. They are too heavenly fair,
 Those waves that laugh like happy children dreaming
 Are mighty forces brewing some despair
 For thoughtless hearts. And ere the hour of need
 Let mine take heed.

Joy can not last. It must give place to sorrow
 As certainly as solar systems roll;
 I would not wait till that time comes, to borrow
 The strength prayer offers to the suffering soul—
 Here in the sunlight, yet undimmed by shade,
 I cry for aid.

I dare not lightly drain the cup of pleasure,
 Though Thine the hand that proffers me the draught;
 Such bitter lees lie lower in the measure
 I shall need courage ere the portion's quaffed;
 Then strengthen me, before that time befall,
 To drink the gall.

I need Thee in my joys and my successes,
 To make me humbly grateful and not vain;
 I need Thee when the weight of sorrow presses
 The tortured heart that cries aloud in pain;
 So close great pleasure and great anguish lie—
 O God, come nigh!

THE TWO STICKS

By F. L. Austin

MOREOVER, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions: and join them one to another into one stick; and they shall become one in thine hand.” Ezek. 37:16, 17.

Immediately following the vision of dry bones concerning which God expressly speaks to Israel saying, Ezek. 37:11, “These bones are the whole house of Israel”, the illustration is given of the two sticks which also illustrate the whole house of Israel. Just as Ezekiel was told to place these two sticks together that they should become one stick in his hand, so the record reads, v. 22, concerning Israel: “I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel”.

God's word is yea and amen. He has said that He was going to make the whole family of Israel into one nation. This prophecy has not yet been fulfilled. It still stands upon the page of God's written Word. Many are the efforts that have been made to spiritualize the meaning of God's Word and to claim that this Israel must be a spiritual Israel rather than a literal one and that the unifying into one nation must pertain to the church of God set apart through Christ rather than to the nation of Israel set apart under Abraham from the nations of the earth.

The following words quoted from the lines of Rev. F. B. Collitt are worthy of the careful reading of every Bible student. He says, “No scripture can be properly taken by itself with no reference to its context or to the circumstances under which it was written. Especially must scripture be compared with scripture. Allowance must be made for every modifying and conditioning scripture. No scriptural revelation can deny an earlier revelation or be contradicted by a later one.”

In the light of these words let us go back to earlier record to learn something about Israel, the broken stick. At one time Israel stood as a single nation. In David she became strong. Following Solomon's reign the nation was divided, the stick was broken and became two sticks. Ten tribes settled at the north under the name of Ephraim, sometimes also called Israel, and the two tribes settled around Jerusalem under the name of Judah. Now Ephraim and Judah were the names of two of the sons of Jacob, Ephraim representing his father Joseph. It would seem at first reading that at this time, following the death of Solomon, the nation was first divided, the stick broken. But these two nations, Ephraim and Judah, were divided long before this.

GOD'S COVENANT

When God made covenant to Abraham that through him and his seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed, it is certain that God had a definite end in view and that He knew whereof He spake. As it became time for Abraham to select a wife for his son Isaac, prayer was made, God's direction was sought and the beautiful story of Rebecca's consent to become the wife of Isaac, as found in Genesis the 24th chapter, is familiar to all. But Rebecca's sons, Esau and Jacob, differed. A dispute arose. Jacob secured the birthright and under his mother's instructions he fled back to the land of her nativity, leaving Esau with the parents.

Arriving at the home of Laban, an uncle in the valley Euphrates, without any apparent request of God for guidance, Jacob made an agreement with Laban whereby he should receive Rachel to wife, but at first he was deceived and Leah was given to him. Later he was given Rachel. Some one will ask why it was that such deception was practiced? Why did God fulfill His promises through Jacob who had deceived his father, and again through Leah who was a deception to Jacob. Let us analyze these things from the Scriptures.

There is no record that Jacob was seeking God's guidance. There is much evidence that God held His own ends in view as He worked through Jacob. Jacob sought Rachel for wife. There was reason. Gen 29:17 states, "Rachel was beautiful and well favoured". According to the definition of the words given in the Companion Bible the statement would read: "Rachel was comely in form and in countenance". Her looks attracted Jacob's eye. The same verse reads: "Leah was tender eyed". But "tender" is here used in the sense of weak. She was weak eyed; she was not so attractive to the fleshly eye of Jacob. Jacob loved Rachel, not Leah.

But Leah was favored of God. Six sons were born to her. Among them were Judah and Levi. Two sons were born to Rachel, Joseph and Benjamin. Leah and Rachel were constantly at variance. Their sons also differed from each other. They quarreled. The eight sons of Leah and her handmaid were in the majority to sell Joseph into Egypt. Here was a division. At heart the "stick" was already broken. It was broken in the lives and hearts of the two mothers. They were not a unit in their service to God or to Jacob, nor were the sons.

There was also another reason which stands out clearly between the lines of scripture. Leah prayed the Father and looked to Him for favors as is indicated in Gen. 29:32-35. Not so Rachel. Rachel stole the idols from her father's house. She worshiped idols. In this she differed from Leah. It was the son of Rachel, the idol worshiper who was sold to Egypt. It was Reuben, the son of Leah who worshiped God, that interceded with his brethren in behalf of Joseph. Thus we see a line of demarkation between these two families back in those early days:

Joseph's sons born to him in Egypt were named Ephraim and Manasseh. When the twelve tribes settled in the land of promise, each of Joseph's received a portion, and when the kingdom was divided at the close of Solomon's reign, it was Ephraim's name that was given to the rebellious ten tribes. But Ephraim was the grandson of Rachel, the idol worshiper. These ten tribes at once set up their golden calves for worship. It was this same ten-tribed nation that wandered farther and farther into idolatry during its national history. This same ten-tribed nation still bearing the name of the grandson of Rachel, was overthrown and sold among the other nations.

But the tribe of Judah, who was the son of Leah, the mother who worshiped Jehovah, was the one in whom God placed the royal throne to ultimately rule over all of Abraham's promised seed.

THE MENDED STICK

Since the days of Zedekiah, six hundred years before Christ, both of these houses of Israel have been dispersed in the wilderness of the nations. God's prophetic promise is that they will return. His promise is that this people will again be reunited, that the stony, idolatrous heart of the people will be removed, that a new covenant, which He will write "in their hearts", Jer. 31:31-33, will be sealed with them and they shall be "one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel", Ezek. 37:21-26. The stick of Abraham's seed that was foreseen as weakening in the days of the patriarchs, that later broke completely will yet be mended. That nation will be one nation. God's purposes will be wrought.

It is with this consummation in view that every true Bible student is faithfully watching the return to Israelitish land of the people of the Jews. Not that this present regathering is the one of final mending, but that it is fulfilling prophecy and thus points the student toward the final fulfillment when all Israel will be gathered together under Christ the great King and will be molded into one nation abiding in the ages. When Christ shall sit upon the throne of his father David, Luke 1:32, 33, he will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of His kingdom there will be no end. It was of this mended stick that Ezekiel was told.

By J. J. Heckman

The following article was written by Bro. Heckman to be read at the Kansas-Oklahoma Conference. By request of the conference and permission of the author we are printing it entire with exception of the first paragraph which was personal to the conference.

AS A SUBJECT I have chosen "Growth," and for a text will use the old familiar words, "Grow in grace and in knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

The first question to be answered is, "What is grace?" By referring to the Diaglott we find that the word "favour" is used instead of "grace." Turning to Luke 2:52, we read, "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man." The same Greek word as in our text is here used, and it would not sound well to say, "Jesus grew in grace with God and man," so we decide that "favour" is the best translation.

Now if you will turn with me to Gen. 6:8 you will see this: "But Noah found grace in the eyes of the LORD." At this time the world was displeasing to the Lord, and the reason is found in Gen. 7:1: "thee have I seen righteous before me in this generation." And in v. 5 we read further: "Noah did according unto all that the Lord commanded him." This settles the question as to how we should find grace—favour—with the Lord.

Jesus is also an Example, "The Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him,"—John 8:29. We are commanded to "follow in his steps"; "walk even as he walked"; "let his word dwell in us richly"; "be not weary in well doing", because "in due season we shall reap if we faint not." This brings to our minds another scripture, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. "Sowing" means action, and action is work; so when one is working according to the Spirit, he is working that he might obtain eternal life. Thus Paul puts it, "Who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life."

How then do we get eternal life? By action. How do we grow in favor? The same way. And so we read again, "And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all." How vividly this pictures to our mental gaze the way to grow in grace! They did something—gave witness—and received for it great favor from the Judge of all the earth. This great witnessing in the face of oppositions even unto persecution caused rapid growth, and placed great favor on the apostles.

For one, naturally speaking, to grow, he must have food. Spiritually it is the same. "Man shall not live by bread alone; but every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The life here is the eternal. We must be partakers of the Word of God if we ever attain unto that. Jesus says, "Labour not for the food that perisheth: but for that which endureth unto eternal life." Again, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish; and no man is able to pluck them out of my hand." Following here again implies service, and again shows how essential it is for us to serve Jehovah if we would continue in His great favor, and reach the great goal—eternal life.

We are also told of two great highways, or roads, one broad the other narrow; one leading unto destruction, the other unto life; many traveling the one, few the other; one running through the broad gate, the other through that gate which is difficult, straight; many walking the broad way, few find that which is narrow. This again shows action as a necessity. We must strive, exert effort to travel the narrow way, while the broad way is easily traveled. But notice the pay at the end: "destruction" for travelers of the first, while "life, ETERNAL life" is the grand landing place for the second. We can afford to be a little flock for the difference. We can be evil spoken of, persecuted, and hated, if by this we may be allowed to live eternally. Many have suffered even death itself striving for the latter goal.

How glad we should be that "the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men", and that it is definite in "teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world." Is the way too hard? A thousand times no! The very life required of us to live is only what we should live had God never made His favor visible. It makes gentlemen of men, and every man should be that for the sake of good company with his fellow man. But here the apostle adds more, "Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." That is picturing hope in very vivid terms.

But "grow also in knowledge". What does that picture before our mental gaze? Does it not also imply effort on our part? We think it does. To know the Lord according to our Master, "is life eternal." We can only know Him by the painting of Himself He has left behind. This is His inspired Word. We are told, "And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book: but these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name."

Here is the basis, or foundation upon which we must erect our spiritual castle. We must go to the place of knowledge if we would find it. Did we wish to know something of Andrew Jackson, we would peruse biography, or history to learn it. Just so it is with our dear Lord. To learn of Him we must go to His Book. We are not expecting much about Him in the life of a monarch of some earthly kingdom; we hear little of Him in the lives of our presidents, but much of Him in the books of the Bible. So here we must go to grow in His knowledge. We are commanded to "search the scriptures." The ministry are told to study to show themselves approved. Knowledge of the scriptures made Timothy "wise unto salvation." David made the Word "a light unto his path", "a lamp unto his feet." Isaiah tells us that those who "speak not according to it have no light." Paul says, "preach it." Peter admonishes those who speak to speak according to it. How could we do this without study? And why neglect this study? Paul kept his body under lest, after preaching to others, he might become a castaway. He knew it to be a duty to keep in memory the preached word, and so admonished the Corinthian church.

The Christian who refuses to study is generally a weakling, and is easily lead away from the path of rectitude. The present day is one of fables, and there is danger that we may be turned from the truth unto them. The lamp—the Word is our safeguard. Let us cling to it and grow in the knowledge of it.

There's nothing more pure in heaven,
Nor on earth so sweet and mild,
More full of the light that is all divine,
Than the smile of a little child."

TAKE A LOOK

The world is a looking-glass, and gives back to every man the reflection of his own face. Frown at it, and it in turn will look sourly upon you, laugh at it and with it, and it is a jolly kind companion.—William Thackeray.

WE ARE GIVING THIS WEEK THE SECRETARY'S REPORT OF NATIONAL BEREAN DAY, AUGUST 6

ILLINOIS BEREANS, ATTENTION!

AS A STATE ORGANIZATION we have set aside the month of October in which to demonstrate the blessing of sacrifice. In order to prove that there actually is real benefit in store we are urging every person who is affiliated with or interested in the Illinois work to cooperate in making this a genuine self-denial month. Shall we do it?

Remember then, Bereans: beginning with the first of October, for thirty-one days we are conscientiously denying ourselves all little luxuries and costly amusements, and perhaps a few of the needful things, and on the first day of November we are sending the amount thus saved to the state Berean treasurer, Miss Phyllis Wood, 611 E. Fourth St., Kewanee, Ill. This fund is used to relieve the sufferings of needy ones of our Church through the winter months.

"If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."

Dorothy W. Lyon, President.

NATIONAL BEREAN CONFERENCE

The National Berean Society met in annual conference at headquarters Aug. 6, 1928. The meeting was opened at 9 A. M. by devotional service led by C. E. Randall.

All reports were submitted on the new blanks, and they seemed to get results, for practically every officer, committee, and state society reported. The reports of the various departments of work were as follows:

The treasurer reported receipts of $660.72, expenditures of $655.60 and a balance of $5.12.

The book committee reported on the work done in getting out the new series of junior and senior books, and the plans for the coming year.

The tract committee reported on hand 50 copies of "Thief on the Cross" and 500 of "Our Stewardship". Practically no tracts were distributed. There is need for a new supply of suitable tracts, but lack of funds has prevented their being printed.

The senior social correspondence committee reported 1200 letters written and 905 received, also 500 tracts distributed.

The junior committee reported 45 letters written and 32 received.

The relief committee reported 236 letters written and 313 received. Money received for relief work, $870.50; money paid out for relief work, $938.18; and there remains a balance of but $390.00. This is helping to care for 90 needy individuals, from 22 families. In addition to money, there were 599 garments sent out during the year. Help the relief work more this year.

The senior extension committee reported 110 letters written and 25 received, 15 students enrolled, and 25 lessons given. 350 tracts were distributed.

The junior extension committee reported 28 letters written and 15 received, and 5 students enrolled.

The editor reported 21 articles received for publication, from 5 states. He pointed out that there should be more co-operation from Bereans all over the country in sending in Berean news and articles. Tell about your local society on the Berean page.

The distributor of literature reported 818 books sold, of which 274 were the new Children's Story and Study Book, 80 the old junior No. 3, and 459, the new senior book. There are still on hand 2050 new juniors, 267 old juniors, and 2233 new seniors. Revenue from sale of books amounted to $219.17, and total receipts were $244.46.

The organization committee reported four new classes organized, but the report was incomplete. Letters written were 385 and letters received 439.

Reports from state societies showed a lack of progress in all of the four states affiliated. Illinois is by far the strongest state society, with about ten societies. Indiana has two, Iowa two and Michigan one. There is a need for more state societies and for better organization in the ones we have.

Judging from the reports sent in from isolated local societies, we have no isolated societies at all.

These reports, having been submitted to the conference, were then discussed and analyzed with a view to finding out why our departments are not functioning better than they are. The secretary was appointed a committee to formulate recommendations to be acted upon at the afternoon session.

At 1:30 P. M. the conference reconvened and Sr. Anna Drew presented the topic, "Junior Berean Work a PLANS WERE IN PROGRESS for Rally Day. A special program was being prepared for that event. The Ever-Ready Class was trying to do its part as usual. The President was thoughtfully assigning different duties to different members of the willing workers.

"First we must issue special invitations," said Miss Truworth. "Jean, you write so neatly. Will you please send notes to the ones we cannot call or reach by telephone? Mary, you call upon the friends whose names are given you." (Mary had a way of meeting and talking with others that was friendly and winning.)

Both girls were glad to do as Miss Truworth requested, and began planning what they should say or write.

"Now," said the leader, "what about our program? It must not be too long, for we have a regular lesson as well. Let us see. We must have music. Helen, will you play again that beautiful melody you played for us last Sunday? And Frances will surely sing something suitable. Jane speaks clearly so we will ask her to read the lesson; while Anna, sincere little serious Anna will make a wonderful prayer. We will have another surprise number by Catherine who is most original; and I'll give the benediction to complete the program. However," continued Miss Truworth, "those two new girls must have something to do. I am not sure what their talents are, but they will help, I know."

"Why not ask them to be ushers?" said Catherine. "They could thus become acquainted with others, and they could see that all were supplied with song books and quarterlies."

"True," said Miss Truworth, "a very good suggestion. I will also need all of you to help receive our guests, and do be sure to invite them to come again."

"Yes, indeed! We will remember!" promised the girls.

"You spoke of the lesson, Miss Truworth. What is the lesson for that day?" inquired Anna.

"Why the twelfth and thirteenth chapters of I Corinthians."

"Don't you think we should read those chapters today, so we will understand them better by Sunday and will have time to think about them in the meantime?"

Bibles were soon procured and the Ever Ready girls quickly turned to I Corinthians 12.

Miss Truworth explained that this was another part of Paul's letter written to the Christians at Corinth. The girls found Corinth on the map, and talked a little about Paul's visit in Corinth.

Then each member read a verse in turn, asking questions, telling the thought conveyed, or looking up difficult words. Some of it was not easy to understand, but they really tried to grasp the truths.

What they did agree upon was that Paul was telling the Corinthians about the relation of the Holy Spirit to the body of Christ—how the Spirit formed the body of Christ by uniting believers to Christ and to one another. To each believer is given a gift, or special ability to do some one thing better than some other things. One has more wisdom or knowledge, another more faith, another gift of healing, another miracles, another prophecy, discerning of spirits, different tongues or languages, and interpretation of tongues. God has placed some in the church to be apostles, some prophets, others teachers, others miracles, healing, helps, government and tongues.

"Why, that is like our program," said Mary. "Miss Truworth has given each of us something to do according to our gifts."

"Yes," said Miss Truworth, "and each one is as necessary as the other. All are needed to make a perfect program. And just so all are needed in the church, or body of Christ."

"And how plain verses twelve to twenty-five make that," said Jane. "'For the body is not one member but many', vs. 14" she read. "And verse 15, 'If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?' and on to verse 21, 'And the eye cannot say unto the hand I have no need of thee: nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you.'"

"And notice verse 22," said Miss Truworth, "'Nay, much more those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble are necessary.'"

Then the girls read chapter 13. "That tells us much about charity," observed Anna.

"What is charity?" asked Miss Truworth.

"Oh, I know, it is love," said Helen.

"Yes, and how important is love?" inquired the President.

Then Mary read, "And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."

Devotional Reading: 1 John 4:7-16

GOLDEN TEXT

And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.—1 Cor. 13:13

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Spiritual Gifts. 1 Cor. 12:1 says that Paul would not have the Christian ignorant concerning spiritual gifts. Just as it is the same God who is operating all the various Christian operations, v. 6, and the same Lord, Christ, who is directing the various services, v. 5, so it is the same Spirit by which all are enabled or gifted for the various Christian services and operations, v. 4. These enabling gifts are made possible by the outpouring of God's Spirit on the individual. See Acts 1:8; 2:4; John 14:16; 15:26, 27. Christians with these varying gifts are directed in their services by the Master Himself. These all are operated by God, the Father of all. Thus, God has in the church at all times that provision by which every Christian service can be operated to the glory of the Father. 1 Cor. 12:28; Eph. 4:11-13. The particular gifts may not be necessarily continued throughout the age. Whenever a certain phase of service is no longer needed that favor or enabling gift is no longer graciously bestowed upon an individual.

Charity. This word, charity, sometimes called love, refers to that outflowing attention and service from one individual toward another that is not prompted or drawn forth by characteristics or likableness in the other, but is sent forth by the one who loves merely because he realizes the benefit that such charity can accomplish for the other one. It is this love that the Father manifested toward man when He "so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son"—John 3:16. There was nothing in the hateful heart, in the sin-distorted face of man to draw out the love of God. If there had been, God's act toward man would have been "phileo" love, not "agapao" love. It was this greatest love, John 15:13; Rom. 5:8, that both God and Christ manifested without measure toward man.

A careful meditation on the processes of Christianity will reveal that no one can have real faith in God, real love for God, real trust in God without first realizing in himself this love for his fellowman.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"But now abide faith, hope, love; these three; howbeit, (the) greater of these (is) love."—1 Cor. 13:13, Roth.

Paul has enumerated many gifts in chap. 12 and ends it by, "covet earnestly the best gifts; and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way." Chapter 13 shows that "way" to be the "way" of love, or charity. Beginning at verse 4, we get a good understanding of love by description. It is longsuffering, kind, generous, humble, courteous, unselfish, good tempered, guileless, sincere. Christian love is preferable to all other spiritual gifts. It is our most striking likeness to God, who is Love. John says, "We know we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren."—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

God's Gifts to All. When Solomon built his famous temple he gave to the world one of the finest examples of organization that history contains. Each person in all that great nation was given opportunity to assist, it mattered not whether he were large or small, or what kind of ability was his. The stone carvers were placed together; the carpenters were assembled; and those who could do manual labor only were given their places. Even the women and children who could bring only their jewels were accorded equal honor as helpers in the great work.

How aptly Paul applies the same thought to the followers of Christ! Some could explain the deepest prophecies; some could speak in tongues—there were all kinds of gifts or abilities, all from the same Lord, all to be used in His service.

The only way in which we can successfully assist in carrying on the work of the church to-day is by following the same principle: each one using whatever ability he has, giving himself and his all to the good of the cause. Regardless of who you are, you have something that God can use. But do not forget that of all the gifts God ever gave to man the ability to love one's fellowman and serve to his best interest is the greatest.

In love do what you can to help the cause along, and in return receive love's richest rewards.—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The More Excellent Way.

There were bickerings in the Corinthian church over spiritual gifts. In 1 Cor. 12 and 13 Paul uses two arguments to eliminate this friction and division. In chapter 12 he declares that all parts of the human body are tempered, equalized, in one purpose—that is, God has given more abundant honor to those parts that seem most feeble and most uncomely. Then he declares that all members of Christ's body are similarly tempered, or equalized, and every member is essential to the well-being of the body. Those members who seem to be most feeble, least comely, are given more honor in service, more vital service.

Chapter 13 sets forth a more excellent way to the same end. The more excellent way is knowing the true nature of love and letting it control the use of gifts. Paul knew that the Corinthians, as they absorbed its meaning, would automatically be unified in the one purpose of building up the body of Christ for service.

An understanding of these two facts—first, the members of the human body tempered or equalized by God to one purpose, and, second, the unifying power of love, paves the way to unity among Christ's followers.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Work of Love.

When it was impossible for Paul to go preach and teach the people at certain places when help was needed, he often wrote long letters to them, endeavoring to assist them in their Christian work in this way.

The church at Corinth had had some contention among them. No doubt some of these differences of opinions were concerning the various gifts. In writing to them Paul said, "Some among you have received the word of wisdom; others, the word of knowledge, another, faith; some, gifts of healing; some work miracles and others prophesy; but these were all given to you by the Spirit of God. Therefore when God has given various ones among you these gifts, why do you not use them to further His cause? There should be no contention among you."

Paul tried to explain to them that all had been given special work to do in order that they might glorify their Father in heaven. Little would these various gifts amount to, if they lacked love for one another, and little could be accomplished if love was not found among them.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: The Greatest Thing in the World.

Aim: To learn that, beautiful as the diamond is, it is made from the common chemical, carbon.

Paul talks of charity or love to teach us that it is made up of the common civilities of life. Class, read the thirteenth of First Corinthians and look at every meaning of love and see if you are practicing these Christian graces. Listen: Love "suffereth long and is kind", that is patience; "envieth not; is not puffed up". Love is not boastful, is free from pride. Can we all say that? "Doth not behave itself unseemly", having regard for the feelings of others; is courteous; "seeketh not her own". Love is not always seeking to have its own way, but realizes others have rights as well as we; "is not easily provoked". —M. A. W.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Mrs. G. M. Siple of Oregon leaves Wednesday for Hammond, Indiana, where she will spend a couple of weeks with her sister.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay who suffered a sudden relapse a week ago is again nicely convalescing at his home in Oregon. His many friends wish him an early recovery from his rather prolonged sickness and his early return to his gospel labors.

OREGON, ILLINOIS, RALLY

October is Rally Month for the Church of God in Oregon.

Three accomplishments are sought:

To revive any lagging interest in any members of the church in the various church activities;

To bring others into Christian obedience and hope;

To give increased vision of Christian opportunity and duty, and to encourage greater consecration to Christ for service.

Members and attendants, old and young, are urged to heartily cooperate in this work both by daily earnest prayer and by daily earnest labor.

Sunday, October 7 is designated as Berean Rally Day.

Sunday, October 14 is set aside as Sunday School Rally Day and Church Home-Coming Day. Non-resident members of the Sunday School and of the church, and former members and others are urged to again visit the Home-Church on that day. All are invited to unite in making that day a day of great good to Sunday School and to Christian life.

DIXON, ILL., OCT. 7

While the other churches are selecting a Sunday in October to emphasize as Rally Day we are urging the members of the Dixon congregation to put forth a special effort to have a large attendance on October 7. The writer cannot be present that day, but we are glad to announce the Bro. F. L. Austin will speak at the morning service and Bro. J. Arthur Johnson in the evening. How fine it would be if each one could bring someone else to both Sunday School and Church, making it a real Rally Day!

F. E. Siple.

Special plans are being made for the second Sunday in October with the Plum

River and Adeline churches. At the Plum River church a basket dinner will be served following the morning sermon, and then an afternoon service at 2:30. At Adeline the service will convene at 7:30. Don't forget the date, Oct. 14. Bro. Siple will be the speaker and people from a distance will be welcome at both these places.

MICHIGAN

Sr. M. A. Woodward is spending a short time at Dutton, Mich. She expects to speak there Sunday, Oct. 7.

Bro. and Sr. Lorenzo Decker of Blanchard, Mich., will, D. V., celebrate their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary on October 12. The many true friends of Bro. and Sr. Decker will pray God's blessings to attend them for many years.

Several members of the Dorcas society went to the home of Sr. Taylor, on Friday afternoon of last week and canned two bushels of peaches for her. Sr. Taylor is convalescing quite satisfactorily and has been able to get around the house the past few days.

Sr. Proper, recently baptized, has moved to Muskegon Heights. Cards and letters from the members over the country would be very encouraging to her and would help her to remain true to her new faith. Her address is, Mrs. Mary E. Proper, 1626 9th St., Muskegon Heights, Mich.

Michigan will gladly unite with the Church of God through-out the land in making October a Rally Month. It would be well to start a nation wide evangelistic campaign. Evangelize old and new friends alike. The more we work the more interested we will be.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE

Felida, Washington

The Northwest Conference will hold a Quarterly Conference at Felida, Washington, Oct. 6 and 7.

All who can make it convenient to attend this meeting are urged to be present and give a helping hand to the work. Bro.

Edward McIrvin, Rt. 3, Vancouver, Wash., is chairman of the Northwest Conference.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

S. S. Rally at South Bend Sunday, Oct. 7. Come one, come all.

Sunday, October 21, will be Bible Research Rally Day when all will be asked to rally anew around the Book of books to build ever more strongly on the unfailing Word of God.

Sunday, October 28 will be Decision and Consecration Day. Members who have been studying with us are urged to not let October 28 pass by without giving themselves to Christ; and all such, together with those already doing Christian service are urged to make increased consecration of life's powers and talents to Him who died for us.

All in connection with the Oregon work are urged to attend every service in October and to do all possible to make this the greatest of all months to date in the furtherance of the service of the Church of God in Oregon.

Pray and work.

MRS. NEILL JEFFREY

Dear Brother Austin: I have been requested to send you a notice of the death of Sister Neill Jeffrey who died at Cleveland, Ohio, Sunday, Sept. 16, 1928.

She had been a faithful member of the Church of God for over forty years, most of which time was spent in Cleveland, although she resided for some years at Salem, O., and Murphysboro, Ill. She was an ardent and zealous worker and greatly loved by all who knew her.

Funeral services were held at the church on Lee Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday, Sept. 18 and burial was made in the family lot at Lake View Cemetery, where she awaits the coming of the Lord whom she so much loved.

Complement to Other Church Activities". This was followed by discussion on "Our Junior Text Book and How To Use It", led by Sr. Verna Thayer, who wrote the Junior book. Next was a paper by Sr. Carrie W. Chambers, entitled "Search the Scriptures", followed by a discussion on "Our Senior Text Book and How To Use It", led by M. W. Lyon, who had charge of the preparation of the Senior book.

At the business session at 3 o'clock a motion was passed that a committee be appointed to consider and recommend changes in the constitution and to report at the next conference. The chair appointed to this committee M. W. Lyon and Leila E. Whitehead. There was considerable discussion of the system and lack of system in the different departments of our work and all seemed to feel that we are not getting the results we ought to get from the amount of machinery we have. We are still trying to operate with the same primitive organization with which the National Berean Society first started, and we have long outgrown it. So we shall try to reorganize the National, in order to be better prepared to organize and assist the state and local societies. The constitution committee will welcome suggestions along this line.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:
President, Mrs. Lydia Railsback, 621 S. Fellows St.,
South Bend, Ind.

1st Vice-pres., C. E. Randall, 101 West Hall St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

2nd Vice-pres., L. T. Hanson, Franklin Grove, Ill.

Recording and Corresponding Secretary, M. W. Lyon, 14317 Darley Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Treasurer, Miss Sybil Guthrie, Mullin, Texas.

The following committee appointments were made by the executive board:

Lesson Book, F. E. Siple, Oregon, Ill.

Relief, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 725 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Literary, F. E. Siple.

Editor, F. E. Siple.

Tract, J. A. Johnson, Oregon, Ill.

Program, Paul Hatch, Oregon, Ill.

Social Correspondence, Senior, Mrs. May Moore, Box
44, Bartley, Neb.

Junior, Miss Dorothy Magaw, 1646 Sherburne Ave.,
St. Paul, Minn.

Organization, Mrs. W. H. Allard, Cedar Falls, Iowa.
Isolated, Miss Margaret Lyon, 535 N. Central Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

Senior Extension, Mrs. Edith Miller, 314 W. Chamberlain
St., Dixon, Ill.

Junior Extension, Mrs. Lillian Railton, Fonthill, Ontario, Canada.

Distributor of Literature, Mrs. Vivian McGraw,
Oregon, Ill.

The board authorized the book committee to start a colportage work to determine whether Berean literature can be successfully sold by house-to-house canvass, as other organizations do their books. It is hoped that some definite report and recommendation can be made at the spring board meeting next year. The chairman of the book committee would be glad to hear from any who would be in a position to take up this work, and who would like to engage in it or learn more of the plan of procedure.

It is felt that this conference was in many ways one of the most profitable ever held:

M. W. Lyon, Secretary.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.—Jno. 6:47.

He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.—Mk. 16:16.

And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.—Jno. 3:14-15.

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—Jno. 3:16.

SPIRITUAL GIFTS

"And how is this love shown?" continued Miss Trueworth. Then the girls in turn read, "Suffereth long, is kind, envieth not, is not puffed up, does not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, and thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Charity never faileth."

The girls seemed to realize that love was deep and covered nearly everything in life.

In conclusion the class read the last verse together, "'And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.'"

Each one resolved to show her love in helpful service—a needed hand, or foot or eye.

"Now, girls, we must go home. Do be sure to learn your memory verse, and read the Junior notes by M. A. W. in your quarterly. And oh, yes, the Daily Readings, too."

OXFORD BIBLES

THE NEW BASKET WEAVE BINDING

THIS NEW BINDING is grained with a basket weave design which, as shown in the illustration, extends over most of the front, as well as the entire back cover. The highly finished calf leather, dark brown in color, combined with the unusual basket weave grain, give these volumes a striking and rich effect.

The button-clasp keeps the volumes tightly closed, and preserves their shapeliness. The covers, which are slightly overlapping, are lined with brown imitation silk. All styles are the Authorized or King James Version, and are printed on the famous Oxford India paper. The Bibles contain six beautifully colored maps.

Although these volumes have been announced but a short time ago, we have experienced difficulty in keeping enough stock on hand always to supply our orders. This, to us, is conclusive evidence that those who see these volumes in the new basket weave binding are pleased with them.

ANOTHER CHURCH DEDICATED CHURCH OF THE GOLDEN RULE

A NEW OPPORTUNITY has opened and a new day has dawned for the Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, if indications of the past month can be judged aright. There is very little to recognize of the congregation that was, so great has been the change that has taken place since our dedication.

Our new church building, which had been under construction since the middle of April, was dedicated on Sept. 9. It is located at 13905 Diana Ave., about seven miles northeast of the Cleveland Public Square and a half mile south of the shore of Lake Erie. The community is thickly populated but had no church nearby. The opening was well advertised. We arranged to have 500 Sunday School quarterlies printed, with a cut of the church on the front, and with special advertising on the other covers. These were distributed to nearly all the homes in the neighborhood. In addition to this, we are having printed a small eight-page church paper, called the Golden Rule News, which was also distributed to the entire community just previous to the opening. Every home was called on personally by a volunteer committee of canvassers who collected information on each family as they extended the invitation to the church.

Many others of the congregation had been at work for many days previous getting the building in readiness. They installed the seats, washed windows and floors, put down the carpet and many other necessary things. On August 31st we had a shower on the church, in the church. Each brought some little article needed for furnishing, such as mops, brooms, soap, towels, etc. The night before, the boys got together and painted the brick walls of the basement. All were busy day and night until the last day, and when Sunday Sept. 9 dawned everything was ready for the occasion.

Dedication Day was ideal in every way. The day itself was all that could be desired. Sunday School opened the program at 9:30, with 84 present. Having been accustomed to seeing about 15 in Sunday School month in and month out, we could hardly believe we were in the right place. After the classes the children were all treated with candy suckers.

The dedication service began at 10:45. For this the church was well filled. The exact number is not known, but there were easily over one hundred. Bro. G. E. Marsh delivered the dedication sermon, beautifully appropriate to the occasion. There were three special musical numbers and the program was carried out very effectively. All present seemed highly enthusiastic about the services throughout. A large number of the people from the neighborhood were there, in fact they constituted the majority of the congregation. Bro. and Sr. Clarence Doll, with their daughter and two neighbors, Mrs. Kirk and her daughter, all of Dayton, drove up for the dedication, a distance of 225 miles.

The evening service at 8 o'clock was also well attended. Bro. Conner spoke on "The Golden Rule", which the church has chosen as its new name. This name signifies,

A PRAYER

Now therefore, O our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary that is desolate, for the Lord's sake.

O my God, incline thine ear, and hear; open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city which is called by thy name: for we do not present our supplications before thee for our righteousnesses, but for thy great mercies.

O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, for thine own sake, O my God: for thy city and thy people are called by thy name.—Dan. 9:17-19.

CHRISTIANITY

CHRISTIANITY does not consist of an act or of a series of acts. It consists of the abiding status of the mind and the set purpose of the individual. Actions are but fruits of chosen ways.

INCREASE OUR FAITH

LIKE EVERYTHING ELSE faith is increased by practice. He who would place much faith in God must exercise faith in the lesser matters also. The apostles had faith to a limited degree. They were chagrined that their faith was not sufficient to accomplish all that the Saviour had instructed. The Saviour's mild reproof was rather a revelation when He said, "O ye of little faith". Much faith would have meant more accomplishment by them in the name of their Lord.

That that was true of them is true also of us, to-day. Greater faith by the followers of Christ would bring them to do greater things in His name. Greater accomplishments in His name would proclaim greater honor to God. Greater honor to God would arouse greater numbers to accept God and to serve Him. Thus greater numbers would attain unto salvation.

Faith conquers the world.

Lord, increase our faith.

PRAYER CHANGES THINGS

THAT GOD answers prayer is evidenced both in the written word of God and in the experience of life. But prayer is not a mere formal act or expression except as such act or expression is the outgrowth of an abiding condition of life. The bare word without the heart of the speaker is nought. The heart that earnestly prays is a heart that abides in God continually day after day. Such a one longs to be true to God; he hungers to be present with Him and to have Him present with himself. His life and aim are to honor God in all of God's ways. Self is abandoned. The petition of such a life, when answered brings the petitioner nearer to God in strength and ability of service, nearer to Him in communion, nearer to Him in understanding and aim.

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof". He has appointed this to the leadership of His Son. His Son is selecting out a people whom He can crown by His own side in the discharge of this leadership of the world. Said crowning will be accomplished only when He comes. But, in the meantime, Christ is giving unto His called-out-ones an earnest of His promise to them. To-day, in measure, they are exalted with Him. To them He has given large tasks, like, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature". For such tasks His followers need God's help. For that help and strength and wisdom and favor they are told to "ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."

God is willing, He is anxious to do for His children. He only asks that they shall be true to Him. For such He certainly works; He answers their prayers; He literally changes things to conform to their petitions.

"Lord, teach us to pray."

He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God—Jno. 3:18.

RALLY DAYS

"We are laborers together with God."—1 Cor. 3:9.

RALLY DAYS are days of work. They call for work for the particular occasion and for even greater work to follow up.

All Christianity necessitates work. Christianity is based on faith; faith works. A Rally Day inspires one to put his faith into more strenuous activity.

It is pleasing to receive notes from different points of intention to designate some Sunday in October for Rally Day Sunday. May all such work be done in a way as to honor God most possible. Prompted by such motive there is no doubt but that the Father awaits His opportunity to aid His workers.

Let us pray that His guidance and blessings will be greatly witnessed in many places and in many ways through this rally effort.

FIVE OF YOU SHALL CHASE AN HUNDRED

If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them; . . . five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten-thousand to flight—Lev. 26:2-13.

“One hundred thousand men and women organized to promote a cause”, writes C. M. Filmore in The No-Tobacco Journal, “can accomplish more than one million holding the same sentiments but working each in his own way as individuals. By organization we mean people who are united in mind, heart, will, conscience and action.”

Such is Mr. Filmore’s estimation of the power of organization. In that he is in exact harmony with all of the great thinkers of the day. Organization has given to the world all of its masterly achievements—politically, socially, financially, and commercially. The great towering financial and commercial structures of this day are examples. The Standard Oil Company is not the property of one man. It belongs to thousands of men and women, some of whom live in the vicinity of each and every reader of these lines. The investments, large and small, of the many have been organized under the management of a few, and the result of such financial organization has resulted in the monster company of today. The same is true in all lines.

How strikingly is this principle illustrated in the workings of Israel under God. Always when they banded their forces together in true submission to God, their strength was greatly in excess of any and all other nations. True, God could have accomplished all by Himself, alone. But the manner in which Israel accomplished was by hearty earnest agreement and service with God. It was the best of organization.

Are not these same basic facts true today? Is it not true that in proportion as you and I will diligently co-operate in service to God our labors will prosper? No one man can do what many men can do co-operating truly in like spirit and earnestness.

“United in mind, heart, will, conscience and action”, is the description of Mr. Filmore, cited above. Here is the secret. Such a union of Christian people in devotion to Christian service can and do realize much in their Master’s name.

Brethren, let us unite more strongly for service. Throughout the nation let us Rally to carry the General Conference work rapidly forward in the name of our Saviour. Having ordered certain work to be undertaken let us one and all put our shoulders to the task and with prayer and strength and money proclaim the gospel through press and pulpit and personal influence to the limit of God’s good pleasure in us.

The Lord loveth a cheerful worker.—Fred Woehlers.

It behooves the Christian these days to watch his step lest he be run over by the devil’s Juggernaut.

CONCERNING THE GENDER OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

THROUGHOUT the King James translation of the Bible the pronoun used of the “Holy Spirit” is usually “he”. Some other translations capitalize the pronoun, writing it thus, “He”. The Diaglott and the Concordant versions refer to the “Holy Spirit” by the pronoun “it”.

The Greek language designates the gender in which the noun or pronoun is used by the spelling of the word. John 14:17 reads, “Even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.” With Bagster’s Analytical Greek Lexicon before me as I write, I find that in this text the Greek word for “whom” is written in the neuter gender of the word that means “who, or which.” Being in the neuter gender, it could hardly refer to “whom”, but rather to “which” as it is here used both in the Diaglott and Concordant translations. The Diaglott here reads, “which the world cannot receive”. That this is most probably correct is assured by the pronoun in the following clauses, which clauses in King James translation read: “because it seeth him not”, and “neither knoweth him”. “Him” in both of these clauses is taken from the Greek pronoun auto, which the Lexicon defines as the neuter gender for the pronoun autos. Both the Diaglott and the Concordant versions read “it” instead of “him” in both of these clauses. Quoting from the Diaglott, the verse reads: “the Spirit of truth, which the world cannot receive, Because it beholds it not, nor knows it; but you know it; Because it abides with you, and will be in you.”

This is but one of many citations that might be analyzed with the same result. I am not suggesting that the King James translation is erroneous. I am merely calling attention to the fact that the word “him”, as applied to the “Holy Spirit” seldom, if ever, is so written in the Greek text as to indicate the masculine gender; rather the Greek text indicates the neuter gender. “Holy Spirit” then, so far as the Greek text which the apostles wrote would indicate, is referred to as of neuter gender, that is, as inanimate, non-personal in itself.

This same truth is noted also with reference to “spirit” other than holy. Matthew 12:43 reads in King James authorized version: “When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, . . .” According to the Lexicon above referred to the adjective “unclean” qualifying “spirit” is in the neuter gender. It must agree in gender with the word “spirit”. As the word “spirit” is not here written so as to indicate its gender, the adjective frequently provides this information. In this text “unclean” is neuter, therefore “spirit” is neuter. Therefore the “unclean spirit” was not a person, an individual within the man; rather the “unclean spirit” was something inanimate, neuter in gender, that was within the man. The Diaglott

A PETITION

Like as a Father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. Psa. 103:13-14.

I love thee, Lord, and so I seek
To know and do Thy will;
But if through blindness I should err,
Forgive and love me still.

I boast no righteousness, nor yet
Is holiness my plea;
For ah! my heart knows none save His,
Who bled and died for me.

Nor am I perfect yet! this heart
Is human, not divine,
And still must bear the taint of sin,
Till it becomes like Thine.

For but one perfect, faultless life,
This earth has ever known
One spotless heart untouched by sin—
And that, dear Lord, Thine own.

But blameless, through Thy grace bestowed,
I strive to live each day,
Listening to hear Thy faintest call,
And waiting to obey.

And if sometimes, amid the strife,
Thy voice I fail to hear,
Lord, speak again, and make me know
What Thy commandments are.

Or if my feet should chance to stray,
O! holy One and just,
Look from Thy throne of perfectness,
Remembering I am dust.

And throw the mantle of Thy love
Around me as I roam,
Till warmed beneath its folds, my heart
Shall turn again toward home.

LIFE'S HIGHEST GOAL

By Lydia Railsback

IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE, each member has or should have an object in view—something to look to, to lift him up and spur him on to greater efforts. True, some seem so low in life that nothing attracts, except the daily grind for something to satisfy hunger and thirst or other soulual pleasures. They have no aim in life other than to satisfy their worldly lusts. Their minds, what little they have are entirely occupied with something low and degrading. They know nothing as to Christ and His mission, nor do they care to know. All they ask is to be let alone in their degradation and sin—no thought of to-morrow nor of a future life. What a pity! What a shame!

Let us turn over the leaf. Here we see a tiny babe nourished and given all the care of a Christian home. What a difference! This child can and no doubt will have an aim in life; one that will constantly be reaching out for something higher and better. This child's mind can be filled with something useful and ennobling. It can be taught the life and character of Jesus, and afterward the love that the Father hath bestowed upon us that we may be called His sons. This child may also be taught why Christ came into the world and what it may mean to Him and all others who hear and obey His voice.

Coming to grownups. Have we been taught these things? If not, can we yet learn them? Do we desire to learn all we can of the Father and His Son and what they mean to us? If so, shall it be our aim to live for Him who died that we might live? Just what is our aim in life anyway? Do we deserve any credit or honor for what we do and what we are? I would say all honor and glory belong to the Father who put us here.

Christ died and was buried, but He was not left in the tomb. He was brought forth and became "the first-fruits of them that sleep. Do we want to be brought forth from among the dead? Paul says, 1 Thess. 4:14, "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him". Do we believe that Jesus died and rose again? I would say "yes" if we are true Christians. Then life's goal should be to attain unto the resurrection out from among the dead, to live and reign with Christ that He and the Father may be glorified through us.

REPENTANCE

AS TAUGHT IN OLD TESTAMENT AND BY JUDAISM

By C. E. Randall

REPENTANCE occupies a very unique and important place in the teachings of the Old Testament. The reasons for this are very evident. God is setting before sinful man the way to return and come back to Him. He not only directs the sinner—but is most urgent in persuading him to "consider his ways" lest sin bestow upon him its wage, which is "death".

The word which is used in the Old Testament for repentance is the every-day Hebrew word for "turn about; go back". Repentance, as used, does not merely convey the thought of turning back to God; but in substance, is the abandonment of evil deeds and evil intentions—a radical change of conduct and motive.

Dr. George Foot Moore, of Harvard University, in his book on "Judaism" says, "The essentially moral character of repentance is exemplified by the 'nine norms' of repentance (corresponding to the nine days intervening between New Years and the Day of Atonement), which are found in the nine exhortations God utters in Isa. 1:16: 'Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.' " He continues, "Repentance, as a turning from sin unto God, involves not only desisting from sinful act, but the resolve not to commit it again."

Maimonides, in commenting on the teaching of Judaism, says: "What is repentance? Repentance is that the sinner forsakes his sin and puts it away out of his thoughts and fully resolves in his mind that he will not do it again; as it is written, 'Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts.' "—Isa. 55:7. If a man repents and then goes back to committing the same sins, there was no true repentance.

Centuries ago Sirach used the following figure: "A man who bathes (to purify himself) from (contact with) a dead body, and touches it again, what profit was there in his bath? So a man who fasts for his sins and goes again and does the same things—who will listen to his prayer, and what profit was there in his afflicting himself?" In the final analysis, repentance is a turning away from sin due to one's love for God and a refraining from thinking about and doing of those things of which the individual has repented.

"God", says Philo, "esteems repentance as highly as sinlessness. Repentance is a purification of the heart or mind. 'O Jerusalem, wash thine heart from wickedness that thou mayest be saved. How long shall vain thoughts lodge within thee?' " Jer. 4:14. There is nothing else that can purify from sin. To the unrepentant God says: "For though thou wash thee with nitre (mineral alkali), and take thee much sope, yet thine iniquity is marked before me saith the Lord God." Jer. 2:22. God's way of cleansing is the only way and that is the way of repentance. Even a man's good works do not assist him in the day that he transgresses. "Therefore, thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression: as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth." Ezek. 33:12.

The Father requires a full and complete acknowledgment of sin. There is sin in the concealment of sin. "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy." Prov. 28:13. It should be remembered, that we cannot hide our sins from God. "The eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good." Prov. 15:3.

God's grace and mercy in granting sinful man the opportunity to repent, does not allow of continual usage to atone for sins which have been deliberately committed. That is, because God is long suffering is no reason why we should expect Him to forgive us for willing repetition of sins for which we have asked forgiveness. Jesus, son of Sirach, writes: "Say not, I sinned, and what happened to me? For the Lord is long suffering. Do not become rashly confident about expiation, and go on adding sin to sins; and do not say His compassion is great, He will forgive the multitude of my sins; for mercy and wrath are with Him, and upon sinners His anger will rest. Delay not to turn to the Lord (repent), and do not put it off from day to day." Eccl. 5:4-7. This writer of the Apocrypha may not have been inspired to write these lines; but the truth contained in these verses cannot be justly questioned. They are highly illuminating on the mind and thought of Judaism concerning repentance. We will not go astray if we heed their timely warning.

FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT

By Samuel E. Haney

AND THE KING SAID (unto Abner), Enquire thou whose son the stripling is".—1 Samuel 17:56.

Saul had previously inquired about the youth, v. 55, i. e., "And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner, whose son is this youth?"

After the "slaughter" Saul had a personal interview with David, and put the question himself, vv. 57, 58, "And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand. And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Bethlehemite". Saul's curiosity was aroused by the great discrepancy in age, stature and implements of combat between champion and challenger.

Now, David was Jesse's youngest son, a shepherd boy, while his opponent was a "man of war from his youth", v. 33, and about ten feet tall, v. 4: "All the men of Israel, . . . fled from him, and were sore afraid", v. 24; yet, the stripling youth entered the battle with five smooth stones and a sling, v. 40, and the giant with the full battle regalia, and the "staff of his spear like a weaver's beam", vv. 4-7.

Try picturing the psychological effect that this mountain of flesh should have had on David as he entered the battle royal. Then notice what discomfiture the Holy Spirit, operating in this honest, fearless youth, caused, and how it triumphed over the seemingly impossible.

Note the introductory remarks of the combatants, vv. 42-46, "And when the Philistine looked about, and saw David, he disdained him: for he was but a youth, and ruddy, and of fair countenance. And the Philistine said unto David, Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. And the Philistine said to David, Come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field. Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied,

This day will the LORD deliver thee into mine hand; and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give the carcasses of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel".

From David and the Christian's viewpoint this battle was really between the "gods" of this world, actuated by the evil one, and the God of the universe—our heavenly Father. It has ever been so since the fall. Yet, the spirit so heroically manifested by David has been spiritually radioed all down the Christian era giving myriads of saints inspiration and courage to battle and overcome a greater than Goliath of Gath, even man's common enemy, the devil. For if we have God on our side, and Christ in our hearts, we are sure to conquer.

But notice particularly v. 47: "And all this assembly shall know that the LORD saveth not with sword and spear: for the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hands." The same truth is recorded, 1 Samuel 2:9, "He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness; for by strength shall no man prevail". And Jahaziel in comforting all Judah, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and king Jehoshaphat, had this to say, "Thus saith the LORD unto you, Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for the battle is not your's, but God's. . . . Ye shall not need to fight in this battle; set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the LORD with you, O Judah and Jerusalem: fear not, nor be dismayed; to-morrow go out against them: for the LORD will be with you". 2 Chron. 20:15-17.

If we could but have the foregoing facts indelibly impressed upon our minds, what incentives they would be in battling with our Goliaths, which we imagine tower above David's antagonist! But, verily, there are but few Jobs, Davids, Daniels and Pauls in our day and generation, which is the result of viewing matters from the human instead of the spiritual standpoint: depending upon "sword and spear" when we ought to "set ourselves, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD."

When a molehill suddenly looms into an imaginary mountain how we tremble with fear, losing sight of our "strength in the grace that is in Christ Jesus", 2 Tim. 2:1; and the fact that the Lord gives us "power . . . over all the power of the enemy: and (that) nothing shall by any means hurt you", Luke 10:19. But David had a receptive and retentive mind, which served him well in facing this big little man. When he said, "I come to thee in the name of the LORD of hosts", he became the little big man; for no power on earth nor among the evil spirits of Satan's invisible domain can vanquish a person motivated, as David was, by faith in "the God of the armies of Israel".

The person who has not his daily battles with the "old man" needs be "apprehended of Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:12); and to be sincerely baptized into Jesus Christ's death, that he may be also in the likeness of His resurrection. Rom. 6:3-5.

Self to the Christian is a greater hostility than was Goliath to David. While the enemy cannot directly touch the new creature (1 John 5:18), he can via the flesh; hence, he is ever "seeking whom (of God's children) he may devour", (1 Pet. 5:8) from this angle. Let Paul explain: "That is how I run, not being in any doubt as to my goal. I am a boxer who does not inflect blows on the air, but I hit hard and straight at my own body and lead it off into slavery, lest possibly, after I have been a herald to others, I should myself be rejected", 1 Cor. 9:26, 27, Wey., ("unworthy of the crown and the prize", Ellicott).

"Fight" should be the Christian's middle name. A coward gets nowhere in this warfare. Paul's teachings by precept and example: "Fight (Timothy) the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life". 1 Tim. 6:12. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept faith". 2 Tim. 4:7.

"What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us? He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. . . . Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us". Rom. 8:31-33, 37.

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

By W. J. Davis

FIRST OF ALL, I must hear the gospel. Why? Because the gospel "is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth".—Rom. 1:16.

We learn in the above the GOSPEL is the power of God unto salvation, therefore we must believe the gospel; have faith in the gospel. How does faith come? "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Rom. 10:17. In whom must we believe? "For there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved (speaking of Christ)." Acts 4:10-12.

We must repent. What is repentance? It is a godly sorrow for sins committed; a sorrow that need not be repented of. 2 Cor. 7:9-10. As the little girl said, "Repentance means to be sorry enough to quit." The word of God says, "For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin."—Heb. 10:26.

After repentance, what? "Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall (not may) receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."—Acts 2:37-38.

Jesus said "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved, but he that believeth not, shall be damned."—Mark 16:15-16.

I imagine some one saying: Why does any one want to drag in that old threadbare subject? I answer, why do all ministers of the gospel, keep hashing over the doctrine of Repentance, Pardon, Justification, Holiness, Sanctification, the Lord's Supper, etc.? Is not the ordinance of baptism given to us of the Lord equally sacred as other commands and ordinances? I believe, we must have a true conception of the gospel, in order to be saved; and obey from the heart, that form of doctrine which was delivered to you. That "form," not forms. Are there various ways of faith, repentance, sanctification? Is there more than one Lord? I think we all with one accord say, no! Well, are there several ways to baptize? The word of God says "one Lord, one faith, one baptism."—Eph. 4:5. Now, as I understand it, just as there is but one Lord, one faith, just so true is there but one mode in administering water Baptism. Is it reasonable that the Lord would have given several modes of baptism? If an intelligent faith is not necessary unto salvation, if simply because we are honest and conscientious in our belief, we are saved, if that be true, I say, there is no use, yea it is positively wicked to send missionaries to heathen lands to convert them to our Christian faith, because they all have a religion, a faith, to which they are far more devout than we Protestants. Are they saved? If not, why not? You will agree with me they are not saved, because their faith is not an intelligent faith based upon the gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and obedience thereto. Now, if this be true, and we go carelessly, and indifferently along, without "searching the scriptures" as Jesus commanded, and practice a false doctrine, how much better chance at the judgment will we have, than the ignorant heathen? you with the Bible in your hand, he without the Bible.

Is it reasonable that God, the Lord Jesus Christ, would require us to do a thing, to be baptized, and leave us in the dark, in uncertainty as to how to perform that sacred ordinance? I think not. What saith the Scriptures? "Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judaea . . . and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins." Matt. 3:6. Baptized in Jordan. We are told that this Jordan is a river. "And there went out unto him all the land of Judaea, . . . and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan."—Mark 1:5.

It begins to look as if to administer the ordinance of Baptism, we need a good deal of water. We read on, "And John also was baptizing in Enon near Salim, because, there was much water there."—John 3:23. We observe that John was baptizing in Enon "because there was much water there." Well, some one may say, that does not say he put them down in the water, and immersed them! He might have dipped it up and poured it on, or sprinkled them.

We now read Acts 8:38-39, "And they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he (Philip) baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip." According to the foregoing, the one that does the baptizing, and the one to be baptized, both go down into the water, and come up out of the water; but, says the objector, even though they did go down into the water, it doesn't say Philip put the eunuch down under. Now, if sprinkling, or pouring a little water on a person is baptism, it seems strange, even foolish, that any one would go down into a stream of water. Why not just dip up a cup full and pour it on, or sprinkle it on? Well, we have learned it takes much water, and that the preacher and candidate went down into the water and came up out of it. We now turn to Rom. 6:3, "Therefore we are buried with him (Christ) by baptism into death."

Here we observe Baptism requires a death and a burial. This I understand, to be a figure, of Christ's death and burial; in Rom. 6:5-6, "For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection, knowing this that our old man is crucified with him, . . . that henceforth we should not serve sin." "Planted" in the "likeness" of His death; not a real physical death as His was, but in the "likeness" of it.

Now let us consider the word "planted." Jesus was crucified, killed; He was buried; put into the ground in the tomb; planted, out of sight. When the farmer plants the seed, he does not sprinkle a little dust over it, he puts the seed into the ground; he buries it; therefore the Word says, if we are "planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." You would have to be buried and then raised to be in the likeness of His resurrection, knowing our "old man" is crucified with Him, Christ, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

We know when any one dies, or any animal dies, it is customary to bury them. In the above we see our old man is crucified, together with the affections and lusts, the next thing in order is the burial, in the likeness of Christ's death and burial. Now the Word says if we follow Him in the likeness of His death and burial, we shall also be in the likeness of His resurrection: not that we will put on immortality as He did, and can not die, but in the likeness of that, inasmuch as the person will not remain buried; but raised from the watery grave to walk in newness of life, even as He walked. And how did He walk? "He was tempted as we are, yet without sin." We observe then, that baptism is a figure, or type of the death of Jesus, the burial of Jesus, and also His resurrection.

Who are eligible to this sacred ordinance, baptism? As we all know, it is first hearing, then faith. "Faith comes by hearing" and hearing by the Word, then repentance, then baptism. Can a baby, a little child, or an idiot exercise faith? Can they repent? Have they ever sinned that there is any need of repentance? "Then Peter said unto them, Repent and be baptized every one

UPHELD BY JESUS

When heart and flesh despondent sink,
And from life's war we fain would shrink,
One upward glance brings heavenly cheer—
Upheld by Him I smile at fear.

When troubles like a mountain rise,
And comfort from my bosom flies,
To Him I sue for sure relief—
Upheld by Him I smile at grief.

When life appears a sea of woe,
And all its waves my soul o'erflow,
I to the mercy-seat repair—
Upheld by Him I smile at care.

When earthly treasure fails and fades,
And chilling poverty invades;
He every needed good will grant—
Upheld by Him I smile at want.

When faith grows dim, and from its sight
My star of hope would veil its light,
Grace bids a beam of joy shine out—
Upheld by Him I smile at doubt.

When waisting anguish and disease
Upon my suffering body seize,
My murmuring lips will not complain—
Upheld by Him I smile at pain.

And if 'tis mine ere time shall close
To slumber in the grave's repose,
With joy I yield my failing breath—
Upheld by Him I smile at death!

IMMORTALITY OF THE HUMAN SOUL

IS IT TRUE?

By S. T. Shirley

THE PREVALENT BELIEF IS that "man is possessed of an immortal soul, a never dying entity that leaves the body at, what we call, death and immediately enters a state of bliss or punishment according to the deeds done while in the body". The question is, Does the Bible teach such a doctrine? Are the words "immortal soul", "immortal spirit", or any living entity leaving the body at death in a conscious existence, mentioned in the Holy Book, generally admitted to have been written by men inspired by a divine creative power? If so, I ask in all candor, where?

The question of the ages is, What is man? Taking the Bible as holy writ, I appeal to it for information. "The LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his (man's) nostrils the breath of life: and man became a living soul."—Gen. 2:7. Does this not say as plainly as words can explain it that man was made of the dust and by putting into him the breath of life the man became a living soul, a living, active, moving creature? That breath of life, air we breathe, the life-giving principle—call it what you please—removed and man is but the lifeless corpse that we see at every funeral held. When, where, how can we find proof of any consciousness, except the functioning of the brain while the breath is in the body? Beside this we have the positive statement that Jesus Christ at His appearing shall show us, "Who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen nor can see."—1 Timothy 6:15-16. More than this man is commanded to "seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life". Rom. 2:7. Why is mankind commanded to seek for immortality, if already possessed of it?

Read this account of creation as you would read any other book for information. Read the Bible as a whole—general knowledge, its history, etc., as a lawyer must study law in general—civil law, criminal law, specialties. In any case, the lawyer must study the law applicable to the particular case. So in Bible study. Reference Bible and Concordance in hand we can study the following subjects: "The Nature of Man", "Life of Christ", "God's Everlasting Kingdom", "The Location and Time of the Kingdom", "Future Life, When and Where"—all are of vital importance to the true Bible student. "Search the Scriptures" is the command and it is the only way of getting the "Truth" on these subjects.

Modernism, so-called Science and man-made creeds so differ on this question as to prove to any reasonable, comprehensive mind that they are not of inspired origin, therefore not reliable or satisfactory. God told Adam that if he partook of the forbidden fruit he would surely die, (become subject to death). The serpent approached Eve and told her that she would not surely die; that by eating the fruit, forbidden they would be as gods knowing good from evil. Gen. 3:1-5. Which told the truth, God or the Devil?

Truth: "Man dieth, and wasteth away: yea, . . . man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Job 14:10-12. Job, realizing man's lost condition, asks, "If a man die, shall he live again?" And says: "all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands." Job 14:14-15. For further proof of man's state in death read Eccl: 3:17-21; Job 17:11-16; 19:25-28.

WHERE ARE THE PATIARCHS?

"Faith is the substance of things hoped for, . . . By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; . . . By faith Noah, . . . prepared an ark . . . By faith Abraham, . . . sojourned in the land of promise, . . . These all died in faith, not having received the promises." Heb. 11:1-13. David "is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day." Acts 2:29. "David is not ascended into the heavens: . . . The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand until I make thy foes thy footstool." Acts 2:34, 35.

HOPE IN CHRIST

He ascended to His father in heaven, but He will come again in like manner as He was seen to go into heaven. Acts 1:1-11. Hope in the resurrection of the dead: Christ died, rose again to redeem mankind from sin—man's only hope. 1 Cor. 15.

RESULT: REV. 11:15-17.

John the Revelator visioned the whole future of mankind, Rev. 1:1-3: Christ comes in the clouds and every eye shall see Him. The "kingdoms of this world are became the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." Rev. 11:15. Read Rev. 20. "A new heavens and a new earth"—a new constitution of things on the earth, the final restitution of all things promised, Acts 3:19-21—"then all tears shall be wiped away." Rev. 21.

THE KINGS OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH

By J. E. Hatch

DAVID REIGNED forty years over all Israel, seven years in Hebron and thirty-three years in Jerusalem. He did that which pleased God, and Solomon reigned after his death.

Solomon reigned forty years and followed his father's way, but in the end did evil in the sight of the Lord. After Solomon's death the kingdom of Israel was divided. Ten of the tribes revolted against king Rehoboam, son of Solomon, and chose Jeroboam, an Ephrathite, as their king.

Following are the kings of Israel and of Judah, as recorded in the two books of the Kings, in the order of their reign, and the length of time each reigned; also whether they did good or evil in the sight of God. All the kings of the ten tribes followed in the path of Jeroboam, who did evil in the sight of the Lord:

MY PALESTINE TRIP

By Mrs. Elnora Skinner

HALF AN HOUR'S RIDE from Nazareth brings us to Cana of Galilee. Here the first miracle of Christ was performed of turning water to wine at a wedding feast.

From this place onward the mountains became more rugged and precipitous because of their volcanic nature. On the highest point of the plateau before descending the embankment of the lake there are some huge blocks of basalt. This is the place where Jesus fed the four thousand men besides women and children with seven loaves and a few fishes. At this point a full view of the lake was seen: a blue of crystal set in a bowl of green. For about a mile the muddy Jordan stains the waters at the north end of the lake forming a dark stream with the blue of Galilee on either side before it is warmed to the extent of assimilating itself in the water of the lake. The lake is fourteen miles long and six miles wide. The road doubled back and forth down the hill for six hundred feet before the shores of the lake were reached and we rode into Tiberias the most important and largest town on its shores.

The lake and its region around is the setting of most of Christ's ministry and miracles, where no doubt He spent most of His enjoyable moments before the time arrived for His passion at Jerusalem, and gathered most of His disciples. In truth, it can be called the cradle of Christianity. Situated around the lake are numerous sites of towns familiar to the Christian, Bethsaida, Capernaum and Chorazin.

At Zammarin the ancient custom of the Jews is adhered to. The gates and doors of the houses are made with tubes of olive wood with the ten commandments written upon them. The Jews kiss these tubes whenever they go in or out.

Returning to Nazareth we took the road to Haifa along the side of the Carmel Range through the plain of Esdraelon. Very soon we crossed the Kishon and drove along the side of Carmel to Haifa.

Much more time and space could be used in describing the towns and places of Palestine, but it would get monotonous to the reader no doubt, as the average reader is unfamiliar with the topography of the place, But this much can be said. The improvements being brought about in Palestine are going to be of far reaching effect upon the country. There were some of the party that had made two or three trips before and they said that some towns even of two years back are hardly to be recognized to-day as being the same. Among the things I noticed were the extremes of temperatures between places not far distant from each other. At Jerusalem and Nazareth we almost froze while at Jericho and Tiberias one could hardly get one's breath for the heat.

Our next stop was at Port Said, where we took train to Cairo, passing through the Sinai Desert and the delta lands of the Nile, the ancient Land of Goshen. The Sinai Desert had a few settlements here and there. The houses were made of adobe and looked like places unfit for humans to live—animals, chickens and people all living together. The families live in villages or settlements and go to their farms during the day.

The land of Goshen is a little better and is the best part of Egypt. From the train windows one sees oftentimes hitched together to a plow, a donkey and a bullock, or sometimes a cow and a camel. Rude water wheels, which are revolved by blindfolded donkeys, buffaloes or camels are used in irrigation and the wheels raise the water from one level to a higher. Some times this is done by men and boys scooping the water up in baskets. Three yearly crops are reaped off of this land. The cereal crop is sown in November and harvested in May. The summer crops are cotton, sugar and rice and the fall crops sown in July are corn, millet and vegetables.

More could be written about Egypt: about the museums and buildings; gardens and parks; my ride to the pyramids and the Sphinx on a camel; and of Cairo Luxor express train that was burned with Eastman, the kodak man, as passenger; of the threatened uprising of the Egyptians and the British precautions, but I understand that is not wanted in the Herald.

The thing that most impressed me all through the East is the work of the Near East Relief. They are taking the war orphans and giving them a good education, teaching them to read and write, and a trade or useful occupation. After they have been taught to read, a Bible is given them printed in their own language. While we were at Cairo the orphans were having Sunday School on the street. Here the town party of four hundred and seventy raised over seven hundred dollars for this branch of the Relief as we had been informed that there was a shortage of funds. The children themselves will not accept any money from Americans, as they are thankful for what America has already done for them. Their desire is to make their own way in the world.

The End.

War is old—pathetically old,
Tragically futile, hopelessly antiquated.
Peace, heroic and sacrificial, is the New Vision.
Let us lift up our eyes to behold it.

—Faure,

JESUS LOVES ME

There is a little children's hymn
That childish voices oft repeat,
And when we come to man's estate
What can we find more true and sweet?
Out of the swiftly passing years
Since first we sang it long ago,
What have we salvaged from life's wrecks
Save:—"Jesus loves me, this I know?"

reads thus: "When the impure Spirit is gone out of the man, it roves through parched deserts". The Concordant version reads similarly, expressing the neuter gender. These comments are also true as regards the parallel passage in Luke 11:24.

Mark 1:23 and 26 are other passages where the same comments are applicable. The qualifying adjective "unclean" in both passages is in the neuter gender, thus disabusing the mind of any thought of the "spirit" there spoken of as being a person of the masculine gender.

"Spirit" throughout the Bible is often used in such way as to leave no doubt but that it is merely a potent portion given forth from God into the world. It is inanimate, impersonal. In this respect it is like "soul". It is a portion provided by God to all animate creation, to every living thing. Like "soul" it is neuter in gender just as mind, or breath, or blood, or any other portion with which God has provided His creatures. Again like "soul", "spirit" is sometimes used of the entire being. Man is spoken of as "a soul", see Josh. 10:32; God is spoken of as "a Spirit", John 4:24. In such instances the word "soul" or "spirit" becomes masculine, or feminine, or neuter according as the being who is mentioned as "soul" or "spirit" is regarded as masculine, feminine, or neuter. But "spirit", like "soul", as used in the Bible, is, in itself, inanimate and therefore neuter in gender. The same is true also in the Greek usage of the term "Holy Spirit" or "Holy Ghost", being the same words in Greek. "Spirit" and "Ghost" are alike whether preceded by the word "holy" or whether they stand alone. "Holy", as stated on page four, indicates only that the "spirit" thus qualified is set aside from other "spirit" for special force or power of the individual in his service toward God.

We must therefore conclude that the gender of the "Holy Spirit" being neuter, indicates most conclusively that the "Holy Spirit" is not a person like Jesus, but that it is a portion provided by Him whose wisdom is unquestionable relative to the existence and activities of His creatures whom He endowed with life.

DON'T FORGET THAT BEREAN TRACTS MAY BE HAD FOR FREE DISTRIBUTION.

ROCKFORD RALLY DAY

Friday, October 12, is the date on which the Bereans of Rockford, Illinois, will rally their full strength and talent to begin their third year of service.

Bro. F. E. Siple will be the speaker of the evening. Service will be held at the home of Sr. Martha Walls at 1016 North Ave. We cordially invite all who can to meet with us at this time.

An opportunity passed by is an opportunity forever lost. Brother and sister Bereans of Illinois, October is our opportunity-month for sacrifice.

TRACTS

Have you ever tried to spread the gospel by using tracts? Have you thought of the wonderful opportunity to reach people in this way that you cannot otherwise reach in any way?

A good tract inserted in your letter may mean a great deal to the one who receives it. Suppose he does not yet know Jesus and His power to cleanse from sin and redeem from death. A tract sent with your letter may be a light for his pathway.

The National Berean Society has tracts for free distribution, and will be pleased to send some to you, if you will only let us know you would like to use or read them.

The following are tracts on hand:—"Obedience", by F. E. Siple; "The Rich Man and Lazarus", by F. E. Siple; "Shall Never Die", by F. E. Siple; "Our Stewardship", by Jas. A. Patrick; "The Coming of Christ", by S. J. Lindsay; "The Reasons Why".

Others will be added as funds permit and as suitable tract material is submitted. Let us know what you have need of. Address communications to The National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

The Adult Berean Class at Burr Oak has weathered this storm four years. They have elected M. J. Osborn, Pres., Pearl Zechiel, Vice Pres., Leta Osborn, Sec., and Nettie Guge, Asst. Sec. Meets Sun. Evenings.

We are enjoying the new books,

In the Young People's Class that meets on Fri. night, we are finishing the study of the tabernacle. This has been quite difficult, yet interesting.

Much time is spent in paying strict attention and having the audience very quiet when we pour out our petitions to God in Prayer. Is not the scripture reading God's message to us? Do we not need to listen reverently to it?

Let us put our selves in a devotional attitude while we sing. Train ourselves to raise our thoughts above the worldly things such as our selves, our neighbor's dress, and the like, and dwell with God while we are in His sanctuary, the church. Think of the scripture as God's message to us. Then when services are over we can say, "God was there, surely it is great to be with Him." This is impossible if there is confusion and whispering during the service.

Watch, each of you, lest you keep someone else from meeting and communing with God. I am sure none of us would want to be guilty of such a sin. Therefore again I beseech you to watch yourself while you are in God's service. It is just as essential that we do that which is right as it was for the priest who had charge of the tabernacle services.

Sincerely, Leta Osborn.

LESSON III.—October 21, 1928

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

2 Cor. 8:1 to 9:15

Devotional Reading: Psa. 95:1-7a

GOLDEN TEXT

First gave their own selves to the Lord.—2 Cor. 8:5.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Christian Stewardship. In Gr., as in English, stewardship refers to the management and administration of the affairs of another. It often is limited to affairs along particular lines, as a hotel steward, a ship steward, etc. Christians are accounted "as good stewards of the manifold grace of God"—1 Peter 4:10. God's graces, gifts, are many fold. These gifts are made strong or able by God's Spirit. Whatever the gift to the individual may be, the individual is steward thereof. Like the steward of Luke 16:1, so Christian stewards must each give account to the Lord. It is undoubtedly in this that the apostle is urging Christians of Europe to use God's provided blessings to aid God's saints in Jerusalem.

The elder, pastor, etc., is steward in a still far greater sense. He is steward as the assistant, the keeper and caretaker of—responsible for—God's saint, Titus 1:7, over which he by the Holy Spirit is placed in charge, Acts 20:28. He in the great day of reckoning must answer to God for every lost sheep of the flock.

In like analysis each Christian is steward over his particular gift of service, in proportion to the measure of his gift, whether of faith, or of love, or of physical strength, or of mental ability, or of business ability, or of this world's goods. In each and in all he must answer to God for the use of his strength in each particular. The Christian's knowledge of truth, the Christian's ability to teach, the Christian's strength to do good, the Christian's worldly wealth are no more his exclusively than was Christ's ability to save. As Christ gave Himself ungrudgingly that others might live, so the Christian must give ungrudgingly of his own ability of service unto the Father's saints. He is God's steward of whatever gift and measure of gift God bestows upon him.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"And, not according as we hoped, but themselves gave they first to the Lord, and to us through God's will."—2 Cor. 8:5, Roth.

Although the Macedonian brethren were poor—in deep poverty—they, by the power of God's grace, had determined to make a liberal collection apparently far beyond their ability for the poor saints down at Jerusalem. And now Paul is urging the Corinthian brethren by recommendation that they do likewise, saying, "this they (Macedonians) did, not as we hoped (far beyond it), but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us (Paul and Titus) by the will of God."—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Being a Steward. Mr. Blank owns a farm. It is a large farm, well stocked with machinery and cattle, having substantial barns and wide, rich fields. This farm is capable of producing valuable crops and thus making a rich living for him who will work it, as well as furnishing a pleasant place in which to abide. But Mr. Blank lives in a distant city where he is engaged in business; so he rents the farm on shares, stock and all, to Mr. Jones who thus becomes his steward. Mr. Jones cares for the cows and sheep, but since they belong to Blank he must be responsible to Blank and make a report of their welfare.

You, as an individual, belong to God. You have a body well equipped, stocked with strength and intelligence, capable of producing splendid crops of service. But that body with all its gifts belongs to God. He has made you His steward; and you must make a full report to Him of how you have used that which He has placed in your charge.

Are you using it as you would want someone to use something that belonged to you?
—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Equality.

"For I mean not that other men may be eased, and ye burdened: but by an equality, . . . as it is written, He that had gathered much had nothing over: and he that had gathered little had no lack."—2 Cor. 8:13-15.

These verses declare the principle that should guide the church in financial giving. The members who have been abundantly blessed with material wealth will give abundantly because they love the work, and also because they do not want members less abundantly blessed, giving until they are burdened.

Paul's equalization system of giving prompted by love is not generally urged. It seems to lack system. But it does not lack system. Paul elsewhere teaches that the Christ's follower should give in proportion to his blessing. He who has a bank surplus, a good business, and a beautiful home is blessed more than he who keeps his family on a daily wage of five dollars or less.

The best solution to the financial problems of the church is Paul's solution—preaching and living the principle of love. Results are sure to follow.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: God Loveth a Cheerful Giver.

The saints or workers at Jerusalem were in need of help. They were heavily taxed and severely persecuted, so the people of Macedonia had willingly and freely contributed to their relief. In our lesson to-day, Paul is encouraging the church at Corinth to do likewise. He is pointing out to them the blessing to be derived from giving.

God has given you and me a great work to do, as He did the people in Macedonia or Corinth. He has made us stewards to care for His possessions on the earth. Do you know what a steward is? He is one who manages an institution or the estate of another. And to be a good steward, one must manage the estate in such a way that the owner's property will be well cared for and the owner receive gain.

Then if we are God's stewards, He expects just the same things from us. Giving of our increase is one way of doing God service. This is one way of showing our love for God. Paul said, "He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly; but he which soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully", using this as an example of how we should give. So you see it will be gain to us if we give bountifully. But we must know how to give. We cannot expect to give to the Lord's work, when deep down in our hearts we keep wanting to spend that money for ourselves; no, we must give cheerfully.

To be good stewards then we must not give grudgingly or of necessity, but remember that "God loveth a cheerful giver."—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: What Paul's Call to Macedonia Meant.

Aim: To learn how we should give.

Paul had heard the call, "Come over and help us"; had answered it; and afterward realized the results of his work. The brethren in Jerusalem were poor. The Corinthian brethren had received great blessings in spiritual gifts, and were ready to respond to the needs of other brethren. It might cost them much self-denial, but that only proved their love to God for the spiritual gifts He had bestowed upon them. They remembered that Paul had told them of the blessed Christ: how that "though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich."

IOWA CONFERENCE AND BIBLE SCHOOL

The Iowa conference and Bible school report has been necessarily somewhat delayed. However we are glad to say that we had a very enjoyable week, even though the weather was rainy and bad.

Though attendance was below normal those who were able to be there were very faithful in attendance and joined heartily in the different sessions. Brothers A. J. Eychaner, J. W. Williams, F. E. Siple, A. M. Jones, M. W. Lyon, J. Arthur Johnson and Paul Johnson were our speakers and gave us many things to ponder over and edify us during the coming year.

One interesting feature was a reminiscence given by Brother Eychaner of the first conference held in Iowa at Watkins Wells in Story Co., and the succeeding annual gatherings up to the present time.

The officers selected for the coming year were: Pres., H. S. Hunt, Clarksville, Iowa; Vice Pres., J. W. Oaks, Gladbrook, Iowa; Recording Sec., Mrs. A. M. Jones, Eagle Grove, Iowa; Cor. Sec., Mrs. W. H. Allard, Cedar Falls, Iowa; and Treas., T. J. Ellis, 319 Cutler St., Waterloo, Iowa.

The conference in session expressed a desire to have more workers in the state another year and issued a call to Brother J. Arthur Johnson who we are glad to report has accepted and will assist Brother Williams commencing October 7th.

The leaky condition of our large tent clearly demonstrated the need of an auditorium and we hope to have something of that kind ready for our next conference.

May our workers in the field not only have the hearty co-operation, but, also the fervent prayers of the brethren everywhere that we may make great spiritual growth during the coming year.

Mrs. W. H. Allard, Cor., Sec.

MRS D. K. LEHMAN

Algerose Louise Haines was born on Jan. 18, 1855, in Miami Co., Indiana, near Bunker Hill. She was the next youngest of fourteen children of Isaac H. and Rachel H. Haines, eleven of whom grew to maturity.

On Dec. 25, 1878, she was married to Daniel K. Lehman, at Argos, Ind. In 1880 they moved to Iowa, where they lived for twenty years, after which they removed to the vicinity of West Milton, Ohio, where they resided until her death.

On a trip to Virginia to visit her sister she was stricken with sickness near Niagara Falls, on the return journey. For three weeks everything that could be done to save her was used without avail, and she fell asleep in Jesus on Sept. 22, 1928.

She leaves to mourn her loss the husband, one brother, Isaac Haines, of Argos, Ind., one sister, Mrs. Hannah Sager, of Vienna, Va.; and six children, as follows: Mrs. P. N. Benn, 108 Rockwood Ave., Dayton, O.; H. A. Lehman, Canfield, O.; Mrs. R. S.

Brewer and Mrs. R. R. Jones, Rt. 2, Tippecanoe City, O.; Miss Ethel Lehman, Canfield, O. Miss Martha Lehman, West Milton, O.; and twelve grandchildren. One child died in infancy.

In her girlhood days, under the teaching of Bro. Barnhill, she accepted Christ as her Saviour. This hope she has ever adhered to through all the years of after life. Her last words to her family were that they might meet her in the Kingdom of God.

Funeral services were conducted from the Brush Creek church Sept. 25, after which she was laid to "rest from her labors" in the adjoining cemetery to await the resurrection word of the Master.

M. W. Lyon.

JAMES RICHARD WATT

James Richard Watt was born in South Carolina, March 31, 1853, and fell asleep September 5, 1928, to await the coming of Jesus.

He came to Texas when a young man and was united in marriage to Kittie Robinson on October 14, 1880. Five children were born to this union, and these with the widow are left to mourn his loss.

He was a member of the Church of God, having been baptized into the all-saving faith by Bro. W. H. Wilson on March 28, 1906.

In the absence of a pastor of like faith to conduct the funeral services, a short talk on the resurrection was given at the grave by Mr. Christian, a Baptist minister, after which he was laid away in the Buffalo Cemetery to awaken when the trumpet of Jesus shall sound on that bright morning.

of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Has a babe any sins to repent of? Some one may conclude that I believe that the physical act of immersion in water saves us; no, never. But the obedience from the heart, in doing what God commands, not only in baptism, but all other sacred ordinances. However we find this statement in 1st Pet. 3:20-21, "When once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is eight souls were saved by water. The like figure whereunto even baptism, both also now save us."

"When we walk with the Lord, and abide in His word,
What a glory He sheds on our way;
When we do His good will, He abides with us still Unto all who will trust and obey."

ANOTHER CHURCH DEDICATED

in part, our affiliation with the Golden Rule Home activities at headquarters. It also serves to distinguish us from the many other "Churches of God" to be found in Cleveland. This congregation was formerly the "Parkwood Church of God", but henceforth will be known as "The Church of the Golden Rule". This service was the first Sunday evening meeting that had been held for over a year, but we now are having Sunday evening services every week.

Monday night there was a social at the church for all the neighborhood. Tuesday and Wednesday nights Bro. Marsh spoke to small but attentive audiences. This closed the special services in connection with the dedication.

We look upon this as only a first step. And we hope to see the interest grow larger rather than smaller as time goes on. The people are showing much co-operation in our work and seem to be very much pleased with our church. It seems as though the opportunity here is almost more than we can take advantage of, but we are doing all we can to follow up the situation. And we are going to succeed. Cleveland is on its feet once more.

BEREAN ITEMS

In the afternoon a delightful program was given by the children and young people.

The sermon in the evening was given by Bro. F. E. Siple.

The day was profitable to all and we thank each one who helped in any way.

The Unknown Glory

By Mrs. M. P. A. Crozier, deceased.

“Eye hath not seen nor ear heard.”

O brave one standing a picket guard,
For the army of the Lord,
Through the chill of night, in the face of the foe,
Have ye ever heard the word,

How that eye hath never seen the like
Of the country over there,
Nor beheld on earthly king such crown
As the conquering saint shall wear?

O sorrowing ones who have trusted so,
Through the dark of your earthly way,
The hand unseen that is leading you
Leads surely unto day.

Ye can never think what waiteth you,—
What sweetness of surprise—
When the veil that shadows your mortal life
Shall be lifted from your eyes.

O worn ones walking the pilgrim way,
Ye never can know how fair
Is the land your feet are tending toward,
Over the river there.

O loving ones who lay down your lives
By the little, day by day,
For the sake of Him who gave His own
With the throes of Calvary—

O dying one, smile for the future life—
It will all be what it best;
For a God who hath made a world like this,
Can be trusted for all the rest.

Who gathered the skirts of His glory up,
And went to the Father's throne—
Your hearts have never conceived the things
He will bring when He comes for His own.

O loyal ones who have waited so
For the Holy King's return—
Who have felt your eyes fill full with tears,
And your heart within you burn.

For the promise of the white-robed ones,
And the angels' Bethlehem hymn,
The love that hath filled your hearts so full,
And made your eyes so dim,

Is only an earnest of heavenly joy;—
Who hath given so much hath still
A store of His own love's sweetness left,
Your chalice of life to fill.

EDITORIAL

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor.

F. A. STILSON, Ass't Editor.

Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.

Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live:

And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?—Jno. 11:23-26.

How were some of the promises demonstrated to longing and sorrowing hearts when Jesus stepped up to the bereaved sisters and assured them that their brother Lazarus would rise again! But how beyond words was their amazement when He opened the tomb and with His Saviour-voice called the sleeping one to life! Truly He is "the resurrection and the life".

Many seem to dread the coming of Christ. Why? They apparently expect Him to come as a monster executing vengeance. Not so. It is man's own insistently rebellious ways that bring on all of the wars and pestilences; all of the sorrows and pains. Christ comes a Saviour to heal and restore from sin's long reign of carnage.

"Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

KINGS AND PRIESTS

IN THE SAME SENSE that the Christian is here and now "risen with Christ", Col. 3:1, is he also here and now a "new creature" in Christ Jesus. In this same sense also is he "in the Spirit", Rom. 8:9; and in the same sense are Christians as a whole "a spiritual house", 1 Pet. 2:5, "an holy priesthood". In no other sense could they be, here and now, termed "kings and priests."

The Christian is "risen with Christ" only in that he has "put off the old man", Col. 3:9, and "put on the new man", Col. 3:10. This was done by having been buried with Christ into death, Rom. 6:4, and having been raised with Him to walk in newness of life. Such is a putting to death of self's carnal aims, repenting therefrom, and a turning to Christ, the one new man, to live in His ways. Faith in Christ is man's one requisite for this transformation.

But the foregoing promises can be applied only in part to present Christian status, only as an earnest of what is promised by God and expected by the Christian. The Christian will yet be "risen with Christ" in fact. Then this old body will become new, in fact, 1 Cor. 15:51, 51, this carnal nature will become spiritual, in fact, 1 Cor. 15:44. Then and not until then, can Rev. 5:10 possibly be fulfilled, in fact, in its statement, "hast made us unto our God kings and priests".

The grandeur of working with Christ the "King of kings", the "great High Priest", in the age of "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", has hardly yet dawned upon Christian vision. Then, when the Christian shall in fact be like his Lord, glorified with Him, Rom. 8:17; Phil. 3:20, 21, will there be more than abundant cause for acclaiming in glad hallelujah, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow".

I will come again and receive you unto myself.—Jno. 14:2.

RALLY MONTH

WE ARE MORE than gratified with the bountiful and hearty response that has been given to the appeal for a nation wide Rally during the month of October. With the general response some have assured they would pray for the Father's guidance and assistance that the Church of God shall be directed forward in true acceptable service to God.

There is so much of opportunity in Christian service and God has blessed us so much with life and strength and income and property that we should one and all guard more cautiously to use life and means to enter wholeheartedly into the afforded opportunities.

The question is not, What ought I do? or, What must I do? Such questions spring from carnality. The question is, What, Lord, may I do? What is my opportunity? What is my strength of life? my strength of education? my strength of material things? with which to enter into Christian work and Christian service? When this question really grips the heart, and every Christian from youth to old age gladly sits down daily with pencil in hand to compute his own actual God-given ability to enter into Christian opportunity, there will be a rally of the Church of God that will awaken the nation.

God ever awaits opportunity to work through Christ's followers unto His own honor and glory.

Let us continue in united prayer and work for God's blessing on us, and honor to Himself through our Rally efforts.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR PRAYER

SR. LEONA MARSH writes from Ft. Wayne, Ind., of having enjoyed herself very much in the presence of Sr. S. Roxana Wince on two occasions when she called on her at the Hospital. She reports that Sr. Wince spoke with feeling of the Golden Rule Home wishing that she might become a member thereof.

It would seem as though one who has given so long a life in Christian service as has Sr. Wince, and who has abundance of means on which no other mortal has just claims, should be permitted the privilege of having the use of her property to afford her the comforts and surroundings of Christian fellowship which she longs for in Golden Rule Home. From another source the editor has been requested to ask that the prayers of the brotherhood be united in asking God's guidance that she may be properly and beneficially afforded these comforts and privileges according to her own desires and best good.

The Golden Rule Home is more than ready to receive Sr. Wince if it be God's will. Let us all unite in earnest prayer that God will direct her interests in such way as will honor Him most.

I will be their God, and they shall be my people.—Cor. 6:16.

LET US DOUBLE HERALD SUBSCRIPTIONS

IF EVERY SUBSCRIBER of The Restitution Herald will secure just one new subscriber even the blind could see that the subscriptions would be doubled. That in itself would be fine! Excellent!! There is also another side to it:

The present cost per year of publishing the Herald is fully $1,200.00 more than is the income from subscriptions. At present the income from the job work takes care of the larger part of this deficit. But, if the number of subscriptions could be doubled they would then fully pay for the cost of publishing. This would then be as it should be. Then the profits from job work could be invested annually in new equipment to improve the Publishing facilities and cheapen production.

May we not ask that every interested subscriber will secure one new subscription, or more to The Restitution Herald at the earliest possible date? Not a third of the members of the Church of God subscribe to this official organ. Let us do all possible to double the Herald's circulation by Dec. 31, 1928. To the individual sending in the largest number of new subscribers we will present a copy of the beautiful Gift Bible advertised on last page of this issue—provided that said number shall exceed ten.

ALSO:

Now that the very abundant harvest which has blessed most communities has been gathered we ask that each one who is in arrears on subscription will remit same to us as soon as convenient. The subscriptions that are past due amount to several hundred dollars, all of which is much needed.

The Hebrew word "El" is "God" in English. Many of the Bible names consist of "El" compounded with a word indicating some attribute of God and which carries great meaning. Samu-el means, heard of God; Dani-el means, God is judge. Otheni-el means, God is force; Jo-el, Jehovah is God; Ezeki-el, God will strengthen.

"WE BELIEVE AND TEACH—"

By G. E. Marsh

IT REALLY makes no difference to anyone beside myself what "I believe" or what "I teach" or how "I understand" the Scriptures. The important thing, the vital thing, is that each should know for himself what the Bible teaches, what God reveals, what the Eternal Father requires of us His children, that we may find favor in His sight! Opinions are altogether human, and, therefore weak, faulty and subject to change. On the other hand, the Word of God is divine, and consequently, positive in its conclusions; powerful in its action; absolutely without error in its teaching; unchangeable in its purpose; supreme and final in its authority.

THERE'S ONLY ONE

"Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon the earth that I desire beside thee." Psa. 73:25.

There's only One on whose dear arm
We safely lay our thoughts to rest;
There's only One who knows the depth
Of sorrow in each stricken breast.

There's only One whose pity falls
Like dew upon the wounded heart;
There's only One who never stirs,
Though enemy and friend depart.

There's only One, when none are by,
To wipe away the falling tear;
There's only One to heal the wound,
And stay the weak one's timid fear.

There's only One who understands
And enters into all we feel;
There's only One who views each spring,
And each perplexing wheel in wheel.

There's only One who can support
And who sufficient grace can give
To bear up under every grief,
And spotless in this world to live.

Blessed Jesus, Friend of friends!
Come, hide us, 'neath thy sheltering arm:
And while amid this evil world,
Keep us from all its guilt and harm.

Thou art the One, the only One,
For whom no love too warm can flow;
Thou art the One, the only One,
In whom there's perfect rest below.

THE GREAT APOSTACY

By C. E. Randall

"Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition."—2 Thess. 2:3.

THE APOSTLE has been discussing the "day of Christ" and he says, that that day shall not come except there come a "falling away first." A falling away from what? It is a falling away from the gospel—a turning away from the truth. "Now the spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils."—1 Tim. 4:1. This departing from "the faith" was to take place in the "latter times" or a short period preceding the day of Christ. This prophecy does not concern the world, but is a direct prophecy relating to the ones that have been set apart by "the faith." The seducings of spirits and the doctrines of devils caused them to turn from "the truth as it is in Christ Jesus" and go awhoring after the teachings of Satan's ministers, who, as Paul has declared are "transformed as the ministers of righteousness." 2 Cor. 11:15. In the light of the foregoing it is no wonder that Paul was most urgent in attempting to persuade the members of Christ's body to "put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."—Eph. 6:11.

It is sad to think of people departing from "the faith" when so near the coming of Christ, thereby robbing themselves of the glorious hope of an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. It is well to remember the words of Christ, "But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved."—Matt. 24:13.

The "prince of this world" and those that "walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness" are causing many followers of Christ to "turn their ears from the truth, and turn them unto fables." 2 Tim. 4:4. The "itching ears" of those that will not endure sound doctrine are easy prey for the "fiery darts of the wicked."

There is much information given in Scripture concerning the great apostacy preceding Christ's return and timely warning is given to all to beware of the "pernicious ways" of the false teachers that are coming, yea are present. 2 Pet. 2. The feigned or fabricated words of the false teachers that were to be so prevalent during the closing days of this present dispensation will make merchandise out of every individual who permits them to have their person in admiration because of their flow of "great swelling words." Jude 16.

The Master well knew how widespread this apostacy would be; and with this knowledge of the general condition compared the closing days of our time to that antedeluvian period when the "imagination of the thoughts of their hearts were evil continually." Gen. 6:5; Matt. 24:38, 39. Conditions of these two closing periods are so near alike that they are comparative. There were only eight that were found worthy of being saved in Noah's day. The Master presents a similar condition at the close of our day with the question. "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" Luke 18:8. The question indicates the scarcity of true faith when the Christ returns to earth.

We should keep our faith secure by staying close to the Master, "praying always with all prayer and supplication, in the spirit and watching thereunto with all perseverance."

"The world loves its own". So does a merchant love (with a hook and line attached) his customers.

But "God so loved the world (a lost, wicked race), that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life".—Haney.

WHOM DO YOU SERVE?

By Samuel E. Haney

"And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? wist (knew) ye not that I must be about my Father's business? ('be in my Father's house' R. V.; 'be in the COURTS of my FATHER?', Emph. Diag.)"—Luke 2:49, A. V.

RABBINICAL WRITERS SAY that all males from twelve years of age were required to attend the three festivals at Jerusalem. Jesus is here referring to His heavenly Father who is invisible to mortal eyes. But there is another "father" who is also invisible to mortal eyes. And every sane person from the age of accountability is spiritually, physically and morally influenced by one of these two "Fathers". To One David cries out, "O give thanks unto God of heaven: for his mercy endureth for ever". Psa. 136:26. The Jews, in their controversy with Christ, John 8, thought David's God was their Father: "We have one Father, even God." John 8:41. But Jesus disabused their credulous minds when He said, "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do."

Paul makes a marked distinction between these two God-Fathers; and explains the respective resultant consequence of obedience to them: "To you Gentiles also, who were dead through your offenses and sins, which were once habitual in you while you walked in the ways of this world and obeyed the Prince of the powers of the air, the spirits that are now at work in the hearts of the sons of disobedience—to you God has given life". Eph 2:1, 2, Wey. The apostle here explains the respective effect of sin and righteousness: death—life; and the respective spiritual progenitors: Satan—God.

Business houses take annual inventories of stock on hand: its quantity and quality, and influence on the trade. This is a worthy precedent for Christians to follow. To prove to our own satisfaction that we are God's children, and influenced by His Spirit, we must examine the goods we are carrying in stock—the things and spiritual power by which we are being influenced in our every day life. Do we find that we love God above all else in heaven and earth and that our Redeemer and faithful brethren come next? And can we say with Job's emphasis, Job 19:26, I "know" this to be true? If we can, we may be sure that we are being influenced by the Spirit and love of God. This being true, we cannot do otherwise than to be about our Father's business in some manner and to some extent; for our spirit and thoughts unconsciously tend in this direction. Besides, it is our way (the only way available to man) to have continuous peace, contentment and joy.

Approximately six hundred millions of earth's inhabitants are classified as Christians. We wonder what percentage of this vast concourse of Adam's descendants is being influenced by the Spirit of God.

I once had occasion to step into a gentleman's bedroom, and this is what I saw: a framed picture, supposedly a likeness of Mary the mother of Jesus, and kneeling on the floor with uplifted face and hands toward the picture was the occupant of the room. I instantly withdrew, not surprised, but naturally overwhelmed with pity and aversion. It was my brother. How could I have felt otherwise, for I had been a devotee to the same effeminate god for twenty years. Here was an intelligent man praying to an imaginary, grotesque picture of a person who is as dead as a smoked herring, and will remain so until Jesus comes and awakes her—Christ's dear mother. But my brother is but one of millions who, listed as Christians, are effeminating the Deity, which is a custom quite common among heathens. With my varied Christian experience it would be impossible to convince me that these deluded, though honest people, are being influenced by the Spirit of God.

There is another class of deluded souls countless in number, who are in evidence on every side. Ask one, "Are you a Christian?" "Yes," will be his answer. "Why do you call yourself a Christian?" "Well, I have two certificates, one of infant baptism, the other of church-membership. So I must be a Christian." Try and imagine what Paul would think of such evidence! Incidentally keep your eye on this Christian (?) and you will discover by his talk and actions that he is being influenced by the spirit of this world, he being both in, and a part of, the present order of things. Such is even the sad state of some enlightened Christians. Therefore, there should be no question about the spiritual influence by which all are being swayed, nor their zeal about their father's business, gratification of the lusts of the flesh being too manifest for doubt.

Peter (1 Peter 4:1-5, Wey.) referring to this class says, "At this they are astonished—that you do not run into the same excess of profligacy as they do; and they speak abusively of you. But they will have to give account to him who stands ready to pronounce judgment on the living and the dead."

Were Christians of all persuasions to let go of self and the world, what labor, trouble, expense and anxiety could be averted! Their time and thought could then be devoted to preparing to meet their Lord and Master at His coming. If we truly expect to be "made like him", it is high time—if we haven't yet done it—to transfer our affection from the "things of this world", to the "things above" (1 John 2:15-17: Col. 3:1-4), and thereby get the benefit of the Holy Spirit's influence.

It is manifest that the farther we get from the influence of this world the more susceptible we shall be to the Spirit of God and heavenly things. For the spirit of the present order of things and the Spirit of God and His coming kingdom are more dissimilar than gall and honey. Besides, in order to accomplish anything for God and our brethren we must come out wholeheartedly on the Lord's side, as He has commanded: "Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing; go ye out of the midst of her; be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the LORD", Isa. 52:11; "Wherefore come ye forth out of their midst, and be separated, (saith the Lord,) and one impure do not touch; and I will give you welcome, and will become your Father, and ye shall become my sons and daughters, saith the LORD Almighty", 2 Cor. 6:17, 18, Roth; and John heard a voice on the isle that is called Patmos saying, "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities". Rev. 18:4, 5.

A compliance with these commandments will equip us, to "be about our Father's business", of which the following is a sample: "And beholding the CROWDS (this is being repeated), he deeply pitied them, Because they were being harassed and dispersed, as Sheep having no Shepherd. Then he says to his DISCIPLES, The HARVEST indeed is great, but the REAPERS are few; beseech, therefore the LORD of the HARVEST, that he would send LABORERS to REAP it." Matt. 9:36-38, Diaglott.

Brethren, there is work for all. Though we cannot accomplish all we should like, we can do our best, which is all God requires of any one.

"And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising."—Isa. 60:3.

KINGS AND PRIESTS

By Dr. A. W. Taylor

THAT CHRISTIANS are now in this present age, kings and priests will be understood by reading the following passages of New Testament scripture, 2 Peter 2:5: "Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." Again verse 9: "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation." This is what we Christians are now in this present age. The same fact is stated again in Rev. 1:5, 6: "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father". And again in chapter 5, the four and twenty elders "sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy . . . for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood . . . and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth."

Please notice that all this is what we are now in this present age while our great High Priest is in the heavens. Hence those who here and now are risen with Christ, we who were dead (see Eph. 1 and 2) in trespasses and sins, have been quickened with Christ, raised up with Him and made to sit together in heavenly places in Christ as kings and priests. We, who have been raised up by the same power that raised up Christ from the dead and set Him at the right hand of God and put all things under His feet, we are made to sit together in this heavenly place of authority, and are here and now reigning with Christ and have part with Him in this "first resurrection on whom the second death hath no power." We are here and now kings and "priests of God and of Christ," as were these martyrs named in Rev. 20:6, all this during the present age before the judgment day of Rev. 20:11.

Then at that time Christ will deliver up to God the Father all rule and all authority, as we are told in 1 Cor. 5:25-28 He will so do. Amen and Amen.

"Consider and hear me, O Lord my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death."—Psa. 13:3.

And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.—Jno. 6:40.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION.—Can you tell me what our Lord meant when He said: "Father, into Thy hands I commit My Spirit?"

ANSWER.—According to the Genesis account of the creation man became "a living soul," or "creature," only when God imparted to him the "breath" or "spirit" of life, so that all flesh now lives by the power of that spirit. It is plainly stated in Job xxxiv. 24, 15, Ps. civ. 29, and Ecc. xii. 7 that when God takes back to Himself the gift of that life-giving spirit the man returns to his dust as he was. Now our Lord, when He took upon Himself our nature, "was made flesh" (John i. 14), or, as the Apostle Paul says, when He emptied Himself and "was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death" (Phil. ii. 6-8), He became subject to the same law of life as other men, and when He died on the Cross it was the most natural thing that He should commend His departing spirit into the hands of His Father, during that time when He lay silent "three days and three nights" in the "heart of the earth." After three days the spirit of life returned, and He arose from the dead. In like manner Stephen, at his death, called to this Living Saviour, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!" and it remains safe in His keeping until the day of resurrection. And every Christian, similarly inspired, can echo the confident words of the Apostle Paul: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day" (2 Tim. i. 12).

HOPE IN THE HOUR OF DEATH

By F. E. Siple

(The following, written by request, is a resume of the sermon given at Sister Slack's funeral.)

OCCASIONS such as to-day impress upon our minds still more forcefully the facts that we must face concerning our condition of mortality. It matters not as to how strong or how weak one may be; it makes no difference whether he be rich or poor; nor does it matter if he is king, or merely an humble servant—in each case mortality is the same and all come to one common end—death.

David, the king of Israel and a man of God, realized this and in several of his Psalms warned the people accordingly. Notable among these warnings are the words of Psalm 146:4: "Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." If there would be any person among men who could be relied upon for help, that person David recognized to be a prince or one of royal family. Such a person would have unlimited financial backing and all the power of a kingdom with which to promote any course of assistance. But even such a person as that cannot be fully depended upon, because he may at any moment fall in death and leave you helpless and hopeless while he lies altogether unconscious of conditions.

In contrast to this frailty and mortality of man stands the ever living Father; so David went on to say: "Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God." Ah, indeed what a comfort in face of man's mortality and death to have an ever living Lord who loves us!

The 14th chapter of Job brings out very forcefully the same thought. Its opening verse reads: "Man that is born of woman is of few days, and full of trouble." Taken by itself that statement might be considered pessimistic, but when connected with the rest of the chapter it gives a very different impression. Job was beginning his thought by frankly admitting man's condition. We are only here for a short time, comparatively. Even one hundred years when laid down beside God's great eternity shrink to a length not worthy of consideration. Furthermore, these years which are allotted to us here have their mixtures of sorrow and disappointment to such an extent that if this life were all, life itself would hardly be worth while. Looked at from the viewpoint of this life only, life is actually a tragedy. The child comes into the world in its innocence and gradually develops and unfolds as a bud, coming more and more to face the realities and problems of life. Sorrows increase and infirmities draw on apace, oftentimes with intensity of sufferings leading to the inevitable end—death.

Tragedy? Yes, if one can look no farther than this life. But what rich comfort Job actually gives in that chapter! After showing plainly man's mortal condition and that he lies down helplessly in death, he asks in verse 14 this question: "If a man die shall he live again?" And then he answers the question as follows: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come."

The length of time he would sleep in death did not worry Job; for death being an unconscious sleep there could be no knowledge of the passing of time. Whatever period it might be he would lie waiting for his change to come. "Thou shalt call and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands."

There is our hope to-day friends, and we are thankful to say that Sister Slack had come to recognize the beauty of God's plan and promises and that she lived and died with the full hope and assurance of the resurrection of the dead. The sorrow of death is not found in the one who has fallen asleep, but in the heartache and loneliness of those who remain alive. To the deceased death actually brings rest from labors and an end to sufferings and pain. The man who goes forth at morn to labor, and works through the long, hard day does not look with dread upon the couch at night upon which he shall lie down to sleep unconsciously through the hours. He knows that the sun which sank in the west will rise again in the east, and he lies down with the hope of rising in the morning to greet the new day.

And so it has been with our Sister. She has lived her life's day; she has raised her family, done her work faithfully and well, and given to her children and neighbors the best that she had. She has now lain down to sleep, but she realized full well that a new day would dawn and her Lord would call her forth in that resurrection morn. Behold the same hope expressed by the Psalmist in Psalms 17:15, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness."

The New Testament throughout carries the thought of death being a sleep at the close of life's day and presents to us Jesus Christ as the One in whom resurrection power abides. Our scripture lesson this afternoon from 1 Corinthians the fifteenth chapter establishes the fact that Christ died and was buried and rose again, and that if He rose, we shall rise also.

This, then is our confidence and hope to-day as we look forward to the future. The pain and heartache of separation is eased by the promise of the coming of Christ, and glad reunions in the resurrection morn. For this reason we "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope." 1 Thessalonians 4:16. But rather, with faith and confidence, we lay away our loved one, and turn our eyes toward the coming of our Savior and the grand reunion at the dawning of the new day.

THE TIME IS SHORT

I sometimes feel the thread of life is slender,
And soon with me the labor will be wrought;
Thou grows my heart to other hearts more tender,—
The time is short.

A shepherd's tent of reeds and flowers decaying,
That night winds soon will crumble into nought
So seems my life, for some rude blast decaying—
The time is short.

Up, up, my soul, the long-spent time redeeming;
Sow thou the seeds of better deed and thought;
Light other lamps, while yet thy light is beaming,—
The time is short.

Think of the good thou might'st have done, when brightly
The suns to thee life's choicest seasons brought;
Hours lost to God in pleasure passing lightly,—
The time is short.

The time is short. Then be thy heart a brother's
To every heart that needs thy help in aught:
Soon thou may'st need the sympathy of others—
The time is short.

If thou hast friends, give them thy best endeavor,
Thy warmest impulse and thy purest thought;
Keeping in mind, in word and action ever,
The time is short.

Where summer winds, aroma-laden, hover,
Companions rest—their work forever wrought;
Soon other graves the moss and fern will cover—
The time is short.

Up, up, my soul, ere yet the shadow falleth;
Some good return in latter seasons wrought:
Forget thyself, when duty's angel calleth,—
The time is short.

By all the lapses thou hast been forgiven,
By all the lessons prayer to thee hath taught,
To others teach the sympathies of heaven,—
The time is short.

LIFE AFTER DEATH

By R. H. Judd

THE RIGHT REV. DR. E. W. BARNES, Bishop of Birmingham, who leans to modernism in the Anglican Church, insisted at the Church Congress at Cheltenham to-day, that there must be life after death because the spirit of man is too valuable to be lost. Dr. Barnes, who is a former lecturer in higher mathematics, admitted there were many problems science could not answer completely, but he used Einstein's theory of relativity as the bulwark for his case for a future life.

"The mind and body of man cannot be separated," he said, "for they are two aspects of a single unity. How, then, can we continue to believe in the existence of human personality after bodily death? I would answer that this belief is bound up with our conception of the nature of God.

"If we accept Christ's view of God we cannot believe He will allow anything of value in the universe to be destroyed. We can confidently claim that in general the spirit of man is of such value as to be worthy of preservation. How man's spirit or personality will be preserved we cannot say. Shall we not be content with St. Paul's confident hope that God will give it a body?"

Time was when any utterance of men prominent in the world's thought was accepted without question, but not so now; for men are finding out that strong statement is not of necessity "proof", and that there is urgent need to distinguish between things that differ, and a more careful choice of language required to correctly express the results.

That the Scriptures do teach a life after death, the present writer believes few will question, but Dr. Barnes views death as an act, whereas Scripture recognizes it as a state.

According to the doctor, the individual loses neither life nor consciousness; according to Scripture, he loses both, hence to the former the expression "life after death" is in reality a misnomer. Not so with Scripture, for death must terminate before man can live again; for says Scripture, "In death there is no remembrance of thee."

A careful study of the doctor's phraseology and its comparison with Scripture show a distinct lack of proper application. Passing over the acknowledged fact that Dr. Barnes bases his remarks on "theory", let us consider his closing statement with reference to "the spirit of man" that "God will give it a body". It may be that a careful comparison of what the doctor has to say with the Scriptures, and further comparison of scripture with scripture will throw a new light on this much discussed subject of such perennial interest to mankind.

The whole of the doctor's argument is based on the unproved current supposition that "the spirit of man" exists as a conscious entity, apart from the body which lies buried in the grave. This, I believe, is a fair statement of the belief held by the doctor and the Christian church in common, and is generally understood as the doctrine of the "disembodied state". It is right here that careful thought, correct language and a logical and consistent application of Scripture is urgently required, and a willingness to accept Scripture statement, even should cherished doctrine break down in the process of investigation.

The doctor's closing remark carries in it the pith of the whole matter, and it is to that we wish to draw particular attention. He says, "Shall we not be content with St. Paul's confident hope that God will give it a body"? Give what a body? The spirit of man? Will Dr. Barnes will any other Bible student, please state where Scripture makes any such promise?

Perhaps a few questions, which may seem to digress for the moment from the main argument, will clear the way for what is to follow. Does not the common conception of man's spirit as a conscious entity (apart from the body) of itself necessarily involve bodily being of some kind? Undoubtedly so. How then can the statement "disembodied state" be correctly applied; and still more to the point, how can the statement that "God will give it a body" be consistently advocated? Will one body be superimposed upon another already existing?

The above questions practically answer themselves and rule out the theory that "it" in the scripture quoted above applies to the spirit of man. The question at issue then is, to what does the "it" have reference? Unquestionably in the 15th chapter of 1 Corinthians, from whence the passage is quoted, the reference is to "seed". "God giveth it a body . . . and to each seed a body of its own."—1 Cor. 15:38. The wheat plant is "the body" of the wheat seed, the oak is "the body" of the acorn, and the man is "the body" of the "seed" from whence he came. No Bible student can deny that throughout Scripture man is frequently alluded to as "seed", even so early as Gen. 4:25, and in the writer's opinion before that; for in Genesis 1:11 the future life of the plant is contained in the seed in the vegetable world. In Genesis 1:20 the same is true of the animal world under the term "soul"; and in the 29th. and 30th verses of the same chapter we have these identical thoughts re-iterated. Indeed so similar are the processes in both the animal and vegetable kingdoms that both terms—"seed" and "soul"—are applied to both. See. Isa. 10:18.

Now to apply the foregoing (though more could still be said on Scripture usage of these terms) to our main theme of man in death: the patriarch Job asks the question "Where is he?" Daniel answers "Asleep in the dust of the earth". Jesus says, "Though he die yet shall he live", and "Thy brother shall rise again." Paul frequently alludes to them that "sleep in Jesus", and to the resurrection (rising again) of the dead. Of others it is said, "They shall not rise."

"Sleep" is a common Bible term for death in both Old and New Testaments. It is also a recognized scientific fact that there is such a thing as "dormant (sleeping) life". The acorn is the dormant seed, and it does not live and function except through its "body" the oak. When it gives birth to the oak, it awakes to living individuality. "God giveth it a body, and to each seed a body of its own. So also is the resurrection of the dead". "Howbeit that is not first which is spiritual but that which is natural, afterward that which is spiritual."

The "resurrection of the body" has not unreasonably been a subject of ridicule by the unbeliever, while to the believer it has been acclaimed as a cardinal Christian truth. To the writer it would seem to be in direct opposition to St. Paul's statement, "thou sowest NOT that body that shall be", and he believes the suggestion put forward in this article will be found to reasonably harmonize with Scripture assertion and known scientific facts. He believes it will also help to a better understanding of such passages as Matt. 10:28, Luke 20:38; 2 Cor. 5 and other passages hitherto difficult of reconciliation.

The writer believes that the orthodox doctrine of the "immortality of the soul" and consequent "sudden death, sudden glory" in heaven, or "eternal misery in hell" are diversions from Scripture truth, but he also thinks God "knoweth how to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be (note the verb) punished", 2 Pet. 2:9, and to "preserve all them that love him." Psalms 145:20.

CONVERTING THE RIVER JORDAN INTO ELECTRICITY

ROLL JORDAN, ROLL!" bids the famous old hymn, but those who sang it never pictured it as rolling turbine engines along banks lined with power houses," reads a recent press dispatch copyrighted by the American Weekly, Inc. What perhaps seem to be commonplace events that are rapidly taking place in Palestine are in reality events of mighty import which were foreseen by God long ago. The rebuilding of Palestine is of far more import to the world than would be the rebuilding of any other place on earth. The press dispatch above referred to says further:

"Modern progress, however, has at last taken this river, so sacred to Christians and Jews alike, and is harnessing it to turn out electricity to light the towns and run the factories of a modernized Holy Land. Great dams which will impound large bodies of water are being built, as well as miles of canals for irrigation, changing the whole face of the Holy Land. The electrical energy generated at the power houses solely by the flow of the Jordan will be carried cheaply all over Palestine."

"It is from the Sea of Galilee" reads the article above referred to, saying, "that the Jordan emerges as a rushing torrent, finally emptying itself into the Dead Sea. Between its source and the Dead Sea there is a fall of over 3,000 feet, a tremendous drop, considering the total length of the stream. But the Jordan is one of the most serpentine streams in the world. As the crow flies, the distance between the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea is only 66 miles, yet owing to its many windings the river is almost three times as long as that.

"It flows for the most part between high banks lined with willow trees, tamarisk bushes, the wild oleander with its beautiful pink flower, and the reed with its feathery tuft or bloom, "shaken by the wind" and referred to by Christ.

"Intercepting its course are many islands, some fairy-like and covered with luxuriant vegetation, others mere sandbanks and sedimentary deposits. Owing to the cataracts in the stream the river is unnavigable except for short distances and for that reason the Jordan could never become a highway of commerce. Its waters teem with various kinds of fish, and the thickets along its banks abound in bird life and harbor, among other animals, the wild boar. According to Jeremiah, it was formerly the haunt of lions.

"The Jordan discharges over five million tons of fresh water into the Dead Sea daily, which up to the present has not been utilized in any way. Now it is to be harnessed not only for power purposes, but for irrigating vast unproductive areas in the Jordan Valley. Here, on what is to-day waste land, thriving agricultural settlements will arise on which cotton and tropical fruits will be cultivated. Experiments have shown that in the hot Jordan Valley the cotton plant changes its character of an annual herb into that of a perennial bush."

It can hardly be interpreted that this vast irrigation is immediately to bring about the great restoration of the land mentioned in Isaiah 35, but it is nevertheless both convincing and interesting to realize that the great visions of Isaiah the prophet are even if only in the preliminary stages being fulfilled in our very eyes.

Concerning some of the vast water power that is being harnessed for service in this great river of Jordan, the following will give some picture:

"The first stage of the scheme centres about the Sea of Galilee. As a natural storage reservoir with an area of about two billion square feet, and an available volume of about 35 billion cubic feet, this sacred and historic lake will form the main basis of the regulation of the flow of the Jordan. The work now in hand comprises the utilization of the fall of 164 feet between the Sea of Galilee and Jisr-el-Mujameh. Topographical and geological conditions render it expedient to divide this fall into two parts, one half to be developed at Abadieh and the other half at Jisr-el-Mujameh. Abadieh lies some two and one-half miles south of the lake and Jisr-el-Mujameh seven miles.

"Jisr-el-Mujameh will be the site of the first of the power houses which are to eventually dot the course of the Jordan. Here, in the heart of the wilderness a modern construction camp has arisen. Some 400 workmen have taken up their residence here, but before long the number is expected to total 600.

"Work is now to be started on the dams, one across the Jordan and the other across the Yarmuk. The latter will be about 30 feet high. It will result in the formation of a lake with a water area of about 10,000,000 square feet. This will act as an intermediary reservoir for feeding the Sea of Galilee and insuring the requisite flow for driving the turbines in the power house. The dam will be provided with automatic flood gates with a capacity of 35,000 cubic feet per second."

Another interesting feature of present developments is given in the following extracts:

"These three power houses, all of which will be operated by the waters of the Jordan and its tributaries, will constitute the first stage of the project for the comprehensive electrification of the Holy Land.

"As already stated, the first of these power houses is expected to be finished and in operation by the end of next year. When the work it will entail at Jisr is finished, it will be historic not only because of the vast benefit it will bring to the country, but also because of the way in which it will change the face of the map of Palestine in the Sea of Galilee-Jordan-Yarmuk area in several important respects.

"High transmission lines will distribute the energy to all parts of the country. The poles for these lines are now being fashioned in the workshops at Haifa and their erection is to commence in July next.

"This scheme for the electrification of the Holy Land is unique in that it is designed to cover the needs of a whole country. In the near future every city, town and agricultural settlement in Palestine will be able to obtain electrical energy for lighting, heating and power purposes. Furthermore, the government will regulate the charges and cheap power will be the result. It should give a great impetus to the general development of the country.

"For the first time Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Bethany, Nazareth and scores of other places famed in sacred history will be lighted by electricity.

"Although Jerusalem is one of the oldest cities in the world, and Hebron dates back long before the days of Abraham, they have not even gas for lighting their streets and dwellings.

"It is somewhat startling to know that the Via Dolorosa, along which Christ passed on His way to Calvary, will be illuminated by modern electric standards operated by the waters of the Jordan in which He was baptized!"

REST

TWO PAINTERS EACH painted a picture to illustrate his conception of rest. The first chose for his scene a still, lone lake among the far-off mountains.

The second threw on his canvas a thundering waterfall, with a fragile birch tree bending over the foam; and at the fork of the branch, almost wet with the cataract's spray, sat a robin on its nest.

The first was only stagnation; the last was rest.

Christ's life outwardly was one of the most troubled lives that was ever lived; tempest and tumult, tumult and tempest, the waves breaking over it all the time until the worn body was laid in the grave. But the inner life was a sea of glass. The great calm was always there.

At any moment you might have gone to Him and found rest. And even when the human bloodhounds were dogging Him in the streets of Jerusalem, He turned to His disciples and offered them, as a last legacy, "My peace."

Rest is not a hallowed feeling that comes over one in church; it is the repose of a heart set deep in God.

SERVICE SPELLS SACRIFICE ALWAYS. THE MASTER SERVED BEST BECAUSE HE CARRIED OUT HIS FATHER'S WILL RATHER THAN HIS OWN.

A NEW YOUNG PEOPLE'S Berean class is being born in Chicago. A splendid group of young people got together for a first meeting on Friday night, Oct. 5. They plan to meet every two weeks and we hope soon to be able to report their formal organization and more definite plans as to place and time of meetings. We are certainly thankful for this step forward.

Rumor from a distant state gives us reason to hope that we will soon have the opportunity of reporting a Berean class there. We are awaiting this with pleasant anticipation.

Illinois Bereans, did you read the heading at the top of this page? This is self-denial month for us. Think of the opportunity for service!

A LETTER FROM Sister Leta Osborn, one of our Bereans attending college in Indiana, contains some things so good that we quote the letter almost entire as follows:

Last night as I was reading Margaret L. Sangster's "Winsome Womanhood", I came to two paragraphs I felt were very vital. I should like to pass them on. Perhaps you can incorporate a few of the statements in your page writings.

"Girls, may I remind you to read your Bibles? Not merely a few hurried texts in the early morning, and a few verses at night when you are half asleep, but, with a listening ear, and with a reverent eye, realizing that you are in God's presence, and that He is speaking to you, read the divine Word. Do not omit the Old Testament, nor forget the New: the one is the following out of the other, and the two are inter-dependent. Do not read to criticize: come to the Book, as they who are thirsty come to a well; as they who are weary, to a pillow; as they who are afraid to a refuge. Learn the Bible by heart, whole chapters of it, and be assured the day will come, when the precious bits of truth, will be to you as fine gold and the fadeless gem. Choose where you will: the whole Bible is God's inspired message to humanity and you cannot read a single book without profit. Whatever other literature be noble, this is nobler; whatever else be full of sweetness and light, this Book of God surpasses it. It is as a lamp on a dark night, as a brook in the desert, as a flower in the fallow field, as a star in the sky.

"With other books, you may safely trust yourself to take up the reading at odd moments, or when their spell is upon you, or when you have an hour's leisure to fill. But the Bible should not be left to the chances of inclination; it should be read seriously and at stated seasons. The Morning Watch makes safe and sure the day. Before the business of the day intrudes, while you are still rested after sleep, sit down for a little while to listen to God's message to you. Read the Book, before you pray, and pray with its counsels fresh in your mind. Make the daily closet service a habit, not to be lightly broken, and do not leave your room until you have read your chapter or your own few texts, if you have time for no more. Take a text with you each morning as your motto for the whole day. The Book is meant to give us our marching orders."

Then again in her message to the business girl she quotes,

"To serve the present age,
My calling to fulfill,
Oh, may it all my powers engage
To do the Master's will."

"I know not the way I am going
But well do I know my guide
With a childlike trust I take the hand
Of the mighty Friend at my side."

This book was recommended by our Dean of Women, with this remark, "Every young woman should read this. Four parts: Daybreak, High Noon, Eventide, the Rounded Life."

"Yah" in Hebrew equals "Jah" in English, and refers to Jehovah. In the word Isaiah, "iah" is in Hebrew "yah", and signifies, Jehovah is helper. Likewise "Jeremiah" signifies, Jehovah is high; Hosea, Jehovah is help; Micah, Who is like Jehovah?

PAUL'S LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

PAUL HAD almost finished his Third Missionary Journey: in fact, he knew he had almost completed his evangelistic services. He revisited many of the churches he had helped to establish, and now was on his way to Jerusalem to be there by the day of Pentecost.

He came to Miletus, about thirty miles from Ephesus.

"As he was in a hurry to reach Jerusalem, he called the elders of the church at Ephesus to meet him at Miletus. He wanted to give them a few words of helpful advice. You see, he knew and they knew that they would not meet him again, so it was very hard for them to say good-bye.

"Paul recalled to them how he had presented the truth at all times in the face of all dangers. He asked them to take good care of the flock, or church, because he knew false teachers would come among them, like wolves, trying to draw them away from the right belief. He also warned against disputing among themselves. He gave them into the keeping of God, who could save them from harm.

"He told them not only to help keep the members in the faith, but also to labor, as he had, and help supply the daily needs of those who could not work; reminding them of the words of Jesus, 'It is better to give than to receive.'

"When the time came for the apostle to leave he knelt down and prayed with them all. Many shed tears as they kissed Paul, and went with him to the ship.

"Would not you have been sad to part with such a dear, wise friend?"

THE SURPRISE APPLES

OUR SUNDAY-SCHOOL class has a birthday to-morrow, and we are going to have a picnic," said Janie,

"A birthday picnic for a Sunday-school class! I didn't know a class could have a birthday!" exclaimed her brother, Ned.

"A class can have a birthday just like boys and girls have," answered Janie. "The girls of my age and those of Dot's age used to be in one class, but the class grew too large for one teacher. So just a year ago to-morrow the girls of my age formed a new class with Miss Mary as teacher."

"Well, that is a birthday, all right," agreed Ned.

"I'm going to make sandwiches, but I wish I had something more, something for a surprise."

"Why not take some apples? I'll get them for you."

"Oh, Ned! That will be just the thing!" cried the girl.

The next day, when Janie was ready for the picnic, she went to the kitchen to see if Ned had brought the apples. On the table sat a basket of beautiful red fruit.

"How lovely!" she exclaimed.

As there were just six girls and Miss Mary in the class, Janie put seven of the pretty red things into a small basket and ran happily to the picnic place.

It was a lovely picnic. The cloth was laid on the clean grass, and the dinner was set out with the beautiful birthday cake in the center. Janie thought her bright red apples would look pretty on the white cloth; so she put one of them at each place.

When everybody sat down to dinner, Miss Mary noticed the red things. "How pretty!" she said. "Who brought them, and what are they?"

"I brought them, and they are apples," answered Janie.

"Apples!" exclaimed Miss Mary.

"Apples!" echoed Madge Brown.

Miss Mary and Madge looked at each other and smiled, but they said no more.

When the girls had eaten the sandwiches and the salad, they thought it was time for the apples.

"Let's all bite at once," suggested Lula. "One, two, three, bite!"

At the word bite, everybody but Miss Mary and Madge bit into their apple. Then what a noise there was, as the girls jumped up, sputtering and coughing and calling for water!

"P-p-pepper!" they cried in a chorus.

"Rinse your mouths well, while Madge and I get something from the freezer to take away the taste," laughed Miss Mary.

When the ice cream was served, the girls all laughed over the joke that had been played on them. "But Madge and Miss Mary did not bite theirs!" they said.

"We had seen red peppers before," laughed Madge, "but we thought the joke was too good to spoil."

When Janie reached home, Ned said, "Did you find the apples? I left them in the pantry for you."

Then she told him about the red peppers. "I thought they were apples," she explained.—From Little Learner's Paper.

PAUL'S LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

Acts 20:1 to 21:17; 2 Cor. 11:28.

Devotional Reading: John 10:7-17

GOLDEN TEXT

Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

The Church of God. Acts 20 strikingly reveals the church of God. The Bible student spends much time in studying the building up of God's nation, the chosen people of Israel. It was carefully organized. God assigned leadership and guardianship over it. Equally as carefully did God organize and establish His church, the Christians. Just as national membership was recognized by individual allegiance and national sovereignty, so is membership to the church recognized by this double standard: individual loyalty and God's sovereignty. The nation grew tired of God's sovereignty and sought another king. God granted it. 1 Sam. 8:1-9. God had previously appointed leaders responsible under Himself. Concerning the church, God only is Sovereign; its people are called-out-ones of God. They are His; He has appointed no human sovereign in His stead. God has, however, appointed Christ as the Head, the Leader of the church. Col. 2:19; Eph. 1:22; 5:23. Even in Christ's absence the church owes allegiance and loyalty.

Elders. Primarily the word "elder" means "older". Formerly the older ones were the patriarchs, the leaders, the rulers. Latterly, whoever led, directed, were called elders because of their position.

In the church the elders are those who, being molded and enabled by God's Spirit, are fitted for aiding, leading, encouraging, teaching, strengthening the members of the church. 1 Tim. 3:1-7; Titus 1:4-9.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"In all things I gave you to understand that thus toiling it behoves to be helping the weak,—to be keeping in mind also the words of the Lord Jesus, that he said: Happy is it, rather to be giving than to be receiving."—Acts 20:35, Roth.

Paul is speaking here concerning the weak, saying, "I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive." Giving as the world gives, that is, to friends, relatives, etc., simply because of our affection for them, is not the giving by which we will merit the father's blessing. Give to the needy and you will receive the just recompense of your reward.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Shepherd's Responsibility. Two young men were given flocks of sheep to care for, the same number each. Ralph loved his sheep; each day as he watched them feed he meditated and planned for their comfort, safety and welfare. Carefully he guarded off all wild animals till the sheep were safely in the fold at night. Naturally the sheep loved Ralph and felt safe with him. But Harold cared only for himself; and instead of considering what he could do for the welfare of the sheep, he spent his time planning for his own profit or good times. The result was that Harold's sheep did not prosper as did Ralph's. Many died from exposure and neglect; and on different occasions wolves and bears got into the flock and wreaked death and havoc.

Paul as a minister and an apostle was like Ralph. He loved the people of the churches where he labored, and constantly planned for their welfare and safety. A "wolf" to him was one who taught a wrong theory of God's plan, or introduced immoral or wrong conduct.

A true minister to-day will feel a similar responsibility. A true Christian will realize there are some who come under his care and influence, too.

Are you being a true under-shepherd for Christ?—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Paul's Ministry.

"Neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God."—Acts 20:24.

Paul's ministry was to preach God's grace which is the golden thread that runs through all his work. He realized fully that Jesus came not to condemn the world, but to save the world. The church often loses sight of this fact. She delights to coerce by preaching condemnation to eternal hell fire or annihilation; or by pointing the unbeliever to the dark picture of the last days. The gospel of God's grace and appeal to the unbeliever to yield himself wholly to that grace is all too often in the background.

The world's one great need is wisdom that understands the needs and possibilities of the human heart; and the love and patience that holds through thick and thin, through death itself, to work out God's initial purpose of making man in His own image and likeness.

The dominant message of the "church" for ages has been condemnation, and the world has made little spiritual progress. Soon the true church shall be complete. Then grace and love and salvation shall come into their own through the kingdom of God's grace.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Beauty of Fellowship, One with Another.

Paul was making his last journey to Jerusalem. On the way from Miletus, he stopped for a short while at Ephesus to bid farewell to the brethren there, and to encourage them to continue the work he had started. His time with them was so limited that it was necessary for him to have the elders of the church meet him at the port.

Paul had labored faithfully with these people. Their welfare lay very close to his heart, therefore he could not keep from giving them a farewell message, and this message to them contains some valuable suggestions to us.

He feared for their welfare, for he knew that after his departure, others would try to draw them away from the truth. But his faith in God was so great that he could now say, "I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified."

If God in those days was able to shield and guide those faithful ones whom Paul committed to His care, He is just as willing and ready to watch over and care for us to-day. May we be as willing to submit our lives to His care and guidance.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Paul Says Good-bye to the Church.
Aim: To point Christians to Christ.

Paul had stopped at Ephesus to leave his farewell message to the church. How much he had to say, for he knew when he was gone grievous wolves (wicked men) would seek to destroy what he had so faithfully taught them! So he wanted once more to remind them of his great love for them; and how he had kept back nothing of the gospel truths that would be profitable to them. He would once more admonish them that it was repentance toward God and our Lord Jesus Christ that would save them and give them eternal life. Their duty after he was gone would be to feed the Church of God and to be faithful, not only to one church, but wherever they could minister to the saints. After he had told them these things he said he must bid them good-bye, and what a fitting farewell! He kneeled with them; and in the little while the ship stopped, he had preached a sermon; had prayed with them, committing them to the care of a watchful Father; kissed them good-bye; and with tears and prayers was gone to meet whatever persecutions awaited him.—M. A. W.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. E. C. Pearson of the Brush Creek, Ohio, church has been in poor health for several weeks, and is at present at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Ohio, for a course of treatment. We trust that a few more weeks will make him well and strong.

Incomplete messages just received tell of a distressing accident in which Sisters Vickery and Chaplin of Arkansas City, Kansas, were killed. Bro. Siple was called for the funeral. Further details later.

Bro. Lyman Booth reports from the home of Sister Dr. Logan, St. Louis, that he is well, working every day.

The name of Bro. M. W. Lyon, as author, should have been given to the good report of the Church of the Golden Rule in issue of Oct. 9.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

Sunday, October 14, was Rally Day at our Sunday School. Each class showed an increase in number over the previous Sundays. After a short lesson, a program was given by the Primary Department.

The introduction of a six piece orchestra was one of the results of Rally Day. The orchestra assisted both at the Sunday School and Berean services.

The Berean services showed the result of rally effort with an attendance of forty—all interested.

The morning and evening sermons were listened to by large and attentive audiences. The afternoon service was not as largely attended but the interest was fine.

Bro. Jas. A. Patriek will occupy the pulpit next Sunday, the 21st. Rallying round the Word of God will be the special phase of rally thought, and it is certain that Bro. Patriek is especially qualified to make the most of this feature.

Sr. Nellie Cross, accompanied by her son, Clarence, with whom she has been visiting at Berlin, Wisconsin, returned to her home in Oregon, Sunday. Her son returned Monday to his home.

Brethren and friends from Rockford, Rochelle, Flag Center, Dixon, Franklin Grove, and Leaf River, attended Rally Day services and Church Homecoming at Oregon, Sunday.

Bro. Charles Gesin is taking his first vacation. He and Sr. Gesin left Monday morning to attend with their assistance the evangelistic meetings now being held at Ripley, Ill., by Bro. F. E. Siple.

Bro. Geo. A. Brown of Oregon, Ill., is taking residence at Golden Rule Home.

Bro. and Sr. I. E. Arnold of Trenton, Mo., with his sister, Mrs. Bird of Jamesport, Mo., and Mrs. Walden of Freeport, Ill., recently called on their old friend, Sr. Mary Renner at Golden Rule Home.

On Sunday the 5th., Sr. Renner of the Golden Rule Home was pleased to receive calls from her long-time friends, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Pyper and Mr. and Mrs. S. Sprecher, of Leaf River, Ill.

Sr. Williamson of the Golden Rule Home suffered an acute sickness last week. She is much improved at this writing.

Since last report Bro. S. J. Lindsay has suffered a serious attack of pneumonia. The disease having favorably passed the crisis he has been slowly gaining for 3 or 4 days. This morning, Oct. 15, he is reported to have had the best night's rest enjoyed for some time.

A brief message announces that the editor's mother, Mrs. M. A. Woodward, was in an auto accident Saturday afternoon, Oct. 13, from which she suffered cuts and bruises. She was enroute to Blanchard, Mich., for Sunday.

Bro. F. E. Siple having been called to Arkansas City on account of the accidental death of Sisters Vickery and Chaplin, Bro. Jas. A. Patriek, of Ashland, Ohio, was called to fill Bro. Siple's Rally Day appointments at Plum River and Adeline, and an appointment at Kewance on the eve of October 15.

The Golden Rule Home is in receipt of one hundred pounds of nice new prunes—a gift from Bro. and Sr. Wallace Woolf of Vancouver, Wash. They are the more appreciated when it is known that Bro. Woolf's large prune orchard did not bear this year and he purchased elsewhere in order to continue this annual remembrance of his. Thanks, Bro. Woolf.

MICHIGAN

Sr. Woodward spoke at the Grand Rapids church, Thursday evening, Oct. 4. All enjoyed her message and we will be glad to have her come again. She also spoke at the Denton church on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 7.

Encouraging reports have been coming from Blanchard. We rejoice with all the sister churches that are prospering in the Master's service. The coming quarterly conference which will convene at this church Oct. 19-21 should prove very helpful to the local congregation. Quarterly meetings help the local churches more than they do the state work as a whole. Let every one co-operate to make this meeting a real blessing.

The baked goods sale conducted by the Dorcas society of the Grand Rapids church, proved a very lucrative affair. Great things can be accomplished where there is "Christian co-operation." The catalogue houses have also assisted one of the auxiliaries by contributing remnant goods.

Bro. F. L. Austin will speak at Grand Rapids, Thursday evening, Oct. 18. Those living within a near-by radius are urged to attend.

(The following good report was promptly received but was unintentionally overlooked.—Regretful Editor.)

Sept. 16th was Rally Day in Grand Rapids with one hundred sixty one present at Sunday School. The Adult class was the banner class with forty two persons present. You should have seen the teacher, Mr. Hall, smile!

The program consisted of one special number from each class. This program was planned to tell the aim of our Sunday School (to make it the best in the land), and to show something the children are learning there.

MINNESOTA

The Minnesota fall conference will convene at Mora, Minn., commencing Oct. 26th and holding over Sunday Oct. 28th. Come and help make this a good conference.

Mrs. Thos. M. Savage, Conference Sec.

RALLY DAY, BLAIR, NEBR.

Sunday, Oct. 21 is Sunday school Rally day for the Church of God at Blair. Sunday school at 10 a. m.; Preaching at 11 a. m. Subject for morning worship, The Mission of the Church. Basket dinner at 12:30. Beginning at 2:30 p. m. the young folks of the Church and Sunday school will render a program that will be both entertaining and educational. Brecons meet at 6:30, preaching at 7:30 p. m. The Avery brethren will be with us on Rally day and we are looking forward to a great day for the Church. Sister Gordon of Holbrook, Nebr, was with us Sun. Oct. 7. This aged mother is a great lover of the truth and her presence and conversation is an inspiration to any one of like precious faith.

Our pastor was with the Avery brethren last Sunday and spoke to the congregation at three services during the day.

The Church at Blair is awake and doing things that will count in eternity.

Miss Leona Marsh of Ames, Iowa, who has for some time been employed in Philadelphia, has recently relocated in Ft. Wayne, Ind., where she is employed as chemist in the Research and Inventions Department of S. F. Bowers and Co.

Sr. Marsh may be addressed at 516 E. Taber St., Ft. Wayne, Ind. To those of the brotherhood in and near Ft. Wayne we are glad to commend Sr. Marsh.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Cleveland, Ohio.

Rally Day—October 21

The biggest success of the new Church of the Golden Rule is its Sunday School. A record attendance of 84 was present on dedication day, and every Sunday since, without exception, has set a new record for attendance. Sept. 16, the Sunday after dedication, it jumped to 103, the next Sunday there were 105, the next, 108 and the next, Oct. 7, there were 111. The steady growth has stimulated much enthusiasm to keep up the record, at least until Rally Day.

Rally Day has been announced for Oct. 21, and a further shattering of attendance records is expected on that day. A special program is being prepared, in which each class will present some feature of its own. Let every member of the Sunday School be present on Rally Day, and see that others come also.

The primary department is the most unwieldy. Classes have been so large that they have had to be divided. The teachers are taking hold of the work with the children with admirable enthusiasm, although some are entirely new to the work.

A contest between some of the classes is going to be started shortly which it is expected will last until Christmas, and plans are now under way for that.

A Hallowe'en masquerade party will be held on the night of Oct. 26. It will be given by the Sunday School in conjunction with the Bereans.

NIAGARA FALLS ANNUAL FALL MEETING

The annual Fall meeting of the Niagara Falls, N. Y., Church of God will be held (D. V.) Sunday October 28, 1928. The program for the day includes four services, as follows:

10 a. m. Sunday School, conducted by superintendent E. L. Moore;

11 a. m. Sermon by the pastor. Topic: "The Gospel of the Kingdom of God."

3 p. m. Sermon by the pastor. Topic: "The Meeting in the Air."

7:30 p. m. Sermon by the pastor. Topic: "Finally Brethren, Farewell."

This service will conclude the pastorate of Elder G. E. Marsh at Niagara Falls, N. Y. and at Fonthill, Ont., which has been extended over a period of nearly seven years. The Niagara Falls choir will be assisted in the musical part of the program by the Fonthill choir. Dinner and supper will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Moreland, 1023 South Avenue, two blocks from the church.

LUTHER ABBOT WORLEY was born in Miami County, Ohio, June 2, 1852, and died Oct. 7, 1928 at the age of 76 years, 4 mo. and 5 days. He was the eighth of nine children of Thompson and Melinda C. Worley. His entire life was spent in the community in which he was born, and he died within sight of his birthplace.

He was married on New Year's Day, 1882, to Orinda C. Rice. To this union there were two sons born, Charles Herbert and Ora L. Worley, both of whom survive him, together with one brother, David, of Englewood, O., and three grandchildren.

He was baptized into Christ about 35 years ago, by Bro. George Elton, and has been closely associated with the Brush Creek church ever since, having served as an officer of that congregation for many years.

He and his faithful wife established their home by the side of the road near the church where they lived for 41 years until his death. This became known as "Cozy Corner" to all the neighborhood. The Worley home is known far and near as a haven for young and old, for no one was ever turned away who was in need. It is safe to say that those who have shared the hospitality of this home can never be numbered by man. It was their delight to be always serving others, lending the helping hand to the one in need.

Thus the record of a faithful life is closed, and another of the Lord's jewels is laid away to await the day when He shall have need of them, and shall call them from slumber of death to meet Him in glorious resurrection life.

Funeral services were held at the Brush Creek Church Sept. 9, 1928. The neighbors who gathered to pay their last respects filled the church to overflowing, mute evidence of the esteem in which Bro. Worley was held by one and all. He was laid to rest in the little Curtis cemetery to join the many others who are waiting there for the Master.

MRS. EUNICE LEWIS

Eunice R. Long born Nov. 21, 1848, daughter of David and Emily Long, the last surviving member of that family of ten children, passed away at her home near Ripley, Oct. 4, 1928, nearing her eightieth birthday. She had spent her entire life in this community with the exception of one year spent in Colorado.

She was united in marriage to Thomas F. Lewis, Oct. 19, 1876. To this union were born four children, two dying in infancy and Catharine at the age of sixteen. Her husband preceded her in death twenty one years, after which she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Paisley, where she was tenderly care for until death.

She united with the Church of God at Ripley in 1864 under the ministry of Bro. J. M. Stephenson, remaining firm in her faith throughout life. Her life was one of true Christian womanhood, beloved by all who knew her.

Besides her surviving children, Mrs. W. F. Paisley and A. H. Lewis, she leaves an adopted sister, Mrs. Wm. Densmore, nine grandchildren, four great grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her passing.

To the foregoing which was handed us to be read at the funeral the undersigned would like to add that in all our experience we have never known a person who was more self-sacrificing or more universally loved. To bring peace, harmony, good will,—this was her constant effort in life and it endeared her to all who knew her.

Funeral services were conducted on Saturday, Oct. 6, at Ripley, and a large crowd of genuine mourners were present to lay "Aunt Eunice" or "Grandma Lewis" to rest. How deeply the little church there will miss her quiet, smiling presence!

F. E. Siple.

MRS. GEORGE SLACK

Mollie Woods was born Nov. 13, 1861 near Wakefield, Illinois, and spent her entire life in that section of the state.

In the year 1884 she was united in marriage to George Slack, and seven children came to grace their home, two of which died as children. The other five who remain alive are: Henry, of Newton, Ill.; Earl, of Scranton, Iowa; Alfred, of near Wakefield, Ill.; Mary, of Lincoln, Ill.; and Mrs. Wm. Lansbery, Casey, Ill. The husband and father passed away in May, 1927. Remaining to mourn her loss are the five children, one brother of Chicago, one sister of Wakefield, nine grand children, besides the many neighbors and friends.

Mrs. Slack had been in failing health for the past few months, and all that medical skill could do was done to bring relief. Nine weeks ago she was taken to the Effingham hospital, but after six weeks it was found that nothing could be done for her and she was brought back to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lansbery, where she was tenderly cared for till death came to end her sufferings on Saturday evening, Oct. 6.

More than 25 years ago Sister Slack was baptized by Eld. J. E. Hatch, of the Church of God, and she remained true to her faith, falling asleep in death with full assurance of the resurrection of the dead.

Funeral services were conducted from the Lansbery home in Casey and at the Christian Church near the old home some forty miles south west of Casey on Monday, Oct. 8, after which she was quietly buried in the cemetery close at hand.

She sleeps, and thus is added one more reason for yearning and praying for the resurrection morn.

The Wonderful Book

“The Bible, the Bible, blest volume of truth,
How sweetly it smiles on the season of youth!
It bids us seek early the pearl of great price
Ere the heart is enslaved in the bondage of vice.

“The Bible, the Bible, we hail it with joy;
Its truths and its glories our tongues shall employ;
We’ll sing of its triumphs and tell of its worth,
And send its glad tidings afar o’er the earth.

“The Bible, the Bible, more precious than gold;
The hopes and the glories its pages unfold.
It speaks of the Savior and tells of His love;
And shows us the way to give pleasure above.

“The Bible, the Bible, the valleys shall ring,
And hilltops re-echo the notes that we sing;
Our banners inscribed with its precepts and rules
Shall long wave in triumph the joy of our schools.”

THE POWER OF THE SPIRIT

IT BEING CLEAR from Scripture, as noted on page 4, that "Holy Spirit" is in itself no different from spirit not designated holy, and it being clear from Scripture, as noted on page 19, that "Holy Spirit" is not a living being, but that it is equally inanimate and neuter as is spirit in any other phase, we can then enter into a study of spirit itself to ascertain, if possible, a definition therefor from the pages of sacred writ. It is possible to accomplish this best only when we take Lexicon and Concordance in hand and endeavor to ascertain the inspired use of the word as it was used in the language through which the inspired word was expressed.

Young's Concordance records 377 occurrences of the Hebrew word ruach. 232 times this word is translated into the English word "spirit", 91 times into the English words "wind" or "windy", 29 times into the English word "breath". The same Concordance records the use of the Greek pneuma about 387 times in the New Testament. This word is translated into the English word "spirit" (without capital "s") 151 times, "Spirit" (printed with capital "S") 133 times, "Ghost" modified by "Holy" 4 times, "ghost" twice, "breath" twice, "wind" once, "life" once, and others.

It will be noted that in both the Old and New Testaments there is no other Hebrew word used in the Bible from which the English word "spirit" is derived, excepting the word neshamah which is used twice: Job 26:4; Prov. 20:27. There is no other Greek word from which the English word "spirit" is derived in the New Testament, except the word phantasma which is so used only twice: Matt. 14:26; Mark 6:49.

It will be noted that the thought conveyed by these words in the three languages is the thought of some action or force or energy resultant from spirit or breath. It is with this thought that we have such phrases as "the spirit of jealousy", that is, the energy or activity that is characterized by jealousy; "the spirit of love", that is, action or energy characterized by love; "Holy Spirit", that is, energy or activity set apart for the performance of some special work of God. This truth is so vividly emphasized by our Savior at the hour of His ascension; Acts 1:8, when He said, "Ye shall receive power (Greek dunamis the word from which we derive the English words dynamics, dynamo, dynamite and such), after that the Holy Ghost (Spirit) is come upon you." The Spirit was not that power, but they were to receive power as a result of the Spirit being upon them. But this was Holy Spirit, "Holy" meaning Spirit designated for special edifying work.

On the day of Pentecost Peter explained, Acts 2:17, 33, that Christ had "shed forth" the Holy Spirit upon those gathered and that as a result they were empowered to speak and act as they did upon that day of Pentecost. Peter expressly attributed their works as resulting from their reception of the Holy Spirit when he said, Act 1:16, 17, "This is that". It was a fulfillment of Joel's prophecy.

In like manner when God breathed into Adam, He gave to Adam that which invigorated, energized him to move, his heart to beat, his lungs to breathe, his mind to think. As the electric current that is led to the dynamo imports some unseen power to energize that machine, so God's Spirit imputed to every new born babe releases in some way energy by which the creature lives, acts, performs.

Likewise, by God's own wireless means, He conveys to Christians additional Spirit, Spirit set aside for special labors, namely, Holy Spirit, that the Christian may carry on in ways that are beyond the ways of the carnal, beyond the grasp of the natural man; activities that are made possible by the Father by His Spirit—spiritual activities.

TWO BLADES IN PLACE OF ONE

TO MAKE two blades of grass grow where but one grew before is a principle which has revolutionized the world. Every advancement on farm or in city has been made by the employment of this principle. To increase production; to increase efficiency: these are the slogans that have made man's world grow. The Church of God needs this ideal ever before its eye. To increase its usefulness before God it must of necessity utilize more fully and energetically its powers, reach larger numbers and secure increased results.

This is the prompted motive of our effort to double the subscription list of The Restitution Herald. We long to accomplish greater work in the service of the Master; we long to reach more readers and students of the gospel of salvation; we long to acclaim the name of Christ to larger numbers. To this end we ask every reader of the Herald to co-operate, each in his or her own vicinity or among distant correspondents and friends, by adding one or more subscribers to the Herald list. This is your work and your responsibility, dear Reader, equally as much as that of the Herald office. We are all of the same body of Christ. Each one has his part to do.

We urge that each will do his or her best to see that two Heralds are distributed where only one is now found, will aid so that two servants of the Master will be found where only one now exists.

Let us use our prayers, our strength, our influence to double our gospel labors that are being wrought through the Herald.

As stated last week, to the one who will send in the largest number of subscribers in excess of ten by December 31st, the Herald will present the beautiful gift Bible advertised on the last page of this issue.

If each blade would grow one additional there would be two in place of one.

If each Herald subscriber will become missionary-salesman and sell one additional subscription, two would then grow and do good for every one now busy in the Lord's work.

Present subscribers can do it.

LET'S GO!

WHY AND HOW SHOULD CHRISTIANS SUPPORT THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT?

The following so nicely expresses some of the editor's own private thoughts, and it seems to fit so well into the moral needs of the day that it is given place in the Herald.
—Ed.

WHY SUPPORT IT?

IT IS A LAW of the country; while it so remains there is but one attitude for Christians to take toward it—obedience.

It is a law for the protection of the home and society.

It is in accord with the teachings of God's word.

It does not take away personal liberty; it grants liberty to all—freedom to live their lives without the handicap of the temptations of the saloon.

Liquor has always been a deceiver and a stealer of health, morals, happiness.

It is a means of safeguarding life; intoxication is extremely dangerous in this age of high-powered machines.

It has been largely responsible for the high tide of prosperity that our country has enjoyed—money, formerly going into the saloon, being now turned into productive channels.

It outlaws the brewery and the saloon, which were menaces to home and morals.

It is succeeding in spite of handicaps and opposition. Among its opponents we find bootleggers, criminals, gamblers.

Most of the newspapers of the country are "wet;" the support must come from those who stand for moral betterment.

Its benefits for outnumber the evils which grow out of non-enforcement.

Liquor drinking is incompatible with efficiency required for success to-day.

It is the greatest adventure in economic progress that the world has made in many generations.

It is better at its worst than was legalized traffic at its best.

Science and experience both have proved that liquor drinking is detrimental to health and longevity.

HOW TO SUPPORT IT

Giving personal obedience to law.

Reporting to proper officers cases of violation.

Protesting against plays and movies and newspapers that make light of law enforcement.

Refusing to jest or laugh at jokes that make light of law violation and drunkenness.

Boosting for it in our conversation.

Writing occasional letters supporting it, for publication in local newspapers.

Educating those younger than ourselves as to its advantages.

Familiarizing one's self with facts to be used in argument for it.

Praying for the arousing of public conscience on the matter.

"When thy judgements are in the earth the inhabitants of the earth will learn righteousness."—Isa. 26:9.

KEPT IN THE WORLD

OUR LORD JESUS not only saves, but He keeps; in the forgiveness of sins and regenerating power there is an instantaneous and marvelous work, a gracious change; it is being born again. It is to become in Christ a new creature; but life stretches out ahead, many temptations and conflicts await this new creature, and the keeping power of Christ is necessary. One must not only be saved in the great work of pardon and regeneration, but one must be kept from sin in a sinful world.

It will be remembered that in His prayer contained in the 17th chapter of John's gospel, speaking to the Father of His disciples, our Lord said; "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil." Jesus saves people for service. He would keep them in this world and use them for His glory in the salvation of others. All Christians should get this truth very clearly fixed in their minds.—Selected.

"ASK, AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN YOU"

Luke 11:1-13.

AND IT CAME TO PASS, that as he was praying in a certain place." Luke records more instances of the Savior's praying than any of the others. In Luke alone do we find that He prayed at His baptism, at His transfiguration, after He cleansed the leper, and before He chose the twelve (3:21; 9:29; 5:16; 6:12, 13). If we were more intimate with our Father in heaven, we would more often be found in communion with Him; the earth would be a more lonely place to us, and we would have more heart craving for Christ Himself.

"Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples." In the sermon on the Mount Jesus had already taught how to pray (Matt. 6:9-13), but as it was after that the twelve were chosen, it is probable that the disciple who asked this question was not present at that time.

"And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven." In His sermon on the Mount Jesus said, "Your Father which is in heaven," or "your heavenly Father," eight times, "Thy or your Father" seven times, "My Father which is in heaven" once, and "Our Father which art in heaven" once.

"Hallowed by thy name." In His last prayer with His disciples Jesus said to His Father, "I have manifested thy name;" "I have declared unto them thy name." At another time he prayed, "Father, glorify thy name" (John 17:6, 26; 12:28).

"Thy kingdom come." The God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall break in pieces and consume all the kingdoms of this world and it shall stand forever.

"Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth." When this petition shall have been manifestly answered, then the kingdom shall have come. But until God's will is done on earth as it is in heaven let no one say that the kingdom has come. In proportion as we now delight to do His will we shall individually have a foretaste of the kingdom in our hearts and lives.

"Give us day by day our daily bread"—sustenance for body and soul as each day shall require; but one day at a time. "A daily rate for every day all the days of his life" was what a certain king gave to one who was his captive (2 Kings 25:30).

"And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us." When He taught them this prayer in the sermon on the Mount, He added: "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses."

"And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." God did tempt, or try, or prove Abraham; and James says, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation;" but he also adds, "God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man" (Gen. 22:1; Jas. 1:12-15). Temptations, in the sense of trials, are our greatest blessings (Jas. 1:2; 1 Pet. 4:12, 13); and God is faithful who will not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able (1 Cor. 10:13). Perhaps the best explanation of this petition will be found in the light of Matt. 4:1, "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil," and in the fact that He, knowing what it means, would as far as possible spare us.

"Friend, lend me three loaves; for a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him." Jesus now uses the illustration of a friend coming to a friend, on behalf of another friend, and at a very unseasonable hour, but with a very urgent request; and the request is denied, for the man of whom the request is made thinks more of the comfort of his children, who are in bed with him, than of the need.

"Because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth." The word for importunity is used only this once in the Bible, and signifies literally "shamelessness" or "impudence" or "rough earnestness." Here is an earnestness, not very seemly, but which accomplishes its end, even at the expense of the children's comfort. He seems to teach us that there is a taking hold of God in prayer as Jacob did when in his helplessness he clung to the angel, saying, "I will not let thee go, except thou bless me."

"And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you." "All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it." "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you" (Matt. 21:22; John 14:13, 14; 15:7). These are a few of the many plain, emphatic words of our Lord upon asking and receiving, but who believes them? Who thus asks and receives?

"Seek and ye shall find." "Ye shall seek me and find me when ye shall search for me with all your heart." "Those that seek me diligently shall find me" (Jer. 29:13; Prov. 8:17, R. V.) When we seek according to the mind of God and with the whole heart; when we seek spiritual good as men seek silver or hidden treasures, then we may expect to find.

"Knock, and it shall be opened unto you." "In Christ is redemption" in all its fullness, and "in him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." No one knocking at His door can knock in vain, for his own promise is, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out" (Eph. 1:7; Col. 2:3; John 6:37). How sad the contrast in Rev. 3:20, where Jesus is seen standing at the door of the church that bears His name, but He is shut out; and He asks so pitifully if there is any individual that will let him in, that He may sup with them.

"For every one that asketh receiveth," etc. And these promises and statements about asking, seeking, knocking, are prefixed by His emphatic "I say unto you." How comforting are the words of 1 John 5:14, 15: "And, this is the confidence that we have in him, that if we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us; and if we know that he hears us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him."

"If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone?" In the previous illustration He encourages to ask, and now He encourages to expect what we ask for.

"How much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" If a father will give to a friend, how much more will a father give to his son?

LOOKING UP IN THE STRUGGLE

A CONSECRATED CHRISTIAN LIFE has many a struggle. "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Yet these spiritual forces of darkness often use human instruments in their attacks upon us. "If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus," was one of Paul's descriptions of his human foes stirred up against him in all the depravity of their hate by spiritual powers of darkness. Among his perils, not the least distressing, were those "among false brethren." Many are the records throughout sacred Scripture of powerful Satanic forces operating in and through mortals, and it would seem that even good and well-meaning persons may, unless they watch and pray, lend their influence to these malicious and destructive powers; this we may learn from Job's wife advising him to curse God and die, and Peter's effort to get our Lord Jesus to pity Himself rather than to boldly face the cross.

Our weakness is to see only the human hand, and to forget to reckon with the unseen power behind the scenes. David, in the fifty-sixth Psalm, gives a striking example of such a conflict and of the soul's struggle to retain its bouyancy and confidence in God. This Psalm was written when he fled to Achish king of Gath in view of the determination of Saul to slay him. The conflict is one of faith against feeling. A fear, no doubt more than natural filled his heart, yet all he was able to reckon with was Satan's instrument, man. At first it is just man that he fears, "Man would swallow me up," "he fighting daily oppresses me"; but as spiritual darkness increased, the number of his enemies seemed to increase—"They be many that fight against me." "Every day they wrest my words." "They hide themselves, they wait for my soul."

"The fear of man bringeth a snare," yet have not we, too, at some time been faced by most trying circumstances when it would seem that man would swallow us up? Some have suffered from those of their own households, others from associates who professed the Christian name; the world has proved no friend to grace, and, like David, in seeking to flee, even this has brought new sorrows. Feelings would cause us to despair, but faith bids us to find in God our hiding place. There is yet something in us which must be reached, a work within that must be done.

The heart may be beset with great inward struggles; David's soul seemed enmeshed in fear. All he could see by day, or in his dreams by night, were his enemies plotting against him to swallow him up. There was no need of his denying his fears; they were very real to him; yet, in spite of them he determined to trust, "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee." And, my friend, because you are at times sorely tempted is no reason you should cease to believe. Even Paul had times of "fightings within and fears without," and the fear of man caused the bold Elijah to flee from the threats of the unholy Jezebel. But did God desert His servant just because he feared? Be honest with God, acknowledge your weakness and wherein you fail, nevertheless be determined to trust.

It may be necessary time and again to take yourself afresh in hand as the burdens press and Satan tempts. Declare aloud if need be, "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee." It is not an evidence that you are without faith because the soul at times would falter. The proof of faith is found in the return of the soul to its trust in God. Peter had faith when he started to walk on the water; he lost the sense of it as the billows absorbed his attention; beginning to sink, his soul was almost swallowed up with fear, but the immediate turning of his heart to Jesus proves he was not void of faith, and faith saved him. There is more faith in your heart than you sometimes think. It is a living, vital principle of Christian life, without which it is impossible to please God; and though feelings often seem to choke it down, yet it rises afresh from almost unknown regions of the heart, and the fight is won. It is not, how much faith do we feel, but what is the outcome when the tests come? "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee."

In this conflict of faith, one must not only be resolved to trust when sight and feeling are contrary; he must also often remind and assure himself that he has so determined. "In God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me." I have done it, says David—I do not see the victory and I do not feel the victory, but my trust has been placed in One greater than all my foes. Ah, brother, what does "Fight the good fight of faith" mean if it does not mean conflict, adverse winds, disappointed feelings, darkness, and at times even the misgivings of our own hearts, and the sense of the entire frailty of our humanity? Never mind your feelings. If you are a child of God, underneath them is faith, that faith that

A PROPHET'S VISION

THE PROPHET DANIEL'S vision as recorded in the seventh chapter of the Book of Daniel presents a prophetic scope of rare interest.

This prophecy is comparatively easy of interpretation, for while many prophecies in the Word are mysteries which have not yet been revealed even to faithful and able students of Scripture, here the key hangs just beside the door, so that the eager student may readily open the treasure-house and secure the riches within.

The four beasts which Daniel saw are said to be kings (v. 17), and are also spoken of as kingdoms (v. 23). So here at least no room is left for a diversity of opinion. Nor are we long in doubt as to their identity, for the characteristics and successions of these kingdoms are so clearly given as to make the meaning plain to any one at all familiar with the history of nations.

There is such a remarkable parallelism between this vision of Daniel and the dream of Nebuchadnezzar (see Dan. 2), that we are entirely justified in concluding that they cover the same ground, viz.: The entire scope of Gentile world domination. In both prophecies the history of nations is carried to the very end of their existence, when they are destroyed, and succeeded by that kingdom which the God of heaven shall set up (Dan. 2:44), even the everlasting kingdom which shall be given to the saints of the Most High (Dan. 7:27).

But why should two prophecies be required to cover the same period? And why should there be this diversity in the symbols employed? The answer to the first question is found in the fact that it is a common method in the Word to present the various phases of some great truth by means of several parables or metaphors given at different times. A doctrine or a revelation may be too great to admit of its being represented in merely one treatment. Second, the symbols in the two prophecies differ because the one represents the outlook upon the scene from the standpoint of a proud, heathen king to whom the imposing image—which he saw in his dream—with himself as the head of gold—was an appropriate figure of world dominions; whereas to God's prophet considering them from God's viewpoint, the nations appeared in their true character as ravenous beasts. That this description of them is not misapplied is fully proven not only by their past and present conduct, but by their own proudly vaunted coat of arms and national emblems, in which wild beasts, birds and even reptiles are so conspicuous.

There has been little or no question among interpreters that the first beast which Daniel saw in his vision stood for the Babylonian empire—the empire which under Nebuchadnezzar marked the beginning of Gentile world-power, and whose sun was about to set when Daniel had his vision. It here appears as the noblest of beasts, with the addition of the wings of the noblest of birds, just as it appeared to its most illustrious head as the noblest of metals shaped according to the noblest part of man. The Scriptures elsewhere liken Nebuchadnezzar to a lion and his armies to eagles (Jer. 4:7, 13; Ezek. 17:3, 12), and the characteristic marks of his empire were great savage strength, magnificence and irresistible conquest. It was a lion with eagle's wings. But its aggressions soon flagged, its eagle wings were plucked and its career of conquest stopped. By the lessons which God taught its most distinguished king it was lifted up from the crouching attitude of a beast of prey, and made to stand erect as a man, whilst the weaker and gentler heart of a man was given to it. Thus all the features of the description answer to the facts recorded concerning this power.

The second beast well represents the Medo-Persian empire which conquered Babylon, and succeeded in the sovereignty of the world. The burly animal described answers to the heavy chest of Nebuchadnezzar's image. The two sides fit to the dual composition of the empire, the higher and stronger side representing Persia, which possessed the greater influence and power. History tells of the vast armies of Medo-Persia, and of its conquests, though these were achieved with the slow ponderous efforts characteristic of the awkward and heavy bear. The three torn ribs in this beast's mouth significantly correspond to the three countries, Lydia, Babylon and Egypt, which the Medo-Persian empire seized and held.

The leopard is a true figure of the next world-power: the Macedonian empire as extended and established by the conquests of Alexander. With the fleetness, cruelty and cunning of the leopard, Alexander the Great overran the world. It is written of him, "he was impetuous and fierce in his warlike expedition as a panther after its prey, and came on his enemies with that speed as if he flew with a double pair of wings."

At the death of Alexander the empire was divided into four portions, which fell to his four principal generals, and this fully explains the description of the four heads of the leopard.

Interest centers, however, in the fourth beast, of which the description is the most extended, and which because of its character and end is of most importance. No name is given to this animal, and the description of it differs from anything known in nature. Its terrible strength and ferocious actions seem to tax the prophet's power of expression. There are certain very clear marks of identification. It represents a kingdom, and more definitely still "the fourth kingdom upon the earth," that is, the conqueror of and successor to the three kingdoms that preceded it. There is only one world-power, that can be intended by this description, viz.: the Roman Empire. Crushing power was its chief characteristic. All else was obliged to yield to its relentless conquests.

The point that will require most explanation to the average reader is the bringing of the Roman Empire—thus represented by this terrible beast—in contact with the denouement when the Son of Man takes the kingdom, and destroying all other authority, becomes the monarch of the world. This has not yet occurred, and we have been taught to believe that the Roman Empire ceased long ago to exist. How is this hiatus to be spanned? Only as we see to-day the Roman power still essentially existent in present day governments, especially those that now occupy the territory that was once Imperial Rome. They are practically Rome still, though at present in fragments. The basis of their laws, as well as their spirit of earthly pomp and martial conquest prove them to be the lineal descendants of the Roman mother. They are as ambitious and sanguinary, and when occasion offers, hesitate as little to shed blood, to seize territory, and to increase their national prestige and power.

What other explanation can there be? Rome is the fourth beast, there is no fifth described to fill the place or time that would intervene before the Eternal One assumes His rights; therefore the fourth beast or Rome must under its continued form still occupy the period.

Moreover, that there will be a revival of the Roman Empire under the form of ten kingdoms, is the firm belief of the ablest students of prophecy, and the belief is based on what seems to be clear teaching of the word of God. Note the lesson conveyed by the figure of the ten horns of the fourth beast. They are said to be ten kings. Ten kings predict ten kingdoms. Further they appear, or rise, at or toward the end of the epoch of the fourth beast. These ten kings or kingdoms are paralleled in other portions of the Word. In the image of Nebuchadnezzar's dream they are presented under the figure of ten toes, which are also designated kings (Dan. 2:44). Also, in Rev. 17:12, there is a description of them identical with that which we have in this seventh chapter of Daniel.

From these evidences what other conclusion can be drawn than that the Roman Empire (though not necessarily in name) will be revived: ten kingdoms occupying its former territory (indeed it is quite possible that their boundaries will be formed as an outcome of the present war)? From among them will arise the wonderful ruler called "the little horn," who will exceed in ability and power all who have ever gone before him among men, so that he will captivate the imagination and win the admiration of nearly all people, who will gladly render him homage and accept his domination as a relief from the confusion and strife that have rent the world. He it is who, intoxicated with power and a sense of his own super-human ability, will exalt himself as the object of human adoration (See 2 Thess. 2:4).

It is to this that humanity is tending. Every setting sun brings it nearer the climax of its own unregenerated efforts, and the final result of its boasted evolution. These will end in man-worship!

But the consummation of God's plan will quickly follow. What a calm and yet conclusive sequel is given in vs. 11, 13, 14, 26 and 27! As truly as God created the universe, and Christ died and rose again, will the Son of Man in due time be invested with universal power and rule with undisputed sway. (See Ps. 2, and Rev. 5.)

"THE SERPENT RATIONALLY INVESTIGATED"

This article was selected from an old "Restitution" and may be of interest to our Bible students.

I RECENTLY CAME ACROSS the following short article from the "Jewish Occident," showing the origin of the word "serpent," which may be of help to Bible students. It endeavors to show from Isa. 14: 29, the origin of the serpent. The following is an extract from the "Occident":

"The common and highly pernicious idea is, that the serpent which entered the Garden of Eden was a crawling and inferior animal as now bears the name of serpent. We must first try to correct this idea, and obtain the true idea of the figure which the serpent made in paradise. We will first try to prove that the serpent was a seraph. In the fourteenth chapter of Isaiah and twenty-ninth verse, we read: 'For out of the serpent's root shall come forth a cockatrice, and his fruit shall be a fiery flying serpent.' If we examine the original Hebrew, we will find that the first word translated serpent in this text is nahash, and that the serpent at the end of the text is seraph in the original. Now, if serpent (nahash) generates the cockatrice, and the fruit of the latter is the flying seraph, it is not a wild conclusion that the serpent and the seraph belong to the same family. Further, if we examine the Hebrew of the twenty-first chapter of Numbers and sixth verse, we will find that certain serpents are pointed out particularly as being seraphs or seraphim. The brazen serpent which Moses lifted up in the wilderness to cure the people that were bitten was called a seraph. The geologist, in all his searches among the strata of the earth, finds the serpent as the most marked specimen of animal degradation.

"Let us suppose that the seraphs or fiery flying serpents in the time of Moses were specimens of physical degradation—a vast degradation from the seraphs that moved on the earth when Adam was still a holy being. And let us suppose that Isaiah in the vision of his sixth chapter, when he saw the heavenly seraphim before the throne of God, then saw that noble form of the serpent or seraph which it originally had on earth. How noble was this form of the seraph as Isaiah saw it! The Lord was sitting on the exalted throne, and then Isaiah saw the seraphim above: 'Each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain did he fly. And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts; the whole earth is full of his glory.' The interesting conjecture to which these texts lead us is, that the animal, serpent, or seraph had, before the curse of sin came on the earth, the same glorious form in which the heavenly seraphim appeared to Isaiah, that it was elegance of form and sagacity, the head of all the beasts of the field, and that it was in this glorious form that the angels of heaven visited para-

OH, IS IT TRUE?

Say, is it true, Oh, is it true,
That Christ, the Son of God, did come?
That on this earth He lived and died
And purchased with His blood, our home?

And is it true, Oh, is it true,
That Calvary's cross and Joseph's grave;
Have proven Christ, our Savior dear,
Atonement made, with power to save?

Say, is it true, Oh, is it true,
That He now lives, in Heav'n above;
At God's right hand, He intercedes,
For all who will accept His love?

And is it true, Oh, is it true,
That He from heav'n again shall come
Shall He on earth be yet enthroned,
The earth redeemed be made our home

Say, is it true, Oh, is it true,
That signs proclaim His coming near?
Shall He in clouds now soon draw nigh,
This very Christ, Our Savior dear?

Then let me tell this story true,
Of this dear Savior, Helper, Friend;
And when at last He shall appear,
Enjoy that life that ne'er shall end.

CREATION OR EVOLUTION— WHICH?

By Jas. A. Patrick

SOME TIME AGO I showed that the theory of evolution cannot account for the plant life in the original soil. Evolution starts with a hot nebula that could contain no plant life because of the intense heat, so the original soil must have been a direct act of creation.

I wish to show here that plants must have also been the result of a direct act of creation. There are certain elements in every plant that are not found in nature. Woody fiber, starch, sugar, albumen, etc., are not found in nature; we never meet with these substances except in the plant itself. This goes to prove that the plant is the factory in which these substances are manufactured. A factory must have all its parts in working order before it can manufacture that for which it was intended.

As the substances mentioned in the foregoing do not occur in nature and are a product of the factory, the plant, this proves that nature did not make the factory, because it did not possess the materials with which to make it. The factory must first have been put together by some power outside of nature before it could do the work for which it was intended. This proves the necessity for a direct act of creation; therefore the Creator.

So from the above argument, which cannot be successfully contradicted, it is clearly shown that the slow process of development could not have brought the plant into existence. Furthermore, we deduce that the days of Genesis were twenty-four hour days, because no part of the plant could have been formed very long before every other part, or decomposition would have set in and destroyed the part first made. The parts must have been formed and put together at one and the same time and started to work. Thus we have the only scientific account of the origin of plants in the Bible: The LORD God made . . . every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew."—Gen. 2:4, 5. Every thing in connection with the growth of the plant shows that this statement is literally true, and that there is not the least thing figurative about it.

The same argument holds good in the case of animal life. Blood, digestive juices, lymph, etc., are not found in nature, therefore the animal organism is the factory in which these elements are made. Nature, not possessing these elements, could not have made the factory, and since these elements help to provide the material that enters into the composition of the factory, and because of their perishable nature, it is very evident that the act of creation was a very short one. When the factory, the animal, was made it had to be put into operation at once or decomposition would have set in.

So again, we have the only scientific account of the creation of man and animals in the Bible: "The LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. And out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air."—Gen. 2:7, 19.

GOLD DUST

By Anna Drew

LOVE IS THE PASSWORD of the Christian, and the entering signal to the brother's affections. Love is the mark of a Christian."

"Your fellows have but one way of estimating you, and that is by results. Every one makes mistakes, but if we profit by them as we should, we shall reduce the number. Everybody fails sometimes; but no one has a right to fail all the time. It is a good thing to mean well, but the world has a right to expect us to do well. Get results."

"May we so search, aided by the true Light, that we may not break one of the least of Christ's words, and teaching them to others, may be called great in the kingdom of heaven."

"It is more needful to be able to 'suffer long and be kind,' than it is to preach with the tongue of an angel."

The Lord's coming will be "in a moment," and if we have become entangled with the affairs of this life, that "moment" will pass by, and we will be among the "left" ones,

THAT THE FATHER MAY BE GLORIFIED

By F. L. Austin

THAT THE FATHER may be glorified in the Son", is the express reason given by the Savior for His promise to do "whatsoever ye shall ask in my name". The glory of God has always been the chief object of Christ. He sought not His own will, He stated in John 5:30, "but the will of the Father which hath sent me". It was to glorify God, to magnify Him before man, before the eyes of all God's creation that Jesus labored. And having thus labored through His mortal life, He sought still to so labor after His ascension. He was going away, He notified His apostles; nevertheless He would not leave them helpless and to the end "that the Father may be glorified in the Son", "whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do."

That this principle was always uppermost in the mind of the Savior is also made plain by His introductory words in that heart-searching prayer of John 17: "I have glorified thee on the earth"; "glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee". In His every expression of purpose, His effort was to glorify His Father. It was for this that He lived and labored in the ministry; it was for this that He petitioned increased strength at the right hand of His Father, namely, that He might do more to magnify God before man.

Every effective prayer of the Christian must therefore seek the same end. Nothing can be sought in the name of the Savior that does not seek the Savior's aim. As Christ's aim was the glory of the Father, so also must be the aim of him who would follow Christ and the prayer of him who follows Christ cannot have other thought or aim than that of assistance and strength to carry out the aims of Christ.

Does this reveal one reason why so many prayers fail in their answer? Does this reveal a reason why so many would-be Christians fail in their Christian strength and life? Man is sinful. The thoughts and imaginations of his heart are evil continually. Such was not God's good pleasure, but man has turned to evil and follows thereafter. He seeks to serve self, to please self, to satiate his own longings. In so doing, he sins against the very highest motives of God, against the highest pleasures God has designed for man. His prayers so frequently are mere petitions that the Father will aid him in satiating his own cravings, his own carnal aims. Christ has never taught that such prayer was even legitimate.

God is the Leader of the universe. He is not only the Creator, He is the great Ruler, the great Leader. Man, in serving self best must serve God most. He must willingly be the one who is led. His every will must be to please and exalt the Father. In no other way can man realize his own best good. Therefore, his every prayer must be, in order to his own best good, a prayer that will seek first to glorify God, to exalt God's name and life before the world.

Not only is this true of prayer life, it is equally true of Christian living. The Christian life, like the life of the Savior, must be a life devoted to magnify the Father, to exalt His name, to honor His labors, to glorify Him. In no other way can man successfully follow Christ. Not only did the Savior seek the Father's will, He sought His words, He sought His works. It was because that in all things, in work as well as word, He magnified God that the Father anointed Him "with the oil of gladness above thy (His) fellows", that the Father crowned Him "with glory and honor, and didst set him over the works" of God's hands.

So too of the Christian. If he would follow Christ in word and work, he must seek to glorify God in every work of his life, in every pleasure that is enjoyed, in every vision that he seeks to realize.

With such constant purpose of life one is in readiness to realize the beauty of the Savior's assurance in John 14:13, "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do that the Father may be glorified in the Son."

All prayer, as all Christian life, should seek to glorify God. The prayer that cannot be answered of the Father not only fails to glorify Him, but deprives Him of glory already established. The prayer that can be but partially answered radiates but partial glory to the Father. God is glorified by answering man's prayer. Such answer magnifies God in the eyes of man; it magnifies God in the eyes of the world; it reveals to the petitioner and to others the great truth that God lives and moves and has His being; it reveals to the petitioner and to others that God is watchful of the interests of man; it reveals that man can place trust in God—it glorifies God.

Thus again the Savior's statement grows in magnitude. He would grant whatsoever is asked in His name. Not alone to the benefit and to the advantage of the man, but to the aggrandizement of God, of all of God's plans, of all of God's purposes. Prayers thus answered can but draw others unto the Father.

As Christians, let us live to the glory of God. Let us pray. Let us pray with a realization that through prayer God has opportunity to glorify Himself through man. Let us so live that we can properly pray. Let us pray, not for the satisfaction of our own carnal purpose, but that the prayer shall redound to the honor and glory of God.

"Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

The gold of our best motives is so mixed with the dross of selfishness and unworthiness that we can neither take too much credit to ourselves for any of our good deeds nor afford to throw discredit upon any performed by our neighbors.

overcomes the world. It must be stirred up, your pure mind must be put in remembrance. It may be necessary, over and over, to reaffirm the fact to your own soul, "In God I have put my trust." The words may seem to mock you, but they do not. They are a testimony, they strengthen you, they lead you up among the overcomers. The fear you feel is the weakness of your mortal flesh; the faith beneath is the testimony of the majestic and redeemed spirit within, upheld by the power of the Holy Ghost.

This conflict of faith is not just the tenacity of human will, it is the soul counting on God to lift it from its dungeon of doubt, and it rests upon the promises of the eternal Word. Here it was that David in his dark hour found comfort and hope, "In God will I praise his word." Let us look at this again. "In God"—not in self and human power. It is a full acknowledgment that he could not trust except by help from God, but by that help he will praise His Word. There it is, worship in the midst of doubts, praise from the darkest caverns of gloom, the Word of God exalted as a light that shineth into a dark place. What God has written is sure. Could we only grasp the value of praiseful faith! What a power it is! Praise brought the walls of Jericho down, praise gave Gideon and his men a great victory. Praise is comely for the upright, and, "Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me." It was at midnight that Paul and Silas sang praises unto God and an earthquake shook the Philippian jail. Try praising in the test and see what God will do. Do not wait to feel; have faith, begin to rejoice.

Trust in God is always sure to bring victory. Surroundings may not be changed, enemies may still be near, but the soul is raised above the strife. No change had come in the circumstances of David as he wrote this Psalm, yet as he draws near its close we hear him exclaim, "This I know: for God is with me." When we become conscious of God, all is well. It was perhaps a struggle when Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego went into the fiery furnace, but the struggle was over when the form of the fourth appeared. When the eye of faith can clearly grasp the truth: "If God be for us, who can be against us?"; "The Lord is on my side; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me,"—that is victory.

This brings us to a glorious walk with God in sweet communion and fellowship, "That I may walk before God in the light of the living." Who would not enjoy such a walk? But to do so David knew he must pay his vows. "Thy vows are upon me, O God: I will render praise unto Thee." These were perhaps promises he had made during his awful distress. You know how often we promise when we are in trouble, yet how many forget as soon as the conflict is ended. Do not think God has forgotten the promises you have made, "It is better not to vow than to vow and not pay." Here David's vow seems to have been a promise to praise the Lord, a sacrifice well pleasing to God. But we must not mistake praise—it is not just a shout in church; it is walk of worship. We hear some who seem to praise loudly in the place of assembly, while outside its doors their lives are a constant contradiction. They find fault with the sermon, the singing, the saints, and their general deportment is inconsistent. Theirs has not been praise, it was just a shout. "Praise is comely for the upright," and it is their praise that is a sacrifice well pleasing to God.

Look up. Our God reigns. Though the battle may rage, keep your eyes upon His promises. David felt his own weakness when he said, "Wilt thou not deliver my feet from falling?" Knowing of himself he could not stand, his trust was in the keeping power of his great Shepherd. So let us trust, and let us praise for His goodness and grace who hath said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."—Selected.

CHEER UP BRETHREN

WHY DON'T men go to church? Someone has made a study of a typical New England village and observed the habits of 129 prominent citizens. This is what he found:

Only 17 of them go to church regularly, and they but once each Sunday. There are 13 more who go occasionally, and there are 99 who never go at all.

A generation ago no man could stay away from church in a little New England town and be considered respectable. What has made the change? They tell us:

(1) Lack of parental authority requiring church attendance when these men were young. (2) The Sunday newspaper, "the non-church goers' gospel." (3) The automobile rage, "which sends thousands whizzing to the country." (4) Sunday visiting, which keep both visitors and hosts at home.

Possibly the investigation was conducted on too narrow lines. If, instead of asking how many go to church, the question had been how many are kindly men, loving their families and doing what they can to lighten the burdens of those who are weary and heavily laden, these prominent citizens might have given a better account of themselves.

The important question is not how much religion there is in the churches, compared with fifty years ago, but HOW MUCH RELIGION THERE IS IN THE HEARTS AND LIVES OF MEN.

"HE THAT HATH A BOUNTIFUL EYE SHALL BE BLESSED; FOR HE GIVETH OF HIS BREAD TO THE POOR."—Prov. 22:9.

WE ARE GLAD to observe the added interest in Berean work which is being manifested in many places. May this winter be the best ever in Berean activities.

Illinois Bereans are showing a real interest in Self-Denial Month this year, for which we are thankful. We have observed several instances where desired things have been given up in order to live true to self-denial principles. Don't forget that the Treasurer is Miss Phyllis Wood, 611 East Fourth St., Kewanee, Illinois.

Two Junior Bereans of Grand Rapids, Mich., were asked to write why they liked to go to Berean class, and we give their statements below. Their ages are ten and eleven years.

WHY I LIKE TO GO TO BEREAN

I like to go to Berean because I learn more. I like my Berean class and my teacher and the work we do. She reads us a Bible story and asks us questions about the story.

I think I learn more in Berean because there are not so many children and not so much noise.

Richard Townsend, Age 10.

WHY I LIKE TO GO TO BEREAN

I like to go to Berean because I learn of Jesus' love for us, and the wonderful miracles He has done. This leads us to believe that we will go into the promised land that He has prepared for us, if we do His will.

Our Berean studies are very interesting, our teacher makes it so interesting.

Harold Thomas, Age 11.

One of our active Senior Bereans of Marshall, Illinois, has written the following article:

THE TWO WAYS

Jesus in His sermon on the mount, said: "Enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which, leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."—Matt. 7:13, 14.

Jesus, in the above texts has given us two definite statements, or facts, concerning the ways in which mankind must follow. One leads to destruction; the other to life eternal. The broad way that leads to destruction is the way in which many people are traveling to-day. They are looking for the pleasures and joys of this world only and fail to realize that in the not far distant future a day of reckoning is coming in which every man will be judged according to the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or bad. Then how shall those people be judged who sought after the pleasures of this world only? Too late will they realize that they were following the broad way that leads to destruction in which so many people are traveling to-day.

How much different will the judgment be for those people who followed the strait and narrow that leadeth unto life. The way, perhaps, was filled with hardships, suffering and sacrifice, but always before them was a vision of happiness and contentment that should never perish. Are you following the way that leads unto life, or are you following the way of destruction?

David, the man after Gods own heart, said: "Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies."—Psa. 27:11.

Let us all strive to follow the strait and narrow way which leads unto life; for there is no other way by which we can enter into the kingdom of God. Jesus, in John 14:6, left us this ringing message: "I am the way, the truth and the life, no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Harry Goekler.

"Let favour be shown to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness: in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly, and will not behold the majesty of the Lord."—Isa. 26:10.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

ELECTION DAY! A new President! Wet or Dry! Mr. Smith! Mr. Hoover!

How many of you hear this almost everywhere you go? What does it mean? Well, in November (almost the time you will have this story as Sunday School Lesson) a new President is to be chosen to preside over the United States for the coming four years. What about "wet and dry"?

We have a law of the United States called the Eighteenth Amendment. It forbids anyone in the United States making or selling intoxicating liquor. And, of course, anyone who breaks this law is as guilty of law-breaking as one who steals from another. Even you, little children, know about the evil effects produced by liquor. How harmful it is, and how much unhappiness its use has brought into many lives and homes!

Now, we are told that one of these candidates believes the Eighteenth Amendment should be done away with and the other does not.

So there you are!

If Jesus were on earth I wonder what He would say about it? (Matt. 17:24-27; Matt. 22:15-22; Mark 12:30, 31).

Let us turn to our Bibles, and read Romans 13:1-14. This is another letter written by Paul, and must give us as guiding thoughts as to the Romans to whom it was written.

Paul was a Roman citizen as well as a Jew, and believed in law and order. He warned the Roman Christians against resisting the "higher powers" or rulers.

The "Little Learner's Paper" tells the thoughts contained in Paul's letter as follows:

"Paul knew that all people want to live in a happy home and in a happy nation.

"Our homes are happy when we are loving and obedient. Our nation is happy and peaceful when we obey the laws of God and the laws of the nation.

"The best way to obey the laws of the home and the nation and of God is to love God and each other. Those who live right need have no fear of rulers; only those whose deeds are evil need to fear them. Not only must we obey those set over us, but we must also honor them and treat them with respect.

"God requires children to thus honor and obey their parents, and teachers, and all who are in authority over them. Besides these duties to our rulers, we have duties to all around us.

"Paul said, 'Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law.' We should give to God that which we owe Him—our love and obedience.

"Paul wrote; 'Let us all live honestly, peaceably and shun envy and strife.'

"He warned all against strong drink and rough living."

So you see if we are really Christians, and love God and our neighbors we will want to keep the law, and be "temperate in ALL THINGS."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

How are we showing love to God? Just how temperate are we?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read what Jesus says about the law of the land. Matt. 17:24-27; Matt. 22:15-22.
2. Draw two oblongs side by side. On one print the verse Mark 12:30; on the other print the verse Mark 12:31.
3. Make a list of the things in which we should be temperate.

THE WAY

By H. O. Spelman

"Can you tell me the way to Happy town?"

"Oh, yes," the wise man said.

"It's the way of the boy who will always share. His bicycle, cart or sled."

"Can you tell me the way to Helpfulville?"

"It's the way that is very old;

The way of the girl who sees things to do. And does them without being told."

Changes its form to its receptacle;
And so our plastic souls take various shapes
And characters of good or ill, to fit
The good or ill in the friends they choose.

"Therefore, be ever careful in your choice of friends.
And let your special love be given to those Whose strength of character may prove a whip
That drives you ever to fair wisdom's goal."

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

Rom. 13:1-14

Devotional Reading: Psa. 15

GOLDEN TEXT

Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.—Rom. 13:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Temperance. Temperance must be considered from two points of view; from the Christian and from the citizenship; or from the Spiritual and the carnal. Let us consider the last first—citizenship, which is based upon nationality and national government. Government was ordained by God. In the beginning the parent was the ruler. As population increased, government came to include a group of families under a single head; thus, the nation. Government as ordained of God is to the end that equity and righteousness shall prevail for all the governed. While God exalted one nation over all others, ruling that one Himself and submitting all others to man's rule, yet He did not wholly leave the others without His watch care. Of Medo-Persia God foretold her king, Cyrus, years prior to his birth, Isa. 45:1. He was concerned about Persia. Daniel instructed Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. 2:21, that God exercised His rights in the appointment and removal of kings. See also 4:17. As to Christians God did not separate them into an independent political organization, but left them amidst the nations and called them aside to engage in spiritual activities. Thus while they would be in the world, they should not be of it. John 17:11, 14, 16. Temperance by the world is enforced through two motives: one, political; the other, moral. The moral man may exercise temperance even though the nation does not.

Political Temperance. Here is an effort to enforce temperance by law. Law among other things, represents the duties and responsibilities of the executive upon the governed. Whatever the Christian's ideal may be, he is duty bound to respect the law of the land. Rom. 13:1.

In this connection it should be noted that every propaganda to defeat the law of the land regarding the 18th amendment carries with it to-day, the breaking of that law. The judiciary, the legal talent of the land, the police force, the legislative member, the business man, the rampant criminal, bootlegger, road-house proprietor, etc., etc., all classes of whatever type, whether or not of the church who wink at the breaking of this law are equally criminal in act. They are law breakers, violators with those who would treat likewise any other law such as murder, theft, etc. And the winking at such criminality in regard to this law is undoubtedly doing more to debase and debauch manhood and womanhood and childhood; doing more to encourage vicious crime than perhaps any other one thing in America. Let the Christian in obedience to Rom. 13, maintain conscientious observance of and obedience to the 18th amendment.

Christian Temperance. Temperance as referred to in this study pertains mostly to temperance regarding intoxicating liquor. It should also include the use of tobaccos, which intoxicate as surely, though differently.

God is building the Spiritual life within the carnal. His order is first the natural, afterward the Spiritual. 1 Cor. 15:46. That which changes the character of the individual from the carnal to the Spiritual is the Spirit of God controlling the natural man. Rom. 8:7-16. To accomplish this necessitates the purest and cleanest development of the natural or carnal man. The defilement of self by any means whatsoever is to impede, if not to thwart, the development of the Spiritual in the individual. Paul says, 1 Cor. 3:16-18, to defile not our bodies. That which poisons, intoxicates, corrupts the natural purposes of the body can but defile it. Therefore from the Christian point of view temperance is obligatory in order to perfection in Christ. Thus the Christian, both in obedience to his government to-day and in obedience to the words of Christ, is obligated by the word to maintain temperance. This obligation originates with God.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Love to (one's) neighbour works not ill; love, therefore, (is) a fulfilment of law."—Rom. 13:10, Roth.

In verse 8 Paul says, "Owe no man any thing, but to love one another," that is, "Owe Nothing to any one—unless love to each other." (Diaglott). If you owe a debt to another, it should be paid. This is just as true of the debt of love, which we owe to all mankind, and try as we will, it can never be fully paid—you will always owe it.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Does It Pay to Obey Law? Mr. Jones was raising a son. He was proud of this boy and anxious to see him become a fine man. In his home life Mr. Jones frequently complained of different laws and openly boasted how he violated them. He ridiculed the eighteenth amendment and had a private bootlegger call each week. He exceeded the speed limit and violated traffic laws whenever he thought he would not get caught. If he could sneak by on a street car without paying his fare, he bragged of how smart he was.

His boy was not very old before Mr. Jones was surprised to find that the lad would tell stories; steal things from mother's cupboard or pocketbook and deny it; brag of how he broke the rules at school. He became a reckless, immoral young man, with no respect for either civil or social law, and brought sorrow and humiliation to his parents.

He who would raise a son, or influence some other to be true and law-abiding must teach that principle constantly by action as well as by word. If parents ridicule one law or standard, the child feels he has the right to disregard others.—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Debt of Love.

"Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."—Rom. 13:8.

There are debts that can be paid, but there is one debt that is never paid—love to another. The more one gives of it, the greater becomes the urge to give, the greater becomes the necessity of giving. The very giving reacts to increase the weight of love that bears on self. Love can not be stored, nor decreased by giving.

This knowledge made them calm and patient though there was as much then as there is now which seems to prove the inefficiency of love and grace to claim man, which seems to say that God's condemnation and the death it brings has greater power and is to be credited with more victims than God's grace and forgiveness.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Be Ye Temperate in All Things.

In every land there are certain laws which the government of that land asks its citizens to obey. Officers are selected to see that these laws are obeyed. As long as we are good law-abiding citizens we need have no fear of these officers. They are really a protection to us and to our property. Only when an evil act has been done do we begin to feel afraid of those officers.

This is the thought that Paul was trying to place before the people in Rom. 13:1-14. He was trying to demonstrate to them how they should live and he sums it up by saying, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." Not one of us wishes to do harm to himself, so if we love our neighbors as ourselves, we will do no harm to them. Could you imagine one practicing that principle, who would not make a good law abiding citizen?

Christ is our great High Priest (or officer). He tells us we must not spend our time in riot and drunkenness, in strife and envying, but we must walk uprightly. "Love one another" and so we fulfill the law of Christ.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Love: Origin according to Scriptures: nature of; why a debt that is never paid; purpose and efficiency in God's dealings with man; as a means to "reform".—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

OREGON, ILLINOIS

Brother and Sister Glynn Starbuck of Rockford, Ill., Brother and Sister Harold Starbuck of Woodstock, Ill., and Brother Lansbery of Gary, Indiana visited the Oregon Berean class and church Sunday evening, October 21st.

Sister Williamson who has been seriously sick is much better now and is able to be downstairs for the meals.

Mrs. Wm. C. McGraw and children, who have been quarantened for scarlet fever the past month, are now able to be out. The Oregon church welcomes them back to the various church activities.

The Oregon Sunday School and Berean class have been favored the past two Sundays with music rendered by a seven piece orchestra. We invite all to come and hear our orchestra play. It's fine!

GOLDEN RULE HOME

Sister Mary Renner is visiting with friends at Leaf River and Lanark, Illinois.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Mary A. Woodward of 223 W. St. Joseph St., Lansing, Mich., was not seriously hurt in the auto accident that was reported last week. She was considerably wrenched, bruised and shocked, but no bones were broken and apparently no internal injuries resulted. Although still confined to her bed on the 19th she is resting well and feeling quite comfortable.

A NEW BOOK

"The Way of Life Eternal" by Lyman Booth is now ready for distribution. The book is 8 x 5 1-2 inches and is 40c per single copy. You will enjoy reading this book. Address the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

The Ladies Aid Society at Dixon, Ill., is busy again. Each week a meeting is held at one of the homes, and at this time many aprons, fancy-work and other articles are made which are sold in their Peddler's Pack, accumulating a neat sum which is applied on the church debt. At noon sandwiches and coffee are served.

On or about November 1st, Bro. G. E. Marsh of Niagara Falls is expected to arrive in Dixon to make his home. Sunday November 4th, will be his first service in the Dixon church. It is the aim of the brethren here to make this a Banner Day for the church. Sunday School convenes at 10 a. m. Sermon at 11 a. m. In the afternoon at 2:30 a program will be given, the Junior Bereans providing the music. Evening services at 7:30. A basket dinner is planned to be held in the basement at noon. You are invited to attend all of these services, as a spiritual message awaits you.

Come one, come all!

MARSHALL, ILL.

The Salem church observed Rally Day, Sunday, October 14, with an attendance of fifty-six. The usual attendance had been about twenty-five or thirty so this was quite an increase. Although we had no special program, everyone received just as much benefit from the services anyway.

We hope that this Rally Day service gave to each of us a larger vision of service and will help us to be more worthy of our Savior's love.

Harry Goekler.

MARSHALL, ILL.

The last regular monthly appointment for this season is scheduled for the Salem church, near Marshall, next Saturday night and Sunday, Oct. 27 and 28. Bro. Siple will be the speaker, and a special attendance is urged at this, our closing fall appointment. It is the last Sunday of Rally month, so let's make it a Rally Sunday at Salem church.

Reports from Ripley, Illinois, are to the effect that the meetings now in progress are going along nicely. They are to close this Friday night.

MICHIGAN

Bro. Austin spoke to a good-sized and interested audience at Grand Rapids last Thursday night. His subject was, "Jesus is coming". The meeting was well advertised and due to this special advertising several new faces were seen in the audience. The Church of God is losing a great deal of support in man-power through failure to properly advertise.

We are glad to report Sr. Woodward improving from the bodily injuries received in an auto mishap as related in last week's Herald. We will not ascribed her escape to "luck" but will give "credit to whom credit is due" and say God again demonstrated His power to protect.

Sr. Clyde Thomas of the Grand Rapids church has been under medical care for the past two weeks. She is still confined to her bed and a little friendly line in way of encouragement will be very welcome. Her address is, Mrs. Clyde Thomas, 111 Himes St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sr. Pearl Beneway is also entitled a cheery word. She has been confined to home and the bed for several days and a little Christian encouragement would act as "soothing balm". Her address is Mrs. Pearl Beneway, 2012 Coit Ave., N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich.

October 28 will be a big day in the Grand Rapids church. It will be anniversary day. An extensive program has been arranged and we hope and pray to make this the biggest day for the Master that we have had so far.

CALIFORNIA

Brother and Sister Oscar J. Johnson, of Sac City, Iowa are spending the winter in southern California, and were with us on the 1st Sunday of this month.

Brother Hickox brought one of his buddies with him, Mr. McVay, of Iowa, for our all day services on the 7th. They are on the U. S. S. West Virginia and are wintering in the harbor at San Pedro, Calif.

Brother Paul Johnson has given up his bachelor quarters and has a room at 3633 Empire Drive, Palms Sta., Los Angeles. He has made two discoveries lately; viz., that it is not good for man to live alone, and that pots and pans are hard to handle when hot.

A DOUBLE FUNERAL

MRS. ALLEN CHAPLIN

Minnie Vickery was born April 16, 1868, in Doniphan County, Kansas. She came to the vicinity of Arkansas City in 1883, with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Vickery, where she resided the major portion of her life.

She was united in marriage with Allen Chaplin in 1890, their ever increasing attachments for each other being of a transcendent beauty. She was the mother of eight children, of whom she was passionately fond. Two of these are in their graves. The living members residing in the near vicinity at the time of her death by auto accident Oct. 11, 1928, are Vernon W. Chaplin; Mrs. C. P. Morgan; C. Stedman Chaplin; Miss Georgia Chaplin; Mrs. J. C. Curtiss; and Byron Chaplin.

Sister Chaplin was baptized into Jesus Christ by Elder Clover, of the Church of God, at the age of seventeen, and through the years she has ever been faithful and true to her Christian faith.

The dominant characteristics of her vivacious life was her deep and abiding attachments for her family, relatives and friends. Like a little girl in beauty of confidence she ever commanded their valiant loyalty of love and respect.

MRS. IVAN W. VICKERY

Ella Reed was born November 16, 1872, in Stark County, Indiana. She came to Kansas with her parents in 1884, residing near Arkansas City since that time. She was the daughter of Mrs. Harriett Reed of 608 North B Street and the late Jacob Reed.

She was united in marriage to Ivan W. Vickery, Sept. 16, 1894, and was the mother of two sons, Firman E., and Homer W., both of whom lived near her at the time of her death by auto accident, October 11, 1928.

Sister Vickery was baptized into Jesus

Christ by Elder S. C. Oliver of the Church of God at the age of nineteen, and has ever led an active Christian life.

Her relatives and friends will remember her for her outstanding beauty of deep sympathy for the afflicted. Through storm, or over commanding home duties she promptly went to them with her gracious touch and loving concern.

Funeral services for both Sister Chaplin and Sister Vickery were held from the Christian Church in Arkansas City, on Sunday, October 14, 1928, with the largest attendance that the writer has ever seen at a funeral. The two ladies were sisters-in-law, had lived close to each other and labored in the same church cause during life and died together in the same auto accident and therefore it was deemed proper that they should be buried together in a double funeral.

More than fourteen hundred people were reported to have been in the church for the services, while many were turned away for lack of room. Floral pieces of every kind and almost beyond number were present, a large number of which were afterwards distributed to the sick rooms of the various hospitals.

The little church band in Arkansas City will miss these two sisters beyond words, but they sorrow not as others who have no hope.

The prayers of the brotherhood are requested for Mr. Vickery, the other occupant of the wrecked car, who was seriously injured, but is slowly recovering at the hospital.

dise, and appeared before our first parents to hold conversation. If this conjecture is true, it follows that the lying serpent was not the first seraph that stood, or walked, or flew in paradise. Dismiss, then the pernicious idea, that it was a 'footless, venomous, sneaking serpent that spoke to Eve, and discussed religion with her; believe rather that it was a splendid seraph, having six wings, with two covering his face, with two covering his feet, and flying with the other two,—that it was the same figure in which the angels of light often came down from heaven and appeared before Adam."

WHAT WE HONOR

WE DO NOT place flowers upon the graves of the dead or honor their memory simply because they died. A man may perish on the gallows or in the electric chair; he has died, but there is nothing glorious in the manner of his going. In his desire to evade the responsibilities of life or to escape the burden of shame, a man may end his life by his own hand; we do not honor the kind of courage that sent him to his death. Others have run heedlessly into danger, and have perished for their folly; we do not esteem them worthy of any special honor. Death in itself brings no glory. Death must be made glorious by life. We honor the soldier who died upon the field of battle, or the sailor who sank in the waves, because both the sailor and the soldier were using their life to advance the cause which they espoused. It is what death finds one doing with his life that makes death glorious. Jesus suggests this fact in His famous words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." It is the cause for which one has lived that makes death glorious.—Forward.

The Other Side

- “We go our ways in life too much alone;
We hold ourselves too far from all our kind;
Too often we are deaf to sigh and moan,
Too often to the weak and helpless blind;
Too often, when distress and want abide,
We turn and pass upon the other side.
- “The other side is trodden smooth, and worn
By footsteps passing idly all the day:
Where lie the bruised ones who faint and mourn,
Is seldom more than an untrodden way.
Our selfish hearts are for our feet the guide—
They lead us all too oft upon the other side.
- “It should be ours the oil and wine to pour
Into the bleeding wounds of stricken ones:
To take the smitten, and the sick and sore,
And bear them where the stream of blessing runs:
Instead, we look about—the way is wide,
And so we pass upon the other side.
- “Oh, friends and brothers, gliding down the years,
Humanity is calling each and all
In tender accents, born of grief and tears;
I pray you, listen to the thrilling call,
You cannot, in your selfish pride,
Pass guiltless upon the other side.”

THE GIFT OF THE SPIRIT

JUST AS GOD is the Giver of spirit that animates and energizes all mankind for their every life motion, so is God able to increase or decrease the measure of spirit to individuals as He will. That He controls the spirit in man is evidenced by different scriptures. David, in Psa. 104:29, 30, says, "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath (spirit), they die, and return to their dust. Thou sendest forth thy spirit (same Hebrew word as for "breath" above), they are created." In this passage the Hebrew word for "breath" and the Hebrew word for "spirit" are the same. God takes away the spirit, evidenced to observing man by the cessation of breath, which results in death to man; God sends that spirit forth again and man lives, resurrection is accomplished. "The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away." In Eccl. 12:7 Solomon wrote, "Then . . . the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." Thus we see that man's use of spirit is in God's hand and keeping. God gives, imparts, it to man; man lives, is energized; God withdraws it, man is weakened, dies.

Spirit as thus used is in common measure to all animate beings. The wise man tells us, speaking of beasts and of men, Eccl. 3:19, that "all have one breath (spirit)".

For special services of various kinds, God has throughout the ages imparted to different ones spirit in special, or holy measure to energize the particular individuals, enabling them to accomplish work. Thus, "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost". 2 Peter 1:21. It was only by God's endowing them with ability that they could foretell prophetically the great truths which God revealed to the human race. Likewise, Moses was gifted with added measure of spirit, that is, with Holy Spirit, which enabled him to carry out the great works of God in leading Israel out of Egypt; Solomon was by the Holy Spirit gifted with wisdom; Daniel was in like manner enabled to recall the king's dream and to interpret the same; Jesus was enabled to heal the sick, raise dead ones; the apostles were with Holy Spirit gifted to speak with tongues and perform many works beyond the ability of those who were possessors of only the common measure of spirit, that is, of spirit for the performance of things necessary to the carnal, Adamic life. So the Holy Spirit, which God imparted to one person, gifted or enabled him to perform service along one line while the Holy Spirit given or imparted to another person gifted or enabled him similarly, or differently even as he was in need, in the discharge of service to his Father.

That Holy Spirit is purposed for all Christians for enablement to rise above the carnal and abide in Christ unto Christian action, is revealed by Peter in Acts 2:38, 39: "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost (Spirit). For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost (Spirit) is come upon you." Acts 1:8. Paul, as though to emphasize the great importance of the gift of the Holy Spirit, charged, Eph. 4:30, "Grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption," and this sealing he previously stated, Eph. 1:13, 14, "is the earnest of our inheritance." "Earnest", that is, an advanced portion. God has promised that every Christian will eventually become spiritual in fact; as an earnest to that promise He has sealed each one with a measure of Spirit, Holy.

The gift of the Holy Spirit may not be the same in one person as in another, nor in one age as in another. This is clearly taught in 1 Cor. 12. It is clear, however, that certain enablement may be expected by being recipient of Holy Spirit, for in 1 Cor. 12 and 13 Paul, after stating that some certain gifts would vanish, assures that other certain gifts would continue: "And now abideth faith, hope, charity".

The study of the Holy Spirit is a subject of great importance and one requiring diligent effort. The above and foregoing articles, written because of repeated requests from different ones, have been written merely to endeavor to clarify the Biblical meaning of "Holy Spirit" and to emphasize that such spirit ought to be expected and recognized by Christians everywhere. The writer does not pretend to claim that the Christian to-day, being recipient of Holy Spirit, is therefore a miracle worker as were the apostles in early Christian days, nor does he even suggest that the Christian of to-day should even expect or aim to do any such miracles. He does believe, however, that it is only with the aid of the Holy Spirit that the Christian can rise above the natural, carnal life to live the new life of Christ Jesus by faithful, earnest devotion to God. God enables him by His spirit to put down carnality in self and to stand and work in Christ.

It is God's spirit that energizes all life to the performance of whatever is wrought and to that man who recognizes God as the Giver of life and who in faith serves God therewith and in faith and obedience craves to rise above the carnal and the sinful, God has assured His desire to enable or empower such man with spirit sufficient to make it possible for him, by faithful perseverance, to rise into such life service as would probably be impossible excepting for such enablement. Such gift of the spirit seems to be waiting at the door of whomsoever through faith in Christ rise to serve Him and to gain the victory to which Christ beckons His every follower.

"GO . . . PREACH"

AMONG THE LAST WORDS of our Savior to His disciples was, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature". How urgent was this injunction is increasingly realized as the Christian prayerfully studies the Scriptures. The success of the Father's assurance that through Christ He will bless all nations of the earth depends upon the faithful discharge of this command by the disciples of Christ. If any are to be saved, it will be because someone shall have put this injunction into active, living force. Everything redemptive depends for victory upon the living reality of this truth

"Go ye into all the world, and preach" was no idle or thoughtless word of the Master. It was the key to all future victory; it was the opening of the gate to the great age of eternal righteousness.

The events surrounding and accompanying the birth of our Savior were no more essential and important to the fulfillment of God's promises through previous prophecy than are the activities and devotions of the church essential for the fulfillment of God's promises to save those who believe. This latter cannot be accomplished without the obedience of the church to "Go . . . preach the gospel to every creature". This is one of the vocations, Eph. 4:1, to which Christians are called.

The preaching of the gospel may be properly taken up under two separate and distinct headings. The first is that of actual proclamation by a speaker speaking the truths of the gospel. This is commonly recognized. The second phase may be defined as consisting of the activities and co-operations of Christian people in making the delivery of the actual words and sentences of preaching both opportune and efficient. This is by far the larger phase of the work. It must be always recognized that there are individuals who are empowered with personality and ability to stand out even almost alone and successfully draw to themselves multitudes to whom they proclaim the gospel and from whom many may be "called out". But never in the history of Christianity has an individual been able, alone and single handed, to follow up such work and to continue day after day and year after year in preaching the gospel to the hundreds and thousands of homes that need continual gospel encouragement for their growth and for their abidance in Christ.

The children of to-day will be the men of to-morrow.

The time most opportune to proclaim the gospel to one is in his childhood and youth. But the great majority of parents to-day all but ignore the rights of the child as regards Christian truth. The examples and activities of the vast majority of parents tend rather to educate the child in ways contrary to the ways of Christian action and life. They may not so intend, but such is the result. Ever in increasing percentages will mankind, brought up under such environments, tend toward anti-Christian activities.

"Go . . . preach", as applied to-day, places before the vision of the earnest followers of Christ a need for guarding the homes and childhood and youth of our land. Such work calls for the personal touch, individual laboring with individual ever in increasing ratio.

For all this the active, fervent, zealous co-operation of every individual member of every church is more and more needed. Some in one way, others in another can and should co-ordinate their abilities looking to the great vision of effectively preaching the gospel to-day so as to reap results in the early to-morrow, when childhood shall have approached mature thought and adult life.

It is too much to expect that such preaching or any other preaching will influence large numbers to salvation, but it is not too much to expect that such continuous efforts would be effective upon the workers, increasing their standard in Christian fortitude and worth.

"Go . . . preach the gospel" has many angles requiring the active co-operation of every individual disciple of the Master. Who, bearing His standard, will decline to engage in this work authorized by the Master Himself?

THE WAY OF LIFE ETERNAL

THIS IS THE TITLE of a new and valuable book in which the author, Lyman Booth, has well revealed the Biblical way of life eternal. Its truths are invaluable to every seeker after truth. The author has shown himself to be very conversant with the Bible as it treats upon this great subject and has brought the truths relating thereto to the finger-tips of him who would search.

In the "Foreword" of this neat little volume, S. J. Lindsay says, "We commend it to those who are Bible students because it will serve them as a compendium of facts in connection with the gospel, and to those who have not so great an acquaintance with the Scriptures because it contains in terse form that which it is necessary for them to understand to place themselves in the way of life eternal."

The book is printed in clear, legible type, on good paper, 98 pages. It is bound in neatly printed cover and sells at 40 cents per copy.

WAS JESUS REAL AFTER HIS RESURRECTION?

By Jas. A. Patrick

WAS JESUS REAL before His resurrection? What constituted Jesus? Mary was told that she should conceive and bear a Son and call His name Jesus. What did Mary conceive and bear? Was it not the physical being?

In Gen. 5:1-3 we are told, "This is the book of the generation of Adam. In the day that God created man, in the likeness of God made he him; male and female created he them and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created. And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a son in his own likeness, after his image; and called his name Seth." What constituted that which was begotten and born? Surely the physical image. Then Adam's physical being was made in the image of God, for in Gen. 9:6 the man made in the image of God had blood.

"But", some one will say, "what has this to do with the reality of Jesus after His resurrection?" Very much. Whatever it took to constitute Jesus before His resurrection, it took to constitute Him after it. If it did not, if He was changed to something else, was He still Jesus?

I was talking to a lady a short time ago who believes and teaches that Jesus is here now, and if asked where He is, she replies, "He is all around us like the air, or ether." If this be true, is He the real Jesus that is the Savior from sin?

In John 19:38-42 it is said of Joseph, "He came therefore, and took the body of Jesus", and then we are told of the coming of Nicodemus, and it is said of the two, "Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury." And then John describes the sepulchre "wherein was never man laid. There laid they Jesus." They took the body down and wrapped it in linen, but when they laid it in the tomb, John calls it Jesus. Was the dead body Jesus? If not, did John tell the truth?

In Matt. 28:1-6 Matthew, in describing the coming of the women to the tomb and the appearance of the angel to them, tells us that the angel said, "Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay." Now, if we analyze the foregoing language very carefully, can we come to any other conclusion than that the body that was taken from the cross, and was wrapped in the linen, and the Jesus that was laid in the tomb, and the Lord that the angels said had lain there, and that they sought, and the one that had risen and was not there, were one and the same being?

Let us take in connection with the foregoing Acts 2:30-36. Speaking of David Peter said, "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption. This Jesus (whose flesh saw no corruption) hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses." There is no word for "soul" in the Greek in verse 31. So He, Christ, "was not left in hell", or hades; no, for His flesh saw no corruption, and He was raised up in that flesh which saw no corruption. In verse 33 it is said that the Jesus spoken of in the 32nd verse was exalted by the right hand of God into the heavens, where David has not been exalted. In the 36th, verse it said, "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." What same Jesus? The same Jesus whose flesh saw no corruption, who ascended up and sat down at the right hand of God.

This all agrees with the language of Christ to His disciples when He so plainly told them "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." If Christ had become gas, air or some other intangible substance, could they have handled Him? What did He mean when He told them to handle Him and "see that it is I myself." Could any other being than that which they had known before and handled be the "I myself" which they were now to handle? If so, I would like to know what it could be.

Some one may ask, "What is meant by the expression, 'Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God.'" Flesh and blood are here used (1 Cor. 15:50) as a synonym for mortality and corruption, as indicated by the following verses: "For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." However, Paul did not say that flesh and bone cannot inherit the kingdom. If he had, that would have cut Christ out, for He said He had flesh and bone.

It also may be asked how a flesh and bone body can become a spiritual body. Well, Christ said He had flesh and bone and Paul says that He is a spiritual body. "It is sown a natural (soulical, Emph. Diag.) body and is raised a spiritual body." So we see that the body that is sown a soulical body is raised a spiritual body. It lives by the blood, in which is the soul, in this natural state and when raised to the immortal state, it lives by the spirit. Some say that the mortal must pass away or disappear before the immortal can appear. That is true of the mortal nature. Mortality is swallowed up of life by the "mortal putting on immortality."

Then the Jesus that now sits at the right hand of God is the same Jesus that the disciples saw and handled, excepting that now He lives the spirit life. So we see that He cannot have come the second time as a spiritual force or power.

ONE GOD—ONE GOSPEL

By R. H. Judd

"We reckon then that a man is justified by faith apart from the works of the law." Or, "Is GOD the God of the Jews only? Is he not the God of the Gentiles also? Yea, of the Gentiles also; if so be that God is one, and he shall justify the circumcision by faith, and the uncircumcision through the faith."—Romans 3: 28-30, R. V. (See margin)

TRUTH is always consistent from whatever angle it may be approached. It "fits in" in every circumstance in which it may be called upon to bear testimony. It is without limit in its capacity and scope, and is never out of harmony with known facts. As surely as "coming events cast their shadows before", so surely does truth forecast the knowledge of truth yet to come. Romans 3: 29, 30 is a splendid example of this latter fact, and is an excellent illustration of the concentrative power of thought so frequently exhibited by the masterly mind of Paul the Apostle.

The injunction to "meditate in the law of the Lord", as contained in Joshua 1:8, and Psalm 1:2, must have been a very real matter to Paul, for there is abundant evidence of this in all his writings. No mere surface reading sufficed with him. He knew GOD'S Word was true at its face value, but he knew also that there is always to be found more truth "deeper down"—not in conflict with, but in confirmation of that already known; not a mere repetition of the same truth that is found on the surface, but an enlargement—knowledge added to knowledge.

Paul desired to show that "a man is justified by faith apart from the works of the law." How could he do it in a way that would be convincing to the Jew, and to the Gentile? The Jews believed that JEHOVAH was their GOD, for did He not call Himself "the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob", and was not Israel His own peculiar people under covenant of circumcision? To such an extent was this believed by the children of Abraham that they practically denied that GOD was also "the GOD of the Gentiles". They had not reckoned with the inevitable conclusion that necessarily arises from such a belief.

What would be the logical result if it were true that GOD was "the God of the Jews only"? The question is a momentous one. It is worth while to pause here a moment and think, and think deeply. IF GOD "is the God of the Jews only" then—

1. He cannot be the God of the Gentiles.
2. The Scriptures are made void, they are truth no longer; for the claim of the Jew, yea, and of Jehovah Himself, that "GOD IS ONE" is thus proved false, there must be a "God of the Gentiles also."

But, the truth that "GOD IS ONE" stands. GOD must therefore be "the God of the Gentiles also". Thus the very claim that He is their GOD involves of necessity a plan of salvation for them also. But the law (circumcision) was for the Jew only, therefore the Gentile could not be saved through the law. If GOD is therefore "the GOD of the Jews" and is also "the GOD of the Gentiles", thus proving that GOD is one in all the earth (for there are but Jew and Gentile), then if the Gentile is justified by faith, the Jew must also be justified by the same, seeing "there is but one God" or in other words that "GOD IS ONE." Were the Scriptures for one moment to relinquish the claim that "GOD IS ONE" the whole fabric of salvation for mankind would vanish like a dream.

The same GOD that justified Abraham before his circumcision now justifies, through faith in JESUS, not only the Jew but the Gentile also and "the faith" (notice the article added in the R. V.) of Abraham becomes the one faith for sinful man the world over. The truth that GOD "is the God of the Jews" foreshadows the truth, as it must do, that He is "the GOD of the Gentiles also". Therefore "if so be that God is one" therefore must be salvation for Jew and Gentile—circumcision and uncircumcision through faith, as one text says. HENCE: "GOD so loved THE WORLD, that he gave his only begotten Son, that WHOSOEVER believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Let us thank GOD that the Scriptures stand for the truth that "GOD IS ONE."

"He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust."—Psalm 91:4.

TRUTHFUL GEMS

Life is a measure to be filled, not a cup to be drained.

Stick-to-a-tive-ness is a prime virtue, but let us be careful, brethren, that we are not found sticking to a helpless, hopeless, lifeless proposition.

Face the sunlight, then the shadows will always be behind you.

The infidelity that hurts is the infidelity of the man who makes out that he's on God's side when he is not.

Find me a man preparing himself to hear the gospel and I will show you a man that is going to be benefited by the gospel.

If we're right we can't be hurt by the truth, and if we aren't right we ought to be hurt righteously.

Run into God's kingdom barefooted and bareheaded rather than miss it on account of anything in this life.

If you live in impure thoughts you will be impure in your life.

NOT "WHY", BUT "WHO"

By Verna C. Thayer

THERE LIVED in the land of Uz, a man by the name of Job. He had a family of seven sons and three daughters. Job was what we would call a wealthy man, and the Bible tells us that he was a great man, one of the greatest in the land. The Lord said of Job, "There is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil."—Job 1:8.

Picture with your mind's eye, the life and position of such a man. Then imagine if you can, how changed it all would be should this same man be stripped of all these possessions, even his sons and daughters.

These all befell Job, but his reply to it all is summed up in these words, "Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD. In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly."—Job 1:21, 22. Such was the record of what may be termed Job's first affliction.

After having endured all these things Job was smitten with boils from the soles of his feet to the top of his head, a terrible affliction.

His friends came to visit him, that they might comfort him in his afflictions. But Job seemed to resent their lines of reasoning as to the source of afflictions. They seemed to think that afflictions are the result of sin; hence Job was so afflicted. (Were you ever comforted? in this manner?) Job argues very forcibly with them that he has been a righteous man, but keeps asking the question, "Why am I afflicted?"

Finally, Elihu came on the scene with the thought of chastisement from a different standpoint. How changed it made these afflictions appear, and in what a different spirit Job accepted this reasoning! He could see very clearly that were he to be tested and tried he must remain faithful regardless of what befell him.

What a beautiful picture is revealed to us in Job 42:1-8; "Job submitting himself to God"! And the record tells us that Job was doubly blessed for having withstood his endurance test.

We are all more or less familiar with the story of Job, but in reading the story, these verses are called to our minds, "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth."—Heb. 12:6. "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive a crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."—James 1:12.

But wherein did Job fall short and where do we fail to-day? Job's question was always "Why?" He resented his afflictions. When he was brought to the point where he could see "who" and stopped asking "why" he was doubly blessed. Our problem is the same. When afflictions and great trials come upon us, we begin to cry "Why, O, Why?" When we get to the position where we say, "It matters not, we commit ourselves into the hands of the Father", our afflictions and trials will seem so much lighter, in fact we will not consider them as afflictions.

May we be comforted by these words, "Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby."—Heb 12:11. Job remained firm in his hope. Let us remain firm in our hope, and let us refrain from the cry "why" and consider "who".

"The path of a righteous man is even,—O Upright One! the track of a righteous man thou makest level."—Isa. 26:7, Emph. Bible.

GREATER POSSIBILITIES

"According to your faith be it unto you."—Matt. 9:29.

I BELIEVE THESE WORDS spoken, by our Lord, to the two blind men is the yard stick by which we may measure the extent of our blessings and attainments, spiritual, physical, and material, and I also believe they measure the extent of our success in Christian work. He who expects much, and meets the conditions, will get much, while he who expects little will get the little in experience and in results of his labor.

I think it was William Carey who wrote:

"Ask great things of God,
Expect great things from God,
And attempt great things for God."

I am persuaded that we have men in our ranks, in whom lies wonderful potentialities in doing great things for God and humanity. They are accomplishing small things as compared to the larger things they should accomplish in these days.

"We can do as much as we think we can,
And we'll never accomplish more:
If we're afraid of ourselves, dear man,
There is little for us in store,
For failure comes from the inside first,
It's there if we only know it,
And we can win, though we face the worst,
If we feel that we can do it."

"We can do what we think we can do. We can be what we think we can be. We can have what we think we can have. What we do, what we are, what we have depends upon what we think."

We have the same Holy Spirit working in and through us that worked in and through the apostles and has worked in and through fully surrendered souls ever since. I believe, if we will make a more complete surrender to this mighty God-given power, and work and pray accordingly, that we will see great things accomplished.—Selected.

THE CHRISTIAN'S GREATEST NEED

By Rev. E. W. Bullinger, D. D.

THERE IS ONE THING that the Christian needs more than he needs any other thing. One thing on which all others rest; and on which all others turn.

It is certain from the Word of God, and also from our own experience, that "we know not what we should pray for as we ought." But "the Spirit Himself helpeth our infirmities" (Rom. 8:26). He knoweth what we should pray for. He knoweth what we need. He maketh intercession for us and in us. He teacheth us how to pray, and in Eph. 1:17, we have His prayer set forth in these words: "that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in

THE KNOWLEDGE OF HIM."

This then, must be our greatest need: A true knowledge of God.

If the Holy Spirit thus puts it before all other things, it must be because it is more important than any other thing; yea, than all others put together.

This, it is, that lies at the foundation of the Christian Faith; at the threshold of Christian life.

It is the essence of all trust.

We cannot trust a person if we do not know him. At least, it is safer for us not to do so; and as a rule we do not.

But on the other hand, when we know a person thoroughly well, we cannot help trusting him. No effort to trust is required when we perfectly know a person. The difficulty then is, not to trust.

Why, then, do we not thus trust God? Is not the answer clear? It is because we do not know Him!

Thus we see how this knowledge of God is our greatest need; the very first step of our Christian course. Our trust will ever be in proportion to our knowledge.

If we knew, for example a billionth part of God's infinite wisdom, we should see our own to be such utter folly, that we should not merely be "willing" for His will, but we should desire it. It would be our greatest happiness for Him to do and arrange all for us. We should say, "Lord, I am foolish and ignorant; I know nothing, and can do nothing; I can see only this present moment; I know nothing of to-morrow. But Thou canst see the end from the beginning. Thy wisdom is infinite, and thy love is infinite; for, our Saviour and Lord could say of us to Thee, as Thy beloved Son—"Thou hast loved them, as thou hast loved me", John 17:23. Do, then, Thine own will. This is my desire, the desire of my heart. This is what I long for above all things."

This is far beyond being "willing." We may be willing for a thing, because we cannot help it. It may be even a low form of Christian fatalism. A Mohammedan may be thus resigned to the will of his god.

But what we are speaking of is far, far beyond the modern gospel of holiness; far in advance of merely being "willing."

Those who are in the still lower condition; not "willing," but "willing to be made willing," do not see that this condition arises from not knowing God; not knowing how infinite is His love, how vast is His wisdom, how blessed and how sweet is His will. If they did but know something of this, they would yearn for His will. It would be the one great earnest and longing of their hearts for Him to do exactly what is pleasing in His own sight, in us, and for us, and through us.

Not knowing this secret, Christians, everywhere, are striving and labouring to be "willing" by looking at themselves; and by some definite "act of faith" to do something of themselves. Instead of thinking of His wisdom and His love, they are thinking of themselves and of their "surrender."

But this is labour in vain. Even if it should seem to accomplish something, it is only like tying paper flowers on a plant. They may look natural and fair; but they have no scent, no life; no fruit, and no seed. It is an artificial, fictitious attempt to produce that which, if they did but know God, would come of itself, without an effort: yea, the effort would be to stop or hinder the mighty power of a true knowledge of God.

The trouble with us is, if we prove our hearts to their depth, that, at the bottom, we think we know better. We would not say it for the world, we would hardly admit it to ourselves. But there it is; and the difficulty of being "made willing" is the proof of it.

If we really knew Him, and believed that He knows better than we do what is good for us, there would be no effort whatever, but only a blessed irrepressible desire for His will.

Before we proceed further to consider some other of the practical effects of this knowledge, let us notice the fact that there are two words in the original for this knowledge of God. Two verbs which mean to know. As these are used sometimes in the very same verse, it is very important that we should carefully distinguish that which the Holy Spirit has so especially emphasized. There are, indeed, six Greek words which are translated to know, but these two are the most common.

1. The one, oida, means to know without learning or effort; and refers to what we know intuitively, or as a matter of fact or history.

2. The other, ginosko, means to get to know; by effort, or experience, or learning.

This difference will be clearly seen, if we examine one or two passages:

John 13:7. "What I do thou knowest not now." This is the former of these two words, and tells us that Peter had no intuitive knowledge of what the Lord was doing; and had no means of knowing. It was impossible. The Lord, however, goes on to say, "but thou shalt know (i.e., get to know) hereafter." Peter would learn, and

TELL ME ABOUT THE MASTER

Tell me about the Master!
I am weary and worn to-night;
The day lies behind me in shadow,
And only the evening is light,
Light with a radiant glory
That lingers about the West;
But my heart is weary, weary,
And longs like a child for rest.

Tell me about the Master!
Of the hills He in loneliness trod,
When the tears and the blood of His anguish
Dropped down on Judea's sod;
For to me life's seventy milestones
But a sorrowful journey mark;
Rough lies the hill-country behind me,
The mountains before me are dark.

Tell me about the Master!
Of the wrongs He freely forgave,
Of His mercy and tender compassion,
Of His love that was mighty to save;
For my heart is weary, weary,
Of the woes and temptations of life,
Of the error that stalks in the noonday,
Of falsehood and malice and strife.

Yet I know that whatever of sorrow,
Or pain, or temptation befall,
The infinite Master has suffered,
And knoweth and pitieth all.
So tell me the sweet old story,
That falls on each wound like a balm;
And the heart that was bruised and broken
Grows patient and strong and calm.

THE TIME OF THE END

By Samuel E. Haney

IT IS INTERESTING AND, in these days really essential, to investigate the word "watch"—its definition, vigilant observation; wakefulness: "One who watches; a watchman; guard"—Funk and Wagnalls. Now let us trace the word in both Old and New Testaments as it relates to two phases; general and the time of the end (our day) using eight references in each case.

General: Psa. 37:32, 33, "The wicked watcheth the righteous, and seeketh to slay him. The LORD will not leave him in his hand, nor condemn him when he is judged". Psa. 102:7, 8, R. V., "I watch, and am become like a sparrow that is alone upon the housetop. Mine enemies reproach me all the day; they that are mad against me do curse by me". Psa. 141:3, "Set a watch, O LORD, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips". Prov. 8:34, 35, "Blessed (happy) is the man that heareth me, watching daily at my gates, waiting at the posts of my doors. For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the LORD". 1 Cor. 16:13, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong". 2. Cor. 6:5, "In stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings". Eph. 6:18, "Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints". 2 Tim. 4:5, "But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry".

Time of the end: Psa. 130:6, "My soul waiteth for the LORD more than they that watch for the morning: I say, more than they that watch for the morning". Isa. 56:10, 11, "His watchmen are blind: they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber. Yea, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand: they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter". Jesus seems to express the same thought satirically: "Can the blind lead the blind? shall not both fall into the ditch?" Jer. 51:12, "Set up the standard upon the walls of Babylon, make the watch strong, set up the watchmen, prepare the ambushes: for the LORD hath both devised and done that which he spake against the inhabitants of Babylon." The writer's understanding of this whole chapter is that it refers to a period of years preceding the setting up of God's kingdom, the inception of this period being in evidence. Note a few cogent parallel verses: Jer. 51:8 and 29, "Babylon is suddenly fallen and destroyed: howl for her; take balm for her pain, if so be she may be healed." "And the land shall tremble and sorrow: for every purpose of the LORD shall be performed against Babylon, to make the land of Babylon a desolation without an inhabitant". Compare Rev. 18. Jer. 51:6 and 45, "Flee out of the midst of Babylon, and deliver every man his soul: be not cut off in her iniquity for this is the time of the LORD's vengeance; he will render unto her a recompence". "My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and deliver ye every man his soul from the fierce anger of the LORD". Compare Rev. 18:4. Jer. 51:13, "O thou that dwellest upon many waters, abundant in treasures, thine end is come, and the measure of thy covetousness". Compare James 5.

But verse 12 (quoted above—re-read it) is particularly germane to our subject. Something that every child of God can do is to assist publishers, editors and preachers in announcing the coming of the King of kings and Lord of lords. Remember, Amalek was overcome by the holding up of Moses' hands. When Moses held up his hand Israel prevailed, and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed. But "Moses' hands were heavy; . . . and Aaron and Hur staid (held) up his hands." Any one, even an illiterate, blind, mute could have taken Aaron and Hur's part in overcoming Amalek. Nevertheless, this work had to be done. Exod. 17:8-14.

There is really no legitimate excuse to shirk our duty. Besides, if we do nothing, it will not be long until we shall wish that we had done something. I could weep for those striving for the good and beautiful things of this life, and expecting to do likewise in God's kingdom.

Matt. 10:39; Gal. 6:6-8. Ezek. 7 is similar prophecy to that of Jer. 51. Read it entire; noting particularly vv. 6 and 7, "An end is come, the end is come: it watcheth for thee; behold, it is come. The morning is come unto thee, O thou that dwellest in the land: the time is come, the day of trouble is near, and not the sounding again of the mountains". Matt. 24:42, "Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come". Mark 13:35-37, "Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning: lest coming suddenly (unexpectedly, Diag.) he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch." 1 Thess. 5:6, "Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober." Rev. 16:15, "Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame."

What are the watchers watching for? They are watching for indications of their Lord's return, a few of which are specifically stated: "Upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken".—Luke 21:25, 26. "For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places".—Matt. 24:7. "Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man".—Luke 21:36.

The watchers are aware that all these things, and many similar prophecies are in evidence. Note Nahum's vision of the ubiquitous automobile, 2:3, 4, and the increase of knowledge, Dan. 12:4. It would require a volume to describe recent year's precursors of our Lord's return. Dr. Charles Frazier, in addressing the Episcopal Church Club in Philadelphia, said, "The number of mentally ill in the state of Pennsylvania equals the number of patients in all the hospitals of the commonwealth". Likely this is an approximate criterion of the whole country. The race is paying the inevitable price for its violation of natural and moral laws.

During the past fifty years wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, tidal waves and hurricanes have become so numerous and commonplace that they cease to be a "seven-day-wander". During the fifteen years between 1851 and 1866 the floods which altered the course of the Yellow River of China caused the death of 30,000,000 people by drowning and malnutrition. It is authoritatively reported that 1,500,000 people are starving in China. The number of deaths and something of the wreckage of the race caused by the late war is common knowledge. We read nearly every day of earthquakes destroying life and property. But the man of the world has become so selfish and self-centered that he is not interested in his fellow man's sufferings. He says, "That's their hard luck. I am on solid ground, and all is going well". But in the "trouble" the world is facing (Dan. 12:1), no one will say, "This is the other fellow's hard luck", "For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth".—Luke 21:35. None but the overcoming watchers (Heb. 9:28) shall escape this trouble such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time".

The Lord only knows what the next great event will be. But we do know, to an absolute certainty, that Jesus will soon fulfill His promise to "All them also that love his appearing", for at His departure He said "I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye be also".—John 14:2, 3. Glory to His name!

THE LIFE OF A HAPPY MAN

I COPIED THE FOLLOWING 37 years ago in a hotel in Humboldt, Iowa. The general sentiment is so good that I decided to pass it on. It has been hidden all these years among other gems which I have always made a practice of preserving. It has been said that if one wishes to keep a pretty flower or rose, to pluck it and press it in a book. It is also good practice to preserve precious thoughts, which are "like apples of gold in pictures of silver" in the same manner.

"The happy man was born in the city of Regeneration, in the parish of Repentance unto Life. He was educated in the school of Obedience and now lives in the plain of Perseverance. He works at the trade of Diligence notwithstanding he has a very large estate in the country of Christian Contentment. Many times he does jobs of Self-denial. He wears the plain garb of Humility, but when he goes out on extra occasions he has a better suit to put on called the robe of Christian Righteousness. He walks in the valley of Self-abasement and sometimes climbs the mountain of Spiritual-mindedness and he breakfasts every morning on Spiritual Prayer, and sups every evening on the same. He has meat to eat that the world knows not of, and his drink is the sincere milk of the Word. Thus happy he lives and happy he dies.

"Happy is he that has gospel submission in his will, due order in his affection, sound ease in his conscience; sanctifying grace in his soul, real love in his breast, true humility in his heart, the Redeemer's yoke on his neck, a vain world under his feet, and a crown of glory on his head.

"Happy is the life of such a man which, in order to attain, prays fervently, believes firmly, waits patiently, lives holy, dies daily, watches his heart, guards his senses, redeems his time, and lives for glory."

"Most happy man thou shalt surely be;
Through Christ, in God, who died for thee.
That happiness shall never wane or die.
May God grant this to you and me."

—Author Unknown.

find out, by experience and revelation, what the Lord was then doing.

John 8:55. "Ye have not known him (i. e., gotten to know him. No. 2 of these two words); but I know him (No. 1); and if I should say I know (No. 1) him not, I shall be a liar like unto you; but I know him (No. 1)." Here the Lord declares His immanent knowledge of the Father; and declares that those whom He was addressing, not only had no such innate knowledge of God, but had not even attained to that knowledge.

1 John 5:20. We know (No. 1, i. e., we know as a historical fact, without learning it) that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know (i. e., get to know, No. 2) him that is true."

Here the truth is taught that, before any one can get to know God, he must have a spiritual understanding imparted to him. With this agrees 1 Cor. 2:14. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he get to know them." Why not? Because "they are spiritually discerned." The natural man has no means of getting to know spiritual things. A spiritual understanding must first be "given" to him. Then he is able not only to discern, but to love and delight in the revelation of spiritual things, and to get to know Him, "the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent." "This is life eternal"—John 17:3.

The importance of getting to know God is thus again wondrously emphasized as our one great need. This knowledge is not only the basis of trust in God; not only the foundation of Christian faith; but of Christian life. Practical Christian life and walk will be in direct proportion to our knowledge of God. Look at Col. 1:9-10, where we have the practical outcome of the prayer in Eph. 1:17. In Eph. 1:17 we have the prayer itself. In Col. 1:9, 10, we have it applied for our correction and instruction. Carefully weigh the words. "For this cause, we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire"—Desire what? "that ye might be filled with the knowledge (the noun from No. 2, i. e., acquired knowledge) of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding." Why? For what purpose? To what end? "THAT YE MAY WALK WORTHY OF THE LORD UNTO ALL PLEASING, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOD."

Then, to walk worthy of the Lord, I must know Him? Exactly so. If I would please Him in all things I must know what will please Him. Is this all that is required? All that I have to do? Yes, this is all. Then I have not to rush hither and thither; from Convention to Convention? No, I have to sit down before God's Word, and get to know Him through that. There is no other way of getting to know Him. And He has given us His Word, and revealed Himself therein, on purpose that we may study it and find out what it is that pleases Him; what it is He loves; what it is He hates; what it is He does. To get to know His wisdom, His will, His infinite love, His almighty power, His faithfulness, His holiness, His righteousness, His truth, His goodness and mercy, His long-suffering, His gentleness, His care, and all the innumerable attributes of our great and glorious God.

See how this knowledge is absolutely necessary, if we would please God.

We cannot please any of our friends unless we know what they are pleased with. If we would make a present to one of them, we naturally think, or try to find out, what it is he or she needs or would be pleased to have. If we are receiving a guest, we naturally try to remember or find out what pleases him in food or drink, in occupation or recreation. If we cannot find this out, then we have to guess at it, and we may or may not succeed in our efforts to please. We may take the greatest trouble and pains, and yet, after all, we may arrange for or provide the very thing which is most disliked.

It is even so with our God. How are we to find out the things that please Him? How are we to discover the things He approves?

(The answer to the above question "Only from His Word," will, D. V., appear in the Herald next week.—Ed.)

DOUBLING HERALD SUBSCRIPTIONS

AS STATED LAST WEEK, we have designated November and December as two months in which we wish to double the subscription list of The Restitution Herald. Two very important benefits would result from such an accomplishment. First, the truths that are issued weekly through The Restitution Herald would at once receive double the number of readers. Thus the efforts being put forth by the General Conference to circulate Biblical truths through the Herald would at once have doubled in efficiency. Again, with such an increased subscription list, the income would be increased sufficiently as to cover the costs of printing and publishing. Each of these is an important result.

There are few interested subscribers who could not well afford to use their personal influence to secure the subscription of some acquaintance or friend to a periodical that contains so many vitally important truths as does The Restitution Herald. We prayerfully ask that each and every reader will enlist in this effort and earnestly strive to interest as many as possible in this laudable effort.

We again call attention to the fact that the Herald will present a copy of the Gift Bible announced on last page of this issue to the one who, on December 31st shall have sent in the largest number of new subscriptions at $2 each, accompanied by cash. Send these subscriptions from time to time as they may be secured and they will be totaled on December 31st. If desired, use the following form. Other blank forms will be furnished on application.

"WHATSOEVER THY HAND FINDETH TO DO, DO IT WITH THY MIGHT; FOR THERE IS NO WORK, NOR DEVICE, NOR KNOWLEDGE, NOR WISDOM, IN THE GRAVE, WHITHER THOU GOEST."— Eecl. 9:10.

OUR OBSERVATION of different workers and classes over the country causes the above passage of Scripture to come forcefully back to mind. Some persons hear the gospel message, go to the waters of baptism where they are buried in the likeness of their Lord's death, and then return to their homes where they seem to content themselves with paying little further heed to the church.

While we believe strongly in baptism as being a necessary step in a Christian's life, yet we are frank to say that we feel a person might better never be baptized if he is going to stop there and put forth no further effort in advancing the cause of Christ among men. Jesus Himself said in Luke 12:48, "Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required." The person, therefore, who has come to understand enough of the gospel plan to realize his need of baptism has been given a privilege in life that many others have never received, and every privilege brings with itself an equivalent responsibility. How untrue the person is to his responsibility, then, if he goes his own course of life carelessly and does not actively and earnestly help to keep the cause of truth burning brightly at his local church or in his home community!

There are only a few years of strength and privilege given to each of us. Then at the close of those few years we each lie down quietly and there is nothing more that we can do. How pertinent, therefore, the words of Solomon when he said, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."

Whatever place or standing we will occupy in the coming day of our Lord's kingdom will depend upon the manner in which we have qualified here. While it is true that faith is the basis of salvation, and not simply a matter of good works, yet it is equally true that where Christian works and efforts are not visible there is in reality no existing faith. Works are the outward manifestations of the inward faith, and there is no faith existing where works are not found.

Many of our local churches and Berean societies are moving along in only a sluggish way because so many of those who should be actively working are dragging along doing nothing to push the cause. How wonderful it would be if we would all get busy and think and plan and work to see that our services were more regularly attended and that real, live interest were put into the meetings! We would get more joy out of life ourselves, bringing more blessings to others, and come to face eventually the hour of death with no regrets or fears, because of the knowledge that we had done our best. What a comfort!

TO ILLINOIS BEREANS

This is the last week of Self Denial Month and it is time now to mail your savings to the Berean Treasurer, Miss Phyllis Woods, 611 East Fourth St., Kewanee, Illinois.

We sincerely trust that you have found a real joy and satisfaction in "sacrificing" with Christ during these four weeks, and that therefore the benefit to you in the giving will be even larger than the benefits of the gifts to the poor for whom they shall be used.

How true it is that it is more blessed to give than to receive!

THERE IS A WORLD of practical philosophy in Christ's teachings about losing one's life to save it. Only as a man spends himself in unselfish toil for others does he gain an insight into the true secret of existence. Not until he is lifted up on a cross of sacrifice can he obtain the broad vision of life, the clear understanding of brotherhood, and the full perception of truth that are the richest rewards the human soul can know this side the kingdom. If you would save your life from smallness; meanness, selfishness and death, then lose it by fearless service.—Selected.

PEACE AND GOOD WILL AMONG MEN

MOTHER AND JOHN enjoyed studying the Sunday School lessons together. Mother often asked questions, John found the answers, or John asked questions which Mother answered, or explained difficult verses. Many happy hours were thus spent, happy in profitable thought and exchange of confidence.

To-day Mother's first question was, "When Jesus was born what did the angels say to the shepherds about 'peace and good-will'?"

John soon remembered, "On earth peace, good will toward men."

"Did Jesus bring lasting peace and good will?"

"No," said John, "we have had many wars since then."

"Yes, and we see and read about many evil people and their deeds each day," added Mother.

John now asked a question, "Couldn't we have world peace now?"

"I think not," replied Mother. "People are not ready to be really, truly followers of Christ. However, by reading Romans 12 we find a way given whereby people might enjoy much peace and good will."

"What was the first thing Paul said the Christian should give to God?"

John then read, "'Your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God'. You have to give yourselves."

"Yes, what kinds of selves?"

"Pure, clean in mind and body."

Mother's next question was, "Should we live after the fashion of the world or God's will?"

John answered, "The will of God," but could not understand just what verse two meant, so Mother explained that we should study that we will know what the good and acceptable and perfect will of God is.

A few weeks before, John had learned that love was the greatest thing in life. To-day he learned that Paul said it must be genuine—not make-believe love.

"What should Christians hate?" asked Mother.

"They should hate evil."

"To what should they cling?"

"They should cling to the good." John read, "'Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.' How can that be done?" he asked.

"By doing kind things for people who are not your friends," replied Mother. "We must not try to hurt others when they hurt us; or wish something would happen to them; for God attends to all things."

"But what if Harry hits me and calls me names?"

"Do not pay any attention to his names and keep out of his way. Before long he will be ashamed of his actions."

"John, is there a verse in this lesson that tells you to be friends with people even if they are not rich or have a high office?"

"Yes, 'Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate.' Why, that's making the newcomer welcome, and trying to make the shy fellow feel that he's one of the gang, isn't it?"

"Very true, son. Now, which verse applies to Dick when he brags about how much money his father has, or how clever he is in school?"

John soon found, "Be not wise in your own conceits."

"Does he know about 'in honour preferring one another'?"

"No, he considers himself first always. And, Mother, they never give to poor people, even if they do have so much."

"Then they do not observe, 'Distributing to the necessity of saints, given to hospitality'."

"And, what else will show that one is trying to be a Christian?"

John read the verses, and Mother explained that a real Christian will rejoice in hope of eternal life, be patient in time of trouble, prayerful, and, above all, serving the Lord earnestly and intensely by doing all the good he can for others.

"If everyone lived with all this in mind, wouldn't it be a happy world?"

"Yes, indeed! And now we must learn the Memory Verse and read the Daily Reading for to-day."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Am I the kind of person described in this lesson?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Learn the two verses given on this page.
2. Cut out two hearts. On one print "Evil", on the other print "Good". Paste the good heart on the evil heart so as to cover it up.

MEMORY VERSE

43. 1 Corinthians 2:9.

We should ruler's laws obey
True and upright live each day;
Love our neighbor with a love
Every selfish thought above.

Jesus gave a golden rule
We should keep at home and school
If at work or if at play,
Think of others first always.

LESSON VI.—November 11, 1928

PEACE AND GOOD WILL AMONG MEN

Rom. 12:1-21

Devotional Reading: Phil. 2:5-11

GOLDEN TEXT

Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.—Rom. 12:21.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Peace and Good Will Among Men. The Christian life is strikingly outlined in this study of Paul. He does not suggest that Christianity of the present day can establish peace and good will over all the earth; rather, that the individual endeavor to establish peace in the midst of his associates. Every admonition cited is influential in aiding one's fellow toward peace. Self is omitted excepting as self is committed to God.

This lesson brings the individual Christian into a comprehensive experience of the life of Christ. At His birth the angel proclaimed concerning Him, "On earth peace, good will toward men"—Luke 2:14. Not with sword, but with kindness of speech, with love toward His enemies, with forgiveness for his crucifiers. Jesus gave place for God's wrath and punishment while He made for Himself multitudes of friends peaceful toward Him. His way was diametrically opposite to the way which all men regard as best. instruction to "avenge not"? Define "wrath" Discuss vv. 20, 21.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Be not overcome by evil, but be overcoming evil with good."—Rom. 12:21, Roth.

If any shall injure you, do not imitate their evil example by doing anything revengeful unjust, or harmful to them; but diligently labor to do such things as are manifestly good, generous, and honorable in the sight of God, and especially of man, that your enemies may never be able to charge you with anything indecent and unjust. Let no ill treatment discompose your spirit of meekness and kindness and thus allow an enemy to triumph over you.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Recipe for Peace. For years Mr. Smith had been putting up with the unkindness and unfairness of his neighbor Brown. The latter would not properly keep up his portion of the line fence. He would purposely allow his hogs and cattle to get into Mr. Smith's crops. Unkind and biting things he would say; and though Mr. Smith's heart was heavy at times, still he did not retaliate.

One day Mr. Brown was taken suddenly sick. His wife who was frail was soon exhausted by the heavy strain and loss of sleep; and there was no one to attend to the many chores. Furthermore they would have been ashamed to ask their neighbor to help, for they had been so unkind to him.

But Mr. Smith who read his Bible every day had not forgotten, "If thine enemy hunger, feed him". So when he learned that Brown was sick and in distress he went over and took charge. The chores were faithfully done each day, and Mr. and Mrs. Smith helped nurse Mr. Brown back to health.

The result? You need not ask as to whether or not Brown was willing to do his part and be a proper neighbor after that.

When wronged or insulted, if you would eventually gain a friend and establish peace, be kind to the one who has wronged you.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Peace and Good Will Among Men.

"Suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke 2:13, 14.

This scripture declares that God has purposed that, through Christ man shall become conscious of God's good will toward men, and that this shall bring peace and cause man to admit God's glory.

Romans 12 tells how this development takes place. First there is the presentation of the body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God. The body dominated by the instinct life resident in the flesh by nature is a body of death, a vile body, incapable of appreciating and revealing God's glory. It becomes a body acceptable unto God by a process of transformation through a renewing of the mind, which renewed mind can be conscious of and can prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God in man, God's highest created work.

Romans 12:3-21 tells how this holy body, given to God's service under the mind of Christ, manifests its life. Its every activity is prompted by good will toward man, even enemies, and works toward peace. The flesh mind can conceive of peace only through law and brute force. But, growing into consciousness of God's love and grace and thus dwelling in light, the holy body, giving acceptable service to God, is a reservoir of strength that far out-measures war and law as the means to world peace.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Art of Christian Living.

Study the lesson text carefully and you will find a long list of things or rules given which every Christian man, woman or child should follow. If all these rules were followed to-day would there not be peace and good will among men? If we would devote our whole life in such a way as would be pleasing and acceptable with God, would not this be a grand old world? But such a condition does not exist to-day, for few are living up to this standard, therefore we find evil everywhere.

Indeed things would not look very bright, to this earth, and when He does return there if the present day's condition were to exist always. But there is a time coming when there will actually be "peace and good will among men." Christ has promised to return will be peace and good will among men.

This is the hope, we look forward to, and what an inspiration for earnest labor on our part! And best of all we have been promised the privilege of assisting our Savior in this great work of peace if we but hold fast to the end. May we be worthy of His acceptance on His return to establish "peace and good will among men."—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Our Attitude to Others.

Aim: To learn how the Bible teaches us to live with others.

This lesson is for every age group. Children should be taught at home the art of lending and giving to others. Teach them that others have rights that must be respected; teach them to be unselfish. Children reared with these early lessons seldom grow into selfish, unkind people. Paul begins this lesson with great humility; "I beseech you . . . brethren." No Christian has a right to address another in a domineering manner; no church can grow with such a leader; no sinner be reclaimed by scolding. Humility must characterize a leader if he would reach people.

Paul's next thought is sacrifice, and if we are God's children we must learn its meaning. What father is not willing to sacrifice for his child? Christ never took from one of His, but was always giving, giving, until He gave His life for us. Paul understood this so well that he admonished all to give their bodies living sacrifices. That means to give until it hurts. That is sacrifice, and is one of God's ways of proving us. This is what the Apostle is teaching in this lesson. May we learn to give our love, our substance, our time, our all.—M. A. W.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

God's Good Will: Man's idea of the attitude of nature's powers toward himself as manifested in idolatrous religions; the spirit that dominates in such religions; God's purpose through Christ as stated in Luke 2:13, 14; Romans 12 as a partial working out of this purpose; Romans 12 as the basis of world peace.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

NOVEMBER CHANGES

With the first of November several changes are expected to be made by different ministers which will affect both them and the work. Bro. G. E. Marsh will enter the Illinois state work locating at Dixon; Bro. F. E. Siple will become assistant to the Executive Secretary of the National Bible Institution with headquarters at Oregon, while the Secretary thus being released will, as far as possible, respond to the long-time urge to enter the field at large doing convention and evangelistic work and seeking general understanding and information for the furtherance of the cause. He and Bro. Siple will exchange with each other from time to time in common effort to advance the services of the General Conference to the churches and the state conferences.

The first appointment of the Secretary is at Hammond, Louisiana. From there he will probably go to Brumfield, Ky. In order to so plan his appointments as to economize traveling expenses, he solicits early correspondence with any who may wish his services.

Bro. Patrick will temporarily take up the work at Fonthill and Niagara Falls left vacant by Bro. Marsh's removal.

The Dixon, Illinois, church has planned an all day meeting for Sunday, Nov. 4, when the State Conference will receive Bro. G. E. Marsh into its services and the Dixon church will gladly welcome him as their first resident minister in several years. Services morning, afternoon and evening.

Bro. F. E. Siple will begin his work as assistant at the Oregon church on Nov. 4th, when he will speak morning and evening.

Bro. Stilson and family are visiting Sr. Stilson's parents, Bro. and Sr. Hugh Shaffer, Plymouth, Ind., for a few days. For some time Sr. Shaffer has been half sick. Last word reported her feeling better.

Bro. and Sr. McGraw and family are much elated over Sr. McGraw and Billy and Betty being released from quarantine. Billy and Betty have been in about six weeks with scarlet fever. They are celebrating by a visit to Bro. McGraw's mother, who has been sick at her home in Macomb, Ill.

Our much appreciated Linotypist, Lyman Thompson, is the proud father of a first-born, a bright girl. Mother and child are happy at the Oregon Hospital.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

On or about November 1st, Bro. G. E. Marsh of Niagara Falls is expected to arrive in Dixon to make his home. Sunday November 4th, will be his first service in the Dixon church. It is the aim of the brethren here to make this a Banner Day for the church. Sunday School convenes at 10 a. m. Sermon at 11 a. m. In the afternoon at 2:30 a program will be given, the Junior Bereans providing the music. Evening services at 7:30. A basket dinner is planned to be held in the basement at noon. You are invited to attend all of these services, as a spiritual message awaits you.

Come one, come all!

GLAD

The Herald is always glad to receive word of appreciation to Herald articles. In this way the writers come to know in part the value of their labors.

Nor does this apply alone to Herald articles. Expressed appreciation of any phase of the General Conference work helps to indicate the reception of the efforts and of the effect thereof on the church as a whole. Such expressions are needed something as the pulse is needed for the Doctor's guidance.

LOUISIANA

HAPPY WOODS SCHOOL HOUSE

Evangelistic meetings will be conducted at the Happy Woods School House, three miles west of Hammond, Louisiana, by Bro. F. L. Austin, beginning Sunday, Nov. 4, and continuing as conditions warrant. Services are announced for Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. and each evening at 8 p. m.

In connection with the above meeting I am anxious to become acquainted with as many as possible of the brethren in the Alamis district and by consultation ascertain what can be done therein for the good of the cause. Will those in the above named section who have the Lord's work at heart correspond with the undersigned, c/o Mr. Geo. Siple, Hammond, La. and also watch this page for further possible announcement.

F. L. Austin, Exc. Sec'y.

BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

Bro. Jas. A. Patrick was a welcome instructor by the Bible Training Class from Oct. 18 to 24 and his services much appreciated.

The personnel of the class this year consists of four brothers and one sister in Christ: Grover Gordon, Holbrook, Neb., Harvey Krogh, Blair, Neb.; Paul Hatch, Harvey, Ill.; and Richard LeCrone and his sister, Lucille, of Omaha.

The regular work to date have been studies of the books of Isaiah and Matthew. Bro. Patrick's presentations had to do with the study of Evolution and of various doctrinal subjects.

Bro. F. E. Siple will be daily instructor of the class when Bro. Austin is engaged at other places.

A COMMUNICATION

Dear Bro. Stilson,

Enclosed please find bank draft from the Los Angeles church for the N. B. I. work. We rejoice that we are able to have some part in the promotion of the cause of truth. To those who are so unselfishly giving of their time and means, we would give words of encouragement and assure you it will ever be our desire to lend a helping hand. The different phases of the work have been characterized by a true Christian spirit. May the good work prosper and grow and many become obedient to the truth is our prayer.

Yours in hope,

Ella H. Wyman, Sec'y.

CALIFORNIA

Bro. Hammond of Omaha, (a brother of our Bro. "J. E.") is spending the winter in Los Angeles and meeting regularly with the brethren.

Sr. E. H. Wyman has returned to Los Angeles after a pleasant summer spent with her daughter in Des Moines. It is good to see her in her accustomed place again. Her present address is 1033 S. Burlington Ave.

Bro. and Sr. George Rahn and family of Sacramento spent a week in Los Angeles looking after business and visiting relatives and friends. They were present at three church services and were heartily welcomed.

Sr. Marie Foley and family are motoring to Los Angeles and plan to make this their home. They will be a welcome addition to our number.

BLAIR, NEBR.

Our Rally Day, Oct. 21, went over with a bang. We had a house full, and a good program. There was thought to be about sixty outsiders present and all seemed to enjoy the day.

Preparations are now being made for Christmas program. The writer does not know at this time just what the activities of the day will be, but do know that whatever our program committee gives us will be good.

The church at Blair has begun to do things that are really worth while. There is real steel among our membership and they are willing to do, so we are looking forward for great things.

E. E. Giesler, Pastor.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Sunday, Oct. 14, was Rally Day at our Sunday School. Each class showed an increase in number over the previous Sundays. After a short lesson, a talk was given by Mrs. Skinner on her trip to the Holy Land.

OHIO

RALLY DAY REPORT

"The Golden Rule Sunday School, Cleveland, Ohio, had 140 in attendance at the Rally Day program today (Oct. 21.," wrote M. W. Lyon, last Sunday. He made an effort to get the report to the Herald in time for the previous issue and failed only by a few hours. His report continues:

"This is a new high record for our six week's old Sunday School. Not so bad for our first attempt, is it? This is 41 over our last week's record, and 29 over our former high record of two weeks ago."

May God strengthen those on whom such opportunities and responsibilities come. These growing Sunday Schools mean larger and better churches resulting in more being enlisted earnestly with Christ.

Mrs. M. A. Woodward, 223 W. St. Joseph St., Lansing, Mich., is rapidly recovering from the bruises and shock she sustained recently in an auto accident.

Bro. Rance Lake of Birmingham, Mich. our first manager of the Golden Rule Home and his son Richard and wife were the other occupants of the car. All were badly "hook up" and stunned but no serious injuries were sustained by any, for which we all thank God. Bro. Lake returned to his work after two or three days of nursing.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay, of Oregon, was recently removed to the hospital in the belief that the change will do him good. Having caught cold once or twice his recovery has been tediously delayed. His physician assures us that his condition is good, and that due caution on Bro. Lindsay's part and submission to necessary routine will go far to his speedy recovery. Last report announces improvement.

The editor much enjoyed brief meetings with the South Lawn Park church at Grand Rapids, Mich. on the evenings of Oct. 18th and 23rd. The earnestness with which the members of this church and Sunday School are working is worthy of emulation by all. Bro. Randall, their pastor, is in the forefront with his face and heart ever toward the Master.

The Michigan quarterly conference at Blanchard was well attended, and an excellent spirit was manifest. A full house graced the Sunday services, when the visiting brethren were numerous and the entertainment was of the best. Such gatherings create desire for more. The secretary's report will probably be received soon.

While at Blanchard, Mich., the editor was called to Fonthill, Ontario, because of the death of Bro. John Crysler whose sickness had lasted for several years. His death occurred on the evening of Oct. 19. His was the fourth death in his family within two years. We hope to receive an obituary soon. Sr. Crysler will continue for the present in her home.

Fonthill and Niagara Falls churches greatly regret the closing by Bro. G. E. Marsh of his pastorate with them on Oct. 28. During his seven years of work with them Bro. and Sr. Marsh have ingratiated themselves greatly with these good people.

Bro. Patrick has consented to serve the Fonthill and Niagara Falls church temporarily, beginning about the middle of November.

WARMTH OF IMAGINATION, ardor of feeling, acuteness of reasoning, and fluency of expression can do but little. The true agent is a perfect abandonment before God, in which we do every thing by the light which He gives, and are content with the success which He bestows. This continual death is a blessed life known to few. A single word, uttered from this rest, will do more, even in outward affairs, than all our most eager and officious care. It is the Spirit of God that then speaks the word, and it loses none of its force and authority, but enlightens, persuades, moves and edifies. We have accomplished everything, and have scarce said anything.—Fenelon.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

By Samuel E. Haney

HOW INTERDEPENDENT are our five senses! The inconvenience, unpleasantness and regretfulness of being unable to see what we hear, taste, smell and touch are incomprehensible. The blind are always groping in the dark. They go to bed in the dark; they awake in the dark; and breakfast in the dark. Then with their improvised tentacle-sticks in hand they take a walk. The sun has risen making luminous the blue canopy of the heavens; but they do not see it: all is darkness!

There is a marked distinction between being born blind and becoming blind later in life. The latter keenly appreciates what they are missing, while the former have but an imaginary conception formed by one or more of their senses. There is a spiritual parallel to this, i. e., an unregenerate man has no conception of what heavenly sunshine means to the soul, spirit, mind and body. He was born blind: "In sin did my mother conceive me". Psa. 51:5.

As bacteria exist on putrefaction, so evil spirits operate on sin; which, due to the fall, is hereditary. Jesus says, "When the unclean spirit is gone (driven) out of a man (by conversion) . . . he (the spirit) saith, I will return unto my house (note assumed prerogative) . . . and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there",—if allowed. This man could once see; but, if he become blind again (by allowing the evil spirits to enter) "his last state will be worse than his first". Luke 11:24-26. Peter says, "For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning". 2 Pet. 2:20. Those who do not utilize their spiritual sight are jeopardizing their chance of eternal life by trifling with the precious blood (life) of the Son of God. This rule applies to temporal matters also. If we be adept in any art, and then leave our knowledge and skill lie dormant, we soon become inefficient, and our work ceases to commend itself to the purchasing public.

John 9: "And as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth". And He gave him sight, v. 6; which caused much controversy among the Jews, who finally consulted the man's parents; and they, fearing the Jews, hedged and dodged their questionnaires lest they be put out of the synagogue. "Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise: we know that this man is a sinner. He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." "Then they reviled him, . . . and they cast him out ('and they put him out of the synagogue, Dr. Weymouth')." And the "they" class, of our day, will do the same to you, reader, should your eyes be opened to spiritual things; and should you flash your light too freely in most of the modern antitypal "synagogues". Others doubtless were similarly blessed; for in Jesus' testimony of His Messiahship to John (Matt. 11:5), He said, "The blind receive their sight". Inferentially, it would seem He gave sight to many blind, which were not recorded.

While the apostles had power to awake the dead and to heal the sick and afflicted, they lacked the power to give sight to the blind. There is probably a symbolic significance to this. None but Jesus, through the Holy Spirit, can open the eyes of the spiritually blind. The best that man can do for such blindness is to direct the afflicted ones to Jesus Christ, the Great Physician.

While Jesus "went about doing good; and healing all that were oppressed of the devil" (which includes the physical blind, Acts 10:38), His mission, at His first advent, was chiefly spiritual. It is interesting to note how He discriminates between physical and spiritual sight in John 11:9, 10: "Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man (the natural) walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world ('the sun of the sky', Wey.). But if a man (the natural) walk in the night (spiritual darkness), he stumbleth, because the (note definite article) LIGHT is not in him". Diag. and R. V. It is quite evident that v. 10 refers to spiritual darkness and spiritual

A SONG OF DEGREES

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber. Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The Lord is thy keeper: the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore."—Psa. 121.

THE SONGS OF THE DEGREES

NUMEROUS ARE THE interpretations of the Songs of Degrees recorded in Psalms chapters 120 to 134 inclusive. They are fifteen in number. That "steps" is also a correct word to express the meaning of the Hebrew word is accepted by all. But that these refer to fifteen steps of the temple is advocated by only a few.

The fact that "degrees" are mentioned in scripture in no other place than in connection with the miracle of the returning shadow of the dial of Ahaz, at once arouses thought. In Isa. 38:8 and 2 Kings 20:8-11 are found the only other records of "degrees". Second Chronicles 32:27 also refers to the same events.

King Hezekiah was completely surrounded by Sennacherib's Assyrian army. He was overwhelmed by excessive numbers. There was no hope in man.

It was "in those days" that Hezekiah was sick unto death. He was instructed to set his house in order for he should die and not live. Whereupon Hezekiah prayed the God of heaven for his own life, for Jehovah's honor, for Jerusalem's preservation. His prayer was granted. Not an arrow of the enemy fell within Jerusalem, and Hezekiah's life was prolonged by fifteen years all to God's glory and honor. But in anticipation of the fulfillment of the answer, Hezekiah asked for a sign. It was granted. A miracle of miracles was wrought. The sun's shadow was returned by ten degrees, or steps.

The fifteen Psalms entitled "Songs of Degrees" become very interesting and full of meaning when attention is called by a European writer of years ago to the apparent fact that these songs are probably songs of Hezekiah expressive of his great joy and of his homage to God. The central song he chose from the songs of Solomon as expressing his own heart's thanks; two of the first seven and two of the second seven were from the heart of David, chosen as expressing Hezekiah's deep feelings; the remaining ten are supposed to be from the pen of Hezekiah himself. The whole number of these degree songs, fifteen, agree with the number of years that were added to Hezekiah's life, while the ten which Hezekiah wrote correspond to the number of degrees by which the sun returned.

Each of these songs emphasize one or more conspicuous facts emphasized from these great deliverances—from the Assyrian army and from death. The one at the head of this column witnesses that God was his help. The army of Assyria was as nought compared to the strength of Jehovah.

What beautiful testimony inscribed for centuries upon the walls of time! God is our help too, brother. He and He alone can and will be the strength of His people. Let us too look to the hills, the hills of the eternal God, for our help. He will not slumber, nor will He "suffer thy foot to be moved".

EDITORIAL AND FIELD SECRETARIAL WORK

THE LAST General Conference urged that the secretary should do a large amount of field work during this conference year. It was also urged that the other lines of work should be kept up. Accordingly arrangements have been made whereby Bro. F. E. Siple will assist in the office from this time forward. He and your secretary will cooperate with each other in doing the work in the office that has heretofore been done by the secretary and will take on the additional work of one or the other being in the field practically all of the time.

From this time on Bro. Siple will be Assistant as Editor of The Restitution Herald, teacher of the Bible Training Class, all office work and as pastor of the Oregon church. Beginning in next issue of The Herald Sr. Dorothy Lyon will be editor of the Berean Page.

The writer's first visit into the Field is at Hammond, Louisiana where he announced a meeting to begin on Nov. 4. Other appointments in various states will be made from time to time. This field work will be done through series of special meetings running into weeks in length, or by sectional conventions or week-end appointments at various churches. If you are desirous of having our cooperation in staging some work of this kind communicate at once with the secretary himself or with the N. B. I. office. The sooner we can know what places are anxious for a boost the more economically we can arrange our journeys and appointments.

Let's all get together and make this the greatest year for advance work that the Church of God has even known.

THANKSGIVING

WE ARE AGAIN entering the month that has been set aside throughout the United States as the time of thanksgiving to Almighty God for His wonderful blessings to His people. Bountiful harvests have been gathered in many sections of the country. Prosperity has been reported along many lines of industry throughout the year. For all these things the heart wells up in thankfulness to the Giver of every good and perfect gift.

In connection with this season, it has become our custom to encourage a Thanksgiving Offering to the Father through the National Bible Institution. Our Christian effort is the united effort of us of the Church of God throughout this country. This is the one central medium through which all can unite for one common work of service in the Master's cause. Our labors looking to increased evangelization, to increased publishing of gospel literature, to increased strength of local churches, to helpfulness of individuals, as well as congregations, make this National Bible Institution a medium common to one and all for service. It is for this reason that we earnestly advocate an annual Thank Offering through its treasury.

All contributions to this Institution are carefully devoted to the furtherance of Christian effort and these efforts must be measured by the financial strength with which the people in common contribute to the support of the same. We will welcome these offerings from day to day and will report the amount thereof from week to week as the month progresses.

This neat little book of 88 pages is already receiving favorable commendation from different points, including points in England and Canada. We commend it to the readers of The Restitution Herald. The book is well printed on good paper, making it pleasant and easy to read, paper binding at 40 cents per copy.

THE BOOK

By M. A. Woodward

ABOUT A WEEK before the death of Sir Walter Scott, he said to his son-in-law, Lockhart, "Read to me from the Book." "And when I asked him from what book, he said, 'Need you ask? There is but one.'"

"The Bible in Scott's literature". Thus begins the interesting words from The Book Nobody Knows by Bruce Barton, and if you have not read it, get it from the library and read it, as well as The Man Nobody Knows by the same author. You will be well repaid. I want to copy some of his first chapter. It is worth re-reading.

"An intelligent and talkative lady found herself at dinner seated beside a Bishop. Having a social gift, she knew that most men are flattered to be met in conversation on their own grounds and so she started to talk about the Bible. 'I can't pretend that I read it as much as I ought,' she confessed, 'and really you know parts of it seem to me hopelessly out of date. Yet,' she added broad-mindedly, 'I'll admit that there are some very beautiful passages.'

"'Yes?' said the Bishop, 'For instance?'

"'Well, for example, that line about God tempering the wind to the shorn lamb.' (On the chance that there may be one or possibly two readers whose knowledge is no more exact than that of this fair lady, let us hasten to remark that 'God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb' is in Sterne's Sentimental Journey, a book which resembles the Bible about as much as Robinson Crusoe resembles the Encyclopaedia Britannica.) 'And now you must tell me your favorite verse,' the lady continued brightly.

"'It would be hard for me to pick a single verse,' the Bishop answered, 'but I can give you my favorite passage. It is the one that tells about Eliza crossing the ice.'"

Not long ago I met a man who wanted to know which of the Old Testament books contained the verse, "Thus saith the Lord, Every tub shall stand upon its own bottom." The answer is that both Jeremiah and Ezekiel give expression to bits of philosophy that resemble this, but not in words that bear any resemblance to it whatever.

It would be easy to multiply such stories. They illustrate a strange phenomenon. Here is a book, or more properly a collection of books, which is beyond comparison the world's best seller. New novels grip the public fancy for a few weeks or months and then disappear, but the Bible stands continuously at the top of the list. Go "somewhere east of Suez" where there "aren't no Ten Commandments" and what do you find? A fine big bookstore in Rangoon which city you have to visit "on the road to Mandalay", centrally located and up-to-date, with a modern printing office in the rear. American presses are turning out text-books and literature of every sort. And Bibles, cords of Bibles, literally cords of them, go into the finest hotels in any American city and on the stand at the head of your bed—the last thing to meet your glance at night and the first thing in the morning—is a copy of this same most circulated book. Nearly every home has at least one copy. Millions of copies are given as birthday gifts. It is a book that everybody buys and concerning which almost everybody is ready to engage in debate at the drop of the hat. Yet how many read it? How many know what it really contains?

It is worth knowing. Not all of it, of course. There are long pages of genealogy which are no more edifying than pages of the telephone directory; there are First and Second Chronicles, which recite the tedious mistakes and sins of kings who were no better than the kings of England and not half so important in their influence on our lives, but when you have passed over such passages and every thing else, what have you left? These four great treasures: A bird's-eye view of the development of civilization, a sort of outline of history, as Mr. Wells would say. The story begins with the origin of the earth, just as Mr. Wells does, and for the first eleven chapters it deals with the human race as a unit. Coming down to the time when races were grouped and nations arose, it traces the development of a particular people, the Hebrews, their beginnings as nomadic shepherds, their conquests and settlements of homes, and their emergence into national life, their rise to splendor under kings David and Solomon, their overthrow and captivity, and the reestablishment of their national cult or worship, though with very limited authority in the matter of government, a century later. The recital brings us finally into definite touch with the civilization of Greece and Rome, the latter being the dominant power throughout the whole period of the New Testament. Considered simply as an historic outline, this is a venture to challenge respect. Certainly no one can claim to know history who has not read and understood it.

In his third reason for studying the Bible Mr. Barton says, "It is the best of all textbooks in human nature." William Lyon Phelps is a college professor, as well as an interesting writer and a remarkable human being. When he speaks of education, it is fair to assume that he knows what he is talking about. He says "I thoroughly believe in a university education for both men and women; but I believe a knowledge of the Bible without a college course is more valuable than a college course without the Bible; for in the Bible we have profound thought beautifully expressed; we have the nature of boys and girls, of men and women, more accurately charted than in the work of any novelist or playwright. You can learn more about human nature by reading the Bible than by living in New York."

O, there is so much in this book of Mr. Barton's that is good that one does not know where to stop. He says, "Start in with the first chapter of Genesis and you are gripped at once. Here is no preface, no argument, only a great declaration: 'In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.'

Viewed only as a piece of good writing that paragraph is superb. What a way to begin a story! How dignified, how impressive! How swift and sure the movement! How nobly superior to the Greek mythologies, and free from their grossness and puerility". And so he goes through nearly all the Old Testament on into the New and begins it with the gathering mob who came to torture and put out the life which Mr. Barton calls "the most successful life ever lived on this planet, a life that changed the course of human thought and that still is able, after more than nineteen hundred years, to transform individuals, and nations."

Surely it is worth our time to acquaint ourselves with such a Character. We have no time to lose, beloveds, in searching this wonderful book. I think I derive more lasting good and real joy while writing the Practical Junior Lessons for the quarterlies than any one reading them. The more time we put into the study of the Bible, the more faith we have in God. We rest in a sweeter frame of mind, each day.

Mothers, do not let the dear children go to their beds before you have read with them a portion of God's word and knelt in prayer with them. When they are past the paternal roof, out in the busy world they will look back on these little events with a joy you cannot imagine now, and thank God for a praying mother and father. Select something very appropriate for each evening's reading, or let one of the children do the selecting, and you will all soon wait with joy for the evening lesson, and the restful prayer. May God help us as guardians of our youth to take time with them to lead them nearer God.

Return unto thy rest, O my soul; for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee.—Psa. 86:7.

THE SWORD, FIRE AND DIVISION

By Emma C. Railsback

THINK NOT that I am come to send peace on earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword." Matt. 10:34. "I am come to send fire on the earth; and what will I, if it be already kindled? . . . Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you nay; but rather division." Luke 12:49-51. "A man's foes shall be they of his own household." Matt. 10:36.

These positive statements of the Savior were uttered to the disciples. Jesus came into the world to introduce a higher life: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." He came as the long promised Seed of the woman who was to bruise the serpent's head. God had said that He would put enmity between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent. When Jesus came rebuking sin, particularly the self-righteous scribes and Pharisees, their enmity was aroused. "Every one that doeth evil hateth the light."

Jesus first told His disciples, "The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil", and later He said, "I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." "Ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake." Sin and death; righteousness and life are opposites: "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution. It is through much tribulation, ye shall enter the kingdom of God. The Christian is exhorted to glory in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh patience. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." Christ was made perfect through suffering. Those who suffer with Christ shall also reign with Him. "If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but rather let him glorify God on this behalf."

While tribulation and sorrow are the portion of all who will live godly in this present life, yet there is a promise of peace of mind and heart to all such. Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you." "In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." Just before His cruel death on Calvary, He could say to His followers, "My peace I give unto you." He had the peace of mind and heart that passeth understanding, because He knew He was doing the Father's will, and He has left that peace of mind as the heritage to all His followers, who are likewise striving to do the Father's will. "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord, Jesus Christ." "The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

Long before the Savior was born, the prophet announced that He should come as the Prince of peace, and the multitude of Angels announced to the shepherds on the hills of Judea at His birth, "On earth peace; good will toward men." The time draws near when the Prince of peace shall return to establish His righteous reign and then "the mountains shall bring peace to the people, and the little hills, by righteousness."

May the desire of all nations soon come.

Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer.—Rom. 12:12.

QUESTION.—Seeing that the Scriptures, both Old and New, have so much in them that teaches that eternal Life is conditional, can any man claim to be led by the Spirit of God and yet believe the soul or any part of man is immortal?

ANSWER.—There is nothing to prevent any one making "claim" to speak by the Spirit of God, but the acid test is: "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them" (Isa. viii. 20).

A WONDERFUL GIFT

By Lydia Railsback

IT IS NOT AN unusual thing for one person to present another with a gift. It may be something of little worth, or it may be of great value. Whichever it is, it is usually given because of the intimate friendship existing between them. Many a gift has been received that was not appreciated. There are many reasons for this, one of which is that proper friendship did not exist between the one who gave and the one who received.

Many parents have worked hard for years and made many sacrifices that they might be able to bequeath to a son, or a daughter, an estate such as should make the family comfortable all their lives. But is such an estate appreciated? I dare say a few of them are, but the majority are not.

Our Father has much in store for His children. Do we appreciate it? Some perhaps do, but many undoubtedly do not. Notice, it is "Father for His children". Are you one of them? If not, do you want to be so He will bequeath to you a portion of what He has? Remember He has power, wisdom, eternal life. Do you want them?

Listen, John 1:12, "As many as received him, to them gave he power (margin, privilege) to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." Do you believe on Him? Remember that "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

God did not send His Son for the unbeliever, but that the believer might be saved. Then the believer should be "buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection."

Do we make a friend of our Father who has promised all this? Do we live close to Him every day? Do we realize what it meant for Christ to die that we might live? Is there anything too hard or too great for us to do for one who has done so much for us? For after all we are wholly dependent on the Father for everything we have or ever hope to get. It is the Father who provides our daily food and the air that we breathe.

It is the Father who gives us life and health and strength. It is the Father who gave us a mind that we might praise Him. It was the Father who gave His Son that we might live. It is the Father who will bestow the wonderful gift, "eternal life through Jesus Christ". Will we believe that we may receive it?

The measure of a man's life is the well spending of it, and not the length.—Plutarch.

"A true heart knows nothing of sects, but only of needs."

THE CHRISTIAN'S GREATEST NEED

DERIVED AS FROM HIS WORD

THERE, AND THERE ALONE can we get to know Him. There alone shall we learn the fulness of the Spirit's prayer for us in Eph. 1:17 and the blessed practical outcome of it in Col. 1:9, 10.

No man has this knowledge of God intuitively. No minister can even help in imparting it, except in and by the ministry of that Word. His own thoughts are valueless. Only so far as he enables us to understand that Word can he be of any assistance to us. He may be mistaken himself, and very easily be a hinderance instead of a help. God has revealed Himself in His written Word, the Scriptures of truth, and in the Living Word, His Son, Jesus Christ. And it is by the Communicated Word revealed in our hearts by the Holy Ghost that we begin thus to get to know Him, whom to know is Life Eternal.

This is the one great reason why the written Word is given to us. It is not given merely as a book of general information, or of reference, but is given to make known the invisible God.

Why do we read it? Why do we open it at all? What is, or ought to be, our object in reading it?

Do we read a portion that someone else has selected for us? Do we read that portion because we have promised someone we would do so? Or do we open it, and sit down before it with the one dominant object to find out God; to discover His mind; to get to know His will.

Those who are not thus engaged make their own god out of their own thoughts and imaginations. They have to fall back on what they think their god likes!

Thousands make their god with their hands, out of wood, or stone, or bread. Thousands more make him out of their own heads. But, being ignorant of God's Word, they are alike ignorant of the God who has there revealed Himself.

See the power of this truth as it is applied to what is called "Public Worship," or "Divine Service." How many still worship "the unknown God", and serve themselves, and do what is pleasing in their own eyes, studying only their own tastes! Ignorant of that great rubrick, John 4:24, "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him MUST worship him in spirit and in truth" (i.e., truly in spirit), they talk of the kind of service they prefer, and say, "I don't like that at all", or, "I do like that so much", as though "places of worship," so-called, were opened merely for persons to go in and do what please themselves, forgetful of that word "MUST," which dominates the whole sphere of what we call worship.

Worship "must" be only with the spirit. We cannot worship God—who is a Spirit—with our eyes, by looking on at what is being done. We cannot worship God with our noses, by smelling incense, whether ceremonially or otherwise used. We cannot worship God with our ears, by listening to music, however well it may be "rendered." No! worship cannot be with any of our senses; or by all of them put together. It must be spiritual, and not sensual. The worshippers must be spiritual worshippers, for "the Father seeketh such to worship him" (John 4:24).

How many of such worshippers frequent our churches and chapels? How many are still worshipping "the unknown God" (Acts 17:23)?

Is it possible that, if the true God were known—the great, the high and holy God, who dwelleth not in temples made with hands; the God who inhabiteth eternity; the God in whose sight the very heavens are not clean, and who chargeth His angels with folly—is it possible, we ask, that any who know Him could imagine, for one moment, that He "seeks" or could be pleased with, or accept, or regard a congregation turning the Bible into "a book of the words," and listening, for example, to a girl singing a solo, getting as high a note as she can, and holding it out as long as she can? Is THAT what The Great and Infinite God is seeking? Is that the occupation of the heart with Himself which He says He "MUST" have? No indeed! and the greater the ignorance of God, the deeper and more degraded will become the accompaniments of what is called "Public Worship."

Consider further, the effect of this great truth on our daily life. What rest and peace it brings! Look at its influence on our prayers. What is prayer for? Why are we told so often to pray? Why? Because prayer is intended to humble us by putting us into the place of helplessness and dependence. Prayer is meant to put us with our faces in the dust before the Mighty God.

Instead of that, what do we find? We turn that place which is meant to humble us and keep us in the low place, into a throne, from which we dictate to God what He shall do in our affairs, how He shall help to carry out our plans, what He shall do among the governments and political affairs of the world. That is the outcome of the pride of the "old man" within us. So that we, who cannot manage our own affairs, do not hesitate to take on ourselves the management of the universe, and "move the hand that moves the world."

A true knowledge of God would lead to a very different condition of things. Our prayers would be frequent indeed, but we should be so filled with a sense of God's wisdom, and power, and goodness, that we should cease to pray as though we had more compassion than He had; as though we were more concerned about sins and sinners than He is.

We should be "definite" indeed, as well we may be, in many things where, from His Word, we know "what to ask." But we should be equally "definite" in leaving all our cares with Him. We should cease to take the responsibilities of life upon ourselves. We should say, "Lord, what Thou wilt! Do not heed my requests if Thou seest they are not good. Do not do or give this or that because I ask for it or think it good. Withhold it, if Thou, who seest the end from the beginning, seest it will not be for my good. I am so foolish and ignorant before Thee: and Thou art so wonderful, so wise, and so good: Goodness and mercy itself; and Thy love is so infinite that Thou canst do only what is right, and wisest, and best. Thy will is love itself. Oh that I may be filled with such a knowledge of Thy will, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, that I may enjoy the perfect rest which that knowledge will give."

In proportion as we have this knowledge of God and of His will, shall we thus pray without ceasing; and in this manner make known our requests unto Him.

When we pray definitely for our will to be done in any matter, it means (if we are honest enough to confess it), that we are willing to take all the responsibility if that request be granted. Oh, what a solemn responsibility and how unnecessary, when God has provided us with One who is our Surety, and who is responsible for us in life and in death (John 6:39).

How much better to leave our affairs in His hands.

When we employ a person to do any labour for us, and we ask him how much we are to pay him, he replies, "I will leave it to you, Sir." Why? Because he knows perfectly well that we shall be very likely to give more than he would dare to ask.

It is even so with our God. If we know Him well enough we can surely say in making our request, "I will leave it to Thee, Lord." We have His assurance that He is "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think" (Eph. 3:20). If we do the thinking we shall surely limit Him. How much better to leave the limit to Him: and we shall do this in proportion as we know Him.

Take another illustration. Here is a friend in great difficulties; and we have a plan that will lift him right out of them, and set him on his feet again. He, meantime, comes to us to borrow some small sum that will only give temporary relief, and leave him to struggle on still with his difficulties. He limits our power. His poor thoughts cannot rise to the extent of what we are able to do exceeding abundantly. If we answer his prayer, and grant him his request, and lend him what he asks, how small will be his blessing. Why does he not "ask or think" more "worthy" of our ability and love? Because he does not know us well enough! That is the secret, and that is why he is not delivered. He thinks he knows better than we do; and measures our willingness to give by his poor power to ask.

Oh to know the love, and power, and wisdom of our God. What a revolution it would make in our prayers, as well as in our lives.

But look again at another effect of this knowledge of God as applied to missionary work. What is the work of the missionary? He offers himself and is accepted. He is trained for his service, and he learns the particular language. The moment at length arrives when he is able to speak that language, and the opportunity comes to speak. Now, what is he going to say? What is the first thing that must come out from his opened lips? Is it not to explain his God to that heathen man or woman?

THE CHILD OF GOD

The child of God is one
 Who following in the footsteps of the Lord,
 In whose almighty strength he is renewed day by day
 Being made a conqueror,
 Beneath whose feet is crushed again
 That cunning and malicious thing—the serpent
 Which if not crushed may gain admission to the breast,
 And with malignant and Satanic hate,
 Entwine, and coil itself above the heart,
 Making him in time the slave of lust.

'Tis strange, yet nevertheless 'tis true, that man
 Who has no love for Christ, and His grand truths,
 Invariably carries in his breast concealed from view
 This creeping loathsome thing,
 Petting, pampering, and caressing
 As though 'twere his best, his truest friend,
 Refusing to part company, even in the dark mysterious night,
 When overcome with worldly strife, and turmoil
 He seeks that rest which cannot ease a guilty troubled conscience.

'Tis strange, but nevertheless 'tis true, the child of God Carries in his breast concealed from view
 The Spirit of the living God,
 Which like a white and spotless dove of purity,
 Dwells ever in the secret chambers of that place
 Consecrated as a temple to the Eternal God—His heart.

WHO OWNS YOU?

By Lottie E. Young

HOW MANY TIMES have we heard persons say, "I'm my own boss and can do as I please. It's nobody's business what I do with my time or money." Possibly we have said this ourselves. But is it true? Do we belong to ourselves, and is life a cup to be drained? Is it not rather something to be filled with good, helpful deeds which shall rebound to the glory of God, who made us, and the Savior, who bought us? Life is not a possession but a stewardship, and instead of saying "the world owes me a living," our thoughts should be "I owe the world a life." Everything we have comes from the Giver of all, and every member of our body, and faculty of our minds, is only ours for the using and not abusing of same. All there is of "me" is God's estate, and I am His tenant and agent. On the day of our birth a new lease is signed. On the day of our death accounts are closed. Our fidelity is the interest on God's principal.

If our heavenly Father gives us possibilities and power to make money, to acquire influence, or even to do the every day things we all have to perform, can we say it is our ability? Remember the parable of the talents which Jesus told; two men used what their lord loaned them, and even though one had five talents, and the other but two, they invested the money of their lord so well that when it was returned to him with interest, he bestowed the same praise upon each, but the one who hid what his master had entrusted to his care, even though he returned the original amount, was called "unprofitable" and severely punished. Some day the Great Judge will ask each of us "What have you done with the talents I entrusted to your care?" Will the answer be a glad one, or a sad one? This is the question for us to decide now.

Everybody who is, or has been, in business, knows that fidelity to the interests of the firm by whom they are employed is of the highest importance, and obedience to God should stand above all else in our lives. Jesus Christ said "Seek ye FIRST the kingdom of God," but instead, what we want (not always what we need, or what is best for us) is made of prime importance, and so we disobey the divine command, and make crosses for ourselves, sometimes so heavy that we would faint under them if we had to carry them alone.

The first chapter of Genesis says "So God created man in his own image," and the next chapter tells of the beautiful garden where Adam was placed, where permission was given to eat of every tree in the garden but one, and the punishment threatened if they disobeyed was "thou shalt surely die." Chapter three tells how Adam and Eve first listened to the voice of the tempter, looked at the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, handled it, then tasted it, and so merited the divine wrath.

But "God is love" and so in due time came the "Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world," and we read in 2 Cor. 5:15 that "he died for ALL, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again." "The wages of sin is death" was the punishment meted out to the human race, but by the sacrifice of the Sinless One He has purchased mankind, so He really owns us. But ownership and possession are two different things. I may own a house, but not possess it, and so unless the spirit of Jesus Christ really animates our lives, and we can say with one of old "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth," even though we have been baptized, we are not faithful stewards of the blessings which have been bestowed upon us. Jesus Christ OWNS you, but does He POSSESS your time, money, life itself?

Charlemagne was one of the greatest of earthly kings, but the legend has it that after death he was arrayed in all his gorgeous robes and seated on his throne. An open Bible was on his lap, and his finger pointed to the words "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" This old monarch, who lived eleven hundred years ago, recognized the emptiness of life without God, but are the men and women of this generation as wise? What use have you made of your talents, for some have been given to every one? Will you hear the Lord of the harvest say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," or "Depart from me, I never knew you"?

This old Persian motto sums it up:

"God does not ask thy race,
 Nor does He ask thy birth;
 Alone He will demand of thee,
 What hast thou done on earth?"

WHAT IS THAT IN THINE HAND?

By Alice B. Curtis

AND THE LORD SAID unto him (Moses), What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod."—Exod. 4:2. And with God's power the rod became, for Moses, a serpent, and when Aaron stretched the rod over Egypt's river the water became blood.

What is in your hand and mine? Is it not strength God has put there for us to use in His service? With His help we can do much for Him even as Moses and Aaron did wonders before Pharaoh. Consider the mechanism of the hand. Man has made many implements of labor, but nothing he has made can equal the human hand for the skill and diversity of work it can perform. The hands are referred to as "keepers of the house" in Eccl. 12:3, because with them man defends his body and toils for his daily bread. With his hands the artist paints the most ravishing pictures; the musician produces entrancing melodies from his well-loved instrument; and the physician performs wonderful operations, many of which would have seemed impossible a few years ago, but which are now relied upon to prolong and save life.

While machinery has greatly lightened man's labor, there will always be work that even the best machinery cannot do. In Eccl. 9:10 we are told that "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," This does not mean that our hands should be employed in any wrongdoing as is apparent from Paul's teaching in Eph. 4:20-29 where, after speaking of the change that takes place in our actions after we have put on Christ, he says, "Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth."

Each one of us has some God-given work to do. Shall we shirk that work and be "found standing idle in the market place," when the great Householder has bidden us work in His vineyard and promised to pay us for the labor? What we can do may seem but little, but Daniel says, "The people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits." Dan. 11:32. Everyone cannot be a great evangelist and thrill vast audiences with the wonderful message of God's love and salvation for man, nor can we all express the same sweet message in beautiful song, and captivate and hold the listening multitude. Most of us are unable to become public benefactors by large gifts bestowed upon charitable institutions. But for the sake of Jesus, who died for us, let us do what we can, not passing by the little every day duties of life that need to be done, in a vain endeavor to do something for which we are altogether unfitted because that work seems more exalted. Let us try to live pure and holy lives for we are living epistles known and read of men, and our influence for good will not be lost. And if we cannot sing like angels, nor preach like Paul, we can keep busy and help furnish the means to send those who can sing and preach to the perishing ones. Unless we obey God's commands our lives are an utter failure; for Christ says, "What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Mark 8:36. Helen Keller, blind and deaf almost from infancy, says it seemed there was nothing she could do, but when she made the effort to do she found no end to opportunity for labor. We can glorify God by our lives: we can visit the sick and infirm; we can encourage others; we can write something for the "Herald" even though we may not be able to write eloquently if we are kind and sincere, the message will touch some heart, and at least we will die trying to do. We do not want to hear addressed to us and feel we need the admonition, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise." While we are able to work we do not wish to sit with folded hands.

We should help those who are bearing the burden and heat of the day, working almost beyond their strength to carry on the work of the N. B. I. at Oregon. Let us encourage them and help with our means the good work that is going on there. Each branch of that work is needed and is most helpful. We need the Bible Training Class for the young; we need the Golden Rule Home and the publishing plant, but it all costs money, so let us stand by and count it a privilege to help. Let us work for God lest our hands get useless.

"O wretched man, with a withered hand,
In a house where Jesus taught;
I looked with pity of deepest kind,
For down in my heart I thought
What useless life was his indeed
Then my own came in review,
And I fell on my face, for, O I found,
My right hand withered too.

"Year after year I had passive stood,
A weak and worthless thing,
Scarcely as much as a moment's thought
Gave I to the suffering,
Until Jesus into my life has come,
Now I see and understand
How less than little I used to be,
When I had a withered hand.

"So I came to charge you in Jesus' name,
To see that your hands are strong,
Does the rich, red blood course readily,
Are they moved to strike down wrong?
Are they eager to lift the fallen up;
Some loving service do?
Look well, look well, look well,
For your hand may be withered too."

Thou art my hiding place and my shield: I hope in thy word.

Light. Note John 9:5, "As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world". To paraphrase, "An unregenerate man walking in spiritual darkness stumbleth:—spiritual Light not being in him."

Let us consider a few texts relative to spiritual sight and blindness—just for remembrance sake. 2 Pet. 3:1, 2. First, note another kind of "blindness" whose prevalency makes comment superfluous, Deut. 16:19, R. V.: "Thou shalt not wrest justice: thou shalt not respect persons; neither shalt thou take a bribe: for a bribe doth blind the eyes (all italics mine) of the wise, and prevent the words (or, cause) of the righteous". Psa. 146:8, "The LORD openeth the eyes of the blind: the LORD raiseth them that are bowed down: the LORD loveth the righteous". Isa. 42:7, 16, 19, 20, "To open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house. . . . And I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them. . . . Who is blind, but my servant? or deaf, as my messenger that I sent? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the LORD's servant? Seeing many things, but thou observest not; opening the ears, but he heareth not". Paul seems to give an echo to verses 19 and 20 (2 Tim. 4:3), "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables".

Much as the physical blind are handicapped, and sad as their plight is, the spiritually blind are in a more deplorable state. They hardly know whether they are standing on their feet or head. Symbolically, "They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wit's end" (margin, all their wisdom is swallowed up). Like literally drunken men, who imagine they are millionaires, these poor, blind dupes of the devil's try to make themselves, and others similarly afflicted, believe they are rich. Jesus refers to them thus, "Because thou sayest I am rich, and have become wealthy, and have Need of Nothing; and knoweth not that thou art the WRETCHED and the pitiable one, even poor, and blind, and naked; I counsel thee to buy from me Gold which has been refined by fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white garments, that thou mayest be clothed, and the SHAME of thy NAKEDNESS may not be manifested; and Eye salve to anoint thine EYES, that thou mayest see". Rev. 3:17, 18, Diag. Standing at the heart's door, the dear Master continues pleading, "Behold! I have stood at the DOOR, and I knock; if any one may have heard my VOICE, and opened the DOOR, I will enter in to him, and feast with him, and he with me". Rev. 3:20, Diag.

O how solicitous we are to lead the indifferent, "luke-warm" Christians to Jesus that their eyes may be opened to the beauty of the Lord, and to the glory of His kingdom!

Personally, were I compelled to discard either my spiritual or physical sight there would be no hesitancy about yielding the physical. Even death would be preferable to yielding up "The Heavenly Sunlight":

"Before I came to Jesus, my heart was full of sin,
My soul was lost in darkness, no sunshine beamed within;
But since the hand of Jesus my guilt away did roll,
O the Sunlight of heaven is beaming in my soul.

Tho' pleasures oft would tempt me to turn from Christ away,

Tho' trials would impede me, or Satan bid me stray,
Yet I am still determined to reach the heavenly goal,
O the Sunshine of heaven is beaming in my soul.

Some day I'll reach the valley when thro' my journey here,

And with the Savior near me, the shadow I'll not fear,
But shout when underneath me the waves of Jordan roll,
O the Sunlight of heaven is beaming in my soul.

When I behold His glory within the jasper walls,
When one eternal sunlight forever on me falls;
I'll sing thro' all the city, while endless ages roll,
O the Sunlight of heaven is beaming in soul".

—Rev. J. Oatman.

Like the voice of Mother Nature
Calling to the race of flowers
To come forth to meet the Springtime
With her troop of golden hours,
God shall call us from our places
In the shadows of the tomb,
And shall clothe us with a beauty
Fairer than the lily's bloom.

Is it not to show how far the living God is above all their ideas? Is it not to tell how God has revealed Himself in His word and to explain that revelation, and to minister that Word?

We thus see how a true knowledge of God lies at the threshold of all missionary work. How can a man explain God unless he knows God? and how can God be known apart from His Word? Hence the supreme necessity of so studying that Word that we may not only enjoy but be able to speak of Him of whom that Word is sent to testify.

A NEW BEREAN EDITOR WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK. GIVE HER YOUR HEARTY SUPPORT.

WITH THIS ISSUE the writer steps out of the position as Berean Editor and introduces to you another who will carry on the work. Since the beginning of the Berean Page in The Restitution Herald it has been our privilege to talk to you each week in a Berean way, and we have enjoyed the association very much.

Since the writer, however, at this time takes up work with the National Bible Institution and necessarily will have charge of a large portion of Herald copy, we feel that it would be improper to continue as editor of this page, also; hence the resignation.

We are glad to be able to say, however, that our National Berean President has procured the consent of one of the best of our young writers and Bible Students to carry on the work. Sister Dorothy W. Lyon, 215 N. First St., Rockford, Illinois, is well known in Berean and church circles, and is more than ordinarily well qualified to do a work of this kind. We are free to predict, therefore, a very interesting and profitable Berean Page for the future.

As we step now to one side to usher Sister Lyon into this position we wish to urge upon you that you give her your whole hearted support. Send in items of interest concerning your local work, or write short articles on matters of general interest. Do not expect the Berean Editor to produce all the copy for the page.

We are giving below a brief article by one of the Junior Bereans of South Bend, Indiana, which shows that some good work has been done there.

WHERE THE ISRAELITES CAME FROM

How many people, know where the Israelites came from, and how they got their name?

To find out these things, we must go back to Abraham, who went to far countries at the call of God. Abraham had a son, Isaac. If you want to read or study about Abraham and Isaac, you must turn in your Bible to the 11th chapter of Genesis, 10th verse, and read to the end of the 27th chapter of Genesis. (Of course there are many other references, but this is the main one.)

Isaac, in turn, had two sons, Esau and Jacob. In Jacob we find the real father of the Israelites.

Returning from his first journey, to see his brother, Esau, Jacob wrestled with an angel. "And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob. And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed". Genesis 32:27-28.

Jacob was afterward called Israel, from which comes the word Israelite. He had twelve sons, ten of whom were the founders of the ten tribes of Israel.

The following report from Waterloo, Iowa, is very interesting:

The Waterloo and Cedar Falls Berean Societies met and elected the following officers: President, Blanche Harland; Vice President, Chas. W. Howe; Secretary and Treasurer, Ferne Moore. The President talked over the work for the coming year, and it was decided that we send The Restitution Herald to the Waterloo Public Library.

We have a Junion Berean class and they have their own officers as follows: President, Ronald Howe; Secretary and Treasurer; Virginia Phillips. Blanche Herland is the teacher. After business meeting we had a social time. We meet once a week on Friday night.

The Young People's Berean class of Chicago adopted a constitution and elected officers at the home of Sister Edna Anderson Beck on Friday night, Nov. 2. The election resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Sam Kee, 5920 N. Paulina Ave., Vice-President, Mr. John Marsh, 5955 Midway Park; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Margaret Lyon, 535 N. Central Avenue. Thirteen were present for a very interesting lesson led by the president. They have at present a prospective membership of about twenty, and if you know of any other young people in Chicago who would cooperate with a class of this kind please notify the secretary, giving full name and address of the parties.

THE PRAYERS OF PAUL

CHILDREN WHAT IS a really genuine prayer? Is it talking to God through our loving mediator Jesus? Yes, pouring out our gratitude to Him for His manifold blessings, asking His guidance in our daily lives, and expressing our hope for things now and in the future.

Dear Auntie Wince once wrote me that after making a prayer she always waited quietly for the answer. It usually came by some Bible verse being suggested to her mind. Isn't that a beautiful trustful attitude?

We have now come to the thankful season of the year, when the crops are stored for winter, and so much of God's bounty is in evidence. Count up all the blessings He has given you and then say a real prayer of "thank you" to God.

"Help me, Lord, to think indeed
Of thy Word which I have read,
Of the nobleness and grace
Which they find who seek Thy face.
Let me feel Thy blessing o'er me
Till the new day lies before me."

—Edna A. Collamore.

In our lesson this week we have several of Paul's prayers, and the evidence of his trust in, and need of prayer.

"The Little Learner's Paper" tells the story as follows:

"Again we read of Paul's good-by to the Christians at Ephesus when they went to visit him at Miletus. Paul told these dear friends how he had tried to serve Jesus humbly and how he had suffered tears and temptations. He warned them to watch, and overcome temptations.

"He told them they would see his face no more and he kneeled down and prayed for them all. They all wept and kissed him and went to the ship to see him sail away on his journey to Jerusalem and bade him good-by.

"When he was a prisoner he wrote beautiful letters to this church at Ephesus. He told them that he had heard of their faith in Jesus and of their love for the churches. He wrote that this good news gave him joy and that he thanked God in his prayers.

"He prayed to the Father that they might know the riches of God's glory. He prayed that they might be made brave and stay strong by the spirit of their Lord. He asked the heavenly Father that these dear true Christians at Ephesus might know more of the greatness of the love of Jesus.

"Paul then closed his prayer for them saying: 'Unto him . . . be glory throughout all ages of the world without end. Amen.'"

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Do we regard prayer as a real privilege, and use that privilege aright? Do we pray sincerely, or because we think we should?

MEMORY VERSE

No. 45. 1 Thess. 5:18.

SOMETHING TO DO

Monday. 1. Read in the quarterly the paragraphs of Lesson VIII signed V. C. T. and M. A. W.

2. If you do not know the Lord's Prayer, learn it at once.

Tuesday. Make a Thanksgiving poster. Upon a large sheet of plain paper paste pictures of everything, or the many things for which you are thankful. Print other things like "God", "Prayer", and "Love".

Wednesday. 1. Read 1 Tim. 2:1-8.

2. Learn the Golden Text.

Thursday. Start a Prayer Booklet. Make an appropriate cover and tie a number of pages together. On Page 1, copy the Lord's Prayer.

On the following pages copy the following prayer suggestions:

Ephesians 1:15-23.

Ephesians 3:14-21.

Colossians 1:9-14.

Then, when you find other prayers, copy or paste them on the other pages.

Friday. Now, write a Thanksgiving Prayer of your own, and send to me. I will ask that it be printed very soon.

Won't you have a busy week!

"Praise to Jesus let us give,
Every day and hour we live,
Praise Him for His care and love
Praise Him for His watch above."

WILL I PRAISE HIM?

THAT WE SHOULD be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ.

In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word the truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise,

Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.—Eph. 1:12-14.

PAUL'S EXPERIENCES IN JERUSALEM

Acts 21:17 to 23:35

Devotional Reading: Eph. 6:10-20

GOLDEN TEXT

Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
—Eph. 6:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Paul gladly received. Paul's experiences at Jerusalem were shaped largely by the friendship or enmity of others. The accuracy or erroneousness of his words had little to do with them. His friends, because they were his friends, and because both he and they were followers of Jesus, received him gladly and accepted his every word of exhortation. In so far as that people were led by God's Spirit this was both proper of them and encouraging to Paul. But for one to receive another's words merely upon the strength of his friendship for that person is an injustice. Friends more than any other should carefully consider the words of a leader and ascertain through study and prayer their accuracy. Being accurate, then friends should receive them—not because of the friendship but because of the truth of the words.

Paul, however, knew by previous information, Acts 21:11, that he was later to experience far different reception by others.

Paul before his enemies. Having purified himself and those with him according to the Mosaic law, Paul entered into the temple. Here the reverse of what Paul had experienced with friends began to take place. Because these people were his enemies, both his words and his deeds were disregarded excepting in so far as they might draw further upon them to excite the people. Although Paul complied with the requirements of the law, yet his enemies disregarded all this and exercised themselves according to their enmity. In this, they were the opposite of his friends. Too often neither friends nor enemies weigh the words of him who carries the responsibility. Either or both treat such an one according to their own personal feelings toward him.

Experience from service to Christ. With Paul it was not a question of whether he was faced by friends or foes. His only question was how to serve his Lord regardless of the anger of the multitude, 21:36 to 40. Though knowing full well that his testimony for Jesus would intensify its anger, Paul, nevertheless, recited anew the experiences of his conversion at Damascus, and his instructions from the Lord to herald the gospel tidings not only to Jews but also to Gentiles. The experiences that followed pertained to his standing before Christ. One must remember that with Paul the only question was his service to his Lord. He was living as unto Him. With him, man, either as friend or foe, was but incidental in his career. His career was entirely given over to his Lord. To witness for Him to serve Him; to exalt His name before men: these were matters of principal concern for Paul. His resulting experiences, though viewed one way by man, could by Paul be regarded only as indicating his faithfulness unto and his standing before Christ.

Paul witnessing. According to the law, Deut. 17:6-7, witnesses were more than mere observers. The witnesses were they who must perform the first act in executing the death penalty; that is, having witnessed a crime, the witnesses must be the first to throw the stones in execution of the death penalty for the crime. In similar way, Paul was witnessing for Jesus. Jesus was the great Life Giver. It was He who brought righteousness and peace and all phases of Godliness unto man. At Damascus Paul was made to realize this fact. Throughout his life thereafter he was hurling not stones of death against his Savior, but arrows of truth in His behalf. He was witnessing for the honor of Jesus on every occasion presenting itself. Not only by words was he thus serving, but he was putting his life energy behind the truth which was revealed to him. So in Jerusalem Paul was exalting and honoring and proclaiming his Lord and Savior in the eyes of all men. He was a true witness for Christ, the Life Giver.

Witnesses to-day might well realize that witnessing for Christ is not completed by the mere statement of words in His behalf, but that such witnessing necessarily requires the service of life's strength and of devotion of the one testifying.

In this, Jesus was a true witness for God; Paul, John, and other apostles were true witnesses for Christ and God. To this it is not improper to add that Luther, and all present day Christians who give their lives in support of their convictions of truth are the ones, after all, who really add to the witness for God and God's truths.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For the rest: Be getting empowered in (the) Lord, and in the strength of his might."—Eph. 6:10, Roth.

Isaiah said, "He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength."

With God all things are possible. Gideon, with three hundred, put to flight an army because his strength was in Jehovah. Paul said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Standing Firm For Truth. Henry had been born and raised with parents who belonged to a certain religious sect. From infancy he had been taught their theories and viewpoints, and instilled with their prejudices against all others. After coming to maturity, however, he suddenly in a most unusual way, came to realize that his people were wrong and their religion incorrect. After making a thorough study and full investigation of matters Henry returned to his people to tell them what he had discovered.

Imagine the reception! Picture in your mind their hardness of heart toward him and their scoffing. How they despised him, and yet he faced them patiently, accepting all their hard treatment that he might at least gain a few of them.

This was the apostle Paul's experience. Having been a Jew, a Pharisee, he knew how bitterly they would fight any leader of a differing thought. It takes courage to face such opposition and still go on.

If the truth you hold is saving truth is it not worth standing firmly for in face of everything?—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Jewish Opposition to the Christ.

"And he said unto me, Depart: for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles. And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live."—Acts 22:21, 22.

Paul was in the hands of the Romans, accused of stirring up a riot. The officials had granted him leave to speak to the Jewish mob surging around him. They gave him audience—until he said that Jesus had commissioned him to go far hence unto the Gentiles. This was as a match to a fuse. Their whole being revolted at the idea that their God was extending to Gentile dogs the privileges that He extended to them, His special and chosen people.

The Jews are not the only people afflicted with selfish pride. Called of God from among the Gentiles, we sometimes give evidence in our lives that we believe that there are some who are outside the circle of God's love, beyond being touched and saved by His influence. Let us look diligently into our hearts. —A. K.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Opposition to the Christ: the real cause of Jewish opposition according to Acts 22:21, 22; evidences of the same spirit among Gentile called-out-ones: our attitude toward the social outcast; the one who has wronged us; those who "followeth not after us" religiously; the enemies of Christ on whom we would call down fire from heaven.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

The poem on the front page of issue of Oct. 23, was selected by Bro. R. A. Humphreys. Someway, in the shuffle, the "A" got lost out of his initials. Sorry.

This office has learned with regret of the recent death of Bro. P. J. Graham, Fredricktown, Missouri. Bro. Graham was for many years a firm defender of truth in his locality, and will be greatly missed as the months roll by.

ILLINOIS

Bro. S. J. Lindsay who has been ill now for many weeks is still being cared for at the Dixon Hospital. Some days he is better, others not so well. The Herald is urging the brethren throughout the country to remember at the throne of grace this brother who has proclaimed the truth for so many years.

Born to Bro. and Sister Chris Hutchings, Martinsville, Illinois, on Oct. 30, a daughter, Elizabeth Marthell. Miss Hutchings weighs eleven pounds, and according to her father is not only good, but pretty! Congratulations!

Two of our young men of east central Illinois have recently taken unto themselves wives. Bro. Percy Murphy, formerly of Marshall, Illinois, is now at home with his bride at 2121 First Ave., Terre Haute, Ind. Bro. Austin Claypool, also of Marshall, is married and located at Urbana, Ill., where he is finishing some work with the University of Illinois. Our best wishes accompany these two young couples as they face the opportunities and responsibilities of life, and we trust they may realize the advantages of keeping Christ enshrined in the home.

PLUM RIVER—ADELINE

For next Sunday, Nov. 11, Bro. Siple plans to make the Plum River, Adeline trip, speaking at the former place at 11 a. m., and at Adeline at 7:30 p. m.

Bro. G. E. Marsh is being announced to speak at the Oregon church next Sunday, Nov. 11.

MARSHALL

Sunday, Oct. 28, dawned clear and bright at the Salem church, and good attendance graced this closing appointment of the summer's preaching season. Sister Leota Hanson, of St. Louis, was a very welcome visitor with the brethren there for the week-end.

A very interesting program was staged at the Dixon, Illinois church on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 4, when Bro. Marsh was welcomed into his new field of labor by Bro. Siple, representing the Dixon church and the Illinois State Conference. Special features, including numbers by the Junior choir, were enjoyed by all.

RIPLEY

We are glad to say that during our ten days of meetings at Ripley four were obedient to the gospel and were baptized in the name of their Lord. They are: Mr. Robert Vincent, Dale Long, Vernon Robins and Mr.

Jesse Robins. May God guide them always in connection with their Christian efforts.

The Church of God at Ripley, Ill., has closed a series of meetings beginning Oct. 16th. There was a Bible class each evening at 7 p. m.; subject studied was "God's Plan with Relation to Mankind Through the Ages," followed by a sermon by Bro. F. E. Siple. The services were attended with more interest and larger crowds than we have had for years.

To add more to these meetings, we had the privilege of visiting with Bro. and Sr. Chas. Gesin of Oregon, Ill., who spent six days among us. Some of our members from a distance were able to attend part of the time.

On Sunday four yielded themselves to Christ's service by baptism. The church membership was not only enlarged, but also the other members derived much good and we trust in a larger church work than heretofore.

The meetings were to close Friday night Oct. 26 with subject on "The Signs of the Times". A large crowd was expected, but as the shades of night settled upon us a down pouring rain was falling; so the service was abandoned. Bro. Siple was taken to a station that evening to meet a train in order to fill another appointment. All felt much disappointed over the abrupt closing.

May each individual realize the frailty of man and the need of making himself ready, for we do not know the hour our Lord shall come to grant eternal life, which is the Christian's hope. Tessa Laning, Sec'y.

MICHIGAN

Sr. M. A. Woodward is recovering nicely from her recent injuries received in an auto accident. She is able to get around and has been making a few calls on isolated members in Lansing. She expects to fill the pulpit at Dutton Sunday, Nov. 11. All in this place please take notice and plan to attend.

GRAND RAPIDS

The second birthday of the Grand Rapids church in its present location was appropriately celebrated Sunday, Oct. 28. The program presented was well received and proved to be a drawing card for a large attendance. A progressive work has been developed during this short period of time and is a good example of what the Church of God can accomplish if it will unitedly and energetically push the Father's work. The Church of God has many fields that offer as great or even greater opportunities and if developed along scriptural lines will become real "producers".

Bro. Fred Hall again proved to be a good "pinch-hitter" by supplying the local pulpit while Bro. Randall was at Coats Grove.

Sr. Townsend's Sunday School class sold in a few days five hundred boxes of jello. The proceeds were turned on the church debt. The younger people make "willing workers" if given opportunity.

The church basement presents a marked difference of appearance with its new ceiling; woodwork newly painted and the cement re-finished. It is inspiring to see members of Christ's body take as much pride and interest in the "house dedicated to the worship of God" as they do in their own homes.

ASHLAND, OHIO

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Ferguson and Miss Theda Miller, who is making her home with the Fergusons, stopped with us one day on their way from Indiana to Pennsylvania, where they will make their home this winter. Sister Ferguson was formerly Miss Gladys Hughes. While they were here I had the pleasure of burying the three of them in the likeness of the death and burial of the Master, and it gives me much pleasure to introduce them to the household of faith.

Their address is Waterford, Pa., Rt. 6. A letter of encouragement will be appreciated by them, especially Theda, who will be away from her mother and sisters. Let some of our Bereans drop her a card or letter.

Jas. A. Patrick

Bro. D. K. Lehman of West Milton, Ohio, is reported a little better from a serious attack of pneumonia.

Report says that Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Bauerle, Hammond, Louisiana, are the parents of their first born son. Mrs. Bauerle was formerly Sister Thelma Alexander. Congratulations! The young man's name is Fredrick Eugene.

IOWA

An early snowstorm, which greatly impaired the ease of traveling in rural districts prevented Bro. Jones from filling his regular appointment with the Marathon brethren on Sunday, November 4. During the summer months, Bro. Jones has met regularly with the Marathon and Pleasant Prairie churches on first and third Sundays, respectively.

KOSZTA

Sunday, Oct. 21st, was Rally Day. Attendance at Sunday School was 37; sermon at 11 by J. W. Williams; basket dinner at noon; sermons in the p. m. by Bros. Williams and H. S. Hunt.

H. S. Hunt, President of the Iowa Conference, and wife of Clarksville, Iowa and Mrs. Williams enjoyed the day with us.

HICKORY GROVE

I am somewhat late with the report of our meeting held by Bro. J. Arthur Johnson.

The meetings were announced for Oct. 7th, but owing to a slight mistake Bro. Johnson could not be here till the 9th, Bro. Williams came over from Gladbrook and commenced them on schedule time. Bro. Arthur arrived on the 9th. We then continued over the next two Sundays, closing the 21st. The weather, corn husking and sickness prevented the attendance considerably, but with all this we had about the largest attendance the last night, coming out in the rain too. We have heard since that many more were ready to come but did not when they found out it was raining. How strange it is that people won't come out to church in the rain, but never stop for it if they want to go to a show or such like. However we have heard many praises for Bro. Johnson, which we hope will encourage him as he goes forth to spread the gospel. He commenced his meetings with "Sin", showing how to get cleansed from it, going on to "The Coming of Christ", admonishing us to hold fast to the faith and urging others to accept Christ. We pray that his labor here will not be in vain. He left for Eagle Grove commencing a meeting the 23rd. Our prayers go with him.

Mrs. I. Fish, Sec'y.

Bro. Williams preaches at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. every third Sunday in the month.

The Dorcas Circle of the church met at the home of the President Mabel Bean Kiger, at Marengo, Oct. 25th. 28 were present. A good program of music and readings was enjoyed by all present. Nov. 1st 19 of them braved the storm and drove to Gladbrook, Iowa, where they were entertained by Sister Williams at the cabin in the Park. With a big fire in the fireplace, a piano, rocking chairs and a feast, none could help but say, "I've had a good time." Mrs. F. W. Clark gave the devotional. The visitors from Gladbrook were Mrs. F. W. Clark, Mrs. Pearl Rosenberger, Mrs. Henry Moeller, Mrs. Earl Reinhard, Mrs. Ray Allard, Mrs. Hester Berry, Mrs. Edna Luckow, Mrs. Melissa Allard and Mrs. J. W. Williams.

The Golden Rule circle of the church meets at the different homes each Sun. eve. with Norma Cronbaugh as president. They are using this year's "Book of Bible Studies of the Gospel Plan." Their average attendance is about 20. Tues. eve., Oct. 30 they enjoyed a real Masquerade Hallowe'en party at the Warmie Cronbaugh home.

Mabel Bean Kiger, Sec'y., Marengo, Iowa.

CALIFORNIA

On Oct. 23 we (the Crundwell family) were thrown into a state of grief on receiving a telegram stating that Bro. A. S. Bradley, of Mullin, Texas had died the day previous. Not so much because he had fallen asleep; for we know that his life is hid with Christ in God, and when the chief Shepherd shall appear, he shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away, but because we know that the cause of Christ in Texas has suffered a real loss. He was a bold defender of the truth and his place will be hard to fill.

The evening of Oct. 27th was a time of merrymaking for our church folk and friends. The occasion was a Hallowe'en party given by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Martin in honor of Bro. Johnson. About eight o'clock the guests, in the likeness of ghosts, witches, gypsies, etc., began to arrive and were met at the door by a ghost, wearing a wet glove, who later escorted them into the "chamber of horrors." There each one "saw things" that they did not tell the new arrivals about, but let them see for themselves.

After lots of fun and frolic refreshments—pumpkin pie, coffee and fruit—were served. Someone suggested that we might be late for church if we did not disperse, whereupon those present made a grand rush for home. We had a nice crowd for meeting the next day even if we were out until the wee hours of the night.

BLAIR, NEBR.

We were honored last Sunday, Oct. 28, at the morning worship with a message from Rev. J. A. San De Fur, one of the secretaries of the Anti-Saloon League. The gentleman spoke on Law Enforcement in regard to the Eighteenth Amendment and his message was enjoyed by all.

Five of the leading churches of our city cooperated with Rev. San De Fur and Rev. Shick of the Anti-Saloon League in a dramatic debate, "Can the Law be Enforced?" held at the Baptist church Sunday evening, and a trial, "Who Killed Earl Wright?" held at the Methodist church Monday evening. These five churches furnished the local talent for this trial. Twenty-one characters were necessary for this play and our church furnished three.

We join in the sympathy and sorrow with all who mourn the loss of our beloved Sisters Vickery and Chaplin.

AN EXPLANATION

The following explanation regarding the accident in which Sisters Vickery and Chaplin were killed was received from Sister A. J. Chaplin.

Will you please say to the household of faith that the sister killed in the auto accident was not Mrs. A. J. Chaplin, but Mrs. Allen Chaplin, whose husband is a nephew of Bro. A. J. Chaplin. The other sister who was killed, Sister Ella Vickery, was Sr. A. J. Chaplin's only sister.

The accident occurred 18 miles from Emporia, Kansas; cause not definitely known, except that a spike found in a tire on the left-hand side seemed to indicate that a flat tire had caused the disaster. When the car, a new Dodge, struck some loose gravel, Mr. Vickery says the last he remembers was that he lost control of the car. It went over an embankment and dropped something like 35 feet into a rock bottom canyon. Both Sisters Vickery and Chaplin were instantly killed, and Mr. Vickery seriously injured. They were enroute to Hiwatha, Kansas to attend the funeral of Mr. Vickery and Sister Allen Chaplin's cousin when this terrible accident occurred.

Because of the numerous letters received in regard to the accident and the misunderstanding, as to which Mrs. Chaplin was killed, we submit this explanation.

A COMMUNICATION

Dear Brothers in Christ:

I am enclosing a check for $2.00 to pay my subscription for our church paper for another year which was due October 1st. I do so thoroughly enjoy the many splendid articles published from week to week from the pens of our capable writers; for that is all of the spiritual help I have except letters and tracts from our people.

May the Lord bless and direct your efforts put forth in His name that all may better understand God's will and plan of salvation for us, is my prayer.

Your sister striving for the kingdom.

Nora Johnson.

TEXAS

"We buried Bro. A. S. Bradley yesterday. Will send report later." T. A. Drinkard.

The above brief report under date of Oct. 25 announces the death of one who in past years, has been a faithful worker in the vinyard of the Lord. Many of the brethren in Texas, Arkansas and other places owe their Christian hope to his faithful labors. For some months Bro. Bradley lay at his home in Mullin, Texas, much enfeebled by age and disease. Our prayers are extended in behalf of Sr. Bradley, that her faithful life and companionship will be rewarded with the Father's blessings.

NUMBER 7.

HOW THANKFUL ARE YOU?

By F. E. Siple

A MOTHER granted a special favor to two of her daughters, bringing much joy to their hearts. One of them was quite profuse in her words of thanks, but went right on in a course of life that showed very little appreciation; the other, with a deep understanding of what it meant to the mother, tried to arrange her own life so as to bring more joy and comfort to mother. Which one was really thankful?

On the whole, we as a nation of individuals have been wonderfully blessed of the Father this past year. Thanksgiving time is here. Shall we simply express our thanks in words as we continue to use God's bounties largely on our own selves, or shall we order our course of life and our use of income (be it large or small) so as to do the things that are well pleasing in God's sight?

Your General Conference is doing its best to advance the cause of truth and righteousness. It is publishing these things to the world through The Herald and special literature; it is sending a Field Man to proclaim the gospel far and wide orally in every part of the land; it is maintaining a Training Class to develop young men and women for pulpit and active church work. Can you serve God as fully in any other way as in helping in this great labor? The more backing, morally and financially, that is given, the greater the labor of love can be!

Just how thankful are you? If it is five hundred dollars worth, all well and good; or if it is fifty, or ten or five. As God has prospered you, we are urging that you manifest an appreciation by a Thanksgiving offering to His cause.

Mail your check to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill., stating that it is a Thanksgiving offering, and it will be prayerfully used as God directs the ones in charge.

How much shall we have to report in next issue?

THE ELECTION

ANOTHER ELECTION is over. Another individual has been chosen to the highest office that the world can give to a man. Another family is appointed to a home in the White House with its spacious halls and rooms, its beautiful lawns and gardens. It is indeed a long step for an orphan boy to rise from nothing in a northwest town to President of the United States!

There is coming, however, an election that will make this one of Nov. 6, 1928, look very small and insignificant. The home will be far more grand than the White House; the lawns will be more extensive and more beautiful; the honor will be far higher and more permanent. It is the election to the office of being rulers with Christ—co-rulers with the great King of kings.

If we took an interest in the recent election; if we watched carefully the developments of the campaign and awaited the returns anxiously, think how much more we should be interested in the greater campaign which is now on, and which affects your and my own personal election to office!—F. E. S.

THE CAMPAIGN—THE REST— THE PRESIDENCY

THE CAMPAIGN is over. Weary and worn with the effort, a smile of satisfaction across his tired face, Mr. Hoover seeks isolation and rest, glad for the months which intervene before inauguration.

Our campaign is now on. In order to win the election we must be alert and active, ready to exert our full strength and to make every sacrifice. That makes one tired. We shall come to the end of the campaign, to the close of life's walk, weary and worn, thankful for an opportunity to rest. There should be no dread of the days of isolation and peaceful rest between death and the resurrection morn—our inauguration day.

If we can come to the close of our campaign of life with a smile of recognized victory, with what joy will we be able to lie down and rest! The resurrection day with its inauguration to life everlasting will soon dawn—F. E. S.

BEHOLD, WHAT A GOD!

KNOWN UNTO GOD are all his works from the beginning of the world." Acts 15:18.

The heathen people of ancient Ephesus cried out with great fervor, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" But what had Diana done?

We have been made acquainted with a God who is not a product of imagination, but who is real and genuine, who really does things.

The more we study the plan of the ages the more we come to admire the accurateness and definiteness of that plan and the more we come to respect and reverence the God who could foresee and execute such a plan.

A God indeed supreme; all wisdom and foresight His; all power His, and yet, withal, a God of love; a loving Father!

He stands before you to-day ready to grant blessing and favor commensurate with your proving yourself worthy of them.

Behold, what a God!—F. E. S.

FIELD WORK

By F. E. Siple

WITH THIS MONTH of November the General Conference is entering a new field of activity, one that many of us have earnestly and anxiously looked forward to for a long time. We are putting a man out to do field work.

One of the greatest weaknesses of the Church of God in the past has been a lack of evangelistic or missionary spirit. We have not reached out sufficiently to proclaim to the world the beauties of God's great plan, and to exhort men and women to bring their lives into obedience to the Heavenly Father.

The present effort on the part of the General Conference is to do that very thing, and we are anxious to assist every church and community to establish the truth more firmly and arouse a real working interest.

Bro. Austin, who is doing and will do a large per cent of this field work, is a very capable man to bring just the results needed. He is refined, courteous, and a forceful speaker that any church, regardless of its size or location might well be proud to have in its pulpit. He is one of the best Bible students that this generation of the Church of God has had an opportunity to listen to. But above all these things stands the fact that he is conscientious and deeply spiritual, and puts the spiritual development of an individual or of a church as of much more value than mere material advancement.

Can you use such a man to help build up your local work? Or, reversely, can you afford not to take an advance step of that kind?

Remember that the time when such an effort is needed most is not when things are booming, but when they are lagging and all look dismal. If things have been going down and you feel you cannot afford such a meeting, that is the very time you cannot afford not to have one. When Sheridan came dashing up and found the army retreating he shouted, "Boys we're going back," and they went back, to victory. If your church is retreating, if it is not advancing, let us help you put it on its feet. We will all be benefited in this way.

Correspond with us freely, and ask any questions that you wish. Tell us your local conditions, and your ambitions in the Lord's work. We will be glad to advise with you, to help in any possible way, and to send a field man if it is thought best.

We of the National Bible Institution are here to serve the church, and we are anxious to be in constant touch with you, to enjoy your joys, to help face your problems, to sympathize in your sorrows. Write us freely and frankly. Address

DOUBLING OUR MAILING LIST

WE FEEL that the movement now on foot as a campaign for new subscribers is a most commendable effort in every way. There is everything to gain and nothing to lose; in fact, it is one effort that is evidently the opposite from selfishness from both sides of the question.

The Restitution Herald is the only church organ which the Church of God has which can go weekly into the homes of its families bringing them comfort and cheer, and surrounding them with that spiritual atmosphere which is so vitally necessary. Therefore you can hardly do another a greater favor than to urge that he take our family paper. Furthermore, from the standpoint of those who already receive The Herald there is a benefit, also. The larger the mailing list, the less expense per copy for publishing, and hence the office would be placed in position to give a much better paper for the same price.

A REAL REWARD

We are going to give a very beautiful Gift Edition of the Bible to the person who turns in the most new subscriptions before December 31, 1928, providing the number exceeds ten.

That, as a useful and valuable gift and keepsake is worth working for. But that is not the Real Prize. No, the real prize is a prize of service in the Master's vineyard, the joy that can come to one only when he knows he has done a noble task, or put forth a noble effort in the Lord's service. Such a joy goes with one through the experiences of this present life, and keeps him in the course that gives assurance of eternal joy when the Master comes.

In order to keep you informed on the progress of this movement we are publishing below the names of those sending in new subscriptions, together with the number sent in, and will continue to publish the list as received each week until Dec. 31.

Remember that The Herald is the best Christmas gift you could present to a friend who does not get it already.

The list is going to grow! How many can you send in to help swell the number? Even if you can only send one, remember that you have doubled the list so far as your name is concerned.

OUR CHILDREN

By M. A. Woodward.

FROM MY WINDOW I have been watching a mother and her two year old boy, given to her in middle life. She evidently has never had the care of children, knows very little of their natures, and I cannot help but pity this bright little fellow. In disapproval of her wishes, he has run into water on the walk. She commandingly orders him out of it; he stands looking at her and stamping his foot saying "No! No!" I wonder why she does not turn his attention to something away from the water—some pretty bird, a flower—anything to make him forget the water. But no, she insists on being obeyed, and he just as strenuously refuses to be bossed, so he sets up a howl. A spanking follows and neither mother or son has conquered. What will he be in a few years from now? The Mother and Father love that little fellow. O these children! They are God-given gifts, and we fail, to turn their minds back to the great Giver.

Mothers, Fathers, here is your greatest missionary work. Begin at home to bring recruits into the church. Let them see you often in prayer, and before they are three years old, they will be seen and heard kneeling alone some place and talking to God as if He were their dearest Friend. Remember, these children are not here because they chose to be? They are gifts sent from God, treat them as such. They are gifts to mold for eternity. Begin by planting seed-thoughts of love in their hearts. Plant one at least each day and watch them take root and grow. Teach them that selfishness is sin; that disobedience is sin; that you are not correcting them because you are the older boss, but because you love them and are anxious for them to grow up into "workers together with God", helping you to be better, more patient, proving to them that God helps you to be patient and loving, and that you are trying to show them the better way. When they insist on doing what your better judgment knows is wrong, ask them to go alone with God in their room and tell Him about it, and ask Him to direct them aright. You will be surprised how quickly they learn to take their troubles to the dear Father.

Mothers, with your many household duties, do not think you have not time to spare with them. Remember, this is your first duty, your present duty. Do it well and then you will not have to regret in the future that you neglected the greatest duty of all, the care of your children. Be sure you know what kind of company they are keeping. Remember that the first few years of their lives count for all their future years, so give them good company, plenty of work, or amusements that will keep them in touch with home. God has given you this work in trust. Do not fail Him. Lead them to God.

"How sweet 'twould be at evening
If you and I could say
Good Shepherd, we've been seeking

The sheep that went astray.

Heart sore and faint with hunger,
We heard them making moan,
And lo, we come at nightfall,
And bear them safely home.

We may have to sacrifice many pleasures through their young growing years, but when they have grown into noble men and women, if we can hear them say, "Mother loved us so well that she gave up any pleasure willingly to make us happy and comfortable and lead us to God", will that not pay us for every sacrifice we may have made? God help us to do our duty by these gifts He has left in our care.

"The changes of thought in Scripture are sometimes very abrupt, but always suggestive." From "Jesus Christ in the Old Testament", page 28. R. H. Judd.

FISHERS OF MEN

JESUS, WALKING by the sea of Galilee, saw Peter, and Andrew, his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And he saith unto them: "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." Again after His crucifixion, Jesus found the disciples fishing and He said unto Peter: "Follow me." How often we "go afishing" and forget for the time the great commission given us by the Son of God—and what a wonderful commission that was: "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." This commission was not given to the twelve disciples, alone, but to all those who, down the ages, have been called by Jesus and have faithfully promised to follow Him. What a fascinating and soul-inspiring occupation—to "fish" for men—men, who are out of the ark of safety, men who are lost without a knowledge of the saving grace of God. And, yet, many (good church members, too) fish for everything else besides "men." They fish for fish that swim in rivers and seas, and forget for the hour their duty unto God; fish for pleasure unto satiety; fish for wealth, and fame and power—fish for everything the world can give but forget to fish for "men." Jesus said: "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." Is it true then, that because we do not fish for "men", we are not following Jesus, following Him in name only, following Him afar off, following when the mood seizes us and it does not interfere with our pleasure? Friends, all the worldly "fish" we can catch will give us but fleeting joy. In the hour of death, it will not stand. When the grim spectre's chill presence is felt by our bed-side, nothing else will bring more comfort and peace than to know that we have answered the call of Jesus—"follow me"—and have devoted our lives to "fishing for men."

THE CHRISTIAN'S GREATEST NEED

"FOUND IN HIM"

THIS IS EXPLAINED in Phil. 3:9 as not having our own righteousness, but that which is through the faith of Christ; "the righteousness which is of God by faith."

Clothed in this righteousness, nothing of self is seen by God. Like the stones in the Temple, they were covered over first with cedar-wood; and the cedar-wood was covered over with gold. Then it is added, "there was no stone seen." These words are not necessary either for the grammar, or for the sense; for how could the stone be seen if thus doubly covered up? No! the words are graciously added to emphasize the antitype, and to impress upon us the blessed fact that, when covered with Christ's righteousness there is nothing of self seen in our standing before God. We are already "in the heavenlies, in Christ"; and are comely in all His comeliness, perfect in all His perfection, accepted in all His merit, righteous as He is righteousness; yea, holy as He is holy, and loved as He is beloved. All this is included in those words, "found in Him."

And being thus "found in Him" for our standing, we have in verses 20, 21 our hope; which, is to be in resurrection and ascension glory at His coming. Hence "we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself."

This is our "blessed hope." We have referred to it here, and not in the order in which it stands in this chapter, in order to show what it is that lies between the two—the beginning and the end of our Christian course. What is it that is to fill the place between these two? What is to occupy our hearts from the moment when we were in Christ, who is our life, to the moment when we shall be like Christ, who shall be our glory? What is the one object that is to ever fill our hearts and occupy our minds?

"THAT I MAY KNOW HIM"

This is henceforth the Christian's great object. Nothing but this aim to get to know Christ (for this is the word used here, in Phil. 3:10).

As verse 9 contained the explanation of the words "found in Him," so this verse (10) contains the explanation of how and why we are to get to know Christ.

We are henceforth no longer to know Him after the flesh, but to get to know Him as risen; the Head of the New Creation in resurrection (2 Cor. 5:16, 17).

For this is how this knowledge is explained: "that I may get to know him and the power of his resurrection." Not to know merely the historical fact of his resurrection, but the "power" of it: i. e., what its wondrous power has done for us. But how can we get to know this "power"? Ah! only by experiencing "the fellowship of His sufferings:" by learning that when He, the Head of the Body, suffered, all the members of that Body suffered in mysterious and blessed "fellowship with Him." Thus shall we get to know how we were "made conformable to Him in His death." Only when we have thus learned that we suffered when He suffered, and died when He died, can we begin to learn how we have risen also with Christ; and "get to know the power of His resurrection."

How few of us know what this "power" is, as it takes us out of the old creation and sets us in the new creation, where "all things are of God" (2 Cor. 5:17).

This then is our object, to get to know all that Christ is made unto us in resurrection power.

How startling must these words have been as they fell upon the ears of Greeks (for this is the first city Paul set his foot in in Europe). They had been brought up on the great motto of Solon, the wisest of the seven wise men of Greece. His motto was supposed by them to embody in itself the essence of all wisdom; and it consisted of only two words, which were carved over the entrance to the schools and colleges of Greece:

"KNOW THYSELF"

But yet, how foolish are those words. For how can one know anything of himself by considering himself? If he looks at others, then he can see how different he is from them; and how much better or worse he may be than they.

But it is only when we compare ourselves with Christ, who is the wisdom and glory of God, that we learn what we really are; and how far short we come of that glory (Rom. 3:21). It is only as we see ourselves in "the Balance of the Sanctuary," or by the side of the plumb-line of that Perfection, that we see, and get to know, our absolutely lost and ruined condition. Hence this new motto was thundered from heaven into the ears of those who sought to know themselves—"THAT I MAY GET TO KNOW HIM."

Yes; this is our one object. This it is that will have the mighty transforming power over our lives. Every moment spent in seeking to know ourselves is a moment lost: and not only lost, but used to keep us from the one thing that alone can accomplish our object and teach us ourselves. Trying to know ourselves, we not only fail in the attempt, but we cease to learn Christ, which alone teaches us to know ourselves.

And yet, how many are spending their lives in this vain search? Running hither and thither to hear this man and that man. And, being constantly directed to this self-occupation, self-surrender, and self-examination, they are only led into trouble; or, into a joy which lasts only while the excitement is kept up.

THE PARABLES OF JESUS

THE NORTHERN KINGDOM

By A. L. Corbaley

IN MARK 4:33-34 we read; "And with many such parables spake he (Jesus) the word unto them, as they were able to hear it. But without a parable spake he not unto them: and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples." In the first part of the 16th chapter of Luke we find the parable of the unjust steward. Then follows some plain reproof to the Pharisees, who were deriding Him; then from the eighteenth verse to the end of the chapter we have the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, which was evidently addressed to the multitude. In the Popular and Critical Bible Encyclopaedia it is listed as a parable (Appendix P. 55). A parable is a comparison; taking that which is understood and plain in order to illustrate or teach truths concerning that which is obscure or unknown.

In some of His parables the meaning was so obvious that they needed no explanation. In this class is the parable of the wicked husbandmen, found in Mathew 21:33-46. In the 45th verse we read, "And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them." The parable of the rich man and Lazarus needed no explanation for they knew that no other nation in the world had Moses and the prophets except the children of Israel.

While Moses was keeping the sheep of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, he led them to the back side of the desert. There the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush, and sent him to Pharaoh, that he might bring forth his people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt, into the land of Canaan. Exod. 3.

Moses led the people out of the land of captivity, across the Red Sea, into the wilderness of Sinai. Because of their transgressions and murmurings the Lord placed them under law, which was to continue in force, "Till the seed should come to whom the promise was made."—Gal. 3:19.

While they were encamped at Mount Sinai, he not only put them under law, but also promised them, through Moses: "Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation."—Exod. 19:5-6. With these promises constantly before them, and the many great and mighty miracles which the Lord performed for them in the wilderness, still they were unthankful and disobedient, and became a rebellious people. So sinful did they become that only the younger generation who left the land of Egypt were led into the promised land under the leadership of Joshua and Caleb. Here they were ruled by judges until the days of Samuel, when they demanded a king. The Lord gave them Saul, and at his death David took the throne, and ruled Israel for forty years. "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father, and prospered: and all Israel obeyed him;"—1 Chron. 29:23.

On the death of Solomon, his son, Rehoboam, became king. In the beginning of his reign the ten northern tribes rebelled against his authority, and made Jereboam, the son of Nebat, their king. He made Samaria the capitol of his kingdom. He also made golden calves for the people to worship in Samaria, 2 Chron. 11:14-15, so that they would not go to Jerusalem to worship in the Temple. He led Israel into idolatry and there was intermittent warfare between Israel, consisting of the ten northern tribes, and Judah, composed of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, until the days of Hosea, the king of Israel. "He did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, but not as the kings of Israel that were before him. Against him came up Shalmaneser king of Assyria; and Hoshea became his servant, and gave him presents. And the king of Assyria found conspiracy in Hoshea: for he had sent messengers to So king of Egypt, and brought no present to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year: therefore the king of Assyria shut him up, and bound him in prison. Then the king of Assyria came up throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria, and besieged it three years. In the ninth year of Hoshea the king of Assyria took Samaria, and carried Israel away into Assyria, and placed them in Halah and in Habar by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes. For so it was, that the children of Israel had sinned against the LORD their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and had feared other gods, and walked in the statutes of the heathen, whom the LORD cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made."—2 Kings 17:2-8.

So ends the pitiful history of the northern kingdom. At the twenty-third verse of this chapter we read, "Until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, as he had said by all his servants the prophets. So was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day."

This happened 721 years B. C. Since that time many have attempted to locate the ten lost tribes, and many theories have been advanced concerning them, but none can be conclusively proven. In Hosea 3:4-5 we read, "For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim: afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the LORD their God, and David their king; and shall fear the LORD and his goodness in the latter days." So the Lord knows where they are, and will make them known to the world in His own good time.

"What other religion can produce a single fact that was actually foretold of its founder?" From "Jesus Christ in the old Testament," page 80. R. H. Judd.

Editor Restitution Herald,
Oregon, Ill.

Dear Bro. Austin;

I wish to renew for the "Herald", as its many contributors whose articles I've read for years seem like real "relations" to me.

As I have been traveling for the past two years, I have not had the pleasure of regularly reading our good paper. I was greatly interested in the article in the July 26th issue, 1928, "What is Man?" by Bro. Patrick. Now when one is born of flesh, continuance of life is maintained by the breath of life. Such are of God's CREATION, being material, or temporal bodies. But let us reflect that one born (or THAT born) of the Spirit, is of LIFE itself, BROUGHT FORTH of IT. James 1:18. The firstfruits of H-I-S increase, not that which He created, but which He Himself, of His will, brought forth "from among men." That which was created in the beginning was indeed animal, as the brother labors to prove, but it will be remembered that after God had created "everything that creepeth upon the earth after his kind," He said, "Let us make MAN in OUR image, AFTER OUR likeness", and when this was come to pass "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." This was the SECOND man—of heaven. 1 Cor. 15:47. Plain enough isn't it?

Viewing it in this light, as I do, it seems to me that the doctrine of temporal things eventually becoming immortal is erroneous, and not borne out by scriptural interpretation (though I find myself writing that which I can hardly explain). But see 2 Cor. 5:4, "this tabernacle", and 2 Cor. 4:18. Our mortal bodies are indeed invested with a life which at death may be said to return to God, its Giver. What then, is "swallowed up of life"? Not our mortal BODIES! That returns to dust. I believe it is the incorruptible mind, or Spirit of Christ, which must be "put on" whereby we are made like Him, for Paul says: "Now the LORD is that SPIRIT", 2 Cor. 3:17. So when this Spirit dwells in us, is He not revealed, or MADE MANIFEST? Has not that which is written indeed come to pass? 1 Cor. 15:54. And because as He is, even so are we IN THIS WORLD. 1 John 4:17, and 3:2-3. Pure, and incorruptible; that which is mortal having been "swallowed up" or subdued, Phil. 3:21,—subdued, "done away". And that for which we have sought and waited, stands unveiled at last, as Paul explains to the Corinthians in his first epistle, chapter three. Compare also Phil. 3:20. I hope this may be printed, although I expect severe criticism, and even ridicule. But if it is not TRUE, will it not be easily disproved?

As always, submitted in love by Mrs. S. A. Horn.

AN APPEAL

THE RELIEF work I have been doing for our church people and the Bereans has been carried on now for nearly ten years. The purpose for which it was started and the principles and methods of carrying it on I believe are so well known to our people that in making this appeal it will not be necessary to go into details.

I wish that I did not have to ask for financial help and I feel sure I would not at any time be obliged to if it were possible for me to tell what this relief work has meant to some of our people. Each year has brought new evidence that it is a work needed in the church and one that was greatly neglected in former years.

To me there is nothing more important in our Christian lives than to be showing God's love and mercy in this way. I believe at the time God judges us it will not alone be how we have believed, not alone of creeds and doctrines, but how we have cared for our needy ones; how we have provided for some of our aged ones.

There can be no better gospel sermon preached than to provide the necessary things of life to a needy family who through worthy causes are unable to care for themselves. Only those who have been in need and have suffered know.

Winter with its added hardships will soon be here. That makes the need for help greater, and I am trusting that our people will respond to the appeal I am making for financial help so that the good that has been done in former years may go on in the future.

Please send donations and communications to my address.

Yours in the Master's Service,

SOMETIME, SOMEWHERE

Unanswered yet? the prayer your lips have pleaded
 In agony of heart these many years?
 Does faith begin to fail? is hope departing,
 And think you all in vain those falling tears?
 Say not, the Father hath not heard your prayer;
 You shall have your desire, sometime, somewhere.

Unanswered yet? though when you first presented
 This one petition at the Father's throne
 It seemed you could not wait the time of asking,
 So urgent was your heart to make it known.
 Though years have passed since then, do not despair;
 The Lord will answer you sometime, somewhere.

Unanswered yet? nay, do not say ungranted,
 Perhaps your part is not wholly done.
 The work began when first your prayer was uttered,
 And God will finish what He has begun.
 If you will keep the incense burning there,
 His glory you shall see, sometime, somewhere.

Unanswered yet? Faith cannot be unanswered;
 Her feet were firmly planted on the Rock;
 Amid the wildest storms she stands undaunted,
 Nor quails before the loudest thunder shock.
 She knows Omnipotence has heard her prayer,
 And cries, "It shall be done," sometime, somewhere!

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH

By A. S. Bradley

MANY GOOD PEOPLE are made to believe they are born of the spirit, in this life. To all such I ask to faithfully consider, and solve the following questions:

1. Is it possible for anything to be born without first being begotten?
2. Is it possible for anything to be born and begotten instantaneously; that is, at the same time?
3. Is it possible to be born of anything and still remain in the thing, of which you are born?

The word "birth," or "born" means, to come forth out of. See Dr. Young's Analytical Concordance, page 709. He says "of" comes from the Greek (ek) and means "out of"; so if you are born of the spirit you are not in the spirit, for it is impossible to be born of anything and still remain in it. So, if you are not in the spirit, where are you? There are but two places for us to exist in this life according to the Scriptures: in the flesh, or in the spirit. Rom. 8:8, 9. So now, if you think you have been born of the spirit, give the above a fair consideration, and I think you will be better prepared to consider a scriptural exegesis of this important subject.

The Scriptures speak of two natures of man (I am not talking about character, dispositions or conduct of man, but his real nature): the first Adam nature, and the second Adam nature—the natural nature, and spiritual.

1 Cor. 15:45-49. And God has established a law, by which man is to be begotten and born into both of these natures. Begotten of the father (fleshly seed) and born of the mother (flesh) St. John 3:6. Begotten of the father (spiritual seed) the Christian is only begotten, not born again. I quote from King James Bible, 1 Cor. 4:15, "For though you have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel." Then James 1:18: "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruits of his creatures." I now quote the Standard Edition of the revised version, 1 Pet. 1:22, 23 "Seeing ye have purified your souls in your obedience to the truth unto unfeigned love of the brethren, love one another from the heart fervently: having been begotten again not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, through the word of God, which liveth and abideth." 1 Jno. 5:1: "Jesus the Christ is begotten of God. And whosoever loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him." So we see, the Scriptures teach that the Christian is only begotten, not born.

When any one scripturally obeys the gospel, or is converted, they go into God, the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, and are conceived in Christ, in the spirit and in the church and there developed for the birth. Remember if you have been born of (ek, out of) spirit you are not in it. If you are not in the spirit, you cannot please God. Rom. 8:8-9. Baptism is the way they go into (not in) God, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Being then begotten, the birth will follow. John 3:3-8. "Except a man (not a spirit) be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. . . . Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit."

Now, the Bible speaks of but One, that has been born again and that One is Christ. He was born of woman (flesh), Gal. 4:4-5. Then he was flesh, John 3:6 (Emphatic Diaglott), "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." Then he was born again, Rom. 8:29, "The firstborn from among many brethren." Col. 1:18, "The firstborn from the dead." Now, when He was born of the flesh, He was flesh, and Peter says, "He was put to death in the flesh." 1 Pet. 3:18. And Paul says that when He was born from the dead He became the express image of His Father. If He was the express image of His Father, He was a Spirit; for God is a Spirit. Then He could do what He said everyone could do that was born of the Spirit—could come like the wind, and go like the wind—and this He could do.

Proof: Joan 20:19, 26. The disciples were in a room and the doors were shut, and the first thing they knew Jesus stood in their midst—came like the wind—and they did not know where He came from. Luke 24:30, 31. "And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them. And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight"—went like the wind, and they did not know where He went. And He says so is every one that is born of the Spirit. Philippians 3:20-21 says that when He appears, we shall be changed, and our vile body shall be "fashioned like unto his glorious body." 1 John 3:2 says, "when he shall appear, we shall be like him." If we are then like Him, we can do as He did—appear and disappear, like the wind; for He says that so is every one that is born of the Spirit.

So now, dear reader, if you think you have been born of the Spirit, ask yourself the following questions: have I been changed, from that of a natural being to that of a spirit being? Has my vile body been fashioned like unto His glorious body? Have I been changed from the earthly nature to the heavenly nature? Am I a spirit being? If you decide, you have not undergone all these changes you may know that you have not been born of the Spirit; for all this will take place in the new birth.

This was written by request, and is submitted in love to mankind.

FEED MY LAMBS, FEED MY SHEEP

By J. E. Hatch

AFTER HIS RESURRECTION, Jesus showed Himself to His disciples three times, and at the third time, as recorded in John 21:15, 16, 17, in His conversation with Peter, He asked him: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" Peter's answer was: "Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee."

Three times was this question given and three times Peter answered affirmatively. Jesus said unto Peter, "Feed my lambs . . . Feed my sheep."

Jesus was about to leave His disciples and ascend to His Father, and His greatest concern was for those who had accepted His teachings and needed spiritual food, and He stressed the importance of it by His reiteration of the question.

To-day the need of men and women to feed the flock, young and old in the faith, lambs and sheep, is as great as in Christ's day, and perhaps greater in these last days when the temptations of the adversary are many times greater than then.

The Bible Training School of the National Bible Institution is to-day teaching five young people Bible principles with a view of making shepherds who will be qualified to make new converts and feed them on the sincere milk of the word, and to feed and give counsel to the older members of the faith.

There is no greater work one can do in this life than to become a "shepherd of the flock", "a preacher of righteousness, temperance and judgment to come."

We wish the class in Bible study were larger. It is not too late to enroll for this session. The harvest is great and the laborers are few. But remember, also, that the prayers and financial aid of all are necessary to carry it along.

The school has already prepared men who are laboring in the field successfully. Others are and will be needed.

Paul the apostle was the last convert of our Lord Jesus, and a great worker, and he says, Acts 20:27: "For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." He had fought a good fight during his ministry and endured much suffering, but he expected a crown of righteousness at our Savior's appearing and kingdom, which is a good example to follow.

My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest.—
Ex. 33:14.

"S"

By Lottie E. Young

THE LETTER "S" stands first in many special words in the Bible. Some have quite a disagreeable meaning, such as Sin, Strife, Suffer, Satan and Sickness, but there are many others which are precious to the Christian—Savior, Scriptures, Salvation, Saints, Sabbath.

Instead of the customary Santa Claus program and the giving of presents at Christmas time to the Sunday School, here we have a service called "White Gifts to the King," when food, clothing and money are donated for the poor; thus teaching the children the truth of the words "It is more blessed to give than to receive." At the close of these exercises there are three candles lighted, when those who wish, pledge first their Substance, then their Service, and lastly their Selves to follow in the footsteps of the Master in the coming year.

Another important "S" is found in the last verse of the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians which reads, "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord." Can we echo David's glad cry, "I was glad when they said, Let us go up to the house of the Lord"? Are we unwavering in our duties to God, or do the pleasures of the world sometimes take first place in our lives? Do the church services, prayer meetings, or Berean class, have our presence if nothing else is on hand we would rather do?

May our feet ever be planted on the Rock, Christ Jesus, and not on the shifting sand of man's favor, for the Bible tells us, "For the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." Life is passing swiftly for all. Soon the Great Judge will come. Shall we be among the happy ones who shall have part in the first resurrection, or, better yet, be "caught up to meet the Lord in the air", or with those who suffer the second death? It is in our power now to choose where the future shall be spent.

"UNTIL THE DAY BREAK"

I walked along a weary way;
 All day it rougher grew;
 The clouds hung low, the raindrops fell,
 The winds in fierceness blew;
 And when night's somber curtain dropped
 And blacker was the storm,
 I sank beside the thorny road,
 And waited for the morn.
 I prayed that God would shed His light,
 His hand would guard my way,
 And keep me safely through the night,
 And bless the coming day.

I rested in the arms of faith,
 Until with music rang
 The woods aglow with morning's light
 While birds of promise sang.
 I saw the hard and stony way
 My feet had pressed so long
 Was all behind, before me lay
 The land of light and song;
 For God is love, and God is wise,
 He leads in vales of sorrow,
 Until shall come the glad surprise—
 The golden, bright to-morrow.

HOW TO LIVE IN PEACE

THE CHINESE have a proverb which says, "If you talk with a soft voice, you do not need a thick stick." If any man desires to live peaceable, this proverb shows the way. The fighting man seldom lacks antagonists. If we carry the big stick, it is sure to be flourished, and it means that other big sticks will appear, with no end of a row in prospect. The man who persists in carrying a gun is sure to pull it sooner or later.

But the soft word has no recoil. It never seems to challenge the other fellow to a fight; in fact, it makes him rather ashamed of his fiery speech and combative attitude. Miles Standish was willing to fight, and he had plenty of chances; William Penn would not fight, and the Indians who fought Standish so fiercely had no quarrel at all with Penn. War begets war; peace produces peace.

If you want to make friends with a cross dog, don't stir him up with a stick!—Selected.

Oh! to be occupied with Christ; to have Him for our object; and His resurrection power for our lives.

This we shall have; and have increasingly as we get to know Christ.

Again. What was it that led the heathen world into all its darkness, corruption, and sin? Just this: "they did not like to retain God in their knowledge. Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into the likeness of corruptible man" (Rom. 1:22, 28).

Like people to-day who, ignorant of God as He has revealed Himself in His Word, make their god, some with their own hands, or out of their own heads, vainly imagining He is what they think He is, and worshipping, like the heathen, "the unknown God," such an one as themselves.

What was it that led Israel astray and brought upon them all their sorrows and sufferings? Isaiah opens with the Divine indictment, which gathers up in the briefest form the one great cause which lay at the root of all:

"The ox knoweth his owner,
 And the ass his master's crib;
 But Israel doth NOT KNOW,
 My People doth not consider."

See how the Lord Jesus confirms this in Luke 19:42-44, as He weeps over Jerusalem. All is summed up in the opening and closing words:

"IF THOU HADST KNOWN!"

even thou, at least in this thy day, the things that belong unto thy peace."

And then, turning to the reason for that judgment, He adds: "Because thou KNEWEST NOT the day of thy visitation."

And what is to be the acme of Israel's glory in the day of her restoration?

Ah! then it shall come to pass that "they shall no more teach every man his neighbour saying, Know the LORD: for they shall all KNOW ME, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the LORD" (Jer. 31:34).

And what shall be Creation's glory; and the peace and joy of the whole earth? This sums up all:

"The earth shall be full of the KNOWLEDGE OF GOD,

As the waters cover the sea" (Isa 11:9).

And what is the secret of our being able to glory only in the Lord, and to enjoy His blessing in this the day of our visitation? It is given in Jer. 9:23, 24:

"Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom,
 Neither let the mighty man glory in his might,
 Let not the rich man glory in his riches:
 But let him that glorieth, glory in this,
 THAT HE UNDERSTANDETH AND KNOW-
 ETH ME."

We are thus brought round, and brought back to the one great duty, which should henceforth absorb our hearts and minds, and fill our days and years; viz., to be instant in our study of the Word of God, which is given to us with the one great, express, commanding purpose—the revelation of Himself, in order that we may

GET TO KNOW HIM.

"GIVE DILIGENCE TO MAKE YOUR CALLING AND ELECTION SURE: FOR IF YE DO THESE THINGS, YE SHALL NEVER FALL."—2 Pet. 1:10.

IT IS A BIG DAY in the metropolis, in the little hamlet, in the rural districts everywhere. A day filled with possibilities and uncertainties, with wild enthusiasm and suspense. In the city the streets are filled with swarming masses of humanity, whistles are blowing, bells are ringing and places of business have departed from their usual routine for a day. One of the greatest nations in the world has its interest centered upon a single event. The United States of America is electing its next president.

Election to this office is one of the greatest honors that a man to-day may receive at the hands of his fellowmen. In a few months our president will be inducted into power with all the splendor and impressive ceremony that a rich and mighty nation can show the one whom they delight to honor, and they will place upon him the operation of the complicated machinery of government.

We cannot consider these things without thinking of another election of a different nature which is taking place to-day. Not only will to-day pass, but many days, yes, years of doubts, fears and disappointing "returns" will pass before the final victory shall be won. It is the election of grace whereunto the Christian is called, not by the acclamation of men, but according to the foreknowledge of God.

It is a wonderful thing to be the president of a great country—a position to which very few can hope to aspire. But the position to which the Christ is calling to-day is greater than this, and it is open to the least and lowest of us all. In this election Jehovah is the Judge. While man, in making his choice, looks on the outward appearance, "God looketh on the heart" for those qualifications which will fit men for joint-heirship with His Son, Jesus Christ, when He shall come in His glory.

The honor and beauty which will attend that inauguration into office will surpass anything that human governments have ever staged. Those who have been victorious in the election of grace will share honors with Christ Himself, for they shall be like Him.

But there are requirements for this office which must be met. This is the day when we are preparing and training in order that when the day of decision arrives we may be qualified in the eyes of our Judge for the highest calling that has ever come to mortal man. The Christian's campaign is not one against personal opponents, but "against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Paul describes the armor which we must don in order to cope with these enemies: "Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, longsuffering; forbearing one another, if any man have a quarrel against any: even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye. And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness."

Bereans, let us give diligence as never before to make our calling and election sure.

The following report from a young member of our growing Berean class at Dixon, Illinois, shows that the Juniors are working toward the above-mentioned goal:

The Junior class of the Church of God at Dixon, Illinois has recently been studying from the Junior Berean quarterlies.

Among the interesting lessons was that of the life of David, who fully trusted in God in all his undertakings. Although David made mistakes he humbly repented to God. In all of David's work he prospered because of his obedience to God.

David has set before us a good example in these virtues and if we obey the word of God and trust Him in every way we will not only bear fruit in His service in this life, but gain an entrance into the kingdom when it is established again upon the earth.—Frances Rossiter.

The above from one of the class members shows something of some of the results being attained in Junior Berean work at Dixon. Following we give a brief report of the work in the words of an older member of the Dixon Church:

In July 1928 a Junior Berean class was organized in the Dixon church with an average attendance of 15.

Meetings are held at the church at 7:30 each Wednesday evening with one of the members as leader and one of the Senior class as teacher.

A Junior choir is showing great results under a competent leader.

PAUL'S ARREST IN JERUSALEM

PAUL SAID a tearful good-by to his friends at Miletus. Then he started to Jerusalem. The first part of the journey was aboard three boats; the first taking them to Coos, Rhodes and Patara; the second, continuing south to Cyprus to Tyre in Phoenicia. Here Paul spent seven days. We read that the disciples in Tyre brought their wives and children to bid Paul farewell. The third boat trip was down the coast to Ptolemais. The next day after landing they went on to Caesarea, and spent seven days with Philip, the evangelist.

While he was in Tyre, the Spirit had warned Paul of danger in Jerusalem; and now in Caesarea a prophet of Judea, named Agabus, brought him another warning. He bound his hands and feet with Paul's girdle, thus showing that the Jews would likewise bind Paul and deliver him to the Gentiles.

However, Paul refused the pleadings of his friends, saying, "What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." To this his friends replied, "The will of the Lord be done." Accordingly, they went up to Jerusalem, where they were gladly received by the brethren.

The next day Paul and his friends met with James and the elders. Paul told them of his many Gentile converts; whereupon up came the same old question of the law of Moses which the Council had discussed several years before. To satisfy the ideas of the Jews Paul went into the temple for seven days, to observe certain of the Jewish customs.

The seven days were about ended when the same old Jewish enemies from Asia Minor came up to Jerusalem; and seeing Paul and the four he had taken with him in the temple, they immediately stirred up a riot against him. They cried that Paul was teaching everywhere against the law, and that even now he had taken Gentiles into that part of the temple where Gentiles were forbidden to enter. They said this just because they had seen him on the street with a Gentile. Poor Paul! He had already suffered much, and now he was to suffer more!

The mob drew him out of the temple, and closed the doors. Then they beat him until the chief captain and soldiers came to find out what the uproar was about. Paul was then bound with two chains, just as Agabus had prophesied. The chief captain asked who Paul was and what he had done. No one seemed to know, for one cried one thing, and another something else. To assure Paul's safety until the captain found out who he was, the soldiers carried Paul into the castle. The enemies followed, crying, "Away with him!" How they must have hated Paul! And, for what? Because he preached that Jesus was the Christ, and when they refused to believe him, he had carried the message to the Gentiles.

However, the noisy crowd became silent when the captain permitted Paul to speak to the people from the stairs. He addressed them in their own Hebrew tongue, telling them of his birthplace, his early life, how he had persecuted the Christians, too, until his wonderful conversion and faith in Christ Jesus. Always speaking for his Savior in face of every danger! When Paul said God had sent him to the Gentiles, the angry Jews again made an uproar, casting off their clothes, and throwing dust into the air, and shouting, "Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live." Why, you children would not think of acting that way.

The chief captain ordered Paul to be scourged in order to make him confess his identity. However, upon Paul's statement that he was a Roman and freeborn, the order was withdrawn, and Paul was unbound. You see, the captain felt just as the magistrates in Philippi had—that the rulers might punish him for binding and hurting a Roman citizen without trial.

Thus, Paul's life was spared a little longer. Do you think Paul should have gone to Jerusalem?

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Would we have fought back when the dangerous mob attacked us?

SOMETHING TO DO

Read all of Acts 21 and 22. Also Acts 23:12 to end.

MEMORY VERSE

44. Proverbs 17:17.

THE MISER AND HIS GOLD

Once upon a time there was a miser who used to hide his gold at the foot of a tree in his garden. Everyday he would go and dig it up and gloat over his gains.

One day a robber looked over the stone fence and saw the miser put away the gold. That night he climbed over the fence and dug up the gold and decamped with it. Next day when the miser came to gloat over his treasure he found nothing but the empty hole. He tore his hair and raised such an outcry that all the neighbors came, and he told them that all his gold had mysteriously vanished.

"Did you ever take any of it out?" asked a wise old man.

"Nay," said he, "I only came to look at it."

"Then still come and look at the hole," said the neighbor, "for it will do you just as much good as though the gold were there."

Wealth unused might as well not exist.

THE PRAYERS OF PAUL

Acts 20:36-38; Rom. 1:8-10; Eph. 1:15-23; 3:14-21; 1 Thess. 1:2-5.

Devotional Reading: Psa. 34:1-8

GOLDEN TEXT

Rejoice evermore.
Pray without ceasing.
In every thing give thanks.—1 Thess. 5:16-18.

STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

The Prayers of Paul. The recorded prayers of the apostle furnish some of the most touching portions of Scripture. In Romans 8:26 Paul includes himself when he says, "We know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings that cannot be uttered." Thus we are to regard Paul's prayers as having been prompted, even directed by the Spirit. If so prompted, then those prayers are proper indeed.

Following vv. 15, 16 of our lesson, Eph. 1 his prayer for the Ephesian brethren was, "That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, . . .". Here his prayer was that they would be given the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of God. Necessarily this prayer would include conduct upon their part that would entitle them to be the recipients of such blessing.

A recorded prayer for the Colossian brethren was very similar in purport. It reads, Col. 1:9, "Do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding; that ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God . . .". Here, too, his prayer was that the brethren should be filled with knowledge, with spiritual understanding, and that they should walk Godly at all times. Note how in each instance these results were to be obtained by the indwelling of God.

With such indwelling of God's Spirit and with such knowledge of God Paul appeared to realize that his daily problems and needs were entirely provided for by the Father's oversight. Peaceful attitude toward the Father!

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Always rejoice: incessantly pray: in everything give thanks: for this (is) God's will in Christ Jesus respecting you."—1 Thess. 5:16-18, Roth.

"Always rejoice." Even in hours of despair and despondency, if we will just count our blessings we will have cause to give thanks to God and glorify His name rather than seek His pity and mercy. A prayerful frame of mind at all times will be your strength against the ever present weakness and sinfulness of our own selves.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Prayer, Practical in Daily Life. Work was scarce, money tight and hundreds were walking the streets looking for employment. Will Babcock, who had a wife and baby depending upon him, determined to get work and applied at a large factory. The employment manager turned him away as he was doing dozens of others, but the next morning one of the first in line before his desk was Will. Day after day this continued till a full week had passed. On the eighth day the manager called Will out of the line into a private office and said, "I have told you each day for a week that we had no jobs, and still you are the first one here every morning. Why do you come back?" And in a straightforward manner he got this reply: "Because I have a wife and child to support and must have work." "What will you do?" asked the manager. "Anything you put me at," was the answer. He was employed and became one of the best workers that institution ever had.

God watches those who ask Him for things. If they want it badly they will continue to ask, and will prepare themselves for receiving it.

If you actually prove to God that you want something, and He sees it is for your good, you'll get it. Is that practical?—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Paul's Prayer.

"For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, . . . that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God."—Eph. 3:14-19.

Prayer that the faith and love of Christ should gain a foothold and have their influence in the lives of people was frequent with Paul. Over and over the gist of the above prayer is repeated in his writings. Always he gives thanks for every evidence that faith and love have found their way into the inner life and begun their work. He rejoices from the bottom of his heart whenever the work of Christ is thus advanced, for he knew the secret of man's happiness and well-being.

We, too, should rejoice in every act and thought of faith and love. It is only when this rejoicing takes place that we are in close touch with the kingdom and its purpose.

—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Value of Prayer.

Prayer is the greatest blessing given to the people of to-day, and especially to the Christian. It is our means of communicating with God through Jesus, His Son. Through prayer we may be guided in all walks of life; and without earnest prayer to the Father we can accomplish nothing. Paul realized the value of prayer. In our lesson to-day we have recorded three prayers given to us by Paul.

In the lesson, "Paul's Last Journey to Jerusalem", do you recall how Paul called together the elders at Ephesus? When he was ready to depart, he commended them to the Father's care, and then what happened? They knelt down and offered a fervent prayer to the Father for care and guidance.

He not only prayed with his friends, but always remembered their welfare in his prayers, as found in the second part of the lesson, "making mention of you in my prayers."

Paul was very anxious that the churches everywhere should be benefited by their love of Christ, and he prayed earnestly that they might continue in the faith. The thought uppermost in his mind was that his followers might know the value of the love of Christ, and how the responsibility rested upon him as their leader. Therefore he prayed often for guidance.

Let us use our great privilege of prayer frequently, earnestly, being ever guided by this means of communicating our desires, our afflictions and our thanksgiving to God.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Paul Offers Prayer for His Friends.
Aim: To learn God's helpfulness as we pray for each other.

Paul believed heartily in prayer and in kneeling when we pray. Christ was the Teacher for the prayer circle. He prayed at His baptism, at meal time, in the early morning, while on the cross, in Gethsemane, when Satan sought to beguile Him,—everywhere we find Him in prayer. His life was one constant scene of prayer. And then we hear people say, "The old fashion of morning prayer and asking the blessing at the table has about passed out of the minds of people." O, pity a professed Christian who has so far forgotten his blessed Lord that he cannot at least once a day ask God's protection! To such no thrill of Spirit-filled joy will come, no hope of answered prayer.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Thanksgiving time is here. How thankful are you? Read the item on Giving Thanks on page 1.

Do you want to awaken interest with a special series of meetings or a week-end appointment? Find the article entitled "Field Work" and read it carefully.

The Bible Training class is going nicely. The young people are showing a real desire not only to learn, but to practice. Last week while Bro. Siple was called away two days for a funeral Bro. Marsh was happily received as instructor.

Word from different ones in Los Angeles this past week tells of an exceptionally pleasant and spiritual time enjoyed by the brethren of that city in an all day meeting on November 5. We rejoice with them in this, and pray that God may continue to bless them in every effort put forth in the cause of righteousness.

Word from the "Sunny South," which may or may not be sunny, says that the meetings near Hammond, Louisiana, are progressing nicely. Bro. Austin, the General Conference Field Man, is conducting this work as the first meeting in the new program of field work. Don't forget to write the office if you feel it would be advisable to have a meeting, long or short, in your locality.

Word comes from Corvallis, Oregon, that Bro. A. N. Harlan of 444 So. 11th St. is gradually going blind. The eye specialist gives him no encouragement whatever, but he stands the shock with the same fortitude that has been one of his characteristics through life—to make the best of everything. He asks for the prayers of the brotherhood and a word of encouragement would be thankfully received.

NEW YORK

The Annual All-Day Meeting, of The Blessed Hope Church of God, Niagara Falls, New York, conducted by Bro. G. E. Marsh, was held Sunday, Oct. 28. It was a day full of spiritual uplift and a day long to be remembered.

The services opened with Sunday School at 10 o'clock. Three very interesting sermons followed: at 11 a. m. topic, "The Gospel of the Kingdom of God"; 3 p. m. topic, "The Meeting in the Air"; 7:30 p. m. topic, "Finally Brethren Farewell" from 2 Cor. 13:11.

This service marked the closing of seven years of very active and successful services. The church was filled to overflowing. Standing room only remained, which showed the high esteem the people here held for Bro. and Sr. Marsh. Friends and members from Fonthill, Lancaster and neighboring communities were present. Special music by local members and Fonthill choir added to the success of the day.

The members of the church greatly regret the loss of so faithful a pastor. We find in losing Bro. Marsh and family that we are losing one of the greatest workers and one of the strongest Christian brethren we have ever known. His service to us has been complete and full of brotherly love and forethought for each and every individual who became acquainted with him. He was the means of great growth in numbers and in spirit both in the church and the Berean Society. We wish for Bro. Marsh and family health, happiness and success in their new field of labor. (Sec.) Elsie Moore.

Friends and members of The Blessed Hope Church of God, Niagara Falls, N. Y., gave a social and farewell party for Bro. Marsh and family at the home of Sr. Moreland, South Ave., Friday evening Oct. 26. All wished them success and happiness in their new circle. Elsie Moore, Sec.

BLAIR, NEBR.

To-day (Nov. 5th) in the minister's meeting held in the council room at the Citizens Bank it was decided that we would cooperate with the American Legion in the Armistice program Sunday, Nov. 11th. Most of the ministers expressed their regret in having to give up their morning service, but thought it best to make that sacrifice in order to commemorate this great day.

It was decided at this meeting that a union Thanksgiving day service would be held in the Church of God. This meeting will be on Wednesday evening at 7:30, Nov. 28. The Episcopal Rector will deliver the Thanksgiving sermon, special music by the united choirs of the town churches.

We are glad to have this service in our Church and pray that it will be to the glory of God. E. E. Giesler, pastor.

TO THE ILLINOIS BROTHERN

Bro. G. Eldred Marsh, who for the past several years has been serving the churches at Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Fonthill, Ont., is now located at Dixon, Ill., where he is taking up work for the Illinois State Conference, and will fill largely the same appointments that the writer has been taking care of.

Bro. Marsh is not a stranger to our Illinois brotherhood, having labored through the state in years gone by, and having been a speaker and teacher in our recent Bible Schools and conferences. We are therefore glad to commend him to the brotherhood at large.

In this connection let us urge the whole-hearted backing of the work as we enter this larger plan of service. If you have not made your pledge yet, please communicate at once with the Treasurer, Miss Anna Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill., and if it is possible to make a remittance at this time it will be deeply appreciated.

Let us all boost the work in every possible way to the honor of the Father, whose children we are. F. E. Siple, President.

We are glad to report that Bro. Fred Nokes, son of Bro. and Sr. H. L. Nokes, West State Street, Rockford, Ill., who recently submitted to an operation for appendicitis has made very satisfactory recovery. He has been liberated from the hospital and is recuperating at the home of his parents.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay who has been ill for so many weeks and who is still being cared for at the Dixon hospital has made some apparent gains this past week. Remember him at the Throne of Grace.

COMMUNICATION

YES I LOVE IT

That first page of The Restitution! Isn't it splendid folks? Just trimmed enough to look neat and so attractive to every one. But now we must work all the more for new subscribers for it costs a big lot to have that extra adorning on its front page. If it could only look into the mirror and see how much better looking it was, it might make it proud. But I think anything we are doing to enlarge the interest of our dear paper is pleasing to our heavenly Father, so just send an extra dollar along to help trim it every week.

Then the interests "Among the Churches" last week! How splendid! Bro. Lyon speeding the Cleveland Church, how encouraging! How splendid! I just cried for joy while reading this week's paper. God be praised! Then the Dixon church! O, I am glad they are to have our able workers, Bro. and Sr. Marsh, with them. How they ought to grow in numbers, grace, strength, love! Praise His holy name! And then I find another delightful item, dear Bro. and Sr. Patrick at Ontario church. I am very glad they are to have so able a man to instruct them at Niagara Falls and Fonthill. You will like him brethren, for he preaches sound doctrine, his influence is good. And then here is dear Sr. Wyman with her message of goodwill. O how good it seems after the long time of doubting in regard to the N. B. I. work, to see the forward movement of the church in a united effort to push the work along! God be praised!

I was visiting a couple of sisters in Christ Jesus this week and Sr. Cameron says, "O, I like the paper so much, for when it comes it is wrapped so well, it comes out so clean, and then when I open it I can almost see to read without my glasses (she is almost 83 years old)." It is such a good paper, why do we not all boost it more? O for young feet and strength to work! How we would fill the subscription list! If only one for each subscriber, how it would help. Let us all try for one at least.

Bro. E. E. Giesler has such a good report, boosting every department along. Rally day all around. What a splendid month this has been in the Lord's fields! Keep the good work going, brethren, we who are almost entirely laid aside for a while at least but can stay by the stuff and pray and watch anyway, and send in our little offerings each month. I know it all helps. Don't let us stop sending our offerings. If we knew how much each $5 helped, we would scrimp and send another $5.

Well, God be praised we will soon be over on the other side, if faithful, and we must be all of that. I am praying for dear Sr. Wince, Sr. Randall, Bro. and Sr. Hewett, and others who have asked our prayers, I have just heard by letter that Sr. Hewett is in bed again and Bro. Hewett has had another stroke. May God give help to all and save us in His soon coming kingdom.

Yours, M. A. Woodward.

MISSOURI

On Oct 4th, Bro. J. W. Williams closed a very interesting ten day meeting at Bethel School House which is several miles from Clinton, Mo. This was the fourth meeting

Bro. Williams has held at this place and the interest and attendance has always been good. Ezek. 33-32 applies very aptly to this people as it does to many other congregations. "And, lo, thou art unto them as a very lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument: for they hear thy words, but they do them not."

We have this hope, we read in God's word that His word shall not return until Him void, and we believe that after many days fruit shall be gathered from the seed that has been sown at this place. The first sermon was taken from Psalm 90 and the text was verse 12. "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." This thought was carried on through all the sermons. All that know Bro. Williams know his quiet, earnest, sincere manner in teaching God's word and it causes us to examine ourselves by Heb. 2:1. "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip."

In these busy rushing days when everything is being done at high speed, it is very easy to let some of the more needful things slip. O may we be given grace to wait patiently the coming of our Lord and put aside all the little differences and contentions that are causing so much division among the churches. Let us strive to keep the unity of the spirit until we all come to a unity of the faith.

Bro. and Sr. Logan's home was like a Conference Hall during the meeting. They have a large, old fashioned farm house where there was room for all and we had beds everywhere. One brother and family from Climax Springs, another from Windsor, and a nephew and family from Kansas City were with us part of the meeting and we all felt this was the best meeting spiritually we had ever had and we wish to express our thanks to the Iowa Conference Board for lending us Bro. Williams. He is truly a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. While in Kansas City I visited the Latter Day Saints Temple at Independence, Mo. It is truly a marvelous structure and is being built without the sound of a hammer, all of cement and steel, covers a whole block and will cost $6,000,000.

If we Church of God people could only bind ourselves together and work toward a common cause as do some of the sects great things could be accomplished. IDA VOGEL.

BIOGRAPHY OF CHARLES C. KANARR

Charles Calvin Kanarr, son of Henry and Mary Elizabeth Kanarr, was born near Albany, New York, February 28th, 1841.

When about five years of age, he left New York with his parents for Thornton, Illinois, by way of canal and lake. About two years later his mother died and was buried at Thornton, leaving four children, two boys and two girls, one girl being married.

After her death they moved to Ross Township, Lake County, Indiana. After remaining here but a short time, his father saw that he could not support the children, so he found homes for them. Charles C., the oldest, went to live with Jesse E. Pierce; Charles C. stayed with Jesse Pierce for eight years; thence Pierce losing his wife he was compelled to find another home. He then went to Crown Point, Indiana, and drove stage for two years for Berkley Davis. Davis moved on a farm north of Lowell, Indiana, taking Mr. Kanarr with him, keeping him for two years. He left there and lived with Amasa Edgerton for one year, then worked on a farm for Seymour Stillson for one year.

On May 6th., 1861 he was married to Elizabeth Marie Stillson. To this union were born five children; Mary Ann, Oct. 14th., 1862; Asher C., Jan. 3rd., 1865; Seymour C., April 15th., 1867; Edward C. May 24th., 1876; Cora L., June 26th., 1878.

They lived on a farm near Lowell, Indiana for six years. In 1868 they moved to LaPorte County, near LaPorte, living there for five years. In 1873 they purchased a timber farm five miles north of Plymouth, Indiana, lived on it and cleared it up until it was considered one of the best farms in that part of the country, and during this time he served five years as Justice of the Peace of North Township. In 1913, being unable to care for the farm property, they bought a home in Plymouth.

In August, 1862, Mr. Kanarr volunteered in the infantry of the Civil War, was accepted in Company I 73rd Regiment, Indiana Volunteers. A short time after enlistment he lost his left arm by an accidental gun shot, while on guard duty at Lexington, Kentucky. Later he was taken prisoner and kept in prison five weeks and three days. Then came home on a thirty day furlough. After the furlough, reported to headquarters, was then sent back home, and in March, 1863, received his discharge.

After the death of his wife on March 20, of this year, he went to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Marshall Logan of Plymouth, where he has been a lonely but patient sufferer, especially for the past six weeks. He professed Christianity in the early 70's. He passed away peacefully Saturday, October 27, leaving to mourn his departure five children, Mrs. Marshall Logan, of Plymouth, Asher C. of Niles, Mich., Seymour C. of Lowell, Ind.; Charles Edward, of Plymouth, and Mrs. Cora L. Taylor of Crown Point, Ind.; sixteen grand children, twenty great grand children and one great, great grand child.

OBITUARY

Alfred Seth Bradley was born in Hopkins County, Kentucky, Feb. 12, 1850. When quite young he moved with his parents to Illinois, where he lived but a few years. From Illinois he moved to Arkansas where he grew to manhood.

He married Miss Fannie Sparkman of Independence County, Arkansas, July 24, 1874. He died at his home in Mullin October 22, 1928 after an illness beginning the first of July. He was 78 years, 8 months and 10 days old.

One of his nine children survive him, Mrs. Ava Moreland of San Antonio, Texas, who was with him at the time of his death.

Those left to mourn his death are his wife, Mrs. Fannie Bradley; his daughter, Mrs. Moreland of San Antonio; his daughter-in-law and her four children of Tucson, Arizona; several grandchildren in Montana and a grandson in San Antonio.

Funeral services were conducted by J. A. Dyches of Goldthwaite and T. A. Drinkard of Clyde, Texas. He was buried in the Mullin cemetery at two p. m., October 24.

Even though his death was not unexpected his many friends feel his loss greatly. His place as a worker in the Master's service cannot be filled readily. His kindly admonition is missed. He ever stood for what he believed to be truth and righteousness, and worked persistently and untiringly to spread the news of the gospel of Christ, and died in the hope of the better resurrection.

JOHN A. CRYSLER

John Crysler was born in Holdiman County, Ontario, Canada, coming to Fonthill over 60 years ago. Here he lived until his death, Oct. 19th, 1928.

He excelled in his life work as a market gardener. In his young manhood he was married to Margaret Leggett. Three children, two sons and a daughter were born to this union. His son Austin preceded him in death.

Some years after his wife's death he was married to Alice Jane Perrin of Niagara Falls, who survives him.

He was baptized by R. V. Lyon many years ago, and he and Mrs. Crysler have been faithful members of the Church of God at Fonthill.

It was his wish that his old pastor, Bro. Austin, should preach his funeral sermon and all were glad that Bro. Austin could come and assist Bro. Marsh at the church service.

He was laid to sleep in the beautiful hill cemetery, to await his Master's call to life. Then no more suffering or sadness shall cloud the perfect day.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

FIELD WORK

By F. E. Siple

WE FEEL that one of the most important efforts yet put forth by the General Conference is the one which is now being undertaken in sending out a Field Man.

Paul wisely queries in Rom. 10:14, 15, "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent?" Answer these questions in your own heart, and behold what a responsibility it places on each one of us! And yet, not so much a responsibility as an opportunity.

When you and I unite our efforts and send forth a man to preach the gospel, whatever good he is able to accomplish goes to your credit and mine as much as to his. If we have each put together what dollars we could and have sent Bro. Austin to proclaim God's plan of salvation and new persons have been brought to embrace the truth, God will render to Bro. Austin no more of credit than to you and to me. Thus we stand equally bearing the responsibility of seeing that the message is carried, and equally sharing the opportunity of reaping its rewards. It is a beautiful and inspiring thought that Paul presents.

It is a commendable work to care for our fathers and mothers and aged ones of the household of faith who are left alone in life. Therefore we feel that the maintaining of Golden Rule Home is a work in God's service very noble and right. It is also commendable to do everything possible to keep the brothers and sisters in touch with each other and carry to them a message of hope and cheer each week as The Restitution Herald endeavors to do, and so we are anxious to see this paper advanced to the place where it will do the most possible good. Conducting a Bible Training School in which our young men and young women can have instruction and influence that will equip them for life work in our churches and Sunday Schools is also one of the noblest of efforts, and is worthy of the full backing and support of every child of God throughout the land. But, high and noble though these other parts of the General Conference program are, they cannot eclipse the wonderful opportunity presented in the newest department,—Field Work.

If you will pardon a little stretch of imagination on the part of the writer we would like to say that one of the air castles in our own personal bonnet is a picture of a broadcasting station so arranged that the gospel which we hold dear could be sent broadcast over the land through song and sermon to bring hope and cheer to hungering hearts. This noon while making a railroad connection in a certain town we ate at a restaurant where a radio was tuned in on a beautiful religious program. Traveling men, business men ate there, and shop girls, but almost all listened with attention and interest to the hymns, solos, duets and brief remarks. If the full, pure gospel truth were taught in each one of those songs and in each one of those remarks who can compute the good that might be accomplished?

Perhaps the above paragraph is a long glance into the future, but the present Field Work movement is a step in the right direction and who dares predict where the forward march will stop?

Shall we all boost in every possible way? Our minister is only human and he can only do his best. But if you and I are behind him strongly, if we let him know in every way that his work is our work, if we daily ask God's blessing and guidance for the work, what mortal man can foretell how great the results may grow to be?

It has been our observation that when the gospel is presented to the general public in a way so that they are not prejudiced at the start, they really enjoy hearing it. Many persons have sat in a funeral audience listening with rapt attention to the beautiful hope of resurrection who never had been privileged to listen to such a message before. Think of the thousands of towns in this country of ours where our ministers have never labored! If the gospel can be taken to new fields in a way that will not arouse prejudice, or proclaimed in old fields with a spirit of love that will break down prejudice, there are many persons who can be added to the list of believers.

The truth is more reasonable than error. Thousands of honest hearts are longing for it. Shall we each do our part and share in the joys of true service?

THE VESTRIS DISASTER

THE HEARTS of millions were saddened last week as they read of the distressing scenes in connection with the sinking of a large ocean vessel with which more than one hundred people went to their deaths. The sympathy of us all was called forth for the bereft families.

The whole situation simply emphasizes a truth which we must face squarely, the fact of life's uncertainty. Consider the picture for a moment: several hundred men, women and children, with the comforts of modern travel, sailing over the ocean in a way commonly accepted as safe. Suddenly disaster confronts them and many have plunged to their death. If they could have known a few days before that the curtain of life was ready to drop would there have been any difference in their last days of conduct?

It matters not whether you are sailing the seas, riding the train, driving on modern roads or walking city streets, the same fact of uncertainty faces us all. This is not a matter to make one blue or pessimistic. Rather, perhaps, there should be the opposite thought. But such a truth should make us considerate so that each day would be lived in such a way and manner that we would not be ashamed if necessity should cause it to be recorded as our last day.

How about to-day? Have you used its hours and blessings so that there would be no need of regret?—F. E. S.

WINTER

A GLANCE out the window shows the trees standing bleak and bare. The leaves have fallen to the ground, and the sap has ceased to flow. A tree stripped of its foliage is not lovely.

Overhead the sky is dark and hazy. Scudding clouds of gray disperse occasional flakes of wet snow which melts as it hits the ground leaving a damp, slippery, uninviting condition.

The garden has yielded its last vegetable for the season, and seems to lie like a graveyard beside the house. Even its weeds have dropped their last seeds to the ground.

Southward the ducks and robins have flown, seeking different surroundings. Even their sounds of life are gone.

It is winter!

But I look at our fellow workmen, and at the faces on the street and I see no trace of despair. The fact that summer has gone and that the bleakness of winter is upon us has not caused us in discouragement to give up and quit.

Why?

Ah, yes, the reason is but too plain. The boy does not throw away his tennis racket, but with care puts it away for the next season which he knows will come. We do not sell the garden plot, for another crop will be planted soon. We smile when we face the winter, not because we love the winter or would want it to last always, but because we know that a soon coming spring will introduce another summer.

Can we learn to show the same trust and confidence as we face the facts of life itself? Winter will come. Death spreads his hand of gloom. The leaves fall and the birds and joys of life have flown. But the winter is only an evidence of spring's approach!

Weep not in discouragement then. Smile with a trust in God. The summer will soon be here with all of its life and cheer, the summer of Christ's presence and kingdom.

Are you courageously awaiting the spring?—F. E. S.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS

THE STATISTICS compiled by Bro. Stilson and which appear under this same heading in another page of this issue are worthy of some very thoughtful meditation. The attitude and actions of the American people toward religion in these ten years past are a pretty accurate barometer of what we may anticipate in the years ahead.

The fact that there was a decrease of churches while the books showed a larger enrollment of membership indicates the modern trend toward consolidation.

But one of the outstanding facts in the above figures is the tremendous decrease in Sunday School attendance. The five states named are all Eastern states except Indiana. Indiana is the only one of the group that showed an increase in Sunday School attendance, and the decrease in the other states was so great that it more than offset any good that Indiana was doing. The Eastern states are older, and their population is more thickly gathered in towns and cities. The one mid-western state is younger, with a scattered rural population. Do we find then an indication that as the population increases and the states grow older there is a tendency to drop the simple religious life of the Sunday School and find one's interests engulfed in the whirlpool of movies and ultra modern entertainment?

What is the tendency of the boys and girls in your community? Remember they are the ones to carry the load in a few years hence. Will they be the type that will carry it religiously, or otherwise?

How about the boys and girls in your own home and family?

RELIGIOUS CENSUS

FOR MORE than a year the office has been receiving government reports containing various statistical information regarding the 1926 religious census.

Summary reports have now been received for the states of Indiana, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts.

The following is gleaned from these five reports which compares the 1926 census with the 1916 census.

	1926	1916	Increase	Decrease
No. Churches	13,146	13,302		156
No. Members	4,561,909	3,766,534	795,365
No. Sunday Schools	10,778	11,535		757
S. S. Scholars	1,485,173	1,560,338		75,165

The report of 1916 included statistics for 200 denominations, 19 of which are not shown at this census. Some have joined other denominations and others are out of existence. There are 32 denominations shown at this census which were not reported in 1916. Some of these are new and others are created by divisions of already existing denominations. The total number of churches in the United States in 1916 was 226,718 and in 1926, 231,983, a decrease of 5,265.

In 1926 there were in all states a total church membership of 41,926,854 and in 1926, 54,624,976, an increase in membership of 12,698,122. Of this increase 7,626,283 are Catholic and Jewish which leaves a net Protestant increase of 5,070,839.

GIVING THANKS!

Render unto God the things that are God's

THE CITIZEN OWES unto his country loyalty and patriotism. Not only is he supposed to stand in defence of his country in times of national distress, but it is just as much his duty to be a true, upright citizen, maintaining peace and harmony with his fellow man in normal times. These things properly belong to his nation, and he is only rendering a proper service to that country in conforming thereto.

Our God stands in a different and stronger relationship to us. His we are, and all that we have is His. God gives us life, what health and strength we may possess, sends the sun and rain, and our crops and salaries He allows us. How small, then, our appreciation of His blessings unless we willingly, gladly use a certain portion of what we have received in His service.

This is Thanksgiving month. God has been kind to most of us this past year. Shall we show our appreciation now in rendering material thanks to Him?

Make your remittances to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

Toward the Thanksgiving offering we have heard this past week from; Anna B. Eychaner; Mrs. Susan Long; Leila E. Whitehead; Evelyn K. Harsch; Alice Emerson; Abbie H. Fiske; Allard, Harland families; Mrs. Melissa Allard; E. S. Logan; Mrs. Hilding Anderson; Mary Doll. Total $69.00.

BOOSTING THE MAILING LIST

ONE SERVICE that each member of the church and each member of every family in the church can render is to boost our list of subscribers. The minister can do it publicly and privately. The wife or mother can do it with a neighbor or associate. The husband or father likewise knows someone who should take The Restitution Herald and even the boys and girls can get subscriptions.

It is a sad fact that many of the church families in some communities do not get the paper. If you know of any such you cannot render them a better service than to see that they are added to the list.

Remember that we are trying to very materially increase the size of our Herald family now, and are offering a pretty prize Bible to the one who gets the most new subscriptions between now and December 31.

How many can you get?

LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY

By F. L. Austin

"And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples." Luke 11:1.

THE DISCIPLES had been with Christ and had seen Him pray. They had learned to understand something of the connection between His wondrous life in public and His secret life in prayer. They had learned to believe in Him as a Master in the art of prayer—none could pray like Him. And so they went to Him with the request, "Lord, teach us to pray". In after years they could have told us there were few things that He taught that were more wonderful or blessed than His lessons on prayer.

And now still it comes to pass that as He is praying in a certain place His disciples who behold Him thus engaged feel the need of repeating the same request, "Lord, teach us to pray". As we grow in the Christian life the thought and the faith of the beloved Master in His never failing intercession becomes ever more precious and the hope of being like Christ in His intercessions gains an attractiveness before unknown. As we see Him pray and remember that there is none who can pray like Him and none who can teach like Him, we again feel that the petition of the disciples, "Lord, teach us to pray," is just what we need. And as we think how He Himself and all He is and has is our very own, how He Himself is our life, we feel assured that we have but to ask and He will be delighted to take us up into closer fellowship with Himself and teach us to pray even as He prays.

Come, my brothers! Shall we not go to the blessed Master and ask Him to enroll our names too in that school which He always keeps open for those who long to continue their studies in the divine art of prayer and intercessions. Yes, let us this very day say to the Master as they did of old, "Lord, teach us to pray."

"Lord, teach us to pray." Yes, to pray. This is what we need to be taught. Though in its beginnings prayer is so simple that the feeblest child can pray, yet it is at the same time the highest and holiest work to which man can rise. Prayer is fellowship with the unseen and most holy One. The powers of the eternal world have been placed at its disposal. It is the very essence of true religion, the channel of all blessings, the secret of power and life. Not only for ourselves, but for others—for the church; for the world. It is through prayer that God has given the right to take hold of Him and of His strength. It is on prayer that the promises wait for their fulfillment; the kingdom for its coming, the glory of God for its full revelation.

For this blessed work how slothful and unfit we are! Only the Spirit of God can enable us to do it aright. How speedily we are deceived into a resting in the form, while the power is wanting. Our early training, the teaching of the church, the influence of habit, the stirring of the emotions—how easily these lead to prayer which has no spiritual power and which avails but little! For ability and power to engage in true prayer, prayer that takes hold of God's strength, that availeth much, prayer to which the doors of heaven are really open wide—for ability to thus pray who would not cry, "Oh, for some one to teach me to pray!"

Jesus has opened a school in which He trains His redeemed ones who specially desire it, to have power in prayer. Do we not realize that it is just this that we, more than all else, need to be taught? Shall we not all enroll in this school with the one heart-yearning petition, "Lord, O teach us to pray."—Adapted from Rev. Andrew Murray's "With Christ."

THE JOY OF THE LORD

By A. G. Osterberg

THESE THINGS have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." John 15:11.

The text says that the Lord ministered to them that His joy might remain with them. It was a joy that was peculiarly His own. The Psalmist David (Psalm 45:7) says, "Thou hast anointed him with the oil of gladness above his fellows." And in Hebrews 12:2, "Who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame." These and other scriptures might be used to dissipate the prevalent notion that Jesus was continually sad and of melancholy mien because of the weight and pressure of a sin-stricken world for which He came eventually to die. It is well to remember that if Jesus had sorrows and burdens they were not for Himself, and that when He wept it was not because of His own transgressions or inconsistencies. It was this joy divinely committed to Him that He now wishes His disciples and followers to become partakers of and this joy is of fundamental importance for it, together with righteousness and peace, is mentioned as one of the fundamental principles of the kingdom. Rom. 14:17.

I am convinced that the joy of the Lord is an attribute committed to us through the grace of Christ, and is as divinely supernatural as the act of regeneration or any other operation of the Holy Ghost. For this reason it is not dependent upon any earthly, fleshly, or natural condition or tendency for expression or manifestation, but the joy of the Lord is dependent upon our relationship to Him and dependence upon Him, and Him alone, for its outflow and blessing.

First, it is referred to as "my joy." Without contradiction the joy which the Lord expressed in His life and ministry was profound and deep. It was not the tumbling, roaring, noisy brawl of the shallow brook rolling over the obstacles in its way; but rather, like the silent, outspreed ocean lying in perfect calm. I can sense the dignity of the divine Person in this attribute of joy as I can in all the other divine attributes. To me this joy, inwrought in our very natures by the Holy Ghost, does not find its only manifestation in an outburst or explosion of emotional urge, caused by something which has for the moment particularly pleased us, but is soon to vanish, allowing us to fall back into the usual state of depression. This joy is as much present in absolute silence, and probably at times without any outward manifestation as in any other way. The joy of the Lord can be divinely perpetualized, for the text says, "That my joy might remain in you." It is therefore not spasmodic, fleeting. There is nothing in the Scriptures that indicates that Jesus manifested a boisterous, impetuous, overflow of good feeling; but there is indication that His joy was both most substantial and glorious.

While Jesus came into the world to suffer and to bear the sins of many, the law of divine compensation was a factor in His life of power and victory. The fact that Jesus came doing the will of the Father, even though it involved sorrow and sadness of heart, assured Him an experience of profound joy and gladness which kept Him balanced and of an even temperament in relationship to His humanity. This profound joy was continually manifested at the most unpropitious times. When the natural man would have manifested other characteristics, Jesus reveals that his joy was greater in power than the adverse circumstances that pressed in upon Him.

When the Pharisees hardened their hearts with hatred, and their rebellion was manifested at every opportunity even to the extent that in one instance, they gnashed with their teeth, Scripture records that, "Jesus rejoiced in spirit and said, Father I thank thee that thou hast hid these things from the wise and the prudent and hast revealed them unto babes." Their attitude toward Him would naturally have caused Him great grief, but instead He had that within Himself which enabled Him to rejoice in spirit.

Naturally, from a human standpoint, that would have been a very sad occasion and probably His darkest hour when He was seated among His disciples with Judas at His side ready to betray Him shortly. Yet Jesus, knowing all that should come to pass, sang with His disciples; for the Scripture says they sang a hymn and then went out into the night. Wonder upon wonders, what a joy, enabling Him to sing at such a time! What this meant is better understood when we recall that it was customary at the Passover feast to sing a song of rejoicing and thanksgiving. This custom Jesus carried out.

As the work of Jesus comes to a close and as He is about to expire on the cross, knowing that the work the Father had committed to Him had now been accomplished, and while His loved ones are standing around at the foot of the cross, weeping, Jesus lifts His voice with a mighty shout of triumph and exclaims, "It is finished."

Worldly and natural joy is not shown in this fashion and I am absolutely certain that if Christians of to-day are to have an experience of overcoming victory they must know something of this supernatural and heavenly joy. We are a supernatural people. We are the sons of God. We are a chosen generation. We are the Lord's beloved. We are strangers here but citizens of another land. We neither live nor act nor think as those of the earthly generation. We are a heavenly people as well as earthly; and God has in His divine economy made arrangements to grant us a number of heavenly attributes that will sustain, comfort, help, and qualify us as ambassadors of His own kingdom.

I have observed that when the world laughs, spiritual folk, sometimes seem as though they would rather weep. I have also observed that when the Lord's people shout and rejoice, worldly folk become very uncomfortable. This joy of which we speak cannot be purchased as or along with a theater coupon, neither can it be received by merely attending a religious gathering. The Lord Himself must give it.

The text says, "That my joy might remain." Therefore it does not consist merely of spells of gladness or emotional outbursts. It is not an incident that is granted, it is a condition; and that condition is to be perpetual, and is therefore supernatural. Again, the Scripture says, "In the world ye shall have tribulation but in me ye shall have peace," thus revealing the possibility of having tribulation and peace at the same time.

Of what does this joy consist? Shall we subject it to spiritual analysis? Is it made up of component parts? I think it is and I would like to mention some of the factors.

It is the joy of full salvation. I have observed that the more spiritual and God-dependent people are, the more they manifest this joy. Some Christians are noted because of their irritability, man-fear, and changeableness. Others are outstanding and remarkable for their steadfastness, their boldness, and sweetness. Full salvation is a comprehensive term that many folks seem to be afraid of. They want salvation, but they desire to be careful not to get too much of it, as they say. They fear to become "too spiritual." Such folk lack many of the attributes of those who are fully saved; one of them being the keeping power of God. They are not kept by God's keeping power as they should be. They do not belong to the martyr tribe. They have not learned the secret of being so yielded, so committed, so surrendered to all the plans and purposes of God concerning them that they can be burning at the stake and shouting the praises of God at the same time. They are afraid of being overly blessed; and instead of being filled with the joy of the Lord on all occasions, they whine and cry and grumble and complain, they groan and they grunt, they weep and they moan, and live a tragic existence.

On the other hand, what a contrast with these complainers Christians may be who are filled with the Spirit. There is no doubt that something tremendous happened to the disciples and the rest of the 120 at Pentecost,

GOD'S ABILITY AND FAITHFULNESS

By Rufus A. Curtis

A BULWARK OF STRENGTH TO HIS PEOPLE

THE ABILITY of our God to supply the needs of His trusting children reaches far beyond our mental grasp. There is not only enough, but a surplusage, that touches every need of the human heart. To the believers at Corinth, Paul wrote, "And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work." 2 Cor. 9:8. We can rest assured that "no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." Psa. 84:11.

Listen to Paul again, as he writes to the believers at Ephesus. "Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen." Eph. 3:20-21. God's ability, manifested through His Son, "is able even to subdue all things unto Himself." Phil. 3:21. The exercise of such marvelous ability will be amply able to "change our vile (corruptible) body," and make it powerful, spiritual, and immortal. Phil. 3:20, 21; 1 Cor. 15:42-44, 51-54. Such ability can easily conquer "the last enemy." 1 Cor. 15:25, 26. "He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth: for the LORD hath spoken it." Isa. 25:8. What the Lord hath spoken shall not return unto Him void, but it shall accomplish His "eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord." Isa. 55:11; Eph. 3:11. What His wisdom plans, His love approves; and His limitless power, if need be, will be called into requisition, for the accomplishment of His plan.

The Lord's people can "rejoice evermore," for they "know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Rom. 8:28; 1 Thess. 5:16. When we recognize God's ability and faithfulness, then it is that we become "more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Rom. 8:37-39.

In the face of many perils that Paul endured, he triumphantly exclaims, "Nevertheless, I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." 2 Cor. 6:5; 11:23-28; 2 Tim. 1:12. The Lord is "a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble." Psa. 9:9. It affords great consolation to say, as did David of old, "My times are in thy hand." Psa. 31:15; Deut. 33:25. When forsaken, "the Lord will take me up." Psa. 27:10. The love and compassion of a woman for her offspring excites our admiration. No prodigal can wander so far from home and rectitude, but his mother's love and prayers will follow him. "Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? Yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee." Isa. 49:15. "There is one lawgiver, who is able to save and to destroy: who art thou that judgeth another?" James 4:12. "Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." Heb. 7:25. "What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?" Rom. 8:31; Phil. 4:19; Psa. 23:1-6. "Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen." Jude 24, 25; 1 Cor. 15:58.

A PARABLE OF JESUS

By A. L. Corbaley

THE SOUTHERN KINGDOM

THE SOUTHERN kingdom continued until the days of Zedekiah, the last Jewish king to sit and rule on the throne of David. In 586 B. C. the king of Babylon came up and besieged the city of Jerusalem. The city was taken and the king and many of the people were carried to Babylon, thereby fulfilling the prophecy of Ezek. 21:24-27.

This captivity lasted seventy years, at the expiration of which time they were allowed to return and rebuild the city of Jerusalem, its walls and temple. It was the tribe of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin that lived in the land of Palestine when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea. It was of them that the apostle John wrote, "He came unto his own, and his own received him not." —John 1:11. It was of their number, the Pharisees, who derided Him in Luke 16:14. It was to them He sent the twelve apostles, under the first commission, saying, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Matt. 10:5-6.

It was of them that He spoke when He said to the multitude and to His disciples, saying, "The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat." They had the oracles of God, and no one could come to God, and be a partaker in the Abrahamic covenants of promise, without being an Israelite. The Gentile could be adopted into the family of Israel and have the same rights and privileges as the Jew, but as a Gentile he could not come to God, and was without hope of future life.

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

Then the Jew in Luke 16:19, was represented by the rich man who fared sumptuously every day. He had Moses and the prophets. Once every year the high priest went into the Holy of Holies, there to offer sacrifice for his own sins and the sins of the people. When he came forth it was to bless the waiting multitudes. But while there was an inner court for the Jew, the Gentile had to remain in the outer court and all the benefits he derived from the service, were crumbs of comfort, which came from the rich man's table. Therefore, the beggar Lazarus represents the Gentiles. In religious matters he was considered no better than a dog by the Jews, and his sins (sores) were incurable. He was living without hope of any reward beyond the present life.

"And it came to pass that the beggar died," is the next clause. Under the first commission the twelve apostles were not to go into the way of the Gentiles, nor enter into any city of the Samaritans, who also were Gentiles. So the Gentiles were entirely excluded from hearing the gospel as preached by the apostles, therefore, they could have no hope under its teachings. But the next clause says, "And was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom." Under the second commission given by Jesus to His apostles, after He had risen from the dead He charged them saying, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." This brought Jew and Gentile upon a common level: "For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us," exclaims the apostle Paul in Eph. 2:14.

For more than 1,500 years the Israelites were the Lord's chosen people. During this time they alone of all the people on the earth, had the oracles of God or hope of eternal life. But now conditions had changed, and the Gentile was to be fellow heir with the Jew. So strong however, was the custom among the Jews of ignoring the Gentiles in religious matters, that the apostles themselves preached to the Jews only, for a number of years after they had been instructed to "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." On the day of Pentecost it was an exclusively Jewish audience to whom the apostle Peter preached. Not till Peter saw the vision of the vessel descending down from heaven—"As it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth: wherein were all manner of fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air. And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat. But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean," Acts 10,—did he realize that the Gentiles were to be fellow heirs with the Jews, and even then he took six brethren with him to the house of Cornelius to be witnesses to what should happen. While he was preaching to Cornelius and the people assembled at his house, "The Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word. And they of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost. For they heard them speaking with tongues, and magnify God." This led Peter to exclaim, "Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we? And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." Even then, when the apostles, and brethren that were in Judea "heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God. And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him, saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them. But Peter rehearsed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them. . . . When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life." Acts 11:1-4, 18.

LIVES REMADE

THE POTTER'S WHEEL is one of the oldest of human inventions. The flat horizontal wheel is turned by steam or electricity, and so turns much more rapidly than in the olden time, but in essentials the processes of the modern potteries are like those which the prophet Jeremiah saw when he visited the house of the potter and watched him at his work.

The potter took a lump of wet clay, put it in the middle of his wheel, and, as the wheel turned, shaped the clay, partly with his fingers and partly with his very simple tools, and so he wrought upon the wheel the jar or vase, the pattern of which was already in his mind. Jeremiah was interested in the fact, which he presently observed, that the potter sometimes changed his plan. Now and then the material proved refractory. It was a little too wet, or a little too dry, or there proved to be not quite enough of it, or there was a pebble or other foreign substance in it that turned it awry. Jeremiah noticed this. He could not always tell the reason, but the potter sometimes manifestly changed his purpose. "He made it again another vessel." It may even have been that the vessel thus modified, through first having been marred, became a more useful and even a more beautiful one than it would have been if it had kept to the original design.

Our lives are marred by the vicissitudes of life. Whether we call it fate or the will of God, there is no denying the marring effects of sorrow, accident and ill health.

We mar one another's lives. There are people who have to live together who continually rasp and irritate and hurt one another. There are strange pairings and matings and assortings in family and business relationships. And for many of them which seem so unfortunate there is no remedy which lies within our power.

We mar our own lives. We brood over our wrongs, real or imaginary. We eat out our hearts for the joys denied us. We cherish envy, spite and ill-will. In time the poison in our spirits manifests itself in the hard or

WHAT WE NEED

By Alice B. Curtis

We think we need so many things
To make life a success,
Such as long life and wealth and friends
And love and happiness.
Of course we should be college-bred,
And widely-traveled, too.
If we had what we think we need,
What wonders we would do!

Wait not for fortune's wheel to turn
To bring good gifts to you;
Dream not of happiness and love,
For dreams may not come true.
The happiness that seems so near Elusive you will find;
And human love is selfish
And inconstant as the wind.

Look to the One mighty to save;
Look to the Lord of all.
Accept His precious promises,
And hear His loving call.
Seek first God's kingdom, and the things
You need shall added be.
Our urgent need is that from sin
And death we be set free.

"One thing is needful," Jesus said.
His words are passing sweet,
For we now love to sit and learn
Like Mary at His feet.
What wondrous love and mercy, He
To sinners vile has shown.
To save our lives sin jeopardized,
Our Lord lay down His own.

What shall it profit any man
Though the wide world he gain?
If in return his soul is lost,
He will have lived in vain.
Think what a fearful loss is his
While future ages sweep,
That he has bartered endless life
For death's eternal sleep.

We cannot keep earth's dearest things
Nor do they satisfy;
We look for better things to come
With Faith's discerning eye.
In Jesus we find peace and joy;
He is the Friend of friends.
He gives "true riches," love divine,
And life that never ends.

"PRIDE GOETH BEFORE DESTRUCTION"

By Samuel E. Haney

HUMBLE YOURSELVES therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time: casting all your care (ANXIETY, Diag.) upon him; for he careth for you." 1 Pet. 5:6, 7.

Just as sin is directly opposed to righteousness, so pride is the antithesis of humility. Bishop Newman was asked, "How am I to know that a person is really proud?" He replied, "When you see the foxes' tail sticking out of the hole you may be sure the fox is within". Pride is the most subtle and deleterious form of sin. In duration, it is ephemeral. Morally, it is as far from the Spirit of Christ as the east is from the west. It is Satan's greatest barrier to God's kingdom.

Let Holy Writ—God's judgment of pride; its abominable effect on individuals and on nations, speak: Prov. 6:16-19, "These six things doth the Lord hate: yea, seven are an abomination unto him: a proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, an heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, a false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren". Notice, "pride" heads the list. Psa. 101:5, "Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I cut off ('destroy', R. V.): him that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I suffer ('him shall I not be able to endure', Roth.)". Prov. 8:13, "The fear of the Lord is to hate evil: pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way, and the froward mouth do I hate". Prov. 16:18, 19, "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall (another evidence of the close of the age). Better it is to be of an humble spirit with the lowly ('with the poor—meek', R. V.), than to divide the spoil with the proud". Prov. 29:23, "A man's pride shall bring him low: but honour shall uphold the humble in spirit ('but he that is of a lowly spirit shall attain to honour, Masoretic text')". Prov. 14:3, "In the mouth of the foolish is a rod of pride: but the lips of the wise shall preserve them". Prov. 11:2, "When pride cometh, then cometh shame: but with the lowly is wisdom". David pleads (Psa. 36:11), "Let not the foot of pride come against me, and let not the hand of the wicked remove me ('drive me away, R. V.; overtake me, Maso. text')". Psa. 73 (read throughout), David here paints two prophetic pictures of our day. Verses 1 to 16, inclusive, is one, and verses 17 to end, the other. The "high lights" of each picture is v. 3: "For I was envious of the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked"; v. 17: "Until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I their end". Psa. 18:27, R. V. "For thou wilt save the afflicted people; but the haughty eyes thou wilt bring down".

It shall be the humble ones who will escape the pending trouble, and who will be exalted in due time, while the proud, arrogant, worldly-spirited ones will become subjects of God's wrath. Is this a hazardous statement? Let the foregoing answer for the individual's concern, while, as for the effect of pride on nations, Belshazzar can best introduce this phase of our subject, for he literally saw the handwriting on the wall, even, "part of the hand that wrote", Dan. 5:5. Many rulers of nations, and statesmen are visualizing Belshazzar's tragic scene. And there are instances similar to Belshazzar's where "knees are smiting one against another." "Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another." Dan. 5:6. Pride was the cause of Nebuchadnezzar's troubles, and the loss of his glory,—“But when his heart was lifted up, and his mind hardened in pride, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and they took his glory from him”. Dan. 5:20. Knees began “smiting” fourteen years ago as the result of pride and arrogance and they are still “smiting” both by individuals and nations: for,—“This is the writing that was written, . . . God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it. . . . Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting”. Dan. 5:25-27. (Continuing, Nebuchadnezzar was a type of the spirit of the world to-day: “The king spake and said, Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty? But while the word was in the king's mouth, there fell a voice from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; The kingdom is departed from thee.” Dan. 4:30, 31. This proud, boastful world is soon to experience the second Nebuchadnezzar act in the greatest of all dramas when the kingdoms shall depart from the powers that be,—“And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.” Rev. 11:15. “And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.” Dan. 2:44.

These kingdoms will then constitute one kingdom—the kingdom of God—over which Jesus Christ shall be King of kings and Lord of lords: “And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him”. Dan. 7:27.

Who are the “saints of the most High”? Those who shall have been “exalted in due time”. But the attainment of this exaltation is the greatest proposition of our day. By ignoring Peter's commandment and solace, i. e., “casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you”, we make success impossible. The Christian who is in daily expectancy of the Bridegroom should not have much care or anxiety about the affairs of this life. If he has, it is a safe guess that half of it could well be abandoned. Let the “sinners in Zion” do the worrying (read Isa. 33:14-16), while we “dwell on high”; and, “Seek ye the LORD, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the LORD's anger”. Zeph. 2:3.

Man worries to-day about the necessities of to-morrow. But the animals, fowls and insects do not. Looking from a window in my country abode I saw scores of “snow” birds perched upon seed bulbs that protruded above the deep snow which sustained their weight. There they were having the feast of their lives from the seeds in these bulbs that God had reserved for such emergencies. Had not God imparted a little knowledge of chemistry to the honey bee we should not have honey on our dining tables; for these busy little creatures practice antiseptics by mixing formic acid, a good antiseptic, with their honey, thus, preserving their food from all germ deterioration.

How often Jesus reprimanded His disciples for their lack of faith! “Jesus answering saith unto them, (which includes us) Have faith in God” (margin; or, have the faith of God).” Mark 11:22. Deficiency of faith and lack of humility are the chief causes of many Christians' perplexity and troubles. David says, “The LORD is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit”. Psa. 34:18. “But to this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word”, Isa. 66:2.

The carnal mind is responsible for man's doubts. Only the humble spirited is accessible to God's inexhaustible storehouse. David and Paul were confident in God's grace, “The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want”. “But my God shall supply all your need, according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus”. Psa. 23:1; Phil. 4:19.

Until a proud, arrogant heart is “swept and garnished by the blood of the Lamb”, Christ, who was the personification of humility, it cannot enter. The blood of Jesus Christ, His Son must cleanse us from all sin. 1 John 1:7; Rev. 1:15.

Dear doubting ones, if you desire to escape the troubles of this world, and to enjoy the glory of God's kingdom (Rom. 8:18) which we have been considering, you must follow Paul's experience and teachings, i. e., “I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me”. “And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts”. Gal. 2:20; 5:24. Such is the only safety zone for Christians these days: “All other ground is sinking sand”. Plebeians, as well as “rich merchants”, shall—ere long—“stand afar off for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing”. Rev. 18:15.

God help us!

INTRODUCING THE CHRIST

By M. A. Woodward

WHO OF US are willing to "step into the gap" and be brave enough to introduce our Master to those utterly strange to Him? If we ourselves have not benefited by our introduction, have not courted our acquaintance with Him, been an oft visitor at His banquet table, had His love touch our hearts, we are not ready to undertake to introduce Him to our friends, lest they soon find out that we have not seen Him or been influenced by His life.

O beloveds, can we who have professed to know Him these many years feel safe to have the question asked us as was Stanley Jones, a missionary? In India he met a Hindu and said to him, "Would you like to know Jesus?" "Yes," he said eagerly, "but I do not know how to go to Him. I need some one to introduce me to Him." Mr. Stanley replied, "I should love to introduce my master to you." Mr. Stanley had been with the Master and the poor Hindu could see it in his face and trusted him to show him the way. O for the Spirit-filled face that would show the picture of the Master as it spoke.

Bishop McDowell said, "We are saved by a person, and by only one person, the Man, Christ Jesus. Only life can lift life. He demands our all, and if we are true Christians we shall not want to offer Him less." We have no time to lose, beloveds. He gave all His time, His talents, His life. We pray to be like Him, but withhold all these things, and expect to grow like Him. How can we? The dear Christ alone must be our abiding Guest, the Stepping Stone to our religious life. He is almost too great for our small hearts, and selfish lives, but to be like Him we must enlarge our hearts and make room for Him to live with us, to be our abiding guest.

A little Hindu girl stepped up to Mr. Stanley one day and quietly rubbed her little hand over his face, saying, "Your face is very dear to me" and went quietly away. Mr. Stanley brushed away a tear and went on with his writing. The little girl was not mistaken; the Spirit of the Master was the missionary's abiding guest. Instead of the cold unfeeling look, let us try and catch the love light of a Spirit-filled Christian, the joy of being a true child of God.

WHAT ARE WE here for? Fashioned in the image of God; endowed with reason and a love for an immortal life; "crowned with glory and honour," why are we here? We are here that the Lord may find fruit. For this we are walled about with privileges, for this we are planted in the garden of the Lord, watered by the dew of His blessing and sunned by the light of His countenance; if we bear no fruit, then everything is vain: all the love of God the Father in vain; all the agony of the blessed Savior in vain; all the work of the Holy Spirit in vain; all the precious promises, all advantage and opportunities in vain. All this given, and yet no fruit—then is our life an utter, awful failure.—Selected.

This increased membership in contrast to the large decrease in the number of churches may be the result of the latter day movement toward unionization.

Figures relative to Sunday Schools are not yet available for the entire United States, but the four New England states mentioned above show a total decrease in Sunday Schools of 675 and a decrease in scholars 113,168.

We look upon the Sunday School as a feeder for the church and it seems to us that the church either is not well nourished from this source or the members themselves are not attending the Sunday School as they should.

What will the next ten years bring forth? It may be the Lord will appear in the clouds of heaven ere that time and should He come will He find us laboring with our might what our hands find to do, or will we dig up the talent that has been hid away and say, "Here Lord is what thou gavest me."—F. A. Stilson.

We hate some persons because we do not know them; and we will not know them because we hate them.—Colton.

cynical expression of our faces. We go through life marred, not wholly by reason of what has been done to us, but on account of what we have done to ourselves.

But God, like the potter, does not throw the clay back into the trough. God has resources available for the re-shaping of marred lives. Those who are seen rejoicing around the throne are they that have come out of marring experiences. It is a fact of common knowledge that the lives we most admire are not those that have always had their own unhindered way. In every saintly face there is something that tells of a serenity and a peace that have been won by meeting adverse conditions, by the conquest of which the soul has been shaped into a lovelier form.

If we have been marred, we need not be disheartened. God has for us other and perhaps even worthier and more beautiful uses.—Selected by Sr. Curtis.

CO-OPERATION SPELLS SUCCESS FOR THE BEREAN PAGE

HOW DO YOU DO, BEREANS! It must be confessed that it is with a mingling of regret and pleasure that the new Berean Editor takes up the work so ably carried on until now by Bro. Siple. Regret, because he is not to conduct the Page in the future. Real pleasure, though, in anticipation of the little weekly heart-to-heart talks with you.

There are those of you far and near whom past associations have drawn very near in Christ, and there are many others whom, like the Master Himself, "having not seen" we love just the same because of our common hope and aspirations. For the opportunity of this weekly visit with you in the future we are truly thankful.

But there is much more to it than that. I am looking back for a moment over the history of the Berean page as it has been conducted so far. A standard has been set which must be lived up to, and this depends not so much on one person as upon all of us together. Co-operation will accomplish wonders where separate, individual effort often fails.

I cannot help but go back in thought to the situation among the believers after the ascension of the Master they so dearly loved. Because they were "of one heart and of one soul" in the Lord's work, we are told that "they had all things common." There was true co-operation, and what wonderful things are recorded as results! Believers to-day have much in common, as had they, but anything we undertake for Christ requires full co-operation to bring success. Our Berean page is just one little thing that is our common property, but we want every Berean, and everyone who is interested in Berean work, to feel that he is really a part of the Page.

There are a good many Berean classes over the country meeting about once every week. How many questions on the lessons have arisen from time to time in your class that were almost stumbling-blocks to some of the members until satisfactory conclusions were reached? There are others still puzzling over those same questions and they would be glad if you would write in an explanation now and then. Let us also hear of the growth of your class and the work they are doing; it is of great encouragement to other classes. If you do not belong to a class why don't you send in a little report of your personal work and problems and let us talk things over together? Suggestions and ideas for improvement are earnestly solicited—yes, I urge you to send them in. We need the inspiration of each other's help.

Short, concise items of interest for the advancement of the work we have in common—for we are "of one heart and of one soul" in Berean work—will do much to keep our page up to the high standard of interest and helpfulness that it has been so far. May the Father direct us toward that end.

Over at Grand Rapids, Mich. is one of our Berean societies that has been making steady and sure progress. That faithful teaching and conscientious study do bring results, is evidenced by the following article by one of the younger members of the class there.

THE TRUTH ABOUT SIN

As we go about the world we hear the question asked so many times, "What is sin?" Webster's dictionary tells us that "sin is any violation of God's will, in purpose or in conduct." In Wesley's dictionary it is written or stated like this, "sin is a willful transgression of a known law of conduct."

There are two forms of sin. The first of commission, or an intentional trampling on God's laws as we read in 1 John 3:4, "Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law, for sin is the transgression of the law." The second kind of sin is that of omission, or intentional neglect of known duty. "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

A Christian has no connection with sin according to Rom. 6:18, 22: "Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." "But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life."

A man cannot commit sin and be a Christian. Matt. 6:24: "No man can serve two masters." Rom. 6:16: "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES

PAUL SAW that some of the Jews were Pharisees and some were Sadducees. Therefore, he told them that he was a Pharisee, and believed in the resurrection of the dead. This displeased the Sadducees, so they disputed with the Pharisees until the chief captain took Paul back to the castle.

Then followed the prisoner's greatest comfort and encouragement. "The night following, the Lord stood by him and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome."

But when the day came, forty Jews thought out a plan to kill Paul—just as if his death would end the Christian faith. They told the chief priests and elders to ask the chief captain to bring the apostle to them that they might question him. As he would come near, they would kill him. It looked like an easy scheme to them, but—Paul's nephew overheard the plot, and told it to the chief captain. Whereupon several hundred soldiers were to conduct Paul in safety to Felix, the Roman governor, at Caesarea. A letter explaining the situation was also sent.

After reading this letter and learning that Paul was from the province of Cilicia, the governor commanded Paul kept in Herod's judgment hall until the Jewish accusers should also come.

Five days later the high priest and elders arrived, all ready to put an end to Paul and his doctrine. They brought an orator along to present the accusation before the governor. He began by flattering Felix, then proceeded to say, "We have found this man a pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes: who also hath gone about to profane the temple." To all of his words the Jews agreed.

Then came Paul's turn to present his side of the question. He relied upon Felix's good judgment rather than resorting to flattery. He said it had been only twelve days since he had arrived in Jerusalem—seven of which he had spent in the temple and five in Caesarea, so there had been no opportunity to do the things of which he had been accused. Moreover, he said he worshiped the God that his accusers did, and believed the things they did and "herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men." Then he explained how the Jews from Asia had purposely misunderstood his presence in the temple, and had stirred up a mob—not he.

Felix had married a Jewess, so he knew about the new Christian "way." He wanted to delay any violence to Paul, saying they should send for the chief captain at Jerusalem. The apostle was then placed under guard although given much liberty, and privilege of receiving visits from his friends, among whom we imagine were Luke and Philip.

A few days later Felix and his wife, Drusilla, sent for Paul to learn more of the faith. The apostle, ever ready, told Felix many things, so convincing him that he trembled. Nevertheless, Felix put off accepting Christ until he had more time, or until money should be offered for Paul's release. Neither the time nor the money ever arrived.

Paul remained a prisoner in Caesarea for two long years; left there by Felix just to please the Jews.

However, a new governor, Festus, came to take over the province, and Paul's enemies resumed their attacks. They asked that Paul be brought to Jerusalem—planning to kill him on the way; but the governor refused their request. He said that they might return with him to Caesarea, and make their accusations there.

Ten days later they all went to Caesarea, and the governor heard the many false complaints of the Jews. Paul said that he was not afraid to die, but he had done nothing worthy of death punishment. Seeing that Festus would like to please the Jews, Paul appealed for a trial before the highest ruler, Augustus Caesar, at Rome. Of course, this appeal had to be respected, and the governor said, "Hast thou appealed unto Caesar? unto Caesar shalt thou go."

Not long after the Jewish king, Agrippa, and his wife came to visit the new governor. Upon being told Paul's story, and that the chief accusation against him was concerning "one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive", the king became interested, and asked to hear Paul.

On the morrow, the king and his wife, the governor, and many of the chief men of the city met in the place of hearing. Into the midst of this pomp and ceremony was Paul brought. Then the governor made a speech, saying he had not found Paul guilty of death; that he had promised to send him to Rome, but did not know what explanations to put into a letter to Caesar.

Then Agrippa said unto Paul, "Thou art permitted to speak for thyself." Do you suppose Paul was embarrassed by the grand assemblage, and afraid to declare his belief? No, he was glad to answer for himself before Agrippa because he was sure the king being a Jew, would understand the Jewish customs and questions. Again he told the story of his early life, his belief in Christ's resurrection, his early persecution of the Christians, his miraculous conversion and his preaching to the Gentiles.

It was such a wonderful sermon that Festus seemed to fear he might be influenced, for he exclaimed, "Paul,

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES

Acts 24:1 to 26:32

Devotional Reading: Psa. 25:1-6

GOLDEN TEXT

I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.—Acts 26:19.

STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Paul Before His Judges. Herein is illustrated to Christians of all centuries how that in man's day, 1 Cor. 4:3, margin, it is impossible but that true Christianity must suffer at the hand of non-Christian man.

First, every Christian is pledged to serve God and to honor His Word and His ways under all circumstances. It is impossible but that His words and ways shall be higher than those of man. Isa. 55:9. Only those who merit God's Spirit and help can grasp those words and ways with any success. 1 Cor. 2. Those undevoted to God can understand true Christian effort little better than they can understand God's Word. Therefore, the Christian, while serving God, is literally antagonizing man.

Second, man must have his laws for the regulation of man's conduct. For this, God gave a law through Moses second to none in all times for its equity and its justice between man and man. As this law must of necessity be a law of the flesh it is therefore contrary to the law of the Spirit just as the flesh and Spirit are contrary, Gal. 5:16-18. Therefore, even the most earnest administration of the law of man must at times inconvenience and pain the Christian. But—

Third, It is continuously emphasized by experience that it is most difficult for man as a whole to administer his law in true righteousness. There is constant partiality toward friends; constant acceptance of the principle, if not the fact of bribery; constant inequality of administration as between the strong and the weak; and constant deference to the executive's friendships and personal ideals: all of which make judgment according to man's law most surprising and disappointing.

All of this was experienced by Paul. While the law would not permit him to serve God with freedom of action, yet Paul sacrificed his own liberties before man in ever announcing and abiding by his convictions of faith in God. He thus ignored man's judgment, 1 Cor. 4:3, in standing true to Christ. Evidently the same must be experienced often by Christians of all time.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Wherefore, King Agrippa! I did not become unyielding to the heavenly vision."—Acts 26:19, Roth.

The story is told of two infidels who were discussing the life of Christ when one said, "I think an interesting romance could be written about Him". The other replied, "And you are just the man to write it. Set forth the correct view of His life and character. Tear down the prevailing thought as to His divineness and paint Him as He was—a man among men. The one who made the suggestion was Ingersoll, the author was General Lew Wallace, and the book, "Ben Hur." In studying His life, he was convinced that He was more than a man among men. Wallace caught the heavenly vision and was not disobedient thereto.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Value of Composure and Courage. Regardless of beatings and persecutions and threats of death, we find Paul always remaining calm and composed, full of courage. No command or threat could cause him to be untrue to the gospel which he loved, and by which he hoped to obtain life. And always his clear, reasoning logic baffled his accusers and even his judges. Felix trembled as the cool, plain facts of Christ were presented to him; and Agrippa exclaimed before the whole court, "Paul, almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian".

What power there is in calm composure! Anyone can get angry or excited and say hasty or senseless things; but it takes the bravest courage to face deceit, opposition, oppression, physical torture and threats of death with coolness, explaining the while in clear, forceful logic the great heart message that one bears.

If you have a message, or stand for a purpose or principle, be calm. Let others lose their heads. You will rise to mastery of any situation.—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Paul's Defense.

"King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest. Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian. And Paul said, I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds." —Acts 26:27-29.

The closing words of Paul's self-defense before King Agrippa reveal truth. Paul's defenses of himself were in fact expressions of his deep desire to influence people to enter the way of life he was traveling. In all his defense before three Roman authorities, Felix, Festus and Agrippa, Acts 24 to 26, he relates what he had done, and skillfully weaves around these facts, truths concerning Jesus the Christ, and His power to bring people into the fullness and beauty of God's own life. There is not a note of personal concern, only concern for his hearers. He forgets that in the eyes of his judges he is a prisoner whose life is at stake; he remembers only that he is the Christ's spokesman whose work is to implant faith and love in the hearts of people by revealing God's own faithfulness and love.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Upholding the Truth.

Paul had been accused and condemned by the Jews, and they desired to put him to death; but the government intervened and gave him a chance to defend himself before the judges.

He is called before Felix, and presents his side of the subject. He states emphatically that he has not done the things the Jews are accusing him of doing. He said, "But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets: and have hope toward God, which they themselves allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust."

Beware, lest we follow the cry of the crowd and forget to follow in the footsteps of our Savior. Paul remained faithful and all during his imprisonment did not cease to uphold the cause of Christ.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Paul's Imprisonment.

Aim: To show how trials bring blessings.

Paul was put in prison, not for any crime he committed, but for preaching the gospel of Christ. The chief captain had written a letter to Felix that under any just conditions would have made Paul a free man. But his enemies did not want him freed; they wanted to kill him. His days of prison life were not spent in mourning over his sad fate, but in writing letters of encouragement to the different churches. And the world to-day is inspired, to godlike patience by his words of long ago. So his days in prison were not wasted time, for while suffering for the name of Jesus, he was visited by many churches and individuals and all went away with a message of salvation to carry to others. His evangelism went on with great power. Some of his best letters were written while he was in prison. John Bunyan wrote his "Pilgrim's Progress" during his twelve years of imprisonment, a book all should read.

"All things work together for good to them that love God". Paul believed this and patiently endured all and every trial in his life. What lessons we may learn from Paul's writings!—M. A. W.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Paul the prisoner of Roman authorities: cause; use he made of his opportunity to defend himself; spirit and desire back of such use; examples of such defenses.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

A CORRECTION

The writer is responsible for an error which appeared in a recent Herald in the list of those baptized at Ripley, Illinois. The name given as "Robert Vincent" should have been Robert, or J. R. Burnett. Bro. Burnett lives on a farm near Ripley and gets his mail through the Cooperstown post office. We are sorry that the mistake occurred.—F. E. Siple.

Bro. Siple was called to Ripley again last week for a funeral, and once more Bro. Marsh very kindly took charge of the training class.

Services at Plum River and Adeline, Illinois, were well attended with good interest on Nov. 11, and Bro. Marsh found good and appreciative audiences at Oregon that day while Bro. Siple was at the previously mentioned places.

While holding a series of meetings at the Happy Woods school house three miles west of Hammond, Louisiana, Bro. Austin was advertised last Sunday for a sermon on Signs of The Times at the City Hall in Hammond, 2:30 p. m. Our printing shop got off special dodgers and posters which were rushed down for circulation.

Bro. and Sr. G. E. Marsh may now be addressed at 323 1-2 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill., where they are very comfortably settled.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

As we have no permanent minister at present Bro. Jas A. Patrick of Ashland, Ohio, will take over our work here on Nov. 18 for a few weeks. Preaching service at Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sunday mornings at 11 a. m. and evening service at Fonthill, Ont. at 8 p. m. E. M. Seburn, Sec'y.

REPORT OF THE MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

The Michigan Fall Conference convened at Blanchard, Oct., 19th to 21st, with Bros. Austin, Allen and Randall as speakers. With such good speakers on the program we had the best of sermons. The interest was good—there was an unusually large attendance from other parts of the state.

We were more than pleased to find the Blanchard people pushing for the work in their part of the state. They have secured Bro. Allen as their local pastor and report they have had preaching every Sunday the last four months. They also have a good Sunday School with an average attendance of forty or forty-five. Keep the good work going, Blanchard!

At the business meeting Bro. Austin gave a very good talk on state conference work, also briefly outlined the work of the national headquarters. Bros. Hall and Townsend reported that the work in Grand Rapids is progressing, with very good co-operation and interest. Wm. A. Hanson, Sec.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

Sr. Alta King of Omaha and Sr. Alma Hall of Lincoln were at our Sunday School last Sunday. We are always glad to have them and hope they will come again.

We dismissed our eleven o'clock service for the Armistice service held at the City Hall. The Armistice program was very complete, and the address delivered by Rev. Newell of the Congregational church was enjoyed by all. Mr. Newell says in time of peace, prepare for peace, not war.

Miss Ellen Cameron of Omaha, now teaching school at Rose Hill was in the Berean class last Sunday and is to give the lesson next Sunday. The class enjoyed having Miss Cameron and hopes she will attend regularly.

The annual bazaar of our church will be during the first week of December. Those wanting to help this work can send their gifts to Mrs. Bessie Jenkins, Blair, Nebr.

The program will be completed this week for the Union Thanksgiving service to be held in our church on the evening of the 28th.

LINCOLN, NEBRASKA

The Lincoln brethren and friends of Brother O. J. Allard were very glad to have had him and Sister Allard with us a few weeks ago.

Brother Allard gave us some very helpful Bible lessons and sermons. The First Day Adventist Church people invited him to speak Sunday evening and the following two evenings in their church, which he did, speaking before attentive audiences.

We are all thankful for the opportunity of hearing him again, and of meeting and becoming acquainted with Sister Allard.

May God's protecting hand guide them on their homeward journey.

EDEN VALLEY, MINN.

From Oct. 26 to 28, inclusive, the writer had the pleasure of meeting with the Mora brethren again, where the fall session of the Minnesota conference was held. Bro. Thomas Savage of Waite Park had held a week's meeting here just prior to the conference dates which helped to secure a good attendance and interest for the state meeting.

Following the Mora visit we spent a week with the brethren at Graytown, Wisconsin. Services were held each evening in the town hall of Connersville, a little town a few miles to the south of Graytown. Fair attendance was maintained throughout the meeting and we are glad to report that the Graytown people are keeping up the Sunday School work though the membership is small.

Both the above meetings were a source of encouragement to me, and may it be God's pleasure to bless the work both at Mora and Graytown. On Sunday, closing day of the conference at Mora, Mr. Floyd Eklund obeyed the Lord's call and was baptized in a nearby river. Sidney E. Magaw.

COMMUNICATIONS

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the household of faith:

I surely am very thankful for all of God's blessings and now a new blessing has fallen upon me in the form of real happiness. Bro. J. Arthur Johnson, of Oregon, Illinois is conducting gospel meetings in my little humble home. Oh, how glad I am to hear Bro. Johnson speak God's Holy Word. He preached here the first evening, on Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m. Nov. 7th to a fairly good audience. The next night there was a good house and the Christian minister was present. On Friday night not as many were here on account of the rain and snow, but there is quite an interest shown, so there will be meetings here at my home all next week if God is willing.

We find in Bro. Johnson a fine man, a good speaker, one that understands the gospel readily. We sincerely hope and pray that all who can will come through rain and snow to hear the truth as Bro. Johnson relates it. People can go to movies, joy riding, and card parties through rain and storm, but cannot go out to hear God's gospel for fear they may get their feet wet. God help all those. The day is coming, dear ones when you will be called upon to give an account. God be merciful is my prayer.

Thanks and praise be to God, the One in whom we live and move and have our being. Praise His holy name!

Sister E. Pendleton.

Dear Restitution Herald Readers:

I am asking an interest in the prayers of God's believing children for my recovery from a fall I sustained almost two weeks ago. I had an attack of intestinal "flu" and was much worse than I thought I was, and as I started to come downstairs I fainted and fell about half way down. Our Bible tells us that prayers of the righteous availeth much. We have been sorely tried and afflicted the last few weeks. I am not so I can walk any yet, but I hope that God will bless the efforts put forth to help us and give me courage and strength.

The church folks here have been so kind to us. We still have a fine Bible class. Last Sunday 32 were present. I could not be in the room much then, but I could listen to their songs of praises, and it helped bear the pain.

I had no broken bones, but a twisted hip joint and lots of bruises. Mrs. A. J. Chaplin.

MARLYN BENNETT

Marlyn Bennett, ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bennett was accidentally and fatally shot on Sunday, Nov. 11, while hunting with his brother. The bullet tore a large wound in the little lad's thigh and though he was immediately taken to a hospital there was no hope for recovery, as he rapidly bled to death.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer on Tuesday, Nov. 13, from the home and Church of God. A large attendance of over two hundred were present to show their respect for one so young in years and their sympathy for the bereaved. Two brothers, one sister and both parents are left to mourn his untimely death.

May God's richest blessings of comfort and cheer rest upon the saddened home.

Sidney E. Magaw.

WILLIAM G. HEISER

William G. Heiser, oldest son of Joseph D. and Mary Heiser, was born in Grant county, Indiana, Nov. 1, 1894 and departed this life at Epworth Hospital, South Bend, Indiana, Nov. 2, 1928, aged 34 years, 1 day. William with his parents moved to a farm near Culver, Indiana in 1896 and in this vicinity he grew to manhood, graduating with the Culver High School class of 1916.

On Nov. 4, 1916 he was united in marriage to Laura K. Overmyer, to which union were born three sons, George Albert, who died in infancy, Carl Howard, age six, and Dale Irvin, age two. On April 21, 1918 he was baptized by Bro. F. L. Austin and he united with the Church of God at Burr Oak.

In 1922 he moved to South Bend where he was employed at the Studebaker Co. Here his kind disposition won him a host of friends. Will was a good neighbor, a dependable friend, a dutiful son, a loving brother, a kind father and a faithful husband.

He leaves to mourn his departure, his wife, Laura, and two sons, Carl and Dale, his father and mother, Joseph D and Eva Heiser, one sister, Erma Rose, four brothers, Russel H., South Bend, Joseph D. Jr., David E., and Robert K. at home, and a large number of relatives and friends. He was laid to rest in the Burr Oak cemetery to await the summons of his Lord and Master.

They were not afraid of getting all that God had for them. They sought the Lord earnestly; they accepted Him fully; and out from that upper room, as heralds from another land, they went bringing messages of blessing, comfort and joy, and calling for repentance. They had power with God and man, and their listeners cried out saying, "What shall we do, what shall we do?" I affirm that Zion will rejoice and be exceedingly glad when populated with such a heavenly people. May God increase the tribe in these days of half heartedness and lack of a full desire for a full and complete salvation.—Selected by Madeline Gardiner.

How does God look upon sin? Ezek. 18:20: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Rom. 6:23: "The wages of sin is death". Ex. 23:33: "Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book of life." Heb. 9:22: "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission" (forgiveness). John 3:16: "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

A man can really be saved from sin! Isa. 59:1: "Behold the Lord's hand is not shortened, neither his ear heavy that it cannot hear." Matt. 1:21: "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." 1 John 3:8: "For this purpose, the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad." To this the apostle replied, "I am not mad, . . . but speak the words of truth and soberness." He then turned to the king and asked if he did not believe the prophets. "I know that thou believest."

A real test, wasn't it? But Agrippa answered, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Almost—not quite. Was that worthwhile?

Then Paul said, "I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds."

Following this, those in authority drew aside to talk over what should be done. However, all they could say was, "This man doeth nothing worthy of death or of bonds."

Then said Agrippa, "This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Caesar."

Paul had now fulfilled his mission to carry the Lord's name before kings, but he was yet to go before an even more powerful ruler.

OXFORD BIBLES

THE NEW BASKET WEAVE BINDING

THIS NEW BINDING is grained with a basket weave design which, as shown in the illustration, extends over most of the front, as well as the entire back cover. The highly finished calf leather, dark brown in color, combined with the unusual basket weave grain, give these volumes a striking and rich effect.

The button-clasp keeps the volumes tightly closed, and preserves their shapeliness. The covers, which are slightly overlapping, are lined with brown imitation silk. All styles are the Authorized or King James Version, and are printed on the famous Oxford India paper. The Bibles contain six beautifully colored maps.

Although these volumes have been announced but a short time ago, we have experienced difficulty in keeping enough stock on hand always to supply our orders. This, to us, is conclusive evidence that those who see these volumes in the new basket weave binding are pleased with them.

LET US GIVE THANKS

WE TRUST that each one of you is able to realize at this season of the year a number of things for which you should feel especially thankful. God has been kind to us all.

If it is your privilege to sit down to a bountiful and wholesome meal at this thanksgiving time, we urge that you look thoughtfully at the material blessings spread before you; that you consider for a moment the one or ones who have prepared the meal; that you meditate upon the continuance of life with its degree of health to yourself, and that with a true feeling of reverence you close your eyes and thank the Giver.

God has been good to us.

This is the Thanksgiving season.

Let us give thanks!—F. E. S.

DAVID'S EXPRESSION OF THANKS

"Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered." Psa. 40:5.

THANKFULNESS

ONE OF THE MOST admirable characteristics on the part of any boy or girl, man or woman, is that of showing appreciation for the favors and kindnesses received from others. It wins the heart where other things fail.

We have in mind a mother who has several children. She works hard to make a comfortable, happy home for those children. She sees that they have well cooked, wholesome meals, that they have neat, clean clothes to wear, and that they have about equal privileges in life.

What a difference there is in those children! Some go along in a more or less thoughtless way, accepting daily everything that mother does with the air that it is their due and naturally to be expected. But there is one little girl that for every recognized favor will look at her mother with a smile of appreciation that fairly melts the mother's heart. She shows this feeling upon her face and in her actions, and what a comfort the mother receives from her!

Your God has done more for you than even your mother could do. He grants to you each passing day special and continuous favors. Which kind of child are you?

"Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done."

In the psalm from which a verse is quoted at the head of this page, David has expressed some of his thoughts of appreciation. Consider the love and tenderness embodied in the expression, "O Lord my God"! The little child with face aglow runs to throw her arms around her mother's neck, but that act itself is not more touching than the words of David so appreciatively used here.

"They cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered."

Not only did David recognize the works themselves, but he went behind that and realized the thoughts necessary before the works could follow. These, he said, cannot be reckoned.

How true it is that we little recognize the thoughts of love with which the Father surrounds us, upon which He bases the many actions and grants of favor. Indeed they cannot be numbered!

The least that we can do if we have learned to love our God is to show our appreciation in our daily lives and service. This is the true test of love.—F. E. S.

THANKSGIVING DAY

ANOTHER YEAR has rolled round and we have come once more to the day set aside by our country as a Thanksgiving Day. The theory is beautiful and good, but the sad fact remains that in actual practice it becomes mostly a farce. A day of vacation and feasting, of satisfying fleshly desires even more than ordinarily, with no thought of the One who furnished the blessings,—such a day can hardly be pleasing to the loving Father above.

Let us who are Christians keep the day from being a farce with reference to ourselves. Shall we really offer to God our thanks both in words and in actions? What a future blessing lies in store for us if we will only do this!

—F. E. S.

THEREWITH CONTENT

AND HAVING FOOD and raiment let us be therewith content." 1 Tim. 6:8.

There is sound wisdom in these words from the great apostle, and how much happier we would all be in this world if we could fully realize the actual truth. Money does not measure happiness. Some of the most unhappy hearts in all the world are found in persons who live in mansions surrounded by luxury. Some of the happiest and most contented persons have practically no financial standing.

Do you have necessary food and bodily comforts? Let us lift our eyes to God in full appreciation and "be therewith content."—F. E. S.

WAIT ON

To talk with God,
No breath is lost,—
Talk on!

To walk with God,
No strength is lost,—
Walk on!

To wait on God,
No time is lost,—
Wait on!

GREETINGS FOR CHRISTMAS

Let us Send Your Christmas Greetings to Your Friends.

WE HAVE ARRANGED a plan by which we can send a double Christmas greeting to each of your friends as coming from you personally,—a nicer greeting and at much less expense than you can send them.

Our plan is this: we are arranging to publish a special Christmas Number of The Restitution Herald in colors with a genuine Christmas greeting on the front cover. You send us a list of those to whom you would send Christmas cards, and we will mail a beautiful greeting card in a pretty envelope by 2c postage to each of those persons sending your Christmas Wishes and telling them that you are having the special Christmas Number of The Restitution Herald sent to further convey your season's greetings. We will do all of this for ten cents per name, which is less than the price for which you can buy and mail a neat greeting card.

If there are duplications, that is if more than one sends the name of a certain person, we will see that the said person receives the name of each one who sent the name.

Make up your list just as soon as possible and mail it to us with ten cents for each name and your Christmas card worries will be over for this year.

Furthermore, who can estimate the good that will come from sending this special issue of The Herald into so many homes?

“IN EVERY THING GIVE THANKS”

Nothing but thanks for my Father's love
Who gave His Son for me.
Nothing but thanks for Him who bore
My sins on Calvary.

Nothing but thanks for the Spirit's care,
Lest my faltering steps should stray.
Nothing but thanks for His keeping power,
Which holds me day by day.

Nothing but thanks for the chastening Hand
Though it sometimes makes me groan.
Nothing but thanks for the bread He sends,
Though it may resemble a stone.

Nothing but thanks for the taking away
Of all that might mar my walk.
Nothing but thanks for the doors He shuts
That only with Him may I talk.

Nothing but thanks for the pilgrim's robe,
Though it oft is stained with tears.
Nothing but thanks for the comforting touch,
When my heart is faint with fears.

Nothing but thanks that I'm not my own.
To will, or choose, or do.
Nothing but thanks for my daily cross,
Which is given to keep me true.

Nothing but thanks for the living hope,
That some day, face to face,
I'll meet my Lord, who died for me,
And saved me by His grace.

—George Bryan.

THE JOY OF THE LORD

By A. G. Osterberg

ONE OF THE outstanding Christian blessings is the joy of constant victory. The Lord has promised victories in the Christian experience; for it is a continual warfare, and so there must be a continual victory or there will be partial defeat. The joy of victory in a single battle is great, but the joy is still greater when victory becomes constant. This having the joy of constant victory may be the exception rather than the rule; but if it is, it is because our total dependence is not on the Lord. If we look to the Lord as the Captain of our salvation, surely we can not concede that He is a loser of battles. It is a question of our relationship to Him. God has so arranged it that in all our actions we reveal whether we are on the loser's or victor's side. Our speech betrayeth us. Brethren, how much is your faith good for this morning? It is a fact that you can tell Christians who are overcomers whenever you see them. No wonder they are filled with joy! No wonder they are overflowing with happiness!

It is the joy of pureness and freedom. The great slaveholder of the universe is Satan; and the greatest agency for slavery is the desire for, and the weakness in, sin. Thank God, we can be set free from all this. Our hearts are made pure and are restored to the divine image not because of what we are in ourselves but because we have been redeemed. As long as we submit to the Redeemer, by His power we are kept free from sin; and with this knowledge and experience there is great joy. Jesus said, "These things have I spoken unto you." What things had He spoken unto them? He had been speaking about the union between Christ and the believers, the vine and the branches, and he said that every branch that beareth fruit He purgeth it that it may bring forth more fruit. And then He adds, "Now ye are clean through the words that I have spoken unto you." Without dwelling here too long, it is well to say that this inward consciousness of being clean brings joy to the individual who experiences it. And this consciousness lies at the foundation of real freedom. We see people contending for their individual and personal liberty. Much of this is mere nonsense. My liberty is not taken away because I may be held in restraint by other individuals. My liberty involves something far greater than that. The power to make me free is vested in Deity and, thank God he whom the Son makes free is free indeed.

There is also the joy of persecution. Half-hearted Christians dread and shun it. Earnest Christians soon learn that the law of divine compensation brings reward out of suffering, and they learn to rejoice in it. It has been asked, "How can you be happy when men are talking against you?" Ah, there is the secret. If you are innocent, God provides the happiness, He is the great Compensator. It would seem as though the ones who were slandered must be very miserable, but it turns out that the miserable ones are those who conduct the persecution. Peter slept while his would-be-murderers had no rest. While Daniel seemed at ease and perfectly serene, the king cried out with a lamentable voice. It was Stephen who was being murdered for his testimony and faith in Christ, but he seemed to have a better time than his tormentors. It says his face shone like the face of an angel. While Paul was being stoned at Lystra, where finally he was left for dead, after being drawn out of the city, the Scripture says he astounded the disciples who were standing around him and who were undoubtedly weeping and very sorrowful. He stood up and went back into the city where he comforted and admonished the saints to stand fast in the faith, adding that it must be through much tribulation that they would enter into the kingdom of God. What a man he was! and what a saint!

We are at this point reminded of what Jesus said, "When men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you, falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad." Luke adds, "Rejoice ye in that day and leap for joy." Thank God for the possibility of such an experience!

Then there is the joy of standing alone. It was while John was in exile on Patmos that the Lord opened heaven for him and gave him the great revelation. It probably was while Paul was being stoned at Lystra and was comparatively alone, that he was caught up into the third heaven. It was after Judas had gone out to make the final arrangements for betraying his Lord; when the disciples, as Jesus had already foretold, were all about to forsake Him; when the menace of the cruel cross hung over Him with suffocating nearness, that He spoke to His followers of the "joy no man taketh from you."

It is true that blessing comes as we stand along with others, or as we gather in companies, or in conventions; and we are commanded not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together. On the other hand, it is a good thing that our joy is not dependent upon others standing with us, or on our being privileged to be in conventions. It is the Lord's joy and is therefore not dependent upon human agencies.

It is also the joy of obedience. It is the disobedient child who is dark-faced and sullen. It is the lawbreaker who is wretched and miserable, whose heart is filled with apprehension. Every officer he meets is a source of fear and torment. His mind is terrorized day and night. He dreams of arrest, and his waking hours are filled with misery, while the obedient citizen without thought brushes the sleeve of the police officer or walks unconcerned by the jail or penitentiary. As a lad, like other boys, I thought that obedience was a sort of slavery. Now I see that disobedience is slavery. It was Jesus who was anointed above His fellows, who cried, "Lo, I have come to do thy will, O God."

And it is the joy of sacrifice. One of the immutable laws of the kingdom is, "He that saveth his life shall lose it." I have observed for twenty years that this is absolutely true; and even if I were not a Christian, but knew what I know, I would not dare to disobey that precept. If I have any desire for advancement in any sphere, I know it is not for me, as a Christian, to fight my way through to obtain it. I know this is contrary to worldly philosophy, nevertheless I am certain it is scriptural and right. If we maintain the proper relationship toward God, He will work out His plans for us in His own time and way. On the other hand, if we are clinging to an idea which is not in His plan, and we fight our way to its attainment, we will eventually lose, and will make a fool of ourselves besides. Jesus' whole life was a life of sacrifice, and it was of Jesus that it is said, "He emptied Himself." Can it be said that He had no rights to defend? He did have rights, but His greater right lay in self-sacrifice. The most miserable folks in the world are those who have their own way. They are not happy, cannot be. Happiness does not lie in having our own way. The folks who clamor for their rights and struggle for privileges, that they may live in comfort and ease, have yet to learn what true living is. To them the terms self-immolation, abnegation, and crucifixion are filled with terror. Satan has deceived them. They are living but to die.

PROVIDING FOR THANKSGIVING

THANKSGIVING does not take care of itself. It must be provided for. There is a striking description of an Old Testament official position, tucked away in one of the "uninteresting" lists of names that we so often find in the inspired history. They are never uninteresting when we find why God had them recorded. In Nehemiah 12: 8, we read that among the priests and Levites who went up with Zerubbabel to Jerusalem was Mattaniah, "which was over the thanksgiving, he and his brethren." Here was a Levite specially assigned to direct thanksgiving.

Praise and thanksgiving were very prominent in the Old Testament ritual; should they be less so to-day, when God has provided for us "the fullness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ"? But if we would render the thanksgiving that we should, we must take definite steps to do this, setting our heart and mind to it, reading the Word to discover every fresh reason for thanksgiving, and keeping in close fellowship with Him whom we would thank. The Holy Spirit, indwelling us, will be "over the thanksgiving" in our lives, if we will let it.—S. S. Times.

"No answer is ever needed to such questions that so obviously answer themselves." From "Jesus Christ in the Old Testament", page 18. R. H. Judd.

ARE WE THANKFUL?

IF, AFTER EXPERIENCING all the persecutions and hardships the Apostle Paul did, he could still say "In everything give thanks", how much more should we in this favored land of liberty set aside at least one day in the year for this purpose!

And so I am thankful for:

T ime in which to work for God and my fellowman,
 H ope, the blessed anticipation of life with Jesus,
 A ll things which work together for my good,
 N ight with its quiet hours for rest.
 K indness shown me by my friends in the Church of God everywhere,
 F aith in the promises of the Bible,
 U nlimited blessings and mercies all my life,
 L ove of a Father who cares for me, and a Savior who died for me.

AFTER THE HARVEST THEN— THANKSGIVING

By F. L. Austin

THE HAPPY SPRING wafting the balmy airs laden with the promises of our eternal Father; the glowing summer radiant with Heaven's growth-producing rays and invigorating showers; the golden autumn maturing field and orchard and forest mottling prairie, valley and mountain side with its myriad tinted pictures revealing unspeakable mysteries of the mind of Him who beneficently watches over all: then

Thanksgiving.

And what else could it be that should well forth from the heart of appreciative man? What else could it be? The more one truly and deeply realizes the fact that "every good and perfect gift" cometh from Him "in whom we live and move and have our being", the more does it become impossible to refrain from uniting with David in again and again lifting the thankful heart high before Him whose grace and loving kindness endure forever.

How shall those thanks be presented to the Father? Let it be by fervent and affectionate prayer—prayer wrapped in the rich and beautiful wrappings of Love that knows no satisfaction other than loving service, and sealed with a devotion of consecration that can be appropriated only by Him whose we are, and addressed to Him who sits over all and above all upon the throne of the universe and to His Son upon His right hand.

The Prayer of Thanksgiving! What a privilege it is! How oft it bursts forth uncontrolled toward a fellow mortal for e'en the little tokens of life! How much more appropriate, and how much more edifying, when it flows forth, artesian like, unto the Giver of all things!

Let us Pray the Prayer of Thanksgiving.

A PARABLE OF JESUS

By A. L. Corbaley

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

FOUR WAYS IN WHICH TO KNOW THE BIBLE

THE FIRST is to get acquainted with its beauty spots, and this, of course is the way in which the great majority of people know the Book. Some of the choicest narratives in the Old Testament, notably the matchless stories of Joseph, a few of the greatest Psalms, select samples of the resonant eloquence of Isaiah, a few of the parables of Jesus, and the Sermon on the Mount, some of Paul's supreme passages, especially the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians—such is the Bible most people know.

The second way to know the Bible is to know its individual books. Many a man has struggled to find interest and sense in some selections of the Scripture, like a collection of prophetic sermons in the Old Testament, or an epistle in the New, and then, discovering what the book really is about, what kind of man wrote it, when he wrote it, why he wrote it, to whom he wrote it, has seen the light break until what was dull and opaque became luminous and clear. To read the books of the Bible without knowing their vivid settings is like listening to one-half of a telephone conversation.

A third way to know the Bible is to know its characters, for the Bible is biography, and he who would understand its meaning must familiarly acquaint himself with the men and women who throng its pages and illustrate its truths. Its men and women must be real people in his imagination and his affection. He must come up to what the Bible says by way of the lives through whom the Bible says it, until Amos the shepherd of Tekoa, or Hosea of the ruined house and broken heart, Peter the vacillating changed to rock, or Paul of the indwelling and unconquerable love for Christ, are his familiar friends.

But indispensable as are these three ways of knowing the Book, all of them together are not enough. Only as one is able to trace up through the whole Scriptures the development of the structural ideas does he really know the Bible. To start with God conceived as One who walks in the garden in the cool of the day, or as One who comes down and confuses man's speech lest they build their tower so high as to reach His home; to know the road that leads out from the beginning until in the New Testament God is revealed in Christ as the spiritual Presence in whom we live, whose name is love; and to be able in any book to locate oneself with reference to this progressive revelation of the meaning of God—that is to know the Bible.

—Selected

Sin is not hurtful because it is forbidden, but it is forbidden because it is hurtful.

SO IN THIS MANNER Lazarus, representing the Gentiles, was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The next clause in our parable concerns the rich man;—"The rich man also died, and was buried; and in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom." In the beginning of the ministry of Jesus and His apostles, the gospel was preached exclusively to the Jews. Later it was preached to and received by both Jew and Gentile. Then the rich man, representing the Jew, dies.

In Acts 13:14-41 we find Paul and Barnabas at Antioch in the Jewish synagogue. Paul by invitation of the rulers of the synagogue preached to the Jews assembled there, recounting the blessings God had bestowed on Israel in the past, and of David the king to whom it was promised, "Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne."—Psa. 132:11. He informs them that, "Of this man's seed hath God according to his promise raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus." How they had condemned him! "And though they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate that he should be slain. . . . But God raised him from the dead," and "through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins." He then warns them not to reject the message he brought them, "Beware therefore, lest that come upon you, which is spoken of in the prophets; behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish; for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you." Here the Lord had foretold not only that the Jews would reject their Messiah, but also by that rejection that they would utterly perish.

At verse 42 we read, "And when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue, the Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them the next sabbath. . . . And the next sabbath day came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God. But when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming. Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you; but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles. For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth."

This was in A. D. 45. When the Jews learned that the Gentiles came into the faith of the gospel on an equality with themselves, they, as a people, rejected it and turned back to the law of Moses. True, there were still some Jews converted, but the great bulk of conversions from

HIS LAST WORDS

JOHN 14 TO 17

THERE IS GLORY about these four chapters which a devout soul can feel but never describe. The tenderness of a dying parent addressing his own child mingles with the solemn dignity of a dying Lord, giving orders to His future apostles. There are no wasted words here. It is literature, the very highest, but something more. Human language never carried a greater weight of reality. We are told by some that this passage is a pious forgery of the second century. I would like to meet the forger. No Dante, Shakespeare, Milton, or Bacon has ever approached such a level since. If these sentences do not bear the very marks of Jesus Christ Himself, then the human mind need never look for divine inspiration anywhere. To exegete this great passage I will not attempt, but as one whose heart has felt something of its power, I will try very simply to record a few impressions.

We have here a hope beyond this world made certain in the plainest terms: "I go to prepare a place for you." "I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." "I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory." No one can mistake the meaning of these words. They cannot be corrupted. They need no labored explanation. The untutored can understand them. The most learned cannot but marvel at them. The very certainty of God rings through them. "A place"; "I will receive you"; "With me where I am." Lord Jesus, we thank thee. These words of thine answer man's most eager and pathetic questions.

We have here a permanent relation established and described between a living Lord beyond the grave and us men here on earth. "I am the vine. Ye are the branches." "Abide in me and I in you." This relationship is not mechanical or artificial. It is vital. It is not an affair of organization like that of two men in a club, but an affair of life like that of a branch in a vine or an arm in a body. Our lives are part of His, not parallel lines, for parallels never meet, but identicals, and identicals never separate. "Bound up in the bundle of life with the Lord." Regeneration is the pulse-beat of the Son of God felt in the heart of the new-born believer. The sacred privileges which this brings are beyond words. Intercession: "Ask what ye will"; suffering for His sake, sharing His secret: "All things that I have heard from my Father, I have made known unto you." The soul that has once truly tasted these will cry, "Let Him give me what He will of material things and their satisfactions, but these I cannot live without."

"Oh, Jesus Christ, grow thou in me
And all things else recede;
My heart be daily nearer thee,
From sin be daily freed."

We have here one other promise which is the very climax of grace—that of the Comforter. This English word very awkwardly and insufficiently expresses the original. "Paraclete" is the real word. Did you ever try to lift a load and find it too heavy for one person? You called another man. He came and took hold of the other side of the load and together you lifted it with ease and comfort. He was your "paraclete." As near as we can come to a translation would be to say "one-called-to-one's-aid." Who is this whom Jesus promises to send to aid us in every undertaking for Him? None else than the Spirit of the everlasting God, the fullness of the Father through the Son working invisibly. This is not something to philosophize over, but something to be experienced. Far better a heart glowing with the certainty of His indwelling and strong with the sense of His help than to be able to elaborate the most beautiful theory of His way of working. When I am freezing I do not need a learned treatise on the laws governing fire or heat. I want a fire to warm me. The Holy Spirit of God's fire, God's energy, God's love. God's sufficiency made available in your own inner consciousness, making you to know in happy existence, the fathomless wealth of Christ. This promise, like the hope of which we spoke a moment ago, is couched in language that is simplicity itself; "If I depart, I will send him unto you." "He shall take of mine and show it unto you." Master, we could not ask you to say more.

The passage closes with a prayer for the Twelve and for us. It is in a class by itself. A perfectly divine man with a perfect understanding of God speaks to Him on behalf of sinful men. He is at home with God. He needs only five words of introduction to the greatest prayer ever uttered: "Father, the hour is come." He asks for Himself one thing only, "Glorify thy Son," which he explains later with the phrase, "Glorify thou me . . . with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." Then He asks four things for us. Unity, "That they all may be one"; purity, "Keep them from the evil"; consecration, "Consecrate them through thy truth"; and a final home with Him, "That they may be with me where I am." Every Christian in every land ought to learn these four chapters by heart for they enshrine the very heart of Christ.

MY CREED

To live as gently as I can;
 To be, no matter where, a man;
 To take what comes of good or ill;
 To cling to faith and honor still;
 To do the best and let that stand
 The record of my brain and hand;
 And then should failure come to me,
 Still work and hope for victory!

To have no secret place wherein
 I stoop unseen to shame or sin;
 To be the same when I'm alone
 As when my every deed is known;
 To live undaunted, unafraid
 On any step that I have made;
 To be, without pretense or sham,
 Exactly what men think I am.

THE GIFT OF GIFTS FOR THANKSGIVING

By R. H. Judd

"Death is swallowed up victoriously". (1 Cor. 15:54. R. V. m.) "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" 1 Cor. 15:57.

OFTEN THE CLOSING sentences of a speaker seem to vividly gather into focus the outstanding portions of his discourse, and not infrequently do they reveal the depth of the mental and spiritual struggle by which he obtained the knowledge which he imparts to others with all the fervor of his inmost being.

Paul's discourse in the 15th chapter of 1 Corinthians is an outstanding instance of this fact. Some great fundamental truth had grasped the mind of this earnest-hearted man. Our first meeting with him at the stoning of Stephen makes us to realize that his outlook on life was not that of the mere casual observer. The simple record that "Saul was consenting unto his (Stephen's) death" may seem to most of us to be but a chance remark, but to the writer it indicates a remarkable forecast of Paul's whole life. From that time forward the issues of life and death seemed to be uppermost in the mind of this deep thinker and thoughtful observer.

He, like many before him, had doubtless endeavoured to fathom the mystery of life; and the realization of the vast unlimited supply of all that ministers to its insatiable demands must have produced in such a man consternation that death should rob its victims of life's spoils. Abundant supply, to him foreshadowed abundant life. To him the evidence was unimpeachable that God intended man to live.

That the fearful struggle between life and death was constantly engaging his attention is made clear by expressions in his epistles which emphasize the extent of this awful conflict, and the impression that these thoughts had left upon his observing and sensitive personality. Life and death with him were always in contrast, and always in conflict. He had to admit, almost against his will, that "death reigned"—that men and women "through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage".

So strongly had these facts taken hold upon him that in addition to his frequent allusions to them in his various epistles, he devotes one whole chapter of 58 verses to the one consideration of this momentous theme in relation to those "in Christ". Then in the closing verses he bursts forth with a pean of joy as the culmination of his argument leads to victory, and one can almost hear him shout the glad song as he looks down through the ages to come,—"Death is swallowed up victoriously" (R. V. margin). "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? . . . Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." And again,— "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift." "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." "Death is swallowed up victoriously."

Oh friends, surely at this Thanksgiving time we can have no better theme than that of ultimate victory of life over death—that "there shall be no more death" (Rev. 21:4). Just as surely as "truth forecasts the knowledge of truth yet to come", so surely does the overthrow of death forecast with it the overthrow of sin, for "the wages of sin is death."

Jesus Christ said,—"I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me though he die, yet shall he live."

Again we say,—"THANKS be unto GOD for his unspeakable GIFT."

"GOD lays claim to the whole life of the individual."
 "Jesus Christ in the Old Testament", page 17. R. H. Judd.

FATHER, I THANK THEE

FOR THE WONDERFUL GIFT Thou hast given me, a Savior who came to seek and to save that which was lost, who loves me and understands my needs, who died that I might live;

For the opportunity to work for that Savior whom I love, to teach others to appreciate and honor Him, and to impart to them the joy of service;

For the blessings that come to me while laboring in the Master's vineyard in the renewed consecration of my own life, in daily endeavor to be worthy of the reward He will give to the faithful at His appearing;

For all the material blessings Thou art daily showering upon me, though I am often times unworthy and unmindful of them;

For all of these unmerited favors, at this Thanksgiving season in grateful reverence I humbly bow before Thee, the Giver of every good and every perfect gift.

THANKSGIVING DAY MEDITATIONS

PAUL HAD LEARNED how to be content wherever he was, no matter what his outward circumstances might be. If you had visited him in the Roman prison and had said to him, "I'm very sorry for you, Paul; it is just a terrible shame for a wonderful apostle, teacher and preacher like you to be shut up here in prison when you might be out winning souls for the Master," you would have heard him reply, "The things which have happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the gospel, even these very bonds of mine are making some of the brethren much more bold in preaching the gospel; so everything is all right, just you keep praising God; I am rejoicing in all this and will rejoice."

Paul was a new creation and he had a new constitution. He was now constitutionally a rejoicer. The old Adam is constitutionally a grouch. Instead of breathing out threatenings, he was now breathing out thanksgivings. The new song within had never sung itself out; there were always more verses to unwind. Looking past every outward circumstance, Paul's eyes were riveted on Him who was the Author and Finisher of his faith, and he knew that everything that He, in His infinite love and mercy, allowed, was just one more thing for which to be thankful. That transformed the dreary dungeon into a palace of praise.

Lots of folks think that if they could leave the place where they live and work, and be somewhere else, they would be perfectly happy and contented. No, they would not. They would take themselves with them to the new place, and they would still find lots to complain about. It is not the place that you are in that counts but what is in you. Paul could sing in a cell because his heart was overflowing with praise to his Maker.

Normal Christianity as Paul taught it was a thing that just bubbled over continually with gratitude, thanksgiving and praise, giving thanks always for all things, and in everything giving thanks. Listen to what he wrote the Colossians: "Since you have had the Messiah, even Jesus the Lord, brought to you, lead your life in Him, fixed and founded in Him, confirmed in the faith as you have been taught it, and overflowing with thankfulness to God." Col. 2:6, 7, Moffat's trans. God wants an overflowing people, so full up with praise that it has to burst out, folks suffering with the "can't help it" complaint that can't help praising and giving God the glory.

It is good to have one day set apart each year for Thanksgiving Day, but one day a year is inadequate for folks who are "overflowing with thankfulness to God." They need 364 extra days, and in leap year, still one more, in which to laud and magnify their Savior. Why? Because they are "fixed and founded in him." Branches of the living Vine, they can not but produce the fruit of the Spirit, love, JOY, peace, etc. Do you overflow? Or has the joy note dropped out? The wells of salvation were clogged once in the life of David, but he prayed out that tremendous prayer of Psalm 51 and cried to God to restore unto him the joy of His salvation. In response the Lord opened his lips, and his mouth once again showed forth His praise.

The JOY of the Lord is your strength. Be fearful of everything that might cause you to lose that joy. David cried to be washed and cleansed and purged when the joy bells were dumb within. A like prayer is often the only way out. Anything less than a life of joyful praise for a child of God is utterly abnormal.

All things work together for good to them that love God, don't they? So we can therefore be thankful for all things. "Let such as love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified." How can we best magnify the Lord? David shows us how, "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving." Let the words flow out a hundred times a day from your innermost being, "Thank you, Lord Jesus." There is always so much for which to thank Him.

There is one reason why lots of folks are joyless and praiseless and lacking in thankfulness to God—they do not delight themselves in the law of the Lord. The psalmist said, "Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage forever: for they are the rejoicing (or joy) of my heart." "Have no time to read the Bible," I hear some one say. You have always time to do the thing you want to do. If you want to read the newspaper, you find time for it. The joyless, praiseless man is the one who is so occupied with things temporal that he has "no time" for the Word of the Lord that abideth forever.

"And whatsoever you do, in word or in deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, and let it be through Him that you give thanks to God the Father." Col. 3:17, Weymouth's trans.—S. H. F. Selected by Madeline Gardiner.

A PARABLE OF JESUS

that time and forward has been from among the Gentiles. As the apostle James testified in Acts 15:13-15, "After they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name." The apostle Paul testifies in Rom. 11:7 concerning their rejection, "What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded". Then in verse 20 we read, "Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not high-minded, but fear." Here then is where the rich man, the Jews, died so far as their being of the people of the Lord was concerned. Now the conditions were reversed. The Gentiles who accepted the gospel were the Lord's people,

"THAT WHICH THOU SOWEST IS NOT QUICKENED, EXCEPT IT DIE". 1 Cor. 15:36.

LIFE IS A PARADOX. Have you ever stopped to think just how much of a paradox it is? Life is the most priceless possession we have, the one thing we would give our last cent of material wealth to prolong for a day or an hour. With it there is hope, opportunity, everything—without life we are nothing.

If there is one tendency that predominates in human nature, therefore, it is probably the inclination to hold on to life at the expense of everything else. And still Christ's whole teaching was to the opposite effect. How often we find Him reasoning with his followers on the principle expressed in these words: "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it."

This is not a law so contrary to nature as it appears to be on first consideration. Rather we find it beautifully illustrated in every evidence of the handiwork of the Creator.

The sower goes forth to sow. From early morn until the sun's last rays are lengthening over the field he literally pours out his life's energy in the task of obtaining substance for similar days of toil. The seed is placed in the earth, but it must lose its identity as a seed before there can spring forth into the light of day the lovely tendrils of the new plant. It comes to maturity, and the luscious fruit with which its branches are laden is stripped off and taken away. The plant is robbed of its whole life's store, but with its fruit a little child is nourished and developed into a strong young man. We behold also the monarch of the forest. The woodman's sturdy blows fall unmercifully upon the base of its proud old trunk which centuries of growth have formed. It crashes to the ground and is cut into thousands of feet of lumber. It is no more a tree, but a little home is built where there is shelter from the storm and where loving hearts find happiness.

And so we find that in human nature the principle of the loss of self is just as necessary. There is no true sacrifice made but what there comes from it a blessing that all the selfish striving in the world could not obtain.

Our Master taught this, but His teaching would have meant little to us had not His whole life been one perfect example of self-forgetfulness and service to those who needed Him. And then the crowning sacrifice of all—for He accomplished more by His death than all the years of life allotted Him could have gained—His death on the cross. Yes, Jesus the Man was dead, but three days later the LORD arose to glorious immortality with this promise—"Because I live, ye shall live also."

God has asked us to present our bodies a living sacrifice. It was for Christ to die, but His work is done. Bereans, there is no better way for us to follow Him than to live in unselfish service to those whom He died to redeem.

We are giving this week some comments from one of our California Bereans on Lesson 22 of our senior outline. We are sure these will be interesting to all Bereans, whether or not they have gone as far as this lesson:

THE WORK OF CHRIST IN DEATH

Gal. 2:21 says: "I do not frustrate the grace of God: for if righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain." Because man is mortal by nature and is under the penalty of death because of the sin of Adam, some plan to bring about righteousness, or life, was necessary. The law could not do this, not because it was not perfect, but because man was weak and incapable of keeping the law. It served, however, as a schoolmaster to bring man to Christ, who was the redeeming influence, the only One who could bring immortality.

Christ was mortal. He gave His life that we might live. We know that He was raised from the dead, and so we have hope of eternal life, "for if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him". If Christ had not died and been resurrected, we would have no hope beyond the grave.

We can understand better the work of Christ in death by studying the types which foreshadowed His blood sacrifice.

PAUL GOES TO ROME

PAUL, AS A ROMAN CITIZEN, appealed to Caesar for trial. Therefore Paul, accompanied by Luke, Aristarchus and other prisoners, was given in charge of a centurion of Augustus' band. The company set sail for Rome, but met with a terrible storm. The boat was thrust aground and completely wrecked, yet not one passenger was drowned.

They were cast upon an island then called Melita—now Malta—which lies near the middle of the Mediterranean Sea. God has friends for His people in unexpected places, and so it was that the people of the island showed real kindness to the distraught voyagers. The first thing needed was a fire to dry their clothing, and warm their chilled bodies. So all set to work gathering sticks and drift-wood.

A peculiar incident occurred at this time. As Paul laid his bundle of sticks on the fire a poisonous snake—a viper—came out of the fire and fastened upon Paul's hand. The islanders saw the snake, and immediately decided that Paul was a prisoner—murderer, perhaps; and that, although he had escaped death in the storm, the snake had been sent to complete his punishment. However, Paul merely shook the serpent off into the fire. Much to the astonishment of those watching, nothing further happened. They expected him to die; and when no harm did come to him they changed their minds, and said he must be a god. Their wonder must have grown even more when Paul healed many of them.

Publius, the chief man of this island invited Paul and others to lodge in his house. They were very grateful for this kindness, remaining three days. Paul was, no doubt, happy to do a real kindness in return. The father of Publius was very sick. Therefore Paul went into the sick man's room, prayed to God for help, laid his hands on the invalid and healed him at once. Of course, this miracle was soon known over the island, and many others came and were healed. Out of appreciation for this great service, the natives brought Paul many gifts.

After three months spent at Melita, the travelers again set sail in another ship of Alexandria. They stopped at Syracuse three days, then Rhegium and Puteoli. Here seven days were given to visiting with brethren. Then on to Rome! Jewish believers in Rome heard that Paul was on his way and came to meet him. Much encouraged, he at once thanked God for these friends, Rome at last! Julius had performed his mission.

His prisoners were all safely delivered to the captain of the guard. Paul, however was permitted to live by himself with a soldier as guard. His friends were also allowed to visit him.

Three days passed. Then Paul invited the Jewish leaders to his dwelling. He explained to them how it came about that he was in Rome as prisoner. They had not been told of the trouble, although they had heard that some of his teaching was spoken against. A later day Paul preached to them as he had in other places, some believing, others not. He told them that he had been sent to preach salvation also to the Gentiles.

Thus Paul spent two years in Rome, living in a house for which he paid rent. Our Bible tells us no more of Paul's life, other than the letters he wrote; so, let us leave him in Rome, "preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Could we face death and humiliation as courageously as Paul faced it?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read the story of the shipwreck. Acts 27.
2. Play out or act out the story with a small boat.
3. Trace this journey on your map.

SEED TIME AND HARVEST

By H. Oxley Stengel

Youth is the springtime of Life's long year;
And spring is the time to sow
Seeds which will blossom in summer's sun
And fruit in the autumn's glow.

Sow what you'd reap—if it's love and trust
The flowers will fragrant be;
Autumn come—rich with a treasure store,
A harvest of faith for thee.

Life with its seasons is ours to use,
With spring as its time for seed;
Dig deep in your heart and plant with care
A store for eternity's need.

If there is a person whom you dislike, that is the one of whom you should never speak.—Cecil.

Hatred does not cease by hatred, but by love only.
This is the eternal rule.—Buddha.

PAUL GOES TO ROME

Acts 27:1 to 28:31; Rom. 1:8-15; Phil. 1:12-14

Devotional Reading: Psa. 91:9-16

GOLDEN TEXT

For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation.—Rom. 1:16.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Paul Goes to Rome. "Be of good cheer, Paul; for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome." Acts 23:11. These words, spoken to Paul by the Lord the night following his arrest in Jerusalem, gave to Paul a different vision of the daily experiences that followed. With man, Paul was journeying to Rome under the handicap of arrest; with Paul, he was journeying to Rome under the advantages of arrest, for the purpose of witnessing for his Master perhaps more strongly than ever before. The chain which fastened his wrist to that of his soldier guard was that which men ordinarily regarded as a symbol of protection whereby he was guarded by the soldier to whom he was bound. This amazing viewpoint of Paul's can be explained by no other than the word "faith in God."

Storms and shipwreck. In the light of the above mentioned faith, the storms, shipwrecks, and every apparent adverse circumstance were to Paul but so many opportunities for labors which would prove to be witnesses unto Christ. The occasions of fear and fright in others were occasions of joy and gladness in Paul. Where they prayed for Heaven's protection, Paul prayed for strength to fully perform acceptable service to his God and to his Savior.

In like manner, Paul's imprisonment and bondage in Rome were known to him to be but opportune circumstances out of which he could emphasize more forcefully the fact of the resurrection of his Lord and of the added power in His hand.

Paul's Sacrifice. In the light of these facts, Paul's suffering on this journey, as also his many former sufferings, instead of being only persecutions by the people were really sacrifices upon his part in honor of his Savior. Gladly he sacrificed the normal ambitions of mankind that he might thus exalt the name of his Lord. In this, it is more than doubtful if he suffered more personally than do the majority who follow their own individual wills.

It was by such sacrifice that Paul became instrument to carry Christ's message of love and salvation to many people including those at Rome.

The victory that overcomes. Paul's sturdy and ever true Christian life, emphasized by works, the abiding truth which the loved apostle expressed in words: "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." 1 Jno. 5:4. Paul's abiding faith in Christ enabled him to proclaim the Master's greatness, and thus gave impetus to increase of Christianity as none other man ever did. Victory for Christ, not for Paul; victory for the transition from the law to the gospel, not for man's ambitious ideals; victory that would reach unto eternity, not for the fleeting moment: these were some of the great achievements of Paul's faith in Rome.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Men-Brethren! the Scripture was needing to be fulfilled which the Holy Spirit spake-beforehand, through David's mouth, concerning Judas, who became guide to those who apprehended Jesus."—Acts 1:16, Rth.

There is no salvation in any other than Jesus Christ, and the gospel (the good news of the kingdom) is the way thereto. No one can save himself. Paul was not ashamed of the gospel, yea, more he gloried in it and counted it his highest honor to publish and defend it against all, no matter how much they reproached and ridiculed him.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

All Things Work Together for Good. Today's lesson shows how Paul was given an opportunity to apply in a practical way a statement which he had written to the Roman brethren two years before. In commenting to them upon life, he had said that all things work together for good. In that same letter he had expressed the hope of being able to come to Rome that he might preach the gospel to them also. Now within two years' time he found himself a prisoner on a convict ship, sent to Rome as a common felon. But he did not murmur nor complain. In fact, under the partial liberty accorded him, he faithfully taught all comers and thus was the first to present Christ in this central city of the then known world.

All things did work for good, and they will always do so for the person who faithfully, calmly does the Father's will. God sees us in our trials as well as in our joys; and if we have faith He will make the outcome that which is best for us. The most practical thing in the world, then, is to trust God and let Him direct.—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Submitted Mind.

"I appeal unto Caesar", said Paul when asked by Festus if he would go to Jerusalem and appear before his accusers. Acts 25:11. There is no evidence that this decision was the result of God's guidance except that Paul knew that God had commissioned him to bear His name before Gentiles, kings, and the children of Israel. Acts 9:15.

Once before Paul rendered a decision and essayed to go into Mysia after God had forbidden him to continue his work in Asia. This decision was definitely set aside, Paul readily agreeing. Acts 16:6, 7. God's guidance in this decision is not so clear. There seems to be only Paul's anxiety over the work in Asia.

Paul's decision to appear before Caesar seemed about to be set aside by a storm. Acts 27:20. But God spoke to him, saying, "Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar", and Paul believed God. Acts 27:20-25. His action was confirmed. Witness Paul's decision to go into Mysia. It means that reasoning, judging and deciding of the submitted mind starts with something God has said; that the submitted mind takes steps according to its best judgment to fulfill revealed will; and that further guidance will be granted as it is necessary. Witness Paul's decision to appear before Caesar.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: A Teacher in Imprisonment.

When we think of Paul's voyage to Rome, we at once call to mind the story of his shipwreck, and what a long, disastrous journey it proved to be. But this was the message of assurance that Paul received from God. "Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar." Paul had absolute faith in this assurance.

Upon his arrival in Rome, he at once began to defend himself and his belief. His defense was so effective that some believed. Two years were spent by Paul as a prisoner in Rome, but he was granted the privilege of living in his own hired house, yet under guard. What would you and I have done during these two years, had we been in Paul's position? Here is what our lesson text says he did, "And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding."

This no doubt ends the record we have of Paul's work of the ministry; but we cannot but feel encouraged by the study of his life when we see how faithfully he upheld the work of the gospel.—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Submission: meaning of; wisdom of man's submission to God's mind; result as to activity and surety; the deadness of a submitted mind minus the influence of prayer; the danger of an active mind minus the guidance of prayer; is the submitted mind necessarily passive? Evidence that Paul's submitted mind was active.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Have you sent your Thanksgiving offering yet? Read page 3 of this issue.

Word from Ripley reports good meetings for week-end of Nov. 17 and 18 with interest running high.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay in the Dixon Hospital, Dixon, Ill., is reported to be improving somewhat, we are very thankful to say.

Our little group at Rockford, Ill., has been taking some special work the past three weeks. Here is an interesting class.

Bro. Marsh conducted services in Chicago last Sunday forenoon, and then hurried home to preach to the Dixon church at night.

Bro. Rufus A. Curtis, 3934 Ridge Ave., Dayton, Ohio, is reported quite ill. Also Bro. D. K. Lehman, West Milton, Ohio, has been undergoing a serious illness.

Bro. H. D. Pearson is still taking treatment at the Miama Valley Hospital, Dayton, Ohio. A line of encouragement is always acceptable when one is confined for so long.

Turn to the notice "Greetings For Christmas" on page 3 of this issue, and act accordingly. Let us solve your problem and take care of your Christmas Greeting's worries.

Bro. Merle Bell, son of Bro. and Sr. H. S. Bell, LaCrosse, Wis., is in a hospital just now for treatment and observation. Remember this worried family in your prayers.

Bro. Austin appears to have been having some very successful meetings at and near Hammond, Louisiana. We hope for fuller report next week. Be sure and write this office if you wish some Field Word in your locality.

The Bible Training Class is doing some splendid work. They have some very interesting sessions and are able to present some worth while talks. How splendid if we could have several dozens of our best young men and women taking such training! Are there any that you can encourage in that direction?

Bro. Marsh has a brand new number at his house in Dixon, Ill. Fact is that he is a much larger man than some folks realize at first glance. First they gave him the number 323 1-2 N. Galena Ave., but after the government had taken time to size him up they decided to remove the 1-2 suggestion and give him a whole number. He therefore asks that all take notice that his address is now 325 North Galena Ave.

CALIFORNIA

Bro. and Sr. Rollo Dawson have returned from Oakland, where they have been located for the past year.

Bro. Johnson has been talking to a full house for several Sundays, another reason for his broad smile.

Bro. O. J. Allard and wife have returned from Iowa recently. They haven't found any place they like better than Sunny California.

Bro. Johnson is wearing a broad smile now. There's a reason! He has found a home at last. His uncle, O. J. Johnson, and wife, are located at 1236 Yosemite Dr., Los Angeles, and he is living with them.

Bro. and Sr. Saylor are spending Thanksgiving in Douglas, Ariz. They expect to celebrate her parents golden wedding anniversary, and their own silver wedding anniversary on Nov. 24th.

Brother Norman McCleod has been forced to give up his work at the University on account of ill health, and is now in a sanitarium where he expects to remain for six weeks at least.

IOWA

Bro. J. Arthur Johnson, working for the Iowa Conference, requests that his mail be sent to Eagle Grove, Iowa, Box 224.

Bro. Arthur Johnson filled the regular monthly appointment at the Pleasant Prairie church on Sunday, November 18. There are quite a number of the brethren here and with steady effort this should be a very strong and active church, bringing a great blessing to the community by carrying the true gospel to its doors.

Several series of evangelistic meetings have been held in the state recently. The brethren at Eagle Grove, very enthusiastic and able workers, have an exceedingly heavy load of prejudice to overcome. This, of course, comes largely through other denominations. But why should it be otherwise, when one considers the difference in the hope which is set before us by truth and by error? At Webster City, however, we have a much more hopeful outlook. The attendance has been fair and interest keen.

NIAGARA FALLS

Brother James A. Patrick arrived in Niagara Falls, N. Y., last Saturday, Nov. 17 to fill the pulpits at Niagara Falls, N. Y. and Fonthill, Ont., left vacant by Bro. G. E. Marsh. The congregation is very much pleased to have with them a man of such ability to carry on the work here, even though it be for so short a time. He plans to be with us five Sundays.

Elsie Moore, Sec.

BLAIR, NEBR.

We were made to rejoice in last Sunday eve., service when two young men and one one lady came forward and confessed faith in Christ. Their names will be given next week.

We have all day service next Sunday, Nov. 25th, with basket dinner at 12:30 p. m., and baptismal service at 2:30 p. m.

Preparation is being made for the Thanksgiving service to be held in our church Wednesday evening, the 28th. The ministers of several of the leading churches of our city will take part, and we are looking forward to a great service.

Don't forget, if you have anything to donate to the annual bazaar of the Blair church to be held the first week of Dec., send the gifts to Bessie Jenkins, Blair, Nebr.

Things are going fine here. I think the main reason is we have a Wed. eve. prayer meeting.

E. E. Giesler

MINNESOTA

The Church of God at Mora had Bro. Tom Savage of Waite Park, who preached to us every evening for one week. Attendance was good and all enjoyed the sermons. The result of these meetings was one baptism, Lloyd W. Eklund, who was baptized by Bro. Sidney Magaw of Eden Valley, Sunday, Oct. 28. Our quarterly conference was held Oct. 26th-28th. It was a great success; attendance was good. Bro. Sidney Magaw preached most of the sermons during the conference and gave us some very interesting things to think of. We are hoping that we can have Bro. Savage and Bro. Magaw come to Mora again in the near future.

Wm. Eklund, Sec'y.

HOLBROOK, NEBR.

The Willing Workers' Society of the Church of God met Wednesday Nov. 7, at the home of Sr. Chas. Story for their monthly devotional and business meeting. Roll call was answered by members present with a scriptural verse containing word, FEAR, after which a lesson was given on Gospel Requirements and Rewards, led by our President, Sr. Geo. Scott.

The Willing Workers meet each week for the purpose of quilting quilts or making comforts in order to obtain means whereby they can fully equip the basement, or provide other necessities for the new church at Holbrook. Since the annual conference they have finished two quilts and four comforts. Some from a distance have been prevented from attending on account of weather conditions, but the ladies in Holbrook are to be complimented on their efforts, which we trust shall not go unrewarded.

Icel Stedman, Secretary.

WESTBROOK, TEXAS

Our third Sunday meeting in this month at New Hope, near Westbrook was certainly enjoyed. Brother and Sister Frank Sweatt, we know, are rejoicing, as their two daughters, Ella and Etta, made the good confession and were baptized.

May the Lord bless them and keep them in our prayer.

MULLIN TEXAS

We had a splendid meeting at Mullin, the second Sunday. A goodly number were out and we thank them for the splendid interest manifested. It is encouraging.

E. O. Stewart

MICHIGAN

Bro. and Sr. Arthur Richardson, of Coats Grove are the proud parents of a big boy. This is their first born. He will go by the name of John Amasa.

The Bible class work at West Bowne is steadily growing. There were over twenty grown-ups at the last study.

Bro. Hall spoke at West Bowne Sunday afternoon, Nov. 11 and in Grand Rapids the same evening. Sr. Woodward will speak at West Bowne Sunday, Nov. 18.

The basement of the Grand Rapids church has been partitioned off, which will allow five classes to be held there, each having a separate room.

Plans are being made for a revival to be held in the Grand Rapids church during the month of January. Announcement of plans and methods will be forthcoming in the near future.

The home office force is lonely this week. Miss Leila Mae Siple who ordinarily acts as secretary, stenographer, proof reader and a few other things is on her vacation. She and her mother, Mrs. G. M. Siple, left on Sunday Nov. 18, for Hammond, Louisiana, where they will spend Thanksgiving with relatives and old time friends.

It is encouraging to see the various departments of the church work at Oregon operating in good shape. The Sunday School is active and wide awake with children and young people conspicuously in the majority. The Senior and Junior Berean classes are also progressing, with a seven piece orchestra furnishing special music at the Senior class meetings at 6:30 Sunday nights. Good audiences have been present at the sermon hours, and the faithful choir under the capable leadership of Sr. Rogers can always be depended upon for good music.

UNITING IN PRAYER FOR THE CHURCH

The words which follow this under the heading "Church of God", and which are sent from the far off southland by Bro. Austin, are worthy of deepest consideration. If you believe in prayer give the matter special consideration. God will bless us if we show our trust in Him.

THE CHURCH OF GOD

By F. L. Austin

The greatest institution in all the world is God's church.

It has done more for suffering humanity in the nineteen centuries past than have all other institutions combined. It has kept before us the love of the Father. It has held aloft hope. It has revealed to succeeding generations the Lord of salvation. It has brought man in his hour of deepest need to Him who alone can afford true help. It has permeated multiplied nations with ways of Christ, modifying their characters and conduct with the love of Him who alone has victoriously risen above sin's awful grip. It has liberated millions from slavery's drudgery.

Now, this day, the church of God is the world's institution of greatest value.

Tomorrow? Tomorrow the church of God will head the world under the leadership of Christ, then Lord of lords.

And now write Bros. Newell and Geisler of Blair, Nebraska and ask that we set aside certain days on which we shall one and all unite in prayer for the peace and growth and prosperity of God's church, including our little denomination as organized and named, The Church of God.

Bros. Newell and Geisler believe in prayer. They believe Christ in His promise that "if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven." They ask that all of The Church of God who really and truly believe in prayer will unite with them on Thanksgiving day and at every Sunday morning service for the balance of 1928 in asking God to show us the way to a better and larger church in which shall abide the peace of God that passeth understanding.

To this request the writer gives heartiest voice of approval and urges that everywhere our people, one and all, in isolation and in groups, will pray God to show us our standing before Him; to forgive us our wrongs; to increase our ability to serve man—all to increase His honor and glory before a fast closing age.

BAPTISMAL CERTIFICATE

Our printing department has just finished producing several hundred copies of a neat, artistic Baptismal Certificate. It is in folder form with a dark blue cover bearing the title in gold. Inside the cover is certificate printed on ledger paper stock, cut and lettered to represent an open Bible. The one side of this inside sheet is a reproduction of the hand made page especially designated for this certificate, and all the lettering made by hand. The one who drew it spent many hours of faithful work and made no charge, so as to keep down the cost of the certificate.

An appropriate group of scripture texts is given in another place, and also a brief summary statement of the things for which we stand.

We are producing this certificate without thought of profit, and selling it at cost because we feel that it is nobly appropriate that a Christian have such a keep-sake and reminder of the most sacred step in life. If one cherishes a diploma or a marriage certificate, how much more should one prize a beautiful reminder of the occasion which means far more in life than either of the other!

We are, therefore, urging all our ministers to keep these on hand and present them properly filled out to each person baptized.

They may be ordered from The National Bible Institution for 9c each, $1.00 per dozen or $4.00 for fifty.

THE PARABLE OF JESUS

while the Jew was rejected because of unbelief. Jesus speaking to the Jews in Luke 13:2-3 says, "Suppose ye that these Galilaeans were sinners above all the Galilaeans, because they suffered such things? I tell you Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

In 70 A. D., the Roman general, Titus besieged Jerusalem in which siege 1,100,000 Jews were slain. The residue were sold in the slave marts of the world, thus fulfilling the prophecy of Jesus, "They shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." They are still a people. They have preserved their identity as Jews, "The shew of their countenance doth witness against them."—Isa. 3:9. It is even so to this day, as a nation they are dead and buried. The beggar Lazarus was not buried because the Gentiles still have authority and power in the world, have an existence as nations.

"And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom."

The term, hell, used in this passage is from the Greek word, hades, and is used eleven times in the New Testament. Once it is translated, the grave, and ten times, hell. In the Old Testament the Hebrew word is scheol, and it is used 65 times. Thirty-one times it is rendered, hell, 31 times, the grave, and three times, the pit. This variety of translation has made a great deal of confusion with regard to the meaning of the word. In Psa. 16:10 David exclaims, "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." In Acts 2:31 Peter says, "He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption." Jesus was three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. Matt. 12:40.

OBITUARIES

CLINTON AUGUST DONAHOUE

Clinton Donahouer was born August 5, 1903, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Donahouer of Ripley, Ill., and passed away at the home of his parents on Nov. 6, 1928, having just passed his twenty-fifth birthday. He was the last surviving child of a family of four children.

Until a year and one half ago, Clinton spent his entire life in the community of Ripley, Ill. After finishing his home school he attended business college at Quincy, Ill. For the last year and one half he has been employed by the Sinclair Oil Company in Chicago. There he was married on May 5, 1928, to Mary Florence Carlin, who was his faithful and loving companion through their few months of life together, and in the hour of death.

On Wednesday Clinton complained to his wife that he had not been feeling well. A medical examination brought the doctor's advice that he take a couple weeks off and rest up. On Friday night he drove to Ripley to take that rest at his parent's home. On Tuesday morning he died.

In the little church at Ripley Clinton stepped forward to acknowledge Christ as his Savior, and was baptized by the writer on March 21, 1927. From the same church, packed to capacity with sorrowing relatives and friends, we conducted his funeral on Nov. 8, 1928, and laid him to rest in the local cemetery, the little burial ground in which sleep Elder J. M. Stevenson, the recent Sister Eunice Lewis, and other faithful adherents to the gospel of Christ.

Our deepest sympathy is with the sorrowing father and mother and the faithful wife, who with a host of relatives and friends mourn his early death, and we bid them look to the resurrection morn for the joy of reunion. F. E. Siple.

C. B. DONAHOUE

Clinton Bradshaw Donahouer, son of Gus and Mary Donahouer, passed away at his home in Ripley, Illinois, Sunday, Nov. 11, 1928, at the age of 68 years.

On Oct. 4, 1892, he was married to Dora Belle Hess, who has been his faithful companion and who lives now to mourn his loss. To this union were born four children, all of whom have preceded him in death, two in infancy, Catherine four years ago, and Clinton only five days ago.

Mr. Donahouer was born near Coopers-town, Illinois, and lived his entire life in this part of the state. In early life he united with the Christian church at Ripley, and through the years since he has done his best to live as an honest neighbor and friend. He was a devoted father to his home and family.

In addition to the wife there is left one daughter-in-law, one brother, one sister and six grandchildren.

On Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 13 we laid him to rest beside the son whom he loved so much and whom he had assisted in burying just five days before. F. E. Siple.

W. W. JOHNSON

W. W. Johnson was born in Wharton County, Texas, Mar. 8, 1869, and died Nov. 11, 1928. He was married to Nannie Lipps, Dec. 18th, 1889. To this union were born five children; four sons and one daughter.

Bro. Johnson leaves many relatives and friends to mourn his death, but we sorrow not as others do who have no hope. Hope spans the dark river of death and consoles us as we gaze with wondrous joy into the radiant future when Jesus shall come again and awake His sleeping saints. John describes it as a land free from sorrow, sickness, pain and death, a time when God will wipe away all tears. May God help the bereaved ones to so live that they may be an unbroken family in the world to come.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, after which we laid Bro. Johnson to rest in the Masonic cemetery at Gonzales, to await the resurrection morning.

Dearest brother, thou hast left us
Here thy loss we deeply feel,
But 'tis death that hath bereft us
God can all our sorrows heal.

And we hope again to meet thee
When mortality has fled,
Then at home with songs to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

E. O. Stewart.

MRS. FRANK N. BROWNELL

Esther Mable, daughter of Bro. and Sr. J. E. Roosc, Sac City, Iowa, was born October 4, 1897, at Sac City. After finishing high school and college work, she spent several years teaching school with a very successful record. She was married on May 20, 1922, to Frank N. Brownell. Three children were born to this union, John Alfred, Rosemarie, and Esther Marybelle, all of whom survive. Beside the husband and three children, there remain to mourn four brothers, four sisters, and the parents, one brother having preceded her in death.

Early in life Sr. Brownell united with the Church of God, and her faith held firm to the end. Many of the Iowa brethren will remember her and mourn with the relatives in their bereavement. Funeral services were conducted by C. J. Hamilton, pastor of the local Baptist Church, the large attendance of relatives and friends testifying abundantly of the esteem in which Sr. Brownell was held by those who knew her. But they need not sorrow as being without hope; for she trusted in Him who delivers from every evil work and from every enemy. We are pleased to know that He is able to keep that which has been committed unto Him. We trust to live with her again when our Lord shall come with the shout, the voice of the archangel, and the trump of God to gather unto Himself His own.

He giveth power to the faint.—Isa. 40:29.

Adam and Eve were commanded to wear skins, and an animal was slain that they might be clothed. We are covered through the shedding of Christ's blood. Cain's sacrifice was not acceptable to God because it did not require life; the shedding of blood was necessary. The passover lamb was a beautiful type of Christ. The lamb chosen for this sacrifice was spotless, as Christ was sinless. By sprinkling its blood on the door posts the Israelites saved the lives of their firstborn. Christ is our Passover; those who come under His blood will be saved. All the ancient sacrifices which God commanded Israel to offer, pointed forward to Christ.

There is so much in the Bible to prove to us that our faith is not vain. Paul in 1 Cor. 15 gives some proofs, and he assures us, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive".

“UNTIL”

By G. E. Marsh

UNTIL” AS IT STANDS alone suggests little that would arouse our interest: yet it is a word of great potential meaning. “Until” is one of those peculiar words that have little or no significance in themselves, but when united with other words are possessed of remarkable force. “Until”, like “if”, stands between purposing and realization. It may mean an instant of time or the endlessness of eternity. The word occurs many times in the Bible, and in various places conveys the promise of suffering and death, and in others assurances of everlasting joy and endless life. We will consider a few of its occurrences.

First, that of Jacob’s dream of the ladder stretching from earth to heaven, recorded in Genesis 28:13-15. “And, behold, the LORD stood above it, and said, I am the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed; and thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spread abroad to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: and in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed. And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, UNTIL I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.”

Here is an “until” that covers a vast space of time. It reaches far beyond the plans and purposings of men. It extends over ages of history. It has witnessed the rise, the development and the decay of mighty kingdoms and far-flung empires. It has watched the progress of humanity through the rise and fall of at least four great systems of civilization. When that “until” was uttered by Jehovah the known world was an exceedingly small place compared with the one of to-day. It was but a little larger than the state of Texas or the province of Ontario. The “until” of this passage has seen the population of the earth increase from a few scattered millions to nearly two billions of souls. It bridges a space of time of more than three thousand seven hundred years. Can such a far-reaching promise as this be kept, even by God Himself?

Some eighteen hundred years after it was spoken, after Jehovah had said, “Behold, I am with thee UNTIL I have done that which I have spoken to thee of”—it had not fulfilled its purpose. The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews asserts, referring to the worthy ones of the past: “These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.”—Hebrews 11:13.

Two thousand years later—to-day—the power of that wonderful “until” is not exhausted; for the promise with which it is connected is yet unfulfilled. But, praise God, we can now see the “beginning of the end”! Israel is going back to the land whereon Jacob dreamed, back to the land of promise, that in him and in his seed all the families of the earth may be blessed!

Let us consider another “until.” This one, too, is connected with Jacob, and was uttered some seventy years after the former one. Following a long and active life, Jacob lies on his death-bed. He has called his twelve sons about him that he may impart to them his final word of blessing. Turning to Judah he says: “The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, UNTIL Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be.”—Genesis 49:10. More than three thousand years ago that “until” was spoken, and its power prevails still! “UNTIL!” How full of meaning it is! To scattered, enslaved, and suffering Israel this “until” is glorious indeed! When it has done its duty to the full, when Shiloh comes, the scattered sons of Jacob will assemble from the four quarters of the earth. The Lawgiver of Israel shall call together His beloved brethren, even the least of them, from near and far. Their former enemies shall vie with one another in aiding that world-wide emigration of the Hebrew people toward the objective of their hopes. When the promise of that “until” is kept, as it will be kept by the faithfulness of God, the severed tribes shall be united upon the fruitful hills of the homeland, in the place where Jacob dreamed, the place where the great Jehovah spake amid the stillness of the night, that mighty, that far-reaching, that prophetic

CONSTRUCTIVE DESTRUCTION

GOD'S WAYS are so much higher than man's ways that one cannot but marvel as he comes to observe the many instances which show that God even destroys things by a process that is constructive. Destruction itself is not profitable.

Mankind after the flood became presumptuous and planned to build a mighty city with a tower reaching unto heaven. This the Lord must stop. A cyclone could have blown it all away, or an earthquake could even have swallowed the location. But that would be simply destruction. God confounded their language, which just as effectively ended Babel, and in doing so placed the people in groups hither and thither,—those in each group that could understand that one particular language. Thus we have the beginning of nations, for each one of these groups increased to become a body of people and eventually a nation.

The destruction of the tower of Babel is thus seen to be an actual constructive move on the part of the Father in developing His plan of the ages.—F. E. S.

CAN YOU AND I?

IF GOD CAN successfully work so that even His necessary acts of destruction are constructive acts, are there not many occasions in life when you and I can so plan and execute our corrections, punishments and destructions that the results will be constructive? Let's try it and see.—F. E. S.

MEAT IN DUE SEASON

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID at times pertaining to the words of Jesus in Matt. 24:45, "Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?"

The time and event under consideration in this discourse is the coming of Messiah. The uncertainty of the exact time had just been referred to, and the importance of being always ready, "For in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." Therefore we see the value of a servant who would study the Word and the signs of the times so as to keep others posted as to the development of God's plan and the approximate nearness of the Master's coming.

Meat in due season is a message of truth at the time when that particular message is most valuable and profitable. There are many things which may be truth that are of no vital value to you or to me just now. Meat in due season in Jesus' day among men was the presentation of the kingdom message to Israel. But, behold, how few would receive that meat and accept the King!

To-day the vital message is the opportunity for entrance into the church class to be ready for the soon coming Lord. Many other things may be true, and may be interesting to study if one has the time, but the outstanding meat (food) for this period is "To-day is the day of salvation."

May we as a church unitedly advance the truth of the great opportunity of the door into Christ being still open, and thus all qualify as servants worthy of the Master's blessing, according to Matt. 24:46?

What an opportunity is ours now, in this day, to lay hold on the high calling of God in Christ Jesus!—F. E. S.

FIELD WORK

OUR FIELD MAN, Bro. Austin, has completed a profitable work in one part of the South, and is now ready to take up the cause in various other parts of the country. Next week a trip into Iowa is planned.

This, we feel, is one of the most important efforts ever undertaken by our people, and we trust that every possible advantage will be taken of it. Write freely as to your plans and hopes. We will be glad to cooperate in every possible way, by staging week-end conventions, or holding continual series of meetings. Address all communications to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

OFFERING THANKS

WE ARE THANKFUL

THANKSGIVING DAY is past, and we of the home office are extremely thankful for the spirit of appreciation to God and the cooperation that has been and is being manifested through letters and remittances received. It is very encouraging. Heavy work becomes light, long tedious hours become pleasant memories when brothers and sisters are heartily cooperating. We pray the Father's richest blessing upon each one, and that He may guide toward the permanent home of peace and joy.

Since thanksgiving letters and offerings are still coming in as this is written we will publish the Thank Offering news again next week. Those heard from this week are: Miss Belle McCandless; E. B. GREETINGS FOR CHRISTMAS

Let Us Send Your Christmas Greetings to Your Friends.

WE HAVE ARRANGED a plan by which we can send a double Christmas greeting to each of your friends as coming from you personally,—a nicer greeting and at much less expense than you can send them.

Our plan is this: we are arranging to publish a special Christmas Number of The Restitution Herald in colors with a genuine Christmas greeting on the front cover. You send us a list of those to whom you would send Christmas cards, and we will mail a beautiful greeting card in a pretty envelope by 2c postage to each of those persons, sending your Christmas Wishes and telling them that you are having the special Christmas Number of The Restitution Herald sent to further convey your season's greetings. We will do all of this for ten cents per name, which is less than the price for which you can buy and mail a neat greeting card.

If there are duplications, that is if more than one sends the name of a certain person, we will see that the said person receives the name of each one who sent the name.

Make up your list just as soon as possible and mail it to us with ten cents for each name and your Christmas card worries will be over for this year.

But we must know at once the number you want sent. The color work will have to be done ahead of time, so write us immediately the number you wish to use.

Furthermore, who can estimate the good that will come from sending this special issue of The Herald into so many homes?

Address The Restitution Herald, Oregon, Illinois.

ENLARGING OUR MAILING LIST

PLEASE KEEP IN MIND OUR effort to materially increase the size of The Herald Family during this month and next. We feel that each one should be glad and anxious to help in this because of the opportunity for doing a real service in the Master's vineyard, in bringing the truth visibly before another each week.

To add to the interest in getting new subscribers we have offered a Gift Edition of the Bible to the one sending in the most new subscriptions before December 31, provided that the number shall exceed ten.

New names have been received this week from the following:

“UNTIL—”

“until”—“UNTIL Shiloh come, and unto him shall the gathering of the people be!”

Let us seek another “until.”

Three hundred and fifty years have flown since Jacob drew his weeping sons about him, and time has wrought tremendous changes to the multiplied descendants of Israel. The children of Abraham, once so highly honored in Egypt, have been reduced to slavery. But under the leadership of Moses, and by the grace of God, they have broken their fetters and fled into the wilderness of Sinai. Here they sinned, and here they suffered for their sins for forty weary years. But at last they have been delivered, and, led by faithful Joshua, they entered the promised land. Moses had long been sleeping in that lonely place, unknown to man, where the Lord had buried him. And now death is about to claim his successor, Joshua, the leader whom God's people had followed so long. Like Jacob before him, he calls his people about his bed and gives them a final solemn admonition; a warning, and a promise. Hear him, as he speaks in his weakness! “I am old and stricken in age: and ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you; for the LORD your God is he that hath fought for you. . . . And, behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth: and ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.”—Joshua 23:2, 3, 14. How strengthening to every Hebrew heart that assurance must have been! “Not one thing” had failed that God had promised! And how faith-building that knowledge should be to you and me to-day! For their God is our God, since Jesus died and broke down the wall of separation between the Gentile and the Jew.

But let us go back a little way. Joshua had recalled to their minds the faithfulness with which God had kept all of His promises of “good.” He now applies that same assurance of God's unchangeableness to the opposite of good—to evil. “Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the Lord your God promised you; so shall the Lord bring upon you all the evil things, UNTIL he hath destroyed you from off this good land which the Lord your God hath given you.”—Joshua 23:15. The prophet predicts the sinful rebellion of Israel, and ascribes to that the destruction and dispersion he foretells.

Observe the striking contrast presented here! Jehovah has never failed to make good His “untils” of blessing. But Israel might fail to keep her part of the covenant; in fact she did fail to do so. And when that failure had continued until grace itself was exhausted, God also kept His dread “until” of doom. “UNTIL he hath destroyed you from off this good land which the Lord your God hath given you.” Surely this “until” has been thoroughly accomplished.

Eight hundred and thirty-four years later an even more definite statement was given concerning this “until” of punishment. But before we consider it we must take note of the changes which have occurred during those eight centuries of Hebrew history. From an unorganized horde of escaped slaves, fleeing in terror from the land of Egypt, Israel has grown into a great and powerful nation. Many and mighty have been the kings who have fallen before her conquering legions! Her throne has been called the “glory of kingdoms.” Her rulers have been renowned for their wisdom. The wealth of surrounding peoples has been poured into her coffers. God has kept His promise in a most wonderful way, and has made her a “great nation”. Further, His promise with which our second “until” has to do has likewise been faithfully kept up to this point, and Judah has not lacked a man to sit upon the throne. And so long as the kingdom remains God will keep that covenant, and “the sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet UNTIL Shiloh come.”

The long reigns of Saul, of David, of Solomon, have come and gone. Israel has known much glory and peace and prosperity, which was meted out to her so long as she remained true to her God. But the time has come when she forgets the covenant, and also the warning of Joshua. The fulfilling of the “until” of doom is about to come. Yet here, in the day of Israel's sin, God did not forget His earlier “until”! “In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed. . . . And, behold, I am with thee, . . . UNTIL I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.” That is, “Behold, I am with thee . . . until” through Jacob and his seed “all the families of the earth shall be blessed.” And so though Israel forgot God and His goodness to her, and sinned so grievously against Him, God still remembered His “until” addressed to Jacob!

“Therefore thus saith the Lord God; Because ye have made your iniquity to be remembered, in that your transgressions are discovered, so that in all your doings your sins do appear; because, I say, that ye are come to remembrance, ye shall be taken with the hand. And thou, profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, UNTIL he come whose right it is, and I will give it him.”—Ezekiel 21:24-27. Here God assures sinful Israel, that in spite of her iniquity, in order that He may be true to that first glorious “until” addressed to Jacob, He will insert another “until” in His pronouncement of judgment. “UNTIL HE COME!”

Permit me to add another, indicating the fulfillment of the last.

“For Zion's sake I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, UNTIL the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth. And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD shall name. And thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the LORD, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate; but thou shalt be called Hephzibah, and thy land Beulah: for the LORD delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married."—Isaiah 62:1-4. What a wonderful "until" is this! It marks the end of the rainbow of promise, and the gold at its foot is not false, but true!

It would build up our faith and increase our knowledge of God's goodness toward all His children, should we consider a few more of those blessed "untils" of Scripture! There is that sorrowful pleading "until" of the Savior, in Luke 13:34-35, as He looked out over Jerusalem. "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate: and verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me, UNTIL the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." O the comfort of this one: "I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, UNTIL that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom."—Matthew 26:29. And the beauty of this: "UNTIL the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."—Acts 3:21. Then there is this one from the pen of Paul: "UNTIL the fulness of the Gentiles be come in."—Romans 11:25. That spells redemption indeed! The inspiring words of Peter help us to bear up under the burdens of life: "UNTIL the day dawn, and the day star arise—"—2 Peter 1:19. And the last of all, which carries us far beyond the reach of mortal eyes—"The rest of the dead lived not again UNTIL the thousand years were finished."—Revelation 20:5.

No! There is still one more! That of Revelation 17:17: "UNTIL the words of God shall be fulfilled!" A fitting end. ALL "the words of God shall be fulfilled!" All the "untils" of Scripture shall be accomplished! All of God's gracious promises shall be kept "UNTIL HE COME!"

Happiness can be built only on virtue, and must of necessity have truth for its foundation.—Coleridge.

THE SURE WORD OF GOD

There is no certainty, but the Scriptures only. I believe the Scriptures to be God's Word, and endeavor to find the true sense of it, and live according to it. John says, "And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before Him"; "hereby know we the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error"; "hereby know we that we are in Him"; "hereby know we that we dwell in Him and He in us, and he that-keepeth His commandments dwelleth in Him and He in him", "for this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments; and His commandments are not grievous." "Whoso keepeth His word in him verily is the love of God perfected"; "and this is the word which by the Gospel is preached unto you." "Meditate on these things; give thyself wholly to them; that thy profiting may appear to all. Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee." 1 Tim. 4:15, 16. "These things have I written that ye might be saved"; "for we are not as many, which corrupt the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God, speak we in Christ." 2 Cor. 2:17. Remember what Paul says to Timothy, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfectly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. 3:16, 17. Remember it is just as important for you as it was for me, to examine yourself whether you be in the faith; this you must do by searching the Scriptures. The things to be believed are not found in one sentence, or in one verse, or in one chapter, but are scattered through the entire Word. Don't lightly esteem His words; remember what He says: "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." You have no evidence that you are in Christ, unless you have from the heart obeyed that form of doctrine revealed in His Word. "The things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord." "That thy trust may be in the Lord, I have made known to thee this day, even to thee. Have not I written to thee excellent things in counsels and knowledge, that I might make thee know the certainty of the words of truth, that thou mightest answer the words of truth to them that send unto thee?" Prov. 22:19-21.

I was first prompted to write to you on this subject, from knowing what I have previously written to you. Now, it becomes you to compare what you believe and teach for Gospel with what I have written in these pages, proving from the Scriptures, that is, from the Old and New Testaments, what was the Gospel our Savior commissioned His disciples to preach and baptize believers into. And remember His Word is not yea and nay, but yea and amen. You will know by these pages what I believe. I have given all that I believe in the language of the Scripture, and having quoted the references in full has made the letter lengthy. Since you have condemned me as being led away into error, and excluding all others from the hope of the Gospel, but myself and a few others of the same faith, I hope sincerely you will, without prejudice, carefully read these pages, and if you don't understand them, do me the justice to read them again, and see which draws the line of demarcation, myself, or the Scriptures. I have given them to you just as they read, and you know what language would imply if you read it in another book than the Bible. I care nothing for popular orthodoxy; the Bible only is my standard of faith and practice; the plan is laid down there for man's salvation, how to become joint heirs with Christ of the things promised to Him in the covenant. This has never been revoked, and never will be. I believe there are many worthy ones in the different churches, who have independent minds and, if these truths were pointed out to them, would gladly embrace them. Truth is spreading. And in spite of all men can do to prevent, the Lord will have a people when He comes again, though they will be few comparatively. The signs in the east indicate the time not far distant, when, according to Daniel, He will come, and shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and establish His own, and it shall stand forever. Seeing we look for such things—what manner of persons ought we to be, "in all manner of conversation and godliness?" "We should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."

By A. L. Corbaley

IN MARK 16:1-8 we read the account of the women who visited the sepulchre early on the first day of the week. "And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre? And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great. And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him." Jesus was dead while in the grave, for we have his testimony, "I am he that liveth and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, amen; and have the keys of hell and of death." Jesus has the keys of hell and of death, so He alone has the power to open the graves of the dead and bring them forth alive. But Jonah was alive in hell when he was in the belly of the great fish which the Lord had prepared. Jonah 2:2. So this proves that it is possible for a person to be in hell before death as well as afterward. If so with a person, it can also be true of a people. We read in Ezek. 15:6-8, "Therefore, thus saith the Lord God: As the vine tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so will I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And I will set my face against them; they shall go out from one fire, and another fire shall devour them; and ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I set my face against them. And I will make the land desolate, because they have committed a trespass, saith the LORD GOD."

Has the Jew suffered persecution? History confirms the prophets in declaring that since the carrying away into Babylon, although the Jew was permitted to return to the land, yet since 586 B. C. to the present day they have been under Gentile rule, and since 70 A. D. they have been dispersed and buried among the nations. In Deut. 28, Moses, in graphic language, depicts what wonderful blessings would come to Israel if obedient to the Lord, and direful curses if disobedient. They chose to be disobedient, and their history confirms the truthfulness of the predictions.

In Lev. 26:14-46 it is shown that their punishment shall be for seven times or 2520 years, from 586 B. C. to 1928 is 2514 years. So from this reckoning their punishment will soon end. Soon the times of the Gentiles will be a thing of the past. Soon Jesus will come and restore the throne and kingdom of David. Soon the saints of God will be glorified, and enter into the joy of their Lord. How full of zeal and earnestness the church of God should be, seeing so much is to be done, and so few to do the work!

For almost nineteen centuries the Jew has been keeping an obsolete law, not realizing that "Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth," —Rom. 10:4. How truly has been fulfilled in them "His blood be on us, and on our children;"—Matt 27:25, while in this state of torment he sees "Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom." Jesus tells the unbelieving Jews in John 8:24,—"I said therefore, unto you, that ye shall die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins." Then they have been dying in their sins from that day to the present time. Solomon says,—"When the wicked man dieth, his expectation shall perish: and the hope of unjust men perisheth. The righteous is delivered out of trouble, and the wicked cometh in his stead."—Prov. 11:7-8. So there is no future hope for either Jew or Gentile when he dies in his sins.—Ezek. 33:8-16.

In his distress Lazarus cries to Abraham to, "have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented." Many times when the Jews have been horribly treated under the nation where they were living, have they appealed to other Gentile nations for aid, but their appeal was in vain. In 1898 when Theodore Roosevelt was President of the United States, a decree went forth from the Czar of Russia, that all Jews who were living in the large cities should immediately remove to cities where there was less than 5000 population. This decree affected all classes of Jews, the rich and the poor alike. The great masses of them were in the large cities, where they were born, and had lived in many cases for generations. They hesitated to obey as they could take so little with them, and would be destitute. The Czar did not wait, he sent his soldiers to force them out, with unspeakable brutality. Many of them fled into places of hiding, into marshes and swamps, they were hunted out with hounds, and shown no mercy. The Jews in this country appealed to this government to stop the dreadful massacre, but the answer was that nothing could be done, "It would make international complications." So the torment went on.

"And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence." What is this impassable gulf which cannot be crossed, that separates the Jew from Abraham and Lazarus, and from God as well? In John 10:1-18 we have the answer. Jesus speaks to them the parable of the good shepherd. In explaining it He says, "I am the door of the sheep. All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them. I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."

So it is clearly shown that no one can come to God or have hope of eternal life or of being saved except through Christ; but the Jew rejects Him, hence unbelief in Christ is the great gulf that cannot be crossed. Then the rich man says,—“I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father’s house: for I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.” Now the question arises who were the five brethren? The Jews to whom Jesus was speaking were of two tribes, Judah and Benjamin. These two tribes were represented by the rich man. Now if one rich man represented the two tribes, then by the same rule the five brethren would represent the ten tribes who had been carried away into Assyria hundreds of years before. And to make it clear that this is the case he says, “They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.” Then the rich man says, “Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent. And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.” Were the Jews convinced when one arose from the dead?

After the resurrection of Lazarus recorded in John 11, we read in chapter 12, “Then Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead. There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him. . . . Much people of the Jews therefore, knew that he was there: and they came not for Jesus’ sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead. But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death; because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.” So the chief priests would not believe though one arose from the dead. After the resurrection of Jesus He commissioned the women who came first to the tomb, to “go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me. Now when they were going, behold, some of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all the things that were done. And when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, saying, Say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept. And if this come to the governor’s ears, we shall persuade him, and secure you. So they took the money, and did as they were taught: and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.”—Matt. 28:10-15. So they verified the words of Jesus, “Neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead.”

“If the rendering which brings the passage into harmony with the definite and unalterable language of Scripture elsewhere, is adopted, many a doctrinal difficulty will find its solution to the great joy of the Bible student.” From “Jesus Christ in the Old Testament,” page 81. R. H. Judd,

WHAT THINK YOU?

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION for the Advancement of Atheism demands a high-powered radio station in New York and does not get it, although the easiest way to make an atheist ridiculous is to let him talk.

It is hard to understand how anybody could talk atheism, knowing that his voice, propelled by a power beyond comprehension, travels around the world through the mysterious ether.

Atheists, young ones especially, might meditate on one of Bacon’s collected apothegms:

Simonides, being asked of Hieron “what he thought of God,” asked a seven nights’ time to consider on it; and at the seven nights’ end he asked for a fortnight’s time; at the fortnight’s end, a month.

At which Hieron marveling, Simonides answered that “the longer he thought upon the matter the more difficult he found it.”

The more glibly you answer King Hieron’s question the less you know.—Brisbane in “Los Angeles Examiner.”

Some friends do things for us that are humanly possible; and the Lord does things for us that are super-humanly possible. Nevertheless, most Christians can both appreciate and confirm Job and Solomon’s remarks, i. e., “My kinsfolks have failed, and my familiar friends have forgotten me”, but “There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother”.—Job 19:14; Prov. 18:24.—Haney.

DYING FOR THE LORD

THE OLD COLORED PREACHER had the right idea about giving when he said: “I hab nebber known a church killed by too much gibbing to de Lord. If dere should be such a church, and I should know about it, I tell you what I’d do. I’d go down to dat church dis bery night; and I’d clamber up its moss-cobered roof, and I’d cry aloud, ‘Blessed am de dead which die in de Lord.’”

Dying for duty-doing—starving to death for tithing to the Lord—is a good way of dying; but there is less danger of death in that line than in any other of which the writer knows.—Dr. H. Clay Trumbull.

THANKSGIVING

“’Tis not a task, O Power Divine,
To thank Thee for these gifts of thine;
For summer’s sunshine, winter’s snow,
For hearts that kindle, thoughts that glow;
But when shall I attain to this:
To thank Thee for the things I miss?”

UNTO A PERFECT MAN

By Samuel E. Haney

BUT WHEN it pleased God, . . . who called me by his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen (Gentiles) immediately I conferred (consulted, E. Diag.) not with flesh and blood (any human being, Wey.): . . . but I went into Arabia. . . . Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter. . . . But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother".—Gal. 1:15-19.

Paul's statement at the very beginning of his inimitable Christian career, that "immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood—any human being", contains an import for our day, transcendently greater than most of us adequately comprehend. What oceans of trouble some of us might have escaped had we, during our Christian kindergarten period, followed Paul's example by making God, His Word and His Son our excathedra counselors and confidence. But we were mere babes in Christ with a redundant supply of zeal and a deficiency of knowledge. Paul's words to the Romans—in a way—apply to us, "For I bear them record, that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge".—Rom. 10:2.

Spiritual babes require nurturing as much as physical babes; and God has made ample provision for them: "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive".—Eph. 4:11-14.

The lack of proper early training—O what trouble and confusion it has caused! A retrospection by some of us older ones reflects many foolish and erroneous acts; chiefly, instead of closeting ourselves with God and His precious Word, and on bended knees getting first handed information, we conferred with man, not knowing nor caring much about his spiritual status. So thus, for years, we were "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine". But we are now in the last days when the saints are recognizing the nearness of the King and His kingdom by the golden halo that encircles the world's dark clouds.

Having profited by our experience we should give the young—in years and in Christ—the benefit of our knowledge by inculcating the simple, unsophisticated truth as it is in Christ Jesus; for it is the only way to be free from this sin-cursed, wicked world and the old Adam-man. Christ says, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed".—John 8:36. Such an emancipa-tion enables one to "stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."—Gal. 5:1. A careless confiding with the unregenerate world is often like bending our necks for the enemy to slip over the "yoke of bondage". Paul says, "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly."—1 Cor. 15:48. This distinction between the earthy and heavenly minded man has become as noticeable as that of the Caucasian and Negro races. This difference has been brought about by the light of the Word of God in the last days. The truth is making manifest our enemy's work, who was a murderer and a liar, and the father of it from the beginning. John 8:44. "Therefore thus saith the LORD God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste. Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet; and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place. And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it".—Isa. 28:16-19. God has risen; and His enemies are scattering and fleeing. Yes, the presence of God's truth causes the wicked, and their works to melt as wax. Psa. 68:1-3.

The Word of God—what a power! It is "quick, and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart".—Heb. 4:12.

And yet, many having more or less knowledge of these facts confer with flesh and blood, the earth, earthy-man who is under the absolute control of the enemy. And if we are not aroused from our lethargy by the fact that mother Eve, with her perfect body and mind was deceived by a serpent—perhaps at that time, the most beautiful of creatures, (Gen. 3:14) we, with our imperfect bodies and minds, are in imminent danger of being a prey to the same enemy. We dare not "monkey with the buzz saw"—the devil; Eve tried it in relation to everlasting life, and as a result, the devil turned the earth into a charnel house, which will require centuries for Christ and His co-workers to readjust. The Son of God appeared for the purpose of undoing the work of the devil. 1 John 3:8.

The only way to steer clear of trouble is to steer clear of the adversary and his recognized incarnate emissaries; for these are the shifting, separating days. The line of demarcation between the heavenly and earthy minded Christians is becoming more pronounced daily. The live Christian has no difficulty in discerning two distinct classes; one, the followers of Jesus Christ, the other, followers of this world and self. Christ gives us the acid test for our respective status in these classes, i. e., "Woe unto you that are full! for ye shall hunger."—Job's summary, "The triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of the hypocrite but for a moment? Though his excellency mount up to the heavens, and his head reach unto the clouds; yet he shall perish for ever, like his own dung: they which have seen him shall say, Where is he?" Job 20:5-7. "Woe unto you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep". Solomon's summary, "Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful; and the end of that mirth is heaviness".—Prov. 14:13. "Woe unto you when all men (the world) shall speak well of you! for so did their fathers to the false prophets." James' summary, "Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God."—James 4:4.

The Holy Spirit is doing this correlating work. "For the LORD shall rise up . . . that he may do his work, his strange work; and bring to pass his act, his strange act".—Isa. 28:21—that, "All thy works shall praise thee, O LORD; and thy saints shall bless thee."—Psa. 145:10.

Let us examine ourselves and ascertain whether our religion be superficial or heart-searching; it may be that Hosea's words (6:4) to Ephraim and Judah apply to us also, "O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee? for your goodness is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew it goeth away".

PSALM 1

THE TRULY HAPPY man is he who never entered on the perilous path of godlessness—that path which begins in dallying with evil, and leads by sure steps to the deliberate scorn of religion. But his heart is set upon the Scriptures, and over them he broods continually. The destiny of such an one is bright—like a tree, fruitful and fair, with roots that are nourished by water from the rivulets, and leaves that never fade. All that he does he brings to a happy issue.

Far other is the destiny of the godless. They are light as the chaff blown about by the wind; and when the winds of judgment begin to blow, they shall not be able to keep their feet, nor shall they have any place in the assembly of the righteous. For while Jehovah watches over the way that the righteous takes, the way of the godless vanishes out of sight".—Paraphrased by J. E. McFadyen.

"That there is natural law in the spiritual world' is a deeply significant fact; and when a believer becomes a 'new man' in Christ Jesus, the command to 'be fruitful and multiply' appeals to him with equal force and privilege." R. H. Judd in "Jesus Christ in the Old Testament" page 23.

YOUTH'S REDISCOVERY OF EVANGELISM

By Loyd Lyon

This article sent in by a Michigan Sister was written by a young man nineteen years of age and is worth your while to read.—F. E. S.

FIRST OF ALL evangelism means "to bring good news." How eager everyone is to hear good news! Every morning, noon and night millions of papers are published and sold in cities and towns to satisfy man's craving for news. Every night those who have radios "listen in" for the latest news reports. And in nearly every show, theatre owners run news reels because they know man likes news. Luke tells us in his narrative of Paul at Athens that "the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing". News, then, is one of the sincerest and most persistent interests in human life.

Evangelism, when applied to the Christian religion means "to bring the good news of the Christian message." It is the open declaration of the good news of Christ, the good news that He brought through His teaching, and the good news which He himself was. And great as the interest is in wars and governments, politics and sports, prize-fights and scandals, there is still a deeper concern and a deeper interest although often less evident. It is the craving for news, the good news, the best news—about God and the meaning and the value of life.

True it may be that many modern young people have dropped "evangelism" from their vocabularies because the efforts of long evangelistic campaigns are so often followed by periods of reaction when many of the converts turn back into the old paths of sin and wrong. Nevertheless, I think "evangelism" should remain, for what other word is there that could possibly express more profoundly the great task of acquainting youth with Christ? There is no other word that could possibly take its place. It is evangelism that challenges our souls and leads us into the very essence of Christianity. Moreover the motive principle of evangelism is the instinct to share that pierces to the very center of it. It was this instinct to share in Christianity that prevented Andrew and Philip from keeping their contact with Christ to themselves. It was the driving force of evangelism that made them go forth and share the good news about their new found Friend as we read in John 1:35-45.

What sends us forth as Christian youth to acquaint others with Christ? Is it fear of their eternal damnation unless we do? A sermon on eternal punishment such as used to shake strong men to the very core of their personalities would pass over the heads of to-day's youth without arousing a tremor of fear. Youth of to-day is different. It is more outspoken and has a more aggressive spirit. It is better educated. It is more carefree. And though an adequate evangelistic motive has its chief concern in saving youth for something rather than from something, it recognizes also that the youth whom we crave to bring into acquaintance with Christ has qualities which we ourselves may sadly lack. As we go to another we are quite conscious that we lack in many, many ways. We know we do things that we should not sometimes. We know also that we are not always the best examples as Christians. Not one of us is perfect; yet we go. Why? It is the evangelistic motive to share with others the very best we have—and that very best is Christ. We go because we feel sure that, despite our lacks, there is the quiet certainty that in some vital measure we know Christ and are so blessed and helped by that acquaintanceship that we cannot keep the good news exclusively to ourselves. Just as we like to lead a friend to some place where the beauty of nature, glimpsed from a hill-top or lakeside or an ocean has often spoken to us with uplifting solemnity, so we find that there is even a greater joy in leading someone into the acquaintanceship with Christ.

But deeper still in its power to awaken the response of youth is the clear vision of what young men and women under the sway of Christ can mean. The two words that spring into one's mind as one faces a representative group are "immeasurable possibilities". What a great League we would have here if every member of this organization had made the discovery of himself—knew his ability, knew his talents, and knew himself sufficiently to see and realize the needs of the League and its great work! The League needs you—not only in its social gatherings, but also in its spiritual meetings. There surely are "immeasurable possibilities of a better League, socially and spiritually, but it is up to each member to do his share of the work. It was Dr. Henry Churchill King who said, "One of the profoundest needs of our nature is work—work great enough and significant enough to call out our full powers and to absorb us." And what better work or what greater work is there than Christian work? To be absorbed in Christian work calls out our full powers and our better selves. The League needs you and your services. Are you fair? Are you doing your share of the work? Think it over. No doubt you have been asked to lead the League more than once. Did you say, "No"? If so, why? It can be for no other reason than that you haven't discovered yourself, and you have not considered the process of the conscious formation of habits. "The repetition of a thought tends to make it become dominant, and a dominant thought expresses itself." If you said, "No" every time, then it is because you have formed a habit of saying "No." You have let "No" become dominant. You have not thought things out in the right way, and whether you realize it or not you are the loser. Break yourself from this "No" habit and do something. Discover yourself. Instead of thinking up excuses for not leading think of the reasons that you should lead. It is the wise man who analyzes himself and asks himself:

"What is the reason for my doing so little?"

"Why should I have let so much time go by, instead of realizing the value of every hour?"

"When shall I be able to say my will is strong enough to force me to do the things that I know I ought to do, and to leave undone the things that I ought not to do?"

"How do others arrange their lives that they go so smoothly?"

"Where in my character is the defect that holds me back from full development?"

"Who is the true friend, the true friend that, whether I like it or not, will tell me of my mistakes and give me even yet a chance to turn and travel in the right direction?"

Analyze yourself—ask yourself these questions—convince yourself, then "dig in" and do your share of the work. If you think constructively, then you will build up your character; do your share of the work and a little more too, and you will fortify your character.

Youth needs Christ, His example, teaching and presence. And when Jesus, summoning youth, said, "Follow me!" it meant in passionate words, "I need you. The cause of righteousness is in a crisis. I need your youth, your idealism, your courage. You have it in you to help!" It is not too late. Now is the time. "You have it in you to help!" Are you going to help? You must answer for yourself. However, think seriously and logically before answering.

The deepest aspect of the evangelistic motive is the world's tragic need for clean, strong youth who will go forth upon an errand to build into the intricate fabric of modern society the leavening, cleansing, dynamic mind of Christ. Is it right then, that youth should drop "evangelism" from its vocabulary? I think it is self evident that it should not. What the youth of to-day needs is to re-discover evangelism and take this great term and make it a word of honor and challenge. True it may be, that this cannot be done by talking about it or by merely interpreting the meaning of the term, but it can be rediscovered by being relived. And it must be relived in order to be rediscovered.

Are you going to accept this challenge and relive evangelism? You should answer "Yes", but don't start tomorrow—start to-day. Now is the time to start the challenging task of winning, inspiring and encouraging your comrades to the spiritual adventure of Christlike living. Start out on the adventure to win others to-day. Go out and get those who are drifting and win them. Bring them back and show them the light and the right. Go now while you are young, strong and free. Be the best that you can be for God, for truth and for righteousness. Prove by your acts and your example that you are sincere.

How true it is that if we see the Light, the Truth, and the Way then we cannot keep the good news exclusively to ourselves any more than could Andrew and Philip. We will go out and win others. We will be reliving evangelism and we will have rediscovered evangelism.

"REJOICE EVERMORE."—1 Thess. 5:16.

LAST WEEK we celebrated Thanksgiving as a holiday throughout the nation. It was a day of rejoicing, but the causes of that rejoicing were many and varied. On the Wednesday before one of the men in a business office remarked, "Well, boys, tomorrow is the day to take off the screens and put on the storm windows!" And that, apparently, was the full significance of the day to him. To many others the proverbial turkey dinner and an exciting football game spell the whole meaning of Thanksgiving Day.

We are glad to realize, however, that there still are those who recall the circumstances under which the first Thanksgiving was inaugurated—the bitter hardships and privations suffered by our Puritan ancestors and at last the bountiful harvest of blessings for which their fervent prayers of gratitude arose to God. That was a real day of thanks. Centuries later, in these days of many conveniences and comforts, we sometimes forget the true meaning of the day.

But Thanksgiving Day has meant little to us unless its richest and fullest significance has implanted itself permanently in our hearts, to actuate our words and deeds to-day, to-morrow and through the days to come.

There is nothing we can name of all of life's good things for which we are not directly indebted to God. We seldom comprehend the full scope of the words of the apostle James when he said, "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." John expressed the same broad truth in a negative way: "A man can receive nothing except it be given him from heaven."

The beautiful blessing of these gifts lies in the fact of man's unworthiness. "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" The luxuries of life, the love of parents and brothers and sisters and friends, and beautiful companionships along the way, abundance of food and raiment, the birds of the air and the flowers of the field, yes, the very air we breathe—by what worthiness of ours are we entitled to these things?

It is when we realize how little we have earned even the smallest of life's material blessings that we begin to comprehend something of the beauty of God's most wonderful Gift to man. All underserving as we are, still "while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Who of us can refrain from exclaiming with the beloved apostle, "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us"!

Thanksgiving as a legal holiday has passed for another year, but can we not so order our lives that they shall be daily offerings of gratitude to Him in whom "we live, and move, and have our being"?

"Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving."

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR YOU

Bereans, we have a young brother whose life thus far has been a source of inspiration to others in his Christian service. Now he is weakened in health for a time and it is necessary that he remain quiet and rest for several weeks. Time hangs heavy on young hands not used to idleness and long hours drag without accustomed activity and companionships.

Bro. Merle Bell, 1707 Wood St., La Crosse, Wisconsin, would appreciate your interest deeply. Let us respond with a card or a letter of cheer to him, and with frequent prayers for the Father's strengthening and restoration to health.

NOTICE TO ILLINOIS BEREANS

We wish to call your attention to the fact that the Junior Extension department of our Illinois Berean work is ready for a year of active service. Miss Ruth Gesin, Oregon, Illinois is in charge of this division of our labor and we urge you who have children, particularly you who are isolated, to correspond with her at the earliest opportunity and let her know your needs.

We are anxious to help you to bring up your little ones in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. It is a worthwhile work and we want to cooperate with you.

PAUL GOES TO ROME

PAUL SPENT TWO YEARS in his house which he rented in Rome. While he was allowed to live in this house, he was still treated as a prisoner. A soldier was set as guard over him, but his friends were allowed to visit him.

He spent his time teaching the people, who came to him, about Jesus, also, he wrote many letters to his friends teaching them and urging them to be true to Jesus.

He wrote a letter to Philemon, a friend whom he dearly loved. He said that he thanked God when he prayed, for the faith and goodness of Philemon. He told him that he was a great comfort to him.

Paul had living with him a man who had been a slave. He had run away from Philemon, who was Paul's friend. This slave lived a good life while with Paul and had been very kind to him, doing all he could to comfort and serve him. While he was with Paul he had learned to love Jesus and had become as dear to Paul as a beloved son.

Much as Paul loved this slave, he sent him back to his master because he thought that it was the right thing to do. When he sent him back, he gave him the letter to his friend Philemon, urging him to be a true loving friend to the man, to receive him kindly and to forgive him for running away. He asked Philemon to receive the slave as he would receive Paul himself and if there was any money spent, to charge it to him.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Would we have returned the slave to Philemon?

If we had been Philemon, would we have received the slave kindly?

SOMETHING TO DO

Hunt through the book of Acts and make a list of Paul's friends.

WHAT THE WINTER BERRIES ARE FOR

IT WAS LATE in winter when Mac visited Uncle George. He stopped outside under the mountain ash tree. Clusters of red berries still hung on the leafless boughs.

"Are they good to eat?" Mac wanted to know.

"You wouldn't like them," replied Uncle George.

"Why do they hang on the tree all winter," asked the boy.

"Come inside and watch from the window, and you'll see why."

Mac sat by the window and watched. Soon a big blue jay flew to the tree and began picking berries, calling to his family between mouthfuls that here was a good dinner. Then a little brown bird came, and then a larger bird with a white breast. Presently a dozen birds were perched on the mountain ash eating the red berries.

"Now I know why," laughed Mac. "The berries are to feed the birds in winter when everything is covered with snow."

"Yes. There are a number of trees and bushes that hold their berries through the winter. They look so bright and cheerful on gloomy days that sometimes we think they are only for beauty. But they have a use as well. The wild grapes hang on the vines well into the winter. The pretty red rose haws are good for the birds to eat. Wild apples and crab apples furnish food for the rabbits and squirrels on sunny winter days."—Zelia M. Walters.

THANKSGIVING

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER, we thank Thee for the blessings Thou hast bestowed upon us, through this another year. We thank Thee for Thy blessed Word that tells us how to live so that we know we will be in the number to meet Him in the air.

PAUL AND HIS FRIENDS

Acts 20:36-38; Rom. 16:1-4; Phil. 2:25-30; Philemon

Devotional Reading: Psa. 63:17

GOLDEN TEXT

A friend loveth at all times.—Prov. 17:17.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Paul and his friends. Our lesson to-day invites us to concentrate on some of the fruits of the Spirit. The fruits of the flesh would most often reveal that one who occupies a principal position soon comes to regard himself as superior to those about him. Not so of him who led by God's Spirit.

The friendship here referred to seems to be that which might well be expressed by the term—companionship in love. The fact that another was to Christ as Paul was to Christ made Paul to regard the other as one with himself. Any one who before Christ occupied the same relationship as did Paul was Paul's equal, and found in Paul a partner in every sense of the word: were he a sinner forgiven by Christ, he was forgiven by Paul; were he poor, received by Christ, he was received by Paul; were he weak, being strengthened by Christ, he was strengthened by Paul; were he lonely, being enlivened by Christ, he was enlivened by Paul; were he a slave, being made Christ's free-man, he was Paul's free-man. Common bonds in Christ bound every such one with Paul. In all this Paul manifested advanced Christ-likeness. This result in Paul was developed not by the law but by the Spirit of God in him.

Paul With the Ephesians. Acts 20:36-38. The depth of Paul's friendship is felt by this touching incident of kneeling with his Christian friends. Their mutual acquaintance in the Lord had made them one. Whether joys or sorrows, blessings or afflictions, their mutual friendship made them one in the experience thereof. As Paul was about to take his final leave, abandoning them to their own leadership in the Lord, knowing full well that "grievous wolves" should enter in among them, Paul directed them to the highest throne in prayer. He would exalt them to that closeness with the Lord which he himself enjoyed; he would establish them in that confidence in the Lord which was his own strength; he would build them into that faith in the Lord which was his own victory. Paul's friendship for them would exalt them into his own supreme joy and consolation in Christ.

Paul's friends, Phebe, Priscilla, and Aquila. Rom. 16:1-4. Here again Paul is revealed with his friends. Phebe "which is a slave of the church" was regarded as "sister". She is commended to the church at Rome. He prays that church to assist her in every need, apprising them of her former services to the needs of others, including himself. "Having done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Priscilla and Aquila had laid down their lives for Paul. For them he gives thanks to God and commends them to the church at Rome.

Paul's Friend Epaphroditus. Phil. 2:25.

The same great Christian characteristics are here revealed as fundamental in Paul's life. Epaphroditus was a servant to the Christians in every sense of the word, but he was a true servant of Christ. He laid down his life for his brethren, followers of Christ. Far be it from Paul to overlook him. He was one in the family of God, and as such, regardless of his position in the body, he was as true and as necessary as was any other member of that body. Paul was his friend. He prayed the Philippians to receive him in the Lord in all gladness, and to hold him in reputation.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"A friend loveth at all times."—Prov. 17:17.

God is love and because of His great love, He gave His only begotten Son for the sins of the world. Christ Jesus was a Friend to all poor suffering humanity and willingly laid down His life that we might have life. "What a friend we have in Jesus!"—One that sticketh closer than a brother.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Friendship. One of the closest ties that life contains is true friendship. To understand both the strength and weakness of another, to appreciate the character and heart purpose of that other, and to help that one overcome his weakness that the purpose may be attained—that is friendship.

Paul made friends in a general way with all whom he could; but there were only a few whom he could take to his heart in full understanding. It must always be thus with all of us. We can be friendly to all, but real close heart friends will be few—two or three in life, perhaps.

What an inspiration there is in true friendship! Not having to weigh words or to put on an insincere exterior, an individual may be himself, knowing that the other understands and trusts.

Undoubtedly that was Paul's feeling as he wrote to Philemon, and sent Onesimus whom he knew that Philemon had not found trustworthy. But he felt full assurance that if he requested it, his friend would accept Onesimus as himself. How beautiful and touching the expression, "If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account," When one loves another any debt he can pay for that other is a privilege, not a burden.

Be sure that your friend or friends are well chosen, but be true when choice is made.—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Christian Friendship.

Paul was a man of high intellectuality. He wrote much and profoundly. His thinking was far in advance of the thinking of his time. He was a public servant, serving many people most of whom were strangers to him. He had no family. He was what is ordinarily called a mystic, for he entered into direct but unseen communication with his Master in heaven. Such an one is not usually given to warm personal feelings and friendships with those about him.

But Paul's Master was the Christ, the Man who for three years moved among crowds, touching and influencing the lives of high and low. Consequently Paul's writings are teeming with warm, personal and individual touches. The most beautiful example of this is his letter to Philemon, a wealthy "fellow-laborer", concerning Onesimus, a runaway slave. Over and over in his various writings the thanksgiving of Phil. 4 and 5 is repeated. He has great joy and consolation because Philemon's love had refreshed the saints. He beseeches him to receive Onesimus as his own son, as a brother beloved.

The way of life marked out by Jesus makes him who would not otherwise be such, the close friend and helper of those around, for this is the way which Jesus walked.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

In all of Paul's journeyings he found many, many loving friends. They had been ever ready to help him, also to protect him from many of the dangers which surrounded him on all sides. When Paul knew that the time had come when he could no longer be with these beloved friends, he was very much concerned; and how sad they felt when they knew they would see him no more.

Our lesson to-day reveals an act of kindness done by Paul for one of his friends, Onesimus. He stood ready and willing to take upon himself all blame for wrongs that another might do. This was true friendship. This world would be a sad, sad place for an individual to-day, were it not for the friendship and love we have one for another.

But these are earthly friends; and do for us as they will, they cannot help us over all our trials and tribulations. But there is a Friend who can and will. This Friend is Jesus. He is our true Friend, His love never fails. But we must place ourselves in such position that Christ will be our Friend, then we can truly sing that song, "What a friend we have in Jesus."—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Friendship: definition; characteristics; Jesus, a Friend; Paul as a friend before and after conversion; why the influence of Jesus results in personal friendships and friendliness.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Very little change can be reported in the condition of Bro. S. J. Lindsay, in the Dixon Hospital.

The Chicago church has enjoyed two consecutive Sundays of special services. Bro. Marsh spoke on November 25, and Bro. Austin on Dec. 2.

Don't forget to make use of our Christmas Greeting proposition. Turn to third page of this issue, read about it, and send in your list of names, at once.

Bro. Paul Hatch, member of the Bible Training Class at Oregon has been suffering the past three weeks from an infection which has settled in the glands. This has been very painful, requiring a whole lot of patience. The physician has lanced under his right arm, and prospects are brighter now.

THE NEW QUARTERLIES

The Truth Seekers' Quarterlies for first quarter of 1929 will soon be finished and ready for mailing. If your order is not already in please see that it is attended to at once. The quarterly is coming out a little later than we had wished, and the mails will be crowded with Christmas material, so if yours do not arrive promptly you will understand the difficulties and be patient.

Attention is called to the fact that in the editorial page of last quarterly the prices to be in effect beginning with first quarter of 1929 are:

Single copy, 17c each per quarter, 65c per year—

Three or more to one address, 15c each per quarter, 60c per year.

Write for free sample copy.

OREGON, DIXON, PLUM RIVER, ADELINE

Those interested in the above four churches are asked to observe the changed program for next Sunday, Dec. 9. Bro. Austin will speak at Oregon, Bro. Marsh at Dixon and Bro. Siple will fill the Plum River-Adeline appointment. Cooperate if you can.

THANKS FROM GOLDEN RULE HOME

The matron, Sister Jackson, and the members of Golden Rule Home family wish to express appreciation to the former matron, Sister Verna Thayer, for a Hallowe'en treat, and to Sister Jessie Upton, Geneva, Ohio, Sister Anna Smith, Forreston, Ill., and Bro. H. Dickel, Philadelphia, for special remembrances and gifts at the Thanksgiving season.

NOTICE TO MICHIGAN BRETHREN

Jesus appeared unto His disciples after His resurrection, and this is the commission that He gave them, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." If we are His followers we, too, should be preaching the gospel. We cannot all preach, but we have a minister who is ready and willing to carry the gospel message to the world, if we will only provide the funds to carry on the work. This is the Lord's work and He is depending upon us to carry the gospel to others. We ask for the cooperation of every one in the state, your financial support and your prayers.

Our Treasurer is Mrs. Nellie Blakely, 1037 Lafayette Ave. S. E., Grand Rapids, Mich. Wm. A. Hanson, Sec'y.

NEBRASKA

We received this past week at The Herald office a picture of the new church at Holbrook, Nebraska. It is a very neat building and we rejoice with them in this forward step. Their description of the new church home is as follows:

The new church at Holbrook is a structure 28 feet by 40 feet with full basement, located on the north-west corner of a lot with a north front. The basement is equipped with tables, cupboards, dishes and six oil stoves, as well as a furnace for the heating of the building.

Sunday School is held each Sunday with an average attendance of about forty, with Bible study each Sunday evening led by Bro. Arthur Hornaday of Arapahoe.

BLAIR, NEBR.

Sunday, Nov. 25, was a red letter day for the Blair church, with all day meeting, basket dinner at noon, and at 2:30 p. m. baptismal service. Three young people were added to the army of Christ. They are Gladys Harkey, Harrold Banning, and George Brown. These young people are active workers in the church, having been for some time members of the Bereans.

The little band at Avery was present Sunday. We always enjoy their fellowship. The day was full of good things that are always peculiar to such meetings.

The following is the Thanksgiving program as printed in one of our city papers, to be given in our church, Wed. eve. Nov. 28. Prof. Degroff will have charge of the music. Opening hymn, "For the Beauty of the Earth." Reading of Thanksgiving Proclamation by Rev. C. G. Bader, Pastor of the Methodist Church. Scripture lesson, Rev. L. J. Moran, Pastor Baptist church. Anthem, "Holy, Holy." By chorus choir. Prayer, Rev. W. B. F. Robb, Pastor Christian church. Anthem, "O, Give Thanks," by chorus choir. Sermon, Rev. B. S. Daugherty, Rector of the Episcopal church. WEEK END MEETING AT CEDAR FALLS, IOWA. DEC. 16

Arrangements are being perfected for a week end meeting at Cedar Falls over Sunday, Dec. 16, by F. L. Austin.

All those interested in the advancement of the work of the Church of God in that section are urged to participate in this week-end convention. More complete announcement will be made in next issue.

MICHIGAN

Sr. Margaret Lyon of Chicago visited friends over Thanksgiving at Grand Rapids. While in the Rapids she attended our church services.

Several of the Grand Rapids Sunday School and Berean classes have been entertained of late by their teachers. The teachers entertaining were: Bro. and Sr. Pixley, Sr. Hanson and Sr. Townsend. On Friday evening, Nov. 23 all of the Jr. Berean classes were given a social in the church basement.

Sr. Arthur Richardson is still confined to the Hastings hospital. Neither mother or baby have been getting along very good. Prayers in their behalf would be timely and helpful.

Sr. Woodward after spending a week in Grand Rapids and vicinity returned to Lansing. She did considerable visiting and work while among us and would have done more had it not been that she was not very well some of the time. However before leaving she was feeling alright.

Bro. Marsh might have a new number—but Bro. Randal has got not only a new number but a new house to live in. His new address is 3413 Jefferson Ave. S. E., Rt. 8, Grand Rapids.

FIELD WORK AT HAMMOND, LA.

A three weeks' meeting was closed on Sunday evening, Nov. 25, at Happy Woods Schoolhouse, about three miles southwest of Hammond, La. Speaker and congregation were mutual in expressions of thankfulness because of the meeting.

The Church of God at Happy Woods Schoolhouse has a long history. Years ago the late Bro. and Sr. W. H. Wilson and others including Sr. A. M. Siple and her late husband, Bro. Elias Siple—parents of Bro. F. E. Siple and his six older brothers and sisters—located at that place. They at once began to teach the gospel of the kingdom to all listeners.

From time to time different evangelists were secured to conduct meetings and the congregation has been increased until to-day it numbers fifty-four—all but three or four of whom are within driving distance of the place of meetings. Over half of this membership are in that active, vigorous age of young adult life, while none are too young or too old to be active in the work. Only one or two are even partially restrained by poor health.

Growing up in the twenty or more homes of which one or both parents are members of that church, are over thirty children whom loving parents should diligently endeavor to prepare for eternal life in the soon coming age of Christ's rule. Of the initial workers in that field only Sr. A. M. Siple remains and she attends practically every service held.

The meetings which on Nov. 4th were taken up as regular evangelistic meetings were soon changed in character to include instruction and exhortation regarding responsibilities, opportunities and blessings offered God's church by Him whose we are.

It was emphasized that the church is that people whom the Father is preparing for service with His Son. It was urged that the church holds a position in God's plans second only to that of Christ; that no other people have such opportunities therefore none such responsibilities. Unto the church God has entrusted the work of rearing its childhood, evangelizing its neighbors and perfecting the Christian growth of its every member—all in the name of Christ and for His instant service in restitution the moment He comes and calls His own unto Himself.

In the light of these truths the church was exhorted to arise in its faith in Christ and consecrate its talents and services unto the Lord.

The church at Hammond, as in so many other places grieved over the lack of leaders. By this is meant, not someone to do evangelizing only, nor some minister to stress some newly discovered tenet, but pastors in the full sense of the word. Pastors who in the true exercise of the duties of their positions will diligently labor to perfect Christians in their endeavors to grow up into Christ, leaders who will prayerfully watch for and seek out opportunities for ever increasing church advancement in all Christian labors.

It was good to hear, as the meetings came to a close, the different earnest considerations being made to either make certain much needed improvements on the present place of meeting or else to arrange for some more advantageous place with a view to advancing in every possible way the work of The Church of God about Hammond, Louisiana.

Miss Pearl Campbell, granddaughter of Sr. Siple, early in the meetings requested baptism. She had been taught the gospel truths from childhood and was in waiting for this service.

The church in general has staunch supporters at Hammond and may confidently look for continued cooperation.

We pray God's constant watch care and guidance to this people. F. L. Austin.

SARAH PRESTON HARROLD

Sarah Catherine, daughter of John and Margaret Preston, was born in Chataqua County, Ohio, October 30, 1845, and died at her home in Blythedale, Mo., November 18, 1928, aged 83 years and 18 days. When a small child she moved with her parents to Illinois, later to Iowa, and in 1858 the family came to Harrison County, Missouri and settled on a farm northeast of Ridgeway known as the Dick Carpenter farm.

When a young woman she united with the United Brethren Church, and later she with her husband, united with the Church of God and was baptized by W. J. Orem at Blythedale.

She was married to Jesse Harrold, July 15, 1866. Nine children were born to this union. One son, Dee, died at the age of seven years, and a daughter, Mrs. Maude Lorus, died February 18, 1918.

The seven living children with the husband survive, and were with her when she died. She also leaves twenty-one grandchildren, eight great grandchildren, a brother, A. R. Preston, and a sister, Mrs. Jane Ritehey, both of Fairbury, Nebraska.

She died as she had lived, in the one faith looking for Christ to return, and set up His kingdom on earth. She was an uncompromising defender of the truth, as she saw it.

She sleeps her last long sleep to awake on the resurrection morn, when Christ shall call her from the grave, to life everlasting. May her family follow in her footsteps and meet her in the Kingdom of God.

The beautiful old hymns, "Tarry with me, O my Savior," "Come, let us anew," and "Shall we gather at the river," were sung, and she was laid to rest in the beautiful Cedar Hill Cemtery at Blythedale.

All the years we spent together,
All the happy, golden hours
Shall be cherished in remembrance,
Fragrant sweet from memory flowers;
Years may dry the burning tears,
And soothe and calm the pain,
But love will keep your memory sweet,
Until we meet again.

WHAT A WONDERFUL AGE

By H. H. Hawkins

THOSE WHO LISTENED on the radio the other evening, no doubt, heard the President give to the people the annual Thanksgiving Proclamation. After hearing this for the first time on the radio, it came to my mind, what a wonderful age we are living in. Heretofore, this annual message was sent over the wires to the various parts of the country to the news papers, it then went through the regular process of type setting, printing, etc. The papers were then delivered in the cities and sent to the rural districts. After some twelve to forty-eight hours, this message would be in the hands of the majority of the inhabitants.

What a contrast to-day. By the radio this message was given by the speaker to the hearer, or mouth to ear instantly.

Transmitting stations are being placed all over the world, some four of five years ago, one was established at Jerusalem.

This should make us think of the prophecy recorded in Micah 4:2 "And the law shall go forth of Zion and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

In the Kingdom age, when Christ will again speak to the inhabitants of the earth, we do not know but what latent powers of the air will be brought into use that will carry His voice to the four corners, and might be done without mechanical means.

"And then the Lord will cause his glorious voice to be heard." Isa. 30:30.

The further increase in travel on land, and especially by air, is evidence that "many run to and fro."

Also great strides made in scientific inventions show "that knowledge is increasing."

As these and other signs creep upon us unconsciously, we should stop and realize that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. It behoves us all to be ready and watch for His appearing.

EIGHTY-FOURTH PSALM

Paraphrased by John Edgar McFadyen

HOW LOVELY is yonder house of thine, O mighty God of Israel! In the far land from which we have come, our soul was spent with longing for thy courts; and now that we are so near them, our whole being leaps forth with a ringing cry toward thee, the living God. Here has Israel, like a mother-bird in her nest, found a home for herself and her young within thy house, thou mighty Jehovah, my God and king. O how happy must they be who dwell here, and praise thee without ceasing!

Nay, but happy, too, are those whose strength is in Jehovah, and whose hearts are filled with thoughts of pilgrimage; for even the hot and dusty valleys, where only the balsam grows, seem in their sight as though smiling with green, blest by fountains of rain. On they march, gathering strength as they go, sustained by the assurance that the God of gods will reveal himself to them in Zion.

(O mighty God of Israel, hearken to our prayer and look upon the face of our anointed defender)

For a day in thy courts, though it be standing at thy threshold, is better than a thousand in the lands of the ungodly (from which the pilgrims had come, foot note). For our God will defend and favor all who walk uprightly; he will honor and bless them with every good. O mighty God of Israel, how happy is the man who puts his trust in thee!"

THE TITHE IS MIGHTIER THAN THE DRIVE

WHAT A SERMON could be preached on the above subject! Most churches are operated and maintained by occasional drives, which raise a fund of money for carrying on the work. This principle may not be at all sinful or wrong, but how different it is from God's original and prescribed plan! His plan was a tithe, one tenth of each person's income used in the religious work, and if that plan were used uniformly by any church to-day that church would never need to put on a financial drive.

The Layman Company, publishers of tithing literature, have produced pictures of the outstanding skyscrapers of America's two largest cities, the Woolworth Building of New York, and the Wrigley Building of Chicago. It may seem queer, but these two towers which compel the eye in America's first two cities are monuments of the principle that it pays better to get small sums frequently from many, than large sums occasionally from a few. The one represents the chain of five and ten cent stores, and the other is based upon five cent packages of gum.

If each member of a local church would give his bit regularly, no matter how small, that church would always be progressive. If our brotherhood at large would all back the united work of the church, each with a small part, what a work could be done!

Yes, the tithe is mightier than the drive.—F. E. S.

IT IS FINISHED

IN ANOTHER COLUMN we are printing an item "Last Words of Famous People." Please take time to read it, and as you do, meditate on the kind of person, the life lived, and the thought in his last words. For example, Francois Rabelais, a French satirical writer, closed his life by saying: "Let down the curtain, the farce is over." Moody, the actor, brought all to a close by quoting from Shakespeare,

"Reason thus with life,

If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing

That none but fools would keep."

How different the words of our Savior who, hanging on the cross, lifted His eyes to the Father above and said, "It is finished." That simple expression showed plainly that His whole object in life was the accomplishing of a definite work for the Father, and that He now realized it to be done.

Have you an object in life? Is there some definite attainment you feel called upon to reach? Will it be possible for you, when you face the great end of mortal activities to say quietly, "It is finished"?

What a victory!—F. E. S.

THE RESULTS OF TRYING

HOW FORCEFULLY on several occasions lately has been brought to our attention the almost unbelievable progress that results when one tries. Persons who never had attempted to lead in public prayer have, by sincerely trying, brought themselves to the place where they can guide the thought of a group of people in beautiful sentiments of communion with God. Persons who never stood before an audience to speak have reached the place where they can present their thoughts very nicely to an audience.

It really pays to try. If there is any ability which you desire very much for yourself, it is impossible to know how far you can reach in that direction until you have honestly tried. Some of our best and easiest preachers and public speakers were very bashful boys. Demosthenes, the famous Greek orator, stood on the seashore for hours, talking to the waves with razor blades fastened above his shoulders to make him stop shrugging his shoulders.

Set your goal—a high one—and work earnestly in that direction. Behold the results of trying.—F. E. S.

GO TO THE ANT

SAID SOLOMON several thousands of years ago, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise: which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest." Those are words of wisdom, indeed. There are many of us who might well meditate on the activities of the ant, and apply the principle to our business or vocation in life. There are still more of us who might well apply that degree of industry to our service before God, the Father of all, who constantly observes our ways and will deal with us accordingly.—F. E. S.

GIVING THANKS

THANKSGIVING season has passed, and the last of the thank offerings have been coming to the office this week.

We wish to heartily thank all who have cooperated in this work for the encouragement which you have helped to bring. May this coming year be fraught with even greater blessings as we wait for our coming Lord.

Those heard from this week are:

It is one thing to see what ought to be done. It is a different thing to do it. But the valuable person both in church work and elsewhere is the one who can both see and do.—F. E. S.

GREETINGS FOR CHRISTMAS

Let us Send Your Christmas Greetings to Your Friends.

NEXT WEEK comes our Christmas Issue. For the last time we are calling attention to the fact that we have arranged a plan by which we can send a double Christmas greeting to each of your friends as coming from you personally,—a nicer greeting at much less expense than you can send them.

Our plan is this: we are arranging to publish a special Christmas Number of The Restitution Herald in colors with a genuine Christmas greeting on the front cover. You send us a list of those to whom you would send Christmas cards, and we will mail a beautiful greeting card in a pretty envelope by 2c postage to each of those persons, sending your Christmas wishes and telling them that you are having the special Christmas Number of The Restitution Herald sent to further convey your season's greetings. We will do all of this for ten cents per name, which is less than the price for which you can buy and mail a neat greeting card.

If there are duplications, that is if more than one sends the name of a certain person, we will see that the said person receives the name of each one who sent the name.

Make up your list just as soon as possible and mail it to us with ten cents for each name and your Christmas card worries will be over for this year.

Furthermore, who can estimate the good that will come from sending this special issue of The Herald into so many homes?

ENLARGING OUR MAILING LIST

THE MONTH of December is going rapidly, and we are asking each of you to help us in the effort to enlarge our mailing list. Several have already responded by sending in one or more subscriptions. If each reader would send even one other name the list would be doubled.

We feel that each one should be glad and anxious to help in this because of the opportunity for doing a real service in the Master's vineyard, in bringing the truth visibly before another each week.

To add to the interest in getting new subscribers we have offered a Gift Edition of the Bible to the one sending in the most new subscriptions before December 31, provided that the number shall exceed ten.

GOD'S PLAN OF THE AGES

By Mary A. Gesin

TO UNDERSTAND God's progressive steps in dealing with man, it is necessary first to recognize God's supremacy. Before God began His work of creation, He had a plan in mind that comprehended in its scope the beginning and the end. Peter says in Acts 15:18, "Known unto God are all his works, from the beginning of the world", and Isaiah says that He is able to "declare the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure." From this last statement we know that nothing that man might do can change God's purposes as He planned them in the beginning of time.

God is all powerful. He is the Creator of all; "all things were made by him: and without him was not any thing made that was made."—John 1:3. Being the Creator of all, He has supremacy over all. Solomon says that "the righteous, and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God." David also recognized this supremacy for he says in the 17th Psalm, "Shew thy marvelous loving kindness, O thou that savest by thy right hand them which put their trust in thee from those that rise up against them." Not only the righteous but the wicked also are under His supervision, for in the case of those whose hearts are turned away from God, though they do not recognize that authority, Isaiah says that He is the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside Him, even "thou hast not known me."

If it is true, as stated previously, that God knew in the beginning of time His plans and purposes toward mankind, and if it is true that He is all powerful, how futile for weak, puny man to attempt to divert any part of His will for his own benefit or pleasure. It is just as useless for man to take any credit to himself for the blessings that God pours out upon him, for we read in Deuteronomy that God did not give Israel the land of Canaan "for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, but . . . that he may perform the word" which He promised generations before. And we read in Micah 7:18-20 that there is no "God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, . . . he delighteth in mercy. He will . . . perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, . . . sworn unto our fathers from the days of old."

This brings us to the second point in understanding God's purposes toward man, namely, we must rightly divide the Word of truth. Paul told Timothy that God's Word is profitable for all phases of life, and that to be approved by God he must study that Word. In searching out God's plan of the ages we discover that each generation benefited in a different way from every other generation under God's guidance. The things that God revealed to Abraham, for example, were vastly different than those He vouchsafed to Paul, and the blessings to David and Solomon were not the same as those bestowed upon the apostles. We see the importance therefore of placing each advancing step of God's dealings in their proper order. Although the Savior was prophesied away back in the Garden of Eden, He was not revealed until four thousand years later, after man had deliberately turned his back upon God generation after generation.

In summing up these two points then we would say that to rightly understand God's plan of the ages, first of all a knowledge of God's Word is necessary and then an implicit faith in that Word, a sure and abiding conviction that God is willing and able to perform all that He has promised to mankind. Then comes a deeper understanding of His will concerning us as we discover that He has unfolded and will unfold step by step His purposes toward man as the time becomes proper for such development.

The great fact is, that life is a service. The only question is, "Whom will we serve?"—Faber.

HANDWORK IN THE SMALL SUNDAY SCHOOL

By Verna C. Thayer

THERE ARE TWO very important things to be considered in the study of handwork in the Sunday School. The first is, "Why should we have handwork in the Sunday School?" The second is, "How and what kind of handwork can be done in the small Sunday School?"

The necessity of handwork may be discussed from several standpoints. One of the first reasons may be given from a psychological standpoint. Psychology teaches that a child remembers ten per cent of what he hears; fifty per cent of what he sees; seventy per cent of what he says, and ninety per cent of what he does.

Should we not consider these percentages very carefully and plan the presentation of our Sunday School lesson in the way that the child will remember it the best? It seems more emphasis should be placed on having the child actually working out something to illustrate the lesson.

Another important reason is expression of child's ideas. Most children enjoy making something to express their ideas; and if a picture is made, a few straight lines made on a paper may mean a complete story in the mind of a child. Handwork of this kind is very constructive in helping to fix the thoughts of the lesson in the minds of children. It is also an excellent opportunity to see if the child has received the proper conception of the lesson.

A very important reason is, that it is an excellent opportunity to illustrate to the parent what the child is actually learning and doing in the Sunday School work. Very often, it is the means of interesting the parents in church work. Ask the child at the end of the period to take his work home with him and to tell his parents about it. They are only too anxious to do this.

It is a good plan to arrange some of the work of the children in the entry of the church, or where all may see what work they do. But care should be exercised here. The work of all the children should be exhibited at times. All pupils are not artists, but the work, even though much inferior from an artistic standpoint, means much to the one who has done it. If only the best are shown, some children are apt to be hurt or discouraged.

Handwork is a good means of developing personality in the child. A good teacher is not one who simply imparts a large amount of knowledge to the child, but is one who can draw out the will and actions of the child, so he will know how to use the knowledge imparted to him.

Last, but one of the most important is, "It is one of the easiest ways to keep order in your Sunday School.

Weave the child's imagination in with your handwork: keep him busy, and you will find your Sunday School overflowing with interested children.

EQUIPMENT

In the small or one room Sunday School it is impossible to have tables on which the children may work. Small chairs may be used for they can easily be slipped under the front or back seats at the close of Sunday School. The front seats may be very readily used for tables, and the back seats in your church may be so arranged that you can use them also. Let the children sit on the little chairs using these seats as tables.

Scissors, papers, paste, paste cloths and crayolas should be available. These are usually stored in a small cabinet either in the back of the room or in the entry. The crayolas should be so divided that each color is in a separate box; and there should be enough that each child may have a color. Do not make the mistake of having all colors in one box, for this only leads to confusion especially in the classes where you have very small children.

If possible secure a set of silhouette pictures of trees, flowers, animals, etc. and be sure to have a picture of man and woman of the Bible. Almost all Bible scenes may be worked out from such a set of pictures.

Lesson for Dec. 16, 1928: "Paul and His Friends." In your small Sunday School no doubt the ages of the children vary a great deal, and this lesson is worked out with that thought in mind.

To avoid the confusion that often is found in the church when the children gather, a good method is to have the children ushered into their respective places by ushers selected from among the children. Even the tiny tots soon learn to do this work. It also does away with the confusion and time it would take to assemble in classes just before the study period. The teachers are to be ushered into the seats with their classes.

STUDY PERIOD

Let one child hand out papers on which the children are to make their pictures. Another may pass out the scissors. One may give out colors to each child. Do not get more colors than are needed.

Give each child a small paper on which the teacher places a small amount of paste. Some paste cloths must be there too, so the children may clean their pasty fingers and not soil their clothes.

The picture of "Paul and His Friends," may be made. Here are the facts that need to be emphasized in this lesson: "Paul is a prisoner in his own hired house." "He is chained to a soldier." He has converted Onesimus, a runaway slave. Paul is sending Onesimus back, not as a slave, but as a Christian friend.

One of the first things we will want on this picture is Paul's house. This emphasizes the fact that he was a prisoner in his own house and not a jail or dungeon. Perhaps you have a boy or girl in your class who is fond of drawing houses, if so let him or her make a pattern of a house for picture.

After each child has cut out and colored a house let him paste it on large paper.

"Paul was chained to a soldier," may be illustrated by having the children cut out and paste the pictures of two men close together on the large paper, just outside the house. The chain fastening them together may be just a straight line.

A little farther out from the house, have them paste the picture of another man, leaving the house. This represents Onesimus being sent back. The same pattern may be used to represent all the characters; but the child's imagination is so alert, that he will give a separate name to each one. He will soon tell you which one is Paul; which one the soldier; and which, Onesimus. This completes the picture.

All the time the children are making the picture the teacher should be talking to them about the lesson.

If you have an older child in the class, too old for such work, let that one assist the teacher in helping the smaller ones make their pictures, or let such a one make a booklet, with an essay written in his own words about the lesson, using picture as cover. Such a paper may be read before the school as a special number.

After class, have some child (appointed before time) to return all colors, scissors, paste, etc., to the proper place, gather up waste papers, keeping all these things in an orderly manner.

Think over the various conditions in your church and see if it is not possible for you to have more handwork in your Sunday School. Let little hands work out their Bible stories and lessons and you will have "trained up a child in the way he should go."

It is only when the moon is "full" that earth's shadow does not affect it. But this world's dark shadows never allow the full-moon-view of the beauty of the Lord and the glory of His kingdom. How sad! Were people to cease groveling in the miasma of this world, and to get into "heavenly places in Christ Jesus," there would be no eclipse.—Haney.

GOD'S DEALINGS WITH MAN ARE PROGRESSIVE AND CUMULATIVE

By Paul Hatch

GOD THE ALMIGHTY in the beginning when the worlds were in formation, looking down the scope of the years to the culmination of all His mind, prepared also a working plan of conduct and progression on man, the elect of His creation. Man was given the faculty of reason whereby he was given choice as he chose. For this, God gave unto man the precept, "Thou shalt not," placing man, with the faculty of acting out his reason, on his mettle, the choice of obedience or disobedience. The fall of man places him largely upon his own resources of determining the path he shall tread.

There are only two main ways that man shall walk. The first of these is a common fault or faculty of us all; that is, to rely upon self. The other is to recognize our own weakness and seek out aid that will carry us onward and lighten the burden. The latter requires faith from the individual; so with this class of people God has in times past established contact to reveal His plans and purposes to His elect creation.

Such a man was Abraham, to whom God revealed that He was selecting a family that would evolve into a nation. Unto this patriarch, family, and nation God gave precept upon precept, line upon line of commands with a little encouragement upon this generation and a little on that generation; so that as time elapsed, those men of faith, garnering in the precious word of God, were able to deliver unto their posterity, as the apostle Peter exclaims in His second epistle, "great and precious promises." Unto these they should take heed as unto a lamp shining in a dark place until the day dawn and the day star should arise in their hearts.

These plans, precepts, etc., were brought to a focus in one man, even Christ. This Man was God's perfection, for He was able to keep the precepts and commands of the old order with which the simple folk of His time slept, ate and worked. They talked with Him and received from Him instruction into the deep mysteries of God and through His life, His sacrifice, His death, and His resurrection, a fullness of God's plan complete in one Man, from creation unto eternal glory.

Of this class and generation Jesus says in Matthew 13:11, "It is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them (i. e., the multitude of verse 2) it is not given." Also in verses 16, 17, "But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear. For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them."

Peter, also speaking of the same theme, speaks thus in the first chapter of his first epistle, verses 10-12, "Of which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you: searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow. Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost send down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into."

We have in this day such an overbalanced mass of evidence that God has revealed Himself to all men, that our faith should be so much easier than the men of old who bore the burden of doubt. But they through their faith were able to reveal to us God in His omnipotence and mercifulness toward His elect creation.

A PARABLE OF JESUS

By A. L. Corbaley

THE DAYS of the punishment of the Jews will soon be ended. God has promised in His Word, "Therefore hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, but not with wine: thus saith thy Lord the LORD, and thy God that pleadeth the cause of his people, Behold I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury; thou shalt no more drink it again: but I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee; which have said to thy soul, Bow down, that we may go over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as the street, to them that went over."—Isa. 51:21-23.

The Lord has promised that "after that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid. When I have brought them again from the people, and gathered them out of their enemies' lands, and am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations; then shall they know that I am the Lord their God, which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there. Neither will I hide my face any more from them: for I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord God."—Ezek. 39:26-29.

When the Lord brought the Israelites out of the land of Egypt, by the hand of Moses, He first let them into the wilderness of Sinai, where He proved them for forty years. Here all the rebels perished, and only the faithful ones went into the promised land. So again the Lord has declared His purpose in the regathering from all nations;—"As I live, saith the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you: and I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face. Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant: and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me: I will bring them forth out of the country where they sojourn, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am the LORD."—Ezek. 20:33-38. So the living house of Israel will be tested and tried and only the faithful ones will return to the promised land.

Concerning the Jews who will be in the land of Israel when the Lord shall come it is written, "And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith the Lord, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried: they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people: and they shall say, The Lord is my God."—Zech. 13:8-9.

In the 37th chapter of Ezekiel the restoration of Israel is typified by the resurrection: bone coming to its bone, then the sinews, then the flesh, then the covering of skin, then the breath came into them, "and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army. Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost: we are cut off for our parts. Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, and shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the Lord have spoken it, and performed it, saith the Lord."

So it is the Lord's purpose to gather the living house of Israel from among the nations buried, lo, these many centuries, and to restore them again to their ancient heritage as in days of old. To-day under the privileges of the Balfour Declaration, with the approval of fifty-three nations, we see the Jews once more turning Zionward, the dry bones are coming together, the fig tree is budding; soon the Lord will come, and rule the world in righteousness. Then "he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."—Isa. 11:12; Micah 4:1-9; Rom. 11:25-27. So then the rich man and his five brethren will be once more restored to be the people of the Lord, "And the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion, from henceforth, even forever."

Remember that life is neither pain nor pleasure; it is serious business, to be entered upon with courage and in a spirit of self-sacrifice.—De Tocqueville,

BACK-TO-THE-BIBLE CAMPAIGN

By Dr. A. W. Taylor

THE ABOVE is the title of a circular announcing a series of lectures in Cincinnati to be given in March, or perhaps they were delivered last March as the year when these lectures were to be heard was not given. Dr. French E. Oliver, "Author, Lecturer, Teacher," was or is to be the speaker. The circular has the following to say of him:

"In these days of confused and perverted thinking it is very heartening to listen to the preaching of a great defender of the faith like Dr. Oliver. His messages are scholarly, instructive, convincing and inspiring, and he is doing much to clear away doubt and strengthen faith in the Bible as the inspired and authoritative Word of God and the only infallible rule of faith and practice."

Upon the back of this circular is a statement of faith prepared by Dr. Oliver for the International Evangelization Society Incorporated.

The larger part of the articles of faith of this association is evidently sound and correct. But it is passing strange how a teacher of Bible doctrine can believe one item, in which it is stated, "We believe that heaven is a place of Eternal blessedness and that Hell is a place of Eternal suffering. He used capitals in the words "Eternal" and "Hell." The Bible reference he gives in proof of the eternal suffering is Rev. 20:1-15, the entire chapter.

Does not this "teacher" think our Lord and Savior as a Teacher as He was, used words that correctly conveyed the truths He wished to teach? He must answer in the affirmative. Our Lord said as "tares are burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world." "The Son of man shall send forth his angels and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend and them that do iniquity and shall cast them into a furnace of fire. There shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." If human language is capable of teaching any truth, this language teaches that evil doers will be consumed, burned up root and branch as God declares by His prophet Malachi will be the doom of all that do wickedly. John the Baptizer also in telling the work of Christ says that He will burn up the chaff with fire unquenchable.

If Dr. Oliver believes this, and that as a Teacher our Lord used language and illustration in the best way possible by symbol and descriptive language to teach the truth He desired to teach, if this man or any other intelligent person believes this as this teacher claims to believe, he must see that the final doom of wicked men and devils of all them that do iniquity is extinction of being as tares are burned and as stubble is burned up root and branch and NOT ETERNAL SUFFERING. It is too bad that intelligent men and teachers cling to that God-dishonoring, unscriptural doctrine of devils and claim that the Word of God teaches this unbelievable fate of wicked human

CONDITION IN RESURRECTION

We are giving here the copy of a letter written to Sister Horn, and her reply to the brother. Both are well and and logically written, and we feel will be worthy of the careful study of any Bible student. We do not care to publish a series of discussions on this subject, but give these two articles so that both thoughts may be earnestly considered—F. E. S.

Dear Sister Horn:—

Yours of Oct. 29, which was published in the Herald was read critically. I am not sure whether I get your thought or not, but if I understand you rightly, you teach the non-revival of dead bodies, and that man's mind is incorruptible. If I have misunderstood you, please set me right.

First, Gen. 2:7 teaches these things: nothing was put in the dust "MAN" but the breath of life; therefore nothing leaves the "MAN" at death but this "breath". This dust "man" was lifeless and mindless before the breath entered him, and when it leaves him at death he is again lifeless and mindless. Therefore this dust "man" is the EGO whether LIVING, DEAD, or REVIVED. He who then denies the resurrection of the dust "man"—the body—denies the resurrection of man.

Second, Dan. 12:2, "Many—not all—of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake." Pray what sleeps in "the dust of the earth"? Think now: since "man" was taken from the "ground", Gen. 3:19, and at death "returns" unto the ground, follows it not he then sleeps in the "dust of the earth" or the ground? Is there in the ground, or dust, anything of man but his disorganized body? If not, then that is the thing which "sleeps" there; hence "awakes".

Third: since "dead bodies" are the only things placed in "graves", Rev. 11:9, and since all of a certain class are "in the graves" and are to "come forth", John 5:28, 29, follows it not that their bodies therefore emerge?

Fourth: when the judgment takes place "at his appearing", 2 Tim. 4:1, we will then appear before the judgment seat of Christ, 2 Cor. 5:10, and there bow the knee and confess with the tongue, Rom. 14:9-12. Since the knee and tongue of the dead who are then judged are dead, in order for them to bow and confess, these parts of the body must be made alive. If they are made alive, then the body is made alive.

Fifth: David's flesh, though buried, he declares "shall rest in hope", Acts 2:26. If that flesh does not live again, is there any "hope" for it? Does your flesh rest "in hope"?

Sixth: Isaiah believed that his dead body should arise, Isa. 26:19. Was he right or wrong? If this was his hope, do you have a different one? Did he have one hope and Paul another? Is it not safe to say they both viewed this matter similarly? Since Isaiah believed his dead body would arise, and since I believe the same, do not he and I have the same hope? Why not agree with this prophet and be right? "Temporal things" becoming immortal is a mistake you say. This may be true of some things, but is not of the "vile body". Paul says it will be "changed" not destroyed, and "fashion it (What? The "vile body") like unto his glorious body."—Phil. 3:21. He does not contradict himself in 1 Cor. 15:51-55. He there says, "We shall be changed" (not exchanged). To discard one body and then assume another would be an exchange. He says, "This mortal must put on immortality." This mortal does not mean this DEAD. A "mortal" thing is a LIVING THING that can die. So it is a living thing—something that has not died—referring no doubt to the living at that time, that "put on immortality". Here then are living material bodies that "put on immortality". Surely "the mortal" is temporal. If it "puts on immortality" have we not temporal things becoming immortal? But let us examine 2 Cor. 4:18. Paul in Rom. 8:24-25 declares that things seen are not hoped for, but that "we hope for that we see not"; therefore things which are not seen are things of hope, Some of these are the kingdom, inheritance and the life to come. They are all now not seen, and are all eternal. 2 Peter 1:11; Heb. 9:15; John 3:16. There are no "eternal things" about man independent of Jesus. If he "seeks for immortality", Rom. 2:7, God will render to him in that day an eternal thing, namely eternal life, and this is what Paul teaches in 2 Cor. 5:1-4, which we will now consider.

Here two houses are spoken of: one earthly and the other "which is from heaven". He says that those in "this tabernacle" do not wish to leave it, not that we should be unclothed, but on the contrary desired "the tabernacle" to "be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven". He says that when this takes place mortality—the earthly house—will "be swallowed up of life"—the heavenly house. Here he tells us what these figures, "earthly" and "house which is from heaven" signify.

"Earthly" one means "mortality"; the one "from heaven" means "life". As the Bible calls them "clothing" in 1 Cor. 15:51-55, Diag., saying, "this mortal must be clothed with immortality", so in 2 Cor. 5:1-4 he calls them "houses". These houses, or clothing, are not bodies for two reasons: first the "earthly house" is to be "SWALLOWED UP", or "clothed upon with our house which is from heaven". Will one body "swallow" or envelop another? Second, If the earthly house is the dead body and the "house from heaven" is another body separate and distinct, then since the dead body Isaiah says "shall arise", it would mean the earthly house would arise. But if the house from heaven puts in its appearance, each saint would have two houses—the earthly from the grave, and the “house which is from heaven”—one too many. Yes, one to rent, but since it will no doubt be conceded that he actually termed mortal and immortality “clothing” in 1 Cor. 15:51-55, why could he not term mortality and life in 2 Cor. 5:1-4 “houses”? The latter is no more difficult than the former. Now since mortality and immortality are termed clothing, it is evident that in the death state when neither is possessed, one truly is destitute of either clothing, or naked. If God can “clothe the grass”, Matt. 6:30, He can unclothe it. Now since the clothing of the grass must be its verdure and life, need we be surprised to know that mortality and immortality as to man may also mean clothing? Note before we paraphrase 2 Cor. 5:1-4, Paul says that if the earthly house of some be dissolved, implying that such will not be the case with all. Here then is our paraphrase: “For we know that IF we die, we will have a life from God not terminable, but eternal in duration; for in this life we groan earnestly desiring to put on the next life without dying. Otherwise, if we die, when the next life comes it will find us lifeless. For we that are now mortal do groan being burdened, not that we should die but be clothed upon with immortality, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.” Now as to John 3:3-8. Jesus here speaks of two births: of the flesh and of the Spirit. When born of the flesh the natural body and life are produced. When born of the Spirit the spiritual body and eternal life are produced; for each birth produces its own “body” and “life”. Since the spiritual body and everlasting life are obtained in the resurrection, Dan. 12:2; 1 Cor. 15:44, then it must necessarily be the time when one is born of the Spirit and can come and go as the wind.

Are you a spiritual body now? Do you possess eternal life? Are you in your comings and goings invisible as the wind? If not, then it is certain you are not born of the Spirit now. Did Caesar’s image on the penny, Luke 20:24, bear his nature? Was he not of one nature and his image another? Could this not be true also of God’s image—man? Is not man mortal and God immortal?

Does not Gen. 1:27-30 teach that God’s image—man—was neither male or female, that it could eat fruit for meat? Does not Gen. 9:6 affirm that this image has blood which can be shed? What then can the image be but man’s body? This meets your arguments as far as I can see. Now will you reply? May the foregoing hereafter cause you to believe that your flesh shall “rest in hope”; that your dead body shall arise together with the Lord’s “dead men”, Isa, 26:19, is the prayer of your brother in Christ.

IN REPLY TO THE ABOVE

Dear Readers of the Herald:—

I wish to invite those of you who find my views ob-jectional, to help me consider some questions that will necessarily occur in this, my short reply to the brother who wrote me. If Paul’s writings, according to Peter, 2 Pet. 3:16, contain some things hard to understand, is it not possible that we have ignorantly “wrested” them to our destruction? Rev. 22:18, 19. Let us be careful.

In the beginning of creation, did God really walk in the garden, and talk with Adam, or was it a “voice” that Adam became conscious of, but to which he refused to hearken, preferring to “hearken to the voice” of his wife, which was the voice of the flesh, proving his mind to be carnal, which is death. Rom. 8:6. Yet God imputed (charged) no sin, till he had wilfully broken His law, knowing he was doing so. 1 Tim. 2:14. Now had Adam been sinless in the beginning—as many contend—no law would ever have been necessary. 1 Tim. 1:9. Is it not then “carnal death” from which we must attain resurrection? Phil 3:11.

When Adam went out to a place “which he was after to receive, not knowing whither he went”, are we to understand that he hoped for an earthly, or an heavenly inheritance, for Gen. 11:31 states that they went forth from Ur of the Chaldees, to go into the land of Canaan? And after a stop in Haran, they again went forth to go into the land of Canaan, Gen. 12:5, knowing then, their destination, land they knew of, and saw. Now a promised land is a land of promise, something not yet realized. As God said,—Gen. 12:1, “a land I WILL SHOW THEE”. (Did God “show them” the land of Canaan?) Again God said to Isaac, (long after Abraham’s death) “the land that I WILL TELL THEE OF”. Gen. 26:2. “Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee”. And David, Psa. 39:12, says, “a stranger with thee, (God) a sojourner, as all my fathers were”. Paul shows, Acts 7:5, that God gave Abraham none inheritance in the land of Canaan, though “he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.” Were these latter promises literally fulfilled? Read Neh. 19:22-38. Now refer to Heb. 9:11. By faith he became a sojourner in the land of promise as in a land not his own. This land was an inheritance of his and his seed, who, or which were heirs with him; namely all the faithful, of whatsoever country, or nationality.

Several years back, it will be remembered, Bro. Williams labored diligently to show double meanings in some scriptural passages. Paul wrote the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 2:14, “Now the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him.” So we are to understand that reference is made in Scripture to “natural” and “spiritual” man though the flesh of either is in no wise different to the first man formed. Now where in Scripture does God promise resurrection to this physical, which is common to all? Did He promise Adam (natural man) anything? Instead of “resurrection” Abraham was promised multiplication through his seed was he not? Physical man IS dust, with a natural mind to begin with, just a figure only of Him that was to come (“in our image and likeness”), just a lifeless image insofar as the spiritual life is concerned, just as the image of Caesar on the penny was lifeless insofar as natural life is concerned. A new born babe may be the "image" of the father, yet many moons must come and go before it bears his likeness. Yes, the natural mind of man is corruptible, but the Christ mind is incorruptible, hence immortal. Who said, "But we, have the mind of Christ"? God found no fault in the dust of the man which He had formed. That was "very good". It was the carnal mind of the man which was enmity against God. Rom. 8:7. This, then, is what requires "changing", is it not, requiring a "schoolmaster" in the law?

Friends, how can a "disorganized body" awake? How can it do any thing, or even be said to sleep? Can an inanimate thing "sleep"? Our bodies, even to heart and brain, and the life which is the blood thereof, Gen. 9:4; Lev. 17:14, all are dust of the ground. In this dust during a long natural lifetime, the mind might never awake to the sound of the voice of the Son of God. Truly, "many that sleep in the dust of the ground shall awake". Many never will. "Awake and sing ye that D-W-E-LL in dust" (if Bro. Conner would only tell us now what he can of John 5:28. Something about "the memorial" isn't it Bro. Conner?), because to MY mind Christ HAS appeared, and every day now is judgment day, Acts 17:31, when the "nations stand before God". Does 2 Cor. 5:10, or Rom. 14:9-12 state that the "knees" or "tongues", are of people long since dead?

Let us all be careful now. It was Christ's resurrection of which David prophetically spoke, Psa. 16:9, not his own. Acts 2:24-32. His flesh was to rest in hope (or marginal, "dwell confidently"). Neither does His rising from the tomb the third day prove that our physical bodies will rise, because He rose that prophecy might be fulfilled and also His flesh had not yet become corrupt. Was it not a sign rather, an offering of faith—or assurance—that this was the Man by whom God would judge the world? Acts 17:31. Again, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise". "There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body", Paul so declared. Now which body did Isaiah have in mind? Isa. 26:19. Let us consider David's plaint, Psa. 88:5, "Free among the dead, like the slain that lie in the grave, WHOM THOU REMEMBEREST NO MORE", and not study the passages only, that agree with our views. Paul strove "if by any means" he might attain to the resurrection from the dead". How could he hope to attain to any thing, or "apprehend" anything, if he did not do so before the cessation of his natural life (since God "remembers the literal dead no more")? Answer me that. Why, the brother himself contends, or asserts, that "this mortal does not mean this dead. A mortal thing is a living thing that can die". Exactly! Just what I am trying to prove. How can anyone make such an assertion, and not have his eyes opened?

Then Paul meant exactly what he taught when he wrote, "This mortal must put on immortality". He was teaching living mortals, surely. Jesus promised living mortals "I WILL COME UNTO YOU". Did He speak true? Their flesh has been returned to dust nearly two thousand years. "If the Spirit of Christ be not in you, ye are none of his." Were these His? "So also is the resurrection of the dead—sown naturally as in Adam, raised spiritually as in Christ. Yet the flesh is not benefited, it is still flesh, always will return to its dust. Christ was put to death in the flesh, but quickened in the Spirit, 1 Pet. 3:18, showing the weakness of the flesh, and the power of the Spirit. If we have "crucified the flesh, together with the passions and the lusts thereof", why do we wish for, or desire its re-rising? Why do we crucify, or sacrifice it? The brother scouts the idea of two bodies, suggesting a "To Let" sign for one, yet he teaches the birth of two, with life (tenant) for each. Surely consistency thou art a jewel indeed. "For ye are dead, (or "ye died," R. V.). When did they die? "When Christ who is our life (now the Lord is the Spirit. 2 Cor. 3:17) shall appear ("be manifested," R. V.) then shall ye also be manifested in glory". WHEN? Way off in ages to come, think you? No, for that life must be manifest in them. Was not the Son revealed in Paul? Gal. 1:16. And if it be NOT in them, neither are they his. Rom. 8:9, 10, 11. NOW is the time when MORTAL bodies may be QUICKENED by the Spirit. But that mortal body being CHANGED TO IMMORTAL is a thought not to be entertained for one moment. The flesh with a natural germ of life in it might be likened to a seed having a life germ which by the sacrifice of the seed body is given a new life and body as it pleases God to give it, but the seed itself returns to dust—is forgotten. Now if flesh has continuance through rebirth, where should we look for continuance of the spirit? So far as I know Paul was unmarried, yet I believe he was virtuous. However, he begot a son while in bondage, and wrote the Corinthians that he was their father, having begotten them. When do such births take place? Has the Christ a physical body of which one may be a "member"? If the church is His body, when will it come, be made manifest, or revealed? "Changed? Yes; from natural to Spiritual, awaking righteously. What more shall I say?

MANY OPPORTUNITIES ARE OPEN TO THE CHRISTIAN. DON'T LOSE ANY OF YOURS.

A Fertile Field for Service

WE ARE IN receipt of a communication from Sr. Dorothy Magaw, who is chairman of the Junior Social Correspondence department of national Berean work, and in her behalf we wish to ask your earnest co-operation in these ways:

When announcement is made through the paper of the baptisms of young folks, please give not only their names and locality, but also their street addresses and if possible their approximate ages. This will materially assist the committee in their work. You can also help by writing Sr. Magaw at 1646 Sherburne Ave., St. Paul, Minn. of any young people up to the age of twenty-five who are ill, isolated, bereaved or in any way needful of the cheer and encouragement which can be given. Sr. Magaw wishes to thank all those who have so splendidly cooperated thus far.

There is a field of unlimited opportunity. Let us each help as we can.

A Junior Berean of the Oregon, Ill. class gives us the following excellent little treatise on "the greatest thing in the world":

LOVE

Love is the motive which, through all the ages that God has been known to man, has inspired man to worship Him. Love of God has always been the chief trait of men famous in Bible history.

David speaks of love very often in Psalms, while in the New Testament Jesus gives the first and greatest commandment: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." Matt. 22:37. This commandment is also given by God in the Old Testament, in Deut. 6:5. It is a prominent factor in all of God's laws.

Thus throughout the Bible, man's love of God and of his brethren has been the keynote to his personal salvation.

FROM CALIFORNIA

Dear Bereans,

The study of "The Church of God" proved a very interesting study.

In Matt. 16:16 Peter, in answer to Jesus' question, "But whom say ye that I am?" declared: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." His answer caused Jesus to say, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock (confession that He was the Christ, the Son of the living God) I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Here Jesus expresses determination to build His Church. The thought of "build" here might cause some to think He had reference to the edifice, but we find by a study of the subject that it is the individuals that constitute the Church, or house of God. Paul speaks thus: "And Moses verily was faithful in all his house, as a servant, . . . but Christ as a son over his own house; whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end." Heb. 3:5, 6.

Again the apostle Paul makes it clear to the Ephesian brethren that those in Christ constitute the house (or building) of God. He says, "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners (Gentile converts), but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth into an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." Eph. 2:19-22.

God "calls out" through the gospel, "for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." Rom. 1:16. He sets the members in the body, as Paul declares in 1 Cor. 12:18, "But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him."

Remembering this, therefore, let each of us strive to fill the place in which God has set us, and to use the talents He has given us to the glory of God and His Son, Jesus the Christ.—Nettie B. Crundwell.

Fear, worry, anxiety or anger close the tubes and subways of the body. We do not half realize the subtle force of thought; for if we did we would strive to acquire more faith and tranquillity which have an opposite effect.

THE BIRTH OF JESUS

THIS IS THE STORY of how the Christ Child came—the most beautiful story in the Bible.

There was a very sweet woman named Mary, who lived in the city of Nazareth. One time when she was praying, God sent His angel, Gabriel, to her. The angel said, "Hail, thou art highly favored, the Lord is with thee." Mary was afraid because she did not quite understand what the angel meant. But the angel said, "There is a little baby coming to your home and his name is to be called Jesus, because it is he that shall save his people from their sins. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High. And the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father, David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever."

This was a wonderful story for the angel to tell, but it all came true.

The Babe was born in a stable, in the town of Bethlehem, David's own city in the land of Judea. His mother had no cradle for Him, so she put Him in a manger, the box of hay where cattle were sometimes fed.

It seems strange that Jesus, the Son of God should be born in a stable, but Joseph and Mary lived in Nazareth in Galilee. At this time, the Emperor made a law that all the people should go to the city of their father's and pay a tax. Joseph and Mary both belonged to the family of king David, so they had to go to the city of David. But many more people had come to the town for the same purpose, and when Joseph and Mary went to the inn to get lodging, the rooms were all full. They were tired from their long journey and were glad to get any warm place where they could rest.

And that same night—that first Christmas night—when Jesus was born—some shepherds who kept their flocks on the plains near the city, were the first ones who had the good news sent to them. A great brightness and glory shone around them. There was wonderful music from the skies. The angels came near and sang, "Glory to God in the highest. Peace on earth, good will to men."

The shepherds listened. An angel sang, "I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people; for there is born to you this day in the city of David, a saviour, who is Christ the Lord. And this is a sign unto you: Ye shall find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying: Glory to God in the highest, And on earth peace among men, in whom he is well pleased."

Then the angels went back to heaven and the shepherds said one to another, "Let us now go to Bethlehem and see if all this is true."

Then they hurried to the place, and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe in the manger, and they were so glad and so happy. They then went away and told others about the wonderful news from heaven.

After several days Joseph and Mary went back to Bethlehem, for they had many friends and relatives there.

LESSON XIII.—December 30, 1928

REVIEW: PAUL, THE WORLD CHRISTIAN

Devotional Reading: Psa. 103:1-5; 8-13

GOLDEN TEXT

For to me to live is Christ.—Phil. 1:21.

Lesson 1. Paul in Ephesus.

Summary: One of Paul's principal labors was to both proclaim the gospel in foreign lands, and to witness before their people for Jesus Christ. In Ephesus he spake boldly the truths of Christ and wrought freely miracles in the name of Christ. Thus injecting faith into considerate listeners, Paul perfected saints for his Lord. These saints were fitly joined to each other in Christ as members in one body.

Lesson 2. Spiritual Gifts.

Summary: Spiritual gifts bestowed by Christ who is "a quickening Spirit" upon those being converted from the natural to the spiritual were given to each one "to profit withal". Of these gifts, Paul cites charity as the greatest not only in point of effectiveness upon the gifted one, but also in point of duration of continuance. Abiding, i. e. continuing with charity, are the gifts of faith and hope.

As to spiritual gifts, Paul assures the Christians of all centuries that these three gifts—faith, hope, charity—should be realized by every Christian.

Lesson 3. Christian Stewardship.

Summary: To become Christian is to bring all one's powers and place them at the feet of Jesus. Every work and aim of life is, by the Christian, wrought for his Master. Paul includes one's financial earnings and acquisitions in this consecration. He cites the grace of Christ, who, though He was rich, "yet for your sakes he became poor". As steward of the grace of God, He distributed fully of that grace to others more needy until He, Himself, gave all. He urges the Corinthians to do with their abilities as did Christ with His.

Lesson 4. Paul's Last Journey to Jerusalem.

Summary: His life's work in the missionary field having been completed, and it being necessary to devote the short remaining time of life to other phases of his mission, Paul, in full health and vigor bids adieu to his last visited Asiatic church, and proceeds to Jerusalem. In this last adieu, Paul enunciates truths and instructions appropriate to every Christian church of the age. The elders, so established by the Holy Spirit, he exhorts to be true and faithful overseers of the church; this, in service to God, whose they are.

Lesson 5. World's Temperance Sunday.

Summary: "Higher power" is Paul's theme in Rom. 13:1-10. A supreme Power should always be recognized by man. The organization of the race into nations, under kings, was ordained by God. They, with their subjects, are all duty bound to submit to God.

The Christian should subject himself both to kings ordained by God, and God Himself, but certainly unto God. God especially and, properly a nation's king, rule for the benefit of the subject. God especially directs temperance in all life's walks; this as an essential, for the indwelling of God by His Spirit.

Lesson 6. Peace and Good Will Among Men.

Summary: As the administration of punishment in the home should be left to the parent, so in the Christian's life, the administration of vengeance to another should be left in the hands of God. Therefore, should the Christian place self acceptably in the service of God, awaiting His time and manner for punishing another's wrong. In this manner, the Christian does all possible within himself to live peaceably with all men.

Lesson 7. Paul's Experiences in Jerusalem.

Summary: Paul, returning from foreign lands, entered the temple where he again announced Jesus as the Messiah of the Jews. The uproar created by his teachings necessitated the soldiers to restore quiet. Under arrest Paul, having been previously advised by God that trouble should attend him, but that he should witness for God in Rome, committed himself to the keeping of God. The results bear splendid testimony to the value of faithful reliance upon Jehovah.

Lesson 8. The Prayers of Paul.

Summary: Paul's usage of the privilege of prayer provides beautiful illustration to Christians everywhere. Though divinely empowered for the performance of many great works, yet Paul prayed often and commended his brethren of all places in prayer to God. For his brethren he petitions that wisdom, and strength, and Spirit shall make them indeed God's servants, efficiently serving their God.

The indwelling of God and of Christ through the Spirit of God is uppermost in his prayer for the Ephesians. Such indwelling would give perfect guidance, sustenance, ability for all Christian labor.

Lesson 9. Paul Before His Judges.

Summary: Paul's example of faith before Felix should excite the admiration of all Christians. While Felix judged Paul from the human and political point of view, Paul evidently regarded that Jesus was his real judge. His expressions to Felix were considered by Jesus equally as they were by Felix. Felix' censure might well be God's approval and vice versa. Paul had committed himself to God and was living unto Him. These truths are like applicable to all Christians. It is one's life that is revealed in his speech and his life is judged by God as well as by man. It is God's judgment that each must regard.

Lesson 10. Paul goes to Rome.

Summary: Faithfully recognizing God's guidance, Paul welcomed being bound to the Roman soldiers who must, thus protect him from violence by his enemies. In this bondage Paul miraculously revealed God's oversight and direction through storm and tempest in the face of all the enemies and pagans.

Paul, reaching Rome, still under arrest, openly proclaims those very truths for which he was arrested in Jerusalem. Thus the word of God was heralded abroad. Disciples were made for Christ, and members for the church of God were gathered from Rome also.

Lesson 11. Paul and His Friends.

Summary: That Christianity is the one life that cements human beings into abiding, permanent friendship is strongly and plainly revealed by the life of Paul. As revealed by Paul, the closer one lives to God, the greater one's power from God, the larger one's field of action for God, the greater is his responsibility for every other member belonging, like self, to the body of Christ, the church of God. God's love-tempered Spirit, holding possession of such responsible one, moulds him into friendship for even the weakest members: that friendship that cannot stop short of the full exercise of Christian service for such ones.

Lesson 12. The Birth of Jesus.

Summary: As in Eden was staged the creation of the first Adam, so in Bethlehem was wrought the making of Jesus, the second Adam, like unto his senior brother. So great was the meaning of this event that heaven's angelic chorus acclaimed its importance to God and to man. Lowly shepherds were the medium through whom this message was conveyed abroad.

Questions. Give Golden Text of each lesson in connection with its study.

Follow by giving principal point in each lesson. Feature one or more special Christian traits as exemplified by Paul in each lesson. Apply the principles of each lesson to Christianity to-day. Discern, through each lesson, the differences of the principles therein when applied to the carnal life and when applied to the spiritual life. Portray Christianity as exemplified by Paul in the six months' course of lessons on his life.

What can you say of Jesus being the Son of God? Wherein was He like or dislike Adam? Why should the angels proclaim His birth? Wherein did His birth ascribe glory to God?

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Bro. S. J. Lindsay who has been ill for several months, and has been in the Dixon Hospital for treatment for several weeks, has made sufficient gains so that he is now at home again. It will be some time before he will be out and going again, but in the meantime he may be addressed, Oregon, Ill.

Bro. Austin filled the Oregon pulpit last Sunday; Bro. Marsh gave an extra Sunday of work to the Dixon church, and Bro. Siple went to Plum River and Adeline.

Bro. Paul Hatch, of the Bible Training class, who has been suffering from an infection which settled in his glands, having to be opened under his right arm, is now practically recovered, and able to smile again.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Longanecker, of Pearl City, Ill., on Nov. 28, a daughter. Mrs. Longanecker was formerly Nota Lindsay, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Chas. Lindsay, of Pearl City. The blue eyed addition to the family is to be known as Katherine Phyllis. Our congratulations and best wishes are theirs.

Bro. Geo. A. Brown, of the Oregon, Ill. congregation, who spent a few weeks at Golden Rule Home is at present in Franklin Grove, Ill., spending the winter with his daughter.

Bro. and Sr. H. C. Starbuck, of Rockford, Ill., and their son and wife, Bro. and Sr. Glyn Starbuck of the same city were visitors with the Oregon friends on Sunday last.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE

The National Bible Institution is in a position to furnish you all the materials you may need for your Sunday Schools, including quarterlies for young and old, children's class supplies, picture cards, papers, and the like. Some of these are our own publications, and some we get in wholesale quantities from other publishers. We shall be glad to give you prices on any kind of supplies which may be needed for your Sunday School.

Address, National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

Have you sent your list of names for Christmas greetings yet? This is the last call. Turn to third page of this issue.

CEDAR FALLS, IOWA

Don't forget the week-end meeting at Cedar Falls, Iowa, this coming week-end. Bro. Austin will be the speaker.

Bro. and Sr. Elmer Berggren and children, Alton and Olive, with Sr. Esther Sealine, of Stanhope, Iowa, attended the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago last week, and Alton had the opportunity of playing in the Hamilton County 4H Club Band.

STANHOPE, IOWA

We wish to report the work being done in the vicinity of Stanhope. We are very pleased to have Bro. J. W. Williams with us for another year. Since conference he has kept his regular appointment here, which is the second Sunday of each month.

In September we were visited by Sr. J. W. Williams and daughter Cleo, Mr. and Mrs. E. Huehn of Webster City and daughter Ilene Behm of Ft. Dodge, Sr. Edna Allard and Bro. O. J. Allard, who at this time gave a Bible lesson which was enjoyed by all.

A few from here have driven to Hickory Grove a number of times to hear Bros. Williams, Allard and Arthur Johnson. There we became better acquainted with Sr. O. J. Allard.

We also enjoyed a few of the meetings at Webster City conducted by Bro. J. Arthur Johnson which continued over two weeks. He also delivered two sermons here November 25.

The usual faithful few in attendance here average about twenty-five with occasionally a new listener. During the winter months the meetings will be held in the homes.

One evening in September Paul and Ruth Spencer of Gentry, Mo. drove in, greatly surprising us. It is ten years since Ruth and her father were at the Iowa Conference, so it seemed mighty good to see her again and to become acquainted with her brother.

With Thanksgiving Day just past, still how very many things we have to be thankful for every day! Can we count our blessings and name them one by one? I think not, they are innumerable. The Lord hath said, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." So now, that we are blessed with another laborer in the state for a time, and with the dawn of a new year let us each and everyone of the membership of Iowa go forth with renewed effort, realizing our responsibility both prayerfully, financially and otherwise, that some day good results will be known. The results of spiritual works cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents. Man planteth and watereth but God giveth the increase.

Yours in hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began, Esther Sealine.

CALIFORNIA

Our all day services on the first Sunday were well attended, and enjoyed by those present. Bro. Johnson spoke in the forenoon on the subject of the nation of Israel and Bro. Hammond spoke in the afternoon on Nebuchadnezzar's dream found in Daniel 2.

We were very much pleased to have Bro. Norman McLeod and family with us. He is improving in health and only spent a short time in the sanitarium.

Bros. Fenton Hickox and Walter Gray were present also. Their duties are such as to keep them away the greater part of the time.

A committee was appointed to prepare the Christmas program. Those named were Sr. Eva Stearns, Sr. Anna Hammond and Bro. Johnson. We expect a good program with such live wires behind it.

We greatly rejoiced to learn through the last paper that Bro. Lindsay had improved somewhat.

THE NEED OF WORKERS

In The Restitution Herald of Nov. 27th Bro. Siple speaks very highly of the Bible Training Class. I can give hearty assent to what he said. I had the pleasure of being with the Training Class for a few days and enjoyed the time spent with them very much. I believe they are capable of doing a good work for the Lord.

It is too bad that some of them are not now ready to take up the work. Niagara Falls and Fonthill are very much in need of someone that can take up the work permanently with them. There is a fine field of work here and some very fine people as co-workers.

There seems to be a misunderstanding about my work here. I am here alone, and I am only supplying for a time while we are trying to work out some plan to give them permanent help. However much I might desire to do so, it is impossible for me to take the work permanently.

If any of the brethren know of any one that would be available for the work here, kindly let us know.

Write either Mrs. E. M. Seburn, Welland, Ont., or Mrs. Earl L. Moore, 1641 Watson Ave., Niagara Falls, N. Y. Jas. A. Patrick.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

The union Thanksgiving service was a great success. Our church was well filled. We thought for a while we would not be able to seat the crowd, but some of the boys rushed to the Christian church just one block away and carried over sixty chairs and that was just enough. Thanks to the Christian church for being so neighborly. The sermon by Rev. Daugherty could not have been added to, and was well received by everyone present.

We are planning now for a Christmas tree and program appropriate to the occasion.

Our annual bazaar will be Saturday Dec. 8. Thanks to all that have sent offerings for this bazaar.

Mr. Ray Dixon of Omaha, son of Bro. and Sr. Emory Dixon of the Church of God at Omaha, accidentally shot himself and though the wound is not fatal, it is very serious. Our sympathy goes out to him and his wife, parents, and other near relatives. We are praying for his soon recovery.

Our trip to Holbrook was postponed until after the holidays on account of heavy snow.

Interest in spiritual things is increasing and our work is moving on very nicely. Join us in prayer that this may continue.

E. E. Giesler.

LET US

By Lydia Railsback

PAUL WAS by no means a selfish person. He was constantly working for those around him to bring them to the Master. Paul, though a devoted Christian, seemed always to be on guard or fearing that after all he might fail in the Christian race. In Heb. 2:1 He says, "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." Not only did Paul want to be careful himself but he wanted others likewise to be constantly watching for fear they too might be cast off; therefore he says, "we ought".

In Hebrews 3, Paul is arguing that Christ is more worthy than Moses and that therefore He should be regarded the more, and that the Israelites failed to enter in because of unbelief; then he began the next chapter by saying, "Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it. For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them". Notice the "Let us"; not just you or just me but "Let us"; each one, every one, a united effort. Although it is a united effort it effects each individual and the individuals are the ones that reap the results.

Again, Paul says, "Let us labor"; "Let us hold fast", "Let us come boldly unto the throne of grace"; "Let us draw near with a true heart"; and "Let us consider one another unto love and to good works".

All these admonitions were given to the Hebrew brethren, but to me they are just as applicable to-day as when they were written. The "Let us" is an admonition that all can heed. The "Let us" if heeded will make each individual stronger and will make the work also stronger in a collective way. If we could all heed Paul's admonition on the "Let us", what a difference it would make in our Christian lives. If we could "Let us" realize more and more what the birth of the Savior means to the world, what a work could be done in His name! If we could all "Let us" heed Paul's admonition, what a band of workers there would be!

OXFORD BIBLES

THE NEW BASKET WEAVE BINDING

THIS NEW BINDING is grained with a basket weave design which, as shown in the illustration, extends over most of the front, as well as the entire back cover. The highly finished calf leather, dark brown in color, combined with the unusual basket weave grain, give these volumes a striking and rich effect.

The button-clasp keeps the volumes tightly closed, and preserves their shapeliness. The covers, which are slightly overlapping, are lined with brown imitation silk. All styles are the Authorized or King James Version, and are printed on the famous Oxford India paper. The Bibles contain six beautifully colored maps.

Although these volumes have been announced but a short time ago, we have experienced difficulty in keeping enough stock on hand always to supply our orders. This, to us, is conclusive evidence that those who see these volumes in the new basket weave binding are pleased with them.

CHRISTMAS

“Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.”

The Herald and the National Bible Institution offices wish the readers of these lines every true Christmas Joy and Blessing.

CHRIST'S FAR-REACHING INFLUENCE

AS THE TIME to again commemorate the birth of our Lord returns we are reminded by all of the season's activities that no other event in the history of man has resulted in such extended influence over the human race. Everywhere throughout Christendom the individual and the nation, in a business way as religiously pause to again catch up the echoes of the angel's song.

Even though this moment of semi-attention could well be far more true to Him whose name is honored, yet it remains a fact that His life has thrown out an unmeasured influence upon mankind. This general influence has meant much, very much, to the shaping of individuals in general and to the molding of nations, while the specific influence upon the few has meant unspeakably more.

As true followers, may we seek to extol His name and further His cause in this, one more Christmas season.

THE SPIRIT OF GOD IN CHRIST

IT MAY WELL be asked, “Why the unbounded and unmeasured influences of Christ upon man?” Do they spring from His mere birth? At once the heart says, “No.” Do they flow on because of the heavenly testimony of His birth, thus surrounding the event with a halo of glory? Again the heart denies. Is it because of the character of His teachings that followed? We are compelled to realize that even His marvelous teachings could not, in themselves, have continued and extended their influences—shattering the girdle of jealous religionists, scaling the walls of barbarian hordes; surviving the martyrdoms of that venom which darkened the ages; leaping the uncharted oceans and peopling new worlds for freedom. His teachings alone, unaided could not have achieved such wonders. Was it because of His death, alone? Again we answer, “No.”

Following His resurrection He assured that He would be with His people to the end of the world. He would be with them through the Helper, the Comforter, the Holy Spirit, which He said He would pray the Father to send unto them. True to His word, the Spirit was imparted at Pentecost which enabled the apostles to convincingly testify by words and works of the renewed life and work of the Lord. Enabled by this mighty power through the gift of Christ, His true people have pressed on against every opposition of man and of evil. The name and cause of Him whose birth the world acclaims has been made to surmount every hindrance, illuminate every darkness, tower over every problem of life. This, the mighty living, throbbing, permeating influence of Christ is what exalts His name to first place in the world. Anthems of the anniversary of the birth of One so great cannot be made sufficient to render full and proper homage to One who was born to become Savior, Priest and King.

HOW MANY MORE?

THAT IS the question. How many more anniversaries of the birth of the world's King before He shall have come again, “without sin, unto salvation”?

Like the weaver's shuttle, the years have been rushing to and fro through the warp of Time, weaving photo-patterns of the ages as they pass. The patterns being now rapidly woven are patterns which the prophetic charts have outlined upon the fabric of the close of this Christian age. Following quickly this same Jesus, of whom the angels sang before Bethlehem, will come in the fullness of glory to finish all that He "began both to do and teach" before His crucifixion.

This age is rapidly drawing to its close. Every recurring Christmas clips one from the number remaining till His return. How many more? No one can tell. It is sufficient to know that time speeds rapidly; that soon He that is to come will come and His reward will be with Him to give to every man according to his work. Let us redeem the time.

CHRISTMAS RECEIPTS

IT IS CUSTOMARY to present gifts to one another at the Christmas season. This is based upon the gift of the Son of God, whose birth we honor. Some have chosen to make gifts to the Lord's work in advancing the work of the General Conference. Those from whom gifts have been received during this Christmas month are: Clarence Lapp; Mrs. F. E. Smith; Mrs. Ida Orem; Mabel H. Netts; Estie Macey; Mrs. T. M. Savage; Mrs. M. A. Woodward; Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Barber; Mrs. Harriet Reed; Mrs. John Guthrie. Total $68.88.

A REAL HOLIDAY

THE WORD, holiday, is a combination of the words holy and day. How significant as we now come to Christmas, a day holy, set apart, because we commemorate the birth of the world's Savior!

Of all holidays this one stands chief. It breathes a message of love, kindness, quietude,—peace. Let us celebrate it not in a boisterous, firecracker way, but with true and spiritual reverence.—F. E. S.

THE SHEPHERDS AND THE ANGEL

GOD'S REVELATIONS come to those who are ready for them.

It was not to learned rabbis, but to humble shepherds at their accustomed toil that the wondrous news of the birth of the Christ first came. They were watching their flock at night in the neighboring fields of Bethlehem, when an angel suddenly appeared to them and bade them fear not as he announced, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."

For the four words, "I bring good tidings," there is but one word in the Greek, evaggelizomai, from which is derived our verb, evangelize. And this was the glad tidings: "Unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord,"—Selected.

ENLARGING OUR MAILING LIST

THE MONTH of December is going rapidly, and we are asking each of you to help us in the effort to enlarge our mailing list. Several have already responded by sending in one or more subscriptions. If each reader would send even one other name the list would be doubled.

We feel that each one should be glad and anxious to help in this because of the opportunity for doing a real service in the Master's vineyard, in bringing the truth visibly before another each week.

To add to the interest in getting new subscribers we have offered a Gift Edition of the Bible to the one sending in the most new subscriptions before December 31, provided that the number shall exceed ten.

THE PURPOSE AND VALUE OF PROPHECY

By G. E. Marsh

THE PURPOSE and Value of Prophecy" is a theme of sufficient interest to hold the attention of the most thoughtful minds, for when we enter upon the study of prophecy we are venturing beyond the realm of the finite into the profound verities of the infinite. Our spirits are humbled as we catch a glimpse of the awful forces operating by the Creator's will, and we realize something of the resistless power generated and governed by His might.

The word "prophecy", like many other words in our English Bible, has been borrowed from the Greek tongue, and it is to that language that we must go if we would have a true conception of the meaning of the word. Propheteia—prophecy—is defined by Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon as being "discourse emanating from divine inspiration, and declaring the purposes of God, whether by reproving and admonishing the wicked, or comforting the afflicted, or revealing things hidden; especially by foretelling future events." Prophecy, therefore, covers a much wider range of thought than is generally supposed. All scripture given by inspiration of God is prophecy according to the literal meaning of the word propheteia which is transliterated into the English.

The corresponding Hebrew word is "nabuwah", and comes from the root "naba", which Gesenius in his Hebrew and Chaldee Lexicon defines as follows: "Naba, to cause to bubble up, hence to pour forth words abundantly, as is done by those who speak with ardour or divine emotion of mind . . ." To speak (as a prophet) by divine power, to prophesy, Greek, propheteia. In Hebrew, the passive form, naphal and hithpael, are used in this verb, from the divine prophets having been supposed to be moved rather by another's power than their own, (which is the simple truth, "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost"). The Hebrew word rendered "prophecy" suggests the thought of men into whose minds God poured His supernal wisdom and truth so copiously that they could not contain it. The flood of inspiration they had received bubbled up within their hearts and poured forth in abundance the "water of life."

The definition of prophecy, suggested by Peter in his second epistle, 1:21, as quoted by the compilers of the Hebrew and Chaldee Lexicon to which I referred, could hardly be surpassed for accuracy. The American Standard Version renders the passage thus: "No prophecy ever came by the will of man: but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit." Observe the added emphasis which this version places upon the divine authorship of prophecy as compared with the King James. The latter, you will remember, renders the text: "Prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." The common version suggests the thought that the prophets were "holy men of God." Of course no one would deny that this is true; but that was not the thought Peter is seeking to impress upon his readers. He is telling them of the origin and authorship of prophecy, i. e., the revelation of God to man as made through the Scriptures. He is not concerning himself with the character of the individuals through whom the revelations were made, but with the Source of their utterances only. The men were "from God." That was the fact Peter sought to stress.

Both the American Standard Version and the Emphatic Diaglott base their translation of this text upon the Vatican Manuscript; the rendering of the Diaglott being as follows: "For not at any time was prophecy brought by the will of man, but men from God spoke, being moved by holy Spirit." The expression "being moved by holy Spirit" is worthy of further consideration. The literal meaning of the word employed by Peter and translated "moved" is "being borne along." (See "Word Studies in the New Testament" by Vincent.)

Now let us review our findings in this text. "No prophecy"—no inspiration, no revelation, no part of the sacred writings—"ever came by the will"—the desire or initiative or power—"of man." But "men" sent by divine power "from God spoke, being moved"—borne along by no effort of their own—"by holy Spirit." Prophecy, therefore, is of supernatural origin altogether. Man had nothing to do with its actual authorship. He was but the medium through which the voice of God spoke.

We have found that the entire range of divine revelation, regardless of the nature and purpose of any particular portion, may rightly be termed "prophecy." This fact broadens the scope of our investigation into the "purpose and value of prophecy" to such an extent that it should include the entire Bible. It will be sufficient for our present purpose, however, to confine our study to those portions of the Sacred Volume which are commonly called the "Prophets."

For clearer analysis the Bible may be roughly separated into four great divisions: (1) the Historical; (2) the Predictive; (3) the Admonitory; and (4) the Promissive. But when we attempt to separate the Scriptures under these various heads, we find it is exceedingly difficult to maintain even this semblance of division, so complete is the unity of thought and purpose exhibited in this wonderful Book of God! The historical portions of the Bible contain so much of prophecy, and the prophetic so much of promise and of admonition that we cannot effectually separate the one from the other; but we must endeavor to confine our investigation as closely as possible to the predictive element which is to be found throughout the Book.

Perhaps no portion of the Bible has aroused a deeper interest among us than have the predictions of the prophets. Every promise of God is a prophecy, for it predicts the results of righteousness which comes through faith. Every warning relative to sin is a prophecy, as it foretells the doom of the ungodly. But these are not the prophecies we wish to consider at this time. Permit me to put the matter in the form of a question. "What is the real purpose and value of prophecy, predictive prophecy?" In our study of Daniel, of Isaiah, of the Book of Revelation, what do we find to be the great predominating object of them all? And, further, what is the chief benefit we receive to reward us for the effort we put forth? The major portion of the Bible is occupied with prophetic writings, and surely there must be something of vast importance, else so much space would not be devoted to them. What, then, is the answer to our question?

First, prophecy is designed to instruct the child of God concerning the will and purposes of the Father. Therefore there is much of value from an educational standpoint in its study. Prophecy informs us of events before they occur, and thus our curiosity concerning the future is satisfied. But surely the mere satisfying of carnal curiosity cannot be the object of God's marvelous revelation! And this observation brings us to the thought I wish to emphasize most strongly. That is, that to appreciate the true and the enormous value of prophecy one must approach its study from a spiritual standpoint rather than from a material or carnal point of view.

What I mean is this: that enlightenment concerning future history is not the primary purpose of prophecy. Its object is an infinitely higher one than that of recording the transactions of men and nations before they occur. Prophecy is addressed to the children of God, not to the world. The full import of no scripture can be apprehended by a carnal mind, by the unregenerated mind of worldly men. Hear the apostle Paul in 1 Cor. 2:14: "Now the natural man (margin, 'unspiritual') receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; and he cannot know them, because they are spiritually judged." (American Standard Version.) This is perhaps what Peter referred to when he said, "No prophecy of scripture is of private (individual) interpretation." Prophecy must be understood in harmony with its spiritual origin and purpose.

Yes, the true purpose of prophecy is far more important than that of informing the world, or even the church, with the nature of impending events, however remarkable such happenings may be. The real purpose of prophecy is to create a reaction in the hearts and lives of the Father's children favorable to Himself. Prophecy and its fulfillment assures the faithful that GOD IS! It provides unmistakable evidence of His Being, of His faithfulness in the keeping of His promises; of His constant love and care for His people. It tells them that the mighty Governor of the universe is concerning Himself with their affairs! Prophecy makes the personality of God real to those who seek to do His will, for in the fulfillment of its predictions they are able to actually see the working out of His plans and purposes. They know that God lives, because His mighty words are being accomplished before their eyes in just the way the prophets predicted they would be done.

It has seemed to me that perhaps we have erred in the past in our manner of presenting the truths of prophecy, both to the church and to the world, in that we have stressed the miraculous nature of prophecy in order to arouse the interest of the public and hold their attention until we could instruct them more fully in the things of God. I believe that prophecy itself can be made a more powerful influence to induce men and women to forsake their sins, and to become obedient to the gospel of the kingdom of God, by which only they can be saved. As we point out the faithfulness and the goodness of God in the past and in the present, as it is revealed in the fulfillment of prophecy, we are able to convince those out of Christ that the Father will be equally faithful in keeping His promises to them if they will only believe and embrace them!

Let us make prophecy exactly what it was intended to be—a powerful inducement for men and women to seek after God! Let us not be content with simply interesting people in the technicalities of interpretation; but rather let us put forth every effort to arouse within them a fervent desire for God,—a hungering and a thirsting after righteousness! While we hold out to the unsaved the blessed promises of redemption found in the prophets, let us not forget to warn them that unfulfilled prophecy contains nothing of comfort for the wilfully disobedient; but, on the other hand, "a certain fearful expectation of judgment."—Hebrews 10:27.

The full blessedness of prophecy, like the full blessedness of the gospel, is reserved for those only who are in Christ Jesus when He comes!

WORLD HEADED FOR WAR, SAY LLOYD GEORGE AND MUSSOLINI

By F. E. Siple

WE ARE GIVING herewith two news dispatches clipped by Bro. Haney from the Philadelphia Public Ledger of Dec. 9, 1928. They are worthy not only of being read, but of the most careful consideration as we celebrate the birth of the great Peace Giver.

MANCHESTER, ENGLAND, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Ex-Prime Minister Lloyd George, speaking at the opening of the Liberal Party "peace campaign," declared to-day that since the Kellogg anti-war pact was signed armaments have been steadily growing.

"Why is Mr. Kellogg building dreadnoughts and cruisers?" Lloyd George asked. "He says, 'Thou shalt not kill,' but he says also, 'Fill your waist belt with knives and pistols so as to be ready to kill.'"

The ex-Prime Minister said that as things are now the nations of the world are heading straight for war, not because any one wants it, but because no one has the courage to stop the runaway chariot of war.

Unless the nations were prepared soon to accept whole-hearted peaceable means of settling disputes, he said, God alone could save the world from the calamity of a more terrible war than has ever been seen.

ROME, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, in a speech closing the Chamber of Deputies to-day, stressed that Italy did not desire to disturb the European equilibrium, but since difficult times were ahead, she wished to be prepared. Therefore, he said, once the nation has passed its convalescence from the ills that followed the World War, he would ask it to make another effort to bring its military forces up to the mark.

"The truth is," he said, "that the whold world is again arming itself. The number of bayonets and cannon is constantly increasing, yet everybody speaks of peace.

"We are all for peace, and if to-morrow other Kellogg treaties were in view, we would hasten to sign them."

The session of the Chamber closed to-day was the last of that body in which the party system of election will prevail. Premier Mussolini delivered his speech after the Chamber in an exuberant mood, had passed by acclamation bills giving the Grand Council of the Fascist Party a constitutional status and enacting into law the Fascist labor charter.

In view of the fact that Lloyd George was not only leader of England but practically dictator of the Allies during the World War, and probably the best informed man in the world on international conditions, and of the further fact that Mussolini is the one outstanding military leader in the world to-day, these utterances are worthy of deep consideration.

Now that you have read their frank statement of conditions, turn to Matt. 24:6-8, "And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars: . . ." Also read 1 Thess. 5:1-5, "When they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh . . ."

How literally the nations are shaping themselves to carry out the prophecies of Scripture! How appropriate now to honor the birth of Jesus, who alone can bring peace to this troubled world!

LET NOT YOUR HEART BE TROUBLED

By Samuel E. Haney

THESE THINGS I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer: I have overcome the world".—John 16:33—A. V.

A heart to heart homily talk. I shall use Dr. Weymouth's version largely.

How solicitous and apprehensive Jesus is concerning our spiritual growth, while we so-journ "as sheep in the midst of wolves," "that in me ye might have peace"! He believed in the adage, "to be forewarned is to be forearmed". "Thus I command you to love one another, (in union there is strength). If the world hates you, remember that it has first had me as the fixed object of its hatred. If you belonged to the world, the world would love its own property. But because you do not belong to the world, and I have chosen you out of the world—for that reason the world hates you. Bear in mind what I said to you, 'A servant is not superior to his master'. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you: if they have obeyed my teaching, they will obey yours also. But they will inflict all this suffering upon you on account of your bearing my name—because they do not know Him who sent me".—John 15:17-21, Wey. To further allay our apprehension He says, "If you love me, you will obey my commandments (all of them. Get this, for thousands disparage them by obeying selections). And I will ask the Father, and He will give you another Advocate (Comforter, A. V.) to be for ever with you—the Spirit of truth. That Spirit the world cannot receive, because it does not see Him or know Him. You know Him, because He remains by your side and is in you. I will not leave you bereaved (or, orphans, margin): I am coming to you. Yet a little while and the world will see (sees) me no more, but you will see me: because I live, you also shall live".—John 14:15-19, Wey. Then to crown it all, He says, "Peace I leave with you: my own peace I give to you (a unique peace, foreign to this world). It is not as the world gives its greetings that I give you peace (this world's greetings are often more perfunctory than guileless). Let not your hearts be troubled or dismayed".—John 14:27, Wey. Let us hear from Paul, whose sufferings and peace were second only to Jesus'. "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall guard your hearts and your thoughts in Christ Jesus".—Phil. 4:6, 7, R. V.

"In the world ye shall have tribulation". Peace and tribulation make strange bed-fellows. Shouldn't think there would be much rest in such a bed. Ah, there isn't! It is as Jesus said: "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I come not to send peace, but a sword". ". . . And a man's foes shall be they of his own household".—Matt. 10:34-36.

Thus the Christian is incongruously conditioned. He realizes—if he really is a Christian—that he has a fight on hand to the end of his career. It was for this reason Paul exhorted Timothy to "fight the good fight of faith"; and, for his own exultation: having "fought a good fight". 1 Tim. 6:12; 2 Tim. 4:7. But Paul doesn't leave us comfortless in our daily battles with the flesh and the world: "But He who is making us as well as you steadfast through union with the Anointed One, and has anointed us, is God, and He has also set His seal upon us, and has put His Spirit into our hearts as a pledge and foretaste of future blessing".—2 Cor. 1:21, 22, Wey.

We can be further forearmed and comforted by keeping in mind that we are still in the day of our humiliation which is the day of the world's exaltation; and the additional fact that conditions are soon to be reversed, when those who are now striving for exaltation, and are idolizing self—the flesh—shall be very uncomfortable. "As therefore the DARNEL is gathered and burned in the Fire, so will it be in the END of the AGE. The SON of MAN will send for his MESSENGERS, who will gather out of his KINGDOM ALL SEDUCERS and INQUITOUS PERSONS; and will throw them into the FURNACE of FIRE; there will be the WEEPING and the GNASHING of TEETH. Then will the RIGHT-EOUS be resplendent as the SUN in the KINGDOM of their FATHER. He who HAS ears, let him hear".—Matt. 13:40-43, Emph. Diag.

Let us note how this peace, which Jesus "leaves with us", triumphs over tribulation and persecution. No amount of tribulation and suffering could drown, nor burn out the great apostle's joy. "Standing then acquitted as the result of faith, let us enjoy peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom also, as the result of faith, we have obtained an introduction into that state of favour with God in which we stand, and we exult in hope of some day sharing in God's glory. And not only so: we also exult in our sufferings (tribulations, A. V. AFFLICTIONS, Emph. Diag.), knowing as we do, that suffering produces fortitude, ripeness of character; and ripeness of character, hope; and that this hope never disappoints, because God's love for us floods our hearts through the Holy Spirit who (which, Emph. Diag.) has been given to us".—Rom. 5:1-5, Wey.

"Who shall separate us from Christ's love? Shall affliction or distress, persecution or hunger, nakedness or danger or the sword? As it stands written in the Scripture, 'For thy sake they are, all day long, trying to kill us. We have been looked upon as sheep destined for slaughter'. Yet amid all these things we are more than conquerors through Him who has loved us. For I am convinced that neither death nor life, neither the lower ranks of evil angels nor the higher, neither things present nor things future, nor the forces of nature, nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing, will be able to separate us from the love of God, which rests upon us in Christ Jesus our Lord".—Rom. 8:35-39, Wey.

THE NAME OF JESUS

How sweet the name of Jesus sounds
In the believer's ear,
It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds,
And drives away his fear.

It makes the wounded spirit whole,
And calms the troubled breast;
'Tis manna to the hungry soul,
And to the weary, rest.

Dear Name, the Rock on which I build,
My shield and hiding place,
My never failing treasury filled,
With boundless stores of grace.

JESUS, my Shepherd, Savior, Friend,
My Prophet, Priest and King,
My Lord, my Life, my Way, my End,
Accept the praise I bring.

His name dispels my guilt and fear,
No other name but JESUS.
Oh, how my soul delights to hear
The precious name of JESUS.

Scripture texts quoted above each lay emphasis on the little word "name".

"What's in a name" is the hasty remark of those who have taken but little time to consider. But here is a startling fact. We all readily acknowledge that "GOD created the heaven and the earth", and that the glory of creation he "will not give to another", but that the giving of a name should be of such consequence as necessarily to originate from God Himself has perhaps not entered into our thoughts. Yet so it is. GOD Himself is the Originator of the vast material universe about us. He is also the Originator of the things that are not seen, for GOD, not man, was the Originator of the name.

So far as this earth of ours is concerned, not until man came upon the scene were names given to any created thing. There was no means of distinguishing one thing from another, or the individual of the species from another of the same kind. Can we imagine human life under such conditions? Indeed we cannot. Thus we see the wisdom of the Great Creator that in the day when they were created He called their name Adam. His wisdom is also manifested in teaching Adam to give names to every living creature. A careful reader cannot fail to notice the prominence that Scripture gives to a name throughout its entire record.

THE NAME "JESUS"

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

By R. H. Judd

"Thou shalt call his NAME JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins."—Matt 1:21.

"Wherefore GOD also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: that at the name of JESUS, every knee should bow."—Phil. 2:9, 10.

It is the name that we give to each other that distinguishes for us one family from another, and it is the names which we give to each other that bind us together in the happy relationship of family life. Apart from a name we are but a number of individual units. Scripture declares that "GOD setteth the solitary in families." Psa. 68:6. So important does GOD regard the name that on more than one occasion in sacred history He has recorded the name of an individual even before his birth. Of none is this more true than of Him of whom the angel declared—"Thou shalt call his name JESUS, for he shall save his people from their sins." There are some features of this last quoted scripture that may be applicable and helpful as a Christmas message to each one of us. The personal note of the message is one of these.

WE LITTLE REALIZE the deep significance of some of the most common accompaniments of life. We would be without them, it would in our estimation of existence, be well nigh impossible and yet what little value we place upon them. The great majority of these are not material things that appeal to the physical senses of our nature. In other words they cannot be touched, sight, taste or smell, measured or weighed. The two

Many beautiful and appropriate names are given by Jehovah to the Messiah, but in comparatively few of them is there the personal element that there is here. The passage might have read, as for instance in Isaiah 9:6, "and his name shall be called", signifying relationship to a group rather than to an individual. But no, not so here, for the theme of the passage is salvation—"He shall save"—and the individual must be saved before the nation can be redeemed. "Thou shalt call his name JESUS, for it is he that shall save his people from their sins". In no other scriptures—so far as the writer recollects—are the sinner and the Savior brought together into such close personal contact. Even in that wonderful passage in Isaiah already referred to, the intimate relationship is not so close as it is here. Does not the verse teach us that it is the GOD-given privilege of each one of us, who really so desires, to call His name "JESUS", and by the very appropriation of the name do we not actually appropriate Him as our personal Savior?

In the first instance, the giving of the name JESUS foreshadowed a tremendous conflict against sin, suffering and death,—a conflict then yet in the future, for "he shall save his people from their sins." In this is also brought out the great truth that salvation is through the name of JESUS, and thus the proof is manifested that the life of JESUS (for death can claim no value in a name) was, equally with His death, an atonement for sin, for apart from His blameless life His death would have been of no avail. And yet without the shedding of blood there could be no remission of sins. The one is linked with the other.

But stay, the second part of our message yields another thought—one of VICTORY—one of TRIUMPH. The statement is made that "because he was obedient even unto death (see R. V.) . . . wherefore GOD hath highly exalted him, and given him a name . . . which is above every name . . . the name of JESUS." Let these words sink into our minds, and let us seek to understand the real force of their meaning. We shall then realize as we have perhaps never before realized that actually a second time GOD gives to His beloved Son the precious name of JESUS, the same name "JESUS", but a "new name"—not one of ignominy, suffering and death, but the pledge of RESURRECTION glory and "an endless LIFE"—a name which is above every name.

Reader, let us thank GOD that you and I are privileged to rejoice in both aspects of this wonderful twice given name of JESUS, one foreshadowing the cross, the other sharing in the crown—the crown of LIFE, for "these things are written, that ye might believe that JESUS is the CHRIST, the Son of GOD; and that believing ye might have life through his NAME."—John 20:31.

What better CHRISTMAS message could be desired?

HIS BIRTHDAY

By M. A. Woodward

IT HAS BEEN coming and going for more than nineteen hundred years, and I am wondering to-day as we near another milestone, how many more we will celebrate before He comes to claim His chosen body, the "Church"? And then this startling thing confronts me, Will I be among the chosen members of that body or will I with shame and disgrace hide my face and go on counting the years in agony of soul. I can think of nothing worse to befall me than to be obliged, even though He spoke no word of reproof to me, to see the gathered ones moving away with Him, glorified, immortalized, singing the rapturous song of victory over death and the grave and I who have professed to love Him for over fifty years of my life, I whom He has blessed with so many good things all along the road, should so woefully fail Him that He needed me no longer. I was of no further use to Him. His bride had been gathered, and I had been left. O God, my God, what agony, to realize that I must go on counting the years, seeing the thorns in His crown, His agonizing cry, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do," and I did not sense those hours of pain enough to be faithful and loyal that I might hear the "well done."

O beloveds, if we are in the least doubt that we will fail to be one in that glorified body, now, to-day, is the time to search our lives, consider our methods, whether they are right or not, turn the mirror on self and see our faults. Are we unforgiving? "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Are we so selfish that we withhold God's portion from Him? Are we humble or egotistical? Are we prayerfully growing in grace and faith, or losing ground each day? Are we celebrating His birthday by giving cards and gifts to each of our earthly friends, and forgetting to place even our tithe in His hands to be used to His glory? Do we let Him go to the throne-room where He can tell His Father that His sons and daughters have forgotten again that He needs a gift from them? If we treat Him thus, how can we expect to reign with Him? If we neglect our best earthly friends would we expect to be invited to their banquet table? Why do we expect so much from our Heavenly Father and His Son, and so little from ourselves?

On this coming Birthday may we consecrate ourselves anew to His service, is my prayer.

THE BIRTH OF CHRIST

By John L. Wince

'Tis night on Judah's vales and hills,
And shepherds their lone watches keep:
The music of the rippling rills
Has lulled the world to deepest sleep.

But hark! A voice breaks on the ear—
'Tis God's evangel speaks the word
On midnight air, so loud and clear,
That more than shepherds might have heard.

"Fear not" the angel said "I bring Good news;" but not to Jews alone.
Break forth, Oh burdened hearts and sing
In every land beneath the sun!

For Christ the Lord is born to-day—
Come, angel choir, your tongues employ
And join to swell the gladsome lay;
And human hearts pour out your joy.

The burden of this sweetest strain
That ever fell on mortal ears
Is praise to God, good will to men,
And peace to be through endless years.

From Persian hills and plains afar,
With loaded beast, with quickened pace,
Directed by the mystic star,
Ordained to mark the time and place,

The wise men came with offering.
The frankincense, the myrrh, the gold
They lay before the infant King,
The Son of God in human mold.

The shepherds of the ancient East
Adored the child of lowly birth.
And we to-day of youthful West
Would prize the Gift of heav'nly worth;

And hail with joy the coming day
When Christ the heir to David's throne
Shall take the kingdom, hold the sway,
And all the world His power own.

God's will shall then on earth be done
All knees shall bow and tongues confess,
Beneath the circuit of the sun,
And naught shall mar our happiness.

PEACE ON EARTH

By F. E. Siple

CHIEF OF ALL desirable conditions of life is that of peace. Possession of it means rest, ease, security,—hence contentment. Lack of it means anxiety, fear, dread, misery. The quality that makes life worth while is peace.

How glorious, then, the message that the angels sang on the night when Jesus was born: "Peace on earth, good will to man"! No wonder the shepherds rejoiced and sought the Babe! What a message to roll down the ages to you and me!

But that message of two thousand years ago is of value only as nations and individuals take advantage of its privileges. The Child born that night is destined to bring peace to the nations; and each nation which comes to acknowledge Him will be accorded the happy privilege of living as a nation during the prosperous kingdom period of our Lord. The message, however, comes closer home to you and me. It is possible for us to receive His peace to-day, amid all of life's turmoil and uproar, a peace that passes the understanding of natural man. It is possible to face criticism, sarcasm, abuse, financial disaster, physical suffering, or bereavement, and face them all in peace. It is possible through faith.

Jesus Himself gave us the example. They scoffed and made light of Him. They falsely accused Him. They arrested and taunted Him. They pressed the thorns to His brow, and made Him carry His own cross. All this and more they did, but He patiently endured, His heart quieted with peace in face of all the external commotion.

Paul sang songs while locked in prison with his feet and hands chained. He had obtained the peace that comes from trust in Christ, and hence was able to say, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Rom. 8:28.

You, too, can have that peace. As Paul put it in 1 Cor. 10:13, "There hath no temptation (trial) taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."

Knowing this, why should one fear or be distressed?

May this anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace bring us each closer to a true realization of the peace that should fill the Christian's life to-day!

"I HAD RATHER BE A DOORKEEPER IN THE HOUSE OF MY GOD, THAN TO DWELL IN THE TENTS OF WICKEDNESS."—Psa. 84:10.

WE ARE GIVING this week two contributions from Indiana Bereans. Each one of these is encouraging in its way. As we are entering another Christmas season it would seem well if we could give earnest heed to the truths brought out in the article, "The One Thing Needful".

Are we Marthas or Marys in our devotion to Christ? When we become perplexed and burdened with the anxieties of life, there is comfort in the words of Paul in Phil. 4:6-7: "Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Mary knew the richness and depth of that peace.

THE JUNIOR BEREAN OF BURR OAK, IND.

The Burr Oak Junior Berean Class entertained the adult class recently.

Elizabeth Zechiel gave a special number on the piano, "In Music's Praise". The Junior class then sang a song, "I know God is True", followed with prayer by Leta Osborn.

The Junior class then went to their room and the adults took up the lesson on "Paul's Voyage to Rome," found in the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth chapters of the book of Acts.

When the lesson was over we elected officers for the year, as follows: teacher, Myrle Hatten; assistant teacher, Louise Bryant; secretary-treasurer, Almeda La Munion; assistant secretary-treasurer, Etta Belle Warner; pianist, Elizabeth Zechiel; assistant pianist, Marguerite Zechiel.

The meeting was closed with the song, "May God Depend on You?" and prayer by Myrle Hatten.

THE ONE THING NEEDFUL

Although diligence in business and proper regard to family concerns, are duties which should by no means be neglected, yet we may be so engrossed in them, and so troubled about them, as greatly to displease our Savior and injure ourselves.

Our first regard should be for God, and our chief concern to learn to do His will. He will then so order His favors to us, that we will never want for anything essential to our good.

Our Savior when entertained at the home of Mary and Martha gave us a good lesson picture of what we should choose.

Martha was in the kitchen, much concerned about the meal she was preparing for her Guest, just as many housewives have done for the past Thanksgiving dinner and will do for the coming Christmas feast.

Mary, whose mind was concerned about the lesson she might learn, "sat at Jesus' feet and heard his word." Martha, tired with much labor, complained and asked that Jesus send Mary, her sister, to help her. But "Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her." Luke 10:41, 42.

As we approach the Christmas season let us be more concerned about the priceless Gift God gave unto us. He gave us His own Son to bear the sins of the world, that we might be redeemed from our lost estate, unto the glorious hope of His calling. May we sit at the feet of Jesus and learn of Him as did Mary, and let us make our requests of the Lord as did David in Psa. 27:4:

"One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in his temple."

PAUL'S STORY

SAUL'S NAME was changed to Paul. It was said that he should bear the name of Jesus before Gentiles and kings, and the children of Israel. This was what God chose him to do.

He was persecuted for what he did, and his friends begged him not to go where people were unwilling to hear what he had to tell them. But nothing that his friends said could make him afraid of people or of pain.

When his friends cried for fear of what his enemies would do to him, he said to them, "What do ye, weeping and breaking my heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die . . . for the name of the Lord Jesus."

Paul suffered often as he went about to preach. We read the story of his adventures in one of his letters. Paul wrote: "Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods. Once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck.

"A night and a day have I been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from my countrymen, in perils from the Gentiles, in perils in the wilderness.

"In labor and sorrow have I been in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness.

"And in Damascus the governors watched the city in order to take me; and through a window was I let down in a basket by the wall, and escaped his hands."

Paul braved all these dangers or perils as he called them in doing the work God chose him to do, which was to tell of Jesus and to fight evil-doing.

When Paul had grown old he wrote to a friend, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith."

His friend understood him to mean, "I have tried always to do in the best and bravest way the work God gave me to do, and always have loved Jesus and been true to my love for Him."

It was because Paul was true to his love for Jesus that he was among the bravest and best of all brave good men.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

The Birth of Jesus. "Therefore, also, that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God."—Luke 1:35. Because of God inspiring Mary by His Holy Spirit, "therefore" Jesus was to be "called the Son of God". God "made" Jesus equally as much as He made Adam. He was "made of a woman". Gal. 4:4. God's creative work was positive. His methods and means were different than in the creation of Adam. As Adam "was the Son of God", Luke 3:38, because of having been created by God, so also Christ was the Son of God. According to Scripture God miraculously overruled the laws of nature and "made" Jesus for Himself. As such He was as pure, and good, and sinless, and uncontaminated as was Adam in the earliest morning of his life. Being "made" of God, He inherited no more from Adam's race than did Adam inherit from the dust out of which God made him.

The Last Adam. The birth of Jesus undoubtedly brought to the human race a second Adam, i. e., a second man. (The word "Adam," Gen. 2:19 and everywhere, is the same as the word "man" wherever "man" means mankind.) He was of the same mortal nature, subject to the same temptations, as was His brother, the first Adam. Nevertheless, He was "from heaven", 1 Cor. 15:47, like as was the first Adam. Following His birth, He was tried, tested, proven of God in every point, Heb. 4:15; yet He sinned not. Thus, in His birth and in His life He was sinless. Being such, He was in no sense under sentence of death. Therefore, He could truly say, "I lay down my life", John 10:15. He laid down His life by taking, bearing, our sins, 1 Peter 2:24; being thus made sin for us, 2 Cor. 5:21.

Glory to God. The birth of Jesus was destined to bring glory to God. In His wisdom, God foresaw the perfect life which Jesus, the perfect, sinless Babe would complete. In this, God foresaw the glory that would rebound to Himself through the great redemptive and saving work of Him who was to be Lord. Inspired angels, massed at heaven's portal proclaimed in heavenly anthem this great truth which should climax not only the ages, but God's creative work.

This is the glad event which the Christ-mas anniversary commemorates.

God's Power. The power of God to create a stainless child out of a sin-laden race evidences His power to redeem the sinful individual from his sins and their results and to establish him in the glory of sinless and endless life. Here, again, is reason for repetition of the angel's "glory be to God".

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"That there was born to you this day a Saviour—who is Christ, Lord—in David's city."—Luke 2:11, Roth.

These are the words of the angel announcing the glad tidings of the birth of our Lord and Savior to the shepherds who were watching their flocks. The announcement did not come to men of high estate, as kings and potentates, but to men of low estate, from whom as a rule there have come those who have carried the standard of Christendom throughout all time and to the ends of the earth. These were "tidings of great joy" for all people upon the earth.—

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Prince of Peace. The most workable, practical thing in the world is peace. As discontent breeds discontent, so peace promotes and develops peace.

Jesus was born to bring peace. This He did and is doing in the lives and hearts of those who come to know and to trust Him. This He will do world wide, for nations as well as individuals, when He comes to establish His kingdom.

"Peace on earth, good will toward men", is the keynote of His whole career. In order to accomplish this universally in a progressive way He is choosing individuals now by the gospel. These learn and develop the principle of peace by contact with Him. Thus they become qualified to be His partners and helpers in the great kingdom work of the coming age. He has promised that they who suffer with Him now will be glorified with Him then. As Jesus learned patience by the things He suffered, so we by the trials of life may learn patience and be in position to assist the great King in bringing in world-wide peace through a rulership of righteousness.

The peace that passeth understanding may be had in a practical way in the life of the person to-day who really knows the Christ. He is the Prince of Peace indeed!—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Birth of Jesus.

The birth of Jesus was a wondrous manifestation of God's power in man's favor.

Man began his life in the garden of Eden without knowledge of good and evil—without a developed mind. His experience with the tree of knowledge of good and evil began to develop this knowledge and consequently his mind.

The greatest increase was among the people of Israel, for it was to them that God gave most abundantly of His direct communications. Finally the time was ripe for a marked advance.

God's power overshadowed Mary of Israel, and transmitted to her Child all wisdom and love. Of special importance in this heritage to Jesus was submission to God's will. "Lo, I come to do thy will, O, God," was thoroughly ingrained in His nature even in early childhood. As Jesus, thus equipped, grew in stature and ability to receive understanding, God gave Him the guidance of His mind without measure, and perfected Him into His own likeness.

All this was not done for Jesus, merely that God might have one perfect Son. God knew that you and I, yet unborn, would come under His influence and by virtue of it become His sons and daughters, manifesting His life and glory, instead of the instinct life with which He endowed man at creation.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Babe in Bethlehem.

For hundreds of years prophets had been telling the people that a Child would be born. Yes, they told them all the events that would occur at this time; but very few grasped the idea that this birth would actually occur. But just as the prophets had said, so the Babe was born in the manger at Bethlehem.

Some shepherds were watching their flocks that night. As the bright light shone around them, they were afraid; but with the words, "Fear not", from the angel, and their announcement of the birth of Jesus, with their songs of rejoicing the shepherds' hearts leaped for joy and they were anxious to find the Babe. They did find the Babe just as the angels had announced, and returned home praising God, and telling every one they met of the wonderful tidings.

Surely these humble shepherds could see beyond the mere event! They could see beyond the mere fulfillment of prophecy to the wonderful salvation that this same Babe would bring to the world, not only in His sojourn at that time, but in the future age as well.—V. C. T.

God's Power in the Birth of Jesus: The outstanding feature of Jesus' birth according to Luke 1:35; evidence that Jesus was born with the qualifications and God's guarantee of Christship, Luke 2:11, 27-35; qualifications for Christship, Isa. 9:6, 7; 61:1, 2, 10, and other scriptures; God's thought of mankind in the birth of Jesus.—A. DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Word has just reached our office of the death of sister (Mrs.) J. H. Willey, of Plymouth, Indiana, on Wednesday, Dec. 12. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, in charge of Bro. J. H. Anderson.

Sister Willey has been sick for a long time, and to add to the sadness is the illness of Bro. Willey, and also of a cousin, Mary Partridge, who has acted as nurse for the two but is now sick at the same home.

The booklet "Where Are the Dead?" by the late L. S. Bronson is on the press for another edition. If you have already ordered some your order will be filled as soon as they are ready. We shall add it to our list of tracts at that time, which shall be published on the back cover from time to time.

THE NEW QUARTERLIES

The manager of our printing department has a tired, haggard look the last few days, and the Linotype operator has just heaved a deep sigh of relief. They have been working fast and furiously and overtime in order that the quarterlies might be off the press ahead of this issue of The Herald. If your quarterlies reach you a few days later than they should, please be patient. We will endeavor to see that it does not happen again. But if you have ordered them and they do not arrive soon, drop us a line. There is quite a little difficulty with mail, especially now with the Christmas rush.

MINISTERIAL LIST

We are publishing a list of ministers this week, which list can be used by the ministers in applying for railroad certificates.

ILLINOIS

The condition of Bro. S. J. Lindsay has undergone very little change during the past week. He may be addressed at his home, Oregon, Ill.

Bro. Siple was called to Adeline, Ill., on Monday, Dec. 3, to conduct the funeral of Mrs. Addison Coffman.

Word of the death of Sister F. F. Summers, St. Catherines, Ontario, reached Oregon on Dec. 12, and Bro. Austin was called for the funeral on Dec. 15.

A large number of Sunday School teachers and students and of church members of the Oregon church have been laid up with the prevailing "grip" the past week.

A number of different churches are preparing special services and programs for the Christmas season. The church at Oregon plans for some Christmas music with short sermon on Sunday morning, next, and for a program by children and young people in the evening.

The Sunday School and church audiences at Oregon last Sunday showed effects of the general epidemic of sickness.

The Bible Training class closes on Thursday of this week for two weeks of Christmas vacation, and the young folks all plan to spend the period at their homes.

IOWA

CEDAR FALLS AND WATERLOO

The week-end convention planned for Cedar Falls and Waterloo, Iowa, last week had to be postponed at the last minute, due to several regrettable circumstances. The Cassen family had the misfortune to lose an aunt who was buried there on Sunday; the Ellis family were called to Nebraska to care for a sick relative, and an epidemic of scarlet fever, mumps and flu made public gatherings unwise. Announcement of further plans will be made at a later time.

WATERLOO AND CEDAR FALLS SUNDAY SCHOOL

On Dec. 23, J. W. Williams of Gladbrook, Iowa, will speak both morning and evening at the Bro. Allard home, Cedar Heights. There will be a program put on by the Sunday School children preceding the evening sermon. Everybody invited. Sunday School at 10 A. M., preaching at 11 A. M.
Mrs. H. P. Brown, Sec'y.

MICHIGAN

We are glad to be able to report Sr. Richardson and baby getting along quite favorably. She expects to be home for Christmas. All of our sick, needy and alone ones throughout the country should be remembered at the throne of prayer. It will bring Christmas cheer to our hearts to know that we have lightened others' burdens through our prayers. "Pray one for another."

The Christmas program at the Grand Rapids church is being rounded into shape and it promises to be very interesting. Besides many sacred recitations and songs, the "Child of Prophecy" will be presented in the form of a play. The play will depict the Israelites in Babylonian servitude, vividly portraying the ridicule and scorn which the Children of Israel endured because of their worship of the God of heaven. The scene is carried on through until the climax is reached in the birth of the Christ Child.

Several of the attendants at the Grand Rapids church have been suffering from colds, "flu" and other diseases that are characteristic of the winter season.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

Christmas will soon be here again. Yes, we are going to have a tree, and a program. And from what I hear there is to be a committee to see after the destitute. It may be a basket will be sent to them, and their kiddies' names will be called at the tree. Now that is the real spirit of Christmas. Give to someone that can't give to you, and you will find a joy that is inexpressible and full of glory.

The young Mr. Dixon that was recently wounded is much improved. Several of our members are on the sick list: Bro. Howard Appleby and some of his folks, also some of the Whites and Ervy families. We miss them at church and are hoping for their soon recovery.

The Ladies did real well with their bazaar and bake sale. There was one item sent from away down in Arkansas. It was a handkerchief bag shaped like a goose. Thanks to dear old Arkansas. There were things from other states also, and we are very thankful to one and all.

The Berean class here is progressing nicely. They are planning something now that will make the church sit up and take notice. E. E. Giesler.

MY CREED

IN THE Nov. 27th issue we printed a stanza of a poem under above heading, and marked it "anonymous" because the person sending in the clipping did not give the name of the author. Sister Dorothy Magaw calls our attention to the fact that the author is the well known Edgar A. Guest, and that there is one more stanza which reads as follows:

"To leave some simple mark behind
To keep my having lived in mind;
If enmity to aught I show
To be an honest, generous foe,
To play my little part, nor whine
That greater honors are not mine.
This, I believe, is all I need
For my philosophy and creed."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

WHEN CHRISTMAS COMES

By F. E. Siple

THERE IS a peculiar and special sentiment which naturally and properly finds place in one's mind as he approaches any definitely anticipated day. This is true from childhood to old age.

Armistice Day comes each fall, bringing memories and feelings which are distinct and different, — which apply only to that day. Thanksgiving Day makes its approach with its own sentiments, very different from those that pertain to Armistice Day, Independence Day or the anniversary of one's own birth.

We have now drawn near to the Christmas Season, and how distinct and different are the thoughts and feelings that surge through our beings! This is the time when we give. To our fellowman we give an extra smile and a word of cheer; to our friends and relatives, gifts of various kinds. He who does not give at the Christmas Season has missed the richest experience of the year.

All this is based on the fact that two thousand years ago our heavenly Father gave a Gift—His only begotten Son,—a gift of love to suffering humanity.

May our thoughts at this Christmas Tide be thoughts of appreciation of God's great love, causing that we in love shall present our smiles and our gifts to each other and ourselves to Christ, our Leader.

How sweet the sentiment, When Christmas Comes!

NUMBER 13

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

“WILL YE ALSO GO AWAY?”

By Rufus A. Curtis

HOW FULL of pathos is the above question of Jesus, propounded to His twelve disciples after “many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him,” John 6:66, 67. It would seem that nothing could stir the heart to its innermost depths more poignantly, than for those who had professed love and friendship to prove recreant to their trust, and desert to the enemy, as did “many” of Christ’s disciples. John 7:1, 19, 20.

Notwithstanding the Master’s treatment at their hands, His heart was not filled with envy, but “was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.” Matt. 14:14; Mark 1:39-42. For those who “mocked him,” platted a crown of thorns and placed it upon His tender brow, and placed a purple robe upon His shoulders in derision of His claim to earth’s sovereignty, He prayed, “Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do.” Luke 23:34. The good confession that Christ witnessed before Pontius Pilate, cost Him His life. Matt. 27:37; 1 Tim. 6:12.

Although telling the truth frequently makes enemies who will walk no more with us, there is no alternative but to be loyal to the truth and our convictions of right. Gal. 4:16; John 8:32, 36. Those who will not “go away” from the Master for any earthly consideration will some sweet day reap the fruits of victory that shall be lasting as eternity. Isa. 3:10, 11; 1 Cor. 15: 51-58. I quote from memory the following beautiful language from Elizabeth A. Reed, long since deceased:

“Truth is mighty and will prevail, though her march be silent and slow, yet with firm and stately step, she strides on through the ages, mid darkness and peril, to her final goal, bearing in her train a host of faithful followers, who have staked their all upon her victory. They will not have trusted in vain, though the triumph be deferred, for it is as sure as God is true, for He has sworn by His holy Name that His word shall not fail, nor return void unto Him. Isa. 55:10, 11; Jer. 23:28, 29; Psa. 119:89.

“It is easy to shout with the multitude, but hard to raise one feeble voice against their loud, derisive roar; but if that feeble voice be one of truth, it shall at last be heard in tones of thunder, when the wild strife of tongues which sought to drown it, is hushed in the eternal silence, which awaits all lies.”

To deliberately “go away” from Jesus who is “the way, the truth, and the life,” is to seal our own death warrant. “For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?” Mark 8: 36-38; Luke 9:25; Matt. 12:30. What is lost and forfeited forever, for those who “have known God,” and willfully go away from His Son, who is the “door into the sheepfold,” and attempt to climb up “some other way”? Gal. 4:9; John 10:1-8. They are branded as “thieves and robbers,” and are bartering “a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory,” for “the pleasures of sin for a season.” 2 Cor. 4:17; Heb. 11:25.

In rejecting Jesus, as “the door,” they are rejecting the salvation that is so intimately connected with His name. John 10:9; Rom. 10:9, 10; Acts 4:12. They are bartering “beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness.” Isa. 61: 3. “He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life.” 1 John 5:12. “Choose life.” Deut 30:19, 20.

F. E. SIPLE, Assistant Editor.

A REAL ENEMY

"Self is the hardest fighter against which Christians have to war."

IT MIGHT BE well for us in our consideration of friends and foes to properly bear in mind their relative importance, that we may the better confront them. Life's greatest enemy is one's own self.

When the great apostle Paul stood near the close of life and said, "I have fought a good fight," he was not thinking merely of other individuals who had opposed him and his work. Stronger than all these enemies had been his own human nature. Each rising sun had awakened the fight anew, as he so graphically described it in Rom. 7: 14-25.

What a comfort, therefore, to be able to stand near the close of life and realize that the fight had not been in vain, but that through Jesus Christ he had been able to hold self in subjection and gain the greatest victory of all.

Do not waste time looking around among others for the one or ones whom you should fight. A tiny mirror will reveal your one arch enemy.—F. E. S.

NOW OR THEN?

THE DIFFERENCE between success and failure in business is often due to the outlook of the individual,—whether he is looking to the present or to the future. The same is true of Christians.

No one would care to deny that if only the thrill and satisfaction of to-day is being considered the Christian life is not the course to pursue. But if it be a matter of which course will give to one the most pleasure and satisfaction, the future as well as the present being considered, then the way of sin should be avoided. Its thrills are fleeting and its revenge is sure. Unhappy is the man who has sought pleasure in its ways.

Enlightened self-interest, therefore, is that which looks forward to the ultimate outcome. It is a wise Christian who chooses what is best in the end.—F. E. S.

Solomon warned that pride goes before a fall. Is it because the one puffed up with pride has his glance so high he cannot see the stone lying in his path?—F. E. S.

JUST BELIEVING

"But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."—Heb. 11:6.

HOW SIMPLE it is just to believe! And yet, how few actually do believe.

Faith is a conviction that God either has or will do something for you. Faith is believing, just as sight is seeing.

How admirable the life of the person who is able to see in his own experiences how God has led, and who therefore looks to the future in trusting faith, knowing that the same loving Father still has charge!

This principle of life if followed out will bring one to the place where Paul stood when he said, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Rom. 8:28. There is real peace in that knowledge that will tide you over many a sorrow and give you ease in unfolding life's perplexities.—F. E. S.

A NOBLE CALLING

OUR OBSERVATION and experience with the Bible Training Class to date leads us to urge the church as a whole to give this work whole-hearted support.

The present method of conducting the class work is very imperfect, but even under such handicap we know that your hearts would be warmed to see the progress that is being made.

The field is large, and the call and opportunity for more workers is unlimited. It takes just as much labor and practically as much expense to conduct the work for the half dozen now in the class as would be required for two or three times that number. Shall we boost the number?

If you are a young man with ability that could be developed toward proclaiming the gospel of Christ there is no nobler calling open to you. Nor is there any line of life that can bring to you more true friends, more true happiness.

If you have a son, a relative or a friend who should be considering this work, speak with him about it.

Let us all boost the class morally, financially and every other way to the glory of God.—F. E. S.

THE FOOTPATH TO PEACE

TO BE GLAD of life, because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars;
 To be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them;
 To despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing but cowardice;
 To be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts;
 To covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners;
 To think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends and every day of Christ;
 And to spend as much time as you can, with body and with spirit, in God's out-of-doors—
 These are little guide-posts on the footpath to peace.

—Henry Van Dyke

CHRISTMAS RECEIPTS

IT IS CUSTOMARY to present gifts to one another at the Christmas season. This is based upon the gift of the Son of God, whose birth we honor.

Some have chosen to make gifts to the Lord's work in advancing the work of the General Conference. Those from whom gifts have been received during the past week are: Mrs. M. J. Osborn; Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Perrine; Clyde Randall; Mrs. Clark McClelland; Geo. and Verna Rahn; Mrs. Mauvine H. Greene; B. F. Cook; Mr. and Mrs. John Oaks; E. B. Coleman; Mrs. Stephen Cronkhite. Total received, $45.10.

PSALM 121

I WILL LIFT up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.

My help cometh from the LORD, which made heaven and earth.

He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber.

Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.

The LORD is thy keeper; the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand.

The LORD shall preserve thee from all evil; he shall preserve thy soul.

The LORD shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even forevermore.

“Be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry: for anger resteth in the bosom of fools.” Eccl. 7:9. All of which shows what kind of man it is that takes pride in getting angry and defending his “rights” with great show. Real strength lies in being able always to keep calm—and eventually that person wins.—F. E. S.

A JOYFUL SALVATION

By Ruby Randall

AS CHRISTMAS draws near—we love to think of the Christ Child, Who was born in Bethlehem of Judea many, many years ago. We love to read of His mother. She no doubt, like all mothers was busily engaged with her household duties, singing songs of praise when all of a sudden there appeared to her an angel. At first, she was afraid, because the angel said to her, "Fear not, Mary." When her fears were allayed, the angel told her that she had found favor with God, and would bring forth a Son and should call His name—Jesus. "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David."

After the short conversation between the two, Mary replied, saying "Be it unto me according to thy word." The angel then departed. Imagine what joy this must have brought to Mary as she pondered these things in her heart! She must have been much happier after this knowing that she should have a dear little Babe and that He should be such a great Child.

In those days there had been a decree made that all the world should be taxed. All had to go to their own city to be taxed. Joseph being of the house and lineage of David, took Mary, his wife, and went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth to Bethlehem. Being great with child the time had arrived when Mary should be delivered. Joseph tried to find her a place in the inn, but there was no room left. They must seek shelter elsewhere. They went to the stable, where Joseph made a bed of hay for her. Here in this humble surroundings, that very night the little Lord Jesus was born. How they loved that Babe, which was born to be King and Savior of the world! There He lay on His lowly bed, wrapped in swaddling clothes, so sweet and so precious to His mother. Joseph, no doubt, was wrapped in awe as he sat there watching Mary and the Babe so quietly and peacefully resting.

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, "Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." The angel told them that they would find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger.

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. When the angels had gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass."

The shepherds immediately started on their journey to find the Babe and when they had found Him they worshiped Him. With the true spirit they made known to others the joy which they themselves had experienced.

PURPOSE OF RESURRECTION

By Grover Gordon

IF A MAN DIE, shall he live again?" This was Job's question and he also gives an answer and a reason for so believing: "all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come."

"Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands". Job 14:14, 15.

God did not make man that he should perish from the earth, but He had a desire that man should develop a character which would glorify his Maker. When the first man sinned it brought death and this death passed on all men, in that all had sinned. But the Creator did not leave man that He had made without hope for He provided a Saviour in the person of His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and for sin. Through this One, life came to every man that each might give an answer for the things done in his body, whether it be good or evil.

Life and death are still held out to man as has always been the case.

"See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil." Deut. 30:15.

God's purpose in a resurrection then is for this righteous judgment to be shown to mankind, not that any man should suffer for the offence of another, but that all should be rewarded according to their own works, whether of sin unto death or of righteousness unto life eternal.

"For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

"For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

"But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits: afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor. 15:21-23.

Those who have been conformed to the image of the Son of God are the first to be raised from the dead. They are made kings and priests and rule with Christ.

"For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet." 1 Cor. 15:25.

Then cometh the end (of resurrection) or the last, even when death shall be destroyed. Before death is destroyed however, the day has come which God had appointed in which He would judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom He hath ordained: "whereof he hath given assurance unto all men in that he hath raised him from the dead."

The judgment day is at hand—"And I saw a great

"I CANNOT PRAY"

By J. C. Williams

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER to the "Lord's Watch": "I have lost communion with God . . . Prayer was as natural as breathing, but alas, all is changed, and my spiritual life drags heavily! I am in continual heaviness of spirit."

These lines were not penned by a sentimentalist, but by a man with a more than ordinary knowledge of the deeper life in God. What can be the reason for such a revolution of spiritual experience?

Let us examine the facts. Some months previously the same writer informed us that he had been led into the prayer warfare for revival in a certain place and that he and another had decided to give the whole of their vacations, then pending, to prayer and intercession, and declared that the struggle would be a hard and bitter one. How hard, how bitter, they had yet to realize; nor had they realized that the experience depicted in the above extract was part of the same warfare, only a deeper phase of it.

This is what happened. They essayed a warfare, not against flesh and blood, but against all the powers of hell. And when the Holy Spirit leads a man into the prayer life, immediately by prayer contact with God he is enabled to move spirit forces of which we mortals are but dimly conscious, though the Word is full of warnings and instruction concerning these same powers which are arrayed against God and man.

The whole aim of satanic power is to cut off communication with God; hence is the god of this world called, devil, diablo, divider; and to accomplish this aim he deludes the soul with a sense of defeat, covers it with a thick cloud of darkness, depresses and oppresses the spirit, and this in turn hinders prayer and leads to unbelief, thus destroying all power—for faith is still the substance or essence of things hoped for and the evidence of things unseen. Heb. 11:1. This state of experience is common to all praying men.

Paul passes through this phase of spiritual life, by putting into practice his own teachings; he by faith refuses to be responsive to the suggestions of Satan and sin. Rom. 6:11. He reckons and counts himself dead to carnal feelings, but alive unto God with every avenue of the new creature in Christ Jesus. Thus Paul emerges in triumph from the depression and oppression of the powers of darkness (Rom. 7:24) by putting into operation the law of faith—declaring that the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus had made him free from the law of sin and death—the crucified Christ being the great Deliverer of His people.

In the 77th Psalm we see the writer passing through the same experience. The heavens are darkened, the gloom deepens, he feels he is utterly abandoned. The iron has eaten into his soul, testimony is silenced, language is strangled, expression has lost its power—he cannot pray. Has God forgotten to be gracious? Pause here, O child of God. Consider no longer thyself, but—God.

As a result of that pause in his complaining it suddenly dawns upon the Psalmist, "This is my infirmity." Whence come these thoughts? Are they of God? Impossible. Are they of my own inner being? Equally impossible. For "whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside thee."—Psa. 73:25. These thoughts, these complainings of unbelief—they are hallucinations born of the very intensity of my prayers; somehow the stream has been diverted inward instead of Godward. Somehow the activities of the soul have been inverted. This is a spirit of infirmity. I will be deceived no longer—this terrible burden is not of God, it is Satan playing a dirge on the finely strung emotions of my being.

Now the truth has set the man free. He has by the operation of faith become dead and unresponsive to self and Satan's power over self, but all alive to God and His power. The wail of the night is turned into the song of the morning. Many of God's dearest and best have been swept into all kinds of error, because they have not discerned that, at every turn, Satan's business is to traduce the character of God, in order to lead them to believe that God has forsaken them.

Men of God, ye have the witness in your own hearts that ye are indeed the sons of God. Then throw off these heavy shackles of depression, oppression, and deception, forged in hell to keep you from pressing toward the mark for the prize of your high calling in Christ Jesus—to keep you from being co-workers in prayer with Him who ever liveth to make intercession for the saints. •

Do you say, "How can I?" By remembering that Jesus Christ is Victor, by remembering that "ye are of God" and have overcome—not always visibly, not always to the touch of sense, but always in spirit, always in the economy of God—because greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world. Not because you are great, but because Jesus is greatest. Claim His victory. Go and meet your daily need praising God for the victory of our Lord Jesus Christ. Let the music of His victory find frequent expression on your lips as you go through the day.

The battle may be in the plains, the fight may be in the shadows, but do you appropriate that which Christ died to give—the glorious liberty of the sons of God, and an abiding place far above all principalities and powers! Fight in the plains, but let your spirit-life be lived on the mountain top with Moses, Elijah, David, Peter and Paul, and the host of those who overcame by the blood of the Lamb—who were mighty because they persistently died to sense, to self, and walked and moved and had their being in God. You are hid in Christ. You cannot see the law of gravitation, nor can you see the law of faith; but put either into operation and it will demonstrate its own existence,—Selected by Madeline Gardiner.

"THE HEAVENLY THRONE"

Extracts from a Book on Revelation by Clarence Larkin.

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

AND IMMEDIATELY I was in the Spirit: and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and One sat on the throne. And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and sardine stone: and there was a rainbow, round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald. . . . And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices: and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God and before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal."

The first thing John saw in heaven was a throne. The throne was not vacant but One sat upon it, upon whom to look was like looking at glistening gems such as jasper and sardine. The occupant of the throne was no other than God Himself. In Rev. 21:10, 11, John in describing the new Jerusalem, says its light is the glory of God, a light "like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal." This corresponds with John's declaration, 1 John 1:5; "that God is light."

Ezekiel in describing his vision of the throne of God says, "Above the firmament that was over their heads, was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of a sapphire stone: and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as the appearance of a man above it. And I saw as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it, from the appearance of his loins even upward, and from the appearance of his loins even downward, I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightness round about. As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord." Ezek. 1:26-28.

Now there are two things in Ezekiel's vision that correspond with John's vision of the throne of God. First, that the form of the One who sat on the throne could not be clearly distinguished or described, but that it was resplendent with light which veiled the form or person.

Second, that there was a rainbow round about the throne. The person of God there as He sits upon His throne is veiled in a glory that can only be compared to the shining of some beautiful gem. But one of the remarkable things is that the throne of God is surrounded by a rainbow that is emerald in color. The first mention we have in the Bible of the rainbow is in Gen. 9:13-17, "I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth," a covenant that God would not destroy this earth again by a flood.

That rainbow was only semicircular, such as we see in the heavens in the summer after a shower, but the rainbow Ezekiel and John saw around the throne of God was circular. Now we only see half a rainbow, but in the future we shall see the whole of things. The rainbow is the sign of a covenant, bound on an accepted sacrifice, the sacrifice of Noah. Gen. 8:20, 22. The rainbow about the throne of God is the sign of a covenant based upon the accepted sacrifice of Christ on the cross.

The difference between Noah's rainbow and the one around the throne of God is that Noah's rainbow is composed of seven primary colors, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet. The one around the throne of God is emerald.

What does this circular green rainbow about the throne of God signify? It signifies that God is a covenant keeping God; that His promises as to this earth shall be fulfilled. Even though He is about to bring judgments upon the earth He will not destroy it, but it shall pass through these judgments safely. He will redeem it and bless it, until its hills and valleys and plains shall teem with green verdure, fruitful orchards and bountiful vineyards in the millennial day that is to follow these judgments.

I enjoyed reading some of the things this writer has given, and thought perhaps some others might also enjoy this extract from this book.

white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

"And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the book, according to their works.

"And the sea gave up the dead which were in it: and death and hell (grave) delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works." Rev. 20:11-13.

After this death is destroyed, then,—when all things shall be subdued unto Him,—shall the Son also Himself be subject unto Him that put all things under Him, that God may be all in all.

OUR OUTLOOK

By M. A. Woodward

WHOSE? Why ask when we are all looking for the same thing, the soon coming of our beloved Savior? But how are we looking, anxiously, prayerfully, or carelessly, thoughtlessly? If in the last attitude we may not see Him at all, or seeing, fail to hear His beloved voice saying, "Come, for all things are now ready". O, what a loss if we do not hear! Now is the time to make ourselves ready by weaving the wedding garment.

I have just read dear Sr. Young's article on prayer and how necessary is prayer. How are we to let the dear Father know our needs only by prayer? And how can we pray unless we are in love with God? O, these heartless prayers! What does He do with all of them?

O God, Thou who hearest the call of thy children, grant that we as thy family may enter into true, sweet communion with Thee. May the memories of past blessings awaken in us a longing for better things, a nearness to Thee not yet attained. Turn our regrets into brave resolutions for better living, that the seeming defeats of life may become the assurance of victory over self and determination to be Thine for good in all lawful things. Amen

We so often try to carry the heavy burdens of life all in one day. O, do not do that! Do we feel the care and weight of life too much for us? Remember God has said, "Cast thy burden on the Lord and he shall sustain thee." Carry the burden to Him, and only one day at a time.

Lord, for to-morrow and its needs
I do not pray.
Help me, O Lord, to do my part
Just for to-day.

Do not try to carry the load. God wants to help you. In your weakness He will show His strength. We sometimes find ourselves praying just for ourselves. Let us forget self for a moment and pray for the whole body of Christ and its needs. May our prayer be:

"O Lord, baptize anew thy Church, thy people every where in the life-giving spirit of the blessed Christ. Put into her heart the spirit of a Paul, ready to sacrifice for the name of Christ; ready to go without money or price if necessary, to bring some souls to the Fountain of Truth, that they may listen to His words of salvation, to His tender call of come unto me and be ye saved all ye ends of the earth. O Lord, thou hast called us to be lights in this sinful world. Help us, O Lord, not to bring any false faith to the waiting souls, but the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Increase the faith and zeal of all thy people, O Father, that they may more earnestly desire and more diligently seek the salvation of their fellow men. Help all to be honest, faithful Christians for Jesus' sake. Amen."

"Then into His hand went mine
And into my heart came He:
And I walked in a light divine,
The path I had feared to see."

FAITH AND HOPE

By O. E. Stewart

TRUE FAITH must precede true hope and true faith can be obtained in one way only, and that one way is by hearing the Word of God. Rom. 10:17. Without faith, which must come by hearing the Word of God, it is impossible that works by love and purifies the heart is the Bible faith. "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" 1 John 3:17. "Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." 1 Cor. 9:13, 14.

Brethren, do you realize that there are people who need your help in order for them to hear the glad tidings of the kingdom of God? Are you interested in the commandment of Jesus who said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature"? Mark 16:15. How can we go except we are sent? Rom. 10:15.

Do you realize that "faith without works is dead"? Jas. 2:17. Will each and every one who professes to be a follower of Christ, after you have eaten supper tonight and have lain down for your night's repose, take a retrospective view of your life since you began your Christian career and think for five minutes, asking yourselves this solemn question: What have I done since I became a Christian in helping to forward the gospel work?

Think of your age. You may be old. Think how much you have spent on self. Contrast this with what you have spent in the service of your Lord. Think seriously about it. Then read 1 John 3:17 again.

Hope is desire and expectation, but it is founded on faith which works by love and purifies the heart.

QUESTIONS FOR PROFESSING CHRISTIANS

When you repented of your past sins and were baptized, did you realize that you then and there obligated yourself to deny yourself, take up your cross and follow Christ? Are you trying as faithfully to meet that obligation as you do to meet your obligation to the firm from whom you bought your fine auto promising to pay thirty dollars per month? When you bought your nice auto, what did you have in mind when you bought it? Did you get it in order to serve God, or mammon? Did you get it because your neighbor had one and you felt that you must get a real fine auto so as to feel more highly esteemed by your neighbors?

If that is the reason you bought it, will you please read, re-read and then meditate seriously over Luke 16:15, where Jesus said, "That which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God." Do you suppose after you have read it that it will have any bearing upon your mind, or will you just dismiss it from your mind and feel justified because you have been baptized?

Will every professor of the faith in Texas, show me that you have read and meditated over this by writing me a letter and telling me so? You can do this much can you not? Box 485, Sweetwater, Texas. possible to please Him. Heb. 11:6. But "how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent?" Rom. 10:14, 15.

WHAT DOES CHRISTMAS MEAN TO YOU?

Christmas day will soon be here
With glad greetings of good cheer;
Day of all the days the best,
Bringing peace and happiness;
Breathing heaven through and through,
But what does Christmas mean to you?

Is it just a time for glee;
A day for joyous revelry;
A day to simply feast and drink;
Of only earthly pleasures think?
Your gifts but sheer hypocrisy—
The edict of society?

Christmas, the Glad Day of the year,
Is the meaning to you clear?
The shepherds heard the angel sing:
"Glad tidings of great joy we bring
Peace on earth, good-will to men,
For Christ is born in Bethlehem!"

God's gift to man—salvation free,
Through Christ who died on Calvary,
Then give to Christ, who died for you,
Your heart, your life, your substance, too;
And let your gifts unto your friends
Be such as only true love sends.
Then Christmas cheer without alloy
Will fill your heart with sweetest joy.

FROM MANGER TO THRONE

By Samuel E. Haney

THE MOST scholarly exegesis gives but an elementary knowledge of what has been, and is to be accomplished by God through the intervention of "Messiah, which is called Christ" whose humble birth is recorded by Luke: "And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. . . . And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. . . . And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger".—Luke 2. A more inferior birthplace than this is hardly conceivable. But it is more difficult to visualize the glory and power to which this tiny Babe was exalted. The two extremes: lowliness—highness: from manger to throne. What a picture! What a lesson!

We have noted Luke's simple narrative of our Lord's birth. Let us now have Paul give us an inkling of His glory: "I knew a man in Christ . . . such an one caught up to the third heaven. . . . And heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. . . . Of such an one will I glory: ('on behalf of such a one will I glory,' R. V.)".—2 Cor. 12:2-5.

In this "firstborn Son" of Mary's is the embryo of love and power exemplified by humility—meekness. He anti-typed Moses who "was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth". Num. 12:3. This is the antithesis of the world's idea of power, to which meekness is weakness and love is effeminacy. An aggressive spirit is the world's ideal strong man. But a little flattery often makes manifest the real spirit of this strong man, i. e., ostentatiousness. Strip him of his garish apparel and authority and he becomes a weakling, vassal, coward.

When the once "babe in the manger" makes His second visit to earth it will not be in humility but in "all power" and authority: "And he shall rule them with a rod of iron".—Rev. 2:27; 19:15. Then, "All hands shall be feeble, and all knees shall be weak as water".—Ezek. 7:17. The spirit of pomp and pride will then be thrust back to its origin—the devil.

Diverting to our Lord's birth, we read, "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord". Luke 2:8-11.

Matthew writes: "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him".—Matt. 2:1, 2.

These "shepherds abiding in the field", and these "wise men from the east" have an antitype which is dissimilar in minor respects, but similar in major character. Every consecrated Christian is a "shepherd", in the sense of being interested in his brother's spiritual welfare. And we are in the "field", which is a symbol of the world. It is generally understood that the wise men from the east were elderly and of great worldly wisdom. This was not necessarily the case. They were just as likely to have been young men whom the world considered below the average intellectually, but whose understanding was "not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God; . . . the manifold wisdom of God".—2 Cor. 1:12; Eph. 3:10. This distinction is made in Dan. 12:10: "Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly; and none of the wicked (the world) shall understand; but the wise shall understand".

Humanly speaking (there are exceptions to all human rules), it appears that the more worldly wisdom a person gets the further he gets from God and heavenly wisdom. Paul confirms this statement: "Let no one deceive himself. If any man imagines that he is wise, compared with the rest of you, with the wisdom of the present age, let him become a 'fool' so that he may be wise. This world's wisdom is 'foolishness' in God's sight; for it is written, 'He snares the wise with their own cunning.' (Job 5:13). And again, 'The Lord takes knowledge of the reasonings of the wise—how useless they are (Psa. 94:11)'.—1 Cor. 3:18-20, Wey.

These "wise men" said, "We have seen his star in the east". Do not the momentous events in the east during the past ten years constitute an unusually brilliant "star", that prophetically precedes the return of the King of kings and Lord of lords? Matt. 24:6-8; Luke 21:25-33. And does not—Am I ready to meet Him—constitute the greatest question of the hour?

MODERN EDUCATION

ARCHBISHOP John T. McNicholas, says "Our religious progress, . . . is being greatly retarded by a general attitude of indifference. . . . We are too much occupied with these bodies of ours and the pleasures of the senses. We are engaged, too, in promoting a wonderful educational system which, while divorced from the theoretically indifferent to religion, is practically opposed to it and by gradual devitalizing of faith, too frequently leaves the student with a sense of pity for the credulity of those who still believe. As a result, many millions of men and women do not give so much attention to religion as they do to the color of the clothes they wear, or the brand of tobacco they smoke. . . .

"To the unfolding mind of the child, the little knowledge of God we possess, should be imparted. Our duties to God should be impressed upon the minds and hearts of our young people. We are failing to do this. God only knows the sad consequences that will result from our failure. Men and women who are not stamped with the seal of religion are not right-minded and right-hearted men and women."

PLEASE EXPLAIN

I AM A READER of The Restitution Herald, and a member of the Church of God. I think the Herald is the best religious paper in print. There I find great comfort, and glean much wisdom from its pages.

Will some one give light on Isa. 66:7, 8, 9? Who gave birth to the man child? v. 7. Is this man child the same as in Rev. 12:5? I notice she (and who is she?) brought forth the man child, v. 7, without travail, but with travail Zion brought forth her children, v. 8. Are there any relation in these two births v. v. 7, 8. Will The Herald writers give some thoughts through the paper on this scripture?

I feel that here is food for thought, as in many other great truths that may have to do with the last days. This wise saying is ever fresh in my mind: "With all thy getting, get wisdom." "My soul panteth after thee, O Lord, as the hart doth the brook."—A Truth Seeker.

THE LAST KING

By T. A. Drinkard

AND THOU, profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God: Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." Ezek. 21:25-27.

Thus the verdict is read to Israel's king as it came from the God of heaven, whose law Israel had disregarded, disgraced, and disobeyed. Zedekiah is here pictured as walking in the way of presumptuous men, contrary to the spirit of right, which is might. Herein was committed his greatest mistake.

Blessed of God with authority over a large number of people, instead of utilizing his influence toward the furtherance of God's will and purpose, he chooses to do otherwise. By so doing he brings himself into disfavor with God. Thus the king, the prince of Israel, forfeited his right. He is dethroned, his crown is removed, he spends the last days of his life upon earth as a prisoner, and in blindness. 2 Kings 25:6, 7.

The verdict carried a very severe penalty as the reader may verify by reading Jer. 24:8-10 which briefly and pointedly explains the matter. No other king is permitted to succeed him. The king is uncrowned, the throne is cast to the ground, and the kingdom ceases to be for a time, until the rightful Ruler appears. The Judge announced that whatever He overthrew would remain overturned "until he come whose right it is and I will give it him."

Surely we may understand this promise of coming restoration. There is no prophecy which teaches that this prediction was fulfilled between this time and the time when Jesus the Christ was born. You will kindly notice the wording of this prophecy, "Until he come," which no doubt has direct reference to the second coming of Jesus the Christ. It could not refer to His first coming for several reasons.

When Jesus was born the wise men inquired "Where is he that is born King of The Jews?" Matt. 2:1-2. They had seen His star in the east, and had come to worship Him. They were students of divine truth, and were expecting Him, and hence were prepared to receive Him. They recognized in Him the coming King of the world, a King of character, power, and majesty. They placed hope in Him; they trusted Him and saw in Him the "Governor, that shall rule . . . Israel," Matt. 2:6, just as literally as did the kings of old, and why not? These thoughts are clearly seen in all the prophecy relating thereto, as may be seen as we advance in the study of this question.

In gold or land or raiment gay,
In goods that perish and decay.

"But God's high wisdom knows a way,
And that is sure, let come what may;
Who does God's work will get God's pay."

How sweet to know
The trials we cannot comprehend
Have each their own divinely purposed end.

THE GIFT OF GIFTS

By Mary A. Gesin

FOR GOD so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Many hundreds of years before these words were spoken, God planned this wonderful Gift to man. And for many hundred years the world has been keeping the memory of that Gift. Anniversaries have come and gone, birthdays of great men have been observed time and again, but only One has been preserved throughout the annals of history.

Never was a birthday proclaimed to mankind as was this one! Angelic hosts gave forth the glad tidings in tones of the most beautiful music ever heard by mortal man. "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Surely this was no common place event! The Son of God was born that day.

Four thousand years before, God formed a beautiful world and fashioned a man "in his own image." Placing man in a garden, God gave all into his keeping for his happiness and welfare. In return for this gift of life and all that goes with it to make for happiness, man disobeyed God. Surrounded by nature fresh from the Hand of the Creator, beautiful in its perfection, man sinned, and as a result God removed him from the garden, placing "a flaming sword which turned every way to keep the way of the tree of life." Gen. 3:24.

But God in His infinite mercy and love for mankind did not leave man in this hopeless state. As soon as he disobeyed, God promised a Redeemer, One who would restore all that man had lost, One who would be victorious where Adam had failed. Gen. 3:15; Acts 3:25, 26; 1 John 3:8. "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."—Matt. 18:11.

In Heb. 2:9, 10 we read one of the most beautiful passages in the Bible: "We see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man. For it became him . . . to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings." This was that great Gift of God to man.

What shall we give Him in return? We read that Stephen gave his life for the Master. "Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people. And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake . . . And they stoned Stephen . . . and he kneeled down, and cried . . . Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." Acts 6:8, 15; 7:59, 60.

After he had experienced that wonderful conversion on the road to Damascus, Paul gave his entire life to the Master, counting the many hardships and disappointments as nothing and not worthy to be compared with the glory he expected to receive. Many others might be named who gave a life of service to God and finally life itself in return for that first great Christmas Gift.

We are not asked to give up our lives as were they, but we are asked to present our bodies a living sacrifice, which is only our reasonable service. We have a notable example for our inspiration in the churches of Macedonia of whom it is recorded, "First gave their own selves to the Lord."

Joy is one of the predominating spirits of the Christmas season and if you want to experience a real, a lasting joy, forget yourself in service to others. Have you ever tried it? There is no better antidote for life's disappointments and sorrows. Jesus experienced this to the full for we read that He "went about all Galilee, teaching . . . and preaching . . . and healing;" and that for the joy that was set before Him He gave up His life on the cruel cross. This was the inimitable Son of God—the Gift of gifts.

Let us in this coming New Year, in return for God's great Gift to us, give ourselves in worship to Him and in love and service to our fellow man.

"AND ON EARTH PEACE"—Luke 2:14

NEARLY two thousand years ago angels heralded the birth of a Savior in the little town of Bethlehem to the strains of "peace", "good tidings", "great joy" and "good will toward men". The mission of Christ which is of much beauty and meaning to us, is the mission of the Peacemaker. In fact, so important was this work of His to be that years before His birth Isaiah prophesied of Christ as "The Prince of Peace."

Nineteen hundred twenty-eight years after the coming of The Prince of Peace, we are running to and fro, weighted down with the responsibilities of life. Increase of knowledge simply weaves a network of difficulties around us from which we find it impossible to extricate ourselves. We take the whole burden of life upon our shoulders and try to carry it there. Problem adds to problem, perplexity to perplexity and worry to worry until it is no wonder that our poor, insufficient little minds face the question, "Is there such a thing as peace?"

The difficulty which calls forth such a question lies not in the situation but in our own attitude toward it. Our Master, after speaking words of comfort to His disciples shortly before He left them, gave a reason for those words: "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

It is possible, then, to suffer tribulation and to enjoy peace at the same time. Jesus Christ was the greatest Teacher of this lesson that the world has ever known. He was "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief," yet He was never so disquieted in spirit but that He could speak words of comfort to troubled souls, or gently restore a cripple to strength, or raise a sleeping form to life again. He was always teaching, admonishing, encouraging, helping, without thought of His own gain and without impatience with the ways of others. Such deeds are inspired only by hearts that are at peace with God.

Underlying the power of the Master's life is the reason for the peace that was always His. John, in recording the prayer of Jesus, in the seventeenth chapter of his gospel, paints a touching picture of the closeness, the oneness of Christ and His Father. Jesus understood God's plan for men from the beginning and the fulfillment that was to be through Him. Whenever the burdens of the day began to tell on Him, He withdrew from the throng and sought the companionship of the Father, and He always returned with a strength and peace that could face the bitterest moments of life with the prayer, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

There is such a peace for the followers of Christ today. Paul says it is a peace that "passeth all understanding," but it comes only to those who know that "all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." We, too, must often withdraw from the world and in the quiet of communion with God shift the weight of weariness to the Everlasting Arms and find the peace that will be our strength as it was Christ's.

The day is near at hand when Christ shall come the second time to fulfill His office as Peacemaker in its fullest sense. The peace which so long has been promised will prevail and all the world will enjoy its beauty.

"Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

May this Christmas season bring the peace of God to the hearts of you all.

THE INNER LIFE

"Have you ever walked at night when the stars seemed nearer than the tree-tops, when to your own eyes the sky was aglow with an unwonted radiance? Have you ever known some high hour when a heavenly host seemed to sweep into your vision? Such moments come through communion with the Infinite, quieting the restless spirit of the finite and bringing peace. If you have experienced this, your own heart will be the best interpretation of the stories of the nativity."—Selected.

SEND IT ON

WHATEVER the blessing that comes to me,
I would bless it and send it on,
To widen and grow like a wave in the sea,
As I bless it and send it on.

Whatever the joy that my spirit thrills,
I would bless it and send it on,
Till other hearts with like cheer it fills,
As I bless it and send it on.

From the depths of the infinite Good it spring,
Let me bless it and send it on;
For God's own love to His world it brings,
When I bless it and send it on.

THE NEXT BEST THING

OH, I'M SO SORRY, Maude. But I can't come. Betty and I promised to stay with Isabel. I'm just as sorry as I can be."

Betty was just coming down the stairs, her hat on and her coat ready to button.

"Wait, Glenna," she called. "Is it a party? Do you want to go? I'll stay alone with Isabel."

Glenna hesitated. But the Christmas party at Maude's sounded so exciting. After all, Betty had stayed with baby Isabel before. Mother wouldn't mind.

"Oh, if you will, Betty, I'll be so happy," said Glenna. And in ten minutes she was hurrying out the door.

By that time Betty was wondering if she really wanted to stay with Isabel. Isabel was asleep—would be asleep all afternoon probably. And here she would have to sit with nothing to do. But she remembered suddenly that there was something very important to do. Her Sunday-school class was having a contest with the other primary classes.

Each member was making a tiny model with clay of some Christmas scene. The class that had the best one would have it used in the Christmas pageant and would sit on the platform and be honor guests. To-day was the last chance for Betty to work on hers. The class counted on Betty, for she was the best clay modeller in the whole group.

"So I can do that this afternoon," said Betty cheerfully, and then stopped. Oh, Oh! That was what she had started down town for, to buy her clay for modelling. Why had she put off getting the clay until just the day before the contest would end.

Betty ran upstairs. Isabel was sleeping quietly in her crib. Surely she would be safe if Betty slipped on her coat and ran all the way to the store for the clay. She went to get her coat and hat. Then she thought of the last thing Glenna had said, "I know I can trust you, Betty. I wouldn't think of leaving Isabel with some girls as little as you."

Betty went soberly in to wash her hands and face, for she caught sight of a great smear of paint across her hands. Suddenly something popped into her mind, something Cousin Bob was always saying. "If you haven't what you want, use the next best thing." Here was the next best thing right in her hands!

Fifteen minutes later Betty was working over the kitchen table as busy as a bee. But she was not too busy to hear a tiny sound from upstairs. She ran up. Then she stood in the doorway, gasping. Isabel had wakened and had tried with all her fat two-year-old self to climb out of her crib. She had caught her dress on the corner of it and was hanging there.

The little girl gurgled happily when Betty untangled her and carried her downstairs. But Betty said a little prayer of thanksgiving. Suppose she had gone to the store. Isabel would have fallen on her head, or maybe caught her clothes around her neck and choked. Why, it was too dreadful to think of!

In no time at all Glenna was home from her party. When mother came home, she hugged both of the girls tight.

"What would I do without two trustworthy girls?" she asked.

Sunday morning the superintendent stood up to make the announcement.

"The Girl Doers win the prize," he said. "They have the loveliest scene. I will put it here on the table, and you may walk around and see it."

There it was, a little stable in a snowy yard. Outside were three camels humped up in the path. Red candles glowed in the stable windows, and two pine trees stood in front of it.

"That isn't clay!" exclaimed one girl.

Betty laughed. "No, and the prize should really go to Cousin Bob, for he told me when I didn't have what I wanted, to use the next best thing, and I did. I used some of all colors of soap."

That was what it was. The stable and snowy yard were soap, cut to shape. Red soap had been melted down, and tiny candles moulded out of it. The camels were shaped out of tar soap until they looked quite like camels indeed. Pale green soap made lovely pine trees.

"I was washing my hands," said Betty, "and I looked for the next best thing and found it. But I also found there's no next best thing to keeping your word."

GOLDEN TEXT

Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear him.—Psa. 103:13.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER

God is referred to in the Bible by various names, each name signifying not a different individual, but a differing characteristic of the same One. "Elohim" seems to refer to Him as the great Creator, while "Jehovah" brings out the thought of God as the Covenant Maker, giving promises to man that pertain to all future time as well as regarding all things. See Dict. "Shaddai" refers to Him as the "Almighty", the One who is all powerful. Other names designate other characteristics. "Father" designates that He who is in heaven and He who is over all, looks down upon all in all their needs as the loving, gentle Provider.

Forgiveness. God knows the frame of man. He knows man's weakness and error. His mercy not only provides for life and bodily needs, but, Psa. 103:12, "as far as the east is from the west, so far has he removed our transgressions from us". Only God could do this. Moses connects God's great forgiveness with His mercies by the words, Exod. 34:17, "forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin". No ideal of man could expect more of God in the capacity of One who watches over the interests of His children than is here declared by God through Moses. God longs for man to seek and to find His ways, and to do them, for man's own greatest good. So loving, so merciful is God that He has assured that He would forgive all iniquity and all transgression and all sin to those who ardently seek to follow Him. "If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you: but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses."—Matt. 6:14, 15.

Not Clearing the Guilty. Lest God should be misunderstood, He distinctly instructs through Moses that though He is all forgiving, yet He "will by no means clear the guilty". Exod. 34:7. While He will keep His covenant and "mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations", Deut. 7:9, yet He will visit "the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and fourth generation."—Exod. 34:7. God's righteousness disallows Him even in His love for His children, to permit their unrighteousness to go unpunished. All sin is sin against God and the Bible assures that sin will be forgiven by the Father only on condition that the one sinning both repent and diligently endeavor to serve Him; and that all who fail to repent and to exercise true service shall be justly punished for their iniquity. God's love for His faithful children requires that unfaithful men shall either become repentant or shall be laid aside in death.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Like the compassion of a father for his children

Is the compassion of Yahweh for them who revere him."—Psa. 103:13, Roth.

God, the heavenly Father, has always been longsuffering toward His people. It was so in His dealings with Israel in times past, and in this present, "is longsuffering to usward, not willing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance." 2 Peter 3:9.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Father's Love. The officer had spoken harshly. The old man bowed his head and a tear was seen to find its way down his wrinkled face. The years had been filled with varying experiences, and many had been the occasions when John's wild and careless ways had brought sorrow. But he was John's father, and he loved his son. Now the officer of the law stood telling him of John's latest misstep, and asking if he would still defend the boy.

"Officer," said the old man, "John is my son. To abandon him in time of distress would ruin him and be an indication of my lack of love. Someday, perchance, the boy will awaken to realize the depth of my love for him, and be a man. Yes, I'll protect him now as before."

How many times has our Father forgiven us and started us anew along the path of life, manifesting a love and forgiveness even greater than a human parent can have? Have we awakened to know Him as a real Father?—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Faith and Reason.

"Behold the fowls of the air: . . . your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they? . . . Consider the lilies of the field, . . . Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field . . . shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"—Matt. 6:26, 28, 30.

Jesus spake these words to the disciples to generate faith in them. They present a definite reasoning based on simple facts tangible to the physical senses. The conclusions are in line with the reasoning, but they concern things intangible to the physical senses and are therefore conclusions of faith. However, the fact that they are conclusions of faith does not separate them from the reasoning back of them.

Usually faith is considered to be a sort of mystic state of mind entered into in some way entirely independent of reasoning. Faith and thinking of any kind are thought to be entire strangers. The thinking person looks at faith as a kind of stay for the weak who work themselves into it by constantly reiterating, under emotional stimuli, a thing they want to believe, or who blindly assume a thing to be true. In fact, faith as demonstrated in the lives of many people is nothing more than this.

But Jesus did not so demonstrate faith. The faith of Jesus was the result of convictions of truth arrived at by reasoning from the seen to the unseen. Jesus' faith was never emotionally irrational, nor was it ignorantly trustful as is the unthinking babe's "faith" in its mother. And it is Jesus' faith that saves. It is only as his faith—the highest type of thinking—develops in man that man enters salvation, for it is through his thinking, only, that man may discern God as Father and grow into His image.

Jesus' faith-conclusions represent God's thinking prompted by love, the opposite of man's thinking prompted by the selfishness of the instincts of the flesh.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Like as a Father.

"Father, I need a new pair of shoes and my sweater is just full of holes," one boy says to his father. "Yes, and I must have a new tablet and pencil," says his sister.

"Very well," answers father. "I am sure you each shall have what you need." They both go away, absolutely assured they will receive those things which are so needful to them.

Your father no doubt does the same, and no one would dare tell you, that your father will not provide needful things for you. How many of you have to wonder where your next meal is coming from, or where you will get your next clothes? Not many, I am sure.

Read verses 25, 26, 28, 30, 31 to end and weigh carefully what is meant in those verses. Then when you lift up your voice in prayer to God, talk to Him with love and trustfulness as you do your earthly father.—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Bro. Austin will be in Oregon for services next Sunday, at which time he will be introducing to the local congregation his bride, who is already well known to them.

The Bible Training class is now taking a two weeks' vacation for the holidays. Bro. Siple reports that the different members are making splendid progress in their work, both in comprehension of spiritual truths, and in working ability to present these truths to others. Especial growth has been observed in the practice preaching, which has been very interesting. The work will commence again on Monday, January 7.

If there are other young men or women desiring to take this work we invite correspondence relative to the matter.

THE CHRISTMAS ISSUE

We hope you liked our special Christmas Edition which was mailed last week.

The response to our offer to send copies of it and a special greeting card for ten cents per name was so much larger than we anticipated that the several hundred extras which we printed were exhausted and some subscribers had to be disappointed. We are very sorry for that, but it gives to us a good experience to work on for next year.

Several articles for Christmas were received too late for the Christmas issue, but some are being given this week.

The sad news has been conveyed to us of the death of Sister Himmelright, of Attica, Ind. Sister Himmelright has been a patient sufferer for a long time, and our sympathies reach out to the sorrowing loved ones.

To all the brothers and sisters, far and near, Christmas Greetings and a Happy New Year:

How I wish I could shake hands with you all. But dear brothers and sisters, there is a bright day coming when we will all see Him in His glory, even those that pierced Him. How can they see Him if they do not come out of their graves? We know they will come forth. Amy Johnson.

A BELATED THANKSGIVING LETTER WITH CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

We take this means of expressing our thanks to God for His mercy toward us in giving us brethren whose love and kindness have been so pronounced toward us in our time of trouble. In our sickness so many evidences of love have come to us in encouraging letters, in flowers and in more material things that we have been made to rejoice before the Lord that our lot has been cast with people of such spirit.

Brethren, we thank you from the depths of our hearts for your many kindnesses and we hope to live long enough to show you our deep appreciation for your goodness to us. With Christmas Greetings to all.

Bro. and Sr. Lindsay.

IOWA REPORT

Since conference we have been following the same schedule of appointments as last year, Gladbrook, first Sunday in each month, Stanhope second, Koszta third and Hickory Grove fourth. As customarily, we have abandoned the last appointment during the winter, and given it to Cedar Falls.

We have missed the Koszta appointment the last two Sundays, owing to bad weather and roads, and sickness of some of our num-young people is true at Stanhope, where a number of them were baptized last summer. At our last meeting at Stanhope we began using the Berean lessons, and if they had someone who would overcome hesitation enough to start leading they would likely start holding weekly meetings. At Gladbrook the Sunday school is prospering better all the time, and we have our weekly study of Scripture Tuesday nights, at which we are now studying Job. We intend soon to begin a series of lessons on "How to Study the Bible," which perhaps should have been taken up when we began such weekly lessons several years ago.

At all our meetings we rarely have any but our own members and their families, though a few others often come in. Just now two of the city teachers are attending our preaching quite regularly. I have not preached in Sac County since conference, but was at Lake View once, at the time of going to Stanhope, at the earnest solicitation of the Sonnichsen family, because of her pathetic illness in a nervous affliction. But we have reason to hope that she will be up and serving in her old way after a time. Bro. Starbuck, at Cedar Falls, has not been so well lately. Bro. and Sister Ellis were lately called to Columbus, Neb., by the serious illness of his aunt. Jim Cassen, of Waterloo lately buried an aunt at Hudson, who had spent considerable time with them. She died in Montana.

Our family take this way of expressing our thanks for several very acceptable presents, the givers of which will know what we mean. We especially want them to know we are mindful of their kindness in joining together to give us a new electric washer. Notice of it was given us at the Oaks' home Thanksgiving night. As it snowed about a foot while we were there for services and a social party, we who went from town had to push our cars a good share of one-half mile, and got our feet wet. But no one was sick as a result. If any one asks when we are to have another such meeting ask Ray Allard. He had to be main car repairer, and was as good a pusher in snow as he is in church.

We have a Ministerial Association in Gladbrook, and have been lately considering the plan of the churches cooperating in a revival meeting. Our church, both pastor and brethren, are of one mind in the matter and that is, if an evangelist should be called in we could not enter into the plan, but we are glad to go with anyone religiously as far as we can, and exercise charity and tolerance beyond that. If the local pastors do the preaching we will cooperate as far as we can conscientiously go, but that we must stop before entering into an altar service, as usually conducted. Such considerations as the last seem to be enough to stop the proceedings. However, we will meet again a week from to-day, after having had a meeting, when we expect to see if we can get together further. This gives opportunity to our pastor to discuss religious matters freely before them, as we desire, and we are treated with the utmost respect and kindness. J. W. Williams.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

It was decided to-day, (Mon. 17) in joint meeting of our Ministers' Association with the officers of local charity, that the churches

AND NOW LOOK!!

AUSTIN-HARSCH

A very pretty little home wedding was solemnized on Friday evening, December 21, at 5439 Ohio St., Chicago, when Miss Evelyn K. Harsch became the bride of Bro. F. L. Austin. How is that for a Christmas surprise?

Sister Harsch has been so actively engaged in church and Berean work for years past, and is so extensively known throughout our church fellowship that there is little left to say. About the only thing we have not liked about her was that she was too Hars(c)h, but now this difficulty has been removed and there is much less harshness to saying "Evelyn Austin."

The groom in this case has been such an outstanding leader in our church work that he needs no introductions whatever. It is a recognized fact that much of the success of the General Conference has been due to his faithful and untiring efforts.

We feel sure that the church brotherhood throughout the country will join in heartiest congratulations to this good couple and wish them God's richest blessings in their lives together.

They may be addressed at 5439 Ohio St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. F. E. Siple.

ber. Mrs. Ray Cronbaugh was quite ill with appendicitis, and their son Lee had pneumonia, at last report. So Gladbrook has had some extra time, for we always have preaching when other appointments are missed, and our members are always glad when they are informed that such extra meetings are in view. The Ellis and W. H. Allard families were with us last time. Bro. Johnson has not been with us at Gladbrook yet, so we have not seen him.

Conditions at all points are at least as good as formerly, as far as we can see, and in some respects better. At Koszta the need of local leadership has been supplied by the residence among them of Sister Kiger who is doing good work especially among the young people, of whom there are so many there, a number of whom were baptized last summer. The same encouraging condition among the here would cooperate with local charity in getting baskets to all needy families. Nineteen names have been handed in and the number is expected to reach thirty before the week end. Christmas will not be spent here in a selfish way but an effort will be put forth to reach all that are in need.

Here are the names and addresses of the three young people that were recently baptized. Their names were given before but not their addresses.

J. W. GOOD

Joseph W. Good was born in Caledonia, Michigan, September 24, 1864, and fell asleep at his home in New Port Richey, Fla., November 29, 1928. He leaves to mourn his death his wife, Mary E. Good, four sons, Edison B., Burns, Wyo.; J. Warren, Donald and Paul, Colorado Springs, Colo.; one daughter, Marion, New Port Richey, Fla.; one brother, A. W. Good, Dutton, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. John Hull, Buffalo, N. Y., and Ida Roehling, Ebert, Colo.

Funeral services were held at the home and he was laid to rest in the cemetery at Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Our poor feeble minds will fail us to tell of the sorrow that came to our home Dec. 7th in the death of Bro. J. W. Good of New Port Richey, Fla. We have known Brother Good for the last twenty years. When I was an alien to the truth, I still remember how faithful he was to try to show me the promise God made to Abraham and that consecrated life that he lived before me. I must feel without a doubt that he pleased our Lord. He never got too busy with his work and the cares of this life but that he could take time to tell of that life that is to come.

Up until Sr. Good wrote me of his death my home was not without some kind of plan to work for the truth's sake. As we journeyed many times together, I always found him faithful in our Lord's work. At last he could say like Paul for he has proved to the church that he has fought a good fight. To all who knew him, we can say, he finished this life well done.

May our Lord's richest blessing rest on all his family is our prayer. Written by a friend and brother in that blessed hope of eternal life when Jesus comes. C. T. Stevenson, East Flat Rock, N. C.

MRS. J. H. WILLEY

Phoebe Catherine, daughter of William Dickson and Amanda Logan Thompson, was born in Union Township, Marshall County, near Lake Maxinkuckee, June 30, 1854 and passed away at her home, 516 North Center Street, Plymouth, December 12, 1928, following a long illness. Her parents were among the very early settlers of the county, coming here with their parents in 1836. When she was a small child her parents moved on a farm about five miles south of Plymouth and later to Plymouth, where she entered the public schools, from which she graduated in the class of 1877. She taught a few terms of country school and also in Inwood. Following her graduation she taught in the Rochester schools for a few years. She then entered the Plymouth schools, teaching there during a period of twenty-five years. She also attended and graduated from the summer school at Chautauqua, New York.

In early girlhood she united with the Church of God, at Antioch, retaining her membership there until a church was organized in Plymouth, to which she transferred her membership, and since then had been an active worker in the church, and also in the Sunday school as teacher and superintendent.

She had been a member of the Saturday Club, the oldest Women's organization in the city, since 1888, having served as leader and president of the club. She was a charter member of the Daughters of the American Revolution chapter of this city; president of the Marshall County Historical Society, and through her efforts the Centennial Celebration in 1916 was brought about. She was a member of the Relief Circle, taking great pleasure in meeting these ladies in their social gatherings; also a member of the local Home Economics Club, always taking an active part in all these things until failing health prevented. She was especially interested in literature and history, and was frequently sought for information on these and other subjects, on which she was considered an authority.

She was united in marriage to J. H. Willey of Rensselaer, Indiana, January 2, 1900, in Spokane, Washington and a few days later they sailed from San Francisco, California to Australia, where they remained two years. On returning to the United States they spent some time in southern and western points. Later they returned to the old homestead in Plymouth, which was always open to their many friends and where many happy days were spent, until illness prevented.

During her affliction she was patient, uncomplaining, but all that medical skill and ceaseless attention by loving hearts and gentle hands could do was of no avail. Her husband, broken in health and very frail survives her, and now is the time when kindness and sympathy of friends are very precious to him. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Eva L. Underwood of this city and one brother, Bert C. Thompson of South Bend and many other relatives. She lived a true Christian life and now that the weariness of suffering has ceased, she quietly sleeps awaiting the glory of the morning.

Funeral services were held in the home, Plymouth, Ind., Dec. 15, after which she was laid to rest in the cemetery south of Plymouth to sleep until Jesus comes.

WM. P. KERR

It seems one of the sad duties of life to record the death of one who although not particularly affiliated with any of the churches of our faith, yet has been even from his younger days a strong advocate of the truths we all hold so dear. Bro. Kerr had suffered for some time with neuritis or heart weakness and it was this which finally conquered and he now sleeps in Jesus, we believe.

Bro. Kerr was born in Mariposa, Ont., seventy nine years ago and during his active life conducted a jewelry business in Tonamanda and Buffalo, N. Y. In trying to find a climate more suited to his condition he spent a winter in N. Car. and located for a time in Toronto, Ont., returning to N. Tonamanda where he assisted his son in the laundry business. Everything that human energy and skill could do was done but the enemy death succeeded in taking his life.

He leaves to mourn his loss a loving wife and two sons, Charles of Tonamanda, and Wm. of Buffalo, who with many other friends deeply mourn the loss and greatly miss the presence and love of a kind husband, father and friend. The service was private and conducted at the home of his son in Tonamanda by Mr. Parsons of the Disciple Church, who has been an intimate friend of the family for years. He spoke very feelingly of our brother and his hope, at the conclusion of which we went to Elm Lawn Cemetery near Tonamanda where we laid him to await the coming of our Lord and Master who has promised to raise to life all who sleep in Him. Submitted by one who has deeply appreciated the love and esteem of our brother and his dear wife for many years.

A CLEAN NEW YEAR

EVEN THE MOST hardened person can hardly restrain a shudder when he sees a pure, white lily thrown ruthlessly to the ground and stepped upon. There is an inspiration in keeping purity pure and cleanliness clean.

The New Year stretching before us is as pure and clean as the lily. Not a mistake has dimmed its sky nor a sin spotted its whiteness.

Guard the purity and cleanliness of this New Year as you would that of an innocent, blue eyed maiden,—if the maiden were your own daughter.—F. E. S.

JUST A MEMORY

THE HAND OF time has made another revolution, and 1928 is just a memory. All of its labors, all of its problems, all of its successes and failures, all of its joys and sorrows are gone. They exist no longer save on memory's page.

Before us stretches a clean new year. Its pages are unsoiled; its problems and temptations not yet met. What an inspiration as one faces the great possibilities of the future!

In the progress of life too much time should not be given to looking backward. The mistake of yesterday or of last year should not be allowed to make one blue or despondent to-day, or take away any of the inspiration for facing to-morrow. How fortunate it is that man is able to strike from his mind the past and to face the future unhampered!

It is well for us at this season, not only to consider ourselves and our problems individually, but to take an inventory of the church work in our locality. How about your local condition,—has the cause developed and prospered, or has there been a regression during the year? Have you done your part to keep the banners flying?

We must also stop to ponder upon the General Conference, and what has been done. What a field there is for larger work here! Although many mistakes have been made in the past year, yet we feel that some decisive steps forward have been taken, and some definite progress made.

And this we know from observation both from the office and from the field: If fifty per cent of our people would cooperate in proportion to their ability the progress which could be made in 1929 would astonish the whole country.

You and I have made mistakes individually, but that is no reason for us to give up life's great struggle. Our local work has been hindered by many errors, but that does not justify giving up the work. The General Conference has shown many human weaknesses and many errors;—all the more reason for renewed zeal and effort to overcome those weaknesses and use according to wisdom all of our God-given strength.

Let us make 1929 a banner year Individually, Locally and Nationally. Will you help?—F. E. S.

On a clear day the sun comes up with a brightness that indicates a real desire to run his course. Why not face each new day and each incoming year with such a zeal for service?—F. E. S.

ARCHEOLOGY AND THE BIBLE

WE HAVE RECENTLY been reading some interesting accounts of discoveries made in Palestine by an expedition from the University of Pennsylvania Museum. Pictures of relics and ruins are also given. All of which recalls the old controversy which some insist exists between archeology and the Bible.

It is, therefore, very interesting to observe that none of these discoveries which have come to our attention conflict in any way with Biblical history, but on the other hand they simply enlarge and give greater detail to some of the historical facts. One picture shows an old Canaanite fort which has been uncovered at Beisan, Palestine, dating back to around 1411 B. C. Bronze models of dogs, and paintings of the war chariots in use in those days were also discovered. On another page of this issue of the Herald we are giving to you a portion of the report of the expedition.

When, however, we find an archeologist endeavoring to establish dates or facts contrary to the statements of the good Book, bear in mind that those are assumptions and human deductions. The inspiration of that particular archeologist has not yet been established, while that of the Bible has.

The Bible does not need to be substantiated or proved to be correct, for its inspiration and accuracy are abundantly established. But it is gratifying, at least, to discover now certain things which add to the account of what took place more than three thousand years ago.

What a wonderful Book is our Bible!—F. E. S.

JESUS CHRIST

"The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham."—Matt. 1:1

HOW SIGNIFICANT are the words of the first verse of the first chapter of the first book of the New Testament!

A kingdom had once flourished in old Palestine. It had been a magnificent, a wealthy, a powerful kingdom, and it had been called the "kingdom of the Lord." This kingdom had been built up following a promise made by the Father to Abraham of old; and David who was one of the seed of Abraham was the outstanding king of that kingdom. Eventually, however, because of sin and decadence the kingdom was overthrown, and the prophecy made that it should remain overturned "until he come whose right it is", Ezek. 21:27.

Thus the once proud nation fell and for hundreds of years had been lying in the dust. But, though walked upon and spurned, the relics of that kingdom were looking for a restoring Messiah,—the Seed of the woman promised to Eve (Gen. 3:15), the Seed promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob (Gen. 21:12; Gen. 26:4), the Heir promised to David (2 Kings 2:4 and Jer. 33:17).

How fitting and proper, then, that the New Testament in presenting Jesus Christ should introduce Him as the Son of David, the Son of Abraham, and give every generation from Abraham to Christ so as to establish His lineage and His right by birth to the throne.

Is it any wonder that when this Child was born the shepherds left their flocks, the wise men followed the star and the angels of heaven sang?—F. E. S.

A FALSE BALANCE

"A false balance is abomination to the Lord: but a just weight is his delight." Prov. 11:1.

HONESTY IS NOT only the best policy among men, but it is a necessity on the part of one who would stand well pleasing before God. The Father's dealings with man manifest generosity and love. He, therefore, who is stingy or dishonest and defrauds another has missed the whole spirit of God. When the love of God enters the heart of man it makes him anxious not only to be honest, but to give liberally and freely, realizing how much God has given for him.—F. E. S.

BEGINNING OF WISDOM

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Prov. 9:10.

MAN VAUNTS himself many times, with pride in his wisdom if he, perchance, has a college degree or two to his credit. It seems also to be a matter of pride on the part of some to quote from the works and deductions of man and slur divinity and things that pertain thereto.

How foolish! How very foolish!

Solomon, the man of profound wisdom, has called our attention to the fact that reverence of the Lord is the beginning, the very basis upon which all wisdom must stand.

Regardless, then, of how much astronomy one may know, how much of mathematics he may have studied, how efficient he may be in grammar and literature,—if he has built these without a reverence for God it all amounts to naught.

How foolish to spend one's life building upon a foundation that cannot stand!—F. E. S.

BETTER STILL

IT IS AN ADMIRABLE thing to be a good listener at church, one who can be depended upon to be present and give inspiration and encouragement by his attitude. It is a valuable ability to be able to teach a class. It is a God-given gift to be able to sing sweet music which can touch the heart and thrill the soul. It is a blessing to be prized, indeed, if one can preach the gospel and influence audiences. But, greater than all of these is the ability to manifest and practice love in one's work and dealings with others, seven days out of the week. Which can you do?

AT THE FEET OF JESUS

OUR SUBJECT is "At the feet of Jesus"; we shall see different persons at His feet—who they are and what they are there for, observe what they got, and learn the lesson, that you and I can go to the same place and get the same things, if we go in the same spirit.

SALVATION AT JESUS' FEET

You remember the story, recorded in the 7th chapter of Luke, of how the Lord entered into the Pharisee's house where the woman who was a sinner brought an alabaster box of ointment and stood at His feet weeping, washing His feet with her tears and wiping them with the hairs of her head and anointing them with the ointment. Then follows the conversation of our Lord with the Pharisee, and there you will find what this poor sinful woman needed and received at the feet of Jesus, for the Lord said, "Thy faith hath saved thee." Here we learn that the place of salvation for any lost sinner is at Jesus' feet.

In some way this woman had heard of the Lord; she came into the house and as He reclined at the table she stood at the end of the couch at His feet and found salvation there. Her tears did not save her; her works did not save her; it was a salvation by faith; it was a present salvation. HATH spells "got it", as Moody used to say. Going in a lost sinner, she came out saved. There is not a redeemed person living or dead to-day, but had to go to the same place in the same way to get the same salvation. This is elementary; you have heard it all your life, but I am bringing it to you again, and I am glad that some years ago I found salvation at His feet. I claimed no work, no merit, nothing; I rested on the finished work of another, and by simple faith received the gift of life eternal. At His feet is the place of salvation.

REST AT THE FEET OF JESUS.

Now turn to chapter 8. Here we have the story of the demons cast out of the maniac of Gadara. This man was naked, and the Word tells us he had no rest day or night. You know how the swine ran down the hill and were choked. The southern evangelist, Sam Jones, used to say: "Just look at the difference between a man and a hog! Man will keep on living a long time with a legion of devils in him, but as soon as one devil gets into a hog, he commits suicide." The demons being cast out, then sought to get in some other body. I believe to-day there are actual demon possessions. Christ cast the demons out, and in verse 34, "When they that fed them saw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city" and the people came out and found the man "sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind." He had been naked; he is clothed now. He had been wild before; now perfectly quiet and calm we see him at the feet of Jesus. So we learn that the place of quietness and rest is at the feet of Jesus with His power exercised over us.

To-day the multitudes are taken up with the things that keep them back from peace and rest. The world is in a turmoil and confusion. We never know just what may be coming, but there is a place of rest and quiet—we can sit at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in our right minds.

CONSOLATION AT THE FEET OF JESUS

In the same chapter there is another case, that of Jairus' daughter who was dying. Jesus was called, but when He got there she was dead. But by His miraculous power He took the hand of the dead child, called, and brought her back to life. However, before all this Jairus had gone to Jesus, and fallen down at His feet. What is the lesson?

The place of consolation when death comes is at the feet of Jesus. Of course, our friends will be sympathetic, and do all they can, but there is no human touch that will just exactly meet the case at such a time. Some of you know what I am talking about. You remember the time when you yourself, first had to face the grim reality of death. Is it not wonderful that there is One to whom we can go and receive fullest consolation as we tell Him all about it? He will pour in the oil of joy and comfort.

As I stood on a cold wintry day and watched them lower the casket in which my own mother slept, I assure you I was not thinking about the cold ground. There was something in my heart that was singing all the time, "Till He come". The light of the gospel of Christ shines down into the very darkest hour and brings consolation. What would we do without it? My father passed away at eighty-one. We took him out on a summer's day and put him beside mother. I stood there again watching the casket being lowered and just at the moment a friend stood at my side and began to sing:

"A star in the sky, a beacon bright to guide us;
An anchor sure to hold when storms betide us;
A refuge from the storm, where in quiet we may hide us

Is the hope of the coming of the Lord."

So we think of the Lord in a time like this. When all other things are fading, He can console us.

Are you in sorrow or trouble? Are you in distress? Is there something that you can talk to no one about, perchance? We all have our secrets. I point you to this man Jairus. He came and fell at Jesus' feet, when no human help could avail, and received consolation. The Lord stands ready to help you and me.

INSTRUCTION AT THE FEET OF JESUS

Turn now to chapter 10. Verse 38 gives us a picture in the Bethany home. Sitting at the feet of Jesus is Mary. Bustling around outside is Martha. I am glad the word "also" is in there; it suggests that Mary did her part of the work and then had time to learn something from the Lord. It contradicts the idea that Mary was lazy. "She sat at His feet." Here we learn that the place of instruction in the Word is "at the feet of Jesus". We can sit as she did. We do not hear His audible tone, but we can go into the quiet of our rooms and He speaks to us through this Book and we speak to Him, thus learning things first-hand from the Lord.

It depends a great deal upon the one at whose feet you sit, as to what you will learn. Suppose we were to sit at the feet of John Wesley and let that great man teach and explain things to us; well, the students would become like the teacher, and I expect he would make Methodists out of us all. The same thing would happen in the case of Presbyterian teachers and all others. But suppose we sit "at the feet of Jesus" as Mary did, listen to Him and hear His voice, then I should say we would likely become the kind of Christians this poor world needs to-day.

Saul of Tarsus was brought up at the feet of Gamaliel in Jerusalem, that great Jewish teacher. What did it make of him? It made him a most bigoted Pharisee. He could imprison the saints and even kill them but there came a time when Saul changed teachers. He sat down at the feet of the Lord after he had asked, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" and the result was that Saul became Paul. The Pharisee that was breathing out threatenings and slaughter became the great missionary to the Gentiles and an evangelist and teacher. It makes a wonderful difference as to WHERE you sit and learn things.

When I was saved as a boy it was just as natural for me to join the church in which I was brought up as it was for me to get up and go for breakfast. There came a time later, though, when I felt God's call to go out into service. Then I said to the Lord, "If there is anything that I am holding as truth that is not truth, or if there is something I ought to receive that I have not received, if You will just show me and make it plain, I will try to obey," and when I did that from the heart, I found I had to give up some things that mother taught me at her knee. She did her best but when I came to square it up with the Scripture it would not fit. I have the idea that no one denomination has a monopoly of all the truth. Let us, like Mary, get "at the feet of Jesus" and hear His word, and then if He shows us something different, let us be willing to change, if He makes it plain.

After the Lord was crucified and His body had lain in the tomb three days, certain women took ointments and going to the sepulchre found the stone rolled away. One of them wept and said, "They have taken away my Lord", but this Mary of Bethany was not with them. She had sat at His feet. She had learned the truth in advance. If you and I would learn to sit at His feet, hear His word and get truth first-hand from Him, it would help us to avoid many a time of trouble, many a period of heart-ache. If we knew the truth first-hand from the Lord, how we could understand the things in the world to-day! The amazing thing to me is to see men of great intelligence, wonderful brain power, yet so far as the vital things of this Book are concerned they are in the deepest darkness.

Yet it has pleased God to take poor worms of the dust such as I and teach them until they have perfect inward rest with regard to the world situation. Let us sit then "at the feet of Jesus" and get the truth.

THANKFULNESS AT JESUS' FEET

In chapter 17 there is another picture. The Lord is passing along the way and ten lepers stand by crying "Unclean! Unclean!", yet saying "Have mercy on us!" He gives them instructions and as they go all are cleansed and nine disappear. But one comes back and falls down at His feet. What is he there for? Giving Him thanks! So we learn to have the spirit of true thanksgiving at Jesus' feet. Receiving from Him, let the heart be poured out in adoration and praise for every good gift. Are you thankful?

Three times in the first chapter of Romans it says: "And God gave them up"; and among the things that caused God to give them up was that they were not thankful. To-day people are presumptuous; they are getting from God all the time and multitudes never thank Him. Think of the ingratitude of breathing in this good fresh air, and then breathing it back in blasphemy and cursing. There are men in the churches who sit down to their tables every day, eat the good things provided, and their children never hear them giving thanks to God. So I love to think of this leper at Jesus' feet, giving thanks.

Dr. James Brooks of St. Louis was a busy man, pastor of a great church, editor of a magazine and the writer of many books. One busy day when he was weary and worn, the last caller had gone and he had a chance to rest a little. He got into a comfortable chair and just then heard another knock at the door. Turning wearily he said, "Come in!" and his little girl opened the door and stood looking at him. "Well, pet, what do you want?" She came and stood by his side, then climbed up on his knee, put her arms round his neck and said, "I don't want anything; I just want to tell you how much I love you." It broke his heart that one came not to be ministered unto but to pour out her heart's affection.

I think if we went to our Father and said, "I have not come to ask for a single thing, but just to tell You how much I love You, I want to thank You, I want to praise You," I think the great heart of God would warm toward us as never before. Have you the spirit of thanksgiving? Nine went away, one came and knelt at His feet giving Him thanks. Let us be thankful, then, like the man that was splitting wood and struck his finger; but when he came to the meeting that night said, "Friends, I cut my finger off almost, but thank God it did not come off altogether."

DELIVERANCE AT THE FEET OF JESUS

Now turn back to the 7th chapter of the book of Mark until we look at one more picture—the Syrophenician woman. Although on the outside, and having no claim as a daughter of Abraham, yet she got what she came for and her daughter was delivered. The one thing you and

FINDS OF 1500 B. C. SUPPORT PASSAGES IN BOOK OF JOSHUA

Civilization in Ancient Beisan Laid Bare by University of Pennsylvania Scientists

DISCOVERIES of the first importance, tending to substantiate the accuracy not only of certain Egyptian inscriptions, but also of passages from the Book of Joshua of the Old Testament, have been made by the field expedition of the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania, which has begun its seventh consecutive season of excavation upon the site of ancient Bethan—or Beisan—in Palestine.

The first report of work accomplished during the present year was made public yesterday by Museum authorities here. The report was received from Dr. Alan Rowe, field director of the expedition.

Although his report is couched in the careful monotone of the scientist, all through it there runs an undertone of exultation, as he catalogues the remnants of a civilization old when Joshua stood upon the far side of the Jordan, and gazed through the Syrian twilight to the "land flowing with milk and honey."

The discoveries run the gamut of the Canaanites' domestic and communal life, from the foundations of a huge migdol—or fort-tower—to a bit of potsherd, bearing the first hieratic inscription ever brought to light in Beisan. An hieratic inscription is a sacred or priestly writing.

WORK ON FOUR "LEVELS"

All of the fragments catalogued by Dr. Rowe were discovered in the migdol or its immediate environs, and the work of excavation during the present season has been confined to four "levels," so-called.

They are the Thothmes III level, dating by calculation from 1501-1447 B. C.; the Seti I level, 1313-1292 B. C.; the Rameses II level, 1292-1226 B. C.; and the Amenophis III level, 1411-1314 B. C.

In other words, the scientists of the University Museum now have in their hands the pots and kettles, the intimate domestic implements, the sacred writings, the ornaments, of a people who lived thirty-four centuries ago, fifteen centuries before the birth of Christ.

"It is pleasing to be able to state," Dr. Rowe writes in his report, with a slight lapse from his accustomed scientific dryness, "that the antiquities discovered in these areas have been particularly interesting and are really more important than those found on the 'tell' during the corresponding period in the 1927 season.

"Practically all of the eastern end of the temple of Mekal in the Thothmes III level is now excavated. Immediately to the east of the southern part of the inner sanctuary and of the small room containing the mazzebeth, or sacred column, we discovered a large room in which was a great circular fire-place built of stones. Three pieces of bent bronze wire, ashes, charred bones and horns were found in the fireplace, which must have been used for roasting the animals sacrificed in the temple of the deity.

"Among the remains in the fireplace was also the upper portion of a figurine of the goddess Ashtoreth, represented as wearing a wig and supporting one of her breasts with her left hand. The figurine has been scorched by fire and seems to have been thrown into the fireplace as an offering.

"From the same room in the Mekal temple also came a beautiful Syrian dagger of bronze with the handle inlaid with wood, arrowheads, a knife, Cypriote pot, a serpent, cult object, beads, dishes, corn-mills and grinders of basalt, a limestone amulet, and a small opaque seal.

"In addition there was a faience scarab of Thothmes IV which shows the figure of the king holding an ax and wearing the battle helmet with uraeus attached. Before him is the cartouche containing his throne name 'Ra-men-kheperu.' This scarab is of great importance since it gives further evidence of the correctness of the dating of our earlier levels.

"The northern part of the Rameses II gate had previously been cleared and our present excavations have revealed the fact that there were two solid brick towers on either side of the entrance, thus showing the accuracy of the old Egyptian illustrations of Canaanite forts.

"From the Rameses II level we turned to the area known as No. VII city level immediately to the west of the great temple of Amenophis III. Here we were fortunate enough to discover the almost complete foundations of a great building which appears to be a Canaanite migdol, or fort-tower, and also the foundations of an adjoining building which may well have been the residence of the Egyptian commandant of the fort in the reign of Rameses II.

"These newly-discovered structures, together with an enormous silo for grain, are of the very utmost importance and are quite unique in the history of our excavations of Bethshan.

"As the migdol stands at present, it contains four rooms, but it is quite evident that there was originally another room. The average width of the outer walls is seven feet seven inches, which is much greater than that of any Canaanite walls ever found before on the tell at Beisan. The walls of the fort consist of sun-dried bricks resting upon heavy foundations of undressed stones, usually basalt,

"The migdol was doubtless meant to serve as the last place of refuge in the fort for the commandant and his troops in case the outer fortification walls were breached.

FIND HANDIWORK OF SCRIBE

"Egyptian scribes and craftsmen must also have been quartered in the fort, however, for we have now actually found the handiwork of one of these scribes on a potsherd which was in the corridor west of the commandant's residence. This potsherd bears in black ink and written in the hieratic character the following part of a religious text: 'Seby en Per-Deshrut,' the translation of which is 'The Fiend in the House of the Ruddy Beings.'

"The 'Fiend' is, of course, the god Set or Sutekh, and the 'Ruddy Beings' are his associates, which included the hippopotamus, pig, crocodile and serpent. In passing, it may be mentioned that the hieratic inscription on the potsherd is the first brought to light at Beisan.

"Although the objects found in the migdol were not numerous, yet some of them are of great interest, especially the fragments of a pottery model of a two-horsed chariot, representing the horses, the pole and the yokes.

"Discovery of the chariot model recalls the Biblical passage in the sixteenth verse of the seventeenth chapter of Joshua, in which it is written, 'And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us; and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have chariots of iron, both they who are of Beth-Shean and her towns, and they who are of the valley of Jezreel.'

"Perhaps the most important, and certainly the most quaint, object from the Migdol consists of a small jar in the form of a squatting man, not unlike the Egyptian deities Bes or Ptah-Seker in appearance. Traces of a finger impression of the potter are visible on the top of the head.

"A jar resembling the above, but in the form of a woman, came from the archaic Ishtar Temple in Assur of 2700 B. C., from which temple also came cylindrical cult objects and shrine-houses similar to those found at Bethshan.

"The brick building, which we suppose to have been the residence of the fort commandant, adjoins the northern side of the Migdol and contains a room which we suppose was a lavatory. This is the first place of this description we have found in our excavations in Bethshan."

CHRIST FROM THE BEGINNING

By Richard LeCrone

GOD FORESAW that the end and consummation of His plans and purposes would be worked out through Christ. There has been an endless amount of discussion over this question, but it is not a question to be settled by discussion. It can only be definitely settled by study and thoughtful research. Our answer must come from the only authority upon the subject that cannot be mistaken; the word of God as contained in the Holy Bible. Perhaps the following references from this only recognized authority will give us a little insight as to Christ's place in God's plans.

Let us open our Bible to the first chapter of the Ephesian letter, and see what information we can find. Here we read these words: "According as he (God) hath chosen us in him (Christ) before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love."

Note that it is very clearly stated at what time the choosing occurred, not at the time of Christ's birth, but before the foundation of the world. But let us read on; "Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved."

It will be well for us to get a clear understanding as to whom this verse refers before we go further. In determining the meaning of a passage of Scripture there are three things which we must always keep in mind. We must ask ourselves these questions: Who is speaking? To whom is he speaking? About what is he speaking?

For the answer to these questions we must turn to the opening verse of the book, where we read, "Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus." Who, then, is predestinated (or "marked out", Diag.) unto the adoption by Christ? Answer: The saints and the faithful in Christ Jesus. You, dear brother, need not be told how many of us such a discrimination would include.

But to add to our original problem of Christ's place in God's plan we go to Col. 1:19, where we find these words: "For it pleased the Father that in him (Christ) should all fulness dwell"; or, as the Diaglott states it, "Because in him it was thought good that the Whole FULNESS should dwell". Does this not teach us very distinctly that God knew that the completion of the fullness of His plans should come through Christ? But you ask "Of what importance is all this to me?"

"Come now, and let us reason together". In Gal. 4:7 we read, "Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ." Here we see that we are not heirs of ourselves but through Christ who is the Son of God. Does not our adoption by Christ make us also sons of God and heirs with Him? It is also plain that we could never be heirs except through Christ.

"The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." Here also Christ comes into the plan. And so it always is, and so it must always be. And the more we study the more convinced we become that Christ played a part in God's plans from the beginning, "that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

THE PROMISE TO REBUILD

Sel. by R. H. Judd

ONE OF THE MOST terrifying and destructive natural agents known to men is lava from a volcano in eruption. Mount Etna has been demonstrating this again, in what the Volcano Institute of Italy has pronounced the worst eruption since 1669.

Spiritual lessons inevitably come to mind as one reads the reports of the recent tragedy in Sicily. The Town of Mascali was first destroyed, completely burned and buried by the relentless stream of fiery molten lava. Nunziata then lay in its pathway to the sea, and likewise suffered severely. The "metallic surf," as one paper called it, was relentless and inexorable as the wages of sin. But a sentence in The Associated Press reports stood out with striking suggestiveness to the Christian reader:

The inhabitants of Mascali have been comforted by the promise of the Government to rebuild their town.

No wonder we read that "the spirit of the Sicilians, who have dwelt for generations in the shadows cast by the volcano which has periodically roused itself to deal destruction is undaunted." Mussolini had announced that "all restoration would be at the expense of the Government." The Sicilians knew that their Government, with Mussolini at its head, was able to keep its word and would keep it. Rebuilding was pledged; rebuilding would be accomplished. Who would not be undaunted with a promise and resources like that?

After the fiery destroying lava stream of sin, God promises to rebuild. His Word is filled with such promises. They began almost in the very hour of man's first sin, in the Garden of Eden. They continued through Psalmist and Prophet; they sound like a golden strain of music through Old Testament and New, down through the Gospels, through the Acts and the Epistles, and they are repeated in the closing chapters of the glorious conclusion of the entire Book, in the Apocalypse. If the spirit of the Sicilians is undaunted because of the promises of their Government, how much more so should be the spirit of those who are trusting God and His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, to-day. He can and will rebuild whatever has been destroyed by sin, if only it is brought to Him in full faith in His love and power.

God's chosen people Israel were under the galling yoke of Rome and the Caesars, a people humiliated and in bondage, their national life gone, while their unrecognized Messiah was among them. After His death and resurrection, when a few Israelites were turning to Him as their Savior and Lord and the Gentiles were gladly accepting the Gospel, the momentous Council at Jerusalem heard the thrilling words of prophecy as from the Lord Himself:

"After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might seek after the Lord. . . . Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world."

There was God's promise to rebuild that which Israel's sin had destroyed, and not for the sake of Israel only, but for the sake of the whole world. God has known from the beginning what He alone can do in replacing hopeless destruction with perfect restoration.

In Eden, when the guilty man and woman faced God after wrecking the human race by their sin, and the tempter faced God with them, God uttered His promise to rebuild. The Seed of the woman, He said, should bruise the head of the serpent. Looking down through the ages God predicted that Christ should one day destroy Satan, and should rebuild what Satan and sinful man had destroyed.

When God's own people Judah and Israel had turned away from Him, rejecting His righteousness, and as a consequence had gone into pitiable captivity to heathen nations, God declared through the prophet Jeremiah: "I will cause the captivity of Judah and the captivity of Israel to return, and will build them, as at the first. And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity." Again He spoke through Ezekiel to His people: "The heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the Lord build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate: I the Lord have spoken it, and I will do it."

The Lord Jesus Christ challenged His enemies during His earthly lifetime, as He said, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." We are told of their confusion and mystification: "Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days? But he spake of the temple of his body. When therefore He was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them." The resurrection victory over sin and death is at the heart of God's rebuilding power and program.

The comforting message of assurance through all this is that we have a God and Savior whose power is greater than any destroying power. Sin's volcano of flaming lava is terrible in its devastation. Yet God can say: "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself; but in me is thine help." And it is never too late for God to rebuild if only we will turn to Him in surrender and faith. Here are His invitation and His assurance: "Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God. . . . And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten . . . and my people shall never be ashamed."

PETER'S WARNING

By M. A. Woodward

THE WARNING given Peter might fit into many of our lives because we are trusting in ourselves instead of asking strength of our heavenly Father. Christ took such pains to warn Peter and we wonder how he could have failed Him so completely. But we ask ourselves the question, would we have done better? The whole lesson He gave them that day is so full of promise and love. Let us follow it for a little.

The twelve apostles had sat down with Jesus to eat the passover supper. While they were at the table, Jesus said, "Behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table." All looked up and began to ask, "Lord is it I?" Judas knew, for he had just come from making the bargain with the chief priest to deliver the Christ to them. He did not follow the rest to the garden of prayer. But as Christ and the eleven walked on He gave them this beautiful sermon, "Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations. And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." And Jesus turned and spoke directly to Peter, "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath desired to have you that he may sift you as wheat: but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren."

Did this anger Peter? Cannot you almost hear him say, "Why, Master, should you think that of me? Don't you know how I love you? I would go to prison or to death for you." But Jesus knew Peter much better than he knew himself. He knew that Peter was loving the Creature more than the Creator. He was loving the works he had seen Him do, instead of the work of salvation He was sent to perform. How His answer must have stung Peter to the heart! "I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me."

They walked on as they talked until they reached the mount of Olives. He warned the disciples to pray, and choosing three, Peter was one, they went on a few feet and He took His heartache to His Father in prayer. "Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." The disciples were no comfort to Him for they had fallen asleep, but the Father knew to what extremity His Son had gone, and sent an angel to strengthen Him. Three times He repeated this prayer, and while His face was still wet with the sweat of His agony, Judas appeared with his murderous mob to take Him to His death.

Where was Peter? Following afar off, He began to sense the trying condition his Master was in and that it would implicate him if he were too near, for that crowd was looking for any who were in sympathy with the Christ. Some one saw him and said, "Ha! Ha! you were with that Man, weren't you?" Peter answered, "No I do not know Him." Another came and said, "Thou art one of them." Peter said, "Man, I am not." The third came saying, "Of a truth this fellow also was with him: for he is a Galilaean. And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. . . . And the Lord turned, and looked on Peter." And Peter remembered what the Lord had told him, and went away where he could be alone while he wept out his sorrow and shame. Will Christ's prayer for Peter be answered? Yes! for He never prayed in vain. Peter had already started to repent, and repentance must come before conversion. A change had to come to Peter before he could help his weak brothers or strengthen them in their efforts to preach the gospel. He had three days before him to think over his life and his awful crime, his denial of the Son of God. Would he ever be forgiven? Could Christ or God ever love him again? He was soon to know. Christ was so careful when He left the message with the angel to say, "Go tell my disciples, and Peter, I go before them into Galilee." How Peter's heart must have leaped for joy when he heard those words! "He has forgiven me, I will go to Him!" He needed no more to make him realize what a merciful, loving Savior God had sent into this world.

Christ had much to say to those disciples before He should go to the Father. Forty blissful days He walked with them and taught them and one day while He was eating a piece of broiled fish and honeycomb He said to them, "Behold I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." He got up and they followed Him once more to Bethany, and lifting up His hands He blessed them, and while He was blessing them He was parted from them. He ascended to His Father, and the disciples returned to Jerusalem and tarried there waiting for the day of Pentecost to come, when they were to receive the Holy Spirit's power, which would prepare them to become "fishers of men."

Peter did not forget what the Master had said to him. "When thou art converted, strengthen the brethren." As soon as he could be heard above the noise, on that eventful day, he began the most wonderful sermon perhaps that was ever preached, for three thousand heard and believed, and his text was, "Jesus and the Resurrection." The crowd was so electrified that they cried out, "Men and brethren what shall we do?" Peter said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." He had caught them with Christ's own text to Peter, "When thou art converted." They were converted; they had turned to God. Peter could strengthen the brethren in no better way than to earnestly preach the message of salvation to bring recruits into the body of believers, and he could not touch men's hearts until his own had been filled and moved by the power of the Holy Spirit.

Our churches would be built up, and many more new converts made if all our ministers were deeply filled with the glad, joyful message of spirit-filled salvation. To be fishers of men, we must be filled with the blessed message ourselves, we must be converted. Peter had to have his sad experiences to get his egotism taken out of him, and a mind of love and humility given in its place. No one knew better than Jesus just how to perform the miracle and make just the man who could do the work so necessary to be done.

Let us not complain or become discouraged if we have to learn some severe lessons to perfect us for God's work. "Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." 1 Thess. 5:17-18.

GOD'S PURPOSE AND PLAN FROM THE BEGINNING

By Harvey Krogh

GOD FORESAW all things from the beginning to the end. He had His work planned just as an architect has all of his work planned before he builds a structure. The architect foresees conditions that he will have to meet. God foresaw conditions also and He made His plan to cover them completely.

I do not think that God planned the life of each individual, nor did He foreordain each act in his life. God let man choose for himself, good or evil. God made an outline that was to be filled as time went on. For example: in the beginning of the nation in which we live a constitution was drawn up. This document provides for a president, cabinet members and a congress. It did not say that Hoover would be our president in 1929, nor did it have the names of the congressmen that are to work with this president. It only provided that certain persons would fill these offices.

I believe God's plan is of the same nature. He did not foreordain or predestinate each person's position or action but rather He foresaw that there would be persons to fill the suggested offices. We read in Ephesians 4:11, "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers."

In Paul's first epistle to the Ephesian brethren we read that we have been predestinated by God unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ. This means that it was in God's plan that a class of people should be picked out that pleased Him and through the shed blood of Christ they are to be saved. We read in Eph. 1:9-11, "Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself: that in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him: in whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will."

In the 11th chapter of the Roman letter the 34th and 35th verses, we read: "For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again?" This seems to imply very strongly that God is His own Counsellor and is all-mighty.

Again we read in Isa. 46:11, the Lord speaking: "Calling a ravenous bird from the east, the man that executeth my counsel from a far country: yea I have spoken it, I will also bring it to pass: I have purposed it, I will also do it". In 2 Timothy 1:9 we find these words: "Who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began." We note in this verse that it was God's purpose before the world began that the righteous are to be saved. Act 15:18. "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world." If God knew all of His works from the beginning of the world He had them planned from the beginning of the world.

I think Romans 11:11 brings out the whole theme. "I say then, Have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy." God did not compel Israel to fall but by Israel's fall He gave salvation to the Gentiles. Man was not compelled to choose evil but as that is what he chose God provided a way that man might rise through Christ, this being "the eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord."

A FEW SUGGESTIONS FOR THE PEW

By N. H. Geiselman

COME EARLY TO CHURCH. Nothing disturbs a minister more than to have you come late, frippling along on your way to a pew and slopping yourself down as though you were the last one to enter an excursion train.

Come early with the spirit of prayer and reverence for the house of God, and as you enter the vestry or vestibule, breathe a silent prayer in behalf of the service, especially for the minister who shall break to you the Bread of Life.

As you take your seat, bow your head in a moment's prayer for yourself, asking God that you may be in an attitude before Him to receive His Word. Ask Him to help you that no thoughts can pass before your mental vision that would have a tendency to divert your mind from this sacred hour.

If the minister has preached according to God's Word and has pronounced his final benediction to the service, stand but for a moment and in your heart say, "So may it be, O Lord, according to Thy Word."

After this moment of silent prayer, what a happy greeting it would be to those whose hearts have been touched by this service and whose lives have been blended by the Spirit of our God,

"AS THY DAYS, SO SHALL THY STRENGTH BE."—DEUT. 33:25.

LIFE WOULD be a rather monotonous game were it not for a certain commandment God gave during the first days of creation—"Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and years".

How well our heavenly Father knew His work! Within the next few days He created man, and man has since lived by those signs, and seasons, and days, and years into which God broke up time in the beginning.

Except for this division of time life would be almost unbearable to us. Human nature is so constituted that its endurance is limited, and were the whole experience of our allotted threescore years and ten to descend on us at once, we would be overcome with the weight of it all. We do sometimes try in a self-sufficient way to work out the destinies of our own lives, but God's promise to the tribes of Israel was this: "As thy days, so shall thy strength be." Years later, in the time of Christ's ministry, we find Him bringing the same teaching to His followers as Moses had given to his: "Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

The days for man are filled with labor and trial. There are worries and problems and hardships that are almost too much for our small strength, but always following the day comes the night with its darkness, its stillness—its peace. It brings rest to the tired subjects of God's creation, and man awakes at dawn to face the new day with fresh strength in his limbs and renewed courage and inspiration within his breast.

Yes, it is a wonderful thing that God broke our time into days and years for us. Each new season of the year brings its own pleasures and hopes to the hearts of men. Every advent of spring is welcomed with a joy that is reborn within us at the awakening of all nature to new life. Summer brings its own happy days, and when fall and winter come in turn, with gladness we adapt ourselves to the changes they bring because they, also, put new interest and new zeal into living.

And so as we come to the close of the division of time called 1928, it is the new year which holds out to us many bright prospects and beckons us to press forward and to delve deeply into its unlimited store of treasures.

1929 will mark a new division of life for each of us, but what its months may hold we cannot foresee any more than we can tell what tomorrow may bring forth. The very uncertainty of it makes life the interesting drama that it is. The scenes are always changing, never twice the same.

As we enter into the change from the old year to the new, even though we cannot altogether mark out the course of our lives, the manner in which we meet its emergencies and learn its lessons determines largely what the record of the year will be. It is ours to make the new year one of constant growth in "the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ".

We are given a day of this new year at a time, and so let us live. If at the close of each day we can realize even one little forward step taken, the year will take care of itself.

There are certain problems in life for each one of us which, if we had to face as a whole, would be almost overwhelming. It is possible for us, however, each morning to say "This is just one day, and I can face my problem for these few hours and be true." The night of rest will then refresh us and another dawn will find us ready to meet a fresh, new day. Thus the days themselves will be gratifying as they pass, and soon a week, a month, a year,—a year of victory will be ours.

Our sincere prayer is that the New Year may hold in store for each of us the joy of faithful Christian service and true devotion to our Leader throughout the three hundred sixty-five days of 1929.

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER

HAVE YOU ever heard of "The Sermon on the Mount"? You may read it in Matthew 5, 6, 7. And who was the minister that delivered this sermon? Jesus. Why named "on the mount"? Because when the crowds followed Jesus "he went up into the mount and when he was set, his disciples came unto him" and "he taught them".

He told them how to live, what they should do, and what they should not do if they were to be Christians. He taught them how to pray and about God and His loving care. It was through Jesus and His teaching that we have learned much about God. Jesus always gave God the credit for every word He uttered, and every deed He performed. He said, "The word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me," and "I came . . . not to do mine own will but the will of him that sent me." Now Jesus went about doing good; so good must be God's will—love, kindness and mercy.

In this sermon on the mount Jesus tells His listeners that they must not worry about what they should eat, or drink, or wear. He asks, "Is not the life more than meat and the body than raiment?"

He calls their attention to the birds "for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" Yes, if God looks after the birds will He not look after His children? And we are His children too, like these listening disciples.

In another place it says, "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows."

Jesus asked who could make his body taller by taking thought? And why take thought about clothing? In the words of this lesson, "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

Solomon was surrounded with so much splendor that we can scarcely comprehend his magnificence.

"Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, (Does that mean our wheat, rye, etc?) shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

"Therefore," says Jesus, "take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Where-withal shall we be clothed? . . . For your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Take therefore no thought for the morrow."

That does not mean we should sit down and not work or try to supply our needs; but we must not be too busy trying to accumulate wealth or having a "good time" that we do not think of God and the things concerning God. Jesus said, "No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other."

How can we help loving God when He shows so much love for us? We are urged to cast all our cares upon Him. We may not receive everything we want, but surely will receive what we need—there will always be a way.

How much confidence we should gain from this lesson! How confidently we should sing,

"I sing because I'm happy
I sing because I'm free
His eye is on the sparrow
So I'm sure He watches me."

MEMORY FACTS

We must think of God as our loving Father.
He will supply our needs.
We must serve Him.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

SIN

Definition. "Sin is the transgression of the law."—1 John 3:4. Sin is transgression in any manner of any one of God's laws. It may be failure to do; it may be an act of overdoing; it may be a wrongdoing: it is transgression in any form.

Whence? "By one man sin entered into the world."—Rom. 5:12. Man broke God's law. God at once adapted His ways to cope with sin. The tree of life was removed and no man has its protection, or any sustenance therefrom. Sin's consequences have fallen upon all mankind.

Who? "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God."—Rom. 3:23. "Every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death."—James 1:14, 15.

Just as Adam transgressed, even so does each and every individual transgress some of God's laws. Therefore none is righteous, no not one.

What? Sin is both an act and a condition. The act having been performed the condition exists. Not the act but the resultant condition is transmitted through ages and through generations. Often the act of sin in the parent creates a condition of mental or physical malformation in the child. Here the child inherits the condition of sin resultant from ancestry.

Again, the fact of sin necessitated that God change some of His workings. Instead of maintaining the earth and its fullness, good and very good, Gen. 1:31, He gave place to sin thus permitting different conditions to exist throughout the ages of the curse. In this sense every generation inherits sin and in this sense again all are in sin and all are sin.

Results. "Death (came) by sin."—Rom. 5:5. "Sin . . . bringeth forth death."—James 1:15. The result of sin was certain and definite upon the whole race of man. The sustaining provision of life having been removed, death necessarily follows. Thus through the sin of one man death came upon all.

Not only death, the great and ultimate result of sin, is upon all mankind, but so also are all of the lesser results. He who "was good" was by sin made subject to all forms of sorrow, pain, sickness, subject to all of the ills that man has fallen heir to as a result of breaking God's laws. Every ill of man, every adverse condition can be properly traced to the transgression of God's law.

Duration. God has limited the duration of sin. Christ will soon come "the second time without sin unto salvation". Under His rule, guidance and strength sin will be put away. Heb. 9:26. There shall be "no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."—Rev. 21:4. "There shall be no more curse."—Rev. 22:3. "He that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new."—Rev. 21:5.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"If perchance we should say, "Sin, we have not," ourselves we deceive and the truth in us is not. If perchance we be confessing our sins, faithful is he and righteous, that he should forgive us (our) sins, and purify us from every unrighteous deed."—1 John 1:8, 9, Roth.

When one makes claim that by virtue of the cleansing power of the blood of Christ he has become perfectly purified from all the inclinations and workings of sin, he is deceiving himself and the truth of God's Word, which declares the contrary, is not found in him. But if, under the humbling sense of our weakness and imperfections, we acknowledge and in faith confess our shortcomings, then Christ who through His death became our sin covering, will be faithful to forgive all our sins.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Dreaded Disease. A smile played across the doctor's face as he looked into the earnest eyes of the one who sat opposite him. How well he remembered the dread disease which had fastened itself upon her. A lingering, painful death was certain unless something could be done. But he had met the crisis, removed her peril, and now in radiant health she had come to express her simple thanks.

More dreadful than any disease is sin. Illustrated by leprosy which starts in such a small, unnoticed way but dooms the life of its victim, sin stands as man's worst enemy. Only one Physician understands the disease and can remove it.

How thankful we should be for the opportunity of coming to Him for cleansing! How full will be our appreciation when we realize that He has removed our dreaded enemy, and given us life, radiant and full!—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: God's Wisdom and Sin.

Sin is transgression of law and man suffers for every transgression. Man transgresses because God's law is perfect and man is imperfect. Why should a God, who is all wise and all loving give a law representing perfection to imperfect man, knowing he could not live up to it and would therefore suffer?

The answer is found in God's purpose for man. He has purposed that man shall be in His own image and likeness which is man's perfection. To enter this perfection man must become conscious of it and desire it; hence the giving of God's law for man, perfected to imperfect man and consequent transgression and suffering.

The first law God ever gave to man was given in accordance with this principle. The command not to partake of good and evil was given with man perfected in mind. This law can be fulfilled by man only after he has learned and desires to choose the good and eschew the evil.

The first man to learn this lesson, and learn it without partaking of evil through transgression, was Jesus not Adam to whom it was given personally. Jesus alone could live up to it. Perfection comes through suffering, at least perfection came to Jesus in this way. Through His sympathetic touch with the sufferings of all men from Adam to Himself and through His own personal sufferings He knew the wisdom of and had the desire to choose the good and eschew the evil. Adam, when the law was given, had had no least experience with suffering.

God made no blunder when He gave a perfect law to an imperfect man. The giving has evolved one perfect Man, and through Him we too may reach the same perfection in God's image and likeness.—A. K.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Sin: define; status of God's law—perfect or imperfect? Status of man as a physical creation—a finished or an unfinished work of God's hand. Discern wisdom and love in the giving of a perfect law to imperfect man. What one Man demonstrated this wisdom and love? How will it be demonstrated in others?—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

ILLINOIS

Sister M. A. Woodward has been having a serious attack of the prevailing "flu" the past week, but is being comfortably cared for at the home of Sister Whitehead, 5439 Ohio St., Chicago.

The sad word has reached us of the death of Sister Mattie Matthews, Fonthill, Ontario, on Christmas morning. Funeral was held on Friday, the 28th.

Several churches report splendid Christmas programs by the children and young people. The Oregon and Dixon, Illinois, churches were no exceptions.

Bro. and Sr. Wm. C. McGraw were visited over Christmas by Mrs. McGraw's brother, Frances VeNard and family, of Macomb, Illinois.

Sister Ethel Austin, student at Chicago University, has been spending part of the Christmas holidays with relatives and friends in Oregon.

Our printer, Bro. McGraw, is one of those who has been having a struggle with the flu for several days past.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay, who has been seriously ill for so long, appears to be gradually but steadily improving. He is able to sit up a while each day, and food tastes good to him, —which is a very natural sign.

Bro. Jas. A. Patrick, of Ashland, O., who has been filling the pulpit at Fonthill and Niagara Falls since early in November spent Christmas and the holidays at home with his family.

Bro. Jas. A. Patrick is very busy at Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y. Since Bro. Marsh moved from this section Bro. Patrick has been acting as temporary pastor.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

The attendance at our Christmas program was greater than we expected and the program was unusually good. All seemed to be at their best.

Many nice gifts were presented to friends, but the best of all was the beautiful communion set presented to the church by the Bereans. The class here have done well, and we are thankful to them for this very useful gift and wish them the very best in life. Many useful gifts were presented to our pastor and his wife. Among the best were two beautiful floor coverings presented by Srs. Appleby and Ervy.

MRS. FRAZIER F. SUMMERS

On December 12, 1928, following a bedfast sickness of many months, Flora, beloved wife of Frazier F. Summers, died at the family home of twenty years—46 Yates St., St. Catharines, Ontario. She was the last of a family of three that were born to Moses and Maria Lonsberry. Deceased was born September 7, 1854, near Fonthill. For a quarter of a century she, with her husband, had been a member of the Church of God at Fonthill, Ontario.

Sr. Summers was a most devoted wife and mother and, to the last, was molded and directed by her faith in God. She fell asleep with a firm faith in the soon coming Savior to vanquish sin, raise the dead and enter upon the great work of restoring the earth to its Edenic beauty—abloom with righteousness of the standard that God Himself has set.

Besides a host of friends and many other relatives, her death is mourned by her husband; two daughters Miss Ethel, at home and Mrs. Frank Murphy, but few doors distant; two grandsons and a granddaughter.

ELMER ELLSWORTH DENISON

Mr. Elmer Ellsworth Denison was born in Nininger, Minn., October 23, 1860 and died at home December 13, 1928, at a little past sixty-eight years of age. When he was very young the family moved to Sank Center, where they lived only a few years. When twelve years of age, Elmer was taken with the family to Minnesota Falls where he grew to manhood. He lived several years near Hastings, Minn., and near Granite Falls four years. In 1901 he moved to Glendorado where he remained until his death.

On Nov. 20, 1901 he married Mrs. Sarah Hanson (nee Broughton). To this union was born one daughter, Mrs. Clara Stone. Besides his wife and daughter he is survived by two step children, Maybelle Hanson of Chicago and Elmer Hanson at home; four brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer on Monday afternoon from the M. E. Church at Glendorado. The little church was crowded to full capacity, showing that Mr. Denison's neighbors were appreciative of the life he had spent with them.

May it be God's blessing upon the bereaved to take a new courage, and looking through the tears of sorrow see in the Christian life the rainbow of hope.

ARTHUR W. COSER

Arthur W. Coser was born on July 5, 1895, at Eden Valley, Minn. During the World War he served a period of twelve months. On Sept. 1st, 1920 he was married to Lillian V. Pinch. She and the three little girls, Marilyn, Helen, and Madelon survive him.

The deceased was stricken one year ago Dec. 1st with perforated gastric ulcer. He never fully recovered from an operation at that time, and many days he bore with Christian patience the pain and suffering caused by complications that followed. Death came on Dec. 16, while Mr. Coser was under treatment at the U. S. Veterans' Hospital in Minneapolis, where he had been since July 30.

Those who mourn his death besides Mrs. Coser and the three daughters, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coser; one brother, Frank S., Jr.; and two sisters, Mrs. Fay Jones, and Miss Alene; all of near Eden Valley.

Funeral services were conducted, Wednesday, Dec. 19 by the writer from the home and the Church of God. Words of hope were given the bereaved from Rom. 8:35-39, and also the coming call to resurrection and immortality. May it be God's pleasure to bless both the deceased and remaining family in His soon coming kingdom.

THE CHRISTIAN'S LIGHT

By Mrs. Richard Skeels

THE OLD YEAR is passing. The New Year will soon be here. Let us turn on the light and look into our hearts. This is a good time to sit down and take a survey of ourselves. Do not think of the perplexing trifles that annoy us. Let us bid them depart for it is written that the morrow will take care of itself. Anyway why should we worry about these things when we have such a divine promise? Why should we court care until it becomes a fixed habit? Why should we look on the dark side of life? Our minds should not be full of doubts and misgivings, but bright with the hope and promises that God has given His children.

So let us turn from life's perplexities, from our driving impulses, from worldly desires and our failings to more inspiring thoughts. Jesus said, "I am the light of the world." He is the Source of our spiritual light. When He walked and talked while on earth, He restored the natural light to the blind, a striking symbol of the spiritual light and illumination that He gives to those who believe on Him. We illuminate our homes by turning on the electric light from its never failing source. Let us turn on the spiritual light that others may see and follow, and that we too may look into our own hearts in this undimmed light and search out its dark corners. Are we true to the trust He left us? Are we trying to master difficulties which seem to be unsurmountable, in the darkness?

O youth is a daring rider, yet he needs the light at every leap of his swift charger to the end "that his faults and errors may seem like stepping stones which lead to knowledge of the truth and make him value virtue" and walking in this light, life is changed from the arid waste into a blooming garden. The world is in urgent need of torch bearers to blaze the way to a better understanding of the gospel of Christ, a clearer conception of love, truth and honor still living in the hearts of brave men and women. These torch bearers should hold this glorious light high in the darkness and among the frowning mobs of doubters and disbelievers turn on the light in unexpected places, sending the illumination of His spirit round about them that they may know Him, and ever be conscious of Him and His love.

"If the rite of circumcision was instituted in order that the individual might recognize life to be GOD'S supreme gift, then surely it was meant to teach also that everything else was in GOD'S power to give, and that 'no good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly.'" THE SURE WORD OF GOD

When men our names and faith revile,
And cover with contempt and guile,
When they as evil cast us forth,
And count us as the vile of earth;
We know of One who looks and loves.
What matter, then, if God approves?
They, from their churches may expel,
And e'en forbid us more to dwell
In their communion; may eject;
And cease to treat us with respect;
Our Father's hand is our defense!
And none shall ever pluck us thence.
They may no longer us esteem,
May heap upon us scorn and shame;
We may become to them as fools,
So much that warmest friendship cools.
Earth's dearest ones may cease to love—
Not so those heavenly friends above.
Oh, let us, then, with firmness stand,
A zealous true and faithful band;
Undaunted by the rage of men,
We shall a crown and kingdom gain.

AT THE FEET OF JESUS

I can do, if we cannot do anything else, for someone near to us possessed with an evil spirit that makes them go and do wrong, is to bring them to His feet.

Not long ago a lady said to me, "Do you know anything about how to solve the problem of a fifteen-year-old girl? If so, I wish you would tell me." She was a Christian woman; still, her girl of that age was uncontrollable.

The old-time restraint is gone. New conditions have arisen. This is a brand-new world to that of twenty-five years ago, and many parents do not know what to do with their children. Schools are pulling them away, and even the churches do sometimes. You cannot hold them. Now, when we do not know what to do we can do what this woman did—we can fall at Jesus' feet and beseech Him. He will solve every problem, and in faith let us expect that He will do the work.

This woman at Jesus' feet had a daughter somewhere possessed of an evil spirit with nothing more that she could do. She believed there was something that the Lord could do, and though she had no claim upon Him as a daughter of Abraham, she fell at His feet with such faith that she moved the Christ of God and brought blessing.

By-and-by when the Lord comes and we are gathered in, if we have crowns given us of some kind, we will take them off and cast them at His feet—those feet that walked up and down the hills and plains of Palestine long ago, that were nailed to the cross, those feet that will press the snowy clouds when He comes ere long. Let us learn to sit at His feet for salvation, for rest, instruction and consolation, thanksgiving, and deliverance in any sphere that we may need.

GOOD TIDINGS

By Rufus A. Curtis

THE SHEPHERDS of Judea, who were "keeping watch over their flock by night" had a celestial visitor, who to banish their fears, for "they were sore afraid," at the marvelous sight, said unto them, "Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Luke 2:8-14. After witnessing "the glory of the Lord," that shone round about them, and hearing such joyful news, "the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them." Luke 2:20. As the tidings are "good", and the joy "great", should not our hearts "burn within us" to have some part, however humble, in speeding it forth, "to all people," to whom it is destined to cheer and bless? Luke 24:32; Mark 5:19.

"Good tidings" and "the gospel," are synonymous terms. What the prophet Isaiah terms "good tidings," Jesus terms "the gospel." Isa. 61:1; Luke 4:18, 19. Joyful indeed is the message of him who declares God's "word faithfully." Jer. 23:25-32; Isa. 8:20. "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth." Isa. 52:7; Rom. 10:15. "The goodness of God" is manifested in the gift of "His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." Rom. 2:4; 5:8; 2 Pet. 3:9; John 3:14-17. "He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." 1 John 4:8-11.

God's love, mercy, and justice, are all vindicated, in His dealings with Adam's race, from "the garden of Eden," to the consummation of His purposes, when paradise shall have been restored, sin destroyed, the saints crowned, Christ enthroned, and the earth itself

"changed," and made "new," and filled with God's glory! Gen. 2:15; Eph. 3:11, 17-19; Rev. 2:7; 21:1-5; 22:1-3; Heb. 9:26; Dan. 7:13, 14, 18, 27; Psa. 102:25, 26; Heb. 1:10-12; Num. 14:21. What a source of gladness, is the statement of the Bible, "He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity just and right is he." Deut. 32:4.

Being a just and merciful God, He will not set aside some portion of His vast universe for the segregation and infliction of "endless misery", upon any impenitent creatures He has made. Isa. 45:21. Of all the slanders that were ever uttered against "the God of love and peace," the theory of "endless misery" of a vast portion of the human race, who die impenitent, takes the lead. 2 Cor. 13:11. Such teaching is a fruitful source of infidelity; for the adherents of such inhuman cruelty cannot give an affirmative answer to the question "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" Gen. 18:25; Rom. 3:5, 6; Job 8:3, 20. It is not "good tidings," as it does not breathe forth "good will toward men." The Bible doctrine of future retribution, for the incorrigibly wicked, does not cause a revulsion of feeling toward the thoughts expressed by the three little monosyllables, so pregnant with meaning, "God is love." When we grasp the thought, that God's "everlasting punishment," upon those whom His love cannot reclaim, will consist in "everlasting destruction," and not in endless life in misery, we can then say, from the depths of our heart, without any mental reservations whatever, "God is love." Matt. 25:46; 2 Thess. 1:9, 10; Psa. 37:8-11; Prov. 2:20-22; Obad. 16. Any persons who reject God's offers of mercy, and judge themselves, by their willful acts, "unworthy of everlasting life," will not share in that life, with its "fulness of joy," and "pleasures forevermore." Isa. 55:6, 7; Acts 13:46; Psa. 16:11; 36:7-9; Isa. 35:10; 51:11. As only "righteous" characters will ever go into "life," qualified by the adjective "eternal," the other class, being deprived of it, must necessarily reap "the wages of sin," which is "death." Matt. 25:46; Rom. 6:23; James 1:15.

THOUGHT AND CHARACTER

"Eat thou not the bread of him that hath an evil eye, neither desire thou his dainty meats:

"For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he: Eat and drink, saith he to thee; but his heart is not with thee." Prov. 23:6, 7.

THE CHARACTER of a man is manifested by the things which he does in life. Actions are the fruits of thought. Therefore a man's character is wholly the product of the thoughts which pass through his mind.

An impure act is never committed by one who has not thought an impure thought. A dishonest deed is never performed by one who has not thought dishonest thoughts.

Even impulsive acts, things which one does on the spur of the moment, are bound to follow the path of some thought which has previously passed through the mind. How true, then, is the well known expression based on the scripture quoted at the head of this editorial, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

An individual cannot be held responsible for the circumstances under which he was born, or for surroundings in infancy, but the person who has reached the days of mature thought and judgment can choose his own environment and associations.

An individual may also choose his own thoughts. If he wishes to become one who is clean and noble in actions he can do so by thinking clean and noble thoughts and barring all others from his mind.

If he wishes to become one kind and gentle to others, and therefore loved by them, he may do so by thinking kind thoughts of others, dwelling upon their good points, minimizing their shortcomings and thinking of ways in which he can make them happy. The extent to which one can shape his own place in the world and in the hearts of his fellow man is amazing.

God gave us minds with which to think, and ordained that our character should be determined by the thoughts of our minds. What a wonderful and powerful gift of the Father! How greatly we fail to make proper use of it!

—F. E. S.

To decide what you want, or want to become, is more than half the battle. When you know definitely what you want you can center your thoughts on the best means for obtaining; when you know what you wish to become you can focus your thoughts on ways of attaining the end.—F. E. S.

PURITY

AS WE SIT now looking out the window at the softly falling snow we are impressed with its whiteness, its softness, its purity. So gently each flake descends to take its place among the millions of others which make up the clean, white covering for mother earth.

Spread over with this clean blanket the humble spots of earth look just as beautiful as others. What a covering purity is! How quickly one fails to observe the poverty of another if that other's life is crowned with purity!

But the snow is so easily soiled. Left alone it will lie for weeks in its flaky whiteness, but man walks upon it and it is crushed to an unlovely mass and soiled. Autos drive upon it and leave it crushed and soiled with oil and gas fumes. It is soon mixed with the earth, and man can never restore it to its former state.

How similar to character! The purity and beauty of the sweet young girl or boy can last into and through mature life if kept unsoiled by sin. All too frequently, though, man selfishly, ruthlessly steps upon this purity, crushing it to an unlovely mass. What a responsibility for man to destroy a purity and an innocence which he can never, under any circumstances, restore!

There is, however, one consolation for the one whose purity has been soiled. The sun can melt the soiled snow and vaporize it. God can draw it to His heavens, and filtered through the process it can fall again as pure flakes of snow. Likewise God can, through His Son, melt the heart of one who has sinned and draw the person to Himself through a process that will purify and cleanse.

A MAGNOLIA BLOSSOM

HAVE YOU ever seen a genuine magnolia blossom? Not the flowers that grow on small trees and shrubs in the north and often called by that name, but the real magnolia which grows on a giant tree of the forest in the far south. It is a rare sight to one who has never seen one. It is an inspiring sight even to those familiar therewith.

The blossoms are large, without a trace of color to its petals. The soft, creamy whiteness of the large, velvety petals is one of nature's outstanding demonstrations of purity. And the sweet aroma that fills the air is an inspiration to all around.

But touch one of those petals with your human fingers and immediately the purity is gone, and an ugly dark spot is left. What a lesson is thus taught in nature of the ease with which cleanliness and purity may be destroyed!

PEACE AND WAR

WE CANNOT RECALL a time in our life's experience when the nations of the world were more literally at peace with each other than they are to-day. The daily papers have no progress of armies to chronicle even between the little nations.

Also, we are unable to remember a time when people as a whole were more prosperous than they are now. The year 1928 has gone on record as one of the most prosperous years in American history, and 1929 has opened with brilliant prospects.

These are facts which one can see with his eye as he travels the country over, and which he can observe daily as he reads the newspapers and magazines. How significant, then, are the numerous articles and statements which one finds coming from prominent people relative to war!

When Lloyd George and Mussolini speak freely of impending world conflicts, and other national leaders show that they realize the same dangers hanging overhead, it is time to meditate. These men do not base their statements on prophecies of the Bible, but on observation, and on feeling the pulse of the world.

The Bible student turns to the good Book with renewed confidence. Its predictions are being literally unfolded and fulfilled before the eyes.

It is a privilege to live in such an age! Are we living worthy of the privilege?—F. E. S.

JESUS PREDICTS OUR DAY

AND AS HE SAT upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world (age)?

“And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you. For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many. And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

“For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. All these are the beginning of sorrows.”—Matt. 24:3-8.

MINISTERIAL LIST

THE LIST of ministers published in the Herald of December 18 contains so many mistakes that we have decided to republish it entire. Most of these errors were due to the fact that at the time of publishing the office was unable to locate a copy of the list published in 1927, and had to revert to the list of 1926. We regret the incorrectness and offer apologies to those who were overlooked. We trust that the present list will be found correct. Other ministers wishing to be listed, so as to use the listing in applying for railroad rates as well as other advantages, may apply through their state conferences or direct to the General Conference.

"EXCEPT A MAN BE BORN FROM ABOVE." WHEN?

John 3:1-9

By Alexander C. Biggs

TO THE DEVOUT who are intensely interested and very desirous of living again in the near coming dispensation, and to be found present with the Lord Jesus participating with Him when He cometh into His kingdom, the above recorded verses by the loving Apostle John will be found of marvelous concern as to their meaning, especially as they are words of our Lord spoken upon an occasion when He was teaching a subject of the weightiest importance to all believers. To them His words may surely be depended upon as teaching wonderful truths to be understood, but not always by the minds of man unless animated by the Spirit of God.

It has been recorded by Luke the disciple for our observance, that Jesus when among them on one occasion gave them this wonderful consolation, "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God: but to others in parables; that seeing they might not see, and hearing they might not understand."

Under the Mosaic dispensation there was certainly a choice by our heavenly Father of certain men both of high and low degree who were of the commonwealth of Israel to perform His work and to do His bidding during that age. The prophet Amos wrote "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets" who were certainly inspired and led by the Spirit of God.

Even under the new covenant dispensation the will of the Lord is still progressing "being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will" even to extending the privilege of his grace in a wide open door to the Gentiles, which had not previously existed, because the law covenant was given to Israel only, and which of itself was but a "shadow of good things to come" but now since Pentecost through a new covenant ratified by the blood of Christ all nations both Jew and Gentiles may be partakers of all the good things promised to Abraham and His seed, the Lord Jesus Christ.

In considering the subject of John 3:1-9, we may remember that Jesus was preaching to the Jews only during the last days of the law covenant which evidently was a transition or preparation period of three years and a half from the law covenant to the new covenant. This would appear from the words of the Master to the Pharisees, "The law and the prophets were until John, since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth toward it" (Diag.). But the question might occur, did the Master preach the doctrines of the new covenant when He was here among men? To answer this question let us quietly meditate on the following scriptures: Matt. 5 to 8 the "sermon on the mount"; John 3:1-9; John 4:10-14; John 7:37-39; John 14:16-26. All these readings, with very many more if space would permit, indicate that this new covenant which has the promise of the gift of the Holy Spirit, was the main theme of His teaching. How could it be otherwise knowing that He was as Mediator, to be the "slain Lamb" of the covenant, and that every action of His life, and the revolting manner of His death, were absolutely necessary in order that this covenant might come into operation?

The first intimation we have as to the proceedings of our Father in heaven, in the consummation of His promised blessing to all nations, we find recorded in Joel 2:28-32, 800 years B. C. And the same was endorsed by the Apostle Peter as having come to pass on the day of Pentecost.

This covenant with more information and glorious detail comes to us through the prophet Jeremiah, 31:31-34, some 606 years B. C., and to those who are familiar with it, or even have some slight knowledge of it, they will find it a subject most intensely interesting, as well as beneficial, this new covenant that God promised to make with the house of Israel, and the house of Judah, and which true to His munificent promise He has since established through the Mediator of the covenant even Jesus the Anointed.

God in long time past has made covenants with men which form the basis of all God's dealings with them. They are the groundwork of the great spiritual structure which the Lord is now building. The Apostle Paul declared in reference to this structure that "God dwelleth not in temples made with hands." These covenants are thus fundamental to all His purposes, therefore to deny, to misplace, or to misinterpret any of His covenants which He has caused to be ratified by the shedding of blood, is fatal to salvation, for without them we have no sure resting place.

As there are many people who do not believe that this new covenant is operating in this dispensation, and that it will not come into being until the Lord returns it will be necessary to refer to "the law of the testimony" as a convincing proof that it actually came into force at Pentecost, and this very soon after Jesus had presented Himself at the throne of His Father in heaven, who then fulfilled His promise to Jesus (Luke 24:49; Acts 2:33; Gal. 3:14; Eph. 1:13) as Mediator of the covenant, by giving Him the power of bestowing the Holy Spirit upon His ecclesia, which He shed forth that day, Pentecost.

By an analysis of this covenant of Jer. 31, there are six stipulations which we will consider as having come to pass in fulfillment, the conditions of which are quite convincing to the believer "that now is the accepted time, that now is the day of salvation" under the new covenant, by the grace of our heavenly Father through our Lord Jesus Christ.

ALL STIPULATIONS OF THE COVENANT FULFILLED

(1) A new covenant to be made with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah. Acts 2:14; Acts 2:22; Acts 2:36; Acts 5:31, 32.

(2) This covenant not according to the covenant made with Israel at Mt. Sinai. 2 Cor. 3:5-11; Heb. 10:15-20; 2 Cor. 1:22; John 3:5-6; John 1:33; John 1:12-13. This is a spiritual covenant.

(3) This covenant to be made "after those days"; i. e., the law covenant. Pentecost being 50 days from the passover was an anniversary of the law covenant which then terminated, being nailed to the cross. Heb. 8:13; Col. 2:14; Rom. 13:8-10.

(4) The law of God put in the inward parts, and written in the hearts of His people. 2 Cor. 3:2; Heb. 15:16; Heb. 10:15-16; Acts 2:38-39.

(5) God's forgiveness of iniquity and a remembrance of sins no more. Heb. 8:12-13; Heb. 10:15-17; Rom. 11:27.

(6) And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor and brother, "for they shall all know me."

THE WORD OF THE HOLY SPIRIT. THE TEACHER

John 14:26; John 16:13; 1 Thess. 4:8-9; Heb. 8:10-11; Jas. 1:18; John 16:7-8; John 6:45; 1 Cor. 2:6-16; 1 Peter 1:23; Rom. 8:14; 1 John 2:20-27; Eph. 1:13.

The outstanding proofs that the new covenant is in operation are complete. The words of the Mediator of the covenant Himself to His disciples, Matt. 26:28, are sufficient testimony to convince the most skeptical. This is verified by our beloved apostle Paul (Heb. 12:24; 13:20). The apostles who ministered the covenant are mentioned by Paul in the following words, "but our sufficiency is of God; who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament not of the letter, but of the spirit" (2 Cor. 3:6). How could these apostles administer this new covenant of the Spirit if it were not in operation? In addition to this the ministrations of the Spirit all through the epistles is confirmatory of this fact (Gal. 3:5; Col. 1:25-27; Col. 2:11-12; Eph. 2:18-22; Gal. 4:6; Gal. 5:22-25; Gal. 6:8; Phil. 2:1) and furthermore this covenant was and will remain in operation until the return of our Lord (Eph. 1:13-14; Rom. 8:23).

NEW WARS IN EUROPE FEARED BY BRITISHER

ALTHOUGH clinging to a hope that Europe was upon the verge of establishing better relations between her various nationalities, Hames Snell, British member of Parliament, for the most part condemned the present situation in most of the countries, his own not least, in an address before the Ethical Culture Society in the Academy of Music.

Referring to the failure of the efforts of disarmament, Mr. Snell charged that "a lot of babbling sea lords" had reduced the opportunity to crystalize the feeling of good will that exists among the common people everywhere today and "reduced it to tons and guns and classes of battleships."

France he accused of bad faith. Since the Locarno pact, this nation has increased its military budget by nine milliards of stabilized francs, he declared. France has to-day four times as many rifles in her arsenals as Germany had in 1914, three times as many machine guns and 1500 army tanks, an instrument of warfare unknown to the Germans. She can put four million reserves in the field tomorrow he asserted.

SUSPICIOUS OF CAUSE

"With such an array of facts, one becomes suspicious their basis is not merely a desire for security but the old idea of dominance," Mr. Snell concluded.

The political actions of his own country he deplored with equal frankness, declaring the "ineptitude" of the present method "of conducting the business of London and Washington through Paris" was comparable on to the conduct of George III which resulted in the American Revolution.

"There is a great fear at the heart of Europe that we are drifting afresh to a new Calvary," the speaker went on. "European and perhaps American boys are being bred once more only to be thrown into the fiery furnace of another war."

This helplessness and frustration he attributed primarily to the fact that Europe, unlike America, "has no government," in the sense that the thirty-odd nations which compose it have a common psychology and centre of authority, as do the forty-eight commonwealths of the United States. Hence she must depend entirely upon the good will of the peoples of these various nations.

For this reason, Mr. Snell characterized the League of Nations as "the greatest act of faith the world has ever seen."—The Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE TWO MINDS

By Alta King

FOR TO BE CARNALLY MINDED (margin, the minding of the flesh) is death; . . . because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. But to be spiritually minded (margin, the minding of the Spirit) is life and peace." Rom. 8:6, 7.

Transition from the promptings and the control of the first mind mentioned to the promptings and control of the second is man's salvation. Discernment of the origin, and development, and character of each of these two minds is discernment of the meaning and way of salvation.

THE CARNAL MIND

The carnal mind—the minding of the flesh—is the mind whose attention and thinking processes (observation, reasoning, judging, etc.,) are centered on the instinctive desires of the flesh and the things that satisfy those desires.

ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT

The carnal mind had its origin and first development in the serpent of the garden of Eden. This serpent was more subtil (more keen in observation and more shrewd in discerning relationships of cause and effect in all that God had said and done) than any beast of the field. Because of this subtilty he discerned that knowledge of good and evil was an attribute of the Creator, else He could not have deposited it in the tree. Then he reasoned that since this knowledge is an attribute of God its possession will make the possessor as a god. This is the first thinking among God's creatures of which there is any record.

Having thought these thoughts the serpent chose to present his thoughts to Eve. The reason he chose Eve out from among all flesh creatures can be discerned from Paul's writings—

The serpent's thinking was the first step toward the first transgression or sin. Paul says that sin entered the world by one man and death by sin. Rom. 5:12. He also says that in Adam all die. 1 Cor. 15:22. There is no other conclusion than that Adam and the serpent were identical. Serpentine thinking was Adam's thinking.

Adam by creation was wholly a flesh creature, of the earth, earthy, from beneath. He was made a living soul—his being was imbued only with the soul life that imbues all animals. This soul-life of animals is instinct life. The dominant demands of instinct life are self-preservation and self-exaltation. These instincts moved in Adam as they move in all flesh creatures. Their promptings, coupled with the greater subtilty (that history and present life show to be the basis of the difference between man and all other animals and the peculiar trait of man) produced thinking. This thinking was wholly carnal, conscious only of the flesh and its demands and seeking to meet those demands. That which is born of the flesh is flesh.

Eve was made a help meet (fit) for Adam. She was bone of Adam's bone and flesh of Adam's flesh. She was wholly flesh, imbued only with instinct life. Being of Adam she possessed also that degree of subtilty which enabled her to be responsive to Adam's subtil thinking. Adam chose her out from the many flesh creatures because she was a fit mate for him, the only one who could respond to his reasoning. So then, whether Adam, figuratively called the serpent, spoke to Eve directly or whether, hiding behind a talking serpent he spoke to her indirectly, the carnal mind, the minding of the flesh, had its origin and first birth in and through Adam's instinct life and his greater subtilty.

But it found ready and fertile soil in Eve. Her instinct life and her subtilty responded to promptings from the original flesh thinker. This response is revealed in Gen. 3:6. "When the woman saw that the tree was good for food." This conclusion was the child of flesh appetite catering to its own pleasure. (There was no need for this particular tree as food.) "It was pleasant to the eye." Here was speaking the flesh instinct to be pampered and soothed by things that are pleasant, without pain. "A tree to be desired to make one wise." This was the creature speaking its instinctive desire to be exalted. Wisdom for what it would do for self was the end sought.

Thus the carnal mind had its birth in woman, and she, beholding self exalted and fully satisfied in every fleshly need, gave to the carnal mind its first manifest action. She ate of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil and gave of it to her husband. The carnal mind, then had its origin and its first inner development through Adam's subtilty, prompted to thinking by the instincts of self-preservation and self-exaltation. It had its first manifest outer development into action in Eve's ready response to and support of the flesh reasoning presented to her.

The instinct life resident in Adam's flesh has been transmitted by physical birth to all his descendants, and in all it has produced the Adamic mind by the same process by which it produced flesh reasoning in Adam, only with subtilty sharpened and the store of knowledge increased in each generation. In man to-day the Adamic mind is as wholly carnal, revolving around the flesh of self and its need as it was in Adam, for that which is born of the flesh is flesh.

CHARACTER

In neither Adam's nor Eve's thinking was there consciousness of God's character, His ways, and His purpose for man. This consciousness can be built up only through revelation accompanied by experience, and Adam and Eve had had no revelation nor experience that would bring to them this consciousness. This consciousness was all bound up in the Christ, and He had not yet been formulated for man even in type and shadow. Lacking this consciousness, their thinking gave no consideration to God, nor to His ways and purposes for man. In neither Adam's nor Eve's thinking was there consciousness of good and evil. This knowledge was yet in the tree only. Therefore, there was no choosing of the one in preference to the other.

Each was conscious only of self and the instinctive motions of the flesh and these, each followed, selfishly as animals followed them, except that they followed them consciously according to dictates of flesh reasoning and animals follow them through blind instinct. In the thinking of neither was there the least element of love, for their thinking was born of the flesh, and love is not of the flesh. If it were, love would be the servant of the flesh. But love is the one supreme force coming from God, the Source of all force. It created the flesh, is supreme over the flesh, and is powerful to use it in service to God and man. Adam did not partake because he loved Eve, but for his own selfish purposes.

The carnal mind is not subject to the law of God neither indeed can be because it is not and can not be conscious of the law of God. Paul says, "The things of God knoweth no man"; and "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God." 1 Cor. 2:11, 14. God's law provides for all selves in harmonious relationships. But the carnal mind, by its very nature, is centered on one self. It can not extend its activities outside of that self, except as such extension serves that self, without changing the center of interests; and such change is death to the carnal mind.

THE CONSUMMATION

The goal sought by instinct life is self-preservation and self-exaltation, and the mind born of the instinct can seek no other. In seeking this goal, it of necessity, produces the works of the flesh—adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murder, drunkenness, revellings, etc., for these are the instruments of preservation of the flesh-self and exaltation of the flesh-self. Each is the answer to one of the two flesh-self's demand—the demand to be first and dominate above other selves, or the demand to have its pleasures served.

But the works of the mind of the flesh ultimately defeat its purpose. For each self, seeking to make itself dominant, must sometime meet and succumb to some other self seeking the same goal. The law of flesh strife is—he that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword. Also, instinct pleasure in the realm of control inevitably results in indulgence and abuse of instinct life, both of which are destructive activities. He who is ruled by the pleasure of eating is a glutton and must accept of the results of gluttony—disintegration and degeneration of body and mind.

Thus the carnal mind, answering to the demands of the instincts of self-preservation and self-exaltation and ruled by instinct pleasure, works the destruction of the being it would preserve and exalt. Not a glorious consummation to the physical creation of man? And nothing in the consummation to reflect the glory and wisdom of the Creator? All very true. But—

The physical man imbued with instinct life and endowed with the subtilty that produced the carnal mind is not man-finished. The unfathomable wisdom of the Creator made provision against the carnal mind and its works long before it was born of the instinct life and the subtilty given to Adam at his creation. Through this provision the one perfect Artist and Workman will finish the highest and most wonderful of His physical works into His own image and likeness. For by this provision the carnal mind in man can be supplanted by God's own mind, and man can be and will be thus lifted up out of the darkness of instinct life and its narrow consciousness of self into the Light of God's life where there is knowledge and consciousness of God and all selves, and the beauty and companionship of all selves living in harmony in accordance with God's law.

MY DAILY PRAYER THIS YEAR

This coming year I'd like to be a friend to everyone;
I'd like to feel each day well spent at setting of the sun;
I'd like to know that I have done at least one kindly deed,
Before I lay me down to sleep that I have given heed—
To some one's cry for sympathy, or friendship or that I Have made the day seem brighter just to some chance passer-by,

And that the world is better still in just some little way,
Because I've tried to live the very best I could each day.

I'd like to be a ray of light when skies are overcast,
I'd like to help some one who failed to blot out all the past,
To start again despite the storms, and find the skies are blue,

To know that in this good old world there's lots that's fine and true.

I'd like to be the kind of person everyone will love,
And make the world seem just a little more like heaven above;

I'd like in all my dealings to be true and just and fair,
That God will help me do these things shall be my daily prayer.

During the five years including 1924 and 1928, 115,600 (daily average 63) lives have been snuffed out through automobile accidents in United States. Nahum could see the automobiles, but, "running like lightnings", as we see them, the prophet presumably was unable to keep an account of the dead and injured, Nahum 2:3, 4.

YET A LITTLE WHILE

By Samuel E. Haney

OUR LORD's valedictory (John 16) should be given prayerful thought. While it was primarily intended for His personal followers, it was as a whole, intended for all His disciples until He returned.

The fact that He knew His death by crucifixion was but a few hours ahead makes more pathetic His leave-taking remarks. And knowing those whom He addressed would be unable to grasp the philosophy of Calvary's cross and that the drastic events would bewilder and dishearten them, we can sense His loving consideration of these dear ones with whom He had been associating and confiding, by His opening and closing remarks: "These things—the foregoing—have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended"; "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

When we consider the fact that most Christians, even in our day, do not fully grasp the significance of Jesus' final words, i.e., "I have overcome the world", should it be surprising that His disciples, void of the Holy Spirit's guidance, were perplexed? Many Christians are not fully apprized of all that was accomplished for them by Christ's vicarious death. How few are aware that on Calvary Jesus dealt with sin, Satan and death; that He atoned for sin by "becoming sin for us", thus defeating Satan and all his hosts; that in the grave He conquered death by going "through death" to resurrection life; and that He rendered powerless him who had the power of death—the devil—by wresting from him the weapon of death (Heb. 2:14): "Since, then, the CHILDREN have one common nature of Blood and Flesh, he also, in like manner, partook of these; in order that, by means of his DEATH, he might vanquish HIM POSSESSING the POWER of DEATH—that is, the ENEMY." Emph. Diag. And furthermore, the full effect of Christ's vicarious death will not be accomplished until after His second advent. And also that the appropriations made through the efficacy of His death were for soul, spirit and body, which are made available by faith in His precious blood. Yes, all that God provided for His children by the sacrifice of His only begotten Son is available to all who comply with the conditions.

Every verse of chapter sixteen is a gem; but let us note a few of them: "But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you", v. 4. Two important points are here involved; i.e., God, in His irrevocable plans for nations and individuals, has a time, place and purpose for every incident, be it ever so great or ever so little. Note, "When the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them". What "time"?

Answer, "Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come. He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you", vv. 13, 14. "And these things I said not unto you at the beginning". Why? "Because I was with you". To paraphrase: Other matters needed our attention. But I am no more with you, in the sense I have been: I am about to leave you temporarily.

"A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to the Father", v. 16. These words were far beyond the disciples' grasp. They were staggered!

In vv. 17 and 18 is an illustration of the difference between time (finite) and eternity (infinite): time being no factor with the immortal Jehovah. Our Father says, "Remember the former things of old: for I am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure". Isa. 46:9, 10. ". . . God, who quickeneth the dead, and calleth those things which be not as though they were". Rom. 4:17. But O, how important time is with us! Every moment is a factor in the Christian's life. Paul says, "Redeeming the time, because the days are evil". And, "Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time". Eph. 5:16; Col. 4:5. Jesus knew it would be a long period until His return and that it would be but a few days until His ascension, yet in both cases He said, "A little while". Nineteen hundred years is as but yesterday with God and thus it will be with those who "shall reign with him a thousand years." Rev. 5:10; 20:6.

Verses 20, 21 and 22 constitute a sandwich, v. 21 being an allegorical filling whose simple fictitious character the reader can easily solve, and learn its lesson, i.e., "Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned unto joy", v. 20. "And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you", v. 22. "A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world", v. 21.

That Jesus' words were enigmas to His disciples is proved by verses 28-32, inclusive, Weymouth. They caused the minds of His disciples to alternate from clarification to obscureness: "I come from the Father and have come into the world. Again I am leaving the world and am going to the Father". This statement found mental lodgement: "Ah, now you are using plain language", said His disciples, "and are uttering no figure of speech! Now we know that you have all knowledge, and do not need to be pressed with questions. Through this we believe that you came from God." "Do you at last believe?" replied Jesus. "Remember that the time is coming, nay, has already come, for you all to be dispersed each to his own home and to leave me alone. And yet I am not alone, for the Father is with me". If the disciples knew of the prophecies back of these words they were too confused to collect their thoughts: viz., "I gave my back to the smiters, and my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair: I hid not my face from shame and spitting. For the Lord God will help me; therefore shall I not be confounded: therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be ashamed", Isa. 50:6, 7. "Then said Jesus unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written (Zech. 13:7), I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad", Matt. 26:31.

It must have been glorious to associate with Jesus during His ministry and immediately following. But—all things considered—our lot, at this end of the gospel age, has fallen into more pleasant places. Think of the many translations of the Good News; the Bible helps; the means of helping one another through the mail; and the modes of traveling. What excuse can the disciples of our day offer for the failure in making their calling and election sure? • 2 Pet. 1:10.

It is written, "Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation? Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip (margin, run out, leaking vessels). For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him; God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost (Spirit), according to his own will?" Heb. 1:14; 2:1-4.

However the time is near when all His faithful followers shall see Him, not as He was in His humiliation and suffering, but in His glorification: "When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day". 2 Thess. 1:10.

"GOOD TIDINGS"

Life is the goal to be attained, and not a happy or miserable condition of life, as claimed by those who hold to the Platonic view of inherent immortality of the race. It is "life" itself, that is to be found or lost. Matt. 10;

38, 39; 16:24-27. The deprivation, or loss, of the unrepentant, will be "without remedy." Prov. 29:1; Psa. 37:37, 38. "Him that knoweth not God," "shall be driven from light into darkness, and chased out of the world". Job. 18:18, 21; Prov. 10:30. Losing life with all its joys, "the wicked, shall be silent in darkness," even "the blackness of darkness forever," 1 Sam. 2:9; Jude 13. It affords God no pleasure "that the wicked should die." Ezek. 18:23. He "is long suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance," even a "repentance unto life." 2 Pet. 3:9; Acts 11:18; 2 Cor. 7:10. There is nothing in God's dealings with the human race, to offend our moral sense of right and wrong; or that runs counter to the "glad tidings" His message contains. Isa. 55:6-9. "It shall be well" with the righteous, but "ill" with the wicked, for each class "shall eat the fruit of their doings." Isa. 3:9-11. As in nature, so in grace, the reaping will be according to the sowing. Gal. 6:7-9. The "broad" and "narrow" ways do not lead to the same destination. One leads "to destruction," the other "leadeth unto life." Matt. 7:13, 14; John 10:10, 11; 20:31; 1 John 5:11, 12. "Glad tidings" will not have reached the zenith of its power, to cheer and bless earth's suffering and sorrowing millions, until the blissful work of "restitution" shall be accomplished, and God shall "be all in all." Acts 3:19-21; 1 Cor. 15:20-28. "And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever." Rev. 5:9-13. Then God's will shall be supreme in all the earth, "and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." Matt. 6:10; Rev. 21:4; 22:4.

JOHN BUNYAN

THREE HUNDRED years ago in the little English village of Elstow, near Bedford, John Bunyan was born. His father was a tinker, and John was a tinker, too.

John Bunyan was not converted in early life. After his conversion he began to preach before he was schooled or ordained. Preaching was regarded the exclusive work of specialists in those days, those who had been properly ordained by the clergy. Since John did not have this ordination he was arrested and remained a prisoner for twelve years. It was during a term of imprisonment that he wrote Pilgrim's Progress, the greatest allegory ever written. After twelve years the English privy council pardoned Bunyan. That same year he was licensed to preach. Great crowds flocked to hear him. He became the most popular preacher in England.

In commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of Bunyan's birth various services will be held this year.

A BLESSED SEQUENCE

By Dr. Northcote Deck

BEHOOLD what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us! We are here invited to a great sight. We are invited by the Spirit to view, and to reverently examine some of the many aspects, the wondrous virtues of the love of God. It is true "it passeth knowledge," yet in this quest we shall have the illumination, the inspiration of the unveiling Spirit. We can of course know but a fragment of the glories of such love, until that day when we shall know as we are known. Yet it is our blessed privilege and duty to ponder the sacred page wherein that love is expounded and revealed and exemplified.

Back from the mission field on furlough, it is always one of the first pleasures to revisit the picture galleries, in whose cool arcades are displayed men's highest conceptions of the beauties of life and nature. One has often wondered at the numbers of hurrying feet of men with eyes on the ground, who pass by, heedless, desireless, of being inspired and uplifted by gazing at such scenes, which so few turn in to view and enjoy. And so it is with the great picture gallery of the unerring Word of God. On its sacred pages are pictured many a forlorn hope, many a desperate act of trust, many a heroic faith, many a tender passion, as God's Spirit strove and clothed Himself with men in all ages. Here, then, are the outworkings, the demonstrations of that ineffable love we would behold, we would know. Yet how few there are who care to join us, who come to view, to ponder, to worship the Love of God and the God of Love.

It is a Father love. For the great world of sinners God's compassion is indeed supreme. Yet for all His own, redeemed and regenerate, that love takes a deeper hue, a richer wealth. "Like as a father pitieth" we are reminded. How much that involves! Once after a strenuous voyage of visiting in the mission ship Evangel, one was sitting, reading and resting, when a man came closely past, leading by the hand a little boy. He was dirty and dishevelled, with great island sores which smelled horribly; he was crying bitterly too, and was covered with flies. As the child came closer, I cried out: "Zaccheus, what are you doing with that dirty little boy!" The man paused in astonishment, then blurted out: "Why he's mine! He's my son!" That was all. That was enough, enough explanation to his mind. "His son!" Forgotten were the flies, the crying, and the sores, as he was taking the boy down to the sea to wash. His father's heart saw beyond; he saw the child cured, and grown to manhood, and still the object of his love, his heart. To me, the child seemed repellent, save as a matter of duty. But to him, he was "my son" and that made all the difference. His father's heart was impregnable to the sores and the crying. And God! What of His love? "Like as a father" He says; and what a Father! What love! He, too, sees beyond. His love, too, is impregnable,

He loves "to the uttermost" in spite of wounds to character, and bruises and putrifying sores. He beholds His own through the precious blood, without "spot or wrinkle or any such thing."

But He is not content to restore us through the one atoning sacrifice back merely to Adam's state of innocency. He would lift us from "the mud of sin" (as the converts term it locally) right through to the heights of heaven, would change us from outcasts to heirs, from felons to fellow-workers with His dear Son.

Yet how shall I behold that love? What lens will portray it? What life can expound it? I think indeed of the paladins of faith; of Enoch and Noah, who walked with God; of Abraham "the friend of God"; of Israel "a prince with God"; and of many another, who through that love was transformed and transfigured. Yet it is just this selfsame love which is to be shed abroad in my heart and yours, without measure; without stint.

But none even of these giants of faith can give an adequate rendering of such effulgence. To find the highest exposition of that ineffable love I must go to the Holy One and the Just. I must make and take time to behold Him with reverence and godly fear as the clear shining of His heart irradiates the sacred page.

I would see Him first in the mystery of the manger, and bend with the shepherds over the Babe, wherein were combined such helplessness and yet such purity. And bending there I should hear the hurrying careless world's refrain: "No room, no room, have we, for such as Thee. Thou Babe of Galilee; Pass on! Pass on!"

So with Him, I would pass in mind to that life in strange subjection and silence, through the intervening years at Nazareth, as He shaped with skillful hands those yokes which never galled, and pondered the parables He should utter, which men have never yet fathomed.

Then, with the opening of His public ministry I would recall those wonderful conditions of His offer of pardon to men. How at the outset He made it clear, as with Nicodemus by night, that no personal merit could lift the bar sinister of sin, and yet in contrast, with the outcast woman at the well, He proclaimed once for all that no personal demerit could baffle His love and pardon for a repentant heart.

But it is in the glare of Golgotha and the merciful darkness which followed that the supreme climax of that love is set forth. Well may we rejoice in the triumph of affection and affliction contained in those victorious words "It is finished!" which seemed at the time so like an admission of defeat. For by that pronouncement I know that the love of God has triumphed indeed, and I am now enabled by faith to become a member of the body of Christ, just as surely, just as literally as had I been one

"I CAN DO ALL THINGS THROUGH CHRIST WHICH STRENGTHENETH ME."—Phil. 4:13.

CAN WE KNOW TO-DAY, beyond doubt, whether or not we are members of the body of Christ?

The year is young yet, and this question which arose recently in our Rockford Berean class seems a profitable one for each of us to consider thoughtfully at this time. We discussed it earnestly, and would enjoy having others express their thoughts on the same subject through this page.

There is a human relationship which we might call a miniature of the closeness existing between God, the Father, and those allied with His Son, Jesus Christ. Between two individuals who are true friends there is an understanding, a trust that knows neither questioning nor fears—it is the faith based on the perfect love of which John speaks in the eighteenth verse and the fourth chapter of his first book. Probably we have all experienced at some time in life the joy and the peace of such companionship. No doubts arise as to the faithfulness of the other where a mutual love like that exists, no words are spoken with intent to offend, no act of selfishness deprives the other of his rightful due. Nor are any of the events of life anticipated or experienced, except they are shared by both. In short, the two are one in understanding and in purpose.

You have enjoyed this sort of relationship with one or more of your fellow-men. Was there ever a question in your mind as to your standing with him? Or did he ever fear as to the place that he held in your heart?

We spoke of such relationship between mortal men and women as a miniature of the tie which binds the Christian to God. That bond with God is far above the closest of human ties. God is infinite, infallible, almighty, all-wise, eternal—everything that we are not—yet He loves us and He gives us our companionships in life in order that we may better comprehend our relationship to Him.

It seems that the purpose nearest to the great heart of God is that His children should be very close to Him. He wants them to understand Him, and, understanding

Him, to love Him with all their hearts. That those who are willing and anxious to do this should be kept in uncertainty as to their standing with the Father seems contrary even to our human ways, and much more so to the ways of God.

"But we sin so greatly and so repeatedly," says one. "How can we be sure we are true Christians?"

Yes, indeed, we do all sin over and over again, but the realization and acknowledgment of that sin is the first great step that brings us closer to God. "There is none righteous, no, not one." Paul, greatest of the apostles, had many ups and downs in his career; his whole life was one long battle against sin, first within himself and then in those with whom he worked. Yet it is our belief that it was the very assurance he felt of his oneness with God, and of the daily forgiveness through the Savior which was waiting at the throne of grace, it was this very confidence that carried Paul over the rough places and enabled him at the close of life to make this statement as a fact: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

Paul's confidence was justified. He had loved God and His Son whom He had sent, and in spite of the weakness of the flesh he had the faith which was counted for righteousness. He lived very close to God and it was to Him that he went with his problems and his needs and received strength for them all. With the God of heaven for him, who could be against him?

There is the same assurance for us to-day. Hear the prayer of Christ in John 17. "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are . . . Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word . . . Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me."

With such confidence on the part of the Son of God, what should our attitude be?

CHRIST, THE SAVIOR

THE LORD is my Shepherd, I shall not want."
Why do we say that? Why do we sing those words?
Why do we believe them?

Because Jesus came into the world to save us, and care for us as a shepherd cares for his sheep. He came to save sinners, and help them to a better life.

However, His enemies, the self-righteous Pharisees, found fault with Jesus. They considered themselves perfect, since they kept the old Mosaic law so carefully, and would have nothing to do with publicans and sinners. They said, "This man (Jesus) receiveth sinners, and eateth with them"—a terrible thing in their opinion!

Then Jesus told them a parable or story, to make them see how mistaken they were, and to show them for what purpose God had sent Him into the world.

He tells part of the story like a question, "What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?"

You can imagine how the man searches among the rocks, under the ledges, through thickets, along the streams and by-ways carefully examining every track that may show the wandering footsteps or the footprints of wild beasts. Then, at last! The one "lost one" appears perhaps tired, worn and weary. The rejoicing shepherd kindly lifts the stray sheep and lovingly carries it back to the fold.

At home again! He calls in all his friends and neighbors and exclaims "Rejoice with me for I have found my sheep which was lost." And the neighbors all rejoice with the man in his happiness over his restored sheep.

Then Jesus turned to His listeners and said, "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

Later, we read in Paul's letter to the Romans more of this same salvation story. Paul says that Christ died for the ungodly. Many might die for good and worthy people; but God loved His wandering children and sent His beloved Son as a Shepherd to seek and save sinners. He loves all and wants all to come unto Him and live.

THE GIFT OF THE NEW YEAR

THERE IS an old English fairy tale that tells of a youth who found a bag of minutes. Thereafter whenever he wanted a little extra time for anything, he needed only to reach into his bag to draw out a few more minutes. If he went to a party and was having a good time, he could make it last longer by taking some minutes out of his magic bag.

You would like to have something like that, would you not? Wait! Here comes the little New Year, and in his hand he brings you a gift. There is a magic bag containing 525,600 minutes, all yours to use up in making either happy times or bad times this coming year. Here is a real gift, and what are you going to do with it? Do you not feel rich with such a store of minutes at your call?

You may say that the minutes are not really yours to do with as you will; that you have to sleep, that you have to go to school and church and that you have to do certain tasks that have been laid out as your share in keeping the home happy. There is, however, a sense in which every minute is yours and no one's else. The sleep minutes ought to be very good, filling you with health and strength so that you have energy for study and play. If, however, you go to bed scowling and pouting, the sleep minutes will not be so good for you as they should. You can fill the school minutes with happy, earnest work that will be preparing you for a useful life, or you can fill them with laziness, poor work, and failure. Your play minutes can be filled with generous friendliness, or else with the selfishness that wants to have everything its own way. Your work minutes at home can be filled with love and gratitude for the blessings of home, or else with whining unwillingness. The minutes that have no duty can be filled with kindness and cheer that will make your life blessed, or they can be allowed to trickle away empty and useless.

Yes, the minutes are your own, and every one as it passes into the unseen world, will be stamped with the image of your own heart. How are you going to use this precious gift of minutes? They are worth more than gold. See that you do not spoil or waste one of them!

GOLDEN TEXT

And thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins.—Matt. 1:21.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Savior. A savior is one who saves from the imminent danger that surrounds another. He not only saves the other from entering into danger, but being therein he raises him therefrom. Man finds himself not only in the throes of sin but in the consequences resulting therefrom. Sin's triumphal consequence is death. Beyond death sin has no control. Christ, our Savior, came to rescue man from this dread condition. He came not "to destroy men's lives, but to save them"—Luke 9:56.

His Field of Salvation. Jesus is complete Savior. His salvation covers the whole field in which sin operated to defeat God's plans and purposes.

A. Unto God He saves that which was lost to the Father by Adam's disobedience. His is to recover God's creation from the thralldom of sin and death and to present the same to His Father. All enemies will be placed beneath His feet. 1 Cor. 15:25.

B. Unto Adam He stands as Savior of that which the first parent lost by his entrance into the pathway of sin. Christ's is to recover to the first Adam that which neither he nor any of his posterity are able to recover. Having in His own death destroyed unto Himself "him that had the power of death" He provided means whereby He is able to "deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." Heb. 2:14, 15. Anticipating this marvelous salvation, He assured, John 5:28, "the hour is coming, in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth".

C. Christ is Savior also of Abraham and his family unto all those promises of God which were assured the father of the faithful. They were lost to those promises because of the invasion of sin into the field of faith. He who was faithful and his posterity strayed farther and farther from faith into the byways of disbelief and its resultant evils. But Christ as Deliverer will yet come to Zion "and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob", "and so all Israel shall be saved". Rom. 11:26.

D. Christ is Savior of the throne of David. His is to reclaim the kingship of the chosen nation over which David and his house were appointed forever, and through such reclamation and the extension thereof, to reclaim the rule of righteousness over all the earth. This was Gabriel's announcement to Mary, Luke 1:31-33. It was the announcement to John through the Holy Spirit, Rev. 11:15. It was the prophetic announcement of the Psalmist, Psa. 72:8.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Real Savior. With a shudder of sickening dread the boys stood on the bank and watched their comrade go down for the third time beneath the whirling current. He had fought bravely, but when the whirlpool caught him his strength was not sufficient. It was a losing fight, and not one of the boys on the shore dared risk the grip of that whirlpool in an effort to help. What a tense moment! What a dreadful end to a hilarious swimming party!

But, lo, just at this moment as if by chance a fine, athletic young man came walking along. Sensing the situation with a glance, without an instant of hesitation he threw off his coat and jumped into the pool. Bringing the boy to the surface he exerted every muscle in his fine young body, overcame the whirling current, and saved the lad from the grave in which he had sunk. Is it any wonder these boys always thereafter looked upon that young man as a super-man and held him in highest respect and honor?

But Jesus plunged into death itself to save you and me. He is a real Savior. Are we showing our appreciation?—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Moreover, she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he will save his people from their sins."—Matt. 1:21, Roth.

This angelic announcement to Joseph has rung down through centuries, proclaiming to dying man the glad tidings of a Savior and thus bringing hope to all those who accept His grace and saving power and are kept through faith unto salvation. Joyous message! Only one other superseded it and that was the announcement of its fulfillment when the angels again announced, "For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Jesus and Adam.

Adam was made a living soul; Jesus was made a life giving Spirit. Adam a living soul, was endowed with the soul life (common to all animal creatures) in its highest development—the development that made possible consciousness of self and other selves. This we know by looking at the sons of Adam. Jesus, a life giving Spirit, was endowed with God's life, life in its fullness in which there is consciousness of all selves and of God and of all right and perfect relationships among all selves and with God. Because of this difference Jesus is the Savior.

Adam could not have been made a life giving spirit because of God's law—first the natural then the spiritual. First the physical must be created and endowed with the power of consciousness, and the power of consciousness must be developed through experience with the physical objects at hand—self and other physical selves.

Adam could not have been a spiritual being because consciousness of God and His laws is not a matter of physical creation, but of experience under God's hand. Jesus could and has become a spiritual Being because He came into the world with a rich heritage of spiritual life from God-chosen forefathers and with the experience and suffering of the ages to give Him consciousness of right and wrong relations between man and man and between man and God, and also of man's dependence on God. In Him dwells all wisdom, because God chose to so guide experience as to put it there. It could not have dwelt in Adam. Therefore Jesus is the Savior and Adam, with all his children are the ones who need salvation.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: He Died for Us.

If the teacher of your class should ask each of you to tell the story about Jesus that you like best, no doubt each one would tell a different story. One would tell about His birth; another, His temptation, still another, His death, His resurrection, or His parables and many others.

How many would think of Jesus as the Friend of sinners? In Luke 15:4-6 Jesus tells a pretty little story about the lost sheep. Then read verse seven of the same chapter and see how much greater is the joy over the sinner who repents. Let us look at Jesus from this standpoint. He died for us, yes, He died for sinners. He came to save us. In our last Sunday's lesson, we learned what a valuable part He played in the forgiveness of our sins. Tell what it was.

Picture Christ's death on the cross, His burial, His resurrection, His ascension, and then say to yourself, "He did it all for me, and, if for me, for others." Does it not make you feel how much God must love us to make such a wonderful plan for our salvation?—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Spiritual Life: define; how developed in man? What one Man possesses it fully and why? Why did not Adam have it by physical creation? Could Adam have become the Savior of the race by being the progenitor of beings with spiritual life? Why did Jesus, even as a mortal Man possess spiritual life and Adam not possess it?—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. and Sr. F. L. Austin spent Sunday and Monday, Dec. 30 and 31, with the Oregon church. In addition to introducing his bride, Bro. Austin filled the pulpit both morning and evening, on Sunday. Monday night the church people gathered at Golden Rule Home for a reception to the newly weds. The whole affair must have been too much for Mrs. Austin, though, for we hear that she has been entertaining the "flu" since.

Sister M. A. Woodward has been quite sick with the prevailing malady for two weeks past, but is improving under the efficient care of Sister Leila Whitehead, 5439 Ohio St., Chicago.

Sister Lewis Lindsay and son, Edward, of Rockford, Ill., spent New Year's day with friends in Oregon.

AN ERROR IN NEW QUARTERLY

We regret very much a serious error on the editorial page of the new Truth Seekers' Quarterly. The heading which appears at the top of first editorial column is SONS. The heading should be: THESE ARE VERY IMPORTANT LESSONS

The lines were first set exactly as shown above, but in arranging the type in pages the upper line got lost and only the lower one appears in the quarterly.

The office is very sorry this happened, and every effort will be put forth to see that such does not occur again.

Word from the Pacific coast tells us that California enjoyed most ideal weather through the holiday season, and that the church work in Los Angeles is progressing nicely. For this we are very thankful.

Bro. and Sister T. J. Ellis and family of Waterloo, Iowa, were among those who had a trying Christmas season. An aunt, Miss Sarelda Bell Ellis, of Columbus, Nebraska, was brought to their home on December 12 to be cared for during the winter, but died on December 22. They took her back to Nebraska where she was buried on the 27th.

We are glad to report that Sr. Crysler, of Fonthill, Ontario, has successfully undergone a series of critical operations and appears to be on the road to recovery.

Due to several serious omissions in the recently published list of ministers the entire list is being given again on third page of this issue.

The intense cold which gripped part of the north this past week-end reduced the size of audiences at Oregon church somewhat, although the dependables were present, and even a few strangers.

The Oregon, Illinois, church is holding its yearly business meeting on Thursday night of this week, and getting ready for the real work of 1929.

The matron and members of Golden Rule Home wish to thank all who helped to make Christmas and the holiday season pleasant. From friends over the country they received chickens, pies, fruit, cake and nuts, besides the good will of many, all of which is deeply appreciated.

Word was received on Sunday, Jan. 6, of the death of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lind, Kewanee, Ill. Mrs. Lind was formerly Phoebe Densmore, well known to many Bible School attendants. Bro. Marsh was called for the funeral, which is being held today, Tuesday.

Bro. Everett Stilson, student at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., spent the holidays with his parents, the Floyd Stilson family at Oregon, Ill., and incidentally helped out with the work at the greenhouse.

Bro. Paul Hatch, of the Bible Training Class, after passing through the sad experience of burying his father during the holiday season, is spending a short time at the home in Harvey, Ill., helping the mother adjust home conditions.

Sister Floyd Stilson, of Oregon, Ill., was called to Indiana on Jan. 4 by the seriousness illness of her mother, Sister Hugh Shafer, who died on Saturday night.

Bro. Stilson and the children left on Monday to be in attendance at the funeral.

FONTHILL CHURCH OF GOD

Just a few lines to let the brethren know how our work is coming on here.

Bro. Patrick has been with us from Nov. 18 to Dec. 23. We hope to have him again the latter part of Jan. and Feb. or until we can secure a permanent minister. Sunday School at 6:30 P. M. Sermon at 7:30 P. M. Bible Study on Thursday evenings.

Bro. Patrick is a real worker and not afraid to go into the homes to invite people out to services. He has given us some splendid sermons, and a decided increase in attendance is noticed in our meetings. Mrs. E. M. Seburn, Sec'y.

CALIFORNIA

Sr. L. V. J. Kimball has been very ill with "flu," but we are glad to say she is improving.

Bro. and Sr. Seroggs have been very happy to have their son, Charles, from Muncie, Ind., with them since Thanksgiving time. They had not seen him for nineteen years.

Bro. Saylor and family have returned from Ariz., and report the brethren there are anxiously awaiting Brother Lindsay's recovery so that he may take up the work among them.

Bro. O. J. Johnson and wife spent the holidays in Ramona, California. Sr. Johnson has a niece living there.

Mr. Paul Anderson is spending the holidays in California with his relatives, the Johnson and Glen Allard families.

We regret to say Mrs. Claude Martin lost her mother on Dec. 14th. Mr. Martin is Sr. Crundwell's brother.

Our Christmas program was quite a success. Considering the fact that Sr. Stearns was sick almost all the time, as well as a number of those who were to take part in the exercises of the day.

We were delighted to have Brother George Rahn and family of Sacramento, and Sr. Thelma Moore of Red Bluff, with us over the holidays. They spent Christmas with Bro. and Sr. Railsback.

MICHIGAN

According to reports two of our boys at Blanchard, Gail Marston and Clio Egbert were injured in an auto accident when their car skidded on the ice and crashed into a culvert. We are not informed as to the seriousness of the accident, but trust that it will not prove to be of a very serious nature.

The enrollment in the cradle roll department of the Grand Rapids church has reached the fifty mark. All of these are Sunday School prospects, providing the parents remain in this community, and if they move away and settle in a place where we have a church the probabilities are that they will attend our church there.

A Junior League has been started in G. R. church. This work is in charge of Sr. Hazel Pixley. The young people have responded very nicely to this new undertaking. The class meets every Sunday evening before the preaching service.

A series of meetings will be held in Grand Rapids commencing Sunday, Jan. 13. Bro. Austin has been secured to assist in this revival effort. Any who find it possible to attend from other points in the state will be heartily welcomed. The prayers of the brotherhood for the success of this revival are requested.

VIRGINIA

By an oversight we forgot to report the marriage of Bro. W. E. Boyer, Woodstock, Va., to Miss Florence Landis of Staunton. They were married Nov. 16, at the bride's home.

Bro. Boyer is cashier of the National Bank of Woodstock and has been called "the most promising young man in Woodstock." The bride is equally promising, of high Christian character, respected by all who know her. We wish them happy, prosperous lives.

The writer held a two weeks' meeting at Seven Fountains from Dec. 2-16. Sickness, cold nights and other conditions prevented a large attendance but still we feel repaid for the efforts. No additions were made but the members were strengthened and that means much in these closing days of the age.

Last year proved that our dormitory was too small. It was voted at that time to enlarge it before another Bible School. We expect soon to start the work.

The brethren at Maurertown developed a strong feeling for their pastor and his wife and decided to pound them. When they decide to do a thing they do it right. They didn't stop with one pound each as the 8 lbs. of sausage, 37 lbs. of sugar, 2 doz. oranges, eggs, flour, potatoes, prunes, celery, etc., would amply testify. Strange to say those "pounded" didn't get "sore" about it. It is such acts of generosity and Christian love that have endeared these brethren to their pastor. H. A. Sheets.

OBITUARIES

AMADA C. GOOD

Was born Aug. 13, 1851, and died Dec. 13, 1928, aged 77 years, 4 months. She was married to John D. Good Nov. 20, 1875. She leaves to mourn her death three sons and two daughters. Her husband preceded her in death just sixteen years.

Sr. Good united with the Church of God forty-five years ago and died in the faith delivered unto the Gentiles by their great apostle Paul. She was buried in Front Royal, Va., there to rest in sleep until He comes who said, "I am the resurrection and the life."

Sr. Good fell and broke her hip and her last days were filled with severe pain, yet she was patient and through it all shone the joy of a faith in a living God. She was widely known for her hospitality and several remarked to the writer of her past kindness to them. Hers was a Christian life that will be remembered. Harry A. Sheets.

ELINOR ANNE RHODES

Was born March 1, 1928 and died Dec. 24, 1928, aged nine months, twenty-three days. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rhodes, and one little sister, Ethel.

Every effort was put forth by the devoted parents to save the little one. She was taken to the best doctors in Washington, D. C. and cared for in a hospital. One major operation was performed, but medical skill and loving care were not successful in keeping the enemy of mankind away and Elinor was deprived of life. But the time is coming when "both small and great shall hear his voice and shall come forth" and at that time will Jesus judge her in love as the judges of old judged Israel.

Little fingers pull hard at heart strings and our Christian love and sympathy go out to her parents. Harry A. Sheets.

ALBERT BAKER

On Sept. 11, 1928, Bro. Albert Baker of Walnut Grove, Ark., passed away. He leaves a wife, six children and many friends to miss him. Bro. Baker obeyed from the heart "that form of doctrine" about 8 years ago, was laid beneath the water's waves by Bro. E. O. Stewart, and lived the new life to the end.

The church at Walnut Grove miss him. He was a great singer and a worker for Christ. Oh! What a joy it was to the writer to know that he went down in that beautiful hope of a resurrection from the dead. Yes, Bro. Baker believed that he would hear the call when Christ calls for the church, and he would be in that number. We read from 1 Cor. 15, at the services and spoke of the hope which our brother held that the corruptible shall put on incorruption. All tears and pains will be lost in universal praise. I believe we will hear his singing voice in the beautiful city of God for John, the divine, heard the heavenly singers which is the church of God in the age to come. Yours in Christ, C. E. Weaver.

JEREMIAH EDGAR HATCH

Was born in Crawfordsville, Ind., Sept. 28, 1862; died at his home in Harvey, Ill., Dec. 29, 1928. His boyhood and early life were spent in Indiana, where he grew to manhood and where he was married on April 15, 1896, to Mary Etta Orr. To this union two children were born, Paul M., of Oregon, Ill., and Margaret, now Mrs. Sydney Magaw, of Eden Valley, Minn.

Besides the widow and two children, Bro. Hatch leaves to mourn his loss two brothers, Carroll of Santa Ana, Cal., and Levi, of Orange, Texas; and one sister, Mrs. Azora Scroggs, Pomona, Cal.

In early life Bro. Hatch was owner and editor of a weekly paper known as the "Kempton Chronicle," at Kempton, Ind. After selling this business he moved to Chicago where he worked as a printer, becoming a member of the Union in 1909, which profession he followed to the close of life.

Bro. Hatch was a son of Elder J. S. Hatch, who was a well known and faithful minister in the Church of God for many years. With this Christian training for a foundation he became a member of the Church of God in early manhood, to which faith he remained true, acting for a number of years as elder in the Chicago church.

About six years ago, Bro. Hatch and his family moved to Harvey, Ill., where they built for themselves a home in which he lived comfortably until stricken suddenly by a stroke of apoplexy.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday, January 2, and Bro. Hatch was laid to rest, awaiting the resurrection morn.

F. E. Siple.

B. F. KING

B. F. King was born in Webster Parish, La., Feb. 11, 1845, and died Dec. 6, 1928 at his home near Clyde, Texas, at the age of 83 years, 9 months and 25 days. He came to Wills Point, Texas, while still a young man. There he met and married Zilla Malissie Payne, Dec. 19, 1872. To this union were born five children, four girls and one boy, the boy dying in infancy. His wife died Dec. 20th, 1885. He was married again Feb. 9, 1887 to Margarette Hisan. To this union were born eight children, four girls and four boys, two of the boys dying in infancy. There are left to mourn his death his wife and ten children, eight girls and two boys, thirty-three grandchildren, and twelve great grandchildren.

The children are: Mrs. M. V. Brantley, Mrs. Clint Scott, Mrs. Roy Bardwell, and Mrs. W. A. Hall, all of Sweetwater, Texas; Mrs. J. W. Hamilton of Vernon, Tex., Mrs. R. C. Edwards, Roby, Texas; Mrs. Gail Batley, O'donnell, Texas; Mrs. Floyd Rogers, Ernest King, Clyde, Texas; and E. H. King, Coleman, Tex. Six of his grandsons acted as pallbearers; namely, William Doyle Hall, Comanche, Texas; Earl Scott, Lawrence Scott, Oscar Scott, Clyde Scott, and Murl Brantley, Sweetwater, Texas.

Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Clyde, Texas, spoke some very fitting words from the scriptures, words in which the deceased believed strongly in his life and which his children appreciated very much. Mrs. M. V. Brantley, Sweetwater, Texas.

JOHN L. BENNETT

John L. Bennett, formerly of Eden Valley, fell asleep in death at his home in Vergus, Minn., on Dec., 20 at the age of fifty seven years; death claiming him as a result of heart trouble. Mr. Bennett was born near Eden Valley, and always made his home here until five years ago, when he moved to Vergus, Minn.

Funeral services were conducted for him from the Eden Valley Church of God by the writer on Dec. 26. The church was crowded to capacity by relatives and friends, who grieved his sudden death. The hope of resurrection and Christ's kingdom was the message for comfort given the bereaved.

He leaves to mourn his death two daughters; Grace, and Mrs. Fred Edmond of Minneapolis; one son, Russel; two sisters, Mrs. Amil Hrdlichka of Whipholt, Minn., and Mrs. Wm. Hendrickson, of Eden Valley; and two brothers, Henry and Charles of near Eden Valley. Sydney E. Magaw.

A BLESSED SEQUENCE

of the members nailed to "the tall tree" that spectral day.

And as I think of our heritage in such a love, and of our coming exalted destiny, and of the blessed company we even now may enjoy, there comes to mind the challenging words of the Apostle Peter: "Seeing . . . these things . . . what manner of persons ought ye to be!" For by that love there is thrown upon us the onus of having very grateful hearts, and very changed lives. And the strongest incentive for such a change is set forth by the Spirit to be the very imminence of the approaching greater change when Christ shall come again. And as one who has watched thousands of natives turn from darkness to light, one can bear conclusive witness that there is no greater spur to holier living and continued missionary zeal than that same premonition of the Parousia.

It has been said that Paul knew only two dates in his calendar. They were "to-day" and "that day." "To-day" to be passed and packed full of blessed service and worship, and "that-day," the appointed time for giving account, towards which all his splendid energies were bent. That was long ago, and he went to his reward "more than conqueror." In this age when there are so many "hands so full of money and hearts so full of care," God give us a holy aloofness from the world and its goals and its gods. Do not presume to pity, as unpractical, the man who lives "gazing up into the heaven," "looking unto Jesus." We shall run our engines, and sail our ships, and care for our converts and fulfill our varied ministries all the more earnestly and effectually for the glories we shall behold with such an uplook. God give us then, to "dream dreams" and to "see visions," and "so much the more as we see the day approaching."

And it is to one of the most blessed spiritual fruits that the apostle incites us to "all holy conversation and godliness." It is true the world will know us not, because it "knew him not", still less will it care for the songs of Zion, or the Emmaus walk, or the Patmos vision.

"Yet in these days when lowering clouds and storms

Have come to stay,

And gather denser till our Lord's own voice

Call us away," may it become ever more true that "our conversation (citizenship) is in heaven from whence also we look for the Saviour."

Yet when we consider what is expected of us, what is reasonable from us, when we remember past failure and worthlessness, we must feel all too hopeless of ever being worthy of such a love and such a Lord. Indeed our hearts should fail us with fear. The only reassurance possible, feasible for our desperate case, is to cry out with the astonished disciples in the storm: "What manner of man is this!" (Mark 4:41).

The explanation of that remarkable storm on the lake is found in a subtle transposition of words. In verse 35

He had said "Let us pass over." In verse 36 we find that "they took him." (Not He took them). I suppose most of us would have considered Christ's mere presence in the boat sufficient guarantee to ensure a safe passage. Yet it was not so! For they were taking Him. He was a passenger, not the captain. It may have been natural enough. They were fishermen whose business it was to daily sail the lake. They would expect to know more than He did about handling a boat. This, surely, was some service they were competent, unaided, to do for Him. Only the sequel showed them their mistake. Oh! the blessedness of some of Christ's sequels!

It is the same to-day with many a believer. Such may make very sure of Christ's continuing presence in the heart, through the Holy Ghost. They "know whom they have believed." But too often there is a wrong adjustment to Him. He is indeed an honored Guest, yet not the supreme Guide and Master. Yet if He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all. It is a matter which will have to be frankly faced. If the government is not definitely and deliberately placed on His shoulder, there may be no "heavenly places" nor rest, nor any lasting joy. Christ cannot be content to be merely a passenger in life. It is far too perilous for the soul. For truly we are not sufficient of ourselves to think (much less do) anything of ourselves. But our sufficiency is of God.

Yet many souls are still seeking to manage their own storms, their own lives, their own service. And, "most weary seems the sea, weary the oar." Yet He will need little awakening. It is His way to wait till we cry. Then He is the Lord of the storm just as much as He is the Lord of the sabbath. Indeed, "even the winds and sea obey him." And for me, "Well roars the storm to him who hears a deeper voice across the storm."

Surrender, then, to His almighty hands, the oar, the sail, the soul. Having received Him into the heart, enthroned Him in simple faith, through the Spirit. Then He can work His wonders, then He will bring "a great calm," with His "peace be still." Then indeed the love of God may be "shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost." And then we shall be ready to cry with the disciples: "What manner of man is this," and later, with the heavenly host: "Blessing and honour and glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb for ever and ever!"

—The Evangelical Christian and Missionary Witness.

FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT

JOHN PAUL JONES, the American naval commander, was summoned to surrender. But he replied: "I have not begun to fight."

This is courage. Fear is a deadly enemy. We can win. The powers of darkness were never so strong as now; but in Christ we win! He is more than all they who are against us, and we win!—Sel.

NUMBER 16

WHY BELIEVE IN GOD?

By Lydia Railsback

IN DRIVING through the country in the summer time, one often comes to a nice shady place which is littered up with paper and perhaps with tin cans and banana peelings. When we see such things, we say, "Some one has had luncheon there". We can almost tell the number in the party by the amount of trash they have left behind. How do we know this? We did not see them eating, neither did any one tell us that a party had lunched there, but the evidence is that some one has been there.

If we walk out into a young orchard and discover that some of the trees have the bark off just above the ground, we almost instantly say, "The rabbits have done this." What makes us think so? No one saw them to tell us about it and we did not see them ourselves, but we have learned that that is the work of a rabbit, so we immediately are satisfied what did the damage by the evidence that is there.

Turning to an encyclopaedia we learn something of what has been termed "Mound Builders". These pre-historic people were so named because of the mounds that are found in different parts of America. We do not doubt for one minute that such people existed, because they have left mounds, the contents of which are sufficient evidence that the most skeptical must believe.

We are told that Indians once inhabited this whole country. We did not see them here, yet there is no doubt in our minds but what they lived here. History records it, so we are convinced that that is the truth of the matter.

We read that George Washington was the first president of the United States. We did not see him, neither did our immediate fathers see him, but we believe such a person existed because we have the evidence.

In going from one place to another we enjoy good roads, use wonderful bridges, or fly through the air. We know these conveniences are all man made, although we did not see the work being done. But we see many things that are not man made. Then how did they get here? What is the evidence they bring with them? The wonderful scenery tells of a Hand much greater than man's hand.

The beautiful rivers, the great waterfalls and the wide expanse of landscape all tell of the great Creator. We have no hesitancy in believing what man has done and the great things he has accomplished, then why hesitate to believe that there is a higher Power that does things far greater than anything that man has done, or ever can do.

Now let us turn to our Bible, the greatest and best history ever written, and see what we find there. We find "In the beginning God". Can we believe this? We believed other history when we read it, why not this? Going on a little further we find, "God created the heaven and the earth". Can we believe this? We acknowledged in our travels that we saw things not made by man, then why not believe history in this case and attribute the things that are beyond the scope of man's hand to the work of God?

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork." When we see the work of man's hand we hesitate not, then why should we doubt when the work of God is made so plain and visible to us? We see the sun by day and the stars by night. We cannot attribute them to man's ingenuity, then why not give honor to whom honor is due and give God the glory for all His wonderful works?

We are not only dependent on God for the air we breathe but for food and raiment. When the first pair were placed in the garden, they were provided with food. They had no clothing. After the fall they endeavored to clothe themselves but that did not please God, He provided something better for them.

God is still man's Provider and Protector. Without Him we would be naught. We can go to Him at any time for help or guidance, but this must be done in true sincerity with faith believing. He must be trusted far more than any earthly friend. He has made many promises and is abundantly able to fulfill each and every one. The more we believe in Him and the more we trust Him the more closely we will live to Him and the more we may expect from Him.

STAND STILL

“And Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will show you to day: for the Egyptians which you have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more forever.

“The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.” Exod. 14:13,14.

SOLOMON ONCE SAID: “There is a time for everything.” How true that is! There is a time for man to push forward, taking the initiative to do things, and there is a time for him to stand still and see the salvation of God.

When Moses explains to us that God made man in His own image and after His likeness, he voices a fact that is worthy of deepest consideration. We are told sometimes that this means man was made in the physical shape of God and therefore looks like Him. All of this may be more or less true, but no thoughtful student will accept that as the full meaning of the text.

God has dominion, thought, judgment, and when He made man in His likeness He distinguished him from all the other products of creation. No other creature was given reasoning power and judgment, and hence to man was given dominion over the fish of the sea, the fowls of the air and the beasts of the field. He was in the likeness of his Maker.

God, therefore, expects man to use the faculties with which he is endowed. Man meets his problems, his difficulties along the road, but God has given him strength and thought, and expects him to meet these everyday, routine matters, and develop strength and character in the process.

When, however, emergencies arise, and man has done his utmost to meet the conditions and has failed, it is time for him to manifest a faith that God will do it for him. But one should first be sure he has used as best he could the wisdom and strength which are his gift from God.

This fact was strikingly illustrated in the incident which came to its climax in the scripture quoted at the head of this editorial. As long as they could march God expected them to do so. But when they came to a place where mortal strength could be of no avail, with the sea in front of them, a mountain to each side and an army behind,—it was then time to lift their faces to heaven and “stand still.”

What a lesson for us to-day! God wants us to do our utmost, to fight on with all the strength and wisdom that we have. But if we have honestly done our best there is no need to worry. When the extremity comes God will work for us as He did for them.

We need more faith.—F. E. S.

REPROOF

“Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee.” Prov. 9:8.

THE CHARACTER of an individual is very plainly shown by the manner in which he receives correction. Consider yourself carefully with regard to this.

If someone points out to you a mistake or a weakness do you resent the matter and begin to think up something bad about him? If so, read again the first part of the above text.

When, however, you feel an actual glow of warmth to the one who has been kind enough to call your attention to your mistake, you may take comfort in the last part of the text.

He who is wise is not the one who makes no mistakes, but the one who is anxious to improve and therefore appreciates having attention called to his weak points.

—F. E. S.

SIN

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL lessons now under consideration are worthy of deep thought. They deal with practical things in the lives of men and women, and with the work of the church. Study them well this quarter.

While pondering on the different ones give plenty of time and thought to the subject of sin. Just what is sin? “The transgression of law,” you reply. Yes, but what is sin in one case or on the part of one individual may not necessarily be so reckoned in all cases. There are various prompting motives for actions, but actions are always the result of thought. God judges by the mental attitude more than by the physical deed.

Keep your mind open and frank before God, always anxious to do His will, and you will not be doing things that God condemns, even though your fellow man, not understanding, may often criticize severely.

It is before an understanding God that we stand for judgment, and there is much comfort in that.—F. E. S.

KEEPING UP TO THE STANDARD

IN HIS declining years, when his eyesight was beginning to fail, Michael Angelo was in the habit of regularly visiting a sculpture gallery. There was a marble torso—the broken remains of a human figure from the hands of one of the greatest sculptors of the past—before which he would stand long with eyes closed, while he rubbed the tips of his fingers up and down over its surface.

“In this way he was keeping before his mind the standard toward which he was striving, each time mentally judging his own work by comparing it with that perfect work. And then with that example of perfect beauty fixed in his soul, he would hasten back to his studio, take up his tools, and with renewed purpose and encouragement do his best to attain to a like perfection in his art.

“So we need to remain long in quiet thought before the life of Jesus which presents before us the sort of Christian He would have us be. Then should we go and live our lives as nearly as possible in accordance with the standard He has set before us.

“Jesus bids us be perfect, as our heavenly Father is perfect. Sometimes we think of these words as setting before us an ideal aim to which we cannot attain, but in striving towards it, we can come nearer our goal than if we did not have a human Example before us.

“‘He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father,’ are the words of Jesus which tell us that in striving to be perfect as our heavenly Father is perfect, we have only to strive to imitate His Son, Jesus.”

NOT FORSAKING THE ASSEMBLING

Heb. 10:24, 25.

HOW LITTLE the most of us realize of the value there is in association and cooperation with reference to church work!

Business institutions and sales organizations have learned its power, and they use it constantly. A well organized sales force is assembled at regular intervals by the sales manager. Each member must be present or have a good excuse.

The manager then goes over with them the problems which they have met, and they talk freely together over their plans and prospects. The result is that after a few hours of assembly they are all encouraged and cheered, fired with zeal and energy, and go forth to accomplish real results.

Paul's exhortation quoted above shows that he realized the same truth in church work. We meet our problems and difficulties as we wend our separate ways through life, and we need the association and consideration of others who have problems, too. We need them and they need us. If as church members we would make every possible effort to assemble with the other members, to associate, to exhort, to rebuke, to encourage and to inspire, we would find it possible to accomplish marvelous results in our church work.

How much happier we would be also as individuals! Frequent association and coming to actually know each other would make us much less critical of one another. We would actually begin to practice provoking “unto love and good works.”

We who are looking for the coming of Christ and who realize the signs declaring the nearness of that event should realize all the more forcefully the value of thus cooperating. We should wish to put ourselves and our co-laborers in condition to accomplish the most possible before our Lord appears.

Let's go to church, go to Sunday School, go to Berean, go to choir practice and prayer meeting,—in fact, attend every gathering where we can better ourselves and others by our very presence for the good of the cause.—F. E. S.

FIELD WORK

THE YEAR 1929 has opened before us with all of its possibilities. The whole world lies before us, filled with opportunities, but what this year shall mean to the Church of God will depend very largely on how we measure up to these opportunities.

Throughout this broad land there are dozens of places where renewed effort should be put forth to spread the gospel of Christ. We can do it, or we can shift the responsibility and let it pass.

The General Conference has undertaken to keep a Field Man busy proclaiming the truth. We feel that no better one could be found than Bro. Austin, as his wide experience and knowledge of church conditions make him a valuable builder for any community. His grasp of spiritual things, with his corresponding manner of life, make him a real uplift to those with whom he associates.

Let us all get behind this effort and push it to the full extent of our strength. If meetings can be advantageously held in your community, correspond with us about the matter. If you have any suggestions to make regarding the conduct of, or advancing the work please feel free to make them. If you can help financially so as to send the Field Man to places that could not otherwise afford a meeting, remember it is a service to God.

Join with us in making 1929 a banner year in field work. Address all communications to

"EXCEPT A MAN BE BORN FROM ABOVE." WHEN?

John 3:1-9

By Alexander C. Biggs

ON THE DIVINE PRINCIPLE that "things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal," we shall now take up the important subject of salvation, or the entering into the new covenant, not forgetting that this is a Spirit covenant, and that the methods manifestly adopted by the Father for the salvation of men are spiritual in their nature, as applied to them in this dispensation.

I may say first of all if we may with humility testify from God's Word as to His greatness, that it is by the Spirit of God in its various manifestations which seems to be the power used on things animate or inanimate to perform all His works. The Psalmist declares, "By his spirit he hath garnished the heavens". "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?" There is also the Spirit in the prophets and the saints of old. David himself prayed, "Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy spirit from me". We find the Spirit of God manifest in all His works, and His ways are past finding out. In considering the covenants of old we do not find any covenant with such a marked difference in the resultant benefits to the covenantees as the gift of the Holy Spirit, and it is this wonderful grace that denotes it "not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt." On the day of Pentecost this was fully confirmed, not with power of miracle to the ecclesia when the three thousand came into the covenant, as many assume, for the "many wonders and signs done by the apostles" (Acts 2:43) and the power of miracle was not given to the converts only by the laying on of the apostles' hands (Acts 6:3-8) and they comparatively were few in number. The Holy Spirit was given to all the church as a helper to a good life (Rom. 8:13-14; Gal. 6:8).

The Holy Spirit was not available to believers during the ministry of Christ excepting His disciples only. John the beloved is very clear in the gospel, 7:39, "for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified" but it did become available when Christ was exalted or glorified at the right hand of God (Acts 2:33) showing clearly that the day of Pentecost was a day ever to be remembered by the true Jew or Gentile circumcised in heart by the Holy Spirit. On that day was the assembly of devout Jews out of every nation. The day was the anniversary of the law covenant and the passing away of that covenant, it being nailed to the cross by Jesus the Mediator. Then the power was manifested from the heavens as of a rushing mighty wind thus witnessed with the miraculous gift of tongues in the apostles, the inauguration of that most wonderful covenant of God's grace to men, in a Gift that never can be equaled or surpassed until the "sons of God" are clothed with immortality at the coming of the Lord.

Now according to the evidence of the apostolic writers all of which testify of the new covenant and its witness the Holy Spirit, which is conclusive evidence that all the ecclesias in their day came into the covenant and had the witness.

There is a view concerning our subject, John 3:1-9, that Jesus does not make any reference to baptism when speaking of "born of water," but to physical birth only. If that be true then we are committed to the belief that we are not "born out of water" by immersion, and further to be "born of the Spirit" some other time, possibly as some affirm at the resurrection, which savors of error.

In view of the fact that the words of Jesus "born of water" are only part of the exception which the Lord made when He said, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit", we shall be obliged in order to do justice to the words of Jesus to include "Spirit" with the water as they are together, as no doubt this was His meaning. This will be apparent when we draw your attention to the fact that in our translation in verse five the word "of" preceding "Spirit" is not in the original and therefore should be omitted and the words read, "Except a man be born of water and the Spirit" which denotes one act, and that the birth from above consists of water and Spirit, and that that birth takes place at one time. Therefore God having united "water and Spirit" they cannot be separated. To be born of water and exclude Spirit is fatal and such a one sided birth does not introduce the believer into the new covenant, and to say that the birth of the Spirit does not take place until resurrection is not in accordance with Christ's words and the covenant.

Having, as we think, clearly set forth the inauguration of the new covenant at Pentecost by which all who come into the covenant by faith receive the Holy Spirit as a witness, we may ask when they received the gift? Peter who had the keys of the kingdom went direct to the work of opening the door to the Jew first. "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Did they receive this gift? Some refuse to believe it, and say they were disappointed men. Verses 46 and 47 entirely repudiate such a thought. I think Peter was a good minister of the covenant and you will notice that he associates baptism with the gift of the Spirit. Acts 10:47. Was it a saving ordinance? Luke the writer of Acts in reference to Pentecost wrote "and the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."

John the Baptist is a good witness on the subject of the new birth. What does he say of the Mediator of the covenant? "I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire" — baptism again associated with Holy Spirit.

We now come to Jesus Himself, the Model after whom we should build. Was His baptism, "for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness", associated with Holy Spirit? "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him."

We go with Peter to the Gentiles: and "while Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word. . . . Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, as well as we?" Then we have Philip in Samaria; Philip and the eunuch; the conversion of the jailor; the conversion of Paul: all these we can hardly doubt came into the covenant and received the Holy Spirit at baptism.

Just two more references to the Master in close proximity to John 3. If we take Christ's words in this passage in a literal sense we shall fail to understand Him, as Nicodemus did. Let us peruse John 4:11-14; also John 7:37-39 for a right perspective, and here again we may note the close association He makes with water and Spirit. Jesus is speaking of the new birth accomplished in this new covenant dispensation and that by God's Holy Word and Holy Spirit through Himself there is produced in men a new mental attitude toward God; in fact, the nucleus of a new creation, born of God through His Spirit. Man cannot do this of himself. Christ said, "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing." Only by faith and the help of God are we saved. Paul's words to the household at Ephesus are, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God."

In conclusion we may say that while one may look at John 3:5 and take it in a literal sense as did Nicodemus, not understanding heavenly things, we must be careful, for we cannot dispute the fact that Jesus was speaking of heavenly things when He said "Except a man be born from above", "born of water and the Spirit", and that He referred to the new dispensation when the new covenant of which He was the Mediator would be in operation when men would have the opportunity of coming into that covenant by being "born from above", "born of water and the Spirit", becoming the sons of God, the new creation.

BAPTIZED INTO HIS DEATH

By E. O. Stewart

KNOW YE NOT, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore (for this reason) we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." Rom. 6:3, 4.

We should be careful in studying this subject to clearly distinguish between the death of Christ into which we are baptized, and our own death to sin, which in figure we died prior to our burial by baptism into the death of Christ.

Having died to sin through repentance, we are then a fit subject for burial into the death of Christ, where in figure, we come in contact with the blood of Christ which cleanses from sin.

But why go into Christ's death to obtain remission of sins? Because, it was in death that Christ shed His blood, and we must go into His death to have the blood applied. When Christ's side was pierced, there came forth blood and water, and we must go into the water if we in figure reach the blood.

Blood represents life, and in baptism we come in contact with the blood which in figure shows just when the true Christian shall come in contact with immortal life.

The question arises, do we in figure, come in contact with the life blood while in the water, or do we have to wait until after we are raised out of the water before the life blood is applied? If we wait until after we are raised up out of the water to have the blood applied, then we did not find it in Christ's death, but in His resurrection.

If the blood of Christ is applied while we are buried in the liquid grave, and that life blood prefigures eternal life to be received by those who are buried in the earth, then, if the figure corresponds with the reality, mortal emergency of the saints cannot be true. The Scriptures seem to clearly teach immortal emergency of the Church. Listen: "Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we (the living saints) shall be changed." 1 Cor. 15:51, 52.

The change comes to the dead and living saints at the same instant, it is in a moment, yes, in the twinkling of an eye. How are the dead raised? The dead shall be raised incorruptible. The blood touches us while we are buried in the water. Eternal life, which the blood prefigures, comes to the saints while in the grave and quickens them, and they are raised incorruptible.

CHRIST'S DEALINGS WITH PUBLICANS AND SINNERS

A RESUME OF MY MORNING SERMON

By N. H. Geiselman

THE SUBJECT of our morning discourse is "Christ's Dealings with Publicans and Sinners", Luke 7:34.

Let us read for our morning lesson a part of the 7th chap. of St. Luke, beginning at the 31st v. to the end of the chap. To me the words of this lesson are among the greatest of our Lord's teachings. To the casual reader it might not present any special feature, but to the one whose wisdom has been justified by being a child of God it presents a very special feature, for to such it impresses upon the heart the great depth of a Savior's love for a lost and ruined world, and as well reflects the sublime character of our Redeemer the equal of which can never be found among the children of men.

To eat with publicans and sinners, to the Jew, meant a disgrace. Especially to the Pharisees it was regarded as an insult against their dignity and to them showed a lack of knowledge on the part of our Savior who made claims of divine Sonship. One of the reasons, and a very special one too, why the Jews disliked the publicans was because they were collectors of the revenues from them for the Roman government. They said, "We be the children of Abraham and are in bondage to no man". These collectors were divided into two classes: first, the general "farmers" and second, the deputy "farmers", a name derived from the caption of tillers of the ground assembling to gather their harvest. They, the publicans, were the assemblers of the revenue from the people to be brought to the king.

The principal farmers were the foremost in rank and wealth among the publicans and were held in high esteem by the nation. Cicero says, "Among them were to be found the flower of the Roman knights, the ornament of the city, and the strength of the commonwealth". Hence, they were held in high esteem by the emperors and kings. But the under-farmers or deputy collectors were regarded as the most despicable people in all the world and by the Pharisees as the very filth of the earth.

Theocritus was once asked which he considered the most dangerous and despicable of the wild animal kingdom that infested the woodlands of his day. He quickly responded, "The wild bear and the lion" and as quickly said, "The most dangerous and despicable in our cities are the publican and the parasite that sit over our governments." Even in our Savior's day the Herodians tried to entangle Him with the political elements of the nation when they asked Him, "Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Caesar, or no?" Jesus knew the spirit which actuated them to ask this question and He said, "Shew me a penny." And when they handed Him the coin He said, "Whose image and superscription hath it? And they answered and said, Caesar's. And he said unto them, render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things which be God's." So with the wisdom with which He was endued, they were unable to entangle Him with the politics of His day.

Not only were the Pharisees cruelly harsh with the publicans because of their interest and work of collecting revenues for the government, but they despised the poorest class of these collectors for their poverty and barred them from every religious right. They would not allow them to enter their synagogues or their temple. Neither would they allow them to listen to their public prayers or enter the Jewish courts of justice, nor would they receive their testimony in their behalf. They had rather receive the testimony of harlots and prostitutes than theirs. So rigid were they in their religious rights that Jesus thought to speak a parable unto them and thus mellow down their hatred against their supposed enemies and as well teach them the folly of self righteous life. He tried to show them that the poor in this world would have the gospel preached to them as well as the rich and the poor were entitled to the sweet messages of the gospel of the kingdom of God as well as they; that the poor in this world had access to the throne of heavenly grace more than they because of their humility.

Jesus spoke this parable unto them: Two men went up into the temple to pray. (Jesus well knew that they would not allow a publican in the temple, but He spoke this parable to them) the one was a Pharisee, the other, a publican. The one, a Pharisee, "stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in a week, I give tithes of all that I possess. And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner." And Jesus said, "This man went down to his house justified rather than the other". He finished this parable by saying, "For every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

Let us realize that it is humility that calls down the approbation of God rather than self exaltation. O, it means something in this, our day, to be an humble man, a contrite man, wholly surrendered to the will of God! We can only attain to this through the merits of our blessed Lord.

Now there was a Roman law in our Savior's day that if any of the publicans or tax collectors were found guilty of embezzlement or misappropriation of the funds gathered for the government, this law required that one half of all he possessed be taken from him and given to the poor. If he had dealt unfairly with anyone he must restore it fourfold.

Now there was one Zaccheus who was evidently one of the general farmers for it is said of him that he was chief of the publicans and very rich and from the circumstances surrounding the case we are forced to believe that Zaccheus had dealt treacherously with his office. He evidently was a public thief. But we ought not to think strangely of this for there are men in our day that will steal from our government and rob the poor. Zaccheus was a man of small stature and undersized, so to speak, and hearing that the Savior was to pass by he climbed up in a sycamore tree that he might behold Him. When Jesus saw Zaccheus He called to him to come down as He would abide at his house that day. And when Zaccheus came down the first thing he that was of the force of the Roman law cried out to the Lord, "The half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold. And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house". The gospel of Jesus Christ is a savior of life. It is good for the poor; it is good for the rich. No man in any of the walks of life but what needs its benign influence to help him toward the kingdom of God. Zaccheus, a man of public trust untrue to his obligation, was a sinner saved by grace. Paul consenting to the stoning of Stephen and raising havoc with the early church was a sinner "saved by grace". Jerry Macaulay the outcast, a sinner saved by grace; Rush, the thief, Bunyon, the profane man saved by grace, many of whom the world is not worthy stand as monuments of His redeeming love.

THE LANDING OF JESUS CHRIST AND ALL HIS SAINTS

By J. W. Burget

DO YOU KNOW what is happening on this earth when Jesus and the saints arrive from their meeting place in the air in the clouds of heaven? Do you know that this is the time of the great battle of Armageddon? For Zechariah says, "And the LORD my God shall come, and all the saints with thee." Zech. 14:5. But first the saints will be caught up to meet Jesus in the air, in the clouds of heaven: "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." The saints are not caught up yet, but they must go and meet Jesus in the clouds before they can descend with Him, when He stands in that day upon the mount of Olives.

This is the day that Gog is in the land: "Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say unto Gog, Thus saith the Lord God; In that day when my people of Israel dwelleth safely, shalt thou not know it? And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army: and thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days, and I will bring thee against my land, that the heathen may know me when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes." Ezek. 38: 14, 16. There will be great events taking place in the land of the saints in that day. Gog will be there, Jesus will be there, the saints will be there, yes, all nations will be there, saith the Lord. "For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Then shall the LORD go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. Zech. 14:2, 3. "Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it." Jer. 30:7.

Won't you be glad in that day that you fought a good fight, and was counted worthy to hear the last trumpet sound, though you were dead, sleeping in Christ Jesus: then arose to meet our Lord in the clouds. But alas! Those who did not hear the last trumpet sounding are doomed to sleep a thousand years longer and they cannot be the bride of Christ, but everyone of them will be raised up and judged at the judgment day. This judgment day is away down the stream of time: it is after the devil has been destroyed, Rev. 20:10-12, Sodom and Gomorrah will be there. Matt. 10:15. Those people who are in the sea will be there, for the sea will give up the dead, which are in it, and death and hell will deliver up the dead which are in them. Rev. 20:13. Those all are there; there are none that have escaped from the enemy death. Therefore if the enemy death has them and death delivers up the dead, all must come forth at the judgment day and be judged. When the saints meet the Lord in the clouds, perhaps Jesus and the saints linger in the clouds for some time before they descend, and Jesus will stand upon the mount of Olives. Zech. 14:4, "And the LORD shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one LORD, and his name one." Zech. 14:9. Jesus shall be King of kings and Lord of lords. That day will be a glorious day for all that have been begotten through the gospel, 1 Cor. 4:15; all those who have fallen asleep in Christ will be there. 1 Cor. 15:18.

But while the saints are asleep, the Spirit of God that dwelt in those sleeping ones, "shall return unto God who gave it." Eccl. 12:7. God's Spirit does not dwell in every person, but there be those who separate themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit. Jude 1:19. "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." Rom. 8:11. "Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we (the saints,) shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed." 1 Cor. 15:52. The saints are not born of the Spirit in this life because the body is sown a natural body, it is raised a

By Alta King

THE SPIRITUAL MIND

THE SPIRITUAL MIND (the minding of the Spirit—margin) is the mind whose attention and thinking processes are centered on the desires of the Spirit and the things that satisfy those desires. "God is Spirit" presents God in His entirety. "God is love" presents God in His entirety. Therefore Spirit and love, if not identical, are co-equal and also harmonious, since there is nothing contradictory in God—God is one; and the Spiritual mind is the mind whose attention and thinking processes are centered on love, its purposes, and the things that accomplish those purposes.

ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT

The origin of the Spiritual mind is stated by John: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." The term "Word" refers to mind in its fullness and perfection, for the "Word" was God and God is perfect, lacking in nothing. The word, the mind of God, the Spiritual mind, was co-existent and co-eternal with God. Its origin is "explained" in the same way that the origin of God is "explained"—by merely accepting it. The Spiritual mind had no development as God had no development.

CHARACTER

The fullness of the Spiritual mind is grace and truth, John 1:14, 16. Grace in the marginal rendering is "beloved", "agreeableness." Truth is God's knowledge, His perspective, His viewpoint of all His works and of all their relationships as designed by Himself. The fullness of the Spiritual mind is grace and truth, therefore the Spiritual mind knows and is conscious of all God's works as works of love in the agreeableness of love relationships. The Spiritual mind deals with all God's works with the purpose of evolving those relationships designed for them, and the heart of those relationships is the harmony and beauty that result from grace, love, agreeableness.

The Spiritual mind arises from one center, God, and from it radiates into universal activity and consciousness. It is one harmonious whole containing no contradictory parts. That carnal mind arises from many and conflicting centers, as many as there are selves in the world, and around its many centers it revolves, each limited in scope to the self from which it arises.

The fruits of the spiritual mind are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; for these are the elements of which it is composed, and the instruments of love.

The spiritual mind is fully conscious of good and evil. It is also conscious of and loves beauty and harmony. It therefore chooses and clings to the good and eschews the evil. It is as completely harmonious within itself and constructive as the carnal mind is conflicting within itself and destructive. It is not self-centered. It radiates from its source into an infinite field.

THE SPIRITUAL MIND AND MEN

The spiritual mind is not man's in any degree by physical creation. Adam, by creation was of the earth earthy, from beneath impregnated only with instinct life, and the mind to which his subtlety, moved by the instincts of the flesh gave birth was wholly carnal. It contained no element of grace, love, nor of truth, God's knowledge. And physical birth due to promptings of instinct life or of the mind born of the instincts, can transmit only the instincts and the subtlety that give rise to another carnal mind.

But the spiritual mind, centered on love and prompted and controlled by love, can become man's by birth from above, a birth in which neither the instinct life of the flesh, nor its mind has any part to play. John 1:13. This birth from above is accomplished through the glorified Jesus who is the fullness of God's mind in full and perfect expression. The fullness of the workman's mind is grace and truth, and the glorified Jesus is the finished, the perfect expression of that fullness. Through contacts with Jesus, the Word made flesh; that is, through contacts with God's grace and truth, man receives the spiritual mind, becomes conscious of it and is born from above, for becoming conscious of God's love he receives it into his being, and receiving it he loves. This result is inevitable. "We love him because he first loved us", 1 John 4:19, and loving Him we love, not self, but all selves for He loves all. And thus man is born from above: "Everyone that loves is born of God." 1 John 4:7.

The contacts with the glorified Jesus that give birth to the spiritual mind in man are knowledge of the experiences through which He passed and the teachings of God that influenced Him as He was becoming the Word made flesh; our own personal experiences initiated and guided by His wisdom; and His teachings to us by word of mouth.

Jesus is the Word made flesh. His physical birth was not due to the promptings of instinct life nor to the promptings of a mind born of the instincts. The fullness of God's word, grace and truth spoke to Mary and her being and consciousness responded to that Word. God's Holy Spirit (mind) overshadowed her, influenced her thinking both directly and indirectly through a long line of forefathers whose thinking He had influenced in grace and truth. As a result He was born with a nervous system predisposed to grace and truth thinking and into an environment that would awaken and nourish it. But more than this, He was cast upon God from His mother's womb. God made Him to hope when He was on his mother's breasts. Psa. 22:9, 10. Because of this heritage and under these influences (that could not have been the heritage of Adam nor of any who are born of his life) Jesus grew in wisdom and stature as no other man could have or can, receiving the spiritual mind without measure limited from day to day only by the gradual unfolding of physical being.

But Jesus was not the perfect and finished expression of the fullness of God's Word by physical birth and growth, for by physical birth His flesh was imbued with instinct life as Adam's was by creation, and He was conscious of the instinct's drawing away and enticing toward preservation and exaltation of instinct life even as Adam was conscious of them. But in Jesus, God's provision against the carnal consciousness and its domination had been made. God's thinking prompted and controlled by grace and truth whose scope is all selves, not self, had been planted in Jesus as it was not and could not have been planted in Adam by creation. In Jesus the carnal consciousness was strong, but the grace and truth consciousness sustained by God's assurance through prayer was stronger. It gained full control over all the instincts, prevented them from exalting the flesh and serving its pleasures, and kept them to God's purposes and to the service of His creatures. In Jesus the instincts and their pleasures were servants not rulers, hence He was tempted in all points, yet without sin, transgression of God's law for man. Now we no longer know Jesus after the flesh, but after the Spirit. The instincts not only do not control, they do not prompt His thinking toward flesh exaltation and entice it to service of flesh pleasures. Every activity of His whole being is prompted and controlled by the fullness of God's mind, and His whole being shines with light, God's life and radiates His glory. He is fully conscious of God, His character, His ways, and His purposes, and He loves them. He is now the full expression of God's full mind in the flesh. He is the Word made flesh. His whole being demonstrates the victory of the spiritual mind over the carnal mind, which victory is elimination of the carnal mind. His being is the living demonstration of God's condemnation of sin in the flesh, of God's destiny for sin in the flesh, for His being is the living demonstration of the flesh serving God, in accordance with His purposes and laws.

This glorified Jesus alone can communicate the fullness of God's mind to man, implant it there and nourish it to full maturity until man reaches the full measure of his own stature, in God's image and likeness. He is thus able because, by reason of the clear condemnation of sin in the flesh that His Person embodies, and by the light of knowledge that radiates from Him, and by the power of His love, man, when he is touched by Jesus, realizes and desires the life God has designated for him through the medium of the spiritual mind. Jesus, by His teachings, by the encouragement of victory over sin in His own flesh and by His faithful companionship and assurance of for-givenness until seventy times seven, nourishes the spiritual mind until it displaces the carnal mind from control and finally eliminates it. Then His Spirit quickens the mortal flesh so that whatsoever is done, in eating or drinking, in word or deed, is done to God's glory revealing the unselfishness of God's love in all relationships—between husband and wife, between parent and child, towards friends, toward enemies.

As the growth of the spiritual mind in man continues, his thinking and attention become less and less self-centered and more and more God and neighbor centered; less and less prompted by the instincts of the flesh and more and more by God's purposes and love; less and less ruled by the pleasures of instinct life and more and more the ruler over the instincts and their pleasures.

This transition, though simple and direct, merely a change of centers of interest, can be accomplished only by Jesus, for God can become the saving center of man's thinking only as He enters man's consciousness as Father full of grace and truth, and He can thus enter man's consciousness only through Jesus Christ His Son, His concrete life here among men, and His present unseen influence through prayer.

This simple and direct transition is infinite in results. The first center of interest—self—draws man's thinking in toward self and gives rise to the destructive works of the flesh. The second center of interest—God—radiates man's thinking away from self out into its own infinite field of other selves and God. It gives rise to the fruits of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance,—for these are the mediums through which self is put in touch and controlled in harmonious living with other selves and with God. The first center of interest produces living that is circumscribed by the darkness of ignorance and narrow vision. The second center of interest produces living that is flooded with the light of God's knowledge full of grace and truth. This living is the life that is light which God lives. It is the life more abundant that Jesus alone can give. It is the understanding that Jesus gives that enables man to know Him that is true, and that He is in Him that is true, and to know that this understanding presents the true God and eternal life. 1 John 5:20.

Minding the flesh is living on the instinct plane and this living is death. It is death not only because of its destructive works, which ultimately result in physical disintegration, but also because of its narrow selfishness, its ignorance and lack of joy.

Minding the Spirit is living on God's plane and this living is the abundant living that Jesus gives. It is living not only because its every activity is constructive, resulting ultimately in physical bodies imbued with the life that imbues God, but also because of its ever widening vision, its joyous consciousness of God and His love, and the beauty of its harmonious contacts with God and His creatures.

The whole process of transition from the promptings

ONE HOPE

By J. M. Morgan

EPHESIANS 4:4

HOPE AND FAITH are very closely related and if there is no faith, there is no hope. Faith, or belief in the promises of God inspires hope, because, if a man believes in the God of promise, believes that He will give to His children the good things promised, there is created a desire within the heart of man, and with faith, or trust thus preceding desire, expectation is also created within man's heart. Thus hope is in the heart. "And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given to us." Rom. 5:5. "But faith is a basis of things hoped for." Heb. 11:1, Diag. There can be no hope, no salvation without faith or trust in God through our Lord Jesus Christ. "We are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it. Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered". Rom. 8:24-26. "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." 1 Cor. 13:13. But why is charity (love) greater than faith or hope? Because love preceded both faith and hope. There would have never been either faith or hope offered to man had it not been for the love of the great God of all goodness. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil." John 3:16-19.

The word "world" is from the Greek word Kosmos, meaning "order, mankind or universe" and man with his order, world, or universe fell because of sin, back in the garden of Eden. This was before there was a promise made to man of a life to come. But man had no need of a promised life as long as he had a right to eat of the tree of life.

Hope was not expressed in words before man sinned. After he sinned and fell God promised a Redeemer. Eternal life was promised in this Redeemer. "In Hope of aionian Life, which God, who is never false, announced before aionian times." Titus 1:2, Diag. "In Faith we perceive that the ages have been so thoroughly adjusted by God's command." Heb. 11:3, Diag. "Aionian properly signifies ages, or periods of time, and as justly observed by Wakefield, Sykes" and others. Diag. footnotes.

We find the first word of promise recorded in Gen. 3:15. "And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." The hope of eternal life promised in the Seed of the woman must be developed in God's due time. The hope of life was in God, not in Adam for death now worked in him. But God begins to inspire faith and hope in Adam and Eve in regard to this promised Seed. In type He sets before them the slain lamb. "Unto Adam also and to his wife did the LORD God make coats of skins, and clothed them." Gen. 3:21. "And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the LORD had respect unto Abel and his offering." Gen. 4:4. And on down the age the people of God offered lambs in sacrifice as a type of Christ until He was crucified on the cross. We are redeemed "with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." 1 Peter 1:19. "Foreknown, indeed, before the Foundation of the world, but manifested in these Last TIMES on YOUR account." 1 Peter 1:20, Diag.

When Adam and Eve sinned God laid, or cast down their world, order, or universe. The lamb was killed in the time of the casting down of that order or world. As proof that there was a world cast down I give the following quotation: "And ALL who DWELL on the EARTH shall worship him, Whose NAME has not been written from the FOUNDATION of the World in the SCROLL of the LIFE of THAT LAMB who was killed." Rev. 13:8, Diag. But now "Christ in you the hope of glory," Col. 1:23-27, "which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entereth into that within the veil; whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec." Heb. 6:19-20.

Adam lost his world, or order because of sin. The old world was destroyed by water because of sin. The present evil world will be destroyed or cast down because of sin, but Christ the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world will destroy death, bruise Satan's head, make all things new. He will reign until He puts all enemies under His feet; then deliver up the kingdom to His Father and become as one of us that God may be all in all. Even so amen and amen.

"But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not by and by.

"Then said he unto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom:

"And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and famines, and pestilences; and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from heaven."—Luke 21:9-11,

"BLESSED ARE THEY WHICH DO HUNGER AND THIRST AFTER RIGHTEOUSNESS: FOR THEY SHALL BE FILLED."—Matt. 5:6.

DURING THE MONTH of October considerable interest was felt concerning the self-denial effort of the Bereans in Illinois.

We know that many have been desirous of knowing how much was received and sent in to the chairman of our national relief work, and we are glad to report the sum of $75.53.

We are deeply grateful for the cooperation of one and all in this labor of love. The relief committee have also expressed their appreciation, and many prayers of those in need will be answered because of these sacrifices. But best of all is the lesson of unselfishness well-learned, and the blessing of God which attends. May we never forget the pleasure of real sacrifice.

The following contributions are from our Indiana Bereans, the first from a senior class member and the second from one of the juniors.

HOW OUR CONDUCT INFLUENCES CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

The question was asked me, "Should we allow young people who smoke cigarettes, or cheat in school, to attend our conferences?"

We Christians are the ones to set the example. We do not know, in our daily walk, who is following in our footsteps, and in order that these young people may see the right way, they should be allowed to attend our conferences.

For illustration let us take the history of a dishonest child. Did his life work prove successful?

Children who get "A" in their school work are not in every case successful winners. In some cases they may be obtaining help from someone else. Are they going to be able to help themselves as they grow older?

A child cheated in school, and he made a good grade, but through life he was dishonest. When he became grown he did not succeed in life, and he became unhappy. The door was shut, and he did not enter in.

Another child did not make the best grades, but he put into it all he could, and he climbed the ladder with success because he lived an honest life. The door was open, and he entered in.

The ten virgins (Matt. 25:1-13) took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom. Five of them were wise and five were foolish. The five that were foolish took lamps, but had no oil with them. The wise ones took oil in their vessels, and at midnight there was a cry made, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him."

The foolish said unto the wise, "Give us of your oil; for our lamps are gone out." But the wise answered, saying, "Not so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves." And while they went to buy the Bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with Him to the marriage: and the door was shut.

Here is the lesson of the foolish who put off till tomorrow what should be done to-day, with the expectation of getting from someone else what they could get themselves. The door was shut, and they did not enter in.

Matt. 25:13. "Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh."

STRIVING TO BE LIKE JESUS

I am striving to be like Jesus. To do this I must learn to love others as I do myself.

In order to love them I must be kind to them. You can not love them if you do not speak kindly, and you should be true and just to everyone just like Jesus was. Do not turn them down and go with one person all the time.

You should forgive others, as Jesus did. We must forgive everyone if we expect to be forgiven.

—Marguerite Zechiel

"What asks our Father of His children, save
Justice and mercy and humility,
A reasonable service of good deeds,
Pure living, tenderness to human needs,
Reverence and trust, and prayer for light to see
The Master's footprints in our daily ways?"

THE HOLY SPIRIT

As JESUS and His disciples took their last supper together the disciples' hearts were filled with sorrow because Jesus told them that He was going away. He also told them that the time was coming when they would be persecuted and perhaps killed for His sake. He wanted them to be brave and faithful to Him when He was not there.

He said it was better for them that He should go away. He promised that if He went away He would send a Comforter to them. He told them the Comforter would comfort them when they were sad, help them bear their troubles and show them the way, the truth and the life.

This Comforter is God's Holy Spirit, which teaches us and helps us to understand. Paul wrote to the Romans, "As many as are led by the Spirit of God are the sons of God."

He tried to show them that if they wished to be the children of God they must obey their heavenly Father. The Holy Spirit helps the weak to be strong and teaches us what to pray for and how to live.

God loves us and if we love Him even in sorrow we may be sure that all things work together for our real good. Paul in his prison, suffering sorrow and persecution, was sure of this. He knew he was one of God's children because he loved the things that God loved. He thought of Jesus as a great, kind, powerful Friend who was always near and this made Paul brave and strong.

VERBATIM REPLIES OF HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS

How many of our children under twelve years of age could give better answers than these high school students gave?

SOME TIME AGO The California Voice published a short account of Biblical questions submitted to a number of high schools.

Mrs. Helen E. Eckels, author of the questionnaire, and who received the replies, furnished The California Voice with some of the replies showing the Biblical wisdom of some of the pupils of our own Bibleless schools. The following are copies verbatim:

Question: "Give the substance of the 10 Commandments?"

Answers: "Thou shalt not bother thy neighbor's wife."
"Thou shalt not commit suicide." "Thou shalt not fight."

The question relative to Moses was answered as follows:

"Was Christ's father."
"Creator of 10 Commandments."
"Jesus' mother was wife of Moses."
"Was called to Calvary to get 10 Commandments."
"Was the forerunner of Christ."
"Was put in cradle of river Styx."

"The event in Jesus' life that connected Him with important Bible history was:

"His establishment of the Catholics."
"God sent Jesus to earth to teach the laws."
"His body was taken by the angels three days after death."

"He wrote 10 Commandments with lightning from a rock."

"His mother was Mrs. Christ."

GETHSEMANE IS:

"A book of the Bible."
"Was killed by David."
"One of the disciples."
"Where Jesus fasted 40 days and 40 nights."
"An organization at time of Christ."
"A woman who helped God."

THE JORDAN IS:

"A river you go over when you die."
"Was swallowed by a sea monster."
"Where Moses led children of Israel from Pharaoh."
"Where Moses was baptized."

THE HOLY SPIRIT

Joel 2:28, 29; Luke 11:9-13; John 3:5-8; 14:16, 17, 26; 15:26, 27; 16:7-15; Acts 2:1-21, 32, 33; Rom. 8:1-17, 26, 27; 1 Cor. 12:1-13; Eph. 1:13, 14; 3:14-21; 4:1-6, 30.

Devotional Reading: John 14:25-31.

GOLDEN TEXT

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—
Rom. 8:14.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Definition. Jesus Himself used various terms to express and define the meaning and service of Holy Spirit. "Comforter", John 14:16, which means Helper, or Advocate, as given in Lexicon and as used in other translations, is by Jesus in the following verse defined as "the Spirit of truth", and in verse 26 He defined "Comforter" as "the Holy (Ghost) Spirit". The phrase "Spirit of truth" in v. 17, as also in 15:26, is a genitive phrase, the word "of" being supplied in the English as a sign of the genitive. The phrase might well read "the truth Spirit". The pronouns "whom" and "him" throughout John 14:17 are, in the Gr., spelled in the neuter gender. The same is also true in most, if not all places where the pronoun "he" refers to Holy Spirit. For this reason several recent translations, including the Diag., translate the words of 14:17 and elsewhere as "which" and "it". Accordingly, the Diag. renders this verse "the Spirit of truth, which the world cannot receive, because it beholds it not, nor knows it; but you know it; because it abides with you and will be in you." Holy Spirit, then, may well be defined as that characteristic or principle emanating from God which is to help and direct Christ's followers in the truth of life. It is measured in differing amounts and for diverse abilities to different individuals. 1. Cor. 12.

The Manner of its Reception. "The world cannot receive" it. John 14:17. It is a gift of God. John 14:16. It was given to holy men of old. 2 Pet. 1:21. Notice that "holy men" were holy before they were moved by the Holy Spirit. The apostles were also holy, i. e. set apart. Jesus commanded them to tarry, Luke 24:49, "until ye be endued with power from on high". They tarried in an upper room, engaged in prayer and supplication. Acts 1:14. Such continued devotion so influenced their lives, drawing them unto God, Himself, as to make them ready recipients of God's Spirit when given by Christ at Pentecost. Earnest, prayerful, and continued study of God's Word to-day likewise sets apart and moulds present life as to make it also a ready receiver of this same gift of God. Rom. 8:1-11. The gift of the Spirit is receivable only by those who are set aside, made holy, through approach to God.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Holy Spirit. It was expedient for the disciples that Jesus go away because after His departure the Holy Spirit would be sent. This special power from God came on the day of Pentecost, giving them ability to speak in different languages, to perform miracles and bringing all things to their remembrance. It was a very practical and valuable power to them.

We to-day do not have the miraculous powers that were given them. They needed them to establish truth, which was successfully done for all time. But according to John 6:63 the words of Jesus are Spirit; and by Rom. 8:9, we learn that if any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of His. In proportion then, as we are guided and directed in life by the teachings of Christ we are led by the Spirit. It is indeed a practical influence in the daily life of a Christian.—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For as many as by God's Spirit are being led, the same are God's sons."—Rom. 8:14, Roth.

What a wonderful privilege to be called "sons of God," who walk not after the flesh but after the Spirit! For every one who is conducted, assisted, and governed by the light and influence of God's Spirit on his mind, will, affection, conversation, etc., is entitled to life and immortality by having been adopted into the family of God by faith and obedience in His Son.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Sonship.

"And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." Luke 1:35.

This scripture reveals the secret of Jesus' Sonship to God. Because God chose to exercise His power in a special way in His conception and birth Jesus came into the world endowed with the right of being called God's Son. Sonship to God is not established by physical birth, but by being led by the Spirit (or mind) of God, Rom. 8:14, but the exercise of God's power in the physical birth of Jesus made this leading fully possible for the first time, and because of it the Spirit could be and was given to Jesus without measure, as He grew in favor with God and man. In Jesus, every unfolding of the powers of body and mind found and responded to its corresponding leading of God's Spirit, so that there was no transgression of God's law in their use. Sonship to God is communion and fellowship with Him in His thoughts and ways and purpose. With this Sonship brought within the reach of man's consciousness in the person of Jesus, and with the drawing power of His love, in understanding sympathy and forgiveness man can be drawn up to sonship with the Father, though he does not have the action of God's power in a special way in his physical birth. But even this exercise of power may be involved in man's sonship as it was in Jesus', for Jesus often performed physical cures clothing men in their right minds and thus setting them on the way to glorifying God as Father and therefore to sonship.

Jesus is the Savior and God gave Him to the world and the salvation He gives is sonship.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Our Helper.

"The Holy Spirit" the subject of to-day's lesson, is a very hard term to explain, should we try to define it in definite terms. One instance we have of the works of the Holy Spirit was manifested on the day of Pentecost, as the disciples were gathered in an upper room. Read this story if you do not already know it. Acts 2:1-6. Tell the results of the work of the Holy Spirit in these references. In the first part of our lesson, John 16:7-15, how is the Holy Spirit described as our helper, also in John 14:26-27?

Now the Holy Spirit may not be given to us in the same manner as it was given on that day, but we know the Spirit of God is with us even to-day, if we have faith. We may not be able to describe the Holy Spirit, but I'm sure each one will be able to recognize the works of it in his own life. Not only in this life, but in Romans 8:11, what work is described?

If we accept the Holy Spirit as our helper or guide what reward is promised in Romans 8:14-18? Is it not worth working for?—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

God's Fatherhood: through whom revealed? Why not through Adam? What is sonship to God? If God had left off His work with the physical creation of man, would He have been a Father and would He have had His Son Jesus and other sons through Him? What lesson in this for human parents?

—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. Frederick Claussen, a deacon in the Oregon church, has been quite sick with the flu for the past two weeks, but appears to be well on the road to recovery.

Word has been received of the sad death of Sister Emma Jackman, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Sister Jackman was for many years secretary of the Michigan conference.

Sister Jessie Wilson, 625 Long Ave., Chicago, has been very sick with the flu, but is now on the mend. She was very fortunate in securing Sister Maybelle Hanson for a nurse.

The Bible Training Class is working along nicely again. Due to the severe weather the Nebraska young folks were delayed in getting back so that school opened a day late, Jan. 7th.

Bro. F. A. Stilson returned Jan. 13, from South Bend, Ind., where he had been in attendance at the funeral of Sr. Stilson's mother, Mrs. Hugh Shafer. Sr. Stilson will return in a few days.

The Golden Rule Greenhouse has been rushed with orders for flowers. So many funerals and so little sunshine to open blossoms have resulted in wholesale flowers being scarce and very expensive.

Sister Jackson, matron of Golden Rule Home, was called to Wisconsin on Jan. 10, by the serious illness of her sister and her father. News of the death of her sister came from Sr. Jackson after her arrival.

Sister Margaret Lyon, after spending a two weeks' vacation at her parents' home in Citronelle, Alabama, is back at work again in Chicago. She reports a very enjoyable Christmas, the first Christmas with her family for several years.

A message from Ripley, Illinois brings news of the death of Sister Susie Kirkham. Sister Kirkham has been in poor health for a few years past, but under the insulin treatment had made noticeable improvement so that her death comes as quite a shock.

The annual business meeting at the Oregon church was held on Thursday night, January 10, with quite a good representation of the church membership present. Officers for the church and Sunday School were selected, and plans discussed for the coming year's work.

Sr. Verna Thayer of Aurora, Ill., recently suffered another severe attack of the former distressing pain in her head. While in attendance at the funeral of her mother, Sr. Shafer, she consulted her physician and the cause of the pain was located and greatly relieved.

Bro. F. L. Austin started a series of meetings at the Grand Rapids church last Sunday to continue for two weeks or longer. This is a part of the program for General Conference field work. Other places needing such services should correspond with this office at once. Please turn to third page of this issue and read the item on "Field Work."

On Saturday, January 12, Sister F. E. Siple received a telegram informing her that her mother, Sister Clara Smith of Adrian, Mich., was submitting to an operation for appendicitis.

A later long distance call stated that the operation revealed a ruptured appendix and a very serious condition. Sister Siple went on Sunday to be at her mother's side.

Dr. A. R. Bickenback, retired minister of the Presbyterian church, kindly granted a request and appeared before the Bible Training Class on Jan. 11, giving an hour's discourse on why he believes some things that are very different from what we as a people hold. His work was appreciated very much by the class, and especially the spirit in which it was given.

Sr. M. A. Woodward has been confined to her bed for about three weeks at the home of Sister Leila Whitehead, 5439 Ohio St., Chicago, but she hopes to be up and around in a few days now. A very severe attack of "flu" seemed to leave her very weak.

Sisters F. L. Austin and Leila Whitehead have also been off duty the past week, gaining strength after the same difficulty.

On Sunday, Jan. 13, Bro. F. L. Austin expects to begin evangelistic services at the Church of God at Grand Rapids, Mich. The pastor, Bro. C. E. Randall, and the whole church body are making diligent efforts in preparing for this meeting to make it the most beneficial possible. Public services will be held every evening during the progress of the meetings, excepting Monday evening the 21st and Monday evenings thereafter, and on Sunday mornings. This church is situated at the corner of Jefferson Ave., and Abbie St., in So. Grand Rapids. All who can make it convenient are invited to attend these services. The prayers of all are requested for God's guidance in this labor and the personal cooperation of many is earnestly solicited.

APPRECIATIONS AND EXPLANATIONS

By F. L. Austin

In behalf of my wife and for myself I hereby express heartiest appreciation for the many "Best Wishes" which we have received from all parts of the country. It is highly edifying to be made to realize that the hearts of so many good people are with us.

As an explanation that because of my position is justly due to all members of the church, I wish to say that Mrs. Austin, who is a teacher in the Chicago schools, will, in compliance with certain rules of that school system, continue teaching for a time. Accordingly, while I am engaged in Field Work for the General Conference, and thus constantly moving from place to place, I will make this city my address for personal mail. All such may be addressed to me at 5439 Ohio St., Austin Sta., Chicago, Ill. But all matters pertaining to the workings of the National Bible Institution should be addressed as formerly to Oregon, where all such are handled. Should my attention be especially sought on any subject the mail should be addressed to the National Bible Institution in the regular way and at the lower left hand corner of the envelope the words, "Attention of F. L. Austin" added. All such mail will be promptly forwarded to me wherever I may be at the time.

As heretofore the program for Field Work must needs be made to harmonize with the requirements of the office of Executive Secretary. Therefore, whenever necessary to keep in touch with the N. B. I. workings and whenever necessary in order to study and formulate plans in the interests of the cause as a whole, the program must needs provide for time to work at the Oregon office.

NORTHWESTERN CONFERENCE

The quarterly meeting of the Northwestern Conference of the Churches of God will convene January 19th and 20th, 1929 at Corvallis, Oregon.

Bro. A. W. Darby, state evangelist, will be the speaker. Every one invited. Come and help make this our best conference.

Gladys Barber, Sec'y.

TEXAS

Meetings were held with splendid interest at Winters, the first Saturday night and Sunday in December; Mullin on the second Saturday night and Sunday; Westbrook on the third Saturday night and Sunday; and at Lystra the fourth Saturday night and Sunday.

On account of sickness our work on the church building near Sweetwater has been delayed, but it will be finished by the first Sunday in January. So we will have meeting there each first Sunday from then on, unless called away for evangelistic meetings.

E. O. Stewart.

Communication has been received from Bro. James A. Patrick stating that he expects to arrive in Niagara Falls to again conduct services here and at Fonthill, beginning Jan. 20.

We are anxiously looking forward to that date.

MICHIGAN

Word comes from Blanchard that the church work is growing and all feel that Bro. Allen is doing splendid work for the Master. The church members had a very pleasant Christmas Eve together, after which Bro. Allen gave a most inspiring talk on the Christmas theme.

COMMUNICATION

Bro. Edwin Dopp was baptized in Blanchard, Mich., Nov. 11, 1928, by Bro. Allen. We are so rejoiced that even at the eleventh hour, dear old faithful Sr. Dopp's prayers have been answered, although she fell asleep before he had taken the sacred name of Jesus upon himself. She will be so rejoiced to meet him when the graves are opened, and he meets her at the blessed resurrection.

Bro. Dopp is of a very quiet and retiring disposition, very deaf and for many years he has enjoyed the quiet of home. If he lives until Feb. 15, he will be 89 years old. Since the death of Sr. Dopp last fall, the Bible and the Herald are his daily companions. His home is at Mt. Pleasant, Mich. He is so thankful to Bro. and Sr. Decker and to Sr. Mary Munn, who so kindly assisted in the baptismal ceremony.

All I could do when I first heard the glad news was to shout, "Glory to God! He's on his journey home."

May God bless him and give him sweet joy and rest in his old age is our prayer.

M. A. Woodward.

OBITUARIES

MRS. MATTIE MATTHEWS

Sin's devious ways were again brought strikingly to view when on Christmas Day there occurred at the Welland Hospital, Welland, Ontario, the death of Sr. Mattie Matthews who was in the apparent prime of womanhood.

Martha Agnes Matthews was born to James Albert and Mary Railton, at Fonthill, Ontario, on December 1, 1894. She was united in marriage with William Robert Matthews on August 12, 1914. To this marriage was born one daughter, Ruth Mary Aileen.

Before marriage the deceased had taken training and graduated as a nurse. Though in her married life she was an earnest homemaker, first on a fruit farm, afterward in the village of Fonthill, yet she often responded to calls upon her professional services, in which services she deeply ingratiated herself with many. She was especially a friend of little children.

In early life Mattie became an avowed follower of the Lord, uniting for His service with the Church of God at Fonthill where her father and mother were zealous Christian workers. Mattie continued in this service.

She was nicely recovering at her home from a recent stroke of apoplexy and was moved to the hospital for certain attention that could the better be given there. She was there but a day or two, and was buoyant and joyful when, with but a moment's warning she suffered a second and severe stroke. Till her death two days later she did not recover from unconsciousness which immediately resulted.

Her husband, daughter, and only brother, John Railton of Oregon, Illinois, many other relatives and a large number of friends, deeply mourn her untimely death. Her life's hope in Him who is "the resurrection and the life", is the hope of her bereaved ones. May He soon come "unto salvation."

WILLIAM MARTIN

The Church of God at Guthrie Grove was made sad by the death of our aged and beloved Bro. W. M. Martin, Dec. 27. He was 76 years of age and had been in failing health for better than a year. He was among the first members after the church was organized. He made his home with his son, Bro. Thomas Martin, and his wife who are members of Guthrie Grove church.

He leaves three sons and three daughters, one sister, who with the church will miss him. His wife was buried Jan. 10, 1926. His sons are: J. C. Martin, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Thomas, Williamstown, R. 2; William Woodville, Grenville, S. C. The daughters are Mrs. Sarah Winningham, Belton, S. C.; Louise Bolinger, Belton, S. C., Linnie Ashley, Williamston, S. C.

The writer spoke words of comfort to the friends and loved ones from Paul's words, "In Christ shall all be made alive. Every man in his own order." Herein lies words of comfort to every true believer, realizing we all die in Adam and all are made alive in Christ. Every man in his own order, or, as Paul would have it, as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. Jesus says all power is given to Him in heaven and earth. Shall I, mortal man, dispute His sacred word by saying He will not resurrect all? Let us crown Him Lord of all. Our prayer then should be, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as in heaven."

Your brother in the hope of eternal life when Jesus comes. M. O. Williamson.

SR. HIMMELRIGHT

Lucinda E. Evans Himmelright, the daughter of David D. and Catherine Evans, was born in Jordan Township, Warren County, Indiana, April 27, 1863. Her death occurred at her home in Attica, Indiana, December 19, 1928.

She was married to George Himmelright on March 17, 1897. To this union were born two daughters, Melvina and Verna May. Her husband and daughter Melvina preceded her in death by several years. In her early twenties, she united with the Church of God in Jordan Township, known as Pleasant View, to which she remained true to the end, and of which she was an ardent supporter.

Sr. Himmelright was one who was often called in time of sickness to help minister to the suffering, and these calls were gladly answered, and "she did what she could." She spent the greater part of her life in Jordan Township till after the death of her husband. She then went to Bloomington, Indiana so that her daughter might complete her education, after which they came to Attica.

Mrs. Himmelright leaves to mourn her loss her ever faithful daughter, Verna, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Emma Davis, Attica; Mrs. Lydia Railsback, South Bend; Mrs. Ida Thompson, Gary; Mrs. Rosale Cochran, Whitestown; Francis M. Evans, Walton; Armstrong Evans, Williamsport, Indiana; and Mrs. Jane Swisher, Campus, Illinois, and a host of distant relatives and friends. She sleeps in Jesus to await the call of the Master.

Funeral service was conducted at the home in Attica by Eld. F. L. Austin, followed by interment at the Pence Cemetery.

THE ISSUE IS CLEAN-CUT

THE ISSUE between the Fundamentalists and Modernists is clean-cut. We will give you both sides. "Choose ye" which ye will accept. Here is Modern Radicalism. The text is: "Teachers have itching ears." The substance is:

1. The Bible contains SOME of the words of God.
2. Jesus Christ is A SON of God in the sense that all men are.
3. The birth of Christ was natural; Joseph was his real father.

4. The death of Jesus was but an example.
5. Man is the product of EVOLUTION.
6. Man is the unfortunate victim of environment and the recurrence of ancestral animal and human traits, but through SELF-CULTURE can make good.
7. Man is justified by WORKS in following Christ's human example; result, natural development from WITH-IN.
8. Denial of the inspiration of the Bible, and the truth of miracles to a greater or less degree.

THE LANDING OF JESUS CHRIST AND ALL HIS SAINTS

spiritual body. The last trumpet is the trumpet that Jesus sounds when He calls the saints to wake up and meet Him in the clouds of heaven. 1 Thess. 4:17. In other words, He shall send forth His angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together His elect from the four winds, from one end of the heaven to the other, Matt. 24:31, but our enemy, death, holds the wicked until after the thousand year reign of Christ, and then all shall come forth to the judgment to be judged. Rev. 20:5, 13.

Shall we come back, or be raised in the flesh? Let Job tell us! Job 19:26, "And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." We must wait till Jesus comes to be quickened from the dead, for there are false preachers who believe and preach that the resurrection is past already. 2 Tim. 2:18. The mortal body is the one that dies, for when we are born of the Spirit we cannot die any more, and in that day (the millennium day) they shall live and reign with Christ a thousand years. Rev. 20:4. We cannot have both bodies at the same time. We have the natural body now, afterward, when Jesus comes, the saints will have the spiritual body. Those will hear the trumpet trumping; those will be with Jesus on the mount of Olives, and help Him fight the battle of Armageddon. Zech. 14:3.

"Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his maker?" Job. 4:17. This is proof that man is mortal and it is mortal men that die. At the first resurrection mortal men put on immortality. The resurrection is not come to pass yet, therefore no man has immortality, but must wait till the appearing of our Lord Christ Jesus, "who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see: to whom be honour and power everlasting. Amen."

The first trumpet sounded when the German World War commenced. Rev. 8:7. "And the second angel sounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea: and the third part of the sea became blood; and the third part of the creatures which were in the sea, and had life, died; and the third part of the ships were destroyed." Rev. 8:8, 9. The prophet saw the submarines and called them creatures. "And the third angel sounded, and there fell a great star from heaven . . ." And millions of people died of the "flu". "And the fourth angel sounded, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so as the third part of them was darkened, . . . and the night likewise." Rev. 8:12. This means the falling of the saints from grace: for "some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils." 1 Tim. 4:7.

The sun, moon, and stars, meant the chosen people of God. Gen. 37:10.

I believe the fifth angel is now sounding, and has something to do with the aeroplanes. Rev. 9:9, 10. Soon the sixth angel will begin to sound his trumpet, when all nations will be gathered against Jerusalem to battle. Zech. 14:2; Rev. 9:15, 16. But before the battle commences or just before the battle is ended the saints are caught up to meet their Lord in the air in the clouds of heaven. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the prophets will be there, but no false believers will be there. Luke 13:27, 28. The mortal nations that are left shall even go up from year to year to worship the King. Zech. 14:16.

and control of the carnal mind to the promptings and control of the spiritual is man's resurrection. The resurrection thus begins with the awakening of man's consciousness to life in which grace and truth play a part, be that awakening ever so small. It progresses as God's love through Christ draws man's thinking away from self as its center, toward Himself and mankind as its field. As the spiritual mind develops in man his body, his soul (natural instinct life) and his spirit (thinking) all operate in accordance with God's purposes of love even as His own being operates. The resurrection is finished when the flesh itself is imbued with God's life either through a physical resurrection or through the change in the twinkling of an eye. In this finish the flesh literally shines with God's life.

The flesh imbued and controlled by instinct life is mortal, dying through its inevitable destructive works. The flesh imbued with God's life is immortal ever living through the ever abiding force of love and its inevitable constructive works. This is salvation through Jesus and it is man's before the physical resurrection just to the degree that the spiritual mind prompts and controls.

LET'S DO SOMETHING

By F. E. Siple

But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. James 1:22.

THE GREATEST WEAKNESS on the part of most of us, as pertains to service to God, is that we are continually thinking and planning that at some future time we shall do something. To-morrow, next week, next year we will.

This is true with reference to service we are hoping to render in a physical way for the advancement of the gospel, and it is true with reference to our financial contributions to the cause of truth. We cannot give as much as we had hoped this month, this year, but next year, or when our income is better and our expenses less! But all the while we postpone the part that belongs to God we buy the comforts and luxuries of life.

Suppose that next month, next year does not come to you or to me. It is God with whom we deal in the judgment. How ashamed we would be of our procrastination!

It is possible for us to make 1929 a record year of real service. Let us each boost with full strength the work in our local community, our state, our General Conference.

Let's do something!

A REAL SAVIOR

WITH A SHUDDER of sickening dread the boys stood on the bank and watched their comrade go down for the third time beneath the whirling current. He had fought bravely, but when the whirlpool caught him his strength was not sufficient. It was a losing fight, and not one of the boys on the shore dared risk the grip of that whirlpool in an effort to help. What a tense moment! What a dreadful end to a hilarious swimming party!

But, lo, just at this moment as if by chance a fine, athletic young man came walking along. Sensing the situation with a glance, without an instant of hesitation he threw off his coat and jumped into the pool. Bringing the boy to the surface he exerted every muscle in his fine young body, overcame the whirling current, and saved the lad from the grave in which he had sunk. Is it any wonder these boys always thereafter looked upon that young man as a super-man and held him in highest respect and honor?

But Jesus plunged into death itself to save you and me. He is a real Savior. Are we showing our appreciation?—F. E. S.

WHAT IS A SAVIOR?

SINCE A SAVIOR is one who rescues from danger or disaster it is impossible to appreciate one as filling that capacity until a genuine danger has been realized. You see a poisonous reptile about to strike a friend of yours in the back. With an unseen hand you reach forward, grasp the snake and hurl it away. You have saved your friend, but he having seen neither the snake or your act does not recognize you as a savior.

If, however, just before the fatal moment you step forward and kill the reptile and your friend sees how you have saved his life, or if the snake had already struck and you produce an unknown antidote and deliver the friend from agony and death, then you are hailed and appreciated as his savior.

In our case the snake had already struck. The serpent performed his work in the garden of Eden. We as members of the human race are writhing and twisting with the pain of sin and are facing sin's inevitable end,—death.

A savior, then, is one who can deliver. This kind of Savior Jesus Christ became. Seeing man's condition He brought forward the unknown antidote, His own life blood, and poured into the wound. By giving His own life He produced the cure for us, and now offers it freely.

If within your heart there does not well up a full appreciation, it is definite evidence that you have not realized to the full what He has done for you. Meditate upon this Savior. The more one studies Him the more one loves and appreciates Him.—F. E. S.

WHY?

"I will sing unto the Lord, because He hath dealt bountifully with me." Psa. 13:6.

IT IS REFRESHING to read such words which show a full appreciation of God's great favors. So many of us are prone to travel along life's road with little thought of all our blessings and even life itself being gifts from Another.

The Christian has a right to be the happiest person in the world. He realizes God's love, he recognizes His favors, and he understands His promises.

Ah, indeed, God "hath dealt bountifully" with us!

PESSIMISM OR OPTIMISM?

SO MUCH discussion has passed on the subject of whether the world is getting better or worse that a little careful thought on the matter is very much in order. Pertinent to this question we are glad to give you the following editorial from "Our Hope":

A DOOMED WORLD

"Many a sermon has been preached from Adventist pulpits based on the proposition that the world is getting steadily worse. This conclusion has been hotly denied from some quarters and inasmuch as it is easy to collect data for either side, and the world is rather a large place, no definite settlement of the question is yet in sight. To thus sit in judgment upon the human race implies a considerable knowledge of history and an accurate balancing of trends in different nations and localities. It is not the purpose of this article to attempt a settlement of the controversy.

"In the Scriptures we have predictions that 'in the last days perilous times shall come,' and that 'evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived.' As Adventists we believe in taking the Bible as it reads, and many of our people have felt that these prophecies were being fulfilled in their day and constituted an important sign of the times. As a people we do not believe that the world is gradually evolving into a perfect society. We believe in facing reality as we find it, and in calling things by their right names.

"But there are subtle dangers in this viewpoint of which we may well take heed. There is the danger of pessimism. Every age has known some naturally despondent people who could see nothing but ruin ahead. Doubtless many in the early church thought they saw Paul's prophecies fulfilled in the decay of the Roman civilization. Old Babylonian tablets have recently been unearthed bearing the inscription, 'Times are growing worse and worse, and the end of all things must certainly be at hand.' To him who wears dark glasses, all the world is gloomy. Let us distinguish between prophecy and pessimism. We need to beware of a pessimism which can see nothing good or praiseworthy in the world about us. Wrote Paul, 'If there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things.'

"Another subtle danger in the view that the world is growing worse is the easy assumption that the young folks of to-day are therefore and of necessity below par. Plenty of young people are going wrong in these days, but the basic trouble is not the time in which they were born. Youth to-day is as noble and fine as ever. Youth still sees visions and goes confidently forth to solve the problems that have baffled previous generations. Let us not be cynical of youth, however changed or 'modern' it may appear.

"If the world is getting worse, what shall we do about it? There is danger lest we conclude that nothing can be done and stop trying. If things are going to smash anyway, is any effort to save them worthwhile? If a ship were about to sink in mid-ocean, what would you think of a captain and crew who said that? Let us man the lifeboats and save as many as we can from the impending doom.

"But these dark shadows are not the central theme in the message of Adventism. The darkest hour is just before the dawn. We are the biggest optimists in the world, for our message is of a Golden Age just ahead—not one to be marred and overthrown by sin and death, but one where Christ shall reign as King over the new earth where all evil has been destroyed. Take off your dark glasses and get a glimpse of the glory just ahead!

"We are not commissioned by our Captain to supinely wait for this Golden Age with folded hands. He said, 'Occupy till I come.' There is work to be done. There are souls to be saved. There is a message to be proclaimed. Until He comes, let us strive to make this world of ours the best place we can, and prepare men everywhere for life in that glorious future kingdom."

Whatever happens, don't be a pessimist. If it is a fact that in many ways the world is getting worse instead of better, accept these things as fulfillments of prophecy and omens of a coming day of victory. Learn to enjoy the good there is in the world and even to see some benefit or ultimate good from the evil and life will mean more to you and you will mean more to your fellowman,—and to your God.—F. E. S.

MATERIAL AND IMMATERIAL

By Jas. A. Patrick

THERE ARE MANY questions concerning the nature of man and his condition in resurrection that would fall into their proper spheres without discussion, if the questions touching the correlation of the material and the immaterial were definitely determined. May I here be allowed to quote from "Positive Theology" by Miles Grant, who, I consider, was one of the most versatile and logical writers the Advent Christian people ever had among them.

"Everything is either material or immaterial; either an entity, or the property of an entity; a personality, or an attribute of a personality. By entity is meant a 'real being or existence'. By property, is meant some peculiar quality of the entity, which exists because of the existence of the entity. By attribute, is meant the same thing, though perhaps more properly applied to living intelligent beings. . . .

"Pain, sorrow, hatred, thought, life, desire, sympathy, etc., are attributes, of certain living entities; but when the entities are destroyed, the peculiar attributes perish at the same time.

PROPOSITIONS

"1. Mind is always correlated with a living organism.

"2. Where there is no living organism, there is no mind.

"3. In man, the brain, the thinking organ, existed before thought; then it inevitably follows, that when the thinking organ dies, all thinking will cease. This is scientific and Biblical; also in harmony with common sense, and all known facts."

Most, if not all, of our people will accede the foregoing so far as the present life is concerned; but when we consider the future state, I fear there are some dissenters. Yes, I have been alarmed at the spiritualistic tendencies of some of our people, lately.

It seems to me that our future condition can easily be determined by a careful study of Christ's condition after He rose from the dead. I think that what Bro. Grant said about "In man, the brain, the thinking organ, existed before thought", with most of our folks, will apply to Christ. He was made in all things like unto His brethren. Heb. 2:17. It is sure, that in His case when the brain ceased to function, mind ceased, and mind came again when the physical began to function after resurrection. If this was true of Him, and it was, it will be equally true of us, for this vile body shall be changed (not EX-changed) and fashioned like unto His glorious body, Phil. 2:21.

Christ had the same flesh and bone body in resurrection that He had before. "So also is the resurrection of the dead. . . . It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body." 1 Cor. 15:42, 44. What is raised a spiritual body? The same body that is sown, or language has no meaning. So it is just as impossible for there to be mind apart from the physical organism, as it is for there to be sight, voice, hearing, etc., apart from the physical organism.

If there can be mind and thought at and after resurrection, apart from the physical organism, as some contend, why could there not be mind and thought apart from the physical organism at and after death? Those that hold the former position have no right to find fault with the spiritualists. One contention is just as logical as the other.

HEART

By Mrs. James Hendricks

THE HEART, what is it? Jeremiah the prophet in speaking of the heart says, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it? I the LORD search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruits of his doings. As the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at his end shall be a fool." Jer. 17:9-11.

Again we find that in choosing a king to reign over Israel, "the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart." 1 Sam. 16:7. David being chosen king by God and not by man said, "The LORD shall judge the people: judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness, and according to mine integrity that is in me." Psa. 7:8. So David realizing God will judge according to the heart says, "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." Psa. 139:23-24. When Solomon, son of David, took the throne to reign over Israel, David instructed his son: "know thou the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind: for the LORD searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts: if thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him he will cast thee off for ever." 1 Chron. 28:9.

Going on down through the streams of time we find that the prophet Isaiah spoke of where a Savior should be born, "For before the child shall know to refuse the evil, and choose the good." Isa. 7:16. Then Paul being chosen by God as an apostle says in Rom. 8:27, "And he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, because he maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God." John the divine had "the Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; . . . and I will kill her children with death; and all the churches shall know that I am he which searcheth the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according to your works."

So let us study Paul's teachings to the Corinthians: "Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God." 1 Cor. 4:5.

"HEIRS OF THE KINGDOM"

THE BIBLE SAYS that the saints are "heirs of the kingdom." Jas. 2:5. But as soon as we ask: "Of what kingdom are they heirs?" many conflicting replies are given. But James says it is the kingdom which God "hath PROMISED to them that love him." The "promised" kingdom is the one found in the promises of God. In all the promises of a kingdom, God never "promised" a kingdom for "disembodied spirits," at death, or at any other time! There are many promises of a kingdom—the kingdom—but they are to real, substantial men, and that kingdom belongs to post-resurrection scenes, not to the intermediate state, whatever its nature may be.

The speculation of a kingdom for disembodied men has passed through a number of revisions, and has lately passed about through another important revision. Here are the different phases of its history:

1. The old heathen taught a theory of a kingdom for "disembodied" men, or the existence of the "shades of the dead," and finally gave them personal forms, and assigned them a home in the bowels of the earth.

2. A part of the Jews adopted this heathen theory (it was coined by the heathen) while they were in captivity in Babylon, and tried to make it identical with the SHEOL of the Old Testament, and located it in the center of the earth.

This was a kingdom of ghosts shut up in the ground, with a gulf between the good and bad, and that was so narrow they could talk from shore to shore, but was so deep that a ghost could not fly over it!

3. When the church of God first received the theory of the disembodied existence of men, they also received the theory of a SHEOL-kingdom, called HADES by the Greeks. They also located it in the heart of the earth. But Inspiration, most emphatically, definitely, and unmistakably says: "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in SHEOL". Eccl. 9:10. So, if Sheol is really a receptacle for "disembodied" men, instead of corporeal men (as the Bible says it is), then the inhabitants are utterly destitute of knowledge and wisdom!

4. At a later date, and after much contention, the impression gained ascendancy that Christ went into Sheol in a "disembodied" state, and liberated all the good souls, and took them up to heaven, after which time all truly good men at death go straight to heaven, and all naughty good ones go to the same place where good souls used to go, now called "purgatory"; thus a part go to old Sheol to be prayed out, and a part go to heaven. This sounds strange to "Protestants," but they certainly have taught it.

5. There was still another class who disliked to give up the Sheol-kingdom. They still maintained that ALL souls went to Sheol at death, and none went to heaven. They changed the location of Sheol, and all the light that they could give about its new location was: "It is not in the bowels of the earth, nor is it in heaven." But, unfortunately they could never reconcile this idea with Jacob's language: "Then shall ye bring down (not up) my gray hairs with sorrow unto Sheol." Jacob's language indicates (1) that Sheol is not up, but "down," and (2) that it is a realm for the corporeal man, for "disembodied" men do not wear gray hairs!

6. Then there is another class, who despise this purgatory appendage, who seeing no authority for changing the location of Sheol, said that only the wicked went to Sheol. These converted Sheol into "hell"! They also claim that saints go to heaven at death. Thus, we see, the underground home of heathen "souls," Jewish "souls," and anti-Catholic "souls," was metamorphosed into "hell"!

7. At a subsequent date, this Sheol "hell" was removed from the bowels of the earth and placed somewhere else, but, NO ONE can tell where! So Sheol has been tossed from pillar to post, until it is like a boy's play-ball! It is a kingdom that has no certain dwelling-place. At one time it was an underground kingdom for "the shades of the dead" in general, then it took the name of Sheol, being somewhat improved by having a great gulf dug through it, to keep good and bad ghosts from mixing up, but having them within sight and hearing of each other! Then one part was converted into "hell", and the other made a beautiful "paradise"! Then all the inmates of the good part were transported to the skies, and this good department changed into purgatory, then Sheol entire was taken out of the ground, and in an attempt to locate it elsewhere, it has got lost, and can't be found.

For this unfortunate Sheol-kingdom, it is lost! It has gone through as many changes as the "Zion" of our Mormon friends. First, "Zion" was at Kirkland, Ohio. Secondly, it got to Jackson Co., Mo., later. And, thirdly, they took it to Salt Lake, Utah! But Sheol is actually lost, though the advocates of a Sheol-kingdom insist that it is NOT lost, on the principle the cook denied that the tea-kettle was lost that had fallen overboard, because it was somewhere in the bottom of the sea, though he could not tell where. So they tell us that Sheol is somewhere, and, therefore, not lost; but whether it is lost or not, theologians have so fully lost track of it, they dare not say it is here or there.

8. And now, in opposition to the old worn-out Sheol-kingdom theory, the theologians have manufactured a sky-kingdom theory for "disembodied" souls, or spirits. This is rather a new version of the matter! They have set aside the "hell" and "heaven" theories, and introduced spheres in their stead, and these spheres consist not in locality, but grades of development by progression. This view has become more and more popular.

But, we must file some stalwart objections against this theory.

First: The "heirs" of this "promised" kingdom instead of being a class of deathless spiritmen, are a class of material men, once in possession of a dying nature, to be exchanged for immortality before they enter the kingdom, for Jesus says: "They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, . . . neither can they die any more". Luke 20:35-36. These heirs could once die, which is not true of deathless souls.

Secondly: The "promised" kingdom is not due at death, nor until the day of judgment arrives. Our Lord "shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom." 2 Tim. 4:1. A Sheol-kingdom of unjudged men would be an undesirable locality, for, do we not read: "O Sheol, I will be thy destruction"? Hosea 13:13.

The theology of "disembodied" souls or spirits being "heirs" of anything is wrong, not to say a word about their inheriting the blessed coming kingdom. That theology has done more to darken the minds of Bible students and preachers than most any one other false doctrine.

—Messiah's Advocate.

THE PRESENT WORLD SITUATION

By Linden J. Carter

ACCORDING to the Dawn, the following language was used by Lord Rosebery in addressing the assembled journalists of the British Empire early in the year 1914: "We are living in a hush in which you might hear a leaf fall. The crushing burden of armaments suggests the coming of 'the distress of nations,' which is to be a 'sign of the end.' There never was, in the history of the world, so threatening and so overpowering a preparation for war."

We all know something of what has taken place since 1914, and how, after the World War, the nations of earth are still distressed and perplexed. And well they may be, in view of certain world conditions which have either resulted from or been intensified by the war.

For instance, there has been a diminishing of respect for the white race, and for Christianity since those awful days of carnage; and it is interesting to note the great awakening of the Orient with its teeming millions. About one-half of the world's population is in three countries: India, China, and Japan; India with its unrest, China with its national aspirations, Japan with its militarism.

Napoleon once said of China: "The giant sleeps: let him sleep." But China is awakening. Chiang Kai-shek is quoted as saying that "in fifteen years China will have an army and navy equal to any in the world" (Times, July 19, 1928, and quoted in the Dawn).

Then we have the revival of Roman dictatorship in Italy with its dire possibilities, and perhaps even more serious the peril of Russian Bolshevism. In Pastors, Politicians, Pacifists, a copyrighted book put out by "The Constructive Educational Publishing Co.," Chicago, reference is made to the Red army of Russia, from which we quote as follows: "The military authorities of not only the United States, but of all European governments, rate the strength of the Red army higher than that of the Imperial German army before the war. No country even approaches the strength of its land forces."

This same book quotes Lunatcharsky, Commissar of Public Instruction, under the Soviet government, as saying: "Why ought we believe in God? We hate Christianity and Christians; even the best of them must be regarded as our enemies. They preach love of one's neighbor, and pity, which is contrary to our principles. Christian love is a hindrance to the development of the revolution. Down with love of our neighbor; what we want is hate. We must know how to hate, for only so can we conquer the universe."

In the light of the world situation since the war, we are not surprised that the statesmen feel concerned for the future of civilization. With the new inventions for wholesale slaughter we shudder at the thought of another world war. And we are interested in the peace conferences and in the latest plan to abolish war—except for self-defense. It is a perplexing situation that confronts the nations of earth, and the coming days are full of possibilities.

We may well pray for "the powers that be," and rejoice over anything that may serve to hold back the winds of war. The outlook, however, is not without its shadows, and we need not be surprised if the distress and perplexity continued for a while longer. But some of us are optimistic. In the light of "the more sure word of prophecy," we look for a better world to be ushered in ere long, a world of peace unbroken, a land where distress and perplexity will be forever unknown. The Prince of Peace is coming, our Lord Himself from heaven. And when He comes, and the Father's will is done on earth as now it is done in heaven, we may expect a warless world.

"And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."—Selected.

TWO HIGHWAYS

By H. B. Hathaway

ONE OF THE HIGHWAYS is mentioned in Isa. 40:3 and reads as follows: "The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the LORD, make straight in the desert a highway for our God," which would seem to be a rather peculiar statement, as God does not need a highway to travel on personally on this earth. Nevertheless He wanted it built to carry out a plan that has been revealed in the Scriptures. The preceding verses in the chapter show for what purpose the highway was to be built and it was accomplished during the World War when England moved its troops into Jerusalem to drive the Turks from that place that God's chosen people might return to their promised land.

Continuing in that chapter it tells of the wonderful good things God is going to do for that country which is just starting.

The second verse says Jerusalem's warfare is accomplished, it was given up without a struggle, not a gun being fired, showing the time had come for God to carry out the fulfillment of what He had promised. Yet there is to be a terrible struggle at that very place, for it says in Zech. 14:2 that He will gather all nations to battle at Jerusalem. The third verse says that the Lord will fight that battle.

I have wandered off from the highway, nevertheless it has to do with the things I have mentioned. The nineteenth chapter has much to say about Egypt. It says Egypt shall know the Lord. The twenty-second verse reads, "the LORD shall smite Egypt: he shall smite and heal it: and they shall return even to the LORD, and he shall be intreated of them, and shall heal them."

The twenty-third verse makes mention of the second highway I have in mind. The twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth verses tell what will come to pass when that highway is built and reads as follows: "In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, even a blessing in the midst of the land: whom the LORD of hosts shall bless, saying, Blessed be Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands and Israel mine inheritance."

When I read the following in the Portland Telegram, I wondered if it was the commencement of a system of building that would fulfill that prophesy. "A railroad building by American, British, German, and French engineers to connect the Persian Gulf with the Caspian Sea will cost $80,000,000 and most interesting howling locomotives will run through territory believed to have been the original garden of Eden."

Any that are interested in this subject read those two chapters. There is much in them that cannot be brought out in a short article. Will the building of this railroad fulfill the prophecy or not?

Things are occurring in these closing days of this dispensation and just ahead is a glorious time for those that shall be accounted worthy to be the bride, the body of Christ, for they are the ones that are to be His at His coming and live and reign with Him a thousand years.

THE PURPOSE OF A RESURRECTION

By Lucille LeCrone

TO RESURRECT" means "to bring to life again." We sometimes hear a woman make the remark that she has resurrected her dress out of the scrap bag. She means by this that she had at one time discarded the dress, but later had taken it from the scrap bag and started to wear it again. In other words she has brought it back to life.

The resurrection we wish to consider is the bringing back to life and consciousness of dead bodies, wherever they may be buried, either in the earth or in the sea. These bodies when put into the grave are no longer able to perform their usual tasks, but at the appointed time they will be resurrected, or brought forth for a new purpose. What, then, is this purpose?

Let us quote a few scriptures showing that there will be a resurrection. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor. 15:22. "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." John 5:28, 29. And again, in 1 Thess. 4:14-16, "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

It is evident then from these scriptures that there is to be a resurrection; that all that are in the grave will come forth. There must be a reason, a definite purpose in this. "And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books . . . and they were judged every man according to their works." Rev. 20:12-14.

"I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom." 2 Tim. 4:1. Let us requote part of John 5:28, 29: "All that are in the graves . . . shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

We find then that the resurrection is to be a time of judgment, when the righteous will be raised to receive their reward of eternal life and the unrighteous to receive their punishment.

GIVE ME THINE HEART

By Samuel E. Haney

KEEP THY HEART with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." Prov. 4:23.

What the heart is to the physical life—human nature handed down from Adam—God's Word is to him who is a "new creature" ("new creation", Emph. Diag.; 2 Cor. 5:17; Gal. 6:15); and is being governed by the "Spirit of life in Christ Jesus". Rom. 8:2. The preceding three verses verify this, i. e., "My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings: let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart: for they are life unto those that find them, and health (margin, 'medicine') to all their flesh ('to every part of one's flesh, they bring healing', Roth.)".

The heart is the most important organ of our bodies. Respiration, circulation and digestion never cease from our first to last breath. But these fundamentals could not function a minute were the heart to cease action. All depends upon this little engine to keep the blood moving. No matter what be our physical troubles, the physician first notes the heart condition.

The writer believes the text (Prov. 4:23) is a literal statement, to be used metaphorically. God warns us to "Keep them (my words) in the midst of thine heart". Now, we know the heart doesn't think, hence, the allegory: our "diligence" in attending to God's "sayings" should be paramount in our thought world, abstractly speaking. Notice how the physical and spiritual phases of our subject synchronize; i. e., more people have died during the past forty years of heart affections, due mostly to exhausted and impoverished nerves, than of any other disease. And during this period more have fallen from grace as the result of transferring their "affection" from God and His dear Son to things carnal than from any other cause. Why is this? Because of the absence of divine influence, which affects the heart, hence, the whole body, soul and spirit.

There is a sympathetic connection between the brain and heart, but not to the extent of every trivial thought being effectual. Were we to cease thinking three minutes we should become drowsy. It is thus that we get sleepy when engrossed in a subject—sermon or lecture. But it is the thoughts on which we concentrate, stirring our emotions, that are either beneficial or detrimental to our hearts, and thereby affecting accordingly our bodies, and lives physically and spiritually. It is this kind of thinking that causes sickness, organic troubles, insanity, and often death. We can think ourselves into sickness, and out of sickness into health. A fable: Their dear mother dies. John doesn't seem to mind it like Mary, who takes it so much to heart that she is pining away to skin and bones. Solomon says, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he"; "For as one that hath reckoned within himself, so is he".—Masoretic Text, Jew Bible.

A few texts: "Wherefore the king said unto me, Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou art not sick? this is nothing else but sorrow of heart. Then I was very sore afraid". Neh. 2:2. "Why should ye be stricken any more? ye will revolt more and more: the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint". Isa. 1:5. "And Hannah prayed, and said, My heart rejoiceth in the LORD." 1 Sam. 2:1. "Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the LORD". 1 Chron. 16:10; Psa. 105:3. "The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart". Psa. 19:8. "Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear". Psa. 27:3. God tells the Jews He "will give them one heart (Ezek. 11:19); a new heart, and will take away the stony heart, and give them an heart of flesh". Ezek. 36:26. Job expresses the trait of many of us when he says, "Yea God hath made timid my heart, and the Almighty hath put me in terror." 23:16, Roth. Jesus said, "Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies". Matt. 15:19. Peter asked Ananias, "Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost?" Acts 5:3. "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be", Jesus. "Thou (Simon) hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the sight of God". Acts 8:21. David tells why the heart rejoices: "O God, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise, even with my glory". Psa. 108:1. And Jeremiah tells why the heart is sad, "The heart (in the absence of divine control) is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?"

All this diversity of mind, heart, body, soul and spirit could be averted were Christians to heed God when He says, "My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe ('delight in', R. V.) my ways". Prov. 23:26. Many are willing to give their last copper and their tearful sympathy but not willing to give God their hearts—the best, yea, all they have—and to renounce self, the old physical life with its "affection" for "the things that are in the world". Col. 3:1-4; 1 John 2:15-17. But, until this is done, it is impossible to fully obey, and to obtain all the benefits and pleasures of Christ and His apostles' teachings.

The church needs to get back to "the old time religion": one heart, one soul, one mind basis, which was good enough for Peter, Paul and John and should be for us: "And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost (Spirit), and they spoke the word of God with boldness. And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul". Acts 4:31, 32. "Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous".

1 Pet. 3:8. Paul prays, "Be careful (anxious) for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Jesus Christ". Phil. 4:6, 7.

The foregoing texts explain why a Christian can smile when everything goes wrong; and why the man of the world, under similar straits, falls all apart. They also show that it is in the thought world that the corners of the Christian's mouth is trained to turn upward and the worldly man's to turn downward.

I once heard an old Irishman who wore a perpetual smile despite a battered and scarred face say, among other good things, "This tattered and twisted face that you are looking at is the work of the devil. But the Lord has made my heart clean and pure through the blood of the Lamb; and now I am happy all the day long". Sin had marred this once handsome fact. As I listened to his frank, open-hearted testimony I was reminded of the place where the beautiful, fragrant water lilies grow—in marshy, inert, stagnant water. And also that the further man sinks into sin the greater is the transformation when the Holy Spirit gets into his heart.

Why should not every Christian's sentiment be: "As the hart panteth (brayeth) after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God"; "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God"? Psa. 42:1; 84:2. Let us severally get an answer to this question by appealing to God to search our hearts, and to reveal to us—through the Holy Spirit—our real status in His sight:—"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting". Psa. 139:23, 24.

WALK HONESTLY

By Laurence Howell

LET US WALK HONESTLY, as in the day." These words from Rom. 13:13 occurred in the Sunday School lesson for November 4th. I wonder how many professed Christians stop to realize just how much these words imply and just how much they must be taken into our own daily life, if we are to have God's approval and reward at the end of the race.

In order that we may all get a little clearer grasp of the subject, I wish to give a few practical illustrations from life. Before finally settling on a farm the writer spent more than twenty years in salesmanship and merchandising work. Of the six years spent in mercantile work, practically half was as employee, and the other half was as employer. I therefore feel I should be able to give impartial illustrations.

First, let us suppose that a man we shall call Smith is a wealthy wheat farmer in Kansas, owning 640 acres of land. Let us also suppose he hires a married tenant named Johnson to work for him. We will suppose he is to get $60.00 per month and all the wheat needed for his own bread. The above is the agreed consideration for Johnson's labor.

Now suppose Johnson has a brother he feels he would like to give a little help. He reasons with himself that Smith has thousands of bushels of wheat stored in his graneries, and he could just as well slip a bushel to his brother now and then and give him a boost. Smith is rich and can stand the loss, and besides he need never know that the wheat was taken away.

Now, the question is this: Is the course of Johnson right? His reasoning seems logical, but does that make it right? He only needs to reverse the situation and put himself in the place of his employer to see where he stands.

Some may think the above case so simple that anyone should easily see his honest duty. Very well, let us examine a little different case.

A big department store in Boston employs hundreds of clerks. Each one is paid a fixed salary, with the additional privilege of getting any goods he needs for himself, wife and family at 25 per cent off retail prices. We will assume the name of one clerk to be Brown.

It happens that Brown has an uncle whom he feels ought to get in on that 25 per cent discount, as it will save him a great many dollars. He reasons that he is working for a big corporation that can well afford to suffer these little losses on profits, and that he can work it around so his uncle can get the goods and neither one be caught at the game by the firm. Accordingly Brown carries out the scheme, and both he and his uncle feel they have done something real bright. They even pride themselves on being thus able to take advantage of the firm and get by with it.

Is the course of Brown and his uncle right in the above illustration? Oh, that the words of Matt. 7:12 might ring in all such ears! "Therefore whatsoever things ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

Satan is so subtle in many of his temptations, that if one is not very careful he will be led into sin and his conscience become so warped as to possibly think he is doing right sometimes. If men and women, when feeling themselves tempted to do some questionable thing in either business or church and social relations, would only stop to apply the Golden Rule to their actions, how much less sin there would be in the world, and how many fewer heartaches. But people are so often too selfish or too careless to make the application, and so rush madly along through life entirely heedless of the results.

The imposition above mentioned is no doubt widely practiced, thus entailing upon the firms affected losses of thousands of dollars annually. Yet it is entirely wrong. Whatever compensation is agreed upon between clerk and employer is all the clerk has rightfully coming to him until such time as a voluntary increase is given by the employer, or it is agreed upon between the two by negotiation. Whatever more is secretly taken from the employer as above is a sin in the sight of God, of which both clerk and friend are guilty.

Such wrongs against employers may in some cases be carried on indefinitely without detection. But at least some are apt to be discovered, with the resultant loss to the employee. I shall give one actual case reported to me.

A few years ago the writer spent one winter in an Illinois town on business. A certain girl there was employed by a big 5 and 10 cent store. It was noticed that she was not turning in as much money from her department as it seemed she should. Accordingly the manager requested his assistant to watch her. She was finally seen secreting a bill in her stocking. The matter was at once reported to the office. The manager requested that the girl be brought to his office. She was escorted by the assistant to the elevator and up to the office, the door being shut and locked behind them. The manager told her what had been discovered, and asked her to pull down her stocking. She protested her innocence, became angry at the outrage she claimed was being perpetrated against her, and threatened to call an officer. She was checked and told it was all useless; that no bodily harm would be done her, and to obey orders. She complied and the bill fell from her hose to the floor. The result was that she lost her position at once.

In some cases secret wrongs may continue throughout life without discovery and punishment. This seems especially true of many bank robberies, etc. However, the point I wish to make is the effect of such sins on one's eternal salvation. We may keep such sins secret from man, but God knows all about us, even to the very thoughts and intents of our hearts. Heb. 4:12. To God and His Son Jesus Christ, to whom the future judgment is committed, our lives are an open book. All of our hidden wrongs we commit go into God's record by which we shall be judged, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." 2 Cor. 5:10.

One's life may be to the knowledge of the public, practically blameless, yet I believe one secret sin unrepented of may condemn that person in the judgment, "For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all. For he that said, Do not commit adultery, said also, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a transgressor of the law." Jas. 2:10, 11.

If we would be among those who shall win a crown of life and share in Christ's glory in the age to come, how necessary it is that we resist the subtle living of the tempter in our daily business life! How much it really behooves us all to "walk honestly, as in the day"!

"As coming events cast their shadows before, so does Truth forecast the knowledge of Truth yet to come."

—R. H. Judd, in "The Restitution Herald."

A LETTER OF THANKS

I WISH TO EXPRESS THANKS and appreciation to all of the brothers and sisters who responded to my recent appeal and to the ones who have previously so faithfully helped in this Christian work. You have helped make it possible for me to give our unfortunate families the cheer and comfort that is needed at this time of the year, and to give needed assistance where there has been illness and death.

The Christmas work consisted of gifts for both young and old and money for Christmas dinners. This was taken care of out of special financial donations given me to be used for Christmas cheer, and from a donation of nice useful homemade gifts made by one of our sisters living in California. This donation is one that comes to me each year from this sister, to be used in Christmas work.

The different Aid Societies in the churches deserve praise and thanks for the way they have helped in this relief work. Some very nice comforters have been made and donated by them. Gifts of this kind when sent to homes where they are needed are greatly appreciated.

I am sure each one of you who has sent donations takes pleasure in the thought that you are helping in the Master's work by making others happy, and I trust that should you at any time know of any of our people in the church who need assistance, you will let me know, and I will give them, with your help, the care and attention that I am giving to others. As many of you know, this Berean Relief work is not confined to Bereans alone, but to the household of faith; also that it does not mean just at holiday time but all through the year.

And now, in behalf of our families who have had misfortune come into their lives, and who with your help I am trying to relieve of their anxieties, I thank you, and may God's richest blessings be yours through the New Year

Most of our troubles are caused by striving for the things that are detrimental to our salvation. No matter how much we want in this world we are usually compelled to put up with what we get. So why should we not be contented and happy with the things we have from day to day, and let it go at that? Matt. 6:25-34; Psa. 37:3.

"BE INSTANT IN SEASON, OUT OF SEASON."—2 TIM. 4:2.

AT THE START of a new year we are especially glad to receive encouraging reports from the different Berean classes such as the one given below from Cleveland, Ohio.

As success does not necessarily mean the achievement of a goal as much as it means progress toward it, so the slow and steady pull of a few faithful members may mean more to a class than many bursts of enthusiasm that flare up and die out as quickly as they come to life.

Paul, the apostle, compares the growth of the Christian to that of the human body. The children of God are first the newborn babes and Paul admonishes them, as such, to "desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby". We pass the age of infancy and childhood, and we are told that we should "henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ." And the goal is that "we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ".

It is only steady, sure growth that will carry us toward this end, and it requires our cooperation, faithfully given, not occasionally but all the time. Such devotion in class work brings its sure reward. Let us each be faithful, if it is only in being in our places at our own classes, for fifty-two weeks this year.

The Cleveland-Berean Society started out the new year with the organization of a junior class. The first meeting was held on Jan. 4, with an enrollment of ten. Considering this was right in the middle of the "flu" epidemic, we thought this was an exceptionally good start. The children are very much interested, and the attendance will grow when people lose their fear of coming out. We expect more the second week.

Meetings are to be held every Friday night, at the same time as the regular Berean class. Sr. Thayer's book is being used as a textbook.

The senior class has had a hard time of it to keep going and the attendance has dropped to almost nothing, so perhaps the enthusiasm of the new junior class will help along the senior.

Here is a review of the life of Paul by one of our Junior students at Dixon, Illinois.

PAUL, THE GOOD EXAMPLE

Paul was born at Tarsus, the capital of Cilicia. Acts 22:3. He learned the trade of tentmaking. Acts 18:3. At Jerusalem he was taught according to "the perfect manner of the law of the fathers" by Gamaliel, a wonderful teacher of that time. Acts 22:3.

While a young man he persecuted the Christians (Acts 7:58; 8:1-3), but one day he was blinded by a great light while on his way to Damascus, and Jesus spoke to him. Paul was soon after baptized by Ananias. Acts 9:10-18. After his conversion he went to Arabia for a short time and then came back to Damascus to enter upon his duties. Acts 9:20-22; Gal. 1:17.

The Jews of Damascus lay in wait day and night for him (Acts 9:23-25; 2 Cor. 11:23), but he escaped. He proceeded to Jerusalem where the disciples were at last convinced that Paul was a changed man, and then they received him into their fellowship. Acts 9:26-28.

He preached boldly, and the Jews again sought his life, but he escaped to his native city, Tarsus. Acts 9:29, 30.

Paul preached the great gospel of salvation through faith in Jesus, not only for the Jew but also for the Gentile (Rom. 1:16) to many countries of Asia Minor and established large churches. He went on three great journeys and preached the wonderful news and also baptized many thousands of people. This is recorded in Acts.

After Paul's life of many persecutions and hardships, according to his letter to the Corinthians he was still in doubt as to his salvation. 1 Cor. 9:27.

Let Paul's life be an example to us, that we may, like Paul, be able to say at the end, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith". 2 Tim. 4:7, 8.

These are just a few of the many references and proofs of Paul's wonderful life. Much more could be written, as Paul was a very extraordinary man.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES

DO YOU OWN A BIBLE? One of your very own? If not, ask mother or your father to give you one next birthday or Christmas. And then, take the very best care of it you can, for there is no other book like it.

If all other books were taken away you would yet have a library, for there is History, Geography, poetry, music, romance, and "law" in it besides prophecy, daily living and accounts of our blessed Lord. Added to the interest in these varied subjects, why else do we regard this Book so highly? Why do we reverence it and hold it above all other books? Because it is God's Word—God's messages and promises to man, and the story of His children. We can scarcely comprehend what it means to say "word of God"—words of the all-powerful, all-loving Creator of all.

Many years ago God inspired men to write His words, and tell people of things to come. Many of these events have already come to pass. Others remain to be fulfilled, but we are sure they will be fulfilled in God's own time.

In David's beautiful Psalm he says that from the heavens—the sun, moon and stars, and from all wonderful things He has made we learn that there is a Creator—God. We learn that He is a good, wise and powerful God, and that we must also learn what His will is so we may know how to please Him. We find all this help in the Holy Scriptures, or Bible.

David says that the law of the Lord is perfect, and His commandments pure, teaching us in a simple way how to live better and be happier. God's judgments are more desirable than gold, and sweeter to His followers than honey.

David then ends this Psalm with a prayer that God will help him to live acceptably in His sight. And we must, likewise, ask God to cleanse us from secret faults and keep us from sin.

Paul knew what it meant to love God, and keep His laws. So while in prison at Rome he wrote to his friend, Timothy urging him to always remember the truths he had learned from his boyhood. Timothy's mother and grandmother had early taught him of God's Word.

"The Lord warned His people to study and obey His words, and to love Him with all their hearts. He told them to teach the children His words and commands, and to think of them all the time that they might be safe and happy.

"Those who are taught in their childhood and remember and obey the Word of God grow wiser and better, and are able to help others."

COURAGE

Just being brave when the trial comes,
That is the courage worth while.
It never gives way
Through the busiest day,
But meets every fear with a smile.

Just being true in the testing time,
That is the truth that is real,
It never will lie
And does not deny
The best that we know and feel.

Being brave and true when the trial comes
That is the measure of man.
And daily man grows
Like the best that he knows
By doing the best that he can.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES

Devotional Reading: Psa. 119:105-112.

GOLDEN TEXT

Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.—
Psa. 119:18.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

What? The Holy Scriptures are the words of God to man. They are utterances through "holy men of God". 2 Pet. 1:21. Here, "men of God", does not designate men simply striving to follow God, but men who are God equipped, God enabled, God instructed; they are God's men. They spoke for God; were God's spokesmen. God thus spoke at many different times, in various ways, unto different listeners. Heb. 1:1, 2. The sum total of all His utterances to man constitute the Holy Scriptures.

Their Need. Just as it is impossible to think of man ever existing without a Creator; of his being redeemed without a Redeemer; of him ever triumphing daily over the lusts of the flesh without the Helper; so it is wholly impossible for man to direct his steps toward the God of the whole earth without the God breathed, or God inspired, Word of instruction to reveal to him God's way.

Some Benefits Afforded by God's Word. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path". Psa. 119:105. As the sun is the illuminator of the physical world, so the Word of God illuminates and indicates the path in which man should direct his life. It was the Word of God that illuminated the pathway for Israel to journey from Egyptian slavery unto the liberty of the promised land. It was the Word of God that gave knowledge or light of a Redeemer to be born. It is the Word of God that reveals the fact of the soon return of the Master. From no other source does this light emanate. It is the Word of God that foretells of the resurrection. Human learning, human invention, human discovery could in no wise reveal this fact, but the light of God's Word has been focused upon the future, revealing this miraculous truth. Throughout man's history, the Word of God stands as the supreme light to lead man.

It reveals the way to salvation. Man has striven by every conceivable manner to surmount the obstacle of sin, and to attain unto salvation therefrom. Paul says in Rom. 1:16 that the gospel "is the power of God unto salvation." To Timothy he assured the Holy Scriptures "are able to make thee wise unto salvation". It should be recognized by every person that the Scriptures are one of God's established means of accomplishing salvation. Every person who would attain to this great prize must have the guidance of God's Word.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Light That Shines. Johnny was proud of his car. It was of the latest design, with smart finish, and its motor purred with a smoothness that was admirable. But when driving home late one dark night he had just turned off the main highway to follow the country road to his home when a fuse burned out and the lights went out. At places the road led by deep ditches and near yawning ravines. It was a rough road, full of holes that were hard to avoid. For the first time in his life Johnny came to realize the true value of lights. Throughout the day, with the sun shining, all would have been well, but now in the darkness he faced disaster.

David said, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."—Psa. 119:105. You may feel that you are capable of getting along quite well while you are young and vibrating with health and energy. But dark days come for all of us, and it is then we realize the full value of God's Word. Its rays point out the pitfalls along the path, and show us the true course in days of deepest sorrow.

Be sure the Light is safely yours.—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Unveil thou mine eyes that I may discern Wondrous things out of thy law."—Psa.
119:18, ROTH.

The Word of God is indeed full of "wondrous things." But puny man at best can only see as "through a glass darkly." As we study to know more of God and His marvelous ways, we can pray only that He will lift the veil covering the "deep things of God." This will He do in proportion as we by faith and devotion to Him prove ourselves worthy.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Sword of the Spirit.

"The sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God."—Eph. 6:17. "For the word of God is quick and powerful and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discernor of the thoughts and intents of the heart."—Heb. 4:12.

Soul life, which is man's by physical creation and physical birth, is resident in the flesh and gives rise to thinking that centers on the flesh and its needs. The thinking of soul life is entirely selfish. Spirit life, which is God's, is resident in God and gives rise to thinking that centers on God and all His works. The thinking of spirit life is entirely unselfish.

Though so different, soul life thinking, highly developed, takes on a strong semblance to spirit life thinking. So strong is this semblance that thinkers prompted by soul life often appear as angels of light and in the last days they will have the power to deceive the very elect of spirit life—if that were possible. Even the thinker himself is likely to be deceived as to which type of thinking he is doing for the heart is deceitful above all things. Jer. 17:9.

But there is one sure means of discerning between the two types of thinking. That means is the Word of God which is the expression of God's mind and is the sword of the Spirit. It discerns the thoughts and intents of man's heart, and identifies them unerringly as of the flesh and selfish or as of the Spirit and unselfish full of love for God and His works.

Study of God's words through prayer brings to man the aid of the sword of the Spirit.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Search the Scriptures.

When Jesus was tempted three times by Satan in the wilderness, here are the three weapons He used for defense: (1) "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God;" (2) "It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God;" (3) "Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve."

Now what did Jesus mean when He said "It is written"? He meant that the words following were written in the Scriptures. Was it of any importance then for Him to know the Scriptures? If Jesus used them for defense, why not let us use them also?

Christ said "Search the Scriptures." Why? He knew their importance, and He knew that it is necessary for us to know them. How can we follow the teachings of Christ, if we are not acquainted with them?

How much of the Scriptures do you know? See how many verses you can quote. Do you know Psa. 19:14 in our lesson to-day? It makes a good closing prayer for your class.

—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

The Word: What do words, written or spoken express? What two types of mind are in the world according to the Bible? Discern the origin and character of each. Are they sometimes hard to distinguish? What distinguishes them from each other unerringly? How may its aid be obtained?

—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Word from Michigan indicates that things are going nicely with the meetings at Grand Rapids. Read the report from Bro. Austin on back page.

Our office has just laid in a larger supply of Bibles, due to increased demand throughout the country. In another place we are listing a few of the specially good numbers from which we will be glad to have you order, or if you prefer we will mail you a small catalogue on request. A good Bible is not a luxury, it is a necessity. Every child of God should be more anxious for the bread of God than for the bread of this world.

The friends of Sister M. A. Woodward will be glad to read the following lines just received from her:

"Will you please say to my many dear friends who have written such words of love and cheer, assuring me of their prayers, to keep right on doing this and not expect me to answer their letters for a long time as the 'flu' did to me what it did to so many others, weakened my heart, and I have to keep pretty still yet. I am sitting up a few minutes every day but am very weak."

Her address is 5439 Ohio St., Austin Sta., Chicago, Ill.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay continues to improve at his home in Oregon, and is able to sit up a large part of the time now. Although the house appears to be warm he does not seem to appreciate the snow banks which appear out the windows.

A CORRECTION

In The Restitution Herald of January 8, on page 229, in middle of first column an error was made in the heading of a paragraph, to which Bro. Biggs has just called our attention. The line as we printed it reads:

The Word of the Holy Spirit. The Teacher It should read:

The Word and the Holy Spirit. The Teacher We are sorry for this mistake as it changed the thought Bro. Biggs intended.

Bro. J. Arthur Johnson, who is doing work for the Iowa Conference this year has been holding a meeting at the Pleasant Prairie church near Sac City.

Bro. Marsh plans to speak for the Chicago church next Sunday, Jan. 27, and a full attendance is urged. The meeting will be held at 5439 Ohio Street, and if you wish further information phone Austin 7374.

Oregon church services went off splendidly last Sunday with real good attendance. A number of compliments were heard, too, with reference to the choir numbers which were given both morning and evening.

The sub-zero weather that has prevailed since January 1 does not remind one of spring, but Sister Rogers, the very efficient music director, is making plans for an Easter Cantata which reminds us that it won't be long, now. We hope to present a musical service in honor of our Lord's resurrection which will be worthy of the attendance and attention of all.

A letter from Grandma Murphy, of the Salem church near Marshall, Ill., brings sad news of the death of Aunt Julia Claypool, one of the outstanding characters of that community for so many years. Aunt Julia will be greatly missed both by the many relatives and also by the community as a whole.

Sister Murphy informs us that she herself is spending the remainder of the winter with her daughter and husband, Bro. and Sr. Johnnie Hutching, Martinsville, Illinois, where she is very comfortable. Much sickness has prevailed in that neighborhood as well as throughout the rest of the country.

Word from Bro. Paul Johnson indicates that he appreciates California weather and does not have to worry about the amount of alcohol in the radiator, but he has not forgotten old friends and associations back along Rick River. We hope to see Paul "Dodge" back in the summer. He is doing a splendid work on the coast.

Sister Marshall Logan, of near Plymouth, Indiana, has been suffering with a very painful and serious eye condition. She was taken to a hospital where an operation was performed but it was not altogether satisfactory and at last report another was anticipated.

Sister F. E. Siple is still in Michigan but reports that her mother is making very fine recovery from her operation of January 12.

Last week was somewhat hectic for the Training Class. Bro. Siple being called away for two days to conduct a funeral Bro. Marsh took charge of the class on one day, and the other had to be dropped. Bro. Gordon was under the weather for a few days, too.

Things for this week look better, however, and Bro. Paul Hatch is now back with us.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

On January 13th the Church of God at Dixon, Ill. elected new officers for the year 1929.

Mrs. Grace Marsh was elected President of the Berean Society; Mrs. Lila Wagner is Vice President; and Mrs. Mary Reynerson is Secretary and Treasurer.

We also elected new officers for our Sunday School. Will Ford is our new Superintendent; William Eckert is Assistant Superintendent; Mrs. Bessie Reise is Secretary; and Mrs. Agnes Eckert is Treasurer.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

The Bereans and young people of the Sunday School class at Blair gave a reception in honor of Harvey Krogh, Richard and Lucille LeCrone, who are attending school at Oregon and were home for the holidays, and Grace Swihart, who is taking a nurse's training course in Omaha. There were about twenty-five that took part in the social gathering which we held at the church. Visitors from away, were Arthur and Claribel Mehrens of Little Sioux, Iowa and Grover Gordon of Holbrook, who is also attending school at Oregon.

Our church and Sunday School attendance has been small on account of the "flu" in so many homes. My father and mother, Bro. and Sr. M. D. Newell, have been shut in for two weeks with the "flu".

I wish to thank those of the Berean Society that remembered us with cards and letters at Christmas time, which we appreciated very much, on account of sickness in our home for the past three months, my husband having a case of anemia. He is gaining now and hopes to be out soon.

Bro. and Sr. Tom Bates of our church family at Blair are spending the winter with their daughter in Omaha.

Bessie Jenkins, Local Church Sec'y.

Here we are Monday morning, Jan. 14th, still going forward. Most of the church here are pulling hard to make the grade. The load is a little heavy, of course. If we were to look back we might see that some had fallen down, but if we look back we are sure to stumble over some unseen object, so "Forward" is our watchword and "Victory" is our goal! The weather here is hanging a little above zero; still we are warm in our cozy little house, though we are having to fire with coals just now. Thank God for the coals (and Bro. Hurley Appleby too)! I don't want any one that reads this to think there is a coal panic in town for there isn't. Our spiritual thermometer is around normal and that helps some; in fact, is about all that counts. E. E. Giesler.

OBITUARIES

BARBARA JUNE LYND

Again the cruel destroyer has snatched a pure and beautiful blossom from the garden of parental love. Barbara June, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Lynd of Kewanee, Illinois, was born February 7, 1927, and succumbed to pneumonia in the early hours of January 6, 1929. Two days later we laid her tenderly to rest in her snowy bed beneath a coverlet of flowers. An unusually large number of friends met to express their sympathy and love for the sorrowing parents. May God bless and comfort them. G. E. Marsh.

SUSIE KIRKHAM

Susie Edna, oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewis, born October 5, 1894, passed away at the Rushville Hospital January 12, 1929. She was 34 years, 3 months and 7 days old.

On March 31, 1914 she was united in marriage to Earl Kirkham. To this union was born one son, Earl Burdette. She made profession of faith in her Lord and Master and was buried in baptism by Elder G. E. Marsh on Nov. 1, 1913, remaining firm in her faith throughout her life. Her short life was one of true Christian womanhood, beloved by all who knew her.

The past six years she has been in poor health, suffering from diabetes. This disease, with the prevailing epidemic of "flu" was more than she could withstand. She bore her suffering with patience and was of a very cheerful disposition always thinking of others.

She leaves to mourn her passing the husband and son, her parents, two sisters; namely, Mrs. Lelin McDaniel of near Time-well, Thelma and Laurence at home, Thomas of near Ripley, and Herman of near Rushville, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted from the Christian Church at Ripley, January 15, and Sister Kirkham was laid to rest, awaiting her Master's call. F. E. Siple.

MARY ANGELINE SHAFER

Mary Angeline Shafer was born in Marshall County, Indiana to George and Sylvia Long on February 6, 1869, the fourth of seven children, two of whom died in infancy. She was married to Hugh M. Shafer on November 25, 1886. To them were born three children: Lulu, Vernia and Bessie. Early in life she professed Christianity, working at first with the Protestant Methodist Church, soon after allying herself with the Church of God where she continued an active Christian worker to the last. Sr. Shafer was one with others who joyfully bore the load that has made the Indiana Bible School possible.

Her death occurred on January 4, 1929, only four days after being confined to her bed because of cold and the prevailing epidemic. Besides her grief stricken husband there live to mourn her death three daughters: Mrs. Floyd Stilson, Oregon, Ill.; Mrs. Earl Thayer, Aurora, Ill.; and Mrs. Bessie Guiss, South Bend, Ind.; five grand children; three sisters and one brother: Mrs. Ella Petro, Mishawaka, Ind.; Mrs. Sherman Lewis, Sacramento, Cal.; Mrs. Marion Cramer, Geogre D. Long both of Plymouth Ind.; a large number of more distant relatives; and a host of friends. To all of these she had endeared herself by her true loyalty of service and care.

Deeply grounded in Sr. Shafer's life were the various phases of Christian hope. The atonement work of Christ; His soon return without sin, unto salvation; the resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the saints; the eternal and righteous rule of Christ: these were some of the things she hoped to experience and realize. And, as in sorrow her loved ones laid her at rest in the Oak Hill cemetery of Plymouth, it was with the expectation that the day is nearing when her hopes will fully materialize and she shall live in the joys of eternal life.

F. L. Austin.

DOUGLAS THOMS

Douglas Chalmer Thoms, child of Bro. and Sister Chalmer Thoms of Eden Valley, was born Nov. 14 and fell asleep in death Jan. 11, at the tender age of one month, twenty-six days. Death resulted from an attack of the influenza.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer Jan. 12 from the home and Church of God. "Christ's interest in children" was used as a theme in bringing words of comfort to the bereaved. Sydney E. Magaw.

IRA D. SANKEY AND THE GIPSY LAD

By S. Forsey

SOME YEARS AGO, when Mr. Sankey, with the great Moody, visited England, he drove out to Epping Forest. There he met a company of Gipsies who had encamped there. One of their number, a sturdy, frizzly-headed lad, climbed up one of the wheels of the vehicle. The sweet singer laid his hand upon the head of the child, and expressed the hope that some day he might preach the gospel. That lad is now the world-renowned Gipsy Smith. Imagine, if you can, the joy that filled the heart of the man of God, when years afterward, he had grown old and frail and dim-sighted, he received a visit from the Gipsy, and was told he was the lad on whose head he had laid his prophetic hand in the incident in Epping Forest.

"God does not expect any person to live the life of His Son Jesus Christ without first giving them His nature, by the indwelling Holy Spirit. We may tell people to be good until dooms-day, and they may try, and try, but that which results, is the efforts of the flesh. It is the Shepherd that keeps the sheep, and not the sheep the Shepherd. Under the law, it was "Do this and live," but under the gospel, it is "LIVE AND DO." What grace works in, we work out.

Some years ago, the late C. H. Spurgeon was called to preach to some thousands of people, assembled at the Crystal Palace, in London, England. Before the day appointed, he went to the Palace, to try the carrying power of his voice. Not knowing that any person was within hearing, he repeated the above Scripture. A man, engaged in painting heard, and was converted.

Proclaim not all thou knowest, all thou owest, all thou hast, nor all thou can'st.

WOLVERINES, PLEASE READ

IN SPITE of the severe cold and snow in which the special meetings began at the South Lawn Park Church, corner of Abbie St. and Jefferson Ave., Grand Rapids, the meetings have been increasing daily in attendance and interest. This fine field of work is showing results of the earnest, prayerful labors of, formerly, Bro. Patrick, and now of Bro. Randall. The whole is a monument to the untiring labors, physical and financial, of those who have contributed freely of their strength and earnings to erect the church and to proclaim the gospel which is the power of God unto salvation.

There may be no other field into which the Church of God has entered where the opportunity of witnessing for Christ is so promising. Already the church should be doubled in size in order to accommodate the constantly growing Sunday School. This will be better understood by non-resident readers when it is stated that this new addition to the city of Grand Rapids is referred to as being "the most rapidly growing community in western Michigan." The public school which six years ago was but a small country school and which in the intervening years has been enlarged at different times until it is now a fine three-story brick building, of twenty rooms, accommodating 900 pupils, is to be at once enlarged by a $75,000 addition making a total of thirty-three rooms, as necessary to take care of the immediate school needs in this rapidly growing community.

This community is being settled by industrial people in the prime of life who are ambitious to provide little homes for themselves and their families of children. Many of these hard working parents are anxious to afford their children of the benefits of Christian education and influence, but they are as yet handicapped financially and are unable to bear any large part of the financial load necessary to carry on this Christian work.

The members of the local church are putting forth much labor and effort—some beyond their real strength—in order to keep up this promising work. They are traveling two to twenty miles from their own homes, weekly—many of them three or four times a week. They are devoting every spare minute and every spare penny to advance this service. In addition to this numbers of them are contributing to the Michigan State work and to the upkeep of the General Conference work.

All unbidden by, and unknown to these consecrated workers the writer suggests that those of the State of Michigan who can spare a few dollars occasionally should well consider contributing to this truly missionary field. A thousand or fifteen hundred dollars annually contributed by non-residents, in addition to what is being done by these resident workers, could be profitably used in this field.

While there is still an indebtedness of over twelve hundred dollars upon the church property, yet community conditions cry for a doubling of capacity at once. The present attendance of Sunday School fills the present building to the straining point. When all the Sunday School assembles in the little auditorium the outside and rear aisles are filled with those who have to stand.

Are there not some of the older brethren of the State of Michigan who have means who will gladly contribute a few hundred or a few thousand dollars each for the purpose of clearing off the present indebtedness and of erecting an addition for present needs? (With a thousand children crowded into the present Grade and High School building it is certain that the Sunday School would quickly grow to several hundred if there were proper accommodations for it.)

Are there not some who will, in their wills, provide liberally for this opportune Christian work? Don't will all properties to children and distant relatives; leave a good and liberal portion to the service of the Master.

Are there not others who can at once offer liberal amounts to this church in return for annual interest on same during the remainder of life, the amounts to become the sole property of the church at the death of the giver? These would constitute Annuity Bonds between the church and the givers.

Bro. F. E. Hall, 304 Leemyra St., Rt. 10, will gladly receipt any who may respond to this petition, or correspond relative thereto. "Truly the harvest is great." Will not the few laborers of Michigan consecrate earnestly to the work?

I say "Michigan", because every other field and the general field has, each, its own problems and its own needs.

The special meetings will continue over Sunday the 27th. Nearby brethren are invited to visit the church during these meetings and ascertain the facts and interest themselves in the efforts being put forth.

Above all things—pray for us.

F. L. Austin.

P.S. The rapidity of growth of this community can be estimated by the following table of school growth. The school census showed the population of school age to be: 1922—65; 1923—292; 1924—385; 1925—475; 1926—650; 1927—811; 1928—1089. An increase of nearly 1600% in 7 years. F. L. A.

There were two men on a railroad train discussing the shape of the world. One insisted the world is flat, the other, round. They agreed to have the man seated behind them act as arbitrator. After explaining matters to him he said, "Gentlemen, yees both are wrong. The world is nather flat nor round. It's crooked."

“CONSIDER THE LILIES”

If God robes the lilies, adorning them fair
Much more shall his children be clothed by his care.
Each day shall he feed them, than lilies more dear,
Shall shelter and guard them; be thou of good cheer.
Be thankful, receiving his bounty to thee,
No child of the Father forsaken shall be.
While serving him truly, should evil o’ertake,
Trust God to o’errule for Jesus’ dear sake.
God’s children—his lilies—though buried in dust,
Shall bloom in his glory when he raiseth the just.

HAVE YOU DONE AS MUCH?

LAST WEEK we received at the office a remittance of two dollars toward advancing the work of the General Conference. It was just a small gift. And yet, it was the largest gift that the writer has known of since he came into the office. Why? We shall tell you why.

From another source we learn that this gift came from a young woman who is the wife of a very poor man. With what little they are able to gather together they keep their little home. Their Christmas dinner consisted of baked potatoes. She sent two dollars for the Lord's work.

Need we say more? Words are such empty things. This is the largest gift that has come to our attention. Mark 13:43.—F. E. S.

THE CALM THAT FOLLOWS

"Then the devil leaveth him, and, behold angels came and ministered unto him."—Matt. 4:11.

OUR STRONGEST LESSONS in life are learned by marked contrasts. Life brings to us its varying experiences of rest and labor, peace and strife, joy and sorrow, relief and pain, and these because of their contrasts teach us true values and give us appreciation.

A storm arose on the Sea of Galilee. So intense was this storm that the disciples though accustomed to the sea and to boats were unable to cope with the situation and disaster was staring them in the face. Nothing can look more angry or more threatening than a sea torn with a raging storm. Fear struck their hearts.

In desperation they aroused the Master, who weary and worn had lain down to rest in the stern of the vessel. With one sweeping glance He took in the situation. Stretching forth His hand He said, "Peace, be still," and the wind ceased blowing and the waves sank to a level and there was a great calm. What a lesson! Is it any wonder that these disciples looked at each other in amazement and asked "What manner of man is this?"

We read in the fourth chapter of Matthew about the severe temptations through which our Savior passed before entering His ministry. Almost famished through lack of food the temptation to use God's power in making bread for Himself was presented. The other temptations were just as genuine and real. It was a storm, a tempest indeed that had swept down upon His life. But He faced it bravely and won, and no sooner had He done so than "the devil leaveth him, and, behold angels came and ministered unto him."

Yes, and they will do the same in your life or mine. Go your limit. Do what is right to the last ounce of your strength. The same God who sent angels to feed Jesus will furnish you with that which is needful in time of extremity.

What joy, what peace there is in the knowledge that no storm is so severe but what His voice can quiet it, no extremity so great but what He can provide for the need!

The calm follows the storm.—F. E. S.

I F

HOW MOMENTOUS are the possibilities that center around that little word, "if"! How much life is really influenced by the suggestion contained in the word.

"I will do this 'if' you do that," you say, and in saying it that way a very strong suggestion is given that perhaps it will not be done. How different the mental viewpoint when one says "I am going to do this and you may do as you think best." That is positive, emphatic. The battle is always half won when the mind has made a definite decision.

There are times when if is a necessary word and wisdom directs us to use it, but we should beware of throwing a negative suggestion before the mind when the attitude should be positive.—F. E. S.

TOGETHER AND APART

JUST AS IT IS the stormy sea which teaches the mariner to enjoy the calm, so it is the existence of one condition in life which teaches us to appreciate the opposite. How much we yearn for the one's we love when we are separated from them!

Every kindness that a loved one has done for you, every tenderness in the relationship which has existed only adds to the appreciation and emphasizes the longings during the hours or days of separation. But what joy in the thought of reunion!

If we have learned to really love our Lord, Jesus Christ, if we have come to appreciate His kindness and tender-nesses bestowed upon us, then we miss Him. If we have spent many precious moments in close communion with Him that love has been strengthened.

How genuine should be our longing for the actual coming of our Loved One; how thorough should be our care to keep ourselves ready and worthy to enjoy His love when He does come!

CHEERFULNESS AND WISDOM

THE FAMOUS old French writer, Montaigne, on one occasion said, "The most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness."

There certainly is no virtue in being grouchy, and there is no incentive or inspiration in being down-hearted and discouraged. How utterly foolish, then, are both.

Solomon in his Proverbs has shown us that the fear of the Lord, or reverence for God, is the beginning of wisdom. Considering these two thoughts together, one comes to this conclusion: reverence, respect for God, belief of His plans and promises give to one a joy, an optimism of life that will maintain continued cheerfulness. Rather hard on some of us, but nevertheless true reasoning. Lack of cheerfulness, therefore, indicates a lack of trust in God, a lack of wisdom.—F. E. S.

TWO IN ONE

ONE OF THE MOST beautiful thoughts presented by our Savior is that of the oneness which existed between Himself and His Father. This was perfect harmony. He does not indicate on any occasion that He was the Father, or the Father was He. It is very plainly shown that they were two separate individuals and the One produced the Other, but they were one.

In John 17:21, while praying the Father concerning His disciples Jesus said, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us." Jesus knew, and we know, that John and Peter and James and the others were separate individuals, and yet He shows the possibility of their being one just as He and His Father were one. All of which shows very plainly that He realized Himself and His Father to be separate individuals, but completely one in purpose and plan.

Paul presents a similar thought of oneness in the fifth chapter of Ephesians, showing in verse 31 how husband and wife become one flesh, and then stating in the next verse that he speaks concerning Christ and the church. True love between two persons causes perfect harmony. Their identities still remain, but they think and act in terms of each other.

Love for Christ will make you or me think in terms of our Savior and His plan. This will be another instance of two in one.—F. E. S.

WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?

IT IS VERY INTERESTING to observe throughout the New Testament the many occasions on which different people expressed themselves with reference to Christ, and the many different thoughts they showed from these expressions. From the Companion Bible we are citing the following instances:

- "King of the Jews (wise men from the east, Matt. 2:2).
 - Mightier than I (John Baptist. Matt. 3:11).
 - Son of God (demons. Matt. 8:29).
 - A blasphemer (certain scribes. Matt. 9:3).
 - Son of David (two blind men. Matt. 9:27).
 - Son of David (a woman of Canaan. Matt. 15:22).
 - The carpenter's son (His fellow countrymen. Matt. 13:55).
 - John the Baptist (Herod and others. Matt. 14:2; 16:14).
 - The Son of God (they that were in the ship. Matt. 14:33).
 - Elijah (some. Matt. 16:14).
 - Jeremiah (others. Matt. 16:14).
 - One of the prophets (some men. Matt. 16:14).
 - The Christ, the Son of the living God (Peter. Matt. 16:16).
 - The Christ, the Son of God (Martha. John 11:27).
 - My Beloved Son (God the Father. Matt. 17:5).
 - Good Master (a certain ruler. Matt. 19:16).
 - The prophet of Nazareth (the multitude. Matt. 21:11).
 - The carpenter, the son of Mary (many hearing Him. Mark 6:3).
 - Thy salvation . . . a light . . . the glory (Simeon. Luke 2:30, 32).
 - Joseph's son (all in the synagogue. Luke 4:22).
 - A great prophet (all witnessing the raising of the widow's son. Luke 7:16).
 - A righteous man (the Roman centurian. Luke 23:47).
 - A prophet mighty in deed and word (the two going to Emmaus. Luke 24:19).
 - The Lamb of God (John the Baptist. John 1:29).
 - The Messiah (Andrew. John 1:41).
 - The Son of God, . . . the King of Israel" (Nathaneal. John 1:49).
 - A teacher come from God (Nicodemus. John 3:2).
 - A prophet (a woman of Samaria. John 4:19).
 - Jesus the son of Joseph (the Jews. John 6:42).
 - A Samaritan and having a demon (the Jews. John 8:48).
 - A prophet (the blind man. John 9:17).
 - The King of Israel (much people. John 12:13)."

A FEW SUGGESTIVE THOUGHTS

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

THE MOST TOUCHING, beautiful prayer ever uttered was the prayer that our blessed Savior prayed for His disciples just before His crucifixion. He was about to leave them to go to the Father. They were grieved and apparently did not fully understand about His going away. He gathered them together and talked with them and then He uttered this prayer found in St. John 17. Read it all and note especially verse 24 in which Jesus prays thus: "Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me." "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word."

We find that this beautiful prayer includes every true child of God and that sometime it shall be answered. Jesus promised Simon Peter that while he could not follow Him at that time, he should follow Him afterwards. John 13:36. "Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whether goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards."

Now go with me to the Passover night. See the sorrowing groups of disciples gathered in that upper chamber to eat the last Passover supper with Jesus. He had been telling them that He would soon leave them. We can imagine how their hearts were filled with grief, and also how hard it was for them to think that they must give Him up. As a comforting message to them He tells them in John 14:1, 2, 3, "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me: in my Father's house are many mansions: . . . I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." When will Christ come to receive those who are His? 1 Thess. 4:13-17, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." This is the time when the Lord receives His bride and it is the time spoken of in Isa. 26:20, 21 when He calls His people to enter into their "chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast." These chambers called "thy chambers" are the abiding place that Jesus went to prepare for His people, and can be rightfully called "thy chambers" for they are made ready to receive the bride at the rapture of the church.

We have further proof that the saints will not be on earth during the tribulation period in Rev. 3:7-11. Our Savior gave a message to the true church, through John the Revelator. This church was called the "church of Philadelphia" and in it alone was found the true faith. He says, "I know thy works: behold I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name." Therefore, "Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth."

If you want to know what that time of tribulation is turn to Zeph. 1:15, 16; Matt. 24; Zeph. 3:8; Zech. 14:2, 3, 14. These judgments are God's judgments. If you will notice, God has always in the different crises of the world's history punished the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity. In Isa. 26 we are told that the "Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth." This time of trouble is called the "great day of the Lord" and precedes the millennial reign. Turn to Matt. 24:30 and we read that Christ's coming in power and great glory will be immediately after the tribulation, not before; not during, the tribulation, but immediately after it.

There is something that will take place prior to Christ's coming in power and great glory: the marriage of the Lamb. Rev. 19 gives a vision of that wonderful event. There will be great rejoicing in heaven when that time comes. A wonderful alleluia chorus will resound through heaven's domain. "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her it was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints. And he saith unto me, write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb."

Another event then occurs. As the first Adam had to receive his wife before he received dominion, Gen. 1:26-28, so before Jesus, the second Adam, enters into His great work He must receive His bride before He receives dominion. God gives Him the dominion after He has received His bride. In Rev. 19 we see the vision of the marriage of the Lamb. In Dan. 7:13, 14 we see Daniel's vision of a scene in heaven before the coming of the Son of Man in power and great glory. "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came . . . to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

We have come now to the time when the indignation period has come to an end, the time for the saints with Christ to possess the kingdom. The bride of Christ has been hid until the indignation is overpast, the marriage of the Lamb has taken place, she has made herself ready, and with Christ the Bridegroom shall execute judgment and justice. They are the blessed and holy ones who are raised in the first resurrection equal to the angels, neither can they die any more. Being made immortal, they have received the divine nature and wherever He is they can be with Him also.

PSALM 25

By Ezra D. Gifford

THIS IS a wonderful Psalm. It prophetically gives us four of the prayers of Jesus, and the Holy Spirit's verbal replies to three of those prayers.

In the first prayer, Jesus says:

(1) Unto thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul. (2) O my God, I trust in thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me.

To this prayer of Jesus, the Holy Spirit replies:

(3) Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause.

Jesus prays in the heaven on behalf of His people, and He prays as though He were they. We pray in His name, but He prays in our name. He is our Mediator, and hence represents us.

When Jesus prays, "Let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me," He is praying in our stead and on our behalf.

This is indicated by the answer, "Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause."

The answer was given to Jesus, not as an individual, but as one representing others,—those "that wait on thee," that is, those who get ready for Christ's second coming and then wait for Him, Heb. 9:28,—they shall not be put to shame, but they shall then be glorified with agical life and immortality, and they shall then be crowned with Jesus to judge the world and bless all the families of the earth.

Who will be put to shame? Those who "transgress" against the true Christ, and that "without cause."

People transgress against Christ by putting up another Jesus than the Son of the living God, or by forsaking His doctrine for the creeds and traditions of men, or by not following His example and obeying His commandments, or by not taking the true doctrine of the ransom, or by not taking Jesus as the Life-giver, or by putting up other priests and mediators between God and men, or by submitting to other lordships.

The people who thus betray Christ shall certainly be put to shame. They will be left out when Jesus comes. They will see the true saints clothed in the robes of glory, while they themselves are covered with the filthy rags of shame and dishonor.

In the second prayer noted in this Psalm Jesus says:

(4) Shew me thy ways, O LORD; teach me thy paths. (5) Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day (all this gospel day). (6) Remember, O LORD, thy tender mercies and thy lovingkindnesses; for they have been ever of old. (7) Remember not the sins of my youth (the sins of his people before their conversion), nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O LORD.

To this prayer the Holy Spirit replies:

(8) Good and upright is the LORD: therefore will he instruct sinners in the way. (9) The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way. (10) All the paths of the LORD are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies.

How much we need this prayer on our behalf and in our stead! Do we want God to teach us, and show us His ways and paths and truth? Then we may be sure that Christ prays in our stead and that we may receive the answer as recorded in verses 8, 9, and 10.

The third prayer of Jesus as noted in this Psalm is:

(11) For thy name's sake, O LORD, pardon mine iniquity; for it is great.

To which the Holy Spirit replies:

(12) What man is he that feareth the LORD? him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose. (13) His soul shall dwell at ease; and his seed shall inherit the earth. (14) The secret of the LORD is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant.

When Jesus prays that His iniquity be pardoned, it is not His individual iniquity, but the iniquity of His people, who are reckoned as His body.

That iniquity He says "is great." It is a far greater sin for a Christian to do evil than for any one else, for of them that have much shall much be expected. And the Christian, too, sees that his sin is "great," for the Holy Spirit gives him conviction, which is far greater than the natural conviction.

This prayer of Jesus will be answered to the one who "feareth the LORD." The Spirit will "instruct" him how to get rid of this inbred iniquity, and "his soul shall dwell at ease" in a state of complete cleansing and sanctification. "And his seed shall inherit the earth." In this life we form the seed of immortality in the fruit that we bear. In death that seed is sown. In the resurrection, it is that seed that shall inherit agical life, immortality, and the everlasting home in the earth made new. Jehovah is the Friend of "them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant;" for a friend will always talk plainly to a friend. The "covenant" here spoken of is the new covenant written out in the New Testament. To understand that sacred Book and have it written out upon the heart means so much!

Then Jesus says:

(15) Mine eyes are ever toward the LORD; for he shall pluck my feet out of the net.

The feet of Jesus are the members of His body, or true church, who bring the gospel message to others. These "feet" are in the "net" of unrighteousness and selfish governments and adverse social conditions of men, and hence they must go through many hardships and trials to bear the true gospel message. But when Jesus comes again, these "feet" shall be delivered out of this net.

This Psalm closes with a tender and pleading prayer of Jesus who prays in our stead:

(16) Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me; for I am desolate and afflicted. (17) The troubles of my heart are enlarged: O bring thou me out of my distresses. (18) Look upon mine affliction and my pain; and forgive all my sins. (19) Consider mine enemies; for they are many; and they hate me with cruel hatred. (20) O keep my soul, and deliver me: let me not be ashamed; for I put my trust in thee. (21) Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait for thee. (22) Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles.

It is one thing to pray for others, but it is a much greater thing to pray as though you were those others. When we are desolate, afflicted, troubled, distressed, or persecuted Jesus bears these things for us and prays as though He were we. Such a tender and gracious High Priest!—The Way of Life.

CHRIST'S DEALINGS WITH PUBLICANS AND SINNERS

By N. H. Geiselman

A FRIEND OF SINNERS

WHAT A STIGMA accompanied this appellation in the minds of the self righteous Pharisees! It was a title of reproach given to Jesus by His enemies, but it is ever the glory of Jesus Christ and His precious gospel to take the things of reproach and transform them into things of honor. The cross! The cross, was once the most despicable thing in all the world. It was the symbol of all that was low and mean in man; too low and dishonorable for any Roman citizen to die upon it. No matter how low he had sunk in sin, no matter how fiendish his crime, they would not subject him to the disgrace of crucifixion. To-day it is the emblem of the highest honor that can be given to a soldier who has fought in defence of his country and not only so but millions now resting in the silent chamber of the dead will some day join the living and sing with jubilant hearts:

"In the cross of Christ I glory
Towering o'er the wrecks of time;
All the light of sacred story
Gathers round its head sublime."

Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners—a noble work indeed. Nothing that you and I could be engaged in in this life could be more noble than this. James 5:20 says, "Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins."

We read, "And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment." As she stood by the side of the Savior she bathed His feet with her tears and leaned down and wiped them with the hairs of her head and placed a penitential kiss upon them and anointed them with this precious oil. It is not any wonder with such an expression of affection for her Lord that the self righteous Pharisees thought within their hearts that if Jesus were a prophet He ought to have known what manner of woman this was—"Why she is a sinner!" Jesus knew what thoughts were going through their minds and He said to Simon, "I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on." Then Jesus spoke to him the parable of the debtors. He said, "There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most? Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged." This woman hath anointed my head with oil, she bathed my feet with her tears and wiped them with the hairs of her head and placed a kiss upon them and anointed them with this precious ointment. Simon, thou hast not done any of these things. "Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; . . . Thy sins are forgiven. . . . Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."

Christ Jesus was glad to accept the title of "Friend to sinners" and well might He be glad when it was such a manifestation of a Father's love; for the Father sent the Son to be the Savior of the world. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

When the great Moody, who began his ministry first by riding a donkey along the streets of Chicago distributing tracts and holding prayer in private homes among the poor, returned from his business trip where he met a stripling of a boy preacher, he begged this boy preacher to come to Chicago and preach for them in the tabernacle. Well, the boy came. The great Moody carried the boy into his tabernacle and after his introduction to this great audience the boy took for his text, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." When the boy came into the pulpit the next night his text was, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Thus the boy for seven consecutive nights preached from this precious text. The great Moody was so captured with the boy's presentation of a Father's love, that love of God that passeth understanding, that as a memorial of this boy's ministry in his tabernacle he had an electrician come and with his electrical bulbs place these words on the wall behind the pulpit: "God is love", with the expression from the great Moody, "If we cannot preach the love of God into the hearts of our hearers, may these bulbs help burn it in." In this life greater love can no man have than to lay down his life for his friends. "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

Jesus left His Father's bosom "to be born in a stable"; the homage and salutations of the heavenly hosts "for the mockeries of men"; the scepter of the world and the power of kingdoms "for a shepherd's crook"; yea, the diadem of heaven itself "for a crown of thorns". No wonder that the self righteous Pharisees were astonished at His life and said, "What manner of man is this?"; "Never man spake like this man"; "He taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes"; "Even the winds and the sea obey him"; the blind have received their sight, the lame are made to walk and the dead have been brought back to life and now He humbleth Himself that even the publicans and sinners have found favor in His love.

Oh, what an astonished world it will be at the coronation when the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion, the place of His enthronement, joined by the heavenly hosts in their alleluias to the Most High! "Thou hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests". "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

Clothed in His vesture of King of kings and Lord of lord He stands forth not as an earthly monarch with limited sway, but He shall have the scepter of universal power, for His dominion shall be from sea to sea and from the rivers to the ends of the earth. Nations shall be blessed in Him, all nations shall call Him blessed. And in the language of David, "Blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory."

Now it seems to me that His very best preaching was to sinners. It is the very best preaching you and I can do. He spoke so tenderly to them and so compassionately when He would say to the troubled soul, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; . . . and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." His love shines out in the blessed promise, "He that cometh to me I will in no wise cast off." It is no wonder that the publicans and sinners flocked to hear Him! He had a message for them. It is no wonder that the common people heard Him gladly, for He spoke words of comfort to them. He could sit down before them and tell them of the "lost sheep," that ninety-and-nine were in the fold but there was still one away on the barren hills of time. He could tell of the "shepherd's" anxiety for this lost sheep and the joy He would have in finding it, carrying it home upon His shoulder. He could tell them of the "lost coin" and how the faithful wife would sweep the floor and diligently search for this lost coin until it was found. He could tell them of the "lad" who demanded from his father his portion and when he received it how he went off into a far country seeking pleasure and through riotous living wasted and lost it all. He could tell them of the joy anew in heaven over a sinner saved. He could tell them of a world groaning under the curse soon to be delivered and adapted to the nature of the redeemed. He could tell them that while the ages had sailed by in their consecutive order, none of the Father's zeal and fervor had cooled, but He was the same yesterday, to day and for ever.

And we can say from fulfilled prophecy that Jesus stands as it were at the gateway of our open sky to receive His bride and the events of last year are convincing to me that His bride is making herself ready for the marriage feast. Then soon will He come with all His holy ones with Him to establish that government that shall bring peace on earth and good will to man.

And now, our Father grant us through the merits of our Savior's atoning blood that all of us may be numbered with that holy throng. Amen.

AEONS AND EVIDENCE

THAT THE SCIENTISTS are not easily misled by the rash guesses of those who speculate on the origin and early history of the earth, is evident from the following statement by Herbert Hall Turner of Oxford. "Science can never tell the earth's beginnings, nor the universe's," he said. "It is a vain hope that we can ever learn of the beginning of things. It is as vain as it would be to expect that all the monkeys in the world pounding on all the typewriter keys in the world would duplicate all the books in the British Museum."

Such an attitude is not as might appear at first glance, a wholesale denial of the value of scientific research in the realm of human history. It is rather a frank admission by one who is well acquainted with research of the difficulties involved in attempting to reconstruct the story of the earth's beginning from the scant and scattered evidence now available. Sensible people need not become unduly excited over the Sunday paper version of the finding of a pterodactyl's leg bone or the easy juggling of prehistoric aeons by pseudo-scientific feature writers. Presumably a man may imagine whatever he wishes, and some of our popular scientific writers take full liberty to do so. As long as everyone knows the slim evidence on which such assertions are based, little harm will result. But as a serious interpretation of the beginnings of mankind and of the world in which we live, the first few chapters of the Bible will, for most of us, continue to be a more satisfactory basis.—Editorial in Our Hope.

MIRACLES

By Lottie E. Young

THE SUBJECT of the miraculous acts performed by God in the Old Testament, and Jesus Christ in the New, has been an oft discussed one, both in and out of church circles, especially by those who consider themselves "smarter" than believers in the Word of God, but as the Bible is full of miracles, those who reject all of them leave little of the Book that they can accept. Some give the answer to the question as to what a miracle is as everything that man cannot do, while a second definition is anything that man cannot understand. A third answer is that a miracle is an event in the natural world occurring in such a way as to call attention to the presence and action of the living God.

Miracles differ from the ordinary course of nature, yet they do not involve any violation of the laws of nature, or any suspension of the forces of same. When the ax head, for example, was made to float in the water (2 Kings 6:5, 6) the force of gravitation was not suspended. The water and the iron remained active according to the laws of their own nature, but God brought another force to bear, for the time being, acting in opposition to the force of gravitation. When a man holds a stone on the palm of his outstretched hand no law of nature is being violated. By the action of his will he is thrusting another force for the time being, into the force of nature, and the stone, which if left to act according to its own nature would fall to the ground, is held in the air. That which the will of man can do within the limits of human power, the will of God can surely do with His almighty power.

There are only three questions to be considered in connection with the miracle. First, can God perform a miracle? To deny that He can do this is to deny that He is the All Powerful God He really is. When we consider the immensity of the universe, the incalculable power of a Being who can hold suns and planets in His hands and send them on their endless orbits as He has marked out, and who can pile up mountains and carve out rivers, we cannot doubt His ability to perform miracles.

The second question is whether God would desire to perform a miracle. If God has power so infinite that we must assume miracles possible with Him, has He not an intelligence so infinite that we must admit our finite minds may be unable to declare with certainty what He might think it wise to do? The trouble in regard to miracles is that finite man looks at God with his own eyes, and what he cannot do he seems to think the Creator of all cannot.

Modernists look at matters religious very differently to what they do the common things of life. For instance, life is a mystery; we know no more about it than we did at the dawn of creation. We have thoughts and ideas, and yet we know in a moment something will convert the living breathing human into a mass of lifeless clay. In spite of all the civilization that man has wrought, we are no wiser in regard to this mystery than the ancients were. We know that if a grain of wheat is planted in proper soil and with the right environment it will send up its shoots, and just so many days later the finished product will be ready for the reaper, but we cannot explain how it is done. Look at the common radish; what makes the top green, the body of the root white, while the outside is a delicate pink or red? No one has unraveled the mystery which causes this little root to be different from the potato or other vegetable. And why should the same looking seed produce large or small, red or white or blue flowers?

The third question is, do the facts justify us in believing that the miracles recorded in the Bible were actually performed? If we believe the Bible to be the Word of God, we have no difficulty in believing what it says about miracles. The calling down of fire from heaven is not unbelievable if one believes that Elijah acted under instructions from God, and was thus in position to draw from God's inexhaustible power plant. If Christ had power to rebuke the winds and waves, was walking on the water an unreasonable thing for Him to do? We know the salmon born in the State of Washington float down their stream into the ocean, fatten themselves, and return at the end of four years for man's table. If God can direct so many fish as to their actions, why should we disbelieve the story of Jonah, and if God created the lions which threatened Daniel, why could He not stop their mouths?

The Bible has proved itself to be trustworthy by prophecies fulfilled, by records that have been verified, and by the influence which it has exerted, all proving it to be truly the Word of God. The Book has lived through the ages in spite of all that has been done to destroy it. Miracles are being wrought to-day in the new birth by which hearts and lives may be transformed. The feeding of the five thousand is not as great a mystery as the cleansing of a heart from sin and the changing of a life.

Would not all these facts prove first, that God can perform any miracle He may see fit to perform; second, that it is not unreasonable to believe that an infinite God may have reasons for performing miracles that finite man does not now, and possibly never can comprehend; third, that the evidence of the Bible, which is trustworthy, furnishes convincing proof that miracles have been performed by characters in the Old Testament, and by Christ and His apostles, all drawing from the same source of infinite power. Belief in the power of God to perform miracles, in the willingness of God to perform miracles, and in the actual performance of miracles, is confirmed by man's experience in his own heart and life, and by his observation of similar changes in the hearts and lives of others.

“THY KINGDOM COME. THY WILL BE DONE”

By Jas. A. Patrick

IN ORDER TO STUDY the question of the kingdom, and God's will being done on earth, it is necessary to go back to the beginning of creation, for when we compare the finished product as revealed in the last two chapters of Revelation with the beginning in the garden of Eden, we find much similarity; besides, Christ said that to a certain class it would be said, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25:34. Then this kingdom was prepared back in the beginning. The garden was the kingdom in miniature.

Another proof that the beginning of the kingdom was back at creation is the terms in which God addressed the man and the woman, "And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth." Gen. 1:28. To subdue and have dominion means kingship. Adam was created to be a king; Eve a queen.

Now we come to the question, so long debated, as to whether or not the things mentioned in the first three chapters of Genesis are real. The modernists tell us that it is all allegory. I have before me a tract by Rev. L. T. Nichols of the Megiddo Mission band. In this tract it is claimed that the garden of Eden, the man and the woman, the trees, etc., were spiritual, not literal at all. If, as science claims, this is all an allegory, I would like to know where the allegory leaves off and the real begins; and if it is all spiritual, then the spiritual came before the natural, and Paul didn't know what he was taking about when he said, "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual." 1 Cor. 15:46. Mr. Nichols says that the garden, trees, the man, etc., are spiritual. I am wondering if the fish, fowls, creeping things, and the beasts were also spiritual, and if so what do they signify? Do you not see the absurdity of trying to take these chapters other than literal? God speaks and deals with the natural first, afterwards that which is spiritual.

Well, I guess, we can't make anything out of it but a literal garden, trees, man, etc. And so, there will be a literal kingdom with literal trees, flowers, and people, because it had its beginnings in a literal garden back at creation.

If the garden, the trees that were good for food, the man and the woman were literal, then the tree of life and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil must have been just as literal. Can any one tell us by what rule of language we can make part of these objects literal and another part figurative? If the tree of the knowledge of good and evil was a literal tree, and the woman was a literal woman, then the serpent was a literal serpent, and he induced the woman to eat of the fruit of a literal tree. Then the woman gave to Adam, her husband, and he did eat with her as the record says. Then he did not cause her to eat as some so foolishly teach. Then Adam was not the serpent. If he was, he induced the woman to eat; then she did not induce him to eat. "Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression." 1 Tim. 2:14. If Adam was the serpent and tempted the woman and caused her to sin, is it not strange that the woman was in the transgression? Would not Adam have been the guilty party?

Why did Adam eat of the forbidden fruit? According to the record Eve ate first; then she was subject to expulsion from the garden and death; then Adam would have been without an help meet for him, he would have been alone again. The reason he ate was because of love for his bride. He saw her in death and went into that state with her, thus subjecting the creation to death in hope that God would raise them from the dead. Rom. 8:20. It is sometimes contended that God subjected the creation in hope, but that could not be, "For we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it." Rom. 8:24, 25. God, who sees the end from the beginning, cannot hope for anything. In that Adam went into death with his bride in hope, he is a beautiful type of the Savior who saw His bride in death and went into that state in hope of a resurrection.

BE A PHILIP

By Samuel E. Haney

READER, IF YOU HAVE found the Christ and can't find anything to do, here is a recipe that will relieve you of your hypnotic state; get baptized (Mark 16:16); consecrate yourself to the Lord and His service; become isolated from the world; ". . . and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty".—2 Cor. 6:14-18, A. V. You will then be surprised at the amount of work the Lord has waiting for you to do. Don't allow the lack of a high school certificate to retard you. You have at least "one talent", which, due to dormancy, you may be unaware of. Don't "hide it in the earth", but give the Lord a chance to develop it. Perhaps you can sing, or play an instrument. I have heard men sing for Jesus who formerly sang in cabarets and dance halls for the devil and his flappers. Jerry McAuley, the once down and outer, who didn't know a noun from a pronoun became the greatest missionary worker and preacher New York City has ever had. Jerry got busy, and went in search of "Nathanael",—(John 1:43-51). There are many "Nathanaels" under "fig trees" trying, all alone, to figure out the way of salvation. They need your assistance. Paul says, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me". So can you and I by letting go of this crooked world, and equally crooked flesh.

Thirty-two years ago a blacksmith (my cousin) with an apron on, rushed into my office, saying, "Sam, listen to me, I have good news for you". I listened. At the conclusion I decided the man had gone suddenly insane. But after examining the many texts he gave me I changed my mind. Here is the line of talk he also gave me: "If you come to know the truth, and consecrate yourself to the Lord and His service, you will soon become convinced that Paul was right when he said, 'All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution'. By being faithful to your 'high calling' you will get into much trouble, in the way of criticism and tribulation. While on the other hand you will, for the first time in life, fully realize what real happiness is. You will also discover that the closer you walk with the Master the more thoroughly you will be persecuted, ostracized and hated". Time has confirmed the brother's statement.

This brother, whom I know as a preaching blacksmith, is known to the world as only a smith with his leather apron. But to the writer, he was a "Philip", who went after his man—and got him. It was the turning point of my life; like plunging from a dark tunnel into the glorious sunbeams of heaven!

I WILL COME AND RECEIVE YOU

THESE WORDS are the words of Jesus. Men may scoff and say, "Where is the promise of his coming", 2 Peter 3:11, but, the Lord Himself gives the promise that He will return, and He gives it in such a connection as to forestall every effort to spiritualize the promise: "I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again." Did He literally "go"? Certainly. Then He will literally "come again." We cannot literalize the departure, without literalizing the return, unless we do violence to the language; for the same "I" who was to "go," designates the personage to return—"I" will come again.

A large class of theologians freely concede the fact that Christ will literally return from heaven, but having overlooked the object of His coming, they feel uninterested in the great question. Let it be understood that Christ not only announced the fact of His coming, but also specified the object for which He was coming, and an interest will be necessarily felt in the matter. The full statement of Jesus is as follows: "I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also". John 14:1-3. He is coming for the important purpose of receiving the saints unto Himself, and if they are not to be "received unto himself" till He comes, His coming is an important event.

That He will not receive them unto Himself prior to His return is further evident from the fact that He "shall judge the quick (living) and dead at his appearing", 2 Tim. 4:1; and certainly He will not receive unjudged men into realms of felicity, to be subsequently summoned to leave a world of happiness to be judged; and, consequently, unless men enter glory unjudged, they cannot enter till Christ's "appearing," for He is not to judge either the living or the dead till then; and another result grows out of this conclusion, which augments the importance of the Lord's coming: If the dead remain unjudged till Christ's "appearing," they must also remain unrewarded till then; for judgment involves the decision of the Judge for or against men, and the execution of that decision; and the decision in favor of the righteous cannot be executed before it is made. Whatever the saints enjoy in the world to come will be the result of judgment rendered in their favor by the divine Judge, unless they judge themselves in defiance of Jehovah's arrangement. And if it were possible for the saints to obtain the bliss of futurity previous to the judgment, the judgment would thereby be invalidated. But the truth is, judgment is not only due at Christ's appearing, but rewards come after judgment, both according to reason and Scripture, as the following text will show: "Thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints". Rev. 11:18. The saints of all ages, including the ancient prophets, remain unrewarded till the dead are judged, and the dead remain unjudged till Christ's appearing.

As there is no reward till the judgment, and no judgment till the coming of Christ, future reward depends upon the coming of the Lord, agreeing with Paul's statement: "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation", Heb. 9:28; thus deferring the completion of salvation till Christ appears. This makes the advent of Christ an event of no ordinary importance, a theme of unparalleled interest, it being an event which brings our future reward; and the Scriptures often present the matter in this light.

Paul testifies: "When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory". Col. 3:4. Should the question be asked why we must wait till that event before we can appear with Christ in glory? the answer is not difficult: the judgment does not come till then, and unjudged men cannot enter glory. Peter affirms: "When the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away". 1 Peter 5:4. But why must the saints remain uncrowned till that event? Because the judgment does not come previously, and it is the work of the Judge to dispense the crowns.

Jesus asserts: "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works". Matt. 16:27. "And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me,

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN THAN THIS, THAT A MAN LAY DOWN HIS LIFE FOR HIS FRIENDS."—JOHN 15:13.

A YOUNG BUSINESS GIRL and an older woman of experience were talking together the other day. The younger woman had problems which seemed to worry her a great deal, and she was regretting the fact that she was not making as rapid progress toward financial independence as she would like.

The conversation lasted for some time, and then the woman who knew life said, "Have you a friend who, if you were in extreme need, would provide a thousand dollars for your relief?" "Yes," replied the girl, "I have." "Then you are one of the richest people in the world, regardless of your standing financially", was the verdict of the one who knew.

There have been given us many definitions of a friend, and they are all good, but friendship is a relationship so sacred and so beautiful as to defy the power of words to express. It is a bond that must be experienced in order to be understood. Few are the individuals who have lived and have not known the blessing of friendship, and those unfortunate few have missed most of the fullness of life.

Solomon speaks of two opposite types of a man's acquaintances and calls them both "friends". In his Proverbs (14:20) he says, "The poor is hated even of his own neighbour: but the rich hath many friends." These are the individuals whom we cannot consider a man's real friends; rather, they are friends to outward appearances, but when fortune frowns they go even so far as to hate the very ones whom they professed to love.

But "there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." A real friend is faithful when others fail. We learn this from our own experience, and Solomon substantiates it by one of the simplest and most all-inclusive definitions that has ever been given—"A friend loveth at all times."

What a wonderful privilege it is to have a friend! Whether the day's pathway has led through roses or through thorns, or whether we are overjoyed with the pleasures of life or bent with its burdens, how sweet it is to come to the heart of a friend and find comfort!

"A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly," Solomon speaks further, and in this we recognize the large opportunity of the Christian. It is a great privilege to have friends, but it is a greater one to be a friend to men.

Love is the key-note of the whole gospel song. We begin to realize something of the richness of friendship when we recall these words of the Lord Jesus Christ: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." How well the Master exemplified for us the character of a true friend whose love could never be questioned!

Into the palaces of wealth and pride He went with kindness, yet He was at home in the dwellings of the humble. He drew to Him the sound in mind and body and shared their blessings, yet He sought out the sick and needy ones and made them whole. By day He taught and preached and healed until He was weary, and by night He roused Himself from sleep to still the troubled waters of Galilee for those who called Him "Friend". He was the Son of God, yet He stooped to wash His disciples' feet, and called it a privilege. Week in and week out He gave of Himself and all that He had, and at last He laid down His life in full "for his friends" and for His enemies as well.

And now that Christ sits at the right hand of the throne of God He is no less our Friend than He ever was, for as Intercessor between the Father and us, with sympathy and understanding He watches over all our experiences of life, having passed through each one Himself. Yes, "a friend loveth at all times."

It seems that the message He gave His disciples in the old days rings out anew for us to-day, and we can hear Him repeat, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

May we not lay down our own lives in daily deeds of kindness for our friends? The measure of our love is the service we render to them.

REPENTANCE AND FAITH

WHY, THIS MAN receives sinners, and eats with them!" the Pharisees exclaimed.

Then Jesus told them the following story to show them that they did not understand Him nor His work:

A father had two sons, and of course, he loved them both. But one day the younger boy came to his father and said, "Give me my share of your goods." Now, mark you, he didn't say "Please," or "Thank you."

You see, he had most likely come to think that he knew more than his father, and was tired of doing the things to make home a happy, restful place. He wanted to see the world, and have a big time without thinking of anyone else.

The father must have felt badly, but he gave the boy the share for which he had asked; and let him go into a far country to learn for himself just what the world is like.

At first everything went fine, for he had a lot of money, and could buy expensive clothes and food, and do the things that his wasteful and riotous friends did. But when his money was all spent, these so-called friends left him too, so that he began to be in want. He was willing to do anything; especially since there was little food in the land.

At last he went to work for a man of that country and was glad to go into the fields to feed the pigs. He would even have eaten the food with the pigs; but no one gave him a bite, nor paid any attention.

All this made him think about how he had lived, and how little he had appreciated his own home and people, and what a good place home was after all. Why, his father's hired servants had more than enough to eat, while here he was dying from hunger.

Finally the sorry boy decided he would go back home to his father, and tell him that he had sinned and wasn't worthy to be his son, but would be willing to be just a hired servant.

Now, the father had been hoping for his return, and often looked off toward the way he had gone. Anyhow he saw the boy when he was a great way off and ran to meet him, and fell on his neck and kissed him.

When the boy told him how wildly he had lived and how unworthy he was, the rejoicing father did not punish nor scold him, but told the servants to put the best robe on him, a ring on his hand, shoes on his feet, and make a big feast in his honor.

The father was so happy that the boy had learned his lesson before it was too late; and it was just like his boy had died and come to life again.

And so it is when we want to live right and find a place in our Father's home. Both our earthly father and our heavenly Father rejoice.

Now, on the day of Pentecost Peter tells the listening crowd how they may win God's forgiveness, and be as gladly received as this father forgave and received his erring son.

The Holy Spirit had been bestowed upon the waiting apostles, so that each one had power to preach in many languages.

Peter delivered a wonderful sermon in Jerusalem before men of many nations. He told them that Jesus was in heaven at God's right hand, and had sent the Comforter to help them.

To the Israelites he said, "God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." When they heard this they were troubled and asked, "What shall we do?" Then Peter replied, "Repent and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Learn Acts 2:38.
2. Read of the baptism of Jesus. Matt. 3:13-17.
3. Read F. A. S. in the quarterly.

WHERE THE LUCK COMES IN

The boy who's always wishing
That this or that might be,
But never tries his mettle,
Is the boy that's apt to see
His plans all come to failure,
His hopes end in defeat
For that's what comes when wishing
And working fail to meet.

The boy who wishes this thing
Or that thing, with a will
That spurs him on to action,
And keeps him trying still,
When effort meets with failure,
Will some day surely win,
For he works out what he wishes
And that's where "luck" comes in.

GOLDEN TEXT

Repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Repentance. This is not merely a sorrow for wrong done. It is a forsaking of the way which leads to and results in wrong and an entering upon the way that is higher. As pertaining to God and Christ it is a discontinuing of those principles and ways that are opposed to God and a taking and practicing of God's ways according to His principles and truths.

Repentance a Necessity. It is true that salvation is a "gift" of God. Rom. 6:23. Man cannot save himself. It is equally true that God cannot give salvation to any one who does not acquaint himself with God's ways and choose them definitely in the place of his own ways of man. Just as the harvest—which is a gift of God—is the prize resulting from sowing and tending, so is salvation a prize for obedience to God's laws concerning life development. To follow His laws man must first turn from his own self-chosen, flesh-prompted ways. This is true repentance.

Results of Repentance. One of the first results is to exalt God, God's Word and God's works and to reject everything that is in fact or in principle opposed, in part or in whole, to the truths and ideals of God.

He who perseveres in repentance toward God steadily advances in life's developments in the ways of God and in the benefits therefrom.

Repentance leads to obedience.

Repentance is rewarded by God's forgiveness of the wrongs done prior to repentance.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Change of Heart. Many is the boy who has rebelled against parental authority. Human nature, from the days of Adam and Eve, has disliked to be dictated to by higher authority, which is exactly why the first pair ate the forbidden fruit and why so many boys leave home.

But a wise father will be properly strict with his son even though the lad does leave home, for he realizes that it is much better for the boy to face the world with a proper memory of the righteousness for which that home stands than for him to remain with the home's sanction for wrongdoing.

The lad leaves home, angry, filled with pride. He will live his own life. But it does not take long in most cases for life to cool his anger and melt his pride, and then he thanks God that the home from which he came stood for something noble and good, and if it is not too late he goes back to show his repentance to the aged parents.

God never dies. It is never too late to find His home if we have learned our lesson. How much better if we can learn our lesson in young life and have its benefits to guide us!—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Repent ye, and have faith in the joyful message."—Mark 1:15, Roth.

"Repent ye and believe the gospel," was the burden of the message of our Lord and Savior, as He labored among men and e'er He went away He left this command "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel . . . He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved . . ." The gospel, the joyful message, will avail no one good except he repent and turn to following after God and His righteousness.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Repentance and Faith.

"And when he came to himself he said . . . I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee." Luke 15:17, 18.

Faith that saves is a characteristic of God alone. It is His confidence in the things He has made and in the purposes He has set for them, and His steadfastness to His works and His purposes. God's faith enters man and operates in him after repentance takes place.

This repentance, that makes an opening for the entrance of God's faith, is a coming to one's self, plus an arising and going to the Father. Adam experienced the first part of repentance through eating of the tree. His eyes were opened and he stood ashamed before his Maker, realizing the distance between himself and God and that that distance could not be eliminated through partaking of a mixture of good and evil. But Adam did not take the second steps in repentance. He did not arise and go to the Father. Why? Because no man can come to the Father except through Jesus. At that time God was only the Creator to man, not the Father, and there is no drawing power in creatorhood.

But through Jesus, man, after he has come to himself as Adam did, is drawn to God the Father, knowing that He is faithful to His work and His purposes and, by virtue of that confidence, receiving within himself God's faithfulness that works to perfect him a new creature in God's image and likeness.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Repent and Have Faith.

"Mother, I'm very, very sorry, but I broke one of your best plates," said a certain girl. "Father, I broke your good saw," said a certain boy, "I know you told me not to use it, but I did. I'm sorry I disobeyed you. I won't do it again."

This mother and father may say a few words in reproof to this girl and boy, but they will be glad the children were sorry and were very glad they confessed their wrongs to them.

In our lesson to-day it tells of some people who were very sorry for what they had done, and asked Peter to tell them what to do. Peter's reply to them is found in Acts 2:38-40. Jesus tells us a beautiful story of a young man who repented. Become acquainted with this story by reading Luke 15:11-24.

Every day we do things that God does not want us to do. But He loves us, and will gladly pardon all our wrongdoings, if we confess them freely to Him. Then we must have faith in Him, that He will forgive our sins. This is of even more importance than merely the act of confessing our sins to Him.

Tell in your own words what you think it means to repent.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: The Boy Who Was Sorry.

Aim: To learn the sad results of sin.

Class, what does the word, "prodigal", mean. It means wasteful, a spendthrift. Our lesson to-day is about a very wasteful son; he was selfish, stubborn, unthankful, and disobedient. He had asked his father for his portion, which according to the law, because he was the youngest of the two boys, would have been one third of the estate. The father gave it to him. He went into a far country and there wasted his money with wicked people, and when they had gotten all that he had, they did not want anything more of him. He sat and watched the swine eating the earob pods and would have eaten with them for no one had asked him or offered him anything to eat. He was starving while there was plenty in father's house. He was ashamed to beg or to go back home. This was his reward for disobedience and sin. What should he do? He sat and with shame acknowledged his sin, and repented. He started home. His father met him with a kiss.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Faith: general definition. Flesh faith—origin and field of operation; purpose; the scientist's faith; the inventor's faith. Spiritual faith—origin; field of operation; purpose; man's possession of it—repentance and Jesus, the avenues to it.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALIFORNIA

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 16th, the home of Brother and Sister Railsback was the scene of a unique affair. The occasion was a bridal shower given for Miss Rena Blackwell, the wedding to take place on Feb. 9th at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Bro. C. E. Hatch of Santa Ana, and Sister Azorah Scroggs, of Pomona, have the sympathy of the Los Angeles Church in the loss of their brother J. E. Hatch, of Chicago.

Bro. Rollo Dawson's father, mother and the two children were in an auto accident recently. Mrs. Dawson suffered severe bruises and a chest injury, and Miss Frances from a ruptured blood vessel in the forehead.

Bro. D. B. Jackson is occupying his usual place in church after an absence of four weeks, due to an attack of flu.

We have about reached a normal attendance at church after a goodly number being absent on account of the flu. Bro. Johnson is responsible for the statement that there were sixty-three present last Sunday. We have observed that he is quite an adept at counting as well as preaching.

Bro. Howard Moore, of Red Bluff, Calif. spent a few days in our city, shaking hands with friends, and visiting in the home of his wife's parents, Brother and Sister Railsback. Sister Moore and their son, Dean, returned home with him.

We are sorry to lose from our regular church attendance Bro. and Sr. Rufus Kellogg. They have moved to Hollywood, Calif.

A COMMUNICATION

Dear Brethren:—

I trust that you are all rejoicing in the Lord and in the soon coming of His dear Son from heaven. Everything is gradually shaping toward the establishment of the glorious kingdom of God in the earth; so gradual that the world does not realize it, but our eyes are open that we can discern these things.

I see by the paper that several are in arrears with their subscription. I would suggest that all who can do so, pay up until January 1, 1930. I find it is much easier to remember when our renewal becomes due if it is the first of the year.

May God bless you all and keep you in the narrow way until that glorious day when Christ will come to claim his own.

Your sister in Christ,
Hanna Barber.

Bro. R. H. Judd, Grafton, Ontario, writes that he has been enjoying a visit from his brother and wife who are missionaries to China, but are on furlough and have been to the old home in England and are now ready to return to their labors.

Bro. Judd hopes soon to write more for the advancement of truth. If you have not yet read his book, "Jesus Christ in the Old Testament," send 40c to this office and one will be mailed you.

Sister Mary Jackson, who is "Mother" at Golden Rule Home, is recorded as a year older than she was last week. In order to impress the fact strongly upon her a group of Oregon church young folks staged a surprise on her last Friday evening and spent a very pleasant time together.

The glare of ice over northern Illinois the past couple of weeks has been the most prolonged that some of us have ever seen. It is easier to sit down than to stand up, whether in the street or sidewalk, and cars go sideways with as much ease as straight ahead. One of the most amusing things we can think of would be to watch a southern boy who had never had any experience on ice try to get up after falling down.

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

Our office has just published a two thousand edition of "Where Are The Dead?" by L. S. Bronson, deceased. This for the past ten or fifteen years has been one of the most popular tracts circulated by our people. We are prepared now to fill orders at the following rate:

GRAND RAPIDS MEETING CONTINUED

A Telegram from Grand Rapids, Michigan, sent Sunday night, Jan. 27, says:

"Owing to the fine interest the meetings at South Lawn Park Church will be continued another Sunday. There were five to-day for baptism, one hundred fifty there for Sunday School. F. L. Austin."

We are all rejoicing over this splendid news. Pray for the greater success of this meeting this week, and get ready for one in your community.

In contrast to the extreme cold and ice over the north, word comes from Louisiana that they are sitting around in shirt sleeves and sleeveless dresses with the doors and windows open. Reading such letters, however, seems to have little effect upon the temperature here.

OBITUARIES

EMMA JACKMAN

Was born at Kendalville, Ind. Feb. 16, 1856 and died at the home of her grand niece in Grand Rapids Jan. 10 at the age of 70 years, 10 months and 24 days. From early youth she lived in the Church of God faith and was ever steadfast in this persuasion until claimed by death.

She was apparently hale and hearty until a few days before her death, when she became afflicted with measles. This, together with pneumonia, resulted in a complication that brought her death.

The funeral was held from one of the undertaking parlors in Grand Rapids, the writer speaking concerning the hope in which she lived and died. C. E. Randall.

It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

I WILL COME AND RECEIVE YOU

to give every man according as his work shall be". Rev. 22:12. Here are two testimonies from Christ Himself, connecting "reward" with His coming; not for a few merely, but for "every man," and that takes in all, both dead and living. But why are all to remain unrewarded till then? The answer is easy: the judgment does not come previously. "I will come again"—come as Judge, come to give reward, and come to receive the saints unto Himself to reign with Him in His kingdom forever.

LOVE ANALYZED

AS YOU HAVE SEEN a man of science take a beam of light and pass it through his crystal prism, and as you have seen it come out on the other side of the prism broken up into its component colors—red and blue and yellow and violet and orange and all the colors of the rainbow—so Paul passes this thing—love—through the magnificent prism of his inspired intellect and it comes out on the other side broken up into its elements; and in these words we have the spectrum of love, the analysis of love. Will you observe what these elements are? Will you notice that they have common names? that they are virtues which we hear about every day? that they are things which can be practiced by every man in every circumstance of life; and how by a multitude of small things and ordinary virtues the supreme thing, the summum bonum, is made up?

The spectrum of love shows nine elements:

Patience—"Love suffereth long."

Kindness—"And is kind."

Generosity—"Love envieth not."

Humility—"Love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up."

Courtesy—"Doth not behave itself unseemly."

Unselfishness—"Seeketh not its own."

Good Temper—"Is not provoked."

Guiltlessness—"Taketh not account of evil."

Sincerity—"Rejoiceth not in unrighteousness, but rejoiceth with the truth."

—Henry Drummond.

DOES CHRIST LIVE IN US?

By R. S. Jackson

WE OF THE CHURCH are prone to accept, too easily sometimes, the idea that Christ is living in us. We go through the form of baptism, we profess our belief in Christ and our love for Him, we begin our life in the church with a great rush into the work of the church. To people outside and perhaps even to ourselves it seems that surely Christ is in our hearts and lives.

The question is, "Is Jesus really in our lives, or is He just trying hard to get there?" The answer to this is not immediately accessible to us but in time will appear.

If the Lord is really living in us, then we are living under His grace and guidance and so must live for Him. Our lives cannot be spent in self pity or in living for ourselves, but must be spent in service. Living for service does not necessarily mean living to preach from the pulpit, nor does it mean living to write for a religious publication. Living for Christ may be done in the office, in the school, in the home, in the store and on the street. It may be done everywhere that people go. "Inasmuch as ye have done it . . ." The banker who places money on a deal which he knows is an unfair and unchristian work is not living for Christ. So, too, the landlord who is not considerate of his tenants, the school teacher who has an unchristian attitude toward her pupils, the child who has lack of honor and respect for the words of the parent, the mother or father who appears in the home in any way which might be a detriment to the Christian life of the child in the home, does not, no, cannot have the love of Christ in his or her heart and therefore is not living for Christ.

Again in Galatians 5:25 we are admonished, "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." We cannot walk in the Spirit when we knowingly do those things which trouble the heart of our brother.

DO YOU TRUST YOURSELF?

HE THAT trusteth in his own heart is a fool," Solomon. It was a wise man who said that. He had wisdom enough to know that he had no wisdom. Luther once said, "If thou art wise, thou knowest thine own ignorance, and thou art ignorant if thou knowest not thyself." The Greeks summed up their highest wisdom in the maxim, "Know thyself."

But is not confidence a good thing? Yes, but not self-confidence! Many men have fallen because they leaned on themselves and found they were leaning on a broken reed. For a while the proud man justifies his pride. He forces men back. He cleaves his way swiftly through obstacles. He rises superior to defeat. He comes to regard himself as invincible. But time lowers the haughty banner and trails it in the dust. Men crowd back in the way of the proud man, and obstacles mass themselves immovably in his path. He recovers more and more slowly from defeat until at last he does not recover at all. He has trusted his own heart. He is a fool.

Still, confidence is a good thing, but it must be confidence in something far stronger and higher and wiser than one's own heart. Rest on the heart of the Almighty! Trust in His wisdom, His power, and His love!—Sel.

COME UNTO ME

By F. E. Siple

REST. Of all the thoughts that appeal to the heart of man there is none that excels rest, peace, ease, security.

When the muscles are worn and fagged with labor one needs rest. When the nerves have been taut and straining with anxiety and care how sweet is rest. When sorrow or disappointment have heaved their heavy loads upon us what a relief one finds in rest—peace!

Jesus, the Friend of man, lovingly beholding it all spoke, with a voice full of tenderness: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matt. 11:28.

There, then, is the largest opportunity life contains. Remember He is able to do all His bidding, to make good every promise, and that from the depths of your weariness and heartache and loneliness, you may always look up and see His arms outstretched as He says:

"COME UNTO ME."

PEACE — REST

JUST WHAT it meant to the men in the trenches on Nov. 11, 1918, when word was flashed that the armistice had been signed can hardly be realized by any who were not there. Weeks, months, years of fighting and struggle,—then peace.

A healthy laboring man does not dislike a certain amount of work. It is really invigorating. But after hours of strenuous labor rest comes as sweet relief.

On the front page of this issue attention is called to the words of Jesus, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

The very fact that rest is needed indicates that the burden with which man is laden is indeed heavy, and we know that the weight of the load is due to sin. Our pains, our sorrows, our heartaches and our disappointments are the results of sin. The relief, therefore, the rest, the ease, the peace is freedom from sin. This our Lord alone can give. If we come to Him confessing and seeking a place of refuge He gladly folds us in His arms, removes the burden of sin, and then we know peace, "The peace of God, which passeth all understanding," Phil. 4:7.

Even human experience can teach us in its way this lesson. Is there one in this world whom you love more than all things else? Have you had the unequalled joy of being tenderly clasped to the bosom of that one, and of feeling the peace which causes you to realize how small and trivial most things in life are? The person who has never had that experience does not know that peace. And the person out of Christ cannot possibly know the peace there is in close communion with Him.—F. E. S.

A NOBLE WISH

AT A FUNERAL recently we were requested to read beside the open grave the poem which we give here, entitled "Last Words," by Helen Hunt Jackson. The children who had loved this mother and been loved by her said this was her sentiment, and as the casket settled gently to its place we thought: "How appropriate!"

LAST WORDS

Dear hearts whose love has been so sweet to know,
That I am looking backward as I go,
Am lingering while I haste, and in this rain

Of tears of joy am mingling tears of pain:
Do not adorn with costly shrub, or tree,
Or flower, the little grave which shelters me.
Let the wild wind-sown seeds grow up unharmed,
And back and forth all summer, unalarmed,
Let all the tiny busy creatures creep:
Let the sweet grass its last year's tangles keep:
And when, remembering me, you come some day
And stand there, speak no word of praise, but only say,

How she loved us: 'Twas that which made her dear:
Those are the words that I should like to hear.

—Helen Hunt Jackson.

Ah, yes: "How she loved us: 'Twas that which made her dear." If you will pause for a few moments and ponder over the ones who are dear to you perchance you will observe that in each case it is because that one loves you. Mother has staked her life, and sacrificed so much,—naturally she is dear. A loved one has denied himself many things and been willing to sacrifice all for your welfare and happiness,—how could you but love him? The greatest tribute that could be voiced by others when you lie down in death is: How he loved us!

But Jesus loved us, worked for us, sacrificed for us, gave His all and died for us. The whole picture makes us wish to apply the same thought by placing the masculine in Helen Hunt Jackson's line and making it read of Jesus: "How He loved us: 'Twas that which made Him dear." And we feel sure that the Master in heaven above would say: "Those are the words that I should like to hear."

STRENGTH

"The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" Psa. 27:1, 2.

GOLIATH LAUGHED at David. You or I would have done the same under similar circumstances. It is natural for a man to measure his own strength and ability in comparison to that of his opponent, and when he knows himself to be stronger and more skillful why should he fear?

Much is written and said these days by the exponents of national preparedness to encourage America to maintain a powerful fleet, to develop the world's best aircraft, to keep a strong standing army. With America's ability to feed herself, a fleet stronger than all else, swift and powerful aeroplanes and a large, well disciplined army what fear need she have? She could defy the world, and smile.

So could Goliath. He stood with twice the size and physical strength of David. Experience had shown him a champion in battle, an expert with sword and shield, and he was fully equipped from helmet to foot. Before him stood a lad unused to war, no armor for protection, no sword nor spear,—just a simple sling with stones. Ridiculous! No wonder Goliath laughed. So do you under similar circumstances. You measure your strength or ability beside that of another and you laugh if one far less well equipped dares defy you.

Many years after Goliath had been eaten by the fowls of the air David wrote the words, "The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

The past had been rich with experience for David, and fear was not an element in his life. As a shepherd lad the lion and the bear had fallen victims. Later the giant warrior of the Philistines had ceased his ridicule to crumple before David's advance. Still later a powerful king, head and shoulders above all others, and a military genius, had suffered defeat and death. Through and on it all God had built by David a strong, outstanding kingdom. Why, then, should he not say, "Of whom shall I be afraid?"

Apply the thought to yourself. Do your enemies seem larger and stronger than yourself? Do they scoff? Let them scoff if the Lord is the strength of your life!

—F. E. S.

LAST DAYS

THE EXPRESSION "last days" is one that has received a great deal of use by various Bible students and speakers. Those who believe in the soon coming of our Lord have used it largely with reference to our particular day as being the last days of human rule, the last days before the coming of Christ and His kingdom.

It might be well to consider that the expression does not always carry that thought when found in Scripture. There have been many dispensations of time, and each such period had its beginning, its early days, its last days and its end.

Consider, for instance, the words of Paul in Heb. 1: 1, 2, "God . . . hath in these last days spoken unto us by his son."

The days of Paul, nineteen centuries ago, were "last days". It can be seen, therefore, that this whole church age is properly referred to as "last days" in contrast to the days of other dispensations or ages which have gone before. Since this is the closing period before our Lord's coming these are properly "last days" regardless of the part of the period referred to or the length of the period.

—F. E. S.

SEEK THOSE THINGS

"If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." Col. 3:1.

WE ARE VERY likely to find in this life the things for which we seek; to receive the things for which we earnestly strive.

It is possible for us to concentrate our thought and energy on things that will develop us to a higher place in the affairs of the world, setting that as our main object or goal in life. And we can reach it. Or, it is possible to "seek those things which are above," and to find them.

How diametrically opposite the two courses really are. The one builds on confidence in self and develops pride; the other builds faith in a Savior and develops humility.

Seeking the things above involves an effort to really get acquainted with, to know Christ. The more one studies and knows Him the more he comes to admire His wonderful characteristics and to endeavor to pattern after them. To know Christ is to love Him, and it very logically follows that the person will become more Christlike.

How much more noble it is to recognize true values and not to be blinded by the alluring offers of to-day's world, but focus attention and strength upon attaining that which is better and lasting!—F. E. S.

DOING

AGAIN WE WISH to emphasize the importance of doing something. We shall not be contented unless during 1929 we all as members of the Church of God can be constrained to work harder and do more in the Master's field than we have done in past years.

There are wonderful opportunities before us in so many different ways. Each local church, Sunday School and Berean class needs more whole hearted backing on the part of all who can help; each state conference needs both the moral and financial support of all its people; and the General Conference can accomplish many times the amount of service it has been rendering if the brotherhood at large will stand solidly behind it.

No matter where you are, whether big or little, rich or poor, you can do your part. In the name of the cause of truth for which we stand we urge you to serve. Help us to push forward the work this year as it has never been pushed before.

Don't wait till next year, or even till next month before starting. Let's start now, and be doing something.

THE WORKSHOP OF ISRAEL

Jews are Experiencing as a Mass the Joys of Creatorship

By James Marshall

This article is of great interest not merely because the author is a son of Louis Marshall, but because of its intrinsic value. Mr. James Marshall's impressions of Palestine (which he recently visited) are not only observations of a clear-eyed traveller. The author is not "ashamed" to reveal his innermost reactions when coming in contact with the land and the people of Eretz Israel. This article is reprinted from "The New Palestine."

NOT SO MANY years ago it was commonly believed that the salvation of Israel was to be found in political, social and economic equality. Although those who accepted this theory would not for a moment have suggested that the longevity and vitality of Judaism were the result of political liberty or of economic success or of freedom of worship, yet somehow the achievement of these was supposed to provide new fertility for the tree of Israel.

In the United States the benefits of equality have now been attained for all practical purposes. Every number of every Jewish weekly in the land points with pride to some Jewish judge or governor, to Jewish bankers, real estate operators and merchants, to members of the faith who are actors and authors and editors, or who have been honored for some success dear to the heart of their fellow Americans. American Jewry has achieved a position of economic splendor and political security unknown to Jews since the days of Solomon's glory. For even among the Moors the Jewish people were not as fortunate as they are to-day because they did not possess what was then the basis of wealth and power; they were not great landowners nor did they support bands of armed retainers.

But with the passing of ghetto life there have gone the Talmud Torah and the influence of the Rabbi. The Jewish youth goes to the public schools and the great universities of the country, where he is washed in a pale solution of Greek philosophy, Anglo-Saxon political ideology and experimental science, which gradually hides his Jewish background under the dye of this Western modernity.

In the course of achieving this new equality, this luxury, power, and learning, the Jews of America have generation by generation abandoned as many of the ancient customs of Israel as they safely could without incurring the disapproval of other Jews in whose society they have lived and upon whose good will they have relied. Saturday is no longer a day of rest; Shabbat in some instances has been transferred to Sunday; and the synagogues which are the outgrowth of the nineteenth century Reformation have succeeded in uncovering the heads of their worshipers, reducing the observance of holidays, and making Hebrew a dead language indeed. One does not have to search far to discover the self-consciousness of numerous American Jews when the customs which they still retain serve to distinguish them from their fellow Americans. There is no general communal life, except in matters of philanthropy, nothing that arouses general Jewish interest except the cry of anti-Semitism.

The contact of the young people with the synagogues has been becoming more tenuous and thus far even the establishment of Jewish Centers does not seem to have done more than to create a certain social stability. The trend from the synagogue, the weakening hold of theology and the effect of the agnosticism of university thought are not peculiar to Judaism. Recently the Protestant churches of America reported the loss of half a million members. But among the Jews this flow of modernity is blended with a sense of shame at being a people apart; and one is aware of a growing desire of American Jews, especially of the well-to-do whose pockets hold the key to many gates, to become assimilated.

The American rabbinate has neither the materials nor the genius to cope with the spiritual dissolution which the congregation is undergoing under the blessings of freedom. For no group of men can stem such a popular tide; only some rare genius can at times guide and utilize its power, as Paul did with the story of Jesus, and Lenin with the philosophy of Marx and the spirit of the Russian people.

Thus to-day in America Jewry, like a chameleon, has taken on the colors of its new surroundings. Its soul remains divided between the memory of its Eastern heritage—of traditions nursed through centuries of ghetto life—and the interests of the community which has received it. Its thought has been cast increasingly in the American vernacular, while the cultural and spiritual strength of American Judaism has been steadily on the wane.

Yet, when all is said, there is for the mass of Jews something so precious in Judaism, so vital to them, that they are unready to adopt assimilation even when they no longer accept divine authority, and they are unwilling to abdicate their heritage even when their loyalty to it involves some sacrifice and means no good of which they can be sure. There have been any number of attempts to analyze the nature of the vital essence of Jewish feeling which unites the third and fourth generation university-bred Jew of America, for example, with the Jew of the recent immigration or the European Jew who still remains in the ghetto. And it has been the greatest need and effort of twentieth-century Jewry to utilize this force in Jewish communal life.

The most vital movement toward this end in modern times is Zionism. Here is a new philosophy of escape, meeting a quick response because to modern minds Palestine seems more readily achievable than the Messianic hope and more comprehensible than resurrection. Eretz Yisrael has had enough sentiment and tradition about it to appeal to Eastern Europe and at the same time sufficient reality to entice the minds, if not the bodies, of race-conscious Western Jews. Of course, Zionism has implied quite different concepts at different times and to different Zionists, just as it still means a variety of things to the people dwelling in Palestine to-day. To some, Eretz Yisrael has meant a place for economic rehabilitation; others have thought of it as a sort of garden of Eden where they might pass in quiet piety the last days of their earthly lives; to many Zion has meant a Jewish state, with Jewish officialdom, bayonets, and display; and there have been many, like Aehad Ha-am and his followers, content to have a breathing space in Eretz Yisrael where in the tradition of the fathers the Jew might develop once more a civilization and culture of his own.

With the Balfour Declaration and the grant of the mandate of Palestine to Great Britain by the League of Nations came the test of Zionism and the opportunity of Judaism to work its own revival. Seven years have passed, and what has Palestine to tell us? What has the land of Israel done for Judaism? Has it done more than to give new homes to a few thousand Jewish families?

IS IT VITAL AND ESSENTIAL TO SALVATION

By F. Brandfellner

THIS QUESTION is being asked many times regarding the second coming of Christ. Many among the ministry and laity seem to be ready to answer it negatively because a careful study of the Word is not made. It seems very conclusive to others in the light of God's revelation that this question must be answered affirmatively. It is true that a man does not need to know very much, or even anything, about the Lord's second coming in order to be saved from sin, but looking at this precious doctrine from God's and the Bible's viewpoint, man will never be saved, body-soul-spirit, completely until the Lord comes again. (Rom. 8:23). A study of the following passages of Scripture will answer this important question.

First, The relation of the second coming of Christ to salvation.

Hebrews 9:28: "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

1 Peter 1:5: "Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time."

Christ's second coming is inseparable from salvation. To think of our salvation apart from the finished or completed work of Christ, which includes his coming again, is to fall short of preaching the whole counsel of God. (God has wrapped everything he has planned in his blessed

Son. The last enemy to be overcome by Christ is death (1 Cor. 15:26). The victory over death and the grave is by the resurrection (1 Cor. 15:52). If there is no resurrection of the dead, then is our preaching vain (1 Cor. 15:12-18), we are yet in our sins. All will agree, then, that the resurrection is dependent upon the Lord's return (1 Cor. 15:23; 1 Thess. 4:16), which may occur at any time. Christ came the first time to put away sin, but is coming the second time unto salvation, that is, to complete his redemptive work which he has begun. The whole man, body, soul and spirit, is to be redeemed.

Second, There is a merging toward, or a future of, salvation.

Rom. 13:11: "For now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." This verse shows clearly that salvation is still in the future as we think of its completeness. Salvation is revealed in tenses, past, present, and future. The past (Eph. 2:8, R. V.), "For by grace have ye been saved;" the present (Phil. 2:12), "Work out your own salvation;" the future (Rom. 13:11) quoted above.

We who have received of his grace are already saved from the wrath to come and from the punishment due our sins (1 Thess. 1:10; John 5:24); we are being saved from from the power of sin and Satan as we use the means he provides (Eph. 6:10-18); and we shall be saved from the very presence of sin when he returns to receive us unto himself. Hence, we are looking for the Lord Jesus, our Saviour (Phil. 3:20, 21). This blessed hope is mentioned over 300 times in the New Testament. To the Apostle Paul, the coming of the Lord was indeed vital and essential to salvation. He spoke of his desire, that mortality might be swallowed up of life—that is, he might be transfigured while living. It is not the experience of death to which the child of God is called, or even to look, but for the coming of the Lord, in order that the purpose of God might be consummated. Many, in teaching the parables, apply the instructions and exhortation to death, which, we know, were expressly spoken of the Lord's coming. This is a false and dangerous method of interpretation.

We are looking, watching, waiting for him and working in his stead while he tarries. Heb. 10:37: "For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry."—The Evangelical Messenger.

FORTRESS OF JOSHUA FOUND IN PALESTINE

THE WALLS of the ancient Palestine, fortress, Hazor, a strategic fortification which played an important part in Joshua's campaign for the conquest of Palestine, were unearthed during the excavations carried on there. Archaeologists believe the walls date back to the bronze age, and that the site known as El Tell is the Hazor mentioned in the book of Joshua.

THY KINGDOM COME, THY WILL BE DONE

By Jas. A. Patrick

ONE OF THE QUESTIONS that naturally arises in a study of God's beginning of the kingdom, is, What was God's purpose in creating the world and man as He did? Was it His purpose to have a world of sin and suffering? Did He intend that there should be sin in the world in order that man might be developed? I think some make the claim that God could not have developed man without sin, that man must sin before he could learn or appreciate righteousness, that he must suffer before he could appreciate complete health.

If we must sin before we can learn righteousness, then we must commit all the sins in the catalog, before we can fully learn complete righteousness. Or if we must come in contact with sin in order to learn righteousness, then some one must sin for our benefit. I think we can clearly see that neither principle would be in harmony with the character of God.

Then why is there sin in the world? Couldn't God have made man so he could not sin? I suppose He could, but then man would only have been a machine to move as God moved him. The same would have been true if God had made him so he must sin. In either case, man would have had no will of his own; man would only have been an automaton, and there could have been no development for such a being. He could have moved only when God moved him. Have you ever seen children completely under the control of their parents, who never make a move unless prompted by their parents? Suppose on account of death or some other cause they are removed from under the control of their parents, they would be about as helpless as babes. Suppose that control was as absolute as God's could be. We can clearly see there never could be any development.

Then why sin, why suffering, why death? Let us consider these questions carefully. Much depends upon a proper understanding of them.

In the beginning every power given to man was a power for good. He could eat and drink to satisfy his hunger and thirst and to sustain life. He could labor with his hands to dress and keep the garden, he could speak to and converse with his companion. Analyze every power given to man, and we find that every one of them was for a good purpose. Yes, when God said of His creation, "It is very good," there was no imperfection in it. There was surely no sin, if there had been God could not have pronounced it very good, for He cannot look upon sin with the least degree of allowance.

What is sin? It is the transgression of divine law. Yes, and transgression of law is the power to good turned into the wrong channel. We eat and drink for a good purpose, but some people drink "white mule" and die. We labor with our hands to support ourselves and our loved ones, but some people use their hands to commit murders. We converse with each other and find it a great blessing, but some people, with the same breath and the same vocal organs, curse man and blaspheme God. Who is to blame for the sin? God gave man all the powers he has for good, if man turns those powers into the wrong channel and makes sin out of them God isn't to blame.

God told man that he might eat the fruit of all the trees of the garden with the one exception. When He forbade the man to eat of the forbidden fruit, did He intend that he should eat of it? Nay, verily. God has no use for sin in His economy.

"But," some one will ask, "how is God going to develop character in man, if there is no sin or temptation for him to come in contact with?" Not by sinning and being tempted, surely. Do you want your children to steal in order to learn the baseness of stealing? Do you want them to lie in order to learn the value of truth? Do you want them to kill in order to learn the horror of murder? Do you want them to commit adultery in order to learn the value of purity? You can readily see the inconsistency of such thoughts. If you do not want your children to sin in order to learn righteousness, do you want some one else to sin in order to teach them? If you do, I haven't much confidence in your Christianity. Do you think, then, that God would desire any of these things?

Again I hear some one ask, "By what means, then, could God have developed man without sin?" "By the law is the knowledge of sin," Rom. 3:20, not by sinning is the knowledge of sin. If Adam had obeyed in the beginning, he could have learned the blessedness of obeying by obeying, and with God as his Teacher he could have learned righteousness without all the horror there is in the world on account of sin.

"But," some one will ask, "is man stronger than God? Couldn't God have prevented all this?" This question has been partially answered in the foregoing. Have you ever seen a parent make a child mind simply by force? Yes, and what is the result? The child minds because daddy is bigger and stronger, but the child is sullen and rebellious, or its spirit is broken and it simply becomes an automaton. There is no character there, especially of the right kind.

Christ did not sin in order to learn righteousness, and He is our Example. He is the second Adam, and God developed Him without His having to sin. I have had people say to me, "Yes, but He came in contact with sin, and thus His character was developed." So somebody had to sin in order for Christ's character to be developed did they? For shame for the thought.

AARON

By Lucille LeCrone

THE WORD Aaron signifies "mountain of strength" and he was truly a mountain of strength to the Jews, just as Christ is a mountain of strength to us. Aaron was the elder brother of Moses, but his early history is unknown. He is first mentioned at the time God tells Moses that he is to go to Pharaoh and seek the release of the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage. Moses protests saying "I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant: but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue." Exod. 4:10. He then asks the Lord to send someone else, and receives the promise that Aaron will go with him as his spokesman.

Aaron was not a man of responsibility and therefore was very dependent upon Moses. It was Aaron who actually performed the miracles before Pharaoh, but it was through authority and power received from Moses. His dependency upon Moses is shown very strongly in the scene at Mt. Sinai. Moses had gone up into the mountain to receive God's message and had left Aaron in charge of the people. Moses was gone for forty days and nights and the people became weary and impatient waiting for him to return. They appealed to Aaron to make them gods to worship and he yielded to their demands and made the golden calf. This made the Lord very angry with Aaron, but Moses finally gained forgiveness for him and he was made the first high-priest.

In the eighth chapter of Leviticus is recorded the consecration of Aaron and his sons to the priesthood. In this we have a beautiful type of Christ and the church. Aaron was made the high priest and his sons the common priests. In Heb. 8:1, 2 we read, "We have such a high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens; a minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man." And in 1 Peter 2:5 we find that all true believers are priests unto God.

Aaron and his sons were washed with clean water as the first step in their consecration. This was to make them clean and holy to receive the priestly garments. Christ was baptized to fulfill all righteousness and we too must be cleansed of our sins before we can become His priests. In the twenty-eighth chapter of Exodus is given a description of these garments which are to me a symbol of Christ's glory, beauty and righteousness.

The ephod was made of gold, blue, purple, scarlet and fine linen and had an embroidered girdle. On each shoulder of the ephod was an onyx stone with the names of the twelve tribes of Israel, six on either stone. Fastened to these was the breastplate which was set with twelve precious stones each bearing the name of one of the twelve tribes. Inside the breastplate was a pocket which contained two stones called the Urim and Thummim. These stones were exactly the same size and shape and whenever the high priest had an important decision to make he would draw one of these stones from the pocket. One stone meant yes and the other no, and in this way God would make known His decision to the high priest by whichever stone He allowed him to pick up. And thus it is to-day. If we take our problems to God and ask Him for help, He will surely help us make our decisions.

In verse 12 we read that Moses poured the anointing oil upon Aaron's head to sanctify him. In the same manner he sanctified the tabernacle, the altar and all the vessels. The oil was made by a special preparation and was not to be used for any other purpose. Aaron was anointed before he began his duties and we know that Christ was anointed with the Holy Ghost before He began His ministry.

Next came the sacrifices. First a bullock was slain for a sin offering. Aaron and his sons placed their hands upon the head of the bullock while Moses killed it, thus transferring their guilt to it. A ram was slain in the same manner for a burnt offering as a symbol of their entire devotion and total surrender of their lives to God. The blood of these two was sprinkled upon the altar, but the blood of the third sacrifice, the ram of consecration, was used for another purpose. Moses put it on the tip of their right ears, on their right thumbs and on the big toe of their right foot, signifying that their ears would ever be open to the voice of God and closed to all else, their hands ever ready to minister to God and their feet always walking into the way of God. Lastly, Moses filled their hands with unleavened bread and portions of the sacrifices which they were to wave before the Lord as a wave offering. The entire ritual was to be repeated each day for seven days and the consecration was not completed until then.

Daily Aaron had to offer sacrifice for the people which could never take away their sins. But our High Priest, who is both sacrifice and priest, offered Himself once for all that through Him we might gain forgiveness of sin and that great gift—eternal life. By Him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to His name.

A LOST JEWISH TRIBE DISCOVERED

A VERY INTERESTING discovery of a new Jewish tribe is announced by the well-known Hebrew daily, Hazefirah. According to information received from two Jews in Sammarra, which is situated between Baghdad and Basra, there are over 9,000 Jews living in the heart of Mesopotamia. These Jews claim to be a part of the tribe of Gad, and are totally unknown to the Arabs. They speak nothing but Hebrew, and are under oath not to return to Palestine until the arrival of the Messiah.—Sel.

WHY AM I A CONDITIONALIST?

By Rufas A. Curtis

A CONDITIONALIST holds, in the one proposition: There is Life only in Christ; in the two propositions: There is Life in Christ, and There is no Life out of Christ. In other words, his doctrine is: All Men are Mortal; those men who meet the conditions attain immortality.

First, why do I hold that the race is mortal? Because I can neither doubt my eyesight, nor the six thousand years of the common record, "He died;" to say nothing of the divine appointment "to men once to die." I hold it because I must. I have no alternative. Notwithstanding philosophy, tradition, and the power of demons to personate the dead, I have yet to learn that it was ever demonstrated, either to the sense or to the mind of any human being, that not man, but only the clay house he lives in, dies.

Second, Why do I hold that there is Life in Christ? Because I believe the Bible. Because the testimony of history and of genuine experience among believers who have made trial of it, and even the unwitting testimony of infidelity, to the truth of what claims to be God's Word—especially of what in these days is being rapidly, "here a little, and there a little," uncovered to us as His original Word—are so conclusive that the doubter, rather than the believer proves himself the fool.

Believing the Bible, I accept such witness as that of the Christ's "beloved disciple" concerning the great Teacher's language in John 14:6, "I am . . . the life," and in John 5:26, "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." I also accept the great Father's record in 1 John 5:10, 11, "He that believeth not God hath made him a liar; because he believeth not the record that God gave of His Son. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." "To us," says John, and adds, (verse 12) "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." Such is Conditionalism. And what Bibleist may ignore it?

Some forty years ago, when I was about twelve years old, a friend gave to my father, who had been one of the watchers for the Lord in 1844, a little reading upon the Life question, which at first he rather scornfully refused, but afterward examined, till, while listening to a sermon by Elder Joseph Turner, the whole truth of the matter in a moment opened before him as in a nutshell—life for the righteous, death for the wicked. He taught it to me. I saw it clearly. It has ever since been a favorite topic,—so simple, so fundamental, so all-inclusive of the one great lesson God would have us learn. "I have set before you life and death, therefore choose life." Deut. 30:19.

Tampering with such positive words as life and death, into what minor errors shall we not easily glide? Is it a little matter if we backbone the rebel's death with eternal life; if we insist that he shall live forever, whether he choose life or not? Count the Scripture texts bearing on the subject, and you count my reasons for my faith.

And when, where sin hath abounded through wonderful grace, which hath much more abounded, I shall—either by being raised from the dead incorruptible, or, having never died, by being changed in the twinkling of an eye—feel the unspeakable first thrill of immortality, then how much more joyful than ever shall I be that I believed "the record which God gave of his Son"!

The above excellent article was contributed for a symposium on "Why Am I a Conditionalist?" It was written by Lucy Morris Chaffee. It afforded me so much pleasure in its perusal, that I have copied it for The Restitution Herald.

As long as people's minds are completely saturated with the theory that they are by nature immortal, they are not in a position to "seek for . . . immortality," through the divinely appointed agency of God's dear Son. (Rom. 2:6, 7; 6:23; John 5:40; 1 John 5:11, 12) Jesus and the resurrection, are indissolubly joined together in the plan of salvation. (Acts 17:18, 30-32; 26:6-8.) To Martha, the bereaved sister of Lazarus, Jesus said "Thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" John 11:23-26; 14:6; 20:31; 3:14-17.

The blessing of life forevermore, or "length of days forever and ever," is too valuable a gift, to be indiscriminately bestowed. (Psa. 133:3; 21:4; Luke 20:34-36; Acts 13:46.) The unspeakable gift of God will eventually be shared in by blessed and holy characters who have Christ's righteousness imparted to them. (2 Cor. 9:15; Rev. 20:6; Matt. 25:46; 1 Cor. 1:30.) The refiner's fire that purifies gold, destroys the dross. (Zech. 13:9.) God's jewels will be saved, but all the wicked of the earth like dross will be put away forever. (Mal. 3:17, 18; Psa. 119:119; 37:20, 34, 38.) "It suits not the eternal laws of good that evil be immortal."

IMPORTANCE OF GIVING

MANY TOURING EUROPE a few years from now will make a point of visiting the famous library of the University of Louvain, because as school children here they gave toward its restoration. That fact alone will increase the value of their visit tenfold. Those who never see it will know something of Louvain they would not have learned, except by giving.—Los Angeles Examiner,

A DAY WELL SPENT

“If through all the live-long day
 We’ve eased no heart by yea or nay;
 If through it all
 We’ve done no thing that we can trace,
 That brought the sunshine to a face;
 No act most small,
 That helped some soul and nothing cost,
 Then count that day as worse than lost.

“But if we sit down at set of sun
 And count the things that have been done,
 And counting find
 One self-denying act,—one word
 That eased the heart of him who heard;
 One glance most kind,
 That fell like sunshine where it went Then may we count the day well spent.”

THE GOOD SHEPHERD

By Lydia Railsback

FOR YEARS, sheep-raising was the principal industry in Palestine. This was especially true in Biblical times. As a rule the shepherds led their flocks, but in moving from one place to another they were sometimes driven. In some instances a shepherd would give names to the individual sheep, so that he could single out any one of his flock and call it to him. Sheep that are used to one shepherd will follow no other. They know the voice of their own, but the voice of a stranger they will not heed.

Sheep were raised in such great numbers that it required the time of many shepherds with their dogs, as well as beasts of carriage, such as horses, asses and camels. It was no easy task to care for such a flock. The shepherds were often subjected to all kinds of danger. They were exposed to the extremes of heat and cold, and oftentimes had to protect their flocks from the ravages of wild beasts, such as lions, wolves, bears and panthers. The hireling would flee in such times of danger, but the true shepherd stayed with his sheep and protected them, even if he had to give his life for them.

If one went astray or was lost, the shepherd left the rest of the flock and went out to seek and to find the lost and bring it back to the fold. “All we, like sheep have gone astray”. We have a Shepherd who is even more anxious about us than were the shepherds of old about their sheep. He died for us while we were yet outside the fold. “But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us”.

The sheep is an emblem of meekness, patience and submission. Our Savior was likened unto this in Isaiah 53:

7, where it says, “He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth”. In all His sufferings, Christ was very submissive. He did it patiently for you and for me.

Christ, himself, said, “I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep”. Christ, being the Good Shepherd, leadeth His sheep, the true Christians, in all the walks of life: and the true Christian knows the Good Shepherd’s voice and is glad to follow.

In the case of the shepherd giving his life to save his sheep, this life would be only the prolongation of the present life: but in the case of Christ, the Good Shepherd, giving His life for us, it means much more than this present life, it means that His followers are to have life beyond the grave. What a wonderful Shepherd to lay down His life that we, poor sinful creatures, might live!

LAUGHTER AND THE LASH

AS ONE ENTERS a Buddhist temple, just within the doorway and facing it stands the image of a fat, jolly god with smiling countenance, christened by tourists the Laughing Buddha. This image, like many others, is not an idol in the sense that it receives worship, but rather typifies an idea. The Laughing Buddha is the Welcome sign extended to the world outside. Immediately back of the smiling image stands Justice, a stern figure with a whip in his hand. He must not be allowed to see the people who pass by outside, for wherever he saw fault he would punish and destroy, so he is placed with his back to the Laughing Buddha, beholding only the great image of the Perfect One at the other end of the temple enclosure. The figures typify an age-old antithesis between justice and benevolence—between love and law.

Love is not always wise, and justice is not always kind. What the world needs is not an arbitrary mixture of the two, but rather a higher principle, a common denominator if you please, which includes both and weakens neither. We find such a principle exemplified in the life of Jesus. At times He wielded the lash of justice against the hypocritical religionists of His day, but His dealing with penitent sinners was with the healing touch of love. Jesus did not regard sin as a light matter easy to set aside. His sense of right conduct, as shown in the Sermon on the Mount, was clear and keen, yet His mission was not to condemn, but to justify. The world stood condemned already. The law of Moses had done that, and it could do no more. The weakness of the legalistic religions to-day lies just here: they tell us what God requires, but do not enable us to meet the requirement. Now a greater than Moses was here, One who was subject to our passions, yet without sin. “Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows. . . . he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.”—Sel,

"I HAVE CHOSEN YOU OUT OF THE WORLD, THEREFORE THE WORLD HATETH YOU."—JOHN 15:19.

IN EVERY FIELD of carnal endeavor, probably one thing most sought after is a place in the limelight of man's acclamation. Fame is an elusive sprite who is all the more captivating because she is so hard to overtake.

There have been many, however, who have risen to the heights in invention, in industry, in literature, in music, in art, to find that the ways of fame are not altogether pleasant. For everyone in whom the leadership in his line is vested, reward and punishment go hand in hand. Universal recognition is the reward; the punishment, criticism and opposition.

One consideration to bear in mind is the fact that nothing commonplace ever becomes the target for the attacks of critical humankind. There is a mountain of truth in these words: "If a man's work be merely mediocre, he will be left severely alone—if he achieve a masterpiece, it will set a million tongues a-wagging."

How often have we witnessed that very reaction in the history of the world's progress! A musician rose to immortal appreciation of the multitudes, but the few whom he displaced maintained angrily that Wagner's work was worthless. Jealousy and slander in the realm of art were directed against our Whistler even after the world had proclaimed him a great artist. The steamboat, the wireless, the airplane, the radio have all taken their places in the field of usefulness while the scornful few have stood by and cried, "It can't be done!" If these achievements had not become standards for the world, opposition would never have raised its head. It has been well said: "The leader is assailed because he is a leader, and the effort to equal him is merely added proof of that leadership. Failing to equal or to excel the follower seeks to depreciate and to destroy, but only confirms once more the superiority of that which he strives to supplant."

In the world of Christian effort we find these same truths to be even more apparent. Throughout the record of Bible history we notice that those who through superiority stood out from their fellows were the ones whom jealousy and fierce hatred sought to destroy. From the beginning it is the righteous one who has suffered,

Cain slew his brother Abel. "And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous." The prophets, which were recognized as being sent from God, all suffered affliction or death from those they came to save. Stephen brought this fact to the remembrance of the Jews when he said, "Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the Just One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers". This last accusation speaks of the crucifixion of Christ, the outstanding Leader and Righteous One of all time, despised and slain at the hands of sinful, jealous man.

This same Jesus is our great Example. He could endure the criticism and abuse of His fellow-men because He comprehended the exaltation of His calling. He had something worthy of recognition. His righteousness lifted Him above the dwarfed viewpoint of sinful man and enabled Him to see "the joy set before him." And so Paul says, "Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution."

Criticism is one of the hardest kinds of persecution we have to face to-day. We forget that the one who is never talked about is the one who has done nothing worthy of notice.

Let us not aspire to be leaders in our own right, Berean brothers and sisters, but if through God's grace we can be examples worthy of emulation and so of criticism by our fellow-men, may we "count it all joy."

Said Eliphaz to Job: "Behold, thou hast instructed many, and thou hast strengthened the weak hands. Thy words have upholden him that was falling, and thou hast strengthened the feeble knees. But now it is come upon thee, and thou faintest; it toucheth thee, and thou art troubled. Is not this thy fear, thy confidence, thy hope, and the uprightness of thy ways? Remember, I pray thee, who ever perished, being innocent? or where were the righteous cut off?" Job 4:3-7,

PRAYER

DEAR GOD, help me to do this work well." Do you say a little prayer like that when you undertake any task? Why not? God is interested in all that we do, and wants to help us if we feel the need of His help. "Ask, and it shall be given you." He wants us to talk over our difficulties and plans with Him. And if we are thankful for His care, why not tell Him so? We know so little what is best for us; therefore, we should ask God to give us wisdom and guide our steps in the paths of right. And how glad we are to know that God will forgive us when we tell Him we are sorry! All of these thoughts we put into our prayers, and we ask them in the name of Jesus.

Jesus gave us a model Prayer in His "Sermon on the Mount." We call it the "Lord's Prayer," and we should all know it. The words are simple; the prayer is not long; yet, it contains reference to all our daily needs and hopes. Honor is given to the Heavenly Father and His exalted powers. Deliverance from evil is asked and forgiveness as we forgive.

Children, do you now see what thoughts to put into your own prayers?

Where do you pray? Do you say a prayer every day or every evening? Jesus says pray in secret and "thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." God sees into our hearts and minds so He already knows how prayerful we are as well as what we need. Therefore, we can pray at any or all times.

The simple words, "Please, God help me," if you really mean them and believe God will help will be as acceptable to God and as surely answered as a long, long prayer. Or, when you are particularly glad and have done something well, or received some pleasing favor, "Thank you, God" will surely be heard. And, no one about you may know that you have said these little prayers, for you are not saying them for anyone else but God to hear.

Jesus said that hypocrites, or people who do not mean what they say, stand on street corners or stand in the synagogue just so people will see them and say, "What a good man he is!" That is the reward he craves and the reward he receives.

Some people repeat the same words over and over, thinking that God will hear them because they say a lot of words. Some keep count with beads of how many times they say their prayer. Others have "prayer mills" which grind out prayers. Do you see how meaningless that all is?

At another time Jesus told the following parable to show the right and wrong attitude toward prayer.

Two men went up to the temple to pray. One was a Pharisee—proud of his perfect life. The other was a publican—one of the despised class of "tax gatherers."

The Pharisee stood and said, "God, I thank thee that I am not as other men are . . . even as this publican. I fast twice a week, I give tithes of all I possess."

Now, was not he a good man? He did not need to fast so often, and he wanted God to know just how good and wonderful a man he was. He wanted God to appreciate all his splendid efforts! But, did not God already know the kind of person he really was?

Now, observe the publican. He stood away off, and would not even lift his eyes to heaven. He smote his breast in his earnestness. He did not brag about himself, but humbly begged "God be merciful to me a sinner."

Which man do you think really loved God most, and was given greater reward? Jesus said, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

REMEMBER

We may talk to God in prayer. He will answer if we believe that He will.

GOLDEN TEXT

If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.—John 15:7.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Prayer. There are six Gr. verbs and five Gr. nouns used in the N. T. in speaking of prayer. While all are in agreement yet each word carries its own special qualifying meaning. Therefore the student should remember that two texts which might seem to conflict are probably in agreement when he shall have discerned the shade of meaning intended by each. His earnestness should be to discover the qualified meanings and glean the great beauty of Scriptural story.

Prayer to God recognizes that God is over all creation. All things are in His hand. He is all-powerful to do or provide as He knows best and He knows what we need even before we ask. It exalts God before self. No prayer can be earnestly addressed to God without automatically serving to put the one praying into his proper position relative to Him.

The reading of God's Word reveals God to the reader. It reveals God in His many purposes, in His unnumbered ways, in His love, His mercy, His righteousness, His judgment, His wrath—His Word reveals Him in His fullness. Prayer to God reveals man to himself. Prayer is possibly the most thorough and accurate means for a man to obtain real detailed analysis of himself. His standing, his aims, his motives, his real love for God, his real devotion to God's ways, his real love for his neighbor: these all are analyzed and thrown back upon the screen of one's own heart by prayer. God's Word reveals God to man; man's prayer reveals man to himself in his faithfulness or unfaithfulness toward God.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

An Unused Fortune. Probably the most valuable opportunity that is open before the Christian of to-day is the one that is least appreciated. It is communion with God. There appears to be somewhat of a feeling of distance and mysteriousness regarding the matter of prayer, as though it could not be understood or employed save by a few. The plain truth of the matter is that prayer is a most practical daily factor that should be used in the life of every child of God.

If food and air and exercise are practical for physical welfare, then prayer is just as practical for the real life that one would live before God. A human father loves and provides and plans for his son with much more earnestness and zeal if that son shows a desire to approach the father and consult with him and receive his advice and aid. Our heavenly Father is more capable than any human parent to help His children, and He is also more anxious to do so. How much we miss by not using prayer in a practical way each day of our lives!—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"If perchance ye abide in me, and my sayings in you abide, whatsoever ye desire, ask! and it shall be brought to pass for you."—John 15:7, Roth.

O, if we could only know the fullness and depth of that expression of our Lord and Savior, "Abide in me"! Our Savior would have us steadfastly and persistently cleave to Him and let Him and His Word dwell in our hearts by faith, to guide, govern, quicken, and establish us in every good word and deed. If we bear this closeness to Him as the branch bears to the vine, He will grant us our desires and wants, because they are for our good and His eternal glory.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Study of God's Word and Prayer.

An attempt to discount the teaching and belief that the Holy Spirit is received in some miraculous way through agonizing prayer has led some to the belief that the Holy Spirit can be received only through study of God's Word.

This latter belief is a greater hinderance to spiritual growth than the former. Without prayer to God that His mind (Spirit) might guide and direct the study of His Word man cannot discern truth as it is in Jesus, which is saving truth. For without the prompting and guidance of God's mind man's mind is prompted and guided by the flesh life, and the flesh mind cannot discern and comprehend the things of God. The flesh mind may analyze and memorize the whole Book of God; it cannot interpret it from God's viewpoint. Its every teaching will be warped by the pride and selfishness of flesh thinking. Hence prayer for God's wisdom to guide in the study of His Word, and faith that it will guide outside and above the written words are necessary to reception of God's Holy Spirit. Patient intelligent study of His Word is necessary but it is effective only when accompanied by prayer for wisdom.

Failure to study under the guidance of prayer has resulted in all our various and numerous creeds each colored by man's selfishness and pride. This includes Church of God creeds.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Let Us Pray.

Prayer may be studied from three standpoints: how to pray; for what to pray; the necessity of prayer.

Our lesson to-day deals mostly with the subject: "How to Pray," but gives us some idea also of "For What to Pray."

In the first verse Jesus tells us not to pray as the hypocrites do. They pray in the synagogues and on the street corners to be seen of men. "To be seen of men" is their main object. In the next verse He tells us how to pray. Do you think Jesus meant that it was wrong for us to pray in synagogues and on street corners? Then Jesus tells us how the heathens pray and warns us against making long prayers. Why?

"The Model Prayer" comes next. Does not this prayer cover all things for which we need to pray? Learn this prayer if you do not know it and learn to tell where it may be found.

In Luke 18:9-14 Jesus gave another illustration of "How to Pray." Notice how simple and humble the prayer of the publican is compared to the prayer of the Pharisee. And in 1 John 5:15, we have the assurance of our prayers being answered. Prayer is the way we may communicate with our Father in heaven. He answers prayers, so let us make good use of the opportunity.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Talking to God.

Aim: To know the joy and help that prayer gives.

Jesus gave us the sample prayer, only six petitions made, and these all necessary for every nation and people. He warns us against long and meaningless prayer, or a prayer just to be heard because of its eloquence while we are looking for the praise of men. Our prayers should not be formal petitions, but sincere intercessions to God because of our or some one's great need that no human being can supply. We need to talk with God, getting so close to Him that we can feel His very presence and our burdens lifted. We know of some one who needs the Father's help. We intercede for them. Intercessory prayer is more than just asking; it is beseeching, continued asking in faith. He does not tire of such prayer but counts it strong and enduring for truth.

Pray without ceasing.—M. A. W.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Prayer, an expression of man's need of God; prayer, an expression of faith in God; prayer, an expression of fellowship with God; prayer and study of God's Word the means of receiving the Holy Spirit.—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. Austin was to close his work at Grand Rapids last Sunday night, and is expected to show up at the office a few days this week.

Word from Eldorado, Illinois, indicates that the winter weather has spread its icy hand over southern Illinois as well as the northern part, and that many of our church people there suffered from the flu.

For the convenience of those who desire the address of Bro. and Sr. Thayer we call attention to the fact that they may be addressed as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Thayer, Care Aurora College, Aurora, Illinois.

Attendance at the Oregon church has been on the increase for the past month, and an unusually large number of visitors were present last Sunday night. The male quartet rendered a selection which was deeply appreciated by the audience.

Sister Mildred Walls of Rockford, Illinois, who sustained a very painful ankle injury nearly a month ago is making splendid improvement and is able to get around now without a crutch. She, with others was at Oregon for church last Sunday morning.

Word from Bro. A. W. Darby, Gresham, Oregon, informs us that he keeps an appointment with the brethren at Felida on the first Sunday of each month, and that the brethren there would be glad to welcome any of the brothers or sisters who are passing that way.

Sister F. E. Siple, who has been in attendance upon her mother in Adrian, Mich. for the past three weeks, reports that her mother is making splendid recovery, and that she can likely return to Oregon in a few days. As to "Daddy" Siple and the kiddies,—well, it is putting it lightly to say they will be glad to have "Mother" back.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay continues to improve at his home in Oregon, and now is dressed a good share of the day and walks out of the house some. His daughter, Hazel, Mrs. Henry Mattison, suffered a serious case of the flu which has left her painfully ill with sinus trouble. We hope to hear of her marked improvement in a few days.

Miss Leila Mae Siple, employee in the N. B. I. office, celebrated last week by being sick for a few days but is back at work again now.

TO ILLINOIS FRIENDS

The Illinois Conference is hoping to make the year 1929 one of the best years in Christian work. Bro. G. E. Marsh, 325 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Illinois, is acting as state evangelist and is well qualified for the work. We ask for him the full cooperation and hearty support of the individuals and churches.

We shall be glad to receive suggestions or requests relative to appointments or special meetings for spring and summer, and we urge you to bear in mind that this is now the most trying time of year on our Treasurer. If you have not sent your part for the year's work yet, it will be highly appreciated if you can send at least a part of it now. Address Miss Anna Drew, 629 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Illinois.

F. E. Siple, President

It appears that Sister Evelyn K. H. Austin decided to visit the Grand Rapids church and Sunday School over Sunday, Jan. 24. Having a husband there was too much of a drawing card to be resisted. Sister Austin writes that the field in Grand Rapids looks wonderfully large and promising to her, and that there is a real inspiration in their Sunday School.

SOME FACTS

In balancing up the books of the National Bible Institution for 1928 a number of interesting items may be observed. Knowing that many of the brethren throughout the country are anxious to know just how affairs are moving in a business way we offer the following items for consideration:

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

The work is going on beautifully here. There is a very noticeable increase in Sunday School and the preaching service since the flu has abated. And best of all a very noticeable spirit of fellowship and brotherly love. O, may that increase until we are one in spirit.

The death of one of our loyal members, Sr. Denton, has brought grief to her relatives and many friends, but we are glad to know that she will not always sleep but will ere long hear the voice of the Son of God and will come forth.

We are planning great things here for the future. For instance, an Easter program; and also ways of helping the general work.

NEWS FROM INDIANA

Sr. Marshall Logan of the North Salem Church, who has been in the Epworth Hospital in South Bend, for the past two weeks, returned home Thursday evening. The operation on the eye, an iridectomy, was a very delicate one attended with grave danger. However, it was very successful and Sr. Logan has recovered the sight of her eye to such an extent that she can read large bold headline type without glasses.

Sister M. A. Woodward is slowly improving and gaining strength after her long wrestle with the flu. Her many friends are remembering her at the throne of grace.

Sister Densmore writes from Kewanee, Illinois, that her daughter, Phoebe, Mrs. Orville Lind, who was bereft of her baby girl last month, has been sick since the baby's death and is even yet very weak from effects of the flu. They appreciate very deeply the many letters and tokens of love and sympathy received, but Phoebe has not been physically able to answer them in person. We pray that God may give them comfort and restore this sister to health and strength.

KANSAS

The Berean class at Arkansas City is going strong. We have been having an average attendance of 20 in spite of the prevailing epidemic of the flu. When conditions are all right we have from 32 to 35. We have three classes: the adult class, with Bro. Geo. Waters of Newkirk, Okla. for teacher; the junior class, which consists of five boys and one little girl, with Sister Waters as teacher; and the class of younger children, five in number, which our young sister Faye Morgan teaches. She reads the Bible stories to them and helps them in their drawings and illustrations.

I want to tell you something about the work this young sister is doing, or rather how she comes to be doing it. Bro. Siple baptized her with others last fall at our conference. Right away she said, "Now I feel like I can do something and I wonder if I might not have the little folks to teach." As soon as it was learned of her desire to get right to work in the Master's service she was given this class. She is only fifteen years old but her example could well be imitated by others to a profit much older than she is. I thought this might encourage others, who have just enlisted for Christ, to get busy at once.

Brother and Sister Smith have left us to make their home in Texas. We miss them so much. A recent letter from them tells us that while they are enjoying the nice garden vegetables, lots of eggs from a large flock of leghorn hens, and plenty of nice milk and cream from four cows, etc., yet they are certainly missing the spiritual food they obtained at our Bible study here. We are glad they are warmed so nicely with their daughter in the warm climate of Texas yet we cannot help wishing they were back with us.

Sister Ella Chaplin Curtis and husband are now keeping house by themselves at Augusta, Kansas, where he is employed in a refinery.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Chaplin are the parents of a baby girl born on January 28th at the Arkansas City hospital. Mother and babe are doing fine.

Sister Harriet Reed, who has been very sick with the flu is much better now.

Mr. Ivan Vickery, who was so badly injured in the automobile accident which was fatal to his wife, Sister Ella Vickery, and Sister Minnie Chaplin, is still confined to a hospital in Wichata, Kansas. He seems to be slowly improving and we hope that ere long he will get back to his normal health.

Sister D. C. Robinson has returned to Arkansas City after a year's absence spent at Salem, Ohio, her former home, thus adding one more to the class here.

Sister Lorena Waters is a student at Stillwater, Okla. this winter and only occasionally can be with us in our class work. We miss her smiling face and her enthusiasm in class, also her voice in singing songs of praise. She is always ready to do her part when with us.

Sr. Lucile Reed of Attica, Kans. is staying with their grandmother, Mrs. Harriet Reed. She also is a fine little Bible student and helps make our class interesting as do all the others.

Mrs. A. J. Chaplin is much better after her fall in October. She can get around part of the time without the use of a cane but is still quite lame. She wishes to thank every one who remembered her with so many nice letters during her sickness which lasted almost three months. They were like the oasis in a desert, so full of cheering words and sympathy.

A dear sister here, who also is afflicted, would, I know, appreciate good letters from the church folks. Her name and address is, Sister Wm. Hadickie, 108 So. C Street Arkansas City, Kansas.

It has been learned just recently that Mrs. Bernice Brown, of St. Louis, Mo. one of Bro. Siple's converts whom he baptized at our conference last year, can now be addressed as Mrs. Sidney Smith. Marriage took place Nov. 28th, and they are at home to their friends at 3203 Eads Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

We have had no preaching here since the third Sunday, I think it was, in October. Bro. O. J. Allard and wife visited the church people here and he gave us two very fine discourses during the day which we all appreciated very much.

Francis R. Denton, Cornelia D. Meadows, Burl H. Denton all residing in Omaha, Neb., Ethel M. Haller residing in Burbank, California and Marguerite E. Mock of Kennard, Neb. One child died in infancy.

She leaves to mourn her death the wives and husbands of the above children and thirteen grandchildren, no brothers and one sister and a host of friends.

About the year of 1883 the subject of this sketch with her husband came to Neb. and in the true pioneer spirit began at once to create a home, living for some time in the Colby neighborhood, later moving south of Kennard where they established a home and there reared their family to manhood and womanhood. By arduous labor and the practice of frugality they were able not only to lay aside for their evening time of life but also gave all of their children good educations. The deceased, while a sufferer for many years, was a kind mother always concerned about the welfare of her children and grandchildren. By the close study of the Book she had attuned her heart with that of her God and had so fashioned her life that when the final summons came she was willing and ready to abide by her Master's will.

When a young girl she was converted in the Methodist faith. Sixteen years ago she united with the Church of God, and her faith held firm to the end.

The funeral services were held from the M. E. church at Kennard, Monday, Jan. 28, 1929. Prayer and scripture reading were given by Rev. H. E. Lacy of M. E. church and sermon was conducted by Bro. E. E. Giesler, pastor of Church of God of Blair. She was laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Kennard cemetery to await the Master's call.

Abide with me fast falls the eventide,
The darkness, deepens, Lord with me abide
When other helpers fail, and comforts flee
Help of the helpless, O abide with me.

Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day,
Earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away,
Change and decay in all around I see,
O thou, who changest not, abide with me.

Mrs. J. A. Swihart, Kennard, Neb.

OBITUARIES

EUGENE A. MORGAN

On the fifteenth of January I was called to Corvallis, Oregon, to conduct the funeral of Bro. Eugene A. Morgan.

Mr. Morgan was born in Chautauqua County, New York, March 5, 1851. He was the son of Jabez and Marian Morgan. He was married to Mary Allen Anderson in Benton County, Arkansas, April 28, 1878. Mrs. Morgan died November 25, 1927. Mr. Morgan spent his years at farming until forced to retire. He was for 35 years a member of the Church of God.

Four daughters and two sons survive. They are Mrs. Ethel Ebi, Hood River; Mrs. Clifford Kerr and Bruce Morgan, Corvallis; Mrs. Albia Walthers, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Clara Stinnette, Moorefield, Neb.; and Ralph Morgan, Imbler, Oregon. Three brothers, Owen, Albert and Ernest Morgan, reside in Michigan.

Bro. Morgan was a resident of Corvallis since 1901, always in attendance at church, a lover of peace and quietude, with brotherly love for all. He lived so that he was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

A. W. Darby.

MARY ELIZABETH RHEA

Mary Elizabeth Rhea, was born at Abingdon, Virginia, Feb. 14, 1858; died January 26, 1929; age 70 years, 11 months, and 13 days. She grew to womanhood in this vicinity of Abingdon and was married to Robt. H. Denton April 11, 1878, who preceded her in death on May 21, 1924. To this union were born six children; namely,

JOY IN JEHOVAH AND HIS SANCTUARY

JEHOVAH is the light and stronghold of my life, and he it is who helps me. Whom have I then to fear? For when bands of wicked foemen assailed me with deadly cruelty, thou didst defend me and it was they who stumbled and fell. So, though war should come, and a host encamp against me, I shall be fearless and confident.

“But the deepest prayer of my heart is that the privilege may be mine of dwelling evermore in thy house, taking part in its stately worship, and tasting the sweetness of thy presence. For in the evil days he hides me in the shelter of his tent, and sets me on a rock: and now that he has given me the victory over all my enemies, I will join the festal procession and offer sacrifices of thanksgiving amid loud strains of music, singing and playing in his honor.

“Hear my loud cry, O my God, and graciously answer me. My heart saith to thee, ‘I seek thy face.’ O hide it not from me. Put me not away in thine anger; for I am thy servant, and thou hast been my helper. O leave me not, O God, my Saviour. For thy love is more than the love of father or mother: though they forsake me, thou wilt take me up. Show me the way, and lead me along a path that is smooth, that mine enemies may not triumph over me with their lies and cruelty. O make me not their prey. Surely I had perished, had I not been sustained by the sure hope of seeing the goodness of Jehovah in the land of the living.

“Wait upon Jehovah. Let your heart be brave and strong; and once again I say, wait upon Jehovah”.

John Edgar McFadyen.*

WHAT HAST THOU?

"For who maketh thee to differ from another? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive? Now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory as if thou hadst not received it?" 1 Cor. 4:7.

THESE STRIKING words from the great Apostle would surely bring humility to the heart of a person who would meditate upon them. They demand an inventory.

You as an individual are different from others. You have a physique that is different, and certain qualities with which you have been endowed. Perchance you are stronger physically than most of your associates. You may have more beautiful eyes or more luxuriant and lustrous hair. But from whence came they? Were they matters of your own making or selecting?

It may be, also, that mentally you are much better equipped than others. You have a logical, reasoning mind, and circumstances of life made it possible for you to receive a good education, therefore you are capable of being a leader.

If, however, these things are yours, what have you that you did not receive? You cannot make yourself different from another. Your physique, your eyes, your hair, your brain,—these are the gifts of a gracious Father. They should be recognized, therefore, as charges for which we are responsible and for the use of which we must eventually give account. In that event there will be none of the boasting, none of the conceit, none of the condition which called forth Paul's question: "Why dost thou glory as if thou hadst not received it?"—F. E. S.

BEING BUSY

ARTHUR BRISBANE, the man who receives a salary twice as large as that of the president of the United States because of his remarkable brain and his ability to write a column of editorials each day, presents some matters occasionally that are worthy of real thought. A couple of days ago one paragraph of his read:

"You are told that the essentials for a successful working girl are 'personality, education, ability, health, neatness.' They all count.

"But more important is her ability to act as a shock absorber for some nervous individual who thinks he is busy because he doesn't know how to organize his work."

Some housewives flutter around and make lots of fuss and are terribly "busy" all of the time. Others calmly accomplish much more and have time for leisure.

Some office men are continually telling themselves and the world how busy they are, with the result that they do not function efficiently and all who are associated with them are thrown into a condition which makes them much less efficient.

If you have developed the despicable habit of always thinking and telling people about how busy you are, stop long enough to look matters over. Are you really accomplishing satisfactory results? Or are you nervously fluttering around without properly organizing and carrying out your work?

Apply the same principle to your service for the heavenly Father. Are you making a show, deceiving yourself and others with a kind of camouflage or are you really getting results and doing things by calm, organized effort? The God of heaven likes efficient workers.

PLEASURE

"I said in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure: and, behold, this also is vanity." Eccl. 2:1.

HOW ALLURINGLY pleasure stands out before the individual, beckoning him on in the ways of self gratification. The flesh is so constituted that each yearning desire seems to reason with the mind that if it can only be satisfied all will be well.

Solomon, in whose hand lay unlimited wealth and whose power could bring to him anything he might desire, was just as human and influenced by just as many natural desires and passions as any of us. But with a wisdom almost beyond comprehension he observed that yielding to a fleshly desire did not bring permanent joy and that seeking mirth did not make one permanently happy. Therefore his conclusion, "Behold, this also is vanity."

How well it would be for us to-day if we could realize the practical wisdom of Solomon's teachings and save ourselves many disasters that come from lightly, frivolously seeking human pleasures.

There is more true pleasure, happiness and contentment in leading a Christian life and walking circumspectly before God.—F. E. S.

BEING REVILED, WE BLESS

“ . . . and labour, working with our own hands: being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it.”

IT IS THE EASIEST and most natural thing in the world to respond or react to another person in a similar manner as that in which he acts toward you. If he is kind and courteous and thoughtful of you it is not at all difficult for you to be kind to him. If he speaks of your good points and compliments you frequently it is natural for you to watch for the good in him and in kindness to overlook the bad. There is no Christianity in that,—it is simply the natural response of human nature to kind treatment.

The test of Christianity comes when one is reviled, persecuted. The natural thing to do when one speaks evil of you is to think of and mention something bad about him; if he criticizes you, to criticise him; if he does you harm or injury to retaliate by taking vengeance upon him. That is the way of human nature.

The teachings of Christ are exactly opposite. Following the Master will develop a principle of action different from the natural,—higher, nobler and unselfish. Under that new system one will accept criticisms and even slanders and persecutions without retaliation. He will actually pray for the welfare of his persecutors.

This was the effort of Paul, and having practiced it for years he was able to say “being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it.”—F. E. S.

SEED-TIME AND HARVEST

By F. L. Austin

THE BAPTISM of nine during the recent meetings held at the South Lawn Park Church at Grand Rapids, Michigan, does not begin to indicate the amount of earnest persevering work that has there been put forth since that church began work in July 1926. With little experience in carrying church responsibilities and with but a small membership, the South Lawn Park congregation began the erection of a small church building in this new, unrestricted and rapidly growing suburb, where fathers and mothers of only moderate incomes were able to build modest homes. The constant expenditure of money and physical and mental labor has surmounted the numerous discouragements common to every such Christian labor. To-day there is an humble church of earnest Christian servants whose ideals of Christianity are reaching ever deeper into the hearts of those of this rapidly growing section.

These baptisms reveal but a portion of the harvest that is steadily whitening. The prospects are that the careful and continuous sowing and the constantly faithful culture by this group of prayerful servants, led first by Bro. Patrick in his genial earnestness and since by Bro. Randall in his tireless action, will be rewarded by frequent harvestings for the Master.

This Grand Rapids work repeats to the Church of God some VALUABLE LESSONS

First, the wide-awake Sunday School has here been in open evidence. This Sunday School has drafted the best services of the whole congregation. The increased teaching and personal contact and influence over what the pastor and elders could render have added very visibly to the results. Here is an evident lesson as to Sunday School effectiveness.

Second, the value of constant pastoral work is evidenced. Not merely pulpit sermonizing—that, too, is indeed needed—but the personal contact of daily work in the homes of the community, of interest in community problems, and interest in all matters encouraging the citizens and community to aspire to the higher Christian ideals. Indeed, a wide awake pastor in any community is justly one of the busiest of men. South Lawn Park church affords a lesson to the Church of God of the need and benefit of such a pastor in every group of Church of God people.

Third, the lesson of forging ahead. How many one-time prosperous and active churches have satisfied themselves with just “holding-their-own”! Without exception such an attitude is but preparation for early obliteration. The church “holds its own” while death, serpent-like, dexterously devours the old stand-bys to the last one! But the church that grasps the new opportunities continuously afforded by the rapidly changing conditions—that church will both increase in its strength and fill its place in the forefront along the line where God is ever advancing the proclamation of the gospel of Christ which “is the power of God unto salvation.”

Not “holding our own”, but, “pressing toward the mark” should be the evident aim of every church.

“Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord;

“And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you:

“Whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

“For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.

“And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people.”

THE LAW AND GOSPEL

By Grover Gordon

LAW—Rule of conduct enforced by an authority superior to the moral beings to whom it is given,—which carries the thought of execution of judgment and a fear of punishment. Where there is fear there is torment.

Gospel—A Saxon word meaning “God’s spell”, or “God’s word.” Evangelion—Good news or glad tidings,—which brings to mind the promise, or word of God (good news) of forgiveness of sin through the blood of the new testament, a better sacrifice than any under the law. While we were yet sinners Christ died for us. This thought creates love and “perfect love casteth out fear.”

The gospel was preached to Abraham in the form of a promise, saying, “In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed”. Gen. 12:3. This promise he accepted and believed, and it was “accounted to him for righteousness” and he was called the friend of God.

According to scripture it is evident, that “the just shall live by faith,” and the law is not of faith. “Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made.”

The descendants of Abraham did not exercise faith in the word of promise (the gospel) even though they had it preached to them. “They to whom it was first preached entered not in because of unbelief.” The word preached, did not profit them, not being mixed with faith, in them that heard it. Because of their lack of faith, the law was given four hundred and thirty years after the promise was made to Abraham, so it did not disannul or make the promise of none effect. “Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law.” The law and the gospel both have their place in God’s plan and purpose. One was added to aid the other until the time appointed of God, this time being the coming of the promised Seed which is Christ, for the law and the prophets were until John; since then the kingdom of God has been preached and Jesus said He did not come to destroy the law and prophets but to fulfill.

The law was given to Israel, the descendants of Abraham, and Paul being one of them, asks the question: “For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect?” Then, “Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance?” If so how shall He judge the world? The law pointed forward to Christ, for we read how He taught His disciples, beginning at Moses and the prophets, saying, Ought not Christ to suffer these things and enter into His glory?

Law then was the schoolmaster to lead to Christ, and when faith came there was no longer need of the schoolmaster, “For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.” If the ones to whom it was first preached, entered not into rest because of unbelief, “Let us labour therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief”. Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law. “Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone. Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: shew me thy faith without thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works.” Was not Abraham our father justified by works when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar? “Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect?”

The written law brought forth the knowledge of sin, and therefore caused fear, while on the other hand the gospel, through Jesus Christ, brings to our minds the love of God, and the forgiveness of sins through the sacrifice of His only begotten Son. The joy that was set before Jesus, was the reason for enduring the cross and despising the shame. In like manner, the followers of Christ should look unto Him, who is the Author and Finisher of our faith, and not let anything separate them from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord! For we will come off more than conquerors through Him that loved us.

“O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?” The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.” 1 Cor. 15:55-58.

INTERESTING INTERNATIONAL ITEMS

WE HAVE GROUPED here a few matters taken from various periodicals and which deal with international conditions of current interest to Bible Students:

FASCIST RULE

A writer in The Round Table gives an outline of Fascist rule. In it he says: “Italian life, in all its manifestations, has to bear the hallmark of Fascism, and nothing else. The lictor’s fascies, till yesterday the emblem of a party, has become the national emblem. The calendar dates from the coming of the Fascists to power. One reads ‘Vith year’ on the title page of one’s newspaper. The Fascist salute is compulsory in public offices and schools. No state of Commerce employee is allowed to express any political ideas opposed to Fascism, or to offer the slightest criticism of it. All secondary and elementary school teachers have had to declare submission to the Fascist creed, and failure to do so has meant dismissal. University professors are required to sign an oath of allegiance.

“The Government party has monopolized the whole moral and physical education of the young, both inside and outside the schools. No other organization is permitted. The independence of the judiciary has not been spared. Seventeen judges—to give a single instance—were dismissed 'for having expressed opinions contrary to the regime,' and on December 8, 1927, attention was publicly drawn to their punishment as a warning.

"Nobody can speak at elections except the Fascists, and they pour scorn on the very idea of elections. The Chamber of Deputies, as every one knows, does not really function. It meets at rare intervals for short sittings, at which there is no decision of any kind. Its business is to pass the Executive's provisional decrees into laws. How long Mussolini will tolerate the Chamber's existence no one knows, but if rumor is to be trusted, the king objects to its formal abolition. The press has been subjected to treatment which has no parallel anywhere, and besides the suppression of the non-Fascist press, all the political parties except the Facist have been dissolved, and any attempt to revive them is visited with from three to five years' imprisonment."

MEN'S HEARTS FAILING THEM FOR FEAR

Lord Rayleigh, a distinguished scientist, and Lord Halsbury, a barrister, made the members of the House of Lords in London do some serious thinking recently with their forecasts of what may happen in the next war. They said:

"The principal buildings should be made gasproof, and means might be devised of sucking the gas away through the sewers of London."

The Earl of Halsbury said that it was his duty, late in the war, to consider plans for the bombardment of Germany. The recent accident at Hamburg had shown what might be done by an escape of poison gas in a town.

Mentioning an area of about twelve square miles in the center of London, he went on, "the total of phosgene gas required to produce a lethal atmosphere over the whole of that area up to a height of forty feet is under 2,000 tons. Yet phosgene gas, for the purposes of war, is as out of date as a blunderbuss."

He described a new gas so deadly that a concentration of one part in ten million parts of air would probably incapacitate a man in a minute. With this gas only forty tons would be needed instead of 2,000. "Multiply it by ten," he added, "and you still have something in the nature of 400 tons to do the thing ten times over."

"A bomb filled with this poison gas, dropped in the center of London, would kill every man, woman, and child in an area of about two miles. Ask any expert, and he will agree with me, that at the present moment, London is at the mercy of any nation, reasonably close, which is evilly disposed enough to come and obliterate it, and that London could be absolutely and completely obliterated."

PREMIER'S SON A PROPHET

"Something is going to crash," said Mr. Oliver Baldwin, the eldest son of Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister of Gr. Britain, addressing a meeting recently. "England," he said, "was reaping the harvest of having enthroned the god Mammon. I am going to be pessimistic," said Mr. Baldwin. "In 1930 we shall be gradually hastening the process of decay, and we shall find this country more unhappy and more miserable. Unemployment will go up by leaps and bounds. Give it ten years, and if something is not done by the people of this country to change from Mammon to Christ, then you will know what it is to suffer." What he says of England will doubtless apply to most of the countries of the earth today.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIST MOVEMENT IN RUSSIA

Russia, at the present moment, is suffering from an epidemic of secret societies, and the Bolshevist dictators are fighting hard—and apparently not very successfully—against a remarkable and widespread revolt of youth against the Soviet regime. The disclosures are made by the Soviet press itself; and wholesale arrests give evidence of the anxiety felt by the authorities at the spread of the anti-Bolshevist movement. An article in the French "Journal des Debats," the author of which has culled all his information directly from the official Bolshevist newspapers, shows that the higher schools and universities are hot-beds of anti-Bolshevist conspiracy, and that the Central Government is seriously alarmed at its obvious failure in the important work of creating a second generation of Communists in Russia. "Anti-Bolshevism," says the writer, "has developed to an impressive extent in the student world. The 'Outchitelskaia Gadette,' an educational newspaper, edited by the Commissary of Public Instruction, devotes columns to this movement against the Communist dogma."

FRANCE'S REPLY TO ITALIAN MENACE

In spite of all the talk about Peace Pacts and universal peace, the nations are still arming against each other. The Alpine passes on the frontier between France and Italy are to bristle with cannon when France's great scheme of frontier fortification is completed. M. Painleve, the French Minister for War, has declared that France will match Italy's fortifications "gun for gun." "Our only ambition is to remain master of our Alpine valleys, for this frontier is far easier to defend than the eastern borders with Germany. Our Italian neighbors have hurried on the building of fortifications on our frontier, and it is only common sense that we keep up with them. Certain works have already been started to protect the region of Nice, which is one of the nerve centers. France realizes the consequences of failure to keep up in the race." Italy started the border fortifications race, building strongholds all along the frontier from the Mediterranean to Mont Blanc, where the frontiers of Italy, France and Switzerland meet on the steep slopes of the mountain. Every inch of the frontier is under close surveillance, and at strategic points along the Italian side barbed wire has been strung.

THE WORKSHOP OF ISRAEL

By James Marshall

ARTICLE NO. 2

THE FIRST THING that impresses one in Palestine to-day is that the land is Arab. Christians are grouped about their holy sites, and Jews dwell in numerous settlements and have their quarters in Haifa and Jerusalem and the other cities; but essentially modern Palestine is Moslem. So one must make up his mind that Jewish institutions there cannot be measured by the standards of the Occident, and one wonders how Jews, who have for centuries dwelt in the cities of Europe and America, are fitting themselves into this Oriental society. It is idle to talk of an Arab problem in Palestine. There is none; the problem in Palestine, as throughout the world, is for the Jew to cope with concepts which are alien to him and adjust himself to the existing civilization.

One can go through the countryside for miles without seeing a Jew, and one can wander through Jerusalem for hours without realizing that the majority of the inhabitants are Jewish. One is chiefly sensible of the slow rhythm of the country, of the long easy stride of the fellah coming in his loose robes from the field, of the dignified grace of the Arab women, whose way of walking is born of the habit of carrying at the same time burdens on the head and children on the back. The westerner is amazed to see camel caravans swaying along the way and donkeys in the fields and on the highways with long-legged men on their backs, like seventeenth-century Biblical woodcuts. The skies are blue and bright and gleam on the bare mountains and on stone mud houses. The dark bazaars of the cities swarm with bargaining peasants. All kinds of merchandise are to be found there, and every sort of smell from sewage to sweet sesame. Youthful apprentices cobble and stitch and decorate the wares. Commerce is a matter of bargaining which sometimes lasts for hours. The chatter of Arabs is all about, and great horned phonographs wail Arab songs. Everywhere there are mosques and coffee-houses where men sit, smoking water pipes and playing backgammon and laughing. Road workers are content to sleep in the shadows of a wheelbarrow at noontime, and the goatherds sit day after day watching their black flocks on the mountain-sides. The peasants go by families to weed the fields and gather the grain and they plow the ground with ox or camel and ancient nail plows. From Dan to Beersheba and among all the borderlands, in Amman and Damascus and the desert on the south, there is this Arab civilization, medieval in method and structure, giving tone to an ancient soil, to the land which is sacred to three great religions.

The remnants of Jewish medievalism are also to be seen, people whose ancestors have been in the land for centuries but have never lived on or become of the land, who have lived in the old ghettos of Jerusalem, Hebron, Safed and Tiberias, as shopkeepers and teachers, and merchants of Misheberachim. Their shops and their homes are like the Arabs' but their mother-tongue is Hebrew. These are the people whose letters for charity have found friendly recipients among the sentimental and the superstitious throughout the world. But their receipts from this source are growing smaller, and their contact with the new Jews has been changing the old order.

Who are the new Jews? Some of them have been on the land for forty years in colonies founded or sustained with the aid of Baron Rothschild, situated mostly in the Plain of Sharon and the land of the Philistines. They have planted orange groves and vineyards; they have suffered from the misrule of the Turks, from malaria plagues, and the destruction of the war; and now their wines and citrus fruits command a wide and ready market. In many instances they have become the instructors to thousands of others who have come since the war from the ghettos of Poland and Russia. These latter immigrants have brought with them the social and economic ideals of the Russian revolution in which many of them actually played a part. From Germany there have come scholars, physicians and teachers bearing the stamp of German precision, washed in the disillusionment and anti-Semitism that have followed the War. There is a smattering of British and American Jews, but Eastern Europe is the principal source of the new Jews.

These are the Chalutzim and they seem like a new race. They were bred in the confining Pale and embittering hatred of Eastern Europe. Like bulbs they sprouted in dark cellars, and now they are flourishing like tulips transplanted into a garden bed. They are strong and handsome and healthy. They no longer have the furtive look of the ghetto, the scheming eye of the man whom all the world kicks, nor the weary gait of people who have no hope. Nor have they acquired the sleekness and self-importance which marks so many of the liberated Jews of America.

They sing as they tramp along the roads or ride in railroad carriages; they seem to be happy and contented, setting trees about their settlements, draining swamps and reaping grain, milking their cattle, building houses and roads. For the first time in centuries Jews are experiencing as a mass the joys of creatorship. They are at home with their surroundings, and their Judaism does not make them self-conscious. Thus far even the unemployed in the present crisis are not degraded.

This is not the mere effluence of a back-to-the-land movement. It has a peculiarly Jewish character besides. The language of farm and home and shop is Hebrew; it is the mother-tongue of the children, the first language which they are taught in the schools. Everywhere—in the Emek, in the colonies about Tiberias, and in the plains and mountains of Judea—you feel not only the joy of the land qua land, but a love of the land of Israel.

On Friday evenings in Tel-Aviv the synagogues are crowded. Walking along the streets one sees the sabbath lights in every home and the family gathered about the table. Shades are not pulled down to conceal the fact that Shabbat is being celebrated. The streets are deserted and the stores are closed except for an occasional pharmacy. There are no vehicles about, and even the Arabs who come to trade on other days are absent on Shabbat. Saturday mornings the same quiet pervades the city, and in the afternoon the streets are crowded with young girls and men, parents and children, strolling in the sunshine. No work is performed in the colonies on the sabbath except that necessary for the care of the animals, and in Jerusalem the Jewish shops are closed and the people go walking or calling on one another. On the holidays there is much joy, and the young people come home singing in the streets after their Seder service. They are at home, and there is no one to whom they must apologize because they celebrate their own festivals and sabbath in their own way. Surely, to feel at home and to be in love with one's surroundings is an achievement and an essential first step if the flame of Jewish life is to be revived.

But they are not satisfied merely with having achieved political and social independence, and in many cases economic security as well. Living in this land they love and speaking their own language, these new Jews are building for themselves a future. Like all pioneers they are experimenting with social institutions. Ethical interest, the desire to find the good life by the right way of living, is a Jewish heritage. Thus there are all kinds of farm colonies, from the pure communist such as Ein Harod, wherein each man and woman gets his food and clothing and lodging but no money and where the children are cared for by communal nurses in communal nurseries, to the privately owned orange groves of Petach Tikvah and the absentee owned groves at Hedera. There are all manner of cooperative enterprises, experiments in the colonizing of farm laborers and in the technical work of farming itself. The local problems are themselves sufficiently varied and serious to demand experimentation, but as one goes from colony to colony, city to city, one becomes conscious that the Palestinian enterprise as a whole is a great social laboratory which in the course of years may become as valuable to the world at large as were the political experiments of the thirteen States and farm colonization in Denmark and Australia.

In this experimentation there is now waste of effort and funds. With greater forethought and more experts and with less propaganda and subservience to doctrinaire notions, much suffering could be avoided and there would be better assurance of eventual success. Through force of circumstances or what not, the direction of this huge enterprise, the management of millions of dollars and the welfare of thousands of people, have been entrusted in too many instances to pamphleteers and brilliant orators, earnest men whose previous knowledge of business and whose agricultural experience were pitifully slight.

If actions indicate heart sentiment the average Christian (?) stands 47 chances of being struck by lightning to one of escaping "a time of trouble, such as never was" (Dan. 12:1), which is NOW knocking at every man's front door.—Haney.

LET EVERY DAY TAKE CARE OF ITSELF

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

IN OUR LITTLE CITY lives a dear old lady, I think she is 96 years old. She is totally blind, has been for some time, and nearly deaf. She has been quite sick with the flu and pneumonia, but through her sickness she never worried about anything. Her daughter, who lives with her, says that her mother never did worry. She always had as her motto, "Let every day take care of itself; just live to-day."

I have thought what a good plan it would be if we all would live by that rule, put our very best into to-day and not waste time's precious hours over the days that are gone never more to return to us, or over what to-morrow may bring. If we will only determine by God's grace to live to-day, trusting Him fully for what to-morrow may bring us we can rest securely in His everlasting arms.

The last year has brought so much of sadness and sorrow into so many homes of the household of faith. Almost every Herald chronicles the death of some dear one and we for a time seem paralyzed with grief. But we can find great comfort when we realize that the "Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart" and that "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." So let us lean upon Jesus who will never leave us or forsake us. We may make mistakes, we may even fall, but as Brother Austin said in a little talk he gave here in our home a few years ago, there is no need to lie still when we fall, but get up and go on again. A child would never learn to walk if after it fell down, it would ever after refuse to even try to walk.

So let us press on in the strength of our Lord, "whose hands are stretched out still," and who is ready, yes, and more than willing to supply our every need. Let each day take care of itself, as Edward Guest has truly said, "Only to-day is ours" and that day is bringing us one day nearer to the glad reunion with all those loved ones whom we have loved and lost a little while. Let us redeem the time for we are all of us going down the valley one by one and what our hands find to do we should do with our might for the night cometh in which no man can work.

"I AM WITH YOU ALWAYS"

'Tis sweet to read the promise He hath given
To cheer our hearts along the pilgrim way,
But sweeter far to know its blest fulfillment,
And humbly walk with Jesus day by day.

To walk with Jesus! who shall tell the gladness
Of those whose daily life the Master shares?
Who hear His voice, so full of love and pity,
And rest on Him their burdens and their cares.

And this is mine—the joy of knowing Jesus,
And walking in the sunlight of His smile;
Mine is the peace that floweth like a river,
Deeper and broader growing all the while.

No more a transient guest my Savior cometh,
To bless me but awhile and then depart;
But with me now He evermore abideth,
And with His own glad presence fills my heart.

Sometimes, when busy with my daily labor,
Yet thinking of the mighty love He bore,
Some precious promise unto me He giveth,
Oft-read, perhaps, but never mine before.

I know not why He gives His choicest blessings
To one so undeserving of His love;
But, since He calls, with willing feet I hasten,
Content and glad to hear Him say, "Well done."

Content to walk in paths of His own choosing,
Since He will hold my hand along the way;
Content to know that I am journeying homeward,
And brighter grows the pilgrim's path each day.

SUBMIT YOURSELVES TO GOD

By Samuel E. Haney

THE SPIRIT itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us ("to us-ward", R. V.). Rom. 8:16-18.

We shall consider these three verses in their respective order. The possession of the Holy Spirit can be more imaginary than real. This is attested by the difference between some Christians' talk and actions, a discrepancy that is sometimes on a par with a plugged, counterfeit nickel compared with the genuine. The "touch-stone" evidence of the indwelling Holy Spirit is a coordination with our spirit, an harmonious and reciprocal relation affecting our lives in every particular.

A few germane texts, while constitutionally are unique, make manifest the origin and constitutionality of this world's spirit, magnifying the difference between the two spirits, a distinction that the enemy has cleverly camouflaged in our day; viz., God's introduction of His Son by Isaiah and John the Baptist: "Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles"; "The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him. And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost (Spirit)." Isa. 42:1; John 1:29, 33. Jesus' testimony of His Messiahship, "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound; to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn". Isa. 61:1, 2. This should convince the most skeptical of the facts and purpose of Jesus' past and future missions on earth.

Man, recipient of God's Holy Spirit, and what it means to be void of it: "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father", Gal. 4:6; "Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us his Spirit", 1 John 4:13; "Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God", 1 Cor. 2:12; "Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty", 2 Cor. 3:17. But O, to be void of this Spirit! "But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his". Rom. 8:9 (italics mine). With these texts in mind, a little introspection should leave no one in doubt as to his Spiritual status with God.

My reason for saying (above), "The possession of the Holy Spirit can be more imaginary than real", was, the subjunctive mood in which Paul discusses the subject; i. e., "If so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you". This mood is quite noticeable in verse 17 which we shall next examine; "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be ('if indeed', Diag.) we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together". The question arises, What constitutes "suffering with Christ"? By consulting a concordance we find the word "suffer" has a varied significance; chastisement is a synonym.

The Christian's experience is prefigured by Job (chaps. 1, 2), whose sufferings were both physical and mental and were permitted of God as a test of fidelity, and a means of character development. Satan is still "going to and fro in the earth", and "walking up and down in it" (Job 1:7) attacking us from within and without. His emissaries are ubiquitous; scarcely a home is void of them. It is evident that God expects His children to profit by a knowledge of Job's recorded experience; besides, the Holy Spirit, through Peter and James, cautions us, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: whom resist, stedfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world." Then comes the good effect of our "sufferings": "But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you." 1 Pet. 5:10. "Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you". James 4:7.

Apart from accidents, provision was made in the ransom for Christians' physical and mental sufferings, which is made effectual by faith, engendered by "hearing" (understanding). Rom. 10:17. But people who are not dead to self and the world are defenseless as lambs of Satan's bodily attacks. He can make them believe they have sinned, when they have not, or feel pain or sick when often it is an illusion. Much suffering can be averted by obedience to Paul's words, "That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh (making themselves non-conductors of the Spirit); but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit", (making themselves non-conductors of Satan's power). Rom. 8:4, 5. We are chastened (automatically) for disobedience; viz., "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee (God)." Isa. 26:3. "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid", Jesus. "Cast thy burdens upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee", David. Obey, and enjoy life; disobey, and be miserable.

The most prevalent cause of the Christian's suffering to-day is his unequivocal stand for truth and righteousness, Satan making these direct attacks through people who have the temerity to classify themselves Christians, and who are usually long on talk and short on action. But no matter from what quarter the Christian's chastisement comes, nor its nature, he is sure to profit: "Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby ('being TRAINED by it', Diag.)". Heb. 12:11. Then Paul, whose defense of Christ and the gospel caused suffering second only to our Lord's with one stroke of the pen ignores the whole category of suffering: "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us". Paul was in a position to write intelligently and authoritatively. He had had a vision (2 Cor. 12:1-7) of the glory; and had experienced Jesus' prediction; i. e., "For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake". Act 9:16.

Our enemy's versatility is unlimited. In the early church physical suffering greatly excelled the mental, while in our day this rule is transposed. Listen to Peter, "Beloved, be not surprised at the FIRE among you, occurring to you for a Trial, as though some strange thing was befalling you; but as you partake of the SUFFERINGS of the ANOINTED one, rejoice; so that at the REVELATION of his GLORY, you may rejoice exultingly". 1 Pet. 4:12, 13, Diag.

God permits our sufferings as He did Job's and Paul's, to eradicate from our hearts self and the worldly spirit, that Christ might dwell therein, fitting us to be master of the enemy. Just as man could not master the horse if the beast knew its strength, the devil could have no power over our souls, spirit and bodies were we to utilize our allotted spiritual strength. "Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy (italics mine): and nothing shall by any means hurt you". Luke 10:19.

"The glory which shall be revealed in us". If our puny minds could but grasp the one-hundredth part of what this means, what an incentive it should be! To be immortal! To see the eternal JEHOVAH! To be like Christ! To reign with Him in glory! To be ever with Him! To be priests and kings when "the whole earth is at rest, and is quiet: (and) they break forth into singing"! Isa. 14:7. When, "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away". Rev. 21:4.

Be assured that we need all the legitimate suffering we experience; and that if properly exercised thereby are profiting accordingly with a certitude of profiting an hundredfold in the world to come.

Personally, my little "suffering" can be abundantly compensated by "just one look at His smiling face; that will be glory enough for me".

IN TRAINING

GOD TRAINS His soldiers, not in tents of ease and luxury but by turning them out, and using them in forced marches and hard service. He makes them ford through streams, and swim through rivers and climb mountains, and walk many a weary mile with heavy knapsacks on their backs. Well, Christian, may not this account for the troubles through which you are passing? Is not this the reason why He is contending with you?

—C. H. Spurgeon,

THE INCOMPARABLE CHRIST

A VERY WINNING CAUSE has its center and inspiration in a leading personality. Behind every movement—social, secular or religious—stands a name that lights the beacon fires of enthusiasm. Time and space forbid the mention of the various “causes” that owe their origin and their vitality to some patron saint or hero. Some of them have flourished for a while and are now forgotten. Others are still with us and bid fair to linger on indefinitely. In proportion as they meet the demands of the times and supply a universal need they are likely to abide.

The glory of Christianity is Jesus—Son of Mary, Son of David, Son of God. To compare Him with Plato, Socrates or any other mere man is to compare the sun at high noon with a tallow candle. He came into the world empty handed—born in a borrowed cradle and wrapped only in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger. Yet, as though that were not a sufficient humiliation, His life was placed in jeopardy at His birth. Herod sent forth and slew all the boys under two years of age, hoping to get rid of the infant Jesus. But God had made other arrangements for His Son! He grew to manhood, began His ministry, lived our Example, died our Sacrifice, and “after three days,” in spite of Roman seals and soldiers He arose from the dead, as the “first fruits” of the immortal life.

“God has given him a name that is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue confess.” Why has Jesus been thus exalted? Out of the millions of men who have lived and told their story why was this One “chosen of God and precious?”

The reason is apparent. At the instant of the incoming of rebellion back in primeval days, Jehovah said, “The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent’s head.” He came on that mission, and linking New Testament history with Old Testament prophecy, the beloved John says, “For this purpose the son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.”

Now what are the facts? He began as a twinkling star hovering over a rude manger cradle. Now He has gone into all lands, and the earth is lightened with His glory. He entered cities and realms before commerce dared to venture and made it safe for others to follow. He revolutionized the world in three years, giving it new law and new religion and a new motive.

In the face of opposition and indifference and compromise, He has kindled a light in Oriental lands that has crossed every sea, entered every land on earth, and the distant and benighted isles are waiting for His law. He solved the mystery of death in three days and came out alive on the other side. He showed His pierced hands and wounded side as evidence of the fact and method of the future life. By divine power He unbarred the gates of Hades, led captivity captive and stood a Conqueror on the grave of death. Samson carried off the gates of Gaza, but fell beneath the ruins. Christ tore the hinges from death’s windowless abode and sent the light streaming through every corner. He hangs a lamp on every weeping willow and touches the frosty lips of death with a song of triumph.

When our political campaigns are on, the speakers tell, and re-tell and tell again, what the candidate has done, and what he proposes to do. Is it too much to demand that “we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord?” Pentecost lingered until the rock-hewn sepulchre was opened. Then the disciples had something to say worth saying, and worth listening to. “If these should hold their peace, the stones would testify.” The Pentecostal message demands the Pentecostal power.

It had to come. The lines were up and in position. And the Christ that lived in Galilee is just the same to-day. He entered the rotting precincts of pagan Rome and we know the result. The doors of China and India and Japan were not opened by the sound of artillery, but by the message of Jesus Christ and the soft touch of the pierced hand. Now we may enter with none to molest or make us afraid. Shall we go with the Key that unlocked the gates of Rome, the doors of China and the ports of India, or shall we compromise the truth and split the difference with pagan and idolaters? There is only one Candidate and one message.

He is “the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.” The shadow and potency of the cross take in the first sinner and the last. The times demand a return to the only gospel that saves, or even interests people.

Come back to the old, old story of Jesus. It will fill your vacant pews, and your depleted treasuries. We won’t have to resort to various schemes of a questionable nature to attract the people. “Feed my lambs?” Yes, but “not with bread alone.” “I am the bread that came down from heaven.” “He that eateth of this bread shall live forever.”—Selected.

Life is not done, and our Christian character is not won, so long as God has any thing left for us to suffer or to do.—F. W. Robertson.

“BE STILL”

There is immense power in stillness. A great saint once said, “All things come to him who knows how to trust and be silent.” The words are pregnant with meaning. A knowledge of this fact would immensely change our ways of working. Instead of restless struggles, we would “sit down” inwardly before the Lord, and would let the Divine forces of His Spirit work out in silence the ends to which we aspire. You may not see or feel the operations of this silent force, but be assured it is always working mightily, and will work for you, if you only get your spirit still enough to be carried along the currents of its power.—Author Unknown.

"I WILL FEAR NO EVIL: FOR THOU ART WITH ME".—PSA. 23:4.

THE OCEAN tosses the sands of the beach at will—but it doesn't disturb the lighthouse. The difference is that the sands are not fixed, they have no foundation. Each grain of sand says, 'I'm big enough to stand my ground'; then in rolls a wave which carries it far, far away.

"Made into mortar and laid into firm walls, that same grain of sand stands impregnable against the sea. It has become a part of the lighthouse—a cog in a machine, a link in a chain, a unit in an organization."

How like the little grains of sand are we! One of human nature's outstanding traits is the love of independence. We like to toss our heads and square our shoulders and with a self-sufficient air exclaim, "I am capable of taking care of myself!" The "self-made" man is held up as a model to our young people and they grow up to despise the thought of dependence on God or man for anything.

But just as the separate grains of sand were helpless before the onrush of the waves, so we by ourselves are helpless in the crises that we meet in life. I need to learn that by myself I am nothing and can do nothing. But let me ally myself with Christ and become a part of that firm mountain of strength and all the world cannot prevail against me.

To stand firmly with Christ we need to live close to Him. Let us talk with Him often, remembering that our biggest cares are not too large for Him to share, nor the smallest ones too trifling for His loving concern.

We cannot survive the storms of life if we stand alone. But all the strength of the arm of almighty God is at our command if we cooperate with His Son Jesus Christ.

"Leaning, resting, trusting, loving,
Enter thy new year;
For the Lord who lives to love thee
Will be always near,
Shielding, guiding, caring, blessing!
What hast thou to fear?"

"The LORD is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

REPORT FROM DIXON, ILLINOIS

Despite the fact that, as a society, the Junior Bereans of Dixon had existed from July 6, 1928, definite organization was not effected until the date set for its annual business meeting, namely, January 2, 1929. On the later date the class elected new officers and adopted a constitution.

The results of the balloting follow: President, Elizabeth Ford; Vice-President, Frances Rossiter; Secretary and Treasurer, Arlen Marsh. Dale Reis, President; Helen Roberts, Vice-President; and Lyle Drew, Secretary-Treasurer, were the able officers retired.

When tentatively organized last July the society consisted of thirteen members; at the last session a gain of two brought the registration to twenty-two.

On Saturday, January 26, the Junior Bereans expect to hold the first of the parties arranged for during the meeting of January 23.

Arlen Marsh, Secretary.

REPORT FROM SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

The Junior Bereans of South Bend met on Sunday evening, January 20, with Sr. Lydia Railsback, to study Lesson 31, "The Resurrection." There were nine present, our average attendance.

After the lesson, officers were elected for the coming year. Lynn Leighty was reelected president. Frances Byers was elected secretary-treasurer. It was also decided that the secretary-treasurer should take the place of vice-president.

Although our class is small, we are working on with the hope of a larger attendance and renewed interest.

—Frances Byers, Secretary.

CHRISTIAN GROWTH

DO YOU HAVE a small brother or sister? Do you remember how tiny he or she was at first? Then it was not long until he could walk and begin to talk. And almost before you knew it the child was old enough to go to school. Mother says it is not long until her son and daughter are in High School and soon they graduate and begin their life work.

Tell me, now, how Christian life is like the growth of this child. In the beginning the Christian knows very little of the truth and is fed on the "milk of the word," or the very simplest thoughts. As he studies these ideas he begins to walk in the Christian way and talk the Christian language. As the child is gradually fed cereals and vegetables, so the Christian's knowledge is gradually increased. Difficult problems begin to "clear up" and in time the Christian eats the "strong meat," or understands the more perplexing questions. All along he has been applying the new ideas he has learned. The more he learns the better Christian he should become, and the better to use Christian methods in his life work. In one way Christianity is our life work, whether we be preacher, teacher, or one of the most humble workers.

In our lesson Peter and his development are given as illustrations of this Christian growth. Four times in the life of Peter are given, and each shows that Peter has advanced along the Christian road. The first story tells how Peter was brought to Jesus—the baby stage, we might say.

One day John the Baptist was standing with Andrew and another John. He saw Jesus walking nearby and said, "Behold the Lamb of God." The two friends followed Jesus who invited them to His dwelling. Here they remained for the rest of the day. Andrew was so impressed with Jesus' words that he wanted his brother to know Him too. So he hurried to Simon Peter and exclaimed, "We have found the Messiah, which is being interpreted the Christ." Peter went with Andrew. When Jesus saw Peter He said, "Thou art Simon, the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone." Peter did quick impulsive things on the outside, but Jesus knew he was like a bed of solid rock inside.

That was the beginning. The next scene shows Peter's understanding had grown considerably.

Jesus was with the disciples. All at once He said,

"Whom do men say that I am?" They answered, "Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets." Whereupon, Jesus asked, "But whom say ye that I am?" Then Peter quickly answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." At this reply Jesus told Peter that he was surely blessed, that God only could have told him what to say. And again Jesus called Peter a rock. Not only in understanding had Peter advanced, but likewise in favor with God and Jesus.

The third scene is after Jesus is resurrected from the dead. It is also the third time Jesus has shown Himself to His disciples. The disciples had been fishing all night, but had caught no fish. At morning Jesus stood on the shore. He told the fishermen to again cast their net into the sea. They did so, and the net was filled. As soon as they came to shore they saw a fire of coals, and fish cooking over the fire. Then Jesus told them to eat the fish and bread that was also there. When they had eaten, Jesus said to Peter, "Simon Peter, Simon son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" "Yea, Lord, thou knowest I love thee," replied Peter. Then, "Feed my lambs" said Jesus. Again Jesus asked Peter if he loved Him; and at Peter's reply said "Feed my sheep." Even the third time Jesus asked the same question. Peter felt grieved this time and answered, "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest I love thee." And even again Jesus said, "Feed my sheep." Do you see that Peter had so advanced in Christian life that he might be trusted to teach and help care for other growing Christians?

Jesus also told Peter that the future held trouble and hardship for him, and that in his death he should glorify God. Jesus then used the simple words, "Follow me."

The lesson ends with Peter's own words, "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." Peter had reached a position of authority, and he wanted others to grow too.

GOLDEN TEXT

But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.—2 Pet. 3:18.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Christianity. Just as a babe is as much a human being in his infancy as he is in his matured life, so is one Christian in the beginnings of his new life as well as in his matured development in that new life. Christianity does not presume that the Christian is necessarily perfect and complete, but that he is Christian in the sense that he is a new creature in Christ, 2 Cor. 5:17. As it is wholly essential that babes grow in order to accomplish the purposes of the race, so it is necessary that Christians grow unto the eventual "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" in order to accomplish the purposes which God has designed for Christ and His family.

CHRISTIAN GROWTH

Conversion. Before one can grow in Christ, he must come to exist in Christ; be a Christian. This conversion from one of the Adam type into one of the Christ type can be accomplished only by the miraculous intervention of God Himself. In no sense is such conversion a natural growth of the Adamic into the Christian. Christianity is a state, not a condition. To gain entrance into the Christ type, one must by faith in Christ sever his relation to—die to—the Adamic order, and commit himself to Christ. This is covered by the terms faith, repentance and baptism. Acts 2:38; Rom. 6:1-7; Col. 2:12; Gal. 3:27-29.

Babes in Christ. Paul addressed the church at Corinth, 1 Cor. 1:1-2, as sanctified ones "called saints", and he prayed for them that grace and peace "from God, our Father" might be upon them. He is charitable as regards their carnality because of the fact that they are "babes in Christ", 3:1. He says, 3:2, "I have fed you with milk and not with meat". There was evidently much growth necessary in order for them to attain unto full stature in Christ capable of full service.

Requisites for Christian Growth. The Word of God is the first requisite for the development of the individual in the ways of God and His Son. Israel was commanded to bind God's teachings upon the hand and head and to study them continuously. Deut. 6:6-8. Jesus complimented the Jews saying, "(Ye) search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life."—John 5:39. Paul enjoins Timothy: "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—2 Tim. 2:15.

God's Spirit also is an essential aid to the mastering of "the lusts of the flesh". Paul exhorts the Galatian brethren, Gal. 5:16-19, to "walk in the Spirit" and "be led of the Spirit".

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"But be growing in favour and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—2 Pet. 3:18a, Roth.

Growth is the sign of a healthful condition in all natural life. Man grows in favor of his fellows by his life work and conduct among them. Establish for yourself life habits which will make you to abound in the favor of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. This growth in His favor is not altogether a privilege, it is a command.—F. A. S.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Growing. For a vine to grow properly is to demonstrate that it has a good root system, well embedded in proper soil. When a building grows properly and stands the tests, it demonstrates that the foundation has been properly laid.

The Christian life should be a matter of constant growth and development; growth not only in knowledge as one comes daily to understand God's Word more fully, but also growth in grace or favor before the Father as one puts into practice the knowledge which he has gained. The degree of growth and stability manifested in the life of a Christian, then, will be evidence of the correctness of the foundation upon which he is building.

A true, practical, working faith in Jesus Christ as the Son of God will build one's life of such fiber and on such a footing that the storms of disappointment and sorrow will not be able to bring disaster.—F. E. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: God's Present Purpose in the Church.

We "do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding."—Col. 1:9. Read also. Eph. 3:14-19.

Paul was not in doubt concerning what God is doing with the church during the present time and he prayed in accordance what he knew to be God's chief concern for her. He is making of her a people filled with the knowledge of His will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding; a people in whose hearts Christ dwells by faith rooting and grounding them in love, that they might comprehend the length, depth and height of His love and be filled with the fullness of God, which is grace and truth.

There is one way only to be filled with the knowledge of God's will and that way is to study it under the guidance of prayer. There is one way only to comprehend the love of Christ, and that way is to study the work He is to do to fulfill that love.

Those who turn aside from doctrinal questions that becloud God's wisdom and call in question His claims to being a God of all love, saying that such questions can never be answered cannot, as long as they do so, even begin to be filled with the knowledge of His will and to comprehend the length and depth and height of Christ's love.

The nominal church sets aside this phase, the basic phase, of Christian growth, and works feverishly to do great things for Christ, thus putting the cart before the horse. There is little of reverent, continuous, and intelligent study of God's Word purely for the sake of being filled with the knowledge of His will.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: How a Christian Grows.

Should some one ask you how you grow, you would tell him of your increase in size, in weight, mind, etc. But if some one should ask you how a Christian grows, would you make the same answer?

The Bible contains many accounts of how Christians grow. Peter is the one given in this lesson. Read all the accounts given in your lesson and see how Peter grew. We know from a study of his life that Peter made many mistakes. He even denied Jesus but he grew in favor with God and performed a great work.

Jesus grew, not only in stature, but "waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him." Luke 2:40. Read Luke 2:40-52 for an idea of Jesus' early growth.

But how does the Christian grow? He may grow in knowledge. When we first come to know Christ, we cannot learn all things at one time. It must be a process of gradual learning; hence growth. 1 Cor. 13:11. A Christian may grow in love. We love God and Jesus, His Son, and our love should gradually expand until it even includes our enemies. We may grow in faith. Our faith increases day by day, as we learn to trust in God more and more.

Can you name any other ways a Christian may grow?—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

The Heart of Christian Growth: Col. 1:9; Eph. 1:17, 18; 3:14-19. According to these scriptures what is the heart of Christian growth? Why does the nominal church fail of this growth?—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sister F. E. Siple is home again after four weeks in Michigan, and reports her mother, Sister Clara Smith, well on the road to normal health and strength.

Bro. F. L. Austin spent a couple of days in Oregon last week, going over matters in the office with the other National Bible Institution workers. On Sunday morning he spoke for the Oregon congregation.

The Rockford Berean class had a special social evening last Saturday night which proved to be a very pleasant occasion. These things develop the health and strength of any group by closer contact and better understanding of each other.

NINTH ANNUAL GENERAL CONFERENCE

The ninth annual General Conference of the Church of God is hereby called to meet at Oregon, Illinois, July 30 to August 11, 1929. The General Conference will, as heretofore, be held in connection with the Illinois State Conference of the Church of God.

"BRETHREN, PRAY FOR US"

"PAUL, a servant of God," miraculously converted, instructed in the gospel by a direct and personal "revelation of Jesus Christ," "filled with the Holy Ghost," pleads with the brethren of Thessalonica in these words: "Brethren, pray for us!" This richly endowed man of God felt the need of help which could be obtained only as the result of prayer—the prayer of his faithful fellow Christians.

Brethren of the Church of God, scattered throughout the United States and Canada, the officers of the General Conference and of the National Bible Institution echo this request of the Apostle to the Gentiles: "Brethren, pray for us!" We need your prayers that the work of the National Bible Institution, including the management of Golden Rule Home, the conducting of the Bible Training Class, the directing of the Publishing Plant—all the various activities maintained by the General Conference, may be ordered according to the will and purpose of Almighty God. "Pray for us" that our united efforts may not be in vain. And, brethren, pray for the church at large, that the work of the next General Conference may be so planned, and so conducted, as to bring the greatest degree of glory to the Father, and to His church the maximum of good! Your brother in His service,
G. E. Marsh, President of the General Conference.

DIXON

Thinking it would be of interest to The Restitution Herald readers to know what the ladies of the Sewing Circle are doing here in Dixon, I am enclosing a brief report of our work for the year.

We have been holding our meetings during the year at our homes, making fancy work and aprons, for which we find a ready sale.

CALIFORNIA

Bro. George Rahn and family are occupying their home at 4707 St. Elmo Dr. after a sojourn of a year in Sacramento, Calif.

We were pleased to see quite a few out of town brethren at our all day services on the first Sunday, especially so to have Sr. Edna Allard of Ft. Dodge, Iowa, in our midst. She is visiting her father-in-law, Bro. O. J. Allard of Long Beach, Calif.

Sr. Grant of Rensselaer, Indiana has been visiting her brother, Mr. Harding, of Pasadena, Calif. and attending our services on Sunday. She and Bro. Grant spent the winter here three years ago and we were glad to have her return, if only for a short time.

Bro. and Sr. McLeod spent the week-end in Pomona, Calif. visiting his mother and other relatives. They attended church there on Sunday.

STARBUCK-HOWE

The marriage of Sr. Adelle Starbuck and Bro. Charles W. Howe was solemnized by the writer at the home of the bride's parents, Bro. and Sr. L. F. Starbuck, 2125 Main St., Cedar Falls, Iowa, Feb. 2, 1929, at noon, before a small company of immediate relatives and a few friends.

Sr. Blanche Harland played the wedding march, little Miss Verbie Palmer, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Mrs. Howard sang at the conclusion of the ceremony, while the guests greeted the couple. A very elaborate wedding luncheon was served immediately, after which the happy couple left by train for Dubuque to spend a few days with a brother of the groom.

The bride is very favorably known as a faithful member of the Iowa conference, devoted and energetic in her service, of a cheery disposition, and diligent in her former work as a nurse.

The groom is as commendably known among us as a faithful worker in the conference, often as a public speaker in the gospel, true and gentlemanly in conduct, industrious at his calling of machinist in the I. C. R. R. shops in Waterloo. Hence it is felt safe among their many friends to predict for them a very happy future, which we all sincerely wish for them.

It is rumored that they may take an extensive wedding trip to the coast later.

CHICAGO

Sunday, Feb. 3, was another glad day for the Chicago church spiritually. We were so sorry for those detained at home on account of sickness or the still so very icy streets on which it is not safe to venture. The few who were privileged to attend enjoyed every moment of the service, from the beginning of Bro. Christensen's very splendid remarks from Isaiah 35 to the closing with very appropriate words from the New Testament before the sacrament was served, after which St. Whitehead made the third and fourth chapters of the Hebrew letter a most interesting and profitable lesson. I have enjoyed very much two Sunday services by Bro. Marsh and thought what a pity such soul inspiring sermons could not be broadcast.

I wonder if it is wrong to wish for more money that these means of spreading the gospel might be enjoyed by the thousands instead of the few. Well, God knows and He will bring all things right in His own good time.

I am so much improved in health that I have been able to sit up through two splendid services held here in the Austin and Whitehead home, for which I am very thankful.

Next Sunday the Sunday service will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Borneman at 213 N. Fairfield Ave.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

Our little church at Blair is beginning to be like a city set on a hill, yes, like a candlestick. The sweet spirit of fellowship is very manifest. This is being written at Holbrook.

The meeting here at Holbrook is going fine. The beautiful little church building here stands out like a lighthouse and is a credit to this village. Here, too, is a real bunch of loyal Christians of which the Church of God all over the country should be proud. These brethren are beginning to do something, that will count for time and eternity. Let us go on and be found working when Christ comes.

William M. Burget was born in Clinton Co., Indiana, June 28, 1844 and died in the same county, Feb. 4, 1929 at the age of 84 years, 7 mos., and 8 days. Bro. Burget was married three times and was the father of nine children. His last wife is still living.

He leaves his several children, some grandchildren and some great grandchildren. He served as a soldier in the Civil War and at its close received an honorable discharge. He was a member of the Church of God at Hillisburg, Indiana. He was a great student of God's Word and left many verses of the Bible marked. Funeral services were conducted in the Christian Church, Kempton, Ind., Feb. 7, 1929, after which he was laid away to sleep until Jesus comes.

MRS. SHERMAN MILLS

Mrs. Sherman Mills, daughter of Isaac and Hannah Ford, was born at Farmland, Ind., in 1879 and died at home near Eden Valley, Minn., Thursday morning, Jan. 31, 1929. Death followed a long period of illness.

In 1888 she came to Minnesota, and was married to Mr. Sherman Mills in 1897, residing in Eden Lake township until death.

To this happy union seven children were born, five yet living, namely: Scott, Mrs. Wm. Coulter, Jr., Mrs. John Coulter, Gerald, and Edith, all of Eden Valley,—the two latter still at home. Sr. Mills was also grandmother of six grandchildren. Besides these, two brothers, two sisters and her husband mourn her death. The brothers are Lee Ford of Ray, Minn., and Dick Ford of Farmland, Ind. Both sisters, Mrs. Somerville and Mrs. Sunday are also of Farmland, Ind.

Sister Mills had been a loyal member of the local Church of God for many years, and fell asleep in death with the hope of resurrection.

Funeral services were conducted on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3, from the home and Church of God by the writer. The church was filled to capacity with friends and relatives of the one so sadly missed. Sydney E. Magaw.

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS

By J. T. Auld

DID JESUS DIE on the cross both soul and body? Yes. Did God raise Him from the dead? Yes. Did He ascend into heaven? Yes. Eph. 4:9. Will He come back and raise the dead saints and translate those that are alive at His advent? Yes. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive . . . shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air. . . ." 1 Thess. 4:16, 17. Will He bring about peace when He and His body—the saints—shall judge the world? Yes. "Peace on earth good will to men."

Will His kingdom extend over all the earth? Yes. Rev. 20:4, 5, 6. Will there ever come a time when death will cease to be on earth? Yes. "There shall be no more death." Will God by Christ restore the earth to man as it was in the beginning before Adam sinned? Yes. In the restitution of all things that God hath spoken through all His holy prophets since the world began.

Will God's kingdom come to an end after restoration? No. "Of his kingdom there shall be no end." Where will God's kingdom be located? On earth "under the whole heaven." When do the saints in Christ receive eternal life? "In the age to come life everlasting." Did Christ or the apostles ever promise peace in this world? No. We shall have no peace until Christ and His body judge in righteousness. Matt. 2:14.

Will His kingdom extend over all the earth? Yes. Dan. 4:3, 22, 34. Jesus and His immortalized body—the little flock—He sits upon "the throne of His Father David." Luke 2:14. "To this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, after this—(after taking out a people for His name)—I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up." Acts 15:15-17.

"And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by all His holy prophets since the world began." Acts. 3:20, 21. Will there be any more death to the little flock that are to be kings and priests with Christ during His reign over the nations of the earth? No. It is said of His body—the little flock of kings and priests—"For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have (not yet put on) put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that it written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" 1 Cor. 15:53-55. Let us praise God for that unspeakable gift, Jesus Christ, Our Lord. O happy day, when Jesus comes.

Where do we wait from death to resurrection? Job said, "If I wait the grave is my house." Job had not been contaminated with the modern theology. Job 17:13. When will saints, dipped into Christ, if faithful, be raised from the dead?

Ask yourself the question, Is there a future life for the dead in Christ if there is no resurrection? Let Paul answer. "And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." 1 Cor. 15:17, 18.

Has God promised the saints in Christ a dominion under the whole heaven, as rulers usurping kingly power? Yes. "They shall be priests . . . and reign with him a thousand years. And the kingdom and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under (not above heaven) the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." Dan. 7:27. O happy day, when Jesus takes the throne of David and settles with His enemies.

FAITH

By Richard Le Crone

WE ALL KNOW people who scoff at Christianity, saying, "I take nothing by faith. I believe only what is positively proven to me". Little do they realize that they are fulfilling prophecy and proving that which they seek to discredit. "There shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." 2 Peter 3:3, 4.

There have always been scoffers who refused to believe the Word of God, or believing refused to act upon it. Way back in the beginning, when God had placed the first man in the garden of Eden, He gave him free access to all the trees of the garden except one, and said, "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Gen. 2:16, 17. Then along came the first scoffer saying, "Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." Gen. 3:4, 5. We are familiar with the result of man's listening to the scoffer.

And so it has always been. People scoffed at Noah for building the ark which saved him and his family from destruction. They scoffed at Moses for giving up the easy court life of the Egyptians to lead the more strenuous life of the people of God. They scoffed at Christ when He was with us on earth, and they have been scoffing at His followers ever since.

Many of our modern heroes had to endure the jeering of the mob too. George Washington dared to pit thirteen little colonies against the mighty England. Abraham Lincoln was severely criticized for many of his actions, even by the people of the north. And he finally met his death at the hands of one of the mob. Robert Fulton, the inventor of the steam boat, was forced to face derision before he met with success. And during all of this time the Christian has received a great deal of ridicule.

What was it that made these men stick to their appointed tasks in spite of the unbelief of millions and the jeering of the mob? The answer is very simple. It was "FAITH". Without faith, nothing is accomplished. Every deed is the result of faith. Even the scoffer who says that he accepts nothing by faith, lives by faith. When he goes to his labor it is with a faith that he will be rewarded for his work and for the pleasure that he has sacrificed in order to perform that work. When the farmer sows his crops in the spring it is with a faith that he will be rewarded with a harvest in the fall.

A child has been reared in an average American home. He has been reared in good moral environment but with no special Christian training. He has now become of age and must choose for himself the type of life that he is to lead. He must choose between Christianity and worldliness. Upon what is he going to base his decision? If he is to choose wisely it is necessary that he know both sides of the question. It is failure to do this that is responsible for the fall of many. It is therefore the duty of every parent and Christian to be sure that he knows both sides of the question before he makes his final decision. When he knows both sides of the question his problem becomes one of faith.

A certain woman went into a grocery store to buy her supplies for the day. She bought what she needed and when she started to leave with her purchases she turned to the grocer and said, "Put it on the bill". The grocer's reply was "Certainly", and the woman went her way with the goods. Upon what was this transaction based? It was based upon faith. The grocer had the promise of the woman that at the end of the month she would come in and pay for the groceries. He had faith in her promise and therefore allowed her to have the groceries. There are a great many things that could happen to prevent that woman from paying for the groceries, and even though she honestly intended to pay it, the bill would remain unpaid and the grocer would be the loser.

But the faith of the Christian is much more safe and sure than that. "Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath: That by two immutable

EXCUSES

A FEW DAYS AGO Bro. Wm. G. Ford, superintendent of the Dixon Sunday School, handed us a clipping from a newspaper. We are reproducing its statement here:

YOU CAN ALWAYS FIND AN EXCUSE TO STAY HOME FROM CHURCH

IF YOU HAVE THE LEAST BIT OF TROUBLE THE DEVIL WILL READILY SUPPLY YOU WITH ONE

The non-church-goer always finds plenty of excuses to stay home at church time. In summer the weather is too hot; in winter it is too cold. Sometimes the sun shines too bright; at other times, it rains too hard. Sometimes he feels too sleepy; sometimes he feels too tired.

The fact of the matter is that if he really cared to go to church, nothing would keep him away.

Throw off the bluff of excuses; they're so thin that folks see right through them—and go to church tomorrow. This will be just as ideal a day as you can find to start regular attendance at God's house.

Melvin C. Smith,
Pastor Calvary English Lutheran Church.

How true the sentiment is! How disheartening it is to observe that for other matters in which people are really interested weather has little effect, but when church time comes a little inclemency in weather is regarded as a serious indication that perhaps it would be wise to stay home!

All of this simply emphasizes the fact that throughout life one will find time to do what he really wants to do, and will make a way to do it, and cause it to seem reasonable. For the thing, however, which he does not wish to do there will always be a ready excuse waiting.

Hence the sum total of one's actions in life is a true indication of his wishes and likes.—F. E. S.

OUR CITIZENSHIP

"For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ." Phil 3:20.

THE WORD in the above text which is rendered "conversion" is in other versions translated "citizenship." From the Concordant Version, for instance, we quote: "For our citizenship belongs to the heavens, out of which we are awaiting a Saviour . . ."

A true Christian of to-day, whether living in America, France or elsewhere, will enthrone Jesus as the supreme Ruler and Director of his life. He will place his trust and confidence in Christ as the King of the coming kingdom. He will shape his life to be ready for the inauguration of that King.

Higher, therefore, than any allegiance to things human or temporal will stand the Christian's citizenship with Christ. Being a loyal citizen he will bend every effort to live in accordance with the requirements of his coming King and to do the things that are in harmony with the principles of the coming kingdom.

In Rom. 6:16, we are told "his servants ye are to whom ye obey." Whether, therefore, our service is rendered to Christ and things spiritual, or to the world of to-day and things carnal is evidence of whose servants we are.

Choose the one who has the more to offer, and be a true citizen to the one of your choice.—F. E. S.

PASSING OR ENDURING?

IN THIS GREAT UNIVERSE in which we find ourselves length of existence or duration appears to be the final measure of value. Practically all things may be subjected to test.

It is not the price of the suit of clothes that counts so much as the length of time it will wear as compared with its cost. It is not the thrill of the moment's pleasure that determines its value so much as its duration; its effect upon future years of happiness.

Solomon said, "One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth forever." Eccl. 1:4. Man himself, then, is temporary. How fleeting are the things which he does. How short lived are the things which he makes. But the earth, product of the Father, is eternal.

Peter, commenting in a similar vein said, "For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof fall-eth away: But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you." 1 Peter 1:24, 25.

Since man himself is fleeting and temporary all that he does or accomplishes is just as passing. The only permanent thing is God and that which emanates from

Him. The earth is the work of God, therefore stands. The Word is from Jehovah and cannot fail. The only way a man can become permanent is by applying himself in accordance with God's permanent Word until he becomes a full child of God. The members of the Father's family shall abide forever.

Judging things from the standpoint of duration and actual values can anyone afford not to serve God?

—F. E. S.

DEPARTING FROM THE FAITH

"Now the spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith."—1 Tim. 4:1.

THE LITERAL FULFILLMENT of the above prophecy is so obviously before us to-day that it would be folly to blind oneself to it. It is observable anywhere one looks. The following clipping from an exchange gives some facts worthy of meditation!

THE GROWING APOSTACY

Revival is God's stimulant injected into the veins of a dying church. The need grows steadily more urgent. Cathedrals and great churches in France are placarded with piteous appeals for ordinands, 3,000 churches (say the appeals) being without priests.

Dr. Norman Maclean reports that nothing is more ominous in the religious life of Scotland than the fall in candidates for the ministry: in the United Free Church there are 45 probationers for 80 vacancies; and in the Highlands and Islands, one-half of the pulpits will soon be vacant.

An investigation carried out this year by the British Weekly in a sample London area compares as follows with former figures of church attendance: 1886, 12,996; 1902, 10,370; 1927, 3,960: the average attendance in churches falling thus:—1886, 295; 1902, 184; 1927, 63.

"The American churches," says Dr. M. A. Matthews, of Seattle, "show the lowest drop in a hundred years." More than 32% of the Presbyterian, Northern Baptist, and Methodist Episcopal churches in the United States failed to obtain a single convert last year. The president and secretary of the Men's Church League, summing up the causes, put first: 'The breakdown of the authority of the Bible.' Creedless leaders are leading countless churches over the precipice; and Christianity, hesitating on the threshold, threatens to depart. A New York minister recently read the Apostles' Creed through to a large congregation, and asked every one who believed it to rise. Not one rose. Confirmation candidates are falling at rate of 10,000 per annum.

The cancer eating out all faith stands revealed in this amazing utterance (Christian World, April 26, 1928) of Mr. Bernard Snell, a Congregational minister for 50 years: "Suppose you insist that young folk are to believe that the body of Jesus was born of a virgin, and that it was reanimated after death, and that it descended into hell and ascended into heaven—they will not believe you, any more than I have been able to believe any of those statements since I was a lad of twenty."

In the light of such literal fulfillment of prophecy, establishing the fact of the soon coming of our Lord, what manner of persons ought we to be?—F. E. S.

“IFS” THAT ARE WORTH WHILE, IF TRIED

By J. M. Morgan

IF TRUTH alone believed and obeyed saves then why do some men believe that it makes no difference what you believe, just so you are honest about it?

If it makes no difference what we believe just so we are honest, then salvation would depend entirely on honesty; then Christ died in vain.

If honesty alone is the standard by which faith, is to be measured, then doctrine is excluded.

If doctrine is excluded, why did John say, “For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist”? 2 John 7.

If doctrine is excluded, why Paul’s exhortation to Timothy, “Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee”? 1 Tim. 4:16.

If “The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth,” will believing another gospel save?

If the power of God’s salvation is in the gospel of Christ, whose power is manifested in another gospel, which is not another but the perversion of the gospel of Christ?

If men are saved while in ignorance of the gospel of Christ, then why preach the gospel at all?

If the Spirit of God convicts and converts sinners without the instruction of the Word or gospel, then why are not all sinners converted?

If God saves some sinners without consulting their wills, then He must save all men, or else, He is a respecter of persons.

If God requires one man to comply with His divine order of salvation in order to be saved from the second death, then all must obey or die.

If these are the “TIMES of IGNORANCE GOD NOW commands all MEN in every place, to reform; because he has established a DAY in which he is about to judge the HABITABLE in Righteousness, by a Man . . .” (Acts 17:30,31, Diag.) then we must conclude that if men do not reform (repent) they will not be saved.

If men cannot be saved without repentance and inasmuch as repentance and baptism are connected together in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, then men are not saved by faith alone.

If there is only one God, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one hope, and one divine plan or order of salvation, then repentance, or reformation of life, and confession must precede baptism in the name of Jesus Christ for (in order to) forgiveness of sins.

If there is but one God, there cannot be three, therefore, it is a false gospel that teaches three gods.

If there is but one Lord Jesus Christ then there cannot be two Lords, one that died and one that did not die;

hence to believe that there was a divine Christ who did not die, is to believe a false gospel.

If there is but one gospel of Christ, then any gospel that is different from Christ’s gospel is false and will not save, but will lead men away from God and Christ.

If there is but one faith, all other faiths are vain faiths, because the belief of a falsehood will beget a vain hope, and having a vain desire and a vain expectation, will not bring men into the favor of God, for “without faith it is impossible to please him (God).” Heb. 11:6.

If the one gospel, given by the Spirit in the Word of God as given to His Son, is the true mind of the Spirit as we have it in the written Word of God, then all other so called messages, that differ in any way from the one gospel are false.

If the Spirit nineteen hundred years ago, said by the mouth of our Lord, “He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved”, then somebody is deceived by false teaching when you hear men say that the “still small voice” of the Spirit testifies to their inward heart that they are saved without baptism.

THE SATISFYING PORTION

By Wm. S. Bowden

Honorable Mention in Wood Prize Contest 1928.

THERE IS SOMETHING in the heart of man which the Creator has made to respond to the call of Christ. Yet man fails to understand this call of the Master. He knows that he wants something, but he does not clearly discern what he wants. He longs for a satisfying portion, but he seeks satisfaction in wrong ways and in wrong places. He does not realize that in Christ Jesus there is abundant provision for every God-implanted desire.

A few years ago I had the great pleasure of a personal interview with a comparatively young man who confessed that up to the time of this conference his heart had never been satisfied. I am not able to say that I get pleasure out of all personal interviews. Sometimes I am gratified with a sense of duty performed. In this particular case my pleasure was great because of the fact that I realized that I was getting somewhere. Abiding results of the conference have increased the pleasure.

The man was impressed by a few words he had heard me utter in public to seek this conversation. He was intelligent, moral, ambitious, educated. He said, in substance: “Do you think you can tell me what is the matter with me? I know that I am better fixed in this world than multitudes of people. But my life seems so empty. Everything seems so unsatisfying. I have tried this, and I have tried that. I have a good position, but I am unhappy, and I don’t know whether I know what I want. Can you help me?”

I knew this man was a church member and felt that he was living up to the ethical requirements of the word of God as fully as the average church member. Yet I was impressed to say to him: "You need God." He told me, as I expected he would, that he believed in God and in Jesus Christ as the Son of God. He added that he had no disposition to dispute my assertion. In fact, he felt that he did need to know God better; he had been reaching out after God but failing to find Him in a really satisfying way.

"There is a difference," said I, "between knowing God and knowing about God. There is a difference between knowing Christ and knowing about Christ. Many qualify on the latter proposition who fail on the former. We recognize the Christ of history as the Christ of prophecy. The One who was predicted came. He lived a wonderful life. He revealed God the Father. We admire the Christ of history. We believe He lives to-day. But has the Christ of Prophecy and the Christ of History become to us the Christ of Experience? In Him dwells all the fullness of the Godhead. God has made Him to be unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption. He is our all. But we must appropriate Him. It is not the bread in the show window that nourishes us; it is the bread we eat and assimilate. It is the Christ who lives within that satisfies the heart."

For more than an hour I had talked with this hopeful character when he said: "I believe that I have made the mistake of taking this Christ as the great Example without really knowing Him as Saviour, Sanctifier and Satisfier. I believe that all the forms of human religion are the weak efforts of man to satisfy the God-implanted desire of the human heart for God. Many of them fail to satisfy because they leave out Christ. God is best understood through Christ. Christianity is the supreme religion. But many adherents of Christianity are like myself; they do not have a good personal acquaintance with Jesus Christ. I believe He is 'the Desire of all nations.' I believe He is able to satisfy the needs and longings of every soul. I am resolved that henceforth Jesus Christ shall be to me what God intended He should be. I am tired of seeking happiness in the things of time and sense. Henceforth I'll recognize the Lordship of Jesus Christ instead of seeking satisfaction in a way of my own choosing."

About a year after the conversation here related took place I received from this friend a letter containing this gladsome message: "The past year has been the happiest year of my life. The plan works. Christ satisfies."

Jesus satisfies. Yes, that is true. I am not satisfied with mere things. I do not like some present world conditions, but I am satisfied with my Saviour. I am satisfied with His plan for the world. I am satisfied with His plan for me. I am satisfied with what He gives. I am satisfied with what He withholds. My will is submerged in His will. Claim the satisfying portion that there is in Jesus Christ for you. He longs to fill your life with faith, hope, love, joy, peace, satisfaction.

Happiness is not dependent on outward circumstances; the Holy Spirit within is the source of satisfaction. Nero growls on a throne; Paul sings in a dungeon. The man of the world covets honor, position, wealth; the man of God is content with Christ.

Richard Williams, of the Patagonian Mission, with a few companions, was stranded on the beach by a high tide. At the beginning of those terrible privations which terminated his life, he wrote in his diary: "I bless and praise God that this day has been, I think, the happiest of my life. The fire of Divine love has been burning on the mean altar of my breast, and the torchlight of faith has been in full trim, so that I have only had to weave it to the right or left in order to discern spiritual things in heavenly places." Later, when severe illness was added to circumstantial distress, he wrote: "Not a moment sits wearily upon me. Sweet is the presence of Jesus; and oh, I am happy in His love." Later, as the fatal disease fastened more firmly upon him, he wrote: "Ah, I am happy day and night, hour by hour. Asleep or awake, I am happy beyond the poor compass of language to tell. My joys are with Him whose delights have always been with the sons of men."

Christ enthroned within makes one independent of the world's sources of satisfaction. Why should we forsake the Fountain of Living Waters, and seek the broken cisterns of earth which can hold no water? (Jer. 2:13.)

Earthly pleasures! Do they satisfy? Do they last? How long? "The pleasures of sin" are but "for a season." "The world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." (Heb. 11:25; 1 John 2:17.)

Earthly honors! Do they satisfy? Do they last? Fame, distinction, power—these are for the few. How unsatisfying are worldly honors! How quickly they pass at the approach of the grim king of terrors!

Earthly education! Does one ever receive enough intellectual development to satisfy the deepest longings of the heart? In the dying hour what consolations are found in earthly philosophies?

Earthly honors! Do they satisfy? Do they last? One turn of the wheel of fortune often makes the millionaire of to-day the beggar of tomorrow. Many have confessed that wealth has failed to bring happiness when the heart was aching.

Earthly things give no promise for the future. The small measure of happiness which they bring is for the present only. Jesus not only completely satisfies in the present, but He puts within the heart of the believer a living hope which enables him to say in reference to the eternal future: "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness." (Psa. 17:15.)

Yes, the eye will then be satisfied with seeing, for it will "see the King in His beauty." (Isa. 33:17.) The ear will then be satisfied with hearing, for it will hear the music of the heavenly choir (Rev. 14:2; 15:2, 3). The intellect will then be satisfied in knowing, for it will comprehend the grandest mysteries of grace and providence. The whole being will be satisfied with the consummation of the wonderful plan of salvation. Fullness of joy will be realized. There will be nothing left to long for. All holy desires will be realized in the presence and likeness of our blessed Lord.

Jesus satisfies! Bless His holy name forever! while we wait the coming glory we sing the praises of Him who "satisfieth the longing soul" (Psa. 36:8, 9; 37:4; 19; 65:4; 81:16; 103:5; 107:9; Isa. 55:2; Jer. 31:14).

"I am drinking at the fountain,
Where I ever would abide;
For I've tasted life's pure river,
And my soul is satisfied:
There's no thirsting for life's pleasure,
Nor adorning, rich and gay,
For I've found a richer treasure,
One that fadeth not away."

WHO IS THE BRIDE OF CHRIST?

By Clarence Larkin

THERE is quite a difference of opinion as to who the bride of Christ is. Some claim that the "bride" is Israel because in the Old Testament God calls Himself the Husband of Israel. Isa. 54:5. Those who advocate this view claim "wife" is the earthly name of Israel and "bride" the heavenly, and some hold that because Isaac's bride was taken from his own kin that, to complete the type, Jesus' bride must be Israel, . . . His own kin. But we must not forget that while Abraham was the first Hebrew, his kin were Gentiles. Abraham was not, strictly speaking, a Jew, for the Jews are the descendants of Judah, the fourth son of Jacob or Israel. So we see that Rebekah was not an Israelite, but a Gentile, so the type holds good.

We must not forget that there are "two brides" mentioned in the Scriptures, one in the Old Testament and one in the New Testament. The one in the Old Testament is Israel, the bride of Jehovah. Of Israel it is said, "Thy Maker is thine husband." Isa. 54:5-8. Because of her whoredoms Israel is a "cast off wife", but God, her Husband, has promised to take her back when she ceases her adulteries. Jer. 3:1-18; Ezek. 16:1-63; Hosea 2:1-23; 3:1-5. She will not be taken back as a virgin but as a wife. It is a virgin that the Lamb (Christ) is to marry, so the wife (Israel) of the Old Testament cannot be the virgin bride of the New Testament. . . . These distinctions make it clear that Israel cannot be the "bride of Christ".

The bride of the Lamb is taken from a disowned and outcast race, "the Gentiles." Acts 13:46, "Paul and Barnabas (who had been preaching to the Jews) waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you (the Jews): but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles." James also declares the out-calling of the Gentiles, "James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name (or to bear his name)."

So we find that the "bride of Christ," are not Israelites but Gentiles whom He came to redeem. He was rejected by His own people, was rejected by members of His family, subjected to a mock trial and nailed to a cross as a malefactor, where He laid down voluntarily His life for the church, His bride; thus demonstrating His love, and opening the way for her redemption from the law that held her in bondage. His life blood was the redemption price.—Selected by Sr. Chaplin from Larkin's book on Revelation.

EXCEPT A MAN BE BORN AGAIN HE CANNOT SEE THE KINGDOM OF GOD

JOHN 3:3 CONSIDERED IN RELATION TO JOHN 3:5, 6.

By R. H. Judd

THERE IS NO QUESTION on the part of the writer that we are now living under the new covenant dispensation, nor is there any doubt on his part that as believers we are in a special sense recipients of the Holy Spirit. By some mistake the author of the articles on John 3:1-9, in the issues of the Herald of Jan. 8 and 15, has imbibed the idea that the contrary is true of the writer's belief.

With these preliminary remarks let us consider the difference of thought on this subject; convinced that our mutual aim is to get at the truth of GOD'S WORD that GOD HIMSELF may be glorified in us and also in others. That difference is clearly stated by our Brother Biggs when he says, "There is a view concerning our subject, John 3:1-9, that JESUS did not make any reference to baptism when speaking of 'born of water' but to physical birth."

Our brother is correct in saying that "born of water is only part of the exception which the Lord made when He said, 'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit' ". When, however, he makes the statement that "no doubt" our Lord's meaning "denotes one act", he states what requires to be proved, and which I respectfully submit he has not proved except to his own mind. To the mind of the writer, a careful analysis of the language and context conveys a precisely opposite meaning. May I in all brotherly charity take exception to the remark which virtually says "to separate water and Spirit is fatal, and that one so believing is not introduced into the new covenant," and further "that such is not in accordance with Christ's words and the covenant"? The writer thinks that a careful consideration of the passage will reveal the fact that to regard "born of water and of the Spirit" as two separate and distinct births, is most emphatically in accordance with the words of Christ.

To get a clear conception of the whole we must start with a correct premise. It will be noticed that our brother has sought this in the choice of his title, "Except a man be born from above." But is his premise correct? In one sense, in the sense of Jas. 1:17 it certainly is, but in view of the question propounded by Nicodemus it would scarcely seem so. There are three well known renderings of these words of our Savior; viz., "born again", "born anew" and "born from above". The first two are practically identical in meaning, and are favored by the Authorized Version, the Revised Version, the American Revision and Rotherham's Version of the New Testament. Also the well known commentators Dean Alford and Rev. J. B. McCellan agree thereto, and other authorities might be mentioned. More important still the words of Nicodemus unquestionably point to the fact that they more accurately represent the words of Christ, the words "again" of Jesus, and "second time" of Nicodemus corresponding to each other. "Except a man be born from above" does not necessarily imply a previous birth. The renderings of the versions quoted unquestionably do, as also do the words of Nicodemus. Hence "EXCEPT A MAN BE BORN AGAIN" is the correct premise from which to start, and on which to build.

The next point to establish is whether our brother is correct in his statement that "'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit' denotes one act". Obviously it may be (apart from any context) construed either way. But a right conclusion can only be obtained by a consideration of the context. This I feel confident our brother will allow. Let us then see what is to be gathered from the context. Has GOD "united water and spirit", or has He separated them? If He has separated them, then we have no manner of right to make them one.

The writer of this article contends that verse 6 is our Lord's commentary on verse 5 and that "born of the flesh" is a parallel statement to "born of water". Also that the remaining statements in each verse are parallel to each other. Verse 6 does not join these, it actually separates them bringing them into full harmony with Paul's statement "howbeit that is not first which is spiritual but that which is natural, afterwards that which is spiritual." So wonderfully do these scripture statements harmonize that one may be pardoned for thinking it not unlikely that St. Paul had these very words of our Lord in mind. But, lest anyone should prefer the charge as did one correspondent (not heretofore mentioned) that I am simply putting forward my own imaginings, let me quote from two or three writers whose scholarly ability and Christian character will not be questioned.

The late R. F. Weymouth, M. A. and Doctor of literature, whose translation of the New Testament is so widely known and accepted says, "Some suppose these words 'born of water' refer to natural physical descent, and are exactly parallel to 'born of the flesh' of v. 6." Ernest Hampden Cook, M. A. of St. John's Hall, Cambridge endorses the remarks. Rev. E. B. Fairchild, D. D. formerly President of Hillsdale Baptist College, Hillsdale, Mich. in his book "Letters of Baptism" says that "Born of water" in the first part of the sentence and "born of the flesh" in the latter part (for it is but one paragraph) are evidently parallel and equivalent expressions. The latter is simply exegetical of the former. Let the whole paragraph be read together, just as it will be found in any paragraph Bible and the meaning is obvious. He then quotes the paragraph in full; viz., verses 5, 6 and 7. Did space and time permit one might quote much of real value from this writer. I will give just a brief extract which he gives from a correspondent's letter. Here it is,—"Your exposition of John 3:5 has interested me deeply, and although it was entirely new to me it carries upon its own face the evidence that it is the true one. It makes the whole connection plain and obvious. I have read that part of your letter to two of my medical acquaintances, and they say they have no doubt that you have the right of it. Have any of the commentaries suggested it? and is there anything anywhere in the Bible to confirm it? I ask both of these questions more out of curiosity than anything else, for it seems to me so manifestly true that it needs no confirmation."

Dr. Fairchild in his reply cites the Comprehensive Commentary, and quotes Isa. 48:1 as at least one similar use of expression, and he adds that "the natural descendants of Judah are here spoken of without doubt." Some objections have been raised in correspondence that it is without parallel in Scripture, and that it occurs but once. Even were that strictly correct it would not necessarily disprove what is here contended for, for every student of Scripture is well aware that the very same is true of other topics. The writer contends that the passage is of necessity complete in itself, and therefore does not require subsequent scripture to make it comprehensible.

There is no occasion whatever for anyone holding this interpretation of John 3:5, 6 to question the fact of the witness of the Spirit at baptism, and our brother's article does well to draw attention to this fact. The testimony of the Word confirms it. So also does one's own personal experience, and the experience of others who were baptized with me on my first public confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as my Savior. But the manifestation of the Spirit is not limited to baptism, nor is its association with water confined to baptism. It would take too long to illustrate this, and the reader must himself do the searching.

Our Brother Biggs says, "If we take Christ's words in a literal sense we shall fail to understand Him as Nicodemus did." Where does our brother find scripture for such a conclusion? When Christ said "that which is born of the flesh is flesh" He surely meant it to be understood literally: Indeed verse 12 would seem to indicate that our Savior was speaking of literal things—"earthly things". One might suggest that it was not their literalness that Nicodemus stumbled at, but rather the stupendous nature of them that made him "marvel". Do not we with all the light we have still "marvel" at some of the literal things that are yet to come to pass according to GOD'S Word? Some actually "believe not". With regard to the marvels of resurrection that GOD'S Word reveals some of us still say "How can these things be?"

The view here advocated does not "except" from "the kingdom" any who are actually "born of the Spirit" and who thus according to verse 6 become spirit. Thus GOD alone through His Son is the final Arbiter as to who will actually "SEE the kingdom of GOD."

It would take too much space to include other phases of the subject which have a very close relation to this matter. If the Editor considers there is benefit in a further study of the subject the writer will be pleased to consider some of these.

Our brother gives us to understand that he does not accept the literal interpretation of John 3:5 and 6, yet surely it is considered among us a safe rule of Bible exegesis to accept the literal if the literal will hold. Do we not believe that all vital fundamental truth should be expressed in plain language that may be "literally" understood?

things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us." Therefore it is a wise man who conducts his life and his business in harmony with the commands and promises of God.

Let us study the life of Moses, the great law-giver, and see how he faced the crisis. He was born of a nation of slaves in the land of Egypt. Because the king had ordered all of the male children born to the slaves killed, his mother put him in an ark and set him afloat on the river. "And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him. And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it. And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and, behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrew's children. Then said the sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee? . . . And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it. And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name Moses: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water."

Exod. 2:4-8.

And that is how the son of a slave came to be known as the son of Pharaoh's daughter. And he grew up in the courts of Pharaoh which were very wicked and luxurious. Eventually he became of age and faced the decision which every person must face. He must decide whether he would follow the easy luxurious life of an Egyptian prince or whether he would forsake this easy indolent life for a more strenuous and useful life in the service of the Lord. We all know what his decision was. But upon what did he base his decision?

Listen: "By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." Heb. 11: 24, 25. And we all know the story of how he spent his life in the service of God, and died with the promise of a future resurrection and a great reward.

Going back to our original problem of the modern young person's decision; upon what is it to be based? With any level-headed, clear-thinking type of individual a decision is merely a weighing of values to determine what course will net the most valuable return. I believe that the vast majority of our modern young men and women will, if given the chance, carefully consider all evidences pro and con before they make such an important decision.

In order then, to protect our youth from the folly of leading a life apart from God, it is our duty to be sure that they fully understand both sides of the question. They should know not only of the pleasures of sin, but they should also be taught of the heartaches and the dreary, meaningless, and empty existence that invariably follow a career of sin. And of the comfortless death with nothing to look forward to but a righteous judgment and condemnation. On the other hand they should know not only of the trials and tribulations of true Christianity, but they should be taught of the "Peace that passeth all understanding". They must learn of the great sacrifice made by our dear Savior to save us from the results of sin: of the happiness and satisfaction that come with the living of a righteous life: and of the eternal life and boundless joys that God has promised His faithful. With the evidence before him and faith within him there can be little doubt as to his decision.

The operation cost item of $1,361.28 includes the doctor and burial expenses of these two members. Also it does not include the farm garden, and dairy products from which a large portion of the food is derived. On a basis of an average of 8 in the home (boarders and members) the cost to maintain was $163.75 each. The home, farm, and garden have produced $174.00 per member beside the food consumed which is not accounted for. $175.00 is drawn from the maintenance fund for each member which makes a total income of $349.00 for each member leaving a deficit of $114.75 per member.

ESTIMATED OPERATING COST FOR 1929

What does it cost to operate the National Bible Institution and what it undertakes to do, that is, act as a general clearing house and headquarters for the Church of God throughout the States and Canada; publish books, tracts, etc.; publish The Restitution Herald; publish Truth Seekers' quarterly; advance the general work by assisting in organization, building, and strengthening as far as possible; and maintaining a training class for the preparation of those who wish to better fit themselves for various phases of Christian work?

There is no doubt but that the question is vital and timely to every interested believer and especially to those loyal supporters all over the country who have given not only of their abundance but of their substance, not as unto man but as unto Him who is abundantly able to reward.

In order to give these inquiring ones a more definite understanding of the expenses for which we at repeated intervals make request for contribution, the following figures are given as estimates of our needs to operate the work for the year 1929. These figures are based upon the records for the past two years and in our opinion are very conservative estimates allowing nothing for expansion or liquidation of already existing debt.

THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST "IS THE POWER OF GOD UNTO SALVATION TO EVERY ONE THAT BELIEVETH".—ROM. 1:16.

FROM A CHICAGO BEREAN

A MAN, STANDING at the curb one day attracted my attention. To every passer-by, regardless of age, appearance, or apparent occupation, he was offering his handbills. He did not force anyone to accept, but there was not one that he missed. Some cast them aside without a glance and let them flutter to the street, some stuck them in their pockets, saving them to throw away later, while some passed by unseeing. Only occasionally did one accept and examine the contents carefully.

As I glanced over the printed page that was handed me, I wondered at the expenditure of time, effort and money, to reach the few who would take enough notice to attend the big sale advertised for the following week, for the street was strewn with the castaway pages.

A few days later, passing the same way, I was impressed by the size of a crowd passing in and out of a building. My curiosity aroused, I recalled the man on the corner who had stood there patiently to see one handbill after another flung away.

His labor had not been futile, as it might seem. But I wondered how much difference it would have made in the size of the crowd had he become discouraged as soon as the first few people passed him by, or failed to notice the thing that he was trying to bring to their attention. Or if he had picked from the crowd only those whom he thought might be interested, would he have had as good success?

Christ did not say to His disciples, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to those who ye think might be interested." No indeed! The command was to "preach the gospel unto every creature."

Often we feel discouraged, thinking that our efforts have been of no avail, but having only mortal insight, and being unable to see into the future, we can have no conception of the results of a few words or kind deeds, or a life nobly lived for Christ.

Therefore, we need not be discouraged, for it is not man, but God, that giveth the increase.—Margaret J. Lyon.

OUR HIGH PRIEST

AFTER GOD had brought the Israelites out of Egypt He made a covenant with them. If they would obey

His laws He would bless them and they should be His chosen people as a nation. Exod. 19:6. He gave His law to them through Moses. It included the making of the tabernacle, the altars and the burnt offerings. Next He directed that Aaron and his sons be set aside or consecrated as priests or ministers. The priests were mediators between God and the people, they offered the sacrifices for the others in the tabernacle. For this service they went into the outer court of the tabernacle, but into the part known as the Holiest of all no one entered except the high priest alone.

Christ is our High Priest. When He ascended to the Father in heaven He entered into the Holiest place, there to make intercession for us, and as no one could follow the high priest into his sanctuary neither can mortal man follow Christ into the presence of God. As the priest returned to his people after his work was accomplished even so will Jesus return to His people here on earth. We can be sure we are right in using this as a type because these things were figures or types of the true. Heb. 9:24. Paul says of Christ that He is a merciful and faithful High Priest to make reconciliation for the sins of the people. Also that we have such a High Priest who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens. Heb. 8:1. No one else has ascended into the presence of God or can hope to in this life, but as the disciples were comforted by Christ's words so can we find comfort in the same promise if we are His. He said to them, "I will come again and receive you unto myself". How much is expressed in this wonderful promise!

May the hope and comfort that was left with the disciples be ours to-day and may we be among that number that He receives unto Himself at His appearing.

—Mabel Lindsay.

"If a man has much of the Spirit of God, he will have great conflicts with the tempter. God permits temptation because it does for us what the storms do for the oaks—it roots us; and what the fire does for the paintings on the porcelain—it makes it permanent."

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

THE KINGDOM OF GOD—God's people! In a kingdom we have the common people and the rulers. Now, the growth of the subjects of God's kingdom is compared in this lesson to the growth of a plant and the mustard seed. God's kingdom in the beginning was very small like the seed planted in the ground. The man tended it carefully, watered it and cultivated it until all at once a tiny blade appeared. The blade grew, the stalk grew, and soon put forth leaves, buds and flowers, and, at last, the fruit or seed. When the fruit was ripe the man gathered in his harvest.

Likewise, the mustard seed—the tiniest of seeds—when planted grows into a plant so large with branches so great that birds may lodge under the shadow of it.

As these plants developed so shall the kingdom grow until it covers the whole earth. Abram was the seed, but the harvest is not yet.

Now, in Ephesians we have references given in regard to the rulers. Christ is the real Ruler with the church as His helper. Christ is often called the Head and the church His body. The church is also called Christ's bride.

What or of whom is the church? The people everywhere whom God calls for that purpose make up the church. These people will have one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father. Moreover, each one will have his own place to fill or work to do. Some will be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, pastors, teachers.

The work for Christians to-day is to study and grow as near like Jesus as we can, so we may be ready to fill our places when we are needed—now or hereafter.

Each one is needed now in some way—humble or otherwise—and will be needed when Christ takes His throne. All will work together happily like one great family.

Are you trying to fill your place? Are you preparing for that greater work in the harvest time?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read V. C. T. "Intermediate Class" in the quarterly.
2. Read Ephesians 2:19-22, and Genesis 12:1-3.
3. Memorize Ephesians 4:4-6.

REMEMBER

We must try to grow like Jesus that we may be part of the church when He comes,

NOTE-BOOK

OUR CHILD'S GARDEN PRAYER

"Bless me, Lord, and help me grow
Like a little flower,
May my thought like sweet perfume
Fill each happy hour.

And my words like petals soft
To the world unfold
Truth and love within my heart
Made of God's pure gold."

THE TWELVE

Does your class have a hard time remembering the names of Christ's disciples? Here is a poem which will help fix these names in your minds:

Simon, who was later called Peter, the Stone
And Andrew, his brother, both answered Christ's "Come."

Then James and John, sons of Zebedee,
Who fished in the waters of fair Galilee.

These four were the first by that inland sea
To answer the call of "Follow me."

Here now is Philip with his friend Bartholomew,
Matthew, the publican, doubting Thomas, too.

Eight now we have of that valiant band,
Who adored our Lord and followed His command.

Still another James, of Alphæus, the son,
And Simon the Canaanite decide to come,

Then follows Thaddæus, of James the brother,
Sometimes called one name, sometimes another.

The last one is Judas, who failed in his mission,
Because of a clouded and nearsighted vision.

These twelve are the names on our Sacred Book's pages,
Who first followed our Lord in that long distant age.

And down through the years see the myriads of feet
That are treading the pathway their Master to meet.

But hands are still groping and eyes are still dim,
Disciples still needed to guide them to Him.

Devotional Reading: Eph. 4:11-16

GOLDEN TEXT

So we, being many, are one body in Christ.—Rom. 12:5.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

The Christian Church. The Christian church is an institution of vastly greater importance than is usually assigned to it by man. It is not only a company of called-out-ones who are thus entitled to "all things that pertain unto life and godliness", 2 Pet. 1:3; but it is also that set-aside body of men to whom God has committed His work of this age.

The importance of its unity is supreme. Every individual member of the church operates by ligaments and bands of love and peace connecting it with Christ, as every individual member of the human body operates by joint ligaments which connect it with the head. Therefore, as every true Christian is inseparably connected with Christ, he is equally and inseparably connected with every other Christian. Schism is ruinous.

It is composed of all Christians. It is not a question whether or not one who is Christian will join God's church. If he is Christian he is a member and upon him rests the full responsibility of doing his personal duty in the church. Christianity determines one's relation to God and His church.

The church belongs to Christ as does the body to the head. Christ has been exalted by God above every power and name in this age and in the age to come. Therefore,

The Church is the most important institution in the world. It is God's institution for revealing God to mankind; for revealing Christ's atonement and redemption to the lost race; for calling out of successive generations those who will voluntarily enlist with Christ in the unspeakably gracious work of redemption. It is a people who will sacrifice with Him for the joy that is set ahead.

Loyalty to the church of God is loyalty of the first importance and is justly entitled to first consideration by every living being.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Admirable Family. Mr. and Mrs. Smith live on a large, beautiful plantation, and have a large family of young people. These boys and girls are different one from the other, but the father and mother have carefully considered these differences and have appointed places and tasks to them accordingly. The family is well organized, and is an inspiration to consider. The neighbors for miles around are proud to speak of them, and they think of that home as a credit to the community. How different from another home down the road where there is discord and wrangling and jealousy!

The church which Christ has called out for His Father is a family. He is one Son, and we become His brothers and sisters as we accept the Father's invitation. God as the great heavenly Father, appoints us tasks according to our abilities and strength. What a credit we can be to the community and to the Father's name if we will each do our best to quietly and humbly perform our part for the good of the church family as a whole!

—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"So we, the many, are one body in Christ."
—Rom. 12:5, Roth.

The church is the body of Christ, and every true follower is a member thereof. In the human body each member is so placed that it can best serve the whole body. So we believers who are united to Christ in His body, the church, and animated by His Spirit, ought to consider ourselves as closely joined together under Him as our Head. We ought to seek always to promote the general good of the church and of one another.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Christian Fellowship.

Christian fellowship is, of course, based on common fellowship with Christ. Fellowship means companionship and mutual understanding and friendship. There are all degrees of companionship, mutual understanding and friendship between Jesus and His followers. Is there any certain degree of fellowship that two Christians must have in common, with Jesus before they can fellowship each other? Read the first epistle of John. According to 1 John 2:22, 23; 4:14, 15 anyone who believes in the Father and Son relationship between Jesus and God and confesses that relationship is in fellowship with them. The reason for so simple a basis of fellowship is clear. Anyone who honestly believes and accepts the teachings of Jesus' Sonship to God thereby accepts the possibility of man's sonship to God, including his own. With this belief held honestly and reverently in his heart there is bound to be a development of sonship to God in him, and this developing sonship will result in the knowledge and love that makes for full fellowship in every fact.

Fellowship with God as Father does not begin with knowledge of man's nature, nor of Israel's national purpose, nor of the resurrection and its extent, etc. etc., but with the conviction that Jesus is the Son of God; though any one of such truths may start one on the road to that conviction. Two Christians can hardly set a different basis for fellowship with one another than that basis which began their own fellowship with God, the Father through Jesus.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Church of God.

The church of God that the Bible tells about is composed of a group of individuals. In Col. 1:18 we learn that Jesus is the Head of this church. Read also Eph. 4:15. Christian people everywhere constitute the rest of this church; not Christians in name, but those who actually live a Christian or Christ-like life.

When a building is built, every piece must be in its proper place at the proper time. Is this true of the Christian church? Yes, every Christian must have his place and work in this church. No one else can perform your part. One may feel there is no work he may do. But awaken! There is always work for the Christian, if only to be happy.

Eph. 2:19-22 contains a beautiful picture of how this church is builded. Can you find other pictures of this church?—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Christ the Head of the Church.

Aim: To find our place in the body of Christ.

Every business enterprise must have a head, for the head is the leading, governing part of the body; and where the head directs the body should be willing to follow. A lighthouse is to keep people off the rocks and shoals. The Bible is our Lighthouse. It warns us of danger, directs us safely in the narrow path of life, offers us a blessed reward for right living. What more can we ask? This much is required of us, to live in harmony with God's will and help form the body of Christ. We can only work intelligently in the church by working with the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. It takes the three to perfect the work.

A carpenter has to use all his different tools to build a house, so God must use all His different talents in building the "house not made with hands" so that He can have a perfect building. It does not matter how small our talent may be, it is as necessary as the larger ones, and no one can do our part of the work. So do your part as well as though your talent were a large one and you will be rewarded.—M. A. W.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Fellowship: meaning of word; imitation of man's fellowship with God as Father (study 1 John); the beginning of fellowship between two persons as Christians. Does fellowship grow and deepen with common experiences and prayer-guided study? Why is the question of fellowship among church members such a complicated question?

—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sister Leota Hanson of St. Louis, Mo. was among those who took a trip to the Gulf Coast and enjoyed the Madri Gras celebration in New Orleans this month. Sr. Ella Siple met her in the famous old Crescent City, and Sr. Hanson later spent a few days at the Siple home in Hammond, La.

Bro. Floyd Stilson, treasurer of the National Bible Institution and manager of Golden Rule Greenhouse, has put in a busy winter, and figures for the greenhouse show that a good work has been done there.

Bro. James Rogers of the Oregon church was on the sick list for a couple of weeks, but has sufficiently recovered so that he played a violin obligato to a choir anthem Sunday night, which was highly appreciated by the audience.

Sister Margaret Lyon, a nurse in Chicago, spent part of last week visiting her sister, Dorothy, in Rockford, and incidentally was prevailed upon to write some copy for the Berean page.

Several instances have recently come to light of money being sent loose in a letter and never reaching us. It is easy enough for a dishonest postal employee to hold a letter before a light and discern money, then open the envelope, take the money and destroy the letter. They get caught eventually, but in the meantime lots of people suffer.

Inasmuch as when you mail a remittance to us and receive no credit it puts us in a bad light. We urge you for our sakes as well as your own to please use checks, money orders or drafts,—not currency.

Some from long distances are already making plans to attend Illinois Bible School and conference and General conference this summer. These meetings will be held at Oregon, Ill., July 28 to Aug. 11, and an urgent invitation is extended to all.

Regardless of where you live or with what conference you are associated you owe it to yourself to attend at least one of the state conferences and Bible Schools this year. We are starting the conference calendar in this week's issue and will add to it as rapidly as other dates are given to us.

CONFERENCE CALENDAR

We announce here the dates of summer conferences and conventions as we come to know them. We will gladly add others as soon as the information is received.

Fonthill, Ontario, May 24 to 26
 General Conference, Oregon, Ill.
 July 28 to Aug. 11.
 Illinois Conference and Bible School, Oregon,
 Ill. July 28 to Aug. 11.
 Nebraska Conference, Holbrook, Nebr.

Bro. Lyman Booth has just produced another evidence of the fact that he is not afraid of work. We have received from him manuscript for a book on "The Devil", which shows years of study and meditation and weeks of hard work in composition. In a scholarly and kind manner he presents his arguments and proofs to dispel the theory of the personality of Satan. It is a work well worthy of the most careful consideration of every Bible student, regardless of his views of the subject.

We hope to have the book in circulation before Easter. It will contain approximately 192 pages, with preface, index, table of Scripture texts and definitions, and will sell for not more than 75c per copy. You cannot afford not to have one.

Any advance orders sent to this office will be mailed as soon as the book is off the press.

1929 N. B. I. BUDGET

Elsewhere in this issue and in connection with the yearly statements is published an estimated budget for operating expenses for 1929, amounting to $7,600.00 less $900.00 the amount paid into the N. B. I. from the Oregon church for pastor salary, leaving a balance of $6,700.00, or $560.00 a month.

It has been decided to publish each month the amount received and show the standing of this fund.

General Fund
 January receipts, $423.18.

If any reader of the Herald has my scrap book of articles on Preexistence, consisting of articles clipped from the Herald of 1919 and 1920, will such one please send it to Melville Lyon, 14317 Darley Ave., Cleveland, Ohio? I neglected to put the borrower's name on my list, kept for such purpose.

CHICAGO CHURCH

Those in and near Chicago are urged to bear in mind that next Sunday, February 24, is the regular preaching Sunday. Bro. Marsh plans to be present and a good attendance is urged. The services will be held at Sister Whitehead's home, 5439 Ohio St. Phone Austin 7374.

DIXON

The church at Dixon, Illinois held an evening last Thursday, Feb. 14, that will long be remembered. At about six o'clock the members and friends of the congregation had gathered, and a service of song and prayer was conducted by Bro. Marsh in the church auditorium. Among other features of interest was a number by the junior choir with which their church is blessed.

Following this service, Bro. and Sr. Marsh and Bro. and Sr. Siple, who were guests of the evening, led the way to the basement where pretty valentine decorations gave life and color and where a most bounteous meal was served by the ladies. A general "get better acquainted" hour was enjoyed after the meal.

How pleasant and how inspiring it is to have part in a gathering of this kind.

MICHIGAN

Bro. and Sr. Slocum have a new member added to their family circle by the name of Joyce Loraine. Mother and baby are getting along very nicely, for which all her friends are thankful.

Sr. Arthur Richardson is slowly recovering her strength, but is still a long way from her former condition. The little young Amasa is doing nicely and we trust that mother Catherine will fully regain her health and be able to give that mother care which every baby needs.

The Grand Rapids church has played the part of the good Samaritan to many families this winter. The saying, "It is more blessed to give, than receive" has been fully proven by the untiring workers in G. R.

Bro. and Sr. Johnson of West Bowne have been blessed with the arrival of a (pretty little) baby girl. The words in brackets have a double meaning.

The following were the ones that were baptized during the recent revival meetings in Grand Rapids: Florence Misner, Del Croff, Richard Townsend, Milan Hall, Leota Hotchkiss, Mary Rees, Mrs. Conlon, and Mr. and Mrs. Brough.

NORTHWESTERN CONFERENCE

The quarterly meeting of the Northwestern Conference of the Churches of God met at Corvallis, Oregon, January 19 and 20.

Saturday afternoon, Bro. J. C. Wilson gave a discourse on, "The Two Covenants," showing that we have a covenant-keeping God. The first covenant was nailed to the cross and the second covenant began at the expiration of the old covenant, or at Christ's death, when Christ's flesh did not see corruption. His flesh could not see corruption for God had said to Abraham, "And my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant."

A lecture on "The Life We Should Live Each Day," by Bro. H. J. Prosser was given in the evening. As an accountant goes over his books, finds mistakes, corrects them and balances his books, so should we, as followers of Christ, go over our work at the close of each day and correct our mistakes.

Sunday School was led by Bro. Prosser, after which Bro. Wilson continued his discourse on "The Two Covenants."

Sunday afternoon social meeting, with Bro. Prosser in charge, was enjoyed by all present. Songs, prayers, testimonies and scripture readings filled a pleasant hour.

In the evening Bro. Wilson talked on "The Divine Gifts." At the close of the meeting an invitational hymn was sung and Miss Lela Taylor and Evelyn Kerr accepted Christ's invitation to "the more abundant life."

The attendance averaged 15. Visitors from a distance were Sr. Minnie Rogers of Eugene, Oregon, Bro. H. J. Prosser of New Port, Oregon, and Bro. J. C. Wilson of California. Bro. A. W. Darby, state evangelist, was unable to attend the meeting.

We regret very much to report the loss of one of our most faithful members, Bro. Eugene A. Morgan. Gladys Barber, Sec'y.

NOTICE

Having resigned as pastor of the Church of the Golden Rule, of Cleveland, Ohio, the same to become effective March 1, 1929, my address on and after that date will be Macy, Ind., until further notice.

I will also be able to fill engagements for Sunday preaching should my services be desired by churches within reasonable distances from Macy, Ind. L. E. Conner.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

Our Pastor is still at Holbrook at this writing, Feb. 13th. Interest is increasing daily. The services will continue over Sunday the 17th of this month. A basket dinner will be held Sunday and an all day meeting.

The church is in good shape and really doing things for the cause. Some have fallen by the wayside, or rather broken ranks, and are not walking with the others. O how this must grieve our Lord when He sees the body torn and divided on little things! I am afraid that some of the leaders will be sorry after it is too late.

Our pastor will be with the Blair church Sunday the 24th at the morning service and at Avery for evening service. E. E. Geisler

BOYER-COVERSTON

It gives us real pleasure to announce the marriage of Bro. Samuel H. Boyer to Sr. (Miss) Lillian A. Coverston. The wedding took place Tuesday, Feb. 5, at the Church of God parsonage near Maurertown.

Bro. Boyer is the youngest son of Bro. S. E. Boyer, Pelton, and Sr. Boyer is the youngest daughter of Bro. and Sr. Edward Coverston, Dilbeck. Bro. and Sr. Boyer each come from families long established in the faith and they themselves are active members of the Dry Run church. These sterling young people are of excellent repute, sound in the "doctrine delivered unto the fathers" and we predict they will establish a Christian home that shall rebound to the glory of God. We wish them true happiness in their wedded lives, a happiness that shall be unbroken until they shall be "changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye" and taken to that greater wedding. Harry A. Sheets.

A goodly number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Sr. Emily Blackwell, in Los Angeles, on Saturday afternoon, February 9, to witness the marriage of Sr. Blackwell's daughter, Rena, to Mr. John Taylor. After the ceremony light refreshments were served. The couple then left for a short trip into the mountains. Upon their return they will be at home at 375 La Colina Dr., Inglewood, California.

The Los Angeles church bids these estimable young people Godspeed in their new relationship in life.

MARY AMELIA GROSS

Mary Amelia, daughter of John R. and Mary E. Lansbery was born Aug. 7, 1869. She was united in marriage Oct. 3, 1891, with Wm. Gross, to which union three children, two daughters and one son, were born. She was baptized into Christ in 1902, since which time she has been an earnest contender for the principles of her Master, whom she served to the best of her ability until she fell asleep, Jan. 17, 1929, leaving surviving, of her immediate family, her husband, the three children above mentioned, her mother, four brothers and one sister, with other more distant relatives.

Sr. Gross was exceptionally well informed in the gospel of Christ and an able defender of the truth as she understood it. She had many sorrows and burdens to bear, and was in poor health for some months before the end came. She endured them all in patience and without complaint, feeling assured that the morning that will bring joy and gladness is soon to dawn.

Following appropriate services we laid her to rest in Restitution Cemetery near her lifelong home, near Casey, Ill., to await our Lord's return. L. E. Conner.

THE WORKSHOP OF ISRAEL

By James Marshall

ARTICLE No. 3

WITH THE DESIRE in mind to build permanently, to sink their foundations into the soil of Palestine and build their Judaism into the future, the settlers and their leaders have, nevertheless, done well to emphasize education and child-care. In a sense the schools are the backbone of the entire movement. The Jewish city of Tel-Aviv has grown up about the Gymnasium. On Mount Carmel a new Jewish settlement at Haifa has been built about the Hebrew Realschule and the Technikum. After the tent settlements have been replaced by barracks and the farm animals have been housed, the first permanent buildings in the colonies are devoted to nurseries and schools. Modern kindergartens and play groups exist for children in all parts of Palestine. Hebrew, Jewish history and science are taught in all the schools. The Technikum at Haifa trains engineers and provides night classes for workingmen who wish to learn trades. The Gymnasium at Tel-Aviv is said to be as thorough and advanced as any similar institution in Europe. At Mikveh Israel there is a farm school for boys constantly sending well-trained agriculturists into the fields; at Nahalal, in the center of the Emek, is the girls' farm school which sends into the colonies farm workers, instructresses and the future wives of the farmers, sturdy girls who will not find the life of a farmer's wife tedious. The Hadasah conducts hospitals and health centers in Jerusalem, Tel-Aviv, and Safed, and many other places, and with the aid of the Government and the University is instructing the people in public hygiene.

Finally, there is the University crowning Mount Scopus, simple and dignified, on the most beautiful and inspiring campus in the world. For to the east lies the deep valley of the Jordan, a whitish crust along the river's course, and south of that are the deep blue waters of the Dead Sea. Beyond lie the Mountains of Moab stretching as far as the eye can follow, Mount Nebo with its memories of the first great leader of the Jews, and the land of the Ammonites further to the east. The pale green of the barley sown hillside veined with dry wadi beds spreads to the valley where is Jericho. And one can see the cisterns of Bahurim where David's young men hid during the flight from Absalom. Northward is Gilgal, where Joshua encamped, and to the west, Mizpah, where Samuel dwelt. The Kedron winds to the southward and eastward, and across the valley are the white domed roofs of Jerusalem, Mount Zion and the broad bright Temple place. There is no spot on earth where history seems more vivid, and scholars studying at the University must feel a sense of contiguity with the origins of Jewish thought and culture. But with this valuable sense of the past, since many of them have come from England and Germany and America and have grown up in the atmosphere of science, the scientific approach can be expected, too. Thus one finds the University also devoting itself to research and experiment. It has its departments of agriculture, public health, chemistry, physics, and mathematics, of Arabic culture (the art and thought of its neighbors), and its Institute of Jewish Studies for the study of Hebrew thought and letters.

From a Jewish standpoint these beginnings of a new Zion are so hopeful that it is agonizing to witness in Palestine the waste of fine humanity and limited funds. There is no excuse for not having planned for the economic growth and employment of the urban population; nor is there any excuse for having delayed the funding of agricultural loans by the Keren Hayesod. There is little reason for permitting the duplication of medical agencies and for growing grain in competition with the limitless expanses of Russia and Australia instead of raising poultry and cattle to meet domestic needs and developing specialties for the European market.

Nevertheless, the concrete accomplishments in Palestine are considerable. With sufficient capital and scientific direction, the abandonment of absentee Zionist administration and the adoption of budgets and the expenditure of funds with an eye to actual collections rather than in reliance upon promises and propaganda, these achievements should be made self-sufficient and enduring.

Thus far, however, it is the spiritual vitality and the imponderable beginnings of a new era for Judaism which are precious. A disillusioned world, discomfited and ailing in its old faith, disquieted by its undigested science, may well treasure this rare combination of an ageless people on the soil they love, filled with spiritual power, surrounded by reminders of a tradition which they reverence, approaching life with an inquiring spirit. In the years since the Second Temple was destroyed and the Diaspora began, Jewish ideals, borrowed and transformed by other peoples and religions, have exercised immeasurable influence in the civilization of a barbarian world; and one can hope that if Israel can again become integrated and spiritually at rest by creating for itself a new way of life, it may this time offer to the world redemption from some of the spiritual ailments of civilization.

And the American Jew, harassed by conflicting cultures and sensitive to the inadequacy of his religious residue, may well watch with interest and hope his brothers who are laboring in the old workshop of Israel in search of the modern word which will renew the vigor of the ancient faith.

The difference between shadow and substance is no greater than the difference between a Christian in name only and one in fact.—Haney

EVOLUTION AND RESURRECTION

By Paul M. Hatch

IN THE LAST FEW DECADES the world has witnessed a marvelous amount of scientific research, discovery, and theory, much of which has brought on a great deal of controversy even among the scientists. Not least among these has been the theory or science of evolution. To attempt to disprove the theory would be futile in the capacity of meager knowledge of the subject, but suffice to say that the theory has arisen from scientific data that probably cannot be explained in any other way; i. e., evolution is not a basic science but is a theory based on several other basic sciences, the most important of which are biology, geology, and embryology.

It embodies its deductions from the study of past happenings as far as the crust of the earth reveals and also the different embryonic stages in the animal growth, but the question mainly arises, is man the highest order in the science or is there a higher order of animal life still to come? It is not plausible to think that science tolerates the conception of a cessation or retrogression in animal life, for in that case evolution could not hold its true place as to its meaning. Evolution implies a development, growth, improvement, a going forward, etc., but as far as has been observed scientists content themselves in theorizing about the past instead of the future. But where the scientist will not venture, the man that accepts God dares to venture. He will with utmost yearning of the spirit seek out and say, "Yes, thank God, there is a higher order of life, but it comes through no process of evolution, but through an instantaneous change of the living, and for the dead through a resurrection."

Just as the man that seeks after God questions the evolution of animal life, so the evolutionist questions the resurrection. In his conception of a gradual development, he can have no place for the miraculous, and he in turn asks for proof. The only reply is that there is no physical or scientific means of proving this great hope.

What then is the basis of this hope? It reverts back to faith. What then is faith? Let us examine the meaning. Dictionary:—belief; trust in the honesty and truth of another. Bible:—substance of things hoped for; evidence of things not seen. How are we to believe or trust in the honesty and truth of the promise of a resurrection and a change from mortal to immortal life? It is through the substance and the evidence. In this case substance in the Greek word is compatible with the word assurance which gives it a more comprehensible meaning. Then the assurance and evidence. To have an assurance then something must be evident. We have the evidence and assurance that Jesus the Christ was resurrected from the dead to immortal life by many direct witnesses (Matt. 28; John 21; 1 Cor. 15:1-8, etc.), and we have the assurance that He that raised up Jesus will also quicken our mortal bodies by His spirit that dwells in us. (Rom. 8:11). (It must be admitted that the chapter that embodies this explanation of faith does not touch on those that had the assurance and evidence of a resurrection, but rather on the promises that God had in diverse manners revealed unto many of the righteous men prior to the birth of Christ. The meaning was being used rather to explain faith in the belief of a resurrection, as it is the only place that defines the word faith found in the divine revelation.)

But some will say, "How are we to know that these witnesses are true? Perchance they have testified falsely." But God has not left us in doubt as to even the assurance of these things insomuch if men require tangible proof through the eyes and the ears, the man of God has an abundant storehouse of the truthfulness of God's word, God's promises, and of His far seeing revelation through prophecy, to the inhabitants of the earth if they are truly and sincerely desirous of becoming acquainted with the plan, and the execution of the plan to bring all things to a glorious conclusion in the Man, and through the Man whom He has appointed.

Therefore knowing this, believing this, and having faith in this, we can gladly exult as Peter did when he said, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a livelier hope by the resurrection of

"Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days." James 5:2.

THERE is something pathetic, a quality almost awesome, about, the closing days in the existence of a person or thing. A pang of sadness strikes at the heart of even the hardest of us.

A little child had fed and cared for her goldfish carefully and daily for nearly a year, and then one day she found it floating lifelessly upon its side. Hot tears came to her eyes, and she could hardly control her grief.

A rickety, ramshackled old house was being torn down to give place to a fine new mansion. When the work of wrecking was commenced an old lady with white hair was standing near, and a tear coursed its way down her cheek. Years ago as a bride she came to that house. It had become home by the joys and sorrows met there. Her children had been raised there, and although it was now old and worthless, yet its passing brought pangs of sorrow.

Only a few days ago the governor of one of our states received nation wide attention because a horse which had served the state faithfully for years and which had been appointed for slaughter because no longer useful was purchased by him and turned into a comfortable pasture to spend its last days. Many is the incident that could be told of the sorrow brought by the closing of a loved dog's life.

In the death of humans this is still more observable. Perchance this is partly due to the knowledge which each one possesses that some day the same experience must come to him. Death of entire strangers brings its awe. It has been the writer's experience to witness death and terrible mangling in railroad accidents. We have seen the passengers by the dozens climb off the train and stand with awe-filled faces gazing upon the dead and dying. What kind of life has that been which is just closing? Some mother loved that person as a child. What had the intervening years brought?

"Last Days,"—ah, yes, I can see our Master returning from Galilee to Judah, pausing as He came in sight of Jerusalem and with moisture in His eyes and pathos in His voice speaking those words that predicted her downfall. Those were Jerusalem's last days. Looking back over her past He realized that her doom was inevitable, but sinful though she had been He could not pronounce the sentence without the sadness that accompanies endings. Consider the force of His words, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate." Matt. 23:38. Consider how literally they have been fulfilled during the centuries since!

James, one of our Lord's apostles and the author of the words spoken at the head of this editorial, beheld the approach of the end and in vain tried to warn the people. The fifth chapter of James was likely written about A. D. 60,—only ten years before Titus with the Roman army destroyed the city and crushed and scattered its people. Sinful? Disobedient? Yes, but the end brought sorrow and pain to James and even Jesus. There is something pathetic about the closing of things.

These, also, are closing days. How similar they are to the ones of which James was speaking. There should be a solemnity on the part of the Christian to-day as he beholds the signs of the times and realizes that this age is almost past.

Closing days,—last days,—how many are there left yet for service? How can you and I best fill them?

EVOLUTION AND THE BIBLE

FOR ONE to say offhand and hastily either that he does or does not believe in evolution is simply to manifest an ignorance of the whole subject in hand. The term is too comprehensive to be affirmed or denied in a breath.

Evolution means progress or development. That there has been progress and development in many forms of life cannot properly be denied by anyone. Take a glance back at the wild hogs that used to roam this country, and then attend a live stock exhibition and behold the bred-up specimens of to-day. That is a kind of evolution which no one cares to deny.

The great controversy on the subject, however, is whether or not there is or has been a development from one species to another, from one form of life to another which is distinctly different. Many have affirmed this to be true and have thus reasoned that man, the highest order of known life, is a product of development from lower species.

In view of all that has been said upon this subject a recently published statement by Dr. Austin H. Clark, noted biologist of the Smithsonian Institution, is very interesting. Whether Dr. Clark has any religious views of any kind or not cannot be told from his statement. The Bible is not mentioned, but he gives facts in zoology and biology as they appear to him, and draws some interesting conclusions.

Among other things Dr. Clark states that the gap between cats and dogs is very broad and has remained broad throughout the fossil record. He asserts that cats never become dogs, although both are carnivorous animals.

The gaps are also very broad, says he, between the backboneed animals and the invertebrates, and the peculiar types which are between them are very different from either.

But Dr. Clark points out that the gaps are still broader between the invertebrate groups such as insects, shells, starfishes and the like. In fact he asserts that these gaps go back unchanged to the earliest fossils that we know so that in these creatures there is no justification in assuming a time element in evolution.

As regards man, Dr. Clark states that while the structure is very similar to that of the man-like ape yet no link between the two has ever been found and he further frankly asserts that he does not believe such a link ever existed. The copyrighted article concludes by this noted scientist saying that so far as knowledge goes man appeared on earth in substantially the form in which we now know him.

In view of these frank statements on the part of one who has made a life study of everything that man can study on the subject, how empty and hollow sound the careless and foolish statements and arguments that float around so frequently.—F. E. S.

H A T R E D

"Hatred is not appeased by hatred; hatred is appeased by non-hatred only."

THE ABOVE WORDS are quoted from The Gospel of Buddha and though their religion is an heathen religion yet it must be admitted that it contains many true and valuable thoughts and principles. This one is worthy of long study.

It has been recognized that anger and hatred have a harmful effect upon one's own body and therefore shorten life. Scientists claim that a kind of poison is spread through the system by anger and hate. The one who suffers most in the long run, therefore, is the one who yields to these passions.

The thought in the quotation above, however, is very different and looks upon the matter from a different standpoint. It is explained somewhat as follows:

If you have done me a wrong so that I could hate you then I must recognize that not by hatred is hatred appeased. For if I should deprive you of life then your partisans would deprive me of life and my partisans would deprive them of life,—ad infinitum. But if I am kind to you, then you will become kind to me, and all will benefit. Thus, and thus only, can hatred be appeased.

Can you think of a principle in human relationship that is more true and definite in its operation?—F. E. S.

UNITY AND SEPARATION

VOLUMES could be written on the important subject of unity, and how Christians should cooperate in love and harmony for the good of the body. This would all be true and important.

Other volumes could be written on the necessity of definite separation; of how the gospel truth will divide families and friends. This also would be true.

But when one faces frankly the above two truths he must recognize that they are in perfect harmony with each other. The unity is that condition which should exist between those who believe the gospel; who are members of God's family. The separation of such persons from all that is of a different or opposing influence will promote the unity between themselves.

Christians should be able to find their choicest pleasures and joys in their relationship with each other, not with those who are unchristian.

A more clean-cut line of difference lived up to by Christians to-day would promote unity of the brotherhood and cause the church to be held in higher esteem by all.—F. E. S.

ONE MISTAKE

HAVE YOU EVER stopped to consider how long it takes to overcome the effects of one mistake? The price is too large to justify the wrong. A prominent psychologist made some observations and computations and announced that it takes seventeen years to live down one lie. If you tell a lie every seventeen years you are considered a liar all your life and you are not trusted. It takes that many years of faithfully telling the truth to make people believe you are sincere after you have once told a falsehood.

One mistake of another kind can destroy the effect of years of faithfulness. Benedict Arnold may have been a true and patriotic citizen and defender of his country practically all his life, but the fact that he proved traitor once causes you to forget all else and when his name is mentioned you think only of one false to his country. The fact that he died in deep sorrow with the American flag wrapped around him means little to you; he had made a mistake and you remember it.

Think how one sin of some other type can blight one's whole life!

Is it worth the price?—F. E. S.

PRACTICAL USE OF THE SCRIPTURES

By Lucille Le Crone

IT IS AN EVIDENT FACT that everything has some use. There are some things, perhaps, which we cannot seem to find a use for, but God would not have made them had there not been a use or a place for them in His plan.

If we wished to learn how to add, multiply, subtract and divide numbers we would not study a history but an arithmetic. In the same way if we wished to find out who the first president of the United States was, we would not look in a grammar but in a history. To learn to speak English correctly we would study grammar and so on through the list. The lawyer studies his law books, the doctor his books on medicine. We who would be Christians and live righteous lives must study that greatest of all Books, the Bible.

All scripture is given by inspiration of God and is therefore without error. In olden days God spoke directly to His people but now He speaks to us through the Bible, His written Word. It is the one Book which does not grow old with constant reading but becomes more precious each time it is read.

In John 5:39 we are commanded to search the scriptures and in 2 Tim. 2:15, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Having read and studied carefully, understanding will come to us. If we fail to understand the Bible it is because we have not studied diligently enough, and not because the Bible is a book which cannot be understood. It is God's word to us and surely He would not give us anything impossible to understand. We could not have understood grammar or arithmetic, either, if we had not studied. When we came to a part of the arithmetic lesson which we could not seem to understand did we say "I don't believe anyone can understand that; I doubt if the writer intended it to be understood"? No, we studied just that much harder so we could understand it. Having learned a principle in arithmetic or a rule in spelling, it must be applied to derive any benefit from it. After studying God's Word and learning what He wants us to do we must obey or it will profit us nothing. Christ is our great Example in obedience. He was obedient to the Father's will, even unto death.

James says, "Faith without works is dead." We may believe all the Bible teaches, but if we fail to live according to its teachings our faith is in vain.

In 2 Tim. 3:16 we read that the Scriptures are profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness. They teach to us the will of God, showing what is right and what is wrong in His sight; and how we can correct the wrong, and how we must live to gain His favor.

Reading, studying, believing and obeying the gospel are all essential to salvation. Many people read and believe the Bible but do not obey its commands. In Heb. 5:9 we read "and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." If we do not obey then we cannot hope to obtain salvation.

Let us, then, search the scriptures earnestly and diligently, pray for knowledge and understanding, live according to God's will so we may gain that great gift of eternal life.

A TRUE STORY

By Aunt Hortense

The following is submitted to us by a sister who writes frequently for The Herald and who vouches for the truthfulness of the account. While it is out of our usual class of literature, yet there is such an outstanding lesson, so seriously needed, that we give it space for the sake of young people whom it may influence.—Ed.

SOMETIMES the experiences in peoples' lives, if revealed, would cause others to escape the pitfalls that caused them to stumble; so for the Herald readers I will give this little story, true in detail, and some of the readers may even guess the identity of the subject of this sketch.

I was one of a large family of children. My parents were farmers. They made a comfortable living for us with none of the luxuries of life, which some of our more fortunate neighbors enjoyed, yet we were a very happy family.

When I was nearly twenty years of age, a family of about the same size, and whose social standing was about as ours, moved near us and the two families became fast friends. Especially did I find in the son of our new neighbor a very congenial friend. Time passed and our friendship ripened into love. We were married and moved to the little town of C, where my husband, who had decided that farming was not to his liking, engaged in business for himself, for which he had been fitting himself. Things prospered with us. We bought a little home, and were building in our little love bower what we thought nothing but death could remove—happiness, contentment, new friends, social advantages of which we had both been without, living as we did in a rural district with but few advantages in those days to be obtained. Two children came to bless our home and brighten the home life.

So the days flew by. I reveled in nice clothes, in entertaining and being entertained. My husband shared all of these social things with me, for in those days thirty-five and forty years ago, it was considered impolite not to invite both husband and wife. (It is different to-day, but not to the betterment of society, to my way of thinking).

One day our little boat, that had been gliding so serenely over the matrimonial waves, suddenly struck rock bottom and was sinking. My husband came home worried. He was having a hard time working against the competition he was now having since new concerns had come in with more capital than he had with which to branch out. He could not cope with his competition. Well, right there I slumped. I could not live on less. I could not give up the things I had grown accustomed to. It is true I never had before marriage been accustomed to these niceties either in my home or elsewhere. I fretted and nagged, and complained, first about one thing then another. I harrassed him until he was heartbroken and humiliated. He could not possibly bring home to me the money for household expenses he previously had and he could not do his best in his business. How could he when he had to feel that I thought he was a failure—I, who should have encouraged him, comforted him and helped him in his great need; I, who should have cut down expenses here and there helping him over the rough places; I, who should have never by look or word condemned him for his inability to make good; when he had to carry to his arduous labors each day the vision of a cross, surley face, and the memory of a complaining wife—how could he succeed? I am not sparing myself. I have paid and paid bitterly for my part in wrecking our peaceful, happy home. Days passed. Husband grew more quiet and grave. He never quarreled with me, but the look of sorrow on his face will haunt me always. It did not then, I was too selfish and too self-centered to even care what I said or did. The god of this world, money, money, or rather what money would bring for my selfish indulgence was all I thought of. I could not see then that like the galley slave he was struggling with a load beyond his strength and I, the cruel taskmaster, was unmercifully applying the lash to that poor bruised body and tortured mind.

One noon he came home and said, "I have sold the business to-day and I am going away to look for a location. The money is in the bank and I have been carrying a life insurance for you and the children." He left me there. I had yet no words of sympathy for him. He kissed our children good-by and stepped through the door of our home, never to return.

Days and weeks and years have passed, yet no word has ever come to us. I have tried every available means to find him, but my search has been fruitless. Oh the agony, the wretched, wretched life I have lived! What remorse of consciousness, what bitter tears I have shed! Our children have married and gone to homes of their own, and I sit alone with my sad memories ever listening for the footsteps of my dear one, ever praying that God will grant me the privilege to look upon that dear face and hear him say, "Dearest, I forgive it all." Oh how I have longed to hold him in my arms and tell him I love him still. Where is he? What happened to him? Where did he go, when he went out of my life because I failed him, and he could bear my reproaches no longer?

Readers of this little story, let me advise you, let me warn you of this same sinking sand. What I have suffered for my foolish desires to be what I could not afford to be, only God knows. Guard the sacred vows you made at the marriage altar. Stand shoulder to shoulder and face the storms of life when they come, as come they will. You will all the more enjoy the sunshine when the storm has passed. I would not have one of you share my sorrow. Bear each other's burdens and go serenely down the valley together. My hair has whitened with the years of grief. Have I paid the price? Yea, verily, a hundred fold, a hundred fold.

—o—

WILL OUR LORD COME BACK?

By Dr. F. E. Marsh

IT SEEMS SUPERFLUOUS to ask the readers of this paper such a question as the above, but we are reminded of the words of the apostle, who, in referring to "the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," said, "Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth. Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance." 2 Peter 1:11-13. Older believers are prone to forget that younger ones are not so conversant with the truth of the Lord's coming; and it also becomes those who teach, to present the theme clearly, that the truth may be witnessed truly. Let us take a bird's-eye-view of the glorious truth of His advent.

PROMISES FULFILLED

"Surely I come quickly." "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to render to every man according as his work is." Rev. 22:7, 12, A. S. V. Christ's word of arrestment is, "I come quickly." Many of God's people are puzzled by the seeming delay of Christ. To them he has not come "quickly," and they wonder why! The late Sir Robert Anderson explained the delay by affirming "The Lord would have been here long since, if the Church had been faithful." That may be an explanation. But may there not be another explanation, namely, that when He starts to come, He will come "quickly," even as there are two methods by which one may travel from New York to Chicago? One may go by slow train, on a secondary railroad, or by the limited sixteen hours Pennsylvania express which does the 1000 miles in that time.

His coming is sure, for His promise is certain. "I come," "I come," "I come," is His triple word, so He is coming for He has promised. He bids us to "behold" His promise, that we may enter into its largeness, significance and many-sidedness, and also the Amen of its certainty, and, further He climaxes His promise by His "surely," or pledges, "My reward is with me." He will not be slack to honor those who have honored Him; so He seems to say, "Do well—suffer for it—take it patiently—till you hear My 'Well done,' and you will receive the rewards you have earned from Me."—The Prophetic News and Israel's Watchman,

“THERE IS NO DEATH”

By R. A. Curtis

THE ABOVE CAPTION, that appeared in The Dayton Daily News, is certainly a “startling” statement, as well as the following: “What man calls death, is not the end of life. Life is the result of death. There is nothing startling about this. It is a simple, self-evident truth. Any intelligent person can see it and demonstrate it beyond any element of doubt.” I frankly confess my inability to grasp what the correspondent terms a “self-evident truth”, even at the expense of being classed as mentally obtuse. In fact I have my doubts about harmonizing such ipse-dixit statements, with the facts of nature, deductions of enlightened reason, or the statements of the Bible.

While writing this article, a funeral cortege is passing our door, and yet I am told “there is no death.” Every cemetery of earth bears mute testimony to the fact of man’s frailty and mortality. Job 4:17; Rom. 1:23; Psa. 39:4. The Bible is explicit on this subject. “Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned.” Rom. 5:12. “In Adam all die.” 1 Cor. 15:22. “Man dieth, and wasteth away.” He is “of few days, and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not.” Job 14:1, 2, 10. “What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave?” Psa. 89:48. “Wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others.” Psa. 49:10. Men, as well as the lower order of animals “all go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again.” Eccl. 3:19, 20.

It is recorded of the federal head of the human race, that he lived “nine hundred and thirty years: and he died.” Gen. 5:5. What was true of Adam, was equally true of his posterity. Whether life be brief or prolonged for Adam’s progeny, they all at last “rest together” in the charnel house of death. Job 3:11-19; Psa. 39:4, 5. The fiat has gone forth, “Tse soul that sinneth, it shall die.” Ezek. 18:4, 20.

If “life is the result of death,” as claimed by the correspondent, then is the statement of Paul at Athens untrue; for he declares that “God . . . made the world and all things therein . . . For in him we live, and move, and have our being.” Acts 17:24-28. Vain is the effort to rule God out of the world He has made. Death is an “enemy,” and every fiber of our being recoils at death’s approach. The facts of nature, and the declarations of the Bible, are unanimous in branding death as an “enemy.” 1 Cor. 15:25, 26. “The king of terrors” cannot eventuate in life. Job 18:14. Webster defines death as the “extinction of life.” For brevity’s sake, I will place one statement of the Bible, alongside the statement of the correspondent: “What man calls death, is not the end of life.” “Thus saith the Lord, Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live.” Isa. 38:1. Comment is unnecessary.

THE UNITY OF GOD

By Lyman Booth

The following is the first of a series of articles that are worthy of careful thought.—Ed.

WHILE it is quite difficult to form an intimate acquaintance with a fellow being whom we have never seen, yet it is possible, through personal correspondence and reports from others, to determine whether or not we like or dislike the party. A good impression may be formed of his general habits, disposition, size and looks. Thus it is with God. We know nothing of His attributes and personal Being except what has been revealed to us by the prophets, Jesus the Christ, and His apostles. It is from them that we must learn those matters and whether or not He is a unit or a dual Being. Personally we favor the unity of God and therefore invite attention to the consideration of the unity of God.

“This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.” John 17:3. “And the LORD shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one LORD, and his name one.” Zech. 14:9.

Zechariah’s words express his belief in one Jehovah. It is a prophecy teaching the oneness of God in the time when there shall be one Jehovah and His name one. Where, in the English language, can one find words that would express the oneness of God as strongly as Zechariah has expressed it? Then our Savior in His memorable prayer in John 17 has expressed the same idea with as much clearness and force. “These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: as thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.” John 17:1-3.

If we consider our Lord’s words carefully we will discover that they express most emphatically His Father’s supremacy. He makes a clear and explicit distinction between Himself and His Father. His words and those of Zechariah are very important in the discussion of God’s unity, in opposition to the doctrine of the trinity. Permit me to state that prayer always indicates supremacy. Jesus prayed to the Father because He could pray to no greater. In this prayer our Lord plainly states that the Father is the only true God, by whom Jesus Christ was sent. This teaches as plainly as words can the separate and distinct personality of the Father and Son. I cannot imagine how anyone can successfully overcome the argument. If their statements can be explained away, I fail to see how any statement can be sustained. In John 14:28 Christ said, “My Father is greater than I.”

Having such explicit testimony as given above by Zechariah and our Lord we begin our argument in favor of the unity, or oneness, of God. We believe that the Old and New Testament scriptures will support the doctrine. When we speak of the unity of God we use the term in its common meaning of one, simple, individual unity. We mean that God is one Being, one Almighty Jehovah, the Creator, the Upbuilder and Sustainer of all things. Of course we do not pretend to perfectly understand the infinite nature of God for that would be assuming that our knowledge would be equal to His. While His attributes and His Being are beyond our comprehension, and much of it an unrevealed mystery, I cannot see how the doctrine of the trinity removes the mystery. I cannot understand how dividing the unity of His Being into three, can fail to lead into hopeless difficulties.

If there are three separate and distinct beings then they must have a separate and distinct existence, and a will and other attributes of their own. But we are asked to believe that these three are combined to form one. That three are three and yet only one, three persons but one Being. Before I can accept such a theory, so mysterious and difficult of understanding, I shall demand positive scriptural proof. With regard to the personality of God the religious world is divided into two beliefs. The unitarian belief is that there is one God, the Father Almighty, the Maker of heaven and earth. The trinitarian believes that there is one God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost; that the Father is God, the Son is God, and the Spirit is God. The question is, which is supported by Scripture? In this discussion creeds cannot be admitted as proof of either position; nothing but Holy Writ.

There is a vast difference between the two, and I believe that those who hold to the unity of God have a great advantage, because they can produce plain and undisputable proof in support of their belief. Popular theology teaches that God is three eternal elements, self-derived, and self-sustaining, and all equally powerful, each separate from the other, and yet all forming a complete single Being, or personal unity. They teach there is God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost (or Spirit); each very God, each without beginning, each omnipotent, and yet all one.

Why one of these elements should be called the Father, not having preceded or given existence to another, and why another should be called the Son, not having been brought into existence by the Father, but co-eternal with Him, and why the third should be called the Holy Spirit (or Ghost) and all required to form one is beyond our comprehension.

When we ask for an explanation we are told that it is the truth, even though it is a mystery. Mystery, indeed! There are many mysteries in nature, things that are beyond the grasp of human intellect. Trinitarianism propounds a mystery which, to our mind, is a palpable contradiction, an utter impossibility. It sets forth an idea and then immediately contradicts it. It holds there is one God, yet not one but three and the three are not three but one. If that is not a flat contradiction then I cannot understand English. True, the Bible uses the three terms, Father, Son and Holy Ghost (or Spirit). Because it does so use these three terms it is claimed they teach the trinity. The idea is, in fact, but a mere juggling of words.

Without harshly criticizing the doctrine we will examine the Bible meaning of the terms, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. We believe we shall find a representation in perfect accord with a rational and intelligent conception of things; one that will enlighten our understanding; something that will satisfy our minds; something agreeable with our experience, and reaching beyond our observation. We shall find intelligible information concerning the first clause, a true conception of a character, such as would be expected from such a source.

We will now submit a few texts of scripture to show that God is a unite and not a trinity. "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one LORD." Deut. 6:4. Jesus said, "The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one God." Mark 12:29. Jesus said to one of the scribes, "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him." 1 Cor. 8:6. Paul said to the Ephesians, 4:6, there is "one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Jesus Christ," is the declaration of Paul to Timothy. 1 Tim. 2:5. The above statements agree with what the Almighty said of Himself. "I am God, and there is none else; . . . and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done." Isa. 46:9, 10. "Thus saith the LORD, the King of Israel, and his redeemer, the LORD of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God. . . . Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any." Isa. 44:6-8.

The scriptures just quoted agree as to the deity and also with the modern idea of natural law; viz., nature is seen to be under one law and one controlling power throughout its immeasurable fields. There is no discord, no conflict. The power that governs all is seen to be one.

Jesus Christ from the dead", (1 Pet. 1:3), this being the earnest price of inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of His glory. Eph. 1.

Christ Jesus having mortified sin in His own body, paid the earnest, and God affixed His signature to the testament by the act of raising Him from the dead to an immortal and incorruptible life, which gave to us that believe the assurance of a resurrection at the time of redemption of the purchased possession, that possession being the body of believers of all ages since the world began.

SOWING FOR THE SPIRIT

By Samuel E. Haney

FOR HE THAT SOWETH to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Gal. 6:8.

There are different opinions about this word "corruption", as to whether it should be taken literally or figuratively. A perusal of Strong's Concordance and contexts of several translations convinces the writer that both are applicable. Note the following exegeses of the text: "Because the one SOWING for his FLESH, will from the FLESH reap Corruption; but the one SOWING for the SPIRIT, will from the SPIRIT reap aionian Life". Emph. Diag. "Because he that soweth into his own flesh, out of the flesh shall reap corruption (margin, decay), whereas he that soweth into the Spirit, out of the Spirit shall reap ageabiding life." Roth. "He that sows in the field of his lower nature, will from that nature reap destruction; but he who sows to serve the Spirit will from the Spirit reap the Life of the ages". Wey. Lightfoot commenting on the word "destruction" ("corruption", as some have it) says, "A harvest of corruption and ruin. If you plant the seed of your own selfish desires, if you sow the field of the flesh, then when you gather in your harvest, you will find the ears blighted and rotten. But if you sow the good ground of the Spirit, you will of that good ground gather the golden grain of life eternal."

Paul amplifies the subject in Romans 8:5-8, Wey., "For if men are controlled by their earthly natures, they give their minds to earthly things. If they are controlled by their spiritual natures, they give their minds to spiritual things. Because for the mind to be given up to earthly things means death; but for it to be given up to spiritual things means Life and peace. Abandonment to earthly things is a state of enmity to God. Such a mind does not submit to God's Law, and indeed cannot do so. And those whose hearts are absorbed in earthly things cannot please God." Note verses 12 and 13: "Therefore, brethren, it is not to our lower natures that we are under obligation that we should live by their rule. For if you so live, death is near; but if, through being under the sway of the spirit, you are putting your old bodily habits to death, you will live."

The great Apostle in Gal. 5:24 puts the essential quietus on the flesh—lower nature—and places the onus of compliance up to the professing Christians, i. e., "And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts ('susceptibilities and covetings', Roth.)".

To pamper the flesh, in these "perilous times", is to gravitate to the "foolish virgin" position; and to imperil the salvation of those we coddle. For the spirit of the flesh is the antithesis of God's Spirit. Jesus says, ". . . the flesh profiteth nothing". John 6:63. And Paul writes, ". . . with the mind ('mind of Christ', 1 Cor. 2:16) I myself serve the law of God; but with the flesh the law of sin". Rom. 7:25. The Apostle emphasizes how that trifling with the flesh militates spiritual and physical progress, plus the alleviation of spiritual and physical distress: "And if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the spirit is life because of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwelleth in you, he that raised up Christ Jesus from the dead shall give life ('make alive,' Diag.) also to your mortal bodies through ('because of,' margin) his Spirit that dwelleth in you". Rom. 8:10, 11, R. V. Paul teaches the same truth when he says, "For if ye live after the flesh (gratify the flesh), ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify ('put to death', Rom. 6:3) the deeds of the body, ye shall live." Rom. 8:13. Mortification is physical death's sequence; and it should be thus reckoned spiritually. God did not allow His Son to see physical corruption (Psa. 16:10); and He, through Paul, warns His children to avoid spiritual corruption—mortification.

Christians who are so responsive to the omniferous wants of the flesh and customs of this world that they can't dedicate at least an hour a day to the study and meditation of God's Word, have a proportionate space in their hearts for Jesus. Acts 17:11; Eph. 3:17.

I once notified a number of Christians—of like precious faith—that I expected to be in their city on a certain date. One reply read, "I have certain hours of certain days that I entertain, but I shall make an exception in your case." Superfluous to say, I didn't call lest I should disturb the sister while giving her poodle a bath. How embarrassing it should be to some for Jesus to make His "shout, with the voice of the archangel", while they be "entertaining"—the world! Lese Majeste!

We can all plead guilty of dereliction in holding up the cross of Christ at times. A good rule, when being tried and tested, and in doubt just what to do or say is, to reflect on how our Holy Preceptors would act in similar situations. And as an evidence that we are under the sway of the Holy Spirit we must determine where, and to what extent we differ from the man of the world.

Few, indeed, adequately appreciate their "heavenly calling"; and the fact that they are candidates for a thousand-year-kingly-reign on the earth with the King of kings. 2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 5:10; 20:6. The average Christian has no conception of the honor and glory that await the "overcoming" class. The candidacy for the presidency of the United States, the most important and exalted position on earth, is comparatively trivial to that of the aspirant's candidacy to be "king and priest unto God". Rev. 1:6; 3:21. And yet, how prone we aspirants are to become careless and cursory in conducting our campaign! But not so with our enemy, whose vigil sentinels, the flesh and the world, are ever watchful for a lethargic state of our minds.

Too much emphasis cannot be put on the keystone of our subject, i. e., "seed sowing": the fact that we are ever "sowing seed" that is sure to mature either to our spiritual betterment or detriment. The Old Testament has much to say about "sowing." Note a few texts: "Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same", Job 4:8—can't sow a field of rye and expect to reap a crop of wheat. "He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity; and the rod of his anger shall fail". Prov. 22:8. It is foolish to get angry, but wise to repent when the folly of vanity is discovered. "For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind: it hath no stalk ('no standing grain', R. V.): the bud shall yield no meal: if so be it yield, the strangers shall swallow it up". Hosea 8:7. V. 8 explains this parabolic phrase: "Israel is swallowed up: now shall they be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure". This covers a period from 70 A. D. until the Jews acknowledge Jesus Christ as their Messiah. Matt. 23:37-39. What is the atheist going to do about this historical fact? "Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground: for it is time to seek the LORD, till he come and rain righteousness upon you". Hosea 10:12. Paul echoes this thought by saying, "He that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting"—break up your fallow ground: deeply rooted bodily habits, for it is time to seek the Lord. Incomparable good advice for all of us. Till He come and rain righteousness upon you. Maintain a bulldog, tenacious stick-to-it-iveness, "Till he come".

The result of letting go is described by Jesus in Matt. 24:42-51.

WHEN SHALL WE LOOK FOR EVERLASTING RIGHTEOUSNESS?

By W. H. Wilson (deceased)

SEE DANIEL 9:24 TO 27

SEVENTY weeks (of years) are decreed upon thy (Daniel's) people and upon thy holy city (Jerusalem), to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness. . . . Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the commandment (by Artaxerxes, King of Persia, in the 20th year of his reign), to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Anointed One the Prince, shall be seven weeks: and threescore and two weeks, (69 of the 70 weeks will be completed up to Messiah the Prince). . . . And he (the pronoun HE refers to the little horn which came out of one of the four divisions of the Grecian Empire, mentioned in Dan. 8:9, 10, 23, 24, and is not the same as that mentioned in Dan. 7:8), shall make a firm covenant with many (Jews) for one week (of seven years the last of the 70 weeks): and for half of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease (breaks his covenant in the middle of the 70th week); and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the consummation, and that determined, shall wrath be poured upon the desolator."

After the termination of these seventy weeks, everlasting righteousness will find a congenial home upon earth.

The word "week," in Scripture usage, signifies seven periods of time. The week of creation, consisted of seven long periods, then we have a week of seven days, and in the Scripture above quoted weeks of seven years. It is true the Scripture does not name the length of the week, but history shows conclusively, that sixty-nine of such weeks did elapse between the commandment of Artaxerxes and Messiah, the Prince. That left one more week to elapse prior to everlasting righteousness being come in. Well, it has not come yet, has it failed? By no means. The explanation is found in the phrase: "Seventy weeks are decreed upon THY people, and THY HOLY City." This period of time, has exclusive reference to Israel and Jerusalem. At the end of the sixty-nine weeks, Israel cried out, "We will not have this man to reign over us," "We have no king but Cæsar."

Then follows another proclamation, fixing the destiny of Daniel's people, and Daniel's holy city. See Luke 21:24, 25:

"There shall be great distress upon the land (of Israel), and wrath unto this people (of Israel). And they shall fall by the edge of the sword (now an historic fact), and shall be led captive into all the nations: and Jerusalem (Daniel's 'Holy City') shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."

At this point, Israel's clock stopped, and ceased to measure time any longer, and will remain so, until the Gentile clock has ticked off the "times of the Gentiles;" after which Israel's clock will measure off the seventieth week of Daniel. That event is near at hand, as mentioned in Dan. 9:27:

"And he ('the king of fierce countenance,' mentioned in Dan. 8:23, 24) shall make a firm covenant with many (Jews) for ONE WEEK: and for the half of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease."

This is a marked sign of the times, which we should watch. There will evidently be a partial restoration of the Jews in unbelief, and a Jewish government formed, with a governor placed over them, by the powers guaranteeing the protection of the new Jewish state. This government will exist only during the last week of seven years.

It is a well-known fact to-day, that the sole object of the great world-wide Jewish Zionist organization, is to bring about this restoration, and the formation of a Jewish state in Palestine. We frequently read about this project in our newspapers, and several leading governments favor such a movement. Turkey seems to be about the only hindrance, and from present indications, it does not look as though she would be able to resist anything much longer. We are certainly living in eventful times, when we need to keep wide-awake.

Whenever we see a Jewish state formed in Palestine, that will be a marked epoch. It will mark the commencement again of the national life of Israel. At that time

Israel's clock will commence to measure off the seventieth week of Daniel, and in seven years from that time, Daniel will stand in his lot, and everlasting righteousness be brought in.

The king over the temporary Jewish state will be Antichrist. How shall we recognize him as Antichrist? See 1 John 2:22: "This is the Antichrist, even he that denieth the Father and the Son."

The Word of God, then, is authority for the statement that the coming Antichrist will be a rampant atheist, he will declare himself an unbeliever in both the Father and the Son. Then to name some other character as being the Antichrist, who is known to be an avowed believer in both the Father and the Son, although he may be an ignorant worshipper of both of them, is to lead people astray. Other Scriptures confirm the atheistical character of this coming Antichrist.

Dan. 8:23, 24, speaks of the rise of a "King of fierce countenance," out of one of the four divisions of the Grecian Empire, at a period of time, when "transgressors are come to the full," (which time is still future) who will stand up against the "Prince of princes" (ver. 25), but he shall be "broken without hand." In Dan. 9:27, he makes a covenant with many Jews for a week of seven years, and breaks it in the middle of the week. In Dan. 11:36, he shows his atheistical character: "And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself ABOVE EVERY GOD, ('when transgressors are come to the FULL,') and shall speak marvelous things against the GOD OF GODS: and shall prosper until the indignation be accomplished (which will be 'accomplished,' at the end of the seventieth week); for that which is determined shall be done. Neither shall he regard the god of his fathers, nor the desire of women, nor regard ANY GOD, for he shall magnify himself (as being supreme) ABOVE ALL."

This event has not yet become an historic fact, as the character here spoken of does not appear until "transgressors are come to the full," and judging from the present awful wicked and corrupt condition of affairs, the cup of "transgressors" is near to overflowing. Out of this caldron of corruption the blasphemous atheist recognizing no God higher than himself, (who will be the "little horn" of Dan. 8:9 to 12), and known as "the King of fierce countenance" will have undisputed control of affairs, for the space of 3½ years, or "shall prosper until the indignation be accomplished," at the end of Daniel's seventieth week.

Selected from "The Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times" by our late Bro. W. H. Wilson. Though dead his words yet speak to us in unmistakable warnings. Let us watch! Mrs. A. J. Chaplin.

"THE LORD HATH NEED OF HIM"

. Mark 11:3

By C. E. Copp

EVERYBODY can be of service to the Lord at some time, in some way, some how, even if they are not of the highest grade of efficiency of their class and accustomed to the task required, "broken in" as we may say, not to mention a first-class education and holding a college degree. Once the Lord had need of a colt to ride on into Jerusalem in order to fulfill a prophecy made long before that, Zech. 9:9, and He knew just where He could find him and what condition he was in and whom to send after him. He wasn't a stylish colt that would cut a fine figure as he was ridden into the city by the future King of the world, but a lowly beast indeed, "whereon never man sat," which ordinarily would indicate that he would be unmanageable. But he had a Master that day, a Manager who took care of all that, in spite of the crowd he met and the noise they made with their hallelujah welcome and their garments and the branches of trees they spread in the way, seemingly to make a test case of it. The prophecy was completely fulfilled that day, which other prophets than Zechariah had forecasted also, and which all the apostles have reported in their gospels, and an example set of meekness and lowliness in One of unparalleled power that the world has never known before nor since. But we are destined to hear from Him and see Him again some day not far hence in a mighty role, as King of kings and Lord of lords. May we be prepared to welcome Him as heartily as did His disciples so long ago in Jerusalem.

The Lord hath need of you, reader, if you are not already in His service. He knows where you are, where to find you and whom to send after you. It is to be hoped that you are not in the service of the world, or the prince of darkness. It may be you are "tied" to some bad habit or unchristian association? Well, the Spirit sent after you knows how to untie you, "loose" you and bring you to the place of service and manage you. Give Him a trial. Yield yourself to Him fully. You may hear the "hallelujah chorus" as the result of being of lowly service to the Master here.

And if any man say unto you, "Why do they do this?" say ye that the Lord hath need of me, and straightway they will understand the whole matter and let you go and not trouble you thereafter with invitations to this, that and the other worldly pleasure and frolic; for they know where you belong. There is nothing like being "cut loose" from where before attached and having it well understood, if you want to get along well in the Lord's service and enjoy it. Fifty-three years of service render some evidences of this to the writer.—Sel.

"HE SHALL COME DOWN LIKE RAIN UPON THE MOWN GRASS."—PSALM 72:6.

A SHORT WHILE before his death Moses was commanded by God to write a song and teach it to the people of Israel. The song, recorded in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy, began with these words: "Give ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass: because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ye greatness unto our God."

"As the rain", "as the dew", "as the showers", describe the descent of God's word and name unto men. If we inquire further into this frequent comparison we will come to see a great deal more of its beauty and significance.

"As the rain cometh down," writes Isaiah, "and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it."

David in the seventy-second Psalm compares the second coming of Christ to the rain. "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth. In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth." But these blessings can not come before the return of the Life-Giver. The last words of David speak of His coming thus: "And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain."

Joel describes a scene of waste and desolation upon a land groaning for refreshing showers. "The field is wasted, the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: the new wine is dried up, the oil languisheth . . . The vine is dried up, and the fig tree languisheth; the pomegranate tree, the palm tree also, and the apple tree, even all the trees of the field, are withered: because joy is withered away from the sons of men . . . The seed is rotten under their clods, the garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the corn is withered. How do the beasts groan! . . . for the rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness."

Just such a scene of devastation will the earth present during its tribulation before the coming of the Lord from heaven. Humanity will languish under oppression and sin, for a drought of righteousness and blessing such as the world has never known will reduce flourishing life to a mere stubble.

Then as the mown grass lies dried and burning beneath the heat, suddenly "He shall come down like rain", "as showers that water the earth." What blessings shall spring forth into life at His touch!

"There shall be an handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth." "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. . . It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: . . . Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water: in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes . . . And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

Let us partake now of the "living water", that we may join the Life-Giver in bringing the showers of blessings in that day.

God gives to every man the virtue, temper, understanding, taste that lifts him into life, and lets him fall in just the niche he was ordained to fill.—De Tocqueville,

BAPTISM AND THE LORD'S SUPPER

JESUS TAUGHT His disciples and showed them many wonderful things that they might continue His work after He went to sit at God's right hand. Almost His last words to them were, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Jesus said "baptize them," and the word He used meant dip them. Some people say it is not necessary to be baptized, but there is no other way given in the Bible whereby people may become a part of Christ and thus a part of "the church." It is the important act that seals our faith.

If Jesus said we must be baptized and we believe He meant what He said, why it must be necessary. He Himself had no sins, but He insisted upon John baptizing Him.

On the day of Pentecost Peter said to his listeners, "Repent and be baptized." And numbers were baptized. Peter also baptized Cornelius and his household.

Later Philip taught the eunuch and baptized him before he returned to his home. And Paul, too, was baptized before he began to preach.

Going down into the water, and being covered by the water, and coming up again represents the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus. The person baptized dies to his old life of sin, and comes up from the watery grave to walk a new, clean life.

Then, after that, there is another thing for the Christian to do, so that he will not forget Christ's death and its importance—the communion service.

The night before Jesus was betrayed He and the disciples were in an upper room together, Jesus there gave the example for this service. He took bread, said a prayer of thanks, broke the bread, and said, "Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me." In the same manner he took the cup, saying: "This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."

Jesus did not mean that the bread and wine really changed into His body and blood, but represented the body broken and the blood shed for us. By partaking of these emblems we show that we remember and appreciate the great sacrifice Jesus made for us.

However, warning is given that we must not observe this service unworthily or in the wrong manner. We must not make a feast of it or forget its purpose. If we do forget, punishment is promised.

Let us examine ourselves, and bring ourselves into accord with the Lord's command.

REMEMBER

We must be baptized.

We must observe the Lord's Supper worthily.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Find all the verses you can that refer to baptism.
2. Write a little paper telling why people should be baptized, and send it to me.
3. Read V. C. T., page 43 of the quarterly.
4. Read John 19:34, 35.

Reverse side. Draw a picture of a plate for the bread, and a cup. Print—"This do in remembrance of me."

Where find:—"And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales: and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized."

Lines we pasted in the first of our notebooks:—

"FROWN LINES"

Right between your eyes they grow,
Little lines in a straight row.
You can make them if you try,
All you have to do is cry.
Fret and frown, they will appear.
'Fore you know it they'll be here.
But they have not come to stay;
Smile, and drive them right away.
Frowns and smiles can never be
On the same face, don't you see?

—Helen M. Richardson.

KEEP TRUSTING

BELoved, do not try to get out of a dark place, except in God's time and in God's way. The time of trouble is meant to teach you lessons that you sorely need.

Premature deliverance may frustrate God's work of grace in your life. Just commit the whole situation to Him. Be willing to abide in darkness so long as you have His presence. Remember that it is better to walk in the dark with God than to walk alone in the light.—The Still Small Voice.

BAPTISM AND THE LORD'S SUPPER

Matt. 3:13-17; 28:19, 20; Acts 2:38, 41; Rom. 6:1-14;
1 Cor. 11:23-29.

Devotional Reading: Rev. 7:9-17.

GOLDEN TEXT

This do in remembrance of me.—1 Cor. 11:24.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Baptism. Our lessons this quarter are a study of fundamentals that pertain to man's salvation. According to Scripture, baptism is one of these. It has been objected that baptism is an ordinance, and that no ordinance can save an individual. The latter part of this objection is undoubtedly true. Man cannot save himself by observance of ordinances. It is likewise true that God alone can provide for salvation. His provision is that salvation follows certain conditions which He has been pleased to place as standards for man. Man has nothing to say regarding the conditions God sets. Baptism, to all appearances, has been established by God as a condition. Faith, repentance, and, following baptism, walking in newness of life, are other conditions prescribed by God in His Word. Just as it would be suicidal for man to expunge the other conditions, so must it be regarded with reference to baptism.

The Meaning of the Word. The Gr. word for baptize means, "properly to dip, immerse."—Anal. Lex. Practically all lexicons of the Gr. agree in this definition. Paul describes it in Rom. 6:1-4 as "buried with him by baptism". Col. 2:12 reads "buried with him in baptism". Careful students agree that immersion was the practice of the apostles and the early church.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Entrance and Privileges. Every organization worthy of the name has certain entrance requirements. Lodges have forms of different kinds through which an applicant must pass before he can be accepted into fellowship, and there are then many groups which have certain signs and signals known only to their own members, and many privileges which can be enjoyed by no others.

The greatest and most important organization that the world has ever known is the church of God. Its hand book is the Bible. This Book prescribes baptism as an initiation requirement, and it is a most logical form of initiation. The very process requires humility, and at the same time demonstrates a faith in the death, burial and resurrection of Christ.

He, therefore, who comes in proper spirit and form through the entrance requirements is entitled to all privileges of the brotherhood, one of the most sacred of which is the Lord's Supper. What a privilege to thus commune with God and with His church! What an inspiration for one to enter and be true to the Father's great family!—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"This be doing for the remembering of me."—1 Cor. 11:24, Roth

Our Lord left us in the unleavened loaf a token of His body broken on Calvary, and the fruit of the vine as an emblem of His blood which He poured out unto death. It was His desire that they be taken in remembrance of Him, not simply for the reason that we might not forget, but that in so doing we might come to meditate more upon the full import of the love which was manifested therein and the great sacrifice offered once for all in that perfect Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

Every hour, every moment of thoughtful and devout meditation upon the Savior in His passion makes us more humble, more joyful, more thankful, for His dying love, His extreme sufferings, and the blessings thereby secured.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Discerning the Lord's Body.

"For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation (margin, judgment) to himself, not discerning the Lord's body."—1 Cor. 11:29.

This was Paul's rebuke to the Corinthian church for making a feast of the bread and wine sacrament to satisfy flesh hunger. He says they were drinking judgment or, as verse 32 uses the word, chastisement to themselves. Why was chastisement necessary for such an act? Because they were not discerning the Lord's body.

In verses 24, 25 Paul explains that discerning the Lord's body means to keep in memory that Christ's body was broken for, on account of, the church. The will of the flesh and subservience to it were set aside, (even the strongest phase of that will, which is to continue flesh life, was broken), and the spiritual life of God was made victorious in Him that He might have the power to generate the same life in the church. Discernment of the Lord's body means also to keep in mind that Christ's blood, representing flesh nature, was shed that the new testament (or covenant by which God binds Himself to write His laws in the hearts of people, forgiving all former transgressions) might be sealed and made sure of fulfillment through Him.

We, also, eat and drink unworthily if consciously and indolently we serve the will of the flesh and then piously partake of the sacrament every so often to declare belief in Christ's power over the flesh nature by virtue of which He can break its hold over us.

—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Entering Through the Door.

When you enter a church for worship, there is but one way you may enter; and that is through the door. In last Sunday's lesson we learned about the Christian church, and there is a door to this church through which we must enter.

One of the first parts of the journey to this church is hearing the word of God. We travel a little farther and we come to believe this word. On we go, and we repent of our past experiences. Now we are at the door.

We go down into the waters for baptism and come up ready to walk a new life. We are into Christ now, inside the door, and in the attitude of worship.

Then, as we partake of this memorial, may it recall to our minds what Christ really did for us. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come." 1 Cor. 11:26. But let us heed the warning given in the next two verses.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Baptism and the Lord's Supper.

Aim: To teach us the need of both.

In last Sunday's lesson we studied to find our place in the body of Christ. The lesson to-day teaches us two very important things so necessary for every Christian to understand: baptism and the Lord's supper. No one should be baptized until he has fully felt the need of repentance for sin. Then we can see the need of baptism and partaking of the Lord's supper. The beautiful act of baptism typifies the death and burial of our dear Lord. And when we arise from the baptismal grave it must mean a new life for us or the type is spoiled. Jesus arose to the life eternal, and we must arise to the new life that will finally lead us to the eternal life. We were baptized into His name, and now it must be a new, clean, pure life for us that we may be ready when Jesus comes to claim His body.

What a beautiful lesson before us! We were bought with a price, the precious blood of Jesus. The Lord's supper reminds us of the death of Christ, baptism of His resurrection and our need of cleansing from sin. Jesus says John 6:53, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you."—M. A. W.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

The New Covenant: what; in whom has it been fulfilled; through whom will it be fulfilled in others; how made sure of fulfillment—that is sealed; do the shed blood and broken body of Jesus have any bearing on its surety; what is meant by the broken body of Jesus; what is discernment of the Lord's body? How is that discernment typified in a concrete way?—A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. Austin was called to Niagara Falls on Friday last for the funeral of Sister Eunice Smith. Sister Smith was the mother of Sister Earle Moore, and the old home has been at Sanborn, N. Y.

The extreme, bitter cold has continued throughout this section making it the most wintery winter that most of the inhabitants have ever seen. Thermometers around Oregon one morning last week ranged from 24 to 34 degrees below zero,—which means something for Illinois weather.

Our printing department is working on the Sunday School Quarterly for the next quarter, and it will soon be off the press and ready for mailing. The demand for this quarterly has been increasing, which is very encouraging. If your order is not yet in and you will need quarterlies for the spring period, April, May and June, it will be wise to have your order placed at once. The prices are, 17c each; or in lots of three or more to one address 15c each per quarter.

EASTER HERALD

The issue under date of March 26 will be the Easter Herald. Copy for that issue should be in the office prior to Thursday, March 21.

We shall be glad to have short, appropriate Easter messages from many throughout the country.

Plans and arrangements for spring and summer meetings are being made by different groups. If you wish to have the Field Man visit your section write us about it as soon as possible. Plans have to be made quite a bit in advance.

Bro. F. B. McCullough and family may now be addressed at Wetmore, Texas. They have purchased a little ranch there near San Antonio and are comfortably located.

A number of our churches are making preparations for special services on Easter. The Oregon church choir is working hard upon a cantata and other special numbers in honor of our Lord's resurrection. With Sister Rogers at the piano and Sister Winfrey wielding the baton and twelve to sixteen singers it is quite interesting.

Sister Gesin of Oregon, and Sister Anna Smith of Forreston, Ill., were called to Chicago last week by the death of their brother, Martin Aslaksen, who was buried on Saturday afternoon.

Our print shop is working on Bro. Booth's new book "The Truth about the Devil." This will be a work of nearly two hundred pages, bound with neat paper cover, printed on front in two colors and will sell for 75c per copy prepaid, or $8.00 per dozen. Orders may be sent now to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill., and will be filled as soon as the book is completed.

HOW TO PRODUCE TITHERS

"Teaching the Church to Tithe" is a new leaflet issued for free distribution by the Layman Company. Its subtitle is, "Guidance on the Road to Financial Freedom and Self Respect." It contains simple but tested suggestions of methods which can be used in any church without breaking into or interfering with present activities. It is equally well adapted to Sunday Schools, Young People's Societies, Women's Societies, or other groups in the church. This leaflet will be sent without charge direct from The Layman Company headquarters, 730 Rush Street, Chicago, on request from pastors or others who are interested in unsectarian, simple and practical stewardship promotion.

CALIFORNIA

There is an adage which says: "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Believing this to be true, it was decided by a goodly number of our congregation to go for a little frolic on the evening of Feb. 15. We met at a designated place and proceeded to the home of the "newly weds," Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, where we had a real house warming and Valentine party.

Among other features of entertainment was a fish pond where each one was invited to fish, "the catch" consisting of a comic valentine. After a great deal of fun and laughter refreshments were served. Shortly thereafter the crowd dispersed, leaving a very happy couple at the threshold of their new home.

The fact that Bro. Louis Rahn and family have returned to Los Angeles, from Sacramento, Calif., adds four more to our Sunday School and church services.

Some of our friends had a letter, recently from Bro. Penton Hickox, of the U. S. S. West Virginia in which he said he had been offered an advancement in the navy. Should he decide to take it he will not return to the Los Angeles harbor for a time at least. We would regret to lose him, as he is a young brother of sterling worth.

IOWA

Added to drawbacks caused by climatic conditions the brethren in Iowa have been greatly hindered in their activities by the prevalence of sickness of various kinds.

Bro. Johnson was with the brethren at Maxwell recently and while there led the class in a study of the book of Romans. The roads were blocked so that they could not get out to the church, and the brethren from the country could not get into town with the exception of two families who managed to brave the storms to come in for Sunday services. Several from other churches of the city were gathered with them at times.

The brethren at Gladbrook are cooperating with other churches of the city in a series of evangelistic services. Bro. Williams is reported to be president of the Ministerial Association at that place.

Bro. Johnson was with the brethren at Cedar Falls and Waterloo on Sunday, February 17, and planned to be with them through the week and over the Sunday following.

Sr. T. J. Ellis has returned from the hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis, and is apparently improving quite readily. She is steadily increasing in the number of her usual household duties performed.

Bro. and Sr. Leonard Harland who have been working and living with Sr. Harland's parents, thus far in their married life, are starting in to keep house by themselves this spring. We all wish them God's richest blessing in this new undertaking.

NEBRASKA

A two weeks' meeting closed Sunday at Hollbrook, Nebraska. Bro. Giesler has been with us and has given us some splendid sermons. The attendance was real good considering the condition of weather and roads. All day meetings were held on Sundays with a basket dinner in basement.

Our church is progressing nicely although as yet we have no permanent minister. We have Sunday School in the morning and Bible lessons on Sunday evenings. We feel our church has been greatly benefited by these meetings and think Bro. Giesler a very able minister. Lila Lathrop, Sec'y.

SELLECK-SPENCER

Mrs. David M. Spencer, of Gentry, Missouri, announces the marriage of her daughter, Ruth Margaret, to Ira W. Selleck at 8:00 p. m. Monday, February the eleventh, at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Phillippe, in Stanberry, Missouri. The ceremony was performed by Elder Victor Raymond of Stanberry.

Sister Ruth is the elder daughter of the late Elder D. M. Spencer and will be remembered by many who attend the conference at Waterloo. Ira is the oldest son of Sister Harriet J. Selleck of Storm Lake, Iowa.

The young couple are now at home on a farm at Storm Lake, Iowa where they will be pleased to receive any and all of the brethren and friends.

WAIT PARK, MINNESOTA

T. M. Savage came home Feb. 17 from the hospital after having the flu. It left him with a weak heart. He will have to keep to his bed for some time.

Mrs. Roy Palmer is in the hospital. On Friday she went through a serious operation. We trust it will be God's will to give health and strength to these dear ones.

The St. Cloud church held their business meeting Jan. 23 to elect officers and plan the year's work. We were delayed on account of flu, and cold weather. F. J. Daubanton and T. M. Savage were elected elders; Frank Noyes and W. M. Spicer deacons; Mrs. Roy Palmer pianist. The Sunday school also had their election: Brother Fred Daubanton, superintendent, E. J. Bowers, assistant superintendent; Bernice Johnson, secretary; Mrs. J. C. Thoms, treasurer, Sadie Savage, pianist. Mrs. T. M. Savage.

BE OF GOOD CHEER

By Sydney E. Magaw

IT IS EASIER to smile than to frown. It does more good. A shadow on your face will cause a deeper one on a friend, for his troubles are likely as heavy as yours. But a smile on your face will bring a smile on your friend's. The other fellow's face is the mirror in which you see your own. "As in water face answereth to face, so the heart of man to man." Be of good cheer.

In the world you will "enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season," but in Christ, only, there is the "peace which passeth all understanding." Sin allures, but when sin has wrapped one in its clutch, like the serpent coils its prey, there is nothing to enjoy. The Christian, even under adverse conditions, sees life in its beauty. He enjoys because he serves. He is at peace because he has an eternal Father, a Redeemer, and a goal. Jesus said, "In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

God's workmen have usually been men with a message of cheer, regardless of sinful conditions prior to the time of blessing. The very prophets who tell of "perilous times" are those whose message is filled with the hope of a righteous kingdom. In fact the thought of the righteous kingdom is the message, while "perilous times" is merely a sign.

On the Mediterranean Paul's presence brought cheer to the crew, though he had formerly been considered as only a prisoner. "Exceedingly tossed with a tempest" the ship was caught in the storm, driven madly in the wind. Wares of the ship were thrown overboard to lighten the craft. Still later, Paul threw the tackling over the deck into the angry sea. For days the sun did not shine. Nights passed without the compass of even a twinkling star. The storm raged on! The crew faced death. Was there one who could advise? Yes, Paul, God inspired, spoke! In that dismal hour his message was, "Be of good cheer."

At nineteen months of age a little girl down at Tusculumbia, Alabama was stricken with brain congestion. The world was wiped out for her. She was left deaf, dumb, and blind. She has since struggled through hardships that none who read this have ever known, yet because she was cheerful and knew no discouragement she is to-day one of the world's most remarkable persons.

She has never looked into the sympathetic eyes of her mother, never watched the glory of a western sunset or the rising of the moon at its best. She has never seen a rose or a lily; never heard the song of the red breast or the wren. The one of whom I speak is Helen Keller.

The robin sings while it rains. Helen Keller sings, as cheerfully, under more adverse conditions than gloomy weather. At first able, only, to make animal sounds her voice is now trained to sing pleasantly, though she cannot hear her own words or see the listeners before her. She is of good cheer.

Miss Keller graduated from Radcliffe with honors.

She studied, among other subjects, Latin, French, German, Greek, Géometry, and Trigonometry. Pins stuck in paper with threads attached served as lines for her to feel in the studies of Geometry and Trigonometry. Raised letters enable her to read. She speaks not only English, but also French and German. She typewrites by the touch system; she enjoys rowing a boat, steering the craft by the feel of the oars, the sound of the waves and the smell of water grasses or lilies along the shore; and even more astonishing, has learned to know every flower in an ordinary bouquet by touching the petals and scenting the odor of each specimen.

When once asked if she ever became discouraged or downcast she answered, "yes, I do, sometimes, but then I cheer up again. I just think how much I have, how many things I can enjoy, and then I always feel better." "Be of good cheer."

A NEW ERA IN PALESTINE

A WRITER in the "Montreal Witness" says that population is increasing in Palestine thirty per cent each year. It has now reached 887,000, of whom 158,000 are Jews. Palestine has wonderful agricultural possibilities, raising 33,000,000 bushels of wheat in one year. The grape and raisin industry is especially promising, the hillsides being terraced, as in olden times. Bananas flourish in the Jordan valley. A dam is being built in the Jordan, 15 miles below the Sea of Galilee, to furnish light and power for the whole country. Haifa, near Mount Carmel, and Tel-Aviv, near Joppa, are both lighted with electricity. Haifa and Joppa will be the two great Palestine harbors. Gaza, on the main road from Bethlehem to Egypt, one of the five ancient Philistine cities, whose gates Samson carried away in the night, is to be the landing-place for aero-planes between England and India.

AN EASTER OFFERING

TRUE SERVICE to the God who has done so much for us cannot be simply an abstract matter, but must reach down into the life of each one of us and touch the things most vital to us. It must embrace our conduct and our very means of support. If I do not recognize my income as a manifestation of the Father's love, and use a proper proportion of it for the advancement of His cause, mine is not a full, true service.

The General Conference of the Church of God has undertaken to combine the strength of many in one unified effort to advance the cause of Christ. In this it is dependent upon all of us contributing from our income or savings. In addition to the constant need and the opportunity for assisting at all times, it has become the custom of the General Conference to come to the brotherhood twice per year for the funds with which to carry on the gospel work: at Thanksgiving time and at Easter. As the day draws near upon which we shall commemorate the resurrection of our Savior we ask that each one will meditate upon what that event means to him, and will make a contribution as God has prospered him.

Without Christ's victory over death what would your life or your future be worth? How much do you feel that you should give in appreciation of this now at Easter time?

THE PASSING SNOW

OUTSIDE the sun is shining brightly. The snow and ice which have covered the ground with a thick blanket for many long weeks is melting into little streams of water, seeking their course to the river and the ocean. It is March.

Once more the great lesson of the all-wise Creator is being unfolded through nature, and soon the evidences of resurrection will be visible upon every hand. The trees and plants have been standing bare and still. Their leaves and seeds dropped to the earth in the fall, and the winter's blanket has kept them buried deep. Hidden away in mother earth's bosom what cared they for storms or chilling winds?

But the blanket melts and will soon be gone. The sun's warm rays will remove the chill from the soil, and ere long those seeds will swell and burst, springing forth into new life. Resurrection!

How aptly the truths of God are taught in nature! What lessons one may learn as he studies the passing snow!—F. E. S.

A CONSCIENTIOUS BOY

BORN WITH ROYAL BLOOD in his veins; raised in a city furnishing the world's best advantages; given the fullest education and training of the country's schools and teachers, a clear eyed, fair skinned boy with almost perfectly molded physique faced life with an assuring smile. His eyes met the eyes of others without a waver. Unafraid he had confidence and trust; unashamed because he had done no wrong, why should he not meet the world with a steady eye?

Little could this boy realize of the turmoil of events stretching before him. And well it was, perchance, that he could not foresee, but had to face each day as it came. His country was attacked, his city besieged and devastation and death abounded on every hand. Taken captive by the world's then outstanding young military king he was brought to the enemy's capital city.

Recognized as a youth of unusual abilities and breeding, he with a few similar companions was appointed to a course of special training that would equip them to stand before this powerful king as members of his body of wise men. As an especial privilege the royal food and drinks such as served at the king's table were apportioned to them.

The real test of character was thus presented. Should they accept the new names which had been given to them and forget their old home and religion? Should they eat the rich food, drink the king's wine and enter into the sensual and lustful life which was so freely open before them in this wealthy city?

Real character is evidenced where real tests are found. The boy Daniel met this test. With a firm resolve not to defile himself but to keep his body clean and strong and his mind clear and bright he refused the king's food and drinks and asked for simple food with water to drink.

They were given a test. Result? "At the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat." "And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm." Dan. 1:15, 20.

Just a boy, but he lived true to his convictions and God prospered him.—F. E. S.

A BRAVE YOUNG MAN

MONTHS HAVE PASSED by and the boy who had been so quickly taken from a demolished home and placed in a heathen city has become a young man in the early twenties. A student in Babylon's training college, Daniel has faithfully applied himself, and no doubt with a young man's ambition is looking forward to the day when his course will be finished and he can be recognized as one of the counsellors to stand before the king.

All unexpectedly and from out a clear sky the fury of the king is aroused. Having forgotten a dream he calls in the wise men and demands that they tell him the dream. They, unable to do so, remonstrate, but in anger he orders that they shall all be slain. Daniel, not yet having graduated from the training school, was not among the group called before the king, but the decree of death included those in training, also, hence the captain of the guard came for Daniel to lead him forth with the others for death.

Here, indeed, was a test of courage. But our young hero, without a trace even of excitement, looked squarely at the captain and said, "Why is the decree so hasty from the king?" Demanding an audience with the king he walked bravely into the royal chamber and though he was only a very young man and a captive standing before the king of all the earth, yet without hesitation he faced the gaze of that angry monarch and promised to bring him the dream and the interpretation if he would give him time.

Perhaps the strange, cool courage of that young man may have had an effect upon Nebuchadnezzar, for true bravery always demands admiration. At any rate, the request of Daniel was granted, they were given till the next day, and in the meantime Daniel and his companions prayed to the God in whom they trusted and received the revelation which saved their lives and brought the proud king to humility. Facts can change the hardest of men. Behold this heathen king saying to Daniel, "Of a truth it is that your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldst reveal this secret." Dan. 2:47.

With an unwavering faith in his God Daniel faced the world's strongest man and won. What an example to other young men!—F. E. S.

A FEARLESS OLD MAN

KINGS HAD COME and kings had gone, but Daniel stayed on, the most outstanding personality in all the territory surrounding Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar and his proud house had passed. Belshazzar had lived his sensuous career, staged his impious feast and been disgracefully defeated and slain. Darius, the king of the Medes and Persians had conquered and stood in power. But Daniel, who was non partisan and took no sides except the side of right, had faced outstanding moments in all of these periods when he had an opportunity of showing the power that God can work through man.

Brought as a captive lad to this rich, powerful, wicked city, Daniel had grown old in the service of his God and had acted as adviser and counsellor to every ruler in succession until now at the accession of Darius he was likely around eighty-seven years of age.

Darius, a much more thoughtful and upright ruler than some of the kings had been, recognized the character and wisdom of Daniel, and appointed him the chairman of a committee of three presidents to have charge over all subordinate rulers in the empire. It was a well considered plan.

Jealousy, however, which is one of the strongest of human passions, caused the other presidents and princes to conceive a plot for destroying Daniel. Knowing that Daniel trusted in the Lord God and prayed daily to him, and being unable to find any wrong in the man, they thought of the plan of flattering the king as to his own greatness and asking him to sign a decree that any person who for thirty days asked any petition of any God or man save the king should be cast into the den of lions. This they accomplished so successfully that the king signed the decree without any suspicion of its being a plot against Daniel.

But the old white-haired man did not alter his course. Leaving his window open toward Jerusalem as was his custom, he prayed three times daily to his God. Spies who watched reported the matter and the king was called upon to execute the decree. Realizing himself to have been trapped the king was "sore displeased with himself" and tried to devise some means of delivering Daniel. Pressure was brought to bear, however, and knowing he had signed the decree in the laws of the Medes and Persians which could not be changed he finally had to withdraw his protection and allow the old man to be thrown to the lions.

What a night it was for Darius! Pacing the floor in restlessness he could not drive from his mind the picture of the faithful old man being dropped to the mercy of those ravenous beasts. Early in the morning, evidently trying to hope against hope, the king rushed to the lions' den and called in a sorrowful cry for Daniel. To his unutterable astonishment and joy the voice of the old man answered him calmly and said, "My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, have I done no hurt."

Why should Daniel fear the lions when he stood in God's favor? What a lesson of fearlessness in this white-haired old man!—F. E. S.

WHAT GOD FORESAW

By G. E. M.

BUT THOU, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased."—Daniel 12:4.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. (The reason:) For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous; . . . despisers of those that are good, . . . lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God . . . But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."—2 Timothy, third chapter.

God foresaw, and foretold through the apostles and prophets, the increase in knowledge and the increase in sin so forcibly presented in the following editorial taken from the "Globe" of Atchison, Kansas:

"There is a new and hideous aspect to the murders featuring the gang war in Chicago, Ill., U. S. A., to-day. We are not prone to weep because seven gangsters were killed by five of their own stripe. Indeed, we urge the Chicago gangsters to continue the task of killing each other. But, nevertheless, the precision, science and coolness with which the five gangsters killed seven gangsters causes chills to run up and down our spine, and arouses in our mind the terrifying thought that the human heart is growing harder and harder, while the human mind is growing keener and keener." (The italics are ours.)

LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY

By M. A. Woodward

WHAT DID this earnest appeal from one of His disciples really mean? Surely they had known of the holy men of old, who had all through the Old Testament scriptures "talked with God", been guided by His answers to their prayers and greatly blessed by obedience to these answers, or condemned because they did not obey the "still small voice." Why then should they come asking Jesus to teach them to pray? They had been listening to Jesus as He went so often to His places of prayer away from the throng, alone with His Father. Somehow His prayers were so full of soul needs and were always answered that they felt they needed the same help if they were to follow in the Christ's steps. They had listened often when they followed Him to the garden of prayer or on the lonely mountain top and somehow when He laid His burdened heart at the Father's mercy seat it eased their burdens too. There was always some one carrying a heavy load of pain that no one could remove but the Christ, like the troubled woman who had such abounding faith that could she but reach and touch the hem of His garment, she would be made whole. Little did she realize how that healing touch called for renewed strength on His part and no one could impart it but His Father! For all those added calls on His strength and power to heal He had often to go to His Father in prayer. The disciples had listened and learned the source from which His power came. No wonder they pleaded,

"LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY!"

He gave them the model prayer, even teaching them just how to address the heavenly Father, in each petition, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done." Not "your kingdom come, your will be done," as I have heard some address the Throne, as though they were addressing the hired man, or some servant, but Thou, thine. The words which Jesus used brought them a sweet, holy thought of our helpful and adored heavenly Father, one who should be addressed with all reverence and humility.

"LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY!"

What is true prayer? Is it not petition, earnest desire made known to the dear God? It is much more than a form of fine grammatical expression. It is a supplication to God, with faith, supreme faith, asking for the very thing most needed and feeling He will grant it if it is for our best good. And yet, for this blessed work how unfit we are, and how we cry out in our weakness,

"LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY!"

We know that in heaven to-day, every day it is His beloved work to pray the Father's care for us. John 16:26 says: "At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say unto you, that I will pray the Father for you." How deliciously sweet it is to know Jesus is watching all our needs and praying the Father for us. Jesus never taught His disciples how to preach, only how to pray.

There's a garden where Jesus is waiting,
There's a place that is wond'rously fair;
For it glows with the light of His presence,
'Tis the beautiful garden of prayer.

There's a garden where Jesus is waiting,
And I go with my burden and care;
Just to learn from His lips words of comfort,
In the beautiful garden of prayer.

There's a garden where Jesus is waiting,
And He bids you to come meet Him there;
Just to bow and receive a new blessing,
In the beautiful garden of prayer.

SHILOH

By F. W. Harberer

Sr. Logan, of St. Louis, has submitted this article which she found in a Jewish publication. It is worthy of consideration.—Ed.

"The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from between his feet until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be."—Genesis 49: 10, R. V.

THE OCCASION which called forth these words was one of solemnity and importance. Jacob was about to die, and in keeping with the Patriarchal custom called for his sons that he might bless them and declare to them "what shall befall you in the last days." That his words were an important prophecy is seen in the accuracy with which he predicted the later history of the descendants of his twelve sons. Beginning with Reuben, his first-born, and continuing with Simeon and Levi, he tells them that because of their lives they are not to be permitted to head the tribe from which shall come the promised blessing, the Messiah. Then, coming to Judah, Jacob promises him the preeminence among his brethren, and utters the words quoted at the beginning of this article.

That the key-word of this quotation is "Shiloh," can be readily seen because the words before it and after it all hinge upon it. There are several interpretations of this passage, and we shall try to see which is correct, and just what is meant by "Shiloh."

One interpretation given by some, is that it means merely the city of Shiloh, located in the central part of Palestine, a little north and east of Jerusalem. They assert that these words mean merely, that the people will be gathered to the city of Shiloh. That this is not the true meaning of the text may be seen from the words themselves. In the Hebrew, all cities are in the feminine gender, and therefore the text should read "to her," whereas it reads "to him." Since the pronoun is masculine it cannot refer to the city of Shiloh, nor can the text mean merely that the people shall be gathered to that city.

Others, ignoring the Massoretic vowel points and the traditional reading and interpretation, say that the text means, "until Judah shall come to the city of Shiloh, and to him (Judah) shall the gathering of the people be." There are two serious objections to this interpretation. The first has been already stated, viz., the ignoring of the Massoretic points and traditional understanding of the text. The second is, that this interpretation is contrary to the facts of history. Jacob predicted Judah's preeminence saying, "Thy father's children shall bow down before thee." But when the children of Israel did finally come to the city of Shiloh, and even for many years afterward, Judah held no important place. In fact, during the entire period of the Judges, Judah remained inconspicuous, and is not even mentioned in Deborah's Song of Victory. Even Israel's first king, Saul was of the tribe of Benjamin. It was not until the official acceptance of David by the rebellious tribes that the prediction, "thy father's children shall bow down before thee," was fulfilled; and the scepter was finally in the grasp of Judah. But there was no connection between this event and the coming of Israel to Shiloh, for they no longer sojourned at Shiloh, but had already progressed far in the conquest of the promised land. Also the text speaks of the departure of the scepter in connection with "Shiloh." Therefore this interpretation is also inadmissible.

There is another interpretation of the word "Shiloh" and that is, that "Shiloh" is a name of a person, the Messiah. Most of the earlier Rabbis and interpreters, whose writings have come down to us, admit that this prophecy must refer to the Messiah. Later, however, when the Christians began to use it as an argument in favor of the Messiahship of Jesus, the Rabbis were driven to other interpretations, as they were not willing to accept the Christian view and all its implications. The Christian view is, that in the Lord Jesus Christ, and in Him alone, is to be found the fulfillment of this, and of all other prophecies of the Old Testament, concerning the Messiah of Israel.

The text says, "The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet until Shiloh come. . . ." The word here translated "scepter," is Shevet in the Hebrew, and means not only a "rod" or "scepter," but also means "tribe." Therefore it might just as well have been translated:

"The tribe shall not depart from Judah . . . until Shiloh come. . . ."

It is certainly true that to-day no Jew can tell whether he comes from the tribe of Judah or not. Yet the T'nach (Old Testament) very plainly teaches that the Messiah must come from the tribe of Judah. But there is no way of proving anyone's descent from Judah to-day, as all the tribal records were lost in the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans under Titus in 70 A. D. This is in exact accord, however, with the words of the text: there could be no obliteration of the tribal lines until Messiah should come for, "the tribe shall not depart from Judah . . . until Shiloh come. . . ." Thus we see the fulfillment of Jacob's prophecy in the history of the Jewish nation. Although the ten tribes never returned as a group from captivity, yet the two tribes (Judah and Benjamin) did return after the Babylonian captivity, preserving the royal line of David and the tribal line of Judah right down to the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ in Bethlehem; which blessed fulfillment of the prophecies of the Word of God we commemorate yearly at Christmas. Then after His coming, as there was no further need of keeping the line of Judah distinct, God permitted all evidence to disappear within a very few years after the resurrection of our Lord. According to the words of this prophecy, the Messiah must have come before 70 A. D., and He did come, the first time to suffer and die for sinners; and will also come again, a second time, to reign in glory.

Not only do we have these facts, but God has told us further how we may recognize the Messiah. The text says:

". . . and unto him shall the gathering of the people be."

His Messiahship is not to be tested by Israel's willingness to accept Him; for the word used is "'Ammim," and means "peoples." Israel has followed many false Messiahs, but rejected the only true Messiah, who came in fulfillment of the promises of God in the Old Testament. And so history has in this matter, also, shown the fulfillment of Jacob's prophecy. The Messiah, whom the Jews as a nation despised and rejected has to-day a following among all the "peoples" of the world. Go where you will you will find on every one of the six continents, and among every race (even from among the Jews!), men and women, boys and girls who have become followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, just as the text says, ". . . unto him shall the gathering of the 'peoples' be."

Will you cease your rejection of Him, your own Jewish Messiah, who was "wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities," and accept Him to-day? Believe on Him, and come unto Him, "of whom Moses in the law and all the prophets did write;" Jesus, the Messiah, the Savior.

THE POT OF GOLD

By Lydia Railsback

IT HAS BEEN SAID that if one followed the rainbow to the end he would find a pot of gold. No doubt some have been foolish enough to believe this and perhaps try to find it: but if so, they must have endured many privations and hardships in their quest, for who could find that which does not really exist?

The origin of the rainbow is from God and was placed in the heavens as a token of a covenant between God and the earth. With the rainbow came the promise, "And the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh"; so that we may say that the rainbow is a bow of promise.

The promise of the gold at the end of the rainbow is only a myth, but a "bow of promise" coming from God is an entirely different thing. When a thing comes from God or is promised by God it may be depended upon to be just what it is represented to be and, if a promise, it will as surely be fulfilled as is the rainbow seen after the drenching rain. What a wonderful pot of gold that will be to find that God's promises will all be fulfilled just as He said! It will not be gold in reality, but something far superior to any amount of gold that could be heaped upon one.

Let us look at some of these promises. Deut. 18:18—"I (the Lord) will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him." This promise, given back in the time of Moses, was literally fulfilled in Christ, so now we look to Christ and through Him we have other promises.

2 Cor. 6:17, 18—"Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty." This promise is well worth thinking about and complying with, for to be sons and daughters of the Almighty is worth more to poor fallen humanity than all the gold and rubies that can be gathered together. To be sons and daughters of God means eternal life with Christ in His kingdom.

1 John 3:1, 2—"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him: for we shall see him as he is."

The "rainbow of promise" leads to the pot of gold at the end which is, life through Christ. Is it worth striving for, is the road too rough or the hill too steep? Christ Himself traveled the same way; left a record for us so that pitfalls may be avoided; marked out the sign-boards so no byroads need be taken; bridged the streams so that they can be crossed in safety and made the path so plain all the way, that those who try need not err therein.

FAITHFULNESS IN A TIME OF TROUBLE

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

THE STORM is raging fiercely. The waves are beating violently against the rocky shore of a small island. By the incessant flashing of lightning we see a man, drenched to the skin, making his way down the shore toward a small motor boat. He tries to get the boat into the water and start the engine. Finally he succeeds but he has little chance of getting to his destination in such a storm. Why does he take such a risk? He has a friend on the island who is very sick. His only hope is to bring a doctor. This man has faith even though the odds are against him.

There are many men described in the Bible who have proved themselves faithful to God no matter what the consequences were. Moses was a man who did not give up when defeat seemed certain. The fourteenth chapter of Exodus gives the story of Moses with the children of Israel at the Red Sea. The Egyptians were marching toward them. The Hebrew people were not prepared in any way to fight, nor was there any means of escape, the mountains on one side, the sea on the other, and the Egyptians pressing closer and ever closer. They cried out unto Moses, repenting that they had left Egypt. They cried unto God with little faith of deliverance, but Moses did not murmur. He had faith in the Lord and he believed that they would be saved. He told the people to stand by and see the salvation of the Lord. Moses then stretched forth his rod over the waters of the Red Sea as the Lord had told him and they were saved. What would have happened if Moses had been unfaithful?

Jeremiah's faith is an outstanding example of the faith that we should show. We find an incident in his life (Jer. 26) which tells us of his sincerity and firmness in a time of peril. He had been prophesying against Judah and Jerusalem, telling the people that Jerusalem would become desolate if they did not repent and forsake their evil ways. The priests and prophets took Jeremiah and said that he should be killed because he prophesied against them. They called in the princes and all of the people of Judah, and Jeremiah told them that all of the words that he had spoken were true. He told them they could do as they pleased with him, but they must remember that there would be innocent blood upon Jerusalem and Judah if they killed him. Then the princes said that he was not worthy to die and that all of the people should heed the things that had been prophesied. The princes knew by the faith that Jeremiah manifested that the Lord had told him these things.

Why then should we be fearful in time of trouble? Has it not been proved that God will be with us even as He was with Jeremiah.

Stephen was faithful even unto death. He rebuked the Jews for persecuting the prophets and failing to believe in them. He called them a stiffnecked people, untrue to God in their hearts and unwilling to listen. The people seized Stephen, carried him out of the city and stoned him. Stephen did not curse them but rather called upon God to "lay not this sin to their charge."

We turn to the first verses of the twelfth chapter of Acts and find that James was killed by King Herod and Peter was placed in prison. The church prayed constantly unto God for the deliverance of Peter, and one night he was miraculously freed. Do we as a church pray for those who are in trouble, for those who are carrying on the Lord's work?

One day as Paul and Silas were going to prayer they met a young woman who was possessed of a spirit. Her masters made much money by her soothsaying. Paul, feeling sorry for her, commanded that the spirit come out of the girl and she became herself. This caused a disturbance among the people and the rulers had Paul and Silas whipped and put into prison. The jailor placed them in the inner cell and made their feet fast in stocks. Can you imagine a more lonely place and a more uncomfortable position? Paul and Silas were not troubled. They had faith that God would deliver them safely. They prayed and even sang praises unto God. Could you or I keep such a cheerful spirit without greater faith than we now have? That same night their prayers were answered and they were miraculously delivered from prison.

The prophets and men of old had great faith in God, and yet they had little expectation of the things for which they hoped. Why do we not have even greater faith, knowing for certain that Christ our Lord and Savior was resurrected?

"Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth."—Rom. 14:22.

"IFS" THAT ARE WORTH WHILE, IF TRIED

By J. M. Morgan

IF CHRIST chose the twelve apostles and inspired them as ambassadors, did He not commit into their hands God's divine plan of redemption?

If they had the full, complete and perfect scheme of the Lord to make known by the Spirit to the children of men, did they leave any part of this work to be finished by successors?

If any did succeed the apostles in their unfinished work, who were they, what did they do, and where is the record of their work?

If no record can be found, then why not accept their record in the old, old Book as it is for it is so much better than "think so"?

If there is but one body of Christ which is the Spirit of God, and if this body is composed of individuals who have believed and obeyed the one gospel of Christ, are such as have never believed nor obeyed any part of the one body?

If a church teaches and practices doctrines which contradict the doctrine of Christ and His apostles, is it a part of His body?

If one believes and teaches the immortality of the soul, can he believe that the one Lord, the Son of God, died?

If men can be saved without believing that God's Son died, why then did Christ die?

If the gospel of Christ is composed of more than one group of testimonies, then is the death, burial and resurrection of Christ alone the gospel, as some teach?

If the things of the kingdom of God and of the name of Jesus Christ are part of the gospel, what part are they?

If it takes belief in these great testimonies to produce the one faith, and one believes in only part of them, how can one have the faith which pleases God?

If formerly you only believed part of these things, what about your baptism, now that you believe all?

If men are saved by believing and obeying but one of these testimonies, then why did the Spirit have the others placed on record?

If "faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God," who hath faith?

If one believes and obeys the words of God contained in these great testimonies, will it not only produce in his heart (mind or spirit) faith and trust in God, but also save him?

If the one baptism is the one that Jesus commanded in Matt. 28:19, did the Holy Spirit baptism take its place? If so, when and where?

If any ever received the Spirit by either the outpouring or laying on of hands of the apostles after A. D. 64, please give Bible references showing when and where.

The Spirit is received "by the hearing of faith."—Gal. 3:2.

MEDITATIONS

Sometimes when sitting and thinking
 Of the day when our Lord shall appear,
 If I am at rest with the sleeping,
 I wonder if I shall hear?
 Methinks I can see their faces
 With radiant joy in their eyes;
 When the trumpet of God is sounded
 And the dead in Christ shall arise.

And then I see as a vision
 A city all gleaming white,
 Where the Savior will rule His people
 With justice and love and right.
 All the prophets of old will be there,
 And those who walked in His way
 When He dwelt on earth among them
 And told of this glorious day.

How often when sitting and dreaming
 When the sun is sinking to rest,
 I can picture my dear Savior coming,
 With all the dear ones we love best.
 But the years keep coming and going,
 And still we wait for that day
 When the heavens will shine with His glory,
 And our Lord will be with us always.

So each day I grow in knowledge
 Of the Word of our Lord so true,
 And pray for that grace and spirit
 He has promised to me and to you.
 So when all our waiting is over,
 And our King descends from above,
 We may hear Him and share in His glory,
 And dwell with Him in perfect love.

THE GREAT COMMISSION

By P. M. Hatch

TO BE COMMISSIONED by higher authority for an important work is of rare occurrence with the majority of us. In fact, most of us can say that such a thing is not probable. To be commissioned for important work in a government, calls for a character of some outstanding talents. These talents may or may not be apparent on the surface of one's conduct. Sometimes such a one chosen may possess a vital weakness, that needs to be developed, or one that needs to be overcome in order to diminish in its effect upon oneself.

The Bible gives a number of accounts of men that had been given commissions by the Lord for certain accomplishments. These men however had to be prepared for the work in hand as they had some very outstanding weaknesses. These weaknesses were a predominating faculty in the lawgiver, Moses. After being bidden by the Lord from the burning bush to return to Egypt for the purpose of bringing out the Lord's people from bondage, we find Moses beginning to make excuses. After offering doubt that the children of Israel would listen to him or accept his statement that he had a message from the God of Israel, he offered the excuse that his lack of words and slowness of speech would defeat the very object that the Lord had encouraged. Yet Moses obeyed and what he accomplished has been a wonder from that time to this. Moses, although he brought salvation to his people in his own time and hundreds of generations since, by doing the Lord's bidding brought out great developments in himself and strengthened every weakness that he had.

Likewise we find the prophet Jonah also given an important mission to preach repentance to a heathen city. No doubt Jonah reasoned in his own mind that this was certainly a strange bidding from the Lord. Why should the Lord God of Israel bother Himself about a heathen people that were enemies to Israel? Was not the Lord God of Israel, the Lord God to Israel and to no one else? So Jonah tried to escape from this duty that the Lord had imposed upon him. When Jonah was finally convinced that was not the right procedure, he readily went to Ninevah, upon the second bidding of the Lord, doubtless thinking that they would not repent and so the Lord's bidding would come to naught. In this he was sadly mistaken and so he became exceedingly angry. The value that it taught Jonah is not revealed but no doubt the event broadened his mind and he became true and devoted to the Lord.

Peter was given individually one of the greatest commissions by the Lord personally. Peter, avowing his love to the Savior, was given the double commission to feed the Lord's sheep and His lambs and to follow Him. Peter's outstanding weakness was his over-confidence. This no doubt the Lord intended to correct. Peter had been severely tried in the trial of Christ and had fallen short of his boast that although all others would forsake Him he would never forsake Him. Now the Lord was going to prepare Peter for a great work for He was soon to depart to the Father. This confidence that Peter had was a good talent, but it was over-developed and had to be trimmed down to a working and dependable quality in all the stress and strains that would come upon him in the great commission. So as we observe Peter in his work in the opening chapters of the Acts we can grasp the wonderful fulfillment of the Lord's bidding in his always witnessing for Jesus in whatever circumstance, and his marvelous keeping of the church in the bond of peace and unity.

So down the stream of time to the present we have hundreds and hundreds of examples furnished us of the devotion of great men and small men to the task of following Jesus, working for Him and proclaiming Him to a world that has changed very little. To-day men fall short of the glory of God as men did in the past, so one of the great character builders is still the Master's words, "Go ye into all the world and proclaim the gospel," "Feed my sheep" and "Follow thou me." And still those commissions are fashioning men into a kind of glory that far exceeds any glory that men can bring upon themselves.

THE UNITY OF GOD

By Lyman Booth

ARTICLE NO. 2

LET US STUDY this expression, "Hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place." It is impossible to mistake the meaning of this quotation. It plainly teaches that the Father of all, is a Being who exists in the central heaven of heavens as He exists nowhere else, but by His Spirit He is everywhere present in the sense of knowing and being conscious of creation to its remotest bounds, yet located in heaven.

If we consider our Lord's ascension we will see the tendency in this direction. Luke says, "He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven."—Luke 24:51. Mark said, "He was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God."—Mark 16:19. From these statements of Luke and Mark we understand that Deity has existence in the heavens.

It is the popular idea where serious contemplation of God and His attributes are discussed to consider Him only as a "principle or energy in universal diffusion, without corporal existence, without local habitation, without body or parts." There is no scripture for any such meaningless conceptions. Philosophy, which is a poor guide in such matters, has furnished all the support that the theory has. After all it is only human thought. Philosophical ideas of men concerning such matters are more likely to be wrong than right. Paul warns believers against the danger of being spoiled through vain philosophy. See Col. 2:8. Regardless of the teachings of religious philosophy, the scriptures just quoted plainly teach that the Father is a tangible Being, in whom all the powers of the universe center.

There were many things that occurred at Mount Sinai which furnish evidence that Moses talked with God. We will not contend that the being who conversed with Moses was the Almighty, the eternal One, for it is evident from what Stephen and Paul said that it was an angel (Acts 7:38-53 and Heb. 11:27), and because Christ declared that no man hath seen God at any time. John 1:18. Yet it is affirmed that to Moses it was a similitude of Jehovah. Num. 12:8. It was, therefore a manifestation of the Deity; and if so, it illustrates the personal reality of the Deity; because the Deity must be higher, greater and more real than His agent or subordinate manifestation. Listen to the testimony: "The Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and believe thee for ever And be ready against the third day: for the third day the Lord will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai. . . . And they said unto Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die. . . . And the people stood afar off, and Moses drew near unto the thick darkness where God was. And the Lord said unto Moses, . . . ye have seen that I have talked with you from heaven." Exod. 19:9-11, 16-18, and 20:1, 18, 22. Pursuing this subject farther we have in Exod. 24:1, 2, 9-12, 15-18: "And he, (Jehovah) said unto Moses, Come up unto the Lord, thou, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel; and worship ye afar off. And Moses alone shall come near the Lord: but they shall not come nigh; neither shall the people go up with him. . . . Then went up Moses, and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel: and they saw the God of Israel."

The following references to those things show that they relate to a real tangible personal Being. In Num. 12:8 we read, "With him (Moses) will I speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches; and the similitude of the Lord shall he behold." And in Exod. 33:11, "And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend." In Deut. 34:10; "And there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face." Though the manifestation in these instances was through angelic mediumship, yet they speak to us of a Being higher and more real than the manifestation. It elevates our minds in our conception of Him "Who maketh his angels spirits; his ministers a flaming fire" (Psa. 104:4); Who is light and in whom "is no darkness at all" (1 John 1:5); Who "inhabith eternity", Isa. 57:15; Who is a "consuming fire," Heb. 12:29; "Who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor (on account of grossness and weakness of nature) can see;" 1 Tim. 6:16; Who is of "purer eyes than to behold . . . iniquity," Hab. 1:13. He is the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, Who "fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding." Isa. 40:28. "Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hands, and meted out heaven with the span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance? Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his counsellor hath taught him? With whom took he counsel, and who instructed him, and taught him in the path of judgment, and taught him knowledge, and shewed to him the way of understanding? All nations before him are as nothing; and they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity. To whom then will ye liken God? or what likeness will ye compare unto him?" Isa. 40:12-14, 17, 18. "Behold, God is great, and we know him not, neither can the number of his years be searched out." Job 36:26. "His eyes are upon the ways of man, and he seeth all his goings."

The testimony thus far shows that God is the only underived and self-existent Being in the universe. All other forms of life are but incorporations of life given by Him. "In him we live and move and have our being."—Acts 17:28. "For of (for out of) him, and through him, and to him are all things."—Rom. 11:36. "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things. 1 Cor. 8:6. The knowledge of God is very essential according to the apostles teaching. They who "know not God" are among those whom vengeance is to overtake. 2 Thess. 1:8. One cannot attain unto the sonship of God without a knowledge of Him. It is the passport into the family of God. How can we love and serve a Being whom we do not know? Knowledge is the basis upon which all relationships are erected. It is the solid rock upon which eternal life rests, for Jesus said, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."—John 17:3.

We believe in one God, the Father. Paul joined our list of witnesses when he said, "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we in him." 1 Cor. 8:6. Again he said, "There is one God and Father of all, who is above all and through all, and in you all."—Eph. 4:6. We further believe that the Father is the Supreme God; in proof of which we have Christ's words, "That we may know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." In defense of what we believe we can safely say that they who hold to the doctrine of the Triune God cannot find any scriptural language without altering the meaning of the plain words. The obscurity of the language and the difficulty of understanding the principles of that doctrine seem almost fatal to it, if not altogether. When one has to depart from scriptural language to find proof for any doctrine it is very strong presumption against its verity.

Before examining further the New Testament writings let us turn to the Old, where we find brief and conclusive evidence in support of our position. Moses and all the prophets taught the unity of God. When Moses was chosen to lead the children of Israel out of Egypt, he did it in the name of the great I am, the Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. When he brought them to Mount Sinai in the wilderness, after they had been delivered by the strong hand and outstretched arm of the Almighty, from the midst of the fire and smoke, this eternal truth was spoken. "Hear, O Israel, Jehovah thy God is one Jehovah." In this instance the word, Jehovah, is used instead of Lord for the reason that wherever the word Lord is printed in capitals in the Old Testament the original Hebrew is Jehovah. I have been informed by a Hebrew student that the word is derived from HAYAH meaning to be, and means self-existent; so that the meaning in full is, "Hear, O Israel, the self-existent one, thy God, is the only self-existent."

Every man's life is a plan of God.—Horace Bushnell.

OUR JEWEL CASE

By Edith E. Miller

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER, in His great love for His children, has given us a casket of jewels, with which we may adorn our lives, making them beautiful in His sight. Let us look them over, and see how, when and where we can use them.

Raising the cover, we see the clear glow of faith, one of God's most precious jewels. With what calm, steady light it shines through our lives, like the clear rays of the sapphire; and if we take this gem and wear it what a wonderful beauty it will bring to our days!

Let us look further, and we shall see the gleaming rays of hope, piercing the darkness of life like a diamond, bringing brightness to every dark corner. Then close beside this beautiful gem, we find the lovely white pearl of prayer, pure and sweet as the lily. Surely we must have this to wear, to bring peace and beauty to our lives!

We find yet another jewel in this wonderful casket. How rich and deep it glows, like the flaming light of the ruby! What else can it be but love, so beautiful and precious that without it the other gems would be useless? Wearing this last jewel, brings us close to our dear Lord and Master, and through Him to our fellow beings, keeping us ever on the watch to fulfill that divine command: "Love thy neighbour," and "Do good unto others."

Dear ones, is not this a beautiful collection of gems to wear? And the best thing about them is, they can be worn at all times and places, appropriate for every occasion. The steady wearing of these jewels will make our lives beautiful and acceptable in the sight of our God and His dear Son, Jesus Christ our Savior.

PANOPIHOBIA

WHAT MEANS THE WORD? This: A morbid fear of everything. People who have this disease are fearful of everything spiritual. The one thing noticeable about these sick people is, they fear too much noise, manifestation, fervor in prayer, animation in song, enthusiasm in preaching, and are always ready to fling the word "fanaticism"! The one word they have at their tongues' tips, to be used at lightning rapidity, is "fanaticism."

Such need to learn that THEY are too far from "fanaticism," ever to be in danger of being entangled in it.

The modern church with its hide-bound ceremonialism, its frosty pews and icy pulpits, is too far gone in its "form of godliness" without any "power," to be much affected by the thing called "fanaticism." We are sure God is much displeased with the lukewarm condition of these awful days. Who dares to lift up his or her voice against it?—Sel.

THE BLESSING OF A BURDEN

THERE IS A SAYING that the experiences in life over which we shed a tear or two are remembered longer than are those which bring only smiles. Father and mother sacrifice more for the wayward child who causes them grief and suffering than for all the obedient "white sheep" of the fold. It is also true that the daily necessities and comforts for which we labor, often to the point of exhaustion of strength, are far more enjoyable than if they were handed to us on platters of silver.

The more we observe of life and study the wisdom of God, the better we understand that burdens are blessings in disguise. The physical burdens of the day are not excepted. In the days of ancient Greece and Rome, the athletes who took part in the races spent days of preliminary training with weights attached to their feet, for the added burden developed a strength not attainable in any other way. Then when the day of the races arrived they removed the weights, and with fleetness of feet trained for speed under handicap they were able to run to victory.

It is with reference to this custom so familiar to his readers that Paul in Hebrews 12:1, comparing the life of the Christian to a great race, exhorts the brethren to "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

But there are innumerable weights of care, hardship and sometimes staggering sorrow along the way that we do not always recognize as being material aids to our progress.

We know that muscular activity is necessary for the development of the body of a child. Exercise promotes growth. It is not true of physical growth alone, but applies to spiritual growth as well. And so the spiritual body, rooted and grounded in faith, through constant exercise becomes a strong young life which eventually blossoms forth into beauty and usefulness, acceptable to God.

But just as real work is essential to the proper growth of the physical body, so life's burdens bring the most valuable growth to the Christian. God corrects us for our sins, and reproves us often for our faithlessness, and we grow weary and disheartened, failing so many times to see that the correction of our heavenly Father is the greatest blessing we could receive. "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." "Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby."

We have labored in the sweat of our brow through the heat of day, week after week, in erecting the little house that is home to those we love; how much sweeter is the refuge and the haven for the pain we have suffered in bringing it to completion! We have stood staunchly for a right in the face of fierce opposition; how much finer is our appreciation of the true, our contempt for the false, for all the persecution! We have passed through the suffering of a trying experience, sharing its pain and tears with a friend who is tried and true; thereafter that friend is held closer in the affections of our heart than all those who have gone with us only through the sunshine of life.

Such a Friend is Jesus Christ, who has walked as we walk and who has suffered the same trials that we have to bear. He stands earnestly pleading for our faith in His strength and eagerness to relieve our tired hearts. But it is only those who are burdened with care that He invites, "Come unto me, . . . and I will give you rest."

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH

How do you spend your Sunday? Do you attend services at church? Do you remember to do the things that would please Jesus? Do you try especially to be helpful at home?

My attention was once called to a family that sat down together and planned the day so as to make it mutually happy and worth while to all. The program was something like this—appropriate morning music, church and Sunday School, all help with the housework, noon meal and dishes, a long walk, rest, an interesting family study, —together—cooperation and mutual benefit.

Why isn't Sunday the happiest day of the week? Why not save little ideas and surprises to make it a day to look forward to?

But why keep the sabbath holy? And who keeps the sabbath? And why do we keep Sunday instead?

If we read away back in the beginning, God created certain things every day for six days, but upon the seventh day He rested. He also blessed and sanctified the seventh day.

Later the Lord told Moses to say to the Israelites that if they would obey Him they should be to Him a treasure above all people. When they promised to do as the Lord commanded He gave the law to Moses at Mt. Sinai. Part of this law we call the "Ten Commandments". The fourth commandment is "Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man servant, nor thy maid servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates."

The Jewish sabbath thus begins at six o'clock Friday and ends at six o'clock Saturday.

The Jews were very careful to keep their sabbath holy, and would do no work whatsoever. To-day the orthodox Jews are just as careful.

Jesus, Himself, kept the sabbath and taught others to do so. However, the Pharisees did not approve of His teachings and found fault with His way of keeping the sabbath.

One sabbath day, Jesus and His disciples walked through the field of grain. As they went along, they plucked a little of the grain. Now we can see no wrong in that but the hypocritical Pharisees said it was "work" and were ready to accuse the disciples of profaning the holy day. They asked, "Why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?" In return, Jesus asked them if they did not remember what David had done when he was hungry. David had gone into the temple and eaten the shewbread when such a thing was lawful for the priests only.

Jesus was trying to show them that there were times when great need made it necessary to use things for good that should not be used ordinarily. Just so it was with their eating the grain on the sabbath. If they were hungry, it was right to prepare food to sustain life. That is what He meant by, "The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath." Moreover, He declared, "Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath."

Many wonderful things happened on the sabbath day. Jesus performed many wonderful cures.

Now, on the morning of the first day of the week Jesus arose from the dead. And that is why we, who are not Israelites, keep Sunday. We show honor to Christ and His "victory over the grave."

The evening of that eventful first day, Jesus appeared to His disciples. They were meeting in secret and with doors closed because they were afraid the Jews would try to harm them.

Suddenly Jesus stood right in their midst and said, "Peace be unto you." They felt the peace of His presence, and the peace that comes always from doing the right thing. And just as surely will peace come to those who rightly observe the Lord's day.

The "Teacher's Quarterly" prints ideas about the sabbath that we can well apply to our Sunday: "For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day." The holy sabbath was planned for man's good, and should be a blessing to all who use it rightly. Jesus said, "It is lawful to do good on the sabbath." The sabbath should be a day of rest for man and beast. We should find rest of mind on the Lord's day by worshiping in His house, and our bodies should find rest from the labor which we perform during the week. Those who do not keep the sabbath holy defraud themselves and disobey God.

REMEMBER:—

Keep Sunday holy in memory of Jesus and His resurrection.

GOLDEN TEXT

For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.—Matt. 12:8.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

The Christian Sabbath. This expression—The Christian Sabbath—is one coined by man, not by Scripture. God's Word recognizes but one weekly sabbath as having been commanded, namely, "the seventh day." "God," not Christ, "blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it".—Gen 2:3. It was God who, 2500 years later, required Israel's observance thereof. Exod. 16:23, 26; 20:8. God has never changed "sabbath" from the seventh day.

Brief Survey of the Sabbath or the Seventh Day. God sanctified it, Gen. 2:3; "While the earth remaineth, seedtime . . . summer and winter . . . shall not cease (sabbath)."—Gen. 8:22; God commanded its observance, Exod. 16:23; 20:8; "A sign between me and you throughout your generations". Exod. 31:13; the Lord rested Israel from bondage in Egypt: "therefore the Lord thy God commanded the (children of Israel) to keep the sabbath day",—Deut. 5:15; Israel was forever under command to keep it.

The First Day of the Week. The first day of the week came into prominence at the resurrection of Christ. "As it began to dawn toward the first (day) of the week," Jesus was found risen. Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:2; Luke 24:1; Jno. 20:1. On "the first day of the week" Jesus appeared in the closed room, John 20:19. On the first day of the week He appeared to Thomas. John 20:26. The disciples met to break bread on the first day, Acts 20:7. See 1 Cor. 16:2. The Christians apparently met upon the first day of the week in memory of the day of Christ's resurrection—His rest from His conquest of sin. From this custom, established by the early Christians, the first day has by Christians been sanctified to the honor of Christ and His victory.

It is certain that extremely few Christians honor their Lord as they should before this sin-mad world by their use of the day set aside unto Him. They neither "cease" from their work, their pleasure, their commercialized sport, nor their mad careers of sinning. More and more it is coming to be a day in which to dishonor Him, His name and His work.

Stop! Look!! Listen!!

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Rest and Meditation. A man in healthy, vigorous life does not object to working. Work, in fact, is a blessed privilege, and really necessary to health and happiness. But he who labors through the hours of the day is thankful for the night and the opportunity of rest. Physical health demands it; mental balance requires it.

The sabbath was given to Israel as a day of rest. Physical health is better if one day out of every seven is used for rest, and mental poise is higher. In a period of years a man can do more work by laboring six days per week and resting one than he can by working the entire three hundred and sixty-five days each year. And at the end of the period he will be found to be in better condition both physically and mentally.

For the Christian there is still a greater purpose in a day of rest. We do not have a sabbath prescribed by law, but we have a day which commemorates the resurrection of our Lord, and we are not only better off physically and mentally if we observe that as a day of rest, but we become strong and valuable in our Master's service in proportion as we use that opportunity for a day of worship, prayer and meditation.—F. E. S.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For the Son of Man is Lord of the sabbath."—Matt. 12:8, Roth.

It is shown in verse 6 that Christ was greater than the temple and now in this verse 8, He is Lord, that is greater, Ruler of the sabbath. In verse 12 He taught that it is lawful to do well on sabbath days, and we would add that it is wrong to do evil on the sabbath or any other day.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Christian Sabbath.

The people of God are heir to a rest the need of which is paramount to life. It is that rest of heart and mind that results when all fears have vanished and worry does not drive. It is a rest in which one ceases from his own works, works prompted and controlled by the selfishness and the interest of self, and takes up God's works that reach out farther and farther from self. It is a rest in which one waits for God's sure guidance and direction and in which one works most efficiently under God's guidance and direction. It is a rest that shows in the line of the face and the light of the eye and in unhurried actions. It is a rest that comes only from unwavering faith and trust in God's love and wisdom and power as it comes to us through Jesus. With this inner rest, bodily fatigue does little harm and it is a rest that does its renovating work every day in the week.

"Let us labour therefore to enter into that rest" is Paul's plea. And this labor is the hardest of labors for it is giving up, relaxing in heart, and mind, and body, under Jesus' power.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: A Day of Worship.

"Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy." Exod. 20:8. This was a commandment given to the children of Israel. They could work all other days, but the seventh, or sabbath day, must be kept as a day of worship. This day was what we now call Saturday.

A day has been set apart in which we may worship also, and that is our Sunday. Last Sunday we learned one thing we must do when we enter into the church of God. Today we have a day set apart in which to worship. Of course this does not mean we cannot have services at other times during the week, but it is a time set apart when we should be in prayerful attitude to the Father.

We have one verse in the lesson that describes some people at worship. John 20:19. When Jesus entered He said, "Peace be unto you." Do you not think that if we come to church on Sunday, and as we enter, be in a truly reverent spirit to the Father that He will say unto us also, "Peace be unto you"? I am sure we will feel much better than if we had gone somewhere else just to have a good time.

Let us remember our day of worship to keep it holy.—V. C. T.

JUNIOR CLASS

Aim: To learn why God set apart one day for rest and worship.

A little girl was copying the ten commandments and wrote it thus: "Remember the sabbath day to keep it wholly." The mother said, "Dear, you have not spelled right, it should be 'holy.'" The little girl had come as near spelling it right as most people do keeping it right. God's thought was to make that day a day of worship and rest. Rest is not always to sit or lie down but change, and the change was for worship. God made the seventh day a day of worship with the altars for prayer in His open world. Everything God made was to fit some need within us, air, light, sound. Since God made the sabbath it must be we need it. The Jewish sabbath was incorporated in the decalogue and observed until after Christ's resurrection which was on Sunday. His disciples began to meet on that day and it soon became an acknowledged day of worship. Read Acts 20:7.—M. A. W.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Resting in Jesus: people's need of mental and spiritual rest; reasons for belief that this rest is in Jesus; how it comes into our lives; its effect; various hinderances to its entrance.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Word from Chicago brings the news that Sr. Woodward is continuing to gain in strength, for which we are all thankful.

Bro. Austin, who was called to the Niagara district for a funeral on Feb. 22, spent the week following among the brethren throughout that section.

Orders are already being received for Bro. Booth's new book. The title of the work is "The Mystery of Iniquity Explained," or "The Truth about the Devil." Price 75c postpaid. Advance orders will be mailed as soon as the book is off the press.

We have been glad to receive some remarks in commendation of the articles which have been appearing in the Herald from members of the Training Class. These young people are doing some good work and will be heard from in the years to come. We have a surprise in store for you which will be revealed in about a month and we trust that the revelation will be pleasing.

We have a number of copies of the present edition of our Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly left and will be glad to send them out without charge as sample copies. If this quarterly is not being used in your Sunday School we will mail you enough so that each officer and each teacher may have one to compare with other quarterlies. They cover the lessons to April 1. The new quarterly is on the press and will soon be ready for mailing. Be sure that your orders are in early.

On the front page of this issue attention is called to the opportunity of advancing the cause by a special Easter contribution. We will not publish names or individual amounts, but we will give totals each week from now till after Easter so that you may know the response to the Easter plea.

Who will be the first to show in this practical way an appreciation of what the season means? Make all remittances to the National Bible Institution

GOLDEN RULE HOME NEEDS

Different individuals and groups over the country at times have requested to know when there were things needed for Golden Rule Home which could be supplied by Ladies' Aids or persons handy with the needle. At the present time there is a need for four pairs of curtains for bedroom windows. These should be 2 yards and 9 inches in length when finished.

Also some white tablecloths are needed, and the table takes a five yard cloth.

If there are any who wish to furnish some of these items they may be mailed to Golden Rule Home, Oregon, Ill.

COMMUNICATIONS

Brother Peter Overholser of the Springfield church located at Lawrenceville, Ohio, (where Brother Overholser resides), celebrated his 96th birthday anniversary Feb. 23rd. The brother is at present confined to his bed caused from burns.

Since the death of his wife nearly three years ago, he has been cared for in his own home by his daughter, Sister Belle Hartman, and his stepson, Brother L. M. Finch. He also has one son, Brother A. E. Overholser of Spran field, and three grandsons.

Brother Overholser has been a member of the Church of God for the past forty years and as long as his health permitted was seldom absent. He and one sister are the last surviving members of a family of sixteen children, of which Brother Overholser was the eighth and his living sister the youngest. He was born in Ohio and all his life he has lived in nearly the same community. His favorite Scriptural passage often repeated by him is "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want". By God's grace he has been permitted to live to ripe age, which is attained by very few. He sends thanks, and greetings to all who so kindly remembered his birthday.

Resolved:

That we, the brethren constituting the congregation known as The Church of the Golden Rule, do hereby express to our retiring Pastor, Bro. L. E. Connor, our appreciation and gratitude to him for the faithful and loving service he has always rendered to us during the long years of his incumbency in the office of Pastor.

He has always consistently taught the principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ as revealed in the Scriptures, appertaining to the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ.

His life and deportment among us have been an inspiration and incentive to us to endeavor to mold and conform our lives to its high Christian standard.

In his relationship and association with other Christian bodies, he has sought to meet them upon the level of Christian fellowship and broad mindedness, endeavoring to lead them to a correct understanding of the Scriptures.

It was with regret that we accepted his resignation and we pray that our heavenly Father will bless and comfort him in his retiring years.

May God's blessing continue to rest upon us and bind us together by the sweet cords of Christian love and fellowship, until He comes, though we may physically be separated one from the other.

CHICAGO

Another Sunday service at Sister Whitehead's with a sermon from Bro. Marsh made us all wonder why we had not realized before how very near God is to each of us all the time, waiting at the door of our hearts just to be let in. Such a precious heavenly Guest ready to dwell with us, if only we would just reach out and remove the thin veil that hides Him from us; just accept the blessed promises He has made to all who love Him, accept them as ours from His willing hands! Bro. Marsh emphasized the thought Paul so earnestly left with those who were worshipping the Unknown God at Athens. Paul tactfully and earnestly told them who this unknown God was, and how near He was to them though they did not realize it; "that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him and FIND him, though he be not far from every one of us". Bro. Marsh made it very plain that we might each one of God's lovers claim this most delightful promise; that God is near us all, and we have only to put self aside, reach out our hand and take God's waiting Hand to help us step over the rough places of life, for He is ever ready and willing.

Bro. and Sr. Harold Starbuck, and Bro. John Lansbery of Woodstock, also Sister Gesin of Oregon were with us. How glad all were to have them here and hope they may come often! Bro. Marsh comes to Chicago every last Sunday in each month, and dear ones who do not come, you do not know what feasts you miss by not being here. I know you are all so far apart, but it is worth the sacrifice you will have to make to come. The Berean class meets at different places every Sunday but on Bro. Marsh's. You can find out all about these meetings by phoning Austin 7374. Leila or Evelyn will be glad to inform you.

The dear Christ is soon coming. Will you be ready? M. A. Woodward.

MICHIGAN

Sr. Brewer has been under medical care the past few weeks, but according to latest reports she is regaining her former strength.

Supt. Townsend of Grand Rapids Sunday School called a meeting of the officers and teachers for the purpose of discussing the different phases of Sunday School work and to make plans for future labors. Many suggestions were offered and all felt that the meeting was well worth the time.

The Bereans recently held their annual business meeting and the following were elected as officers for the coming year: Bro. Hall, President; Bro. Rhoades, Vice-President; Sr. Paxton, Secretary and Bro. Bridgman for Treasurer. The President and Treasurer were the only ones of the old officers that were re-elected. Five different classes are conducted every Thursday night. The Bereans are doing a good work and are a valuable asset to the church.

Sr. Holly and her son-in-law, Bro. Hanson have been contributing to the up-keep of the medical profession the past fortnight. The former has been suffering with tonsillitis and the latter with the flu. Both are recovering nicely.

Sister Mildred Heise of Woodland, Mich., daughter of Bro. G. E. Coats of Hastings, Mich., is in a hospital slowly recovering from an operation for a bad case of mastoid following flu, pleurisy and pneumonia. Sister Mildred has the prayers and best wishes of us all.

NIAGARA FALLS

It is not very often that I attempt to write for publication and the only reason for this is because I realize I have not the ability that some of our able writers to the Herald have. But nevertheless I cannot refrain from writing a few lines to tell you of the great and pleasant surprise our people at Niagara Falls had last Sunday morning, the 25th of February, when our beloved Brother and former Pastor, F. L. Austin, paid us a visit and preached to us from the first chapter of Acts taking his theme from the eleventh verse: This same Jesus which is taken from you is coming again. Judging by the rapt attention given him by the large audience present (for many strangers were there) it was evident that they knew he was preaching the truth. Yes, and even to us, who have heard this glad message so many, many times, it made us feel like the two sorrowing and sad disciples on their way to Emmaus; for our very hearts burned within us and rejoiced as Brother Austin opened unto us the Scriptures and proved by them beyond question that as God hath spoken so shall it come to pass that our Redeemer is coming again.

Pilate asked Christ a question, "Art thou a king then?" Did Jesus answer him? Listen. "Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, (what for?) that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice." John 18: 37. Still Pilate did not understand and again asked him, "What is truth?"

Brother, sister, let me now ask you a question, "Has Christ ever reigned as King yet?" Your answer is "No". Well then, is God going to be foiled in His plans and purposes? The writer of the 72nd Psalm knew better than that, for he tells us that Christ is coming to judge the people with righteousness and the poor with judgment. He also tells us this King shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the rivers to the ends of the earth. Yes, we believe Christ is coming again, for Paul once said to the church in Colosse, "When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col. 3:4.

Dear brothers and sisters, lift your eyes to Calvary's Jesus, for the morning breaketh and the shadows flee away.

Hail to the Lord's anointed Great David's greater Son.
Hail in the time appointed,
His reign on earth begun;
He comes to break oppression
To set the prisoner free,
To take away transgression
And rule in equity.

George T. Rennard.

OBITUARIES

HARRISON JENKINS

Harrison Jenkins was born Dec. 5, 1840 in Clinton Co., Ind. and died Feb. 18, 1929, in St. Petersburg, Fla. at the age of 88 years, 2 mos. and 13 days. He leaves the wife, one son, Wm. C., one brother, William, ten grandchildren, thirteen great grandchildren and a host of friends.

Bro. Jenkins was one of the oldest members of The Church of God at Hillisburg, Ind. He was one of the leading citizens of Clinton Co. He took a great delight in talking on the many precious promises given in God's Word and was a firm believer in the truth of the Bible. He was ever ready to support the truth in a financial way.

After his death he was brought to Michigantown, where funeral services were held in the Christian Church, Feb. 26, by the writer, who spoke words of comfort from John 11: 11; Rev. 14:13, to a large crowd who came to honor one who had lived an upright Christian life. After the services he was laid away to sleep until Jesus comes.
J. H. Anderson.

"MY CHURCH AND I"

MY church is the place where the Word of God is preached, the Power of God is felt, the Spirit of God is manifested and the Love of God is revealed.

There I am to meet my Savior, to meditate on His redemption, to seek His help, to listen to His commands and to bow in reverence before Him.

It is the home of my soul, the heart of my faith, the center of my best affections and fellowships.

I have united with it in solemn covenant, pledging myself to protect its good name, to attend its services, to honor its ministry and to give to its support.

It has the right to the first place in my heart, next to my Christ, the highest place in my thoughts, the principal place in my activities.

I owe it my zeal, my devotion, my prayers and my sacrifice. When I neglect it I lessen its power, I handicap its work, and I chill my own soul.

I have solemnly promised, in the sight of God and men, to advance its interests by studying God's Word, by attending its ordinances, by joining in its praise and prayer, by contributing my ability and my service, and this promise I do now sincerely renew before God my Father, Jesus Christ my Savior, and the Holy Spirit my Teacher and Sanctifier.—Selected from "The Dayton Daily News." R. A. Curtis.

OUR ANNUAL EASTER OFFERING

THE GLAD ANNIVERSARY of the resurrection of Christ is rapidly coming upon us. As this morning arrives, Christian hearts everywhere should be aglow when they remember this greatest of all great victories that was wrought by God and Christ. Death was conquered. The power of death was fettered. Because of that resurrection hope has come to the hearts of every faithful follower of our Master.

It is because of the thankfulness that wells over at this season of the year that Easter has been selected for an annual offering for the work. By this is meant a thanksgiving offering; not merely to offer what we were going to offer anyway in our regular contributions but an extra offering of rejoicing because of the wonderful hope which broke forth to mankind upon the first Easter day. Every year we hope to emphasize Easter by calling attention to this offering. It may be but little, it may be quite an amount, but whatever any brother or sister, old or young, wishes to offer from the fullness of the heart for the services of the Master in carrying forward our General Conference labors will be thankfully received. Make all remittances to the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. Do not necessarily wait for Easter. Just mark the offerings, "Easter Offering."

THE NUMBER TWO

THE STUDY OF the use of numbers in the Scriptures is a very interesting study. It is also profitable. It is one more thing that if carefully considered furnishes indisputable evidence of the inspiration of the Bible and shows a divine hand to have guided its composition.

The value of this kind of study, however, does not stop with giving evidence of inspiration. It brings out emphasis of certain truths and shows relative importance in such way as to aid understanding of God's plan.

As an example of this latter fact consider a few points in the use of the number two:

To Abraham were born two sons, Ishmael and Isaac. According to natural laws Ishmael the first-born should have been the heir, but God ruled that "In Isaac shall thy seed be called."

In the course of time this same son Isaac became the father of two sons, Esau and Jacob, and again we find that the first born, Esau, is almost forgotten but Jacob, the second, is in the line of the inheritance and the one through whom the promises were to be fulfilled.

When grown to manhood this man Jacob labored for Laban that he might become his son-in-law. After seven years of service he received Leah to wife, but it required the second period of seven years to receive Rachael, the wife whom he really loved. Thus we see a double use of the number two in this incident: it was the second wife whom he loved, and it took the second period of service to obtain her.

Years later the commandments were given to Israel on tables of stone. The first set was cast to the ground and broken, but the second set became Israel's law and was kept for generations in the ark of the covenant.

The first leader of Israel on the journey from Egypt died, and the second leader, Joshua, completed the work. The first generation who left Egypt died, also; and the second generation entered the promised land.

The first king of Israel was unfaithful and his whole line discontinued. The second king, David, was a man after God's own heart and became the father of a full line of kings including Jesus Christ Himself.

Many other instances could be referred to, but these suffice to show that there are a remarkable number of cases where the second things are shown to be of outstanding importance.

All of this points us to a few plain facts, one of which is that God had two sons and that Jesus is the second Adam, 1 Cor. 15:47. Another great truth is that it was not the first appearing of Jesus that was to bring the blessings to man but the second appearing. Heb. 9:27, 28.—F. E. S.

SUCCESS

"Success treads on the heels of every right effort."—Samuel Smiles.

SUCCESS IS A THING that is always desired but apparently is very illusive and hard to be captured. And yet, that very quality is one reason why it is so much sought after, for the thing that is easily gotten is hardly worth the taking.

It might be well when meditating upon this matter to observe that Samuel Smiles has stated a very evident truth in the words quoted above. In spite of the fact that we may get blue and discouraged often, and feel that life does not grant to us all that it should, still it must be recognized that success really does tread upon the heels of every right effort.

On the heels, mind you,—not on the toes. Success does not lead the way. Effort, honest effort, right effort must go before, but such effort will always be followed by success of one kind or another, though it may not always be the kind or degree of success that we may have desired most. Oftentimes the God who directs our way realizes that other ends are better for us than the ones we had in mind.

But success will follow if you really do your part. It may be a Sunday School you are endeavoring to build up. Keep right at it, regardless of the obstacles. It may be a Berean Class that you wish to develop. It is a noble effort,—keep right at it. Or, you may have a vision of a real church development in your locality. If so, you can rest assured that there will be all manner of obstacles and opposition and criticism. Those are the things that will test your metal. Keep right at it, in kindness and in love putting your full strength behind the work, and success is bound to come.

Whatever you may be undertaking in life, remember that the effort determines the results. The rightness, the honesty, the degree of effort will indicate the degree of success. The true Christian, however, realizes that his success will be in proportion to his harmony with divine plan, and therefore will face it all as did Paul when he said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."—F. E. S.

A FRIEND'S LOVE

"A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity." Prov. 17:17.

THE DIFFERENCE between the idle talk of the many and the love of a true friend is made evident in times of real trial. While all is going well with you it is easy enough for people to seek your companionship and wish to show you deference. They feel that they share in your high standing by such association. It is, therefore, love for self and not love for you which really prompts that type of friendship.

The real test comes in time of trouble. Adversities come to us all at times, and it is at these times that we can discern who our real friends are. Your true friend loves you as much when you are in sore distress, as when you are being smiled upon by the whole world. What a comfort it is to discover a few real friends in life, and to realize as the days pass with their ups and with their downs that the love of those friends is always unchanged and dependable!

The above things being true in human relationship, have you ever tried to apply the principle to friendship for Christ? Are you steadily loyal to Him all through life's experiences? Remember that He cannot list you as a friend unless you can be depended upon to be true through all of life's most trying scenes!—F. E. S.

ECHOES FROM THE FIELD

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. Having been called to this place by the death of Sister Eunice Smith and on arrival having been invited to remain over Sunday, the writer spoke at Niagara Falls Sunday morning, February 24th, and at Fonthill Sunday evening. Brother James A. Patrick has been doing an excellent work for the last few months in both of these churches. The writer was greeted by an excellent audience on Sunday morning. Some had not been inside the church in several years; but hearing of the service, traveled some distance to attend. The work here shows distinctly the faithful labors of Brother and Sister Marsh. Brother Marsh was Pastor at these churches from the fall of 1921 to the fall of 1928. Living at Niagara Falls, he was able, as resident Pastor, to do much more work with that congregation than with the one at Fonthill. The Falls church shows definite advancement as a result of his pastorate and as the result of Brother Patrick's succeeding work. But Brother Patrick's work shows possibly more fully at Fonthill where he has been putting in much of his time. Both of these churches regret very much that they are unable to secure the permanent services of Brother Patrick. He has been able to be with them for only a few weeks at a time after which he has felt it necessary to return to his family in Ashland, Ohio, for short periods. At the present time he is in Ashland.

The history of these two churches during three pastorates affords definite evidence of the value of a resident pastor with the churches. If it were necessary other churches might be cited to bear witness to the same truth. It is the writer's full conviction that several of the congregations of the Church of God have weakened and lapsed because of the fact that there has been no resident pastor and leader. By the foregoing it should not be understood that just anyone regardless of qualification can enter into such a position. The position of the minister of the gospel and of the pastor of a congregation entails very definite and very earnest and continuous labors. Some are qualified for such. Others are not, just the same as some are qualified for merchants, some for governmental leaders, some for artisans, etc. The Church of God today is greatly in need of several earnest, prayerful, devoted men who will qualify for leadership in the churches. It is a position second to none in the world and is worthy of the most earnest effort, study, adaptation to work that any person can give. These two churches are at the present time in search of such a man to move into their midst and shepherd them in the highest and truest meaning of that word. There is opportunity for much advancement in both of these communities provided that the churches can find a good leader and will then stand back of him in his work, in his every effort, in his every ideal.

Not everything depends upon the pastor for a few members can oppose and obstruct a minister's efforts to such an extent that he is unable to realize his prayerful ambitions; therefore, the previous statement. There is room not only at Niagara Falls and at Fonthill but at every place where there is an organization of the Church of God for the cooperation of diligent, prayerful pastors and congregations.

LANCASTER, N. Y. From the Niagara churches, the writer called in on Sister Flora Gardiner and her family and Sister Marjorie Flewelling and her sisters, all of whom have shown such earnest diligence in their efforts in Christianity. A service was called for Tuesday evening and by request services were announced for each evening up to and including Friday night, March 1st. Here also there is need of work.

It is quite noticeable that in practically every community there are people hungry for just those phases of scriptural truth that the Church of God emphasizes so strongly. The writer feels like urging young matured men and women to consider the great opportunity of work in the gospel field. Such should remember that a true worker in the gospel should be one who is completely consecrated to his Master, one who is ready to serve in his Master's vineyard at whatever cost, at whatever sacrifice as regards worldly opportunities. Not education only will qualify one for such work, but education directed, modified and qualified by abiding prayer and abiding service for the Master. F. L. Austin, Field Sec'y.

GOD'S SPIRIT OR MAN'S SPIRIT?

By Samuel E. Haney

"But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God".—1 Cor. 2:9, 10

LET US NOTE VERSES 6 to 8 which give Paul's reasoning that leads up to our text: "Yet when we are among mature believers we do speak words of wisdom; a wisdom not belonging, however, to the present age nor to the leaders of the present age who are soon to pass away. But in dealing with truths hitherto kept secret we speak of God's wisdom—that hidden wisdom which, before the world began, God predestined, so that it should result in glory to us; a wisdom which not one of the leaders of the present age possesses ('learnt', margin), for if they had possessed (learnt) it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory". Wey. Also verse 13, "Of these we speak—not in language which man's wisdom teaches us, but in that which the Spirit teaches—adapting, as we do, spiritual words to spiritual truths (or 'men', margin)". Wey.

My object in quoting these verses in this manner is to emphasize the difference between the spirit of the world, by which the unregenerate man is actuated and dominated and the Spirit of God which controls man after the "washing of regeneration, and renewing ('renovation', Diag.) of the Holy Ghost (Spirit)." Titus 3:5. I am aware that it is presumptuous to discriminate here when Paul so distinctly does so in verses 9 and 10. However, a little elaboration sometimes starts new trains of thought.

Let us analyze the text and see if we cannot visualize a dual personality that in every way, externally, may appear the same, but in reality, differ as the light of a cloudless midday differs from pitchy darkness of midnight. The Christian who has never experienced a baptism of the Holy Spirit is an incompetent juror in this case. One must possess a "before and after" experience to get the true significance of Paul's quotation from the prophet Isaiah (64:4). Here, God, by His Spirit, operating through the prophet and apostle desires us to understand that the natural man, though he be nominally a Christian, cannot depict "the things which God hath prepared for them that love him". He may read about them and talk and sing about them, while in fact, they haven't "entered into the heart" simply because the mental "eye" and "ear" are not tuned in to see and hear such glorious spiritual things. Neither can they be. Have Paul emphasize this point (verse 14, Wey.): "The unspiritual man rejects the things of the Spirit of God, and cannot attain to the knowledge of them, because they are spiritually judged". Alford, a Greek erudite, commenting on the phrase "unspiritual man" says, "Unspiritual, or psychical, or if we had such a word, soulish. In the psychical man the spirit, being unvivified and uninformed by the Spirit of God, is overborne by the animal soul with its desires and is in abeyance, so that he may be said not to have it".

It is thus that the vast majority of Christians content themselves by the "letter" of the New Testament instead of the "Spirit". Yet, the former means "death" while the latter "life": "Who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." 2 Cor. 3:6. Note Dr. Weymouth's version: "It is he also who has made us competent to serve him in connection with a new covenant, which is not a written code but a Spirit; for the written code inflicts death, but the Spirit gives life".

The things which God hath prepared for "them that love him" are hidden from the mind of the "unspiritual man" by the spirit of this world. They "haven't entered into the heart": he has no basic conception of them; merely the "letter", void of the Spirit of "discernment". The two spirits are incompatible. I often wonder whether Jesus succeeded in disabusing Nicodemus' mind on this point. Many are as much confused over this subject as was the Pharisee, notwithstanding the simplicity of Jesus' explanation: "Except a man be born again ('anew—from above', R. V.), he cannot see the kingdom of God. . . . Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again, (margin, 'from above')". (Italics mine).

One might say, The fact that I have some knowledge of God's plans and purposes is evident that I have the Spirit of God. No, not necessarily so. As we have noted, there are two phases of the law, or word of God;—namely, "letter" and "spirit"; theory and practice. Theory, in the material world, avails nothing if not put into practical use. It is thus with truth, if not ratified by God's Spirit and properly utilized. The "letter", which "killeth", appeals to the "unspiritual man", whose self-righteousness God requires to be abnegated that the "spiritual man" might live by "faith in the blood of the Lamb". It is a common trait of many to possess an admixture of knowledge and the spirit of the world.

"But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit". Who is the "us" class? Those who have the Spirit of God in their hearts. Paul says, ". . . if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his". Rom. 8:9. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God". This could not be true were the "us" class controlled by the carnal spirit.

What God said to Israel—a typical people—has a greater significance in us, the antitypal—spiritual Israel. Read Deut. 6, particularly verses 4 to 7: "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one LORD: and thou shalt love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up". These commandments, in conjunction with our conscience, should apprise us of either our commendable or condemnable status in God's sight.

The finite is inadequate to comprehend the power of God's Spirit: the part it played in the creation of the universe, and all things therein. It is called "the eternal Spirit." Heb. 9:14. "And the Spirit of God moved ('was brooding', R. V. 'hovered', Mas.) upon the face of the waters". Gen. 1:2. "By his spirit ('breath', Mas.) he hath garnished ('arched', Roth.) the heavens; his hand hath formed the crooked serpent ('pierced the fleeing serpent', Roth.)". Job. 26:13.

Note how God's Spirit affects mankind: "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath ('spirit', Roth.), they die ('cease to breathe', Roth.), and return to their dust. Thou sendeth forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth ('ground', R. V.)". Psa. 104:29, 30. This concrete summarization explains how that God, personally, through His Son and Spirit deals with mankind. Man disobeys, God retires from the scene, withdraws His favors and Spirit, and drives the human race, personified in Adam and Eve, into a comparative wilderness to die. The Son, "the Lion of the tribe of Juda", (Rev. 5:5) steps into the breach and suffers a vicarious death, thereby securing "all power . . . in heaven and in earth" (Matt. 28:18). "Power over all flesh" (John 17:2). Finally, the resurrection of "all that are in the graves" (John 5:28, 29): wonderful "mysterious" power of God's Holy Spirit operating through our Lord and Redeemer!

Let us, with a "contrite spirit", take to heart Saint Paul's blessed benediction: "And may the God of that HOPE fully establish you with All Joy and Peace in BELIEVING, in order that you may ABOUND in that HOPE, by the Energy of the holy Spirit". Rom. 15:13, Emph. Diag.

LIFE IS BIG BUSINESS

Address by Charles Pierce Burton to Aurora College

CHARLES PIERCE BURTON, speaking to students of Aurora College on "The Biggest Business in the World—the Business of Living," said that "this is an age of commercialism rather than sentiment." Mr. Burton is a writer of story books, especially for boys, and this fact added to the interest of the message.

"The business instinct," Mr. Burton said, "dominates every activity. We think in terms of business. Big business is the order of the day. So I am going to say a few words about the biggest business in the world—the business of living; and for your protection I have jotted down some of my thoughts in order that if I stray from the course I may consult the chart and 'pull for the shore.'

"What is life? I do not refer to the mysterious essence of life—the outbreathing of God's Spirit—I mean this spending of a certain number of years on earth as individual personalities.

LIFE IS BUSINESS

"I'll tell you what life is; it is business—big business if you please. Poets tell us of the 'art of living.' And to live right is really a fine art. But in another sense living is a business—a business of buying and selling; of investing a business which just as surely is governed by certain economic laws as is banking, farming and the other pursuits which usually come under the head of business. The medium of exchange differs, that is all.

"Look at a silver dollar. On it you will see the words, 'In God We Trust.' Strange words to put upon a dollar. I fear that most of us do not put our trust in God so much as in the power of that mighty dollar. Let a man's soul shrivel up into nothingness, if he has enough of those he can command all men. He can escape the jaws of the penitentiary, though guilty. He can grind the face of the poor. Money is all powerful. It can buy all things.

"No! Thank God, it cannot buy manhood and womanhood. It cannot buy character. It cannot buy happiness. It cannot buy the kingdom of heaven. To buy these things—and they can be bought—we must use a higher medium of exchange. Time is our capital in this great business of living. The investment of this capital is the greatest business on earth to-day, before which Standard Oil and the Steel corporation sink into insignificance.

TIME BRINGS MONEY

"Let us keep this thought in mind, that primarily there is only one medium of exchange, and that is time. Properly spent, time will buy money; it will buy success; it will buy character; it will buy happiness; it will buy godliness. We can spend it for wickedness and rottenness generally. But spend it for something we must. So I say that living is a business—the biggest business in the world, and time is a precious thing.

"I stood in a jeweler's shop the other day and watched the pendulum of a great clock ticking off the seconds. The seconds of my life were being counted out and shown to me. I could hear them go. I stood there fascinated, until it seemed as if I must cry out and lay hold of that pendulum to stop its swinging. It is a fearful thing to watch your capital being slowly impaired.

"Did you ever stop to think that back there in the misty past; back there when Abraham watched his flocks on the hills of Chaldea, and knew God, a certain day was approaching? It was far off, very far off, but it was on the way. Centuries went by; thousands of years passed; and all the time that eventful day was drawing nearer. At last it arrived, and with it came yourself—a new personality—a tiny babe; with no money, no clothes, no character; your brain, a smooth surface to be corrugated with thought; your mind, a blank to be written upon. You started in this business of living with no capital except time and the opportunities for spending it which had been won by the toil and suffering of humanity through countless ages.

“We need not speak of the past. What we are is largely our own doing. We have bought it, either wisely or foolishly, with the years we have been spending. But to-day is here—a to-day which, when Jesus lay cradled in a manger, even then, was on its way. To-morrow is nearly due to arrive. What are we going to buy with to-morrow? That is a question which comes home to all of us. It is the most important question which a human being can ask himself. What shall I buy with to-day?”

BUY HEALTH

“In making this investment of time, I urge on you young people, the purchase of three things. Once in possession of these, the others will follow easily. First buy health. Strong bodies, as a rule, are necessary to strong minds. Take care of your bodies. Paleness, listlessness, worn out nerves once were thought to go with intellectuality. To-day our brainy men are athletes. Our preachers go fishing, love a ball game, tramp the fields. They are right. A frail body would cut short their usefulness.

“Secondly, buy brain power. Buy it, I say. No one can give it to you. ‘There is no royal road to learning,’ as was said many years ago. True, men seem to be born with different capacities, but, after all, what power you have was acquired largely by purchase. It is borne in on me more and more, by what I see of others and by what I know of my own shortcomings, that the chief difference between men is in willpower—the will to pay. Great men give up their liberty and become slaves to their ideals and to humanity. The boy in school who fritters away his time has little to show for the expenditure. The boy in the shop, or on the farm, whose only thought is to get through the day as easily as possible, has only himself to blame if the world does not consider his time valuable. The man who is not willing to pay the price need not expect to succeed; but, given a normal brain and the will to pay, a reasonable measure of success is certain.

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER

“Finally, buy character—not a negative goodness which does nothing, but an active Christian character that goes out into the world breathing the Spirit of Christ, and, like Him, serving mankind. For real wealth lies in mind and that harmony of mind, called character. Power to appreciate the true and the beautiful, is better than millions. The more of this wealth one spends, the more he has.

“But, some one may say, this time which was given to me is my capital, belongs to me. I can do with it as I choose. These years are mine. No! They are not yours. You hold them in trust. They are humanity’s. They are God’s.

“This brings us to the culminating thought which I wish to express—in my judgment the greatest thought of which the human mind is capable. Some one once asked Daniel Webster, illustrious statesman and orator, what was the greatest thought that had ever come to him. He weighed the question carefully and replied, ‘The sense of my personal accountability to God.’

“Let us carry this thought a little farther to its logical conclusion. Accountability for what? For our stewardship. More, for our partnership. God is our great, silent Partner in this business of living. He furnishes the capital. What a thought is that! You and I, in humble walks of life though we may be, are partners of the Almighty in His stupendous business of creation. The future of humanity depends, in a measure, on what we are to-day and what we become to-morrow. In this great business of living, let us invest our capital with this thought uppermost in our minds.

“It is not given to us to die on Calvary for the redemption of the world. It is not given to us, as to the boys of 1918, to ‘go over the top’ for our country and humanity. But we can show ourselves worthy of such love and sacrifice. We can prove ourselves fit for the great part which is ours to play in the final redemption.”

THE UNITY OF GOD

By Lyman Booth

Article No. 3.

THE UNITY OF GOD was the central doctrine of the Jehovah religion. So long as they held to the national belief in Jehovah, as the only God, they were far superior to other nations, but whenever they lapsed into idolatry they were brought low by their enemies. While there are several instances of their humiliation on record, only a few need be cited. “See now that I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me: I kill, and I make alive.” Deut. 32:39. “Thus saith the LORD . . . beside me there is no God . . . Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God; I know not any.” Isa. 44:8. “I am the LORD, and there is none else To whom will ye liken me, and make me equal, and compare me, that we may be like.” “To whom then will ye liken me, or shall I be equal? saith the Holy One?” “For I am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like me.” Isa. 45:5; 40:25; 45:9.

While there are many more passages of scripture, of like import, all in harmony with the above, which are as strong and conclusive, we think those who are familiar with Old Testament scriptures will not require that they be introduced here. One of the great burdens of the prophets was to teach the unity of God and the purity of His worship. This is the general view of the Old Testament writers which should be decisive of the question. If the prophets who spoke under the inspiration of God intended to convey some peculiar meaning of unity different from what the words usually mean, would it not have been plainly taught, as for instance, trinity in unity instead of absolute unity. Would God's chosen prophets, whose special duty was to teach the people the truth concerning God's nature, have been left in ignorance of so important a matter? Would it not have changed their teaching? If we search the Book from Genesis to Malachi we will not find it even hinted.

Some learned theologians searched the record diligently for some scripture which would support the theory of the trinity, but with very poor success. They finally pinned their faith on "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty," as proof of the trinity, claiming that the repetition of the word "holy" three times is used instead of Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Their contention is that it teaches the trinity in unity, but to the writer it indicates that sound argument is sadly lacking. The careful examination of a few texts will show that the repetition of the word "holy" will show evidence of intense feeling as when David said, on learning of the death of Absalom, "O my son, Absalom, my son, my son Absalom!" 2 Sam. 18:33; for as when Jeremiah exclaimed, "O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the LORD." Jer. 22:29. Another instance in Revelation 8:13, "Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabitants of the earth!" It conveys intense feeling, the same as if we were to say thrice happy day, thrice blessed or thrice cursed. There are two other arguments to which some cling with fervor; but which have been abandoned by some of the most learned orthodox teachers. One is, that the word "Eloheem," translated God, is in the plural form, indicating a plurality of beings in the Godhead. We will let John Calvin and Professor Stuart answer, as they are recognized orthodox critics. They say, "For the sake of emphasis, the Hebrews commonly employed most of the words which signify Lord, God, etc., in the plural form, but with the sense of the singular." By referring to Exod. 7:1 we find the word "god" applied to Moses, "And the Lord said unto Moses, See, I have made thee a god to Pharaoh." In this case the Hebrew is in the plural and a literal translation would be "gods." In 1 Sam. 28:13, 14 the word "god" is applied to Samuel. The same mode of expression is used in reference to Joseph, Potiphar and of Pharaoh. There are many such instances though they are in the singular, they appear in the Hebrew text in the plural form. These considerations teach that the word "Eloheem," according to Prof. Stuart's view, is nothing but a Hebrew idiom, upon which the doctrine of a plurality of persons can be established.

The other argument is very similar. It is built upon the words found in Gen. 1:26, "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness," which is also considered as an idiomatic mode of expression, commonly called the plural of excellence or of dignity. This form of expression is employed by the Apostle Paul, also by others. In 1 Thess. 2:18 we read, "Wherefore we would have come unto you, even I Paul, once and again; but Satan hindered us." This is where Paul applies the pronouns we and us to himself. It isn't needful to quote any more texts to show the same use of the plural form, for the argument has been abandoned by a large number of those who held to the idea of a Triune God. Such men as Martin Luther, Grotius, Dr. Smith, Bishop Patrick, Dr. Samuel Johnson, and Archbishop Whatley.

If there are any other arguments in the Old Testament used to prove the plurality of persons in the Godhead I have not learned of them. If there were such the Hebrews never understood them. It is certain that they understood their own language. It is also certain that they understood that the oneness of God was taught in the most unmistakable terms. This was their understanding when Christ was among them. What shall we say when we find this doctrine mentioned over and over again by our Lord and His apostles, in the strongest possible terms, which they used without any thought that a peculiar meaning should be attached to the word "one," when applied to God. The word "god" occurs no less than 1326 times in the New Testament and in no instance did the writers hint at a Triune God.

MOSES A TYPE OF CHRIST

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

THE LORD THY GOD will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken." Deut. 18:15.

As we read in the first chapters of Exodus we find that the children of Israel became too numerous for the Egyptians to easily control. Therefore Pharaoh ordered that all of the Hebrew male children be killed at birth. About this time a son was born of a woman of the house of Levi. This mother hid her child in a basket among the rushes by the river, that he might escape death. Pharaoh's daughter found the babe and adopted him.

Do we remember that Christ was born lowly just as was Moses? Christ was born in a stable and there was no soft warm bed in which to lay him. . . Moses was born of a people who were slaves in Egypt. Christ and Moses' lives were both threatened when they were very young. Christ's, as well as Moses' life was saved because He had a great work to perform.

Moses was brought up in the royal family of Egypt. "By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." Heb. 11:24, 25.

Christ had an equal chance to enjoy the pleasures of sin as shown in Matt. 4:8, 9. "Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; and said unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me."

One day as Moses was among his people he saw an Egyptian beating one of the Hebrew slaves. Moses killed the Egyptian but soon was compelled to flee to the land of Midian because Pharaoh learned what he had done and desired to kill him.

When Moses went into the land of Midian he was forty years old. He remained there until he was eighty years of age, then God called him to deliver the children of Israel out of bondage of slavery. It is worthy to note that Moses spent two-thirds of his life in preparing himself for his great life work. Christ spent most of His life in preparing Himself for His great work. Many of our great men of to-day have used a large part of their lives in making themselves ready to do the thing they plan to do. Henry Ford was a poor man until he was about forty years old. His wealth to-day shows us that his years of preparation were not wasted. Do not hesitate to give your son a complete education. If he has been brought up correctly his education will not lead him astray.

Christ's work and the work given to Moses were very similar. Christ was commissioned to free mankind from the penalty of death which was placed upon Him because of Adam's sin. Moses' life work was to free the Israelites from the bondage of slavery.

After Moses had talked with God he went back to Egypt with the power to perform miracles, that his people might believe him. Christ was given power to heal the sick and afflicted as a means of showing to the people who He was.

Moses first asked Pharaoh to let the Hebrew people go into the desert for a short time to worship their God, but he would not consider it. Moses told him he would bring plagues upon him and his people but Pharaoh would not even let the people go for a space of three days. Moses had many trials and temptations during his work. Christ also was tried many times such as His suffering in the garden of Gethsemane the night on which He was betrayed and also His temptations by the devil.

Through the power of God Moses brought many plagues upon the Egyptian people but Pharaoh would not release them. After the night of the passover all of the children of Israel went out from Egypt all of their goods with them. Pharaoh was willing that they should be gone but after they had been gone for a short time he sent his soldiers and chariots after them. When the Israelites saw that they could not go farther on account of the Red Sea they repented that they had ever left Egypt because they knew the Egyptians would kill them. But Moses still had faith in God. He stretched forth his hand over the sea as the Lord had told him, the sea divided and a path of dry land appeared. The people all passed to the opposite side, but the Egyptians were destroyed by the water when they attempted to follow.

While God's people were in the wilderness God gave Moses the ten commandments to give to them. We see that Christ also was a Lawgiver. He gave us the two commandments: "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these." Mark 12:30, 31.

Christ and Moses were similar in character. We find in Numbers 12:3 that Moses was meeker than any man upon the earth. Jesus was also very meek and humble as shown in John 13:4. "He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poured water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded." "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." Phil. 2:5-8.

DID CHRIST PREEXIST?

By R. H. Judd

AND NOW, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was."—John 17:5.

Do these words necessarily teach the preexistence of CHRIST?

How frequently are we enjoined to meditate on GOD'S WORD. When King David of Israel says, in his incomparable Book of Psalms,

"I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate in the night watches" he surely touches a cord of deeply human interest. Personally, I must confess that many of the most helpful thoughts have come to me as I have in this manner sought to follow out my studies in GOD'S WORD, and the thoughts I now wish to express were obtained along these very lines.

It is not, dear friends, the amount of reading which we cover that we receive abiding benefit from, but only that which we have read with an understanding heart which is of real service in our spiritual life, to ourselves and to others.

Many have sought an explanation of the words contained in John 17:5, and perhaps most of them have given us something that is helpful, but not one of them, so far as I am able to recollect, endeavors to explain the passage by direct appeal to the surrounding context. Generally speaking, I think we may safely say that no matter what the subject may be, the elucidation that is most likely to give the desired heartfelt assurance that it is the correct one, is almost invariably based upon a consideration of the setting of the passage. The writer feels that these remarks eminently apply to John 17:5. The verse is widely quoted by believers in the preexistence of our Savior before His birth in Bethlehem of Judea, and is regarded as conclusive proof of their belief. But no essential point is really proved until that position has been reached which demonstrates without doubt that no other hypothesis will so well fit the conditions. The writer believes that the main question of the preexistence of CHRIST can be thus demonstrated to be unscriptural; also unsound from a logical point of view. With that accomplished, the necessity for seeking an exegesis of our text would be automatically done away, so far as it affects that issue. The passage, however, remains and in view of the remarks just made, the inevitable and only possible conclusion remaining is that there must be some other exegesis of the passage.

An examination will at least be of interest, and possibly informative also and this may perhaps best be accomplished through inquiry.

1. What was CHRIST'S prayer in this verse?

Ans. "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was".

2. Did not Christ pray for the glory now, that He had with the Father before the world was?

Ans. Yes, He wanted that glory (whatever it was) then.

3. Did He get it in answer to prayer?

Ans. Yes. See verse 22, "The glory which thou hast given (R. V.) me, I have given unto them." Then the ideas we have held of the glory that He had with the Father before the foundation of the world, must surely be mistaken, for the disciples have the same given to them.

4. What then was the glory which the mind of CHRIST was so centered upon obtaining?

Ans. Going back to the early verses of the chapter we find that the whole subject matter of His prayer, is prayer not for Himself, but for His followers; viz. "Those whom thou hast given me". See verses 6, 9, 24. The passing of LIFE to succeeding generations was the crowning glory of His gifts to mankind—indeed of all life, and no people on this earth realized this as did the Jew. "Be fruitful and multiply" was the command, and "Happy is he who hath his quiver full of them," is King David's comment upon the same subject. The crown of "glory" is the crown of "LIFE". In John 17:10 CHRIST said, "I am glorified in THEM." Do you catch the thought? Paul said of the Thessalonian Christians, "Ye are our glory".

Now for the next question, then surely your heart will burn within you at the wondrous news GOD'S WORD reveals.

5. WHEN was this "glory" given to Him—the glory of the seed that shall serve Him, and be accounted to the Lord for a generation?

Ans. See Eph. 1:4, 5. "According as he (God) hath chosen us in him (Christ) before the foundation of the world, . . . having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasures of his will."

THEN IT IS TRUE that Christ had glory with the Father before the foundation of the world? Our Savior knew the Scriptures as no man ever knew them before or since, and He knew, even better than Paul, "what were the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints." That was the glory Christ had with the Father before the world was—the glory of giving life, ETERNAL LIFE "to as many as thou hast given him", and in that same sense, GOD who cannot lie, promised Paul eternal life before the world began.

To epitomize the foregoing:

We have shown that "the glory" promised Christ was the glory of His inheritance in THE SAINTS; or in other words, as we have also shown, that He was to have the joy all creation shares in giving life to others. But in contrast to them the life He gives is eternal life—"length of days for ever and ever," even as His Father had promised Him.

Is it not clear therefore that if the saints are themselves "the glory" referred to (and there would seem to be no question of that) then they also must have preexisted for Him to have had "glory with the Father before the world was."

That the saints preexisted, none of our readers will admit. Therefore, the only conclusion possible is that as the saints were "foreordained before the foundation of the world", so also was Christ. If they did not pre-exist He did not either. The verse thus considered with the context actually disproves the preexistence theory.

"I pray not for these alone, but for them also which shall believe through their word." "Thou hast the words of ETERNAL LIFE."

In "The Village Blacksmith" Longfellow portrays the wholesome life of a man "who looks the whole world in the face for he owes not any man."

BLINDNESS

THERE IS ONE BLIND person in every thousand: more than two million blind people in the world. But the Lord only knows the proportion of the spiritually blind. However, He informs us that there is a time coming when there shall not be one physically not spiritually blind person on the earth.

Of the more than two million people that God brought out of Egypt "There was not one feeble person among their tribes", Psa. 105:37. This surely includes physical blindness.

If God, through Moses, could do this—and He did—He will do greater things through a greater than Moses, His Son. For, ". . . for this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil," 1 John 3:8.—S. E. Haney,

BETTER THAN ALL

"He was better to me than all my hopes.
He was better than all my fears;
He made a bridge of my broken work,
And a rainbow of my tears.

"The billows that guarded my sea-grit past
Carried my Lord on their crest;
When I dwell on the days of my wilderness march
I can lean on His love for rest".

STEPPING STONES OR STUMBLING BLOCKS?

By Lottie E. Young

THE LAW given by Moses on Mt. Sinai to the Israelites has been called a negative law, with its "thou shalt not kill," "thou shalt not steal," "thou shalt not bear false witness," etc., as contrasted with the positive law given by Jesus Christ on the Mt. of Olives, with its "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you." The reward to the children of Israel for keeping (or trying to keep) the Mosaic Law was to be a temporal one: "Blessed shalt thou be in basket and in store"; "Blessed shall ye be in your going in and out of city and of field." But the promised blessing of Jesus is immeasurably higher: "That ye might be the children of your Father which is in heaven."

The Apostle Paul tells us in Rom. 14:13, "Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumblingblock or an occasion to fall in his brother's way." From this we will see that there are some "must not's" in this law of grace about which Paul has been talking: we must not judge one another, and we must not put stumbling blocks in our brother's way.

How easy it is to pass judgment on everybody we know! The spirit of the old time Pharisees, "I am holier than thou", is by no means extinct in the world of to-day, and I presume there are none who have not passed judgment on somebody they knew, or did not know, believing they were very much the better. How often have we called somebody "stingy" when perhaps the money we would spend on trifles is being saved to do a good deed which our selfishness would not permit, or "disobliging" when something which could not be revealed prevented them from doing as you wished. We may, if we choose, make the worst of one another, or, we may forgive, even as we hope to be forgiven. We may put ourselves in the place of others and ask what we should wish to be done to us, or thought of us, were we in their places. By loving whatever is lovable in those around us, love will flow back from them to us; the desire to judge will vanish, and life will become a daily pleasure, and not a succession of irritating happenings, if we follow closer in the footsteps of Him whose name is Love.

Now for the second "must not." Here is an appropriate verse:—

"The little worries which we meet each day
May lie as stumbling stones across our way,
Or we may make them stepping stones to be
Of grace, O Lord, to thee."

What is the difference between stumbling blocks and stepping stones? The same thing may be used in either way. If we are continually thinking of and looking out for No. 1, unwilling to sacrifice anything to the happiness of another, our daily worries may be stumbling blocks, but if we are resolved to look on the sunny side of life; to bear without notice the sights and sounds which annoy us; to do seeming trifles which will be a help to others, but which may be something of a cross for us to perform; to look up and lift up constantly; then the acts cheerfully done will turn our stumbling blocks into stepping stones, lifting ourselves and others in an upward direction.

There are so many to be helped and comforted in this world; so much to be set right, that even the smallest of us with a resolute desire to be a helper and not a hinderer can find some work right at hand. Did you ever think how much of your own happiness depended on the way people treated you? The possible cross word at the breakfast table; the rude neighbor next to you in the car who crowded you more than was necessary; the whisper suddenly stopped when you entered the class room; the displeased glance when you reached your office, any of which will cast a shadow over your day. Trifles, yes, but life is made up of trifles.

Now if we turn the idea round we must remember that in like manner we are adding pleasure, or causing discomfort, to other lives, proving stepping stones to lead them up beyond the little things which annoy, or, through our own selfishness, being stumbling blocks to those who are weaker than we are. Whether any particular day shall bring to you more of happiness than suffering is largely beyond your power to determine, but whether each day of your life shall bring joy or sorrow to others, rests with you alone. Let us cultivate the habit of sympathy and love for all those with whom we come in contact.

Here are three negatives which are good ones to remember and constantly practice:—

Don't repeat all you hear, particularly disagreeable things.

Don't find fault and grumble, poisoning the atmosphere of all about you.

Don't be afraid to praise people; a kind word of appreciation is a beam of sunshine brightening many a day.

God is disappointed whenever a man dies without leaving the world better than when he found it,

"THERE WAS NEITHER HAMMER NOR AX NOR ANY TOOL OF IRON HEARD IN THE HOUSE, WHILE IT WAS IN BUILDING."—1 KINGS 6:7.

DURING THE REIGN of Solomon over the kingdom of Israel, one of the most beautiful temples the world has ever seen was built and dedicated to the worship of Jehovah.

David, the father of Solomon and king before him, had long desired to build a house "unto the name of the Lord his God," but enemy nations on every hand had so molested him that death had come to him before even the building of the temple had begun. When Solomon came to the throne peace reigned throughout the kingdom, and so he immediately set about to accomplish the dream his father had cherished.

In the early chapters of first Kings we are given a detailed description of the building of this temple, and of the costly timbers, stones and gold of which it was composed. Nothing but the finest of materials was used, for the house was to be the dwelling-place of the Most High God.

One of the most unusual things about the building of this temple is the fact that it "was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron heard in the house, while it was in building."

There is a beautiful application of this truth that we may carry over to the antitype, the spiritual temple or the church of God which is in preparation to-day.

Writing to the Ephesian brethren, Paul says that they are "of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone".

The foundation for this spiritual temple was prepared through many generations of faithful men, who were shaped and fitted for their places in this building and then laid away, "God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect,"

Throughout the years since Christ, the chief Corner Stone, was perfected, God has been selecting and making ready the timber, the stone and the fine gold which shall compose a temple far outshining the temple of Solomon in glory and in beauty that shall endure throughout eternity.

"Ye also, as lively stones", says Peter, "are built up a spiritual house". One by one, from here and there and yonder, God is selecting the stones for His temple. They are hewn out of the rocks of life, cut and shaped and polished by its trials and persecutions; then they are quietly laid away. When the full number of stones is completed, then God will assemble them all and, as in the days of old, the new temple will go together without the sound of any hammer or ax or any human assistance in its construction. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

Let us be patient to-day with the cutting and the polishing, in order that tomorrow when the assembling comes we may fit into the glorious temple of the living God.

THANKSGIVING

GEORGE MATHESON, the well-known blind preacher of Scotland, said, "My God, I have never thanked Thee for my thorn. I have thanked Thee a thousand times for my roses, but not once for my thorn. I have been looking forward to a world where I shall get compensation for my cross; but I have never thought of my cross as itself a present glory.

"Teach me the glory of my cross; teach me the value of my thorn. Show me that I have climbed to Thee by the path of pain. Show me that my tears have made my rainbows."

STEWARDSHIP AND MISSIONS

THE JEWS all looked forward to a great Messiah coming in great power and splendor and setting up a resplendent kingdom. Jesus did not fulfill these hopes so most of them did not believe He was God's Son or was any greater than any other Jew. However, the disciples knew who He really was, although they could not understand why He did not set up the kingdom.

One day they said to Him, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" He replied that the time of the kingdom was not for them to know. God only knew that.

Nevertheless, they were to continue the work for which He had been preparing them. They were to receive the Holy Ghost—power from God—and then they could perform wonderful things as Jesus had done. They were then to go into other countries, near and far, and tell about Jesus. Jesus gladly helped anyone in need. Therefore, the disciples were to help and teach others to help wherever help was needed.

Later, Paul became an ardent disciple of Jesus and spent all his strength and effort in working for Jesus and the church. He wrote a letter to the Christians at Corinth telling them how God had blessed the churches in Macedonia. "They were poor and had many troubles, yet they were full of joy in the Lord. Their joy in Jesus made them glad to give sympathy, kindness and help to others in need. They were willing to give even more than they were able to spare. They asked the privilege of helping needy Christians in Judea. First, they gave themselves, and then all they possessed to the Lord and His service, and for those in need. Paul entreated the Christians at Corinth to give as those at Macedonia had given. He urged them to continue the work of giving which they had begun."

He reminded them that Jesus had set them the example of giving. Jesus gave His all—His life.

Thus it becomes us as Christians to give—first ourselves, then of our material blessings. We can give something no matter how little we are, nor how little we are able to give. We can give our thought and of our time to doing good. We can work in many ways to help others.

The other day a Christian woman said she tried always to say yes when asked to take part in any Christian work.

Of course, you all know about giving one penny out of every ten, or one dollar out of every ten. We are told that tenth belongs to God. And in these teachings the apostles were trying to further the work of the church and carry on Jesus' teachings. They were trying to help care for God's people and the things that belong to Him.

In his letter to the Ephesians Paul said, "Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."—(Quoted parts from Junior Teacher's Quarterly.)

Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.—1 Cor. 4:2.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

STEWARDSHIP

The servants of Christ are made stewards along many lines and in many ways.

Of Power. All power in man is the gift of God. Did man rightly direct it, there would be no sin, no wrong. Man is a steward for the right use of all God-given power.

To the apostles and Christians who consecrate themselves to God's Son, Christ promised a special measure of power through the reception of God's Spirit. Attention is called to the faithfulness with which the apostles used such increased power. They spake with tongues, Acts 2:4. Peter healed the lame man, Acts 3:6. The apostles healed the multitude, Acts 5:12. Stephen testified of God and Christ, even to the suffering of martyrdom, Acts 7. Philip evangelized the eunuch, Acts 8:29-39. Ananias instructed Saul in Damascus, Acts. 9:10-18. Peter was missionary to Cornelius, Acts 10:19. Paul healed the cripple, Acts 14:8. Paul devoted his entire being on three missionary journeys. The whole history of Christianity from Acts 2 to Rev. 22 reveals the faithfulness of stewardship by the apostles and the early Christians of the power which God entrusted to them as followers of Christ.

All God's gifts are for the efficiency of the recipients. They are not mere gems to be laid aside in a treasure box, or to be valued as the property of self centered men. They are for service in advancing the construction and growth of God's eternal purposes. From the unfaithful steward God can as readily withdraw His gifts as He can increasingly bestow them upon the faithful one.

Christians to day are as greatly responsible for their stewardship of God's power as were Christians of the early church. They are equally responsible also for that perfection of consecration to Christ which entitles them to the reception of increasing measures of God's Spirit, and its accompanying power and ability. They are further responsible to the Father as active energetic witnesses of the gospel to carry and proclaim its truths and its riches to dying fellows, not alone for the uplift of those fellows, but, for the greater service of honoring the Savior who is first in responsibility before God for redemption from sin and all of its vile effects.

Of God's Worldly Goods. "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof", Psa. 24:1. "The gold and the silver are mine." It is only by usurpation that man can declare lands or gold or any other temporal thing as belonging to himself instead of God, the Creator and rightful Owner thereof. Lands and all temporal things were again and again measured out to Israel because of her faithfulness. But with every increase of strength resulting from these blessings, Israel was to increase in activity and efficiency of service toward God. Failure in these resulted in the withdrawal of her temporal blessings, her standing before God, and her standing before man.

Christianity is an individual matter, not

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Responsibility. A mother raising a family of children takes a great deal of joy and comfort in the girl that will carry responsibility. It is to be recognized that the majority will shirk at every possible chance, or do the task in a careless, disinterested way, so naturally the mother's heart warms to the girl who can be trusted to do and to do it well.

The greatest parent of all is our heavenly Father. He has laid out a work to be done, and has asked you and me to take an interest in His plan, and see that the work is accomplished. It is an opportunity. Very naturally the majority of persons do and will shirk the responsibility of seeing that the Lord's work is done. That is to be expected. But what a comfort to the Father's heart when He observes one that is truly conscientious, who will really do His will in spite of all criticism, who wants to see the cause prosper, and will use his own strength and ability to the limit, realizing that even his body belongs to God. That is a real steward. God's highest rewards will be granted to them who have manifested true stewardship.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Here, moreover, it is required in stewards that faithful one be found."—1 Cor. 4:2, Roth.

Every true follower of Christ is a steward and the Lord requires of him faithfulness. It is necessary, therefore, that we take heed not to neglect, pervert, betray, or deal slightly in our trust. Therefore, strive to be faithful to God; faithful to the truth of Christ; faithful to those to whom we minister, giving that meat in due season; and last of all faithful to thine own self.—F. A. S.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Foreign Missions.

"And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." —Matt. 24:14.

Foreign missions are working to save all nations by the preaching of the gospel so that Jesus will come and dwell in a place made fit by man for Him. But Jesus says that the gospel must be preached in all nations for a witness. When Jesus comes amid turmoil and dire need of strong leadership, the gospel of His coming and kingdom will have been preached and published in every nation that each nation may have a testimony explaining and supporting the wondrous event. Thus man plans and labors to accomplish what seems best and right, and God uses what he does to accomplish what He knows to be best and right. And His purpose is almost accomplished. Not long since, a missionary going to Thibet said that that country is the last country to be opened to Christian missionaries and that there is now no country closed to them.

Foreign missions have done much for people through medicine, hygiene education, but their greatest work is scattering the printed Word far and near, and this is the truly spiritual work accomplished through them.—A. K.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Our Stewardship.

A steward is one who has charge of another's property. A good steward is one who manages that property successfully.

All things belong to God. We are but His stewards. Even our very life belongs to Him; therefore we should use it to the best advantage.

Again in the second part of our lesson Paul in writing to the Corinthians tells of a wonderful work that had been done by the Macedonians. They contributed freely to the poor saints at Jerusalem, but Paul says, "They first gave their own selves to the Lord."

All things are God's, we are His stewards. Which shall we be: a good and faithful steward, or an unworthy one?—V. C. T.

TOPICS FOR STUDY AND DISCUSSION

Jesus as a Missionary: Was He foreign in the preaching and works that He did personally? Was He a foreign Missionary in spirit and heart? When and through whom did He begin to carry out His foreign missionary spirit? Why are many of His professed followers lacking in the missionary spirit? —A. K.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Bro. and Sr. Earl Thayer and son Lyle of Aurora College, Aurora, Ill., spent Saturday night and Sunday, Mar. 9 and 10, with relatives and friends in Oregon, Ill.

The Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly for second quarter is now printed and about ready to mail. Have you ordered yours yet?

Bro. and Sr. Lewis Lindsay, of Rockford, Ill., made a real estate transfer and moved to 931 N. Court St., where they are comfortably located.

Due to impassable rural roads Bro. Marsh could not be at the Plum River and Adeline churches last Sunday and so gave the day to Dixon church. What is loss one place is often gain in another and the Dixon church is making splendid advancement. As soon as the roads get settled Bro. Marsh hopes to help put new spring life into the work at Plum River and Adeline.

Dear Editor:

I am a stranger to you, but wish to subscribe for the Restitution Herald. I saw a copy and liked it, so am enclosing two dollars.

I like to read the messages about Jesus and what He means to us all.

The church at Oregon, Ill., withdrew all services last week-end due to the effort on the part of the State Board of Health to prevent the spread of small pox, several cases of which had been discovered in the community.

Sore arms and (?) are very prevalent here as well as in Grand Rapids.

It gave us much pleasure to learn through a recent letter, that Bro. Lindsay is able to take up work with the Tempe brethren, after a delay of several months on account of his continued illness. Surely we have much to thank our heavenly Father for, in restoring Bro. Lindsay to his usual good health, and the work of our Master.
