Whoever would use the Bible, therefore, in the meeting of life's problems, must in the first place become at home in the book. His natural start will be to read it straight through from cover to cover. It is a big book, a blessedly big book, but this will not take so long as you may think. Bestow on the Bible only as much time as you give to the ephemeral novel or the still more perishable newspaper, and you will become familiar with it before you realize how much you have accomplished. There are sixty-six books in the Bible, but most of them are very short; many of the shortest are most precious and of the greatest practical assistance.

As you read the Bible straight through for the first time, you will get an introduction to many books whose loveliness and strength you had not known. Perhaps it will be Ephesians, perhaps Hosea, perhaps the Gospel of Mark, perhaps Deuteronomy, perhaps Acts. Whatever book it may be that attracts your special attention, that is the one next to claim intensively your time and thought.

Find some good commentary upon it. Book of the ages as it is, yet the Bible comes from another race, from ancient times, out of strange customs, and contains much that needs explanation of scholars before the full meaning of its words is clear to you. You cannot get along without commentaries. A very little time spent in really understanding a book of the Bible will make it a new and wonderful force in your life.

Having the commentary, you are then to read with it that book of the Bible over and over, until you have observed all the commentary has to offer and have opened up every line to your clear apprehension. Having done this, discard the commentary, and for many days read the book alone, repeatedly, until you are thoroughly at home in every part of it.

For the practical application of the Bible I want to recommend four methods. The first is the reading of the Bible by topics. You will seek to familiarize yourself with the leading verses and passages of the Bible bearing on some one theme, such as sorrow, or immortality, or courage, or wise speech. To this end you will need some book which classifies Bible texts and passages topically.

The second method is Bible marking, which renders your copy of the Bible trebly significant to you. The plan I advocate is simply placing in the margin letters which stand for different topics, as "sr" for sorrow, "im" for immortality, "cr" for courage, "sp" for wise speech, to take the themes mentioned above. Make your own list of contractions, and if you use cross references, placing under each contraction the page where the next verse occurs, you will be able to read the Bible by topics.

The third method is Bible memorizing. This is the most helpful of all, because it places at your instant disposal the parts of the Bible that mean the most to you, whether the book is at hand or not. I think most of the plan of chain memorizing—committing to memory a series of Bible verses on matters most likely to come up often, such as worry, difficulty, temptation, work, envy, or perseverance. With these passages in mind, you can say them over to yourself in the wakeful night hours or in times of sickness, or you can use them to cheer, encourage, and help those who need such aid. This is like a first-aid kit in a battle, or like emergency medicines carried in your automobile as you journey, worth at times a whole apothecary shop at home, far out of sight and reach.

The fourth method is, of course, putting in practice the Bible with which you have thus made yourself acquainted. Make every day a Bible day. Read the book in long stretches, and keep on reading until you have come to some verse or passage which seems to fit exactly into your present need. Go forth into the day, determined to put it into practice, and at nighttime review the day in the light of the verse to see what you have done with it. It may be the familiar Prov. 15:1, "A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger." Most days furnish opportunity for the practical application of that proverb!

Add to this fruitful meditation over your Bible the great aid of prayer. If you have doubts, the Holy Spirit will remove them; if perplexities, the Holy Spirit will show you the way through them; if fears, the Holy Spirit will give you courage and good cheer. Place prayer alongside your Bible. Medicines are to be taken with water, and the Bible medicines with pure water of prayer. Never expect to get the most out of the Bible by yourself. It is God's book. God will interpret it to you if you ask Him. God will enforce it. God will bind its truths upon your heart and seal them in your life.

"Fear the man of one book" is an old saying. The meaning is that any one wise book, well mastered, will give its master a character to be respected, an influence to be heeded. I think the saying was originally used with regard to the Bible; at any rate, it applies preeminently to it. Men of this one book are men of light and leading. They are the real rulers of the world. Men look to them for counsel and aid at all times, as they look to no others.

The time to set out upon this Bible mastery is youth. It is better late than never, of course; but the Bible is so massive a volume; it ranges so far; it lifts itself so high; it extends to such depths, that you cannot begin too soon to work upon it and let it work upon you. Make it your friend in youth, and it will conduct you to a sagacious, prosperous, strong, and blessed old age. Nay, it will go with you endlessly, and will be your companion through all the long reaches of eternity.—By Amos R. Wells.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 17, 1931

NUMBER 24

Your Status in the Kingdom

By Samuel E. Haney

"For I say unto you, Among those that are born of women, there is not a greater than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he."—Luke 7:28.

THE PERSONNEL of the inhabitants of the kingdom of God has always been a perplexing question to most Christians, despite the many definite, elucidating texts on the subject. The Lord is here drawing a comparison between the degradation of the race, as the result of sin, and the exalted characteristics of that portion of earth's inhabitants, residing under the regime of King Jesus, who had experienced the "change" of 1 Corinthians 15:51 and 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18.

Although none greater than John has been born of woman, he sinks into insignificance when compared with one who is least in the kingdom of God. No language contains words that can excel this superlative picture of the exalted standard of righteousness and holiness of earth's inhabitants of the next age. There should therefore be no question as to Jesus' object in here bringing to our attention these antithetical conditions produced by sin against righteousness.

When Jesus assumes control of the affairs of this old planet, there is going to be a thorough housecleaning. All parasites of society, business, etc.—everything proved to have been inimical to righteousness, peace and life—will be forever eradicated.

"A froward heart shall depart from me; I will not know a wicked person. Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I cut off ('destroy', R. V.): him that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I suffer ('be able to endure', Rotherham). Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me: he that walketh in a perfect way, he shall serve me, ('attend me', Roth.). He that worketh deceit shall not dwell within my house; he that telleth lies shall not tarry ('not be established', Roth.) in my sight. I will early destroy all the wicked of the land; that I may cut off all wicked doers from the city of the Lord."—Psa. 101:4-8.

This is to be the work of King Jesus, reigning on His father David's throne, and of those reigning with Him. See Luke 1:32; Rev. 2:26, 27; 3:21; Isaiah 28:21, 22; Romans 9:28.

Even those of us who have experienced the difference between the bleak winds of a barren, dreary winter, and the sweet, balmy, summer breeze of eventide, fall far short of correctly foreseeing the discrepancy between the old and new order of things, and of visualizing the rapid and radical spiritual and material revolution to be wrought in bringing about a "new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." 2 Peter 3:13.

John saw "a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there shall be no more sea"—Rev. 21:1.

How restrictive and exclusive the new order of things is to be! "And there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life". Rev. 21:27.

In these strenuous days of moral depravity, what a comfort it is to know of a certainty pleasant things to be permanently enjoyed in the near future—none to injure, nor kill! The Christian who is not enjoying just such a glorious anticipation is either designedly or indifferently ignoring God's provisions for the present emergency. He says to you and me: "A stainless highroad shall appear, its name The Sacred Way; no soul unclean shall tread it, no impious foot shall wander o'er it: no lions shall ever haunt it, no wild beast shall leap on it; but on it the redeemed shall walk, those whom the Eternal has set free; they come home to Sion singing, crowned with an unending joy; joy and gladness overtake them, sorrow and sighs forsake them"—"None shall injure, none shall kill, says the Eter-

(Continued on page 376)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself."—Romans 14:7.

FAITH OR SIN

“WHATSOEVER is not of faith is sin.”

Thus concludes one of Paul's reasonings to the Romans, where in chapter fourteen he is exhorting those strong in faith to protect and strengthen those who are weak therein. Although he claims that the individual who is truly in Christ is free from all bondage and all restraints imposed by carnal nature, yet he exhorts repeatedly that the faith of the weak brother, "for whom Christ died", shall not be destroyed by the liberty which one stronger in faith chooses to exercise. His conclusion in verse 23 is, "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin".

His Death Was Their Death. Writing his second epistle to the Corinthian church, Paul instructs in 5:14, "For the love of Christ overmasters us, the conclusion at which we have arrived being this—that One having died for all, His death was their death, and that He died for all in order that the living may no longer live to themselves, but to Him who died for them and rose again."—Weymouth. Here as elsewhere Paul teaches that he who accepts Christ in deed and in truth becomes, in principle, dead to the old carnal dominion over man.

In Romans 6: 3, he announces that those who are baptized are baptized into Christ's death. Here, to the Corinthians, he writes, "If one died for all, then were all dead." Or as Weymouth puts it, "His death was their death." That is, if Christ died to sin, Romans 6:10, so those who in Him die, likewise die to sin. His death is their death.

But death, whether natural or figurative, only prepares the individual for life, even life of a different order. Therefore Paul writes to the Corinthians, in his second epistle, 5:15, "They which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again." Life in Christ is made possible only by previous death. "Baptized into Christ's death." "His death was their death."

Not Unto Themselves. As the individual accepts death in order to receive life, even new life, even life as a "new creature in Christ Jesus", this all having been made possible by Christ's death for us, Paul's just conclusion is that those which thus come to new life should no longer "live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again." Their whole being, their whole aim, their whole activity should be devoted unto Christ who died for them and rose again. And thus not only is made possible but also is brought to pass their new life—a life in Him.

Faith Conquers. Such a devotion, dedication and consecration unto Christ can be exercised only by implicit faith. He who by faith in Christ renounced and killed off the old life, and who by faith in Christ appealed to Him to be lifted unto Christ's own new life, has done so wholly and truly because of his faith. Also he who thus lives the new life in Christ is taught by Paul that he cannot live such life excepting as prompted, directed, instructed of Christ himself.

In other words, everything that that individual does from early morn till late at night should be a work that is prompted by the individual's faith in Christ. New life in Christ, lived justly and completely, leaves no room for any work whatsoever that is not the work of faith.

If Not of Faith It Is Sin. Indeed, as stated at the beginning, "What soever is not of faith is sin." The very fact that the individual does act upon his own carnal initiative, the very fact that he thus holds himself aloof from God's guiding Spirit and Word is conclusive that the individual is prompted, not by God nor by his faith in God, but by his own purely carnal judgment. This leaving of God, letting go of Him, even for the moment or the hour to labor for carnal self, this turning away from God is the act which is in itself sin.

There are but two possible leadings; one from God, the other from man himself. He who turns to serve self rather than God is in that respect turning to sin. Faith in God submits every aim, every earnest desire, every meditated labor, to God for His approval.

"Whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

YEA, YEA; NAY, NAY

How wavering is man's judgment! Yesterday he made a social, or business, or political decision; today he reverses it.

After all, that is the best he can do—for he cannot, with any accuracy, foresee, or see. Could you have correctly foreseen, you would not have purchased that farm or that house a short time ago. Neither would you have invested in stocks, nor bonds, nor other properties—no, nor even silver.

But God wavers not. His word is not Yea, and then, Nay.

Nor does our Savior waver. He moved always by implicit faith in His Father. When He began a work, it was under God's guidance. There were to be no changes—no reverse decisions. Read 2 Corinthians 1:17-20.

Faith in God imposes all upon Him. Man reserves nothing in himself. When all is placed with God or Christ, and man follows divine guidance, there is no place to waver, no place to change to "Nay". To do so would be to withdraw faith and to turn again to self.

GETHSEMANE, GABBATHA, GOLGOTHA

GABBATHA—the pavement. No one knows just where it was located. It seems to have been the last court to which our Lord was taken to receive his final sentence from Rome. We could linger here a long time. It is the place of great suffering for our blessed Lord.

The hour had come when the rabble approached Christ, led by Judas, into the garden. Judas knew this place well. Here Jesus declared: "This is your hour and the power of darkness". Luke 22:52-53. For ages the wrath of man against God had been pent up, but now it must break loose! Here the mighty torrent of hatred was poured forth against the spotless One.

Someone has said: "In John's Gospel, more than in the synoptic Gospels, we find what was subsequent to the anguish of Gethsemane, the details fully corresponding with the character of the Gospel—the Gospel of Deity—and the 'Burnt offering' aspect of our Lord's voluntary sacrifice."

After Judas kissed the Lord, the priests and emissaries of Satan and the rulers came to seize Him. The Lord calmly said: "Whom seek ye?" They answered Him, "Jesus of Nazareth." He answered as a flash: "I am HE"! But no hand was laid upon Him. The Yahveh of the Old Testament had said, "Go tell them I AM has sent you." Israel had then heard the great name! But Christ's, "I AM", awed them! This flash of His glory made them fall to the ground!

Gethsemane is over. Christ is ready to drink the cup of Calvary! Blessed Sufferer! Again He says: "Whom seek ye?" They say: "Jesus of Nazareth." He then says: "If ye seek me, let these (my dear disciples) go their way." And why? That the Scripture might be fulfilled: "Of whom thou gavest me, I have lost none." The Shepherd must be smitten, and the sheep will be scattered (Zech. 13:18).

Power and glory were right there! But Peter didn't sense that, and he took his sword to protect his Lord! Peter loved Christ tenderly, affectionately, but he did not appreciate Christ's place in the Old Testament prophets. Christ was perfectly obedient and showed Peter that the sword is only a weapon of destruction, if used.

Judas' hard and profane heart, and Peter's carnal energy were out in bold relief there! Oh, the pity, love, tenderness, holiness, sinlessness of the Son of God in the presence of that mob!

He allowed himself to be bound, "led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so he opened not his mouth". Acts 8:32. Taken, as John alone tells us, before Annas first, in quiet dignity He referred to the testimony of His words, and when one, more open in his contempt and profanity, struck Him, the holy Sufferer bore the insult without a murmur, Peter in his epistle bearing witness that when "persecuted he threatened not"! Oh, that we might drink more deeply into His Spirit.

From Annas He was sent to Caiaphas, the man who had given counsel to the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people. He would offer Him up at the Roman altar to ensure their peace and favor with Rome. The Holy Spirit, however, turned the words to better account, using it as prophetic of a Savior, the result of whose work would "gather together in one the children of God scattered abroad". John 11:5, 21.

Before the ecclesiastical court the council sought false witnesses against the holy Prisoner "to put him to death". How base and wicked can men be, and yet withal deeply religious and apparently genuinely zealous! Here he was charged with "blasphemy"—later, before Pilate, the charge was "rebellion"! The charge before Caiaphas was a real one, "He has made himself the Son of God".—John 19:7.

They had been stung to madness by His words in the parable of the vineyard (Matt. 21), and knew the implication of the words, "This is the heir; come, let us kill him and seize on his inheritance." Now they were carrying out their base purpose, and were ready to swear anything, or do anything, if only He might be put to death. Under oath, He was commanded to reply if he was "the Christ the Son of God." To this He could give but one answer, "Thou hast said."

Thus He became His own witness, maintaining the truth of His own previous testimony, and gloriously, eternally, added: "Henceforth shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven."

This was characteristic of the testimony of Matthew's Gospel. There we find the heads of the nation lashed to fury against the Savior, their unrestrained passion surging against Him, while they cried, "He is guilty of death." The high priest—as if in holy horror—rent his robe, and declared the trial ended. The farcical trial ended, the Holy One was condemned, the full tide of evil passion which had been the true incentive, flowed forth unrestrained.

He then came before Pilate. Entire submission and
(Continued on page 378)

GOD'S WORLD

I'm glad I am living this morning,
Because the day is so fair,
And I feel God's presence so keenly
About me, everywhere.

The heavens declare His glory,
The trees seem to speak of His power,
And I see His matchless beauty
In each small growing flower.

The rocks all tell of His wonder;
In the hills His strength I see;
And the birds are singing His praises
In the songs that they sing to me.

I read in the daylight His greatness,
And the night speaks again of His power;
The raindrops talk of His kindness
In each refreshing shower.

Oh, I'm glad to be living this morning,
In a world of beauty so rare,
Where the God of heaven is hovering
About me everywhere.

—Mildred Keeling.

NAMES THAT LIVE

How soon oblivion buries the names of the dead! There are men, yet living, who are forgotten by the world, though a few years since their names resounded far and near. How many names are known of the myriads who lived in the dark ages? How many persons are remembered who lived five hundred years ago? Of the five millions whom Xerxes led to Greece, each had a father, a mother, a birthplace, and a name, but how many are now recollected?

Less than thirty names are left on record of all the myriad hosts that peopled the world before the deluge. How few names are recorded among those contemporary with Abraham, and Moses, and David! And yet, through all those ages and generations, the world was teeming with life, and tumult, and activity, and swarming with a restless, ambitious, fame-seeking multitude.

And of the world's proudest conquerors, what remains? A broken statue, a crumbled marble slab, an ancient ruin, or a rusted and battered "copper", over which some withered, gray-haired antiquary pores, till he finally concludes that somebody, with some sort of an outlandish name, lived sometime, he does not know when, somewhere, he cannot find out where; and did something, he is unable to ascertain what.

Such is fame, O mortal! You seek it; you gain it; you glory in it; but you cannot keep it. The next tide washes your footprints from the strand. Your voice dies away—an empty tremor lost in silent air. Your record is sponged off the blackboard, to make room for new stories of heroes, harlequins, and fools.

Your poster, large and elegant as you please to make it, is hustled into the rag bag, and some new attraction is posted where it stood so prominently. And you are dead, buried, and your boundless aspirations find their utmost limit. A little earth covers you; a little worm devours you; and the great headlong world rushes madly over you, or carts your mouldering bones away to the potter's field, and runs a railway track across your grave.

And yet there are names that live. Cain is not forgotten. Pharaoh, buried in the Red Sea, needs no monument to record his history. Herod, the murderer of innocents, and Pilate, the crucifier of the Lord, are held in remembrance. Even Porphyry, and Celsus, and the imperial apostate Julian, are not entirely unknown, for the advocates of that gospel which they derided, have preserved some faint memorials of men who otherwise would have sunk below the soundings of human recollection.

But who would covet the fame of Balaam, or Jezebel, or Judas Iscariot, or Caiphas the high priest? And yet, many have sought notoriety, and found themselves notorious; have grasped for fame, and plunged into infamy.

There is a true fame, which often comes unsought. The dark-skinned Cyrenian, "the father of Alexander and Rufus", started for Jerusalem one morning, humble and unknown. But when rough soldiers laid upon him the rugged cross of the wearied Son of God, and compelled him to bear it, they twined immortal honors round his unknown name. Though nineteen centuries have rolled away, the song still rises:

"Must Simon bear the cross alone,
And all the world go free?
No, there's a cross for every one,
And there's a cross for me."

There were many who gave gifts and sounded trumpets before men, to make sure that their charity should not be forgotten. Who they were or what they gave, we know not. But sharply outlined in the memory of mankind, stands the figure of the pale widow, who cast her two mites into the treasury chest, beside which Jesus sat with observant eyes.

There was, no doubt, many an honorable councilor in Jerusalem, and many who had been seeking for honor all their days. But all are forgotten save one, and his fame rests not on his learning, or his law, but on his going at twilight to beg the body of a Nazarene, who was crucified between two robbers, bearing it tenderly away, and laying in in his own new tomb.

There were many daughters of Jerusalem, no doubt, who had pride, and vanity, and love of fame, but they have no record like that of her whose grateful tears were shed on Jesus' feet, and whose precious ointment was poured upon His sacred head. Wherever Christ's gospel has been

(Continued on page 377)

DID JESUS PERSONALLY PREEXIST?

By George B. Alldridge

FORTY-FIVE years ago the writer was under the care of a Hindu oculist, named Goolab Shah. His assistant and interpreter, Eli Buck, was educated and informed regarding various religious doctrines and beliefs of the most prominent faiths including his own, namely, Mohammedan.

One day after treating my eyes, he said, "Mr. Alldridge, how many God's do you worship?" For a moment I felt embarrassed. A Unitarian minister present, who was also a patient, began to laugh.

I replied, "Eli, one God, of course."

He answered, "Why then are you sending missionaries to India who teach us or rather are trying to, that you worship three Gods, God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost?"

By this time I was on my mettle and, rather warmly, I replied, "Because this is a great mystery. Why are you making fun of it?" My Unitarian friend now burst out laughing uproariously. I said, "What are you laughing at? You are no better than the heathen."

He countered, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

But Eli saw I was uneasy, and so he began to press his point. "Are your Gods immortal?" he asked.

This to me was an easy question, and so I quickly said, "Yes".

Then he said, "Can an immortal being die?"

I said, "No".

Then he stunned me by saying, "Did Jesus, God the Son, die?" What could I say?

I meekly replied in a low tone of voice, "Yes". Then I became garrulous and launched forth along the lines so well known and used by those who are known as "Trinitarians".

After I stopped for want of more arguments, he said these words that are now still fresh in my mind, "Young man, you do not know your Bible."

"What! I exclaimed, "me, a Christian, and do not know my own Bible?"

He spoke now very quietly and said, "No, you do not; neither do your missionaries. At college we read your Bible and compared it with our Koran. Our Bible to us is far more comprehensible than yours, if the doctrines you teach are contained therein."

Recovering my eyesight, the next year I came to the United States. I united with the Presbyterians and was active in Sunday school and church work. In matters theological my mind was ill at ease, and so I began to drift. I tried the Christian Alliance, at whose head, at that time, was Rev. A. B. Simpson, a godly and sincere man.

Besides the trinity question, the question regarding the nature of man demanded a solution, and so the "Millennial Dawn" people, at their head the late Pastor Russell, looked good to me. For twenty years I was associated with them, always active. But one day I came across some Christadelphian literature in the public library. A new world of thought opened up before me and with the blind man of old I could say, "This I know, where I was blind, now I

(Continued on page 376)

ETERNAL REWARDS

By M. W. Lyon

NO QUESTION can be of greater personal significance to a man than the question of his eternal welfare. This being the case, it is indeed regrettable that the issues of eternity are so shrouded in obscurity that the average man knows not where to turn or what to believe. The Scriptures do not justify the existence of the multitudes of conflicting beliefs, which result in the confusion of religious thought that we have today, for the Book is very decisive on this point, and admits of no uncertainty as to what its statements mean.

It sets before us very clearly two, and only two, destinies which any man may expect to reach. One is eternal life, endless preservation of being; the other, death, or the cutting off of all being. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3: 16. This presents the two alternatives: according to our conduct in this life, we either "perish" or we receive "everlasting life".

Now it must be apparent to every thinking person that to live and to perish are diametrical opposites, and that each is exclusive of the other. Therefore, when the Scripture states that sinners are to perish, to be blotted out, to be burned up root and branch, to be as though they had not been, it does not mean that their lives are to be preserved eternally, either in hell or any other place. For if they were to be preserved in eternal conscious misery, in the very nature of things it would necessitate their having eternal life, which the Bible emphatically reiterates over and over again is reserved for the righteous alone.

The great question for every man to answer is not where he will spend eternity, but rather if he will spend eternity. Apostate theology, assuming the inherent immortality of the human soul, insists upon eternal bliss and eternal torment as the issues of life, denying pointblank the clearcut assertions of Scripture, which state these issues to be eternal life and death. The belief in universal immortality is the fundamental error which is the root of more chaos in religious thinking than any other one doctrine. Only when one comes to understand the Bible doctrine of conditional immortality, or life only through Christ, is he in position to understand even the simplest and most elemental truths of Scripture.—Editorial in Golden Rule News.

BAPTISM

By Roland Wright

BAPTISM is the divinely appointed memorial of the resurrection of Christ. The fact of the gospel is that "Christ died for our sins," and that He was buried, and rose again on the third day, to be our Savior. (1 Cor. 15:3, 4.)

Baptism is a profession of faith in Christ, who went into the grave for us and rose again to life. It is the great lesson to teach the truth that the sinful must die to sin and the world, and be resurrected to a new life of righteousness. Baptism is the means by which the believer confesses the work of grace in the heart.

The Scriptures teach the essential condition necessary to baptism:

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark 16:15, 16.

"What doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest." Acts 8:36, 37.

"Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Acts 2:38.

Thus it is seen that instruction in the gospel, belief in Christ, and repentance are the conditions to precede baptism.

The experience of which baptism is the sign is thus stated:

"We are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

"As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."—Galatians 3:27.

In Colossians 2:12 we find, "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead."

In this ordinance commanded of God, the believer is following the example of Christ, who, when baptized by John in Jordan, said, "Thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness."

The scriptural form of baptism is shown in these texts:

"Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water." Matt. 3:16.

"They went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him." Acts 8:38.

"Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: . . . For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Romans 6:4, 5.

The meaning of the word, baptize, is to immerse or plunge beneath. Scriptural baptism therefore is a burial "in the likeness" of Christ's burial, as the lifting up of a believer from the watery grave is a likeness of the resurrection of Christ.

THE BOOK OF BOOKS

THE BIBLE is the great life book. There is no other book like it. It stands alone in the world's vast libraries as the only volume worthy to be taken as a guide through the tangled paths of earthly existence. This is true for many reasons. This book alone has the divine stamp upon it.

Further, the Bible is the combined literature of the world's most religious race, the race whose history was peculiarly guided by God, manifestly God's people. This Bible-forming race produced a Savior, who became a Jew and ministered primarily to Jews, that He might ultimately gain the whole world. No other book has such a romantic, such an exceptional history.

The Bible is the most beautiful book in the world. It is the foundation of the world's greatest music, greatest architecture, and much of its greatest literature. It is no wonder that it has been and is the foundation of the lives of the world's greatest men and women.

No book but the Bible fits intimately and strongly into the needs and the problems of daily life. Whatever may be your trouble, take it to the Bible, and you will find help. Whatever perplexity may assail you in life, use the Bible, and it will bring you the only wise solution for it. Whatever success and joy may be granted you, the Bible will intensify it and teach you how to receive it with poise and how to make it permanent.

Nothing comes in life that is too great for the Bible. It has been and is the guide for the mightiest of earth's rulers, the keenest of earth's thinkers, the finest of earth's noble characters. There is nothing too small for the Bible. It is the comrade of the schoolboy as well as of the President. It aids in the kitchen as well as in the senate chamber. It fits the small affairs of time as well as the vast affairs of eternity.

All this, though it may seem absurd to the unbeliever in the Bible, is the happy, daily, and assured experience of the uncounted millions who have tried it, the uncounted army of the Book which is increasing every year. After all these centuries, the Bible remains the most popular book in the world, sold annually by millions while other books sell at best by the hundred thousand and then are speedily forgotten. Every year more copies of the Bible are made than the year before, to find their way into reverent and delighted use.

The Bible is no amulet to hang about the neck, no charm to be chanted in an emergency. It appeals to reason and judgment, and is to be won as a life friend only by diligent study. You may place a Bible on a table in every room of your house, but that will be fruitless unless you read it constantly, study it earnestly, and so imprint it upon your mind that its wisdom becomes instinctive with you.

—Selected.

Do NOT forget to send in those names and addresses of your friends for a copy of the Easter RESTITUTION HERALD. The cost is only Five Cents each.

SCANNING THE WEATHER SKY

By F. L. Austin

METEOROLOGISTS are stationed at frequent intervals over the land to keep a weather-eye upon the heavens. Their usefulness is to report in advance prospective weather conditions. Shippers of live stock are informed several days in advance as to how to prepare their stock for long shipment to market. Information is sent out which enables farmers, manufacturers, and others to anticipate weather conditions and to plan their labors accordingly.

The work of these public servants, though they make many erroneous predictions because of their inability to wholly and entirely comprehend weather conditions, is of great usefulness throughout the country. Many people habitually turn first to the weather report of the daily paper in order to ascertain what may be expected.

In a much larger way, looking upon a much broader field, and looking forward to even more momentous changes upon the world, there are other men and women, stationed throughout the country, who are scanning, not the astronomical meteorological heavens, but who are scanning the movements of society, the conditions of world business.

They are scanning human activity in general and by using the "keys" as given in the inspired Word of God, they are endeavoring to point out what may be anticipated in the way of the times in which we live and of approaching times. The reports of these people may have little direction and information relative to crops and seasonable weather for pleasure or for labor; but they do have wonderful bearing and indication as to new conditions that are likely to arise in the world, conditions which must eventually affect for weal, or for woe, the entire earth.

In the Jewish Missionary Magazine one, Mr. Thomas M. Chalmers is quoted as having reported as follows: "A great darkness is spreading over the earth, the darkness of coming judgment. It will be a judgment of war, famine, pestilence, earthquake, and other horrors. The multiplying inventions of men in the conquest of the earth, the sea, and the air are all hastening the crisis. Satan seizes upon them, manipulates them to his own deadly purposes, and deceives men into glorying over their achievements to the ignoring of God. It is said that the nations of Europe are far better prepared for war than in 1914.

"Unemployment is preparing the minds of millions for the deadly teachings of communism. The Russian peril is imminent, with Russia spending millions to broadcast her foul propaganda over the earth. With France fearful of war, Germany growing stronger daily and cherishing revenge in the minds of millions, with Italy restless for empire, the old world is shaping the stage for such a stupendous conflict as never was waged in all her history."

The Jewish Missionary Magazine is merely referring to conditions abroad in the earth as seen by that publication. When those conditions are compared with Bible predictions, prophecies pertaining to "the last days", they should breathe warnings to those who have faith, not so much in man's discoveries as to weather conditions, but faith in the revealed Word of God, which centuries ago foretold of human and social conditions that would prevail in the closing years of the Gentile era of dominion.

The one outstanding circumstance that has been prophetically announced is to this effect:

From the chosen nation Israel, which turned so ruthlessly away from her God centuries ago, God took sovereignty and dominion. In turn He gave sovereignty and dominion to the Gentiles. At first He placed Babylon as the leader of the Gentiles, to exercise dominion over Gentile and Israel alike. At the time when He thus changed the sovereignty from the power of His chosen nation to the power of those who were beyond the pale of His chosen nation, He distinctly declared that such Gentile sovereignty should continue throughout a long period, after which it would be returned from the Gentiles to Israel.

When General Allenby, under the light of the morning dawn of that quiet December day in 1917, without the firing of a gun or the drawing of a sabre, marched his army through David's gate into the old city of David, and took possession of it in the name of England and of the allied powers, he did a thing which the world, as a whole, little understood. Since that day Gentile nations have been conferring, and agreeing, and assisting along the line of rehabilitating the Jewish element of the Israelitish nation within the boundaries of the God-given land which surrounds Jerusalem, the city of God.

More rapidly and more securely than much of the world realizes, this reestablishment has been progressing. This does not mean to say that the Jewish people are returning to Jerusalem to abide there for all time. Far from it! Prophecy is definite that they will yet again be torn from their land. But it does indicate most definitely that the word of God, revealed to Daniel and others twenty-five hundred years ago, is being fulfilled.

Comparisons of scripture with scripture, as the weather man compares one meteorological fact with another, reveals to us that in this process of changing from Gentile world sovereignty to Israelitish world sovereignty, there will be many serious conflicts, the results of which will be the veritable upheaval of society and of conditions in general. These conflicts are not all to be conflicts of national war. Many of them, in fact most of them, will be conflicts in society, conflicts which will lead up to international war, and which will lead to appalling results.

A short time ago Mr. Roger Babson, reputed to be one of the best statisticians of the day, who gathers facts regarding finances, industries of all kinds, social conditions in general, the status of nations, etc., etc., all with a view to giving valuable information to the captains of industry, that they may the better decide as to the proper port for heading their ships of industry, in order to load easiest with gold, gave an address before a select and intelligent audience at which time he issued warning to American investors of the great possibilities of war between Italy and

(Continued on page 378)

THE OTHER SIDE

We go our ways in life too much alone;
 We hold ourselves too far from all our kind;
 Too often we are deaf to sigh and moan,
 Too often to the weak and helpless, blind;
 Too often, when distress and want abide,
 We turn and pass upon the other side.

The other side is trodden smooth, and worn
 By footsteps passing idly all the day;
 Where lie the bruised ones who faint and mourn,
 Is seldom more than an untrodden way.
 Our selfish hearts are for our feet the guide—
 They lead us all too oft upon the other side.

It should be ours the oil and wine to pour
 Into the bleeding wounds of stricken ones;
 To take the smitten, and the sick and sore,
 And bear them where the stream of blessing runs.
 Instead we look about—the way is wide,
 And so we pass upon the other side.

Oh, friends and brothers, gliding down the years,
 Humanity is calling each and all,
 In tender accents, born of grief and tears;
 I pray you, listen to the thrilling call.
 You cannot, in your selfish pride,
 Pass guiltless by upon the other side.—Unknown.

YOUR STATUS IN THE KINGDOM

(Continued from front page)

nal, on my sacred hill."—Isaiah 35:8-10; 65:25, Moffatt.
 Are we—you and I—fortified by proper credentials
 (the wedding garment) of admission to this Sacred Way?
 Are we going to allow doubt to hinder us enjoying in advance what God has promised? Or perchance are we expecting to be forcibly "set free" from self and this sin cursed world later on?

Any one in doubt or fear should pursue Nicodemus' method, namely, a private interview with the Teacher of teachers. The truth of Jesus' instructions to Nicodemus is applicable to all. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."—John 3.

The Lord's parable in Matthew 22:1-14 emphasizes the result of disobedience to His instructions. God hasn't two or more plans of getting into His kingdom, one effectual in the beginning and another in the closing of the Christian era.

Though you and I should be least in the kingdom, we shall be greater than the greatest born of women—the flesh only—simply because we will have been "born again", "of the Spirit".

DID JESUS PERSONALLY PREEEXIST?

(Continued from page 373)

can see."

After reading Elipsis Israel by the late Dr. Thomas and instruction from other sources, one verse made it all clear to me: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven." 1 Cor. 15:46, 47. I laughed with joy to myself and thought, "How much I would like to meet my friend, Eli Buck."

How clear and comprehensible God's Word is, if we just read it as it is written. Read Isaiah 55:7, 8. So I began by reading the Trinitarians' greatest stronghold, Colossians the first chapter. We must first read verses 12 and 13: "Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light: who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son."
 Note the order: first—natural darkness; second—kingdom of light.

We had better read on. "In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins: who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature."
 Note the order: first—natural redemption through His blood; second—spiritual—the image of the invisible God.
 Now we can read intelligently, thanks to God through His apostle, Paul.

First let us go back a minute and read Gen. 1:1 and 2.
 "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth," etc. Now I can understand Jesus' words, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." John 5:17. Note the order: first—God created all things natural, pertaining to the worlds. Read Isaiah 40:12-15, 25-28; second—the new world, spiritual. His Son is honored by being its Creator.
 Read 1 Cor. 2:12-16.

Now let us read on in Colossians 1: "For by him were all things created, that are in heaven." V. 16. If He created the literal heavens and all things therein, then He created the angels and all the mighty hosts of heaven.
 "Heaven is my throne," etc., Isa. 66:1, 2; 45:18, all that are in the earth, visible and invisible.

Now note what follows: "Whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him." Let us read Matt. 28:17-20.
 "And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted (why?). And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth," etc. Read on. Now, my preexistent friends, if Christ created all things before He came to earth as a human being, then, pray tell me, what more could God bestow upon Him?

Let us go back to Colossians again and read on. "And he is before all things, and by him all things consist." What say you, before Gen. 1:1-2? But let Paul tell us: "Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end (What end? There is no end to what God created, for 'the earth abideth for ever,' Eecl. 1:4), when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power." Now, do you not see why Jesus is creating thrones, dominions, principalities, or powers, etc? It is to put down those now existing that are not of God.

Now, what does John know about all this? Read his epistle. 1 John 1:1: "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the word of life."

Wonderful! Well, that explains John 1:1: "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God."

What does Bro. Luke, the good physician, say to this? Well, read his gospel. Luke 1:2: "Even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning." Just a moment, is Gen. 1:1, 2 meant? I mean the beginning that John, Peter, and Paul talk about. "Which are most surely believed among us" (now read on and don't interrupt with questions), "were eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word."

That is what John on the Island of Patmos meant, when he said that Jesus was the Word of God. Rev. 19:13. Yes, but did not Jesus say, "Before Abraham was, I am"? John 8:58. Surely He did. Do you wish to know how to understand this? You, who are living in the twentieth century, with access to all wisdom of the ages should not be in such darkness.

Jesus had been talking about the resurrection from the dead and life eternal. Abraham was dead, also all the prophets. Jesus knew that God would raise Him from the dead. Hence, then, before any other member of the human race, Jesus became the first immortal Being. So He was before Abraham, Noah or Abel. Read John 8:56.

Then you may wonder what to do with John 17:5: "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." Do nothing with it, but rejoice in the fact that it is part of God's Word, remembering Paul's words to Timothy, and "study to shew thyself approved unto God," etc. 2 Timothy 2:15. Let it remain just where it is, and let God's Word explain it.

Suppose we read verse 22: "And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one". So the glory Jesus prayed for, is perfection and oneness with God. Hebrews 11:39, 40 will help us out: "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."

Have we not already read Colossians 1:15, "Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature"? This explain Romans 2:7: "To them who by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life." So Paul was not ashamed of the gospel, for it was by it that Christ brought life and immortality to light. 2 Tim. 1:10.

"All have sinned and come short of the glory of God"—perfection. Rom. 3:23. Christ, by His obedience and loyalty to God, won it, God having at His resurrection, bestowed it upon Him, the first of His new creatures.

"But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man. For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings. For both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren." Heb. 2:9-11.

"But to the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows." Heb. 1:8, 9.

"To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." Rev. 3:21.

NAMES THAT LIVE

(Continued from page 372)

preached, this has been told as her memorial.

Do we covet fame? It will come most surely to those who cease to seek it. Before honor is humility; and he who braves the scoffs of earth today, shall win eternal honors in the days to come. Time works its changes, and men to-day run around the world to find marble white enough for a monument to those whose names a little while ago were a curse, a hissing, and a by-word on their lips. They stone the living prophets, and glorify the dead ones.

A man needs two lives, one to do right in, and the other, after the smoke and dust have cleared away, to have men find him out and appreciate him. Well, the servants of God will have two: a short life of shame, and a long life of glory; a brief day of sorrow, and an endless year of gladness; a transient night of weeping, and an eternal morning of smiles and songs.

We can wait, then, for our honor; we can bide the time of our reward. We can bear the cross of sorrow here, in hope of that enduring day of rest that draweth nigh.

Our truest path to honor is the path our Savior trod. Linked with Him, our fame is certain, and our glory sure. He will grant to us, not merely the compensations of time, but the rewards of eternity. Are we ashamed of Him here? He will be ashamed of us there, in that day when His gracious smile will outweigh the worth of worlds. Do we confess Him here? Then He will confess us before His Father and the holy angels, in that day when heaven shall pour forth the whole multitude of its angelic hosts to grace the advent of the Judge of quick and dead, and witness the coronation of the King of kings.

Then shall the rebuke of God's people be taken away from off all the earth. Then shall the shame of God's people be turned to endless honor. Then shall names long forgotten and deep buried in the reeking slime of slander and reproach be found written on the spotless pages of the book of life, or graven amid the gem set walls of the city of our God. Those names shall live; and they who wear them shall live also, and live forever more.

"Who suffer with our Master here,
Shall then before His face appear,
And by His side sit down;
To patient faith the prize is sure,
And all who to the end endure
The cross—shall wear the crown."

Selected by Rufus A. Curtis from "Readings for Leisure Moments."

SCANNING THE WEATHER SKY

(Continued from page 375)

France. His reading of the weather signs were to the effect that Premier Mussolini of Italy may consider it necessary to declare war on France in order to prolong his own period of political power. Such a criminal reason for declaration of war would not be the first in history's experience.

Mr. Babson also indicated that France is hoarding great stores of gold, outstripping every other nation in that respect and that this of itself has tendency to provoke to jealousy other nations, which jealousy may at any unforeseen moment throw those nations into combat. Likewise, looking in the direction of Russia, this great financial weather man discovers a large standing army which is at the bidding of a government that is not altogether restful, and which government seems to have its eyes cast in the direction of China, as though desirous of striking a blow there and overpowering that dragon nation.

Referring to the individual capitalists throughout the world, he sees other conditions which also must be taken into consideration, as we look ahead in the world's pathway. He suggests that it is altogether possible that those financial leaders who control great quantities of world supplies, such as, cotton, rubber, steel, copper, wheat, etc., may be guilty of doing their best to precipitate conflicts among the nations, in order to get a larger and more remunerative outlet for their goods.

Preparations for war are amazing. Prof. Gilbert Murray is reported as having told a League of Nations' meeting held at Glasgow University a short time ago, that a certain powder has been invented, a teaspoonful of which scattered through the air would be sufficient to put to death a million people. Imagine a war with a fleet of airplanes, traveling at a speed of more than one hundred miles an hour, capable of traveling seven hundred miles without alighting, each loaded with two tons of this powder and each one distributing this death-dealing chemical throughout its seven hundred mile flight!

The pictures revealed in Revelation 9 to 16 do not begin to be so startling or impossible of actual fulfillment as does this report which is now given to the world.

"Watchman, what of the night?" As the termination of all this "time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation" is to be brought about by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, the conditions of individual, social, and national wickedness, and criminality suggest a continuation of the present almost unbelievable social, industrial and national unrest, which can but bring about world wide conflict, till He shall come "whose right it is" to subdue and rule. This was long ago pointed out by God's inspired prophets.

If God foretold these things, and we see that society and nations are apparently traveling in the direction of these things, why should not our religious weather men broadcast the report that an expected storm of great dimensions and of great intensity might be expected? And when such storm does come, why should not one and all expect another fulfillment of prophecy, namely, the coming of Him into whose hands world wide dominion is by the God of heaven, to be placed?

GETHSEMANE, GABBATHA, GOLGOTHA

(Continued from page 371)

perfect calm were His. The charge: He made himself God's Son. Next, He declared He was King. The Romans were angry. Oh, what trumped-up false charges!

Into the Praetorium, the Jews would not enter, "lest they be defiled, that they might eat the passover". What solemn mockery! Throughout this whole scene it was evident that Pilate sought to quiet the people and to release Jesus, recognizing that "for envy they had delivered him up." He was evidently conscious that the Prisoner was no ordinary one. His silence made "the Governor marvel greatly."

This impression was greatly deepened by the varied happenings; his wife's dream and message, the extreme malice of the Jews, and the unwavering claim of the holy Prisoner that He was the Son of God—all awakened in the mind of this ambitious ruler alarm and misgiving. But the world had too great a hold, and to be a friend of Caesar was more to him than justice and truth. He, however, labored to find a way out of the dilemma, again and again stating that he found no fault with Him. But the voices of the scribes and elders prevailed, and when the choice was given, "Barabbas or Jesus?", there was no hesitancy on their part, such as evidently Pilate hoped. Their decision was made, "Not this man, but Barabbas". Thus the fatal choice was made, and the decision of the nation finally recorded. "We will not have this man to reign over us."—Selected.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"LET US THEREFORE FOLLOW AFTER THE THINGS WHICH MAKE FOR PEACE, AND THINGS WHEREWITH ONE MAY EDIFY ANOTHER."—ROMANS 14:19.

STRIFE

IN THIS day and age when we see and are drawn into so much strife, we often stop and ponder over the difficulties which confront us. Sometimes when struggle and bickering encompass us, we wonder why such things have to be. Then is the time we have to send out for reinforcements, as John the Baptist did, when he sat in prison and began to doubt whether the Man whom he had heralded really was He who was to come. Then is the time when we are tempted to lay down our cross and take the easy road—if there be such a road in this complex life.

Let us consider scripture on the subject. From what does strife proceed? "Hatred stirreth up strifes."—Prov. 10:12. "He that is of a proud heart (greedy spirit) stirreth up strife."—Prov. 28:25. "Whence come wars and whence come fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts (pleasures) that war in your members?"—James 4:1.

What are the contentious called? "A fool's lips enter into contention, and his mouth calleth for strokes."—Prov. 18:6.

Should we avoid those who stir up strife? "I beseech you brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned and turn away from them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Christ."—Romans 16:17, 18.

What is the result of strife? "For where jealousy and faction are, there is confusion and every vile deed."—James 3:16. "But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another."—Ephesians 5:15. They who do the work of the flesh, of which strife is one, "shall not inherit the kingdom of God."—Ephesians 5:21.

Let us check up on our lives, and let us see how much we are contributing to the strife and works of the flesh. Let us not quiet our conscience by saying to ourselves that these verses mean the other fellow, not ourselves. If we are at fault, let us acknowledge it and start right. "Let us walk honestly, as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying." "But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ; make not provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof."

If our acquaintances are given to strife what should be our attitude toward them? Let Scripture give the answer: "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves."—Romans 15:1.

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."—Romans 13:10. "Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another."—Romans 14:19. "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."—Colossians 4:7.

Let us all strive for this peace!

Ada Simpson, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

HEREIN IS LOVE

"Herein is love: to strip the shoulders bare,
If need be, that a frailer one may wear
A mantle to protect it from the storm;
To bear the frost-king's breath so one be warm;
To crush the tears it would be sweet to shed,
And smile so others may have joy instead.

"Herein is love: to daily sacrifice
The hope that to the bosom closest lies;
To mutely bear reproach and suffer wrong,
Nor lift the voice to show where both belong;
Nay, now, nor tell it e'en to God above—
Herein is love indeed, herein is love."

—Selected.

SEVERAL of your friends will enjoy reading the Easter HERALD. Send us their names and addresses, and we will do the rest. Only Five Cents per copy.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 13; Ohio, 9; California, 4; Michigan, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Louisiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

REVIEW

LET'S GET busy and learn a real worth while chapter. And let's make it the thirty-fifth chapter of Isaiah. Make that an object to accomplish during the next three months.

A portion of this chapter is the Scripture Lesson Text for this lesson. This very first verse tells us that in the next age the blind shall see, and the deaf shall hear. How wonderful that will be! Also, those who are lame shall not only walk, but leap; and people who cannot talk will not only talk, but sing.

In that time there will be plenty of water, even in the desert. There will be a highway called, "The Way of Holiness", which will be safe and free from every evil thing.

"The ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: . . . and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

Can you picture a time when no one will be sad, sick, or worried? Now read the rest of the chapter and find what other changes will take place, and what other words of comfort and promise there are.

By learning this chapter you may always have a happy thought to help you over some trying time, or that you may use to comfort another in his discouragement.

SOMETHING TO DO

Fill in the blanks:

1. Zacharias and Elisabeth named their boy
2. was the fore runner of Jesus.
3. Jesus was born in and then later lived in
4. When Jesus was twelve years old, He went to the in
5. Jesus was baptized by in the
6. Jesus healed and
7. As ye would that men to, do ye also to
8. anointed Jesus and washed His feet when the did not.
9. Good seed is and good fruit is
10. Jesus sent His helpers by to and
11. Your neighbor is

12., and were friends of Jesus;, and were enemies.

13. The rich man lost his possessions because he was

14. Jesus was a great, and

15. I am going to learn 35.

"If our love for God we'd show,
And His loving favor know,
His commands we must obey,
Truly serve Him every day."

—Junior Quarterly.

"OUR SAVIOR WAS BORN in Bethlehem, a village of great antiquity situated six miles south of Jerusalem and mentioned in Genesis 48:7 under the name of Ephrath."

THE GOLDEN RULE

DAVID looked out of the window and saw his sister Jean's doll lying on the ground under the cedar tree. It was just beginning to rain, and David had a feeling that he ought to go out there and pick up that doll and bring it in. But he didn't want to. It was a new doll, and David knew that a good wetting would spoil its face and ruin its clothes. Still, he did not want to go and get it, because he was angry with Jean for going to town with Aunt Alice, when he hadn't been asked to go. Of course there was no reason why Jean should stay at home just because there didn't happen to be room enough for both of them in the car that afternoon. David quite forgot the week before, when he had been asked to go with Uncle George to the ranch, and Jean had been left at home.

"It would serve her right for the rain to ruin that doll," he said to himself, "because I heard mother tell her not to leave it out of doors."

But in spite of that the feeling grew stronger and stronger in David's heart, until his feet ran with him out to the tree to pick up the forgotten doll. How surprised he was then to find his own new cap lying there beside the doll.

"My new cap would have been ruined," he said, "if I hadn't remembered about the Golden Rule and felt that I ought to do for Jean what I would want her to do for me."—Selected.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON XIII. — March 29, 1931

REVIEW: JESUS THE WORLD'S SAVIOR PREPARATION AND POPULARITY

Isaiah 35:5-10

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 35:5-10

GOLDEN TEXT

How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him. — Acts 10:38.

Lesson I. Luke 1:8-17, 80. The Birth of John the Baptist.

Summary: John the Baptist stands at the transition time of the ages to usher in the long-promised Messiah of Israel and of the world. His birth, therefore, was the most significant thing that had happened for many centuries. God's direct intervention in connection with his birth and the miracles done witnessed of these things to the people. His growth to manhood took place in the deserts, far from the corrupting influence of the cities, and thus was he prepared for the great work before him.

Lesson II. Luke 2: 40-52. The Childhood of Jesus.

Summary: Like John, the world's Messiah appears to us first as a helpless child, and we see Him developing in the home those characteristics which ought to be the heritage of every boy and girl. In every way He was the example of what a child ought to be, for he was obedient and faithful in all things. Even at the age of twelve He had grown in wisdom and judgment to such an extent that He could hold His own with the learned servants in the temple.

Lesson III. Luke 3:7-17.

The Ministry of John the Baptist.

Summary: Like a meteor in a startled sky, John appears out of the wilderness under the power of the Spirit of God, denouncing with terrible accusations the prevailing wickedness of the times. Under his withering fire of condemnation, multitudes of those who flock to hear him forsake their sins and turn to the Lord. The voice of one crying in the wilderness, he prepares the way of the Lord, going before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, and making ready a people prepared for the Lord.

Lesson IV. Luke 4:1-13.

Jesus Tempted.

Summary: The first act of the Lord after His baptism must needs be His test under temptation. For forty days without food in the wilderness, He withstands the ordeal of passing through every manner of test that man could sustain. Triumphant at its close, He conquers the three great final temptations and receives the blessing of the Father above. Thus He qualifies for the mighty work before Him, having been tempted in all points as we.

Lesson V. Luke 4:38-44; 5:12-16.

Jesus the Great Physician.

Summary: Fulfilling His great mission to bless all the families of the earth, Jesus begins by going about all Galilee and Judea healing all manner of sickness and disease among the people. The few recorded miracles that He performed give us only an inkling of the untold multitudes which He released from the bondage of suffering. These prefigure the universal scope of His healing power in the age to come, when, under the magic touch of the Great Physician, all sickness will be banished from off the earth.

Lesson VI. Luke 6:27-42.

Jesus the World's Teacher.

Summary: Jesus' works of healing were secondary and introductory to His teaching. His words, spoken as none ever spoke before, were the wonder of His hearers. His teachings are revolutionary, setting up a new standard of ethics, a new ideal of life. They challenge the best that is in us, teaching us to follow in our lives the standards He set up in His.

Lesson VII. Luke 7:36-50.

Jesus the Friend of Sinners.

Summary: As Savior of the world, our Lord reaches the peak of His service to mankind. He saves His people from their sins, and thus from disease, ignorance and death and all that follow in their wake. In His attitude toward sinners, He demonstrates the great love of the Father, drawing them to himself by the sheer force of His tender compassion for those who have gone astray. He not only forgives sins; He frees us from any further service thereto.

Lesson VIII. Luke 8:1-15.

Jesus Bearing the Good Tidings.

Summary: The message of Jesus was that of the coming kingdom of God which He himself will one day establish. Everywhere He went He published the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, and urged men to repent in preparedness for its coming. That will be the day of which the prophets spoke, when all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, and His will be done as it is in heaven. The seed of this gospel planted in the hearts of men brings forth in their lives the fruits of faith and righteousness.

Lesson IX. Luke 10:1-11, 17, 21, 22.

Jesus Sending Forth Missionaries.

Summary: Organizing His disciples for more extended work, Jesus sent out first the twelve apostles, and later seventy picked workers, to precede Him in certain fields of labor. They went with the power to perform mighty works of healing in His name, and this strengthened their own faith, too. The gospel work is essentially missionary. Jesus' followers ought to seek by every means possible to flog abroad the glad story of the coming kingdom.

Lesson X. Luke 10:25-37.

The Good Samaritan.

Summary: It took many hard blows by the Master to make any impression against Jewish racial exclusiveness and their abiding contempt for all other peoples. One of these thrusts was the parable of the Good Samaritan picturing the love for one's neighbor exhibited by one of an alien race toward those who hated them. It is beautiful in its portrayal of brotherly love, and is a lesson for the ages warning against cold hearted selfishness.

Lesson XI. Luke 10:38-42; 11:42-46, 52-54.

Jesus Among Friends and Foes.

Summary: In the quiet home at Bethany we witness Jesus among some of His dearest friends. We see the loving sisters, Mary and Martha, whom He does indispensable service as a true friend should, by correcting their little failings in a kindly way.

We see Him, then, engaged with the Pharisees and scribes, who are relentlessly seeking His death and striving to find some charge with which to accuse Him. Defying their enmity, He condemns their hypocrisy with stern words, warning them of judgment. Thus amid friend and foe alike, Jesus is true to the Father, His mission, himself, and to all of those, friend or foe, with whom He comes in contact.

Lesson XII. Luke 12:16-21, 41-48.

The Use and Abuse of God's Gifts.

Summary: To all those waiting for the Lord's return He left a charge to keep. If we misuse His inheritance and waste His substance we are unfaithful stewards. If we build for this life only, taking no thought for the next, we are but fools. The use of strong drink is an abuse of one of God's gifts. It is unfaithful stewardship. It is the service of lust, not service to God. It defles our bodies and deranges our minds, making them unfit for service either to God or man.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

Jesus was always found doing good, never evil. He taught; He preached; He healed; He fed; He forgave sins and raised the dead. He could do this because God was with Him. Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, recognized this when he came to Jesus by night and acknowledged that He was a Teacher from God, because he said no man could do those miracles without God being with him.

None other than the Father could give the Son the power to do all that He did. By this power, He proved that He was the long looked for Messiah. — L. A. R.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

OUR EASTER OFFERING

The following have already contributed to our annual Easter Offering for the furtherance of our Gospel effort.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Austin	$25.00
Silas M. Claypool	2.00
Mrs. Olive Wood	5.00
Ruchie Alexander	1.00

The past week we have been remembered with two or three generous gifts from faithful sisters, living in the eastern and western extremes of the country, besides those from brethren nearer headquarters. To all we would say that these are but one of the answers of our daily prayer to God for blessing upon His work. May His blessing attend all who faithfully serve Him in their several capacities.

Sr. Cleora Randall of St. Cloud, Minnesota, is spending a couple of weeks' vacation visiting at the home of Bro. and Sr. Chas. Gesin of Oregon, Illinois. Incidentally, the smile of Bro. John Denchfield is broader.

Marjorie and Roger Richey, the small children of Bro. and Sr. Sylvan Richey, have been very sick with tonsillitis. Marjorie is better, but Roger is very sick yet. Marthell, the two year old daughter of Bro. and Sr. Chris. Hutchings, has the flu. She is some better at this writing. These three children are the grandchildren of Bro. and Sr. John W. Hutchings of Martinsville, Illinois.

Word has been received by Bro. Paul C. Johnson of the death of his cousin, Bro. Leland Roose, of Charter Oak, Iowa. Bro. Roose was a son of Bro. and Sr. J. E. Roose of Sac City, Iowa. He was at one time well known in Berean circles, having been treasurer of the National Berean Society for a while. Many friends will be grieved to learn of his death.

Following is an excerpt from a letter received from Sr. Mary Petty, of Sac City, Iowa, who writes to tell us how much she enjoys The Herald: "I have been a member of the Church of God ever since I was eighteen years of age and now I am past eighty. The older I get, the stronger my faith grows. I think the N. B. I. is a great blessing to us, educating the young men for the ministry." Thanks, Sr. Petty, such words of encouragement help wonderfully.

A REPORT FROM RIPLEY

The people at Ripley have had the pleasure of getting a little acquainted with the Training Class. On March 5th one car load arrived in time for services that evening, Bro. John Denchfield being the speaker. The next day the other car came accompanied by a gentle snow fall. Bro. Harvey Krogh spoke Friday evening. Then we were wrapt in the largest storm of years. But on Monday we began to dig our way out, and that evening in wagons and sleds we made our way to church for meeting. We had a double service, Bro. Cecil Smead and Bro. Richard LeCrone being the speakers. We continued Tuesday evening with a double sermon, Sr. Lucille LeCrone and Bro. C. E. Lapp delivering the discourses. This gave six members of the class an opportunity to speak to us. The quartet did its part very nicely, which was appreciated by all.

Large crowds attended each service. Each

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Roll Brewer,	Troy, Ohio.
Bro. Lloyd Eklund,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. Curdella Gray	Lanark, Ill.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Bro. Albert Singer,	Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

Sr. Dessie Benn of Dayton, Ohio, writes us that Bro. Brewer is resting better at night now, though there is no apparent change in his condition otherwise. The family are all being strengthened by the united prayers of the brotherhood.

speaker gave an excellent talk, and the manner in which they are proclaiming the gospel surely speaks of the work being done by their teachers and themselves, likewise. We had one of the most enjoyable meetings we have ever had. However the snow broke in to some of our plans, calling our attention to Paul's letter to the Romans. "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." The snow seemed to serve as a blanket to draw us nearer to each other and gave us more time to become better acquainted with these young people. Now, as their first trip is in the past, leaving us pleasant memories, we are looking forward in the near future to another sojourn at Ripley. We hope the Training Class enjoyed being in our midst as well as we appreciated the opportunity of trying to entertain them, as it was very much of an inspiration to us to see such a fine bunch of young people, striving to serve their Master. May the Lord bless them in His service is our prayer.

Tessa Laning, Sec.

We wish to thank the Ripley people for their kind hospitality and their interest in the work. It has been an inspiration to us, and something that we will not soon forget.

H. Krogh, Sec.

CHICAGO SERVICES

On next Sunday, March 22, Bro. C. E. Lapp will, the Lord willing, speak for the Chicago brethren at the Austin-Whitehead home at 5439 Ohio Street. Sunday School begins at ten o'clock. The preaching service follows at eleven.

ORDERS FOR EASTER HERALDS

Mrs. Catherine Townsend; Morris Kent; Mary A. Petty; Mrs. M. Shea; Ruchie Alexander; Silas Claypool; A. H. Zilmer; Mrs. Elizabeth Hutchings; J. A. Patrick; Mrs. W. Houston; Hanna M. Barber; Mrs. Chas. Jewell; Pauline Klepinger; J. W. Macallister.

A TIMELY WARNING

The article by Bro. Rufus A. Curtis was worthy of the place it occupied on the front page of The Restitution Herald of March 3. In these days when a concerted effort is being made in many churches to disregard the lasting nature of the punishment for sin, it is expedient that we should be solemnly warned of its awful penalty, "everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power." 2 Thess. 1:6-10.

G. Eldred Marsh.

DIXON ACTIVITIES

The attendance at church at Dixon has been very good during the past month. A number of visitors have been attending the meetings, and have expressed their appreciation of Bro. Conner's wonderful sermons. Communion services are conducted on the first Sunday of each month.

The Sunday School attendance has been good considering the number of sick among our members. Little Billy Dunbar has been very low with an attack of pneumonia, but at this writing is much better, and we hope will soon be able to attend Sunday School again. Sr. Emma Kelly has been quite ill, but is now much improved. Sisters Rilla and Anna Drew have also been confined to their home, but are able to be up and around.

Grace Drew, Sec.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Much interest and effort have been put forth in several special features of activity lately, and the earnest, unselfish spirit has demonstrated what a splendid group of workers we have here.

We are happy to say that Sr. Skeels is steadily improving and will likely soon be back in her accustomed place. Mrs. Ladwig, treasurer of the Dorcas society, has been taken seriously ill with complications. After a thorough hospital examination she is now being cared for at her mother's and we pray for her recovery.

Aside from minor illnesses the rest of our number are in working shape as this is written, and we are all rowing hard to keep the gospel ship in its true course.

The Michigan conference is to be held at our church between the Sundays of June 21 and 28. Plans are being worked out for a good Bible school and conference period, and the Grand Rapids church issues a cordial invitation to those who can to come and spend that week with us.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Alice Bassett; Mrs. Ada Simpson; Mrs. H. G. Pier; Mrs. J. H. Pier; R. F. Underwood; Mrs. James Kincheloe; Jessie W. Donaldson; L. B. Boggs; F. W. Ficken; Mrs. M. Shea; Mrs. George Barton; R. C. Stilson; Mrs. Elizabeth Frier; Mrs. Mary Calkins; Mrs. Frank Henry; Mrs. Lorena Thompson; Mrs. P. N. Benn.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Bro. Singer is still confined to his bed and will greatly appreciate being remembered in prayer.

Bro. Weldon is slowly, but surely, gaining strength from day to day. He is enjoying short drives now, when the weather permits.

Another young winter arrived in our vicinity last week. Some of our choir members were practically snowed in, necessitating the cancelling of our meeting together this week.

A fair number braved the inclement weather last Sunday night to hear Bro. Randall's splendid sermon, "A Better Christianity." Those who were unable to attend missed many practical helps for everyday life.

M. V. BURNSIDES

On Sunday, March 1, we conducted the funeral of Bro. M. V. Burnside, in the Brush Creek (Ohio) Church of God. Bro. Burnside was baptized into Christ fifty-seven years ago. He spent his life near the Brush Creek church. His wife died in June, 1929. He leaves a large family of children, all grown. He was past eighty-seven years. Bro. Burnside was a blacksmith by trade, a true upright Christian. We hope to meet him in the kingdom.

J. H. Anderson.

For only One Dollar you can buy a picture of the painting, "Gethsemane", which shows Christ in prayer. Only a few left. Order immediately from the Chairman of the Sales Committee, John Denchfield, Oregon, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

John, in his first epistle, says, "God is love," and then proceeds to tell us how God manifested His love toward us. How? "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him."

It was the Father who sent Jesus to be the Savior of the world. He was the Father's Messenger. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have everlasting life." He was sent on an errand of love, and divine compassion. "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved."

BASKET WEAVE

THE NEW BINDING FOR OXFORD BIBLES

Grained with basket weave design. Highly finished calf leather, of a dark brown color. Button clasp keeps volume closed and protected. Convenient to carry. Oxford India paper. Six maps.

This is a beautiful book for your own use or for a gift. Prices range from $4.25 to 10.50.

Write for complete descriptions.

"GETHSEMANE"

The Golden Rule Sunday School Class of the Oregon Church of God has at this time a few pictures of the painting, "Gethsemane", which shows Christ in prayer.

These pictures are very appropriate for Easter. A real value at One Dollar each.

Order from the chairman of the sales committee, John Denchfield, Oregon, Illinois.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince
(For cost of Postage) 32 .03 .12

BOOKS

Name

Pages Each Per 6

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth,	480	.85	5.00
Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson
Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

THE LETTER TO THE PHILIPPIANS

By Lyman Booth

PHILIPPI, so named from the great Macedonian king who founded it, was situated in Macedonia, north of the Archipelago, on the great high road between Europe and Asia. It was the scene of the last great struggle of the Roman Republic against despotism, where Brutus and Cassius, defeated by Augustus and Anthony, committed suicide. Hence it became a Roman colony, with full rights and citizenship, governed by Roman magistrates and laws—a miniature of the imperial city. The Jews were few and had no synagogue, but they were allowed “a place of prayer”, outside the city gate on the banks of the Gangites.

Paul first visited Philippi about the year fifty-two A. D. At “the place of prayer” (Acts 16:13) he converted Lydia, a proselyte of Thyatira. Here, too, through healing a damsel possessed with a spirit of divination, he came into collision with paganism, and was brought before the magistrates on a charge of creating a disturbance in the colony, and with his companion, Silas, was scourged and imprisoned. During the night, however, they were miraculously delivered, the jailor was converted, and a faithful Christian community was founded.

Twice again he visited his grateful converts—first awaiting at Philippi in an agony of suspense the arrival of Titus from Corinth (2 Cor. 2:13; 7:5, 6), then afterwards lingering behind to keep with them the paschal feast on his way to Asia Minor in A. D. 58 (Acts 20:5, 6).

The manner in which the apostle and his associates were led to pass over from Asia into Europe and to begin their labors at Philippi, in Macedonia, as well as their success and the persecution by which Paul and Silas were driven thence, have already been considered. The apostle had once afterwards visited Philippi, though few particulars are recorded. This epistle was manifestly written from Rome and during the latter part of the apostle’s first imprisonment in that city. Nearly twelve years had passed since he first preached at Philippi, but the conduct of the Christians there had uniformly been so exemplary, and their grateful affection to him so fully evinced, that he had only to rejoice over them with heartfelt gratitude, while he uttered his prayers for them, and affectionately urged them to persevere and press forward in their heavenly course.

He gave them some cautions against deceivers of certain descriptions, whose base conduct and awful doom, he declared in most expressive terms, are joined with his exhortations. He gave, nor even implied, no word of censure against any of the Philippians, but expressed unqualified commendation and confidence.

It is very evident that Epaphroditus, who had been sent with a supply of money to the apostle at Rome, and who seems to have been a pastor, perhaps the principal pastor of the church, conveyed the epistle to Philippi. He had either by his journey to Rome, or by his zealous labors in assisting the apostle when in that city, brought dangerous sickness upon himself. The tidings of this so affected the Philippians, and their sorrow, when made known to Epaphroditus, so distressed him, that the apostle was induced to send him back sooner than he had intended, though to his own inconvenience.

The subjects treated in this epistle need not be anticipated. It is undeniable that the epistle was sent not long before the two years of the apostle’s imprisonment were ended, which the Oxford Bible supposes to have taken place about the close of A. D. 65.

The members of the church at Philippi always retained the greatest gratitude for the apostle (Phil. 4:10). It was one of their members, Epaphroditus, who was sent to Paul at Rome during his imprisonment, with a liberal contribution for his necessities, which sum had been sent by a loving church (Phil. 4:18). Here he was laid low by a very serious sickness and nearly lost his life. On his recovery he was filled with anxiety to return to his friends at Philippi, who were in much distress over his illness. Paul also was anxious that he should rejoin them in order to quiet their alarm, and so he returned, bearing a letter from the great apostle, in which he poured out his warm affection to a grateful church.

In the analysis of this epistle we find first, that the apostle expresses heartfelt thankfulness for all he had heard of the constancy of the Philippians under persecution, and for their liberality towards himself (1:1-12). He then dwells on his own personal circumstances, and on the results of his imprisonment as tending to the spread of the church (1:13-30).

He next exhorts the Philippians to unity, dwelling on the humility of Christ as the great Exemplar (2:1-18), and expresses his intention to shortly send Timothy to them. He refers to the recent illness of Epaphroditus (2:19-30), and then digresses into a warning against Judaizing teachers and evil workers (3:1-21). Next he urges two female converts of distinction, who had fallen into strife, to reconciliation (4:1-3). He exhorts all members of the church to a holy and consistent life (4:4-13), and concludes with a salutation from the Christians in Caesar’s household (4:14-23).

Look, my child, do you see these little empty vials? They are all insignificant, cheap things, of no value in themselves. But in one I put a deadly poison, in another a sweet perfume, in another a healing medicine. Nobody cares for the vials; it is that which they contain that gives them value.

Your daily life or work, the dishes washed or the floor swept, are homely things, and count for little in themselves. It is the sweet patience, or zeal, or high thoughts that you put into your work that shall last. These make the contents of the vials or your life.—Dessie E. Benn.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 24, 1931

NUMBER 25

THE CROWNING DAY

By G. Eldred Marsh

“When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha. And it was the preparation of the pass-over, and about the sixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your King! But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief priests answered, We have no king but Caesar.”—John 19:13 to 15.

PART ONE

THIS tumultuous episode from the concluding events of the Savior's life presents a most striking contrast to its opening chapters. Those earlier pages tell of a night-shrouded hillside, overhung with stars; of shepherds drowsily watching sleeping sheep; of travelers making their silent way across the desert sands; of a humble home; a man, and a woman with a Baby in her arms.

Those earlier pages tell of peace, and quietude, and safety. They tell of an accepted Prince, and of rich gifts poured out in worship at His feet. But here we have a different picture. As we read, the entire history of the Son of God unrolls before our eyes.

We hear the voice of Jesus, pleading with the multitude on the shores of Galilee. We watch as the blind are made to see, the deaf to hear, the lame to walk, the dead to live again. We behold One standing with hands outstretched in pity as He cries: “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate: and verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me, until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.” Luke 13:34, 35.

And now they have rejected Him! They have demanded His death! “He came unto his own, and his own received him not.” John 1:11. But more than that, not satisfied with rejecting Him as their rightful Prince, “they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him . . . We have no king but Caesar.”

Our Lord was then rejected, and by the Jews denied; His message was neglected by those for whom He died. “But soon He'll come in glory; the hour is drawing nigh, For the crowning day is coming by and by!”

But must the Jews alone bear the odium of His rejection? Is no one else guilty with them? It is reported that the Jews are planning to review the trial of Jesus before their newly formed Sanhedrin, to discover if possible just who was responsible for His death.

Without waiting for that decision, I myself am willing to plead guilty, guilty before God for the death of His Son! For “Christ died for our sins”—the sins of the Gentiles to whom Paul addressed these words—“according to the scriptures.” 1 Cor. 15:3. “In due time Christ died for the ungodly . . . Christ died for us.” Rom. 5:6, 8. I cannot claim exemption for myself, “for all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God.” Rom. 6:23.

I am the sinner for whom Christ died! His death was made necessary because of my transgressions. Therefore I am guilty of bringing about the death of the Son of God!

Having been rejected by the Jews as a nation, the Apostle says, “Lo, we turn to the Gentiles.” Acts 13:46. The rejected King of the Jews was then presented to the Gentile world for their acceptance. And for nearly two thousand years, He has been pleading with them, even as He pleaded with Israel at the beginning: “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.” Matt. 4:17.

Thus He stands before all mankind, announcing him-
(Continued on page 394)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879
 F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

“That ye may know . . . what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, . . . which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead.”—Ephesians 1:18-20.

THE MYSTERY

“How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery; . . . which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit”. Thus Paul breaks the news to the brethren of the Ephesian church that at least a part of God’s purpose had by Him been kept secret until the time when made known to Paul. Eph. 3:3-7.

And is not this true of many of God’s revealed purposes? To Abraham much was told that Adam never heard of. To Moses God revealed still more of His intentions. To Isaiah, Daniel and others God revealed further and added truths, truths which He had always in mind, but which were kept to himself until the time came when they should be made known.

Through our Savior God not only revealed but also demonstrated still other mighty truths. He revealed more through Paul, through John. And shall we not truly expect that with the return of our Lord and Master startling revelations from God, secrets, mysteries till then, will be revealed?

FELLOW HEIRS

“THAT the Gentiles should be fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel.” Here in verse 6 Paul reveals what that particular mystery was which he mentioned in Ephesians 3:3. Neither Gentiles nor Israelites had ever anticipated the possibility that they were to be brought together in one body in God’s great plan.

Paul here reveals the truth of Christ’s statement when He, in Mark 16:15, just prior to His ascension, gave commandment to His apostles, “Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved.” “To every creature.” Not only to Israelites, but to Israelite and Gentile—to people of every nation—was Christ’s gospel sent.

Paul proclaims that they shall be “fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel.” God is working toward an end. In this He anticipates a group of people. He is not partial as to whence they come, but is uniting all who so come, that they shall be developed into and constitute the one finished, perfected group. The people of this group, from wheresoever they may come, are to share in fellowship alike in their new status in Christ Jesus—“heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ”.

CHRIST’S EXALTATION

THE GREATNESS of the Father’s power and the height of the exaltation of Christ have both been declared by the mighty works which God wrought when He raised Christ from the dead, “and set him at his own right hand in heavenly places”.—Eph. 1:20. The greatness of this exaltation was by Paul declared in the verses following.

Quoting from Weymouth’s translation we read, “High above all government, and authority, and power, and dominion, and every title of sovereignty, used either in this Age or in the Age to come. God has put all things under His feet, and has appointed Him universal and supreme Head of the Church, which is His Body, the completeness of Him who everywhere fills the universe with Himself.”

BY THE CROSS

WRITING to the Gentile brethren in Ephesus, Paul reveals how that their standing in the gospel, their fellowship in Christ, their promises of the future have all been brought to them by the cross of Christ. He reveals also, 2:11-17, how that the estrangement between Israelites and Gentiles was overcome, and that reconciliation was accomplished for them by Christ’s sufferings and death.

Looking earnestly into the truths of Scripture, one becomes more and more astonished as he realizes more fully the truth of the fact that all of God’s works are brought to perfection, completion “by the cross”. Without Christ’s death, that is, His gift of His life, there possibly would have been no way to convince mankind, or any large number of mankind, as to Christ’s purpose and power among men. Had not Christ gone into the grave, been raised therefrom, been endowed with increased strength of life, man might have had difficulty in concentrating faith in Him.

It is by faith in Christ that righteousness to man is made possible. His faith is reckoned to him for righteousness, declared Paul to the Roman church. It is because of righteousness that man is brought to perfection. Real life, without righteous exercise thereof, would mean little as to the perfection, the development of God's mighty plans.

This faith of the individual which perfects righteousness resulting in life, not only transforms the man of faith, but through him Christ also pledges to transform the very world itself. The curse is to be rolled away. All wickedness is to be wiped out. Creation itself is to be cleansed. It comes about only by that faith, and trust, and confidence in Christ which man is brought to exercise. All of this is brought to us "by the cross".

How much the Christian should consider this mighty truth, and how much he should endeavor to emphasize it before the lives of others, as the world of Christendom engages in the near future in commemoration of the death and resurrection of our Lord. Too much cannot be claimed for the cross of Christ and for that for which it stands.

THE HOUR OF PRAYER

BELOVEDS, you cannot know what you are losing by not being at the prayer service. God wants you there and you need the inspiring influence of those prayers and exhortations. The Christ has promised His presence there, for He said to His disciples when giving them a message one day, "Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I in the midst of them". What a joy to feel and know, when we are kneeling in prayer, that the dear Christ is there, listening with joy as the petitions, pleas, and exhortations are sent to God's throne, as we anxiously pray for those who have asked our prayers for the sick and weary ones.

As I was reading the last HERALD this morning, a letter was handed me from our very faithful Bro. Coats, and as I read, I was startled at the news of dear, faithful Bro. Patrick's condition. I could only stop reading and ask the dear Father to touch Bro. Patrick's body and heal, what in human strength may be impossible to do. But with God all things are possible, and as in the days of Christ's powerful works He healed the ten lepers, so today He can heal, as quickly and as well, all who like them have faith. For, hear Him say, "Arise, go thy way; thy faith hath saved thee." Why not now, as well as then?

We are looking for Him now every day. If He should come, and we had to say, "O Lord, I was not looking for you; I was afraid you had forgotten," what would be the result to us? O poor, tired, sick souls, why cannot we always say, "I know He will save me and heal me." God help us to be so true to Him that we may prove to all that we believe and trust Him always.

My prayers go out to faithful Bro. Coats, who is suffering with rheumatism or another name the doctors have tacked on to it and makes it impossible to pronounce, or to find a human remedy for. But the great Physician is still here with the same words as of yore: "Whatsoever ye shall ask in faith believing it shall be done unto you."

It is because we lack the abiding faith that we fail to receive the coveted answer to our requests. O why are we so mortal, so weak at times? God knows it is not because we do not love Him, but because our faith wavers. God forgive us and make us strong, for we want to be worthy of a place in His coming glory. O blissful day, when the trump of God shall sound, and we can look up and see His face and know we are safe at last, though so full of faults and shortcomings.

Let us not miss any means of grace that will make us strong in Him and ready for His soon coming is the prayer of Sister Woodward.

ETERNAL DEATH

JESUS THE CHRIST is not a Master, come to capture by force men who have no choice; He is a Friend, come to capture by persuasion men who have a fatal power to resist, and whose resistance is soul-suicide, eternal death. This terrible fact—man's power of resistance to all gracious influences—underlies all Christ's life and teachings, His arguments, entreaties, persuasions, His Gethsemane agony, His breaking heart, His tragic death, His descent into Hades, His resurrection, His perpetual intercession, His ever-living presence with His church.

All this would be meaningless unless man is in a true sense the arbiter of his own destiny, and God is pleading before him to enter into life eternal. The terrible possibility of a hopeless fate gives pathos to the sorrowful tones of the Pleader's voice.

It appears in his explicit declaration that the wicked go away into eternal punishment; that they are left in outer darkness; that they are cast into the first of Gehenna; that they lose their own soul; that they may sin a sin which shall not be forgiven, neither in this world nor in the world to come. It reappears in reiterated type and metaphor. They are guests arriving too late for the marriage feast and are shut out, and the feast goes on without them. They are chaff to be burned with fire, useless fish to be cast away, fruitless trees to be hewn down and burned to ashes, bankrupts consigned to perpetual imprisonment, rebels slain before the throne of their king. So terrible is this death-doom that any maiming, though it were as the cutting off of the

(Continued on page 391)

HAPPINESS

Lord, teach Thy children how to feel
A shining happiness.
Open our half-blind eyes to see
How richly Thou dost bless.

The fairness of Thy sunshine's rays,
The beauty of Thy skies,
The ripple of a child's sweet laugh,
A little home that cries

Its welcome to the wanderer—
Such joys, which all can know,
Should surely be enough to set
Our very lives aglow.

Yesterday and tomorrow make
As nought to us, we pray.
Help us, unfeigningly, to grasp
The gladness of today.

OUR WORDS

By Allen Dietzman

THE TONGUE is certainly a troublesome member of our body. Many wars have been caused by a few hasty or indiscreet words spoken by statesmen. As the Scriptures teach, death and life are in the power of the tongue.

Many of us are misled by the unbecoming language of some professed Christians. And even if they seem religious but bridle not their tongues, their religion is in vain. We should, therefore, not be misled by any one, because none is righteous in the eyes of God.

We should govern our speech, and let no corrupt communication proceed out of our mouth. This is quite hard to do, if we are standing in our own strength. On the other hand, if we have faith in Christ, He will give us the strength.

"Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is counted wise: and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding." Prov. 17:28.

This verse strengthens the old saying that "Silence is golden". The evident object of the ninth commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour", is to guard our conversation.

If we cannot speak good of our fellow man, why should we speak of him at all? For there is nothing gained by speaking evil of them.

As a result of these things, the constant prayer of every one's heart should be, "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer." Psalm 19:14.

HAVE YOU REPENTED?

By J. H. Leavitt

READ with attention the following text; give it proper consideration; consider Him (God) who gave the command.

"God commandeth all men everywhere to repent."—Acts 17:30.

It is the Maker of all things, the Governor of the universe, and the Giver of our being, who gave this command.

If you have not repented, you have been sinning ever since you have heard the gospel message—in that you have not obeyed this command. You will continue to sin until you do repent. If you never repent, your name will never be recorded in the Book of Life, and you will be "cast into the lake of fire, which is the second death." Rev. 20:14, 15. There will be no resurrection from that death.

You may be moral; you may be honest and truthful; you may do right by others—but if you have not repented, you are still in an unsaved condition. "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Romans 3:23. You are not better than others in this respect. "If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar and his word is not in us." 1 John 1:10.

Citizens should obey the laws of a nation, and if they break or disobey those laws, they are subject to punishment. Children should obey their parents; but if they are stubborn and disobedient, they should be dealt with and properly disciplined. If we ought to obey laws enacted by men, most certainly we ought to obey the commands of God.

Know ye not that "the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance? But after thy hardness and impenitent heart treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; who will render to every man according to his deeds."

"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Luke 13:3. Repent! Turn ye from your worldly, sinful life! Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ! That is repentance.

This will bring you into a saved condition. Praise the Lord! Then you are to go forward in the Christian life and work out your own salvation by patient continuance in well doing—being careful to have your conduct in harmony with the Bible, especially the New Testament.

Jesus said that He would give eternal life to all that hear His voice and obey Him. What a gift is this unending life in the kingdom of God! Who can estimate its value? "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Mark 8:36.

"This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." John 6:29. If we do that work, we please God, and He will give us a home in His kingdom. If we neglect or refuse to do it, we displease Him and perish at last. Might both reader and writer of this article do the work which God, the Giver of our being, has for us to do!

—From a Tract.

THE DIFFICULTIES OF THE BIBLE

YES, there are difficulties, or as Peter said, with reference to Paul's writings, "some things hard to be understood." But that is no reason for throwing the Bible away or neglecting to read it.

There are "some things hard to be understood" in the natural world about us, but these only serve as a challenge to further research and study. And so it ought to be with the Bible. In fact, one of the evidences of the Divine origin of this Book is that it is so much like all the other works of God.

We may not fully understand electricity, and yet we do not let that keep us from using the telephone or having a radio in the house. We may not understand all there is to know about the process of digestion, and yet we do not refuse to eat on that account.

There are those who seem to read the Bible for the purpose of finding fault with it. They are on the watch for apparent contradictions. They are like a man who is said to have picked all the good meat off the fish on his plate and laid the meat beside his plate, and then choked to death on the bones.

Some people pass by the wonderful story of creation and overlook the beauties of paradise as it came from the hand of God; while the one great question with them is as to where Cain got his wife.

Then there is the book of Jonah—one of the grandest stories in the world. Says Carl Heinrich Cornhill: "I have read the Book of Jonah at least a hundred times, and I publicly avow, for I am not ashamed of my weakness, that I cannot even now take up this marvelous book, nay, even speak of it, without tears rising to my eyes, and my heart beating higher." And yet there are those who seem to see nothing in that book but the whale that swallowed Jonah.

We may be sure of this, that when the Bible is rightly understood and its messages correctly interpreted and applied, the difficulties will be gone, and all will be as clear as day. We will then discover that its history is true to facts and that there are no textual contradictions or scientific inaccuracies.

Two things are necessary in order to best understand and appreciate the Bible.

First, there must be faith in its Author, a recognition of His great power and of His infinite wisdom. "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." And he that cometh to God's Book must believe in order to get the most out of it.

Second, there must be the guidance of the same Holy Spirit that inspired the writers of the Bible. Not only were "holy men of God" moved to write by the Holy Spirit, but the same Spirit will help the humble seeker after truth to understand what is written.

The so-called difficulties of the Bible did not seem to disturb such a man as George Muller, who carefully studied the Bible through more than a hundred times! and these "difficulties" will not disturb anyone who has real faith in God and who is filled with the Holy Spirit.

—Linden J. Carter.

GOD GIVETH THE INCREASE

By Gerald Cooper

AFTER Paul had established a church at Corinth, he left there and went about other work. Shortly after his departure, a man came by the name of Apollos, a man of great eloquence, who was a convert of John. This man was not preaching the same thing that Paul had been preaching and consequently dissension arose among the brethren at Corinth. In addition to these two, Cephas or Peter had also been there. This made about four classes of people at Corinth, those who followed Paul; those who followed Peter; those who followed Apollos; and those who said that they followed only Christ.

When Paul heard this, he immediately wrote them and admonished them. He told them that they were not of any of these, but that they were all of Christ, and that they should follow only Him.

In the third chapter of first Corinthians, at 3:6, we find these words: "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase." Thus we find that after Paul had established a church at Corinth, Apollos came along and gave them additional truths. The church continued to grow. But it was not through the efforts of these men, but through God, who was willing that the church at Corinth should prosper. He therefore gave the increase.

Paul then goes on to tell the church that Christ is the only Foundation and the One that he has laid. Apollos builded thereon and others helped to make this church grow. He then tells them that all things are God's, that God has given them to Christ, and that if they are faithful and are found worthy to be joint heirs with Christ, these things will also be theirs.

Our church was established many years ago by our forefathers. They have built upon the true Foundation. We are the waterers, but God gives the increase, just as He gave the increase to the Corinthians many years ago.

What then should we do? Sit down and wait for the other fellow to go ahead with the work and build up the church? NO! We should be on the watch all the time, and if we see an opportunity to help our church in any way, take it and make the best of it.

Therefore let us be true waterers of the church. Watch always and build upon the true Foundation which is Christ. If we build correctly and do the things that God wants us to do, we will have a strong church. Let us not put our trust in man, as the Corinthians did, but let us put our entire trust in God, who will in due time give us the increase that we are deserving of, if we are worthy and faithful.

COMPLETED FINANCIAL REPORTS

FOR DEPARTMENTS OF THE N. B. I. FOR 1930

WE ARE pleased to give herewith a complete financial report of the operations of the National Bible Institution in its various departments for the year 1930. Effort has been made to make this report sufficiently in detail that it will be readily comprehended by all. The report speaks for itself.

The nation wide business and financial depression has been keenly felt by the National Bible Institution. Effort has been made in every department to adjust the activities as much as possible to accord with these general conditions. Savings in material costs along some lines have been noticeable, but these have been more than offset by inability to discern in advance the failure of income. It will be noticed that one of our big losses in "National Bible Institution" operations is in the excess cost of THE HERALD over the income from subscriptions. In the Greenhouse, seeding and planting for fall and winter begin in the previous spring and even earlier. A year ago, plantings were made for normal business for last fall and holidays, but owing to the business depression the holiday trade was but slightly over fifty percent of normal business for that time.

At this time we want to heartily thank all those who by their financial contributions have made it possible to maintain our work even to the degree indicated by these reports.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

(Including Office, Books & Publishing, Training Class, etc.)

Pulpit Earnings	850.75
Miscellaneous Income	18.79
Interest Earned	519.22
Contributions	6039.91
Books & Publishing Sales	1485.68
Office Salaries	3814.93
Office Supplies	78.91
Office Light, Heat, Phone, etc.	77.78
Taxes	140.18
Office Expense	266.55
Interest Paid	956.73
Insurance	40.30
Loss on Herald Subscriptions	1401.78
Depreciation on Class Room Fur. & Fix.	2.77
Depreciation on Office Fur. & Fix.	107.12
Books & Pub. Purchased	1648.48
	8535.53	8914.35
Gain		378.82

GOLDEN RULE HOME

Income from Membership	1116.58
Income—Board, etc.	1036.98
Cost of Table, etc.	873.85
Labor	1337.44
Light, Heat, Phone, & Water	587.76
Repair	86.21
Misc. Exp.—Furnishings, Clothing, Doctor, etc.	229.61
Depreciation	253.37
	3368.24	2153.54
Loss		1214.70

PRINT SHOP

Sales		7044.39
Bad Accounts Paid		8.75
Purchases	1119.54
Salaries	2925.30
Light, Heat, Phone, etc.	288.73
Miscellaneous Expense	338.02
Repairs	78.63
Taxes	51.60
Insurance	18.20
Depreciation on Equipment	799.26
	5619.28	7053.14
Gain		1433.86

GOLDEN RULE GREENHOUSE

Sales		13072.08
Stock and Supplies	4210.43
Labor	7218.92
Light, Heat, Phone, Water	1256.70
Delivery Expense	149.76
Repair	155.57
Miscellaneous Expense	970.11
Interest Paid	1210.90
Insurance	196.66
Depreciations	174.85
Bad Accounts	81.15
	15625.05	13072.08
Loss		2552.97

SUMMARY OF PROFIT AND LOSS FOR 1930

Golden Rule Home	1214.70
Golden Rule Greenhouse	2552.97
N. B. I., Office, etc.		378.82
Print Shop		1433.86
	3767.67	1812.68
Total Loss		1954.99

ASSETS AND LIABILITIES

December 31, 1930

Real Estate	38401.48
Property Contracts	3407.27
Print Shop Equipment	7193.30
Greenhouse Delivery Equipment	534.10
Office Furniture & Fixtures	964.08
Class Room Furniture & Fixtures	24.91
Greenhouse Furniture & Fixtures	200.29
Greenhouse Tools	38.07
Greenhouse Floral Inventory	2855.65
Greenhouse Supplies Inventory	619.00
Farm & Home Inventory	2280.30
Books & Publishing Inventory	1130.70
Print Shop Stock & Supplies Inventory	511.96
Fetters Memorial Library	40.00
Bond Investment	3200.00
Notes Receivable	7407.58
Greenhouse Accounts Receivable	1772.14
N. B. I. Accounts Receivable	274.86
Matured Interest	76.55
Secretary Cash Account	1914.67
Maintenance Fund Cash Account	1299.44
Maintenance Fund in Trust		13700.30
Capital		22029.09
Mortgage Bonds Payable		12000.00
Notes Payable		12350.00
Annuity Bonds		5950.00
Greenhouse Accounts Payable		2282.07
N. B. I. Accounts Payable		1233.47
Greenhouse Bank Account		2837.49
Training Class Account		19.03
Unpaid Interest Coupons (not presented)		256.50
F. A. Stilson		850.00
F. L. Austin		638.40
	74146.35	74146.35

ETERNAL DEATH

(Continued from page 387)

right hand and the plucking out of the right eye, is to be preferred.

If I turn to the Epistles, their language seems to me scarcely less explicit. The wicked are without God, and therefore without hope; their sentence is death, their end destruction, their punishment everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord. I am not unaware of the interpretations which Universalist scholars give to these and kindred words of awful warning. I could perhaps accept explanations of isolated verses. But I trust my readers will not understand me as impugning the honesty of other biblical students when I say that I could not with honesty accept the authority of Christ's teaching for myself and still preach "eternal hope". The possibility of incorrigible sin, the hopeless doom of the incorrigible sinner, appear to me to be as clearly taught by Christ as words can teach them.

But if the New Testament warnings may well awaken fear in every sinner lest his sin become incorrigible, its prophecies give to every Christian good ground of hope in a final, perfect redemption. They foretell a kingdom of Christ to which all the kingdoms of this earth shall belong; an hour when every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess Jesus Christ to be Lord, to the glory of God the Father; a reconciliation of all things unto the Redeemer, whether upon the earth or in the heavens; a millennial glory, in which His kingdom will come, and His will be done on earth as in heaven; a new song unto Him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb forever, sung by every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them.

In the New Testament picture of this hour of triumph there is no shadow of scowling faces, of angered and unrepentant rebels; in the New Testament echo of this song of the redeemed there is no interrupting of wail or wrath from any far-off prison-house of despair. After the last enemy is destroyed, shall sin, worst of all enemies, still live and work his ruin eternally? When God hath put all enemies under Christ's feet, shall this worst of all enemies still rule in triumph over some remote, reserved corner of creation?

I cannot, will not dogmatize; but I can and do believe that God is always better than His promises, and that these promises of the perfect accord of all God's creatures in Him and with Him, mean not less but more than they seem to us to mean. I cannot, will not dogmatize, but I can hope. The more I study the Bible, the more unscriptural seems to me the conception of endless sin. The nearer I come into fellowship with God my Father, my Savior, my Comforter, the more intolerable grows the thought of it to me. And I thank God for the good hope in His Word which permits me to look forward to and haste toward the day when this terrible tragedy of sin and pain will come to an everlasting end.

If one believes in the hopeless doom of incorrigible sin, and also in the undimmed glory of a perfect kingdom of love, he must believe in the annihilation of the incorrigibly wicked. Yes; that would be the logical conclusion. If logic were a glass which reveals the secrets of enmity, this would seem the final doom of unrepented sin. As it is, I can only characterize this as a probable doctrine, more probable by far than the doctrine of endless sin and suffering. There are phrases in Christ's teachings which give some color to that terrible dogma; but more often those quoted in support of it are misquoted or misinterpreted.

Fire is generally, in the Bible, an emblem of destruction, not of torment. The chaff, the tares, the fruitless trees, are thrown into unquenchable fire, not to be tortured, but to be destroyed. The hell fire of the New Testament is the fire of Gehenna, kept burning outside the walls of Jerusalem to destroy the offal of the city. Here was the worm that dieth not, and the fire that is not quenched, emblems of destruction, not of torment. Except two, or at most three, passages in the Gospels, and a few symbols in that most enigmatical book, the Revelation of St. John, there is nothing in the New Testament to warrant the terrible opinion that God sustains the life of His creatures throughout eternity only that they may continue in sin and misery.

That immortality is the gift of God through our Lord Jesus Christ; that man is mortal and must put on immortality; that only he can put it on who becomes through Christ partaker of the divine nature, and so inheritor of Him, "who only hath immortality"; that eternal life is life eternal, and eternal death is death eternal, and everlasting destruction is destruction without remedy or hope of restoration—this is the most natural, as it is the simplest reading of the New Testament.

And still I do not dogmatize; I wait, and fear, and hope, and trust. I am not curious to know the mystic blessing in eternal life; I would not if I could comprehend the awful mystery of eternal death. I am more content, as a little child, to leave the eternal future with my heavenly Father, meanwhile warning every man to beware of the delusive hope which suffers him to postpone repentance till tomorrow, and refusing to burden himself with the intolerable horror of a kingdom of darkness, and night, and sin, as eternal as the kingdom of God and of His Christ."

—From In Aid of Faith, by Lyman Abbott.

BOOK OF BOOKS

"We search the world for truth; we cull
The good, the pure, the beautiful;
And, weary seekers of the best,
We come back laden from our quest,
To find that all the sages said
Is in the Book our mothers read."

In that Book we see Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God, the Savior of the world.

In that Book we hear Him say, "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father."—Selected.

A PRAYER

Give me courage, Lord, I stumble,
Faltering feet are mine today.
Hold me fast lest ideals crumble
Into dust along the way.

Give me faith, O Lord, I need it,
Seeming rudderless I ride.
Take the helm and guide my spirit
Through this overpowering tide.

Give me patience, Lord, I, blinded,
Stagger through the misty night.
Keep my vision fixed, clear-minded
On the stable truths and right.

Give me strength, I would not sever
One thin cord of Thy control.
I would keep Thee, Lord, forever
As the force which rules my soul.
—Laura Caroline Fierz.

WHAT IS MAN?

By R. H. Judd

"In thy book all my members were written . . . when as yet there was none of them."—Psalm 139:16.

NUMBER THREE

THE WRITER commenced these articles as the result of his own Bible study, but since writing the two articles already printed, he has had access to Hugh Miller's book, The Testimony of the Rocks, and has been gratified to find very similar thoughts suggested, and others of equal interest. He feels HERALD readers would be pleased to have some of these even at the risk of a little repetition, before proceeding with his own.

Hugh Miller tells us that the classification of ancient plants and animals has developed, from crude and incorrect classifications, until those of present date are in practical agreement with nature's own classifications, as each successive species came into being.

Among other very interesting facts he points out that only just prior to the coming of man did plant life produce flowering varieties in profusion. He says, "The history of the rocks tells us that man's world with all its griefs and troubles is emphatically more a world of flowers than any of the creations that preceded it. . . . It ministers to that sense of beauty to which he owes not a few of his most exquisite enjoyments."

These are but one of God's many tangible gifts to man, finding fitting expression in a heart, silent with sorrow, bringing cheer and refreshment in abounding joy. So here again we find expressed in other words what we have before tried to make clear, the suitable adaptability of all phases of creation, as we now know it, to conform to what man himself actually is. Had man himself been other than what we know him to be, creation itself on this earth must have been different also.

Professor Owen, the naturalist, is quoted as saying that "man exemplifies in his structure the perfection of that type which from the earliest ages nature had been working with reference to some future development, and therefore a preordained existence." From his wide knowledge he adds these significant words, "The knowledge of such a being as man must have existed before man appeared."

Agassiz, another student of nature, says, "The Creator's aim in forming the earth and allowing it to undergo its successive changes, and in creating all the different types of animals which have passed away, was to introduce man upon the earth." "Man," he says, "is, in short, preeminently the antitypical existence—the being in whom all the types meet and are fulfilled."

Still another writer points out that "every portion of man's frame has been exemplified in preexisting life", and quotes the verse at the head of our paper, "In thy book (of nature) were all my members written when as yet there was none of them."

These writers were not evolutionists in the sense that that term is understood today. They did not believe that man is of parental descent from preexisting life, but they held to what Professor Oken says, "Man is the sum total of all the animals." If we truly catch the thought of the writer here, there is a depth and a beauty not revealed on the surface. But even so, it is only partially true, for while man may combine in his being all the salient points of preexisting life, he is not limited to these but immeasurably surpasses them, even in his present state.

Another writer says, "The strange resemblances that pervade all nature and impart a general unity to its forms would seem to indicate that there is but one grand end in view—one end to attain, namely, man himself."

We now come to a remark of Hugh Miller's that beautifully sums up the foregoing thoughts of others. He says, "It is surely no incredible thing that He, who in the dispensations of the human period, spake by type and by symbol, should have also spoken in geological ages by prophetic figures embodied in the forms and structures of animals. Nay what the poet imagined, though in a somewhat extreme form, the philosophers seem to be on the very verge of confirming." Each succeeding age cast its "shadows of better things to come".

"The advent of man," he says further, "was the great event prefigured in the geologic ages. The advent of the Divine Man, who abolished death and brought life and immortality to light, was the great event prefigured during the historic ages. It is these two great events, equally portions of one sublime scheme, . . . that bind together past present and future—the geologic with the patriarchal, the

(Continued on page 394)

OUR SALVATION BROUGHT NEARER BY PERSONAL PROGRESS

AS TIME passes, the day of salvation or reward grows nearer because God has a time set when He will reward the overcomer. But whether we will receive that reward or not depends partly at least on ourselves.

The Lord gave us of His Spirit when we believed, and He gives us grace and strength as required; nevertheless, we are expected to make progress by personal effort: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."—Matthew 16:24.

Too many expect to be carried about on flowery beds of ease. Having been as they say, "saved", they leave everything to the Lord, and think they can never be lost. They think that the Lord would not permit them to be lost after once being saved.

Salvation is referred to in the Scriptures as a walk, or something for which we must run. Salvation is a process, as well as something to be attained in the end. The whole Christian life is a growth, from babes to mature men. When we first believe in Jesus, we are as babes; and we are nourished by the "sincere milk", which is the Word of God.

"Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, as newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby."—1 Peter 2:1.

By the word of truth we are enabled to grow and develop as children of God, and are made ready for the "salvation ready to be revealed in the last time."

PROGRESS ONWARD TO PERFECTION

That progress must be made in the way of salvation is shown by Hebrews 6:1: "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection." This does not mean to leave the first principles in the sense of abandoning them, but to leave them in the sense of being thoroughly instructed in them, and therefore not requiring to learn them over again.

The apostle mentions "repentance from dead works" as one of the first things learned and one of the first things acted upon in our Christian life. Having once learned this and acted upon it, we should have no need to learn it over and over again. But, having mastered this foundation truth, we have to maintain that position and from it make progress in other things concerning our Christian life.

Another principle the Apostle mentions that can be left is the resurrection. That is, having learned that there is to be a resurrection, it is not necessary to learn that truth over and over again. But we go on learning more and more of what resurrection means in our own lives, being raised to walk in newness of life. We also learn more particular details about the resurrection to take place when our Lord calls forth the dead from their graves—who will be raised, and to what condition; also that there is a special resurrection to be joint heirs with Christ.

Having learned that there is this offer of a special resurrection, it is our duty and privilege to make progress toward it. This means overcoming temptations to turn to the right or left, or to go back into the world, and to overcome the natural tendency to rest content with less than the promised end. If we do this overcoming, and make daily progress, we shall ever be approaching nearer and nearer to our salvation.

With each of us who are faithful our salvation is now nearer than when we believed in Jesus at the beginning of our Christian walk.

SALVATION IN THAT DAY

We must not, however, fall into the mistake of many who think that salvation comes at death. The Apostle Paul said that his salvation was nearer, yet he wrote to Timothy that the crown was "laid up", and would not be given until a long time future, which he called "that day".

At that day crowns will be given to all those who love the Lord's appearing. Hence the salvation was reserved, or "laid up", to be given to all the overcomers at "that day", and not at death. Read Colossians 1:5; 2 Timothy 4:6-8.

Although it does not come at death, we have to make all our progress before death, since there is no opportunity while dead to make progress.

STEPS OF PROGRESS

The Apostle Peter tells us to make our calling and election sure, indicating that it must be made sure in this life by conformity to the will of God. These steps of progress are described in 2 Peter 1:5-8. Read these verses carefully.

By adding virtue or fortitude we progress; by adding knowledge we progress; by adding temperance we progress; by adding godliness we progress; by adding brotherly kindness we progress.

The more we add, the more we progress. Following in the footsteps of Jesus means that we are progressing in these virtues, because He practiced them. That is the true progress—growing more and more like the Lord. It also involves progress in the knowledge of His Word, for we accept Him as our Teacher, as well as our Guide.

In the letter to the Ephesians (4:13-15), the perfecting of the saints is spoken of as something that is going on now, not to make us perfect physically, but to develop us in mind, heart, and character, and also in knowledge. "Till we all come in (or into) the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

Perfect means mature; that is, to be fully developed in all the things mentioned is to reach maturity. When the Christian has reached this maturity, here called perfection, he will not, the Apostle says, be like ignorant children, "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine."

Maturity means not only full development in knowledge but stability of character—not easily moved from the right. "But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ."

Thus shall our salvation daily draw nearer by our personal progress. Growing up into the image and likeness of our Lord now, so far as we are able by His grace, we shall be the better prepared for that change which is part of the salvation promised—to be made like Him, that we may see Him as He is, who is the image and likeness of God. (1 John 3:1, 2.)

May it be our happy privilege to realize the fulfillment of His promise and His prayer for us—"that where I am, there ye may be also"; "that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me." John 14:3; 17:24.

—From The New Covenant Advocate.

"THE NEARER ONE WALKS with God and His Christ the more conspicuous target for the adversary one becomes. Anyone doubting this will profit greatly by putting it to a test, despite the severity of the experiment."—S. E. H.

WHAT IS MAN?

(Continued from page 392)

Mosaic and the Christian ages, and all together with the new heavens and earth, the last of many creations—in which there shall be no more curse, no more death, but the throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him."

"Man in his great department of industry is what none of his predecessors ever were—a fellow-worker with the Creator. He adds to the beauty of the flowers, to the delicacy and fertility of the fruits. The seeds of the wild grasses become corn under his care, and the wild produce of nature sports under his hand. . . . An occult law of change and development meets with him in his developing instinct and ability. The habits which he imparts to the parents become nature in his behalf, in their offspring. . . . Man is the one created being that carries on the work of his adorable Creator."

Yet one more quotation from this remarkable man, who though "orthodox" in his belief, is, from the force of evidence, compelled to make admissions that he otherwise would not do. Note the following and see how nearly he approaches our own thoughts concerning man and his destiny.

"As certainly as the dynasty of the fish was predetermined in the scheme of Providence to be superseded by the higher dynasty of the reptile, and that of the reptile by the higher dynasty of the mammal, so it was equally determined that the dynasty of responsible fallible man should be succeeded by the dynasty of glorified immortal man. . . . The progress of creation and Providence in all its successive periods is of God, not of man." He further says, "I can as little regard the present state of things as ultimate, as any of the preceding pre-adamic ages. It is simply one scene in a foreordained series."

Who but an everlasting, ever living God could carry out a scheme so comprehensive, so vast?

A MODERN THOUGHT OF CREATION

MODERN theosophy becomes chimerical when impartially compared with Scripture. Were controversialists to take Jehovah at His word they would discover by genealogy and chronology that man was created perfect ("very good") about six thousand years ago. And that instead of the Darwin-monkey theory of the race evolving upward from a bubble to perfection through millions of years, it has been deteriorating until today it is hardly functional, sin having brought mankind to the verge of non compos mentis.

They would also learn that soul and life (nepshesh) are synonymous, and subject to death—the antithesis of life, and that life and immortality are to be sought. "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life."

Then perhaps they would teach the way of life, the thing most desired; which can be had only by faith in the efficacious blood of Jesus Christ, who poured out His soul unto death, giving himself a Ransom for all. This spark of Adamic life must terminate in death. Continuous life begins at the resurrection, which synchronizes with the second advent: "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—Samuel E. Haney in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

"IN proportion as life's obligations increase, the need of preparation for them is ignored. We need not only to act; we need to think. We need not only to do; we need to pray. If Jesus needed them, do we not need the hours on the mountainside and in the garden?"

THE CROWNING DAY

(Continued from front page)

self as the future King of kings, and Lord of lords. But the world is turning farther away from Him each passing year. Men are denying the Lord Jesus Christ admission into their homes, their schools, their governments, and their lives! They are crying with increasing insistence, "We will not have this man to reign over us." Luke 19:14.

It is no longer the Jews alone who condemn the Christ of God, but the whole wide world for which He died. Nations, even, are now demanding the death of Christ, of His influence, and of His authority over their lives. And they reject with scorn the suggestion of His possible reign over them in the future. "Away with him, away with him"! They cry with His Jewish traducers of old.

"Our Lord is now rejected, and by the world disowned, By the many still neglected, and by the few enthroned; But soon He'll come in glory, the hour is drawing nigh, For the crowning day is coming by and by!"

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"BUT WITHOUT FAITH IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO PLEASE HIM: FOR HE THAT COMETH TO GOD MUST BELIEVE THAT HE IS, AND THAT HE IS A REWARDER OF THEM THAT DILIGENTLY SEEK HIM." — HEBREWS 11:6.

FAITH OF THE CANAANITE WOMAN

JESUS had fed the five thousand and talked in the synagogue at Capernaum. He wanted to be alone with His disciples and teach them, for He knew that in less than a year He would leave them to carry on His work of preaching the gospel to the world.

So He and His disciples went to the land of Tyre and Sidon. When they reached a village they went into a house. Jesus didn't want the people to know that He was there, but there was no place for Him to hide.

A Canaanite woman, hearing that Jesus was there, came to see Him and ask Him to cure her daughter who was sick. Falling down, she begged Him to go home with her, but at first He would not answer her, because it was not for this reason that He had come to this place. Matt. 15:24. She kept crying and begging, until at last the disciples asked Jesus to send her away, for she was bothering them. They thought that she was unworthy of the Lord's care because she was a Gentile.

But Jesus didn't want to turn her down, so He said, "Your faith is so great that your daughter shall be made well."

It is impossible to please God without faith. Hebrews 11:6. Our faith is hearing the Word of God, believing, and being baptized. We show our faith by living as near as we can to Jesus' teaching, keeping ourselves pure, and looking for our Savior's coming. Romans 8:28.

Mary Jane Eekert, Age 13, Dixon, Illinois.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

THE March social and business meeting of the Brush Creek Bereans was held on Thursday evening, March fifth, at the home of Bro. and Sr. Clyde Pearson. A very profitable business meeting was held, at which it was decided to have some one appointed each month to write an article for the Berean Page. The program committee reported that the program for the next two months was almost ready to go to print. This is a new project for us, and we are confident that it is going to be a great help in keeping up our interest and in securing new members.

It was also decided by vote to use the money in the treasury for the purpose of securing seats for the church.

There were thirty-three present at this meeting, which shows quite an increase over previous months. Interest is good, and we are enjoying the second lesson books very much. We adjourned the business meeting to meet in April with Bro. and Sr. Floyd Kessler.

A lively social meeting followed, with much singing, contests and games for young and old. At ten o'clock dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Eunice Pearson, Sec., Tippecanoe City, Ohio.

CLASSIFICATION OF LIFE

IN THE study of life we have many different classes and many planes of being in which life is held. Highest of all we have the Divine nature, and into smaller groups we have the angels and all other creatures of heaven who surround the throne of God.

Of all the hosts of heaven only the angels are revealed with any definite degree. As we all know, the word, "angel", means "messenger". They are the messengers of God and are immortal, their duties being to minister unto humans and protect them from any harm or danger.

Coming down to the things of the earth, we find that man is the highest of mortals. Still lower we have the animals and lowest of all nature are the plants.

So in this great world we find many different orders of life, each one serving its own special purpose.

Miss Luella Underwood, Tippecanoe City, Ohio.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 14; Ohio, 11; California, 4; Michigan, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Louisiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1.

"DON'T criticise the Bible—let the Bible criticise you."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE RESURRECTION

MARK 16:1-20

“O death, where is thy sting? O, grave, where is thy victory?”

THIS week we have the “story of stories”—the happiest one. As Jesus had told His helpers, so it was done unto Him. He was crucified and then placed in a tomb, and the door of the tomb securely sealed.

In those days it was the custom to anoint the bodies with sweet spices, and so, for that purpose, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of Jesus, and Salome went to the burial place of Jesus. They arose very early the first day of the week and reached the tomb just as the sun began to shine.

A very heavy stone had been used to stop the entrance of the sepulchre, and the women wondered who would roll it away for them. But, lo and behold! when they looked the stone was already rolled away! Some one must have come earlier than they!

Intent upon their errand of love, they entered the tomb. Imagine their surprise! There on the right side sat a young man dressed in a long white garment. Their surprise changed to fright, for they did not understand who it could be. Moreover, the young man spoke to them, saying, “Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.”

He told them to find the disciples, Peter in particular, and tell them that Jesus had already gone into Galilee and would meet them there. The women were so amazed that they trembled and continued to be so afraid that they did not tell the good news.

Soon Jesus himself appeared to Mary Magdalene, and she then hurried to the mourning disciples with her comforting message. However, they could hardly believe it.

Before long Jesus appeared to Peter and John as they were walking along the road, and they ran to tell the disciples. But the disciples would not believe them either.

Then, at last, Jesus appeared to the whole eleven, as they were eating, and they had to believe it then. He chided them for their doubt, especially after He had told them so many times that He would rise the third day.

Now the time had come when the helpers were to carry on the work for which Jesus had been preparing them. The command came: “Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.”

Then Jesus was taken up into heaven, where He now is, sitting on the right hand of God.

READ First Corinthians 15:1-8 and 50-58.

In First Corinthians we find Paul confirming the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus. He says that he preached what he had been taught.

He said that Jesus, after His resurrection, was seen by Cephas (Peter), the twelve, and afterward by five hundred brethren at one time, some of whom were then living. Afterward, He was seen by James and then of all the apostles.

Paul then said that he had seen Jesus last, although he was like “one born out of due time”. That is, he saw Jesus after Jesus had gone to heaven. You remember the story how Paul was stopped on his way to Damascus, the bright light shone, and Paul was made blind.

Paul continues with a happy hope for us. We, too, shall be changed as Jesus was. When He returns to earth, many will be alive, and both they and those who are asleep in Jesus “shall be changed”.

When JESUS RETURNS, people will be made immortal. (Remember Isaiah 35.) That gift of eternal life shall be given because Jesus suffered for us and was resurrected.

“Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.”

READ ACTS 9:1-9.

HAVE YOU STARTED TO LEARN ISAIAH 35?

Read what was printed about it on the review page for March 29.

Read Luke 13:1 to 14:35, and 18:15-17.

Learn Luke 13, last verse.

“IT IS WORTH KNOWING that the Isle of Patmos is a volcanic island in the Aegean Sea off the coast of Asia Minor. It is about ten miles long and six miles broad. It has a population of about four thousand; and is under the rule of Italy.”—S. E. H.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 1. — April 5, 1931

EASTER LESSON: THE RESURRECTION

1 Corinthians 15:1-8, 50-58

Devotional Reading: Philippians 2:1-11

GOLDEN TEXT

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept.—1 Corinthians 15:20.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. The Gospel of Resurrection.

Basic Truth. "If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen".—1 Cor. 15:13.

Outline. I. The Fact of Resurrection. II. Proof and Power of Resurrection.

I. The Fact of Resurrection. The tremendous price which Christ in His death paid for sin has attracted the eye and aroused the sympathy of all. Let us not detract one iota from all this. Rather, in addition to this, let us come to solemnly realize the further astounding fact that had Christ not risen from the dead, the tremendous price which He paid in death would have been futile. Paul's lawful analysis is that if Christ be not risen, all hope is gone. He says, 1 Cor. 15:14,

"If Christ be not risen,

"Then is our preaching vain,

"And your faith is also vain.

"And we are found false witnesses of God;

"Because we have testified of God, that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not.

"If Christ be not raised,

"Your faith is vain;

"Ye are yet in your sins."

All, even Christ's own reward, was dependent upon His resurrection.

II. Proof and Power of Resurrection. As a proof of the Savior's resurrection, Paul cites those who at different times saw Him and recognized Him. Frequently, the Acts of the Apostles and the Epistles attribute the resurrection of Christ to the power of God:

"Whom God hath raised up".—Acts 2:24.

"This Jesus hath God raised up".—V. 32.

"Whom God hath raised from the dead".—Acts 3:15.

Like all other power, so the power of resurrection rested in God.

This resurrection power God afterward gave to His Son: "The Son quickeneth (makes alive) whom he will."—John 5:21. "The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth"—John 5:28, 29. To Martha Jesus said, John 11:25, "I am the resurrection and the life".

The great power of resurrection God has given to His Son.

As with Christ, so with man! If there be no resurrection, all is lost; sin is triumphant.

The assurance of resurrection gives to man the assurance of triumph over sin and death.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Resurrection: Resurrection is the result of supernatural power used in a practical way to destroy the wage of sin, which is death. No teaching is more practical than that which has to do with life, happiness, and the pursuit thereof; and certainly resurrection has to do with all of these. It returns life, re-unites broken family circles, corrects the deformities of our physical natures, and ushers in a happiness of which the half has never been told. Its enunciation was so important and vital that Paul delivered it first of all. It is a doctrine, but an immensely practical one, and one that is woefully neglected.

Resurrection

—is a doctrine of individual interest;

—is man's only hope of life beyond death;

—is not a heresy, but gloriously real;

—will be the spring that ushers in man's eternal summer;

—is the destroyer of death which is the destroyer of man.

It Inspires: Resurrection inspires us to hope; it is the silver lining in the cloud of death. Any teaching or action which inspires a soul to hope, driving out despair, and opening the shutters of life that the golden beams of love and happiness can flutter in, is a worthy effort in every way.

Live to —inspire others to deeds holy and true;

—broadcast love to everyone you know;

—give freely of your sunshine, that its beams may in other lives glow;

—labor and greet the world with a smile;

—resurrect in others the hopes that have flickered out in moments of despair.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept."—1 Corinthians 15:20.

In spite of the fact that the Bible teaches plainly that Christ rose from the dead, there have always been some ready to say that there is no resurrection of the dead. "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." 1 Cor. 15:14.

The dead are not all raised at the same time, "but every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor. 15:23.

Our hope is the resurrection. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." 1 Thess. 4:14.

"And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence." Col. 1:18.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Resurrection.

In verses 1 to 4 Paul says, "I declare unto you the gospel," i. e., "I earnestly desire to impress upon you the gospel or good news of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection." The resurrection of Christ is the foundation of Christian hope, for Paul argues that, "if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."—1 Cor. 15:14. Take out of the Scriptures the fact of the resurrection of Jesus Christ, and you have removed the very foundation of the Christian religion.

But the resurrection of Christ will avail us nothing unless we can say that we are "risen with Christ" and we "seek those things which are above," Col. 3:1. And if we are "found in him" and have "the righteousness which is of God by faith," we will come to know the "power of his resurrection." Phil. 3:9, 10.

—F. A. S.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Gospel of the Resurrection.

The story of the resurrection of Jesus, as found in the last chapter of the book of Mark, is a most interesting one. Jesus had really died, just the same as any other person who has died. He had been buried and a stone had been rolled, closing the door of the sepulchre. During the few brief years of His life on earth, He had taught the people of a coming kingdom wherein all should be perfection. But how could there be a kingdom, if the King were dead?

Many of His followers were discouraged and had gone back to their work, thinking all was lost. But very early in the morning, some of the women who loved Him had come to visit the grave, and they were startled to find the heavy stone rolled away and the grave empty. He who had been dead was alive forever more.

Who was the first to see the risen Savior? Mark 16:9. Was the news easy to believe? VV. 10-13. What does the word, gospel, mean? Was the news of Jesus' resurrection, gospel? Why? Was it just as much gospel as the news of His birth? What effect would it have on us, His followers, if He had not been raised from the dead? 1 Cor. 15:17, 18. Of what does the resurrection of Christ assure us? VV. 21, 22. What sort of life did Jesus have after His resurrection? VV. 44, 45. When will we receive the same kind of life? VV. 51, 52.

Because Jesus willingly laid down His life for us, His Father raised Him to immortal life. If we serve Him faithfully throughout life, He will give us immortal life, too, when He comes again.—M. G.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

FROM BRO. JUDD

Sr. R. H. Judd of Toronto, Ontario, has had a windfall. An aged aunt has willed her sufficient money for a return trip to the Old Land to see her relatives, and she hopes to start about May 1. Bro. Judd writes, "What your humble servant will do, I cannot say yet. Perhaps I will see if some of the Fonthill friends can give me some employment on their farms for my board and perhaps a little more. Of course, should some suitable employment open up in the city, I shall stay here. With my 'game' leg, I am not as useful as I used to be. However, the way will be opened up for us. By the way, I am sorry I have not been able to write and thank the good friends who answered my query in The Herald of a short time ago. Some of them were very acceptable."

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The group here is working along as faithfully as ever. When they undertake something they put their shoulders to the wheel and make a real success of it.

Bro. Chas. Simpson has been undergoing treatment the past month for a trouble from which he has suffered for several years, and all are glad to know how well he is progressing. Sr. Simpson, though not very strong yet, has been holding up well. Sr. Skeels continues slowly to gain in strength, and Mrs. Ladwig is also showing improvement. For all of these things we offer thanks to our heavenly Father.

Sunday School attendance on March 15 was 255, and an overflowing house was found at night, when some special musical features were given. The possibility of organizing a church orchestra is arousing quite a bit of interest.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

A TOUR OF CHURCHES

Bro. J. W. Williams expects to hold services at the following places in Nebraska: at Blair on March 23 and April 3; at Avery, March 24; at Holbrook, March 26 to 30; at Lincoln, March 31 to April 2. All those living in the neighborhood of these places of meeting are urged to be present as much as possible.

The Executive Board of the Illinois State Conference will hold a business session on Saturday evening, March 28. Bro. and Sr. Frank Laning of Mount Sterling, and Sr. Leila Whitehead of Chicago expect to be present with those members living near by.

FONTHILL

Sr. Taylor has been confined to her home for some time through illness.

Sr. Martha Platts, some two weeks ago, had the misfortune to slip and fall. At the time the injuries were considered to be in the form of sprains and bruises, but later, when medically examined, she was found to have a fractured hip. This at her advanced age is much to be regretted. We pray for the Master's healing power to be granted unto Sr. Platts.

The Fonthill Women's Institute are at present conducting a two weeks' course in sewing. These classes are being held in our church basement.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." —Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Roll Brewer,	Troy, Ohio.
Bro. Lloyd Eklund,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. Curdella Gray	Lanark, Ill.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Bro. Albert Singer,	Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.
J. H. Leavitt	Wewahitchka, Fla.

Bro. Leavitt writes that he is assisting in the work of two Sunday Schools and he, with others, has recently opened a new meeting house, which is non-sectarian. Bro. Leavitt is an unusually busy man, it appears, for his age, which is 89. He asks the prayers of the brotherhood for himself and the work in which he is engaged.

PRE-EASTER ACTIVITIES

The church at Oregon, Illinois, is issuing a local bulletin this week announcing pre-Easter services, beginning March 29 and continuing each night for a week, closing with the evening services on Easter Sunday. The sermons will be given by the pastor, Bro. Austin, portraying the life of our Savior during the week of His passion. Special music will be rendered each evening by Sr. Rogers, assisted by Sr. Winfrey, directing the men's chorus and the junior choir. All those finding it possible to attend will be greatly uplifted and benefited, by both sermon and music.

A special preparatory class has been meeting with Bro. Austin each Thursday evening previous to the prayer meeting, consisting of those who are considering consecration to the Savior. This class now numbers nine young people, and baptismal services will be held on Easter Sunday. God is specially blessing the work at Oregon, and we pray that Bro. Austin may be strengthened in his labors, and that all may grow in faith and in service to God.

ORDERS FOR EASTER HERALDS

J. W. Cooper; Mrs. George Reighard; Anna E. Sleight; M. W. Perrine; Mrs. Mary Poland; Mrs. Harry G. Kipp; Mrs. Clark McClelland; Vivian Magaw; R. A. Humphreys; Mrs. H. L. Leeper; Mrs. Sidney Martin; E. S. Logan; Mrs. W. H. Eidemiller; Mrs. James Kessler.

TRAINING CLASS NEWS

The class is now studying Paul's Epistle to the Philippians in their Bible work, and is gaining many truths thereby. The new members, Brothers Roland Wright and Allen Dietzman, are making remarkable progress in their Bible studies.

Bro. Allen Dietzman was absent last week because of having his tonsils removed at Dixon Hospital. He was back at class March 23.

The English class is doing some good work in correcting errors of speech and in memorizing portions of Scripture.

OUR EASTER OFFERING

The following Easter Offerings have been received since last issue. To all of these we express our gratitude, and we pray that the heavenly Father will add His showers of blessing in ways in which they severally stand in need. No effort which we may put forth in memory of the gift which we hope to receive as a result of our Savior's death and resurrection can be too great. Let us offer ourselves, our all, to Him on Easter Day.

Previously reported	$33.00
Carrie E. Hilsabeck	1.00
H. H. Hawkins	3.00
Mrs. S. Cronkhite	2.00
Jas. A. Patrick	1.00
Leila Mae Siple	5.00
An Isolated Sister	2.00
Mrs. Lola Clark	1.00
Mrs. Elizabeth Hutchings	3.00
Mrs. Diana Murphy	3.00
Jessie M. Wilson	5.00

Total $59.00

HERALD RECEIPTS

William Fey; Lucille LeCrone; Mrs. George Reighard; E. E. Williams; Thomas Davis; D. S. Kirkpatrick; J. H. Leavitt; R. A. Humphreys; Mrs. J. E. Hindman; H. H. Hawkins; Alta Mitchell; Eva L. Underwood; Mrs. G. H. Loudenslager; Loren L. Burnett; R. S. Lindstrom; Mrs. G. E. Black; L. E. Robinson.

FROM BEAR, ARKANSAS

Dear Friends of Our Weekly Messenger: The Herald for March 3, as its forerunners, is brimful of wholesome food for the mind of mortal man. Job 4:17; 31:33. His highest privilege now is to seek for glory and honor and immortality. See Rom. 2:7. The first article by Bro. R. A. Curtis, entitled, "What Shall the End Be of Those That Obey not the Gospel of God?", is correctly and scripturally expounded. Luke 24:27. Isn't everlasting destruction bad enough? Acts 3:22. The closing articles on page 352 by C. E. Lapp, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?", and by Ednah Cooper, "The Answer to Prayer", bring us nearer to each other and hence nearer to God. 1 Cor. 8:5, 6. Amen.

Kittie C. and R. A. Humphreys.

"Whom do men say that I am?" is as timely in this present time as in the day that Christ asked it of the disciples. Some say He was an imposter; some, a good man; but, others confess that He is the Lord Jesus, the Son of the living God. "Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God." 1 John 4:15. — F. A. S.

MARY ANN WILLIAMS

Mary Ann Williams was born in Iowa, on October 24, 1848, and crossed the plains at the age of twelve, living in Oregon for a time, then in the neighborhood of Felida, Washington for forty years. She died at the home of her son, near Vancouver, on March 14, 1931. She leaves to mourn her loss, three daughters, two sons, one brother, one sister, twenty-two grandchildren, and fourteen great-grandchildren.

Sr. Williams was a member of the Church of God for many years and was beloved by all, as attested by the great crowd and beautiful floral offering. The writer conducted the services from the church at Felida.

A. W. Darby.

REBECCA FISHER

Sr. Rebecca Fisher passed away at her home near Elmira, Oregon, recently, after a lingering illness. She was born at Columbia City, Indiana, on September 21, 1851. She came west forty-three years ago, living for three years in Coos County, Oregon, then coming to Eugene.

Forty years ago she united with the Church of God at Eugene, when she heard the gospel proclaimed by William Skeels. Sr. Fisher is survived by five sons, all of Eugene, one sister, Martha Coverston, of Indiana, and three grandchildren. We laid her to rest in the Oak Hill Cemetery until Christ returns, who has power over death and the grave.

C. H. Belshaw.

MY STRENGTH IS IN THE LORD

The LORD is my strength and my shield;
My heart trusteth in Him, and I am helped:
Therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth;
And with my song will I praise Him.
The LORD is their strength,
And He is the saving strength of His anointed.
Save Thy People, and bless Thine inheritance:
Feed them also, and lift them up for ever.
— Psalm 28:8-10.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BASKET WEAVE

THE NEW BINDING FOR
OXFORD BIBLES

Grained with basket weave design. Highly finished calf leather, of a dark brown color. Button clasp keeps volume closed and protected. Convenient to carry. Oxford India paper. Six maps.

This is a beautiful book for your own use or for a gift. Prices range from $4.25 to 10.50.

Write for complete descriptions.

ANNUITY BONDS

There is no better way to preserve one's capital for use during life and at the same time dedicate it to the Master's use after one's death than by a National Bible Institution Annuity Bond. Write NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois, for information.

Any Amount - Much or Little

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince
(For cost of Postage) 32 .03 .12

BOOKS

Name

Pages Each Per 6

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth,	480	.85	5.00
Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson
Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

THE EPISTLE TO THE COLOSSIANS

By Lyman Booth

COLOSSE was a populous city of Phrygia, situated in the valley of the Lycus in Asia Minor, close to Hierapolis and Laodicea. Nothing is known for a certainty as to who founded the church there. It is not recorded that Paul had ever been there; and the general trend of ancient testimony favors the opinion that he never was there. Some recent writers, however, contend that he was, and he may have visited the place during his tour in "the Phrygian and Galatian country" (Acts 16:6), but it is hardly probable, especially as he mentions the Colossians and those of Laodicea as "not having seen his face in the flesh". Col. 2:1.

There is a great similarity between this epistle, and that to the Ephesians. It is generally supposed that they were written about the same time and sent by the same messenger, even Tychicus, though Onesimus, being a Colossian who accompanied Tychicus, is not mentioned in the epistle to the Ephesians.

It is quite probable that Paul had heard of some teachers, grafting heathen philosophy along with traditions of the Pharisees on the ritual law of Moses, who had corrupted the gospel by this mixture, and were attempting to draw the Colossians aside from the truth. Therefore he particularly warned them against these deceivers and against all who, either by superstitious observances or philosophy, attempted to draw them aside from the simplicity of Christ, in whom alone they were complete and had everything of which they could conceive. These cautions and exhortations are introduced and connected with the most exalted views of the personal and mediatorial dignity of Christ.

This epistle forms one of a closely connected group of three. It is linked on the one hand to the letter to Philemon by the group of personal salutations common to the two, and on the other hand to the epistle to the Ephesians by a remarkable and intricate community of contents, and by the fact that the two letters were entrusted to the same messenger (Col. 4:7; Eph. 6:21) and probably by an express reference in the Colossian letter to the sister epistle under the title of the Epistle from Laodicea in 4:16.

Paul's language in this epistle leaves no doubt that the church at Colosse had not been directly founded by him, and that he was personally unknown to the bulk of its members, though individuals among them, such as Philemon, may have met him during his long stay at Ephesus and have owed their conversion to him.

It is clear from chapter 4:3 that the Apostle when he wrote was imprisoned, and it seems from various circumstances that it was his first imprisonment in Rome. We find Timothy with him (ch. 1:1), who was not with him at Rome when he was brought a second time before Nero (2 Tim. 4:16). Nor is it likely that Timothy was with him when he was imprisoned at Caesarea. But he was with Paul in his imprisonment in Rome (Phil. 1:1).

When Paul wrote this Epistle Demas was with him (ch. 4:14), but when he was brought before Nero the second time, Demas forsook him (2 Tim. 4:10). In the Epistle Onesimus, Aristarchus, Mark, Epaphras, and Luke are named (ch. 4:9-14). When Paul wrote the Epistle to Philemon, there were with him Onesimus (v. 10), Epaphras and Luke, Mark, Aristarchus, and Demas (vv. 23, 24).

It is evident from the preceding facts that this Epistle was written about the same time as the Epistle to the Philippians and that to Philemon. Now the letter to the Philippians was written in the latter part of Paul's first imprisonment in Rome, and the Epistle to Philemon shortly before Paul's liberation from that imprisonment, as appears from his direction to Philemon to prepare him a lodging (v. 22).

We may, therefore, conclude that the Epistle to the Colossians was written near the close of Paul's first imprisonment in Rome, about A. D. 63. It was sent to the Colossians by Tychicus (ch. 4:7). Epaphras had most probably been the instrument of their conversion during the Apostle's long sojourn at Ephesus.

Two incidents brought Colosse before Paul's notice during his imprisonment at Rome, a visit of Epaphras (4:12), and the coming of the runaway slave, Onesimus, who had left his Colossian master, Philemon, and fled to Rome. Epaphras could speak favorably of the faith of the Colossians and their work of love (1:4, 8), but he had to announce the appearance among them of a dangerous form of heresy, half Jewish, half oriental, tending to corrupt the simplicity of their faith and to obscure the dignity of Christ by a spurious union of Jewish observances with a worshiping of angels and an extravagant asceticism.

In A. D. 63 Tychicus and Onesimus were on the point of leaving Rome for the East (4:7-9), and the Apostle resolved to avail himself of the opportunity of addressing a special letter to the Colossians warning them to be on their guard against the vain deceit of a false philosophy, and exhorting them to constancy to their one and only Lord. Accordingly, after the opening salutation and thanksgiving (1:1-5), he proceeds to show Christ as the Head of the new creation, the church, who by His resurrection and ascension had reconciled humanity to God the Father (1:16-29).

He warns them not to be led astray by any strange philosophy and urges them to fix their attention on Him, whose perfect Sacrifice had fulfilled all the typical offerings of Judaism, and in whom they were free from all ritual prohibitions (2:8; 3:4). He applies the effect of their participation in Christ's resurrection to various social relations, as husbands, wives, children, fathers, mothers, slaves (3:5; 4:6). He refers them to Tychicus and Onesimus for information respecting his condition and requests them to forward the Epistle to the Laodiceans, and to read that received from Laodicea (4:7-18).

SEND US those names of your friends, at once, so they will enjoy, with you, the Easter HERALD. Five Cents per copy.

“I gave, I gave My life for thee,
What hast thou given for Me?”

NUMBER 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 31, 1931

VOLUME 20

RESTITUTION HERALD

EASTER NUMBER

THE Barnett, Arthur
Cambridge, Nebraska,
October 1, '30
Route 3

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead."

THE PSALM OF THE CROSS

PSALM 22

MY GOD, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? why art thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring?

2. O my God, I cry in the daytime, but thou hearest not; and in the night season, and am not silent.

7. All they that see me laugh me to scorn: they shoot out the lip, they shake their head, saying,

8. He trusted on the LORD that he would deliver him: Let him deliver him, seeing he delighted in him.

11. Be not far from me; for trouble is near; for there is none to help.

16. For dogs have compassed me: the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me: they pierced my hands and my feet.

18. They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture.

22. I will declare thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee.

27. All the ends of the world shall remember and turn unto the LORD: and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee.

31. They shall come and shall declare his righteousness unto a people that shall be born, that he hath done this.

E A S T E R

EASTER points to nothing else so much as to resurrection. What joy is its message! What hope!

Since sin threw the curtain of death across the vision of man, there has been nothing more provocative of joy and comfort than the thought of life in victory over death. Resurrection is the one word that truly crowns the sin-sick soul with this hope.

Specifically Easter harks back to the greatest of all known victories, that which was achieved in our Lord and Master on the morning of His resurrection. He who had been violently put to death, who had been brought thereto in the most vicious manner, and who had suffered death in its fullest sense, stood forth upon that first Easter morning, fully victorious, established in life, ever after to be beyond the grasp or power of death.

His was the victory of the ages. It declared as never before the majesty of the Creator, the infallibility of His word, the certainty of His every promise.

Let Christians everywhere approach the dawn of the coming Easter day with the deepest and greatest joy of reverence, with the truest devotion to the God of all, and with the heartiest of adoration and service to Him who gave His life that He and all His true followers might gain life eternal, even the life of God himself.

FATHER, FORGIVE THEM

HE WHO had no sin, in whose mouth there was no guile, whose whole being, like that of the atonement sacrifice of Israel, was in every way spotless, was suspended upon Calvary's cruel cross. He had been there as yet but a brief time. His first recorded words were, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do".

But He was the great Atonement for sin. Having given himself to redeem man from the wages of sin, He had been thus impaled upon the tree. If He was to redeem man, He must himself continue His spotless, sinless life to the end.

His forgiveness was a part of that atonement, a part of redemption.

Withholding of forgiveness is by God unpardonable. Jesus said, "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also to you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Jesus had been illustrating forgiveness by the parable of the king. Matt. 18:23-35. In the parable He emphasized the condemnation that was justly placed upon the unforgiving servant. He then pronounced a like decision upon all whosoever shall not forgive.

Therefore, according to the Savior's analysis, refusal of forgiveness is a sin, which while it lasts, is unforgivable.

But Jesus did not become polluted with such sin. He forgave, not waiting for them to petition, nor waiting for them to repent. He implored His Father to forgive His persecutors. To the end, He was a perfect Sacrifice, a perfect Atonement.

IT IS FINISHED

THE LIFE that had been heralded by heaven's angels, the Life that had been true and loyal to the Father in every detail, the Life that had been possessor of God's unmeasured Spirit, that had not only instructed His people by word of mouth, but also by example, that had braved sin's curse, even the cross, had now completed its work. In no little detail had He left anything undone. In no place had He deviated from the guidance of the prophetic word or from the guidance of the Spirit of God. All had been wrought. "It is finished."

This is the last word of the twenty-second Psalm. That Psalm begins with a message which also Jesus, while on the cross, quoted: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Indeed the twenty-second Psalm is the Psalm of the Cross. Not a few have been brought to think that Jesus probably quoted this entire Psalm, or quoted largely from it, while upon the cross. It was David's inspired prophecy of the status of God's Son in the hour of His final and all-conquering effort to atone for sin.

"It is finished." What meaning in those words! Here in John 19:30 all was consummated, in readiness for the final act. All was completed. It was completed for you, dear brother, sister; for me. All being finished, He bowed His head in death.

OUR HIGH PRIEST

WHO his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed."—1 Peter 2:24.

The atonement service as prescribed by God to Aaron, Lev. 16, required that the high priest should "offer his bullock for the sin offering, which is for himself, and make an atonement for himself, and for his house". The atonement was to cover sin; not to cover it in the sense of to hide it deceptively, but to cover it in the sense of erasing it. "The wages of sin is death". Death is really the only thing that can, according to the law of cause and effect, cover sin. From this standpoint it was due from Aaron, the high priest, that he should die. Thus he was to cover, to erase sin.

But God's provision with Aaron was that he should instead bring in a bullock, and sacrifice it, and take of its blood, that is, its life (see Lev. 17:11-14) and sprinkle it upon the mercy seat.

Not so with our Savior. He used no bullock in substitution for himself. No lamb of the flock was slain as a substitute of the Lamb of God. Jesus, the great High Priest, in order to minister in the Holy of Holies of the Father, gave himself—His own sinless, stainless, spotless life. No substitute for Him! He gave that life, not to cover sins committed by himself, but to cover, to erase those sins of man which were placed upon Him.

He did this, as did Aaron, before entering the Holy of Holies.

"THE church must teach the resurrection of her Lord as well as His death, and must teach it, not as a reward for His work, but as a part of the work itself—as a part that, not less than His death, is to be fulfilled in us. This will lead us beyond the thought of dying in sin, to the thought of living in righteousness. This, and this alone, will bring the raising up of the new man within us, into inseparable connection with the death and burial of the old man. In this we have the inspiration of a risen, exalted, vitalized, communing heavenly Friend."

BEFORE THE MERCY SEAT

SEVEN times with his finger was Aaron to "sprinkle of the blood" which had been caught in a basin from the atonement sacrifice, "upon the mercy seat" "and before the mercy seat" in the Holy of Holies. But this blood was an emblem of the life of the atonement sacrifice. "The life of the flesh is in the blood." Lev. 17:11. Therefore, "The life thereof, which is the blood thereof", Gen. 9:4, being taken within the veil, was diffused within the Holy of Holies.

So also our Savior. Death having put down and submerged everything in Him pertaining to fleshly life, He was raised, raised immortal, raised beyond "the veil". For "the veil" was "his flesh". Heb. 10:20. It was the life of the flesh that He gave. He gave it once for all. Never was He to return thereto. That life was ended.

When He arose, He was beyond the veil. Life and immortality He brought to light. He stood in the presence of God. At once His life began to be diffused in the Holy of Holies. Death and resurrection had accomplished this for Him.

Death was necessary. Without it there was no way to dispose of the natural life. Without being rid of the natural, there was no way for Him to partake of the new life, the spiritual.

Our High Priest has entered into the Holy of Holies once for all. Never will He return therefrom to the life condition that was placed upon the cross. Had He used a substitute in His death, He never could have entered into the likeness of God.

So, too, with you and me, dear reader. Our only way to become possessed of new life is first to become dispossessed of the old. The pathway as marked out in the Word of God leads through death and resurrection.

This was traversed and perfected by Christ, who has assured us with the assurance of God's own word, that those who believe in Him shall likewise, because of faith, become at resurrection possessed of life like unto that of himself.

THE LORD IS RISEN

The Lord is risen! Come see
The imprint of His deathly bed.
Is it not true? Hath He not said,
"From thee I will not flee,
Thou sheep; my shepherdry"?

When smitten the shepherd be;
Far and wide, o'er the mountain side,
Then lacking lambs bleat for a guide;
Whose tender care shall be,
Then felt most poignantly.

While doubt and dismay may be
Shadowing deep on scattered sheep,
Fervent feminine eyes that weep
Came seeking, with spicery,
The tomb near Calvary.

Roman soldier, guard thy groom,
With watchful wake, lest cursory break
The disciplined flock shall undertake.
The resurrection riven tomb
Heralds, legion Rome, thy doom!

Behold! now to you who weep,
Though foes despise, thy Friend's demise,
Judicial judgment says, Arise!
Shall Roman sealing keep
The Master from His sheep?

When tidings glad are given,
Returning fold their Master hold;
Dark night flees; morning joys unfold.
Today the Lord is risen!
The Lord today is risen!
Paul M. Hatch.

RESURRECTION

By Jas. A. Patrick

WHAT is resurrection? It is defined in Young's Concordance to mean, "A standing or rising up."

In Matthew 22:31, Christ said, "But as touching the resurrection of the dead"; Mark makes Him say, "For when they shall rise from the dead"; "And as touching the dead that they rise"; and Luke puts these words in His mouth, "Now that the dead are raised."

The foregoing quotations confirm Dr. Young in his definition. Resurrection is a rising up from the dead. Then, unless there has been a lying down in death, there can be no resurrection. There are many other scriptures that confirm this thought. I quote only a few of them.

Speaking of Christ being delivered up and crucified, Matthew said, "And the third day he shall rise again." Mark says of the same circumstance, "And be killed, and after three days rise again." Paul in 1 Thessalonians 4:14 said, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." In verse sixteen we read, "And the dead in Christ shall rise first."

God, speaking through the mouth of the prophet Hosea, said, "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction."—Hosea 13:14. Of this same event Christ used this language, "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth"—John 5:28, 29. So we see that resurrection means no more, no less, than a rising or standing up from death.

WHAT WILL BE RAISED?

I think the best answer to this question will be arrived at by a study of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. We are told that we shall be like Him; our vile bodies are to be changed and fashioned like unto His glorious body. What was His glorious body; of what was it composed? If we follow Christ in the accounts given in the New Testament, from the time He was crucified till the morning of the resurrection, we will learn what actually took place. Why should we go beyond that which is written?

In the evening of the day in which Jesus was crucified, "Joseph of Arimathea . . . besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus: and Pilate gave him leave. He came therefore, and took the body of Jesus."—John 19:38. Then John tells of the tomb, and says, "There laid they Jesus." It was Jesus' body when they took it from the cross, and it was Jesus when they laid it in the tomb. Any difference between Jesus and His body? Matthew, in speaking of the same circumstance, says, "And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, and laid it in his own new tomb."—Matt. 27:38, 39.

Then on that first Easter morn, when the women came to the tomb, they saw an angel sitting on the stone which he had rolled from the entrance, and he said to them, "I know that ye seek Jesus . . . He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay."—Matt. 28:5, 6. It was the body of Jesus when it was taken from the cross, and it was Jesus when it was laid in the tomb; the angels said it was the Lord that had laid there. There was no difference then between Jesus, the Lord, and the body. Jesus, the Lord, and the body, one and the same thing were put in the tomb. What came out?

On the day of Pentecost, Peter speaking to the Jews said, "Ye have taken (Christ) and by wicked hands have crucified and slain; whom God raised up." Then quoting David, Peter continues, "Moreover my flesh shall rest in hope: because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." Peter further says of David, "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him . . . he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither did his flesh see corruption. This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses. . . . Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus . . . both Lord and Christ." Acts 2:23-32.

What same Jesus? The One God raised up whose flesh saw no corruption. "This Jesus (whose flesh saw no corruption) hath God raised up." Why did David say his flesh should rest in hope. In hope of what? A resurrection, of course. Will his flesh be resurrected? Yes, or words have no meaning.

This is further confirmed by what Christ said to the frightened disciples, "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have."—Luke 24:39. Did He have flesh and bones? He said He did. Why then do some of our folks contend that He did not; that He was only spirit? Will they please give us the proof? I don't know what could be said that would prove anything true, that would be just the opposite of what Christ said was true.

THE RESULT OF RESURRECTION

After His resurrection, Christ said, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death."—Rev. 1:18. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, but it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."—1 John 3:2. "And God shall wipe all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."—Rev. 21:4.

It is impossible for the finite mind to comprehend such a condition. All around us are the very things that John says are to be no more. We are so used to them that we take them as a matter of course. We see our loved ones stricken, writhe in pain, die. We are helpless. The burden of sorrow bows us down. It is impossible for us to fully realize what it will mean to be eternally free from these things that stalk us like evil shadows that may materialize at any moment and become burdening, harrowing realities.

Faith alone can lift us up and make us to sit together with Him in heavenly places. If our hope is anchored to that within the veil, then we are caused to realize that soon these things of which John speaks will pass away, and we shall be eternally free. Praise God for such a hope!

"OUR Lord's crucifixion began when He heard Peter denying Him, Peter, who had been first to confess Him, Peter, on whose rock-confession His church was built. The essence of the crucifixion was not the physical agony, but the spiritual agony, the feeling that God had forsaken Him. It began with the feeling that man had forsaken Him.

"And Christ, our Redeemer, is crucified when we deny Him, when by word, or deed, or thought, we are false to Him. Any day may be a day of denial. Let us make every day a day of confession and consecration."

EASTER MEDITATIONS

By Rufus A. Curtis

"I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death."—Revelation 1:18.

OF ALL the hope inspiring statements of the Bible, the above holds preeminent place in the hearts of Christians. For all our hopes of eternal life, beyond the silence of the tomb, and the gloom of the grave, must ever find their realization in the sublime verities of the Scriptures, which assure us that "God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise us up by his own power." Titus 1:23; 1 Cor. 6:14. By reading the divine statements of Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles, we can readily discover that the gospel which he preached, included first of all, that which he had "also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures." 1 Cor. 15:1-4.

"Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is not Christ risen; and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. . . . Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable."—1 Cor. 15:12-29.

From this dark and hopeless picture of negations, the inspired writer now turns on the bright beams of resurrection light, in the following affirmations,—“But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming.”

As professed believers in the Bible doctrine of a future life, we are "looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith," "who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." Heb. 12:2; 2 Tim. 1:10. We are proud of our Leader and Commander, who has triumphed over death, and has sent back this message of cheer to his faithful followers, "Because I live, ye shall live also." John 14:6.

"For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself," and to quicken "whom he will." John 5:21, 26. No true epitome of redemption for our race is revealed in the Bible, but through "Jesus and the resurrection". Acts 17:18; 4:12; John 6:39, 40, 44; 20:31; 1 John 5:11, 12.

"THE message of Easter is a message of new life, manifested in the newly risen Son of God."

DEATH AND RESURRECTION

By Emma C. Railsback

"IF I WAIT, the grave is mine house: I have made my bed in the darkness. . . . If a man die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait (in the grave), till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou shalt have a desire to the work of thine hands. . . . For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another."—Job.

"The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence. . . . For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks? . . . Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish. As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness."—David.

"For the living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing. . . . Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might: for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest."—Solomon.

"Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die and not live, saith the Lord. . . . Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."—Isaiah.

"And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."—Daniel.

"Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God. For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven. But as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living. . . . I am he that liveth and was dead: and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen, and have the keys of hell and death."—Jesus.

"Thy brother shall rise again."—Jesus to Martha.

"I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day."—Martha to Jesus.

"Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. . . . For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool."—Peter.

"But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. . . . For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: . . . For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept. . . . Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed."—Paul.

Dear Reader: In the words of the apostle Paul, "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" and further, why should you refuse to believe the testimony of God's faithful witnesses as to man's condition in death? Death is an enemy, but you prefer to believe he is your friend. What comfort is there in refusing to believe God's Word? Without faith it is impossible to please God, so let us take Him at His word and look to Jesus, who came to bring life and immortality to light through the gospel, for He has conquered death and has the keys of death and the grave.

"THE kingly brow of Jesus Christ was crowned with a diadem of thorns."—J. F. Hurlbut.

CHRIST IS RISEN

By C. E. Lapp

WE ARE all more or less familiar with the story of Christ's crucifixion. He was crucified with two thieves on a hill called Golgotha, just outside of Jerusalem. He had told His disciples before His death that He would rise on the third day; and as we behold Him on the cross as the disciples saw Him, we can readily see how the darkness of despair must have settled over them. Truly, He had said that He would rise the third day, but suppose something should happen that He would not rise? Did He really possess the power to take up His own life?

It was the custom during those days that all criminals who were crucified should not hang upon the cross on the sabbath. It was also the custom for the dead criminals to be cast outside the city on the rubbish pile, there to be burned with the refuse of the city and the sacrifices left from the temple worship.

It was with no small concern, then, that Joseph of Arimathea went to Pilate and begged for the body of Christ. He was a rich man, a Jew, also a member of the Sanhedrin, but a secret follower of Jesus. Pilate gave him permission to take Christ's body from the cross and prepare it for burial. Now Joseph had a new tomb carved out of rock, where no man had ever been laid, and it was to this place that he took the body of Jesus. A great stone was rolled into the entrance to close the tomb.

After Christ was put in the tomb, the Jews became afraid for fear the followers of Christ would steal away His body and then try to prove that He had risen. They therefore went to Pilate and asked that the Roman seal be put on the tomb, and a guard be placed around it. Pilate agreed to this, and it was done as the Jews wished.

After the sabbath toward the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to the sepulchre, and as they drew near, they noticed that there had been a great earthquake, and the stone in the front of the grave was rolled back from the entrance. The angel of the Lord had descended and rolled away the stone, and Matthew tells us that His countenance was like lightning and His clothing, white as snow. The guards became afraid and were so overcome by His presence that they fell down on the ground and became as utterly helpless as dead men. These soldiers nailed Christ upon the cross, but when it was time for Him to be raised from the dead, there was no power on earth that could possibly have held Him in the grave. He was dependent upon the power of God in heaven, the One who had created the heavens and the earth. God's power alone could raise Him from the dead.

Yes, Christ arose from the grave on the third day according to the Scriptures; He arose a Conqueror over sin and death. Never again will Christ be liable to death, because He was raised from the dead an immortal being. He appeared to Peter, to the twelve apostles, and to five hundred of the brethren at one time, and to many others before His ascension into heaven. He was the first to die to be raised immortal, so that death could never again touch Him.

After a brief stay upon earth following His resurrection, He showed by many infallible proofs that He was really the Christ and had been raised from the dead. He then gave His apostles a few words of encouragement, and also the promise of the Holy Ghost, and ascended into heaven to sit at God's right hand. It is there He is making intercession with God in behalf of those who have accepted Him and are living in Him by faith.

If we could go no farther than this, we would be miserable creatures. But the resurrection of Christ holds larger, greater beauties to those who accept the gospel. We are told in Romans the sixth chapter, that if we are buried with Christ by baptism into death, we shall be raised by the glory of the Father to walk in newness of life. And if we are dead with Christ, then shall we also live with Him.

No man can of himself have the power to be resurrected, but that power only comes through Christ. Man has always failed in everything since the beginning of the world, but failure will now become victory. Victory through our own efforts, our own zeal, our own righteousness? No, indeed. But we will be able to say with Paul, "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

RISEN WITH CHRIST

By Samuel E. Haney

"If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory".—Colossians 3:1-4.

WERE these infallible instructions intelligently and rigidly followed by those having complied with the Lord's proposition, virtually all delusive apprehensions would disappear like mist before the sun. Divine blessings for body, soul, and spirit would then follow as inevitably as water flows down hill.

The price of admission into the Ark of safety—Christ Jesus—is immense, which accounts for so few giving it serious consideration. Frankly broach the subject to the average professing Christian, and you will be stigmatized a chronic bore, a joykiller, a pessimistic freak of nature: all of which makes manifest the great depth to which man has sunken into the filthy, immoral miasma of this sin-cursed world. How far has man become estranged from His loving Creator, who once pronounced him "very good" when God "walked in the garden in the cool of the day", and conversed with husband and wife. Gen. 1:31; 3.

Let us analyze our text. "If ye then", or, "If however"—Weymouth and Rotherham—which means: "but if, besides having died with Christ, you have on the other hand, been risen with Christ, seek those things which are above". Thus the prerequisite phase of the beginning of the text is emphasized. The word "seek" in this sentence is equivalent to, "cease to consecrate your energies and your thoughts on mundane ordinances," Lightfoot. "Set your affection ('mind', R. V.; 'hold in esteem', Roth.) on things above, not on things on the earth."

The unregenerate man naturally sets his affection on things agreeable to his fleshly mind, his fallen Adamic nature only, while the new creature in Christ Jesus, born anew of the Holy Spirit, is commanded to set his affection on things, which for the present are above, but are to be prevalent later in God's kingdom on earth.

A grievous mistake on the part of many of us is in trying to set our affection on both the invisible and the visible, or, in other words, dividing our affection between the kingdom of God and the kingdom of the devil. And right here is where our trouble begins, only to end in defeat in our battle for life. For no one can successfully "press toward the mark", while his head and heart are surcharged with the things gratifying to his lower nature. Under such handicap the enemy is sure to frustrate our efforts in gaining the victory, to bar us from "the crown of life". An essay should not be required to prove this point, to dis-

(Continued on page 410)

AFTER THREE DAYS

What did that Easter morning mean to Him!
I think of it, Oh, often, and am glad—
His earthly lifetime past—its grief and pain,
With all the sore temptations that He had.

All of it past—the last long hillside climbed,
The last cry uttered, and the last tears shed,
And never a grave to close on Him again
Within the darkened garden of the dead.

And now the folded napkin laid aside—
And all eternity before Him there,
While those He loved were coming—and the dawn
Was on the hills—the birds' song on the air.

How beautiful it must have been to Him,
After the dusty roadways He had known;
How strangely sweet the garden flowers were,
How cool and colorful the dawn light shone!

No morning of the earth means more to men
Than Easter morning—but it takes my breath
To think what that first Easter must have been To One, new-risen, after days of death.

—Grace Noll Crowell in Christian Herald.

o

TELLING THE GLAD NEWS

By Lottie E. Young

ONE CAN hardly be called Christian if the story of the resurrection of Jesus is not very vivid in his mind. We read how the sorrowing women, who had watched where the men had laid their loved Master when He was taken from the cross, prepared spices and ointments, and brought them to the grave in the garden to use upon the dead body "as the custom of the Jews is to bury." But it was an empty tomb they found! The question asked by the "two men in dazzling apparel" who were there, was, "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen."

Yes, this is a familiar story to all, as well as the story of the coming of Jesus the same evening to the disciples with His "Peace be unto you". He showed them His pierced hands and side to prove He was the very One whom they had seen die on the cross, blasting all their hopes of a kingdom which should overthrow Roman dominion and again make Jerusalem "the joy of the whole earth."

That was a busy day. Luke tells in such a beautiful way how the afternoon was spent that our hearts should bound the faster each time we read it. The death of Jesus must have been an awful shock to those men with whom He associated. He had plainly said that He was the Son of God, the Messiah of the Jewish nation, long promised, the One whose advent prophets had foretold centuries before. But NOW He had left them, and everything was a puzzle; they would be a laughing stock in the eyes of more prudent folks. They had given up work for many months to follow the Teacher of Galilee, and there was nothing left but to try and forget all about it.

Two men were traveling the eight mile road which stretched between Jerusalem and Emmaus, busily talking over the stirring events of the past three days, when they heard a voice asking, "What communications are these that ye have one with another?" Turning to the One who spoke, Cleopas asked if He were a stranger that He had not heard what had been happening. He then told the story of the "prophet mighty in deed and word before God" who had been delivered up to be condemned to death and three days before had been crucified, adding, "We hoped that it was he who should redeem Israel."

Certain women said they had seen a vision of angels that morning at the empty tomb who told of His being alive, but as none of those who had gone to the sepulchre had found Jesus, they could not understand where He was. Then the Stranger called them "foolish men" not to believe what the prophets had spoken, as in their writing it was clearly stated how that Christ would have to suffer before He could enter into His glory.

Cleopas and his companion must have been fascinated by this One who made plain so many difficulties in their minds, and when they reached the end of their journey they begged Him to "abide with us; for it is toward evening, and the day is now far spent." But instead of being the Guest at the table, the unknown Friend "took the bread, and blessed, and breaking it he gave to them." Then the eyes which had been "holden" all through the walk were opened, as Jesus vanished from their sight, and they said one to the other, "Was not our heart burning while he spake to us in the way?"

The long walk was forgotten as "they rose up that very hour and returned to Jerusalem", where they told their marvelous story to the eleven gathered together. Discouragement was past; the statements in the prophets as to the Messiah took on new light, and they realized the cross had to come before the crown. There was work for them to do in proclaiming this wonderful message to all around them, if they were to see the Master again. He had said if they denied Him before men, He would deny them before the Father.

They had much to learn before they understood the real purpose of the mission of Jesus—"God so loved the WORLD" and "Whosoever will", not just the Jewish people. But as the light came, they were so faithful in spreading the good news that thirty years after the crucifixion the story of Jesus was known in the "utmost parts of the earth."

With our brighter light, clearer vision, and improved facilities have we done our part as faithfully in preaching Jesus and the Resurrection as did these early followers?

IN THAT DAY

AN EASTER MESSAGE FROM THE OLD TESTAMENT

By R. H. Judd

"They shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels . . . Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not."—Malachi 3:17, 18.

IT MAY seem strange to some to go to the prophet Malachi for a suitable Easter message, but the writer has for some time been seeking for a message to give, as has been his custom, and not until his eyes lighted today on the passage above, did he feel that he had that message.

The reader will do well to read carefully the whole passage, Mal. 3:13-18, for as the Revised Version shows it is one message, not two, as the paragraphs in the Authorized Version indicate.

One reason why God's Word appeals so strongly to those who meditate upon it, is because it acts as a mirror to our own lives. Its human interest is intense and real, because it is true to fact.

How faithfully verses 13, 14 and 15 give a true picture of what has far too often been our attitude towards GOD, and surely here GOD himself has read our thoughts and expressed them for us. He knows that at times we have even expressed them ourselves. He knows too that many times more we thought them without expressing them, and that time and time again they have stood between us and blessing, blessing not only to ourselves but to others.

I wonder how many of us have noticed the little change of reading of Genesis 12:2 in the Revised Version? If it touches you as it touches me, we will call it "little" no longer. It is a difference of tremendous significance, for in the Revised Version the gift of blessing takes with it the command, "Be thou a blessing."

Who among us of those who take a keen interest in the Word of the Living GOD, and have perhaps at times made sacrifices that the world deems great, have not been taunted with the contrast that so often obtains between those who serve GOD and those who serve Him not. The question is thrown at us, "Do we serve GOD for nought?" Yet another question arises, this time not from the enemy, but from the still, small voice within us, and it is this, "Have you forgotten that in this very passage GOD has given us an irrefutable answer that we may give to him who thus asks us a reason of the hope that is in us, and which like a true bank note is endorsed by 'saith the Lord of Hosts'?"

Now then let us read verse 16. There it tells us that "The Lord hearkened and heard." Notice that the Revised Version omits the word "it". It was not one thing only He heard—the grumbling heart—He heard that, yes, for He tells us so. But He also heard the communion of the saints that was so sweet to Him that "a book of remembrance was written before him", and "they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, IN THAT DAY when I make up my jewels . . . Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth GOD and him that serveth him not".

Surely here, friends, is a glad message of RESURRECTION truth, for how else can we "return" in "that day"? And Oh, what a contrast! The dead leaves, the broken boughs, and the lifeless "chaff" are now dust under our feet, and the joy of new life and new being everlastingly wells up in springs of joy.

"Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart . . . and the tongue of the dumb shall sing."

Do you not hear the music of that resurrection morn, even now?

"For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God." Disbelieve these words, and human life has no adequate explanation and admits of none. Believe them, and you also shall live, in the coherent, meaningful, challenging life of the Spirit, having the promise of its triumph in the risen and eternal Christ.

—S. Parkes Cadman.

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT DAY

By F. E. Siple

OF ALL the days which the year contains Easter, to the Christian, becomes the most important and significant. It is the richest of the rich.

To an American, the Fourth of July stands for independence; the last Thursday of November stands for appreciation of blessings. To the Christian, Christmas celebrates the birth of a Savior, and Palm Sunday indicates a triumphant entry. But standing far above these is Easter, which is fraught with the significance of a risen Lord.

For this reason we preach upon Easter not just a mortal leader or Savior presented to man, but an immortal King, the Son of God in the fullest sense, possessing the divine nature of God himself, which was not true of Jesus during His ministry.

What a different Savior our Lord became on the world's first Easter! No more pain; no more disappointment or sorrow; no more listening to the taunts of enemies! None of this, but the triumph of One victorious over death, man's last and greatest enemy.

The egg's shell bursts and life comes out, where apparently death prevailed. The snows melt, and buds burst with life not observed before. The tomb opens, and our Lord rises from death!

How appropriate in the spring of the year. What a message the Easter brings!

OUR PASSOVER

INASMUCH as the crucifixion of our Savior took place upon the selfsame day as were the lambs slain in anniversary of the death of the passover lamb in Egypt, it would not be proper for us to pass by this anniversary event without recalling Christ as our Passover. As passover Lamb our Savior fulfilled one of God's many promises. As atonement Sacrifice our Savior fulfilled another of God's promises, one that reaches farther, unto more people, than does the promise made through the passover Lamb.

The passover lamb, Ex. 13, was directly for the firstborn only. It was the firstborn who were under the plague of death. It was the firstborn who were to be benefited by the blood of the passover lamb. As the Lamb of God, "Christ our passover", 1 Cor. 5:7, "is sacrificed for us", even for those who are of the "church of the firstborn". His death and resurrection means more to them than it does to the world at large. It promises them that they shall be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:16, 17, God's true Firstborn.

In this the Passover promises more than does the Atonement. True, the Passover would be ineffective without the Atonement. But the Passover, in addition to the Atonement, conveys to those who are benefited by "Christ our passover", blessings far in excess of the blessings that are promised by Christ as our Atonement only.

THE TRUE EASTER SPIRIT

By Richard LeCrone

NEXT Sunday will be Easter Sunday. If I were to ask the meaning of Easter Sunday, there isn't the slightest doubt in my mind but that every one of the readers of THE RESTITUTION HERALD could tell accurately and in considerable detail, the story of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection.

As regularly as Easter comes around, we put on our new spring clothes and go to church to attend the beautiful and inspiring Easter service. We listen, enraptured, to the marvelous story told by the singers and musicians. We pay close attention to the program by the children, rejoicing that these young folks are striving to serve Christ. Then, once more we hear the minister of Christ retelling that familiar story and urging his flock to consecrate themselves to Christ anew.

When the services are over, we quietly leave the church with a firm determination to—find out, if possible, how much Mrs. Brown paid for that hat, or why little Helen wasn't given a more important part in the program. We are filled with wonder at the miracle of how Mr. Smith could afford that new suit with business as it is.

That is an unfair charge, no doubt, and we know that it isn't universally true. Yet, that is the impression that the world sometimes gets of our religion. They tell us that we are hypocrites, from whom religion drops like a cloak, when we leave the church, revealing us as a body of gossipers and back-biters, an impression for which, I fear, we are not entirely without responsibility.

Let us be careful lest we suggest to the world that we have such things in our church, thus bringing discredit upon the body of Christ. But let us rather declare Christ unto the world by making our own conduct unimpeachable.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

RISEN WITH CHRIST

(Continued from page 407)

close the impossibility of "loving the LORD thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might", while under the sway of a divided affection between the desires of the "new" and "old" man. See Eph. 4:22-24; Col. 3:10; Rom. 6:6. It is also a fact that no one can obey Jesus' command, "Follow me", while following the inclinations of the flesh—natural man.

"For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God". Were our thoughts, words, and acts to concur with this divine statement, we should be relieved of many horrifying difficulties, but we would thus appear odious to those governed by the spirit of this world. For the world "loves its own" as of yore. John 15:18-21. It has but little use for "dead" men and women whose embryo-immortal lives are hid with Christ in God, and still less use for those openly "born of water and of the Spirit". This line of demarcation, when consistently manifested, has never been more pronounced than it is during these last days.

"When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory". It must be remembered that this glorious privilege (blessing) is conditioned, namely, "If ye have died and been risen with Christ". Thus the whole text is subjunctive in effect; the pivotal point being, "if", et cetera.

Dear reader, should you still be clinging to the ragged edge of the wriggly ship, Babylon, that is about to crumble into oblivion, you are to be pitied; for all things on this old craft work together for ill to those aboard. But fortunately God has made provision for all to make their escape by having His Ark, Christ Jesus, ever standing by to take over those desirous of getting to a place where "all things work together for good"; where a symposium board "of fat things full of marrow", things pleasant and beneficial to body, soul, and spirit are accessible. Better make the transfer if you haven't already, and be in a position to change the "if" to, "I am risen with Him"—having died to this world and to self.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE BEFORE MEN THAT THEY MAY SEE YOUR GOOD WORKS AND GLORIFY YOUR FATHER WHICH IS IN HEAVEN."

STRONGER THAN WORDS

AT THIS season of the year, with all of nature awakening from the sleep of winter, our thoughts turn again to that greatest of all awakenings—the rising of our Savior from the tomb. What a cause for rejoicing and for thankfulness! How different our outlook would have been had not Christ lived, and died, and risen again! Our lives are transformed—or should be—by the desires to be what He would have us be, to return in small measure the love that is manifest in the daily blessings of our lives.

Have we a right to be as those who have no hope? Should we ever complain of our lot, become disgruntled, irritable, and unkind? Dare we smirch our characters by stooping to the common vulgarities in which the world indulges? It is our duty to hold ourselves above reproach, unspotted from the world, not for ourselves but for Christ.

Everywhere about us are those who think that Christianity is a fable, that it is for the ignorant, less advanced classes of people, or that it is just not worth while. There are those who agree that Jesus Christ led a very beautiful and useful life, and that He was a powerful Leader, but who fail to acknowledge His divinity.

Not all of us are able to prove to these people in so many words that the Scriptures are inspired; not all of us can write with sufficient emphasis and conviction to show that Jesus really is the Son of God, and that He lived, and died, and rose again. There is one thing, however, that is within the power of each of us.

We can live so that those who watch us will know that there is a guiding influence in our lives, so that they will know that it is faith in more than just an ordinary man which is able to illuminate so beautifully the dark paths of our lives. We can make our lives so different that others will realize the need of the same influence.

Bereans, as we consider at this Easter season all that our Savior has done for us, let us make our words and actions a song of praise to Him who bore our sins, and our lives a reflection of that Light which guides us, that we may cause others to reach out for that which will bring the same peace and happiness to themselves.

VICTORY

The night was dark and dreary as Jesus prayed alone;
His heart was sad and heavy; His hour had almost come.
In agony He uttered, "May this cup pass from me!"
But "Thy will be done, oh Father!" gave Him the victory,
Gave Him the victory.

Our lot would be a sad one had He not cared to save—
No hope beyond the sunset, no life beyond the grave—
But glory be to Jesus, He died for you and me,
From Adam's fall redeems us and gives us victory,
And gives us victory.

Then why should we be silent? He died for one and all.
Go tell the wondrous story; send out the gospel call!
What joy to help another His precious love to see,
And live that they in glory may share His victory,
May share His victory!

The angel that glad morning had rolled the stone away;
Death's night of gloom and shadows emerged in brightest day.

Our thoughts sometimes must linger upon the cruel tree,
But, oh, I love to sing of His glorious victory,
His glorious victory!
Selected by Letitia Waller, Hickory Ridge, Ark.

MAN was created "a little lower than the angels" and yet God has a very special purpose in life for him. Although there are thousands upon thousands of men upon the earth, there is a purpose for each and every individual. Think not that you are unimportant, or that God created you idly. He has work for you to do. Have you found your niche?

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 14; Ohio, 11; California, 4; Michigan, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Louisiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE PRODIGAL SON

JESUS wanted every one to know that God is Father of us all, that He loves all His children; even those who wander away into sin. To help them to understand this, Jesus told them a parable about a loving father and his two sons.

The younger son was wild and wayward and thought only of his own pleasure. The older son was faithful, and obedient, and devoted to his father.

One day the younger son said, "Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me." "And he divided unto them his living."

"And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living."

When his money was gone his friends left him, and he hired himself to a man to feed swine.

He was so hungry that he would have been glad to eat the husks which he fed to the swine, and he remembered that his father's servants had plenty to eat.

He began to see how wicked and foolish he had been, and was sorry, and said to himself, "I will arise and go to my father."

His father saw him coming while he was still a long way off, and he ran to meet him and kissed him with joy.

The son said, "Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son."

His father put new clothes upon him, and a ring on his finger, and shoes on his feet. They made a great feast for him and were very merry.

His father said, "Let us eat, and be merry: for this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found."

Our heavenly Father is always waiting to receive us with joy when we leave sin and come back to Him.

ARE WE trying to please our fathers—both earthly and heavenly?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Make this story into a little play to be acted out.
2. Learn Mark 1:15b.
3. Read Romans 6.

THE SAVIOR OF THE WORLD

There was a star in far Judea
Twinkling in a winter sky,
Guiding the wise men of the East,
Many, many years gone by.

It led them over hill and dale
Afar until there came in sight
The little town of Bethlehem,
Shining, Oh, so clear and bright!

Finding there the Babe they sought,
They gave Him gold and incense sweet;
To the Savior of a sin-cursed world,
They knelt in wonder and joy complete.

He grew up to be a Man,
Gentle, and pure, and kind;
He preached to many; He healed many,
And He did not forget the blind.

He spoke to the folk of Galilee,
Of the life in store for those
Who lived and obeyed His good word,
Before they sank into repose.

There were those who, betraying Him,
Pressed cruel thorns upon His brow,
And crucified the Holy One,
To whom every knee should bow.

His heavenly Father watched o'er Him
Through the anguish and the gloom;
And gave Him life eternal,
Raising Him from the darkened tomb.

He arose, and with all glory
Ascended to the heavens above;
There to wait the new world's dawning,
The dawn of truth and eternal love.

So I hope, my friends, that you and I
Will travel the straight and narrow way,
That when the Savior comes to reign,
We may all meet on that wonderful day.

—By Viola Needham.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 2. — April 12, 1931

THE PRODIGAL SON

Luke 15

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:1, 2, 6-11

GOLDEN TEXT

There is joy in the presence of God over one sinner that repenteth.—Luke 15:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. The Father's Welcome to the Wandering Son.

Basic Truth. "Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"—Matt. 23:37.

Outline. I. God's Wandering Children. II. Jews and Israelites. III. Christians and Backsliders. IV. The Church and the Repentant Sinner.

I. God's Wandering Children. God "made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth".—Acts 17:26. All are His children. A few of these can be classed with the son in the parable who remained at home. The great majority must necessarily be classed with him who requested his share and left home. The yearnings of God for His wayward children are seen in John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Paul wrote to the Romans, 3:0, "There is none righteous, no, not one"; and v. 23, "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God". To Timothy, 1 Tim. 2:4, Paul declares that it is God's pleasure that all men should be saved and "come unto the knowledge of the truth". While God's love and good will extends to all men that they should repent, yet He receives them on one only condition, namely, "Whosoever believeth in him". The prodigal son repented and returned to his father. The father gladly and joyously received the repentant one.

II. Jews and Israelites. To the whole house of the children of Israel, upon condition of obedience, God promised, Ex. 19:5, "Ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people". In the following verse He said that they should be His "holy nation". At the close of Solomon's forty year rule over that nation, ten tribes under the name Israel revolted and set up a kingdom of their own. 1 Kings 12:16-33. The two tribes continued at Jerusalem under the names "Judah", or Jews. God has revealed that this Israelitish or ten-tribed kingdom will return to Him. Also wandering Judah will be returned to Him. See Jer. 23:5-8; Ezek. 37:20-25; and many other references. It is historically sure that some of these returned Israelites were, in the days of Jesus, regarded as Samaritans. They sought God and Jesus, and the repentant ones were accepted by Jesus. Like the elder brother, the Jews resented the thought that any other than themselves should receive God's blessings.

The world will yet see the lost sons of Israel return to the Land of Promise and will yet see the Jews resent with greater vehemence their acceptance. See Rom. 11.

III. Christians and Backsliders. Our lesson might well be applied with reference to those who turn from Christ back to the world. As Christians they were in the Father's family. Fleeing into the ways of the world, they are comparable to the prodigal son. Many such afterward repent and return. How many times one witnesses him who claims to have been constant to his Lord resent and reject the returning one. But Christ died for that repentant one. Surely every Christian should receive and encourage him.

IV. The Church and the Repentant Sinner. "All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme: but he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation".—Mark 3:28, 29. The church, being made up of those who are repentant and obedient abiding in the Lord, may well be likened unto the elder son. The repentant sinner may well be likened unto the returning son. Both by word and by action Jesus taught that those abiding in the Lord should never refuse acceptance, greetings and assistance to one and all who by faith and repentance obediently come to God through Christ. Every repentant one, turning to God, presents a marvelous and most commendable picture. Such an one is not only a seeker after life and immortality, but a seeker of the Father's house, of the Father's ways, of the Father's good will and pleasure. It is a long step from the degradation of the old man to the glory of the new man in Christ. The church is duty bound not only to receive such an one, but to encourage and assist him to that point of condition where he is acceptable to the Father and to the Father's church.

"Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls."—Matt. 11:28, 29.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Parent Love: No love is so near like the love of God as the love of parents for their children. It is a sacrificing love, a forgiving love, an enduring love. Every weakness of the body, every difficulty, or misfortune in the child's life pierces the hearts of the true parents. They are touched by the feeling of their infirmities. Children never realize the depth of parent love. No matter how much the children do for their parents, they can never repay the parents for what they have done for them.

Parent Love

—surrounds the child in all the goings and comings of life;
—never slumbers when danger is present;
—forgives when others condemn;
—suffers long and is never weary;
—discovers the good, when others see the bad.

Forgiveness: Love is always forgiving. The father harbored no grudge against the prodigal. It was the son that had sinned, but the father was anxious for reconciliation. He met him part way. Make it easy for those that have wronged you to make it right. Meet them part way. It will make a better person out of you. You will be happier. A forgiving spirit makes a person lovable; it makes men Christ-like. It should always be remembered that our heavenly Father will forgive us as we forgive those who sin against us.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

—Luke 15:10.

Christ came to "seek and to save that which was lost." The ninety and nine in the fold do not need to be sought, but the one out on the bleak mountain is the one the shepherd has to brave the storm to save. It is the one that will perish, unless its master finds it and brings it into the fold.

The shepherd rejoices over the sheep that was found more than over the ninety and nine that went not astray. So with the angels in heaven; they are made glad and rejoice over each sinner that repents and is brought into the Father's fold.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Two Sons.

In verses 1 and 2 we get the setting for the three parables recorded in Luke 15. Publicans and sinners drew near for to hear Him. Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." This brought forth from our Lord the parables which follow.

Two sons; the younger represented the publicans and sinners; the older, the Jews, more particularly the Pharisees and scribes; the father, God. Relate the story. Note that in verse 21 the prodigal said he was not worthy to be called his son, but in verse 24 the father says, "This my son". In verse 30 the elder son says to the father, "Thy son", but in verse 32 the father says, "Thy brother".

The younger son had sinned by falling into the snares and pitfalls of the world. He had forgotten God. The elder sinned by an overestimate of self and an undervaluation of others.—F. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

MANY NEW READERS THIS WEEK

This, our special Easter number, is being received by many new friends, whose names have been sent in by our regular readers. We trust that they will greatly enjoy its messages of the risen Lord and find much encouragement in Christian service.

Sr. Curdella Gray of Lanark, Illinois, who has been ill for some time, is gradually growing weaker.

We are glad to report that Sr. J. H. Williams of Rochelle, Illinois, who has been seriously sick for the past ten days, is much improved.

Sr. Sue Williams, who has been very sick with pneumonia at her daughter's home at Ashton, Illinois, is reported as slowly gaining in strength.

On Friday evening, last, while enroute to Rockford, Brothers Harold Starbuck, John Denchfield and C. E. Lapp were injured, and Bro. Starbuck's car was almost demolished because of another car without lights which was on the highway in the storm that was raging. We are glad to report that the injuries of all three seem not to be of a serious nature, and they hope soon to be as good as new.

Bro. and Sr. Frank Laning, Wayne and Esther, of our Ripley, Illinois, church, accompanied by Bro. Wesley Cooper, spent the past week end at Oregon, Illinois. Sr. Grace Laning, who is employed in Chicago, also enjoyed a visit with her parents and brother and sister, and the Oregon church folks. Bro. Laning was in attendance at the Executive Board meeting of the Illinois State Conference, which was held on March 28.

Easter Sunday promises to be a day filled with spiritual feasts for the brethren at Oregon, Illinois. The Sunday School will give a program of music and recitation, to celebrate our Savior's resurrection. Sr. Rogers is preparing several special musical numbers to be given by the mixed choir, junior choir and men's chorus. Immediately following a short Easter sermon, ten or more young folks will be (D. V.) immersed by Bro. Austin in the likeness of the Savior's death and resurrection. Services are being held each evening this week.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

On March 22 the Sunday School numbered 266, and as the first Sunday of spring, it was a beautiful day. Nature is joining its forces to teach the evidences of resurrection as the Easter approaches. And the church here is trying to exert special effort in harmony with the importance of the season.

The first practice for the church orchestra was held on Friday night, March 24. It is impossible at this time to estimate the value or the accomplishment that may be expected, but we are hoping it may prove to be a success, doing the players good and bringing real benefit to the church.

A teachers' training class has been started which meets on Tuesday nights, beginning March 31. Much good is expected from this.
F. E. Siple, Pastor.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Roll Brewer,	Troy, Ohio.
Bro. Lloyd Eklund,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. Curdella Gray	Lanark, Ill.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Bro. Albert Singer,	Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.
J. H. Leavitt	Wewahitchka, Fla.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio

Sr. Daniels, in asking our prayers in her behalf, says, "Your prayers helped Bro. Daniels last spring when he was hurt." Sr. Daniels has been sick for two weeks.

In the Fonthill news, readers will notice that our Bro. Albert Singer is bearing up bravely under severe pain and asks our continued intercession for him.

Our beloved Bro. Patrick, so well known to brothers and sisters all over the land, is now at a hospital for treatment for cancer on his right hand. He expects to remain there for two weeks, and may be addressed, care of Sheppard Sanatorium, 2311 N. Main Street, Findlay, Ohio. Bro. Patrick requests our prayers to the heavenly Father in his behalf. A word of cheer would also help to pass the anxious, waiting time.

At the foot of the next column on this page will be found encouraging words from Sr. Cochran, for whom we have been quite anxious for some time.

In the midst of our blessings, let us not forget our brothers and sisters who are in distress because of illness. Let us implore the Father in their behalf that their faith may be strengthened and that they may find grace to help in every time of need.

CHANGE IN TIME OF SERVICES

All the brethren and friends living in Los Angeles and neighboring cities please take notice that the church in Los Angeles has decided to change the afternoon meeting on the first Sunday, which has been held at 2:30 p. m., to 7:30 p. m. This change was thought best owing to the fact that the young people of the church have organized a Berean class and meet at the church at 6:30 each Sunday evening.

AT KOKOMO, INDIANA

Bro. Anderson held a twelve day meeting here, returning last Sunday afternoon to give us our fourteenth sermon. The interest was good, despite bad weather, nine coming forward for baptism. We had no money, but the Father provides meat in due season. Rensselaer, Plymouth, North Salem and Burr Oak paid the expense of these meetings.

D. G. Harvey.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Vacation time is drawing near, and many are no doubt beginning to plan when and where to spend their holidays. Please remember that our beautiful Niagara Peninsula has much to offer, being rich in beauty, as well as of great interest historically. Then last, but by no means least, how nice when Sunday comes to be able to attend one of our own churches and mingle with those of like precious faith. You will find one of our churches located at Niagara Falls, New York, and one at Fonthill, Ontario. And I know that you will receive a very hearty welcome at either place.

On Wednesday afternoon Bro. Clyde Randall, Bro. Holland and myself drove to Niagara-on-the-Lake to visit Bro. and Sr. Albert Singer. Though confined to his bed, we found Bro. Singer in the best of spirits and bearing his severe spells of pain with great Christian fortitude. Bro. Randall read several portions of Scripture, then offered prayer. Bro. Holland and I tried to cheer a little with two old, well loved hymns.

Bro. Singer wishes me to say that though he is unable to write a personal reply, he has greatly appreciated the letters and cards sent to him by thoughtful friends. He will greatly appreciate still being remembered in your prayers.

On account of our organist, Sr. Blanche Page, being confined to her home with the flu, our choir is unable to hold its weekly practice. We hope for Sr. Page's speedy recovery. She is the choir's right hand woman.

MORE TESTIMONY

Dear Editor of The Restitution Herald: I feel that I must add my testimony to that of Sr. Randall. I know that our God answers prayer, and that my name has been on many lips, so why should I fear?

He who calmed the raging waters of the Sea of Galilee, speaks, "Peace be still," and my troubled heart finds rest, in peace that passeth understanding.

Through the goodness and mercy of God and the prayers of the household of faith, I am slowly, but surely, gaining health and strength. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. Trust ye in the Lord for ever: for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength." Isaiah 26:3-4. Jesus gives us peace. Then dear ones in Faith:

Let us turn our eyes upon Jesus,
Look full in His wonderful face,
And the things of earth will grow strangely dim,

In the light of His glory and grace.

Mrs. John Cochran, Knox, Ind.

OUR EASTER OFFERING

Previously reported	$59.00
Aunt Mary Renner	2.00
Mrs. Mary F. Cook	1.50
Fannie S. Knight	2.00
Samuel L. Burk	5.00
Elnora Waldo	2.00
Lyman Booth	1.20
Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Dunbar	10.00
Frances Wynne	5.00
Mrs. J. F. Carpenter	1.00
Leila E. Whitehead	5.00
F. Carpenter	1.00
E. T. Renner	3.00
Perry J. Thompson	1.00
Wm. H. Moore	18.00
Mrs. Thomas Pascoe	10.00
Frances Cusey	1.00
Mrs. John Cochran	2.00
M. A. Woodward	5.00
Enos and Carrie Elton	8.00
Leona Marsh	15.00
Albert Eberhardt	5.00
Mrs. J. W. Dismukes	1.00
A Friend	1.00
Mrs. Wm. Hadicke	2.00
Mrs. Isaac Fish	1.00
J. E. Coverstone	2.00
From a Sister	2.00
Total	$171.50

COMMUNICATION

Dear Brothers and Sisters: Easter is near at hand again. And as this, another mile stone, held in commemoration of the resurrection of Christ comes, may we pray that this day be more than a day of feasting. May all of God's people be exuberantly glad and rejoice, giving prayer and songs of praises to God and our Lord and King for the victory won on this third day.

May our prayers and songs of praise be so many and great, that the electrical current from them, will just grasp the bell rope of heaven, and give it such a vigorous pull that it will set the bells of heaven ringing, pealing out carols of glory, honor and praise to God, for the great victory Christ won on that day. Jesus, as a Victor on that day arose, and majestically stepped forth from the tomb, never again to come under the tyrannizing power of death. For He had attacked the enemy in his own dominion and vanquished death. Therefore He triumphed in His conquest and led captivity captive. Glory to His name! We see here the old captive power itself being taken captive and Jesus standing as Master of the situation and He can say: "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore: and have the keys of hell (hades, the grave)."

Pray for me, a helpless cripple and shut in.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. John Stedman; J. E. Coverstone; Mrs. John Guthrie; Mrs. J. M. Prime; W. S. Tomlinson; Moses E. Lowd; Jessie L. Groves; P. J. Thompson; Mrs. Albert Bray; Elnora Waldo; Mrs. Myrtle J. Norris; Glenn M. Birkey; C. E. Mills; F. Carpenter; Mrs. Grace Russ; Wm. H. Moore; E. T. Renner; Albert Singer.

ORDERS FOR EASTER HERALDS

Mrs. Isaac Fish; Mrs. J. M. Prime; Moses E. Lowd; Mrs. Bert Sheets; Mrs. Emma Oaks; Emma C. Railsback; Mrs. Lucy Lapp; Mrs. W. H. Stone; Glenn M. Birkey; N. S. Westfall; Emma Fugate; Frances Wynne; Chas. Lapp; Mrs. Lenora Spindler; Alice A. Blyth; Mrs. S. Cronkhite; Sarah E. Smith; Mrs. George Claypool; Mrs. Wm. Ford.

Send in your subscription to The Herald. It will help you to keep posted on the things of God and His Word.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

ANNUITY BONDS

There is no better way to preserve one's capital for use during life and at the same time dedicate it to the Master's use after one's death than by a National Bible Institution Annuity Bond.

Write NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois, for information.

Any Amount - Much or Little

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince
(For cost of Postage) 32 .03 .12

BOOKS

Name

Pages Each Per 6

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25 $1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25 1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45 2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth,	480	.85 5.00
Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson
Neatly bound, and in clear type,		2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

E A S T E R

By M. A. Woodward

WHAT happy, joyous days those were of fifty years ago! We were looking forward to Easter as we are now, but the young people and children thought mostly of the happy days when they listened to the cackle of the hens, as they left their nests with the coveted eggs lying where the anxious children could capture and hide them for Easter breakfast. At Grandpa Grant's home were three healthy, happy children. And they knew Grandpa would help them hide away the eggs, and when Grandma would say, before the children, "John, what do you think becomes of all the eggs? The hens surely make noise enough to lay a bushel, and when I want some to cook with, there is not an egg to be found but the nest egg. You do not think there are animals taking them, do you?"

Nothing more would be said until next day, when Grandma would say with a peculiar voice, "Well, I found two eggs today." The mystery remained the same until the night before Easter, and again Grandma inquired, "What will we do for eggs for breakfast, I wonder?"

Then the three would run to the barn and return with two hats and a little bonnet full of eggs. Such a laugh as they would have when the boys would tell Grandma how they had been hiding them for two weeks, and she would tell them they were pretty good at keeping a secret. At the table Grandpa would tell them the story of the dear Christ, His crucifixion, His death, and then His joyful resurrection.

All those years are gone by. The dear father and mother, with Claud and the dear sister, are all sleeping, while we who are left cannot help mourning for them. But we wait in hope of the glad resurrection morning. As we think of the sleepers, we almost feel we can hear the bells toll the sad funeral dirge. But above the strain of sadness we can hear the glad echoes of the music of the eternal city, and we can imagine the dear Christ coming down the glory lighted path, amidst the shouts of thousands, as they sing glad hosannas.

O, how we wish this Easter morning would bring the glorified Christ to us. How glad the weary, burdened saints would be; what rejoicing as their burdens roll away!

But, beloveds, if we have to wait a little longer, our time must be spent trying to save other weary ones who have not yet been touched with the wonderful love of the patient Christ, and the glad thrill of joy as they realize they are released from the burden of sin, have taken the new name in baptism, and now are God's children. He is looking for you to be loyal, true, obedient children, and if you are faithful others will be drawn into the Christ's love, and you may be the means of saving a soul from death, and you may gain the smiling approval of the dear Christ.

May God help us on this Easter morning to consecrate ourselves anew to His service.

"BECAUSE I LIVE"

By Mary A. Gesin

THERE are many phases of the Easter message, each appealing to certain ones of us because of responsive chords in our beings. The joy of the women who loved Him and ministered to Him; the courage to resume their work, given to the apostles; the wondrous victory for himself, gained by the Son of God—all these, as we contemplate them, thrill our hearts with joy unspeakable. But when we consider the thought of what that first Easter means today to the faithful follower of the risen Lord, invariably the words that are uppermost in our mind are those of John 14:19, "Because I live, ye shall live also."

In the wonderful words found in John, the thirteenth to the seventeenth chapters, realizing that the time of separation is near, Jesus gives His messages of farewell to the disciples. As we read these words over and over, we discover a deeper meaning in them, a new beauty shining forth, like a beautiful gem in a rare setting.

The Savior of the world knew that soon He would be put to the last cruel tests from which the flesh would shrink; He knew that the faith of these who had followed Him along the shores of Galilee, through the hills of Judea, would be sorely tried. He wanted to strengthen their faith in Him, for the period that He should be in the tomb, though brief, would be a crucial time for them.

We notice throughout these chapters how the Master told them of His sufferings and of His death. But He also brought them the cheering thought of His resurrection, none of which they fully comprehended at the time. For we read that after He was risen He "opened their understanding," that they might fully realize the depth of His message to them. And their hearts burned within them at the remembrance of all that He had said.

Neither could we grasp the full significance of His assurance that He would live, had we been one of them. The thought that He whom we love so dearly should suffer, and die, and be laid in the lonely tomb, stabs us to the heart so deeply that we fail to grasp the truth that He died for us. And the fact that God's mighty hand reached down and unlocked the portals of death is such a joyous one that we scarcely comprehend that He just as truly lives for us.

But for His resurrection to immortality our dear ones would remain in the tomb, and we be left to face life comfortless, cheerless, hopeless. And for us, too, when overcome by the enemy, there would be no glad awakening. "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" and, "as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." "For I know that my redeemer liveth, . . . whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold."

Wondrous thought, fraught with rich meaning, "Because I live, ye shall live also"! May we live worthy of that greater Easter morn.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 7, 1931

NUMBER 27

The Second Coming of Christ

By Sarah Manuwal

“And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another . . . to the end he may stablish your hearts unblameable . . . at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.”—1 Thessalonians 3:12, 13.

THE Apostle Paul says, “All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness”. Why? “That the man of God may be perfect throughly furnished unto all good works.”—2 Timothy 3:16, 17.

Some will say when we take up prophecy, that there is no use in trying to understand it; that future events are things that the church does not agree about, and it is better to let them alone, and deal only with those prophecies which have already been fulfilled.

Paul says, “all scripture”, not just some scripture. If God did not intend that we should study prophecy, it would not be in His Book. Some prophecies are fulfilled, and He is fulfilling the rest. We cannot expect to see them all completed in this life, but we can rest assured that all will be done in God’s appointed time.

Three great comings are foretold in the Word of God: first, that Christ should come; which event has been fulfilled; second, that the Holy Ghost should come; which was fulfilled at Pentecost. The church can testify to it by its experience of His saving grace. The third great coming will be the return of our Lord from heaven. For this we are told to watch and wait, till He come.

The precious doctrine of our Lord’s return is clearly taught in the New Testament. If you will read the twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew, verse sixty-four, you will find it was just this very thing that caused His death. When the high priest asked Him who He was, and if He was the Messiah, what does He reply? “I say unto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.”

The moment they heard that, they accused Him of blasphemy and condemned Him to death. Yes, the Lord told them He was coming again. He who neglects the doctrine of our Lord’s return has only a mutilated gospel, for the Bible teaches us not only of the death and suffering of Christ, but also of His return to reign in honor and glory.

His second coming is referred to over three hundred times, and yet the church in general has very little to say about it. Peter says that prophecy came not by the will of man, but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.

Listen to Daniel, when he tells the meaning of that stone which King Nebuchadnezzar saw in his dream, cut out of the mountain without hands, that broke in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver and the gold. “The dream is certain and the interpretation thereof sure,” says Daniel.

We have seen the fulfillment of that prophecy, all but the closing part of it. The kingdoms of Babylon, and Medo-Persia, and Greece, and Rome have all been broken in pieces. Now it only remains for this stone cut out of the mountain without hands, to smite the image and break it in pieces, till it becomes like the dust of the summer threshing-floor, for this stone to become a great mountain and fill the whole earth.

HOW WILL HE COME?

When the disciples stood looking up into heaven, at the time of Jesus’ ascension, there appeared two angels, who said unto them, “Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as you have seen him go into heaven.”—Acts 1:11.

How did He go up? He took His flesh and bones with Him. “Look at me, a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have,” signifying that He was the identical One who had been crucified, laid in the grave, and had risen

(Continued on page 426)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, . . . hath raised us up together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: that in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace." — Ephesians 2:4-7.

EASTER ECHOES

HE IS RISEN

THIS word uttered in the sixth verse of Matthew twenty-eight by the angel carries with it far more than the mere fact of the Savior having been raised from the dead. That He was indeed raised is a glorious truth. It was a word that thrilled the entire beings of those who had committed, in hope, their all to Him. The truth of it was beyond their power to grasp. It was all but unbelievable. Yes, He was indeed risen.

But the meaning of His resurrection went so much farther; it permeated so much deeper than the mere fact of the act of being raised. It was the declaration of victory over death. If over death, then also over sin. It was the triumphant reclamation of Adam, God's first man. It was the triumph of strength in Christ over weakness in Adam and in all of Adam's descendants.

"He is risen" opened the door of a new era to the race. It was the announcement of the manner in which God would fulfill His long standing promises of life. It was the revelation to man of the methods of God. It was the renewed promise to man of the assurance of God's ability and of God's determination to crown man with life.

The risen Christ was more than a repetition of resurrection as manifested by God through His servant, Elijah, who raised the widow's son. The first resurrection indeed revealed a power from God. It revealed also that the dead being returned to life, was a being in all the fullness of actuality, the same as he was before his death.

Christ's resurrection revealed the same, that is, it revealed the fact that God's manner of restoring life to fallen man is by the way of resurrection, that what death accomplished in the destruction of life was reversed in resurrection back to life. The risen Christ revealed himself to the apostles, asking them to scrutinize Him, to see and to realize that He was actually himself, that He was Christ.

In this He not only emphasized the fact that was plain when the widow's son was raised, that was made plain to hundreds by the resurrection of Lazarus, but He also, by the outstanding work of God, by the testimony of angels, by the conviction of men, revealed the manner in which God conquers sin and death, and returns the individual in death to life, to existence, visible, tangible, real, positive.

MY LORD AND MY GOD

QUESTION whether "doubting" Thomas was the doubter that common tradition ascribes to him. Many things had been flashed rapidly across the minds of the apostles in the days just past. Thomas was evidently a very ardent and a very practical follower of his Lord. While it took little from his Master to assure him of truth, it took much from those of less exalted standing to deflect him from what he regarded the truth of God.

His first vision of the risen Lord was in the upper room. His vision was corroborated by the touch of His hand. With this double evidence that the One before him was really and truly his Lord, Thomas not only gladly recognized Him, but extolled Him beyond that which any record ascribes to any other apostle.

Jesus seemed to be no longer the weary, ardent Toiler of Galilee and Judea. He stood before Thomas now as the very fulfillment of all prophecy, the fulfillment of God's every word. He was to him as his all powerful Lord. He was like unto Jehovah himself.

The announcement of Paul in Ephesians 1:20-23 and elsewhere likewise extolled the risen Lord not only above sinful mortals, but also above angels and principalities, above every name other than the name of God himself.

This is the greater meaning of Christ's resurrection.

FATHER, INTO THY HANDS I COMMEND MY SPIRIT

THESE were the last recorded words of our Savior. Shortly previous He had breathed forth the wonderful assertion, "It is finished". That statement was the second of its kind which our Savior had spoken.

In the upper room after He had eaten the last supper, after He had given the last instruction, after He had rendered His last service to His apostles, just before starting for the Garden of Gethsemane, He "lifted up his eyes to heaven" in prayer, John 17:1, 4, and, among other things, said, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do".

His ministry had left nothing undone that was to have been done therein. He had magnified God; He had witnessed of Him; He had spent His life's energy on God's chosen people, Israel: He had in every way performed the work which had been placed before Him to perform. That was finished. Moving forward to engage in another work, the work of atonement, of sacrifice, He went to Gethsemane; He endured the judgment halls; He submitted to the scourgings, spittings, and cursings; He bore the tree to Calvary; He submitted His hands and feet to nails. He endured it all, and when all had been fulfilled, excepting the experience of death itself, He prayed forth, "It is finished".

He had been sustained with God's own Spirit, which had been with Him from His birth. With the strength thereof, the Savior had finished the work of His ministry. He now had finished the work of His sacrifice. He turns in prayer to the Father and commends it all to Him.

The usage of the Greek word from which the English word, "commend", is taken, would be well to study. The definition thereof as given by the Critical Greek Lexicon is, "to place near (or) by the side of (as food); to set (or) lay before (as instruction); to set clearly before one by argument, and specially to prove (by citations from writers)." "To put (or) place near (anyone, as food, or as a teacher)."

The Greek word is translated by the English word, "commend", in Luke 23:46; Acts 14:23; 20:32. It is translated by the English word, "set before", in Mark 6:41; 8:6, 6, 7; Luke 9:16; 10:8; 11:6; Acts 16:23; 1 Cor. 10:27. It is translated, "put forth", in Matt. 13:24, 31. It is translated, "Commit", in 1 Tim. 1:18; 2 Tim. 1:12; 2:2; Titus 1:3; and "allege", in Acts 17:3.

In the last moments of life, He was commending all to His Father—all the efforts of His life, all the labors He had performed in His Father's name, all of His work of atonement and sacrifice for His people. All was entrusted to the Father for safe keeping; He commended His Spirit to Him.

THE TRAINING CLASS HERALD

OUR church today stands sorely in need of new ministers to supply the different churches. The old ones are dropping out, one by one, and there are many of our churches which do not have regular pastors. Also, there are many, many localities in this broad land of ours which have never heard the gospel message of salvation as you and I believe and teach it. We need a constant new supply of trained and qualified ministers to take care of the work committed to us as a church.

Several years ago, the General Conference realized the need and instituted the Bible Training Class. You folks from all over the land have been sending in young people to receive the instruction and training which your church offers. You are actively interested in the Class and want to interest others in it and its work, especially in these last times when the harvest is great, but the laborers, few.

The Class has been sending workers into the field during the past. It will be sending others in the near future. You folks at home have made it possible for the Class to come to Oregon, and it is your support which will keep it here and enable others to come. When we, the members of the Class, go out to preach, it will be the result of your desire and your action.

Last year the Class numbered six; last October it numbered seven; now it numbers ten. But only as you continue to support the Class, will it continue to be replenished. Some of the present Class will be in the field soon. There is plenty of work for each to do, and only the surface of the ground will have been scratched.

We need more young people to consecrate themselves to a life of service to Christ. In this Bible Class is offered an opportunity for studying God's Word which I truly believe is unsurpassed by any other ministerial class in the country. You are the ones who must send the young people here in order that they may be fitted and qualified for the work as you want them to be—through the teaching from God's own Word.

In order to help you to interest young people in this Class and its work, the Class is editing the issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD for April 28. You are invited to take advantage of this opportunity and send a copy to each of your many friends. One of them might thereby become interested in the Class and be led to attend it. You cannot possibly estimate the amount of good your action will do, nor can you foresee the result which will be felt in the ages to come.

We are enclosing order blanks in this week's HERALD. The price is less than the cost of production. For Five Cents a copy, you should be able to send a HERALD to each of your friends. You perhaps spend five cents for candy or gum and think nothing of it.

It is little drops of water that make Niagara. So likewise the little nickels you send in, will turn into a flood of HERALDS. One HERALD may interest someone in the class. One so interested may become one of our ministers. One minister may convert many sinners. One sinner converted will make Heaven rejoice and have an effect on the kingdom of God. All this because you turned one nickel into the flood hastening to serve Christ.

Is it worth it? More than anything else! Use the order blank on both sides and send us your nickels at once.

Cecil Smead, Circulation Committee.

THE CAPTIVES MUST GO FREE

By Elder C. M. Keach

There's a sadness in the story
Coming down from Calvary;
But there's gladness, and there's glory,
In the third day's victory.
Yes, there's gladness in the message,
Tell the news o'er land and sea;
Christ hath conquered death's dominions,
And the captives must go free.

When we weep above the casket,
Of the one we cherished so;
When our hearts are crushed with anguish,
'Tis so blessed this to know—
They shall live again in glory,
Clothed with immortality.
Christ hath conquered death's dominions,
And the captives must go free.

When this mortal life is waning,
And the shadows round me fall;
With the closing moments fading,
Christ shall be my all in all.
Then the blessed hope my anchor
Shall my stay and comfort be—
Christ hath conquered death's dominions,
And the captives must go free.

THE SUPREME SACRIFICE

By Lydia Railsback

As to the origin of sacrifices, the Bible is silent. The offering of them no doubt began with Cain and Abel, but whether it was a command from God, or because they felt the need of closer communion with the Father is not known. Nevertheless, sacrifices were made all through biblical times. The sacrifices of Cain and Abel were no doubt simple affairs, but as time went on, they became more nearly complete in bringing fellowship between man and his Maker.

There were many kinds of sacrifices or offerings, as they were many times called. The offering for sin stands at the head, or at least seems to have been the most important. The burnt offering comes next, and the meat or peace offering last of all. The second could only be offered after the first had been accepted; and the third was only subsidiary to the second. It has been observed that in point of time, the first offerings were of the peace and burnt type, and that the sin offering came under the law. This is only natural, as the deepest ideas come last in order of development.

The shedding of blood, the symbol of life, signified that the death of the offender was deserved for sin. But through the mercy of the Father, the death of an animal was accepted for the death of the one who sinned. In the case of the passover, the shedding of blood provided protection for the oldest child. The idea of salvation from death by means of sacrifice is here clearly demonstrated.

Animal sacrifices had to be made from year to year because of the sins of the people; but because of the love of the Father for the world, He sent His Son that He might be sacrificed once for all. This was the supreme Sacrifice; the one that has no equal; the one that need never be repeated; the one that means salvation to those who believe in Him; the one that redeems from death; the one through which Christians look beyond the grave to the coming of Him of whom it is said, "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."—Hebrews 9:28.

THE LITTLE THINGS THAT MAKE UP LIFE

By Lottie E. Young

WE DO not know what made the prodigal son "come to himself", but very likely it was a thought of the pleasant home which he had so carelessly deserted. It was only a look from Jesus to Peter, who had boasted he would go with the Master to prison or death, which made the swearing man shed tears of bitter penitence. It was just the call, "Follow me", to Matthew, the despised publican, who probably had cheated and stolen from his fellow countrymen, which changed his whole life. The kind word to the erring woman, whom the multitude was anxious to stone to death, changed her from a sinner to a follower of the Savior.

All through the Bible there are instances where a word, a look, a song, or some incident brought the erring to a sense of sin and shame and then to repentance. Do you think people are any different today than they were thousands of years ago?

Occasionally somebody sneers at the program of the church, the routine of Christian life, home religion, song, prayer, sacrifice, service, saying there is little or nothing accomplished after so much effort. A thousand sermons and no conversions, hundreds of thousands of prayers without an answer; giving up of pleasures to spend the money on unresponsive heathen; going to church Sunday after Sunday, teaching a class of boys, and five years later perhaps finding them in the pool room or off fishing on God's day; working with might and main to give children clean, wholesome pleasures and finding when they grow up they prefer the dance hall, or some other questionable resort—all these are things that critics point out as they say that churches are failing, and that enormous sums are spent in religious activities each year that might as well be burned up for all the good they do.

Are the critics right? Again and again, men and women have testified to the fact that in the most remote corner of the "far country" they were never able to get away from home and church influences, and that it was the little or big thing connected with past days that finally brought them to their senses before God. A young man, who ran away from a good home to a remote South American country, one day found a copy of a cheap song book, such as had been used in the little country Sunday School he had attended, and he broke down at once. Another wanderer heard through a friend that at home a place was always set at the table for him, even after the lapse of years. With another it was the memory of the home prayers, and another a chance story in a Sunday School paper. Something, somewhere, some time, touched the heart, and the wanderer returned.

So it does pay to keep sending out message after message in the effort to find the lost. The faithful life lived in a quiet community, the memory of home, the prayers, the songs, and the scenes connected with religion finally assert themselves even though the sinner feels most secure from high and holy influences. Officials in charge of prisons and reformatories say there is little hope of reforming or reclaiming human derelicts for whom no one is anxious. A mother at home praying, a father anxious to help an erring child, a sister, a brother, a church that believes in rescuing one who seems to be down and out, must be at work, or the prisoner sinks into despair with the thought, "No one cares what becomes of me."

How much this should encourage all religious people to keep on praying, and to redouble their diligence at home, in society, in church life, to prevent the downfall of human beings. The Apostle Peter tells us our Father is "not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance". So we may continue to do our part and not be discouraged if we do not see the results we had hoped would come.

It is such a comforting thought that no land is beyond the reach of religious memories; no condition so wretched that prayer cannot penetrate the darkness and gloom to bring conviction by the Spirit of God to the wanderer; no night so dark but that the light of God's truth can illuminate the mind that opens to receive it; no wanderer so far away but he is still within the reach of the mercy of Jesus. It may seem that chance directs the one who is straying to think of home, but if human minds could unravel the tangled skein of life, there would be found a thread, strong and true, leading straight back to something pure and holy in the past. It is not for us to lament that so much work is done with no visible results, but rejoice that we are "labourers together with God". Perhaps some day we may find that "they that turn many to righteousness" shall shine "as the stars for ever and ever."

ACCORDING TO THE SCRIPTURES

"FOR I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures." 1 Corinthians 15:3, 4.

The phrase, "according to the scriptures," certainly refers to the Hebrew scriptures, or what is commonly known as the Old Testament scriptures. But we may search the Old Testament from cover to cover, and nowhere can we find a statement which says that Christ shall rise the third day.

Then where does Paul get his authority for saying that He rose again the third day according to the scriptures?

There are three passages of scripture, which, when taken together, will answer our question. David, in Psalm 16:10, says, "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." Peter, in Acts 2:31, says, "David seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption." Now let us read Martha's statement concerning the length of time it takes, after one is dead, for corruption to set in. In speaking of her brother, Lazarus, who was dead, Martha said to Jesus, "By this time he stinketh, for he hath been dead four days."

Paul knew that a dead person would begin to corrupt in four days, as well as Martha knew it. He also knew that the Old Testament scriptures said that Christ's flesh should not see corruption. Therefore, Paul could truthfully say that Christ rose the third day according to the scriptures.

Easter should be a time for each and every Christian to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. For that day marked the beginning of God's handiwork in the new creation, by the glorious resurrection of His Son to an incorruptible nature, in which, death hath no more dominion. And Jesus said, "Because I live, ye shall live also." Glorious hope!

As each and every little white cross and weather beaten mound marks the spot where sad farewell tears have been shed, so a broken Roman seal and an empty tomb marks the beginning of a new day in the Father's wonderful plan, of a groaning creation's redemption from the curse of sin and death. Let us look for a moment into the glorious future and behold the miraculous power of Almighty God, as it penetrates the deaf ears of the sleeping dead.

"Then the mossy old graves where the pilgrims sleep
Shall be opened as wide as before,
And the millions that sleep in the mighty deep
Shall live on this earth once more."

What a scene! I cannot hold back the tears as I view with happy expectation the possibilities of that wonderful day. Our feeble imagination, without a scriptural ground

(Continued on page 423)

What the Sunday School Pupil Thinks

THE teacher of a Sunday School class often wonders just how much that is brought up in class is remembered and put into practical use in the lives of the pupils. The members of the Good Will Class of the Oregon, Illinois, Sunday School, have been writing down some of the ideas which they have derived from a discussion and study of the lessons.

It is of interest to note some of the practical ways in which the teachings of the Bible are put to work. For instance, on the lesson on Jesus' temptation, one of the members asked, "How may we overcome temptation?"

The counter question of course was, "How did Jesus overcome temptation?"

Jesus used the Word of God, "It is written". He was evidently thoroughly familiar with the Scriptures. He had studied them from early youth. Therefore, should not we do the same and use the Bible to overcome temptation? The only way to do that is to study the Bible and become familiar with it.

The Good Will Class took that teaching to heart, and the members are reading a chapter in the Bible every day. Notes taken by various members of the class are as follows:

A SENSE OF VALUES

There was much food for thought in the Sunday School lesson concerning the sense of values in our daily doings.

Martha was certainly performing one of the most necessary of daily tasks—that of preparing a meal, yet Jesus said, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things."

It was not Martha's service that Jesus rebuked, but the extra trouble and bother she had made in "the much serving."

Martha lacked a sense of values in the daily doings, while Mary chose "that good part". She "sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word".

How much more important the visit with Jesus than the preparation of an elaborate meal!

Isn't it true that the modern idea that Sunday is the day to serve a big dinner often keeps one or more members of the family at home from church—and especially if a guest is expected? Would Jesus want it that way, if He were the Guest?

A pioneer mother once said that in those early, hard, and trying days when each day held so much more to be done than she had the time or the strength to do, she always tried to decide which things for that day were "the abiding", and she did "the abiding" and let the rest go.

Let us try to grasp this lesson of sorting the daily tasks, and giving them their proper value.

Evelyn H. Austin.

DAILY SCRIPTURE READING

THE Good Will Class is reading one chapter of the Bible each day, because we think it will help us to be better Christians. When Christ was tempted in the wilderness He answered the adversary with scripture quotations. So, as we become more familiar with God's Word and have it in mind, we can more easily resist the temptations that come to us.

"But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear." 1 Peter 3:15. Many times we have the opportunity and would like to quote a Scripture passage, but we are silent, because we do not know the exact quotation or where it is located.

In 2 Timothy 2:15, Paul says, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Also in 2 Timothy 3:16, 17, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

If we can quote scripture passages, we will find that many times in our conversation we can help others to see God's will in their life problems. Let us become more familiar with our Bibles.

Elizabeth Ordnung.

THOUGHTS FROM THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Sunday, February 22—Luke 8:1-15

- I. We furnish a type of ground for the sowing of God's word.
 - A. Thorny.
 - B. Rocky.
 - C. By wayside (hard).
 - D. Deep rich soil.
2. We, in turn, are planters.
 - A. Prepare soil.
 - B. Sow.
3. It is better to sow and not reap than not to sow.
 - A. We benefit from sowing.
 - a. By seeing it take root and grow.
 - b. By strengthening our own soil (building it up).
4. Don't get discouraged.

Sunday, March 1 — Luke 10:1-11, 17, 21, 22

1. What have we in common with the seventy?
2. We are serving under God's guidance.
3. We have no time to loiter by the way, answering foolish questions, etc.
4. We are to serve where acceptable.

5. We are to take the comforts with the discomforts and keep on with the work.

Sunday, March 8 — Luke 10:25-37

1. Who is my neighbor?
 - A. Nationality?
 - B. Condition in life?
 - C. Our Friend?
2. Our neighbor is one who needs us, regardless of:
 - A. His nationality
 - B. Rich or poor
 - C. Whether he is our enemy or friend.
3. To be a good neighbor we must:
 - A. Overcome our antipathies toward other races
 - B. Overcome our "better than you" state of mind
 - C. Be merciful and helpful to all with no respect of persons, as Jesus was.

Sunday, March 15

1. Hospitality of Mary and Martha
 - A. Way of showing—Martha
 - a. Seeing to bodily comfort of Jesus and feeding Him
 - B. Way of showing—Mary
 - a. Learning from Jesus (putting spiritual food before bodily food)
2. Lesson as taught by Jesus
 - A. Accepted Mary's (she was choosing the good).
3. Let the Lord's Day be His
 - B. Don't neglect Him to prepare a feast for the stomach.

Azalia Winfrey.

THE USE AND ABUSE OF GOD'S GIFTS

Every person is endowed with some gift. These gifts should not be set apart for our own use, but should be used in doing God's work.

We cannot expect to receive the reward that has been promised to us when the Lord returns, if we are not faithful stewards.

We should exert our efforts against the use of liquor. If we have wealth, we should use it for the helping of others, instead of using it to gain more wealth for self.

He who really believes in the Lord's second coming should live up to his belief in his daily life.

Mrs. Fred Cox.

ACCORDING TO THE SCRIPTURES

(Continued from page 421)

for our hope, cannot be stretched beyond the stream of death. But with the Bible in hand, containing the words of Him who died and lives again, who walked and talked with His followers after He arose from the dead, and was seen and handled, and also known by those who had walked and talked with Him before His crucifixion, I cannot help believing that I will not only know Him who died for me, but that He will make it possible for me to know my dear mother, who now sleeps beneath the clods of the valley, awaiting the resurrection morning, when she, who in the days of prattling childhood watched and cared for me, shall come forth and clasp my hand in true and real recognition.

This is the hope which Easter brings to me. Does it bring that hope to you, my brother and sister? If so, I would like to have a line from you, with your answer.

Yours in that blessed hope,

E. O. Stewart,

Box 485, Sweetwater, Texas.

AN EXPIRING SUNDAY

They are killing our Sunday of long ago,
The good old Sunday we used to know;
The day of quiet, when everywhere
The spirit of peace pervaded the air,
And the whole world, wearing its Sunday best,
Sat down by the roadside of life to rest.

They are killing our Sunday, not with a blow,
To end it suddenly, but sure and slow,
As they did the martyrs who suffered shame,
On the wheel and the rack and in the flame.

They are killing our Sunday, and when it is dead,
When the last, last drop of its blood is shed,
And its spirit has gone from the knowledge of men,
In their world-weary struggle for pleasure, what then?
—Selected.

INVEST a nickel in a Training Class HERALD. It will pay big DIVIDENDS.

THE BRASS MONKEY

A MAN WHO KEPT a store had a brass monkey, which he set up with a cigar in its mouth. The cigar was lighted, and by machinery the monkey could draw the smoke from the cigar and puff it out again. After it had run for quite a while, one day the works stopped. The monkey was taken apart to discover the cause, when, lo, the works were found to be clogged and in such a filthy condition that they would not run until they were cleaned. The tobacco smoke had been too much for a brass monkey!

What, then, must its effects be on the inside works of a little boy? A good many boys who smoke cigars or cigarettes fare worse than the brass monkey. They stop, but they never start again—they cannot be cleaned up; they die. Boys, beware of tobacco. It is enough to spoil a brass monkey.—H. L. H.

THE HILLS

By Alice B. Curtis

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills,
Those bulwarks of strength God has made,
Their grandeur His greatness reveals;
In the balance their dust He has weighed;
The sunshine first rests upon them,
Like a crown on an Orient's brow,
When night mists make the foothills show dim,
And the vale sleeps in shadow below.

From them cometh help day by day;
For I know since God's hand reared each height,
Every burden on Him I can lay,
I can rest on the arm of His might.
And the hills everlasting abide,
They like God's brooding love close us in;
So we look from man's weakness and pride,
Away from earth's shadow and sin.

And we lift up our eyes to the hills
That reach up to God and the light,
And a longing our whole being fills,
To attain to a loftier height,
Like the great, granite hills to grow strong,
In the strength of the Lord to be great,
That we may not be shaken by wrong,
Nor be dwarfed by the poison of hate.

So I lift up mine eyes to the hills,
That like sentinels still their watch keep,
They remind me, though slumber close seals
My eyelids, God's eyes never sleep.
And a peace settles over my heart,
Like the quiet that broods o'er the hills,
A peace God alone can impart,
As refreshing as dew that distills.

Keep your watch till He comes, O ye hills,
And ye welcoming floods clap your hands,
For each sign the glad day near foretells,
When Christ upon Olivet stands.
Then our loud halleluiahs shall ring!
Ye shall answer from peak unto peak,
When we hail Him as Savior and King,
And all nations His praises shall speak.

SURE OF MILLENNIUM

MISS Christabel Pankhurst, daughter of Emmeline Pankhurst, noted British militant suffragist of the last generation, believes that the second coming of Christ is at hand.

She is confident that it will occur in her life time—that she will actually see Him.

Her faith, she says, is based on the fulfillment of prophecies first uttered by Moses and reiterated through the Bible to the end of Revelation.

Miss Pankhurst does not hold with those who believe the reappearance will mean the end of the world. But she expects it to be dramatic enough so that there can be no doubt of His identity.

"Two thousand years ago," she said in a recent address, "He came in poverty and weakness and humility. But this time He will descend to the earth in all His majesty, with demonstrations of divine power more miraculous than any of the miracles of modern science."

PREDICTS MILLENNIUM

Rather than violence and destruction, Miss Pankhurst believes that the return of Christ will mark the beginning of a thousand years in which He will rule the world—an age of such peace and progress and splendor as the earth has never seen.

But His coming may occur, she thinks, during another world war in which, because of the advance of modern warfare, the destruction of the human race will appear to be imminent. This, she said, is foretold repeatedly in the Bible.

Chiefly in the unrest which she sees in the present age—crime, wars, rumors of wars, economic depressions, political upheavals, rebellion against authority, fear in the hearts of men—does Miss Pankhurst recognize fulfillment of prophecies uttered many centuries ago.

"I see the fulfillment of a prophecy, too, in the desire of the Jews to return to Palestine. Even Moses, leading the children of Israel into the promised land, told them they should be scattered for many centuries, but that they should return—for the millennium. . ."

OTHER PROPHECIES FULFILLED

More striking and specific prophecies have been fulfilled, Miss Pankhurst said—prophecies whose fulfillment she sees in the development of our machine age.

"Even in the Old Testament it was foretold that in the last days chariots of fire would jostle each other in the streets," she said, "and all through the Bible are references to a time when man shall fly through the air."

With her mother, Miss Pankhurst went through many hard fought campaigns in her girlhood.

"But when we got the vote," she said, "I had to face the realization that we had not yet found the millennium. Then I began to study the Bible and the prophecies."

At first she said that she was timid about mentioning her convictions to anyone. But she overcame that, and now she is devoting her life to preaching.—Selected by H. H. Hawkins from the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DO NOT overlook the article on Page 419, entitled, "The Training Class Herald". As has been the custom for the past three or four years, the Bible Training Class of the N. B. I. will again issue a special number of THE RESTITUTION HERALD. The preparation for this will be in the hands of the students of the class. It will prove of especial interest to you. At five cents per copy, you will want to send one to each of your friends.

THE CROWNING DAY

PART 2

By G. Eldred Marsh

THE sky-searching astronomer, filled with a sense of his own superior wisdom, solemnly affirms that, "in the beginning God" did not "create the heavens and the earth"; that those mighty orbs which fill the heavens with glory and the earth with light were self-created; that they are but accidents of natural law; that they follow a path which no one marked out, and obey a law which no one formulated, and which no one enforces. They trust to "cosmic forces" to bring about the salvation of the world, and to evolution to produce a race of "super-men".

In fulfillment of Peter's prediction, they deny the possibility of the coming of the Lord as universal Sovereign of the world, when "a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." Isaiah 32:1. With other scoffers of the last days, they ask derisively, "Where is the promise of his coming, for since the fathers fell asleep all things continue as they were from the beginning of . . ." "the cosmic evolutionary processes".

"For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old." And they further deny, through their ignorance and pride, that "the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." (See 2 Peter 3:4-7.) But in spite of their denial, and contrary to their desires—

"The heavens shall glow with splendor, and brighter far than they

The saints shall shine in glory, as Christ shall them array;
The beauty of the Savior shall dazzle every eye,
For the crowning day is coming by and by!"

The prophetic word is being fulfilled! "Evil men and seducers (are) waxing worse and worse." 2 Tim. 2:13. Crime is increasing. Jails and penitentiaries are filled with young men and young women who have robbed and murdered in their lust for gold. The thoughtful are growing despondent, the earnest, discouraged. "Men's hearts (are) failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Luke 21:26.

Calling attention to the breaking down of law, the mayor of Youngstown, Ohio, recently said: "The (police) department is representative of our community. It is composed of men selected from the neighbors with whom we live. If they are unfit, then it must be remembered that they are representative of us all, and their persons bespeak the atmosphere in which they live. Their shame is our shame. We all share the disgrace of failure."

This growing and almost universal disregard for law is an indication of a general lowering of moral standards throughout the country. And it is this increase of crime that is filling the world with woe. But, praise God, the Lord is coming to bring peace! He is coming "to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness." Dan. 9:24.

"Then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness shall remain in the fruitful field. And the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever." Isaiah 32:16-17. And eventually "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things (shall have) passed away." Revelation 21:4.

"Our pain shall then be over, we'll sin and sigh no more,
Behind us all of sorrow, and nought but joy before;
A joy in our Redeemer, as we to Him are nigh,
In the crowning day that's coming by and by!"

A PRAYER FOR A REVIVAL

By M. A. Woodward

"WHILT THOU revive us again: that thy people may rejoice in thee?" Psalm 85:6. "It is time for thee, Lord, to work." Psalm 119:126.

A revival does not mean much unless it is a real soul-lifting revival of the Christ life in our hearts, in our lives. So, Beloveds, you who really believe in prayer (and God pity those who do not believe and practice it in their lives), do you think it is necessary in our homes, in our lives, in our neighbors' homes and lives, to have a real revival of righteousness in our midst, that we may be brought nearer to our Heavenly Helper? If so, let us enter our quiet rooms and kneel in fervent prayer to our God, earnestly asking Him for the things we so much need. First, let us pray that we ourselves may feel the quickening influence of His Spirit, in our hearts, that others may hear the still small voice pleading with them to repent and be saved.

May He kindle the sacred fire of His love in each heart, that we may feel the intense interest we should feel for our Christian work. If you feel intense interest, and the Spirit's power is manifested, do not be afraid to express it in a hearty AMEN. For if our joy should bubble over, it would fall on other hearts, and they, too, would be filled with the joy of divine life. O, the blessedness of this joy! God will touch this spark; it will catch fire, and, lo, another soul is begotten for salvation.

Are we ready, dear hearts, to go to our neighbors and whisper this love in their ears, the love of the Christ of God, who willingly suffered and died for us, that in His blessed future we may be helpers in His soon coming kingdom? Christ, who is a Helper in times of trouble or distress, or when heavily burdened with the cares of this ever busy life, has encouraged us to cast our burdens upon Him, for He says that He cares for us. Cast your care upon Him, and see how soon the heartache will cease and joy come, because He does care, and will give you rest in His love.

Are we, dear brethren, doing all we can to make a sweeping of God's love felt? The pastor is doing all he can to instruct in the gospel; the singers are giving wonderful notes of praise; the organist is working hard to help at the musical instruments; the people are gathering to listen. What are we doing to help in the good work? Are we just listening, or are we daily praying that God may give strength, and grace, and power to impress all with the great importance of His power in our midst. If we have done all we can, it is time to say with the Psalmist, "It is time for thee, Lord, to work." For human power faileth unless Thy help is near. Human hearts seem so indifferent. O, dear Lord, soften them and help them to see Thee as the tender, loving Father, who has promised to hear and answer prayer.

Christ is coming soon, and in such an hour as we think not, He may come. Are we ready for Him? We must not only be ready ourselves, but we must help others to be ready, for the promise to those who accept Him and are overcomers is to sit with Him on His throne. Will that be worth anything to you? It would mean every burden lifted, every sorrow past, every tear shed, for God's own hand has wiped them away. Read Revelation 21, and ask yourself the question, "Did I ever have anything offered to me like that by any earthly friend?"

Will you not seek Him and take these blessings from His gracious hand?

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

(Continued from front page)

again. The two men said that He would go, but that He would come again, just as He went.

An angel was sent to announce His birth to the virgin. Angels sang of His advent into Bethlehem. An angel told the women of His resurrection. Two angels told the disciples of His coming again. It is the same testimony in all three cases.

WHEN WILL HE COME?

Some have gone beyond prophecy, and have tried to tell just when He would come. He is coming—this we know, but just when, we do not know. Matthew 24:36 settles that: "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only."

In Luke we read, "The Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not". "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power."—Acts 1:7. Why then meddle with things that are concealed? better search for what is clearly revealed.

The proper attitude of the Christian is to be always looking for his Lord's return. God does not tell us just when He will come, but He does tell us to watch. Just as Simeon and Anna watched for His first coming, so should true believers watch and wait for His second coming.

He may come unexpectedly or suddenly: "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be". Again, "Therefore be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

In the first chapter of first Thessalonians, Paul says, "Ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his Son from heaven". "To wait" should be the true attitude of every child of God.

"For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?" Again, "I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."—1 Thess. 2:19; 5:23.

In every chapter of this epistle to the Thessalonians, Paul has something to say about our Lord's return. It may well be called the gospel of Christ's second coming.

SHAMS IN RELIGION

In many ways the church is cold and formal, and there is no better way to wake it up than to get it to look for our Lord's return. It seems as though this world is growing darker and darker, and its ruin is near. Nowhere in the Scripture is it claimed that the whole world will be brought to the feet of Christ in this dispensation.

In Acts 15:14, James says, "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name." That is one reason for our Lord's delay. He is waiting until the elect are all gathered out, until His Gentile bride is complete.

"There shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation."

Yes, the Lord delayeth His coming, but Peter goes on to say, verse ten, "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night". Then let us watch; for the Lord is not slack concerning His promises. "Seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

A RUSSIAN'S TESTIMONY

"A RUSSIAN recently arrived," says The Pentecostal Evangel, quoting from the World Dominion, "in Manitoba, says: 'I was an editor in Russia, and, for allowing an article to be published favoring the Bible and the Christian religion, I was imprisoned. From prison I escaped and worked my way to Constantinople. There my family joined me. We finally came to Canada. When I arrived and the agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society presented me with a portion of the Scriptures in Russian, it dawned upon me as a revelation that I had come to a country where the Bible was not only allowed but encouraged, and where a copy was even thrust upon people. Whereupon, I bowed my head and worshiped and said, "This is my country and the country for my children."'"

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 I-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"STUDY TO SIEW THYSELF APPROVED UNTO GOD, A WORKMAN THAT NEEDETH NOT TO BE ASHAMED, RIGHTLY DIVIDING THE WORD OF TRUTH."—2 TIMOTHY 2:15.

ADDING ZEST TO OUR MEETINGS

THERE has been considerable comment from time to time in regard to the Berean books and the kind of lessons that we are given in them. Let us consider for just a while some of the difficulties, and see if we cannot discover where-in the trouble lies.

We hear from one class that they are making wonderful progress, are interested in the lessons and think the books a great success. But from another locality comes the pitiful and discouraging story, "We don't seem to be getting anywhere. Nobody gets anything out of the lessons, and we seem to be just floundering around, wasting time."

It seems that too many of us forget that little slogan which the Bereans adopted many years ago, and which, if followed conscientiously, would help so much to relieve the situation and bring visible results. "Search the Scriptures Daily"! If we could only put more emphasis on the "Daily", instead of letting our searching end with the looking up of the texts each week during the lesson.

We can all remember the days in school, when we went to class with a guilty conscience, because we hadn't looked at the lesson. We didn't need to have anyone explain the reason why we sat there wondering what it was all about, listening to a discussion of things entirely foreign to us. And yet we expect to go to our Berean classes with absolutely no preparation. Why not try a little more concentrated study before we go to class?

With the beginning of good weather let us all put forth a greater effort to make our classes more interesting. After careful preparation by each one there is sure to follow an interchange of thought which will prove beneficial to all. Let us set apart a time each week for the purpose of study and see if our classes still drag.

FROM LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

THE Bereans of Los Angeles have reorganized. Instead of meeting on Wednesday evening, we meet on Sunday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 at the church at Forty-second Street and Broadway. This Berean organization is composed of only the young folks. The Bible study for the older folks is still held every Wednesday evening.

At the first meeting held on Sunday night, March 15, there was an attendance of eighteen. Election was held, and Wesley Saylor was elected president, Worley Ward, vice president, and Anna Hammond, Secretary.

It is hoped that this change will serve to arouse interest among the young people to unite with us in the study of the Bible.

Anna Hammond, Secretary.

ILLINOIS BEREAN REPORT FOR JANUARY

Oregon: Membership, 22; average weekly attendance, 18; interest good; visitors, 9. Ruth Gesin, Sec.

Dixon: (Senior) Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 5; interest, fair. The lessons change from time to time.

Dixon: (Junior No. 1) Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 12; interest, very good. This class is progressing rapidly.

Dixon: (Junior No. 2) Membership, 5; average weekly attendance, 5; interest, very good. This class has just been organized and is getting along nicely.

Elizabeth Ford, Sec.

Ripley: Membership, 26; average weekly attendance, 17; interest, good. Mrs. Wm. Fey, Sec.

Marshall: The Marshall Berean Society has not met for the last few months. Effort will be made to start the Berean work here in April if the roads are in condition.

Edna Wood, State Sec.

You will want ALL your friends to enjoy Training Class HERALDS.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 15; Ohio, 11; California, 5; Michigan, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Louisiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

JESUS taught many lessons by telling the people stories, or parables. These stories were not actual happenings always, but contained a truth, which anyone could study about, if he were really interested.

In Luke 16, Jesus tells this story to the Pharisees:

There was a very rich man, named Dives, who wore very beautiful clothing, and ate very rich food. The outside of his life was very attractive, although nothing is said of his heart.

This seems very much like many of the Pharisees themselves—showy on the outside, but with designing minds and hearts. It also seems like the Jewish nation, to whom God had given many favors, and promised the richest blessings, if they would continue in His ways.

In contrast, there was a poor beggar, named Lazarus, who lay at the rich man's gate. He had nothing, and was glad for even the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table. His friends were the dogs which came and licked the sores that covered his body. He seems like the Gentiles, or heathen, who had no rich promises and were despised by the Jews.

According to the story, both men died. The rich man was buried while the poor man was carried to Abraham's bosom.

Right here is the part of the story that is confusing to those who believe it was not a story, but an actual happening. The rich man is suffering in the grave, and looks up where Lazarus is peacefully reposing in Abraham's bosom. In his agony, Dives cries for Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool his tongue.

Then Abraham replies, "Son, remember that in your lifetime you received all the good things while Lazarus received the unhappy things. Now conditions are reversed, and there is a great gulf, or distance between you two, over which neither of you may pass."

How could Dives be dead, and yet talk? The Jewish nation did not follow in God's way, so God scattered them among the other nations of the world. In that way they were buried as a nation.

Then God turned to the Gentiles and included them in the promises made to Abraham. Thus, the poor man rests in Abraham's bosom.

The rich man, or Jew, then asked that Lazarus be sent to his brethren, or the other Hebrew tribes, so that they need not suffer too. Abraham said, "They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them."

Then Dives said, "If someone from the dead should come to warn them they would repent."

But Abraham replied: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets they will not listen to one from the dead."

And truly, the Jews would not hear Jesus, nor would they believe when He arose from the dead.

ARE WE believing in Jesus that we may live?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Learn Matthew 6:20.
2. Read Genesis 15.
3. Read all of these references and copy three of them: Psalm 115:17; Isaiah 38:18; Psalm 6:5; Job 14:21; Ecclesiastes 9:4-10; Revelation 20:5.
4. Ask your parents to read you some from the law, and from the prophets.

WE BELIEVE in clean talking.—1 Peter 1:15, 16.

"But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation."

RE MORSE

I killed a robin—the little thing,
With scarlet breast and glossy wing,
That comes in the apple tree to sing.

I flung a stone as he twittered there.
I only meant to give him a scare,
But off it went—and hit him square.

A little flutter—a little cry—
Then on the ground I saw him lie.
I didn't think he was going to die.

But as I watched him I soon could see
He never would sing for you or me
Any more in the apple tree;

Never more in the morning light,
Never more in the sunshine bright,
Trilling his song in gay delight.

And I'm thinking, every summer day,
How never, never can I repay
The little life that I took away.
—Sidney Day in Sunshine Magazet

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 3. — April 19, 1931

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

Luke 16:1 to 17:37

Devotional Reading: 1 John 3:13-18

GOLDEN TEXT

Lay not up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal.—Matt. 6:20.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. The Curse of Selfishness.

Basic Truth. "I am resolved what to do, that when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses."—Luke 16:4.

Outline. I. Serving Self. II. The Result. III. Serving God. IV. The Result.

I. Serving Self. The most blighting selfishness is that which lifts self above God. That being done, God's words and promises are robbed of their richness, mutilated as to their revealed plans, and nullified as to their correction. When this is done, man shrinks not from appropriating every God-given richness to self, regardless of the wound such appropriation may cause another.

II. The Result. The sailor who in mid-ocean wrecks his only compass deprives himself of his only source of information as to whether he is journeying. God's Word is that compass. The Pharisees almost wholly denied its authenticity and in its stead invented hallucinating ideas of their own. In denying God's Word, they could but deny God's Son, their Savior, thus depriving themselves of salvation.

III. Serving God. Service to God requires a given knowledge of God's Word. It requires that that Word should be respected and regarded in all of its purity. The Savior endeavored to place God's true word before the Pharisees as regards the saving of sinners, chap. 15, as regards stewardship, as regards the home, as regards Israel and the Gentiles. Every problem of life was by the Savior made dependent upon the Word of God and upon service to God, in harmony with that Word.

IV. The Result. Granting that this parable was a rebuke to the Pharisees and the Jews for their attitude before God, and that it was an encouragement to the Gentiles to enter into a place rejected by the Jews, we have:

The rich man, rich in God's promises through Abraham, arrogantly indifferent to the needs of the Gentiles, represented by the ulcer-covered Lazarus. Of the Gentiles, Paul says, Eph. 2:11-13, "Ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world". Such was Gentile poverty. The Pharisaic Jews ignored their needs. Through rejecting God's Word, the Jews were driven out. Through receiving of God's Word by faith, the Gentiles were admitted to the fullness of God's promises through Abraham. They are in figure in Abraham's bosom.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."
—Matthew 6:20.

Treasures do not always consist of gold or silver, neither houses nor lands. These are the kinds that are earthly, but the treasures that can be laid up in heaven are those that pertain to life eternal.

We are told in Matthew 6:21, "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also". How true it is that our minds are centered on the things we prize most!

Our golden text is an admonition direct from the lips of the Savior, and no one can make a mistake in taking His advice. His ideals were always high and they constantly pointed the way to future life.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Reaping: It should always be borne in mind that whatsoever we sow that shall we reap. Our conversations, our deeds, our actions, and decisions in this life are going to affect and determine our position in the world to come. We are what we are because we so choose. Nobody is responsible for our actions other than self. God will assist us, and the devil will aid us. Whichever one does, it will be because we have so chosen.

Opportunity: Every normal life is filled with opportunities to do good and make good. The rich man had opportunities to make good in his lifetime. He failed to grasp the chances. Making good is not the accumulating of wealth, but is the reaching out in every avenue of moral and spiritual endeavor. Let each day be the best day of your life and use every opportunity to your eternal advantage.

Generous: Every soul, endowed with spiritual insight, will open up his heart, when financial circumstances permit, and will alleviate the sufferings of his fellowman. Be generous. If someone is in need, don't give him the crumbs; divide with him. Bear one another's burdens. Love is compassionate. Love will not allow of suffering, if preventable.

This Parable

- teaches us the tragedy of neglect;
- shows how difficult for a rich man to be compassionate;
- tells of the fate of the unrepentant sinner;
- is full of compassion for the poor in spirit;
- is God's handwriting on the wall for those who expect to reap that which they do not sow.—C. E. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Rich Man and Lazarus.

In this parable, spoken to the Pharisees, verses 14 and 15, Jesus represents them by a "certain rich man". They were rich in God's favor. They had received much from the heavenly Father. "Who are Israelites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises; whose are the fathers, and of whom, as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, God blessed for ever." Rom. 9:4, 5.

The beggar—Gentiles—desired the crumbs of blessing which fell from the rich man's table. The beggar died, was carried to Abraham's bosom. Speaking of death, the Pharisees would say, "Today he sits in Abraham's bosom." Lightfoot Works, Vol. 12, pp. 159 to 163. The rich man also died, and was buried (and) in hell. The Vulgate and Syriac omit "and". He was buried by dispersion among the nations of earth; lost from God's favor, while the poor Gentiles came into favor with God.

(For a further study of this subject we suggest that you write for tracts either to National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois, or to J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Indiana.)
—F. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Another Teaching of Jesus.

In this lesson we find another of Jesus' stories or parables. He describes two men, a rich man and a beggar, Lazarus. These two men died. The rich man is described as being in hell; the beggar, in Abraham's bosom.

Now most people think this story proves we go to heaven or hell at death. But of course we do not think so, for several reasons. We believe "the dead know not any thing", and these men did.

Here is what we think it teaches. The first promises in the Bible were made only to the Jews. They were God's favorite people. They were "rich" in God's sight and love. He dealt only with them. They represent the rich man as described in verse 19. The Gentiles were called "heathens", "beggars", etc. They represent the beggar.

The Jews failed to obey the commandments of God and even caused Jesus, God's Son, to be crucified. Therefore God turned from them, and is now dealing with the Gentiles. From them He is selecting His church. They are now in the better condition of the two.

Some day the Jews will see their mistake and repent for their sin. But they cannot enter in as God's church, neither can the church enter in as the Jews.—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

Sr. Alice Kerr, who has been spending the winter at Golden Rule Home, returned to her home in Dixon, Illinois, on April 7.

Sr. Frances Elvey of Chicago has been very ill with the flu. At the last report she has taken a turn for the better.

Sr. Frank Rogers was called Sunday to the bedside of her son, James, who is in a hospital at Tucson, Arizona, ill with the flu. We trust that he will soon be on the road to recovery.

Sr. J. H. Williams of Rochelle, Illinois, who has been quite sick, is recovering but is still not able to be out. Bro. and Sr. Williams were missed by the Oregon brethren at Easter services.

We regret that news of the Easter services at the Dixon, Illinois, church arrived too late for last week's paper. All the Sunday Schools of that city set a goal for attendance on Palm Sunday. The Dixon choir gave several special numbers at both services on Easter Sunday.

Bro. and Sr. Sylvan Richey took their little son, Roger, to Paris, Illinois, last Friday, where he underwent a serious operation for mastoid. He is getting along fine, but will have to stay at the hospital about ten days. Their oldest boy, Elden, has been very sick with abscess in his throat. We are glad to know that he is better at this writing.

The whole Rockford church body attended the evening services at Oregon, on Easter Sunday. Their presence was greatly appreciated.

They reported that their morning service had been well attended. Bro. Thayer gave them a good sermon. An Easter offering was taken and presented to the N. B. I. This energetic and growing organization has also the nucleus of a building fund for an edifice of its own.

EASTER AT THE STONE CHURCH

The church at Oregon, Illinois enjoyed a wonderful Easter day. The attendance at Sunday School numbered 117, the high mark before that being 98. Golden Rule Class made the last payment on the beautiful Schiller piano, and presented it to the church, clear of debt. An Easter offering for the building fund was received, amounting to $137.71, with an additional $20.00 on pledges. The evening service of song was appreciated greatly by the large audience present. Although Sr. Rogers was called away very suddenly, Sr. Azalia Winfrey presided at the piano, and the program was carried out as planned. Her assistance was deeply appreciated by all.

The most wonderful feature of the day was the baptism of ten girls and young women, immediately following the morning sermon. They are, Lucille, Mary, and Iva Reynolds, Viola Koontz, Loretta Cullen, Rasalie and Lois Carpenter, Dorothy, Harriet, and Lucille Smith. It is an inspiration to witness the consecration of youth to the service of the Master. May they ever remain loyal to Him

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."
—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Roll Brewer,	Troy, Ohio.
Bro. Lloyd Ekluud,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. Curdella Gray	Lanark, Ill.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Bro. Albert Singer,	Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.
J. H. Leavitt	Wewahatchka, Fla.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio

Bro. and Sr. H. L. Leeper of Arkansas City, Kansas, whose baby daughter has been very ill, are now in St. Louis, Missouri, where they are in consultation with a brain specialist. An operation may be performed, the outcome of which is very doubtful. They are at present with Sr. Gertrude Logan, 4318 Olive St. The prayers of the brethren are asked for them.

whose name they have taken upon themselves, and may we ever uphold them by our Christian example.

AT RIPLEY NEXT SUNDAY

Bro. Richard McCrone, of the Training Class, will be the speaker for the congregation at the Ripley, Illinois, church next week end, April 11 and 12. Everyone in the surrounding territory is urged to be present. Services will be held Saturday evening, Sunday morning and Sunday evening.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The Teachers' Training Course was begun on Tuesday night, March 31, with eighteen present. This course is being personally given by the secretary of the Kent County Council of Religious Education, which operates under the National Council. One credit is given for each course taken and twelve credits are required for graduation. We anticipate much good from this work.

As these lines are written, final preparations are being made for the Easter services, and we trust the message of resurrection will bring inspiration and courage to all. Basket dinner is to be held at the church, and an out-of-doors baptismal service in the afternoon, if the weather is favorable.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

TRAINING CLASS NEWS

The Training Class went to Dixon on Monday, March 23, to have a picture taken for the Class Edition of The Restitution Herald. The committees for the different departments of this issue are all working hard and are progressing nicely. We hope to make this year's edition the best of all.

John Denchfield and Clarence Lapp have been coming to class on crutches as a result of the accident mentioned in last week's Herald. They are learning to walk quite well, but hope to put their crutches aside before they learn to walk any better with them.

Harvey Krogh, Sec.

OUR EASTER OFFERING

Contribution for our Easter Offering are still coming in, and for these we are most grateful. May God's blessings come to all who, in various ways, are faithful and consecrated to Him.

Previously reported	$171.50
Mrs. M. Shea	3.00
Anna E. Drew	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Marsh	10.00
Lucy B. Groat	1.00
Ida Jeffrey	2.00
Mrs. Cora Murphy	1.00
G. A. Driskill	1.00
Richard Lake	5.00
Ransom Lake	5.00
I. M. Abbott	1.00
W. M. Boyer	2.50
D. A. Renner and wife	3.00
W. H. and R. C. Boyer	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ellis	10.00
Margaret Ellis	2.00
Leota B. Hanson	10.00
Eva H. M. Fletcher	10.00
Miss Belle McCandless	5.00
Lois Hunt	1.00
Mrs. H. E. Russel	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters	2.00
Mrs. F. E. Smith	2.00
Lottie E. Young	25.00
Eliza M. Cassen	5.00
Total	$283.00

SARAH ELIZABETH HOLLWAY

Sr. Sarah Elizabeth Hollway, wife of Bro. Thomas W. Hollway, died at her home in Long Beach, California, March 25, 1931. Sr. Hollway was born near Sycamore, Ohio, July 5, 1849. As a child she went with her parents to Iowa, where on January 1, 1872, she was married to Thomas W. Hollway. They located on a farm in Calhoun County, Iowa, being among the pioneer settlers in that part of the state. Leaving the farm they removed to Sac City, where they continued to reside until about twenty years ago, when they came to California and located in Long Beach.

They were the parents of nine children, two of whom died in early childhood. Sr. Hollway is survived by her husband; one son, Fred H. of Long Beach; and six daughters: Miss Flora E. Hollway, Mrs. Emma Haffner, and Mrs. Jennie Young, all of Long Beach; Mrs. Mary Elma Bell of Madison, Wisconsin; Mrs. Bessie Moore of Hollywood, California; and Mrs. Mabel Maxwell of Selma, California; also two sisters, Mrs. Etta Harsbarger of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Huldah Walker of Emporia, Kansas; together with ten grandchildren, and one great-granddaughter.

Bro. and Sr. Hollway were baptized by Bro. Whitesett, before leaving the farm in northwestern Iowa, and have remained faithful to their profession throughout the long years of their pilgrimage together.

The writer chose for the text of his funeral discourse the thirteenth verse of the fourth chapter of First Thessalonians: "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope."

The sympathy of all goes out to Bro. Hollway and his bereaved family.

G. Eldred Marsh.

C. B. SHAIN

Bro. C. B. Shain of Eldorado, Illinois, was born in 1863 and died on March 28, 1931. He was born in Gallatin County and lived on the same farm all his life with the exception of the last two years. He, with his wife, was baptized nine years ago by Bro. F. E. Siple, and had been true to the faith ever since. For the past three years he made his home with his three oldest sons, Fred, George, and David, his wife having preceded him in death three years. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. Young from the M. E. church at Norris City, Illinois. He will be greatly missed by the brethren at Eldorado.

VIRGIL DEBUSK

Virgil Debusk was born in Wolen County, Texas, March 3, 1899, and died on March 11, 1931.

He accidentally shot himself on March 4. He is survived by his mother, seven brothers and two sisters.

Virgil had been a member of the Church of God for several years and lived a Christian life until his death. His friends are too numerous to mention, and he always met them with a smile.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, after which he was laid to rest in the Palava Cemetery to await the trumpet call, when we hope to meet him again, where we will never more have to say good bye.

"Dearest brother, thou hast left us,
Here thy loss we deeply feel,
But 'tis death that hath bereft us,
God can all our sorrows heal.

"Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in the grave so low;
Here, no more to join our number,
Here, no more our songs shall know.

"But again we hope to meet you,
When mortality has fled;
Then at home with songs to greet you,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Yours in hope,
E. O. Stewart.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates. — 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BASKET WEAVE

THE NEW BINDING FOR
OXFORD BIBLES

Grained with basket weave design. Highly finished calf leather, of a dark brown color. Button clasp keeps volume closed and protected. Convenient to carry. Oxford India paper. Six maps.

This is a beautiful book for your own use or for a gift. Prices range from $4.25 to 10.50.

Write for complete descriptions.

ANNUITY BONDS

There is no better way to preserve one's capital for use during life and at the same time dedicate it to the Master's use after one's death than by a National Bible Institution Annuity Bond.

Write NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois, for information.

Any Amount - Much or Little

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why Essential Truths	2	$0.05	$0.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince (For cost of Postage)	32	.03	.12
--	----	-----	-----

BOOKS

Name	Pages	Each	Per 6
Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth,	480	.85	5.00
Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

PAUL'S FIRST LETTER TO THE THESSALONIANS

By Lyman Booth

THESSALONICA was anciently called Therma, but was renamed after the sister of Alexander the Great, by her husband, Casander, who restored it. It was the chief metropolis of Macedonia, the greatest and most populous port of that division of Europe. It was to the West what Ephesus was to the East, and Corinth was to Southern Greece. Situated half-way between the Adriatic and the Hellespont, at the entrance to the pass into the Macedonian plain, it was a busy commercial center, with a constant tide of traffic, ebbing and flowing through it. It was thus a fit center of evangelization, from which the word of the Lord could sound forth, "not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place." (1 Thess. 1:8.)

With respect to the labors of the Apostle at Thessalonica, it has been shown to be highly probable that he continued there a considerable time, preaching to the Gentiles, beyond the three sabbath days on which he reasoned with the Jews in the synagogue; and that he was peculiarly successful. He was, however, constrained by the persecution by the zealots of the Mosaic law, and the zealots for idolatry, who had formed a most unnatural coalition against him, to leave the newly planted church under heavy trials and destitute of many advantages. For, though it seems clear that pastors had been appointed over them, yet the pastors themselves must have been new and inexperienced converts.

The Apostle was, on this account, peculiarly solicitous about them. Timothy had come to him at Athens according to his appointment, and he chose to be left alone in that city, that he might send this, his faithful coadjutor, to Thessalonica. But Timothy, returning at Corinth, brought him so good an account of them, that he was filled with joy and gratitude. He indeed exceedingly longed to visit them; but, having been repeatedly disappointed in his plans for that purpose, he at length wrote this epistle, which breathes a peculiar spirit of paternal love and affection, and shows that he considered the Christians at Thessalonica, as equal, or superior in faith and holiness to those of any church to which he wrote.

It is clear from these particulars that this epistle was written from Corinth, and not from Athens, according to the postscript given, but probably soon after he arrived at that city. This is supposed by some expositors to have been as early as A. D. 51, and by others, A. D. 54; but for reasons given before, a later date is assigned to it. It is, however, generally agreed that it was written before any other of the apostolic epistles; and some think, probably without sufficient reason, before any other part of the New Testament.

It was the leading design of the Apostle, in writing to the Thessalonians, to confirm them in the faith and to animate them to a courageous profession of the gospel, and the practice of all the duties of Christianity, notwithstanding the persecutions and trials to which they were exposed. In the pursuance of his good object he was led to mention with high approbation the manner in which they had received the gospel from him. This almost unavoidably led him to speak of his ministry and conduct among them, in a way peculiarly instructive to the ministers of the gospel in every age and place.

It is remarkable with how much address he improves all the influence which his zeal and fidelity in their service must naturally give him, to inculcate upon them the precepts of the gospel, and to persuade them to act agreeably to their sacred character. This was the grand point he always kept in view and to which everything else was made subservient. Nothing appears in any part of his writings as a design to establish his own reputation, to make use of his ascendancy over his Christian friends, to answer any secular purpose of his own. On the contrary, he held a most generous, disinterested regard for their welfare.

"The discovery of so excellent a temper, must be allowed to carry with it a strong presumptive argument in favor of the doctrines he taught. And indeed, whoever reads Paul's Epistles with attention, and enters into the spirit with which they were written, will discern such intrinsic character of their genuineness, and the divine authority of the doctrines they contain as will produce in him a stronger conviction than all the external evidence with which they are attended." Doddridge.

These remarks are well grounded and important; but to suppose with Dr. McKnight, that the Apostle intended as his main object to prove the divine authority of Christianity by a chain of regular arguments, in which he answered the several objections that the heathen philosophers are supposed to have advanced against him, seems quite foreign to the nature of the epistle, and also to be grounded on a mistaken notion that the philosophers designed at so early a period to enter into a regular disputation with the Christians, when, in fact, they derided them as enthusiasts and their doctrine as foolishness.

THE Class PICTURE in this year's Training Class HERALD will be clearer and better than ever before.

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 14, 1931

NUMBER 28

THE CROWNING DAY

PART 3

By G. Eldred Marsh

“Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.”—1 John 3:2, 3.

BEFORE that glad day shall dawn there is much for us to do. For this is the harvest time, and we are the reapers. When the Master of the harvest comes, He must find us with our arms filled with ripened grain. And we cannot succeed in such service unless we are prepared to exemplify as well as proclaim the glad tidings of the kingdom of God.

And this means consecration! It means devotion to God and to the Lord Jesus Christ. It means the dedication of our every talent, and our every ability. It means that we must “present (our) bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is (our) reasonable service.” Romans 12:1. It means that we must continue to “grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ” until He comes. 2 Peter 3:18.

Consecration requires prayer, and it requires watchfulness. With His mind upon His second coming, Jesus said, “Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is. For the Son of man is as a man taking a journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch.”—Mark 13:33-37.

He “gave to every man his work.” He did not assign the same task to all; but to each of his servants was given the duty that he was best fitted to perform. Each individual was thus required to employ his time and his ability, whatever it might be, to the best advantage during the Master’s absence.

And so it is with us! “To every man his work”. Soon the Nobleman will return to reward His servants, “according as their work shall be.” With this assurance of reward before him, it is not strange that John should declare that “every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.”—1 John 3:3.

Blessed indeed is the hope of the coming of the Lord! The casting off of mortality; the living again of those who sleep in Him; the reunion of friends long separated by death; the realization that those who attain unto that life can sin no more, suffer no more, die no more!

O, the blessedness of universal peace and world wide righteousness! The wonder of an earth filled with the “knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea”! Habakkuk 2:14.

And more blessed than all else to you and to me is the assurance that “so shall we ever be with the Lord”! 1 Thessalonians 4:17.

All of these infinite blessings are to come to us when the KING is crowned! Surely this knowledge should incite us to most earnestly watch, and labor, and pray for the coming of the King!

“Let all that look for, hasten the coming joyful day,
By earnest consecration, to walk the narrow way,
By gathering in the lost ones for whom our Lord did die,
For the crowning day is coming by and by.

“O, the crowning day is coming, is coming by and by,
When our Lord shall come in glory and power from on high!

How the glorious sight will gladden each waiting, watchful eye,
In the crowning day that’s coming by and by!”

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God."—Rom. 6:9, 10.

THE HIGH PRIEST

WE READ of no high priest in the economy of God until we read of Melchizedek in Genesis 14. There was no need of a high priest before Adam sinned, when God walked with him in the garden, when Adam was at liberty to walk with God. Only sin introduced the necessity for a representative of God.

The first high priest was both king and priest. He ruled the people as well as ministered unto them for the Father.

God asked Moses to go to the children of Egypt and speak God's words and exhortations to them. Ex. 4. Moses hesitated; he said, v. 10, "O my Lord, I am not eloquent." Therefore Aaron was sent with Moses to be the priest, Moses to be the leader, the ruler. Two were assigned to do the work that Melchizedek had done and that God exhorted Moses to undertake. Thus in a way it may be said the priesthood declined, deteriorated. It was taken from him who was king and given to one who was priest only.

In Christ Jesus the priesthood is again made stronger. Like Melchizedek, Christ is both King and Priest. He represents God before the people, then rules and guides according to God's will. He who follows Christ is undoubtedly a step closer unto the Father than was he who followed two men, Moses and Aaron.

Through Jesus "our great high priest", men of faith will be brought into oneness with God. They will indeed be His children, and He will be their God. There will be no need then of a priest to pass between God and His people. The new heavens and the new earth condition will be the condition of perfectness. All things will have been made new.

IN THE HOLY OF HOLIES

IN THE light of Hebrews 10:19-22 it would be well for all to realize Christ's method of entering into the Holy of Holies. It was not by ascending into heaven, as the writer formerly presumed and as many presume today. It was by the passing of the veil, "that is to say, his flesh". At His death the flesh was destroyed, that is, the carnal nature was destroyed. Death put an end thereto. In fact, death of the carnal is the only possible way to destroy the carnal. It must be killed out.

Christ remained dead three days. He arose. He arose triumphant over death. Rom. 6:10. He arose victorious. 1 Cor. 15:57. Death has no more dominion over Him. He is beyond the carnality, the Adamic state of the flesh that had been put to death. That was the veil. When He arose, He arose beyond it, beyond the Adamic fleshly state, beyond the veil, within the Holy of Holies.

He had not yet gone forward in the Holy of Holies to the throne seat of God. This He did later when He ascended to God's right hand. He will return from the right hand of God, but He will never return out of the Holy of Holies. He will never return into the Adamic fleshly state, into the carnal, into that state, the result of being "born of a woman". Gal. 4:4.

He will never return out of that holiest state of existence, out of fellowship with God. Others may enter in; yea, they will. They have "liberty" so to do.

It was necessary for Christ to die that He might thus rid himself of the Adamic fleshly nature. It was necessary for Him to become thus free in order that He would be at liberty to enter the Holiest. His death, then, not only accomplished atonement for man, but gave Him entrance by resurrection into immediate fellowship with His Father.

IN ALL THY WAYS

"When thou goest it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, it shall keep thee; and when thou wakest, it shall talk with thee."—Proverbs 6:22.

THESE words of Solomon refer to "thy father's commandment" and "the law of thy mother". And we know that the commandment of parents among the people of Israel was the commandment of God. How wonderfully God's law fills all our needs! Wherever we go, it will lead; when we sleep, it will protect; and when we wake, it will counsel us.

When we realize that "God is practically an unknown quantity to the present generation, and to the youth, obedience is only a means of taking the joy out of life", as a prominent pastor in one of our large eastern cities recently said, we can only conclude that somewhere, sometime, we as parents have failed in our duty to "teach them (God's words) diligently unto (our) children". Deut. 6:4-9. Our hearts are heavy within us as we observe the disregard of parents by headstrong youth. And we turn sick with horror at the revolting activities of "this jazz-mad and gin-crazed age", startlingly displayed in the headlines of the daily papers. But honesty compels us to ask, "Are the youth to blame?"

Let us who are Christian parents apply ourselves more zealously to discovering God's will in all our doings and then teach that way to our children. Let us be fully alert to the dangers confronting them, and let us give to them by the example of our own lives an anchor to which they may cling in times of stress and a faith and hope that will lead them straight and true, while life shall last.—M. G.

"BE YE ALSO READY"

By Samuel E. Haney

"Thus saith the Lord; Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord."—Jeremiah 17:5.

JUST as a prisoner seated on his cot behind iron bars is reminded by a placard over his door that, "the way of the transgressor is hard", our text, with very rare exceptions, would be equally appropriate as a placard to be exhibited in every man's domicile, from barbarian fetishism to the respective diversified religionist's status of Christendom. These are now under God's execration as the result of trusting in fallen man in whom "dwelleth no good thing", instead of trusting in the LORD from whom cometh every good gift and every perfect gift—with no variable-ness, neither shadow of turning. James 1:17.

God explains the respective results as the consequence of trusting in man and that of trusting in God thus, "This is the Eternal's word: A curse on him who relies on man, and leans upon mere human aid, turning his thoughts from the Eternal! He is like some desert scrub, that never thrives, set in a dry place in the steppes, in a salt, solitary land. But happy he who relies on the Eternal, with the Eternal for his confidence! He is like a tree planted beside a stream, reaching its roots to the water; untouched by any fear of scorching heat, its leaves are ever green, it goes on bearing fruit in days of drought, and lives serene". Jeremiah 17:5-8, Moffatt.

Listen to the Psalmist's confirmation, "Rely not upon great men—mere mortals who can give no help;—happy the man whose help is Jacob's God, whose hope lies in the Eternal One, his God". Psalm 146:3, 5, Moffatt.

How accurately Isaiah describes the unyielding propensity of a vast majority of us—unwilling to give up preconceived ideas! "O self-willed sons, says the Eternal, bent on no plans of mine, weaving a treaty that I never sanctioned, and adding sin to sin". Isaiah 30:1, Moffatt.

"And maketh flesh his arm". Another reason for God's condemnation and curse upon man, causing that state of desolation—now inceptive in all nations—to which Jesus referred in Matt. 24:21-22. "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be. And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved: but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened".

Note what Paul says about following the flesh: "For those who follow the flesh have their interest in the flesh, and those who follow the Spirit have their interest in the Spirit. . . . Make no mistake. God is not mocked—a man will reap just what he sows; he who sows for his flesh will reap destruction from the flesh, and he who sows for the Spirit will reap life eternal from the Spirit". Romans 8:5; Gal. 6:7, 8, Moffatt. And Jesus says (John 6:63), "What gives life is the Spirit: flesh is of no avail at all. The words I have uttered to you are spirit and life". Moffatt.

Here we have the facts before us. And comprehensive as they are, we see mankind throughout the world choosing death by way of the flesh: fallen nature's inclinations rather than life eternal through the Spirit, simply because man refuses to "enter by the narrow gate: for (the gate) is broad and the road is wide that leads to destruction, and many enter that way. But the road that leads to life is both narrow and close, and there are few who find it." Matthew 7:13, 14, Moffatt.

"Whose heart departeth from the Lord". This is the invariable outcome of man's trusting in man, and making flesh his arm (strength). It is equivalent to ignoring God's plan of salvation. Jesus' talk to the "great company" that followed Him (John 6:5) caused "many of His disciples to go back (into the world), and to walk no more with him". Verse 66. Their hearts had departed from Him. "Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?" —"You do not want to go, too?" Moffatt, v. 67.

Peter answered, "To whom shall we go? thou hast the
(Continued on page 439)

THE VISION SPLENDID

By Rev. William Wood

Joel 2:28; Acts 2:7

He had a vision splendid,
This youth of common clay;
He dreamed, and then set out to be Uncommon all the way—
Uncommon in his private thought,
Uncommon in his aim,
Uncommon in his daily life,
All in the Master's Name!

For years he struggled day and night
To make the vision fact,
To make it his and his alone,
Conscious of much he lacked!
And when at last he had attained,
And fame was his to own,
He bowed his head, "Dear Lord," he said,
"The praise is Thine alone.

"The vision Thine, Thou gavest it,
Time, strength, and all to be
The human agent of the task
Thyself hast wrought through me!"
And thus the vision splendid
In the yearning soul of man
Has led the race to do and dare
Since history began.

—Boston Transcript.

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

By D. G. Harvey

IN dealing with our subject at this time, we believe it advisable to first consider the state of the dead, and just what man is.

David asks: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him?" Psa. 8:4. Job also asks the question, "What is man, that thou shouldest magnify him? and that thou shouldest set thine heart upon him?" Job 7:17. Both Job and David, after considering the wonders of God's creation and the fact of man's weakness or sin, can see no reason from the human standpoint to explain the favor of God.

Let us turn to Genesis 2:7 and find how man was formed. We find that not a thing was added to the dust of the ground except the breath of life. Consider the dust first or the elements of the earth. We learn from medical science that every known element in the earth is found in the body of man—iron, gold, silver, lime, salt, etc.

If God placed any immortal part in man, He has given us nothing concerning it in the record. If Adam's sin brought eternal torment to that immortal soul, God would have warned him. God did not say, "Adam, you have an immortal soul, and if you eat of the tree, you will suffer torment in flames forever, being unable to die." But God did say, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Gen. 2:17; 3:19.

Then we have the penalty for sin. Paul teaches the same in Romans 6:23, "The wages of sin is death."

Now turn back to Genesis 2:7. We read again, "Man became a living soul." Now, dear reader, is there not a vast difference in having a dog and being a dog? Paul shows the same teaching in 1 Corinthians 15:45, "Adam was made a living soul", all of him, not just a part added.

Often at the grave of some friend we hear the minister quote these words, "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it", Eccl. 12:7, using them to prove that only the body enters the grave, while the immortal soul or spirit goes back to God.

Turning back to Genesis 2:7 we see that the only thing God put into man was the breath of life. The breath only returns to the Giver. This is in harmony with James 2:26 (note margin) if you prefer the New Testament as some do, disregarding the fact that, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God". 2 Tim. 3:16. It is all written for our learning (Rom. 15:4), and "for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are come". 1 Cor. 10:11.

God had a purpose in creating man. He made us, not we ourselves by evolution. (Psa. 100:8.) Isaiah 43:7 tells us that all who call upon His name are created for His glory. The earth was created to be inhabited. (Isa. 45:18.) How could this be true, if, according to the popular teaching, the righteous go to heaven and the wicked to a hell of torment, and the earth will be destroyed? The Bible says the earth abideth forever. (Eccl. 1:4.) In Psalm 115:16 we find "The heaven, even the heavens are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men."

Let us be careful, friends, and be satisfied with what God has provided for our good, and be not like Adam, seek that which has been denied us. Adam had everything needful on the earth, but he was denied the knowledge of good and evil. He gave up everything to obtain that knowledge, leaving sickness, pain and death, and sin to his children as a result. (Rom. 5:12.)

If we try to force ourselves into heaven, the throne of God (Isa. 66:1), we will without doubt miss the kingdom, when the Son comes to establish it on the earth. (Dan. 2:44; Micah 4:1-7.) Let us take the words of the greatest Teacher the world has ever known, Jesus Christ, for our words: "Whither I go, ye cannot come." John 8:21. "Where I am, thither ye cannot come." John 7:34. "No man hath ascended up to heaven." John 3:13.

Peter at Pentecost uses the same thought: "David is not ascended into heaven." Acts 2:34. Christ thus shows us we cannot go to heaven, and no one desires to go to hell,

(Continued on back page)

“LOVEST THOU ME?”

By Gerald Cooper

LET us go for a few minutes to a room of a building in old Judea. Here are found the Christ and His disciples, just finishing the “Last Supper”. Jesus makes the statement that they will all be offended because of Him, but Peter says: “Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I never be offended.”

Christ answered him thus: “Verily I say unto thee, that this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.” But Peter said that although he should die for Christ, yet he would not be offended because of Him.

Time passes, and we find Christ in the garden of Gethsemane, praying unto the Father that He will aid Him in His agonies. Then the soldiers come to take Him and one of the disciples, Peter, cuts off a soldier’s ear. Thus we see that, as yet, Peter had not denied Christ but had rather defended Him.

As time goes on, we see Peter following, at a long distance, the crowd that is tantalizing Jesus. He goes into a room to warm himself and to rest, and while there is spied by a maiden, who accuses him of being one of Christ’s disciples. Peter denies this, and another maid accuses him. He again emphatically denies her accusation with an oath. Then other of the people round about begin to accuse him, and he denies his Christ for the third time. Just as he finishes, the cock crows, and we find a very sorrowful man in the person of Peter, because he knows that he is guilty of denying his Lord.

One event leads to another, and we find that Christ has been crucified and has been buried. We see Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and others coming to the tomb of their dead Master, bringing spices to place upon His grave. But when they arrive there is no one there except an angel, who tells them that Jesus has departed and that they should go and tell the disciples.

As soon as he receives the news, Peter is off with a rush to see if his Lord, whom he had previously denied, is really alive. When he finds His empty grave clothing, he believes and goes in search of Him. Peter, no doubt, was anxious to see his risen Lord, but fearful of what He would say to him because of the denial.

The third time Christ shows himself to His disciples, the following conversation takes place between Him and His errant disciple, Peter: “Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs. He saith unto him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep. He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.”

Thus we find that Peter was very sorrowful and repentant when Jesus gave instructions at three different intervals, to do His work—the exact number of times that he had denied Him.

There are many, many Christians like Peter, in one sense of the word. They are prone to secretly deny Christ, but when it comes to the part of being sorrowful and repentant before God and Christ for the sin which they have committed, then it is a different story. Let us be as Peter was, not in denying Christ, but in being fully sorrowful and repentant for our sinful acts before Him.

THE Training Class HERALD comes out April 28. Have your orders in AHEAD of time. Avoid disappointment. Have your order in by April 25.

THE TRAINING CLASS HERALD

A SCRAP of paper lying in a street of far away India caught the eye of a man passing by. It happened to be a piece torn from the Church Page of THE RESTITUTION HERALD, containing that little statement of what THE HERALD advocates. The man picked it up, read it, was interested, and subscribed for THE HERALD. Because of the finding of that little scrap of paper on the other side of the world, connections were made which may possibly have an effect on eternity.

One Training Class HERALD, falling into the hands of the proper person, might interest him in the Class, and you cannot tell what the result will be—perhaps it will affect the future kingdom of Christ. The more HERALDS we print and send out, the more opportunity there will be for that to happen.

The Editorial Committee is preparing the paper. The Circulation Committee is bringing it to your attention. The National Bible Institution print shop will print it. Do your part—tell us where to send the papers after all this is done.

Give them to your friends, your neighbors, your relatives. Put one in the library. Place one in the waiting room at the station. Let the public read them.

Order a generous supply for yourself, and see to it personally that the papers are distributed.

It is your Class. Do your part. Send a nickel for each paper you order, and we will do the rest. Use the Order Blanks in last week’s HERALD. Have them in by April 25, so that we will know how many to print.

Let us all work together in harmony as the true body of Christ and its members for the furtherance of the gospel of salvation committed unto us.

Let us make the circulation of the Training Class number of THE HERALD the largest ever, showing that we are desirous of spreading God’s Word to all the world.

Cecil Smead, Circulation Committee.

The Veil of the Temple Was Rent in Twain From the Top to the Bottom

By F. L. Austin

God has used various methods at various times by which to reveal His purposes and plans to man. "At sundry times and in divers manners", reads Hebrews 1:1, God "spoke in time past unto the fathers by the prophets". The tabernacle was one means which God used to declare His teachings. Most carefully did God reveal to Moses the construction of the tabernacle. A pattern was given him of every detail. Likewise the Spirit of God revealed to David, 1 Chronicles 28:12,19, in careful detail the construction of the temple and its furnishings, which temple superseded the tabernacle, it being a permanent structure as compared with the tabernacle which was in manner a tent, or temporary dwelling.

The tabernacle, later the temple, was set in the midst of Israel for God's dwelling place in their midst. Ex. 25:8.

There were no apertures provided in the tabernacle through which light might enter. Everything was in darkness, excepting that the first room of the tabernacle, that is, the Holy Place, was lighted by a candlestick of seven bowls. The second room, or the one which was God's room of presence or abiding was lighted only by the Shekinah glory.

God sanctified Aaron to be His high priest. He only might enter the Holy of Holies. That was the room in which God manifested himself in behalf of the congregation of Israel. Aaron was God's minister to perform God's bidding in behalf of Israel.

Aaron and his assistant priests entered the Holy Place daily to perform the service of the tabernacle. But into the Holy of Holies he was permitted to enter only upon the annual day of atonement. Upon no other occasion could the high priest enter or even open these curtains. Read Exodus, chapters, 26; 27; 28; 32; 36; 37; 38; 39.

This curtain, called also veil, was made of fine twined linen of blue and purple and scarlet, into which by deft and clever fingers, directed by the Spirit of God, cherubim were wrought.

The erection of the temple by Solomon was likewise very carefully outlined to David by the Father, 1 Chronicles 28:11, 19, and was built with care and precision, as was the tabernacle. Read 2 Chronicles, chapters 3; 4; 5.

Thus Jehovah provided Israel with a dwelling place in her midst, for himself, indicating His presence from time to time therein by the great illuminating Shekinah which not only illuminated the Holy of Holies, but also was to be seen above the tabernacle, indicative that God was present at that time therein.

THE VEIL RENT

It was at the hour of the death of the crucified Master. God's chosen people had not only repeatedly rebelled against God throughout the centuries, but in this instance they had also rebelled against the Son whom He had sent and concerning whom He testified and witnessed by the marvelous power which enabled Him to perform miracles and signs and wonders. Acts 2:22. God was about to abandon them for a time to their own evil.

Passover day was on. Thousands and thousands were at this very hour slaying their respective passover lambs for the annual passover occasion. Also it was the hour for the offering of the evening sacrifice.

"Christ our passover", 1 Corinthians 5:7, "the Lamb of God" was also coming to His death at the same hour. He was on Calvary's cross outside of the city, Jerusalem. The priests of God in their full number were busy about the temple, some of them being in the Holy Place, performing the services of passover day and of the evening sacrifice.

Of a sudden, without warning, with no visible agency in action, the veil between the Holy and the most Holy was "rent in twain from the top to the bottom". Matt. 27:51. It "was rent in the midst". Luke 23:45. The work was evidently the work of God. It was a miracle. Though the priests were busy in the temple, yet it is undoubtedly a fact that earlier in the day they, too, had given voice to the crucifixion of the Lord. At this moment He was at Calvary. He had been upon the cross for six long hours. He "cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost". Mark 15:37. The earth quaked. The soldiers were affrighted. "Truly this was the Son of God."—Matt. 27:54. The veil of the temple was rent. It was truly the work of God. None ever denied this event.

THE TEACHING OF THE VEIL

With the rending of the veil the Holy of Holies was immediately desecrated, profaned. It existed no more as the abode of God. The veil had been made and hung by God's express direction. It had been rent asunder by God's own hand. There was no Holy of Holies in the midst of Israel previous to God's establishing the veil before the mercy seat. There was no Holy of Holies after the rending of the veil.

All pointed forward to a "true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man". Heb. 8:2. The veil is interpreted in Hebrews 10:19-22 as "his flesh".

Jesus had not yet come into the Holy of Holies, into the immediate presence of God. With His death of the flesh, of the carnal nature He was in readiness to enter. The veil, the curtain, the separation which kept Him from His Father was "his flesh". Immediately death took hold of Him and He, having finished His atonement sacrifice was in readiness to appear in the presence of God, that instant the veil of the old tabernacle was rent. It was needed no longer. The true tabernacle now took its place. The old was "ready to vanish away". Heb. 8:13.

LIBERTY

Under the old covenant none but the high priest might enter the Holiest place. Under the new, "the true tabernacle", the brethren of Christ have "liberty" (margin), Hebrews 10:19, to enter "by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way".

The death of our Savior meant far more to mankind than atonement alone. It meant all that; but it meant also the stepping from the old tabernacle to the true tabernacle, the displacing of the old veil and the entrance through the real veil into the "true tabernacle". It meant the opening of a way for Christ's brethren that they, too, with boldness and liberty procured by Christ's sacrifice, might enter with Him into the abode of God, they, too, passing through the veil of the flesh by death and entering the new life by resurrection.

Glorious anticipation, wonderful provision!

"BE YE ALSO READY"

(Continued from page 435)

words of eternal life". Verse 68. This depicts the present unconscious dire predicament of the man whose heart has departed from the Lord. His only chance of escaping eternal death is to heartily subscribe to Peter's solution, namely, "To whom shall we go? thou (only) hast the words of eternal life".

Never in the history of the race has there been so much influence (mostly satanic) brought to bear to attract professing Christians from the Way of eternal life, thus hastening them to eternal death. God says in Ezekiel 18:23, 24, "Have I any desire for the death of the wicked? says the Lord the Eternal. If he gives up his evil life, shall he not live? Again, when a good man gives up being good and practices iniquity, doing every abominable thing that a wicked man does, none of his good deeds shall be remembered; for the treason he has committed and for the sin of which he is guilty he shall die". Moffatt.

It is impossible to follow the ways of the world, these days, and avoid the penalty of sin, death, as it is to follow both Jesus Christ and the customs of the world. Jesus, Peter, and Paul do not say, "Get ready," but they do say, "Be ready". Matt. 24:44; 25:10; Luke 22:33; 2 Tim. 4:6. And it is a mighty difficult proposition to get ready while under the influence of the spirit of this world.

Billions of dollars are wasted by erroneously striving to worship and obey God through human dictation, instead of going directly to the ever living God, through His Word. Read again Isaiah 1:18; Matthew 7:7, 8; James 1:5-8.

PAUL'S FIRST LETTER TO THE THESSALONIANS

THESSALONICA, now called Salonica, is under the dominion of the Turks. The religion is generally Mohammedan. The present appearance of the city is described by Leake, Holland, and other travelers as very imposing. It rises in form of a crescent up the declivity, and is surrounded by lofty whitened walls, with towers at intervals. The port is still convenient for large ships, and the anchorage in front of the town is good.

It is remarkable, that the Apostle, in writing this first epistle, found very much to commend, which he does unreservedly, though he saw it needful to intermix cautions and warnings with his exhortations. The exact coincidence of this epistle, with the history contained in the Acts of the Apostles, which it tends to explain and confirm, is worthy of notice. It appears that afterward Paul visited Thessalonica; but nothing further in Scripture is found concerning this flourishing church, except the second epistle which the Apostle wrote to it.

Thessalonica was first visited by Paul and Silas in A. D. 51, and here in the synagogue of the Jews for three sabbaths they preached Jesus as the promised Messiah. (Acts 17:2, 3.) Failing in controversy, the Jews resorted to violence to set the city in an uproar, assailed the house where Paul was lodging, and so compelled him to leave, but not before he had gained two of his most attached friends, Jason (Rom. 16:21), and Aristarchus (Col. 4:10). On turning to the Gentiles he met with more success, for the Gentile element predominated in the Thessalonian church.

While the Apostle was at Corinth, A. D. 52, Silas and Timothy returned from Macedonia and informed him of the continued faith and love of the Thessalonians and their fond remembrance of him. (1 Thess. 3:6.) But they had adopted certain mistaken notions which needed correction. Since the Apostle's visit several of their friends and relatives had died, and it was feared that they would lose the happiness of witnessing the Lord's second coming, which they believed to be close at hand. Consequently many had abandoned their lawful callings, and thinking it unnecessary to work, claimed the support of the richer members of the church, and showed a decided lack of order and self-control, all of which called for correction and reproof.

The Epistle falls into two divisions. In the first, the Apostle expresses his gratitude for their eager acceptance of the gospel (1:1-10); encourages them under trial by his own example (2:1-12); thanks God for their constancy (2:13-16); sends several messages, and prays for their continuance in the faith (3:1-13). In the second, he exhorts them to purity and diligence in their several callings (4:1-12); comforts those bereaved by unfolding the triumphs of the resurrection and the changing of this mortal body to a glorified body (4:13 to 5:11); gives some final cautions on the respect due to those who labor among them, and on the necessity of watchfulness and prayer and following the leading of the Spirit. (5:12-28.)—By Lyman Booth.

YOUR CHURCH

If you want to have the kind of a church,
The kind of a church you like,
You need not pack your clothes in a grip
And go for a long, long hike.

You will find elsewhere what you left behind,
For there's nothing really new:
It's a knock at yourself, when you knock your church;
It isn't your church; it's you.

Real churches are not made by knockers afraid
Lest somebody else gets ahead,
When all will work, and nobody shirk,
You can raise a church from the dead.

While others are toiling from day to day,
And you knock at all they do,
It is not any fault in your church at all;
It isn't your church; it's you.

—Selected.

“LOVE WORKETH NO ILL”

By M. A. Woodward

O THAT we as God's children would always remember these words of Paul in his exhortation to his Roman brethren! How we need to study and apply these words to our lives. If we love the brethren as the Christ desires us to, we will study with Christian thoughtfulness our words, and pause before uttering the cruel things that wound and often make the accused ones so angry that they want to retaliate with words more bitter than we have used, causing more sorrow after the anger is past.

How well for us if we can apply the rule of John, the Beloved, found in 1 John 3:18: “My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.”

I have just finished reading Sister Ada Simpson's splendid article in the Berean column of THE HERALD of March 12. It is so good and apt, just now. There are not many days which pass, but, as Ada says, we all need to check up on our lives and learn how much we are contributing to strife and the works of the flesh.

Surely, these harshly spoken thoughts are sin, and as long as sin remains in our lives, we are in great danger of losing the reward we are so anxious to receive. It matters very little the loud profession we make, or how many chapters we read in our Bible daily, if we do not practice its precepts. We need to stop the angry word and cease hating our fellow travelers, if we expect to be saved when the dear Christ calls for us. For we must remember there are always conditions for us to observe, if salvation is waiting for us. O, Beloveds, do not bolster yourselves up with the thought that all will be saved, because God's goodness is unbounded. Yes, it is, but there are always conditions for us to meet.

“And if a man strive for masteries, yet he is not crowned, except he strive lawfully. The Lord knoweth them that are his.” 2 Tim. 2:5, 19. We are not His, unless we strive to overcome the evil, angry word that is ready to find utterance at every little provocation. O, that we could always remember that there is One who can keep us from falling, who is able to present us faultless before His presence with exceeding joy! So, God, help us to be Thy true disciples.

Three times I have read the article on Gethsemane, for it is so full of tender love and pity. And while I read, I cannot keep the tears back, as I realize that the dear Christ suffered all this pain, heartache, treachery, and awful death for me and others, as sorely in need of eternal life as myself. I wish I could take the hands of the writers and thank them for their splendid articles.

In “Scanning the Weather Sky,” Bro. Austin surely brings out startling facts. How they thrill us with desire to live nearer the God who loves sinners and is ready to save them and give them the joy of looking forward to His soon coming Son. What joy unspeakable to be among the gathered ones!

The dear Father must be so glad today and every day, to see the young coming to Him for help and strength to carry on His necessary work, speaking for Christ, writing for THE HERALD, helping in so many ways. How the weary pastor's heart is cheered to see the interest of the young and older seekers after truth at the weekly prayer service. The interest is increasing at Oregon until we now have to open the auditorium to accommodate all who are coming. Praise the Lord for it! He is doing wonderful things for us. To Him be all the glory. Let the good work go on.

With love much can be done. May we ask God to help us to shun sin and build righteousness. Surely, as Brother Lapp has so well written, we are our brother's keeper. As others who are always watching see the works of love and righteousness, it will help to keep them from falling.

Do not forget, Beloveds, to continue in earnest prayer for our young soldiers of Christ, who, as they go out, may meet opposition and be scoffed at. May they remember what is written of the dear Christ, “Who when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered he threatened not; but committed himself to him who judgeth righteously.” So may we all meet the world with patient prayer that others may see and know the Master themselves and be saved, when He comes to gather the redeemed.

How would you feel if the Training Class HERALD you paid for caused one new minister to be added to our ranks? You may do it. Niagara is powerful because each little drop of water does its part. The Training Class HERALD will be powerful if MANY copies are sent out, EACH to do its part.

THE OUTWARD AND THE INNER MAN

By Lyman Booth

BY WAY of illustration suppose we take a piece of steel to represent the outward man. Upon examination we find it is an inert, dead piece of material. It cannot move of itself, neither can it draw anything toward itself. But when we magnetize it, we give it the power to draw or attract other material substances to it. Now what have we? The steel, to outward appearances, is just the same. It has not changed in weight or form. We have simply added to it a force or property which it did not possess. That force, or property or power enables it to attract certain other substances to itself. In reality the steel does not attract or draw other substances. It is the added power. We now call it a magnet, because of the addition of this peculiar property.

The power of the magnet depends entirely upon the amount of magnetic energy that has been transmitted to it. If slightly magnetized, its power is weak, but it may be made stronger or renewed from time to time. But if it is neglected and allowed to rust, in time, it will lose its energy. The steel is in or under the influence of the mysterious force, which is in the steel, and which permeates every particle of it.

When Paul was persecuting Christ, he was like the steel, void of the attractive force that leads people to Christ. He was "dead in trespasses and sin". But when he was converted, he was a changed man. He was not changed in size or form, but he was given a power or force which drew people to Christ.

Before his conversion his mind was almost wholly given to the persecution of Christ's followers. After conversion his mind was wholly engaged in those things pertaining to the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ—the things that draw people to Christ. His mind was controlled by a different power or force. That power came from an outward source to him, the same as the magnetism to the steel.

Now the question arises, from whence did he receive it? Was it through the operation of the Spirit, or by some other means? Evidently from the reading of Ephesians 3:3-5, he must have received it from or by revelation through the Spirit.

"How that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery; (as I wrote afore in few words) . . . which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit."

In John 6:63 Christ said, "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." It is the indwelling of the Spirit which is the attractive force or agency that draws others who come within its reach. By the possession of this Spirit we are appropriated to Christ, and visibly distinguished from the world. For though the mystery, the secret and pure influence of the Spirit may be known only to the person who feels its influence, yet his actions, his manifest motives declare the possession of the Spirit by his conversation and daily acts.

Such a one may be considered to be led by the Spirit. This includes an even, constant, unbroken force (like a magnet) acting gently and steadily on the mind. It is not spasmodic, does not come and go, but may be renewed or increased from day to day. They who are led and are ever willing to be led by this Spirit are called by the most endearing and noblest of titles, and share in the most exalted of all honors. They are the sons of God. There is no higher privilege granted to men on earth than that of being guided by the Spirit of God, and no distinction so sublime as being in truth His children.

A part of 2 Corinthians 4:16 seems plain to the minds of most people. By the "outward man" Paul evidently referred to his body. The inner, by most people, is supposed to be the soul. But the writer does not even intimate anything of the kind. It would be very inconsistent to say that an immortal soul could be "renewed day by day", for that which is immortal cannot be changed either by adding to or diminishing. I find that the word, "man", occurs but once in that verse in the original manuscript. Yet there is a mystery in Paul's language.

I do not believe it refers to an inward entity other than that to which Paul refers in Colossians 1:27 where he said, "which is Christ in you the hope of glory." It is easy to see that the "hope of glory" can be "renewed day by day". The ancients could boast of mysteries, but Paul could boast of a nobler one, for he dealt only with the glorious mystery of God, which was not a gloomy or spooky secret, but a brightly revealed truth, namely, "Christ in you the hope of glory."

If Christ be in you, a part of your original nature with which you were born must be crucified. The new man and the old cannot occupy the same citadel at the same time in peace. Hence he speaks of a great change in us, one not to be wrought in a moment, nor yet without our realizing it, like the various processes of bodily growth and nourishment which work unceasingly within us, until the whole nature be transformed and made like Christ's. The change will not cease till it shall be accomplished in all who love Him.

ONE cannot hope to live up to new resolutions if one clings to all the old handicaps. It seems, indeed, as though getting rid of these hindrances were half the battle. Resolutely wipe out all the old animosities and prejudices, all the old meanness and pettiness, all the old worries and fears, and find how much easier it will be to carry out all those fine, new projects of the spirit—how impossible, indeed, it is to do so without. Start out with a clean slate.

—Selected.

THE RETURN OF CHRIST

By Roland Wright

"Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

TOO OFTEN the second coming of Christ is looked upon simply as a doctrine to be believed. It is, however, more than a doctrine; it is an impending event which is to take place on earth. It is the most wonderful event for the world since Christ died for the sins of men.

His second coming, like His first coming, has been the subject of divine prophecy from the beginning of time. The Apostle Peter expresses the fact that God shall send Christ to earth, in Acts 3:20, 21, thus: "He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."

The promise of His coming is also found in Jude 14, 15. "Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all". The message of His coming is to be heralded to the ends of the earth; for it is "good tidings of great joy" to every one who will receive it.

Christ, on that last night with His disciples before the crucifixion, said: "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." John 14:1-3.

Christ's second coming is to be visible to all the world. There will be nothing secret about it. Revelation 1:7 says, "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him." The heavens will open, the earth tremble, the trump of God resound, and such glory as mortal eye has never seen will burst upon the world when He comes as King of kings and Lord of lords.

Christ's second coming is the climax of the plan of salvation. Not till then are the children of God ushered into the eternal kingdom; not till then the crowns of life bestowed.

"This we say unto you by the word of the Lord", we read in 1 Thessalonians 4:15-18, "that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

The righteous dead are raised to life as the trump of God sounds, and the voice of the archangel calls to His sleeping saints, and the living who are righteous are transformed or changed from mortality to immortality.

May we be among those that look for Him, so that His return will find us worthy of the gifts He will bestow.

"IF A MAN die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thy hands."

THE SECOND DEATH

By Gertrude M. Logan

SINCE Adam did not have immortality, but was created subject to vanity or corruption, Rom. 8:20, 21, God, knowing the end from the beginning, designed a plan, by which man would be qualified to receive that priceless gift.

The Redeemer was the central figure in this plan, as we are told that God loved Him before the world began. John 17:24. He is lifting man out of this condition of vanity, gradually, as the plan unfolds. Jehovah's method was to place him under law with a penalty of death for disobedience. God allowed him to choose, leaving him free to do as he pleased, and will continue to do so, until he sees that God's ways are best.

If the punishment were on the disobedient act of Adam instead of upon Adam himself, do you think Adam would care? I think not. The same thing is going on now, and we are very deeply concerned if we think we are going to lose our (sins)? Ah, no, our lives, as the inspired Word tells us.

Since God used words to convey His will to man, He surely chose the ones that would be plain enough to permit us to get His meaning. How death can ever be construed to mean life is too deep for me. True, God does speak of death to our sins, but He makes it plain that it is not the corruption or death of the flesh that is meant. Shall we find fault with this plan? Romans 9:20 gives us the answer: "Nay but, O man, who art thou that repliest against God? Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?"

They who refuse to submit to this plan, after Christ and His saints begin their rule in righteousness, are surely not worthy of life. Hebrews 10:26 says, "For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins".

Malachi 4:1-4 must refer to the coming judgment on the wicked. There is not a hint that their acts or sins alone will be destroyed, nor that they will ever come out of the stubble and dust condition. They are the ones that sinned the sin unto death for which there is no forgiveness in this world (age), neither in the world to come. Matt. 12:32. What are you going to do with this class? God is just, merciful, and perfect. Therefore we do not need to fear that He is doing wrong.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"THOUGH HE WERE A SON, YET LEARNED HE OBEDIENCE BY THE THINGS WHICH HE SUFFERED; AND BEING MADE PERFECT, HE BECAME THE AUTHOR OF ETERNAL SALVATION UNTO ALL THEM THAT OBEY HIM".—HEBREWS 5:8, 9.

JOSEPH II

JOSEPH was the son of Rachel and the favorite son of his father, Jacob. His father's love for him caused him to receive a coat of many colors. This made his brothers very jealous of him.

His brethren were out caring for their father's flocks, and one day Jacob decided to send Joseph out to see how they were. When they saw him coming, they at once began to plan how they might kill him. Reuben didn't really want to kill him, so he said, "Let us cast him into this pit." By doing this Reuben thought he would be able to send Joseph home unharmed. While Reuben was taking his turn watching the sheep, the other brothers sold him to the Ishmaelites for twenty pieces of silver. These men later sold him to Potiphar, and he was taken into Egypt.

His brothers killed a goat and dipped Joseph's coat in the blood. Then they took the coat to Jacob and asked him whether it was Joseph's coat. Jacob knew it was Joseph's coat and thought surely some beast had killed him. So he mourned for his son and would not be comforted.

The Lord was with Joseph and caused him to prosper. His master saw this and appointed him overseer over his house. One day Joseph was accused of a wrong that he had not done, for which he was cast into prison. Before long the keeper of the prison gave him charge over the prisoners. Two of the prisoners had dreams which troubled them, and which Joseph interpreted. To one he spoke words of comfort, but to the other he gave a message which brought sadness. He asked the one to whom he had spoken comforting words to remember him to the king.

Pharaoh had a dream also. He called in the magicians, but they could not interpret the dream. Then one of his servants remembered a dream which he had had, and how Joseph had interpreted it. So he went to the king and told him about Joseph. The king sent for him and inquired whether or not he could interpret his dream. Joseph answered that it was not possible for him alone, but that God would answer it for him. He then told Pharaoh of the seven years of plenty followed by the seven years of famine which would come upon the earth, and that they should store up food while there was plenty so that they would be ready for the years of famine. The king readily followed his advice and food was stored away.

Soon after the years of famine began, Joseph's brethren came over to buy food. Joseph knew them and sold them corn, but he did not reveal himself to them. Again they came to buy food, and Joseph finally told them who he was. He inquired about their father, and they told him he was still alive. So Joseph sent them to bring him. Jacob was so happy to know that Joseph was alive that he, too, traveled down into the land of Egypt, there to see his favorite son and spend the remainder of his life in peace and happiness.

Darlene Scott, Grand Rapids, Mich., Age 13.

HAMMOND, LOUISIANA

THE Hammond Berean class has had an average attendance of twelve during the month of March. Several visitors seem very interested, and we think that we will be able to report some new members next month.

Anna Mae Bottolf, Sec.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 15; Ohio, 11; California, 5; Michigan, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

"REAL NEWS. People talk about news nowadays. The Bible is the only news book in the world. The newspaper tells us what has taken place, but the Book tells us what will take place. And for people to be shutting it up, and saying we can be guided without it, is just as reasonable as to shut out the sun by closing the windows because we have the electric light. There is as much reason to say that the sun is worn out as to say that we have got beyond the Bible."—D. L. Moody.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

HOW TO PRAY

JESUS taught that men ought always to pray and not to faint. If they ask in faith, ask God in prayer to help them, and believe He will help them, why should they faint? The question is asked, "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?"

One should live a life of prayer. The following story was told to teach that we must pray continually.

In a city there was a judge, who feared neither God, nor man. A widow in the same city came to the judge, saying, "Avenge me of mine adversary." The judge was not interested in so humble a client. Perhaps he thought she had little money or little influence, so why bother about her? He refused to listen to her for a while, but she came so often that he finally decided to take up her case. He said he was afraid he would become tired of her coming so often, therefore he might as well get rid of her.

That was not a very worthy reason for the judge to help the widow, and God would not listen to us for the same reason. We may come to God as often as the widow came to the judge, but God will not weary. He will help us speedily if our cause is just, or our request for our own good.

God will listen and answer the prayers of "his own elect who cry day and night unto him."

In living the prayerful life we should ask God to guide each thing we do, and then thank Him for that help. It is not necessary for every one to know you are praying, for God hears and knows, and that is enough.

Jesus told another parable to show the right way to pray.

Two men went up to the temple to pray. One was a Pharisee, proud of his perfect life. The other was a publican, one of the despised class of "tax gatherers".

The Pharisee stood and said, "God, I thank thee that I am not as other men are . . . , even as this publican. I fast twice a week, I give tithes of all I possess."

Now, was he not a good man? He did not need to fast so often, and he wanted God to know just how good and wonderful a man he was. He wanted God to appreciate all his splendid efforts! But did not God know the kind of person he really was?

Now, observe the publican. He stood afar off, and would not even lift his eyes to heaven. He smote his breast in his earnestness. He did not brag about himself, but humbly begged, "God be merciful to me a sinner."

Which man do you think really loved God most and was given greater reward? Jesus said, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted".

ARE WE praying in the right way, and asking for the right things?

WE BELIEVE:

In peace and holiness of life.

"Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." Hebrews 12:14.

A CHILD'S PRAYER IN SPRINGTIME

"Thou visitest the earth, and waterest it: thou makest it soft with showers: thou blessest the springing thereof."—Psalms 65:9, 10.

DEAR GOD, who carest for the seeds and the flowers, the birds and the trees and the beasts of the field, I love to remember that Thou hast made me too, and carest for me. As Thou art lifting the spring blossoms on their tiny stems and watching over the nests of the sweet singers among the branches, so Thou art helping Thy children to grow more sweet and thoughtful every hour. May I today bring gladness to all who see me and may my voice be as cheery as a bird's. So may I be working with Thee to make this world of ours more like a bright green garden in springtime, where everything is lovely and everybody is happy. Amen.

—Rev. R. W. Barstow.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Write the "Lord's Prayer" from memory.
2. Write a morning prayer and an evening prayer.
3. Write a prayer to be said at table.
4. Read the prayers of Peter and Paul—Matthew 14:23-33 and Ephesians 3:14-21.

WE BELIEVE in repentance and conversion:

"Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."—Matthew 18:3.

How does the first verse of Isaiah 35 start?

JOY TO THE WORLD

"When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory."—Psalm 102:6.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 4. — April 26, 1931

HOW TO PRAY

Luke 18

Devotional Reading: Psalm 61

GOLDEN TEXT

Lord, teach us to pray.—Luke 11:1.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. What Is True Prayer?

Basic Truth. "Hallowed be thy name."—Matt. 6: 9.

Outline. I. True Prayer. II. Why Pray? III. "Lord, Teach Us to Pray."

I. True Prayer. When the Savior taught His disciples, Matt. 6:9, as to prayer, He introduced His teaching with two fundamental truths: "Our Father which art" and, "Hallowed be thy name".

True prayer must recognize the existence of God, in all of His majesty. Prayer is not a formality of man. It is based upon the fact that God "is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." It is based upon the further fact that man is helpless without God. Prayer is a definite, specific request of the God of power and grace by the humble and helpless one.

"Hallowed be thy name". This statement when carefully analyzed and when intelligently spoken declares one's reverence in all things for the Father. It exalts God's name, and power, and will, as rightly having first place. And it subjects the will and the desire of the speaker, in everything, to God.

True prayer can have no foundation opposing this. Accordingly, it is wholly impossible for the self-righteous man to offer true prayer. Only he who humbles himself, who extols his Father, who sees in God that which is utterly impossible in himself, can approach God in true prayer.

True prayer is the outgrowth of man's recognition of his own weakness, of his own needs in order to his best good, of God's willingness and power to satisfy those needs for man's uplift.

II. Why Pray? After reading the text, Matt. 6:8, "Your Father knoweth what things you have need of, before ye ask him", many ask the question, "Why pray?" Just as faith in God turns one toward God, so prayer unto God brings one into closeness and oneness with Him. He who prays often with an ever increasing understanding of reverence toward God communes with Him in ever greater closeness and enters with ever more rapport into the Father's presence. Prayer builds the individual. It builds him unto greater and more complete recognition of God in all things. It brings him to consider every matter of life, under the vision and scrutiny of the Father.

Prayer should be for the things one needs. The Book of God is replete with instances of God's distribution of His blessings upon particular ones. Israel was freed from the blighting plagues which cursed Egypt. Marah's bitter waters were sweetened to quench Israel's thirst. Daniel's prayer brought Gabriel's instructions to him. The Savior prayed before the tomb of Lazarus. The faithful unto God and Christ will be spared the anathemas of those who in the soon coming day receive the mark of the beast.

Prayer changes things.

Jesus instructed His disciples to pray always. "Seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

For guidance, for strength, for wisdom, for spiritual discernment, for protection, for relief in times of distress, for health, for faith—for all things—one should pray.

III. Lord, Teach Us to Pray. Prayer is more than a series of words, more than a series of thought. One prays with words which are in conformity with one's own actions of life. "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts."—James 4:3. Prayer for gratification of carnal lusts is in opposition to God's teachings.

The righteous prayer is that one which is the outpouring of a consecrated, devoted life to the Father and to His Son; it is a prayer that seeks God's assistance in rising in life's climax toward the Father himself.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The vital problem is not how to pray, but how to get people to pray. The average professing Christian is getting away from prayer. Get people to pray, and the questions—how to pray and what to pray for—will be solved through natural development of the prayer life of the individual. Prayer should be taught the child as soon as the child is able to talk. Then let the next step be to practice your teachings and set the child a good example by praying yourself.

The church is losing much by not exercising her prayer life, likewise, the individual. One noted churchman has said, "I can judge your church by your prayer meetings." If your church were judged by its prayer meetings, what kind of a showing would it make? Modernism has swept away the old-fashioned prayer meeting. Discuss the effect of prayer meetings on the church; the individual. Do you think a regular place and a regular hour of prayer is necessary? Acts 3:21.

Prayer

- meetings are more necessary today than they were fifty years ago;
- is for man's benefit rather than God's;
- never hurt anyone;
- is good medicine for any disease;
- is enduring and never wears out by usage.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Lord, teach us to pray."—Luke 11:1.

When the Christian reaches that stage in life when he wishes to be taught to pray, he is getting quite close to his Maker. Every word in this text is full of meaning. First, it was Jesus, the Savior, Lord and Master, the only begotten Son of God, who was addressed. Then it was "teach". The Great Teacher was capable of doing that, and He was always willing. Who was He to teach? Each and every Christian should make this prayer his own, if he would receive the full benefit derived thereby. Yes, Jesus, teach ME, Thy Father's child, teach me to PRAY.

Once the Christian has truly learned to pray, his prayers will be heard and answered, as he will ask according to the Father's will, and not ask amiss. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." James 5:16.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto his holy name, O most High: to shew forth thy lovingkindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night." Psa. 92:1. "At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments." Psa. 119:62. These are David's words, and Christ says, "Men ought always to pray". V. I. James says, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Let us quote McLaughlan on the words of our text: "This teaches a great lesson. It implies that strength is acquired through prayer, and that a prayerless condition is a fainting condition. Take this truth home to your hearts, and see whether you have not been starving yourselves, and hence are feeble and fainthearted. . . . The days of our sojourn here are often full of deep trials and disappointments, but if our hearts are right with God they should not, and must not be praiseless, and thankless. . . . Think of how many things you have to be thankful for every day. They are more in number than you can reckon."—F. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: How to Pray.

One of the things the Bible tells us to do is to pray. We talk to our own fathers and mothers about all things. We must do the same with our heavenly Father. When we talk to Him, it is called prayer.

Jesus taught us two main things about prayer. The first was how to pray and second, what to pray for. He even gave us a model prayer. We all know that. Repeat the Lord's Prayer for your lesson today.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

FROM HERE AND THERE

Sr. Ida Vogel, who has been painfully ill with sinus trouble, and submitted to an operation for the same, is now recovering nicely.

Orien Raymond, the little son of Bro. and Sr. Arnold Sealine, Stanhope, Iowa, arrived on April first, in the hospital at Webster City. All are doing well.

On March 2, little Mary Esther came to grace the home of Bro. and Sr. G. B. Sprinkle of Cheyenne, Wyoming. She is the first little daughter, the two older being boys, and her coming brought much gladness to this home.

Brethren in the vicinity of Lanark, Illinois, were shocked and saddened to learn of the tragic death of Mrs. Stephen Mitchell and her three daughters, Alta, Ruby and Doris, on Saturday, April 11. They were on their way to Chadwick and were struck by a train, all of the occupants of the car being killed instantly. Sr. Mitchell and her daughters were among the few faithful ones left at the Plum River church and they will be greatly missed. Bro. Siple of Grand Rapids was called to conduct the funeral services, which were held April 14. The sympathy and prayers of all are with the husband and father, and the son and only remaining daughter, Sr. Fern.

No change for the better is noticed in the condition of Sr. Curdella Gray of Lanark, Illinois. She is growing weaker daily. Do not forget those who are caring for her in your daily prayers. Mrs. Stephen Mitchell was sister-in-law to Sr. Gray, and her condition makes the sorrow greater to Sisters Glotfelty and Wertz and Sr. Gray's children.

Bro. Austin was called to Blair, Nebraska, to officiate at the funeral of Bro. C. O. Krogh, which was held on Sunday, April 12. Sr. Lucille LeCrone and Bro. Harvey Krogh of the Training Class accompanied him. In Bro. Austin's absence, Brothers Cecil Smead and John Denchfield took charge of services at Oregon.

TEXAS ANNUAL CONFERENCE

On Sunday, March 29, Bro. Moses, president of the Texas Conference, met with members in Riviera to make plans for the next conference, which will be held there, July 10 to 19, inclusive.

We want all members to make an effort to come and be with us on that date.

Opal Robbins.

INDIANA REPORT FOR MARCH

Sermons: Brush Creek, Ohio, 2; Blush, Missouri, 5; Kokomo, Indiana, 15; Hillisburg, 2. Funerals, 1. Baptisms, 9.

Money received in Indiana: Hillisburg, $9.00; Rensselaer, $30.00; Plymouth, $9.00; Burr Oak, $10.00; North Salem, $6.00; Conference Board, $21.50.

Expense, $10.50.

We wish to thank the Rensselaer, Burr Oak, Plymouth and North Salem churches for help in the meeting at Kokomo. This meeting was a success, nine being baptized. On April 28, the Lord willing, we shall begin a special meeting in South Bend to run over the first Sunday in May.

J. H. Anderson.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Roll Brewer,	Troy, Ohio.
Bro. Lloyd Eklund,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. Curdella Gray	Lanark, Ill.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Bro. Albert Singer,	Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.
J. H. Leavitt	Wewahitchka, Fla.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio

A card from Bro. Patrick, dated April 5, states that he expected to leave the sanatorium about April 12. The treatments which were given him seem to have been successful. Let us not forget Bro. Patrick in our daily prayers.

OUR EASTER OFFERINGS

Previously reported	283.00
Mrs. Hilding Anderson	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle	5.67
Mrs. C. Seely	3.00
Rockford, Illinois, Church	5.60
A Friend	5.00
Verna Himmelright	25.00
Ida F. Orem	14.35
Mrs. Jennie Baker	1.00
Mrs. Della Keefe	2.00
A Sister	1.00
Total	$350.62

The Easter Offering this year shows a fine spirit of loyalty to the Master, and our hearts are made glad by such consecration. The Father's blessing will certainly follow those who devote themselves to Him in various ways.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Verna Himmelright; J. T. Auld; Mrs. John Eckroy; Mrs. Della Keefe; Miss Belle McCandles; Sarah Manuwal; I. M. Abbott; Emma Niesley; D. A. Renner; Carl Bunch; Eugene Howard; Ruchie Alexander; Chas. W. Howe; Mrs. G. E. Stauffer; Mrs. Jesse Cross; Mrs. A. J. Chaplin; Mrs. Ida Marsh; Mrs. Ida Murray; Rufus A. Curtis; Mrs. Wm. Lansbery; Mrs. F. A. DeCamp; M. W. Lyon; F. Carpenter; Mrs. Paul Magnus; George L. Huffmon; Mrs. Chas. Jewell; Mrs. John Eneberg; Mrs. J. T. Whitley; M. A. Woodward; Mrs. Carrie Hilsabeck; Mrs. John Seegar.

EASTER BAPTISMS AT CLEVELAND

Joy reigned at Cleveland on Easter Sunday for several reasons, but chiefly for the reason that the ice has been broken at last, and after two years and a half since our dedication, we have had our first baptisms from the neighborhood, and outside of our church families.

Three candidates were immersed at the morning service into the likeness of their Lord's death, these three being Mrs. Grace Hall, 13601 Argus Ave.; Mr. Joseph Elshaw, 13807 Deise Ave.; and Mr. John O. Conrad, 8914 Meridian Ave. All of these are parents with growing families, and they will make active workers in the church. Bro. Conrad for some time has been the treasurer of our Berean society, one of the tenors in the choir, and the custodian of the church. These were all received into the church at the close of the morning service.

There are three others who have signified their intention of baptism in the near future, so that these three are only the firstfruits of what we hope will be an ever increasing harvest of lives dedicated to the Master.

The immersions were witnessed by what is believed to be the largest congregation ever assembled in the church, for it was not far from being filled. We feel that there was an influence left that will be lasting upon many.

The Sunday School was also a great success, with a new high record for attendance of 182. All were happy and enthusiastic. As a special feature, Mr. Field, our cornetist, played a solo, "The Holy City", accompanied by the Sunday School orchestra.

The Sunday evening service was also well attended. The large audiences were probably encouraged by the ideal weather, which was in direct contrast to what we had been having up to one day before.

From every standpoint, we feel that this Easter was the most successful and encouraging day we have had since our dedication. We feel that the Lord is blessing our work, and all are enthused with the prospects for the future.

M. W. Lyon, Pastor.

DOINGS AT DIXON

Easter services at the Dixon, Illinois, church were very encouraging in every way. A half hour was given to the junior choir, with Easter music which was very well done and enjoyed by all. Preaching service in the morning was well attended. Those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Leech of Joliet, Miss Tilton and Mr. Tilton of Rochelle, and Mrs. Sanford of Chicago. The evening services were well attended also, special Easter music being given by the senior choir. Our Sunday School enjoyed a good attendance, sixty-one being present.

On Monday evening, April 6, the members of the church met in the basement of the church with a picnic supper, afterward going to the auditorium for the annual election of church officers. The following were elected: elders, Brothers Eckert and Roberts; trustee, Bro. Ford; deacons, Brothers Fred Drew, Duvall, Dauntler, and Ford; deaconesses, Sisters Ada Drew and Eckert; organists, Sisters Elizabeth Ford and Ada Drew.

Grace Drew, Sec.

EASTER AT LOS ANGELES

The largest attendance for months was present on Easter Sunday. All seats were filled and a number were outside. The Sunday School gave a very appropriate and interesting program. One profitable feature of the program was a number of recitations of Scripture, bearing on the Resurrection, by members of the children's class.

Sr. Martha Hammond gave a favorable report on the working of the Honor Roll which had been adopted February first.

Bro. Marsh and Sr. Saylor gave interesting talks concerning the introduction of the Cradle Roll, of which Sr. Saylor is chairman. The names of eight little ones have been enrolled. Easter baskets were presented to the members of the children's class.

We rejoiced to have a goodly number of out of town brethren with us at this service, namely, Bro. and Sr. N. B. Titehenal of Wematchee, Washington; Sr. Jessie Wilson of Chicago; Sr. Levona Thompson and her son and daughter, Bro. Wayne and Sr. Georgia Thompson of Tulare; Bro. and Sr. Norman McLeod and family and their niece, Charlotte Rahn of Imperial Valley; Bro. and Sr. Howard Moore and little ones of Red Bluff.

Sr. Elizabeth Morton of Indiana has been sojourning in Southern California and recently visited some of the brethren in Los Angeles and attended preaching and Bible class services, also our Ladies Aid meetings. We appreciate her help and kindly Christian spirit very much. We trust she will be with us again next year.

Bro. D. B. Jackson attended services on Easter Sunday, which was the first time since Mrs. Jackson's serious illness. She is slightly improved since last report. Bro. and Sr. Orchard were also able to be present. We were happy to have Bro. Walter Gray with us again after an absence of several weeks.

The young people's Berean class which is meeting at 6:30 Sunday evenings at the church had an attendance of twenty-four, besides visitors. Bro. E. E. Rogers conducted an interesting lesson.

On the first Sundays the meeting which was formerly held at 2:30 p.m. has been changed to 7:30, following the Berean meeting.

REJOICING AT GRAND RAPIDS Out of Debt

Easter Sunday at Grand Rapids was a wonderful day in more ways than one. The sun was beautiful, warm and clear, and the various services of the day passed off in fitting manner. Following the basket dinner at the church we went to an open stream where Mrs. Clara Phenix and Mrs. Lyle Doan were baptized. The church rejoices to receive these two good women into its number. Special music made the various services much more attractive.

Another thing that brought tears of joy to the eyes of many was the notice which Sr. Fletcher of Kalamazoo gave at the morning service that she would see that the remaining four hundred dollars of church debt was paid by April 26. The people here have worked so hard, against so many difficulties, that the joy from this was almost beyond control. How we thank our heavenly Father for thus answering prayer and rewarding the faithful ones here for their devoted service!

And now we turn our attention to an enlarged church, so sorely needed. Already a building fund has been started, and we hope at least to have the basement with temporary roof this summer.

Preparation is now being made for special services over the week end of May 1 to 3, with a mortgage burning service in the afternoon of May 3. Bro. Austin is expected to be with us for that week end, and a cordial in-itation is extended to all.

Sr. Siple was confined to her home nearly a week with the prevailing flu but we are thankful to say she is out again now. Most of the membership is enjoying good health and wonderful spring weather.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

FROM FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Bro. James Blake of St. Catharines has been in the hospital for observation and treatment.

The latest reports from Sr. Martha Platts are quite encouraging.

Any isolated members, who might wish to have May Meeting programs sent to any of their friends, may have this done by sending correct names and addresses to the church secretary, Horace Haines, Fenwick, Ontario. Just a gentle reminder—it is only six weeks until our May Meeting.

Last Tuesday evening a very happy gathering was held at the Fonthill church. The natural man was first satisfied by a delicious supper, then the spiritual side of our natures was fed by the Sunday School children in an Easter concert. The program was led by Sr. Railton, and the choir contributed several selections.

The alcove back of the pulpit has taken on a new appearance with the placing of easings on the front. This little addition improves the looks of the sanctuary a great deal. Hand rails are also being installed on the stairs leading into the auditorium and into the basement.

The writer was given a very pleasant surprise after our last choir practice in the form of a birthday party. This was held at Sr. Page's home, and after a very dainty lunch, she was presented with a unique bouquet. This was beautiful, in various shades, wrapped with lovely green paper and tied with a silken cord. Was it flowers? No! dainty handkerchiefs from members of the choir, birthday gifts not soon to be forgotten.

Irene Holland.

REQUEST FOR EXPLANATION

Bro. R. H. Judd writes that one of his correspondents asks for an exposition of Luke 16:1-9; also of the first chapter of Ezekiel. Can anyone supply these? Address Bro. Judd, 111 Milverton Blvd., Toronto, Ontario.

LELAND NATHANIEL ROOSE

Leland Nathaniel Roose, son of John and Augusta Roose, was born on a farm north of Sac City, Iowa, June 11, 1893, and passed away on March 12, 1931.

He moved with his parents to Sac City in 1900, and received his education in the Sac City schools later graduating from college in Minneapolis in 1912. He entered the clothing business in Charter Oak in 1916; enlisted in the army in 1918, and when discharged returned to reengage in his business. He was married to Grace A. Mains on September 23, 1919. To this union three children were born: Catherine, Leland Norman, and Marilyn.

He is survived by his wife and children, his mother and father; four sisters and three brothers: Ethel, Ellen, Alma, June, Garland, Walter and Laverne. One brother and one sister preceded him in death: Alvin in 1927, and Esther in 1928.

At the age of fifteen he was baptized in the Church of God at Waterloo.

Funeral services were held from the Neal Funeral Home and burial was in Oakland Cemetery at Sac City.

The editor of the Charter Oak paper writes of Bro. Roose: "A pall of sorrow such as one death rarely brings has overcast this community in chronicling the obituary of Leland N. Roose. . . Mr. Roose was not only our intimate friend and business neighbor, but a friend of everyone with whom he came in contact. He was honored and respected by everyone and few men in any community have held so high a place in the esteem of their fellow men. He was a man of most exemplary habits and a remarkable personality. . .

"Evidence of the esteem in which he was held was shown by the many people to attend his funeral Monday at Sac City, and the overflowing bower of flowers.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

BASKET WEAVE

THE NEW BINDING FOR
OXFORD BIBLES

Grained with basket weave design. Highly finished calf leather, of a dark brown color. Button clasp keeps volume closed and protected. Convenient to carry. Oxford India paper. Six maps.

This is a beautiful book for your own use or for a gift. Prices range from $4.25 to 10.50.

Write for complete descriptions.

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

(Continued from page 436)

yet Christ himself spent three days there, according to Acts 2:27, 31.

Then what is hell? Eternal torment? No. The words are not found together in the Bible. If you doubt the statement, ask your minister to show them to you. He would no doubt like to do it. The popular teacher tells us only the immortal, undying part goes to hell.

The only place in the Bible that teaches that man is immortal is found in Genesis 3:4, Satan's teaching. Christ says he is the father of lies. (John 8:44.) The Bible instructs the righteous to seek immortality. (Rom. 2:7.) Would we seek that which we already have? If the wicked have it in order to suffer, the righteous also have it and have no need to seek further.

Popular teaching says that our dead friends are watching over us. The Bible says that they know nothing. (Eccl. 9:5; Job 14:21; Isa. 63:16.) How then can they either enjoy the blessings of heaven or feel the torments of hell? Something is wrong. Either popular teaching or the Bible is mistaken, for they do not agree. I prefer to believe that the Word of God is true.

We are told that only the soul goes to hell. Let us turn to Ezekiel 32:27. Here we find dead men (not spirits) in hell, with weapons, swords, heads, arms, bones and all. Do spirits have such things?

Let us compare Psalm 16:10: "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell". Then David teaches there is a time of release from hell. But how? "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave". Psalm 49:15. (In the margin for grave we find, hell.) There we have it—hell is the grave.

Let us ask Webster the question, "What is the meaning of the word, hell?" He answers by his dictionary, "Hell is the place of the dead or souls after death, the grave, etc." No thought of fire there in his answer. But men who use his definition on all other subjects say it means torment of fire.

It is known to all Bible students that the Old Testament was written in Hebrew and the New Testament in the Greek language. Let us consider the Old Testament first. The Hebrew word, sheol, is found sixty-six times and is translated three different ways—thirty-two times, grave, thirty-one times, hell, and three times, pit. Ask any Jew the meaning of sheol and the answer is, "grave".

Then the true meaning in each of the sixty-six times used is, grave. In fact, in two instances where rendered, hell, in the text, the margin reads, grave. (Note, Jonah 2:2; Psalm 55:15.)

In defence of the translators, remember that the King James version was translated in 1611 A. D. The word, hell, then seemed to mean "to cover", as understood by the literature of the period. A high school student recently called my attention to one of his English books of that period. An account was given of a man helling some jewels.

A footnote explained that they were buried.

In reading of a man helling his house, it did not imply he burned or tortured it, but put on a thatch roof. A farmer helling his potatoes did not mean that they were roasted, but that they were put into a pit, to protect them from frost during the winter. This shows that hell in 1611 was, as the boys say today, "not so hot". This statement in itself shows a change in the English language. If our grandfather told grandmother, on coming in from the field, "It is not so hot," he was referring to a change in the temperature. But the same statement today implies that something is not just what it should be.

Hell, then, in 1611, meaning to cover, agrees with the other renderings, grave and pit. Then in reading any of the above mentioned sixty-six scriptures, all renderings mean the same. But bear in mind that they all refer to sheol, the Hebrew word for "grave".

In the New Testament we find the Greek word, hades, for some unknown reason left untranslated. Webster is again called to our aid. His answer is, "Hades, the abode of the dead." He also refers to a Greek myth, and there is where the doctrine of eternal torment started. Some of you high school students look up some of the Greek myths and see if they do not correspond more with the popular teaching, than the Bible does.

There are twelve instances where the word, hell, carries the thought of fire. Yes, we do not attempt to side step that issue. For instance in Matthew 5:22, 29, 30; 10:28; Luke 12:5, the word, hell, is taken from the Greek word, gehenna, which means destruction.

Christ, in referring to this destruction, describes it by the Valley of Hinnom, outside of Jerusalem, used in His day to destroy garbage and dead animals. The fire was kept burning and any refuse that fell on the side was destroyed by worms. (Note Mark 9:43, 44 and compare with Isaiah 66:24.) This no doubt refers to the final destruction of Revelation 21:8, the second death. Numbers 16:30 gives us a type of that destruction. Compare it with Isaiah 26:14.

Fire is used as a symbol of destruction in the Scriptures. See Leviticus 10:2; Psalm 37:20; Malachi 4:13. Is it in reason to expect the righteous to leave heaven (where the popular teaching says they are) and go to hell (where the wicked are said to be) to walk over the ashes of the wicked (who, according to the popular teaching, cannot burn up, so that there would be no ashes)?

Isaiah tells us: "Come now, let us reason together", Surely our popular teachers have not read Malachi 4:1-3 or 2 Thessalonians 1:8, 9. If so, they have failed to use reason. As before stated, the dead cannot go to heaven and only rest in hell, the grave. How long shall they remain there? Revelation 20:12, 13 gives us the answer.

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" 1 Corinthians 15:55.

—o—

HELP your neighbor to get ETERNAL Life Insurance. Send him a Training Class HERALD.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 21, 1931

NUMBER 29

The Gospel of the Kingdom

IS IT FOR ONE NATION OR FOR ALL?

By Mrs. A. J. Chaplin

IT HAS been suggested that the gospel of the kingdom is for Israel only; that Paul preached another gospel, separate and distinct from this, for the Gentiles; and that before they can be saved they must believe the latter.

To my mind the Scriptures clearly teach that the "gospel of the kingdom", is to be "preached" in "all the world", and "unto all nations" to the end of the world or Christ's coming. Matt. 24:14. The end of the world and Christ's coming are yet future. So the gospel is yet in force for all the world and all nations. Until the death of Christ, the gospel of the kingdom was limited to Israel only. Matt. 10:5-7. Gentiles and Samaritans were then excluded, but after Christ's death the gospel was extended to the Samaritans, Acts 8:5, 12-25, and to the Gentiles. Matt. 24:14; Mark 16:15, 16, 20.

We must not forget that the one gospel or the "word" is for "all the world", Mark 16:15, and "every creature". Acts 8:4, 5, 12 show that word or "gospel" to be the "gospel of the kingdom". Christ repeatedly affirmed that this "gospel of the kingdom" was to be published "among all nations", Matt. 24:14; Mark 13:10, and "throughout the whole world", Mark 14:9, to the end of the world. This we must certainly accept. The Scriptures plainly teach that the "word" of the kingdom is for "any one", Jew or Gentile. Matt. 13:19; Eph. 3:1, 11, 12, 13; Col. 3:10, 11. With God there is no difference, for the hearts of all are purified by faith. Acts 15:9; Rom. 10:10-13.

The gospel of the kingdom was taught to others beside Israel after Christ's death, in many, many places. The words of Acts 8:4, 12 and 35 show that to preach "the word" and "the things concerning the name of Jesus Christ", and to preach "unto him Jesus"—all means to preach the gospel of the kingdom. This was done in Samaria, to "a man of Ethiopia," Acts 8:27, and to the Grecians. Acts 17:20.

Samaria is said to have received the Word of God,

Acts 8:12, by believing the gospel of the kingdom. Acts 8:14. And since "the Gentiles had also received the word of God", Acts 11:1, it follows that the Gentiles had received the gospel of the kingdom. Paul states that the "word of God" was first sent to Israel, then later it was sent to the Gentiles. Acts 13:46-49. Since it is conceded that when first delivered to Israel, the "word of God" was the "gospel of the kingdom", it follows that this same "word" or "gospel" was later passed to the Gentiles.

Peter states that the Gentiles heard the gospel through him. Acts 15:7. This gospel, the words of Acts 10:36, 37; Mark 1:14, 15, clearly show to have been the gospel of the kingdom. The nineteenth chapter of Acts tells us that Paul taught to "both Jews and Greeks" "the word of the Lord Jesus", or the things concerning the kingdom of God, "so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word." Then he who preaches the "kingdom of God", preaches the "gospel", Luke 8:2, 6; 4:18-43, and that "gospel" is the "gospel of the kingdom". Mark 1:14, 15.

Since Paul preached the kingdom of God at Ephesus, he preached the gospel of the kingdom, Acts 20:25, to both Jews and Greeks. See verse 21. Again, Paul preached the kingdom of God to the Jews in Rome, and he states that since they rejected it, this message "is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will to hear it." Acts 28:29. So a belief in the gospel of the kingdom is as binding today upon the Gentile as it is upon the Jew, and it is the same gospel that was first preached to Abraham.

Paul dwelt two whole years and preached to all that came in unto him "the kingdom of God, and . . . those things which concern the Lord Jesus". Acts 28:30, 31. Paul also preached "Christ's gospel" at Troas, 2 Cor. 2:12, which was the gospel of the kingdom, Mark 1:14, 15. And he declares that Christ's gospel is the power that God has with which to save the Jew first and also the Greek.

(Continued on page 458)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them . . . teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

GO YE INTO ALL THE WORLD

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

THIS most familiar statement found in Mark 16:15 was among the last words of our Savior on the day of His ascension. He was stepping out from a great work which He had begun. The work must of necessity be pushed to the ends of the earth. He himself had finished, so far as He personally was concerned, activity therein. He spoke to His followers, exhorting them to take up the proclamation at the point where He left off, and that they should continue it not alone to Jew, but to all peoples of men, wherever they might be, and wherever they might be.

That exhortation is undoubtedly still in force. One great commission of the follower of Christ is to go and declare the words of God's truth.

HE GAVE SOME PASTORS

PAUL, writing to the church at Ephesus, after explaining carefully concerning work and gifts of Christ, stated in 4:11, "He gave some apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers." He is speaking of Christ. Christ gifted certain ones with different gifts of ability.

To some he gave the gift of pastor and teacher. Addressing the elders of this same church, Acts 20:17, 28, He told them to "take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." They were assigned for definite work. The Holy Spirit had been placed upon them, and by its vitalizing power they had been made "overseers". Their duty was "to feed the church of God".

Surely these people were part of those whom the Savior had exhorted to "go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Their proclamation of the gospel was not alone with a view to evangelizing, but it was with a view to feeding the church of God over which the Holy Spirit had made them overseers.

It sometimes seems to the writer that there is no position occupied by man that carries with it greater responsibility than does that position which God and His Son have both authorized, namely, the position of feeding, building, guiding the followers of Christ. The preaching of the gospel does not consist merely of proclaiming the doctrines. It consists also of successfully proclaiming the instructions relative to one's daily habit of life, the instructions which will enable the individual to train himself circumspectly in the ways that are pleasing to Almighty God.

Worship, true sincere consecration, uncompromising dedication of one's life to God: these are Christian characteristics that are vital to the growth and victory of the individual Christian. He who goes into all the world and proclaims the gospel cannot stop short of proclaiming the good news, which when grasped thrills the life and heart of the individual.

He cannot stop short of proclaiming those truths which from within aid and urge the individual into an ever closer and more complete consecration of his entire being to his Creator. He cannot stop short of aiding the individual to scale the hills of difficulty, until, rising over the crest, he can dedicate himself unreservedly unto his Father and unto his Savior.

Such a pastor, such an evangelist, such a teacher is of greater value to the individual life of this old world than is that of any other character of mankind.

BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

ANOTHER class year of study is drawing to a close. April thirtieth will be the last day. The Class for 1930-31 has been doing some very good work. Some of its number have already spent three years in study and are hoping to spend the fourth. Some have had considerable experience filling pulpits in nearby places; others who are newer in the work have not had so much. As a whole the 1930-31 Class is worthy of commendation to all. In addition to being careful scriptural students, without exception the members are clean of habit and of language and are of high ideal.

The next issue of THE HERALD will be the Class number. Besides being edited by the editorial committee of the Class, the contents of the number will be largely articles by the Class members. A good sized Class photograph will also appear. You will want all of your friends to have a copy of this number for preservation. Notice regarding extras will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Immediately following the adjournment of the Class this year, by invitation, its members are going to Ripley, Illinois to unite in conducting a week's meeting. The Ripley church already knows about these young people. Some few weeks ago a week was spent by them with the Ripley church, conducting meeting each evening and being guests in their homes between services. They urged them to come back and give them another week as soon as they could make it convenient.

Following the appointments at Ripley, some of the Class have proposed taking a tour in teams among some of the churches not too distant. Accordingly letters have been mailed to a few of the churches in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska informing them of the proposition. Should there be churches which have been missed and which would desire a team of these students to work with them for a day or two in May or early June, this office will be glad to enter into communication with them.

These young people are putting months and years into the study of God's Word, with a view to coming to as good an understanding thereof as they can, and this with a view to consecrating their lives to the proclamation of the truths of that Word. Not only have they been studying the Word as sentences of information, but they have also been endeavoring to sense the spiritual meaning and impulse behind that Word and to experience like impulse within their own lives. They have been endeavoring to study the Word with a view to feeling it, as well as with a view to intellectually knowing it. They have consecrated their lives in work unto the Father, with the aim of striving to find and guide men and women unto Him who is largely lost to mankind.

No higher aim or ideal is possible for an individual to seize upon. We bespeak for them the kindly hand and heart and the earnest prayers of all who are interested in the labors to which they have dedicated themselves.

THE DAY OF HIS PREPARATION

"SCIENCE will transform the world within fifty years," says Marconi. "Life on this planet will be so changed that we who are here now would have difficulty in recognizing it."

Nor will you have to wait fifty years to see the changes that Marconi forecasts. They will not come all in a bundle on the last day. Instead, they are coming day by day. The radiophone came yesterday. What will come tomorrow?

"People have a wrong idea about progress," he said, "For thousands of years there was little. A thousand years made not much difference in the world. Then came the invention of the steam engine and machinery for it to run. The electric telegraph followed. People began to speak of the nineteenth century as the age of invention and to speculate on the awe with which a decadent posterity would look back to it.

"Nobody believed the pace could long be kept up. Everybody believed that the electric light, the telephone, the phonograph and the moving picture were marvels, the like of which would not be produced again for a long while. And when the world believed that the scientific mind must soon be exhausted, the greatest marvels of all were produced—the airplane, the X-ray and the radiophone."

Contrast the past with the present. When our Lord was on earth, He walked. We never read of Him riding in chariot or carriage. Only once is it said He rode (see Matt. 21:5). His journeys were on foot. Of swift travel nothing was then known. The only person named in the New Testament as riding in a chariot was the treasurer of the queen (see Acts 8:27). How different is it now, when rich and poor alike ride in steam cars and automobiles.

From Adam down to the last century the horse, the camel, and the ass were the swiftest means of human transportation. About 1380, carriages appeared in England, but for many years no persons used them but the sick and ladies. In 1510 closed coaches were seen. Queen Elizabeth had one, but it was a heavy, slow moving thing, drawn by several horses.

In 1662 the first common public conveyance came into use in England, and in 1756 London had its first swift public coach to and from the city. Said an English paper, "Incredible as it may appear, the coach will arrive in London in four and a half days from Manchester." The distance is one hundred sixty miles and the speed so incredible was thirty-six miles per day. The railway train now goes in three hours.

In America the first stage coach started from Boston in 1661. In 1732 stages were running from Boston to New York. A stage left the city once a month, and fourteen days were allowed to complete the journey. In 1802 a stage run from Albany to Boston was seventy-four hours. Today the run is six hours. When Washington died in 1799 the news was ten days in reaching Boston. When Wm. McKinley died the news went from ocean to ocean in an hour.

Speed is the order of the day. "Move on!" shouts the crowd. The Word of God foresaw all these changes. God moves in the affairs of men. It is the day of His preparation. All things portend the advent and kingdom of Christ. When I see these cars running in our streets, when I hear the hoarse call, I recall that God's Prophet said these would come. They are here. They tell us this is God's day of preparation. His judgments are near.—The Wonderful Word.

CHRIST, OUR JUDGE

By Lucille LeCrone

God promised the Israelites that if they would follow and obey Him, He would bless them, but if they disobeyed a curse would come upon them. Their entire history bears out the truth of this statement.

Under the leadership of Moses and Joshua they worshiped and obeyed Jehovah, and He was with them, making them victorious in their battles and blessing them abundantly in all things. After the death of these leaders the Israelites forsook God and worshiped the gods of the nations around them. As a result they were no longer victorious in their battles, but they were delivered into the hands of their enemies, by whom they were heavily oppressed.

When conditions became so bad that they could no longer bear their burden, they cried unto the Lord, and He in His infinite love and mercy heard their plea and raised up a deliverer for them.

This deliverer was called a judge. His duty was to advise the people, to direct their activities, and to rule over them. He was always a God-loving man, and under his leadership the Israelites would serve Jehovah and would be blessed. After the death of each various judge they would forsake God and become idol worshipers again, and God would withdraw His blessing.

There were fourteen of these judges, Othniel being the first. Under his leadership the land had rest for forty years. After his death the Israelites forsook God, and for eighteen years they were in subjection to the Moabites. They cried unto the Lord, and He heard their cry and raised up Ehud to deliver them and to be their judge. He ruled over them for eighty years, during which time they were being constantly blessed by God.

So it was throughout the entire period covered by the judges, from Othniel the first to Samuel the last.

The Christian is under the judgeship of that great Judge, Jesus Christ. He is our Adviser, Counselor and Ruler. As long as we follow His counsel, allow Him to be the ruling factor in our lives, and worship Jehovah wholeheartedly and devotedly, we too will be blessed.

God will send His Spirit to guide and protect, to comfort and strengthen us. He will help us win victories over our enemies which, alone and unaided, we could never do. If we remain true to Him to the end, He will make us victorious over that greatest enemy, death, and will crown us with eternal life.

If we forsake Him for the gods of the world, then He will withhold His blessings. Without His help and guidance, sin will speedily overcome us. But when we become truly repentant and turn again to Him, through faith, asking forgiveness, He will again restore His blessings.

Many people who never take time to pray while life is going smoothly, when brought face to face with danger will pray to God for deliverance. When the danger is past God is forgotten, neglected. The pleasures of the world crowd out all thoughts of Him who should have first place in our thoughts.

Remember then that Christ is our Judge. We are being judged from day to day as to whether or not we are worthy to have our names written in the Book of Life. Only those who are overcomers are written therein. Only those who love God, keep His commandments and obey His will are able to overcome and will receive "that crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love him".

Let us follow our Judge so that we may be among that number.

FOR $1.25 you can send TWENTY-FIVE Training Class HERALDS to your friends.

THE CALL OF THE CHURCH FOR MEN

By R. H. Judd

The Church of GOD is calling,
It is loudly calling for men,
For men who are men of action,
Endued with the strength of ten.

It calls for men of valor,
And for men with tender hearts,
Aflame with living fire from GOD
Which the Spirit alone imparts.

For men who lead their fellows
Whithersoever the Spirit leads,
And give on the field of battle
The succour that each one needs.

It calls for men of power,
Men of prayer with the Living GOD,
Whose pathway is the pathway
Which the Fathers have ever trod.

It calls for men of substance,
But whose substance is not their own,
Because of Him who suffered
Ere He sat on His Father's throne.

Oh, Men, the Church is calling
For men of the noblest kind,
For men of worth and action
And endowed with a kingly mind.

For men whose hearts are glowing
With love for their fellow men,
To tell the Old, Old Story,
That Christ Jesus died for them.

HIS GLORIOUS APPEARING

By John Denchfield

THE Apostle Paul says, "There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory."—1 Corinthians 15:41.

On beautiful summer evenings we have viewed the glorious spectacle of the illuminated sky. The stars shine in their glory, each one seemingly endeavoring to outshine the other, and though one may shine brighter than another, together they blend in perfect harmony, so that united they create one beautiful star-filled sky. Later the moon arises in all its splendor, surpassing even the beauty of the stars. The earth seems alive with the radiance of the bright full moon. We stand in awe as we behold the beauty of the heavens.

The dawn of another day comes, and the rising sun in its magnificent brightness, in the fulness of its glory, outshines everything as it spreads its light throughout all the heavens. The stars fade out of sight; the moon becomes pale in the distance, so great is the glory of the sun.

Moses, after he had been talking with God, came down from the Holy Mount with the tables of stone in his arms, "and when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone: and they were afraid to come nigh him." Exodus 34:30. Paul says, in 2 Corinthians 3:7, 8, "But if the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away: how shall not the ministration of the spirit be rather glorious?" And again in the eleventh verse, "for if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious."

"When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col. 3:4. We shall appear with Him in glory! We cannot now comprehend even a particle of the great glory which shone on the face of Moses upon which those present could not bear to look; that glory which outshines all other glory even as the sun outshines all else, placing the moon and the stars in the background. Immeasurable glory! We cannot comprehend it, "for now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." 1 Cor. 13:12.

The magnificent greatness of the glory in which we shall appear with Him is beyond the comprehension of our finite mind, "but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." 1 John 3:2.

May we continue earnest in His work, ever true to His name, always firm in faith, "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ", Titus 2:13, so that, when He shall appear, we shall appear with Him, in glory.

BLOOD-STAINED HANDS

By G. Eldred Marsh

"Ye shall even warn them that they trespass not against the Lord, and so wrath come upon you".

THE horrible nature of sin is indicated by the dreadful-ness of the punishment God has placed upon it. Sinners ourselves, "shapen in iniquity" and conceived in sin, we are blinded by our carnal propensities to its real character. It is only by careful consideration of God's attitude toward sin, as that attitude is revealed in the warning He has issued against it, and by observing the fearful and inevitable results that follow its perpetration, that we can approach an approximate comprehension of its awful reality.

But when we perceive that "the wages of sin is death", and that death when thus inflicted means the extinction of being, and "that without recourse", we begin to appreciate what sin really is in the sight of God: that it is absolutely abhorrent to Him; that He would have it entirely eradicated from His universe; that to accomplish this purpose He would "destroy them which destroy the earth". Rev. 11:18. The Greek word here rendered "destroy", according to Liddell and Scott's Greek-English Lexicon means "to destroy utterly, bring to nothing, to blot out."

Language could not be found that would express more fully the thought of complete reduction to nothingness than that which the inspired writers employ to describe God's penalty for sin. The only possible relief from this dreadful danger is through removal of the sin that has brought it upon us. And the only means by which sin may be removed is through faith in "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," and baptism into His name.

It is a solemn charge; it is a serious obligation, that God has placed upon us as His messengers, "to warn the wicked of his way to turn from it"! Should we through carelessness or indifference fail to issue the warning clearly, so that all can understand, God will hold us to account.

"When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand."—Ezekiel 33:8.

Or should we in any way becloud the real issue, that is, that sin brings actual death, God will not hold us guiltless. For the same warning He gave to Israel in the past He is sending to all the world today: "I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live". Deut. 30:19.

Should we minimize the danger that threatens mankind, by holding out false, misleading, or premature hopes for the future, thus nullifying the force of the divine warning, the "blood" of those whom we may cause to become careless and indifferent to their godless, christless, hopeless condition today, will be required at our hands!

PAUL'S SECOND LETTER TO THE THESSALONIANS

By Lyman Booth

THIS Epistle is commonly supposed to have been written from Corinth, not very long after the foregoing letter, because Sylvanus and Timothy still continued with Paul. But the evidence is not very conclusive, and it is attended with some difficulties. It is certain, however, that it was not sent from Athens, according to the postscript.

The main object of the Epistle seems to have been to prevent the mistakes which the Thessalonians were about to fall into, concerning the near approach of the day of judgment, grounded in part on the misconstruction of some expressions in his former letter, and of what he had spoken when at Thessalonica, but supported by some persons, pretending to inspiration, and as some think, by a forged epistle. As such an opinion was of a very injurious tendency, the Apostle strenuously opposed it. He had also heard of some individuals who, on religious pretences, had neglected their secular employment and were walking disorderly. These he exhorted the church to censure and to shun, yet so as to seek the good of the erring ones.

Amidst a number of instructive warnings, exhortations and encouragements, it contains a most remarkable prophecy, the exact fulfillment of which is a full demonstration of the divine inspiration by which the Apostle wrote his epistle. Besides the general marks of its genuineness and divine authority, which it bears in common with the rest of the Epistles, it has one which is peculiar to itself, from the exact representation it contains of the papal power under the characters of "the man of sin", and "the mystery of iniquity".

"Considering how directly opposite the principles here described were to the genius of Christianity, it must appear at the time when the epistle was written, highly improbable that they should ever prevail in the Christian church. Consequently, a prediction like this which answers in every particular so exactly to the event must be allowed to carry its own evidence with it, to prove that the author of it wrote under a divine influence." (Dodderidge.)

This Epistle, like the first, was written from Corinth, probably early in A. D. 53. The first letter had produced much good, but had not abated the excitement connected with the expectation of the second advent. A fanatical section had labored to increase it, claiming imaginary revelations from the Spirit (2:), and a rumored letter from the Apostle himself in support of their views that "the day of the Lord" had arrived, and He must be looked for immediately.

To discourage such ideas the Apostle wrote his second letter, in which after an affectionate greeting and thanksgiving for their progress in the faith (1:1-12), he explains why so speedy a consummation was impossible. The second advent, he affirms, cannot be realized before the coming of the "man of sin" for "lawlessness" (2:3, R. V., Marg.), "whom the Lord shall destroy with the brightness of his coming".

Paul then enters on certain practical points, and he exhorts them to perseverance, to diligence in their daily callings (3:6-15). He closes with the autographic salutation and benediction, which he now for the first time appends to his letter (3:16-18).

MAKE your nickel go a LONG WAY. Send it to Oregon for a Training Class HERALD.

DO I NEED MY CHURCH?

A WISE observer of human nature once said that we are all cranks. Some of us turn backward, and some forward; some turn left, and some right; some turn overhanded, and some under-handed; and some just won't turn at all. He also said it was the same way about church support. Some give freely, and some grudgingly! Some give regularly, and some spasmodically; some say they will and don't, and some don't say they will, but do; and some just won't support the church at all.

Strange how the little notion that my church doesn't need any support got abroad anyway. Really, I suppose, my church could get along without my prayers, presence, or pay. I am told that lots of church members never seem to pray much about their church; they never go except upon special occasions, and they never pay. They seem to think that churches can just run anyhow.

But, come to think of it, I realize that no church can get along without support from somebody. There are financial needs, and somebody must furnish the money. Then unless people assemble for prayer and worship churches cannot exist, nor can Christian ideals be promoted. No churches, no Christian civilization; just plain paganism.

Why, I had a bulletin in the mail, and my church seems to keep on functioning. They still have a pastor, a good man, too; and also there are Sunday school and Missionary society. There were financial reports, too, benevolences, local expense, and so forth. In fact, there were some pretty good sums reported.

By the way, does that mean that somebody else is paying my church bills? That somebody else makes it possible for me to have the protection and benefits of religion? Am I a sort of religious sponger?

Hold on here, brother. I've got this church business turned around the wrong way. I believe I need the church more than the church needs me. I'm a sort of religious bum and loafer, letting my neighbors provide for me. They really think more of me than I do of myself. I begin to see that my church needs my support mainly because I so sorely need the support of my church. To lounge through life religiously is a sorry game, and is no small matter, either.

—Selected.

THE DEITY OF CHRIST

Contributed by

By R. H. Judd

IN THE Old Testament and the New the emphatic message that God is One, rings from cover to cover. Without referring to the dozens of passages where God affirms that He alone is God and "there is none else", the pronouns used attest this fact many thousand times without a single variation, and every seeming difficulty can be brought into harmony with these indisputable facts.

Concerning our Savior's words, God says: "I will put my words in his mouth" (Deut. 18:18, 19). Concerning His miracles, signs, and wonders, we are told: "God did the works by him" (Acts 2:22). "God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power"; hence He was given "authority" or power to forgive sins.

He did claim to be the Son of God, but the claim to be God never passed His lips, and it is strange indeed that anyone should give precedence to the claims of His enemies, instead of accepting His own claim that His Father is "the only God"—the only true God.

That God alone is Creator is reiterated by eighteen different writers, including John, Paul, and our Lord himself, in over fifty different scriptures. Ephesians 3:9 and other passages are so altered by the revisers and other recognized translators as to leave no room for question. Christ speaks, works, and rules by "the power of God." To us "there is but one God, the Father . . ." who is "the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."

THE HEART OF CHRIST

JESUS wept over the woes of a single city, and do you think He never wept over the woes of a world? He wept in public, where He would certainly restrain His feelings as much as possible; and do you think He never wept in secret?

Could we lift the sacred veil of His solitary hours; of His seasons of retirement while an obscure workman of Nazareth; of His forty days' fasting and prayer in the wilderness; of His vigils on the mountain tops and in the deserts—what prayers, what intercessions, what tender and heavenly sympathies with the sorrows and woes of humanity would come to light!

His affections were not limited to Judea; He did not love merely those who loved Him. He wept at the grave of Lazarus and over the distress of Martha and Mary, and why not over the great congregation of the dead of more than a hundred generations past, over all the broken hearts of widows and starving orphans from the beginning of the world? Why not over the distress of the sick, the delirium of the deranged, the agonies of the dying?

Do you not see why He went about with restless assiduity to console, to comfort, to build up broken hearts; raising the dead, curing and cleansing and restoring men to the enjoyment of health, sight, hearing, and reason? How could He do otherwise with a heart like His? He would have done so, though no man had believed in Him on that account, or returned to Him a grateful word or look.

Touched with the feeling of our infirmities, tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin, He stands today as a great and merciful High Priest over the house of God, knowing how to succor those who are distressed and tempted, and having compassion on them that are ignorant and out of the way. What encouragement we have to approach the mercy seat, and seek the blessings that He longs to give!

"Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."—Selected by Rufus A. Curtis.

THE MARKS OF THE LORD JESUS

How little, in this dispensation, we are required to do. Christ simply said, "Do this in remembrance of me." But when I read church history since that time, and realize how the church suffered great persecution, even in the time of the Apostles, I remember how little is expected of us, in these days, and how careless we become, and how little keeps us away from the table where we can thus remember our Lord and Master. Very vividly comes to mind the word of the Apostle Paul, "I bear branded on my body the marks of Jesus" (Gal. 6:17). They are pitiful and expressive words, uttered in defence of his position as an apostle.

Opinions differ as to his real meaning. Slaves were actually branded with the name of their owners. Even soldiers of the Roman Legion were branded with the names of their regiments. Paul called himself a slave of the Lord Jesus Christ, and some think he was actually branded with a name identifying him with his Lord. But I do not think that was what he meant. In one of his letters he said:

"In stripes above measure, in deaths oft. Of the Jews, five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods."

These were the marks of the Lord Jesus which Paul bore, and carried to the grave. Again I say, how little we have to do today! How thankful we should be for the men who fought valiantly for the liberty we enjoy. Paul could not have endured the stripes and beatings had it not been that in his heart he had a great love for his Lord.

A French Soldier, undergoing an operation over the region of the heart, said, "Probe deep enough, and you will find the Emperor." So we can feel that deep in our hearts is love to our Lord and Savior, a love which should radiate in our lives. May we have our thoughts centered on the Lord; detached from the things which are commended so much in the world and centered on the great love that took our Lord even into the grave.—T. L. Wilcock in Bible Standard.

COMBATING ATHEISM

Two years ago the Canadian Christian Crusade encountered much indifference from "religious" quarters, which considered protest against anything so negative as atheism obsolete and unnecessary. One minister of the gospel even went so far as to state that there were not ten atheists in the world.

My object in writing, however, is not to call more attention to an undoubted fact, but to make a further plea for fairness to those who seek to meet and help the situation. Wholesale condemnation of those "in authority" gets nowhere; it is weak and childish, and quite unscriptural.

Surely opportunity should be given those in charge of our young men and women in university, college and school to express what their belief is, and why, without being immediately cried out of court by those who differ in their interpretation of what God has said in His Holy Word. Our Leader, the Lord Jesus Christ, never once shows such condemnation to be in the line of His teaching—hypocrites were the one exception to His unvarying rule of helpfully meeting honest doubt and inquiry. Thomas is an outstanding example, and it is recorded that, looking on the rich young ruler, He loved him. Again, almost His last words were an appeal to God, not to bring down judgment on those who were putting Him and His teachings out of court—but a plea for forgiveness on the ground that they "did not know." "They know not what they do."

Our colleges and universities are packed with men and women who "do not know". They have no knowledge of the real thing, the danger and thrill, the power and freedom, the peace that passeth understanding—all to be had for the taking, by faith, to the "newborn believer."

We could well take a lesson from the atheists themselves, who welcome into their circle any and all "doubters", with the objective (by courteous argument) of bringing them right over into the fold of atheism itself. One such young man is now an officer in their association, having thrown up his theological course because he received only denunciation for having doubts, instead of help to solve them by the illumination of the Holy Spirit.

Into this office the past two years have come two ministers (Fundamentalists), three men, all officers in Fundamentalist missionary organizations, two women, both leaders in Christian societies, and many others—all saying it is in my province, in view of the special attack of atheists on this point, to make the truth known. These people all believe that there is no ground of Scripture for the term, "endless torture", but feel it would be unwise for them to let their conviction be known, in view of the Christian work they are doing. In other words, they fear the "intolerant" brothers and sisters may prejudice the public who are supporting them and their work, and much harm be done to the cause of Christ. And they are sincere enough in this viewpoint.

Now the President of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism established his contention that we are afraid to face the issue—he quotes letters he receives from those who have not the courage of their convictions, and I can but rejoice that by steady courtesy and patience, for a long time, it has been possible for him to write me that the attack against God on this point—an attack that is being listened to by thousands of our young people—would be abandoned if it could be disproved.

Not only do the atheists make a big ground of attack on this difficult question of Eternal Torture, sending out their so called proof (?), but we have been given the sad confidence of men and women in the church who find that doctrine a stumbling-block to faith, and who are "afraid" to let their declension be known. It is a tragedy that those in "one" family cannot "in love" bring these vital matters to each other and seek by prayer and Holy Spirit guidance for a solution to their doubts.

I thank God it has been possible to get a footing of correspondence, and humbly try to point out God as seen in the face of Jesus Christ, while not withdrawing from God's own Word that He will in nowise clear the guilty. The libel on our mighty God of Love in the term "Eternal Torturer" is an issue that cannot helpfully be dismissed by those who have been mightily saved by that Love on Calvary.—Maud Howe in Canadian Christian Crusade.

AN American Presbyterian youth was a naval wireless operator during the war. Early one morning, after a night on duty, he snatched a few minutes for his "Quiet Hour" when no message was going over, and he was reading the twenty-third Psalm. Suddenly the thought came to him to send the Psalm out over the water and see if any ship would take it up. He did, and as he sent the last word, sixteen ships answered a wireless, "Amen".—Selected.

THAT TRAINING CLASS HERALD

IN two weeks the Bible Training Class will have dispersed for the summer. In their journeyings it is quite probable that some of the members of the Class will have the privilege of meeting many of you at your churches.

Get ahead of the Class and meet it on the Front Page of the Training Class HERALD. Then, after you have looked at the Class picture, turn the pages of the Class HERALD and note what the individuals of the Class think about one of the most vital subjects of Christianity.

This is the last call for orders. THE HERALD comes out next week. So get your orders in NOW. The price is Five Cents per copy.

Order a generous supply to distribute yourself. Order others to be sent direct to your many friends.

The Training Class wishes to thank you for your kind cooperation in the past and in the future. It is doing its utmost to build up the church, and it feels that you are in sympathy with its aim.

So order your HERALDS NOW.

Cecil A. Smead, Circulation Committee.

Is There Anything too Hard for God?

By Samuel E. Haney

THERE is an edifying lesson for the Christian seeking divine aid for body, soul and spirit to be found in Jeremiah's prayer and God's response thereto. In Jeremiah thirty-two, verses one to sixteen, we have a detailed description of events leading up to the Prophet's prayer. It is interesting and helpful to read the entire prayer and the answer, but we shall confine our perusal to verses sixteen to nineteen, as a prelude of the prayer, and verses twenty-six and twenty-seven, the beginning of God's answer. The trend of both conveys the underlying thought of this article.

"Now when I had delivered the evidence of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriah, I prayed unto the Lord, Saying, Ah, Lord God! behold, thou hast made the heaven and the earth by thy great power and stretched out arm, and there is nothing too hard for thee: thou shewest lovingkindness unto thousands, and recompensest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them: the Great, the Mighty God, the Lord of hosts, is his name, great in counsel, and mighty in work: for thine eyes are open upon all the ways of the sons of men: to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings." Verses 16-19.

"Then came the word of the Lord unto Jeremiah, saying, Behold, I am the Lord, the God of all flesh: is there any thing too hard for me?" Verses 26, 27.

There are three major phases of the Scriptures, namely, salvation of the soul (or life), divine healing of the body, and chronology. The importance and necessity of the first named are so misconstrued and distorted by the traditions of men and the teachings of theological schools, from whence errors are passed on to the pulpits, as to become nonessential to the laymen. In some quarters but a mere semblance of truth remains.

The last two named are treated negatively, even ridiculed by many Bible students; and churchianity almost en masse knows nothing of God's treatise of them. Hence, the reason for the lack of knowledge and faith in these important factors is that they are not generally taught either by tongue or pen. Paul says, Romans 10:17, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God".

We shall limit our research at this time to the "redemption of the body", Romans 8:23, and its integral part of the ransom: "Even we sigh to ourselves as we wait for the redemption of the body that means our full sonship". Moffatt.

By examining a few texts we shall discern that God is as anxious and willing to bless us physically as He is spiritually, both depending upon our degree of faith and obedience. To this end keep in mind that God, like His Son, is "the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever".—Hebrews 13:8. God's commands and promises to Israel are as applicable to us as they were to them. And nothing is more "God's word settled in heaven" (Psa. 119:89) than is the, "I am the Lord that healeth thee". Exodus 15:26. Please read the entire verse. No one has a right to change the "I am" to "I was"; because "the word of the Lord endureth for ever". 1 Peter 1:25; Psalm 100:5.

A few facts about Isaiah 53:1-12, which the Authorized Version fails to clarify, might be profitable. "Grief", v. 3, is rendered "disease" and "sickness" in Deuteronomy 7:15; 28:61; 1 Kings 17:17; 2 Kings 1:2; 8:8; 2 Chronicles 16:12; 21:15. And "sorrow" is rendered "pain" in Job 14:22; 33:19. Leeser (a Jew) translates the text: "He was despised and shunned by men; a man of pain and acquainted with disease . . . But only our disease did He bear Himself, and our pains He carried . . . and through His bruises was healing granted to us".

Moffatt's version of the last clause of verse 5 is: "The blows that fell to Him have brought us healing". Rotherham translates the second clause of verse 10, thus: "He laid on Him sickness". Thus we see our sickness, pains and afflictions were laid on Him as were our sins. Praise God! "Wherefore he is able to save them to the uttermost" ("completely"; Diag.) Hebrews 7:25.

"For with his stripes we are healed". Faith and obedience, being the channels of transference; it all rests upon the authority of God's Word. Scores of other texts are available, but we shall note only four more.

"He pardons all our sins, and all our sicknesses (diseases, A. V.). He heals, He saves your life from death (destruction, A. V.). He crowns you with His love and pity. He gives you all your heart's desire, renewing your youth like an eagle's". Psalm 103:3-5, Moffatt. "In my name . . . they will lay hands on sick persons, and they will be well", Diag., "shall recover", A. V. Mark 16:17, 18.

Here is a case that is void of ceremony between the great Physician and the sufferer, faith being the impelling power. The writer has practical knowledge of this mode of healing. "He it is who has given strength to this man whom you see and know, by faith in His name; it is the faith He inspires which has made the man thus hale and whole before you all". Peter in Acts 3:16, Moffatt's version.

Another case of efficacious faith in the great Physician is found in Acts 14:8-10: "And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked: the same heard

Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed, said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked". —(Italics mine.)

"So I tell you, whatever you pray for and ask, believing you have got it and you shall have it." Jesus. It is all paid for, whether you derive the benefit or not; all is hinged upon faith in His Word, for God has promised to respond only to the faith that is produced by and rests in His Word. There must be no alloy (doubt). "But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. . . . For let not that man (who doubts) think he shall receive any thing of the Lord". James 1:1-8.

Notice the cooperative phase of Jeremiah's prayer, "For thine eyes are open upon all the ways of the sons of men; to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings". "Rewarding every man as he has lived, and his deeds deserve", Moffatt.

To God's question, "Is there any thing too hard for me?" the prophet replies, "There is nothing too hard for thee". And Jesus says to you, suffering ones, "All things are possible to him that believeth". And why should not such be the case, particularly in the removal of our ailments, by wholeheartedly cooperating with the Creator and Redeemer of our body? Indubitable faith, cooperation and patience never fail to heal our bodies.

SUPPORT YOUR Training Class.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM

(Continued from front page)

Rom. 1:15, 16. This gospel of the kingdom, which Jesus declares is for "all the world" and unto "all nations", Matt. 24:14, was so widely proclaimed that before Paul died, it had already been preached "in all the world".

In the face of all this evidence, if it is still insisted that Paul's gospel for all nations and all men, Rom. 16:25, 26 and Eph. 3:6-9, is different from the gospel of the kingdom, then the expressions, "all men" and "all nations", would bar the proclamation of the gospel of the kingdom even to Israel. But as the words of Acts 20:17-25 show that the gospel Paul alludes to is the "gospel of the kingdom", that claim should be abandoned. If the "gospel preached by Paul to the uncircumcision" (Rotherham) were one gospel, and the one proclaimed by Peter to the circumcision (Roth.) were another gospel, then Peter rests under a curse from Paul. Gal. 1:6, 7.

Again, Paul's gospel had the "faith", Phil. 1:7; it had also the "one hope". Eph. 4:4, 5. It follows then, that if the gospel of the kingdom were a different gospel from Paul's gospel, it would have a different faith and hope. And as the Scriptures teach only one faith and one hope, which Paul's gospel included, Paul's gospel was the gospel of the kingdom, for it included both.

In conclusion we would say with Paul, "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation"? Heb. 2:3.

FAITH AND TRUST IN GOD

By Ethnah Cooper

DANIEL was taken captive by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim, king of Judah. He and three companions were taken and educated in the way of the Chaldeans, made to be the wise men who waited on the king.

These servants were ordinarily fed with the king's meat, but Daniel asked their overseer if they might be given pulse to eat. He did not want to partake of rich food. For ten days they were permitted to eat pulse and drink water instead of wine, and they were at the end fairer to look upon than the other servants. By showing his faith and trust in God, Daniel was rewarded. He had faith enough to do right, when it seemed almost impossible.

One night the king had a strange dream. He called in all the magicians and astrologers and asked them to tell him what he had dreamed and to show him the interpretation of it. They could not do it, and they told the king that there was not a man on earth who could.

At this the king ordered all of his wise men to be slain. This included Daniel and his companions. When Daniel heard this he went to Arioch, the captain of the king's guard, and asked him to give him time, and he would reveal the dream to the king.

The dream was revealed to Daniel by God, while he slept. He told the king the interpretation, and he praised God. The king made Daniel a great man, ruler over the whole province of Babylon, again showing that Daniel's great faith in God caused him to prosper.

In his whole life he always went to God in prayer, and after his prayers were answered, he gave God the praise, and not himself.

He was permitted to see down the years of time and view the great plan of God, and he passed it on to others by his writings. Thus by his faithfulness he brought others to God.

In the beginning of his life he abstained from eating the king's rich food and drinking his wine, just as Christians today should abstain from evil and the pleasures of this world. After receiving blessings, he praised God. How often today we are willing to ask for blessings, but we forget to thank God after they are received.

Daniel, by his righteous living, caused others to come to God. We can do the same, for we are judged by the people of the world by the manner in which we live.

As Daniel was blessed by his great faith and promised a place in the kingdom, we also are promised the same if we live according as we have knowledge of the Scriptures.

LIBRARIES and Waiting Rooms—good places for Training Class HERALDS.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"AND THERE AROSE NOT A PROPHET SINCE IN ISRAEL LIKE UNTO MOSES, WHOM THE LORD KNEW FACE TO FACE."—DEUT. 34:10.

LIFE OF MOSES

ONE day when Moses was out walking among his brethren he saw an Egyptian striking one of his brethren. He killed the Egyptian and hid his body in the sand. When this was told to Pharaoh, he was very angry, and Moses had to flee into another land. Here he married the priest's daughter, and two sons were born to them.

One day when Moses was tending his father-in-law's sheep, he saw a bush which burned with fire, but was not consumed. This was an unusual sight, and Moses stopped to look at it. God spoke to him from this bush and told him that He had heard the cries of His people, and He would deliver them, and give them a land flowing with milk and honey. God told Moses that He had chosen him to deliver His people. Moses did not want to undertake such a task and made many excuses. God asked him what was in his hand. Moses answered, "A rod." God told him to drop it, and when he dropped it, it became a snake. Moses ran from it, but God told him to pick it up by the tail. When he picked it up, it became a rod again. God performed yet another miracle before him, but he continued to make excuses to show that he could not do as God was asking him. Finally God told Moses that his brother Aaron could help him in this great work.

God then sent Moses and Aaron to Pharaoh, asking him to let the Israelites go, but he refused. Finally the plagues were sent upon Egypt, until Pharaoh was ready to let God's people go.

The water was turned to blood; frogs came upon the land; lice were upon man and beast; many flies came; disease came upon the cattle; boils came forth upon man and beast; a terrible hail storm came and destroyed the herbs and trees; locusts came, and then darkness was sent upon the land. Every time these plagues came upon Egypt, Pharaoh would entreat Moses to pray God that these plagues be removed, but as soon as they would be removed, Pharaoh would harden his heart and refuse to let the people go.

The tenth and last plague was to be much worse than any of the others. The Lord told the Israelites to kill a lamb and place the blood upon the doorposts that the first-born in their houses might not be slain. When the Egyptians awoke, there was a great cry in the land, for there was not an Egyptian home where death had not claimed the firstborn. This was too much for Pharaoh, and so he sent for Moses and told him to take the children of Israel and their flocks and go serve the Lord.

After they had gone, Pharaoh again changed his mind and started in pursuit, planning to bring them back. But God's protection was over His people, and He parted the Red Sea and allowed them to pass through. The Egyptians tried to follow, but when they were in the middle of the sea, God caused the water to come together again, and they were destroyed.

Then we find God's people, the Israelites, wandering in the wilderness for forty years. They were a very dissatisfied people and were always complaining. First they complained of lack of water and then of lack of food, but always God provided for them. He caused water to come forth from the rock, and He sent bread from heaven.

The Lord called Moses up to Mount Sinai, and there gave him the ten commandments as found in Exodus 20.

At times the Israelites forgot to worship the true God. Once they made a golden calf and worshiped it. This made Moses both angry and sorry that God's chosen people would forsake the God who had done so much for them. After years of trials and temptations they finally reached the promised land.

Moses went up to Mount Nebo, and there God showed him the land that He had promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but He told Him that he could not enter the land. Moses died there and was buried by the Lord, no one knowing the place of his burial.

Ruth Keeler, Grand Rapids, Michigan, Age 13.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 15; Ohio, 11; Michigan, 6; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

LET your Training Class COOPERATE with you.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

JESUS IN THE HOME OF ZACCHAEUS

IN THE city of Jericho not far from Jerusalem, there once lived a man named Zacchæus. One day Jesus was passing through Jericho, and Zacchæus wanted to see Him, but there was a crowd of people about Him. There was always a crowd of people about Jesus in these days, and Zacchæus, who was not so tall as other men, could not get near Him or see Him over the heads of the people.

The people would not make way for Zacchæus, for they were unfriendly toward him because he collected taxes and customs and was a rich man.

Taxes were the sums of money the Jews were obliged to pay each year to the ruler of the country for the right to live in their homes. Customs were the sums of money the merchants and traders were obliged to pay for the right to sell or to carry through the country such things as silks, perfumes and oils.

The ruler of the country was not a Jew, and for this reason the Jews hated the money they were obliged to pay him and disliked the men that collected the taxes and customs for him.

Zacchæus was so rich a man that the Jews suspected that sometimes he made them pay larger taxes than they should and then kept some of their money for himself. They suspected he had been dishonest in word and in deed.

When Zacchæus could not see Jesus because of the crowd, he ran ahead and climbed a tree by the roadside, and waited for Jesus to pass by, for He was to pass that way.

When Jesus came to the place He looked up at Zacchæus and said, "Zacchæus, make haste, and come down; for to day I must abide at thy house."

Zacchæus made haste, and came down and received Jesus joyfully. But all the people murmured, saying, "He is gone in to lodge with a man that is a sinner."

What it was that Jesus said to Zacchæus we shall never know. But that day while Jesus was with him, there came to Zacchæus a great love for Jesus and a great desire to be good. And he grew sorry for every wrong and sinful thing that he had done.

Zacchæus stood up and said to Jesus, "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and, if I have taken any thing wrongfully from any man I will give back four times as much as I took from him."

Because Zacchæus was sorry for the wrong he had done,

Jesus forgave him. And from that day Zacchæus became a man who not only knew what was right to do, but a man who tried to do what he knew was right and was pleasing to Jesus, God's Son. It was because he loved Jesus.

—Primary Stories.

ARE WE as eager as Zacchæus to receive Jesus, and do we try to make amends?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Illustrate this story.
2. Write how Zacchæus made amends for his wrongdoing.
3. Learn Luke 19:10.
4. Read Psalm 103:1-10.

WE BELIEVE that people should repent when they do wrong.

"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

What does the first verse of Isaiah 35 tell about?

A RAINY DAY

The finest thing in all the world,
I think, is a rainy day.
When mother lets me roam the house
In a game I like to play.

I play a fairy changes me
To a cloud as dark as ink.
I scatter raindrops everywhere
For thirsty flowers to drink.

I put fresh water in birdie's cage,
Set milk for pussy cat,
A pan of water for old dog Tray.
Beside his sleeping mat.

I carry ice water for Grandma Green,
Make lemonade for brother.
A cup of hot water or maybe tea,
I brew for tired mother.

I am the cloud; they are the flowers.
I bring refreshing rain.
When I am through, the sun is out,
I go outdoors again.

—H. O. Spelman.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 5. — May 3, 1931

JESUS IN THE HOME OF ZACCHAEUS

Luke 19:1-10

Devotional Reading: Psalm 103:1-10

GOLDEN TEXT

For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Beginning a New Life.

Basic Truth. "That like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."—Rom. 6:4.

Outline. I. Faith. II. Repentance and Restitution. III. Hidden in Christ.

I. Faith. God created man with power to think, and to reason, and to choose. Again and again the Bible imposes upon man the responsibility of making his choice. "Choose you this day whom ye will serve" is expressive of that responsibility.

Man makes his choice in agreement with his faith. To the end that man might have faith in Him, God has frequently given demonstration and example of His wisdom, His power, His certainty. The plagues of Egypt, the journeyings in the wilderness, the manna, the crossing of the Jordan, the conquering of the Promised Land were so wrought as to educate Israel to God's ways and powers. Faith followed. The mighty words, the marvelous miracles, the superhuman powers, the death, the resurrection of Christ, both singly and collectively educated the people of Christ. Their faith in Him followed.

Jesus was God-appointed to be man's only Savior. The salvation offered was, in its foremost sense, life like unto that of the resurrected Christ. This salvation or life was vested in God's Son. Its only manner of being distributed to others is, according to God's Word, for others, one by one, to enter within Christ and there be touched with that new life.

Faith in Christ, faith that will prompt the individual to definitely advance from his former position unto Christ is man's first prerequisite unto salvation. Without the exercise of such faith, salvation is impossible.

II. Repentance and Restitution. One of the first results of faith toward a new objective is to turn one's back upon his former position; it is to repent. Repentance that is of the heart, and that which is prompted by faith in another direction, immediately prompts restitution for the wrongs perpetrated under the old position. A restitution of "fourfold" under the old law by the sheep thief, Ex. 22:1, was undoubtedly required for the beneficial effect it would have upon the guilty one. Restitution always yields benefits to the one restoring.

He who repents of his sinful ways and turns to the Master finds little opportunity for restitution, excepting unto his fellow men. Those who crucified the Savior and who later came to see their wrongs, who anxiously asked of Peter what they should do, were told, Acts 2:38, "Repent". There was to be a definite turning from their old belief, and thought, and habit, and a turning unmistakably unto the ways of Jesus.

III. Hidden in Christ. As the seion must be completely severed from its former attachment and must be placed in contact with the current of life in a new tree before it can partake of its benefits, so the individual who would begin the new life must, by repentance, be severed from his former life contacts and become so fully submerged, engulfed, hidden in Christ as to be the recipient of the Christ life, before he can become participant of life from the new source. Zacchaeus seemed to be ready to do all this.

After Christ's resurrection He left definite instruction that those who believed in His gospel should be baptized "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost". Matt. 28:19. Rom. 6:1-4 reveals this same thought: "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" In His death Jesus became nothing. By death His former self had ceased; His future self had not yet come to exist. He who is "baptized into his death" is baptized into that fulness of nothing—death. The Gr. word for baptize, baptizo, according to all Gr. lexicons, means to bury, to overwhelm, to submerge. Dean Stanley, Rector of Westminster Abbey in the days of Queen Victoria, indeed the Queen's pastor, commenting upon Rom. 6, stated that this text referred to the ancient order of baptism by immersion. "Indeed," he said, "such was the teaching of Jesus Christ and such was the custom of the early church."

How suggestive is this baptism! It is the suggestion of death itself; it is a burial in water, in which without quick recovery the person baptized must actually become dead. The very form of baptism is suggestive of entering into Christ's death. This death is death of the old order. The old must necessarily be destroyed before a new type of life can be given.

The whole procedure is indicative of the individual becoming dead, nothing, and hidden forever in Christ, who is our Life.

He who begins the new life does so from within the Master, into whom he has been submerged. Zacchaeus manifested tendency to repentance from the former ways and to the submerging of himself into the ways and life of Jesus. The result was the Master's statement, "This day is salvation come to this house."

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Jesus in the Home: What a profound thought, what a glorious reality! The unseen Guest at every meal, the silent Listener to every conversation! No family circle is complete unless Jesus is included. Jesus can bring more joy and happiness into a home than all the rest of the family combined.

Jesus brings	peace love joy happiness	into a home
--------------	-----------------------------------	-------------

The presence of Jesus in any home is worth more than words can describe. He is a Friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

Jesus

- come into our home;
- be a Member of our family;
- be our unseen Protector;
- stay with us—we love You.

A Vision: When a person comes in touch with Jesus, he gets a vision of high ideals and is inspired to live a better life. The life of Zacchaeus was changed by his association with the Master. No person can come into contact with Jesus without being enriched in mind and body. We need to commune more with the Master. With each contact we will discover that His thoughts become our thoughts, His ways, our ways, until at last we will have the mind of Christ.—C. E. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Beginning a New Life.

Jesus said it would be hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven, but here we find one, Zacchaeus, who was rich, of whom Jesus could say, "This day is salvation come to this house." The heart of this man had been touched by the spirit, grace, and mercy of Jesus Christ unto repentance and had transformed his covetousness into generosity. He did not expect pardon without restoration. He was changed, and he began a new life. As he had been eager to get, he was now anxious to give.

Everything we have, every talent we possess ought to be at Jesus' call; and it is better to give to Christian work while we live, than to defer it to be given after our death. It would be well to study Rom. 6 in the consideration of this topic. We quote from verse 19, "For as ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness and to iniquity unto iniquity; even so now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness."

—F. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS ITEMS

The obituary of Bro. C. O. Krogh, Blair, Nebraska, will appear in a later issue.

Some of the brethren have written, asking Bro. Booth's address. It is as follows: 4318 Olive St., St. Louis, Missouri.

Bro. Sydney Magaw commenced a series of meetings at the Burr Oak church, beginning on Tuesday, April 21, and is to continue over Sunday, May 3. On his way to Burr Oak, he stopped off for a day at Oregon.

Sr. Alice L. Lacey, of the Oregon church, has been a patient at Deaconess Hospital, Freeport, Illinois, where she recently submitted to a serious operation. We are glad to report that she is steadily gaining in strength.

The poem by Bro. Judd on Page 452, entitled, "The Call of the Church for Men," may be obtained from the author at 12 cents per dozen, neatly printed on good paper, and for 5 cents each, printed on cardboard.

Address: R. H. Judd, 111 Milverton Blvd., Toronto, Ontario.

Bro. Judd's income is very limited, due to his long continued inability to work because of the serious accident to his foot. He will greatly appreciate your orders for this poem.

OUR EASTER OFFERINGS

South Bend Sunday School	$10.00
Lois Hunt	1.00
Etta L. Elton	4.00
Previously reported	350.62
"
" Total	$365.62

Contributions to the Easter Offering are still coming in, and to all these we send our deep appreciation. May God guide in the use of these funds to His glory and to the advancement of His cause.

NIAGARA FALLS, NEW YORK

The Fonthill choir very kindly assisted the Falls church with their service on Easter Sunday. The musical selections were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Franklin Moore is seriously ill at her home and would appreciate the prayers of the people.

Bro. Clyde Randall and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Moore recently spent an evening of Bible study with the members and friends at Lancaster.

The Bereans are enjoying an outline study of the Bible and the books of the Bible. All are greatly interested in this new line of study. The meetings are being held at the church so that we may make use of the blackboard. The next social hour of the Bereans will be held on April 28, at the home of Mrs. Moreland, immediately following the lesson.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The work continues to move along well at the Grand Rapids church. The coming of summer weather fills people with a love of the highways, woods and links, but very good attendance keeps up, for which we are thankful.

Bro. Townsend had his tonsils removed on Tuesday, April 14, and as a result suffered several days of severe effects. All are thank-

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio
Sr. Ella Rose,	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sr. Edna Brewer,	Troy, Ohio
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.

Sr. Curdella Gray, of Lanark, Illinois, for whom prayers have been arising, died on April 13, and was laid to rest on April 15, Bro. Siple conducting the services.

Bro. Albert Singer is also resting from pain and sorrow, having fallen asleep on April 15.

Bro. Roll Brewer, of Troy, Ohio, who has been ill for so long, fell asleep on April 8, leaving his wife and four children, two daughters, Sr. Dorothy Demmitt and Sr. Louise, and two sons, Byron and Kenneth. Sr. Brewer feels the responsibility of rearing the two younger children and asks that we remember her in prayer to the Father in heaven.

Dear Brothers and Sisters: Just a few lines to tell you how much we appreciated the kind, cheery letters and cards we received from the brotherhood. I do not have time to answer all your kind letters, but I want you to know that each and every one were like rays of sunshine, dispelling the gloom in the sick room.

I also want to thank those who remembered us in prayer, for we felt we received much strength thereby. I would still ask an interest in your prayers, that I might meet the responsibility that rests so heavily.

Your sister in Christ,
Edna Brewer, Troy, Ohio.

ful for the improvement as these lines are written.

Sr. Margaret Lyon of Chicago returned with the pastor and wife, when they were called to Illinois last week, and spent the week end in Grand Rapids.

Plans are being completed for the week end of May 1 to 3, when Bro. Austin is to help us celebrate the mortgage burning.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

LOS ANGELES

A series of sermon-studies under the general theme of "Perilous Times" is being given by the pastor of the Los Angeles church. The entire program is as follows:

April 19—"The Coming Tempest"

April 26—"Winds of Doctrine, or Rebuilding the Tower of Babel in Perilous Times" May 3, 11:00 a. m.—"Variable Winds of World Politics"

May 3, 7:30 p. m.—"The Storm Clouds gather"

May 10—Mother's Day Service

May 17—"The Typhoon Rages"

May 24—"Peace Be Still! or the Storm Subsides"

INTERESTING NEWS FROM ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

Our Bible School meets each Sunday at ten o'clock, at the home of A. J. Chaplin, 702 N. B St., with Bro. George Waters as teacher for the adult class, and Sr. Lorena Southard, teacher of the primary class. The attendance is good, considering our membership here. We usually have from twenty-eight to thirty-six in class each Sunday. We are using the quarterlies and enjoy the lessons very much.

On March 15 we were made to rejoice when Hobart Leeper, husband of Sr. Fay Leeper, asked for baptism, and accepted Jesus as his personal Savior. Bro. George Waters immersed him into Christ in the beautiful Walnut River. May God bless and keep him faithful to the end.

Bro. A. J. Chaplin has been quite sick with a complication of diseases that has weakened him very much. At present he is up a part of the time.

Sr. Chloe Sims has been quite poorly with heart trouble for some time and has been unable to come to class.

Sr. Wm. Hadiecke is feeling much better since she returned from the hospital, and is able to again be with us at Sunday School, for which we are truly thankful to our heavenly Father.

Bro. John Fisk is steadily improving in health, and we hope for a permanent cure and trust that he will soon regain his former good health.

Our aged Sr. Reed, who has been in ill health since last October, remains about the same. She finds in the Bible and The Herald spiritual food and strength that help her over many weary days. "The Crowning Day", by Bro. Marsh, and "According to the Scriptures," by Bro. Stewart, and many others by our writers, give great joy and comfort to her. (Why not sometimes give a couple of pages especially to the shut-ins—letters full of hope and comfort?)

Bro. Wm. Smith, who has been in poor health for many months, is still very poorly. He is a brother of Sisters D. C. Robinson and Randolph.

The primary class gave a fine little Easter program after Sunday School on Easter Sunday. The nine little folks did so well in their readings and songs. Music was furnished by Sr. Alice Glascock.

Owing to the financial depression and no work to be obtained for laboring men we were obliged to abandon the proposed church building indefinitely. We hope to have a church home as soon as possible to do with the majority of our people out of work, who would gladly help us to build a church, we cannot add greater burdens than they already have. We know that wherever we worship, if we are really the children of God, He will be in our midst and that to bless. He has abundantly blessed our local work, even if we have not a church building.

Sr. Letha Reed, of Attica, is expected to be here April 12, to take care of her grandmother, Sr. Reed, for a while.

NEBRASKA CONFERENCE DATES

The members of the conference board held a meeting recently and set the dates for the annual conference of the Church of God at Holbrook for August 15 to 22, inclusive.

Plan now to spend this season with us.

Here at Holbrook we have Sunday School from ten to eleven each Sunday morning, and preaching services from eleven to twelve. Song service begins at seven-thirty in the evening and Bible study at eight.

Beginning on May 3, the members of the Church of God at Holbrook will hold an all-day meeting the first Sunday in each month. There will be preaching at eleven o'clock in the morning by Bro. Gordon, and communion and Bible study in the afternoon, conducted by Bro. Arthur Hornaday. Bring your basket dinner and come to enjoy the day with those of like precious faith. If you are near enough to attend these services, we earnestly request your presence at these meetings. Read Hebrews 10:25.

Eva Phelps, Sec.

A WORD FROM BRO. PATRICK

Dear Restitution Herald: May I use a little of your space in which to express my gratitude to the many brothers and sisters who wrote to me while I was in the sanatorium? The many letters and cards were real life savers to one stranded away from home as I was.

The cancer is about all out of my hand, and the wound is healing nicely. I want to say, for the benefit of any that may be suffering with cancer, that the Sheppard Sanatorium is a safe place to go for treatment of external cancer. Dr. Sheppard has had forty-nine years of experience with wonderful success. I am saying this of my own free will; the Doctor knows nothing about it. The knife, or x-ray, or radium is not used. These things are very dangerous. Dr. Sheppard kills the cancer by means of a salve, and the treatment is not painful either.

Your brother,
Jas. A. Patrick.

ALBERT SINGER

Albert Singer was born at Niagara-on-the-Lake on April 4, 1857, and died at his home on April 15. He had been ailing for the past two years and confined to the bed the last four months.

He was baptized by Bro. Austin a number of years ago and has been true to his faith ever since. He bore his pain with Christian fortitude and met the enemy with a hope that reaches beyond the tomb. He leaves a wife, two sons and one sister.

Funeral services were held at the home, after which he was laid to rest in the English Church Cemetery, near the farm home. The service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Curate Heathcote, of the Anglican Church.

C. E. Randall.

ROLLIE S. BREWER

Rollie S. Brewer was born in Miami County, Ohio, October 7, 1885, and died April 8, 1931. He was the youngest of the four children of D. A. and Lucinda Brewer.

On February 24, 1906, he was married to Edna Lehman. Just a few weeks ago they celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. This union was blessed with four children, Mrs. Edgar Demmitt of Dayton, Louise, Byron, and Kenneth.

Bro. Brewer came into the faith and was baptized by Bro. J. H. Anderson on November 15, 1914, and was ever a faithful member of the Brush Creek Church of God. The church has again lost one of its most faithful supporters.

Besides his wife and four children, and one grandchild, Duane Demmitt, he leaves one sister, Mrs. J. R. Furnas, and one brother, A. D. Brewer, of Troy, Ohio, and a host of friends who can truly say they have lost a noble man.

The writer spoke words of comfort from Malachi 3:17. We laid him to rest in the Brush Creek Cemetery to await the call of the Master, when, we believe, he will come forth in blooming immortality.

Jas. A. Patrick.

A QUADRUPLE FUNERAL

Mitchell Family Tragedy

Leila E. Robbins, born in Washington, Iowa, on April 19, 1876, was the daughter of a Baptist minister, and resided with her parents in different places until her marriage on November 28, 1901, to Stephen Mitchell. Since that date she and her husband have resided and reared a family of five children on the well known Mitchell farm in Carroll County, near Lanark, Illinois.

Mrs. Mitchell was a woman of education, appreciating culture and music, always ready to use her ability to advance Christian work. Especially did she love to encourage every effort at the little church near her home, commonly referred to among our church people as the Plum River church.

Alta M. Mitchell, oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mitchell, was born on the home farm on November 18, 1903. All her life was spent in the immediate vicinity. After graduating from the Lanark high school, she took work from the Northern Illinois State Teachers' College at DeKalb, and has taught eight terms of school. Possessing a true nature of service and devotion, Alta gave her life to Christ in young life and was baptized by the writer. Always faithful and earnest, Alta was an inspiration to other young people to live noble lives.

Ruby E. Mitchell, fourth child of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mitchell, was born on the home farm on January 1, 1913. All of her life was spent in the home community, where she was loved and respected for her true girlhood characteristics. Graduating from the Lanark high school last year, she at once took work in the college at DeKalb, and only last week received her teacher's certificate.

Ruby also was baptized into Christ by the writer, and was a faithful worker in the local church.

Doris E. Mitchell, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mitchell, was born on the home place on March 26, 1923. A sweet young girl, Doris had endeared herself to the home and friends during her eight brief years, and had displayed a thoughtful intelligence often beyond her age. Attending the school near her home, Doris had reached the fourth grade.

All four of the above met their tragic death when the car in which they were riding was struck by a train on April 11, 1931. This catastrophe, which almost completely wrecks the Mitchell home, also stuns and leaves in grief the entire community.

The immediate relatives remaining are the two other children, Harold living near the old home, Fern at home with the husband and father, and a brother of Mrs. Mitchell, Mr. Earle Robbins of Rockford, also two half-sisters, Mrs. Lucy Rider of Ann Arbor, Michigan, and Mrs. Nellie Conry, Garfield, Arkansas. These, with dozens of neighbors and friends mourn the results of one of the greatest family tragedies in Northern Illinois for many years.

Funeral services were conducted from the home and the Plum River church on Tuesday, April 14, and the four caskets were then placed side by side in one large grave in the beautiful Lanark Cemetery, where Sr. Mitchell and daughters await the Master's call.

F. E. Siple.

CURDELIA GRAY

Curdelia Almina Mitchell, the eldest daughter of Martin M. and Thirza Mitchell, was born in Berreman Township, Jo Daviess County, Illinois, on July 1, 1854.

In early life she accepted Christ as her Savior, was immersed by Elder Whitesitt, and lived a devoted Christian life to the end of life's journey.

On October 14, 1875, she was united in marriage to George W. Gray. To this union six children were born, Miss Bessie of Montana; Orpha, Mrs. A. L. Huestis of Santa Barbara, California; Jessie, Mrs. Floyd Timmer of Crookston, Minnesota; Walter C. of Los Angeles, California; Mrs. Ethel Hardacre, deceased, and Ulysses Samuel who died in infancy.

There are six grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Anna M. Wertz and Mrs. Almeda Grotfeldt, and one brother, Stephen Mitchell, besides a host of more distant relatives, and friends to mourn their loss.

Sr. Gray had been a regular attendant at Illinois conferences for many years and was known and respected by our people far and wide. She has been a faithful worker in the little class at Lanark, where she will be sorely missed.

A patient sufferer, Sr. Gray fell asleep in Christ at the close of a lingering illness, April 13, 1931. Two days later funeral services were conducted by the writer from the Church of the Brethren in Lanark, after which she was laid to rest in Lanark's beautiful cemetery, in which on the previous day her sister-in-law and three nieces were laid in one large grave.

Another faithful one awaits the coming of our Lord.

F. E. Siple.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates. — 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

To Stop Paper. — It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

PEACE WITH GOD

By Cecil Smead

"Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."—Rom. 5:1.

THE teaching of the Apostle is plain. It is now that we have peace with God, peace which comes because of our having been justified through the principle of faith. "The just shall live by faith."—Rom. 1:17. God has justified us by faith, and by faith in God and His Son we shall live, clothed in God's own righteousness. Only those who have that faith shall so live in eternity, clothed with that divine righteousness. We were enemies before being justified, so Rom. 5:10 tells us, but now we are "reconciled to God by the death of His Son".

What does it mean? Surely it cannot be that it took the death of the only righteous Man to appease the anger and fury of God? Such a thought is contrary to the very nature of God, for "God is love." Indeed, here in Romans 5, Paul says, "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

No matter what we are, or what we have done, God loves us. He loves every person in the world, and "will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth."—1 Tim. 2:4. The Greek word for, "will", in the above scripture comes from the root thelo and according to the lexicon means, "wishes or desires". It is the original wish or natural impulse in contrast with deliberate determination or reasoned resolve. The impulse may, however, lead to the resolve.

The natural impulse of God is to love man. His wish is that all might be saved. The natural impulse of man is not to love God; his tendency is to go away from God. God does not have to reconcile himself to man; man has to reconcile himself to God. The word "reconciled" in the above scripture in Romans is found to carry the proper meaning of "reconnected" or "reunited". That which is reconnected must have been connected, at some time previous, and somehow the connection must have been severed.

When man became an enemy, he cut himself off from God. On the other hand, if God had severed himself from man, all mankind would have died, for life cannot exist without God. No, man did the cutting off, because of his natural impulse away from God; and God, through His natural impulse toward man, has graciously provided a way whereby we may approach toward Him and be united to Him again by the bonds of mutual love. That was the purpose of Jesus' sacrifice, to open the way for a reconnection to God and to actually reconnect us. In no other way can we come to love God but by the blood of Jesus.

It is God's warm love shining through Jesus that softens our hard hearts. It is our hatred that must be appeased, not God's. Under the influence of the love of God and His Son, we turn and reciprocate that love. It is then that we are restored to union with Him, and it is then that God clothes us with His own righteousness, which is the only way we may ever come to possess immortality. It takes love that flows both ways, and faith in Jesus Christ is the channel through which it flows.

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16. God has opened the door of salvation for us; that door is Jesus Christ. Through Him we are set right, justified, pardoned; the way to reconnection is opened up. It is up to us to exercise our faith and demonstrate our love by accepting the invitation and entering through the door into the place of God's favor. God never did cease to love us. He has demonstrated that time and again. It is for us to turn from enmity to peace with Him. We turn in peace when we turn to Him in love, becoming reconciled, reconnected, reunited to the God of all grace.

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."—Rom. 8:28. God has justified us, and He will not lay anything to our charge. Jesus died for us and is risen again, and He will not condemn us. Therefore we know that we are secure with Christ in the favor of God, and nothing in heaven or earth can make us fall from that high position, as long as we continue to love God.

"That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Jesus Christ."—Eph. 2:7. It is difficult for us to comprehend the exceeding riches of His grace toward us, but we know that it is pure grace, inspired by His love for the world. We may not be able to comprehend how the righteous God could love a world which was in enmity against Him, but we know that He did and does, and the knowledge of it makes us want to turn to Him who loves us so, with that same feeling of love.

Therefore, because we turn in peace to Him who was always at peace with us, the exceeding riches of His grace will be showered on us in the ages to come. It is for you, and it is for me, to make peace with our God, if we have not already done so. Simply return His love to Him. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

May our rebellious hearts be melted by the sunshine of His love, which has been so freely shining upon us all. Allow the love of God so completely to fill us that our natural impulse shall come to be love too, and so get in tune with the One whose harmony fills the universe. Turn to him in peace. Let God's earnest desire to save have free power to work. Can we not love Him who loves us? Make peace with your God.

THE LEONID METEORS were first observed in A. D. 902. References to this year as the "year of stars" have been found in old manuscripts. Astronomers believe they may be seen between November 13 and 16 in either 1932 or 1933. In 1799 they were seen in spectacular numbers, and in 1833 there was a display of even greater magnificence.—S. E. H.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 28, 1931

NUMBER 30

BIBLE TRAINING CLASS 1930 - 1931

THE members of the Class of 1930 - 1931 are as follows: standing, Roland Wright, Gerald Cooper (Ill.), Cecil Smead (Calif.), Lucille LeCrone (Nebr.), Clarence Lapp (Wash.), Richard LeCrone, Harvey Krogh (Nebr.), seated, Allen Dietzman, Ednah Cooper (Ill.), F. L. Austin, teacher of the Bible; Mary A. Gesin, teacher of English and history; John Denchfield (Minn.).

The members of the Bible Training Class are anxious and willing to serve, and will be glad to help whenever the opportunity may present itself.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

TO OUR PARENTS WHO HAVE REARED US IN CHRISTIAN HOMES; WHO HAVE TAUGHT US THE GLAD TIDINGS; WHO HAVE GUIDED US IN THE DAYS OF OUR YOUTH, WHO HAVE INSTILLED INTO US THE DESIRE TO SERVE OUR GOD AND OUR SAVIOR AS THEIR SERVANTS; WHO HAVE SACRIFICED FOR US AND HAVE TAUGHT US THE REAL MEANING OF SERVICE, DO WE DEDICATE THIS ISSUE OF THE RESTITUTION HERALD.— CLASS OF 1930 - 1931.

WHAT DOES TO-MORROW HOLD?

IT IS with unalloyed pleasure that this issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD is sent out. From start to finish, in its editorial, its makeup, its circulation, it is the work of the Bible Training Class of 1930 - 31. These young people have gathered the materials, have arranged them and have been made responsible throughout for the issue. The responsibility was divided in the following way:

Management, Clarence Lapp and Richard LeCrone; editorial, Lucille LeCrone and Gerald Cooper; illustration, Harvey Krogh and Ednah Cooper; circulation, Cecil Smead and John Denchfield.

With God's guidance and attending blessings, another year should find several of these young people ready to go out into the ministerial, or Sunday School, or church field, with the purpose of giving the best that is in them to Christian work. The photograph will reveal to all that they are, without exception, entitled to the confidence of all.

It is with pleasure that this issue is presented and this Class is introduced to HERALD readers.

F. L. Austin.

IN APPRECIATION

WE, the members of the Bible Training Class, wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to Bro. F. L. Austin, editor, for the privilege of once more editing and circulating THE RESTITUTION HERALD.

We feel this is only one of the many privileges which we have enjoyed from Bro. Austin. Through the publishing of this issue, we are receiving an insight into some of the problems and opportunities before us. Through this issue, we hope to interest other young men and women in the work for which we are now studying. By this issue, we also have the opportunity of meeting you face to face.

We wish to thank Bro. Austin and Sr. Gesin, our teachers, for their constant help at all times. We feel that our advancement has been greatly affected by their deep consecration, and that our lives have been lifted to a higher plane of spiritual living by our daily contact with them.

We are thankful to our heavenly Father for these privileges which we have enjoyed from day to day.—C. E. L.

SERVICE WITH A SMILE

THE basis of success of all prosperous concerns is service. From the moment an employee commences his work with a firm, until the time he quits, he is taught that service is one thing that will be expected of him. Any employee who fails to give courteous and efficient service is liable to be discharged.

I know of one large concern whose motto is, "Service With a Smile". They want each employee to feel that he has an interest in the business. They want him to serve for the joy of serving and not just for the pay check he will receive.

We have chosen "Service" as the central theme of our publication and all the articles have been written on some phase of that subject. We feel that true Christianity is based on service, not a service of compulsion but of love. Paul in Galatians 5:13 says, "By love serve one another." Christ served all mankind, because of love and we should follow His example.

We are attending the Training Class to better fit ourselves to serve, not because we feel it is a duty, nor because of the reward we will receive, but because we love our Lord and want to serve Him to the best of our ability. We want to serve Him by serving you. Will you stand behind us and give us your loyal support and cooperation?—L. LeC.

TO FUTURE STUDENTS

ON BEREAN night during the General Conference of 1929, the sermon by Bro. Austin comes very vividly to mind. I do not remember the contents of the sermon so much as I do the appeal he made for the young people to give their lives to Christ in some manner or other. At the conclusion about eight young people dedicated themselves to be special workers for Christ.

This year three of those young people were in attendance at the National Bible Institution Training Class at Oregon. I know that some of the others are engaged in some special phases of the work of the Lord, but there are yet two or three who have not started preparing for this great dedication to their Master.

There are others, we know, who desire very much to attend the Training Class. There is no reason why they cannot come, if they so desire. They will find the teachers and the members of the Class ready to help them in every way. They will also find the class work interesting, instructive, and helpful.

Never before has the world needed upright, consecrated, young Christians, as badly as it does now. With crime holding sway in all parts of the country, with gang government controlling several cities, and with the entire country in a depressed financial condition, one who actually wishes to work for Christ can be kept busy most of the time.

Service is the theme chosen for this HERALD, because we know that serving the Lord is the greatest thing we can do. Oh! my friends and brothers, we appeal to you to dedicate your lives to Christ! Resolve to work for Him to the very utmost of your ability! This ability may be developed and enlarged if you arrange to come to Class next year, or during the years following.

May God bless and aid those that are so thinking, and help them to grasp the opportunity to become His servants and lead others to Christ.—G. C.

BY LOVE SERVE ONE ANOTHER

By Cecil Smead

THE universal church of God can hardly be limited to any one denomination. The members may come out of many denominations. Of that we may not judge. God and Christ alone have the authority and the discernment to judge in such matters. However, we do know that the church is great now, and that in the future kingdom of God it is to reign with Christ in glory.

God is building this great church with men and women. He is using them as instruments in His service, so that all men may hear the Word of Truth and have the opportunity of salvation. The church is responsible for the presentation of the gospel to all. If there is failure in any degree to hear that message, to that degree the church is failing to live up to the commandments of Christ. The gospel of salvation is perfect. It has been delivered to us to deliver to the world. By being true to the commandments of Christ, we can bring it to the attention of all the world.

Christ's earthly life was spent in teaching and perfecting a group of disciples, so that when He was gone, they might carry on the work of building up the church. Up to the last night He was with them in the flesh, He was working to complete their training. On that last night He pointed out a weakness which would stand in the way of their teaching the world, unless it was overcome.

Jesus had sent His disciples ahead of Him to prepare the last supper in a certain upper room and to be hosts to the rest of the party, when it arrived. Now, in those Eastern lands of dusty streets and sandaled feet, it was the custom for the host to provide a servant to wash the feet of his guests upon entrance into his house. If he had no servant, he did it himself. Now, evidently these two disciples were not quite humble enough, for they had no servant, and yet they neglected to perform that service themselves.

Jesus came with His disciples. Everything was in readiness for supper, excepting that their feet were unwashed. Jesus, seeing the condition of affairs, decided that this was a good opportunity to teach that last lesson which was so much needed. He arose, took a basin of water and a towel and proceeded to wash His disciples' feet.

After the task was completed, He said, "Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."

If He, their Lord and Master, condescended to serve them in so humble a capacity, Oh, how much more the Lord's servants everywhere should humble themselves in service to one another.

As we look into the history of the early church, we find that it did stand united in service and love to one another. Just read the account given in Acts. For example, "All that believed were together, and had all things common; and sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need. And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."—Acts 2:44-47.

Notice especially the last sentence. Because of their love and unity, the Lord was daily adding many to the church. You will find that to be true all through the history of the early church. United as they were in love, no persecutor was able to stamp out the divine fire of Christianity that had been kindled there in Palestine, but served only to scatter the sparks into new fields. Each spark sprang up into a new blaze, until now Christianity is the religion of millions, and the time is coming when the kingdom of Christ shall fill the world completely. When that time comes, it will be because love has become supreme in the hearts of all.

The fruit of love is humble service, and that is what we need in the church today. We, the Church of God, have a

(Continued on page 474)

THE CHRISTIAN WORKER'S GIFT

Laid on Thine altar, O my Lord divine,
Accept this gift today, for Jesus sake.
I have no jewels to adorn Thy shrine,
Nor any world-famed sacrifice to make;
But here I bring within this trembling hand
This Thou alone, O Lord, canst understand,
How when I yield Thee this, I yield mine all.

Hidden herein Thy searching gaze can see
Struggles of passion, visions of delight;
All that I have, or aim, or fain would be;
Deep loves, fond hopes, and longings infinite.
It hath been wet with tears and dimmed with sighs,
Clenched in my grasp till beauty it hath none!
Now from Thy footstool where it vanquished lies,
The prayer ascendeth—may Thy will be done.

Take it, O Father, ere my courage fail,
And merge it so in Thine own will that e'en
In some desperate hour my prayers prevail
And Thou give back my gift, it may have been
So changed, so purified, so fair have grown,
So one with Thee, so filled with peace divine,
I may not know, or feel it as my own,
But gaining back my will, may find it Thine.
—Selected.

SERVICE YOUR CHURCH

By Richard LeCrone

THOSE of us who own automobiles are very anxious that those autos should be kept in the best of running order. Not only is it very inconvenient and annoying to ride in an automobile that is not functioning properly, but often it is dangerous. The road over which we can ride with safety in a car that is mechanically perfect, becomes a definite menace to life in a car that cannot be depended upon to function properly in all of its parts. Moreover, to have the machine in good condition might be the means of saving a life at one time or another. We might be called upon to go for a doctor or to rush some injured one to the hospital. For these reasons we consider it not only highly desirable but very important that our auto be kept in the best possible condition.

An automobile is a highly complex machine, with many parts that must be kept working in harmony before it will run smoothly. We realize that the average man does not understand it well enough to be entrusted with the work of caring for it and keeping it in condition. Hence we take it to the man who has made a study of automobiles and has spent his life in servicing them. With a competent mechanic caring for our car, we can drive it with perfect confidence, knowing that it has received expert attention and is therefore likely to take us safely to our journey's end.

For much the same reason we patronize a competent physician. We realize that it is of the utmost importance to keep ourselves in the best health possible to us. We also recognize that the human body is a highly complex organism, every part of which must be kept in good condition, if the body as a whole is to be kept strong and healthy. Hence we commit the oversight or care of that body to one who has made a lifetime study of it. We would not think of committing it to the care of one who has had no special training as a physician, and we would be very hesitant to entrust it to the care of a man who practiced medicine merely as an avocation or hobby. In a day of specialization we demand a specialist.

In Ephesians 1:22, 23, we find the Apostle Paul, in speaking of God's dealings with Christ, making this statement: "And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all." Then turning to 1 Corinthians 12:12, 13, we read this statement: "For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body. . . so also is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit."

Reading on through the chapter, we find Paul carrying out more fully the simile of the human body and that of Christ, which is the church. He ends this particular explanation by saying, "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular". We find that the human body requires the services of a specialist to keep it at its utmost efficiency in the performance of our daily duties. How about the body of Christ? Are we to be less careful of His body than we are of our own? Paul explains that each part of Christ's body has its own work to perform, just as the members of the human body have, and that it is highly desirable and very necessary to have those members working in harmony. To keep these members in good spiritual health and to guide their activities, to keep them working in harmony is the work of a physician, a specialist, a trained worker—a minister of Christ.

We demand the care of an expert for our machinery. We will not commit our bodies to one who is not specially trained for the work of caring for them. Are we going to commit the care of the body of Christ, the church, to the care of one who is not trained for the work? Or worse still, are some of the body's parts to receive no attention at all? How shall we explain to the Master our careful regard for our own body and our neglect of His body which He has left in our care?

It is for the purpose of training men for this highly important work of ministering to the body of Christ, a work that may affect all eternity, that the Bible Training Class exists. It is worthy of your support. Have you one trained for the work of caring for your church?

EVEN CHRIST SERVED NOT HIMSELF

By Lucille LeCrone

MANY men and women are devoting their lives to serving others and are finding great happiness in so doing. Self and selfish wants and desires are forgotten. Their happiness comes from seeing and making others happy. Their service is prompted by love, not love of self but of fellow men. Many times the only pay they receive is the heartfelt gratitude and smiles of appreciation of the recipients.

The greatest example of One who gave His life in serving others is our Lord Jesus Christ. He who now sits at the right hand of God in heaven was, while on earth, the Servant of all. The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister or serve. His service was prompted by love, a love so great that He was willing to die on the cross in order that all might have salvation.

Christ possessed the power to perform miracles and did many great and marvelous works during His stay on earth. But never once did He use this power to benefit himself. He used it unreservedly when it would bring a blessing to His fellow men.

We have no way of knowing how many lame, sick, and blind He healed. In several places we read that great multitudes followed Him, and He healed them. They brought to Him people that were taken with different diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatics, and those that had the palsy, and He healed them.

Not only did He heal many of their sicknesses, but He restored some to life. To the dead son of the widow of Nain He said, "Young man, I say unto thee, Arise." And he that was dead sat up and began to speak!

He went to the home of the ruler whose daughter was dead and taking her by the hand, He said, "Maid, arise." And her spirit came again, and she arose at once. He then charged them that they should tell no man what He had done. He hadn't done it for pay. He didn't want praise and glory for doing it. He did it to manifest the power of God and to prove that He was indeed the Son of God.

Lazarus and his two sisters, Mary and Martha, were very dear friends of our Savior, and in their home He spent much time. One time while Jesus was absent from Bethany, Lazarus took sick and died. He had been dead four days, when Jesus returned. But Jesus went to the tomb and "cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go." Another service performed because of love, that He might prove that He was sent by God!

These are only a few of the many miracles He performed for others. Let us now take a glance at some of the instances in which He refused to use His power for His own benefit.

When Christ was led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil, He fasted forty days and forty nights and was afterward very hungry. The tempter said to Him, "Command that these stones be made bread." Christ knew He possessed the power to accomplish this, but He refused.

Again the tempter said, "Cast thyself down from the pinnacle of this temple; for the angels will take care of thee that thou dost not get hurt." Christ could have done this very thing and could have used His power to save himself from destruction, but again He refused. He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

Let us strive earnestly to follow our Master's example. Let us put aside all selfish thoughts and desires, and serve Him whole heartedly and completely by serving others.

HEART SERVICE, NOT LIP SERVICE

By C. E. Lapp

THE Jews of Christ's time were very strict about the exact observance of the law as given by Moses. They were, in a great many instances, over zealous in that they were obeying the letter and not the spirit of the law. The scribes and Pharisees were always trying to find some fault with Christ or His apostles, and one day they came to Him asking why the apostles did not observe the religious customs such as washing their hands before meals, etc.

Christ rebuked them in Matthew 15:7, 8, when He said, "Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying, This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips: but their heart is far from me."

True, they were hypocrites because they liked to pray before a large crowd or on the street corner, where they could be seen of men. They wanted all the high seats in the synagogues and desired that they should be called Rabbi, which is to say, Master. They always wanted everyone to see them give their alms or offerings.

They were not doing these different things to worship God, but they were doing them just to be seen of men. They were not serving from their hearts, because there was no love for God there. Christ told them that they were like whited sepulchres, which were beautiful to the outward appearance but inside were full of dead men's bones. Those Pharisees were indeed very religious to all outward appearances, but inside their hearts were full of sin and hypocrisy. It was this same sect of men who had killed the prophets in the days previous to this time.

The Pharisees were always telling others what to do, and how to live. They were always finding fault with the lives of others, but Christ told them very plainly that their own lives fell far short of what they taught. They were serving outwardly, but they failed in that they lacked the true spirit of worship and service, which comes only from the heart.

We criticize the Pharisees for their wicked lives, but let us turn the searchlight of God's Word on our own lives. In 1 Corinthians 3:16, Paul tells us that we are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in us. Very few people would ever know that we are God's temple by the way some of our lives look to those round and about us. Our tongues are quick to find fault with others, and we are often guilty of greater sins than those whom we judge. Very few keep God's temple clean and free from the dirt and filth of envy and jealousy and from greed and selfishness.

Christ told us to lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven, and we are doing quite the opposite many times. We are letting the cares of this life and the deceitfulness of riches lead us away from the path that Christ walked. We follow the pleasures of this world like a phantom hunter, and in the end we receive nothing but disappointments for our trouble. Christ also said to love our enemies, to do good to those that hate us, and to pray for them that spitefully use us. Each and every one of us can judge whether we keep these commandments or not.

He also said that we should do these things that we might become the children of our Father which is in heaven. If we do not humble ourselves and become as little children, we are to have no place in the kingdom of God.

May each and every one consecrate ourselves anew to that High Calling to which Christ has called us, putting aside the sin that so easily blocks our paths, and putting our whole heart into the service of the Master. May His words and teachings become a part of us that others may know we are Christians. May our religion mean more than a one-day-a-week display of goodness; may it be lived every day.

And last but not least, may we serve because we want to serve Christ and not because we think it compulsory. May we serve Him whole heartedly, so that He will not be saying of us: "This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me."

TIME is one thing of which we always have all that we need. We may not always have all the time we want, but that is another matter. We often want time to do things that God would not have us do; we often use time for such things; and then, of course, we are short of the time that we need to do the things we ought to do. But the person who "keeps in the center of the will of God" has plenty of time. As has been keenly said, "There is always time to do the will of God, if you do the will of God all the time." God is never short of time; He is the greatest worker in the universe, yet He always has all the time needed for His great work. His believing and obedient workers have as much time as He has.—Sunday School Times.

ACCORDING TO YOUR TALENT

By Harvey Krogh

"For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is me if I preach not the gospel!"—1 Corinthians 9:16.

PAUL said that though he preached the gospel, he had nothing wherein to glory, for of necessity it was placed upon him. He had great ability to teach and to preach the glad tidings of Christ, for he was a student of the law and well educated. The Lord had called and shown him the right and had instructed him to work. This is why Paul said, "Woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel."

Do you know what would have happened to Paul if he had not used his influence and power to preach? Christ gave a parable to the Jews one day that may answer our question. A man who was going away into a far country, gave each of his three servants a sum of money. When he returned, two of the servants had used the money for profit and given the money and the added sum to their master. The other servant hid the money that was given him and did not even put it on interest for his master. The master said, "Take therefore the talent from him and give it unto him which hath ten talents." Matt. 25:28. If Paul had not preached the gospel as he did, he would have been deprived of the gifts that God had given him, just as that unfaithful servant was deprived of his lord's talent. "For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away that which he hath." Matt. 25:29.

It is our duty to serve Christ with all our might, for the things that we have are not ours because we have been worthy of them, but we are given all things by the grace of God that we might serve Him better. Can you thank yourself for being a Christian? If God had not been willing, there would not have been even a Christ, and you would have had nothing. It is God to whom all thanks are due. It is He that you must serve.

You may say that it is impossible for you to be a minister. But there are many ways in which to serve. You may drop a helping word here and there, or you may tell your friend of Christ and bring him to church. "But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive and gave gifts to men." Eph. 4:7, 8. He gave some the gift of prophecy, some the gift of teaching, some to be evangelists, and some to be pastors.

Your gift may be large, or it may be small. If you can serve only in a small way, do it to the best of your ability. Remember the poor widow who gave the two mites. The Lord said that was all her living, and it was very small, but she gave more than all the others. Let us serve according to the measure of the gift that Christ has given to us. If we love Him, we will serve Him.

OUR EXAMPLE IN SERVICE

By Gerald Cooper

NO DOUBT, my friends, our Lord and Redeemer lived the greatest life of service that any man before or since has lived.

The first example of service to His God is mentioned in the second chapter of Luke. Christ had been to Jerusalem with His parents for the feast of the passover, being but twelve years old at the time. He became separated from His mother and Joseph, but they supposing Him to be with some relatives, did not worry. After a while they missed Him and returned to Jerusalem to seek for Him. After three days of searching everywhere for Him, they found Him in the temple, conferring and talking with the learned men and teachers of the time.

It would take a very precocious child of twelve of this day and age to be able to talk to senators and presidents intelligently. Nevertheless here was Christ, and even His mother was amazed. When she rebuked Him for staying behind, He answered: "How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" There He was, still a child in age but not in thought, serving His God even to the extent of causing anxiety to Mary, His mother, and to Joseph.

Later in the life of Jesus, when He was being tempted of the devil, each time that the devil tempted Him, He answered by quoting some word of God from the Old Testament scriptures. In Luke 4:13 we find these words: "And when the devil had ended all the temptation he departed from him for a season." Thus we find that Jesus through serving God and using His word for a snare to trap the devil, overcame temptation. How much better it would be if we would fight temptation with the Word of God.

All through His life Jesus served God with all His heart and soul. Every miracle that He performed, every word that He preached—everything was done only with a thought of truly serving His God and Father. The crowning part, however, of His life of service to God was His last days on earth.

After Christ had comforted His disciples against tribulation we find these words in John 17:1, "Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee." Christ wanted to die and be glorified afterward, but not for His own sake. He wanted to glorify and serve His Father in heaven, even as we at all times should be willing to do.

We find that many situations arose and that the time drew near for Christ to die. Judas Iscariot, whom many people follow rather than Christ and God, betrayed Him into the hands of the soldiers and angered Jews, and left Him at their mercies.

While Judas was doing this, we find our Lord and Savior praying in the garden of Gethsemane. He had just left three of His disciples to watch for Him while He went to pray. As He prayed, He was in utter agony. And He said, "O, my Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not as I will but as thou wilt." Imagine again His distress when He went back and found His disciples that He had left to watch sleeping! He rebuked them and returned to the garden to pray. Again He prayed, "O, my Father, if this cup may not pass from me, except I drink it, thy will be done." He prayed once more the same words and then went to His cruel fate. All through that night and part of the next day, He was tormented and suffered much for His God and Father.

What was His reward for His diligence? He is now sitting at the right hand of the Majesty on High, Heb. 1:4. He is to be King over all the earth, Luke 1:32, 33, and the church is to be joint heir with Him, Rom. 8:17.

Do you know of a better example for a Christian to follow than that of Christ? Will not the Christian be tempted as sorely as Christ? Will not the Christian have as many opportunities to be about his Father's business as Christ had? Will he not be able to serve his God, even to death as did Christ?

There is, my friends, no better Example for a Christian to follow than that of Christ, his Lord and Savior. When he is tempted, he should reply with the Word of God, which is sharper than a two edged sword. When he is beckoned by the world to come and follow its way, he should reply, "I am about my Father's business. I cannot come."

When he is in such a predicament that it seems almost impossible for him to escape, he should pray to God and say as Christ did in the garden, "Nevertheless thy will, not mine be done."

Let us use Christ as our Pattern; and our reward, if we are faithful, will be everlasting life. "How be it for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might show forth all longsuffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe in him to life everlasting." 1 Timothy 1:16.

WE THANK YOU

WE wish to take this opportunity to thank one and all who by their support, either through prayer or financial means, have made this Class edition of the HERALD possible.

We appreciate the prayers that have gone up to the heavenly Father in our behalf, and in behalf of the Training Class work. God hears and answers prayer, and we are sure that He brings things to pass that we in our poor human way would never be able to accomplish.

Your financial backing is also appreciated. We hope and pray that it will not have been spent in vain, but will bring forth fruit of far greater value than the original investment.

C. E. Lapp, Manager.

THE PURPOSE AND THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF THE TRAINING CLASS

By G. Eldred Marsh

THE work of the Church of God in this present age is two-fold: first, to preach the gospel of the kingdom of God in its simplicity and power throughout the world; and second, to build up the individual members of the body of Christ in spiritual understanding and service. To successfully carry out this divine commission, it is necessary that the church should be provided with competent leadership, men and women in whom is combined those qualities of heart, and mind, and experience, that make them available for the service of the Master.

The church rightly demands a better educated ministry today than ever in the past. For the public advocate of the "faith once delivered to the saints" must be able to meet on their own intellectual and cultural grounds the modern opposer of the religion of Jesus Christ. His education must be broader, deeper, fuller than was before required. He must be a thoughtful student of the Bible and other religious books, and further, he must possess a more or less comprehensive grasp of the trend of modern thought along many lines. He must know what men are thinking about out in the world, or he will neither be able to understand them, nor to approach them in such a way as to arouse their attention and hold their interest. He must be "all things to all men", if he would save some of them.

Further, the defender of the faith must be able to clearly distinguish between truth and error. He must "try the spirits" of modernism and higher criticism to "see if they be of God". He must be firmly entrenched in the great fundamentals of the gospel, and be "ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh . . . a reason for the hope" that he entertains, both "with meekness and fear" and with convincing logic.

The minister of Jesus Christ today, as in the past, must be an individual of the highest moral standards, one who exemplifies as well as preaches the "righteousness that comes by faith". But even more than that, he must be possessed of deep spiritual convictions and experience, that he may radiate the very spirit of the Lord in love and in service.

These necessary pastoral and evangelistic qualities are not found fully developed in any one person, but they are latent in all. The purpose of the Training Class has ever been the cultivation of these dormant possibilities, the building up and strengthening of these essential elements of character. The result thus far has been eminently satisfactory. There has not been one of these young ministers of the Word, who has finished the prescribed course in the class and has been sent out to serve our Lord Jesus Christ, who would not be a credit to any religious company, and whose life and attainments are not worthy of respect.

That the Training Class is supplying the Church of God with able, faithful, and spiritually minded ministers is apparent to all. May God continue to bless those consecrated instructors whose duty it is to direct the progress of these young people, and the individual members of the class is my prayer.

THE JOY OF SERVICE

By Mary A. Gesin

"For the joy that was set before him (Christ) endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

MANY of the things that we do in life, we perform because they are in the line of our duty. We reap no benefit from the doing except the satisfaction that comes from a duty well done. We hear folks speak of what they sacrifice for this or that person, or cause, as though it were more or less of a drudgery.

He, who went about doing good, often receiving rebuffs in return; He, who was tender and kind to all, many times being treated harshly as a result; He, who loved mankind so much that He willingly suffered the cruelest of deaths—the Savior of men—endured it all for the joy that was set before Him.

What was the joy that was set before Him? In order to be recipient of that abundant life, that life immortal, that life which knows not the limitations of the flesh, He must surrender the natural life. And to be able to pass that life unending on to His faithful ones, He must first receive it himself; He must unlock the portals of death so that all may pass through. To be able to do all this was joy unspeakable to our Savior.

We are promised joint partnership in all that came to the Master, if we will follow Him faithfully to the end. Finite mind is not able to grasp the fullness of its meaning—life unending in the beauty of perfection, working together with our Master—and all this for a few short years of service now. We will never be called upon to endure the sufferings He endured, and yet we will share that abundant reward which His Father has given Him.

One of the real joys of my life is the opportunity of working with the group of young folks who are members of the Training Class. It is an inspiration to work side by side with such sincere, upright, clean young Christian men and women, and it is a responsibility, too, that cannot be measured. I pray God daily I may not fall short of it.

And to you, and you, and you, all over this broad land, who are making it possible, by your loyal cooperation, for these young folks to study together in order to go out to labor efficiently in the whitened harvest fields—to you may the vision of the joy of service be an inspiration and an uplift, as we go onward together, until we rest from our labors, or our Lord shall come.

THE BIBLE TRAINING CLASS WHAT IS IT?

By L. E. Conner

SOME years ago the National Bible Institution added to its other adjuncts of religious endeavor the Bible Training Class, to supply, if possible, a crying demand for additional pastors for our churches, and evangelists to do pioneer work in spreading the gospel of Christ.

With no funds to meet necessary expenses and with no facilities, worthy of the name, for housing and caring for those connected with the work as teachers or students, the work was started. And, regardless of the continued lack of what is generally considered as absolute necessities in carrying on such work, it has been carried on successfully, gradually growing in interest and importance. It is no longer an adjunct of the Institution; it is an integral part of the N. B. I., so important a part, indeed, that we could not think of dispensing with it.

One of the most delightful and encouraging experiences one has, when visiting and inspecting the departments of the N. B. I., is meeting and conversing with the members of the Training Class—the future leaders, evangelists, and pastors of our churches. One is at once put at ease and feels quite at home with them. They are kind and affable, but not gushy nor forward. Their conversation is clean and sound. In a word: they impress one with the thought that they are not up in the air, wandering about, but standing with both feet solidly on the ground, ready to go forward.

The Training Class is no longer in the experimental stage. It has and is operating successfully, as one of the three essentials of the N. B. I., namely, The Publishing Plant, The Home, and The Bible Training Class, and it merits our united support in every way in which it may be given.

It is regrettable that all of our people cannot visit and inspect the N. B. I. headquarters and become acquainted personally with the Training Class, both students and teachers, and observe the kind, the nature, and the quality of the work they are doing. False impressions have been entertained by some relative to the purpose and methods employed in the training of these students. They are not drilled in some man-made creed and confessions of faith, so called, but rather are they instructed as to how to concentrate in the study of the Scriptures, church history, the proper use of words and the English language in expressing their thoughts, etc., leaving their minds free from prejudice in the study of God's Word.

The purpose and effort is to instruct them as to how to study, and distinguish and separate truth from error, and how to simplify and give intelligent and acceptable expression to thoughts thus formed, leaving them free to apply the principles thus learned, in gathering and dispensing of God's truth.

The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few. More power to the Bible Training Class and the Institution and the friends that support and sustain it!

PRESS TOWARD THE MARK

By F. L. Austin

PAUL was a man of zeal. He pressed toward his mark. Well he might, for the mark toward which he pressed was the highest goal ever placed before man. If there is any reason to induce one to zealously, continuously press toward the mark, Paul had it.

Paul's reason is ours also. The same goal, set by the same God, is before us. If it took zeal, enthusiasm, untiring labor upon the part of the Apostle, for him to render faithful service to his God and to his Savior, it takes no less from Christians of today.

To the clergy of the Church of God, I exhort, let us "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus". Let our zeal be a testimony of our earnestness and of our anxiety to attain unto that thoroughness of service and devotion that is pleasing unto God.

Work while it is called today. As in profane service, so in the Christian field, there is always room at the top for the zealous, the earnest, the thorough, the faithful worker. If there is anyone on God's earth who should have joy, and gladness, and encouragement to work hard, it is the man or the woman whose life is consecrated "to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood". Acts 20:28. The true, loyal, devoted worker always has work.

To the Church of God, I exhort, work the works of God. More than all other groups of mankind, the church should be a group of workers. That church that forges ahead on the main thoroughfare, pressing toward "the high calling of God in Christ Jesus", prospers. That church which lingers in God's beautiful sunshine to gossip or wrangle about questions, small or great, and does not launch out on Heaven's great highway of prayer, and faith, and service can never expect to stand as a faithful witness and a testimony unto Him whose name it has espoused.

It is doubtful if real, true, actual work ever failed. Especially is this true, if the worker has committed himself earnestly and faithfully unto Christ, who has promised to be "with you always, even unto the end of the world".

Work is a pleasure. It is tonic for those who are really alive. That man or that church that dallies is ailing. That man who would presume to receive a full wage or income for a half-hearted, dilatory labor is untrue to himself and untrue to his God. That church which likewise would expect of God to receive full reward and full glory for a trivial, light-hearted, indifferent service to God, is certainly expecting something for nothing.

To the prospective students of the Bible Training Class

I would offer this suggestion: to that student who wishes to work, who wishes to really "press toward the mark", there is opportunity for all that he can put into the Master's field. There is room at the top, abundance of it. The great world is crying as never before for real, true, earnest workers. If you have a "mind to work", to work for the Master, to work with the Master, I exhort you to enter quickly upon your labor of study and of research, and with Paul "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

OUR REASONABLE SERVICE

By John Denchfield

YEARS ago the Israelites, God's chosen people, performed many sacrificial rites. Goats, bullocks, lambs, and doves were killed and offered unto God as sacrifices for the sins of the people. These were all sacrifices, but not living sacrifices. How, then, can we present our bodies a living sacrifice? There is but one way, and that is to give ourselves, as we are today, in service to God. To become a living sacrifice means to give all one's own desires and to become wholly obedient to our Lord; to say, even as Christ said, "Thy will be done."

We read that as a result of a victory for the Roman legions thirty thousand prisoners were forced to pass, one by one, under the yoke. This signified their complete submission to their conqueror. From that time on they became as slaves to the will of their master.

Christ says, "Take my yoke upon you". We are asked to submit to our Father, to obey His will. We are not forced to do so. Christ says, "take". Paul says, "I beseech . . . that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice"; then he adds, "which is your reasonable service".

If you were to ask me to assist you in some task, you would, no doubt, consider it your reasonable service to assist me in return as soon as opportunity afforded. The same is true in this statement given by the Apostle. We can ask with the Psalmist: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him?" God created man, gave him air to breathe, food to eat, and clothing to wear. He has given him everything, even to the privilege of living. He provides us with the energy with which we perform our work. Then we turn around, look at our accomplishments, and say, "That's my work". What is man? In himself he is just nothing. All depends upon God, the Creator and Sustainer of all! "In him we live and move and have our being." Indeed, it is our reasonable service to give ourselves in service to God, our Creator.

Beside all this, we cannot forget the supreme sacrifice which Christ made for you and me. He died on the cross, paying the price of sin that you and I might become reconciled to God, that He might, in place of the grim reality of death, set before us life and immortality. He loved us with a love so great that He gave himself for us, while we were yet in our sins. We should give ourselves unto Him, doing all we can for Christ who died for us.

Many times we neglect giving ourselves to Him because we feel that we are not capable of doing His work. We say, "Oh, I'm afraid I can do so little that it will hardly help at all." Let us remember that it's the mass of little things which really accomplish all great things. On the other hand, we sometimes feel that we are so well talented that our services will not be fully appreciated in His work. O vain man! May we never forget that God furnished us with those talents.

Many times you have presented your friends and loved ones with gifts in order to express your love for them and to show your appreciation of them. Give, present yourself to God! Use the talents He has given you in service unto Him. Christ, when speaking to the fishermen, said, "Launch out into the deep, and let your nets down for a draught." Luke 5:4. He asked them to use the same nets they had been using, although they had been bringing them nothing. They obeyed His word and gathered many fish. Christ wants you to serve, as you are.

Resolve to give yourself, your all today, even now, in obedient service unto God, our Lord and Creator! It is your reasonable service. You can do nothing more; you should do nothing less! "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

BY LOVE SERVE

(Continued from page 467)

responsibility laid upon us which we might profitably recognize. It is to bring the teachings of Christ and the plan of salvation to the attention of the world. We must let them know that we are the disciples of Christ, that they might have the opportunity to unite with us in Christian fellowship. The only way the world may know, or we may know that we are His disciples is by realizing that we are living true to His teachings. The greatest service we can ever perform for the world is to show them Christ. The only way is to unite in love, in order to serve.

Loving service was needed in the early church, and it is needed now. Let's be in harmony. We don't have time to quarrel. We have a service to perform without delay. Christ may come at any time. Then if our neighbor has failed to accept Christ, it will not be because our lives have not pointed Christ out to him.

It is our most sincere desire that all may be saved. That desire we have because of the love of Christ in our hearts. That love finds expression in service, the service that doesn't want one mortal to be lost, but rejoices with the angels in heaven when one sinner turns from the error of his way and unites with us in the love that serves.

That rejoicing is clouded because many never hear or turn. Don't let the blame for their loss be laid at your door. The service of your love shall make them hear.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"KNOW YE NOT THAT TO WHOM YE YIELD YOURSELVES SERVANTS TO OBEY, HIS SERVANTS YE ARE TO WHOM YE OBEY; WHETIHER OF SIN UNTO DEATH, OR OF OBEDIENCE UNTO RIGHTEOUSNESS?"—Rom. 6:16.

O B E D I E N C E

LOYALTY, honesty, ambition, perseverance, and promptness are all traits of character we admire in a person. They are traits any business man likes in an employee. But there is one thing he requires of all his employees, and that is obedience. Not only is this true in the business world, but it is also true of man's relation with God.

God expects us to be obedient. It was the first thing He required of man. After placing Adam and Eve in the garden He told them that they might eat of every tree there except the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. He expected them to obey this command, but they failed to do so, and as a result they were punished by being driven from the garden. Not only was this done, but a curse was placed upon the earth. Their disobedience affected not only themselves but the whole world.

Noah obeyed God when He told him to build the ark, and his life and that of his wife, of his sons and their wives were spared.

Christ was obedient to the will of His Father, even unto death on the cross. "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." Heb. 5:9.

Obedience always brings a reward. If we obey the commands of God our reward will be eternal life. Is it worth while to be obedient?

Lucille LeCrone, Nebraska.

BARREN OR FLOWERING

As we travel our Christian journey, beautiful glimpses, miniature pictures of God's promises, are presented to our vision. A few years ago a large field, some ten acres, across the street from our home, grew up in weeds. Large iron weeds grew six and eight feet in height, while other kinds added to the general ugliness. At night or even during early evening people walked on our side of the street.

After a few years the field was taken into the city; enterprising men leased it and made it into a beautiful park. There is now a stretch of beautiful green lawn, shrubbery that delights the eye and splashes of golden yellow forsythias among the green. Later there will be flowers of various hues.

Whenever my eye rests on this beautiful spot, my thoughts travel to Isaiah 35:1, 2. "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God."

Our Christian journey can have beauty and gladness, according to the extent to which the Word of God dwells in us. Proverbs 4:18.

Mrs. Emma Garard, Dayton, Ohio.

THE SUNFLOWER is one of the brightest of our flowers. It lends cheer to many a spot that would otherwise be drab and colorless. This flower turns always toward the sun, following the direction of its course until it sets in the west.

We radiate the atmosphere in which we live and the thoughts upon which our minds are centered. If we brood over the misfortunes, the ills, and the adverse turns which events may take, we show it in our conduct and dispositions. Thus we reflect sorrow and gloom.

If we push our worries into the background and let our minds dwell upon the pleasant things that God puts into the lives of each of us, there will be that about us which makes others happy to see us come and lighter hearted when we leave.

Are you a sunflower? Keep your face turned toward the "Light of the World" and your rays will illuminate the lives of all those you meet on life's pathway.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 15; Ohio, 12; Michigan, 6; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

THE number of days that Jesus would be with His disciples was growing less. He was trying to impress them with the need of faithfulness and work. He told them the following parable for that purpose: "The kingdom of heaven is as when a man going into a far country, called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. Unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one: to each according to his several ability; and he went on his journey."

The man who received five talents traded so that he soon had ten talents. The man with the two did likewise and had four talents ready. But the one with the one talent was either lazy, or ignorant, or cross; for he dug a hole in the earth and buried his one talent. In other words, he made no use of what he had.

After a long time the Master returned and called His servants before Him. The first two brought all their talents and reported to the Master that they had worked hard and doubled the amount He had entrusted to their care. He was very much pleased, because He saw that they had done their best. He said to each of them, "Well done thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." They had proved themselves faithful and worthy to be trusted to positions of even greater responsibility.

But alas for the third servant! He thought it hardly worth while to use only one talent for starting in business. Now, if he had had as much as the other two, it might be worth while. He showed his resentment and lack of respect when he said to his Master: "Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed: and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine."

No wonder the Master said, "Thou wicked and slothful servant, you know you could have done a great deal with the amount I gave you, and if you had done your best, you would have felt that I was a kind and good master. Your excuses are useless. If you knew I was such a hard master, why did you not work harder? There is no other place for you but on the outside, in the outer darkness." Then the one talent was taken from him and given to the one with the most ability.

It was a hard lesson or punishment to suffer. And we must profit from this story and use whatever talents or even the one talent that we possess. Each person can do something and will be called to account for that something.

ARE WE using our talent for the Master's service?

A CHILD'S EVENING PRAYER

"I will both lay me down in peace and sleep; for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety."

DEAR HEAVENLY FATHER: I thank Thee for Thy love that guards me like my mother's love, and for Thy care that keeps me safe, even as my father protects me. This night I shall rest happily so that I may be strong and ready for my work and my play tomorrow. Bless all other little children especially those who have not good homes or loving parents, and may their friends be glad to help them. If any are sick, wilt Thou comfort them tonight and make them well again. And may we all find refreshment and gladness in these coming hours of darkness, knowing that Thy love is as sure as the sun which will waken us in the morning to call us from our sleep and cheer us through another day. Amen.—Rev. R. W. Barstow.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Act out this parable.
2. Write a list of your talents and how you can use them.
3. Read 2 Timothy 4:1-8.
4. Learn 1 Corinthians 4:2.

How does the second verse of Isaiah 35 start?

WE BELIEVE in repentance. Acts 3:19.

"Repent ye therefore; and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord."

GIVING OUR BEST

Think not on yesterday, nor trouble borrow
On what may be in store for you tomorrow,
But let today be your incessant care.
The past is past, tomorrow's in the air.
Who gives today the best that in him lies,
Will find the road that leads to clearer skies.

—John K. Bangs

With Our Sunday Schools

· LESSON 6. — May 10, 1931

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

Luke 19:11-26

Devotional Reading: Psalm 103:11-18

GOLDEN TEXT

It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.—1 Cor. 4:2.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Partners With Jesus.

Basic Truth. "We then, as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain."—2 Corinthians 6:1.

I. Its Beginning. Just as Jesus gave many parables, each illustrative of the kingdom of God, just as the Old Testament cites many characters, each a type of Jesus, so there are various illustrations of the relationship between Jesus and His church. In Ephesians 5 that relationship is likened unto that of husband and wife; in 1 Corinthians 12 it is likened unto the relation between the head and the members of the body; in Romans 6:16-22, it is likened unto that of the master and his slave. In this lesson the relationship might easily be taken as that of partners. Partnership at once carries the thought of like interest, like participation, like results.

This partnership with Jesus can never begin until we, the individuals, renounce allegiance to any and every other interest. The Christian is baptized unto Christ, Rom. 6:2, 3; Gal. 3:27; Matt. 28:19. In this he becomes dead to all former allegiance, before Jesus receives him into His own partnership. He is "made free from sin", Rom. 6:22, 7, and is wholly free to render service unto Christ.

II. Its Duties. One common aim and ambition and destiny must pervade any partnership. In this partnership with Jesus, He is the Head. He designates the aim and indicates the end in view.

In our lesson the nobleman regarded his servants as his partners. He so rewarded them on his return.

Jesus, the Head of our partnership, is yet absent on His journey to receive His kingdom. We, His partners, are duty bound to render service always conducive to His best interests.

Christians are partners in the Savior's suffering. The word "communion", in 1 Cor. 10:16, is by the Diag. rendered "participation". This is in agreement with the word "partakers" in v. 17. Both words come from the Gr. root, meaning partners, or partnership. Thus Jesus was not the only one to suffer. We must suffer with Him. Cf. 2 Cor. 1:5 and Phil. 3:10.

Christ's Christian partner is to present himself, Rom. 12:1, "a living sacrifice". He is not to resent, if need be, the giving of his entire being for the cause of his chief Partner.

During the Savior's absence He has apportioned to each one of His several partners a proper measure of the Spirit of God. This is given to each one "to profit withal". 1 Cor.

12:7. Like the parable of our lesson, each one is responsible for his use of that gift, for his use of God's Word, for his use of God's name.

These responsibilities continue till the Lord shall return. Thereafter in a larger and richer manner they continue without end, as His partners are respectively assigned positions of increased responsibility by Him who is the Head.

III. Its Results. This partnership eventually results in the lesser partners being molded and fashioned like unto the greater Partner, Phil. 3:20, 21, in that the lesser partners become "joint heirs with Christ" of all that He shall receive from His Father. See Rom. 8:16, 17; Heb. 1:12.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Occupy: Work is a blessing, not a curse. This is not only true with the temporal things of life, but is equally true in the spiritual realm. The person that is physically and mentally able to work and doesn't do so, doesn't amount to much. The professing Christian who is lazy and dilatory is of little worth to the cause of Christ. The church needs energetic workers.

A Christian

- must do with his might what his hands find to do;
- having put his hand to the plow and looking back is not fit for the kingdom of God;
- must occupy, for the fields are white already to harvest;
- should redeem the time, for the days are evil;
- knows that the night cometh, when no man can work.

Dependable: The work of Christ is being performed by His workers. He has planned no other way. He is counting on you to be faithful. It is poor policy to betray confidence. His trust is worthy of your loyalty. It is going to be a great day when we can appear before our Master as faithful stewards and say, "I have done the best I could." Our report then will depend upon our faithfulness to duty now.

Dependable

- service is the need of the hour;
- people are always in demand;
- Christians are getting fewer;
- stewards will be fully recompensed.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful."—1 Corinthians 4:2.

A steward is one who takes care of some thing for another. If he is faithful to his trust, the business goes on as usual or as the owner would have it do; but if the steward is unfaithful there is a decided loss to all concerned.

Are we not stewards in the cause of the Master? If we are, do we do our duty faithfully or are we slothful and unfaithful? When the Master comes, will we hear, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord", or will we hear, "Thou wicked and slothful servant" and be cast into outer darkness?—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

"You own a farm for which you have a clear title. You say it is yours. Yes, but it is not absolutely. Back of your title, the government always holds a right to your farm. Based upon this right, the state levies taxes, which must be paid before you take out even your own living. Back of and superior to the claim of any human government, is God's claim. And what is God's claim? Let God in His Word answer. 'The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord.' Haggai 2:8. 'Every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. I know all the fowls of the mountains: and the wild beasts of the field are mine. . . . The world is mine, and the fullness thereof.' Psa. 50:10-12. We are stewards. God is our Master."—J. G. Bishop.

Every Christian is a steward to whom has been given little or much, as the case may be. Poor indeed is that one who has not received some talent, some ability that God does not hold him accountable for. Silence! A moment of meditation, please. What talent has been given me for which God holds me in strict account?—F. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

This lesson is another one of Jesus' stories or parables to teach us a lesson. Read the story carefully. Here are the main points: (a) The nobleman gives each of his servants a pound (money) for them to use for him; (b) he departs for a far country; (c) he returns and asks for an account of the use of his money; (d) the first gained ten pounds; (e) the second gained five pounds; (f) the last had not used his at all; (g) the reward of each. Now in your own mind which one was the best servant?

Jesus represents the nobleman. He has gone to a far country (heaven). He has given us all some talents to use for His cause. Some sing; others are good readers; others have such sweet smiles, etc. These are all to be used for Jesus.

Use your talents for Jesus.—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

GREETINGS

To you, friends, who are reading The Restitution Herald for the first time, we wish to extend our hand in greeting. A mutual friend has brought us together. That friend thought that we would both enjoy the acquaintanceship and derive some benefit from it.

The Herald is always interested in you, whoever you may be who happen to read it. It takes great pleasure in meeting you and sincerely desires to know more about you and your aims, your problems, your joys, and your sorrows.

We hope that you will read the pages of this number and derive pleasure and benefit from so doing. We hope that you have seen and enjoyed many of the Christian principles and teachings which are contained in these columns. And we hope that you have become interested in the Bible Training Class which edited this special number.

Now, would you like to hear more of the Class and its work? Would you like to have Christian truths and ideals brought to your notice often? Would you like to keep in touch with the great body of people in this land who stand behind the National Bible Institution and the Training Class?

If so, the National Bible Institution is willing to cooperate with you by deducting twenty-five percent from the regular subscription price of The Herald. It will be sent to you the first year for $1.50.

Take advantage of this special introductory offer at once and begin now to reap the benefits and derive the enjoyments that come from having The Herald as a weekly companion. It will exert all its energies to advise you, cheer you, and rejoice with you as a true friend should.

Send your order in today. Address the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

Sr. Leila Whitehead of Chicago spent the past week end with Sr. Leota Hanson and other friends at St. Louis.

Prints of the class picture found on the front page of this issue may be obtained for Five Cents each. Address, Gerald Cooper, Ripley, Illinois.

Sr. F. L. Austin of Chicago is spending her spring vacation week with Bro. Austin at Oregon, and is assisting with the music at the church services.

Bro. C. E. Lapp will conduct the services, both morning and evening, at Oregon, Sunday, May 3, while the pastor, Bro. Austin, is at Grand Rapids.

Bro. and Sr. Austin and Bro. Lapp, and Bro. and Sr. Wm. Ling of Rochelle, Illinois, attended the Passion Play at Bloomington on April 25. It was deeply appreciated by them.

We are glad to report that Bro. James Rogers of Tucson, Arizona, has fully recovered and is able to be at school again. His mother is remaining at Tucson until the end of the school year. In the meantime Sr. Rogers is being greatly missed at her accustomed place at the organ in the Oregon church.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio
Sr. Ella Rose,	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sr. Edna Brewer,	Troy, Ohio
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Sr. Harry Thomas	Graytown, Wis.
Sr. May Moore	Bartley, Nebr.

Sr. Anna Perrine has been very ill at the hospital at Lakeland, Florida, and Bro. Perrine requests the prayers of the brethren in her behalf.

Sr. May Moore, Bartley, Nebraska, writes to tell us that she enjoys the Prayer Column and thinks that the thought of a prayer circle a very good one and much needed by all. She requests her name to be added to the list.

South Bend, Indiana.
Dear Brethren: Will you kindly add the name of Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Indiana, to the list for prayer? He is five years old, and has not walked since last September. He has inflammation of the heart and anemia, the effects of scarlet fever. He has been sick for over two years, and the doctor says he may possibly live four months.

James says that the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

A sister in Christ,

Mrs. Lynn Leighty.

Dear Editor: Please enter the name of Sr. Harry Thomas, of Graytown, Wisconsin, in your Prayer Column. She has undergone a very serious operation at the Fair View Hospital at Minneapolis. We, the church at Graytown, ask the prayers of all the brethren for her.

We trust that Sr. Thomas will soon be on the road to recovery. She would be glad to get a word of cheer from any of the brethren. Her address is: Mrs. Harry Thomas, Fair View Hospital, Sixth Street and Twenty-fourth Ave., South, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Your sister in Christ,

Mrs. Ed Engebretson.

OUR EASTER OFFERING

Previously reported	$365.62
Mattie Benjamin	5.00

Totals	$370.62
--------	----------

The Easter Offerings for this year manifest a loyalty and cooperation on the part of the brethren which is deeply appreciated. Add your prayers that God will guide in all things.

Alfred Hetrick and wife and Sr. William Fey of Ripley, Illinois, visited in Oregon, Illinois, over the past week end, bringing with them Sr. Margaret Cooper, who is finishing her school year at Rushville, Illinois.

The Illinois Bible School convenes this year on August 4 and continues over August 16. Two good instructors have thus far been secured. Sr. Verna Thayer will again act as Matron and will also have charge of the primary department. Bro. Earl Thayer will have charge of the intermediate class—those of the ages of 8 to 13. Begin to plan now to be in attendance.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Beautiful spring weather and good attendance at services still are in evidence at the South Lawn Park church. All are getting ready for the special week end that is planned to begin Friday of this week. Bro. Austin is to be with us, and the mortgage is to be burned at the Sunday afternoon service.

In order to give an idea of how full the work is here, we mention that our regular weekly program includes the Sunday School and two sermon periods on Sunday, the teachers' training class on Tuesday night, choir practice, Wednesday, Berean, Thursday, with orchestra once per week (likely Friday night hereafter) and Doreas during the day, every alternate Thursday. All of these are regular, besides the extra matters that come up from time to time. It is a busy church, but our people are workers, and that is why results are obtained.

Plans are being made for the annual conference and Bible school to be held here in June. A cordial invitation is extended to all.
F. E. Siple, Pastor.

MORE ADDITIONS AT CLEVELAND

We are glad to be able to report three more baptisms at the Church of the Golden Rule on Sunday, April 19. These, like the ones on Easter, are all from the church neighborhood, and they bring new families into the church.

The new members are Mrs. Joseph Elshaw, 13807 Deise Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Warren, Rfd. 30, Mantua, Ohio. Bro. and Sr. Warren have been living in our neighborhood and attending services for quite a while, but they are now moving to the country, and this is their new address. They have three children who have been regular attendants at our Berean meetings, and also a married daughter. Bro. and Sr. Elshaw have four children, the three older ones of which are members of our Sunday School and Berean society.

All are enthusiastic over their new faith, and we pray they may ever be true to it until the Master comes to reward the faithful with crowns of eternal life.

M. W. Lyon.

AT ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

Our Sunday School has just completed an attendance contest, and the losing side treated the winners to a picnic supper on April 25. We gained three new regular scholars as a result of the contest, and there are other new ones who come in occasionally.

Our Doreas society is planning a supper for Friday night, May 8. It will be served at the W. C. T. U. Hall, 1904 N. Main St., and the proceeds will be added to our building fund nest-egg. The members of the society have been making aprons, laundry bags, pillows, hot dish holders, curtain tie-backs, etc., which will be on sale at this time. All who find it convenient are invited to attend.

Our Berean class finished the lessons in Book Two several weeks ago, and we have studied the book of James and are now studying the epistle to the Hebrews. On Friday night, April 17, we were pleased to have five Oregon Bercans present.

Phyllis Mae is the name of the young lady who has come to make her home with Bro. George Lansbery and wife of Beloit, Wisconsin. Her parents, as well as those of us at Rockford, are anxious for her to become old enough to bring to Sunday School and church.

Our church work is progressing encouragingly. There are new faces present almost every week. Bro. Thayer is giving us some very interesting and helpful sermons. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services whenever possible.

NEWS FROM THE KOKOMO CHURCH

Tonight closes the series of meetings which have been held at intervals for the past six weeks. Bro. Anderson gave us a twelve day meeting, beginning March 11 and closing on March 22, baptizing nine. Then on March 23, Bro. Long came and gave us a week's meetings. On April 21 Bro. Anderson came back and gave us four nights, taking up the subject of prophecy. All the members here at the Kokomo church wish to express their sincere thanks to the brethren of the churches at Rensselaer, Burr Oak and Plymouth for helping in this very successful meeting. Bro. Anderson baptized ten. They are Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Pritchard, and son, Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Otis Dowden, Jesse Dowden; Dallas Bengé; Betty Daily; Gerald and Lucille Maroney, all of Kokomo. There is still prospect for more good being done here.

Bro. Lindsay has promised us a meeting in June, beginning about the 15th.

Again we thank all those who helped us so liberally, and we pray that God may bless them to the fullest extent.

In Christian love,

Mrs. Omer J. Parker.

P. S.—We also wish to thank Bro. Lindsay through The Restitution Herald for the success of our meeting here, for it was brought about through a notice in his paper (The Messenger of Truth) of our church work at this place; and made possible by Bro. E. E. Warren of the Rensselaer church. Thanks to Bro. Warren also.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Friends: Our weekly messenger, The Restitution Herald, for April 7, was gladly received, and it cheers the weary traveler on his way to salvation. See John 4:6-30. It calls to mind the words of Moses to Jethro his father-in-law, "Come thou with us, and we will do thee good: for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel." But we feel as Paul the Apostle says, "I am not worthy to be an apostle because I persecuted the church of God", which He purchased with His own blood, that is, the blood of His only begotten Son. The gifts and the calling of God are not to be repented of.

Kittie C. and R. A. Humphreys.

WORDS OF CHEER

What satisfaction and joy it gives us to receive a letter from one of like precious faith, one who is filled with the spirit of love, and wishes to impart that spirit to others! Such a letter lies before me. Many know her by name, but I have known her since childhood, through sickness, through trial, the death of father, mother, and ill health from childhood. But you would not think she was burdened, or heart sick, so cheery and brave she always is! And this letter is full of hope between the lines.

She speaks of the good it does her to read from different ones through the columns of the dear Restitution Herald, mentioning those she would like to hear from. She says, "Just to let us know what the Lord is doing for them, makes others rejoice." She adds, "O Sister Woodward, how I love the old-fashioned prayer meetings; how often I think of the joy I felt when a child attending those meetings. I wish our people had not gotten away from them. I am so glad to see our church has a prayer list. It helps us to pray for each other."

I was so glad to hear dear Sister Ella Rose was some better. Her heart is still bad, and she gets much discouraged, but always keeps sweet and patient, and tries to make the best of everything. A letter recently from dear Sister Cronk, isolated, and afflicted, as she had a bad stroke some years ago. Sister Cronk, you may be pleasantly surprised some day to have a company of faithful ones knock at your door. Press on, the Lord is soon coming, and there will be no more sorrow, no more lonely days, but joy and gladness.

In the letter before me I find these worthy words for dear Brother Patrick: "Brother Patrick is a dear saint of God, and will have many jewels in his crown because of having overcome many trials." Brother Patrick, I know you will be comforted with these beautiful lines:

"I love to think my Father knows
Why I have missed the path I chose;
And that I soon shall clearly see
The way He led was best for me.

"I love to think my Father knows
The thorns I pluck with every rose,
The daily griefs I seek to hide
From the dear souls I walk beside.

"My Father knows, He knows it all,
The bitter tears how fast they fall,
He knows, my Father knows it all."

We must add two more names to our prayer list, Sister Patrick, in her heartache for her dear husband, and Sister Ella Rose, who is now with her son and his wife in Grand Rapids. Remember, dear hearts, God does know and He hears every heart throb of anguish, and He will hear and answer prayer, if we but believe. Sister Ada Huff closes her good letter with these cheering words, "Glad days, happy days at the prayer meetings, but better days ahead when our Lord descends from heaven. O, that I may be among that glad throng." And we echo the words, "O, to be ready, ready, when He comes."

M. A. Woodward.

P. S.—I am hoping Sister Huff will realize that when she writes such stirring letters to me, she must expect I will use them for the good of others.

M. A. W.

HERALD RECEIPTS

George Knife; M. W. Lyon; May Moore; Mary E. Allard; Mittie Chandler; Mrs. Mary Jackson; Mary Sweet; Arthur Hornaday; F. C. Beck; Dallas E. Lehman; Mrs. Lottie Graham; E. R. Chandler; Richard LeCrone; Eva M. Logan; Mrs. Mary Renner; Frank Bales; Mrs. Eva Phelps; Mrs. Minnie Rogers; Marshall Logan; R. L. Jones.

CARL OTTO KROGH

Carl Otto Krogh was born to Casper and Catherine Krogh in Kroghville, Dane County, Wisconsin, October 11, 1850, where he grew to manhood. He came to Blair, Nebraska, in 1878. He worked for a while in Omaha, later returning to Blair. He was married to Clara C. Johnson, January 10, 1873. To this union four children were born, Harvey, Raymond, Edwin, and Everett. Edwin died in 1896 at Newman Grove, age one year. Everett died December 31, 1924 at the age of twenty-six years.

For several years the deceased was in the mercantile business in Newman Grove, Nebraska, and afterward in Oakland. He moved to Blair in 1899, at which time he purchased the farm south of town. He engaged in the hardware business here during 1902 to 1906, moving to Omaha in 1907, where he conducted a grocery store for about a year, and coming back to Blair in the spring of 1909 he built the home where his son Raymond now lives.

On November 15, 1910, he suffered a fall which left him a cripple for the remainder of his life. After the death of his wife on October 31, 1911, he and his son, Everett, lived alone. He went about the house in a wheel chair, doing his own house work until Everett's death six years ago, when he moved down to the home of his son, Harvey. Since then he has divided the time between the homes of his two sons, Harvey and Raymond, the latter having moved down from Canada that he might be near his father. He died at the home of his son Harvey, April 8.

He is survived by his two sons and their wives, nine grand-children, one sister, Caspara Lund, of Glendale, California, and a host of nephews and nieces.

He has been a patient sufferer, never really free from pain for over twenty years, during which time his thought has been to help others and not to be a burden to anyone.

He became a member of the Church of God in 1916, having been immersed by Elder Almus Adams. His faithfulness to his Master has been an example worthy of emulation by all. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. Austin.

His bereaved people mourn deeply his sudden death, but their mourning is greatly consoled by the fact of his ever deepening hope in the soon coming of the Lord unto salvation.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CHOOSE YOU THIS DAY WHOM YE WILL SERVE

By Ednah Cooper

ALL through the accounts of history, Israel as a nation served idols and God alternately. Following a period spent in worshiping idols, the people would return to the worship of God, but were easily led again into idolatry.

After the children of Israel were delivered from the hands of the Egyptians and were nearing the promised land, their leader, Moses, died. Joshua was then made leader. The people feared him and were obedient to him.

The promised land was divided among the tribes of Israel by Joshua. Two tribes and a half deserted the Lord, or so it seemed to Joshua and the rest of the tribes. They built an altar in their own land, and the whole congregation of Israel turned against them, supposing, as the case usually was, that they were building it to idols. But the Reubenites, and Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, who were those who had built the altar, soon explained to Joshua that they had built the altar that they might worship the Lord in their own land.

At this time Joshua was an old man, and in order to encourage the people to continue to serve God, he called all of Israel before him. He told them how God had been with them and had brought them through the wilderness and into their own land.

Then Joshua spoke these words to them, "If it seem evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom ye will serve, whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites in whose land ye dwell; but as for me and for my house, we will serve the Lord."

On through the years we find that as long as Israel kept close to God and served Him, they were delivered from their afflictions. Even up until the time of Paul, the apostle, they were forsaking God and worshiping idols.

There are many forms of idol worship today, and they are not all idols of wood or stone. Some people serve money as their god. They think so much about making money that they don't have time to enjoy religious service, nor do they appreciate their blessings.

Others worship themselves, always thinking of what will be to their own interests, not considering others. When they accomplish anything superior to their fellow men, they take the praise to themselves instead of giving it to God.

We are told by our Savior that we can serve but one master. Therefore, we who have taken upon ourselves the name of Christ, must worship Him and none other, just as the Israelites were to have no other gods but the true and living God. If we truly serve God, doing all things for Him, He will give us help and strength in all of our undertakings.

Let us, like Joshua of old, choose this day to serve God and Him alone. If we are faithful servants to the end, God will reward us for our service. May we each one be a true servant of God, and so be a part of that blessed kingdom.

SERVICE THROUGH SUBMISSION

By Roland Wright

WE OWE our absolute obedience to our Father in heaven because He made the earth and created man upon it, and because there is no other God. In Isaiah 45:11-22 we find this statement, "Thus saith the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, and his Maker . . . I have made the earth, and created man upon it . . . There is no God else beside me; a just God and a Saviour; there is none beside me. Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else."

If we desire to serve God, we must drop all carnal lusts and sinful habits, and bring every thought to the obedience of Christ, serving Him and living for Him only. We must endure hardships and temptations, if we would subject ourselves unto Him. If we would obey Christ, we should not attempt to please ourselves, but do everything in our power to please Him and to bring others to His glory and to everlasting life.

If we thus submit ourselves unto God, we shall be "filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding", as we read in Colossians 1:9. God's will is for us to stand in righteousness, using His truths as our shield and buckler to ward off sin, even as Christ used the word of God as His weapons of defense. By living not in the flesh but after the Spirit, we shall fulfill the righteousness of God's law and make ourselves a "living sacrifice".

Subjection to God is exemplified in Christ's life of service. Philippians 2:8 expresses the thought clearly, "He (Jesus) humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

We must not only be submissive to God, but we must obey those who rule over us, taking heed to the laws of the land and obeying them. It is the will of God that we obey them, for they are as much God's laws as they are those of the land.

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God." Rom. 13:1-2.

We should also subject ourselves to each other, for doing so cultivates humility. God gives grace to those who humble themselves. We do not humble ourselves to please the flesh, but in singleness of heart to please God only and to subject ourselves unto Him, so that we may gain that glorious reward, which is everlasting life.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 5, 1931

NUMBER 31

THE CHURCH DISPENSATION

By Paul M. Hatch

THE church, which is the pillar and ground of the truth (1 Timothy 3:15), has numerous meanings in our present day usage of the word. It may mean one of several things or all of them, as thought is brought to bear upon it.

These several meanings may be briefly summarized thus: first, used of any congregation; second, used of a particular church; third, used of the ministry of the church; fourth, used of the church building; fifth, used as distinct from the world; sixth, in the epistles of Paul as the body of Christ. These usages of the word are all true in themselves, but it is important that the general term, church, should have a distinct meaning.

The word from which "church" comes in the Greek language is the word ekklesia, meaning assembly as it occurs in three places, Acts 19:32, 39, 41, especially an assembly of called out ones, which Paul terms the body of Christ. This is the unique usage as it is to be understood in most of its occurrences in the New Testament.

Attention is almost constantly called to questions concerning the origin of man, the origin of the world, involving conjecture and controversy, also questions involving the technicalities and saving power of the Mosaic law, the terms and provisions of the covenants, and the history attending all these. These in the procession of the dispensations have passed us on the chronological scale, and so they may be relegated to the past.

We find ourselves, as far as the purposes of God are concerned, distinctly in a dispensation wherein God is shedding abroad His grace. In this we are given the facts in the written word, avowedly His own, begotten by His Spirit and given to those that had come nearest to Him in every sense of the word.

This grace is all embracing as to its bounds. It goes to all human kind living and endures to the end of the dispensation. It holds a place, unique in its scope of work and its location in the scale of the procession of the ages. It occupies the middle ground in the procession, the finish of the physical plane of the ages. It comes into its judgment first and occupies a priority in relation to ultimate everlasting life and activity.

The procession of the dispensations in their chronological order, to clarify the mind, may be set down in the form of an introversion, showing each successive age or dispensation in relation to its counterpart thus:

- a, Edenic state. (Tree of Life and innocence)
- b, Mankind (Patriarchal, without law)
- c, Israel (Under law)
- d, Church (Under grace)
- d, Church (Judgment based on faith)
- e, Israel (Judgment based on law)
- b, Mankind (Millennial, judgment based on works)
- a, Eternal state (Tree of Life and omnipotence)

The Leader and Emancipator of the church dispensation is the product of the age previous. His begetting and birth were under the law of Moses. He was subject thereto and fulfilled it, in that every precept was kept in the spiritual plane, as well as the letter of the law.

When Jesus came into the world, His work was a national work. It was His right, by royal lineage and miraculous conception and birth, to give out His statement and interpretation of the law with authority. He exercised this authority in every possible sense of the word and scope of His power, dispelling disease and distress among His people, even giving His word as superseding the words and actions of the religious zealots in Moses' seat. This was especially exercised in the forefront of His ministry. Earning the antagonism and hatred of those in authority, Jesus confided the Father's purpose to His faithful few.

Thus Jesus changed from the national work of preaching the gospel of the kingdom, to the work of establishing, in the mind of His few followers, the fact of His rejection as King. He thus prepared them for a work of preaching salvation, not from national bondage, but of salvation from a more grievous bondage that was enslaving the whole of mankind, both bond and free, namely, that of sin and death.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; and that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."—Paul to Timothy, regarding the training received from his mother.

MOTHER

THE established custom of setting aside the second Sunday of May to the expression of honor and good will for Mother is a custom that is well worth observing. Taking into account the general trend and teaching of Scripture, one quickly realizes that Jehovah, by His marvelous scheme of creation and by the establishment of relationship between man and man, has honored Mother by establishing her, both by nature and by custom, as the guardian of childhood, the artist of the home. With affections tender, with intuition keen, with patience, with finesse of perception He has endowed her. He has placed in her care and keeping the molding, and the shaping, and the maturing of infancy and youth, not only of the home and the municipality, but also of the nation, of the world: yea, the development of all those who are to compose the dwellers of the ages to come, in all of their perfection. Unto Mother has this most wonderful of all of man's works been largely entrusted.

It may well be carefully pondered as to just what will be the result of man's revision of this method of God. For economy and man-reasoned advancement, the State has largely removed the child from the home to the public place of learning and of training, both in books and in training. All feel that this man-method has many advantages over that which God first allowed to the home and to Mother. There have been wonderful scientific developments in many directions. There have also been undreamed of advancements into the depths of infamy and wickedness, conditions with which man is less and less able to cope. The child who was once by Mother taught and trained more or less properly regarding God, is tending more and more toward atheism, both in thought and in practice. The fear of God is ever becoming less pronounced, as one generation follows another.

Would that Mother could catch a view of the bright, radiant, light beams that are bound to be hers, if she can but occupy her wondrous opportunity, her unspeakable closeness with God, in perfecting, both for today and for the eternal ages of righteousness, those who are not only to dwell in and enjoy those ages, but who are to crown them with honor to God and with glory to His Son.

CHRISTIANITY

IN REFERRING to Christianity many people rightly refer to it as the outworkings of Christian people. It is referred to as a condition of human activity, in contrast from that condition of activity that results from idolatry and the like.

In this instance, however, we wish to refer to Christianity as an eternal principle of truth, in its relation to mankind as revealed by God through His Son. In this sense Christianity is that eternal truth from God which God through Jesus Christ is injecting into the very veins and arteries, into the beings of men and women who are in truth and in sincerity building upon Christ.

In no way is Christianity in this sense a product of man's human effort. It is not a product of the unfolding of human kind into a fuller or larger bloom of glory. In this sense Christianity is the very opposite in essence and in principle from that which springs naturally from the human, carnal heart and thought of man.

If inspired means to have the spirit of God injected into the individual—and it does—if it means that one shall be in-spirited with the very things of God himself—and it does—if it means that one shall be infused with certain given thoughts, with certain God-given knowledge of the Father—and it does—then Christianity in this sense means that the individual being thus inspired is recipient in measure of the eternal principles of God-implanted truth and God-implanted leading.

Adam, to whom freedom was given to roam the earth and to mold its people according as his own growing thoughts would do, has, in his posterity, filled the earth with and molded it according to his own carnal, selfish, sinful ways. In contrast with this, Christianity—those truths and principles and facts that radiate from the sinless, guileless, unselfish, ever-sacrificing life of Christ—is that great truth of God which through Christ is to transform the world from its Adamic molding to the molding resulting from the exercise of these truths witnessed by Christ.

In this sense Christianity is that great underlying truth of God out of which, and upon which, and through which, God's eternal creation is being built, and from which it is to result and to stand forever.

He who would become Christian in this sense is he who craves and prays for these eternal truths that they shall shapen his life, mold his being and make him an instrument in the Savior's hand for reflecting and furthering these truths, to the honor of God and to the establishment of the world.

OF HIS PEACE THERE SHALL BE NO END

“His government shall be great, and of his peace there shall be no end: it shall be upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to support it with judgment and with righteousness, from henceforth and forever.”—Isa. 9:7, LXX.

The Prophet is speaking of the Child that was to be born, of the Son that was to be given. After stating that “the government” of God's kingdom, of God's nation, “shall be upon his shoulder”, and after referring to the greatness of that government and to the greatness of that Child, the Prophet continues with the assertion that His government shall not only continue to increase, never to diminish, but that it shall also be a government of peace—of peace concerning which there shall be no end.

In the great Book of books God has revealed through the prophetic word His purposes concerning man. He has revealed how that man by faith in God is to be crowned with life unending, with every environment that enriches righteous blessings, with every comfort that is justly sought by him. That Book tells even more. It reveals how that the earth itself is to be freed of the curse, Rev. 21:1-6; how that mankind is to dwell in one continued reign of peace and quiet. There is to be no war between man and man, Micah 4:3; no plague or scourge of sickness or disease, Isa. 33:24; no perplexing thorn or thistle of the curse, Isa. 55:13; no more enmity between beast and man, Isa. 11:6-9; all is to be peace.

The Builder, the Leader, the Ruler toward this consummation is none other than God's Son, the Child upon whom God's government of earth has been placed. This peace is never to be overturned; it is never to be ruffled by a reversal, never to come to an end. His government will continue to increase unto the bounds of the universe, and Isaiah has proclaimed that the peacefulness of His government shall be without end.

EVEN SO, COME LORD JESUS

WE HEAR it commonly said, and we are apt ourselves to acquiesce too readily in the statement, that there is nothing so certain as death. The lesson constantly enforced upon us from the pulpit is to prepare for death. I do not hesitate to say that this kind of teaching is quite unscriptural. Nowhere in the New Testament is the believer exhorted to prepare for death or regard it as inevitable. The Christian's duty is to be ready, not for death, but for the coming of the Lord. There is something more certain than death; it is certain there are some of the saints who shall never die. This is as sure as anything in the Bible. “Behold,” says Paul to the Corinthians, “I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we (who are alive) shall be changed.” And again to the Thessalonians: “The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.” (1 Cor. 15:51-52; 1 Thess. 4:16-17.) And it has pleased

God in each of the great dispensations of the past to afford us a type and pledge of this most blessed privilege of translation. Elijah, in the Mosaic dispensation, and Enoch, in the antediluvian, were both translated that they should not see death.

O wondrous thought! amazing anticipation! Do we really believe, as we lie down in our beds each night, that our closing eyes may open amid the splendors of the New Jerusalem? Suddenly shall the saints of Christ be snatched away to be forever with their Lord: they will not be found, because God will have translated them. Christian brethren shall have met together to worship God, or, it may be, to partake of the memorials of Christ's dying love; when, without the briefest interval, their worship shall be transferred to a higher sanctuary, and the eyes, which a moment before beheld only the broken bread and poured-out wine (which show the Lord's death till He come), shall see the King in His beauty.

Do we indeed in any measure realize the fact that, sooner or later, so it shall be? If we did—if this coming glory were to us a reality and not a mere opinion—what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness? How slight a hold would the world have upon us! How hateful would be every thought of evil; how earnest, the cry of our hearts, “Come, Lord Jesus; come quickly.”

—A Selection.

IN UNION WITH JESUS CHRIST

By Samuel E. Haney

“Rejoice in the Lord always: and again I say, Rejoice.”

Joy, gladness and peace are virtually synonymous terms, a trinity of happiness. It is a state of mind and heart that the Apostle would have us understand to be the Christian's prerogative, by right of the Eternal One's purchase and our adoption as sons and daughters, having qualified by exercising faith in His Son's "broken body" and precious "blood". The unregenerate world knows nothing of this "always" blissful state of mind; yet, it is the goal that it is ever blindly aspiring, impossible as the attainment is.

The difficulty that myriads encounter, in their foolish effort to form an alliance between the spirit of this wicked world and the Spirit of God, is made apparent by the "saints" Paul is addressing. This term includes, exclusively, "all the saints in Christ Jesus" ever since, namely, Christians, who have been set apart from the world, "being dead with Christ" in so far as their Adamic life is concerned (Rom. 6:8), separated from the world by the power of the Holy Spirit, and the Word of God.

"For the Logos of God is a living thing, active and more cutting than any sword with double edge, penetrating to the very division of soul and spirit, joints and marrow—scrutinizing the very thoughts and conceptions of the heart." Heb. 4:12, Moffatt.

It is pathetic to see unregenerate souls striving for a few moments of joy and mirth, whom Paul describes as "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God". 2 Tim. 3:4. What a variety of inventions the enemy utilizes as a means of producing this temporary joy—the talking machine, the moving picture, the automobile, the airplane, the jazz music with its immoral dance accompaniments, the radio, etc.

Many of these jack-o-lantern dupes imagine they can participate in the thrill and joy of this wicked world and in the everlasting joy of God's kingdom in the next age. Poor deluded souls! What clever tricks these are by the devil's manufactured artificial amusements! The object in view, however, is the same as that of the bootlegger's booze, differing only in the sense that one is spiritual, while the other is physical drunkenness. Thus, in various ways, the adherents of this world are "drinking of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation." Rev. 14:10.

Yes, beguiled humanity, with rare exceptions, by paying the price gets a brief thrill from these satanic designed means, while the consecrated Christian, "without money and without price" (read again Isa. 55:1, 2), is invited to come to the fountain of joy, gladness, and peace, where nothing can disturb his tranquil peace of mind. "God is a shelter and stronghold for us, we shall find Him very near; therefore we never fear, though earth be overset, and the hills sink deep in the sea. Let billows roar and foam, let mountains shake under the storm: the Lord of Hosts is at our side, the God of Jacob is our fortress". Psalm 46: 1-3, Moffatt.

David voices the Christian's sentiment, Psalm 5:11, "But let all those that put their trust in thee rejoice; let them ever shout for joy, because thou defendest them: let them also that love thy name be joyful in thee". "Rejoice in the LORD, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright". Psalm 33:1. "Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice." Psalm 63:7. "But let the righteous be glad: let them rejoice before God; yea, let them exceedingly rejoice." Psa. 68:3.

We shall retrospect, and try visualizing our Lord comforting His perplexed and saddened disciples, as He was about to leave them and return to His and our Father in heaven. They did not seem to clearly comprehend what they and their Master were about to experience. So He gave them a plain explanation with an allegory inserted.

"Truly, truly I tell you, You will be wailing and lamenting while the world is rejoicing; you will be sorrowful, but then your sorrow will be changed to joy. When a woman is in labour she is sorry, for her time has come; but when the child is born she remembers her anguish no longer, for joy that a human being has been born into the world. So with you. Just now you are in sorrow, but I shall see you again and your heart will rejoice—with a joy that no one can take from you." —John 16:20-22, Moffatt.

The three verses following our text make a fitting conclusion to our lesson, namely, "Let your forbearing spirit be known to every one—the Lord is near. Do not be over-anxious about anything, but by prayer and earnest pleading, together with thanksgiving, let your requests be unreservedly made known in the presence of God. And the peace of God, which transcends all our power of thought, will be a garrison to guard your hearts and minds in union with Christ Jesus".—Weymouth.

There should be nothing more joyful and glorious that a Christian could wish for, while sojourning in this drunken, crazy, crooked world than this "peace of God" permeating his soul, bringing his heart and mind in union with Christ Jesus.

He might have reared a palace at a word
Who sometimes had not where to lay His head.
Time was when He who nourished crowds with bread
Would not one meal unto himself afford.
Ten legions girded with angelic sword
Were at His back, the scorned and buffeted,
He healed another's scratch, His own side bled;
Side, hands, and feet with cruel piercings gored.
Oh, wonderful, the wonders left undone!
Yet more wonderful than those He wrought!
Oh, self-restraint, passing all human thought,
To have all power and be as having none!
Oh, self-denying love, which felt alone
For needs of others, never for its own.—Trench.

SEVENTY WEEKS

By F. L. Austin

THE query is proposed by a HERALD reader living at Argos, Indiana, as to the right usage of the scriptural term, "week". If it be right to interpret the word "weeks", in Daniel 9:24, 25, 26, 27, as weeks of years, then why is it not also proper to interpret "days", in Daniel 8:14; 9:13; Rev. 11:3, 9; 12:6 and other passages, as meaning "years"?

In only two instances has the inspired Word interpreted "days" as standing for "years". In Numbers 14:35, Jehovah's punishment upon Israel was that "after the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your infirmities, even forty years . . ." Here, by God's express statement, the Israelites were to be chastened for a number of years corresponding to the number of days which the spies devoted in searching out the land, "each day for a year".

Again, in Ezekiel 4:3-6, God gave "a sign to the house of Israel". Ezekiel was to lie "upon thy left side" "three hundred and ninety days". Then he was to turn upon his right side and lie "forty days". This was a sign that Israel's iniquity was to be imputed for three hundred and ninety years, v. 5, "according to the number of the days", and that Judah's iniquity should be imputed for forty years, "each day for a year". The writer knows of no other instance in the Bible where God has interpreted certain announced days as representing a corresponding number of years.

If Daniel stated "seventy weeks" in its original language, and if weeks necessarily referred to weeks of days, then it would seem to be wrong to interpret those days as referring to years. It would seem that man is not given such freedom in the use of God's inspired Word. God himself has been able to explain when He intends that a day shall represent a year. He has not so explained in Daniel 9:24, nor in the other texts cited first above.

Moreover, Gabriel expressly stated, v. 22, "I will now come forth to give thee skill and understanding"; also, v. 23, "therefore understand". Daniel had been mystified in trying to analyze his own visions and the words of the prophets. Gabriel came to give him understanding.

The Hebrews had no word for "week". The word which Gabriel used was, v. 24, shabua, meaning "a seven".—Young's Concordance. Their word was seven. Every seventh day was a sabbath. Every seventh year was a sabbath year, and every seventh sabbath year was followed by a jubilee sabbath year. The Hebrews had three sevens. The first one of seven days, ending in a sabbath; the second one of seven years, ending in a sabbath year; the third one of seven groups of seven years each, ending in a year of jubilee.

Commenting upon Daniel 9:24, Fuerst's and B. Davies' Hebrew Lexicons define the term "weeks" as "weeks of years". Tregelles' Gesenius defines it as "Hebdomads

(that is, sevens) of years". The Septuagint translation reads, "Hebdomades", that is, sevens, which would read "seventy sevens".

Daniel had been reading and praying in terms of years. Daniel 9:2. He was thinking in years, but he was thinking about "seventy years", according to the prophet Jeremiah. Gabriel comes to make him understand and explains that there will be seventy sevens. It would therefore seem that Gabriel was interpreting to Daniel that instead of the seventy years of captivity being the full of Israel's sorrow, seventy sevens of years were to be divided unto Israel.

A number of years ago a writer on the books of Daniel and Revelation suggested the thought that "twelve hundred sixty days", "twenty-three hundred days", "forty-two months", "time, times and the dividing of time", as used in the prophecies should be interpreted as meaning a year for a day. There is no known authority for man ever to take one of God's matter-of-fact statements and interpret it as though it were a figure of speech and speak of a day as meaning a year. It may be that history sometimes fits on that scale, but who, without God's express teaching, knows which statements refer to days and which are to be understood as years?

If the word "days" were used in Daniel 9:24 (but it is not) and it were to be interpreted, without inspired instruction, as meaning years, then the like rule would as justly apply to all other statements of days. They, too, might be interpreted as years.

The writer, after having for a long time accepted this "year-day" interpretation, has become convinced that he is without authority to so construe God's Word and has for several years studied with a view to accepting inspired statements according as they read and with a view to adjusting his conclusions to God's words.

THE YOUTH FOR CHRIST

"SAUL of Tarsus was a young man when he responded to the call of Christ, and the influence of that surrendered life has grown with the passing centuries. Wesley was a young man when he took his stand for Christ. Spurgeon was a village lad when a local preacher won him for Christ. Moody was a young shop assistant when he answered the supreme call.

"Think of the hundreds of thousands of men, the world over, who have been won for Christ through the instrumentality of youth. When we remember that the men who are guiding the affairs of the world today were the young men of yesterday, and that the young men of today will take their place tomorrow, we are able to estimate, to some extent, the value of such an enterprise to the young men themselves, to the community, and to the church. Indeed, it is only when we thus recognize the sublimity of the subject in its personal, national, and spiritual relationships that we find our full inspiration for the task."—Selected.

MORTAL OR IMMORTAL

By George B. Alldridge

YESTERDAY the writer was present at the obsequies, held in the late home, of a man whom he had known during the past forty years, thirty-four of which he had been associated with him as one of his employees. In life he possessed a keen, shrewd, analytical mind. He was a close observer of current events, a brilliant conversationalist on any subject except religion. He was kind, generous to a fault, democratic towards his fellows, humble, unostentatious, unassuming, a man beloved and respected by all. With all this, his mind lacked one thing. He had no hope of a future life, but felt that, as he often expressed to the writer, "when we die, death ends it all." At the side of the grave, the gentleman who conducted the service read Longfellow's, A Psalm of Life.

"Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.

"Life is real! life is earnest
And the grave is not the goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returneth,
Was not spoken of the soul."

I thought, poets even disagree. Gray's Elegy floated into my mind—

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave Await alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

As I turned away, my mind began to muse. I thought of God's Word and began to compare it with the thoughts of men, recalling Romans 3:4: "Let God be true, but every man a liar". So then Longfellow was wrong and Gray was right.

In the Douay Version Genesis 2:7 reads, "And the Lord God formed man of the slime of the earth: and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul." Note well this point, "Man became a living soul"; not as Plato and all the preachers teach that he possesses an immortal soul.

Let us continue our reading from God's Word. "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return to the earth, out of which thou wast taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3:19.

Abraham, the friend of God, knew this and declared, "Seeing I have once begun, I will speak to my Lord whereas I am dust and ashes."—Gen. 18:27. Job with this thought agrees, "Remember, I beseech thee, that thou hast made me as the clay, and thou wilt bring me into dust again."—Job 10:9. I am quoting from the Douay Version.

"For he knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust: man's days are as grass, as the flower of the field so shall he flourish, for the spirit (life) shall pass in him, and he shall not be: and he shall know his place no more." Psalm 102:14-16.

Now I am going to startle my readers, by quoting Psalm 48:7-21. "They that trust in their own strength and glory in the multitude of their riches, no brother can redeem, nor shall man redeem; he shall not give to God his ransom, nor the price of the redemption of his soul; and shall labour for ever, and shall live unto the end. He shall not see destruction, when he shall see the wise dying; the senseless and the fool shall perish together: and they shall leave their riches to strangers; and their sepulchres shall be their houses for ever. Their dwelling places to all generations, they have called their lands by their names. And man when he was in honour did not understand; he is compared to senseless beasts and is become like to them. Be not thou afraid, when a man shall be made rich and when the glory of his house shall be increased. For when he shall die he shall take nothing away; nor shall his glory descend (mark, not ascend) with him. For in his lifetime his soul will be blessed: and he will praise them when thou shalt do well to him. He shall go to the generations of his fathers; and he shall never see light. Man when he was in honour did not understand: he hath been compared to senseless beasts; and made like to them."

In the March issue of Bible Truth, I wish to quote from the article, "The Truth About Immortality" on Page 36. "Soul in the Bible. As we have said before, the popular theory is that the soul is a separate, immaterial, thinking entity, which is neither taught nor implied in the Scriptures. The Bible speaks many times of the soul, but immortality is not associated with it. The Bible text makes manifest the mortality and not the immortality of the soul.

"We will look at some of these attributes and capabilities of the soul in the language of the Scriptures. It can touch, Lev. 5:2, and be touched, Num. 19:13; can eat, Ex. 12:16; can feel, Lev. 5:2, and be felt, Num. 19:13. It can be strangled, Job 7:15; can be torn, Job 18:4; can be smitten, Josh. 10:32; can be pierced, Josh 11:11. It can be bound with iron, Psa. 105:18; can swim in the sea, Lev. 11:46; can creep upon the earth, Lev. 11:46; can be killed, Gen. 37:20; can die, Ezek. 18:4; It can go into the pit, Job 33:18; can be buried in the grave, Psa. 49:15.

"In many of these texts the word, soul, is not to be found in our version, but in the original the word is there, and in most cases the marginal reading states, 'the soul' or 'the soul of man'. After careful study of these testimonies, one must arrive at but one logical and scriptural conclusion, and that is, that the word, soul, in the Scriptures is a synonym for the word, self. The primary meaning is the whole thing, and secondarily, it means life or desire."

The words recorded in Luke 12:32, I often think of, "Fear not little flock: for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." If what I have just stated about the soul is true, how many believe it? Hence then of the "little flock", millions and millions constituting Christendom, how many believe God's Word? Jesus said, "Thy word is truth", John 17:17, and "I am the way, the truth, and the life". John 14:6.

David prays, Psa. 43:30, "Send out thy light and thy truth; let them lead me." God has answered and is answering this prayer. The world is flooded with copies of His Word, but how many heed or understand? Jesus says, "Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" There never was in man's history a time when faith or faiths were more pronounced than now. But how many possess the faith, or as Strong defines it, "The truthfulness of God"? God's only revelation of himself is in His written Word, the Bible. If we believe that the soul is immortal, we make God a liar, and thus we have not the faith or truth Jesus will look for when He returns.

No wonder Paul says, 1 Cor. 4:9, "For I think that God hath sent forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed unto death: for we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men." When we tell men that their only hope of a future life is in a resurrection from the dead, they laugh us to scorn.

(To be continued)

THE RENDING OF THE VEIL

"And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom."—Matthew 27:51.

THE midday darkness at the crucifixion was designated as the first of the Calvary miracles. The second of those wonders, the next mentioned after the darkness, is the rending in twain of the veil of the temple.

It has sometimes been supposed that it was the earthquake which caused the rending of the veil. In that case we should have to consider the earthquake as the second of the miracles in order. But it seems gratuitous to ascribe to an earthquake the splitting in two of a loose hanging curtain, while it did not shake to pieces the building in which the curtain hung.

Therefore what saith the Scripture? "Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost. And behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent." According to the order here, the rending of the veil was independent of the quaking of the earth. Indeed, whatever there is here of cause and effect would lead us to think that the rending of the veil was the result of the second of the two cries from Calvary, that is, the last, loud, expiring cry of the Crucified. The same cry then would be the cause of the earthquake.

WHAT CAUSED THE EARTHQUAKE?

These two, the rending of the veil and the earthquake, were twin consequences of one and the same antecedent. It was, as we may say, the loud voice of the expiring Savior, which split in two the veil of the temple, and shook the earth, and broke the rocks.

This, the suggestion of Matthew, is strengthened by Mark, who, while mentioning together the incident of the veil and the last cry of the divine Sufferer, does not mention the earthquake. Moreover, while Matthew, in accounting for the impressions of the Roman centurion in witnessing the crucifixion, says that he was affected partly by his seeing the earthquake; Mark, who says nothing of the earthquake, tells us that the centurion was affected partly by his seeing that Jesus so cried out.

From this comparison of the two evangelists, it is suggested that the force of that cry is to be measured by the quaking of the earth; and if by that, then also, by the rending of the veil.

Thus, in seeking for the true adjustment of those two events with reference to each other, we have at the same time discovered a certain relation of cause and effect that is most solemn and sublime. "Jesus cried with a loud voice, and, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom."

SYMBOLISM OF THE TABERNACLE

The temple succeeded and took the place of the tabernacle, but the veil of the temple was the veil of the tabernacle perpetuated. There were many differences between the two buildings; but as to the veils, the later was just a reproduction of the earlier in material and ornamentation, while, in regard to their purposes they were precisely identical.

Therefore, although the veil rent was that belonging to the temple, yet we must go back to the tabernacle, if we would bring out the instruction of our subject. The veil was a covering of concealment to hang before the Holy of Holies, or Most Holy Place.

There were three divisions of the tabernacle—the outer Court, the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. In the outer Court the congregation of Israel assembled. Into the Holy Place the priests daily entered to minister according to their office. Into the Most Holy Place no man ever ventured except the high priest, and he only once a year, with blood of atonement and smoke of incense.

In the outer Court, in the sight of the people, stood the Brazen Altar and the Brazen Laver—symbols of what is needed in order to draw nigh to God. There can be no approach to Him without passing the place of bloody sacrifice, and in that blood being cleansed as in a laver. In the Holy Place, in the sight of the priests who had just come from the bloody Altar and the cleansing Laver, were the Table of Shewbread, the Golden Candlestick, and the Golden Altar of Incense—symbols of union and fellowship with God. In the Most Holy Place, for the eye of the high priest alone, were the Ark of the Covenant, its golden cover—the Mercy Seat, the cherubim and the Shekinah—the cloud of glory, symbols of the throne of God's presence, and power, and grace.

Thus, in the structure of the tabernacle we have God's own symbolism of such truths as are involved in a sinner's acceptable worship of Him.

(To be continued)

TWO BUILDERS

A builder builded a temple,
 He wrought it with grace and skill;
 Pillars and groins and arches,
 All fashioned to work his will.
 Men said as they saw its beauty,
 "It never shall know decay.
 Great is thy skill, O builder!
 Thy fame shall endure for aye."

A mother builded a temple
 With loving and infinite care,
 Planning each arch with patience,
 Laying each stone with prayer.
 None praised her unceasing efforts,
 None knew of her wondrous plan,
 For the temple the mother builded
 Was unseen by the eyes of man.

Gone is the builder's temple,
 Crumbled into the dust;
 Low lies each stately pillar,
 Food for consuming rust.
 But the temple the mother builded
 Will last while the ages roll,
 For that beautiful unseen temple
 Was a child's most precious soul.

—Adapted.

"A LEADER AND COMMANDER TO THE PEOPLE"

By Rufus A. Curtis

"Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people." Isa. 55:4.

HE who would follow a leader must have confidence in his ability and integrity to bring to a successful termination the thing undertaken. This is both a source of strength and a presage of victory. Without confidence, little can be accomplished, for as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he. (Prov. 23:7.)

Our invincible Leader and Commander has been made perfect through suffering, and has ascended up on high, and "hast led captivity captive". "Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith." Heb. 2:10; 10:28; Isa. 6:18.

"For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." Heb. 4:14.

The Captain of our salvation can extend "grace to help in time of need," through the marvelous power bestowed upon Him, through the Father, who "is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work." Heb. 4:16; Matt. 28:18; 2 Cor. 9:8. The ability of our victorious Leader is far beyond our finite minds to grasp, in all the immensity of its unmeasured fulness.

"Now unto him that is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us; unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen." Eph. 3:20, 21.

Our Leader is worthy of implicit confidence, for He has never been defeated, neither has He ever betrayed or deserted a trusting follower of His. He has given us the comforting assurance: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen." Matt. 28:20.

"For he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me." Heb. 13:5, 6. He came as the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world; with salvation as the ultimate object in view, unto the end of the earth. (John 1:9; Luke 2:30-32; Isa. 49:6; Psa. 22:27; Acts 15:13-17.)

It is not a small matter to follow a Leader invested with all power, both in heaven and in earth. (Matt. 28:18; Eph. 1:19-23; Phil. 2:9-11.) It would be courting defeat not to be "temperate in all things," when following such an illustrious Leader, who has incorruptible crowns to bestow. (1 Cor. 9:24-27.)

Our Leader wants his brethren to "be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might." 1 Cor. 16:13; Eph. 6:10; Phil. 4:13. To "endure hardness" is a necessary qualification for promotion for "a good soldier of Jesus Christ;" for he can thus best show his love for his victorious Leader by implicitly obeying His "commandments." 2 Tim. 2:3-5; John 14:15.

It should be the desire of our hearts to follow our victorious Leader, "who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption." 1 Cor. 1:30. Lacking wisdom, we can go to our loving Father and ask, through Jesus' name, for the wisdom which we so much need, "and it shall be given"; for He "giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not." James 1:5, 6; Proverbs 2:2-7.

His "righteousness" can be imputed to us. Rom. 4:11. His "truth" can sanctify us. John 17:17. His limitless power, emanating from the Father, can forgive us of our sins, and cleanse us "from all unrighteousness"; and ransom us "from the power of the grave", and redeem us "from death." 1 John 1:9; Hosea 13:14; John 5:26-29; John 6:40.

Earth needs such a Deliverer. (Rom. 11:26, 33; Gal. 4:4-7; Psa. 68:18-20.) He healed the sick. (Matt. 14:34-36; Luke 9:11; John 6:2.) He fed the hungry. (Luke 9:12-17; Mark 6:35-44.) He raised the dead. (Luke 7:11-17; 8:41, 42, 49-55; John 11:41-44.) He has "the keys of hell and of death", and will yet "possess the gate of his enemies"; and in him "shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Rev. 1:18; Gen. 22:15-18; Gal. 3:8.

These "promises made unto the fathers", and confirmed with an oath, concerning a victorious "seed", who should possess the gate of his enemies, and bless all the families of the earth, is not abrogated or repealed, but has been confirmed by Jesus Christ, who is the seed spoken of, in the gospel, preached before unto Abraham. (Rom. 15:8; Gen. 28:10-14; Gal. 3:8, 16, 26-29; Heb. 6:13-20.) The Bible abounds with the joyful sound of coming deliverance, through a coming King, enduring as the years of eternity! (Psa. 89:15, 23-29, 33-37; Micah 5:2; Isa. 9:6, 7.)

This invincible Leader will ultimately bless all the families of the earth, and, as a result, "all nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord, and shall glorify thy name." Gen. 28:14; Psa. 86:9; 67:4; Rev. 5:13; Psa. 72:11, 17-19; Hab. 2:14. "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong." Eccl. 11:9; Jeremiah 9:23, 24.

"Conquering now, and still to conquer,
Rideth a King in His might;
Leading the host of all the faithful,
Into the midst of the fight.
See them, with courage advancing,
Clad in their brilliant array,
Shouting the Name of their Leader
Hear them exultingly say,

"Not to the strong is the battle,
Not to the swift is the race;
But to the true and the faithful
Victory is promised, through Grace.

"Conquering now, and still to conquer,
Who is this Wonderful King?
Whence all the armies which He leadeth,
While of His glory they sing?
He is our Lord and Redeemer,
Savior and Monarch, divine.
They are the stars that, forever,
Bright in His Kingdom will shine.

"Conquering now, and still to conquer,
Jesus, Thou Ruler of all,
Thrones and their sceptres all shall perish:
Crowns and their splendor shall fall:
But all the armies Thou leadest,
Faithful and true to the last,
Find in Thy mansions eternal
Rest, when their warfare is past."

IT IS GENERALLY UNDERSTOOD

That God loves a fighter—in a good cause.
That lofty ideals often live in lowly places.
That character is what a man is—in the dark.
That a man is known by the company he does not keep.

—Methodist Times.

TO THE SHUT INS

By M. A. Woodward

AFTER reading the report from Arkansas City in a recent HERALD, Aunt Mary Renner said, "Sr. Woodward, you can write to the shut ins."

I suppose she said that because she knew how many years in my early life and many times since, I have been among the shut ins. I know full well what it means to lie still, day after day, thinking of pain and trying to forget it. Many of those days were dark and dreary, but God gave me a hopeful disposition which bridged over the darkness. I always receive much joy when I read of other shut ins and how happy some are under worse affliction than myself, realizing what being shut away from the world and shut in with God will do for us.

Did you ever think, dear pain laden weary ones, what wonderful things have happened to many of God's shut ins? As we look at some of them, let us begin with the babe shut in among the rushes by the riverside, along whose banks a jeweled princess was walking with her servants. An exclamation was heard from her; a servant paused to see what it was that caused her to stop and exclaim.

"What is that strange little boat yonder? Go bring it here."

God was watching that little cradle in the rushes, as well as the faithful sister. She followed the servant, as she lifted and carried it to the princess, and as it was opened, the little fellow, seeing so many strange faces, began pitifully to cry.

Listening, the sister heard the princess say, "O, it must be one of the Hebrew babies." And unlike her cruel father, she pitied him and said, "I will take him home with me."

They had not noticed the little stranger standing near, until she spoke and said, "Shall I go and find a nurse for him?" When told to go, she hastened to the mother and told her the glad news. She was a godly mother, full of faith, for we read in Hebrews 11:23, "By faith Moses, when he was born, was hid three months of his parents, . . . and they were not afraid of the king's commandment." They had been shut in with God until they could trust Him with the keeping of their babe. What faith they had, even after they knew all the king's unholy thoughts. Instead of the tomb of water for the beautiful boy, his lot was to be the heir in the king's palace, until he was forty years old, with all that palace afforded of beauty, elegance, pomp, dignity.

All these things he might have enjoyed, and remained with had he chosen, but God had a path for him to walk in. He had not saved him from death by drowning to have His plans frustrated now. He had not only saved him from death, but He must needs train him for service. His first real schooling was in the palace home of Pharaoh, enjoying "the pleasures of sin".

The wildest mistake which a man can possibly fall into is to act without taking God into account. Sooner or later the thought of God will force itself upon him, and then comes the crash of all his schemes and calculations! For at best everything that is undertaken independently of God can last but for the present time. On the contrary, that which is based upon God shall endure for eternity.

And so Moses found himself becoming discontented with the pleasures of sin, and he longed to be with his own brethren. Where did he learn that he was not already with his own? God had instructed him. So at the age of forty years we find him defending one of the Hebrew slaves, when he saw the taskmaster beating him. He had murder in his heart, and so he looked this way and that way to see if any were watching him. Not seeing anyone, he killed the taskmaster and hid his body in the sand. The very next day he went again to defend his brothers, but found they were watching him, and fearing the king, he fled from the place.

He had thought that his brethren would understand how he desired to release them from bondage. But he acted before God was ready to have him act, and he had to flee from his enemies. The land of Midian gave him shelter and there with his father-in-law, his wife and family, he kept the sheep. Shut in with God, caring for the sheep, he learned his needed lessons.

Forty years seems a long time to study one thing, to our poor human nature. But God's thoughts are not our thoughts. He knew the need of those forty years twice told in the preparation of his chosen vessel. When God educates, He does so in a manner worthy of himself and His most holy service. He will not have a novice to do His work.

The servant of Christ has to learn many a lesson in secret, ere he is really qualified to act in public. O, that we might all be in deeper communion with God! Then we would make fewer mistakes, and our service would be more effective.

What a wonderful lesson we learn with Moses in the sheepfold and in the mount of God for forty years. God knew much better than Moses did how much drilling and molding this man needed. No human wisdom could ever mold a mind into "a vessel meet for the master's use". The One who is to use the vessel can alone prepare it.

"Learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians," but how necessary for him to see the other side of life. The court of the king could not bring him any spiritual knowledge. It needed the desert and the mount of God to educate him for divine service. Shut away with God, marvelous opportunity, for forty years! Was it lost time? No, time with God is never lost time.

A strange scene appeared before Moses, very intent with his work. He is startled to see a beautiful bush, alive with fire. The angel of the Lord appeared to him in a flame of fire, out of the midst of the bush. He looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire and was not consumed. Strange sight was this, to show Moses the work before him! They were in the furnace of Egypt and Jehovah revealed himself in the burning bush, and still it was not consumed.

Did Moses realize that the God of Jacob was still there and would protect and provide all necessary means for him to fight the enemy? He was standing on holy ground, and "The Lord of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge."

Moses was to be called away from the gentle sheep, to meet very hard and discouraging events in his life. But had not God been hiding him away from the world for a purpose? God knew all about His gracious purpose, knew the man he had been drilling. The cry of distressed Israel had reached the ears of Jehovah, and it had taken forty years to bring them to the place where He could release them. In that time He had been preparing the man who would be able to help in their deliverance. A tried people, and a tried man to help them!

When the call came, it found him timid and fearful. He felt he could not meet the condition before him. His first thought was not, "Here am I, Lord, send me"; but "Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?"

God's blessed answer was, "Certainly, I will be with you."

Still Moses failed in faith and said, "But if they should ask me who sent me, what shall I say?"

"Say, I AM hath sent you." What an answer to the human needs of Moses! All our needs as well may be answered with these words.

Jesus says, "I am the life." Do we need righteousness? He is the Lord our righteousness, and He is our peace. What a blessing to be privileged to walk in companionship with such a Helper!

Blessed help, beloveds, you who are shut in with God. Read the books from Exodus to Joshua; travel with Moses during his last forty years; get the inspiration of his work with God; look in on his death bed. And you will not wonder that at the age of one hundred and twenty years he died, so full of vigor and real love for the Rock of refuge, his Stay through all the stormy years of real work, when the brethren for whom he had sacrificed so much turned against him, often declaring they had better have been left as servants in Egypt than to suffer with God. What a merciful God they had, and they could not understand Him. Listen to this: "For thy Maker is thine husband: The Lord of Hosts is his name."

Take courage, dear shut ins, the dear Christ is soon coming, and all will be well. May we all be ready for His appearing.

SATAN, the "Prince of the power of the air", has the air so permeated with what verges on licentiousness as to make it appear sacrilegious to hear the names of our heavenly Father and blessed Redeemer through the radio.

The evil allows just enough Scripture to get on the air to obscure his silkened hand, and to grossly deceive the credulous and unaware. It seems shameful to intermingle these sacred names with radio vulgarity.—S. E. H.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

SAMSON'S LIFE

AN ANGEL of the Lord appeared unto Manoah's wife and prophesied the birth of a son. He said, "This child shall be a Nazarite from birth."

After many days the little son was born, and they named him Samson. Like other boys he grew and was soon a strong young man.

While out walking one day, he saw a very pretty girl. He immediately fell in love with her and rushed home to tell his parents. They asked why he had gone into the land of the Philistines to seek a wife. He answered, "Get her for me, for she pleaseth me well." They hesitated for a time, but finally decided to go to see her.

As they were on the way to find this girl, a young lion sprang at Samson, but the love of God was over him, and he rent the lion as though it were a kid. He told his parents nothing about it. They walked down to Timnath and saw the girl. On the way back Samson stopped to see the lion he had killed. There was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcass.

At the time of the marriage the men made a feast. At this feast Samson put forth a riddle, saying, "If you can guess it in seven days I will give you thirty garments, but if you can't guess it, you must do likewise to me."

The Philistines came to his wife and said, "Find the answer, or we will burn you and your father's house." She would give Samson no peace until he told her the answer, and then she told it to her people. When they gave Samson the correct answer, he knew that his wife had betrayed him, and he was very angry. He went out and slew thirty men and took their garments, which he gave to the Philistines.

Samson returned to his father's house, leaving his wife with her own people. After a time he decided to go down to visit her. He found she had married again, which made him very angry. He caught three hundred foxes and tied torches between their tails and turned them loose in the corn fields of the Philistines. Their corn was ruined and so were their vineyards. The Philistines were angry and burned this woman and her father with fire.

Again Samson fell in love and married a woman named Delilah. The Philistines envied Samson because of his great strength, and they persuaded his wife to find how they could cause him to lose his strength. She went to Samson and asked him what would cause him to lose his strength. Three times he told her what to do, and each time they tried and failed because Samson still had his great strength.

After these three failures she begged so hard that finally Samson told her the whole story. He told her that he was a Nazarite unto God from his birth, that his hair had never been cut, but if it was cut he would lose his strength. That night as Samson slept she called in the Philistines and shaved his head. When he awoke his strength was gone, and they cast him into prison and put out his eyes.

While there in prison, his hair began to grow again. One day as they were making merry they sent for Samson, thinking they might make more fun with him. A lad brought him in, and he leaned against the pillar of the house. Samson prayed to God for strength. He took hold of the pillars of the house, and the house fell upon him and his enemies, killing them all.

Muriel Brough, Grand Rapids, Mich., age 13 years.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

DURING the months of January, February, and March there have been one hundred nine enrolled in the seven classes of this society, with an average attendance of fifty-nine.

Zoe Hall, Sec.

THERE are two ways by which God and man have communication with each other: one is by God speaking to man through the voice of inspiration, and the other is by man speaking to God in the attitude of prayer. God's voice tells us how we should conduct ourselves before Him, and how we are to approach Him. Man's voice calls upon God for the supply of his needs. How necessary it is that we study the Bible to know the mind of God, and then to seek Him by praying for grace that we may obey its teachings. Like two rivers coming together and running into each other, man in his helpless condition pours out his weakness to God, and God pours out His strength into that weakness.—Selected.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 15; Ohio, 12; Michigan, 8; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

JESUS AS KING

IT WAS a beautiful spring morning, long, long ago that Jesus, our Savior, was walking along the road leading to Jerusalem. Some of His disciples were with Him, and as they neared the Mount of Olives, He sent two of them ahead into the little village of Bethphage. This little town was close to Bethany, where Jesus so often went to rest in the home of His dear friends.

Jesus told these two disciples that in the little village they would find a colt tied which they were to bring to Him. And if anyone should stop them and ask them what right they had to take the colt, they should say that the Lord had need of it.

And so the two disciples hurried on ahead, while Jesus waited for them. They entered the little town in which there was no busy traffic nor hurrying autos as we find even in our smaller towns today. All was peaceful and quiet, resting in the warm sunshine. It was not hard to find the colt tied to a post, even as the Master said they would.

They untied the colt, and just as they were about to walk away with it, the owners noticed them and said, "Why are you untying the colt?" The answer the disciples gave was, "The Lord hath need of him." And it must have been sufficient, for the owners offered not a word in objection.

They retraced their steps, leading the colt, and when they reached Jesus they spread their garments over the back of the colt, and set Jesus upon it. As they proceeded on their way, the folks along the roadside joined the Savior and the disciples, a few here and a few there, until when they came in sight of Jerusalem, multitudes followed.

In this long procession were many happy little boys and girls, for all children love a parade, don't they? And this was no unusual procession, either. At the head was Jesus, the One who had been so good to all the sick and suffering people around about.

As they walked along, no doubt they thought of many of the wonderful things He had done, which they had seen themselves or had heard of from others. And they picked palm branches from the trees by the roadside and waved them, while they sang a happy song.

The chorus of the song was this: "Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest." Just such a welcome as a king would receive were he riding into a city, did they give to Jesus. And He truly was their King, although you remember the ones in authority would not accept Him.

When Jesus entered Jerusalem, He acted just as a king would have the right to act, for when He found men buying and selling and cheating in the temple, He drove them out. And they went, too, without saying a word.

This little event is the only time we read of Jesus accepting the homage of the people. And just a few days later, they turned against Him and crucified Him.

But the tomb that received the Savior could not hold Him, for He arose from the dead, never to die again. And soon He will return from heaven, and then the whole world will receive Him as King, for He will cleanse, not only the temple in Jerusalem, but every nook and corner of this old earth will be purified and made clean of every sin.

All of you, children, I'm sure, will want to be in that great procession that will sing His praises, on that day when He comes again to be in truth King of kings and Lord of lords. Let's wait and watch with happy hearts for our King—M. G.

DEEDS OF KINDNESS

Suppose the glistening dew-drops
Upon the grass should say,
"What can a little dew-drop do?
I'd better roll away."
The blade on which it rested,
Before the day was done,
Without a drop to moisten it,
Would wither in the sun.

Suppose the little breezes,
Upon a summer's day,
Should think themselves too small to cool
The traveler on his way;
Who would not miss the smallest
And softest ones that blow,
And think they made a great mistake
If they were talking so?

How many deeds of kindness
A little child may do,
Although it has so little strength,
And little wisdom, too!
It needs a loving spirit,
Much more than strength, to prove,
How many things a child may do
For others, by its love.

—Selected

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 7. — May 17, 1931

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM AS KING

Luke 19:28 to 20:47

Devotional Reading: Psalm 24

GOLDEN TEXT

For he is Lord of lords, and King of kings.—Revelation 17:14

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Loyalty to the King.

Basic Truth. "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."—Matt. 16:24.

I. Loyalty as a Basic Truth. "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Loyalty requires diligence of service. It necessitates constancy of spirit. He who would be loyal to his Lord must first believe to the full in Him and must consecrate himself to live for and unto his Lord more than unto himself.

Loyalty manifests itself in many ways. Stephen was loyal unto death by stoning. Peter at Pentecost and after was loyal to his Master in the face of bitterest opposition, though he was shamefully disloyal in the company of maids in Pilate's hall.

He who is loyal to Christ stands by the cause of his Leader regardless of what the opposition may be. He serves his Chief at the expense of his own pleasures, of his own interests, of his own being.

II. The Supremacy of Christ. Paul teaches in Eph. 1:20-23 that God hath placed Christ Sovereign over all things—over things of heaven, over things of earth, over things of this age, over things of the ages to come. "He left nothing that is not put under him."

He who voluntarily espouses the cause of Christ in distinction from the cause of man, must recognize Christ as his Director in every step of life.

The lack of loyalty to God and of recognition of His proper sovereignty over them was the principal cause of the downfall of the Jews, in the days of Christ's ministry.

No lesser catastrophe can fall upon him who today fails in his pledged loyalty to, and his recognized supremacy of Christ.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"He is Lord of lords, and King of kings."
—Revelation 17:14.

The triumphal entry of Jesus, riding upon a colt into Jerusalem, was but a foreshadow of what will some day be a permanent reality.

"And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." Daniel 7:14.

"Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a king shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth." Jeremiah 23:5.

"For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

Isaiah 2:3. Then is when He shall be Lord of lords and King of kings.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Triumphant: Our lesson this week concerns what is termed, "The Triumphal Entry". But the real triumphal entry is still future. This entry foreshadows a greater one. That He is to triumph over sin and all the forces of iniquity ere long is good news to the weary sojourners. The way He was received and acclaimed stirs our imagination. When one righteously triumphs, glory follows. There are many ways in which we should endeavor to triumph, and many things which we should try to triumph over. A few are listed. Others may be added.

Sin

Temper

Conversation

Fleshly desires

A Coming Event: The day is not far distant when Christ is going to be acclaimed and enthroned as King of kings. When that day does come, I hope to be in that group that shall accompany Him to the capital city. Look up some of the many scriptures that speak of this event and picture before the class as vividly as possible the scene as related. Queen Victoria of England many times said, "I would like to live to place my crown at Jesus' feet." Such is a wonderful attitude.—C. E. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

"Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, to perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant; through the tender mercy of our God; whereby the day-spring from on high hath visited us". Luke 1:68, 72, 78.

In the lesson for today, vv. 42-44, Jesus is prophesying the destruction of Jerusalem, "because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." He had made His triumphal entry into Jerusalem, the city of the great King, but it was only the common people who were ready to accept Him. Moreover, when He entered the city, He wept to see the condition of His people. They had made the Lord's house a den of thieves. They had been blind to the "time of thy visitation". John the Baptist had proclaimed Jesus their King, and Jesus himself had come only to be rejected.

God will visit His people another time through Jesus the Christ who will come to be King. May His people not be blind to this day.—F. A. S.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

The events of this lesson took place just a week before the first Easter Sunday. Where was Jesus? Bethphage is a small village near Bethany, toward Jerusalem. The "mount that is called Olivet" is the Mount of Olives, about a mile east of Jerusalem. What did Jesus tell two of His disciples to do? Vv. 30:35. Finding the colt and the conversation with the owner, even as Jesus said, would serve to strengthen their faith in Him, would it not?

Why did they spread their garments in the way? Jesus had performed many great miracles, chief among them being the resurrection of Lazarus, and on this occasion, He allowed the multitude to show Him the honor they would to a king. There were probably many children also in this glad procession. They sang the same songs which they sang during the feast of the passover, and which are found in the Psalms, 113 to 118, called the Hallel. And our hearts, too, rejoice as we think of our wonderful Savior and His great love for us.

As the procession nears Jerusalem the picture changes. Jesus, knowing that before many years the beautiful city would be nothing but a mass of ruins, could not restrain His tears. Its downfall was brought about by sin. In the succeeding scenes Jesus shows His authority which the multitudes had just accorded Him. Tell the story as found in Mark 11:15-18.

The last verse of the lesson says that the people listened to every word He spoke. Let us also listen to Him and give our loyalty to Him, the coming King of kings.—M. G.

JUNIOR CLASS

This lesson is easily divided into four parts or pictures. The first part pictures Jesus asking two of His disciples to go to a certain village and bring Him a colt which they would find there. This colt was to be one on which no one had ever ridden before. Find the verses which tell you this.

The second part shows the disciples obeying Jesus and bringing the colt to Him. Which verses tell this?

The third part pictures Jesus riding as a king would ride into Jerusalem. Coats are laid down for Him to ride over. Another place in the Bible which tells the same story says that palm branches were spread and waved over the way. The people shouted and praised God. Read the verse that tells what they said. Of course not all were pleased with this. Which verse says this?

After Jesus rode so triumphantly into Jerusalem, He went to the temple. There He found something which displeased Him very much. What was it? What did He do?

This picture is about the only one which shows Jesus as a kingly person. But some day He will come back and be King over all the earth. He will be such a good King that no one will want to miss being here with Him at that time.—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

OPPORTUNITY

The great annual gatherings held by the Church of God during the summer months present a splendid opportunity for the entire body to engage in the planning and accomplishment of much practical, constructive and unified work. The programs for the state and national conferences should be considered well in advance of the time set for the meetings, and only after much prayerful study of the needs of both the brotherhood and of the various communities in which the congregations are located. And after such a careful survey the conference programs should be arranged to meet these predetermined local requirements.

The following questions should be carefully pondered: What is the general character of the community in which the church is located? is it urban or rural? is it composed to the greater extent of laboring people or of professional and business men? Does farming predominate? Is the membership scattered or concentrated? transient or comparatively permanent as to residence? Peculiar local conditions should be carefully considered, such as, the proximity of amusement parks, theatres, business districts, and other diverting influences. Do most of the people live in their own homes or in apartments?

All such problems as these should be considered and freely discussed at the conferences by those who have given them special study and who have met such problems in actual practice. Interchange of thought and experience along these lines could not help but be beneficial to all concerned.

G. Eldred Marsh,

President of the General Conference.

CONFERENCE DATES

May Meeting, Fonthill, Ontario
Michigan, Grand Rapids June 21 to 28
Texas, Riviera, July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon, Aug. 4 to 16

Send in the dates of your conferences as soon as they are determined.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

As these words are being written, the church here is happy in its preparation for the services of this week end, May 1 to 3, in which we are planning to celebrate and praise God for the privilege of having our church debt paid. And as we accept of this blessing which God has sent through our beloved Sr. Fletcher, we realize that we must now turn our faces to the future.

The height which we have gained now is only a small foothill in front of the mountain of opportunity. We are asking God for vision and courage, as we face the climb which the future offers.

We also thank God that the most of our church family are enjoying a normal degree of health, with a faithful consecration to the Lord's work.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

Bro. Conner will be one of the teachers of the adult class this year. Bro. Austin will take the advanced young people one session a day, and Bro. Lapp, the other session. Time spent at Oregon this year promises to be both pleasant and profitable. Plan for these dates now—August 4 to 16.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio
Sr. Ella Rose,	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sr. Edna Brewer,	Troy, Ohio
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Sr. Harry Thomas	Graytown, Wis.
Sr. May Moore	Bartley, Nebr.

The article on the front page of this issue is the first in a series of articles, each one being complete in itself, yet all linked together as a chain. The reader will find Bro. Hatch's thoughts worthy of careful reading.

TRAINING CLASS NEWS

Classes closed on April 30, and some of the members of the Training Class are spending this week at Ripley, Illinois. They will hold services there every evening and Sunday. Bro. Lapp, who conducted services at Oregon, Illinois, on May 3, expects to be at Ripley from May 8 to 10.

Bro. John Denehfield left Thursday evening for his home at St. Cloud, Minnesota.

The Golden Rule classes of the Oregon Sunday School gave a farewell social for the members of the Training Class on April 29, before their departure for Ripley, in which all the Sunday School participated.

Bro. Lapp has been engaged by the Illinois State Conference to fill the appointments of the state for the months of May, June, and July.

INDIANA REPORT FOR APRIL

Sermons: Pleasant View, 4; Rensselaer, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Burr Oak, 1; Kokomo, 6. Baptisms, 1.

Money received: Pleasant View, $60.45; Rensselaer, $30.00; Plymouth, $12.00; Burr Oak, $10.00; North Salem, $6.00; Dale Rouch, $1.00. Expense, $18.55.

Note: We made two visits to Pleasant View hence the increased expense for the month.

J. H. Anderson.

JAMES BANNING

James Banning was born in Wathene, Kansas, on October 22, 1887, and departed this life on April 23, 1931, at his home in South Omaha.

In early life he moved to Hortin, Kansas, where he lived until his marriage. Soon after he moved to Omaha, where he lived until the day of his death. On September 18, 1907, Mr. Banning was united in marriage to Miss Edith Debo, and to this union were born four sons, Edward, Harold, Arthur and Louis, all of which survive.

He was converted and baptized into Christ in the summer of 1918, and remained a faithful member of the Church of God and a servant of the Master until the end.

There are left to mourn his loss, besides his wife and four children, his mother and father, two sisters, Mrs. Clara Linnens, and Mrs. O. B. Miller, Horton, Kansas; one brother, Rev. Charles Banning, Rochester, N. Y., and a host of friends and relatives. It is truly said of Bro. Banning that he was a kind and loving father, a loyal husband, and a friend to all. To know him was to love him. He did what he could, and now he sleeps to await the call of his Master at the resurrection morning. He was laid to rest in Graceland Park Cemetery, Monday, April 27, 1931, Elder E. E. Giesler officiating.

WILLIAM D. FELKER

The writer conducted the funeral of the above at the home of Mrs. Haines, daughter of the deceased, on Thursday afternoon, April 23. Mr. Felker had been ailing for several months, due to apoplexy, and on Tuesday evening, April 21, medical care and affectionate attention of loved ones failed to prolong his life beyond the ripe age of 77 years 8 months, and 17 days.

He was baptized and united with the Evangel Methodist Church a number of years ago, but the past few years he embraced our Bible views, but due to extreme deafness was not permitted to attend services.

He leaves his wife, three daughters, two sisters and one brother as near relatives to mourn his passing. His two daughters, Mrs. Haines and Mrs. Rhoades are members of the Fonthill church.

C. E. Randall.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

COME, LET US WORSHIP!

"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."—Heb. 10:25.

The following mentioned churches extend to friends who may be traveling through or visiting in their respective communities an invitation to unite with them in sacred worship.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

South Lawn Park Church of God

Jefferson Avenue S. E.

F. E. Siple, Pastor

50 Cherryvale Drive., S. W.

Sunday School 10:00 A.M.
 Morning Worship 11:00 A.M.
 Young People's League 6:30 P.M.
 Evening Service 7:30 P.M.
 Bible Study, Thursday 7:30 P.M.

NORTH SALEM CHURCH OF GOD

Five miles north of Plymouth

J. H. Anderson, Pastor

Preaching every Third Sunday 2:30 P.M.

HILLISBURG CHURCH OF GOD

Three miles east of Michigantown, Indiana

J. H. Anderson, Pastor

Sunday School, every Sunday 10:00 A.M.
 Bro. Geo. Finney, Superintendent
 Preaching every Fourth Sunday 11:00 A.M.
 7:30 P.M.

PLEASANT VIEW CHURCH OF GOD

Hedrick, Warren Co., Indiana

J. H. Anderson, Pastor

Sunday School every Sunday 10:00 A.M.
 Preaching every First Sunday 11:00 A.M.
 7:30 P.M.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH OF GOD

Plymouth, Indiana

Preaching every Third Sunday 11:00 A.M.
 By J. H. Anderson

BURR OAK CHURCH OF GOD

Burr Oak, Indiana

Sunday School every Sunday 10:00 A.M.
 Preaching every Third Sunday 7:30 P.M.
 By J. H. Anderson

RENSELAEER CHURCH OF GOD

J. H. Anderson, Pastor

Rensselaer, Indiana

Preaching every Second Sunday 11:00 A.M.
 7:30 P.M.

CHURCH OF GOD — ABRAHAMIC FAITH

1244 S. Jay, Kokomo, Ind.

Sunday School every Sunday 9:30 a. m.

BROWNTOWN, VIRGINIA

Harry A. Sheets, Pastor

Public Worship (fifth Sundays and by special appointment) 11:00 a. m. & 7:30 p. m.

MAURERTOWN, VIRGINIA

Harry A. Sheets, Pastor

Sunday School (each Sunday) 10:00 a. m.
 Public Service (second and fourth Sundays each month) 11:00 a. m. & 7:30 p. m.
 Berean (first and third Sundays each month) 11:00 a. m.
 Wednesday evening Prayer Service and Bible Study in the homes at eight o'clock.

SEVEN FOUNTAINS, VIRGINIA

Harry A. Sheets, Pastor

Sunday School 10:00 a. m.
 Public Worship (first and third Sundays only) 11:00 a. m. & 7:30 p. m.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor

Sunday School 10:00 a. m.
 Morning Service 11:00 a. m.
 Berean Studies, Wednesday 8:00 P. M.

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Sunday School 10:30 a. m.
 Berean Meeting 6:45 p. m.
 Evening Service 7:45 p. m.
 Prayer and Study (Wednesday) 7:45 p. m.

NIAGARA FALLS, NEW YORK

Blessed Hope Church of God

1926 Tenth St.

C. E. Randall, Pastor

Sunday School 10:00 a. m.
 Morning Worship 11:00 a. m.
 Bible Study, Thursday evening 7:45 p. m.
 Berean Class, every other Tuesday 8:00 p. m.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO, CANADA

Fonthill Church of God

C. E. Randall, Pastor

Sunday School 6:30 p. m.
 Evening Worship 7:30 p. m.
 Berean Class, every other Tuesday 8:00 p. m.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

Church of the Golden Rule

13905 Diana Ave.

M. W. Lyon, Pastor

Sunday School 9:30 A.M.
 Morning Worship 10:45 A.M.
 Evening Worship 8:00 P.M.
 Prayer Meeting, Thursday, 7:30 P. M.
 Berean Class, Friday 8:00 P.M.

BRUSH CREEK CHURCH OF GOD

Near West Milton, Ohio

Sunday School every Sunday 9:45 a. m.
 Bro. John Garard, Superintendent
 Berean Class at home of Sr. Worley on Cozy Corner on Friday 7:45 p. m.
 Berean Class at Dayton, Friday 8:00 p. m.
 A. J. Hoke, Presiding Elder
 21 Ashwood Ave., Dayton, Ohio

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

264 W. 42nd St.

G. Eldred Marsh, Pastor

4707 1-2 St. Elmo Drive

Sunday School 10:00 a. m.
 Morning Worship and Sermon 11:00 a. m.
 The young people's Berean class meets each Sunday evening at 6:30 at the church. On first Sundays a preaching service follows at 7:30. Bible Study each Wednesday evening at 7:45 at the home of Bro. E. C. Railsback, 1020 S. Burlington Ave.

LYNWOOD, CALIFORNIA

Services are held on the second and fourth Sundays of the month, at 2:30 p. m., in the home of Bro. J. A. Squires, 3161 Carlin Ave. Preaching by Pastor G. E. Marsh.

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

Bible study is conducted each Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and each Tuesday evening at 7:30, by Bro. S. G. Elton, at the home of Bro. John Reid, 301 N. Euclid Ave.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

Earl Thayer, Pastor

Services at 1904 N. Main St.

Sunday School every Sunday 9:45 a. m.
 Preaching service every Sunday 11:00 a. m.
 Berean Meeting every Friday at 7:45 p. m.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

F. L. Austin, Pastor

Sunday Bible School 10:00 A.M.
 Morning Worship 11:00 A.M.
 Berean Meeting 6:30 P.M.
 Evening Worship 7:30 P.M.
 Prayer Meeting, Thursday 7:45 P.M.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

L. E. Conner, Pastor, 610 N. Brinton Ave.

Sunday School 9:45 A.M.
 On the first and third Sundays of each month there are sermons at 11:00 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m.
 Wednesday evening service 7:30

SALEM CHURCH

Ten miles northwest of Marshall, Illinois.
 Sunday School 10:30 a. m.
 Berean Meeting on Sunday 8:00 p. m.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

Sunday School every Sunday at 10:00 a. m.
 Preaching on Saturday evening and Sunday morning and evening over each second Sunday.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Sunday School each second and fourth Sunday 10:00 a. m.
 Preaching each fourth Sunday 11:00 a. m.

PLUM RIVER (ILLINOIS)

Ten miles northwest of Lanark
 Sunday School every Sunday at 10:00 a. m.
 Preaching every third Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m.

CORVALLIS, OREGON

Sunday School each Sunday, 10:30 a. m.

BLAIR, NEBRASKA

Sunday School every Sunday at 10:00 a. m.
 Berean Class every Sunday.

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

E. E. Giesler, Pastor

Sunday School every Sunday 10:00 a. m.
 Prayer Meeting Wednesday evening. Preaching morning and evening of every third and fourth Sundays at the Union church.

HOLBROOK, NEBRASKA

Sunday School, each Sunday, 10:30 a. m.
 Berean Meeting each Sunday, 7:30 p. m.
 The Bible class is instructed by Bro. Arthur Hornaday, a Bible student of marked ability. Traveling brethren sincerely welcome.

LYSTRA CHURCH OF GOD

Near Abilene, Texas

Preaching every fourth Saturday night and on Sunday at 11:00 a. m. E. O. Stewart, Pastor.

PALAVA, TEXAS

Preaching every first Sunday 11:00 a. m.
 Berean Class every Sunday 10:30 a. m.
 Bible Study each Thursday night in Sweetwater 7:30 p. m.
 E. O. Stewart, Pastor; W. A. Hall, Teacher.

MULLIN, TEXAS

Preaching each second Saturday night and Sunday. E. O. Stewart, Pastor.

NEW HOPE CHURCH OF GOD

Near Westbrook, Texas

Preaching every third Saturday night and on Sunday at 11:00 a. m. E. O. Stewart, Pastor.

THE PARABLE OF THE UNJUST STEWARD

By J. S. Lyon

THE occasion when Jesus spoke this parable was on a sabbath day at the house of a Pharisee, near Jericho. It was on the last trip to Jerusalem, and the cross was distant not longer than two weeks. If we read over the teaching at this feast, from the beginning of the fourteenth chapter of Luke through to 18:14, we will see that the moving thought is that of righteousness.

The disciples to whom He spoke this parable were more than the twelve. It included many of the publicans and sinners who had been converted and were following Him. The Pharisees were near and within hearing distance. It was particularly galling to the latter that Jesus should be receiving such as these.

It seems to be the principal aim of this parable to point out the improper and the advantageous use of mammon, and with this in mind the explanation is not difficult, though there have been many and varied explanations presented. These may be found listed in Archbishop Trench's Notes on the Parables, thirteenth edition, pp. 427-252.

The act of the steward, in spite of his cupidity, was a kindness to the debtors unable to pay. If they had been able to pay, there would have been no merit to the act. That they were insolvent seems true from the use of the word chre-opheiletes, meaning, a debtor of necessity. These debts were usually like our mortgage notes, and non-payment perhaps meant the seizure of all that the debtor had. The debt was certified by a writing on a waxed tablet, surrendered to the steward by the debtor. "Take your bill" was in effect the surrendering of the old tablet to the debtor and for which he was to write another for less amount.

Coming now to the eighth verse, it does not seem natural for us to see anything to be commended in what the steward did, from the point of rectitude; but the lord did, and so we must try to find some plausible reason for it. The translation is correct. Any explanation must be in harmony with the plain moral that is intended to be conveyed. It had been the lifelong custom and training of sinners and publicans to make use of their riches for furtherance of their own interests. Having now become converts to the teaching of Jesus, it was necessary that they be taught the right use of them. This is the gist of the parable, and there is no necessity for us to determine who the steward and master are whom they typify.

It is evident that the striking prudence of the steward, evinced in his acts towards the insolvent debtors, perhaps in the very presence of his master, seemed so shrewd that it aroused the latter's commendation. Perhaps it was a sarcastic approval, as much as to say, "You have been pretty smart; I'll have to give you credit for that." Had he as steward displayed an equal ability in behalf of his lord, he would not have been led to this loss of stewardship.

Having in this much shown how mammon can serve the worldly need and be prostituted to acts of unrighteousness, Jesus goes on to show how it can be used for righteousness. The steward's purpose was to make friends for this age. The Christian's purpose was to be making friends for the age to come. "Make yourself friends by means of the wealth you have, but friends that will later on receive you in the age to come in the kingdom of our Lord." Is not this paraphrase the true sense of the eighth verse? Does this not point out a lesson that those who have wealth should use it in gospel work? And that no opportunities of life should be used for personal ends, if they will not at the same time advance God's work?

The King James rendering, "and when ye fail", can better be changed to, "and when it fails". When the riches of this world are of no further use to us, called by death, there will remain for us in the awakening of the resurrection, friends, indeed, in the ones saved by our efforts, in the records of deeds done righteously.

Although this seems a satisfactory explanation to the writer, others may prefer the one given by the text of the Concordant Version: "And am I saying to you, 'Make for yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, etc.'?" He turns the phrase from commendation to disapprobation, by putting it in the interrogative form, as if to say, "Because the lord of the unjust steward chose to commend his unrighteous act, shall I, the righteous Lord, do thus?" In order to emphasize the "I" it must be placed before the verb in the Greek, which Knoch takes to justify his translation.

The riches we thoughtlessly consider ours are no more so than those the steward administered. We are the stewards of God, and that which we have is His, given to us to administer. If we do not think so and act so, then we have chosen to serve mammon and not God. But there are other riches given to us that cannot be counted by dollars and cents. How shall we use the minds that God has given us in His service? What about the talents, great or small, with which He has endowed us? What are we doing with the wealth of knowledge of His Word? Are we using it to His advantage? And what, indeed, are these riches, when compared with the "true riches" we may be entrusted with?

We can thank Bro. Judd for setting us to work on these hard subjects. There are a good many of them in the Bible. Let us not leave it to others to work out the answers, but try ourselves to solve each one for the personal good it will do us. Here is one of them. Send in your explanation. How can we harmonize the discrepancies in the story of the blind men or man, Matt. 20:30; Mark 10:47; Luke 18:38?

READER, are you aware that the earth is hustling you around the sun at the tremendous pace of somewhat more than a thousand miles a minute? and that this speed does not vary a minute, nor even a mile in a year? And yet, atheists tell us there is no God.—S. E. H.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 12, 1931

NUMBER 32

RELIGIOUS COUNCILS

By F. L. Austin

NO CHRISTIAN questions the power of Christ to save. None questions that the gospel of Christ "is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth". The power of the gospel, the power of Christ are fully accepted. But there is a question in the minds of many as to how best and most thoroughly to discover the gospel in its richness, discover Christ in His fullness, to the end that the power of Christ shall be most completely experienced.

It is God's pleasure that all might be saved. God has outlined before all the pathway to salvation. The Bible fact that all will not be saved reveals no weakness or inability of God. Rather, it reveals a weakness, a failure on the part of men to properly recognize God and God's ways. The fact that some require much severer chastening than others in order to continue them in their chosen way of discipleship gives further emphasis to the fact that man in his tendency to waywardness is the weak party.

Neither God, nor Christ, nor God's plan of salvation, nor any branch or phase of God's workings are weak or incapable in the matter of saving man. That weakness was introduced by man in his first sin, which sin has increased, as it were, in geometrical progression throughout the ages, and has increased more or less proportionately man's weakness in vision to see God, to see His ways.

Because that sin has increased, because the race seems to be giving itself to less real consecration to God, to the taking of greater liberties with God's truth, is no least excuse for the true-hearted Christian to lessen his earnest effort to discern the hand of God and its beckonings toward salvation's goal.

At this writing an International Chamber of Commerce, having gathered in Washington, is studying and conferring relative to fundamental and universal principles regarding commercial and financial problems of world wide importance. That there is a God-established fundamental truth-principle underlying all human intercourse, as pertaining to temporal or physical matters goes without question. The great trouble of the age is that man, in his uncontrolled desire for advancement and achievement in given lines, has trespassed upon these God-established principles.

There is no question but that the present world wide depression is the result of recent mad rioting politically, financially, commercially with iron bound laws pertaining to these fields of effort. This sin-crazed rioting has produced a social earthquake, rocking every society of every class to the uppermost corners of the world. The International Chamber of Commerce is conferring and studying with a view to discovering wherein man has most viciously trespassed and wrecked these laws of nature, with a view presumably of correcting man's methods so as to harmonize more nearly with the laws of God in these matters.

This is but a weak illustration of man's religious efforts as regards salvation and the observation of its laws. The truly religious person is not questioning God nor His laws. He is earnestly seeking to discover those laws and as earnestly seeking to adapt himself unto them. It is for this adaptation of man to the ways and principles of God that the religious council should be frequently resorted to.

Truly, the gospel of Jesus Christ "is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" it. Truly, there is no need of any effort of any individual to bolster that power. But of what good is the gospel to the individual, even though he knows it well from A to Z, if he does not adapt himself to obedience thereof?

The proclamation of the gospel is perhaps the smallest labor of the evangelist. In a sense the gospel is simple, easy to comprehend, easy to follow step by step unto a largeness of its glory. But how to successfully exhort the individual to consistently and conscientiously forego his carnal cravings and actively yield his life to continued conscientious obedience of the gospel is a serious problem. How to successfully exhort a local group of Christians so that one and all will individually and mutually assist each other

(Continued on page 501)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

“Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?”—Luke 18:8.

TIME'S OUTSTANDING SIGN

THE present urge of atheists to press their doctrines everywhere for the express purpose of breaking down man's worship of God, is assuming an impetus and a harvest that few seem to realize.

“By the end of the year 1936”, states The Literary Digest, reviewing conditions as found beyond the Atlantic, “Europe must have no less than 20,000,000 atheists.” This is not the voice of the Digest, but rather the voice of atheism as gathered by that publication.

It arrives at these conclusions as a result of reviewing press reports from various parts of Europe. The “Godless International” is an organization with the avowed purpose of extending the “godless” movement of “free-thinking societies” throughout the world. Nor is its influence beyond the ocean only; it is already scattered throughout America.

According to citations from the Berlin Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, the membership of the “Alliance of the Militant Godless” numbered 120,000 in 1926.

In 1928 the number of this membership had increased to 500,000, while one year later it claimed 2,000,000. Its aim, according to the understanding of The Literary Digest, is that it will have 17,000,000 members by the end of 1933.

The methods of this “Godless International” include that of receiving children at eight years of age into membership as “juvenile pioneers”. These may become members in full at the age of fourteen.

At the present time these European publications are said to claim 40,000 local groups. They use every known means for proclaiming their views—the public platform, the public press, the radio, the picture film, and the individual solicitor.

Their aim is not merely against the Christian religion, both Protestant and Catholic, but also against Judaism and Mohammedanism. That is to say, their aim is against every form of religion that recognizes God as being Creator and Sovereign of man and man's world.

One reason that these so-called “free thinkers” are pushing their propaganda so strenuously at the present time, is because of the unrest throughout the world—occasioned by lack of employment. That man or woman who finds himself without revenue-producing labor and who feels the humiliation of poverty and the gnawing of hunger provides human soil most receptive of the seeds of revolution. In the times of the “Market Street riots” the spirit of revolution was satisfied to smite against the walls of capitalism. This was continued with more or less vigor.

Today that spirit, without lessening its opposition against capitalism, has been extended to include opposition against religion, even against the thought of God as Sovereign over the world. It appeals to the restless and distressed thousands with a claim that by freeing themselves from the shackles of long standing trust that was first inspired by Jehovah and afterward continued by man, they will then free themselves from the slavery of the more favored classes and bring to themselves a freedom of action that will result in their enrichment, both of prosperity and of enjoyment.

Thus the riotous stream rushes downward through the rocky canyons, cut deep by the wayward ways of man. The dashing waters of this current seek to engulf first innocent childhood and youth, with the expectation that, when such childhood reaches the vigor of early manhood, the roaring, dashing stream will by society be unbearable. The hope is that the result will be an overthrow of trust in God, resulting in a godless world.

THE SURE WORD OF PROPHECY

How startling and astounding are the revelations referred to in the foregoing when compared to the inspired words of that God whom some today would deign to overthrow.

Speaking of the day of the Lord, Paul, in 2 Thessalonians 2, instructs that that day shall not come “except there come a falling away first and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God”.

Enraptured with the astounding vision which was given to him on the Isle of Patmos, John recorded in Revelation 13 the establishment of a great system under the cognomen of a beast, “having seven heads and ten horns”. To this beast “the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority.” The result of all this, proclaims this inspired prophetic Word, is that in "the Lord's day", Rev. 1:10, they shall worship "the dragon which gave power unto the beast"; and they shall worship "the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? Who is able to make war with him?" Rev. 13:4.

In verse six it is announced of this same beast that "he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven."

Again in verse eight, the same inspired Record continues, "AND ALL THAT DWELL UPON THE EARTH SHALL WORSHIP HIM, WHOSE NAMES ARE NOT WRITTEN IN THE BOOK OF LIFE OF THE LAMB SLAIN FROM THE FOUNDATION OF THE WORLD."

How strikingly true to this prophecy is the spirit of the present day effort, referred to in the foregoing article, which has as one of its war cries, "Down with God". And as a presumed balance therefor, the added cry, "Up with man; save yourself; rely no longer on God or on Christ."

THE CHILD

PERHAPS there was never a day in the history of man when the energetic, prayerful, spiritual effort of the Christian should not be pressed with stronger heart and stronger zeal than this day.

It seems to be impossible but that we are all but crossing the threshold from the day of man into the day of the Lord.

The world must of necessity—necessity occasioned by the sinful viciousness of unbelieving man—pass through an orgy of confusion and distress which will attain unto the peak of such distress. Never before, nor never afterward, according to our Savior's statement in Matthew 24:21, does the eye of God behold the equal for mankind.

That influence which first and most truly secures the attention of the child mind has first opportunity to develop the child unto a maturity either for or against the God of heaven. It little affects Jehovah's plan which way that child turns. It makes all the difference to the child, all the difference known to humanity, which way he turns. 'ARE WE GOING TO THROW OUR INFLUENCE IN FULL FORCE TO SNATCH THE CHILD, "AS BRANDS", FROM THE BURNING?'

If ever Christianity passed through a day in which responsibility rested heavily upon its shoulder, that day is this day.

With all the ferocious, unprincipled efforts that are being woven round and round child life, as the vicious spider weaves its web of shackles around its helpless victim, with all the influences purposely made attractive and alluring to the inexperienced life of the growing child thrown round about him—with all these things present, the church of Jesus Christ should arouse itself to a realization of its duty toward others, and should unlimber its Christian, its moral, its financial strength and power to the end that it may train and direct child life, as well as adult life, unto an ever-increasing comprehension of, and consecration to the God of heaven and to Christ His Son.

MORTAL OR IMMORTAL

By George B. Alldridge

(Continued from last week)

NOR long ago I read a brochure on the subject of "Purgatory", which, according to the Roman Catholics, is a state or place of purification after death, where certain offenses may be expiated. The writer, a prominent Catholic priest, started out, "I assume that my readers all believe that their souls are immortal, and hence there is no need to argue this question. So I will point out what becomes of the soul after death", etc.

After trying to describe purgatory with the help of Dante, Milton, and other poets, to my amazement, instead of proving that the soul is immortal, the question they leave unsolved, he gives one scripture to prove the existence of purgatory, and that from one of the apocryphal books of the Douay Version, which scholars, both Jewish and Gentile, have rejected as not canonical, and even this, if the context is included, condemns their teaching.

I will quote in full from 2 Maccabees 12:43-46: "And making a gathering, he sent twelve thousand drachms of silver to Jerusalem for sacrifice to be offered for the sins of the dead, thinking well and religiously concerning the resurrection. (For if he had not hoped that they that were slain should rise again, it would have seemed superfluous and vain to pray for the dead.) And because he considered that they who had fallen asleep with godliness, had great grace laid up for them. It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from sins."

Now I understand why Catholics pray for the dead, "and come across" with hard earned dollars to get them out of purgatory.

Now let us turn back to Psalm 146:3, 4, the Douay Version, and read, "Put not your trust in princes; in the children of men, in whom there is no salvation. His spirit shall go forth and he shall return into his earth; in that day all their thoughts shall perish." Note, it is "he" the person himself—a soul—which shall return into his earth, and his thoughts perish.

At Atlanta, Georgia, on March 10, 1931, Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, renowned surgeon and one of the greatest living medical scientists, gave an address before the Southeastern Surgical Congress on "The Kinetic System

(Continued on page 506)

BEYOND THE HILLS

Beyond the hills where suns go down,
And brightly beckon as they go,
I see the land of fair renown,
The land which I so soon shall know.

Above the dissonance of time,
And discords of its angry words,
I hear the everlasting chime,
The music of unjarring chords.

I bid it welcome; and my haste,
To join it cannot brook delay;
O, song of morning, come at last,
And ye who sing it, come away!

O, song of light, and dawn, and bliss,
Sound over earth, and fill these skies!
Nor ever, ever, ever cease
Thy soul-entrancing melodies.

Glad song of this disburdened earth,
Which holy voices then shall sing;
Praise for creation's second birth,
And glory to creation's King.

—Horatius Bonar.

THE ORIGIN OF THE CHURCH

By Paul M. Hatch

THE church was an outgrowth of the Jewish root stock that had its foundation in the old covenants of promise of God, and its origin was typically Jewish. Later on, when the Jewish or Israelitish branches had been broken off through unbelief, the Gentile branches were grafted in.

The whole basis or foundation of the church was laid on the statement made by Peter, as found in Matthew 16:13-19. When Jesus asked the twelve, "Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?" they answered that He was thought to be Elias, or Jeremiah, or some other of the prophets, raised to life.

But when Jesus questioned them as to who they thought He was, Peter immediately answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." To this Jesus responded, "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." It was upon this great confession, made by Peter, that the church was to be builded: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

It would seem strange, in a measure, that Jesus did not say that upon this rock He would build His kingdom. He had previously gone all about Judæa and Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of disease among the people. But at this time some semblance of the rejection of the King had taken form. By the ekklesia, or assembly, the ones that would take the greater step than that He was the King, to that He was the Son of God (which was now to be the coming thought) by that assembly activity was to be exercised mainly in this greater truth.

Immediately after this confession of Peter, Jesus cautioned them not to tell any man that He was the Son of God. Also He began from that time forward to tell them that He was to be rejected as King, to be crucified, and to be raised the third day.

All this sounded strange to the disciples, and Peter, remonstrating with Jesus, earned a rebuke from Him: "Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou art an offence unto me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men."—Matt. 16:23. Peter was not then aware of the prophecy that told of the rejection by the builders of the Stone that was eventually to become the Head of the corner. But it was firmly fixed in his mind when he preached and defended himself before the Sanhedrin, at the hearing following the healing of the impotent man.

Although the rejection of this Stone was emphasized, both in word and in act on the part of the Jewish populace and the council, yet it was to become the Head of the corner, because Jehovah Adonai had spoken through Isaiah the Prophet, saying, "Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste. Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet: and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place."—Isaiah 28:16, 17.

Moreover, as Jesus had said to Peter that the gates of hell were not to prevail against this building, the church, so Jehovah said that the covenant and agreement against the Corner Stone would not stand, in these words: "And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it."—Isaiah 28:18.

Although Jewish vengeance had cried out, "Away with this man," before the Roman governor, which act eventually caused His death, yet God reversed that covenant with death and that agreement with the grave by raising Him from the dead. Peter heralded that proclamation to the populace in Jerusalem at Pentecost, as found in the second chapter of Acts.

This Foundation Stone, whereupon all the building was to be securely builded, was to continue throughout the dispensation, and every stone placed thereon was to be a lively stone, fitted, polished, tried. Paul gives an excellent summary of the purpose of the church in Ephesians 2:20-22, thus:

"And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

IN TUNE WITH CHRIST

By Lucille LeCrone

SOME time ago at a certain hour of the morning, all radio dials were turned to a particular program. The program was to be broadcast in many languages, so that all the world would be able to understand the message. Never before in the history of the radio had so many stations been hooked up for a single broadcast. The pope was to speak over the air for the first time.

At the appointed time the announcer said: "In just a few moments the pope will address us." This remark was repeated at intervals and finally, after about an hour of waiting, the voice of the pope was heard. Each minute of waiting was costing the broadcasting companies huge sums of money.

Contrast with this picture, if you will, the way in which the Word of the Lord is received. Many religious programs are broadcast each day. But the number of people listening to them is very small. Many people, if they come to a religious program while turning the dials of the radio, will immediately turn in another station. These same people never attend a church service. They have no desire to hear the Word of the Lord, nor have they any intention of listening to it.

If only they could realize how much they are missing by shutting Christ out of their lives. If they could but know the gladness of the glad tidings, how that Christ died for all in order that all might obtain salvation. If they could only perceive how much richer and how much fuller their lives would be with Him as their Friend! Then they would long to know more of Him and would never miss an opportunity to hear the gospel expounded.

Also remember, in contrast, how Christ was received when He was here on earth. He, who is soon to be King of all the earth, was despised and rejected of men. They constantly tried to find some fault in Him that they might accuse Him and have Him put to death. But this was impossible because He was guileless and sinless. Yet in due time, because it was His Father's will, and He came to do His Father's will, He was cruelly taken and led to the cross to die. Here He was crucified, not because of anything He had done, but He was made a sin offering for us. Here He suffered and bled and died for us, that we through Him might have the forgiveness of our sins, and thereby might gain eternal life. He was buried and rose again the third day and has become the firstfruits of all those who love the Lord.

As the Easter season becomes once more a memory, may the greatness, the wonder of His sacrifice, all that He did for us, sink more deeply into our hearts and impress us more strongly and forcefully than it has ever done before. And may we all say with Paul, "I am crucified with Christ". May we mortify the deeds of the flesh and manifest by our every word and deed that Christ lives in us.

YOUR CHURCH COUNCILS

(Continued from front page)

to discover their respective errors, to correct where they have injured, to advance away from carnality and toward spirituality—how to successfully do these things is a deep study.

To confer with one another and to exhort one another relative to these things is a matter that should be made frequently convenient. Such councils should be resorted to for the common good of all. The members of the International Chamber of Commerce will respectively receive great benefit from their council. But the main object of their gathering is that each will receive of the others and take to their respective home lands the benefits thus gathered and distribute them by proclamation and exhortation to their own people. Thus their own people will receive from the returning delegates benefits from the Washington meeting. In like manner the religious council should be so constituted as to return the greatest possible good to the greatest possible number of disciples of Christ.

CONFERENCES

During the coming summer season a large number of the people of the Church of God will be attending religious councils, some in one state, some in another. These conferences are laden deeply with responsibility. It is not theirs so much to proclaim the gospel of salvation as it is theirs to discover and reveal wherein those in attendance and those remaining at home are lacking most in faithful observance of the great truths which lead to salvation.

These councils bear the responsibility of the good of the people. Their opportunities for research and application are limited only by the devotion of their attendants to the God of heaven and by their respective consecration to the cause of their Savior and of their fellow Christians.

It is a serious question whether the mistakes and sins of Christian people in the field of Christianity should not be placed as frontiersmen in relation to the sins of the world. That is to say, it is a question whether the great upheaval of the world in the closing period of Gentile times, whether the great furore of sin that creates said upheaval is not introduced by the sin of the church. The great "falling away" of the church of Jesus Christ—rather, of those who profess to be thereof—must undoubtedly have the effect of making it the easier and simpler for men and women to extend their sinning to all but unbounded limits in any and every field of human effort. In fact, the sins of the church encourage others unto increased sins in the world.

The fact that the world renowned gangster of long standing, having fallen victim to the power of the state, is given Christian burial by the church and unlimited floral popularity by so-called Christian neighbors and friends, only encourages the mass of people to race more wildly into the forbidden fields of carnality. Therefore religious councils bear tremendous responsibility. It is theirs to discover and point out the mistakes of Christian methods, equally as it is theirs to discover and proclaim the truths of the gospel. It is the duty of these conferences to be watchmen upon the walls to warn those far and near of the errors that can be recognized. It is theirs to be guardians for the protection of one and all who are intent on Christian service.

Because of the great importance of these gatherings and of the great good that is possible through them, it is important that every group of people will have a well appointed delegation to attend these councils. Experience proves that every local church that carefully and earnestly appoints and finances a delegate or delegation to its district or state conference profits thereby. Experience proves that every local church and every district or state conference that conscientiously and diligently appoints and finances a delegate or delegation to its central conference greatly profits thereby. Not only the local or smaller works gain, but likewise the general work advances, which latter advancement returns ever increasing benefits to the local bodies.

Such religious councils or conferences can be made of untold benefit to the different local churches.

TO THE SHUT INS WHO ARE NEARING THE BORDER LINE

By M. A. Woodward

AND when we reach it, what then?—just falling asleep in Jesus. And if we fall asleep in Him, we have no need to fear; no chill of terror will course down these mortal frames, no horror of despair. For our dear Master is always on duty, watching His own, and “He gives his beloved sleep,” and He will not fail to awaken each saint of His at the call of the trumpet’s notes. Having fallen asleep in His care, you will surely awaken with the glad answer, “Here am I, Lord;” and with animated joy on each sleeper’s face, we will hasten to the Christ to hear His joyful words of welcome. O, what a day!

Dear hearts, did you ever begin a day when everything seemed to go wrong? Nothing went right, even the dear little children’s noise provoked and annoyed you. The ever welcome kiss from the hard working, but kind husband somehow lost its usual sweetness. Night settled down upon a tired, nerve wracked body, and your pillow held the tears that could no longer be kept back.

What caused all this? Was it possible you forgot when you began the day to ask God’s guidance for that day? If so, you had to bury your tired nerves close into God’s ready love and sympathy, and plead for forgiveness and help to go on and lift the burdens and carry them tomorrow with His help. How the load is lifted, and you drop to sleep! You did not know when you fell asleep what was transpiring. Some might be caring for their sick and dying. You did not even sense that, until the glorious sunrise awakened you to the cares of another day.

And so life is made up of hopes and fears, pain and pleasure, dark days and bright ones, until the journey is nearly finished, and we are nearing the “border line”. And then what? “Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.” 1 Cor. 2:9.

O, the glory, the joy, the unspeakable bliss, awaiting one who has been touched and awakened from the dead, with the glorious image of the Christ shining upon and around him. Did we fall asleep in Jesus’ love and care? We cannot fail then to awaken with the Christ-life, immortal glory shining around and through us, crowning each life with glory unspeakable.

Why, then, beloved shut ins, should anyone who is trusting all with this Christ waste time fearing, dreading to fall asleep in Christ? You will not know any more about the past life than you did the night your tired, nerve wracked body fell asleep. The sleep of death is so like natural sleep that in God’s Word He often speaks of His people “falling asleep”.

As Stephen was being stoned to death, he looked up, and God gave him a wonderful vision of glory to soothe his mangled, painful body, as he pleaded, “Lord, lay not this sin to their charge.” And when he had said this, he fell asleep. Death is so often called sleep, because it is subject to an awakening. And when we have done our very best (if we have) to be overcomers, we have this splendid promise, “To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne”. Rev. 3:21.

Are we counted among the overcomers? Yes; if we are trying to be patient in pain, trying to keep back hasty, unkind words to those who are doing all they can to provide and care for us. God never promised eternal life, or a home in the palace of the King, to those who are sinning each day by snapping and snarling because everything is not just as they think it should be. If those caring for us are doing the very best they can, it is not Christlike to spend our days faultfinding. But rather, with thanksgiving on our lips, and joy in our hearts for the splendid hope and promise awaiting the true Christian, we should thank God, as Paul of old did, and journey on.

O, God, help us all to remember the tender Physician who is able and willing, and who has promised to heal every wound, soothe every pain, and cure every heartache. And as you near the “border line”, instead of fearing, just look up into His magnificent face and feel the wonderful power of His presence. For you will have awakened to the new life in the palace of the King.

O beloveds, shout for joy, for the promised rest is almost here for many of us, and the waiting time will not be long before we will see Him in all His glory. Events are fast thickening all around us, events that tell us the Lord is very near. Do not be deceived, dear friends everywhere; put on the armor of God and be ready to stand for Him and His cause, for very wonderful things will transpire when God manifests His power among the nations.

—One of the shut ins, waiting for the Master.

THE RENDING OF THE VEIL

(Continued from last week)

THE MEANING OF THE VEILS

AS LONG as the tabernacle dispensation had a standing, the approach to God was very imperfect; for there were veils in the tabernacle. The people in the outer court were shut off from the Holy Place by means of the first veil; the priests in the Holy Place were shut off from the Most Holy Place by means of the second veil. The office of each veil was the same—that of concealing whatever lay behind it, and of barring a further approach.

By virtue of the Brazen Altar and the Laver, the people in the Court might advance so far; but only those who were priests might pass that veil, and go nearer, even to the symbols of fellowship with God; while only the one high priest might pass the second veil, and go the nearest, even to what were still more significant symbols of the fellowship of God.

Of this obstructive symbolism in the worship of God, it is the second veil which was the more expressive; for as the Most Holy Place was the acme of the reality and blessedness of communion with God, so it was with ultimate reference to it that all the ritual of the tabernacle was conducted, from the coming in at the gates of the Court, up to the high priest's appearance within the oracle. This second veil—the more expressive symbol of obstructionism, the concealment covering of the glory of God's presence—is the one spoken of in our text.

THE SECOND VEIL DESCRIBED

IT WAS a curiously wrought fabric. Upon the groundwork of "fine-twined linen" were displayed the colors of blue, purple, and scarlet. And those three colors, in that harmony which would result from the intervening of the purple between the other two, were interwoven in one mass of cherubim. It was a screen instinct with the ideas of life and power, and at the same time exhibiting beauty and glory. It hung by hooks of gold from four pillars overlaid with gold. The Scripture calls it a "cunning work", the cunning of God, for it was copied from "the pattern shewed to Moses on the mount."

How impressive it must have been, in the seven-fold light of the Golden Candlestick. With what awe it would fill the mind, since it hung there to hide from view the greater glory which was behind it. And by the pictured expression of guardian watchfulness and power in the in-wrought cherubim, it was ever saying quietly but solemnly, "Thus far, but no farther." We may imagine the whispered reverence among the priests of the Holy Place.

RESIGNING ITS OFFICE

BUT now the veil had ceased to exist. It was rent. Suddenly its office was at an end. There it still hung, but the eye might now see through it and beyond it. As a veil it was gone. All at once, and strangely, too, the concealment had ceased!

It fell in pieces in its own place before the Holy of Ho-lies, as if resigning its office. No hand of man interfered, and not another thing, from porch to oracle, was either displaced or marred, through all the magnificent building.

It was not of a natural process of decay, that the threads of the veil parted asunder; for though it fell in pieces, it did not fall in tatters. It did not have a rent here and a rent there. It was rent "in twain"—in just two pieces; as another evangelist says, "in the middle"—in two equal pieces; thus opening into the very center of what it had served to conceal. It was rent "from the top to the bottom"—in a straight line downwards, and completely through. It was not jerked apart by some intruder from below, but cleanly cut by an invisible hand from above. The statement implies the supernatural, and indicates that thus the matter would have been regarded by any one who might have witnessed it.

But yet more remarkable, the rending of the veil was a grand coincidence. When did it happen? Precisely when Jesus Christ expired on the cross. At the instant! That was the august moment for which the veil of concealment had been waiting; the moment for which through all the ages it had continued to exist in defiance alike of time and of violence. The very instant! As though an inherent intelligence had kept watch within it, and now heard the stroke of its heaven-struck doom.

Especialy, as we have seen, it was rent in immediate succession to the loud expiring cry of the Crucified. There were two loud cries from the cross. The first just before the darkness had ended; the second after the darkness had passed. The first was an agonizing wail of abandonment; the second, a voice of joy. The first was crushed out of Him by that agony insufferable, of which the dread darkness was the sign; the second was the bounding forth of His feelings of achievement and deliverance in the restored light of the Father's communion. The first pronounced the words, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" The second was a shout, pronouncing nothing, but following the words, "It is finished."

His work was done. He had borne our sins. The burden was gone. So, then, this second loud voice from the cross was the Conqueror's outcry of victory. As when a weary man, the day's task over, is pleased at thinking of the success his affairs have made and sinks to repose in sweet visions of tomorrow, so it was with an intensely human joy, that ere falling asleep, in the triumph of His purpose accomplished, the suffering Savior sent forth that final shout.

And how real the victory was made evident in the supernatural loudness of a dying man's voice! The Roman centurion was overcome with amazement at it, and the solid earth rocked. With that shout of victory coincided the rending of the veil. As the Savior finished His work, as the note of triumph rose high and clear from His dying lips, then, just then, as if an artisan's blade had passed swiftly down the veil, all concealment of the Holy of Holies was ended forever. It was a sign of what the victory was.

(Continued on back page)

WHEN WE SHALL SEE HIS FACE

By Annie Johnson Flint

"I will behold thy face . . . I shall be satisfied."

There are so many things to ask our Lord,
We think, if we could sit at His dear feet,
So much that we can never comprehend
In all the daily trials that we meet;
There are so many things that we should tell,
If we could feel the touch of His dear hand;
The griefs we hide from every soul on earth,
The troubles none but He can understand.

But I am sure that when we reach our home
And see the Savior's blessed face at last,
Our doubts and wonderings shall fade away,
As they had never been; and all our past
Shall be forgotten like a troubled dream,
Born in the darkness, dying with the night,
Lost in the radiance of endless day,
The glory of His eyes' unclouded light.

If He be silent, we shall be content
To wait in stillness, gazing on His face,
Forgetting all except His wondrous love,
And musing on the marvels of His grace.
And if He speak, then we shall hold our peace
To hearken to the music of that word;
There will be naught to question, naught to say,
When once the Master's voice our ears have heard.

For we shall know beyond all need to ask,
And He shall know beyond our speech to tell;
Rested, at peace, full fed and satisfied,
All shall be understood, and all be well.

—Sunday School Times.

FAITHFUL STEWARDSHIP

A TITHE IN ORANGE TREES

A BROTHER and sister decided to plant an orange grove in Florida. Together they purchased twenty trees. Ten trees were planted for each of them. The sister set apart one tree for the Lord and promised that all of its fruit should be used for His work.

The brother laughed a bit at her "silly notion" and jocularly told her, "You will now have nine trees, and I will have ten. I will invest my earnings of my extra tree in more trees, and you can invest in the heathen."

When the oranges were ready for shipping, the sister gathered and packed with her own hands the first box from the Lord's tree and sent it to the pastor of her home church in the north. The other oranges from that tree were picked first and marked with a special mark and sold by themselves. When all the fruit was sold the brother was amazed to find that the oranges from his sister's nine trees had sold for more than those from his ten.

Still he was not convinced of the truth of his sister's statement that God had simply fulfilled His promise, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, . . . and prove me now herewith, saith Jehovah of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Another year all the trees received the same care, but again the sister sold the fruit of nine trees for more than her brother received for his ten. They talked the matter over. The brother was convinced that God had indeed poured out a blessing in the abundance of fruit. The influence of his sister's faithful stewardship gripped his heart. He promised her that he would become a tithing steward, giving to God one-tenth of everything that came to him. Then his sister added a thank-offering to her tithe.

WHAT IS OUR MEASURE?

A YOUNG man came to a minister who had preached a sermon on stewardship. "I have a confession to make," he said. "Some time ago I made a decision to give a tenth of my income to the Lord. I had a little shop at which I had never taken in more than several dollars a day. After I made this pledge, I used to carry home the money from the cash drawer every night, and my wife and I would take out the tenth for the Lord. The receipts of my little business grew larger. I took home $8.00, then $10.00, and finally one night, $16.00—a very large amount to come in through that little shop in one day. That meant we must give $1.60 that day!

"My wife and I thought that was too much for poor folks as we were to give. We talked it over and agreed to cut it down to a twentieth that day and make a gift of eighty cents."

He paused—then went on, "I've never taken in $16.00 a day since that time, but I'm going to start over again, and I promise to be honest with God and give Him His tenth."

God was willing to make a $16.00 a day man out of him, but his measure was $8.00 a day. That was the largest sum with which he could be a faithful steward, until he came to himself and asked God to give him another chance. God literally poured out such a blessing there was not room in his heart to receive it.

The silver and gold are the Lord's. He is searching out and trying men. What is our measure?—Selected

CHRISTIAN ATTRIBUTES

"JOY in expressing the best; tirelessness in carrying out the tasks at hand; resourcefulness in meeting situations; enthusiasm over the Master's work—these are the attributes that inspire confidence, radiate a wholesome type of Christianity, get tasks done, and make the Christian way of living attractive."

THE TRANSLATION OF THE SAINTS

ENOCH was one of the oldest of the Old Testament saints, and he left this earth three thousand years before the birth of Christ. There are just three passages in the whole Bible in which Enoch is introduced. The first is in Genesis 5:18-24, where, in connection with the brief record of his birth and age, we find this important statement made concerning him: "Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him."

The second is in Hebrews 11:5-6, where he stands as a great example of the power and grace of faith: "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death". And his last appearance is in the book of Jude, where we read: "Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints."

These three texts clearly bring before us three special aspects of Enoch's saintly character—i. e., (1) his faith, (2) his walk, (3) his testimony. These three points are closely connected, and afford much food for profitable meditation, and could easily be enlarged upon. But what we desire just now is to emphasize the fact that Enoch went to heaven without dying, and that in him we are to see a very remarkable type of Christ's living and waiting saints at the close of the present dispensation.

Now the question has been raised: "Have we any ground from Scripture to expect that any of God's children shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air without their having been previously so sanctified by the Holy Spirit as to make them fit for such an exalted honor?" For it is universally acknowledged that no higher honor was ever publicly bestowed on any man on earth than that which was bestowed on Enoch and Elijah, both of whom were translated without dying. But they were men specially qualified by their faith, holy living, and public testimony.

Now if these two men are distinguished patterns of those blessed ones who shall be thus honored when Christ shall come again in glory, then must it not be that such honored ones shall be only Christians who are noted for illustrious and persevering holiness and eminent for distinguished personal service? For it is undeniable that multitudes of the members of churches at the present day resemble Laodiceans of old, who were "neither cold nor hot" (Rev. 3:15). Can we therefore conceive that Christ will actually bestow the same wondrous honor on those who are manifestly dishonoring Him by their spiritual poverty, sleep, slothfulness, selfishness, indifference?

Dr. Seiss says: "I have no idea that a very large portion of mankind, or even of the professing church, will be taken. Only the select few who 'watch and pray always' (Luke 21:36) shall be caught up." The rest of the church must go through the horrors of the last great tribulation.

Beloved in Jesus, let us be diligent in our testimony for the kingdom. May we earnestly pray in faith for one another that we may endure to the end. If we are prepared to meet Jesus in the air at His coming, earthly possessions will not be needed. Therefore may we not allow the cares of this world to turn us away from a commendable testimony of the coming of Jesus and His government on earth.

—Selected.

"ALL that I have taught of art, everything that I have written, every greatness that has been in any thought of mine, whatever I have done in my life, has simply been due to the fact that, when I was a child, my mother daily read with me a part of the Bible, and daily made me learn a part of it by heart."—John Ruskin.

HEIRS WITH CHRIST

By Harvey Krogh

UP UNTIL the birth of Christ, God had no begotten son. He was without an heir. There was no one worthy of inheriting His boundless riches. Now in Jesus Christ He has a Son, an Heir, One who was faithful and true to His Father.

Christ, as the Son of God, had a work to do, for He was the only one worthy to do it. His work was to lift men out of sin and to reconcile them to His Father, so that they, too, might be called His brethren and also God's sons.

Reading from Romans 8:13-18, we see that if we mortify the deeds of the flesh and live through the Spirit, we are the sons of God, the children of God. "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." True Christians are to be made like Christ at His coming and are to be fashioned like unto His glorious body.

Let us consider the meaning of being a son, an heir of God. An heir is one who inherits the possessions of his father. God possesses all things. "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein." Psalms 24:1. Christ is to inherit all of these things. In Revelation 21:7, we read that God will also give these things to others: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son."

Can we realize what it really means to be joint heirs with Christ, partakers of that heavenly glory as He is? Can we comprehend the greatness of inheriting the earth, of obtaining life that cannot end? It is too much for a finite mind like ours to grasp. But the Lord has promised us these things, and we know that His promises are true. So let us do all in our power to bring others to the knowledge of this great truth, that they also may have that greatest of opportunities.

May the Lord give us strength to hold fast these promises and to live so that we may be acceptable, when He comes to reward His servants.

MORTAL OR IMMORTAL

(Continued from page 499)

and Its Control." He pointed out that the animals are far superior to us in sight, smell, strength, fleetness, and in many other respects. Only in the higher organs are we superior, and in the development of this organ, the frontal lobe of the brain, is the secret of our domination.

It is therefore true that our leaders and our greatest thinkers, because their lower organs are driven to more activity by the highly developed higher organ, are more subject to high blood pressure, goiter, and other ailments. Man, in a sense, is the victim of his own civilization. This driving force may and often does wear out the entire physical mechanism. Hence then we see that man's superiority lies in his brain capacity. Is not this the secret of success in all the activities of human life and existence?

How true to the Bible is all this! Let us quote Psa. 8:4-10, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him? Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, thou hast crowned him with glory and honour: and hast set him over the works of thy hands. Thou hast subjected all things under his feet: all sheep and oxen; moreover the beasts of the fields. The birds of the air and the fishes of the sea that pass through the paths of the sea. O Lord, our Lord, how admirable is thy name in all the earth."

Paul, in Hebrews 2:5-13, beautifully elucidates this scripture. He points out that there is yet a world to come which will not be subjected to the angels, that in that world all things will become subject to Him, and those who in this life He is preparing to participate in this new government, He will raise from the dead at His coming.

Dr. Crile thinks he has discovered that cell tissue may be developed and nurtured artificially into life. Twenty-two years ago I read these remarkable words, and they are true today: "We know neither what life is, nor what death is, nor how nor why the one passes into the other. This is not for want of guessing, for many centuries and much hard thinking have been devoted to this business in the realm of pure speculation. But these speculations have not advanced us a whit, and even now, when the sacrosanct problem of life has long since been impounded by biologists and submitted to the cold contemplation of science, we are forced to confess that the secret remains remarkably well hidden."

Though much has been learned of the processes attending life and of the conditions governing its continuance or conclusion, what in essence it is, how it begins, what determines the gradual failure which we call senescence, on these matters we are still pretty thoroughly in the dark.

Radiobes, the putative examples of a spontaneous generation under the influence of radium emanations, have had their day, and have left us what we were, unexplained of the first and greatest mystery that man has encountered—life. Scientists and philosophers, it matters not how learned they may be, give us no hope beyond the grave. Death ends all, and hence the only hope is in a resurrection from the dead—the Bible's solution.

In conclusion, my immortal soul friends, think upon these scriptures: "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." Psa. 115:17. "In death these is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" Psa. 6:5.

"Wilt thou show wonders to the dead? shall the dead arise and praise thee? Shall thy loving kindness be declared in the grave? or thy faithfulness in destruction? Shall thy wonders be known in the dark? and thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?" Psa. 88:10-12.

"The grave cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee; they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth." Isaiah 38:18. "But man dieth and wasteth away; yea, man giveth up the ghost and where is he? As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up, so man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Job 14:10-12.

"Before I go whence I shall not return, even to the land of darkness, and the shadow of death; a land of darkness itself; and of the shadow of death. Without any order, and where the light is as darkness." Job 10:21-22. "To the law rather, and to the testimony, and if they speak not according to this work, they shall not have the morning light." Isaiah 8:20.

In my next article I will write upon this subject, "Our Hope of Eternal Life."

ENDURE

CHRISTIANS are called to endure. "I endure all things for the elect's sake", said the Apostle; and his command to Timothy was, "Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, make full proof of thy ministry."

"Many are the afflictions of the righteous." The world assails; the flesh beguiles; Satan assaults; and the Lord chastens. What then? Endure!

You must pass through the furnace. Suppose enemies do kindle the fire? Suppose Satan does blow the bellows? You will be none the worse for all that; it will only consume your dross, and bring you forth, purged from every defiling thing.

Endure afflictions! Let men burn and beat; the hearth stands after the fire has gone out; and God's church is an anvil that has worn out a great many hammers, and will wear out a great many more.

"He that endureth unto the end the same shall be saved." Trust and you shall triumph. Endure and you shall enjoy. Learn to lie still beneath the stroke. Despise not the Lord's chastening. Look upon the wicked as His rod and His staff.

He rules the whole world. His eye sees every tear. His ear hears every groan. His hand will help in every time of need. His grace will be sufficient in every trial. His joy will be the soul's exceeding great reward.—Selected by Rufus A. Curtis.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee. Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address. "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"HONOUR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER" — DEUTERONOMY 5:16.

OUR GIFT TO HER

MOTHER — a word that brings to mind many tender memories, little kindly deeds, noble sacrifices, labor and toil perhaps, tears, heartaches, worries, smiles, laughter and prayers, all expressed in that one word — mother. She is the one to whom humanity looks for expression of all the finer things of life, and in consideration of the place that she holds in the lives and hearts of all, we have set aside a day in which to unite in paying her homage.

Throughout the year there are days which we commemorate — Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, Fourth of July. But as the years go on, there seems to be a growing tendency to commercialize such occasions, while the reason for which the day was originally set apart is forgotten.

Thanksgiving brings more thought of turkey and pumpkin pie than it does of giving thanks for the bountiful store of earthly goods and spiritual blessings that God has showered upon us. Christmas has come to mean tinsel and sleigh bells, crowds of shoppers, feasting and expensive gifts, while the picture of the Christ grows dimmer and dimmer. Many people think of Easter only as one great fashion show.

Mother's Day is a little different from all other holidays, inasmuch as it will mean just as much to those who observe it in years to come as it did to those who instituted it. The heroine of that day will always be present, endearing herself to her children, vital, loved.

For weeks before Mother's Day, advertisements are lavish in their suggestions of gifts for her. We should give her everything which is within our means to offer, for she deserves it. But your gift, unless accompanied by that thoughtfulness and love for which she longs, cannot mean nearly as much to her as a few simple words or a card that will carry to her a tender thought or loving message. Mother doesn't care nearly as much about your money or your gifts as she does about you. She feels as though all her efforts are repaid if she knows that the child which she has nurtured, watched and worried over, cares as much for her in return.

They have set apart the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day, but to those who love her, it comes three hundred and sixty-five times a year.

NATIONAL BEREAN BOARD MEETING

THE National Berean Board will meet in spring session on May 19, at 9 a. m., at South Lawn Park Church of God, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Every member of the board who possibly can is urged to be present. Several important matters will be brought up, in addition to making plans for the coming conference. If you have any reports or suggestions, you may send them in care of F. E. Siple, 50 Cherryvale, S. W., Grand Rapids, Michigan. Or, better still, bring them with you when you come.

M. W. Lyon, Pres.

MARCH REPORT FROM DIXON, ILLINOIS

Senior: Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 7; interest, fair.

Junior: Membership, 13; average weekly attendance, 13; interest, very good. This class is doing fine work.

Primary: Membership, 5; average weekly attendance, 4; interest, very good. Having lessons concerning the creation.

Elizabeth Ford, Sec.

Dixon is the only society heard from this month. I wonder what the rest of our societies are doing. Everyone is interested in what you are doing. Let us hear from you.

Edna Wood, State Sec.

ETERNAL LIFE

Its Giver is God himself (Romans 6:23).

It is found in Christ alone (1 John 5:20).

It is received by faith in Christ (John 3:36).

It is assured by the Holy Spirit (1 John 5:11).

Its enjoyment is experienced by feeding on Christ (John 6:54).

Its fruit is holiness of life (Romans 6:22).

Its hope is the coming of Christ (Jude 21).

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 16; Ohio, 13; Michigan, 8; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

JESUS PREPARING FOR THE END

OUR communion service is a very solemn service, and is to be partaken of very seriously. Why?

Jesus and His disciples went up to Jerusalem to attend the feast of the passover.

The feast of the passover was kept in remembrance of the "passing over" of the families of the Israelites, when the firstborn in every family in Egypt was destroyed; and also in remembrance of their passing out of bondage.

The disciples asked Jesus where they would eat the passover supper. Jesus sent two of His disciples to the city and told them to follow a man whom they would see carrying a pitcher of water.

They were to tell him that the Master wanted to know where they should find the guest chamber, that He might eat the passover with His disciples.

Jesus said the man would show them a furnished upper room where they should make ready the passover.

The disciples did as they were told, and in the evening Jesus and the twelve disciples sat down to eat the passover supper.

As they sat eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed and brake it, then gave it to His disciples, saying, "This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me."

He meant that the bread should be a symbol to them of His body, which was soon to be broken for them and for us.

Jesus took the cup of wine, or juice of the grape, and when He had given thanks, He gave it to them to drink, saying, "This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you."

He meant that this should remind them of His blood, which was to be shed for them.

While they were eating, Jesus said that one of them would betray Him. This made the disciples very sad, and each one asked, "Is it I?"

Jesus told them that it was one of the disciples that dipped with Him in the dish. He meant Judas, who soon after went out, and that night betrayed Jesus.

—Junior Quarterly.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Exodus 12:21-28.
2. Ask your parents if one should examine himself, or the other person with whom he is to commune; also, if you should play during communion.

3. Learn another verse of Isaiah 35.

WE BELIEVE IN baptism as Jesus was baptized. "And it came to pass in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.

"And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him:

"And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

—Mark 1:9, 10, 11.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

It is everybody's business,
In this old world of ours,
To root up all the weeds he finds,
And cultivate the flowers.

It is everybody's business,
As he walks earth's weary miles,
To keep back all the frowns he can,
And bring out all the smiles.

It is everybody's business,
I'm sure you've always heard
To hold in check the harsh one, and
To speak the kindly word.

It is everybody's business—
It is our old world's need—
To keep the hand from unkind act,
And do the loving deed.

—Selected.

MAKING bird houses is a simple job. Here are a few general pointers. To be satisfactory, bird houses should be well built, durable, cool, rain-proof, and accessible, since they should be cleaned after each brood's departure. The roof of the bird house should slope sufficiently to shed water, or should have a groove cut across the face of the overhanging part. It should overhang the entrance by two or three inches to keep out driving rain. Holes bored on an upward slant help to serve this purpose. Bird houses should be placed rather low and not in dense woods, with the entrance turned away from prevailing winds.

—Christian Herald.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 8. — May 24, 1931

JESUS PREPARING FOR THE END

Luke 21:1 to 22:23

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:1-6

GOLDEN TEXT

This do in remembrance of me.—Luke 22:19.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

Basic Truth. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."—1 Cor. 11:26.

Outline. I. Not the Real Passover Supper. II. Christ Our Passover. III. The Supper.

I. Not the Real Passover Supper. God specifically instructed concerning the program of the passover. The lamb was to be chosen on Nisan 10th. Ex. 13:3. It was to be kept "up until the fourteenth day." Ex. 12:6. It was to be killed in the closing of the 14th day. V. 6. It was to be eaten "in the night", which would be Nisan 15th, as their days closed and began at sundown. V. 8. This 15th day was to be "an holy convocation". V. 16. "No manner of work shall be done in" it. Inasmuch as our Savior was crucified on the 14th, the supper which He ate the evening before could not have included that of the passover lamb.

II. Christ Our Passover. "Even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us."—1 Cor. 5:7. The passover lamb in Egypt, Ex. 12 and 13, was not in behalf of the Egyptians, nor specifically for all Israel. It was specifically for the firstborn.

As "passover" Christ's death was for the firstborn unto God, not for the world. (This must not be confused with His death as an atonement; as an atonement, His death was for all.) As passover, we must understand Christ as the antitype of the passover lamb which protected the firstborn from death. This protection in Christ extends in the giving of immortality to God's own firstborn—this at Christ's second coming.

III. The Supper. It was after the supper was ended that Christ gave the bread and the cup, with the statements, "This is my body"; "This is my blood". The emblems evidently referred to His death upon the cross, before that day was ended.

"This is my body." It was of the loaf that Christ made this assertion. The loaf stood for Christ. In 1 Cor. 10:16 Paul comments upon this by saying, "Is it not a participation of the body of the anointed one?"—Diag. The Gr. word here used for communion means, "The act of partaking or sharing, i. e., participation, communion."—Crit. Lex. "Partnership" comes from the same root. The meaning then seems to be that the individuals partaking of the emblems not only partake of Christ, but enter into partnership with Him, in giving of themselves even as Christ gave.

"This is my blood." As God, with the blood of the passover, sealed His promise to save the firstborn of Israel, as Moses with the blood of the bullock, Ex. 24, sealed his covenanted promises of Sinai, so Christ in the giving of His life sealed the new covenant with all of its promises, to those faithful in Him.

Sincere observance of the communion service brings the individual into deep and true worship, renews his vision and his pledge of the new covenant in Christ, and anew consecrates him to ever increased service and dedication.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The End: The Master prepared himself and His disciples for the end of His life. He knew that the way of the cross was His way. He trod incessantly toward it. No stone was left unturned before this event took place. He completed every part of the work assigned Him by the Father. Not only did the Master prepare His workers for the end of His life, but He gave out signs that would prepare the church of the end of the age, now closing.

The End

- of Christ's life was tragic, but pregnant with hope;
- of a hard day is generally pleasant;
- of this age is rich in hope for the faithful;
- of this age will not come until people are amply warned;
- of life is uncertain, but very sure.

Preparation: As Jesus prepared for the end, so we should prepare for the end. David said, "There is but a step between me and death." This is true of everyone. We do not know when, where, or how, but we know it is a warfare from which there is no discharge. Be practical and be square with yourself and prepare, that when that day does come, you will not need to go down into the valley of death alone.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"This do in remembrance of me."—Luke 22:19.

These are Christ's words on the night in which He was betrayed, as He sat, or reclined at the table, as was the custom. He talked with His disciples and instituted the Lord's supper.

"This do in remembrance of me" is a privilege and a duty for every Christian. "For as oft as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come." 1 Corinthians 11:26.

This must be done in a worthy manner. "But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body." 1 Corinthians 11:28, 29.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: In Remembrance of Me.

Christ instituted the ordinance of the communion and said, "This do in remembrance of me". It stands as a "memorial" to Him. By its observance we are reminded of His love; how that while we were yet sinners, He gave His life for us. We remember His self sacrificing life of service to an ungrateful world. We see Him on errands of love and mercy to a needy world. We hear Him debase the proud and self-righteous, and exalt the humble. We remember that He was tempted in all points as we, and He can therefore be touched with the feeling of our infirmities.

When we see Him yield up His pure life on the shameful cross, we are impressed to sadness to see the sacrifice of the just for the unjust; of a life, made rich by obedience to the heavenly Father, for poor, weak, fallen humanity.

Why shouldn't we keep these things in memory? Is it not enough to give us strength and courage to endure to the end?—F. A. S.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: The Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

The second verse of the lesson says that Jesus asked Peter and John to prepare the passover for them. What was the passover? Ex. 12:1-14. How did Jesus and His disciples find the room where they took part in this feast? Luke 21:10-13. Did Jesus know that His death was so near at hand? What did He mean in vv. 19, 20? How was His body broken and His blood shed for us?

If He told His disciples to take the bread and wine in remembrance of Him, what would come to their minds each time they partook of it? There are certain things in our lives that we connect with a dear friend perhaps. And when we do these things, we think of that friend who may be gone from us. Just so with the Lord's supper, when we partake of it, we think of His great sacrifice for us, and we determine to give ourselves to Him and His service, each day of our lives.

Jesus knew that He was soon to leave His disciples and go to His Father. He did not want them to forget Him or His love for them. He wanted to draw them close to Him, and so He gave instructions to them to keep this supper, called the Lord's supper, in memory of Him, until He returns.—M. G.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

May Meeting, Fonthill, Ont.,	May 29 to 31
Minnesota, Eden Valley,	June 11 to 14
Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

On Sunday, June 7, a special series of meetings will begin at Eden Valley, with morning, afternoon, and evening services by the pastor. On Monday evening, June 8, Elder Jas. A. Patrick, of Ashland, Ohio, will be present to continue with the meetings for about two weeks. During this time the Minnesota Annual Conference will convene, the dates for the conference being June 11 to 14. In addition to Elder Patrick, several other ministers will be present for the conference. Although the conference will close on June 14, the series of meetings then in progress will continue for the next four or five days. This will be an interesting and helpful meeting. Let all of the Minnesota brethren plan now to attend the conference and as many of the other meetings as possible. All are invited. Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

Bro. C. E. Lapp expects to be with the congregation at Plum River, Illinois, over Sunday, May 17. All those living in the neighborhood of this church are urged to attend.

Sr. Anna D. Springer of Lancaster, Ohio, visited with her mother at Bremen, Ohio. While there Sr. Springer fell down four stair steps and sprained her left ankle, which has greatly hindered her in her church work, but she is able now to be about again.

Sr. Woodward's cheerful presence has been missed at church services the past ten days. She has been quite sick, but is much improved at this writing. Sr. Williamson, also of Golden Rule Home, has been ill, having been threatened with pneumonia, but she is now on the road to recovery.

Notice was given that prints of the Training Class picture may be obtained for five cents each. This should have read, "five cents each, plus mailing costs," which will bring the cost to ten cents. Address Gerald Cooper, Ripley, Illinois.

Many good words have been received for both our Easter and Training Class issues, as well as for the regular numbers of The Restitution Herald. To all such we send our appreciation, and we pray The Herald may continue to proclaim the truths of God in a way that will lead to deeper consecration on the part of its readers.

When sending in her pledge and a contribution to the cause, Sr. Lillian Raitton writes:

"I thought the student Restitution Herald real fine, both the articles and the picture of the group of consecrated young men and women. May the Father's presence and blessing fill each heart and life that much good may be done.

"I also like the prayer circle. It does seem to bring the dear sick ones near to us, and it unites us in Christ, so strengthening the bond of unity.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,
Sr. C. E. Randall,
Bro. Thomas Weldon,
Sr. H. L. Leeper
Sr. Ada Daniels
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick
Sr. Ella Rose,
Sr. Edna Brewer,
Sr. Harriet Reed,
Sr. Franklin Moore,
Sr. Riley Hoskins,
Sr. Anna Perrine,
Wilbur Hagenbush
Sr. Harry Thomas
Sr. May Moore

Knox, Indiana.
Mora, Minnesota.
Thorold, Ont.
Arkansas City, Kans.
Alma, Mich.
Ashland, Ohio
Grand Rapids, Mich.
Troy, Ohio
Arkansas City, Kan.
Niagara Falls, N. Y.
St. Cloud, Minn.
Haines City, Fla.
Argos, Ind.
Graytown, Wis.
Bartley, Nebr.

A letter from Bro. M. W. Perrine states that Sr. Perrine is now at home, but is still in a very serious condition. Though she does not suffer the severe pain she did while at the hospital, she is unable to be up at all. The prayers of the church are earnestly requested in her behalf. Let us all remember this faithful brother and sister at the throne of grace.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Only ashes now remain of the mortgage taken four and one-half years ago upon the completion of our little church. And from this point of success now reached, our faithful little band is ready to march forward into the larger work of the future.

Bro. Austin was present to preach on Friday night, Saturday night and Sunday morning, and to conduct the mortgage burning services on Sunday afternoon. These services were impressively conducted, and after the mortgage was burned, pledges and contributions to the amount of several hundred dollars were received for a building fund. A committee is now working upon plans to present to the congregation for approval, and it is hoped that the basement to the enlarged church can be completed this summer, so as to be ready to house a much larger Sunday School next winter.

Sr. Austin accompanied her husband for the week end here. Our people were all glad to see her, and appreciated her vocal numbers.

And now we turn our faces to the annual conference and Bible School to be held June 21 to 28. A hearty invitation to all.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

VIRGINIA BIBLE SCHOOL AND CONFERENCE

The Virginia Bible School and Conference will (D. V.) be held at Maurertown, August 20 to 30, inclusive. Bro. Marsh will be with us again this year. Those who were with us last year will remember, with pleasure, the fine Bible School we had as a result of his labors. We are indeed glad that we can have Bro. Marsh with us again.

We urge the brethren to plan vacations so as to be with us during our Bible School, August 20 to 30.

Now is the time to start planning.

Harry A. Sheets, Sec.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

Illinois Bible School promises to be a most instructive and interesting session this year. Bro. Marsh will be with us again and will teach the junior young people's class, one session per day. This includes those of high school age, with whom Bro. Marsh is so successful as an instructor. Bro. C. E. Lapp will conduct the other session. Begin now to plan to be in attendance, August 4 to 16.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

According to reports received here recently, Bro. Cronkrite, of 120 Mary St., Brantford, Ontario, is very ill, and has had to cancel his plans of attending our Annual May Meeting. We regret the news, and pray the Father's richest blessing to attend him. We know a word of Christian cheer would be greatly appreciated.

Bro. and Sr. Arthur Gilbey and son, Clarke, of Rochester, New York, spent the week end as house guests of Bro. and Sr. Holland of Thorold, also calling on old friends in Fonthill and vicinity. They are doing what all church people in this section of the country should do—planning on attending May Meeting.

May Meeting — May 29 to 31

The front of our church has taken on a new appearance—the building of a choir loft. The loft and rostrum are now railed off and curtained with velvet drapes. The appearance of the church in general has been improved by refinishing around the windows, by stenciling.

May Meeting — May 29 to 31

Our first elder, Bro. Weldon, was back in his old pew for the first time in five months, at last Sunday evening's service. It is needless to say he was glad. He wishes to thank his many church friends who have remembered him during his long illness.

May Meeting — May 29 to 31

We are sorry to have to report that Sr. Martha Platts is critically ill at this time.

A NEW HIGHWAY FOR OREGON

An east and west highway has been surveyed through Oregon which will eventually give this town direct communication by highway with Chicago. The right-of-way is now being purchased.

As the survey extends across the extreme west end of the Golden Rule Greenhouse property and across a point of the larger field, the N. B. I. Board is dealing with the County Highway Commission relative thereto.

LOS ANGELES

At a short business session Sunday, May 3, the church voted unanimously to retain Bro. Marsh for another year.

Bro. Earl Corbaley, of Puyallup, Washington, is now located in Los Angeles and the church is fortunate to have a young brother with much enthusiasm for the cause of truth, to help in the work. Being an expert operator of the stenotype, he is doing missionary work by taking down Bro. Marsh's sermons verbatim and sending them out to friends and acquaintances.

Bro. and Sr. F. W. Wilson, who have been sojourning in California for the past year, are contemplating a return to Kansas City in the near future. We shall miss them very much and no doubt they will miss the association with the church.

Bro. and Sr. C. E. Hatch, of Santa Ana, Bro. T. W. Holway and two daughters and son, of Long Beach, Bro. and Sr. N. J. McLeod and family, of Holtville, Bro. and Sr. Alex Scroggs, also Bro. and Sr. Austin Scroggs, of Pomona, all attended the first Sunday services in Los Angeles. Some were disappointed on learning that the afternoon services had been changed to evening, as they had hoped to hear two of Bro. Marsh's sermons on prophecy.

Bro. E. E. Rogers taught the Berean lesson Sunday evening, the subject being, Death. He is a good leader and gets enthusiasm into the lesson.

Sr. Henrietta Billings is planning a trip to visit relatives and friends in the East during the summer.

Bro. W. B. Ward is taking his vacation. He is greatly missed in the Sunday School work, also in the young people's Berean class.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

It was a pleasure for us to get to work among the Burr Oak brethren in their series of meetings from April 21 to May 3. A good interest continued throughout the meetings, and all showed an anxiety to see the church press on. We were glad to meet a number of the Argos brethren again, and a number of members from other near towns also attended some of the services.

On Sunday, May 3, five were baptized, and we pray that God may lead them into many channels of service. As this step brightens the vision of the new members, so does it also brighten the vision of the church as a body, and we trust that in all ways God will lead to exalt His Word in the Burr Oak vicinity.

Sydney E. Magaw, Minister.

THE FLAMING MORTGAGE

It was a pleasing sight on the afternoon of May third to witness the burning of the mortgage which for nearly five years had rested against the little church of South Lawn Park, Grand Rapids. Year by year at regular intervals the mortgage, which had been drawn for ten years, was gradually reduced. It was destroyed by flame at the end of four and one-half years, so faithfully and earnestly had the congregation and its friends labored.

It was less than five years ago that the first effort was made to establish this church building in a rapidly growing district, just outside the southern limits of the city of Grand Rapids. Already and for some time the church has been badly overcrowded by its Sunday School membership. It is confidently stated that the Sunday School membership might easily be doubled within one year's time did the church but have accommodation for such an attendance.

There is an earnest and prayerful longing in the hearts of that good people that they might immediately proceed to carefully and cautiously enlarge its building, in order to provide accommodation for immediate opportunity and needs. But the membership has, with one or two exceptions, been hard hit by the financial depression. Several have been without income for long periods. And yet in spite of this condition there is an earnest, prayerful longing to press forward in its chosen field. These brethren are certainly entitled to the earnest prayers and cooperation of the brotherhood at large.

AT BLAIR, NEBRASKA

We were agreeably surprised on Sunday, May 3, to find Bro. Richard LeCrone among those present at Sunday School. He gave us news of the Training Class and also gave us a short talk after Sunday School, which was very good.

We are glad to report that Dorothy Krogh came home Sunday from the Methodist Hospital in Omaha, where she underwent a serious operation on April 14. She is slowly gaining her strength.

Sr. Farley, who has been ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elza Appleby, near Kennard, died on March 15. Bro. Almus Adams of Omaha had charge of the funeral, which was held in the Methodist church at Kennard, on March 19.

Bro. Fred Jenkins is still unable to walk, though he has been gaining slowly in flesh and strength.

We received The Restitution Herald which was put out by the Training Class and wish to say that it is certainly fine. How thankful the church should feel for that class of fine young folks who are dedicating their lives to the service of the Master.

Let us all give them the encouragement they need, for they will need courage to meet the trials and discouragements of preaching the truth to an indifferent people. There is nothing more discouraging than indifference. Opposition can be met with renewed vigor and strength, but how can they meet indifference? Will He find faith when He comes?

Mrs. Birdie Krogh.

"And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down . . ."

MRS. HARRY THOMAS

Mrs. Harry Thomas (nee Helma Hilsen) was born in the town of New Haven, near Graytown, Wisconsin, on March 13, 1886, and had lived in that neighborhood since. In 1910 she was united in marriage to Harry Thomas. To this union were born four children, Lorene, Wilbur, Gladys, and Marian, all at home. She died at the Fairview Hospital, Minneapolis, on April 27, 1931, after an operation, complicated with pneumonia. Besides her husband and children, she leaves to mourn her loss, her mother, Mrs. Karine Hilsen; two brothers, Nels and Chris; two sisters, Mrs. T. H. Solberg and Mrs. Elliot Goodwin, all residing in the town of New Haven, also other relatives and a host of friends.

On December 28, 1919, she became a member of the Church of God, remaining faithful until death, always taking an active part in the Lord's work, and always ready to help those in need. She was secretary of the church and president of the ladies aid society. In death the family has lost a kind and loving mother, the church, a faithful worker, and the community, a helpful friend.

Funeral services were held at the home and at the Frist Lutheran Church at Clear Lake. She was laid to rest in the Clear Lake cemetery, with Rev. Lund officiating.

WORKING TRIP BY BIBLE TRAINING CLASS MEMBERS

Having completed a second appointment at Ripley, Illinois, the Bible Training Class of 1930-31, bade each other adieu on Monday morning of the eleventh and took their respective ways for the summer.

Rensselaer, Indiana

Two of the class, Brothers C. A. Smead and J. R. LeCrone, start for a Working Trip eastward. Their first appointment is at Rensselaer, Indiana, over the week end of May 17.

Burr Oak, Indiana

From there they will, D. V., go to Burr Oak for Wednesday evening, May 20, to continue as may be determined, but not longer than Sunday the 24th.

Further appointments will be given in following issues for South Bend and other points.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. John Corbaley; Mrs. C. P. Morgan; Mary Carter; Walter Gray; Mrs. A. M. Linsenmeier; Anna D. Springer; Mrs. Mary Hatten; Mrs. Chas. W. Coleman; S. S. Clausen; Wallace Woolf; Alexander Donaldson; Mrs. Ed. Tomlin; Jesse Weaver; Mrs. L. C. Beabout; Leona Marsh; F. H. Adams; James Rhoades; Mrs. Stanley McNeas; Elizabeth Gearhart; Mrs. Clarence Maddock; Jessie L. Fish; Mamie Kauffman; Mrs. Catharine Davis; Mrs. M. E. Bray; S. E. Murray; Alma B. Steffa; Mrs. Roland Cox; Mrs. May Borneman; Mrs. Lizzie Railsback; Mrs. A. M. Lobbell; Mrs. Joseph Good; Mrs. Harvey Krogh; Mrs. Mary Geokler; Mrs. A. B. Cameron; Robert McInturff; Leota B. Hanson; B. F. Skeels.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE RENDING OF THE VEIL

(Continued from page 503)

ENEMIES SILENCED BY PROOF

HERE, then, is something manifestly divine for us to ponder. It was meant that we should think of it and be taught by it. Not only does the Word of God record it, but the terms in which it is written required that the eye of the observer should be there. It is suggestive of the presence of witnesses, and as a matter of fact, there were witnesses. The timeliness of it was one of its most wonderful features. Jesus Christ expired at three o'clock in the afternoon. This was the time of beginning the evening sacrifice, so that the priests were in the Holy Place, in front of the veil, actually engaged in their duties. Yes, God meant it to be seen and meant it to be thought of.

Truly, God meant it for instruction. With what power it might make itself felt may be inferred from the sacredness of the veil, which so controlled the conduct of the priests. Great as had been for fifteen hundred years the sins of the chosen people, violation of the secrecy of that veil had never been one of them. As, therefore, it fell asunder, strange and awful must have been the effect upon the witnesses. And as the sight of it affected the priests, so must their report of it have struck with wonder the excited community. In the great coincidences of the hour, how could it have failed to turn every honest thinker both Christ-ward and Cross-ward? What a practical consummation it was of the truth and meaning of the occurrence, when, so soon as the gospel began to be proclaimed, "a great company of the priests became obedient to the faith"!

WHAT THE EVIDENCE PROVES

FIRST, the veil rent, it became impossible for the high priest to continue to carry within the veil the blood of atonement.

Second, the unbroken secrecy of the Holy of Holies was now at an end, and all its mysteries opened to view.

Third, the priests who ministered in front of the veil might now safely enter into that typical presence of God most freely.

Fourth, the people in the outer Court might now advance into the Holy Place of the priests, and thence into the Holiest of all. When the very presence-chamber of God had ceased to be screened off, the spirit and meaning of the first veil also were exhausted.

The rending of the veil, therefore, was the destruction of the tabernacle dispensation. It took the meaning out of the entire structure. It disjointed the ritual and decapitated the divine economy of the ages. And since it thus carried with it the demolition of the dispensation, so also it pulled down the middle wall of partition between Jew and Gentile, and threw open that presence-chamber of God to all mankind.

Such were the typical results; and now for the real results. How did it come to pass that so obstructive an economy of worship was ever instituted by God? Why did He screen off the chamber of His presence from men and or-dain that none should approach Him save under the shelter of sacrificial blood? Sin, sin—that was the obstruction! All the tabernacle arrangement was God's solemn asseveration that He will not commune with a man whose sin is upon him in its deep and damning curse.

When, therefore, those typical obstructions were swept away, it was signified that sin, the real obstruction, was taken out of the way. What was typically done in the veil was really done in Jesus Christ. This was the victory of His death. He, the sinless, battled for us with our sin, and He overcame it. He, the Sufferer, exhausted in His own person the required suffering for sin.

And so it was that the high priest of the veil was estopped from his office by that shout of triumph from the cross rending the veil. For now the Crucified himself, the real High Priest, was to carry His own blood, once for all, not into the typical presence, but into the real presence, into the heaven of heavens. There He was to appear, in the power of an endless life, as himself God's righteousness for sinners through faith in His blood.

Thus has He settled forever, for every one who will draw nigh to God through faith in Him, the entire question of sin, and removed every possible obstruction to the intimate fellowship of God.

MAN MAY NOW APPROACH GOD

Now, therefore, the way is opened for man's approach. By faith and in spiritual worship we "have boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way which he hath consecrated for us through the veil, that is to say, his flesh". Heb. 10:18-23.

In a word, the rent veil was the rent humanity of the Son of God. In its fine linen we see the righteousness of His human nature. In its suspension by hooks of gold—gold in the tabernacle being a type of the divine nature—we see the dependence of His humanity upon His deity. In its heavenly blue and its earthly scarlet, and in the gradual shading off of the former into the latter by the intervening purple, we see heaven and earth blending together in His human life, in rich and beautiful harmony. And in the mass of cherubim into which it was entirely woven, we see the supernatural functions of His human history.

Oh, indeed, it was the "cunning work" of God—the humanity of Jesus! Its very excellencies were what made it to be a veil. That display of the perfect Man on earth was the demonstration of the only kind of man whom God could permit to approach Him. His very excellencies, if that had been all, had been the destruction of our hopes. Incarnation in other words, had been of no use without the sacrificial death. The veil must be rent.

Most thoroughly His glorious humanity was rent. Rent "from the top", it was God who smote Him; rent "to the bottom", He was exceeding sorrowful even unto death; so rent that now, through those excellencies, we sinners pass at once to the presence of God. We look by faith into the heaven of heavens. We look with faces unveiled, for, though strong and clear, yet mild and lovely, is the glory which thence comes down upon us.—From the Moody Bible Institute Monthly.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 19, 1931

NUMBER 33

THE UNJUST STEWARD

WE ARE indebted to Brother James Browning for the following exposition of this parable which he thinks may be helpful to the readers of THE HERALD. The exposition was given many years ago by the editor of the Companion Bible in a prophetic journal now out of print. This was in response to a request which, with the answer, is herewith submitted.

“Question: ‘Can you help your readers in the understanding of the parable of the Unjust Steward? Can it be that the Lord Jesus really taught us to do evil that good might come?’

“Answer: ‘It is indeed true that this is a very common interpretation of the parable; and, on this very account, it needs to be re-examined. The parable itself is clear. It is in verse 9, in the interpretation of it by the Lord Jesus, that the difficulty exists.’

“We are asked to believe, from the oldest commentators down to the present day, that it means (to use the words of Godet) ‘Hasten to make for yourselves, with the goods of another, personal friends, who shall then be bound to you by gratitude and share with you their well-being In this portraiture Jesus does not scruple to use the example of the wicked for the purpose of stimulating His disciples.’

“In other words, we are taught that the end justifies the means; and thus a slanderous report is brought against the Lord Jesus (Rom. 3:8).

“Luther, Calvin, and other protestant interpreters adopt another expedient, in holding that the Lord does not teach that we are to copy the morality of the steward’s conduct: but only that his prudence, in itself, is worthy of our imitation. It is clear from the action of the steward that he had for his ruling motive the one object that, ‘when I am put out of my stewardship, they (i. e., the friends unjustly made) may receive me into their houses.’

“There is one important point for us to notice before we can arrive at our conclusion. We require the whole context; for verses 10-15 cannot be omitted. These six verses must be allowed to have their full weight; for they form an essential and inseparable part of the parable, being our Lord’s own interpretation of it. They thus give the key to the parable itself.

“There is another important point we have more than once called attention to, viz., that the punctuation forms no part of the original Greek text. It is entirely the work of the editors of that text; and of its translators. Different texts and versions vary throughout in their punctuation. Examples may be given. In the R. V. of Rom. 8, we have a suggestion in the margin that verses 32 and 34 may be punctuated as a question, thus: ‘Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God’s elect? Shall God that justifieth? Who is he that shall condemn? Shall Christ Jesus that died?’ Isaiah 64:5 is another example, where the A. V. statement ‘we shall all be saved’ is punctuated (rightly or wrongly) in the R. V. ‘shall we be saved?’

“An example of an opposite kind is furnished by Job 5:1, where an undoubted question, ‘To which of the saints wilt thou turn?’ is changed in all the Roman Catholic Bibles into a command, ‘Turn to some one of the saints.’ The purpose of this is obvious.

“Now, it is our belief that we have all been misled by the traditional punctuation of Luke 16:9. The parable proper ends in the middle of verse 8, where, after saying that the master of the unjust steward commended his wisdom, the Lord adds the reason: ‘For the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light’. That is, they know better how to accomplish their ends than do the children of light (Rom. 2:19, 20).

“The teachers of the Jews professed to have the light and to hold the key of knowledge. They labored to obtain the ‘everlasting habitations’. But they added to the law of God and made it of none effect by their traditions (Matt. 15:3, 6). They tithed mint, and rue, and all manner of herbs, and passed over the weightier matters of the law—judgment, mercy, and faith (Matt. 23:23; Luke 11:42). They were unjust stewards of the Word of God. They wasted His goods. They laded men with burdens, grievous to be borne. Read Matt. 23 and Luke 11, and see how they

(Continued on page 522)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

“That ye might know . . . what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward . . . which he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead . . . and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things”.—Ephesians 1:18, 22.

THAT WHICH AVAILETH

FOR in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.”—Galatians 6:15.

“For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love.”—Galatians 5:6.

A faith-filled love-working creature is “a new creature”. He is known and read “by his works”.

“Works” are one’s tracks, his imprint upon the ledger of the age.

It is impossible for a rabbit to leave the track of a dog, or for a dog to leave the foot-print and foot-scent of a rabbit. It is equally impossible for a carnal-hearted man to leave the “work” of “a new creature”, or for a faith-filled, love-working Christian to perform the work of a carnal-minded man.

Faith which works—which works by love—
Brings forth results—
Results which are “works mete for repentance”.
Such faith availeth.

HE WAS TAKEN UP

IT WAS Friday. The sun was far in the west, as if both to withdraw its presence from, and to surround with its most softening glow, the little group on Olive’s brow and God’s Son ascending therefrom.

It was the fortieth day that He had “by many infallible proofs,” shown Himself in resurrection life. His resurrection having been infallibly proven and His men and women of faith who had thus been begotten “again unto a lively hope”, having been surely confirmed therein, the risen Savior led His apostles—and, probably, some others, perhaps Barsabas and Matthias—in little conversing groups, from the upper room down past Gethsemane and up the slope of Olivet. As was His custom He was instructing them—molding lives into shapes and forms for the Father’s use in the building of His great eternity.

His journey from Bethlehem’s cradle to Olive’s crown was now complete. Satan and sin and godlessness had been met in home and garden and field and temple, in valley and in mountain, and always He had triumphed gloriously. Salvation’s door had been opened wide, and He had cast the seal that will in God’s own time close forever the door of sin. And now, while with uplifted hands He “blessed them”, and “while they beheld”, “he was parted from them”, “taken”, “carried up into heaven”, “and a cloud received him out of their sight”.

SAT ON THE RIGHT HAND OF GOD

MARK 16:19

THE sun had set and the sabbath was upon them. Learning from the white clad “men” that it was useless for them to “stand . . . gazing up into heaven”, that the threshold of a new era had been crossed and that the time of their Savior’s return, though certain, was yet unknown, and knowing that they were but “a sabbath day’s journey” “from Jerusalem”, they returned to the “upper room” in the city, “with great joy”.

How different from their overpowering anguish just forty-three days before. Then, they would “go a fishing”; now, “they were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God”. Then, He was in death, in the sepulchre; now, He was in life, “on the right hand of God”.

The ascension of our Savior was another of the all-important steps in “the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow”. The importance of His enthronement “at the right hand of God” was repeatedly testified by the prophetic ministry of Aaron and his successors. By His ordinances to Aaron that he should yearly, with careful preparation, approach God upon the mercy seat, God engraved upon the hearts of His people the necessity for Christ, the true High Priest, not only to enter the true Holy of Holies, but, having entered, to advance therein to the seat of God. Christ entered the Holiest when He passed “through the veil, that is to say, his flesh”; He advanced to God’s seat when, forty days after His resurrection therein, He was caught up into heaven and seated at the right hand of God.

Without this latter, atonement would have been incomplete—the blessings of God for the people would not have been present. The risen Lord rightly said, “All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth”; but it is also true that God had said, “Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool.” Though given Him, yet it is not His to exercise “all power” “until” His foes are made to yield to Him.

CHRIST'S COMING VISIBLE

WHEN Christ ascended to heaven He ascended openly and in full view of His disciples. They were plainly told by two angels, sent back by Jesus expressly to tell them, that “this same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.” Act§ 1:11. Ye have “seen” Him go, ye “shall see” Him come.

Thus Jesus himself had taught, saying, “They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.” Matt. 24:30. This is when He comes for His people, for it goes on to say: “He shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds”. No stealthy, secret coming this, as though He were taking something that did not belong to Him, but it is announced by “a great sound” of a trumpet.

Paul had learned Christ's coming for His saints in the same manner, saying, “The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God.” This is the noisiest coming imaginable, and it is to gather His saints, both dead and alive, to meet Him in the air. 1 Thess. 4:16-17.

In speaking of the Lord's second coming, four distinct Greek verbs or their derivatives are used:

1. Optomia, which means actually to see. When we read, “ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom,” Luke 13:28, and “he was seen of Cephas,” 1 Cor. 15:5, and when Paul told the Hebrew church, “I will see you,” Heb. 13:23, actual sight was meant, and optomai is used. So when we read, “Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven,” Matt. 26:64, “and then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds,” Mark 13:26, and “we shall see him as he is,” 1 John 3:2, actual sight is surely declared.

We have emphasized in the above to show how optomai is translated. Some one will say: “Certainly the saints will see Him, when He comes to gather them, but He will be invisible to the wicked.” But it reads: “They shall see him.” God never speaks of His saints as “they”. If we look again we find that the “they” that see Him are those who see “the sign of the Son of man” and who mourn on earth.” Matthew 24:30. This precedes the gathering of “At God's right hand”! Being filled, enlarged, empowered, enriched with blessings of God's grace! How dim the vision to mortal minds! How incomprehensible! And yet, How Majestic! How satisfying! From that throne of the Holiest, He will return and finish the work which He began in the gardens, at the sea, on the mountains, in Gethsemane, on Calvary, at the opened tomb.

He is the Son of God. He is man's Savior; man's Hope; man's Life.

the saints, for it goes on to say, “Then (next in order) shall he send his angels and gather his elect.”

Was it only the wise virgins that saw the bridegroom come? When the midnight cry sounded, “Behold (look, see), the bridegroom cometh,” did not the foolish ones look and see also? Did the “wise” get away to the marriage supper unbeknown to the foolish? BY NO MEANS! They talked with them about oil and lamps. The verb optomai teaches a visible coming of Christ for His saints.

2. Apokalupto, to reveal; apokalupsis—a revelation. “Even thus shall it be when the Son of man is revealed.” Luke 17:30. “Hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ”. 1 Peter 1:13. God will recompense to you “rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire”. 2 Thess. 1:7-8. Nothing is revealed when kept secret or covered. This word signifies the very opposite of anything concealed, “for there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed.” Luke 12:2. It teaches the coming of Jesus to give great grace and rest to His people, with His mighty angels, as visible as the lightning shining from the east to the west. Matt. 24:27.

3. Phaneroo; to manifest, bring to light, disclose. “When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.” “When the chief shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory”. 1 Peter 5:4. The real sense of this word is seen in Hebrews 9:26: “Once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin”. He appeared openly to take away sin, and He will appear openly to gather the redeemed.

4. Erkomai. This verb occurs 642 times in the New Testament and always signifies a real visible coming, as when we read, “Behold, he cometh,” and both wise and foolish saw Him. Matt. 25:6. The brightness and glory attached to Christ's coming renders its so-called secrecy impossible, to say nothing of the shout, the archangel's voice, and the trump of God. The brightness of His coming and the gloriousness of His appearing are expressed by Paul in 2 Thessalonians 2:8 and Titus 2:13.

The Greek noun parousia is used seventeen times to express the coming of our Lord. It signifies His visible personal coming, as in Matthew 24:27, “As the lightning cometh out of the east and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.” Jesus said

(Continued on page 519)

TRAVELING WITH GOD

My plans were made, I thought my path all bright and clear;
My heart with song o'erflowed, the world seemed full of cheer.
My Lord I wished to serve, to take Him for my Guide,
To keep so close that I could feel Him by my side.
And so I traveled on.

But suddenly, in skies so clear and full of light,
The clouds fell thick and fast, the days seemed changed to night;
Instead of paths so clear and full of things so sweet,
Rough things, and thorns, and stones seemed all about my feet;
I scarce could travel on.

I bowed my head and wondered why this change should come,
And murmured — "Lord, is this because of aught I've done?
Has not the past been full enough of pain and care?
Why should my path again be changed to dark from fair?"
But still I traveled on.

I listened — quiet and still, there came a voice —
"This path is mine, not thine, I made the choice;
Dear child, this service will be best for thee and Me,
If thou wilt simply trust, and leave the end to me."
And so we travel on. — Selected.

A PHYSICIAN'S PRESCRIPTION

SOME years ago a woman went to consult a famous New York physician about her health. She was a woman of nervous temperament. She gave the doctor a list of her symptoms and answered his questions only to be astonished at his brief prescription at the end: "Go home, and read your Bible an hour every day; then come back to me a month from today." And he bowed her out before she could protest.

At first she was inclined to be angry; then she reflected that the prescription was not an expensive one. She went home determined to read conscientiously her neglected Bible. In a month she went back to the doctor's office a different person, and asked him how he knew what she needed.

For answer the physician turned to his desk. There, worn and marked, lay an open Bible. "Madam," he said, "If I were to omit my daily reading of this Book I would lose my greatest source of strength and skill." — Wellspring.

"RADIO WAVES go around the earth about seven and a half times in a second." — S. E. H.

THE CHURCH INTERVAL

By Paul M. Hatch

MUCH confusion has arisen over the double role that Jesus exercised, in respect to the kingdom and the church. It is true that the people of Israel were looking for Messiah, and they knew that He would some day be born in Bethlehem. He would exercise authority over Israel as their King, redeeming them from bondage and making Jerusalem and the kingdom a praise in the earth. Various titles had been given the anticipated Savior in Old Testament prophecy, such as, Branch, Star, Seed, Lion of Judah, and Son of David.

The kingdom, therefore, in the days of Christ's ministry was especially looked for by the disciples, and they also held the expectation of its immediate establishment. This persisted even till after His resurrection.

Just before His ascension, the pertinent question in their minds was, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" And He told them, "It is not for you to know the times and the seasons which the Father hath put in his own power." Acts 1:6, 7.

Evidently even the disciples could not grasp the distinction between church and kingdom. They had thought, as some of them said after the crucifixion and resurrection, that surely this was the Man that would have redeemed Israel. But it had been three days since He had been put to death. Those who spoke these words did not realize that He was the Man, even though He tried to open to them the Scripture of the suffering Christ. They did not recognize Him as Jesus until He blessed the bread at supper. Luke 24:13-31.

Just a few days previous to this Jesus had given a parable concerning the nobleman going into the far country. This was given to them for the express purpose of clearing their minds of the fact of the kingdom being nigh at hand. Jesus had passed through Jericho and had abode with Zacchaeus, the publican. As He sat at meat, during the conversation, Jesus added and spoke a parable, because He was nigh to Jerusalem and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear.

The parable was to the effect that a certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. And he called his ten servants and delivered them ten pounds and said to them, "Occupy till I come." But his citizens hated him and sent a messenger after him, saying, "We will not have this man to reign over us." Luke 19:11-14.

The parable represents two classes of people, the servants and the citizens. The servants, being closer in relation to their lord, are given a work to do, while the citizens, who only recognized him as an aspirant to the throne, sent word that they would not have him to reign over them. The servants therefore recognized him as lord and had authority placed in their hands in his absence, while the citi-

(Continued on page 518)

THE TONGUE AND JERICHO

By J. Richard LeCrone

THERE is an old saying to the effect that the prick of a pin often causes more pain than the deep thrust of a knife, and another to the effect that a small leak will sink a great ship. In both the thought expressed is that small things are apt to be very important. The small things are often the hardest to conquer. Witness the flea. It takes a great deal more skill for a hunter to bag a fox, than it does for him to bag a bear.

We are sometimes wont to complain because there is no opportunity for us to do great things. We think of great achievements as only those which make a show in the world and receive a lot of attention. Yet, when we examine them, we find them to be nothing more nor less than the massing of a great many smaller victories. The skyscraper was built a brick at a time, and that was possible only because each man had learned to do his small job thoroughly. The building is possible only because each brick is in its proper place.

We all have a desire to be leaders and to do great things. Yet how many of us have learned to rule ourselves? Surely before we can gain the great victories we must gain the smaller ones. The good commander must be able also to obey.

In Proverbs 16:32, we are told that, "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." And the Apostle James tells us that, "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body."

We have many times read the account of the capture of the city of Jericho by the Israelites. Truly it was a wonderful deed for them to capture that great city in such a spectacular manner. Yet there was nothing spectacular in what they did. They marched quietly around the city once a day for six days, and on the seventh day they marched around seven times and then blew their trumpets and shouted. Nothing very great or showy about that! Yet because they did these things exactly as God had told them to, the walls fell, and they came into possession of the city.

This victory was possible only because every man of the group had learned to master his own body. They were required to do something that must have been far more difficult than to march around the city, blow the trumpets, and shout.

"And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout." Josh. 6:10.

These men had conquered their own bodies, for they had learned to bridle their tongues. If that sounds easy to the reader, let him try keeping absolutely quiet for seven days.

Because these men were masters of their own bodies, God gave them a great work to do. Has He not promised us that, when we have become perfect through Christ, He will make us rulers with Christ? But first we must learn to rule ourselves. When we have accomplished that mammoth task, we shall be in position to start on the conquest of Jericho.

SITTING BEFORE THE CROSS

"AND sitting down they watched him there."—Matthew 27:36. Attitude toward the cross of Christ shown—"sitting down". Some sat down for adoration—"And many . . . were there beholding from afar off, which followed Jesus". Intention shown through interest in watching. Some watched in derision and unbelief—"They reviled him". Some watched in faith—"Saying, Truly this was the Son of God". Belief as to what would happen on the cross demonstrated—"They watched him there". Some waited for His death at the end—"He saved others, himself he cannot save". Some waited for His victory through death—"And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain".—A. M. McMurdo.

TRYING TO SEE JESUS

By Lydia Railsback

WHEN Jesus was here on earth, He was oftentimes surrounded by a multitude. These people followed Him as He journeyed from place to place, and as usual this was the case when He made His last trip to Jerusalem. In fact, the crowd was so great that He could not be seen by those along the route.

As He passed through Jericho, the view was so obscured, that few people other than those following could even get a glimpse of Him. This was especially true of Zacchaeus, a man small of stature. But Zacchaeus wanted to see Jesus, and he found a way to do it. He ran ahead of the crowd and climbed a tree, so that he could look over the crowd and see the One who was the center of attraction. Zacchaeus overcame his handicap and was rewarded by Jesus' taking notice of him. Zacchaeus let nothing keep him from seeing Jesus.

Today, I dare say, that many a time a crowd of pleasure seekers has so obscured the light of Jesus that one standing aloof has to rise above the crowd, as it were, and find a place where the light of Christ still shines in order to keep in touch with the blessed Master.

Christians, are we one of the crowd that shuts out the sight of Jesus? I fear many times we become stumbling-blocks, though unintentionally. Let us watch every step that we not only do not obscure the light of Jesus from others, but that we may be earnest seekers after the Christ. Then we may hear the "well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord".

THE CHURCH INTERVAL

(Continued from page 516)

zens merely recognized him as their possible king.

During the interval of absence of the Nobleman, the church was to run its course of occupancy, and at the return to pass its judgment of works. For all those servants, according to the parable, are to be called into the presence of the Nobleman at His return, to give an account of their works. Those that had used the talents given them were rewarded according to their exercise, and those who had not occupied or worked were required to yield up the talent given them and lose all reward possible. The citizens who had said, "We will not have this man to reign over us," were to be slain before His eyes.

Until the disciples definitely knew that the kingdom was not to be immediately set up, they awaited the Comforter that the Master had promised. Before they received the Holy Ghost, no steps were taken to establish the church. Jesus had told the eleven, before His ascension, that repentance and remission of sins in His name should be preached among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

The disciples and apostles both looked for the speedy return of the Master, and so they preached that His return was imminent, a thing to be looked for daily. Many a statement of the Apostle Paul implies that he expected to be alive when the Master would appear. Not until late in his life and ministry did he realize that he probably would fall asleep before the Christ would come. This was because he recognized that the coming and the establishment of the kingdom were in conjunction. 2 Tim. 4:1.

As we know that some of his epistles were written at Rome as a prisoner, so do we have the last recorded rejection by the Jews, the preaching of the kingdom and the Savior, Jesus Christ, Acts 28:17-29, when he first arrived in Rome. After this last definite refusal to believe, on the part of the Jews, the whole of Paul's writings are tinged with statements concerning the full acceptance by God of the faith of the Gentiles. Eventually, before the day of the Lord, the church will grow cold. 2 Tim. 3:1-13; 4:3-4.

The last letter to Timothy contained probably the last words penned by Paul, and he knew the fate lying before him. But he was strong in his faith of being remembered and crowned on that day of the appearing of the Lord. 2 Tim. 4:6-8.

The interval of time has been long, and the world and the church have passed through many a convulsion that looked as though the end were near. But the combination of events, concerning the fulfillment of the last day prophecy, has never all come at the same time. Now we see that combination of events growing more and more intense, as the years go by.

Never before has been seen the increase of knowledge so progressive and fleet as now, nor the "travel bug" so pronounced. At the same time affection is growing cold, or not existent at all; lust for riches, church form and laudation increasing; a regular seething of religious cult and sect, with sound doctrine rejected. We see combine after combine, drawing the cords of restriction tauter, or arranging themselves to do so. Furthermore, nations, heaping munitions of war, meanwhile crying peace and safety, are staggering under the load of tax obligations, in distrust and vengeful of each other, with climatic disorders over the earth's surface.

Topping all this is the slow, but steady, stream of Jewish migration to their ancient homeland. Never before in world history have all these combined themselves on a world-wide scale, or in any one nation.

The church interval is drawing to a close. When its work is done, then shall it be absorbed into the greater work of ruling the world in righteousness.

PAUL'S FIRST EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY

By Lyman Booth

WE FIRST meet with Timothy, the eminent companion of Paul, in Acts 16:1, 2, where he is called a disciple of good repute, the son of a Jewish woman, Eunice, a believer in Christ, but of a Greek father. He appears to have been dwelling in Lystra when Paul met him. He was converted by Paul after his visit to the region of Lycaonia, A. D. 51, and became his own "son in the faith" (1 Tim. 1:2) and his constant companion in his missionary journeys. On account of the Jews Paul circumcised him.

We lose sight of Timothy during the Apostle's confinement at Caesarea; nor does he seem to have shared the perilous voyage to Italy. But he joined him soon after his arrival in Rome and was with him during his first imprisonment. Phil. 1:1; 2:19; Col. 1:1; Philemon 1. He was with Paul on his missionary tour through Phrygia and Galatia to Troas, and thence to Philippi, Amphipolis, Thessalonica. 1 Thess. 3:2.

From thence he went to Corinth and joined Paul and was with him when he wrote the two epistles to the Thessalonians. 1 Thess. 1:12; 2 Thess. 1:1. Two or three years later we find him with Paul at Ephesus (Acts 19:22), from whence he was sent into Macedonia and to Corinth, it seems, with the First Epistle to the Christians of that city. Acts 19:22; 1 Cor. 16:10. A little later we find him with Paul when he writes the Second Epistle from Macedonia to the Corinthians. 2 Cor. 1:1. It is probable he was with Paul when he wrote the Epistle to the Romans, during his three months' sojourn in Corinth. Acts 16:21.

Timothy accompanied Paul into Asia (Acts 20:4, 5), where it is probable that he left the Apostle, who went up to Jerusalem. Soon after Paul's arrival in Rome he was joined by Timothy, and we find his name associated with Paul's in the Epistles addressed to Philippians, Colossians, and to Philemon. He appears, at one time, to have been in prison, probably at Rome, as we read of his being set at liberty (ch. 13:23).

It has long been the opinion that Paul wrote this Epistle after he was driven from Ephesus on account of the tumult excited by Demetrius and his craftsmen. Acts 19:20-40; 20:1. But several very learned and respectable men have in modern times raised objection to this opinion which they think cannot be refuted.

There is no reasonable doubt but that the Second Epistle to the Corinthians was written during Paul's stay in Macedonia, after coming from Ephesus. But it is also evident that Timothy was with him when he wrote it, for his name is inserted in the superscription. How, then, say they, could he have been left at Ephesus, and intreated to abide there? (1:3.) The only solution to the difficulty which can be thought of, is that Timothy might have followed soon after, so to be with the Apostle in Macedonia, when he wrote to the Corinthians. That supposition is inconsistent with the whole tenor of the Epistle, for the writer speaks uniformly of his intention to return to Timothy at Ephesus and not of his expecting Timothy to come to him in Macedonia. (3:14, 15; 4:13.)

Paley says: "Therefore I concur with Bishop Pearson in placing the date of the Epistle, and the history referred to in it, at a period consequently subsequent to the time up to which the Acts of the Apostles brings his history." This is a fair statement of the main objection, though some things of inferior importance will require some attention.

It may, however, be questioned whether this conclusion does not lie open to more serious objections. Some attention may be due to the silence of the Scriptures as to any subsequent visit of Paul to Ephesus and his departure from there to Macedonia. It is admitted that during his imprisonment at Rome he mentions in his Epistle a purpose of visiting several places in the eastern regions. Phil. 2:14; Philemon 22; Heb. 19:23.

It appears from the reading of his First Epistle that Paul had been at several places in the neighborhood of Ephesus. Still there is no intimation that he visited Ephesus, which may imply that he had not gone there. Whether it be admitted that, according to historical records which are not very satisfactory, he hastened from Crete to Rome, taking with him records or accounts which seemed to cause him to think his presence there was necessary; or whether his persecutors seized on him and conveyed him to Rome before he had time to settle his accounts in the manner in which he wished to have done, is uncertain. 2 Tim. 4:12-20.

It might also be stated as an objection to this opinion that Timothy, after the conclusion of Paul's first imprisonment at Rome, must on any computation have been above thirty years of age. And though at that time of life the exhortation to flee youthful lusts might not be unreasonable (2 Tim. 2:22), yet the caution, "let no man despise thy youth", seems not to be consistent. But the great difficulty arises from the words of the Apostle to the Ephesian elders at Miletus, "And now, that ye all among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more". It is evident that the persons present understood this, not as a conjecture or as a desponding inference, but as a prediction. When the Apostle saw the overwhelming sorrow which it excited in them, he neither retracted nor qualified it; and it seems unquestionable that the historian records it as a prophecy (Acts 20:25-38).

The words, "ye all", confine the interpretation to the persons present. The prediction therefore would be exactly fulfilled, though the Apostle visited many places in the neighborhood. It can hardly be supposed that after an absence of perhaps more than ten years, the Apostle, revisiting Ephesus, found that all the elders whom he had addressed at Miletus were dead. Except upon this very improbable supposition, or on that of the words mentioned before being a mere conjecture, in which the event proved the Apostle mistaken, we must stay by the old opinion—that this Epistle was written immediately after the Apostle had left Ephesus to go into Macedonia. Because it is, on every other supposition, absolutely certain that he never left Ephesus at a later date to go into Macedonia.

But let us now consider whether the objections stated may not be satisfactorily answered. The Apostle must have spent some considerable time in Macedonia after he left Ephesus, and before he went to Corinth; for "he went over these parts, and gave them much exhortation." (Acts 20:2.

(To be continued)

CHRIST'S COMING VISIBLE

(Continued from page 515)

this expressly to warn us against the teaching of an invisible coming. See verse 26.

There is only one more coming of Christ spoken of in the Bible. "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. 9:28. He comes with His saints and for His saints at the same time. The saints that He comes with are His "mighty angels," Rev. 5:11; Matt. 25:30, 31; 2 Thess. 1:7-10; and this coming "with" them is the parousia of the Lord (1 Thess. 3:13). The saints He comes for are those redeemed by His blood.—A Selection.

THE SOURCE

God is my Light—so great a light is mine,

That through deep darkness of earth's care doth shine
Illumination for all doubts that be;

And only faith can long abide with me.

God is my Power—so great a power is this,

Though I give constantly, no strength I miss;
Renewed each day with infinite increase

This power, from Fount whose waters never cease.

God is my Hope—and this hope so great

It can on earth the peace of heaven create;
Through life's temptations, sorrow, and unrest,
It sends a joy triumphant, wholly blest.

—Laura Elizabeth Rutter

LET US BE KIND

By Alice B. Curtis

Let us be kind to those with whom we meet,
Life's way is hard and bleak for many feet.
And just a smile or kind word we may say,
Might help to brighten someone's weary way.

The world needs love; so many are distressed,
Downtrodden, weary, lonely, and oppressed,
Having no hope and without faith in God;
Life seems a treadmill where they daily plod.

Pass not another with unseeing eyes,
Cheer the discouraged; help the fallen rise,
Give to the needy; bread on waters cast
We, after many days, shall find at last.

Let us help sinners find the sinners' Friend;
Tell of Christ's kingdom that shall never end;
Picture the glories of the age to be,
When man from sin and death shall be set free.

Our days like shadows swiftly pass away;
Let us for Jesus labor day by day;
Then we, though humble, shall not live in vain;
Christ will reward us, when He comes to reign.

o

"CERTAINLY I WILL BE WITH THEE"

By Samuel E. Haney

"There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."—1 Corinthians 10:13.

MODERN versions make it clear that the authorized version fails to make the text as pertinent and comforting to the truth seeker as the Holy Spirit intends it should, particularly during these "perilous times". And God, knowing the needs of His children, doubtless accounts for the more modern phraseologies by scholars of our day, where it is possible without injury to the text.

Note Weymouth and Moffatt respectively as examples: "No temptation (or, trial) has you in its power (has taken you and still holds you—the Greek perfect) but such as is common to human nature; and God is faithful and will not allow you to be tempted beyond your strength. But, when the temptation (or, trial) comes, He will provide the way of escape; so that you may be able to bear it."

"No temptation has waylaid you that is beyond man's power; trust God, He will never let you be tempted beyond what you can stand, but when the temptation comes, He will provide the way out of it, so that you can bear up under it."

I have tried to discover every vestige of comfort possible from our text; for never in the history of the human race has man—desirous of being faithful to his Creator and Redeemer—been so tempted and so much in need of consolation, as he is today.

These evil allurements, which are destined to become more numerous and more difficult to overcome to the end of our career, if yielded to, inevitably create trials and trouble. But if we have the "shield of faith we shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." And by concurring with our Lord's petition in our behalf (John 17:14-18), He will "keep us from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth", Rev. 3:10, a prophecy which is now in its fulfillment.

Our pertinent duty is to keep ourselves "in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life"—Jude 21. But, as Paul says in 2 Corinthians 4:7, "We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us." He emphasizes his thought by saying, "For when I am weak, then am I strong."

At unguarded periods we are prone to reverse this by imagining ourselves strong, when in reality we are weaker than usual. These are hazardous moments, when we unconsciously stray into strange paths, wandering about, unable for a time to find the "narrow way" again that leads to life eternal. Reader, have you ever had such doleful experiences? Of course you have. The great Apostle would not have written our text as he did, had he not known you would.

It is at these crucial times that we are cautioned to increase our faith—"trust God, He will never let you be tempted beyond what you can stand". James reminds us that these temptations and trials are essential to our spiritual growth in grace and knowledge. Therefore instead of allowing them to dishearten us, he would have us "count it all joy".

We must not expect to get into the kingdom on "flowery beds of ease". Job's entanglement was put on record for our encouragement and comfort. "But I go forward, and He is not there; backward, and yet I cannot behold Him; I seek Him on my left, in vain; when I turn to the right, I cannot see Him. Yet He knows how I live; when He tests me, I shall prove sterling gold". Yet, notwithstanding all this he managed to keep close to God: "I have kept closely to His footsteps, never swerving from His path; I never stray from His commands, I treasure up His orders."—Job 23:8-12, Moffatt.

That is the correct idea. Hang onto the horns of God's altar. "Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand." Psa. 37:23, 24.

The wise man says, "In all thy ways (meaning, re-

(Continued on page 522)

WHAT IS MAN?

NUMBER 4

By R. H. Judd

*"According to the beauty of a man".—Isaiah 44:13.
 "Each according to the form of a king".—Judges 8:
 18 (margin). "I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."—Psalm 139:14.*

THE above three texts were chosen by the writer because they are representative of many of similar import, and because they contain in suggestion much that is detailed in other scriptures.

The graceful figures of many of God's creatures command our unstinted admiration. Instinctively we admire the beautiful outlines and perfect proportions and the wonderful adaptability to the circumstances in which each is placed, yet all through history no form has so captivated the human imagination as that of God's masterpiece—man himself. Let an artist but add the human figure to the foreground of his picture, and he increases ten fold the interest which it will receive.

In Judges 8:18 (margin) we possibly have a reminder of the time when in the early history of mankind the chosen leaders of men were of exceptional beauty, both in form and feature. The answer to Gideon's question clearly implies that he was himself a man of outstanding vigor—"As thou art, so were they, each one according to the form of a king."

There is in Scripture a considerable amount of attention paid to this aspect of God's estimate concerning man. The great age attained by the early patriarchs is surely significant evidence of the splendid physique they must have possessed, and probably the traditions handed down to us, relative to the capacity of some of these ancient worthies for penetrating vision and long distance hearing, are not overdrawn. Their knowledge of the heavenly bodies would seem to indicate that the moons of Jupiter, the rings of Saturn, and some constellations visible to us only through the telescope, they saw with unaided natural sight. Certain it is that vision that will endure for centuries must inevitably exceed in power that which finds its limit in years that are measured only by the score.

That Adam the father of our race "was no squalid savage of doubtful humanity, but a noble specimen of man" seems to be but a logical conclusion from historic facts. It is generally conceded among naturalists that the human race must have had its origin not far distant from the Caucasian mountains, and "to this day the Circassians are an eminently handsome people." The great nations of primitive history, Babylon, Greece, and Rome, are but varieties of this central race.

The further we are removed from the original center of this race (setting aside of course the disturbing elements of modern migration) the more degraded do we find the several divisions of humanity, and the indisputable fact remains, in spite of prevalent ideas, that man has not risen, but fallen, from his original estate. One writer stoutly maintains that the best specimens of Anglo-Saxon peoples, with their noble carriage of bodily frame and strong intellectual features, are descendants of this same Caucasian race. And he assures us that, if the current likenesses of our Lord are correct, they partake of the same strong characteristics.

That the human form, before it became tainted with sin and disease, must have been both beautiful and noble is surely abundantly proved by the differences manifested even in our own times, in this late date of the world's history, between those whose lives are generously devoted to the good of their fellows, and those whose lives are sordid and self-centered. The upright manly carriage, the keen observant eye, the strong yet gentle grasp of the hand are all indication of something intensely unique in God's creation.

David truly said that "we are fearfully and wonderfully made." So used are we to the wonder of it that we seldom give it a thought. Think for one moment of the multitudinous emotions we are capable of giving expression to—love, hate, fear, pity, sorrow, contempt, shame, pleasure, joy, boldness, peacefulness, rest, weariness, admiration, surprise—these and many not named are all capable of distinct expression in the human face.

Then think, too, of the wonderful relationships of family life, which can only be realized through that which is real and tangible. The clinging arms and the cooing voice of the firstborn child are never forgotten by the one who gave him birth, even when he in his turn can bestow on her a little of that protection which she once lovingly gave to him. Nor would the affectionate father erase from his memory scenes from the lives of son or daughter, as he watched them grow into manhood and womanhood, and rejoiced to see that they grew in stature and in favor with God and man.

We think of Moses, as a babe surpassing fair and as a man of wonderful bodily vigor at the advanced age of one hundred twenty years; of Jephthah, the "mighty man of valour", who boldly pre-echoed the cry of his progenitors, "What we have we will hold"; of Gideon, whose very enemies admitted that his physical frame was fashioned "according to the form of a king".

We think of David as ruddy of countenance, and as the sweet singer of Israel, his wonderful voice, part and parcel of his wonderful personality, whom Scripture has revealed to us as the offspring of Jesse, the Bethlehemite. Again, we think of Esther, beautiful and very fair to look upon; of the dainty and courteous maiden who waited so faithfully on Naaman's wife. We think of the beautiful love story of Naomi, Boaz and Ruth, and we raise our hearts in thankfulness to God that He has created us each one tangible, living realities, in a world full of the "things that God hath prepared for them that love him".

Man is not the intangible, incorporeal being that so many believe him to be, but he is a living, active personality, eminently suited to the earth for which he was created and which he was destined to inhabit. Isa. 45:12, 18. How otherwise can we account for the fact that, in the building of the tabernacle, there were certain men "in whom the Lord put wisdom and understanding to know how to work", and to "devise cunning work in gold, and in silver, and in brass", and "all manner of workmanship"?

THE UNJUST STEWARD

(Continued from front page)

were charged by Him as being unfaithful and unjust in dealing with the goods of their Lord.

"This was one of the series of parables (or part of one

"Having concluded the parable, He asks a question which requires the answer no. This we will add in brackets and follow with the context, which teaches exactly the opposite of what the master of the steward commended, namely that, what a worldly wise man condemned, the Lord Jesus commended. The Pharisees and scribes understood Him perfectly well (v. 14), for the moment He had finished, they derided Him (lit., they turned up their noses at Him). He at once added, 'That which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God;' as though He said, 'Men may commend you, ye unjust stewards of God's law; but God abominates your unfaithfulness and unrighteousness.'

"In harmony with this whole context we propose to punctuate verse 9 as follows:

" 'Do I also say to you, Make to yourselves friends by means of the mammon of unrighteousness, that, when ye fail they may receive you? (No.) In the everlasting habitations, he that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much. If therefore YE have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to you the true riches? And, if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is our own? No servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other: or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.'

"That is, 'Ye cannot be faithful to the law of God and yet make it void by your traditions. If ye were faithful ye would preserve every jot and tittle of God's law (v. 17), and not alter the least of its commands and requirements for your own profit.'

"Thus the whole context demands a totally different exposition of v. 9. It forbids us to accept the traditional interpretation. But, apart from this, how can we believe that friends are to be acquired by unfaithfulness? How can friends so made in this world receive us in the 'everlasting habitations'?

"On the contrary, the context teaches that on no account are friends to be thus made; for with reference to the everlasting habitations, there exists a totally different standard of judgment. The laws of God are the opposite of man's laws; and no one can serve these two masters.

"Therefore, after saying that the lord of the unjust steward commended him, the Lord Jesus says (with special emphasis on the 'I': 'And do I commend you? Is that what I say to you? No! for, in spiritual things and in the light of eternity, he that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much.'

" 'He that offendeth (the law) in one point is guilty of all' (James 2:10). 'Whosoever therefore shall break one of the least commandments is guilty of all.' 'Unless, therefore, your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and the Pharisees (Matt. 5:20) there can be no reception in the everlasting habitations.'

"This was the constant teaching of the Lord Jesus to the Pharisees and scribes, to whom the parable of the Unjust Steward was specially spoken."

"CERTAINLY I WILL BE WITH THEE"

(Continued from page 520)

ardless of circumstances) acknowledge Him, and He will direct thy paths (margin, make straight, or plain)."—Proverbs 3:6, R. V. Yes, especially when we can't trace Him. David says, "I thought on my ways, and turned my feet unto thy testimonies. I made haste, and delayed not, to keep thy commandments . . . For all my ways are before thee."—Psalm 119:59, 60, 169. We may be tempted to stray from God, but His eyes are ever watching us.

So we see that it is by "keeping in the love of God", under all circumstances, that He never fails to intervene at the right time and in the right way, which always synchronizes with our having learned the lesson He intends for us by our trials and testings. This is the basic principle of Paul's words to the Romans and to us, "We know also that those who love God, those who have been called in terms of His purpose, have His aid and interest in everything."—Rom. 8:28, Moffatt.

Paul's words to the Thessalonian brethren are quite pertinent to our text. "We had a keen longing for you. (We did want to reach you—I did, Paul, more than once—but Satan stopped us)."—1 Thess. 2:18, Moffatt.

Here is named the chief of the quadruple powers, namely, Satan, flesh, self and the world, that militate us through temptations—often by way of Satan's emissaries' attacks—in every phase of our lives. It was thus with our Master; and, "the servant is not greater than his Lord".

Jesus says, "Be of good cheer: I have overcome the world." And by "the grace that is in Christ Jesus" we can also be of good cheer, by ever looking to God for strength, and by avoiding a revengeful spirit. The Lord will attend to that matter (Rom. 12:19) as it is written.

Yes, God keeps His word, in every respect, wherever it produces the requisite simple, childlike "stick-to-it-ive" faith.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

GOD'S HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

By Ednah Cooper

BELSHAZZAR, the king of Babylon, made a great feast to a thousand of his lords. He ordered the golden vessels, which his father, Nebuchadnezzar, had taken from the temple at Jerusalem, to be brought to him, that his wives and princes might drink from them. They drank wine and praised the gods of gold, silver, and brass.

While they were feasting and enjoying themselves amid much gaiety, the fingers of a man's hand came forth and wrote upon the wall. The king was greatly troubled and much terrified. He called in the wise men and astrologers for them to interpret the writing, but they were unable to do so. Then his wife told him about Daniel, for she believed that he could interpret it for him. So they sent for Daniel.

Daniel told Belshazzar how God had given his father a great kingdom, and how he, through disobedience to God, had been destroyed. Also Daniel told the king that he had disobeyed the voice of God. The writing told him that his kingdom was finished, that he had been weighed in the balances and found wanting, and that his kingdom was to be divided. And that very night Belshazzar was slain.

Let us compare this wicked king to the pleasure loving people of today. They go on and on in mad pleasure, all of the time seeking for something they cannot find. But God's hand is writing upon the walls of time, warning the wicked of their fate. Prophecy is being fulfilled all around, and yet they will not heed. They rush madly on, seeking more pleasure. They, like Belshazzar, will see when it is too late to repent.

May we, who know the truth, spread the gospel in such a way that the wicked will see the disaster that is ahead and repent before it is too late.

THERE are 682,400,000 Christians and 1,167,100,00 non-Christians in the world.—S. E. H.

SEVEN TITLES OF JEHOVAH

Jehovah-jireh, "The Lord will provide." Gen. 22:8.

Jehovah-tsidkenu, "The Lord our Righteousness."

Jeremiah 23:6.

Jehovah-ropheka, "The Lord healeth." Ex. 15:26.

Jehovah-shalom, "The Lord our Peace." Judges 6:24.

Jehovah-tophi, "The Lord my Shepherd." Psa. 23:1.

Jehovah-nissi, "The Lord our Banner." Ex. 17:15.

Jehovah-shammah, "The Lord is there." Ezek. 48:35.

These seven titles embrace all the fullness of Jehovah's name, manifested in Christ for His people, completely meeting all their need, from guilt to glory.—The Believer's Magazine.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

DUE to the fact that so many of our members will no longer be able to meet with us, being too far away for us to claim them longer as Chicagoans, our little group has been broken up. We regret to report that, until circumstances are altered, our Berean classes will be discontinued.

PRAYER TIME

The while she darns her children's socks,
She prays for little stumbling feet;
Each folded pair within its box
Fits faith's bright sandals, sure and fleet.

While washing out, with mother's pains,
Small dusty suits and frocks and slips,
She prays that God may cleanse the stains
From little hearts and hands and lips.

And when she breaks the fragrant bread,
Or pours each portion in its cup,
For grace to keep their spirits fed,
Her mother-heart is lifted up.

O busy ones, whose souls grow faint,
Whose tasks seem longer than the day,
It doesn't take a cloistered saint
To find a little time to pray!

—Ruby Weyburn Tobias

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

THE "Last Supper" was eaten, and the group had partaken of the "bread and wine". Jesus and the eleven came out from the upper room and went to the Mount of Olives, where Jesus liked often to go. When they reached the mount, Jesus said to His companions; "Pray that ye enter not into temptation."

Then He went forward a little, fell on the ground and prayed that the cup of suffering might pass from Him, if it was God's will. Although He dreaded the ordeal ahead of Him, yet He was willing to do as God wanted Him to do. And as a sign of God's mercy and love, an angel came from heaven and strengthened Jesus.

Even then, Jesus was in great agony. He prayed more earnestly, and great drops of sweat, like drops of blood, fell from Him to the ground.

And what were the disciples doing? Watching? Suffering with Him? No—sleeping, probably worn out from sorrow.

When Jesus came back to them, He calmly said, "Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation."

And as He was speaking a multitude appeared, and there was Judas leading the crowd. He surely must have felt awkward and guilty; and we wonder how he could walk up to Jesus to kiss Him. And how ashamed he must have been when Jesus said to him, "Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?"

Then the friends of the Master exclaimed, "Lord, shall we smite with the sword?" And Peter took his sword and cut off the ear of one of the high priest's soldiers. But Jesus reproved Peter, saying: "Suffer ye thus far," and then He kindly healed the wounded ear.

What class of people do you think would make up such a mob? Ignorant, rough, lawless men? But, no, there were the chief priests, the captains and elders among the throng, the leaders and those in highest authority.

Surely they were not living up to the dignity of their office, nor to the righteousness expected of them. In fact they were the ones who all the while were plotting against Jesus and trying to trap Him. Now, they were about to accomplish their purpose! "This is your hour, and the power of darkness," Jesus said to them.

He also asked them why they came armed with swords and staves, as if they were come to capture a thief. "When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against me," He said.

Then these enemies took Jesus to the high priest's house.

ARE WE allowing enemies to take us from Jesus? "Pray that ye enter not into temptation."

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read what happened at the high priest's house and the events during the rest of the night. Luke 22:55 to Luke 23:33.
2. Where is the Mount of Olives?
3. Why were there only eleven disciples with Jesus?
4. Do you know that beautiful picture, "Christ in Gethsemane," painted by Hoffman?

We Believe in baptism (immersion). "For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Romans 6:5.

OWING MOTHER

A LAD named Sydney, having reached the age of ten, considered he ought to be paid for various little services rendered to his mother in the home. Hearing a conversation concerning certain bills that had to be paid, he conceived the idea of making out a bill for what he had done, and the next morning he quietly laid on his mother's plate the following statement: "Mother owes Sydney: For getting coal six times, 6 cents. For getting logs of wood lots of times, 6 cents. For going on an errand twice, 4 cents. For being a good boy, 2 cents. Total, 18 cents."

The mother examined the bill but said nothing. That evening Sydney found it lying on his own plate, with the eighteen cents as payment; but accompanying it was another bill, which read as follows: "Sydney owes mother: For his happy home for ten years—nothing. For all his food—nothing. For nursing him through his illness last year—nothing. For his last new suit of clothes—nothing. For being good to him—nothing. Total—nothing."

When the lad had looked at it for a moment, his eyes filled with tears; his lips quivered. He took the eighteen cents out of his pocket, rushed to his mother, flung his arms around her neck and exclaimed, "Mother, dear! please forgive me, and let me do lots of things for you still." —Sel.

"CHILDHOOD is God's ordained time for conversion. In childhood the task of guiding the heart to the love of the beautiful, the true, the good, is easy. The problem of religious education is to teach the child to love Jesus Christ."

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 9. — May 31, 1931

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

Luke 22:24-71

Devotional Reading: Psalm 130

GOLDEN TEXT

Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine be done.—Luke 22:42.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Obeying God at any Cost.

Basic Truth. "We must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God."—Acts 14:22.

I. Obedience. Obedience recognizes two persons; one who commands; the other who should obey.

God, the Creator, rightfully directs His creation. Man, the creature, should in justice obey God to the end.

Sin has so distorted the mind of man that he largely seeks his own wish, in total disregard of God's wish. This makes doubly hard the condition of him who would obey God.

Obedience to God would have caused Jesus no agony at all, had it not been for sin, for sin's mighty opposition.

Obedience to God requires one to be true and loyal to God to the uttermost, regardless of the strength of the power of those who oppose God. To do otherwise is to obey sin and to resist God.

Our lesson, v. 42, strikingly and clearly traces a path of obedience: "If thou be willing (i. e., if it be thine intention), remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will (wish, pleasure), but thine, be done." Jesus thus committed himself to do whatsoever God indicated for Him to do. The matter of cost was not even suggested. The Created obeyed.

II. Its Cost. In the matter of obedience to God, there are three factors to be considered; God, self, and God's opponent.

As for self, one must of necessity obey either God or God's opposer. It is impossible to do otherwise.

As to the cost, obedience to God requires an investment in cost that is absolutely safe, that can never be despoiled by robbers, that is positively certain of bringing greatly increased returns, howsoever great the cost may be.

This obedience cost Jesus faithfulness during His entire life; the agony, the heart sorrow, the body pains inflicted by His opponents—it cost Him unjust death and all of the accumulated agony and pain leading thereunto.

To the Christian, the cost necessary is similar like unto that required of the Savior, extending to whatever degree one's course of life may lead.

Failing to pay the cost of obedience to God, one must necessarily pay the cost of obedience to the opposer of God. As to pain, the continuous and long enduring sufferings of sin's diseases; the long, incessant heartaches imposed by sin's enslavement; the fearful and unspeakable agonies that frequently result from sin's crimes against truth and purity—these are costs upon the purchasers that are doubly more than are the costs of obedience to God's right.

III. Its Results. The third day after death Jesus was raised: His mortality was changed to immortality; His man-nature was changed to God-nature; His limited power was changed to unlimited power; His temporary authority was changed to eternal authority; His life which was subject to death was changed to life over which death has no more dominion. See Rom. 6:9.

As to man, the results of obedience are promised to be commensurately great: As joint heir with Christ, Rom. 8:16, 17, he is pledged by the Father to share with Christ all of Christ's greatness; Christ's unending life; His position above sin, and pain, and sorrow—all of the Savior's fullness. Philip-pians 3:20, 21.

As to the results of obeying God's opposer, it consists of pain, agony, remorse, during the progress of such obedience, which, if continued without repentance, results in eternal cutting off. Rev. 20:13, 15.

IV. The Meaning of Gethsemane. The last journey of the Savior from Galilee to Jerusalem, the Savior's daily service during the week of passion, the experiences of the garden of Gethsemane: these, like citadels towering high above all surrounding structures, stand out as examples of Christ's undeviating consecration and obedience to God. In the garden He sought only to know God's purpose. As was the case concerning Israel, 1 Cor. 10:11, so, undoubtedly, was the lesson of Gethsemane "written for our admonition". The followers of Jesus, if they are to arrive with Him in His glory, must of necessity follow with Him through the sin-sown patches of thickets and briars, to the goal of righteous obedience by faith.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Gethsemane: The garden experience of our Lord has been an inspiration to His countless followers during the trying hours of some bitter experiences. While the Master's disciples forsook Him in the most crucial period of His life and fell asleep, yet His Father was very near. An angel from heaven strengthened Him. If it were not for this help from heaven, we would not be able to withstand the fiery darts of the wicked, for we are not wrestling against flesh and blood. Ephesians 6:11 and 12.

It is a blessed thought to know that no matter when, where, or what the temptation, or trial, we have a Father who is touched by the feelings of our infirmities and has promised never to leave or forsake us. We are never alone. The angel encamped around Christ. "The angel of the LORD encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

Prayer: The necessary strength for Christ to endure this trying ordeal came as the result of prayer. He prayed—the Father sent an angel to strengthen Him. Prayer is the path that leads us out of the garden of bitter and trying ordeals. Many have never been able to carry their cross farther than the first garden experience. There is only one way we can become triumphant. Christ is that way. In Him all necessary strength lies.

Our

- garden experiences will be many and severe;
- hope of deliverance lies solely in Christ;
- prayers always bring needed help;
- friends are not strong enough to defend us from evil;
- trials can always be made steppingstones to higher planes.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine be done."—Luke 22:42.

Jesus said, John 5:30, "I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me." He expressed almost the same thought on another occasion when He said, "I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me." John 6:38.

When Jesus came from the garden and found His disciples sleeping, He said to them, "The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." He, himself, was so filled with spirit that He was able to abide by any decision the Father made. The flesh would say, "Let this cup pass from me," but being spirit-filled He humbly submitted to the will of the Father, even though He knew it would cause Him to suffer untold agony.

Christians, too, should be so spiritual that they are also willing to say to the Father, "Not my will be done, but thine, Lord."

—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Christ was at all times seeking to do the Father's will. He said, "I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me." That is, He sought to do the Father's wish or desire. Paul says, "Be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is". Eph. 5:17. To know the will of God therefore requires study of His Word.

Man naturally seeks to do his own will, the will of the flesh. Christ's seeking to do the Father's will made them "one". For the Christian to be "one" with Christ, he must also do the Father's will. When Christians are "one" with Christ, they are "one" with each other. Christ prayed that His followers might be "one", even as the Father and He were "one".—F. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

May Meeting, Fontheil, Ont.,	May 29 to 31
Ohio, Brush Creek,	June 7 to 14
Minnesota, Eden Valley,	June 11 to 14
Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30

BRUSH CREEK BIBLE SCHOOL

The church at Brush Creek, Ohio, will hold its annual Bible School from June 7 to 14, inc. Bro. S. J. Lindsay will be the speaker and teacher. All finding it possible to be in attendance at these meetings will be heartily welcomed.

WORKING TRIP BY BIBLE TRAINING CLASS MEMBERS

May 24

Brothers C. A. Smead and J. R. LeCrone will begin services for the Burr Oak, Indiana, congregation on May 20 and will continue over Sunday the 24th.

May 31

Their next appointment is at Delta, Ohio, for Sunday, May 31. These two young men are forceful speakers and well worth hearing. You will receive an inspiration and uplift by attendance at these meetings.

Further appointments will be announced in later issues of The Herald.

Sr. Alice Crysler, of Golden Rule Home, has been ill with a heart attack the past week. She is improved, but will remain in bed for a week more, until her heart is stronger. A card from the brothers and sisters would cheer her.

THE WORK IN MINNESOTA

Word from Bro. John Denchfield tells us that he expected to speak at Eden Valley, Minnesota, last Sunday evening. He reports the church work at St. Cloud progressing nicely. Prayer meeting each week furnishes much needed inspiration. The Sunday School, under the supervision of Sr. George Savage, is doing exceptionally well. Though few in numbers, they are devoted to God's service.

DOINGS AT DIXON

There was a fine attendance at Sunday School at Dixon, on Mother's Day, in spite of the very inclement weather. After lessons were finished a short program was given by the children. The junior choir sang several appropriate songs, and readings and dialogues were the special features which were very much enjoyed by those present.

Bro. Conner preached on Sunday morning and evening, May 17. The Bereans had charge of the evening services, supplying the special music and suggesting the topic of the sermon. This arrangement was in effect last Sunday evening and proved very successful.

Bro. Lapp of Oregon has taken charge of the senior Berean class on Wednesday evenings, and he has already gained the confidence and respect of this class of young people, which numbers about fifteen. Bro. Lapp is a forceful teacher and the class will be greatly benefited by his instruction.

The Golden Rule class was pleased to have

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Leeper	Arkansas City, Kans.
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio
Sr. Ella Rose,	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sr. Edna Brewer,	Troy, Ohio
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Sr. Harry Thomas'	Graytown, Wis.
Sr. May Moore	Bartley, Nebr.

some of the Oregon folks present last Wednesday evening, and to have Bro. Smead for teacher. The lesson brought out many questions, and that is what produces interest.

Grace Drew, Sec.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Our little group of workers here is praying and planning and trusting God to guide them in a program of development. And we confidently believe it will be done.

The pastor and wife, with Bro. and Sr. A. K. Richardson, were privileged to visit recently in the Coates Grove neighborhood. Bro. Eddie Coates, for many years a defender of the faith was found to be comfortably cared for at the home of his son, although the years have told heavily upon him.

Our Sunday School students who are anxious for a larger church are busy selling "brick" and bringing in the dimes for a building fund. These boys and girls mean business, and we predict that before long a larger church edifice with Sunday School room will stand to their credit. And God will be honored in their lives.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Hanna Barber, Mrs. Mandes Reed, Mrs. C. T. Morris, John Taber, Chas. D. Balliet, J. M. Byler, Mrs. Calvin Hammond, Mrs. M. E. Perkins, Inez Titus, Ben Carpenter, George Siple, Percy Murphy, Ora S. Worley, Marie E. Trusdale, Mrs. W. H. Allard, Mrs. W. H. Upton, Mrs. Hilding Anderson, Maybelle Hanson, Mrs. S. W. Coffman, Watson Weinberg.

MELOY - CLAYPOOL

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Claypool of Martinsville, Illinois, was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Saturday afternoon, May ninth, at six o'clock, when their daughter, Lucille, became the bride of Mr. Fern Meloy, of Kidder, Missouri. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of both parties.

Previous to the ceremony, Mrs. J. R. Johnson sang, "Truly I Love You," accompanied by Miss Danzel Claypool at the piano.

At the beginning of the Mendelssohn Wedding March, the bridal party, composed of Miss Opal Claypool, Mr. Glen Meloy, and the bride and groom, marched to the altar, where they were met by Rev. A. L. Honn, who used the ring ceremony in uniting the young couple.

Mrs. Meloy has been a teacher in the Martinsville grade school for the past three years and has a host of friends, having been born and raised in this community. The groom is the superintendent of the consolidated grade and high school at Shelby, Missouri.

The happy couple will remain in this community for a few weeks, and then will go to their home in Shelby.

DOES IT PAY?

I trust that everyone enjoyed the Training Class issue of The Herald as much as I did. I am so glad that we have such a large class who have dedicated themselves to the Lord's work. This is a wonderful vocation for any young person to choose, and I trust that this issue may inspire others to take up this work. I know of no higher ambition.

Does it pay to send these issues to our friends and neighbors? I think it does. Here are a few lines from an "eternal torment" believer to whom I sent the Easter issue: "I got much good out of the paper. The name is worth a lot." So I followed up with the Training Class issue. I think we should send more than one paper, as people are apt to lay it aside, but if they get a copy occasionally they may become interested.

I sent both issues to a good neighbor whose daughter is an evangelist, and they both are "eternal torment" believers. They know that they are saved. I told them that I was not saved yet, but hoped to work out my salvation so that I would be. They invited me to their Bible class and hope to convert me, I think. I may be able to enlighten them some on "hell". The teacher told of a girl who learned to be a trapeze performer, and her friends all scorned her. Later when visiting at home, she saved several lives by swinging to and fro from a burning building. They seemed to think that was a most wonderful deed and showed that she had chosen a good vocation. I just wondered how many she might have saved with an everlasting salvation, if she had dedicated herself to the Lord's work instead.

Hanna Barber.

Due to union Memorial services in the Methodist church, the morning worship and sermon will be omitted at Oregon, Illinois, on Sunday, May 24. Sunday School will be held as usual, commencing at ten o'clock, and evening services at seven-thirty. Bro. Austin has been giving special emphasis to present day conditions in his Sunday evening sermons.

COMMUNICATION

Spring has come and with it comes the glory of beauty. The earth is now so beautiful; but we are longing to see this earth made new and our loved ones restored to us again. Oh, if all could appreciate what God has done for us and that we are all redeemed by the blood of Jesus, if we will only come to Him.

I am grieving over the death of a dear brother; but, if he was faithful—and I trust he was—he, like all who sleep in Jesus, will be brought with Him. Then there will be no more parting and death cannot take away our loved ones.

So may friends, neighbors, and relatives live so that when He comes we shall be ready. This is my prayer.

Mrs. Georgia Hoskins.

SR. MARTHA PLATTS

Martha Bouk was born on September 25, 1846, and died at her home at Pelham Corners, between Fonthill and Welland, on Mother's Day, May 10. She was the daughter of Bro. and Sr. P. H. Bouk, who were the founders of the church work at Fonthill. On November 19, 1866, she married Wm. Platts. This union was blessed with two children, William and Ernest, both living.

Over seventy years ago she was baptized by Elder R. V. Lyon and was true to our faith ever after. What a long life in the Master's service! She never regretted her devotion to the Master.

She fractured her hip ten weeks ago. The shock and subsequent pain was too much for her aged body to stand. She was tenderly cared for during the time of affliction, which care helped in making her closing days quite comfortable.

Besides the children, she leaves four sisters and one brother, all members of the church, to survive her, Sisters Ball, Reed, Clark, Lent, and Jesse Bouk. The Bouk children have been living testimonies of the benefits of early home training.

Funeral services were held at the home of the son, William, on Tuesday, May 12, the writer speaking of the resurrection hope from John 11:25, 26, the scripture which Aunt Martha selected. She was laid to rest in the beautiful Fonthill cemetery to await the call of the Son of God.

C. E. Randall.

OSCAR THOMAS

Oscar Thomas, for many years a resident of Cedar Falls and vicinity, died on April 21, 1931, at the home of his nephew, Dan Patterson, near Armstrong, Iowa, after a week's illness of pneumonia. He had gone to his nephew's home to spend the summer, as had been his custom in late years.

He was born on October 1, 1853, near Waterloo, Quebec, Canada, the son of Elijah and Betsy Thomas. When a small boy, he came with his parents to Illinois and later to Iowa, where the family settled in 1866, at Cedar Falls. He never married. After growing to manhood, he made his home with two brothers, Elijah and John. He was the last of a family of eight children, four brothers and four sisters.

He had made his home during the winter with his niece, Mrs. James Cassen, at Waterloo, Iowa, and the funeral was held there, with burial at Cedar Falls. He leaves many other relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

A niece, Mrs. Starbuck, wrote the following lines: "Uncle Oscar will be buried out of our sight, but we will not bury all we can remember of him. In his life of service for others, he has given us something beautiful to remember and keep alive."

J. W. Williams.

LEONARD H. DECKER

Leonard H. Decker was born on May 3, 1863, in the state of Michigan. He and his wife were obedient to the gospel while residing in that state. They were baptized by Bro. Woodward. They afterward moved to Cashmere, Washington, then to Copalis Beach.

Bro. Decker had been a sufferer from stomach trouble for more than a year, and died on May 5, 1931.

He is survived by his wife, Sr. Electa M. Decker, by four sons and two daughters, Forrest, Miles, Bert, all of Copalis Beach, and Hazen, and Mrs. Ethel McClimans of Cashmere, and Mrs. Maude Iffrig of Copalis Beach.

He was buried on May 7 in the cemetery at Hoquiam. The services were held in the chapel of an undertaking establishment at that place.

Hoquiam is one hundred miles from our home, but wife and I made the journey by stage, returning the same evening.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

A. L. Corbaley.

MARY COZAD

Sr. Mary Cozad, of the Springfield, Lawrenceville church, died at her late residence, near New Carlisle, Ohio, on May 5, at the age of 30 years and 6 months. Sr. Cozad was the daughter of Sr. Bertha Johnson. Besides her mother, she leaves her husband, David Cozad, one daughter and four sons, one an infant, three brothers, George, Donald, and Arthur Johnson.

Services were held Friday from the Mennonite church, at New Carlisle, the pastor using as his text, "It is appointed unto man once to die and after this the judgment." She was laid to rest by the side of her father in the Enon cemetery, to await the call of the Master.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates. — 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy. Free.

Receipts. — The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper. — It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Change of Address. — When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

PROHIBITION AS A CHRISTIAN ISSUE

In the statute books as in the Bible, prohibition is to the end that the benefits and advantages of liberty may the more largely accrue. The prohibition, "Thou shalt not kill", is not alone merely to protect the individual in danger. Such prohibition deprives the would be criminal from yielding to such manner of life as must, through the fear and jealousy and self protection of others, throw him into a bondage and terror that must not only harass him through life, but also shorten his existence. This principle is so strikingly illustrated in the gangster's world of the present. He who is lord today has tomorrow been smitten down.

The same principle prevails in the prohibition of liquor. The undeniable fact is that liquor injures the user and so works upon his brain matter as to make him a menace, not only to himself but to all whom he meets. For instance, about 23,000,000 motor cars are said to have been licensed last year. Every one requires a driver. No driver can drink even one glass of liquor without impairing, to a degree, his brain ability. Driving a car upon the public highway with the brain impaired is a menace to every car that comes near the one driven by the impaired driver. Statistics indicate that many of the accidents causing bodily injury or death are caused by liquor-impaired drivers. One does not have to be drunk to be wholly unfit for driving an auto — or for doing any hazardous work.

This in itself is just and sufficient reason for the enforcement of liquor prohibition in this nation of approximately 25,000,000 motor cars.

BASKET WEAVE

THE NEW BINDING FOR
OXFORD BIBLES

Grained with basket weave design. Highly finished calf leather, of a dark brown color. Button clasp keeps volume closed and protected. Convenient to carry. Oxford India paper. Six maps.

This is a beautiful book for your own use or for a gift. Prices range from $4.25 to 10.50.

Write for complete descriptions.

ANNUITY BONDS

There is no better way to preserve one's capital for use during life and at the same time dedicate it to the Master's use after one's death than by a National Bible Institution Annuity Bond.

Write NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois, for information.

Any Amount - Much or Little

“BECAUSE I LIVE YE SHALL LIVE ALSO”

By M. A. Woodward

I THINK the Christ directed His conversation to Philip and Thomas, as the others listened. How earnestly He talked, as they all perhaps sat on the grass to listen. They seemed intent on asking Him questions. They tried to understand Him, but how could they sense all He said? They could not, for they must go through Gethsemane before they could understand all.

He had just said to them, “Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.” John 13:33.

Peter began to wonder what He could mean, and asked, “Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.”

How strong Peter thought he was, and how he must have grieved at the Master’s answer: “The cock shall not crow (Peter), till thou hast denied me thrice.”

The Master had much more to tell that anxious group of learners. How should He begin?

Did He say, “Sit down with me on the grass here; I have some very sad, strange things to say to you? There will be some hard conditions to meet, and you will need all the fortitude, patience, and grace you can muster to carry you through it all. For you and I are to meet sore trials. Before twenty-four hours have passed Satan will tempt you to leave me to the mercies of a murderous mob; some of you will deny you ever knew me; others will sneak away in the darkness, not caring what the mob does to me.

“For they will condemn me to death, scourge me, spit upon me, stretch my body upon a cross, nail me there, and leave me hanging in awful agony. There will be no one to give me a drink, when the burning fever is consuming me; no one to wipe away the blood or sweat, while my enemies hiss and torment me, until death mercifully claims me.”

This would have been the picture from a human thought perhaps. But, listen, hear His gracious words, as perhaps His own thoughts were busy with the future. He had so many things to tell that group of anxious listeners, and still these sweet, comforting words were His first in beginning the story.

“Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.” Then He pictures the Father’s tender thoughtfulness, in preparing the home palace for the prepared ones. And He assures them, “If it were not so, I would have told you.” Surely He would tell them the most important things to comfort them in the coming days after He would be gone.

What hours these disciples must have spent, recalling His precious words! Listen to John saying, “Peter, do you not remember what the Master said that last day with us, ‘I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also’? So you see, Peter, He is coming back! O, He is coming back!”

And Thomas says, “Yes, and when I asked Him how we would know the way, you remember the sweet comforting thing He said to me, ‘I am the way, the truth, and the life.’ And again He said, ‘My peace I leave with you.’”

Could He in the hurry of life have left a better gift than that? “My peace, not as the world giveth, but my peace, because my peace is joy with my Father’s smile over you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father; for my Father is greater than I.”

How intently John must have listened to the Master’s last words! And what would the world have done but for those thrilling words found in John, from the fourteenth chapter to the end of his book?

“And now I have told you before it come to pass, that when it is come to pass, ye might believe. . . I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.”

The disciples whispered among themselves concerning these things. They were very sad but were comforted when the Christ said, “These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.”

These words spoke Jesus and lifted up His eyes to heaven. And, O, the wealth of love that poured out for those called out ones in His last message of love to them! I always rejoice, when reading it, to know He left one verse full of consolation and hope and joy. The twentieth verse of John 17 is for all who consecrate their lives to His service.

Stop long enough, beloveds, to thank God for such a Savior, Deliverer, and Helper. “Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word.” What thankful love! God help us to merit it.

And now the prayer is ended; the disciples follow Him to the garden and witness His betrayal, His crucifixion, His death, and later His blessed resurrection. Now they fully understand His words, “Because I live, ye shall live also.”

What would life be worth to anyone—to you, dear shut ins, to you, Sister Sarah, in your northern Michigan home, to you, Sister Dunlop, in Charlotte, Michigan, to you, Sister Ethel Hall, in your loneliness? There are so many sick, weary, discouraged ones, waiting, praying for deliverance. Look up, your redemption is near; your God will wipe away all tears. There will then be no more pain or heartache, for this present condition will have been exchanged for the bridal robes, and the new heavens and new earth. Because He, the Son of God, lives we shall live also.

“Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly.”

—o—

“NO ONE can win others to Christ in his own wisdom or strength. Only as Christ enters into his life and works through him, can he help men to Christ. All we can do is to point men to the Crucified, and then Christ will draw them to himself.”

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 26, 1931

NUMBER 34

WHAT IS CHRISTIANITY?

By J. Richard LeCrone

“A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.”

WHEN we go in search of a definition of Christianity, we meet with various answers. One man tells us that Christianity is a belief in Christ. Another tells us that Christianity is a religion. Still another will tell us that Christianity is a means whereby man may be saved from the results of his sins. Let us go to the highest possible Authority and see whether or not we can discover what Christianity is.

When Christ began His ministry, His first recorded words, after the temptation in the wilderness, are these—“Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.”—Matt. 4:17. Yet we cannot stop there and say that Christianity consists of repentance, for we find that Christ did not stop there. In Mark 1:15, we find Him speaking as follows: “The kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.” He not only asked His followers to turn from their evil ways, but He asked them to turn to new and better ways; He asked them to believe the glad tidings of salvation which He was bringing to them. Yet, we cannot point to repentance and belief as Christianity, for it is not enough merely to believe.

True belief is of necessity followed by obedience. Belief that is not followed by obedience is worse than useless. Christ tells us that in Mark 16:16. “He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.”

We now have repentance, belief, and obedience commanded by Christ. We cannot call any one of them Christianity, nor can we call all of them Christianity. Christ told His followers that they must do the will of God. These other things were not enough, but they must work also. Christ's Apostle James tells us that all of these, without works, is dead. Yet, when we add works to the aforementioned list, we cannot say, then, that we have a concise definition of true Christianity.

A true Christian is identified by something more than these. Christ told His disciples what it was that distinguished the Christian from the man of the world. Listen to Him: “By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.”—John 13:35.

We now have repentance, belief, baptism, works, and love. They are all found in the true Christian. They are all commandments of Christ. Christianity is none of them. Christianity is not all of them. Christianity is that principle of life which develops in the individual because of his obedience to Christ.

Webster tells us that Christianity is the body of beliefs, practices, and sentiments developed from the teachings and life of Christ. That is about as near as man can come to defining Christianity, but that falls short. It is the incorporation of all of these into the life of the individual which creates Christianity.

Christianity is that intangible something which sets the Christian apart from the rest of the world. Christianity is not the things a man does! it is his motive for doing them. “For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love.” Gal. 5:6.

Keeping all of these facts in mind, “let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;) and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.”

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

“For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.”—Rom. 8:14-16.

FLESH VERSUS SPIRIT

“THAT which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.”—John 3:6. These are the Savior’s words. There is no suggestion that the flesh ever is, or ever may be changed to spirit. Being born of the flesh, it is flesh; it remains flesh.

Death is the only means of destruction of the flesh.

Birth “of the Spirit” is the only way specified in the Scripture for the creation of a new spirit being.

POWER

“YE SHALL receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you.”—Acts 1:8. It is well to note carefully that the power which was to be bestowed was not of itself Holy Spirit. It was a result therefrom.

In the creation of man in the Garden of Eden, it was not till God had “breathed into his (‘face’—Heb., also Gr.) the breath of life” that Adam “became a living soul”. The inspired Word, commenting upon this creative work, reads, Gen. 7:22, margin, “All in whose nostrils was the breath of the spirit of life.” God inspirited Adam thus, and thus empowered the organs of his body to function. He imparted power, strength. That power, that strength was imparted through the God-given spirit.

Therefore when the spirit (that element from God which imparts power) returns to God who gave it, Eccl. 12:7, man is at once powerless; death is upon him.

Likewise, when Jesus, Acts 1:5, assured the Apostles that they were soon to become the recipients of Holy Spirit, He assured them that as a result they would be recipients of special or extra power.

GIFTS OF THE SPIRIT

ALL creatures live as a result of a bestowment of spirit from God. By that spirit each one is empowered to act and proceed in accordance with respective God-given organism.

In this way man has power to think, to reason, to move, to perform.

Paul, in 1 Corinthians 12, recites a number of added manifestations of ability. Wisdom, knowledge, faith, miracles, prophecy, discernment, interpretation—some in one person, some in another person—were all manifestations of new or increased power, which was to be experienced by certain Christians and was to be recognized by observers. These several increased powers were by Paul called spiritual gifts.

By virtue of the fact that those individuals dedicated themselves truly to Christ, to the obedience of Christ’s directions, they thus were qualified to receive of God, through Christ, added spirit, which would manifest itself by added power, power in distinction from power possessed commonly by natural man.

Special, God-bestowed spirit on the day of Pentecost, Acts 2, was immediately recognized by the added power and the resultant added works and doings of faith-disciples of Christ.

WITHOUT MEASURE

SPEAKING of Christ, John 3:34 reads, “God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.” From this text the conclusion is drawn that unto Jesus God’s spirit was bestowed in a fullness.

In Isaiah 11:2, a prophecy which is by all understood to refer to Jesus, we read, “The spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord;”

To Him God gave the spirit in the fullness of its breadth, of its expanse, that is, God gave Him not one special gift of the spirit, but all the gifts thereof—wisdom, understanding, counsel, might, knowledge, reverence. Not only did Christ proclaim the Word of God, but He could also perform mighty miracles, miracles of power; He could discern the thoughts of His listeners; He could calm the evil spirits of His fellows. To Him was given spirit not for one service only, but for every service. The full field of the operation of God's spirit was His. God did not measure or limit to Him the breadth or range of His ability. Instead God gave unto Him all gifts, the full range of service.

It seems to be unquestioned but that, when He ascended on high, He had more extensive use of God's power, but in no greater field of operation. The full field of operation was given to Him during His ministry. Every phase of spiritual activity was His. But the extensiveness of that activity was increased when He was caught up to the Father.

TO PROFIT WITHAL

THE more one carefully studies creation as the handiwork of God, the more he is amazed and overcome with the thought that God has created all things with a view to the advancement of His glorious, mighty work. Adam was created not merely to please Adam, or to please and make happy Adam's descendants. His creation was but another step in the creation of the universe. That creative work is still progressing. Perfection is not yet attained. Adam was created that the universe as well as himself might profit thereby.

When Jesus had been perfected, Heb. 5:8, 9, God began to build a congregation, drawn to Him and empowered by Him through His Son, Jesus. As the members of this congregation, through faith in Christ and God, were drawn into closer accord with God, into closer harmony with Him, God endowed them with correspondingly increased strength for service in God's progressing work. The gifts of the spirit were given to them for profit. Like the parable of the pounds, the Master's cause is to be enhanced by these gifts. Profits are to be returned by the users of them, profits both for the users and for the Giver of the gifts.

The Savior's name was enhanced in the minds of every onlooker when on the day of Pentecost, as a result of Holy Spirit in Peter, Peter healed the lame man at the gate of the temple. He did this thing in the name of Jesus Christ. Thus Christ's name was exalted. The lame man learned to honor and revere more earnestly the God of heaven. God, Christ, Peter, the healed man—all profited by that faith in Peter which made him trustworthy for God to bestow upon him a gift with which this work was wrought.

Christians today are Christians by the grace of God. No one can transform himself from the flesh to the ways of God. The most anyone can do is to completely submit himself to his God. He can put down, decrie, abolish his own personal, carnal, selfish mind or whim, and can submit himself entirely to the will of God and of God's Son.

With such submission, the individual becomes trustworthy to receive from the Father ability and power for the furtherance of God's work. Such work, divine in character, instigated by God himself, can be performed not alone by the strength commonly given to man, but only by a new and personal touch of God's spirit, of Holy Spirit.

Having thus crucified one's own will, his own fleshly impulses, having by earnest intent and consecration undertaken to subdue the fleshly nature and having received of the Father of His spirit, such individual is declared by Paul, in Romans 8:9, to be "not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his."

Not alone to the Christians in the upper room in Jerusalem on the first Christian Pentecost, but to Christians of all succeeding centuries till the return of our Lord do these scriptures evidently refer. They bring to us ever more intensely the great God-given truth that it is His constant pleasure to bestow upon men and women of ardent faith, through Christ, a power and an ability by which they may perform the works of God and not the works of man.

"PRAYER is the golden key that unlocks the door of opportunity for the propagation of divine truth. It is the unseen wire over which messages are conveyed to the throne of grace. Prayer is an expression of the heart's desire toward God. Man is a needy creature, and, being conscious of his need, he seeks help from God. Consciousness of want excites a desire to have the want supplied. The most important thing today is to make people realize their need."

BE CONTENT

ONE man cannot do everything, be everything, nor have everything. We have each of us all we can attend to to do our own business; why should we envy others their talents, their work, or their wages? They have their duties to do, and to their own Master they stand or fall. We have as many talents as we shall improve, as much prosperity as we deserve, and all the responsibility we shall wish to answer for in the day of judgment.

Let us learn the lesson of quietness and contentment. Our fretting mends nothing; our fault finding changes nothing. Nor could we improve affairs, if we had the oversight of all creation and the privilege of sitting on the judgment throne. Our proper sphere is very small. God rules this world, and whether we like it or not, He will rule it to the end, and all our fretting, murmuring, and complaining, are idle noise.

All things are working together for good to them that love God, and we must believe where we cannot behold, and trust where we cannot trace. Over all things He lives and rules; He can punish and reward; He can bless or blast. Let us leave Him to regulate His own world and do with all around as seemeth good in His sight.

Resting thus in His providence, we can do our own work in contentment and in peace. And our great question will be, not, "What shall this man do?" but, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And in the answer to this question, as given in Scripture, in providence, and by the Holy Spirit's inward voice, we shall find the path of duty and the path of peace.—Selected by Rufus A. Curtis.

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOWS

WHEN the sun in glorious splendor,
Hides behind the western hill,
Nature then is wrapped in slumber,
Shadows come so soft and still.
Slowly then the darkness deepens,
But to faith's illumined eye,
Visions of approaching glory,
Flash across the darkening sky.

Then our hearts are filled with rapture
For the coming of the light,
That will fill our lives with sunshine,
As earth's shadows flee from sight.
Came the Christ from heaven's glory,
As the Father's only Son,
Heralded by a host of angels
Who announced this Holy One.

Short His stay and full of sorrow,
From the manger to the tomb,
Rose He from the grave triumphant
And ascended to the throne.
When earth's shadows round us deepen,
And, all weary of the way,
Many long for His appearing
And the coming perfect day,

Gazing far beyond the hill crest
To the vaulted sky of blue,
Hoping ere the dawn of morning
Earth and life will bloom anew.
Then the sunlight of His presence
Will shed light where now is gloom;
And the dark and dreary places
Like a glorious garden bloom.

—Susan Haines Morris.

THE MULTIPLYING POWER OF GOD

A SCOTCHMAN, named David Fife, of Canada, obtained from Glasgow some wheat of a special kind. Only three ears, the produce of a single grain, ripened, but the splendid harvest of 1908, more than eleven million quarters, was wholly descended from that one seed. The multiplication of the loaves and fishes was a passing illustration of the far larger miracle of the daily feeding of the race.

Let me remember the multiplying power of God in all my earthly affairs. The barrel of meal, the cruse of oil, shall not fail, if my faith and faithfulness do not fail. My opportunities in the spiritual life may be very meager; but in my scraps of knowledge, my narrow resources, my restricted privileges, I may find bread enough and to spare.

—Selected.

ONE HUNDRED FORTY-FOUR THOUSAND

By F. L. Austin

THE intensely interesting book of Revelation, in Chapters seven and fourteen, refers to a company of God's people under the designation "the servants of our God." The time referred to in Chapter seven is the time following the opening of the sixth seal, 5:12, and previous to the opening of the seventh seal, 8:1.

In explaining things that will transpire as a result of the opening of the sixth seal, because of the fearfulness and intensity thereof, the question is asked, 6:17, "Who shall be able to stand?"

Not only will war and famine and pestilence and martyrdom proceed during the days of the opening of the seals of Chapter six, as explained therein, but the very heaven and earth will, as it were, shudder and move and quake till, v. 15, "the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bond man, and every free man" shall hide themselves in fear and shall implore the very elements of nature to "fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne and from the wrath of the lamb". Confusion and destruction of things animate and inanimate, of earth and heaven, will create terror and prostration throughout the land.

It is under this circumstance that the inspired seer standing, in spirit, in the day of the Lord, heard an angel calling to "four angels standing on the four corners of the earth", saying, "Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of God in their foreheads". John then "heard the number of them which were sealed". The number was 144,000, "of all the tribes of the children of Israel". John then names twelve several tribes from each of which "were sealed twelve thousand". He specially enumerates and names the people from which these sealed ones are taken. Everyone is called an Israelite. They are taken from God's chosen nation.

The Scripture leaves no doubt as to their identification. These people are not of the church of God. They are of the chosen nation Israel. True, different denominations have undertaken to appropriate this scripture as pertaining to themselves respectively. But there seems to be no authority whatsoever in Scripture for any sect or class to divert God's promises and pledges, specifically ascribed to one of His own chosen groups, and apply them to a separate and distinct group for selfish glory.

Indeed, as with the rest of the Bible, so with this portion, it seems to be wholly wrong and vicious for finite man to take of God's words and move them out of their God-given place and apply them in such manner as is not even indicated by text or context. Unless God's inspired Word explains a statement as being a sign or a representa-

(Continued on page 538)

WHAT IS HAPPINESS?

By Lucille LeCrone

HAPPINESS is that indefinable something for which we are all searching and which few of us find. At least we fail to recognize it as such, if we do find it. Happiness is not an object of search. It is not a thing that one can lay his hands on and say, "This is happiness". Neither is happiness measured in dollars and cents. That true happiness which we all desire can only come when we forget self in service to others.

There are many causes of unhappiness and discontent. Foremost among these is envy. Nearly everyone, at some time during each day, expresses discontent. It may be in the form of a wish. We are constantly wanting something more and neglecting to be thankful for the things we have.

We exaggerate the importance of another's possessions, and underestimate the value of our own. Most likely the man you envy is envying you. We are too apt to magnify our troubles and minimize our joys and blessings.

Another reason we are unhappy is because we grumble and worry about things over which we have no control. If it is a rainy day, we grumble; if it is too hot, we fret; if it is too cold, we complain. How much happier we would be if we could learn to say, "When God sorts out the weather and sends rain, why rain's my choice." Our grumbling won't change things a particle, so why not be satisfied with what we have?

If we would be happy, we must learn to trust God as a little child does its parents. Know that whatever He sends and gives is best for us, because all things work together for good to those that love Him. We must serve Him by serving those about us, by loving our enemies as well as our friends and neighbors. We must use the talents He has given us for Him. We must give to His work, according as He has prospered us.

Why shouldn't we be happy, when there are so many things to make us rejoice? Christ gave himself on the cross that all might obtain salvation. He now sits at the right hand of the Father in heaven, to make intercession for us, when we go to God in prayer.

God has said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."—Heb. 13:5. Forsake Him not and He will never forsake you. And, again, in the sixth chapter of Matthew, we have the assurance that if we are seeking after the things of God, striving to do His will, then the temporal things of life will be added unto us. "Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself."

More cause for rejoicing is found in the many promises made unto those who hold fast their faith unto the end. "The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ."—Rom. 8:16, 17.

I fear we fail to comprehend the greatness of this promise. Stop for a while and meditate upon the wonder of it. Think of all it includes—heirs of all that Christ is Heir to—glory, power, righteousness and dominion.

Let us therefore learn to say with Paul, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." "Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

"We become soul-winners as we live with Christ. John and Andrew spent a few months with Jesus, and out of it came not only their discipleship, but also the discipleship of thousands more."

CHRIST'S RESURRECTION AND OURS

By Ednah Cooper

AT THIS time of the year, every one is eagerly enjoying the season when all the trees and flowers that have been dead during the winter, bare of their leaves and blossoms, put forth new life. Seeds are planted, and will bring forth a harvest. All forms of vegetation will again bring forth fruit. All creation is thrilled at the thought of new life.

So it shall be at the resurrection of the dead. Those who have been dead for years shall come forth to new life, at the call of Jesus. But in order for this resurrection to take place, it was necessary for Christ to die, and be resurrected, that He might become the Firstfruits of them that slept. He came forth on that first Easter morning, glorified and free from death forever more.

Resurrection is the hope of the Christian today. It is our hope that we shall be raised from the dead when Christ, who is our Life, shall appear; it is the hope of all the loved ones about us who shall go down in death—hope of being restored to new life and reunited in Christ's kingdom.

In 1 Thessalonians 4:13, 14, we read: "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

What a blessed hope that is! If we live true Christian lives today, even though we die, when Jesus comes we shall be with Him. Just as everything springs forth to new life at this season of the year and shows the hand of God in the beauties of creation, even so shall the Christian shine forth with the glory of God at the time of the resurrection.

May we each one so follow our Example, Jesus, that we may have a part in that glorious resurrection.

WHEREIN ARE WE ROOTED?

By Samuel E. Haney

“As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.”—Col. 2:6, 7.

THE Apostle is here using the word “root” figuratively, but whether it be used figuratively or literally the import is the same, namely, that from which anything derives origin, growth, or life and vigor; anything resembling or suggesting a root.

While Paul is applying the figurative phase of “root”, it is interesting to note how the literal phase applies to our nerve system—like an inverted tree with its roots pointing upward and interwoven with our brain, while its trunk and tiny nerve branches diverge in a downward course to the tips of our toes.

But Paul does not advise us to be rooted in either our brains or this cosmos world, rather, as he taught the Ephesian brethren (3:17), “That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love”. We can thus be “rooted and built up in him”, and “stablished in the faith” through love, the most potent power in the universe, emanating from the eternal, omnipotent One; for “he that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love”. 1 John 4:8, 16.

The inevitable doom of those allowing themselves to become rooted and grounded in this world—things appealing to the natural man, and referred to by John (1 John 2:15-17)—is set forth by Eliphaz in rebuking Job for his religious negligence, thus, “Call now, if there be any that will answer thee; and to which of the saints wilt thou turn (look)? For wrath killeth the foolish man, and envy (indignation) slayeth the silly one. I have seen the foolish taking root: but suddenly I cursed his habitation (‘but suddenly his branches rot’, Moffatt). His children are far from safety, and they are crushed in the gate (‘defrauded—none to defend them’, Moffatt), neither is there any to deliver them.”—Job 5:1-4.

Paul says, “As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly”. It is to this “earthy” class, involving myriads of professing Christians, in these last days, when veneering has become a classic art, that Eliphaz and David refer, “I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like a green bay tree. Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was not: yea, I sought him, but he could not be found”. Psa. 37:35, 36.

Jesus’ words convey the same thought in effect, “Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit. If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.”—John 15:2, 6.

Christians who have befitted themselves by complying with conditions to meet their Lord at His return are frailty rooted into this world—like a stalk of ripe wheat that a robin could remove, when the ground is moist, by attaching one end of a string to the bird’s legs and the other end to the stalk. Then there are professing Christians who have a rootage into this world likened unto the burdock weed that a giant could not extract.

But this tenacious grip on life’s habitudes must be rooted out voluntarily before Jesus returns, for He says, “Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up”.—Matt. 15:13. “But the solid foundation laid by God remains, and this is its inscription: the Lord knows who are his, and let every one who names the name of the Lord give up evil”.—2 Tim. 2:19, Moffatt.

Shame on the one who takes the name of Christian, but neglects to “so walk in him” as to become rooted and built up ready for transplanting into God’s kingdom at his Lord’s return. The wise man says, “But the wicked shall be cut off from the earth, and the transgressors shall be rooted (plucked up, margin) out of it”.—Prov. 2:22.

The professing of Christianity involves more than the average Christian is apprized of during these perilous times. According to Paul it is a life or death struggle. Read again 2 Corinthians 2:15, 16: “Because we are a sweet odor of Christ to God among THOSE who are BEING SAVED, and among THOSE who ARE PERISHING; to these, indeed, an Odor of Death to Death, and to those, an Odor of Life to Life; and for these things who is qualified?”—Emphatic Diaglott.

Fifty years ago Christians took their religion seriously; it was paramount in their daily lives. They made it as conspicuous on Monday as on Sunday. They did more than merely talk it—they lived it and acted it, because they were rooted and built up in Him. They clung tenaciously to every vestige of light they possessed, despite the fact that the enemy had them believing many errors; inherent immortality, the trinity, everlasting physical torment in an inferno fire, etc., etc.—a refuge of lies whose hiding place the waters of truth have since overflowed, clarifying the truth as it is in Christ Jesus to the minds of God’s consecrated and sanctified children. Read Isaiah 28:17, 18.

Let us therefore keep in mind that in proportion to our growth in knowledge of God’s Word, our responsibility and jeopardy increase. Here are our Lord’s words: “Whereas he who was ignorant and did what deserves a beating, will receive few lashes. He who has much given to him will have much required of him, and he who has much entrusted to him will have all the more demanded of him.”—Luke 12:48, Moffatt.

The Christian must follow his Light. Jesus is the Light. He should not walk in darkness, after the things of the flesh, but walk worthily of the vocation wherewith he has been called.

CHRIST, THE CENTRAL OBJECT OF PROPHECY

By Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.

"To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins.—Acts 10:43.

THE Apostle Peter is addressing the Gentile soldier Cornelius, and speaking of Christ, he says, "To him give all the prophets witness."

Moses was the earliest of the prophets whose books have come down to us, and to him was given the honor of being a messianic prophet in his own name, as well as recording those prophecies that went before, that is, prior to his time. The first of these latter was in the judgment pronounced upon the serpent in the garden of Eden, where Jehovah said, "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, . . . it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel" (Gen. 3:15). The second was in the promise to Abraham that in his seed should all the families of the earth be blessed (Gen. 12:3). The third, in Jacob's dying benediction upon his sons where he said, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet until Shiloh come" (Gen. 49:10). Shiloh means peace, and it is ascertained by a comparison of other scriptures of the Old and New Testaments that the allusion is to the Messiah.

But as I have said, Moses himself was a messianic prophet. In the eighteenth chapter of Deuteronomy we have the clearest and most definite outline of the Messiah yet met with, where Moses speaks of Him as a prophet, saying: "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things" (v. 15), a prediction finding a near fulfillment in the history of Joshua, who immediately succeeded Moses, but finding a later and complete fulfillment in Jesus Christ, as we discover by the statements of the New Testament (Acts 3:22).

David is the second great messianic prophet, following Moses about five hundred years later. To him personally was vouchsafed the most remarkable and most comprehensive prophecy of Christ in the Old Testament. It is recorded in the seventh chapter of second Samuel, at the time when David desired to build a house for Jehovah. Nathan was instructed to withhold him from doing so, and to say that instead of his building a house for God, God would build him a house. By this was meant that the Son who should come forth from David's loins should sit upon His throne and that His kingdom would be established forever. This prediction the career of Solomon was not large enough to fill, and we know from the New Testament, as in the other case, that it applied to Christ (Heb. 1:5).

But David himself was a great messianic prophet, hardly second even to Isaiah in the range of his predictions. If we may assume all the messianic psalms to have been composed by David, and certainly very many of them were, he not only alludes to Christ, but speaks minutely and graphically of many details of His life, His betrayal and sufferings on the cross, His death, resurrection, ascension, His dispensation of the Holy Spirit, and even His millennial glory (Psa. 2, 16, 22, 24, 40, 45, 68, 69, 72, 97, 110, 118).

Following David comes Isaiah, say three hundred years later, whose many allusions to the Savior and to the period of the gospel have given him the title of "the evangelical prophet". It is he who first predicts Christ's name and His virgin birth; he tells the family of which He should be born, describes His twofold nature, human and divine, enlarges upon His sufferings and the vicarious nature of His sacrifice, and depicts in glowing colors the glory of the latter days when He shall reign over the house of Israel (Isa. 7:14; 9:6, 7; 11:1-5; 52:13-53).

We pass briefly over Micah and Jeremiah. The first was contemporaneous with Isaiah, and spoke of the city in which Jesus should be born (5:2). The second was his successor, who predicted that the Messiah should be of the house of David (Jer. 23:5, 6).

We come now to the great prophet of the captivity, Daniel, who indicated the time of Christ's coming to be 62 hebdomads, or 434 years after Jerusalem should be rebuilt (9:25, 26).

Following Daniel we have the post-captivity prophets, the last in the annals of the Old Testament, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi. The first predicted that the Desire of all nations should come while the second temple was still standing (2:7). The last told of His forerunner, John the Baptist (3:1); Zechariah, gave the minute details of His entry into Jerusalem as King of the Jews, His rejection by the nation, and other events concerning Him reaching to the end of, and even beyond the present age (Zech. 9:9; 11:7-14; 12:10; 14).

(To be continued)

THE TONGUE

"THE boneless tongue so small and weak,
Can crush and kill," declared the Greek.
"The tongue destroys a greater horde,"
The Turks assert, "than does the sword."
The Persian proverb wisely saith,
"A lengthy tongue an early death."
Or sometimes takes this form instead:
"Don't let your tongue cut off your head."
"The tongue can speak a word whose speed,"
Says the Chinese, "outstrips the steed."
While the Arab sages this impart:
"The tongue's great storehouse is the heart."
From the Hebrew maxim sprung,
"Though feet should slip, ne'er let the tongue."
The sacred writer crowns the whole:
"Who keeps his tongue doth keep his soul."

—Contributed by Dessie E. Benn.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHURCH

By Paul M. Hatch

THE kingdom of God and the Messiah are dealt with in a very thorough way, among the prophetic writings of the Old Testament. The prophets give a very detailed description of the foundation of the kingdom, its government, territorial rule, authority in various phases of its governmental bureaus, etc. It is the one big theme of the entire Book of books, so that the church has been looked upon as being that prophetic kingdom, and teaching has evolved upon that premise of the application of kingdom prophecy to the church.

We have such teaching that the church will expand until it covers the earth. Its function will eventually be to break the resistance of nations. And its preaching will eventually convert the world of ungodliness to righteousness and to Jesus Christ. This may all well be true, if the premise be true, but the warning that Paul gave Timothy to rightly divide the word of truth enters here.

The dispensation of church authority is distinctly not the dispensation of kingdom rule. For to have a functioning kingdom, the king has to be present, as well as other elements that make up a true kingdom.

The church function is clearly not that of ruling, but that of training. The ruling or governing period has not yet arrived. Enrollment of prospective material for training and teaching, for the task of ruling and governing, is its work during its interval.

The outline of teaching and training is primarily to learn righteousness, as God applies the term. That righteousness has to become the very daily study and application of the Christian student. Study of Christian principles and application thereof should be the order daily. In no other way can the student become proficient in his or her studies.

Secularly, not all students, no matter how well educated, become leaders and authorities in their specialty. This fact is true also in selecting material that will eventually make up the governing body with Christ in His kingdom. The many called, but few chosen, clearly indicates that selection for authority over the nations is elected through merit of having learned righteousness and having applied it daily. How else could righteousness, equity, peace, good will, obedience, clean living, godliness be effectually taught in the day that the law shall go forth of Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem? If members of the body of Christ will have learned these essential points in righteous government, there will be no question of their having made their calling and election sure.

The present day church, in connection with present day advancement in every worldly enterprise, has had the world's stigma upon it, of not keeping pace with social and religious problems. This is true. The church has woefully lagged behind, if that is its predetermined destiny. And it is equally true among modern thought in the pulpits, that that is the predetermined destiny—in short, to make a better world, socially and morally.

Again, the Word that is reliable says that there is to be a steady decline, both morally and socially, and that a falling away of religious practice will come about, while a form of religion, powerless in practice, will take its place. All this will become all too apparent at the end of the age or dispensation of the church activity. (1 Thess. 4:1-7; 2 Thess. 2:1-3; 1 Tim. 1:1-3; 2 Tim. 3:1-7, etc.)

The church labor is not to preach, and devise means of making a world of righteousness, and then to invite the Lord and Master Jesus Christ to reign over us. But, rather, has Jesus the Christ invited us to come out of the world and be not partaker of its sins. To attempt to reverse the order would be presumptuous in the extreme and a usurping of power and authority that belongs to the King of kings.

Here is probably the true work of the church—that of saving souls, or instructing souls in the way of salvation, found only in and through Christ. Christ saves; we can only instruct, through preaching and showing example to those that have not yet entered into the fold of the sheep of His pasture. This in no way is comparable to the teaching that the world must be converted to Christ, before it is possible for Him to come and take up the reign of government.

Christ's cabinet, which is the church, shall, with Him, begin the reign of righteousness, when the full body is made up and every member is fully tested for the great and important work of governing the world in righteousness. May we be accounted worthy of that unspeakable privilege and gift, to be with Him and reign with Him.

—o—

“THE Egyptians and Romans began the ‘day’ at midnight, the Babylonians at sunrise, the Jews at sunset.”

—o—

A MORNING PRAYER

Lord, send me to my work today
 With quiet heart to cheer the way!
 May those whose lives are touched by mine
 Some beauty glimpse, like peace of Thine,
 Some blessing gain, because I tread
 The common way with uplifted head!
 Grant I may see Thee ever there,
 Willing and glad my cares to share,
 Helping my thought to soar, to find
 The purpose of Thy wondrous mind.
 And may I, though in humble place,
 Work nobly, that by Thy good grace
 The part Thou gavest me to do,
 From morn till eve, my journey through,
 When set at last in Thy design
 May fill its place in hue and line,
 Be fashioned by the pattern He Has set for men since Galilee.

—Gertrude B. Walker.

UNENDING LIFE

By Harvey Krogh

“For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.”

Do you ever stop to think how dear life is to almost everyone? It has been said that a drowning man will snatch at a straw. It is indeed true that everyone prizes life above nearly every other thing, and this is because we would have nothing without life. There would be no happiness, nor sadness, no joys, nor sorrows without life, for all is lost when life ends. It is because of this reason that we all cleave to life so firmly.

There is a way to obtain the life that has no end. This way is only through Christ. It is the straight and narrow way of living a true Christian life, but it seems that few find it. It is the greatest opportunity that has ever been offered to man, and it is the one which has been overlooked the most.

Let us see just how we can be given this unending life, when we are such unworthy, sinful creatures. God put a curse on man and caused him to die, after he had disobeyed. He did not intend that that should be the complete end of man, but that man should live upon earth again. God promised that One should be born who would overcome sin and redeem mankind from death, by giving His life to cover Adam's sin which had brought death upon all men.

Christ was born on earth, a man like Adam. He was not infested with the sins and weaknesses of His earthly ancestors, but He was created pure like Adam that He might not have sin in Him and that He might be a pure Sacrifice. He was tried and tested by temptation and sin on all sides of Him, but He kept the thought of His Father and of His mission in life constantly before Him, so that He did not yield to temptation. We, too, can overcome sin much more easily if we keep the thoughts of God and His great love before us.

As God had planned, Christ allowed himself to be taken by men and be killed. He literally gave His life, for He had not sinned and had no reason to die. It was by Christ's great sacrifice that we are promised redemption from the bonds that death will hold on us. It was because of His purity, His service to His fellow man and His sacrifice that God raised Him up on high and gave Him the power to raise the dead and to give to the worthy ones eternal life and immortality, as He now has.

As we meditate on the meaning of the crucifixion and resurrection of our Lord, let us renew our lives and be truer Christians. Let us live lives of service to God and our fellowman, rather than be servants of sin and our carnal desires. May we help those who have not found that way to eternal life, and may we bring them to the knowledge of our Lord who died for all. If we serve Christ faithfully, we will be granted a life that is far better than this life. Let us serve Him more diligently each day.

THE WORKER

By Cecil A. Smead

It is very evident that the field in which the high purpose of Christianity must be accomplished is indeed a thorny, stony field, wasted by depravity and blasted by sin. Therefore the work of coping with the situation and of accomplishing the purpose is one which may not be minimized, or set to one side as a task of no great moment. Indeed, there is no higher work on earth in the eyes of God than just that very work.

No man can do that work of himself. He must be called to it and assigned to his duties by God. God has called the body of Christ and entrusted each member of the body with a certain portion of that great work. Each of you who is a member has been assigned to your task, according as your talents make you fitted.

Just as in an ordinary body, one member can see, another hear, another talk, so Christ's body has many members, each of which has certain qualifications. Now it is evident that, although the individual members have individual uses and qualities, the body as a whole has certain basic qualities throughout all its members. That is why God set you in the body of Christ, because of those basic qualities which made it possible for Him to use you.

God can use you only if you are zealous or enthusiastic for Him. That means that you submit yourself in faith to God and follow with courage wherever He leads. That zeal was the basic quality which Christ saw in you that made Him decide to use you, as “a chosen vessel to bear my name”, as He speaks of Paul the Apostle.

Before the conversion of Paul to Christianity, he was the most vigorous and bloodthirsty of the persecutors of the Christians. He thought he was doing it in the name of God and God's law. He was “exceedingly zealous” and was devoting his all to what he thought was God's true cause. Christ had spoken of such a thing when He told His apostles, “Yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.”

Therefore Christ, seeing that earnest zeal of Paul, reached out a strong hand and turned him into the right path. You and I are called just as certainly as was Paul and for the same reason—zeal for God instead of for self. The call that comes to each of us may not be so spectacular as was Paul's, but it is just as clear and certain. Paul needed such a call to turn him from his greatly mistaken course. Perhaps you did not. But the situation you must cope with is just as trying as Paul's was.

It was Paul's zeal that made Christ want him, and it is your zeal that makes Christ want you. If you have that zeal and are called, as all the members of the body of Christ are, then you will do as Paul did, whenever you meet any of the adverse circumstances and trying conditions with which you must contend.

Paul, stricken blind on the road to Damascus, cried,

“Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?” So you, too, will call on the Lord to lead you, blind though you may be. Paul prayed for three days before he was given sight and told what to do. So you must pray constantly in the face of all your difficulties. You, too, will be given light and shown what to do. Then is there any situation that you cannot meet when you know that you have submitted yourself to Christ, and He is holding the reins and directing you?

You will find it to be true with you, as it was with Paul. He was led away into the desert to learn directly from Christ. Then he went forward in that same zeal, directed now in the right path.

Many obstacles were in his path. He had to face beatings, stonings, imprisonments. But he unwaveringly went ahead in perfect courage. All he cared to know was that Christ was leading.

He had to face turmoil in the church—jealousy, strife, division. He had to face “those that would pervert the gospel of Christ”. He had to save the church from being tied to the Mosaic law and smothered under a load it could not bear. Paul was zealous to the end, and he succeeded. God was glorified, and the cause of Christ was advanced.

Submit yourself in faith to God! Go forward in courage! Have that zeal that Paul had and that you must have had in order that God should have called you at first! Pray! Christ never taught His disciples how to preach, but how to pray. Then you will never fear anything that stands in the way of your service.

You have been given the task of fulfilling the purpose of Christianity. The way may be thorny, the going hard; but your Master stands at your side to help. Call on Him; He will never fail. Then press onward in courage to do.

It's a great work, and it's for you. You were chosen for your zeal. Now don't lose heart. You were set to your duty in the body of Christ by God. Now depend on God and plunge enthusiastically into whatever work the Lord thinks you are fitted to do.

SEALED IN THEIR FOREHEADS

(Continued from page 532)

tion of something else, it is questionable if man is ever warranted in making interpretations and application foreign to the text itself.

Let us note carefully that these people are sealed with a seal in their foreheads. The word “seal” comes from the Greek word which means to “make fast with seal or signet; to seal for security”. These people are thus secured and protected against the devastations which are to be wrought in the earth by the powers that proceed under the opening of the seventh seal, Chapter 8.

Under that opening we find that the great beast of Revelation 13 with his helper, 13:11, and with the added power of the dragon, will demand worship of all who dwell upon the face of the earth. And in indication of their obedience to that blasphemous power all are required to receive his seal or number in forehead or hand. But in Chapter seven is given an explanation that certain “servants of God” who bear God's own seal will be preserved and protected against any and every devastation of this mighty, powerful, all but universal, atheistic blasphemer of God.

God knows how to protect His own from any ungodly antagonistic force whatsoever.

In the fourteenth chapter is given a statement as to the reward of these particular servants.

In Romans 11, in Ezekiel 37 to 39, in many scriptures, God has foretold of a remnant of the people of Israel who will yet be found true to Him and faithful. Here in Revelation 7 we have reference to at least 144,000 of them who will be sealed and protected against the ravages of that day of “tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be.”

“Give us the courage of the soul's high vision,
Though its fulfillment here we never see;
The heart to make and keep the brave decision,
And faith to leave the ultimate with thee.”

EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH

THE saints, to whom the faith was once delivered, were able to contend earnestly for it. It is impossible to contend for something we do not possess. But the early saints, having the gospel committed to them as a sacred trust, could contend earnestly for it. This we see in the record of their lives.

The apostles and evangelists and those who were scattered by persecution went everywhere preaching the Word. (Acts 8:1-4; Rom. 15:17-19.) They took joyfully the spoiling of their goods, and counted not their lives dear or precious unto themselves, for the gospel's sake and its glorious reward.

The faith once delivered has been handed down from generation to generation, and all true saints have contended earnestly for it. They have found it worth contending for. With Paul they have said, “Woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel.” (1 Cor. 9:16.) It has been necessary to contend for it on account of the opposition and the numerous errors which have arisen.

This is also true of our own day; for evil men and seducers have waxed worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived (1 Tim. 4:1-3). To us therefore the words of Jude come with special force—“Contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints.” Let us be sure that we are among the saints or sanctified ones, set apart from the evil of the world to God's service; let us be sure we have and hold the true faith; and then let us contend with all our power to uphold and defend it. *And may the Lord help us each so to do.—Selected.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"FORASMUCH THEN AS CHRIST HATH SUFFERED FOR US IN THE FLESH, ARM YOURSELVES LIKEWISE WITH THE SAME MIND."—1 PETER 4:1.

THE SEVEN CHRISTIAN GRACES

FOR a little while let us turn to 2 Peter 1:11. This is a letter from Peter, a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ. First we must find out to whom this letter is written. It says, "To them who have like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." The "us" here are the apostles, and so this letter was written to those who have the faith of the apostles.

We have here a case of multiplication, multiplication before addition. It says that grace and peace be multiplied unto us through the knowledge of God, and through the knowledge of Christ we get glory and virtue.

We are given promises, and describing them, we are given three adjectives—exceeding, great, and precious. By these we will be partakers of the divine nature. We haven't that nature now, but if we receive these promises, we will be partakers of the divine nature.

To the faith of the apostles we have added seven graces, which are: virtue, a love of something worth while, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, wherein we aspire to be like the Father, brotherly kindness and charity. With these qualities we will not be barren or unfruitful. If we lack these seven graces we will be blind, and we cannot see afar off. We will have forgotten that we have gone into the watery grave in baptism to come up to make our calling and election sure, "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things ye shall never fall."

We are told that we will have an abundant entrance, not just a slipping in, into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. When we pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven", it is for the kingdom over which Jesus will be King, with its capital at Jerusalem, where we will rule with Him, as joint heirs or equal heirs in the government of the nations.

Are not promises like these worth striving for? Are they not so precious that we will cherish them? I think so.

Hazel Titus, Letcher, S. Dak.

"PATIENCE MEANS THE readiness to await God's time without doubting God's truth."—Arthur T. Hadley.

THE DAY'S WORK

I looked about at the dawn of day
At the work that I had to do.
A lot of it, yes, but eager and strong,
I would finish it all, I knew.
I started out with zeal and a song,
Bent on making each minute pay,
But things I had never considered twice
Rose up and blocked the way.

I battled on through the heat of the day,
But I lost my strength and my zest;
And deep discouragement like a cloud
Hid the sun as it set in the west.
I had seen the day wear on to a close,
Was weary of body and mind,
For so much to do lay ahead of me,
And so little done lay behind.

Then from somewhere a small voice spoke to me,
"Cheer up! You have earned your rest!
Only he need feel discouraged and blue
Who has failed in doing his best.
Continue to scatter your seeds each day,
Though you can't stay to see them grow.
The efforts you spend will never be lost,
For God gives the increase, you know."

—Selected.

"THE MAN who is loving God will keep his mind four-square to all the winds that blow, and look for light from every quarter of the sky, and will forever keep the power to greet the unseen with a cheer."

—Phillips Brooks.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 16; Ohio, 13; Michigan, 8; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

JESUS CRUCIFIED

TODAY the order of criminals is the crime, the trial, the punishment—quick death before a few witnesses. With Jesus it was different—no crime, false trial, and a slow death of intense suffering and humiliation before a few friends and many enemies—all to fulfill the mission for which He was sent—to bring salvation to you and to me.

Pilate saw no evil in Jesus, but the Jews demanded His death. So Pilate said, as he gave Jesus to the mob, "I wash my hands of the whole matter." Then swiftly followed the mockeries, the scourging, more bruises, and the procession started in the early morning, Jesus bearing His own cross to the place of execution, Calvary (Golgotha), a hill north of the Damascus gate, outside the city walls.

The soldiers came first, carrying a board with the inscription on it, stating the cause of the crucifixion. Four soldiers were next, under the charge of a centurion, carrying hammer and nails and guarding Jesus with His burdensome cross. How weary He must have been after the long night of suffering and ill treatment! Yet, He never lost self-control, but remained calm and very quiet, not making a sound even when the cross was set in place and the nails driven through His hands and feet.

Then soldiers cast lots for His garments, and each took a part, as had been prophesied years and years before. Above Jesus was nailed the inscription, "This is the King of the Jews", written in Greek, Latin, and Hebrew. The Jews wanted Pilate to write, "He says He is King of the Jews", but Pilate refused to oblige them.

On either side of Jesus was a thief, who was crucified with Him. As the people passed, even these thieves joined in the insulting words they directed to Jesus. They sneered, "Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself!" "If thou be the Son of God come down from the cross," they mocked.

Even the chief priests and scribes and elders said ugly things to Him. "He saved others; himself he cannot save." "If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him," they jeered.

They taunted Him thus, "He trusted in God; let him deliver him: for he said, I am the Son of God."

Intense darkness settled over the land from the sixth to the ninth hour. Do you suppose the guilty men began to wonder if they had not made a serious mistake?

What those three hours of agony were to Jesus we cannot comprehend, but at the last He cried in a loud voice,

"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" How utterly alone He seemed!

Some of those nearby heard Him call out and said, "Behold, he calleth Elias." And one of them reached up to Him a sponge filled with vinegar, saying, "Let alone. Let us see whether Elias will come to take him down."

Then came the end. Jesus cried out again in a loud voice, "It is finished," and died.

The veil in the temple was torn from top down; there was a great earthquake, and the dead came from their graves.

The centurion, standing close at hand, saw and heard the last words of Jesus, and declared, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

ARE WE crucifying Jesus today, too?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Learn Isaiah 53:5.
2. Who acknowledged Jesus—King of the Jews?
3. List the events of this story in their order.

Is Isaiah 35 almost committed to memory?

WHO CALLED SAMUEL?

"ONCE upon a time," began Mother. And Mark and Martha came close to her. "There lived a little boy whose name was Samuel.

"He did not live at home with his parents. He lived in a big church with an old man. The kind old man's name was Eli.

"One night while Samuel was asleep, he heard a voice. This voice called, 'Samuel! Samuel!'

"Now Samuel thought Eli had called him. But Eli was asleep. He had not called Samuel. So Samuel went back to bed. But the voice called again.

"'If you hear the voice again, answer it,' said Eli. 'Say, Speak, Lord, and I will listen.'

"When the voice called again, Samuel answered. It was the heavenly Father who had called Samuel! He had a message for Samuel to give to Eli. I don't believe Samuel ever forgot that night."

"Does the heavenly Father speak to us?" asked Mark.

"Yes," said Mother, "I think He does. The other day you wanted to play before coming home. But you remembered and came home first. I think the heavenly Father spoke to you then, don't you?"—Frances Woodall.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 10. — June 7, 1931

JESUS CRUCIFIED

Luke 23

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:7-12

GOLDEN TEXT

He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.—Isaiah 53:5.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. What We Owe to the Lord Jesus.

Basic Truth. "In conjunction with Christ, I have become crucified; nay, living no longer am I, but living in me is Christ: while so far as I now live in flesh, in faith I live, the (faith) of God and Christ who loved me and gave himself up in my behalf."—Galatians 2:20, Roth.

What We Owe to the Lord Jesus. Truly, we "are bought with a price", 1 Cor. 6:20; "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law", Gal. 3:13; "by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place", Heb. 9:12; we are redeemed "with the precious blood of Christ", 1 Peter 1:18, 19.

Christ's death, made visibly real and positive to the eyes of man by the ferocious, violent method that was pursued to obtain His death, was in part that He might redeem man from death which is the wage of sin. True, His death resulted in an advantage to himself, also, but, as it pertained to man, it was the one altogether necessary and all important sacrifice that was required.

In return man owes, as a sense of duty, his all to his Lord. If one could picture himself wholly and completely lost with no possibility for him to recover himself and then experience being found by a friend, he could well imagine that he owed the balance of his life to that one who recovered him. Such a weak illustration was the position of man; such was the restoration provided by Christ.

Because of this salvation man is asked to pledge his all to Christ. As an evidence he is asked to be buried by baptism into the death of Christ. He is then asked, Rom. 6:1-4, to arise and walk in newness of life; namely, a life consecrated entirely to the service of his Lord.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed."—Isaiah 53:5.

This prophecy of Isaiah, uttered hundreds of years before Christ's birth, was literally fulfilled in His death. The marginal rendering is "tormented" instead of "wounded", and it seems to me that He was both tormented and wounded. And just think, it was for you and for me! "And with his bruise (margin) we are healed."

Christ did no sin, yet He bore our sins in His own body on the tree; that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness.

—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

False Accusations. Jesus was falsely accused. The unwarranted accusations resulted in His death. Many people believed the false statements. The falsehoods made shipwreck of many people. In the sense that silence gives consent, Christ agreed with His accusers. There was no effort on His part to defend, retaliate, or get even.

Many lives have been blighted, characters injured, and usefulness impaired by gossiping statements and false remarks. It should always be remembered that we must render account for every idle word that proceeds out of our mouth.

Idle Words

- told, soon grow and sow;
- break many friendships;
- wound many hearts;
- must be accounted for;
- come from an evil mind.

A Finished Task: A task worth while is a task worth finishing. Finish what you start to do if the work is honest. Seldom is the cost too great for a job well done. The Master finished His work. It cost Him suffering, friends, and life. The result was worth the cost. He paid dearly; He reaped bountifully.

One of the biggest drawbacks in Christian work is the starter that never finishes. A committee job is assigned, or some other task is given. He appears enthusiastic, but soon smothers under the belief it can't be done, or the time isn't ripe, or some other excuse. A good principle to follow is never to accept a job unless you expect to and are determined to perform the task.

A Finished Task

- wins the admiration of men;
- oftentimes requires hard work to accomplish;
- should inspire a person to noble attempts;
- always qualifies a person for greater labors;
- brings peace to our minds and pleasure to our lives.—C. E. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: Our Debt to the Lord Jesus.

Jesus came into the world and endured much for us. Not only did He hunger, thirst, and grow weary and faint, but more than that—He bore the suffering and heartache which came from an ungrateful, sinful world. He suffered in Gethsemane, where His sweat was as it were great drops of blood, falling down to the ground. He bled and died on Calvary's cross, and He was laid in the dark portals of the tomb for our justification.

He was raised from the dead, and for us

He ascended to the right hand of the Father, there to appear as our High Priest and Mediator. And what is more, He has promised to return and receive unto himself and glorify all who are faithful to Him.

Do we owe Him anything? Ah, yes! But not as a debt! If a debt, it could not be paid. But we do owe Him our love, our loyalty, our faithfulness, our honor. We owe Him a consecrated, self-sacrificing life. We owe Him all.—F. A. S.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: What We Owe to the Lord Jesus.

We have been studying the lessons that lead up to the death of our Savior upon the cross. We saw Him on the night before He was arrested—His last night with His disciples. When He ate with them for the last time, He instituted what we call the Lord's supper, and He told them that as often as they took of it, they would show forth His death. Then we beheld Him in the garden of Gethsemane, praying for strength to endure the cruel death that was just ahead of Him. Today we read with tears in our eyes of that death.

Even in His darkest hour Jesus did not use any of His God-given power to spare himself any of the pain, though they mocked Him for it. VV. 35-37. What was written over the cross? Was it true? Who wanted it changed? John 19:21, 22. What do the unusual events of vv. 44, 45 indicate? What were some of Jesus' last words?

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Jesus Dies on the Cross.

In last Sunday's lesson we learned that Jesus was willing to do whatever God asked Him to do, even to die on the cross. The soldiers had nailed Him to the cross, and the first verse of our lesson tells us of something more wonderful that He did. He prayed to the Father to forgive the people who were crucifying Him. Could you forgive someone who you knew was killing you, or even some dear friend? Jesus did.

Read the remaining verses. Tell the cruel things they did to Jesus after He was on the cross. Who was crucified with Him? What did one thief say to Jesus? Read what Jesus answered. Read the verse which tells when Jesus died. Tell what happened at the death of Jesus.

We often ask ourselves this question, "Why did Jesus have to die on the cross?" It was God's plan to save us. He died that we might be saved. Can you tell how we can, in a small way, repay Jesus for His death for us?

—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

May Meeting, Fonthill, Ont.,	May 29 to 31
Northwestern, Felida, Wash.,	June 4 to 7
Ohio, Brush Creek,	June 7 to 14
Minnesota, Eden Valley,	June 11 to 14
Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30

NORTHWESTERN CONFERENCE

The annual meeting of the Northwestern Conference of Oregon and Washington will convene from June 4 to 7, 1931, at Felida, Washington.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone, especially to those who are passing through this section of the country at that time. We want to see every loyal member of Oregon and Washington present, so that we may make plans for the coming year, whereby each member will be doing something in his own locality toward proclaiming the gospel and the soon coming of our Savior.

May we all attend this conference in a prayerful attitude, conducting ourselves as members of the body should, and remembering that we must work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work. We need all of the young people, for there is much work for them to do, too.

May we ask that God will bless all efforts put forth and remember that the prayers of the saints avail much.

Gladys Barber, Sec.

DELTA, OHIO

Either Bro. J. R. LeCrone or Bro. C. A. Smead, or both, will meet with and speak for the brethren at Delta, Ohio, over Sunday, May 31. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity to become acquainted with these promising young men, and gather new thought and Christian inspiration from their messages.

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO

Bro. C. A. Smead or Bro. J. R. LeCrone, or both, have been announced to speak at the Lawrenceville church, westward from Springfield, on the evenings of Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, June 3, 4, 5.

Though beginners, these young men have been much appreciated in different places, and we feel certain that they will give their audiences at Lawrenceville "meat in due season".

From Lawrenceville they go to the Brush Creek June Meeting.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The Sunday School on May 17 numbered 218, the smallest attendance for months. How thankful we are that even through the spring season the number holds well above the two hundred mark. It shows that more than a casual interest draws these children and young people to the house of God. And we are thankful for good teachers to guide their minds correctly.

The hopes for our much needed new church

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Cochran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Luper	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio
Sr. Ella Rose,	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sr. Edna Brewer,	Troy, Ohio
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Sr. May Moore	Bartley, Nebr.
Sr. Anna D. Springer	Launcester, Ohio

Sr. John Cochran writes us that she still asks an interest in our prayers, not as an invalid, but as one of the household of faith. Although she underwent a very serious operation last fall, she has fully recovered and says that she knows she received much benefit through prayer. She adds, "May the dear Lord bless and keep us all through these trying days that we falter not, nor faint by the wayside, but hold fast till He comes, is my prayer."

Dear Friends: I want to thank all the dear brothers and sisters of the faith for their many kindnesses, sympathy, and prayers for us and our dear little baby, Wanda.

She came through the operation fine and is getting along splendidly. But we are very much afraid we will have to take her back for another operation, so we are asking that she still be remembered.

I want to ask that the name of my mother, Mrs. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas, be added to the Prayer Column. She has been ill for several years, and at present is bedfast. She has been a member for forty-seven years.

Your sister in Christ,

Mrs. H. L. Luper,
Arkansas City, Kansas.

basement were materially brightened a few days ago by a $50.00 pledge voluntarily sent by a friend two hundred miles away. Other plans are on foot for enlarging the building fund, with the hope of having the new basement before fall.

If the church can arise from the present financial depression, we feel that the future offers almost unlimited opportunity for the gospel cause.

Our church was happy to entertain the National Berean Board on May 19. In addition to Sr. Sanford of Chicago, Bro. Lyon of Cleveland and Sr. Zechiel of Culver, Indiana, all of whom are board members from a distance, we were glad to have Sr. Lydia Railsback, who for seven years was president, and Sisters Guge and LaMunion and Bro. Ferris Zechiel of Indiana. These all remained for a social evening at the pastor's home, and got acquainted with our church folks.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

E. E. Giesler, pastor

Our services are as follows: Sunday School, 10:00 a. m. Morning worship, 11:00 a. m. Evening service at 8. Prayer meeting on Wednesday evening.

We are located here now and have had regular services every Sunday since June, 1930. We have fine attendance at both Sunday School and church. Our regular attendance at Sunday School is around 135, but last Sunday there were 153, and on Mother's Day, 181 attended Sunday School and about 250, morning worship.

Mrs. Giesler has a contest on in her class (class No. 4), and the Blues and Reds are fighting hard to win. Our juniors had charge of the evening service on the fourth Sunday in April, and the service moved along in regular order as if it were in the hands of older people. The singing, announcements, offering, and sermon were given by children ranging in age from nine to fourteen. Little Miss Fern Hosick, twelve years old, delivered the message. She spoke twenty minutes on the subject, "An Open Door". Fern intends to study for the ministry after she finishes high school. Our juniors will have charge of another service soon.

Sr. Sue Williams of Ashton, Illinois, submitted to a very serious operation on May 23 at the hospital at Rochelle. She is doing as well as can be expected considering her advanced years. Let us remember this faithful one in prayer.

Bro. C. E. Lapp will, D. V., speak on Sunday, May 31, at the Adeline (Illinois) church, at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. All those living nearby are urged to attend. While Bro. Lapp is a young man with but a few months' experience, he is an earnest, forceful speaker and well worth hearing.

There will be no services at the Oregon (Illinois) church on Sunday evening, May 31, because of baccalaureate services.

Sr. Alice Crysler of Golden Rule Home is still in bed where she is recuperating from a recent heart attack.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Bert Sheets; Clarence Carpenter; Ira T. Ritenour; Mrs. Howard Moore; Mrs. Hannah Michaelson; G. W. Simpson; H. B. Hathaway; Ella Boyer; A. E. Renneker; Mrs. L. G. Weymouth; Joyce Chadbourne; Mrs. S. M. Harris; T. J. Stinnette; L. L. Leeper; H. S. Bell; Jim Paisley; Mrs. Marian Richards,

FROM AN ISOLATED ONE

I am here in Lancaster, Ohio, a city of about 18,000. I am isolated here. I am in the Lord's work. It is very slow in the beginning. I am working hard, but I know God is blessing me in my work. Pray for me that I may be strengthened and do much good here. Pray for me that I may be the means of leading a whole church who want me to preach for them in their revival services. It will mean much for us, the Church of God, to bring a church people, building and all, over to see and learn the truth. This place is located fourteen miles east of Lancaster. Pray for me that I may lead them over to truth.

Your sister in the faith,
Anna D. Springer,
Lancaster, Ohio, General Delivery.

WILLIAM F. DAVIS

William F. Davis was born in Licking County, Ohio, on October 18, 1861, and when a young boy he moved with his parents to Crawford County, Illinois. Later on he moved to Clark County, where, on May 7, 1887, he was united in marriage with Miss Emma Beeson. To this union one son was born, who died when eight years of age.

On November 23, 1919, Bro. Davis was baptized into Christ, from which time to the date of his death he was true to the Lord and His church, walking in faith and in the integrity of his heart.

He died at his home on May 11, 1931, in the seventieth year of his age, leaving surviving, of his immediate family, his wife, one brother, Chas. Davis, of Tomoca, Washington, and two sisters, Mrs. James Finney, of Casey, Illinois, and Mrs. W. L. English, of Inca, Illinois, with other more distant relatives and innumerable friends and neighbors with whom for many years he had held a very affectionate relationship.

Funeral services were held in "Restitution Church," of which Bro. Davis had been a faithful member during his religious lifetime. The church house was far too small, although it is a rather commodious one, to accommodate the large number that assembled to pay tribute to a kind and generous friend and neighbor. He now sleeps well, for he lived well.

L. E. Conner.

DALE THOMAS HEFFELFINGER

Dale Thomas Heffelfinger was born on May 21, 1922. He was the son of Algic and Treva Ellin Curtiss Heffelfinger and was of a family of eight children. His mother is a member of the Brush Creek (Ohio) Church of God.

Besides his father and mother, his brothers and sisters, he leaves one grandmother, two grandfathers, and other relatives and friends to mourn his death. The writer was not acquainted with Dale, but the deep grief of the family showed the love that was had for him in the home.

Services were held from the home and the Brush Creek church, and he was laid to rest in the cemetery by the church. The writer spoke words of comfort from Jer. 31:15-17.

Jas. A. Patrick.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.— 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

To Stop Paper.— It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

BASKET WEAVE

BEAUTIFUL GIFT BIBLES

For Graduation, Wedding, Birthday, or for other gifts, nothing surpasses a Beautiful Gift Bible or Testament.

Everybody appreciates one. Can be furnished in a wide range of Styles, Qualities, and Prices.

50 Cents to $15.00

Appropriate, artistically printed Presentation Sheet supplied on request.

Address

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

ANNUITY BONDS

There is no better way to preserve one's capital for use during life and at the same time dedicate it to the Master's use after one's death than by a National Bible Institution Annuity Bond.

Write NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois, for information.

Any Amount - Much or Little

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince (For cost of Postage)	32	.03	.12
--	----	-----	-----

BOOKS

Name	Pages	Each	Per 6
Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth,	480	.85	5.00
Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

PAUL'S FIRST LETTER TO TIMOTHY

By Lyman Booth

Now it is not in the least improbable that unforeseen circumstances might induce Timothy to leave Ephesus sooner than he or the Apostle had intended. The virulence of the persecutors might drive him away, or he might need some counsel and instruction in respect to the false teachers, or on some particulars which he had learned concerning the state of the church. Various circumstances might render it inexpedient for him to continue at Ephesus, according to the plan first formed.

On the other hand it is probable the Apostle wrote this epistle as soon as he arrived in Macedonia. And at that time he might fully purpose and confidently hope to come to Timothy at Ephesus, and yet be disappointed. Thus he had once and again purposed to return to Thessalonica, but "Satan hindered him" (1 Thess. 2:18), which gave him cause to change his plan in respect to going to Corinth, even after he had given some intimations of it (2 Cor. 1:15-18).

It may be that the Apostle, when he left Ephesus, expected that Timothy would abide there till he had accomplished his business in Macedonia and Achaia; and that he would be enabled to go to him at Ephesus, as he took his voyage to Jerusalem with the contributions to the churches. But having been induced by malicious designs of the Jews to go from Corinth through Macedonia, so much time elapsed, that he found it necessary to sail past Ephesus, lest he should not arrive at Jerusalem by the feast of Pentecost. This might disarrange one part of his plan; and the departure of Timothy from Ephesus would defeat another. As the difficulties seem to be less on this side than on the other, I favor, though with some diffidence, the ancient opinion and therefore write accordingly.

The history of the Acts of the Apostles implies that Timothy continued with the Apostle during his journey through Macedonia and his continuance at Corinth, and that he returned with him through Macedonia into Asia. But Timothy is not mentioned afterwards as accompanying the Apostle, either to Jerusalem, or in his subsequent imprisonment at Caesarea, or in his voyage to Rome. And it is probable that he abode in Asia, and going with the elders of Ephesus when they parted from the Apostle, he settled at that city for some years. But when four years or nearly had passed, it seems that he went to the Apostle at Rome and was imprisoned with him, but was soon set at liberty and sent to Philippi (Phil. 2:19; Heb. 13:23).

Having been trained under the Apostle's immediate care, he imbibed in an extraordinary degree his spirit and principles, and was peculiarly beloved by him. Having been suddenly driven from Ephesus, Paul left Timothy to settle the concerns of that church in the best manner he could, and wrote this epistle for his direction in doing so. Whether the conjecture of Timothy's return to Ephesus and residence there be well grounded, or not, these directions would not be in vain. For the substance of them would be equally applicable in any other church to which he might be sent, or in which he might have resided.

When the Apostle was liberated from his first imprisonment, he and Timothy revisited proconsular Asia, the scene of so many missionary efforts of Paul. Here Timothy was placed in charge of the church at Ephesus, a position of responsibility, peril, and difficulty. On leaving Asia Minor for Macedonia, the Apostle addressed this letter to him.

The Apostle wished to encourage Timothy amidst the difficulties of his position at Ephesus, owing to the licentiousness connected with the worship of Artemis (Diana) and the lax discipline and moral disorder which heretical teaching had brought with it. He desired also to give him some practical advice as to the way he should deal with the various persons he would meet in the capital city of Roman Asia, to lay down certain principles of church organization, and to aid him in his struggle with teachers like Hermaeneus, Philetus, and Alexander (1 Tim. 1:20; 2 Tim. 2:17), who were perverting the minds of the disciples and blending with the simplicity of the faith the subtleties of Greek philosophy, Jewish superstition, and wild Oriental speculations.

A summary of the book follows. After the greeting, Paul recalls the charge committed to Timothy, claiming his allegiance, and contrasts the truth with the false teachings of Judaisers (1). He then gives some rules for his guidance respecting the regulation of public worship generally, as regarding both men and women (2). He also specifies the qualifications of Christian ministers and the demeanor that should characterize their wives and families (3).

He then gives some special advice to Timothy himself, relative to conduct in the ministry (4); how he should conduct himself towards elders and communities of widows, both old and young (5:1-16); how presbyters should be maintained and offenders punished (5:17-25); how slaves should behave toward their masters (6:1, 2). He then reverts to Timothy's relationship towards the heretical teachers (6:3-10); adjures him to stand steadfast himself (6:11-16); to remind the rich of their duties in respect to almsgiving (6:17-19); and diligently guard the faith committed to his trust against all heretical teachers (6:20, 21).

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in making final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 2, 1931

NUMBER 35

FUNDAMENTALS OF FAITH

By Paul M. Hatch

IN PRESENTING this theme of fundamentals, the main thought to be maintained in the mind is the fact that we are dealing with the church and not with patriarchal promises and Mosaic law. The fundamentals of these two periods are in part fundamentals of course of the church, but there are some fundamental truths and provisions peculiar to the church which no other dispensation was required to believe, as requisite provision. In a way, the patriarchal and antediluvian belief and practice are not unlike the church belief and practice, but they were not so pronounced as we now recognize them.

Faith was exemplary in them as well as in us, and faith also was commendable in those under the law dispensation. Jesus says that to those who have been given much, much will be required. This applies especially to the church. For we of this dispensation have the full testimony of God, while those under the law and the patriarchs had partial revelation of God's truth. So that from the church more faith and works are required, for we have been given more, in fact, all.

Considering the church as an institution and working for the Omnipotent is not unlike any enterprise that is successfully carried on. All concerns must have their fundamental rules and regulations to successfully impress those whom they are trying to attract. So the church also has its fundamentals that carry it on.

Most enterprises have a purpose in view to become well established and to maintain existence. So is the church in existence because of some definite purpose. It is one of the oldest enterprises, and its nineteen hundred years of existence are proof enough that it should be carried on, until its full mission is accomplished.

There are two main fundamental truths that the whole church structure stands upon, and if either of those two are false then the church is an institution of false teaching, false hope, and false endeavor, no matter how long it stands.

The first and foremost of these two is the assertion that Jesus is the Son of God. That truth should always come foremost in the mind of the Christian worker, and ever a reverence paid to that name, because it is named above every name, both in this world and the one to come. Eph. 1:20. There should also be a humble bowing to its grandeur, because He is the Son of the Most High.

Because of the fact of sonship in the flesh of weakness and humility, God, through the obedience of that noble Son, raised Him to the position of being recognized as the Son of God with power, by His resurrection from the dead.

In the Philippian letter, second chapter, we have the statement that because Christ became obedient to the mandate of the Father in flesh of weakness, He received thereby exaltation above every name, in all three realms of the Father's universal dominion—heaven, earth, and under the earth. This exaltation resulted in the Son of His Power by the resurrection from the dead. Rom. 1:4.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead is the second great fundamental truth which must be accepted. For had it not been for His resurrection, regardless of the fact that He was the Son of God, all hope would have been lost and all preaching, vain. This is very forcibly brought out by the Apostle Paul in his instruction to the Corinthians, when he became cognizant that there were some in the church at that place who disbelieved in a resurrection. So in the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians, Paul states that Christ's resurrection was accounted for by numerous witnesses, including himself, who had seen the Lord before due time. In truth, it was the fact of resurrection that had brought Paul his ministry, and so he had preached.

He says, "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."

Characteristic of Paul, he flashes to the other side with

(Continued on page 551)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."— Second Timothy 4:7, 8.

SOLDIERS OF CHRIST

THOU therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."—2 Tim. 2:3. Speaking of the position of the soldier, Paul continues the above thought a verse further by saying, "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier."

There are soldiers many. Those who fight in a national campaign for national honors and national reward, if they are true patriots of their respective countries, release themselves from any and every entanglement in private life and give themselves wholly to the service of the country which they are serving. Paul uses this to emphasize how truly and completely the Christian soldier, who gives himself to follow Christ, "the captain of our salvation", should release himself from every personal or private ambition, that he may devote himself to his Captain.

This does not infer that a soldier of Christ should not keep himself in perfect physical fitness and readiness. Indeed, that is exactly what a true soldier should do. But that fitness should be for better service to the Master, not for better service to self.

Soldiers are true partners with their captains and generals. The victory belongs to the private, as well as to the officer. So with Christ. He who is Christ's true servant, true soldier, is laboring for the great world-wide everlasting victory unto which Christ, our Captain, under God's direction, is leading His every soldier.

The Christian soldier's battles are as real, as definite, as are those of any uniformed man following the nation's colors. Like the soldiers of a standing army, the soldiers of Christ should give their whole lives to the cause. Theirs is the position of standing soldiers for Christ.

MEMORIAL

THROUGHOUT the country memorial decorations and services are being observed in behalf of the nation's soldiers, past and present. Many words of eulogy are said; many events of past history are rehearsed, and the people as a whole are brought to a reconsideration of the nation, its position, its future.

How truly advantageous it would be if the church of Jesus Christ would set aside a day for similar memorial and consideration of Christ and Christianity. If the works and words of a Washington, or a Lincoln, or a Grant are sufficient to thrill following generations with patriotism, surely the works of a Paul, of a Peter, of a Luther are ample to thrill unto Christian devotion and ideal all succeeding generations.

If the ideals of an America, of a Canada, of an England are worthy the highest aspirations, the noblest devotions, the supreme sacrifice of one of its patriotic citizens, surely the ideals of Christianity, with its superiority above any ideal that human mind can imagine, are doubly worthy of the devotion, the Christian patriotism, and the supreme sacrifice of every person of the Adam family.

Let us not hesitate to memorialize the works and the achievements of God's true and devoted soldiers who have fallen. Let us remember that it is impossible to extol too greatly, to exalt too highly, to sacrifice too much for Christ and the great Christian achievement unto which He is leading.

OUR PRINTED BIBLE

FEW of us understand the difficulties of the translators in translating the Bible from its original Hebrew and Greek into modern languages. These difficulties are particularly great in the matter of punctuation and capitalization. For illustration attention is directed to the use or non-use of capitals in spelling the words, spirit, ghost, holy spirit and holy ghost.

Writing on this subject, E. W. Bullinger in his book, The Giver and His Gifts, after calling attention to this difficulty, cites some fourteen recognized translators of the Bible. He includes Griesbach, Tischendorf, Alford, the Revised Version, and others. He then continues, Page 4, relative to these particular words:

"These editors all differ among themselves as to the use of capital letters. They have used them according to their best judgment; but still it is their own judgment, and is, therefore a matter of interpretation rather than of transcription."

In another paragraph he writes:

"Since the original edition of the authorized version in 1611, many editions have been printed by the three great presses (Oxford, Cambridge and London); and in these great modifications have been made and changes have been introduced from time to time, especially in the Cambridge editions of 1629 and 1638."

All this with reference to the capitalization of the words, spirit and holy spirit.

Suffice it to say that there is nothing in the Greek Text to indicate when there should be capital letters. The editors, such as above referred to, have used their own best judgment in capitalizing "spirit", or spelling it with small letters, and in doing so they have in every instance endeavored to interpret when they respectively thought that either of these words referred to a person, rather than to an element.

There are thousands of texts in the Bible where the word, spirit, unmistakably refers to an element issued forth from God, the fountain source of all spirit. The editors and translators have tried to indicate by capitals when they thought that the word, spirit, stands for a person rather than for an element.

This whole subject is entitled to prayerful and prolonged study. In Acts 1:5 the text reads, "For John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence." The capital letters here for "Holy Ghost" are intended to convey the thought that the Holy Ghost is a person. The fore part of the verse speaks of a baptism with water. "Water" is in the dative case. There is no preposition here in the Greek. The dative case indicates that water is the element in which or with which John immersed.

The same is true of "spirit" (Ghost) in this text. It is in the dative case. However a preposition precedes this word, pneumati, which preposition is en, meaning "in" and which is never used excepting to modify a noun in the dative case. If water was the element in which John immersed, then "spirit", having the same grammatical usage in the sentence, is the element which Christ used when He would immerse in spirit. The two clauses are in contrast as to the elements used: water for one, spirit for the other.

This is but one example cited to call attention to the point that is here being made. "Ghost" is spelled with a capital "G" ("S" in Revised Version) as though referring to God. The context does not allow of this meaning.

Regarding "spirit" referring to a person, Bullinger, in the same volume, The Giver and His Gifts, quotes one Dr. Candlish as follows:

"The Spirit of God is not in his (Paul's) view an independent personality; that is not implied in the doctrine of the personality of the Spirit; but, as the spirit of a man is to man, so, according to Paul, the Spirit of God is to God; in one sense the same, but in another sense distinct. The principle of the Christian life is not a mere impersonal power, but God Himself in a mysterious way, dwelling and working in the soul. But it is God working in man to lead him to God, as He is above him; hence the Spirit of God that works in him must be distinguished from God, yet not as a different being; but just as the spirit or mind of a man may be distinguished from the man, and may be said to know the things of a man (1 Cor. 2:10-16)."—The Work of the Holy Spirit.

It is very important that the student of God should be able to rightly grasp this great Bible theme. Correct interpretation of many Bible texts depends upon the meaning and usage of the word, spirit. Laying off all prejudice and all preconceived ideas, let each one study that he may discover God's intended thought and teaching, remembering that while the translators have correctly used the word, spirit, in translation, they may in some instances have misinterpreted the usage of the word by capitalizing it, or by omitting capitalization.

OUR TALENTS

By Ednah Cooper

WE ALL have talents given to us by God. Sometimes they aren't realized for years, but they are there just the same.

In Matthew 25:14-30 is given the parable of the talents. A man traveled into a far country, but before he left he called all of his servants to him and divided his goods among them. He gave one five talents, another, two, and another, one.

After a long time he returned. The servant to whom he had given five talents had gained five more. The one he had given two talents also had gained two more. But the servant to whom he had given but one talent had hidden it in a napkin and buried it.

To those who had increased their talents he gave rulership of many things, and to the one that hid his talent, destruction. We read in the twenty-ninth verse: "For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

Let us consider the church body in view of its talents. Every member is needed to complete the body of Christ. In 1 Corinthians 12, we read how each member in our own bodies is needed in order for all the other members to do their work well.

From the twenty-seventh verse to the end of the chapter we read of the church body: "Now ye are the body of Christ and members in particular. And God hath set some in the church first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues. Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of mira-

(Continued on page 554)

ONLY JESUS

Days there are that seem so drear and lonely;
 Friends don't understand and foes assail;
 When stripped of every prop 'tis Jesus only,
 And that strong arm of His that cannot fail.

His purpose is to teach me not to borrow
 From unbelief a staff on which to lean;
 He'll solve for me the mystery of tomorrow,
 And at the crucial moment intervene.

In life's vicissitudes it matters never
 Which way the winds may blow or leaves may fall;
 The sovereign hand that ruleth, changeth never—
 Christ is my light, my hope, my joy, my all.
 —Selected.

CHRIST THE CENTRAL OBJECT OF PROPHECY

(Continued from last week)

AN ANALYSIS of the prophecies from Moses to Malachi, reveals the fact that they speak of four or five different features of the person and work of the Messiah as one may be pleased to classify them.

They include predictions concerning His nature. His human nature is clearly indicated in those earlier predictions, which speak of Him as the seed of the woman and the seed of Abraham, but no less clearly in the later utterances, which tell of His physical sufferings, which of course could not have been predicted of one who was not man.

These predictions refer not only to His nature, but to the precise time of His birth. The sceptre was not to depart from Judah nor the lawgiver from between his feet until Shiloh come. But the sceptre did depart from Judah, and the lawgiver from between his feet at the destruction of Jerusalem and the dismemberment of the Jewish state by the Romans in the seventieth year of the Christian era. If therefore, the Messiah had not come prior to that time, He would never come. Singular fatuity, is it not, which prevents Israel after the flesh from seeing this today, and recognizing in Jesus their Messiah? Daniel's prophecy as to time was even more literal. There is some doubt as to the precise date from which the calculation as to Daniel's seventy weeks ought to commence. But the greatest difference is only ten years, and the most probable date causes the prophecy to coincide precisely with the history of Jesus Christ.

There are the predictions regarding the circumstances of the Messiah's earthly history. Micah, for example, names the very town in which He should be born, seven hundred years or so before the event transpires. He writes: "And thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come who is to be ruler in Israel" (5:2). Jeremiah particularly denominates Him as of the family of David. Malachi tells of John the Baptist, and so does Isaiah.

Zechariah even speaks of His being sold for thirty pieces of silver and the use to which the money was afterwards applied in the purchase of a potter's field. The casting of lots upon His garments is foretold, the piercing of His side by the soldiers, the vinegar given Him to drink, the words He uttered upon the cross, the conduct of the people who beheld Him there, and even the incident of His obtaining a tomb in the garden of Joseph of Arimathea (Zech. 11:12, 13; 12:10; 13:6, 7; 14:4)!

Finally, we perceive that His characteristics and official work are fourfold. He was to be a King and Conqueror of universal empire, and yet He was to be despised and rejected of men, both of which characteristics we have seen fulfilled in Jesus Christ, and in none other. He was to be a light to lighten the Gentiles, and under His administration the moral condition of the whole earth was to be changed, both of which characteristics also we have seen verified in Jesus Christ.

But especially was His death to be a substitute, that is, for the eternal death of those who should believe in Him. It is Isaiah who especially dwells upon this characteristic, telling us in the fifty-third chapter how He, the Messiah, "hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows." And though He did no violence, and neither was any deceit found in His mouth, yet it pleased the Lord to bruise Him. But "he was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." This truth, if it did not find its gracious and wondrous fulfillment in Jesus of Nazareth, must convict that holy and blessed One of the greatest blasphemy, for He allowed Himself to be pointed to as "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." He also spoke of Himself as a ransom for many (Matt. 20:28); and testified that He was the Good Shepherd, who laid down His life for the sheep (John 10:11)!

It is upon this last thought, the prophetic testimony to Christ's sacrificial death upon the cross, that Peter lays the greatest stress in his address to Cornelius, when he says: "To him give all the prophets witness that through his name whosoever believeth in him should receive remission of sins."

The Apostle does not mean to say that all the prophets testified to this in so many words, but only that it was involved or implied in all they testified about Christ. Neither does he intend to teach that this was all they testified about Him, but only that it was the germ, the central truth of all, certainly the most important and the most appropriate to be presented to Cornelius at that time.

Let us analyze the statement, for it is what Martin Luther would call a "little gospel" in itself.

Here is embodied, for example, the only means of salvation, namely, through the name of Jesus, which means Savior in itself, a Savior from sin, and includes all that He is in His divine person and all that He has done.

(Continued on page 552)

THE POWER OF GOLD

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

IS THERE anything that is more interesting in the eyes of the people of this present world system than gold? When some folks see it, they open their eyes, and many are eager to handle it because they know that to have gold is to have power, and this is what carnal man wants. Among some people it gives a great sense of easiness to have gold, and the opposite is often true in those who do not have it. This is partly due to the fact that it is so hard to get at present and because it takes so much of it or its equivalent to live in these days.

It has long been said that when times are prosperous, there is considerable gold in circulation. Hence the amount of gold in circulation indicates the condition of our times. There is just as much gold in times of economic crises as at other times, but where is it? That is a question that may mean woe to some in the future. But we thank God that it will not always be so scarce nor so valuable, for the Bible tells us that when the kingdom of heaven is established, it will be so common that one of the streets of the Holy City will be made of it. Read Revelation 21:21.

Gold is a precious metal now, but it is a material substance that will have served its greatest purpose in this present materialistic age. At the time when the Gentile period first began, when Babylon was at its height and when Nebuchadnezzar reigned, gold was then such a common substance that most of the temples and other public buildings had images made of gold at the approaches to these buildings. Of course these were an abomination to God, who ordered them done away with in all the Christian temples.

Dealing in material substances only, tends to make one hard and callous. And in order to be a Christian, we need the divine influence even more than we need gold. Many who have accumulated much gold may be paupers in the coming judgment. Read Isaiah 2:19-21. Neither silver nor gold will be able to deliver us, for we need the fellowship of the God of the Bible to mellow us and to show us a way out of the present crisis. Gold should only be used as a means to a good end.

The writer lived at one time at a large power plant that ran the gold refineries and smelters of a mining company. It was located high up in the mountains, at an altitude of over eleven thousand feet, in a country most marvelously blessed by nature. But it was sad to find that the finer characteristics were lacking in the people who lived there.

The power house was situated at the head of a dangerous overhanging precipice, over which was a falls of 280 feet. To get to this place we had to face many dangers, for we were pulled up from the smelter below in a tram, which ran on an inch iron cable. The motor at the power house did the work. The ride took us over the tops of the tallest pine trees to the falls above. During the summer it was reached in a round about way by burros, which carried packs on their backs. Few however risked the dangerous ride during the winter months.

Below at the smelter one saw a very different scene, for it was usually a place of great activity. Here the gold was washed, melted, and refined. Around the smelter were many shacks, where the poor workmen lived with their families. Tragedies often occurred there, where the men worked very hard to keep the wolf from the door, yet seldom saw the gold in the shape of money. But this is only a type of similar conditions existing elsewhere, some better, some worse. It is strange what men will do to get gold.

Years have now passed by, and conditions have changed from time to time. Whole towns in mining districts have been abandoned in places, and the shifting of the population in the past two decades has been to the larger cities and industrial centers. How tragic it all seems, as we think of life's short duration and especially of the conditions that we have seen and are seeing in these times when we are, perhaps, in the grip of the world's greatest economic crisis, which will no doubt even get worse. There should be plenty of this world's goods for all, and at present there seems to be. But it is very unequally distributed, until it would seem that unless conditions were speedily remedied, thousands may perish because of not having the necessaries of life. Alas, proud man has ruled unwisely, and we thank God that man's day is coming to an abrupt close. God's judgments will soon fall upon those who are not sheltered in the Ark of Safety, and they will be righteous judgments. Revelation 16:7.

A writer in the Reader's Digest for May tells us that there is something seriously wrong with our present economic system, when grain is rotting in one part of the world, while stomachs are starving in other places. It is sad that it has taken these worldly-wise men such a long time to see the situation as it is, and so late in the day, when the whole structure is about to totter. Some are even telling us now that it is our present gold standard that is at fault.

Another writer tells us that many of our financial leaders saw as early as 1927 the outcome of business conditions and that it would lead to a great crash, as it did in 1929. They also saw, it was reported, that the unemployment situation was then looming up as a result of such a crash coming. But it was agreed among them that they would ignore the situation as it was and as they saw it coming, and that they would keep up the cry of "prosperity". And we can well see how popular this cry has become among the worldly-wise, even when disaster seems to be staring them in the face. It is surprising to learn what some people will do to keep up appearances.

Yes, it is strange what men will do to get gold, and also what they will do with it after they get it. In the Literary Digest for December 27, 1930, there appeared an article on "France's Fortress for Gold". Below are some facts taken from notes on the article.

It runs like this: "They are building new vaults for the banks of France. The first one is called the approach vault and is guarded by monstrous steel and concrete doors, and revolving walls, shafts and elevators. The passages into the vaults are cut through solid rock and lined with chrome steel plates two feet thick. One is struck with awe in approaching this Golconda of wealth beyond human imagination. The store of gold held here at present by the Bank of France is 411,040,219 pounds sterling. For three years shifts of workmen have been busy night and day, hewing out of the solid rock beneath the bank, a vast underground chamber, measuring about two and a half acres in extent—over three hundred feet each way.

“Above this chamber are about thirty-six feet of solid rock, weighing thousands of tons. The approach to this vault is curious, for the doors are such that they cannot be blown up. They are two feet thick and made of chrome steel that will resist the most powerful blowpipe. The safe experts say that were the keys of this and other doors lost, it would take two months to replace them. Most of the massive doors, however, revolve by electricity from within. Not a sound can be heard of the outside traffic or other noises, but there are strange throbbings and rhythmic hums of hidden machinery within.” None of the doors can be opened from the outside. The article tells of a huge refrigerator, where large stores of goods are kept, and of electric kitchen ranges as big as those in palatial hotels. There are ingenious ventilating systems to keep the air pure and free from dampness. The water supply is siphoned from an artesian well secreted deeply beneath the foundation.

The reason for this secrecy is quite evident. The fact that money must be so carefully guarded and protected now shows the desperate conditions that prevail, as well as the great antagonism that exists between the rich and the poor.

God has been silent these many years, but the Bible tells us that the time will come when He will save the children of the needy and break in pieces the oppressor. For that time we are waiting.

THE biblical book of Numbers was so called because its opening chapters narrate the numbering of the people who came out of Egypt.—S. E. H.

GENIUS

GENIUS is only the power of making continuous effort. The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it; so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it. How many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort, a little more patience, would have achieved success. As the tide goes clear out, so it comes clear in. In business sometimes, prospects may seem darkest, when really they are on the turn. A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed hopeless failure may turn to glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.—Selected.

THE SECOND EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY

By Lyman Booth

THE second epistle to Timothy was written from Rome during the Apostle's second imprisonment. Soon after his release from his first imprisonment, Paul was re-arrested through the restless activity of his enemies and sent to Rome to be tried for his life. This imprisonment was much more severe than the former. Not only was he chained to a soldier, but he was treated as a malefactor (2 Tim. 2:9), and after a while was put upon trial.

He was evidently a prisoner at Rome when he wrote this epistle; but some suppose it was written during his first imprisonment. Others are of the opinion that it was written when he was imprisoned the second time at Rome, and not long before he suffered martyrdom. This seems to be by far the most satisfactory opinion. These words, “I am ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand” (4:6), would indicate it was his last epistle, and it seems to be the rational conclusion. For he says expressly, “I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my dissolution is instant. I have finished my course”. Whereas he not only expected to be delivered from his first bonds, but he expressly says, “I know that I shall abide”, etc.

In his first bonds he was at liberty “in his own hired house”. But in his second he was not at any liberty at all, being chained to a Roman soldier, so that his friend, Onesiphorus, was forced to “inquire more diligently after him, that he might find him out.” He said again, “Many of the brethren being encouraged by my bonds, were bold to speak the word without fear.” (Phil. 1:14.) Here “all men forsake” him.

Timothy was with Paul when he wrote to the Colossians, the Philippians, Philemon, and the Hebrews (Phil. 1:1; Col. 1:1; Philemon 1; Heb. 13:23). Mark was with him also and joined in saluting the Colossians, but both were absent when this epistle was written. If it should be argued that they came to him before he wrote other epistles, what can be said of Demas? For he was with the Apostle when he wrote to the Colossians, but absent when he wrote this epistle (4:10; Col. 4:14).

The supposition that Timothy and Mark had come to Paul before he wrote the other epistles implies that this was written a considerable time before those. But the supposition that Demas had repented and returned to the Apostle, when he wrote to the Colossians, implies that this was written some time after. Yet these contrary suppositions must both be admitted to support the opinion that this epistle was written during the Apostle's first imprisonment.

The language would indicate that the Apostle considered himself as one who had finished his ministerial labors, and, after a severe imprisonment, was about to close his ministry by martyrdom (1:15-18; 4:5-9). It is also questioned where Timothy was when the Apostle wrote to him.

The object of the epistle was, no doubt, to animate Timothy to endure persecution with courage and constancy; to warn him and others against false teachers and corrupt professors of Christianity, the increase of whom the Apostle predicted in the most energetical terms; and to direct and animate him in fulfilling his ministry and in following after holiness.

The Apostle had been for some time in close confinement in Rome at the mercy of a cruel and unfeeling tyrant. He had been deserted by his friends in his greatest extremity, and had nothing before him but the certain prospect of being called to suffer death in the same cause in which he had spent his life. In this situation how does he behave? Does he seem to look back with concern upon his past conduct, or to regret the sacrifice he had made of his worldly interests? Can we discover anything that betrays a secret consciousness of guilt, or even a slight suspicion of the weakness of his cause? Upon the contrary, he expresses an entire satisfaction in reflecting on the past, and recommends his beloved pupil to follow his example in maintaining a glorious cause, even at the jeopardy of his life.

Throughout the epistle he appears to have felt a strong conviction of the truth of the principles he had embraced; he glories in the sufferings he had endured in support of them, triumphing in the full assurance of being approved by his Master and of receiving at His hands a crown of everlasting life.

When he was brought to trial, no friend or advocate stood by him to cheer or encourage him (2 Tim. 4:16). Alone and unaided he pleaded his own cause and was "delivered out of the mouth of the lion" (4:17). Remanded back to his dungeon to await his second trial, and convinced that his death was at hand, the Apostle longed for the society of Timothy, and he resolved to write to him for the last time, to bid him come to him with all speed and receive his parting injunctions before the winter storms had closed the Mediterranean (4:21).

In this epistle after greeting and thanksgiving (1:1-5), Paul exhorts "his own son" to steadfastness in the gospel (1:6-15). He also urges upon him certain pastoral duties for his conduct (2:14-26), and warns him against false teachers (3:1-17). He exhorts him with all possible solemnity to be faithful to the duties of his office (4:1-8). He requests him to come quickly, describes his loneliness and desertion, and sends his last salutations to many dear friends (4:9-22). This epistle furnishes a noble view of the comfort and consolation found in Christian faith, in the midst of suffering and face to face with death.

How sweet and gracious, even in common speech,
Is that fine sense which men call courtesy!
Wholesome as air and genial as the light,
Welcome in every clime as breath of flowers,
It transmutes aliens into trusting friends,
And gives its owner passport round the globe.

—James T. Fields.

FUNDAMENTALS OF FAITH

(Continued from front page)

unbounded zeal, in a refutation of the unbelieving brethren. He brings out the great fact of the resurrection of Jesus, and he shows that because He is raised, the hope of resurrection to life springs to the eternal anticipation of all that have believed.

These are Christian fundamentals of faith and must be believed in order for one to come into favor of the Father. The reason why Christ was resurrected from the dead probably is an important fundamental of faith also. Upon this fact pivot the power of God and the purity and righteousness of His Son, in contrast to the impotency of man. In it are declared the power, goodness, and omnipotence of the Father, the work and faith of the Son, the incapacity and incapability of man to lastingly benefit himself. Man has to come to the true Source of strength, life, and beneficence.

This coming in faith is manifested in work, and so we have what may be called the fundamentals of practice, which are divided into preaching, prayer, and works.

After the preliminary steps into the service of Christ, which are belief, repentance, and baptism, have been taken, then the fundamentals of practice should begin.

Preaching: This is done through word of mouth mainly and by deed of Christian teaching. The disciples were commissioned to go into all the world and proclaim the gospel of salvation through Christ. But they had to have Christ represented in them before full persuasion would be effective.

Prayer: This is a sadly neglected and misunderstood subject by a great many Christians, but it is a vital fundamental for those consecrated to the Father and Son. Without prayer in the service, that service is too often without power of the proper sort. One who does not offer prayer to the Father, expressing thankfulness, asking forgiveness, and help, and consolation, petitioning for daily needs and necessary strength, asking blessing upon those needing such, is lacking in confidence in Him, and is giving himself over to trust in the arm of flesh to supply all needs. God is willing to work if man will only let Him. He is standing ready to supply all needs, in whatever way necessary. The prayer of faith should be strongly encouraged.

Works: These are entirely in contrast to the Mosaic law. The law was a work of retaliation for offenses, which worked death to the individual. It was eye for eye, tooth for tooth, life for life. The new law that Christ instituted was forgiveness of all offenses, beneficence to friend and enemy alike, personal purity on an exalted plane. These and many more were recited to the Jewish believers.

To the Gentiles, however, who were converts from idolatry, only four provisions were made in the beginning to wean them from the debasing observances of idol worship. These were abstinence from pollution of idols and fornication, from things strangled and from blood.

If we cherish and produce these Christian requisites, then we shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the Lord.

THE JEWS

By Julia P. Creswell

How many coldly pass them by,
Or, mayhap, idly sneer,
But deep emotions throng my heart
When Israel's sons appear:
For down the vale of distant time,
My busy fancy flies,
When Salem's warlike sons went forth
To deeds of high emprise.

The land of beauty and of song,
Unrivaled Palestine!
Where Sharon's rose burst into bloom,
And honey blent with wine.
What does not man owe to her,
When, like an amulet,
She hung upon the pagan world
A diamond cased in jet?

The very laws that guide our feet,
Through every blooming zone,
Were in her sacred courts preserved
On blocks of solid stone.
Nor is the Lion Judah dead;
His march is stately yet,
And many a star of beauty beams,
In Israel's coronet.

Her dark-eyed daughters still are fair,
Her sons are stalwart still;
Their arms stretch forth for every prize,
Nerved with an iron will.
Their names are written proud and high,
In music and in art;
And Fame no wide arena boasts,
Where they bear not a part.

Through forums and through senate halls
Their silvery accents roll;
And with Isaiah's burning fire
Enchant the listening soul.
And Judah seems to bear aloft
Aladdin's wondrous lamp,
While earth, responsive, yields her gems,
Where Judah's exiles tramp.

Although they roam without a land,
From Salem darkly hurled,
Her princes rule, with magic hand,
The coffers of the world.
They are a power; the Gentiles feel,
In every throbbing core,
The strange influence of that tribe
Which roams creation o'er.

Imperial race! thy splendors gild
The glimmering dawn of Time,
When earth lay blushing in the arms
Of Eden's golden prime.
And brighter yet the flames shall rise
Where Salem's altar stood,
Time's last great act shall charm the world,
In our Redeemer's Word.

CHRIST THE CENTRAL OBJECT OF PROPHECY

(Continued from page 548)

Here is in the second place, the universality of the offer of this salvation, for whosoever believeth in Him shall be saved.

Here is in the third place, the condition of salvation, whosoever believeth in Him, not whosoever believeth in any doctrine concerning Him, or whosoever believeth merely what He says, but believing, trusting, relying upon Him, as the one supreme object of confidence and hope.

Here is in the fourth place, the nature of salvation, which is the remission of sins, not merely the forgiveness of sins, that is, not merely the remission of the future penalty for sin, but the remission of the sin itself, the cleansing from all unrighteousness.

But what made this particular truth about Jesus Christ so important and so appropriate to be presented to the Gentile centurion at this time?

Who was this centurion? He was as to his character a moral man, a religious man, a kind and benevolent man. He was a man who prayed to God always, and gave much alms to the people. But he was not a saved man for all that. And what is more, he was conscious of that fact. He knew that everything was not right between him and God. He knew that there was guilt upon his soul. He was seeking light upon the way to get right with God, and it was an evidence of God's condescending grace to him that Peter had been sent to bring that light, and to tell him words whereby he might be saved.

The essence of Peter's message was the words, "To him," that is, to Jesus Christ, "give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins."

Cornelius believed this truth. He received it upon the spot. He simply and gladly received it, and soon came into the joyful consciousness that God had granted unto him as well as to his Jewish teacher, "repentance unto life."

Am I addressing some just now who are in Cornelius' case? Am I addressing some who are moral people, religious people, benevolent people, who nevertheless are haunted and justly so, by the sense that all is not right between them and God? Do they realize that there is guilt upon them, and are they anxious to be delivered? It is my duty and my privilege to present this same Savior to them—and there is none other that can meet their case—and to urge them to receive Him as simply and as gladly as Cornelius did, promising them the same result. It is possible that they may not come into the joyful consciousness of their remission as promptly as Cornelius did, but the remission will be theirs on their acceptance of the Savior whether they are conscious of it or not. The fact is based upon the unchanged and unchanging Word of God, and not upon any one's experience of it.

But am I addressing some who are like Cornelius in the first particular and not the second? Are they moral, religious, benevolent, and are they satisfied with that? Have they no longing for anything more than that? No consciousness of sin, no feeling that they need a Savior? It is still my duty to press this truth upon them.

If to Christ give all the prophets witness that through His name whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins, then remission of sins must be a very essential matter for any man, the most essential which he can be called upon to consider; more essential than his morality, his religiousness, or his benevolence.

If to Christ give all the prophets witness that through His name whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins, then this essentiality cannot be received through their morality, or their religiousness, or their benevolence, for these, good or desirable as they may be in themselves, are not His name.

If to Christ give all the prophets witness that through His name whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins, then their witness is worthy of belief. It is not one prophet but all the prophets. It is not all the prophets living in one particular age, but in all the ages. It is not all the prophets, in all the ages witnessing to different things, but to one thing—a fact in itself which proves their witness to be not the conception of any human minds, but the conception of one divine mind—God.

One night some years ago, I was crossing Boston Harbor on a ferry boat in a dense fog; so dense that those of us on the forward deck could not see a single object beyond it. Fog horns were blowing, whistles screaming, bells ringing all around us, and some of them apparently at our very elbow.

Why were they thus breaking silence, perpetually breaking it; not confusedly but regularly, systematically, one after the other in regular order? It was to warn our pilot that danger was near, and to indicate the directions in which he should guard against it.

And there was great necessity for doing so. Twice we narrowly escaped collision. Once we came so close upon a dredging machine that the quiet conversation of the men on board could be distinctly heard; and once we came "head on" against a bulk head so that we could touch it with our hands.

By and by, however, we recognized the far off tinkling of a bell, which we knew to be the particular signal sounding out from the slip where our boat belonged. We backed water until it seemed as if we were recrossing to the opposite shore again; then we turned the rudder southward, and at length, still guided in the darkness only by the bell, we made another turn northwesterly. Then we saw a light penetrating the gloom from our landing place. All were relieved by that beacon, and we made for it and soon found ourselves with grateful hearts on terra firma.

My dear friends, some of you who are following these words are spiritually like the passengers on that ferry boat. The witness of the prophets to Jesus Christ concerning the remission of sins and which have been heard in all ages, are just so many whistles, so many bells, so many fog horns warning of extreme peril in the pursuance of a course in sin.

Stop the engine for a while. Listen if there be not a voice among them all that is meant for you. Retrace your way. Turn the rudder of your life in the right direction. Head your prow for the light which then will manifest itself. Steer by that Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world, and ere long you will have the relief and joy of anchorage in Christ.

It is only thus that you can understand the meaning of the first advent of Jesus Christ, or look forward with any hope to that second advent, which is as certainly to come, and to come quickly, bringing either its judgment or its reward.—By Rev. James M. Gray, D. D.

ASHAMED OF THE GOSPEL?

By C. E. Lapp

MANY times we associate with people who profess to be Christians, and yet when they are out of their own sphere, or with a crowd not professing Christianity, they act as if they were ashamed to be called Christians and ashamed of the stand which they have taken.

In the New Testament we find a man who was not ashamed of the gospel on any occasion. He was a man who had felt its saving power and who realized full well that it was only because of this gospel of Christ that he was what he was.

Paul, the Apostle, writes in Romans 1:16: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek." There certainly must have been a good reason for making such a statement, and if we look back over Paul's life, I am sure we can better understand why he spoke as he did.

We remember that Paul was a very strict Pharisee and one who was devout in trying to keep the exact letter of the law. We can understand in a measure then why he was so bitterly opposed to Christians and their doctrine. Paul thought that righteousness came through observance of the law, and when Christ taught that righteousness came only through faith in Him, Paul naturally turned against Him and His followers.

Paul had been persecuting the Christians and putting them to death. One day as he and some of his associates were on their way to Damascus to put Christians in chains, he was struck to the ground and blinded by a great light from heaven. A voice also said, "Saul, Saul why persecutest thou me?"

Saul, trembling and astonished, said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And Christ answered and told him to go into Damascus, and then it would be told him what he should do.

After three days Paul received the holy spirit, and his sight was restored. And from that day forward, he went about teaching and preaching the gospel of salvation by faith in Jesus Christ, not by works or the keeping of the old law.

Paul made three missionary tours over into Asia Minor and into Macedonia and then finally to Rome, where he made the supreme sacrifice by giving his life for the gospel.

It was on the first journey he made that the Jews tried to kill him. They took him outside the city and stoned him, leaving him for dead. Why? Because Paul was a witness in his own life of the saving grace and love which prompted him to turn from the law. He realized that man could not be saved by his own works but must be saved by a righteousness not his own.

He sensed the truthfulness of Ephesians 2:8, 9, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God. Not of works, lest any man should boast."

Men and women today are trying their very best to obtain salvation through their good works. Not a day passes but it may be seen that we are all trusting ourselves more than we should. How do we know? Because of our constant failures to live as we should; because of the fact that we are sometimes ashamed of the gospel; and because we seldom if ever speak to another about his salvation.

May we each and every one become converted from our old carnal ways and preach the gospel of Christ, not only by word but by our lives.

OUR TALENTS

(Continued from page 547)

cles? Have all gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret? But covet earnestly the best gifts: and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way."

By this scripture we see each one is given a separate talent. Some are needed in musical circles; others are good teachers; some can lead. The presence of each member is an inspiration to those who are at the head of the church. Without an audience to listen to it, the best sermon would bring no results. Several ministers have been known to say it is much easier to talk to a house full of people than to a few.

Once I heard a church member remark that if he had any talent it had never been made known to him. He never realized that had he not been present at services, his pew would have been empty.

Many times jealousy arises in churches because of the fact that some seem to always be leaders or teachers. One reason for this might be because someone had failed to increase his talent. Like the servant in the parable, he had hidden it away.

In Romans 12:4, 5 we read: "For we have many members in one body and all members have not the same office; so we being many are one body in Christ and every one members one of another." This explains the fact that it takes every member of the church, no matter how insignificant he may feel himself to be, to make up the entire body.

In that same chapter we are told to improve our talents, whatever they may be, and finally to "be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."

May we as the good servants in the parable increase our talents, so that at Christ's coming He may say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

"A SEEKING sinner will find a seeking Savior."

TRIFLING WITH SIN

IF IT were given to us to unfold the pages of those books which shall be opened when "God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing", and to trace the record of the downfall of many ruined souls, we should find that the beginning of the end, the first step that led to the last, the entering gateway to the road to death was the careless trifling with some questionable thing, some secret dalliance with temptations, some partial yielding to something wrong, with the fond excuse, "There is no hurt in it, if we do not carry it too far."

We may not open those awful books, but we have each of us a record which will serve as well; for though God has promised to remember the sins and iniquities of His pardoned ones no more, yet we may, for instruction and admonition, recall the ways in which we before have gone astray from truth and righteousness.

We made the grand mistake when we thought sin was going too far in a wrong way. Going at all is sin. Starting is sin. Desiring to start is sin. Trifling with sin is sin. Sporting with temptation is sin. In the heart sin has its throne; out of it proceed evil thoughts, evil words, and evil acts.

No man becomes a murderer, a liar, an adulterer, or a thief, at once. He lingers on the border land, before he crosses over into open ungodliness. There Satan baits him with the tid-bits, the delicacies, the luxuries, "the pleasures of sin for a season," until, eating at the devil's table, he is turned to be a brute and grovel among his dogs and swine.

Resist the beginnings. Turn away thine eyes from beholding vanity. Watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation; and let your prayer be, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil."—Selected by R. A. Curtis.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"LOOKING UNTO JESUS, THE AUTHOR AND FINISHER OF OUR FAITH." — HEBREWS 12:2.

OUR IDEALS

WE ALL have our ideals, after which, consciously or unconsciously, we pattern our lives. In childhood it may have been mother or father, sister Sue or brother Bill, or the girl next door. There is always someone to whom a child looks up and considers the acme of perfection. As he grows older he is often disappointed to find that there are faults and imperfections in that one who was supposedly perfect.

Coming into the body of Christ we see one whose life seems to be a perfect example of what a Christian life should be. We admire him, copy him, accept his judgment, until we wake up to discover that he is not at all perfect but capable of making mistakes just as the rest of us do. And we are apt to get careless as far as our own efforts go, saying, "How can I expect to be a Christian, when even our leaders cannot set an example?"

If we would find perfection we must look to Christ as the pattern after which to mold our lives, for among mortals there is none perfect, nay, not one.

When we are so severely criticizing those who for some reason we think should never err, do we realize that there may be those who are just as faithfully copying our lives and our actions? It would pay us to watch ourselves rather than others, that those younger ones who come after us may not see us fall too far short of the standard that is set for us in Christ Jesus.

THE human race is divided into two classes—those who go ahead and do something, and those who sit and inquire, "Why wasn't it done this way?"

REPORT OF BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

January 1 to May 1, 1931

USING the latest Berean books at Brush Creek, we are enjoying our weekly Bible study very much. Our average attendance for the first four months of the year is sixteen, with an increase of fifteen in January to twenty-four in April. A great deal of this is due, I believe, to our printed programs which we have been using for the last two months.

The interest here is good, and we have added four new members recently. This is only a small beginning, but we expect to report a greater increase next month.

On May seventh we held our social and business meeting at the home of Bro. and Sr. Lehman, of Arcanum. Although they live several miles from here and seldom get to attend Berean, yet they are always interested and are faithful church workers. We were glad to be able to meet in their home.

Eunice Pearson, Sec.

GATHER UP BROKEN PIECES

"God never wastes anything. He not only loves order, but He hates waste. It is godlike to be munificent, but it is silly to be a squanderer. Gather up those broken bits of time and talent that nothing be lost. To be sure, you need hours of unhurried sleep, food partaking and recreation. This is not waste but an investment. But the bumming of your time and means and talent makes you a prodigal."

This little clipping which I cut from a local paper this week, I feel contains so much. Can't we gather up those bits of time and talent and feed a few of the multitude who are starving for the Word of God? Jesus fed multitudes with bits of loaves and fishes. Surely we can feed a few if we earnestly try, and God will bless us for it.

Eunice Pearson.

"THE surest method of being continuously happy is to be continuously at work making others happy by promulgating the Good News concerning God's work of love in saving penitent sinners."

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

OHIO is sneaking right up to the head of the list. Some of the rest of you will have to get busy and send in some more contributions or hand the laurels to Illinois or Ohio again.

Illinois, 16; Ohio, 15; Michigan 8; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE RESURRECTION AND THE ASCENSION

SEVEN or eight miles from Jerusalem was a little village called Emmaus. Two men were walking toward this little town. They were disciples of Jesus, and they were discussing the wonderful things that had happened that day. As they wondered and tried to explain the events, a man joined them and walked along with them. He said to them, "What is this that you are talking about, and why are you so sad?"

Cleopas, one of the two, asked, "Are you a stranger in Jerusalem and do not know about the things that have happened these last few days?"

"What things?" inquired the stranger.

"Why, the things about Jesus of Nazareth, a prophet great in deed and word before God and all the people," they replied. "The chief priests and rulers have condemned Him to death and crucified Him. And we had trusted that He would redeem Israel, and set up His kingdom. But, instead the Master died three days ago and we are disappointed. However, early this morning several women we know went to the place where He was buried and returned with astonishing news. They declared that His body was not in the tomb and that they had seen angels, and the angels said Jesus was alive. Later some of our friends hurried to the tomb and also found that Jesus was not there."

No wonder the two men were sad and puzzled! What had become of their Lord? And why had He not set up His kingdom?

Then the stranger exclaimed, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken. Should not Christ have suffered and entered into His glory?"

Then He began to explain the scriptures to them—scriptures about Jesus, even from the writings of Moses and the other prophets.

Thus the three continued nearly to the village. And when the stranger started to go on, the other two insisted that he spend the night with them. He went into their house and, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, blessed it and gave it to them.

At this their eyes were opened, and they recognized the stranger. The Guest was no stranger—He was Jesus Himself. And furthermore, He vanished out of their sight.

Can you not picture their utter astonishment? How they must have stared at one another and exclaimed over and over: "Did not our hearts burn within us while He talked to us and explained the scriptures? Why, we tried to tell Him all about it, and He knew more than we did," they might have added.

Then the two went right back to Jerusalem and found the eleven and told them what had happened. As they were all talking, Jesus stood in the midst of them.

"Peace be unto you," He said. But they were frightened at His sudden appearance, because they thought they were seeing a spirit.

Then He said, "Why are ye troubled? Why do thoughts arise in your hearts? See my hands and my feet to be sure that it is I, myself. Handle me, and see: a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see me have."

And when they saw His hands and feet, they were rejoiced to have Him with them again. Then they brought broiled fish and honey, and He ate with them.

Their minds were also cleared so that they understood the scriptures concerning Jesus' death and resurrection. He also instructed them to remain in Jerusalem until God sent them power from on high, and then they were to be His witnesses.

Jesus then led them out as far as Bethany. Here He lifted up His hands and blessed them. And as He did so, He was carried up into heaven, to sit at the right hand of His Father. He had triumphed over the grave.

The disciples worshiped their beloved Savior all the more and went back to Jerusalem, their sadness changed to great joy. "And (they) were continually in the temple praising and blessing God."

DO WE remember that "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them"?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read John 20:21, and all of Luke 24. Copy the verse that tells why the two did not recognize Jesus.
2. Read John 19:25.
3. Find Emmaus on the map.
4. Would you have known Jesus?
5. Tell all you can about how Jesus looked after His resurrection.

WE BELIEVE in baptism as Jesus was baptized: "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead."—Colossians 2:12.

Two more weeks to finish Isaiah 35.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 11. — June 14, 1931

THE RESURRECTION AND THE ASCENSION

Luke 24

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 15:50-58

GOLDEN TEXT

It is Christ that died, yea, rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us.—Romans 8:34.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Our Living Lord.

Basic Truth. "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."—John 5:26.

Outline. I. Life in Himself. II. Life Giver. III. His Victory Over Death.

I. Life in Himself. John's words, John 5:26, repeat one of creation's underlying truths that God has "life in himself". God depends upon nothing exterior for His life. So far as man's mind is capable of realizing, God's life springs from within. This truth is nowhere in the Bible ever applied to any other than to God. He is the Creator, the Originator of everything. From the beginning He has dispensed life. In the days of creation He gave it to vegetation, to fowls, to fishes, to beasts. Gen. 1. He gave life to Adam, Gen. 2:7; and to Eve. But it has never been hinted or suggested that such given life was to be in any degree independent of God. Its circumstance, its duration, its eternity forever remain in the power and keeping of the Giver.

To Christ God made the promise that He, too, should "have life in himself". That this promise was fulfilled with the Savior's resurrection is taught in Rom. 6:9: "Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him." Of himself Jesus spoke to John, Rev. 1:18: "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death." Again, Rev. 5:14, the "elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever".

The resurrection of Jesus was not a resurrection into that life which He lost by death, but a resurrection into that life which from that time forth was vested in himself. It was exalted beyond the reach and power of death.

II. Life Giver. "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Rom. 6:23. Life by generation is one thing, but life as a gift is quite another thing. Man conveys life to the succeeding generation. God gave life to Adam. To Christ God gave that He should have "life in himself" and made Him the Giver of life to others. John 5:26, 21.

"I am the resurrection and the life", Christ told Martha. John 11:25. Again Jesus said, John 14:6, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." All life to man, other than that conveyed by generation, has by God been vested in His Son. He is the Life Giver. He came into possession of that power, not by His birth, but by His resurrection. When Jesus revealed this truth in John 5:26, He did not then "have life in himself"; He was "to have it". He came into this position at His resurrection. Cf. 2 Tim. 1:10.

When Jesus comes in His glory, "with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God", "the dead in Christ shall rise first", 1 Thess. 4:16. The dead, not the living, are to be raised. The dead, not living ones, will then receive life. It is to be bestowed by Christ, the Life Giver; or, as Jesus said, John 5:28, "The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life." Here again dead ones are to be given life. Christ is the Life Giver.

III. His Victory Over Death. "Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him."—Rom. 6:10. As for himself, Christ then is victorious over death. Likewise, 1 Cor. 15:57, God "giveth us the victory (over death, vv. 55, 56) through our Lord Jesus Christ". Christ was not only the first One to conquer death by God-given life, but He is the One and the only One appointed by God to give like victory unto others.

Death has forever been man's enemy, 1 Cor. 15:26. There is no sense and no manner in which death is anything other than an enemy. Life is death's opposite. All mankind suffers death. Its opposite, life, is not only a gift of God through Christ, but life is the only revealed victory over it. This victory is accomplished by Christ who is "the resurrection and the life".

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

He Lives: Because He lives, we shall live also. Make the resurrection of Christ real. If you have a blackboard, draw a picture of a tomb with a stone at the side. Tell in a graphic way of His burial, the sealing of the tomb, placing of the Roman guard, the earthquake, the coming of the angel and the rolling back of the stone, and how the angel invited the woman to look into the tomb and "see the place where the Lord lay".

Teachers of the younger classes should grasp this opportunity to drive home to the minds of their children the fact that Jesus was actually raised. Put it in language which they can understand. This isn't a dry topic. Endeavor to imbibe interest and enthusiasm manifested by the women, who were first to tell of the resurrection.

Ascension: This must have been an awe inspiring scene. See if you can't put a little life into this great event, as you discuss it in class. This happening has inspired many artists to visualize and paint it on the canvas. Picture the location on the Mount; look into the heavens with their background of blue, with clouds floating around, whitened by the shining sun. Visualize Christ ascending, and these clouds hiding Him from them, the appearing of the angels, with their short message of hope. The inspired writers have so vividly described the scene we need not draw on our imagination. The teacher should not try to interest her class before she is enthused herself.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us."
—Romans 8:34.

If Christ had not risen, our faith would be in vain, for on the resurrection hinges our promise of eternal life. But we have the assurance that He did rise from the dead, and that He is now at the right hand of God; and that "if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." 1 John 2:1.

"Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." Heb. 7:25—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Topic: The Meaning of the Resurrection.

The primary meaning of the word, "risen", in Luke 24:6, 34, is, "to rouse up from sleep." Christ was "roused up from sleep". Death is referred to as a sleep, when we look forward to a new life. It is as a sleep of repose for the night, for we expect to awake in the morning, the morning of resurrection. When we consider death as final—the end—then it is "death", not "sleep".

Resurrection is the Christian's hope; resurrection of Christ first, then resurrection of self. Paul says, "For the hope of the resurrection of the dead I am called in question". Acts 23:6.

"But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope". 1 Thess. 4:13-18. "Knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus, and will present us with you". 2 Cor. 4:14.—F. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Northwestern, Felida, Wash.,	June 4 to 7
Ohio, Brush Creek,	June 7 to 14
Minnesota, Eden Valley,	June 11 to 14
Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

On Sunday, June 7, a special series of meetings will begin at Eden Valley, and these will continue at least through June 17. Elder Jas. A. Patrick, of Ashland, Ohio, will be the leading speaker. During this series of meetings the fifty-seventh Annual Conference of the Minnesota Church of God will convene, June 11 to 14. Ministers who are on the program for the conference are: Jas. A. Patrick, C. E. Randall, T. M. Savage, Ray M. Abbott, Fred J. Daubanton, John Denchfield, Orrin Roe Jenks, and Sydney E. Magaw.

It may be a long time, in fact, this may be the last time, that our Minnesota ministers are all together, and we trust that you will try to attend this conference and do your bit to make it one of the best we have yet had.

Sydney E. Magaw, Conf. Pres.

LAWRENCEVILLE, OHIO

Bro. J. R. LeCrone of Omaha, Nebraska, and Oregon, Illinois, is announced to speak at the Lawrenceville church on the evenings of June 3, 4, and 5, this week.

From there he is announced to assist at the Brush Creek June Meeting, June 7 to 14.

A NEW PASTOR

Burr Oak, Indiana, has retained the services of Bro. C. A. Smead as student minister for the summer months, to supplement the regular services of Bro. Anderson. May God's blessing attend all these labors.

The following will be the church program till further notice:

Sunday School at	10:00 a. m.
Preaching at	11:00 a. m.
Berean at	7:00 p. m.
Preaching at	7:30 p. m.

The young people's Berean society meets on Thursday evenings at eight o'clock.

Bro. Smead's correspondents may address him in care of M. J. Osborn, Culver, Indiana.

AN EXTENDED TOUR

As information to my friends who read The Herald, permit me to say that while I have been at home for more than two years on account of my wife's poor health, that now she seems much better, and I am preparing to leave home in June or July for an extended evangelistic trip into the Middle West, as the Lord may open the way and lead by His Spirit. My heart yearns for the battle to win souls.

Sincerely,

J. C. Vanzandt,

6119 87th St. S. E., Portland, Oregon.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. John Coehran,	Knox, Indiana.
Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Bro. Thomas Weldon,	Thorold, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Luper	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Ada Daniels	Alma, Mich.
Bro. Jas. A. Patrick	Ashland, Ohio
Sr. Ella Rose,	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Sr. Edna Brewer,	Troy, Ohio
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Sr. May Moore	Bartley, Nebr.
Sr. Anna D. Springer	Lancaster, Ohio

Bro. Harvey Krogh plans to leave Oregon today for his home at Blair, Nebraska, for the summer months.

The Herald assumes the responsibility of suggesting that any of the churches near Blair, wishing the Sunday services of a conscientious, wide-awake student minister, will do well to correspond at once with Bro. Krogh.

The Burr Oak, Indiana, church, having arranged with Bro. Smead of Los Angeles, California, and Oregon, Illinois, to do ministerial work there for the summer, Bro. J. R. LeCrone continued the itinerary—which was announced last week—alone. He left Plymouth, Indiana, Friday morning for Delta, Ohio, where he was announced for Sunday, May 31. From that place he is announced at Springfield and Lawrenceville, Ohio, for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings of this week—June 3, 4, and 5.

Sunday, May 31, was a bright sunshiny day, and the services at the Adeline church were well attended. Dixon, Freeport, Rockford, and Oregon were represented, besides the home membership.

Services will be held at the Plum River (Illinois) church on Sunday, June 7, morning and evening. Sunday School begins at ten o'clock, preaching at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Bro. C. E. Lapp is the speaker. A full attendance is urged. Take your friends with you.

SERVICES EVERY SUNDAY

The Ripley brethren are making good use of Sr. Lucille LeCrone, who is spending the summer there, and she is speaking to them every Sunday, either morning or evening, sometimes both. Last Sunday Sr. LeCrone spoke in the morning and Bro. Gerald Cooper in the evening. They are having fine attendance. First thing you know Ripley will be having a resident pastor—and, why not?

Several of the ladies of the Ripley church are already thinking of the Training Class and next winter. While they are canning fruit for their own families, they are planning to set aside a few jars of each variety for the use of the boys and girls of the Training Class at Oregon. The spirit of cooperation shown by these good folks in so many ways is worthy of emulation.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

The Iowa Quarterly Conference will be held at Hickory Grove, near Maxwell, Saturday evening, June 13th, and all day Sunday on the 14th, the Lord willing. A basket dinner will be served. Come. Let us have a good attendance.

Esther Sealine, Cor. Sec.

PARK HILL CHURCH ITEMS

The first Sunday in the month, May 4, we had preaching service in the morning by Bro. J. W. Williams on the subject of "Probation." In the evening Bro. O. J. Allard preached on "The Signs of the Times". Both sermons were ably delivered and received with interest. Several of the brethren from neighboring towns came in.

On Sunday evening, May 24, Bro. Williams delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the public high school, at a union meeting in the gymnasium.

We are now planning a union meeting for the first Sunday in June, the seventh. Everyone from far and near is cordially invited to attend. Let us combine pleasure and profit and with aspiration, receive new inspiration for the future. Basket dinner at Conant's Park. Come!

There is in prospect in the near future a series of meetings to be held in the city park, all churches and ministers of the town taking part. If sufficient interest and enthusiasm are shown, the meetings will be continued two weeks or more.

Mrs. H. V. Berry (Reporter).

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE BOOK

A new book of fifty-two pages, giving a history of the Church of God in Minnesota, is now ready for sale. This book is neatly made with first quality materials and will make an ideal gift. It is illustrated with twenty-seven good clear pictures. In addition to the history of the Minnesota work, there are a number of short sermons by our different ministers included, and also an historic sketch of the General Conference by Bro. Austin. This book is edited by Sydney Magaw and presented to the brotherhood by the Minnesota State Conference of the Church of God. The sale price is $1.00 each. Send your orders to Mrs. T. M. Savage, Waite Park, Minnesota.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Last Sunday night a goodly number attended our church to join in our Dedication Service. We took great pleasure in dedicating our new choir loft and other improvements to God's service. These new additions were made possible by the cheerful giving of several of our church members and brought into being by the able management and hard work of our pastor, C. E. Randall.

We regret that the church news from Fonthill arrived too late for insertion last week. We trust that God's blessing rested upon their May Meeting.

Now we have a full supply of the valuable tract, "A Study of the Word Soul." Several have recently desired these. Any number may now be obtained at ten cents per dozen or sixty cents per hundred. Address, National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

AT OREGON, ILLINOIS

When you are planning on your vacation, do not overlook Illinois Bible School and Conference and General Conference. This promises to be a most interesting and instructive meeting throughout. Come and receive inspiration for the rest of the year. We need you and you need us.

Following is a list of teachers:

- Adult—L. E. Conner.
- Senior Young People—F. L. Austin and C. E. Lapp.
- Junior Young People—G. E. Marsh and C. E. Lapp.
- Intermediates—Earl Thayer.
- Primary—Verna Thayer.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Lilian Railton; Mrs. Diana Murphy; J. C. Peck; Nancy B. Robison; V. L. Beed; Eliza M. Cassen.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates. — 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper. — It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Receipts. — The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BASKET WEAVE

BEAUTIFUL GIFT BIBLES

For Graduation, Wedding, Birthday, or for other gifts, nothing surpasses a Beautiful Gift Bible or Testament.

Everybody appreciates one. Can be furnished in a wide range of Styles, Qualities, and Prices.

50 Cents to $15.00

Appropriate, artistically printed Presentation Sheet supplied on request.

Address

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

ANNUITY BONDS

There is no better way to preserve one's capital for use during life and at the same time dedicate it to the Master's use after one's death than by a National Bible Institution Annuity Bond. Write NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION, Oregon, Illinois, for information.

Any Amount - Much or Little

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS
Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen
The Resurrection, J. L. Wince (For cost of Postage)	32	.03	.12

BOOKS

Name	Pages	Each	Per 6
Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth,	480	.85	5.00
Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

THE FIELD

By Lucille LeCrone

(The following was written as a companion article to the two in last week's issue, entitled, "What is Christianity?" and, "The Worker". The copy for the following arrived too late to be used last week. It should be read in connection with the above mentioned articles.)

IT is not uncommon to hear someone say that the world is getting better. Mechanically and scientifically it is. Politically, morally, and religiously it is not.

When we look back fifty years and compare the way of living then with what it is today, we find many great changes. There were no telephones, no automobiles, no airplanes, no radios, no electric lights. Today it is possible to talk to the other side of the world. Radio programs are broadcast which are heard all over the world. Diseases which were once considered incurable are now being cured. Knowledge is increasing in all lines of scientific research.

The governments of the world are in a state of unrest. Kings are losing their thrones, and mob rule is superseding them. Bribery in political circles is not uncommon. The governments of the world are decaying, preparing and leading up to the time when Christ will be the only King and all government will be under His control.

Robberies are becoming more numerous and robbers more bold. In Nevada the ban has lifted on gambling, and no doubt other states will follow her example. In this same state only a short residence is required to secure a divorce, and no trial is necessary when the charge is cruelty or non-support. Murders and suicides are more frequent. Truly the moral status of the world is very low.

Religion is on the decline. One who tries to be a Christian meets with much opposition. The theatres produce plays and the magazines contain stories which make fun of religion.

In 2 Timothy 4:1 we read, "In the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils." And in 2 Timothy 3:1-5, "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof."

These are the conditions that are prevalent in the world today. These are the things Christianity has to meet in carrying out her purpose.

Elbert Hubbard in his Notebook says, "If there is any being superior to man, we have thus far not the slightest evidence of his being", denying that there is a God. And again, "The religion of humanity knows nothing of a vicarious atonement, justification by faith, miraculous conception, original sin, hell, heaven, or the efficacy of baptism as a saving ordinance", denying all that the Bible so plainly teaches.

In Council Bluffs, Iowa, recently a religious cult was organized which has as the basis of belief the idea that salvation can come only through one's own efforts. They deny the power of Christ to save, and teach that man must save himself.

False ideas such as these are gaining ground rapidly. Atheism is spreading, and more people are coming to believe in evolution.

I have tried to picture a few of the conditions existing in the world today—conditions Christianity has to cope with, and the field in which she must labor to accomplish her God-given purpose.

—o—

THE APOSTLES' CONVICTION

THEIR conviction was of three things: First, they had rich and strong and clear conviction concerning the fundamental verities of the Christian faith. They had clear convictions of their own filial relation to God, in and through Jesus Christ. Then they had the same conviction regarding the certainty of the future life that awaits every soul that dies trusting in the Lord Jesus.

Listen to what they said: "We know that the Son of God is come." "We know he was manifested to take away our sins." "We know that we have passed from death unto life." "We know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." "We know that if this earthly tabernacle be dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

Then, to bring it home still more, perhaps the grandest utterance of all: "I know"—not because of any surmise, no "buts" and "ifs"—"I know him whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day."

Oh! what a ring of conviction you find running through these marvelous words, and they are only some of them.

—Selected.

ANNUITY BONDS

For information regarding the advantages of Annuity Bonds over Wills in the making of final gifts for the furtherance of our Gospel labors, address,

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 9, 1931

NUMBER 36

A REASON FOR OUR HOPE

By George B. Alldridge

"But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear".—1 Peter 3:15.

SOCRATES, I think it was, once said, "You can make people do almost anything, but think." On every hand we see signs and read advertisements, appealing to our minds through the sense of sight and "listening in". Our ears convey to our minds information, instruction, entertainment and appeals of every variety, and yet how little do our minds weigh or meditate upon the things seen or heard.

Many centuries ago a wise man said, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Prov. 23:7. Paul, one of the world's greatest thinkers, said, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report: if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." The Greek word used here, "to think", means, "to take an inventory, or make an estimate." We ask of what? We answer, "Our hope." What emphasis is laid throughout God's Word upon the power of thought!

Mark well these words, "My son, give me thine heart (the will and intellect), and let thine eyes observe my ways." Prov. 23:26. "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." Phil. 2:5. "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruits of his creatures." James 1:18.

In what part of our organism did this begettal take place? In our minds and nowhere else. Hence then you see why we are exhorted to present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God which is our reasonable service. Rom. 12:1. Note, "reasonable," that is, governed by reason. It is the mind which reasons. So then Peter exhorts us to give a reason of the hope that is in us.

A lawyer reasons his case in court by the knowledge of the law he has acquired, by intense study, and by following precedents established by courts in the past. Even so the child of God must be able, through knowledge acquired by intense and prayerful study of the Word of God, to give an answer to every man that asketh him a reason of the hope that is in him.

What is our hope? Eph. 4:4 reads, "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling". So then there is only one hope, and Titus 1:2 reveals what that hope is—"In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began". This verse makes me feel very happy, and why? because, do you not see? that it is the joyful and confident expectation of eternal salvation. A child can reason regarding death—the antithesis of life. The cemeteries, the morning death list in the newspapers proclaim the surety of death. "What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave?" Psa. 89:48. How can we reason regarding hope of eternal life apart from the Scriptures?

Here is a question asked over three thousand years ago, a question the world's wisest and most learned men are trying but cannot answer today: "If a man die, shall he live again?" Job 14:14.

Confucius, what is your answer? "To perform the duties of life well, troubling not about another, is the prime wisdom."

Zoroaster, what is your hope? "Thou shouldest not become presumptuous through life; for death comes upon thee at last and the perishable part falls to the ground."

Gautama, you who founded Buddhism, your last words do not answer Job's question. "Decay is inherent in all component things; work out therefore your emancipation with diligence."

(Continued on page 569)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

“Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?”—Paul, the Apostle, to the Roman Christians.

THE MAN OF LAWLESSNESS

IN THESE days when lawlessness is increasing so rapidly and widely, and when crime, a result of lawlessness, is all but running rampant, it is not amiss to frequently turn to the Sacred Page, as well as to current news, and endeavor to discern the milepost of time which we are passing. The reading of 2 Thessalonians 2:3 in the Emphatic Testament is, in part, “Because (that day will not set in) except perchance the revolt come first, and the man of lawlessness be revealed, the son of destruction.”

Writing on the theme of lawlessness, the Twentieth Century Progress for May 1931 quotes some very interesting data gathered from different sources. In his public address delivered after his inauguration to the American Newspapers Publishers’ Association, President Hoover is quoted as having said:

“More than nine thousand human beings are lawlessly killed every year in the United States. Little more than half as many arrests follow, less than one-sixth of these slayers are convicted, and but a scandalously small percentage are adequately punished. . . . At least fifty times as many small robberies, in proportion to population, are committed in the United States as in Great Britain, and three times as many burglaries. . . . Life and property are relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world.”

This speaks of a fact. It is not necessary here to endeavor to ascertain the reason for this increase of lawlessness excepting as such a knowledge might assist us to aid in staying the wrong.

One great example of lawlessness is coming more and more before the eyes of the nation and of the world. It is the seeming alliance between office holders and criminals. The office holders are those whom the people have entrusted with the task of properly guiding the nation. They are asked to work for the good and for the upbuild of the people as a whole. Instead, according to very many reports which seem to substantiate the thought, it appears that there is a definite alliance and understanding between the many office holders and those who pursue lives of crime. (All honor to faithful office holders.)

This kind of lawlessness costs the nation, according to reports of those who make it a business to compile statistics, billions of dollars per annum. Every year the nation’s bill for crime is said to be as great as would be the bill of a war.

The Twentieth Century Progress writes:

“Roger Babson, the eminent statistician, on April 8, 1929, issued a special letter on Crime Waves in which he said,

“Statistics clearly show that something is developing a disregard for law and order throughout the world today. This is especially true among the youth.”

“He says if the crime waves were confined to the United States, we might seriously consider whether prohibition were the plausible reason. He further states that twenty years ago the increase in crime might be laid to immigration, when a million immigrants entered the country.

“But now there are less than 200,000 entering the country annually. He then says:

“Such studies as I have made lead directly to the movies as the basic cause of the crime waves of today. . . . I sent a questionnaire to the school principals of New England, asking which of the following had the greatest influence in molding the characters of our young people of today—the school, the church or the home—and seventy percent scratched all three and replied, the movies.”

It is nothing uncommon, in fact it is coming to be altogether too common, for men in prominent positions to engage other men to go out and commit acts of lawlessness. Not only is the lawless one protected by those higher up, but society of all grades is more and more outspoken in supporting those having knowledge of the offending party, in their refusal to report him to the proper authority. The criminal friend is, if he “squeals” on the one who committed the offence, hooted by men and women of supposed high standing and jeered as a betrayer. Thus the offending party, large numbers of society as a whole, and conniving and assisting officers, unite in breaking the laws.

Surely, lawlessness is on the increase!

Such lawlessness is always, without exception, in direct opposition to the truths of God’s teaching. It is against God, as well as against man.

Let him who is anxious to see the day of the coming of our Lord and Master take note of this world wide condition which is rapidly increasing, and let him discern whether or not the “man of lawlessness” is on the horizon.

CHRONOLOGY

COMPUTATION of Time is a subject of thrilling interest to one who is in earnest search for the valuable secrets which it holds.

True, students of chronology differ in their computations. These differences are not to be wondered at, when all of the problems are taken into consideration. Besides, careful, conscientious research assists in discovering these discrepancies, and profiting thereby.

Usher, whose chronology is found recorded in the margin of most Bibles, placed the birth of Christ at 4004 years after creation. The Julian Period chronology placed His birth 4706 years after creation. Totten placed it at 3996 after creation.

Without concern at this time as to these differences, let the Bible student recall that an accurate scale of chronology placed in parallel columns with the happenings of recorded Scripture events would shed immense light upon the proper interpretation and understanding of said history. For instance, in Acts 1:12 an unimportant statement is made that Mount Olivet was "from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey".

"Unimportant," one says.

Yes, unless it gives to us a clearer picture of the ascension of our Savior, and of the happenings connected therewith.

He had led His apostles out from the city, was talking with them of things pertaining to Himself and the Kingdom of God, Luke 24:49-53; Acts 1:1-8, and at Mount Olivet was taken up "and a cloud received him out of their sight."

The sun was setting in the west.

They watched Him, as He ascended and disappeared from view.

Two white clad messengers stood by and exhorted the apostles.

This all took time.

The sabbath day drew on. What should they do?

But here are the facts. They were but a sabbath day's journey from their lodging. They could return to the city.

Did the lessons stop here? It might still be questioned if it is worth while to study the chronology of these events. But another lesson of interest, if not importance, is that our Savior took His position at the right hand of God upon the sabbath day, the day of rest.

As God finished His work and rested on the sabbath day, so also did the Son.

Light is thrown upon many scriptures when the reader observes the time element connected therewith.

Representation to General Conference

IN PAST years there has been a noticeable lack of appreciation of the fact that our several state conferences, as well as our National Conference, are really gatherings for conferring as to the work that should be done within the several states and to provide the best methods and means for performing such work.

True, these meetings are for the purpose of conferring upon Bible themes, but they are equally important for conferring as to the best means of promoting the work in the name of the Master.

Because of this fact it would seem that every local church should earnestly endeavor to send a delegate or representative from its body to its state conference. This delegate should be someone who is enthused in the work, who has keen judgment, one who can well present the needs and the abilities of the local church, and one who can confer with others as to methods and means for work throughout the state. Such delegation may rightly consist of one or more members.

In such procedure the state conferences would quickly occupy places of greater importance in the program of the work throughout their respective states.

The same principle is true with reference to the General Conference. The General Conference is made up of people from the several state conferences composing the General. It also includes the National Berean Society and such local churches as are not included in the state conferences.

The General Conference in session can do better work; according as representation from the several state conferences is complete.

It is urged very earnestly that every state conference and every other body, being part and parcel of the General Conference will endeavor to have a representation of one or more selected persons in attendance at the General Conference August 4 to 16 next.

It is also earnestly suggested that the several state conferences being held this summer shall have the pleasure and benefit of delegations or representations from the several churches composing them respectively.

EXPENSES

It seems only proper that the bodies sending delegates should at least defray expenses incurred by the delegates, in making such representation. Often there are individuals who are quite competent to confer in the conferences relative to the good of the work, but who feel unable financially either to give their time or to pay their expenses, or both. They would be perfectly willing to contribute to the treasury of the organization sending them, if the organization

(Continued on page 570)

LONGING FOR HIS COMING

By Elder C. M. Keach

I long to see my Savior come
To sit on David's throne;
To claim the glory, sceptre, crown,
And kingdom for His own.

I long to see my Savior come,
His slumbering saints to raise;
And o'er His ransomed ones to reign,
Throughout eternal days.

I long to see my Savior come,
To quell all earthly strife,
When earth again, with glory crowned,
Shall bear the tree of life.

I long to see my Savior's face,
Oh, when He shall appear,
O'erflowing joy within my heart
Will banish every fear.

Oh, hasten, Lord, that blessed day,
When earth's dark night is o'er,
When sin and grief shall pass away,
And death shall be no more.

THE WORLD'S GREAT NEED AND THE REMEDY

By Rufus A. Curtis

WHEN we take a broad view of the governments of earth as administered by man at the present time, what do we behold? "Distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."—Luke 21:25-28; Acts 1:9-11.

When the Lord's "controversy with the nations", is finally settled, it will be settled right. (Jer. 25:31-33.) The Lord's controversy with Israel and the nations is "because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood toucheth blood." (Hosea 4:12.)

When "men of corrupt minds" attempt to "serve God and mammon", failure is inevitable. (2 Tim. 3:8; Luke 16:13.) "By their fruits ye shall know them." Matthew 7:15-20.

Inspiration gives us a pen picture of the last days, with the moral degeneracy of the people, culminating in the perilous times which we behold today: "This know also that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good; traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away."—2 Tim. 3:1-5.

The days of Noah and Lot are being reproduced upon a world wide scale today. (Matt. 27:37-39; Luke 17:26-30.) Concerning Noah's time we read, "The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth."—Genesis 6:5, 11, 12.

Concerning the days of Lot, we read, "Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, pride, fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her, and in her daughters, neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy. And they were haughty, and committed abomination before me: therefore I took them away as I saw good."—Genesis 13:13; Ezek. 16:49, 50.

Among the world's great needs, is the need of RIGHTEOUS LAWS RIGHTEOUSLY ENFORCED, and that need will be abundantly met when "the desire of all nations shall come," "whose right it is" to reign; and cause God's will to "be done in earth, as it is in heaven." (Haggai 2:6-9; Ezek. 21:25-27; Matt. 6:10.)

"He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him; and his enemies shall lick the dust. The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents: the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts. Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him. For he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also, and him that hath no helper."—Psalm 72:8-12.

When "a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment," He will make "wars to cease unto the ends of the earth." (Isa. 32:1; Psa. 46:9.)

When David's "righteous Branch," and royal heir, "shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth," "he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people, and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."—Luke 1:30-33; Jer. 23:5; Isaiah 2:4.

The disarmament conference will be speedily settled then, by the Prince of Peace. (Isa. 9:6, 7.) Military training camps will be unknown in that age of "abundance of peace," when "the Lord shall reign over them in mount

(Continued on back page)

THE CHURCH OF THE GENTILES OR THE MYSTERY OF GOD

By Paul M. Hatch

AT THE time of the close of the first missionary journey of Paul and Barnabas, the church and its work were well in hand and mind of the disciples. But there were many converts to Christianity among the Jews that still held to the law. These viewed with contempt and misgiving the apostles' work among the Gentiles, especially because of the fact that Gentile converts had not been circumcised. Thus some misunderstanding and friction had arisen about how the Gentile brethren should be regarded.

The conference at Jerusalem upon this question, as recorded in the fifteenth chapter of Acts, shows clearly that James and Peter understood that the Gentiles were to be incorporated into the church and that God visited them to take from among them a people to bear His name. Vv. 7, 13, 14. This sets apart the fact that selection was to be made of the Gentiles to bear the name of God.

It did not mean that the Gentiles were to supersede the Jews in respect to the church, for Paul, although especially sent to preach to the Gentiles, does recognize that they were grafted stock. Read thoughtfully Romans 11:13, 16-21.

Naturally Paul, if designated to preach to the Gentiles, would have had revealed to him through the holy spirit the things requisite for the development of the Gentile church. So his writings are mainly for the Gentiles. Therefore they are especially meant for us to study and compare with other scriptures, in reference to the salvation intended for them. This may be the reason why Peter in his second epistle says that Paul's writings are in some places difficult to be understood.

Paul had a great many things to say, and even the words that he chooses to say them are very significant. For instance, he is the only writer of sacred Scripture who uses the words, immortal, immortality, and incorruption. Another significant thing is that he uses the words, death, die, sleep, asleep, perish, etc., frequently, but he does not use hades, which is generally translated, "hell", except in one place, and that is in a quotation from the Old Testament, and is translated "grave" in 1 Cor. 15:55 (margin, hell).

In respect to the Gentile part of the church, Paul calls it the mystery which had been hidden from the ages and from generations, but is now made manifest to the saints. Three places in his epistles is this mystery mentioned, viz., Rom. 16:25, 26; Eph. 3:1-9; Col. 1:25-29.

It is common among Paul's letters to close with a post-script of blessing, but in the Roman letter a second post-script is added, with the mention of the mystery, also calling it his gospel. This has puzzled the transcribers of the Bible to the extent that some have regarded it with suspicion, but it was evidently later added to the Roman letter by Paul when he was in prison. For we find that in the Ephesian and Colossian letters, where he again makes mention of the mystery, he also mentions the fact that he was a prisoner.

This mystery evidently was not to be given out until its appointed time, and that, by Paul, is the reason he calls it his gospel. At this time the Jews, as a whole, had definitely repudiated and rejected the gospel, and so it was God's appointed time for Him to disclose the mystery. Let us study carefully the account in the Ephesian letter, 3:1-9.

Paul in this account calls the duration of the Gentile church the dispensation of the grace of God, when God is dispensing His grace, not His judgment or vengeance. That was to come later. It was through God's grace that His Son tasted death for every man, and it was through this grace that He both died and rose again, that He might be Lord both of the dead and living.

The Gentiles were then to take up the work that the Jews had repudiated and carry it forward: preaching, practicing, and praying. The perfection of the saints was now to be carried out through this dispensation of grace, and the church was to receive its judgment, reward, and gift at the end of the dispensation. This knowledge of the arrangement of the ages and dispensations, in the mind of the Jews, probably brought forth the observation that the last would be first and the first, last, when He answered His disciples and one that inquired of Him. Luke 13:23-30; Matt. 20:1-16.

In observing the prophetic end of this mystery, we have the statement in Revelation 10:7, "But in the days of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets." This, compared to the statement found in Eph. 3:4, 5, 6, shows that that mystery that should be finished is the completion of the Gentile church. When the actual sounding of the trumpet occurs, as recorded in Revelation 11:15, 19, the kingdoms of earth will have become the kingdoms of the Lord and His Christ, and the day of wrath, no longer partial, is to be poured out upon the kingdoms of earth.

Paul, I believe, must have known or at least prophesied through the holy spirit that the resurrection to immortality would occur under the seventh trumpet, or as he calls it, the last trump in 1 Corinthians 15:51-53. As seven is the completing number of the series of trumpet judgments, it appears that the Gentile church shall be raised at the beginning of the sounding of the seventh trumpet.

The Jewish church and the redeemed, which are 144,000 in number, were sealed under the sixth of the series of seal judgments. These occur before the trumpet judgment opens, for the seven angels, sounding the trumpets, are not prepared until the seventh seal has been broken. Revelation 5:6, 7, 8.

God distributes His judgments upon the earth in three main divisions, and these divisions are further divided into a series of sevens. The first division, which consists of seven seal judgments, has the significant number of the fraction one-fourth, which indicates a partial judgment. The seal judgments are mainly in war, the martyrs under

(Continued on page 570)

ETERNAL LIFE

WHAT IS IT?

WHO can define it? Certainly not the scientist, for he does not know even what this present life is. The Lord Jesus defines it for us in the words recorded in John 17:3: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." That is eternal life!

Can you get it anywhere else? No, never! It is a gift, not a natural possession. God would not offer a man what he already possesses. If a man had the temerity to look up into the face of God and say, "I already have eternal life; it is mine by right of inheritance", he would cease to give God any glory at all. He would put himself in the position of those in Romans 1:23, who "changed the glory of the uncorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man". Surely that text is enough for those who love their Bibles and think seriously.

God so loved man that He made provision for him that he should not perish but have eternal life. That is the best news the Book contains—that man can live forever, and that life is made possible only through Him who died and rose again, according to the Scriptures. We believe it carries with it the guarantee of perpetual youth. Surely it is worth having! Do you not think so?

Moody was a wonderful preacher. If ever there was a man who believed in the "life" question, it was D. L. Moody. Addressing a meeting on one occasion, he held up a beautiful book bound in leather, with gold edges. He wanted to show how simple was the acceptance of the gift of eternal life. So he said, "I will give this book to the first person who will accept it as a free gift." There was a pause, and then a working man crept up gently, as if he had stolen something and was ashamed of it, and Moody gave him the book, and he took it back to his seat. "Now," said Moody, "that is an illustration of how God gives eternal life through His Son Jesus Christ."

WHOSE IS IT?

THE Scriptures are explicit here, for it is he that "believeth". Therefore it is conditional, and that is what we hold so strongly. We find God's blessings are attended with conditions, hence the little word "if" so often used in the gospels.

Let me give one instance, an important one. In Romans 10:9 we read, "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Why? "Because with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation".

The Savior is the Life-giver. He offers the free gift of eternal life on the condition of belief in the only begotten Son of God. "He that hath the Son hath life, he that hath not the Son hath not life". That is plain. Here we have both the positive and the negative. "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no mur-derer hath eternal life abiding in him." — John 3:15.

WHEN?

"YOUR life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col. 3:3, 4. That word "glory" is not a place, but a condition, which I think you will find if you analyze the word correctly.

Listen to these sublime statements. "But now . . . ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." Rom. 6:22. "In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began." Titus 1:3. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Rev. 2:10. Life as a crown? By hope! "But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it." Rom. 8:25.

We are saved by hope, that is, hope of eternal life. It is all in Christ, for without Him nothing can be received. So we come back to Him. In Christ is our faith, our hope, our promise. "In him was life, and the life was the light of men."—Selected from Words of Life by J. Tripman.

I WANT to add just a little to this splendid article. Why will people who want to believe God and be true to Him still persist in believing that they are immortal? The Bible says so plainly, "Which in his times he shall shew, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see".—1 Tim. 6:15, 16.

If God only hath this wonderful holding power, it is not ours to have until He gives it us at the resurrection, when Jesus bestows it to the faithful ones. Again, "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever".—1 Tim. 1:17.

Once more, "Who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life." Rom. 2:6, 7. If we have to seek for it, we surely do not have it in our possession now. We must seek for it by patiently working for it in God's way, not man's way. Let us stand with Paul on Mars' Hill just a few minutes, and hear him plead with those Athenians, showing them the difference between their worship of God, "The Unknown God", and our blessed, all powerful God, who is waiting to give us, if faithful in Christ Jesus, life eternal, when He raises the dead, not at death.

O, the blessedness of the thought of quiet rest, until Jesus calls us, and we awaken in the palace of the King. For our next awakening will be with Christ where He is: O, what joy, that will be our going home.

Did you ever wonder, beloveds, what our robes of righteousness would be, and how God would look? What joy to be where He will be! The unspeakable pleasure of asking Him so many things we do not know now! O, be patient, dear saints of God, it will pay to gird up the loins of our minds and patiently wait with prayer and faith.

May God help us to be faithful and true is my prayer.

M. A. Woodward.

THE EPISTLE TO TITUS

By Lyman Booth

IT is remarkable that Titus, of whom the Apostle often speaks in terms of highest approbation and most cordial affection in his epistles is not mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles. Nor is anything recorded concerning Paul's labors in Crete, now called Candia, a large island in the Mediterranean Sea.

It is indeed probable that the gospel was made known there at an early period, as there were Cretes present on the day of Pentecost, to witness the stupendous scenes of that day and to hear the unanswerable sermon of Peter on that wonderful occasion. If any who then were converted, on their return to their home made known the gospel to their neighbors, the joyful report would reach none but the Jews and proselytes.

But no information is given on what passed in that island at that time or afterwards, except what this epistle shows, that Paul had labored there with great success. This may have been after his first imprisonment at Rome. He seems to have had very great success in his ministry in that island, but by some means he was hurried away, before he could order the state of the church in a regular manner. Therefore he left Titus there to settle the churches in the several cities of the island, according to the apostolical order in other places.

Tradition and ecclesiastical records have made Titus, Bishop of Crete. And because so large an island, renowned for a hundred cities, was an extensive charge, some have conferred on him the title of archbishop. I am not sure but that this title would have been objectionable to his real dignity as an evangelist. If by saying Timothy and Titus were bishops, one of Ephesus and the other of Crete, we understand that they took upon themselves these churches or dioceses as their fixed and particular charge, in which they were to preside for a term of life, I cannot suppose that they accepted the titles, as they were both evangelists.

Eusebius says, "Now the work of an evangelist was this—to lay the foundation of churches in barbarous nations, to constitute them pastors; and having committed to them the cultivating of those new plantations, they passed on to other countries. As to Titus, he was left in Crete to ordain elders in every city and to set in order the things that were wanting. Having done that work, he had done all that was assigned him in that station, and therefore Paul sends for him in the very next year to Nicopolis." It is recorded that he afterwards returned to Crete and died there, when ninety-four years of age.

The name, Titus, occurs nowhere in the Acts of the Apostles, and our information respecting him is derived solely from the Epistles of Paul. It is stated in Galatians 2:3 that he was a Greek, and therefore there was no necessity for his circumcision. Paul calls him his "genuine son after the common faith," from which it is not improbable that he was converted by the Apostle.

We first meet with Titus as the companion of Paul on his visit to Jerusalem (Gal. 2:1), which is probably the same visit mentioned in Acts 15:2. About seven years after that Titus brings to Paul in Macedonia intelligence of Corinth, whither Paul appears to have sent him (2 Cor. 7:5-16; 12:18). Soon after this the Apostle sends him with the second Epistle to the Corinthians and directs him to assist them in making a collection for the poor saints in Jerusalem (2 Cor. 8:6-19).

From Paul's epistle it appears that after the Apostle's release from the Roman imprisonment, he took Titus with him to Crete, where he was directed to ordain elders in every city (Titus 1:5). He was also directed to meet the Apostle in Nicopolis (Ch. 3:12). A short time before Paul's martyrdom, he went to Delmatia (2 Tim. 4:10). They were so closely related in the work that Paul calls him his "partner and fellow helper" (2 Cor. 8:23).

It is not definitely known when the church in the island was founded, but the position of Titus was one of peculiar difficulty, for the people were notorious for immorality, instability, and lying (Titus 1:12). The Apostle therefore desired to encourage him in confronting the opposition he was likely to encounter and gave him a condensed code of instruction on doctrine, morals, and discipline, which much resembles that in the first Epistle to Timothy.

After an earnest apostolic salutation (1:1-4), he advises Titus on several points of church organization, the qualification of elders, with special reference to the unsavory reputation of the Cretans and the Judaic errors to be combated (1:5-16). He also delineated certain Christian precepts for aged men and women, the young of both sexes, and slaves (Chapter 2). He urges on Titus some personal advice as to exemplifying gentleness in his dealings with his people (3:1-7). He concludes by insisting on his devoting himself to practical duties, instead of turning aside to idle and profitless speculations, and he sends a few personal messages and salutations (3:8-15).

—o—

SEATED on the hill side, the Master looks intently at the distant city. The scene is one of beauty; trees and shrubs with leaves of varied colorings; the white city in the distance, above which the sky is painted a blaze of color by the setting sun. The Master's thoughts are not for the beauty thus displayed, but for the neglected opportunity, the great chance which had come and been refused by the city so beloved of Him. He who had come to be their King; He who had come that they might be free from sin and death; free to live that glorious life with Him, their King, their Friend, their Savior, they had refused. Their pain, sorrow and suffering; their destruction, all would have been spared—

"If thou hadst known, O Jerusalem!"

Does He not now sit and look down with that wistful yearning, not at the distant city, but into your heart and mine?

Beware lest we shall some day hear Him say,
"If thou hadst only known!"—Selected.

THE HINDERED CHRIST

The Lord Christ wanted a tongue one day
To speak a message of cheer
To a heart that was weary and worn and sad,
And weighed with a mighty fear.
He asked me for mine, but 'twas busy quite
With my own affairs from morn till night.

The Lord Christ wanted a hand one day
To do a loving deed;
He wanted two feet, on an errand for Him
To run with gladsome speed.
But I had need of my own that day;
To His gentle beseeching I answered, "Nay!"

So all that day I used my tongue,
My hands, and my feet as I chose;
I said some hasty, bitter words
That hurt one heart, God knows.
I busied my hands with worthless play,
And my wilful feet went a crooked way.

And the dear Lord Christ, was His work undone
For lack of a willing heart?
Only through men does He speak to men?
Dumb must He be apart?
I do not know, but I wish today
I had let the Lord Christ have His way.
—Christian Endeavor World.

SEEING GOD

By Samuel E. Haney

"Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."

JUST what it will mean to see God is beyond the bounds of the finite mind. John says, 1:18, "No man hath seen God at any time", which he repeats in 1 John 4:12. This should definitely settle the subject, although there are several instances recorded which implicatively deny this. For instance, our first parents talked with God, Genesis 3, and several other Bible characters communicated with God verbally and through the mediation of angels, without seeing Him.

By far most Christians believe God is an invisible Spirit Being, in the sense of being void of a corporeal existence. But a couple of texts refute this deduction.

The nearest approach of man ever seeing his Creator is recorded in Exodus 33:20-23, "And he said, Thou canst not see my face; for there shall no man see me, and live. And the Lord said, Behold, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stand upon a rock: and it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee in a cleft of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand while I pass by: and I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts; but my face shall not be seen".

John had this to say, 5:37, "The Father who sent me has also borne testimony to me Himself; but His voice you have never heard, His form you have never seen, His word you have not kept with you, because you do not believe Him whom He sent."—Moffatt. And Paul says, Heb. 12:14, "Aim at peace with all—and at that consecration without which no one will ever see the Lord (God)."—Moffatt.

Those who maintain the idea of a non-corporeal God have the same thought concerning Jesus, despite His words to the contrary, namely, "They were scared and terrified, imagining it was a ghost they saw; but He said to them, Why are you upset? Why do doubts invade your mind? Look at my hands and feet. It is I! Feel me and see; a ghost has not flesh and bones as you see I have (with these words He showed them His hands and feet). Even yet they could not believe it for sheer joy; they were lost in wonder. So He said to them, Have you any food here? And when they handed Him a piece of broiled fish, He took and ate it—in their presence."—Luke 24:37-43, Moffatt.

Stephen confirms the corporeity of both Father and Son: "But he (Stephen), being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, and said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God"—Acts 7:55, 56.

What qualification is essential then to see God? Paul answers: "Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God."—2 Cor. 7:1.

And John announces the result of this "perfect holiness": "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."—1 John 3:1, 2.

Paul further explains what, "being like him" is to eventually mean to us: "He, reflecting God's bright glory and stamped with God's own character (and the express image of His (God's) own person, A. V., italics mine), sustains the universe with His word of power; when He had secured our purification from sins, He sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high."—Heb. 1:3, Moffatt.

This is what our blessed Redeemer suffered and died for, namely, that we might regain our original status with God, as recorded in Genesis 1:26, namely, "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness."—Italics mine.

But all this does not explain the question, "Just what it means to see God?", because the question is inexplicable to mortal man. We get an occasional inkling from the Bible of God's personality and character, and something of the versatility of His work, as depicted in the firmament and the animal and vegetable kingdoms. The sun is not too

(Continued on page 570)

A REASON FOR OUR HOPE

(Continued from front page)

Surely, Shakespeare, who knew and wrote of men so well, can answer Job. Let Hamlet give us his answer:

“But that the dread of something after death,
The undiscovered country from whose bourne
No traveler returns, puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of.
Thus conscience does make cowards of us all.”

In “As You Like It”, how truly Jacques describes the seven ages of man, beginning with these words, “All the world’s a stage”, etc., closing with these lines,

“Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness and mere oblivion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans every thing.”

Let us go back to God’s Word. Philosophers nor philosophy can help us to answer Job’s question. “But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee, of the hope and resurrection of the dead, I am called in question.” Ah, yes, the eternal question, “If a man die, shall he live again?” Listen again, “And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers; unto which promise our twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come. For which hope’s sake, King Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews.”

Now listen, as I recite one of the most wonderful verses in the whole Bible. “Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?” Acts 23:6 and Acts 26:7. Had God not already raised Jesus from the dead? “Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death; because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.” Acts 2:24. How thankful I am to God that He raised up Jesus from the dead. “But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the firstfruits of them that slept.” 1 Cor. 15:20.

But suppose God had not raised Christ and that He was still sleeping in the tomb? Paul gives the answer which I wish my readers to think over: “If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.”

Paul says in Romans 5:4, “And hope maketh not ashamed: because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit, which is given unto us.” Read Romans 8:9-14. How do we get this spirit? James 1:18 is the answer.

In Acts 8:12, we read, “But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women.” “For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ.” To my mind the symbol of baptism is beautiful and very wonderful. Suppose the administrator had held me under the water five minutes. I should not be writing this but lying in the grave.

When I became a citizen of the United States of America, my knowledge of its history, constitution, and laws did not constitute me a citizen, but the magic word in answer to the judge’s demand, “Do you forswear all allegiance to every other government, ruler, or potentate, especially Queen Victoria?” I answered, “I do.” The judge then declared me to be a citizen of the United States of America and entitled to enjoy all the rights and privileges appertaining to any other loyal and law abiding citizen.

Why treat God in a way more mysterious than we do each other, in all the various vicissitudes of life? Baptism in itself means nothing, only the symbol it teaches in the death that Christ died to sin, your faith in that death, and the hope of a resurrection. In God’s sight this act of obedience constitutes you a child of His, and your standing as such rests upon your faithfulness and loyalty to Him, assumed in the waters of baptism.

When God made me a child of His by adopting me into His family, my mind became impregnated with the good Word of God, “and that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again. Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more. Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are made new. And all things are of God: who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation.” 2 Cor. 5:15-18.

Now I understand Romans 15:13: “Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost.” In God is my hope centered, for it is laid up for me in heaven. “And when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.”

“The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.” Rom. 8:16-18, 22.

“Behold; what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.”—1 John 3:1-3.

THE CHURCH OF THE GENTILES THE MYSTERY OF GOD

(Continued from page 565)

the altar, the sealing of the 144,000 Israelites, and various troubles.

The second division, consisting of seven trumpets, deals with judgments upon, first, the earth; second, the sea; third, rivers and fountains of waters; fourth, heavenly bodies; fifth, mankind without the seal of God; sixth, nations in war, loosing the four angels in the Euphrates; seventh, mystery completed, martyrdom and resurrection of the two witnesses and the passing of nations under God's rule. The significant number is the fraction, one-third, an increase over the former series of judgments.

The closing of the trumpets brings the three beast powers, that one after the other persecute the crowned woman who gave birth to the man child. The dragon power subsides, and the beast power takes his place and authority, eventually passing his authority to the horned lamb, dragon-mouthed beast.

These with the mystery Babylon and the other powers succumb under the vial judgments which are termed "filled up with the wrath of God." No fraction here; it is complete upon, first, earth; second, sea; third, rivers and fountains of waters; fourth, sun; fifth, seat of the beast; sixth, river Euphrates and Armageddon; seventh, air.

God's people, both Jew and Gentile of the latter end church, will no doubt pass through the partial judgments. But before the complete vengeance upon the kingdom of the antichrist falls, they will have been drawn out of the earth, and will assist in its overthrow.

SEEING GOD

(Continued from page 568)

large and conspicuous, nor is a dewdrop, concealed beneath a leaf, too small and unnoticeable to manifest God's handiwork.

We see God revealing His majesty and power on Mount Sinai: thunders and lightnings, thick clouds, fire and smoke as the smoke of a furnace. The whole mount quaked. After Moses had been with the Lord forty days and forty nights in the mount, he knew not that the skin of his face so shone that he had to put a veil over it while talking to the children of Israel. Ex. 19 and 34.

Then we see God amid His infinitesimal creation. "A sparrow will not fall to the ground unless your Father wills it."—Moffatt. "And the very hairs of your head are all numbered."

We also see that God's inimitable love, as revealed in the sacrifice of His Son to redeem man from everlasting death, is no more incomparable than is His wrath to be displayed upon unrepentant and disobedient sinners. Jesus explains, Matt. 24:21, 22, "For there will be sore misery then, such as has never been from the beginning of the world till now—no and never shall be. Had not those days been cut short, not a soul would be saved alive; however, for the sake of the elect, those days will be cut short."—Moffatt.

The writer has here but cursorily referred to some of our heavenly Father's attributes, and imperfectly described what it will mean to be brought face to face into the august presence of our loving Creator, if faithful to the end of our career. For the time is coming when God will transfer His dwellingplace to this earth, as it is written: "And I heard a loud voice out of the throne, crying, Lo, God's dwellingplace is with men, with men will He dwell; they shall be His people, and God will Himself be with them: He will wipe every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more—no more wailing or crying or pain, for the first things have passed away."—Rev. 21:3, Moffatt.

The above citations and comments, comparatively speaking, convey merely a side light conception of the Eternal One, the Creator and Manager of the universe, the immensity of which is beyond man's ability to fathom.

REPRESENTATION TO GENERAL CONFERENCE

(Continued from page 563)

as a whole would from its treasury make it financially possible for them thus to attend. We urge that the several churches and conferences will recognize the righteousness of this petition and that they will respectively provide representation to the coming General Conference.

It is further recommended that the local churches seriously consider sending their respective pastors, that the several state conferences will as seriously consider sending their respective evangelists to the coming General Conference, and that their respective salaries be continued the same as though they were performing their regular duties.

Every church and every evangelistic district should be able to realize more service from a worker returning from the General Conference than they would receive were that worker kept at home and deprived of the contact and fellowship and point of view gained through the meeting with many other workers.

Again, the General Conference, as also the several state conferences, receives greater information and impetus and strength as it comes to be made up of the largest possible number of earnest workers who have the cause of the local labors, as well as the cause of the general labors, deeply at heart.

This is an earnest plea that each and every state or local church will at once prepare to send representation to the forthcoming General Conference.

F. L. Austin, Sec'y.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE RESTITUTION HERALD, $2.00 PER YEAR.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"TOUCH NOT, TASTE NOT, HANDLE NOT."

DANIEL IN THE LION'S DEN

DARIUS was king over the Medes and Persians. It pleased Darius to reign over the kingdom with one hundred and twenty princes as rulers. He had three presidents to see that the princes did their duty. Daniel was the first president.

The princes made a law that any man who would ask help from any other god should be put into a lion's den. Now there was a window in Daniel's home which faced Jerusalem. Three time each day Daniel would kneel and pray. The princes who had been watching Daniel told the king about this. He was very grieved when he heard this, but he had made his decree and so commanded that Daniel be put in the den of the hungry lions.

That night the king did not want any music, nor did he sleep. The next morning he was up early and went down to the lion's den to see if the lions had eaten Daniel. But Daniel was a good man, and God had sent an angel to close the mouths of the lions. The king then had the rock taken from the door, and Daniel was free. He then had the men who had accused Daniel put into the lion's den. These men were very mean, and God did not send an angel to close the mouths of the lions, and as they were very hungry, the men were destroyed.

Marjorie Richey, Martinsville, Ill., age 10.

God raised up Daniel as a witness for Himself in wicked Babylon. He was beset by many temptations. At his disposal was everything to satisfy the lusts of the carnal mind—food, drink, pleasure, power. Surely the voice of the tempter must have come to him, saying, "Compromise a little! Where is the harm of enjoying the good things of life?"

But no; Daniel had purposed in his heart, in his soul, to remain true to his God. And so he stood, staunch and fearless, resisting appetite, the king's pleasure, and the tender love of his friends.

Today we stand, as did Daniel, in a world of wickedness and temptation. We are being watched just as Daniel was watched by the princes of old. Our business is to live right, denying ourselves, taking up our crosses, purposing in our hearts, day by day, that we will not defile ourselves.

We are witnesses for Jesus. When the test comes to us, let us dare to be true to our God and have the courage to stand for our convictions. Let us "touch not, taste not, handle not" those things that will certainly draw us into this Babylon of worldliness and cause us to lose sight of the promise of eternal life with Christ.

ATTENTION, BEREANS!

THOSE who have finished Book No. 2 and want another study book can secure some that were used from 1923-1925 or 1921-1923. There are a goodly number of the first on hand and several of the second. These can be had for the small sum of ten cents apiece and will fill in very nicely while the new ones are being printed. Address, National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois, for these books.

ILLINOIS STATE BEREAN REPORT (APRIL)

Oregon: Membership, 23; average weekly attendance, 17.
Ruth Gesin, Sec.

Ripley: Membership 26; average weekly attendance, 23; interest, good.
Mrs. Lorene Fey, Sec.

Dixon: Membership, 11; average weekly attendance, 6; interest, fair. Attendance has not been very good lately.

Junior: Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 12; interest, very good. This class is progressing rapidly.

Primary: Membership, 5; average weekly attendance, 4; interest, very good.

Elizabeth Ford, Sec.

Marshall: Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 9; interest, good.
Edith Hendrix, Sec.

Edna Wood, State Sec.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 16; Ohio, 15; Michigan 8; California, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE SIN OF CAUSING OTHERS TO STUMBLE

PAUL was the greatest teacher or preacher after the time of Jesus. He preached to the Gentiles and converted many of them. He would help organize a church in one city and then go on to another and do likewise. Often he would write letters of encouragement and advice back to these churches.

Our lesson today is part of such a letter written to the Roman church. The question had arisen as to whether it was right for Christians to do certain things or to eat certain foods.

Paul expressed the answer in the simple thought that Christians should not judge one another, but do nothing that would cause another to do wrong. Paul said he was persuaded that many things in themselves were not wrong, but if someone felt that these things were wrong, they were wrong for that person to do.

If a brother is weak and might fall into sin, it would be better to deny oneself any pleasure or indulgence.

God's kingdom is not meat and drink, but righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. Therefore, we should do the things that work toward peace and things that help or teach one another.

Doing right is the only way to bring happiness.

ARE WE doing anything that will make anyone else do wrong?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Learn the Golden Text.
2. Read all of Romans 14.
3. Read Romans 14:21; 14:12; 14:8.
4. Read V. C. T., Page 51 in the quarterly.

You still have two weeks to learn Isaiah 35. You could learn a verse every other day and have it by the end of the quarter.

THE THREE WANDERERS

There was once a wily old Hassan who was a dealer in human nature. He sat meditating in his doorway one day, when three young men passed eagerly by.

"Whom art thou following, my sons?" he asked.

"I follow after Pleasure," said the oldest.

"Pleasure!" exclaimed the old Hassan. "Be thou cautious on thy way."

"And I follow after Riches," said the second. "Pleasure will come with Riches."

"Beware!" warned the old man. "Let Prudence be thy guide. And you, my little lad?" he asked of the youngest.

"I follow after Duty," he said modestly. And each went on his way.

Long years after, in his journeyings, the old Hassan came upon three weary wanderers.

"My good man," said he to the first, "methinks thou wert the youth who was following after Pleasure. Did'st thou overtake her?"

"No, father," he replied. "Pleasure is but a phantom that flies as one approaches."

"Thou didst not follow the right way, my son. How didst thou fare, thou seeker after Riches?" he asked of the second.

"Riches is a sore burden; Pleasure is not of it. I am distressed," he answered.

"Thou didst not follow the right way, my son. And thou?" inquired the old man, addressing the youngest.

"As I walked with Duty," he replied, "Pleasure and Riches walked ever by my side, and my burdens were light."

"It is ever thus," said the old Hassan. "Pleasure pursued is not overtaken; only her shadow is caught by him who pursues. Riches pursued adds burden and distress. Pleasure and Riches ever go forth with Duty, and he who maketh Duty his bosom companion maketh a companion three."—Sunshine Magazet.

PRAYER SONG

For food, and clothes, and sleeping beds,
 We bow our grateful little heads;
 For love, and lessons, and for play,
 We fold our hands our thanks to say;
 For sun, and wind, and sea, and sky,
 We sing Thy praise, dear God, on high.
 Give us, we pray, Thy spirit, too,
 Living in all we say or do,
 So that our works like Thine may be,
 Beautiful eternally.—Selected.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 12. — June 21, 1931

THE SIN OF CAUSING OTHERS TO STUMBLE (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

Romans 14:13-23

Devotional Reading: 1 John 4:7-13

GOLDEN TEXT

It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth.—Romans 14:21.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Abstaining for the Sake of Others.

Basic Truth. "Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend."—1 Cor. 8:13.

I. The Strong and the Weak. (a) God's Way. Everywhere throughout the world there are the strong and the weak. "The survival of the fittest", though apparently true to nature in many forms, is in many ways false to the laws of God. From the earliest time God's commission to the strong has been that he should preserve and edify the weak.

Christ was strong in righteousness; He was without sin, and yet, because of His strength and because of the utter wickedness of others, He died, to the end that the weak might come to live. Without Him the weak had no escape from eternal death.

The apostle Paul, because of his strength, was charged with the responsibility of aiding his weak brethren. The parent is made responsible for the child. The teacher must sacrifice for the pupil. The high priest must devote himself to atone for the sins of the people.

Everywhere God has charged the strong with the responsibility of building the weak.

(b) Man's Way. How differently does man's way lead. He who is strong in mind takes advantage of him who is weak. The master appropriates the labors of the slave. The rich too often rise by the sum total of the advantages or profits from those who are less strong. The thief robs the one who is unable to defend himself. The murderer slays the defenseless one. The captain of industry "corners" the products and the opportunities of those who hold positions of less advantage. He who is powerful in tactics on the market forces the market to the greatest possible injury of his competitors.

The Strong and the Weak. Man is the weak; God is the strong. Man would weaken his own position and himself by doing contrary to God's directions. God would strengthen man by having him follow His own ways.

II. Applied to Christians. Our lesson would charge all Christians with the responsibility of aiding all who are weaker. In this the Christian principle seems almost opposite to the worldly principle. Man reasons that for self-protection he should take advantage of those opportunities afforded him by the shortsightedness of his weaker brother. This perhaps is the one great wrong in playing of games. The checker player seeks out the weak moves of his opponent with a view to profit thereby. The opposing teams each watch with eagle eye for the least weakness of the other and when found, rush with the swiftness of a falcon descending to his prey, and attack before the error can be covered. This method is universally commended as keen judgment.

Not so with the Christian! He is to walk, not by such reasoning, but by faith. He is to discover the weaknesses of his neighbors that he may lend strength. Paul teaches in this lesson that even though a thing is perfectly right in itself in the eyes of God, yet if its use would injure one who is weaker, it should not be utilized. Living for the weak is an outstanding principle of the Bible.

III. Mutual Advantage. The mutual advantage growing from the exercise of God's way in this particular is everywhere outstanding. God, He who is all strength, is yet glorified in the achievements of His creation for others. Jesus, the righteous, sinless One, is greatly benefited and aided by the gathered multitudes who, having received His aid, will yet, as one with Him, promote and maintain world wide righteousness and life. Had He not died for them, they never could have attained this position. Had they never attained this position, He never could have experienced the greater joy of world wide and world filled righteousness.

Mutual upbuilding is God's program. Man's way seems to be to build the one at the expense of the many. God's way is that the able one should build the unable, which process shall result in the upbuilding of both.

A general application of this principle can but repudiate the present aim of certain ones for the national use of all poisonous narcotics and alcohols, the fundamental agitation for which comes, after all, from those who seek that financial gain which can only be made opportune by the greatest possible imposition of wrong upon the many.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth."—Rom. 14:21.

Paul knew there was but one God, the Father, and that sacrificing to idols in no way affected the meat; but some about him were not so sure about it. As far as Paul was concerned, he could eat the meat that had been used in sacrifice to idols, for the meat was just as good as before; but to those who thought the meat was polluted by its being offered to idols, it was a sin for them to eat it. So Paul said he would refrain from eating anything that another might think was wrong, for if he did, it would cause the other to sin.

Paul was very careful for fear he might put a stumbling-block in any one's way. It is just as important today for Christians who are well grounded in the faith to be careful as to what they say and do, for fear of causing a weaker member to stumble or be offended.

There are many things beside eating meat offered to idols that one Christian might do that another could not conscientiously do, and so the one doing it, might cause the other to stumble. "When ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ." 1 Cor. 8:12.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Stumbling-blocks: It is poor judgment on our part to let others beset us on our journey of life, yet we do. We are not only beset, but we cause others to stumble and err, sometimes unintentionally, sometimes purposely. We never know the extent of our influence on the lives and actions of others. But that we do influence some, there can be no doubt.

Discuss how the following may be made a stumbling-block to our associates:

Conversation

Actions

Associations

Home life

Should we forego certain pleasures of life, quit certain habits, such as the use of tobacco, dancing, etc., if such have a tendency to cause someone to fall? When a person causes another to fall, who is at fault, the tempting one, or the tempted? Or are they equally guilty? To what extent should we try to justify our actions?—C. E. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

The Christian is not only exhorted to "abhor that which is evil" and "follow not evil", but "abstain from all appearance of evil". We should not only be very careful to avoid sin, but also that which has even a distant appearance thereof.

In keeping with this thought, Paul (1 Cor. 8) argues that an idol is nothing. Therefore it was not wrong for him to eat meat which had been offered to idols. But, if in taking liberty to do so, you thereby become a stumbling-block to them that are weak, you sin against a brother; hence, against Christ. Paul's conclusion in v. 13 is, "If meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend".

With tender and exact care, ought Christians to avoid dubious or even innocent and careless practices, which may grieve their fellow believers, and cause their falling into sin.

—F. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Ohio, Brush Creek,	June 7 to 14
Minnesota, Eden Valley,	June 11 to 14
Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30

HOLBROOK (NEB.) CONFERENCE

The Annual Conference of the Church of God at Holbrook will be held from August 15 to 23, inclusive.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

The Annual Michigan State Conference will be held at Grand Rapids from June 25 to 28, inclusive, preceded by a Bible School beginning the evening of June 22. L. E. Conner and F. E. Siple will be the teachers and speakers for the week.

Bee Soleum, Sec.

THINK OF IT THIS WAY

Instead of saying that you cannot afford to attend General and Illinois Conference and Bible School this year, say that you cannot afford to miss it. Remember the date and place—August 4 to 16 at Oregon, Illinois. There may not be many more years in which to attend to the King's business.

TEXAS CONFERENCE AND BIBLE SCHOOL

The Annual Conference and Bible School of the Churches of God in Texas will be held at Riviera, Texas, July 10 to 20, D. V.

Riviera is on the Gulf Coast Railroad, about sixty miles south of Corpus Christe, only a few miles from the Gulf of Mexico and in the edge of the orange and grape fruit orchards of South Texas, and only a little over a hundred miles from Old Mexico. Good paved roads from Kansas through Oklahoma, Fort Worth, Houston, or San Antonio, via Corpus Christe to Riviera.

The brethren at Riviera and Kingsville are preparing to feed all who come and expenses will be small in that line. Furnished rooms can be had for those who wish, at small expense, by writing for them. Those who wish can camp near the meeting place.

Although times are a little close we are looking for and expecting one of the best meetings we have had yet. Come and help make it so.

Brothers Austin and Stewart, and perhaps others of our preachers and teachers will be with us.

If you need a room or anything else write Sister W. L. Robins at Riviera, Texas, at least ten days before Conference time. If not in need of these things drop her a card telling her that you will be there so that they will know how many to provide for, and if you do not have time for that, come anyway and you will be welcomed. We will be looking for you there.

President of Conference.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley,	Rt. 1, Bx. 25
	Sumas, Washington

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

On Sunday, June 7, a special series of meetings began at Eden Valley and these will continue at least through June 17. Elder Jas. A. Patrick, of Ashland, Ohio, will be the leading speaker. During this series of meetings the fifty-seventh Annual Conference of the Minnesota Church of God will convene, June 11 to 14. Ministers who are on the program for the Conference are: Jas. A. Patrick, C. E. Randall, T. M. Savage, Ray M. Abbott, Fred J. Daubanton, John Denehfield, Orrin Roe Jenks, and Sydney E. Magaw.

It may be a long time, in fact, this may be the last time, that our Minnesota ministers are all together, and we trust that you will try to attend this Conference and do your bit to make it one of the best we have yet had.

Sydney E. Magaw, Conf. Pres.

SOME ILLINOIS APPOINTMENTS

Bro. C. E. Lapp will be with the Ripley church on Saturday evening and Sunday, June 13 and 14. From there he will go to Eldorado and hold services for the brethren there from the 16 over the following Sunday and probably a little longer. Let us keep these services in mind and lend our assistance by being present as much as possible.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Cecil A. Smcad, Pastor

Sunday School	9:30 a. m.
Morning Worship	10:30 a. m.
Berean Meeting	7:00 p. m.
Evening Worship	7:45 p. m.
Young People's Berean, Thursday	8:00 p. m.

All are most cordially invited to attend these meetings.

VACATION TIME

Services with the Chicago brethren will be discontinued for the next two or three months.

AT SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Bro. J. R. LeCrone of the Training Class, will speak at South Bend, Indiana, on Sunday, June 21, and probably a few evenings following. You will be well repaid if you make an extra effort to hear Bro. LeCrone. He is an interesting and sincere speaker.

Bro. Austin is giving a series of Sunday evening sermons on the nations of earth in the light of prophecy. There are no Sunday evening services in the other churches of Oregon, and our services are attracting good sized audiences. We trust the seed sown may bring honor to our heavenly Father.

Sr. Jessie Wilson, after spending almost seven months in the west, which time was enjoyed very greatly, is glad to be back in Chicago again.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone will be present at the Brush Creek (Ohio) June Meeting, June 7 to 14, and will assist with the teaching.

REPORT FOR MAY

Sermons: South Bend, 11; Rensselaer, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Burr Oak, 1; St. Louis, Missouri, 1; Blush, Missouri, 5; Salem, Ohio, 1; Fonthill, Canada, 4.

Baptisms: 6.

Money received in Indiana: South Bend, $33.00; Rensselaer, $30.00; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $6.00; Burr Oak, $10.00. Paid Conference Board, 66¢.

Note: This has been a very busy month. We had a very enjoyable meeting in South Bend and four were baptized. In Blush, Missouri, two were baptized, and we had the best attendance we ever had there. There were thirty from St. Louis, who came one hundred miles to worship with us. Their presence was an inspiration to the members. On Thursday evening, May 28, we spoke in the Salem, Ohio, church, the former home of Bro. and Sr. Robison. Here we met Bro. R. G. Huggins, of Cleveland, Ohio, an old schoolmate of ours.

On Friday, May 29, we entered Canada by way of the Falls. This was our first visit to the Falls and Canada. I can't describe either one—Wonderful! Bro. Randall, pastor of the church at Fonthill, met us at the Falls and took us to Bro. Elliot's home, where we found a home during the meeting. Bro. Randall is doing a good work there. I never enjoyed a meeting more in my life than I enjoyed that one. Maggie, Lonnie, Harold, Pearl and Miss Nora Wood were with us.

J. H. Anderson.

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE BOOK

A new book of fifty-two pages, giving a history of the Church of God in Minnesota, is now ready for sale. This book is neatly made with first quality materials and will make an ideal gift. It is illustrated with twenty-seven good clear pictures. In addition to the history of the Minnesota work, there are a number of short sermons by our different ministers included, and also an historic sketch of the General Conference by Bro. Austin. This book is edited by Sydney Magaw and presented to the brotherhood by the Minnesota State Conference of the Church of God. The sale price is $1.00 each. Send your orders to Mrs. T. M. Savage, Waite Park, Minnesota.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Our Annual May Meeting opened on Friday night, May 29, with a hearty sing-song, conducted by our pastor, C. E. Randall, after which the opening sermon was given by Rev. J. H. Anderson of Indiana. Saturday morning a Bible study was presided over by Bro. Randall, while in the afternoon Bro. Anderson preached a forcible sermon. Saturday evening a large congregation listened to a very interesting sermon by our visiting minister.

Sunday morning found the weather smiling upon us and the "Church in the Heart of the Village", a bower of lilacs, spirea, tulips, and other lovely flowers, the work of willing and capable hands, long before many of us had left our places of rest. Sunday School was conducted by Sr. Railton, after which a full church attentively listened to Bro. Anderson's splendid discourse. At the close of this service, a large number partook of Communion together. This was an impressive service, and we feel was greatly appreciated by many from a distance.

Dinner was then served in the basement, and after partaking of such a bountiful supply of delicious food, we cannot help but feel, that to be able to provide in such an abundance during these times of depression, is positive proof of God's blessing upon us.

After dinner Bro. Randall, using his very interesting chart, spoke to a crowded church on "The Signs of the Times," and at the close of this session five candidates came forward requesting baptism. They were Mr. and Mrs. Bouisfield, their two sons, and Melvin Haines.

The closing evening service was very largely attended, about three hundred persons being present, all of whom seemed to greatly enjoy Bro. Anderson's closing address.

The choir rendered special music throughout the meetings, ably assisted by Sr. Page at the organ. Many special selections were enjoyed, and we feel special mention should be at least made of the younger ones. These were Shirley Sullivan of Niagara Falls and Margaret Shute and Leona Wilson of the Fonthill church. These little girls set a great example for many of us older ones. They willingly contribute, using their talents, not hiding them away in darkness.

On a whole the meetings seemed to be greatly blessed, and on every hand one heard expressions of appreciation and satisfaction—in other words, "It was good to be there."

Visitors were present from Lancaster, Rochester, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Sanborn and Fredonia, New York; Toronto, Brantford, Grovenhurst, Smithville, Hamilton, and St. Catharines, Ontario.

Immediately after the closing meeting Bro. Randall left for Minnesota, where he will be for the next three weeks, while assisting with the Minnesota Conference. On his return he will be accompanied by Sr. Randall and son, Celaine. They will take up residence in Fonthill right next door to the church. We hope and pray that Sr. Randall will like Canada and be happy here with us.

The service next Sunday evening will be conducted by Bro. George Rennard of the Falls church.

A letter read at the May Meeting from Bro. and Sr. Grover Gordon of Nebraska, was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by all.

HERALD RECEIPTS

John I. Robins; Mrs. C. H. Simpson; Jas. A. Patrick; Jessie M. Wilson; Mrs. C. L. Austin; J. J. Handley; Sam Bradley; S. P. Dismukes; Mrs. E. L. Griffin; Russell Currens; Elizabeth Dauterich; H. E. Shepherd; Blanche Tilton; Mrs. Mae Mercer; N. Goodreau; Mrs. Julia Orndung.

GRAND RAPIDS CHURCH

Our church was happy to entertain several from out of town for the week end of May 31. Our much beloved Sr. Walls and daughter Frances, together with the Kaspers, Mogles and Sommers of Rockford, Illinois, also Margaret Lyon and Richard Duval of Chicago. It was an inspiration to have them visit our little church.

The selling of "brick" by our Sunday School students for the raising of funds toward a larger church is arousing lots of interest. It is surprising how energetically some take hold of such a matter. Brothers Woodburn and Slocum have charge of this work. Already the two white elephants are speckled with patches of gray.

Attendance at Sunday School still holds well above two hundred, which we feel to be excellent for this time of year. Evening service on May 24th numbered sixty-two.

Final preparations are now being made for conference to convene June 21 to 28. All day meetings will be held on both Sundays, and Bible school conducted through the week. A cordial invitation is extended to all. For further information address the secretary, Mrs. Lynn Slocum, 635 Alexander St., S. E., or the pastor, 50 Cherryvale, S. W.

Special effort is to be made to get people of the community to attend the Bible School work at Conference time. And we will be glad to see many from a distance at that time. Remember that Bro. Conner is to help in this work.

Come and worship with us.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

FROM BRO. PATRICK

Dear Restitution Herald: Again I crave your indulgence. Some of our brethren have been somewhat concerned about my hand and have wondered if the results of the treatment would be permanent. I am pleased to know that some have been kind enough to give me a passing thought. My hand is nicely healed and the scar will hardly be noticeable, although the wound, when the cancer came out was about as big as a half dollar and all of a quarter of an inch deep. I know one man in Ashland that had a cancer removed at the same place mine was, and he is all right, and that was six or seven years ago. Sr. Woodward suggests that I give the name and address of the Sanatorium, as there have been several inquiries for it. It is: Sheppard Cancer Sanatorium, 2311 North Maine St., Findlay, Ohio.

Jas. A. Patrick.

GOOD WORDS FROM DELTA, OHIO

Very gratifying reports come from Delta, Ohio, as to Bro. J. R. LeCrone's services with them. Sr. Roscoe Dunbar writes: "Our people here liked Bro. LeCrone very much and thought he did exceptionally well, not only our own people, but outsiders as well. We had good crowds every time he spoke. The young people responded so well and turned out and helped with the music. On Monday evening there was a record breaking crowd."

May God bless the efforts of Bro. LeCrone in the tour he is making and may much good result.

CORRESPONDENCE

I wish to extend a few words of thanks and appreciation to the many dear sisters in Christ for their kind and spiritual letters of cheer and love to me. God bless them! Each letter cast a ray of sunshine across the pathway of my life and brightened my solitary hours. They helped make a rift in the seemingly dark cloud of my afflictions and let through the sunbeams of my Savior's smiling face upon me, in verification of His precious promise, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Matt. 28:20.

God said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Heb. 13:5. Glory to His name! These are very precious promises. They are as balm unto my soul and give evidence that I have an Elder Brother who will remember me. I know that if we will only just bow to His will and firmly believe and trust in Him, we shall see the glory of God and enjoy it: for God says, "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee; I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." Josh. 1:5. Praise God! We read in Romans 15:4: "Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope."

Yes, the God of olden times is just the same today. God has been and is very good to me. He has administered His sustaining and comforting love, and by His key of love, He has opened up His storehouse and given needed assistance by inspiring the hearts of His dear children to remember me. Words are inadequate to express my heartfelt gratitude for all this.

I want to say I think The Restitution Herald is an inspiring and a spiritual paper. It has given me much light on the Word of God; and it, with the many comforting letters, makes me feel more buoyant. The Gospel Trumpet is a little gem like unto it. I feel so grateful to the dear ones who have paid the subscriptions of these two papers in the past for me so that I might enjoy them.

I wish to say to all who feel inspired to write letters of comfort to me to be sure to address them to Route 1, Box 25, Sumas, Washington, as there is another family or two on Route 1, but they have no box number. Sometimes my mail goes to them. Some of my mail must get lost, as I find that some have written me letters that I have never received. I never received Sr. Barber's letter. She said she wrote to me last February. I started to answer each letter but did not get many answered when I ran short of stamps, and while waiting to get some, I was taken with the flu, and have been very sick with it and have suffered much with the rheumatism. I am now over it all, but it left me very weak.

I ask an interest in all your prayers. Oh, pray for me, dear ones. Paul says in Ephesians 7:18 to pray always "with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints." And in James 5:16 we read, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." I believe in prayer, for without it we lose sight of God, and we can do nothing of ourselves. Your sister in Christian love, a cripple and a shut in,

Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates. — 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE WORLD'S GREAT NEED AND THE REMEDY

(Continued from page 564)

Zion from henceforth, even for ever."—(Psa. 72:7 and Micah 4:3, 7.)

"The kingdoms of this world" are destined to "become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."—Rev. 11:15. When "the Lord of heaven" shall "set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed;" wise indeed will be earth's rulers, who will heed the admonition given, "Be wise now therefore, O ye kings: be instructed, ye judges of the earth. Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice with trembling. Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all they that put their trust in him."—Daniel 2:44; Psalm 2:10-12.

The refusal of allegiance to the King of kings, and Lord of lords, will meet with swift retribution, for "the Lord at thy right hand shall strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He shall judge among the heathen; he shall fill the places with the dead bodies; he shall wound the heads over many countries."—Rev. 19:16; Psalm 110:5, 6.

The Bible reveals "another king, one Jesus"; who was born "to this end," and who came into the world "for this cause," that He should "reign in righteousness" "over all the earth", His divinely given "inheritance." (Acts 17:7; John 18:37; Isa. 32:1; Zech. 14:9; Psa. 2:8.)

"Glorious things" are spoken of "mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King". (Psa. 48:2; 87:3; Isa. 60:11, 12.) From this metropolitan city of earth's coming King, "shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." (Isa. 2:3; Zech. 14:16-19.) Incorruptibility, purity, and fadeless beauty will characterize the city of the great King. (1 Peter 1:3-5; Matt. 5:34, 35; Isa. 60:13, 14; 62:1-5.)

Foolish indeed will be the confederated rulers and kings of earth, as they "take counsel together, against the Lord, and against his anointed, saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us."—Psa. 2:2, 3.

Heaven's decree has gone forth—"Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."—Psa. 2:6-8.

This universal Ruler, made "higher than the kings of the earth", with His royal cabinet who have been called "unto his kingdom and glory", will eventually "put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet." (Psa. 89:27; 1 Thess. 1:12; Matt. 13:43; 19:28; 1 Cor. 15:24, 25.)

When the absent Nobleman returns from the far country, "having received the kingdom," with his delegated power he will bring into subjection to his beneficent rule, "all people, nations, and languages", "under the whole heaven". (Luke 19:11-15; Matt. 28:18; Rev. 11:17, 18;

Daniel 7:13, 18, 27.) I am glad that the earth that witnessed His tears and was moistened with His blood, shall yet be vocal with His praise! (Rev. 5:13.) Nevermore will His enemies place a platted crown of thorns upon His head and a scarlet robe upon His sacred person, in mockery of His claim. (Matt. 27:28-30; Mark 15:29-32.)

Earth's wrongs will be righted. Truth will be vindicated. Although "he is despised and rejected of men," God "hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus, every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."—Isa. 53:3; Phil. 2:9-11.

Open rebellion to God's appointed Ruler cannot be tolerated; for "he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead."—Acts 3:19-23; 17:30-32. "But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them; bring hither, and slay them before me."—Luke 19:14, 27.

Listen to the song of triumph, as sung by the royal cabinet of the King of kings—"Let the saints be joyful in glory: let them sing aloud upon their beds. Let the high praises of God be in their mouth, and a twoedged sword in their hand; to execute vengeance upon the heathen, and punishment upon the people; to bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron; to execute upon them the judgment written: this honor hath all his saints. Praise ye the Lord."—Psa. 149:5-9.

What wonderful "times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord," when "thine eyes shall see the King in his beauty", and "violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise." (Acts 3:19-23; Isa. 33:17-22; 60:18.) Let all nature "be joyful together before the Lord; for he cometh to judge the earth: with righteousness shall he judge the world, and the people with his equity."—Psa. 98:6-9; Isa. 11:1-5; 26:9; Prov. 2:21, 22.

"The King in His beauty is coming,
His form soon descending we'll see,
Attended with hosts of bright angels;
Lo, Zion is waiting for Thee.

"Our harps which have hung upon willows,
Shall be strung anew to Thy praise;
In shouts of thanksgiving and honor,
To Thee, King of beauty, we'll raise."

It is interesting to know, that among European countries, Britain ties with Russia in having the largest motion picture seating capacity (2,200,000 seats). France is next with 2,100,000, and then comes Germany with 1,876,000. In actual number of theatres, however, the order is Germany, Russia, Great Britain, and France.—S. E. H.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 16, 1931

NUMBER 37

What Does it Mean to Know God?

By Mary A. Gesin

"And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

THE above words were uttered by our Savior in His memorable prayer to the Father just before He was apprehended by Roman soldiers and led to His ignominious death. Perhaps the most notable point in all the prayer is the absence of any thought of Himself, the pervading thought being of "those that thou gavest me". His constant thought had been that He should discharge His full responsibility, that He had "declared unto them thy name" and that they should "know" the Father and Himself.

Jesus says that knowing God and His Son brings eternal life. How can we "know" them? To really know the ones about us, we must associate with them, understand their thoughts, appreciate their aims and be in sympathy with their purposes. Just so it is with the Heavenly Father and His Son. And to learn of them, we need to study their thoughts, discern their aims, be in accord with their purposes. There is only one way in which this can be done.

The nature, the character, the plans of the Father and His Son have been beautifully portrayed for us so that all may learn in the Book of books. Studying its pages, we imbibe the spirit of the Author, just as associating with a friend we receive the impression of his character upon our life. And as we delve deeper into our study, we come to "know" the Father through the assistance of the spirit which He sheds upon us. For the things of God "are spiritually discerned", and God will reveal them "unto us by his Spirit". 1 Cor. 2:10-16.

The Apostle Paul was a close student of the Father and of Jesus, as well, and he came to "know" them. For he said, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day". Quite evidently what he had "committed" to the Father was his hope of eternal life, or "crown of righteousness," for he says the Lord shall give it to him at the day of His appearing. 2 Tim. 4:12. And Paul did not leave us out of the picture, for he says, "Not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

When we come to "know" the Father and His Son, we cannot help but be filled with a love for them and a desire to be with them, even as we do with earthly friends whom we know and love. If we neglect our earthly friends we need only to expect that the love between us shall grow cold. How much more our heavenly Friends! If we neglect the opportunity of learning more of them, of knowing their desires for us, we cannot expect to reap the result of constant friendship. The Apostle warns us on this point also: "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard. For . . . how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?" Heb. 2:1-3.

As we come to know a friend we find a fellowship with that one in all the joys and sorrows of life. The same is true of Christ. We joy in the resurrection power of our risen Lord, even though we sorrow at His cruel sufferings. And Paul experienced this also, for he said that his great desire was that he might "know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings." And he counted all else as loss that he might win Christ. Thus did the great Apostle expect to attain unto eternal life.

We cannot "know" the Father and His Son in one day, nor in a year. But it takes a lifetime of study and growth into a closeness of intimacy with them, until finally our ways are transformed into the ways of God; His thoughts are our thoughts; His plans are our plans. And the reward? "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

(Continued on page 586)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together . . . but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."—Paul's instruction to the Hebrew Christians.

MEMBERS ONE OF ANOTHER

IT is frequently stated that one can be a true and thorough Christian without being a church member. This is quite true, providing the statement does not include the church of the living God. According to 1 Corinthians 12:13, all are "baptized into one body". Therefore all are, as stated in Romans 12:5, "members one of another".

No Christian is a Christian unless so recognized by Christ.

There is no Christian recognized by Christ who is not a member of every other one so recognized.

Therefore, every true Christian is a body member with every other true Christian in the body of Christ.

It is this body of Christ that is so largely spoken of in the epistles as being "the church of God". 1 Cor. 1:2; et al.

In fact then, all who are Christians should be, and are, heartily concerned in the welfare of every other such one.

Each is his brother's keeper.

ISOLATION

IN THIS day of rapid correspondence, rapid travel, of the printing press, and such like, there is little need of the isolated Christian pulling himself or herself, like a snail, into his or her shell, and being content with the thought that separation from others of like faith excuses from cooperation in Christian activity.

True, isolation from others of like faith handicaps an individual in many ways in Christian growth. But there is another truth that all will do well to learn and learn heartily, namely, that real Christian growth results from diligent Christian effort, service, sacrifice, equally as it results from study and from prayer. While the isolated one cannot feel the thrill of direct personal contact with other workers, yet he can feel the thrill of his own earnest labors being put forth in the interest of those whom Christ would save.

In the name of Him who died for man; in honor to Him whose glory we long to share as His joint heirs, Rom. 8:17, let us exhort that the isolated brethren, equally with those who are favored with local fellowship, will put forth every effort within their powers to serve their Master and their Master's cause ever more faithfully. If distance or circumstances forbid assembling with others for special occasions, let each remember that by common cooperation through a general center, ideas and helps can be gathered and accumulated for labors of great benefit to man and of honor to God and to His Son.

MISSIONARIES

IT WAS through much tribulation, resulting from persecution, that the early church learned the lesson from Christ, the Head, that one of its duties consisted of going out unto all nations with the gospel of salvation. Immediately the Savior was seated at the right hand of God and the apostles were gifted with holy spirit, Christ commissioned them to foreign fields.

It is beautifully interesting to learn of the habits and ways of the eagle with her nest. As the eaglets in the lofty eyrie mature sufficiently to learn to fly, cf. Deut. 32:11, the parent eagle, urging them onward, is said to sometimes really crowd them from the nest at the dizzy height, only to see the eaglets flutter and flounder in their frightened efforts to save themselves from an awful crash to the rocks below. With keen realization of its ability, the parent swiftly dives to the rescue of the eaglet, soars beneath it, catches it upon her broad back and carries it aloft. Reaching again the dizzy height, the parent rolls the eaglet off, for it to endeavor yet again to carry itself upon the air.

So the Master drove the early Christians from their home nests. But He watched and guarded them. Their labor was to carry the gospel message. It was not sufficient for them to meet only in their own commodious quarters and satisfy themselves with their own feasts and their own comforts; they must learn to "fly" and to witness near and far, to the truth of Christ.

The same missionary duty falls upon the church today. It is not sufficient for the individual church to satisfy itself alone in its own local labors. There are those congregations of the Church of God who seem to be wholly at ease, if they provide for local worship and study. The missionary spirit is foreign to their thoughts. Any effort or plan or desire to aid in the proclamation of the gospel of salvation by voice or by pen to neighboring fields seems to be absent. Truly this ought not so to be. Surely it is not too much to urge that after properly caring for local worship and advancement all should aid in carrying the gospel to those beyond.

THE CHURCH

THE church at Philippi and the church at Berea and the church at Corinth were all interested in the welfare and prosperity of the church at Jerusalem. Because of a degree of poverty among the brethren at Jerusalem, the churches of Macedonia and Achaia all but competed with one another in bestowing of their bounties unto the needy ones. 2 Cor. 9.

Because of erroneous doctrinal tenets that were taught by some of the apostles, a gathering was held with the church at Jerusalem for the purpose of study relative to said wrong doctrines, with a view to correct them. At that gathering, Acts 15, letters were sent out to the churches at "Antioch and Syria and Cilicia" to confirm them as to the right regarding the questioned doctrines and to strengthen them regarding their Christian fellowship.

Thus we discover that the church at Antioch and beyond, and of Jerusalem, all regarded themselves as members one of another in the great cause of salvation through the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Just as the members constitute and make up the local church, so the local churches make up and constitute the body as a whole. And just as the members are responsible one to another and "cannot say unto the" other, 1 Cor. 12:21, "I have no need of thee"; so the local church can neither say of another church, "I have no need of thee".

Christ died for all; for one equally as much as for the other. The church exists for all; for one equally as for another.

Each member is dependent upon Christ, the Head, and likewise upon every other member of His body. And each one is under responsibility to fulfill his duty to Christ, the Head, and to every other member of the church.

THE HOPE OF IMMORTALITY

MAN lives through hope. When hope ceases, life becomes no longer worth while. The greatest hope set before the human race is the hope of immortality. It is given us by our Creator and revealed through the pages of sacred writ, and nowhere else.

We are told in the second chapter of Romans that if we seek for immortality in His appointed way, He will render it in the judgment to those who are found worthy; not that we already possess it. This perishing nature in which we were all created is to be exchanged for the incorruptible nature of the Lord Himself.

Tradition and theology base their hope of immortality upon the assumed fact of an immortal soul; the Bible bases it upon the Lord Jesus Christ. Thus we are plainly told (John 3:16) that "whosoever believeth in him shall have everlasting life," and again (v. 36), "He that believeth not the Son shall not see life."

Both Scripture and your common sense tell you that what a man has already, he doesn't hope for. Rom. 8:24, 25. So the hope of immortality is for those alone who are Christ's. All others are without hope (1 Thess. 4:13).

Cherish no vain dreams that you now possess immortality or that you ever will possess it, unless you embrace Him who is your Lifegiver, and without whom you must perish like the beast you are. Psa. 49:20; Eccl. 3:18-20. There is not one single assurance or promise of immortality outside of Christ, from Genesis to Revelation.

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked" (Gal. 6:7-8); His law is inexorable, and there is no excuse if we ignore it and lose this great boon. He has given you the light, and light on this momentous question of your eternal destiny can be found nowhere else. Search and see if these things are so, and oh, come to Him who alone can give you life and immortality that you may have a real hope, and in His service patiently wait for it. — Editorial in Golden Rule News.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION

PROFESSOR Irving Fisher, of Yale, thus sums up the present state of national prohibition in the United States:

1. Present conditions of law enforcement and national prohibition are intolerable and must be corrected.
2. Even so, they are not so dark as they have been painted.
3. Prohibition has already accomplished incalculable good, hygienically, economically, and socially.
4. Real personal liberty, the liberty to live and enjoy full use of your faculties, is increased by prohibition.
5. Light wines and beers cannot be legalized without another constitutional amendment.
6. No such amendment can be passed.
7. All that the wets can possibly accomplish is laxity of enforcement, or nullification; in other words, enormously to increase the very disrespect for law which they profess to deplore.
8. Therefore, the only satisfactory solution lies in fuller enforcement.

WAITING FOR THE RESTI- TUTION

All the holy prophets' stories,
Foretell with prophetic voice;
When God's restoration glories
Fill the earth, she will rejoice;
Clap her hands with exultation,
Nations all, of every clime;
Christ will work their full salvation,
Through God's restitution time.

Blessed times of restitution;
When the earth and heavens anew,
Purged and cleansed from all corruption;
God will bless with heavenly dew.
Filled shall be the earth with knowledge,
Of the glory of the Lord;
Jesus, King, all will acknowledge;
All shall know the Most High God.

Groaneth now the whole creation,
Shareth, too, Thy bride the pain;
Waiting for her blest adoption,
When she'll drop her mortal chain;
Round the throne of presence gath'ring,
Chosen jewels of the Vine;
With the Lord His kingdom sharing,
Crowned with glories all divine.

All of God's peculiar children,
Sown in weakness, earthly seed;
By His spirit God will quicken;
From death's bondage they'll be freed;
Raised in pow'r at resurrection,
To the likeness of their Lord;
Royal, chosen generation;
Great indeed is their reward.

Living saints in Christ now waiting
For their change to come, when they
In a moment, in a twinkling,
Put on immortality.
Therefore comfort one another,
All ye saints now taught of God,
With these words when met together,
Till the coming of the Lord.

—Selected.

GET READY

Take your vacation now, so you'll be strong and well to work every day, August 4 to 16, in General Conference at Oregon, Illinois. We need you and you need us.

MAKING CHURCH MEMBERSHIP ATTRACTIVE TO YOUNG PEOPLE

EVERYWHERE we hear the lamentation that the youth are not as actively interested in the church as is desired; that they are not interested in religion; and that they are out only for thrills. Before we condemn youth too severely, it might be well to remember that the church has much more competition than it had at one time. Not more than a generation ago the church did not need to compete with many of the organizations furnishing youth wholesome contacts and opportunities for leadership that exist today.

All of this means that the church must compete with these other organizations for the young people's time and interest. Whether it is an occasion for rejoicing or sorrow, the fact is that the youth measure the church very much as they do any other organization—in terms of what they receive, how much it interests them, and what it does for the community. To those who are trained to think of the church as an organization holy and set apart, this seems an almost sacrilegious thing. Nevertheless youth think this way.

It would seem then that our task is to discover how to appeal to youth in terms of their needs and interests. It might help in our planning for future programs and in the evaluation of our present program to ask a few questions.

How does your church equipment compare with the equipment of the public school, the Y. M. C. A., or any other places which your youth frequent? Does your church need a coat of paint? Is the yard ragged and unkempt? Is the carpet old and worn? Is your church kept clean? In other words, can your young people point to your church with pride and say, "This is our church"?

How does your church stand in the community? Does it do its business regularly? Do the members quarrel among themselves? Is your Sunday-school well organized? Do you stand by your minister and pay him regularly? Do you pay your church bills promptly? Are your Sunday-school methods up-to-date? Do you begin your church services and Sunday-school on time and close on time? Is the program of your church felt in your community or are you a little isolated group, enjoying your religion among yourselves?

Does your church have well organized activities with well planned programs participated in and administered by youth for youth? Do you have organized Sunday-school classes for young people? How about yourself as a teacher? Do you teach a Sunday-school lesson or do you teach young people, using the lesson for meeting the needs of young people?

When youth compare church activities with the activities they attend elsewhere, do they compare favorably from the standpoint of good times, profit, attractiveness, careful planning, and skillful execution? Too often our church

(Continued on page 584)

THE ETERNAL GIFT

By Paul M. Hatch

LIFE is a gift. No man or woman has ever earned life. No matter how we view the life that we now possess, whether it is our own to do with it as we please, or to render it as a service to our fellow men and to our Lord, still it is a gift. The gift has to be yielded up to the Giver eventually, and the finis written to any present life is the attitude the person has taken in regard to it. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The true church member therefore prefers the eternal gift, and so keeps himself ever with that as an end. The life that we now possess is not a thing hoped for, for it can be seen, felt, realized, while the gift of eternal life is naught else but a hope. Thereby our faith becomes dominant, for we have already experienced life, poor as it is. Our faith then becomes easy, in believing that God is and that those who by continued patience in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, He will reward eternal life, for having diligently sought after Him.

Throughout Paul's writings the work of the ministry and the labor that he zealously carried out are closely associated in his expectancy with the gift of God, even life eternal. He realized that though it was given through faith, any man could lose it, or lose the opportunity of gaining it by not doing the proper works. Here is shown the fact that works are an expression of one's faith, that faith is manifested through one's works.

Paul, writing to the Corinthian brethren, in his first epistle compares the life that a church member leads to a race. And if that member is fervent in his race, he will most certainly see the point that Paul wishes to bring out. There is not any glory to a racer who drops out before he has run the full course. It is a dead give away that that man has not trained right, or that he has not had perseverance to complete the race, although beaten.

Paul was running for that incorruptible crown, and so he ran not in uncertainty. But he kept under his body and brought it into subjection, for he feared, if he did not, though he had preached to others, he himself might be a castaway. 1 Cor. 9:24-27.

Paul's life had been a life of contrast. His career had been religious, intensely so. Religion was no half-hearted performance in his devotion to it. The work that he performed in the name of religion had left its mark upon those he had encountered. The two religions that he embraced were diametrically opposed, both in practice and intention.

Paul's labor in one had fearfully contradicted the other; and he tells us in the Galatian letter that he was in the Jew's religion a persecutor of the church, without measure wasting it. He profited in that religion above many equals of his own nation, by being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of the fathers. However to Timothy he confides that it was all done through ignorance and that God had mercy. 1 Tim. 1:12-16.

A careful perusal of Philippians, third chapter, shows definitely that Paul's expectancy of the gift of God is in no way to be compared to the gift expected while he was yet a Pharisee. He tells the Philippians that if they had any works to be boastful about, he had more. For he was circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews, as touching the law a Pharisee, concerning zeal persecuting the church, touching the righteousness which is in the law blameless. Paul in this zealous adherence to the Pharisaic religion must have had some expectancy of reward; and it does not require much search to find what that reward or gift was.

We find that at the close of Paul's third missionary journey he had come down to Jerusalem for the feast days and Pentecost. Here some of the Asian Jews saw him and stirred up the throngs, to the extent that Roman soldiers were compelled to rescue Paul to save his life. The chief captain brought him into the castle and allowed him to address the multitude. But when the people cried out against him, the chief captain of the soldiery determined to have Paul examined by scourging. When he found out that he was a Roman by virtue of birth, he feared and summoned on the next day the Jewish council to appear and make its accusation.

Paul, in making a denunciation against the high priest, observed a schism in the ranks of his accusers, because some were Sadducees and others, Pharisees. Taking advantage of the situation, he cried out, "I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question."—Acts 23:6. Throughout all the trials of the next two years, at Caesarea where he had been taken, he reaffirms before governors, kings and council that the only question that they had against him was the resurrection of the dead.

On one occasion he said to the governor, "Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself. Because that thou mayest understand, that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship. And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the city. Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me. But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets: and have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust."—Acts 24:10-15.

Inasmuch as Paul avers that he was a Pharisee, and that his hope was according to the fathers' belief in a resurrection of both the just and the unjust, it would stand to reason that all of Paul's zealous work as a Pharisee was performed to gain the reward of the gift of the resurrection of the just. This was strictly in accord with Old Testament prophecy, Daniel 12:1-3, and also the teaching of Jesus in John 5:28, 29.

(Continued on page 586)

SOUL SLEEPING

“THERE are several denominations wholly given over to this false doctrine, including with it the annihilation of the wicked; and probably there are a good many individuals identified with the various evangelical denominations who have under the influence of Russellism or Adventism fallen into the same error.

“There is no such thing taught in the Bible, and the people who profess a belief in soul sleeping are probably led into this fancy through a sentimental sense of the harshness of punishment for sin and wickedness. Our own states, composing our union, for the good of society make laws against crime, and enforce them with penalties in penitentiaries and electric chairs and electric gallows.

“There are some sentimental people who have turned aside from the plain teaching of the law of God and substituted in the place of it the foolish and criminal promoting of men’s notions. Now this notion about soul sleeping and annihilation of the wicked proceeds from the same sentimentality concerning the punishment of the wicked.”

The above, from the Moody Monthly of January 1927, clipped by Mrs. M. A. Woodward, will probably be of benefit to HERALD readers, especially to the younger people.

In the first place the term, “soul sleeping”, is an effort to cast mild ridicule on those who believe the Bible teaching relative to death and the state of the dead, rather than believe the idolatrous teaching of ancient Egypt, Assyria, and Greece. Those ancient and heathen traditions which have been redressed are today accepted by many people as being biblical. Those who have never studied the subject accept these teachings in innocence, but scholars who give time to study the subject can easily inform themselves as to what the Bible teaches. What man teaches, if it be erroneous, no matter of how long standing, is of no account to him who would know and follow God’s truth.

The fact of death applies to the righteous equally as to the wicked. To righteous Hezekiah God instructed Isaiah to say: “Set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live.”—2 Kings 20:1.

The Bible teaches that the dead are dead; that they are not alive. Human tradition teaches that the dead are not dead; rather, that the dead are alive. The Baptist Temple News and the Moody Monthly appear to back human tradition rather than the Bible.

The claim is sometimes made that “death was not spoken of the soul”; that it was spoken only of the body. Here tradition is in even more violent opposition to God and His Bible. In reality the soul is the only thing that can die. Primarily, “soul” is life. Scholars are aware of this. The uneducated are more or less excusable for not knowing that the two words are the same; are, in fact, one. Some scholars are frank enough with God and man to brave popular tradition and openly declare for the Bible.

In the New Testament, “soul” is always translated from the same Greek word. But that Greek word is not always translated “soul”; it is frequently translated by the English word “life”. Hence, confusion to many Bible readers.

The definition of “soul”, in the Critical Lexicon is the same as is its definition of “life”, as the translation of the same Greek word, psuche; it is: “one of the manifestations of zoe (life), namely, that which is manifested in animals, animal life. . . , applied to vegetable life, Isa. 10:18.”

In Lev. 24:17, the Emphasized Bible reads, foot note, “when any man smiteth the soul of any human being. . .” That this is correct see Young’s Analytical Concordance, Companion Bible, and others. Likewise the eighteenth verse reads, “he that smiteth the soul of a beast. . .” Scholars are aware that the soul is that which is put to death. Judges 16:30, margin, reads, “Let my soul die with the Philistines.” So it reads in the Emphasized Bible. Num. 23:10, margin, reads, “Let my soul die the death of the righteous”. It is the SOUL, the LIFE, that dies. When the soul, the life, is dead—ceases—then the body ceases to act; it is dead for want of life, of soul. See also, Numbers 31:19; Deut. 19:6; 22:26; 27:25; Prov. 7:23; Eccl. 3:19.

This “false doctrine” is false only when so adjudged by human tradition. When measured by the Word of God, it is a true doctrine. The people who believe it are “sentimental” in that they still cling to the “old fashioned” Bible and are not yet ready to follow man’s inventive efforts to escape death by some scheme purporting to land the saved at a goal and on a schedule not designated by God.

The gift of God is eternal life.

“IT HAS been well said that the matter of church attendance has never received the attention its importance justifies. Church attendance is vital to the life of the church, local and universal. The character and influence of a church are determined by the character and number of persons who attend its services. If a church is to be a factor in the life of a community, its members must be faithful in the matter of attendance.”

THE MASTER’S TOUCH

“ONCE upon a time Mendelssohn came to see the great Freiburg organ. The old custodian refused him admission and would not permit him to play upon the organ. At length, however, he reluctantly granted him leave to play a few notes. Mendelssohn took his seat and soon the most wonderful music was breaking forth from the organ. The custodian was spell-bound. He came up beside the great musician and asked his name. Learning it, he stood humiliated, self-condemned, saying, ‘And I refused you permission to play upon my organ!’

“Christ comes to us standing at our door, desiring to take our lives, bringing to bear upon them His matchless, masterful touch. And we withhold ourselves from Him, when, if we would yield to Him, He would cause our lives to give forth heavenly music.”

SUCCESS OR FAILURE

By Lydia Railsback

A RACE that is only half run is no race at all. He who falls by the wayside never reaches the goal. Unless the goal is reached, no reward is obtained. A game that is not completed brings no honor. He who starts and does not finish is branded as a quitter. A task begun and not ended amounts to nothing.

A building started and not completed is of but little or no use. It must be completed to serve the purpose for which it was intended. A business started and not carried on soon ends in disaster. All work begun, to be a success, must be continued till the last detail is worked out and put in order.

Just so it is in the Christian life. If we start, we must continue to the finish, or we will not receive the reward of our effort.

A crop planted and not cultivated brings forth but little if any harvest. The ground must first be prepared, and then the seed properly planted and the tender shoots given the best of care to produce an abundant harvest.

The babe in Christ must be nurtured and trained and be given every opportunity to develop into a full fledged follower of the Master.

Faith is the foundation of the Christian religion, and without faith, it is impossible to please God. But, "faith without works is dead." Paul told the Philippian brethren, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." Phil. 2:12, 13.

Saul, the king, from man's view point was a failure. He started out with high hopes, but came to a bitter end. Saul, at times, did not want to obey the voice of the Lord, but chose to do things in his own way. Saul saw his mistake and acknowledged to Samuel that he had sinned, but said he did it because he feared the people.

Samuel told Saul, "For thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, and the Lord hath rejected thee from being king over Israel." 1 Sam. 16. Notice Saul's mistake. He feared the people. God's ways are higher than man's way, and He is the One who should be loved, honored, and feared.

Paul, the Apostle, was a man of opposite type. After his conversion he was always alert to know God's way and was careful to walk in that way and do the bidding of the Father through the Son. He was ever mindful of his duty to God and man.

At the end of his life Paul could and did say, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 2 Tim. 4:7, 8.

Paul endured to the end and was constantly doing what he could. Christ told His disciples that "he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved." The one who finishes the race is the one that wins the prize. There should be no stopping nor turning back in the Christian warfare. The battle must be fought to a finish. The man or woman who is not a better Christian this year than he was last is not making much progress. The Christian who is not living closer to God each day is losing many blessings that otherwise would be enjoyed.

Success or failure? To how many does it occur that there is no command on record that any of us should be successful? What man calls success or failure may be called different by the Father. He is the just Judge, and we will stand or fall by His judgment, not by what man may say or think.

Faith is what the Father wants, and though He did not tell us to be successful, He did leave on record this statement, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Rev. 2:10. Death finishes the task; the reward comes at the resurrection.

WAYS OF PRAYING

1. The Formal Way—When prayer is a mere form of words; or when it is simply due to the force of habit which has lost its real motive power.

2. The Hurried Way—Hastening through it as a disagreeable and irksome duty—a duty indeed but not a delight, and to be dismissed as quickly as may be.

3. The Selfish Way—When the real motive is to consume the coveted blessing upon our selfish advantage or pleasure.

4. The Impulsive Way—Praying as the feeling prompts, and when we feel so inclined—without any definite plan of prayer in our lives, or devout habit.

5. The Faithless Way—With no real dependence upon the promises of God, or confident expectation of receiving what we ask for.

6. The Thoughtful Way—Seeking to meditate upon God, and intelligently understand both the nature of prayer and the good we seek.

7. The Earnest Way—With the attention of the mind and the desire of the heart absorbed in asking, with the determination to persevere.

8. The Trustful Way—Coming in the spirit of a child; first believing that God's promises justify prayer, and then that we are coming to a Father, both able and willing.

9. The Consistent Way—That is, living as we pray, and so walking with God as to be in the way of blessing, and by fellowship with God inviting it.

10. The Spiritual Way—So cultivating acquaintance with God that He can and does breathe in us first the desires we breathe out in prayer.

Is it not easy to see why we so often fail, and how we may succeed?

Someone has well said that prayer is getting in sympathetic touch with God.

"Lord, teach us to pray as John taught his disciples to pray."—Selected.

PALESTINE

By J. G. Whittier

Blest land of Judea! thrice hallowed of song,
Where the holiest memories pilgrim-like throng;
In the shade of thy palms, by the shores of thy sea,
On the hills of thy beauty, my heart is with thee.

Blue sea of the hills!— in my spirit I hear
Thy waters, Genessaret, chime on my ear;
Where the Lowly and Just with the people sat down,
And thy spray on the dust of His sandals was thrown.

Lo, Bethlehem's hill-site before me is seen,
With the mountains around, and the valleys between;
There rested the shepherds of Judah, and there
The song of the angels rose sweet on the air.

And Bethany's palm trees in beauty still throw
Their shadows at noon on the ruins below;
But where are the sisters that hastened to greet
The lowly Redeemer, and sit at His feet?

I tread where the twelve in their wayfaring trod;
I stand where they stood with the Chosen of God—
Where His blessing was heard and His lessons were taught,
Where the blind were restored and the healing was wrought.

And what if my feet may not tread where He stood;
Nor my ears hear the dashing of Galilee's flood;
Nor my eyes see the cross which He bowed Him to bear;
Nor my knees press Gethsemane's garden of prayer?

Yet, Loved of the Father, Thy spirit is near
To the meek, and the lowly, and penitent here;
And the voice of Thy love is the same even now
As at Bethany's tomb or on Olivet's brow.

Oh, the outward hath gone!— but the glory and power,
The spirit surviveth the things of an hour;
Unchanged, undecaying, its Pentecost flame
On the heart's secret altar is burning the same!

Not in clouds and in terrors, but gentle as when
In love and in meekness, He moved among men;
And the voice which breathed peace to the waves of the sea,
In the hush of my spirit would whisper to me!

TO THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS

AS A DELEGATE to the General Conference, August 4 to 16, send your best Sunday School worker to meet with the best Sunday School workers from other places. and exchange ideas for advancing your Sunday School.

MAKING CHURCH MEMBERSHIP ATTRACTIVE TO YOUNG PEOPLE

(Continued from page 580)

activities are haphazardly done, and, as young people say, "are a flop," because of failure at these points.

Do you give your young people opportunity for leadership and service in the church? These young people are eager for expression and leadership experiences. They are going to give their loyalty where they get these experiences. We, as teachers and church leaders, have done too many things for young people and not enough things with them.

Youth very definitely feel that they do not have a voice in many problems concerning the church. This sensitiveness of youth may not always be warranted. But of one thing I am sure, the church which provides leadership for its youth is the church which is attractive to them.

To be sure, youth need direction. Nor are they always adequate. But they are rather shrewd to detect when they are being used and not being taken seriously. None but youth know what youth think and none can reveal youth's interests better than youth themselves. The task of the church is to be sensitive to their thinking and interests; then interpret in terms of their needs. The church whose leadership is aware of this fact will be the church which will make membership attractive.

Does your church provide real worship experience for youth? What kind of worship does your church have? Do you have genuine worship in your Sunday-school? Is your morning church service beautifully and carefully built? Do you know before the service what hymns you are going to sing? Is your worship carefully planned and smoothly conducted? Do you feel that the weekly worship programs you give your youth will do this for them? Is your worship carried on with beauty and warmhearted dignity? Is it expressed, partially at least in terms of youth?

Does your church present the dignity, reality, and beauty of Christian service and church membership? Do your young people understand the beauty of the sacraments? Do they know of your background as a church? Has church membership been presented to them as something to which to look forward? Do you have any classes preparing for church membership? We all like to be connected with important work. If adults treat the church as a secondary matter, they cannot blame youth if they reflect the same attitude.

Does your church have its share of young people? The answer to the above questions, will furnish the reply to this last one.

Sunday-school workers, your task is not done when you have taught your class. You can help give the right answer to these questions. Our youth are eager to have a religion which will help them solve their riddles of life. They will be attracted to the church which helps them.—Grace Sloan Overton in The World's Crisis.

TO THE BROTHERHOOD

AS A WHIRLING auto wheel measures the forward distance, so the speedometer on the dashboard of time tells us that the rolling year has carried us another twelve month on the journey of the age, closer to the moment of the coming of Christ.

For the General Conference of the Church of God the year has been one of hard and diligent labor. The times in which we live have cast their grey-dull upon the religious world, as well as upon the business world. Many uncertainties have been followed by repeated hesitations and by renewed painstaking in an effort, not only to hold the gains made in the past, and to do so with the least possible of financial outlay, but also to take every possible stride forward.

The National Bible Institution will be able to report to the General Conference at its gathering, August 4 to 16, that its Publishing Department, its Bible Training Class Department, its Golden Rule Home Department and its general office of Executive Department have been so conducted to this date as to keep within the bounds of the moneys committed to its hands for use. In this matter we again wish to thank all who have so faithfully contributed to the support of the work. Only in the Greenhouse has there been a lack of ability to cope fully with the business depression of the world. Even here we discern that the management has succeeded in doing far better than many like enterprises have done throughout the country.

A brief retrospective view of the work of the General Conference in which its N. B. I. has directly or indirectly aided in the past ten years, reveals accomplishments something as follows:

Four new church buildings have been erected and are in continual use, one of which is greatly in need of enlargement; three buildings have been remodeled and enlarged; one congregation has purchased a church edifice; and another congregation is earnestly preparing for building;

At least one new church has been organized;

Several ministers have been provided by the Bible Training Class who are regularly engaged in ministerial work; several others are doing student work in different places, who, D. V., will be entering upon regular work in the near future;

The Publishing Department has not only taken over and continued the publishing of THE RESTITUTION HERALD, but is publishing the Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly, tract and booklets;

A Home has been provided for aged and alone ones in which, up to date, no less than fifteen have taken of the comfort and assistance which it has afforded.

In addition to the foregoing, numerous benefits are distinctly seen in different fields of church activity.

This work, which had its inception but ten years ago, has been made possible by the earnest, continued, and in some instances sacrificing cooperation made by the many.

We are now approaching the eleventh annual gathering of the General Conference. It is earnestly desired that as the first conference was a turning point in the work of the Church of God, so this eleventh milestone may be made a distinctive step forward.

We are this year urging the congregations and individuals everywhere to sense more keenly the value of cooperation in work. We are urging that each church throughout the United States, and that each state conference, and that the National Berean Society, will each appoint a delegate or a delegation to attend the coming conference at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, and assist in formulating working programs for the future. It is exceedingly important that every church and every society connected with the General Conference shall do this.

It is earnestly suggested that the very best worker or workers in the respective church or state conferences will not only be designated for such delegations, but that the value of their time and expenses for attending the conference shall be defrayed by those who appoint them. With but a small percentage of exceptions this is the rule that is followed by all bodies, religious or otherwise.

We urge that, as far as possible, every local church will delegate its pastor or evangelist to the coming conference and that it will continue his salary to him, as though he were present at home.

We candidly believe that if a pastor or evangelist is sent to the conference as a delegate worker, he will not only in the end accomplish more for the good of his local church than he would otherwise, but that he will also be of great assistance in guiding the General Conference in the pathway of future labor. The same principle is undoubtedly true of every worker other than minister, who may be delegated to this work.

The Illinois State Conference has this year engaged no one for pulpit work, that the program might be open to use any speaker who may be in attendance.

The General Conference is yours. You, the several churches, the several state conferences, and the National Berean Society, are its owners. It is your opportunity. It is your responsibility. It is yours to reap the rewards that may result.

To mortal vision it seems that there never before was a time when opportunity for Christian work was so great as now. The world is literally hungry for God's truth. Its people are standing at the side of the roadway to be picked up for, and delivered to the Master.

(Continued on back page)

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO KNOW GOD?

(Continued from front page)

The wondrous climax of a life spent in learning of God and of His Son will be reached when we have attained unto that for which we have been striving, the fullness of likeness unto them, not alone in thought, aim, and purpose, but also in very nature itself, for we read, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." 1 John 3:2. Then shall we have attained unto the result of knowing Him—even life eternal.

"And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

RISEN WITH CHRIST

"Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God."

THE Apostle believed that Christ, in His baptism, was buried. This rising of which he speaks is out of the water. He therefore says to the Colossian church (which had been buried with Christ in baptism): "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above".

The burial and resurrection of Christ in baptism foreshadowed His death and resurrection. So His followers in their baptism are to look forward to their resurrection from death and the grave. If they are risen with Him in their baptism, then it is incumbent on them to seek those things which are above. If they have followed Him in baptism, it becomes them to follow Him in their faith to where He has gone, having their affection set on heavenly things, and not on things on the earth.

The above texts, when connected, clearly show the only mode of baptism, and its object. They cannot be understood in any other light. "Buried with him in baptism, wherein ye are risen with him". "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek", etc. What exegesis can change the plain meaning of this?

To be ignorant of the meaning of baptism, of its prefiguration, is to fail of a full appreciation of the evidence which Christ has given of the future salvation of His people. To be like Him, they must follow Him in all the way He went, imitating Him as well as in obeying His commands. He rose literally from the water, and afterward as literally from the grave. The waters of Jordan were His first grave; the tomb of Joseph His last.

The world and the church have the example of Christ; and every one sent to preach His gospel is commanded to baptize as He was baptized. His burial in baptism is made as plain as any other act in His life here.

They who are buried with Him, in like manner, and who know what their baptism means, are looking for what it betokens. He who gave His people this example will reward them in following it; they will live from death as He lived, rise as He arose, to a new life, beyond the reach of death and the grave.

"Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."—Messiah's Advocate.

THE ETERNAL GIFT

(Continued from page 581)

To the Philippian brethren, however, he puts all this belief and labor in the category of vile refuse and even loathes to compare it with his expectation in Christ.

What was that expectation in Christ? Witness verses 10 and 11, "That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death; if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead." It was resurrection of the dead after all, yet this was just what Paul was expecting as a Pharisee.

There must have been something else attached to the resurrection in Christ Jesus that was not to be compared to the resurrection of the just. He calls it the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus, in the fourteenth verse. And he was pressing vigorously along the race track of life to that mark or goal. But this does not explain how it was different from the resurrection of the just.

It cannot be determined from the English translation alone. We must go back to the original language, the Greek, where it readily becomes apparent, in A. V., v. 11. "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead." The word from which "resurrection" is translated is the Greek word, exanastasis. Greek concordances reveal the fact that this is its only occurrence in Scripture.

The Greek word, anastasis, occurs occasionally, is translated "resurrection", in Matt. 22:23, 28, 30, 31; Mark 12:18, 23; Luke 14:14; 20:27, etc.; John 5:29; 11:24, 25; Acts 1:22; 2:31, etc.; Rom. 1:4; 6:5; 1 Cor. 15:12, 13, 21, 42; Phil. 3:10, etc.; "rising again" in Luke 2:34. These are most of the places where this word occurs. In the case of the word, exanastasis, the word has a prefix, ex, added which means "out".

The "out-resurrection" was what Paul had in mind now, and it would imply a resurrection out from among the dead. This means a prior resurrection to that of the just or unjust, and no doubt is what the writer of the Hebrew letter had reference to, when speaking of the horrible tortures that some went through that they might obtain a better resurrection. Heb. 11:32-35.

The closing verses of Philippians three show that the better resurrection was to have our vile body changed and fashioned like unto the glorious body of Christ, which was the immortalized body spoken of in 1 Corinthians 15:42-47, and the body that possessed life within itself, John 5:26.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"SPEAK, LORD, FOR THY SERVANT HEARETH."

EVEN before Samuel was born his life was dedicated to the Lord, for Hannah so earnestly prayed to the Lord that He send her a son, that when in the fullness of time her prayer was answered, she put forth every effort to direct him in the way of righteousness. It must have been difficult for her to make the sacrifice which resulted in taking her little son up to Shiloh to grow up among the wicked sons of Eli. She must have realized, just as mothers realize today when they send their children out into the wickedness of the world, away from the protection of home, that the influence of bad company is the greatest snare that Satan can weave around God's people.

Yet Hannah had the assurance that, just as her former prayers had been answered, her continued prayers for the guidance of her son would also be heard. So the boy Samuel grew, worshiping his God daily, and unstained by the wickedness about him. This life, laid on the altar by a loving, faithful mother, one who loved God better than all the world, was accepted of God, and behold! how great an influence he grew to be throughout the whole nation.

After the death of Eli, Samuel became the soul of the people, the one man on whom hung the well-being of the whole nation. At an early age he was firmly established as judge of the people, and we find him ever praying and looking to God for guidance, while he drove the Philistines before him, gaining prosperity for the nation.

The secret of his success lay in his consecrating himself to his God. Could he have regarded his own selfish motives or relied on his own judgment? No, the Lord directed, and Samuel was always ready to listen.

Samuel's God is our God. If we give ourselves to Him in early life, just as we are, and can always say, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth", He will accept and bless us, and we will never fear the course our feet will follow.

SOLD

IN TALKING with a young Berean worker recently as to why so many of our young people (and older ones as well) fail to take any responsibility in promoting church activities, he made the statement, "They are not sold on the church." The statement struck me quite forcibly and I thought it but another way of saying that they are not seeking first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness; they are not striving to be ready always to give an answer to everyone that asketh a reason for their hope; they are not studying to rightly divide the word of truth, but they are allowing either the cares of life or the pleasures of the world to draw them away from the love of the truth.

Yet here and there we see young members who are truly "sold on the church". They are always at their posts of duty, bringing in others to the services willing to take any part in the services when asked, and watching constantly for opportunities to build up the work.

These enthusiastic workers in the cause of truth can arouse an interest in the minds of others, and they make a very decided contrast to those who, having come into the body of Christ, feel that there is nothing more to be done and are very indifferent as to whether "school keeps" or not.

Praise God for the young who have been "sold on the church".

A Sister.

IDLE TALES

IF you are tempted to reveal a tale someone has told to you about another, make it pass, before you speak, three gates of gold. Three narrow gates, first, "Is it true?"; then, "Is it needful?" In your mind give truthful answer, and the next is last and narrowest, "Is it kind?" And if it reach your lips at last it passes through these gateways three, then you may tell, nor ever fear what the result of speech may be.—Anonymous.

"We might all do more than we have done,
And not be a whit the worse;
It never was loving that emptied the heart,
Nor giving that emptied the purse."

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 18; Ohio, 15; Michigan, 8; California, 6; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Indiana, 3; Texas, 1; Missouri 1; New York, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

REVIEW

JOHN gives us some very helpful thoughts. He said that Jesus must be lifted up as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness—that is, Jesus must die on the cross.

Now, whoever believes in Him shall not perish, but shall have eternal life.

“For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.”

Jesus became the Light of the world, and those who love truth come to the light. If we follow Jesus, we may be called the sons of God and be like Him, when He appears and we see Him as He is. If we really have this hope, we will try to make our lives pure.

Since the Lord laid down His life for us, we should be willing, if necessary, to lay down our lives for Him or for the brethren. If a brother is in need, we must give him of our supply.

“For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things. Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God.”

Whatever we ask, we will receive, because we keep His commandments, and do the things that are pleasing in His sight.

This is His commandment—“That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as He gave us commandment.”

Please send in your names when you know all of the thirty-fifth chapter of Isaiah.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read about Moses in the wilderness.
2. Read the scripture lesson—John 3:14-21; 1 John 3:1-3, 16-24.
3. Copy 1 John 3:17, 18, 21.
4. Learn John 3:16.
5. Fill the blanks with the correct words.
 1. But now is risen from the dead.
(Christ, Moses, people)
 2. The father was happy to have his home again.
(servant, son)
 3. The Rich Man and Lazarus is a
(fact, story, parable)
 4. The was justified in his prayer.
(Pharisee, publican)

5. Jesus ate with
(the publican, Zacehaeus)
6. Jesus entered Jerusalem as a (master, servant, king)
7. Jesus said the temple was a house of (prayer, merchandise)
8. Jesus prayed in the garden of (Olives, Gethsemane, Jordan)
9. “This is the King of the Jews” written in (Greek, Latin, Hebrew)
10. Jesus ascended from (Calvary, Bethany, Olivet)

WHO GIVES US OUR FOOD?

MARK and Martha were so hungry!

“Can’t we have something to eat?” they asked.

“Yes,” said Mother.

“I wonder who gives us our bread?” she asked.

“Why, you do,” answered Martha.

“Where do I get it?” asked Mother.

“Daddy gives you the money to buy it,” said Mark.

“Where does the storekeeper get it?” asked Mother.

“From the man who makes bread,” said Martha.

“But where does the man get the flour?” Mother asked.

“From wheat,” said Mark. “We study that in school.”

“Where does the wheat come from?” asked Mother.

“It grows in the ground,” answered Martha.

“What makes it grow?” asked Mother.

“Rain and sunshine and wind,” said Mark.

“Who sends the rain and sunshine and wind?”

“The heavenly Father,” answered both children.

“And He is the One who gives us our bread!” said Mark.

“Yes,” said Mother, “He gives us every good thing.”

“How kind the heavenly Father is to us,” said Martha.

“I think we ought to thank Him every day for all He does,” said Mark; and Martha said, “Let’s thank Him now.”—Junior Home magazine.

“To the good or the bad?
There is no other way.
This question, my lad,
Should be settled today.
The swift years are hastening
Be up and awake!
There’s no time for wasting,
Which road will you take?”

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 13. — June 28, 1931

REVIEW: JESUS THE WORLD'S SAVIOR SUFFERING AND SOVEREIGNTY

John 3:14-21; 1 John 3:1-3, 16-24

Devotional Reading: 1 John 3

GOLDEN TEXT

God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

Lesson I. 1 Cor. 15:1-8, 50-58.

Topic. The Gospel of the Resurrection.

Summary. Paul builds all hope of salvation, all hope of the destruction of sin, all hope of victory over death, upon the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Important as was His sacrificial death, yet without Christ's resurrection His death would have been void; man's hope would have been vain; the whole world would have continued under the victory of sin and of death.

By His death and resurrection Christ's mortality, His flesh and blood, His whole nature was changed "born of a woman", Gal. 4:3, was changed to immortality, to incorruptibility. A like change is by Paul promised to all those who are truly in Christ.

Lesson II. Luke 15:11-24.

Topic. The Father's Welcome to the Wandering Son.

Summary. The characteristics of mercy and forgiveness in God are strikingly illustrated by the father in the parable of the prodigal son. Jesus reveals how that sometimes he who remains at home may in heart be more averse to the true principles of God, than is he who strays from God but afterward repentantly returns to Him.

Not the sinner, but the sinner who refuses to repent is the one that is rejected of the Father. The Pharisaical upright elder brother may be more wrong at heart than is the wild harum-scarum but repentant one, who bows humbly before God and seeks even the lowest place in His love and in His family.

Lesson III. Luke 16:19-31.

Topic. The Curse of Selfishness.

Summary. The man who places self above God, or the man who undertakes to appropriate all God's plans or labors for self is selfish indeed. Such were the Pharisees. They mutilated God's word in an effort to make its promises more attractive to themselves. They endeavored to think that all God's purposes pertained to Israel, in utter disregard of the Gentiles. The parable of the rich man and Lazarus, being the last of a series of parables taught the Pharisees, wholly disabuses the mind of man from such an interpretation and from such an appropriation of God and of God's Word. Jesus uses their own false invention concerning the state of the dead and concerning the promise and prospect of immortal life to convince them of their own unspeakable errors and of their necessity to return to the law and the prophets, if they are to believe, even though God raises the dead.

Lesson IV. Luke 18:1-14.

Topic. What Is True Prayer?

Summary. Teaching that "men ought always to pray, and not to faint", Jesus gave two parables—one to show the necessity, the other to show the attitude of the petitioner. The unjust judge, lest he be over-worried, granted the oft repeated petition of the widow. Though the judge was unconcerned regarding her needs, yet the widow was awarded for her continuous, unflinching petition.

The lesson which Jesus drew was that God who is concerned with the needs of His people will surely grant their petitions. Delay upon His part is rather for the good of the petitioner, than expressive of the negligence of God.

His second parable taught that the petitioner should recognize his own unrighteousness and should extol and honor the God of gods.

Lesson V. Luke 19:1-10.

Topic. Beginning a New Life.

Summary. Jesus entered the home of him who was "the chief among the publicans". He shocked those about Him by this deed. The claims of the public were that publicans, especially the chief of the publicans, were chief of sinners. They were despised and rejected. Jesus intensively revealed the fact that He was there to save sinners, even the greatest of sinners.

Zacchaeus, by his words and deeds, revealed that though he was collector of taxes, yet he endeavored to act justly, and he offered fourfold restitution for any injustice named against him. Publicly before all, Jesus announced that salvation was nigh unto the house of Zacchaeus. Zacchaeus believed; he repented; he turned wholeheartedly unto the Messiah for instruction and guidance.

Lesson VI. Luke 19:11-27.

Topic. Partners With Jesus.

Summary. While at Jericho Jesus presented a parable of a nobleman, going into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. His parable was very like unto the facts, when Herod and Archelaus of Jericho had gone to Rome to receive appointment over chosen tetrarches of Palestine.

In the parable Jesus designates between the servants of the nobleman and his citizens. To the servants he gave responsibilities to be exercised during his absence. The citizens were merely to wait his return.

At his return rewards were distributed to the servants according to their respective loyalty, and death was administered to the enemy citizens. In v. 26 Jesus applies the parable with reference to His own followers.

Lesson VII. Luke 19:29-42, 45-58.

Topic. Loyalty to the King.

Summary. Finishing the threads of His labors along the way and advancing toward the climax and end of His testimony for God, Jesus journeyed from Jericho up to Mount Olivet and prepared to give the final evidences of His Messiahship. The knowledge of the fact that these final evidences would bring forth the wrath of the infuriated populace and leaders did not deter Him. He commissioned His disciples to bring the colt; they seated Him thereon; He rode forward across the vale up into the city, meanwhile surrounded by multitudes of His own followers who in act and in word fulfilled the prophecies referring to Jesus entering the city as the coming King. At once the voice of His enemies increased against Him. He cleansed the temple of God and taught daily therein, His opposers finding no way to take Him. The loyalty of His disciples remained true throughout this stage of the Savior's experience, while Jerusalem continued to bring upon herself her own condemnation.

Lesson VIII. Luke 22:7-23.

Topic. Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

Summary. The day of passover drawing on, Christ instructed His disciples to make preparation therefor. A lamb was chosen on Nisan 14, although Christ himself was "the lamb of God", which was that year to be slain. It was unto Him that the first passover in Egypt pointed. Just as the Israelites ate of the body of the passover lamb, Ex. 12 and 13, and preserved the lives of their first-born by the taking of the life of the lambs, so Christ taught His disciples by emblems of bread and wine to partake of Him as their true Bread and as their true Life, assured in God's new covenant as a result of the giving of His own life. Paul in 1 Cor. 11 instructs that as often as we "eat this bread and drink this cup", we do declare, until He comes again, the Lord's death.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE PROGRAM

The Michigan Conference and Bible School, to be held at South Lawn Park Church, corner of Jefferson and Abbie Streets, Grand Rapids, will convene from Sunday, June 21 to June 28.

Elder L. E. Conner of Dixon, Illinois, will cooperate with the local pastor, Elder F. E. Siple, in carrying on this meeting.

The order of Sunday service will be as follows:

Sunday School at	10:00 a. m.
Sermon at	11:00 a. m.
Dinner at	12:00
Sermon at	2:00 p. m.
Sermon at	7:30 p. m.

On Monday the only service will be the evening sermon.

Beginning Tuesday Bible classes will be held each day at 10:00 a. m. and 2:00 p. m. There will be four divisions of classes, adults, young people, junior and kindergarten.

The morning adult classes will be taught by Bro. Siple; the afternoon adult classes by Bro. Conner.

The morning young people's classes by Bro. Conner; the afternoon classes by Bro. Siple. The morning junior classes by Mrs. Van Portfleet; the afternoon classes by Mrs. Phenix.

The sermons on the first Sunday and Monday will be by Bro. Siple; the sermons on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday by Bro. Conner; the Friday sermon by Bro. Siple; the Saturday night and Sunday morning sermons by Bro. Conner; the Sunday afternoon Berean sermon by Bro. Siple; the closing sermon Sunday night by Bro. Conner.

The State Berean business meeting will be held Friday at 3:00 p. m.

The State Conference business meeting will be held Saturday at 2:00 p. m.

See Slocum, Sec'y.

AT SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Bro. J. R. LeCrone of the Training Class, will speak at South Bend, Indiana, on Sunday, June 21, and probably a few evenings following. You will be well repaid if you make an extra effort to hear Bro. LeCrone. He is an interesting and sincere speaker.

ALL-DAY MEETING AT PLYMOUTH

Plymouth and North Salem, Ind., churches send greeting:

The Plymouth and North Salem churches are planning an all-day meeting to be held in the Plymouth church, on Sunday, June 21. This is Bro. Anderson's regular appointment. He will preach at eleven o'clock, after which all will go to Centennial Park for a fellowship picnic dinner. Then all will return to the church for a sermon at 2:30. All of like precious faith and friends who possibly can are invited and urged to be present.

Remember the date—June 21.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer, have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Sr. Anna Perrine,	Haines City, Fla.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley,	Rt. 1, Bx. 25
	Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely,	710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen,	daughter of Sr. Seely.

Word from Bro. Perrine, of Haines City, Florida, states that Sr. Perrine's condition remains critical. He says in part, "She is very weak. We have hopes for her, but one can't tell. She is in the hands of her God, and He doeth all things well. We trust Him." Brethren, let us remember this faithful sister in our prayers.

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman of Moorefield, Nebraska, were again compelled to leave their home because of Bro. Stedman's health, and they are now at Miami, New Mexico, where they will be glad to hear from the brethren and friends, as they are isolated from those of like precious faith. They request the prayers of the brotherhood.

ILLINOIS APPOINTMENTS

According to present plans Bro. C. E. Lapp was to have commenced services at Eldorado on June 16, to hold over the following Sunday. Over the next week end, June 27, he will be with the brethren at Casey and on June 29 and 30 at Marshall. Let us keep these dates in mind, attend as much as possible and lend our support to the work and the worker.

DOINGS AT DIXON

There will be preaching services at the Dixon church on June 21, by Bro. Conner. Sunday School convenes every Sunday at 9:45. The committee is busy with the Children's Day program, which will be held on June 21, at 7:30 p. m.

The sewing circle met at the home of Sr. Edith Miller on Friday, June 12. A good attendance was present, with lots of work to be done. We were glad to have Sr. Sanford, of Chicago, with us, and Mrs. Withers of Dixon was a visitor also.

Grace Drew.

ACTIVITIES AT OREGON

Aunt Mary Renner, of Golden Rule Home, who has been quite sick, is lately improved, which makes the sun shine brighter for all.

We are glad to welcome Bro. James Rogers back to church circles at Oregon, from Tucson, Arizona, where he is a law student.

Sr. Jessie M. Wilson, of Chicago, accompanied Sisters F. L. Austin and L. E. Whitehead to Oregon, where they spent the last week end among church folks and relatives.

Bro. and Sr. G. M. Siple, of Oregon, Illinois, left by auto on Tuesday, for a vacation among the home folks at Hammond, Louisiana. They will be gone about a month and will be missed from their accustomed places in the choir.

A most attentive audience, comfortably filling the church auditorium at Oregon, listened to the second in a series of Sunday evening sermons on "The Nations of Earth in Prophecy," by Bro. Austin on the evening of June 14. The theme was that of our own country and was very much appreciated by all.

DOEDEN - SIPLE

The church at Oregon, Illinois, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Sunday, June 14, when Wendell Doeden and Sr. Leila Mae Siple, daughter of Bro. and Sr. G. M. Siple, were united in marriage by Bro. F. L. Austin. Preceding and following the ceremony beautiful and appropriate music was given by Sr. Bernice Rogers at the organ and Bro. James Rogers with the violin. Three vocal numbers were given by Bro. Ralph Canode. The bride is first soprano of the Oregon choir and beloved by all. The groom is a successful young business man of Oregon.

May they remain true to their vows and enjoy many years of happiness and usefulness together is the wish of their many friends.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The Children's Day Program on June 7, was a real success. Our little church was crowded to capacity, and a very impressive service was conducted, reflecting credit to the committee and the ones who took part.

Next Sunday, the 21st, is the opening day of our conference. All-day services are to be held, and we hope to have good attendance then and throughout the week to follow. Attendants from a distance will be most welcome.

Different ones have asked the secret of success for our Sunday School. I would like to mention two of the contributing factors. First, a superintendent that lives with his Sunday School, thinks about it as much on Monday and Friday as on Sunday and spends hours of labor and study in making plans. Second, a group of teachers that make teaching their Sunday School class one of the most important parts of the week's work. Fifteen such workers with a capable leader can transform any group of children, as has been done here. Children appreciate such effort and come.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

HELPING FUND

The following has been contributed for sending The Herald to others:

Miss Mary Goddard	$3.50
Jessie M. Wilson	2.00

LOS ANGELES

On Sunday, June 7th, a number of out-of-the-city brethren attended services with us, among whom were Bro. and Sr. E. E. Elton and daughter, Sr. Hazel Elton, of Tustin; Bro. and Sr. C. E. Hatch of Santa Ana; Sr. H. E. Shepherd of Redlands; and Sr. Marie Anderson of Glendale. The day was ideal for our picnic dinner at Exposition Park, and about forty of our number brought well-filled baskets. The occasion was partially in honor of Sr. Marsh's birthday anniversary, and a birthday cake and other appropriate gifts were presented to her, with many sincere good wishes for happy returns of the day.

The afternoon service at 2:30 had a much better attendance than any evening service which we have had on first Sundays. Therefore on future first Sundays, the second meeting will be at 2:30, instead of 7:30.

Sr. Elizabeth Frier, of Long Beach, has been on the sick list and was not able to accompany Bro. and Sr. Cline on the first Sunday as usual.

On June 6th, a little son came to Bro. and Sr. E. E. Rogers, of 1150 Spence Street. He will be known as Will. On the same date, at the same hospital a son was born to a Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rogers who will also be known as Will. So it looks as if the popular humorist will have many namesakes.

Bro. John Saylor has been up in Idaho on business for the past week. We have missed him at services.

Little John William Taylor, son of Sr. Rena Blackwell Taylor, has been having a siege of diphtheria, but has gotten along nicely and is due to be released from quarantine soon.

Owing to the vacation season being at hand, the young people's Berean class will abandon their separate meeting until September 1st, and will work with the other class during the summer.

Master Bradley Crundwell has been serving as Sunday School pianist for some time, and we now have a new pupil, Master Howard Kay, who plays the mouth harp very nicely.

So on last Sunday we had a pleasant surprise in having the children's class sing a hymn, while accompanied by the above named young musicians.

The Ladies Aid Society has recently adopted the name "Dorcas Society", and we are hoping to enroll all isolated sisters in the state with the view of mutual encouragement and service in the Master's work. The present officers are Emma C. Railsback, 1020 S. Burlington Ave., president; Laura McCallister, 6817 Holmes Ave., secretary-treasurer; and Nettie B. Crundwell, 4633 Saturn St., corresponding secretary. Any isolated sisters in the state are requested to get in touch with one of these officers. Our means of raising funds for the past six months have been confined mostly to making quilts, but our next meeting will be held at the home of Sr. Lydia Saylor, where she will provide work for the day. Twenty-two attended our last meeting, among whom were visitors from Pomona, namely, Sr. Elizabeth Reid, Sr. Florence Emery, Sr. Elsie McLeod and Sr. Leta G. McLeod.

Bro. N. J. McLeod and family are located in the former home of the late Sr. Rachel McLeod on Val Vista Street, Pomona, for the vacation season, after which time they have planned to return to Holtville, where Bro. McLeod will resume history teaching in the high school.

FONTHILL

We all greatly enjoyed listening to the address given by Bro. George Rennard, of the Niagara Falls church, during Bro. Randall's absence in Minnesota.

The members of the church choir met at the home of Sr. Blanche Page on Monday evening, and presented Sr. Joseph Fletcher, who is leaving this week for an extended visit to relatives in California, with a handsome hand bag, as a token of their appreciation of her faithful service as a member of the choir. A musical evening was enjoyed, at the close of which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

PRIZES

Watch coming issues of The Herald for prizes to be given for new subscriptions, at the rate of $1.50 per year. A valuable gift will be given for the greatest number of subscriptions obtained. These prizes will be of interest to Sunday Schools. In the meantime—send for blanks and get busy.

INFORMATION ASKED

Questions: "Will you please give us in The Restitution Herald columns what was done with the two thieves after they were taken from the cross? Also what became of those who were raised from the dead, Matt. 27:51-53? Please give the facts."

Answer: The one outstanding fact is that no one in The Herald office knows the answer to these questions.

All that the Bible testimony states is that the legs of the thieves were broken because that they were not yet dead, and it was the close of the day. One possible conclusion is that they did not go to Paradise that day, unless they went before they died and went with broken legs.

Will someone who knows "give the facts" on these questions?

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Isabelle Smith; Lydia Railsback; A. L. White; Samuel E. Haney; Ethel Weaver; Nettie B. Crundwell; Mrs. R. A. Robinson; Mrs. Leon Pixley; Mrs. Chas. Stedman; Mrs. Albert Logsdon; Ella M. Rose; Mrs. Annie Trotter; Lucy B. Groat; Vernon Groat; E. E. Groat; Mrs. A. M. Siple; Mrs. Bessie Dittman; Mary Goddard.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.— 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy. Free.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince
(For cost of Postage) 32 .03 .12

BOOKS

Name	Pages	Each	Per 6
Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth, Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson	480	.85	5.00
Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

TO THE BRETHREN OF THE CHURCH OF GOD

(Continued from page 585)

True, there is the other side; but true also the Christian's duty is to snatch, like "brands from the burning", those who are hungry for truth and are inclined toward faith in Christ.

In view of the urgency of our times we earnestly request that every church body affiliated with the General Conference will at once arrange for delegation to the coming General Conference. Also, that every person, whosoever will, if possible, attend this meeting.

Anxiously awaiting your cooperation, we are
Yours in the Master's service,
F. L. Austin, Sec'y.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.
(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

THE LETTER TO PHILEMON

By Lyman Booth

PHILEMON was a fellow laborer with Paul, living at Colosse. His slave, Onesimus, had run away and come to Rome and is there converted to Christ, through the instrumentality of Paul. The Apostle sent him back to Philemon with this epistle, in which Paul, with great tact, delicacy, and genuine Christian sympathy, intercedes for Onesimus, "whom," he says, "I have begotten in my bonds". "For perhaps he therefore departed for a season, that thou shouldest receive him for ever; not now as a servant, but above a servant, a brother beloved, specially to me, but how much more unto thee, both in the flesh, and in the Lord? If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as myself." (15-17.)

While the Apostle was imprisoned in Rome, Onesimus arrived in that city, and curiosity, or some such motive led him to attend on Paul's ministry, which resulted in his conversion. After he had given satisfactory proof of a real change and manifested an excellent disposition, which greatly endeared him to Paul, he judged it proper and right to send him back to his master, to whom he wrote this epistle, that he might procure a more favorable reception than he could otherwise expect.

This epistle is given by the most competent judges and critics a decided preference as a model of good writing of the epistolary kind, to the most admired remains of antiquity. Indeed we can hardly conceive how such a cause as that of Onesimus could have been pleaded in a more interesting, obliging, prudent, pathetic, and masterly manner. Every word seems to be in the right place and none omitted. It is replete with instruction.

The Apostle entertained no doubt of Philemon's compliance with his request, and even expected that he would do more than he said. It is therefore probable that Onesimus was not only received into favor, but set at liberty; and it is thought that he afterwards became a minister of the gospel. Onesimus accompanied Tychicus to Colosse, and it may be concluded that the Apostle wrote to Philemon at the same time. Onesimus, having delivered the letter to his master and having obtained forgiveness, joined with Tychicus in executing the Apostle's commission to the Colossians.

The epistle is remarkable for its delicacy, generosity, and justice. After a brief thanksgiving for what he had heard of Philemon's charitable deeds (1-7), the Apostle presents his petition in behalf of one who, though once unprofitable was now, he says, "profitable," and a dearly beloved brother (8-11). He then begs Philemon to receive him as he would himself, and offers to be responsible for any damage Onesimus had caused him by his desertion (12-20). In full confidence that Philemon would do all he had requested, he begs him to provide him a lodging when he should be liberated from his imprisonment (22).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 23, 1931

NUMBER 38

Close to Thee

Thou my everlasting portion,
More than friend or life to me;
All along my pilgrim journey,
Savior, let me walk with Thee.
Close to Thee, close to Thee,
Close to Thee, close to Thee,
All along my pilgrim journey,
Savior, let me walk with Thee.

Not for ease or worldly pleasure,
Nor for fame my prayer shall be;
Gladly will I toil and suffer,
Only let me walk with Thee.
Close to Thee, close to Thee,
Close to Thee, close to Thee,
Gladly will I toil and suffer,
Only let me walk with Thee.

Lead me through the vale of shadows,
Bear me o'er life's fitful sea;
Then the gate of life eternal,
May I enter, Lord, with Thee.
Close to Thee, close to Thee,
Close to Thee, close to Thee,
Then the gate of life eternal,
May I enter, Lord, with Thee.

—Fanny Crosby.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory." — Psalm 72:18, 19.

IN THE KINGDOM OF MEN

"Till thou know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will."

THE above words were spoken by Daniel to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar had extolled himself greatly in his own estimation. Daniel was interpreting to him the fact that not Nebuchadnezzar nor his god ruled or directed the affairs of man. Rather Daniel's God, the God of heaven, was He who holds sovereignty over all the earth. Nebuchadnezzar came to the day when he was driven out, and it was not until seven times had passed over him that he came to his right mind, and said, v. 34, "And I blessed the most High, and praised and honoured him that liveth for ever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation".

That God has a household of nations as well as a household of individuals is plainly taught in various places in the Scriptures. All nations, governments, are in His hands. From the many He chose one people, Israel, to become His holy nation, His peculiar people. Nor has He ever changed or altered that choice. Though that nation has been scattered in punishment, though they have been made to undergo much privation and much hardship, yet God still retains His choice of the people of Abraham, and they are His own peculiar people. This is emphasized clearly by Paul in Romans 11, which emphasis is given after that our Savior began to choose out a people for the name of Christ, our Lord.

This truth not only pervades Scripture, but it pervades all time. That God's hand is active and sovereign over the affairs of the nations of earth today is equally evident as it is that His hand was active over Babylon in Daniel's day.

But God's dealing with the nation is one thing; His dealing with the individual is quite another thing. Through Christ, our Lord and Master, our Father is calling out a people for the name of Christ. He is developing a family of individuals—individuals who are true in faith to Him and to His trust. To be one of this family of individuals one must live individually close to Christ. In fact, he must be sufficiently close as to receive of Christ, Christ's life within himself. He thus becomes qualified and fitted ever more and more for the true service of Him who died for us.

Going back to the nations, God's dealing with them today is quite different from His dealing with individuals. It is not necessary that the nation be close to God in order for the Father to lead and guide it even upward and onward. The descendants of His scattered people, Israel, are somewhere today. From some source or another they are to be gathered back unto Jerusalem. In God's own good time He is to send forth His angels and His spirit and bring them in again.

At the time of ingathering of God's nation, the government which particularly houses or affords home to that people may confidently expect to receive certain blessings from on High that will tend to the advancement and outgathering of Israel.

This renewed evidence of the hand of God upon the affairs of nations will be particularly manifest in the days preceding the return of our Lord. According to Isaiah 37, Israel is to be reawakened. She is to be gathered together. At the time of this stirring and gathering and rising up, there will be an activity, more or less noticeable, evident to all the world.

Such activities become signs of the days in which we live. They indicate the approach of the coming of the Son of Man. They indicate the proper condition of Israel for the arrival of Him to whom God has given the kingdom.

As scriptural students, let HERALD readers be observant of national and social conditions, not with a view especially to confirm some previously established view, but always with a view to watch and observe to the end that we may discover the truth, whatsoever it may be, regarding current conditions.

LAWLESSNESS

THERE are many happenings that the Bible student should watch with interest as they take place. It would seem that no one can tell definitely what these happenings portend. The sum total of them undoubtedly means much. But just what any particular occurrence may mean "in the fulfillment of biblical prophecy" is more or less questionable.

There is a marked degree of increasing lawlessness throughout the world. Especially has this been true in the United States. Undoubtedly every reader is glad of the report that the authorities of law have at last taken in hand some of those lawless ones who have been exercising such large sovereignty over so many people for the last decade. The federal authorities, uniting with the civic authorities of Chicago, have at last apparently accomplished something in the way of putting down lawlessness.

But right on the heels of this comes the report from one of the law enforcing men, Mr. Johnson (whom it seems to me all should honor for the work he has done), announcing preparation to cope with whoever shall strive to fill the place of the one whom they hope to commit to the federal penitentiary. They are expecting another lawless one to enter in and take the throne of lawlessness against law.

These conditions make one wonder whether or not the Bible student should anticipate that this element of lawlessness will gradually increase and spread over the country till the prophecy in 2 Thessalonians 2, concerning the lawless one, comes to be fulfilled after this manner. Will lawlessness continue to coronate ever greater succeeding monarchs of wickedness to the end?

This is not to suggest that such may be the case. Rather, it is a suggestion that each student of prophecy and of current events may do well to keep these things in mind and under careful observance.

CARNAL NATURE

SOME ask the question, "Is the carnal nature ever brought into subjection, or is it ever ready to assert itself every chance?" I will answer this question to the best of my ability and knowledge with the help of God.

I contend that our carnal nature is not changed; our old nature and impulses are not changed. But when we have accepted Christ, our minds are changed; we no longer desire to follow the dictates of the flesh, but rather to do as we learn that God wills for us, and keep our eyes single to His glory.

With our minds we receive the Holy Spirit, and thereby we receive Jesus, as it were, in our souls and hearts, and by the Holy Spirit (yes, through it) we live to please God, wholly and continuously. And by so doing, we give no room, time, or thought to carnality. So long as we live in this way, our lives will be counted as perfect in God's sight.

For those minor carnalities that will occur owing to thoughtlessness and impulse (providing we are unconscious of them), we will have remission through the Lord; but when we are careless and indifferent, the carnal nature will take possession. When we have put on the new man, we should mortify and keep in subjection the carnal nature; we should do as Christ did—seek not our own will, but the will of the Father (John 5:30). Christ is our Example and Pattern.

There was Enoch whom we read of in Genesis 5:24. "He walked with God." We have no record of the carnal nature appearing in his life. If it was possible for one to live pleasing in God's sight before Christ came, how much easier it ought to be for us. When Christ was tempted, He knew the word of God, which is the sword of the Spirit. He used it and defeated the carnal one.

So we would do likewise, as Paul wrote to the Corinthians: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?" (1 Cor. 3:16). Ye means more than one—collectively (lively stones)—the church.

This being the case, we should be careful that we may live right in God's sight. If we, each one of us, will keep uppermost in our mind that "God seeth me"—putting Christ first in all things, placing ourselves, as it were, in His shoes, asking what He would do if He were in my place, no matter how great, or small, or simple, the question may seem, the Holy Spirit will bear witness with our spirit, whether it be right or wrong.

This takes only a moment; it is worth the while. How grand it is, just to walk and talk with God; how sweet and comforting it is.

Now, I will give some Scripture quotations which will harmonize with this line of thought, and those that are not familiar with these ought to get their Bible and read them now. Read Rom. 7:15-25; 8:27; Eph. 4:21-24; Col. 3:1-17. In the fourteenth verse of John four, we read, "But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

If we have accepted Christ, and the Holy Spirit dwells in us, we have this well of living water springing up within us to everlasting life; we have our eyes single to His glory, and the carnal nature will not give us much trouble. But if we set our eyes on the things of this world, the carnal nature will assert itself.

As an illustration, I here give a little story I read in the tract, written by George Cutter, called "The Messenger of Peace": One bright, moonlight night in the full of the moon, there were two men standing side by side, looking into an open well. One made the remark: "How big and round the moon is tonight; see how smoothly she is gliding along." The other man stepped up a little closer and dropped a small pebble in the well. The former man exclaimed: "Oh, see the moon now; she is broken all to shivers, and is jouncing together in horrible disorder." Then the other man said: "Not so, my dear man. Look up—the moon is just the same as she ever was; it is only a grotesque illusion. That is only a condition of the well."

Now, my dear friend, your heart is the well. Your soul is the office in which the Holy Spirit dwells, and when the Holy Spirit has possession, then everything is gliding along smoothly and calm, springing up into joy, peace and hap-

(Continued on page 602)

LIFE'S LITTLE DAY

I loved the morn—along her pathway strewn
 Dewdrop and fragrant blossom, but the chill
 Of somber mists was giv'n me, not my will.
 I said, "I'll rest me when the radiant noon
 Floods the wide stillness with his glories." Soon
 Black tempests filled the sky with dread, and still
 The weary path winds ever up the hill.
 'Tis well!—perchance for me His richest boon.
 For, full of bitterness, my heart grew stern;
 So dull my ears and holden were mine eyes,
 The voice divine that gently chided me
 I heard not 'mid the storm, nor could discern
 That by my side there walked in that strange guise
 Of toil and pain, a Man of Galilee.

The Man, thorn-crowned, who trod the way of pain,
 Sore smitten for my sin. Should I not go
 With Him such little space? Ah, but to know
 Such fellowship is kingly. Not in vain
 He leads me in the shadow, where I fain
 Would touch His hand. I clasped it, and the glow
 Of a new life enswathed my soul, and lo!
 The things I counted loss were priceless gain.
 When shadows deepen and the way grows dim,
 And earth's wan lights are shifting faint and far,
 Still may His hand my trembling soul lead on,
 Up the dark sunset—beyond the twilight star,
 Till joy shall wake me, and the night be gone.
 — R. L. Day.

THE CHURCH REWARD

By Paul M. Hatch

THE reward of the church comes especially through its work and the gift through faith, as is plainly taught in numerous passages. Ephesians 2:8, 9 expressly says that the gift of God comes through the grace of God, and it is a bounteous gift of salvation through faith, not of works lest any man should boast.

Some would ask, then, why work? But the great Apostle answers that question in Romans 6, and James says in his epistle that faith is declared through works, and faith is thereby perfected. James 2:18, 22.

Faith is belief in the existence of God and coming to Him; but our work that rewards is a diligent search for Him. This searching or seeking for God is the act of cleansing ourselves from filthiness of the flesh, mind, and all other things catalogued as things carnal, that we, as pure, may stand before Him of all purity, without spot or blemish or any such thing.

Both Jesus and Paul are careful in their instructions about works. For works are after all a very important matter for consideration, if every member of the church is to gain the full benefit of the reward. This reward is clearly stated in Colossians 3:23-25, with valuable instruction concerning our attitude attending it.

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men; knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ. But he that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and there is no respect of persons."

The reward is clearly an inheritance merited from our works. John, the Revelator, has said that he that overcometh shall inherit all things, and "I will be his God and he shall be my son." Rev. 2:7.

Jesus many times told His disciples not to make a display of their works to be seen of men, as did the Pharisees, which were of a covetous attitude. His instructions were rather that they should do things in secret, and the Father's reward would be open to all. Matt. 6:1-18; Luke 6:35.

Probably Paul's greatest instruction concerning works occurs in the third chapter of 1 Corinthians, and he is quite explicit in stating that a man's works may bring him no reward at all.

From the time that Paul had been among them and preached until he had written the epistle to them, he makes it plain that they had not been fed meat, but they were fed milk, for they were babes in Christ. And at the time of writing the epistle there was every indication that they were still in the infancy stage of carnality, mainly because they were partial to the ministers that had been among them. This partiality had kept them in infancy, and still they were not able to take meat, because of envy and strife and divisions.

Paul sets forth that there is only one Foundation and that, Christ. In his own case he had planted the church at Corinth, and Apollos had watered it, but it was God that gave the increase. Paul had, however, felt some pride that it was of his establishing, and he warned every man to be careful of the kind of work that was to be rendered in building it up.

That work, or quality of work, is rated in gold, silver, precious stone, wood, hay, stubble, from the imperishable to the perishable. Every man's work in the church is to be tested with fire. "If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire."

Paul further gives strong warning that if their work be of the destructive variety in respect to the temple of God, God shall destroy that person. In this case I believe that he was especially warning those that had come into the church at Corinth and were still practicing the defilement of idolatrous worship, and as a result, were weakening the whole church fabric, that had been so carefully worked upon.

Paul evidently meant in this chapter that members of the church were liable to lose their reward for work, if their work was not diligent unto the Lord, and that some would suffer loss. But he also believed that faith would save them, though it would be "as by fire". At the same

(Continued on back page)

CLOSE TO THEE

By F. L. Austin

"Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me."—John 15:4.

BY GRACE are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast."

Who feels that he has yet experienced the fullness of the breadth and depth of the grace of God as so touchingly announced by Paul to the Ephesians, at 2:8 and its context? To be sure, no one can fully experience its fullness until salvation is fully experienced.

But final salvation is a consequent. In a way, it is the end sought. As such, it must be preceded by a life of faith. Such faith, throughout its course, is assured of being accompanied by God's grace, His favor. Who, I ask again, feels that he has experienced the fullness of that favor; feels that its every comfort and its every thrill has been enjoyed, that he has explored and sampled its fullness, that there is nothing more for him to taste?

"THROUGH FAITH". Faith sensitizes man, as magnetism sensitizes the compass needle. When that faith is developed toward God and His Son, it sensitizes man Godwise, Christwise. He is made to be close to God, to Christ. Not close as regards distance that can be measured by the surveyor's chain or by the astronomer's glass, but close in the sense of unity, in the sense of being one with God.

It is because of that closeness that God's spirit-spark leaps to man, as the electric spark leaps from the electrically filled element to the adjacent object made close by its sympathetic character. It is the faith-filled, the faith-characterized man, who senses and responds to the invisible drawings of Christ, as the steel shavings sense the invisible pull from the crane-magnet and, forcing their way through the littered foreign matter, leap to the magnet. Its closeness to the magnet is computed, not altogether by the thing that is called distance, but, by its character-sympathy therewith.

Man is the creature of God. From the beginning God has implored him to abide in Him that He might surcharge man with His own spirit and influence. But, having been given free-will, some choose the role of insulator rather than that of conductor of the spirit of His Son. He who majors in the role of insulator will hardly feel or suspect God's presence—"though he be not far from everyone of us". But he who majors in the role of "faith, WHICH WORKETH by love" senses more and more God's presence, His guiding hand, His ever present favor.

"Through faith" life's mechanism is "tuned in" to "select" and "receive" the "grace of God" which at all times is "broadcast" throughout His universe. Increased perfection of faith gives increased aptness to "select" His message of love, to bring Him close to one's life—life with all its needs, near with all His favors.

True, it is not man's works that save. It is the "grace" of God that, received "through faith", forgives, cleanses, and saves.

"Faith" tempers man. It turns him ever toward his Maker and his Savior. It fits him to sense the closeness of his Lord; to "abide in him"; to "bring forth fruit". It fills him with that burning prayer of Fanny Crosby:

"All along my pilgrim journey,
Savior, let me walk with thee."

HE SHALL BUILD MY TEMPLE

SOME of the Jews who had witnessed the clearing of the temple precincts said to Jesus, "What sign shewest thou us, seeing that thou doest these things?" Our Lord replied by giving them the "sign" already set out in Scripture as a means of recognition: "He shall build my temple." Standing right there in the temple, Jesus said: "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."—John 2:18, 19. The Jews thought He referred to that temple of stone and were horrified.

Different versions of our Lord's reply apparently were widely circulated, for at His trial, and afterwards as He hung on the cross, they were brought up against Him, first as an accusation and then as a mockery. (Matt. 26:61; 27:40; Mark 14:58; 15:29.) Had the Jews been more open-minded and fair, they would have asked, "How? What kind of a temple?" But they did not wait for an explanation.

The disciples themselves understood but imperfectly. It was only after He was risen from the dead that they remembered what He had said: "And they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had said." They then understood that the temple He would raise up was associated with His body offered on the cross, and that it was not a temple of stone like the building at Jerusalem.

ESTABLISHING THE TRUE WORSHIP

OUR LORD Jesus was not authorized to build another temple of stone. Even in the Jewish temple the stones were not the most important thing. It was God's presence in the temple that hallowed it. There He would meet with His people, and commune with the high priest; from there His blessing would issue, when the sacrifices were duly offered according to the law. (Ex. 29:42-45; 25:22.)

The temple, then, stood for the form of worship authorized by the law and acceptable to God for that reason. But God would not always accept animal sacrifices, the offering of which was one of the main reasons for the maintenance of the temple at Jerusalem. Their purpose was to show the Jews the sinfulness of sin and the need of a sacrifice for their sins.

When therefore our Lord said, "Destroy this temple," His reference was not to the material structure, but to the form of worship. And we read further, "He spake of the

(Continued on page 601)

HEBREWS

By Lyman Booth

THE current tradition of the church, and the judgment of the most competent critics of modern times have determined that this epistle was written by Paul, though some, both in earlier and recent times, have thought otherwise. We find the title, "The Epistle of Paul", written in all our manuscripts except one only, which says, "The Epistle to the Hebrews." It is generally conceded that this epistle was received in ancient times by those Christians who used the Greek language and lived in the eastern parts of the Roman Empire.

Clement of Alexandria, before the end of the second century, received this epistle as St. Paul's and quoted it frequently, without any doubt or hesitation. Lardner says it is not expressly quoted as Paul's by any of the Latin writers in the first three centuries. However, it was known to Irenaeus and Tertullian. It is manifest that it was received as Paul's by many Latin writers in the fourth, fifth, and sixth centuries.

Origen, who had some queer notions concerning it, says, "The ancients did not hand it down rashly as Paul's. It is very certain that the churches and writers who were ancient with respect to Origen must have conversed with the apostles themselves, or at least with their successors." Since this tradition was ancient in the time of Clement of Alexandria and Origen, about a hundred and thirty years after the epistle was written, it must have had its rise in the days of Paul himself, and hence cannot be reasonably contested.

The doubts which have been entertained on this subject seem to have arisen principally from the circumstance of the Apostle's name not being affixed to it, as was his custom in all his other epistles. If it is not to be considered as Paul's, then let it rest without a name, for there is no other name given it. But all the circumstances favor that of Paul, rather than any other person. Why should any other person have omitted his name? Since Paul's name is not affixed to it, he probably had a very good and sufficient reason for omitting it and for sending an anonymous letter to Jerusalem, because he was the peculiar Apostle to the Gentiles, the same as Peter was to the circumcision. He well knew his name was extremely hated at Jerusalem by all the enemies of Christianity and that their fury was even then raging; he was perhaps exasperated by the occasion of his imprisonment (10:33, 34); he was, therefore, unwilling to add fuel to the fire and inflame them against the church. As Paul was the Apostle to the Gentiles, in writing to the Hebrews he did not assume his apostolical character, because it was little respected by the unbelieving Jews and Judaizing Christians.

The Apostle intended to prove the doctrines of Christianity and the changes which it had introduced or would introduce to be entirely consistent with the oracles of God, as received by the Jews, and as being clearly predicted by the prophets, or typified, or, at the very least, intimated by them. So that any reader who fully understood the Old Testament must have expected the substance of what was taught by Christ and His apostles and the events which had taken place.

It is, therefore, highly probable that he aimed to write an epistle which might be put into the hands of either Judaizing Christians or unbelieving Jews and read by them without any prejudice on account of the person who wrote it, so that they might consider it impartially. It is evident, however, that he supposed some of the Hebrews would know from whom it came (10:34; 13:18, 23, 24). But these intimations are not stated till the argumentative part of the letter is ended; and they would not be clearly understood by any except the Apostle's friends.

(To be continued)

JOYS AND SORROWS OF AN EDITOR

PLANNING spiritual meals for our large family of HERALD readers, comprising folks of all tastes, varying conditions in life, and differing thoughts on the meaning of Scripture, is no small job. We welcome suggestions, comments, and criticisms from all of you. How else can we know that we are giving you a balanced ration? But the child that smilingly says, "Please pass the butter", sends a glow of pleasure through the parent heart.

Here are a few of the things that some of those around the table say:

"We greatly appreciate your paper. It is a weekly stimulus to strive for the things that endure."

"The burden of THE HERALD teaching today is 'work to save yourself'. As if we could! I would have no hope whatever if my salvation depended upon works."

"To determine to print nothing but what the majority believes is an attitude not to be proud of. You seem to be able to print many an article less scriptural than those from my pen and commend them to the study of the brethren, articles which are not in harmony with the accepted belief."

"Some time ago I sent you an article which you may not consider as edifying for the columns of THE HERALD. If so, I rejoice that the editors are exercising their prerogative—to accept or reject any matter consigned to them for publication."

"The spirit of our blessed Master must always be the criterion upon which our decision is based. Any paragraph in my article which you deem it wise to delete is quite satisfactory to me."

"There is a sameness about the things that are dished up for HERALD readers."

"We appreciate your work and that of all the others who are giving us so much through the pages of THE HERALD."

Thanks, folks! Please pass the bread.—M. G.

FIVE JUDGMENTS

THE nineteenth and twentieth chapters of Revelation reveal at least five separate judgments that shall take place in the transfer from the present age to the age of the millennium and to the time for the new heavens and earth. Beginning at Revelation 19:17, a judgment is announced by an angel standing in the sun. That judgment has to do with the overthrow of the beast, v. 19, and of the kings of the earth and of their armies, as all shall be gathered together "to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army." The result of this judgment is that the nations which shall fight with the beast against Him who sits on the white horse will be overthrown; that the beast and the false prophet will be "cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone."

As a result of this judgment those nations, and those kings, and the beast and the false prophet, who oppose Christ as He comes to take royal possession of His throne and of earth, will be completely crushed.

JUDGMENT NUMBER TWO

The record of Revelation twenty reveals an angel "come down from heaven". This angel announces another judgment. In this instance it is, "the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan," that shall be bound for a thousand years. The object seems to be "that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled".

With all nations opposing Christ having been overcome and vanquished, in Revelation 19:19-21, with the kings and authorities leading such nations having also been vanquished, and now with the deceiver being bound and sealed for one thousand years, those remaining of the nations are freed, for the time mentioned, of any leaders of power who might array them against the Messiah and against His sovereignty.

JUDGMENT NUMBER THREE

This judgment is different than the former two. The first and second were judgments looking to the overthrow of adverse authorities and conditions. Judgment number three looks to the liberation by resurrection of those who have once been true to Christ, but at the time spoken of are resting in the sleep of death—to be liberated by resurrection.

Here the door of the age of righteousness begins to swing open. The joys of the reign of Christ are as rays of a morning dawn. The day is ahead. What zenith of grandeur will await the brightness of that noonday sun.

These raised ones are to live with Christ and reign with Him a thousand years. Life and sovereignty are their awards. They are exalted; they are crowned; they are rewarded for their labors and for the patience of faith in Christ, when all around them was opposition.

"They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years" is a very emphatic way of telling that they were not alive just preceding the event of resurrection. They were in death. The following statement, "The rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished", also emphasizes this truth. They were not living, but they would live again. That they had been living is here indicated. That they were not alive at this time is definite. That they would not live again till the thousand years should be finished is also definite.

There are volumes of truth couched in these few words of verses four to six.

JUDGMENT NUMBER FOUR

"When the thousand years are expired", v. 7, a fourth judgment shall begin to take place and shall continue until victory shall be attained. Satan who "shall be loosed out of his prison," shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth. It is after he shall have done this, and after the nations shall have gathered together against the Lord and against His anointed, as though in an effort to redeem his sovereignty lost a thousand years previously, that fire shall come down from God out of heaven and devour the deceived nation.

This Satan, v. 7, devil, v. 10, is undoubtedly the same as "the dragon, that old serpent, which is called the Devil, and Satan," of v. 2. It is undoubtedly the same as "the dragon" of 13:2, which one in 12:9 is called "that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world". This deceiving leader of nations will at that time be "cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are". v. 10. The beast and the false prophet were cast therein a thousand years previously. See 19:20.

This then, is the consummation of judgment number four of this series.

JUDGMENT NUMBER FIVE

The record now leads us to the final judgment of the series. This, like judgment number three, pertains to the dead. In judgment number three, vv. 4-6, the dead, having been raised, are awarded. So in judgment number five, the dead are first raised. Evidently the dead here of v. 12, refer to the "rest of the dead" which in v. 5, "lived not again until the thousand years were finished".

V. 12 takes up the record after the thousand years were finished. Here "the rest of the dead" are raised. As the raised dead of v. 4 received judgment, so the raised dead of v. 12 will also be judged. The visions of John caused him to see and to understand that "whatsoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire".

AFTERWARDS

A careful reading of these scriptures reveals two principal works of our Lord. He clears the earth of all opposing, lawless, rebellious elements; He eradicates all that are led by sin or that are influenced thereby, and raises from the dead all those who have in death paid the wage of sin, clothing with life and position those who are righteously adjudged therefor and subjecting to "the lake of fire" all who, according to the righteous Judge, should in justice be adjudged thereto.

Forthwith the Book of Revelation reveals to us the new heavens and new earth. All ungodliness shall have been cleared away. All sin shall have been removed. The results of the curse will have been erased, and the new heavens and new earth will stand forth in all their God-given glory.

WAITING HIS RETURN

Lord, we hail the new creation,
 Perfectly restored in Thee,
 From the bondage of corruption
 Into blessed lib-er-ty;
 When anew the earth with glory,
 Fitted for the heavenly rest,
 Lighted by the Lord of glory,
 Will be "mansions" for the blest.

Lord, we hail Thy visitation,
 Told by faithful prophet's tongue;
 Hail the times of restitution,
 Later by apostles sung;
 When the Christ of Gentile nations —
 Glory of God's Israel —
 Soon will end earth's lamentation,
 Soon with nations come to dwell.

Yes, we see the day approaching;
 We believe, and wait the hour,
 Watching for our Lord's returning,
 Clothed with majesty and pow'r.
 We are waiting for our union
 With Messiah Christ our Lord;
 Waiting for the glad reunion
 Of the kings and priests of God.

Full of joyful expectation,
 Waiting to behold His face,
 Full of love and adoration,
 Waiting for our Lord's embrace;
 Waiting, patient vigils keeping,
 While our hearts within us burn,
 Restitution songs repeating,
 While we wait our Lord's return.

A BLESSED PERSUASION

IN terribly agony a soldier lay dying in a hospital. A visitor asked him: "What church are you of?" "Of the 'Church of Christ,'" he replied. "I mean of what persuasion are you?" then inquired the visitor. "Persuasion?" said the dying man, as his eyes looked heavenward, beaming with love, "I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate me from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus."—Selected.

KEEN, energetic business men and women whose lives are led by God are of great value to the General Conference. Send one or two as delegates from your church or from your state.

NAMING THE ANIMALS

By Norman John McLeod

EVERY year a new volume is added to a set of books which is in the biological archives of the British Museum. Each volume is of a thousand pages or more, octavo size, and contains the scientific names of new species of animals that have been classified that year. The set of volumes is large, as it dates back practically to the founding of the British Museum.

Anybody who has studied the classification of plants or animals knows that it is done according to a set of very rigid rules. The animal kingdom is first divided into two great groups: vertebrates (having a backbone) and invertebrates. These great divisions are subdivided into classes, for example, mammals, or fish. The classes are divided into orders, the orders into sub-orders, families, genera, species, and varieties.

The difference between varieties of plants may be merely such a thing as color; in animals as to whether it lives in the mountains or in the valley. Even the things that distinguish one species from another may be very minute, but they are enough to warrant a separate classification. A very large number of workers spend their entire time classifying specimens that are sent to the museum from all parts of the world.

Did Adam name all of these? Genesis 2:19-20 says Adam named the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air. It is hardly possible that the thing was done in the simple manner that might be inferred from the Bible verses. There is much room for thought in these things.

That the Bible is God's Word no one who has studied its message can doubt. That Adam could have used his entire life in naming the animals—no, even one group of animals—and then not have finished his task is evident to anybody who has studied biology. What must we conclude?

Paul, in Galatians 4:24, says that the story of Hagar, Sarah, and Ishmael is an allegory. If such an apparently unadorned story is an allegory, how about many other things in Moses' writings? Furthermore, Josephus says that Moses wrote "some things allegorical, some things enigmatical, and some things straightforward." In telling of the naming of the animals might not Moses have been speaking enigmatically or allegorically?

Many other things in the Genesis story appear to be of that peculiar type: knowledge grows on trees; a woman is made from a man's rib; and serpents speak as do men! All of these things are told in that same amazingly matter of fact style as the naming of the animals. It is that very style that makes Genesis so ever-thrilling to the student.

Just what the allegorical meaning of such things is does not appear. But they need not be a stumbling-block to the believer.

Look for Delegate blanks on back page.

IN THE SECRET PLACE

By Samuel E. Haney

"In that day shall this song be sung in the land of Judah; We have a strong city; salvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks. Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in. Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee."

IT is only those who are dwelling "in the secret place of the most High" and "under the shadow of the Almighty" that have the receptive mind, capacitating them to grasp the real significance of these words; and to abound therewith with unspeakable joy, having acquired the inner circle—the vestibule of heaven.

The Christian who takes God's word at one hundred percent lives more in the future than he does in the present. He is like Abraham of yore, "who by faith sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country. For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God"—Heb. 11:9, 10. Such a one rejoices in the promises of God, as if he saw his deliverance and was enjoying it. It is from such a viewpoint that we will consider our lengthy text.

Copious evidence—prophecy, chronology and current events—convince the unfettered broad minded Bible student that he can perceive by the eye of faith the "land of Judah"—his coveted spiritual Utopia—in the horizon of that glad day.

By faith he is enjoying life in this "strong city", for he knows that all that is in the Vine, both spiritual and physical life, belongs to him, a "branch", which makes the working out of his salvation comparatively easy, protected as he is by the "whole armour of God", and the "shield of faith", Eph. 6:11, 16. To these David refers in Psalm 84: 11, 12, thus: "For the Lord God is a sun and a shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." And the wise man has this to say, "God's promises are all tried and true; those who shelter beside Him, He shields."—Prov. 30:5, Moffatt.

God's interest in our salvation is likened unto "walls and bulwarks", invisible power which is appreciated and enjoyed by the eye of faith only, revelations confined to the spiritual minded. When Elisha's servant saw the city compassed with horses and chariots, he exclaimed, "My master! how shall we do?" He was comforted by the words, "Fear not; for they that be with us are more than they that be with them." Then Elisha prayed that the eyes of the young man might be opened, and he saw that the mountain was full of horses and chariots, 2 Kings 6. It is thus with those who "shelter beside God". He shields them in ways that our natural senses cannot discern.

David describes the secret of this spiritual or sixth sense of which the world has no knowledge, as follows:

"The angels of the Eternal camp around His worshippers, and rescue them (because) you have sheltered beside the Eternal, and made the Most High God your home, so no scathe can befall you, no plague can approach your tent. For He puts you in charge of His angels, to guard you wherever you go, to lift you in His hands lest you trip over a stone." Psa. 91:9-12, Moffatt.

Peter and Isaiah respectively refer to "the gates of the righteous nation" thus: "But you are the elect race, the royal priesthood, the consecrated nation, the people who belong to Him, that you may proclaim the wondrous deeds of Him who has called you from darkness to His wonderful light." "Foreigners shall rebuild your walls, their kings shall do you service; for though in wrath I struck you down, I show you pity now and favour. Ever shall your gates lie open, never shut by day or night, to let the nations pour their wealth in, headed by their kings. For any nation or dynasty that will not serve you shall perish; such nations shall be laid utterly waste. All your people shall be pious, they shall always hold the land, planted there by the Eternal's hand, His own work, for His own glory."—1 Peter 2:9; Isa. 60:10-12, 21, Moffatt.

(Continued on page 602)

HE SHALL BUILD MY TEMPLE

(Continued from page 597)

temple of his body". That is, He foretold a new form of worship, built upon or constituted by the sacrifice of Himself on the cross.

The stone temple was not destroyed until forty years later, but the form of worship represented in that temple was destroyed when the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, and God no longer recognized the sacrifices there offered. (Matt. 27:51; Mark 15:28; Luke 23:45.) God provided another and a better veil associated with a better worship. (Heb. 10:19, 20.)

Of the true worship of God Jesus said, "In three days I will raise it up." By this He did not mean that He would raise Himself from death, as some think, for many scriptures declare that God raised Him from the dead. (Acts 2:32; 3:15; 4:10; 13:30, 32-37; Eph. 1:19, 20.) Our Lord referred to something that He (the Son) would raise up. In His talk to the woman at the well He said that worship at the temple would cease. "They that worship him (the Father) must worship him in spirit and in truth." John 4:21-24. This new worship is what the Lord Jesus raised up after His resurrection, and after He had sprinkled as it were the blood of atonement on the heavenly mercy seat. (Heb. 1:3; 9:23, 24.)

In other words, Jesus opened up a way of approach to God by the offering of His perfect human body on the cross, and all who would come to God must come in faith, recognizing and acknowledging that Sacrifice as given for their sins and to open the way into the presence of God.—From the New Covenant Advocate.

THE DIVINE PORTRAIT REVIEW

IN PREPARING for the last lesson of the present quarter, the Sunday School teacher may find the following helpful:

Each lesson of the quarter contributes something to the portrait of Jesus Christ. An excellent way to conduct the review is to divide the lessons of the quarter among the members of the class asking each to speak to the class (what he has to say may be written) about the side of Christ's character most prominent in the lesson assigned him. The temperance lesson may be omitted, and if you have less than eleven in the class, some will handle two lessons each; while if you have more than eleven, the same lesson may be assigned to two pupils. The following list may be helpful:

- Lesson 1.—The Humility of Jesus.
- Lesson 2.—The Forgiving Love of Jesus.
- Lesson 3.—The Generosity of Jesus.
- Lesson 4.—The Prayerfulness of Jesus.
- Lesson 5.—The Winsomness of Jesus.
- Lesson 6. The Fidelity of Jesus.
- Lesson 7.—The Royalty of Jesus.
- Lesson 8.—The Priesthood of Jesus.
- Lesson 9.—The Humanity of Jesus.
- Lesson 10.—The Atonement of Jesus.
- Lesson 11.—The Exaltation of Jesus.

—Peloubet's Notes.

Each state delegation has half as many votes in the General Conference as there are members of the Church of God in the state from which the delegation is appointed.

Each church delegation to the General Conference, if the church is a member of a State Conference, has half as many votes as there are members of the church appointing the delegation.

If a church is not associated with a State Conference, its delegation to the General Conference has as many votes as its church has members.

CARNAL NATURE

(Continued from page 595)

pininess. But as soon as sin enters in, then all is disorder and chaos; then your joy and peace is all broken to fragments.

What is the reason of all this disorder? Is the condition of the Holy Spirit changed? No, no. Surely not. Then what is the matter? Is God's Word changed? No, God forbid. Then what is changed? Is the Holy Spirit grieved for having to leave its high office, in supplying you with peace, hope, and joy, and all the gifts of God, having to remind you of the evil you have done, filling your heart with grief, and remorse, for your sin?

But the moment you hearken to the voice within, repent for the evil you have done, and get your heart right with God again, then the Holy Spirit takes up its abode within and begins its work again where it left off. Then all is peaceful and gliding along smoothly as before.—Selected by A. N. Harlan.

IN THE SECRET PLACE

(Continued from page 601)

The Psalmist stresses the point, "For the Eternal, who loves honesty, never forsakes His faithful band. The lawless shall He utterly destroy, the families of the godless shall be doomed; the land is the possession of the good, and all their days they shall dwell therein".—Psa. 37:28, 29, Moffatt.

In the language of Paul (2 Cor. 4:18) we have been "looking not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen"—a vista of the future. Now let us feast at God's symposium board "of fat things" in the interim, until the invisible become visible, when this "mortal shall have put on immortality", to wit, "Thou will keep him in perfect peace"—a continuous, unchangeable peace! What a glorious state of mind! particularly during these perilous times when every man's hand is against his neighbor; when "the seducers are saying, Peace, and there is no peace", Ezek. 13:10, because "their feet run fast to crime, they hurry to murder innocent men; their thoughts are thoughts of mischief; rapine and ruin are the track they follow; they are not for what leads to bliss; their paths are void of justice; they take a crooked course, where bliss is all unknown."—Isa. 59:7, 8, Moffatt.

It should not be difficult to understand the reason why individuals and nations are void of peace, when there is no peace in the world to be had; and why the consecrated Christian possessing heavenly wisdom has peace, as David explains, "Great peace have they which love thy law: and nothing shall offend them." Psa. 119:165.

But let the wise man give us the quintessence, the doxology of peace, according to Dr. Moffatt's translation—"Happy is the man who gathers wisdom, the man who gains knowledge: her (wisdom's) profits are richer than silver; she brings in more than gold; she is more precious than rubies; no treasure can compare with her; long days lie in her right hand, wealth and honour in her left; her ways are ways of tranquil ease and all her paths are bliss; to those who grasp her, she is vital strength—happy are all who hold her fast." Prov 3:13-18.

This "perfect peace" is obtainable on two conditions, namely, by keeping our minds immutably stayed on God, and similarly trusting in Him. But the accomplishment of this surpasses human effort. One must have divine influence acting within one's heart—a grace which is brought about by obedience to the teachings of Jesus Christ and His apostles. The same is true concerning every heavenly blessing, whether it be for spirit, soul, or body—an implicit dependency upon obedience to God's requirements, and an intrepid faith in His Word.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"HE THAT HUMBLETH HIMSELF SHALL BE EXALTED."—LUKE 14:11.

NATIONAL BEREAN BOARD MEETING

ON MAY 19, 1931, the National Berean Board met at the home of Bro. and Sr. F. E. Siple at Grand Rapids, Michigan. The meeting was called to order by the president at 9:45 a. m. with five delegates and six visitors present. Prayer was offered by Bro. Siple.

Reports of the treasurer and of the Sales, Junior and Senior Social Correspondence, Isolated and Relief committees were read and approved. In regard to the latter committee, Sr. Sanford gave a very interesting resume of her work.

A new system of reports was then discussed. A report is usually considered something dry and monotonous and will hold the interest of listeners for a short time only. It is hoped that this may be changed by those who write them to convey a bit of comparison, personality or activity of the work which the report represents.

An interesting general discussion of the Berean work in various states then followed. It was then considered a wise plan that name and addresses of capable workers, their qualifications and adaptabilities be submitted to the national Berean president to be retained for future election and committee appointments. This should overcome too hasty thought at the time of nomination.

After a motion to adjourn, the meeting was dismissed at 12:15 p. m. with prayer by Bro. Lyon.

The afternoon session was called to order at 2:15 p. m. and prayer offered by Sr. Louise La Munion.

A most interesting and unusual Berean Day program was then arranged to be given at the national conference. The discussion of tracts and book publications filled the remainder of the afternoon.

We were dismissed at 5:30 p. m. with prayer by Bro. Siple. All departed, thanking Bro. and Sr. Siple and the Grand Rapids brethren for their splendid hospitality.

Louise La Munion, Sec. pro. tem.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A LIVE CHRISTIAN?

THE Christian life is often referred to as a "walk". It is an active, purposeful life. A walk has a beginning, a continuance and a goal.

The Christian walk begins after baptism. Before baptism we walk after the flesh, or worldly things, but after baptism Christ is our Guide and our actions should show love, joy, peace, gentleness, goodness and temperance, if we walk worthily.

If we continue to walk after Christ, we have the promise in Revelation 3:21, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."

At the end of an active Christian life we can say with Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 2 Timothy 4:7, 8.

Dale Reis, Dixon, Illinois.

FROM Sunshine, that cheerful little magazine, we take the following:

"A business house may spread itself over a whole block and may employ a thousand people, but the average citizen will form his judgment of the concern through his contact with one individual. If this individual is rude or inefficient, it will take a lot of kindness and efficiency to overcome the bad impression.

"Every member of an organization who in any way comes in contact with the public is an advertisement, and the impression he makes is either for good or bad."

What kind of an impression are you leaving in the minds of those that you meet? What is their opinion of our Berean Society, our church, our faith, after meeting you?

If all other churches should suddenly be obliterated, just what would be the effect on your church?

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 20; Ohio, 15; Michigan, 8; California, 6; Louisiana, 4; Indiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; Missouri, 1; New York, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

PENTECOST — that is a big word, is it not? And what does it mean? Something meaning fifty, in this case fifty days after the resurrection of Christ. And not only is Pentecost a big word, but it marks a big event.

Christ had been in heaven ten days. The disciples were waiting in Jerusalem, as they had been commanded. One hundred and twenty were gathered in an upper room, praying and talking over the things Jesus had taught them.

Suddenly a peculiar noise was heard. What could it be? It sounded like a great wind! It seemed to come from heaven! It filled the whole house where they were sitting! And then what happened in the room? Little lights, like tiny tongues of fire!

And, what do you think? A light rested on the head of each person there, and immediately that person could talk in languages he had never studied. What was it that enabled them to do this? God had given some of His power to them, and the fire was the sign for them to see.

From this moment they were able to perform wonderful deeds, and seemed to understand things now that before they had questioned. Their courage was admirable, for it was no easy task to begin preaching in Jerusalem, where such bitter enmity had been displayed.

Peter had naturally become leader of this small group. He was now a wiser, steadier Peter, and ready to follow God's direction, rather than his own conclusions.

When it became known that these Galileans could speak in various languages, the multitude came to hear and were amazed. Some doubted; others made fun, and accused the apostles of being drunk.

It was then that Peter showed how earnest and brave he had become. He stood up and preached the first sermon that was delivered after Jesus arose. He began by defending the disciples against the charge of drunkenness. He then quoted from the prophet Joel, to show how God had promised this power.

He also quoted words of David, which had foretold how Christ should die, live again, and ascend into heaven, where He now is at God's right hand. Peter ended his sermon by boldly declaring that "God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ."

Did these people so accused make angry threats? No, indeed! Their hearts (minds) were so touched that they cried out, "What shall we do?" And what did Peter answer? He told them to change their way of worship and living, and be baptized.

And, children, will you remember that three thousand people were baptized that very day? Just think! Was not that a wonderful beginning?

Now, do you see what a miraculous day the day of Pentecost is? And do you admire Peter now? Are we as courageous and eager to tell about our Lord and bring others to Him as Peter was?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read the prophecy in Joel 2:28-32, and compare it with Acts 2:17-21.
2. Memorize Acts 2:38.

WE BELIEVE in baptism as Jesus was baptized—"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned."—Mark 16:16.

A CHILD'S PRAYER

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." — Psalm 119:105.

DEAR GOD: Help me to use Thy Word to guide my way. May I remember every day to honor my father and my mother, to keep my tongue from evil, to think whatsoever things are true, and lovely, and of good report. May I not forget that it is more blessed to give than to receive. May I remember that Thy children should be kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another. Let all these beautiful words from Thy great Book shine before me on my way to school, and home again, and wherever I go. And keep me from losing my path, so that I may always be friendly, and helpful, and happy.—Rev. R. W. Barstow.

LIKE THE FLOWERS

The grass and the flowers and all the leaves
Can die with never a care;
For the earth so gently their forms receives,
And gives them a dream so fair:
That after they've slept the winter months through,
They'll all come forth again, bright and new.

And, as we, all, surely go one by one
To sleep in the friendly sod,
We can leave the earthly things we have done
Secure, in the hands of God;
And we have the hope which our faith doth give,
That after death's sleep we again shall live.

—Laura Elizabeth Rutter.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 1. — July 5, 1931

THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

Acts 1:6-14; 2:1-47

Devotional Reading: John 16:7-14

GOLDEN TEXT

But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. The Coming of New Power.

Basic Truth. "Ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you."—Rom. 8:9.

Outline. I. The Spirit. II. Holy. III. New Power.

I. The Spirit. That spirit is first an element originating in God seems to be abundantly set forth in the Scriptures. It is also used to express the character of different ones who are filled or imbued therewith. "He maketh his angels spirits."—Heb. 1:7, 14; Psa. 104:4. Jesus was by resurrection made a "quickening spirit". 1 Cor. 15:45. "God is a Spirit."—John 4:24. Thus God, His Son and heaven's angels are termed spirits.

Spirit is more readily discerned in the original Heb. and Gr. with the help of concordances and lexicons. We learn that "breath", in Eccl. 3:19, and "spirit", in v. 21, are one and the same Hebrew word. As in many texts, so here, the word which indicates the element, "spirit", the presence of which spirit is known by the process of breathing, has been translated by the word, "breath".

The same is true in Psa. 146:4, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." The word "breath" is the Heb. word for "spirit". Compare Eccl. 12:7, "The spirit shall return unto God who gave it."

God's gift of the spirit was first made in Gen. 2:7. "God breathed into his nostrils (face, Heb.) the breath of life; and man became a living soul." That God did more than merely blow air, breath, into Adam's nostril is evident. The breathing organs had need also to be imbued with power, ability to function, else the blown breath could not have been picked up by him who had never yet lived. In order to give breath, God also gave the element that provided power for Adam to breathe—spirit.

This agrees with Gen. 7:22, margin, "All in whose nostrils was the breath of the spirit of life."

All power issues from God. He by His power created the heavens and the earth. By His power He filled the earth with vegetable and animal existence. He inspirited each with power to function according to that for which they were created.

So also on the day of Pentecost. They were to receive power through the spirit that was to be given them. The spirit was the element conveying to them the promised power.

II. Holy. Every Bible student should come to carefully understand the word "holy". The adjective "holy" corresponds with the noun

"saint". Both carry the same meaning. All Heb. and Gr. lexicons agree that these words in the original tongue simply mean "set apart", but set apart in a good sense, i. e., for a good use.

As an adjective, "holy" qualifies spirit, just the same as it qualifies any other noun in connection with which it is used. In the phrases, holy land, holy city, holy people, holy book, holy place, holy spirit, "holy" means the same in each. It merely indicates that each one is especially separated for good usage, for God's use.

III. New Power. "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."—Acts 1:8.

The holy spirit came upon them on the day of Pentecost. Immediately afterward they manifested particular powers. The power to speak in foreign tongues was probably not in excess of power that would have been required to lift a heavy weight. But all the power possessed by a human being could not have enabled him to speak, offhand, in a new tongue. All the power of earth's strongest man could not have enabled him to have given wholeness of feet, as did Peter to the lame man at the temple gate. Acts 3:7. That power of Peter, as that power of all of the apostles, was indeed a new and added power from God. Those followers of Christ called Christians were new and different creatures, because in them was implanted or stored added God-given, power-producing spirit.

The multitude of opposers "were all amazed". 2:12. A few charged that "these men are full of new wine".

Peter proved the charge false because it was but nine a. m., "the first hour of prayer, before which no Jew might eat or drink."—Alford. Being by these marvelous works convinced that Jesus was truly Christ, these wicked men, v. 3, were "pricked in their heart", v. 37, and earnestly sought advice. Peter, speaking in this new power, said, v. 38, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is to you and to . . . s many as the Lord our God shall call."

The holy spirit and new power thereby is promised to all those called of God. Acts 1:8; 2:39.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Holy Spirit is the Spirit that comes from God. This "Spirit beareth witness with our spirit". This witnessing of the Spirit is evidence that we are the children of God. It pervades every thought, action, and deed in the life of the true child of God. The effect that the Spirit has on our every day Christian lives may be noted from the following Bible statements:

We must worship Him in Spirit. John 4:24. Truth is revealed through the Spirit.

1 Corinthians 2:10, 11.

We obey the truth through the Spirit.

1 Peter 1:22.

We receive an unction or anointing by the same Spirit. 1 John 2:20.

We are sanctified or set apart by the Spirit. 1 Peter 1:2.

As a body of believers we should "keep the unity of the Spirit". Ephesians 4:3.

We are told to stand fast in this "one spirit". Philippians 1:27.

We must be "fervent in spirit".

Romans 12:11.

We are to be "filled with the Spirit".

Ephesians 5:18.

We are to "walk in the Spirit". Gal. 5:16.

We must have the Spirit in order to have the "fruit of the Spirit". Gal. 5:22-26.

We are to be examples "in spirit".

1 Timothy 4:12.

We are told, "Quench not the Spirit".

1 Thessalonians 5:19.

What has been the attitude of your church, your class, toward the indwelling of the Spirit?—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"You shall receive power by the holy spirit coming upon you: and you shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem and in all Judæa, and in Samaria, and even to the remotest parts of the earth."—Acts 1:8, Diag.

The apostles received this promise which was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, from the Savior. It gave them power and courage to go forth and proclaim the glad tidings of the kingdom. By this power they were able to do things which were so convincing that those about them could not help but know they had learned of God.

Truly the apostles did witness for Christ in Jerusalem, Judæa, Samaria, and what was then known as the uttermost parts of the earth. We, His followers, should continue to witness for Him. Though we do not have the power that was given the apostles, Christians do have a certain amount of Christ's spirit, and we are told to "walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh." Gal. 5:16. Again, "If ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law", and "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law."—Gal. 5:18, 22, 23.

—L. A. R.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Michigan, Grand Rapids	June 21 to 28
Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30

INDIANA BIBLE SCHOOL AND CONFERENCE

Bible School and Conference will convene at North Salem on July 7 and continue over July 19, 1931. Bro. Marsh has been secured to assist our own state workers, Bro. Anderson, Bro. Long, Bro. Drabenstott, Bro. Smead, and others to make this year a success in a still larger way than in the past. Brothers Anderson and Marsh will alternate with the adult and senior classes. Bro. Long will have charge of the juniors and Bro. Smead will be a relief teacher for junior and senior classes, having one class in each group each day.

Sister Zechiel is serving her first year as Berean president and will have the responsibility to a large degree of our school. She is working hard but needs the full cooperation of all.

The Conference business meeting for the transaction of business and election of officers will be held on Saturday, July 18.

Notice was given last year of a proposed amendment to the constitution. This will be up for vote. The proposed amendment is as follows:

Amendment to Article VI of Articles of Incorporation. "Article VI of the Articles of Incorporation shall be revised to read as follows: 'Each and every individual Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana shall be considered as a part of the State Conference and shall be entitled to representation by duly authorized delegates. Each church shall be entitled to one vote for each member. This vote shall be cast by duly authorized delegates. However, one delegate shall not be allowed to cast a vote for more than one-half of a church membership. Any member of a church if present at business session, may cast his own vote, in which case it shall be deducted from the total delegate vote from that church.'

Amendment to Section 1, Article V: Section 1, Article V shall be amended to read as follows:

"This constitution may be revised, altered, or amended by a two-thirds vote at the regular annual conference meeting, notice having previously been given of such proposed amendment."

Amendment to Section 3, Article III (under finance). Section 3, Article III under finance shall be revised to read as follows:

"The employment and remuneration of ministers for Conference work and Bible Study shall be under the direction of the executive board."

F. A. Stilson, President.

The following from Sr. S. Cronkhite, 120 Mary St., Brantford, Ontario, is good news:

"Mr. Cronkhite is some better. He is able to sit up some.

"We have had some nice letters, also tracts, from the Church of God people, for which I would like to thank one and all." "E. C."

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25, Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.

Sr. Anna Perrine, for whom our prayers have been arising, passed away on June 15, after a long and very painful illness. We pray the Father will send comfort and peace to the bereaved and lonely husband, Bro. M. W. Perrine.

BRO. LAPP AT CASEY AND MARSHALL

Over the next week end, June 27 and 28, Bro. C. E. Lapp will be with the brethren at the Restitution Church near Casey, Illinois. On Monday and Tuesday evenings following he will be at the Salem Church near Marshall and Martinsville. Every one in these vicinities should plan to meet Bro. Lapp at one or both of these places.

VACATION TIME

Services with the Chicago brethren will be discontinued for the next two or three months.

AT DUTTON, MICHIGAN

"The little church at Dutton was the scene of a real home coming on Thursday, June 18, when sixty or more gathered for a church service. Bro. Clyde Randall of Ponthill was the speaker. His sermon on the second coming of Christ, will long be remembered by those present. Friends from far and near came to hear the wonderful gospel truths preached once more and all left the little church feeling that it was good to have been there. Bro. Delbert Huff favored us with a solo which was appreciated by all."

We are so very glad to receive this good news from Dutton; glad that the dear ones there could hear Bro. Randall again. We are very sorry to hear of Sr. Bridegam's and Bro. Stevens' illness. May the dear Father in heaven touch their bodies, and give them peace in His name.

M. A. Woodward.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE PROGRAM

The Michigan Conference and Bible School, to be held at South Lawn Park Church, corner of Jefferson and Abbie Streets, Grand Rapids, will convene from Sunday, June 21 to June 28.

Elder L. E. Conner of Dixon, Illinois, will cooperate with the local pastor, Elder F. E. Siple, in carrying on this meeting.

The order of Sunday service will be as follows:

Sunday School at	10:00 a. m.
Sermon at	11:00 a. m.
Dinner at	12:00
Sermon at	2:00 p. m.
Sermon at	7:30 p. m.

On Monday the only service will be the evening sermon.

Beginning Tuesday Bible classes will be held each day at 10:00 a. m. and 2:00 p. m. There will be four divisions of classes, adults, young people, junior and kindergarten.

The morning adult classes will be taught by Bro. Siple; the afternoon adult classes by Bro. Conner.

The morning young people's classes by Bro. Conner; the afternoon classes by Bro. Siple. The morning junior classes by Mrs. Van Portfleet; the afternoon classes by Mrs. Phenix.

The sermons on the first Sunday and Monday will be by Bro. Siple; the sermons on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday by Bro. Conner; the Friday sermon by Bro. Siple; the Saturday night and Sunday morning sermons by Bro. Conner; the Sunday afternoon Berean sermon by Bro. Siple; the closing sermon Sunday night by Bro. Conner.

The State Berean business meeting will be held Friday at 3:00 p. m.

The State Conference business meeting will be held Saturday at 2:00 p. m.

Bee Slocum, Sec'y.

GOOD MORNING

The Golden Rule Home folks want to give a very hearty, Thank you, Sr. Hardesty and two sons, for that gift of two gallons of splendid extracted honey, Um, Um, Um! How we all enjoy it! And Sr. Knodle brought a ray of cheer to Sr. Chrysler's room with a jar of nice jelly. Such kind remembrances help to make the long hours of a shutin's room more pleasant.

O yes, dear helpers, we have plenty to eat—and it is well prepared. But many of the dainties which all like so much have to be backed with money. As Illinois is not a fruit country like Michigan and many other states, peaches, berries and many other fruits are expensive luxuries, and the National Bible Institution cannot afford too many for so large a family. There are twelve at every meal now, and often more.

We wish every one who needs a home—a Real Home—might share this one with us. If anyone complains to friends of this Home, it is because that one has little appreciation of God's goodness, or of the National Bible Institution's years of hard work to make the members of this Home comfortable and happy. God has dealt wisely and well in furnishing Christian matrons and managers to help the work along.

Were you ever in a home that always ran along so smoothly that there were no jars or friction any place? I never was! Something comes along sometimes to mar the otherwise smooth path of life. And this Home is no exception. Some one is bound to get up some morning with gall on the liver, or indigestion, or colic, or something wrong somewhere, and it makes the whole family for a time uncomfortable. But after family worship the clouds often move off and the sky is clear. Take it all in all, after being here eight months, I can truthfully say that this is a beautiful and very pleasant Home. And every resident here should lift the voice to God in thankfulness and praise for His many blessings and extended mercies.

Every one here is so ready to help in any way possible to relieve the matron of heavy responsibility; and she does every thing possible to make each one contented and happy.

Some are becoming too aged and feeble to always go up and down stairs and we are praying for someone who has the good of the Home at heart, to furnish means either to build an extra room down stairs or an electric elevator. Either one would relieve the situation. Besides, it means much to carry three or four trays of food, three times a day to sick rooms. But it is done with much patience and good will, and we thank God, and go on rejoicing for His mercies.

Yours asking for more strength to work in God's way,

M. A. Woodward.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Our church was surprised and pleased on June 14 to have the Wm. Ford family and Sr. Helen Roberts of the Dixon, Illinois, church as guests. They motored the three hundred miles early Sunday morning in time for most of the church service, stayed for evening and over night, returning Monday. Such occasions add to the richness of life and to the interest of church work.

When these lines are read our church will be in the midst of the Bible School and Conference. We are trusting that this period of Christian labor together will prove of value to the work and the workers, bringing us all closer to our Savior.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

MRS. J. T. HOWELL

Malinda, the daughter of Edward and Margaret Logsdon, was born in Madison County, Kentucky, on April 23, 1847. She departed this life at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Mallory, in Mount Sterling, Illinois, on May 11, 1931. She came to Illinois with her parents at the age of ten years and has been a resident of Brown County ever since.

On October 5, 1866 she was united in marriage to J. T. Howell of Cooperstown, Illinois, and to this union ten children were born, three having died in infancy. She is survived by seven children: Mrs. Maurice Luthy and Mrs. Elsie Doyle of Rushville; Mrs. Steve Drake of Cooperstown; Mrs. J. S. Mallory of Mount Sterling; Mrs. John Long of Versailles; Mrs. Francis Baily of Monmouth; Alph at home; two brothers, George of Camden; and William of Denver, Colorado; twenty-two grandchildren; twenty-two great grandchildren, a host of other relatives and many friends. Her husband preceded her in death thirteen years ago.

She united with the Church of God at Ripley, Illinois, in 1888, was baptized by Bro. John Foore and remained faithful throughout her entire life.

Funeral services were conducted by Bro. C. E. Lapp in the Cooperstown Christian church, on May 12, 1931. Interment was made in Cooperstown Cemetery.

ANNA ADAMS PERRINE

Anna L. Adams Perrine was born in Dixon, Illinois, on January 4, 1865. She went to Florida in the spring of 1913, located and planted an orange grove in company with her brother. With her two aunts she went back to Dixon, where one, Aunt Marion, died; then returned to Florida. On November 25, 1920, she was united in marriage with Millard W. Perrine of the state of Washington, Bro. S. J. Lindsay performing the ceremony at Oregon, Illinois. In July 1926 they moved to Florida, where they have been living till death laid its cruel hand upon her. She was a faithful member of the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith; for what God spoke she believed. She was baptized many years ago into the one faith and hope of the gospel and lived a consistent, faithful Christian life. She sleeps where no pain nor sorrow disturbs her peaceful rest, and will come forth triumphant in the resurrection, with a glorious body like unto her Lord, and will shout in triumph, "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ".

She is survived by her husband and two brothers, Edwin R., and Ernest Adams, all the rest of the family having passed on. She died on June 15th at six o'clock in the evening. Funeral services were conducted by the Christian minister at Haines City where she was laid to rest.

HERALD RECEIPTS

J. W. Macallister; Glenn Birkey; Deborah Pearson; Eva L. Page; Mrs. Susie McCullough; Mrs. Nora Mallory; Effie Morton; Miss S. H. Michell; Ferne Moore.

HERALD HELPING FUND

Miss S. H. Michell $2.00

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

More About Those Prizes

Sunday School Scholars, here is your chance to get a fine map for use in your class. The interest and value of your lessons is advanced 100 percent by a good map. Get to work at once. Contest closes September 1st.

For 5 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form.

For 10 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers.

For 15 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at distance.

For 20 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27.

For 30 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus.

For 40 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines.

For 50 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1-2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

Subscription price—$2.00 per year. Choose the prize your Sunday School wants and get to work. Circulars giving the above information sent upon request. Contest closes on September 1. Sample Heralds also sent to use in soliciting subscriptions.

Who will be the first to win one of these valuable maps?

CONSECRATION

By Ednah Cooper

CONSECRATION means the act of devoting or dedicating a person or thing to the worship of God. To the Christian it means separation from worldly pleasures, working through Christ for God.

Aaron and his sons were set apart by God for the priesthood, consecrated to His service, chosen by God to work for Him. And people are being chosen by God for His service today.

God has called these chosen ones of His out of darkness into light. They have consecrated or dedicated themselves unto Him, that they may show forth His praises.

In Psalm 4:3 we read, "But know that the Lord hath set apart him that is godly for himself; the Lord will hear when I call unto him." A blessed assurance for the person who has named the name of Christ, that the Lord will ever hear his call!

When a sinner repents and is baptized, he announces publicly that he has been consecrated unto the Lord. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal. 3:27.

Christ has told us to take His yoke upon us and learn of Him. When we are baptized into Christ, we have become His disciples or learners of Him and have entered into a life of consecration.

Christ has told us in Matthew 10:37, "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me, and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me." Our love for the members of our immediate family must not exceed our love for Christ.

If we are willing to come to Christ, He will abide in us, for He has chosen us out of the world. We are God's and are bought with a price. Our time, strength, and means are God's and should be given in service for Him.

The consecrated person will pay more regard to God's Word than to the entreaty of earthly friends. He will be ready to advance in any direction that shall be pointed out to him in the Bible, even though it be at the expense of friendship.

If one is really consecrated to God's service, he will be ever read to obey the voice of his Leader, so that he may always glorify God by his works.

THE CHURCH REWARD

(Continued from page 596)

time he sets his face sternly against the destructive tendencies of men defiling the temple of God, and in no compromising measure he declares that destruction attends those that do such things. Let us take heed. This is further corroborated in Philippians 3:18, 19.

Jesus gives us good instruction coupled with the reward of works, in Matthew 16:24-27. Read carefully. This passage shows that Jesus expected of His disciples a faithful following of Him and an enduring through all the vicissitudes of that walk, even to the giving up of life itself, in other words, those that have put their hands to the plow are not worthy of Him, if they look back. The reward at His return is assured to those that faithfully follow.

The last message to men through the Written Word is most characteristic of the returning Master: "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Can we respond as did John: "Even so, come, Lord Jesus"?

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman

..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 30, 1931

NUMBER 39

THE WAY OF LIFE

By F. L. Austin

"I am the way, the truth, and the life." — Jesus in John 14:6.

HE WHO would appreciate it most must grasp the fact and the importance of salvation from God's point of view. Salvation is too big a matter to be wholly understood by the child or by finite man. In its fullness it affords searching study and ever increasing mental joy to the end of life.

Salvation is vastly more than what the trivial thinker on life's highway imagines. It is that which has brought forth in its fullest richness the mind and the power of the eternal God. It has afforded thought and endless labor for the angels of heaven. It drew forth the richness of sacrifice in the person of our Lord. It necessitates the power of the Creator manifest in the resurrection of the dead.

Salvation is the climax of human destiny, the end of the most devoted effort. It is hard to sense the wonderful meaning in the word, salvation, until one first comes to realize the tremendous loss which its lack incurs.

THE YOUNG MAN and the young woman, experiencing the thrills of life's development as they pass from the age of childhood into that of youth, lose themselves in their reveries as to the possibilities and hopes of life. To many of them in the "teen" age life seems to be one continuous banqueting of joy. Its opportunities are boundless. The vision of its possibilities are limitless. They fancy that life is one continuous advancement toward a boundless future, a boundless growth, an unlimited ideal.

With life's strengths and powers ever increasing, with mental vision and breadth ever enlarging, with each day introducing the hitherto unexpected and undreamed, there seems to be no possible end in view. The farther they go, the broader and more thrilling life seems to be, increasing as the light-flare increases the farther it strikes from the lens. Youth is naturally slow to understand that finite mind and finite power soon reach a limit, to go beyond which, or even to maintain which, requires not only the most strenuous of effort, the most powerful of sacrifice, but also is commonly rewarded by bitterest of disappointment.

MANY SEEM TO THINK that salvation is a condition to be entered and enjoyed as one enters a home through its door: play and sport can be engaged to the full in the yard outside; work and service can be experienced throughout the day; at any moment of one's desire he can enter the door of the home and revel in its joy-giving environment.

But salvation is not that. It is not merely an end or an objective into which one may enter and sip leisurely at pleasure. Salvation is a gift of God. God arranged it for man; He provided all of the necessary environments thereof; He prepared the Way thereto; He affords assistance to him who would enjoy its richness.

Salvation is of God. Its beginning is set in the very foundation of one's life. Its germ is planted by the Father in the soil of the individual. Its growth continues from that time to the end of life's activities. It requires nourishment, cultivation, care, from the day of its planting until its harvest. It is an end in view; but it is more than that—it is its own means to that end.

Without it man is hopeless. At first, man intuitively realizes his vital need thereof. It is only after man reasons from within and considers his wishes rather than his conditions as they are that he comes to the thought that man, presumably, is not lost because he may be minus of salvation.

THERE ARE TWO tremendous words in the English language. Every language has its synonyms for these words. In English the words are "life" and "death". In meaning they are opposites. As east and west, as up and down, as black and white, as right and wrong are opposites, so

(Continued on page 613)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

“And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.”—The words of our Savior to His disciples.

SIN'S AWFUL STAND

IN A country like the United States of America the majority voice of the people is supposed to determine the law and the ideal of the nation. We are rapidly coming to a day, if we have not already attained it, when the majority of the people will belittle and mock Christ as did His tormentors at the cross.

The history of our legislative halls, both federal and state, during the recent months, broadcasts to us with screeching voice the suggestion that many politicians, aye, too many, seem to stoop so low in sin as to bend every effort to achieve selfish aims even though such achievements should bring upon innocent myriads an untold toll of misery.

The racketeer values not the life of him who is in his way, sympathizes not with widows and orphans that may be left in the trail. But without second thought and without cringing heart, he fells his fellow man merely to protect himself in the continuance of his wild and dastardly life.

Sin has already advanced where it seems to brazenly claim the right to destroy anything and everything that would hinder it from realizing the fullness of its gloating ambition. But this is no more than the God of heaven long ago forewarned should come to pass.

The mere fact that this generation is living in the dawn of sin's awful day does not alter the problem one whit. Sin has not yet reached its full advance upon the field of battle. It is destined to tread down, without care or concern, righteousness and all who would engage therein.

In fact, in a measure righteousness, along with him who works righteousness, is the only one that is the enemy of sin. Hypocrites love, aid, and abet hypocrites. Sinners love, aid, and abet sinners. But hypocrites and sinners are deeply opposed to the righteous.

That officer of the land who today stands for the right seems to feel that he is in imminent danger of losing his life by those who crown sin.

As Christians, may those of us who profess to follow the Crucified One realize that to do so we must desist from compromising with sin and must stand for Christ, looking to Him more and more for strength and victory.

DAILY REWARD

IN CONVERSATION recently with a retired minister from a distant town the question of distress arising out of the present business depression was mentioned. This brother stated that his home was in the habit of feeding every one who applied at his door for food. Such people were taken into the house and a small meal was placed before them. During the time of eating this brother made it his custom to interrogate the individual whom he was feeding, in an effort to discover something as to his habit of life, his youth, etc.

Out of sixteen consecutive diners whom he kept track of particularly, fifteen revealed in their conversations with him that they had never had any Christian education whatsoever, gave no thought to Christian truth or to Christian principles, but merely lived the life that appealed to them from day to day. One had had slight religious education.

What a testimony for Christian truth this is! Sixteen men had consecutively approached the door for food, and fifteen of them were non-Christians. Not one of them pretended to be Christian. Not one devoted Christian had called for food.

Are we to understand that God does care for His own in measure today, as He did also in the days of wandering Israel? Does Christianity have better care in days of hardship than do those who are not Christian?

Truly, there are many who will answer this question in the negative. There are those in plenty who judge themselves to be Christian, and yet who are passing through hardships and trials severe. Would that those who experience the blessings of God would be as frank in their declarations of God's watchcare, as are those who feel that they are deprived of that watchcare!

Observation, generally, seems to bear out in large measure the testimony that is thus given by the sixteen men seeking food.

Christianity pays a daily reward.

ISOLATED members who are not members of any particular local church are entitled to an individual delegate at the General Conference, if they cannot themselves attend. Look at the delegate blank, fill it out, mail it in.

THE COMING OF CHRIST

IT IS amazing how the doctrine of the second coming of Christ has increased in popularity by leaps and bounds during the last quarter of a century. Hundreds of pulpits are today announcing gladly that great event which twenty-five or thirty years ago but ridiculed the idea. Hundreds of congregations everywhere throughout the land have come to love the thought of Christ's second advent. Many church periodicals, yes and the public press, are giving multiplied columns in declaring this wonderful truth.

But the coming of the Master is not a matter of a moment. It might almost be said to embrace a series of rapidly occurring events. His coming is for the purpose of taking over the affairs of this old world and restoring it from its sin-seared condition back to its Edenic goodness.

Righteousness is the Father's great end in view for man. To accomplish this end sin in all of its forms must be overthrown and subdued. As the time arrives for our Savior to come and begin this mighty work of restitution, the Bible reveals that the world will have developed in sin and its awful riot of debauchery, to a point where all hearts will be in fear and amazement.

And so the approach of our Lord's coming indicates to us that we must all stand fortified against the terrors of sin that shall precede that wonderful event. These terrors seemed to be already upon us.

More and more does sin appear to be increasing in the land. As the new scientific inventions tie the world closer together and almost obliterate space, it seems that nations and individuals unite in undertaking more rapidly to commit depredations upon others.

To the Christian these days are days of testing, of proving. He who finds himself yielding to the ways of sin and unrighteousness in order to obtain his own advantage should properly check himself as being not thoroughly Christian at heart. But he who finds himself standing loyally for the cause of truth, of righteousness and of Christ, has great reason for hoping that he will hear the welcome applaudit of his Savior—"Come ye blessed of the Lord."

"LAMARKIANISM" OR MIRACLE?

By Norman John McLeod

FOR many generations an idea has been current that the offspring will inherit from its parents certain peculiar traits that have been acquired during the life of the parent. For instance, if the father was a blacksmith, his son would inherit a large biceps muscle, because the father had strengthened that muscle by his occupation; if the father was an habitual drunkard, his children would inherit a taste for strong liquors; or if the mother had suppressed a desire for some particular thing, the child would have some characteristic related to that maternal desire.

The people who still hold to this theory in many cases would be highly indignant if they were referred to as evolutionists. And yet such a theory is perhaps the most radical evolutionary theory that has been developed: the inheritance of acquired characteristics. If the theory were true the process of evolution, which is so vehemently condemned by so-called fundamentalists, would be so apparent and go on so rapidly that instead of the comparatively few forms of life we have on earth, there would be no two men, plants, or animals that could be classed in the same group.

Evolutionists long believed that the variant forms of life were developed by the inheritance of acquired characteristics. The last of that group, Lamarck, was, as the run of scientists were then, an "armchair" student who asserted without proving. But Erasmus Darwin, grandfather of the famous evolutionist, actually experimented to test the theory. He cut off the tails of rats for many generations; but no matter—the new generation always had tails. Other experiments followed, many of a more scientific nature, until the "Lamarckian theory" was thoroughly discredited. Now only the religionist and some few others hold to the most radical theory of evolution yet promoted. Why? Because of Jacob's experiences in Genesis 30.

What, then, of Jacob's cattle? Was Jacob wrong? Or did he demonstrate the truth of "Lamarckianism"? Shall we assume, as many "scientists" do, that the Bible is a series of "old wives tales"? Or shall we look farther into the matter?

The story of Jacob is replete with the story of Divine intervention, from the time of his birth till his death. The element of God's power has heretofore been overlooked.

Genesis 30:27 reads: "And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for I have learned by experience that the Lord hath blessed me for thy sake." Such was Laban's testimony of Jacob, even before the affair of the cattle. Evidently God's favor had some connection with the increase of Jacob's cattle. The devices of Jacob were merely the instruments of another Divine manifestation, known as a miracle.

T O D A Y

Why darken today's clear sunlight
 With a fear that the storm clouds may loom;
 Miss the song in the air,
 Shedding tears of despair
 O'er the past with its joy and its bloom?
 Today is a gift most precious,
 'Tis the day that the Lord hath made;
 And Christ is a Friend all gracious.
 Rejoice and be unafraid.

Rejoice that thy sins are pardoned
 And are cast in the depths of the sea;
 That today Christ is thine—
 Loving, tender, divine;
 And, whatever the future may be,
 His grace will be found unailing.
 Let thine hand in His hand be laid;
 Sing, serve—with a glad heart hailing
 This day that the Lord hath made.

Today may be one of struggle,
 And the sunlight be hidden or dim;
 Christian, face it with cheer,
 For a blessing is here,
 If you meet it and live for Him.
 All thy days are as threads of His weaving,
 His design will be fair to see.
 Sun or rain, with a heart believing,
 Greet this day that He made for thee.—Selected.

THE FOUNTAIN OF SPIRITUAL YOUTH

By Samuel E. Haney

"He restoreth my soul"—Psalm 23:3.

THE correct meaning of the word, "soul", is so little understood that to get at the real cause of David's rejoicing it is necessary to understand that soul and life, or, sentient being, both rational and irrational, are synonymous terms. The Hebrew is nephesh, the Greek, psuche. Dr. Moffatt gives us the correct thought, namely, "He revives life in me."

We all at unguarded periods create causes which bring about a need, a desire, and finally an ardent plea for the restoration, or revivifying of our souls which by the dereliction of our obligations as Christians we have allowed to become cold and "lukewarm". If there are any two things diverse one from the other it is a cold, formal and a warm, active Christianity—ridiculous, viz., sublime.

We can thus see that we should never need to pray for the restoration of our souls were we to ever be faultlessly obedient to the Lord's requirements. But we stumble and fall; yet "He knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust". Nevertheless it is our inviolable duty to study to know ourselves and strive to strengthen the weak places in our armor.

Let us note some of the prevalent causes for our need of having our souls restored—reestablished. Probably foremost is the neglect of the Word and prayer. There are many who make no progress in knowledge of the Word because they read it cursorily—in the rut of formality—instead of studiously and prayerfully perusing it.

Another common cause, in our day, of spiritual retrogression is egotism. The victim is that poor deluded soul who imagines all knowledge of the Word lies ingrafted immediately above his ears. In reality the pupil in the school of Christ is destined to one of two consequences, namely, success or failure, the latter involving expulsion automatically.

To omit God in our calculations is sure to cause our souls to need restoring. Let us heed the words of James, "Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that". 4:13-15.

Prying into the future—trouble hunting—is sure to make restoration necessary. Jesus says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you (all things we need). Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Matt. 6:33, 34.

We militate against our progress in spiritual discernment and growth in grace by various means, chiefly by allowing ourselves to be enchanted by things temporal instead of things spiritual or such as pertain to the kingdom of God: by allowing ourselves to be fretted, vexed, and worried by the affairs of this life instead of ever rejoicing and being swayed by the manifestations of God's love and the resultant effect of Jesus' suffering and ignominious death on the cross—all entirely in our behalf.

It is difficult to conceive of anything more deterrent to the Christian's success in winning a crown of life, or a more engendering cause necessitating the restoration of our souls than some of our habits, harmless though they be, during these evil days. A multiplicity of habits, though harmless, need be curtailed during this crucial period that more time may be devoted to the study of God's Word, thereby equipping ourselves to successfully combat ever increasing evil temptations.

No better new habit can be formed than that of devoting at least an hour every day to the prayerful study of the Bible. If you have never tried it, you will be surprised to learn how luminous the Word will become. And you will thus receive first-handed information, and will comply with God's request to both sinner and saint—none too bad nor also are life and death. What life is, death is not. What death is, life is not.

(Continued on page 618)

THE WAY OF LIFE

(Continued from front page)

"Thou shalt die, and not live," was God's way of telling Hezekiah, Isa. 38:1, that death was the opposite of life, that coming to death he would have discontinued life.

To save is to preserve or to renew life.

Jonah was saved from the sea in that his life was preserved. David was saved from his enemies in that he was enabled to escape their efforts to slay him. Lazarus was saved in that his life was restored by resurrection. Salvation is the granting of life and the thwarting of death.

THE WAY OF SALVATION can be found in no other place than in the Book of God or in quotations therefrom. There is no way known to man other than the way provided by God by which man can continue his life or by which life once swallowed up by death, can be restored.

Throughout the Bible, life is based upon the way of righteousness. "The just shall live." It was only sin that brought death. "The wages of sin is death." "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." Death, the opposite of life, is the consequence of sin; while life, the opposite of death, is based upon justice.

BUT RIGHTEOUSNESS is itself based upon faith. "The just shall live by faith." "Faith is reckoned for righteousness." It is so reckoned because "all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God"; because "there is none righteous, no, not one." When God, because of Adam's sin, withdrew His protecting care from man, it then became impossible but that man should yield to sin, and come to death, its certain end.

AND SO THE WAY OF life is the way of faith in God and in God's Son. Those who seek God and God's righteousness because of their faith in Him are brought anew within the protection of God's hand. With His omnipotent hand guarding them and with His heart of love leading them, they are continuously in the way of salvation, the way of life.

THE YOUNG MOUSE is somewhat safe in the enclosure of its home. It is when it leaves that protection that its life is endangered by the watchful cat. The child may be safe under parental admonition and watchcare. It is when the child disdains parental love, seeks to satiate his craving without, that he at once exposes himself to the dangers of evil everywhere. The man of faith is safe in the way of life, as he devotedly seeks God's will to do it. It is when he withdraws from the will of God to satisfy the will of self that he immediately exposes himself to the wiles of the devil, to the snares of wickedness.

THE WAY OF LIFE is a continuous path. He who would attain to its goal must enter the pathway early and scale the hill toward the reward. To step aside from the path and sport with sin is but to toboggan downward. The goal cannot be attained unless the way is followed earnestly to the top of the ascent.

Salvation is a continuous pathway. Its beginning is equally important as is its end, if one is to pass through the doorway and enjoy the fullness of its rewards.

CHRIST AS A CITIZEN

A FEW weeks ago Professor Douglas C. Macintosh of Yale University, having applied for citizenship in the United States (the case having come to the Supreme Court), was denied citizenship on the ground that he, as quoted by the Literary Digest of June 6th, "would not promise in advance to bear arms in defense of the United States, unless he believed the war to be morally justified." Professor Macintosh, according to the news reports, is a theologian, author, Y. M. C. A. worker, was a chaplain in the Canadian army during the great war and afterward served under the American colors. The application was decided in the negative by a decision of the Supreme Court five against four. Those who declared in favor of accepting his application were Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Holmes, Brandeis, and Stone.

The case has brought forth many statements from many theologians, educators, politicians and editors throughout the country. Probably the majority uphold the majority decision of the Supreme Court, while a large minority favor the judgment of the minority report. One theologian is reported to have said that the decision "would deny citizenship to Christ". The Literary Digest asks, "Is it an issue between Mars and Christ?"

Rev. Lester Ward Auman, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Jamaica, is reported in the Digest as having said,

"This action is all the more painful and distressing, when we remember that our nation by a solemn treaty has definitely renounced war as an instrument of national policy, and has agreed never to seek for the settlement of disputes, except by pacific means."

But as another person remarks, the citizen is not granted freedom of conscience to decide likewise.

"On the basis of the Supreme Court decision," the press quotes Rev. Crapullo as saying, "Jesus would be denied citizenship, because He recognized loyalty to God and humanity as being higher than loyalty to the State." And Gen. Douglas MacArthur is reported to have called Christ to his witness—"When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace."

Prof. Jerome Davis, a colleague of Prof. Macintosh, in his address opening the exercises of the one hundred ninth anniversary of the Yale Divinity School, is quoted as saying, "Every Christian must place loyalty to his conscience and to his God ahead of his country." He is quoted further as having said, "We must rise above nationalism in following Christ."

(Continued on page 617)

THE CORONATION

By Paul M. Hatch

SUMMING up the church articles, no more fitting terminus could be bestowed upon the workers, at the conclusion of their work, than to receive the diadem of rulership along with the great Author of Salvation, to assist in bestowing upon His godly, righteous head the diadem that the profane wicked prince of Israel was compelled to revoke, to hear that "Well done, good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful in a few things; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

The returning King shall summon forth with clarion voice the righteous dead and bestow on them and their living brethren such royal majesty as this old world has never witnessed, though it has seen coronation of kings and queens, chancellors and premiers, presidents and princes, and so on, down the line. Even all the grandeur of Solomon, which the chronicler has said was incomparable to any other nation in his day, will be in no way equal to the majesty of that future coronation day.

In that day those precious stones that will go to make up His finished ekklesia shall, with innumerable facets of shining splendor, make up the coronet that adorns the brow of the King of kings and Lord of lords. Surrounding the throne, with the lights of righteousness beaming upon Him from the worshiping throng, reflecting the glory that is His, those facets shall flash forth the beauty of love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance. Even now those in the ekklesia, all with open face, beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord. 2 Cor. 3:18.

This marvelous form of language that Paul uses to describe the earthly grandeur of the church in reflecting their Lord, is just another way of expressing the reflecting power of the gem in its purity—a spectrum of dazzling sunbeams. Each of those stones, making up the finished body of Christ, should at the present also disseminate some particle of light that emanates from the Sun of Righteousness, who is able to heal all with everlasting beams of health in the day when He makes up His jewels.

Sin is as common as dirt, but righteousness and godliness shine out and are as easily distinguished as the true gem from the sand. As the gem cannot possibly hinder its reflecting power, so the true, consecrated, loyal Christian cannot help but reflect his Lord, in some respect. The glory is of short duration now, for the jewel is soon hidden away. But when the Revealer of Secrets shall come, then those jewels with trebled refulgence shall shine as the stars forever and ever.

Humbly before each other, can we say that we are worthy of any future glory? Can we probe our inner selves and not fear the discovery that we are only base metal, or do we with confidence know that we are solid, lively stones, built upon the true Foundation Stone?

God grant that we shall all be found worthy of some small portion in the everlasting kingdom of God and the Son of His Love, and that we shall enter the gates into the city.

THE HOUSE OF THE LORD

The House of the Lord is stately and grand,
Erected and built in a far off land;
A land that with milk and honey doth flow.
Amid rose and lily and gentian aglow.

The Lord of this mansion, a gracious Host,
Extends to the wanderer and the lost
A gate that is ope in salvation's walls,
Unending reception midst vaulted halls.

Invited are we to this palace fair,
And election is sure; do not despair
Of service with the Master's accord;
Dwelling for aye in the House of the Lord.

Whom shall we account of exalted worth,
That the Lord shall number, when He comes forth?
Rapturous shall be the Savior's reward,
To dwell forever in the House of the Lord.

Faith-loving, clean hands will God reconcile
To His servants, pure-hearted, in that fair domicile,
Those who faithfully proclaim His blessed Word
Forever shall dwell in the House of the Lord.

Showering, showering, e'en diurnal,
Blessing on blessing, ever supernal,
Attending as rain upon the green sward,
Forever those in the House of the Lord.

—o—
DON'T forget to appoint your delegate for General Conference. Delegation blank on Church page. Please use it.
—o—

SOMETIMES, though seldom, the discontented, breechy steer is of value in the pasture. At least he encourages the farmer to make stronger and sturdier fences.

SOMETIMES, though seldom, the cross, fault-finding member is of value in the home. He may by accident point out the weak spots thus saving eyestrain for the faithful, patient, painstaking member who is always striving to build upward.

SOMETIMES, though seldom, the criticizing, never-anything-done-right member of the church is beneficial. He at least aids those who would build and do right to discover the weak places and to strengthen, both as matter of doctrine and as matter of daily life.

Let us not find fault with the fault finder. His role is a difficult one. He has enough of hardships without others finding fault with him. He needs our sympathy.

HOW SHALL WE ESCAPE?

By M. A. Woodward

"How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?"

How shall we escape? Just by entering the fold of the good Shepherd, and being shielded from the dangers of sin. There is no other way to escape.

Do not be deceived, beloveds, belonging to a church will not save you unless you have promised God to live for Him and not for the world with its sin. And remember, to break your promise to God means the loss of a home life in His beautiful city.

Listen: "And the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." Rev. 21:23. Read the entire chapter, and try to realize what God is preparing for those who are His true and faithful children. God holds the key to this beautiful city, and it is not the key of morality, or the church key, or the prayer circle, or Sunday School key: not one of these or all of them, unless we have, by patient continuance in well doing, by a faithful, patient discharge of each Christian duty, sought to honor God in all things.

The world looks at professed Christians, and they are about all the Bible the world reads. And remember, we have no one who judges more closely than the world. Many are watching to see if our lives are any different after baptism than before. For when we entered the waters of baptism, we said, "By this act I am placing my name on God's honor roll; I have by this act separated myself from the world and its sin."

Listen to your Christ and mine, as He sends this prayer to the Father's throne: "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil. Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth. I pray not for the world, but for them thou hast given me; for they are thine, and all mine are thine, and thine are mine, and I am glorified in them."

What joy to know that almost the last thought of the dear Christ before His crucifixion was for His disciples. He adds in verse 20, "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word." It is a great comfort to me to know the Christ prayed for us, and God was listening to His prayer. And when we know all this, how shall we escape if we neglect? How many times do we neglect to do or not to do the things we as Christians should do!

I was baptized at thirteen years of age. How little I knew of a Christian's duties! I had to grow in grace and knowledge. And I find it has taken all these years since then for me to grow, and I am still growing. But every trial I had, every rebuke given—and there were many—led me to my room in tears, and I thought I never would succeed in being a Christian. However, my dear father and mother were valiant helpers to encourage and pray with me. I am convinced my mother's prayers saved me many times from being led into sin.

So, dear young converts, do not be discouraged if those who love you most try hard to keep you from straying from the fold of the good Shepherd. Ask God to help you to have wisdom and strength to resist sin, and keep you in His dear hands, to drop the ways of the world. Before going to any place of amusement, stop and ask God if you may go. If you feel you would not want Christ to find you there, do not go.

I once read of a father who was a seafaring man and could not reach his home very often. He had an only daughter whom he dearly loved. He wrote her he would be home soon, but could not tell her when. He said, "My darling, be at home, for I should be heartbroken if I could not see you."

She waited days for him, and he did not come. One day she visited a friend, and in her absence Father came: He waited for her, but he had to go before she returned. He left a note saying, "O my darling, you could not have loved papa, or you would have waited for him. I shall never see you now. Good bye."

Will this be our fate? Christ has said, "Watch therefore: for you know not what hour your Lord doth come."

"LO, I AM WITH YOU ALWAYS"

By Ednah Cooper

THESE words of Christ, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world," were spoken to His disciples at His departing into heaven. But they also extend to Christians of today.

It is a blessed promise—that He will be with us every day and in every way, to care for and protect us. Sometimes I wonder if we really believe it? We pray for His care, and then we put our trust in ourselves.

A teacher once expressed this thought to me by the following incident. A country was at war, and the enemy were camped near a farm house. The people in this home prayed for God's protection from their enemies and then kept a certain rusty gun loaded, ready for use.

We have many instances of faith in God given to us in the Old Testament. Consider Noah; he went right ahead and built the ark, in spite of all ridicule. He believed that God would be with him, and he came out of his trials victorious.

If we truly consecrate our lives to Christ, trust Him in all things, and have the faith to believe that whatsoever He has promised that He will do, we will be protected.

Sometimes when life looks dark, and we are discouraged, it is hard to believe that Christ is with us. But we have His assurance that "all things work together for good to them that love God."

May our faith be ever increased, and may we feel that at all times Christ is leading us.

GOD'S JEWELS

Jesus is the great Refiner,
 Oft on Him my soul relies,
 When the storms are round me beating
 And black clouds o'erspread the skies.
 These are times when He would test me,
 Hence to bring me forth in light;
 We are jewels in His keeping,
 And He loves to make us bright.

Jesus always weighs the trials
 And temptations in our life;
 Not a single one is added
 But is used to make us like
 His own image, pure and spotless,
 Clothed in garments always white;
 Oh, what love bestowed upon us
 And how precious in His sight.

Let Him then refine His jewels;
 In His hands submissive lay.
 When the tempest sweeps around thee,
 Trust in Him to guide thy way.
 Soon His face will shine upon thee,
 Making all thy pathway bright;
 But His presence never leaves thee,
 In the dark or in the light.

I would rather be a jewel,
 Thus redeemed and purified,
 Than possess all of earth's millions
 And its pleasures, pomp, and pride.
 Earthly pleasures soon will vanish,
 And forever fade away;
 But God's jewels shine forever,
 In His presence live alway.

—Selected.

THE BOOK OF HEBREWS

By Lyman Booth

PAUL'S connection with Timothy and his residence in Italy seem to confirm the ancient tradition, and other objections, as the supposition that the style is more elegant than Paul's, and that he uses expressions which imply that he received his doctrine from those who had heard Christ and not by immediate revelation; but all such suppositions are vague and baseless. He might have bestowed more pains in this epistle than when he wrote to other churches. Many competent judges are of the opinion that it is not more elegant and that the internal evidence, arising from the writer's manner of expressing himself and his forceful reasoning, corroborates the opinion that Paul is the author.

Origen and some others were of the opinion that the epistle was written in the Hebrew or Syriac language and translated into Greek by Clement or Luke. But if that had been the case, it can hardly be supposed that no one copy of the Hebrew epistle should be mentioned as extant in their days and seen by them. The quotations from the Old Testament are generally taken from the Septuagint; and this would hardly have taken place had the epistle been written in Hebrew. The Hebrew names are interpreted in Greek, in a manner that is not at all like the work of a translator.

No doubt the Apostle thought the epistle would circulate widely among his countrymen who spoke Greek, as it was more generally in use at that time than any other language in the world. The Hebrews were the Jews in Judea who spoke a Hebrew dialect, and to such of them as professed Christianity, the epistle was addressed, and probably sent to Jerusalem to the pastors and officers of the church in that city. Yet it is likely that the writer expected that the unconverted Jews also would read it; and their conviction and instruction seem to have been a leading part of his writing.

The epistle opens with a declaration of the personal and mediatorial dignity of Christ, and proves from the Old Testament that the Messiah was to be far greater than the angels. It then shows His superiority to Moses and other eminent men of the nation; proves, by the most unanswerable arguments, that in Him the types of the law had their fulfillment; that He was the substance of all these shadows; that the ancient Scriptures taught Israel to expect an entirely new dispensation, priesthood, and covenant under the reign of the Messiah. These reasonings are interspersed and closed with the most solemn and affecting warnings and exhortations, addressed to different persons.

At length the writer shows the nature, efficacy, and triumph of faith, by which all of the saints in former ages had been accepted by God and enabled to obey, suffer, and do exploits in defence of their religion, after which he adds various instructions, admonitions, encouragements, and exhortations. He then concludes with the customary salutations and benedictions.

The internal excellency of this epistle puts the divine inspiration of it beyond all doubt. It connects the Old and the New Testaments in the most convincing and instructive manner, more fully than any other epistle, or perhaps all of them.

This epistle occupies a peculiar place in the New Testament. The writer conceals his name and begins without any address, though he closes with a brief salutation. It is not surprising that opinion is divided as to its authorship, as it has been ascribed to Paul, Luke, Apollo, and Barnabas. The weight of evidence is very largely in favor of Paul, for it sets forth his teaching and displays much of his language.

As to the time and place the epistle was written, we have but little to guide us. In the closing chapter the writer says, "They of Italy salute you". These words may refer to Italian Christians in their own country, or in some

(Continued on page 618)

CHRIST AS A CITIZEN

(Continued from page 613)

Many other speakers and writers have been quoted by the Literary Digests of June 6th and 20th.

The writer is seriously questioning whether the Christian world has after all come to properly analyze and evaluate Christianity. As previously stated, the writer believes that there are many things taught in the Bible by God, with reference to carnal and national life, that are not intended to be understood as being applied to Christianity. Yet they are advocated by God. For instance—

Israel in the days of Moses was proven to be a very carnal, flesh-loving people. Specific God-given laws were placed around them, laws which in principle are undoubtedly contrary to the teachings of Christ. Did a man's ox break from its pasture and gore a neighbor's ox, the owner of the breechy animal was by law compelled to make full restitution for the injury done. If one neighbor killed another neighbor, it was his privilege to flee "to the horns of the altar", in the presence of which he was in God's protection. But should that person be found wandering beyond the boundaries of God's protection, it became the duty of the relative of the killed one to slay him who had committed the deed.

In the New Testament our Savior taught His true followers that they should forgive.

To the writer both of these instructions are correct, although they clash. The first was given by God as the right and proper way to rule and govern a nation of carnal minded men and women; while the latter was given by Christ as the living principle on which the true follower of Christ should base his ideals and conduct.

In so far as nations are concerned they are today, and must be, governed by carnal laws, proper for the control of carnal minded beings. No nation could think of long surviving were it to commit its unchristian-hearted people to the teachings of Christ.

On the other hand Christ, the second Adam, the spiritual Guide and Savior of man, exhorted all who would to forsake the carnal ways natural and general to man, and to trust all to Him in faith. To all such, He, so far as He computed their rewards, seemed to release them from carnal obligations and to establish them in new laws, laws which He Himself observed loyally, laws which enabled Him to live and act and abide as in the presence and fellowship of His Father.

These new gospel injunctions, having been accepted by "whosoever believeth on him" were to such individuals their laws of first importance. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness", was one of the Savior's definite instructions. "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven", was a part of that prayer which our Savior taught His apostles that they should offer. The prayer for that rule and that will has its daily application. These statements of the Master would seem to fully bear out the statement of Prof. Davis, "We must rise above nationalism in following Christ."

Let none deceive himself into thinking that by accepting this extraordinary standard of our Master he is releasing himself of heavier burdens and is providing for himself a life of comfort and ease. Such is not the case. To follow the Master in harmony with His express teachings and in harmony with the later inspired teachings of the apostles is not to lessen one's responsibility. Rather, it is to increase it. To serve God is a far greater responsibility than to serve man. To follow God's teachings through Christ is as much higher and nobler as Christ was ahead of Moses or Adam. And again, he who truly follows his Master is undoubtedly a far more worthy, more desirable and more valuable citizen to his God than would he be were he serving his country merely from the standpoint of carnal greatness.

The pity of it all is that no matter how noble is that citizen who faithfully strives to serve his Master and Savior, yet the nation cannot make exception of his case and adapt its laws and constitution to him. As soon as it does, then it has opened the gate for every man to claim, at whatsoever time he may see fit, similar release because of his own religious scruples. This, when as a matter of fact, some such would have no scruples at all, excepting for the purpose of serving themselves seemingly better.

Truly, he who would be Christian indeed "must rise above nationalism" in following Christ. Yea, more. He must rise above commercialism; he must rise above social customs. Yea, he must rise above political partisanism and political debauchery, which, in some instances, are of the rankest treason. He who would be Christian must seek the heart and life of Christ, though all men stand against him.

As a citizen the writer feels justified in saying that no nation of today would grant Christ the right of citizenship with the privilege of living to the full His trust and His ideals, no more than did the Jews of two millenniums past grant Him the privilege of living within their midst.

PURPOSE AND PRACTICE

A FEW weeks ago when teaching in Sunday-school the parable of the prodigal son, a little incident flashed into my mind, and I used it to make a point. The prodigal said, "I will arise and go to my father." Then we read, "He arose and came to his father." He put into practice his expressed purpose. Many times we fail to act upon our good determinations.

Here is the incident: At a prayer meeting service a man was talking like this: "My brethren, I aim to be a better man. I aim to do more work for Christ, than ever before. I aim to be more faithful in attendance at the house of God. I aim to do personal work and win some souls for my Master. I aim, I aim to give more money to the cause of Christ. I aim, I aim, I aim—". Suddenly a man in the audience who loved to hunt, cried out excitedly, "Fire, brother, fire!"—W. S. B.

THE BOOK OF HEBREWS

(Continued from page 616)

other country where they may have settled. In the same chapter the writer expresses a hope of visiting those whom he addresses with Timothy, "our brother," who had just been released from imprisonment (13:23). So little is known of this event that we cannot base any argument thereon. The facts and circumstances show that the temple worship is spoken of as being continued, and there is no allusion to the destruction of Jerusalem, and that a generation of Christians had already passed away.

As to the persons addressed, the title indicates that it was written expressly for "Hebrew" Christians of Palestine, for they were at that time exposed to severe persecutions from their fellow countrymen and needed comfort.

What they asked, Christianity supplied. It revealed Christ as the Mediator and Intercessor; superior to the angels because He is nearer the Father; superior to Moses because He is the Son, not a servant; superior to the Jewish high priest because more effective in His intercessions, because His priesthood is eternal and the sacrifice which He offered upon the cross, once for all, is constantly before the Father.

Hence we have, first, the exceptional ministration of angels is superseded by the continuous ministrations of Christ, the Son of God. Second, the legislative ministration of Moses is perfected by the divine Law Giver. Third, the typical sacrifice of the high priest succeeded by a real sacrifice of the highest order. Fourth, the indirect communion with God is supplanted by direct union with God and man in Christ, and the communion of the Head with His body, which is the church.

This epistle is divided into two main divisions: doctrinal (1 to 10:18) and practical (10:19 to 13:25). In part one the writer boldly states that "God having of old time spoken unto the fathers in the prophets by diverse portions and in diverse manners," hath now "spoken unto us in His Son" (1:1, R. V.) He proceeds to show that Christ in His exalted position is superior to angels (1 to 2:18) and to Moses, being the Builder, Son, Master of the house, while Moses was a servant (3 to 4:13). He is superior to the Aaronic priesthood in respect to His office, nature, and vocation (4:14; 5:10). Then he digresses to give a practical exhortation (5:11; 6:12) to the high priest, Melchisedek (7:1-28).

Next the writer shows how the New Covenant is the fulfillment of the Old, which was imperfect in itself in that it could not make its members perfect (8:1-13); how its sacrifices were types and shadows of Christ's one perfect sacrifice; its earthly sanctuary was a type of the true sanctuary in heaven (9 to 10:18). In the practical part he exhorts Christians to constancy in the faith, the principle of which he gives a vivid description (10:19 and 11); to moral steadfastness in spite of trials (11:1-13); to mutual kindness, hospitality, sympathy (12:14; 13:9). He ends with a few affectionate exhortations, a brief message, and a benediction.

THE FOUNTAIN OF SPIRITUAL YOUTH

(Continued from page 612)

none too good—"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. If ye be willing and obedient (note the 'if'), ye shall eat the good of the land: but if ('if') ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it".—Isaiah 1:18-20.

The collision between sentiment and conviction of duty on the part of lukewarm Christians is very pronounced, self-centralization being so prevalent as to cause God's requests and commands to be cynically ignored. They are ever seeking their own desires, thus bringing disaster upon themselves.

But let us take David's experience, 2 Samuel 11, as an example, it being an unmanly and shameful sin of the first magnitude, appealing to the lowest common denominator of public morals, or intelligence, or taste, his deep confession and pathetic, heartrending petition for forgiveness, sanctification, and restoration to God's favor, and the joy of God's salvation (Psa. 51), as paraphrased by John Edgar McFadyen.

"Be gracious unto me, O God—fo: thou art loving and very pitiful—and blot my transgressions out of thy book. Nay, I need cleansing as well as forgiveness: for the mire of sin had defiled my soul. O wash me well and make me clean.

"I pray for thy grace, for full well I know the burden of my sin: it is ever in my thoughts. Not against men indeed have I sinned, but against thee alone, and done that which is displeasing to thee. I acknowledge that thy judgment is just and impartial.

"I am weak and prone to sin; for such is the nature with which I was born. Grant me that wisdom of heart which leads to the truth that thou lovest to find in men. Cleanse me from the leprosy of sin: wash away my stains till I be clean every whit.

"Then, with sin forgiven, may it be mine to hear glad cries of joy sent up by the members of my broken body. O forgive and forget my sin, look not upon it, blot it out of thy book. Cleanse and forgive and create me anew; for a clean heart is thy creation.

"Create such a heart for me, O God, and plant within me a new and steadfast spirit. Deny me not thy presence: take not from me thy spirit of revelation. Give me again the joy which once I knew ere I forfeited it through sin—the joy of knowing that thou art helping and saving me. Support me with the spirit which readily wills and does that which is good.

"Then shall I be fit to be thy missionary servant, teaching the heathen thy ways, and turning the godless to thee. O Jehovah, the God who canst save me, if thou do but save me from the deadly perils which beset me on every side, I will celebrate thy faithfulness in a ringing song.

"If thou, O Lord, do but open the lips which sorrow has closed, I will use them to declare thy praise; and my thank-offering I will render in song, for animal sacrifice thou dost not desire. The sacrifice that thou desirest is a broken spirit; and the heart that is crushed thou dost love, O God."

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"BUT THE LORD IS FAITHFUL, WHO SHALL ESTABLISH YOU, AND KEEP YOU FROM EVIL."

OUR EVER FAITHFUL GOD

THE faithfulness of God is divine, not human, and reaches unto the skies and is established in the heavens. Deut. 13:4; Psalms 89:33, 34. God is faithful and merciful to those who love Him and keep His commandments.

When God is proving whether or not His children and servants are faithful, He will not suffer them to be tempted above that which they are able to overcome, and with every temptation He provides a way of escape, so that they may be able to bear it. 1 Cor. 10:13; 2 Thess. 3:3. Our security is in God's faithfulness, not our own, for we are weak and worldly and are not to be depended upon. "But the Lord is faithful, who shall establish you, and keep you from evil." Psalms 119:90; Lam. 3:22, 23.

Let us all trust in God's faithfulness while striving in this world, so that we may take part in that glorious, never-ending kingdom which is soon to come.

Elizabeth Ford, Dixon, Illinois.

TOPICS FOR CONSIDERATION

AT THE next annual conference of the National Berean Society there will be taken under serious consideration the transfer of the publication of the Berean lesson books from the Society to the National Bible Institution. The idea underlying this is that the General Conference should have supervision of all the material published for the use of the Church and its cooperative bodies, in order to insure uniform teachings, to place all publishing business under a single head, and to avoid duplication of effort.

During our last conference it was suggested that the National Society is performing functions which properly belong to the Church as a whole. Although it is primarily a young people's organization, the Society has, ever since its formation, included work with those of over thirty. The Senior Social Correspondence Committee and the Senior Home Study Committee have for years worked for those who are of middle age and over. This labor should be given to the Church, since it has no place in the operations of a young people's society.

Similarly it was suggested that the relief work, so ably carried on by Sr. Sanford, should be managed as part of general church activity. Although part of the help is given Bereans, the great share of it is accorded members of the Church who are not Bereans; and for this reason, it was thought by some that the work be transferred to the General Conference.

The matter of dues also came under discussion. The question was asked, "If a local society has not paid its dues within a space of two years, should it be dropped from the books of the National Society?" This question was raised, not merely on account of the always important financial aid involved, but because a society which neglects to do its part should be considered too uninterested to be granted continued membership. Then, too, societies occasionally disband without reporting that fact, and a plan such as that suggested would care for cases like these.

Thus far the Bereans throughout the country have expressed themselves in favor of the transfer of the publication of the lesson books to the N. B. I. Criticisms, both favorable and constructive, are invited by the Board. Those who cannot attend our conference in August are asked to write their comments to the Secretary. They will be deeply appreciated.

Arlen Marsh.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

THE Bereans held a very successful social on May 15, at which there were about seventy present. The games were enjoyed by old and young, and everyone had a good time. We were indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison for the delicious punch which they donated, and appreciate the kindness very deeply.

Average attendance for April and May, excluding the night of the social, was 43. We miss several of our faithful members who have moved away, including the Warren family, Miss Lewis and Alex Cruickshank. We hope that others will help to swell the attendance and keep up the good record until the summer vacation.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 21; Ohio, 16; Michigan, 8; California, 7; Louisiana, 4; Indiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; Missouri, 1; New York, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE PREACHING OF THE APOSTLES

PETER and John went about together to preach the gospel to the people and to heal the sick and infirm. One morning, as they went to the temple to pray, they saw lying at the gate called Beautiful, a man who had always been lame. Peter said he had no gold or silver for the poor man, but he would give him what he did have. And that gift was better than silver or gold, for Peter healed the man so he could walk. He was so overjoyed and thankful that he went with the disciples into the temple, leaping and praising God.

Many people rejoiced with this happy man and became followers of the preachers—five thousand or more. This did not please the chief priests and leaders. Nor were the Sadducees pleased when Peter and John preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

Therefore, one evening the priest, captains of the temple and Sadducees took the two offenders and put them in prison. Next day the rulers, elders, and scribes, Annas, the high priest, Caiaphas, John, Alexander and all the relatives of the high priest, gathered together in Jerusalem. Then they put Peter and John in the midst of them and demanded by what power they had healed the lame man.

Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, replied, "Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole." He also said Jesus was the Stone which they had set aside, but which would become the head of the corner or chief cornerstone. Also, there is no other name whereby anyone might be saved.

Peter and John were very bold, you see, and spoke with such assurance for unlearned men that their educated and wise judges marveled. They could really find no crime against the two, but advised them to teach no more in the name of Jesus. They threatened to punish them if they did continue to preach.

Did this command frighten Peter and John? No, indeed! They knew God would be with them. Peter answered, "We ought to obey God rather than men."

DO WE obey God rather than men?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Acts 3:1 to 4:31; 1 Cor. 1:21-25.

2. Write the names of all the men who opposed Peter and John.

3. Learn Peter's answer to these men.

4. Select the three most important thoughts from this lesson.

THE CREATION

How glad I am God made for me
The beauty of the rustling tree,
The lovely rose whose leaves unfold,
And let me see her heart of gold!

How wonderful it is to dwell,
In this big world He made so well!
The Lord just told it all to be,
And that it was for you and me.

—Elizabeth Jenkins.

WE BELIEVE IN baptism as Jesus was baptized —
"Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."—Acts 2:38.

"Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."—Romans 6:4.

WHEN I DO THE KINDLY THING

I sometimes wish I might have lived
In that glad long ago,
When Jesus talked to little folks
So gently here below.

I wish I might have felt His arms
Hold me in their embrace.
I wish I might have seen the love
That shone upon His face.

But when I do the kindly thing
Instead of that which harms,
I seem to see His tender smile
And feel His loving arms.

"God bless the cheerful people—man, woman, or child, old or young, illiterate or educated, handsome or homely. Over and above every other social trait stands cheerfulness. What the sun is to nature . . . are cheerful persons in the house and by the wayside."

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 2. — July 12, 1931

THE PREACHING OF THE APOSTLES

Acts 3:1 to 4:31; 1 Corinthians 1:21-25

Devotional Reading: Romans 10:8-15

GOLDEN TEXT

We ought to obey God rather than men.—Acts 5:29.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Apostolic Preaching.

Basic Truth. "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."—Acts 1:8.

Outline. I. God Renewing Man by Imbuing Him With the Christ Life. II. Apostolic Preaching.

I. God Renewing Man by Imbuing Him With the Christ Life. "Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me."—Gal. 2:20.

With Christ's resurrection a new work in the process of God's creation began. In Christ, who was "made like unto his brethren", Heb. 2:17, God revealed the heights to which it was possible for man under God's guidance to attain. All Judaea had been urged and exhorted to follow the Master, to follow Him in ideal, in godliness. They failed to do this. The Savior was caught to the right hand of God. And God on the day of Pentecost revealed His manner of contact with and guidance of those who would follow Christ in deed and in truth, even though Christ was absent. He filled with His spirit the apostles, similarly as He had formerly filled Christ therewith. With that spirit God was enabling and empowering Christ's disciples to live the Christ life.

A Christian is one who has been Christianized. No person can in himself accomplish this. All he can do is to fully and freely commit himself to his Lord, open to receive whatever the Master gives, to do whatever the Master directs. When this is done, Christ receives such life for himself. He brings to it God's spirit, fills it therewith. He imbues and charges it with His own life. It is "Christ in us". Such a person is Christianized.

II. Apostolic Preaching. Apostolic preaching was by word and by deed. The words and truths and exhortations of God were by the apostles proclaimed to friend and foe alike. They appealed to the mental powers of man with the truths of God. They would leave to man full acceptance and obedience of those truths.

They preached by works, in that they performed in the presence of men works which were the results of the application of the truths of God. The healing of the lame man at the temple's gate was an outstanding evidence that Peter and the apostles were filled with a special portion of God's spirit and were thus enabled to the performance of new, victorious works.

Their preaching revealed the benefits to man from following Christ by faith. It revealed what Christianized man should expect. It revealed the powers and benefits of Christ on man. It revealed the necessity of man's reception of Christ.

The apostolic preaching began in the midst of the enemies of Christ. It necessitated tremendous sacrifice upon the part of the apostles. The proclamation was to be extended into all the earth. It was intended for all races of mankind. Matthew 28:19, 20 and Mark 16:15, 16.

Though the early teaching was proclaimed first to God's chosen nation and included the restoration of their kingdom, its germ truth was the new Christ life with which the individuals should become impregnated unto "new creatures". 2 Cor. 5:17.

With this Savior, and with this newly implanted life, and with this new power of the spirit, salvation and perfection are offered to man and the world.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The spreading of the gospel has been accomplished by preaching, not alone by the ministers who stand in the sanctuaries of our churches, but by the little sermons that are preached day after day by our lives. We are living epistles "known and read of all men". We are enjoined by the Master to "let our light so shine before men, that they may see our good works, and glorify our Father which is in heaven." Every Christian is preaching some kind of gospel. Ask yourself the question, "What kind of gospel am I preaching?"

The preaching done by the apostles entailed a great deal of sacrifice. They knew in whom they believed, were eyewitnesses of His miracles and listeners to His many discourses. With this intimate acquaintance with the "author and finisher of our faith", they went about their ministry with such zeal, earnestness, and conviction that even sacrifice and a martyr's death couldn't swerve them from their labors.

Three things are necessary to make us able ministers of His glorious gospel.

ZEAL

EARNESTNESS

CONVICTION

The message which the apostles preached was plain, direct, timely. There was nothing uncertain about it. Their message was adapted to and for the people to whom they were preaching. The gospel today needs to be preached with a clarion sound, with a distinctiveness that makes it independent of all worldly things. Whatever your part may be in this great work of spreading the gospel, do it well regardless of the sacrifice. Our hope has been made available to us by the sacrifices and blood of previous truth-lovers, and may we carry on as faithfully for our posterity.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"It is necessary to obey God, rather than men."—Acts 5:29, Diag.

Obedience is the keynote of Christianity. Adam's disobedience plunged the world into sin; Christ's obedience will turn many to righteousness. God has always required obedience, and those who do not obey suffer the consequences.

God is the all wise Father, the One who knows the end from the beginning. Man is a frail mortal creature, who knows not even what the morrow will be. Neither has he any power over the elements that control the wind and the waves. God controls all; man is as nothing. We are dependent on God for all we have. It is He who sends the sunshine and the rain and gives us food and raiment. It is "in him we live, and move, and have our being". Acts 17:28. Then why not gladly obey the Father and not worthless man? That is our duty.—L. A. R.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

One day as Peter and John were entering the temple by way of the Beautiful Gate, they noticed a cripple who had been carried there every day by his friends, begging for money. Peter and John had long before given up their regular employment to follow Jesus and study under Him, so that they might carry on His work, and they didn't have any money to give this poor man. But they had something which money could not buy, and which was worth more than all the gold in the world.

As they approached the spot where the man lay, Peter said to him, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk." Peter reached out his hand to him, and immediately the man who had never in his life taken a step, arose, not feebly faltering, but he jumped and ran, in his great joy at being cured.

In whose name did Peter heal him? Did he take the credit to himself? Did the lame man praise Peter? V. 9. How did the miracle affect the people round about? This gave Peter an opportunity to preach another sermon. Vv. 12-26. What happened to Peter and John as a result of their preaching? Acts 4:1-3. How did they feel about their sufferings? Acts 5:41.

Were Peter and John frightened when they were brought before the authorities? Acts 4:13, 18-20. Why did they have no cause to fear? Will God stand by us and help us, if we have the courage to do right? What did the other followers of the Lord do, when Peter and John were freed? V. 24. Do you think God heard their prayers of thanksgiving? We should not forget to thank God, when He has helped us through our difficulties.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30

ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

Our yearly meeting will be held at Arkansas City, Kansas, August 23 to 31. Bro. Sydney E. Magaw of Eden Valley, Minnesota, will be in charge. A full attendance is urged.

Mrs. C. P. Morgan, Sec.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

We are glad to announce that the name of Bro. Grover Gordon of Holbrook, Nebraska, has been added to our staff of teachers. He will alternate with Bro. Conner in teaching the adult class. Begin making your plans to attend. August 4th will soon be here.

SAINT CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Bro. Jas. A. Patrick will hold services at the Saint Cloud church, from June 28 until July 3rd. Everybody within coming distance, be present and hear Bro. Patrick. I know you will be blessed and encouraged.

Mrs. T. M. Savage, Church Clerk.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

Word comes from Eldorado, where Bro. C. E. Lapp has been holding services, that they have had very good attendance, and that all have greatly enjoyed making the acquaintance of Bro. Lapp and listening to his sermons. From Casey and Marshall Bro. Lapp will return to Eldorado for services on July 5.

FOR BETTER SUNDAY SCHOOLS

The Sunday School lessons for the last half of the year 1931 are lessons on the missionary journeys of Paul. A good map is indispensable to teacher and student for these lessons. By all cooperating, your class can obtain one of our fine maps for use in your class room, with only a little effort for each member. For full particulars see back page.

INDIANA BIBLE SCHOOL AND CONFERENCE

Bible School and Conference will convene at North Salem on July 7 and continue over July 19, 1931. Bro. Marsh has been secured to assist our own state workers, Bro. Anderson, Bro. Long, Bro. Drabentstott, Bro. Smead, and others to make this year a success in a still larger way than in the past. Brothers Anderson and Marsh will alternate with the adult and senior classes. Bro. Long will have charge of the juniors and Bro. Smead will be a relief teacher for junior and senior classes, having one class in each group each day.

Sister Zeehiel is serving her first year as Berean president and will have the responsibility to a large degree of our school. She is working hard but needs the full cooperation of all.

The Conference business meeting for the transaction of business and election of officers will be held on Saturday, July 18.

Notice was given last year of a proposed

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25	Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St.	Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen,	daughter of Sr. Seely.

amendment to the constitution. This will be up for vote. The proposed amendment is as follows:

Amendment to Article VI of Articles of Incorporation. "Article VI of the Articles of Incorporation shall be revised to read as follows: 'Each and every individual Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Indiana shall be considered as a part of the State Conference and shall be entitled to representation by duly authorized delegates. Each church shall be entitled to one vote for each member. This vote shall be cast by duly authorized delegates. However, one delegate shall not be allowed to cast a vote for more than one-half of a church membership. Any member of a church if present at business session, may cast his own vote, in which case it shall be deducted from the total delegate vote from that church.'

Amendment to Section 1, Article V: Section 1, Article V shall be amended to read as follows:

"This constitution may be revised, altered, or amended by a two-thirds vote at the regular annual conference meeting, notice having previously been given of such proposed amendment."

Amendment to Section 3, Article III (under finance). Section 3, Article III under finance shall be revised to read as follows:

"The employment and remuneration of ministers for Conference work and Bible Study shall be under the direction of the executive board."

F. A. Stilson, President.

INDIANA STATE BEREAN MEETING

The Indiana State Berean business meeting will be held Wednesday evening at six-thirty, July 15th. Mrs. Pearl Zeehiel, president.

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE

The Minnesota Fifty-seventh Annual Conference was held at Eden Valley, from June 11th to 14th. This was a good conference, with a very good attendance. The church was not large enough to hold the people, and Sunday an overflow meeting was held.

Bro. and Sr. Patrick came a few days before conference, which added greatly to the success of the meetings.

Sunday morning Bro. Patrick baptized nine, two of whom were young married women. May God keep these dear ones faithful.

Ministers present were: Jas. A. Patrick, C. E. Randall, Sydney Magaw, T. M. Savage, Ray Abbott; visiting ministers: O. R. Jenks of Aurora, Illinois, F. P. Sweany. Many inspiring sermons were given.

We all rejoice to see the Patrick family and Bro. Clyde once more. And it is with regret that we see Bro. Magaw and family making plans to leave us. We would like very much to keep them in Minnesota, as we need him.

Officers elected were: president, Carl Bergberg; vice president, John Denchfield; secretary, Mrs. T. M. Savage; treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Hoskins.

Mrs. T. M. Savage, Con. Sec.

BAPTISMS

Sunday, June 21, was a day of special rejoicing at the Church of God in Los Angeles. Two fine young people, a brother and sister, made confession of their faith in "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," and expressed their determination to follow in the Master's steps until He comes. In the afternoon, in the presence of a representative gathering of the brethren, Richard E. and Charlotte A. Rahn were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

The parents, grand parents, and great-grandparents of Richard and Charlotte have handed down to them a rich heritage of faith in the glad tidings of the kingdom, and now four generations are united in the blessed hope of redemption through Christ at His coming. For these young people are the children of Bro. and Sr. George J. Rahn, the grandchildren of Bro. and Sr. E. C. Railsback, and the great-grandchildren of Bro. and Sr. Richard C. Railsback, who were closely associated with the progress of the Church of God in Indiana for so many years.

A family united by love in the home is happy indeed; but when that unity leads to eternal unity in the Lord Jesus Christ how much more blessed and glorious it becomes!

G. Eldred Marsh, pastor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The Michigan Conference opened on June 21st with a beautiful day. Not many were present from out of town, but considerable interest was manifest in the day's program.

Bro. and Sr. Conner arrived Monday afternoon ready for service, and on Tuesday the Bible School work was well under way. As this is written, things are moving along nicely, and we hope for more from a distance before the close.

A special Sunday School program for the summer months has been planned. Each Sunday, beginning with July 5, will have some definite feature or plan, and a different person is in charge of each Sunday.

F. E. Siple, pastor.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON

The annual meeting of the Northwestern Conference of Oregon and Washington was held June 4 to 7, 1931, at Felida, Washington. Bro. A. W. Darby of Portland, Oregon, who was the conference speaker, gave many interesting discourses on the present day conditions and prophecies. These talks are what we who are living in the last days need to hear and to meditate upon.

On Sunday another of the fine basket dinners was served by the Felida brethren to a large crowd. Social hour in the afternoon during which the members selected songs, read scriptures and gave testimonies was concluded with the communion service.

Business meeting was held Saturday morning. Officers for the coming year are: President, Wallace Woolf, Vancouver, Washington; Vice president, Mrs. Minnie Rogers, Eugene, Oregon; Treasurer, Mrs. Elsie Galbraith, Vancouver; Secretary, Gladys Barber, Corvallis, Oregon.

We are glad that so many of the brethren could be present and that those who could not attend sent letters. We hope that at the Quarterly Conference to be held October 3 and 4, 1931 at Corvallis, that Eugene, Newport, Sherwood, Astoria, Lebanon, Oregon, and Camas, Menlo, Sunnyside and Seattle, Washington, will be well represented. The secretary will be only too glad to correspond with anyone desiring information concerning the meetings of the Northwestern Conference and the churches of Oregon and Washington.

May God bless the efforts put forth to bring the message of salvation to those around us and may we be faithful to Him who has redeemed us from sin.

Gladys Barber, 1553 Adams St., Corvallis, Oregon.

Out of town brethren who attended the meetings at Felida were: Bro. H. B. Hathaway and Bro. A. N. Harlan of Corvallis; Sr. Sarah Smith and Bro. A. W. Darby of Portland; and Bro. and Sr. C. E. Hunt and Lester Hunt of Camas.

There is no improvement in the condition of Sr. H. B. Cramer of Portland, who has suffered two paralytic strokes this spring.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT DIXON

On Sunday evening, June 21, the Children's Day program was given by the young people of the Dixon church. A beautiful and inspiring pageant, entitled, "His Living Words", was rendered, bringing to the hearts and minds of the audience many wonderful passages in the Bible where one may truly find the living words of our Master. Intermingled with the various readings and Scripture verses, the junior choir sang appropriate songs.

Many pretty flowers were used to decorate the church. And much credit is due the committee in charge of this program, and to those that took part and made it a success. May God bless their efforts, and when Jesus comes again, may they hear His living words, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Grace Drew, Sec.

TO THE TEXAS BRETHREN

From a lengthy letter written by Bro. Erby O. McCullough, dated at Riviera June 17th, addressed to the brethren of the Church of God" as a whole, intended especially for the Texas brethren, we gather something as follows:

Having devoted some time in study, Bro. McCullough has evidently been practicing health restoration as a Naturopeth, Orothopithist, and Scientific Health Specialist. In doing so he has come in conflict with a recently passed law of the state which, it is alleged, is the result of a united effort of regularly licensed practitioners and which, it is alleged, forbids anyone rendering aid to the sick, unless he or she is the proper possessor of a medical license for so doing.

On April 23rd Bro. Erby was arrested for illegal practice of medicine and "was thrown behind bars". His trial is to take place July 6th. He expects to defend himself in court, feeling financially unable to secure an attorney. He also contemplates that he will likely lose his case in the lower court, but feels that the higher court would reverse such a decision. Bro. McCullough, whom all of the Texas brethren know as an upright young man, says that he has consecrated his life to Christian ministry, that he feels that this service is a Christian service. He uses no medicines and therefore feels that the new law unjustly deprives him and others from "working with their own hands" for the benefit of others. He not only asks the prayers of the brethren for his success, but also asks that all who agree with him, that his cause is right, will unite with him financially, if necessary, to secure a decision of the higher court.

Bro. Erby seems very sincere and very earnest in the stand that he has taken.

The smile on the face of Bro. Paul C. Johnson is broader because a brand new little girl came on June 29, to make her home with him and Sr. Ethel Austin Johnson.

SAVAGE - HOSKINS

A very pretty wedding was held at four o'clock in the afternoon, Tuesday, June 16, in the home of Bro. and Sr. W. F. Hoskins of Eden Valley, Minnesota, when their daughter, Madge, became the bride of Thomas Savage, Jr. of Waite Park, Minnesota. Both bride and groom are members of the Church of God, and it is our confidence that the union of these two lives will be blest by the Heavenly Parent.

On the day following the ceremony the newlyweds left for a trip to the Black Hills of South Dakota, and after their return will make their home for the summer in an ideal cottage built by the groom on Horse Shoe Lake near Eden Valley.

We wish them a happy married life, and the peace of a Christian home.

Elder Sydney E. Magaw, pastor.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates. — 51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference, F. L. Austin, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate.... to represent the church at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman

..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

To secure your aid in getting THE RESTITUTION HERALD into the hands of many new readers we will mail you, Post Free, your selection of the multi-colored Maps of Bible Lands listed to the right. Accurate Maps are a necessity to travelers, much more so to Bible students. They fix your thought upon the spot. They pin the soul of Bible Events before your eyes. They stick them to your memory.

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD seeks to keep Life Saving Truths ever before its readers. It seeks to be a Guide to Salvation.

As such it desires regular readers in every home. It wants to aid all in their journeys in Christian life.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD wants to put these Truths before YOUR Friends. It wants to help them along the path to Eternal Life.

In this you can assist us by showing them that THE HERALD is a real Weekly Helper. Urge them to invest $2.00 for this valuable Guide.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Explain the little Maps which we give Free to each New Subscriber. They are valuable helps.

Choose the map you want and begin at once to work for it. Secure new subscriptions to THE HERALD. Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Sample HERALDS and subscription blanks sent on request. This short and vigorous Campaign closes September 1st.

MAPS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Individual Maps to Subscribers. Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1/2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

SEND ALL REMITTANCES TO

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 7, 1931

NUMBER 40

The Predicted Signs of the Lord's Coming

ARE THEY IN THE PAST?

By Alice B. Curtis

IN OUR desire for the Lord to come, we look carefully to the past and present to learn how many of the signs that are to precede His coming have now been fulfilled. While many of these signs are in the past and some are now in process of being fulfilled, there are some that are yet in the future.

It is believed and taught by some that the dominion of the "little horn" is over, but Daniel seven, verses twenty-one to twenty-three, inclusive, does not so teach. For it reads: "I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; until the Ancient of Days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom." The twenty-third verse shows the little horn to be a power belonging to the fourth universal kingdom. And as the Ancient of days has not yet come, the power of the little horn is not yet in the past.

The great tribulation of Daniel 12:1, and the abomination of desolation, verse 11, are yet future. In the latter verse we see that the taking away of the continual burnt offering is connected with the abomination of desolation. This "abomination" doubtless takes place under the anti-christ or super man of sin. And it is thought by some students that his image will be set up in the temple to be worshiped, which will constitute the "abomination that maketh desolate". That this sign occurs in the time of the end is shown in Daniel 8:13-18, where Daniel is plainly told that the vision shall be in the time of the end.

The great tribulation of Matthew 24:21, and Daniel's time of trouble, Daniel 12:1, must be the same. For of the former it is said to be "such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time;" and the latter to be "such as hath not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, nor ever shall be." Now if Daniel and Jesus do not refer to the same period and the same tribulation, one statement contradicts the other, and as both are from the Inspired Word, this cannot be.

At the time of Daniel's trouble his people, the Jews, are delivered. As the Jews are not yet delivered, this time of trouble is yet future, as is also the great tribulation, since they are identical. God's people have always had tribulation, especially during the "dark ages" when sixty millions of Christians were killed. But the great tribulation is yet to come, for Jesus says, "Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken". Matt. 24:29.

Since the darkening of the sun and moon and the falling of the stars are said to come after the great tribulation, and that tribulation is still future, it follows that these signs in heaven are yet future, even though we had a darkening of the sun and moon on May 19, 1780, and the falling of the stars fifty-three years afterwards. There is no doubt these were heavenly signs, as scientists cannot account for the sun and moon being darkened then, since there was no eclipse at the time. But as the great tribulation precedes the darkening of these heavenly bodies, this occurrence can hardly fulfill the darkening Jesus refers to in Matthew 24:29.

When the world goes through the "great tribulation", there will be no two opinions about it. Everyone who enters and passes through it will recognize it as such, for "except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved: but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened." Matt. 24:22. Moreover this sign that Jesus spoke of—the darkening of the sun and moon and the falling of the stars—to be of use to mankind should be seen by all. When the dark day and night referred to occurred, it was visible to the people in New England and to small portions of New York and New Jersey. A very small part of the world, one would say.

Among other signs that Jesus speaks of in Matthew 24,
(Continued on page 634)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"He shall judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with judgment. He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor." — Psalm 72:2 to 4.

THE COMING OF CHRIST

THE coming of our Lord is far more than an event to be looked for historically. That it is an event that will attract the admiration or the fear of one and all is certain. But in a larger way the coming of Christ marks the passing from one dispensation to that of another. It marks the closing of the age of man's rule and the beginning of the age of Heaven's rule. It marks the winding up of the old earth, preparatory for the establishment of the new heavens and the new earth.

The revealed purposes of God cannot possibly come to their fulfillment without the second advent of Christ to this old earth. Without His return there is no resurrection from the dead. Without His return there is no redemption from sin. Without His return there is no righteous reign for earth. Without His return there is no victory over the vicious ways of man.

By the return and presence and continued work of Christ, the triumphant One, sin will eventually be vanquished; the curse will be overthrown; the dead will be raised; the glory of the Lord will radiate His grandeur, and greatness, and goodness, "from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

THE HEAVENS DECLARE GOD'S GLORY

GOD has not left it to the vacillating whims of finite, carnal man to bear convincing evidence of the Creator's greatness and sovereignty, for "the heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork." Psalm 19:1.

It is interesting to know that, before any written revelation which we have of God, the ancients, discerning the stars of heaven and their courses, recognized in them the work and the revelation of God.

Job, who possibly wrote between three and four thousand years before Christ, writing in the twenty-sixth chapter of the omnipotence of the Creator, says in verse thirteen, "By his Spirit he hath garnished the heavens."

Answering Bildad's entreaties that Job should forsake his faith in Jehovah and resort to reason and better sense, he replies in 9:6-9, by referring to the greatness of the heavens, the works of God's hands. In 38:31 Jehovah reasons with Job and cites the Pleiades, the bands of Orion, the signs of the Zodiac, Mazzaroth, citing them as evidence of His own greatness and of Job's dependence upon Him. How truly was Job made to realize that "by his spirit he hath garnished the heavens"! 26:13.

But this oldest biblical record is made more interesting when we come to realize that still earlier in history man had learned to watch the heavens and study the courses of the heavenly bodies. He had early come to believe that those same heavenly bodies revealed the fact of a coming Savior, who should overthrow the serpent and the enemy and who should Himself become triumphant Ruler over all the earth.

THE NEW MAN IN CHRIST

THAT Christianity as introduced by Christ, our Lord, consists of more than a mere series of doctrines and commandments is evident by the lives of the apostles as revealed in the Acts. It was when the day of Pentecost had fully come that this new life was manifested in the disciples.

As God, by breathing into his nostrils the breath of the spirit of life, had given strength to the man whom He created of the dust of the ground, so upon the day of Pentecost God filled with His own spirit those who in a formal way had come to be Christians. Like as Adam was powerless to carry on the works of a man's life till after he had received this spirit of the Father, so also the Christians were unable to carry on the work of the Christian life until after they had been imbued upon the day of Pentecost with spirit from on high.

This added strength of mind and body that was given to them by the spirit was immediately manifested. Nor did that manifestation cease quickly. It was continued throughout the Acts of the Apostles.

At the beautiful gate of the temple Peter transmitted that new power to the lame man who had never walked. Immediately that man leaped and praised the Father because of the new strength given unto him.

Like as God created man to work and to continue working throughout his generations, so God created Christians to work, yes, that they should continue Christian work throughout their successive generations. God is just as anxious for His work through the Christian to be accomplished as He was for work through the first man, Adam, to be accomplished.

It is quite evident that God has not made man merely for man's pleasure, but rather that man should fit into the niche into which God has placed him and perform the duties that God would have him to perform. In like manner the Christian of today should be such an outstanding example and force before the world as to reflect most fully and most clearly God's power—power manifested through Christ and His spirit.

TRADITION OR TRUTH?

By George B. Alldridge

IF WE would take a writing pad, draw a line down through its center, on one side write what I believe about Satan, on the other side my authority or source of information for so believing, we would be surprised how little is derived from the Bible, and how "shallow" our knowledge really is.

Alexander Pope in his Essay on Criticism says,

"A little learning is a dangerous thing;
 Drink deep or taste not the Pierian Spring,
 There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
 And drinking largely, sobers us again."

In the Golden Age of February 18, 1931, in a lecture by "Judge" Rutherford under the title, "Jehovah," on Page 346, he is quoted as saying, regarding Satan, "When God created man and placed him in the paradise of Eden, He made man a part of Lucifer's organization. God appointed Lucifer as man's overseer or overlord. Lucifer must have been a very beautiful, as well as a powerful creature. God by His prophet Ezekiel, in the twenty-eighth chapter, gives a description of Lucifer in these words: 'Thou hast been in Eden, the garden of God; every precious stone was thy covering. . . Thou art the anointed cherub that covereth; and I have set thee so; thou wast upon the holy mountain of God; thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the stones of fire. Thou wast perfect in thy ways, from the day that thou wast created, till iniquity was found in thee . . . Thine heart was lifted up because of thy beauty, thou hast corrupted thy wisdom by reason of thy brightness.' This proves that Lucifer was a high official in the great organization of God and was an overseer of one part of God's universal organization. 'Iniquity' means lawlessness; and this scripture shows Lucifer became lawless, or rebelled against God's law, etc."

Blasphemy is defined as "indignity offered to God in words, writing, or signs; also, the act of claiming the attributes of deity." The remarks of "Judge" Rutherford seem to come under this head, when we consider the Scriptures.

There is a companion scripture which the "Judge" also quotes, namely, Isa. 14:12, 14. But let us read the context, not a text here and there to suit our whim. So we read verse four: "That thou shalt take up this proverb against the King of Babylon, and say, How hath the oppressor ceased! the golden city ceased! The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked, and the sceptre of the rulers. He who smote the people in wrath with a continual stroke, he that ruled the nations in anger, is persecuted, and none hindereth. The whole earth is at rest, and is quiet: they break forth into singing."

Who is the prophet talking about? The king of Babylon, of course. Verses sixteen and seventeen read, "They that see thee shall narrowly look upon thee, and consider thee, saying, Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms; that made the world as a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof; that opened not the house of his prisoners?" Read all this chapter, brethren, and see if it supports the "Judge's" argument.

But let us be fair. So we will now read Ezekiel 28:2. "Son of man, say unto the prince of Tyrus, Thus saith the Lord God; Because thine heart is lifted up, and thou hast said, I am a god, I sit in the seat of God, in the midst of the seas; yet thou art a man and not God, though thou set thine heart as the heart of God."

Now, brethren, read verses three to ten, which tell where the precious stones came from that covered him. But in verse twelve the prophet reiterates the point that God instructs him to make—that it is the King of Tyrus and not the fallen angel of "Judge" Rutherford's lore. "Son of man, take up a lamentation upon the king of Tyrus, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God; Thou sealest up the sun, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty." The following verses amplify in detail what this means. Read carefully verses eighteen and nineteen.

I wonder if the "Judge" realizes that his organization, "The International Bible Students", is a part of the system described in Revelation 17:5? We all know that this is, primarily, the great Roman Catholic church. "And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet colour, and

(Continued on page 630)

JUST A SONG AT TWILIGHT

"Just a song at twilight,
 When the lights are low,"
 Just a thought at daybreak,
 Of the love we owe
 To the One who saved us,
 Alone by grace we stand,
 To the One who'll take us,
 To the promised land.

 Far above all misery,
 Pain and tears unknown
 Joy and peace and comfort,
 Never more to roam.
 Home at last from wandering
 In the wilderness,
 Crowned with glory—honor—
 And eternal bliss.

 Safe and sound forever—
 The journey's end is reached—
 Ours to have forever,
 All the good He preached.
 Gathered round His table,
 Refreshed and satisfied,
 With Him in His mansions,
 Ever to abide.

 There there'll be no parting,
 There there'll be no strife;
 Father, brother, sister,
 Mother, son and wife—
 All are joined together,
 All are one, you see,
 Not of flesh, but spirit,
 Will our bodies be.

 There'll be no corruption,
 End of days unknown,
 With the Lord of Glory,
 On His heavenly throne.
 Oh! my God, I love Thee,
 Oh! the joy I know,
 Oh! the peace and comfort,
 Even here below.

 When these thoughts come to me,
 When I think of Thee,
 When through all this veil o' tears,
 I but dimly see,
 What's my hope and calling,
 What's my joy to be,
 How much, Precious Savior,
 Thou hast done for me.

 Come, beloved brethren,
 Sing this hymn — for see —
 Jesus loves you dearly —
 Just as He loves me!

—Contributed by A. L. Corbaley.

THE BEST GIFT

By Lydia Railsback

AT CERTAIN times of the year and on special occasions it is customary for one person to present to another some token of love in the form of an appropriate gift. The size or value of the gift is not always indicative of the love shown. Neither is the smallness of it an index to the feelings of the one toward the other.

It was James Russell Lowell who said,
 "Not what we give, but what we share,
 For the gift without the giver is bare."

And how true it is, for no matter how great the gift, it really means little to the recipient unless the love of the giver goes with it.

Then again, if a gift carries the thought with it that "You must give me just as much or a little more than I have given you", in many instances it becomes a burden rather than a pleasure.

These are the ways of the world, but in the religious life it is somewhat different. The gifts all come one way—from the Father and His Son to those who believe in them. The Father's love cannot be measured or computed, yet a portion of it goes out with every promise. There is no such thing as "You give me and I'll give you", but the Father gives to His children as He sees fit.

This has been so from the beginning and will continue so throughout all generations. But is there not something that we can do to at least in part compensate the Father? True, the Father needs no compensation.

The parent who loves his child and does everything for it that is in his power to do, does all this without the thought of being repaid. But if that child shows his appreciation for what the parent has done, he will give in return unbounded confidence and obedience. That to the parent means more than anything else.

So with the heavenly Father. Any service we can render Him in appreciation for what He has done and is still doing for us, is very little, comparatively speaking. Yet He requires this of us. He requires us to be obedient children, to love and serve Him.

Paul says in Romans 12:1, 2, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

"The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." The best that we can do then is to show our love and appreciation by giving in return our best gift, which is humble obedient service to Him who is our Maker and the Giver of every good and perfect gift.

——
 "ASTRONOMY is believed to be the oldest of all sciences."

PSYCHOLOGY AND HUMAN CONSCIOUSNESS

By Norman John McLeod

ONE of the most intangible and baffling of phenomena is that of human consciousness. It also is one of the most important matters, religiously, that there is. The human brain gives rise to this most peculiar of functions: the realization of its own functions. Some of the animals seem to show indications of types of thought; most of them, however, do not rise above the level of association.

But no matter how high the type of animal thought, it never approaches the grandeur or sublimity of the idea which creates, plans, contemplates. Aesthetic appreciation of art, literature or music is absent among the animals; mirth is said to be lacking even among some of the more primitive savages.

There is no animal social heritage to be passed on by school, home, or church, or to be preserved by fiat of the state. The new generation of animals will begin where every other generation began. It will seldom rise above the point of instinctive and automatic action. One animal cannot compare notes with another to learn of better methods of doing things. To them no promises of God were made, for they do not ponder eternal things.

Nothing is more wonderful, more fascinating, or more heart-thrilling to watch than the budding consciousness of the infant, as he learns to prattle. Nor is anything sadder, more despairing, nor more mysterious than the dimming and disappearance of that same consciousness with the approach of death.

So puzzling indeed have been the problems of human consciousness that man has taken a great deal of time to investigate them through the ages. These investigations have borne fruit along two lines: religion and philosophy.

In Greek times, religion and philosophy were combined, but they finally diverged and separated. Both, however, were concerned with human consciousness, its appearance and disappearance. So grew up the idea, common to many religions and to philosophy, of the immortal soul.

The particular branch of philosophy devoted to the study of the soul was psychology. But psychologists were Greek and were of an enquiring turn of mind. Under the critical Greek eye, doubt was cast upon the immortality of the soul. When ancient Greek learning was revived in the late Middle Ages, doubt again crept in as to the immortality of the soul.

Modern times find the "immortal soul" giving way to the "mortal mind". But both concepts imply some eternal entity, operating the otherwise lifeless organism. The newer psychologists then said that, rather than a mind or a soul, consciousness was a group of processes called by them "faculties".

So developed the pseudo science of phrenology. But physiologists had found that we do not think in compartments—the whole of consciousness focuses first on one thing, then on another. So consciousness is seen to be a function of the brain—a function that ceases when life ceases, or even in sleep or in a faint.

Theology did not keep pace with new psychological discoveries, but clung to the immortality of the soul. So that when a young student started to college and learned that there was no immortal soul, he lost all faith in a religion which had taught him, contrary to the Bible, that he could not die. Rather, do we see that psychology had in its long investigations reached the point attained by the Psalmist many centuries ago, that, "in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks"?

Delegate your state evangelist to the General Conference to assist in devising better ways and means for furthering your state work.

THE PROGRESS OF THE APOSTASY

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

WE SEE evidences on every hand that the great falling away Paul spoke of in 2 Thessalonians 2:3, is advancing rapidly toward the end and we find the unbelieving are becoming more and more settled in their own theories. God has given them time and opportunity to repent, but they do not want to, and so judgment awaits them, and we can see it advancing speedily.

Recently, the writer had an experience, conversing with two college boys. They were just average boys, who came from good homes and were trying to make their way in the world, earning their living during the summer months. They could talk fluently on all world topics, but when it came to the Bible, it could readily be noticed how far away from God they had drifted even though they were well informed on many things in the Bible. It was quite evident in speaking with these youths that the very first thing that can be noticed is that they are very well versed in the theory of evolution, although many do not even know it. They think they are right because they have "advanced" views of the Bible.

Our present systems are indeed teaching our youths to think, but alas, with their active minds they have run far away from the truth, so that their consciences have become deadened. To them there is just one sin, and that is to be found out. In fact, activity, both bodily and mental, has been so greatly stressed and our present lax conditions have thrown the doors of opportunity so wide open that the very thought of restraint is repulsive; hence lawlessness follows.

One thing is noticeable about much of our training to—
(Continued on page 633)

GOD'S COVENANTS

"For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance."—Romans 11:29. "An oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife. Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath".—Hebrews 6:16, 17.

MANY and far reaching are the wonderful promises of God to man. All of them, without exception, breathe forth God's blessings for His creatures. As though to assure man, that man may feel to have more confidence, greater conviction, God has frequently added to His promises by putting them into the form of covenants.

Now a covenant as a promise is "a cutting" or "a dividing" of God's possessions or privileges and a distributing of them to those to whom the promises are made. This thought is beautifully illustrated in Genesis 15:9-16, where God caused the bodies of the beasts to be cut or divided in illustration of God's dividing His blessings unto Abraham.

While "covenant" means to divide or cut with another one, it further means the disposition of one's possession, disposing of it to another party.

God made disposition of His power and of His blessing unto Noah, as found in Genesis 9:13, where He added a sign that Noah and his descendants might ever, when looking upon the rainbow, recall God's covenant that never again should the earth be destroyed with water. This blessing, breathed by the Father to Noah, has been a continuous blessing to all generations.

Numerous have been God's blessings covenanted unto man. One such covenant of importance to all the human race was made by God to Abraham and to his Seed. Paul referred to the same in Galatians 3:8, 16, 17. It is a promise of blessing to the nations of earth. It was made to Abraham and his Seed. Gal. 3:8. But the Seed referred to, Paul says in Galatians 3:1, was the Seed in the singular number; that is, one Seed, not many. And this promise was established in the form of a covenant, v. 17.

The Seed referred to was particularly mentioned by God, in Genesis 21:12, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called." Here the word, Seed, is in the singular number. True, it is a collective noun, but the context of the sentence indicates that the collective noun is here singular.

Thus we learn that God's covenant to Abraham relative to blessing the nations was through Abraham's Seed, "which is Christ."

Reference to Genesis 12:3 reveals the fact that this covenant which God made was unconditional. He is going to fulfill it regardless of man. The blessing of all nations of earth is in God's plan and purpose. He is going to fulfill that blessing through Christ, the Seed of Abraham.

While the Seed spoken of is one, there is in the Seed a number referring to Christ, Gal. 3:16. Paul speaks further to the Galatians, 3:27-29, stating that "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

How plain and specific these words are! Being in Christ the individual is a part of Abraham's Seed, a member of the body of Christ. The entire body of Christ makes up the Seed as a whole—Christ and His body members.

He does not refer to all those who look to Christ, to all those who may be in a way following after Him, but He refers only to "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ."

This particular covenant of God then, which refers to Christ, the Seed of Abraham, also refers to those who pass into the body of Christ. Having been baptized into Him, they become one with Him, and as such they are partakers of the blessings of that covenant of Almighty God.

This is one of the covenants that was confirmed of God by an oath. Gal. 3:17, 18. It was established in the strongest possible way, to assure those of faith in Christ that God would never overlook its fulfillment. Those then who are in Christ, who are of Him, may certainly with confident faith look forward to its fulfillment, and to that day when they, with their Master, may assist Him in rendering blessing, even the blessings of God, unto "all the nations of the earth."

This is "the gospel" that God "preached" unto Abraham, Gal. 3:8, and concerning which Paul declared, in 1:8, of anyone, even "an angel from heaven", who should preach an opposing gospel, "let him be accursed".

TRADITION OR TRUTH?

(Continued on page 627)

decked with gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand full of abominations and filthiness of her fornication".

Isaiah 8:20 reads, "To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them." Again, Isa. 43:9: "Let all the nations be gathered together, and let the people be assembled; who among them can declare this, and shew us former things? let them bring forth their witnesses, that they may be justified; or let them hear and say, it is truth."

Read on, brethren, to the end of the chapter. It is God's challenge to the nations for the teaching of false doctrines. Verse seventeen describes their end.

McCarthy, the great English historian, said that "the Roman Catholic Church, is the most wonderful organization, and has been the most powerful in the annals of the human race." How did she become so? By absorbing or incorporating into her teachings and doctrines pagan mythology and demonology, so as to win the pagan hosts into her fellowship. The secret of her success lies in one verse of the Scriptures, namely, 2 Thess. 2:14. I will quote from their own translation, the Douay version, which according to my copy received the "approbation of his eminence, James Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore". It reads thus, "Therefore brethren, stand fast; and hold the traditions which you have learned, whether by word or by our epistle." To this verse there is a footnote, "Traditions. See here that the unwritten traditions of the apostles are no less to be received than their epistles."

So then, as the popes claim, they possess the apostolic rights, invested in the twelve apostles, "St. Peter" in particular. We can readily see that the encyclicals, bulls, and edicts issued by the different popes from time to time, are considered by the faithful as equal to and part of God's Word, forgetting, probably not knowing, that their own scriptures read, "For I testify to every one that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book; if any man shall add to these things, God shall add unto him the plagues written in this book. And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life and out of the holy city and from these things that are written in this book." Revelation 22:18, 19.

The other scriptures where the word, tradition, appears are, Matt. 15:2, 3-6; Mark 7:3, 5, 8, 9; Col. 2:8; 2 Thess. 3:6; 1 Peter 1:18; Gal. 1:14. Young's Concordance defines this word to mean, "A precept, the Jewish traditional law, an ordinance."

Jesus, in the days of His flesh, was always having trouble with the religious leaders by violating the traditions of the elders. Today the truth, as expressed by Jesus, John 17:17, "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth," meets with the same trouble by conflicting with the traditions of the elders, whether it be Catholic or Protestant.

To my surprise, I find that in the scriptures which Jesus and His apostles had access to, the word, "devils," is only found in Lev. 17:7; 2 Chron. 11:15, and means the idol worship, namely, "An he goat", and Deut. 32:17; Psalm 106:37, which means, "an Idol God," or demon that is malignant. The word, "Satan", is found only in 1 Chronicles 21:1; Job 1:6, 7, 8, 9, 12; 2:1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7; Psalm 109:6; Zech. 3:1, 2. I find the definition is, "To attack, to accuse an adversary."

Nowhere can I find that this monstrous being, the illusion of the "Judge's" mind, tempted our father and mother, Adam and Eve. I have found though that Paul says, 1 Tim. 2:13, 14, "For Adam was first formed, then Eve. And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression." To this James agrees, "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." And John says, "For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life is not of the Father, but is of the world."

Paul points out in Hebrews 2:14 and 1 Corinthians 15:56, who the devil is; and long before he was born, Isaiah and Hosea taught the same. See Isaiah 25:6-12 and Hosea 13:14.

The Apostle reveals the secret of it all by saying, "Wherefore, as by one man, sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Don't forget to imburse your delegate to the General Conference, that is, if he or she is depending upon his salary for a living. The best person whom you can encourage to act as your delegate is the one that you need.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.
(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

WHAT A FRIEND WE HAVE IN JESUS

“What a Friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear!
What a privilege to carry,
Everything to God in prayer!
O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry,
Every thing to God in prayer!

“Have we trials and temptations?
Is there trouble anywhere?
We should never be discouraged,
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Can we find a friend so faithful,
Who will all our sorrows share?
Jesus knows our every weakness,
Take it to the Lord in prayer.

“Are we weak and heavy laden,
Cumbered with a load of care?—
Precious Savior, still our refuge—
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Do thy friends despise, forsake thee?
Take it to the Lord in prayer;
In His arms He'll take and shield thee,
Thou wilt find a solace there.”

—H. Bonar.

EACH local church throughout the country is entitled to a delegate voice at the General Conference. Please read the by-laws found elsewhere in this paper and appoint your delegate with votes equal to one-half the number of your membership.

IMPORTANT PRAYER

SOME one has illustrated the effectiveness of such continual praying as the Lord Jesus described in His parable of the unjust judge (Luke 18:1-8), in this way.

Put an ounce weight in one pan of a pair of balances and then place visiting cards one by one in the other pan. The first card seems SO light. Of what use is it to move that heavy ounce weight? Two, three, four, five cards go in and yet there is no move, but when the twelfth card goes in the weight trembles and the thirteenth card brings it up.

So it is with prayer. You pray and pray, but the weight you are trying to move by prayer is so great, and your prayers seem so light and insufficient. The enemy says, “Give it up. What's the use?” He will continue saying this even to the very prayer which will move the weight. Many give up when one more prayer would have brought the answer.—Usher.

THE RETURN OF CHRIST

THE personal return of the Savior is the only gateway into eternal life. It is the believer's only hope (Titus 2:13)—a hope of living again (1 Peter 1:3, 5).

No man was allowed to enter into the tabernacle of the congregation until the high priest came out of the holy place (Lev. 16:17), and “no man hath ascended into heaven” (John 3:13). Christ is the only One who has entered on behalf of His people (Heb. 9:24-28), and His own people will not be with Him until He comes out, and they meet Him “in the air” (John 14:1-3; 1 Thess. 4:16, 17). No one sees Him before then (1 John 3:2).

“As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness” (Psalm 17:15). The Psalmist is still both dead and buried, and has “not ascended” into heaven (Acts 2:29, 34; 13:36).

Job said, “For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another” (Job 19:25-27).

Dead people are dead, and not alive; living people are alive, and not dead (Eccl. 4:2). But to those who have trusted in Christ for salvation, whether dead or alive, they shall yet live together with Him. “I am he that liveth, and was dead, and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hades (the grave) and of death” (Rev. 1:18). “Because I live, ye shall live also” (John 14:19).

When the Lord returns (Matt. 25; Luke 19) all who have fallen asleep in Him, and have returned to dust, shall be raised again from the dead (Gen. 3:19; Eccl. 3:19, 20; 9:5, 10; Job 7:21; 14:12; 24:14, 15; Psa. 6:5; Dan. 12:2; John 5:28).

Those who have lost their lives at sea shall return from there; death will also give up those who died and were never buried (Rev. 20:13), and those who were buried shall be brought up out of their graves (Isa. 26:19; Dan. 12:2; Ezek. 37:12, 13; John 5:28, 29). Dead people will be raised to life: living people will be changed, “in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye” (1 Cor. 15:51-54; 1 Thess. 4:13-18).

“For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.” “Who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep (live or die), we should live together with him” (Rom. 14:8, 9; 1 Thess. 5:10).

Dear reader, accept the truth (John 8:32, 36; Rom. 10:17). Receive Christ (John 1:12), and, in the “resurrection unto life,” you shall never die any more, but will be equal unto the angels: a child of God, and a child of the resurrection (Luke 20:35, 36).—Words of Life.

Send your pastor to the General Conference, August 4 to 16, to work for you. Pay him for his work and for his expenses.

THE PROGRESS OF THE APOSTASY

(Continued from page 629)

day. The modern evolutionists reject everything that is supernatural, scoffing at the creation of man, the flood, the story of Jonah and especially the divinity of Christ. They cannot comprehend anything that they cannot reason out, and God has not seen fit to reveal to them the deep things of life. They are hidden from the wise and prudent. (This means the worldly wise.)

God's children must take everything by faith, and as time goes on, the blessed truths of the Bible are revealed more and more. In fact the Word of God becomes a revelation to us, if we are willing to have God show us through the Word. However, it has always appeared to me that if it seems hard to some to believe the above facts (although I, myself, have never doubted any of them) the story of the flood would be the most convincing. Some try to tell us that all flesh did not die, but the Bible says so, and we must believe it.

One of the boys mentioned above said he could not see how Noah could make an ark large enough to get all the animals into it. A fact that is convincing that he did not take every animal into the ark is that we have no mammoths and mastodons today. But a pair of every animal that exists today was taken in. Perhaps they were too large to take into the ark, but we have proof that they existed, for we find skeletons of them in all of our large museums today.

It is said that many animals that have been found and dug up were in twisted and distorted shapes, showing that they died a violent death through some unnatural force of nature. Some even were found with the grass that they were chewing still in their mouths. That they are still found buried in arctic regions shows that the whole earth must have undergone a great change, for this animal could not possibly have lived except under tropical conditions. It is generally believed, however, that when the canopy existed, before the flood, everything grew to an immense size, and these animals may be proof of it.

But we have more recent proof that the flood must have made great changes in the geography of the earth, for recent discoveries and excavations have shown that some great convulsion of nature has buried whole cities. Some of the things that have been found were in an almost perfect state of preservation.

How anyone could doubt God after thinking about these things is hard for us to see. The saddest part of it all is that they have rejected it so long that it seems very real to them now, and they can find reason to scoff and belittle these things that mean so much to the trusting heart, proving that they belong to the scoffers that Peter tells us, 2 Peter 3:3, would come in the last days. It was the writer's duty and privilege to tell these boys that they were a proof of the last days of this dispensation, because they belonged to the scoffers.

THE BOOK OF JAMES

By Lyman Booth

THE writer styles himself "James, a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ." This modest title, for one who was bishop of Jerusalem, and in accordance with what we have argued also an Apostle, impresses us at once with the genuineness of the epistle. He was the son of Alphaeus, the brother of Jude, and the near relation of our Lord, called also, "James, the less," probably being lower in stature or younger than the other James. It was this James who is generally allowed to have written this epistle. (Matt. 13:54-58; Luke 24:13-24.)

It is recorded in ecclesiastical history, and the Acts of the Apostles confirms the fact, that James generally resided at Jerusalem, superintending the concerns of the churches in that city and in the nearby places to the end of his life, which came by martyrdom. The circumstances connected therewith are differently related. It seems that he wrote this letter only a short time before his death; and it is supposed by some that the sharp rebukes and awful warnings given in it to his countrymen stirred up that persecuting rage which terminated his life. But, after all, it is peculiarly wonderful that he should have been preserved so many years in so perilous a position; and it can be accounted for only by ascribing it to the Lord's immediate protection.

The epistle is styled "general" because it was not addressed to any particular church, but to the Jewish converts throughout their dispersion, and with evident reference to the unconverted part of the nation. This title was not given it until some years after it was written. It is probable that the Apostle, by means of the elders and Christians at Jerusalem, circulated copies of this epistle through those strangers who came to the sacred festivals from the several cities and countries where the Jews resided, and especially where there were Jewish converts to Christianity. And as it was exclusively addressed to his countrymen, it seems for a long time to have been little known among the Gentile converts, so that its authenticity was doubted for considerable time.

The second Epistle of Peter, the second and third of John, the Epistle of Jude, and the Revelation are omitted in the first Syriac translation of the New Testament, which was made in the beginning of the second century for the use of converted Jews. This is an argument of considerable weight, for certainly the Jewish believers, to whom that epistle was addressed and delivered, were much better judges of its authenticity than the converted Gentiles to whom it was not sent, and who perhaps had no opportunity of being acquainted with it till long after it was written.

The book is cited by Clemens Romanus four times, by Ignatius in his genuine epistle to the Ephesians, by Origen in his thirteenth homily upon Genesis. Eusebius says it was known to most, and publicly read in most Christian churches. St. Jerome says that in process of time it obtained authority. Esthius says that they who doubted it before, in the fourth century embraced the opinion of them who received it. All the catalogues of the books of the Holy Scriptures, published by general and provincial councils, Roman bishops, or other orthodox writers, number it among the canonical scriptures.

Doddridge says, "It appears to me that the authority of this and some other parts of the New Testament, having been early questioned by some primitive churches, affords an argument of their peculiar caution that no other writings should be admitted into the sacred canon, however excellent, besides those which had undoubted claim to that distinction, and he justly challenges our deference to their judgment who doubtless were most capable of judging, and gave sufficient evidence of their care, as well as their capacity. The epistle before us, having passed through a severe and accurate scrutiny, appears to have been universally received, and accordingly has been transmitted down to the present age as an authentic part of the oracles of God."

It is generally known that Luther, in the early part of the reformation, spoke very slightly of this book, thinking that it contradicted Paul's doctrine on the grand subject of justification. But deeper experience, more exact investigation, more extensive examination, and a maturer judgment induced him to retract his opinion; and at present no further doubt seems to be entertained among orthodox Christians as to its divine inspiration and authority.

It is not, however, so replete with the doctrines of Christianity as Paul's epistles are in general, or as the other apostolic epistles are. For it is supposed to have been written with the special design of counteracting false teachers who in different ways perverted those doctrines and wrested them to their own destruction and that of other men. But the grand principles of Christianity are throughout taken for granted and will be found, on careful consideration, entirely in accord with Paul's doctrine concerning grace and justification, though at first glance, it may appear otherwise.

It abounds with exhortations to the patience of hope and the obedience of faith and love. Various warnings, reproofs, and encouragements are interspersed, according to the different characters of the persons addressed in it. The financial and commercial enterprises of the present time seem to indicate the nearness of the fulfillment of the first six verses of the fifth chapter. It seems quite applicable to the Jews of our own time, for they control the money market as well as most of the commerce of the world.

James was a rigid observer of the Mosaic ritual, a Nazarene, and an ascetic. He was preeminently suited to rebuke sternly the sins which became so terribly prominent during the closing days of Jerusalem—hypocrisy, presumption, censoriousness, love of riches, contempt of the poor, "feuds and factions, wars and fightings", the vices which culminated in and precipitated the destruction of Jerusalem. This he does in his epistle addressed to the "twelve tribes which are in the dispersion," that is, Jewish Christians scattered throughout the Roman Empire, and written, according to some, shortly before his martyrdom.

The epistle is remarkable for its practical character, the homeliness, and aptness of its illustrations, and its bold, plain-spoken rebuke of the wealthy oppressors of the poor. The first section treats of sincerity and patience under affliction (1:1-15). The second treats of hypocrisy and self-deceit (1:16-27). The third warns against pride of the rich and contempt of the poor, against charity and spurious faith (2:1-26). The next treats of the ruling of the tongue and cultivating peace (3). The fifth gives warnings against strife and evil-speaking, against corruption of the world, pride, luxury, and oppression (4). Then follow warnings against covetousness (5:1-11), profane and rash oaths (5:12), exhortations to prayer, especially in sickness (5:13-18), and the blessedness of converting a sinner from the error of his ways (5:19, 20).

THE state conferences and the General Conference will be just what the people make them to be. The leaders can do no more than the membership will allow them to do. No matter how earnest, how faithful, or how diligent your leader; he cannot make a success of your conference unless he has the cooperation of the membership.

After suggesting possible errors to your leader, leave it for him to decide what shall be done, and then cooperate. He possibly knows things that he cannot explain to you. Give him a chance to work out his judgment of the proper thing to be done.

THE PREDICTED SIGNS OF THE LORD'S COMING

(Continued from front page)

is that in verse 14, which reads: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." It seems impossible for anyone but God to know just when this sign shall be accomplished. There is no nation now where the gospel, as many understand it, has not been preached. But Jesus says, "this gospel of the kingdom." Must it be preached literally to all, or must it be so widely preached in every nation that all may have the opportunity of hearing it, if they desire?

One writer has said that the "gigantic missionary operations of our days have brought us considerably nearer to the fulfillment of this word of our Lord."

The last sign that occurs before the actual appearing of our Lord is His sign to be seen in heaven. Great changes are rapidly taking place, and these signs may all be fulfilled in a comparatively brief time. And so while we wait and pray for His coming, let us heed His warning given in Mark 13:37: "And what I say unto you I say unto all, WATCH."

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"OUR TODAYS AND YESTERDAYS ARE THE BLOCKS WITH WHICH WE BUILD."

USE OF TIME

ONCE, our greatest Friend gave His life that we might live. He gave it ungrudgingly, at the cost of immediate earthly pleasures and untold mental and physical agonies.

If we are following our Master, we too will give gladly our "reasonable service" which is to "present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God."—Rom. 12:1. We realize this to be a difficult task; but anything worth while must be toiled for.

We may feel that we are meeting the necessary requirements of Christianity, but if we take an inventory of the way in which we spend our time, I am sure that most of us will find that we are giving an improporionately greater amount of time to transient pleasures of this life, than to work which shall contribute to the everlasting joys which are to come in what appears to be the not very far distant future.

It is possible to misuse time even in what appears to be the Lord's service. For instance, some people use the wrong method in attempting to spread the doctrine of Christ. They seek to force people to become Christians by causing them to be afraid of God, rather than to love Him. Others "cast their pearls before swine" by concentrating their time upon those who will have nothing to do with Christ's teachings.

However, we should not assume a contrary attitude and be "ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."—Rom. 1:16. Rather, we should be ever conscieous of the presence of Christ, endeavoring always to draw others to Him, by striving to live as He taught that we should, and by presenting the gospel to them in the best manner that we are able.

Bessie Blackwell, Los Angeles, Calif.

HOW ABRAHAM'S FAITH WAS TRIED

ABRAHAM had no children until he was one hundred years old, and then Isaac was born. He loved his only son with all his heart. God thought he would try Abraham's faith. So He asked him to offer up his only son as a sacrifice. So he was directed where to go, and how to do everything. And Abraham obeyed Him.

Abraham took Isaac up to the mountain. Isaac said to his father, "The fire and the wood are here, but where is the burnt offering?" And Abraham said, "God will provide a lamb for a burnt offering." So Abraham built an altar and laid wood in order and bound Isaac and laid him upon the wood. And he stretched his hand forth to slay his son.

The angel of the Lord called to Abraham and said, "Do not slay the lad." When Abraham looked around, he spied a ram caught in the bushes. So it was used for the sacrifice instead of Isaac.

God found in Abraham a faithful servant and made a wonderful promise to him, saying, "I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curse thee, and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

Paul tells us that if we are baptized into Christ, we will become Abraham's seed and inherit these promises.

Charlotte Rahn, Age 12, El Centro, Calif.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

THE young people's Berean class has an attendance of about twelve. The officers are as follows: president, Dale Rouch; vice president, Forest Stilson; secretary and treasurer, Gladys Boyle. The classes are held at the homes of the members, alternating each Sunday.

We have many good times together and at the same time we are learning more about God's Word. We had a contest with the memory verses. Everyone took a great interest and the contest was a tie. So we had a chicken dinner at one of the homes.

A Berean class, although small, helps us to keep on the path to God's kingdom.

Gladys Boyle, Sec.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 21; Ohio, 16; California, 9; Michigan, 8; Indiana, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; Missouri, 1; New York, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

SHARING WITH OTHERS

DURING the years immediately following the ascension of the Savior to heaven, His followers were very true to each other. Perhaps it was because the rulers of the land were so opposed to them, that they clung to each other so strongly. Anyway, they seemed to have more love for each other than we see sometimes between some Christians today.

Those that had farms or property of any kind sold them, and they all put the money together. And they didn't shut out those who didn't have anything to sell, but they took the poor ones in, and they all lived from this one fund. Everybody had enough; none, too much and none, too little.

Now, you know, living like that, there couldn't have been any "grabby" ones among them, or some would have had to suffer, wouldn't they? They had to stand so much abuse from those who didn't believe in Jesus that they all felt tender to each other and did only kind things to others. They tried hard to follow in the steps of the kind and loving Jesus, who always "went about doing good."

Among these early Christians in the town of Joppa, lived a woman whose name was Tabitha or in Greek, Dorcas. She must have been one whom everybody loved. For she was always doing a good deed for some poor, or lonely, or sick person. She was a beautiful seamstress, too, for she had made many coats and dresses for some of the poor widows who had no one to buy them for them.

And what do you think? One day she became very, very sick and finally she died. How lonely and sad all the Christians were, as they thought they would never see Dorcas again, nor hear her kind voice!

Now Peter was not very far away, in a little town called Lydda, where he had healed a lame man by the name of Aeneas, who had been sick in bed for eight years. The disciples had heard of the wonderful things Peter had done in the name of Christ, so they sent for him to come over to Joppa.

When Peter got there, he was taken to the home of Dorcas, to an upper room where she lay dead. Standing all around her were the folks for whom she had done so many kind deeds. The tears were streaming down their faces, as they showed Peter the garments made by the skillful fingers that were now so strangely still.

After talking to the sorrowing Christians a few minutes, Peter asked them all to go out. Next he closed the door and knelt down and prayed silently to God. Then he turned to Dorcas, cold in death, and said, "Tabitha, arise."

Immediately she opened her eyes and when she saw Peter, she sat up! He gave her his hand and helped her to her feet. Then he called all the sad and weeping Christians in and presented her to them—alive!

Imagine their joy at grasping once more the hand of their dear friend! Their tears were changed to smiles and words of thankfulness to God for His wonderful power in bringing her back to life.—M. G.

KINDNESS DURING LIFE

I would rather have one little rose
From the garden of a friend,
Than to have the choicest flowers,
When my stay on earth must end.

I would rather have one pleasant word,
In kindness said to me,
Than flattery when my heart is still
And life has ceased to be.

I would rather have a loving smile,
From friends I know are true,
Than tears shed round my casket,
When this world I've bid adieu.

Bring me all the flowers today,
Whether pink, or white, or red—
I'd rather have one blossom now,
Than a truckload when I'm dead.

—Author unknown.

THREE RULES: AND YOU'RE HAPPY

IT WAS at a Girls' Summer School, years ago, when one of the girls rose and said to Alice Freeman Palmer, who had been talking to them:

"Mrs. Palmer, you are always so cheerful and happy: will you tell us how we can be happy?"

"I will, dear," was the reply, "I will give you three simple rules: The first is this: Commit something good to memory every day. It needn't be much: three or four words will do, just a pretty bit of a poem, or a Bible verse.

"The second rule is: Look for something beautiful every day; and don't skip a day, or it won't work.

"My third rule is—now, mind, don't skip a day. Do something for somebody, every day. That is all there is to it, dear."—Selected.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 3. — July 19, 1931

SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH

Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-7; 9:36-39; 2 Corinthians 9:1-15

Devotional Reading: Psalm 112:5-10

GOLDEN TEXT

Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Christians Sharing With Others.

Basic Truth. "So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."—Rom. 12:5.

I. Christians Different. When God on the day of Pentecost "sealed with that holy Spirit of promise", Eph. 1:13, true followers of Christ, He sealed them for Himself. He took them out from the world equally as much as in Num. 3:41, 45 He took the Levites from among the children of Israel for Himself. As the Levites were "wholly given unto" God, Num. 8:16, 18, for service to Him, so are Christians taken out from the world and set aside for God and for God's service. Their relation to God is different than is the relation of the rest of mankind. By God the Christian church has been constituted a body by itself, called, 1 Cor. 12:27, "the body of Christ". And each member thereof is regarded as properly responsible to God and to every other member. 1 Cor. 12:26-28.

Therefore they are different. In a particular way they belong to God. In a particular way they must rely on God.

II. The Lord Will Provide. Abraham, a man wholly given to Jehovah, answering his son's question, Gen. 22:7, said, v. 8, "My son, God will provide himself a lamb." Obedient to God's direction, Abraham proceeded to the offering of Isaac, when God stayed the hand and provided a ram. "Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh", v. 14, margin, "The Lord will see (or) provide."

The same God still rules heaven and earth. Sometimes the sacrifice necessitated from God's people in behalf of the world allows of no release. But in the matter of caring for His own, the same God who provided Abraham with a ram, Israel with manna, the Savior with bread, is still powerful to provide.

III. Christian Duty. The Christian's constant duty is toward God. His work toward his fellows must be determined by the degree of service thus rendered to his Father. Jesus, Matt. 26:11, approved of the anointing with costly ointment, rather than contributing its worth to the poor, with the statement, "Ye have the poor always with you."

Poverty, as also great wars and financial depression, is the result of failure, somewhere, of true obedience to God.

Through the leadership of the apostles God revealed His power to fully provide for all needs of devoted Christians. All disclaimed personal ownership. All relied upon God. Provision was made for all.

Paul taught and practiced the same truths in his ministry. Each one gave to God's work as he personally recognized God as Owner. 2 Cor. 9.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The early church was of one mind and had all things in common. They bore one another's burdens. We are thus commanded. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." Gal. 6:2. Christian people should recognize each other's needs, and where want demands, supply the need. No man is entitled to two pair of shoes or two coats, when his brother in the church hasn't any. If the blessing of the Father endows us with a gift to sing, or pray, or speak, such a gift should be used to the uplifting of our brother. If God smiles upon us with a large measure of this world's goods, we should use it for the betterment of our co-laborer. True religion is assisting the poor, the widows and the fatherless in their affliction. James 1:27.

Our labors of mercy are not confined to "those of like precious faith", but they must reach out and supply the need, wherever it arises. "Do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." Gal. 6:10. The real joys of life are not to be found in receiving, but in giving. The Lord said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Acts 20:35. It may also be said, "It is more blessed to help than to be helped."

The persecution of the early church undoubtedly had a tendency to cement the members together. They needed the encouragement and help of each other. It is quite likely that the days preceding the translation of the church will be so troublesome that a closer bond and fellowship will be required.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35.

In these days of trying times one might say, "It is more blessed to be able to give and then do it, than it is to have to receive the necessities of life." We are told to "bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."—Gal. 6:2.

Christ came into the world not to receive, but to give. Though He had no worldly goods so far as we know, He was constantly giving of what He had. Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have, give I thee." What Peter gave through Christ was worth much more than any amount of silver and gold. Jesus, the Christ, gave still more. He gave His life for others.

Christ's love has taught us to love one another, and if we do this we will be willing to give as it has been given unto us. Many a blessing has no doubt been meted out because of the spirit of giving where it is needed. Christ set the example. Christians should follow.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Christians Sharing With Others

The early church at Jerusalem had all things in common, each one selling his property and depositing the revenue in a common chest to provide necessities for all in the church. This practice, it seems, was confined to Jerusalem and was never given as a command to other churches. The Jerusalem brethren may have sold their property to emphasize their new hope. Israelites were possessors of land and were forbidden to permanently dispossess themselves of their property. The church is to rule over the land but not possess it.

The early churches were willing to help the famine sufferers of Jerusalem, but this was not imposed as a command. Paul seems to teach very strongly in 1 Tim. 5 that the church is not under obligation to help any but widows over sixty years of age. "Let not a widow be enrolled less than sixty years old, having been the wife of one husband, well reputed for good works" (v. 9, Diag.). This applied only to those that were "widows indeed". "But if any widow has children or grandchildren, let these be taught first to be dutiful to their own family, and to render proper returns to their progenitors; for this is acceptable in the sight of God. But if any one provide not for his own relatives, and especially for his own family, he has denied the faith, and is worse than an unbeliever."—1 Tim. 5:4, 8, Diag.

By this it is evident that the duty of "sharing with others" rests upon the shoulders of individuals rather than upon the church.

—H. A. S.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Topic: Christians Sharing With Others.

This lesson follows immediately upon the lesson of last Sunday. Large numbers were now being obedient to the gospel. How were the needy cared for? Acts 4:32-37. When there is much work to do, how is the best way to get it done—leave it for anyone to do, or appoint certain ones to do it? How did the disciples proceed? Acts 6:3. Name the seven deacons who were appointed to look after the widows and those in need. V. 5.

Was it only the men who did the kind deeds in those days? Acts 9:36. Tell the story of Dorcas. Vv. 37-41. What was the result of this miracle? V. 42. Do you think the Lord especially blessed the church in those days? Acts 6:7. Can you see a reason for this? The hearts of the early disciples must have been filled with love for each other and also for all whom they met. They did not hoard up their wealth for their own selfish comfort and pleasure, but they used it for the good of others.

What can you do for others?—M. G.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30
Kansas, Arkansas City,	August 23 to 31

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

E. E. Giesler, pastor

The annual meeting of the Moorefield church will be held the second Sunday of July. There will be an all day meeting and dinner at noon in the church basement. Sunday School at ten o'clock. Morning worship at eleven. Business meeting at two-thirty in the afternoon and evening service at eight. Come, spend the day with us.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

Among the following classes you will find a place of benefit and interest:

Adult Class—teachers, Bros. Conner and Gordon.

Senior Young People—Bros. Austin and Lapp.

Junior Young People—Bros. Marsh and Gordon.

Intermediates—Bro. Thayer.

Primary—Sr. Thayer.

FROM HERE AND THERE

We are grieved to learn that Sr. Ida Murray, of Morton, Washington, a subscriber of many years, is no longer able to read her Herald because of failing sight. It makes us long for the return of the Great Physician.

July 11 and 12 are Bro. Lapp's regular appointment with the brethren at Ripley, Illinois. A hearty cooperation is always found among the Ripley folks, and we are sure this month will be no exception. You will be uplifted by attendance at these services.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone will be with the Lawrenceville (Ohio) church on July 12 at their all day meeting. The brethren of Indiana and Ohio have lent their encouragement to Bro. LeCrone in a most hearty manner and they write that they have enjoyed his sermons very much.

The weather having grown too chilly at Oregon, Bro. Austin migrated to a warmer clime and left on July 7 for Riviera, Texas, to assist the brethren with their conference and Bible School. During his absence, Bro. Paul Hatch will speak for the Oregon brethren on July 12, and Bro. J. R. LeCrone on July 19.

The Dixon brethren were very happily surprised to have Bro. and Sr. Marsh and Arlen, of Los Angeles, arrive in time for morning service on July 5, on their way to the Indiana Conference. And they gladdened the Oregon folks with their presence at the evening service. Accompanying them is Sr. Olive Wood, who with Sr. Marsh, will visit with Bro. and Sr. J. H. Williams and Sr. Sue Williams, while Bro. Marsh and son attend the conference.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper,	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25	Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St.	Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.

RENEWED ACTIVITIES AT ELDORADO

We are very glad to report that the brethren at Eldorado have reorganized their Sunday School and will meet regularly again. Bro. Walter Wiggins is superintendent; Bro. Fred Shain, assistant and Sr. Madalin Davenport, secretary-treasurer. They have taken heart since Bro. Lapp has been with them and we trust that the renewed interest will continue to grow and be the means of building up a strong congregation at Eldorado.

INDIANA STATE BEREAN MEETING

The Indiana State Berean business meeting will be held Wednesday evening at six-thirty, July 15th. Mrs. Pearl Zecheil, president.

INDIANA REPORT FOR JUNE

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem (at Plymouth), 1; Burr Oak, 1; Hillisburg, 1.

Baptisms, 2. Marriages, 2.

Money received: Pleasant View, $8.50; Rensselaer, $30.00; Plymouth, $15.00; Burr Oak, $10.00; Hillisburg, $47.00; Conference Board, $2.00. Expense, $14.50.

Note: On June 21 we had the pleasure of baptizing Cecil Kidd and John Kidd of Lucerne, at Plymouth. These young men were led to take this step by Sr. M. Fetters, who is one of our faithful workers. In February and March the Hillisburg church fell behind in their support of the state work. So on June 28 Bro. Plummer, our church treasurer, paid $25.00 for June and $22.00 for February and March. This makes the Hillisburg church square with the Conference Board.

J. H. Anderson.

THOSE MAPS

Don't overlook the back page of this issue, announcing valuable gifts in exchange for new yearly subscriptions. These have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and Bible classes. By banding together your class may obtain a valuable map, with only a little effort from each.

REPORT FROM KOKOMO

The Kokomo brethren have again received a feast of good things, for which we are indeed thankful. Bro. S. J. Lindsay closed a week's meetings last Sunday night, with a very instructive "Signs of the Times" discourse. Bro. Richard LeCrone came with Bro. Lindsay and stopped over until Thursday morning, being forced to hasten on to his appointment at South Bend. Bro. LeCrone spoke for us Tuesday night, bringing to us some beautiful thoughts from the types of Israel's wandering. We were glad to meet Bro. LeCrone and were sorry to see him leave. Bro. J. H. Anderson and children were with us two nights, Bro. Anderson driving over from Hillisburg to meet with his old friend and collaborer, Bro. Lindsay.

While there were no additions to the fold, we have been greatly blessed and strengthened by these services, to carry on in our humble way the work of the Master. We hope to meet with Bro. Lindsay again soon.

The industrial conditions here seem to be growing worse, but we have the promise that the Father will provide for our every need. While at times everything seems dark from the human standpoint, we rejoice in the hope of the soon return of our Lord, to speak peace to the troubled earth.

In His service,

D. G. Harvey.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

An unusual blessing has recently come to the Church of God at Eden Valley during a series of meetings conducted by Elder Patrick of Ashland, Ohio.

These meetings began on Sunday, June 7, and continued through Friday, June 19. In this time the annual Minnesota Conference convened for four days, and many of even our oldest members declared it to be the best conference they had ever attended. Several ministers were present and assisted in the preaching; Elders Patrick and Randall, however, carried the leading responsibilities.

Following the Conference sessions the interest continued well, and Bro. Patrick's efforts among us have been a godsend. Eighteen were baptized during this series of meetings. They are nearly all young people of high school age, and their addition to the church should be a big factor of encouragement to the church in a time when some have become discouraged. The names of those baptized follow: Glen Bennett, Gordan Thoms, Lynn Green, Marjorie Ruhn, Mrs. Eunice Otto, Norma Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Idella Tritabaugh, Ivan Mills, Elmer Wood, Loraine Brossard, Lucille Brossard, Norma Liestman, Edna Edwards, Robert Flesland, Elmo Gaspar, Ernest Driver, Nadine Tritabaugh, Harold Kirkpatrick.

We pray that these may remain in the fold of Christ.

Elder Sydney E. Magaw, pastor.

TO OUR CLUB MEMBERS

To those who are members of our dollar-a-month club and who are faithfully sending in their pledges each month during these strenuous times, we wish to express our appreciation. One sister, in sending in her contribution, writes that she considers that God's work comes before anything else, and that these trying times are all the more reason for the Christian to redouble his efforts. The Lord always rewards hearty, sincere service to Him.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

Another season of studying God's Word in Bible School and meetings has passed into history, and we will say that every one that attended was well repaid with the truths that we gathered while together. Bro. S. J. Lindsay and Bro. Richard LeCrone, both of Oregon, Illinois, Bro. LeCrone one of the young men from the Bible Training Class, were the teachers. Bro. Lyon from Cleveland was also with us a few days, and spoke to us one evening, and with his inspiring songs added much to the meeting.

Bro. Lindsay taught the adult class. We studied Revelation, first going to the Old Testament which was very interesting and profitable. Bro. Lindsay impressed us with the necessity of studying our Bibles daily, that we might be the faithful servants and escape the time of trouble that is surely coming.

Bro. LeCrone taught the young people's class. Their study was on the life of the children of Israel and was well given. The three discourses he gave surely ought to impress the young people with the importance of living clean lives and presenting themselves to the Master for service.

We also had the pleasure of having Bro. Philip Curtis and family, of Louisville, Kentucky, Bro. and Sr. Roscoe Dunbar and son, Glen, and Sr. Etta Elton of Delta, Ohio, as our guests, which always adds to a meeting.

The special music which was rendered by the male quartet, and the solos and duets were much appreciated by all.

Sunday, June 14, our annual all day meeting, which is always looked forward to, when the Springfield brethren unite with us, brought to a close our season of worship which will long be remembered by all and cause us to strive more zealously that we might be true lights of the gospel.

Edna Brewer, Sec.

THE WORK AT PUYALLUP

On June 26th, Mr. Forrest Olson and Sr. Elna Petersen were united in marriage at our home in Puyallup. The groom is an industrious young man, and he lives on a farm near Sumner, Washington. The bride is a graduate stenographer who lately has been making her home with us.

There is quite an interesting romance connected with their marriage. Both were students at business college in Tacoma, where our son Earl was taking a secretarial course. Earl had many very interesting talks with the students on Bible subjects. As a result of his teaching these two young people became very much interested in the gospel of the kingdom, and later on they attended our church services in Puyallup, with the result that Sr. Elna was obedient in baptism on May 10th.

They were united in marriage on June 26th, and on June 28th Bro. Forrest, after making the good confession, was obedient in baptism. So the young people are starting out in life together, with the Word of God to guide them. May it lead them to the safe harbor of the kingdom of God.

This is a beautiful example of how bread, sown upon the waters, will not return void, though we do not always see such immediate results. Earl is now in Los Angeles, doing secretarial work, but the seed that was sown by him has taken deep root in the minds and hearts of these two young people, leading to the glorious result of their giving their lives into the hands of their Lord.

Sunday evening a surprise party was held at our house by a company of the church people and friends, to offer congratulations and well wishes for their future happiness. A few games were played; then the whole company engaged in singing some of the beautiful songs of the kingdom. For the present the happy couple will reside on the farm of the bridegroom's father, near Sumner.

On Sunday May 31st, Bro. George Bond, after making his confession of faith in the gospel, was baptized into the body of Christ, in Clark's Creek. Bro. Bond has been a member of the Christian Church, but hearing the good news of the kingdom, and life only in Christ, he was gladly obedient to his Lord. May we all be faithful, for the coming of the Lord is very near.

A. L. Corbaley.

NIAGARA FALLS AND FONTHILL

On Sunday morning, June 28th, a baptismal service was held at the Falls church at which time six were baptized into Christ Jesus. We rejoice with the angels of heaven over the conversion of these precious souls. We expect others to follow their example before long. The names and addresses are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Velmer Bousfield and two sons, Gordon and Orlin, of Wellandport, Ontario, and Mrs. Kenneth Moore of Ransomville, New York. We pray the Father's blessing to rest upon these new members.

The church at the Falls is looking neat and clean with its new coat of paint, and anyone passing by will readily know what church it is by the new, large and beautiful sign.

Dr. and Mrs. Lent took a week end trip to Cleveland, spending the time with his brother.

Sr. Shea was away for a fortnight in Pennsylvania, visiting with her daughter.

Bro. and Sr. Weldon and daughter, Irene, have returned from Preston Springs Sanitarium, where Bro. and Sr. Weldon have been receiving treatments. Both are somewhat improved, but will require several months of rest to bring them back to their former condition.

Bro. and Sr. Wm. Platts spent a few days' vacation in a camp near Windsor. A number of our people have cut loose from the busy activities of life, making trips to various parts of the province.

The Fonthill choir has discontinued weekly practice during the months of July and August.

Sr. Marr's son, Rhodus, and family, from near Brownsville, Texas, have been visiting with their mother for the last month.

A CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank all the dear friends, brothers, and sisters that so kindly remembered me in my recent illness, with plants, flowers, cards, also many with their presence. It all helps to cheer up a sick room.

I wish to express many thanks also to our kind matron and to the members of the Home. All did their share well—God bless them all, and keep us all in the love of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus, that when He appears we may be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. This is the prayer of your humble sister in Christ,

Mary M. Renner.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Now that another very successful Michigan conference is over, the local church is settling down to its regular program of activity. This includes choir practice on Wednesdays; Berean and prayer service Thursday; orchestra practice Friday; besides the Sunday meetings of Sunday School at ten o'clock, with sermons at eleven and seven-thirty.

The pastor and family were pleased on June 27 to have Bro. and Sr. McGraw of Macomb, Illinois, stop for a brief visit while passing through Michigan.

The first of our Sunday special features for the hot months has been prepared for July 5 by Sr. Townsend's class. It is called Flag Day, and some elaborate flag drills have been prepared. Next Sunday, July 12, is to be Music Day, and the pastor is in charge for the special feature. These are presented by using the last fifteen minutes of the Sunday School hour.

F. E. Siple, pastor.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Friends in Christ: I have enjoyed The Restitution Herald very much. There are so many good things printed in it. I wish some of the good thoughts and our doctrine could be broadcast over the radio, so the world would know of the gospel of the kingdom as we believe it.

May God and His blessed Son be with you all. I wish I could do more for the Church of God, but will ever pray that I will be worthy when our Savior comes.

With Christian love and best wishes, your sister in the hope of the coming King, Jesus Christ,

Fannie S. Knight, 354 E. Kinley Ave., Sunnyvale, Calif.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Carl F. Stuhler; I. C. McChesney; Mrs. Sarah Austin; Mrs. Geo. J. Rahn; Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Fannie S. Knight; Chas. Lapp; Mrs. Margaret Allen; Mrs. Roland Cox; Cecil A. Smead.

Checks for the interest of Annuity Bonds were mailed out on June 29th. All Annuity Bond holders should have received their checks before this reaches them.

Checks in payment of the coupons of first mortgage on Golden Rule Greenhouse, due June 30th, are being mailed duly as the coupons are received.

Grading for the new state highway, No. 77, across the National Bible Institution farm property is proceeding.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS ATTENTION

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

FOR YOU — FOR YOUR CLASS
FOR YOUR SCHOOL

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Explain the little Maps which we give Free to each New Subscriber. They are valuable helps.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1. Who will be the first to win one of these fine Maps?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

MAPS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Individual Maps to Subscribers. Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1-2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 14, 1931

NUMBER 41

“STRENGTHEN THY BRETHREN”

By Lottie E. Young

MEN and women need company, and so God put two together in the Garden of Eden. We need each other for sympathy in time of sorrow, and the enjoyment of pleasure is enhanced by the companionship of someone. Jesus chose twelve men of entirely different characters to be those with whom He should live and teach while He was upon earth, and very human they were, even after years of close acquaintance with the Master.

Peter and Andrew, James and John—it is easy starting off the names of the disciples by these two sets of brothers. Andrew's greatest help to the cause of Christ would seemingly be the introduction of his brother Peter to the Master; while James has retained his place as being the first to suffer a martyr's death—the first of those who accompanied Jesus in His journeyings up and down the land of Palestine. We always think of John as the man of quiet, contemplative, loving heart, who seemed a little closer to Jesus than the rest of His followers; but we know ourselves better after we have studied the character of Peter thoroughly.

Is a question asked? It is Peter who answers it. It is Peter who takes it. It is Peter who gives Jesus the reply He longs for when He asks the disciples, “Whom do men say that I, the Son of man, am?” in the exclamation, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.” And it is the same Peter, who, after protesting that he would go to prison and death for the loved Master, afterwards emphatically denies Him.

See him stepping out boldly on the tossing water in response to the “come” of Jesus. Look at him shedding bitter tears after a glance from the Sufferer had shown him how weak he was. Yes, Peter was very much like the rest of mankind in his impulsive waywardness, having more zeal than knowledge. He justified the Lord's warning, “When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.”

Did that conversion ever take place? The answer to this is found in the Book of Acts, when, after the baptism of the Holy Spirit, Peter was enabled to preach a sermon which pricked the hearts of many and made them say, “Men and brethren, what shall we do?” resulting in three thousand called to be followers of Christ. His timidity was gone, when he could tell the elders of Israel that they had killed the Prince of Life, and when warned not to mention the name of Jesus he could reply, “We ought to obey God rather than men.”

There is no doubt Peter was truly converted, or “turned around”, from his wayward impulsiveness. But did he do what the Lord told him as to strengthening the brethren?

After reading the letters he wrote to those who had become Christians and were scattered over a wide territory, to whom he had doubtless preached (there is no mention of Peter ever having been in Italy, the Roman Catholic Church to the contrary), one will note their main design was to comfort these men and women in severe afflictions.

We talk “hard times” now, if we cannot have as many luxuries and pleasures as we have been used to. But the word “persecutions” is rarely justified nowadays, even though our friends and neighbors may give us the cold shoulder, or silence us when we want to tell them about the Blessed Hope. Peter speaks in these epistles about the necessity of earthly trials so that their faith “might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ”; he exhorts them to lead holy lives, and gives much practical advice as to their duty in various relations of life.

But in the first epistle, 5:10, after having done all he can to strengthen them, he commends them to “the God of all grace” to make them “perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you.” Is not that a splendid combination of “s's”? But a fourth one is also mentioned—“after that ye have suffered a while”. So it would seem that suffering, both mental and physical, is needed before we can be true followers of the One who was tempted and tried in all points.

Was this command to “strengthen thy brethren” given only to Peter, or does it apply to us in this latter day? Are

(Continued on page 650)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name?"—From the Song of the Redeemed. Rev. 15:3, 4.

A DAY OF ACHIEVEMENT

WE HAVE long since ceased to wonder at some of the accomplishments of today, so accustomed have we grown to the realization of events which a few years ago were dreams. Ever since Magellan, in 1519, set sail on his attempted circumnavigation of the globe, men have dreamed of, and dared, and accomplished the task, each in a shorter space of time than his predecessor.

And meanwhile, the time consumed in circling the earth has been reduced from two years to a little less than nine days—the record recently achieved by two brave aviators. Think of it! across two trackless oceans and over three vast continents in eight days, fifteen hours and fifty-one minutes!

Man has acquired the skill and the means to do things his ancestors only dreamed of. And man will continue to dare and do, setting new records in every field of endeavor, in ever-increasing numbers.

But—who gives man the brain to conceive the possibility of accomplishing these wonders? the skill for the performance of the task? the courage necessary for endurance to completion?

Truly, great and marvelous are Thy works, Lord God!

And how it thrills the faithful heart to know that, not a few only, but ere long "all nations shall come and worship" before Him, and shall give Him the honor, and the acclaim, saying,

"Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."—M. G.

BUT A DAY OF DISTRESS ALSO

LOOKING at the brilliant achievements of man today, we would not be honest if we did not admit of a reverse side to the picture. His skillful inventions have carried man farther and deeper into the dark and tortuous paths of sin, in his use of these same manifestations of his cunning.

Were he to use these devices merely for the upbuilding and benefit of the race, what remarkable strides forward could be made in every field of endeavor, resulting only in good. But man is by nature selfish, grasping, sinful, and in his greed of gain he loses sight of the suffering of his fellow man, trampling upon him ruthlessly.

All of this, together with other contributing like factors, has brought about the deep distress which we see on every hand. Man's dexterity has rebounded upon himself, working hardship upon him, bringing havoc and ruin in its wake.

Not until man is brought to a realization of his sinfulness and his inability to rise above it by his own efforts will these conditions be erased. Not until One comes with authority unquestioned, shall crime, avarice, iniquity be checked. Until that time we know that "there shall be great distress in the land", "men's hearts failing them for fear", and "great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time". Matt. 24 and Luke 21.

Should all of this cause us to lose heart and fail in faith to our heavenly Father? Not at all! Rather the reverse. Because we know that there is One soon coming who can speak peace to the troubled nations and bring joy to the distressed of earth, "we look not at the things which are seen", 2 Cor. 4:18, and our hearts are directed "into the love of God, and into patient waiting for Christ". 2 Thessalonians 3:5.—M. G.

THE IMPORTANCE OF YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL

THE church is God's institution of the present day for choosing out and fitting a people who will grow and develop in faith toward Him and His Son. Those who will aid Him in bringing order out of the chaos among nations, righteousness instead of wickedness, peace to supplant war, are those of His church who are directing their energies to the work of teaching His gospel today to those who are so sorely in need of it.

"The Feeder of the Church"—such has the Sunday School been termed by writers and speakers the country over. And how true it is! The leaders in the prime of life today, are the middle aged of tomorrow—those who have lost their first enthusiasms. The middle-aged today are the aged tomorrow—the ones who live in the past, not the present.

The ones who will take the places left vacant by the leaders and workers tomorrow, are those of the Sunday School—those who are just taking their first steps in the paths of Christian activity. They are the ones who are being prepared today, who are catching their first glimpses of Christian opportunity through the eyes of Sunday School teachers and leaders.

How important, then, to the future of the church is the nurture of the children of the community in a well organized Sunday School. And of greatest importance to YOU is the recognized existence of such a school in YOUR church.

To bring this about necessitates the careful selection of leaders and teachers truly consecrated to God, in whose lives a child may see reflected the Christ spirit, and because of whom he may desire, above all else, to follow that same Master.

For the most effectual application of the efforts of such sincere workers, the best equipment will be procured to aid them in attaining the results they are earnestly seeking, with God's help, to bring about. Nothing that will eventually bring honor to our heavenly Father is too good as a means to that end, a thorough study of the Book of books being of course the prime requisite. The aids that other Sunday School leaders have found helpful in teaching the way of salvation to young minds need not be spurned by the best prepared leaders among us.

Let us look to our Sunday Schools. How many of us have seen a church die out simply because it had no youth—no feeder—no Sunday School. And how many of the children of our own members attending other Sunday Schools!

But the church with growing classes of young folks and children, a corps of Christian teachers and leaders, will be the solid, progressing church of tomorrow, with God's blessings attending.

Pastor, elder, deacon, layman, all—interest yourself in your Sunday School.—M. G.

THE RESURRECTION HOPE

THE expectancy of a bodily resurrection runs backward in the literature of the people of God, for long centuries. Abraham believed in the ability of God to raise the dead, as evidenced in his offering of his son, Isaac, upon the altar. While his arm was stayed from taking the life of his son, yet inspiration assures us that he believed that God would raise him up from the dead, from whence he received him in a figure (Heb. 11:19). That he planned to slay his son in obedience to what he considered the call of God, and to burn the body to ashes there can be no doubt; for even the fire and the wood were taken to the top of the mount. From that handful of ashes Abraham expected that God would resurrect and restore Isaac, so that when he went down from that mountain and rejoined the servants at the base of the mountain, Isaac would be with him. No other expectation can be drawn from the instructions given to the servants when he and Isaac left them. "Abide ye here with the ass and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you" (Gen. 22:5).

The faith of David is to be seen in his saying: "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness" (Psa. 17:15), at which time he expected to behold the face of God. Job's saying makes it equally clear that he too expected to have a share in the experience of resurrection, when he said: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me" (Job 19:27).

Isaiah believed in the resurrection of the dead as is shown in his wonderful statement in chapter 26:19. "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."

The power of God to raise the dead to life has been manifested. The Old Testament incidents of the restoring of life to those who had once passed into the death state, as well as similar incidents in the ministry of Jesus and of the apostles, are but samples of the power of divine omnipotence to restore to life those who had already yielded up the life spark and fallen into the death state. If it be objected that in all these cases, the bodily organs had not become disintegrated, but were intact, we have but to point out the scriptural fact that the first man was "formed of the dust of the ground". And even if we allow that those who have been dead for hundreds and thousands of years have returned to dust again, yet the reforming of that dust into the human form and the imparting of the breath of life or the power of an endless life, makes no greater demand upon the power of God than did the creation of the first man.

What has been done surely can be repeated. If one wishes to sidestep the biblical story of man's origin, then we have no argument with such. Let him believe what he will. The burden of proof is for him to show that the process was otherwise than as stated in the Genesis record; and until he has done this, his idea of creation should not be entertained.

The resurrection is due to take place at the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. Men may spiritualize the
(Continued on page 650)

THY BLESSING, O LORD, ON ALL VACATION DAYS

Thy blessing, Lord, on all vacation days;
For weary ones who seek the quiet ways,
Fare forth beyond the thunder of the street,
The marvel of Emmaus Road repeat;
Thy comradeship so graciously bestow
Their hearts shall burn within them as they go.

Grant those who turn for healing to the sea
May find the faith that once by Galilee
Flamed brighter than the glowing fire of coals.
And when Thou hast refreshed their hungry souls,
Speak the old words again, beside the deep,
Bid all who love Thee, Master, feed Thy sheep!

Be Thou with those who bide where mountains rise,
Where yearning earth draws nearest to the skies!
Give them the peace, the courage that they ask,
New strength to face the waiting valley task,
New light to lead through shrouding valley haze!
Thy blessing, Lord, on all vacation days!—Selected.

GOD'S TENTH

IN TOUCHING the question of giving, or paying, we touch the most vital point pertaining to the consecration and spiritual power of the church. In saying this, we speak from experience, as we certainly speak according to Scripture.

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Mal. 3:10. Here, plainly, the payment of tithes is made the condition not only of an abundant outpouring of the Spirit, but temporal blessings are definitely promised in the succeeding verse. "And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts."

Prayer, testimony, effort, self-denial—how often do we hear these duties mentioned as summing up and fulfilling the requirement of tithes! But "tithes" means money or other property of equivalent value, and the effusion of God's Spirit and material prosperity is here made contingent upon bringing in these tithes and paying up these dues to God.

A tenth of his income was required of the Jew to be set apart, and sacredly devoted to God's treasury. And this was the first tenth, and not the last tenth; the firstfruits, not the dregs and leavings. And while the amount is not specified in the New Testament, the same principle is carried over. "Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him."

Here is consecrated giving—laying by in store—a certain sum set apart, and made sacred to God's use, and which thereafter one should no more think of using for himself that he would think of taking the same sum from his neighbor's pocket. And here is proportionate giving—"as God hath prospered him." Ought the proportion to be any less under the gospel than under the law? Surely not, when we remember that we have, as our Exemplar, One who, "though he was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we, through his poverty, might be rich."

In the light of such high standards, who can say that at least we ought not to give one-tenth of our income to the Lord's work?

If any Christian who has never tried it will make the experiment, conscientiously following it through to the end, in prosperity and in adversity, we predict for him two surprises. First, he will be astonished at the increased amount which he is enabled by this method to give to the Lord's work, and, secondly, he will be astonished at the increased spiritual and temporal prosperity which the Lord will give to him. For observe that here is an instance where the Lord actually makes a challenge to His people, and sets up a test case, saying, "Prove me now."

Taking this scripture in connection with others, we find that there are two points to be demonstrated in this connection:

First—That faithful and proportionate giving will be rewarded with super-abundant spiritual blessing. The statement does not require proof, since experience has stamped it already as an axiom. Other things being equal, the Christian who opens the broadest outlet for charity will find the widest inlet for the Spirit. The health of a human body depends upon its exhalations as well as upon its inhalations.

It is reported that a boy who was to impersonate a shining cherub in a play, on being covered with a coating of gold-leaf, which entirely closed the pores of the skin, died in consequence, before relief could be afforded. Woe to the Christian who gets so gold-leafed over with his wealth that the pores of his sympathy are shut, and the outgoings of his charity restrained. He is thenceforth dead spiritually, though he may have a name to live.

Second—That faithful and proportionate giving, which is another name for tithing, will be rewarded with abundant temporal prosperity. This is a saying hard to be received, but it has the emphatic support of Scripture.

"Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine". Prov. 3:9, 10. This is but one specimen of many from the Old Testament.

"Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom". Luke 6:38. Do we believe these words of our Lord, and can we question that they refer to abundant temporal returns in recompense for abundant giving?—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

Some Sunday School Reviews

The following were written for the Review Lesson by some of the members of the King's Daughters Class of the Oregon, Illinois, Sunday School. Their average age is twelve years. We will be glad to hear from other Sunday School pupils also.

JESUS IN THE HOME OF ZACCHAEUS

JESUS passed through Jericho, and there was a man named Zacchaeus, who was chief among the tax collectors, and he was rich. He was anxious to see who Jesus was, but he could not for the crowd, because he was little of stature. And so he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see Him, for He was to pass that way.

When Jesus came to the place, He looked up, and saw him, and said to him, "Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down; for to day I must abide at thy house."

He made haste and came down, and received Jesus joyfully. When they all saw it, they murmured, saying, "He is gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner."

Zacchaeus said to the Lord, "Behold, Lord, I will give the half of my goods to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man, I will restore him fourfold."

And Jesus said to him, "This day is salvation come to this house. For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Iva Reynolds.

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

AFTER teaching Zacchaeus, Jesus gave a parable to those standing by, because they thought the kingdom of God would soon appear. He said there was a certain rich man who went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and return. And he called his ten servants and gave them each a pound, saying to them, "Occupy till I come."

But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying: "We will not have this man to reign over us." And when he returned, he again called his ten servants to him that he might know how much each man had gained in trading.

The first came, saying, "Lord, thy pound has gained me ten pounds."

His master said, "Well, thou good servant, because you have been faithful in a little, I shall give you authority over ten cities."

The second servant came, saying, "Lord, thy pound has gained five pounds." Then the Lord gave him authority over ten cities.

Another came, saying, "Lord, here is thy pound. I have kept it wrapped up, because I know that thou art an austere man, taking up what thou layedst not down, reaping what thou didst not sow."

His master said, "From thine own words will I judge thee, wicked servant. You knew I was an austere man.

Why did you not take the money to the bank, so at my return I might have my own with usury?"

He also said to those standing by, "Take the money from him, and give it to the one who has ten pounds."

They objected, saying, "Lord, he has already ten pounds."

And the Master replied, "Unto every one which hath shall be given, and from him that hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken away."

Rosalie Carpenter.

THE RESURRECTION

PAUL said, "Believe in the gospel and believe not in vain. For if we believe, we shall be saved." Christ died and was raised as the Scriptures foretold. Had He not risen, our belief and preaching would have been in vain.

He rose on the third day and was seen by Cephas, and then by the twelve disciples. Later He was seen by five hundred people, by James and all the apostles. It was during His talk with the disciples that He departed to heaven to sit on the right hand of God. This all came to pass, as the Bible said.

Our mortal bodies cannot inherit the kingdom of God, nor can we inherit eternal life, only through Jesus Christ. We shall not all die, but on the day of the resurrection we shall be changed from mortals to immortals, and the dead shall be raised.

Therefore we all thank God, who has given us the ability to learn the Bible, which shows the way we may obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. So let us be steadfast, unmoveable, and always abound in the work of the Lord, for we know our labor is not in vain, and our reward shall be everlasting life.

Viola Koontz.

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM

JESUS sent for two of His disciples. He told them to go into the village, where they would find a colt tied. No man had ever ridden this colt. And if any man should ask them why they were loosing the colt, they should tell him that "the Lord had need of him."

When they reached the place, they found it as He had said. As they were loosing the colt, the owner said, "Why do you untie my colt?" And they said, "The Lord hath need of him."

They brought him to Jesus. They put their garments upon the colt, and Jesus mounted upon him. As He went, they spread their clothes in the way.

When He was near the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works they had seen, saying, "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord. Peace in heaven and glory in the highest!"

Some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said to Him, "Master, rebuke thy disciples." But He said to them, "I tell you that if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out."

And when He was near, He saw the city and wept over it, saying, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they are hid from thine eyes."

He went into the temple, and the chief priests and the scribes tried to accuse Him, but they could not find anything against Him, for all the people were very attentive to hear Him.

Lois Carpenter.

THE HIDDEN MYSTERY

By Charles Martin

WHEN Adam and Eve were driven out of the Garden of Eden and death was their punishment, God expressed His plan to again restore them and their seed to the garden, if they would obey and be faithful to Him. He was to destroy death and deliver them by someone.

Who is the Deliverer? It was so long a mystery and it has not been understood by God's people for so long a time. It was four thousand years before anyone except God knew who it was who should be our Deliverer. Now let us stop and study to see who it was.

From the time our first parents were driven from Eden or God's kingdom till two thousand years afterward nothing happened. At this time God made a covenant with Abraham, and said that by him and his children should the earth be blessed. Is God planning to fulfill the promise? No, it is not time yet. Abraham and Sarah are now old and have no children, and so Ishmael is born. He is not the chosen one. In due time Isaac is born, the child of hope, as his name denotes.

Now it seems the promised deliverer and king has arrived. But Isaac died and still God's promise is not fulfilled. Jacob also died. A few still held faith and were sustained by God. 1 Chron. 16:16, 17. The descendants of Abraham were now called the twelve tribes of Israel and recognized as God's chosen people. Gen. 49:28.

Now it seems as if God's promise will be fulfilled, for by Egyptian favor they become a strong nation. But hope is lost when they are taken into slavery. When Moses, a great deliverer came and led them out of Egypt and performed miracles for them, has the time come? Moses died, and so was not the one. Then Joshua, whose name means Deliverer or Savior, became their leader. He led them into Canaan.

Now it seems that God's promise is to be fulfilled. But Joshua died, and then the nation stood still. David and Solomon were the next leaders who led them to the height of their power. Still the promised king has not appeared, because they were scattered among the nations of the world. Some still trust God and await Him.

At the time Christ was born they were expecting Him, not as a child but as a man of glory and strength. So as He was a child, nothing was thought about the prophecies relating to His sufferings and His death before He could be the King of kings. We find the type of this in the passover and the giving of the law covenant. Heb. 9:11-20; 10:8-16. They also overlooked the glory which was to follow His death. 1 Peter 1:11. As they did not know Jesus, they knew not the time of their visitation. Luke 19:44.

His followers were perplexed when He died, as we see in Luke 24:21. When He was resurrected, they regained hope that the prophecy would now be fulfilled. 1 Peter 1:3. Turn to Acts 1:6, 7 to see what He said to them, when they asked Him when the kingdom was to be set up. He also said He had many things to tell them, but not at that time. John 16:12, 13; 14:22. In Acts 11:9; Gal. 2:2, 12, 14, they found that it referred to the original covenant. Jesus tells them to go to the heathen or Gentile nations. Acts 15:14-16. Paul declares in Col. 1:27 that the mystery is now made manifest to the saints. So now the mystery is partly solved.

God's plan will not remain a mystery forever. Read Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:11, 12; Matt. 12:43. Let us rejoice and obey the Lord. Rev. 10:17 and Eph. 3:9 tell us of the greatness of this mystery. It has been a mystery for six thousand years. During that time men have been expecting and hoping for the fulfillment of God's promise. So let us live a life of love, devotion and faith in our God, so that we shall be made of the seed of Abraham and heirs according to the promise, those in whom the earth shall be blessed.

VICTORY

By Elizabeth Louise May

Oh Death! where is thy bitter sting?
 Where, Grave, thy triumph now?
 The bitter sting of Death is Sin,
 Grave's victory, the Law.
 Thou shalt, shalt not, to us were given,
 Commands oft disobeyed;
 We fail e'en in our thoughts of Heaven;
 Heedless of law, thus made.

Shall we still give to Sin the boast?
 A triumphant victory
 O'er weaknesses, a mighty host?
 Christ's pitying eye doth see
 Our every effort—great or small—
 Our groveling natures make,
 To purer, holier lives of grace;
 His own He'll ne'er forsake.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER

By Lyman Booth

IN THE gospels and in the first part of the Acts of the Apostles, Peter appears as the most prominent apostle. He was of Bethsaida (John 1:44), a town on the west coast of the Sea of Galilee, and a fisherman by occupation (Matt. 4:18; Mark 1:16; Luke 5:3, 4). He was brought to Christ by his brother, Andrew, at the very beginning of our Lord's ministry. To his original name of Simon, our Lord added Cephas (Kepha), an Aramic word meaning, Rock, of which the Greek word is Petros, Peter.

Peter became one of the most intimate disciples of Christ. We find him with James and John on the Mount of Transfiguration and in the Garden of Gethsemane. He showed his zeal for his Master by drawing his sword and cutting off the ear of the high priest's servant (John 18:10). He was always ready to proclaim his faith in Christ. Notwithstanding his ardent zeal and strong faith, the fear of death so far prevailed over him that in the palace of the high priest, after the arrest of Christ, he thrice denied any knowledge of his Master, and at his third denial he began to curse and swear (Mark 14:66-71).

After the ascension of the Lord, in the first general assembly of the believers in Jerusalem, Peter calls attention to the necessity of appointing an eyewitness of the life of Christ to take the apostleship of Judas. On the day of Pentecost he preached the gospel to the Jews of Jerusalem. After this he healed a lame man, and preached to the assembled crowd; he rebuked the hypocrisy of Ananias and Sapphira; he was imprisoned, but released by an angel.

Later he was sent with John to Samaria, where he came in contact with Simon, the magician. In his travels he visited Lydda, where he healed Eneas, sick of the palsy. At Joppa he raised Dorcas from the dead. We next find him preaching to Cornelius, by which act he opened the door of salvation to the Gentiles. Next he was arrested and imprisoned but released by an angel. He is mentioned several times by Paul in his epistle to the Galatians. At the close of Peter's first epistle, he sends a salutation from the church of Babylon on the Euphrates, from which we judge that he was there.

Much information concerning this Apostle has been conveyed by tradition and by ecclesiastical history; but a large portion of this is absolutely incorrect and out of harmony with the Acts of the Apostles and many things in Paul's epistles. The pretensions of the church and the bishop of Rome, as grounded on these records and tradition, are so absurd and extravagant as to deserve little notice.

It is not absolutely certain that Peter ever was at Rome, though it is highly probable that he went there toward the close of his life, and that he was there put to death by crucifixion, at or near the same time that Paul, as a Roman citizen, was beheaded during Nero's persecution.

He wrote this epistle to the Christians in the different provinces of Asia Minor. Many have endeavored to prove that as the Apostle of the circumcision, he addressed Jewish converts only. But Peter was distinguished, not only as the chief preacher to the Jews on the day of Pentecost, but also as the first preacher to the Gentiles. And as Paul, the Apostle of the uncircumcision, wrote to the Hebrews and in all his epistles addressed Jewish as well as Gentile converts, we may well suppose that Peter addressed Gentile as well as Jewish converts. The contrary opinion is founded on some passages in the epistle which are capable of another interpretation; but the Apostle's language in other places cannot agree with it.

(To be continued)

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.
(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

THE GOOD SHEPHERD

When perilous paths my thoughts pursue,
 And what is false and what is true
 Escape my straining sight,
 When baffling clouds of mystery hide,
 The upward peaks, be Thou my Guide,
 O Shepherd of the Height.

When dreary lies the level road,
 When bare the flats, and sore the load,
 And every mile seems twain,
 When duty points the dusty way
 Of drudgery, be Thou my Stay,
 O Shepherd of the Plain.

When brightly beams the happy sky,
 When clouds are gone, and hearts are high,
 And sorrow far away,
 Lest, dazzled by the glow, I yield
 To vanities, be Thou my Shield,
 O Shepherd of the Day.

When darkness o'er the spirit lowers,
 And fear, or pain, or grief o'erpowers
 Each dear, familiar light,
 Severed from comrade and from camp,
 When I despair, be Thou my Lamp,
 O Shepherd of the Night.

—R. Macomish.

Your pastor and your evangelist are not merely preachers; they are church builders. Theirs is the "care of the churches". 2 Cor. 11:28; 7:12.

CHOOSE WELL YOUR COMPANIONS

Did you ever notice that a drop of ink in a glass full of water will darken the whole mass, but a drop of water in a glass full of ink will be entirely lost? Well, that is true, is it not? Suppose you are the drop of pure water and the companions with whom you associate daily are "ink drops"—men and women steeped in sin and the lower things of life. What chance have you to keep pure? Dear young people, be careful in choosing your companions. You may have to work with all classes of people, but you are not compelled to become companions with them, or enter into the social activities of their lives. We may be "in the world" but not "of the world". Choose your companions among those who are following Jesus Christ. Make a strong resolve that you will lead a godly life and avoid the first downward step. Lean heavily on God, and He will help in time of direst need.—L. E. Y.

ATTEND GENERAL CONFERENCE

One of the principal reasons for the General Conference is to study church conditions and to discover Christian methods for improving church work. Send your pastor or your evangelist to the General Conference, August 4 to 16, to help study these conditions and provide ways and means for developing Christian work.

IN ADDITION to being a session for Bible instruction, your conferences are business meetings for the purpose of designating ways and means for carrying on the work throughout the year. You need prayerful, spiritual, sober-headed business minds to put in charge of this religious business. Pick your officers carefully; then stand by them.

REASON

SKEPTICS talk much about reason and common sense, as if they alone possessed it. But the common sense of the world believes in or seeks after a God to adore and worship.

Said Washington: "Religion is as necessary to reason as reason is to religion; the one cannot exist without the other. A reasoning being would lose his reason, in attempting to account for the phenomena of nature, had he not a Supreme Being to refer to. If there had been no God, mankind would have been obliged to imagine one."

He who would use reason must have facts to reason from. Revelation supplies facts which reason longs to know and seeks to discover. Reason gropes in the darkness till revelation floods her path with heavenly light, and lifts her up to see the face of God and live.

The reason of civilized, enlightened, and polished Egypt groveled in the dust and worshiped reptiles and monkeys, wolves and crocodiles, cats and dung-beetles. But when Moses had learned all the wisdom of the Egyptians, then he ascended the mount of God; "and the Lord descended in the cloud, and stood with him there . . . and proclaimed, The Lord, The Lord God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and that will by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children unto the third and to the fourth generation." Exodus 34:5-7.

Here are glorious facts! Here is something for reason to lay hold on. And God does not ask of men a blind, unreasoning confidence; but He calls to those who have wandered from His paths and sinned against His love, to return and reason with their God.

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow, though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool." Isaiah 1:18.—Selected by R. A. Curtis from the writings of H. L. Hastings, in Readings for Leisure Moments.

GREEN PASTURES AND STILL WATERS

By Samuel E. Haney

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters."—Psalm 23:2. The margin rendering: "Pastures of tender green. And beside the waters of quietness". "He makes me lie in meadows green; He leads me to refreshing streams." Moffatt.

IT is possible for man to describe in plain words of any language his temporal experiences, whether they be pleasant or unpleasant. But a linguist, master of all languages and dialects, and publicly assigned a Christian, could not describe the argosy of bliss with which our text is freighted.

The writer, having once had the care of a small drove of sheep, is in position to know that the Christian, void of personal contact with these meek, defenseless, woolly creatures, and lacking a mind that is swayed by the Holy Spirit, is handicapped in grasping the ecstatic joy involved in the term, "green pastures", though his mind might be a perfect encyclopedia of superfluous knowledge.

There is but one language or mode of conveying such information, and that one is conditioned by God's Word. It is a language unknown to this world's spiritualized man—a language confined to the consecrated Christian—a secret which cannot be divulged to the uninitiated, namely, "For our conversation (citizenship, or commonwealth, R. V.) is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ"—"We are a colony of heaven, and we wait for the Saviour who comes from heaven, the Lord Jesus Christ". Moffatt, Phil. 3:20. Everything, therefore, depends upon our spiritual citizenship which governs our thoughts, for our thoughts give birth to words, and our words bespeak our actions.

To appreciate something of the meaning of the term, "green pastures", one must symbolize one's self as a sheep, to which Jesus refers when He says, "The sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. . . . He goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice. I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. And other sheep (Gentiles, whose time of grace was not due until Peter officially opened the door to Cornelius, Matt. 10:5, 6; 15:24; Mark 7:27; Acts 10) I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold and one shepherd". John 10.

A few characteristics of our unique, irrational prototypes—they are wholly dependent upon their shepherd for both food and protection; the least alarm among them, and all eyes turn wishfully toward their master for protection. When the pasture in one place is consumed, the shepherd has another in reserve for them, which they seem to instinctively sense as they huddle about him, mutely pleading for other green pastures.

Our "Good Shepherd" desires us to ever be in green pastures of His selection, but unlike the sheep, our weak, fractious flesh often causes us to combat His will. Hence we are prone to stray into delusive pastures which appear to the flesh more attractive, only to later discover, concealed beneath the luscious grass, briars and odious weeds. Far better to exercise sheep sense by depending upon our good Shepherd's selection of "meadows green" for our spiritual nutriment. He who suffered the most cruel mode of death for us, will, by our cooperation, "make" us enjoy green pastures despite our opposing flesh.

"He leadeth me beside the still waters",—"refreshing streams". It is difficult to conceive of any greater antipode than a violent tempest and a deep sea of placid calmness. In Luke 21:25, 27, Jesus enumerates certain indicative signs, in the sun, moon, stars and by men's perplexity which are to precede the "Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory". The later clause, namely, "The sea and the waves roaring", is not subordinate but equally important and literal, being concurrent with other timely events.

But regardless of all portending signs, the natural man is as prone to resist the Lord's efforts in leading him "beside the still waters", as he is to refuse to "lie down in green pastures". What strange, foolish creatures the unregenerate human race consists of, particularly during these closing days of Satan's reign when, proverbially speaking, a physically blind man should be able to read "the handwriting on the wall"—ICHABOD!

In Isaiah's description of fleshly Israel, as "rebellious children", we have a perfect analogy of the lukewarm, indifferent Christians of our generation who are unconsciously antityping Israel's conduct while following Moses (Ex. 14:10-14), and by their rejection of Christ their Messiah, namely,

"Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, that take counsel, but not of me; and that cover with a covering, but not of my spirit, that they may add sin to sin. For thus saith the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel: In returning and rest shall ye be saved; in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength; and ye would not. But ye said, No; for we will flee upon horses; therefore shall ye flee; and, We will ride upon the swift; therefore shall they that pursue you be swift. Woe to them that go down to Egypt (type of Babylon) for help; and stay on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong: but they look not unto the Holy One of Israel, neither seek the Lord", Isa. 30:1, 15, 16; and 31:1.

This class of Christians is blissfully ignorant of the power of love. It knows nothing but physical, mechanical, visible power. But both of the stiffnecked inclined Israels shall finally have to meet the issue. Note John 12:48 and Romans 2:5, 6.

For our development in grace, knowledge, and strength, the Lord sometimes submits to our persistence in gratifying the natural instead of the spiritual man. He knows that when we tire of parched pastures and troubled waters, we shall humbly trace the footsteps of the prodigal son; glad to get back to our Father who only can give peace and comfort.

Then God permits trials and troubles for us to meet and overcome today, just as He has His children all down the age, even though the reason for these perplexing tribulations be not discernible at the time being. Nevertheless, if we be properly "exercised thereby" (Heb. 12:11), they will eventuate to our eternal good (Rom. 8:28); more or less to the mutual edification of the brethren; and to God's honor and glory.

Faith never fails to be the means of a solution to every mystifying trial. Faith will calm symbolic waves as effectually as literal waves were calmed by Jesus. We should strive, however, to avoid being troubled about the "things that are in the world", which God tells us—in effect—not to take seriously. 1 John 2:15-17.

Faith can accomplish as much for us as it did for Daniel and his associates. It can close human mouths (Satan's emissaries) as thoroughly as it did the mouths of literal lions, making them equally as harmless. Faith can also cause the symbolic fiery furnace, though it be heated seven times more than usual, to be harmless to us as was the literal fiery furnace to Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego.

The Eternal One with whom "we have to do" (Heb. 4:13) is ever the same; hence, the same degree of faith produces similar results at all times. Little faith accomplishes little things; great faith brings great things to pass. But do not expect instant results. God is sure to come to the rescue at the opportune time. Patience and faith must be cultivated, and God is the Husbandman.

We too often retard and make grievous our kingdom journey by straying from our Father's "green pastures and still waters".

THE RESURRECTION HOPE

(Continued from page 643)

idea of resurrection all they wish, but the fact remains that the divine program will stand, and that program is "Christ the firstfruits, afterward they that are Christ's at his coming" (1 Cor. 15:23). The resurrection is not due to take place till that time, and as that time is still future, the sainted dead still lie in their dusty beds awaiting the heavenly reveille, which will arouse the entire family of God from "righteous Abel", to the last convert to the faith of God, who has fallen on sleep.

What powers will the resurrection life bring to the people of God? How will the life of the resurrected ones differ from the life we now possess? Who can answer fully these questions; and yet is it not true that the Word of God contains the answer to many of our questionings?

The power of self-recognition will be the basal fact of the resurrected life. The ability to recognize one's self as the same individual who lived, thought, and acted in the life of mortality, is a necessary corollary of the resurrection. Apart from such self-recognition, we cannot conceive of a future life; and that such will be the experience of the saints of God is evident from the fact that these resurrected ones are pictured as joining in the song of praise to the Lamb, saying: "Thou art worthy . . . for thou hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth" (Rev. 5:9).

The new life will be endless in its duration. It will run parallel with the life of God. We shall be beyond the reach of death. Immortality will be ours. The "tree of life", which once bloomed monthly in the Garden of God will be within the reach of the inhabitants of that world to come, in which there shall be no more death.

A glorified body will be the lot of all who attain that world. Moses spent a few hours in the presence of God, and when he returned his face shone in so dazzling a manner, that the mortal eyes of his companions could not stand the glory, and they begged him to put a veil over his face while he talked with them (Ex. 34:35). If a few hours' contact of a child of earth with the things of eternity would produce the result shown in the case of Moses, what will be the experience of those who are permitted to attain that world, and the power of an endless life? but that the words of the prophet Daniel will be literally fulfilled, when he said, "and they shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and as the stars for ever and ever" (Dan. 12:3).

Thus, immortalized and glorified, shall the people of God be prepared to be presented to the Father and the assembled angelic hosts, as trophies of the saving grace of God.—The World's Crisis.

NOTICE carefully the delegate blank and the rule for appointing delegates found elsewhere in this number. Call the attention of your chairman and your secretary. And have your state conference and your local church each appoint delegates at once, preparatory for General Conference. It is most important that your conference and your church have a voice in all matters of business.

"STRENGTHEN THY BRETHREN"

(Continued from front page)

we truly "converted" and have we become "living epistles", if we criticise and censure our neighbors, "forsake the assembling of ourselves together," take unfair advantages, or act the "busybody", about which Peter warns his readers? Let us strive to "strengthen" by word and deed all those with whom we come in contact, and heed the words in Peter's first epistle, 4:14, "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye, for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you." Can we ask anything better, be our lives short or long, than this reward?

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"THE HARVEST TRULY IS GREAT, BUT THE LABOURERS ARE FEW."—LUKE 10:2.

WATCH YE, THEREFORE!

WE WHO have the opportunity of attending a university or college are, of course, thankful for it. There we learn to appreciate more fully the things that the great Lord has given to us. The very rocks, the shapes and formations of the hills, the complex mechanism of the plants engage our interest as they never could had we not studied of them. By studying them we see more distinctly the working of God's great tool—nature—and all the earth takes on added beauty and wonder.

We tend to become less provincial, learning that there are other persons outside of our nation whom we ought to love and gain a knowledge of. We are taught to hate the ravages of war and also to evaluate the vital importance of unselfishness and the formation of character.

In spite of all of these and other things which play a part in the lives of Christians, there are pitfalls in the way of the earnest student. One of them is the influence of certain professors who appear to seek to wean the student away from his faith in the Word of God as set forth in the Old Testament, by holding its teachings up to ridicule.

These men, of course, feel that they are doing right, but what have they to offer in return for stealing our faith? They stand upon the doctrines and theories of men. They, too, must have faith in what they believe to be facts—these are their gods.

At such times the student must keep closer than ever to God through prayer and biblical study in order to offset the often convincing arguments of these men.

Bessie Blackwell, Los Angeles.

WHY STAND YE HERE ALL THE DAY IDLE?

It is sad when we think of the millions of people out of work, hungry, and lacking the comforts of life.

But sadder still is the condition in the church. Go to any denomination; only a few are doing the work. Only a few are giving their money, time, and talents. There is work for all.

Jesus said, "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few." Luke 10:2. We cannot all be preachers and teachers, but all about us we can see sick and downhearted people. We can cheer them up, tell them the good news of the kingdom.

"Why stand ye here all the day idle?" Matt. 20:6. The day is drawing to a close. The harvest must be complete.

Helen Harvey, Age 12, Kokomo, Indiana.

ILLINOIS STATE BEREAN REPORT FOR MAY

Dixon: (Senior) Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 10; interest, getting better and better. We have a new teacher, Bro. Clarence Lapp, who is helping us very much.

(Junior) Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 10; interest, good. This is a very fine class.

(Primary) Membership, 5; average weekly attendance, 2; interest, fair.

Elizabeth Ford, Sec.

Marshall: Membership, 5; average weekly attendance, 15; interest, fine. We have song service each Sunday night at 7:30. Berean at eight. The little folks are helping the Marshall Berean class by their attendance, their attention, and their Bible reading.

Edith Hendrix, Sec.

Ripley: This society has discontinued its meetings until September. They have given their Berean time over to preaching services.

Edna Wood, State Sec.

ILLINOIS BEREAN SOCIETIES

Please send your State dues to the treasurer (Esta L. Starbuck, 420 S. Third St., Rockford) AT ONCE, if you haven't already done so.

"For ye serve the Lord Christ."

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 22; Ohio, 16; California, 10; Michigan, 8; Indiana, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; Missouri, 1; New York, 1; Arkansas, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

CHRISTIANITY SPREAD BY PERSECUTION

STEPHEN is known as the first Christian martyr. He was one of the seven deacons—full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom. Because of his fearlessness in preaching and telling the Jews that they had killed Jesus, he was stoned to death.

Even in his death he was true to his Lord and His example. He cried, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." And, like Jesus, asked the Lord to forgive these men who had thrown the stones and dragged him out of the city.

Then the Bible says Stephen fell asleep. It does not say he was carried off to heaven and went on living in another world. Devout, good men carried Stephen to his burial and grieved over him.

Now, in this same scene was another very important man whose name was Saul. He was a very religious Jew, and worked hard in serving God and the Jewish faith. He believed Jesus was an impostor and His followers all sacrilegious. He thought the new Christian church should be utterly destroyed, and he did all that he could to bring about its destruction.

He would go into every Christian home and bring out both men and women and have them put into prison. When Stephen was killed, Saul stood by, consenting to his death, and holding the coats of those who threw the stones. In all this Saul was convinced that he was right.

Naturally the people were frightened, and fled in every direction. Only the apostles remained in Jerusalem. The Christians were scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria. Others traveled as far as Phenice and Cyprus and Antioch.

As these refugees went about, they, too, told the wonderful story of Jesus and made many converts. Thus, the persecution brought about the very thing it was to prevent—the spread of Christianity.

At first the gospel was preached to the Jews alone. Later, men of Cyprus and Cyrene came to Antioch and converted many Grecians. And why were these people permitted to carry this message?

"The hand of the Lord was with them."

Today, we must pray that the hand of the Lord will be with us. Also, we must tell others, as we go about, particularly now when events seem to tell us that the return of Christ must be close at hand.

HAVE WE "turned unto the Lord"?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Find on the map places mentioned in the lesson.
2. Read the story of Stephen in Acts 7.
3. Read Revelation 2:10.

A CHILD'S PRAYER

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth."

Whenever I see the great, high hills, I will think of Thee, my heavenly Father. Thou hast made them beautiful and strong, and they seem to tell of Thy power and Thy love. Thou wilt surely help me to be like the hills, strong and beautiful in my life, so that I may bring strength and beauty and gladness to others. Amen.—Rev. R. W. Barstow.

WE BELIEVE, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." John 3:16.

THE first one to tell us that she has learned Isaiah 35 is Mrs. Rilla Richardson, Hudsonville, Michigan. I wonder how many others have learned it?

AS THE SEASONS COME AND GO

As the seasons come and go,
Change is stamped on all below.
First the winter's chilling storm,
Then the breezes soft and warm.
Whether flowers bud and blow,
Or the earth is white with snow,
Through it all this thing we know:
God our Father loves us so.

When, like some menacing foe,
Glares the sun on all below,
Wood and streamlet pant for breath,
Wavering 'twixt life and death,
Then, by faith, our hearts foreknow
That again the streams will flow.
First must come the burning heat,
Then the fields of golden wheat.

When our garners overflow,
We again this truth may know:
God our Father loves us so.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 4. — July 26, 1931

CHRISTIANITY SPREAD BY PERSECUTION

Acts 7:54 to 8:4; 11:19-21; 26:9-11; 1 Peter 4:12-19

Devotional Reading: 1 Peter 1:3-9

GOLDEN TEXT

Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Rev. 2:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Martyrs of the Early Church.

Basic Truth. "But even all who choose to be living in a godly manner in Christ Jesus, will be persecuted."—2 Tim. 3:12, Roth.

I. The Workings of Persecution. To persecute is to pursue; "to drive out with malign intent". All men belong to God. See Acts 17:26. God persecutes none.

He who persecutes another of God's creation must of necessity first withdraw, in that particular, from God. Thus he persecutes by following the venom of his own carnal nature.

All persecution is an outgrowth of carnality. The maddened jealous Jews, beholding the downfall of their religious customs which were based upon the Mosala law, but which law was terribly honeycombed and weakened by their own Talmudic emendations thereto, presumed to assume that they were God-fearing and God-serving. They may have been sincere; they may have zealously obeyed their consciences; but they were nevertheless opposing God and Christ and truth.

Egyptian persecution made Israel ready to journey for a promised land. Christian persecution made the disciples ready to follow the leadings of God's holy spirit unto service in other places. And yet, God, justly, held the Jewish persecutors responsible for this, their choice. Cf. Luke 13:2-5.

II. Results. Two divergent results followed these persecutions: the non-believing Jews fortified themselves in their own opposition against God; and the Christians moved to other fields, in doing which they accomplished what the Savior taught in Matt. 28:19, 20. They preached the gospel unto all, near and far.

"The gospel is the power of God unto salvation", Rom. 1:16, to the believer. In those days the only way to proclaim the gospel was by word of mouth. The written parchment was too fearfully expensive. To proclaim the gospel to every creature necessitated traveling from place to place, mostly on foot. The persecution of the ungodly Jews was one thing to convince them that the guidings of the holy spirit were proper.

III. The Martyrs of the Early Church. In N. T. days a martyr was really "a witness, i. e., one who has remembrance or knowledge of anything, (and hence) one who can give information, or bring to light, or confirm anything."—Crit. Lex. Such witnesses were frequently sealed. The witnesses for Jesus sealed their testimonies and their positions with their life blood. Thus it came to be that, "a martyr is one who bears witness to the truth of the gospel of Christ with his life".—Crit. Lex. The principal scriptural thought of a martyr is that of a witness. The second thought is that his witnessing was cause for his own death.

Throughout the ages Jehovah has solicited a few of the truly loyal ones to witness for Him at the expense of their own lives. This has always resulted in an increased number of believers in Him and His truth. Thus the martyrs were the few who, in patriotic Christianity, gave themselves for the flag of their Father in heaven.

Witness the result of Stephen's martyrdom; of that of the several apostles.

IV. More Recent Martyrs. Just as the Jewish Sanhedrin claimed that those who were not of it were not true to God, and therefore it was of service to God to persecute them, so in later centuries the church of Rome claimed that those who were not of it were "not Christians"; that therefore it was the duty of said church of Rome to persecute and martyr them as enemies of Christ. Upon this analysis that church boldly claims that it never persecuted Christians. Yet many thousands gave their lives for their faith in Christ and God.

The dark ages are lightened by the testimony of faithful protestant Christians who stood, in the power of the spirit, staunchly for their Master unto death. Like twinkling stars in midnight blackness, their lives stood out as lights to guide those of faith forward through the darkness and blackness of those awful centuries of Christian persecution and martyrdom.

By their sacrifices true Christianity was given foothold in a new world, where it has held aloft the light of the gospel of Jesus Christ and has carried it to all coast lines and islands of the sea.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Christianity Must Spread: All must hear the gospel and be told about "the man Christ Jesus". Those of the early church did their work well, but it cost much blood, the comforts of a permanent home, and the peace and happiness of unmolested family life. Opposition did not deter them. It spurred them on to greater efforts. Their efforts were not concentrated. We are told that "they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word."

Discuss the favorable and adverse effects that persecution had on the success of the early church. Does persecution increase or decrease the zeal and enthusiasm of Christian workers? Would the Church of God be more evangelistic and missionary, if it were persecuted more?

Faith: Great was the faith of the early Christians. Such faith would inspire the admiration of the bitterest opponent. The withstanding of such severe persecution could not be endured without unflinching faith. It was not blind faith, but implicit faith in One they knew—even Jesus. It can be said of them:

"They loved not their lives unto death." They literally gave their "bodies a living sacrifice", and with their sacrifices God was well pleased.

Discuss the influence faith will have on an individual in times of persecution. Will a person hesitate to perform his duty in the face of persecution, if he has true faith? Would the early Christians have been persecuted for their faith, if they had not manifested it by works? Would the members of the church of today be persecuted more, if they showed their faith more by their works? Is the lack of faith and works today the cause of little persecution? Luke 18:8.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

How many times I have heard Bro. Woodward say, "We were never told to be successful; but we were told to be faithful." Being faithful for just a little while amounts to but little. It is the steadfast faithfulness that counts. Matt. 24:13 says, "He that shall endure to the end, the same shall be saved."

The race must be completed before the reward is given. No half finished task is complete. The Christian life must continue as long as life lasts. The crown of life is worth striving for, but it is not won by stopping in the middle of the race. It comes with the coming of the Savior, when He comes to claim His own.

"Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Rev. 3:11. Take warning, dear Christians, have faith, be faithful and endure to the end that the crown of life may be yours.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

We think of a martyr as one who gives his life for a cause or faith. It is used in this sense but three times in Scripture. Its prevalent meaning is "witness". "By the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every fact be established." Thus Peter was as much of a martyr when he healed at the beautiful gate, as when he died on a Roman cross. The former added five thousand to the church, and the latter no doubt strengthened many wavering ones.

The Jews thought to end the new Christian faith by persecuting the early witnesses. This procedure reached its climax in the stoning of Stephen. The act defeated its own purpose, and it strengthened the faith of that church as nothing else could have done, even though it scattered its members.

Just as good healthy weed seed is not destroyed by being blown and scattered by the wind, so was the church unharmed. Wherever a "seed" stopped it took root, and a new church was established. Here is a valuable lesson for the isolated of this day.—H. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Indiana, North Salem,	July 7 to 19
Texas, Riviera,	July 10 to 19
General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30
Kansas, Arkansas City,	August 23 to 31

Conferences are now in progress at North Salem, Indiana, and at Riviera, Texas, each closing on next Sunday, July 19. We trust that all who possibly can are availing themselves of the opportunity of attending. Your conference is just what you make it.

Sr. Jessie Wilson is now located at 610 N. Latrobe Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

Bro. and Sr. Lewis Lindsay and son, Edward, of Rockford, Illinois, are visiting relatives at St. Louis, Missouri.

Aunt Mary Renner, of Golden Rule Home, celebrated her eighty-eighth birthday anniversary on July 11. She is about her usual self again, after her recent illness.

Bro. Earl Thayer and Lyle of Rockford, are weekly visitors to Oregon, Illinois, to attend Sunday evening services and visit with "Mother", who is assisting in the care of little Louise Mae Johnson.

We are glad to hear that Bro. Harvey Krogh, of the Training Class, has been assisting at his home church at Blair, Nebraska, giving them a sermon each Sunday morning and assisting them in their Berean meetings each week.

Bro. Paul Hatch gave some good food for thought on "The Marks of the Lord Jesus" in the morning of July 12 at Oregon, Illinois. In the evening he painted a very realistic picture of the drama of the ages, showing that our present position in prophecy is the opening of a scene in the last act, and showing the curtain rising on a night scene, preceding the brightest dawn known to man.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone of the Training Class will speak at Oregon, Illinois, on Sunday, July 19, both morning and evening, while Bro. Austin is busy at the Texas Conference. From Oregon, Bro. LeCrone will go direct to Bosworth, Missouri, where he will hold a week of meetings for the brethren there. We bespeak a good hearing for Bro. LeCrone at these services.

AN UP-AND-COMING CLASS

The first class that has come to our attention as working for one of our fine maps is the Truth Seekers' Class of the Dixon, Illinois, church, of which Sr. Anna Drew is teacher. And they will succeed, too, for the combination of Sr. Drew and these young folks is unbeatable. Rumor has it that a class in Saint Cloud, Minnesota, is also at work. How about our live wire Sunday Schools at other places? Many of them surely will want some of these fine maps. Who will be first to win one? Full particulars on back page.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." —Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25
Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada

Sr. Lottie E. Young sends in the name of Sr. Harrington, who is in need of our prayers and encouragement. A line to her from those so disposed will help to cheer this isolated sister and strengthen her faith.

PLUM RIVER'S SUNDAY

Sunday, July 19, is the regular appointment at the Plum River, Illinois, church, and Bro. C. E. Lapp expects to be with them on that date. All within distance are urged to be present at these services. Sunday School at ten o'clock. Sermons at eleven and seven-thirty.

TO A NEW PASTORATE

Bro. Sydney E. Magaw preached his farewell sermon at Eden Valley, Minnesota, on Sunday morning, July 12. With his family he is leaving this week for his new charge at the Brush Creek Church, near Tippecanoe City, Ohio. They will visit two or three points enroute, including Harvey, Illinois, the home of Sr. Magaw's mother and brother. Sr. Etta Hatch and son, Paul.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

Since Bro. Patrick's recent series of meetings here at Eden Valley, during which eighteen were baptized, four others have also been baptized. This is evidence that the work of Bro. Patrick is still bearing fruitage. On Sunday, June 28th, the following were baptized in Rice Lake: Mrs. Clayton Wood, Cleo Matheny, Carrol Cossairt, and Lorraine Thoms. We pray God's blessings upon them, and greatly rejoice with all who have lately started the life that leads unto salvation in the Kingdom of God.

Sydney E. Magaw, pastor.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL AND CONFERENCE

All those desiring rooms outside of the Dormitory, please correspond with Miss Elizabeth Ordnung, Oregon, Illinois, and she will take care of your needs. The cook this year will be Sr. Anna Smith of Forreston, Illinois, and the matron, Sr. Verna Thayer of Rockford, all of which assures us of good meals, comfortable surroundings and harmony.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE REPORT

The Michigan Bible School and Conference convened at the South Lawn Park Church, Grand Rapids, June 21 to 28 inclusive. Brothers L. E. Conner of Dixon, Illinois, and F. E. Siple of Grand Rapids, were at the helm and conducting the services in their usual able and interesting manner.

The first five days of these meetings were devoted to Bible study and lessons. These lessons were well attended and much interest shown especially by the young people.

Conference proper began on Friday and every service was a spiritual treat long to be remembered. While attendance of brethren from remote parts of the state was not as large as could be desired, local people, eager to hear the truth, continually filled the house, and much good must eventually result.

Plans for the fall conference meeting which in all probability will be held at Blanchard, are being made. Officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: Pres., Wm. Hanson; First Vice Pres., Laura Briggs; Second Vice Pres., Arthur Richardson; Sec., L. Bridegam; Treas., Nellie Blakely.

L. Bridegam, Sec.

NIAGARA FALLS AND FONTHILL

We expect to shortly have a joint picnic of the two Sunday Schools.

Two students of Aurora College, Franklin Alexander and Paul Erickson, conducted meetings at Fonthill and Niagara Falls on Monday and Tuesday evenings of last week.

Weekly prayer meetings have been started at the Falls church. We expect these meetings to be very helpful.

Last Sunday evening our pastor started a series of sermons on the antichrist and the mark of the beast and contemporary events. Judging by the first sermon of the series, which was greatly enjoyed, we are going to hear some very interesting things.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The first of our special Sundays was Flag Day, July 5. Mrs. Townsend, who was in charge, had her class of girls put on a flag drill and exercise which was splendid. About fifteen minutes of very fine entertainment were given in that way.

The pastor and wife were pleased to have as guests on July 2 some members of the Benj. Cummings family who used to live near Blanchard and now are located near Battle Creek. Miss Gladys Cummings, Mrs. Lucille Sanford and Mr. Robertson were in town for the day, and the girls got to attend our mid-week services Thursday night.

A cordial invitation is extended to all.

F. E. Siple, pastor.

A HAPPY BIRTHDAY

To the many who remembered me with letters, cards, and gifts on my eighty-second birthday, I want to say, God bless each one of you, for all are very dear to me. Some of the beautiful words will ring in my ears, until Jesus comes. I thank God for the sixty cards and letters, besides the two beautiful "Sunshine" books sent from Blanchard. My dear little Faye Hill, may you be among those who will be caught away when the dear Lord comes.

Mary A. Woodward.

GOOD NEWS FROM DELTA, OHIO

On Monday, June 22, Bro. S. J. Lindsay arrived at Delta, and began a short series of meetings, continuing over the following Sunday. This meeting resulted from a visit Sr. Etta Elton, Bro. Dunbar, our youngest son, Glen, and myself made at the yearly June meeting at Brush Creek Church, near Troy, Ohio. As we have no church house of our own here at Delta, it was surely a real treat to meet with brothers and sisters of like precious faith in a building of our own. The fellowship together and the friendships we formed while there will last as long as life.

We were privileged to hear Brothers LeCrone, Lyon and Lindsay speak. Bro. Lindsay conducted the adult division of the Bible class, which was a real spiritual feast to us, as anyone knows who has ever listened to Bro. Lindsay's good and instructive lessons. It is to a very great extent that Bro. Dunbar and myself feel that we owe to Bro. Lindsay and his teaching all that we are. It was through these good lessons some eleven years ago that Bro. Dunbar was baptized into the truth of the gospel. And it was through these good lessons at that time that we began to study our Bible as never before, and how glad we now are, for what a help and comfort it is in these perilous days.

On Sunday evening, June 14, the last day of the meeting at Brush Creek, Bro. Lindsay spoke on Israel's Bondage and Deliverance as a type. It was a wonderful and impressive sermon, and at the close as we were getting ready to depart for home, a distance of 140 miles, our son Glen told Bro. Lindsay he would like to be baptized. This indeed was a surprise and rejoicing to us. On account of the late hour and an approaching storm, also the desire of Glen to hear more of the gospel, it was decided that Bro. Lindsay should come to Delta at the earliest possible date.

We are surely glad Bro. Lindsay came, for not only Glen accepted the gospel, but his two older brothers and a younger sister, my brother, Bert Reighard's daughter and my sister, Mrs. Sophia Gill's daughter. This was surely a wonderful meeting, which greatly impressed the whole community.

It made us think of the parable of the leaven, how a little leavened the whole lump. We feel it only proper that special mention be made of the grandmother of these young men and women. Grandmother Reighard, who is now eighty-three years old, has wielded a godly life and teaching before these young people. As for our four children they were permitted to live very close to her and were in daily contact with her during their young years. She never failed to teach them the Bible and the Way of life, and we feel sure to a great extent that this teaching has had a decided effect on the step which they have taken. The new members of faith we introduce as follows: Georgia Gill, Marguerite Reighard, Delbert, Dale, Glen, and Amy Dunbar. May the prayers of all of those of like precious faith go out for these young people to keep them in the strait and narrow way which leads to life eternal.

Yours in the Master's service,
Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Dunbar.

COMMUNICATION

In sending a generous contribution to the N. B. I., Sr. Johnson of Freedom, Nebraska, has this to say:

"I am sorry I cannot send more. There are no profits this year. We raised our finest crop last year and sold some of the best stock we ever sold. Expenses have about kept even. I suppose you are seeing the effects of it all in your work. But this work should not be held up because of it. We ought to figure it right along with the necessities of life.

"The trouble is, too many of us (our people included) don't know where necessity begins or ends. . . . Statisticians claim one hundred years ago the average person had seventy-two wants, and only about sixteen of those were considered necessary. Today the average person has 484 wants, of which ninety-four are considered necessary. There are thirty-two thousand items offered for sale, in comparison with two hundred items a hundred years ago, plus high-powered salesmanship, which can convince even wise people they simply must have a thousand and one things or become a back number. The Ladies Aid must serve refreshments. Many trips are made with the car where one would have answered the purpose. We are a nation of spenders.

"I wonder sometimes if this depression isn't a blessing after all. There is really plenty. There is no need for suffering, were it rightly distributed. But the blessings which are free, the things which we might have without all the weary struggle, are the things the vast majority overlook. 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.'

"Your sister in Christ,
"Mrs. Allen Johnson."

MRS. SAM TITUS

Eunice Edith Titus, the fifth child of William and Josephine Garton was born on June 17, 1883, two miles north of Varina, Iowa. She had been suffering from heart trouble for some time, but for a few days preceding her death she seemed to be gaining and in good spirits. Death called her suddenly on Monday, June 29, 1931. She passed away at her home, six miles south of Albert City, Iowa, about three miles from where she was born and reared to womanhood.

At an early age she accepted Christ and united with the Church of God and lived a true Christian life. She was united in marriage to Samuel Titus, on March 17, 1901, at the home of her parents. Six children were born to the union. Two preceded her in death, an infant, and Melvin Delbert who passed away November 16, 1918, at the age of two and one-half years. Those surviving her are, Ethel Bjorklund of Webb, Josephine Degner of Newell, Wayne and Roy at home.

She was preceded in death by her mother, father, a sister, and a brother. She leaves her bereaved husband, four children, four grandchildren, three sisters, Mrs. Anna Fales and Jennie Selleck of Storm Lake, Mrs. Iuez Titus of Letcher, S. D., and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted by Bro. J. W. Williams of Gladbrook, assisted by Bro. A. Peterson, pastor of the Free Mission church from which the services were held on July 2. She was laid to rest in Fairfield cemetery, one mile west of Albert City to await Christ's coming to which she most faithfully looked forward.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Olive Wood; Mrs. J. D. Hogarth; Lot-tie E. Young; R. H. Judd; D. W. Kirkpatrick; Mrs. John Lehman; Horace Haines; M. W. Perrine; James Stilson; W. E. Boyer; G. A. Boyer; Mrs. S. M. Harris; Emma Main Scott.

CHRISTIANITY

With this quarter's lessons we are brought to a striking consideration of Christianity. We find it to be not a mere theory of doctrine, but a vitalizing, energizing principle which re-molds and renews those who truly embrace it.

Christianity might well be said to be, first and foremost, that vital influence radiating from Christ which gives new life and force and vision to him who is His true follower; and second, that influence which is reflected from such followers.

A Christian may be truly described as one who is Christianized, made new by the Master.

THE COMING OF NEW POWER

Jesus promised His disciples that He would send them power after He had gone to the Father. This power came on the day of Pentecost—about seven days after the ascension—as a mighty rushing wind. It filled all, giving to each some new power.

Jesus foretold these things in Mark 16:17-18: "And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

The apostles did all of the above "signs", which is evidence that they were of God. The receiving of this spirit was life and existence to those "sheep in the midst of ravening wolves".

Paul tells us in Ephesians 1:13-14 that the "Holy Spirit is the earnest (pledge) of our inheritance". "To an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away". 1 Peter 1:4.

The power of Pentecost is our pledge of a future day, when we shall be filled with spirit, raised to life, glorified, and placed upon thrones.—H. A. S.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy. Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS ATTENTION

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

FOR YOU — FOR YOUR CLASS
FOR YOUR SCHOOL

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Explain the little Maps which we give Free to each New Subscriber. They are valuable helps.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1. Who will be the first to win one of these fine Maps?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

MAPS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Individual Maps to Subscribers. Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1/2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS JULY 21, 1931

NUMBER 42

The Crying Need of Creation

"The earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now."

WHEN the Apostle said that the whole creation is waiting for the "manifestation of the sons of God," that was a true statement of fact. It was, of course, necessarily true, for the Apostle was writing under inspiration of God. But, notwithstanding the statement itself and its truth, and the fact that it concerns all men, they have not themselves known that they were and still are waiting for this manifestation.

It is in Romans 8:19 that this information is given us, but besides this the whole chapter makes clear many other things not previously known. Men are ignorant also of another fact, namely, that there could be no manifestation of the sons of God until the only begotten Son of God had been sent on His great mission to give His life a ransom for all. For He was to be "the firstborn among many brethren" (Romans 8:29), who are elsewhere called "sons." (Hebrews 2:10.) Hence the "sons" could not be manifested until sometime after Christ's first appearing.

Men have been "waiting," then, for the whole period before Christ; and are still, at this date, all the "sons" not yet having been selected. No one, however, could lay the charge of idleness against men as a whole, while they have been so waiting. Under the terms of the original curse (Genesis 3:19) necessity has driven them so far as their physical needs are concerned, so in that way they are all alike. But in matters spiritual men have from the beginning divided themselves into two classes.

TWO GENERAL CLASSES AMONG MEN

IN THESE two classes there is nothing like equality of numbers, for one far outnumbers the other. Some few of earth's people took note of the promise that the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head, and ordered their lives in full agreement with that promise. But the lives of the vast majority were not in the least influenced by it. It was not God who made any discrimination: it was men themselves. For when Adam and Eve repented of their disobedience to God's command, having been driven out of the garden, they were given the privilege of worshiping God and of bringing up their children to do the same, and to hope in the Promised One who should bruise the serpent's head.

And what does the sacred history tell us regarding the first two sons? That Abel had the true faith, but Cain sought to worship in some other way—a way of his own. But God was gracious to Cain, and rebuked him for his disobedience. If Cain had been exercised by the rebuke, his future would have been very different from what it was.

But from that day to this some, like Abel, have worshiped God according to the mode He prescribed; others, like Cain—the majority—have preferred to follow their own ideas, until today there seems to be not a single unexplored idea left around which there might be gathered another band of devotees.

"God hath made man upright," says the wise man, "but they have sought out many inventions." (Ecclesiastes 7:29.) That is to say, men have sought out many things contrary to the uprightness in which man was created at the beginning.

SOME GOOD AND VALUABLE INVENTIONS

IN GENESIS 4 we read of the invention in those times of some useful things. The tent, the harp, and the organ, besides various unnamed articles in brass and iron, were invented.

In 2 Chronicles 26:15 we are told of clever inventions for the defence of Jerusalem—of engines placed on the towers and bulwarks to shoot arrows and great stones at the advancing foe. Man was endowed of God with the ability to make articles of utility and beauty, and the constructing of such is one of the delightful occupations of humanity. Would it be reasonable to suppose that God would rebuke men for using this ability? No; and we do not hear of it either when his inventions are rightly used.

That is the crux of the whole matter—the right use of his abilities in any and every way, and of everything his inventive mind might construct.

(Continued on page 665)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"When thou saidst, Seek ye my face; my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek. Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path."—Psalm 27:8, 11.

FORSAKE NOT THE ASSEMBLING

AT ALL times this injunction of the great Apostle is quite applicable to the Christian, but perhaps a little more so in the summer season. True, we all need rest, recuperation, change; but too many look for it in constant activity, rushing here and there, seeking new thrills.

Others have found the relaxation demanded by nature in the quiet and reverent atmosphere of the house of God, entering with mind attuned to the message of God's peace in music and sermon, and leaving refreshed and ready for the duties of the days ahead.

The isolated are denied the privilege of regular association thus with others of like precious faith, and each one must solve his own problem in the way best suited to his circumstances of life, by attendance at services of others nearby or by gathering his own family circle round him for prayer and praise.

We who are more fortunately situated and have access to regular services of our own, should seek to draw the most from them, not alone for ourselves, but to "consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works."

And why? Because He "is faithful that promised", and His Book is filled from cover to cover with the things He has promised, blessings both for the present and the future.

"They that know thy name will put their trust in thee: for thou, Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek thee." Psalm 9:10.—M. G.

THROUGH MUCH TRIBULATION

IT WAS only a short time after Paul had been stoned and left for dead outside the city because he persisted in preaching "Jesus Christ, and him crucified," that he told the early Christians that "we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God." Acts 14:22.

These were no mere words with the Apostle. He, and the early Christians as well, knew whereof he spoke. Paul enumerates some of these tribulations in his second letter to the Corinthian Christians, 11:26-28, and they include every sort of physical and mental suffering imaginable

In this our day, we speak of hardship and suffering, but we know nothing of such trial as they endured. And we must acknowledge that much of our suffering is caused by our own folly and stubbornness, not because of our faithfulness to the Captain of our salvation, though not all of it.

In his letter to the Hebrew Christians, 12:1-11, the Apostle asks them to consider the One who endured more than all others, that He might be "the author and finisher of our faith", lest they become "wearied and faint" because of their minor trials. Many gems of truth are found in these verses which very properly may be applied to us today. Read them carefully.

But Paul also drew many word pictures of that which causes us to hold fast, that for which we endure, and we find one of them in Romans 8. Finite mind cannot conceive the full meaning of being glorified together with Christ, being in truth sons of God. And if the Apostle could declare that "the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us"; surely we can!

Let us never forget that none of the distresses of today, no matter how severe, "shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus."—M. G.

A LITTLE MEMBER

"MANY have fallen by the edge of the sword, but not so many as have fallen by the tongue."

Never were truer words uttered than those of the above proverb! The horrors of war, with its resulting fatalities, are very vivid in the mind of the adult of today. Many were the broken hearts caused by the loss of loved ones because of the sword.

But too few of us realize the disaster that may be caused by a few, thoughtless, unkind words directed against another. How often we have seen not only reputation ruined, but character blasted as well, because some one "thought" that another's actions were worthy of censure.

James tells us, in his practical epistle, chapter 3, that a great vessel is held under control by a very small helm, and even so the tongue, though a small member, is capable of great good, if properly governed, but brings dreadful havoc, if untamed, verses 9, 10.

He exhorts us to cultivate "the wisdom that is from above", which is first "pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy."

Notice that among the six things that the Lord hates,

"yea, seven", all of them, directly or indirectly, may be traced to an ungoverned tongue: "a proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, an heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, a false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren." Proverbs 6:16-19.

Let us remember to "speak not evil one of another, brethren." James 4:11.—M. G.

The Certainty of the Second Advent

"EVERY man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as he is pure." What hope? "We know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." The personal appearance of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ—this is the hope that purifieth, that makes us holy, that makes us ready to meet Him and be with Him—a purifying hope. This was the hope of the early Christians. It was their one supreme hope. They wrote of it as "that blessed hope," "a lively hope," our "one hope," "the hope of our calling," and "the hope set before us."

The reason why Christians of today are so lacking in holiness is because they lack this hope. It is the Divinely provided incentive. My purpose is to endeavor to kindle or re-kindle this hope by bringing home its certainty.

It is certain because, in the first place, our Lord Himself says so.

His words to us are these, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so, I would have told you; I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also." "I will come again." Several times does He repeat this promise. His parables are full of the theme. He is the "Bridegroom" whose coming the virgins awaited; the "Lord" who committed to His servants talents to trade with until "after a long time the Lord of these servants cometh and maketh a reckoning with them," and the "Master" who returning unexpectedly finds some servants diligent and watchful and others careless and drunken.

When at His trial the high priest adjured Him to tell them whether He was the Christ, the Son of God, His answer was, "Thou hast said, nevertheless I say unto you, Henceforth ye shall see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of power and coming on the clouds of heaven."

Our Lord's return is therefore certain because He Himself pledged it.

In the second place it is certain because the testimony of our Lord is borne out by the united testimony of all the apostolic writers.

Paul's epistles are full of the promise. It is reckoned that one verse in ten contains it, while in the First of Thessalonians the proportion is one in seven, and in the Second nearly one in three. His summary of the Christian's position is, "Ye turned from idols to serve the living and true God and to wait for his Son from heaven." He states definitely that "unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation:" and counsels us to "consider one another to provoke unto love and good works, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching."

Peter, James, and John all write to the same effect, the highest note being reached by the last named: "We know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is, and every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as he is pure."

It is therefore made doubly certain by the united testimony of the apostolic writers.

The return of our Lord is certain because Old Testament prophecy necessitates it.

The one great theme of Old Testament prophecy, the great consummation of Israel's hope, was the coming of the Messiah to establish His kingdom here. Here and there we find short references to His humiliation, rejection, suffering, and death, but they are very few and short compared with those which deal with the great theme of His coming to subdue His enemies and to reign supreme. So much is this the case that it is hardly to be wondered that the Jews failed to recognize in the humble Nazarene their promised Messiah. Even His disciples were puzzled in this respect, hence their questions to Him as to when He would declare Himself and assume His regal rights.

To substantiate our Lord's claim to be the Messiah, we point doubters to the marvelously exact fulfillment of those Old Testament prophecies which spoke of His rejection and death. How then as to the many more that tell of His coming to establish here His kingdom and to reign? Our arguments all fall to the ground if these are not to be fulfilled in an equally exact manner. Either Jesus is not the Messiah, the Christ, or He must come again to fulfill these prophecies. These Old Testament prophecies thus necessitate His return; they make it an absolute certainty.

(Continued on page 662)

MY TIMES ARE IN THY HAND

Father, I know that all my life
Is portioned out for me,
And the changes that are sure to come
I do not fear to see;
But I ask Thee for a present mind,
Intent on pleasing Thee.

I ask Thee for a thoughtful love,
Through constant watching wise,
To meet the glad and joyful smiles,
And wipe the weeping eyes;
And a heart at leisure from itself,
To soothe and sympathize.

I would not have the restless will,
That hurries to and fro,
Seeking for some great thing to do,
Or secret thing to know;
I would be treated as a child,
And guided where I go.

So I ask Thee for the daily strength,
To none that ask denied,
And a mind to blend with outward life,
While keeping at Thy side;
Content to fill a little space,
If Thou be glorified.

And if some things I do not ask
In my cup of blessing be,
I would have my spirit filled the more
With grateful love to Thee—
More careful not to serve Thee much,
But to please Thee perfectly.

—Author Unknown.

“IF WE would praise more, we should have more to praise for.”—Simpson.

THE LORD'S RETURN

A USURPER has got this world now, but Christ will have it soon. The time of our redemption draweth nigh. A little more suffering, and He returns to set up His kingdom and reign upon the earth. He will rend the heavens, and His voice will be heard again. He will descend from heaven with a shout. He will sway His sceptre from the river to the ends of the earth. The thorn and the briar shall be swept away, and the wilderness shall rejoice. Let us rejoice also. We shall see better days. The dreary darkness and sin that sweep along our earth shall be done away with; the dark waves of death and hell shall be beaten back. Oh, let us pray to the Lord to hasten His coming!—D. L. Moody.

SEVENTY WEEKS

DANIEL 9:24

By J. A. VanHorn

IN THE RESTITUTION HERALD of February 10, 1931, I find an article entitled, “Upon Thy People and Upon Thy Holy City”, in which the writer discusses the seventy weeks of Daniel’s prophecy (chapter 9). It seems to me the idea is conveyed that the seventy weeks have not been fulfilled. In my study of the prophecy, I have come to the conclusion that the prophecy has been fulfilled. Let’s look over the prophecy and see what we can discover.

In the eighth chapter, Daniel says, “I saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him . . . but he did according to his will, and became great. And as I was considering, behold, an he goat came from the west,” and overcame the ram.

When the goat became great, his one horn was broken, and four horns came in place of it. And out of one of the four horns there came forth a little horn, which waxed exceeding great. “And an host was given him (the little horn) against the daily sacrifice by reason of transgression, and it cast down the truth to the ground; and it practised and prospered.”

“Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto that certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed.”

Then a voice called to Gabriel, “Make this man to understand the vision.” So Gabriel came and explained everything but the time period of twenty-three hundred days. Then Daniel fainted and was sick certain days and he said, “I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it.” Why did he not understand? Everything had been explained but the twenty-three hundred days.

Then Daniel began to study the prophecy of Jeremiah, and he learned that the seventy years of captivity of Israel were about expired. So he began to pray for deliverance. Gabriel came and said, “O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding, therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision (that I explained to you at my last visit, all but the twenty-three hundred days).” Daniel 9:1-23.

Gabriel began to explain the twenty-three hundred days by saying, “Seventy weeks (of the twenty-three hundred days) are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy.

(Continued on page 664)

THE HANDIWORK OF GOD

By Mildred Crofton

*"The heavens declare the glory of God;
And the firmament sheweth his handywork.
Day unto day uttereth speech,
And night unto night sheweth knowledge."*

IT SEEMS that David spoke a great deal about the beauties of this world. His early life was spent in the open, in the fields, while he so patiently guarded the sheep. I imagine he liked to lie on the ground and dream and think. I imagine from his words that at night he liked to gaze at the myriads of stars that dotted the velvety sky.

Fortunate is the man or woman who has the capacity to enjoy nature, to see the handiwork of God in all the realm of nature, in the skies, the trees, the birds, the flowers. Appreciation is one of the things we need to learn in this life—not only appreciation of the material things of life, but appreciation of the higher, the more beautiful things, in this world. We are living here in a beautiful world and what is the use of living in it, if we have eyes and see not, and ears and hear not?

Schopenhauer defined genius as the retention of childhood throughout life, especially in the form of the ability to wonder at and to delight in everything, to find a newness and strangeness in the most familiar things, griefs as well as joys. I feel sorry for the person who is so engrossed in himself and his petty affairs that he hasn't time to listen to the song of a bird, or time to stop to look at the little flower that grows by the wayside.

Nothing brings such peace and rest to us as communion with nature. It is a balm for sore hearts, a cure for tired minds and bodies. There, in God's great cathedral, the realm of nature, can we truly worship the God of all creation. We can find a better understanding of life, an answer for all our questions.

We can find a whole crowd of sermons in some little shady spot in the woods. When we stop to rest in a place like that, alone, we seem to feel that we are in our natural environment; we seem to be living in a different world, and it seems impossible to realize that so much sin and strife are going on in the world. The rest of the world seems far away, and it seems that only beauty and goodness reign. We can worship and rest in perfect contentment. As we stop to breathe in the sweet scented air and to feel and look and listen, God actually seems so close that He, the Giver of all life, puts new life in our hearts, new thoughts in our brains.

For hundreds of years the poets have sung of the beauties of nature. They can always see beauty in everything, from an acorn or a daisy to some distant star. We cannot all be poets, but we can all see beauty if we look for it. We can, as the poets do, seek for our inspiration in nature, and truly there is no better source.

Let us take more time to "go forth under the open sky and list to Nature's teachings." Let us ever be searchers of truth and beauty, so that we may gain strength of character and beauty of intellect, so that we may "grow in grace" and ever attain higher and higher aspirations.

THE DEATH TOLL

By Elizabeth Louise May

IS IT possible? we ask ourselves, as we read in The Globe, Toronto, of July 7, 1931, the following headlines in large type: "Undertow, Rough Water Takes Lives of 14 in Ontario." Another: "$25,000,000 for Stricken West Asked" by Premier Bennett, etc. What an awful toll of human life! to say nothing about numerous other casualties, on the same date.

Do not these casualties look threatening to those who realize that there is a God, the Maker and Ruler of the universe? that He has made certain laws that must be obeyed by mankind or reap the penalty of disobedience, until the world cries aloud in its extremity for relief from miseries, to Him alone who is able to quell the winds and waves of the dreadful state of the world as it now is. Those in authority are almost at wit's end as to the best means to guide the rudder to bring about "smooth sailing" for their governments and the people.

And yet, they do not realize that such things are to come, as the Book of books states in the latter days, and these days have already begun. In Haggai 2:17 I read the following: "I smote you with blasting and with mildew and hail in all the labours of your hands; yet ye turned not to me, saith the Lord."

Also in Zechariah 7:9: "Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, saying, Execute true judgment, shew mercy and compassions every man to his brother: and oppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart. But they refused to hearken, and pulled away the shoulder, and stopped their ears, that they should not hear. Yea, they made their hearts as an adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and words which the Lord of hosts hath sent in his spirit by the former prophets; therefore came a great wrath from the Lord of hosts."

From the days of Adam and Eve the world has developed rapidly along many lines up to a certain limit. That limit has been reached when the people put far from them any acknowledgment towards the Giver of all good, the Creator of man. And forgetting God and law and righteousness as the guiding factors for private and public management, finally they are brought face to face with the fact that it is time to "take stock" and to hasten in matters needing immediate assistance, lest it be "too late, too late, ye cannot enter in", and the door of opportunity is shut finally for this day and generation, this period of the Gentile era.

THE CERTAINTY OF THE SECOND ADVENT

(Continued on page 659)

The return of our Lord is certain because God's revealed plan for the redemption of the world requires it.

Our Lord is the world's Redeemer. For this purpose He came into the world, to suffer and to die. But though His glorious work was advanced a step by His atoning sacrifice, yet it was by no means completed, as the present awful condition of the world only too well proves, and this after nearly two thousand years. According to God's revealed Word the redemption of the world requires that supreme righteous rule should be established here, and this requires a supreme righteous Ruler, such as can only be obtained by the return of the Righteous One. He alone has the requisite qualifications. So it is that the redemption of the world requires His return and cannot be accomplished without it. This also makes it certain.

Our Lord's return is certain because it was definitely promised by messengers divinely sent for that purpose, at the very time He went away.

Listen to the account of this: "And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

The same Jesus is coming down again in the same manner as He went up. The day is coming when mankind will see the heavens open, the clouds part asunder, and our Lord descending. "Behold he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him." No promise could be more definite or exact. Just as He went up, so He will return. He went up in clouds; He returns in clouds. He ascended personally; He will descend personally. The same Jesus—this Jesus. His return is certain. It is divinely promised.

His return is certain because it is the great final promise of God's Holy Word.

"He which testifieth these things, saith, Yea: I come quickly. Amen: come, Lord Jesus." A thousand years in God's sight are but as a day. Our Lord spoke of the time of His absence as "a little while." It has seemed long, but when we are enjoying with Him the bliss of eternity, it will appear but a short space of time to look back upon.

His promise is, "Yea: I come quickly." May our hearts respond in their fulness: "Amen; come, Lord Jesus." The return of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is certain.—Words of Life.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER

By Lyman Booth

IT is evident that Peter wrote to some of the churches that were founded by Paul, to corroborate his testimony and to correct those who pretended that his doctrine differed from that of the other apostles; and he sent the epistle by Sylvanus, Paul's faithful and constant helper. The epistle is dated from Babylon, in the remains or vicinity of which city it is probable a Christian church had been planted, perhaps consisting principally of the descendants of the Jews who remained in those region after the Babylonian captivity. For no satisfactory reason can be assigned for supposing, as many have done, in ancient and modern times that Babylon means Rome. Language of this kind was suited to the nature of John's Revelation, but was wholly unsuitable to the date of this letter.

We here find the same great doctrines with which Paul's epistles are replete applied to the same practical purposes. And it is peculiarly remarkable for the sweetness, gentleness, and humble love with which it is written, which indeed forms a striking contrast to the domineering pride and severity that characterizes pretended successors of this sacred writer. Various opinions have been entertained as to the time when the epistle was written; but as no certainty seems attainable it is dated according to others' opinions, in which they are by no means confident.

His name expresses his prominence in the primitive age as shown in his opening the door of salvation to the Jews on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2), and to the Gentiles also in the conversion of Cornelius (Acts 10). The powers bestowed upon him were later given to the disciples (Matt. 18:18).

His was an ardent nature, an impulsive temperament, frank and energetic. He was first to confess his Lord and first to deny Him, which denial was made with oaths, but bitterly repented. Later he made a threefold confession of his love for his Lord (John 21:15-19). Our Lord's resurrection wrought a marked change in him, and ever afterwards he was bold and steadfast except in one instance (Gal. 2:11), when he drew back at Antioch from fellowship with Gentile Christians and was rebuked by Paul, a rebuke which for only a short time disturbed the love which he held for Paul (2 Peter 3:15).

Peter's labors are recorded in Acts first, twelfth, and fifteenth chapters. He was very prominent in church work, but after his miraculous release from Herod's prison, we lose sight of him till he appears at the council at Jerusalem, where though he did not preside, yet he aided greatly in the settlement of the important question of the relation of the Gentile Christians to the Mosaic law. Paul mentions him (1 Cor. 9:15) as engaged, in company with his wife, in missionary journeys and labors. To him was committed the apostleship of the circumcision (Gal. 2:8). He seems to have labored at Corinth (1 Cor. 1:12, 3:22) and Babylon (1 Peter 5:13); but his movements seem to be veiled in obscurity.

Papal writers would have us believe that he was bishop of Rome and resided there for twenty-five years. But strange to say Paul never once mentioned Peter in his epistle to the Romans, though he sent several salutations to leading Christians living there. Nor does it appear in the inspired narrative, in the Acts, or from Paul's other epistles from Rome, that Peter was there during his imprisonment, during the years from 61 to 63 (Acts 28:14-31), or that Peter had previously been there at all. There is no evidence in the Bible that Peter held any supremacy over any successor, as papal tradition claims.

the other apostles, much less that it was transmittable to Peter was probably induced to write this epistle because he had learned by Sylvanus (5:12) that the Jewish Christians were exposed to a very severe and cruel persecution and were accused of being evildoers and of preaching revolutionary doctrines (2:15, 16). A wave of the most bitter hatred was sweeping over the Roman Empire against the name of "Christian" (4:16). Accordingly the Apostle felt bound to comfort the members of these churches which were suffering from the storm of fiery trials and to encourage them to stand fast in the faith.

A brief summary may be given as follows. After a salutation, he speaks of the necessity and transitory nature of earthly trials (1:1-12). He exhorts them by a holy life to follow Christ, who died to purchase their salvation (1:13; 2:10). He then gives practical advice as to their duties as citizens, slaves, husbands, wives (2:13; 3:7). He earnestly exhorts them to unity, peaceableness, sanctification, with a warning of the second advent and a reference to the previous judgments of God on those who neglected the preaching of Noah (3:8; 4:6).

In view of future judgment, he bids them love one another and to regard the fiery trial they may be called upon to endure as no strange thing, but a cause of joy. He enjoins a ready surrender to the will of God (4:7-19). Finally he exhorts those in office in the church to feed the flock, the younger to submit to the elders, and all to be on the watch against the common enemy (5:1-9). He ends with a prayer for their preservation and perfection (5:10-14).

HE LOVED HIS ENEMY

DURING the American Revolutionary War there was living, in Pennsylvania, Peter Miller, pastor of a little Baptist Church. Near the church lived a man who secured an unenviable notoriety by his abuse of Miller and the Baptists. He was also guilty of treason, and was for this sentenced to death. No sooner was sentence pronounced than Peter Miller set out on foot to visit General Washington, at Philadelphia, to intercede for the man's life. He was told that his prayer could not be granted. "My friend," exclaimed Miller, "I have not a worse enemy living than that man." "What," rejoined Washington, "you have walked sixty miles to save the life of your enemy? That in my judgment puts the matter in a different light. I will grant you his pardon." The pardon was made out, and Miller at once proceeded on foot to a place fifteen miles distant, where the execution was to take place on the afternoon of the same day. He arrived just as the man was being carried to the scaffold. This man, seeing Miller in the crowd, remarked, "There is old Peter Miller. He has walked all the way from Ephrata to have his revenge gratified today by seeing me hung." These words were scarcely spoken before Miller gave him his pardon, and his life was spared. It is possible to kill our enemies by kindness.—W. S. Bowden in Our Hope.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

WHEN WILL HE COME

Closing the book I've been reading—

Putting work and amusements away—
Shall I need them again on the morrow?
Will He come ere the dawn of the day?

Raising my head from the pillow,
Opening my eyes to the light—
Have I slept my last sleep ere I see Him?
Will He come ere the fall of the night?

Watching the sun in his glory,
As he sinks to his rest in the skies,
When the gold-tinted clouds shall unfold Him,
Will the Sun of Righteousness rise?

Will He come while the tempest is raging,
And the wind falls so mournfully round?
Will He come when the snowflakes are falling?
And the frost hath smitten the ground?

Will He come on some calm Sabbath morning
When chimes of church bells fill the air?
When the organ's rich echoes are thrilling
His house of thanksgiving and prayer?

Kneeling down at the feast He has ordered—
"Do this," He has said, "till I come"—
As I meet Him in holy communion,
Shall I hear His voice calling me home?

Keep me ready, dear Master, to greet Thee—
Grant me grace to obey Thy command
To wait—and to pray—and watch daily,
Remembering, "The Lord is at hand".

—Selected.

NEEDS OF YOUNG PEOPLE

The commission on Worship and Prayer in the Youth Conference of North America held at Toronto, made the following statement on worship:

Among the many values of worship that may be experienced, we feel that the following are of special significance for young people:

1. An intensified awareness of God and reverence for Him.
2. An insight into the purposes of God and one's individual relation to those purposes.
3. A realization of personal needs.
4. An insight into the needs of others and an appreciation of their worth.
5. A realization of the power of God as a resource for abundant living.
6. A sense of peace and poise growing out of a conscious harmony with the will and purpose of God.

SEVENTY WEEKS

(Continued from page 660)

"Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem (457 B. C.) unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks (69 weeks, 483 years): the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times (during seven weeks).

"And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off."

How long after the threescore and two weeks? Seven weeks and threescore and two weeks or 69 weeks, 483 years. This brings us to the anointing or the baptism of Jesus, or the coming of the Messiah the Prince.

"And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week (the seventieth week): and in the midst of the week (or middle of the week) he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease." The Messiah is cut off three years and one-half after the sixty-nine weeks or 483 years. Now we have one-half week or three and one-half years left of the 490 years allotted to Israel and Jerusalem. "He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week (seven years)."

Jesus Himself preached to the Jews exclusively for three and one-half years, and His disciples continued to preach to the Jews exclusively for three and one-half years. Then they turned to the Gentiles (Acts 10:28), which finishes the seventy weeks, 490 years, allotted to Israel and Jerusalem.

If the transgression referred to means the rejection and killing the Messiah, it has been finished. And if everlasting righteousness means that Jesus is our Righteousness (Jer. 33:15, 16; 23:6; 2 Cor. 5:21), it has been brought in during the seventy weeks. If it has not been brought in, what will become of all the apostles and those who have professed to be Christians all these years since that time? There is no time to become righteous after one is dead.

If a sinner comes to Jesus and claims the blood atonement, and grace or undeserved favor is extended to him, Paul says he is not under the law, but under grace. To be under the law is to be subject to the penalty for transgression. For example, we had a man convicted of cattle stealing sentenced to six years in the penitentiary. He was under the law good and plenty. But the governor granted him a pardon, and he went home, a free man—under the grace of the governor. If he should get caught stealing again, he would be put under the law again.

"For sin shall not have dominion over you, for ye are not under the law, but under grace." Praise God for the privilege!

"And to make an end of sins" has surely been fulfilled in the seventy weeks. For Paul says, "But now once in the end of the world hath he (Jesus) appeared to put away sin (make an end of sin), by the sacrifice of himself." Hebrews 9:26.

The angel said to Daniel, "Unto twenty-three hundred days THEN shall the sanctuary be cleansed." Evidently, twenty-three hundred years from 457 B. C. I do not feel able to write about the cleansing of the sanctuary until I receive more grace and wisdom.

I hope all my readers will get under the blood atonement and have the righteousness of the Christ imputed unto them, so that they may stand before God, justified. And may God bless you, and keep you, and make His face to shine upon you, to the forgiveness of your sins and the healing of all your sicknesses. Amen.

CREATION'S CRYING NEED

(Continued from front page)

Think of the enormous number of inventions from earliest times until now that can be and indeed have been utilized by men for both good and evil purposes. Take the simple piece of wire or iron pointed at one end and headed at the other, and known to us as the nail. Everybody knows its usefulness in holding pieces of wood together when driven in with a hammer. Scarcely any useful article of wood is made without nails; and yet wrongly used nails became the instruments of torture and death to the Savior of the world.

Take the compass and many other nautical instruments. The mariner is able to steer a correct course when there is neither light nor visible star to guide him on the trackless seas, so that he may reach his port with his merchandise and human souls in safety. At such times men may bless God for such inventions. But the same instruments have been used to bring death and destruction to both life and property during wars. At such times and in such cases men's inventions become a curse.

It is evident then that all inventions of men lend themselves to wrong uses; and when that is done they become, as already shown, a curse rather than a blessing, for they draw men away from God the Source of all life and blessing.

VAIN IMAGINATIONS; INVENTORS OF EVIL THINGS

How men have wandered from God is set out clearly enough in sacred history.

In Romans 1:20-23 the Apostle shows that the visible creation—sun, moon, stars, and earth—is sufficient evidence that behind it all is a mighty God of great glory and power. Although but little might be known of Him beyond what is expressed in the visible creation, He is the One to bow down to and to glorify and to be thankful to continually, realizing that it is "in him we live, and move, and have our being" as part of His creation. But instead of doing this the foolish people, failing to be thankful and to glorify the Maker of these things, "became vain in their imaginations" and worshiped the things themselves.

Undoubtedly it is a vain imagination which seeks to regard the things made as greater than the Maker. From this beginning their hearts were darkened to all subsequent truth and light. "Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools," and passed from one object to another in the downward trend of idolatry.

What seems to have been the earliest object of idolatrous worship was the Sun. Temples were erected and priests ordained for its worship; and the Hebrews must have been aware of this worship during their captivity in Egypt, for there were priests of On—a temple erected to the Sun. (Genesis 41:45; compare Jeremiah 43:13, margin.) The moon and the stars also had their places in idolatrous worship of ancient times, and to this day all three are worshiped in some parts of the earth.

In this determination of men to worship the creature rather than the Creator, God ultimately "gave them over to a reprobate mind," or (margin) "a mind void of judgment." That is, He did not seek to restrain them in their downward course. And that in its turn meant a drop into a degradation unparalleled even in the animal creation.

Following the worship of the heavenly bodies men used their constructive abilities in the service of further idolatry, and there followed the worship of Baal and other deities. These all had their images, groves, temples, altars, and priests, and when the Israelites entered Canaan such worship was universal amongst the Canaanites and the surrounding nations.

The God-given ability of men to carve wood and stone and to mold clay into shapes of animals, birds, fish, or men would have been quite a harmless practice if men had been careful to attribute such ability to God, had kept Him only in mind in their worship, and had given Him the glory. But instead they worshiped the images their own hands had made, attributing to blocks of wood and stone marvelous powers having both good and evil things in their control, and being of such uncertain temper that they needed to be propitiated by sacrifices and offerings, often human beings.

It was to idolatrous worship that the Pyramids of Egypt—amongst the seven wonders of the world—owed their origin. They were constructed as the burial places of the kings, for the worship of the heavenly bodies and of the spirits of deceased monarchs. They belong therefore to the vain imaginations and inventions of their day.

Israel being surrounded by all this welter of idolatry were frequently drawn by it away from the worship of the true God, notwithstanding all the evidences they had witnessed of His care over and love for them as children of Abraham. This fact particularly impresses us with the proneness of the human heart to take its own course; of its unwillingness to submit to the Divine will. And the heart of man remains much the same today.

VAIN PHILOSOPHICAL INVENTIONS

ALTHOUGH it is true that idolatry in its grosser forms and the vain imaginings which are so obviously vain have largely passed out of human life, there remain others which have captivated men and held them in bondage and darkness as great as ever. These are the inventions of philosophy. Philosophies are efforts to come to the light and truth, especially concerning the cause and origin of things, without the aid of Divine revelation.

On the face of it this is impossible. All secrets belong to the Almighty in the first place, and only as far as He is willing to reveal them can they be known. Anyone unwilling to accept the Divine revelation must and will remain in the dark. Philosophy can make no real contribution to the truth. It is therefore a valueless, useless thing. It is no more effective in bringing true wisdom to men than is human self-government successful in bringing life and happiness to mankind.

ANOTHER THING THAT HAS FAILED

HUMAN self-government has failed because it also has attempted to carry on without God and without consideration of His commandments. The human race has now had about eighty centuries of experience and effort at managing its own affairs, and the present state of the world is a complete demonstration of its failure.

But even if human governments had succeeded in solving the one problem of extreme wealth on the one hand and poverty on the other (which they have never done, to say nothing of the thousands of other problems), there still would have been the major problems of sin and death which they can never touch. And indeed there is nothing that men can think out, invent, or do that will effectually remove the universal groaning. They can add to it, and that is about what they have done. The matter is too deep for them.

Men themselves need to be delivered from all their follies exhibited by all their own efforts to go on without God. And that deliverance is coming when the sons of God are manifested. Then will be instituted the kingdom in which these sons will be high officials under Christ to bless the whole creation.—From The New Covenant Advocate.

“FOR CHARLEY’S SAKE”

By Rufus A. Curtis

MANY years ago, the writer heard a person relate the following incident, that occurred during the civil war.

One of the soldiers, being so severely wounded that his injuries subsequently proved fatal was tenderly cared for by one of his comrades. As his life was slowly ebbing away, he scribbled the following words on a scrap of paper, addressed to his parents, “Receive the bearer of this paper, for Charley’s sake. He has befriended me in my dying hours.”

After this tragedy of war, the survivor, who had ministered to the pressing needs of his dying comrade, presented the paper, with the brief message it contained, to the parents of the deceased soldier. When they saw the familiar handwriting of their son Charles, they lavished all the comforts of their home, and the deepest affection of their hearts upon the stranger who had befriended their only son.

Any deeds of kindness, any words of hope and encouragement, any look of sympathy and approval, bestowed upon those we love, are the keys that unlock the door to our hearts for the benefactors who have cast their “bread upon the waters,” to be found “after many days”.

The soldier who had so mercifully cared for his wounded comrade and had striven to alleviate his sufferings without hope of reward, had cast his bread of human sympathy and compassionate helpfulness upon time’s surging sea, to be, in the providence of God, found “after many days.” When he was homeless and friendless, the little slip of paper was amply sufficient to secure for him, for the remainder of his days, the comforts of home, the joys of companionship, and the repose so needful, as life’s sunset is reached. All this was done for the sake of another—“for Charley’s sake.”

After thinking over the above incident that happened many, many years ago, and after reading the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew, the writer thought that it is certainly possible for Christians to do something for Jesus’ sake, by ministering unto His suffering and needy people.

“And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one Matt. 25:40.

of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.”

“And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men; knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ.”

Let all things be done

AS UNTO HIM

“Whatever you think, both in joy and in woe,
Think nothing you would not like Jesus to know.
Whatever you say, in a whisper or clear,
Say nothing you would not like Jesus to hear.
Whatever you read, though the page may allure,
Read nothing unless you are perfectly sure
Consternation would not be seen in your look,
If God should say solemnly, ‘Show me that book!’
Whatever you write with haste or with heed,
Write nothing you would not like Jesus to read;
Whatever you sing, in the midst of your glees,
Sing nothing that God’s listening ear could displease;
Wherever you go, never go where you’d fear
God’s question being asked you,
‘What doest thou here?’”

DELEGATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE

ON PAGE 663 will be found the delegate blank to be filled out by your church for attendance at General Conference. It is most important that all churches be represented and have a voice in all matters of business, also to have the opportunity of studying spiritual problems peculiar to all sections of the country. Individual members of all the churches are also urged to be present. If you are interested in the work, be in attendance at the WORKERS CONFERENCE, August 4 to 16.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"THE HEAVENS DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD, AND THE FIRMAMENT SHEWETH HIS HANDYWORK."

THE CHRISTIAN'S FAITH IN GOD

FOR a number of years it has become increasingly evident that many are beginning to doubt the existence of a Supreme Being. Particularly is this true among younger people, especially college students who have been taught all the modern tendencies concerning Christianity.

They demand proof of God's existence; they declare that such a being cannot be and that it is silly to be preaching a God we have never heard, and praying to a God we have never seen.

Their reasoning is about as good as that of a certain infidel in a western town who, in order to prove there was no God, took out his watch and said, "If there IS a God, I defy Him to strike me dead within the next ten minutes." When the time elapsed, he replaced his watch and declared that there was no such thing as God.

From time immemorial the existence of a higher power than ourselves has been recognized and accepted by every nation. This belief varied from the Grecian faith in gods and goddesses and their Elysium, to the Indian's acceptance of the Sun as the Great Spirit and their Happy Hunting Ground. Different though they were, it is significant that even savages should thus recognize a power higher than themselves.

Belief in and knowledge of one Supreme Being must originate within ourselves. We must feel the presence of the Creator in our surroundings. We must have simple, implicit faith before we can recognize a God. As Paul said, "But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Is there a God? We stroll through the fields and woods, admiring the beautiful flowers and trees on every hand. We see the giant oak, stretching its top into the air; we glance down at a little brook; we see the birds, the trees, the flowers, and the hills in all their grandeur, and we realize as never before the existence of a great Supreme Being. Surely no such organization, perfection, and beauty could have just happened! We know and feel within ourselves the presence of a divine creative power, manifest in very nature itself.

We go out into the starlit sky and gaze into the heavens.

We try to fathom the limitless space above us, but our finite minds become exhausted trying to reach the infinite. An overpowering sense of the weakness and frailty of man steals over us, and again there comes that peculiar humble consciousness of the existence of a living, all-powerful Creator. Surely David rightly declared, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handywork."

We approach a church and hear the strains of a beautiful song. As we listen, the spirit and sacredness of the service seem to pervade the whole atmosphere, and there sweeps over us again that indescribable feeling of humility and awe of an unseen force.

Belief in Jehovah necessitates faith—faith that withstands adversity and modernism. Not until we experience the grand sublime truth within ourselves can we fully comprehend and accept the Bible as the Word of God. Not until we sense the presence and power of God, emanating from our very surroundings, can we know and believe in Him.

May each of us strive earnestly to acquire that deep-rooted faith so essential to our belief in Jehovah. After all, it is just through faith that Christians live and die in hope of a future life, faith that becomes an integral part of all their actions, thoughts, or deeds. As long as we possess that kind of faith, our belief in the existence of God will never waver.

Harry Goekler, Marshall, Illinois.

NATIONAL BEREAN DAY

NATIONAL Berean Day will be observed on August 10, during the General Conference held at Oregon, Illinois. All Bereans will enjoy this day. Be in attendance and learn what other societies are doing.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 23; Ohio, 16; California, 10; Michigan, 8; Indiana 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

PHILIP'S MISSIONARY LABORS

IN OUR last story we read how the Christians scattered and went into many other countries, where they carried the story of Jesus. Among these scattered Christians was Philip, one of the seven deacons. He went to Samaria and preached Christ to the Samaritans, also healing and helping them so much that they were very happy.

One day the angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, telling him to go south, out on a lonely, desert road between Jerusalem and Gaza. Now Philip did not stop to find excuses for not going, nor to argue that he could do more good among more people by staying in Samaria. Instead, he went right out, at once, ready to do whatever God wanted him to do.

Coming down this desert road was a man from Ethiopia, riding in a chariot. His office was very responsible and of high rank, as he had charge of Queen Candace's treasures and jewels. We would call him a treasurer. In some way he had become a believer in the Jewish religion; for he was returning from worship in Jerusalem, and as he rode along was very much interested in reading aloud from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah.

When he came near the place where Philip was waiting, God told Philip to go with the Ethiopian. Philip was so eager to do as God wished that he ran to meet the stranger. Upon hearing what the treasurer was reading, Philip asked him if he understood it.

The man invited Philip to ride with him, and then replied, "How can I, if no one helps me?" He asked if Isaiah was writing of himself or of someone else in the verse: "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth."

Philip explained to him that Jesus was the Lamb that had been slain. He made it so plain about Jesus and what the Ethiopian must do if he wanted to be saved, that when they came to a place where there was water enough the Ethiopian asked why he couldn't be baptized there. Philip said he might, if he believed with all his heart.

The treasurer replied, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Then they stopped the chariot and "they went both down into the water," and Philip baptized the treasurer, who then went on his way rejoicing over his new and more precious treasure.

Now this is what God had brought Philip down to do, and so when this work was accomplished, the Spirit of the Lord caught him away for some other duty.

Are you ready, like Philip, to obey when you are asked to do things? And are you studying, like the Ethiopian, so that you may be baptized? God wants each one of us, as well as the many to be His children and helpers. His call is to the one, as well as the many.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Isaiah 53.
2. Find Egypt, Gaza, and Samaria on the map.
3. Act out this story.
4. Make a desert in sand.

WE BELIEVE: When Jesus returns He will give to everyone according to his deeds—"To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life." Rom. 2:7.

Jesus will give eternal life.

ROBERT'S PLAN

WHEN Robert and Dick were walking home from Sunday School one Sunday morning, Dick said, "I don't see how our teacher expects us to live up to the Bible. I can't understand a lot of it even when she reads it."

"W-e-l-l," said Robert, "neither can I, all that she reads. But there are so many short verses I do understand, and it keeps me so busy living up to them that I don't think much about the parts I don't understand."

"I don't know what you mean, Robert," said Dick.

"Sometimes it isn't so easy," admitted Robert, "but you can try. Now there is the verse about loving one another. I thought I didn't like James, the new boy, when I first met him. But I tried to like him, and now I do, just because I tried to know him. Then the Golden Rule is easy to understand but hard to live up to. There is, 'Thou shalt not steal,' and 'Thou shalt not tell untruths,' and 'Remember the sabbath day,' and ever so many more. Why, Dick, I am so busy trying to live up to the verses I do understand that I don't have time to think about the parts I don't understand."—Selected.

"If little children everywhere

Would be as good to others,
As little children's mothers are
To them and to their brothers,
A very fine world this would be,
It really, truly seems to me."

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 5. — August 2, 1931

PHILIP'S MISSIONARY LABORS

Acts 8:5-40

Devotional Reading: Matthew 13:3b-9

GOLDEN TEXT

Therefore they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word.—Acts 8:4.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. The Gospel Breaks Over the Frontier.

Basic Truth. "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations."—Matt. 24:14.

Outline. I. Judaism versus Christianity. II. Pioneering for Jesus. III. Beyond the Frontier.

I. Judaism versus Christianity. The Jewish religion in the days of Christ was a pretense of obedience to God's instructions as given through Moses. Israel (of which nation Judah was a member) was by God selected and separated from all other nations to become God's "holy nation". Ex. 19:5, 6; Deut. 14:1, 2; 26:1, 18, 19. For this nation God selected a special land. Gen. 13:14-18; 15:18; 17:8; Deut. 34:4. There the nation was to dwell and worship and serve God. Neighboring nations were invited into their fellowship with God but Israel was forbidden to migrate and mingle with other nations.

Christianity was the reverse. It was built upon the great truth of God to be implanted in and become a part of the life of the individual believer. Its mission was to "GO". It was to be sent into "all the world". Mark 16:15, 16. People of "all nations" were alike offered its truths and its blessings.

Israelitish citizens were urged to abide in their own land. Dispersion was a punishment.

Christians were urged to go to the farthest ends of the world. Dispersion was a duty.

Judaism invited others into its blessings. Christianity went afield to carry blessings to others.

II. Pioneering for Jesus. As the Christians left the gates of Jerusalem behind them and traversed the hills and vales in all directions, they commenced a work which was to extend unto the farthest shores of earth. Like pioneers in other fields of activity, theirs it was to blaze the trails that would lead over the frontiers into hitherto unexplored regions. These Christians went not as visitors and guests; they went as workers and conquerors. Naturally at every frontier they crossed, they were regarded as intruders. It was theirs to correct the religious errors of every people, of Judaism and all forms of idolatrous worship. As in Jerusalem, so in Caesarea, Antioch, Asia, Europe, they were regarded as intruders, imposters, blasphemers. They were witnessing for Jesus, His name, His cause. His work was by them to be planted beyond the frontiers.

III. Beyond the Frontier. Hazardous to life and limb is the work of him who would explore and settle a new field. At this writing Sir Wilkins is preparing for a submarine exploration to the North Pole. No one can accurately foresee his dangers. And yet he and his crew have considerably accepted the task, be the result what it may—this, too, in a merely human material exploration.

Peter and John and Stephen and Philip and others, led by the spirit of God into labors yet practically new to themselves, went forward in the strength of faith and spirit unto their tasks. They must expect that practically everyone would fall upon the shores of their new enterprises. Such is the price of pioneering. The eunuch of Ethiopia planted the gospel of Christ in the heart of Africa; Philip and Peter established it along the Mediterranean shore. Peter planted its truths in Babylon's soil. 1 Peter. 1:13. Paul traversed Asia, Greece, Macedonia, Rome, Spain, and probably Britain.

Interesting beyond expression is the study of the advance of Christ's truths into the fields of Europe and America. Here, and especially in America, has Christianity established and manifested itself most wonderfully.

It is strikingly interesting to glean from the pages of history the fact that people of ten of the tribes of God's chosen nation, having been removed in punishment from the land of Samaria by the Assyrians, migrated across and around the waters of the Black and Caspian seas, ascended the European rivers into the very heart of barbarian portions of Europe, crossed the seas to the British Isles and from thence the ocean to the continent of the west. Add to this the further important fact that Christianity, breaking the shackles of Rome's fetters, followed in the wake of the migration of chosen national people, revealing to them in the homes of their foreign lands the Messiah of the God of their forefathers and the salvation and blessings that are obtainable through Him.

Gradually the frontier that at first was next to Jerusalem enlarged in an ever widening circle; faithful messengers continued to cross and forge still farther forward with the everlasting gospel in their hands, binding it upon the foreheads and hands of the descendants of God's chosen nation and of all others, that the ends of the earth might know the joys and the blessings and the hopes of God's love and mercy through Jesus Christ, His Son.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Our lesson today deals with the missionary labors of Philip. Philip was a missionary because the Spirit of God had led him into missionary fields. The gospel of salvation, which has brought salvation to sinners, hope to the despondent, cheer to the sorrowful, and peace to troubled minds, has been carried by missionaries. All hail! All hail! to the missionaries who have braved the dangers of foreign fields, trusting in God for their daily bread and sustenance. It is they who are really and truly fulfilling the Christ-given commission, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature". They scatter sunshine in the darkened lands, while we stay at home and enjoy it. They teach God as One who is not a "respector of persons", while we confine our labors as though He were. Surely as a church we will not be able to share much of the joy of spreading the gospel to them "that sit in darkness" in other lands.

Do the following scriptures teach missionary efforts?

"For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Luke 19:10.

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." Luke 24:47.

"Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts 1:8.

Name some of the other great missionaries of the Bible; some of the great missionaries of recent times.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Therefore, they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word."—Acts 8:4.

Persecution of the church to the extent that many were driven into other places did not lessen their zeal for the word of God. Through their scattering, the gospel was preached by them in distant places. This was a noble example. So many times when Christians move into a new neighborhood, they hide, as it were, their light under a bushel, instead of telling the gospel message to those about them.

Some of these that were scattered went as far as Antioch and preached to the Jews only. The hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed, and turned to the Lord. See Acts 11:19-21. These men were literally driven out of Jerusalem, but they found new fields in which to work. They were not disheartened, but went on bravely preaching the word of God. These must have been true Christians, who had the love of Christ in their hearts, so much so that they were anxious to let others share the good news. Can we do as much?—L. A. R.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

General and Illinois, Oregon, Aug. 4 to 16
 Nebraska, Holbrook Aug. 15 to 23
 Virginia, Maurertown, August 20 to 30
 Iowa, Waterloo, August 22 to 30
 Kansas, Arkansas City, August 23 to 31

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

A fine line up of teachers is planned this year for Illinois Bible School. Special consideration has been given the various groups that are expected to be in attendance, and we trust that all will receive much benefit.

Don't forget the dates—August 4 to 16.

FROM HERE AND THERE

We are glad to report that Sr. Alice Crysler, of Golden Rule Home, is able to be out again and was in attendance at church services a week ago.

Word comes from Bro. Austin to the effect that a fine conference was held in Texas with good attendance. However they didn't need overcoats in order to keep comfortable.

Sr. M. A. Woodward is making a two weeks' visit at Rockford, Illinois, with her grandchildren, Bro. and Sr. John Railton and family, and with friends there.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone, who came to Oregon, Illinois, from the Indiana Conference, reported that the brethren were enjoying an unusually good meeting there, with a fine Bible School.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone, of the N. B. I. Training Class, began a series of meetings at Bosworth, Missouri, on July 21 to continue over the following Sunday. We trust these meetings will be of spiritual uplift to the brethren and be the means of bringing others to Christ.

Those in attendance at General and Illinois Conference and Bible School who desire rooms outside the dormitory, write to Miss Elizabeth Ordnung, Oregon, Illinois, and she will take care of your needs.

A good representation is urged from all the churches in Illinois at the coming conference at Oregon. Bear in mind that this is your conference, the place where your problems can be studied and your needs can be considered. Be present to present your own and help solve those of others. Let us work while it is called day. The King's business requires our very best support.

The dates are August 4 to 16.

DELEGATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE

On Page 663 will be found the delegate blank to be filled out by your church for attendance at General Conference. It is most important that all church be represented and have a voice in all matters of business, also to have the opportunity of studying spiritual problems peculiar to all sections of the country. Individual members of all the churches are also urged to be present. If you are interested in the work, be in attendance at the Workers' Conference, August 4 to 16.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."
 —Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota.
 Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
 Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
 Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
 Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
 Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
 Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
 Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25
 Sumas, Washington
 Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
 Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
 Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
 Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

"Musical Sunday", July 12, passed off with a splendid crowd, and all seemed to appreciate the numbers given. Besides other special features our own orchestra gave two selections which showed wonderful development for the short time they have worked together.

At the close of the services at noon some thirty of us with our baskets drove fifty-five miles to Sr. Cronk's home, where picnic dinner was eaten, and a sermon and communion were joined in to cheer this isolated and lonely sister in her advanced years.

By the time we drove home for the evening service it had been a full, hard day, but all were happy for having served.

The next Sunday to report on will be "Park Sunday."

F. E. Siple, pastor.

ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

The class here is rejoicing and giving God glory for the many blessings we are receiving. On Sunday, July 12th, Miss Cornelia Hains was buried with Christ by baptism into death, that she might rise to walk in newness of life, well knowing that if she was planted in the likeness of His death, she shall also be in the likeness of His resurrection. May God keep her in the narrow way which leads to life and immortality.

Yours in hope,
 George A. Waters.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Rosa McCurry; E. W. Johnson; Anna D. Springer; Mrs. W. W. Cooper; L. D. Decker; Mrs. M. D. Newell; J. W. Grimsley; Lydia Mathes; George A. Waters; Charles Suthard; C. E. Randall.

AT BURR OAK

Bro. Sydney Magaw is holding a series of meetings, D. V., this week at the Burr Oak, Indiana, church, beginning July 21 and continuing over the 26th. Bro. C. A. Smead of the N. B. I. Training Class is pastor of the Burr Oak church and will assist at these services.

MEETINGS AT ADELINE

Bro. C. E. Lapp will be with the congregation at Adeline, Illinois, next Sunday, July 26, both morning and evening. All those finding it possible to attend will be benefited and will also encourage the brethren there.

MEETINGS AT RIPLEY

On the evening of Tuesday, July 7, Bro. S. J. Lindsay opened meetings at Ripley, which continued throughout the week, closing Sunday evening. This has been his first visit to the Ripley church for a number of years and many old friends were there to welcome him back.

Bro. Lindsay gave some very fine sermons which were appreciated, not only by the local brethren, but by a great many outsiders. Many of the Camden and Rushville people turned out to hear their old time friend. Sr. Lucille LeCrone gave a short sermon Saturday evening, followed by Bro. Lindsay.

On Sunday morning he gave a splendid discourse on baptism. After the annual picnic dinner Brothers Orville Lynd and Lawrence Robbins were buried by baptism into Christ, that they too might be ready to meet our Savior when He comes. We hope and pray that they will both be firm and true to their confession and be a great blessing to the brethren there.

The Sunday evening sermon was given by Bro. C. E. Lapp to a crowded house. We trust much good will result from these meetings.

DOINGS AT DIXON

The Joy class was entertained recently by their teacher, Mrs. Ford. Games were played, and music added to the amusement of the afternoon. Prizes were won by several of the children also. Refreshments were served and enjoyed by all of the children. Mrs. Ford is a wonderful example for a teacher. The children all love her.

The name of her class tells the story of how she teaches them.

J stands for Jesus; we think of Him first;
 O for others who come next,
 Y for yourself, to come last of all.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay will speak for us next Sunday, July 26.

Bro. M. W. Perrine has been visiting among the church folks here the past week.

Bro. and Sr. Conner are entertaining their daughter, Corinne, of Akron, Ohio.

The Sunday School picnic will be held on July 23, at Lawrence Park, Sterling.

Sr. Reis has been on the sick list for several weeks. Her improvement is not very satisfactory.

Grace Drew.

NEWS FROM LOS ANGELES

The Berean class is studying the epistle to the Ephesians during the vacation season. We were happy to have a number of out of town friends in attendance on the 8th, namely, Sr. Esther Holmes and son Paul of Bodfish, California; Bro. L. M. Finch and Sr. Belle Hartman of Springfield, Ohio; Brothers J. Homer and Howard Overholser, also of Springfield; Sr. Wilda Fletcher and two daughters of Fonthill, Ontario. Sr. Lydia Saylor conducted the lesson and much interest was manifested. Sr. Eva L. Stearns of Rapid City, South Dakota, is spending a few weeks here and has consented to conduct our class lesson next week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. George J. Rahn of El Centro, on June 30th, a daughter, who will be known as Lois June. The temperature in Imperial Valley at this season keeps around the 115 mark, and Sr. Rahn and three younger children are spending the vacation in Los Angeles.

Mrs. D. B. Jackson, who has suffered long and patiently for several months, fell asleep on June 30.

On the evening of July 10 Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Stantial entertained the church members and their friends at their new home at 2335 S. Highland Ave. The gathering was in the nature of a house warming for the Stantials and a miscellaneous shower for Sr. Nina Blackwell, who is to be married August 2nd to Mr. K. J. Olesen.

A few of the local church members had the unique experience recently of attending a funeral conducted by the Rosencian Society. This is a mystic secret society founded by a German named Roseneranz, about A. D. 1388. They are called also Brothers of the Rosy Cross. A daughter of the deceased woman conducted the services. She first saluted the audience with, "May the roses always bloom on your cross", and they replied, "And on your also." She then read a few Scripture selections followed by the reading of a paper, the essence of which was that mourning should be indulged in at birth rather than at death. She was followed by an assistant, reading a poem entitled, "There is no Death". A period of silence followed for communication with the unseen spirits. No prayer was offered. The entire spirit of the service was that of rejoicing rather than mourning. It was just another phase of the old, old falsehood told in the Garden of Eden, Gen. 3:4, "Thou shalt not surely die."

NOTICE OF AMENDMENTS

Notice is hereby given of proposed amendments to the constitution of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus. The proposed amendments are as follows:

Amendment to Article III, Sec. 3: "The terms of office shall regularly begin at the close of the session at which officers are elected, said terms to continue for one year, or until successors are duly elected and qualified; excepting that the four extra Board members shall hold office for two years."

Amendment to Article IV, Sec. 2: "Two Board members shall be elected each year at the annual meeting and shall hold office for two years. They shall be elected by ballot, nominations having been made from the floor, and the two receiving the highest number of votes at first ballot shall be declared elected."

Leila E. Whitehead
Ester L. Starbuck
Committee.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

Among the following classes you will find a place of benefit and interest:

Adult Class — teachers, Bros. Conner and Gordon.

Senior Young People — Bros. Austin and Lapp.

Junior Young People — Bros. Marsh and Gordon.

Intermediates — Bro. Thayer.

Primary — Sr. Thayer.

TITHING IN HARD TIMES

This year you can plan a Tithing Campaign with cash savings of $30 to $40 in current expense, if your church uses a printed weekly Bulletin.

Twelve New Laymen Bulletins are ready including one specially written for this hour: "Tithing in Hard Times".

The Laymen Bulletins, now 32 in number, are printed in the regular two page church bulletin size, with two pages blank for your own Bulletin material. This saves one-half your printing cost, not counting cost of paper. Here are our Bulletin prices: Sample set, 20 cents; 40 cents per 100; $3.00 per 1000.

Send for free leaflet, "Teaching the Church to Tithe" and complete list of Bulletins and other Tithing literature.

Please give your denomination, also please mention The Restitution Herald.

THE LAYMAN COMPANY,

730 Rush St., Chicago, Illinois.

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION

Dear Editor and Friends of "A Faithful Messenger: The Restitution Herald of July 7, has come brimful, so to speak, of spiritual food for the inner man. Eph. 3:16; John 2:1, 7, 10. "The Predicted Signs of the Lord's Coming", by Alice B. Curtis, graciously takes the lead, and so nobly answers the inquiry, "Are They in the Past?" "The third day" spoken of in John 2 was an eight day feast. Num. 29:35; Lev. 23:35-39. "The last, the great day of the feast," spoken of in John 7:37, was the eighth day of the feast. Referring to Mark 13:37, as Bro. E. E. Giesler said, we must have passed the "cock crowing and are in the morning watch."

Let us go over now and live with the children on Page 636. The four verses of poetry remind us of Bro. A. J. Chaplin's poem, "Odors and Flowers", written shortly before his death.

Yours in hope of life,

R. A. Humphreys.

THE HOLY SPIRIT

We do right in the study of this quarter's lessons to carefully study the holy spirit. That "Spirit" sometimes refers to God Himself is evident from John 4:24: "God is spirit."—Diag. Spirit is also used of Christ in 1 Cor. 15:45: "The last Adam was made a quickening spirit." Of the angels, Paul quotes in Heb. 1:14: "Are they not all ministering spirits?"

"Spirit" is elsewhere and frequently used of an influence, or rather of an element rising in God and issuing forth from Him. Gen. 6:3: "My spirit shall not always strive with man"; Psa. 104:30: "Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created"; Matt. 3:16: "He saw the spirit of God descending"; Acts 11:16: "John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost". (I. e., with holy spirit. "Ghost" is, in the Revised Version, always changed to "spirit", and in this text there is no article "the" preceding "Holy Ghost". Holy Ghost is here an element contrasted with water, the element used by John.) Also Acts 2:4; 4:8; 9:17; 13:9, etc: "filled with the Holy Ghost."

HOLY

This word is of frequent occurrence in the scriptures of the following lessons. In the Hebrew and Greek languages it is always the adjective derived from the noun which in English is "saint". The meaning of this word is "set apart, set aside", always for a good purpose. Thus the "holy city" is the city set aside as God's choice; "holy land" is the land set aside for God's chosen nation; the "holy people" are the people set aside for God's nation; the "holy book" is the book set aside as containing God's word; "holy spirit" is that spirit set aside for special God-given service.

The word "holy" modifying a noun always indicates that that which is named by the noun is particularly set apart. It never indicates that the nature of the thing modified is altered or changed. Thus "holy", modifying spirit, in no sense indicates the nature or the meaning of the word "spirit", but rather indicates that "spirit" thus modified is set apart for use in a special way other than God's common use of spirit.

In a manner common to all, God gave of His spirit to all living creation. Without God's imparted spirit no life, vegetable or animal, could exist. But in such usage God's spirit is not holy; it is common.

When God specially empowered Moses and Aaron with added measure of His spirit for the special work of leading Israel, such measure of spirit being for special work was holy. When God gave "not the spirit by measure", John 3:34, unto Christ, i. e., when He gave unmeasured spirit to Him to strengthen Him for His great labors, such increased spirit was for holy use; it then was holy. When God on the day of Pentecost filled the apostles, who already were possessed of a common measure of God's spirit, with holy spirit, He gave them additional spirit, that with additional power therefrom, Acts 1:8, they might have power to do works requiring strength beyond that common to man.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS JULY 21, 1931

NUMBER 42

The Crying Need of Creation

"The earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now."

WHEN the Apostle said that the whole creation is waiting for the "manifestation of the sons of God," that was a true statement of fact. It was, of course, necessarily true, for the Apostle was writing under inspiration of God. But, notwithstanding the statement itself and its truth, and the fact that it concerns all men, they have not themselves known that they were and still are waiting for this manifestation.

It is in Romans 8:19 that this information is given us, but besides this the whole chapter makes clear many other things not previously known. Men are ignorant also of another fact, namely, that there could be no manifestation of the sons of God until the only begotten Son of God had been sent on His great mission to give His life a ransom for all. For He was to be "the firstborn among many brethren" (Romans 8:29), who are elsewhere called "sons." (Hebrews 2:10.) Hence the "sons" could not be manifested until sometime after Christ's first appearing.

Men have been "waiting," then, for the whole period before Christ; and are still, at this date, all the "sons" not yet having been selected. No one, however, could lay the charge of idleness against men as a whole, while they have been so waiting. Under the terms of the original curse (Genesis 3:19) necessity has driven them so far as their physical needs are concerned, so in that way they are all alike. But in matters spiritual men have from the beginning divided themselves into two classes.

TWO GENERAL CLASSES AMONG MEN

IN THESE two classes there is nothing like equality of numbers, for one far outnumbers the other. Some few of earth's people took note of the promise that the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head, and ordered their lives in full agreement with that promise. But the lives of the vast majority were not in the least influenced by it. It was not God who made any discrimination: it was men themselves. For when Adam and Eve repented of their disobedience to God's command, having been driven out of the garden, they were given the privilege of worshiping God and of bringing up their children to do the same, and to hope in the Promised One who should bruise the serpent's head.

And what does the sacred history tell us regarding the first two sons? That Abel had the true faith, but Cain sought to worship in some other way—a way of his own. But God was gracious to Cain, and rebuked him for his disobedience. If Cain had been exercised by the rebuke, his future would have been very different from what it was.

But from that day to this some, like Abel, have worshiped God according to the mode He prescribed; others, like Cain—the majority—have preferred to follow their own ideas, until today there seems to be not a single unexplored idea left around which there might be gathered another band of devotees.

"God hath made man upright," says the wise man, "but they have sought out many inventions." (Ecclesiastes 7:29.) That is to say, men have sought out many things contrary to the uprightness in which man was created at the beginning.

SOME GOOD AND VALUABLE INVENTIONS

IN GENESIS 4 we read of the invention in those times of some useful things. The tent, the harp, and the organ, besides various unnamed articles in brass and iron, were invented.

In 2 Chronicles 26:15 we are told of clever inventions for the defence of Jerusalem—of engines placed on the towers and bulwarks to shoot arrows and great stones at the advancing foe. Man was endowed of God with the ability to make articles of utility and beauty, and the constructing of such is one of the delightful occupations of humanity. Would it be reasonable to suppose that God would rebuke men for using this ability? No; and we do not hear of it either when his inventions are rightly used.

That is the crux of the whole matter—the right use of his abilities in any and every way, and of everything his inventive mind might construct.

(Continued on page 665)

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 28, 1931

NUMBER 43

WHAT IS PRAYER?

By George B. Alldridge

"Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."—First Thessalonians 5:17, 18.

How often my mind is deeply impressed with spiritual fervor after reading the prayers recorded in the Scriptures. Ponder the language employed and the deep spirit of reverence, also the consciousness of the presence and greatness of God!

Romans sixteen is a wonderful chapter. Paul enumerates and even mentions each individual name of his friends and brethren in the truth. In 1 Thessalonians 1:2, 3 he says, "We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; remembering without ceasing your work of faith, and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God and our Father".

Each week I look over the list of those requesting prayer, and only one of that number I personally know, Brother Patrick. In praying for a brother, it is a wonderful help as his face floats in on your mind, to hold him up before God, and to cleave to and plead with God on his behalf.

What is prayer? It is a humble and sincere desire to worship and praise God, to humbly entreat Him upon our own behalf, to confess our sins, always in this connection remembering that, "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy." Prov. 28:13.

Could we but realize that in prayer we are talking to the ever living God, our Heavenly Father Himself! Read Daniel's prayer, Daniel 9:3-19. How many of us can pray like that? Now note the sequel to such a prayer. "Yea, while I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation." Open your Bible and read verses 22 and 23. Now read Isaiah 65:24, "And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear."

How all this illuminates these wonderful texts: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them", Psalm 34:7. "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven." Matt. 18:10. Are we conscious of their continued presence and pleading with God on our behalf? Read Malachi 3:16-18; Habakkuk 1:7, 14; Psalm 104:4.

What a wonderful thing the radio is! Recently the world was startled by the exploit of Professor Piccard and his assistant, Charles Pipfer. In their aluminum gondola they ascended up into the stratosphere, nine and nine-tenths miles above the earth. Among many things they reported that the stars are radioactive.

I laugh to myself and think how ignorant we poor mortals would be without a knowledge of God's Word. Psalm 119:97-99 reads, "O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day. Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies: for they are ever with me. I have more understanding than all my teachers: for thy testimonies are my meditation."

The radio has always existed. Back in Job's day we read, "Hear attentively the noise of his voice, and the sound that goeth out of his mouth. He directeth it under the whole heaven, and his lightning unto the ends of the earth." Job 37:2, 3. "Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven? canst thou set the dominion thereof in the earth? Canst thou lift up thy voice to the clouds, that abundance of waters may cover thee? Canst thou send lightnings, that they may go, and say unto thee, Here we are?" Job 38:33-35. Read also Matthew 3:17 and 17:5.

How often while listening in we say, "There is static

(Continued on page 678)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; what is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" — David in the eighth Psalm.

SOME OF DAVID'S REASONS FOR JOY

FOLLOWING are some choice expressions of the Psalmist, selected here and there throughout the book, emphasizing joy in worship:

I will sing unto the Lord, because he hath dealt bountifully with me.

The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage.

Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased.

Sing praises to the Lord, which dwelleth in Zion: declare among the people his doings.

Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous: and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart.

The righteous shall be glad in the Lord, and shall trust in him; and all the upright in heart shall glory.

Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation.

Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound: they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance. In thy name shall they rejoice all the day.

"As for man, his days are as grass: as the flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more."

But he also reiterated the firm conviction that, "his seed shall endure for ever"; that "the Lord knoweth the days of the upright: and their inheritance shall be for ever" that "the righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever." See Psalm 37; 69; 72; 89 and others.

An honest searching of a few of David's psalms alone, to say nothing of the rest of Scripture, will convince one that in himself man has no hope of the future.

"Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath, they die and return to their dust."

"His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." Psalm 104:29; 146:4.

And yet David did not believe that death was the end, for he said that God would redeem his "soul from the power of the grave" (49:15, with many more). He also believed that he, himself, his whole being, should be awakened from the sleep of death, changed into "thy likeness", glorified, made perfect.

It was this hope which made David the man that he was—a man of faith in God. Realizing that of himself he was nothing and would eventually return to the dust from which he was formed, he placed his dependence in God. He recognized man's need of a Savior, a Power that could redeem him from the clutches of sin and death.

And this same hope will build us up into faith in God as our Hope of the future, and will give us the joy that David found.—M. G.

DAVID AND THE RESURRECTION

"As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness."

DOES it not seem wonderful that David who lived hundreds of years before Christ, anticipated a resurrection? And he voiced this hope many times in his psalms, in expressions similar to the above beautiful words.

The sweet singer of Israel was fully aware of the brevity of man's existence, for he commented upon it over and over again.

"Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth; and mine age is as nothing before thee; verily every man at his best state is altogether vanity."

"We spend our years as a tale that is told."

"Remember how short my line is: wherefore hast thou made all men in vain?"

ATTEND GENERAL CONFERENCE

ONE week from today will see the opening of the Conference of All the Churches of United States and Canada (D. V.). It is most important that your church is represented by delegate and by the attendance of as many individual members as possible. We hope that as you are reading this you are making preparations to be here. Remember the place and date, Oregon, Illinois, August 4-16.

WHAT IS MAN?

By R. H. Judd

“And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat. And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for meat: and it was so. And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good.”—Genesis 1:28-31.

THERE are several important statements in the above passages of Scripture, which when carefully considered and allowed to have their full force of meaning, give us unerring circumstantial evidence in answer to our inquiry, “What Is Man?” Taking them in the order mentioned and comparing them scripture with scripture, like all other scriptures they overflow with instruction, not only in answering the immediate question of the moment, but pointing the way to other studies of ever expanding interest.

The very first command of God to man was one of blessing, and it is indeed interesting to note what blessing it was that God so desired for him. It was that they might “be fruitful and multiply”. That just as all other life was to bring forth fruit “after its kind” (Gen. 1:24), so God also desired the same of man (Gen. 5:3), but with this notable difference—in the case of man the blessing is not merely implied but definitely stated. The following passages testify to this fact. Space forbids quoting in full, but we hope the reader will for his own interest turn to and read them. Gen. 17:2, 6, 7; 22:17; 28:3; 48:4; 49:25; Lev. 26:9; Deut. 7:13; 28:4, 11, 18; 30:9; Psalm 92:14; 107:38; 127:3, 4; 128.

It is almost impossible to read all these passages with an unbiased mind and not come to the only sound conclusion that man is actually what we see him to be, as are also his descendants after him. And he has qualities such as love and memory and others which go to form his character for good or for evil, which though not discernible to the eye, are nevertheless not found apart from corporeal personality. For they are bound up in the very fabric of his being, part and parcel of it and himself, and of which the Scriptures testify, perish with him on the day of his death.

In the last reference given, Psalm 128, R. V., this fact of God’s command and blessing to “be fruitful and multiply” is most clearly brought out with the intense human interest that the sweet singer of Israel so often displays. “Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine in the innermost parts of thine house; thy children like olive plants, round about thy table. Behold, thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the Lord. The Lord shall bless thee out of Zion; and thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life. Yea, thou shalt see thy children’s children.” Two things are promised him, “thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life”, and “thou shalt see thy children’s children.” The one is as definite as the other, and as real.

All the beauty, all the reality, and all the joy are robbed from such promises, if during the whole span of our lifetime we are only permitted to see the house that hides our loved ones from us, and if these wonderful bodies are after all not what they have seemed to be—the living personalities of home and kindred, of kith and of kin, by which their kindly acts of word and deed have knit us together, the one to the other, in loving bonds of human fellowship and the happy relationships of home.

“He maketh the solitary to dwell in families” and “the barren woman to be the joyful mother of children”. No wonder David adds the word “Hallelujah”. See Psalm 68:6; 113:9; Job 42:16; Gen. 45:10; Psa. 127:3; Prov. 17:6; Ezek. 37:25.

If the common conception of the “real man” going to heaven at death were true, wherein, may we ask, would be the force of the promise of blessing that if we serve the Lord faithfully we shall tarry to see our “children’s children”? Simeon waited that he might see the Lord’s Christ, and many a time human nature has been sustained in old age to experience the promise and to realize that “children are the heritage of the Lord, and the fruit of the womb is his reward”.

The point next in order is the momentous fact of dominion being given to man. We find this having significant consideration in Psalm 8, and were it not that the words in this Psalm are inspired Scripture comment on Genesis 1, we might well shrink from their weighty and sublime suggestiveness. David, in his amazement, asks the very question that we are asking, “What is man” . . . “for thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands”.

On either side of this question of David’s and the statement that accompanies it—that man was made to have do-

(Continued on page 682)

ABIDE IN ME AND I IN THEE

That mystic word of Thine, oh sovereign Lord!
Is all too pure, too high, too deep for me;
Weary of striving, and with longing faint,
I breathe it back again in prayer to Thee.

Abide in me, I pray, and I in Thee;
From this good hour, oh, leave me nevermore;
Then shall the discord cease, the wound be healed,
The life-long bleeding of the soul be o'er.

Abide in me; o'ershadow by Thy love
Each half-formed purpose and dark thought of sin;
Quench ere it rise, each selfish, low desire;
And keep my soul in Thine, calm and divine.

As some rare perfume in a vase of clay
Pervades it with a fragrance not its own,
So, when Thou dwellest in a mortal soul,
All heaven's own sweetness seems around it thrown.

Abide in me; there have been moments blest
When I have heard Thy voice and felt Thy power.
Then evil lost its grasp; and passion, hushed,
Owned the divine enchantment of the hour.

These were but seasons beautiful and rare;
Abide in me, and they shall ever be;
Fulfill at once Thy precept and my prayer—
Come, and abide in me, and I in Thee.

—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

o

NEW ATHEISTIC PROPAGANDA

THE chief daily paper of Riga, Jaurakas Zinas, of March third, stated: "The Moscow Godless Union has introduced a new method of anti-religious propaganda, namely, anti-religious playing cards. . . . The cards have been carefully prepared and are more beautifully finished than the usual playing card, but are sold in the Moscow State Business House at the same price as the others. One side of the cards ridicules some well known faith. . . ."

"It is remarkable that the cards do not in any way portray Protestantism or Mohammedanism. An official of the Godless Union explained that the reason of this was, in Soviet Russia, Baptists, Adventists, also Mohammedans do not play cards. Every person who wants to play cards will be advocating anti-religious propaganda. Otherwise in Russia card manufacture is forbidden."

The Friend of Missions states that there are now in Soviet Russia thirty-five anti-religious universities and fifteen anti-religious faculties with over seven thousand students. These are set apart for the training of anti-religious propagandists. All divisions of the Russian army have been provided with anti-religious instructors.—Selected.

THE CURE FOR THE WORLD'S UNREST

By Samuel E. Haney

"Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus."—2 Timothy 2:1.

THE Apostle is here virtually telling Timothy to be valiant and heroic in administering the Gospel—Good News. He is told to "take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee." 1 Tim. 4:16.

Timothy was a delicate youth with physical infirmities, yet Paul placed him in a position of responsibility and rigid exactitude second to none. He is not told to be strong in body, but in grace—the love and favor of God in Christ.

Paul, in advising the youthful minister, reflected his own experience, as recorded in 2 Corinthians 12:10, "Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong."

A Christian is strong in God's grace only to the extent that he is influenced by God's Spirit which imparts strength to his body also. Indeed, man's physical strength, plus his ingenuity, is impotent when compared with the power of God's Spirit: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." Zech. 4:6.

The Spirit incorporates life as well as strength to its possessors; and Jesus reveals the channel of its transference (John 6:63), "It is the Spirit that quickeneth ('gives life', R. V.); the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life." Were Christians to grasp this fact, there would be more mastication and assimilation of their Savior's words; more mutual help by tongue and pen among the brethren, as Paul explains, "For in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee."

"The Spirit giveth life," says Paul in 2 Corinthians 3:6. A fact upon which David elaborates (Psa. 104:29, 30), "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled ('dismayed, suddenly perish,' Roth.): thou takest away their breath ('Thou withdrawest their spirit,' Roth.) they die, and return to their dust. Thou sendest forth thy Spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth."

Thus we see that to be void of God's Spirit is to be void of what God calls life—1 John 5:12. And to be without this heavenly, spiritual life and strength nothing worth while can be accomplished in God's vineyard, no matter how well a person may be born, bred, and educated. He will be but an automaton creation, making a screechy noise but achieving nothing, exactly as Paul prophesied the case would be with both teacher and layman. "For the time will come when people will decline to be taught sound doctrine and will accumulate teachers to suit themselves and tickle their own fancies; they will give up listening to the Truth and turn to myths." 2 Tim. 4:3, Moffatt. On the other hand the Christian, actuated by the Holy Spirit and the unsophisticated gospel, "goes from strength to strength, every one of them in Zion appeareth before God." Psalm 84:7.

"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings of eagles; they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint." Isaiah 40:31. David goes a step further: "Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's". Psalm 103:5. Many Christians are enjoying this blessing.

Viewing the subject from another angle, we cannot fully realize how "strong" we are in this grace that is in Christ Jesus. To use Paul's words, "We, for Christ's sake, are fools—To this hour we are treated as the scum of the earth, the very refuse of the world." 1 Corinthians 4, Moffatt.

While this is as true with us as it was with Paul and his coworkers, this grace enables us to see things that the wisest men of the world cannot comprehend nor fathom.

We see the nation's ablest statesmen at their wits' end, striving to avert an inevitable wreck of civilization. Obviously they are either ignorant or oblivious of Holy Writ's edict, namely, that both prophecy and chronology are being fulfilled by the dilapidated condition of all nations, as exemplified by daily current events. There are no nation's rulers, nor the combined rulers of all nations, regardless of governmental systems, who can thwart God's Word. Read again Jeremiah 30:11; 46:28.

The more that the rulers struggle to extricate their nations from the dilemma, the deeper into the quicksand of God's plan of the ages they sink. "'Off with his diadem, away with his crown!' says the Lord the Eternal; turn things upside down, up with the low, down with the high! I lay all in ruins, ruins, ruins; everything shall be overturned, till the right man arrives—and I will give Him everything." Ezekiel 21:26, 27, Moffatt.

The peoples of all nations are hoping for a Moses to appear on the nerve racking scene to rescue them from the slough of despair. But they must wait the due time for a greater than Moses to arrive—Jesus Christ, the King of kings and Lord of lords.

The intricacy of the deplorable state of affairs, as it pertains to the individual's status, is made clear to the "strong" in grace. He knows why the wage earner, the housewife, and the merchant are being affected.

The unemployment question is the nation's nemesis. And there is but one source of infallible information, namely, God's Word—"Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Let your hands be strong, ye that hear in these days these words by the mouth of the prophets, which were in the day that the foundation of the house of the Lord of hosts was laid, that the temple might be built. For before these days there was no hire for man, nor any hire for beast; neither was there any peace to him that went out or came in, because of the affliction: for I set all men every one against his neighbour." Here we have prophetically described the

(Continued on page 680)

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PETER

By Lyman Booth

THE writer of this epistle calls himself "Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ." He calls it his second epistle; and he speaks of his "beloved brother Paul" (3:1-15). It must therefore be the work of Peter, or of someone who impersonated him; but LeClere says, "It is a thing of the worst example for any man to forge the name of another or pretend to be the person he is not." More so to forge the name of an Apostle and to personate him in order to give one's own opinions credit on matters of such importance!

The epistle is remarkable for the energy with which the writer inculcates holiness and the solemn, yet affectionate manner, in which he testifies against the delusions of those who neglect it. It has been urged that the style differs greatly from the style of his first letter. But this is by no means true, except in respect to a part of the second chapter, which seems, upon its face, to have been taken from some writing which described in very strong language the false prophets of that or of former ages, which was at that time extant and well known, but which has been lost.

Jude seems to have taken some things from the same source; for part of his epistles agrees well with the second chapter of this. But we observe that in all other respects the internal evidence of authenticity is very strong. However in the primitive church some doubts were mildly entertained in this regard, which Jerome ascribes to the dissimilarity of style in the writing. But it is probable that it was written only a short time before the Apostle's martyrdom; and yet, having been so publicly published by him and commonly known to be his during his ministry, the scrupulous members of the church hesitated about admitting it into the sacred canon, till the internal evidence finally convinced the most competent judges that it was entitled to so high a distinction.

It is supposed to have been written about four years after the first epistle and addressed to or intended for the same parties. It was intended to put Christians upon their guard against false apostles who perverted the truth of it. It is replete with wholesome instructions on the most important subjects.

Peter reminds his readers of the high privileges which they enjoy in the gospel and enumerates the virtues which they are to cultivate and which will insure them an "entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." He states that he is soon to put off his earthly tabernacle, assures them of the truth of the gospel, testifies that he was a witness of the transfiguration of Christ, and directs them to give heed to the prophecies of the Old Testament (Chapter one).

He describes a class of arrogant, licentious, covetous heretics who are to appear in the church, and he sets forth the certainty of their doom from God's punishment of sin in the past history of the world. He also describes the dreadful state of those who once being saved from sin through Christ have again turned to their iniquities (Chapter two). Then he tells of a class of scoffers who will appear in the last days who will ask, "Where is the sign of his coming?" He says their conduct is attributed to their wilful ignorance. We find such people now, which is one of the signs that we are in the "last days". While he testifies that all these things shall be dissolved, he states that new heavens and a new earth shall be ushered in, wherein dwelleth righteousness, and in view of these things he exhorts his readers to diligence and steadfastness.

Summary: After the greeting (1:1-2) he exhorts the Jewish Christians to grow in holiness and to strive to attain more and more knowledge of things divine (1:3-11). He offers this in great earnestness, knowing that his end of life is near. As a witness of Christ's transfiguration he could testify to the reality of Christ's glorification then, as the one perfect Man, accepted by God, His Father, and the Messiah long foretold by prophets (1:12-21). He then warns his readers of the absolute certainty of punishment of sinners by referring to past history, as shown by the flood and the destruction of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah (2:1-6).

Peter warns them of false teachers by calling their attention to the example of Balaam (2:15). He then calls attention to the certainty of judgment and exhorts his readers to patient endurance and longsuffering, based upon the teaching of Paul, the difficulties of whose epistles had been perverted by many. Then he ends as he began, by exhorting his readers to grow in grace and knowledge (3:1-18).

WHAT IS PRAYER?

(Continued from front page)

or interference somewhere in the air." Ah, brethren, did it ever occur to you that dear old Jeremiah had this same trouble in his day? Let us read together Lamentations 3:44, "Thou hast covered thyself with a cloud, that our prayer should not pass through." Read also verse 8: "Also when I cry and shout, he shutteth out my prayer."

Brethren, I cannot help but love God when I think of His love and mercy. "Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy." Micah 7:18.

So, reverently speaking, God, knowing His love (see Isaiah 49:15, 16; Jeremiah 31:3) for His chosen people Israel (Deuteronomy 10:15; Romans 11:28) prevented their prayers coming up before Him. He knew that if their prayers came through, His great heart of love would respond to their appeal, and so for their own good, He caused a cloud to come between Himself and them, that their prayers might not pass through.

How often our prayers seem to stop against a barrier and will not pass through! Ah, beloved, that is the time you want to recall Deuteronomy 8:2, 3 and 13:3, 4. So many gods are calling us away these days. Do you know, when I read Luke 6:12-16, I become fascinated? I repeat to myself, "All night in prayer to God." Then a reminiscent mood seizes my mind, and I recall Daniel 6:5, especially verse 10.

I go back to Luke 6:13-16 and read over the list of His chosen ones. Who inspired Him to make this selection? My mind answers, "All night in prayer to God." How many of us would have chosen John and James, the sons of thunder? Mark 8:17; Luke 9:54. But read also John 13:25. What brought this change from a sun of thunder, to lying with his head upon His Master's breast? Ah, brethren, "All night in prayer to God" is the answer.

And then Peter—would you have chosen him? How many of us would have left the boat to walk on the surface of the water to meet Jesus? He did, though he began to sink. I recall the words of Luke 22:32, "I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not." Read also Luke 22:24, "And there was a strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest." Note that this was after the supper. Now read John 8:4-13. Oh Jesus, where did you obtain this blessed spirit of humility? Again the answer, "All night in prayer to God." Dear brother Paul, how real to me now are your words in Philippians 2:1-11.

Do we realize the significance of talking to God? Do we realize His presence? Do we realize God's presence as David did, recorded in Psalm 139?

Suppose I had the honor of being permitted to interview President Hoover, presenting to him a petition upon some friend's behalf. Would I mumble my words? Would I permit my mind to rove all over the United States? Would my mind be filled with thoughts of success or failure of a real estate deal back home? No sir, you know it would not! My words would be well chosen; my enunciation would be as near perfect as I could make it, my diction beyond criticism. The President would readily comprehend my meaning. Suppose that I was so full of egotism and my own self-importance that in conversation I would tell him how to run the government, and point out the faults of senators and congressmen. Well, you know what would happen. The usher would soon escort me to the outside and advise me not to return.

How often in our prayers we do this. We tell God so much about His affairs and forget our own. I wonder if He does not know as much about the elder's failures as we do, especially the preacher. I often think, brethren, that when our prayers assume this spirit, God causes a cloud to intervene so that our prayers shall not pass through. If we desire to tell God something, let us tell Him of His continued love and mercy to us and to the brethren.

Let us quote freely Psalm 104:1, 2. Never mind if you are accused of being a plagiarist. Remember that God is the Author and will delight to know you are so familiar with His words. See Isaiah 66:2; Colossians 3:16; Psalm 119:9, 11. How can we plead with God, unless we recall His promises? Hebrews 11:13-16; 2 Peter 1:4-8.

And when God hears our prayers, how does He look upon us? Read Ephesians one, the whole chapter, and Ephesians 2:7-10; Romans 8:17, 22, 38, 39; Hebrews 4:14, 15, 16. In prayer, shut your eyes, and with this everything else except the thought that you are in the presence of God Himself. Read Matthew 12:34-36 and remember He reads our heart, and when we ask anything, be sure, like David of old, God will say, "Thou didst well that it was in thine heart."

THE WORTH OF A PRINCIPLE

By M. W. Lyon

"MILLIONS for defense, but not one cent for tribute!" was the battle cry that thrilled the American colonists into a staunch resolve to stand firm for their liberties and rights. It must have been some such passion which caused Henry Clay to exclaim, "I'd rather be right than President!"

Principle is the thing involved here, and beside it, all other issues are dwarfed. Not for all the wealth of the world, not even at the price of life itself, would they surrender those principles they thought were right. It is related of Lincoln that he once walked miles to repay a few cents that he had inadvertently overcharged a customer. Here were men of character, men of principle!

Our civilization is perishing for lack of principle. The man who commits perjury on the witness stand and corrupts the processes of justice, probably as a boy thought it "smart" to lie to his mother and playmates. The filling station bandit, it is a safe bet, began his career of dishonesty by cheating on his "exams" in school. It is just as wrong in principle to attempt to have a parking ticket "fixed", when one knows he has violated the law, as it is to accept a bribe in office. And the individual who helps himself to hotel linen, and walks away with it, is in the same class with the common thief and the bank robber.

This is the terrifying thing about our crime wave. The most alarming fact is not that law violations exist, but that the American people as a whole seem so unconcerned about it. It is no small matter when a man no longer cares whether truth is preserved, justice done, honesty practiced, or law observed.

In this age of iniquity, when insidious and powerful temptations are beating constantly upon a man, there is but one thing that can save him from selling his soul into corruption, and that is his principles; and woe to that man who has none! He is like a ship in a tempest without an anchor.

The church stands for principle above all else, and those who follow her are men of principle. They can be trusted. Now is the time you need that indispensable source of strength. Don't go with the unthinking crowd. Be true to your convictions, for better is that man who loses all his material possessions, who is deserted by all his friends, who is even scorned and condemned by men, than he who forsakes his principles, the things that he knows are right.

—Editorial in Golden Rule News.

THE SIZE OF YOUR HOUSE

"THE measure of a home is not the size of the house that provides the shelter. Some houses are larger than others, but the true measure of a home is the amount of moral character and spiritual insight that the parents get across to the children. No home is small wherein children are taught to tell the truth, to work and play fair, and to pray. If these processes are going on in your home, do not despair if your walls are not far apart and the furnishings less than regal."—Sunshine Magazet.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

CALLED ASIDE

From the glad workings of thy busy life,
From the world's ceaseless stir of care and strife,
Into the shade and stillness by thy heavenly Guide,
For a brief space thou hast been called aside.

Called aside!

Hast thou no memories of that "little while",
No sweet remembrance of thy Father's smile?
No hidden thoughts that wrapped thee in their hold,
Of Him who did such light and grace unfold?

Called aside,

Perhaps into a desert garden dim,
And yet not lone, when thou hast been with Him,
And heard His voice in sweetest accents say,
"Child, wilt thou not with me this still hour stay?"

Called aside!

O, knowledge deeper grows with Him alone,
In secret oft His deeper love is shown,
And learnt, in many an hour of dark distress,
Some rare, sweet lesson of His tenderness.

Called aside!

We thank Thee for the stillness and the shade;
We thank Thee for the hidden paths Thy love hath made,
And, so when we have wept and watched with Thee,
We thank Thee for our dark Gethsemane.

Called aside!

O, restful thought—He doeth all things well—
O, blessed sense, with Christ alone to dwell;
So, in the shadow of Thy cross to hide,
We thank Thee, Lord, to have been called aside.

—Selected.

PHILIP'S MISSIONARY LABORS

"IN THE Sunday School lesson of August 2 there are many interesting points of contact between Philip and the Ethiopian. The Oriental is accustomed to reading aloud, and Philip, passing nearby, heard the words and easily discerned the content of the portion of Scripture under observation. The life and purpose of the Christ were proclaimed by Philip from this very passage found in Isaiah being read by the treasurer. The proselyte to Judaism entered upon a knowledge of the larger truth and accepted the Christ of the Cross as his Savior. Action followed understanding. They went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and Philip baptized him. Philip proceeded northward, reflecting as to why he had been taken from his fruitful ministry in Samaria. A national leader—the Ethiopian—was now an evangelist for Christ as he went back to his people."

THE CURE FOR THE WORLD'S UNREST

(Continued from page 677)

"strong" in Christ Jesus, the time—or place—in God's plan in which we are living, reference to the unemployment question, and the self-centeredness of the human race.

We see automobiles supplanting houses and machinery men. The horse has become a novelty on the streets. A child operates a machine that displaces several adults. Excavations for skyscrapers and smaller buildings are made in a short time by a few men operating machines. Then the buildings, consisting of steel and concrete, are virtually erected by machinery, thus almost entirely displacing carpenters and painters. Rich merchants and manufacturers contribute a pittance for the unemployed, and then plan for remuneration by a readjustment of their employees so as to bring about a lessening of help. There are other reasons, too numerous to enumerate, as contributories.

How absurd it seems to the enlightened Christian to see wise (?) statesmen deliberating over the unemployment "distress of nations" questions! And how accurately Paul describes the obscurity of the world, particularly the rulers, in trying to envisage the cause and effect of civilization's chaos: "Let no one deceive himself about this; whoever of you imagines he is wise with this world's wisdom must become a 'fool', if he is really to be wise. For God ranks this world's wisdom as 'sheer folly'. It is written, He seizes the wise in their own craftiness, and again, The Lord knows the reasoning of the wise is futile."—1 Cor. 3:18-20, Moffatt.

While humanity is despairingly floundering in this world's bog, let us sit at the feet of Jesus and hear Him say, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." I prefer Moffatt's version of the last clause, "Let not your hearts be disquieted or timid." How timid we become when we momentarily lose sight of Jesus, our Source of strength and peace—this Jesus who is soon to return for His faithful.

The Christian's paramount self-interrogations are: Am I prepared to meet my blessed Redeemer by having complied with all His requirements? Am I fully appreciative of my Lord's announcement of the penalty for unpreparedness?

"But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellowservants, and to eat and drink with the drunken: the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage: and the door was shut. Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, open to us. But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not."

The Place of Prayer in Our Lives

By Mary A. Gesin

"And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray".—First verse of Mark 11.

PRAYER is that which makes God seem real to us. We worship an unseen God, One who is infinite, beyond our power to comprehend of ourselves. For finite mind cannot apprehend the Infinite. That man might understand Him, God sent His Son, to live on earth, a man outwardly resembling other men.

We can comprehend Christ, for we have the record of His life. We know just what He did under certain circumstances; we know how He reacted to certain influences. We can judge what His method of dealing with us would be by the manner in which He dealt with those among whom He moved.

Jesus said of God that He "manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me". Thus they could comprehend the Father through the Son. God seemed more real to them after their association with His Son. And so, as they began to sense their need, they cried,

LORD, TEACH US TO PRAY

WE MEDITATE upon the life of God's Son. We realize that He was upheld by an unseen power. We sense an unbroken connection between Him and His Father. And as we ponder the Savior's ability daily to do God's will we, too, cry, "Lord, teach us to pray."

The prayers of our beloved Master seem so availing. Never do we find that He asked in vain. The power of His Father, the Source of all power, was at His disposal. He knew that God had no limitations, and He knew, too, that God was ever ready to bestow upon Him that limitless energy.

But the reason for this perfect confidence between Father and Son was the fact of the Son's complete accord with His Father. He knew His Father's will for Him. He knew His Father's will for others. When He prayed to His Father, He asked for nothing that would not be entirely and completely

IN HARMONY WITH HIS WILL

FOR EFFECTIVE, availing prayer, then, we must seek to know the Father's will for us. This can best be done by a thorough study of the Savior's instructions concerning prayer. The assurance that our prayers are heard is one of the first requisites. This we gather from Christ's sermon on the mount.

He says, "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: for every one that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." We must expect an answer to our prayers if we would receive one.

The first thing we must "ask" for is a more complete knowledge of God. If we "seek" God, He will reveal Himself to us. If we "knock" He will admit us into companionship with Him. Thus we grow into accord with Him, and we begin to learn what things are pleasing to Him.

As we become more thoroughly conversant with His will, we cease to ask for those things that are not in accord therewith. We learn that the reason we "ask, and receive not," is because we "ask amiss", for our own selfish benefit. We search our hearts and lives. Then we learn to ask in faith believing, and

WE RECEIVE THE ANSWER

THROUGH DEFINITE prayer, we learn our own needs; we cleanse our hearts of the things that are displeasing to God. Asking God for a definite benefit leads us to study that special request, leads to a heart-searching revelation of our lives. Definite prayer aids us to eliminate those things in our lives that hinder the granting of our requests.

True, God knows what we need before we ask Him, but He wants us to ask Him, for the good resulting to us. Read the interesting story of Bartimaeus, as told in Mark 10:46-52. The Savior knew before He asked, just what was the great desire of that blind man's heart. But He said, "What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?"

Until we form the request in definite terms, we do not receive the answer. Thus definite prayer leads us to await a definite answer. It builds us into faith toward the Giver of every good gift. And as we receive the answer to our prayer, let us never forget to thank the Giver. Indeed, gratitude should be more the purpose of our prayers than continual asking, thankfulness more than supplication.

Hardly was this finished when the excellent article, "What Is Prayer?", by Bro. Alldridge arrived, which is found on the front page. His thought coincides with the writer's, and he brings it to our minds in a most interesting and instructive manner.

The place of prayer in our lives? It is a "place apart" from busy activity and yet an all-absorbing place. It is that which, through Christ, draws us closely to the God we worship, makes us know that He is not imaginary, but an actual, genuine God. It is only a part and yet all of our life.

WHAT IS MAN?

(Continued from page 675)

minion over the works of God's hands—we have set forth what these works consist in. Add to the statement preceding the question, the following, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handywork" Psalm 19:1. "The sea is his and he made it, and his hands formed the dry land." Psalm 95:5. "Lift up your eyes on high and see; who hath created these that bringeth out their host by number?" Isa. 40:26.

Granting that primarily it is the earth that God has given to the children of men, can we evade the suggestion that God intends that our knowledge of these wonderful spheres above will not be limited to merely lifting up our eyes to see, for are not they said to be "the works of his hands"?

As we shall see in our next item of thought, man like the rest of the animate creation on this earth is limited by the span of his natural life, yet it would almost amount to irony too deep for words should either David or Isaiah, who gave utterance to these sublime passages, never get beyond the common knowledge of even men of this day. The Scriptures assure us that both these saints are dead, and that "the dead know not any thing", hence if these aspirations are to find fulfillment in them, another life by resurrection becomes a necessity.

If we are justified in this contemplation of man's future activities in relation to the "works of God's hands" with this earth as his basic home, John 17:3 becomes to us not a definition of eternal life, but a definition of the objective purpose of that life in an ever expanding knowledge of God through His works, and no other definition would seem to so well answer the requirements. The statement that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom also seems to have added interest, for Scripture never says anything about the end, for man will never reach it. What is sunset here, is sunrise beyond.

Sometimes the writer gets wearied in body and mind and would not be sorry to take his rest. But when he forgets these things and begins to meditate upon the marvels that surround us in myriad forms, both animate and inanimate, and the abundance and variety with which God has supplied those that love Him even now, to say nothing of the promises of the world to come, then with joy does he begin to draw water out of the wells of salvation.

Again we ask, how far, as yet, has man had dominion over the works of God's hands in relation to this earth? Man's dominion over the animal kingdom alone, to say nothing of the command to subdue the earth, can scarcely be said to be the dominion originally intended, for has it not up to the present time consisted largely of wasteful destruction even among those particularly suited for purposes of human food and clothing, not to mention the wholesale extermination of species for the mere pleasure afforded in the hunt?

Is it not at least remarkable that the gift of animal life for food for human need was not given until Noah's time, a period of over one thousand years from Adam? And only then was it given under conditions which showed that animal life as well as the life of man was sacred in God's sight. The blood was not man's to use. There would at least seem to be suggestive thought in these facts that some higher purpose was originally intended for the animal kingdom than that of supplying man with food. It certainly was not provided for in Genesis 1:29, though the sacrifices of Adam and Abel may possibly indicate its use. That the animal creation will join with man in the peaceful possession of the earth in the age to come, seems to have support in various scriptures, some of which even suggest their resurrection. For how else could the lion eat straw like the ox? Neither his digestive organs nor his teeth would permit of it now.

The nature of any living thing is so closely allied to the nature of the food that keeps it in existence that a competent naturalist is able to tell with considerable accuracy by the teeth and by the intestines both the nature of the animal and the kind of food that sustains it in life. A comparison of the food provided for man in Genesis 1:29, and that provided for the beast of the field in Genesis 1:30, shows them so strikingly similar as to prove to any unbiased mind that both are subject to the same principles of life, sustained by practically the same foods, and when deprived of these, they suffer the same pangs of hunger and death. Both in Scripture are designated under the common term of "flesh". Many Scriptures teach this, among them the following, Gen. 6:3; Psa. 78:39; John 3:6; Gen. 6:13; 7:21; 9:15; Lev. 17:11, 14.

CHRIST THE FAULTLESS ONE

IN A meeting of twelve hundred men the preacher gave the men an opportunity to give their objections to Christianity.

The first objector said: "Church members are no better than others. Their lives are inconsistent." "Yes," said the preacher, "that is true! Church members are not what they ought to be." "The ministers are no good," said another; "they are not like they used to be." "Unhappily that is true, too," admitted the preacher, "we are a poor lot."

And so objections were mentioned one after another, and the pastor wrote them down: "Hypocrites in the church," "Christians don't believe in the Bible any more,"—twenty-seven in all.

When they were through the pastor read off the whole list, then said, "Boys, you have objected to us pastors, to the church, to church members, to the Bible, and other things, but you have not said a word against my Master!" And in a few simple words he preached Christ to them as the Faultless One, and invited them to come to Him.—Bulletin of Bates Street (Grand Rapids) Christian Reformed Church.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois
For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

I CAN DO ALL THINGS THROUGH CHRIST WHICH STRENGTHENETH ME. — PHILIPPIANS 4:13.

A WIDE AWAKE CLASS

AS THE Bereans of Marshall, Illinois, realized that the members of the class had lost interest in their Bible study during the winter of 1930 and 1931, they felt that they should create more enthusiasm and regain the old spirit that they used to have in times past.

Wednesday night of June first they held a meeting and elected new officers. They are: Miss Edna Wood, president; Mr. Ivan Veach, vice president; Miss Edith Hendrix, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Ruth Veach, assistant secretary and treasurer; and Miss Ruth Goekler, pianist.

We know that we can have better interest in a class if we have a large number present. Therefore the Bereans have decided to have a contest. Choosing sides, they elected as captain of the "Hustlers", Miss Edith Hendrix, and of the "Loyal Workers", Mr. Harry Goekler. The purpose of each captain and his team is to invite each and every one to come as his guest at Berean. The side bringing in the largest attendance during each month is given a picnic by the losing team.

Last Wednesday night we had eleven present and this Sunday night there were twenty-three. This shows that our class is beginning to regain its former membership.

Edith Hendrix, Sec.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT

FROM Sr. Anna D. Springer, Lancaster, Ohio, we receive the following communication:

"We are in the midst of hot weather and hard times, but I trust and pray that soon everything will be accomplished that I have prayed for. I am trusting our heavenly Father for everything. He is able to answer my prayers.

"Two years ago I did not know that there was a Berean society in the Church of God. One year ago I began to study the Berean department. Now in all that time I have made up my mind to join. I sent for a card and in two weeks I will send in my name and fee for membership. Then I am starting a Berean class here at Lancaster, Ohio."

We pray with Sister Springer that her efforts to organize a class at Lancaster may be successful, and that the seed sown there may be abundantly fruitful.

MICHIGAN

ON FRIDAY afternoon, June 26th, the Michigan State Bereans held their annual meeting. Our secretary, Mrs. Doan, being quarantined for scarlet fever, could not be present. The usual reports of the secretary, treasurer, and committees were given.

Since we have only one society in Michigan, we feel that the state organization is almost unnecessary. But in view of the splendid work of our isolated committee we feel that it is well worth the effort. The letters written to the isolated and the sick are greatly appreciated.

If any isolated ones in Michigan wish to join our society we will be glad to have you. The dues are used almost entirely by our isolated committee. If any of you know of anyone who needs a "cheery" letter please notify Sr. Ada Huff, 2134 Horton Ave., S. E., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Officers elected for the coming year are as follows: Mrs. Ada Simpson, president; Mrs. Clara Phenix, vice president; Mrs. Lyle Doan, secretary; Mrs. Hazel Pixley, treasurer.

Mrs. Wm. Hanson, Sec. pro tem.

THE THREE FORCES

IT IS a fact well known to science that it takes three simultaneous influences to make a seed germinate in the soil. It must have heat, moisture, and air; when these three things come at the same time, the long dormant seed instantly springs to life and fulfills its destiny. If one of these is lacking, the grain will never become a plant.

So it is with man in his threefold being—spiritual, mental, and physical. The possibilities of greatness are latent in him, but if one of these forces is missing, he will remain as a seed in desert soil, packed with superb possibilities but barren and fruitless.—Sunshine.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 24; Ohio, 17; California, 10; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

SAUL CONVERTED AND COMMISSIONED

TWO OF HIS LETTERS

PAUL was the greatest Christian preacher and teacher we have ever had. His letters to the Christian churches furnish us examples upon which to pattern our lives. Yet, Paul, or Saul, was not always a Christian, nor a preacher.

He was a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city of Cilicia. He was well educated in the subjects all Jewish boys were taught, and especially so because one of his teachers was the great lawyer, Gamaliel. He believed very earnestly in God and the Scriptures as he had been taught, and he worked hard to do away with the Christian church.

You see, he did not believe Jesus to be the real Son of God. He was so much in earnest that he went to the High Priest and asked for letters of authority to take to the synagogue in Damascus, that he might arrest any Christians, men or women, he found there, and bring them to Jerusalem for punishment.

But God had a better use for so zealous and hard-working a man as Saul. As he came near Damascus a light shone from heaven, and as he fell to the earth, he heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

Saul said, "Who art thou, Lord?"

And the Lord said, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

Saul was trembling and astonished, but he said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

The Lord told him to go into Damascus, and there he would be told what to do. When he arose, his sight was gone.

Now, the men with Saul were so surprised they couldn't speak, for they heard the voice of the Lord, but saw no one. However, they led Saul into Damascus to the house of one named Judas. Here he remained three days without sight, food or drink.

By this time Saul must have understood the kind of darkness in which he had been living, for he began to pray. Then the Lord told Ananias, a disciples in Damascus, to go to the street called Straight, and ask for Saul at the home of Judas.

Ananias, having heard that Saul was coming to do evil to the Christians, hesitated until the Lord said that He had chosen Saul to bear His name before the Gentiles, kings, and the children of Israel. Then he went to Saul, put his hands on him, and said, "Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight and be filled with the Holy Ghost."

Immediately Saul could see. He arose, was baptized and remained many days with the Christians at Damascus.

Later, Paul wrote a letter to Timothy. In this letter he thanked Christ Jesus our Lord, for considering him a faithful person and putting him into the ministry. He gave all the credit to the Lord. Nor did he spare himself—he called himself blasphemer, persecutor, and injurious. But the Lord knew he had done it ignorantly, and so He forgave him. He was so grateful for the Lord's grace and mercy and love. And we, too, must pray for all that.

In another letter, this one written to the Galatians, Paul gave worthy advice. He said if they saw one doing wrong they ought to help that one change his way back to the right, but give their help in meekness because they might be weak some time too.

Each person must bear his own burdens, but Paul said they should help bear one another's burdens, thus fulfilling the law of Christ. Those who were educated were to teach others. They were not to think too well of themselves, however, nor could they deceive God.

Our lives are like grain—whatever kind of seed we sow, that kind of grain we shall reap. That is, if we do good deeds we shall be happy and receive good things. But if we do wrong deeds, we shall be unhappy and receive punishment.

Paul ends this part of the letter: "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith."

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Galatians 6:1-10 and Titus 2:1-8.
2. Read V. C. T. for Lesson 7.
3. How is Lesson 7 a temperance lesson?
4. Learn the last verse of this lesson.

WHAT ANIMAL

1. Is "greedy of his prey"?
2. Makes its house in the rocks?
3. Eats "of the crumbs which fall from their master's table"?
4. That is "little" and spoils the vine?
5. Did Abraham's servant take when seeking a wife for Isaac?
6. Devours the sheep?
7. Was Elisha plowing with when Elijah cast his mantle on him?
8. "Is a vain thing for safety"?—Selected.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 6. — August 9, 1931

SAUL CONVERTED AND COMMISSIONED

Acts 9:1-31; 22:3-21; Galatians 1:11-17; 1 Timothy 1:12-17

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 6:1-8

GOLDEN TEXT

Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.—Acts 26:19.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. A Vision and a Response.

Basic Truth. "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."—Acts 26:19.

Outline. I. Vision. II. Response. III. Conversion and Commission.

I. Vision. From the beginning of time finite man has been unable to visualize in his own strength purposes and plans like unto those of God. By his own ingenuity, by his own power of invention man has been unable to devise, or to foresee, or to perceive anything like unto that which God has provided. Such is the teaching of Isaiah 64:4 and 1 Corinthians 2:9.

Thus if left to his own finite powers of research and of perception, mankind is largely blind as concerning the things of God.

But God gave a vision to Adam. He placed him in the midst of local completeness and harmony. He gave him a vision of an untainted and unspotted creation.

God gave Abram vision, pre-view, Gen. 15:12-18; He gave Moses vision, testimony, Ex. 3:3-19; He gave David foresight, understanding, 2 Sam. 7:12-17. He gave the prophets; He gave the apostles; He gave many, vision of His world-wide, age-lasting truths. God has given His word and the gospel to record upon the retina of man's mind visions of God's purposes, of His plans, of His certainties. No mortal being has power in himself to foresee or fore-imagine these God-given truth visions.

II. Response. God made the first move: He gave Adam a vision. God looked to Adam to make the second move: Adam was to respond.

God looked to Abraham to respond to the vision given to him. Abraham did so. By works he showed himself a man of faith.

David's duty was to respond.

Throughout the human race man's responsibility, placed upon him by God, has been to respond to the God-given visions. God has bestowed mental and physical power and opportunity for such response. Having placed His vision before all mankind, He requires of all a response.

"He that believeth and is baptized", Mark 16:16, is responding to the God-given picture and insight. The three thousand who on the day of Pentecost repented and were baptized responded to the vision given by God through Peter. The two thousand others who before the day ended likewise repented and turned to the Lord, responded to the vision of truth. Saul, at Damascus, when he arose and received baptism, gave physical response to the vision of the words received.

You, fellow brother, sister, young or old, will fulfill your obligations unto God and to Christ only as you respond and serve Him according to His revealed Word.

III. Conversion and Commission. Conversion is Heaven's work. Man's work is to respond, to actively engage in service to God. That does not make him Christian. Saul zealously endeavored to serve God, but he was not Christian. Rather, he regarded himself as having been greatest of sinners.

The apostles truly responded to Christ's teachings, and Christ on the day of Pentecost delivered God's spirit upon them. He filled them therewith. That spirit had from the beginning filled Him. It enabled and developed His life. In filling the apostles with that spirit, Jesus filled them with His own life-power and vitality. He Christianized them.

Likewise, after Saul truly repented and responded, he became Christianized from above.

A Christian is one in whom the Christ life has been planted. He is then a converted man.

Every Christianized person is immediately commissioned of God for service. Witness the apostles, Saul, those appointed in Acts 6:5.

Men are made Christian not only that they may rejoice in sharing the blessings of God, but also that they may become commissioned laborers for and with God.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Conversion: Paul observed and kept the law, and after "the most straitest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee", was the testimony he gave before Agrippa. Yet he was a sinner, for he hadn't accepted Christ. God considered him a sinner. God cannot use an unconverted person.

Every person is a sinner.

"The sacrifice of the wicked is abomination." Prov. 21:27.

Before we can be used of God, we must be converted. If we are not, our offerings will be "vain oblations", and our prayers of incense, abominations.

Forgiveness of Sins: Paul upon confession and acceptance of, and obedience to Christ was forgiven his sins. There isn't any salvation for a person in sin. Forgiveness of sins is necessary to salvation. Man cannot, by any ACT or MEANS of his own, free himself from sin. Freedom from sin can only come through the blood of Christ. "Without shedding of blood is no remission".

Commission: Paul was commissioned after his peace had been made with God. It was a divine commission. There was one purpose in the commission—the salvation of the unsaved, especially among the Gentiles. The work started by Paul is still being carried on. It is just as much of a divine commission for us to "seek and save the lost", as it was for Paul.

Conversion and Forgiveness always necessary for a commission

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision."—Acts 26:19, Diag.

Paul had a rare experience; one that was so convincing that it was impossible for him not to take notice of it. Paul called himself the chief of sinners, a persecutor and a blasphemer; but he felt that he obtained mercy because he did it ignorantly. He thanked Jesus Christ that He counted him faithful and put him in the ministry. See 1 Tim. 1:12-15. Paul declared that the gospel which he preached was not received from man, but he was taught it "by the revelation of Jesus Christ." Gal. 1:12.

After Paul's conversion, instead of getting in touch immediately with the Apostles, he went into Arabia and was gone about three years, seemingly to receive his training direct from the Father. How different from most persons! Usually when one wants to do something he gets in touch with others of the same vocation and learns of them. Not so with Paul; he wanted and received first-hand information, and by getting it in that way, he was fully prepared for the task before him.

—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

A Vision and a Response

Saul saw Jesus in the heavens and was converted. It was then that he consecrated a powerful life unto God. Paul had a magnetic personality, a trained mind, and a zeal that could not be thwarted. These became instruments of service unto God.

Paul swallowed his pride and returned to the people that had witnessed his misdirected zeal, telling them he had been mistaken. The persecutions that followed caused him to rejoice and praise God that he was accounted worthy to suffer for the truth.

Roman soldiers were branded as were slaves of those days. These brands were considered, in many instances, marks of honor and distinction. Paul wrote: "I bear in my body the marks (Gr., brand-marks) of the Lord Jesus." Gal. 6:17. Jesus, once despised, was now the ruling passion in this remarkable life.

Conversion is truly the turning point in anyone's life.—H. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

General and Illinois, Oregon, Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown, August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo, August 22 to 30
Kansas, Arkansas City, August 23 to 31

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTES

The coming General Conference is YOUR Conference. Do YOUR part to make it all it should be.

Bro. and Sr. Wm. Hanson, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, have written ahead for a room during General Conference, and one has been marked, "Taken".

Save me a room, writes Bro. C. E. Randall of Fonthill, Ontario, and Niagara Falls, N. Y.; and Miss Elizabeth Ordnung, who has this matter in charge, has made necessary reservation for August 4 to 16.

Sr. Ida Orem, of Redlands, Calif., while sending a generous check for the N. B. I. work, writes that she prays God's blessing on the coming Conference and that she will be with us in spirit. Sr. Orem, who is a sister of our Sr. Ordnung at Oregon, was privileged to attend General Conference last year.

May none of the churches or conferences overlook appointing delegates for the General Conference or providing them with the proper credentials. Credentials may be mailed, if desired, to F. L. Austin, Secretary, Oregon, Illinois.

Time is now short. These things should be attended to at once.

FROM HERE AND THERE

Bro. and Sr. E. O. Stewart and family departed on Monday morning, July 20, from the Texas Conference, for the Arkansas Conference where Bro. Stewart will be busy.

The Lindsay, Wood, and Logsdon families of Kewanee, Illinois, were at the Dixon church for services on Sunday, July 26. In the afternoon they made a brief visit to Oregon.

We are very glad to receive word from Sr. Fannie LeCrone, of Helena, Oklahoma, that she is gaining after her operation of last spring and is almost herself again. Many of us were privileged to make the acquaintance of Sr. LeCrone last year when she attended General Conference. She says that Bro. LeCrone has been under the doctor's care, but is now improving. This worthy brother and sister are the grandparents of Lucille and Richard LeCrone of the Training Class.

Bro. Austin reports the best Texas Conference, according to his thinking, that it has been his to enjoy—and he has enjoyed several. The brethren of Riviera and vicinity only emphasized the hospitality that is found everywhere throughout that great state.

Riviera is located within a large vegetable, fruit and cotton growing section of southeastern Texas, and Bro. Austin reports that, owing to the general business depression the market demands for some of the perishable items has been very small. Enough and to spare—but little sale—he noticed everywhere.

We are still hoping that Texas will send one of their number to the General Conference.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota.
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25

Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkhite, Brantford, Ont.
Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher, Deerfield, Fla.

Sr. Lynn Leighty of South Bend, Indiana, sends this encouraging word to the Prayer Column: "Prayer has been answered. Little Wilbur Hagenbush is walking now and gaining in weight. Please continue praying for him."

This word will rejoice the hearts of all who have sent up their petitions to God on behalf of this little suffering one.

Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher write asking us to continue to remember them in prayer to God. Sr. Lasher's health has improved and she says, "I know it is in answer to the prayers of so many who have prayed for me. We praise God for everything and we know that He will open up the way for Bro. Lasher to find work."

FROM EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA TO BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

The past four years have been filled with rich experiences that bind us to the Eden Valley congregation. It was hard to say, "Good bye." Words, kind as they might be, cannot tell the love we hold for the faithful ones at Eden Valley; and, should the day of returning sometime come, it will be a glad day for us.

However, we are glad now to turn our faces to a new work into which we believe God has led us. In our pastorate at the Brush Creek Church of God in Ohio we trust to be knit to other lives; and we know that being led of God our experiences there will be happy ones.

Your brother and sister in Christ,

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Magaw.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

We have just received word from Bro. A. G. Townsend, superintendent of the thriving Grand Rapids Sunday School, that he expects to be on hand for the opening session of our Bible School and Conference on Tuesday, August 4.

Bro. Townsend has consented to be superintendent of the Bible School for the ten days that it is in session. We know that he will carry on the school in an interesting way.

Among the following classes you will find a place of benefit and interest:

Adult Class—teachers, Bros. Conner and Gordon.

Senior Young People—Bros. Austin and Lapp.

Junior Young People—Bros. Marsh and Gordon.

Intermediates—Bro. Thayer.

Primary—Sr. Thayer.

NIAGARA FALLS AND FONTHILL

Bro. and Sr. Charles Simpson, and granddaughter, Ruth Anne, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, were welcome visitors at the Sunday morning service, July 19. We were very glad to have them, and hope they will remember us the next time they are in the vicinity of the Falls.

Bro. Randall recently visited Bro. and Sr. Cronkhite, at Brantford, and was pleased to find Bro. Cronkhite able to sit up. Bro. Cronkhite would greatly appreciate the continued prayers of the brethren.

At the time these items go to print, Bro. Holland and myself will be enjoying a short holiday in Muskoko, with Mother and Father Weldon.

A TRIP TO ANDOVER, SOUTH DAKOTA

On July 10 we had the pleasure of visiting a few faithful brethren at Andover, South Dakota. Through Bro. Austin we learned of the C. E. Mills family and that there were some of this family who wished to be baptized.

The trip from Eden Valley to Andover was made on July 10, with Bro. Howard Hamilton driving. Sr. Magaw, Bro. and Sr. W. F. Hoskins, and Sr. Shala Hoskins also accompanied us. At about 5:30 p. m. a sermon was delivered at the Mills home, after which the three oldest children were baptized, one daughter, Bethel, now in normal school and two sons, Arthur and Glen, of high school age. Another sermon was given in the evening at which a number of friends were invited in.

We wish to thank Bro. and Sr. Mills for their kindness to us in their home and pray God's blessings upon their family.

Sydney E. Magaw.

MEETINGS AT ST. CLOUD, MINN.

Bro. Jas. A. Patrick of Ashland, Ohio, held a week's meeting at the St. Cloud church, beginning June 28, ending July 3. These meetings were much enjoyed by us all. The heat was so terrible at times that we went to the basement where it was much more comfortable. Bro. Patrick spoke of "The Signs of the Times," "The Day of the Lord," and other Bible truths.

Mrs. T. M. Savage, Sec.

ROCKFORD ACTIVITIES

On Friday evening, July 24, the regular evening for Berean class, we met at Ingersoll Park and enjoyed a steak fry and a short social hour, after which we gathered at our regular meeting place and held a very interesting Berean session. This will be our last Berean meeting until September.

We are glad to welcome all visitors at our regular services: Sunday School at ten every Sunday morning, sermon by Bro. Thayer at eleven. Our congregation is growing both in interest and in numbers, and we feel greatly encouraged.

MEETINGS AT ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

On Tuesday, June 16th, Bro. C. E. Lapp arrived at Eldorado and began a short series of meetings, continuing over the following Sunday up to Thursday night, at which time he left for services at Casey and Marshall. While he was away we took heart and reorganized Sunday School. He returned for services here over Sunday, July 5th. For the 4th Bro. Lapp, with a bunch of church folks, went to Shady Rest for a fish fry which was very much enjoyed by all.

We hope to have Bro. Lapp with us again soon. While there were no additions to the fold, we were greatly blessed and strengthened by these services to carry on in our humble way the work of the Master. The conditions here seem to be growing worse, and at times everything looks dark from a human standpoint. We rejoice in the hope of the soon return of our Lord to speak peace to the troubled earth.

Fred Shain.

INDIANA REPORT FOR THE PAST YEAR

Services, Sermons and Bible Lessons: Salem, Ohio, 1; Brush Creek, Ohio, 2; Font-hill, Ontario, 5; Brumfield, Kentucky, 3; Welcome, S. C. 2; Guthrie Grove, S. C., 13; Dana, N. C., 16; Holbrook, Neb., 9; St. Louis, Mo., 1; Blush, Mo., 22; and at the following points in Indiana: Lucerne, 1; Kokomo, 22; Pleasant View, 22; Rensselaer, 22; Plymouth, 10; North Salem (including Bible School), 18; South Bend, 11; Hillisburg, 26; Burr Oak, 8. Funerals, 4. Marriages, 3. Baptisms, 41.

Money received in Indiana: Pleasant View, $225.20; Rensselaer, $300.00; North Salem, $48.00; Plymouth, $120.00; Burr Oak, $90.00; Hillisburg, $222.33; South Bend, $33.00; Conference Board, $142.30.

Note: In our report in the business meeting at North Salem we made a mistake. In drawing off the report we overlooked the money paid us by Bro. Snodgrass before his death. Later we found the amount on the book and the above is correct.

J. H. Anderson.

A LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Sr. I. E. Brown of Tacoma, Washington, in remitting for her paper writes:

"Please find enclosed $2.00 for my subscription to the best church paper I ever owned. It is a real educator unto eternal life. Even our young preachers preach like Pauls and Peters to a dying world the blessed words of God's promise of eternal life when our Savior comes to give to His what the Father gave to Him—eternal life and eternal possessions. I do believe that the sinless popes and the doctors of divinity are to blame for the inherent immortality error. The word immortal soul is not found in the Scriptures. The happiness in knowing the truth is beyond describing. I can sing, 'O happy day, when Jesus washed my sins away.' Will close with love and good wishes,

"Mrs. I. E. Brown, "5340 North Bristol, Tacoma, Washington."

NOTICE OF AMENDMENTS

Notice is hereby given of proposed amendments to the constitution of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus. The proposed amendments are as follows:

Amendment to Article III, Sec. 3: "The terms of office shall regularly begin at the close of the session at which officers are elected, said terms to continue for one year, or until successors are duly elected and qualified; excepting that the four extra Board members shall hold office for two years."

Amendment to Article IV, Sec. 2: "Two Board members shall be elected each year at the annual meeting and shall hold office for two years. They shall be elected by ballot, nominations having been made from the floor, and the two receiving the highest number of votes at first ballot shall be declared elected."

Leila E. Whitehead
Esta L. Starbuck
Committee.

The purpose of the above proposed amendments is to provide for a portion of the Executive Board to hold over from year to year so that there will always be someone who is familiar with the work that has been done in the previous year.

MRS. HUGH LOGAN

Sr. Eva L. Logan, wife of Bro. Hugh Logan, born in Ohio, in 1863, fell asleep in Jesus in her home near the North Salem Church of God, on July 17, 1931. Sr. Logan was baptized into Christ by Elder Zilmer about thirty years ago. She leaves her husband and one son, Glenn, of South Bend.

Sr. Logan was an earnest Christian, a deep student of God's Word, a lover of the truth. Many friends and relatives will mourn her loss. Funeral services were held in the home by the writer, on July 20, 1931.

J. H. Anderson.

OTTO HUFFER

Otto Huffer, son of Andrew Huffer and May Huffer, was born in Kirklintown, Indiana, on June 24, 1895, and fell asleep in Jesus at his home in Michigantown, Indiana, on July 17, 1931. He and Bessie Finney were united in marriage in 1916. Six children were given them. They lost two. The wife and four children are left, also one brother, eight half brothers, two half sisters and a host of friends. He was baptized several years ago by Elder VanVactor. Funeral services were held in the Hillisburg Church of God, on July 19, by the writer.

J. H. Anderson.

SIDNEY GLENN KNIGHT

Sidney Glenn, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Knight, was born December 12, 1919. On Tuesday, July 21, he was accidentally shot by his cousin. An ambulance was called and the child was rushed to the Kleberg County hospital, where he immediately underwent an operation. Seven holes had been shot in the intestines, and the doctors said there was no hope for recovery. He died in the hospital on Thursday morning, July 3.

The deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Knight, four brothers, Tommy, Cecil, Paul, and Robert, all of Kingsville, Texas, one sister, Mrs. Delilah Cullillinan, of Harlingen, Texas, a number of other relatives, and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted in the Allen Funeral Parlor by Rev. A. H. Clark, pastor of the Kingsville Baptist Church. After these services the body was laid to rest in the Chamberlain Burial Park to await the coming of the Master.

The many friends extend their heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved ones in this hour of sadness.

MRS. JOSEPH SCHELLENGER

Victoria Holcomb was born in Dalia County, Ohio, September 2, 1845. She was married January 7, 1871 to Joseph Schellenger. To this union there were born three daughters: Mrs. Harry Tritabaugh and Mrs. E. M. Kirkpatrick of Paynesville, Minnesota, and Mrs. George Daily of Carver County, Minnesota.

Sr. Schellenger joined the Church of God at Bergen, Minnesota, at an early date, to which faith she remained true.

Death came on Sunday, July 12, after a brief period of illness, and funeral services were held from the home and Church of God at Eden Valley, on Wednesday afternoon, July 15.

Besides the husband and three daughters, Sr. Schellenger is survived by two brothers, Reuben Holcomb of Detroit, Minnesota, and Moody Holcomb of Sugar Lake, Minnesota; and two sisters, Mrs. McPhillips of Los Angeles, California, and Mrs. Henry Parks of Yoncalla, Oregon. She is also survived by twelve grandchildren, many other relatives and friends who will long remember her quiet and peaceful life.

Sydney E. Magaw.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Etta Brown; Mrs. Lynn Leighty; B. N. Berry; Martha Field; Jesse Robbins; Mrs. A. Nichols; May S. Todd; Wesley Stephenson; C. H. Horton; Delos Andrew; Mrs. Bess Kasper; Mrs. Mildred Somers; Mrs. I. E. Brown.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38 and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

FOR YOU—FOR YOUR CLASS FOR YOUR SCHOOL

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

GIVEN FOR NEW YEARLY SUBSCRIPTIONS

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Tell them about the picture and the map which each New Subscriber receives for his own.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1.

Who will be first to win a map?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

GIFTS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1-2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 4, 1931

NUMBER 44

THE TIMES OF RESTITUTION

By F. L. Austin

PETER was addressing Jewish people who were familiar with prophetic declarations of God's promises that the kingdom was to be restored to Israel, that the earth was to be recovered from the curse of sin, and that man and the world were to rejoice in a day of great restitution. But when God had sent His well beloved Son into the world to begin such a restitution, Peter's hearers had been zealous to oppose the Savior and the Savior's effort. They had crucified Him whom God by miracle and deed had approved. But God had raised Him from the dead. After His resurrection Jesus had been called away to the heavens. All the apostles bore witness to the event of the ascension of the Lord.

Peter now declares that Heaven must hold the Savior till it becomes time for this restitution work to again be taken up. According to his statement, there is no possibility that the Savior will return to earth until the proper time for Him to proceed with the work of restitution.

Peter further indirectly assures man that the return of the Messiah is for the direct purpose of restoring all things predicted by the prophets.

That it was not necessary for the Savior to return in order to restore the individual of faith in Christ was made manifest by the restoration which through Peter had been accomplished for the lame man at the beautiful gate. He had been fully recovered, restored from certain evil effects that had been upon him during his lifetime of forty years. But the restitution of the earth and its fullness awaits the return of our Lord and Master.

THE KINGDOM

TIME AND AGAIN the prophets had declared that the kingdom, which was taken from Israel and given to Nebuchadnezzar and his Gentile successors, was to be finally restored to Israel. Ezekiel 37:21 reads, "Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side and bring them into their own land:

"And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all. . . ." Very positively did Ezekiel reveal that Israel would yet be restored to the kingdom status which God had assigned her and given her under David.

Jeremiah the prophet, 23:5-8, declares and enlarges upon the same great truth. "I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a king shall reign and prosper, . . ."

"In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS . . ."

Isaiah, at 9:6, declares the same great truth. Zechariah in the fourteenth chapter prophesies of that reestablishment. Hosea, Amos Joel, numerous prophets frequently refer to this restitution of the kingdom. But Peter declared, Acts 3:21, such a restitution cannot take place until Heaven shall liberate and send forth the Savior who was called to the right hand of God.

GENTILE NATIONS

NOT ONLY does the restitution refer to Israel's kingdom; it also refers to the kingdoms of the world. Isaiah tells us, 2:2-5, that Gentile nations will turn to the Lord, will learn of His ways and will walk in His paths. As a result "they will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Nations themselves are to be restored to the earliest condition of life when, new from the hand of God, there was no war, no combat, no strife between God's creatures. Micah emphasizes this restored condition by adding, 4:4, "They shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid."

(Continued on page 697)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"For this cause we also . . . do not cease to pray for you, giving thanks unto the Father . . . who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son: in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins".—Paul's words to the Colossian brethren.

BELIEVE ON THE LORD JESUS CHRIST", was Peter's answer to the all important question, Acts 16:31, "What must I do to be saved?" So brief an answer might at first be considered to indicate that the steps unto salvation are very simple indeed. But he who studies well God's Word comes ever more and more to realize that to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ" in fullness is to mold every thought and every deed of life in agreement with the words of God's beloved Son.

REPENT YE THEREFORE", were the words of Peter's straightforward exhortation to a gathering of Jewish people whom he had just censured in love for having "killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead." Acts 3:15.

Without question Peter was instructing these people of God's chosen nation to the end that they might be saved, even though they had committed gross sin and offence against Him who was the appointed Savior of the world.

Earlier in the day "about three thousand souls", 2:41, had been baptized as a result of Peter's impassioned charge against them for having, v. 23, "by wicked hands" "crucified and slain" Jesus of Nazareth. His charge was followed by the outpouring of his love toward them, as he urgently exhorted them, v. 38, to "repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins."

Though three thousand promptly made proper reformation, there were still others. There were still many as yet unrepentant. Peter now, 3:19, equally anxious, urges them also that they should repent from their way of horrifying wickedness and blasphemy, and turn to Him whom they had endeavored to overthrow.

AND BE CONVERTED", was Peter's added and urgent instruction unto them.

Here Weymouth's New Testament in Modern Speech reads, "And reform your lives." Commenting on this, the footnotes explain, "Literally 'turn back;' not merely turn aside from your evil way, but go straight back in the precisely opposite direction."

Such return, such reformation, conversion, was by Peter indicated as a necessity, if they were to obtain salvation through Him whom they had purposely endeavored to destroy.

THAT YOUR SINS MAY BE BLOTTED OUT", were the wonderful words of Peter which immediately followed the foregoing.

This word "blotted out" means everything that it at first suggests to the mind. It means that those sins should become erased; expunged; obliterated. They should be as though they had never been.

This can be done only by Heaven. No human being can blot sins from the record of life. And when Jehovah and His Son blot them out, they have been completely erased.

What a wonderful truth! How almost incomprehensible it first appears to the sinful human mind! How important it is! What untold measure of benefit it presents! And yet, how sublimely simple has the way been made by God.

SO THAT SEASONS OF REFRESHING MAY COME", are added words of Peter, as he reveals to his listeners more of the greatness of Him who "is love".

The word, "when", which is used in our common King James translation, is by practically every other translation replaced by one or more words which mean "in order that". The latter is the true meaning of the Greek word as given by the Lexicons. That is to say, their repentance, and their conversion, and the blotting out of their sins were all to the end that times of refreshing might immediately come to them. Just as the blotting out takes place with the obedience of the individual, so also the refreshing or renewing takes place immediately and continues. The Critical Greek Lexicon defines the Greek word for "refreshing", which is found no other place in the New Testament, as meaning "a relieving and recovering (from toil and all evils)".

Peter had just performed a most amazing miracle. He had done this in the name of the Lord Jesus. A man about forty years of age, who, being crippled, had never been able to walk, was recovered to full strength of limb. Peter had revealed a refreshing to that man from the bondage of evil that was undeniable and also inexplicable by any but Peter himself. His explanation was, Acts 4:10, "That by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand before you whole."

Not only had the record of sin been destroyed, but a visible "refreshing" had been returned to that man.

FROM THE PRESENCE OF THE LORD". Two words in this little phrase when made clear add much of beauty and of appreciation. The word "from" is that Greek word which refers to anything as coming forth, or away from, beside a person or thing; like an army marching from before a city. The word "presence" instead of suggesting God's presence with man, is a word referring to something in the presence of or before the face of another, in this instance before the face of God. The same word occurs in verse 13, "Denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go."

The whole expression then points to times of refreshing that come forth from the Lord. Peter is instructing them that the Lord God would bestow of His blessings then and there upon those whose sins should become blotted out; that they would experience personal uplift, and betterment, and benefit, and blessing, as a result of the erasure of their sins.

THE WHOLE OF PETER'S WONDERFUL INSTRUCTION is to the effect that sin which brought to earth all of its misery, and pain, and squalor, and death, when blotted out from the life of the individual because of faith in God's beloved Son, would not only be blotted off the record of Heaven, but that the erasure thereof would be attended by direct blessing and benefit from God.

A national result would be that the individual, thus receiving blessing and refreshing beyond the power of man to give, could but realize that he had been accepted and received of the Father for His Son. Such acceptance could but be a testimony that he was an heir of salvation.

To him the further injunction of Paul, Rom. 6:4, should stand foremost at the top of every day's page of life—"That like as Christ was raised up from the dead, by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life". And again, Col. 3:1, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above."

GOD'S TIMES

By C. W. Dean

THERE is so much scriptural truth contained in the article by Brother F. L. Austin, with the above title, which appeared in the January twenty-seventh issue, that the writer will ask for the privilege of presenting some scriptural thoughts on the seventy sevens of Daniel 9:24. I heartily agree with Bro. Austin that Gabriel was to speak to Daniel in plain words, words of ready understanding. And what Gabriel said needs no interpretation by finite man. By comparing scripture with scripture God's calendar of the ages is definite and accurate. But concerning the seventieth seven, we should not look for a given year, nor month, nor day, but for incidents as pointed out by the Scriptures.

Seventy sevens (heptads) are determined upon the people of Daniel. We should read no others in the text. The sixfold blessings decreed in the twenty-fourth verse follow the seventieth seven. In the twentieth year of Astyages (Artaxerxes) Darius the Median, the Ahasuerus of the book of Esther and the husband of Esther—Astyages issues "the commandment" to Nehemiah to restore and to build Jerusalem. Nehemiah pays his first visit to Jerusalem (Neh. 2:9).

With this commandment in the twentieth year of Astyages' reign, 454 B. C., the seven sevens of Daniel 9:25 begin and end with the dedication of the temple in 405 B. C. (Ezra 6:15).

The sixty-two sevens begin in 405 B. C. and end in 29 A. D., when Prince Messiah rode into Jerusalem on the colt as their King (Luke 19:32-44; Zech. 9:9). In the following week Messiah was "cut off", for the prophecy stated, "After threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off" (Dan. 9:26). This leaves the entire one seven, the seventieth, yet future, for Messiah was cut off after the sixty-two sevens, that is, the sixty-ninth and seventieth seven.

There is no use making any comparison with the dates 33 and 29 A. D., for the difference comes about by following Usher's chronology. In order to get a clear understanding we have to dismiss chronology of finite man from our mind. Turning our thoughts to incidents in Scripture we should read carefully Daniel 9:26. Then compare Daniel 9:27 with Matthew 24:15. This will give us a better understanding of the one seven, the seventieth seven, yet future.

The desolator, of Daniel 9:27, will empower a covenant with many of Israel in the land of Palestine for "one seven" (seven years), and in the midst of these years he will break the covenant, causing their sacrifice and gift offerings to cease and inaugurating a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, up to that time (Dan. 12:1; Matt. 24:15-22; Mark 13:14-20).

The most helpful point to remember is that all time measurements relative to the unveiling of Christ, the deliverance of watchful Israel, the resumption of the offerings, the resurrection of the faithful in Israel, and the dedica-

(Continued on page 695)

HOW CAN I KEEP FROM GIVING! THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM

Over against the treasury
Emmanuel was sitting;
The rich cast in of their great wealth
What seemed to them befitting.
A widow came and gave two mites,
Which then was all her living.
She did the most of all the host—
How can I keep from giving!

I have received a precious gift,
No mortal tongue can speak it;
The like is ready now for all
Who diligently seek it.
I can but sing the praise of Him
From whom I am receiving;
And, as He gives Himself to me,
How can I keep from giving!

To love the Lord with all my heart,
And as myself my neighbor,
I mean to strive with all my might,
And to this end will labor.
And may I never faithless prove,
But always be believing;
For while I think of Thy great love,
How can I keep from giving!
—Robert F. Skillings.

“GIVE not from the top of your purse, but from the bottom of your heart.”

QUESTIONABLE AMUSEMENTS

“I THINK a Christian can go anywhere,” said a young woman, who was defending her continued attendance at some very doubtful places of amusement.

“Certainly she can,” rejoined her friend, “but I am reminded of a little incident that happened last summer when I went with a party of friends to explore a coal mine. One of the young women appeared dressed in a dainty white gown. When her friends remonstrated with her, she appealed to the old miner who was to act as guide of the party.

“‘Can’t I wear a white dress down into the mine?’ she asked petulantly.

“‘Yes’m,’ returned the old man. ‘There’s noth’ to keep you from wearin’ a white frock down there, but there’ll be considerable to keep you from wearin’ one back.’”

There is nothing to prevent a Christian wearing his white garments when he seeks the fellowship of that which is unclean, but there is a good deal to prevent him wearing white garments afterwards.—Selected.

By Alta King

“The following, written especially for the Berean Page, being too long for that page, is given here. The Bereans, and others as well, will find it well worth reading.”

WHILE Jesus was among men His mission was to preach the gospel of the kingdom and bring it at hand. Therefore, the gospel of the kingdom is embodied in the daily teachings of Jesus and in the works by which He brought the kingdom at hand, within the experience of man.

Jesus’ talk with the woman of Samaria was one of His daily fulfillments of His mission. It, therefore, embodies the gospel of the kingdom. Through the written record of that talk we may hear the gospel of the kingdom from Jesus’ own lips.

Jesus met the woman, a stranger, one of a people held as outcast by His nation and in reality an outcast from good society, living a loose, immoral life. By all the conventions of Jewish morals and good society, Jesus should not have spoken to her. But His close sympathy with human needs, through His own humanity, and His consciousness of the Father’s power to meet those needs, because the Father was meeting them so fully in Himself, caused Him to see in the woman not an outcast, whose contact with society was dangerous to the wellbeing of the community, but a fellow being, ignorant of the fulness of the life that He Himself was enjoying through fellowship with the Father and His life. And because He wanted her to have this fulness of life for her own sake and for the glory of His Father, He spoke to her as a weary traveler whom she might serve and refresh with the cool water she was drawing from the well. Having thus broken down social barriers, He directed her thinking away from His personal needs toward the Father and His gift and her need of them, a need of which she herself was not conscious.

She was dull of hearing. She had no conception of His meaning when He spoke of living water as the gift of God, and she did not seek the meaning. She sought only to uphold the greatness of the ancestor who had left her people the well. To her there was no water other than the water of the well, and no giver of water greater than the ancestor who gave it.

When Jesus said that the water He had to give would become a well of water springing up into everlasting life, preventing all recurrence of thirst, the woman thought only of physical thirst and asked only for its satisfaction. To her the fulness of life lay in the full, and unlimited, and easy satisfaction of physical needs.

Though this consciousness of need was far different from the consciousness of need that Jesus wanted the woman to have, He made her request the starting place from

(Continued on page 698)

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF JOHN

By Lyman Booth

THE writer clearly sets forth the design of his writing. "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God" (5:13). When he wrote this epistle, it is barely possible that he had in mind some of the corrupters of the true doctrine concerning Christ, such as Corinthus, who appeared in Asia Minor in the last part of the first century and taught that "Jesus was not born of a virgin, but was the son of Joseph and Mary, born like all the rest of men, and became more just and wise than they." He also taught several other wild ideas too absurd for me to repeat.

This epistle has been received from the earliest ages; and the similarity of sentiment and expression between it and his gospel is full confirmation that he was the writer, though his name is not prefixed to it. From two expressions in the first chapter, "because ye have known him, that is, from the beginning", and "it is the last time", several learned men have concluded that it was written just before the destruction of Jerusalem, exclusively to the Jewish converts.

A more general opinion is that it was written much later and not long before the Revelation. The texts on which the former opinion is founded do not seem to admit of such an interpretation, and there is not the least intimation of Jewish or Gentile converts in the whole epistle. It is more than likely that it was written near the close of the writer's life, after the death of all the other apostles; and that it was intended as a general or circular letter, addressed to all the Christian churches. The authoritative and affectionate manner in which the writer addresses his children favors the conclusion; and the heretics and others, whom he evidently intended to oppose, came forward more boldly at this time than at any earlier period.

It is generally admitted that they who denied the paternity of Christ, they who explained away His proper origin and the reality of His sufferings and death as an atoning sacrifice, and they who taught their followers that believers, being saved by grace, were not under obligations to obey the commandments of God, were the principal members of the antichrist. These were branched out into several subdivisions and called by different names, such as, Ebionites, Corinthians, Gnostics, Nicolaitans and others, which later writers have multiplied greatly.

The Apostle did not name any of them, but his language was well suited to refute and expose all such teaching, both of ancient and modern times, and because of this feature the epistle is highly interesting to us. He presents to us more fully the love of God, as shown in the glorification of His Son. Again and again he exhorts all believers to exercise love for each other. This we suppose is the reason why he has been considered of a most loving disposition, even more so than any of the other apostles.

Our Lord called him and James his brother, Sons of Thunder, and the plain, sharp, and painful manner in which he speaks of hypocrites and false teachers illustrates fully the reason why that name was given to him. He then mentions certain marks or signs by which Christians may be distinguished from self-deceivers and hypocrites. This epistle differs exceedingly in style and manner from those of the other apostles; but it is in perfect harmony with them in doctrine and practical instruction.

This epistle bears a close relation to John's gospel. Though it is the most independent of all the epistles as to place, time, and circumstances, it is clearly related to the gospel by the same writer. Apart from it, it could not be so easily understood. The writer appears to assume that his readers are somewhat acquainted with many expressions or words found in it, such as "light," "life," "the truth," "the word." In the gospel we find the original fountain of many and various thoughts which are carried a little further in this epistle and given a practical application. Bishop Westcott has said, "The theme of the epistle is that Christ is Jesus; the theme of the gospel is that Jesus is the Christ."

As to the date when this epistle was written, it is a matter of uncertainty. Some would place it before the destruction of Jerusalem. Others with a greater probability would place it within the last decade of the first century. As the last years of John's life were spent in Ephesus, it may reasonably be supposed that it was written there.

The following summary will give the chief lines of thought: First, the Apostle presents the true nature of fellowship with God, who is light and love, and requires purity and holiness in the Christian life (Chapter One). He next describes the blessings and duties of sonship and contrasts the children of God and of the Evil One and the rival powers of truth and error (3 and 4:6). He enlarges on the bond of Christian fellowship and sonship, which is love, both to God, the Father, and to one another.

PAUL'S TRIUMPHANT BOAST

Who shall condemn us or oppose
When God is matched against our foes?
Shall tribulations sad and sore;
Shall angry floods that round us pour;
Or persecutor's cruel hand,
That bears the torch and flaming brand;
Shall torturing pain and deep distress;
Shall famine, sword, or nakedness;
Shall peril on both land and sea—
Shall anything sufficient be,
In earth below, around, above,
To intercept our Savior's love?
In this conviction firm and sure,
I know His mercy will endure.

—Selected.

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

MAN is a mortal creature (Job 4:17), called a living soul (Gen. 2:7), and through sin is under the sentence of death (Rom. 5:12). He lives by the breath of life, which God breathed into his nostrils; but when God takes away that breath, he ceases to live (Job 34:14, 15; Psa. 104:29; 146:4). We are told that the life (soul) of the flesh is in the blood (Lev. 17:11), and the soul of the Lord Jesus was made an offering for sin, and poured out unto death (Isa. 53:10, 12).

The soul is never once, in the Bible, spoken of as being immortal (i. e., not subject to death). God is the only "One" who has immortality (1 Tim. 1:17; 6:16). The Lord Himself, also all the inspired writers of the Bible, never once taught that there is an "immortal soul," or "never-dying spirit" dwelling in man, with all the same faculties and senses that the body possesses. They all knew quite well that if a person were limbless, he had no limbs; if a person were armless, he had no arms; if a person were sightless, he had no sight.

Nothing can possibly live without an organism. Life never lives by itself. Every creature has life in a body and cannot live without it. It may lose some member of the body, but it cannot replace it. It has not an "immaterial soul" within, having the corresponding member. If someone loses his limbs, there is no such thing as another person dwelling in his body with another pair of limbs; and yet this is practically what thousands of people are led to believe through the traditional teaching of orthodox preachers in almost every religious denomination in these last days.

They seek to tell us that the soul cannot die. That the souls of the righteous are already in heaven, standing without limbs; praising the Lord without organs of speech. That the souls of the wicked are in hell, suffering torment without any brain, or nerves, to feel pain. It would be far better if people accepted the plain teaching of the Bible, which most emphatically declares—"The soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezek. 18:4, 20), and that a soul can be saved from death (James 5:20).

It seems rather strange when we learn that the soul is never once spoken of either as going to a so-called heaven at death, or to the traditional hell of orthodoxy. It is always said in the Bible to go to the grave, or to be delivered from the grave (Job 33:22; Psa. 16:10; 49:15; 89:48; Hosea 13:14).

Neither is "the spirit" (breath of life) ever said to go to heaven or hell. It returns unto God who gave "it" (Ecc. 12:7; Luke 23:46). It was not merely a part of man that sinned, but the complete man; and it is upon the man himself that the sentence of death was passed (Rom. 5:12). It is the man (not a case he lives in) who returns unto dust (Gen. 3:19), with the exception of the breath (spirit, Job 27:3), which returns unto God who gave "it" (Psalm 104:29).

Death is called a "sleep", and those who are dead "know not any thing" (Job 14:12; Psa. 39:13; Ecc. 9:

5, 10). Man would have remained dead, had God not provided a Lifegiver (John 5:26, 40; 10:10). The One who died for our sins, and rose again from the dead (1 Cor. 15:3-5, 17-19).

How can men who are only mortal (Job 4:17) live forever, unless God bestows Eternal Life upon them as a free gift? Paul says, "Lay hold on eternal life" (1 Tim. 6:12). He knew that men do not possess it, not in any part of them; and that it could not possibly be given to "immortal souls" or "never-dying spirits," because they would already have it. He also says, "The wages of sin is death (thanatos: extinction of life), but "the free gift of God is eternal life in Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom 6:23, R. V.).

This eternal life is not in men, but in the Son of God (1 John 5:11). "For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." And that He should give eternal life to as many as He gives Him (John 5:26; 17:2). "Ye will not come to me that ye might have life" (John 5:40). Just the same as men and women come to the table for daily food to sustain life, so must all come to Christ, if they want to inherit eternal life. He says, "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger" (John 6:35). This is the bread of God, which came down from heaven "to give life" unto the world.

There is ample provision for every man, woman, boy, or girl of Adam's race, but they must partake of it "to live," for we read, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you" (John 6:53). Every individual must appropriate Him by faith as his own personal Savior. He says, "If any man eat of this bread he shall live for ever" (John 6:51), and we also read, "He that doeth the will of God abideth for ever" (1 John 2:17). Jesus says, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way which leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. But strait is the gate, and narrow the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matt. 7:14).

The way which leads to destruction is a way of death (Prov. 14:12). If we accept all that men seek to tell us, we will have to believe that Jesus means that the broad way never ends in destruction and death, but everlasting life in torment and misery; that it is "a death" which "never dies;" that in the first death, one still continues to live as a disembodied soul or spirit; but in the second death, in literal fire, the unsaved must live forever with a body. Such is the traditional belief of so-called orthodoxy today; it is far worse than heathenism, and turns a God of love and justice into a tyrant.

They also tell us that death only means separation, and that the dead are more alive and conscious than when they were alive in the body. I wonder how much longer intelligent men and women are going to allow themselves to be deceived by men who claim to know the Bible? Death causes separation, but never means separation. The definition of death is "to cease to live," the "absence of life," "to be extinct." It is impossible for flesh and blood to exist five minutes in literal fire, let alone for all eternity.

"It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." "For our God is a consuming fire" Heb. 10:31; 12:29). The ungodly are going to be taken and destroyed, and shall utterly perish in their own corruption (2 Peter 2:12). The broad road ends in "not seeing life," "losing the life," "soul (life) and body destroyed," "burnt up root and branch," in the lake of fire, the second death; from which there is no hope of resurrection (John 3:36; Mark 8:36; Matt. 10:28; Mal. 4:1; Rev. 20:14, 15). This is the everlasting "cutting off" (kolasis, Matt. 25:46). Not an everlasting process of punishing, but everlasting in its effects — "Destruction," not "Preservation" (2 Thess. 1:9).

The narrow way leads unto Life. How can we know the way? Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved" (John 14:6; 10:9). We can only enter in through Him alone.—From Words of Life.

WHAT a great blessing is a friend with heart so trusty that you may safely bury all your secrets in it, whose conscience you may fear less than your own, who can relieve your cares by his conversation, your doubts by his counsels, your sadness by his good humor, and whose very looks give you comfort.—Seneca.

GOD'S TIMES

(Continued from page 691)

tion or anointing of a holy of holies in the millennial sanctuary, is computed from the beginning of the covenant in the middle of the seventieth seven.

Now let us read carefully 1 Thessalonians 5:1, 2. Then, dear readers, let us read the third, fourth, and fifth verses of that same chapter. When they are saying, peace and safety, to Israel in the land of Palestine under the covenant of the desolator, sudden destruction cometh upon them. "But ye, brethren (the ecclesia which is His body), are not in darkness that that day (Lord's day) should overtake you as a thief." (Why?) "For ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day."

The Lord will have come to some point in the air and snatched away the ecclesia, which is His body (1 Thess. 4:16-17). Then that which restraineth now will be taken out of the midst (2 Thess. 2:8-9). Therefore the ecclesia, which is His body, will be with their Lord before the covenant will be empowered with many in Israel in the land of Palestine. And his presence is according to the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders (2 Thess. 2:9; Rev. 13).

The cry today is "Federation" or "League of Nations" to end war and declare peace. In Daniel's vision (7:7) the western beast had ten horns; hence the ten horns stand for ten western military powers in Christendom. In a federation of many governments it is easily seen how they could temporarily delegate their powers to the head of the world league. And the head (prince) of the world league would have the power and authority to empower a covenant with the Jews and give them the land of Palestine and their right to the "ancient order of worship". This is what the Scriptures plainly teach will be done.

The time period from the breaking of the covenant to the unveiling of Christ is three and one-half years, and is designated in the Scriptures as a time and times and the dividing of time (Dan. 7:25), and a time, and times, and half a time (Rev. 12:14), and forty and two months (Rev. 11:2 and 13:5), and twelve hundred and sixty days (Rev. 11:3 and 12:6). This period refers to the last half of the seventieth seven of Daniel's prophecy.

At the end of the twelve hundred and sixty days (Matt. 24:22), Christ will be unveiled from heaven with power and much glory, bringing deliverance to awaiting Israel (Rom. 11:26-27; Heb. 9:28). Of this same event the angel Gabriel tells Daniel: "And at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book" (Dan. 12:1).

We are next presented with a period of twelve hundred and ninety days with reference to the resumption of the offerings, which were made to cease at the breaking of the covenant by the desolator. But we are not to add these days to the twelve hundred and sixty, but to compute them from the middle of the seventieth seven, when the covenant was broken and the offering taken away.

Let us read it: "From the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate (Matt. 24:15) set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days." Daniel 12:11. This carries us thirty days beyond the unveiling of Christ from heaven, to the time when the offerings will be resumed and Israel's ancient order of worship established again.

In Daniel 12:12, we are given a statement of great importance concerning the faithful in Israel who died in the faith, not being requited with the promises. It is the better resurrection. "Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days." Daniel will stand in his lot at the end of these days (12:13).

Remembering our point of computation—the breaking of the covenant in the middle of the seventieth seven—the thirteen hundred and thirty-five days carry us two and a half months, or seventy-five days beyond the unveiling of Christ to the first or former resurrection and the beginning of the glorious reign of the thousand years. Hence, the purpose of this scripture is to console the saints in Israel of that era, suffering martyrdom at the hands of the desolator, with the happy expectation of the "better resurrection".

The resurrection of the saints in Israel (John 5:29; Luke 14:14; Rev. 20:6; Dan. 12:2), marks the beginning of the millennial kingdom, for we are told that those who are resurrected "live and reign with Christ a thousand years".

SHALL I SEE HIM?

By Alice B. Curtis

Shall I see Him in the morning,
When all clouds have rolled away,
And the glory of His presence,
Brings the endless, perfect day?
When the mountains shall be leveled,
And the vales exalted be,
When old ocean's voice is silent,
For there shall be no more sea.

Shall I see Him when the angel,
Has proclaimed time is no more,
And we stand upon the reaches,
Of eternity's vast shore?
Sin and death shall be abolished,
Sorrow shall be unknown, too,
When the sun with increased splendor,
Shines upon the earth made new.

What a happy throng will gather,
Round His rainbow circled throne,
To ascribe to God all honor;
There to know as they are known.
God will freely love His people,
Over them He will rejoice,
And with rapture they shall hear Him
Lift in song His wondrous voice.

Shall I see Him in His glory,
In His majesty and might,
Lord of lords and King eternal,
Dwelling in supernal light?
Not unless my sins are covered
With Christ's robe of righteousness
Shall I see Him in His beauty,
And know unmixed happiness.

THE MEANING OF "HIS PEOPLE"

"A LIGHT to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." The Rev. Leon Tucker tells an interesting incident that occurred in one of his meetings. A Jew was asked to read in Hebrew, and translate, Matthew 1:21, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins." He proceeded as far as "his people," and paused. Mr. Tucker urged him to proceed, but he hesitated to do so through modesty. Being further pressed, he rendered the language thus: "He shall save his own relations from their sins." How odd, yet beautiful as odd! Is it not also true? For the united testimony of the Old and New Testaments is expressed in the words, "to the Jew first."—The Christian Workers' Magazine.

IS THIS A MERE COINCIDENCE?

Under the above caption one of our readers has sent in an interesting clipping on Daniel 5:25. We are sorry that we cannot give proper credit to the periodical from which it was taken, as the sender forgot to inform us; but, with apologies to the publisher, the suggested numerical analysis of this prophecy follows:

IN THE palace of King Belshazzar of old Babylon, appeared the following cryptic words, written by the finger of a man's hand, on the wall of the palace: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN (Dan. 5:25). The original word for "Upharsin" is PERES.

These words were explained by Daniel (God's prophet) as follows: MENE, "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it." TEKEL, "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting." UPHARSIN, "Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

MENE is the translation of the Chaldean or Hebrew MANEH, or mina. The Babylonians used it as a standard of weight in gold. It was called the Royal Mina, and was cast in the image of a lion. The lion represented in symbol the Babylonian empire of Daniel 7—in Daniel's vision. In those times the mina was equal to fifty shekels in value.

Next is TEKEL. It is from the primitive and Hebrew root, SHAQAL. It means to weigh. In terms of weight it is translated SHEQEL or shekel.

PERES, to divide. While for a long time they didn't seem to know the origin of the word, it was at last found. The French investigator, Cleremont-Ganneau, identified it from the Talmud as being equivalent to the Hebrew PERAS. The Jews, during the Babylonian captivity, used PERAS to denote the half-mina. It was equal to twenty-five shekels.

Now let us reduce these words to terms of weight. We then find: Mene (1 mina), Tekel (1 shekel), Peres (1 half-mina).

The shekel was the same as fifty gerahs. Now, a bit of arithmetic. The mina is equal to fifty shekels. 50 x 20 equals 1000. There are here two minas, or 2000 gerahs. This then makes 2000. There is also a half-mina (500 gerahs). This then totals 2500 gerahs. The shekel contains 20 gerahs. The total meaning in terms of gerahs would be 2520.

Now, is this a mere coincidence? Or, did God give us this to show that there would be just 2520 years of Gentile domination? Begin the Gentile domination 606 - 587 B. C., and the years run out A. D. 1914—1933.

It should be beneath the dignity of prophetic students to turn prophet, as some have foolishly done, and predict the year of the second advent, or the exact time. The exact time or year isn't given to us. But we should study the prophetic Word and show a desire to find evidences of soon-coming glory.

"The tithe is mightier than the drive."

THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS

(Continued from front page)

ANIMAL LIFE

THE PROPHETS did not limit their prophecy merely to the restoration of nations. They also spoke very plainly about the restoration that God purposed with reference to animal life. In Isaiah 11:1-9 we learn that, when the Branch of Jesse, clothed in righteousness, shall take control, then, v. 6, "the wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. . ."

"They shall not hurt nor destroy . . . for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord. . ."

The condition of all life is to be restored to those conditions which prevailed when all was "good and very good."

EARTH'S CURSE REMOVED

THE EARTH ITSELF is to receive a restoration. "The desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose." Isa. 35:1. "The parched ground shall become a pool", v. 7, "and the thirsty land springs of water." No "ravenous beast shall go up thereon"; "sorrow and sighing shall flee away".

Indeed, John upon the Isle of Patmos, who in spirit had been called forward unto the great day of the Lord, saw as the conclusion of the whole matter, "a new heaven and a new earth". The restitution, which John saw in its completion, presented to his vision a condition where "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying. Neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things have passed away." These former things had all been present on and through the earth, not in the heavens. The restitution shall result in the obliteration of these things from those places where they had prevailed. Indeed John continued looking and beheld that, Rev. 22:3, "there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him." Wherever the curse had been, there it should be no more. All was restored to that condition in which it was previous to having been cursed.

GOD'S HAND NOT SHORTENED

BUT PETER, in Acts 3:21, assured that heaven must receive Christ until the times of restitution should arrive. That restitution work is the work of Jesus, God's Son. They, in crucifying Him, had denied Him the privilege of engaging in that great labor of refreshing. However, Peter assured them by word and by act that their denial of the Messiah and their denial of His great work of restoration could not stay God from blotting out the sins of the individual believer in His Son; nor from granting that believer proper and commensurate blessings today. He revealed this by the miracle at the beautiful gate.

The Apostle further revealed that there are two principal phases to God's great plan of salvation. The one phase of salvation being to live in and with Christ. The other phase embracing restitution by and through Christ. The three thousand, yea, the five thousand who on the day of Pentecost were baptized into Jesus Christ for the remission of sins were pointed forward by Peter and other apostles to a day of salvation which would constitute them, Romans 8:17, 18, "heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ." They would be "glorified with him." Or as Paul wrote to the Philippians, 3:20, 21, they would become "fashioned like unto his (Christ's) glorious body."

Not so those who might become recipients of the great restitution. Theirs is to be restored to all the goodness and blessing and joy of life as it burst forth from the hand of God, when as yet there was no sin in the world. It was God's great burst of assurance when He declared, Numbers 14:21, "As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord."

NONE OTHER THAN CHRIST

ALL RESTS upon Christ. He alone is Savior. He alone is Redeemer. Peter's words to his hearers, in Acts 2:38, are still words of great moment to each and every individual: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

AVERAGE FICTION VERSUS GOSPELS

IN THIS age of rush and hurry there are those who make excuse for the lack of study of their Bibles, which they seem to feel belong to a slower, quieter age. Yet, if we make a very few simple calculations, we shall see that the very foundation of our faith is all contained in less pages in the four gospels of the New Testament than the ordinary novel of the day.

The gospel of Matthew has twenty-eight chapters; Mark, sixteen; Luke, twenty-four; and John, twenty-one. A book people easily read through in one day's journey or in a couple of evenings at home averages three hundred pages of printed matter. The majority of the readers of fiction today will cover one hundred books in the year, and yet how many people have read these wonderful, inspired narratives twice in that year?

We would ask our readers how deeply and permanently have these books that they have read inspired or molded their lives? How many of them have so lived in their memories that they have found themselves stronger and better and more useful in life through their perusal? while it is an acknowledged fact that the whole life-spring of millions has been vitally changed and eternally benefited by the message of these four gospels.—Selected.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM

(Continued from page 692)

which He led her into consciousness of her need of the Father's spiritual life. He left off symbolical terms and went straight to the heart of her living. He made her realize the kind of living she had been led into by that thinking which takes into consideration only the physical needs and their present full satisfaction, regardless of God and His laws.

She attempted to turn the conversation away from herself by asking about such impersonal topics as the place and form of worship as commanded by the fathers. But Jesus kept the line of thinking directed toward herself until He made her realize all things that she had ever done, and realize them in the light of the Father and of the true worship that He requires of His people. Thus the woman received, for the first time, of the living water that becomes a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

Humbled before the stranger's honor for womanhood, even for her womanhood soiled by ignorant living, wondering at His deep insight into her life, and at His wisdom concerning the fulness of life, she went back to the men of the city where she lived, with this question on her lips, "Is not this the Christ?" And hearing her say that Jesus had told her all things that she had ever done, and seeing in her face and hearing in her voice the joy and wonder of a life cleansed by contact with the purity, and wisdom, and love of Jesus, they believed on Him before they saw Him. Then coming to Him, they believed not only because of her word, but because they heard Him themselves.

And out of this personal contact with Jesus came the overpowering conviction—"This is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world." This is the good news that dawned on the woman and her companions, because Jesus had been able to turn one life to the Father and His ways. They not only heard, but they saw the good news—Jesus Himself, a man who understands man and his needs; who also knows the Father's wisdom and love and how to bring them to bear on man's living, meeting all its needs! who knows the fulness of life and knows it is the source of living water that nourishes life everlasting; a man anointed with the Father's power, love, and wisdom, Jesus, the Savior of the world. This is the gospel of the kingdom that Jesus preached and brought at hand during His first appearance among men.

Like Israel we may believe in the restoration of the kingdom of Israel. We may know every detail of its organization and establishment, the time, place, rulers, subjects, scope of dominion. We may long for the King to take the throne. We may desire a place of honor and rulership under Him. We may be anxious to place the crown on His head and to have Him place one on ours.

But not until we hear the good news that the woman of Samaria heard when Jesus talked to her, not until we thrill to the conviction that Jesus is indeed the Christ the Savior of the world—not only thrill to this good news, but hold it deep within our hearts so that we feel and live its spirit toward all about us, whether or not we understand how and when it is all to be accomplished—not until all this takes place in our consciousness, have we heard the GOSPEL of the kingdom.

There is a vast difference between the kingdom and the GOSPEL of the kingdom. Israel knew much about the former and believed it thoroughly, but she knew nothing about the latter, and because she failed to get it when Jesus preached it to her, she crucified the King of kings, and rejected the kingdom. We, too, are rejecting the King and His kingdom unless we accept at its face value the Gospel of the kingdom—Jesus the Christ, the Savior of the world.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPRESENTATION

Extract from Constitution and By-laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty percent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty percent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 percent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference,
F. L. Austin, Secretary,
Oregon, Illinois:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the church conference at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 4 to 16, 1931. The church conference has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1931.

Names and addresses of members follow:

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois
For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"FOR THE WAGES OF SIN IS DEATH; BUT THE GIFT OF GOD IS ETERNAL LIFE THROUGH JESUS CHRIST OUR LORD."—ROMANS 6:23.

ACTIVITIES IN CLEVELAND

THE Berean Society closed its year of work with an enjoyable picnic at Squire's Castle, in Metropolitan Park, on June 27. The senior classes participated, the juniors having been assigned a different date for their party.

The junior classes closed their semester with written tests on the lessons studied during the term. Many of the children did remarkably well, answering correctly questions that would often "stump" some of their elders. They are really learning something, and that speaks well for their teachers.

The average weekly attendance for the whole year has been 43, the average in the junior division being 26, and in the senior, 19. It has been a highly successful year. The record attendance for the year was 69, on March 6.

The semi-annual election of officers was held on June 19, the following officers being chosen: President, J. O. Conrad; Vice president, W. J. Halls; Secretary, Miss Mary Milburn; Treasurer, Miss Ethel Stadden; Pianist, Miss Eunice Hawkins. That gives us plenty of new blood in office, so we are hoping for fresh ideas and another forward movement in the fall. Our new president is already hatching up plans for the coming term, and we are looking forward to another year even more successful than this past one has been.

NO MAN CAN SERVE TWO MASTERS

"NO MAN can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will hold to the one and despise the other." Matt. 6:24.

"Therefore I say unto you, take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on." Matt. 6:25. If we have our thoughts on these things we will be serving the world.

We should seek first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto us. For our heavenly Father knows that we have need of all these things.

Which, then, is the wisest and happiest person, he who follows the world, or he who follows God?

Mrs. Pauline Klepinger, Brookville, Ohio.

JACOB'S DREAM

ONE day Isaac called his son Jacob to him and said, "Jacob, I do not want you to marry a wife from this land of Canaan. I want you to go to the land of Pa-dan-ar-am where your grandfather lives and marry one of your uncle Laban's daughters." Isaac told Jacob that God would make him promises, as He did to his father Abraham.

Jacob started on his journey. After a while he came to a place where he decided to stay for the night. Gathering some stones for a pillow, he lay down and went to sleep.

While sleeping, he had a strange dream, in which he saw a ladder set upon the earth and the top reached to heaven. He saw angels running up and down this ladder and God was above it. God said to Jacob, "I will give you this land on which you are lying, and your seed shall be as the dust of the earth."

Jacob arose early in the morning, and taking the stone which he had used as a pillow, laid it down and poured oil on it. Then he called the place Bethel.

Starting on, he came to a well where a girl was watering her father's sheep. She told him that her name was Rachel. After he had taken the sheep and watered them, they went together to the home of her father. Here Jacob told Rachel's father that he would be willing to work for him for seven years if he would give him Rachel for his wife. Her father promised to do this.

After seven years were up Rachel's older sister was brought to Jacob instead of the one he loved. But Jacob promised to work seven more years for Rachel, and after the time was up she was given to him.

Mable Kathleen Hendrix, Age 10, Martinsville, Illinois.

Remember National Berean Day—August 10—at Oregon, Illinois. Be sure to be present.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 25; Ohio, 19; California, 10; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 3; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

A GOSPEL FOR ALL MEN

THE apostles preached to the Jews only at first, but the good news was to extend to the Gentiles too. Peter had to learn this lesson. He was a Jew and had been taught that God was the God of Israel, and so God had to teach Peter that He is the God of all who will accept Him. And this is the way God did it:

Peter was in Joppa, living in the house of Simon, the tanner. One noon he went up on the housetop to pray. He became very hungry, but while waiting for his food to be prepared, he fell into a kind of sleep. Then God sent him a vision—a sort of dream.

He saw the heavens opened and a great sheet let down from heaven by the four corners. In this sheet were animals of all kinds and creeping things. A voice told Peter to kill and eat these animals, but Peter said: "Not so, Lord."

You see, the Jews were very particular, according to their laws, about eating certain foods or animals, especially pigs. So, to Peter, this lot was very unclean. However, the voice said, "What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common." This was done three times, and then all was drawn up into heaven.

God was teaching Peter that people of other nations were not unclean if God cleansed them; and that if He willed it so, all nations were to be welcomed into the church, "even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

Then Peter was prepared to receive three strangers, who arrived as the vision ended. These three were the servants of an Italian (Gentile) centurion named Cornelius, who had come to believe in God and served Him. He, too, had been shown a vision in answer to his prayers, and an angel told him to send for Peter, that Peter might tell him what he ought to do to be saved. So he sent for Peter.

In the meantime, Cornelius called together all his relatives and friends that they might hear all things that were commanded Peter of God. Peter, with six brethren, soon arrived, and when Cornelius would have worshiped him, Peter would have none of that, for he said, "I myself also am a man."

A strict Jew would not have entered the house of a Gentile, and many would have refused to live in the house of a tanner, who worked with the skins of animals. But Peter had learned differently. After Cornelius explained to him about the angel telling him to send for Peter, Peter began to preach to those assembled. The first thing he said was, "I perceive that God is no respecter of persons", that He would accept the righteous out of every nation.

Later Paul said, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

Let us then, be kindly to all with whom we come in contact, regardless of their color or race. Let us try to make them feel at home with us, and let us make our lives so happy and attractive that they will want to be one of us.

DO WE THINK that we are a little better than other people or other churches and that we are all right while others are all wrong?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Learn Galatians 3:28, 29 — "Abrahamic Faith".
2. Illustrate Peter's dream.
3. Read Romans 1:8-17; John 5:14; Acts 13:46-49.
4. Read V. C. T. in the Quarterly.

WE BELIEVE that we have eternal life in Jesus— "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." 1 John 5:11, 12.

"He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

SOME PEOPLE WHO COULD NOT BE TRUSTED

ONE morning Stephen's teacher had to leave the school-room. She said, "I do not want anyone to talk while I am out of the room."

The teacher was gone a long time. After a while, one of the boys said, "I'm tired of sitting still. Come on, let's play."

So some of the boys began talking, and laughing, and pitching books to one another. But Stephen sat quietly at his desk, and did not speak a word.

That night Stephen told Daddy all about it. "I wanted to talk, too," he said, "but I knew the teacher was trusting us to behave."

"That's right," said Daddy. "I'm glad to know that you are an honorable boy who can be trusted. Would you like to hear about some people who could not be trusted?"

"Who were they?" asked Stephen.

Next week we will learn about these people who could not be trusted.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 7. — August 16, 1931

SOWING AND REAPING

Galatians 6:1-10

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 5:11-15

GOLDEN TEXT

Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.—Galatians 6:7.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Intemperance.

Basic Truth. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Gal. 6:7.

I. As to Alcohol. (A) As to the User. There is no question but that the Bible teaches that fermented wine may sometimes be needed. When Paul said, 1 Tim. 5:23, "Use a little wine for thy stomach's sake", he spoke of "fermented juice of the grape."—Crit. Lex. Like many other items fermented wines are distinctly injurious except when, and as, absolutely needed.

To use liquors merely to please the taste or to satisfy one's cravings is to sow to the flesh. The injurious effects may not all be seen immediately. But, as the egg, deposited in the open blossom becomes a worm that destroys the fruit of the blossom, so the habit of feeding the body injurious elements to satiate the tongue's craving, injures life, both for the present and for the resurrection age.

(B) As to the Dispenser. With few exceptions, alcohol is dispensed as a business, for no other purpose than to provide financial revenue. The "love of money" by the dispenser of alcohols, or tobaccos, or narcotic drugs, induces him to sell to his fellow men that which exposes their joys and comforts to destruction and which blights their eternal harvest—all to please and satisfy his own inordinate, ungodly, unchristlike love for gain. If possible, he is worse than a Judas; he is a most untrustworthy, unreliable citizen among men.

He mars the beautiful landscapes of mountain and vale with his deceptive and destructive advertising posters; he allures by smile, by music, by jollification the choicest sons and purest daughters of all families, that he may satiate his unnatural greed for lucre with the honest earnings which rightfully belong to his fellow citizens.

Alcoholism reveals unspeakable destructiveness to both user and dispenser.

II. As to the Pleasures of the Flesh. There is scarcely any great evil that does not consist of using honored, normal, flesh-pleasure in excess:

Eating is necessary. The process gives righteous pleasure. But to eat in excess merely to satisfy taste, lust, is a terrible offense.

Drinking is required by human nature. It is a law of God. It properly gives pleasure. But to drink to excess, to drink of injurious elements, is wholly sinful.

The same can be said of nearly everything practiced in life. The reason for doing any particular thing habitually is that nature demands the doing of that thing normally. Intemperance therein is always productive of the harvest to the flesh.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Sowing: Now is the seeding time. Everybody is sowing some kind of seed. Some are using good seed. Some are sowing bad seed. Others are planting both kinds. BUT ALL are sowing for eternity.

Some are sowing truth—others, error.

Some are sowing righteousness—others, sin.

Some are sowing morality—others, immorality.

Some are sowing love—others, hate.

Some are sowing kindness—others, bitterness.

Some are sowing peace—others, trouble.

Some are sowing smiles—others, frowns.

What are you sowing?

Reaping: The reaping time is the harvest. Scripture terms it the "end of the world", Matt. 13:24-30, 36-42. Temporary effects from the sowing are realized now. But the harvest comes when the Judge of all the earth rewards every man, according to his works or the fruit produced by his sowing. Bad seed cannot produce good grain. Evil thoughts will not bring forth good thoughts. Wheat is not grown from tare seed. We reap what we sow and sow what we reap. Most all farmers treat their seed before they sow it, in order that they may have a good harvest. If you want a good harvest, treat the seed you sow with the cleansing blood of Jesus Christ.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Do not mistake: God is not to be derided, for whatever a man may sow, this also will he reap."—Gal. 6:7, Diag.

Men do not gather grapes from thorns, nor figs from thistles. In the beginning the trees, the grass, the animals and all nature produced after their own kind. It has been the same all down the ages, and it is still the same way. If we want to produce something good, it has to come from a good seed or sprout. If we want cotton, a cotton seed must be planted, not a seed for a tree or a vine.

As with seeds, so with deeds. Just as surely as good deeds are done, the result will be good; but a single bad deed leaves its impression for life. We may deceive others and even ourselves at times, but the Father has an all seeing eye and is never deceived, though we may try ever so hard. It is of no avail to try to deride the Father, for He is so great, and we are so insignificant.

As with deeds, so with actions. The old saying, "Actions speak louder than words", is a true one. For the Father sees every action and knows our hearts, regardless of what we say to Him or try to make Him believe. Our actions are always telltales, and we must expect rewards according to what we do. If we drink, we must expect the curse that goes with it; if we refrain from it, we may reap the blessing.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

"For whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap" is a law of God that will bring richest blessing or untold misery. Without this law we could not sow the seeds that will produce life. The joys of life follow the sowing of the seeds of industry, love, charity, temperance, etc.

We cannot sow the wind and not reap the whirlwind; intoxication and not reap physical ruin; physical ruin and not reap moral and spiritual ruin; the carnal and not reap destruction. A Christian cannot compromise with strong drink. Drunkenness is forbidden, and no drunkard can inherit the kingdom of God. (1 Cor. 6:10.)

Paul warns: "Let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober (not drunken). For they that sleep, sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night. But let us, who are of the day, be sober". 1 Thess. 5:6-8.

Jesus warns: "Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting (excess), and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come upon all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth."—Luke 21:34.—H. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

One lesson from each quarter is always called a temperance lesson. In these lessons we are usually taught one of two things: (1) never to drink strong drinks; (2) to be temperate in our eating, working and playing. Both are very good rules and should be followed by all boys and girls.

You say, "I should do as I please about those things. They harm no one but me, if I use them." But is that really true? How do you know how many boys or girls are following your example? You cannot just harm yourself; you surely harm all who are associated with you.

What a splendid example we have to follow in the life of Daniel. He refused to eat and drink the things he knew would be harmful to him.

What can there be in the life of a drunkard that one would care to follow? Therefore we must be careful not to start things that we know will end in only harm to ourselves and others. "Sow well," and "reap well". What does that mean?—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

General and Illinois, Oregon,	Aug. 4 to 16
Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 31
Kansas, Arkansas City,	August 23 to 31

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

As this issue goes into the mail, Illinois Bible School is opening. Bro. A. G. Townsend, of Grand Rapids, Mich., is acting as superintendent of the school, and under his energetic supervision, we are assured of harmonious workings in all classes. Several from a distance are on hand for the first session, and the dining hall commences to look natural again. Classes and teachers are:

- Adult Class — teachers, Bros. Conner and Gordon.
- Senior Young People — Bros. Austin and Lapp.
- Junior Young People — Bros. Marsh and Gordon.
- Intermediates — Bro. Thayer.
- Primary — Sr. Thayer.

Bro. Jas. A. Patrick requests us to state that he is open for evangelistic or supply work at any time except the last two Sundays in August. He may be addressed at, Orange Road, Ashland, Ohio.

A faithful isolated sister at Clyde, N. C., Mrs. R. A. Robinson, when sending in her pledge, writes: "I will send my dollar, knowing that the dear Lord will provide as He always has . . . Pray for me that I fail not in these dark days, for it is a trying time. My only comfort is my Bible and The Restitution Herald."

Do not overlook our Subscription Campaign, full particulars of which will be found on back page. There are several fine offerings of maps which will aid you greatly in your Bible study. Look them over; select the one which will fill your needs; and go to work. The vacation season is the time to enlist the cooperation of the Sunday School scholars.

Our hearts are filled with rejoicing and yet with a deep sense of responsibility as we realize that faithful ones over the land are daily petitioning the Father in behalf of the work and the workers at headquarters. Sr. Abbie H. Fiske of Baltimore, Md., is one such faithful sister, who takes pleasure in assisting financially for the work of the Training Class and in asking God's guidance in our labors together.

Messages from Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan, New York, Ohio and elsewhere tell of numbers who expect to arrive early for the Illinois Bible School and for the conference. Not only are the local people anxious for a large gathering, but all are praying that much good will be done which shall be returned to the various communities from whence these visitors and delegates attend.

As man's world becomes more and more depressed and as sin and crime increase, those who believe in Jesus our Lord have increased

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." —Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Others will be gladly added upon request.

- Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota.
- Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
- Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
- Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
- Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
- Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
- Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
- Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25
Sumas, Washington
- Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
- Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
- Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
- Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada
- Bro. Stephen Cronkhite, Brantford, Ont.
- Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher, Deerfield, Fla.

incentive to press forward toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God which is in Christ Jesus. The more difficult the times, the more necessary it is for a Christian not to forsake the assembling of themselves together. They need that strength and encouragement and moral support which comes from frequent association and from frequent prayer and study.

A telegram from Texas informs us that their delegation is on the way to General Conference.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Work at our church here is moving along in real good shape through the summer weather. Bro. VanPortfleet was in charge for "Park Sunday", and it was inspiring to have such a splendid crowd of children and older people gathered under the beautiful trees, and have them so quiet and orderly and attentive. The day was very well handled.

The following Sunday, July 26, was "Father's Day", in charge of Sr. Doan. A special musical feature was given, and Sr. Doan paid a beautiful tribute to fathers and presented an appropriate poem.

On Monday night, July 27, a business meeting was held at the church and plans made for the coming year's work. In spite of hard times and discouragements our group is going to hold true. They are bending every effort for success.

Eight or ten from our church are planning to attend General Conference. Bro. Townsend was chosen church delegate.

F. E. Siple, pastor.

ARKANSAS AND OKLAHOMA ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting is drawing near, and we anticipate a good meeting at this time. It is no little effort for the church folks at Arkansas City to arrange from year to year for these meetings, but they do it gladly and willingly that those isolated ones of like precious faith may have this yearly opportunity of listening to the gospel message and coming together in fellowship. We should lay aside all things that will hinder the flow of Christian love and fellowship.

Remember that one of old said, "I was glad when they said, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Are you really going to be glad of this opportunity? We need these gatherings together. Oh, how much we need them! And how earnestly we should strive to be one of those who will meet at this yearly meeting. Ominous clouds are gathering; blacker and blacker grows the darkness. We need to meet together to strengthen and encourage one another as we see the day approaching. We are not to meet together to criticize, but take heed to ourselves lest we are a stumblingblock in our brother's way.

Bro. Sydney Magaw will be with us. He needs no introduction; he has been with us before, and with his zeal and enthusiasm he will put life into our services. He is a God-fearing man, one who needs your hearty cooperation. I am sure he will have it.

Dora Morgan, Sec.

PASTORATE DESIRED

Being doubtful lest the Iowa brethren are so loyal to my personal welfare that they will not change to some other evangelist, if it should be thought best, because of my long service in this state, till I am located elsewhere in ministerial service, I take this way of making such a change easier for them, by announcing that I will correspond with any of the brotherhood where my services are acceptable.

J. W. Williams, Gladbrook, Iowa.

CONFERENCE AT HOLBROOK

Our conference will convene from August 16 to 23, with Bro. L. E. Conner as leader of the Bible class and Bro. Grover Gordon to lead the young people. Bro. E. E. Giesler and Bro. Chas. Hornaday will have charge of the singing. We hope to have a good attendance and a good time. Meals will be served in the basement of the church. Come and let us have a splendid feast of spiritual food.

Elma Wilson, Cor. Sec.

ATTENTION!

On Page 698 will be found an extract from the Constitution and By-laws, together with Delegate Blank, for use in General Conference Representation. Those who have not as yet appointed their delegates to represent them at the Conference now in session, should do so AT ONCE. This is your last opportunity.

ILLINOIS BUSINESS MEETING

The business meeting of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God will convene at 3:15 on the afternoon of Friday, August 14. A good representation from all the churches of the state is desired so that definite plans may be outlined for the work of the coming year.

Paul C. Johnson, pres.

OUR TRIP TO MINNESOTA

By Jas. A. Patrick

On June 5 Mrs. Patrick, Ione, and I left Ashland for Minnesota. The first night we stayed with Bro. and Sr. Conner. To say that we enjoyed it is putting it mildly. We also had a few pleasant minutes with Bro. Austin who drove down from Oregon to visit with us. The next night we staid in Minneapolis with old friends who used to live in Foley. The next day we reached Eden Valley about one o'clock.

This trip was one of the most enjoyable of the many we have taken. The principal reason, of course, was the spiritual blessing in the results of the meetings. Thirty were baptized by Bro. Magaw and myself. We enjoyed the conference at Eden Valley more than any other we have ever attended, not only because of the spiritual blessings, but because we saw more of the old friends than at any other one meeting we have ever attended.

The conference and meetings have already been reported, and so there is nothing to be said, except that the results of the meetings were due largely to the excellent pastoral work done by Bro. Magaw. The church was in a healthy spiritual condition which was a large factor in producing the results.

I held a week's meetings at Bergen and a week at St. Cloud. There were no visible results. The one baptism at St. Cloud was not a result of the meeting, for the sister had been waiting an opportunity to be baptized. The attendance and interest were good at both places, when we take into consideration the fact that the thermometer ranged around the hundred mark most of the time and went as high as one hundred three several days. Most of those that attended were members of the church, and they were very faithful.

The morning of the fourth of July we left St. Cloud for Cass Lake and Blackduck, where Mrs. Patrick has a sister and brother. On Sunday evening it was suggested by someone that we have a service at the White Pine school house near Bro. C. A. Matheny's. So we had a service that night, and I preached on the Signs of the Times and the Lord's Coming. An invitation was given at the close of the service, but no move was made. After the service was over, two or three said they wished there had been time for a baptismal service. I said to one of them, "Do you want to be baptized?" He said, "Yes." I said, "We will go to the lake now and I'll baptize you." After some consultation with parents it was arranged, and we drove about two and a half miles to one of the beautiful Twin Lakes where four were buried in the likeness of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. After this we drove about thirty miles to Cass Lake over the worst roads I ever drove a car over, and we arrived there about twelve o'clock, tired, but happy at the results of the meeting.

On Wednesday morning we left Cass Lake for Graytown, Wis., where we had an appointment that evening. After much detouring and driving about three hundred miles we arrived at Bro. Elliott Goodwin's in time for supper and the meeting that followed. Services were held until the next Wednesday evening through another hot spell. At the close of the last service we repaired to the river, and three were baptized. These three will be of much help to the work there. Bro. Zeimer is a young married man, Sr. Goodwin, wife of Bro. Howard Goodwin, has been a teacher, and Ross Hilman is just budding into young manhood. He is the son of Bro. Ora Hilman, elder of the church.

The names and addresses of those baptized are, Harold Kirkpatrick, Claremont; Ivan Mills, Eden Valley; Gordon Thoms, Glenn Bennett, Richmond; Marjorie Ruhn, Lynn Green, Eden Valley; Norma Kirkpatrick, Cass Lake; Mrs. Arthur Otto, Mrs. Miles Tritabaugh, Paynesville; Lola Skinner, 920 21st Ave., N., St. Cloud; Clarice Matheny, Blackduck; Roland Olmstead, Chas. Olmstead, Jr., Lois Olmstead, Hines. These are all in Minnesota. Willis Zeimer, Glenwood City, Wis.; Ross Hilman, Downing, Wis., Mrs. Ellen Goodwin, Downing, Wis.

Here is some material for our Berean social correspondence committees to work on, especially those at Hines, Blackduck, Cass Lake and Claremont, because these are away from any of our church services.

Jas. A. Patrick.

GRAYTOWN CHURCH

An unusual blessing has recently come to the Church of God at Graytown, Wis., during a series of meetings held by Bro. Patrick. Members and friends enjoyed the pleasure of having Bro. Patrick in their midst again and hearing the word of the gospel, after an absence of eleven years.

These meetings began on July 8 and continued through July 15. Fair attendance and interest were manifested throughout. We were also glad to have the opportunity of meeting Sr. Patrick and daughter, Ione, who accompanied Bro. Patrick. We were sorry to see them leave.

We have been greatly blessed and strengthened by these services to carry on in our humble way the work of the Master, and we hope to meet Bro. Patrick again soon. On Wednesday evening after our last series of meetings, three were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, in the river on Bro. Thomas' farm. It was a lovely night. The lights from the cars were cast upon the waters, which made a lovely scene. Those baptized are, Mrs. Howard Goodwin, Ross Hillman and William Ziemer. We pray that these may remain in the fold of Christ.

We were all glad of having the pleasure to see Bro. Magaw again, who was on his way to his new home. He stopped at Bro. Hillman's on Thursday night and left again Friday afternoon.

We all gathered at the Thomas home for a few moments to see them. They were making the trip by car, and word has been received that they made the trip as far as Chicago just fine. We hope the remainder of their journey was a success, too. God be with them until we meet again.

Mrs. Howard Goodwin, Ass't Sec.

CARD OF THANKFULNESS

The brothers and sisters of the Fonthill, Ontario, ecclesia and elsewhere will kindly accept our sincere thanks for the kind letters sent to us during my prolonged illness. Bro. C. E. Randall and Sr. Haines, of Fenwick, called on us and broke bread with us, bringing the emblems with them. Many thanks for this manifestation of fraternal love toward us.

We also received kind letters of comfort from sisters across the line: Sisters L. M. Hogarth, Detroit, Mich.; Lydia Railsback, South Bend, Ind.; Hanna Barber, Pueblo, Colo.; Mary E. Elton, Cleveland, Ohio; H. H. Kent, Pueblo, Colo.; Lottie E. Young, Seattle, Wn. If we don't meet each other in this age, may it be our lot to greet one another in God's kingdom.

Mrs. and Mrs. S. Cronkrite,
120 Mary St., Brantford, Ontario.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Valura Karnett; Mrs. Wm. Canode; Ida F. Orem; Margaret Lyon; J. M. Owens; Mrs. Frances McCroden; Abbie H. Fiske; Stephen Cronkrite; Elizabeth Louise May; Mrs. I. L. Wood; George Graves.

HELPING FUND

For sending The Herald to others.
Alice Emerson $1.00

MEETINGS AT BOSWORTH

Bro. Richard LeCrone closed a series of meetings at Rockford Church, near Bosworth, Mo., July 28th. Sr. Lucille LeCrone accompanied him and spoke to us on Friday and Monday evenings. Fair crowds attended regardless of sickness among the membership. We pray for their speedy recovery. Fine attention was given and much interest shown.

On Thursday afternoon, Isaac N. Sturgeon applied for baptism and was immersed by Bro. LeCrone. We are indeed thankful for this added member into the body of Christ.

We enjoyed the messages which these young people brought to us. We heard many complimentary remarks on their work. We hope the good seed sown will bear fruit.

Azalia Winfrey.

MRS. CLARA E. SMITH

The family and friends of Sr. Clara E. Smith of Adrian, Michigan, were greatly shocked on Monday evening, July 27, 1931, when at ten o'clock, after about six hours of sickness, Sr. Smith succumbed to death. About four o'clock in the afternoon she had an attack of high blood pressure, which rendered her unconscious in a short time thereafter. It had been known that she was thus afflicted, but under the circumstances the doctor had urgently advised that she continue in her daily activities.

Sr. Smith was born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Mudge in Lenawee County, Michigan, on September 25, 1858. She was the older of two daughters, her sister having died in early life.

She was united in marriage to Franklin E. Smith on January 20, 1878. To them were born three children, Merton E., Mabel A., and Bertie E. Her husband preceded her in death on March 1, 1918. She is survived by her son, Merton E., of Adrian, Mich., and by nine grandchildren, besides a host of other relatives and true and dear friends.

Sr. Smith had been a member of the Church of God at Raisin Center, Mich., for many years. Her faith in Christ her Lord remained strong and deep unto the end. Her gentle and retiring life was admired and respected by all neighbors and friends.

After brief services in her home, she was laid at rest by the side of her companion in the cemetery but a short distance from the house. She awaits the call of Him who is "the resurrection and the life".

F. L. Austin.

P. S.—It should perhaps be noted that the youngest child of Sr. Smith, Bertie E., later became the wife of Bro. F. E. Siple, and whose decease so shocked her many friends in December 1929.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

LOOK AT THESE

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

GIVEN FOR NEW YEARLY SUBSCRIPTIONS

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Tell them about the picture and the map which each New Subscriber receives for his own.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1.

Who will be first to win a map?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

GIFTS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1-2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 11, 1931

NUMBER 45

Gems of Truth from General Conference Speakers

“THAT I MIGHT SAVE SOME”

BRO. G. ELDRED MARSH, president of the General Conference and pastor of the Los Angeles church, gave a stirring address at the opening of the Conference on Tuesday evening, August fourth, at Oregon, Illinois. In forceful words, he declared that “in these days of depression, the world’s greatest need is not more prosperity, but more poverty, not more confidence, but more calamity, that the world may see its need of a Savior, may realize its utter helplessness in its own strength. And if the world needs a scourging, how much more do we, the church, to awaken us to the importance of our mission, to stimulate us to more activity that we might ‘save some’.

“We gladly reach down into our pockets to buy bread for starving children, only to prolong their lives a week, a month, a year. How much better if we would reach down into our hearts and give them the Lord Jesus Christ and thus prolong their lives even for eternity! God, the Father, Jesus, the Son, and the apostles all were stirred with the same deep desire, looking over a dying world of fallen man steeped in sin, that they might ‘save some’.

“If God gave His Son, if Jesus offered His life, if the apostles sacrificed all comfort that they might ‘save some’, ought not we, His church, devote every energy at our command, every avenue of opportunity, every means provided that we, too, might ‘save some’?

“Let us go out into this new conference year better qualified because of being here, resolved that we will proclaim to dying men and women and children all about us the blessed gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ that we might ‘save some’”.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF ADVENTISM

ON WEDNESDAY evening, August fifth, Bro. M. W. Lyon, of Cleveland, Ohio, caused us to hold up our heads in self-respect because of our “adventist” belief, and to glory in our faith in the personal return of our beloved Master.

He said in part, “It is a sleeping condition in which we find the church one hundred years ago. Christ’s promise to personally return to earth had been spiritualized until it had completely lost its power. But modern adventist belief received an immeasurable impetus in the work of William Miller, one hundred years ago this year. Adventist faith has been restored, and belief in the soon and personal return of the Master has once more come into favor.

“Along with this new enthusiasm for adventist doctrine has come also the death blow to many old errors. The post millennial theory has lost in favor, and thinking men now realize that no longer is the missionary the hope of the world, but the personal return of the Christ. Revival of belief in the reestablishment of the kingdom of God on earth has also been noted. The doctrine of conditional immortality has at last become, if not popular, at least respectable, and it is making very serious inroads into the old school of inherent immortality. More than all these, the fundamental teaching of the resurrection is once more being established, and that God dishonoring doctrine of hell fire is now falling into disrepute.

“An appreciation that adventist teaching has accomplished all this in the past century should cause us to lift up our heads and rejoice in our faith. The millennium is just ahead. Soon it will burst upon the world. Each conference brings us one year nearer to the realization of our fondest hopes. Let us be found with our lamps trimmed and burning, so that when we hear the call, ‘Behold, the Bridegroom cometh’, we may go out to meet Him with joy.”

GOD, ALL IN ALL

BY WAY of renewing faith in God in these times of depression and distress, Bro. L. E. Conner, pastor of the Dixon (Illinois) church, on the evening of August sixth, directed our minds to God’s promise, not only to restore, but to develop the earth to even a higher plane of beauty and harmony than it possessed when creation was new.

In meeting the objections of scientists to the Bible account of creation, Bro. Conner said, “In the beginning God
(Continued on page 714)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. Be ye also patient; stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." The Apostle James.

GO TO, YE RICH MEN

UNDER the increased power of God given spirit, James the Apostle, in his epistle, 5:1, refers to the rich men. That he was referring to conditions pertaining to the future from his date, is very evident from the fact shown in verse 8—the fact that "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh."

James was not speaking concerning a condition of the world relative to his own day; he was speaking of things that should take place in later times, in the closing days of the Gentile dispensation, in the days approaching the coming of the Son of man.

One wonders again and again how any man living nineteen hundred years ago could foresee the conditions that might prevail in the closing days of the Gentile rule. But God's spirit was sufficient. God, through His spirit imparted to James, empowered him to foresee mentally some of the great things that should take place midst the affairs of man in these latter times.

A GREAT VISION OF OUR DAY

SPeaking commercially and financially the world today is a vastly different world than it was fifty years ago, yea, than it was twenty-five years past. Something has taken place. The various interests of industry and effort have apparently been banded together, allied into groups, factions.

As knowledge began to increase, according as foretold by the prophet in Daniel 12:4, man gradually invented new equipment for labor, new machines. These extra machines and extra equipment increased the cost of setting one's self up in business; increased the cost of investment. Accordingly men began to arrange for others to go in with them as partners.

Gradually other methods followed, until we have in the present day vast financial industries, made financially strong and possible because of newly invented systems of selling shares of stock to various individuals. Some of our large enterprises issue thousands and even millions of shares of stocks in a given enterprise. The officers of that enterprise manipulate and direct the activities. The owners of that enterprise are numbered by thousands or more. They are scattered throughout the country. They consist of the school teachers, the preachers, the farmers, the merchants, who have a little extra to invest in some outside interest.

Such big endeavors, big systems of capitalization have been perfected until we have what many are pleased to call the great money power.

But there have been other group formations. We have what is called the labor union, bringing all the laborers in given fields under one common union, managed by one leader or president. These unions are counted by thousands. They are so conducted and managed that a board, or a number to whom the responsibility has been given, can determine whether ten thousand laborers shall discontinue work or whether they shall continue.

Many interests have thus banded themselves together, until in large measure the whole country side is divided up into financial or industrial or commercial groups, as the case may be.

SOME OF THE EFFECTS

AT THE present time the world is apparently going through a period of business depression, a repetition that seems to come to us more or less periodically. These depressions, whether we consider the one through which we are now passing, or whether we go back into history and review some of the others—each one of them brings to us some of the difficulties of the organizations that have developed.

Following the daily press we discover conditions something as follows:

Those who are shouldering the great responsibility of properly operating with the money received by the sale of the thousands of stocks to the people throughout the country, have a plenty of money with which to work. But the conditions of business, so they claim, are such that they cannot receive enough for the sale of their goods to warrant them in paying more than stated wages. On the other hand, the laborers have banded themselves together, and they claim that rather than to work for a reduction of wages, they would rather not work at all, but have the government raise money by taxes and defray the cost of living unto them.

This condition is apparent in very many lines of business. The result is that capital is more than abundant with which to operate, and operate on a large scale. But because of class working against class, each looking at self interest, none looking at the interest of all, the financier finds it very difficult to keep his capital profitably occupied.

JAMES' PICTURE

JAMES portrays a time when the riches of the rich will become corrupted, when the rich will be in dire distress.

Is it possible that the very advancement which man has made in the way of segregating the various interests of the land into corresponding groups may result in a condition that will bring distress unto one and all, especially unto the rich?

The wonderful inventions and perfections of machinery whereby man can travel around the earth in a few days, whereby he can speak to his friend upon the other side of the earth in a few minutes, have brought the entire world close together. The opposite side of the globe today is perhaps closer to the individual in his business home than was his neighbor, only five miles distant, a hundred years ago. That is to say, man can reach him quicker with his voice, can consult him more easily and more ably and can get results much more quickly.

Thus the entire world is becoming more and more organized as one. The leading powers or officers in any particular line or unification of effort are becoming more and more able to control the activities in that line, as those activities operate throughout the world.

We have undoubtedly reached a period of time when, in any one or several different lines of human activity, one man could step to the phone and in less than an hour he could direct that all action in the line of his particular business throughout the world should be discontinued immediately. And he would get results. It would be discontinued. Though the whole world would be thrown into commotion and uproar, yet that one man could direct such a result.

Not only could this be directed in one particular field; it could be the result in any one of several and numerous fields.

Such things were impossible a few centuries ago. Especially were they impossible in the days of James, the Apostle. Today they are not only quite possible, but quite probable at various times and in various lines.

To the writer we are rapidly entering deeper and deeper into that condition which marks out the closing end of the Gentile period. It appears to him that it cannot be long until the cry shall go forth from the throne of the Father that He Himself is taking back unto Himself the rule of the Gentile powers of the world.

To do this, we must expect, according to prophecy, that He will soon send His Son who now is at the Father's right hand; send that Son into this world that the Son may take unto Himself His righteous reign and rule and exercise dominion throughout the regions of earth.

The writer feels like shouting—Soon He that is to come, will come and will not tarry. He feels like urging every reader of these words, not particularly to accept these words as authentic and as undeniably the whole truth, but to look at the thoughts contained therein and, with the Scriptures at hand, study, and pray, and endeavor to prepare himself to meet Him whose coming is after the power of God, for the purpose of beginning the great work of restoration and reestablishment of the earth and its fullness into that great, beautiful condition of righteousness, as foretold by God through the mouths of His various prophets.

SOURCES OF PROSPERITY DEFINED IN SCRIPTURE

THERE have been many suggestions of various values concerning the business depression that has overtaken Canada and the world nations, the latter, perhaps, to a much more serious extent than our own beloved land, and the reasons are obvious.

This momentous problem of individual and national success was never faced more squarely than it was over three thousand years ago, and the conditions of prosperity were never more clearly defined than at that remote period. That they have been amply verified is not a matter of conjecture, but can be definitely brought to the test of accomplished history.

Written then, as it were, by the finger of God, through Moses, they still stand, never having been revoked, but, instead, having their force multiplied a million times by the printed page, and as if God would implore us to put His promises to the test, they are reiterated time and time again in the sacred volume.

Let our people and our governments read with sincere minds the following scriptures, and they will not fail to realize that in these sublime passages containing unfailling guarantees of abundant and peaceful supply, and warnings of the most terrible kind, we have the one and only guarantee of a solution that will bring the desired results: Lev. 26; Deut. 8; 11:13-17, 26, 27; 17:18-20; Josh. 1:1-9.

—R. H. Judd in (Toronto) Globe.

WE BELIEVE that the dead shall be raised to die no more, and those alive shall be changed so that they shall not die, when Jesus comes.

“Behold, I shew you a mystery: We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed.

“In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

WHAT IS PRAYER?

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,
Uttered or unexpressed;
The motion of a hidden fire,
That trembles in the breast.

Prayer is the burden of a sigh,
The falling of a tear,
The upward glancing of an eye,
When none but God is near.

Prayer is the simplest form of speech
That infant lips can try,
Prayer, the sublimest strains that reach
The majesty on high.

Prayer is the contrite sinner's voice,
Returning from his ways;
While angels in their songs rejoice,
And cry, "Behold, he prays."

O Thou by whom we come to God,
The Life, the Truth, the Way,
The path of prayer Thyself hast trod:
Lord, teach us how to pray. Amen.

—Selected by Louise E. May.

"A MOTHER told her son to be quiet, as she had some letters to write. He said he would if she would give him his drum to play with.

"Isn't that a very fair picture of some of God's children? We are willing to be quiet if God will give us our 'drum', and when we have that, then God and others will hear more noise than ever! No child of God can please God and TALK incessantly, or too much. It is as wrong as it is to eat or drink too much. We MUST be quiet before God, before He can do much for us."

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN

By Lyman Booth

THIS epistle is addressed to "the elect lady, and her children," which is thought by some to refer to the church, or to the Lady Eclecta, a person so called for her eminent piety. But whatever may be the correct interpretation, the greater part of the letter is addressed to more than one person.

The writer expresses his love for the elect lady and her children, as possessing the truth, and his joy in finding them abiding in the truth and doing the commandments of God. He warns them against deceivers, who do not acknowledge that Christ has come in the flesh. He states that the only way to possess the Father is to abide in the doctrine of the Son. He warns against receiving into their house, or imploring God's favor upon those who teach a different doctrine. While he had much to write, he preferred to speak face to face with her, as he expected to visit her shortly.

This epistle is held by many writers of the second and third centuries to be the work of John, the disciple of the Lord. Others contend the first is genuine and the other two doubtful; while still others say the first is doubtful and the other two acceptable. But it was evidently written by John as it bears the impress of his writing. The fact that the writer speaks of himself as "the elder", does not militate, in the least, against his authorship.

Irenaeus quotes verse eleven, with the prefix, "for John, the disciple of the Lord says." Clement of Alexandria quotes 1 John 5:16, 17 with the remark: "And John is seen to show in the larger epistle that there are different kinds of sins." I suppose he means all sins are evil, but of different degrees of guilt. He shows by this remark that he acknowledged at least two epistles of John as genuine.

This short epistle and that which follows it, being written not long before the writer's death, and neither by name nor by the churches at large, were in the earliest times not so generally and unanimously known and accepted as written by him, as the preceding epistle was. But their coincidence with it in sentiment, manner, and language, at an early period satisfied all concerned that they were written by the same person.

Mill observes that of the thirteen verses in this epistle, eight may be found in the first, either in sense or in expression. The expression, "The Elder," might probably be applied to John after all the other apostles were dead, as a title of honorable distinction; for undoubtedly he was the senior of the whole church; or he might modestly assume it on this particular occasion.

Some have contended that the church at Jerusalem was figuratively intended, by the expression, "The elect lady," and that of Ephesus, where John is supposed to have resided, by "her elect sister". But it has been more generally held that an eminent and honorable Christian matron, well known in the church, was addressed by the term, "elect lady," and that some other honorable Christian, closely related to her, was intended by "her elect sister."

It is thought by some that the writer intended to put those to whom he wrote on their guard against heretics, who taught that Jesus was not really a man, but only appeared to be one, and appeared to do and to suffer those things which the apostles and evangelists recorded of Him. This heresy was subversive of Christianity, which accounts for the writer's decision against teachers who held such vague ideas.

While this epistle contains only thirteen verses, eight of which, in substance may be found in his first epistle, yet it is full of meaning in advice and exhortation. It contains direct intimation as to when, or where it was written. But it seems to belong to the same period of the Apostle's life as the first epistle, and it was in all probability written from Ephesus.

PERTAINING TO MARRIAGE

"Marriage is honourable in all."

IT IS not good that man should be alone. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother and shall cleave unto his wife; and they shall be one flesh."

"House and riches are the inheritance of fathers, and a prudent wife is from the Lord."

"Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine by the sides of thine house, thy children like olive plants round about thy table. Behold that thus shall the man be blessed that feareth the Lord."

Such are some of the scriptures which commend a union ordained by God at the beginning of the world, sanctioned by His command, regulated by His precepts, signalized as the occasion of our Savior's earliest miracle, and selected as the type of the present and eternal union of the Redeemer and His elect church.

And if it is commended of God, it is also hated of Satan. When men give heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons, they forbid to marry. So every evil and devilish system of faith and practice from the beginning down till now, strikes its deadliest blow at this divine arrangement. And from the remotest scenes of heathenish worship down to the latest orgies of the votaries of free love, evil demons by their teachings have assailed the sanctity of marriage, thus degrading woman and debasing man, and filling the world with licentiousness and sin.

And worse than this, marriage itself, though designed as a blessing, is often perverted to be a curse. The arrangements and appointments of the Lord are disregarded, and the laws of nature and the dictates of common sense are ignored, and all the sweetness of marriage is turned to strife and bitterness; the silken tie becomes a galling chain. Instead of the wedlock of united souls, it is the padlock binding discordant bodies in a bondage which is sometimes endured in sorrow to the grave, sometimes sundered by the arbitrary enactments of men, and sometimes thrown off as an accursed servitude by persons who rail at God's appointed ordinance because that they, while disobeying His precepts, failed to gain the blessing of obedience, and reaped the natural fruit of their own misguided course.

They who would share the blessings which God appoints to attend this state, must enter it advisedly and follow the divine precepts concerning it. They must remember how Solomon, with all his wisdom, was turned to idolatry by his heathenish wives. And they must remember that while the Apostle gives counsel that the younger women should marry, bear children, guide the house, and give none occasion to speak reproachfully, he says, most emphatically, that their marriage must be "only in the Lord".

If persons disregard this divine admonition, they take a step in a thorny path, a step which they can never retrace. Henceforth, in all probability, their course is destined to be one of trial and tears, and its end no man can foresee.

But if persons are really joined together by the Lord, if they dwell together according to knowledge, the husband giving honor to the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life, that their prayers be not hindered; if the wife reverence her husband, and the husband love the wife as his own body, and even as the Lord hath loved the church, then indeed will marriage fulfill its high intent, and will, in its blessed sympathies and heavenly consolations, give true token, not only that it is almost the sole relic of the paradise that is lost, but that it is also a type and foretaste of the paradise to come, when the eternal union of Christ and His people shall take place, when it shall be said that the marriage of the Lamb is come and His wife hath made herself ready. Blessed shall they then be who are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb.—Selected by R. A. Curtis from the writings of H. L. Hastings.

"I have been a member of your church for thirty years," said an elderly Christian to his pastor, "and when I was laid up with sickness only one or two came to see me. I was shamefully neglected."

"My friend," said the pastor, "in all those years how many sick have you visited?"

"Oh," he replied, "it never struck me in that light. I thought only of the relation of others to me, and not of my relation to them."—Selected.

SMALL IN NUMBER — GREAT IN ACHIEVEMENT

THE latest Jewish Year Book, just issued, tells you that there are but 15,050,000 Jews in the world, of whom 4,288,000 live in the United States and 1,765,000 in New York City.

Great Britain has but 300,000. She might be more prosperous if she had a few more.

Certainly the part played by Jewish thrift and business ability in making America the wealthiest nation, and New York its wealthiest city, would be hard to overestimate.

The British empire, by the way, would not have got far without the aid of Jewish bankers, from the days of Edward 1, to those of George V. They helped England defeat Napoleon, for example, though history, which says much of Wellington and Nelson, says little of that.

They have also furnished England with some of her most eminent statesmen—Disraeli, who bought the Suez Canal, and Reading, a viceroy of India, to name but two.

A mere speck among the population in all great countries, the Jews contribute many times their share in brains and energy to every country's assets. Nations that persecute them do not prosper.

Spain, at the height of her glory, banished them. Had Spain welcomed them, as Britain and America have done, the map of the world would be different today.—Chicago American.

BE NOT ASHAMED

By Lydia Railsback

SOMETIME in life, perhaps many times, we, ourselves, some member of our family or some of our friends say or do something for which we have reason to be utterly humiliated and ashamed. The thing said or done may have seemed trifling to the one doing it, and yet to finer sensibilities it touched a chord which caused great shame.

However, there are times when we should be ashamed. If at any time we should forget our Father, who has done so much for us, or in any way profane His name or complain of what He has done for us, we should hang our heads for shame, for we know that it is "in him we live and move and have our being".

Job at times was a complainer and was severely reprimanded for it. See Job 10:1 to 11:3. David, the opposite type, said, "O my God, I trust thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me. Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause." Psalm 25:2, 3.

To transgress without cause or forsake the Lord is great reason for being ashamed. Such did the Israelites, and they were punished for it. Isaiah writes concerning them, 65:11-13, contrasting their doom with the blessings of the righteous, saying, "Behold my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed."

Coming down to the gospel age, Paul said, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." And Paul had great reason for not being ashamed, for Paul had a hope, and "hope maketh not ashamed".

Christians, too, have a hope. This hope carries them along from day to day, brings them through every trial, and comforts them in time of trouble.

Again, we find in the Roman letter, "For the scripture saith, whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed". It is impossible to be a Christian and not believe on Him who died that we might live. So Christians need not be ashamed.

As "faith without works is dead", so there is something for the Christian to do besides believe. Paul told Timothy to "study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth". 2 Tim. 2:15. To me it seems just as important for Christians to study to show themselves approved unto God as it was for Timothy. Timothy was a human being the same as the rest of us, and it is just as necessary for us to "rightly divide the word of truth" as it was for him, for are we not all workers together with Him?

"Yet, if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf." 1 Peter 4:16. Regardless of how much we suffer as Christians, we will not suffer to the extent that the Master did. Why not be willing to endure a little, when He endured so much? Let us not be ashamed to suffer and work for Jesus. If we do not want Jesus to be ashamed of us when He comes to claim His own, we must not be ashamed of Him now.

These are the Master's own words: "Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it. For what shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels." Mark 8:34-36.

LET NO MAN DESPISE THY YOUTH

By D. G. Harvey

AT THE Indiana Conference this year, the young people of the state organized a young people's Berean Society. It is understood that their aim is to form classes in each of the churches of God in the state. The plan is surely worthy of consideration. By this organized work of the young people of Indiana, cooperating with the National Bereans, they will be training themselves to be teachers and conducting their own affairs, thus fitting themselves to carry on the work, if the Lord tarries, as the older brethren fall asleep in death.

Therefore we have chosen Timothy's life as an example for the young people of Indiana, using as our text 1 Timothy 4:12, 16: "Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity. Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee."

Let us consider Timothy's life. He was a young man, yet he was the assistant and companion of the most devout apostle, Paul. Timothy had been trained in piety and in the law by his Jewish mother and grandmother. 2 Timothy 1:5; 3:14, 15. He was converted by Paul. As we search the Scriptures, we find Paul depended much upon the younger man, Timothy. Paul sent him to the Corinthians to remind them of Paul's teaching and to teach them also. (1 Cor. 4:17; 16:10, 11.)

Paul mentions Timothy as a fellow worker in Romans 16:21. We find Timothy with Paul in Thessalonica (1 Thess. 1:1) teaching them while Paul remains in Athens (1 Thess. 3:2-6), and left by Paul with the Ephesians while he went to Macedonia (1 Tim. 1:1-3). Timothy joins Paul in writing to the Philippians (Phil. 1:1), to the Colossians (Col. 1:1-3), and also to Philemon (Philemon 1), showing that Timothy was with Paul during the time Paul was a prisoner in Rome. Notice Paul's call to Timothy, when Demas deserted him (2 Tim. 2:9, 10, 21).

Paul depended upon Timothy in all things. We find (Phil. 2:19, 20) Paul expressing the hope that the Lord would send Timothy to the Philippians shortly, for he (Paul) had no man (no other) likeminded to care for them. This proves without doubt in our mind that while yet young, Timothy held great responsibility.

Young people of Indiana, that same responsibility comes to each of you. Do you intend to hold fast to your faith or fail in your part of the work? You will make mistakes (we all do), but let those mistakes be a help. We learn by them. Let us consider one another, and help one another. We need each other at all times.

That this new organized work of the young people of Indiana may grow and draw them together into one family, that they may be made strong to carry on the work of the Master, is my prayer.

PATIENCE

By George B. Alldridge

"For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scripture might have hope." Rom. 15:4.

IT is written in First Corinthians 10:11: "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come."

"But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." James 1:4.

How often the thought comes to me, if, as of old, angels would come and talk to me, what a wonderful influence this would have upon my life and conversation. As I read Genesis 18:1-15, my heart is touched with the naturalness of the narrative. How simply and naturally Abraham conducted himself.

But does not God speak still? He surely does! Read the Psalms, "I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears". Psalm 34:4.

"How excellent is thy loving kindness, O God; therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings." Psalm 36:7.

Please read again Psalms 91 and 96, and after reading Psalm 40, can you not say, surely these are my daily experiences!

Jesus sighed deeply in His spirit at the unbelief of those around Him, but our sighs are caused by the horror of seeing ourselves as God sees us. Sometimes we are distressed, even doubting the truth; sometimes we are morose and our spirit is filled with gloom, dreading the thought of death and the cold and silent tomb. Heb. 5:7; Deut. 26:39. But suddenly a verse of Scripture or a well known hymn floats in upon our mind, "And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him." Luke 22:43.

Faith again triumphs; joy thrills your being. For it is God speaking to you and you feel that Psalm 34:7 is realized in your life: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

Suppose today history repeated itself, and you heard the multitude exclaim, "Jesus of Nazareth passeth by." Luke 18:37. Oh, beloved, how quickly you and I would abandon everything and follow Him!

My brethren, Jesus does indeed still pass by. The gospel restores Him to us. As you read, you feel that His sweet face gazes upon you. You recall John 20:16 and hear Him say, "Mary," or your first name. His hand seems to touch yours, and as He speaks, the words are so full of life and power, moving and touching your heart, that you feel His very presence is with you. You try to think of words to express your reciprocation of His love and presence. Instantly the words of Canticles 5:16 are on your tongue, and as the warm blood of your love for Him glows in your face, you croon, "His mouth is most sweet; yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughter of Jerusalem." "I sat down under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste. He brought me to the banqueting house, and his banner over me was love." Cant. 2:3, 4.

Now as the waiters (angels) bear in the rich viands, the flood gates of my new mind swing open. The words of Isaiah 40:31 rush in, "But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint." The Host signals for the courses to be removed and the dessert to be brought in.

My mind is all aglow with love and happiness, and as I recline my head upon His bosom, my love says to me, "Taste these; they will strengthen your heart." And I partake of their wonderful sweetness: "Who redeemeth your life from destruction, who crowneth thee with loving kindness and mercies; who satisfieth thy mouth with good things, so that thy youth is renewed like the eagles." And now the wine is passed, and as I sip the nectar made only for the sons of God, the reed instruments of the orchestra softly play the harmony, as the angels seem to sing the sweet melody, "The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee".

Beloved, after an hour's sweet communion with Jesus, as I have tried to describe, Paul's exhortation to Timothy comes to mind, "Therefore I endure all things for the elect's sake, that they may also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory."

In conclusion, brethren, let us be natural with God, as we would toward a man of power and influence, who may hold our future in suspense. We would be patient and wait until the day his favors would be bestowed upon us. Even so, let us with ever more persistence trust upon and in God, never relaxing our hold, for it is this tenacity that God requires from us; and, beloved, the joy, love, and happiness He has to bestow is well worth it. "For since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eyes seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him."

OUR HARVESTS

The river's valley and the plain
 Are rich with field of golden grain,
 The corn rows flaunt their sword-leaves green—
 With trailing pumpkin vines between.
 The earth has had her rain and sun,
 And for our toil we hear, "Well done!"
 With reaper's hum and thresher's din,
 We bring our earth-sown harvests in.

And in our hearts are planted seeds
 Of helpfulness, and kindly deeds—
 The power to pardon or defend,
 To say, "Forgive!" or, "Thank you, friend!"
 Oh! shame to move with lagging feet,
 And keep from life some moment sweet;
 With Nature's fields we'll be akin,
 Bringing our heart-sown harvests in!

—Selected.

THE NATURAL AND THE SPIRITUAL

By Samuel E. Haney

"Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more."

THE fact that this text makes manifest, the "peculiar difference between the fleshly and the spiritual man and the manner of procedure, is not generally appreciated. And there being no one in our day so well equipped to enlighten us as the great Apostle Paul, we shall do well to examine a few exegeses from his prolific writings on the subject. Besides, there is nothing so convincing as personal experience. So we shall have Paul relate something of his battles with the flesh and his source of power that brought victory.

Apropos, the fact that Paul was a Jew and was once under the law causes some brethren to think that the Gentiles' experience does not coincide, to which the writer does not concur. It is as much the Christian's duty to know the law as it was (and still is) the Jew's; for both Jew and Gentile "had not known sin, but by the law".

We quote: "The law is spiritual; we know that. But then I am a creature of the flesh, in the thralldom of sin. I cannot understand my own actions; I do not act as I want to act; on the contrary, I do what I detest. Now, when I act against my wishes, that means I agree that the law is right. That being so, it is not I who do the deed but sin that dwells within me. For in me (that is, in my flesh) no good dwells, I know; the wish is there, but not the power of doing what is right. I cannot be good as I want to be, and I do wrong against my wishes. Well, if I act against my wishes, it is not I who do the deed but sin that dwells within me. So this is my experience of the law: I want to do what is right, but wrong is all I can manage; I cordially agree with God's law, so far as my inner self is concerned, but then I find quite another law in my members which conflicts with the law of my mind and makes me a prisoner to sin's law that resides in my members. (Thus, left to myself, I serve the law of God with my mind, but with my flesh I serve the law of sin.) Miserable wretch that I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? God will! Thanks be to Him through Jesus Christ our Lord!" Rom. 7:14-25, Moffatt.

Read again Romans 8:1-17. It seems impossible for the unbiased Christian to read these verses and fail to see that the consecrated Christian is a dual creature, his lower nature (flesh) being impervious to spiritual light, while his higher nature, the spiritual man is illuminated and revolutionized as the result of a thorough consecration and a baptism of the Holy Spirit. This, to be understood, must be experienced. Hence the futility of expecting a person, though nominally a Christian, who never experienced a change of heart to grasp these facts. Thus the passive Christian and the unregenerate world should not be censured for their incredibility, amazement, and criticism concerning Christians who are rejoicing, while people of all nations are beholding civilization struggling in its violent death throes.

One of the perplexities confronting the indifferent Christian lies in the fact that but few Christians are taking God's Word seriously. The enlightened and interested ones instinctively rejoice over the world's chaotic condition, for they appreciate what is written, namely, "But when these things begin to happen, look up and raise up your heads, for your release is not far distant." Luke 21:28, Moffatt. For this reason they are no more expecting to see water running up hill. To them, God's Word is fiat.

It is glorious to be initiated into the secrets of God's mysterious ways that are confounding the wise (?) of this world.

Enough has been written above to suffice the marked distinction between the "man after the flesh" and the man "after the spirit".

We shall now notice some of the effects wrought by the spirit of this dual man—a discriminator which has become so pronounced that no observing Christian can possibly fail to recognize the conflicting powers of light and darkness, making manifest the genuine and the false; yea, that Christendom is unconsciously lining up into two assemblies—"sheep" and "goats", and that these concourses are rapidly approaching an irrevocable attitude.

Paul elaborates: "There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body"; the one (earthy) having blood as its material principle of life. The other (heavenly) is motivated by the Holy Spirit—the same body, though actuated and dominated from different sources both before and after resurrection. And owing to the fall, both are subject to death and a resurrection; one returns to its former

(Continued on page 714)

The Destiny of the Church

By J. S. Lyon

AMONG the scriptural promises of glorious destinies in the ages to come, that of the ancient worthies and the Israelitish people is distinctly different, including the Jewish ecclesia, from the destiny promised the ecclesia of the Gentiles. They are as far apart in honor as the sun is separated from the earth, in location, in power, and in dominion limits.

The Old Testament is full of prophecies relative to the kingdom. In the millennial age Israel will be regathered and as a kingdom will dominate the earth. David will be seated again as king. The twelve apostles will rule over the twelve tribes. Matt. 19:28. A certain number of the ancient worthies and those who have made good use of the talents the Lord has given to them will be raised, also to reign as kings and priests. Rev. 20:6. Some will rule over the cities of the millennial age. Luke 19:10. This resurrection at the beginning of the millennium pertains to Israel and not to the church, as will be shown later.

One must note that Jesus was not sent to the Gentiles, but to Israel alone. Matt. 15:24. His message on earth was concerning the kingdom. The twelve were distinctly restrained in their ministry to the twelve tribes. Matt. 10:5-6. Hence the message in the four gospels is not one to the church, but one to Israel. Furthermore, as the twelve were never delegated to the Gentiles, their epistles are to the Israelites and not to the church of the Gentiles.

This brings us to the topic of the Apocalypse of John, and to the text which is so largely used to bolster up the belief of many that they are to reign with Christ a thousand years. The book was addressed to the seven churches. Rev. 1:4. They were to be located in the territory of the Roman province of Asia lying between the Black Sea and Palestine. It was addressed to those who were to be kings and priests with John (v. 6). They were also called seven lamp stands (v. 13) and seven stars (v. 16). In the old tabernacle and temple, the seven branched lamp stand represented a united Israel. Messiah is to stand in the midst of these seven churches (v. 13) and administer sharp justice, as indicated by the words of verses 14 to 16.

In all the Scripture we read of no judgment like this falling on the church, which is Christ's body and which is caught up to meet Him in the air. Neither is the church drawn from the province of Asia. Nor is the church judged by its works. Seeing, therefore, that the revelation is not addressed to the Gentile church, the latter errs in attempting to appropriate its promises. The ones who are raised in the first or former resurrection, so called, are limited to a reign of a thousand years. That of Christ and the church endures for a tremendous period of time, not only till all opposition is overcome in this world, but till all the spheres of the universe are subdued and brought to God as a perfected realm.

Paul, in the fifteenth chapter of 1 Corinthians, tells of three resurrections to immortality, and not one of them is related to the resurrections noted in the Apocalypse, another indication of its limitations to Israel. If the ones having a part in the "former" resurrection, Rev. 20:6, are not subject to the second death, it does not necessarily imply that they will be made immortal then. They, by God's permission, may sustain their lives from the tree of life until the time when death will be no more.

Still further, Jesus addressed this revelation to those of whom He said, "To him who is overcoming, to him will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the center of God's paradise." Does this, dear reader, answer to your expectation of immortality? The church, indeed, will have no use for healing qualities of the tree of life.

While on earth, speaking to the twelve, Jesus said, "In my Father's house are many mansions . . . Behold, I go to prepare a place for you." In Revelation 21, the city of God, containing those mansions is shown descending out of heaven upon the earth. Its foundations were inscribed with the names of the twelve apostles, and the twelve gates likewise. Everything about this is distinctly Israelitish. In it and the kingdom, every expectation of the tribes of Israel, the church of the circumcision, and of the twelve apostles is fulfilled. It is the zenith of their fond hope and long awaiting. It is the consummation of every promise that God has made to them.

In all these promises of the book of the Apocalypse of John there is none for the thirteenth Apostle, the beloved Paul. And if there is no place there for Paul or the church, which he established and to whom he was sent by the Lord and for whom he was granted special revelations, there is nothing in this book for the church of the uncircumcision.

In the book of Acts, we can trace the growing differences between the two churches, the Jewish church in Palestine clinging to the Mosaic ordinances, Paul attempting to open their eyes, their hostility toward him and toward his converts, and his final turning away from them to give his whole effort to the enlightenment of the Gentile church and of the Jews who continued with them, relative to their better favor in the sight of God.

Israelites are scattered far over the face of the earth. The Scriptures present much evidence that the ten tribes, who disappeared after the captivity, are the ancestors of the English speaking peoples. A large part of their prosperity and dominance in the world would answer to prophecies relative to the restoration of Israel. Much that is said of the seven churches in the Apocalypse is quite fitting to Christendom today. Those Christians who today are cherishing a hope of Christ's second coming and of reigning with Him in the kingdom, might be exactly in line with God's promises to Israel and will have a place in the kingdom, entering in through the great tribulation, or if dying before that, by way of the resurrection granted to the ancient worthies. But so far as revelation narrates, they will miss the higher calling that is in Christ Jesus.

This better destiny was not revealed till about the year A. D. 84 and then not to its utmost till after Paul was a prisoner at Rome, his journeyings ended. In the four gospels the kingdom is mentioned one hundred seventeen times. In Paul's epistles the kingdom is mentioned but sixteen times.

(To be continued)

“EVERY atom, every organism is doing something, or going somewhere, and there is no stop. Rest itself is merely a form of progress toward beauty and perfection, and there is no flaw anywhere in the majestic splendor of God's scheme for the ultimate happiness of His entire creation.”

CONFERENCE ECHOES

(Continued from front page)

created the earth (Gen. 1:1), but the earth had become waste and wild and a darkness was upon the face of the deep (v. 2, Roth.). We have no way of knowing the number of years that elapsed between verses one and two; it may have been hundreds or thousands. But through the power of our heavenly Father, the earth was once more re-fitted and re-formed, and it evolved into a state which God called good and very good. Then He placed man upon the earth with the command to replenish and subdue it, and with one restriction only. When man violated God's law, He did not alter man's nature, but He prohibited him access to the life giving tree.”

In his usual interesting manner, Bro. Conner scanned the history of man down through the ages, depicting the sorrows and judgments that have come upon him as a result of disobedience. He showed very clearly that One must needs be born who could ransom man from the depths to which he had fallen as a consequence of sin, and that “out of a well guarded, well protected tribe was developed the purest woman in the world, and she under God's power brought forth the Savior. He it is who will completely fulfill God's command, in eventually subduing the earth and returning it to the Father in even better condition than in the beginning. For when He delivers creation back to the Creator, incorruptible conditions will prevail and man shall no longer need the life giving tree, for he shall possess immortality.

“May we faithfully follow Him that we may share with Him in the marvelous glory that shall be revealed when God shall truly be all in all.”

THE NATURAL AND THE SPIRITUAL

(Continued from page 712)

state (Eccl. 9:5, 10), the other to experience a “change” at the “resurrection of the just” (Luke 14:14) to an immortal state, void of the Adamic blood which Paul describes as an “incorruptible” state.

The eight “its” in 1 Corinthians 15:42-44, inclusive, refer to the body, namely, “So also is the resurrection of the dead. It (the body, etc.) is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: it is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.”

Jesus reminds us of the distinction between the natural and spiritual man and the effect, “Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I come not to send peace, but a sword. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter in law against her mother in law. And a man's foes shall be they of his own household.” Matt. 10:34-36.

Jesus, in Matthew 12:46-48 and John 7:5, establishes a precedent by reminding us of the distinction He makes between the natural and spiritual man, to wit, His blood-relatives versus His disciples. Read it. The difference between blood and spirit caused Jesus to say, “If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.”

Jesus says, “Wanton creatures! do you not know that the world's friendship means enmity to God? Whoever, then, chooses to be the world's friend, turns enemy to God.” John 4:4, Moffatt. “Woe unto you, when all men (the world) shall speak well of you!” Luke 6:26, Jesus.

Jesus' natural, mortal body was placed in the tomb. It came forth a spirit, immortal body void of blood. Lazarus' body experienced no change during the interim between death and the resurrection to life.

Jesus “poured out his soul—life blood—unto death”, Isa. 53:12, and according to His statement He had no blood in His resurrected body. “Behold my hands, and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.” Luke 24:39. This is in accord with Paul's words, namely, “Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God.”—1 Cor. 15:50. The Lord omits the word “blood”, the chief function of the body.

It was for such a resurrection that Paul prayed, Phil. 3:10, 11, “To get to know Him. And the power of His resurrection and fellowship of His sufferings, being conformed unto His death, if by any means I may advance to the earlier resurrection which is from among the dead,” Roth. Notice: “earlier resurrection—from among the dead”.

To this end let us pray, talk, and act, that we may “get to know Him, and the power of His resurrection and fellowship of His sufferings”, which means immortality, divine nature, to be like Him, and forever with Him.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"TRAIN UP A CHILD IN THE WAY HE SHOULD GO, AND WHEN HE IS OLD HE WILL NOT DEPART FROM IT."—PROVERBS 22:6.

OUR JUNIOR BEREANS

THE late Cardinal Newman is reported to have said, "Permit me to teach a child until he is seven years old; after that I am not afraid of the influence of other religious teachers."

This principle rules in the instruction of our junior Bereans. We make the fundamental principles of truth so simple and so thorough that we have confidence that, with minds thus impregnated with the teachings of the Bible, they will grow up in the fear and admonition of the Lord, becoming members of the church.

As a text book for our junior classes we selected the "Children's Bible Story and Study Book", published by the National Berean Society of the Church of God. From September until July 1st we covered as far as lesson No. 27. At the end of the period a written examination was given, with very satisfactory results.

Four had perfect papers; a number stood over ninety. The following was the examination, and the figure at the end of each question was the credit given. Test yourself and see if you can stand as high as the Cleveland children whose ages range from seven to fourteen.

1. How did we get the name of our organization (Berean)? 5
2. Where is God? 2
3. Who hath seen God? 2
4. Who made all things? 2
5. Why was the earth created? 3
6. How long will the earth abide? 2
7. With what will the earth be filled? 3
8. What were the number of days of the creation? 1
9. What day was man created? 1
10. Is man mortal or immortal? 2
11. Explain your answer. 3
12. What happens to us when we die? 3
13. What was the consequence of Adam's sin? 3
14. When Christ returns what will happen to the faithful? 4
15. What is the gift of God? 4
16. What did the Israelites use for sacrificial offerings? 2
17. Who was sacrificed for us? 2
18. Why did Cain slay Abel? 2

19. Why did Noah build his ark? 2
20. Why was Moses put into his ark? 2
21. Christ is our Ark. How do we get into it? 3
22. What did God promise Abraham? 4
23. Did Abraham receive the promise? 3
24. Will God keep His promise? 3
25. What strong characteristic did Abraham possess? 3
26. What was the name of the son promised Abraham? 2
27. Who is the "One" seed of Abraham? 4
28. What two sons were offered as a sacrifice? 2
29. How many generations from Abraham to Christ? 2
30. What type of man was Isaac? 2
31. Describe Isaac's twin sons. 4
32. What did Esau sell, and to whom? 5
33. Whom did Jacob deceive, and why?
34. In what way did God appear to Jacob when He repeated to Jacob the promise which He had made to Abraham and Isaac? 2
35. What has God promised us? 4
36. Give the Berean benediction. 5

THE above was submitted by Sr. Halls of Cleveland, Ohio, and shows that a great deal of good work is being done there among the children. Are your children using the "Children's Bible Story and Study Book"?

AS THIS is being written, prospects for an inspiring National Berean Day are just opening up, and a full day is planned. The program began at eight o'clock with devotional services, followed by a session devoted to reports of the activities of the several departments and societies. The usual classes of the school are being held at 10:30 and 1:30, and at 2:45, an interesting "Berean Clearing House" will be in session.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 25; Ohio, 20; California, 10; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 5; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 4; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE MISSION TO CYPRUS

“HE (Saul or Paul) is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel.” So said the Lord when sending Ananias to help restore Saul’s sight. Peter had been sent to Cornelius, but now the gospel was to be carried to Gentiles in more distant countries, so the Holy Ghost said, “Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.”

Barnabas and Saul had worked together successfully for a year at Antioch. They had been chosen to take the money-gift down to the famine sufferers near Jerusalem. And now, upon their return to Antioch, they were to go forth again on a longer and more dangerous journey. However, they did not start until they had fasted and prayed, and the Antioch brethren had laid their hands on them in blessing and farewell.

Now find a map of this eastern country, and follow the journeys of these two and John Mark who accompanied them part of the way. Their faith and trust in God gave them courage and the strength to do the work God should give them to do. Today we would call them missionaries.

The three disciples went to Seleucia, on the seacoast, about sixteen miles from Antioch. Cyprus was an island and the homeland of Barnabas. Here, in the city of Salamis, they preached in the Jewish synagogues. From Salamis they went across the island to Paphos, the seat of government.

The deputy, or ruler, in this city was a wise man; and, having heard of Saul and Barnabas, sent for them to tell him the word of God. With the deputy was a Jewish sorcerer (Bar-jesus) who did all he could to prevent the missionaries from telling their story. He feared the deputy might turn him away if he heard the apostles and believed their doctrine.

However, when Saul (from now on called Paul, his Gentile name) saw the evil intentions of this man he looked at him very intently and openly accused him of being an enemy of all that was good. Moreover, to punish the sorcerer for his wrong doing, Paul told him that the hand of the Lord was upon him and that he should be blind for a time, just as Saul had once been. And immediately there came over his eyes a darkness, and he sought one to lead him. When the deputy saw this miracle, and the great power and doctrine of the Lord, he believed.

Then God’s three workers went by boat to Perga in Pamphylia, where they separated—John Mark returning to Jerusalem, and Paul and Barnabas going on to another Antioch, farther north in Pisidia.

ARE WE blind to the truth, or trying to find light?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Trace the journey of Paul, Barnabas and Mark on your map.
2. Copy the names of all the men and cities and countries mentioned.
3. Finish the chapter.

SOME PEOPLE WHO COULD NOT BE TRUSTED

LAST week Stephen showed that he could be trusted and Daddy started to tell him about some people who could not be trusted. Now we will learn who they were.

“They were the Israelites,” said Daddy.

“I know about the Israelites,” said Ruth, who had come into the room. “Moses was their leader, and God gave him some laws; so the Israelites would know what was right for them to do, and what was wrong.”

“Yes,” said Daddy, “and God’s first law was that the people should not have any god but Him. Now, you remember how God came down upon the mountain to talk with Moses. The mountain was covered in a thick cloud, so that the people could not see God; and Moses went up into this dark cloud.

“Once he stayed on the mountain for a long time: he stayed forty days and forty nights. The Israelites got tired of waiting for him to come back; so they went to a man named Aaron, whom they looked upon as their leader now that Moses was away on the mountain top, and said, ‘Make us some new gods.’”

“Why, how could Aaron make new gods?” asked Ruth, astonished.

“He couldn’t,” said Daddy, “but he let the people bring their gold rings, and necklaces, and bracelets; and he put all the gold together, and made a statue of a golden calf. And the people bowed to this calf, and called it their new god.”

“Did the real God know what the people were doing?” asked Ruth. “I should think if He did, it would have grieved Him very much.”

“Yes,” said Daddy, “and He was sorry; for He had told the people that they must have no God but Him, and the people had promised to obey Him. And Moses was sorry and angry, too; for he saw that the people could not be trusted.”

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 8. — August 23, 1931

A GOSPEL FOR ALL MEN

Acts 10:1 to 11:18; 1 Corinthians 1:23-25

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 11:1-5

GOLDEN TEXT

For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.—Romans 10:12.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. The Gospel for All Men.

Basic Truth. "There is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him."—Rom. 10:12.

Outline. I. The Power of God Unto Salvation. II. God's Grace Proffered to All. III. Whosoever Believeth Is Assured Everlasting Life.

I. The Power of God Unto Salvation. God's power knows no bounds. Established upon justice, or righteousness (cf Rom. 3:26), prompted by love for man, John 3:16, His power has been manifest from earliest time as being supreme. The gospel of Jesus Christ, Rom. 1:16, is God's revealed power for the salvation of man. Evidently there is no other method provided by God for drawing man unto salvation than the gospel and its attendant powers.

II. God's Grace Proffered to All. Cornelius was a Gentile. The Jews had been scrupulously taught to believe that all Gentiles, "being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise", Eph. 2:12, were, by virtue of their birth, without God and without hope. Religion to them seemed to be a matter of physical formality.

In contrast to this the Savior's teachings to His apostles were, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."—Mark 16:15. Thus the favor of God through Jesus Christ was extended to all.

As "all Judaea, and all regions round about Jordan", in Matt. 3:5, refers to people of all grades and of all classes, and not to every individual, so in Mark 16:15 and other scriptures, "all creatures" refers to men of all nations, of all classes and of all companies.

Such is God's good pleasure. God "will ('will' in this text does not mean 'has determined to have', but 'would be pleased to') have all men to be saved." 1 Tim. 2:4. That this might be possible Jesus "gave himself a ransom for all". 1 Tim. 2:6. "He is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." 1 John 2:2.

God's love, God's favor, God's mercy have been extended to all. Not one of Adam's descendants, but unto whom God has gladly extended His offer of salvation.

One of Peter's great labors was to correct the erring mind of Jewish Christians regarding God's grace toward Gentiles. His fellow brethren, even his fellow apostles felt to chide him because he accepted the Gentiles into Christian fellowship. To fully learn Christ, even as He went beyond the families of Jewish blood, was one of the difficult problems for early Christians. It required the vision of the sheet, filled with all kinds of creatures, with God's explanation thereof, to bring Peter to realize the great truth that God loved the world equally as He loved Israel.

The Gentile Macedonian was in Paul's "vision by night" calling for help. It required instruction from God on high to confirm and authorize Paul to go among Gentiles in Macedonia and teach them the way of the gospel.

It was through these convincing evidences that the apostles were persuaded that God is not a respecter of persons, merely because of one's race, or of one's standing in fashionable society, or of one's ancestry.

III. Whosoever Believeth Is Assured of Everlasting Life. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16. Belief is by God made a prerequisite to salvation. From the earliest Bible days to the close of Revelation, belief is by God required of all people.

The Ethiopian eunuch would immediately obey every formal requirement for salvation. As they were riding toward Gaza with the beauties of spring surrounding them, immediately the Ethiopian saw water, he would be baptized according to the teachings of Philip. But Philip presented one condition: "If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest." Acts 8:37.

Abraham's sacrifice was useless, had it not been for his faith, his belief.

The marching of the soldiers around Jericho would have been void, had it not been for belief.

Daniel's faith in God gave to him God's blessing, and he slept with the lions.

"Without faith it is impossible to please" God. Heb. 11:6.

God has done all for man. If man would avail himself of God's blessing, He requires that man shall exercise faith in Him.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Universal Gospel: The gospel is for all people. There are no boundary lines among the nations in its teachings. God "hath made of one blood all nations of men". All are precious in His sight. It would be a great boon to Christianity, if every Christian could with Peter "perceive that God is not a respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." None can be called "common or unclean". Salvation is for all people. The gospel call may be summed up with the Master's words, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Gentiles are welcomed into the "grace of God that bringeth salvation." The wall of partition that separated Jew and Gentile, and which was a barrier to the Gentiles, has forever been broken down and removed by the blood of Christ, and now all who choose can come under its redeeming power.

Gospel Sufficient: The gospel is good news to all. The reason is evident—it meets and supplies their needs. If you are without hope, it gives you hope. If you are unclean, it makes you clean. If you are in sorrow, it gives "peace that passeth all understanding". It recognizes no caste. Rich and poor, young and old may drink of its life-giving waters. It transforms all of its adherents. It is the only way of salvation. Surely the gospel is good news to all people. Spread it.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For there is no distinction either of Jew or of Greek; since the same Lord of all is rich towards all those calling upon him."—Romans 10:12, Diag.

Peter in the house of Cornelius, the Gentile, said, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." Notice that the acceptance depends on something on the part of man. Our text says, "all those calling upon him"; the other verse says, "he that feareth and worketh righteousness". Nationality has nothing to do with acceptance or rejection. That is something man has no control over; but whether we accept or reject lies wholly within ourselves. If we accept and are faithful, then we will be accepted of Him, but should we reject Him, we may expect Him to mete out rejection to us.

To those who accept Him and call upon His name, "there is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."—Gal. 3:29.—L. A. R.

First Steps in World Brotherhood

Jesus gave the gospel to all men to call out a people to be rulers in His universal kingdom. All families are to be blessed by the gospel. (Acts 3:25.) There are in reality but three families on earth. These are the descendants of the three sons of Noah—Shem, Ham, and Japheth. To teach that the gospel was to be for all families, Jesus called in a very special way, one from each of the families. Philip was sent to the Ethiopian eunuch—a descendant of Ham. Jesus appeared to Saul—a descendant of Shem; and Peter was sent to Cornelius, the Centurion—a descendant of Japheth. —H. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

General and Illinois, Oregon, Aug. 4 to 16
 Nebraska, Holbrook Aug. 15 to 23
 Virginia, Maurertown, August 20 to 30
 Iowa, Waterloo, August 22 to 30
 Kansas, Arkansas City, August 23 to 31

VIRGINIA BIBLE SCHOOL

The Virginia Bible School and Conference will convene at Maurertown, from August 20 to 30. All readers of The Restitution Herald are invited to attend and share in our classes. Bro. and Sr. G. E. Marsh will (D. V.) assist the local teachers in the work.

Meals and lodging will be furnished without cost to all who attend. Those living near enough will materially assist the local brethren by furnishing their own bedding. Those coming from farther away will be supplied.

Please bring your Bibles and study with us.
 Harry A. Sheets, Sec.

GENERAL CONFERENCE AND BIBLE SCHOOL

We are now in the midst of our Conference and Bible School here at Oregon, and we are experiencing the largest and best meetings to date in our history. Because of large attendance of younger married folks, a new class was created this year, called the junior adult, and Brothers M. W. Lyon and H. A. Sheets kindly consented to take charge of this large and interesting class. They are studying present day problems—church problems, Sunday school and home problems of special interest to the advancement of Christianity. Under Bro. Townsend's supervision everything is moving along with order and with enthusiasm, and he is instituting many new ideas which are proving beneficial.

To date fifteen states and Canada are represented, auto loads from all points of the compass arriving daily, two hundred seventy-four had been recorded by the ninth. At the first session sixty-six were enrolled. The enrollments of the several classes on August 8 were as follows: senior adult, 35; junior adult, 18; senior young people, 16; junior young people, 25; intermediate, 15; primary, 14.

We experienced a wonderful day on Sunday. At the conclusion of the sermon by Bro. Austin, two came forward for baptism, Miss Mildred Welch of LaCrosse, Wis., and Mrs. Lawrence Robins of Mt. Sterling, Ill. As we write this, Berean day is opening up, with promise of a full and interesting program.

FONTHILL-NIAGARA FALLS

The joint picnic of the two Sunday Schools was a success from every standpoint. Everybody had fun.

Bro and Sr. Rennard and daughter Grace took an extended tour through the eastern states during vacation period. Bro. Rennard, while enjoying the trip, also nursed a very painful arm due to neuritis.

In the absence of the pastor, the elders of the Falls church will fill the pulpit.

These lines are being written at General Conference by the pastor, and I wish to say to my two congregations that Bro. Gordon says, "Hello everybody."

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota
Sr. H. L. Luper,	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley,	Rt. 1, Bx. 25 Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely,	710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen,	daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington,	Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkhite,	Brantford, Ont.
Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher,	Deerfield, Fla.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Bro. Milford C. Boice, son of Bro. and Sr. L. A. Boice of Champaign, Illinois, to Miss Gladys Antoinette Anderson of Evanston, Illinois. The Herald extends congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy life together.

INDIANA CONFERENCE

The Indiana Conference and Bible School convened at the North Salem church from July 7 to 19. Classes were taught by Brothers Anderson, Marsh, Smead, LeCrone, Arlen Marsh and Sisters Lulu Stilson and LaMunion. A new project—the discussion of social problems—was tried in the adult and senior young people's classes.

We very much enjoyed having as visitors Bro. and Sr. Patrick and Ione, of Ohio, who dropped in on their way home, and Bro. Chas. Pearson and wife and his uncle, Bro. Pearson and wife, of the Brush Creek church.

Dora Byers of South Whitley, Indiana, was baptized.

The Conference officers for this year are: president, Bro. F. A. Stilson; first vice president, Bro. Parker; second vice president, Bro. Paul Magnus; treasurer, Sr. Flora H. Prior; secretary, Sr. Verna Himmelright.

FAREWELL

It was with much regret that Eden Valley had to give up their pastor of the past four years. It was four years of pleasant association and cooperation in Christian work. During these years the church membership has grown, and there has been a closer and firmer Christian fellowship among the members than in some time past.

During Bro. Magaw's pastorate, the church building has been plastered and has been raised and a new foundation and basement put under it. Many other improvements have been made, which have added to the looks of the building as well as making more room and convenience for the Sunday School work and other phases of the work.

The church was unanimous in the wish to keep Bro. Magaw here. As long as he felt that he should go, all we can say is: "The Lord's will be done." Our loss is Brush Creek's gain. We pray that God will continue to bless Bro. Magaw, his family, and his work wherever they may be.

The Eden Valley Church Board.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Quite a bit of sickness has been evident lately among the church families or their relatives. Sr. Thomas has been quite ill but is improving now.

The church is glad to have eight of its number in attendance at the General Conference, and will be looking eagerly forward to their return.

The pastor and family were called to Adrian, Michigan, the week of July 27 upon the sudden death of Sr. Clara Smith, and while in that section of the state called upon as many of the church people as possible.

The church is looking forward to increased activity with the coming of September and the opening of schools.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

JOHN WOOD

John Edward Wood was born near Martinsville, Illinois, on September 4, 1875, and departed this life on August 2, 1931. He was the son of J. J. and M. E. Wood. His father and one brother, Harry, preceded him in death.

He was married to Lillie Belle Neidigh on October 26, 1902. To this union was born one child, Edna. He united with the Christian Church at Martinsville, while young. He was ever a faithful member at Salem Church.

He leaves to mourn his loss the wife, one daughter, Edna, a mother, two brothers, Frank Wood of Lyeon, Colorado; Arthur Wood of Sacramento, California; also three sisters, Mrs. Willis Rollings, Long Beach, California; Mrs. John Alexander, West Union, Illinois; Mrs. Ed Alexander, Cheney Center, Colorado, also a host of relatives and friends. He was a faithful husband and a loving father and loved by all who knew him.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer who took for his text the words found in 2 Samuel 14:14. Burial was made in the cemetery at Clarksville, Illinois, where he awaits the will of the Lord. Sr. Edna, the daughter, is secretary of the Illinois State Berean Society, and she will have the love and sympathy of the entire church.

S. J. Lindsay.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Edgar Demmitt; D. G. Harvey; M. A. Woodward; Mrs. Fred Cross; Alice Emerson; George Johnston; A. M. Southwick; Mrs. Mila Scott; Mrs. J. T. Williford; Pearl Zechiel.

WHY THE PEOPLE FOLLOWED JESUS

LEAVING Sychar, Christ had returned to Galilee, where He healed from a distance the son of a nobleman of Capernaum. Following this, in the spring He returned to Jerusalem. There He healed with a word the sick man at the pool of Bethesda.

Then He returned to Galilee, evidently to the cities on the western shore of the sea. "And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased." The multitude walked around the sea, while Christ and His disciples crossed in a boat.

Always it was Christ's healing of the sick that chiefly drew men to Him, so eager are mortals for health of the body and so careless regarding their spiritual health, which the great Physician came to impart. Would it be different if Christ should come again today?

"And Jesus went up into the mountain, and there he sat with his disciples." He sat in the position of a teacher, and doubtless gave instruction to His disciples and also to the people from the western shore, as they arrived and crowded around Him.

Now the passover, the feast of the Jews, was at hand. John's narrative is built up around the different Jewish festivals; it is from his Gospel that we learn that Christ's public ministry extended over three years and included three passovers. The fact that this was near the time of the passover accounts for the great crowds, many of them doubtless pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem.

Jesus, therefore, lifting up His eyes, and seeing that a great multitude came unto Him, said to Philip, "Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?" Why did Jesus go to Philip? Because He was nearest to him; or because his forward spirit (John 14:18) needed to be convinced of its own helplessness; or because, living on the lake (John 1:44), he would know the neighborhood. Any or all of these suggestions may be correct. As Judas kept the bag, it is not likely that Philip commonly provided food for the party.

"Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?" Taken in its spiritual aspect, this is the question for each one of us: "Whence can we obtain the bread of life?" Jesus gave food to that multitude, to teach His followers through all ages that unless they cared for men's bodily wants, they would never touch the moral and spiritual in them.

"And this he said to prove him." Philip had now been with the Master for many weeks and had seen Him work wonderful miracles; moreover, he had heard Jesus talk about the necessity for faith and its vast power. Would his faith rise to the expectation of aid from Christ's supernatural power, or would he rely merely on bakers' shops? Was he heavenly minded or earthly minded?

All of the perplexities and trials of our lives serve to test us on the same point. For He Himself knew what He would do. Christ did not need Philip's advice, nor does

He need our prayers to show Him what our needs are and what is the best way to meet them. Nevertheless He asks for our prayers, just as He asked for Philip's advice, and is rejoiced when those prayers show insight to faith and progress.

When therefore the people saw the sign which He did (it was brought home to each one of them, for it was entirely clear to all that a marvelous thing had been done) they said, "This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world." That is—the Messiah—for He could not do greater deeds than Jesus was accomplishing before their eyes.

"Break Thou the bread of life,
Dear Lord, to me,
As Thou didst break the loaves
Beside the sea;
Beyond the sacred page
I seek Thee, Lord;
My spirit pants for Thee,
O living Word!"

—Selected.

"My people have forgotten me days without number."
—Jeremiah 2:32.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13 the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March 1879.

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample Copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

LOOK AT THESE

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

GIVEN FOR NEW YEARLY SUBSCRIPTIONS

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Tell them about the picture and the map which each New Subscriber receives for his own.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1.

Who will be first to win a map?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

GIFTS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1/2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 18, 1931

NUMBER 46

Isaiah Fifty-three

“WHO COULD have believed, they cry, what we have heard? Whoever had the Eternal’s power so revealed to them? Why, Israel of old grew like a sapling, like a shoot springing from dry soil; He had no beauty to attract our eyes, no charm to make us choose Him. He was despised and shunned by men, a man of pain, who knew what sickness was; like one from whom men turn with shuddering, He was despised; we took no heed of Him. And yet ours was the pain He bore, the sorrow He endured! We thought Him suffering from a stroke at God’s own hand; yet He was wounded because we had sinned; ’twas our misdeeds that crushed Him; ’twas for our welfare that He was chastised; the blows that fell to Him have brought us healing. Like sheep we had all gone astray; we had each taken his own way, and the Eternal laid on Him the guilt of all of us. He was ill-treated, yet He bore it humbly; He never would complain, dumb as a sheep led to the slaughter, dumb as a ewe before the shearers. They did away with Him unjustly; and who heeded how He fell, torn from the land of the living, struck down for sins of ours? They laid Him in a felon’s grave, and buried Him with criminals, though He was guilty of no violence nor had He uttered a false word. But the Eternal chose to vindicate His servant, rescuing His life from anguish; He let Him prosper to the full, in a posterity with life prolonged. Yes, many shall hold My servant blameless, since ’twas their guilt He bore. Therefore shall He win victory; He shall succeed triumphantly, since He has shed His life-blood, and let Himself be numbered among rebels, bearing the great world’s sins, and interposing for rebellious men.”—Moffatt’s Translation, selected by Samuel E. Haney.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

GOD'S PLAN OF SALVATION

MANY have been the proclamations of discourses outlining the plan of God, with reference to the salvation of man as revealed by the Apostle: "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16. All of this and all that goes with it we wish to emphasize with all the power of our ability. In no wise do we wish to detract from the great honor and glory that God has bestowed upon His well beloved Son.

But our Savior has been calling out a people for His name. That people have been called, in Paul's epistles to the various churches, the church of God. The people thus called out have been directed by Scripture to "go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." To that people has been given the responsibility of proclaiming God's word of salvation and of carrying forward, so far as it pertains to this our present generation, God's plan of salvation.

These responsibilities have, by the Scriptures, been carefully placed upon the shoulders of those called out by the gospel to the service of Christ our Lord.

The preaching of the gospel consists of much more than merely the proclamation of the truths of God with reference to Christ. It consists of all this; but it also consists of the duty and the labor of holding up and assisting and encouraging one and all of those who have laid hold on eternal life.

In 1 Corinthians 12, the church of God has been likened unto the body of a man. Each individual member of the church is likened unto an individual member of the human body. And just as the human body is unable to function fully and properly unless each and every member functions in its respective place, even so the church of God cannot fully and completely carry forward its work without each and every member of that church performing his or her individual responsibility.

Duty therefore falls upon the church that it shall conduct its work properly as between member and member, also as between the church and those out of the pale of the church. Duty is placed upon it to so ally its members together, one with another, that each one will be able to perform his or her work in the best possible way in conjunction with and in addition to the work that is performed by each and every other member of the church.

This is all part and parcel of God's plan of salvation. He has so ordained that the church and the members of the church in particular shall be so conducted.

The classes and the sessions which are now being held at Oregon, and which have been held since August 4th, are bringing these things out most beautifully. Not that there is any special effort to emphasize these things pointedly, in detail, but the workings of this gathering have been bringing these things to the front.

The benefits of cooperation, church with church throughout the country; the benefits of gathering together and exchanging information as to methods, means, and manners of proceeding and carrying forward the work; methods, means, and manners of interesting and holding the interest of children and of young people; methods, means, and manners of making the church more effective in its operation, in its carrying forward—these things have been not only emphasized in class in some particulars, but the result of the work of the past and of the work throughout the country has been revealed in beautiful manner at these gatherings.

God's plan of salvation includes you and me, dear brother and sister. It requires not only that you and I shall believe the gospel, that we shall render the obedience of baptism, that we shall endeavor to walk the new life, but it includes also that you and I shall each one unite our every effort, with like efforts of others wherever they may be, that we shall together move forward like a great army for righteousness to the end that we may take the enemy's camp, press back those who are opposing, and enlist the interest of those who will give consideration and consecration to our Lord and Master and to His wonderful words and methods for salvation.

May it be ours, one and all, to ever more rapidly and fully come to understand the daily practical workings that we ourselves must engage in as we accept and enter into God's great and wonderful plan of love and of salvation. May it be ours to cooperate to the full. May it be ours to come to learn, one from the other, every advantageous thought of truth and of work, of means and of methods for carrying forward so great work, that eventually, after the return of our Lord and Master, is to spread from sea to sea, from the river to the end of the earth, and is to include the whole earth under its beneficent rule.

ANOTHER FORWARD MOVEMENT

CONNER AND MARSH HEAD NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

THE General Conference is coming to the close of the most satisfactory gathering in its history. With over 1250 delegate votes the largest representation, the most unanimous spirit and activity, with probably one of the best Bible schools in the history of the Illinois Conference as its background, the General Conference is now going on record as, even in these times of depression, moving forward.

More and more is the Conference able to discern the errors of operation and to make corrections thereof and move forward toward the ideals which were at first in the minds and visions of those who were so anxious to see the work established and carried out.

When on Wednesday, the 12th, the nominating committee brought in its report to the conference, the former secretary withdrew his name from the slate as presented. After careful deliberation the committee brought in its second report as follows: President, L. E. Conner; First Vice President, Leland Hanson; Second Vice President, Joseph H. Williams; Secretary, G. E. Marsh; Treasurer, T. J. Ellis. The election resulted in making the whole slate effective, Bro. Marsh being chosen as secretary by 1283 1-2 votes, the largest vote ever cast for any single candidate on the floor of the conference.

At this writing it has not been fully revealed just what plans the board has made with reference to taking over the work, but this much can be said that Bro. Conner as president will also take up the business management of the work, while Bro. Marsh will have charge of the editing of the publications of the N. B. I., will be teacher of the Bible Training Class, and has also arranged to become pastor of the church at Oregon. Further particulars will probably be given in the next issue of THE HERALD.

The people of the Church of God throughout the country are urgently exhorted to get behind this newly elected board and give it every possible assistance and encouragement for the successful prosecution of its duties to the honor and glory of God and His Son.

BIBLE SCHOOL ADVANCEMENT

THERE are several features of the Illinois Bible School which is now closing that merit attention. Those in charge are steadily improving its efficiency. This year, because of the larger attendance and the fact that some of the classes were becoming crowded, a new class was organized which, without previous intention or arrangement, took up the study of Working Methods.

Constantly this class continued to grow and has become perhaps the best class ever put on by this school or any other of our Bible schools. The results of their studies were at once noticeable in the business meetings of the different associations held here at this time. Bro. M. W. Lyon of the Cleveland, Ohio, church and Bro. H. A. Sheets of Maurertown, Virginia, were in charge of the class.

NO VACATION AT OREGON

IT BECAME most evident to all those in attendance at the General Conference and the Illinois Bible School this year that those here as teachers and delegates were on no vacation tour. Heretofore several of the churches have felt that when they gave their ministers leave of absence to attend this General Conference, they did so with a seeming thought that they were giving their pastors or evangelists a leave on vacation. But, as expressed by some of those who had formerly held that view, as they watched the proceedings during the sessions, this is anything but a vacation. And so it is!

No pastor or evangelist or worker who attends the Illinois Conference and Bible School or the General Conference has any claim to being on a recreation trip. At this writing practically every one of the teachers and workers is, what some people call in a slang way, "nearly ragged out". It is constant work from morning to night. Between classes there are committee meetings and consultations of different kinds which keep the mind hard at work more than twelve hours per day.

We were further glad to have it made known that some of the churches not only gave their ministers leave on full pay, but also paid all their expenses to attend this General Conference. And the work of the Conference is surely making itself felt. It is hard to understand how any church, taking such interest in the General work as to delegate its minister, or other workers, can fail to receive more perhaps than it might have received had its minister remained at home. The incentive which he, or they, receive from meeting with others and exchanging views and getting and giving help, surely must yield to the delegating churches manifold returns.

Certainly all will receive a benefit from these gatherings, from the exchange of views and of methods.

GOING TO CHICAGO

AS SOON as the newly elected board of the General Conference can find it convenient to release Bro. Austin from his duties at Oregon, he notified us that he will remove to Chicago to his home. He has informed us that he has not given any thought as to what he will do in the future, excepting that for the present he will try to get a needed rest.

However, he has assured the Conference from the floor that it will be his effort to do everything possible for the advancement of the Conference work, and so far as he is

(Continued on page 735)

Heard at General Conference

“HOW EXCELLENT IS THY NAME”

“O LORD, how excellent is thy name in all the earth,” was the theme of the Sunday morning sermon by Bro. Austin, and throughout his discourse he directed our minds to the greatness of the God we worship, as manifested in the majesty of His creation, in the beauty and accuracy of His Book, and in the care He exercises over His people in the smallest details of life.

“If we lift our eyes heavenward,” said the speaker, “we behold the beauty of God’s mighty clock-work; the planets perform with perfect precision, and in their pathways there is never a collision. None but the all-wise and all-powerful God could have placed them there and then regulated their movements. Too often we keep our eyes fastened to the ground at our feet instead of pausing to lift them to God and join our voices in praise to Him.

“Observe His Book, how beautifully organized it is; each verse has a particular make-up not found in any other literature. The words from Genesis to Revelation are arranged with a harmony and a system as are found in no other book.

“All this brings us to a realization of what it means to trust in a God so great. This day, as you go out into life, you may depend upon this same God for guidance in the most trivial affair. His omnipotent power is yours to use, yours to appropriate, if you will.

“Your life’s total will be reckoned according to your conception of Jehovah,” he continued, “according to the devotion you render to Him. Young people, you who are just going out to plan your life work, take God into your plans, ask His guidance, give Him due consideration before you map out your life.

“Let us give to Him praise and thanksgiving for His spirit sent to direct us over the uneven pathway of life. Let us rejoice in that we have at our disposal the power of a God great enough to create and control a universe and yet not too great to consider the needs of the smallest of His creatures. Let us learn to visualize God to the fullest in all our beings.”

When he had concluded, our minds had been uplifted and our reverence for God greatly increased.

JOHN’S REVELATION AS IT CONCERNS US

ON SUNDAY afternoon, the ninth, Bro. Grover Gordon of Holbrook, Nebraska, gave us an earnest message of exhortation and warning founded on John’s Revelation. He said that at first thought many consider this a sealed book, but on examination it is found to contain many helpful thoughts for these latter times.

“We find the introduction to the book to be the ‘Revelation of Jesus Christ’, of things which were to come to pass, ‘for the time is at hand’. First, its message was given because of some false teachings that had crept in among them. And we find later errors creeping in, in about the same order as is given in the message to the seven churches,” Bro. Gordon stated. “Note the condemnation pronounced upon the Laodiceans. When that lukewarm condition arrives in the church, it is about the time when the Savior will be standing at the door and knocking.”

The speaker then discussed the conditions attending the opening of the seven seals, thus: the four horsemen have to do with conditions we see on the earth; the thunder of 6:1, represents a mighty shaking, perhaps such as when the World War shook the foundations of earth. The white horse may represent the German army which went out conquering and to conquer, Bro. Gordon declared. The red horse may be the Russian reds, who surely have taken “peace from the earth,” Rev. 6:4.

The spirit abroad in the world is another indication that we are living in the last days—the spirit of revolution, insurrection, insubordination to authority of state and also of home, unrest, perplexity on every hand.

The new spirit of absolute dictatorship as opposed to communism was also reviewed by the speaker, and this element of fascism seems to be gaining in ascendancy. It may be represented by the black horse. This power is one that is growing so fast and becoming so powerful it cannot be ignored. The pale horse can represent only one thing—the result of these widespread conditions—famine, starvation, and death.

When we see all these signs being fulfilled about us, it should cause us to examine ourselves and see what sort of persons we are, as Peter exhorts us. “Are we really serving our Savior as we ought, so that we will be ready and waiting on His return?”

THE LAND THAT IS FAIRER THAN DAY

ON SUNDAY evening Bro. Marsh touched a tender chord in our hearts, as he told us of the “land that is fairer than day.”

“As we sing the words of the beautiful hymn, the faces of many we have loved and lost float before our minds,” he said, “and we catch a vision of the city of the King. As we draw near to its gates, we see the approaching forms of our loved ones and we are borne forward on the cadence of that song we love to sing, to the time when we will all meet again in the sweet bye and bye.

“Recently an atheist and a fundamentalist were asked the question, ‘What will heaven be like?’ Bro. Marsh continued. “And there was a strange similarity in their answers. The former admitted that he did not know what heaven will be like, ‘or if there be any heaven’; while the latter, who was understood to firmly believe every word of our heavenly Father, stated that the Bible does not reveal in detail the exact nature and condition of the heavenly land, nevertheless it gives us enough to challenge our interest and engage our attention.

"Men do not give up their lives for an indefinite reward, and yet this dear old Book tells of many who sacrificed their all to attain that land. They must have had a clear understanding of what the glory land is like. And it is my firm conviction that a remarkable man like the Apostle Paul, for example, knew much about the 'land that is fairer than day'."

Bro. Marsh then directed our attention to the many promises of God with regard to the reward of the faithful, showing that the kingdom of God, which will be established on earth is the "land that is fairer than day." In touching words he described the perfect conditions that will surround those who are permitted to dwell therein. Truly it has been written that eye hath not seen nor ear heard, but God hath revealed by His spirit, so that all may understand, the glories of the "land that is fairer than day".

"When the Master comes to call His own it will be to that same land which we have known and loved, cleansed of all sorrows and pain and death. Such is the glory land of God. May we meet each other there" was Bro. Marsh's fervent concluding exhortation.

WHAT IS FAITH

ON TUESDAY evening, Bro. H. A. Sheets of Virginia, gave us a very lucid explanation of that so often obscurely defined element called faith. According to Bullinger, faith is a living, divinely implanted principle. We recognize it by several other terms, such as, assurance, Acts 11:28; fidelity, Titus 2:10.

"If we say that faith is knowledge of Bible doctrine, we have lost all meaning of the term," said Bro. Sheets. "Faith is fidelity or loyalty to the things that we know. It is religion in action. After all there is no greater thought in Hebrews 11:1. The word, substance, in this verse, according to ancient manuscripts, means, title deed, and this meaning clarifies the verse wonderfully.

"We are looking forward to a time when we expect God's kingdom to be established upon earth, and we will need something to assure us of our right to a place in it. Faith is our title deed to that kingdom. The Apostle Paul knew that he had the title deed to the things that God has promised, and we, too, can have the same assurance, if we only have faith."

Bro. Sheets cited many instances in New and Old Testaments of those who had title deeds to salvation, though some were only temporal. Some of these were Rahab, and the scarlet cord, which was her title deed; Abraham, Daniel and his three companions; the blood of the passover lamb for the Israelites.

"Can we overestimate faith?" the speaker asked. "Have we been stressing other points to the detriment of faith? If we doubt, we throw away our title deed to salvation. And those who are loyal to God and His Son, will realize on their title deed when Christ returns. Their faith will clinch their right to enter into the kingdom of God.

"Jesus said, 'He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved'. Baptism is the evidence which we present that we have faith in that statement, and that act gives us our title deed to salvation. Those who delay obedience are flirting with death that is eternal.

"My title deed will be sufficient to give me the right to reign with Him in His kingdom of righteousness, to be fashioned like unto His glorious body. Isn't it worth while?"

WHAT THE GOSPEL WILL DO FOR YOU

WE WERE told most explicitly just what the gospel does for those who embrace it, by Bro. C. E. Randall of the Fonthill and Niagara Falls churches on August 12. First he spoke in a general way as to the effect of the gospel; then he brought it down to practical details and showed us the difference in the lives of the individuals who believe and obey the gospel and those who do not. And he declared that if the gospel has not made this change in our lives, something is seriously wrong with us.

"The gospel is a transforming power; it changes a man's life; it makes him a new creature. We are told not to be conformed to the things of the world, nor molded to its fashions, but to be molded after the pattern of Jesus Christ. Our ideals should undergo a change; our lives should be directed into new channels."

The speaker then contrasted the deeds of the flesh with those of the spirit, showing how radically opposed they are to each other and how the gospel is the power that eliminates the former and develops the latter in those who obey its requirements. He also stated that the gospel, if allowed to have free rein in the individual, no matter what his race or color may be, will make of him a new creature.

If the heart has been filled with hatred, variance, strife, the gospel implants love, gentleness, peace. If we are drunk with the cares of the world, the gospel teaches us temperance in all things. If one has been indifferent to God, the gospel fills his heart with love and devotion and worship. In short, the gospel works wonders for every one, and the world cannot help but know it.

Bro. Randall concluded with an earnest appeal to us to allow the gospel to have free course in our lives, so that we may in truth become new creatures and be accounted worthy of His salvation when Jesus our Savior comes.

"A commonplace life," we say, and we sigh;
 But why should we sigh as we say?
 The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky,
 Makes up the commonplace day;
 The moon and the stars are the commonplace things,
 And the flower that blooms, and the bird that sings:
 But dark were the world and sad our lot
 If the flowers failed and the birds sang not;
 And God, who studies each separate soul
 Of our commonplace lives makes his beautiful whole.

—Susan Coolidge.

Lessons at Illinois Bible School

JUNIOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLASS

ONE of the most intelligent and interesting classes in the Illinois Bible School is the Junior Young People's class under Bro. Marsh. Even on the first day of Bible school, a large group of boys and girls of teen age assembled with Bibles, pencils, and notebooks in a cool classroom in the basement of the church building.

The course of study for this year is calculated to prepare the youth of the church for meeting the scorn of mockers who declare that the world continues and will continue in the same routine of birth and death indefinitely, with no hope of a more perfect life. Another problem which is confronting the religious worker is that of indifference.

In this connection the class took up the study of the social conditions in Rome at the time of the early church compared with those of today. While on this subject, a discussion of the present condition of unrest and its significance in the light of prophecy, took place.

In Paul's sermon on Areopagus, he told the Greeks that they were too superstitious, which the margin calls "religious". They had erected an altar to "the unknown god", fearing that they had missed one. People nowadays are always running after some new thing, forsaking the religion of their forefathers.

Another phase of the early church was the study of the hardships of the early Christians and the manner in which persecution spread Christianity.

Occasionally the class had short Bible drills for finding texts. This competition was much appreciated, and there were a few in the class who were really brilliant in finding these texts.

In all, this class was a very successful one, and much of the credit is to be given to the capable teacher. We all hope to meet again together next year to learn more truths from God's Word.

Genniel Carpenter.

NOTES FROM THE JUNIOR ADULT CLASS

BECAUSE of the large attendance of younger adults, a new class was organized this year, with Brothers M. W. Lyon and H. A. Sheets as teachers. This class was called the "Workers' Class", and most of the time was spent in discussing church problems and endeavoring to find practical methods and systems which could be used in overcoming them.

Some of the problems discussed and the thoughts brought out are as follows:

Methods of teaching a Sunday School Class: First, last, and always the teacher must realize his opportunity and must be enthusiastic and consecrated in regard to his work. Also, a very thorough preparation of the lesson is necessary in order that the teacher may be able to answer any question that might be asked in regard to the lesson. Organization was also discussed as being a great means of stimulating interest in the class.

Prayer: The thought was very forcibly brought out that we as a church are not a praying people, and it was urged that the members of this class as representatives from the different church localities endeavor to build up this side of our church life. Prayer is communion with God, and the closer we keep in touch with Him, the closer will we be able to serve in the way which will be most acceptable. The spiritual life of the church is reflected in the way in which its members respond to prayer services.

Should a Christian Marry a Non-Christian? This question is a very real problem in many of our churches. Some of our churches have died out entirely because their young people have married disinterested non-Christians. On the other hand, some very valuable workers have been brought into the church by the influence of a Christian companion. We came to the conclusion that the ideal to be encouraged among our young people is that they marry in the Faith. While this is not always possible (and we should not condemn or prohibit marriage with a non-Christian), yet it is the ideal, as given by Paul in some of his letters to the churches.

Esta L. Starbuck.

SENIOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S CLASS

THE Senior Young People's Class enjoyed some very interesting and worth while Bible lessons, under the instruction of Bro. F. L. Austin in the morning and Bro. Clarence Lapp in the afternoon.

The morning sessions were taken up with the study of God, Christ, and the angels as spirits, and of man as having received the spirit, an element from God, which gives him power to live.

Several days were spent in the study of the restitution, when the church, as joint heirs, is to aid Christ in the restoration, and rule over the nations. Bro. Austin gave a chart representation of the world from the beginning until the restitution. We studied the falling away of man, the children of Israel as God's chosen people, the calling out of the Levites to do special service for God in former times, and the calling out of the church today.

The study of the church was taken up. We find the apostles filled with the Holy Ghost at Pentecost, in order that they might speak in other tongues and do greater work for Christ. Examples of this may be found in the second, third, and fourth chapters of Acts. The power, or spirit, is given in measures according to the way it is used. If one is to do Christ's work he must have spiritual power to carry on in a spiritual manner.

We considered Christianity as the acceptance of the words and spirit of Christ. In 1 Corinthians 12 and 13 we find that spiritual gifts of individuals and the workings of various ones as directed by the Spirit of God differ. Faith, necessarily a characteristic of the Christian, was discussed in Romans 10:17; 14:23; and Eph. 1:15-23.

Prayer is necessary for the Christian, and we are told, in Matthew 6:5-8, how to pray. A careful analysis was made of the prayer in Matthew 6:9-13 and in Luke 11:1-4. Some attention was also given to Daniel's prayer in Daniel 9. The principle of forgiveness as essential to the Christian was discussed, and special attention was given to it as set forth in Matthew 18:21-30.

We studied Christ as our High Priest, our Atonement, our Mercy Seat, of which we as Christians are to be a part, in Hebrews 8:1-6; 9:23; 10:1; Romans 3:24, 25; Ephesians 5:23-32; etc.

In the afternoon sessions time was devoted to the study of faith in Hebrews 11:6; Romans 4:3, 4; and to faith and works in James 2:14, 17, 18. Repentance and obedience were stressed, as in Acts 2:37, 38. Along with obedience comes Christian duty. It is the duty of the Christian to serve God and not sin (as illustrated in Romans 6:14-16). When we accept Christ as our Savior, our relationship changes.

The reward for the Christians who prove faithful is to be given at Christ's return. 1 Peter 1:6-11. The nature of the wonderful reward is stated in 1 Corinthians 15:41-54; 2 Corinthians 4:7, 17, 18; 5:1-5; Romans 8:16-18; Isaiah 35:10; Revelation 21:4. In order to receive the reward we must necessarily look forward to Christ's second coming. We find, in 1 Thessalonians 4:16; 1:10; 2 Thessalonians 1:7-10; Matt. 24:30, 31; Acts 1:11; Matthew 5:31-33; Revelation 1:7; etc, positive proof of Christ's return. We admonish all to live worthily in order that they may receive the reward of the saints when Christ shall come.

There was considerable discussion on the question of tithing. Bro. Lapp gave each one a topic on this subject to discuss. Many new ideas were presented.

One period was spent in the reviewing of sin, the atonement for sin, and what one must do in order to benefit by this atonement.

The final lesson was given to the study of the first chapter of James, in which the Apostle exhorted patience in affliction. The concluding verse says: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Opal Robbins.

"THERE are certain results which will be manifest in the life of everyone who will give God undisputed possession of his life. First, he will know God better, for 'the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God'. Next, he will be able to understand Christ better. Third, there will be growth downward, 'rooted . . . in him', and upward, 'into him which is the head', and outward, in all the fruits of the Spirit."

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Bro. Thayer was our teacher. On Thursday morning we had our second lesson on Jacob. We followed Jacob on his journey from Hebron to Haran, where he married, and then back to Hebron. The main thought was that Jacob prevailed through God's help.

On Thursday afternoon we had the first lesson on Joseph. We studied of his dreams, his coat of many colors, the selling of him by his brothers to the Ishmaelites, the dreams of Pharaoh and his butler and baker and the interpretation of the dreams. The memory verse was Genesis 41:39. The main thought of the lesson was: God with Joseph.

Thursday a. m., second lesson on Jacob: The lesson was of the famine in Egypt and the land of Canaan, and of Joseph's brothers coming to buy corn, and later Israel and all of his children coming into Egypt.

Friday p. m., first lesson on Moses: We studied about Moses' mother hiding him in the bullrushes, and of the finding of him by Pharaoh's daughter; of Moses seeing the burning bush, and the Lord speaking to him out of the bush.

Saturday a. m., second lesson on Moses: We studied of the Lord telling Moses to lead the children of Israel out of Egypt, and of the excuses Moses gave, and how the Lord always fixed a way so that Moses would be the one to do the work.

Monday, the nine plagues: The lesson was of Moses and Aaron through God causing the plagues of water turning to blood, frogs, lice, flies, murrain of beasts, boils, hail, locusts, and darkness to come upon the land of Egypt because Pharaoh would not let the Israelites go.

Tuesday a. m., the passover: The lesson was on the killing of all the firstborn of the Egyptians and their cattle.

Tuesday p. m., Crossing the Red Sea: We studied of the Lord through Moses leading the Israelites through the wilderness and to the Red Sea, and of the Egyptians following; of the parting of the waters of the Red Sea and of the Egyptians still following and being drowned.

Wednesday, Wilderness Wanderings: The lesson was on Moses and the Israelites wandering in the wilderness and the Lord giving Moses the laws on Mount Sinai.

Thursday a. m., The Ten Commandments: We studied the ten commandments, their meaning, and of the Israelites worshipping a golden calf.

Thursday p. m., Joshua: We studied about Moses' death, of Joshua taking Moses' place as leader of the Israelites, and of the Israelites marching to take Jericho.

Friday a. m., Crossing the Jordan: We studied about the camp of the Israelites and how they followed the ark of the covenant; the waters of the Jordan parting and letting the Israelites pass on to Jericho.

Friday p. m., The Siege of Jericho: The gates of Jericho were closed because the Israelites were laying siege to the city. They marched around the city once every day for six days, on the seventh they marched around seven times and gave a great shout. The walls of the city fell and the Israelites burned the city.

Evan Knodle.

PRECEPT UPON PRECEPT

By George B. Alldridge

UNDER the caption, "Joys and Sorrows of an Editor," in the issue of June twenty-third, one critic remarked, "There is a sameness about the things that are dished up for HERALD readers." I thought this critic unintentionally is paying the editors a very high compliment. I judge he or she is not a close Bible student; otherwise his criticism would have been laudatory.

All the leading newspapers employ men or women who are known as "columnists"; that is, each day they write an article on any subject that may please their minds; they are not confined to a particular series of subjects. The writers to THE RESTITUTION HERALD are men and women of only one book, namely, the Bible. In other words, quoting this blessed Book itself, their articles must be confined to "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ." Acts 8:12.

Probably we all would like to know more of what happened after our Lord's resurrection, but Luke tells us that, "To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion, by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God." Acts 1:3. This same writer also declares (Luke 9:2) that Jesus sent His twelve disciples out "to preach the kingdom of God".

Hence then, the HERALD writers, to be faithful and obedient to the Lord's commission and final instructions, must do likewise: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen."

It is strange how history repeats itself! In Isaiah's day, God had the same difficulty to contend with in His chosen people, that the editors of THE HERALD have today with some of its readers, namely, their "untowardness" to learn.

"I will quote in full:

"Whom shall he teach knowledge? and whom shall he make to understand doctrine?"

"For precept must be upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little. For with stammering lips, and another tongue, will he speak to this people.

"To whom he said, This is the rest wherewith ye may cause the weary to rest; and this is the refreshing: yet they would not hear.

"But the word of the Lord was unto them precept upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little; that they might go, and fall backward, and be broken and snared and taken."—Isa. 28:9-13.

Dear Brother Paul (I am glad that, like you, I am a Bible student, for it is all I know or care to know), were these scriptures fulfilled in your day and generation?

"Yes," answers Paul, "read my letter to the church at Corinth, 1 Corinthians 14:21, 'In the law it is written, With men of other tongues and other lips will I speak unto this people; and yet for all that will they not hear me, saith the Lord'."

Dear Brother Austin and Sister Gesin, as editors are these experiences yours? Please listen to the answer: "There is a sameness about the things that are dished up for HERALD readers."

My critical friend, do you really know what this word "precept" means in the original? Well, it means to send a message by command in the hands of a messenger. This is what the editors of THE HERALD are trying faithfully to do.

Maybe our critic loves music. If so, I will appeal to his ethereal sense. Have you ever heard Mendelssohn's Lobgesang? If so, you remember that gloom brooding over the world, and that voice rising through the silence with accents of despairing energy. You hear these groans that wander through the solitudes, and that cry of the earth in distress, which pierces the air, traverses space, and shakes the skies, "When will the night be past?"

I open my Bible and read Romans 8:22, 23: "For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the firstfruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves, groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body."

Dear critic, every day above the tumult of nature, above the clash of weapons, in tears as beneath laughter, we hear it still. This is the cry of all tender, all broken hearts, of all who are unhappy, all who believe themselves happy. This is what the insane keep calling aloud, what the wise murmur, what perhaps even the poor outcast of society, the lost soul seated in the electric chair repeats unconsciously. This is the language of the seekers after truth, the lovers of the ideal; the shuddering question of lamentable sadness, the hope-thrilled sigh of sadness which is beautiful. It is those of whom Jesus said, "Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted," that have these vehemencies of aspiration.

But as we listen in as the organ peals forth, there seems an interval which makes our pulse stand still, as though emptiness prevailed, as though in all the ruined universe there was nothing that could reply to the supreme invocation. But the organist is now pulling out all the stops. His cleft reads "allegro," and the refrain, "forte". A transport of victory bursts forth; the choir of angels fills the air: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Now the organist switches to Handel's Messiah, and the mighty Halleluia chorus rings out, reverberating throughout the heavens and earth: "Alleluia, salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God; for true and righteous are his judgments." Rev. 19:1, 2. We are enthralled as the organ peals forth, "The night is past!"

This, my beloved critic, is what the editors proclaim. Can they repeat it too often? The night is past, the day is here!

THE DESTINY OF THE CHURCH

By J. S. Lyon

WHATEVER the glories of the millennial kingdom may be, they are ineffective in establishing an appreciative and loyal people so far as the majority is concerned. For we are told that they rebell over the face of the whole earth and attempt to take the government into their own hands. Rev. 20:9. Perhaps this fact will incline the reader to be ready to expect a better calling, if nothing previously said could create such an inclination.

The writer believes that a good many of the Church of God members believe in the church being able to ascend to God, where Christ is now, and possibly ever be in the heavens above the earth, like the angels in their relation to the earth. But so far as he can remember, the subject has never been discussed in the columns of THE HERALD. It is certain that many have no expectation of a heavenly reign, and he has known of some that expected to till the same farms they have now! It is not so long ago that the writer could remark with conviction that he did not want to go to heaven, so long as there was no promise of it to the elect. In all our church hymnals, pains have been taken to delete all references to a heavenly home.

If we follow the King James Version, we will have hard work to ferret out the truth. Thanks to the Concordant Version, which gives us the Greek of the oldest three manuscripts, we are able to check the version by the concordance to assure ourselves of the author's rectitude. The method of the Concordant Version, for the benefit of those who are not familiar with it, is to take every passage where the same word in the Greek appears, or the same form of the word, and find the one meaning in English which will fit every one of these instances. Thus wherever one Greek word form appears in the New Testament, the same English equivalent is given in the translation.

This is so much better a method than that which, for one Greek word, uses many differing English words in translation, that it is beyond comparison. But if it is a mistake to believe that no Greek word has more than one meaning in the translation, having the Greek word before you, you can be your own judge and translate as you please, if you question the author's version. With this statement concerning the version, we will quote from it the texts relative to the heavenly destiny of the church, and the reader, by comparison with the King James, can see for himself how great a difference there is between the two.

Phil. 3:20: "For our citizenship belongs to the heavens, out of which we are awaiting a Saviour, also the Lord, Jesus Christ, who will transfigure the body of our humiliation to conform it to His body glorious, in accord with the operation which enables Him to subject even the universe to Him."

A German in this country temporarily has no right of citizenship here, but must go to Germany to obtain the benefits of citizenship. Unless we strain this passage beyond all bounds, we can get no truth out of it except that the church will have to go to heaven to do their ruling. Note how this truth is covered up by the bias of translators in various versions.

King James: "our conversation is in heaven."

Diaglott: "our polity begins in the heavens."

Rotherham: "our enrollment as citizens is ready in the heavens."

Moffatt: "for we are a colony of heaven."

Syriac: "but our concern is with heaven."

Revised: "our citizenship is in heaven."

Eph. 3:6: "In spirit the nations are to be joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus."

Verse 10: God creates the universe, that now, to the sovereignties and the authorities among the celestials, may be made known, through the ecclesia, the multifarious wisdom of God, in accord with the purpose of the eons, which He makes in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Phil. 2:10: "In the name of Jesus, every knee should bow, celestial and terrestrial and subterranean, and every tongue shall be acclaiming Jesus Christ as Lord."

These two passages show clearly that the celestial reign is not one over dignitaries in high places on the earth, for the two words, terrestrial and celestial, forbid that interpretation. It is a universe in extent, all of God's creation.

"Eph. 1:3-12: "Blessed be the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who blesses us with every spiritual blessing among the celestials, in Christ according as He chooses us in Him before the disruption of the world, to be holy and flawless in His sight, when, in love, He designates us beforehand for the place of a son unto Him through Jesus Christ, in accord with the delight of His will, for the laud of His grace glorious, which graces us in the Beloved: in Whom we have deliverance through His blood, the forgiveness of offences in accord with the riches of His grace, which He lavishes on us, when, in all wisdom and prudence, He makes known to us the secret of His will, (in accord with His delight, which He purposed in Him,) to have an administration, the complement of the eras, in which the universe is to be headed up in the Christ . . . that in the heavens as well as that on the earth . . . even in Him in whom our lot is cast, being designated beforehand according to the purpose of the One Who is operating the universe in accord with the counsel of His will, that we, who are in a state of prior expectancy in the Christ, should be for the laud of His glory."

The Greek avorist, like the English present indicative, signifies future as well as past and present action. The expressions—he blesses us, he makes us alive, he seats us—all indicate future action when resurrection occurs.

Eph. 2:1-7: "And you, being dead to your offences and sins in which you once walked . . . yet God, being rich in mercy, because of the vast love with which He loves us . . . makes us alive together in Christ (you have been saved for grace) and rouses us together and seats us together among the celestials in Christ Jesus, in order that in the on-coming eons, He may display the transcendent riches of His grace in His kindness to us in Christ Jesus."

Eph. 6:12: "It is not ours to wrestle with flesh and blood, but with the sovereignties, with the authorities, with the world mights of this darkness, with the spiritual forces of wickedness among the celestials."

The rulers of the kingdom will be wrestling with flesh and blood.

1 Cor. 6:3: "Are you not aware that you shall be judging messengers (angels) not to mention life's affairs?"

Col. 1:5: "We are thanking God . . . because of the expectation which is reserved for you in the heavens."

Verses 19-20: "Seeing that the entire complement delights to dwell in Him, and through Him to reconcile the universe to Him . . . through Him, whether that on earth or that in the heavens."

Eph. 1:15-23: "Therefore, I also, when hearing of the faith which relates to you in the Lord Jesus, and that for all the saints, do not cease giving thanks for you, making mention in my prayers that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father glorious, may impart to you a wise and revealing spirit in its realization, the eyes of your heart having been enlightened for you to perceive what is the prospect of its call, what the glorious riches of the enjoyment of its allotment among the saints, and what the transcendent greatness of its power for us who are believing, in accord with the operation of His mighty strength, which operates in the Christ when arousing Him from the dead and seating Him at His right hand among the celestials, up above every sovereignty and authority and power and dominion and every name that is named, not only in this eon but in that which is future also: and subjects all under His feet, and gives Him the headship over all the ecclesia which is His body, the complement which is completing the entire universe."

Let us, as Paul prays in Ephesians 3:18, "be strong to grasp, together with all the saints, what is its breadth" (the heavenly calling previously described) "and length and depth and height . . . to know the love of Christ as well, which transcends knowledge . . . that you may be completed for the entire complement of God."

Oft do we stand in wonder and awe of a clear night as we gaze at the beautiful panorama of the heavens. None can count or estimate the glowing suns in that distant realm, or know how many million dark worlds like our own may be populated by beings like ourselves. How long will it take our Lord Jesus to bring that vast domain into harmony with God's will? How can we begin to appreciate the grace that translates us into a sphere of action and glory as such a reign with Jesus? How can we begin to think of what we may be called upon and given power to do? Indeed it is true, that it hath not "entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." 1 Cor. 2:9. In the next verse we are told that these things are revealed to us by the spirit, but it is evident that even when we have absorbed all the truth that Paul has to disclose, there is an infinite amount of details we never can know concerning the destiny of the elect ecclesia, until we have entered into the enjoyment of them. Nothing of our labors here can pay or merit any of the grace so generously granted the church. It is entirely a gift of God, for which we can do no more than to praise His holy name and await patiently, from these vile and feeble bodies, the change that shall make them like that of our Savior and our Lord.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN

By Lyman Booth

THE address of this epistle is, "The elder to the well beloved Gaius." Several persons are mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles by this name (Acts 19:29; 20:4), and in the epistle to the Romans (16:23), and in the first epistle to the Corinthians (1:14).

This same person, this Gaius whom Paul mentions in his two passages, seems to have lived at Corinth. Another Gaius was of Derbe, and a third is called a Macedonian. But it isn't probable that either of these is the one addressed in this epistle, who probably lived not far from Ephesus in Asia Minor.

Paul having learned of Gaius' piety and the hospitality he had shown to Christian missionaries who were of the Jewish nation, writes the epistle to him to express his hearty approval of his conduct. He prays that his prosperity and health may be equal to his piety. He states that notwithstanding the fact that he had written to the church to aid the Christian missionaries, Diotrophes not only refuses to receive him, but also speaks evil of him, and prevents them who are willing to do the service, casting them out of the church. He adds that he has many things to write but is unwilling to put them on paper, as he expects to see Gaius shortly.

After the salutation (1) the Apostle expresses his joy for the tidings he has received of Gaius (2-4), and commends him for his piety (5-8), and warns him against the Diotrophes because of his ambition and self-assertion (9-10). Next he expresses his approval of Demetrius, and after expressing the hope of soon seeing Gaius, he closes with a warm salutation.

THE MASTER ARTIST

When Earth's last picture is painted,
And the tubes are twisted and dried,
When the oldest colors have faded,
And the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—
Lie down for an eon or two,
Till the Master of all good workmen
Shall set us to work anew!

And only the Master shall praise us,
And only the Master shall blame;
And no one shall work for money,
And no one shall work for fame;
But each for the joy of the working,
And each in his separate star,
Shall draw the thing as he sees it,
For the God of things as they are.

—Kipling.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

FOR IF A MAN THINK HIMSELF TO BE SOMETHING, WHEN HE IS NOTHING, HE DECEIVETH HIMSELF.—GAL. 6:3.

LIGHT

HISTORY tells the story of a certain queen whose greatest disappointment in life was the fact that she was not beautiful. So enraged did she become every time she beheld her features in the mirror that special looking glasses were made to tone down the defects of her make-up. To further satisfy her vanity, she would look at her image in soft flattering light, until in time she came to believe that she was really beautiful.

Light has strange powers. Strong white lights thrown upon an object truthfully reveal it as it is, whether perfect, or scarred, soiled or distorted. White light never flatters. It shows things as they are—no more. Colored lights have a different effect. Shaded and mellow, they impart tone and beauty to otherwise drab and ugly spots.

Going through life, our path is illuminated by knowledge and truth. They form a torch, the strong white rays of which often seem cruelly penetrating. When looking at others, how much kinder we can be if we soften the light with the soft warm colors of forgiveness and tolerance.

It is not necessary, however, to dim the light with which we look into our own souls. We need to know of all the imperfections of our characters, lest, like the vain queen, we remember only the good and, relying on the false picture that we have imprinted on our minds, we become conceited and never attain that humility which is so commendable.

INDIANA BIBLE SCHOOL

THE Indiana Bible School and Conference was held at North Salem, July 7 to 19, 1931. Good attendance and interest were shown at this School. Adult classes were taught by J. H. Anderson and G. E. Marsh; young people by J. H. Anderson, G. E. Marsh and C. A. Smead; primary classes by Lulu Stilson.

The Berean business meeting was held on Wednesday evening, July 15, the president, Sr. Pearl Zechiel, presiding. After the devotional exercises the secretary's report and treasurer's report were read and approved.

The report of the literary committee by Sr. Sarah Manuwal is as follows: Letters sent out, 7; letters received, 0; articles sent in by committee, 2; articles and Berean class reports listed, 11. The following class reports were given:

South Bend—Number of members paying dues, 12; average attendance, 11; meetings held, 36.

Plymouth—Enrollment, 9; average attendance, 8; meetings held, 18.

Rensselaer—Enrollment, 9; average attendance, 9; meetings held, 40.

Burr Oak—(Senior) Enrollment, 14; average attendance, 10; meetings held, 17. (Adult) Enrollment, 18; average attendance, 14; meetings held, 31. (Junior) Enrollment, 8; average attendance, 5; meetings held, 14.

Kokomo, though unorganized, gave a report of their class with an enrollment of probably 35 and an average attendance of approximately 30.

The following officers were reelected: Sr. Pearl Zechiel, president; Sr. Lulu Stilson, vice president; Bro. Vaughn Long, secretary; Sr. Martha Senff, treasurer.

During the Conference there were 2281 meals served and one baptism performed.

Vaughn Long, Sec.

THE FIERY SERPENT

IN NUMBERS 21:6 we are told that the Lord Jehovah sent fiery serpents to the people of Israel. They were bitten and many of them died. The people then begged Moses to pray to God that He might take the serpents away. And the Lord God said to Moses, "Make thee a brazen serpent, and set it upon a pole, and every one that is bitten, if he shall look upon it shall live." So Moses did as the Lord commanded and his people were saved.

We believe this to be a type of Christ, for we read, "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have eternal life."

Helen Harvey, Kokomo, Ind.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 25; Ohio, 20; California, 10; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 7; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 4; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

TURNING TO THE GENTILES

PAUL and Barnabas were in Antioch, in Pisidia. As was their custom on the sabbath, they went to the synagogue, or church, and sat down. After the Scripture reading, the rulers asked if they had any word of exhortation for the people.

Paul stood up, beckoned with his hand, and said: "Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, give audience." He told them how God had chosen them to be His own people, and related various episodes in their history, coming on down to the birth of Jesus and His crucifixion. He warned them of trouble to come upon them, because they refused to accept Jesus and refused to believe even then.

Naturally, the Jews did not like such plain speaking against themselves, and so many of them left the synagogue. However, the Gentiles and many other Jews were so interested that they asked Paul and Barnabas to preach to them the following sabbath.

And what do you think? The following sabbath, almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God. Can you imagine nearly every one in your city or town coming to church? But when the Jews who did not believe saw the multitude, they became jealous and said all manner of things against the apostles.

Then Paul and Barnabas became very bold. They said, "It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles."

Paul told them that he had been sent as a light to guide the Gentiles to salvation, and that he was to go to the ends of the earth, or all over the world. And most of Paul's preaching was to the Gentiles and Christian church. These Gentile listeners were very glad, and glorified the Lord. They told others the good news, until all in that region heard.

But the Jews had not given up. They went to some of the devout and honorable women and chief men of the city, and told them falsehoods concerning the apostles and finally roused them to drive the two out of their coasts.

According to instructions, when one city refused to accept the gospel the apostles were to shake off the dust of their feet against them and go on to another city. Shaking the dust off was a sign that they were not responsible for what would happen to their persecutors.

Paul and Barnabas went to Iconium, and in spite of all this harsh treatment, the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost. Thus you see how it was planned that we, too, should have a part in God's plan of salvation.

In a letter to the Roman people Paul said he was a debtor to the Greeks and barbarians, who are Gentiles, and to the wise and unwise. And that he was ready to give his best to the people in Rome also.

He said, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Acts 13:14 to 42.
2. Learn the Golden Text—Acts 13:47.
3. Memorize Romans 1:16.
4. Hunt other verses that tell about salvation for the Gentiles.

WE BELIEVE in a day of judgment—"He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day."—John 12:48.

A CHILD'S PRAYER

"The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handiwork."—Psalm 19:1.

Dear Father, who hast made the moon and the stars to shine in the night and the sun to give light by day, I thank Thee for the many beauties and wonders of this world in which we live. I will think of them all as signs of Thy love and try to make my life bright and beautiful for Thee. Amen.—Rev. R. W. Barstow.

TWO RULES

I have a ruler made of wood,
So shining, bright, and new,
And when I use it as I should
My lines are straight and true.

But I've a rule that's better yet,
'Tis made of words quite true,
"Do unto others as you would
That they should do to you."

And when I use my rule of gold
The way I really should,
I know the pattern of my day
Will turn out to be good.

—Alice Crowell Hoffman.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 9. — August 30, 1931

THE MISSION TO CYPRUS

Acts 12:25 to 13:12

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 42:6-10

GOLDEN TEXT

For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Christianity at Court.

Basic Truth. "If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it".—Acts 5:38, 39.

Outline. I. Christianity as a God-given Truth and Power. II. Human Courts Incapable of Trying It.

I. Christianity as a God-given Truth and Power. The Jewish nation was nearly wrecked before it yielded to recognize the truth that Jesus was sent from God, that His life strength and wisdom were God-given, that they were both unauthorized and unable to oppose Him.

Christianity is more than a doctrine. It carries with it vital force and energy that originate with God, not with man.

As the high priests and rulers and mob found in Christ a truth and a power beyond their reach, beyond their control, so the multitude on the day of Pentecost, Acts 2:6, found that Christianity was possessed of a power beyond man's ability to cope. Christianity in Peter and John was something that prison doors could not restrain, Acts 5:19, that prison officers could not guard, 5:23; something with which the powers of state could not deal, 5:39.

So also in this outlying field of Cyprus, Christianity revealed itself through Paul and Barnabas to be a truth and a power that could not be restrained by heathen law or custom, that could not be tethered or led by human whims.

II. Human Courts Incapable of Trying It. Just as the prophets of Baal, 1 Kings 18, were unable to thwart the truth and power of God revealed in Elijah, so the courts of Caiaphas and Pilate found themselves wholly incompetent and unable to hinder the power of God revealed in Christ. Like as human crowns found themselves incompetent to resist Christ, so they found themselves unable to resist the truth and power of Christ made manifest in His loyal followers.

Christ was obedient to and cooperated with every righteous law of man, but He ignored such human laws and commands as opposed His Father. The early Christians were directed to be loyal to every righteous effort of man. Such righteous efforts have always been approved by God for His people. But the early Christian church has taught Christianity for all time to come that its strength and power rests in God, to whom it owes unfaltering allegiance; and that no human tribunal should deter the Christian from loyally persevering in service.

It is as much the Christian's duty today to witness before the individual and before the multitude to the superiority of Christ and of Christianity as it was the duty of early Christians.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Set Apart by Prayer: Before Paul and Barnabas were sent to the island of Cyprus, they were set apart by prayer. Those taking part in this service laid their hands on Paul and Barnabas, as they prayed. It was a consecration or ordination service. Prayer played a great part in the life of the early church. They were in constant prayer. They depended on prayer for success and protection. Every undertaking in the Lord's work should be backed up by prayer.

Church Prayed: The church remembered them in prayer. Through the prayers of the church these missionaries were strengthened. Paul, in writing to the Ephesian church, asked them to pray for him that God would give him freedom of speech and courage for the work which he had been called to do. Eph. 6:18, 19. Samuel said it was a sin for him to cease praying for his people. It was a sin against the Lord. 1 Sam. 12:23. Would it be a sin for Christian people to cease praying for their leader?

A Mission: The mission which called these two missionaries to this island was to preach Jesus as the Christ, the One in whom we receive remission of sins. Often times people become so engrossed over some view or teaching that the fundamental teachings concerning Christ and salvation are neglected. Christ should be the center of all our teachings. Paul said, "For I determined not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified."—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."—Romans 1:16.

Jesus said, "Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words . . . ; of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels." There seems to be a penalty for everything contrary to the love of God. To those who are ashamed of His word, shame is meted out to them. Why was Paul not ashamed? Because he knew the power of God that went with the preaching of His word.

"For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God." 1 Cor. 1:18. Why foolishness to them that perish, and the power of God to them who are saved? To the believer, salvation; to the unbeliever, rejection. Which do you choose?—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Missionary Adventures in Cyprus

Cyprus, an island off the coast of Asia Minor, was the first place visited by Paul as a missionary. Paul and Barnabas were at Antioch when the holy spirit called them. The spirit called only the two, but they took John Mark "also". Their disobedience led to a sharp contention between them. The contention was so great that they separated and never again worked together. Barnabas was never heard of after the separation, although he was frequently mentioned in the activities of the church before that event. The work of the gospel was weakened by their disobedience. Every Christian must learn to do what God asks and NO MORE.

The two apostles met with little opposition at Cyprus except in the person of Bar-jesus, a Jew seeking favor from the Roman proconsul. Paul struck this Jewish sorcerer with blindness for a season. When the ruler saw what had happened to the Jewish "wise one", he hastened to believe. It is possible that the smiting of Bar-jesus was done more for the sake of the ruler than as punishment to the opposer. This is evidence that God could conquer by force, if He so chose.—H. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: The Gospel Preached at Cyprus.

Acts 12:24 says, "But the word of God grew and multiplied." In nearly every lesson we have learned of some new place where the disciples had gone to preach. Sometimes they went because of persecution; again, because the people had asked them to come. But nevertheless Christianity was being spread.

In our lesson today Paul and Barnabas, with John, go to Cyprus. Here they preached and taught the people of God. They came to Paphos. Here they met two men, Elymas and Paulus. Elymas was a false prophet and Paulus was an officer of the country. When Paulus heard that Paul and Barnabas were there he sent for them. He wanted them to tell him about God. But what do you think Elymas did? He tried every way possible to get Paulus not to pay any attention to what these men said about God. And he was justly punished for it, for he became blind.

We have many people today who try to tell us there is no God. So let us think of this lesson and remember that they will be punished because of it, and we must remain faithful to God even if they do tell us such things.—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Nebraska, Holbrook	Aug. 15 to 23
Virginia, Maurertown,	August 20 to 30
Iowa, Waterloo,	August 22 to 30
Kansas, Arkansas City,	August 23 to 31

On pages two and three will be found a general review of the conference at Oregon, as it pertains to the new workers who were just recently elected and will be assuming their duties in the near future. Do not overlook it.

A letter from Bro. R. H. Judd of Toronto, Ontario, informs us that he is expecting his wife home in about two weeks. Sr. Judd is on a visit to her old home in England and writes that she "is having a wonderful time; everybody has been so good to me, and I have enjoyed every minute." Friends of Bro. and Sr. Judd are happy with them in the pleasure afforded Sr. Judd by this trip.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE PAST

The most harmonious and beneficial conference in the history of the N. B. I. and of Illinois—that was the verdict heard on every hand from the scores of delegates in attendance representing the churches of the United States and Canada. The Bible School was the largest and by far the most helpful of all our recent schools. This was due largely to the efforts of Bro. Townsend, superintendent, who organized the school very systematically and supervised every part of it. A total of 420 was registered, the largest number on record.

All of the general sessions were spiritually uplifting, the sermons being especially suited to the times in which we are living. But perhaps special mention might be made of the consecration service on the afternoon of the closing day. Bro. Austin and Bro. Marsh took charge of this service, consecrating to full ministerial privileges Bro. Earl Thayer, pastor of the Rockford (Illinois) church. The following were consecrated to student ministerial privileges: C. E. Lapp, C. A. Smead, Lucille and Richard LeCrone. Sr. Mary Gesin, as one of the teachers of the Bible Training Class, was included in this service.

Following this, the newly elected officers of the N. B. I. executive board were consecrated to office. Bro. L. E. Conner, the new president, being absent at the Nebraska Conference, will later receive the Bible which, according to custom, the retiring president gives to the new officer. Brothers Leland Hanson and Joseph H. Williams, the new first and second vice presidents, and Bro. G. E. Marsh, the secretary, were consecrated to the new duties devolving upon them.

Bro. T. J. Ellis, of Waterloo, Iowa, the newly chosen treasurer, was compelled to leave before Sunday, but his name was added to that of the other officers for God's blessing in his work.

In most impressive words these consecrations were given, and were received by the participants as words from our heavenly Father Himself. May God guide and direct and bless all to His honor and glory.

At the conclusion, Bro. C. E. Lapp, in the name of those assembled in General Conference, presented a purse to Bro. F. L. Austin, retiring executive secretary, with words of appreciation of the inestimable service of the past ten years which he has so self-sacrificing-

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25

Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkhite, Brantford, Ont.
Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher, Deerfield, Fla.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn, Culver, Ind.

Sr. Osborne, who has been in failing health for the past several months, desires the prayers of the brotherhood for her. Let us remember her also, with others.

ly devoted to the several departments of the N. B. I.

Many of those in attendance at this year's conference expressed the thought that God's especial blessing seemed to be over us, indicated by the large number who were able to attend despite the prevalent depression. And all felt encouraged to return to their several churches with renewed energy and zeal for the Master.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Bro. and Sr. Harvey Hotchkiss are the proud parents of a fine new baby girl, whom they call Frances.

Sr. Thomas is able to be up a little each day now after her siege of illness.

In the absence of the eight members of our church in attendance at General Conference our teaching staff was quite handicapped, but others filled in and the work was carried on well.

The church is looking forward to the opening of schools early in September, and is anticipating the increased enthusiasm and activity that always comes with the close of vacation time. We hope to accomplish some real work for the Master as we teach and train the younger and older ones this coming season.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS CHURCH PICNIC

The Dixon, Rockford, and Oregon churches have planned a picnic for Labor Day, September 7, to which all of the members and friends of the Church of God in northern Illinois are cordially invited, also any from any place who find it convenient to come.

The time is Labor Day, September 7, from 1:30 in the afternoon to after supper, which will be served at 5:30.

Bring basket lunches and enough dishes for your own use. A collection will be taken to take care of ice cream.

Bro. Wm. Ford of Dixon is in charge of the afternoon's program. The place is in a grove on the east side of the road about a mile out of Oregon to the south on State Route No. 2. A sign will be placed at the side of the road for your convenience in finding the picnic ground.

THE DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

The new executive board of the N. B. I. heartily endorsed the dollar-a-month club plan which has been in effect the past year. Many of those present renewed their pledges for the coming year, and several new ones added their names to the list. President L. E. Conner appointed committee chairmen in the different church localities, who were urged to begin at once to add new recruits to the club. Some of these chairmen are continued over from last year, while some of the names are new.

If the brethren over the country will take hold of this plan and give it their hearty support, the N. B. I. will be greatly enabled to outline and pursue the course of action indicated by those present in conference assembled.

A list of the number of pledgers in the different states may be of interest to all. They are:

Arkansas	1	Missouri	6
California	35	Nebraska	25
Colorado	3	New York	12
Florida	2	Ohio	39
Illinois	90	Oklahoma	4
Indiana	37	Ontario	8
Iowa	19	Oregon	5
Kansas	9	Pennsylvania	1
North Carolina	1	South Dakota	1
Louisiana	11	Texas	8
Maryland	1	Virginia	8
Michigan	14	Washington	22
Minnesota	8	Wisconsin	11
Wyoming	3

The new treasurer, Bro. T. J. Ellis, of Waterloo, Iowa, no doubt will have new plans for furthering membership in this club. Meanwhile the office will be waiting with pen in hand to add new names to the list.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Sue Williams; Jessie Wilson; Janet Nicholson; Mrs. Geo. Holly; Esta Starbuck; C. R. Meyerhoeffer; Irvin Lathrop; Mrs. Henry Fox; Clyde Long; Leonard Robins; Mrs. Lewis Lindsay; Mrs. L. McMurtrie; Elder G. A. Brown; Mrs. Rachel Etnyre; Curtis Vance; Mrs. Cora Cole; Virgil Claypool; Gladys Phillippe; Claus Storjohann; Chas. Lindsay; Mrs. Wm. Densmore; Ida Vogel.

GOING TO CHICAGO

(Continued from page 723)

able to discern, he will do nothing at all that will in any way hinder or obstruct in any particular.

He is back of the new board and back of the Conference to the full of his power.

LATER

SINCE writing the foregoing, it has been arranged that Bro. Conner will take over the business management as soon as he returns from the Nebraska Conference, and that Bro. Marsh will take over his work in Oregon on November 1. Till these brethren can thus act, the board has arranged to retain the services of Bro. Austin.

BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

THE Bible Training Class will begin on October 5, with F. L. Austin and Mrs. Mary Gesin in charge. Bro. Marsh will become Bible instructor on November 1. The course is so planned that new students may satisfactorily enter the school at the beginning of any semester. Those who have had a high school education, or the equivalent thereof, will find it most easy to take this work. All such who may wish to consecrate their powers—or a portion thereof—to the Master's cause, we earnestly solicit to be on hand to begin the course on October 5.

F. L. Austin.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13 the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March 1879.

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample Copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince (For cost of Postage)	32	.03	.12
--	----	-----	-----

BOOKS

Name	Pages	Each	Per 6
Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth, Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson	480	.85	5.00
Neatly bound, and in clear type,			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

LOOK AT THESE

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

GIVEN FOR NEW YEARLY SUBSCRIPTIONS

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Tell them about the picture and the map which each New Subscriber receives for his own.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1.

Who will be first to win a map?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

GIFTS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1-2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1,

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 25, 1931

NUMBER 47

General Conference Number

Our Golden Rule Home

Golden Rule Home is the property of the General Conference of the Churches of God in the United States and Canada. It is located at 110 North Seventh Street, Oregon, Illinois. Those who are enjoying its comforts and blessings at the present time are the following: "Aunt Mary" Renner, Sr. Clara Chaffee, Sr. Alice Crysler, Bro. and Sr. James Williamson, Sr. Mary A. Woodward, Sr. Alice Kerr, Elder G. A. Brown, Sr. Elizabeth Seoville.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

MY SINCERE AND HEARTY THANK YOU

AS RETIRING executive of the National Bible Institution and Secretary of the General Conference, I wish to extend to one and all of the readers of THE HERALD and of the cooperators in our General Conference labors my sincere thanks for their kind and earnest cooperation with me during the past ten, yes, eleven years. While every effort has first and foremost been rendered as unto God more than as unto man, yet I realize very fully that without cooperation and hearty support nought could have been done.

I further greatly appreciate the great confidences that have been placed in me during these years. I trust that I have shown myself deserving of your confidences and of your cooperation, and that I have measured up to my duty relative thereto.

For two years I have felt that the time must soon come when I would be unable to longer carry this load. It was because of my own personal choice and judgment that I declined renomination at the recent conference. It was because of my own personal judgment that, for the good of the work as a whole, I resigned as pastor of the Oregon church. In both instances my action was prompted by an earnest desire to so act as to make it possible to further our labors in the various phases of operation the most possible.

In leaving the executive field, I am anxious to assure one and all that I do so with the deepest of true and earnest prayer for the continued advancement of our gospel efforts through the General Conference of the Church of God.

F. L. Austin.

AN AWAKENING

THOUGH some may think that this kind old world has been sleeping cozily through the centuries past, there is little reason for any to feel that its sleepiness continues. The rapidly succeeding reverberations that encircle the earth, as new developments follow one after another, are certainly awakening the entire world to somewhat of a realization of present conditions.

Man is awakening to a larger comprehension of the laws of God which permeate all the universe and to a larger utilization and adaptation of those laws for man's advancement and seeming pleasure.

But man's management of all these charted fields of activity and industry has not been satisfactory even to himself. We are startled as we awaken to a realization of the great death toll that is numbered, as man undertakes to operate many of his inventions and put into force many of his methods.

"BLAZING WITH ANGER" is the way one news report is introduced, as mention is made of the reckless child-killing operations of autoists, etc.

"CRIME IS A BIG BUSINESS" is the introduction to a paragraph by the Literary Digest with reference to "the unholy alliance" that the Wickersham Commission seems to report as having been established between the crook, the politician, and the police.

Newton D. Baker in an address before the Williamstown Institute of Politics is reported to have criticized modern warfare as being "a loaded pistol aimed at the heart of civilization itself, with a hair trigger held by an unsteady hand." That is to say, in his judgment he seems to believe that human warfare is to national life what the methods of the criminal and the pistol-handed gangster are to private life.

From every direction and from every field of activity come reports of shocking conditions that are awakening men and women world wide to the fact that human management of man's affairs is causing untold hardship.

Last year it was the homeless wanderer toward which the public was asked to open its heart of liberality and provide food. This year it is to the home owner, to him who is paying on installments for his home, who has a roof over his head and a furnace in his basement that those more favorably blessed are asked to turn their eyes and hearts of sympathy. For without income with which to pay taxes or continue payments due on their homes, these people are in danger of losing the fruits of many years of thrifty saving.

What can be wrong? Is it the God of Heaven who has purposely confused man's mind to such an extent that all is in an uproar? Or is the world awakening to something of a comprehensive realization that his own governing mind and eye are far too small and too shortsighted to enable him to properly direct the affairs of humanity?

CONFIRMING GOD'S WORD

ALL THIS can but bring the Christian Bible student to a greater confidence that God's Word is, after all, the one safe thing upon which reliance may be placed. God's

(Continued on page 746)

Report of General Conference

THE eleventh annual General Conference of the Church of God was called to order at Oregon on Tuesday afternoon, August 11th, 1931, by President G. Eldred Marsh of Los Angeles in the chair. It was probably the best attended General Conference business meeting of any since the initial meeting. Some fifteen states and Canada were represented and some thirteen hundred and fifty delegate votes were present.

The complexion of the audience was most pleasing because of the increased percentage in attendance of people of early adult life.

Following the formal opening and reference to the minutes of last year's gathering, the Secretary gave his report, found beginning on Page 740 of this issue of THE HERALD. A part of the Secretary's report consisted of a financial report which brought out much interest from those present.

The financial report giving the gross and net indebtedness of the National Bible Institution by years for the years 1926 to 1930, which report is found on Page 751, was of great interest to all. In that report it was revealed by figures that the net indebtedness was reduced from the sum of $21,419.59 on December 31, 1926, to $13,292.09 on December 31, 1930.

This net indebtedness of $13,292.09 includes the $12,000 of mortgages on Greenhouse property.

After these figures had been digested for a day, it was then brought out on the floor of the meeting that the real estate plus the inventories of the N. B. I. had a value estimated above $40,000.

Of this property all is unencumbered excepting the Greenhouse properties which are mortgaged for $12,000. The Golden Rule Home, the Print Shop, the vacant lots are, none of them, encumbered. It was further revealed and declared on the floor that as concerning the Golden Rule Home, in addition to holding property, for which upward of $13,000 have been paid, should any emergency call for the return of the funds to the respective members of the Home according to what each has paid in, that we have secured investments to cover all and, in addition, have upwards of $1500 to the good.

It was however declared that the Greenhouse venture had not come to be the profit producing business that it had hoped it would be. The Secretary revealed the fact that the deficit in Greenhouse operation for the last two years was such that it must not be allowed to continue.

All figures and reports reveal the fact that, exclusive of the Greenhouse activity, the N. B. I. work as developed at Oregon has advanced in every line.

HIGHWAY RIGHT OF WAY

The new Illinois Highway No. 77 which is at the present being constructed from Oregon westward has crossed our Greenhouse property in two places. For this right-of-way $250 was received from the highway board. This $250 has been paid on the $12,000 mortgage against the Greenhouse property, thus reducing that Greenhouse mortgage, recently, to $11,750.

SECURITY PAPERS

By oversight no report was made on the floor regarding the securities which the N. B. I. holds for its loans with which to secure our Annuity Bond holders as also the members of the Golden Rule Home. Care has been taken to dispose of all bonds on real estate, which bonds have been depreciating in value, and reinvest in bonds or securities of other types. All were sold at the price originally paid for them. In this way we have lost nothing by the great landslide in valuations that has been progressing for the last two years. And all securities which we now hold are, to the best of our judgment, worth one hundred cents on the dollar. While this was explained to the Board elect, it was overlooked and not given on the floor.

To the above might also be added that the N. B. I. holds mortgages on three parcels of real estate in Arkansas and on one parcel in Illinois, besides having two properties, one in Illinois and one in Ontario, that have been sold on contract. All these latter securities have come to us in the regular course of business, instead of money.

In answer to interrogation from the floor the Secretary explained that the mental responsibility and care and fatigue caused by the operation of the Greenhouse was the greatest of any department in the N. B. I. work. He also reported that the proper conduct of the Greenhouse necessitated mental work in such contrast with our religious work that it made the Greenhouse the greatest task of all.

DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

In reporting the contributions for the last Conference year, August to August, which totaled $6,048.98, the discussion of the Dollar-A-Month Club came before the house.

Instead of realizing 1,000 contributors to the Dollar-A-Month Club, there were but 379. These 379 contributors contributed $431.25 per month.

It was a great disappointment that not more of our number contributed in this way. Especially so when we realize that there are so many whose income has been reduced very little because of the hard times, but who are drawing almost or quite their regular monthly or weekly salaries as formerly. It had been hoped that this class of earners might have contributed in larger numbers, and thus payments could have been made on the N. B. I. notes.

It was also brought out that every dollar paid off on the debts owed by the N. B. I. reduced the interest by that

(Continued on page 744)

Report of Secretary for 1921-1931

AS WE come to the close of another General Conference year it may be well for us to recall that we at the same time arrive at the close of the first decade of our organization effort. It was in August, 1921, that the people from several states, gathered at Waterloo, Iowa, perfected its organization after a year of preliminary study and labor, and began its active work.

The visions of those first days were very different from what the realization is today. After no little earnest and prayerful study and considerable inspection of different places which had been suggested as feasible places for the location of our headquarters, Oregon, Illinois, was finally selected as the place which, considering everything, was most promising for the location of our offices and work.

With faith in God and with the cooperation of a goodly majority of the membership of the Church of God, the up-building of the physical side of our plant began to take form in the gathering at Oregon in 1922. Soon after, with scarcely any money in sight, but with confidence in the integrity of our people and with faith in our Father, contracts were made for the purchase of our Golden Rule Home property, and later of our Golden Rule Greenhouse property, and of the various equipments necessary for both. Ten city lots had been conveyed to us as a contribution of the city of Oregon.

Thus with little property in hand, we launched out with an obligation of upwards of $25,000. Our Home was soon paid for. About $5,000 was paid upon the Greenhouse property. Later on a new section was built to the Greenhouse and a cold cellar, at an added expense of another $5,000, which was paid for in cash. Soon The Restitution Publishing Company approached the National Bible Institution with the suggestion that the National Bible Institution assume the responsibility of conducting The Restitution Publishing Company printing plant. Afterward The Restitution Publishing Company conveyed to the National Bible Institution its entire plant.

NEW WORK UNDERTAKEN

In the meantime under the repeated recommendation of our grower at the Greenhouse, the National Bible Institution undertook to expand its Greenhouse work and enter the mail order field. Investigation into this phase of the business and advice from a man who had for years been a successful operator in the mail order field of plants and seeds, revealed that to enter that line one must expect to have a large deficit on the first year and half as much deficit in the second year's operation with a possibility, provided that the business was carried on carefully, of operating the third year with little or no loss. Thereafter there should be a gain which should increase rapidly with the years until at the end of five or six years we should begin to show a net gain over the years.

On advice of the Conference the Board undertook this mail order work, conducting it for two years, realizing practically what had been revealed to us by our experienced advisor. All told the two years had netted a deficit around $6,000. At the end of the second year, both the Conference in session and the Executive Board advised discontinuance of the mail order business. For the financing of these operations the Board had increased our bank loans to $10,700. This in addition to the $12,000 first mortgage bonds on the Greenhouse property and farm.

While the discontinuance of the mail order operation at the end of two years seemed to be contrary to all good business judgment, yet it was probably very fortunate for us in that in the following two years most of the old established mail order concerns lost heavily owing to the peculiar market conditions in that line. Since then our bank loans have been reduced from $10,700 to $8,800.

OUR GOLDEN RULE HOME

Our Golden Rule Home, for the financial aid of which the Greenhouse was undertaken, has steadily prospered from the beginning. Though our membership in the Home has never been above eight at any one time, there have been others boarding in the Home so that at times the table has been regularly laid with sixteen to eighteen plates.

The operation of a Home for aged and alone ones is a work that returns much of satisfaction to those whose hearts are given in that direction. It is indeed pleasing to realize that certain ones are afforded much of comfort and of assistance, even though they are deprived of that blessing which practically all crave, namely, the blessing of having a private home conducted and operated according to the tastes of the individual. The Home has not only prospered, but it has been observed by numbers, including some of the Home, that the general health has been increased and that mental peace has dispelled that agonizing worry which so often accompanies those of older age as they realize their personal inability to properly look after the needs of a private home and of their own persons. All told twelve aged or alone ones have found shelter in our Home. Of these one withdrew; one had to be expelled; three have fallen asleep in death. In addition to twelve who have taken membership, there have been four or more who have realized largely of the benefits of the Home by boarding there for longer or shorter periods. Also there is one sister who is at the present time making application for membership.

COMFORT ASSURED

It is the unanimous observation and the judgment of all who have been in close touch with the Home that the expectancy of life is increased at once after the members become really adjusted to the experience of such home life. Thus in addition to providing a degree of comfort and care, the General Conference is also apparently affording length of days to the members of the Home.

When the Home was about to be opened, financial estimates were computed upon the basis of figures gathered from other like institutions, for a full house. Experience reveals that the estimated figures for operation were approximately correct for a membership equal to the capacity of the Home for accommodation. Inasmuch as the Home has never had its rooms completely filled with members it has accepted of boarding members and of other boarders. The board income has been of assistance in keeping the deficits down. With our present membership, the operation of the Home has annually cost us from nothing to as much as $500 or $600 in excess of the Home income.

All in all your Secretary feels that the results in the Golden Rule Home more than justify the undertaking and the continuance thereof.

PUBLISHING DEPARTMENT

Coming to the publishing part of our work, THE RESTITUTION HERALD has been changed in form which of necessity has added to the expense of each issue. It had been hoped that with the changed form and improvements thereon, the subscription list might increase even more than sufficiently to care for the increased expense. But the subscription list has remained about the same year after year. Soon after the National Bible Institution took over THE RESTITUTION HERALD there were two or more new papers put into the field by members of our church body. These additional publications necessarily make more difficult the extension of the subscription list of THE HERALD.

In addition to THE HERALD, the Truth Seekers' Quarterly was introduced and has been published regularly with each quarter. This too holds approximately its regular circulation. The hope for increase has not been realized. Certain books and tracts and various publications have been put out from time to time, mostly upon contract with the authors. Our publishing work stands at the open door of great opportunity. But before that opportunity can be entered upon and increased publishing accomplished in a proper way, there must of necessity be several pieces of machinery added to the plant. Printing machinery is expensive and therefore little has been done in the way of adding new equipment.

GREENHOUSE A LIABILITY

Our Greenhouse which we purchased in February, 1923, is perhaps our most difficult undertaking. There were three or four years in which we realized a small profit over operation. The rest of the years we have suffered a loss in operation, and in the last two or three years that loss has been more than we should allow to continue. In fact it still appears that the Greenhouse is so different in its character of work that it is hardly in keeping with our effort of religious undertaking.

BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

Perhaps one of the most satisfactory departments of the General Conference and National Bible Institution has been the department of Bible study conducted in the interests of those who wish to engage in Bible work. Most of those who have attended our Bible Training Class have had the ministry of the gospel in mind. Some have taken the work merely with a view to better fitting themselves for cooperating throughout life in Bible work in whatever community or communities their respective lots may be cast.

If there was nothing more of accomplishment than what we see even at this Conference, it would seem that our Bible Training Class has fully reimbursed the N. B. I. for its every cost. We have with us at this gathering no less than four or five persons who, going forth from the Bible Class, are making themselves largely felt in the pulpit work among our people. In fact, if present indications continue, it may not be long until some of these younger people will be carrying the responsibility not only in local fields, but in the General Conference activities. In addition to these we have with us a class of young people, some of whom have already given three years in study, others two years, and, if present indications continue, this class will present to the General Conference several bright, intelligent, spiritual, and competent workers.

It was probably too much to hope that all those who started with us, though enthusiastic in the promotion and organization of the N. B. I., should continue. It has been one of the sad experiences to have several such withdraw, some even at the beginning of the work. So far as reports indicate, it would seem that everyone who still encourages our forward march, heartily regrets that any should have withdrawn.

INCREASED SPIRITUALITY

But in spite of every handicap it seems certain that the spiritual welfare of the Church of God has greatly increased throughout this past decade.

(Here the Secretary referred, extemporaneously, to several phases of church work, in which he said:

"Personally, I have taken great joy in realizing the increased activity in pastoral work in some states. Several new pastorates have been established and maintained. They have added wonderfully to the strength of our church work throughout the field. There have been several new buildings erected, others remodeled, repaired, etc. Perhaps seven or eight have been improved. The General Conference may not have had anything to do with this directly, but with one or two exceptions, every such building committee has consulted our office before its work was undertaken. This office has had an interest in the effort of carrying on that work. It is a great encouragement to the work here.

"I also wish to mention the intensified work in Sunday School activity. It is a pleasure to attend some of the Sunday Schools and notice the spirit with which the work is carried on. I also think the Berean work has been strengthened because of the N. B. I. organization. The cooperation between the two is of vast strength."

The Secretary then referred to the conditions of the Kokomo and Grand Rapids churches, stressing their needs. He then continued with his written report.)

NO FINANCIAL MANAGER SECURED

Coming to a review of the year just passed, it is well for us to recall the program that was laid before us one year ago. A business depression was on; indeed it had been under way for more than a year. There was uncertainty as to the financial income for the year. The Board, which was approved in its judgment by the Conference, purposed to divide the work that had formerly been carried by the Executive Secretary by providing a manager to take charge of the business end of the labors so that the Secretary need have charge only of the religious activities. Effort was made to immediately get in touch with Brothers C. V. Doll of Dayton, Ohio, and A. Gilbey of Rochester, N. Y., to ascertain if one of them might be free to become business manager. In both instances their reply was in the negative. While the Secretary assured the Board that he would be unable to continue to carry the whole responsibility that he had formerly carried, yet it was left for him to do until he might secure a business manager. Not being able to locate a person for that position, he endeavored to apportion the work to different departmental workers in hopes that the work would not suffer in an effort thus to conserve expenses for the year.

OUR DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

In order that we might have something visible on which to estimate the financial income for the year, your Secretary, a year ago last Easter, endeavored to interest the brotherhood that each would, as far as they could see their way clear to so do, contribute at the rate of one dollar per month for the work. At last year's Conference this plan was approved, and the Treasurer endeavored to promote that plan with a view to securing 1,000 such agreements.

Had such been done it was the hope that the work could not only be carried on as heretofore, but also that we would be able gradually to pay off some of our unsecured loans, including the bank loans. Our Treasurer succeeded in raising the number of contributors, according to this plan, to 379, who together pledged to the extent of $431.25 per month. In addition to this other funds were contributed as individuals saw opportunity.

NEW MANAGEMENT AT THE HOME

Change of Superintendent and Matron has been made in the Golden Rule Home. Sister Jackson had informed the Secretary more than two years ago that she would welcome arrangements which would provide someone else to take her place at the Home. However, though she felt that her health was overtaxed with her responsibilities, yet she graciously consented to continue while lookout was constantly kept for someone else. Late last fall Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Johnson, who were Superintendent and Matron of the Brethren Home at Mount Morris, Illinois, interviewed your Secretary to ascertain if there was an opening for such workers here. The matter was carefully considered, and eventually arrangements were made for them to take charge of our Golden Rule Home. They were about to move the first week of January, but a couple of days before the date set for moving Mr. Johnson suffered a broken ankle which laid him up for several weeks. It was not till March that they were able to take up the work for us.

While in many ways we greatly regretted to lose the services of Sister Jackson, yet it was evident to those who were watching most closely that the responsibility was an overstrain upon her. We feel that Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are doing excellent service for our Home. To date we are more than pleased with their services.

Last year's Conference directed that investigation should be made with reference to installing a passenger elevator between the first and second floors of the Home. That matter was taken up. The Otis Elevator Company had their representative here and carefully went over the property. He recommended that the most economical and satisfactory way to install an elevator would be to build an addition to the middle of the west side of the Home sufficiently large to accommodate such an elevator. In addition to whatever such new construction would cost, the Otis Elevator Company gave us a figure for the installation of the elevator itself of $2,475. This in addition to making the necessary building alterations would cost at least $3,500. We submit this for the consideration of the present Conference.

So far as your Secretary knows the members of the Home, with one or two exceptions, are grateful for and appreciative of the comforts and conveniences that are afforded them.

LOSSES AT GREENHOUSE

Our Greenhouse proposition is the one which is most difficult to handle. For the last three or four years we have been unable to avoid an annual loss in operation. The apparent loss of a year ago was not so much as it appeared to be, for there was considerable done by way of improving the plant which on the books went into expense of operation. Some such improvements have been made during the past year. However, the deficit during the past Conference year has been altogether too much to be passed over without notice. The deficit for the year 1930 was $2,552.97; and the deficit of adjustments for the last four years or more was $1,012.96, making a total of $3565.93. And the operation for the first six months of 1931, which six months ordinarily should certainly show two or more thousand dollars of gain, showed but $628.27 gain. However, owing to business depression a larger portion of sales were charged than was the case in former years.

OUR MOST SATISFACTORY DEPARTMENT

As in the report for the decade past, so in the report for the year past, we turn to the Bible Training Class as perhaps the most outstanding and satisfactory work that has been conducted, including also the reports that come to us from afield. The members of our Bible Training Class are putting forth a larger effort than have those of any previous class. Some are putting in four years of study. All are trying to put in three years of study. The result to them is evident, and we are hoping that in another year when several of these members hope to be open for actual work, that they will be workers not to be ashamed of.

Throughout our church field we feel that in spite of the general business depression, which also of necessity makes more difficult the financing of church labor, there has been a certain advance. While some of our churches are at their wits' end to know how to continue the financial load, yet the spiritual results of their labors are most encouraging. In some instances the business depression is not apparently affecting injuriously the local labors. In some instances it seems as though the churches are prospering regardless of worldly conditions. All in all there seems to be a deeper and larger spiritual development in the work. Our Kokomo, Indiana, brethren surely need a new church building, and Grand Rapids, Michigan, greatly needs enlargement.

Financial reports follow:

(For full December 31st report, including real estate and inventories, see HERALD of March 24, Page 390.)

N. B. I. OFFICE

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
Income:
N. B. I. Contributions	$2853.53		$2799.94
Office Earnings	570.61		17.00
Interest Earned	171.00		173.47
Misc. Income	10.36
Salaries	$2148.25		$1690.10
Overhead:
Supplies	6.90		27.56
Light, Heat & Water	52.18		15.90
Phone & Telegraph			30.49
Misc. Expense	187.95		77.47
Taxes	140.18		42.22
Interest Paid	527.86		524.93
Insurance			1.00
	$3063.32	$3605.50	$2409.67	$2990.41
Gain		$542.18		$580.74

PRINT SHOP

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
Sales	$3769.57		$2704.74
Sale of Equipment			100.52
Purchases	$605.98		$477.66
Salaries	1503.95		1449.72
Overhead:
Lt., ht., wat., & Power	156.25		152.97
Misc. Exp.	195.05		142.04
Repairs	6.18		19.89
Taxes	51.60		48.00
Equipment	29.81		34.53
Phone and Teleg.				.71
Bad Debts			6.00
Insurance			42.70
	$2548.82	$3769.57	$2374.22	$2805.26
Gain		$1220.75		$431.04

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
Cost to Print	$1812.86		$1788.73
Received from Subscriptions	1287.50		1008.96
Loss	$525.36		$779.77

BOOKS AND PUBLISHING

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
Sales	$839.11		$621.74
Purchases	578.18		525.54
Gain	$260.93		$96.20

GOLDEN RULE GREENHOUSE

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
Sales	$8663.63		$8301.50
Bad Debts Received			23.65
Purchases	$2141.50		$2017.36
Salaries	4294.53		3585.28
Overhead:
Supplies	307.36		103.55
Fert. & Insect.	20.78		95.10
Light, Heat & Water	766.05		623.76
Repair	135.37		19.62
Phone & Telegraph			128.22
Equipment			76.73
Interest	400.90		392.49
Insurance	70.47		27.20
Delivery Exp.	38.77		165.94
Taxes			63.24
Misc. Exp.	428.25		397.99
	$8603.98	$8663.63	$7696.48	$8325.15
Gain		$59.65		$628.67

GOLDEN RULE HOME

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
Income
Received from Board	$878.44		$303.50
Misc. Income			61.25
Maint. from Home Members	437.50		525.00
Salaries	$745.85		$569.04
Overhead:
Table	435.11		366.60
Light, Heat & Water	365.71		252.29
Repair	72.51		89.02
Insurance			95.32
Taxes			16.95
Misc. Exp.	122.73		252.35
Phone and Teleg.			12.70
	$1741.91	$1315.94	$1654.27	$889.75
Loss	$425.97		$764.52

SUMMARY REPORT

	Jan. 1 - June 30, '30		Jan. 1 - June 30, '31
	Losses	Gains	Losses	Gains
Greenhouse	$ 59.65		$628.67
Print Shop	1220.75		431.04
N. B. I. Office	542.18		580.74
Books & Publishing	260.93		96.20
Restitution Herald	$525.36		$779.77
Golden Rule Home	425.97		764.52
	$951.33	$2083.51	$1544.29	$1736.65
Total Gain		$1132.18		$ 192.36

GENERAL CONFERENCE REPORT

(Continued from page 738)

much and thus reduced the annual overhead cost of operation. All were anxious to reduce indebtedness as rapidly as possible.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 12TH

On Wednesday morning at 8:30 a business session was convened for the purpose of listening to the report of the Nominating Committee, with a view to electing the officers at the earliest possible time, that the officers might in turn begin the study of the business and make program for the coming year. A. G. Townsend of Grand Rapids was chairman of this Committee.

In its report it suggested the nomination of L. E. Conner for President; Leland Hanson, First Vice President; Jos. H. Williams, Second Vice President; F. L. Austin, Secretary; T. J. Ellis, Treasurer.

F. L. Austin after explaining that while he had the interest of the N. B. I. at heart and that he would continue to further its activity to the best of his ability, yet he felt that he was unable to carry the load of responsibility as he had been doing in the past. While he had so informed the Conference a year ago, yet he had been left with the whole load. In order to assure himself that he would not be thus left with the entire load again, he withdrew his name from nomination.

The report was referred back to the Nominating Committee for them to give reconsideration and make further report.

Space forbids to give report of many of the interesting features that were discussed from time to time upon the floor of the Conference. Reports of several of the churches throughout the country brought out many interesting facts.

It seemed to be the common opinion that the work was advancing both spiritually and materially.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 12TH, 3 P. M.

Meeting being called to order, the Nominating Committee was again called upon for report. This second report was as follows: President, L. E. Conner; First Vice President, Leland Hanson; Second Vice President, Jos. H. Williams; Secretary, G. E. Marsh; Treasurer, T. J. Ellis.

The report of Nominating Committee did not debar other nominations. Other names were placed in nomination for every office.

ELECTION

Of the 1351 delegate votes cast for President, L. E. Conner received 1348. On motion the election was made unanimous.

1358 1-2 votes were cast for First Vice President, of which 1044 were cast for Leland Hanson. By motion his election was made unanimous.

For Second Vice President 1359 1-2 votes were cast, of which 1017 were for Jos. H. Williams.

1284 1-2 votes were cast for Secretary, of which G. E. Marsh received 1283 1-2.

For Treasurer 1356 1-2 votes were cast, of which T. J. Ellis received 992 1-2.

All elections were made unanimous.

The Executive Board for the ensuing year stands as follows: President, L. E. Conner; First Vice President, Leland Hanson; Second Vice President, Jos. H. Williams; Secretary, G. E. Marsh; Treasurer, T. J. Ellis.

DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

After election of the new Board, consideration of finances for the ensuing year was taken up. Immediately all were unanimous in pressing the Dollar-A-Month Club for another year. Practically all, if not all of those in attendance subscribed to this club. The President elect appointed chairmen in the various churches and districts throughout the United States with request that they should present this feature in their respective localities and push the Dollar-A-Month Club to the largest possible subscription.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 13TH

At this session the study of forms for different purposes was pursued. A standing committee on forms which had been appointed some two years ago, gave report.

The first form presented was that of church letters for the transfer of membership from one church to another. A form was adopted by the General Conference with recommendation that each of the several conferences and each of the local churches should adopt its use. In this way it is hoped that record of the various church members may be kept continuous. With the fast and loose methods of the present time little or no record is kept of those who move. Many become lost to the work and—sad to say—some lose interest in Christian service. By use of the Form adopted, it is hoped to correct some of the regrettable results of the present lax ways.

Recommendation was made that each and every church body should endeavor to keep track of all its members, no matter to what place they move, till same may have become members in another locality.

Another Form was received and adopted by the General Conference which pertained to certificates to the ministers of the various state conferences. The General Conference recommended that the state conferences use this as a uniform certificate.

CHRISTIAN METHODS

Because of overcrowding of the Adult Bible Class this year, a division was found necessary, and a new class was organized, which in the forenoon was under the direction of Bro. M. W. Lyon, in the afternoon of Bro. H. A. Sheets. This class took up a study of church and Christian methods. The idea was to exchange thoughts on successful means and methods that had been employed by different ones in the conduct of different lines of church work. Numerous were the questions that were brought up and considered.

The result of this work was brought out on the floor of the General Conference. A committee was appointed to the end that at next conference, a year hence, an exhibit of Materials and Method Forms might be on display; these materials to be provided by different ones throughout the country who, during the year, would find certain things valuable in their respective lines of work. The President elect appointed the following committee to gather working Materials and Methods to be exhibited at next year's conference: Chairman, Mrs. F. L. Austin, 5439 Ohio St., Chicago; Mrs. Harold Starbuck, 420 S. Third St., Rockford, Ill.; Mrs. W. J. Halls, 742 E. 126th St., Sta. H, Cleveland, Ohio.

On motion of Sr. Hanson of Grand Rapids, Mich., a card was ordered printed stating the essential truths of the Gospel as comprehended by the Church of God. On one side of the card space is to be reserved where each church using the card may print its standing announcement of services. Thus the card may not only announce the regular or special services of any congregation, but also the recognized essential truths as held by the Church of God. These cards are to be on sale to the several churches or whoever may wish them. The committee which the President appointed to handle this phase of the work is Mrs. G. E. Marsh, Chairman; Mrs. Rhoda Hanson, Grand Rapids, and Miss Louise Brewer, Dayton, Ohio.

WORK ASSIGNED FOR THE ENSUING YEAR

The newly elected Executive Board at this time announced their working arrangement for the coming year. The President, L. E. Conner, has been employed as Business Manager, to devote but part time to this work. His remuneration is likewise computed upon part time service.

Bro. G. E. Marsh has been engaged to take charge of the editorial work and the Bible Training Class. Inasmuch as the local Oregon church has been engaging its pastor in mutual understanding with the N. B. I. and in order that the Oregon church might continue to so cooperate with the National Bible Institution Bro. F. L. Austin tendered his resignation to the local church as pastor. After accepting said resignation, the local church engaged Bro. G. E. Marsh as pastor. Thus Bro. G. E. Marsh, now of Los Angeles, California, is booked to carry on the religious activities of the N. B. I. for the ensuing year and to become pastor of the Oregon church.

TRAINING CLASS

In accordance with this arrangement, it was announced that the Bible Training Class will open this year on Monday, October 5th, with Bro. F. L. Austin as teacher during the month of October, giving Bro. Marsh until November 1st to move and settle in Oregon. As formerly, Sr. Mary Gesin will be assistant teacher of the class.

Encouraged by the progress made in past years through the Bible Training Class, the Conference is anxious that as many young people as are fixed for the work and as can conveniently apply themselves thereto, will improve this another opportunity and will enroll in the Bible Training Class for 1931 - 32.

COMMENDATION

Sr. Mary Gesin then presented the following resolution: I move that the Conference assembled extend to Bro. Austin its heartfelt gratitude for the long years of faithful devotion to the cause of the National Bible Institution which have been rendered by him. Not every one realizes the extent of the effort which he has expended in filling the office of Executive Secretary. He has literally given ten years of his life to this work, devoting every energy to building it up. What we are today, what our churches are, what our Training Class and its products are, is all due largely to his effort. Untiring in his labor and unselfish devotion to the cause of the National Bible Institution, he has literally worn himself out for us. Our appreciation cannot be expressed to him in mere words, for we owe him a debt of gratitude that we can never repay. After an absence for rest and recuperation, we trust Bro. Austin will return to us to serve in other capacities for which his acknowledged abilities fit him. Motion was heartily seconded by M. W. Lyon. A standing vote of thanks was then given Bro. Austin.

Bro. Marsh also heartily endorsed the vote of thanks those assembled in General Conference tendered to Bro. Austin for services which he had rendered in the past. In reply to this the outgoing Secretary assured the Conference in session that he would give every known assistance that was in his power to those who are taking up the work and to the N. B. I. as a whole. He expressed his hearty thanks to one and all who had so continuously cooperated with him in carrying forth the effort that had been assigned to him.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

Beginning with August 5th, there had been a ministerial meeting each day.

At this time Bro. M. W. Lyon of Cleveland reported to the Conference that the ministers in session had recommended that there be a ministerial conference next year to be held for a full week, either just before or just after the General Conference, but to be separate therefrom. The object was that the ministers might come to be more closely associated in their activities.

The results of the ministerial meetings for an hour, more or less, per day during part time of the Conference in past years, revealed to one and all the great advantage of having as many ministers as possible assemble and discuss, not only biblical questions, but also church questions and problems. In fact, it seemed as though more could be done through ministerial association by way of unifying the labors of the church than in some other ways.

ATTENDING DELEGATES

The matter of attending delegates was discussed. Not only was it realized by the ministers, but also by others present that attending the General Conference is not taking a vacation. To many the time of the General Conference is the busiest time of the year. The Floor of the Conference complimented those churches which sent their pastors and their workers to the General Conference, continuing their home salaries during the time and paying their expenses thereat.

The General Conference is but a gathering together of all the churches and the conferences throughout the country. It is not a body that has means with which to pay delegates or to pay workers. Rather it is a central meeting place for the workers throughout the country, to gather together to the end that they may exchange thoughts, may assist each other in preparing more thoroughly for the work at home, and may encourage one another in the great cause of gospel effort.

GOLDEN RULE GREENHOUSE

The President elect then explained that the Greenhouse had been a losing proposition, that something must necessarily be done in order to correct this condition. After considerable talk, a motion was unanimously carried conferring to the Board elect authority to handle the Greenhouse problem in any way whatsoever that may seem best according to the judgment of the Board.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 14TH

In view of its being almost impossible to collect accounts owing during the depression period, which condition prevails in every line of business, and in view of the fact that our accounts payable amounting to approximately $3500, in addition to some $1400 or $1500 on salaries which has been back for two years, Sr. Leota Hanson of St. Louis inquired on the floor as to what the intention of the incoming Board might be relative to handling these matters.

Bro. Conner explained that the Board elect had come to the conclusion that it was best to endeavor to make loans of our people at six percent interest sufficiently to pay these accounts payable, and thus not only relieve the strain that is continuously upon the mind of the one who has these responsibilities in charge, but also assist our creditors. It was revealed that the indebtedness of the institution would not be thus increased one cent and that we would gain much by way of credit standing with the business houses with which we were doing business. Almost immediately different amounts were offered to the Board to a total of $1000. Other amounts were tentatively offered, to be reported on as soon as the parties should return to their respective homes.

The fact was brought out that many of our brethren throughout the country, having invested in bonds and mortgages and stocks have lost heavily in their investments. So far not one penny invested in the N. B. I. has been lost to the investor. Every loan has been paid in full; interest has always been paid promptly, and so far as the Secretary has known under his own regime, the bank account has never been in red for even one day.

It was brought out on the floor by different ones that loans made to the N. B. I. had been better for the people than the loans or investments that have been made in some other places. The incoming Board asks loans of the brethren to cover these accounts now due.

It should again be mentioned that if one and all of our brethren throughout the country who still are receiving practically their full revenue, week by week and month by month, would subscribe to the Dollar-A-Month Club, as well as all others who are able to do so, it would not be long until the indebtedness of the N. B. I. would be cleared away and our properties would stand to our own credit without any encumbrance whatsoever.

It was by faith in our Father and faith in our brotherhood that this financial undertaking was started some ten years ago. Already we have advanced financially perhaps far beyond what had been anticipated at that time.

Our present financial depression throughout the country is very keenly felt by many. On the other hand there are those who are still favored with God's blessings and who could undoubtedly assist in some regular and easy way to the betterment and advancement of the work as a whole. It is hoped that one and all will contribute in the future even more than has been contributed in the past.

After the reading of all unread minutes of the session, the 1931 meeting of the General Conference of the Church of God was adjourned.

F. L. Austin, Secretary.

G. E. Marsh, President.

AN AWAKENING

(Continued from Editorial Page)

Word has for ages carried the information that all these things were bound to result from man's manipulation of human affairs. It has told us of the increase of crime upon the rich, of the confusion that was to come into the heart of humanity. It has told us of disintegration of human government that was certain to follow, of the effort of federation of such governments and of the final collapse of all.

God's Word has not stopped there. It has gone on to reveal to us that when man shall have sufficiently awakened to the realization of his own inability, that God Himself would set up and establish a kingdom that will never be destroyed, one that will never "be left to other people". God's Word has told us of the prosperity that shall result under this new government, of the righteousness that shall eventually prevail, of the breaking down of crime and wrong, of the establishment of the just.

Scanning the world and envisioning some of its turmoil, listening to the echoes thereof as those echoes come reverberating across the hills, and then scanning by itself the Word of God and the unfolding development thereof, one can but ask the question,

Which shall I believe?

These words of inspiration again echo upon the air—
"Choose you this day whom ye will serve."

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"IT IS REQUIRED IN STEWARDS, THAT A MAN BE FOUND FAITHFUL."—1 CORINTHIANS 4:2.

WHAT THE NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY MEANS TO US

THE sermon for National Berean day at the General Conference at Oregon, on the evening of August 10, was given by Bro. G. E. Marsh, past president of the N. B. I. and now its secretary. He said in part: "The National Berean Society pays the largest dividends of any department of the National Bible Institution. This society has presented the church with the most thorough organization it has ever known. Its members throughout America have set us an example of orderly method in all their work. Their systematic Bible lessons are the most complete and satisfactory faith-wise that we have known. Its members are the freest of criticism, the most united in love and fellowship, in zeal unexcelled, in faithfulness never lacking, in aim, one."

Referring to the outlines of lessons published by the Bereans, Bro. Marsh mentioned the harmony of the primary teachings of God's Word, as portrayed in their outlines, and said that he could come to no other conclusion than that they are God's truths. "Mountain peaks of God's Word," he called them, "those by which men are saved, if believed. Anyone who is familiar with the truths which God has given us will be interested in this organization of our young people, from Niagara Falls and Canada to Los Angeles, from Texas to Minnesota, all studying the same lessons."

The speaker continued, "The central aim of this society of young people is to develop leadership in the church, to encourage freedom of expression, to bring together a statement of belief and to build up unity. Our future Sunday School workers, our future elders, deacons, and conference workers will be drawn from the ranks of the Bereans. We need their energy, their youthful outlook, their fresh enthusiasm, not to direct our work but to assist us older ones. We need them now, while we can watch them develop."

Bro. Marsh urged representatives of churches present from all over the country to invite the Bereans of their localities into their church councils, to learn their purposes and aims. "Not that we should be led by youthful minds," he counseled, "but that we should give them opportunity to grow and develop. For we are living in dangerous times. We have young people who are true to God, who believe that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation, who have resisted atheism, and they deserve a place of honor in our midst. People of the Church of God, if the business man recognizes the right of youth to the best places in the industrial affairs of the world, ought not we encourage them to take up important places in the greatest work of all time?"

The speaker concluded with an exhortation to the young people of the Church of God to accept the invitation of the older members to assist, and counsel, and advise, for he said, "If we invite you, you have a duty to perform; we want you in our midst, to deliver the gospel, to comfort the aged, to aid us with your clear-sighted vision. The Church of God cannot succeed without you. Put your shoulders to the wheel. Bring your offering and present it to the Lord for His glory and honor."

ANOTHER Berean conference has just come to a close. Will the next year be one of increased activity or a year of lethargy?

Our task becomes increasingly difficult as we face the people of today, with their attitude of indifference to Christianity. Paul warned Timothy of the coming of this condition. In 2 Timothy 2:2-4, we find him speaking of a time in which people will not tolerate sound teaching but will turn away their ears from the truth to believe in myths, choosing for themselves teachers in accord with their own desires.

If we are faithful, at the end of another year when we come together again, we will be able to return with interest to the Master those talents which He has entrusted to our keeping.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Illinois, 25; Ohio, 20; California, 10; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 7; Louisiana, 4; Iowa, 4; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

“Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.”

MISSIONARY EXPERIENCES

LONG ago the Greeks did not worship the real God; but worshiped a whole family of gods, whom they believed lived way up on a high mountain. The greatest of these was Jupiter; his messenger god was Mercury; the god of war was Mars. You see, the Greeks could not understand how many things in the world came to be, and so they made up stories to explain the unknown. And as anything that is told over and over for truth, finally comes to seem like the truth—so these myths came to be believed by the Greeks.

Now, one day two strangers came to Lystra, and healed a man who had never walked. When the people saw him leaping and walking, as though he wanted to make up for lost time, they cried out, “The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.”

Of course, you know they were wrong; but do you know who the strangers were? Paul and Barnabas. They had healed the man when they saw what faith he had to be healed.

However, the Greeks could not understand even as well as you do, so they said Barnabas must be Jupiter, because he was older and larger than Paul; and Paul must be Mercury, because he was the chief speaker. They even did so much as to have the priest of Jupiter bring oxen and garlands of flowers to make a great sacrifice to Paul and Barnabas.

Do you suppose these two apostles would allow such a heathen practice to proceed? No, indeed! They felt it greater honor to carry the message of Jesus than to be worshiped as gods. They were greatly shocked, and ran in among the people, tearing their clothes and crying out, “Why do ye these things? We are men like you, only we want to tell you about the true, living God, who made everything and has given you all things.” Nevertheless, this protest scarcely convinced the Greeks; for Paul and Barnabas found it difficult to quiet the people and keep them from making the sacrifice.

Well, by this time the Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who had plotted to stone Paul, came to Lystra, and turned the people of Lystra against Paul. And, think of it! Instead of worshiping Paul as they first tried to do, they stoned him until they thought he was dead; and then threw him out of the city. But as the disciples stood around

Paul, he rose up, and came back into the city.

The next day Paul and Barnabas went to Derbe—twenty miles farther east.

ARE WE making for ourselves some other kind of god, and worshipping it?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Find the places mentioned on your map.
2. Read some of the Greek myths.
3. Read First Kings 19:9-18.
4. Learn Matthew 5:10.

WE BELIEVE in a day of judgment, “Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained: whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.” Acts 17:31.

WHAT WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

“If you could choose what you want most of all, what would it be?” asked Father one day.

“A big dog and a bicycle, and—”

“Wait, Mark,” said Father, “choose just one thing.”

Mark thought for a while; then he said, “I would choose a dog.”

But Martha said, “I would choose a big talking doll.”

“Once upon a time,” said Father, “there lived a king. His name was Solomon. One day when he was praying to God he said, ‘O God, most of all I need wisdom. I am king of these people, and I want to be a good king. Please give me wisdom.’

“Now that prayer pleased God, and He said, ‘Yes, I will give you wisdom, and other things, too. I will give you riches, and honor besides. And there will be no one as wise as you.’

“And it was so. Solomon was very rich. And he was very wise—the wisest of all. He was honored by every one because of his wisdom.”

“Would God help us to be wise, too?” asked Martha.

“Yes,” said Father, “if you will ask Him.”—Selected.

“MANY have fallen by the edge of the sword, but not so many as have fallen by the tongue.”

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 10. — September 6, 1931

TURNING TO THE GENTILES

Acts 13:13-52; Romans 1:14-16; 11:1-24

Devotional Reading: Psalm 72:6-13

GOLDEN TEXT

I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.—Acts 13:47.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. A Light Unto the Gentiles.

Outline. I. Christ, the Prophesied Light. II. Christ in the Gospel. III. A Light to All Mankind.

I. Christ, the Prophesied Light. As God created His shekinah glory to lighten Israel in her hours of physical darkness and to illuminate her way through the desert and in the promised land, so did He prophesy in Isa. 42:6; 49:6, and elsewhere, that He would rear up a "servant" to be a light spiritually, to illuminate the path of the faithful through the centuries of the wilderness of sin on into the realization of the promises of everlasting life. That the prophesied Light of Isaiah, David, and others, is Christ is confirmed by the inspired word of Luke 2:30-32, where Simeon declares as directed by the holy spirit that He is that Light. As though to contrast Christ with all of the fading lights of the past, John, in Chapter 1, speaks of Him, v. 9, as "the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." He is thus spoken of because, v. 4, the life which was in Him "was the light of men".

II. Christ in the Gospel. The Gospel is the words and works of Jesus, spun round about Him like a great glass dome, through which the light of the Savior radiates to men. Looking into and through the gospel one sees its Heart, its Light—Christ.

To preach Christ is to preach Christ's gospel. To preach Christ's gospel is to hold Christ up before men.

Paul proclaimed the gospel of Jesus Christ to Gentiles. In so doing he revealed Christ in the glory of His radiant power and promise.

III. A Light to All Mankind. God revealed first to the Jews the illumination radiating from His Son. They, His chosen people, Ex. 19:5, 6, were first shown the way of eternal life, the way not yet revealed under Moses and the prophets. But they repudiated that Light. In so doing they repudiated God, the Giver of that Light. Therefore, as God made His shekinah light blinding to Egypt, so Jesus, whose mission was to be the true Light, became a blinding power to the Jews. He who was to be the Headstone of the corner became a stumbling-stone to them. Rom. 9:32, 33; 1 Peter 2:8; Isa. 8:14.

The Jews closed their eyes to this Light made manifest by God, and God sent Him in the proclamation of the gospel to those who were formerly without hope and without God. It was in this regard that Christ commissioned His apostles, Matt. 28:19; Mark 16:15, to "go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned."

Like a soldier carrying the colors of his country ahead of the battle line, so Paul was carrying the gospel, the flag of his Master, unto all the people, beseeching them to accept of Him from whom the gospel was sent and affiliate themselves with Him, that they might become His joint-heirs, Rom. 8:16, 17, in all things from God.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Turning to Gentiles: There was a reason, yes, several. Christ came unto His own, but His own received Him not. John 1:11. He tried to gather them, as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings. They would not come. Matt. 23:37. Their outward worship was not prompted by inward desires. It was mere formality, without any heart in it. They drew nigh Him with their lips, but their heart was far from Him. Isa. 29:13, 14. They knew God, and the Word says, "They glorified (Him) not as God". Rom. 1:21. God is desirous of the worship and service of His creation, but He wants whole-hearted, true-hearted service. They rejected the chief Corner Stone—even Christ. Their rejection of the Head of the house caused Him to turn to the Gentiles. Their unbelief in Him brought about their cutting off. He is exacting in the kind of service which we render today. It must be of the type which James terms "pure religion". James 1:27. There is a possibility of our being cut off, as well as they.

Fruit-Bearers: "Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Matt. 21:43. Christ wants fruit producers. The trees that are barren must be taken out of the way. They are hewn down and cast into the fire. Matt. 7:16-20. These trees represent people. The fruit which is pleasing to the Father and Son is mentioned in Galatians 5:22, 23. It is called the "fruit of the Spirit". If our fruit bearing tree is diseased, it is better to have it pruned of the diseased member, in order that the rest of the tree may be made productive, rather than have the whole tree destroyed. Matt. 5:29, 30.

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"I have set thee to be a light to the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth."—Acts 13:47.

In Isaiah 49:6 we find these words, "I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be for salvation unto the end of the earth." This evidently was spoken of Christ, for Simeon said in Luke 2:32 of the Christchild, that He was "a light to lighten the Gentiles".

This work was given to Paul as the Lord said of him to Ananias, when he sent him to Paul after the vision, "He is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles." Paul himself said, "I am appointed a preacher, and an apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles."—2 Tim. 1:11. So he did not take the work on himself, but was appointed to it.

On Paul's first missionary journey, when the Jews spoke against the things that Paul was preaching, he told them plainly, "Lo, we turn to the Gentiles." From that time on he went, as it were, to the ends of the earth with the gospel of Christ to the Gentiles, and so fulfilled his mission.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Opening a New Field

"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" is a command given as much for us today as for those who heard His voice. Jesus gave the command, and we must heed it if we would have life. We must open new fields for the gospel. That field may be in a foreign country, in another state, or merely the heart of the one nearest to us. Wherever the field of labor there must be tact, understanding, and love exercised by the one doing the work. The success or failure of the enterprise will largely depend upon the initial appearance, the first words, the earliest acts.

The brethren made an appointment for Paul at Athens. He was stirred when he saw the city full of idols. He started reasoning with the Jews and other sincere people. The Athenians were jealous of their religion and would not tolerate new faiths. Socrates was killed because he taught a new idea. Paul was soon taken as a prisoner to the Areopagus, the supreme court of Athens, and there charged with being a babbler and a proclaimer of strange gods (demons). "Babbler" here means literally a "seed-picker", a name given to crows and other birds, also applied to a person who picks up scraps of knowledge, which he imparts to others without sense or purpose, and upon any and every occasion.

Here was an opportunity for Paul, but he didn't spoil it by saying, "Now you people have been acting the part of fools by worshipping idols". Neither did he say, "If you had an ounce of common sense you wouldn't be fooled so easily". Paul paid them a compliment instead, by saying, "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious (more religiously disposed than others—C. B.; extremely devoted—Diag.)" Then he told them of "The Unknown God" whom they worshipped. He helped prove his statement by quoting from their own poets. By his tact (practical application of the golden rule), Athens was opened to the gospel, and his own life was safeguarded.—H. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

August 16 was Mother's Day with our Sunday School, and Sr. Ada Simpson was in charge of the special feature. Sr. Siple gave an original composition on "Mother", and Bro. VanPortfleet read a touching poem. Miss Martha Townsend gave a recitation.

The church was glad to greet back home the workers who had been gone to General Conference.

The pastor and family enjoyed the unusual pleasure of having his mother, Mrs. A. M. Siple, and sister, Miss Ella M. Siple, of Hammond, Louisiana, visit in their home from August 13 to 16. They remained for the morning church services, and then were driven to Chicago to catch their evening train for home.

All are looking forward to the Sunday School picnic for August 29.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

In reporting the baptisms at General Conference, an error occurred in the name of Sr. Robins. It should have read, Mrs. Leonard Robins of Griggsville, Illinois.

Sr. Verna Thayer, of Rockford, Illinois, accompanied Bro. and Sr. S. H. Boyer of Pelton, Virginia, on their return home from General Conference. Sr. Thayer is teaching the little tots at the Virginia Bible School, and we know both teacher and kiddies are enjoying it.

Bro. and Sr. Leland Hanson of Franklin Grove, Illinois, last week enjoyed a vacation with Bro. Hanson's folks at Lebanon, Illinois.

Bro. and Sr. F. L. Austin, Sr. Leila E. Whitehead, and Sr. Elizabeth Ordnung will spend two or three days at the Iowa Conference. Bro. Austin will be back for his usual services at Oregon on the 30th.

Sr. Mae Mick, of Warsaw, Indiana, is a visitor at Golden Rule Home. She motored this far with Sr. Leona Marsh, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, who is enjoying a vacation with home folks at Ames, Iowa, and at the Conference at Waterloo.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS CHURCH PICNIC

The picnic as planned will be held in the grove opposite Devil's Backbone on Route No. 2 about one mile south of Oregon on Labor Day, September 7. It has been thought best to move the supper hour to 5 o'clock so that those from a distance can get started home a little earlier.

Bring a basket lunch with enough dishes for yourself.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE AND BIBLE SCHOOL

Another Conference is now a matter of history, and the record written is that it was the best meeting ever held from the standpoint of attendance and unity. The attendance was the largest to date on record—420 in all being registered. The Conference and Bible School were held in conjunction with General Conference. Bible School opened on the morning of August 4, with 66 in attendance at the five classes. The number in attendance of junior adults was so large that a new class

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."
—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Mora, Minnesota
Sr. H. L. Luper,	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley,	Rt. 1, Bx. 25
	Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely,	710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen,	daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington,	Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkhitte,	Brantford, Ont.
Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher,	Deerfield, Fla.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn	Culver, Ind.

was organized on Thursday, August 6, called the Workers Class. The largest attendance recorded at Bible Classes was 156 on August 12. Following are the teachers of the several classes: senior adult, L. E. Conner, C. A. Smead; junior adult, M. W. Lyon, H. A. Sheets; senior young people, F. L. Austin, C. E. Lapp; junior young people, G. E. Marsh, Grover Gordon, J. R. LeCrone (substitute); intermediate, Earl Thayer; primary, Verna Thayer. Bro. A. G. Townsend of Grand Rapids, Michigan, acted as Superintendent throughout the school and organized the classes in a most efficient manner. The topics studied in the several classes were especially timely and appropriate for these latter days in which we live, and many in attendance expressed themselves as greatly benefited by their study.

The business session of the Conference was held on August 14 at 3:15 p.m., President, Paul C. Johnson in chair. The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were read and approved. Bro. C. E. Lapp, the worker in the state from January 1 to August 15, 1931, gave a report of his services. Motion was made by L. E. Conner and Leland Hanson that this report be accepted and placed on file. Carried.

Then followed the reports of the churches. Those reporting by blank are: Casey, Dixon, Eldorado, Oregon, Ripley, Salem, Rockford. Brothers Conner and Thayer enlarged on the reports given for Dixon and Rockford, reporting the work as most encouraging at these points. Sr. Whitehead reported verbally for Chicago, stating that they have had preaching services once a month to June 1st and Sunday School twice a month from September 1930 to January 1, 1931 when it was discontinued because of sickness. Sr. Whitehead stated that the distance apart, member from member, and indifference on the part of many, were the causes of irregular services in Chicago. They also have to contend with the hindrances to spirituality found in every large city. Bro. Marsh then spoke, commending the people of his congregation in Los Angeles for their devotion in spite of these conditions. Conditions at Plum River and Eldorado were discussed and the need of work at these places was stressed, especially at Eldorado.

The following amendments to the Constitution were then proposed: Article 3, Section 3, "The terms of office shall regularly begin at the close of the session at which officers are elected, said terms to continue for one year, or until successors are duly elected and qualified, excepting that the four extra Board members shall be elected for a term of two years." Article 4, Section 2, "Two Board members shall be elected each year, at the annual meeting. They shall be elected by ballot, nominations having been made from the floor, and the two receiving the highest number of votes at first ballott shall be declared elected." It was ruled by the chair that this year, of the four elected, the two receiving the highest number of votes shall be the ones to hold office two years. The purpose of these amendments is to assure that at all times there would be two members of the Board familiar with the work of the previous year. It was moved by Sr. Whitehead and Bro. Leland Hanson that these amendments be accepted. Carried.

Election of officers then followed, which resulted as follows: President, Paul C. Johnson; Vice President, Esta L. Starbuck; Treasurer, Anna E. Drow; Secretary, Mary A. Gesin. The election of Board members resulted as follows: Leota Hanson, Glenn Birkey, Leila Whitehead and Zenas Murphy, the first two named being the two year members.

Sr. Whitehead moved that ministerial certificates be presented to Bro. Earl Thayer, pastor of the Rockford church, and student ministerial privileges to Bro. C. E. Lapp, Illinois evangelist. Bro. Austin arose to privileged question and moved in advance of Sr. Whitehead's motion that this Conference accept the forms for ministerial certificates recommended by the General Conference. This was seconded by Bro. Conner, and carried. Bro. Austin then spoke on Sr. Whitehead's motion, and it was carried. It was moved by Brothers Austin and Conner that student ministerial privileges be granted Bro. C. A. Smead, being regularly employed at Burr Oak, Indiana. Carried. Bro. Smead expressed his thanks to the Conference for the vote of confidence thus extended to him. Bro. Marsh suggested that the Illinois Conference recommend to the home conferences of the other students of the class, their names as worthy of recognition as soon as they engage in public work regularly. This thought was endorsed by Sr. Whitehead and others present.

It was moved by Bro. Hanson and seconded by Leota Hanson that the treasurer purchase a new bag for carrying Conference funds. Carried.

A discussion of the conditions over the state was entered into, Sr. Whitehead recommending assistance to Eldorado until they should be able to carry on of themselves. Points are gradually taking on full time pastors and the outlook is most encouraging in spite of the prevalent depression. The president then spoke, suggesting that those points which are now enjoying full time or part time pastorates should not overlook the fact that they have had help in the past and they should render their assistance to the Conference and to the N. B. I. for the assistance of others struggling along. Bro. Austin said that no church should feel its work done unless it supports its state conference and the General Conference, as each are helps to the other. Pledge cards were distributed. Business session was then adjourned.

Sufficient funds were received to defray the cost of the meetings, the responsibility of which is assumed by the Illinois Conference. The wide representation from all parts of the country is one of the features that makes our Bible School so effective. We feel that God's blessing has been bestowed upon us in the privilege of uniting together in this conference, and we were spiritually uplifted and benefited for the work which is ours severally to do in our home localities, till the Master returns.

Mary A. Gesin, Sec.

JOSEPH C. WHITTEN

Joseph C. Whitten, son of Henry Harrison and Charlotta Whitten, was born in Boonton, Morris County, New Jersey, on February 22, 1847. When but a boy he moved to Warren County, Indiana, where, excepting a few years spent in Chicago and a few winters in Florida, he spent his entire life.

He was united in marriage with Sarah J. Smith on September 19, 1870. One child, who died in infancy, was born to them.

Some years ago Bro. Whitten united with the Church of God at Pleasant View, Indiana, in his desire to become a true servant of his Lord.

About twenty years ago Bro. and Sr. Whitten moved into West Lebanon, where, in their comfortable home they spent their remaining days, she, in December last, having preceded him in death.

The deceased was the last surviving member of a large family of children. There remain to mourn his loss a number of nephews and nieces and their families, and a host of neighbors and friends throughout the county and vicinity. His death occurred at his home on August 16, ending an illness of eight weeks. On the eighteenth, after a funeral service in the home, he was interred in the home cemetery, to await the call of Him who is the Resurrection and the Life.

F. L. Austin.

JOHN PORTER

The Oregon, Illinois, congregation suffered the loss of another of its members when, on August 19, at the age of 82 years, 4 months, and 9 days, Bro. John Porter fell into death's sleep.

Bro. Porter, highly respected as a man and a neighbor, was a lifelong resident of the community of Chana, Illinois. He was born in Indiana, on April 10, 1849. He was soon brought to this state and for a short time lived near Rockford, later removing to Ogle County. On September 3, 1872, he was united in marriage with Mary Adeline Tilton, who, together with two sons and two daughters—Mrs. Edith Smith, of Rockford; Oscar, of Rochelle; Mrs. Orel Hayes, of Rockford; and Emmett, of Belvidere—deeply mourn his death.

Years ago Bro. Porter and his wife became members of the Church of God at the Antioch, Illinois, church. A short time ago, the Antioch church having been discontinued, he united with the Oregon church.

Recently he suffered a second stroke, living but a few days thereafter.

Besides his wife, children, five grandchildren and four great grandchildren, a church was filled with neighbors who gathered to mourn his death and to pay honor in recognition of his exemplary life in home and church and community.

F. L. Austin.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38 and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

A Comparative Report by Years of Those Items Which Affect the Movement of Cash

This Report Does Not Include the Value of Real Estate and Stock Estimated at Above $40,000

December 31st	Notes Payable (Liability)	Notes Receivable (Asset)	Accounts Payable (Liability)	Accounts Receivable (Asset)	Mortgage Bonds Payable (Liability)	Invested in Bonds (Asset)	Balance Total Net Indebtedness
1926	$13,800.00	$1,678.91	$3,385.61	$2,487.11	$12,000.00	$3,600.00	$21,419.59
1927	11,200.00	3,763.41	1,893.16	2,886.06	12,000.00	4,800.00	13,643.69
1928	11,600.00	3,233.41	2,403.09	3,215.63	12,000.00	5,500.00	14,054.05
1929	10,750.00	*4575.61	! 4,196.15	2,954.99	12,000.00	7,400.00	12,015.55
1930	12,350.00	*10,814.85	! 5,003.94	2,047.00	12,000.00	3,200.00	13,292.09

* Including contracts receivable.

! Including 1928 and 1929 unpaid salaries.

P. S.—The above does not include any real estate or inventories of stock which have an estimated value of over $40,000. The $12,000 Mortgage Bonds are on the Greenhouse property, which is the only property encumbered, and which $12,000 is a portion of the $13,292.09 of total net indebtedness.

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

LOOK AT THESE

VALUABLE BIBLE MAPS

Here They Are

GIVEN FOR NEW YEARLY SUBSCRIPTIONS

You Learn a Lot When You Fix the Spot

In exchange for new yearly subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD, you may make your selection from the maps listed to the right. These maps have been chosen especially for Sunday Schools and classes. They will be found to be of inestimable value to both teacher and student.

JOURNEYS TO SALVATION

THE RESTITUTION HERALD is a Guide for all who would follow the Christian life. We desire to enlarge its circle of readers. We want many more to avail themselves of its Life Saving Truths.

You can assist us by telling Your Friends all about this Inspiring Magazine. Interest them in its pages, and they will want to become regular readers. Help them along in their Journeys to Salvation.

ASK ALL YOUR FRIENDS

Band together as a Class or a School. Choose the Map you want. Only a little effort will be required from each member.

Many will be gathered at your Conference. Interest them. Don't stop with the ones you can see—write to those at a distance.

Tell them about the picture and the map which each New Subscriber receives for his own.

Sample HERALDS and blanks sent on request. Subscription Price — $2.00 per year — 51 issues. Campaign closes September 1.

Who will be first to win a map?

ADDRESS

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

OREGON, - - ILLINOIS

For 3 New Subscriptions, a map of Palestine, size 24 x 36, printed in 9 colors on linen finish cloth, showing the journeys of Jesus, commencing with His birth, following every deed, event, miracle, parable, etc., in the order in which they occurred, with a chronological table, showing each incident and where recorded in the Gospels. This furnishes a vast amount of information in compact form. Value $1.00.

For 8 New Subscriptions, the same as above in larger size, 37 x 55. Almost indispensable for Sunday School teachers. Value $2.50.

For 10 New Subscriptions, same as above, except paper mounted on cloth with rollers. Value $3.00. Or

For 10 New Subscriptions, map of Egypt, size 36 x 56, cloth back with rollers, showing the wanderings of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land. Colored lines and numbered stations, showing route and where mentioned in Bible. Superior map, can be read at a distance. Value $3.00.

For 17 New Subscriptions, set of 6 maps on linen finish cloth in 6 colors, with stand, showing, Old and New Testament Palestine, Roman Empire showing Paul's Travels, The Exodus, Ancient Jerusalem, etc. Stand may be raised or lowered, and revolved. May be folded up when not in use. Most practical Helps for Sunday Schools. Size 18 x 27. Value $5.50.

For 25 New Subscriptions, same as above, with 3 additional maps which show the Divided Kingdom, Ancient Canaan, and the Journeys of Jesus. Value $7.75.

For 35 New Subscriptions, set of 5 maps, from 36 x 48 to 36 x 57, linen finished cloth, mounted on revolving adjustable steel stand. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Large print in colors makes this set very instructive and interesting. The 5 up-to-date maps necessary for study of all Bible History. Paul's travels shown by colored lines. Value $12.00.

For 45 New Subscriptions, University series map, two maps 24 x 36, four maps 36 x 48, showing the above, also a Relief Picture map of Palestine, in colors, as it would appear to one flying over it. Also a Chart of Natural History of Plants and Animals, with Bible geography. All on revolving adjustable steel stand. Value $14.25.

GIFTS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Each Subscriber receives a picture of Solomon's Temple, size 9 x 12 in.

In Addition to This each new subscriber also receives an individual map, 5 x 7 1/2, in colors on linen finish cloth. Choice of the following: Jerusalem, Solomon's Dominions, Assyria, Babylonia, O. T. and N. T. Palestine, The Exodus, The Divided Kingdom, or Paul's Travels. These will be sent out to new subscribers on August 1 and September 1.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 1, 1931

NUMBER 48

SALVATION

By R. H. Judd

"He saved others, himself he cannot save."

FAMILIAR words—often quoted, and not infrequently used by evangelical preachers as a basic text for a gospel sermon. God Himself has seen fit to record these words by three inspired writers. It is where God "maketh the wrath of man to praise him." Words spoken by evil men, with every evil intent, are an unconscious testimony to a wonderful life, and a means of blessing and salvation to thousands. They can be made to answer admirably as the central thought for a gospel message, but only when taken in the sense in which they were spoken, by the primary literal application of the words contained.

The quotation naturally divides itself into two parts, and if we consider each separately before considering them as a whole, we shall more readily arrive at a correct understanding, and we shall see how the generally accepted method of spiritualizing completely undermines its original force. Let us proceed, then, to consider our text in two sections: (1) "He saved others"; (2) "Himself he cannot save".

"He saved others." Here we get a circumstantial statement of facts that occurred during the ministry of our Savior. Three or four practical questions present themselves. In what sense had He saved others? Who were they, and when did He save them? Twice in this short sentence does the word "save" occur, and we think very few would contend that in each instance it carried a different meaning. The meaning attached to its use in the second half of the message is obvious to any but the wilfully blind—it could only mean by His coming down from the cross—a physical act—to save Himself from a literal and physical death.

We can scarcely credit anyone going so far as to say the Lord Jesus could not save Himself spiritually, or that He spiritually died. In what sense, then, had He saved others, of which these wicked men were witnesses? Surely in the same sense as they said He could not save Himself. They had planned and plotted to take the life of the Lord Jesus, and now as He hung, a helpless man upon the cross, they cast this taunt in His face, as they exulted in the fact that their hopes were about to be realized.

"He saved others, himself he cannot save." Many in that thronging crowd doubtless heard the cruel words, and but few would need to ask their meaning. They knew full well the life history of the Lord Jesus; they knew the story of His wonderful deeds, and they felt put to shame, for all had heard. Some were eyewitnesses of these things. They needed no other aid than the words themselves to remind them of the daughter of Jairus, the widow of Nain's son; of the ten lepers; of the woman with the issue of blood; and of Lazarus, brother to Martha and Mary of Bethany. Here were notable instances of men and women hastening to an early death, one having already been laid in the cold grave. Yes! He, Jesus, had saved them, as all Israel knew.

It is generally acknowledged by Bible students that the first use of a word in the Bible gives it its primary and subsequent meaning. The word "save" is no exception. See Genesis 12:12. Abraham had no wish to die—he desired to be "saved" from death; and such is its general connection in Scripture. Christ said He "came not to destroy men's lives, but to save them," Luke 1:56, and the context clearly demonstrates that actual physical existence was at stake.

No people realized, as did the Jews, the value of long life, nor have we any authentic history of lives so long as theirs, as exemplified in the patriarchs. No people coveted it more; no people believed more firmly than they that eternal or everlasting life would yet be a possession of humanity, the necessary basis for the perpetual enjoyment of every other blessing. No one at all observant can fail to

(Continued on back page)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles."—Psalm 43:3.

"SEND OUT THY LIGHT"

THAT the world stands in dreadful distress and in dire need of readjustment today is only too apparent to every thinking person, old and young. And the remedies advised are as diverse as are the minds advancing them. The recognized "shepherds" of the people are the ones to whom men naturally should turn in times of danger, but these same "shepherds" seem to be in as great a quandary and as unable to rescue those in their care as are the perplexed "sheep" themselves.

That forceful writer, Dr. Wm. T. Ellis, in a (Buffalo) Evening News, of recent date, says that "while many of the salaried national and denominational 'leaders' are busying themselves with the technique of ecclesiastical machinery, and with the jargon of a new pseudo-psychology far removed from the understanding or needs of the public, and while they are seeking to conceal their spiritual sterility by plunging into politics, the men of the world, with clearer insight, are perceiving and stating the new need for the old spiritual simplicities."

Having their minds befogged by "ologies" of every kind and description, the doctors of divinity are unable to extricate those depending upon their wisdom and leadership, from the pits of despair into which they have fallen. But some of our eminent scientists have come forward with a solution of this problem.

A RECOGNITION OF GOD

Our nation today does not stand in need of greater advancement along scientific lines, neither physical nor philosophical, but it does stand in need of a recognition of its dependence upon God, in these days of supreme independence of man because of his wonderful accomplishments. And this fact is being recognized in unusual quarters—among men from whom one would reasonably expect quite a different solution.

Dr. Ellis goes on to say that in a recent remarkable address before an audience of Oklahoma business men, given by none other than that most outstanding economist and statistician of acknowledged merit in our day—Roger Babson—an analysis of the needs of our nation was given by him as deduced from opinions expressed by two of our greatest scientists, not by our "theologians," as might be expected.

Dr. Ellis quotes Roger Babson as saying, in his address,

"The great electrical era which the world is enjoying today is primarily due to two men—one, Charles P. Steinmetz, who for thirty years was chief engineer of the General Electric company, and the other, Thomas A. Edison.

"During the last year of Steinmetz's life he spent a week at my home in Wellesley. The last evening of his visit I asked him what new power might be discovered in the future which would rival steam or electricity.

"Said he, 'Babson, the greatest power of all is in our midst unscratched today. I refer to the spiritual power that comes through right living and worship. Our forefathers knew the power of prayer, the economic importance of Sabbath observance, and the need of family and public worship. To these, America owes its prosperity and growth. Today this power is temporarily forgotten. But it will some day again be harnessed, and then Americans will truly be healthy, happy, and safe.'"

Coming from the lips of a great scientist such as Steinmetz was, these words have unusual value. It seems but a matter of a few short months ago that man assumed to boast himself in need of nothing, capable of prolonging life in surroundings of his own choosing. But alas! where do we find him today? Even the wealthiest beginning to fear lest the arm on which he has leaned will fail him! And the great middle class? Suffering privations that have been considered to be the lot of only the lowest of society!

REVERENCE FOR THE CREATOR

A great electrical genius like Steinmetz realized that only in returning to reverence for his Creator can man find solution for his problems, solace in his afflictions, and peace of mind through all his distresses. Oh, that more of the seething millions of earth could realize that truth! That our youth, eager for life's adventures and achievement, could fathom that wisdom! How much of sorrow they could be spared!

Interviewing also the other great electrical wizard of our day—Thomas A. Edison—Babson gives us the gist of their conversation:

"This spring I spent a morning with Edison at his laboratory at Fort Meyers, Florida. I visited him to discuss certain features of the Einstein theory which might have an important bearing upon aviation. When leaving I asked Edison what new radical inventions he visualized as coming during the next four years. He replied:

"'Babson, I do not pose as a preacher; but let me tell you that if there is a God, He will not let us advance much farther materially until we catch up spiritually. A great fundamental law of science is that all forces must be kept in balance. When any body or any force goes off on a tangent, there is a smash. This applies to America as it has to every nation before it.'"

Words of great moment are these: "God will not let us advance much farther materially until we catch up spiritually." To some of us it would seem a simple thing to return to the God of our fathers. But when we consider the economic condition of the day, the constant irritation produced by "red" propaganda which pretends to give man the solution, and the long strides that man has made away from God because of the teachings of atheism, we gravely admit that it needs such superhuman power as God alone can exert.

The "smash" that Edison foresees appears to be looming upon the horizon. It behooves every lover of God and His truth to stand firmly himself by those principles and to proclaim them to all with whom he may come in contact, so that some may be snatched as "brands from the burning."

True, as Steinmetz said, the power to be realized through prayer, Sabbath observance and family and public worship "will some day again be harnessed, and then Americans will truly be healthy, happy, and safe," but it can only come, completely and throughout all the world, in the coming of the Master, for whose return we watch and wait.

Let us all pray, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."—M. G.

FLEE TO YOUR STRONG TOWER

By Samuel E. Haney

"The name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it, and is safe. The rich man's wealth is his strong city, and as an high wall in his own conceit."—Tenth and eleventh verses of the eighteenth chapter of Proverbs.

MODERN versions express our text thus, "A tower of strength is the Name of Yahweh, thereinto runneth the righteous and is safe. The substance of a rich man is his strong city, and like a high wall in his imagination."—Rotherham.

"The Eternal is a tower of strength: good men run in and are secure. A rich man's wealth is his stronghold, like a bulwark—so he thinks!" Moffatt.

Here we have an explicit statement of two standards of wealth, presumable sources of security; conditions such that in these days it would be nigh impossible to persuade the adherents of them to exchange their viewpoints.

Viewed from another angle the text conveys the effect wrought by the two conflicting spirits, namely, a division of the human race; one, God's adopted children—"citizens of heaven, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit," who are potential inhabitants of God's kingdom; the other, citizens of this world who are swayed by its spirit, and who are concentrating all energies to secure their safety by means of their wealth. The latter class are seemingly oblivious of the fact that their attitude is untenable, and that they are "by nature the children of (God's) wrath"—potential victims of His "fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries", in the imminent "time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation".

Our text refers to those who are rich, but it is also applicable to those who are striving to secure wealth as a "strong tower" for their personal safety, and the things and pleasures of this world, concerning which Paul says (1 Tim. 6:10), "For the love of money is the root of all mischief; it is by aspiring to be rich that certain individuals have gone astray from the faith and found themselves pierced with many a pang of remorse (italics mine.)"—Moffatt. God stresses the intent of the heart as much as physical acts.

"And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—Jesus in Luke 12:15.

We shall refer to a few texts in the Old Testament relative to the rich and the would be rich from God's viewpoint: "He who relies on his wealth shall wither, but a good man blooms like a green leaf."—Proverbs 11:28, Moffatt.

"Better be modest among poor folk than divide plunder with the proud."—Prov. 16:19, Moffatt.

"Trust not in oppression, and become not vain in robbery: if riches increase, set not your heart upon them."—Psalm 62:10.

"So this was the great man who would not upon God rely, but leant on his abundant wealth, and on his power of money! But like an olive green am I, living within the house of God; upon God's kindness I rely, for ever and for evermore. I will praise thee for all that thou hast done, I will declare how good thou art, in presence of thy followers."—Psalm 52:7-9, Moffatt.

(Continued on page 759)

OPPORTUNITY

A word unsaid seems a little thing
But alas! I may never know
If the coming days to a soul may bring
The truth that I fail to show.

A song unsung seems a little thing,
But the heart that I left today
May pine for the songs that I did not sing,
As it goes on its cheerless way.

A deed undone seems a little thing,
But the burden I might have shared
Has left a heart with a bitter sting
Of the thought that "nobody cared."

'Tis the little things that the burdened heart
In the time of trial heeds;
Then let us lighten life's ache and smart
With the sunshine of little deeds.—Selected.

WHAT HAS JESUS DONE FOR YOU?

By Lottie E. Young

How many books we have read where the opening pages, at least, gave in detail the marvels of scenery, or the wildness of the night when the story began. Then after "wading" through this, another page or two would be devoted to telling of the strength of the hero, or the beauty of the heroine!

How differently is the Bible written! How concise and condensed especially are the Gospels, in which the sayings and doings of the Master are recorded. Take, for instance, the eighth chapter of Luke; it first gives the best known of the parables of Jesus, where a sower goes forth with the seed which falls on four different kinds of soil. Then that marvelous miracle of Christ stilling the tempest is told in four short verses.

At the end of the trip over the Sea of Galilee, the country of the Gadarenes was reached. Here Jesus met one of the pitiful characters so often mentioned in the Bible as being possessed with demons—one who wore no clothes, and likely no one would have him in the same house with them on account of his condition, for it says he had to live among the tombs.

We all know the story of his restoration to health, even though we may not be able to understand how something could come out of him, enter into a herd of swine, cause them to rush into the sea and be destroyed. But we do believe it was done, for the Word says the man was found clothed, in his right mind, and sitting at the feet of Jesus, desiring that he might stay with Him. The Great Physician though had another plan, for He told him to go home "and declare how great things God hath done for thee", which he did, as the record is "he went his way, publishing throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done for him."

Can we not all take this lesson to ourselves? It is easy being passive followers of the Lord, or even witnessing for Him at Bible school or conference, when all around us have the same blessed hope. But it is somewhat harder when we go back to a home or school where we are laughed at, or possibly tormented because of the strange ideas we have adopted, which are so different from what "everybody" else believes! Can we not only give a reason for the hope that is in us with meekness and fear, but also exhibit the "fruit of the Spirit" as found in Galatians 5:22, 23, in our daily lives and associations?

The joyful part of this incident is the healing of the man, but the sad part is that all the people of the Gadarenes round about told Jesus to depart from their coasts because their pigs had been killed. Thus they sent away the only One who could help them to bear the trials of this life and assure them of happiness in that which is to come!

Are we wiser today, or are there multitudes who have no room for Jesus in their hearts, even though they are unsatisfied with the so-called pleasures of this world, but are ever seeking new "thrills", forgetting the terrible words, "It is appointed unto man once to die, but AFTER THAT, the judgment."

Jesus did not linger long after he was so absolutely cast out, but entered a boat and returned to the other side of the lake, where His heart must have been gladdened, as Luke tells us "a multitude welcomed him, for they were all waiting for him." It was a hopeless world to which He came. The gods of the heathen were not satisfying mankind, and even God's chosen people—the Jews—were being fed upon the husks of ritualism, having forgotten the manna in the wilderness, which typified "the bread of life" which was then with them.

A Deliverer was needed then, even as now, when the so-called Christian church, like the one in Laodicea so many years ago, says, "I am rich, and have gotten riches, and have need of nothing." The world is waiting for the second advent of Jesus Christ now, even as the multitude waited for Him by the sea of Galilee. Present economic perplexities are either turning men to or away from the One who alone can bring peace and comfort to troubled lives. How we long for the time to come when "the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised", and those living shall pass from this state of mortality to that of immortality.

Are we doing our best to tell others the story of the one perfect life that history has ever shown us? Are we letting our lights so shine that men may glorify the Father? These are serious questions; can we answer them affirmatively?

Echoes Heard in the Distance

PROFIT IN PRAYER

WHAT is the Almighty, that we should serve him? and what profit should we have, if we pray unto him?" was the question propounded by the wicked, according to Job," said C. E. Randall, of the Fonthill and Niagara Falls churches, on Saturday evening, August 8, at General and Illinois Conference.

"This question is also asked by many professing Christians today," Bro. Randall added, "God answers every question of man that is essential to man's salvation, and this question is not an exception. James 5:16. It pays to pray, because there is power in prayer. Jesus the Christ, praying in the Garden of Gethsemane for courage to do His Father's will, was strengthened by an angel.

"There is profit in prayer, because God hears even though we have strayed far from Him. In 2 Chronicles 7, we find God answering the prayers of the children of Israel, despite the fact that they had wandered from Him into the worship of idolatry."

In asking whether prayer is necessary, Bro. Randall declared that a church cannot maintain its spiritual life unless it is a praying church; that we can estimate the power of a church in the community by the number and nature of the people who attend its prayer meetings. The family altar he considers one of the best means of teaching our people how to pray, but it is regrettably true that that beautiful picture of home life has become almost extinct.

"What shall we pray for?" he asked. "First of all, let us give thanks to God for His daily blessings, material and spiritual. If we were to give a friend a gift, and he failed to thank us for it, would we care to give any further gifts?"

"Pray for your work, that of your local church, that of the General Conference, and your own daily work. Make the future of your children a matter of prayer, as Manoah did, Judges 3:8.

"Pray for your pastor. It is a sin for the pastor not to pray for his people, but it is equally wrong for the people not to pray for their pastor. Pray also for one another; pray for the weak brother; he needs your help and your prayers."

Bro. Randall also counseled us to pray for the sick. In this connection he cited the committee of the Episcopal Church which was instructed to examine cases of healing that were brought to its notice. Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester, Minnesota, head of the committee, declared that there were innumerable cases where the cure could not be ascribed to medicine, but only as answer to prayer.

"God forbid," said the speaker, "that we should credit to any other person or agency the results of answered prayer, but let us gladly, willingly give God the honor. Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

MAN'S GREATEST NEED

ON FRIDAY evening, August 14, Bro. Paul C. Johnson, president of the Illinois State Conference, faced the question of man's greatest need and answered it very squarely from the standpoint of the Scripture. He said in part, "As we look about us, what are we compared to the majestic things of God's creation? Why should God have placed man in the position of preeminence over the rest of creation, when He finished His work and called it good and very good? What was there about man that caused God to thus prefer him?"

"Not long did man remain in the condition in which we find him at creation, for very soon God declared that 'every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.' And when God brought punishment upon man, only eight people in all were saved. We read in Matthew 24:38, that the world will be in the same condition just prior to the coming of Christ, and we are living in those days.

The speaker then analyzed human nature, showing that each one of us is a sinner. For if we will examine our own hearts, we will find that "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." In his opinion our preachers are making a grave mistake when they continually refer to the love of God and fail to warn man of punishment to come because of wickedness. Our ministers immerse us, but do they impress upon us the fact that we are sinners in such unmistakable terms that we will recognize it?

"The Savior Himself said, 'I come not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance' and 'the whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.' When we come to realize that we are sinners we have hope of help. If we will not recognize our condition, we will not receive help. But if we confess our sins to Him, He is faithful and He will forgive us and cleanse us."

Bro. Johnson brought us examples from the lives of David and Paul, showing how they realized that they stood in need of God's forgiving power, and when they acknowledged that need, they received cleansing. He showed, further, how that God will extend the same mercy to us, if we will only come to Him, humbly beseeching, "God, be merciful to me, a sinner."

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BELIEVE?

USING as his text the beautiful words of John 3:14 to 17, Bro. F. L. Austin, on the evening of August seventh, at General Conference, showed us very clearly just what is included in the expression, "whosoever believeth in him."

He said in part, "We are here because we realize that of ourselves we are nothing; we are helpless to cope with life in our own strength. The children of Israel, wandering in the wilderness, murmuring against God, were bitten by serpents sent by Him in order to waken them to a realization of their dependence upon Him. Sometimes in our lives God permits a series of circumstances to be brought about for the same purpose.

"Not leaving them to die because of the serpent's bite, God instructed Moses to erect a fiery serpent, by which, if the people looked on it, they were healed. But all that remained in their tents, refusing to obey, were dead men.

"Even so, was the Savior lifted up, and if we would be saved, we must look to Him, and those who refuse to look must perish. Looking to Him means believing in Him, and much, very much is included in believing.

"Whatever He asks you to do, you will gladly do; whatever He requires of you, you will willingly supply. If you believe in Him, you will obey, regardless of the cost; you will perform, ignoring the sacrifice.

"But we must have definite belief also. We must believe in His saving power; we must believe that He is the One sent from God to break the shackles which sin has fastened upon man; that He it is who unlocks the doors that hold us in subjection to sin. Again, He is the One who will fill the earth with righteousness; who will transform it unto the greatness and the glory of God's love."

Bro. Austin's earnest, concluding exhortation was, "May our belief in Christ transform our very lives, submerging them into His, and permeate every fiber of our beings, completely consecrating us to His service, is my prayer."

KNOWING GOD

SOME new thoughts were presented on the last Saturday night of General Conference by Bro. H. A. Sheets, in an effort to bring God nearer to those of his audience, especially the young people. Taking the words of John 17:3, as a starting point, the speaker showed us that if we wish to have eternal life, we must know God, and that our studies in science should lead us closer to Him rather than farther away.

"Our scientists, in studying the movements of the planets, found that the moon travels around the earth, the earth around the sun, and the sun around some center. In fact, all the planets are controlled from this great center," Bro. Sheets said. "I believe God is the Center, and from Him goes out the force that controls all planets and heavenly bodies.

"Science is now teaching us that all things are made of one substance and that substance is electricity. The difference in appearance comes because of the arrangement of the particles that make up the different objects. We can't analyze electricity, nor do we know how it travels. But we do know that electrical impulses fill the air, and that there is untold power in the elements about us.

"I can come to no other conclusion but that, essentially speaking, not actually, the spirit of God and electricity are one and the same thing," continued the speaker. "In the old tabernacle God manifested Himself by the shekinah glory. Cannot the radiance of the aurora borealis be compared to that glory? In the glory of God is power. Note the blindness which overcame Saul on the road to Damascus. Consider the bestowal of the Holy Spirit by the apostles on those whom they had baptized; the power that proceeded from the hem of the Lord's garment when it was touched by the woman seeking relief. Are not these manifestations similar to electrical currents?"

Bro. Sheets used many other illustrations taken from Scripture to clarify his statements, such as, the instance of Uzziah touching the ark of the covenant, Elijah and the prophets of Baal, God coming to Mount Sinai and the attendant manifestations. "The entire world is connected up with God; He knows where each particle is and can call it forth again in resurrection. Viewing it from this angle, the miracle of resurrection is easy to believe," he said.

"We can never get away from God; wherever we go He is there. We are in His presence at all times. Therefore what kind of creatures ought we to be? Young people, as you go back to your schools and colleges, keep this fact in mind—that we cannot get away from God. Let us learn to know Him and gain life eternal."

THE COLOR OF A LIE

Don't harbor a lie;
Though almost the truth, it ever
Swift lets another and baser one in,
To cover itself, and doubles the sin,
In spite of all weak endeavor.
Don't try to call it a fib;
Don't try to call it white;
A lie, my dear, is always a lie,
And as black as the blackest night.

A fearful, tangling thing,
Though seemingly bright and clever,
For it twists and winds its luring toils,
Till its maker is fast in the cruel coils
That naught but the truth can sever.
O do not call it a fib;
Don't try to call it white;
For a lie, my dear, is always a lie,
And as black as the blackest night.

—Dessie E. Benn.

BEG PARDON

THE reader will please note an omission in Bro. Haney's article, in the August 11 issue, page 712, column 2, twenty-three lines from the bottom of the page. It should read: "For this reason they are no more expecting the world's precarious economic conditions to return to normalcy than they are expecting to see water running up hill."

FLEE TO YOUR STRONG TOWER

(Continued from page 755)

The fifty-second Psalm, entire, depicts a unique distinction between the "strong tower in the name of the Lord," and the "strong city" in the imaginary stability of wealth. And this difference is becoming more pronounced by the world's daily clarifying current events, which fully confirm Paul's prophetic description of the cause, both directly and indirectly, of the demoralization of the human race, individually and collectively, by saying, "For the love of money is the root of all mischief."

The major portion of the world's money and its collateral equivalent has been accumulated by people called millionaires, whose number has largely increased in recent years. The resultant effect being the diminishing of the per capita of the masses—the producers of life's maintenance. The per capita likely would not exceed the price of a cheesecloth shroud. Hence the increasing antagonism between the very rich and the very poor, which is the primary cause of recent incipient physical revolutions in many nations; the natural sequence being evidenced by people of great wealth manifesting fear of their personal safety and their financial holdings.

At this junction the writer steps aside and has the Prophet Isaiah elucidate our subject by the use of Chapter 24:1-13:

"Lo, the Eternal soon shall lay the earth bare and wild, rendering it shapeless and scattering its inhabitants; the priest shall fare no better than the plain man; the master shall fare like the slave, mistress like maid, seller like buyer, borrower like lender, and creditor like debtor; the earth shall be laid all bare; the world shall be stripped empty: such is the sentence of the Eternal. The earth is drooping, withering; the world is waning, withering; and the sky wanes with the earth; for earth has been polluted by the dwellers on its face, loose to laws and scorning statutes, breaking the eternal compact. Therefore a curse is crushing the earth, alighting on its guilty folk; mortals are dying off, till few are left. The vine-juice fails; the vines are dry; the land cries out for wine; and merry-makers sigh; no lifting now of tambourines, no lifting now of lutes, no sounds of revelry; no singing as the wine is drunk, for any liquor has a bitter taste; towns fall to pieces; each man bolts his door; gladness has gone from the earth, and pleasure is no more; the cities are left desolate; their gates are battered down, and few are left on earth, as few as berries, once the olive boughs are shaken, as grapes, when once the vintage has been taken."—Moffatt.

Read again the entire chapter from the Authorized Version. What a forlorn sentence this is—even now in its presaging—upon peoples and nations that are estranged from God and righteousness!

The only chance that unregenerate souls, particularly the very rich (Jas. 5:1-6) have to escape imminent retribution is to halt in their mad career—"right about face"—and follow Paul's teachings, namely, "And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts", ("passions and desires," Diag.).—Gal. 5:24; 2:20.

Then to follow Jesus' commandment, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."—Matt. 16:24.

To those who have complied with the Lord's requirements, the name of the Lord has become a "strong tower"; and they that run into it are safe. Whereas the rich man's "strong city", with "high walls", whose foundation is wealth, is but his "conceit" and "imagination". For instead of safety he discovers it to be Satan's death snare, where a serpent bites him. "Woe unto you that desire the day of the Lord (not being prepared) to what end is it for you? the day of the Lord is darkness, and not light. As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Shall not the day of the Lord be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it?" Amos 5:18-20.

In a word, man dare not supinely wait for God's kingdom, but he must zealously prepare for it: "To day (the Gospel age when the Good News is being extended to the Gentiles) if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts." Hebrews 3:1-15.

TO OUR SCHOOL TEACHERS, CLERKS, AND OTHERS

JUST a brief word to the school teachers, clerks, and salaried people of the Church of God throughout the United States. Dear Brothers and Sisters:

All of those who are continuing to draw a stated salary, even during these times of business depression, should feel themselves highly favored and blessed of our Father. There are many young people who have no family responsibilities, who are drawing incomes which many a family would be pleased to draw, yea, twice as much as many families are able to gather in. It seems almost heart rending to think that numbers of these young people are using all of their salaries without devoting any fair portion to Gospel work.

The General Conference of the Church of God is endeavoring to forward and strengthen the Gospel work in every locality. Certainly if anyone is able to contribute regularly, say to the Dollar-A-Month Club, those who are drawing stated stipulated salaries are so able.

Is it too much to ask you, brother, sister, that you, each one of you, no matter if you are young in life and without family or without responsibility, that you contribute to this great cause at least one dollar per month out of your salaries—twelve dollars per year?

The amount seems almost too little for anyone to ask, and yet if 1000 of you will do just that, then there will be $12,000 come into the N. B. I. which is sufficient to reduce its indebtedness by some four or five or six thousand dollars per year.

Let us all—old and young—help to this end.

F. L. Austin.

THE PLACE OF PRAYER

There's a beautiful garden where Jesus waits;
A beautiful place of prayer.
I'll come to that garden and fall at His feet;
I know He'll receive me there.

The smile on His face will bring peace to my heart;
The touch of His hand give me rest;
And His sweet words of comfort true courage impart,
While I lean on His dear loving breast.

He'll forgive all my sin and remove every stain;
I will walk in a newness of life.
I'll be loyal and true to the end of the way,
Where cometh no sorrow nor strife.

There is peace in that beautiful garden with Him;
There is comfort and joy most sublime;
So I'll go to Him there, my Savior so fair,
And receive His forgiveness divine.—Selected

ANSWERED PRAYER

By Norman John McLeod

PRAYER is the act of submitting one's mind and will to God. In asking God to do something for us we are not attempting to change His mind, because that cannot be done. God cannot so lightly be changed. "God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he not said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?"—Numbers 23:19.

Instead of changing God by prayer then, we are changing our own mind. If by disobeying God's laws we are ill, God will not likely set aside His laws to heal us. Many righteous people are more sickly than wicked people. "That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to shine on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust."—Matthew 5:45.

God did not promise us that all of us should work miracles. The power of healing has been given only at rare times, even to God's people. "And the word of the Lord was precious in those days; there was no open vision."—1 Samuel 3:1.

"But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land; but unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow. And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian."—Luke 4:25-27.

Not even the apostles, with their miracle-working power, healed on all occasions (. . . but Trophimus have I left at Miletus sick"—2 Tim. 4:20). Our prayers for the sick should then, it seems, be for something other than the healing of our infirmities.

The prayer that Jesus taught His disciples asks that we be given our daily bread, but the emphasis is immediately transferred to forgiveness. "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."—Matt. 6:12. If we look carefully at the great prayers of the Bible, we are struck by their character. Only on very rare occasions is there a direct prayer for healing, and that on occasions when a miracle was needed.

When we are praying for those who spitefully use us, are we to ask the Lord to change their hearts toward us? "But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which spitefully use you, and persecute you."—Matt. 5:44. Maybe we are somewhat wrong, though those others may be more so. Might it not be better for us to try to change our own hearts by prayer, so that we could convince those others by our lives of righteousness?

The reason that we often do not receive answers to our prayers is that we are inclined to expect the miraculous. We want to be healed. We want to get this or that. Rather should we pray for those things for which we are instructed to pray in God's Word, either by command or example.

If we who profess to belong to God's church pray for foolish, selfish things, we succeed in bringing upon ourselves the reproach of the sceptic and the infidel. We pray for miraculous things; God does not answer; then the sceptic justly says that our prayers are not answered. And we ourselves tend to lose faith. At this time more than ever our chief prayer should be: Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest.

Some things to be prayed for are

1. The laborers to go into "the harvest". (Matthew 9:37-38.)
2. "Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins." (Psalm 19:13.)
3. "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem." (Psalm 122:6.)
4. "Thy kingdom come." (Matthew 6:10.)
5. For those that spitefully use you. (Matt. 5:44.)
6. For wisdom, as did Solomon, though perhaps not in the same way nor for the same purpose. (1 Kings 3:5ff.)
7. For forgiveness and restoration to grace. (1 Kings 8:22ff; Matt. 6:12; Ezra 9:5ff; Neh. 1:5ff.)

"THE only way to build permanently is upon personality, and the supreme personality for the church is Jesus. It is the real business of the church to make men Christlike, and upon that business it must launch itself with all its energy."

A FEW VAGARIES

By George B. Alldridge

MILTON says, "They changed their minds, flew off, and into strange vagaries fell." But Paul says, "Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine." 1 Tim. 4:13.

How faithfully Paul practiced what he preached. "The cloke that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comest, bring with thee, and the books, but especially the parchments." 2 Tim. 4:13. What a blessing would accrue to us all, if we were to give heed to Paul's exhortation, to obey and practice it daily.

As a young man, by reading, my mind became quite familiar with the writings of Paine, Voltaire, Ingersoll, and others. I have observed that the Bible is largely the base of their criticisms. They point out what to their minds, appear as contradictions, mistakes and miracles, that are impossible to harmonize with natural law and sound common sense. I also notice, though, that their chief and most potent criticisms, are directed against the interpretation and teachings incorporated into the various creeds and beliefs.

Among many interpretations are these:

The natural immortality of the soul; heaven, the reward and abode of the righteous; hell, the eternal abode, and conscious agony and suffering of the wicked; God's arbitrary selection of a few of earth's billions of inhabitants to enjoy His especial favor, whether they deserve it or not; the residue consigned to hell, with no hope, and eternal despair; infants unbaptized, relegated to a like fate;

Hardened criminals, even murderers, at the "eleventh hour", calling upon God for mercy and receiving from the priests' hands "the last rites of the church", and absolved by them of all their sins, are admitted into glory to bask in the sunshine of God's love, the moment following their execution for their heinous crimes; their victims, like the four young people murdered recently in Ypsilante, go to hell because they had no opportunity to call upon God for mercy.

Last Thursday a prominent Roman Catholic journalist and publisher died. In the morning paper there appeared a brief eulogy, by several prominent Catholic priests. Among them Bishop Joseph Schrembs is reputed to have said: "He deserved well of the church, and our prayers will go with him before the judgment seat of God. May he rest in peace."

As I take it, the bishop's thought is that his soul is gone to stand before the judgment seat of God, and his body is at rest in the tomb.

Theologians teach (there are many of the bishop's persuasion) that a paradox is something apparently absurd or incredible, yet may be true in fact. So the bishop's remarks are paradoxical. Let us see if his own Bible—the Douay version—agrees with him.

I read in John 5:22: "For neither doth the Father judge any man, but hath given all judgment to the Son."

Many of the Catholic and Protestant churches too, for that matter, are named after "Saint" Paul, and so they cannot say that his word is not authentic or canonical. On Mars Hill, Athens, Paul uttered these remarkable words: "Because he hath appointed a day wherein he will judge the world in equity, by the man whom he hath appointed; giving faith to all, by raising him up from the dead." Acts 17:31.

Bishop Schrembs, profound scholar that you are, has this escaped your attention? Probably so. Well, let us still read from your Bible. Hebrews 2:5-18 is too long to quote, so I invite you to read it. Note, though, it is a man that is to judge or rule, and the eighth verse declares that the time for that has not yet arrived. "But now we see not as yet all things subject to him."

But, dear Bishop, let me quote from your first pope, Peter: "That when the times of refreshment shall come from the presence of the Lord, and he shall send him who hath been preached unto you, Jesus Christ, whom heaven indeed must receive until the times of the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of his holy prophets, from the beginning of the world. For Moses said; a prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me: him you shall hear according to all things whatsoever he shall speak unto you. And it shall be that every soul which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people." Acts 3:20-23.

Dear Bishop, note the "disobedient souls are to be destroyed from among the people". Are those in purgatory to come back? Are those in heaven? Yes, One will, the only One mentioned in Scripture as being there and that is Jesus Christ, "whom heaven indeed must receive until the times of the restitution of all things."

Do you believe this Bishop Schrembs? Surely you believe your own Bible, which says, "And no man hath ascended into heaven, but he that descended from heaven, the Son of man who is in heaven." John 3:13.

Once more, John 14:3, "And if I shall go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and will take you to myself; that where I am, you also may be."

You seem restless and nervous, "Your Grace", probably the "mitre" on your head and the crook in your hand, and the flowing robes seem incongruous in the light of these scriptures.

Dear Bishop, why do your people call you, "Father"? Your Bible says, Matt. 23:9, "And call none your father upon earth: for one is your father, who is in heaven."

Dear Bishop, I love to talk to you, for you are so wise. Why do you pray for the souls in purgatory? Your Bible says, Psa. 145:3, 4, "Put not your trust in princes (this is how you address the cardinals), in the children of men in whom there is no salvation. (But the pope holds the keys of heaven and hell, does he not?) His spirit shall go forth, and he shall return into his earth (who is he, the fellow in purgatory, or in the grave?); in that very day all their thoughts perish."

Can a soul suffer torment without thinking? If his thoughts perish the day he dies, what then is there that

(Continued on back page)

THE EPISTLE OF JUDE

By Lyman Booth

THE writer of this epistle describes himself as "the servant of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the brother of James." By this James it is thought that it is intended for "James, the Lord's brother" (Gal. 1:19), the first overseer of the church at Jerusalem. The writer expressly describes himself as Jude, the brother of James, and hence we must admit him to have been Jude, the Apostle, or suppose him guilty of a forgery. He is also called Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus, who was brother, or near relative of our Lord.

At first there was some hesitation as to the authenticity of this epistle, but the objections soon faded away, though some modern writers have unsuccessfully brought forth frivolous efforts to revive those objections. He doesn't call himself an apostle, but a "servant of Jesus Christ," and so does Paul (Phil. 1:1). He is charged with quoting apocryphal books. That doesn't disprove the truth of the quotation. Paul quoted from heathen poets, when what was in them was true and when it might be used for a good purpose, without accepting the fables contained therein. These objections amount to nothing against the internal evidence.

It is very probable that Jude wrote to caution his brethren against the same deceivers whom Peter had opposed and nearly at the same date. Some writers think that they both had access to some ancient book which has since been lost and quoted from it; and that Jude had seen Peter's epistle; and in order to add his testimony to the same thoughts, copied some of his thoughts and expressions. This is not at all likely, for the same spirit of prophecy might, and could, and most likely would lead these two writers to oppose the corrupters of Christianity, by similar examples, illustrations, and arguments, without either knowing what the other had written. We see no grounds for the oft expressed opinion that it was written expressly for Jewish converts; but on the contrary it appears to be an authentic epistle, intended and well suited for all Christian churches throughout the entire world.

The parallelism between this and the Second Epistle of Peter is very noticeable in a quotation recorded only in the book of Enoch (14), and a tradition of a dispute between Michael, the Archangel, and Satan regarding the body of Moses (9). Whatever may be said of the apocryphal books as to their inspiration, it would seem that Jude has considered the book of Enoch as of divine inspiration.

The date, place, and occasion for the writing of this epistle is unknown, but the writer seems to have been moved by the dangers of the times to write to those to whom it was addressed, for the purpose of urging them to contend for the faith and to pay no attention to the teachings of ungodly men, who were turning the favor of God into lasciviousness (2-4). He calls attention to the backsliding of Israel after leaving Egypt, the fall of the angels, the cities of the plain, as warnings against such teachers, who despised dignities and whose sins were none the less punishable than those of Cain, Korah, and Balaam (5-11).

He charges them with having mingled for impure purposes in their love feasts and compared them to rainless clouds, withering trees, and wandering stars. Enoch had prophesied against such teachers, saying the Lord would judge all such, and he urged the faithful to be on guard against them (4). He implores his readers to build themselves up in faith, and prayer, and love, and not to shrink from rebuking those who deserved rebuke (17-23). He then closes with a hearty ascription of praise to God (24-25).

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE A CHRISTIAN

WOULD you know what it means to be a Christian? Read the first seven verses of the fourth chapter of Galatians. The bondage spoken of here is the bondage of sin. We do not have to be very old before we know that we are born with tendencies to evil. We begin the struggle early, and before long we realize that it is a bitter fight. The forces of evil in the world and in our hearts are too strong for us, and we soon conclude that, unaided, we are bound to lose.

Then Christ comes into our life. His Word makes it very plain to us that through His death on the cross, He has opened the way for us to be adopted into God's family, to be no longer servants of sin, but sons of God; and if sons, then heirs of God through Christ.

And what a difference the coming of Christ makes in our lives! We are now enlisted on the side of right, with Christ as our Captain. Becoming a Christian doesn't put an end to the struggle. The fight goes on, but it is now the Master who shows us where to go and how to fight, stands by us in every crisis, encourages us in every defeat, lifts us up after every fall, and always points us to a victory that is sure.

The day we choose Christ we begin a new life. We are no longer servants, but sons; no longer slaves, but free men; we no longer wear the yoke of bondage, but the yoke of Christ, which He says is easy. Yet the yoke of Christ is easy only when we accept with it the sacrifice it involves. In another place He calls it a cross—not His cross, but ours.

And taking up and bearing our cross constitutes discipleship. But bearing the cross only keeps us in our course and leads us into realms of joy and comfort and happiness, and finally right into the Eternal City, triumphant victors; whereas the broad way of easy indifference and self-indulgence can lead us only to eternal destruction.

Becoming a Christian means enlisting in Christ's army and doing our part as His soldiers.—Selected.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"CHRIST . . . IS ABLE TO DO EXCEEDING ABUNDANTLY ABOVE ALL THAT WE ASK OR THINK."

BEREAN CONFERENCES

NATIONAL

THE eighteenth annual conference of the National Berean Society convened in Oregon, Illinois, on August 10, 1931. A short devotional service was led by Earl Thayer, beginning at 8:00 a. m. A meeting designated "High Lights of Berean Work," consisting of reports was called to order by the president at 8:10 a. m. At 2:45 p. m., the "Berean Clearing House," over which Miss Mary Milburn, of Cleveland, Ohio, presided, met. Methods of making Berean work more interesting and instructive were discussed. The annual business meeting was called to order at 3:30 p. m. At 7:30 p. m., a song service, led by Mrs. Leta O. Johnson, was held, followed at eight o'clock by the Berean sermon, delivered by G. E. Marsh.

The Treasurer reported total receipts for the year of $351.91, total expenditures of $52.93, and a balance on hand of $298.98. The Relief Committee reported that owing to a bank failure in Chicago, the money on hand for relief work was not great, but that the bank would undoubtedly pay one hundred percent. The value of this work was particularly stressed. The Publishing Committee reported that the new junior lesson book, The Hebrew People, was on the press at that time, and that two senior books are under construction. The Secretary announced the membership of the National Berean Society as 577, a gain of 46 over last year. Every state society except Michigan had lost members during the year.

The Texas State Berean Society had been disbanded, but a new Indiana Berean Society had been organized exclusively for young people. The question of recognition of this second Indiana society was left with the President and Secretary. Hammond, Louisiana; Brush Creek, Ohio; and Dayton, Ohio, had organized and affiliated during the year. One new isolated member had been gained.

The question of transfer of lesson book publication to the N. B. I. was left with the Executive Board, which voted to appoint a committee of three out of itself to consider the problem. The President requested that each society or member send him a list of the names and addresses of all those whom it knows who are capable of doing committee work.

The election resulted as follows: president, Melville W. Lyon, 13705 Diana Ave., Cleveland, Ohio (declared elected unanimously); first vice president, Clarence Lapp, Oregon, Illinois; second vice president, Miss Louise Brewer, 3851 Riverside Drive, Dayton, Ohio; secretary, Arlen Marsh, Oregon, Illinois (declared elected unanimously); and treasurer, Miss Sybil Guthrie, Mullin, Texas. This completed the business of the Conference.

Arlen Marsh, Secretary.

ILLINOIS

The thirty-fourth annual business meeting of the Illinois State Berean Society was called to order by the second vice president, Bro. Gerald Cooper, August 15, 1931. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was read and accepted. This report showed that there was less money in the treasury than at the end of the previous year, largely due to the failure of a Rockford, Illinois, bank in which part of the money had been kept. This money will be added at some future date.

Reports of the local societies were read by the secretary pro tem. The interest is gradually increasing in our Berean societies.

A motion was made and seconded that Article I, Section 1, should read as follows: "The society shall be called the Berean Society of the State of Illinois. It shall be affiliated with the Illinois Churches of God in Christ Jesus", and that Article 5, Section I, be struck out entirely. The motion was carried.

Suggestions were made concerning the stationery. It was urged that each Berean society join the Dollar-A-Month Club.

We then proceeded with the election of officers with the result as follows: president, Clarence Lapp, Oregon, Illinois; first vice president, Gerald Cooper, Ripley, Illinois; second vice president, Miss Genniel Carpenter, Oregon, Illinois; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Ford, 305 E. Fellows St., Dixon, Illinois; treasurer, Virgil Claypool, Robinson, Illinois.

Elizabeth Ford, Sec. pro tem.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE COUNCIL AT JERUSALEM

WHILE Paul and Barnabas were in Antioch, certain men from Judea came to them and told them that they must follow the laws of the Jews, the law of Moses, if they would be saved. These disciples had been teaching that all who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ should be saved. To settle the dispute the church at Antioch sent these two men and others to the church at Jerusalem to talk with the elders there concerning the matter.

On the road to that place through Phenice and Samaria they told of the conversion of many Gentiles, which was news causing much joy to those who had already accepted Christ.

The people at Jerusalem were glad to receive this company of people, and they were happy also to hear of the good work being done.

Then came up the question of the law which they had come to discuss. Some of the Christian Pharisees thought that the Christian Gentiles must obey all laws of the Jews. Peter then said that God had given the Gentiles the gift of the Holy Spirit. He said that God had not commanded them to make the Gentiles obey the rules of the Jews.

The matter was talked over, and it was decided that Christian Gentiles did not have to keep all of the laws of the Jews, but the laws which God had given to all Christians to obey. They should be saved by the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and not by the law given to the Jews.

They wrote letters containing this decision and they sent Judas and Silas to tell the people. The people rejoiced and were happy when they heard this.

Then Paul and Barnabas and others remained in Antioch teaching and preaching the word of the Lord.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read 2 Corinthians 9:1-7.
2. Read where Paul spoke of this Council Meeting in Galatians 2:7.
3. In Galatians 2:8 to whom did God give grace? Who was sent to the heathen?
4. Copy Galatians 2:10a.

NATURE QUESTION

19. A branch of what tree appeared to Jeremiah as a sign when he was called by God?

WE BELIEVE in a day of judgment. "Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God."—1 Cor. 4:5.

"A House is built of bricks and stones,
Of sills, and posts, and piers,
But a Home is built of loving deeds
That stand a thousand years."
—Victor Hugo.

T O D A Y

Why darken today's clear sunlight
With a fear that the storm clouds may loom;
Miss the song in the air,
Shedding tears of despair
O'er the past with its joy and its bloom?
Today is a gift most precious,
'Tis the day that the Lord hath made;
And Christ is a Friend all gracious,
Rejoice and be unafraid.

COUNTING BLESSINGS

"When I don't sleep, I just count my blessings. That's a splendid thing to do, because you fall asleep before you get to the end of them."—Margaret Deland.

WHEN OBEDIENCE SAVED A LIFE

ONE day Daddy said to Stephen and Ruth, "Go outside and pick up some playthings you have left in the yard. It's going to rain, and your things must not get wet."

As Stephen and Ruth went out the front door, Martha passed by.

"Come out and play," said Martha.

"We can't," said Ruth. "We must carry our playthings into the house."

"You can do that after a while," said Martha.

"No, we can't," said Stephen. "Daddy told us to do it now, and we have to mind him."

"Fraidy-cats," said Martha.

Under the apple tree where he had been reading, Stephen found his best book; and in the garden, sitting in a doll buggy, Ruth found her loveliest doll.

As both children went into the house with their things, the storm broke. The lightning flashed; the wind blew; and the rain fell in torrents.

"We found them just in time," said Stephen.

Next week we will find out what Daddy said.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 11. — September 13, 1931

SOME MISSIONARY EXPERIENCES

Acts 14; Ephesians 6:10-20

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 50:4-9

GOLDEN TEXT

Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 5:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Christianity Facing Other Religions.

Basic Truth. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 28:19, 20.

I. God Winked. Before Christ, God "suffered all nations to walk in their own ways". V. 16. He made little or no effort to direct nations other than Israel to Himself and His way. Man had wandered from Him, had devised his own scheme of life and its ends. "The times of this ignorance God winked at."—Acts 17:30. Not that God was then unconcerned as to those nations, but that His plan was to reach them later through Abraham's Seed. Gen. 18:18 22:18; Gal. 3:16.

II. God Commanded. Christ having come, having died for all, having been raised for man's justification, Rom. 4:24, 25, God "now commandeth all men everywhere to repent". Acts 17:30. Accordingly Christ commissioned His apostles unto all the world. That commission was not a mere opportunity; it was a direct instruction, command.

To carry out their part of the work, Paul and Barnabas were exposing their lives to hardships and to death. Not only did they present the gospel with convincing words and persuading voice, but they also presented it by marvelous works in demonstration of accompanying God-given power. The gospel, which was to be the incentive unto repentance to prick the hearts of the people, Acts 2:38, was also to declare Jehovah as the only true God and His Son as the only Savior, and thus deprive worshipers of idols of authority and reason for so worshipping.

To carry out God's command, the gospel must be presented to the people of every other form of worship. God no longer winks at their ignorance and their doings.

III. God's Power. As in Egypt Moses and Aaron revealed the power of God to the worshipers of the deities of Egypt and revealed His own superiority and their utter lack, so in the Christian dispensation God revealed the truthfulness of Christ as against the falsehood of idolatry by His power made manifest in Paphos, in Antioch of Pisidia, in Lystra and elsewhere. Just as God accompanied His messengers of old with His almighty power, so Christ has accompanied His ambassadors over the world with that mysterious, but all convincing, power bestowed by His gift of the holy spirit.

The proclamation of the gospel is not a matter to be indifferently pursued by Christian people. It is a duty commanded by Christ to the end that repentance toward God might be effected among all people.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Experiences: The missionary experiences of the disciples have inspired thousands to tackle super-human tasks in Christian efforts. Their loyalty to the cause of the resurrected Christ carried them into the enemy's territory, with a God-given zeal and courage that mobs and ecclesiastical councils could not destroy or shackle. It can be said of them that they "gave up all". Their experiences were brought about by their intensive activities. They went "every where preaching the word". It seemed that everywhere they went there were bonds and afflictions awaiting them. They had great assistance and ever present help in Christ. He sent them on these perilous journeys, but He never forsook them. Their faith in Him was great. His deliverances of them were great. The missionaries of all times have had great experiences. They have found that "our God is able to deliver". Compare the experiences of the apostolic missionaries with those of the past century.

In Christian Service: The faithful and active worker in everyday Christian service will find experiences that will confirm his faith and belief in the Son of God. The pleasant experiences that come from bringing hope to the hopeless and cheer to the saddened hearts are worth far more than the meagre wage received. It is the sweet experiences and joy in helpful service that call men into the ministry, rather than the paltry remuneration. Experience is a great teacher. It reveals truths that are not to be found anywhere else. The experiences that come to a Christian in his daily walk with God are often indisputable facts to the innate self, but of which no proof can be given to another than the spoken word.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Happy the persecuted on account of Righteousness; for theirs is the kingdom of the heavens!"—Matt. 5:10, Diag.

The Psalmist says, 34:19, "Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." After Paul had recited his hardships, his trials and persecutions, he said that the Lord said unto him, "My grace is sufficient for thee". Then he goes on to say, "I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distress for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong".

In 2 Tim. 3:11, 12, Paul speaking again of his persecutions, says, "Out of them all the Lord delivered me"; and "All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution". Christians who endure persecution for their Christian way of living are being fashioned to enter into the kingdom that is being prepared for them that love and obey Him. Happy are they for it.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Handicaps of Missionaries

Tradition, handed down by profane history, tells us that Abraham's father was an idolater and a maker of idols. Abraham destroyed the idols and tried to persuade his father and his own brothers to forsake their idolatry. They not only refused to worship God but persisted in their trade as idol makers. Abraham's disbelief in the current religion, together with his zeal for God, caused him to be cast into fire by Nimrod, founder and king of Babylon. God protected his missionary, Abraham, as He did the three Hebrew children of a later date. It was then that God called Abraham.

If the above be true, Abraham should seem more than ever a man of faith and determination. He no doubt was comforted many times by the thought which Paul later wrote to the Romans: "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Romans 8:18.—H. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Paul Worshiped Then Stoned at Lystra.

From Antioch Paul and Barnabas had gone to Iconium. Here they were very badly treated by the Jews and were forced to flee to Lystra and Derbe.

Our lesson today is a happening at the city of Lystra. Here there lived a man who had always been a cripple. This man had heard Paul preach and had such great faith that Paul healed him.

When the people saw what Paul had done, they said that Paul and Barnabas were gods (the people in this country worshiped idols, not God). They even brought oxen to make a sacrifice for them. But no! Paul and Barnabas would not allow this. They ran in among the people, crying, "Do not worship us, for we are only men, just as you are. You should worship only the God in heaven."

The close of our lesson gives us another picture. The Jews of Iconium and Antioch heard that Paul and Barnabas were in Lystra, so they followed them and continued to abuse them. Yes, they even stoned Paul and threw him outside the city for dead.

Did it take courage to preach in Paul's time?—V. C. T.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

FROM HERE AND THERE

Sr. Williamson, of Golden Rule Home, has been ill the past week, but at last report she was improved.

The many friends of Sr. Edna Allard, who has been ill for so long, were very happy to greet her at the Conference at Waterloo last week.

The Oregon church is glad to welcome back Sr. Azalia Winfrey, of Bosworth, Missouri, who was on hand for the opening of schools on August 31.

C. E. Randall writes us that he and his family are now settled in Fonthill, where Bro. Randall is pastor, and that Sr. Randall stood the trip very well.

Bro. and Sr. Wm. Lansbery, of Casey, Illinois stopped to say "hello" to some of the Oregon church folks, on Sunday morning, August 30. They were on their way home from a week's outing in Wisconsin.

Bro. Conner was at the office last week relative to his new duties as business manager. He had just returned from the Holbrook Conference and reported a very fine series of meetings with good attendance.

The churches of northern Illinois will hold their picnic on Labor Day as announced in previous issues. Bring your lunch and enough dishes for your own use and enjoy the afternoon together. Supper at 5 o'clock.

Bro. and Sr. Vernon Lansbery of Casey, Illinois, are visiting their son, George and family, at Beloit, Wisconsin, and daughters, Esta, Mrs. Harold Starbuck, and Kathryn, at Rockford, Illinois. All were attendants at services at Oregon on August 30.

Bro. Austin, who spent three or four days at the Conference at Waterloo last week, reports a very full program consisting of Bible study, sermons and business. The problem of beginning a series of building operations with a view to affording permanent structures, both for the Conference and the local church, is under consideration. This should result in a wonderful impetus to the work in Iowa.

Order of services at Burr Oak (Indiana) church have been changed. They now have young people's Berean meeting on Thursday evenings at eight o'clock and prayer meeting and senior Berean class on Friday evenings. Sunday School at 9:30 and morning worship at 10:30, with evening worship at 7:30, each Sunday. Bro. C. A. Smead of the Training Class is pastor.

MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

The Conference Board wishes to announce a fall meeting at the Blanchard church from September 22 to 27, inclusive. Bro. F. E. Siple will be the speaker.

Services will start Tuesday night, September 22, and continue daily over the following Sunday, and the conference will convene the last three days of the meeting.

An urgent invitation is extended to all interested in the cause throughout Michigan to be present and give encouragement to this meeting.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Mora, Minnesota
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25
Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkhite, Brantford, Ont.
Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher, Deerfield, Fla.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn, Culver, Ind.

RALLY DAY

Rally Day at Oregon, Illinois, has been set for the first Sunday in October. We hope that the Sunday Schools and churches over the country have already set their dates and begun their preparations for the biggest and best Rally in the history of their organizations. The beginning of schools this month brings the young folks back to their permanent residence for the coming school year. If you are located in a larger town or city, get in touch with those young people who may be attending school in your locality. This may be the means of increasing your attendance at Rally Day and throughout the year. Many older folks also move and settle in the vicinity of another church. Look them up and make them feel at home in your church. Rally all your forces for Rally Day.

THOSE NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS

A few classes who have been working for a map have not quite completed their number of new names to The Herald. Now is the time to close up the campaign, report your list to the office and receive your reward maps.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Fred Martin; Mrs. John H. Long; Mrs. D. Cronbaugh; David W. Elliott; C. N. Adams; Mrs. E. Blick; Jacob Christensen; Mrs. Mae Mick; Elmer Baxter; Mrs. G. W. Simpson; Mrs. Ida Renner Shepard; Mrs. Allen Johnson; W. E. Story; Mrs. Guy Lewis; Mrs. Alice Johnson; Mrs. R. P. Story; Samuel L. Burk; C. A. Nokes.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The pastor and family and the Grand Rapids church were pleased to have Bro. and Sr. Bernard Crofton and son Ivan for guests over the week end of August 23rd. They motored over on Friday from their home near the Plum River church in northwest Illinois and stayed till Monday.

Bro. and Sr. Randall and son were also guests the same week end at the Bridegam home, stopping here while enroute from Minnesota to Fonthill.

"Balloon Day" for our Sunday School attracted lots of attention. Bro. Slocum was in charge and had balloons by the dozens so that each child could have one to take home.

The orchestra has added another important instrument or two, and it gives promise of doing some real good work.

Always a welcome at the Grand Rapids church.
F. E. Siple, Pastor.

NIAGARA FALLS AND FONTHILL

Bro. George Kennard is still suffering from neuritis, although slightly improved.

On Sunday evening, August 16, Bro. Melville Lyon of Cleveland, Ohio, who came to Fonthill to conduct the funeral of Sr. Price, during our pastor's absence, gave us a very interesting sermon on "Promises". Bro. Lyon visited the homes of several of the brethren during the week, and we were all very happy to make his acquaintance.

On account of Bro. Randall's delayed arrival, Bro. Wm. Moore of the Falls church very kindly came to Fonthill for the evening service last Sunday. He gave us very splendid thoughts and we greatly appreciated his coming.

Holiday season is now drawing to a close, and no doubt a more regular attendance will be the result. It will also mean that the choir will be resuming regular practice very shortly.

Bro. and Sr. Randall and Celaine arrived the first of the week. We were all so glad that Sr. Randall was able to come, and we know it took a great deal of will power and courage on her part to make the long trip. She no doubt was upheld and strengthened by our loving Father, and we pray He will continue to bless and make her happy here.

JOY IN HEAVEN

We are told that there is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth; and there should be joy in the church also. It was the privilege of the writer to speak to the congregation at Mora, Minnesota, on Sunday evening, August 16, and on Monday evening a large group gathered on the banks of Snake river, where by the lights of the cars we baptized five into the all-saving name of Jesus—the greater Light. There are several others seriously considering this step, and the writer feels that a series of meetings should be held there by someone this fall and garner in this wheat. We pray God's richest blessing to rest on this field and especially on these young people who have forsaken the world for the Lord Jesus. Those baptized are, Muriel and Ella Randall, Gladys Backlund, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Graves, Jr., all of Mora, Minnesota.
C. E. Randall.

ACTIVITIES AT LOS ANGELES

The Los Angeles church experienced a feeling of sadness when informed that our beloved pastor, Bro. G. E. Marsh, had been called to take up work in another part of the Master's vineyard. We will miss him very much, but we appreciate the fact that the position he has been called upon to fill, is one that requires qualifications that few possess. We feel that he will be lacking only in physical strength, and we pray that God will sustain him for his many new duties.

Bro. E. E. Rogers will conduct the church services on August 20. The congregation has enjoyed discourses by Brothers McLeod and Corbaley also, during July and August.

A picnic was held in Westlake Park on Saturday afternoon, August 22, for the children's classes of the Sunday School. Bro. W. B. Ward, our assistant Sunday School superintendent, attended and helped to entertain the little ones.

Sr. Wilda Fletcher and two daughters, who have been visiting her mother, Sr. Emily Blackwell of 804 Phelps Ave., during the summer is planning to return to her home in Fonthill, Ontario, about September 7. We will miss them at services.

Bro. E. E. Crundwell is building an addition to his home, which will provide an extra room to each side of the double bungalow.

Services were resumed at Lynwood again on the afternoon of August 23rd.

Sr. Mary J. Calkins, of 3714 E. Josephine St., Lynwood, will celebrate her eighty-fifth birthday anniversary on August 31st. She is one of the most remarkable Christian characters we have ever met, active and interested in the things concerning the kingdom of God and trying to interest those who are following a perverted gospel. May she live to be among those who are changed in the twinkling of an eye.

JOHN E. ORCHARD

Bro. Orchard was 83 years old. He was quite heavy and not able to walk much, but was up and around every day until his death. He realized that his strength was going, but was always cheerful and glad to see his friends, who were quite numerous. He retired at night as usual, on August 17, and was found by his niece, Mrs. Georgia Fiseus, next morning in the peaceful sleep of death. By request of Sr. Orchard, in the absence of our pastor, Bro. G. E. Marsh, Bro. J. E. Hammond conducted very appropriate funeral services on August 20, and he was laid to rest in Rosedale Cemetery to await the resurrection morn.
Emma C. Railsback.

TEXAS CONFERENCE REPORT

The tenth annual conference of the Church of God in Texas convened at Riviera, July 10, 1931. Brothers Austin and Stewart were the ministers present. Exceptionally good interest was shown throughout the meeting. The Bible lessons and sermons were greatly enjoyed by all. Bro. Austin and Bro. Stewart alternated periods with the adult and young people's classes. Bro. Hall had charge of the children's class. We had two Bible class periods and two sermons each day.

The following officers were elected at this conference: E. W. Moses, 845 Gazin St., Houston, president; W. A. Hall, Sweetwater, vice president; Opal Robbins, Riviera, secretary; R. S. Knight, Kingsville, treasurer. Those mentioned above and Clint Scott, Sweetwater, and J. T. Whitley, Riviera, compose the executive board, which shall execute the decisions of the conference, and decide matters arising between the annual meetings of this conference. Mrs. S. V. Dismukes, Southton, was appointed correspondent for the Texas conference. Should you receive letters from her, or other members, please be kind enough to answer so that the writing will not seem to have been in vain.

It was decided to retain Bro. Stewart as evangelist. Send in your contributions for the support of the evangelist and of the conference to the treasurer. We are sincerely urging each one to do his best in the upbuilding of the church and its work in Texas. Don't depend on someone else to carry the load. Do your share. If you can't pull, push; but don't drag.

Three young people, Dollie Mae Robbins, Etoile Stebbins, and Verna Braun were baptized.

Next year's conference will be held at Riviera. Let us all plan to attend this conference and make it the best conference in the history of the church.

Your secretary and her sister, Dollie Mae, attended the General Conference at Oregon, Illinois. The work there was carried on beautifully, and we hope that more Texas people may attend next year's conference there.

Opal Robbins, Secretary.

AT HOME AGAIN

To the Indiana Brethren: We are home again. After going to the National Conference at Oregon, Illinois, we drove to Fredericktown, Missouri, to meet with the brethren there. We enjoyed instructive lessons and meeting old friends in both places.

I wish every member of the Church of God could attend the National Conference and receive some of the inspiration of the services there. We visited the N. B. I. farm, the greenhouse, the Home and print shop. All of the property is something to be proud of.

The Home is not only a house, but really a home to the dear older brethren who live there. It is so homelike, with beautiful grounds, plenty of shade, a fine sun parlor where the home folks may read and visit each other. At the print shop we saw our paper being made ready for the mail.

Bro. Austin, always busy and always smiling, found time to take our party over the points of interest. We enjoyed every moment of our stay in Oregon, and hope to be able to return.

After leaving Oregon we went to Fredericktown, Missouri, where we were met with the usual hearty welcome found among our people. It has been rather dry in that section of the country this year, but they were blessed with four days of rain during our visit. Some of the by roads are not improved and became very bad, but it did not seem to dampen the spirit of these people. They put on skid chains or drove teams. At any rate the church was full at each service. If we could only have such attendance at all of our churches! We enjoyed the services and lessons, and came home to find our local Sunday School running along nicely, thanks to the Father and our stay-at-home brethren. Such things encourage us to carry on in the work in our humble way.

We pray that the new National officers will be given the support of all and be led by the Father in all things, and that after a much needed rest, our retiring secretary, Bro. Austin, may find a place of activity where he is most needed. We all feel that he deserves a rest after the long years of service he has rendered in the National Work.

May the Father lead us all during the coming year that we may be faithful, working together to proclaim the good news of the coming kingdom to a troubled world. Mark 16: 15; Matt. 28:19, 20.

In the Master's Service,
D. G. Harvey.

APPRECIATION

I have for some time felt that a word from me as a reader of The Restitution Herald might be encouraging to the writers for the paper, especially the members of the Training Class, who have been writing some excellent and instructive articles. Some of them, not knowing who they are, the reader would take to be old and experienced exponents of the Word.

As a youth of eleven or twelve years, I remember the faces, as well as writings of such leaders as H. V. Reed, S. A. Chaplin, Henry Logan, Hugh Barnhill and others. The words spoken and written by present day leaders of the church will be remembered fifty or sixty years from now by the younger listeners and readers of today, as I now remember those of my youthful days. I notice names of people of Culver, Burr Oak and Plymouth, Indiana, familiar to me in my school days, seventy-five or more years ago—Osborn, Zechiel, Dickson, Corbaley. May these latter day writers and workers be remembered as I do those of the years gone by.

Some may recall the name of my father, R. F. (Frank) Shirley, who lived one-half mile north of Lake Maxinkuckee, one mile northeast of Uniontown as it was then called.

May the workers, old and young, be led to keep the work going until our Redeemer comes to make up His jewels in His coming kingdom on earth.

S. T. Shirley.

Word has been unofficially received that Bro. John Denchfield, of the Training Class, has been chosen pastor of the Eden Valley (Minnesota) church. We pray God's blessing upon him and his labors for the Master.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old, and new addresses.

To Stop Paper.—It will be our policy to follow the general desire of our readers and to continue sending THE RESTITUTION HERALD to subscribers until notified that discontinuance is desired. Therefore, if you do not wish your paper continued, kindly write us to that effect promptly upon expiration of your subscription. When paper is ordered stopped, please remit for any arrearages on subscription.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1: 32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

SALVATION

(Continued from front page)

notice how frequently the Scriptures promise long life as the crowning blessing, and its premature loss, the greatest evil that can befall. Let anyone carefully note this fact throughout the Old Testament, and it will explain, as nothing else will, Christ's glad message of eternal life. All through Scripture, the truth is emphasized that the wages of sin is death; that men through sin have forfeited eternal life, and are powerless to regain it.

The Lord Jesus was the last of the prophets. Note the difference in His message from that of the others. They were simply God's messengers to warn the nation of their evil ways and coming doom, and here their message stopped. He spoke as man never yet spoke and said, "My sheep hear my voice . . . and I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish."

Again, He said, "Except ye repent we shall all likewise perish." To Him the one was as real as the other. Evil men would perish as literally and in the same manner as those upon whom the tower of Siloam fell: and those who believed on Him would just as literally not perish, but receive eternal life through Him.

Man through sin had forfeited eternal life or immortality, and Jesus as the Sin-bearer could not save Himself and others, too, for the wages of sin is death. God would have all sin put away and buried out of sight. It is His divine plan that sin when it is finished brings forth death. Thank God, here is the guaranteed end of sin. It is finished then. Jesus as the Sin-bearer had to die and be buried and so make an end of sin. The sinner also has to die, because God cannot tolerate sin.

Christ, however, was holy, harmless, and undefiled, and for that reason (we say it reverently) God could not in justice allow the grave to hold Him. He was in honor bound to give Him His life back again by resurrection from among the dead. For to this end Christ both died and rose and revived (lived again), that He might be Lord both of the dead and the living. Others "lived and died", but Christ died and lived again, and only by virtue of His second life has He the power now to "save others."

Sin and death are making havoc in this world of ours, but praise God, there is a time coming when sin will be "finished", and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain. He did not "save himself," for which we shall ever praise His name, but God did, in that He raised Him from the dead.

Reader, "none can keep alive his own soul," terrible fact indeed! But God will redeem his soul from the power of the grave. Praise ye the Lord!—From THE RESTITUTION HERALD of June 19, 1923.

—o—
"THE best of men and the most earnest workers will make mistakes enough to make them humble. Thank God for mistakes and take courage."—Dwight L. Moody.

A FEW VAGARIES

(Continued from page 761)

survives to suffer or praise, as the case may be?

Once more, dear Bishop (I know the dinner bell has rung), explain this, Psa. 6:4-6, "And my soul is troubled exceedingly; but thou, O Lord, how long? Turn to me, O Lord, and deliver my soul; O save me for thy mercies sake. For there is no one in death that is mindful of thee; and who shall confess thee in hell?"

I suppose, dear Bishop, there are no priests in purgatory, and that is why the poor souls who know not anything, have no one to confess to.

Before we go in to dinner, I would quote just once more. I hope that what I have said has not impaired your appetite. You appear to enjoy the good things of life. Psa. 48:18-21: "For when he shall die he shall take nothing away; nor shall his glory descend with him. He shall go in to the generations of his fathers: and he shall never see light. Man when he was in honour did not understand; he hath been compared to senseless beasts, and made like to them."

I notice that the footnote to verse 18 reads, "In the morning, that is, in the resurrection, to a new life; when the just shall judge and condemn the wicked." So then according to this, if we are to have a "new life", what has happened to the old one? the one that went to heaven, hell, or purgatory? And if the just are to judge and condemn the wicked, why are you praying for your friend before the judgment "seat of God"?

Do you accept the teachings of your own Bible? which says, "That thou mayest walk in a good way; and mayest keep the paths of the just. For they that are upright shall dwell in the earth, and the simple shall continue in it. But the wicked shall be destroyed from the earth (not purgatory): and they that do unjustly shall be taken from it." Psa. 2:20-22.

A PRAYER

Lord of Harvest, we truly thank Thee,
For the fields of ripened grain;
Come Thou and give us courage
To gather in the world of men.

Our feeble hands cannot wield the sickle,
That must be so sharp and true,
For the fields are rough and rugged,
And without Thee we cannot subdue.

But we know when Thou art with us,
Our hands are staid from morn till night,
And by Thy everlasting mercies
We are able to win the fight.

—H. S. Lasher.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 8, 1931

NUMBER 49

The Great Theme of the Bible

By Norman John McLeod

WITH a great telescope we might peer into limitless spaces of the universe—those spaces that baffle the imagination! Even the closest heavenly bodies are so far away as to be beyond the comprehension of our feeble intellects. We are overwhelmed to know that there is a mind that controls all the great parts of the universe—a mind that sets all in order according to a great plan. And we agree, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

But we need not explore the universe. We need not examine distant space. We need not strain our eyes into regions lying at the edge of creation. We need but look about us upon this comparatively small, this insignificant planet of ours to see that only a fool could be an atheist.

On the surface of this scarred old earth there are things on every hand awe-inspiring enough without using a telescope. The wonders of the crust, so-called, of the earth remain largely an unsolved mystery that can absorb the entire time of men to study for many lifetimes without fear of exhausting the subject matter. But the physical world is merely the ground-work for the more important life which God put upon the earth. The myriad life that the world holds makes us exclaim, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

The other day I watched for a long time some water snails in a fish pool. They were swimming about in a laborious fashion. Only with the greatest effort were these animals able to propel themselves about, moving only an inch or so at a time. How out of date they appeared; how much like a museum relic they seemed—a relic of forgotten ages! Yet those animals were in another sense an interesting novelty. No fool could have made one of them! No! not the wisest man among us. Not the most learned scientist who holds all the degrees possible could begin to create anything nearly as remarkable. These most learned scientists spend their whole lives in studying the most minute of God's creations and speculate upon the manner of life of such creatures and cannot learn all the secrets. "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

But more fascinating is life itself. How did it come about? Many men at many times have speculated through whole libraries of volumes as to how it came about. They have tried and tried again to create in the laboratory the smallest particle of living substance, but to no avail. Many experiments of most absorbing character can be performed on living things to satisfy the curiosity of man, but the basic facts of life are still a mystery. "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

But of all God's creations man is the most interesting. Plants show a very meagre sort of an instinctive toward food, sunlight, and water, but they do not think. A fish is governed by its instincts. Even our horses, dogs, and cats show no signs of selective intelligence. A cow does not keep a record of her life to hand down to her descendants. There is no parliament of the dogs that issues laws for the education of the canine race. The birds do not sit in solemn conclave to condemn the murderous acts of their feathered fellows. And no animals, however well trained, devote a period of time out of each week for the worship of the eternal God. "I will praise thee," says the Psalmist, "for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well." Man is indeed the supreme creation.

So we might speculate, investigate, record, and experiment to learn the great truths of nature. But God's Word is concerned with these things. Moses was not writing a treatise on geology when he wrote Genesis. Nor was he writing a textbook on biology or evolution, nor even the more intricate science of the stars. He was not concerned even in writing a history of mankind.

Inspired history does not serve, as does profane history, to record the whole record of the race. Here and there small portions of all the sciences are introduced into the biblical account. Historical episodes are interspersed with

(Continued on page 778)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

CHRISTIANITY

MAY we again venture to emphasize the meaning of Christianity. It is more than a system of doctrine, more than the voice of a creed. It is more than a something that has come down from former generations. Indeed, Christianity does not flow from father to son.

Christianity in its truest sense is that which comes from Christ, and Christ only, to the individual. It may come in part from His gospel words, and indeed it does. It may come in part from the inbreathing or the overshadowing of His Spirit to those His followers, and it does. It is breathed into the heart of life. It permeates the individual through and through.

Christianity is that influence and power from the Master which Christianizes the heart, the soul, the thought, the deed, of the individual in Christ.

THE JEWISH NEW YEAR

AS THIS HERALD reaches the readers, the Jewish New Year will begin to dawn upon the country. This recalls to the Christian mind God's great work with His chosen nation Israel.

Many are the changes that Christianity has effected as regards God's dealings through Moses and yet it is not possible for the Christian to appreciate his God and his God's plans and purposes unless he shall also inform himself of, and benefit himself by the great truths of God through Moses.

The Jewish New Year is soon followed by the third great yearly feast of the sacred calendar. (The sacred calendar begins not with September but with March, while the national calendar begins with September.) This great feast, Yom Kippur, that is, the Feast of Tabernacles, is to the Gentile reader known more clearly as the Feast of Atonement. It was the tenth day of this seventh month (sacred calendar) or first month (Anna Mundane calendar) which was set aside for atonement. This was a very great festival of the Jews. It was upon this day that Aaron the high priest, and his successors, entered the Holy of holies of the tabernacle or temple, first for himself, then for the sins of the people, to accomplish atonement for them.

Our Savior's crucifixion harmonizes with the first of the three annual feasts of the Jews. His ascension just preceded, and was with a view to the second feast, that of Pentecost. Soon our Savior is to return and accomplish that atonement which was commenced in His death. It has long been a silent query in the mind of the writer whether or not this great event may not harmonize with this third and last of the annual Jewish feast days.

Soon he that is to come will come and will not tarry. Ominous signs of this coming event are continually increasing from year to year. Unless we are deceived by current conditions, it will not be long until the God of heaven, by the sweeping change introduced by the appearing of our Lord and Savior, will usher out this old dispensation and will usher in a new year and a new calendar under the reign of Christ His well beloved Son.

Would that both Jew and Christian would adjust themselves more carefully to the Father's inspired teachings that it might be theirs to enter the new era and the new year under Christ with the fullest of appreciation and remuneration.

OUR NEW GENERAL CONFERENCE BOARD

AGAIN we wish to take the opportunity to commend to one and all of the members of the General Conference, the new Board that was recently selected to carry on the labors of the church. The personnel of this Board was selected because of the belief that their respective places of residence and their respective strength of character would make the best working force for the furtherance of the Christian aims and efforts of the church.

Bro. L. E. Conner, pastor at Dixon, Illinois, who was chosen for President, is a man who has had wide and varied experiences, not only in church work but with business questions and matters of life. He is looked upon as a man of good business judgment, and conservative in make up, and one who looks more for lasting results than for superficial appearances. Bro. Leland Hanson, principal of the high school at Franklin Grove, Illinois, was chosen first Vice President. He is one of our younger men who has been more or less connected with our Conference work from its beginning and who has made a success in educational matters. Bro. Jos. H. Williams of Rochelle, Illinois, second Vice President, though retiring in his habits, has been a very successful farmer with good judgment and discernment, caution, and conservatism, and is one who enjoys the respect of all his acquaintances. Bro. G. Eldred Marsh, who was chosen as Secretary, is one of our leading Bible students. His labors in Iowa, in the Niagara section and in southern California have brought him prominently before many of our people who have learned to respect and honor him because of his sturdy habits of thought and work and because of his consecration spiritually to the leadings of his Master. Bro. Marsh has been given charge of the religious phase of our labor—editor, religious correspondent, and Bible teacher. Bro. T. J. Ellis of 319 Cutler St., Waterloo, Iowa, who was chosen Treasurer, is a man of unquestioned integrity. In daily life he has advanced with the Illinois Central Railway Company at Waterloo to be chief mechanic in the supervision and care of locomotives as they enter the machine shop of that city. By persistent labor and wise use of his earnings he has accumulated for himself a comfortable home, has provided college education for both daughter and son, and reveals evidences of frugal, cautious and yet wholesome management throughout. Bro. Ellis as financier merits the confidence and cooperation of the brotherhood everywhere.

We bespeak for the members of this new Board the heartiest cooperation and devotion of the entire brotherhood. We ask that you will give them your every assistance morally, intellectually and financially. We ask that you will realize that it is impossible for them to carry forward any line of work whatsoever, excepting as they shall do so in accordance with their own mental grasp of the same. Should their procedure in any way differ from what some one would think best, will that one please remember that no one can work best excepting in harmony with his own best personal judgment, that therefore these members of the Board cannot conform themselves to the method or manner which some brother may think best, but that they must work according to their own best way.

Bro. Conner, as President and Manager of the N. B. I. assumes his duties this day. It has been arranged that Bro. Marsh will assume his duties on November 1st.

May we again urge one and all to give most prayerful and hearty cooperation to the work of the General Conference and its N. B. I., and to these brethren as they undertake to carry this work forward to grand and glorious results.

THE WHITENED HARVEST

By M. A. Woodward

AFTER listening, on Sunday evening, August thirtieth, to the very earnest and eloquent sermon by Bro. Austin on the "Present World conditions," my brain burns, and fingers itch to tell the world how God is working, waiting for His children to earnestly spend their time searching, praying, and living for Him. While harvesting their fields and while doing all necessary things He wants them to let their minds dwell on His plan of the ages, and rejoice with joy and thanksgiving that this is the day long waited for, when truth can earnestly be spread. O! think of the many ways, unheard of, unthought of, a few years ago!

No one can tell these things better than our friend and brother who now sleeps, awaiting the glorious awakening, even the learned, C. A. L. Totten. He says:

"This is the day in which to spread the truth and give it to the world. There never was an age in which a herald could be heard over a wider area, nor one in which discussion could be so free and searching, and conclusions drawn from premises so multifarious. . . . There never was a day in which earnest Bible study was more necessary than this present one, nor was there ever one in which so rich a harvest stood ready for the reaping. . . ."

"Most religious people are literally afraid to investigate the Bible, and well they may be, if the canons of higher criticism are to guide their studies. Most of the laity consider it to be beyond their sphere, and so far as Moses and the prophets are concerned, even the clergy almost entirely neglect them.

"We readily grant that sin, repentance and the gospel of a Savior are the vital ends of apostolic work. Nevertheless we hold that Christ and the resurrection cannot be successfully preached in this age upon the undermined foundation left by the higher critics. It is well for them if they hold their own souls within the fold; we question it; but be this as it may, it is the rest of men that are the ones whom Christ desires to save. They have logic and cannot be savingly reached by any means other than a logical exegesis of the whole Bible, and a satisfactory explanation of its inspiration as such, upon the basis that it is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

"It will not do to preach Christ and deny Moses. It will not do to doubt the universality of the flood, and ask men to accept a Savior who alludes to it. It will not do to doubt Josiah's long day, with the sun and moon poised in mid-heavens while he fought, and yet stultify our hearts with hopes of a longer day when even sun and moon will not be needed! If the story of Eden and the deluge, of Jericho and Joshua, are myths or fables and not literal facts, then to the still rational mind all that follows them is equally so, and faith, lost in those who foretold His advent, can never be savingly and logically found again in Christ and His apostles.

"As the study of prophecy was impressively recommended by the Savior, we must study it and do so until we understand it; but in no wise may we dare to alter it in jot or tittle."

If this far-seeing man could foretell back in 1897, thirty-four years ago, of our day, what could he tell us if he were here now? But God has been alive while Totten sleeps, and His wonderful plan is being worked out, even in many ways as Totten saw it. The world is fast moving on to the time when the "dead in Christ shall rise first, and then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." And we just wait and shout, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly."

I KNOW NOT WHY

"I know not why He loved me;
I had no claim on Him,
With nothing to commend me
But guilt and shame and sin.

"No beauty was about me,
No beauty and no good;
He only chose to love me,
And that because He would.

"Yes! this is all the reason
That I can know or find,
Why He to me so worthless,
Should be so very kind.

"Oh! is it any wonder
That now my theme should be?
The Son of God who loved me
And gave Himself for me."

—o—

THE POWER OF TEMPTATION

By Samuel E. Haney

"But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death."—James 1:14, 15.
"Everyone is tempted as he is beguiled and allured by his own desire."—Moffatt.

TAKEN in conjunction with our text verse thirteen completes the basal significance of our lesson by reminding and cautioning us of the original fall into sin, namely, "Let no man say when he is tempted ('passing through trial,' Weymouth), I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man."

Let us reflect on the prototype of our text, Gen. 3:1-7. The serpent's ('devil', Rev. 12:9) subtle query was Eve's temptation, or trial. Verse 1, "Yea, has God said, ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?" Had Eve possessed the hardihood and fidelity to take God's commandments as fiat, she would have avoided the snare-bait which enticed her into that fatal conversation with the enemy. What a warning this is for us!

Note John's treatise, particularly his warning, of the word, lust, desire; how that this deteriorating lust is not of the Father, but the result of the devil's machination in the garden. "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust (or, desire) of the flesh, and the lust (desire) of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust (desire) thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." —1 John 2:15-17.

Satan beguiled and allured man from his "very good" —perfect—state, jeopardizing his chance of everlasting life. And those having discovered the Way back to Life, Jesus Christ, Peter also cautions, that they may not be victimized by a repetition of the garden tragedy: "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour."—I Peter 5:8.

But those not knowing the Way of Life and those knowing but shunning its practicality are heading toward everlasting death—God is no respecter of persons (Acts 10:34). To the scribes and Pharisees who were familiar with Christ's teachings but ignored them, He said, "Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers! how can ye escape the damnation of hell? (Gehenna), everlasting death."—Matt. 23:33.

But how different with the obedient ones! "Truly, truly I tell you, he who listens to my word and believes Him who sent me has eternal life; he will incur no sentence of judgment; he has already passed from death across to life."—John 5:24, Moffatt.

Fallen nature is governed exclusively by its senses; and is ever susceptible to idolatry, the weakest link in the human mental chain. Read typical Israel's weakness in this respect, Hosea 13:1-9. Note verses 5 and 6, "I did know thee in the wilderness, in the land of great droughts. According to their nature, so were they filled; they were filled, and their heart was exalted; therefore have they forgotten me"—drawn away of their own lust (desire), and enticed. Thus it has been during the Christian era and especially so during these closing days of the Gentile age.

Our text, in a special way, refers to the inception and progressiveness of sin. To this end we shall now treat the subject.

YIELDING TO TEMPTATION

The chief characteristics of fallen nature are greed and selfishness—carnivorous, internally and externally. Natural man is held partially in check by inability to gratify to the full his avaricious spirit. And ingratitude is increased as lust is gratified. This is clearly the spirit of Satan who craftily usurped temporary dominion over the human race.

The "lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life" have caused virtually all inventions, particularly mechanical, to be a curse instead of a blessing during the past century. Unregenerate man has thus become an insatiable, fiendish creature. And in proportion as he has yielded to ever increasing temptations, he has developed a greedy and licentious nature. Fortunately, however, there have always been many conspicuous exceptions, a conceded rule of the finite. But the major portion of the race are, as they always have been, devotees to everything that appeals to the flesh-traits that are inimical to real happiness and everlasting life.

(Continued on page 778)

HOW TO SECURE LESSON PREPARATION

DAILY READING CHART

WITH the rush and hurry of modern school days, it oftentimes seems impossible to get the pupils to make adequate lesson preparation. They come blithely to class with never a thought of the lesson, and one-half of the period is lost because the teacher must study the lesson for them, and expound it as they go.

Yet those youngsters all have hours when they wish for something to do, and it is that time that should be utilized for lesson preparation. The daily Bible readings will accomplish the desired results, and the teacher who checks up each Sunday morning on these readings will find that all those who followed them are prepared in a measure to discuss the lesson. They cannot read the references, and go through the week without some thoughts on the lesson.

So without constant haranguing at the class to "study the lesson," quietly institute a Bible reading contest, having each member report the number of days he read the scripture relating to the lesson.

The Banner Class in a western Sunday-school followed this plan with good results: They had a wall chart made which was a copy of the old Scripture roll in shape. But the reading would be Greek to any outsider. It consisted of a number of faces, followed by a long string of figures. The very oddity of the idea made it likeable. At the end of the quarter a new chart was put up, and the old one checked up. The person who had the highest number of daily readings came first on the new list, and those with fewest last. The little snapshot pictures were soaked loose and pasted to the new chart.

In order to get the members to study the lesson, the teacher must not only have it well in hand, but also have in mind lessons yet to come. He should outline just enough to show continuity of thought, purpose or plan, and briefly give the heart point for the following Sunday as it may apply to present conditions, leaving the members eager for more information.

To induce study, keep right up to the times in the discussion of present world conditions, as given in newspapers, magazines, and books. Tell how a certain article in a magazine or paper will strike in line with the coming lesson, and urge members to read it.

Again, after giving the practical application in advance, suggest that each member be on the lookout during the coming week for anything he may find in the papers along that line. Any wide-awake person can find something to clip.

In order to get the best results, the teacher must know his members. Get groups to meet some evening at the homes. In selecting groups it would be best to take persons of group tendencies and abilities—those who would have about the same mental grasp of things to be discussed.

Those who are backward, mentally, from timidity or other cause, should constitute a group by themselves, to meet with the teacher at some convenient time and place. With these the teacher should be very clear; show them how to study any Bible lesson; a few things to keep in mind—the time, place, persons; when written, by whom, to whom, and for what purpose. With these as a background, the real heart of the lesson will be more readily grasped.

Another plan for group meetings could be that of helping some one of the number to prepare for teaching the lesson in place of the teacher, the others to take certain features to give when called on by the leader, or present informally as a part of the lesson discussion. In some classes, group meetings might be by committees, and thus stimulate a pleasing and helpful rivalry.

When the teacher assigns parts in advance, he should be careful not to give a member something too hard. Should he do so, that one may find an excuse for being absent at that time.

Here are some assignments that might be made a week in advance:

Ask one to tell how the lesson applies to some present condition or phase of life.

Bring a comparative thought gleaned from secular reading.

Tell of one or more similar instances in the Bible.

Ask one to bring a certain object and apply it to the lesson.

Another to make a blackboard outline, his own, or one to copy.

Have one tell what to him seems the most important teaching in the lesson.

Hand one a short poem on the subject, to be given from memory.

WAS IT VIEWPOINT?

The teacher of the Adult Bible Class was puzzled. While he was waiting outside the grammar school for his little daughter, two boys about twelve years of age came from the school. Each was carrying two new books which the State had furnished him.

"These are pretty good books," one boy spoke hopefully to his friend.

"Naw—they ain't! They're too hard!" the other replied with both a dejected and disgusted air.

The teacher watched them as far as he could see them. He continued to wait for his little girl. He pondered. Both boys looked as if they had had equal advantages. Their alertness seemed on a par. What could have brought about such a wide difference of opinion regarding the new books? Was it viewpoint, lack of adaptation, or what was it? Suddenly he thought of his class members. He had received answers to lesson questions about as widely separated from the subject considered as these two boys had expressed. Over and over he asked himself, "What is it?"

Just as the little girl came out of the building to meet him, the reply to the self-asked question came to him as if from a clear sky. He knew now! It was study, also lack of study that had brought out the two replies from the boys. But how could he get the careless members of his class to study their Scripture lesson? Hadn't he admonished them to do so over and over?

By Sunday he had a plan that he would at least try. At the opening of the class he passed around slips of blank paper, requesting, "Will each of you that has studied the lesson before coming to class, please fold your strip of paper just once? Those who have not studied kindly fold it twice." Then he passed a hat and collected them. No marks of identification—no more was said about them. The members were now as puzzled as the teacher had been when hearing the boys express such widely divergent opinions.

After the class was dismissed, he counted the once-folded papers. Only seven out of twenty-seven had studied their lesson! No wonder he had been troubled with such random replies and opinions. He remembered, too, how he had noticed some of them while folding their papers twice to indicate "no studying" had watched others out of the corners of their eyes as if somewhat abashed. He felt sure that the "medicine was taking".

The next Sunday he did the same. This time he had an increase of four once-folded papers. He was patient. By the fourth Sunday all but two handed in once-folded papers. One prominent man seemed very proud to fold his blank slip only once. The teacher wondered what was back of it, but noted that the part he took in class was beneficial to all. Then on the fifth Sunday, the teacher told them how two boys had set him to thinking and caused him to work out the plan. Then the prominent member proudly boasted, "I had a hurry-up call out of town, but I stuffed my quarterly in the suit case." That accounted for his so proudly folding the paper just once. The plan was then discontinued. The teacher had instilled in the members of his class the necessity of studying the lesson before coming to class.—World's Crisis.

SWEET HOME

SOME tracts one day were distributed on the cars between New York and Philadelphia, and one of them entitled, "Home", was placed in the hands of a lady, who exclaimed, "Home! that is the sweetest word I ever knew."

Home, like other blessings, is most prized when lost. After weary years have come and gone, when amid storms and tossings we look back through time's lengthening shadows, to the quiet of our long-lost home, we can scarce repress our sighs. Every memory of a true home is hallowed.

Childhood scenes seem hazy with an enchanted atmosphere—the atmosphere of love. The irksome, the toilsome, and the wearisome things are forgotten, and love and memory enshrine the treasures of the past within our hearts. Home is love's empire.

Love wraps the whole household with a sweet and tender charm. Love stays the tottering steps of age; love watches over the cradle of helpless infancy; love guides the little feet of childhood; love strengthens the timid heart of patient, enduring woman; love smooths the furrows from the brow and drives anxieties from the heart of burdened, laborious man.

To his home he retires from all the petty vexings of the outside world, to find peace, and rest, and balm, and blessing. Thither, as to an ark of refuge, comes many a dove, with wounded, weary wing, having flown far and wide, between rough seas and stormy skies; and there many a troubled spirit, exhausted by the rude buffetings of the windy storm and tempest, gathers rest and refreshment, and plumes its pinions for a loftier flight.

Home is the grand hope of a scattered pilgrim church. Strangers and sojourners here, having no continuing city nor abiding place, the Lord has been their Home through all generations (Psa. 90:1), and is still the refuge of their lost and troubled souls. But the fulness of the grand idea of home is only found in the city of our God, the palace of His kingly and eternal glory. It is of this that the Savior spoke to His disciples, saying, "In my Father's house are many mansions"—many homes. And it is there that all the homesickness of a struggling, longing church shall have its final end.

As pilgrims and strangers here, we are to pass the time of our sojourning in faith and in fear. But this will not be long. Home is not far away. A few more weary stages and we shall reach the goodly country, cross the threshold of our Father's house, enter into peace and be at home.

"Let not your hearts be troubled," said the Savior; "Ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you; and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also."

Thus we shall at last go home. He will come again and receive us to Himself. Our exile is but for a day, our light affliction "but for a moment". "Yet a little while, and he that shall come will come." Even now the eye of faith is fixed upon the gathering pomp of His majestic advent; and the ear of faith listens for the deepening roll of the chariot wheels of the Lord.

Faith contemplates the opening heavens, the sparkling crowns, the advancing throng, the everlasting glory. Home is not far away. Let us press forward with fresh courage till we gain it. God grant that this home may be yours and mine forever more.—Selected by Rufus A. Curtis.

"THE person who absents himself frequently from the church loses his interest and responsibility in the things which the church is endeavoring to promote and the gospel it is seeking to proclaim. The real religion of the church comes to the individual through persistent attendance upon the sanctuary. The relation of the human being to his Creator is here learned and believed; duties to God and man are outlined and made a part of his program. To excuse, condone or ignore non-attendance is a sure way for the church to miss its opportunity. Increased church attendance enables the church to be what it was intended to be in the life of the community."

THE WAY, THE TRUTH AND THE LIFE

By R. H. Judd

THE GOSPEL of the Lord Jesus Christ is a unique religion, standing utterly by itself and apart from all other religions. Indeed, it has often been pointed out, and rightly, that Christianity is not a "religion" at all. As Joseph Parker, that giant figure of a past generation who preached so eloquently in the City Temple, London, once said: "You can talk, if you will, about comparative religions, but Christianity is not one of them."

The uniqueness and the necessary exclusiveness of the Christian Gospel are plainly and uncompromisingly declared in the Scriptures. There is but one God, and He is the Creator of all men. When mankind fell into sin and incurred the "wages of sin," which is death, there was only One who could deal with the sin question, and that was God Himself. He did so, when He gave His only Son to become man and to die for the sins of the whole world. He, Himself sinless, was the only one who could bear the sins of all men; He became their Savior.

When this work of redemption was finished, at such unspeakable cost to the Father and the Son, God called upon men to accept this great gift in the sacrifice of His Son and be saved. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

There is no other way to be saved. Any religion that offers men salvation in any other way offers them a stone instead of bread, death instead of life.

Men once asked the Lord, "What shall we do that we might work the works of God?" Jesus answered and said unto them, "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." After the death and resurrection of Christ, the Apostle Peter, by inspiration of God, rang out the eternal truth: "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

It makes a vast difference what religion we accept. If we accept, no matter how sincerely, the best that can be offered by Mohammedanism, or Buddhism, or Taoism, or Theosophy, or Bahaim, or any one of the hundreds of other religions, instead of accepting God's gift of life through the death and resurrection of His Son, we are lost. This is not man's opinion, but God's revelation. Whether we believe it or not does not alter the facts that God says are facts.

Christians, therefore, have a sacred stewardship, an obligation, to declare the truth in this matter and to expose the deadly falsehoods so widespread and popular; for, unless God's people do this, who is there on earth to do it? The Apostle Paul wrote burning words of denunciation of those who offer men "another gospel" than the only gospel of the grace of Christ. "But though we," declared Paul, "or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed."

Paul's burning intolerance of all other religions than that of Christ sprang from his divinely given knowledge that there is only one way to be saved, and that by faith in Him who said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life." The same Paul wrote the ringing words: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

HOW MANY

1. Camels did Abraham's servant take when seeking a wife for Isaac? 2. Rivers in the garden of Eden? 3. Loaves did Jesus use to feed the five thousand? 4. Pieces of gold did Naaman take on his journey to Elisha? 5. Stones did David get from the brook? 6. Years are allotted to man? 7. Men did Gideon take with him when he went against the Midianites? 8. Months older was John than Christ?

—Selected.

AT THE ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL AND GENERAL CONFERENCE

BY NO means least appreciated at the recent gatherings at Oregon was the music which to more than any other person should be accredited to the untiring and competent labors of Sr. Frank Rogers of Oregon, Illinois. Music in religious worship can be made to be a veritable uplift and inspiration, or it can be of that rap and tap type of the day which is too often found even in religious gatherings.

In his psalms David poured forth some of the deepest spiritual truths that issued from his life. His most exultant praises to God and his deepest sorrows are found in psalm; his greatest energy of effort and labor as also his deepest submission to the Father were placed in verse and handed to the chief musician for repeated temple service.

Nor was David alone in breathing forth the spiritual truths of God shown within his soul, in music. Solomon and the prophets followed in this particular in David's footsteps. They, too, resorted to psalm in the deep emotions of their lives.

Nor was Psalmist or prophet content with mere vocal praise. Their voices were accompanied by the beat of the drum and cymbal, by the clarion notes of the trumpet and by the sweet tones of the string instruments.

Mrs. Rogers, whose accomplished musical talents are sought by many far and near, has gratuitously given of her services to the little church at Oregon as also to the annual gatherings of the Illinois Bible School and the conferences. She has succeeded in creating the heart and the voice of worship, both in instrument and in song, in these services. For this great aid in music and for the wonderful influences that are realized therefrom, every speaker and coworker, as also the people of the audience were again made most grateful and appreciative for the inspiring music at these gatherings.

AFTER THE STORM

There is a peace that cometh after sorrow,
Of hope surrendered, not of hope fulfilled;
A peace that looketh not upon tomorrow,
But calmly on the tempest that is stilled;

A peace that lives, not now in joy's excesses,
Nor in the happy life of love secure,
But in th' unerring strength the heart possesses,
Of conflicts won while learning to endure.

A peace there is in sacrifice secluded,
A life subdued, from will and passion free;
'Tis not the peace that over Eden brooded,
But that which triumphed in Gethsemane.

The peace of God that passeth understanding,
When God's will differs from our own,
We trust Christ still, with faith erect, unbending;
'Tis then He sends rich blessings from His throne.
—Selected.

SEEING THE FATHER THROUGH THE SON

By Lottie E. Young

MANKIND has always felt the need of a God, but often has not known how to find Him. The early Greeks and Romans made statues of men and women, representing all the elements of nature to be found on the land, in the sea and air, and worshiped them, even though they were full of human vices. Savages don't know God well enough to want His company; they are afraid He might hurt them, and so they try to reach His ear at a distance, with the hope that He will send down what they need.

Buddha, whom hundreds of thousands of East Indians worship, was not sure about the gods, but if there were any he believed they were indifferent to the sorrows of humanity and it was useless to look to them for any real help. If the world was to be saved from evil it would have to be saved by the truth, and so he devoted his life to spreading a knowledge of what he believed to be the truth. All Confucius thought humanity needed was a better set of principles and rules to live by; at any rate he did not feel called upon to provide anything else.

The Hebrew religion was designated to help men to live with God, and the Bible proves to us that some of the greatest minds of the ages grasped the idea of a loving Father, as well as a just Judge. But the mass of the people had such a vague conception of Him that even the prophets could not open their eyes.

If these wonderful writers had only been able to point to a man, then living, or to a well-known character in the past, and tell them that God was like that man, and that if they would only listen to him and try to do his will, they would somehow grow to have a conscious touch with God!

In the city of Florence, Italy, in an old palace, there is a wonderfully beautiful ceiling, painted by a celebrated artist. But it was so far above the heads of those who wanted to study its details that many of its fine points were lost. Then somebody used his brains and placed a looking glass right under it and a short distance below the head of the average man, so that all could see reflected in it the marvelous work which Guido Reni had put on the ceiling.

In the "upper room", on the last night of the life of Jesus on earth, Philip said to Him, "Lord, shew us the Father." Then came the gentle rebuke and the words, "I am in the Father, and the Father in me." And so Jesus is the "looking glass" in which we may see the attributes of God which were displayed in the Son. How different He is to the old time so-called deities of vengeance and blood, as we shall see if we think over just a morning in His life.

The great Sacrifice had been made, and it is the resurrected Christ which carries out His promise to meet His immediate followers in Galilee. Peter has said, "I go a fishing", and six others join him. But though they toiled hard all night, they took nothing and must have been tired and discouraged, just as we would have been. But when "day was breaking Jesus stood on the beach." How long He had been there watching we do not know, but we do know He called to them, "Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and ye shall find". Then came the miracle of the "multitude of fishes", and for these tired men a breakfast.

The same God who cared for these unfortunate fishermen has a similar interest in our affairs. The same One, who stood by to refresh the bodily wants of those who had put their trust in Him, is just as ready to help those today who acknowledge Him as Lord. It was in the night that He came to them, and so through our darkest periods of depression His hand is ready to lift us up.

Has your little child ever awakened in the night, perhaps after a bad dream, and scared by the darkness all around him, has called out, "Father?" Your quiet, "I am here, go to sleep," has satisfied him, and soon you have heard his gentle breathing. There are so many things our finite brains cannot comprehend of God's great plan of salvation, but can we not believe He doeth ALL things well and trust throughout the darkness?

I heard of an incident recently when a sudden and terrible death had taken a beloved son. When a member of the family was asked how the mother stood the blow (she was the only Christian in the household), the answer was, "Wonderfully calm; you know she has something the rest of us have not." Just the thought expressed by David: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me."

Surely Jesus was a true "looking glass" of the Father. But what are our lives reflecting of the love displayed by Him? May we all say with the man of old, "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee", and remember our Father is a God of comfort at all times.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE A CHRISTIAN?

G O D

By George B. Alldridge

THE closing sermon of General and Illinois Conference was given by Bro. G. E. Marsh, and it was filled with earnest words of admonition and exhortation. He directed our minds to a consideration of the true Christian and the manner in which he follows his Guide, bringing this out by a comparison of one who guides us in unknown regions on our travels.

"When we walk through unknown places, we select a guide, one who has been over the road before us, one who knows every step of the way. And we watch him very carefully; we observe his every act; we step exactly in his steps. That is all it means to be a Christian," said Bro. Marsh, "just accepting the leading of the greatest Guide of all time, following closely in His steps, observing His every caution and direction.

"If our guide warns us not to touch a certain vine, we will take the word of our guide and avoid that vine. That is all it means to follow Jesus. We will take Him at His word; we will observe His every warning with the greatest care. For we will know He has been over the road before us, and He knows the dangers.

"We watch an earthly guide as he grasps the treacherous thorns and thrusts them aside to protect us. Even so, our heavenly Guide is careful lest the thorns injure those following behind Him. And we will exercise the greatest care not to allow them to harm those who follow us.

"It is easier for us to travel now," continued the speaker, "because pioneers have blazed the trails for us. They have marked out the roads and noted the danger spots. The Lord Jesus Christ has been over the road before us, conquered the dangers, and placed sign posts for our eternal welfare along the way of life.

"In engaging an earthly guide we inquire if he is able to rescue us should we fall. And we ask of our heavenly Guide, 'Who art Thou, Lord?' The answer comes back, 'I am the Son of the living God. My words are not my own, but those of my Father'. Surely we can trust One who speaks God's words, One who has been sent to us by the Father Himself! We will not only follow such a Guide, but we will ask Him for information about the road that will lead us closer to God.

"If we should encounter a storm, would our Guide leave us to perish? Those reassuring words come back to us with unmistakable emphasis, 'Lo, I am with you alway.' In every emergency He is at hand to aid, to assist, to encourage us to continue the journey. If we make mistakes, He is there to correct and forgive and lead us onward."

Bro. Marsh concluded with an earnest exhortation to the young people to follow their Guide, for that is what being a Christian consists of—taking Jesus at His word, observing the injunctions He puts upon us, walking in His steps all along the way, even unto the pathway of life eternal.

WHAT a theme to write upon! It would hardly seem necessary to attempt to prove that God is, and that, "in him we live, and move, and have our being". Yet the prophet declares, "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me. I, even I, am the Lord; and beside me there is no saviour." —Isaiah 43:10, 11.

How wonderfully this text illuminates 1 Timothy 4:10: "For therefore we both labour and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the saviour of all men, specially of those that believe."

These words verify Psalm 104:29, 30: "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust. Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth."

No wonder David cries out, "Oh how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee; which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men! Thou shalt hide them in the secret of thy presence from the pride of man; thou shalt keep them secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues." —Psalm 31:19, 20.

"O Lord, how manifold are thy works; in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches." —Psalm 104:24.

Job's friends were very wise men, and some of the questions Zophar asked of Job cannot be answered by our wise men of today. Here is one: "Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection?" —Job 11:7.

Here is one God asks, "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion? Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth, in his season? or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons? Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven? Canst thou set the dominion thereof in the earth?" —Job 38:31-33.

William Paley, D. D., gave us a wonderful gift in his immortal work, A Review of the Evidences of Christianity. All writers seeking to prove the existence of God base their arguments largely on the unanswerable propositions set forth by Dr. Paley. Hence the writer, who can never rise above mediocrity in discussing theological subjects, prefers silence; but on matters biblical he delights to speak or write at every opportunity.

Psalm 14:1 reads, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. They are corrupt, they have done abominable works, there is none that doeth good."

A local preacher in the Methodist Church one Sunday selected this as his morning text. The following was his poetry and declamation. For what purpose? To record the deeds of great men? Or to give us a picture of the life of the time? No! To show God's way toward man; to tell of His love, His mercy, and His kindness to us! Not science, but God is the main theme of the Bible. Not geology, but righteous living! Not biology, but to do His will! Not even psychology, but of man's peculiar position on earth, his relation to the only begotten of God!

(Continued on back page)

THE GREAT THEME OF THE BIBLE

(Continued from front page)

When David looked into the starry heavens, he was not interested in theories of celestial mechanics, nor in the establishing of a theory of relativity; but in God in His relation to man. Outside of the Psalms and certain portions of the Prophets, nature is not the subject of the Bible. And even in those passages it is to show the glories of God in the kingdom age.

Let the Modernist and the Fundamentalist argue—neither one has come to the basic truth of the Bible—God!

“In the beginning, God ——”! In the end—God!

“I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last.” Rev. 22:13. All else is speculation; all else is chaff.—A sermon given at the Church of God in Los Angeles, California.

THE POWER OF TEMPTATION

(Continued from page 772)

David's prophetic mind visualized the conditions we see and experience: They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wit's end". Margin, "all their wisdom is swallowed up".—Psalm 107:27. Read verses 23 to 29.

The gradual increase of recklessness on the part of individuals and nations during recent years in the matter of luxurious and extravagant living, pleasure seeking and national lavish expenditures has created a world wide unique financial crisis. Myriads of day laborers and artisans, who five years ago had steady employment at a good wage, are now financially stranded with a helpless and hopeless outlook, without money, credit, or employment. And the list is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Nations, too, are tottering from pillar to post. The statesmen of Germany, Spain, and England are at their wits' end in keeping their ships-of-state afloat. And the United States is spending money like a drunken sailor. And so the drunken rampage is in evidence among all nations. Twenty-two countries, in their endeavors to continue functioning have made radical changes in their constitutions since the world war, namely, Afghanistan, Albania, Estonia, China, Finland, Lithuania, Egypt, Latvia, Germany, Irish Free State, Free City Danzig, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Greece, Turkey, Iceland, Iraq, Yugoslavia, Spain, and Soviet Russia.

In conclusion we shall have David's explanation of the effect of yielding to temptation, and the triumphant power of divine love, as set forth in the thirty-sixth Psalm, paraphrased by John Edgar McFadyen.

“The rise and progress of sin is after this manner. First it utters its oracular word in the bad man's heart, and he has no fear of God to deter him from cherishing it. Then it goes on to flatter him in his own eyes. After that, the hidden thought passes into speech and utters itself in evil and deceitful words. Then the sinner ceases to act with prudence: he plots deliberate mischief, enters on a course of wrong, and finally learns to love evil.

“Yet the ultimate triumph shall not be his; for thou, Jehovah, art mindful of thine own. Thy rule, which is merciful and just, stretches throughout the universe. Thy faithful love reaches to the sky. Thy judgments are deep as the ocean and firm as the mountains. Thou art the savior of man and beast. How precious is thy love, O God! In thy protecting providence we trust. For we are thy guests on earth, and in thy house we enjoy a gracious and abundant hospitality. Thou art the source of life and gladness. When thy face shines upon us, all is well.

“O let the godly continue to enjoy thy love! Never may the proud foot trample upon me, nor the godless hand drive me out of the land. Already in vision I see the wicked prostrate, without the power to rise.”

THE REVELATION OR THE APOCALYPSE

By Lyman Booth

AS MANY writers have done before me, I shall not attempt to write a large volume concerning this book, which closes the canon of Holy Scripture and is almost entirely unlike any other of the New Testament writings. It is more highly symbolical than any other book of the New Testament. Its imagery is the most striking and awful. Nothing can be more sublime than the description of our Savior in the first chapter, and the events in the history of the church are presented in symbols and language almost as sublime.

There is a lofty and earnest tone in the addresses to the several churches, in which the writer reaches the loftiest heights without effort. While it may be thought that he borrows a part of his imagery from the Hebrew prophets, he, in some respects, surpasses them, for his descriptions are more life-like, and more terrible. He carries us in heavenly flight to the throne of God and shows us the eternal and magnificent court of heaven. He pictures the glorified in their new estate, and then shows the forces of destruction which God will employ against His foes. But whether amid the everlasting scenes of heavenly beauty or amid the storms of divine wrath, he never loses sight of God's people, but represents them as being in safety.

The author begins his book with the appearance of Christ in His glorified state; then he unfolds the struggle

(Continued on page 783)

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, -Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

“NOT MANY WISE MEN AFTER THE FLESH. . . . NOT MANY MIGHTY ARE CALLED.”

THE CALL OF THE APOSTLES

WHAT is an apostle? The word “apostle” means “one sent forth” and was the official name of the twelve disciples of Christ. An apostle, disciple or servant, in a broad sense, is anyone commissioned to preach the gospel. The apostles who followed and served Christ were Peter and Andrew, who were brothers, James and his brother John, Philip, Bartholomew, Thomas, Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus, Thaddaeus, Simon, and Judas Iscariot.

As Jesus set out to call these disciples, He saw one day two fishermen casting a net into the sea of Galilee. These two men were brothers, Simon called Peter, and Andrew. When Jesus said to them, “Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men”, they immediately left their nets and followed Him.

Going a little farther He saw two other brothers, John and James, who were mending their nets. As He called to them, they quickly left all to follow Him. He later called the other eight. Peter, James, and John were chief of the apostles.

Why were there twelve apostles? We find in Matt. 19: 28 that a part of their reward is, “that in the regeneration when Christ will sit in the throne of his glory, they also shall sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.” So there is to be one apostle for each throne.

Christ sent them out by twos to journey throughout the land, to teach, to preach and perform miracles. Peter and John journeyed together, and they loved their Lord and one another very much.

Before they were sent out they spent a time with Christ in preparation for their work, observing Him in His work. He gave them authority against unclean spirits, and power to heal all manner of sickness and disease.

As they went into the temple at the hour of prayer, a certain man, crippled all his life, lay at the gate asking alms. Peter said to him, “Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.” Leaping up, he walked with them into the temple, praising God.

The characteristics of the apostles were quite varied. James and John were called “Sons of Thunder”; Thomas was doubting; Peter was very forward, always first to speak. Even after their intimate associations with Christ, they weakened at times, were cowards, and proved unfaithful to Him. Peter denied Him; some failed to keep their vigil. To fulfill Scripture one of the apostles, Judas Iscariot, was appointed to betray Christ.

Christ comforted His sorrowing disciples against tribulation by the promise of the Holy Ghost or Comforter. He also prayed to God to preserve and glorify the apostles. He prayed not for these alone but for all those who would believe on Him through their word.

Though deeply grieved by His crucifixion, their hope was renewed after His resurrection, and they were happy again. He was then with them for forty days, showing Himself by many infallible proofs. He spoke to them of things pertaining to the kingdom of God. They were much concerned about the time when the kingdom should be restored to Israel. Christ answered that it was not for them to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in His own power. When He had finished talking with them, He was taken up by a cloud into heaven, all but Judas witnessing His ascent.

During the ten days between Christ’s ascension and Pentecost, one hundred and twenty disciples were gathered together with the eleven. Standing in their midst, Peter spoke concerning Judas, whose place must be filled according to Scripture. Praying for divine guidance, they cast lots, and of the two who had been appointed, Matthias was chosen and numbered with the eleven.

Saul, a very sinful man, was called to be an apostle to the Gentiles, after which his name was changed to Paul.

Esther Sealine, Stanhope, Iowa.

“GIVE me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me.” Prov. 30:8.

NOBLE BEREANS

THE BEREANS were more noble than those in Thessalonica, Acts 17:11, because they daily searched the Scriptures to ascertain whether things reported were true.

The world is today full of reports. Many of these reports can be judged only by comparison with the Bible.

Be a Berean!

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN ASIA

THE first lesson brought up the question that every one today is asking, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"

Ten days later the apostles received the gift of the Holy Ghost, and were able to do many wonderful things. Lesson two is of their preaching and healing done in the name of Jesus Christ and in the power of the Holy Spirit. As a result of their efforts the first church was organized, with its different officers, and help was sent from one organization to another.

Then the Jews began to persecute the Christians and their church. Stephen, a deacon, was stoned to death. Therefore, the Christians went to many other countries for safety. There they continued to preach. Another deacon, Philip, preached and converted an Ethiopian, who carried the message on down to his fellow men.

Soon, the most zealous one in the persecution was converted in a sudden and miraculous manner; and Saul, later called Paul, became the greatest preacher of all to the church. He suffered some of the same persecution that he had earlier approved. After his sermon to the "unknown god", he was stoned and dragged out of the city.

But God had further work for Paul. Therefore, the Apostle did not die, but soon arose and went on to other cities, even over into Asia.

At first the preaching was for the Jews. Then, when in a vision Peter was shown that God wanted people of all nations in the church, he went to Cornelius, who became the first Gentile convert. Paul and Barnabas also turned to the Gentiles when the Jews expelled and persecuted them. Some of the Jews objected to the Gentiles worshiping with them because the Gentiles did not live up to the Jewish law. A general conference or council was held in Jerusalem, and it was agreed that it was not necessary for the Gentiles to observe all of the Jewish law. God had provided for their salvation.

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Acts 14:19-28.
2. Trace the missionary journeys.
3. Read, and do the suggestions in the Junior Class review by V. C. T.
4. Review the verses you have learned.

WE BELIEVE in a day of judgment: "I charge thee therefore before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom".—2 Timothy 4:1.

NATURE ANSWER AND QUESTION

19. A branch of the almond tree appeared to Jeremiah as a sign when he was called by God. Jer. 1:11.

20. To a hunt for what bird and what insect was Saul's pursuit of David compared?

WHEN OBEDIENCE SAVED A LIFE

(Continued from last week)

"I'm glad we did as Daddy told us to do," said Stephen.

"I'm glad, too," said Ruth.

"And so am I," said Daddy as he patted Ruth on the shoulder. "I'm always glad when I see my boy and girl obey promptly. I will tell you the story of a man whose life was saved because he obeyed promptly.

"Once upon a time there lived a man named Noah. Now one day, God said to Noah, 'I am going to send a heavy rain, and cover all the earth with water.' And God told Noah to build an ark."

"What's an ark?" asked Ruth.

"An ark is a boat built something like a house.

"As soon as God told him what to do, Noah began to build this ark. His friends made fun of him, but he kept right on with his work. When the ark was finished, God said, 'Go into the ark and take your wife, and sons, and your sons' wives and two of every kind of animal.'

"So Noah took his family, and two of every kind of animal into the ark. When they were inside, with the door shut tight, the rain came. It rained for forty days and forty nights, and the water rose over the mountain tops. But the ark floated on the water.

"So, you see," ended Daddy, "that Noah and his family were saved because Noah obeyed God."—Junior Home.

A PRAYER

We thank Thee, Heavenly Father,

We thank Thee for this day.

We thank Thee for the sunbeams

That glide across the way.

We thank Thee for the little stars

That shine out every night.

We thank Thee for the merry sun

That makes the world so bright.

—Gertrude Kern, age 8, Lynchburg, Va.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 12. — September 20, 1931

THE COUNCIL IN JERUSALEM

Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 2

Devotional Reading: Romans 8:1-10

GOLDEN TEXT

For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.—Galatians 5:13.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic. Christianity at the Crossroads.

Basic Truth. "But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him."—Acts 10:35.

I. Godward. From Adam's transgression in the Garden, Gen. 3:6, there has been but one goal placed by God for man. That goal is God Himself. He would have man return to His presence and fellowship. Cf. Gen. 3:8.

A thoughtful review of the experiences of Noah, of Abraham, of Moses, of Israel, of all godly persons before Christ, reveals the fact that throughout O. T. history God's one ideal for man was that man, in all His ways, should accept God; should, in all his doings, rise to God.

Coming to the N. T., the same great truth is found throughout. Man is urged and encouraged and assisted to rise out of the turmoil and disappointment and displeasure of his own sinful way to lay hold of God's peace and joy and gladness, to abide therein.

Godward has been the one slogan for man.

No change of ideal was by Christ placed before His disciples; no new goal for attainment was offered. A different type of road-way was presented; a different vehicle of travel was proffered; different positions in the goal on arrival were revealed; but the goal was the same.

II. The Highway Patrols. (A) Moses. Similarly as our present day Highway Patrols clear the way and direct processions through the traffic toward destination, so might we liken Moses as assigned by God to lead Israel down the highway of O. T. centuries toward God. Careful traveling instructions were given to that people, rules to govern their personal conduct, to regulate their habits. Generation after generation were alike instructed until the rules became, as it were, a part of the lives of the people.

And yet the nation advanced little. The rules given were considered the goal. They failed to use them as a means to assist them godward.

The highway upon which they were traveling was the highway of flesh. It was saturated through and through with sin. Mistaking their instructions as their destination and losing sight of Moses, their Patrolman, they stalled in the quagmire of their own treading.

(B) Christ. With the creation and presentation of Christ a new Patrol was given. It was not His to change the goal, but it was His to surface the highway with a sustaining covering of God's spirit, to lift men of faith out of the bogs of the old road to the new surface, to change the traveling rules to conform to the improved "way", and pilot every follower to God—the eternal Goal.

III. Christianity's Crossroad. This crossroad has no suggestion of a change of direction, rather it is that place in the road where, its surface being different, the mode of travel must be different; when the traveler must recognize and obey traffic rules specially appropriate.

The difficulties of the Jews lay in their seeming inability to exchange Moses for Christ as Pilot, and in their inability to leave behind the lusts of the flesh and "walk in the spirit".

Travelers on the highway of the spirit, were surrounded by vastly different circumstances and must therefore profit by, and sustain wholly different rules—the rules of the spirit.

Also, upon the highway of the spirit, travelers from every nation and race were, by their new Pilot, welcomed. He made no difference. Thus a new standard of comradeship was quickly established, which was followed by new ideals of fellowship.

Christianity's crossroad was a crossing from the "works of the flesh" to the "works of the spirit", which crossing all were privileged to make, for advancement under perfect guidance unto God.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Conference Gathering: The council gathering at Jerusalem was called because some of the Jews were teaching things contrary to revealed truth. It was a conference of the ministry. The ministers were teaching contradictory things and were thus confusing the people. All questionable doctrines should be discussed by the ministers in special sessions, in order that they might be of one mind and spirit. It is wrong to handle the Word of God deceitfully or ignorantly. According to Paul it is possible to handle the Word in such way as to corrupt it. 2 Cor. 2:17. Peter states that people can twist or wrest the Scriptures through ignorance. 2 Peter 3:16; 2:12. The Scriptures should be rightly divided and only such things taught as are in the gospel. 2 Tim. 2:15; Gal. 1:6-9.

Unity: The conference gathering brought about a common understanding of what is truth and what was necessary and essential to teach to the Gentiles. Most all misunderstandings can be eliminated by conferring. Unity of effort can only come through unity of understanding. If the leaders are divided in thought and action, the people will also be divided. On the other hand, if the leaders are of the same mind and work together, there will be peace and amity among the people. Unity among the children of God is one of the strongest teachings that Christ brought into the world. John 17:21, 22. It is a blessed thing for people to dwell together in unity. Psalm 133:1, 2. If there is no peace among the children of God who are peace makers, how can we expect peace in the world? Matthew 5:9.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another."—Galatians 5:13.

Christ came into the world, not to be ministered unto, but to minister. The council at Jerusalem was held for the sole purpose of helping those who were puzzled concerning circumcision. The call unto liberty came through the gospel and that freed them from the law. Paul called the law, "The yoke of bondage", and he warned the Galatians not to be entangled with it. Gal. 5:1.

But Paul did not want Christians to use this liberty to serve worldly things, but he wanted them by love to serve one another. To serve is the Christian spirit. Christ was continually serving others. If we wish to be Christlike, we must follow His example and serve others.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

Christian Freedom

Paul often speaks of the "liberty" he has in Christ Jesus. This "liberty" has been construed, in some cases, to mean that one can follow the works of the flesh (fornication, impurity, debauchery, quarrels, jealousies, drunkenness, etc. Gal. 5:19) and still not sin. It is evident that this is not Christian liberty, because Paul adds that "they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

"If a man be in Christ, he is a new creature (creation): old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." 2 Cor. 5:17. "We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works." Eph. 2:10. It is clear from the above scriptures that a child of God is recreated by Christ, not made over by his own efforts. He is liberated from the law of sin and death. The thief no longer steals and is therefore liberated from the law against larceny. The gangster is motivated by lust into ignominious practices. Jesus liberates one from such bondage of sin and ushers him into the glorious liberty of sons of God. Jesus, by demanding temperance, liberates one from social ostracism, mental stagnation, and physical ruin.

Christian freedom is the freedom or liberty enjoyed by one who is lifted out of sin and placed in the paradise of the spirit, surrounded by the fruits of love, joy, and peace. Our prisons are filled with those who refuse to accept the liberty offered by Christ.—H. A. S.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

FROM HERE AND THERE

Bro. James Rogers of Oregon, Illinois, has returned to Tucson, Arizona, for his second year of school work there.

Sr. F. L. Austin has returned to Chicago to this day resume teaching in the Von Humboldt school.

Bro. Thayer was again in his pulpit at Rockford, Illinois, last Sunday, after several weeks of absence.

Sr. Thayer, of Rockford, has returned from the Virginia Conference, where she was engaged for primary teaching.

Bro. and Sr. Wm. C. McGraw and Betty and Billy, of Macomb, Ill., were week end visitors with Oregon church folks.

The newly elected Executive Board of the N. B. I. expects to have a one hundred percent attendance at their first monthly Board Meeting on this Tuesday evening, Sept. 8. Bro. Ellis, Treasurer, from Waterloo, Iowa, expects to arrive early Tuesday morning and three or four members will probably devote most of the day to the N. B. I. work.

Bro. Marsh, on his return from the Virginia Conference, reports a splendid meeting and that the outlook of the brethren there, both spiritually and materially, is very good. He feels greatly encouraged over his contact with them. The brotherhood in general will rejoice with them and with Bro. H. A. Sheets, their pastor, because of their progress.

Notice how nicely the article on the front page, "The Great Theme of the Bible", by Bro. McLeod harmonizes with the one by Bro. Allridge, entitled, "God", on page 777. There often seems to be a parallel in thought between our writers, and these two are almost on the opposite sides of the continent.

SERVICES AT RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

Bro. C. E. Lapp will be with the Ripley congregation, Saturday evening and Sunday, September 12 and 13. This is the first service of the conference year and all are urged to attend.

RALLY DAY

Rally Day is a day to rally the attendance and a day to rally and rouse yourself spiritually. We need to rally to the feet of Jesus both in body and in heart.

Make Sunday, October 4th, a real spiritual rally for the individual, for the church, and for the Master.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE PROGRAM

The special meetings to be held at Blanchard will begin on Tuesday evening, Sept. 22, followed by the Fall Conference, which will convene from Friday evening, Sept. 25 to Sept. 27.

Bro. F. E. Siple of Grand Rapids will be the speaker. Services will be held each evening at 7:30 Eastern Standard Time.

Saturday, Sept. 26: Bible Class, 10:00 a. m.; Bible Class, 2:30 p. m.; Conference Business Meeting, 6:30 p. m.; Sermon, 7:30 p. m.

Sunday, Sept. 27: Sunday School, 10:00 a. m.; Sermon, 11:00 a. m.; Potluck Dinner, noon; Sermon, 2:30 p. m.; Sermon, 7:30 p. m.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25
Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkrite, Brantford, Ont.
Bro. and Sr. H. S. Lasher, Deerfield, Fla.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn, Culver, Ind.
Bro. C. H. Nye, North Anson, Maine

A new name is added to our prayer list this week, that of Bro. Nye. Sr. Nye, writing to ask that his name be included, says that Bro. Nye has an internal cancer and has not been able to do much for over two years, but that this has not dimmed the brightness of his hope in Christ. Let us remember this suffering brother along with the others.

OMAHA, NEBRASKA

The forty-sixth annual conference of the Church of God was held at Omaha, Nebraska, August 26 to 30. The attendance was good, with an estimate of one hundred there the last day. The following places were represented: Blair, Kennard, Herman and Irvington, Nebraska, besides Minneapolis, Minnesota. The noticeable feature of the meetings was the good will and fellowship of the brethren.

Bro. Lindsay, of Tempe, Arizona, was the speaker. His good sermons and Bible lessons will remain with the brethren always. Everywhere we go amongst our people we hear such good words for him and we hope that he may return to us next year if the Lord is willing.

The officers for the coming year are as follows: President, Lucille LeCrone; Vice President, H. L. Appleby; Secretary, Mrs. Lessie Appleby; Treasurer, A. L. White; Evangelist, Almus Adams.

We have organized a $1 a month club to go to our evangelist. Anyone wishing to belong to this or help in any way please send your name to the secretary.

Mrs. Lessie Appleby,
Kennard, Nebraska.

ANOTHER SCHOOL YEAR

The public and high schools are opening this month. Old and young are anxious that the young shall have best possible school advantages. That is very proper.

But there is another High school in which all should enroll for life. It is the School of Christ. Graduation from all man's schools is of little ultimate value unless one also graduates from the school of the Master.

Give your children a good education, but, above all, make God's Word the chief Text Book.

Vacations are over. Now for work—Christian work.

Those who leave home for school—scholars and teachers—should look well to worship. Do not allow yourself to be deprived of worship just because you are in a strange place. And do not permit your school work to crowd out your worship.

"Take time to be holy."

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The Sunday School picnic on August 29 was a real success. A truck and several cars took the crowd to one of the beautiful parks near here, where games for all ages were enjoyed, followed by a sumptuous meal.

"Flower Day" for the Sunday School, August 30, was in charge of Sr. Hanson. Many beautiful flowers decorated the church, and a flower duet was given by Sisters Doan and Siple.

Sr. Ada Simpson was among those indisposed and unable to be at services the week end of August 30.

During the past two or three weeks the pastor's home has been undergoing sieges of an unpleasant malady which has affected about all of the family for three or four days each.

Bro. M. W. Lyon, pastor of our Cleveland, Ohio, church, stopped for a few days' visit in Grand Rapids on his return from the Iowa Conference.

Another welcome visitor at the pastor's home, on August 31, was Dr. A. R. Bickenback of Oregon, Illinois. Dr. Bickenback moved to Oregon as pastor of the Presbyterian Church just before the writer moved there, and during the many years we both stayed there, while other ministers came and went, we had much association and learned to have deep regard for each other.

The church here is feeling the increased interest and attendance of fall and is making plans for more intensive work soon.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

REPORT FOR AUGUST

Sermons: Brumfield, Ky., 1; Dana, N. C., 12; Guthrie Grove, S. C., 11; Blush, Mo., 5; Brush Creek, Ohio, 2; Springfield, Ohio, 2. Bible Lessons, 5. Baptisms, 11.

Note: Four were baptized in North Carolina and seven in South Carolina. Among those baptized in South Carolina was Sr. E. A. Durham, mother of our late Bro. A. N. Durham, who was pastor of the Guthrie Grove Church of God from 1912 to his death. Sr. Durham was eighty-five years of age when baptized. Bro. Durham's son, Jesse, was also baptized.

J. H. Anderson.

PALAVA, TEXAS

On Saturday night, August 21, we began a meeting at Palava, and continued over two Sundays. Large and attentive crowds greeted us at every service, and a splendid interest prevailed throughout the week.

On Sunday afternoon we assembled at the water's edge, where we buried seven by baptism into the death of Christ. We commend these worthy young converts to the brotherhood and pray God's blessing upon them.

They are Roy Debusk and wife, Mrs. Delbert Wilkerson, Demp Kearney, Weldon Debusk, Reta Smith, and Mrs. Pauline Mahoney, all of Sweetwater. This increases our membership at Palava to thirty-eight. We have a splendid Sunday School going, Bible class on Wednesday night, and preaching every first Sunday.

E. O. Stewart.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. C. H. Nye; Miss Mary Miles; E. L. Swanson; A. J. Eychaner; Mrs. Elmer Rynearson; J. H. Roberts; Mrs. Ella Biddle Gorman; Mrs. Jennie Finney; John Chatterton; Chas. L. Netts; Mrs. Lucy Robinson; L. E. Robinson; Mrs. Julia Ordnung; Edna Hobart; Miss Jean Bernard; Miss Jennie Salisbury; Mrs. Flora E. Hogue.

STEDMAN - HARKEY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Union Church of Moorefield, Nebraska, on Sunday evening, August 30, when Miss Gladys Harkey, daughter of Mrs. E. E. Giesler, became the bride of Mr. Delbert T. Stedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stedman.

After the evening service conducted by Bro. Clarence Lapp, the bridal party came to the altar to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Jane Messersmith of Stockville, Nebraska. Elder E. E. Giesler, pastor of the church, united the two in holy wedlock, using the single ring ceremony.

The bride was becomingly dressed in biege georgette and carried a shower bouquet of white rose buds, sweet peas, ferns and baby breath. She was attended by Miss Ruby Stephenson of Moorefield. The groom was attended by Mr. Clarence Lapp, of Oregon, Ill.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Giesler home where the newlyweds received congratulations and best wishes from a host of relatives and friends.

Early Tuesday morning the bride and groom left for New Mexico for a short visit with the groom's parents. They were accompanied by Mr. Clarence Lapp, Mrs. Elmer Baxtor, the groom's sister, and her son, Everaldo.

RALLY MONTH

Oregon church with all its departments is planning a Rally Month during September, culminating in Rally Sunday, October 4. Committees have been appointed to further the work of church and Sunday School to put on a Rousing Rally and to make this Rally permanent as far as possible. Not only is it advantageous to have as big a Rally as possible, but it is important for the future of the church and the eternal welfare of the individual to make your Rally permanent. Let all the churches and Sunday Schools work with this end in view, depending upon our Captain for assistance, giving Him the honor.

REWARD MAPS

To date three Sunday Schools have reported their list of new subscribers and earned their reward maps. The first one to report was the Truth Seekers' Class of the Dixon church, of which Sr. Anna Drew is the teacher. The second one to win a map is the Burr Oak (Indiana) Sunday School, due to the efforts of their pastor, Bro. Smead, and Oregon Sunday School is third on the list. With one more new name Rockford Sunday School will earn a map, also. We know that these Sunday Schools will be enjoying their studies much more because of the help of these maps.

THE REVELATION OR THE APOCALYPSE

(Continued from page 778)

which for centuries has been waged between paganism and Christianity, which will result in the complete overthrow of the former. He closes with the resurrection of the dead, and the creation of a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

The word, Revelation, is derived from the Latin, revelare, meaning to "unveil, to uncover," and is equivalent to the Greek word, Apocalypse, which occurs several times in the New Testament (Rom. 2:5; 1 Cor. 14:6; Gal. 1:12, and in other places). As the title of this book implies, it denotes the unveiling of the future in reference to the church and the nations of the world.

This is the only distinctly prophetic book of the New Testament. As to its genuineness as one of the writings of John, the Apostle, there is plenty of evidence. It is quoted with the author's name earlier than any other book of the New Testament, with the exception of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians. Justin Martyr ascribes it to John and Polycarp ascribes it to the Apostle, stating that he himself received the explanation of a passage in it from those who had conversed with John about it.

The traditions of the church ascribe the authorship of the book to John the Apostle, the beloved disciple of Christ. This is confirmed by the book itself (1:4-9 and 21:2), for certainly no other person by the name of John who was soon forgotten would dare to give commands in the name of Christ and the Spirit to the seven churches Asia. We therefore, assume that the writer of these heavenly and sublime and important visions must have been the Apostle. Though there may be differences in the style of writing between the Gospel of John and this book, they may be accounted for by the difference in the subjects.

The Gospel is a narrative of historical or biographical occurrence, while the Revelation is abounding in symbols and visions of future events, much after the style of Daniel, Ezekiel, and Zechariah. Therefore it makes use of many Hebrew terms of speech. There is no difference in the doctrinal teachings of the two, and we can find much of a resemblance in style as to the name applied to our Lord, namely, Word, Logos, John 1:1-14; Rev. 19:13. This is found nowhere else in the New Testament.

There has been much dispute as to the date of the writing of the Revelation. The testimony of the primitive church is uniform and credible which fixes the date at A. D. 94-95, in the reign of Domitian, who banished many Christians to inhospitable places, which he may have done with the Apostle. The writer seems to be familiar with the several churches which he addresses, a familiarity which he did not use in early life. His designation of the day of rest and worship as the "Lord's Day" would seem to imply a lapse of years for him to acquire a usage of the term. The prevailing opinion of latter day critics is in favor of an earlier date, that of the years 68 or 69 A. D., before the destruction of Jerusalem. He makes no reference to the overthrow of the Holy City, but on the contrary states that it is still standing, also the temple (11:1, 2, 3).

These critics also give as a stronger reason, a desire to rightly interpret the words of 13:13 and 17:7-12, which they regard as referring to the reigning monarch at that date, Nero, Galba or Vespasian, and they regard the book as a description of the downfall of ancient Judaism (Jerusalem) and heathenism (Rome), and the reign of Christianity following their downfall. It would be a matter of little importance whether one accepts the former or latter date.

(To be continued)

G O D

(Continued from page 777)

exegesis: (1) What did he say? "There is no God"! (2) Where did he say it? "In his heart". (3) Why did he say it? "Because he is a fool".

Brethren, can any of us improve upon this? I think not, and since David, by inspiration under the direction of God's Holy Spirit, has given us this true description of a fool, or, as Isaac Leeser translates it, "a worthless fool", we accept it, and do not try to improve upon it.

In reading this text I find that the original reads, "The fool hath said in his heart, No God." Ah, that is different! In other words, God's laws, government, and demands upon man are openly treated with defiance, with a contemptuous disregard for both the laws of God and man.

Have we reached the period in the world's history described by Paul in 2 Timothy 3:1-5? "Lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." Paul, writing to the church at Rome, draws up this terrible indictment against those who once knew God, but through yielding to sin and the spirit of lawlessness, have departed from God: "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish hearts were darkened; professing themselves to be wise, they became fools. . . . And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do things which are not convenient."

On every hand we hear cries going up for a leader, a Moses to lead us out of the crises besetting all nations. Yet man has had at his finger ends the details of a plan that, if put into execution, would solve all his problems and establish peace and equity throughout the whole earth, and that is a recognition of God as the Giver of every good and every perfect gift and a becoming obedience to His just, holy and beneficent laws.

Not one of my readers who is a member of the Church of God claims to be perfect, but suppose society in general were to conform their lives to our mode and practice of living? Policemen, judges, lawyers would, for lack of patronage, have to seek other professions. The army and navy would cease to exist. Prisons and court houses would become like Cleopatra's needle, objects of curiosity. Ribald pleasures and entertainments would cease. Locksmiths would use their tools for other purposes, for honesty would prevail.

And yet, the lives we are living come far short of the ideal, but are an earnest of the new conditions that will exist when "they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord."—Jer. 31:34.

Statisticians are busy these days publishing statistics upon every subject, especially the mortality lists resulting from the increasing automobile traffic. Listen, my friends, God through the prophet, centuries ago, anticipated all this, and proposes to have none of it in His glorious kingdom: "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."

Now we can understand the words of Isaiah 11:9: "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain." Read also Isaiah 65:17-25. So then Nahum 2:2-4, descriptive of automobiles, shows they are only for "the day of his preparation." After Jesus comes and His glorious kingdom is established, automobiles and all munitions of war will, like knights clothed in armor, be seen only in museums.

Old people are having a hard time these days; no one wants them; they seem to be always in the way. But, thank God, He has not forgotten them. In the coming age He says, "Thus saith the Lord of hosts; there shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man with his staff in his hand for very age." Zech. 8:4. Pedestrians then will not need to watch the red or green light or the traffic officer's signal.

How all this reveals sidelights on the coming age and its glorious customs. All will be peace, joy, gladness, and absolute unselfishness. No need then to be selfish, for God will rule and all will strive to obey and be like Him.

No God! O friend, think again! Can you conceive of a government under human direction that can establish a condition such as I have tried to describe? Then why not become one of His followers and thus hasten the glad day?

Hear Paul's words: "That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not very far from every one of us."

In one of Goodhugh's Lectures on Bibliographical Literature, he uses this beautiful illustration: "The Emperor Trojan, hearing the Rabbi Joshua say that God is everywhere present, observed, 'I should like to see Him'.

"'God's presence is indeed everywhere,' replied Joshua, 'but He cannot be seen; no mortal eye can behold His glory.' The Emperor insisted. 'Well,' said Joshua, 'Suppose we try first to look at one of His ambassadors.' The Emperor consented and the Rabbi took him into the open at noonday, and bade him look at the sun in his meridian splendor.

"'I cannot—the light dazzles me.'

"'Thou art unable,' said Joshua, 'to endure the light of His creatures, and canst thou expect to behold the resplendent glory of the Creator? Would not such a sight annihilate you?'"

Beloved brethren and friends, I bow my head over this manuscript and say from the depths of my heart, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." Revelation 4:11.

—o—

"NOTHING raises the price of a blessing like its removal; whereas it was its continuance which should have taught us its value. There are three requisitions to the proper enjoyment of earthly blessings—a thankful reflection on the goodness of the Giver, a deep sense of our unworthiness, a recollection of the uncertainty of long possessing them. The first would make us grateful; the second, humble; and the third, moderate."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 15, 1931

NUMBER 50

THY KINGDOM COME

By E. O. Stewart

"All kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him."

THE BIBLE is replete with testimony concerning a future kingdom whose headquarters shall be in Jerusalem and whose dominion shall extend to earth's remotest bounds.

John, while on the Isle of Patmos, was carried away in spirit and was foreshown the kingdoms of this world in the transition as they shall pass from under the deceptive power of the rulers of this present evil age, over into the age to come where a righteous government under the direction of Christ, assisted by His immortalized saints, shall be established right here on this earth.

"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."—Rev. 11:15 (italics mine).

The first thing Christ will do toward establishing justice in the earth, will be to gather out of His kingdom (Israel) all things that offend, by placing the twelve apostles on twelve thrones to judge them. (Matt. 19:28.)

Then, the Gentiles shall see her (Israel's) righteousness, all kings her glory; then Israel shall be called by a new name which the mouth of the Lord shall name. (Isa. 62:2.) Note how clearly Isaiah presents the picture.

"The words that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains (larger governments), and shall be exalted above the hills (smaller governments); and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain (government) of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we shall walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem (the capital city). And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."—Isaiah 2:1, 4.

As the nations learn the ways of the Lord, they will join in with Him, and in that way all kings shall fall down before Him and all nations shall serve Him. Thus the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ. (Rev. 11:15.)

"Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, before his ancients gloriously."—Isaiah 24:23.

Then, "a king shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth."—Jer. 23:5.

Then His kingdom will have come, and His will shall be done on earth, as it is in heaven. (Matt. 6:10.)

When all things shall be subdued unto Him, then shall the Son also become subject unto Him, that God might be all in all. (1 Cor. 15.)

What a wonderful time that will be! With all rebels removed out of the way, and the curse obliterated, the new heavens and new earth will appear in all their surpassing glory. Songs of praise will roll from angelic tongues, while shouts of victory over sin and death peal forth from the thankful heart of every redeemed and blood-bought saint.

Jesus, the beloved Son, views with perfect satisfaction the race redeemed from the awful gulf of sin and death. A smile plays upon His shining face, as He faces the future and surveys with undimmed eyes the many joys of His eternal rest, which He is to enjoy with the inhabitants, where there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, sickness, nor pain. Eden's long closed gates shall then swing ajar upon their golden hinges, inviting the nations to enter the restored paradise of God.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

"From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned."

—Words of wisdom from Paul, the Apostle, to Timothy.

THE VALUE OF CHRISTIANITY

SPEAKING of Onesimus the slave servant of Philemon who, after leaving Philemon, had gone to Paul in prison at Rome and there became converted to Christianity, Paul says, "Which in the past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee and to me." V. 11.

As an unchristianized slave servant who had no incentive to serve his master in other than eye service, Onesimus was profitable just as all such servants are. But having become Christianized, life took on a new incentive. He, like others thus wrought upon by Christ, thereafter served, not with eye service but as unto the Lord. Even as Paul wrote unto the Colossian brethren, 3:22, "Servants, obey in all things your master according to the flesh; not with eye service, as men pleasers; but in singleness of heart, fearing God: and whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men: knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ."

With such transformation in one's life brought about by Christianization of the individual, one can but say that Christianity is of untold value to the individual. He becomes of greater value to himself, of greater value to his firm, of greater value to his community: of greater intrinsic and moral value to every one with whom he comes in contact.

If Christianity did not build for the tomorrow, if Christianity had no personal influence upon the age to come, if Christianity had no personal reward beyond the present; still Christianity would be of the greatest value to every individual. It literally enhances the value of man or woman in and through whom it expresses itself.

THE VALUE OF A SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

RIGHT along this same line Judge George T. Liddell of Rockford, Illinois, discussing "Rockford's New Crime Wave", among other things said before a large gathering, "One faithful Sunday school teacher is of more value to the city of Rockford than ten policemen." These are the words of a judge of a court in Illinois.

As though he might have been talking really on the subject of the value of Christianity and speaking by way of comparison, the judge said:

"We have an idea that if we can build enough jails and get enough policemen and deputy sheriffs, we can make people behave. Nowhere in the teachings of Christ is this even suggested. We overlook the fact that the essential thing is to change the motive in the heart of the little child. We can't make people good by sending them to prison, but by bringing them in contact with Jesus we can make good people of them."

Think of it! As though the law of any country might presume to enhance the value of its own citizens by compelling them to do this or that. Certainly the judge hit the nail on the head when he said, "We can't make people good by sending them to prison, but by bringing them in contact with Jesus we can make good people of them." Does not this indicate value in the individual? Does it not indicate whence he regards the source of valuation? But Judge Liddell goes on—

"The right motive must be instilled into the heart of the child by Christian parents or by a faithful Sunday school teacher." What an amazing statement! Would that every parent and every person competent of teaching Bible might read these statements of a judge of a court. Listen, "The right motive must be instilled into the heart of the child by Christian parents."

Parents! What do you think of this statement? Does it ever appeal to you that real valuation can be built into your son, into your daughter, by building most truly those deep abiding transforming principles taught by Jesus Christ, and by bringing that child so close to its Master as to become a participant of the Master's own experience?

Over and over again the statement is broadcast in one way or another that the parents of today are largely responsible for the large falling of children into lives of crime.

Christian parents! Awake! Almighty God has provided for you a method and means whereby you can rear your child to be of such value as the God of heaven understands he or she should be. Is it possible that by any oversight or negligence on your part you are allowing that child to fall into poverty of life for want of that which God has freely provided?

Continuing the above statement as to duty of parent or teacher, the judge said,

"When this is not done there is tragedy ahead. The average age of the criminals of this county is eighteen years. When they come back from their place of punishment, they are more than likely to continue their criminal careers, because their motive in life has not been changed. Eighty-five percent of the boys sent to St. Charles turn up later in some other institution.

"The fault is often with the parents who failed to put the right motive into the heart of the child. We ought to send the father to jail instead of the boy, but we can't.

"We have an idea that if we build bigger and fatter policemen and build more jails we can make people better. We completely miss the point. The problem of combatting crime cannot be solved by law. It must be solved by parents and churches which come in contact with the child in the character-forming period. We must teach Jesus, and cease to think we can better conditions by the law of Moses. We can't leave the matter of crime to the sheriff and to policemen.

"If we're here tonight and not behind the bars of some jail it is because we had the privilege of sitting in the primary chair of some Sunday school when we were children. One faithful Sunday school teacher is of more value to the city of Rockford than ten policemen! Young people don't as a rule go to jail out of Christian homes and from Sunday school classes."

How thoroughly these words agree with the words of the apostles and prophets. Let us pause and take a new perspective of Christianity. Let us meditate upon its deep underlying principles of truth. Let us trace the influence of those truths upon the lives of the individual. Do this with fidelity, with honesty, in the quiet moments of retirement and answer for yourself the question:

Does not Christianity enhance the value of the individual to himself and to all about as nothing else can do?

This being true, brother, sister, can there be any reason to excuse you, and many, from putting forth your every possible effort to the end that we might influence through Sunday school and church and religion in the home, every boy and girl, man and woman, whom it is possible to reach?

With the words of the Apostle Paul concerning Onesimus standing plainly before us and with the facts of life boldly witnessed, not only by one judge but by people everywhere, let us resolve that our Sunday school training for youth and old age, that our church life for neighbors, all shall be speeded up and equipped with a view to doing manifold more good to our fellow men than ever heretofore. And let us always remember this, that he who helps his fellow man, serves his God; and in so doing he himself becomes of enhanced value to the Father and to His Son.

THE DESTINY OF THE CHURCH

By Emma C. Railsback

IN following the example of the believers of Berea in the days of the Apostle Paul, we must search the Scriptures daily for the truth of what is written as well as of what is preached. An esteemed brother from the East has called attention to an article appearing in our beloved RESTITUTION HERALD of August eleventh and eighteenth under the above title. After three careful readings of the brother's views, I desire to call attention to certain scriptures, which do not permit the conclusions he has reached, or rather which he has accepted from the Concordant Version of the Scriptures, which originated in Los Angeles, where one can find every doctrine under the sun. Many statements are made in the above mentioned writing which are entirely without scriptural proof.

In the first paragraph he tells us that there is a Jewish ecclesia and a Gentile ecclesia, whose destinies are separated as far as the sun is from the earth. In meditating upon this statement my mind turns first to the words of our Savior found in Matthew 16:15-20. After the Apostle Peter had confessed, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," Jesus replied, "Upon this rock I will build my church." I wonder whether He was speaking of this so-called Jewish church or the Gentile church? Or was He not rather speaking of the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth? 1 Tim. 3:15.

In this church there is neither Jew nor Greek, bond nor free, male nor female, but are all one in Christ Jesus. Gal. 3:28. They are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief Cornerstone, having broken down the middle wall of partition, for to make in Himself of twain, one new man. Eph. 2:14-20. He has redeemed us to God by His blood out of every kindred, tongue, people, and nation, and made us unto God kings and priests to reign on the earth. Rev. 5:9, 10. There is one body (or church) one spirit, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all. Eph. 4:4-6.

Next the writer makes the statement that "one must note that Jesus was not sent to the Gentiles but to the Jews alone." Now I find the Apostle Peter saying to Israel, "Unto you first", Acts 3:26. If I were to proclaim that Jesus was sent to Israel alone, knowing that the Scriptures state unto Israel first, I surely would merit the condemnation of the Apostle Paul, as found in Galatians 1:6-9, for to me this doctrine savors of a perverted gospel.

Jesus came unto His own and His own received Him not. John 1:11. Under the old covenant Jehovah promised the nation of Israel the priesthood, Exodus 19:5, 6, dependent upon her keeping His covenant. Some of those who by faith kept the covenant, by seeing Christ in the sacrifices and offerings, are mentioned by the Apostle in Hebrews 11. However as a nation their besetting sin, Hebrews 12:1, was lack of faith, and when their long promised Messiah came, the nation rejected and crucified Him, saying, "His blood be upon us and our children."

Now note another statement: "The twelve were never

(Continued on page 790)

OCCUPY TILL I COME

By Alice B. Curtis

Some day the heavens shall reveal
The Savior's blessed form;
And He will calm the troubled earth,
Now racked with stress and storm.
We know by signs He has foretold
His coming draweth nigh;
And while His coming we await,
He bids us occupy.

The hosts of sin are mighty, Lord,
They would usurp Thy throne;
They turn from Thy true way of life,
And walk ways of their own.
They fill the earth with violence,
And rouse the winds of strife;
They would rob man of hope in God,
And of eternal life.

But in Thy name and strength we go,
To occupy for Thee;
Our standard bears Thy precious name
For all the world to see.
The gospel message we will send
To nations far and near,
That every one in ev'ry clime
May the glad tidings hear.

We strive to follow in Thy steps,
And teach as best we can
Thy perfect law of love and life,
To uplift fallen man.
Thy praises are upon our lips;
Thy name we glorify,
And daily taking up the cross,
For Thee we occupy.

There is no time for us to use
In seeking worldly gain;
Our time and talents are the Lord's,
If we with Him would reign.
There is a great work we can do;
We have a calling high,
Until the Nobleman returns,
For Him to occupy.

—o—

“THERE is a hidden truth in the story of the bitter waters of Marah, when Moses brought Israel from the Red Sea and the people went out into the wilderness of Shur. Ingratitude and murmuring brought bitterness. It is the same today. Your thoughts, if they are the suggestions of a selfish, ungrateful life, will lead to bitterness and ashes.”

CHARACTER

By George B. Alldridge

ONE of London's largest daily newspapers offered a prize for the best definition of character. The prize was awarded to the author of this definition: “Character is what a man is in the dark.”

Plato is reported to have said, “I am a part of all that I have met.” And to George Eliot are ascribed the well known lines: “Our deeds still follow from afar, and what we have been makes us what we are.”

The dictionary defines character thus: “The sum of qualities which distinguish one person or thing from another.” From a scriptural point of view, my answer is, “The quality of our personality,” and I may add, “The form of action by which that personality manifests itself, whether seen or unseen.”

Reputation is the estimation, either good or bad, formed of us by others; this means nothing. Hence Jesus “made himself of no reputation”. Phil. 2:7. It meant nothing to Him and should mean nothing to His followers. But character—that is, as God sees and knows us—is a most important thing.

Proverbs 4:7 reads, “Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding.”

How many of us can measure up to the standard set before us in the person of God's beloved Son? Isaiah gives us a splendid description of Jesus' character: “And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord: and shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord: and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears.”—Isa. 11:2, 3.

Again, Hebrews 1:9, “Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.”

Once more, “Who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth.”—1 Peter 2:22.

Suppose we look at our character, comparing it with God's beloved Son. “If thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?”—Psa. 130:3.

“The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one.”—Psa. 14:2, 3.

“But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags: and we all do fade as a leaf; and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away.”—Isaiah 64:6.

“The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it? I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to

(Continued on page 792)

CHRISTIANITY IS A RELIGION OF JOY

By R. H. Judd

IT is surely strange indeed that any necessity should arise to emphasize the fact that Christianity is a religion of joy. Perhaps this is accounted for by the reason that we are apt to judge Christianity by erratic individual representatives rather than from a wider knowledge of its general characteristics.

Anyone who has traveled abroad in heathen lands, and has opportunity to compare conditions, will not hesitate to say that by its accomplishments Christianity has amply justified its specific attribute of joy. There are no more joyful people on earth than those who nominally profess to name the name of Christ. Even in those people where a joyous disposition is largely a national trait, the quality of that trait is greatly enhanced by their adoption of true Christian principles.

The very foundations of the Christian religion were begun and announced under circumstances of joy. The angels foretold of joy to all people, and Mary's heart sang forth a joy that has never been forgotten wherever the gospel story has been told. If we turn to the concordance to see what the Bible has to say regarding joy, we will be astonished at the frequency of its occurrence, and amazed at the variety of circumstances into which it enters, and the intensity of thought and feeling expressed.

Recently we had our attention called to some thoughts regarding education in religion, and it was pointed out how much was gained by recognizing that we could not separate education from religion, or religion from education. We were led to see how great were the subjects for knowledge which God has placed around us, and that our present understanding of all these things has but touched the fringe of all that lies beyond.

There is one scripture that so beautifully expresses the fact that all these blessings of wisdom and knowledge are direct from the hand of God for the express purpose of bringing joy into the life of man whom He created. It will be found in Eecl. 2:26, R. V. Here it is: "For to the man that pleaseth him, God giveth wisdom, knowledge, and joy . . ."

Has it ever occurred to you that the truly happy men—the men who truly find joy in their lives as they seek to fathom the wonderful works of God, are the men who above everything else seek to please Him? You have only to think of such men as Professors Drummond, Dawson, Kelvin, and Proctor, and contrast them with others, and the lives that these men lived, and you will have no difficulty in determining to which lives were added the blessing of joy, as well as wisdom and knowledge.

Permit me to call your attention to the beautiful story of Jesus at Abraham's well. There were many wells in the land of Palestine, but this one seems to have continued where hundreds of others failed, a constant reminder surely, to both Jew and Samaritan of the covenant promises of God. We have at least two instances of special occasions of joy recorded of those who came hither to draw the water of life.

How many more, of which these are representative we cannot say, but is it not probable that this very same well was in Isaiah's mind when he gave utterance to that remarkable passage recorded in the twelfth chapter of the book that bears his name? "Behold God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid: for the Lord JEHOVAH is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation. Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation." What a joy to know that "God is our God", and that we can say with Isaiah and with the Psalmist, "Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto my exceeding joy."

Notice that Christianity is a joyful religion because it is an unselfish religion. And it is a remarkable fact that unless we share its blessings with others, we are apt to lose many of its benefits, for "there is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty."

When exhorting the children of Israel, Nehemiah told them: "Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared . . . neither be ye sorry." Then he adds, "for the joy of the Lord is your strength." How significant these words—"neither be ye sorry". The joy of the Lord is our strength
(Continued on page 793)

AFTER A NIGHT OF PRAYER

DR. CHAPMAN in his Revival Sermons says: We have had days of prayer. I wonder how many of us have had nights of prayer? We have prayed minutes for our children. How many of us have prayed by the day for our children? "Do you believe," said a young woman to me in the city of Boston, "that if my mother and I should pray all night my brother would be saved?" I said to her, "If I were you I would pray all night if I were led to do it." To my certain knowledge that brother had not been within four miles of the place of meeting. Before ten o'clock they were on their knees. At twelve o'clock they were praying; at three o'clock they were still crying unto God, when the mother rose from her knees to say, "I believe God has heard us," and closed her eyes in sleep. I saw that young man the next evening stand in the great church and say that he had spent a sleepless night. I heard him say that he occupied a most important position in the city of Boston. He said, "This morning, as the day was breaking, I gave myself to Jesus." I think that the story of the Shunammite is given in the Old Testament that we might thus learn how to pray—"As the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee."—Pentecostal Evangel.

THE DESTINY OF THE CHURCH

(Continued from page 787)

delegated to the Gentiles; their epistles are to the Israelites and not to the church of the Gentiles." How any Bible student can honestly make such statements after reading the great commission given to the twelve apostles just prior to the Savior's ascension, is hard to comprehend. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved and he that believeth not shall be condemned."—Mark 16:15, 16.

The gospel is the power that God uses to save the Jew first and also the Gentile. Rom. 1:16. And it was necessary that the Word of God should first have been spoken to them, but they as a nation rejected it and judged themselves unworthy of everlasting life. Acts 13:46. Then God turned to the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name, Acts 15:14, to be heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ, Rom. 8:17, fellow heirs with those converted out of Israel and of the same body and partakers of His promise in Christ by the Gospel. Eph. 3:6. This new creation in Christ Jesus, Gal. 6:16; 2 Cor. 5:17, is represented as the wife and Christ as the husband, Eph. 5:22-25, and in the same connection as the body of Christ, v. 30. "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free and have been all made to drink into one spirit, for the body is not one member but many."

Once more, I wish to call attention to this writer's claim to being able to trace a growing difference between "the Jewish and Gentile churches" in the book of Acts, etc. The Apostle Paul always took great pains to reconcile the believing Jews to the thought of justification by faith, and his final turning away was only from those Jews who rejected the gospel message altogether.

Many more statements are made by the writer, which cannot be substantiated by the Scriptures, but only one more will I mention. This is rather a late day to be offering severe criticism of the King James Version of the Scriptures and commending so highly one of such recent origin, namely the Concordant Version. Other translations may be helpful in some sections, but if a King James Version is used with an analytical concordance for the basis of our study, we will not go far wrong, if we are prayerfully seeking a saving knowledge of God's Word.

THE following story is told of the old deacon listening to the annual missionary sermon. He had the usual dollar ready and wanted to give it. He also had a five dollar gold piece in his pocket which his conscience kept telling him he ought to give. Finally as the collector came to his pew, he thrust the gold coin into the basket, exclaiming mentally: "There old natur, squirm." To tithers giving is a joy. They are cheerful givers, or as it is in the original Greek, they are "hilarious" givers.—Selected.

A PRISON EVANGELIST

THERE are no bounds to saving grace. Abe Buzzard, for years one of the most notorious desperadoes of the Welsh Mountain region of Pennsylvania, who has spent forty-two years behind prison bars, has been released from the Eastern State Penitentiary, his latest sentence of thirteen years having expired. Buzzard is seventy-two years old. He has planned to become a prison evangelist and devote the rest of his life to helping convicts. Despite his long confinement, Buzzard is well preserved and appears stronger, healthier, and younger than most men of his age. "I have many years left in which to undo the harm I have done," said the aged convict. "I have made all my plans so no time will be wasted." Buzzard started his prison career when he was thirteen years old, having been sentenced for robbery. He came to Christ within the prison walls.—Pentecostal Evangel.

BY THE LORD'S BLESSING

"And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen."—Mark 16:20.

DURING the past General Conference year the Churches of God have been given impressive evidence that the Lord has been working with them "confirming the word with signs following"! Not that its ministry has performed miracles of physical healing in demonstration of the divine nature of their commission, but in the fact that the Lord has blessed their efforts to the conversion of unbelievers, to the building up of the spiritual tone of their membership, and to the increase of both interest and attendance in different localities.

The recent General Conference was distinguished from all others of the past in several ways. First, the attendance, in spite of the financial depression, was perhaps the largest we have ever had. Second, it was the most widely representative gathering of our people in the history of the movement, more local churches and a larger number of individuals being represented by delegates than ever before. Third, the definite aims and the practical results of the Illinois Bible School held in connection with the General Conference were so exceedingly beneficial.

In addition to the work of the Conference itself, the reports from all parts of the country for the past year were eminently satisfactory and encouraging. We have reason to believe that more individuals were baptized than for many years in the past; that more churches were provided with pastors; Sunday schools and Berean societies increased in membership and interest, and the work advanced generally along spiritual and doctrinal lines in a most encouraging way. All of this could have been accomplished only by the continued blessing of God.

G. Eldred Marsh, Secretary.

IN THE SERVICE OF CHRIST

By M. A. Woodward

"But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."—1 Cor. 9:27.

WHAT does Paul mean, "But I keep under my body"? If he had said, "But I keep my body under," I would have thought that he was hiding behind the dear Christ, realizing his weakness and seeking strength in that way. But he says, "I keep under my body." Wait! Is he thinking how proud he was, when in former days he used his strength and influence against the Christ, bringing men and women into subjection to his wicked will, putting them in prison, causing pain and death to those who loved the Lord better than life? Did he again see the brave and eloquent Stephen as he knelt, full of the Holy Ghost, looking steadfastly into the heavens, seeing the glory of God, and the crucified Christ—sitting at the Father's side? Was it this thought that gave us the text before us and caused him to see visions of himself striving to overcome, that he might be accounted worthy of the Christ-love?

The Emphatic Diaglott gives us a little closer thought of what was in Paul's mind. The verse reads, "But I severely discipline my body and make it subservient; lest possibly, having proclaimed to others, I myself should become one unapproved."

Yes, Paul severely disciplined his body. Every place where he could preach the gospel he went, nothing daunting him, though he knew bonds and imprisonment awaited him. He knew nothing yet of what the future held for him of visions of glory, but he believed God was working for him, and he was willing to suffer all things, if by any means, he might attain unto the resurrection of the dead. Phil. 3:11.

I can hear Bro. Marsh say, "But I keep under my body, that I might by all means save some." Perhaps Stephen, like Paul, made more converts to Christ in his death than could possibly have been made had he lived. For we read that there was great persecution against the church and they were all scattered abroad. And the scattered ones went everywhere preaching Christ.

Philip caught the desire to save some, and when they heard they believed and were baptized. Saul heard what was being done, for there was great joy in that city in spite of all their persecutions. Saul was very busy in his work, persecuting all he found, who believed on the Christ. But God was closely watching Saul, and He had planned his life work. Saul was unconsciously walking into the holy trap laid for him.

God works in such strange, unheard or unthought of ways. While Saul busied himself with wicked thoughts, God calmly walked before him, blinding his eyes with His own glory. Saul had no time to think of things before he heard that new sweet voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" He was so startled and amazed, lying there blind and helpless. At last he found voice to ask, "Who art thou, Lord?" What a revelation to Saul to hear the answer, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest"!

What a strange makeup was Saul's; how strange his next question: "What wilt thou have me to do?" Did God put this question in Saul's mind? And did Saul quickly make up his mind he was under God's power? The answer was, "Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do." Saul arose, looked around him, but could not see even the men who were accompanying him. He had to ask them to lead him into Damascus, the city he was bound for.

How different the work he was to do when he reached there—no more binding men and women and casting them into prison. From now on he was to bind them with fetters of love and clothe them with the armor of God. His feet were to be shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. His sword from now on was the "sword of the spirit", which was the Word of God. His prayer from now would be, "Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints; and for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the mystery of the gospel, for which I am an ambassador in bonds."

O Paul! beloved of God, faithful in bonds, faithful unto death, for he fought a good fight, and was ready to be offered in sacrifice to God, and he would be waiting for the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give him at that day. He said, "And not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

Will we be ready to meet Brother Paul, because we love Christ's appearing, and have fought a good fight? Are we striving with Paul to keep under our body, lest we should be a castaway? It is no small thing to be a true Christian, waiting and ready to receive eternal life at God's hands? Are we severely disciplining our bodies and our wills? Have we in our lifetime been the means of leading souls to the dear Christ that they may inherit a home in His blessed kingdom?

God grant our lives may be such that when the book of life is opened, we may hear words of glad joy, because some soul had been forgiven and redeemed by the precious blood of Christ through the gospel message we may have sent them.

"What is the difference between 'giving' and paying tithes to God?" All the difference there is between paying your banker the interest on the money he has loaned to you, and "giving" it to him. God owns what you possess. You cannot "give" anything to its owner. The Master never used the word "give" as applied to tithing. His language was, "Ye pay tithes." "Ye tithe." The words, "tithe-giver" and "tithe-giving" are of recent coinage. See if you can find them in your dictionary.

CHARACTER

(Continued from page 788)

his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings."—Jer. 17:9, 10.

And yet in the face of this terrible indictment, there are some characters in the Bible I love to study, and try to live a life like theirs. Take Joseph, for instance, how many if placed in his position, Gen. 39:7-23, would have acted as he did? Abraham, read Gen. 13:8-13. Would you be as magnanimous if placed in a like position? Moses, read Exodus 32:32. How many of us, for the sake of our brethren, would be willing for God to blot out our name in His book of life?

When we are persecuted and misrepresented for the truth's sake, and sometimes by even our own brethren, are we found upon our knees like Stephen, saying, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge"?—Acts 7:60.

If we scrutinize all recorded in Hebrews eleven, probably we may point out some weakness of character. But when we look into the character of Him of whom even His enemies testified, "Never man spake like this man", John 7:46, we exclaim with one who knew his followers, either good or bad, "Behold, THE MAN." Note—not a man; there are a great many men in the world, but only one upon whom this claim could rest, "THE MAN." What made Him preeminently above all the human race, past or present, The Man? The answer is—His character.

Bro. Patrick, in a recent sermon on "Christian Living," brought out this telling thought, quoting 1 John 3:9, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." Never mind, brethren, about quibbling over the point whether we are now begotten or born of God. The point is that if God's Word or seed is dwelling in our hearts, we will not sin.

"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to thy word. Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee."—Psa. 119:9, 11.

How does this work out? Read 1 Cor. 10:13. Every temptation is common to man, or common to us all. Now read closely, for the promise is, "Make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." Now, brethren, analyze this thought and you will find that Bro. Patrick is right.

Suppose my mind is obsessed with selfish and repulsive thoughts. Naturally my actions will follow the line pointed out by James 1:13-15. But suppose there is a struggle going on in my mind. You may call it the subconscious mind or anything else you desire. The Word or Seed of God begins to exert itself, and these words rush in, "Now the works of the flesh are manifest . . . of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."—Galatians 5:19-21; also Eph. 5:5; 1 Cor. 6:9; Col. 3:6; Rev. 22:15.

If you are a candidate for the kingdom of God, do you yield yourself to follow the carnal mind in the face of these scriptures just cited? If the Word of God has no place in your mind, of course then the mind of the flesh triumphs. Suppose you suppress the promptings of the Word of God, then what? "For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation which shall devour the adversaries."—Heb. 10:26, 27.

"It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."—Heb. 10:31. But listen to this; Peter is speaking, "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you; but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy."—1 Peter 4:12, 13.

Dear Brother Paul, do you and Peter agree? Most assuredly we do! Where do you say so? Read Colossians 1:24, 25, "Who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his body's sake, which is the church: whereof I am made a minister, according to the dispensation of God which is given to me for you, to fulfil the word of God."

Do you recall these words? They are very precious to me: "For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted."—Heb. 2:18. How, brethren? Listen to Jesus' own answer: "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; even the Spirit of truth; whom the world (carnal mind) cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you."—John 4:16, 17.

How wonderfully Paul illuminates our mind in Romans 7. He says, "For I delight in the law of God after the inward man." Read the following verses. He concludes, "So then with the mind (the Word of God, His Seed) I myself serve the law of God; but with the flesh the law of sin."

So, beloved brethren, quit flagellating the "old man". He will never love God. Don't try to love God, but abide in His love; that is the secret. And then His love (His Word) abiding in us begets love in us towards Him. There is only one character that God will approve, and that is the life ruled absolutely in all its activities by the Word of God. Any thought, any word, or act that does not conform to this standard is rejected as wood and stubble. 1 Cor. 3:11-17.

God is seeking for men and women who will measure up to Paul's standard and hear ringing in their hearts these words, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. Let all your things be done with love."—2 Cor. 16:13, 14.

Remember that "the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds, casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ."—2 Cor. 10:4, 5.

A RELIGION OF JOY

(Continued from page 789)

when we recognize the fact that God loveth a cheerful giver, and that it is our privilege to give without being sorry.

There is no greater mistake than to suppose that God does not want His people to be happy—to be full of joy. In the same story of Nehemiah we read: "God had made them rejoice with great joy; the wives also and the children rejoiced: so that the joy of Jerusalem was heard even afar off." That was a long way for joy to travel, but joy, true joy, has no bounds; for we read, "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." How far that is we do not know, but we do know that it is true, and we know, too, that joy is contagious. Paul "enjoyed for the joy of Titus."

Then, too, the joy of the Christian is a lasting joy. Job tells us, "The triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of the godless is but for a moment (Job 20:5, R. V.) for he shall fly away as a dream and shall not be found, yea he shall be chased away as a vision in the night." "But (oh, those 'buts' of Scripture, how vividly they bring out the contrasts), . . . the ransomed of the Lord shall return with singing into Zion, and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads, they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

The last verse quoted reminds us of another which tells us that "joy cometh in the morning." Some of us have had to pass through deep and dark shadows, yes, even as "the valley of the shadow of death." Who has not? "But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in his wings." What a morning that will be, the glad morning of resurrection! "Now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face: now we know in part; but then shall I know even as I am known."

"Rejoice," says Paul, "and again I say, Rejoice." Surely strange words these from a man who for the sake of the gospel "endured hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ"! Once he was stoned, three times beaten with rods, five times received stripes, and three times suffered shipwreck. He suffered hunger and thirst, perils in water and perils on land.

Peter says, "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial . . . but rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy." Surely, surely, the worldling must see that the Christian has something that he has not!

Jesus told His disciples that they were to rejoice that their names were written in heaven. How many of us can rejoice because of that? "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame." And what was His joy? Surely it was the joy He had constantly before Him of sharing His glory with those who should hereafter believe on His name.—From an old RESTITUTION HERALD.

THE RELIEF WORK

TO THE readers of THE RESTITUTION HERALD the relief work among our church people is not new, as I have at different times, through THE HERALD, given an outline of the work and how it is carried on and appreciated. I gave in my annual report at the National Berean Conference held at Oregon, Illinois, August 10, a few expressions from letters received in the past year from our people who have helped financially toward the work, and from those who have received assistance, and to you who are interested in the relief work and were not at the Conference I feel sure the expressions will be interesting and am passing them on to you.

"Enclosed you will find check for relief work in response to your appeal in THE HERALD. We never give to the Red Cross or similar organizations, as we believe that those in the faith should be provided for directly. May God bless you in your unselfish efforts to help others."

"Enclosed find donation for help in your work for our needy ones. I hope this finds you with all necessary help. My prayers and best wishes are with you."

"I take pleasure in enclosing a check for which I am sure you can find a good use and am glad God has put it into your heart to 'do unto others as you would have them do unto you'."

"I am enclosing check to be used for the drouth sufferers. We have not as yet helped. So many times those that need help never get it."

"We have been wishing there was some way we could help the sufferers in the south and when THE HERALD came it seemed the way was clear. You know God's words, or rather Paul's, are 'As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith', so I am sending a little from myself and family for you to use as you see fit to help those of the faith in the drouth-stricken district. I pray that enough more may come to make them comfortable until times are better for them. May God bless you and give you wisdom is my prayer."

"I am enclosing my usual donation and am so thankful that I can send it. It seems all the clubs, lodges, Salvation Army, welfare societies are calling for money, food and clothing for the poor, but I thought I had better send what I had to give to the needy ones of my own church, as I cannot give to every one."

"We feel that it would be wrong to spend very much on Christmas for our own family when we are comfortable and other brethren are lacking the necessities of life. Enclosed you will find a check for the purpose of helping the needy as you see fit. Wishing you success in your work, which you so graciously perform."

"I read your article in THE HERALD and thank the heavenly Father that I am now ready to respond to your request. I am glad we have a person among the Church of God people who is interested enough to look after the unfortunate of our calling. May God bless you and give you strength to continue in the good work you are doing."

Our people very quickly responded to my appeal for help last winter for the drouth area sufferers, and some in a very generous way. This help was sent direct to our families whom I found were in need.

(This one is from a brother in the drouth area to whom I wrote for information.) "Your most welcome letter of a few days back received and its contents noted with delight. I am certainly glad some of the brothers and sisters in the North are able to help in this time of need, for the people in a great part of the South are in need. We have quite a few that are suffering. I certainly do appreciate your interest in us. I humbly pray the Father to bless you in your work of relief to the needy and to bless the donors."

(The next few are from the ones who live where the drouth was so severe.)

"I received your letter with check all right and we sure do thank you and the brothers and sisters for thinking of us, and for the help."

(From a very sick brother.) "I received your check today and thank you from the depth of my heart. I am sure God will bless you and all others who helped you send it." (Another from this man.) "It is again with a thankful heart that I write you to try to express to you how much I thank you for your kindness toward me. You have helped me wonderfully with what you have sent. God will bless you in your noble work. My health is not improved any, but I am looking to God for comfort and aid."

(From a lady seventy-nine years old and very feeble.) "I received your kind letter and the check. Am so thankful to you and the good Lord. If it hadn't been for the help you have sent (God sends help through His agents) we would have been in want. In regard to clothing I don't want to be too burdensome. I am so thankful to be able to get something to eat."

"Received the box of clothing and we haven't words to express our thanks to you. I found the dollar bill in the hand-bag. Thank you very much. You have been a great help to us and it is surely appreciated. We all join in thanking you for the things you have sent us and we wish you great success in your work."

"Your good letter with check at hand. This was all unexpected to me, but oh how thankful I was to get the help, for I surely needed it. May God bless you and the dear ones that make up the helping fund. I have had an awful time of suffering. I am getting better now and am able to walk about a little. May God help us all to be faithful and ready to be caught up together to meet the Lord in the air when He comes."

"Received the box of clothing and it was certainly appreciated. The people of the North cannot imagine how grateful we feel toward them for their kindness in so many ways since we have been hit so hard by the drouth of last year. May the Lord bless and keep you people and guide us all in all things to do His will."

We have just received your good and kind letter with check enclosed, and our hearts are filled with thankfulness to know that God has put it in the hearts of some of the brethren to help us in these perilous times. May God's blessing rest upon you and all the loved ones in Christ."

"Received your good letter with check enclosed and was in great need of help. I cannot express in words how thankful I am for your kindness. May God ever bless you in the good work. We people here in the South are surely hit hard by the last year's drouth and times are looking quite serious."

(From others.)

"We have received the money you sent us and bought groceries and will get some bread and meat. That will help us now until pay day. My husband is working now and think we will get along all right. This is the first time we have had to have help. We sure appreciate all you have done for us. I do not know how to express my thanks to you."

"I am writing a letter for mother as she doesn't feel able to write. She wanted you to know that Father died the twelfth and also wanted you to know Father appreciated so much your being so kind to him and Mother."

"The rent money came all right and many thanks. That means a place to stay for sixty more days. We received the box also and how nice the dresses were, and the children looked so pretty in them. They went to Sunday school feeling so rich and proud, and once again I wish to thank you. Don't know what would have happened if it hadn't been for your help."

"We have just received the box of clothing that you sent us. We were very much in need of it, and thank you for your kindness and loving spirit that you have shown us in so many ways. What we would have done without your help we cannot say. You have not only been a sister in Christ to us, but you have been a mother to my family."

"I am writing to let you know I received the check you sent us and to thank you for it and you can give our thanks to those who sent it to you. I think it is so good in them to help the needy."

(This was written Christmas morning.) "We received the box yesterday and kept it from the children until this morning. We then gave them their nice clothes with their new shoes, with a few Christmas things. We thank you from the depths of our hearts. Oh, how dark everything did look to us a few days ago, but today is turned to one of joy."

"Just a few lines to let you know how much I appreciate the help you have been giving me, and for one reason it is showing the church people here what the Bereans are doing. My husband and I were at one time members of a little Berean class that was organized at our church, but some of the members were opposed to it, and kept complaining about it until we gave it up. And now it does me good for them to see the good work the Bereans are doing, and I wanted to tell you about it. Perhaps it will prove to them that we need something like that at our church."

(From a sister who has been very ill.) "I received your welcome letter and the help you sent is so nice. We had spent all the money we had. Times are hard here, and as you said in your letter, sickness brings added expense." (This sister hopes to meet in the Kingdom of God all who have helped her in this time of sickness and need.)

I want to say this work needs all the help that can be given it. Through no fault of their own the condition of some of our families is a tragedy, and I am hoping that during this fall and coming winter a large number of our people will be good Samaritans in helping in this work as far as their means will permit.

And now to the ones who have helped so faithfully in the past, I take this opportunity to thank you in behalf of our families who have had misfortune come into their lives, and whom with your help I am trying to relieve of their anxieties. May God's richest blessings be yours.

(Mrs.) Orpha Sanford,
Chairman of National Berean Relief Committee of the Church of God, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
4707 1-2 St. Elmo Dr.
Los Angeles, California

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"BE THOU FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH, AND I WILL GIVE THEE A CROWN OF LIFE." -- REV. 2:10.

BIBLE DRILLS

OFTEN too little time is given by our Bereans to knowing their Bibles and knowing them well. In many localities the children can give more memory verses and list the books of the Bible much more quickly than their elders. In our little social gatherings why not add a little more profitable zest to them by trying some of these following, which were selected from one of the current periodicals? They will prove interesting for both old and young.

Hand out a group of Bible questions to the group interested in the drill. Do this at some time previous to the time at which the questions are to be answered. At a set time divide the group into sides. Put the same questions which have been previously handed out on separate slips of paper, a question to a slip. When a person drawing a slip from the hat as it is passed around, correctly answers the question written on the slip he keeps the slip. If he cannot answer the question he returns the slip to the hat. The hat is passed until every slip is taken from it.

Close your Bibles now. The leader gives out a verse. Who can find the verse in the least number of turns, or who finds the verse first?

This time let the Bible represent a tree. Each book is a limb; each chapter, a branch; each verse, a twig. Then for example, ask the members of your group to find the forty-third limb, the third branch, and the sixteenth twig. The number of the limb is found by counting the books of the Bible beginning with Genesis as the first limb.

These drills are profitable when reverently and joyously done. If you have played Bible games or used drills that have proved beneficial to your class let us publish them and let others use them also. In some localities there is an objection made to a Berean social or "party". But an evening spent in acquainting ourselves more fully with the composition and characters of the Bible can surely meet with no disapproval, and helps to bring some to the meetings who might not otherwise be attracted.

BEREANS, your attention is called to the article on the Relief Work, page 793.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

ON SEPTEMBER third, the Brush Creek Bereans met at the home of Bro. and Sr. Magaw for the monthly social and business meeting. There was a large crowd present and all enjoyed the evening very much. After the business meeting a series of guessing games was conducted by Bro. Magaw. The only article which he failed to guess proved to be a pound shower brought into the kitchen by the members, unnoticed by the family. Later in the evening home made ice cream and cake were served.

Interest has increased during the past month and we have nine new members to report. Sr. Louise Brewer is conducting the young people's class, which is very enthusiastic about the work, and we hope to be able to give a fuller report of their work next month.

We are more glad than words can tell to have the Magaw family with us in our Berean work.

Eunice Pearson, Sec.

SELF-DENIAL MONTH

OCTOBER will be set aside as Self-Denial Month again this year. Let us each do our bit and deny ourselves of some of the unnecessary things of life that we may aid those who are less fortunate than we are. Will each society as a whole please put forth a special effort that a larger sum may be realized than that of the previous year? This money should be sent to the state Berean treasurer, Virgil Claypool, 308 E. Chestnut St., Robinson, Illinois.

Elizabeth Ford, Sec.

BEREAN PAGE CONTRIBUTIONS

WE ARE going to discontinue our "Berean Page Contributions" department, but we hope that those who have been sending in their contributions will not discontinue so doing. We need your ideas and want to hear all about what your societies are doing.

As we close our little contest we find Illinois leading with 26 contributions; Ohio, 21; California, 10; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 8; Iowa, 5; Louisiana, 4; Texas, 1; New York, 1; Nebraska, 1; South Dakota, 1; Missouri, 1; Arkansas, 1.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

THE MACEDONIAN CALL

PAUL and Barnabas had finished their first missionary journey and were spending several days in Antioch. Then Paul became restless and said to Barnabas, "Let us go again and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do." He wanted to know how many had remained faithful, and if their faith was increasing.

Barnabas was ready to go, too, but insisted that his nephew, John Mark, should accompany them. Now, Mark had turned back on the first journey. Paul may have been displeased because Mark had left them, or felt Mark could not be depended upon. Anyhow, he objected to taking John Mark with them. Each said what he thought, and then, rather than quarrel about it and spoil the journey, they decided to separate. Barnabas took Mark with him and went to Cyprus.

Paul chose Silas and went through Syria and Cilicia. At Lystra they found a young man named Timothy, who had been taught the faith by his mother and grandmother. Timothy could be a real help, so they asked him to go with them. God blessed their efforts, and many churches were established and increased in number.

Paul and Silas also went through the districts of Phrygia and Galatia giving out the rules which the Council in Jerusalem had prepared for the new churches. They would have gone on into Asia to preach the gospel, but the Holy Spirit would not let them. There was other work for Paul to do. So they came through Mysia to the Roman seaport, Troas.

The Romans were people who lived west of the Greeks, and like the Greeks, had built cities in all parts of the world. Now the Romans were to hear the Christian doctrine.

While Paul was in Troas, God sent him a message to direct his further journey. One night Paul had a dream or vision. He saw a man, probably dressed in the clothing of the Macedonians. This man stood and prayed to Paul, saying, "Come over into Macedonia, and help us."

Paul never lost an opportunity to help or teach, nor did he disobey God. So he and Silas started immediately for the new country. Now Macedonia was a Roman province in Europe just across the Aegean Sea from Troas. However, they did not sail directly across the sea, but went by way of Samothracia, Neapolis, and then Philippi, the chief city of Macedonia.

Here the man of Paul's dream was not waiting to welcome them. In fact, this was all new territory—no Christian minister had been there before—and the apostles had not only to pay their own way, but gain the confidence of the people they would convert.

Several days passed in which they were most likely thinking over the new work. On the sabbath Paul and Silas went out of the city to the riverside, where the people met to pray. There they found women praying, and they sat down and talked to them about Jesus.

One of these women was Lydia, who had come from the city of Thyatira in Asia Minor. She must have been very wealthy, for she sold purple dye, which was the costliest dye in the world. Yet she discovered that there was something more worth while than money. She listened carefully to Paul's words and believed them so truly that she and her whole household were baptized that very night that they might receive God's promises and blessing.

She also wanted to use her wealth in bringing God's message to others, and so she insisted that Paul and Silas stay in her house while at Philippi. She proved her love for Jesus by kindness to His friends.

Thus, in Paul's second missionary journey the gospel is taken into Europe, and Lydia becomes the first convert there. Later, in a letter to the Romans, Paul said, "Through mighty signs and wonders by the power of the Spirit of God, so that from Jerusalem, and round about Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ."

DO WE obey or listen to God's messages to us?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read about Timothy—2 Timothy 1:1-7.
2. What do you think of the way in which Paul and Barnabas settled their dispute?
3. Read Romans 15:18-21.
4. Find the cities on a map mentioned in this lesson.

NATURE QUESTION

20. Saul's pursuit of David was compared to the hunt for a flea and a partridge. 1 Samuel 26:20.
21. What fruit did the spies bring back from the Promised Land?

WE BELIEVE

- in a day of judgment—Revelation 11:15-18.
- that the dead are unconscious—Ecclesiastes 9:3-10.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 13. — September 27, 1931

REVIEW: THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN ASIA

Acts 14:19-28

GOLDEN TEXT

They rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.—Acts 14:27.

Lesson I. Acts 1:6-9; 2:1-8.

Topic. The Coming of New Power.

Summary. True to the Savior's promise—"Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you", Acts 1:8—the apostles ten days later "were all filled with the Holy Ghost", Acts 2:4, and at once "began to speak . . . as the spirit gave them utterance." Their power of utterance in foreign tongues was afforded them of the spirit.

Christianity was thus introduced to man in the manifestation of a new power among men. This power was one enabling those Christianized to do, in word and deed, new and different things. See Acts 3:7, 8; 5:5, 15, and others.

Lesson II. Acts 4:1-14.

Topic. Apostolic Preaching.

Summary. In the evening of the day of Pentecost after the teachings and works of the apostles, the elders and rulers of Jerusalem took steps to overthrow the apostolic work.

About five thousand enemies had become friends of Christ.

Peter, with the healed man in his presence, boldly and effectively explained to the rulers that through no other name than that of Him whom they crucified, had God provided salvation.

Lesson III. Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-4; 2 Cor. 9:1-7.

Topic. Christians Sharing With Others.

Summary. The social relationship of Christians, their duties one toward another, and their duties toward God, were strikingly emphasized immediately following the day of Pentecost. Not only in thought and word, but equally in deed and service were they made responsible to one another.

The blessings of God upon those thus living and serving were also vividly manifested.

That the same principle was recognized years afterward by the Apostle Paul was made clear in his dealings with the Corinthian church and with others. 2 Cor. 9.

Lesson IV. Acts 7:59 to 8:4; 11:19-21.

Topic. Martyrs of the Early Church.

Summary. As though the works of the day of Pentecost had not been sufficient, as though the further testimony and preaching of the apostles had not been sufficient, God strengthened Stephen, who was full of the holy spirit, to give himself a sacrifice (though in the hands of his persecutors, a martyr) for the cause of Christ and Christ's truth. Not only were other multitudes in Jerusalem thus brought to the church, but multitudes of Christians were thus dispersed into all regions and countries who boldly proclaimed the gospel of Christ and witnessed therefor.

The godless Jews thus continued to make gory their hands with the evidence of their godlessness, while loyal patriotic Christians continued to urge forward in their testimony for Christ, even going so far as to make the supreme sacrifice.

Lesson V. Acts 8:26-40.

Topic. The Gospel Breaks Over the Frontier.

Summary. Immediately following Jewish persecutions, the apostles scattered in all directions, proclaiming Christ and Christ's salvation. Philip's labors, through the Ethiopian, carried the gospel to mid-Africa. Philip continued among the cities along the Mediterranean coast; Peter worked the plains of Sharon and coast cities. Gradually, yet rapidly, the gospel permeated the boundaries of adjoining and distant nations. The truths of Christ, of His death, of His resurrection, of His ascension, of His power of salvation, were gradually carried into the homes of every land.

Such pioneer labor required the utmost of devotion from the workers, necessitating in many cases the sacrifice of their own lives.

Christianity cost the Savior's life, the lives of many followers, the services and devotions of many thousands; all to the end that its salvation might be conveyed to all.

Lesson VI. Acts 9:1-9, 17-19; 1 Timothy 1:12-14.

Topic. A Vision and a Response.

Summary. God's power of enlightening him who really has faith in God is revealed and declared in his dealings with Saul. As the witnesses of the gospel of Christ and of the resurrection and life of Christ revealed God's power on the day of Pentecost to enlighten and receive former enemies of Christ, so that power was exemplified in the case of Saul.

The force of the statement that Christ came into the world to save sinners is likewise made clear by God's dealings with Saul and the early church.

Lesson VII. Galatians 6:1-10.

Topic. Intemperance.

Summary. Paul teaches that earnest Christian people should ever give themselves earnestly to the strengthening and restoring of every Christian whosoever may have weakened and fallen in life's temptations. He teaches that he who sins should be assisted to recovery from that sin.

The underlying law of God that every harvest is the product of the sowing thereto, is by Paul applied to Christians as well as to non-Christians.

The intemperate uses of liquors, tobaccos, opiates—injurious, poisonous, all destructive of man's best joy—are examples that may rightly be extended to illustrate the effect of the intemperate use of every lawful passion or taste of human life.

Lesson VIII. Acts 11:5-18.

Topic. The Gospel for All Men.

Summary. As a testimony from God that His gospel through Jesus Christ was for all men, Peter was given a vision and an explanation that what God cleanses is clean. Immediately afterward he was sent to a Gentile family, which family was miraculously cleansed by God's sent spirit.

In turn Peter presented this evidence to the church and converted all to the recognition that the gospel was sent to all men.

Lesson IX. Acts 12:25 to 13:12.

Topic. Christianity at Court.

Summary. Starting from Antioch as an outlying base, Christianity was by Paul and Barnabas carried to the new field of the island of Cyprus. As in the city of the Savior's ministry and crucifixion, so in distant Gentile lands, the righteous power and greatness of Christianity, in superiority over human idolatry and human government, were effectively witnessed and declared.

It is impossible to believe that that testimony was merely for that day or Cyprus. Rather it seems that the testimony was an instruction for Christianity for all time.

Lesson X. Acts 13:42-52; Rom. 1:14-16.

Topic. A Light Unto the Gentiles.

Summary. Carrying the gospel into Antioch of Pisidia, into the heart of Asia, Paul found his own kinsmen and proselytes of the Gentiles worshipping together in the synagogue. At once the word of the gospel became beautiful and illuminating to Gentiles, though it over-dazzled the Jews and soon blinded them.

It was there and then that Paul freely announced that because the Jews judged themselves unworthy of everlasting life he would turn to the Gentiles "to take out of them a people for his name". Acts 15:14.

Lesson XI. Acts 14:8-23.

Topic. Christianity Facing Other Religions.

Summary. The gospel of Jesus Christ was proclaimed as the religion which must eventually fill the whole earth. From it will be perfected the kingdom of God.

Paul and Barnabas journeyed into the mountainous sections about Lystra, Derbe, proclaiming with word and with healing power the glories of the gospel of Christ, the power of the sovereign God, and the command for them to flee idolatry and profit by the gospel.

Accompanying these apostles on their mission was God's manifest power through the gift of His holy spirit.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

FROM HERE AND THERE

Bro. and Sr. S. J. Lindsay, after a two months' sojourn in their home at Oregon, Illinois, and among the church folks of nearby states, returned on September 10, to their home in Tempe, Arizona, where Bro. Lindsay is pastor.

Two of the committeemen appointed at General Conference for the Dollar-A-Month Club, have already sent in some results of their efforts. Bro. S. H. Boyer of Pelton, Virginia, sent in three new names and Bro. Clyde Long of Cambridge, Nebraska, two new names and two who renewed their pledges.

Blair, Nebraska, is planning a big Rally Day for September 27. They have set their date ahead so as to have with them the members of the Training Class who will be leaving for Oregon to be in attendance at the opening of class, October 5. They expect to have three services on Rally Day, with sermons by Lucille and Richard LeCrone and by Harvey Krogh.

The picnic of Northern Illinois church folks on Labor Day proved to be a very fine one and was a success in every way. About 125 from Rockford, Dixon, Chicago, Kewanee, Plum River and Oregon, spent the day together in frolic and feasting. At the close a sunset service was held which brought the day to a close very fittingly. We feel greatly indebted to Bro. and Sr. Henry Mattison for the use of their fine grounds for our enjoyment.

The attention of all is called to the article on back page by Bro. Conner, our new business manager, in regard to the financial needs of the N. B. I. Please read it and act as far as it is possible for you to do. Read also the message sent to us by our new secretary, Bro. Marsh. This will be found on page 790.

RALLY DAY AT DIXON

October fourth will be Rally Day at the Dixon church. On that day we will celebrate the fifth anniversary of the dedication of our church. The committee is planning a program to be given in the afternoon by the children and young people. Preparations are being made for a busy day, with Sunday School at 9:45 and sermons at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. by Bro. Conner. A basket dinner will be served in the basement at noon. All are cordially invited to come and enjoy the day with the folks at Dixon.

NOTICE OF CHANGE OF ADDRESS

I wish to notify all readers of The Restitution Herald that I have changed my address. The new address will be found at the close of this notice. I have delayed this change for three years for the simple reason that I have a namesake that gets his mail from Woodstock. However, if these two simple precautions be followed, there need be no difficulty in the matter. First, if the term Elder (PLEASE do not use "Rev.") is used, the mail will reach its desired destination. Second, "R. F. D. No. 1" will properly distinguish. Either of these precautions will be enough to insure the mail reaching me.

Harry A. Sheets,

Woodstock, Virginia, Rt. 1.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Luper, Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman, Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed, Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins, St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush, Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley, Rt. 1, Bx. 25
Sumas, Washington

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman, Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington, Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkrite, Brantford, Ont.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn, Culver, Ind.
Bro. C. H. Nye, North Anson, Maine
Sr. Agnes Murray, Pasadena, Calif.
Sr. Sarah Dashwood, Dunville, Ont.

Sr. Dashwood writes that she is under the doctor's care and is discouraged. She requests the prayers of the brethren. A word of cheer to her would perhaps be encouraging.

Bro. and Sr. Lasher, whose names have been in our prayer column, write that God is blessing them wonderfully and that they are in the best of health now. Thank you, Bro. and Sr. Lasher, for these good words.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE PROGRAM

The special meetings to be held at Blanchard will begin on Tuesday evening, Sept. 22, followed by the Fall Conference, which will convene from Friday evening, Sept. 25 to Sept. 27.

Bro. F. E. Siple of Grand Rapids will be the speaker. Services will be held each evening at 7:30 Eastern Standard Time.

Saturday, Sept. 26: Bible Class, 10:00 a. m.; Bible Class, 2:30 p. m.; Conference Business Meeting, 6:30 p. m.; Sermon, 7:30 p. m.

Sunday, Sept. 27: Sunday School, 10:00 a. m.; Sermon, 11:00 a. m.; Potluck Dinner, noon; Sermon, 2:30 p. m.; Sermon, 7:30 p. m.

MEETINGS AT ELDORADO

Bro. C. E. Lapp will hold services at the Eldorado, Illinois, church over Sunday, September 20, and as long thereafter as it seems advisable. We urge all the brethren to cooperate in this meeting, and we pray God's blessing on all efforts put forth in His name. May these services be the means of uplifting and encouraging the brotherhood there.

A NEW PASTOR AT LOS ANGELES

With the resignation of Bro. Marsh from the pastorate of the Los Angeles church to take up more pressing duties with the National organization, the church was called upon to prayerfully consider the calling of some one else to fill the vacancy, and the financial question had also to be considered. A number of names were presented for discussion. Bro. Norman J. McLeod, having had a desire to take up the work for some time and having pleased many of the congregation with his discourses during the summer, was considered for some ten days and was finally elected to take the pastorate for the year, subject to his release from his teaching contract in the high school at Holtville. The school board commended the action and willingly granted the release, and he immediately began his new work as a minister of the Gospel on the first Sunday of September. We hope and pray that the church members, both old and young, near and far will seek to help and be helped in the effort to proclaim the gospel message to those out of Christ and to strengthen and build up all of like precious faith, knowing that redemption draweth nigh.

We are happy to report that Sr. Mary Kimball, of Pasadena, who has had a long siege of sickness in the past year, is able to be up and around again, with her usual sweet, friendly smile. When we consider that Sr. Kimball has reached her eighty-first year, this is quite remarkable.

Sr. Agnes Murray, of the Pasadena church, who has been ill for the past year, has grown worse in the last week, suffering acutely from heart trouble, not being able to lie down. Remember her at the throne of grace.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Services were well attended on September 6, and the fall weather continues to be ideal.

Miss Margaret Lyon and Mr. Richard Duval of Chicago were visitors over the Labor Day week end, returning to Chicago Monday night.

Miss Martha Townsend is happy at having her arm out of the cast from the recent break. Sr. Townsend recently suffered two days of serious results from a stubborn tooth.

Plans are being developed for fuller church activities this fall, announcement of which will soon be made. F. E. Siple, Pastor.

APPRECIATION

The maps and pictures for the Burr Oak Sunday School and for the new subscribers came today. Everyone seem quite pleased and wishes to thank the N. B. I. for them. The large map presented to the Sunday School is of especial interest. It will go to the girls' class, as all the new subscribers were in that class. Besides having the special features we had expected, the map has that extra something we always are pleased to receive in some of the minor details, such as, for example, the easy method of noting distances from Jerusalem. Thank you again, sincerely.

Yours in the Master's service,
Cecil Smead.

We greatly appreciate this note of thanks. The map won by Burr Oak Sunday School will be of especial value to them in their studies for the first quarter of 1932.

VIRGINIA BIBLE SCHOOL

As we look back we feel that August 20 to 30 was a very worth while season of study. This is the first year that we have had as many teachers as we needed. We had four divisions, with Sr. Thayer taking the beginners, Sr. Marsh, Bro. Arlen Marsh, and Sr. Sheets had charge of the junior young people. Bro. Marsh assisted the writer in teaching the senior young people and adult classes.

The work done by Sr. Thayer is still being talked about, and that talk is all of a very complimentary nature. Words of praise reach us from those in the community that had children in attendance. We hope that Sr. Thayer can come again.

Bro. Marsh did the same satisfactory work that he has always done for us. We wish him God's blessing in the work that he soon will take upon himself. We would extend further thanks to him for bringing Sr. Marsh and Arlen with him. Their presence here helped the Bible School very materially, aside from the fact that they taught one of the classes. Sr. Marsh is a teacher of proven ability, and judging from the quality of work Bro. Arlen is already doing, we feel that the day is not far off when he will be one of our ranking teachers.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, A. C. Boyer, Stephens City; Vice President, C. B. Compton, Manassas; Secretary, H. A. Sheets, Woodstock; Treasurer, W. E. Boyer, Woodstock.

The Conference voted to adopt Articles of Faith. The working out of these Articles of Faith was left to the Advisory Board. We are now waiting for the Articles of Faith voted at the last General Conference.

This Conference also voted to adopt the Ministerial Certificates that were voted at the last General Conference.

The Conference voted unanimously to have Bro. H. A. Sheets continue as their pastor for another year.

It was also voted to hold the annual meeting one week later than has been the custom. This was done that the pastor might have a week in which to attend the Ministerial Conference now being planned in connection with the General Conference.

It is also recommended and urged that every member of the Church of God in Virginia join the "Dollar-A-Month Club", thus aiding the gospel work of our National Organization.

H. A. Sheets, Sec.

NEBRASKA CONFERENCE

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in southwestern Nebraska was held at Holbrook, August 16 to 23. Brethren were present from Longmont, Colo., and from the following places in Nebraska: Blair, Moorefield, Cambridge, Bartley, Arapahoe, and Edison.

Among the young people present were four former members of the Bible Training Class, namely, Dorothy Krogh, Harvey Krogh, Clarence Lapp, and Grover Gordon. The sermons by them were greatly appreciated. We feel proud to see them carefully preparing themselves to carry on the Lord's work.

We all enjoyed Bro. Conner's sermons and Bible lessons. His continuous expressions of gratitude to our heavenly Father, testified of his devout faith and caused us to resolve anew to seek to glorify Him who gave so much for us.

At the close of the meetings three young men put on Christ by baptism. They are Donald Stedman and Aldo Stedman of Moorefield, and Harold Barnett of Holbrook. We pray that God will guard, guide and direct them and that they, with us, will be ready when He comes.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

We have again taken up our fall schedule of church work after having discontinued a part of it during the month of August. Services are as follows: Sunday School each Sunday morning at 9:45 and Morning Worship and Sermon at 11:00; Berean Class each Friday evening at 7:45. These services are all held at the W. C. T. U. Hall, 1904 North Main Street. The ladies of the church have a Dorcas sewing society which meets every other week at the homes of its members.

On Sunday morning, August 31, we listened to an inspiring sermon from our pastor, Bro. Earl Thayer, after which Bro. Edward Lindsay was presented with a baptismal certificate and was extended the right hand of fellowship. His baptism on August 2 was cause for special rejoicing as he is the first new member (except by letter) to be added to our little church group in Rockford.

We were pleased to have Bro. and Sr. W. V. Lansbery of Casey, Ill., in attendance at our services on Sunday, August 30, and on Friday night, September 4. On Sunday, September 6, Bro. and Sr. Marsh and Arlen and Bro. and Sr. J. H. Williams were in attendance at Sunday School and church.

On Sunday morning, August 23, we were pleased to see Sr. Orpha Sanford, Sr. Edna Beck, and Bro. Chas. Anderson from Chicago; but we were sorry not to have had church service that day as they had driven out expecting to hear Bro. Thayer speak. We hope they will come again soon, as we will have a sermon each Sunday morning from now on throughout the coming year, God willing.

We are always very much pleased and encouraged to have friends drop in and attend our services, and we want to extend an earnest invitation to any who come near our vicinity to attend any of our services.

OUR TRIP TO ARKANSAS CITY

It was indeed a blessing for us to again meet in conference with those of like precious faith who assembled at Arkansas City from August 23 to 30. This year the attendance was below that of the past few seasons, but we know some were not privileged to attend because of unavoidable circumstances. Those who were present took an unusual interest in the work.

Elder John Denchfield, a former student of the Bible Training Class and present pastor of the Eden Valley Church of God in Minnesota, greatly assisted in making the conference a success. We know his effort will long be appreciated, especially by the young folks with whom he worked.

The brethren at Arkansas City are not discouraged. May God give them the strength of Gideon to overcome their handicaps though the membership is small. We are glad to report that the hope and talk of the brethren is still that of soon erecting a church building.

Though we trust the entire membership was encouraged in the calling of the Master, we are still more grateful for the conversion of five young people who publicly confessed faith in the Lord and were baptized. These we gladly introduce to the church. They are Murray Oliver and Firman Reed of Attica, Kansas; Hugh and Victor Gillespie of Arkansas City, Kansas; and Jean Bernard of Oxford, Kansas. All are of high school age. Surely we pray that they may be kept clean, that they may be led of the Lord through the pitfalls of life, and that they may be crowned with the Lord in the next age.

We will remember with joy our trip to Arkansas City, and are confident that God will be the abiding strength of His people there. Sydney E. Magaw.

NELSEN - WHITE

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 5, when Miss Opal White became the bride of Mr. Kenneth Nelsen, at the home of her parents in Bennington, Nebr. Lloyd, brother of the groom, and Doris, sister of the bride, served as best man and bridesmaid.

The wedding took place at 9:30 a. m., Bro. Almus Adams performing the ceremony, and it was followed by a wedding breakfast. The young couple left immediately for Lake Okoboji and other points of interest. They will be at home in their nicely furnished new house in Bennington after September 15. The best wishes of their many friends go with them.

MRS. JOHN PRICE

Elizabeth Catherine Damude was of the early stock of believers from which came the present-day Church of God at Fonthill, Ontario. She became the wife of Jacob Jenter, who was her companion through a long lifetime. After his death she married John Price.

Death came to her on the morning of August 14, 1931, and on the 16th, at the little Fonthill church where she had long worshipped, we conducted the funeral service, speaking of the beauty of her hope, which was to be awakened out of death's sleep by the voice of the returning Lord, who shall usher in earth's day of glory and call us to Himself. With that hope, sorrowing hands laid her to rest in Fonthill cemetery. M. W. Lyon.

MRS. LILLIAN M. PECK

Mrs. Lillian M. Peck was born in Michigan, Nov. 20, 1869. It has been about ten years since the family moved to Venice, California, where her husband, W. H. Peck, engaged in the furniture business. Through the teaching of their eldest daughter and of Bro. S. J. Lindsay, Sr. Peck came into the knowledge of the gospel of the kingdom of God, and became obedient to the faith in baptism by Bro. Lindsay in 1924. For the past three years she has been afflicted with cancer from which for two years she had entertained hopes of recovery, but the death of three members of the family, the eldest daughter, Sr. Lillian, a son, Ira F., and a brother-in-law, coming in rapid succession, so shocked and weakened her that the enemy finally became the victor, and she fell asleep in Jesus on August 29, 1931. She suffered long and patiently. Her daughter Sr. Fidelia Pearson, of 603 Maple Ave., Mayfield, Ky., came to her mother's bedside on May 15 and was in constant care of her until the end, as was also her son, Hubert and wife of Venice. This daughter and son, together with another daughter, Sr. Naomi Battisill, of 17504 Cooley Ave., Redford, Detroit, Michigan, and her sorrowing husband, W. H. Peck of 705 Boccaccio St., Venice, are left to mourn. In the absence of the pastor of the Los Angeles church, a Presbyterian minister made a few brief remarks, and she was laid to rest beside the daughter in the Hollywood Mausoleum to await the trumpet call. Emma C. Railsback.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Frank Switzer; C. A. Corbell; A. C. Kjardgaard; Mrs. C. H. Nye; Ashby Updike; Mrs. G. F. Updike; C. A. Smead; George Claypool; Mrs. Luey Robinson; A. J. Grubbs; John M. Dorn; Mrs. Connie Ramsey; Mrs. Helen Schaffer; Sarah Dashwood; C. P. Oliver; Mrs. Chas. Page.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

TO OUR BROTHERHOOD

AS BUSINESS manager of the National Bible Institution I am coming to you with a business proposition. The National Bible Institution stands upon a perfectly safe financial basis, but owing to the present financial depression our debtors are hindered and delayed in making payment of their bills, while our creditors are pressing us for payment of bills we are owing them. These bills we are very anxious to pay. Everyone who has ever transacted any considerable amount of business knows something of the importance and value of maintaining good credit.

Our bills payable are scattered about in many small amounts, owing for supplies and greenhouse stock, as are our bills receivable also. Those who are owing us have been embarrassed and delayed in paying their bills on account of the present depression rather than on account of dishonesty. Some have lost their surplus funds through bank failures, and are now struggling to get back to firm footing again. Most of them will come back in time and pay in full, but it will require time and patience on our part.

My proposition to you is this:

Those of you who have funds from which you desire to draw interest, loan it to the National Bible Institution at six percent interest, which will enable us to pay up our bills that are due, thus keeping our credit good, and enable us to bear with those who are owing us until such time as they may be able to pay their bills. Some of our people who know our situation would gladly accommodate us were their surplus funds in such form that they could be used for this purpose; but they are in form of stocks and bonds, all of which have fallen far below par value, and they do not want to sacrifice the amount necessary to accommodate us at this time, as these securities are expected to come back to par value in time.

My appeal therefore is to those who may have a few hundreds on hand or in savings banks which may not be bringing you more than three and one-half percent to four percent. The National Bible Institution will pay you six percent, and the security is ample. We have property to the value of approximately $40,000 with indebtedness of approximately $15,000, and the amount we desire to borrow is for the purpose of paying on this indebtedness—not to pay running expenses.

If you will loan us $3,000 our indebtedness to others will be reduced just $3,000. If the banks were making loans we could easily secure the amount needed, as our credit at our home bank is one hundred percent. But as the banks are making no loans, regardless as to securities, I am appealing to our friends who are interested in the welfare and success of the National Bible Institution to try to secure the amount needed. If you can spare one hundred dollars or more, kindly notify us at your earliest convenience, and it will be appreciated.

Address all communications to National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois. If you desire your communication to be considered by me particularly, just note on envelope: Attention Mr. Conner, or any other officer of the institution, as the case may be, and it will be given attention accordingly. Otherwise your communication will be opened by the office girl and then referred to the department or person which, in her judgment, should give it consideration.

I have nothing to do with the editorial department, and can give attention to the business and executive matters of the institution only. Heretofore the editorial and executive branches were conducted by the same individual. These have now been separated, and henceforth the editor is in no wise responsible respecting the business and executive part of the work, and likewise the business manager and executive is in no wise responsible respecting the editorial part of the work, and it will facilitate matters and result in more prompt consideration of communications if all correspondents will keep this in mind and act accordingly in communicating with the National Bible Institution office.

As manager of the institution I desire your counsel and assistance in every way in which you may be able to render assistance. Your criticisms are not only welcomed but solicited when intended to be constructive. What I mean by constructive is this: If anything should be done by the manager or in his department which you believe should not have been done, or should have been done differently, tell the manager so frankly, giving your reasons, and how you believe it should be done or conducted, with your reasons. But don't forget nor neglect to tell how you believe the thing complained of ought to be done or conducted. If you just say you do not approve of the way things are being done, without giving any reasons nor suggesting how you believe it should be done, such criticism will be considered by your manager as being destructive, and therefore given but little attention.

I can always find time to consider criticisms of counselors and advisors, but I have no time to waste in considering destructive criticisms and faultfindings. No doubt there will be much room and just cause for criticism of my work in this office, and I shall expect it, and welcome it. But, brethren, make it constructive and therefore helpful, and I will thank you.

L. E. Conner.

GENERAL CONFERENCE expressions were heard to the effect that God is blessing us as an institution. The greater the number who devote themselves to the work, the more God will bless us, if we seek to do His will.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 22, 1931

NUMBER 51

Between Death and Resurrection

By G. Eldred Marsh

WHAT is the state or condition of man between death and the resurrection? This interesting question is frequently asked by those who think deeply and seriously concerning the future life. As with all other disputed questions, religious or otherwise, it is wise to ascertain at the beginning of the investigation if one or more points of agreement do not exist in the minds of the disputants. In the present instance, an evident point of general agreement is found in the word "resurrection".

While more or less disagreement exists between the various religious schools concerning the time and nature of the resurrection, they generally agree that a resurrection from the dead will actually take place. The statement of our question acknowledges this much to be true.

The Apostle's Creed affirms in its familiar phrase: "I believe in the Holy Ghost; The holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints; The forgiveness of Sins; The Resurrection of the body; And the Life Everlasting. Amen." This ancient Christian symbol adds somewhat to the general thought of resurrection when it defines it as "The Resurrection of the body."

This statement clarifies the thought and gives it a definiteness and precision it would not otherwise possess. The resurrection, as an article of Christian faith, refers to the resurrection of the body. It has nothing to do with what is commonly denominated the "soul" or "spirit". Let us remember this! The resurrection has to do with the body, and with the body only.

It is necessary that we should have this point of general agreement fixed clearly in our minds in order that we may be prepared to understand what the Bible teaches concerning the condition of the individual whose body has been consigned "dust to dust, ashes to ashes", while that body remains in the grave.

In my investigation of the question from sources extraneous to the Bible, I have been impressed with the paucity of conclusive and positive statements I was able to find concerning the Intermediate State. The leading theologians seem at a loss to produce any real biblical evidence in answer to our question. For example, the Biblical, Theological and Ecclesiastical Cyclopediae, edited by M'Clintock and Strong, says regarding the matter, "Respecting this, little is definitely said in the Scriptures, and it is therefore left for our speculation to fill up the lack of information on this interesting theme, guided by such hints as are casually thrown out by the sacred writers, and such considerations as the ascertained nature and destiny of man afford." Other recognized authorities speak with equal modesty of their lack of information on this important subject.

A second discovery in connection with the question is the fact that leading divines and many Protestant denominations teach individually and in their statements of faith that no one goes immediately to heaven or to a place of punishment at death. They generally agree that between death and the resurrection the "soul" or "spirit" is not subject to conscious happiness or sorrow.

Again quoting from M'Clintock and Strong: "In the second place, it follows that the soul can have no cognizance of the passage of time while thus disembodied . . . We conclude, therefore, that the intermediate will pass to all its subjects as an instant, and that none will be aware of the length of the interval. . . . We are bound to conclude, from the total diversity and even contrariety of their properties and attributes, that a dead man is really dead to everything pertaining to time and sense."

May I bring to you further testimony from the pen of Dr. Olin Alfred Curtis, Professor of Systematic Theology in Drew Theological Seminary? He says, "We are never so to regard the doctrine of the intermediate state that it even suggests heaven. The terrible stress upon death is yet lingering there, for no man is complete, no man can be complete until the resurrection." (The Christian Faith.)

(Continued on page 809)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

IN EXHORTING His apostles as to prayer, Matt. 6:9, the first thing our Savior placed before them was that they should honor and reverence their Father in heaven. The first petition taught them, that which apparently stood foremost in the mind of the Savior, was, "Thy kingdom come."

It was addressed to the Father in heaven. It was a heart longing of our Lord and Master. He exhorted His apostles and all followers that they might come to realize the importance of this great petition, the importance of the realization of the petition in fulfillment.

When speaking of the kingdom of God one necessarily speaks of that which eventually must directly influence every living subject of that kingdom. God's kingdom, established at the return of our Lord and Savior, is to become all-inclusive in its domain, absolute in its sovereignty, having the interest of every individual in hand.

The kingdom of God in its fullness will answer every governmental problem, every commercial situation, every industrial lack, every financial disruption, every like problem of every subject of that kingdom.

PRESENT DAY DILEMMAS

WE cannot too soon come to realize that every community or national dilemma of today results in one way or another from the government or governments of earth. Every condition of crime; every condition of inequality of citizenship; every condition of commercial breakdown, of industrial catastrophe; every condition of social corruption, of educational confusion: every one of these heart-rending conditions is the result of human government, or its lack. Strive as he may with all uprightness and nobility of aim and purpose, yet no man is able to act beyond the limits of the finite mind, nor to insure himself or his fellows against error of judgment and action, the result of which must be destructive in tendency. There are many just reasons for all this. In fact, it would be impossible to expect otherwise. When one soberly and sanely meditates quietly by himself and his God, he can but realize that no other end could result than is resulting and must result.

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

STATISTICS reveal that there have been repetitions in human history of social and business conditions. Nations have come into existence, have developed and become glorified and have suffered overthrow, one after another. The dignity of Babylon, the sovereignty of Medo-Persia, the art and grandeur of Macedonia, the strength of the warrior nation, Rome: all these have not only gone into decay, but the memory of them has practically faded away. As with these, so with long lists of other nations. It is only the governments and kingdoms of the present day that the present generation seems able to really study, analyze and consider. So much so is this the truth that the common saying, "History repeats itself," has come to be accepted almost as an axiom. If we accept such statement as a fact, then we must expect to realize the complete overthrow of present nations and kingdoms and the rising up of others, possibly yet unborn nations, to take their places.

But just because the memory of man indicates that history repeats itself is no evidence that the easily spoken phrase carries the truth. As a matter of fact, when compared with the Bible, the statement is not true. God's prophetic Word reveals to us that a great new thing is soon due to take its place in the world. Nothing in the present has ever been like it. The dream of man has never sensed it. Once it is established it is never to fail, never to be discontinued. I refer to God's kingdom as foretold in the Scripture will be an expression of God's great mind and truth and plan with reference to the upbuild and welfare of humanity as it inhabits the earth. It will lead the human mind to a realization that all of the people must necessarily live true to one another as under the guidance of one single plan, one definite governing aim and purpose and end. The proclamation of our Savior in Judea and Galilee strikingly revealed in a small way how such a common recognition of God, such a common acceptance of God's one mind, one plan, one thought, would result in blessing and benefit and peace and quiet to all concerned. Search as one may, he cannot find out that the commandments and directions of our Savior ever brought upon those commanded one little discomfort or displeasure or disease or disruption. His every commanded word when heeded brought uplift of body and mind and hope. It was only the enemies of our Lord who, flinging their anathemas at Him and His would-be followers, brought distress upon them. His whole activity of word and life revealed that with universal domain and universal authority the Savior's rule, as God's appointed King, would result in universal peace and quietude and upbuild and blessing.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

PRESENT DAY CONDITIONS

THE world today is passing through the greatest condition of sorrow that history reveals. At no other time has there been such world-wide, deep-seated unrest, dissatisfaction and suffering as there is today. Of course, if this is to be another instance of history repeating itself, then we may soon definitely expect the dawn of a new and better day. But prophecy reveals the fact that either now or in the near future history is going to fail to repeat itself in the rising from a depression like this to a return of former conditions. Rather, God's prophetic word assures us that some day the financial and social and industrial and commercial and educational conditions are going to bring man and man's government to their Waterloo. That is to say, man's government will one day have brought on so much of catastrophe in its many lines of activity and influence as to bring upon itself its own overthrow. From the ashes of this condition God's own kingdom will arise which "shall not be left to other people." That is, it shall not be absorbed and taken over by any following people.

He who will stop to analyze present day conditions should be amazingly and overwhelmingly convinced of the truth of God's Word. Only think:

It is not in obedience to God's Word that the great surplus of edibles remains untouched while nearby hundreds are suffering for lack of food;

It is not in obedience to God's Word and command that one group of a people is rolling in wealth and luxury and wastefulness while another group is languishing in poverty and squalor and desperate need;

It is not in obedience to God's Word that man becomes a criminal, shoots his neighbor down or steals his neighbor's property;

It is not in obedience to any of God's words than any one class of society defames, demoralizes, and immoralizes another phase or group of society.

And yet these conditions are here today. They are not merely local, they are more or less world-wide. Not one of them exists as a result of obeying God. They all result from carrying out the selfish, greedy desires of one who takes advantage of others.

GOD'S KINGDOM

THE great question is: Are we to look for a return to human normalcy of government from these conditions, or are we to expect a continued tobogganing to unbearable depths of confusion and heartache till our heaven-an-

(Continued on page 810)

THE BIBLE TRAINING CLASS

By G. Eldred Marsh

IN THESE days of growing skepticism and indifference to all religious ideas and influences, the attention of the church should be especially directed toward our young people, for upon them and upon their attitude toward the truth of God (humanly speaking) the entire future of our effort depends. To encourage our young men and women to engage in religious activities and to prepare themselves to assume responsibility and leadership in the Church of God must be one of our chief endeavors. We must impress upon them that they are equally responsible with us for the success of our work; that they are the ones who soon must bear the entire burden; that from their ranks must be drawn the religious leaders and the spiritual and financial support without which the work cannot go on.

To accomplish this vital purpose the Bible Training Class has been established and is being maintained. The Training Class is the fruitage of the hearts and hopes of our people. It is the concrete expression of their desire that the gospel of the kingdom of God should be widely and ably proclaimed. We have come to realize that the times in which we live demand a ministry possessed of higher educational attainments than ever before; that if we are to reach and hold the ear of the public, the truths so dear to our hearts must be presented in a manner that is acceptable to the sensibilities of a modern, educated congregation; that to know the Bible alone is no longer sufficient.

Paul was able to convince all classes of the truth of the gospel because he was able to speak a language which all could understand, and because he could use expressions and illustrations with which his hearers were familiar. Had the great Apostle clung closely to the language of his fathers, had he appealed to the Gentiles in the same way that he appealed to the Jews, he could not have reached their understanding and produced a favorable response from them. And so it is today!

The prayers, the work, the money we bestow upon the Bible Training Class will bring to the Church of God a most bountiful reward, both in the world that now is and in the world to come!

THE THOUGHT OF GOD

One thought I have, my ample creed,
 So deep it is, and broad,
 And equal to my every need—
 It is the thought of GOD.

Each morn unfolds some fresh surprise,
 I feast at life's full board;
 And rising, in my inner skies
 Shines forth the thought of GOD

At night my gladness is my prayer,
 I drop my daily load;
 And every care is pillowed there
 Upon the thought of GOD.

I ask not far before to see,
 But take in trust my road;
 Life, Death, and Immortality
 Are in my thought of GOD.
 —F. L. Hosmer.

BEAUTY FOR ASHES

By J. W. Williams

WHEN the gracious Son stood up in the synagogue of His home town and read Isaiah's above prediction, saying He had come to make it good, the mourning nation, who had waited long in pain and sorrow for the day the Prophet foretold, found their sickness fled at His touch, their weight of sorrow lifted, their bereavement turned to reunion with their lost ones who were on the way to the Silent City. Under three figures of speech all this happiness was prefigured by their Prophet: Beauty instead of the ugly ash heap upon which orientals sat in expression of their misery; faces anointed with oil instead of the mourning lines and features of face; garments of glad color instead of the dark hues of sorrow and bereavement.

Israel had long sat upon her ash heap, waiting for her Messiah to come and redeem her. She had long worn a face of care and misery and the garments of sackcloth, betokening her degradation. Now He had come, and all was changed. He proclaimed her restored kingdom at hand and made the claim good by the miracles that brought kingdom conditions present to them for a time. But only for a time! For the time of her redemption had not come, but the time of the Redeemer's paying of the price of redemption upon the tree.

Israel again went into deeper mourning than ever, after a brief respite that made the future misery all the harder to bear. But only for a time! There will come again a great and lasting deliverance through the near Kinsman, when the year of Jubilee shall come with His return. Then the prophecy will be wholly and unchangeably fulfilled. They will never sorrow more. The garments of black sackcloth will be cast aside forever. Faces will be radiant where were tears. Beautiful garments of pure linen for those who sat among the ashes.

In all this beautiful language does the heavenly Husband, who loved His earthly nation wife with an everlasting love, assure her of her final restoration to His favor. Their inspired musician wrote that weeping may endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning. The Lamb sends them final word that all tears will be wiped from all faces; that pain shall be no more and never again a sad funeral procession moving through the ages.

We almost forgot her misery in contemplation of such happiness, when her remarriage to her Husband will be celebrated for a thousand years of joy. And some day, He says, she, too, will forget her sorrow and her shame. It almost makes us wish we were the reclaimed wife, so we could have our mourning transformed into such rejoicing. But there is no need for this. There is a happy day like this for all. God is no Respector of persons in individual joy, as well as in national opportunity, in the grace of the gospel. If the miseries of the Jews awake His compassions, He loves the Gentiles also, for the Redeemer, says John, died for the world as well as for our sins.

Job was an Edomite, but though he was not of Israel the Father took notice of his pain and his cries for relief, and after he rose from his ash heap and cast off his sackcloth, he lived for a hundred and forty years of joy.

The Jew who was sent to the Gentiles assures us that our light affliction, which is for a moment, works for us a weight of glory that is lasting, and that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy of comparison with that glory then to be revealed. These are heartening words to those who sit in darkness and the shadow of death, and they reach the heart of everyone with their cheering balm, for who lives that has not seen sorrow?

The sheep are now traversing the valley of the shadow, but the good Shepherd, who went through it before for them, is accompanying them, and with such cheering words as the above He is encouraging their lagging steps. A father who loves must sometimes express that love in corrective chastening. Ore of flesh that contains gold of faith must pass through the refining fire. Flesh that contains the source of sin in the three desires must give way to the spiritual body of resurrection. Only the few who live to see their Redeemer descend will escape the death that makes this resurrection necessary, and all must experience figuratively the crucifixion with Christ, to which the Apostle so frequently alludes, before they can share His glory on the other side of His cross of shame.

There are three things that inhere in this flesh that is to be crucified and that make the crucifixion urgent. We are crucified with Him that the body of sin may be destroyed, that henceforth we shall not serve sin. We suffer in the flesh, but in resurrection to the spiritual body there

(Continued on page 810)

MY PRAYER FOR THE TRAINING CLASS

LAST Monday morning I awoke and found myself praying for the Training Class. It seemed two of the class stood beside me, looking so discouraged and downhearted. I said to them, "Well, boys, you seem very heavily loaded this morning. What are you carrying?"

They looked up and one said, "Sr. Woodward, we are much discouraged with our work."

I said, "Hide quickly behind the Cross in prayer, for you are on very dangerous ground. You are losing faith in God, or you would not show such very heavy hearts as you have this morning. You are harboring fear and distrust in your minds. Probe around quickly and find a reason, if possible, for your gloom. Perhaps you have been too highly elated of late over some of your work, not giving God the glory, but claiming it for yourself. The dear Christ is always on the lookout, and is perhaps purposely calling your attention by bringing this shadow into your lives just to show you how dangerous is the path you are following. For we have nothing in ourselves to be proud of, and if we have done well we must give God the glory instead of ourselves."

It is an easy thing to become overloaded with pride, forgetting God gave us the brains to think with and the strength to act. He has to call us down occasionally and rebuke us, and when we really awaken to the fact of what has occurred, how we hide our faces in shame. Our pain and shame can only pass away by going alone with God in prayer, where He will listen and forgive. Can we now say with Peter, "For what glory is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God."—1 Peter 2:20.

So, beloveds in the Lord, clothe yourselves with humility and pray on, for God never goes away on a long journey nor forgets, but He always hears and answers our prayers. We are suffering sometimes for our own good. "For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God." That was why He suffered—to bring us to God. What a patient, longsuffering Christ we have!

I was so thrilled this morning while reading my morning lesson in Colossians 3:13. "Bearing with each other, and freely forgiving each other, if any one for some things may have a cause of complaint; even as the Lord forgave you, so also do ye forgive." Emphatic Diaglott. How often we are called upon to "bear with each other". And besides all these things, "Put on love, it is the bond of completeness". It is so hard for us to overlook personal hurts, but if we will look closely into our own hearts, we will find that the reason we do not forgive readily is because of our own selfishness. "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors," should mean very much to every one of us, but we seem to pay little heed to it and keep right on in the unforgetting route.

But I have wandered from my Training Class Prayer. When I awoke I was saying to the two boys, "You will meet many hard places. Be patient; stand still and see the glory of God. The Father knows how hard the way is for you, and He will lighten each burden as He knows you need it. Do not allow yourselves to ever be discouraged, that means a loss of faith. Be strong, courageous, stable! Look up and see the silver lined cloud, and praise God that He stands behind it, ready to keep you in His love."

M. A. Woodward.

"A MAN'S life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—Luke 12:15.

FROM DISTANT LANDS

Thinking this might be of interest to the readers of The Herald, I am sending it. We may not always be able to talk to people by the way, but we can often give them a smile. We may not be able to go to China, much as our heart may be there, but we can pray for those who are there. My niece, Kathryn, went out last year and is happy in service for the Master.—R. H. Judd.

DEAR FRIEND: Just over two days of settling in at my mission station and beginning to recognize the faces of servants and Christians that were around the compound, and then Sunday came. I wish that I could have smuggled you all into the China Inland Mission chapel and compound that day by some fairy tale, invisible cap, or magic wand, for you would have been charmed with the quaint Chinese houses and tiled roofs, making such dark shadows in the brilliant sunshine, not to mention the Chinese Christians themselves in their best clothes, and the little children with their queer little plaits and brightly colored flower-garden clothes.

It was the great Sunday of the year, baptismal Sunday, when candidates for baptism and their friends, Christians, and their families come in from the surrounding district to confess their Lord and to remember His death "till he come". I wish I could make you feel the atmosphere of love and fellowship, of joy and friendly interest that was around us.

The day began early, for the baptismal service was at 6:30 a. m. It almost made a lump come in my throat, though there certainly was praise filling and overflowing in the heart, as some of the old Chinese women fearfully stepped down into the water on their tiny feet. Water has such terrors for them, and so many of them have never had a bath in their lives. Yes, it does make you smile, doesn't it? when we are used to having them so often.

I wonder if we have enough imagination to put ourselves in their place just for those few minutes that Sunday morning and try to feel and understand all the fears and all the joys that confession of Christ meant for them. Imagine hearing the gospel for the first time when we are old, when it is hard to understand, the struggle and the determination needed to accept and confess the Lord, to learn to read a simple catechism, to bear with the disinterestedness of relatives, or perhaps even their opposition, and then about a year of trial to make sure that Christian living equals profession: all this leading up to this Sunday morning baptismal service.

The Chinese pastor who baptized, with his stern but quiet face, and yet his gentleness, seemed a kinsman of that John the Baptist of the desert places and "Behold, the Lamb of God". There was one exception to the simple answer of "I do" to the question put, and that was an old grey haired woman whose voice rang so clearly through the chapel, and I am sure that it rang through the arches of heaven itself, "Yes, I'll die for Him." I wonder would you? Really? Would I?

And then we went back to our quiet courtyard for breakfast and a few minutes of quiet. But soon there were groups of women and children wandering in to see the strange way that these foreigners live under the escort of some Bible woman, and I would look up from my desk and find half a dozen or so pairs of curious eyes on me, and then for a minute I would try to do my best to act the hostess dumbly. My Chinese is very limited as yet, and owing to the change to the north of China, what Chinese words I know are pronounced differently. And so that Sunday morning my one answer to every remark and every question was a smile.

"How old are you?" A smile.

"What is your honorable name?" A smile.

"You sleep on a bed?" A smile. (They generally sleep on a raised hollow brick platform in which fire can be put to warm it if fuel is obtainable, and it is usually built at one end of the room.) And then sometimes the answer would come from the Bible woman, "She is a new one, just come, she can only smile."

Out in the women's courtyard it was the same. Here there were little groups of women gathered round a Bible woman or one of the missionaries learning to read a hymn, a Bible verse, or the catechism, telling about their homes and talking about the last visit from the missionary. As another one came in through the quaint Chinese doorway, someone would remark, "You've come," and then there would be a chorus of "Ping an" (Peace), from others.

"Peace" is the common greeting around here apparently, and so there is a continuous wishing of peace from the time we get up in the morning until they leave us with the "Sleep beautifully" at night. May He grant that they each one may have that peace which passeth understanding, guarding their hearts from all the evils of a heathen land and particularly those who walked on the heights that Sunday morning and who went back to their old humdrum existence that evening to live the Christ there.

Then the gong rang, and we all went down to the chapel for the regular morning service. At the close they gave a farewell to two of the missionaries who were leaving here to open up another station in this province, and at the same time they welcomed me. Both of the ladies who were leaving had been in Hwailu for many years, and so it was saying good bye to old friends.

Then when their ceremony was over, my turn came. The great problem with me was when to get up to give my bow, for a bow at the wrong time would be almost tragic. Fortunately I understood enough, when I was being politely requested, to step up on to the platform (this was confirmed by a nudge from one of the missionaries sitting beside me). Once I was up there, the whole congregation stood, and at the "One" of the pastor who was standing in front, they bowed, and I, on the platform bowed in return. "Two," and another bow. "Three," and another bow, and then to my real embarrassment I was asked if I wanted to say anything. The only answer possible was to shake my head and hastily descend from the platform.

But with a welcome like that I should belong here, shouldn't I? My Chinese surname means "Blessing". I wonder if you could do your part to make me a blessing here, that the glory of the Lord may shine forth? Then after the excitement of farewells and welcome came the still quietness of the communion service, and the Lord Himself drew very near.

It was nearly two, and we were all very ready for our dinner. Soon we were sitting by special invitation among the women, plying our chopsticks. Then came more talking, more hymns to teach, farewells from those who had long distances to walk, and then at about four a praise service for the women, when we sang favorites, some to tunes familiar in our home churches, and some weird Chinese tunes that will take a while for me to learn all their peculiar ups and downs.

Gradually the crowded courtyard emptied, and as the sun set there were only those left who were staying the night. And so the day was ended!

Can you read between the lines, and see the people and the things for which the Lord would have you pray? those who have just been baptized, those who are preparing for baptism, the Bible women, the Chinese pastors, those who are opening new stations, etc.

I am afraid I have rather taken for granted that you know the map of China well, and that Hwailu will not be just a name to you. It is in the northeast of China, and not very far, as distances go in China, from Peking, the old capital of China and in the same province. It is not a very large city, but there is surrounding country with hundreds of villages to hear the Gospel.

The city is at the foot of the mountains, and I find them a strength to look at, and as we look out over the plain and imagine, miles beyond our vision, those villages where Christ is unknown to so many, the cry goes up, "Lord, who is sufficient for these things?" All the barriers of language and customs and incapability come up, and the answer still rings back, "We rest in Thee, and in Thy name we go."

Sincerely,

Kathryn S. Judd.

(China Inland Mission, June, 1931.)

NEW EVIDENCES OF SCRIPTURE TRUTH

(Note: Out of the dust of centuries the archeologist's spade is constantly bringing to light new verifications of the Bible record. One of the latest of these is contained in the following newspaper dispatch to the Toronto Globe from Jerusalem, dated August 2, 1931. It is passed along to Herald readers by Sr. W. H. Holland.)

RUINS of Capernaum, the New Testament city which the Lord Jesus selected as a starting place for His mission, have been laid bare, and the synagogue where Christ, according to the Gospels, preached one of His most stirring sermons, is being restored after having lain under the dust for nineteen hundred years.

Though the most surprising finds are being recorded from Palestine recently, this restoration of Capernaum synagogue is, perhaps, most intimately of them all related to Christianity. For from this region, with its gemlike Lake of Galilee as a center, were drawn the majority of the disciples, the men who became apostles later.

There is no country where the excavator is so busy as in Palestine. There are no fewer than eleven expeditions in the field, representing seven different nations. Bit by bit the story of the Bible and the Gospel accounts of the life of Christ are being verified and reconstructed by modern research. Under the cold light of science the theories of the higher critics, held almost invulnerable at the beginning of the present century, are going up in thin smoke.

GOSPELS CONFIRMED

THE latest blow against the holders of the non-historical character of Christ comes from Dr. Schwartz, a German excavator, who has been working in Galilee for the past three years, digging away at crumbling foundations of Jewish and Roman ruins of synagogues, temples, public houses, and small town forums.

Clearing away a heap of medieval rubbish on the shores of the Sea of Galilee, Dr. Schwartz has uncovered a steep, rock wall, and has thereby established a weighty argument in support of the Gospel story of the Gadarene swine. Prof. Huxley maintained that the account of the Gadarene swine, in which the devils cast out by Christ took refuge and afterward plunged into the Galilean Sea, was untenable, because nowhere did the hill go sharply down to the lake. After carting fifteen hundred carloads of dirt, the accumulation of twenty centuries, Dr. Schwartz revealed that the typical "steep place" mentioned in the New Testament was exactly on the spot where it ought to be.

CITY'S SITE FOUND

OF PECULIAR interest is the work now being carried on at Capernaum. For more than nineteen hundred years, the very situation of such an important Bible city as Capernaum has been in dispute. Archeologists are now agreed that Tell Hum is the site. The man whose researches finally established the site was the late Dr. Orfali, rector of the Franciscan School of Archeological Research and president of the Palestine Oriental Society.

Dr. Orfali found the remains of a first-century building in the Roman-Corinthian style, which is now accepted by scholars as the synagogue built by the centurion of the Gospels. It is in the seventh chapter of Luke's Gospel that the Bible makes mention of the centurion, a Roman who had built a synagogue. "For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue," says the text.

As the archeologists proceed to reconstruct the ruins by raising the pillars and the walls, it can be seen that it was a structure of considerable beauty. The whole was composed of white limestone, resembling marble, the outer walls being built of very large blocks of stone. On the south side, facing the lake, it had three entrances. The pillars were adorned with beautiful capitals, and the lintels were profusely ornamented.

Among the ruins was discovered a large block of stone with a pot of manna carved on its face. Scientists believe that it was perhaps the sight of this pot of manna, facing the speaker's rostrum in the synagogue, that inspired Jesus to that sermon preached on the spot, which began with the words, "Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness."

ARK AS EMBLEM

ON ANOTHER stone there is a quaint design, in relief, of what is believed to be a representation of the Ark of the Covenant, the mystic emblem of the presence of God that stood behind the great curtains in the Holy of Holies.

It has been decided to reconstruct the whole building as it originally stood. Dr. Orfali started this task. But now the work has been resumed in earnest, and in a short time scholar, scientist, tourist, and pilgrim will be able to stand in the very building in which Christ addressed the people.

One of the most important discoveries in Palestine, in the post-war era, has been the finding of the lost hymn of Theodore, a Syrian document of the time when St. Paul had not yet started on his missionary journeys. This document was found and translated by Dr. Mingana of the Rylands Library of Manchester. In this manuscript was contained the first description of Christ's personal appearance, something which does not appear anywhere in the Gospel accounts. It depicted an entirely different personality from the figure commonly accepted by medieval painters.

Further east, in Mesopotamia, diggers have stumbled upon houses forty-five feet under ground, which date from Abraham's time. Idols and instruments of war, amongst them beautifully wrought golden knives and swords, were recovered, and sculptured gods in emerald, gold and granite were brought to the surface. Some of these idols are so tiny and constructed in such a peculiar manner that they could easily have been slipped under the saddles of camels.

This fact confirms the Bible account of Abraham's grandson, Jacob, who discovered that his wives and attendants carried heathen idols under their saddles against his strict orders. Earlier exegetes had declared this Bible story fantastic, maintaining that the Chaldeans in Ur, Abraham's original home, worshiped immense stone images. The new discovery again confirms the Bible.

PALESTINE

Fair Palestine! though still enveloped in night,
 Though wan desolation broods o'er thee,
 The Sun of thy glory shall rise in His might,
 And the arm of Jehovah restore thee.

Though long has depression environed thee round,
 The grasp of thy foes shall be broken;
 Thy mountains and valleys with joy shall resound,
 For the word that Messiah hath spoken.

Thy down trodden children now scattered afar,
 Redeemed from the hand of oppression,
 Shall follow their guide of the Bethlehem star,
 To inherit their promised possession.

Then from Zion shall go forth the mandate of peace,
 The nations shall bow in submission;
 Then war's desolation and carnage shall cease,
 And the earth be Messiah's possession.

Rejoice, Palestine, that thy morning star bright,
 Already has risen high o'er thee;
 The Sun of thy glory shall rise in His might,
 And the arm of Jehovah restore thee.

—Selected.

THE GREAT LACK IN EVERY- DAY LIFE

By D. G. Harvey

"Awake to righteousness, and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God: I speak this to your shame."

AFTER consulting Webster we find righteousness to mean justice (uprightness, honesty, freedom from deceit). We believe we can better get the thought of the Apostle thus, "Awake to justice and sin not." This command was not given to a world of sinners, but to Christians as were all of the apostolic writings.

We of the church (the school of Christ, the greatest Teacher) know that the Lord is teaching and preparing us for the great future work of the church during the next age of a thousand years. According to the Scriptures, we, if faithful, are to be kings, priests, and judges, representatives of God in the kingdom of God. Your attention is called to Rev. 20:6; 1:6; 1 Cor. 6:2, 3. The church as the bride or body of Christ are joint heirs with Christ (Rom. 8:16, 17). If joint heirs, we then inherit the same power and glory with the Son, our elder Brother. As kings, we share in ruling the world; as priests, we share in healing and instructing the world; as judges, we share in administering justice to mankind.

God has been, during nineteen hundred years, calling out His church, instructing them by the words of Christ, the apostles and the prophets. All this has been for our upbuilding in those qualities of heart and mind which will fit us for the service for which we are called. God will not appoint anyone who is not qualified to fill the positions of kings, priests, or judges. God is not testing us according to our imperfect bodies. "He knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust." Psalm 103:14. He then deals with our minds.

Through the influence of His Word, our minds are transformed, changed. We really are given new minds, new thoughts. This new mind makes of us a new creature. Rom. 12:1, 2; 2 Cor. 5:17. Thus we accept a new will, the will of God. But can we be perfect when our bodies are imperfect? Let Paul answer our question, "To will is present with me, but how to perform, I find not." Rom. 7:18. According to Paul's words he could not at all times do the things he should, yet Paul does not condemn himself. (Notice Rom. 7:20, 21.)

So it is with all who try to follow the Master. We all know how to will right, but to do right is the problem. Slowly we learn that God does not judge us by the imperfections of our bodies, for so long as we remain faithful, these blots and blemishes are covered by the robe of Christ's imputed righteousness. Rom. 4:22-24.

Therefore we do our best to show our Father in heaven that we are trying hard to do right in every act, word, and thought. And since God expects each member of His family to have perfect will, it becomes a personal question, just what is the will of God for us? So we seek to prove what is the perfect will of God (Rom. 12:1, 2). As we study and put into practice, as we learn, we grow in grace and knowledge. We become better acquainted with the will of God. This knowledge is not obtained in any supernatural way, but by the study of God's Word (2 Tim. 2:15).

We find we must give up our own selfish will and allow the will of Christ (let us say, the mind of Christ) to control our minds. "If any man has not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Rom. 8:9. The spirit of Christ was fully surrendered to the will of the Father.

Most Christian people see the doctrine of love in the Bible, but overlook the primary lesson, "justice". It is this lesson of justice we wish to consider at this time. Our text really signifies, "Wake to justice, and sin not."

The law given by Moses shows what justice means: Thou shalt not kill; thou shalt not steal; thou shalt not bear false witness. To do so would be wrong and unjust. Thus we see the whole law amounted to this: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, . . . and thy neighbour as thyself." Matt. 22:37-40. The true meaning of the Lord's Golden Rule (Matt. 7:12) is, "Do justice to all men, as you would have them do justice to you."

Justice affects us in all our daily life. It applies in our work, and in our play, in our homes, among friends and among foes. The excuse for not keeping the Golden Rule

(Continued on page 816)

BETWEEN DEATH AND RESURRECTION

(Continued from front page)

From all the authorities I have consulted I find in the modicum of definite dogma presented this one point of agreement, expressed so clearly by Prof. Curtis: "No man is complete, no man can be complete until the resurrection."

Coming now to what the Bible actually teaches on this subject, we would ask this question: What do we know of the intermediate state from those who have gone there and returned?

The Bible records a number of instances in which individuals have been recalled from the Land of Shadows. There was the son of the poor widow who furnished Elijah with a home during the period of famine. In the New Testament we have the history of the daughter of Jairus (Mark 5:22-43); the son of the widow of Nain (Luke 7:11-15); Lazarus, the friend of Jesus (John 11:1-57); and, last of all, but most important of all, the Lord Jesus Christ.

In all of these recorded resurrections we observe this one outstanding fact, or rather, this one notable omission: not one of these restored individuals tells us a thing concerning his experience between his death and his resurrection! All are silent! Not one word of enlightenment do they bring from the Land that lies beyond the Valley of the Shadow of Death! So the only ones from whom we could hope to obtain a satisfactory answer to our question manifest a strange but exceedingly significant silence with regard to it.

The significance of this silence on the part of those who have passed into the great beyond and then been permitted to return is suggested to us by George E. Guille in his interesting little work, That Blessed Hope, published by the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. While he asserts that it is his belief that "Scripture clearly teaches that happiness in heaven awaits every believer at his death," he immediately nullifies his own confession by declaring most positively, "The second reason why merely going to heaven is not the Christian's hope is that Scripture nowhere speaks of going to heaven."

Perhaps, then, the reason why these returned travelers have told us nothing of their experiences in the Shadow Land is that there was nothing to tell! They saw nothing; they heard nothing; they consciously experienced nothing while their bodies lay in the darkness of the tomb. This conclusion is in such complete harmony with the testimony of the Bible that I feel sure it is the correct solution of the mystery.

M'Clintock and Strong tell us that "little is definitely said in the Scriptures" concerning this matter of the Intermediate State, but I am forced to disagree with these able commentators on this point. I find the Scriptures give a clear, full, and logical exposition of the state of man in death. Further, that the Bible description of the conditions prevailing beyond death are in perfect accord with reason, observation, and scientific deduction.

Without entering into an exhaustive study of the various words used in connection with the general place of the dead, I may profitably call your attention to the word used most frequently in the Old Testament and to the corresponding word in the New.

In the former, we find the word sheol in the Hebrew is generally used to designate the place of the dead, or the place where the dead remain between death and the resurrection. The conditions prevailing there are suggested in the language of Job as he pleads with Jehovah: "O that thou wouldest hide me in the grave (sheol), that thou wouldest keep me secret, until thy wrath be past, and remember me."—Job 14:13, 21. Concluding his petition, he describes the state of one who has entered there. "His sons come to honour, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, and he perceiveth it not of them." Again, in the same book we read, "If I wait, the grave (sheol) is mine house: I have made my bed in darkness."—Job 17:13. Again, "Drought and heat consume the snow waters: so doth the grave (sheol) those which have sinned."

The Psalmist adds his testimony to that of Job concerning the unconsciousness that prevails in sheol. "For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave (sheol) who shall give thee thanks?"—Psalm 6:5. Even more emphatic are the words found in Ecclesiastes 9:4-10: "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing . . . Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun. . . . Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave (sheol), whither thou goest."

The corresponding word in the New Testament is hades, which means essentially the same as sheol, i. e., the general place of the dead, which is further defined in Ecclesiastes 2:20 thus: "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again."

The unavoidable conclusion is this: between death and the resurrection "the dead know not any thing"; they are "silent in sheol"; they neither love nor hate; they do not even "praise the Lord". They have no knowledge, and because of that, those who have returned from the place of death can tell us nothing of their experience there, for nothing happened. There is nothing to tell.

In the glad morning of the resurrection the Lord of Life shall call His own sleeping ones from the silent, dusty beds wherein they lie, restore them to consciousness, and crown them with life and glory!

"Somehow I'm glad that those we've lost,
Safe lying on th' Eternal Breast,
Can hear no sounds from earth that mar
The perfect sweetness of their rest;

"No evil seen, no murmurs heard,
No fear of sin, or coming loss,
They wait in peace, imperfect yet,
The final triumphs of the Cross."

THE REVELATION OF JOHN

By Lyman Booth

(Continued from two weeks ago)

THE contents and structure of the book is very artistic because of its frequent use of a numerical symbolism. The constant use of the number seven has led many to view it as a sevenfold series of sevens to express the finality and perfection of its revelation. Five of this series of sevens are clearly marked, but we cannot trace the other two so easily. After the introduction they are given as follows (1:8).

1. The seven churches (1:11; 3:22).
2. Seven seals (5:1; 8:1).
3. The seven trumpets (8:2, 6, 13).
4. Contains the seven mystic figures.
 1. The sun-clothed woman (12:1, 6).
 2. The red dragon (12:7, 12).
 3. The man child (12:13-17).
 4. The first beast from the sea (13:1-10).
 5. The second beast from the land (13:11, 18).
 6. The Lamb on Mount Zion (14:1, 4).
 7. Son of man on a cloud (14:14, 15, 16).
5. Seven last plagues (15:1, 6, 7, 8).
6. Sevenfold judgment of the whore (17:1).
7. Sevenfold triumph (19:11; 22:10).

This is the arrangement by T. W. Chambers in his commentary. These subdivisions seem to be clear except in 4, 6, and 7, which seem to be somewhat doubtful.

There are several other systems of symbols, and we find they must be carefully studied in order to understand them. There are symbols of numbers, e. g. : four, the number of the earth, four quarters, four winds, etc. When a divine cycle of creative work is indicated, it is marked by the number seven, but when broken it is indicated by three and a half. The number ten issued to denote the world's activity and development. Therefore both in Daniel and in this book a world power is represented by ten horns. Twelve is the number of church order: twelve stars, gates, foundations, apostles, pearls, twelve manner of fruit from the tree of life. From ten and twelve we find a development of still greater numbers, such as, one thousand, one hundred forty-four, one hundred forty-four thousand.

There are symbols in colors, e. g., white denoting purity, as white garments, righteousness a white throne, joy a white cloud, victory a white horse, red for blood and war, purple for imperial pomp and luxury, emerald green for patient, winning grace, black for calamity and distress.

There are symbols also in the elements and forces of nature: the air, the sphere of life, which may include the intellectual and spiritual influences; the earth, the place and theater of nations. The sea depicts human society, tossed and troubled; an earthquake, a sudden shaking of the nations; lightning and hail, a great crisis or judgment. There are many more symbols in the book.

Donald Fraser wrote, "In its symbolism and in the whole tenor of its prophecy, this book rests on visions of an earlier date, especially imparted to Daniel, Ezekiel, and Zechariah. It is vain to attempt an interpretation of it without considerable familiarity with the Old Testament, for though written in Greek, the book is entirely Hebrew in its images and allusions. There is also a very marked connection with that prophecy of the Master, Jesus Christ, which He poured into the ears of His disciples on the Mount of Olives. In particular, there is the same scenic, panoramic combination of events remote from each other, but having the same character and intention. Two, if not more, horizons of judgment are in view at once, the nearer a foreshadow of the more distant."

(To be continued)

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from page 803)

nounced Lord shall arrive and out of the reclaimed wreckage of human government establish a kingdom which shall endure? If we experience a return to human normalcy it can only be for a brief season, as other prophecies rapidly fulfilling proclaim that it is nearing the time of the Savior's reign.

In view of all these things, "what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" With what devotion and energy ought we to proclaim the gospel of the kingdom to a tortured world! May the Lord, when He comes, find us so doing.

The care of the churches is not only an important work, but one that is very difficult to perform.

BEAUTY FOR ASHES

(Continued from page 804)

will be no more pain. In this there is death, but in that, immortality will make dissolution impossible.

Our crucifixion consists in our dying daily in the sufferings we endure. We must therefore suffer till sin is not dear to us, till suffering is not a burden, but is gladly assumed in the spirit of martyrdom and sacrifice for the sake of others, and till death to the things of the flesh takes place. Then we shall be ready to be raised with our Redeemer to walk in a new life. And what a life that is! Holy in love and service to others; joyful in tribulation instead of grievous in its pain; risen to a condition where old things have passed away and all things have become new.

Father, lead us with Him to Gethsemane where we say, "Thy will be done," to Calvary where we die to the flesh and all that is dear to it, and to the glory of the third day of rejoicing where we shall have joy for mourning and beauty for our ashes.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.,
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES; FOR IN THEM YE THINK YE HAVE ETERNAL LIFE: AND THEY ARE THEY WHICH TESTIFY OF ME."—JOHN 5:39.

HOW TO USE THE BIBLE

When in sorrow, read John 14.
When men fail you, read Psalm 27.
When you have sinned, read Psalm 51.
When you worry, read Matthew 6:19-34.
Before church service, read Psalm 84.
When you are in danger, read Psalm 84.
When you have the blues, read Psalm 34.
When God seems far away, read Psalm 139.
When you are discouraged, read Isaiah 40.
If you want to be fruitful, read John 15.
When doubts come upon you, try John 7:17.
When you are lonely or fearful, read Psalm 23.
When you forget your blessings, read Psalm 103.
For Jesus' idea of a Christian, read Matthew 5.
For James' idea of religion, read James 1:19-27.
When your faith needs stirring, read Hebrews 11.
When you feel down and out, read Romans 8:31-39.
When you want courage for your task, Joshua 1.
When the world seems bigger than God, Psalm 90.
When you want rest and peace, Matthew 11:25-30.
When you want Christian assurance, Romans 8.
For Paul's secret of happiness, Colossians 3:12-17.
When you leave home for labor and travel, Psalm 121.
When you grow bitter or critical, 1 Corinthians 13.
When your prayers grow selfish, read Psalm 67.
For Paul's idea of Christianity, read 2 Cor. 5:15-19.
For Paul's rules to get along with men, Romans 12.
Thinking of investments and returns, Mark 10:17-31.
For a great invitation and opportunity, Isaiah 55.
Jesus' idea of prayer, Luke 11:1-13 and Matthew 6:5-15.
For a picture of worship that counts, Isaiah 58:1-12.
Prophet's idea of religion, Isaiah 1:10-18.
Why not follow Psalm 119:11 and hide some of these in your memory?—Selected.

Neb., 12; Los Angeles, Calif., 22; Niagara Falls, N. Y., 15. Total 206. Last year's total, 114.

Illinois isolated, 19; Dixon, 32; Marshall, 35; Oregon, 20; Ripley, 26; Rockford, 21. Total 153. Last year's total 173.

Indiana State Berean Society—Burr Oak, 32; Plymouth, 9; Rensselaer, 10; South Bend, 16. Total 67. Last year's total 92.

Iowa isolated, 30; Koszta, 33; Waterloo-Cedar Falls, 11. Total 74. Last year's total 112.

Michigan—Grand Rapids, 61. Total 61. Last year's total 36.

The new Indiana Senior Berean Society, composed entirely of young people, not yet affiliated with the National Society, has an approximate membership of 26, according to the last official reports received.

Arlen Marsh, Secretary.

THE ROOT OF THE MATTER

Is our piety a living, vital thing that binds us as with the cords of a man to the One whom we know and love and trust?

No matter how you and I busy ourselves about religious things the whole business is pointless, purposeless, and profitless unless we know God.

Remember Paul's supreme aspiration, "That I may know him."

So I pray you not to be satisfied with external things. Have no other desire than that you may know Him.

Do not be animated by other spirit of religious inquiry than the desire that is alone worth anything—to "know him" and to "count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord."

"Because he hath inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon him as long as I live."—Psalm 116:2.

—Selected.

On September 1, the National Berean Society had a membership of 561, distributed as follows:

National isolated, 14; Blair, Neb., 13; Brush Creek, Ohio, 16; Cleveland, Ohio, 60; Dayton, Ohio, 14; Fonthill, Ont., 15; Hammond, La., 16; Hector, Minn., 9; Holbrook,

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

We call attention to the fact that Bro. Arlen Marsh, National Berean secretary, is now located at Oregon, Ill.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

PAUL IN PHILIPPI

Who ever heard of having a prayer service in the middle of the night? Paul and Silas had one. Who ever heard of having a prayer service in a prison? Paul and Silas had one.

This is how it was: Paul and Silas were preaching in Philippi. One day, as they went to the place of prayer, they met a slave girl who had an evil spirit. She pretended to tell many things that would happen. Today we would call her a fortune teller.

This poor girl followed the apostles about for many days, crying out that they were servants of God come to show the people of Philippi how to be saved. It grieved Paul, so he commanded the evil spirit to come out of her; that is, he healed her.

Now, should the lives of people be changed after they have been baptized? Just so, after this slave girl was healed she could not, or would not tell the untruths as she had done before. This made her masters very angry, because she had made much money for them through her fortune telling.

So they caught Paul and Silas and drew them into the market place where the rulers held court. They had to find some excuse for bringing the apostles there for punishment, so they said Paul and Silas were Jews who were causing trouble in the city. At that all the people went against the two; and the magistrates, or rulers, tore off their clothes, ordering them to be beaten with rods bound together.

Just think of it! Paul and Silas were beaten until they were miserably bruised and sore. Then they were cast into prison—even into the inner prison, and fastened in the stocks so that they could not escape.

But Paul and Silas were not silenced by this extreme treatment. Instead, even at midnight, they prayed, and sang praises so that the other prisoners heard. Do you suppose they prayed for those who had mistreated them, or were their prayers for themselves?

Whichever it was, God must have been watching, for suddenly there was an earthquake, so great that the very foundations of the prison were shaken. And what else do you think happened? The doors all opened, and the bands fell off all of the prisoners!

Just then the keeper of the prison awakened, and when he saw what had happened, he was so sure the prisoners had escaped, that he would have killed himself if Paul had not cried out with a loud voice, "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here." Then the jailer called for a light and brought Paul and Silas out. He was so impressed by the miracles that he knelt before them and said, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

They replied, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ."

Immediately after washing their stripes and bruises the jailer and all his family were baptized. Then he took them into his own home, and gave them food. He was so happy to have found the "true way to the living God". He had released Paul and Silas from prison; but they had shown him how to be released from the prison of sin.

We see that Paul's path was not an easy one and a comfortable one. Yet, he did not complain nor did he seem to worry at what might befall him. In a letter to the Philippians later, he told them of the "peace of God which passeth all understanding." They were not to worry, but to live a prayerful life of thanksgiving. They were to think about things that were true, honest, just, lovely, and of good report. If they would live as he had tried to teach them they should have the peace of God.

ARE WE trying to think and live as Paul teaches?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read Philippians 4:4-9.
2. Copy the two best verses.
3. Learn them.

WE BELIEVE the dead are unconscious: "For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks?"—Psalm 6:5.

NATURE QUESTION

21. The spies brought back grapes from the Promised Land. Numbers 13:23.
22. What tree did Zechariah behold in a vision?

A CHILD'S PRAYER

"Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."—Psalm 119:18.

DEAR GOD, I am glad that I may read in the book of Thy law the rules of right living—to be kind and generous, thoughtful and obedient. And in my other studies also, help me to read with open eyes and an understanding heart, so that I may learn what is true and right, and know what Thou wouldest have me to do from day to day. Amen.

—Rev. R. W. Barstow.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 1. — October 4, 1931

THE MACEDONIAN CALL

Acts 15:36 to 16:15; Romans 15:18-21

Devotional Reading: Hebrews 11:8-10

GOLDEN TEXT

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations. — Matthew 28:19.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: What Took Paul to Europe.

Basic Truth: "The gospel of Christ . . . is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."—Rom. 1:16.

Outline: I. Paul's Devout Zeal to God. II. God's Guiding Spirit.

I. Paul's Devout Zeal to God. Like Cornelius, Acts 10:1, 2, like Lydia, 16:14, so Paul prior to his discipleship was intensely zealous in his devotion toward and worship of God. His manifest enmity against Christ and Christians, 9:4; 8:3; 9:1, only revealed the zeal of Saul in his earnest, fighting devotion for God. While he afterward realized that in those persecutions he was chief of sinners, 1 Tim. 1:13, 15, yet his earnest devotion to God drew forth God's mercy because of his ignorance of sinfulness.

That same zealous devotion of Paul unto God and later to Christ enabled him to do the Master's bidding regardless of whither the Master led him. Not only was Paul's life an example of how God rewards the truly devout one by leading him into a largeness of gospel light, but it is also an example of how true devotion inspires one to give life's powers, and strength, and time, even life itself, unto the labors of Him who is the Savior.

It was in part this dedication of Paul that took him to Europe.

II. God's Guiding Spirit. As with Noah of old, as with Abraham, Moses, the prophets and God's Son, so with Paul, God's spirit attended and led unto duty and service. Paul's deep devotion and consecration having been proven, God's spirit in mighty power gave wisdom and guidance and strength to life's journey's end.

Did Paul assay to go into Bithynia? God's spirit suffered him not. Did Paul turn his face toward the provinces of Asia? God's spirit forbade him go there. Did he feel on reaching the shore at Troas that his journey was ended? God's spirit called him to cross the sea into Macedonia.

Devotion to God was God's stepping-stone to Christ. Devotion to God and His Son were Paul's stepping-stones unto the plateau of life and service where God's spirit could guide him to Europe, there to plant the gospel of salvation midst foreign nations.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Call for Help: The Macedonian call was a call by the spirit. It was a missionary call. The field was new. Christ had not before been preached there. Rom. 15:20. The spirit was leading men to carry out the God-given commission of Matthew 28:19, 20. This has been true down through the years, the present being no exception. Paul was obedient to the call.

Emphasize the value of obedience. In this instance obedience required or necessitated sacrifice. Does obedience to divine calls always require sacrifices? Does obedience ever require too much sacrifice? Name other Bible characters that were obedient to the call of God and who, because of obedience, had to make great sacrifices.

Christian Obedience

- is the road that leads to Christ;
- brings all the rewards of Bible promise;
- never demands an unreasonable sacrifice;
- is a highway upon which the many do not travel;
- does not leave in its wake a trail of sorrows.

Discuss the effects this missionary effort had in the Macedonian region. Are missionary endeavors always successful? Review some of the evangelistic efforts of our own workers in new fields and discuss their value to our denominational life.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Go ye therefore, and make Christians of all nations. (King James Version, marginal reading.)"—Matt. 28:19.

The apostles were commanded by their Savior, and our Savior, to go, teach, make disciples, Christians, from among all nations. They were to proclaim the gospel wherever they went. To evangelize was their mission. They were to "go" that all nations might have the opportunity of hearing of the blessed Christ and becoming His followers, in other words, that they might become Christians.

Though Paul was not one of the twelve receiving this great commission "to go", we have a more complete history of his missionary work than of any of the others. He truly made disciples, or Christians, in different places among different nations.

Can each one of us take this lesson home to ourselves and do what we can to take or send the good news of the kingdom to those who as yet have never heard of the Savior? Remember the command, "Go, teach, make Christians of all nations."—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

What Took Paul to Europe

The urge that prompted Paul to purpose in his mind a trip to Europe came as a result of his dream. "And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia and help us." The noblest incentive that can fill a person's heart is the desire to help others. Paul's decision was based upon the need of the other person. His call was truly that of the spirit, and not the call of a bigger pay check as is so often the case when others are "called by the spirit" to accept a new position. Thus was Paul a true evangelist.

A person may be filled with zeal and undertake a task with a fervent spirit and yet not have God's approval. John tells us: "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God." 1 John 4:1. Paul, knowing this, proceeded carefully making certain and sure. Luke, the physician, and the author of Acts who was with Paul, states: "And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia (northern Greece), assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them." Thus did Paul make sure he was following God's will.

Paul didn't attempt to teach as soon as he arrived. He says: "We were in that city abiding certain days." It is fair to assume he did this to acquire a working knowledge of the people and their ways. This is important in opening any new territory.

Such care was rewarded; God was glorified; people received salvation, and Paul added to the talents entrusted to him.

—H. A. S.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

During the past quarter we have learned how Christianity, which we might compare to a tiny flower planted by Jesus, the Savior, grew and flourished until it spread its perfume of loving deeds and faith in God over a greater part of the inhabited country of Asia. Jesus and the twelve apostles began the work, and after Jesus ascension, the Apostle Paul, with others, took up the burden. And to him is given a great deal of credit for establishing the many churches in Asia, though he gave honor always to the One who strengthened him for his labors.

But God had people over in other countries whom He wanted to learn of Him, and our lesson today concerns some of them. How do you suppose the Apostle Paul knew anything about these people? There were no telegraphs, telephones, radios, nor airships, such as we have now for circulating news. Read Acts 16:9. Can you explain it? Do you believe it?

Now turn to your maps and find the country of Macedonia and the cities of Neapolis and Philippi. Trace Paul's course from Troas in Asia over to Neapolis in Europe. How did he make the trip? Can you see that we owe anything to Paul for making this hazardous journey? Does that have anything to do with our having Christianity in America?

How can we show our gratitude to God for the great gift of His love to us?—M. G.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

Bro. Guilford Bell, son of Bro. and Sr. H. S. Bell, of 1707 Wood St., LaCrosse, Wis., was operated on for acute appendicitis on September 15th. The doctor said he was doing as nicely as could be expected.

Word from Eldorado, Illinois, informs us that Bro. C. E. Lapp began services there on Sunday, Sept. 20. He is expecting to stay over the following Sunday and perhaps longer. May the people of that community be blessed by the labors among them.

Bro. R. H. Judd calls our attention to the fact that he is not the author of the article, "The Way, the Truth, and the Life," which appeared under his name in the issue of September 8. This was a clipping from the Toronto Globe which Bro. Judd sent us.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Davis of Culver, Indiana, accompanied by Sr. Davis' aunt, Sr. Pearl Zehiel, were in Oregon, Illinois, for a visit with Bro. and Sr. Frederick Claussen last week end. They were present at Sunday school and church and left Oregon with the intention of getting home in time to hear Bro. Anderson at Burr Oak in the evening.

Several churches and Sunday schools have been devoting a certain amount of their finances to the N. B. I., especially for the Training Class. The Fonthill (Ontario) church sends their offering taken on the first Sunday of each month, and they recently sent a very generous remittance which represented the offerings for several months. All such cooperation is gratefully received, and used with earnest prayers for God's guidance.

ROCKFORD'S RALLY DAY

The Rockford (Illinois) Church and Sunday School are planning on Rally Day for October 11. Sunday School will begin at 9:45; the morning sermon at 11:00. Some special numbers will be given by the children. All who can come will be welcomed at 1904 N. Main St.

FROM DIXON, ILLINOIS

The Dixon (Illinois) church is planning a big day for October 4th. Those living close and all members please make a special effort to come. Preaching services in the morning and evening. Bro. Conner is giving us some extra fine sermons.

On Wednesday, Sept. 9, Sr. Dauntler had the misfortune to fall and fracture three ribs. She is at the hospital and is getting along nicely. We hope she will be with us again soon.

On Sunday, Sept. 6, Bro. and Sr. Roy Grove were the proud and happy parents of a fine baby daughter. Sr. Grove will be remembered as Sr. Mildred Drew. The little one has been named, Shirley May.

Grace Drew, Secretary.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Plans are being worked out for an active campaign of church development here this fall, and we are trusting that much good may be accomplished.

First in order is Rally Day, October 4, which the Sunday School is sponsoring and the whole church is cooperating in heartily.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."
—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Fonthill, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Luper,	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley,	Rt. 1, Bx. 25
	Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely,	710 Brown St. Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen,	daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington,	Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkrite,	Brantford, Ont.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn	Culver, Ind.
Bro. C. H. Nye,	North Anson, Maine
Sr. Agnes Murray,	Pasadena, Calif.
Sr. Sarah Dashwood,	Dunnville, Ont.
Mrs. Florence Hanson,	Knappton, Wn.

NIAGARA FALLS AND FONTHILL

Bro. and Sr. Ellis and family of Waterloo, Iowa, visited both Niagara Falls and Fonthill while holidaying in this vicinity.

The Fonthill congregation were pleased to have Bro. and Sr. Arthur Gilbey and son, Clarke, of Rochester, New York, meet with them in Christian fellowship recently.

This beautiful Niagara Peninsula is laden with luscious peaches and the vineyards seem to be filled with delicious grapes.

FROM THE NORTHWEST

We wish to report the marriage of Bro. Forrest Rankin of Puyallup, to Miss Evelyn Ridley of Tacoma. The ceremony was performed by the writer at the home of the bride's parents in Tacoma, Saturday evening, July twenty-fifth, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the couple, and the young people of the church.

The young people had been invited to the home by Bro. Lyle Rankin, to spend a social time together. At nine o'clock he told them that they could now play a new game. All were seated around the room in a large circle, when the dining room door opened, and in marched the bride and groom followed by bridesmaid and best man, and they in turn by the minister with a marriage license in his hand, and the ceremony was performed to the astonishment of all but a few of those present, as they had not been informed that there was to be a game of that kind on the program.

The happy couple are now living on the farm of the groom's father, J. C. Rankin.

On Wednesday, July twenty-ninth, Sr. Evelyn Rankin, after making the good confession of her belief in the gospel of Christ, was immersed in beautiful Lake Taps, and arose to walk in a new life, with Jesus as her perfect Pattern.

On Sept. 4 to 6, on invitation of Bro. T. D. Foster, pastor of the Cashmere church, members of the church from Wenatchee and Puyallup met at Cashmere and greatly enjoyed a spiritual meeting together. At the close of the meetings Phyllis Erricson came forward and the ordinance of baptism was performed on Monday, Sept. 7. One more believer added to our little company. May she prove faithful till Jesus comes.

A. L. Corbaley.

HERALD HELPING FUND

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Miller $1.00

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Lester Travis; John E. Miller; John Parker; Mrs. Carrie Cook; Mrs. W. F. Adams; S. P. Dismukes; Mrs. Olaf Lewis; Dr. Samuel Metheny; Thomas Davis; Theron Murphy; Mrs. J. H. Andrews; Mrs. Dale Davis; Mrs. Hattie Auspaugh; Mortimer Hall; Dorothy Magaw; Mrs. Geo. Reynolds; Earl Corbaley; Horace Pierce; Mrs. Ada Daniels; E. P. Drabenstott; Herman Ruhn; William Ruhn; Pierre Hoskins; Arthur Barnett; John Railton; Gilbert Woodward; Carol Wilson.

Dora C. Morgan, Secretary.

OREGON'S RALLY DAY GOALS

Rally Day at Oregon, Illinois, will, D. V., be a big day. Twelve goals have been set to reach by Sunday, October 4. Thus an effort is being made to make Rally Day a day of achievement rather than a day of program. The spicy reports of achievement will constitute the program.

Every department of church work is included in the rally effort, and the race is already on.

The Golden Rule Class of the Sunday school is putting on a Homecoming for all of its old members. Those who cannot attend are asked to send a brief, spicy statement of their whereabouts and their activities, with a word for the good old class.

A basket dinner will be enjoyed after the morning service.

The following are the twelve goals set:

1. Cradle Roll Department—Organized, Filled, Rocking.
2. Home Department—Enrolled, Organized, Working.
3. Class Elevating—Every Class Higher, Stronger, Better.
4. Visitors Scramble—Every Member Bring One to Ten Visitors—to Sunday School, to Church, to Berean, to Prayer.
5. Planting Bereans—So They's Never Come Up—Deep, Firm, Progressive.
6. Increasing Prayer Circle—Every Member a Praying Member.

7. Choir Full-tette—Joy-Worship in Song and Praise.
8. Congregational Increase—Keener Interest in Bible Research and Practice.
9. Membership Increase—New Earnest Followers for Christ.
10. Floral Calendar—Flowers for Every Sunday.
11. I'll Do, Register—What Each Will Strive to Do Weekly for One Year.
12. Assembling Above Eleven Activities—To RALLY for the Day and for the Year.

LESSONS FROM PAUL'S LIFE

Many are the lessons to be learned from the life of Paul. First is the lesson in

Faith

So truly did he exercise faith in Christ and God that, by some who are inexperienced therein, he might almost be thought stubborn: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And he did it—though all Jewry was against him. "Come over into Macedonia and help us." And he did it.

His brethren exhorted him to refrain from going again to Jerusalem, but he went. Acts 21:10-14. "I am ready to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus."

What faith!
If you really want to work for the Master, get Faith.
Faith Does Things.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

DID CHRIST PREEXIST?

WAS HE WITH GOD WHEN THE HEAVENS AND THE EARTH WERE CREATED?

IF THE instructions Paul gave Timothy are carefully followed—to rightly divide the word of truth—it will not be difficult to show that he did not.

The first promise, after Adam and Eve transgressed in the garden, was that the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. To Abraham God said that in him and his Seed should all families of earth be blessed. Paul says, in Galatians 3:16, that Seed was Christ.

The Bible tells when Christ was born of the woman; and if He was the Seed of the woman, as God said He should be, He certainly did not exist before the woman.

Did Christ create a world? I think that He did; and if we can find when He did, it will help clear up some passages of Scripture that puzzle many.

First, I wish to show a few places in which the word, "world", is used. God "spared not the old world," bringing in a flood on the world of the ungodly. 2 Peter 2:5.

"Who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began." 2 Tim. 1:9.

The Scripture tells us when they were called; and it was before some world began—the world Christ created—as I will try to show when the law age or dispensation came to an end. Hebrews 9:26 reads, "For then must he often have suffered since the foundation of the world: but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself."

There the law age is spoken of as the end of the world, as that world came to an end and a new one was ushered in—the Christian dispensation or the world we are now in—the one created by Christ's death. For then He broke down the middle wall of partition that all might strive for the high calling which Paul mentions in Philippians 3:13-14.

Revelation 13:8 refers to Christ as the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, the Lamb killed from the casting down of a world, as it is in the Diaglott.

In Matthew 24:3, the disciples asked Jesus what would be the sign of His coming and of the end of the world. In the Diaglott it reads, "the sign of thy presence and the end of the age."

Some think because it is written, "end of the world," this earth is going to be destroyed. But when this world or dispensation closes, another will take its place—one of a thousand years' duration.

In John 17:5, we find this language, "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." It is very important in studying this statement of Jesus to find out what world is meant, and when He had the glory referred to.

Many places in the Bible the word, "world", is used which have no reference to the earth, but to an age, or dispensation, or other things. John 17:5, in the Diaglott reads, "world to be". The twenty-fourth verse reads, "Thou didst love me before a laying down of a world." Paul is writing in Ephesians 1:4, to the saints at Ephesus that were chosen before the foundation of the world. The Diaglott rendering is, "before the casting down of a world." What world was cast down? The one referred to above, the law age, for when Christ was put to death, a world ended.

When did Christ have a glory with the Father that was witnessed by some of His disciples? "I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the kingdom of God." Luke 9:27.

In verses 28 to 36 is recorded the scene of the transfiguration. It was glorious, according to the description. Moses and Elias were represented as being there, which would typify the ones that will be resurrected and those that will be translated at the sounding of the trumpet. Peter, John, and James represented mortals that will be on earth at that time; Christ there as King over all, and the Father speaking from above, saying, "This is my beloved Son, hear him."

There was shown a figure or likeness of what will be, as recorded in Matthew 25:31: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Then the request that He made of the Father will have been granted. He will then be in possession of the kingdom in fact, of which the transfiguration was a type.

This tract may be obtained from the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois, for five cents a dozen. Send for list of other tracts and booklets.

FAITHFUL STEWARDS

By Mary A. Gesin

"As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God."—1 Peter 4:10.

AS THE time draws near for the reopening of the Bible Training Class of the National Bible Institution, our thoughts seem to center upon those of our brotherhood who have made it possible that there shall be such a Class. Throughout our membership there has come in recent years an awakening to the vast opportunities and the great need of the proclamation of the truths of God as never before. It cannot be denied that society, as a whole, is in a condition of wickedness from which only the grace of God can redeem it.

Your young people and mine, dear brother and sister, our sons and daughters must live and mingle with the vast majority in the gaining of their education in preparation for their life work. We must recognize the fact, as it stares us in the face, that that great majority is without principle, without standard, without God, in the pursuance of their daily affairs. And that majority is intent on drawing all its associates into the "charmed circle". "Come on, and be one of us. No harm. What's the difference, anyway," they say. "Don't be a prude; be a good fellow."

We want our young people, our sons and daughters to be "different". We want them to stand by the ideals we as parents have established in our homes. We want them to grow up pure in conduct, true in ideal, honest in the strictest meaning of the term. But we also want more.

We want them to become acquainted with the most wonderful Book of all books, in their endeavors to attain a knowledge of life that will fit them to become men and women who will be recognized in the world of affairs. We want them to learn to know the greatest Teacher of all time, and knowing Him, to love Him and to desire of all things to follow in His steps. In short, we want them to be true Christians, through and through.

All of our young people cannot attend the Training Class to receive the benefit obtained from devoting a part of their education to the study of that most wonderful Book of all time. No matter in what direction their talents are bent, such a study would be of inestimable value, it is true. But in most cases such a procedure is well nigh impossible. How fine, then, that a few from our midst, a son here and a daughter there, can come and receive the benefits awaiting them, and in turn, go out and give the results of their study to other young people. For they can speak in terms young people understand; they view life's problems from the angle of the youth; their words carry weight to those of their own age.

Just the other day, Bro. Marsh was talking over with me the different members of the Training Class of 1929 to 31. He said that he noted a certain growth spiritually, particularly among some of them. He said that the power for good they could be as they go out into their life work was so vastly increased by their attendance in school here, that it could scarcely be measured. And right here permit me to say that no one could be associated with Bro. Austin for any length of time and not grow in consecration to God and our Lord Jesus Christ, and in desire to serve his fellow man, because of the fine example of his life.

And so for you who have made possible this Bible school by your prayers and your cooperation financially, I pray the continued blessing of God. May a share in the benefits reaped from the efforts of the young men and women of the class be a very real joy in your lives. May any sacrifice you make be returned to you in mercies, heaped up and running over, from the storehouse of God.

We now prepare to begin another year of study under the leadership of Bro. Marsh, so loved and respected from shore to shore. And we ask that your prayers will be with us that God may open the minds of the students to receive His wisdom and to learn how to impart that wisdom to others; and that we, as teachers, may so imbibe the spirit of the Master Teacher that our instruction may result only in benefit to those under our guidance and counsel.

DEEP, true faith in Christ holds one ever and always ready to accept and apply, not only some one particularly selected exhortation or doctrine of Christ, but ready to accept and appropriate any and all of His imparted truths.

THE GREAT LACK IN EVERY-DAY LIFE

(Continued from page 808)

is, "Others would take advantage of us." This, then, is not caused by fear of God, but fear of man—selfish interest.

Shall we say we are afraid to trust God? God has not said to observe this rule only as others observe it toward us. We are to practice it regardless of what others do. Then we have the promise that all things work together for good toward us (Rom. 8:28), because we would then be in line with God's arrangement.

The very least we can do is give justice to one another. Whoever is violating the principles of justice—the Golden Rule—in his home, in the church, in his business or social relations, should, if he is a Christian, examine the matter earnestly and prayerfully.

"Awake to righteousness (justice) and sin not." Many do not see the importance of this fact. They do not see that justice is the foundation of all character, of all right living. It is the foundation of God's throne (Psalm 89:14). There is responsibility for us. God is seeking to develop in our hearts and minds the character He desires. Unless we appreciate this principle of justice and rejoice to practice it, we shall not be fit for the kingdom. Let us then apply this Golden Rule, and be ready for our King when He comes,

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 20

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 29, 1931

NUMBER 52

"THE LORD IS AT HAND"

By Norman John McLeod

INTO a period much like our own was the Lord Jesus born. Great wealth had developed on the one hand and extreme poverty on the other. Corruption in office was rampant. Julius Caesar is reputed to have spent several millions of dollars of our money in buying the office of consul in the Roman government. But in all the Roman empire conditions had reached the worst state of affairs in Palestine.

The Jewish religion had become commercialized. The office of high priest was sold to the highest bidder. The story is told of a woman who bought the office for her husband, and so disdainful of the duties of the office was he, that he wore gloves so as not to soil his hands while performing the sacrifices of the law. Money changers had moved into the temple along with merchants in order to make money out of the sale of articles for sacrifice. In such a time Jesus was born.

And now Jerusalem is filled with mobs hired by Jewish authorities. They are surging through the streets, going to the most famous trial of history. And we hear the cry: "Crucify him! Crucify him! We will have no king but Caesar." And we see Pilate washing his hands: "I am innocent of the blood of this just person."

The Son of Man died even as any other and the hopes of His followers died with Him. They who had followed Him as He triumphed; they who had seen Him call the sleeping Lazarus to life; they who had seen Jairus' daughter raised; they who had seen the lame walk, the blind see, and the sick raised: they had seen Him die, and all seemed at an end. The taunt of the Jews, "He saved others, himself he cannot save", seemed true indeed.

The Son of God died even as any other, and the hopes of Israel died with Him. They who had hailed Him, King of the Jews; they who had hoped for the restoration of the kingdom to Israel; they who had suffered the shattering of their hopes of national prosperity, of the restored throne of David; they who had endured oppression, exile and poverty: they had seen Him purge the temple. But now the rich and the corrupt ruled again. And He was taunted as He hung dying on the cross: "He saved others, let him save himself if he be Christ, the chosen of God."

The Prince of Peace had died; died an ignominious death; was beaten, suffered, and died! Where now was the hope of Israel? Where was the promised King? He hung on the cross and died. He was laid in Joseph's new tomb. Our hopes were with Him there! If He had stayed there, our hopes were gone. If He had stayed there, they who are asleep in Him would be lost forever. If He had stayed there, you and I would be lost for all time.

But the cross could not hold the Son of Man. The tomb could not seal in forever the Son of God. Death could not retain its possession of the Hope of Israel, the Sun of Righteousness, the Promised King! He came forth to new life, new glories, and His faithful followers saw Him and rejoiced. The needy, the forlorn, the outcast took heart. What a joy to see Him again! What a privilege to hear His words! Surely the hope of Israel was about to be fulfilled!

Those bewildered disciples are burning with hope and curiosity. Every word He speaks is treasured; every utterance weighed with care! At last comes the question: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" Lord, are you going to end this Roman oppression? Surely you will not disappoint us now after all these marvelous events?

How strange His answer! Does He say, as many think, "You are mistaken; Israel has no more part"? Does He put them aside by saying, "No, the promises are to the Gentiles"? No! You are not to know when. It will happen, but not even I know when.

Then, while they are talking, He rises into the air. Up, up He goes and a cloud receives Him out of their sight. He is gone! And the messengers of God standing by say:

(Continued on page 826)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879

F. L. AUSTIN, Editor

MARY A. GESIN, Assistant Editor

CHRISTIANITY PAYS

CHRISTIANITY thriving in the heart, makes for cleaner, nobler, purer life. Such lives are happier, healthier, hardier than they would be if unchristianized.

They save in doctor's bills. They pay.

They are more dependable. They pay.

They are more trustworthy. They pay.

A Christian life is helpful to the home. It pays.

A Christian life is an asset to the community. It pays.

A Christian life is more reliable in a business house. It pays.

No parent was ever put to the expense or biting sorrow of a son being jailed, and tried, and punished, because of that son's living a Christian life and rendering Christian conduct. Christianity Pays!

No parent ever yet followed a Christian daughter down the hill path of shame because of that daughter's living a Christian life. Christianity Pays! !

No home was ever put to the expense of defending one of its members for murder, for arson, for debauchery; for stealing, for cheating, for swindling; for rape, for adultery, for incest; for rum-running, for rum-trafficking, for drunkenness; for any wrong whatsoever resulting from genuine Christian living.

Christianity Pays! ! !

Besides, It Saves. It honors its GIVER, Christ. It honors God.

No parent can afford—in dollars and cents—to rear a child nonchristian. No home can afford a nonchristian member.

The Sunday school should be the great community educator of child and youth life unto Christianity. Therefore—

Strengthen the Sunday school. For the Sunday school Pays! Help the Sunday school to open young lives for the reception of Christianity. Make Sunday school

RALLY DAY

A Day of Big Profit.

CROSSROADS OF FINANCE

TIME was when exchanges of commodities were made largely by the handling of the commodities themselves. Such exchanges were inspired by the needs of the individuals. Gradually and with increasing rapidity a medium of exchange in the form of money, minted from valuable ore, has been developed. Today the world of business is conducted first through the commodity of money and secondly, the commodity of credit.

The money used is mostly based upon gold or silver.

One of the works of national government has come to be to establish a monetary system as a commodity for exchange throughout the nation. All nations have devised some such system. The multiplicity of systems has created a monetary crossroads.

The dollar, the pound, the franc, the ruble, etc., each have had their own path to travel within their own national boundaries; yet it has become necessary because of the huge international exchange of commerce that each shall cross the other in the course of different commercial enterprises. London, New York, Paris, Berlin, and others have become places where these various fiscal vehicles have come in contact with their road companions. For many years London has been the chief point of crossroads in fiscal matters. There, for years, the exchanges of the world have congested more than at any other center.

With the great increase in world-wide commercial activity, the buying and selling of commodities between nations, all made possible and practical by the huge advance in systems of transportation and systems of communication, the money systems of the world have come to bear a great strain. Only expert minds are able to understand the principles involved, the methods necessary and the machinery requisite for handling this enormous, world-wide, financial exchange.

Indeed, the demands have increased so rapidly and to such huge measures that nearly every government of first rating is in the throes of financial confusion. As it were, a traffic jam exists. The traffic cops at these crossroads, and especially at that one in London, are face to face with a congestion and confusion that is really causing the world to tremble.

Germany, India, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, Russia, and others have been passing through periods of fear lest their systems of finance should crash and leave the governments helpless; indeed, lest the crashes might be followed with the wreckage of governments. For a month past England has been in a terrific tension. The United States is fighting a defensive warfare lest she too will arrive at a similar situation. Other nations are doing likewise.

The thought of the failure financially of any leading nation is almost unbearable to the people of the business world. The thought of the wreckage that might follow is more than mortal mind can grasp. Such a wreckage would bankrupt not only nations, but business enterprises without number and would affect most injuriously the homes of plains and mountains, of hamlets and cities.

Does not the present financial tangle and distress of the world proclaim in trumpet voice a condition, current in our day, that was foretold in the epistle of James 5:1-11? Is this not one most emphatic sign, according to James, of the end-time of this particular dispensation?

If so, then it is another prophesied announcement of the early dawn of a new period—a period which shall be ruled by Him; a period that shall introduce righteousness to supplant wickedness; a period that shall introduce peace to supplant terror; a period that shall end in the victory of God's righteousness over the iniquity of man's rebelliousness.

Are we ready for such a change? Are we prepared for the test that shall become incumbent? Are we ready for the catastrophes that must proceed?

Are we living in Christ, God's Son, our Savior and Redeemer?

COMMUNION

OPEN OR CLOSED?

By George B. Alldridge

RECENTLY I received a letter from a dear friend and brother, censuring me for uniting in fellowship with an ecclesia accused of practicing "open communion".

A clever writer wrote, "Truth is what I believe. Error is what the other man believes unless he believes as I do." How true!

Among the many and various ecclesias constituting the brotherhood, there exists many controversies; some are serious; others are not worth giving any consideration. In every controversy there are, or there should be, three sides: your side which to me means little, my side which to you means less; the other side, God's side, which to both of us should mean the Truth, and should end all controversy.

In Ephesians 4:15, we read: "But we shall lovingly hold to the truth, and shall in all respects grow up into union with him who is our head, even Christ." Weymouth. The phrase, "the breaking of bread", is ambiguous. It cannot be arbitrarily used, as the brethren do, to mean meeting upon every "first day of the week" to commemorate the Lord's death in eating the "Lord's supper." What scripture commands you to do so? Pardon me, if I anticipate your answer. In Acts 20:7 it is recorded that "upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread (note, the disciples), Paul preached unto them."

The trouble is in all controversies among the brotherhood we isolate a text from its context and make it read so as to support the thought we hold concerning it. Let me quote 2 Timothy 2:15: "Earnestly seek to commend yourself to God as a servant who, because of his straightforward dealing with the word of truth, has no reason to feel any shame." Weymouth.

Again, 2 Timothy 1:13, "Provide yourself with an outline of the sound teaching which you have heard from my lips, and be true to the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus." Weymouth.

Let us go back again to Acts 20. It seems there were others present besides the disciples, in fact, quite a large assembly, so large that the third loft (or gallery) was occupied. One young man, Eutychus by name, fell asleep, as Paul preached quite a lengthy sermon. This young man fell and apparently was killed, but Paul restored him again to consciousness, after which he returned to the auditorium. The record says, "When he therefore was come up again and had broken bread and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, so he departed." Acts 20:11. Now if, like Paul, you were long preaching, you would need refreshment, especially if you intended to continue your sermon until the "break of day."

It seems to me that it was customary for the disciples to meet together and arrange for a public meeting to preach the truth. Upon these occasions refreshments were served, styled "breaking of bread".

Let us read Luke 24:35. You will recall the context. Jesus had conversation with the two on their way to Emmaus. After He left them, they returned to Jerusalem and there met the eleven disciples, "and they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread." If you will read verses 29 to 31, you will understand what they meant.

In Acts 2:46, "And day by day, attending constantly in the temple with one accord, and breaking bread in private houses, they took their meals with great happiness and singleheartedness, praising God and being regarded with favor by all the people." Weymouth.

Let us go back and read verses 41-42, "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized; and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls. And they continued stedfastly in the apostle's doctrine and

(Continued on page 826)

THE YEARS BETWEEN

Too soon they come, too soon are gone,
The years that lie between!
So swiftly twilight follows dawn
That Life's resplendent scene
Is shadowed by approaching night;
Youth finds short time for play,
And few men win ambition's fight
Before the close of day.

A babe for just a little while,
Then childhood, too, is done;
Oh, very soon is every mile
Of Life's brief journey run!
The golden years that lie between
The cradle and the cane—
Their candid record must be seen
To reckon loss or gain.

Lord, teach me how to utilize
Each precious, fleeting year,
Nor let me waste so rich a prize
As youth! I have no fear
Of memories when I am old
If I have done my best,
For evening shadows then will hold
Contentment, peace and rest.
—Lawrence Hawthorne.

THE WAY OUT OF THE DARK

By Samuel E. Haney

"Jesus said unto him (Thomas), I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."—John 14:6.

JESUS is here revealing Himself as the personification of these three phases, or modes of salvation. One would think from the innumerable ways of salvation invented by man that the Lord erred by using the definite article "the"; for various groups of people both in and out of Christendom differ more or less in their doctrinal premise, or methods of working out their salvation: each group assuming to have a unique tenet—a way of salvation; the resultant effect of the spirit of the world—which is satanic—getting into the church, the "body of Christ" (1 Cor. 12:27; Eph. 1:22, 23) as an alloy deteriorating its spirituality and power of resistance.

Thus they make it easy for the individual to disobey Christ and His Apostle's teachings, which in reality means God's commandments as set forth by Paul, "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions (schisms) among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment," 1 Cor. 1:10; and, "In all that you do, avoid grumbling and disputing, so as to be blameless and innocent, faultless children of God in a crooked and perverse generation where you shine like stars in a dark world."—Phil. 2:14, 15, Moffatt.

"I am the way." This "I-am-the-way" is frequently referred to in the Old Testament as part of the Jews' curriculum while under the law as their "schoolmaster". Gal. 3:23-29. Note a few: "Where is the way where light dwelleth?"—Job 38:18. "Teach me thy way, O LORD, and lead be in a plain path, because of mine enemies."—Psalm 27:11. "That thy way may be known upon the earth, thy saving health among all nations."—Psalm 67:2. "Teach me thy way, O LORD; I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name."—Psalm 86:11. "I have chosen thy way of truth: thy judgments have I laid before me."—Psalm 119:30. "See if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."—Psalm 139:24. "And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it."—Isaiah 30:21. "And I will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me for ever, for the good of them, and of their children after them."—Jeremiah 32:39.

Christendom appears to be as obstinate in her adherence to her ways as were the Jews under the law covenant. And God is cognizant of the fact that the Israelites (fleshy and spiritual) both sides of Calvary place their thoughts (or plans) on a par with His thoughts, His plans. Hence, His admonition, "Let the guilty men give up their ways, and evil men their purposes; let them turn back to the Eternal, who will pity them, turn back to our God, for He will pardon them abundantly. For my plans are not like your plans, nor your ways like my ways—so the Eternal One declares; nay, as heaven is higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my plans than your plans."—Isaiah 7:9, Moffatt.

Man's multiplicity of ways make it appear tantamount to changing the Lord's "I am the way" to "I was the way." But no one has a right to assume such presumptuous pretense, for "the word of the Lord endureth for ever". 1 Peter 1:25. Yes, "there is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death", Prov. 14:12, "the ways of death" because they lead away from Jesus Christ, the only Way of life.

"I am the truth". Truth was an enigma to the worldly wise Pilate. So he asked the great Teacher for His solution of the riddle. But Jesus, knowing that the question would be asked, wittingly gave the answer and also placed Pilate on the defensive in advance of the question, that is, "Every one that is of the truth ('belongs to the truth', Moffatt) heareth my voice." John 18:37, 38. It was therefore logically impossible for Pilate to know truth, because, as a heathen, he could not know Jesus who was Truth portrayed in the flesh, representing His Father who is Truth in the same sense as "he is love".

(Continued on page 824)

"Truth Conquers and Will Prevail"

By G. Eldred Marsh

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:32.

"Veritas vincit et praevalabit!"—"Truth conquers and will prevail!" History and our own experience confirm the truth of this old Latin adage. Truth alone conquers; truth alone prevails!

"The traveler of today who lingers beneath the columned portico of the Parthenon, and looks about him at the ruined temples of the Acropolis," declares Dr. Booth, "unless he utterly lacks imagination, cannot but dream of that far-off day when the 'Glory that was Greece' was in full effulgence." In this place of classic beauty and renown men have dreamed dreams of world conquest, and have seen wondrous visions of glory for themselves. From this place they have gone forth "conquering and to conquer", and to this place have they returned with laurel wreaths upon their brows and fettered princes in their train!

Among those stars of martial glory none have shone with the brilliancy of the youthful Alexander. None laid at the feet of the gods of Greece such a wealth of treasure as did the Prince of Macedon; none brought back from foreign lands so many crowns of vanquished kings; none added to the realm of Greece such vast stretches of rich territory as did this ambitious "god in human form", as he delighted to be called.

From the Black Sea to the Indus and beyond!—swept Alexander's conquering hordes. City after city took his name, as nation after nation fell before him. For ten short years he prospered and received the plaudits of his court and the secret implications of his enemies throughout the world. And then—then he fell!

Wide was his fame and great the fear his name inspired while he lived, but after that he "went to the dead"! And his passing brought scarcely a ripple to the ever-troubled surface of the sea of men.

His generals pounced upon the tottering empire of his building and wrenched it part from part, dividing it between them as the body of a wounded stag is torn and then divided by pursuing dogs. Alexander's name was henceforth anathema in all the world, and with his passing went the political power he had held.

The political victories of Alexander were ended; but the intellectual conquests of Greece which he had set in motion were just begun. The dominating general with flashing lance had given place to the "solemn pedagogue with pen behind his ear," to misquote Shakespeare's well-remembered line.

The military prowess of Greece was broken; but her cultural influence increased for centuries after Alexander's death; and even now its presence is felt not only in India, Persia, and Egypt, but in all the civilized world. The spears of Greece are corroded with rust; her armies, at whose advancing tread the world once trembled, have mouldered away to dust; her far-flung empire has melted like snow in the summer sun. But the thought of Greece, her philosophy and her art, is as vital today as it was in the past. Because thought alone is immortal, because thought lives even after the thinker is "gone to his long home."

Someone has said, "Although Alexander's military conquest was but a shadow of empire, the subjugation of the world, by the culture of Greece which followed it, is a tremendous reality. Like a fine mist Greek thought filled the air, and the musical Greek tongue became the 'lingua franca' of the ancient world. Even Rome's mighty empire bowed before the sway of this Greek kingdom of ideas."

What has proven true of Greece has also been true of every other nation and people. Their ideas, their conceptions of truth, survive long after their identities as nations have ended. The reason for this is discoverable in the fact that the basic needs of all ages and of all races are the same, for thoughts that live are thoughts that have to do with the solving of the primary questions of human life.

Thus did Israel, the chosen of God, live for a time as a nation, and then die and return to the dust to await the promised resurrection, when bones shall "come together, bone to his bone," and Israel shall live again as a nation. But now, like David her prince, she is "both dead and buried, and (her) sepulchre" under the soil of Palestine "is with us unto this day".

Yet Israel lives today! She lives as she never lived before; she lives in the heart of the Christian world; she lives in the faith of the Christian church; she lives in the Scriptures of eternal truth; she lives because the truth for which she stood lives on! As long as that truth survives, Israel can neither die nor be forgotten.

The towers of David have fallen down; the glory of Solomon is but a dream of the past; the might and the power of Israel as a nation was long since broken; but the truth of Israel lives on! The great facts concerning the unity of God which the Hebrew prophets revealed to a world given over to polytheism are alive today. The facts concerning creation and its purpose, first brought to the knowledge of the world by holy men who worshiped the Hebrew God, still live. The only hope for life out of death that is best upon a demonstrative premise, brought to light through the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Jewish Messiah, lives on.

It is ideas, it is positive truth that survives the eroding effects of Time. Thrones may crumble and fall; men may come and go; the very face of the earth may be changed by the torturing grasp of natural forces; but truth lives on! It may be lost for a little time amid the debris washed up by the waves of Time, but “Truth crushed to earth shall rise again!”

It can never be destroyed. It can never be overcome. The flames of its fire can never be extinct.

But it must be truth if it is to remain. Error shall fall; mistakes shall vanish, and eventually the words of Isaiah shall be fulfilled: “Wherefore hear the word of the Lord, ye scornful men, that rule this people which is in Jerusalem. Because ye have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through”—the tribulation—“it shall not come unto us: for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves: Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious cornerstone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste. Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet: and hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the water shall overflow the hiding place.” Isaiah 28:14-17.

In the great time of trouble which is so soon to sweep across the earth, the “rocks and the foundations” of human ideas, of “science falsely so-called,” will prove but crumbling places of refuge. Nothing but the truth of God will provide protection then.

“BIBLE Doctrine affords evidence, brings conviction, that leads to faith; faith leads to work; work reveals the very heart of the individual—it manifests outwardly his inward conviction.”

THE TIME TO BEGIN

“At what age in life should children be taught to practice tithing?” Very early in life, the earlier the better.

“What are the reasons?” Because thereby you enter into a practical, common-sense partnership with God and the child in building his or her character. God furnishes the material; you do the teaching; the child is the learner and doer.

The cornerstone of all character building worthy of the name is a deeply implanted sense of responsibility to God. Teaching that responsibility only is not sufficient; to be of permanent value the teaching must be reduced to practice. Tithing does just that and thus makes the teaching effective. In early years, when the brain is plastic, memory retentive, and impressions permanent, is the best time to commence. The tithing child intuitively puts God first. Later he realizes that he has been, perhaps unconsciously, obeying Christ’s command, “Seek first the kingdom of God”.

—From “How to Tithe and Why”.

SURE GUIDANCE

RELIABLE guides are at a premium in this world. There are none too many in any walk of life. Whether we are trying to find our way through a forest, or out on the prairies, or in a strange city, or feel the need of wisdom as to the best move to make in business or in some personal problem, reliable guidance is always welcome. Without it, we may make disastrous mistakes. Is it possible for us always to have sure guidance? Is there any guide to whom we may look confidently? We find the answer to our question in the Bible, which makes some astonishingly strong claims in guaranteeing sure guidance to those who wish it.

God is the secret of sure guidance. He would be a strange sort of Creator, Savior, and Lord if He made no provision for the guidance of His creatures and children. That He has made such provision is abundantly shown throughout the Scriptures. Even in the world of the lower animals we find divine guidance provided in what we call natural instincts. Animals, birds, insects are guided in the most remarkable way; they can find their way in regions where a man would be hopelessly lost; birds migrate thousands of miles north or south and are guided unerringly to their desired haven. How much more, then, may man, made in the image of God, look to his Creator and Redeemer for light in the dark, for counsel in uncertainty, for guidance through every problem.

God often guides men when they are not asking for His guidance and are not conscious of it. Many a man, looking back over some perilous experience, has plainly seen the mind and the hand of God which brought him safely through when he knew it not. Jacob, fleeing for his life from his brother Esau’s threat to kill him, was led of God as he left his home and journeyed far in unfamiliar country. Stranger and pilgrim, he lay down in the open air to sleep with stones for his pillow, and God appeared to him in a dream with the reassuring message: “Behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.” Jacob’s exclamation when he awoke, “Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not”, could be repeated truthfully by many another man from that day to this.

That same God of grace is with us today, caring for us and leading us when we “knew it not”. How much more surely, therefore, may we count upon His guidance when we receive His Son as our Savior, yield ourselves to Him, and definitely ask Him to guide us step by step.

Multitudes of people are having a wilderness experience today because of the nation-wide and world-wide conditions of business difficulty, depression, shrinkage of securities, and burdens of every sort. But our wilderness experiences do not limit God. We may be confused and blinded; God never is. All we need to do is to put ourselves unreservedly in His care, accepting His great offer of salvation through His Son, yielding ourselves wholly to Him, and then we shall know the meaning of His protection and guidance.

Israel's experience can be the experience of every child of God today; the Psalmist tells us that God made His own people to go forth like sheep, and guided them in the wilderness like a flock. And He led them on safely, so that they feared not: but the sea overwhelmed their enemies. And He brought them to the border of His sanctuary, even to the mountain, which His right hand had purchased. God has not exhausted His mountains of safety; He will lead us to them if we will follow.

Sometimes men make it necessary for God to guide them against their will. There is a better way. If we submit our wills to His, we may know the best experiences of His guidance. It is a very wonderful word that He speaks in a Psalm of David: "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye." But we must be sensitive indeed to God's will if we are to have His eye-guidance, so that we may follow His every look.

The Psalmist goes on and explains: "Be ye not as the horse, or as the mule, which have no understanding: whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle." God never intended men to be curbed and guided like horses or mules with bits in their mouths—but we can make this necessary if we set our wills over against His, or if we do not look eagerly for His guidance.

James, called the practical writer of the New Testament, has a word of very complete assurance as he says: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord." If we would have God's sure guidance, then, we must really trust Him.

The Lord Jesus Christ promised unerring guidance to His disciples. He told them that it was expedient for them that He should go away, in order that the Comforter, the Holy Spirit, might come unto them. Then came this promise: "When he, the spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth." This promise was fulfilled when the Holy Spirit revealed all needed truth to the inspired writers of the New Testament.

Now, through the complete scriptures of Old and New Testaments, we have all the truth, all the guidance, that we need in this life. Among the conditions, therefore, of receiving sure guidance must be included our open-minded, reverent study of God's Word; and our habitual prayer to Him for guidance. He gives us faculties, and He wants us to use them; common sense and a study of circumstances, after prayer and study of the revealed truths of His Scriptures, enter into our guidance.

God's guidance is not only unailing; it is unending. "For this God is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death." What more could we ask?

—Clipped from the Toronto Globe by R. S. Judd.

SOME BIBLE FOURS

FOUR THINGS TO DO — 1 COR. 16:13:

- Watch—Mark 14:38.
- Stand fast—Galatians 5:1.
- Behave like men—1 Samuel 4:9.
- Be strong—John 16:33.

FOUR IMPORTANT COMMANDS:

- Fret not—Psalm 37:1.
- Fear not—Isaiah 41:10.
- Faint not—2 Corinthians 4:1.
- Forget not—Psalm 103:2.

FOUR STAGES IN FRUIT-BEARING—JOHN 15:

- Pruning. Fruit, verse 2.
- Progress. More fruit, verse 2.
- Proficiency. Much fruit, verses 5, 8.
- Perpetuity. Fruit that remains, verse 16.

FOUR "HENCEFORTHS":

- Of restful assurance, Galatians 6:17.
- Of hopeful anticipation, 2 Timothy 4:8.
- Of divine care and protection, Psalm 125:2.
- Of whole-hearted consecration, 2 Corinthians 5:15.

FOUR LOOKS:

- If we look around like Moses, we will be afraid.
- If we look down like Peter, we will sink.
- If we look on others like Miriam, we will be envious.
- If we look up to Jesus, we will be transformed.

FOUR THINGS WORTH KNOWING:

- The mystery of His will, Ephesians 1:9.
- The hope of His calling, Ephesians 1:18.
- The riches of His glory, Ephesians 1:18.
- The greatness of His power, Ephesians 1:19.

FOURFOLD GOODNESS OF GOD:

- In salvation; then try Him, Nahum 1:7.
- In sorrow; then trust Him, Psalm 34:8.
- In supply; then thank Him, Psalm 100:5.
- In satisfaction; then tell of Him, Psalm 145:7, 9.

FOURFOLD WALK OF BELIEVER—COLOSSIANS 1:10:

- Worthy, "walk worthy of the Lord".
- Pleasing, "unto all pleasing".
- Fruitful, "being fruitful in every good work".
- Progressive, "increasing in the knowledge of God".

FOURFOLD PURPOSE OF THE SCRIPTURES—ROMANS 15:14:

- Learning. Patience. Comfort. Hope.

FOURFOLD PROVISION FOR GOD'S PEOPLE—PSALM 37:3:

- Salvation. "Trust in the Lord".
- Service. "Do good".
- Security. "So shalt thou dwell in the land".
- Sustenance. "Verily thou shalt be fed".

FOUR THINGS THE LORD IS MADE TO THE BELIEVER—

1 CORINTHIANS 1:30:

- Salvation: "Wisdom", to enlighten us.
- Standing: "Righteousness", to justify us.
- Separation: "Sanctification", to separate us.
- Security: "Redemption", to complete us.

—World's Crisis.

“I COME QUICKLY”

He is coming—coming quickly,
To this sorrow-stricken earth;
Though the shadows fall so thickly
O'er the land which gave Him birth;
Though the vine-clad hills of Judah
Lie in misty darkness dim,
Stretching out no hands of greeting
Eagerly to welcome Him.

He is coming! though the nations
Whom He came and died to save,
Of His advent all unheeding,
Earthly honor do but crave;
They, the Prince of Peace forgetting,
Foaming out their earth-born rage,
Each and all the other fretting,
Bloody war and tumult wage.

He is coming! Like the lightning,
Shining out from east to west,
He will come—through clouds of darkness—
Sun of Righteousness confessed;
For these wars and darkening rumors
Are but thunder-claps before;
Loud Jehovah's voice is speaking,
“Jesus Christ is at the door!”

He is coming—quickly coming,
All the crooked to make plain;
Much—so much—has got entangled,
He will set it right again;
And His hands, once stretched in pleading,
Now will open wide to bless,
With the peace of God abiding,
Those who do His name confess.

He is coming! and the trumpet
Mightily afar shall sound,
Calling to the wondrous meeting
All who rest in Christ around.
Then, while kings of earth are waging
Fiercest wars 'mid mighty din,
He will call His chosen to Him—
“Come, beloved! enter in.”

He is coming—oh! so quickly;
He may come perhaps today;
It may be the last war-rumor
Has been sent from far away.
We may hear Him any moment
Calling all His ransomed home.
He is coming—coming quickly!
Even so, Lord Jesus, come!
—London Christian.

THE WAY OUT OF THE DARK

(Continued from page 820)

From the foregoing it is apparent that every one who is not of the truth (not belonging to God) heareth not Christ's voice, words, truth, being beyond the comprehension of the natural man. 1 Cor. 2:13-16.

This line of reasoning is applicable to the people of Noah's day, to the citizens of the plain of Lot's day, and to the Jews in 69 A. D. Noah did two things—built an ark and preached righteousness (2 Peter 2:5)—that the people might repent and stay the wrath of God. But their minds were too much engrossed by the “god of this world”, in the things that appealed to the flesh. And “just Lot”, by precept and example, failed to bring the people to repentance.

In both Noah's and Lot's days, “all” failing to heed the warnings of peril were destroyed. And Jesus says, “As it was in the days of Noah and Lot, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man . . . and destroyed them all”, Luke 17:26-30. The Lord by quotation and comment stresses the point in Matthew 24:21, 22, “For there will be sore misery then, such as has never been from the beginning of the world till now—no and never shall be. Had not those days been cut short, not a soul would be saved alive; however, for the sake of the elect, those days will be cut short.” Moffatt.

From the foregoing it should not be difficult to discern the destination to which all are heading who are not of Christ, the Way, the Truth, as it is personified by the Son of God, the antitypical Ark of safety.

“I am the life”. Two life givers—Adam and Jesus Christ—“Thus it is written, The man, Adam, became an animate being (an impartation of life), the last Adam a life-giving Spirit.”—1 Cor. 15:45, Moffatt.

Sin destined the first Adam-life to everlasting death. Faith in the vicarious sacrificial blood (or death) of the last Adam cancels the death sentence by the impartation of everlasting life. One may say, I have inherited immortality. But James contradicts it, namely, “What is your life (Adam's life)? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away”, 4:14. John says, “He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life” (1 John 5:12). That is, being under the sentence of death he is an abstract unit of millions who are directed by Paul to the only Source of immortality, everlasting life—Jesus Christ, “to them who by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life”.—Rom. 2:7.

During the flu epidemic in 1918 a very rich man in the last stage of this dread disease was an inmate of a Philadelphia hospital. His bereft wife, addressing her husband's physicians, said, “Gentlemen, I will give you a million dollars if you save my husband's life.” She was informed that all humanly possible was being done to check the progress of the disease; and, yet, death was inevitable!

O, what will man not give for a brief lease of life! Yet, in these “perilous times” we see prophecy being fulfilled that is the very antithesis of the above incident.

“WHERE there is no vision, the people perish.”

Dr. John Dewey, head of the League for Independent Political Action, in his written plea to President Hoover, said among other things:

“Hundreds of men and women are taking their lives every month in America because they will not face little families that they cannot feed, and so they end their lives. There have been eighteen hundred suicides this year in New York City alone, largely due to this cause. Hundreds of men and women every day in our nation are turning to robbery and theft to provide for families that otherwise would starve. Hundreds of men and women are being committed to our institutions for the insane, driven mad by their insecurity. Hundreds of thousands of our fellow citizens sleep on the bare ground every night in parks and wayside places, with nothing but rags on their backs. They stand in our bread lines, eat in our soup kitchens, accept the dole of charity and every day deteriorate in mind and soul.”

Nevertheless, this is but a prelude to Revelation 9:6, “And in those days shall men seek death, and shall not find it; and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.” This condition axiomatically obtains now initially. Yet, despite all this God pleads mercifully with unregenerate humans, “For thus saith the Lord, Ye have sold yourselves for nought: and ye shall be redeemed without money.”—Isaiah 52:3.

Only undaunted faith in the atoning blood of the Son of God and obedience to God’s requirements are the prerequisites to a blissful eternal life. But men love darkness (sin, and its sequence, death) rather than light, which leads to life immortal. John 3:19.

“No man cometh unto the Father, but by me.” Let us, therefore, keep nestled close to the feet of Jesus that we may ever have access to the Throne of Grace.

LITTLE THINGS

IT is well for us to know the value of little things; and to learn it, we have but to look about us.

Springs are little things; but they are the sources of mighty rivers. Sands are little things; but they hem in the ocean’s raging waves. Pegs and nails are little things; but they fasten together the largest buildings. Pins and cogs are little things; but the lack of one of them disarranges the mightiest machinery.

A helm is a little thing; but it guides the vessel over the waters, and the losing of it sometimes results in the loss of all on board. Acorns are little things; but forests of oaks grow up where they are planted. Seeds are little things; but all the earth smiles with the glory of their fruitfulness.

A memento presented by some absent friend is a little thing; but it brings to our mind an absent form and a loving face. A lock of hair, a half-worn shoe, an infant’s garment, all are only little things; but how many hearts thrill to behold them! how many eyes gush out with tears as they look upon such memorials of the dead!

A word is but a little thing; but it may brighten all the years of life, and cast a glory on the expiring hour; while an evil, bitter speech may sting the heart, and plant a thorn that rankles till the dying day. And as the little insects in the deep build up the rocky reefs and the coral islands, so the little things we do, whether of good or evil, are building for us structures of unseen beauty, which shall bless our hearts, or the rocks and reefs whereon our hopes and joys may lie a helpless wreck.

God notices little things. The lilies and the sparrows are not beyond His care. The very hairs of our heads are all numbered. Our secret thoughts and uttered words are remembered before the Lord. A cup of cold water given in His name shall not fail of its reward, and nothing that is done for Christ is insignificant or small.

“Who hath despised the day of small things”? Let him consider how much in nature and in grace depends upon them. Let him watch against his pride and haughtiness. Let him mind the little things.—Selected by R. A. Curtis.

A FEW DO’S AND DON’T’S

ABOUT MAIL AND REMITTANCES

IN writing to this OFFICE

DO write to National Bible Institution;

DON’T write to some person in its office.

Should you desire a particular person in this office to see your letter, then—

DO write to National Bible Institution, Attention (name the one you want);

DON’T write to that individual.

WHY?

Because then we know that the letter belongs to the N. B. I., and it is properly filed. But when written to someone in the office he can not tell whether it is his personal mail or company mail.

Again,

Should you want to enclose a purely personal or private word, please—

DO write it on a separate sheet.

Why?

Then the personal portion is not put into the letter file where everybody, now or hereafter, may read it. And our files are not so soon over-filled.

Remittances

All our banking is done in the name, NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION (Golden Rule Greenhouse only is banked separately). Therefore when remitting to this office for Golden Rule Home, Restitution Herald, or N. B. I., please

DO make all checks and Money Orders Payable to the order of National Bible Institution.

DON’T make them payable to any individual person in the office. PLEASE DON’T.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION.

COMMUNION

(Continued from page 819)

fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.”

Who are “they”? The three thousand, of course. Let us be fair now with this text. How often were they steadfast? daily; in what? the apostles’ doctrine, fellowship, breaking of bread, and in prayers. Verse 46-47 quoted proves this and does not mean keeping the “Lord’s supper”. It seems that it was a daily custom of the disciples to partake of refreshments and preach the Gospel.

In 1 Corinthians 16:2, I find that it was customary to meet upon the “first day of the week”, for Paul says, “Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come.” There is only one command to keep the “Lord’s supper”, and that is recorded in Luke 22:19. “Then, taking a passover biscuit, he gave thanks and broke it, and gave it to them, saying, This is my body which is being given on your behalf; this do in remembrance of me.” Weymouth.

Now please follow me very closely as we read verse 16. “Earnestly have I longed to eat this passover with you before I suffer; for I tell you that I certainly shall not eat one again till its full meaning has been brought out in the kingdom of God.”

This command is reiterated by Paul in 1 Corinthians 11:23-30. As this was given to Paul by revelation by the Lord Himself, we had better give close heed.

Let me quote now 1 Corinthians 7:8, from Weymouth, “For our passover lamb has already been offered in sacrifice—even Christ. Therefore let us keep our festival not with old yeast nor with the yeast of what is evil and mischievous, but with bread of transparent sincerity and truth.”

Permit me to digress just a moment. What is meant by “A festival”? I answer, “A joyful celebration in commemoration of some event, religious or civil”. How often do we keep the fourth of July, memorial day and thanksgiving day? You say once a year. Fine! Do you only remember what these days stand for or mean just upon the day we commemorate them? Surely not! If so, you are a poor citizen. But you know every day that this is a free nation. Your thoughts often go out to those who gave their lives to maintain this national condition. And do you only thank God once a year? Daily, I hope. Now let us resume our study.

Jesus knew He was the great antitypical Passover Lamb, hence His desire to keep the old and fulfill the new. He came to fulfill the law. Every Jew who keeps the passover today knows what it means—that God saved His firstborn brethren from death, and delivered the whole nation from slavery and bondage in Egypt. The greatest feature of the passover was the saving of the firstborn. The deliverance of Israel from slavery rested upon this.

I want to quote Hebrews 12:23-24: “To the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel.”

Who are these “church of the firstborn”? Has this verse any significance in answering my query?

Acts 15:14-18: “Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.” Open your Bibles and read the following verses. Note, when reading, first a people for His name, and then the residue of men. Wonderful!

Now read 1 Corinthians 10:1-11. You must read these verses to get the connection. Suffice to say: “Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come.”

Who are now being saved, that is, prospectively? I answer, “The firstborn whose names are written in heaven.” Why? Because Christ our Passover Lamb has been slain for us. Who then can keep this feast? none except those who by faith know they are of this number. How often? If you believe in and wish to follow the type as Jesus and His disciples did, then, every year upon the fourteenth day of Nisan.

(To be continued)

“THE LORD IS AT HAND”

(Continued from front page)

“Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven?” Why? Why not!! Our Lord is gone up there! Our hopes, our fears are with Him! What is that? He’s coming again? “This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.”

So they gazed! So they returned to Jerusalem! But mankind cannot look long for a promised event. So long has Christ now stayed away that few believe in His return. The return of Jesus is spiritualized away. It is said He returns only when a person dies. But these ideas do not harmonize with the Scriptures: “in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven”; “for as the lightning cometh out of the east and shineth even unto the west; so shall the coming of the Son of man be”; “behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him.”

And so we have the blessed hope of Jesus’ return. And if we keep ourselves unspotted from the world, we shall see that great event. When will Jesus come? None of us knows.

“Let your moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.”—A sermon given at the Church of God, Los Angeles, California.

National Berean Department

Margaret Lyon, Editor, 124 N. Parkside Ave., Chicago, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

M. W. Lyon, President
13705 Diana Ave.,
Cleveland, Ohio

Miss Sybil Guthrie, Treasurer
Mullin, Texas

Berean Relief Committee, Mrs. Orpha Sanford, 5424 Race Ave., Chicago, Illinois

For Berean Literature address, "The National Berean Society," Oregon, Illinois

"HE WENT UP INTO A MOUNTAIN APART." — MATTHEW 14:23.

RESULTS OF THE CLEARING HOUSE

DURING the open forum over which Miss Mary Milburn presided at the recent Conference, it was generally agreed that Berean work is intended primarily for young people, but that, since the constitution of the National Berean Society states the purpose of the organization to be the unifying of "the young people and their associates," older ones may be properly included. However, the fact that experienced, older students often destroy any interest on the part of the younger, less educated ones, by unconsciously encouraging mental laziness, cannot be ignored. Separate classes, at least, should be held in those societies composed of mixed ages.

One of the greatest needs of the modern church is a praying congregation—not merely a people that can pray in public, but one that daily offers private prayer. Consequently, the spirit of devotion should be instilled in each Berean; and every member of every class should be given training in offering prayer. This training must begin in the home, but should be augmented in the class. Each member should be asked, and, if possible, required, to give a short prayer during the class session. It was suggested that the names of the members be arranged in alphabetical order, and that each member, in his turn according to the list, offer public prayer. Particular stress should be laid on the value of individual communion with God.

The question of permanent teachers can be settled only by local conditions. Those possessing talent for the work, those experienced in religious work should teach until those less versed in the Bible have become thoroughly enough grounded in the truth to teach, themselves. Then, however, they should be accorded an opportunity to do practical teaching, for every Berean class should be made a training school for religious teachers.

Although study is of inestimable value, the social side of the work should not be neglected. Socials, held neither too frequently nor too infrequently, add greatly to the interest. Special music at each meeting, given by different members of the class, is always a stimulant. Have someone who cannot play or sing read the Scripture lesson or head the social committee. But never should socials or special programs replace the period for classwork.

Arlen Marsh.

REORGANIZATION AT OREGON, ILLINOIS

The Oregon Berean class reorganized on Sunday evening, September 20. The following officers were elected: Pres., Ruth Gesin; Vice Pres., Viola Koontz; Sec., Harold Hargesty; Treas., Pearl Hatten; Pianists, Lois Carpenter and Alice Gesin.

Alice Gesin, Sec. pro tem.

"He took Peter and John and James, and went up into a mountain apart to pray, and as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glittering . . . they saw his glory."

—Luke 9:29, 32.

WHEN Jesus took these three disciples up into that high mountain apart, He brought them into close communion with Himself. They saw no man but Jesus only; and it was good to be there. Heaven is not far from those who tarry on the mount with their Lord.

Who has not in moments of meditation and prayer caught a glimpse of opening gates? Who has not in the secret place of holy communion felt the rush of some white surging wave of emotion—a foretaste of the joy of the blessed?

The Master had times and places for quiet converse with His disciples, once on the peak of Hermon, but oftener on the sacred slopes of Olivet. Every Christian should have his Olivet. Most of us, especially in cities and towns, live at high pressure. From early morning until bedtime we are exposed to the whirl. Amid all this maelstrom how little chance for quiet thought, for God's Word, for prayer and heart fellowship.

Daniel needed to have an Olivet in his chamber amid Babylon's roar and idolatries. Peter found his on a housetop in Joppa; and Martin Luther found his in the "upper room" at Wittenberg, which is still held sacred.

Dr. Joseph Parker once said: "If we do not get back to visions, peeps into heaven, consciousness of the higher glory and the larger life, we shall lose our religion; our altar will become a bare stone, unblessed by visitant from Heaven." Here is the world's need today—men who have seen their Lord.—Selected.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY LOIS HUNT

PAUL IN THESSALONICA AND BEREIA

THE morning after Paul and Silas had been beaten and put into prison and the earthquake had opened the prison doors, the magistrate sent messengers, saying, "Let those men go." But Paul refused to go until the rulers themselves should come and fetch them out.

You, see, Paul was part Roman, as well as Jew, and he had not been given the proper trial according to Roman rights. The magistrates became so frightened that they came and begged Paul and Silas to leave the city. Then the apostles did leave the prison and visited with friends for a short time at Lydia's house.

Take up your maps now, and prepare again to follow Paul and Silas, and most likely, Luke and Timothy, on their second missionary journey. They traveled for several days west through Amphipolis and Apollonia to Thessalonica, a distance of about one hundred miles. Here they found work to support themselves.

When the sabbath arrived Paul did not wait for the Jews to call and invite him to their synagogue; but as always, went to the synagogue himself. Here he came for three sabbaths, telling them that Jesus was Christ, and about His sufferings, His death and resurrection.

Some of the Jews came to believe Paul's teachings, and many of the Greeks and chief women. As usual, the Jews who did not believe, became envious and gathered a company of rough fellows.

And what do you suppose they accused the brethren of doing? They accused them of trying to turn Thessalonica upside down, simply because they preached that there is another King (King Jesus) besides Caesar. They either did not understand the difference in the kinds of kings, or did not want to understand.

Nevertheless, the rulers permitted Jason and these men to go free. And then, you may be sure, the brethren hurried Paul and Silas away at night to Berea.

Now the Bereans, people of Berea, were of a better class, and when Paul talked in the Jewish synagogues, the people listened readily and studied the Scriptures (Psalms and Isaiah) every day to see if the things Paul taught them were true. Of course, these things about Jesus were and are true. Therefore, many believed, even many Greeks.

When the people of Thessalonica heard how the people of Berea accepted the "word" they were not content with the trouble they had already made, but came on down to Berea, and stirred up the people. At this, the believing brethren sent Paul away as if to go to the sea, but Silas and Timothy remained in Berea.

In a letter to his friends in Thessalonica Paul gave them an example of what a faithful servant should be, and his reward. Read 1 Thessalonians 2:1-12.

ARE WE trying to be model servants?

SOMETHING TO DO

1. Read 1 Thessalonians 2:1-12.
2. Copy the things we are to do or be.
3. Read Romans 15:17-22.
4. Read some of Isaiah and the Psalms.
5. Learn the most important verse in the lesson.

Do you see why we have Berean classes?
Do you belong to one?

WE BELIEVE that the dead are unconscious. "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence."—Psalm 115:17.

NATURE QUESTION

22. Zechariah saw the myrtle tree in a vision. Zech. 1:8.
23. For what vegetables did the Israelites long?

WHO HELPED THE PLAN?

Who helped the Plan?
"I," said the Thinker.
"With my bright points,
I helped the Plan."

Who helped the Plan?
"I," said the Booster.
"With my enthusiasm,
I helped the Plan."

Who helped the Plan?
"I," said the On-Timer.
"I saved the minutes—
I helped the Plan."

Who helped the Plan?
"I," said the Courteous.
"I gave the rest a chance,
I helped the Plan."

—Nettie Wakeman.

With Our Sunday Schools

LESSON 2. — October 11, 1931

PAUL IN PHILIPPI

Acts 16:16-40; Philippians 4:4-9

Devotional Reading: Romans 8:35-39

GOLDEN TEXT

Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice. — Philippians 4:4.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Initial Victories in Europe.

Basic Truth: The peace of God . . . shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."—Phil. 4:7.

Outline: I. Essentials to Christian Victory. A. God's Word. B. Faith. C. Consecration. II. Victory's Triumphs Over Man.

I. Essentials to Christian Victory. A. God's Word. Man's every victory, physical or otherwise, is achieved by mental vision supported by mental control of bodily powers unto a realization of the vision. God's word, either as spoken; printed upon the page, or recorded in nature, is the only reliable word for the giving of true mental vision. "Thy word is true." John 17:17. God's word, said David, "is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Psa. 119:105. There is no other true light to guide man's progress unto sure righteousness. Only righteousness can be truly victorious. God's word therefore is a first essential unto Christian victory.

B. Faith. Faith, that essential condition of mind and heart which fashions the human mind to fully accept and trust, must be applied to God and His Son and to God's word, if one is to gain Christian victory. "Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Rom. 10:17. Faith therefore must be built upon God's word.

C. Consecration. Consecration to God and to His Son leads man to follow God's word through any and every field of life or circumstance, unto any and every designated goal. No hardship is too severe, no sacrifice, too great, no sorrow, too overwhelming for him who is truly consecrated by faith in God's word to God and His Son.

II. Victory's Triumphs Over Man. Paul's triumphs in Europe were victories for the gospel. These victories were not purely local in effect. Their influences have traveled to the ends of the earth. The very fact of these victories has given the gospel greater triumph over the sinful ways of man. The gospel waves which first lapped the shores of Macedonia have rolled across Europe and have conquered the western world. In those victories Paul revealed the mighty strength of God through the gospel to conquer in the name of His Son.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Prayer and Singing brought

Deliverance and Salvation

The experiences of Paul and Silas at Philippi were very unusual—but out of these experiences much good resulted. There are some very profitable lessons for us in these Philippi incidents.

The conversion of the damsel possessed with the spirit of divination indicates that unclean spirits are not able to resist the spirit of God. The individual filled with God's spirit need have no fear of the forces of the evil one. The conversion of this girl resulted in the jailing of Paul and Silas. This move on the part of the rulers and people could not frustrate the work which Paul and Silas had been called to do. These men of God pleaded their case before the great Judge of all. His decision was their deliverance and the salvation of the jailer and his family. Prayer paid big returns in this instance. It always does.

Investment in Prayer is never Disappointing

It can be used any time, any where, and under any circumstance. Try it. Some very profitable time can be spent in having members of the class relate cases of answered prayer in their own life or the life of some relative or friend. A meeting where experiences are told is often the most profitable of all religious gatherings. If you have had an experience, don't be backward in telling others.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Be joyful in the Lord at all times; I say again, Be joyful."—Phil. 4:4, Diag.

Philippi was one of the places visited by Paul when he answered the call, "Come into Macedonia and help us." There he founded the first European church. The Philippians had great regard for Paul and at different times contributed to his material needs, and in return Paul had much love for the Philippian brethren.

At the time Paul wrote this epistle, he was a prisoner in Rome. He longed to be free and visit the brethren again, but as he could not, he sent this epistle to them by Epaphroditus when he returned from a visit with Paul at Rome.

Paul often prayed for this church, and in this epistle he tells them about it and commends them for what they have done. He exhorts them to unity and humility, and points out the example of Christ. Then he tells them to "be joyful", and why not? The true Christian has more reason for being joyful than any other person, for the Christian can look forward to the time when all will be joy and gladness.—L. A. R.

SENIOR AND ADULT CLASSES

A Jailer Led Captive

It seems an easy matter to turn to God when our lives are in danger. "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep. For he commandeth, and raiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof. They . . . are at their wit's end. Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses." Psa. 107:23-28. Thus David gives us a clear picture of man in his distress. The jailer was in distress and at "his wit's end". If the prisoners escaped, his life must pay for theirs.

Paul and Silas had been liberated by the great power of God and were free. They evidently did not feel it to be a Christian act to accept that liberation and let the jailer forfeit his life. The jailer recognized their favor and said: "Sirs (masters), what must I do to be saved?" Was he asking for salvation from sin or Roman law? Paul accepted the question in the former sense.

While it is easy to turn to the Lord when our lives are endangered, it is quite a different matter when our pocket book is in danger. Paul and Silas were in prison because they cured a maiden possessed with the spirit of divination (called medium today), thus depriving her masters of much gain. The masters didn't rejoice at the maiden's benefit, neither did they inquire after their own salvation. Their whole minds were centered upon illicit gain, and when that was shut off they had Paul and Silas punished.

Paul and Silas did the right thing and the jailer was saved; they were strengthened and God was glorified.—H. A. S.

JUNIOR CLASS

Topic: Paul in Prison.

You have often heard of people being put in jail for being bad, haven't you? But did you ever hear of anyone being put in jail for doing something good? Well, that is just what happened to Paul and his helper, Silas, when they went over to help those people we talked about last week. They had been telling the people about Jesus, and some didn't want the people changed over from their gods of stone and wood to the true and living God, and so they put Paul and Silas in jail! Do you think that would stop them from preaching about Jesus? Maybe it would stop us! We probably would be so discouraged we'd sit right down in our cell and not even feel like looking out through the bars, nor saying a word to anybody. Find out what Paul and Silas did. You know before they had been put in jail, they had been beaten until their backs were all raw and bleeding; still they praised God! What happened in the night?

Learn, "At midnight Paul and Silas prayed and sang praises unto God."—M. G.

DOINGS AMONG THE CHURCHES

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

Sr. H. S. Bell of LaCrosse, Wis., writes that Guilford is improving nicely from his recent operation for appendicitis and that at this writing he expects to be at home again. This will be good news to his many friends.

Sr. Minnie Kerr of Corvallis, Oregon, is seriously ill at her home. Sr. Flora Hogue writes that they miss her at Sunday school, as she is their leader. We trust she will soon recover.

John David arrived at the Jane Lamb Hospital, Clinton, Iowa, on Sunday, September 20. He will call Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gesin, Father and Mother, and incidentally, your assistant editor, Grandma. We don't know whether he will be a doctor or a lawyer when he grows up, but we'd like him to be a preacher.

Last week the Ladies Aid of the Burr Oak (Indiana) church scurried around collecting fruit jars, fruit, etc., and soon had 104 quarts of peaches canned for the Bible Training Class. Later they filled a few dozen more jars with apples and tomatoes for these same hungry boys and girls, all of which is greatly appreciated by them. We suspect that the Training Class has grown dear to the heart of the Burr Oak folks through association with their pastor, C. A. Smead, the past summer.

RALLY DAYS

Dixon, Illinois, October 4, with Sunday School, morning and evening sermons by Bro. Conner. Program by young folks and children at 2:30. Basket dinner.

Burr Oak, Indiana, October 4, with Sunday School, morning and evening sermons by Bro. Smead.

Grand Rapids, Michigan, October 4, with Sunday School, morning and evening sermons by Bro. Siple.

Eden Valley, Minnesota, October 4, with Sunday School, and sermons by Bro. Denchfield.

Oregon, Illinois, October 4, with Sunday School at 9:45, sermons at 11:00 and 7:30 by Bro. Austin. Berean at 6:30. Basket dinner at noon.

Rockford, Illinois, October 11, with Sunday School at 9:45, sermon at 11:00 by Bro. Thayer. Basket dinner at noon.

Plan to be at one of these special services or you will miss the spiritual uplift that results from association together.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Song Sunday for our Sunday school was well attended, and Sr. Siple, who was in charge, had arranged several special features that were well received. The three-month period of special feature Sundays is almost over now, and it has been a very interesting series. Rally Day, next Sunday, will be the last.

On October 25 the church will hold its anniversary day. Potluck dinner will be served in the basement, and services held morning, afternoon, and night. Commencing that day the church is putting on a special effort for increased spirituality and attendance by a series of evangelistic meetings. We want the prayers of all for the success of our work here.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

Our Prayer Column

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."
—Phil. 4:6. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:16.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER

In the closet of daily prayer, in the family circle of prayer, at the "Prayer Meeting" of the church, "always in every prayer of mine for you all", Phil. 1:4, may God-fearing believers in prayer make "request" of God "with joy" for these our brethren, who are in special need of God's blessings.

The prayers of all those who believe in specific and persevering prayer have been asked for those whose names follow. And we ask that they will respond with faithful testimony. Other will be gladly added upon request.

Sr. C. E. Randall,	Fonthill, Ont.
Sr. H. L. Luper,	Arkansas City, Kansas
Sr. J. S. Hindman,	Winfield, Kansas
Sr. Harriet Reed,	Arkansas City, Kan.
Sr. Franklin Moore,	Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Sr. Riley Hoskins,	St. Cloud, Minn.
Wilbur Hagenbush	Argos, Ind.
Mrs. Alice V. Blakesley,	Rt. 1, Bx. 25 Sumas, Washington
Bro. and Sr. Chas. Stedman,	Miami, N. M.
Sr. C. Seely, 710 Brown St.	Healdsburg, Calif.
Mrs. Daisy Pietenen, daughter of Sr. Seely.
Sr. Angeline Harrington,	Tring, Alta., Canada
Bro. Stephen Cronkrite,	Brantford, Ont.
Sr. Melvin J. Osborn	Culver, Ind.
Bro. C. H. Nye,	North Anson, Maine
Sr. Agnes Murray,	Pasadena, Calif.
Sr. Sarah Dashwood,	Dunnville, Ont.
Mrs. Florence Hanson,	Knappton, Wn.
Sr. Ada Daniels,	Alma, Mich., Rt. 3, Bx. 46

Sr. Daniels writes that the prayers of the brethren helped and encouraged her so much at previous times, and she requests that we remember her again in our petitions to our Father in heaven.

MY TRIP TO VIRGINIA

After having read the report of the Virginia Bible School, I cannot refrain from expressing my appreciation for the opportunity of meeting with them in their Bible School and Conference this year. I am sure the pleasure was all mine. The kindest hospitality, as well as the best of cooperation, was extended me in my work, not only from the members of the Bible School of Virginia; but by all whose children were in attendance. It is indeed a pleasure to me to see at last my fond hope realized—to be able to meet in conference work and study carefully the needed religious work with the children. Again, Virginia, I thank you.

Not only was I able to grow from the spiritual work in the Bible School, but from an educational standpoint as well. Through the kindness of Bro. and Sr. Marsh and Arlen, Sr. Kincheleoe and family, as well as many others, I was afforded the opportunity of spending two and a half days in Washington, D. C., and in visiting Baltimore, Gettysburg and Pittsburgh.

May God's blessing rest upon all who made it possible for me to make this splendid trip,
Verna C. Thayer,

RALLY DAY AT EDEN VALLEY

The church and Sunday school at Eden Valley, Minn., is planning for a big Rally Day on October 4, with special music and a program by the young folks. A special collection will be taken on that day which is to be sent to Sr. Sanford for the National Berean Relief work. At last year's Rally over four hundred were in attendance during the day, and they hope to exceed that number this year. The work is going forward nicely under the leadership of their new pastor, Bro. John Denchfield, a student of the N. B. I. Training Class, 1929-31.

OREGON'S RALLY

Next Sunday, October 4, will be the climax of a month of rallying the forces of the church at Oregon, Illinois. This effort has been planned to include every phase of church activity here, and twelve goals were set by Bro. Austin to be achieved by October 4.

Definite advance has been made in several departments. A Cradle Roll has been started, the Home Department established, and an "I'll Do" Register, for definite work to be volunteered by all the members of church and Sunday School, has been circulated. With these efforts and several others the work at Oregon has been definitely advanced.

October 4 terminates Bro. Austin's service as pastor of the Oregon church, and in the evening of that day he will deliver his final sermon. The church has been greatly strengthened spiritually and materially under Bro. Austin's leadership, and words fail us in expressing our regret at his departure from our midst. But we gladly welcome Bro. Marsh as our pastor and leader, already having the deepest love and greatest respect for him and his family.

On October 11, Bro. Austin will return and conduct the services for the installation of our new pastor, at 11:00 a. m. We invite all to be present at this service.

The "I'll Do" Register

Check (x) on Dotted Lines your I AM and I'LL DO Service:

I Am a member of the Oregon Church of God (.....), its Sunday School (.....), its Berean Class (.....), its Prayer Service (.....).

I Wish to be a member of the Oregon Church of God (.....), its Sunday School (.....), its Berean Class (.....), its Prayer Service (.....).

1. I'll Daily seek God's Will and Guidance (.....).

2. Each Sunday morning I'll pray God's blessing upon the Service of the Church and upon its Workers (.....).

3. I'll Use every opportunity to encourage and aid others unto Salvation in Christ (.....).

4. I'll Attend the weekly Preaching Service (.....), the Sunday School (.....), the Berean Class (.....), the Prayer Service (.....).

5. I'll Tithe my income for the work of my Master (.....).

6. I'll Contribute $..... the last Sunday of each month for Maintenance of the Church Work.

7. I'll Contribute $..... Monthly (Yearly) to its Building Fund.

8. I'll

Name

Address

ATTRACTING THIRSTY MEN

THE influence of the church wasn't lost. It was thrown away. An excellent illustration of the way it happened is afforded by a recent prize offer made by the American Eugenics society.

The society offered one thousand dollars in prizes for the five best sermons preached to religious congregations on the relation of the church to eugenics. The church's relation to the subject is no more intimate than the relation of baptism to tonsilectomy.

During the last two decades the pulpit has been harnessed to perform every kind of chore from the selling of Liberty bonds to the sorry business of making votes for politicians. If the house of prayer hasn't been made a den of thieves, at least it has been prostituted to serve causes that have no more connection with religion than dividends have with righteousness.

The pulpit—much of it— seems to have lost sight of the simple and fundamental fact that people go to church in quest of religion. "Help thou my unbelief!" is the cry of their troubled spirits. They long to understand. They hope for guidance. They search for some man of God who can show them the way to peace. They don't attend church to learn about science or politics or social problems.

If they won't attend church, it isn't because they are fed up on religion. It is because the church no longer offers them religion—or else offers a milk-sop, prudish, prissy and effeminate moralism instead of a manly, soul-satisfying religion that demands and gives the strength and courage that will overcome the world.

When the church forsakes religion, men who are in search of religion will forsake the church.—Selected.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under the Act of March 1879.

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample Copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering a change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: The soon coming of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final destruction of the wicked, 2 Thess. 1:9; the restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church being joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13 the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

TRACTS AND BOOKS

TRACTS

Name	Pages	Dozen	100
The Reasons Why	2	$0.05	$0.30
Essential Truths	1	.05	.30
God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew	2	.05	.30
The Resurrection, by S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
Obedience	2	.05	.30
The Baptist Confession of Faith	2	.05	.30
Who Owns the Wool?	4	.05	.30
The Coming of Christ, S. J. Lindsay	2	.05	.30
What Is a Christian, J. W. Williams	4	.10	.60
Where Do We Go When We Die?	4	.10	.60
Immortality of the Human Soul	4	.10	.60
Shall Never Die	4	.10	.60
The Voice of Prophecy	4	.10	.60
Immortality	4	.10	.60
Did Christ Pre-exist? R. H. Judd	4	.10	.60
The Thief on the Cross, F. E. Siple	4	.10	.60
What Do the Scriptures Teach? Judd	6	.15	.90
What Must I Do to Be Saved?	4	.10	.60
Hell, What Is It	8	.20	1.25
The Coming of Christ, R. A. Curtis	6	.20	1.25
The Rich Man and Lazarus, F. E. Siple	8	.20	1.25
A Few Thoughts	8	.20	1.25
Baptism, S. J. Lindsay	8	.20	1.50

Name	Pages	Each	Dozen	100
God, R. H. Judd	16	.04	.30	1.75
The First Resurrection, Wm. Leask	20	.05	.40	3.00
A Letter to a Friend	32	.10	1.00	8.00
Where Are the Dead?	36	.05	.50	4.00

Name

Pages Each Dozen

The Resurrection, J. L. Wince (For cost of Postage)	32	.03	.12
--	----	-----	-----

BOOKS

Name

Pages Each Per 6

Death Reigned from Adam to Moses, paper cover	58	$0.10
Sin, A. H. Zilmer, paper covers	84	.25
Destiny of Russia and Signs of the Times, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	$1.25
Book of Revelation Made Easy to Understand, W. H. Wilson, board cloth	96	.25	1.25
Ancient Mysteries, George Johnston	116	.50
Christ in the Old Testament, R. H. Judd, paper	88	.40
The Way of Life Eternal, Lyman Booth, paper	88	.40
Student's Text Book, Wilson, board cloth	200	.45	2.60
The Visitor, Boice, paper	212	.50
The Mystery of Iniquity, Booth, paper	220	.75
Pine Woods Bible Class, Wilson, board cloth, Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson Neatly bound, and in clear type,	480	.85	5.00
			2.50

THE GOSPEL IN SONG

A Book of 287 well-printed Gospel Hymns

	Each	Per 10	Per 100
	Postpaid	Postpaid	Not Postpaid
Manila	$0.40	$3.60	$30.00
Flexible Cloth	.45	4.00	33.00
Board Cloth	.50	4.50	40.00

AN ETHICAL CODE FOR MINISTERS AND CONGREGATIONS

(The following code of ethics, copied from the Expositor, has been adopted by the Church of the Brethren throughout the United States and Canada. If adopted on the same scale by the Church of God, it would undoubtedly make for happier relations generally between ministers and their congregations. We recommend it for the earnest consideration of every member of the Church of God.—M. W. Lyon.)

1. The church should honor the ministry as a high and holy calling. Faithful officials should be respected and esteemed.

2. The minister should maintain the dignity of his profession in all his relationships, both within the church and in the community at large.

3. The minister should keep physically fit. The church should make it possible for him to have a weekly holiday and an annual vacation for rest and improvement.

4. The minister should nurture his own spiritual life and strive for professional growth and efficiency in his calling.

5. There should be clear and just contracts between the church and its pastor. Both parties should abide scrupulously by the terms of the contract until its expiration unless it is revoked by proper procedure or mutual agreement.

6. The church should recognize that a minister is entitled to an adequate remuneration, but the service of a minister should never be limited by financial consideration.

7. The minister should scrupulously guard all confidential and official information. He should not be swayed by "community gossip" nor take sides with factions in his church. A church should protect its minister from "factions" and "cliques".

8. The minister should not act as an agent or salesman for any commercial enterprise. The pulpit should not be used as a medium of political, personal, or commercial propaganda.

9. The minister should manage his own financial affairs with dignity and honor. He should avoid speculation and debt and pay his bills promptly.

10. A church should not tolerate "loose" and "slipshod" business methods. It should meet its obligations to the pastor and others promptly.

11. The minister should be frank, courteous, and cooperative with the ministers of his own and other churches. . . . He should not render professional service in the congregation of another minister without the consent of that minister except in an emergency.

12. The minister should give his time unstintingly to the spiritual service of his people. A church should not permit its pastor to be the "handy-man" of the congregation.

13. Pastoral calls should not be hastily extended by churches nor hastily accepted by ministers. The voice of the church should be taken by ballot, and no call should be extended unless it is supported by three-fourths of the membership. Christian courtesy requires that the minority move to make the call unanimous and to support the minister "heart and hand".

14. A minister should not seek nor consider a call from another church whose pastor has not yet resigned.

15. Electioneering or campaigning either for or against a candidate for a pastorate should not be tolerated either by the church or the minister. Hostile or unfriendly criticism of the church by the minister or of the minister by the church is unethical.

16. Under no circumstances should a church consider or even negotiate with two men at the same time. It is also unethical for a minister to bargain between churches.

17. When starting a new pastorate, the minister should begin by feeding the flock. He should learn to know his people as soon as possible. He should be slow in setting up new machinery and in up-setting established customs.

18. A minister should not go into a church to replace former workers, but to take his place at their side. The other ministers in the local congregation should be made to feel that they are partners in the task of saving souls. The pastor must be creative in discovering definite tasks for them to undertake.

19. It is unethical for a minister to "meddle" in the affairs of a church after leaving its pastorate or to keep up contacts which hamper the new pastor in winning the hearts of his people. When a pastor leaves a church, he should leave it.

20. The minister should give due attention to politeness, neatness, and the refinements of life without being mechanical, exclusive, or coldly formal.

21. It is unethical for a minister to speak ill of a fellow minister, especially his predecessor or successor. It is unethical for churches constantly to laud the good qualities of former ministers.

22. The church should recognize that many demands claim the time and energy of a minister. He should not be expected to do the impossible. The minister must not allow unworthy or unimportant interests to deprive the church of his time and service.

23. The minister should consider that "work well done" and duty faithfully discharged is in itself "partial recompense for labor".

24. The minister and his people should show by their own lives that the gospel which they proclaim "is the power of God unto salvation".

"Follow up your Rally Day observance. That program is merely a good start in getting ready for the coming season's intensive work. Give special attention to increasing your average attendance. About forty percent are absent each Sunday from the average school. Search out those who have recently moved into your neighborhood, and secure them for your school. Meanwhile get those, both old and young, who have lived in your vicinity for five years and have not yet enrolled in any Sunday school. These are the things that make Rally Day count."