

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 6, 1936

NUMBER 1

Twenty-Five Years of Service

WITH this issue THE RESTITUTION HERALD enters upon its twenty-sixth year of publication. For a quarter of a century the paper has continued its weekly visits into the homes of God's people, bringing its messages of comfort, assurance, and hope drawn from the Fountain of Divine Truth, the Bible.

The good THE RESTITUTION HERALD has accomplished, the blessings it has brought, "the souls it has led to the foot of the cross," cannot be estimated today, but its complete fruitage will be measured and its value computed when the final sheaves from its sowing are garnered by the angels in the harvest "at the end of the world."

That the paper has accomplished in a large degree the purpose of its founders, which, as stated in the first issue, was to "give the brethren a good, clean, religious paper filled with the best that can be had on the fundamental principles of our faith," is apparent from the continued support it has received from the church at large. There are names on the subscription list today that were placed there when THE RESTITUTION HERALD was established in October, 1911, and thousands of letters have come from appreciative readers in all parts of the country attesting their approval of its editorial policy, a policy that has remained unchanged throughout its history, and declaring their belief that it would continue to faithfully promulgate their religious convictions in the years to come.

It is the earnest hope and fervent prayer of the present editors and management that THE RESTITUTION HERALD may continue to merit the hearty approval and the generous support of the entire Church of God until the Master comes and calls its writers and its readers to their eternal reward. To this end they solicit the prayers, the criticism, and the advice of the disciples everywhere.

Abreast of the Times

Prize Offered for Greatest Sin

"Sin is the transgression of the law."—1 John 3:4.

LITCHFIELD, Ill., Oct. 3.—Rev. L. A. Crown, pastor of the Christian Church in this mining town, has offered a prize of five dollars to the person who names the "most horrible" sin imaginable! His announcement has already brought a surprising number of replies from all parts of the country.

Terrorism in Palestine

"Esau . . . sold his birthright unto Jacob."—Gen. 25:33.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The age-long contention between Jacob and Esau, Israel and Edom, Jew and Arab, which has resulted from a transaction made between twin brothers, one of whom lived only for the present, the other for the future, continues to stain "the glorious land" (Dan. 11:16) with fratricidal blood! (See "Jacob and Esau," by A. L. Corbaley, in THE RESTITUTION HERALD of September 1.)

Terrorism in the Holy Land has already cost more than two hundred lives since the "general strike" was declared by the Arabs in protest against further immigration and continued sale of land to the returning Jews. It now appears that many of the 700,000 residents of the country have never recognized the British mandate over Palestine and contend that administration has no right to encourage the Jews to settle there.

In a dispatch from Jerusalem tonight the Jewish Telegraphic Agency estimated that 428 lives had been lost in the rioting of the last six months and that the disorders had resulted in property damage to the extent of approximately $14,000,000.

So critical has the situation become that the British Home Office has decreed martial law for Palestine and will invest General J. G. Dill, commander of the recently augmented military forces there, with virtual dictatorial authority. (See "Abreast of the Times," September 8.)

The present disorders are the third similar outbreak in the sixteen years of British rule in Palestine, but no previous demonstration on the part of the Arabs has produced the extreme violence and bloodshed that has come with the present developments. As the Jews raised their rate of immigration from the first few hundreds in 1922 to 61,000 in 1935, buying tremendous stretches of land and pouring tens of millions of dollars into the development of the country, Arab resistance has grown increasingly bitter.

In an interview which the editor had recently in St. Louis with a minister of the M. E. Church South who had recently returned from Palestine, the clergyman stated that an Arab Christian whom he had questioned said that it was his belief that the Jews were coming back at this time, not for final restoration, but for punishment. The minister also observed that close inquiry indicated that the great majority of those who thus far had sought Palestine as a refuge from persecution were decidedly atheistic in their belief. All of which, of course, is in harmony with prophecy.

Witchcraft in Modern America

"Now the works of the flesh are manifest, . . . idolatry, witchcraft, . . . murders, . . . they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."—Gal. 5:19-21.

WOODBIDGE, N. J., Oct. 2.—That belief in witchcraft flourishes in modern America as it did in the early New England days was made apparent in a quiet family neighborhood in this city when several serious-minded housewives told eerie tales of black magic and accused a woman of the community of being a "witch." The women were brought before Recorder Arthur Brown on the complaint of the supposed "witch," who charged them with annoying her.

With all gravity and conviction these accusers amazed the court with testimony like this:

"I saw her change herself into a horse and walk on her hind legs."

"I saw her bend down and her head changed into a dog's head and she had big bumps on her back."

"One night I saw her at the window. She looked like a frightful animal. She seemed to be dressed in the skin of an animal. There was also a blazing stream above her head."

"Her head would shrink to the size of my fist. Her body would become large and horns would appear on her head and she would walk on all fours like an animal."

The alleged "witch woman" denied all knowledge of witchcraft and pointed out that the witch's brew, cited by her accusers, was a medicinal preparation she made for herself and her husband from herbs. As for the strange shapes the neighbors had observed, she put them down as flickering shadows on the wall.

The slimy "trail of the serpent" and the lie he told in Eden is still filling the minds of the credulous with horrible and useless fears.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Origin of The Restitution Herald

THE success of an enterprise does not depend so much upon the financial resources at the command of its founders and directors as it does upon the greatness of the idea that inspired its inauguration and the zeal and faithfulness with which it is carried into effect by its sponsors.

Like many another splendid effort, THE RESTITUTION HERALD is the product of a great spiritual conception. Throughout the long history of the Church of God in America able Bible students had established and maintained over periods of years independent periodicals through which they promulgated the truth of God as it was revealed to them in the Scriptures. On another page will be found a list of such publications and their editors.

These various journals were of inestimable value in the early days in spreading the glad tidings of the kingdom of God in regions where the reality of the Lord's second coming, the literality and importance of the resurrection of the dead, and the definite assurance that the eternal home of the saints was to be upon this earth had never before been announced. Hundreds, yes, thousands of honest seekers for salvation were instructed in the essential facts of the gospel and led to consecrate their lives to Jesus Christ in baptism. Bible classes were conducted, churches organized, and State and district conferences formed largely through the influence exerted by these publications, and much credit is due their self-sacrificing editors and owners for the zeal they displayed and the steadfastness they manifested under the most discouraging circumstances in continuing that work.

Early in 1910 a group of active leaders in the Church of God, men whose names were known and whose reputations were respected both from the standpoint of their knowledge of the Bible and from that of their Christian characters, after long consultation together reached the conclusion that the time was ripe for the establishment of a new weekly organ for the dissemination of the truth which was so dear to God's people everywhere.

They felt that such an effort, to be as effective as it ought to be, and as widely representative of the brotherhood as possible, should not be controlled by any one individual, but that the best minds of the entire church should be enlisted to provide the material that was to fill its pages and to govern its editorial policy. In the furtherance of this idea, The Restitution Publishing Company was incorporated.

The purpose and policy of the founders of that company was explained fully in the editorial which occupied the first column of the first page of the paper on the date of its first issue. We quote the editorial in part as follows:

"The name, 'The Restitution Publishing Company,' was chosen as early as December, 1910, and a thousand dollars was subscribed before the end of that month for the purchase of machinery suitable to do a general printing business.

"After the work had progressed sufficiently to make it certain that the task would be accomplished, a suitable place for a location was sought. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that Oregon, Illinois, would be the best suited for such an enterprise. Accordingly license to organize was applied for of the Secretary of State of Illinois and was received, bearing the date of June 1, 1911.

"The laws of Illinois are very strict with regard to the organization of corporate companies. Before we could organize we were obliged to sell all stock for which we were to be capitalized. This done, there still remained a great deal of 'red tape' to overcome.

"Now that the work is done, we are a company of brethren composed of about ninety persons, covering the States of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, and Ontario, Canada.

"At the election held for the organization (of the company), the following board of directors was elected:

"Peter Jeffrey, E. F. Gesin, John E. Cross, Ezra C. Railsback, and S. J. Lindsay. Upon the organization of this board of directors, Ezra C. Railsback was chosen president and S. J. Lindsay was chosen secretary and treasurer.

"Upon further deliberation, S. J. Lindsay was chosen to act as editor and manager of THE RESTITUTION HERALD with instructions from said board to go ahead with the business of purchasing machinery and employing help to get the work started at the earliest possible date.

"The purpose of the management is to give the brethren a good, clean, religious paper filled with the best that can be had on the fundamental principles of our faith. There is room within our body for just such a paper and in the outside world there is crying need for the truth. There are thousands of religious people the world over today that are groping in the dark and we should be sending some good literature to them to open their eyes to the truth instead of filling up the pages with material that at best can edify but little those who read it.

"With an array of contributors such as we have already promised us, we may expect some good things. Bro. and Sr. Woodward and Bro. Blakely of Michigan; Bro. F. L.

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

Headquarters, National Bible Institution

Just a Bundle of Old Papers

OLD PAPERS! How they do accumulate! Day after day and week after week they come into our homes to be scanned carefully or carelessly for a moment and then cast aside. How little they mean to us after they have served their exceedingly brief purpose of informing us concerning the passing thoughts and happenings of the fleeting hours of time!

The preacher of old declared that "of the making of books there is no end." What would be his astonishment were he permitted to stand and watch the whirring presses of today turning out their millions of printed pages in a myriad of tongues to be scattered in a few hours to all quarters of the globe?

Books were highly prized in the days of that old-time commenter on the making of them! Each letter of each word of every line and page was drawn by hand upon a clay tablet, a stone slab, or a prepared skin, and all with the utmost care. Frequently a single copy of a book was the lifetime work of the scribe. It is not surprising that so few people sought to learn to read in those days. They had little incentive or opportunity to do so. In all Israel in the days of Josiah there seems to have been but one copy of the law of God and that was for a long time lost!

It is hard for us in these days of universal education and multiplied printing facilities to realize what the condition must have been back there when a single copy of the Word of God was worth a king's ransom!

We have in our files several bundles of old papers which thoughtful brethren have saved from the furnace during past years and have at our request sent on to us. What a story these old papers have for the thoughtful reader of today! What a record of faith, of zeal, of sacrifice, they present!

They all are associated with the work of the Church of God in the early days of our denomination and bear dates as far back as the "roaring forties." They tell of the attitude of the brethren regarding the Mexican War which was then raging, and the insane lust for gold that was sending men across the burning, Indian-infested plains to seek wealth in distant California.

They also tell of great and enthusiastic meetings held in East and West in which the coming of the Lord was announced as an imminent event and all people were urged with tears to forsake their sins and make their peace with God "before the great and notable day of the Lord" should come.

Among those early publications which flourished for a time and then died with the passing of their editor-publishers, the following are of special interest owing to the influence they exerted at the time of their issue and to the fact that the scholars whose writings appeared most frequently in their columns were men of keen intellect and lasting value to the church, whose works have lived after them in the hearts of hundreds who knew them personally in life.

First in matter of time of issue was perhaps The Voice of Truth and Glad Tidings of the Kingdom at Hand. (They adopted long but expressive names for their papers in those days!) The Voice of Truth was "published every Wednesday at No 20½ State Street, Rochester, N. Y., by J. Marsh." The character and teaching of the paper may be gathered from the text printed under the title: "When ye see all these things, know that he is near, even at the door." The earliest copy of The Voice of Truth that is in our possession is dated April 1, 1846, and is the first number of volume 10.

In the next few years The Voice of Truth was succeeded by The Advent Harbinger and Bible Advocate, which was also published at Rochester, New York, by Joseph Marsh, who was one of the first among the reformers of his period to teach the premillennial coming of the Lord to reign over restored Israel and other existing nations which survive the destructive fires of the tribulation.

Speaking of "The Reign of Christ and His Cabinet," R. V. Lyon, writing in the early eighties, says, "The author's (i. e., R. V. Lyon's) attention was called to the doctrine set forth in this discourse some forty-five years ago . . . through the instrumentality of the lamented Joseph Marsh."

The earliest copy we have of The Advent Harbinger is dated April 20, 1850.

By 1857 The Advent Harbinger had been renamed the Expositor and Advocate. Still owned, published, and edited by Joseph Marsh, it continued to teach the great principles of truth for which the Church of God stands today as evidenced by an article which appears on the first page of the paper of June 1, 1857. The article is entitled, "The Blessing of Abraham," and was written by "George, Duke of Manchester."

At about the time The Advent Harbinger became the Expositor and Advocate, Benjamin Wilson, an accomplished biblical scholar of Geneva, Illinois, began the publication of the Gospel Banner and Millennial Advocate. Bro. Wilson was one of the most able writers the church has ever produced and although he has been dead for many years his splendid translation of the Greek New Testament, the Emphatic Diaglott, is still in great demand. The Gospel Banner continued to long advocate the gospel of the kingdom of God and the imminence of our Lord's return.

Many other papers arose from time to time which we can do little more than mention, such as Herald of the Morning, of which N. H. Barbour and C. T. Russell were the editors. The latter originally was associated with the Church of God but later established an independent organization, "Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society," which, in turn, under the leadership of Judge J. F. Rutherford, became "Jehovah's Witnesses."

The Restitution, the first Church of God paper to bear that name, was, up to the time of the Chicago fire, published by Thomas Wilson in that city. After the fire it was removed to Plymouth, Indiana, where it continued under the supervision of A. R. Underwood until about the time when The Restitution Herald was organized, when it removed to Cleveland, Ohio, where it was first published as a weekly and afterwards for a time as a monthly magazine, Robert G. Huggins being its editor.

Sunshine, a monthly paper for children of the Church of God, was printed for a little while at Plymouth, Indiana, under the editorship of J. F. Wilcox.

The Last Days, Thomas Wilson, editor, an excellent little magazine devoted to the interpretation of prophecy, to the regret of its many friends came to an end a few years ago with the death of its beloved and accomplished founder.

The Millenarian, also a monthly journal, was published by G. M. Myers, an erudite Bible scholar, at Lanark, Illinois. Later the same publisher moved to Iowa, where he
(Please turn to Page Eleven)

"We Believe and Teach—"

A CAREFUL comparison of the statements of purpose, policy, and teaching of the numerous publications issued through the long period covering the rediscovery of the apostolic faith of the Church of God reveals that the outstanding leaders of the movement were in essential agreement as to what constituted the saving principles of the gospel of Christ.

And not only that, but our later periodicals assure us that as time went on and scholars searched ever more diligently into the depths of divine revelation, these later investigators found but infrequent occasion to discard as unbiblical what those earlier students of the Word had affirmed as matters of saving faith. Nor with all their searching did they discover much additional truth of a vital character to be added to what had been already declared to be of a basic nature.

A few of those early outlines of faith will be of interest, and perhaps strengthen our faith that what the early Church of God taught was not only the same truths the church is teaching today, but the actual gospel as it was proclaimed with divine power by Jesus and the apostles.

We have before us as we write the first number of the first volume of the Herald of the Kingdom and Age to Come, of which Dr. John Thomas was the founder and editor. It bears the date line: "Richmond, Virginia, January, 1851."

As we are aware, Dr. Thomas, originally associated with Alexander Campbell, founder of the "Church of Christ" ("Disciples"), having after more prolonged study discovered the truth concerning the gospel of the kingdom of God and conditional immortality, found himself in general harmony with the teaching of Joseph Marsh, Benjamin Wilson, and other leaders of the movement which soon afterwards consolidated into the Church of God, and no longer in unison with Mr. Campbell.

The statement which Dr. Thomas made in the first number of his new Herald of the Kingdom reveals not only the progress he had made in the development of his religious thought, but also provides us with a definite outline of what was thereafter in its essential elements to remain the truths for which he stood so firmly and so consistently.

Dr. Thomas had from the beginning of his religious awakening engaged in defending and advocating through the instrumentality of various publications of which he was the editor the truths he discovered. He mentions "eleven or twelve volumes of periodical numbers" he had previously issued under the titles, Apostolic Advocate, The Investigator, and the Herald of the Future Age.

Coming to the announcement of the purpose of the new paper, he says:

"From 1834 to '46 or '47 the editor had been bringing out and advocating great and important truths. . . . At that time he would not have said that the knowledge and belief of them was indispensable to a participation of the everlasting blessings of the age to come. He had not the testimony before his mind to justify such a conclusion; consequently could not venture to affirm it. But in process of time he came to see that they were the gospel in ruins—its integral parts lying as the fragments of a wreck all around. Having made this discovery he proceeded to rebuild the fabric—to bring the dismembered elements together, and to set them forth as one harmonious whole.

"His faith had now attained an amplitude it had not possessed before."

Please observe Dr. Thomas' statement of what he now looked upon as the true apostolic gospel by belief in which men may be saved!

"His faith (now) . . . embraced the hope of God's calling to His kingdom and glory in the name of Jesus as the future Lord and Sovereign of the world. He now perceived what the faith of the gospel was that was necessary to constitute (make) an immersion Christian baptism. It was nothing else than the gospel of the kingdom of God and name of Jesus as the Christ; and he discovered accordingly that if a man would inherit that kingdom he must believe with an honest and good heart the things concerning it."

The kingdom of God and the messiahship of Christ are still the basic facts of the gospel as taught by the Church of God.
(To be continued)

My Last Sermon

The Promises to Abraham

By Norman John Macleod

This sermon was delivered at the recent California Conference, Sunday, August 30, 1936.

IF WE should ask what thing in the world is most certain, many answers could be given. Answers would run the whole gamut of human affairs and matters in the world. But perhaps nothing is more certain than that the sun will set in the evening and rise in the morning. So many times has that series of events happened, so many millions of times, in fact, in the memory of mankind, that hardly could any other order of events be imagined by the most adept daydreamer. Commonly we hear the statement "as sure as you're alive"; but that is not nearly so certain as day and night. Life is fleeting, is "but a vapour" according to God's Word. But let us hear again from God's Word concerning the certainty of things: "Thus saith the Lord; If my covenant be not with day and night, and if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth; then will I cast away the seed of Jacob, and David my servant, so that I will not take any of his seed to be rulers over the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: for I will cause their captivity to return, and have mercy on them" (Jer. 33:25, 26). The same sentiments are expressed elsewhere in the same chapter, and many places throughout the whole volume of the Word of God. The rising of the sun in the morning and its setting at eventide may seem certain and sure, but they are insecure as compared to the promises of God to Abraham.

"Standing on the promises that cannot fail,
When the howling storms of doubt and fear assail,
By the living Word of God I shall prevail,
Standing on the promises of God."

Had I but one sermon to preach, then I would tell of the promises that God made to Abraham. If this were to be the last time my voice should be raised in telling of the things of God, or should you wander away from this point never to return again, let this remain in your memory as my testimony to the things of God. And I can say this with some effectiveness beyond a mere theory, for to many of you this indeed will be my last sermon. Not many days hence I am leaving the pulpit for the schoolroom, and will be teaching of the things of this world instead of the next. Many circumstances have combined to force me to this situation, but nevertheless the results are the same. Let us feel then that this is my last sermon to you in this life.

Two passages of Scripture will suffice as basic textual

"For when God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he swore by himself, saying, Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee."—Hebrews 6:13, 14.

material upon which to erect the superstructure of my valedictory to you. Other parts of Holy Writ will be used, but if I were forced to choose a few portions of evidence these two would be all that would be absolutely necessary.

They tie the whole of the Bible together into one continuous story of God's relationship to man, and of how much He loves His creation. "And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, and said, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son: that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice" (Gen. 22:15-18). The other passage of Scripture explains the one, and tells the whole gospel story in three short verses: "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:27-29).

All that is essential for salvation, all that is necessary for Christian instruction, all that is embodied in what is commonly called "fundamentals" are found in these two quotations. Here is found the essence of the resurrection; the groundwork for repentance, baptism, and consecration; the basis for practical living, for by implicit obedience Abraham was able to achieve that attitude which was acceptable to God; the reason for the belief in the second advent of Christ; the goal toward which all prophecy is directed; and the doctrines of eternal judgment and the kingdom of God. All things that are absolutely essential for the new Christian to understand are there. The beauty and simplicity of God's Word are there, as well as the certainty. God does not require endless study of His Word to understand these basic elements. The complete gospel was "preached before to Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: but the word of the Lord shall stand for ever"; when God swore to His word it became the most certain thing in this world.

Baptism is seen to be one of those essential things in the promises of God to Abraham. Why should it occupy so important a place? Because it teaches the whole gospel in a single enactment. It is the rite which admits the new Christian to the church. It is the gospel in symbol. It first of all teaches death. Death to our old life, death to the sins of the life we have lived before, death to the old habits that have made the individual at enmity to God. Also in that act is illustrated the death of Christ; the greatest sacrifice that God could make for mankind was made when Christ died for us. Burial is also portrayed in the act of baptism. That, a child can understand. If a child were told to go and bury a dead body he would know that it would have to be buried. If he went out and sprinkled a few grains of dust upon that body he would know and all of us would know that it had not been buried. Immersion, then, symbolizes burial. In the grave of water is also kept in memory the fact that for three days and three nights the Savior was in the tomb. And, most glorious fact of all, by coming out of that grave of waters, we come forth to represent in our new life a new relationship to God and the world. Whether we wish to or not, we must of necessity live a new life. Every act from henceforth will be gauged by the standard that the world applies to Christians. Everything will be judged on that basis. But the Christian, because he has ever in mind the greater resurrection day when Christ shall return, lives a new life now with a new fervor and zeal. He comes to desire a new kind of life. But the act of coming forth portrays the resurrection of Christ, and as we have just mentioned bespeaks that most wonderful day to come when that greater resurrection shall take place. What a host of ideas is contained in that act of baptism! That is why it is the token of the new covenant. A token bears within itself elements that connect it with the thing that it represents. If we refer to the Noahic covenant (Gen. 9) we see that in the token is embodied that hope that was promised, that the world would not be again destroyed by water. A rainbow cannot be formed without the sun shining through the water. Repentance; death, burial, and resurrection; the memory of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection; and consecration (the new life) are set forth in that one act of baptism. And then it makes us heirs of those promises that were made to Abraham and his descendants.

Upon the promises to Abraham are based the teachings of God's kingdom. In the promises are seen the Seed, which is Christ. In the promises later to Isaac and Jacob we see the rulership of the heirs given into the hands of the nation of Israel. And in the promises to Judah and later to David the Seed and Ruler becomes the conquering King. The hope that we may be rulers with Christ is also contained in the fulfillment of these promises.

Already we have mentioned the resurrection in connection with baptism, but as a separate teaching the resurrection is also contained in the promises to Abraham. The event about which we read in the 22nd chapter of Genesis taught the resurrection to Abraham and his posterity: "By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac; and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son, of whom it was said, That in Isaac shall thy seed be called: accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure" (Heb. 11:17-19). Also, Jesus took His basis for His teaching of the resurrection from the same source: "Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him" (Luke 20:37, 38).

That these promises were not fulfilled to Abraham we can readily see. Abraham is dead, and so are those other worthies. The fulfilling of these things is yet in the future. "And he gave him (Abraham) none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child" (Acts 7:5). Prophecy comes then with its whisper of hope to tell the weary Christian that, if he will but renew his hope and keep steadfast in spite of all the temptations, trials, and hardships of life, beyond the grave there is that great hope. Prophecy tells then that Christ the Savior will come back some day to rule upon the earth. It shows that events which are happening about us are but harbingers of that glad day when the same Jesus who walked the streets of Jerusalem and struggled with wicked men in the region of Galilee will come back even as He went into heaven to bring to pass all that has been promised in the Word of God. Even all prophecy is contained within the promises to Abraham, and prophecy is largely based upon what is happening to the people of God, the people whom God selected to carry out His work: the Jews.

When all these things are considered, no wonder the writer to the Hebrews dwelt upon the promises to Abraham, and spoke of them as a thing that keeps us faithful in days of adversity, and though the other things of life fail we have those promises to give to us that security which governments fail to give, that security which has kept the faithful through all their trials in times past and will be a light to our path while we wander this vale of tears. "Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath: that by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us: which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entereth into that within the veil; whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec" (Heb. 6:17-20).

"That New York rector who proposes a two-year moratorium on preaching probably reasons that the human race is so stubborn, cussed, and contrary it would start going to church the minute it was told there wasn't any."—Clyde Moore in Ohio State Journal.

The Kingdom of God: Where Is It?

By R. H. Judd

VERY much has already been written on the above subject, and much controversy has frequently been the result, so that it may seem somewhat superfluous to write more. Yet it seems to me it might be helpful to some to give what has resulted from my meditation and study. Of late years I have grown in the belief that the Bible is a book, not for clergy only, but for everybody, rich and poor, high and lowly; and that in the main, its language is plain, straightforward, and not difficult to understand. I am also of the opinion that a knowledge of Greek and Hebrew is not necessary to the proper understanding of God's Word, as so many assert, and so discourage its real study by many who would otherwise do so. Many a young man is told to leave certain questions of Bible truths to those who understand these dead languages, and he is thus debarred from much interesting and profitable study. Surely there are very few students of these languages who would claim superior knowledge to those who accomplished the great task of translation of the Old and New Testaments. Therefore I maintain that any Bible subject may be studied in either the Authorized Version or the Revised Version with perfect confidence and with the best authority. (I do not mean that, where opportunity allows, various well-known translations and authorities should not be consulted. I myself use a Variorium Bible and find it helpful.) I would strongly emphasize the fact that under no conditions of any sort can a passage of Scripture be made to bear, in any sense, a meaning opposite to the dictionary meaning of the words it contains. Get this fact clearly impressed upon the mind, and it will then be seen how very unfairly the Bible is treated oftentimes in comparison to the treatment given to other books. No other book could have stood what the Bible has stood in this way, and still have maintained its position. This may seem to be a digression from the subject, but I have deemed these prefatory remarks necessary, and I trust the reader will ultimately concur.

"The kingdom of God" is a term frequently used in the Bible, and the allusions to it are numerous, and, for the most part, plain. This much cannot be said of many things given out as "Bible truth." When a subject cannot be expressed in Bible language, it can scarcely be called a Bible subject. That surely is evident. We are not, however, in that difficulty here. Our difficulty is rather that of limiting our topic to a few texts, and within the scope of a short paper. There are two or three verses that have dwelt much on my mind recently, which seem to indicate as clearly as possible the locality of the kingdom of God. The first is to be found in Matthew 6 in the very beautiful prayer our Lord taught us to pray. It is, indeed, a most wonderful prayer. Simply worded, yet every word seems to be loaded with truth, and seems to carry within its center one or more of the cardinal truths of Christianity. One would fain take up this prayer (rightly called the Lord's Prayer, for none but He could have framed a prayer so fraught with meaning and teaching in every sentence) and seek to expound it word by word, but time and space forbid. The sentences to which I would draw particular attention are—"Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven."

Our Lord was on earth, and He prayed to His Father which is in heaven—two distinct places, and two separate Personalities. "Thy kingdom come." Three short words, but they express much. It is reasonable to suppose, our Lord's thoughts were at least reminded of the promise given in Daniel, that "the God of heaven should set up a kingdom," and He longed and taught His disciples to pray that His Father's kingdom should come. All other kingdoms failed, and in time died away, but not so the kingdom of God. He left no doubt as to the locality of the kingdom, for, being on the earth, He prayed that it might come; and as if to avoid any further question as to its locality and nature, He immediately added—"Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." So then in these few concise, wonderfully expressed words, we have volumes of truth contained; we get the glorious news that this sin-stained earth is yet to be full of the knowledge of the Lord, aye, so full that God's will shall yet be done here, as it is now done in heaven. No pen can describe that wonderful transformation; so we must leave it and consider our next proof text. Let us turn then to Matthew 13:41—"They shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity." This surely shows plainly the locality of the kingdom. As regards man and his sphere, the Bible only knows two places—heaven and earth. Heaven is God's dwelling place, and there, we have it on Christ's own authority—God's will is done. There can then be only one place where it is possible to "take out all things that offend, and them which do iniquity," and that is the earth, which is here designated as "his kingdom." The earth is beautiful now—exquisitely beautiful in many places; but when "all things that offend"—thorns and thistles, and them that do iniquity, are taken out of the way, it will be the kingdom of God, over which the Son of God will delight to reign. We can now enter somewhat into the request, aye, and the feeling, too, of the dying thief when he prayed—"Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom," for he had read the inscription—"This is Jesus, the King of the Jews," and that very day the Lord gave him the promise that he should be with Him then. The prophets are full of this glorious theme. Christ and His apostles reecho it. Peter tells us of the time of the third heaven and earth wherein dwelleth righteousness, and Paul refers to the same theme when he tells of "visions and revelations of the Lord."

Friends, we have a grand Book; full of grand themes, and most of all, from beginning to end, the Book rings with the glad message of a grand Savior. Let us not then be ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation.

The Arab in Palestine

THE following taken from Prophecy, published by Keith L. Brooks, Los Angeles (October, 1936), is of interest in connection with an "Abreast of the Times" report in the present issue. Mr. Brooks says:

"We are permitted to quote from a letter just received from a missionary friend in Palestine, by Ralph D. Smith, founder of the Bible House of Los Angeles. The writer, W. L. McClenahan, is a close friend of the Christian president of the Jerusalem Chamber of Commerce. For thirty years Mr. McClenahan has preached the gospel to the Mohammedans. That which follows is taken from the letter received August 21." Mr. McClenahan writes:

"Not one who may be regarded as a real believer has, up to this time, been killed or suffered serious loss so far as we know (as a result of the Arab strike). None of us have lacked for necessities, although movement of supplies has been very difficult, sometimes affecting prices.

"The position of the High Commissioner is most difficult and we feel he has probably done all he could. He is a true Christian. Two of our friends, business men of Jerusalem, talked with him recently and had an opportunity of going over with him some of the prophetic scriptures having to do with the future of the land and its people. There has been much prayer for him by God's people here.

"The spirit of the Arabs, even the non-Moslem Arabs, toward the Jews is almost unbelievably bitter. We marvel at it. Even where hatred of the Jews does not possess the Christian Arab, fear of the Moslems, who are greatly in the majority, does, causing them to take the side of the Moslem Arabs, joining with them in creating disturbances.

"Bethlehem is almost solidly Christian but there have been serious disturbances there. We sought to go there to visit friends who were shut up there on account of the strike, but were told by the police that the road between Jerusalem and Bethlehem was not safe. One sees practically no one except police patrols and military convoys.

"The Arabs appear very unreasonable in their whole view of the situation and one has to be careful in conversation with them. They resent anything which may be taken as showing sympathy for Jews.

"Naturally, the Jews have not been without fault in their behavior, but on the whole, they have shown I think a commendable spirit. We have to deal with them principally, on account of the Arab stores being closed.

"A recent letter appearing in one of our local papers from Sir Flinders Petrie, the veteran archeologist, is illuminating. He says the real trouble is in the incapacity of the Arab to make use of his land. The horrible destruction of good land that goes on is all a criminal waste. In the rich Sheplelah the deep water courses are witnesses to the scandal. This is the real trouble, and is increased by an ancestral preference for the desert; leading to destroying trees by Arabs on Arab lands as well as on the property of others. Sir Flinders Petrie says he has improved Arab land fivefold, only to see it left to destruction. For 1,300 years the Arabs have kept the land desolate. Is that a title to have the right to keep it so?

"There is a fallacy that the land can be kept indefinitely for the Arabs. But the world is filling up as never before. If British protection were removed, the Italian, the Greek, Armenian, or Japanese would press in and the Arab would be nowhere. Cooperation with the Jew and learning from him will save more to the Arab than any other policy. In many other countries today those who do not make use of their land are pushed out. Landowners have been compelled to hand over what was not being properly used. Sir Flinders Petrie appeals to the Arabs to help themselves if they intend to make any claim to being treated as a nation and not as a horde. They must make better use of the land they have so long misused or make way for those who will.

"As to the Arabs, the spirit working amongst them is very strange. If an evil spirit from the Lord could trouble Saul and the Lord could stir up the spirit of Cyrus in order that His purposes might be accomplished, may He not be doing a similar thing amongst the Arabs in carrying out His purposes in getting the Jews back and settled in the land?

"We see but one ending to these troubles, and that is the submission and perhaps complete humiliation of the Arabs. These poor people may have to suffer much before that takes place. But, with Britain's power on the one hand and God's Word regarding the Jews on the other, it is difficult to see any other outcome.

"Ezekiel 35:1-6 seems most significant in view of present happenings, 'Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I am against thee, O mount Seir, and I will stretch out my hand against thee, and I will make thee a desolation and an astonishment. . . . And thou shalt know that I am Jehovah. Because thou hast had a perpetual enmity, and hast given over the children of Israel to the power of the sword in the time of their calamity, in the time of the iniquity of the end; therefore, as I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I will prepare thee unto blood, and blood shall pursue thee.'"

Can the League Survive?

THE League of Nations, the postwar panacea for preventing war, is today facing the most critical period of its existence.

The League was founded for the purpose of bringing together the nations of the world in a conclave which would by parliamentary tactics solve all international problems without recourse to war. In order to succeed in its aims, all powerful nations must cooperate and abide by the decisions of the League. But such has not been the case thus far, and herein lies not only the weakness of the League of Nations, but also the possibility that the League may be a party to another general war.

The United States, perhaps the strongest nation in the world, is not a member of the League. During the Manchurian affair, China and Japan spouted their difficulties before the League, and as a result Japan disconnected herself from the group. Soon afterward Germany left the League.

The League was an ideal to which it was easy for nations to render lip service during the halcyon days of comparative calm. But situations have arisen in the past three or four years which have brought this idealism face to face with stern reality. The League seems impotent to take any concrete action in problems of aggression. A partial exception is the recent action on sanctions against Italy; but even this did not prevent Italy from acquiring the African territory she desired. If the League cannot prevent war, how can the world be assured of peace? On the other hand, if the League uses war to prevent war, then the world can be assured of war in the not-distant future.

Frank H. Simonds, late observer of world affairs, wrote recently in The Los Angeles Times that "the primary consequence of the League of Nations has been—not to settle disputes and avoid aggressions—but to make the quarrels between any two nations the business of all, and substitute the prospect of general wars for that of mere duels between the States directly concerned."

Peace societies of various nations are striving earnestly to arouse public sentiment against war and aggression; but public opinion is worth little in a crisis. In a recent book, entitled On the Rim of the Abyss, James T. Shotwell emphasizes the futility of public opinion in a crisis: "It is late, but perhaps not too late, for the lesson to be learned that public opinion is futile in times of crisis unless it is given something to do. When Japan went into Manchuria, public opinion in the United States and in most other countries was as nearly unanimous as it is likely to be in the judgment that that act constituted a violation of the pact. But when the great Powers started doing different things and failed to coordinate their policies or to secure united support for them, the advocates of imperialism in Japan could, with impunity, defy a world that had no agreed plan of action, and therefore no continuing strength in its gesture of moral disapproval."

Suppose public opinion had been given something active to do in the Manchurian affair, might it not have precipitated a general war? And herein lies the crisis of the League: How can the League of Nations stop aggressive war without war?

HUGE ARMAMENT EXPENDITURES

While the nations are striving to maintain peace, they are at the same time spending billions of dollars annually in preparations for war. The recent London Naval Conference failed to make any progress toward peace. The United States has appropriated money for 84 warships, Britain is building or has plans for 50 new ships, Germany 48, France 42, Japan 40, and Italy 33.

Today the nations are spending more money in army preparations than ever before in their history. Even Belgium is making preparations in a big way. Holland, which for decades has been a neutral country, is now getting into the game. The Orient is making vast preparations for a coming conflict. The world, from one end to the other, is stirred with the feeling of impending war.

Newspapers and periodicals of the past few years have been fond of predicting coming wars. "So confident were these predictions," writes Mr. Shotwell, "that they won credence at the time from those who have forgotten them since. Again I do not venture to say that they will always be wrong in the future, as they have been in the past. The powder barrels of Europe are full."

So far as powerful nations are concerned, the League is largely a European group. Can this League work harmoniously and preserve peace in Europe where the largest war preparations are now being made? The Bible contains an answer.

Looking down the stream of time, Nebuchadnezzar in about the year 600 B. C. saw in a dream the rise and fall of world empires. Daniel, interpreting the dream, as recorded in Daniel 2, informed the King that four world empires would arise, Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome. Rome would not be succeeded by another world power, but, instead, "the kingdom shall be divided" (Dan. 2:41). Mightier than the sword of the greatest men are these five words of inspiration. From the days of Rome's fall in 476 A. D. to the present time the nations which grew out of the Roman Empire have been divided.

Furthermore, the Prophet said, "They shall not cleave one to another" (Dan. 2:43). If the Bible is true, and we believe it is, the League will be unable to preserve a lasting peace in Europe. Christ informs us that just before His second coming "nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom" (Matt. 24:7). We may live to see this prophecy fulfilled in the near future. Daniel's prophecy is very plain in stating that during the days of the divided and quarreling nations, "shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed" (Dan. 2:44).

The hope of mankind in this present hour of impending war rests not in the League of Nations nor in the schemes and devices of men, but in the promises of the God of heaven, which are contained in the Bible.

The perplexity of nations today is an indication of the soon return of Jesus Christ. "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory."

Jesus then comforts His people by saying, "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21: 25-28).

Mankind's hope lies in the return of Jesus. And He will return. He made His followers a promise just before He left them alone on that wind-swept hill of Galilee, and His promises are sure. In fact, the event to which Christians throughout the ages have looked forward with longing hearts is the great fundamental belief that has buoyed up their faith and stabilized their hope. It produces watchfulness; it brings consolation, hope, and joy.—George T. Smisor in Signs of the Times.

Then study the pages where prophets and sages
By heavenly power bring to our view
Word pictures of beauty, of glory and duty,
Our hearts to enchant, our faith to renew.
—G. E. Marsh.

JUST A BUNDLE OF OLD PAPERS

(Continued from Page Five)

established at Belle Plaine The Christian Evangelist.

The Evangelist was short lived and was sold to W. L. and C. E. Crowe, and renamed Present Truth. It speedily took on the guise of an arena in which all controverted religious questions were fought out "without fear or favor." Present Truth moved to St. Paul, Nebraska, where it continued its open editorial policy for some years. It is no longer published.

Day Dawn, established as the official organ of the Church of God Conference in Minnesota, had at different times some most able men in its editorial chair. Among them were Dr. Orrin Roe Jenks, now president emeritus of Aurora College; J. J. Schaumburg, present editor of The Messiah's Advocate, Advent Christian weekly of Oakland, California; and James A. Patrick, first president of the General Conference of the Church of God. Day Dawn was merged with THE RESTITUTION HERALD when the General Conference was organized.

Word and Works, another excellent paper, was published in Texas for many years. It, too, was absorbed by THE RESTITUTION HERALD some years ago.

The Gospel Trumpet, the earliest copy in our possession bearing the inscription, "Published by the A. C. Conference in the Interest of the Advent Cause in the South," later came under the control of the Church of God and is now published by the Oklahoma-Arkansas Conference at Blackwell, Oklahoma, under the editorship of Mrs. Carrie Wile Chambers. The Trumpet, as was the case with Present Truth, is exceedingly liberal in its doctrinal teaching.

We have given but a very limited sketch of the publications of a periodical character that have guided the Church of God throughout the years. Many others, some of them of equal importance with those named, have circulated among the members of the body in the past and in the present.

We should not overlook the good that is being accomplished by the less pretentious papers, most of which are primarily designed for local circulation. The best known and most widely used of such publications is that edited by S. J. Lindsay in Tempe, Arizona. It is called The Messenger of Truth, and the Bible class lessons it provides for the weekly Bible classes are found to be exceedingly valuable wherever they have been adopted.

We hope in the near future to give a complete list of our present church publications, with a brief review of the special purpose and editorial policy of each.

ORIGIN OF THE HERALD

(Continued from Page Three)

Austin of Ontario; Bro. L. E. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio; Bro. Joseph W. Williams of Indiana; Bros. Jeffrey, Marsh, Cooper, and Hightower of Illinois; and Bro. Lucas of South Dakota, as well as many others, have promised to give us of their best along these lines. All we ask is that you give us your support to make this the best paper we ever had. . . . The machinery is all bought and paid for and we have money in the treasury. Our capital stock of $2,500 is all subscribed and nearly all paid in. We start with a nice subscription list and hope to enlarge it materially soon. Miss Ida Ordnung of Burlington Junction, Missouri, has been selected to help in the work of the office."

(Signed) S. J. Lindsay, Editor and Manager.

Such was the humble beginning of THE RESTITUTION HERALD which for the past twenty-five years has been the constant friend and teacher of so many men and women, young and old, throughout the country. What the future may have in store for us we do not know. All depends upon the faithfulness and devotion of those who strive to carry on the work that was started so successfully in 1911, and upon the manner in which we merit the favor and blessing of God.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love

* * * *

By Bradley Crundwell

Sweet peace, the gift of God's love. Oh! that man might enjoy this gift to its fullest extent. That peace might "flow like a river" and fill the entire earth and that man might live harmoniously with his neighbor. This would indeed be, then, an ideal world. But such an idealistic plane of things is not to be reached in the world today. Man, as a mortal, is incapable of securing such peace. This incapability to secure real peace on the earth for man is not due, however, to a lack of desire on his part.

Great men in every age have striven to promote peace throughout the nations of the world. Woodrow Wilson, in the interest of world peace, caused to be established a World Court and a League of Nations to settle disputes between nations by pacific means. Thus he hoped to prevent the causes of war, and so the wars themselves. Herbert Hoover in an attempt to keep the United States out of foreign entanglements, and so maintain peace for this country, resorted to a policy of non-recognition. This doctrine proposed that we do not recognize the title to possessions gained in violation of the peace pacts.

All these and numerous other very sincere efforts on the part of our political leaders to stamp out war have been to no avail. In fact, they have only opened up new fields for controversy and misunderstanding between nations, and the menace of war is still as threatening as ever.

Likewise, in an attempt to promote peace the great nations of the world have met on several occasions and signed very elaborate peace pacts and disarmament agreements. Examples of such treaties are very, very numerous, the Treaty of Versailles, the Washington Conference, the Pact of Paris or Kellogg Peace Pact, and the Five Power Conference. The very fact that there have been so many such agreements shows their uselessness. These agreements were supposed to make war impossible, but at this very time we have just witnessed actual conflict in one part of the world, and the threatenings of war in another.

Why have all such valiant attempts to preserve peace on the earth been futile? Is it not because of the very fact that man is mortal? Because of this mortality he is selfish, narrow-minded, unthoughtful, and uncharitable toward his fellow men. His unthoughtfulness and uncharitableness, acting within a conscience which is seared over from constant abuse, permits him to see hundreds of thousands of the most noble and best fitted young men in the world slaughtered if he may profit in any way from it. His mind is so warped from a constant, never-ending, blinded scramble for material wealth that he is capable of resorting to any means, no matter how ignoble or injurious to his fellow man, to acquire greater material wealth. If peace could be made a paying enterprise or investment, as modern warfare is a paying one, there would be very little trouble in preserving it.

If what I have said is true we shall never have absolute peace upon this earth, you may say. And that is exactly the case as long as man, in his mortal state, rules the nations of the world.

I do not advocate, however, that we should abandon all efforts to establish peace within the earth. On the contrary, I think such a policy would prove fatal to mankind.

I do say, however, that absolute peace and harmony cannot be maintained in the earth today. But all hope for the establishment of peace on this earth is not lost, and there is a light as well as a dark side to the picture of World Peace. For with the establishment of God's kingdom on earth, and the return of the Prince of Peace, we shall indeed enjoy a world of peace.

"And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. . . . And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

"The mountains shall bring peace to the people, and the little hills, by righteousness. He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor. . . . He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth. In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."

In that kingdom peace will flow like a river and fill the entire earth and the inhabitants thereof. There will be no strife between nations because they will all be united under one common king, who shall rule with justice forever. The Golden Rule shall be the only law of the land, and men will live harmoniously together. Then, and only then, will we have "on earth peace, good will toward men."

Speech

Character is accurately read from the sounds that issue from your mouth. If you have no command of the language your opinion of everything will be superlative. Either it's wonderful or it's awful. If your mind is poverty-stricken you are quite apt to make it known by the amount of coarse, vulgar language you belch forth. This is also a sign of egotism. Using words that are uncommon to your hearers is another sign of egotism. It is also a waste of effort. And so it goes. Purify and replenish the reservoir of the mind and check the outlet gates. Mend your speech.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"They received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily."

WHEN PEOPLE READ THE BIBLE

FOLLOWING the sad and yet happy experiences in Philippi, where Paul and Silas were imprisoned and then set free, these two busy workers for God stopped in the city of Thessalonica. Now this was a large city and an important harbor city, as well. Many classes of people lived there.

At once Paul hunted up the synagogue, or Jewish church, and there he began to teach the Bible to all who would listen. And the one thing he tried to get those Jews to see was that the Jesus whom they had crucified was the Messiah sent by God for their salvation.

This made the Jews very angry, and they gathered together a number of rough men who were always looking for trouble. They rushed to the home of Jason where they expected to find Paul, but they were disappointed.

Then these rough men took Jason and some of the other Christians who were there and brought them before the rulers and accused them falsely. They said they were teaching people to disobey the laws of the land, which, of course, was not true.

But some of Paul's followers heard of it, and they quietly sent him and Silas after nightfall to the city of Berea. Now in Berea they found a different class of people. And I wonder why they were different.

Look at verse 11. That is our great Berean verse, you know. It tells you what it was that made those people different. Why, it was reading the Bible that made them different!

Now the only Bible they had then was, as you know, the Old Testament. But, though it was written before Jesus was born, yet it tells of His coming. And so the people of Berea who read their Bibles were ready to listen to Paul.

Reading their Bibles had made them "noble." That is, they had high ideals in life. They searched for the truth about life and about themselves. They were ready to listen with courtesy to one who was able to answer their questions.

Do you know, there is no book just like the Bible? It is the most important book in all the world. We think bread is important, and we must have water to drink or we will die.

The Bible is even more important than these. It brings us the message of life everlasting. It tells us how to find that life. It is the message of Jesus, our Savior.

Once upon a time a ship was wrecked upon a lonely island. Some wicked sailors were cast ashore. The first thing they saw was a church, and they began to make fun of it, wishing it had been a place where they could get a drink instead.

There was a missionary among them, and he tried to show them how wrong they were to make such remarks. He showed them how that the Christians who had come there and taught those lonely people about Christ had changed them from cannibals to followers of Jesus.

"Why," said the missionary, "if it had not been for this church and the Christ we worship and the Bible we love, you would have been killed and eaten in a short time after you landed."

To go back to Paul and Silas, we read that they worked while they preached. And you all know, I'm sure, just what Paul's work was. He made ———. Can you fill in the space?

While he was at Thessalonica Paul received presents from his church at Philippi, a hundred miles away. That must have made him happy, knowing they loved him and had not forgotten him.

The two books in our Bible called 1 and 2 Thessalonians are two letters that Paul wrote to his church at Thessalonica. This was composed mostly of Gentiles who had left their old idol worship to worship the one, true God and His Son Jesus. Paul loved these brethren in Christ, as he called them, and they loved him, too.

The Bible has been printed for four hundred years, and in that time about 900,000,000 copies have been distributed. It has been printed in many, many languages, more than 950 in all.

There are many great Bible societies which give away copies of the Bible. No one needs to be without a Bible today. One society alone has given away over three million Bibles.

Don't you love your Bible? Doesn't it seem like a much dearer and more precious book than any of your school books? It has a place in our hearts all its own.

Read a little of it every night before you go to sleep, just as soon as you are able to spell out the words for yourself. Soon you will be able to read more of it. Soon you will be learning parts of it, and you will never forget them.

The Bible changes people. It brings love where hate dwelt. It makes the proud humble. It makes the cruel kind, and the false learn to be true. Reading the Bible still makes people "noble," even as in Paul's day.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

WHO MADE THE LAST VOLUME?

More than seventy different writers of the Church of God contributed 184 original articles and 10 original poems to the columns of The Restitution Herald during the last twelve months. This of course does not include the regular features which are prepared each week by the editorial staff, nor does it include the hundred or more selected articles and poems which appear in the paper during the course of the year.

To mention just a few of the writers outside of our regular staff who have labored so faithfully to make The Herald the interesting and valuable paper it has been, we will tell you that we have printed ten articles from the pen of S. J. Lindsay; eight from C. E. Randall; seven from Mrs. E. C. Railsback; seven from Norman John Macleod; nine from Lyman Booth; ten from D. G. Harvey; eight articles and three poems, in addition to the Children's Page which she has conducted weekly, from Mary A. Gesin; five from James A. Patrick; six from Lottie E. Young; four each from Sydney E. Magaw and Richard LeCrone; ten from R. H. Judd; and five from Cecil A. Smead.

Among other writers who contributed more than a single article were the following: J. H. Anderson, John O. Conrad, Lois Dismukes, A. J. Eychaner, Dr. Henry Fuehrer, N. H. Geiselman, A. E. Hoskins, Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Lucille LeCrone, Evelyn Phillips, M. W. Perrine, E. O. Stewart, R. J. Browning, Gerald L. Cooper, A. L. Corbaley, John Donaly, M. W. Lyon, C. E. Lapp, O. J. Parker, and Lyle Rankin.

The vast amount of labor these contributors bestowed upon their productions entitle them to the most hearty thanks of our readers. Remember, please, this very great service was rendered entirely free. The Restitution Herald buys no manuscripts. All that we print is furnished without cost to the National Bible Institution. Were we obliged to purchase this rich literary material at even the lowest rates paid by commercial publications to their writers the cost would prohibit the issuing of more than a very few papers each year.

The amount of reading matter our subscribers receive in a single volume of 52 issues of The Restitution Herald is equal approximately to eleven 300-page books. To buy an equal amount of good religious reading in book form would require an expenditure of something around $20. The Restitution Herald furnishes this splendidly instructive and inspiring matter to you for only $2! Better renew your subscription at once and have the paper sent to a friend or two as well!

Extra copies of this and last week's (containing a picture of some of the ministers who were at conference in 1936 and the report of the Ministerial Association conference) issues may be secured at 5 cents each from the National Bible Institution.

According to Mrs. Anna Boyanovsky, meetings will be held October 4 at the Guy Selleck residence and October 11 at the home of Arthur Jones. No address is given for the Selleck house. Eagle Grove, Iowa, is the place for the other meetings. The quarterly conference will be held in conjunction with the meetings of the 11th.

REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Hillisburg, 4; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1. Baptisms, 5. Money received: Pleasant View, $24.00; Rensselaer, $20.00; Hillisburg, $20.83; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $7.00; conference board, $12.50. Expense, $16.00.

The homecoming at Hillisburg was a success. We had good attendance and Elder Magaw of the Brush Creek, Ohio, Church gave us two fine sermons that day. Bro. Magaw remained with us until September 26, giving us five fine sermons. The writer spoke four times during the meeting. As a result of the meeting four were baptized and we are glad to introduce to the people of God Miss Opal Huffer, Miss Emma Bengé, Miss Frances Amos, and Mrs. Harold Anderson (my daughter-in-law).

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

S. E. Boyer (indebtedness fund)	$25.00
H. S. Lasher	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mills	15.60
W. H. Lindsay	1.00
Etta L. Elton	10.35
Ontario	5.00
J. W. Sweet	2.00
Skelton, W. Va., Sunday School	5.00
Maybelle Hanson (indebtedness fund)	5.00
Maybelle Hanson	4.00
William M. Huffer	1.00
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	2.30
Mrs. E. M. Hall (indebtedness fund)	20.00

ARKANSAS - OKLAHOMA - KANSAS

I began holding meetings the latter part of June by holding a short series of meetings near Little Rock, Ark. I baptized two from there.

I went to Driggs, Ark., and preached three discourses there, then held three meetings at different places near Driggs.

One place in the community where I have lived for many years I held a nine days' meeting and baptized eleven. I will give the names of those that obeyed the gospel: Lowell Mathews and his wife Billie, Little Rock, Ark.; Asbin Davis (married), Claudie Grigsby (married), Clasia Bengé (married), Laurence Cox, Clenton Cox, Dorothy Cox, Lola Cox, Mitchell Cox, Bessie Cox, Cleasia Cox, Sylvia Cox. The last eight named are all single. These have all accepted and obeyed the gospel in their young days.

The 14th of August I went to Bowling, Okla., and held a week's meeting, with no additions. From there I went near Peru, Kan., and held a week's meeting at a house where one of the brethren lives. Considerable interest was manifested at that place. From there I went near Caney, Kan., and held a week's meeting with a good interest.

The people at all three of those places wanted me to preach a few sermons more for them before I left that part, so I visited each place the second time and preached a few sermons at each place.

I came back to Arkansas near Driggs the 20th of September and will do some preaching in this vicinity and will soon close my preaching tour. Owen Jones.

Lessons on Christian Faith

By Wiley Jones

How to Study the Lessons. In order that the greatest good may be derived from the study of these lessons the student is advised to read each of the passages named at the top of the lesson carefully and in the order given, and then follow the author's presentation of the subject under investigation. Go over the texts provided again and again, endeavoring to discover the exact shade of meaning the inspired writer had in mind when he penned the words, and then thoughtfully compare the texts with the author's interpretation of them. Like the noble Bereans, search "the scriptures daily, whether those things (are) so."—Editor.

Lesson X

THE WICKED TO BE ULTIMATELY BLOTTED OUT

Passages for Study: 1 Cor. 6:9; Gal. 5:19-21; Prov. 2:21, 22; 10:30; Psa. 104:35; Obad. 16; Mal. 4:1-3; Ezek. 18:4, 20; Rom. 6:23.

Here we learn that the wicked shall not inherit the kingdom of God, but will be ultimately blotted out of existence, become ashes under the feet of the righteous, and be "as though they had not been." If a man would obtain immortality or deathlessness, he must carefully "seek for" it by patient continuance in well-doing; and by such as do this it will be obtained through Christ alone, at the morning of the resurrection (Rom. 2:7; 1 Cor. 15:53). The phrase "immortal soul" does not occur in the Bible, for "God only hath immortality" (1 Tim. 6:16). Death is called "capital punishment." Hence, everlasting death would be "everlasting punishment," because never terminated by a resurrection or restoration to life. When the last enemy shall have died, "death shall be no more, nor shall mourning, nor crying, nor pain be any more" (Rev. 21:4, American Bible Union's version). Remember, the Bible does not say that the wages of sin are endless torture, but "the wages of sin is death." Scripture clearly explains what is meant by "the fire that shall not be quenched," for in Jeremiah 17:27 we read, "I will kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched." The fulfillment of this threat is recorded in Jer. 52:13; Lam. 4:11. Of course that fire is not burning now. Compare the ever-burning altar fire that ceased long ago (Lev. 6:13). When we say that a fire in a burning house could not be quenched, we mean simply that it consumed the house. Notice that the fire shall burn "the carcasses" of the wicked (Isa. 66:24) and that a carcass is neither a disembodied soul nor a living body; but, according to Webster, "a dead body of an animal, decaying remains of an animal." The Hebrew word "pegerim" here rendered "carcasses," occurs first in Genesis 15:11. It is rendered "corpses" in 2 Kings 13:34; Heb. 7:16; Col. 2:9; Dan. 7:14; Luke 1:33.

(3) That the redeemed will have immortality and incorruptibility, with bodies fashioned like unto the glorious body of the Redeemer who says, "Because I live, ye shall live also." When thus immortalized, "they cannot die any more," but will "be equal unto the angels," in body as well as character, "partakers of the divine nature," and, as "joint-heirs with Christ," their inheritance will be "a kingdom which cannot be moved," even "the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" that He will establish on earth at His second coming. 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; Phil. 3:21; John 14:19; Luke 20:36; 2 Pet. 1:4; Rom. 8:17; Heb. 12:22; 2 Pet. 1:11.

Lesson XI

THE SACRIFICE OF CHRIST ASSURES ETERNAL LIFE TO THE BELIEVER

Passages for Study: 1 Cor. 15:3; Heb. 9:15 (R. V.); Rev. 2:10; 5:9, 10; 7:14; John 3:16; Matt. 24:14; 28:20; Mark 16:16; 2 Pet. 1:10, 11; 2 Thess. 1:5.

This lesson shows that but for the fact that Christ has died for our sins, we could never obtain immortality or eternal life nor be made worthy to have an eternal inheritance with Christ in the kingdom of God which He will establish on earth at His coming. Beyond all estimate is the value of that inheritance which is obtained by "the precious blood" of God's only begotten Son. The holy, pure, and faultless Lamb, who "knew no sin," died for us, "the just for the unjust" (see lessons 12, 13). Luke 1:35; Acts 3:14; 2 Cor. 5:21; 1 Pet. 3:18. This lesson also teaches that in order to receive the benefits of the atoning death of Christ, you must (with and from the heart—Rom. 10:10; 6:17) believe and obey "the gospel of the kingdom."

Lesson XII

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM THE ONLY TRUE GOSPEL

Passages for Study: Mark 1:14; Matt. 9:35; 24:14; 4:23; Luke 4:43; 8:1; 9:2, 59, 60; Acts 1:3; 8:12; 20:25; 19:8; 28:23, 31; Gal. 1:8, 9.

This lesson proves that the Savior and His apostles in all their ministry preached only "the gospel of the kingdom." Also that a solemn curse is pronounced against man or angel who shall dare to preach "any other gospel." The word "euaggelion," translated "gospel," means "glad tidings," "good or joyful news," and the glorious truths abounding in these lessons constitute the glad tidings of that coming kingdom. It is only this one gospel that the Savior has commanded to "be preached in all the world," and hence it must be to this gospel that He refers when saying, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned."—Matt. 24:14 with Mark 16:15, 16. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"—Heb. 2:3.

Lesson XIII

BAPTISM IS NECESSARY FOR THE REMISSION OF SINS

Passages for Study: Matt. 28:19; Mark 16:16; Acts 10:48; 2:38; 22:16.

This lesson teaches that in order to be saved you must first believe "the gospel of the kingdom"; then be baptized "for the remission of sins"; and continue afterward to "walk in newness of life." Thus, at the resurrection morning, "an entrance shall be ministered to you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," even into that same everlasting kingdom which Daniel says shall be "under the whole heaven," shall fill "the whole earth," and shall never be destroyed, but "shall stand for ever" (Dan. 7:27; 2:35, 44; 2 Pet. 1:11).

Lesson XIV

BAPTISM IS IMMERSION AND ESSENTIAL TO SALVATION

Passages for Study: Mark 1:5, 9, 10; John 3:23; Acts 8:38, 39; Rom. 6:3, 4; Col. 2:12; Heb. 10:22; John 3:5.

This proves that baptism is immersion by saying they were "baptized in the river," went "down into the water," came "up out of the water." Also by the wonderfully plain symbols employed to describe it; as a burial, a planting, a birth, a resurrection. It proves, too, that baptism is essential, for "except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." A believer of the gospel of the kingdom is born out of water ("ex hndatos") when he comes forth from it at baptism and afterwards born of the Spirit when the "mortal body" is quickened into spirit nature (divine nature) at the resurrection (Col. 1:18; Rom. 8:11; 2 Pet. 1:4). Through the merits of the blood of Christ, baptism is made the act in which a believer of the gospel of the kingdom obtains "the remission of sins" that are past, and certainly all must acknowledge that remission of sins is essential to salvation. We take medicine "for" a sickness not because we are well of it before taking the medicine; so when "baptized for the remission of sins," it is not because they have been remitted before baptism, but because we desire, like Paul, to "wash away" our sins in the act of baptism. So Naaman was not freed from his leprosy—a type of sin—until the act of dipping in the water; and this is written "for our admonition" (1 Cor. 10:11). Baptism, important as it is, will not save you unless you believe the gospel of the kingdom and walk in newness of life, nor would all these combined save you but for the atoning blood of Christ, for "without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22). Why take it for granted that the dying thief had never been baptized? His wonderful intelligence in acknowledging the Messiah, whom so many others had deserted, might lead us rather to suppose that he had—perhaps by John; and that on giving evidence of contrition, the Savior, who was then personally present, extended His pardoning mercy. James 5:19, 20 indicates that a somewhat similar restoration is not impossible—"brethren, if any of you do err." See also Gal. 6:1. Besides, it seems that the gospel ordinances were not fully established in place of the Mosaic before the death and resurrection of Christ: "He taketh away the first that he may establish the second."—Heb. 10:9. Baptism is also proved essential by the fact that it is a divine command—"Then commanded he them to be baptized." "Be baptized every one of you." "Be baptized and wash away thy sins." Acts 10:48; 2:38; 22:16. "If you love me, keep my commandments."—John 14:15. "Blessed are they that do his commandments."—Rev. 22:14. The pure and spotless Lamb, who knew no sin, humbly submitted to baptism; it is therefore utterly preposterous to think that persons in these days can afford to neglect it. Beware, I beseech you, of classing yourself among those wicked persons of old who "rejected the counsel of God" in "being not baptized"; for no one can be saved who rejects the counsel of God (Luke 7:30 with Prov. 1:24-33).

Honest reader, how can you resist the plain and positive testimonies of Scripture contained in these lessons? Read them again and again, till familiar with them. Let no "fowls," by their arts of quibbling and sophistry, "catch away" from you this precious "word of the kingdom" (Matt. 13:4, 10, 23; Jer. 23:30). You must admit that we cannot be saved if we refuse to believe that gospel which the Lord Jesus and His apostles preached eighteen hundred years ago. And, as proved in lesson 12, they preached the gospel of the kingdom. Therefore, we cannot be saved if we refuse to believe the gospel of the kingdom. There is no flaw in this logic. And since the Savior and His apostles constantly preached the gospel of the kingdom, two penalties would be incurred by rejecting it—first, the penalty of refusing to believe the only begotten and dearly beloved Son of God; and "he that believeth not the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). Second, the penalty of rejecting the words of the apostles; and "it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment" than for "one who rejects their words" (Matt. 10:14, 15; Acts 13:51). O then, do not, by unbelief, incur any of these fearful penalties; for the Lord is merciful and gracious, having no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather "that the wicked turn from his way, and live" (Ezek. 33:11). Belief and faith are the same; and what the Lord requires is, of course, not a "faith without works," which "is dead," but He requires a living faith—a faith which "works by love, purifies the heart, and overcomes the world" (Jas. 2:20; Gal. 5:6; Acts 15:9; Heb. 5:9; 1 John 5:4). Now, truly believing in the Son is, with such a faith, believing what He preached, namely, the gospel of the kingdom. This gospel—as plainly proved in these lessons—teaches that in the morning of the resurrection the Lord Jesus will personally return to the earth and establish here His eternal kingdom, in which He will give endless life and happiness to all that, in the faith and obedience, are redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, who died for our sins, was buried, and rose again the third day according to the Scriptures. If, still unbaptized, you believe this gospel and desire to be saved in that soon coming and blissful kingdom, "why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16).

The Emphatic Diaglott, by Benjamin H. Wilson: the New Testament retranslated; interlinear Greek-English translation; fabricoid binding; Bible paper, gold edges; Bible dictionary and index; $2.50. National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE TEACHER'S TRIUMVIRATE

There may be a better combination of three books for the Bible teacher than Peloubet's Bible Dictionary, the International Bible Commentary, and Cruden's Complete Concordance; but we feel sure it does not come for this price: $2.00 per volume, or $5.40 for all three, with a thumb index added to each book for only 50 cents an index.

Take Cruden's, for instance: more than 220,000 references in this, the most complete and accurate edition of the oldest concordance in the world. What is more, it considers both the Revised and the Authorized Versions of the Bible, and is printed in exceptionally good type.

And then there is Peloubet's Dictionary, 800 pages of it, with 508 illustrations and 14 maps in full color. Since it is necessarily condensed, it has no room for those wild theological speculations, but confines itself to Bible facts.

Finally, the International Bible Commentary, with its 25,000 textual references and its condensed but remarkably thorough word-for-word analysis of the two Testaments. Contrasting opinions of the best scholars are frequently used and discussed without prejudice. History and customs, peoples and geography, relation of passage with passage, all have their place. Not, of course, so complete as some commentaries; but astonishingly good for all that. And the language is simple.

But it wouldn't do at all to equip yourself with all the books of information and nothing else. Books of information are dry things, and have nothing of the joy of life. Modern Bible students enjoy modern ways of learning about the Book they love, ways that stimulate their thinking, ways that give them fun and frolic and a liberal education all at the same time. And when extra-curricular, outside-of-class study can be made interesting, it's worth telling the world about it. Which we're doing. For the books pictured on the lower right make a quartet of class and outside-of-class aids that really are valuable. They come at only $1.00 apiece, or $3.65 for the four, and they're worth every cent of it. We suggest you write your name and address on the margin of this sheet, check the books you want, and mail the whole page to us with your remittance attached.

They're planned to give you information and entertain you, too. Bible Sayings contains 1,500 sentences that purport to hold the soul of the Bible, and the back of the book conceals a multitude of answers and Bible references. Go Till You Guess has 400 sections dealing with 400 separate Bible facts and events; answers and Bible references are given if you don't know them yourself. Know Your Bible? lists 1,500 questions and answers on Bible topics, and has 21 topical quizzes to make your class happy with written or oral tests. And Our Bible—What's in It? goes through the 66 books of the Bible in regular order with a series of questions designed to teach all the major points in Holy Writ. Each book is bound in durable cloth to last and last and last, and has 128 pages. Try guessing for variety; you'll find it well worth while.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 13, 1936

NUMBER 2

Who Are Israelites?

By C. E. Randall

WE HAVE been experiencing a vigorous attempt by many throughout the English-speaking world to identify the lost ten tribes of Israel. While this effort has been stimulated in the last few months by a corresponding revival of pyramidal teaching, which has almost bordered on the idolatrous, yet the endeavor to locate these tribes is not a new venture.

The father of the movement and teaching according to the best authorities such as the Jewish Encyclopedia, Encyclopedia Britannica, Hasting's Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics, and many others, was Richard Brothers (1757-1824) of England. In his Revealed Knowledge he styled himself as a "nephew of the Almighty." In 1794 he claimed he would be revealed as "Prince of the Hebrews" on November 19, 1795. Of course his pseudo-prediction failed of realization, as all such do when contrary to Scripture. So often men feel they are "come to the kingdom for such a time as this," and usually such psychic urgings lead them to unwarranted extremes. Brothers' outstanding contribution to the movement was entitled, Correct Account of Invasion of the Saxons, in which he tried to show the English people to be descendants of the ten tribes of Israel. According to the Dictionary of National Biography he published fifteen volumes in all.

It was his successor in thought, J. Wilson (1845), in his book, Our Israelitish Origin, who placed the subject upon its present basis. Subsequent writers such as W. Carpenter, who wrote on Israelites Found, and F. R. A. Glover, writing on England the Remnant of Judah, carried the agitation along until C. Piazza Smyth, royal astronomer, came forward with his extravagant work on Our Inheritance in the Great Pyramid, which gave impetus to Anglo-Israelism through his deductions from the pyramid.

It was upon Smyth's measurements of the pyramid that

The question of the identity of the so-called "Ten Lost Tribes of Israel" has drawn forth much vigorous controversy, during the past half century especially. Located in Canada, a British Dominion, the author of this article draws much of his historical evidence from British sources, but he also calls eminent Jewish authorities to the witness stand. Whether you agree fully with his conclusions or not, Pastor Randall has provided us with much valuable information on this widely discussed subject.

Pastor Russell made his predictions. As a matter of fact, they have been the received data upon which nearly all horoscoping of the end times has been based. Not only did Russell accept Smyth's pyramidal measurements in full and teachings in part, but Smyth in a letter to his friend, William M. Wright, December 21, 1890, endorsed Russell's manuscript on The Testimony of God's Stone Witness and Prophet, the Great Pyramid in Egypt, which had been submitted to him for examination before it was published in book form by Pastor Russell. Russell's endorsement of Smyth's views and measurements on the pyramid and Smyth's acceptance of Russell's manuscript place them in the same position on the time of Christ's coming set by Russell, which we now know hit the rocks in a most disastrous manner. The views now held by the followers of Russell relative to the secret reigning of Christ is a cover-up for the mistake made in time-setting according to the "Stone Witness" testimony.

We do not wish to discuss the pyramid in this article, but inasmuch as it is so closely associated with the teaching of Anglo-Israelism it seemed advisable to mention it in a small way and point out its past failures, for its present shortcomings are well known.

Rev. W. H. Poole, Detroit, and one G. W. Greenwood were the founding stars of the movement in America. Their line of reasoning follows those mentioned above, principally J. Wilson of England.

While the Encyclopedia Britannica is inherently British, yet it sums up its article on "Anglo-Israelism" as being "historically and etymologically unsound," and if this were the only argument against the teaching we would not raise a voice in objection, but it is decidedly fallacious scripturally.

(Please turn to Page Nine)

Abreast of the Times

Modernist View of the Kingdom

"The stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth."—Daniel 2:35.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—"In view of the confusion and hostility prevailing among the nations of the world today, and the apparent breakdown of the hopes and activities promising peace, what is the attitude of the Bible toward the realization of the purposes of Jesus for a better social order and what indications are there that progress is being made toward an era of justice and good will?"

This question appears in the current issue of The Christian Century and is answered by the editor of its "Question Box" as follows:

"The expectation of the ultimate prevalence of the will of God in the world and the share of His people in that realization is a commonplace both of the Old Testament and the New. In the former case it was associated with the earthly supremacy of the Hebrew people, a dream that was frustrated by the events of history. Nevertheless it never wholly disappeared, and later took the form of apocalyptic expectations, which were partly shared and partly absorbed in the hopes of the early church. The entire program of the early Christian community was inspired by the belief that the powers of evil were to be overcome by the forces of the kingdom of God. . . . This hope was at first connected with the expectation of the personal and immediate return of Christ to the earth. Later, as this hope proved abortive, and a misinterpretation of the purposes of the Master, it took on the more adequate and extended meaning of the growing gospel enterprises throughout the world, and the consummation of the missionary passion of the church. . . . The early church, with its apocalyptic bias, held the view that the kingdom of which its leader had spoken would be established in visible form in the world, with its center at Jerusalem. This is the view of the writer of Revelation. This idea gave place later to the hope for a social order prevalent throughout the world in which the will of God should be realized and the program of Jesus should come to fruition. . . . And this is the Christian hope and anticipation today. . . . So rapidly and effectively does the kingdom come in the world, Christians are not permitted to doubt this ultimate realization of their hopes."

Not a very adequate answer to the question in our estimation! The early Christians who lived in the days of Jesus and of Paul did not understand what the Master meant when He spoke of the kingdom as well as do these Modernists who live nearly two thousand years later! If the view expressed by The Christian Century is right, and the only hope of the world is in the establishment of a new social order through the preaching of the gospel, after two millenniums of failure, how much longer will it be before the world enjoys lasting peace and universal prosperity?

Harnessing the Sun for Power

"The sun is risen with a burning heat."—James 1:11.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 8.—Scientists have been endeavoring for many years to discover some practicable method by which the heat of the sun may be transformed into usable power. Dr. C. G. Abbot, head of the Smithsonian Institution, has experimented along this line for more than twenty years. His latest device consists of a large curved mirror made of stainless steel which reflects 80 per cent of the sun's rays and focuses them upon a series of glass tubes containing a black heat-absorbing fluid. The concentrated rays of the sun raise the temperature of the fluid several hundred degrees. This hot liquid may then be used to convert water into steam and eventually employed in the operation of a steam engine.

While we pride ourselves in these days upon the progress our inventive minds have made in the discovery and utilization of natural sources of energy, their full development will not be accomplished until the One who conceived and created them in the beginning reestablishes personal contact with His earthly children through the everlasting kingdom of His returning Son.

Palestine and Prophecy

"They do make a covenant with the Assyrians, and oil is carried into Egypt."—Hosea 12:1.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 1.—In the current issue of The Jewish Hope, a monthly magazine, Dr. A. U. Michelson, founder of the First Hebrew Christian Synagogue, calls attention to the prophecy quoted above and suggests that it might be translated literally, "They do make a covenant with the Assyrians, and oil is caused to flow into Egypt."

"The oil is forced by pumps through pipes, and thus is exactly 'caused to flow.' Whilst Kiruk, the source of the oil, is in the ancient country of Assyria, now called Iraq, and by arrangement or covenant with the King of Iraq, the oil is caused to flow across the Holy Land, and delivered to Egypt and many other lands."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

It Is to Laugh

By Arlen Marsh

IT IS my firm conviction that without a sense of humor no man could long remain a Christian. What with this and that, he sooner or later would succumb to the desire to tear all the hair out of his wife's head, or to go on a bender that would be the talk of the town for weeks on end. Even the staid old Christian Herald has fallen before this notion, and produces an excerpt from a letter written by one Ellen M. Lewis of Brooklyn:

"A Scotch deacon remarked that 'some one walked down the street on a Sabbath as happy as if it were a weekday; but oor lads air good Christians and nearly killed him.'"

At the request of a number who seem to want to know and of a number who seem to want others to know, a brief discussion of various nuggets which reach the editorial desk of THE RESTITUTION HERALD is herewith being presented. When it is understood that my job consists in reading at least three times everything that goes in THE HERALD, it becomes clear why the finger was particularly pointed at me.

No so very long ago, there arrived at the office this bit of information from one of our better known pastors: "The newly organized advanced young people's class is making rapid progress. It includes those beyond high school to approximately thirty years of age. They are one month old now."

"Enough," thought the manuscript reader, beginning to bite off his fingernails to the elbow, "said." And the piece went into the paper as it read.

What really causes most of the editorial grief, however, is the apparent deliberate attempt to misquote Bible references. From the desk, it appears that not one in a thousand can copy a ten-word text exactly or, at least, leave room on his manuscript to have it written in exactly. When in doubt, runs the motto of most writers, use a dash. So commas and semicolons and question marks and periods all become dashes or dots to punctuate an assortment of words that never appeared in any version of the Bible. Which means, of course, that every reference quoted must be carefully checked.

Then there was the woman who blithely referred to the Republic of Iraq, while writing a piece about prophecy. Now Iraq never has been a republic, nor is there any likelihood that Iraq ever will be a republic. Unless a considerable knowledge of world affairs had been at the reader's fingertips, the author would have been made publicly responsible for another of those small, but strangely important, errors that creep now and then into the nation's press.

Glancing over the copy for the news pages of a week or two ago, the reader (meaning the one who now is writing) felt dissatisfied with the ambiguous wording of the opening sentence of an obituary. Ultimately, he sent this gem to the printer: "When six months old, his parents moved with him to Idaho." Fortunately for the reader's peace of mind, this bit of brilliant editing was caught and corrected on the linotype by the associate editor.

The letter practically sizzled when it was opened. Somebody, it said, had spoiled the author's latest article. Somebody had stricken from the record a single word: "not." And so, said the letter, the article had been ruined. Turning to the original manuscript disclosed that double negative: "not never." The "not" had been taken out. The article had not been ruined.

"I am enclosing a clipping of an article from a recent magazine." It happened to be from Liberty. "Please reprint it in THE HERALD." Liberty is protected by that eminently just law known as the Copyright Act. Naturally, the article could not be reprinted. A review of it—yes; but not the article itself. Incidentally, no extended quotations from copyrighted versions of the Bible (such as An American Translation, Moffatt, Worrell, Montgomery, Lamsa, Torrey) can be reproduced in any form without the written permission of the copyright owners.

A short time after the request for a Liberty reprint was received, came this piece of work: "The pity of it was that he said it through a mouth full of false teeth, bald head, and a decrepit body." Believe it or not, Mr. Ripley, that actually was written and meant to be serious. Like most such errors, this one occurred largely because of thoughtlessness and lack of rereading. Dearth of education is not nearly the enemy of good writing that carelessness is.

What is more to be pitied than scorned, however, is the incomprehensible effort to write poetry with neither rime nor rhythm—nor, apparently, sense. Poetry, according to the best authorities, is supposed to have feet, or, in other words, a certain well-defined series of accents in each line. Yet the changing of a word or the rejection of a verse brings instant maledictions upon the editor, who forthwith conveys his respects to the manuscript reader. I never did like poetry.

Somewhat in line with the delightful remark about false teeth, bald head, and a decrepit body was the puzzling statement in regard to one of the dreams interpreted by Joseph: "Another dream was that seven good ears of corn grew on one stalk of that seven thin ears came in and devoured the seven year of plenty and the seven lean and their were the seven years of famine." (Yes, that's quoted exactly.)

(OVER)

And, almost simultaneously with that description of Joseph's problem, this arrived, embodied in a church report: "Our ladies' quartet will sing, with Sr. Peters at the piano. . . . These singers are Sr. Thomas, Sr. Unwell, Sr. George, and Sr. Peters. When the quartet sings, Sr. Black plays." And the manuscript reader clutched at his hair distractedly, pondering the mystery.

It's pretty annoying, too, to receive one of those long (comparatively speaking, of course) articles of two or three thousand words, written with a dull pencil on rough paper or pounded out, single space, on a typewriter in a way that makes one wish that Remington had never been born. Most such scripts have to be retyped, which means editing once, typing once, editing the typed script, and then reading the proofs of the thing twice after it's been put in type. The best of articles can pall when you've done that all within three days.

Once a manuscript has been edited with a care that is largely effaced by the necessity for speed, it goes to the linotype with the reader's heartfelt prayer. There, as previously noted, the mistakes made by the reader are more than occasionally caught. However, humanity and machinery being what they are, new errors crop up with the greatest of ease; and, the type having been set, the finished product is read twice before it goes to the press, where, if all goes well, a line will not drop out of some page, leaving a space as blank as the reader's mind. Ultimately, the editorial reader has pointed out to him the fact that "freely" has gone into print as "feely" and that the name of Aloysius Jones has come into the public eye as "Adolphus."

Not that it is expected that all typewriting be letter-perfect, or that all handwriting be like that of an engraver. But it is wistfully urged that those who write for publication in these columns make some effort to quote exactly, spell and hyphenate with regard to the usual dictionary practice, and see that the happenings and theories to which they allude are actually happenings or are really theories.

Riches Now, or Hereafter

By Lottie E. Young

AS WE read the life of Jesus when on earth it would seem that the people with whom He came in contact were a very ordinary crowd, the type who took all they could get, and gave as little as they had to, ready to accept the blessing of good health which He so freely bestowed upon them, and quite willing to raise an insurrection to make Him King after the miracle of feeding the five thousand with the small amount of food which had been given to Him. Few saw the truth of His spiritual teaching, doubtless thinking that with such a ruler everyone could "sit under his own vine and fig tree" and the necessities of life would be supplied without manual work.

The story of the young ruler, as told in Mark 10, seems to indicate a different type of man. He realized, even though he had wealth and position, that he lacked something; he was dissatisfied with himself and what he had done, and the future was uncertain. In the first place he was young and rich; he was also in earnest, as he came running to the Master asking for advice, humble as he knelt at His feet, and reverent when he termed Jesus "good." All fine characteristics, and the record is that "Jesus beholding him loved him."

Then came the question over which he may have pondered for some time, possibly thinking he would be ready to do anything he was told in order that he might gain that eternal life about which he asked. He had been brought up in a faith which put work above all else, and, unlike the large majority of the people of today, he did not believe he had an immortal soul and that he would go to heaven at death, but was anxious as to his future. Jesus replied at first that he should keep the commandments, which he assured the Teacher he had always done; but the real answer came when Jesus told the young man who had been so highly favored in a worldly sense to sell what he had, give it to the poor, take up his cross, and follow Him, the One who knew the hearts of men and could touch the vital spot, seeing the "one thing lacking." Mark tells us that when he heard these words he was sad and went away grieved, for he had great possessions. The word "choose" is often found in the Bible, and every one of us has a day of decision such as this young ruler had reached.

We would like to think that this singularly blessed young man took the advice of Jesus and became one of His followers, but we know nothing about his future. As wealth among the Jews was considered as a signal favor from God, it is probable that he was one who allowed "the deceitfulness of riches" to choke the good seed, and so the life, which might have rivaled even the Apostle Paul's as a worker for Christianity, passed out without further mention in the Bible.

Now these incidents in the Bible were not placed there just for the generation that knew Jesus, but for all who have ever read them. Even though nearly two thousand years have passed since this occurred there are many today in the same position as the young ruler. Reverence and humility, owing to many causes, are not striking virtues in this age, but there are some who would like to do something for the Lord who did everything for them, even to the giving up of life. The word "sacrifice" is a hard one,

(Please turn to Page Nine)

“We Believe and Teach—”

II

IN the preceding article treating of the historical teaching of the Church of God as expressed in our early publications attention was directed to the acknowledgment of Dr. John Thomas in the Herald of the Kingdom of January, 1851, that even after he came to believe in the truths concerning the coming and kingdom of Christ as they are now affirmed by the Christadelphians which he afterwards founded, and by the Church of God leaders with whom he was then associated, “he would not have said that the knowledge and belief of them was indispensable to a participation in the everlasting blessings of the age to come.”

This seems to have been the attitude of many pioneer investigators. The facts they discovered which had been lost in the dust of age-long apostasy first appeared to them as “forgotten” or “neglected” teachings of the Bible which it was their duty to give again to the Christian world. Seldom did they immediately realize the vast importance and essential character of them. When, for example, their attention was drawn to the fact that the eternal home of the saints was to be upon the earth and not in heaven, they felt bound to teach that newly discovered truth, but at the same time candidly expressed the thought that a belief that one went to heaven when he died would not in any way affect his salvation.

So it was with every other doctrinal idea they came to hold in opposition to accepted orthodox teaching. These plain biblical tenets of faith were true, they were interesting and valuable, but not vital to one’s final redemption. One could believe them or not and still be saved.

Later on, as was the case with Dr. Thomas, those early students of the primitive faith saw in these “neglected truths” the one true “gospel in ruins”! They became convinced that an intelligent understanding of the gospel of the kingdom and the life-giving power of Jesus Christ, accompanied of course by repentance, was a necessary prerequisite of the forgiveness of sin, and that baptism in any form was without value unless these elements of truth were first heartily believed.

The value which came to be placed on these basic truths cannot be more forcibly expressed than in the language of Dr. Thomas in the Herald of the Kingdom at the time of his establishment of the “Edinburgh (Scotland) Church of Baptized Believers” (1853), in which he said:

“The divine order (of salvation) is: First, understand the word of the kingdom and name. Then, believe it. Next, obey it in baptism. Who can improve on this arrangement—nay, who has any right to alter it? Or who, but one whose heart is not subdued by the truth, dare dispute against it? People of this class would have it thus: First, believe on Jesus. Next, be immersed. Afterwards, understand, perhaps, the word of the kingdom. Seek, say they in effect, righteousness, or remission of sins, first; and then the kingdom of God. But Jesus Himself reverses this dictum and exhorts us to ‘seek first the kingdom of God,’ because no man can be the subject of ‘his righteousness,’ or justification, who has not found the kingdom; the righteousness being for those who believe what He has promised concerning it.”

The Restitution, published first in Chicago and later in Plymouth, Indiana, was recognized for many years as the leading exponent of the truths taught by the Church of God generally. One of its familiar and distinguishing features was a brief statement of purpose which always appeared in the upper right-hand corner of the paper. That statement read as follows:

“The Restitution advocates the final ‘restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.’ As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint heirs with Him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief in the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins as prerequisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential to salvation.”

This statement, which was never designed as a binding “creed” limiting the faith of anyone, provides one of the most direct and satisfactory outlines of the teaching of the Church of God which has ever been produced in so brief a form. It was sufficiently broad to permit the free discussion and investigation of any question which was not obviously opposed to the fundamental doctrines for which the church then stood and for which it stands today, and at the same time presented a logical arrangement of the principal tenets of faith believed by its supporters.

Other similar declarations have been published by various journals issued on behalf of the Church of God, but as these in the main expressed the same convictions as did The Restitution it will not be necessary to give them here. It is sufficient for us to observe that our more outstanding publications have been in remarkable harmony as to the subjects which should be most strongly emphasized in their pages and also in their interpretation of those subjects.

While such statements as the above have frequently been issued, the church itself has never officially adopted a common expression of its faith outside of the Bible. At our first General Conference the following resolution was passed: “Being desirous of honoring God, we accept as our sole rule of faith and practice His Word in its fullness and simplicity according to His mind therein revealed.” (Nov. 23, 1888.)

Women of the Bible

DIFFERENCES of opinion exist in the religious world as to the qualifications of women, and their mission in connection with the church, some being inclined to the view that silence is enjoined on them in the assembly, and obedience commanded and expected in all circumstances, 1 Corinthians 14:34 and 1 Timothy 2:12, 13 being advanced as proof that this is so, heedless of other directions which qualify these particular passages.

Keeping these prohibitory passages before our mind, we will refer to some directions given by the Apostle to the church at Corinth, relating to the order of their church service: "Every man praying or prophesying, having his head covered, dishonoreth his head. But every woman praying or prophesying with her head unveiled dishonoreth her head; for it is one and the same thing as if she were shaven. For if a woman is not veiled, let her also be shorn: but if it is a shame to a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be veiled" (1 Cor. 11:4-6).

There is no doubt that these directions were given in reference to the woman's appearance in public, in connection with the service of the church: for a woman to appear there unveiled was dishonoring to her husband, besides exposing herself to insult, by thus appearing as a public prostitute. The Apostle appeals to their sense of decency in verse 13—"Judge ye in yourselves: is it seemly that a woman pray unto God unveiled?" concluding with verse 16: "But if any man seemeth to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God."

Dr. A. Clarke, commenting on this passage, says: "According to the prediction of Joel, the Spirit of God was to be poured out on the women as well as the men, that they might prophesy, that is, teach. And that they did prophesy or teach is evident from what the Apostle says in 1 Corinthians 11, where he lays down rules to regulate both men and women, while ministering in the church."

It seems necessary that we should understand the condition of the church at Corinth to which this letter was addressed. A noted writer on Bible history says: "Division seemed to be rife among them and all kinds of unseemly disorderly practices, their women chattering and interrupting the service with untimely questions. After Apollos had received instructions from Priscilla and Aquila, he having heard of Paul's labors at Corinth, resolved to go there to labor, and was so successful that it was like to produce a schism in the church, some saying, 'I am of Paul,' others, 'I am of Apollos.' When Paul was again at Ephesus Apollos went to see him, and was there when his first Epistle was written: there can be no doubt that the Apostle received from Apollos the information concerning the divisions in the church, which he so forcibly reproveth. The disorderly condition of the church was such that Apollos did not wish to return, but was urged by Paul to do so."

This state of things accounts for the minute directions given by Paul all through this letter. In chapter 14:34 the prohibitory passage before referred to appears: "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law. And if they would learn anything, let them ask their own husbands at home: for it is shameful for a woman to speak in the church."

An exponent of this passage says: "The silence imposed here must be explained by the verb 'to speak' (lalein), used afterwards. It is used nearly three hundred times in the New Testament, and scarcely any verb is used with so great a variety of adjuncts."

The passage under consideration is one of those to which this writer refers as being "so modified by the context."

Greenfield gives the following meaning of lalein: "To prattle—be loquacious as a child; to speak in answer; harangue, plead, direct, command."

In Liddell and Scott's Lexicon we have the following: "To chatter, babble, of birds—to twitter, to chirp; strictly—to make an inarticulate sound, opposed to articulate speech, but also generally to talk."

"It is clear, then, that lalein may mean something different from mere speaking; and that, to use this word in a prohibition, does not imply that absolute silence or abstinence from speaking is enjoined; but, on the contrary, that the prohibition applies to an improper kind of speaking, which is to be understood not from the word itself, but from the context."

Further—"The context shows that it was not silence which was imposed on women in the church, but only a refraining from such speaking as was inconsistent with the words: 'They are commanded to be under obedience,' or, more literally, 'to be obedient,' that is, they were to refrain from such questioning and dogmatic assertions as would bring them into collision with men, and occasion an unamiable volubility of speech. This kind of speaking was the only supposable antagonist to, and violation of obedience."

Parkhurst, in his Lexicon, tells us that "the Greek word lalein, in our translation rendered 'speak,' is not the word used in Greek to signify to speak with premeditation and prudence; but is the word used to signify, to speak imprudently, and without consideration; and is that applied to one who lets his tongue run, but does not speak to the purpose."

This explanation enables us to take a common sense view of the matter, i. e., that the directions given concerning praying and prophesying referred to the devotional and religious exercises of the church. The restrictions are to inconvenient asking of questions or ignorant talking—"if they would learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home." No woman, having either taught or prophesied, would have to ask her husband at home before she knew what she had done, or understood what she had said. Many women are mentioned by Paul in his various letters, and testimony borne to their services in the work of the ministry of the church. In Philippians 4:3—"I beseech thee also, true yokefellow, help these women, for they labored with me in the gospel." "Salute Prisca and Aquila my fellow workers in Christ Jesus, who for my life laid down their own necks" (Rom. 16:3, 4). "Salute Tryphæna and Tryphosa, who labor in the Lord. Salute Persis the beloved, who labored much in the Lord" (Rom. 16:12).

Dr. Clarke, on this verse, says: "Many have spent much useless labor in endeavoring to prove that these women did not preach. That there were prophetesses as well as prophets in the church, we learn, and that a woman might pray or prophesy, provided she had her head covered, we know. And according to 1 Corinthians 14:3, whoever prophesied, spoke unto others to edification, exhortation, and comfort. If women thus prophesied then women preached."

Presbuteros, a writer in the Protestant Electoral Union, in his reply to a priest of Rome, says: "Habituated for ages, as men had been to the diabolical teachings and delusions practiced upon them by the papal priesthood, it was difficult for them when they did get possession of the Scriptures, to discern therein the plain fact, that among the primitive Christians preaching was not confined to men, but women also, gifted with powers by the Holy Spirit, preached the gospel; and hence the slowness with which, even at the present time, this truth has been admitted by those giving heed to the Word of God, and especially those setting themselves up as a 'priesthood' or 'clergy.' As shown previously, God had according to His promise, on the day of Pentecost, poured out His Spirit upon believers—men and women, old and young—that they should prophesy, and they did so. The prophesying spoken of was not the foretelling of events, but the preaching to the world at large, the glad tidings of salvation by Jesus Christ. For this purpose, it pleased God to make use of women as well as men. I would draw attention to the fact that Phoebe, a Christian woman, whom we find in our version of the Scriptures (Rom. 16:1), spoken of as only a common servant attached to a congregation, was nothing less than one of those gifted by the Holy Spirit for publishing the glad tidings, or preaching the gospel. The manner in which the Apostle speaks of her shows that she was what he in Greek styled her, a deacon (diaconon) or preacher of the Word. Other translators speak of her (because she was a woman) only as a servant of the church which is at Cenchrea, the men 'deacons' they style ministers, but a woman on the same level as themselves would be an anomaly, and therefore she was to be only the servant of men (ministers) who in the popish sense constituted the church."

We now turn to 1 Timothy 2:11-13: "Let a woman learn in quietness with all subjection. But I permit not a
(Please turn to Page Eight)

What Must We Do?

By J. B. LeCrone

WHEN people who once confessed their belief in Jesus as the Son of God, and indicated a desire to serve and obey Him, grow cold and indifferent—what must we do?

When inquiries bring the response that people have been so busy that they could not spare the time for Christian activities, but they hope from now on to be able to do more—and then they continue in the same old rut—what must we do?

When dissatisfied ones complain that the church work is not being conducted right, and then refuse to accept any responsibility themselves—what must we do?

When the suggestion is made that more special music would add greatly to the services, and then everyone asked to assist in providing that music offers us excuses instead of a response—what must we do?

When a member of the congregation allows fishing, hunting, visiting, threshing, fatigue, nervousness, mourning, celebration, rain, snow, heat, or cold to keep him from the services, and then points sadly to small attendance at services—what must we do?

The only possible purpose or excuse for a church to hire a pastor and pay him a salary is to have some one who will interest himself in, and hold himself responsible for, the spiritual welfare of the congregation, both individually and collectively. His job is to make the services both attractive and instructive. He must not only feed the sheep in the fold, he must at the same time be on the trail of the lost sheep. He is not a dictator or ruler placed over the congregation against their will, but one whom they have themselves chosen as being worthy to guide them and their loved ones into a closer walk with God.

We cannot imagine the thought processes of a man who would hire a carpenter to build a house and then hinder his work, either by consciously putting obstacles in his way, or by refusing to cooperate with him by providing him the necessary materials with which to work.

You have a pastor whose only reason for being your pastor is to serve you. Get your money's worth by cooperating with him and providing him with the necessary tools and materials.

WOMEN OF THE BIBLE

(Continued from preceding page)

woman to teach, nor to have dominion over a man, but to be in quietness. For Adam was first formed, then Eve; and Adam was not beguiled, but the woman being beguiled hath fallen into transgression."

The Rev. J. H. Robinson, commenting on this passage, says: "It is primarily an injunction respecting her personal behavior at home. It stands in connection with precepts respecting her apparel, and her domestic position; especially her relation to her husband. No one will suppose that the Apostle forbids a woman to teach absolutely and universally. Even objectors would allow her to teach her servants, and children, and perhaps her husband, too. If he were ignorant of the Savior might she not teach him the way to Christ? If she were acquainted with languages, arts, or sciences, which he did not know might she not teach him these things? The teaching here referred to, therefore, which is forbidden by the Apostle, is not every kind of teaching any more than in the previous instance, his prohibition of speaking applies to every kind of speaking in the church; but it is such teaching as is domineering, and as involves the usurpation of authority over the man. This is the only teaching forbidden by the Apostle in the passage under consideration. . . . If this passage be not a prohibition of every kind of teaching, we can only ascertain what kind of teaching is forbidden by the modifying expression with which (didaskain) stands associated; and for anything these modifying expressions have done to the contrary her teaching may be public, reiterated, urgent, and may comprehend a variety of subjects, provided it be not dictatorial, domineering, nor vociferous: for then, and then only, would it be incompatible with her obedience."

Another writer remarks: "It will be found by an examination of this text with its connection: that the teaching here alluded to stands in necessary connection with usurping authority, as though the Apostle had said, the gospel does not alter the relation of women in view of priority, for Adam was first formed, then Eve."

This advice may have become a necessity at that time, seeing (as we do now) the extremes to which impulse may drive women when they lose sight of the restrictions set upon them by an all-wise Creator. The equality of the sexes when introduced into Christ by baptism, is taught by Paul in his Epistle to the Galatians: "As many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ. There can be neither Jew nor Greek; there can be neither bond nor free, there can be no male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (chap. 3:27).

Thus Paul asserted that men and women, when introduced into Christ through belief and baptism, are on an equal footing, so far as their acceptance with God is concerned, each being held accountable for his manner of life and work—women occupying an important place in our Savior's mission, they having the honor of carrying the joyful news to His disciples, of His resurrection from the dead.

Their qualification for work that required fortitude and courage has been demonstrated in both secular and religious history. From the latter we select the most notable examples: First, in order of time, Sarah, the wife of Abraham, is presented to us as an example of modesty and obedience, and who, in return, received the honor due from one who was "chosen and faithful" (1 Peter 3:5-7).

The first woman named a prophetess was Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron, who took an active part in the administration of that time, when the people of Israel were being led out.

Again, in the time of the Judges, Deborah, the wife of Lappidoth, a prophetess in Israel (Judges 4:4), to whom the children of Israel came up for judgment, was obliged to lead out the armies of Israel to victory.

Then there was Hannah, the mother of Samuel, whose prayers and thanksgiving in the temple are recorded in 1 Samuel 1 and 2.

In the reign of Josiah (2 Kings 22:14), when direction was wanted, the priest, the scribe, and the King's servant were sent by the King to one "Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum," to receive the word of the Lord, through this woman, which encouraged and stimulated them toward the cleansing of the land.

These records of noted women who were prominent in the service of God we will close by referring to "Anna the prophetess," who, in the temple when the Child Jesus was brought in, "gave thanks unto God, and spake of him to all them that were looking for the redemption of Jerusalem" (Luke 2:38).

We think the evidences are overwhelming, that both Jew and Gentile women were recognized by God as suitable instruments through which to communicate His will on many occasions.

Before closing we might refer to the case of a Gentile queen—"Vashti"—(commented on by a writer in the Fraternal Visitor of May, 1912) who, having refused to appear unveiled before a company of revelers, forfeited her position (Esther 1:10-12), for whom we have nothing but commendation. If Queen Vashti had appeared, as requested, before King Ahasuerus and his boon companions, who "were merry with wine," she would have "violated the decorum of her sex, and made herself the sport of debauchees" (Kitto). The lesson that the Fraternal Visitor writer meant to convey was the necessity for obedience, on every wife's part, to her husband's commands; but we object, on the ground that circumstances must always have a more or less modifying influence. That the reader may be enabled to judge of Vashti's action we cite the following from Kitto:

"The third Ahasuerus is the Persian king of the book of Esther. The chief facts recorded of him there, and the dates of their occurrences, which are important in the subsequent inquiry are these: In the third year of his reign he made a sumptuous banquet for all his nobility, and prolonged the feast for 180 days. Being on one occasion merry with wine, he ordered his Queen Vashti to be brought out to show the people her beauty. On her refusal to violate the decorum of her sex, he not only indignantly divorced her, but published an edict concerning her disobedience, in order to insure to every husband in his dominions the rule in his own house."

In his effort to identify this "Ahasuerus," Kitto writes: "The joint testimony borne to his clemency and magnanimity by the acts recorded of him in Ezra and Nehemiah, and by the accordant voice of profane writers, prevents us from recognizing Artaxerxes in the debauched, imbecile, and cruel tyrant of the book of Esther.

"On the ground of moral resemblance to that tyrant, however, every trait leads us to Xerxes. The king who scourged and fettered the sea; who beheaded his engineers because the elements destroyed their bridge over the Hellespont; who so ruthlessly slew the eldest son of Pythius because his father besought him to leave him one sole support of his declining years; who dishonored the remains of the valiant Leonidas; and who beguiled the shame of his defeat by such a course of sensuality, that he publicly offered a reward for the inventor of a new pleasure—is just the despot to divorce his queen because she would not expose herself to the gaze of drunken revelers."—K. M. in The Student; selected by R. H. Judd.

RICHES NOW, OR HEREAFTER

(Continued from Page Four)

and is often misapplied. It does not mean the giving of ten dollars to some good cause, patting yourself on the back because of your generosity, and then spending five times as much on some piece of foolishness for yourself, or some evening of so-called "pleasure."

This young ruler wanted something badly, but he was not willing to give up his riches for it. Each one has to pay the price for what he greatly desires. We may not have many men and women in the Church of God who are what the world of today calls "rich," but I am sure we have many who spend dollars on themselves in comparison to pennies for the cause of Christ, or in the help of the distressed among their fellow men. We are apt to say, "So and so is ever so much better off than I, and he is doing nothing. Why should I bother?" Or, in the words of the foolish rich man mentioned in Luke 12 when he complacently took account of his goods, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry."

We are never quite satisfied with what we have, but are always thinking when we have a little more we will very substantially increase our offerings to the many good causes presented. But do we? I do not believe God means we should give up earning money, but that we should use what we have for helping along in every way possible. We sometimes hear 1 Timothy 6:10 quoted: "Money is the root of all evil." This is not true, as money is a necessity and much good can be accomplished through its rightful spending. Three little words should be inserted before the phrase—"the love of"—and then it is a very true statement, as something we love we are not ready to part with. Let us truly believe the words of Jesus, "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over." There is no greater insult we can give to a man than to say, "I do not believe you," but many of the statements in the Bible are likely to be taken with the proverbial "pinch of salt" in spite of the fact that "the word of our God shall stand for ever." Let us do with our might what our hands find to do, and do it today.

WHO ARE ISRAELITES?

(Continued from Front Page)

The subject is approached from a strictly national and fleshly viewpoint. It is believed because the Anglo-Saxons are descendants of Israel blessings will and must come to them. Many of the prophecies applied to the Anglo-Saxon nations of today are prophecies which our very best students have always explained as belonging to the restitution age. The Jews in the days of John the Baptist were like-minded. To them John said: "And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham" (Matt. 3:9). The same spirit prevails with many individuals; because parents or grandparents were members of the church or knew the truth, they feel secure because of fleshly lineage. A strictly fleshly or natural application of Scripture is as wrong as it is difficult for the natural man to receive the Spirit or understand spiritual things (1 Cor. 2:14). Recently a representative of an organization devoted to the teaching of Anglo-Israelism said: "We look at the question strictly from a national viewpoint."

The origin of the teaching has been briefly stated; we now examine the principal views in comparison with Scripture.

The Jewish Encyclopedia strikes an important note when it says: "They make distinction between the ultimate fates of Israel and Judah, the former getting all the blessings and the latter all of the curses." This craving for the blessings, but shrinking from the curses, could well be adapted to those who believe the church is spiritual Israel; they, too, claim all the blessings promised to fleshly Israel, and with a song in their heart thrust all the curses pronounced against the same people for wrongdoing to the poor Jews! The Roadbuilder in his book, Destiny of British Empire and United States, says: "The Jews have not been a nation since their expulsion from Jerusalem and never will be." The Jews are not only placed at a present disadvantage by this writer, but are robbed of future heritage and blessing. Against this assertion, let us place the Word of God, as preached by the great Apostle Paul. "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God" (Rom. 3:1, 2). The Roadbuilder says the Jew has no advantage, Paul by inspiration says he has every precedence. Through the Jews, unto whom the oracles of God were committed, has come salvation (John 4:22). The Jews will be as much a part of the future restored kingdom of God as they were a part of the original kingdom of God when David and Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord over them. In that remarkable picture given by the Prophet Ezekiel of the valley of dry bones and their revivification, we have painted for us the finished scene when Judah and Israel shall be united in one kingdom in the land of Israel; furthermore, we are told that they shall not be divided into two kingdoms "any more at all," but that David shall be prince over them (Ezek. 37). When James wrote his Epistle, he addressed it, not to the ten tribes, but to the twelve tribes of Israel scattered abroad. God has made no such division between the tribes, that ten shall be glorified and two cursed.

This teaching places the responsibility for the crucifixion of Christ solely upon the Jews, and through their rejection of the Messiah the kingdom was taken from them and given to the ten tribes. The divine imputation of the crucifixion sin covers a much larger group. Peter in his divinely inspired sermon on Pentecost affirms in these words: "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ" (Acts 2:36). That there may be no doubt in our minds as to whom "ye" includes, we need but refer to Acts 4:25-27. "For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together." This scripture places the blame on the Roman soldiers, as well as on Pontius Pilate or the high priest, or any other Jew. In the sealing of the 144,000 in the Revelation, Judah is first mentioned. Instead of them being blotted out, we find them near to the heart of God and under His shielding power during the fiery days of tribulation. In the assigning of gates and portions of the city in Ezekiel 47 where the millennial reign is described, Judah has her rightful place.

Ephraim and Manasseh are about the only tribes that are dealt with out of the ten. Ephraim is supposed to be England and Manasseh the United States. Nearly all the blessings that have ever been promised concerning Israel and many that have not been promised are appropriated to Ephraim by these interpreters. To show what lengths they are willing to go to prove a point and establish their case, we again quote from the Roadbuilder, which will indicate of itself how careless the interpretation and what little thought is given to rightly dividing the Word. Quote: "Ask of me, and I shall give thee (Ephraim, my firstborn son) the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession" (Psalm 2:8). He applies this verse, as he indicates by his insertion in brackets, to the tribe of Ephraim or England. This is repeatedly done. Could there be a greater misapplication of Scripture than this? Paul, in his Hebrew Epistle, quotes this Psalm and applies it to Christ (Heb. 1:5).

Instead of the tribe of Ephraim being a specially blessed people as proclaimed by the advocates of this theory, we find them under a distinct curse. This is not true of England! In Deuteronomy 29:18-20 God gave warning to Israel that the man, or woman, or family, or tribe that introduced idolatry into Israel would be cut off and the curses written in the book would fall upon them. In Judges, chapters 17 and 18, and 1 Kings 12:28 we find that idolatry was introduced by Ephraim and Dan and thereafter these people came under the curses. In the sealing of the 144,000 in Revelation 7 these tribes are not mentioned—they do not come under the protection of the heavenly Father during the time of the beast power. Why? Because they introduced idolatry into the nation of Israel. Thus we see the punishing hand of God upon these people. These two tribes after passing through the purgings of tribulation days are finally restored to their place among the tribes and share in the portioning of the land in Ezekiel 47. Instead of Ephraim being the good tribe and Judah the terrible one, we discover the reverse. "Ephraim compasseth me about with lies, and the house of Israel with deceit: but Judah yet ruleth with God, and is faithful with the saints" (Hosea 11:12).

Another gulf between the claims of Anglo-Israelism and the Bible exists in regard to the throne of David. The former strongly claims that there has always been a man on David's throne and that the present King of England is on that throne. Sentimentally, we wish we could share in this conclusion, for we have high regard for the present King and a very deep respect for his deceased father, but we are bound by scriptural injunction to speak only according to the Word. "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them" (Isa. 8:20). There is no unconditional promise made by God that there would always be a man on David's throne. We read, "That the Lord may continue his word which He spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul, there shall not fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel" (1 Kings 2:4). Did Israel walk before God with all their heart and observe and keep His laws? The same promise is made in 1 Kings 9:4-7 but with the warning that if they failed to do this, they would become a "proverb and a byword among all people." This was not just for the two tribes, but the whole house of Israel! All Israel were to become a hissing and a byword!

According to Scripture the last man to sit on David's throne was Zedekiah. Of him and David's throne, God said: "I will overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him" (Ezek. 21:25-27). Now, there may be differences of opinion on just what is meant by "overturn" and when it was done, but there can be no quibbling on the saying, "And it shall be no more" until (when?) "he come whose right it is." If this statement is true, and we believe it with all our heart, then David's throne is not in existence at the present time! The great mass of historical teaching confirms this scriptural statement, but if all the history in the world indicated otherwise, we would still believe God's Word! The throne of David after the division of the Kingdom of Israel was in the custody of Judah and for nearly two hundred years after Israel went into captivity for their sins Judah carried on. God chose to put His name in Jerusalem (1 Kings 11:36), and when their sins became so multiplied that God could no longer tolerate them, He overthrown the throne until Christ should come and sit upon it (Luke 1:32, 33; Matt. 25:41). The Prophet Hosea joins his voice to the chorus that sing of the coming King, but also adds that before the King comes Israel must abide without a king for "many days." These days are not twenty-four hour periods but indicate a prolonged time (Hosea 3:4, 5).

England and the United States are not great Powers because they are lineal descendants of David, but through their missionary efforts in carrying the gospel to all peoples and their succor of the Jews, the true Israel of God, they have called upon themselves the blessing of high heaven. There were several hundred years when England was not so fortunate and during this time the American colonies became independent through revolution. In 1290, under the reign of Edward I, all the Jews were driven out of England and for over three hundred years no Jews were allowed in the country. In 1665 Cromwell favored their admission and finally they were permitted to remain, but it was not until 1885 that they were admitted to Parliament; although Benjamin Disraeli was Prime Minister twice, yet this was due to the fact that his father, Isaac Disraeli, with his family in 1817 renounced Judaism and joined the Church of England. This extended persecution of the Jews was followed by a bending unto them and in her humiliation, England has made full restitution and has been called upon to bear the brunt of the burden to reestablish Israel back in the Promised Land (Isa. 60:14).

Most all of our Bible students understand the merchants of Tarshish and her young lions of Ezekiel 38 to refer to England and her Colonies. In this view, we can share. If this conclusion is correct, then instead of England being Israel or a part thereof, she comes to the defense of Israel when the hordes from the north countries come to the mountains of Israel to plunder and pilfer the real Israel that has been gathered from all countries where they were scattered. Distinct separation is made between the merchants of Tarshish and the children of Israel; why should not we do the same?

Each new tomorrow brings new joys,
 New unsolved problems and new fears,
 But this we know—all through the years,
 Whate'er the need or circumstance,
 As age falls back, youth will advance—
 The march maintain—the colors seize,
 And keep them whipping in the breeze.

—Selected.

STARS OR MUD?

A NUMBER of years ago, people who traveled along the great Lincoln Highway noticed numerous white crosses along the side of the road. When tourists inquired as to the reason these small crosses were staked along the sides of the road, they were told that each cross marked the spot where some life had been lost in an automobile accident.

The crosses became more numerous as the months passed. Some towns built platforms and on these placed demolished cars as a danger sign to motorists. Still the accidents increased. Toy skeletons were hung up along the highway making things look as gruesome as possible, but the death toll still climbed.

Towns along this beautiful highway noticed that traffic began to grow lighter. Business seemed to drop overnight. Smaller highways were being used instead and something had to be done. A questionnaire was sent out to a large number of motorists asking them why they were using the smaller highways when they had access to one of the finest highways in the United States.

The answers which were received told in a very few words the reason. The motorists did not enjoy looking at all the crosses. They did not like to be reminded that a life had been lost at each mark along the road. Skeletons and demolished cars are not pleasant to look at, and they were continually being reminded of danger and death. Thus they would rather drive on a smaller highway with less conveniences than to drive on a main highway with such an outlook.

The crosses were removed. The skeletons and wrecked cars were discarded. Signs and beautiful pictures were put up in their places. Things that were pleasing and interesting to all were placed where the white crosses once were. The traffic returned, business increased, and the accidents and death decreased.

So it is in our daily travel along life's highway. Do you see crosses and wrecks along the road or can you see flowers, pictures, and things beautiful? We see only the hard and ugly things in life if we make it so. We can think of nothing but trials and hardships or we can think of the reward which we shall have at the end of the road. "Heaven is cheap enough," but can we see it that way?

"Two men looked out through prison bars,
 The one saw mud but the other stars."

Are you looking ahead for the things that are to come? Can you see the blue sky above and heaven ahead or do you see nothing but mud under your feet and the hardships and trials beside you? Let's look ahead. It really pays.—Charles L. Paddock in Signs of the Times.

"How beautiful to walk in the steps of the Savior,
 Stepping in the light, stepping in the light;
 How beautiful to walk in the steps of the Savior,
 Led in paths of light."

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Speech

Fan mail:

"But really why take the viewpoint that you do, so antagonistic? After all, Christ's law is the law of love. We must lead people, not push them. We throw all kinds of daggers at the evils in the world, yet we know they will always exist. My idea is to make the good so appealing they won't be so attracted by the evils. For instance, we criticize the movies, saying, 'Will Christ find you there?' etc. One thing sure, the movies are here to stay, and they will be or are the greatest form of entertainment. If we teach our people just to take the good with them and leave the evil behind they won't even notice it."

Denominational college: "Wholly aside from the obvious impracticality of establishing a hundred thousand dollar school for less than three hundred Church of God young people, most of whom would go elsewhere anyway, there stands always the brilliant gesture that would have the church educate its people so the people could educate and support the ministry so the ministry could educate the people into educating more people to educate and support the ministry."

Editor's remarks: Instead of having a college of our own, why wouldn't it be a better idea to locate our Bible Training School in Aurora, and negotiate an agreement with Aurora College to allow our Bible students also to attend their college?

The squib on speech: "Excellently written. But I'm forced to disagree with your flat premise that 'using words that are unknown to your hearers is another sign of egotism.' Sometimes, it is altogether true; but if it stands true in all instances, then it becomes the very height of egotism for any inventor, for any scientist, for any writer to add a single word to the language; it becomes the acme of egotism for a writer to toss in a word that expresses his exact meaning rather than inserting a word that conveys a sense not exact; it elevates ignorance and deifies mental stagnation. I've had to go to the dictionary many a time just on account of a newspaper story about ordinary events."

Be Popular

Football captain to his team: "Play over toward those movie cameras, their quarterback always runs that way when he has the ball." Anything for publicity. Hero poison. Athlete's head.

We encourage young people to go for popularity when we encourage them to hear the popular churches instead of holding fast to the true but unpopular church.

Attention

This is Station SSCG calling all boys and girls. Calling all boys and girls. Good morning, boys and girls. This is the Sunshine Lady, who wants to tell you about the "Sunshine Scatterers of the Church of God." I feel sure that after hearing about them you will each one want to be a "Sunshine Scatterer." Of course, the Sunshine we want to scatter is God's Sunshine. Here is how it is done. The Sunshine Lady, or one of her helpers, will send a Bible lesson weekly to any boy or girl who will promise to study this lesson. Then here is where the scattering takes place. These boys and girls then try to find other children to study these lessons, also, therefore scattering God's Sunshine as we go.

Wouldn't you like to take a trip with me to visit some of our Sunshine Scatterers? Very well, here we go. First let's call on some found in a mining camp in West Virginia. We see them gathered together in a class here, for one lesson has been sent to a lady here each week, then she has made enough so that all may have a lesson. They look happy, and I know they are scattering sunshine, for when I visited them this summer they worked very faithfully to get others to come to their class.

Our next stop will be in Missouri. Here we meet a little lady who attended General Conference this year, and there expressed her willingness to become a "Sunshine Scatterer."

Let's skip on to Louisiana where we meet a young man who also attended General Conference, and at that time decided to be one of us.

And by the way, I guess I must have forgotten to tell you there are over one hundred of us.

Now to a very beautiful valley in the State of Virginia. Here if we search in the homes we find twenty-five girls and boys studying their lesson. And I want you to particularly notice two little girls here. These two have scattered God's Sunshine to nineteen of their schoolmates, whom they have persuaded to do these lessons.

On to Kansas and Oklahoma. See that little girl holding up her big scratch book. Hear what she says, "Daddy bought me this book to keep my lessons in, so I wouldn't lose them."

Now back again. Don't you want to be one of our Sunshine Scatterers? If so, just fill in the following blank and mail to "The Sunshine Lady," Woodstock, Virginia.

.....
 Name Address

 Age Birthday

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Be not afraid, but speak, . . . for I am with thee."

WHY PAUL WAS NOT AFRAID

OUR beloved missionary, Paul, came next to Corinth, a large and important city. Corinth was also a very wicked city, many people leading lives of drunkenness and sin of all kinds.

But Paul found Corinth a good field in which to preach the gospel, and he stayed there a year and a half. Many of those poor, sinful people were converted when they learned the gospel from Paul and turned to a new way of living.

It was hard, though, for Paul to keep up his courage with such wickedness on all sides. Do you know what happened that helped him? Listen, and I'll tell you about it.

Paul began preaching in the synagogue, as he usually did. But the Jews became so angry when he told them they had crucified the Messiah that he had to leave the synagogue. He found a refuge in a house right next door, the home of Justus.

Most of the people who believed and obeyed the good news that Paul preached were of the poorer class. It seemed that they realized they needed something in their lives to help them. But there were a few important people among them. The ruler of the synagogue, Crispus, was one. And Erastus, the treasurer of Corinth, was another.

Now God knew that Paul was going to find it hard to keep on here in this wicked city, and so one night when Paul was fast asleep God spoke to him. Paul thought at first he had been dreaming.

But no! God's voice had come so clearly and surely. "Be not afraid," were the words Paul heard, "speak, and hold not thy peace: for I am with thee."

Could anyone be afraid with God right by his side? No matter how hard a task you had to do, no matter how great the dangers you had to face, you wouldn't be afraid if God spoke to you like that. Would you?

Don't you think God is with us just as much today, if we try to do His will? Don't you think that God watches over boys and girls today when they try to do right, just as carefully as He did Paul? I do!

When you decide you will not follow some evil way that lies before you where others may be going, just that minute God says to you, "Be not afraid, for I am with you." Listen for His voice. You may not hear it in the same way Paul did, but He is there just the same.

Now Paul could go on with God's work, encouraged and cheered. No matter how much the Jews tried to stop him or drive him from the city, he kept right on, trusting in the One who never fails.

However, God had not promised Paul that He would send him to an easier place to work. No, indeed! He told Paul He wanted him to stay there, for many would believe and obey if he did. And God kept His promise.

Suppose Paul had turned coward and run away. No doubt many of those wicked people would have gone on in their wickedness and would never have learned the wonderful story of Jesus. They would never have found the happiest and finest way of living. Much depended on Paul.

The books of the Bible that we know as 1 and 2 Corinthians are letters that Paul afterwards wrote to the ones he had baptized in Corinth. There were so many things about the gospel that they still didn't know, because it was all so new to them. And Paul explained a great many of their questions in these letters.

Notice the verses of our lesson taken from 1 Corinthians 13. In this part of Paul's letter he told them what the greatest thing in the world is. I wonder how many of you know.

Is it knowledge or education? Is it wisdom or experience? Is it money or power?

No, it is none of these things which many people think are great. It is love. Love for one's enemies as well as one's friends.

Now why is love so great a force? Because it has such a great power on one's life. It can change one's whole life as nothing else can. It can change those about us, too.

The story is told of a poor Armenian girl who saw her beloved brother shot down one day by a Turkish soldier. At first she lived just to "get even" with that soldier, to pay him back for shooting her brother.

Later she learned about Jesus and His life of love and sacrifice. She became a nurse, and a wonderful nurse she was. Her hands were so tender. Her voice was so soft and full of pity, her whole life so true to her task.

Caring for the wounded in a Turkish hospital, she was given charge of this same soldier who had killed her brother. Never once did she falter or neglect her duty. Tenderly she dressed his wounds, and faithfully she gave him his medicine. And the man lived.

Later on this fine nurse told him the story of how hate had left her heart and pity had entered. He, too, became a Christian and did his part to spread love where hate had been. And all because one little maid followed in Jesus' steps.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

'T WAS EVER THUS

The following, copied from "The Voice of Truth" of September 30, 1846, indicates that certain churches were being criticized for their ostentatious display, as, for instance, in supplying their worshipers with brass spittoons. We surmise the poorer churches used sandboxes.

"A church in 1802.—Plain pulpit—clerk's desk underneath—rows of benches with strips for the back. A plain, simple looking sexton, with a bunch of keys in his belt. Congregation rich and poor—no distinction, no partition. They assemble for one object, to worship their God.

"A church in 1842.—Splendidly covered pulpit. A large orchestra composed of twenty-five singers—the principal ones paid by the year. The floor carpeted—pews richly cushioned and carpeted—brass spittoons—richly bound doors. Sexton richly attired—his name on a tin sign, emblazoned against the side of the church. Congregation select and well dressed—and seated in their pews. The minister perfumed with otto of rose—Bible with red leather and gilt letters. All splendor. All show. No poor to be seen, if to be seen, stuck away in some obscure corner. The minister trims his discourse to suit his congregation, and they lavish their money upon him and in building fine churches, while the poor are starved. And this is what they call RELIGION."—Christian Herald.

IOWA FALL CONFERENCE

A fall conference was held at the home of Arthur M. Jones in Eagle Grove Sunday, Oct. 11. Bros. J. W. Williams and John Denchfield were present.

Bro. Denchfield is working at various places in Iowa. Bros. Williams and O. J. Allard have just returned from a preaching tour in Nebraska: Moorefield, Blair, and Lincoln. Good meetings were reported at all places. On their return trip they stopped at Stanhope for one meeting.

Esther Sealine, Cor. Sec.

PENNELLWOOD CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

Our special meetings were continued another week by request and closed on October 4 with the baptism of Mr. John Cole, brother of the first deacon, in the afternoon, and Communion following the evening sermon.

The sermons in both speech and song during these meetings were an inspiration to all.

After the services Sunday evening the congregation gathered at the home of Bro. and Sr. Arlie Townsend to bid farewell to our beloved pastor, Bro. F. L. Austin.

We have been greatly blessed in the privilege of having Bro. Austin with his fountain of knowledge of Bible truths, with us for the past year and a half. During this time he has assisted sixteen in putting on Christ in baptism.

It is with deepest regret that we part with him but feel as he does that "the harvest truly is plentiful, but the labourers are few," and that many more can be reached in his new field of labor than through a single pulpit. May the Holy Spirit in abundance guide and direct Bro. Austin and his assistant, Bro. McLain, in their labor in this new field, is the prayer of the members of Pennellwood.

Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secretary.

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Bro. C. E. Lapp, pastor of the St. Cloud Church of God, writes:

"Our Sunday school has set aside the first Sunday of November for the annual Rally Day.

"Since we have been here the church has adopted a set of working rules.

"One of our elders, Bro. Thomas Savage, Jr., is rejoicing in the birth of a son, Thomas, Jr."

Bro. and Sr. Lapp are now settled in their new home at 340 30th Ave. N., St. Cloud.

Mrs. Margaret Donaly, Herrin, Ill., was painfully injured in an automobile accident about one month ago. Having left the hospital a short time since, she is now able to walk a little. She suffered a fractured hip and collar bone and a bad head laceration.

Rockford, Ill., Rally Day attendance, October 11, was 72.

MORA, MINNESOTA

Our first month's work at Mora was in every way satisfactory. Enthusiasm for the work was manifested by all the members and several others who are interested.

The most interesting feature of our work is our Wednesday evening service. This is a combination Berean class for the young people, prayer meeting, and Bible study for the adults. The average attendance at this service has been 14 for the three meetings we have had.

The fourth Sunday of September, the pastor spent with the brethren at Graytown, Wis. This group of faithful ones were first taught our truths by Bro. James A. Patrick, followed by Bros. Magaw, Randall, Austin, Maple, Hoskins, and others. As this was the first time services had been held there for over four months, the attendance and interest were very encouraging.

From Graytown we, meaning my sister Ednah and I, together with Bro. and Sr. Herman Ruhn and daughters Marjorie and Lois of Litchfield, Minn., journeyed to the northern part of the State of Minnesota to visit with Mrs. Ruhn's sister, Mrs. L. C. Kirkpatrick of Cass Lake, and her brother, Mr. C. A. Matheny of Blackduck. While at Blackduck two services were held at the White Pine Schoolhouse where a group of our people maintain a Sunday school. We are thankful to have had this opportunity of speaking to these people and of witnessing God's wonderful works in the northern forests of the State.

Sr. Lila Kirkpatrick of Milaca, Minn., visited Sunday, Oct. 4, with Bro. Emil Fredlund and family and also worshiped with us.

Several from Mora are planning to attend the Fall Conference to be held at St. Cloud October 16-18.

The death of Sr. A. R. Howard came as a blow to our brethren here. Bro. and Sr. Howard were instrumental in founding our church. While poor health has prevented her from actively engaging in church work, yet her loss will be keenly felt by our church.

May God bless our efforts here and everywhere.

Gerald L. Cooper, Pastor.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

The Los Angeles church is taking a new lease on life. Much to our regret, there has been a steady decline in interest for some time in the past. Some families have moved away, others have grown indifferent, others have changed their views and gone to worship with other groups, and still others became so disheartened because of the stagnant condition that they sought and found a larger group, with a similar faith. The locality in which the services are held and the church building itself seem to be prominent factors in the decline of interest.

On October 4 the largest congregation which has assembled for some time came to hear Bro. E. E. Rogers give a very interesting and beneficial talk on "Discipline." He cited many biblical characters, showing the discipline by which they were developed into zealous workers for God. Bro. Rogers is an excellent reasoner and a new speaker with much natural ability. He was recently elected for Sunday school superintendent, and we are very grateful for the service he so willingly renders.

Having had many private expressions in favor of a change of location for our services, on the above date, while we had a good representation of the active membership present, we took a public expression, and to our decided satisfaction, not a hand was raised in opposition and the vote in favor showed that all had awakened to our great need if we are to survive. So now we have our minds centered on a location farther south, a newer district.

As the present pastor is not in need of a salary for living expenses, she proposes to turn over the major portion of it into a church fund which, with contributions from other sources, will be used in getting a place of worship for the congregation. We have purchased a used car and have put it into the hands of some of our members living in suburban towns to bring their children and neighbors' children to Sunday school.

Just recently two families have moved to Glendale from the Cashmere, Wash., church. We are happy to welcome them among us and we know they are going to be zealous workers in our new undertaking. Then still more recently a family of active, energetic workers from the Golden Rule Church of Cleveland, have come to make their home in Los Angeles.

We were happy last Sunday to greet Sr. Harriet Shepherd of Redlands, Bro. H. R. Hobart of Glendale, and a number of others who have not been with us for some time, also to receive greetings by letter from others from a distance who were with us in spirit and promised to be with us in person later on. We want to be found working when our Lord returns. Pray for us, dear coworkers, that this prospective change may be the means of reviving the interest of the disheartened and may bring the light of God's Word to many who are in darkness concerning the plan of redemption. We have read with interest the reports of the enthusiastic meetings of the General Conference and the Ministerial Association, and were so glad that the delegates were so wise as to retain Bro. L. E. Conner as the official head of our general organization. Viewing the situation from a distance, it seems to us that much progress has been made in the way of solidifying the body of workers in the last few years.

Emma C. Railsback, Pastor.

HILLISBURG, INDIANA

With Bros. Paul Jones and Fred Pensyl, Sr. Magaw and our daughter Norma, it was our pleasure to work with Bro. Anderson and the Hillisburg church from September 20-25. When a child, Mrs. Magaw had often attended services at this church and it was a special favor to her to again visit and worship with the Hillisburg people. Everyone enjoyed a good spirit of Christian fellowship and zeal at the meetings. Four were baptized by their pastor, Bro. Anderson, during the meetings, and another requested baptism the last evening, after many had left the church yard. Their names should appear elsewhere. We pray them the Lord's favor in their new life for the Master. We hope to again meet all the Hillisburg brethren, and to be ever united with them when Jesus Christ returns to the earth. May He come soon.

Sydney E. Magaw.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

October 12, 1911

The brethren at Marathon, Iowa, are dedicating a new church building this fall.

Elder J. W. Williams, Frankfort, Ind., reports the arrival of a son on September 17. "Here is where Bro. Williams will get some downright experience in the exercise of his sermon on 'The Threefold Trial.'"

Baptisms announced in this number: A daughter of William Huffer, Hillisburg, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Potter and Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Ripley, Ill.; Ceona Ford, Millbrook, and Miss Lillian Peck, Coast Grove, Mich.; and Mrs. Isabelle Sale and Mrs. Jennie Bechler, Morse Mill, Mo.

MRS. A. R. HOWARD

Christina Caroline Graeber was born April 23, 1880, in Polk County, Iowa, and died September 19, 1936, at a hospital at Two Harbors, Minn.

She was married to A. R. Howard March 17, 1898, at Sac City, Iowa. They moved from there to Sioux Rapids, Iowa, and then to Nobles County, Minn. For the past 23 years the Howards have made their home in Brunswick Township, Kanabec County. Sr. Howard joined the Church of God about 25 years ago, being baptized by Bro. O. J. Allard.

Surviving are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Adolph Sandberg and Mrs. Elmer Carlson; three grandchildren; four sisters; and two brothers. Two sisters, one brother, her parents, and a son, Frank, have preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 23, 1936, at the Brunswick Baptist Church. Rev. A. Paulson, pastor of that church, and Bro. Gerald L. Cooper, pastor of the Mora Church of God, officiated.

May God's blessing rest upon the bereaved ones is my prayer. Gerald L. Cooper.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Kittie C. Humphreys; Mrs. F. M. Hoskins; Frank Smalley; Mrs. A. L. McMurtrie; Mrs. Claude Graham; Mrs. L. F. Slocum; Billy Cusey; Howard E. Drew; Lottie E. Young (for self and another); Clementine R. DeNise; Mrs. F. Moran; J. R. Shepard; Mrs. L. C. Anthon; W. H. Lindsay; Etta L. Elton (for self and another); Edna Arthaud; William M. Huffer; Leland T. Hanson; Lillian A. Greiner; Georgia Thompson (for others); Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle; Rufus A. Curtis; John W. Burget; Lillias Sweeney; T. M. Savage; Ella C. Boyer (for self and another); Ethel Johnson; Mrs. Allen Johnson; Margaret Burns; Emma C. Railsback (for another); J. D. Fyfe; Sarah Wilson; Martha M. Bristow (for others); Ida F. Orem (for self and another).

LENA BYER HANSEN

Lena Byer Hansen was born in Norway March 10, 1855, and died September 7, 1936, at the home of her son, Jacob Hansen, of Avery, Neb.

She was united in marriage to Iven Hansen in her native country. To this union was born one son, Jacob, with whom she made her home for 29 years. She united with the Church of God and was baptized by Bro. John Hammond. Sr. Hansen remained true to the faith to the end of her long life.

The funeral was conducted by the writer from the Brewer Korisho Funeral Home of Omaha.

She leaves her son and wife and the church and many friends to mourn her passing.

She was laid to rest in the Graceland Cemetery to await the call of the Master.

Almus Adams.

Bros. F. L. Austin and James McLain began a series of evangelistic meetings at the Eldorado, Ill., Church of God Sunday October 11.

THE STUDENT'S NOTEBOOK

Immortality of the Soul. "A consideration of the highest importance is that the natural immortality of the soul is a doctrine wholly unknown to the Holy Scriptures, and standing in no higher plane than that of an ingeniously sustained, but gravely and formidably contested philosophical opinion. And surely there is nothing as to which we ought to be more on our guard than the entrance into the precinct of Christian doctrine, either without authority or by an abuse of authority, of philosophical speculations disguised as truths of divine revelation. They bring with them a grave restraint on mental liberty; but what is worse is that their basis is a pretention essentially false, and productive by rational retrouction of other falsehoods. Under these two heads we may perhaps find that we have ample warrant for declining to accept the tenet of natural immortality as a truth of divine revelation."—Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

The Students' Christian Association of Aurora College is planning a two-day conference of colleges in the Aurora area to be held at an undetermined date. President Arthur Mills (Church of God) will be in charge of the meeting.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Emphatic Diaglott, by Benjamin H. Wilson: the New Testament retranslated: interlinear Greek-English translation; fabrikoid binding; Bible paper, gold edges; Bible dictionary and index; $2.50. National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

O. Henry gave us the idea. O Henry, quoting Carroll. Only O. Henry called his opus "Cabbages and Kings," after, of course, that ditty from "Alice in Wonderland":

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings."

New notions can pop up from unexpected places—that is, if you're the one to recognize them. George Horace Lorimer was. Now, concluding forty years as editor of the world's greatest magazine, The Saturday Evening Post, he resigns, said resignation to take effect January 1, 1937. So says Writer's Digest. Started from a little more than scratch. Leaves a magazine with a weekly circulation of three millions, a tidy figure. If a man with talent like that could be put on a religious paper. . . . An idle dream. Religious papers don't pay editors $50,000 a year, nor do they have minimum word rates of 5 cents. Associate Editor Stout takes the baton from the exhausted Lorimer. One wonders if The Post will turn all religion to the forgotten transfer files as did The Ladies' Home Journal when it had a change of blood last year.

Colorful Columbia commentator Carter notes the proposal of the United States Government that nations of the two Americas bind themselves in a unit with a pact outlawing war. Agreeing again with the chromatic Carter, we hold that progress from a general League to minor and localized leagues will not be successful. War lies deeper than money, than pacts, than armaments. War lies in the roots of human character: greed, egotism, complacency, hate, love. No education and no green table can eradicate those roots.

Christian Century, interdenominational weekly of wide circulation among ministers and lay religious workers, carries in the issue of September 30 an article by Norman Thomas, abjuring one and all to "Vote Socialist!" Within its half dozen pages of "News of the Christian World" it includes one full page on the battle for District Attorney of Los Angeles County now going on between Buron Fitts and Harlan Palmer.

October 4 we covered the address of C. Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for Governor of Illinois, given in a church in Dixon. This in our capacity as correspondent for a national news syndicate. The defunct Will Rogers' not too loving billet-doux from Beverly Hills on the politics of the pulpit came to memory. Sunday school attendance at the church in the morning had been 72; about 500 sat and stood and talked and wriggled during the Brooks oration. Candidate Brooks' father had been pastor of the church from 1901 to 1906.

Two things about which no man ever is entirely sane: politics and religion. Nothing so essentially made up of propaganda as these influences allows free use of what Thoreau called the "clear, cold logic engine." And unless the mind is capable of being Thoreau's engine, it is too subject to prejudice, environment, and training to judge anything accurately. It is this insanity that has led to all political and religious schisms.

THE TEACHER'S TRIUMVIRATE

There may be a better combination of three books for the Bible teacher than Peloubet's Bible Dictionary, the International Bible Commentary, and Cruden's Complete Concordance; but we feel sure it does not come for this price: $2.00 per volume, or $5.40 for all three, with a thumb index added to each book for only 50 cents an index.

Take Cruden's, for instance: more than 220,000 references in this, the most complete and accurate edition of the oldest concordance in the world. What is more, it considers both the Revised and the Authorized Versions of the Bible, and is printed in exceptionally good type.

And then there is Peloubet's Dictionary, 800 pages of it, with 508 illustrations and 14 maps in full color. Since it is necessarily condensed, it has no room for those wild theological speculations, but confines itself to Bible facts.

Finally, the International Bible Commentary, with its 25,000 textual references and its condensed but remarkably thorough word-for-word analysis of the two Testaments. Contrasting opinions of the best scholars are frequently used and discussed without prejudice. History and customs, peoples and geography, relation of passage with passage, all have their place. Not, of course, so complete as some commentaries; but astonishingly good for all that. And the language is simple.

But it wouldn't do at all to equip yourself with all the books of information and nothing else. Books of information are dry things, and have nothing of the joy of life. Modern Bible students enjoy modern ways of learning about the Book they love, ways that stimulate their thinking, ways that give them fun and frolic and a liberal education all at the same time. And when extra-curricular, outside-of-class study can be made interesting, it's worth telling the world about it. Which we're doing. For the books pictured on the lower right make a quartet of class and outside-of-class aids that really are valuable. They come at only $1.00 apiece, or $3.65 for the four, and they're worth every cent of it. We suggest you write your name and address on the margin of this sheet, check the books you want, and mail the whole page to us with your remittance attached.

They're planned to give you information and entertain you, too. Bible Sayings contains 1,500 sentences that purport to hold the soul of the Bible, and the back of the book conceals a multitude of answers and Bible references. Go Till You Guess has 400 sections dealing with 400 separate Bible facts and events; answers and Bible references are given if you don't know them yourself. Know Your Bible? lists 1,500 questions and answers on Bible topics, and has 21 topical quizzes to make your class happy with written or oral tests. And Our Bible—What's in It? goes through the 66 books of the Bible in regular order with a series of questions designed to teach all the major points in Holy Writ. Each book is bound in durable cloth to last and last and last, and has 128 pages. Try guessing for variety; you'll find it well worth while.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 20, 1936

NUMBER 3

The Meaning of "Rally Day"

A Sermon by the Editor

ON RALLY DAY the church, the Sunday school, and the Berean society look back over the road they have followed and seek to count their gains and losses, their successes and failures, that out of these experiences they may draw helpful lessons for the future. To change our metaphor, Rally Day is the time for spiritual inventory. It is the time when decisions may be made concerning the value of methods employed in the past and decisions reached as to whether or not it would be wise to continue as these organizations have been doing or to try something new.

Of course in the course of such stock-taking the guardians of church, Sunday school, and Berean society look carefully over the flocks which God has committed to their care to note if any are missing from among them. If such there are, they must be searched out one by one and gently but definitely urged to take their places again within the safety of the fold. "How think ye?" asked Jesus, "if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them is gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?"

Rally Day, then, should be the great ingathering day of the entire church. The word "rally" itself suggests the thought. It is the homecoming festival of God's family, when the prodigals return to join with the stay-at-homes about the Father's board that all may rejoice together.

Rally Day should also be Decision Day, and Revival Day—a day of spiritual awakening of both believers and unbelievers! Such a purpose, properly planned for in advance each year, and carried out with persistent but loving zeal, would soon make Rally Day the season of greatest joy of the whole year.

All this, however, but marks the approach to Rally Day. It but constitutes the preparation we should make for its coming. When we have done all this, the real work and the deeper meaning of the Day still await our labor and our meditation, for Rally Day has for us many beautiful and helpful spiritual lessons which it presents in symbol and in type.

The definitions of the word "rally" provided in the dictionary are exceedingly significant to the Christian who understands something of the order of God's plan of redemption as it is outlined in the Bible.

The word "rally" means "reanimate; revive; call together; reunite; and restore." We will consider them in the order given.

Reanimate. The word falls naturally into first place in the plan of God, both as it affects the present and the future. The prefix re means "again," and animate means "to live." Hence reanimate means "to live again."

"You hath he quickened," said Paul, "who were dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1). The first exertion of the power of the gospel when it lays hold of a man through faith is to cause him to "live again" in a spiritual sense. He is reanimated. "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:11), is the admonition of the same apostle.

Revive. This definition of "rally" suggests the next step in the process of salvation. It goes a little beyond the thought of reanimation and puts the reanimated person to work. Life alone would be of no real value unless it was spent in the accomplishment of some useful purpose. Paul, or Saul, as he was then called, was re-animated, made to live spiritually, on the road to Damascus, and then the Lord said to him, "Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do" (Acts 9:6). Later, fully revived, he entered upon his life of active service.

Call together. Having been made to live anew, and been assigned certain duties to perform, the first of which is baptism, the disciple is permitted to assemble with his fellow Christians about the table (Please turn to Page Nine)

Abreast of the Times

Thousands Seek Admission to Palestine

"I will bring them . . . to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel."—Ezekiel 34:13.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 14.—Immigration into Palestine, which last year totaled more than 60,000, promises to exceed that figure in 1937. According to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, the Jewish Agency for Palestine today formally asked for an allotment of 11,800 immigration certificates for the six months' period ending April, 1937. If the request is granted it will permit the entry of about 25,000 Jewish immigrants in the labor category alone.

This increasing demand for admission into the country is especially significant under the conditions which have prevailed during the past few months during the Arab general strike (now ended), in the course of which some 400 Jewish, Arab, and British lives were lost and property destroyed to the value of $14,000,000.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 13.—The Government today ordered the curfew period shortened by two hours. For several months citizens have been forbidden to be on the streets between the hours of 9 in the evening and 4 in the morning, but owing to the approach of normal conditions as a result of the ending of the general strike, the curfew, which has paralyzed night life in the city, has been reduced and will probably soon be entirely discontinued.

"Where Will the Guns Be Used?"

"He shall set engines of war against thy walls, and . . . break down thy towers."—Ezekiel 26:9.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—In a magazine article, H. G. Wells, famous novelist and historian, asks some searching questions concerning the time, the place, and the circumstances under which the implements of war now being manufactured throughout the world in ever-increasing quantity are to be used. He calls attention, for example, to the mechanization of the British Army, the great war machines, the tanks and mobilized guns, and inquires as to just where these engines of destruction are to be employed and against what enemy they are to be arrayed. He wants to know over what nation the vast air force of Great Britain is to operate, what people it is to attack.

These are questions which no government can answer. The enemy of today may be the ally of tomorrow. So rapidly do the scenes of current history change that it is humanly impossible to foresee the developments of a single day. We only know that those massive guns, these poison gasses, these death-dealing airplanes, will be used for the killing of men—perhaps of women and children—in the next war, which the best minds of all races believe to be imminent and unavoidable.

Lloyds Refuse British War Insurance

"The sword of the enemy and fear is on every side."—Jeremiah 6:25.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Lloyds, which is perhaps the oldest insurance company in the world and which is noted for its willingness to accept any kind of insurance, has broken all precedent in the announcement it recently made that it would issue no more war insurance to landowners in the British Isles.

For many years Lloyds has been ready to insure any landowner against war damage at a one-fifth of one per cent rate. Recently, it was explained, Lloyds was startled by a sudden increase in requests for war insurance and decided, according to the Associated Press, to refuse to issue such policies, "probably permanently."

One reason suggested was that there has been much publicity given to the construction of bomb-proof shelters on several English estates. A further reason may be found in the increase of military preparations throughout Europe and the growing fear of another great war coming in the near future.

Defends Religion

"Thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children."—Deuteronomy 6:7.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 17.—"There is a definite movement on foot to put the church out of higher education," declared Dr. Gould Wickey of Washington today, voicing a protest against the attacks on religion made by professors of state universities. "I believe that slurs, slams, and denunciations of religion by professors of tax supported schools are unconstitutional by the same barrier which prevents the teaching of religion at public expense," Dr. Wickey asserted in an address before the convention of the United Lutheran Church.

"Legal opinions back up this belief that such assaults are in violation of the constitutional provision separating church and state," he declared.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

What Must I Do to Be Saved?

By Wiley Jones

THIS thrilling piece of apostolic history contains the most important question that can be framed by human lips. It is not, What must I do to obtain health, or wealth, or fame, or some high position of human power and grandeur? but infinitely more than all these, "What must I do to be saved?" And in proportion to the importance of the question is the plainness of the answer, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Belief and faith are the same; and what this answer requires is, of course, not a faith without works, which is dead; but it requires a living faith—a faith which "works by love and purifies the heart" (James 2:20).

I have called this a very plain answer, because, with the Bible before us, it is easy to discover what is meant by believing on the Lord Jesus Christ. The subject is placed before us in the clearest light. For example, we know that a message sent makes him by whom it is sent a messenger, and that to truly believe on the messenger is to believe the message which he brings. Now, among His other attributes, we find those of a messenger expressly attributed to Christ, and that He has been sent as the bearer of a message from God to man. Thus He is called the "messenger of the covenant" (Mal. 3:1), "the Apostle and High Priest of our profession" (Heb. 3:1). The word "Apostle" here applied to the Lord Jesus, conveys the same idea, for it means "a messenger, ambassador." And in the parable of the vineyard the Savior speaks of Himself in the same way—"last of all he sent unto them his son." Again He says, "I am sent to preach the kingdom of God." At the house of Cornelius, Peter called attention to "the word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ" (Acts 10:36). The Father says, "This is my beloved Son: hear him" (Luke 9:35). And Moses said, "Him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed" (Acts 3:22, 23). To make the subject still clearer, we find the Lord Jesus placed before us also in the attitude of a witness bearing testimony. Thus He is called "the faithful and true witness" (Rev. 3:14). And He declares Himself, "For this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth" (John 18:37). Now the message or doctrine which He preached is "his testimony," and the Scriptures assure us that "he that hath received his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true"; but on the other hand, "he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:33, 36).

We have now shown, by varied illustration and over-

"Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, and brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved? And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house."—Acts 16:29-31.

whelming proof, that to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ" in a true and scriptural sense, is to believe and obey that message or testimony which He has proclaimed to men.

What then is that message or testimony which is so essential to salvation? Our eternal destiny depends on a truthful answer to this question; and the Lord be praised that we are not left in the dark on a subject of such vast importance. Peter has with great precision pointed out the path by which we can find what that message was. He says that "the word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ . . . was published throughout all Judæa, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached" (Acts 10:36, 37). With such "great plainness of speech" as this, how is it possible for us to miss that word or message for which we are searching? We are told, first, who sent it—"the word which God sent"; second, to whom it was sent—"unto the children of Israel"; third, by whom it was sent—"by Jesus Christ"; fourth, in what region it was published—"throughout all Judæa"; fifth, from what point it began—"from Galilee"; sixth, at what time it began—"after the baptism which John preached."

Such plain directions take us directly to Mark 1:14, which says, "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God."

How accurately this answers to the language of Peter! John "was a bright and shining light," but his ministry had now come to a close. His voice had been hushed on the banks of the Jordan. Eager crowds no longer thronged its verdant slopes—all was silence and solitude there; for John had been torn away from his holy word and shut up in a dark and gloomy prison. And there he was put to death as the reward of a cruel young woman for dancing. Contrast her conduct with that of the pious Esther who fasted and prayed to save life. Who then can love dancing, after seeing that it caused the murder of one of whom the Savior said, "Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater"?

But although the Lord allowed His workman to be buried, He carried on His work; for after John's voice was hushed, the blessed Savior "began from Galilee" proclaiming "the gospel of the kingdom of God." Another portion of Scripture informs us that He "went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom" (Matt. 4:23). Nor did He confine His ministry to that section, but published the same great message "throughout all Judæa," as we learn from Luke 8:1—"It came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God." When the people of Capernaum urged Him to stay longer with them He refused, saying, "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent" (Luke 4:43). And even in that solemn interval between His resurrection and ascension His theme was still "the things pertaining to the kingdom of God" (Acts 1:3).

Thus I have plainly and abundantly proved that "the gospel of the kingdom" is the great message or testimony which Christ has brought to men. It follows, therefore, that "the gospel of the kingdom" is what we must believe before we can be truly said to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." He has commanded us to believe that gospel. "Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, Repent ye, and believe the gospel" (Mark 1:14, 15). Of course He did not command them to believe "another gospel" than the one that He was preaching—"the gospel of the kingdom of God." Does anyone imagine that it is not essential to keep His commandments? "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Luke 6:46). "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you" (John 15:14). "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do" (John 2:5). "If ye love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:15). Keeping His commandments is a test of our loving Him, and certainly no one can be saved who does not love Him, for the fearful penalty has been pronounced, "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maranatha," i. e., accursed when the Lord comes (1 Cor. 16:22).

Because the Son of God has set us the example and made the kingdom of God the great and constant theme of His discourse, we know this must be the wisest, noblest, and best theme that can occupy the minds or tongues of men. But it is well-known that multitudes of modern teachers, both in high and low positions, with a blind and fatal persistency refuse to either believe or preach that blessed gospel of the kingdom. For all the world, I would not be in the place of such teachers at the day of judgment. Surely they and their followers need to be affectionately and faithfully warned that "if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch"; for in many instances, now as of old, "the leaders of the people cause them to err; and they that are led of them are destroyed" (Matt. 15:14; Isa. 9:16).

A prominent member of a popular denomination once told me that he had been attending his church twenty-five years, but did not remember ever having heard that expression—"the gospel of the kingdom"—used there, or to have heard a sermon preached on it. A preacher of another large and popular sect told me that he remembered the expression, "the gospel of the kingdom," and he believed that it occurred "somewhere in the Epistles." Another preacher, who said he had studied Greek and Hebrew, had graduated regularly in theology, and had been preaching six years, on being questioned by me as to whether the expression "the gospel of the kingdom" occurs in the Old or New Testament, said that he believed it occurred in the Old Testament, "perhaps in the Psalms," and that he had never preached a sermon on the subject. But according to Cruden's Concordance, that expression is not once found in the Epistles, the Psalms, nor in the Old Testament at all.

Do not these incidents prove that a great apostasy has taken place in the world, and that many have "departed from the faith," have lost sight of the ancient gospel of the kingdom, and fallen into the deadly error of preaching and believing "another gospel" than that which the Lord Jesus preached?

And not only did the Lord Himself preach the kingdom of God, but while His own personal ministry was going on "he called his twelve disciples together, and . . . sent them to preach the kingdom of God. . . . And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the gospel" (Luke 9:2, 6). Here we discover that in scriptural phraseology, preaching the kingdom is the same as preaching the gospel. It follows, therefore, that those who do not preach the kingdom do not preach the gospel.

So important is preaching the kingdom that when a certain man requested leave to first go and bury his father, the Lord said, "Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God" (Luke 9:60).

But the gospel of the kingdom was not restricted to Palestine, for toward the close of His personal ministry the Savior said, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world" (Matt. 24:14). This language was both a prophecy and a command. By examining the record we discover that this prophecy was not to be fulfilled, nor this command obeyed, until after Pentecost; it is therefore the only true gospel of the present dispensation. I say the apostles did not go into all the world until after Pentecost, because until then the limits of their ministry had kept them in Palestine—"Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not" (Matt. 10:5). This was before the Savior ascended. And when He was about to ascend He charged them, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high" (Luke 24:49).

While preaching in Judea they needed only to know the language of that land; but now that they were to go into all the world, they needed to be endued with power to speak the languages of the various nations to whom they were sent. This power was conferred on them in the gift of tongues on the day of Pentecost, about ten days after the Lord ascended. Thenceforth nothing hindered them from going into all the world and preaching the gospel of the kingdom to every creature, agreeable to the prophecy and command of the Savior, who had also said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judæa, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8).

Thus we perceive that the gospel of the kingdom was as universal in the apostolic preaching as the baptismal formula was in their baptizing. We rightly conclude that baptizing "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit," was practiced everywhere by the
(Please turn to Page Nine)

Practical Lessons

THE 10th chapter of John's Gospel abounds in practical instruction for God's people. If we recognize Jesus as the door of the sheep, we must not seek to minimize the significance of His position in this capacity, as is today being done throughout Christendom. To describe those who sought entry by some other way, our Lord used language of no uncertain sound—"the same is a thief and a robber." While we are bound to recognize the vast difference between our Lord and ourselves in the matter of forming opinions of others, and are to beware lest we in the least seem to usurp His position or any of His functions which are reserved to Himself, we should, as sheep, be able to recognize those who climb up "some other way," and should, with fear, "flee from him."

The love of the Good Shepherd for the sheep is contrasted with the mercenary spirit of the hireling—"I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep. The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep" (John 10:11-13).

A picture altogether delightful is that of the intimacy of the Shepherd and the sheep—"To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice. . . . I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine" (John 10:3, 4, 14).

If the sheep are quick to recognize a stranger's voice as such, they should be equally quick to recognize the voice of their shepherd. Our Shepherd does not speak to us direct, but through His servants, the apostles and prophets. One of His first commandments after His resurrection was to Peter—"Feed my lambs." And again (twice), "Feed my sheep." By faithfulness in this Peter would show the depth of his love for his Lord and Shepherd. John 21:15-17.

Before he finished his own course Peter was inspired by the Holy Spirit to send a message of instruction and encouragement to the undershepherds (1 Peter 5:2-4)—"Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock. And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away."

And Paul, another faithful one, wrote (2 Tim. 4:8)—"Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

Even the apostles and prophets do not now speak to us

direct, except by their writings which have come down to us, which contain also some of the sayings of our Lord. But there are undershepherds—some of them faithful, and some of them not. None of these can speak with inherent authority, or even by direct inspiration of the Holy Spirit, as did our Savior and His apostles and the prophets of Old Testament times. The sheep have therefore to discern whether these undershepherds speak with the accents of the Chief Shepherd. By the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments must each "voice" be tested and proved.

The care of the Good Shepherd for His sheep is manifested not only in His provision of undershepherds to consort with the flock and help them (Eph. 4:11-13; 1 Peter 5:1-5; Acts 20:26-31); His care is manifested also in the overruling providences which form no small portion of the experience of all His people. What sheep of the Lord's hand but can remember and recount to His praise a number of such items in his experience? But in order that the Good Shepherd may thus lead each individual member of His flock, He must know His sheep to be such; and in order that the sheep may follow confidently along all the way the Shepherd leads, they must know Him, and must be able to trust Him implicitly. Have we this knowledge of our Shepherd? Are we rejoicing in His tender care for us as members of His flock? Do we under His guidance go in and out and find pasture? Are we ready to follow Him through everything, trusting Him to bring us home safe at last as well as to provide for the necessities of the present?

Finally, the Lord's people have to recognize that their Good Shepherd has been sent by God, the Father. While meditating upon the love of the Savior in laying down His life for the sheep, it is also to be borne in mind that He said—"This commandment have I received of my Father" (John 10:18). Many have been misled by the one-sided thought that the sacrifice of Jesus, accomplished on Calvary, was a display of the vindictiveness of God.

Without doubt the severity of God was there manifest, but equally so was His goodness; for it was His love for the world that sent the Son to be the one, only sacrifice for the sins of all, "that he might sanctify the people with his own blood," "that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man" (Heb. 13:12; 2:9). It was not divine vindictiveness that caused the death of the Redeemer; rather, it was the loving plan of the gracious God, who desires to be generous, but who realizes that He must first be just. To the inviolability of divine justice is due the stability of the universe, the reliability of God's Word, and our confidence in His precious promises (Rom. 3:24-26).

Thanks be to God for sanctifying His Son, and for sending Him into the world to die for us, to be our Good Shepherd, the Chief Shepherd, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant!—New Covenant Advocate.

Immortality in the Old Testament

IT WAS a terrible blow to the mind of the Hebrews to realize that God's hand was laid in affliction upon the righteous as well as upon the wicked. It completely disorganized all the former views and convictions of these people. How unwilling these Hebrews were to accept this view may be seen even as late as the days of our Lord (John 9:1, 2). But the book of Job brings out the Hebrew revulsion from the thought most forcefully. Suffering must mean God's displeasure; prosperity certainly shows God's smiles. Yet, there in the Old Testament is plainly seen the provision that through suffering the world is to receive the truth—the truth of the life of God among men—triumphant immortality. But the message must not have any geographical limitations, so God calls upon the islands to give attention to His promises, and invites the peoples from the far places of the earth to enter the halls of immortal hope (Isa. 49). But to get the message to all these widely separated peoples, He must scatter His own people. They think that God has thus cast them off from Him. Then it is that Jehovah cries out: "Fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, . . . neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the hand of their captivity" (Jer. 30:10).

Again, through Isaiah's lips God would comfort His people, assuring them that they were by no means forgotten: "Thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, seed of Abraham my friend, whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee . . . and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away" (Isa. 41:8, 9).

The one great effort of Jehovah was to get the light of life before all people everywhere. And He sent His servant to carry that light. As the Prophet said: "Thus saith God the Lord, he that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth, and that which cometh out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein; I the Lord have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house" (Isa. 42:5-7).

But Jehovah's ancient people seemed wholly to misunderstand His message. They thought themselves to be a sort of storage reservoir for immortality, rather than a channel by which the promise of immortality was to be carried to the people of all the earth. On account of this selfishness God saw that it was necessary to send them into the school of suffering to learn the lesson of eternal life. But they would not learn. Their eyes were filled with their own ideas so that they could not perceive the grander and universal provision which God had made for all mankind. Then it was that Jehovah spoke through His Prophet, saying: "Who is blind, but my servant? or deaf, as my messenger that I send? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the Lord's servant?" (Isa. 42:19).

"The final conclusion" in this selection from the work of an unknown author is that "the Old Testament in its dim way taught what the New Testament teaches regarding immortality"; i. e., a bodily resurrection from the dead is the only means by which man may secure eternal life.

This people had witnessed their marvelous preservation and elevation as a nation; they had realized the very presence of Jehovah in pillar of cloud and in glorious brightness. Yet they construed the whole of God's wonderful revelation as simply meaning that they should absorb all the life of eternal joy, and leave the rest of mankind out in "the cold." And when exile was used to press home to the Hebrew heart that God had other peoples whom He loved and used, this peculiar people would not learn the lesson. Those ancient men of God seemed to stagger under the awful fact that sorrow, adversity, and captivity should come upon the chosen people of the Lord, when Jehovah had so frequently promised that they should be established forever. And the Hebrew mind seemed to interpret the promised establishment as meaning that the Jews only could know the delight of immortality in the presence of God. Yet the divine word had sounded in their ears such a message as this: "It is too light for thy being my servant, merely to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel; I will also set thee for a light of nations, to be my salvation to the end of the earth" (Isa. 49:6).

In all this controversy between God and His people, we must not forget that the prominent idea in the minds of the Jews was that immortality had to do with this world-order of things. The hills were "everlasting" (Gen. 49:26; Hab. 3:6; et al.). The covenant made with them, the kingdom established, the name given, the light revealed, and, indeed, every other striking phase of their distinctive life on earth were all declared to be "everlasting." And to the Hebrew mind that could only mean the present order of things. Theirs was not a philosophical, analytical mind; their intellectual methods were illustrative and syncretical. Hence, when they remembered that God's promise was that their people would increase to become like the stars which cannot be counted, and like the innumerable sands of the seashore, the only conception which they could form was that of an unending, peaceful, powerful, death-destroying existence here on earth. And if we read the Old Testament simply by the aid of its own light, dismissing from our minds the complementary instruction afforded by the New Testament, we must admit that the teaching concerning immortality, especially in the earlier books, makes this world the place of experience and death; that is, what we commonly understand as dying and being dead—the element to be destroyed.

When, therefore, captivity and exile had blighted their early hopes, it is not strange that the Hebrews—the purest and best of them—should have looked longingly back to Jerusalem as the place to which they expected God to bring them to reestablish the kingdom. The very sufferings through which they were passing came to be looked upon as a means by which the immortal kingdom would at last become firmly fixed upon Mount Zion.

It is at this point in the study of the Old Testament that we came upon a promise of a personal Deliverer, who would restore God's people to their inheritance, and establish the kingdom forever. Or, perhaps, it would be more accurate to say that it was about this time in Israel's history when the conception of a Person to provide immortal conditions began to crystallize. True it is that there has been from the days of Moses a dim line of promises which might have been understood as foretelling a great leader who would triumphantly conduct the people of God into the place of immortal glory. He would be a Prophet to whom the people would give heed; He would be a Prince, upon whose shoulders might securely rest the government of God; He would be a Priest, pronouncing the peace of God upon the people; He would be "the everlasting Father," dwelling among His faithful ones (see Deut. 18:15-18; Dan. 9:25; Isa. 9:6; Nahum 1:15).

But with the centuries of sacred tradition back of them, it was next to impossible for the Jews to think of these promises as being anything else than a certain prediction
(Please turn to Page Nine)

The Called, the Chosen, the Faithful

IT IS said of those who escape the perils of the last days, and who stand redeemed and saved before God, that they are the "called, and chosen, and faithful" (Rev. 17:14). We are living in the calling time, the time when universally the great invitation call is going forth throughout the entire world. While distress and perplexities are causing men's hearts to fail them for fear, the people of God are admonished by the Savior that when these things begin to come to pass, they are to lift up their heads and be glad.

"Lift up your head, despondent pilgrim,
Give to the winds your needless fears,
He who has said redemption nareth,
Has promised to reign one thousand years."

We are called to the highest calling on earth. It is to a seat with Jesus, and with the redeemed of earth, and to reign in kingly or priestly authority for one thousand years. See Revelation 20, also Revelation 5:9. "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife (the church) hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints. And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb" (Rev. 19:7-9).

The great message of the hour is a call, "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Rev. 18:4). This message of calling people out of Babylon is spoken of also in Revelation 14:9, 10, for it is the same voice speaking from heaven, following the one that heralds the message of the fall of Babylon. In the latter place it is a special warning against worshiping the beast, with the decree that those who do so will drink of the wine of the wrath of God (the seven last plagues, Rev. 15:1, 7).

Babylon consists of the mother church and her daughters. See Revelation 17:4, 5. It is the church that once ruled the world with the so-called Protestant churches that have branched off from her, who have fallen. They have become abiding places for every foul spirit and cages of every unclean and hateful bird (Rev. 18:2, 3). This is why the message calling the honest of heart out of Babylon is timely, and constitutes the great message of the times.

The churches of Christendom are not what they once were. It has only been a few years since prayer meetings were well attended in the church, and when people would ride for miles to attend an old-fashioned house-to-house prayer meeting in the country districts, but now pleasure and feasting have taken the place of prayer.

In order to get an attendance at the city churches, the world has been invited into the church. You will find the poolroom, the billiard table, the card decks, and even the dancing halls in the basements of popular churches. No wonder the call to "come out of her, my people" is a timely message.

In order to attract people to prayer meetings, doughnuts are served, while coffee and sandwiches are served at other places. An oyster supper is given at another, and so on. We are truly living at the time of feasting which Jesus said would mark the closing period of this age, and the honest of heart, the real, true Christians, are disgusted with the present state and practice in the modern churches. Therefore, the message is in order to "come out of her, my people." Many are responding as the invitation call to the marriage supper of the Lamb goes forth. They are coming out of Babylon, and preparing to escape the seven last plagues.

In many city churches, if a poorly dressed man enters and seats himself, he will be invited to leave, and directed to services held for such as his class. If Jesus would enter barefoot, and in the common clothing worn in His time and place, He would be refused entrance, or invited to leave.

I am informed by a leading evangelist whose business it has been to go from place to place and carry on revival meetings, that in most all city churches there are tolerated all kinds of vice and sin by people who have money with which to pay the pastor and help defray the church expenses. This man said that when he went into a new place, he was requested by the local pastor not to say anything against bootlegging because so-and-so made his living that way, and times were hard, and they must have his support. Also not to say anything against the dance because another person, a good supporter of the church, ran a public dance; and not to condemn the poker game because another person was much interested in it, and he was a good member; not to mention the card game, or the theater, for similar reasons. This particular man was himself so disgusted with present vice in the church, against which he was not free to speak, that he has resigned his work and entered another profession.

Babylon has truly become the habitation of devils, the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird, as Jesus said it would be in the closing time (Rev. 18:2).

The very cream of modern churches, men and women, who are praying to God for light and understanding, have awakened to prevailing sins in the church, and are seeking for a people who stand whole-heartedly for God and for His righteousness. It is this class who are responding to the call, "Come out of her, my people."

THE CHOSEN

God is choosing such as have a contrite heart, and who yield to His pleading voice, following the "Lamb whithersoever he goeth." God says, "They shall walk with me in white, for they are worthy." It is only by the power of God through the blessed Holy Spirit that men and women will escape from the corruption of the age, and the pollution from contact with worldly people.

Jesus gave warning by saying, "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees." So it is today: worldly company will affect anyone unless he prays, and thus becomes magnetized with a resistant power, and filled with divine virtue, that, instead of being leavened by the worldly conversation, aspirations, and desires of worldly people, he will have power with them and bring them back to God. The Lord is only choosing such to walk with Him in white. They are those who have a missionary zeal and who by following the footsteps of Jesus and a life of prayer are able to overcome this present wicked world and labor to save others.

Jesus says, "Many are called, but few are chosen." As the message of calling people from the confusion of Babylon goes forth, it will only be the portion of those responding to the call who pray for the Holy Spirit and who receive it that will be saved. The fruits of the Spirit are "love, joy, peace."

The love referred to means divine love. Everyone possesses natural human love, but the love that comes as a fruit of the Holy Spirit is the love that God manifested when "he gave his only begotten Son" to save the lost and wayward men and women. It is that love that actuated Jesus when He gave His life and shed His blood to save the lost. Let each reader examine his own heart, and decide if he possesses divine love, which prompts him to give that which is dearest and worth the most to him, in order to save the lost and call the perishing ones out of Babylon, so they will escape the perils of the closing time, and the seven last plagues which are soon to fall.

THE FAITHFUL

The Lord says the redeemed and delivered ones from earth are the Called, the Chosen, and the Faithful. Faithfulness means much, and Jesus says if we are faithful in that which is least we are faithful also in much, and that it is required of a steward to be faithful. God has intrusted to us certain talents. To one is given more than to another, but if we dig in the earth, as it were, and hide the Lord's money, we are counted as a slothful servant. I fear that many are devoting the Lord's money to furnish bread to supply the physical needs of friends or loved ones, and are thus burying the Lord's money.

The portion of our lives that God requires, and which is plainly set forth in both the Old and New Testaments, is the tithe. God is testing men and women today as to their faithfulness. The tithe, "the firstfruits," is expressly to go for the spiritual welfare, and not for the temporal needs of humanity. The difference is so vastly great between the physical and the spiritual that no comparison can in reality be made. The physical is only for a few years, while the spiritual is for all eternity. It reaches throughout the countless ages and cycles of time. Christendom must be faithful if they are to be among the chosen and escape the seven last plagues and be received into the kingdom of God.

It is not necessary to produce any argument relative to the duty of every Christian in giving himself to save the lost. Neither is it in order to produce the many scriptures setting forth the biblical teaching in both the Old and New Testaments on tithe-paying. They are many, and it is a moral duty so firmly set forth that God called those who willfully neglected or refused to pay the tithe, robbers, and brought great curses upon the land for this sin.

Let not one Christian be deceived by thinking himself a Christian unless he possesses that divine love for saving the lost that will prompt him to sacrifice in administering to their eternal needs. Even if times are hard and incomes cut down, God is expecting faithfulness on the part of every one of His children. He promises to so bless the remaining portion that the giver of the tithe will be more than repaid temporally. This must not be the motive in being a faithful steward of the Lord. His great love will so permeate our very beings that it will be a joy to sacrifice, and give ourselves freely to carry the bread of life to earth's perishing millions. Then God will bless us a hundredfold in this life, and we will be among the number of the Called, the Chosen, and the Faithful when our short race here is finished.—A. N. Dugger in The Bible Advocate.

IMMORTALITY IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

(Continued from Page Seven)

that Jehovah would surely restore the Jews to their ancestral land which the divine finger had first pointed out as the everlasting abode of His own faithful people. So this emphasizing of a person who would provide immortal conditions by the exercise of his various functions, executive and mediatorial, only narrowed the expectation of the Hebrews to a looking for One who would fulfill the long-delayed promise of immortality; but the earth was the place within which the One was to come; and Jerusalem was the spot where the immortal glory was to first flash out.

That which constitutes the central feature of the kingdom to the Christian was the main feature of the kingdom to the Hebrew, viz., to be in the visible presence of God and enjoy communion with Him. But the Christian sees that privilege only within the sphere of the heavenly hereafter, while the Hebrew viewed it as taking place on earth within the realm of time. To the Jew, Jehovah was present, literally, in the cloud, the fire, the storm, the tabernacle, the temple. He must not be looked upon; but these garments of His are seen by all His people. Life meant the existence of a man as He had come from the hands of the Creator. Man was an entity, requiring the conditions of time and the environment of earth for His being. The Platonic idea of man's make-up never entered the mind of the Old Testament writer; he could never have accepted the scheme of which Wordsworth sang so confidently:

"Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting.
The soul that rises with us, our life's star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting,
And cometh from afar."

The Old Testament knows nothing of that doctrine which views the body as a "prison house, and makes man freest and happiest only after he has been liberated by death." Death cuts communication off from God. Immortality was the continuance of fellowship. And the final state of the Old Testament doctrine was that which conceived of the promised Deliverer as one who should reassemble the scattered sons of the faithful, break the yoke of bondage and establish the kingdom of God again in the land of promise, with Jehovah as the reigning Sovereign in His King on the throne of David.

Such, in general, is the teaching of the Old Testament concerning immortality. Such was the general view of the Hebrews, even as late as the days of Jesus Christ. Note the question of the apostles: "Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6). And it would seem that the Jewish people of today who are faithful to the Old Testament still maintain that Messiah must reestablish His kingdom upon Mount Zion, in Palestine, and then the realization of the promise of immortality will have been accomplished.

But, while the Jews strongly held to that idea, there are many references in the Old Testament that teach emphatically that immortality would come through the promised "seed," and be given to all who accepted Him, whether Jew or Greek; and that such an immortality would be a bodily one, and cover the entire man. Such an immortality we will have at last as we put it on at the resurrection of the dead (1 Cor. 15), at the second coming of Jesus Christ, our Lord. The final conclusion is: the Old Testament in its dim way taught what the New Testament teaches regarding immortality.—The Messiah's Advocate.

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

(Continued from Page Four)

apostles, although we find that precise formula but once in the Bible; once being quite enough to render it a law (Matt. 28:19). On the same principle of interpretation we must conclude that "the gospel of the kingdom" was preached everywhere the apostles went, for the words of the Master—"This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world"—most plainly required them to preach it. And this is even clearer, if possible, than the universality of the baptismal formula; for we have frequent allusion to the preaching of the kingdom by the apostles. Thus we find Philip in Samaria "preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ" (Acts 8:12). Also Paul in Ephesus, and other places, preaching "the things concerning the kingdom of God" (Acts 19:8; 20:25). In Rome he dwelt two whole years, "preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ" (Acts 28:23, 31).

THE MEANING OF "RALLY DAY"

(Continued from Front Page)

of the Lord and associate with them as common members of the body of Christ. The thought is brought out by Paul in many places but strongly in the 3rd chapter of Galatians and the 28th verse, where he says, "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

The word "call" also has significance in this definition of "rally." We are the "called out" people of God (Acts 15:14), having been "called out of darkness into his marvellous light" (1 Peter 2:9).

Reunite. This definition of "rally" reminds one of the words of Peter, found in his First Epistle, chapter 2, verse 25: "For ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls." We have been reunited with God from whom we had been separated by our sins.

Restore. This word, which is another definition of "rally," conveys the thought of complete restoration to divine favor. "Now are we the sons of God." (OVER)

So much for the present spiritual meaning of Rally Day. It reminds us of the entire progress and development of our Christian experience.

But we must also look into the future, for these definitions of Rally Day have an even more profound and glorious meaning when they are applied to the great final Rally Day appointed by the Lord. We will consider each word and its significance once more.

Reanimate. We said that this word signified "to live again." This first synonym of "rally" suggests that the one reanimated once lived, then died, and is now made to live again. That is what Jesus said of Himself after His resurrection: "I am he that liveth, and was dead" (Rev. 1:18). He expressed the same thought in His conversation with Martha before the resurrection of Lazarus: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" (John 11:25).

When the last Rally Day of the church universal shall come, "the dead in Christ shall rise first" (1 Thess. 4:16). They who once lived in Him, then died in Him, shall be literally reanimated—made to live again in Him and die no more! That is the Rally Day in which Martha believed and for which she looked when she answered Jesus' reassuring statement concerning Lazarus, "Thy brother shall rise again," by saying, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day" (John 11:23, 24).

Rally Day points with unerring finger to the coming of the Life-Giver and the resurrection of those who sleep in Him.

Revive. There is a shade of difference in meaning in the words reanimate and revive, and in that shade of difference is revealed another wonderful promise of the Lord.

Revive, like reanimate, is a synonym of "rally" and means "to live anew." But the importance of this word lies in the fact that, unlike reanimate, it does not of necessity infer that the one affected by it was ever really dead! "Revive" is defined as "to reinvigorate," to fill with new energy which was not known before. It is often used of one who has suffered a partial or complete loss of consciousness from any cause. When restoratives are applied the unconscious man is said to revive. Of course he was never really dead, neither was he properly alive. But after the stimulants were applied his condition, which closely resembled death and which constantly threatened death, passed, and he felt life in its fullness surging through his entire being.

At the great Rally Day of Christ, the mystery of which Paul speaks will be clearly revealed, and the saints of God who live always on the borderland of Death, shrinking ever from its dreaded approach, shall suddenly, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, . . . be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:52, 53).

Rally Day thus points not alone to the resurrection of those who sleep in Jesus, but also to the immortalization of the faithful ones who are alive when He comes.

Call together is given as another synonym of "rally," and with its utterance we are reminded of the hopeful words of Job—the answer he makes to his own question:

"If a man die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thy hands" (Job 14:14, 15).

In like manner the Master says: "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:28, 29).

The first purpose of the Lord when He comes will be to "call together" His disciples, which is what the word "rally" means. "He shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other" (Matt. 24:31), "for . . . we that are alive, that are left unto the coming of the Lord, shall in no wise precede them that are fallen asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, with a shout, . . . and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we that are alive, that are left, shall together with them be caught up in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:15-17, A. R. V.).

What blessed reunions are pictured in the next definition of Rally Day that is given in the dictionary!

Reunite. The faithful of all ages will be brought together in one glorious company for the first time when the Rally Day of the Lord is ushered in. Abraham will be reunited with his beloved wife Sarah; Isaac with Rebecca; Jacob with Rachel! Friend will meet with friend again, brother with brother, saint with saint! Family ties long broken will be reunited and the faces of mothers wreathed with joy as they look once more upon the features of their sons and daughters, all safe at last in the eternal kingdom of our God!

And best of all, we shall see Jesus Christ, our Redeemer and our King, face to face, for "so shall we ever be with the Lord"!

Rally Day, with its homecomings and its happy but temporary reunions, points to that better and age-lasting Rally Day of God when God's children shall come home for evermore!

Restore! The last and most glorious synonym of them all! Restore! Restitution! Restoration! That is what Rally Day foretells! It reminds us vividly of the time when God our loving Father "shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution ("restoration," A. R. V.) of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:20, 21)!

The final definition of Rally Day means the grand consummation of all the plans and purposes of God for the eternal blessing of mankind. It includes the second coming of the Lord, the resurrection and immortalization of the righteous, the establishment of the kingdom, the regathering of Israel, and the ushering in of that millennial reign of universal peace, prosperity, and endless life for which we pray and watch and wait! Glorious Rally Day of God!

PRECIOUSNESS OF THE GOSPEL THE TOUCH OF A MASTER'S HAND

THE GOSPEL is the most valuable treasure the believer possesses. Everything else is shadowy, chimerical, transitory, passing away. Nothing is real, nothing substantial, nothing satisfying and abiding, save the "glorious gospel of the blessed God." It is the glorious gospel because it is replete with real glory, it reveals a glorious God, it makes known a glorious salvation, and it unveils the hope of a glorious immortality. And all other glory in comparison to the "glorious gospel of the blessed God" is as visionary and fleeting as a midnight dream. Nowhere does Jehovah appear so glorious as in the gospel of His grace. There He is revealed as a sin-forgiving God. There He is portrayed as a reconciled God in Christ and He is represented as standing in the relation, and exercising the love of a Father. Oh! glorious gospel that presents such a view of God to the sinner's believing eye! "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself"; what declaration can more clearly indicate the love of God to us, as the moving, original cause of our salvation, than this? There is a marked and, we think, essential defect in the theology of many Christians touching this subject, which tends much to obscure the divine glory, and to lessen in our view the greatness of God's love in man's salvation. We refer to the statements which represent God as angry, incensed, and vindictive, and as appeased, pacified, and reconciled by the death of Christ. Is not this an essential misapprehension of God's everlasting love to His people? Would it not appear from this representation of God that the atonement of Christ was the original cause of His love, rather than that His love was the originating cause of the atonement? We think so. We look upon this notion of God as enshrouding the glory of redemption, by the palpably false view it presents of the divine character. But the correct statement is the converse of this. God loved us and, as a result, Christ died for us. The atonement of the Son of God was not the procuring cause, but the consequence of the Father's love. Christ did not inspire God with love to man, but expressed it. He did not die to originate the divine affection, but to expound and exhibit it. The love of God to His people was as eternal as the eternity of His being, as everlasting as His increate nature. "I have loved thee with an everlasting love." It panted, it yearned for an outlet. It sought and formed it in Christ. The atonement of Jesus, uniting and harmonizing all the perfections of the Deity, supplied the channel through which the ocean of divine love washed the shores of this earth, its soul-healing waves spreading like a sea of life over our sin-tainted, curse-blighted, sorrow-stricken humanity. When, therefore, the gospel speaks of divine reconciliation we are to understand the full expiatory satisfaction given to God's moral government through the atonement of Christ, by which His law is honored, His justice is satisfied, His holiness is secured, His truth is maintained; and He appeared upon earth walking among men, reconciling the world unto Himself.—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

'Twas battered, scarred, and the auctioneer Thought it scarcely worth his while
To waste his time on the old violin
But held it up with a smile.
"What am I bidden, good people," he cried,
"Who'll start the bidding for me?
A dollar, a dollar, now two, only two;
Two dollars, and who'll make it three?
Three dollars once, three dollars twice;
Going for three?" But no!
From the room far back a gray-haired man
Came forward and picked up the bow,
Then wiping the dust from the old violin
And tightening up the strings,
He played a melody pure and sweet,
As sweet as an angel sings.

The music ceased and the auctioneer
With a voice that was quiet and low
Said, "What am I bid for the old violin?"
And he held it up with the bow.
"A thousand dollars, and who'll make it two,
Two thousand, and who'll make it three?
Three thousand once, three thousand twice;
And going and gone," said he.
The people cheered, but some of them cried,
"We don't quite understand What changed its worth?" Swift came the reply,
"The touch of a master's hand."
And many a man with life out of tune
And battered and torn with sin,
Is auctioned cheap to a thoughtless crowd
Much like the old violin.
A mess of pottage, a glass of wine,
A game, and he travels on.
He is going once, and going twice;
He's going and almost gone.
But the Master comes and the foolish crowd
Never can quite understand—
The worth of a soul, and the change that's wrought
By the touch of the Master's hand.

—Robert Fields.

Thessalonica, to which Paul addressed two of his Epistles, still exists. The modern city, known as Salonika, was made famous during the World War as the base for many troops of the American Expeditionary Force. A large colony of Jews, descendants of the refugees driven from Spain by the edict of Ferdinand and Isabella in the time written into history by Columbus, survives in the city. The entire colony speaks Spanish, corrupted but little from the pure Castilian dialect. The city looks up to Olympus, whereon Homer found the home of the gods, and Cicero found only snow and ice.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

The Story of Ruth

By Marilyn Weaver, 13, Brush Creek, Ohio, Church of God

In the time of the judges of Israel a man named Elimelech lived in Bethlehem. His wife, Naomi, and their two sons lived happily until the crops became poor for some years and food was scarce. So the family went to the land of Moab.

There they stayed for ten years. The two sons married women of Moab, Orpah and Ruth. But Elimelech and the sons died, leaving Naomi and the daughters-in-law alone.

Naomi heard that God had again given good harvests to the land of Judah, and so she decided to go back. Her daughters-in-law loved her and would have gone with her. But Naomi bade them return to their own parents, saying, "May the Lord be kind to you as you have been kind to me." The young widows said, "You have been a good mother to us and we will go with you and live among your people." "No, no," answered Naomi. "You are young and I am old. Go back and be happy among your own people."

Then Orpah kissed Naomi and returned to her people; but Ruth would not leave her, saying, "Nothing but death shall part us." When Naomi saw that Ruth was firm she ceased trying to persuade her, and the two women traveled on together.

During the ten years' absence of Naomi the people of Bethlehem had missed her greatly. For this reason she was gladly accepted back again. They asked, "Is this really Naomi, whom we knew years ago?" The name Naomi means "pleasant," and so she answered: "Call me not 'Naomi,' call me 'Mara,' " meaning "bitter," for she felt the Lord had dealt bitterly with her.

In Bethlehem lived a rich man named Boaz, who owned large barley fields. Boaz was related to Naomi's dead husband.

It was now the time of barley harvest. The reapers always left some grain stalks for the poor. So Ruth went out to glean, and it so happened she gleaned in the fields of Boaz.

At this time Boaz came to see his reapers. They said, "The Lord bless you." Boaz asked, "Who is this strange young woman gleaning here?" "The young woman from Moab who returned with Naomi. She has been gathering grain since yesterday." Then Boaz comforted Ruth, "Daughter, do not go to any other field but mine. No one shall harm you. When you are thirsty drink of my vessels of water." Ruth bowed and thanked him for his kindness to a stranger.

Boaz reminded Ruth of her kindness to Naomi in coming home with her, saying, "May the Lord reward you greatly." At noon when they sat down to rest and to eat, Boaz gave Ruth some of his food.

When Naomi heard of his kindness she said, "Stay in his fields as long as the harvest shall last."

At the end of the harvest Boaz held a feast on his threshing floor. After the feast, by the advice of Naomi, Ruth went to him and said, "You are a near relative of my dead husband. Won't you help us for his sake?" Boaz loved Ruth and soon took her for his wife. Naomi went to their home, and so her life was no longer bitter, but pleasant.

Boaz and Ruth were blessed with a son, Obed. In later years Obed had a son, Jesse. Jesse was the father of David, the shepherd boy who became king. So Ruth, the young woman of Moab who chose the people and the God of Israel, became the mother of Israel's kings and of Him who is to be the greatest King of all.

Go on Unto Perfection

I recall a house built on logs. A stump was left under the kitchen. Time went on, the logs rotted, the house tipped and settled. The old stump made a hill out of the kitchen floor. How could one enjoy the piano, or the stove, or anything when the whole house was apt to tumble? There might be momentary pleasure, but the real joy would be lacking. So it is with the foolish man whose life is not built on the sayings of Jesus the Christ.

Every one of the six foundation principles of Hebrews 6:1, 2 has a corresponding part of your life to uphold.

Repentance from dead works: Above this stone are the living works built. Living works bear good fruit into eternity.

Faith toward God: Upon this stone is built that precious communion with the Eternal, that fellowship with God, that knowledge that He is Creator, that "he is, and that he is a rewarder."

Baptism: Here comes the satisfaction of being completely washed from the stain and stench of sin.

Laying on of hands: The only one who can truly judge whether you are Christian or hypocrite is the one filled with the Spirit of God through a consecrated study of His Word. Non-Christians cannot do this. Here is built the happiness of Christian encouragement coming from our true brothers and sisters in Christ.

Resurrection of the dead: Here we have the only satisfying comfort in the presence of death.

Eternal judgment: Here we understand that sin shall not go on forever, but that some day God will wipe out all the offensive things of this world and in their place bring in everlasting righteousness and peace.

It is upon these stones that our Christian builds his life. Here he can have the abiding joys of a real home, bound together with that bond of perfectness (Col. 3:14), love.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

WHY WE KEEP RULES

IN THE HOMES of all the boys and girls who read this page there are certain rules. These rules are not written out and tacked up where you can see them in most cases. But they are understood, nevertheless, by each member of the family.

I wonder why there are rules in every family. You can all tell me, no doubt. One would give one reason, and another might give a different reason.

But in the end the reasons would amount to the same thing. And we might sum them up thus:

Every family has rules so that life will run smoothly for all and each member will be happy.

Sometimes we get a little grouchy and we think Father has set down a certain rule for us just to show us he is "boss." Or we feel grieved against Mother and think she tells us we must not do something we want very much to do just because she is "old-fashioned."

But after awhile our better self comes to the surface again, and we know that all these rules are for our good. We notice, too, that Father and Mother keep certain rules. And surely they wouldn't do that if it were not better so.

Now God gave Moses many, many, rules by which to govern the children of Israel. These rules were all for their good if they had been able to keep them. But they were continually breaking one of them.

So when God sent His Son, Jesus our Savior, into the world He gave Him just one rule to govern us. It was called the Golden Rule. All of you know it, I'm sure.

But let us turn the pages of our Bibles and read it. Where are the words of Jesus found at greater length than any other place? In the Sermon on the Mount. You remember that sermon takes up three chapters, Matthew 5, 6, and 7.

In Matthew 7:12 we find Jesus' rule of life: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law."

Now read the verse at the top of the page. That tells you how to keep the law. By love! There is no other way it can be kept.

The very first lesson all of us must learn just as soon as we are able to understand anything is obedience. It is the best lesson we ever learn but sometimes the hardest.

Those who have not learned to obey the rules of home will not obey the rules of school. And we know it would be a very poor school that didn't have rules and expect obedience to them.

Later in life we still meet rules, the rules of our country. If grown-ups obeyed the rules of life as cheerfully as some boys and girls do there wouldn't be so many accidents today. Shame on the grown-ups!

We obey our parents because we love them and we know they love us. We realize that the rules they lay down for us are for our good and our happiness.

God is our heavenly Father and His wisdom is very, very much greater than that of our earthly fathers. He, too, asks us to obey Him. And we will obey Him if we love Him.

We just can't help loving Father and Mother. Their whole lives are devoted to us. They continually look out for our welfare and happiness.

God is even better than they, for He has all power and all wisdom. There is no good that He need withhold from us, because everything in the world belongs to Him. But He wouldn't give us something that might not be for our good, because He knows everything. He is all-wise.

Can we help loving such a heavenly Father as that? Can we do less than obey a Father so loving, so wise, so powerful? He asks so little in return for all He gives. Just to love and obey Him.

It seems strange to some people, but we know that the person who loves God the best and obeys Him most carefully, also loves his country best and obeys its laws most carefully. For that person keeps God's law.

And God's law says we shall treat others as we want to be treated. No one wants others to do him harm. So he will not do others any harm. The Apostle Paul says the only way we can do it is to love one another, just as Jesus loves us.

"Jesus walks beside you
All life's journey through;
Let Him cheer and guide you,
Keep the goal in view;
In His service royal
Your reward is sure,
Faithful, true, and loyal,
He will keep you pure."

AMONG THE CHURCHES

"AWAY BACK WHEN —"

The following excerpts from a letter dated Daysville, Ill., September 29, 1857, will be of interest to the older ones in Illinois. Attention is called to the fact that the church was then known as "the Church of God."

"Bro. Marsh: The Church of God in this section met in Conference at Crane's Grove, according to appointment. Bro. George Craton of Monroe, Wis., was called to the chair."

Among the four resolutions passed by the gathering these will be of special interest:

"3. Resolved, That Robert Chown be appointed to wait in the Church at Paine's Point; Bro. House, Plum River Church; Bro. Wm. Renner, East Plum River Church; Bro. T. J. Whitesitt (later with E. A. Marsh the first evangelist of the Iowa Conference—Ed.), Mt. Pleasant Church; Bro. J. Craton, Twine Grove Church; and Bro. J. Spears, Crane's Grove Church."

"The Conference appointed Bro. F. Kenney of Crane's Grove and Bro. T. J. Whitesitt of Mt. Pleasant, and the writer (Robert Chown of Daysville),—to preach the Word (as evangelists?), having the confidence of the Church, their faith being the one faith of the Gospel."

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Our fall activities are taking form very rapidly, especially that of the undertaking to finish the church basement. The contract has not been given to anyone as yet, but we are making good progress to raise five or six hundred dollars toward it. Any who would like to assist in this project may do so by writing our treasurer, Sr. Mary Hatten, Culver. The first week we have raised over a hundred dollars. More Bible school room is needed, and we ask your prayers that we may accomplish the work.

The Morning Star Class meeting was held at the home of Bro. and Sr. Albert Overmyer. It is this class that started the idea of finishing the basement, and all others have pledged their full support.

We have a splendid group of young people here and they are coming together tonight (Oct. 15) to make further plans. We thank the young folks for their enthusiasm.

Bro. Dewey Overmyer and Bro. Albert Overmyer spent Sunday with their families and in attending services. These brethren are working at present at Springfield, Ohio.

The ladies are as busy as can be quilting. The last two weeks they have met with Sr. Dunn Weaver, with a good attendance.

The all-day meeting at Kokomo September 27, though raining all day, was very successful, with 94 attending. Bro. William Huffer of Hillisburg gave a splendid sermon in the afternoon on Christ's Sermon on the Mount. The children's choir and their good orchestra assisted well in the services. Bro. and Sr. Parker continue to give out bread, rolls, and doughnuts to the needy. They have given thousands of them during the last few months. This is a contact that benefits the Bible school, as they use their influence to urge all to attend. A splendid work, and we pray God will give them strength to carry on for the Master.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

IOWA FALL CONFERENCE

The Iowa Fall Conference was held at Eagle Grove Sunday, Oct. 11. About 75 were present. Cedar Falls, Waterloo, Koszta, Stanhope, Gladbrook, and Marathon were represented.

John L. Denchfield, St. Cloud, Minn., conducted the morning service. This was held at the residence of A. M. Jones. The afternoon service, held at the Baptist Church, was in charge of J. W. Williams. Dinner was served in the church basement at noon.

The regular semi-monthly meeting in northwestern Iowa was held at the Arthur Carlson residence near Marathon on October 18.

Mrs. Anna Boyanovsky.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

Sunday, Oct. 11, was our Rally Day. The Sunday school attendance was 72 and church was well attended both morning and evening. We were pleased to have Bro. and Sr. Elza Robins of Peoria and Bro. and Sr. George Slagle and daughter of Dunlap, Ill., present for Sunday school and morning service.

Sr. Mallory of Mt. Sterling, who has been ill for the past several months, is able to be about, but as yet cannot resume her duties of caring for elderly people.

We plan to soon take up again our Sunday school teachers' meeting each week as we did last winter. We had a thorough study of the lesson during the week which proved to be a great help to the teachers and also the pupils.

Harvey Krogh, Jr., Pastor.

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."—Acts 16:31.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

We are happy to report that Bro. Harry Goekler of Marshall, Ill., is on the ground acting as assistant pastor for the time being, at least.

A Christian Endeavor Society is being organized, which plans to meet each Sunday night at six o'clock. We hope for a real interesting activity in this department for our young people. According to the set-up for the present Bro. Goekler will speak at the evening sermon hour.

Final preparations are being made for the anniversary week-end. A cordial invitation is extended. Entertainment will gladly be furnished those from a distance. Remember the dates—October 23 to 25.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

HICKORY GROVE, IOWA

Bro. John Denchfield of St. Cloud, Minn., came to Maxwell, Iowa, on Friday, Sept. 25. On Sunday morning, Sept. 27, he preached his first sermon out in the country at the Hickory Grove Church. There was a good audience. At this time it was decided to hold meetings each evening until the latter part of the week.

We had a splendid meeting with a fair attendance. We all enjoyed very much the Bible discourses of Bro. Denchfield. The meeting closed on Friday evening.

Mrs. Earl Bowen, Secretary.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

Sunday, Oct. 11, was Rally Day. In fact, it was but the beginning of Rally Day, as the remainder of October is Rally Month. We were favored with beautiful weather; and the services of the day were well attended. The Sunday school attendance was 72, which sets a new high mark for us; our average Sunday school attendance is approximately 35. The attendance at the morning service was 53 and at the evening service 32. As we have mentioned before, an attendance of 53 is quite an event as our total membership is only 17. We were glad to welcome brethren from Leaf River, Oregon, Rochelle, and Pearl City, Ill., and Beloit, Wis.

We were pleased to have Sr. Estella Kohl present at the morning service. She is a member of our Salem Church near Marshall, Ill., but is at present employed in Rockford.

We would appreciate it if the brethren would send us the names and addresses of friends or relatives living in Rockford who might be interested in attending our church services. We are in touch with some of these families, but there are others whose addresses we have not yet been able to obtain. Address the secretary at 624 Rockton Ave.

Our treasurer has been presenting a more confident and less worried appearance for the past few months. The reason: we have two more converts to tithing, and she is now able to take care of all expenses as they are incurred, and have a balance left over. This makes at least four new tithers since the first of the year; and we have almost reached the 100 per cent mark for tithers among our wage-earning members.

Our services are: Sunday school every Sunday morning at 9:45. Preaching services every second and fourth Sunday of the month at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The meeting place is the W.C.T.U. Hall, 1904 N. Main St. Bro. L. E. Conner is our pastor.

Esta L. Starbuck, Secretary.

LANSBERY - BODIN

Miss Kathryn Lansbery, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Vernon Lansbery of Casey, Ill., and Mr. Vernol Bodin of Rockford, Ill., were united in marriage August 15 at the home of the bride's parents. The service was read by the Rev. Leland L. Laurence, pastor of the M. E. Church of Casey.

The bride, who has been employed in Rockford for a number of years, is a member of the Rockford Church of God. The young couple are making their home in Rockford, and we pray God's blessings upon them in their new home.

Esta L. Starbuck.

"Whatever makes men good Christians, makes them good citizens."—Daniel Webster, Speech at Plymouth, Dec. 22, 1820.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Maybelle Hanson; Eva H. M. Fletcher; W. A. Reid; Helen M. Chisholm; Dorothy Magaw; Silas M. Claypool; Mrs. Ray Maysilles; Margaret Donaly; Irena Margrave; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mary J. Calkins; Ida F. Orem; Jessie M. B. Kauffman; Lydia Railsback; Jessie M. Shea; Mr. and Mrs. Levi Coffin.

THE STUDENT'S NOTEBOOK

Hebrews—Israelites—Jews. In the Old Testament the word "Jew" is applied to one who followed the Mosaic faith as practiced at Jerusalem after the return from the Babylonian captivity; and it is thus used in the book of Esther. In more recent times the word has been loosely applied to the Hebrew race. Under the theocracy the Jews were known as "Hebrews," under the monarchy as "Israelites," and during foreign domination as "Jews." The modern representatives of this stock call themselves "Hebrews" in race and language, and "Israelites" in religion, but "Jews" in both senses.—New Standard Dictionary.

It is interesting to note in connection with this recent (July, 1936) definition that Paul, although born of the tribe of Benjamin (Rom. 11:1; Phil. 3:5), called himself a "Jew" (Acts 21:39; 22:3; Gal. 2:15), indicating that at that time representatives of other than the tribe of Judah had come to be known as "Jews." Paul also denominated himself a "Hebrew" (Phil. 3:5) and an "Israelite" (2 Cor. 11:22).—Editor.

Strictly speaking, a "Jew" was a descendant of Judah; in latter times also an Israelite. In 2 Kings 16:6 this appellation is applied to the two tribes (Judah and Benjamin); in later days the twelve tribes.—Young's Analytical Concordance.

HERMAN P. RUHN

Herman P. Ruhn was born in Germany, September 22, 1878, and died at his home in Litchfield, Minn., October 6, 1936.

At the age of four years he came to America with his parents, who settled in the vicinity of Paynesville and Eden Valley, Minn. This community remained his home until two years ago, when he and his family moved to Litchfield.

On September 27, 1909, he was married to Alda Matheny. He is survived by his wife Alda and five children—Mrs. Leslie Hamilton of Litchfield, and Elton, Elna, Marjorie, and Lois, who are still at home; also one grandchild, little Joyce Darleen Hamilton.

Also mourning his death are two brothers and three sisters. They are William Ruhn of Eden Valley; August Ruhn of Cogswell, N. D.; Mrs. Annie Petzel of Wilmar, Minn.; Mrs. Bertha Newman of Minneapolis, Minn.; and Mrs. Minnie Haggberg of Isle, Minn.

In the spring of 1910 he was baptized into the saving name of Jesus Christ by Elder Henry Dingman. From that time forward he became an active worker in the Christian field. He served as a member of the official board of the Church of God at Eden Valley for many years, and was seldom missing from his place at any of the church services.

He will be sorely missed, not alone by his family, but by his brethren in Christ and a host of friends who had grown to know and love him.

J. R. LeCrone.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE

A dreary place would be this earth
Were there no little people in it;
The song of life would lose its mirth,
Were there no children to begin it.

No little forms, like buds to grow,
And make the admiring heart surrender;
No little hands on breast and brow,
To keep the thrilling heart-chorus tender.

Life's song, indeed, would lose its charm,
Were there no babies to begin it;
A doleful place this world would be,
Were there no little people in it.

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

Puzzle Department: "The Bible teaches that the Godhead consists in Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Though we may not fully understand this doctrine, it provides for us a clearer setting for the mercy of God."—Signs of the Times.

There is today no foreign-language version of the Bible in normal use (except the Latin Vulgate and the Greek Septuagint) which is not in the common idiom. Only the English races cling to the archaic forms.

Quoth Politician C. Wayland Brooks, apropos of the ministers assembled at the 35th anniversary of the West Side Congregational Church, Dixon, Illinois: "Were it not for the ideals of religion which these men have preached so ably and effectively, how barren would be this world of ours. The very structure of our civilization rests upon these ideals. Take them away and society sinks back into anarchy, barbarism, and chaos."

"'The time has come,' the Walrus said,
'To talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings.'"

According, observes Knudson, to the theory of circumincession, there is a "living reciprocal interpenetration of the three hypostases." We always did wonder what the Trinity was all about.

It isn't so surprising, at that, that so many ministers take up politics or writing. Politics may be a dog fight and writing may be a ton or two of critical mail, but compared with the storms the preacher has to ride they're the Jersey cream in anybody's coffee.

Connotes John Garland Pollard's "A Connotary": "Agnostic. (a) A man who doesn't believe anything and wants other people to share his beliefs. (b) One who says he knows nothing about God, and when you agree with him, becomes angry."

Prophetic sermon: An address to frighten people into believing something they haven't been told about.

What with the burst of enthusiasm over evangelism and training religious workers, care must be exercised that the essential purpose of these be not lost. Dogma, forgotten by the popular churches, is the sole excuse for the existence of any religious group, and its teaching should be the center of all preaching.

Three national church conferences either just have been held or are being held. In each, the principal subject of discussion is world peace. It's a sorry day for the internationalists who preach the brotherhood of man with reference only to education, politics, disarmament.

Came to our desk "The Plan of the New History Society for the Reconstruction of the Human Commonwealth." It does a Pearl S. Buck. To secure peace and unity, it advocates "the preparation of a Universal Bible drawn from the writings of the Prophets and masters, and the teaching of the same in all the schools of the world."

A Dictionary of the Bible

Edited by John D. Davis, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Fourth Revised Edition

Recommended by Aurora College

In cloth binding, $3.00 postpaid

In half leather, $4.00 postpaid

In full Morocco, $7.50 postpaid

All proper nouns pronounced

High quality paper

Readable type

A satisfying library of Bible information is found in this fourth revised edition, which is now selling at reduced prices. The 856 pages contain 6,000 articles, 229 good illustrations, and accurate colored maps. The articles cover the contents of the books of the Old and New Testaments in both the King James and Revised Versions, together with the First Book of the Maccabees in the Revised Version. The articles on the canonical books have been elaborated to show the place which the books have occupied and to exhibit the personal traits of the writers. Meanings and pronunciations of proper names, genealogical description of persons, and locations of places add to the comprehensiveness of the book.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

SNOWDEN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

The sixteenth annual volume of James H. Snowden's comments on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons represents no visible change from any of the recent preceding volumes. Rather than engaging in exhaustive and technical studies of the text of each lesson, Dr. Snowden prefers treating the subject by dividing the text into sections and presenting suggestive questions and paragraphic essays on those sections.

For the teacher who feels that the greatest value of a Sunday school lesson lies, not in a detailed word-for-word study of the printed text, but in a general survey of the lesson subject, Dr. Snowden offers what is probably the best in the Sunday school field. By owning the Snowden commentary, the teacher puts himself in a position to know well in advance the purposes and themes of all the lessons for the year, in this instance 1937.

The book sketches historical and geographical backgrounds briefly when they appear necessary; it touches all the salient points of each lesson; and it offers a wide variety of essentially practical ideas. It is intended for teachers handling young people and adults only, but it could be adapted to younger classes without great effort.

The text printed with each lesson is taken from the American Standard Version, as is true with all such commentaries except Arnold's.

Macmillan Company: $1.35; $1.45 postpaid.

AS A MAN THINKETH

"Thought and character are one" is the contention of James Allen in this minor classic. For a good many years, As a Man Thinketh has been one of the better known and certainly one of the better loved essays. This edition is specially authorized, and is printed on an excellent grade of paper between antique yapp covers (a type of leather that is exceedingly beautiful, but is rarely used on books).

The book is, of course, a short one, since it contains nothing except this one Allen writing. Its philosophy is salutary, its language simple. As a gift for anyone who likes to own fine books or who prefers to do his own thinking, this could hardly be excelled.

Thomas Y. Crowell Company: $1.25.

IT'S IN THE BIBLE

To accompany the two series of crossword puzzle pads already released by them, W. A. Wilde Company of cultured Boston have bared to the public the third portion of the It's in the Bible blanks, this time concerning the cities, mountains, rivers, and living creatures of the Bible.

Each series (No. 1 is on the New Testament and No. 2 on the Old Testament) consists of six pads of ten crossword puzzle blanks. Each set of ten puzzles is the same throughout; i. e., there are, in every one of the three series, six different puzzles with ten sheets of each puzzle. Consequently, any of the series can be used for classwork, for recreation, for extra-curricular Bible class work, or for your own amusement. All puzzles are centered on the Bible, although, of course, necessity has occasionally driven their authors to turn to modern language and geography.

Here is an excellent way to learn about the Bible and at the same time to enjoy yourself thoroughly. Young people particularly will find them a gracious relief from the normal class routine. And they could save you considerable time, to say nothing of keeping wrinkles of worry from your face, when you're appointed to one of those entertainment committees.

W. A. Wilde Company: 50 cents each series.

THE LIFE OF OUR LORD

Why any syndicate should have paid $15 a word for the tripe in this book is as far beyond our comprehension as the latest Einstein theory. Or perhaps you're so enamored of Charles Dickens that anything he wrote will pass without question.

There is more interest in the history of the book than in the book itself. Buried in the Dickens family for eighty-five years by the command of the author, The Life of Our Lord finally was resurrected and published in 1934 by a newspaper syndicate, which purchased its rights in the book for $15 a word, the highest price ever paid for any manuscript. Simon & Schuster later brought out the first edition in book form, and, finally, a cheap edition has been issued.

We hold that Dickens' juvenile writing is neither up to the standard set by such modern artists as Egermeier and Hurlbut nor particularly biblical. It starts with the comment that the author is providing the story of Jesus for the benefit of his children, so that they may all go to heaven; and this theme runs throughout the whole. In many instances, it is far more of a commentary on the Gospels than a true narrative. For the strictly orthodox, it might be suitable (although even then the writing is archaic, dated, and somehow colorless); but for Church of God heretics it wouldn't do at all. Even the numerous colored illustrations are crudely done.

Grosset & Dunlap: 50 cents.

"The true University of these days is a Collection of Books."—Thomas Carlyle, Heroes and Hero Worship ("The Hero As a Man of Letters").

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 27, 1936

NUMBER 4

Democracy Trembles!

A GREAT political campaign is in progress in our country. Our people are being moved by a sense of their personal responsibility for the conduct of their government as they have not been moved for generations. Excitement rages from Maine to California and from our northern border to the Gulf of Mexico. Charges and countercharges are often repeated with "the shorter and uglier word" attached, as candidates and political spell-binders clash with each other within the hearing of the public ear. Appeals are being made by every possible means to induce the citizen to support this or that party in order that the country may be saved from utter ruin. Harsh, bitter, vituperative language is hurled back and forth in an effort to stir up partisan and sectional feeling. Sensational "revelation" follows sensational "revelation," only to be denied over and over again. Such is the tumultuous condition prevailing in the country during the closing weeks of this campaign.

But in a few days it will all be over! The American people of all political faiths will go back to their customary occupations, back to their corn fields and cotton fields, their mines, their factories, their stores and shops, and forget the entire matter for another four years! They will all be neighbors and friends just as they were before, as in fact they are now, and as they will continue to be so long as America remains the America it is today. For that is the spirit of a free people! That is America!

Not since the election of Abraham Lincoln seventy-four years ago has a change of administration brought with it even so much as a hint of armed resistance to the newly chosen leaders upon their entrance into office. How thankful we ought to be that this is true! What a splendid testimony it is to the quality and sanity of the American temperament! In most parts of the world a bitter political campaign followed by a close election spells war—terrible fratricidal civil war!

Wherever the democratic form of government exists,

Speaking before his congregation in Oregon, Illinois, the editor of THE RESTITUTION HERALD asserted that the followers of Christ should take a vital interest in all that is occurring throughout the world, as the countries concerned were soon to "become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ," and the faithful of this age were destined to assist in their future government.

the authority that was denied them at the ballot box. Yes, that is something for which every American citizen should be thankful, that he lives in a land of liberty but not of license, a land of freedom of speech but not of freedom of the sword!

It is assuring to know as this hotly contested campaign draws to its close that when it is over and the final vote is counted and the result of the election made known the bitterness engendered during its progress will quickly fade away, and leave us still,

"One flag, one land, one heart, one hand,
One Nation evermore!"

As we contemplate the blessings we enjoy under so beneficent a government, we are more deeply impressed with a sense of sympathy for countries less favored than our own and would pray for them that they, too, might sometime experience the security, the liberty, and the opportunities afforded us. And while we know the weaknesses of our government and acknowledge its many mistakes and its frequent miscarriages of justice, we still feel that no human political system has achieved so much for the peace, happiness, and prosperity of mankind as has this nation, a nation "conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal," and with our martyred President we pray that, until the Lord comes to establish His own glorious kingdom of righteousness in the earth, because of the present political upheaval, "this nation, under God, shall see a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth." (Turn to Page 11)

Abreast of the Times

Japan Bans "Social Gospel" Missionaries

"Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations."—Matthew 28:19, A. R. V.

TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 18.—Japanese authorities have refused to permit Rev. Dr. J. Spencer Kennard, missionary for the American Baptists, to reenter Japan, charging that he is a Communist. The charge is thought to be based on the quasi-political activities in which he and other Protestant missionaries have engaged in their efforts to introduce social and civic reform in the Empire. It is reported that the younger missionaries look upon the action of the police as a serious blow to the "social gospel," the preaching of which has become their central purpose. Like their counterparts in America, they believe that the duty of the church is to preach political, social, and economic reform, rather than the simple gospel of a crucified Savior which the earlier missionaries presented.

The Government has indicated that no effort will be made to curb the efforts of the missionaries who confine their work to the preaching of Christian doctrine and the English language, which meets with the hearty approval of the older Christian workers in the country, who sum up their understanding of their duty in three words: "Preaching, teaching, philanthropy." Failure on the part of religious leaders to recognize that the work of the church in this age is not political or social reform but "taking out a people for (God's) name" has led to much disappointment and unnecessary trouble.

Catholics Plan Modern Language Bible

"They read from the book, from the law of God, translating as they went and explaining the meaning, so that the people understood what was read."—Nehemiah 8:8, Moffatt's Translation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Roman Catholic Church authorities announced today that the American Catholic Church plans soon to issue a new modern language edition of the Scriptures. The work will be placed in the hands of a select committee of theological scholars who will first direct their attention to the revision of the New Testament.

The Douay Version, which is the one that has been in general use among English-speaking Roman Catholics for the past four hundred years, contains many archaic and obsolete words and phrases which have little or no meaning to the modern reader, as is also the case with the King James Version used by Protestants for the same period.

According to Bishop Edwin V. O'Hara, of Great Falls,

Montana, "the object is primarily to provide a book which may be used more readily for study. Not only is it desired to bring the text into current English, but also to make physical changes—such as new paragraphing to indicate the beginning and the end of an expression of idea or truth."

Among the changes which have been suggested as illustrating the nature of the forthcoming version is that which will be made in the rendering of Jesus' words, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." This phrase will appear in the modern version, "Permit the little children to come unto me."

One of the many words the meaning of which has changed radically during the past four hundred years is the word "prevent" as found in 1 Thessalonians 4:15 in both the King James and the Douay Versions: "We which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep." When the two early translations were made the word "prevent" meant "to precede; to go before." It now means "to hinder; to restrain." Hence, the American Revised Version renders the passage, "We that are alive, that are left unto the coming of the Lord, shall in no wise precede them that are fallen asleep." The Emphatic Diaglott, Moffatt, and other versions agree with this rendering.

Arabs Call for Peace

"The way of peace, have they not known."—Rom. 3:17.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 10.—After 173 days of bitter rioting, during which hundreds of lives were lost and property damaged to the extent of something like $12,000,000, the Arabs have at last made a definite move toward peace and declared the general strike they have been waging in opposition to Jewish immigration into Palestine at an end. The proclamation calling for the termination of the strike was signed by four kings and princes of Arabia. Thousands of dollars have already been raised in the United States and other lands to make possible the restoration of the orchards and other property that have been destroyed.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

What Must I Do to Be Saved?

By Wiley Jones

AS THE BIBLE teaches but one faith and one hope, so also it recognizes but one gospel, and pronounces a double curse on man or angel who shall dare to "preach any other gospel" (Eph. 4:5; Gal. 1:8, 9). And now, after the preceding testimonies, can you doubt what is that one gospel? Surely it can be none other than "this gospel of the kingdom," which the Savior said should "be preached in all the world," and which was carried to one place "as" to another, for Paul tells the Colossians that it had to come unto them "as (hathos, "just as") in all the world" (Col. 1:6, 23). And since there is but one gospel, it follows that it is "this gospel of the kingdom" of which the Bible says, "He that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15, 16). Behold, then, the awful penalty of either preaching or believing "any other gospel" than "this gospel of the kingdom."

Of course, to preach the gospel of the kingdom is not to merely repeat that phrase again and again in the hearing of the people; for what information could they possibly gain by such a procedure? The word translated "gospel" (euaggelion) means "a good message, glad tidings, joyful news." To preach the gospel of the kingdom therefore is to preach those things which constitute the good message, or "glad tidings of the kingdom." This is illustrated in the case of Philip, who in Samaria preached the gospel of the kingdom by preaching "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ" (Acts 8:12). And we know that the preaching of Philip in Samaria harmonized with that of Paul in Corinth, and with that of all the apostles in all places; for there was but one gospel preached by them all. As Moses did not give two or more opposite codes of laws for the Mosaic dispensation, so neither did Christ give two or more opposite gospels for the present dispensation. But as anciently there were some who perverted the law of Moses by their tradition, so now there are some who pervert the gospel of the kingdom by their tradition. Since, however, it was necessary for the Samaritans to believe "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ," it is just as necessary for us to believe the same things; for it is our duty to "hold fast the form of sound words," to "earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints," to "ask for the old paths and walk in them."

We have now proved that the only way to preach or believe the gospel of the kingdom is to preach or believe those great truths of which that gospel consists. This brings us to the important question, "Of what truths does the gospel consist?" Those truths, according to the plain teaching of the Bible, are—

1. That it will be a divine kingdom, as its name implies—"the kingdom of heaven," or "the kingdom of God." It is called by these names because it is a kingdom which "the God of heaven will set up" (Dan. 2:44). It will be as far superior to human kingdoms as light is superior to darkness. But although its King and princes will be spiritual beings, yet they will be none the less really present in bodily and tangible form. If this audience were composed of angels instead of mortals, it would be strictly a spiritual audience, and yet visible and tangible, for the angels have tangible and visible bodies. Three dined at the tent door of Abraham, and he brought water to wash their feet. Afterwards, two lodged in the house of Lot, ate unleavened cakes, and grasped him and his family by the hands to hurry them out of Sodom. One wrestled with Jacob, and by a touch caused him to limp, "for a token," as Scott says, "that it was a reality, and not a dream, or vision, or delusive imagination." Of course, Jacob could not lay hold on and wrestle with an intangible "ghost." Well, we know that the risen and glorified saints will be "equal unto the angels," yea, more, the blessed Redeemer will "change" (not annihilate) their bodies, and fashion them "like unto his glorious body" (Luke 20:36; Phil. 3:21). And we have many "infallible proofs" that His body was visible and tangible, for it came forth from the tomb after the stone was rolled away; it had "flesh and bones," and could be seen and handled; He did also eat and drink with His disciples after His resurrection (Luke 24:39, 40; Acts 1:3; 10:41).

2. The Scriptures also testify that the kingdom, although divine and heavenly or heaven-like, will be on this earth. The covenants with Abraham and David show that a gracious necessity exists for the return of Christ and His reign in Jerusalem over the land of Canaan and the whole earth. We see not how those "promises made unto the fathers" can ever be fulfilled (Please turn to Page Eight)

The Invitation

By Wiley Jones

Can you slight the invitation?
Oh, how can you turn away
From so great and free salvation,
Offered to you here today?

Hear the loving Savior pleading,
"All ye weary, come to Me."
See His form all pierced and bleeding
On the cross to ransom thee.

Angels, viewing from above thee,
Would rejoice to see thee come.
Saints on earth and friends that love thee,
Warn thee of the sinner's doom.

Can you slight the invitation?
Oh, how can you turn away
From so great and free salvation,
Offered to you here today?

My Last Sermon

Lost

By D. G. Harvey

"For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19:10.

SO MANY wonderful sermons have been given in this series of Last Sermons, it seems presumptuous that I should offer one. But deep in the heart of every servant of God is that question: "What would I say if we should never meet again?" There are so many wonderful truths in God's Letter to man, such wonderful "good news" to mankind, it is hard to decide one's last message. But we remember "that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance" (Rom. 2:4). It then becomes our desire in this our last sermon to bring to your minds some of His goodness, yes, God's great love for His creatures.

In our text our Lord declares His sole purpose is to "seek and to save that which was lost." The question then is what was lost. Note the past tense was, not is lost. Webster defines "lost" as "ruined, parted with, gone out of possession, or wandered away."

According to the popular theory, the human race has lost a home in heaven. Could this be true, without first having had such a home? Again some will say, "The race is lost." How could this be true? The race still exists, in fact the world population is greater each year. And Jesus came to seek and to save that which was lost.

Years ago, at the Highland Park in Kokomo, Indiana, a young couple attended a family reunion. How proud they were of their young son. Suddenly there was a cry of despair. The little son was lost. The young mother, wild with grief, rushed from place to place, crying, wringing her hands, looking for her baby. The young father dashed headlong down the steep bank of the small muddy creek, fully expecting to find the body of his son. Listen! A cry of joy; the boy is found. A kindly stranger has stopped the lad and cared for him, for he knew the child was lost, and that the parents would be seeking him.

That, my friends, is how the human race is or was lost. We wandered away from God. At the end of the creative week God said, "Behold, it was very good." Ah, think how good! Perfect harmony between all of God's creatures; perfect communion with the Creator, for God Himself talked with Adam.

But Adam lost this perfect condition by disobedience. Listen: "And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:17-19).

Think of that great loss of that perfect condition, perfect food, health, and life, which resulted in trouble, suffering, death, away from God, a loss that all the human race, Adam's children, inherit. "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Rom. 5:12).

Jesus our Lord came to seek and to save that which was lost, came to rescue or restore that lost Edenic condition, came, as Paul puts it, "reconciling the world." Let us quote: "To wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself" (2 Cor. 5:19). God never turned from the world; "God so loved the world" (John 3:16). But why? The world was helpless. All had lost that perfect condition, had inherited sin and death. "None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him" (Psalm 49:7). A dark picture.

But God creates a new thing—"How long wilt thou go about, O thou backsliding daughter? for the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth, A woman shall compass a man" (Jer. 31:22). This is a prophecy of Israel and the new creation, Christ and His bride, the church. "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away: behold, all things are become new."

Christ founded His church "upon this rock." It began at Pentecost. "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ. . . . Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. . . . Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved" (Acts 2:36, 38, 47).

How then could the church date back to Abraham? Consider Paul's words: after he considers all the faithful he adds, "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us (the church), that they (the faithful ones mentioned) without us should not be made perfect."

Do you get the point? Without Christ and His church, all the faithful ones in the past were still under the penalty of sin. This is in harmony with the prophecy of David: "Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth" (Psalm 45:16). And the words of Jesus: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he" (Matt. 11:11). Why? John, the last prophet, the forerunner of Christ, could not have been baptized into Christ, could not be of the bride of Christ.

But why should the church be so exalted? There is but one answer. God has a great work for that new creation which during this gospel age is in preparation. All who are overcomers of the carnal mind will be fitted for that work when they are raised to the exalted position of kings and priests. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Rev. 3:21). "And hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth" (Rev. 5:10). Kings and priests—yes, rulers and teachers in the kingdom.

What! teachers in the kingdom? Yes. "Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way" (Psalm 25:8). "With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness" (Isa. 26:9). "They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine" (Isa. 29:24). "So shall he sprinkle many nations; the kings shall shut their mouths at him: for that which had not been told them shall they see; and that which they had not heard shall they consider" (Isa. 52:15). "But as it is written, To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see; and they that have not heard shall understand" (Rom. 15:21).

(Please turn to Page Ten)

Politics and True Christianity

THE United States is now in the midst of a heated political campaign. Within three weeks the general election will be held and the leaders of the country will be elected. We live in an age when almost everyone has some kind of a radio and the air is filled with political speeches, many of them made by church leaders. The headlines of the newspapers daily carry the latest news on the campaign. Everyone seems much interested in the outcome.

True Christians, children of God, members of the body of Christ—those who are seeking to make the Word of God their rule of faith and daily life, are again met with the question of what should be their attitude toward all these things. These questions are often heard: Should Christians vote? Should they try to influence legislation? Should they try by the use of the ballot to improve this present world? We would like to present a few personal thoughts on this, and to give what we consider is the Bible view of the situation.

The Church of God is classed by the Government statisticians as an "advent" body. That is, we are an organization which takes as an important part of its message the second advent of Christ, and the nearness of that event. We read in the Bible of the signs which are to come to pass just before that event, and we have observed them coming to pass. And so we believe the Word which says, "But when these things begin to come to pass, look up, and lift up your heads: for your redemption draweth nigh," and "Be ye also ready: for in such an hour that ye think not, the Son of man cometh."

And from our study of the Bible, we believe that one thing is certain, and that is that the world is not getting better and that it cannot be saved by political means. The depression was not caused by a certain man being President, nor will it be ended because another man is elected to that office. The great underlying root of all our trouble is sin. Sin and evil are on the increase in the land, and the Scriptures teach that this condition will continue until the Lord does come to set up His righteous rule on the earth. And so we will not expect to make the world a perfect place to live in by electing the right man.

In John 17, Jesus prayed for all His followers through all time. He did not pray that they should be taken out of the world, but that they should be kept from the evil that is in the world. This very thought recognizes that there is some good in the world, and there are some things better than others. We are to live in the world and carry the gospel to the world. Surely it is good to do all we can to make the conditions around us favorable to the preaching of the gospel. We want law and order and freedom of speech and press, and an opportunity to have some money and to be able to use it for the furtherance of the gospel, which is the most important thing in the world to us. Jesus taught us to "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and unto God the things that are God's." And so we pay taxes and abide by the laws of the land, as long as they do not conflict with the Word of God.

And so, though we know the country cannot be made much better—cannot be saved by an election, yet it is right for us to do what we can to help keep things as good as it will be possible to keep them. While we may not give funds to the support of any campaign, yet we will try to be informed about the various candidates and will vote for the men we feel are best qualified for the positions. And we will pray that God will direct whoever is in office, that our freedom may continue and that the work of the gospel may not be hindered.—The Bible Advocate.

THE BIBLE

THE importance of the position which the Bible occupies cannot fail to impress us when we consider that it constitutes the Christian's only textbook. Whatever other works he consults, his final authority is the Bible. Whatever helps he employs, they must be in every case merely helps to the understanding and use of the Word of God. True, we have many wonderful things revealed to us by God in nature which are able to exert a powerful and beneficial influence toward the proper development of man's character, but it is through the truth of God as revealed in the written Word, that the process of divine grace in the life of man is performed.

It is the Word of God that "quickens" (Psalm 119:50). It is the "entrance" of the Word of God that giveth "light" (Psalm 119:130). It is a penetrating, discerning light, like a flash of lightning, like a cleaving sword: "For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discernor of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12). The Word is the "sword of the Spirit" (Eph. 6:17) which Christ used with such telling effect against the adversary in the wilderness (Matt. 4:4), on the pinnacle of the temple (Matt. 4:7), and on the exceeding high mountain (Matt. 4:10). It is the "word of God which effectually worketh in you that believe" (1 Thess. 2:13); the "engrafted word which is able to save your souls" (James 1:21), which, hidden in the heart, keeps the believer from sin (Psalm 119:11), which is "able to make wise unto salvation" (2 Tim. 3:15), which is "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Tim. 3:16, 17). It is the Word of God which is able to build up believers, and to give them "an inheritance among all them that are sanctified" (Acts 2:32). By the inward abiding of the Word of God the "young men" of the early church were made "strong" (1 John 2:14). Through the "exceeding great and precious promises" of the Word, believers are to be "partakers of the divine nature" (2 Peter 1:4).

If God's Word be so goodly and mighty a thing as these scriptures declare, no wonder that they who knew best their source and mission should account the truth they contain like "seed" (Luke 8:11), like a "fire" and a "hammer" (Jer. 23:29), like "rain" and "dew" (Deut. 32:2), like "honey" and the "honeycomb" (Psalm 19:10; 119:103), like "silver" (Psalm 12:16), like "gold" (Psalm 19:10), like "thousands of gold and silver" (Psalm 119:72), and finally, like "all riches" (Psalm 119:14). No wonder that the Psalmist made them his song in the house of his pilgrimage (Psalm 119:54), and that his "delight was in the law of the Lord" in which he meditated "day and night" (Psalm 1:2). No wonder that we are exhorted to take earnest heed as to what we hear (Mark 4:24), and how we hear (Luke 8:18). No wonder that earnest Jews searched the Scriptures (John 5:39), and that the Bereans were commended as being "more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so" (Acts 17:11).

It is this wonderful Word that every individual, great or small, must learn to use aright if he is to be faithful to his trust. Parents at home like the mother of Timothy (2 Tim. 1:5; 3:15), men like Aquila, women like Priscilla, in their own places of abode (Acts 18:26); every member of the church of God, from apostles and prophets to the humblest disciple, is to set forth the "word of life." As Paul to Timothy, so the parting to the coming generation: "The things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also" (2 Tim. 2:2).

In performing this duty, certain important facts must be kept in mind constantly, lest we be too easily disheartened in our efforts to faithfully acquit ourselves in the discharge of this trust which God has seen fit to commit unto us.

In the first place we must remember that the Bible is in one sense a human book, and there are many human marks about it. The divine treasure has been given to us in earthen vessels, God has revealed Himself through human eyes and ears, intellect and hearts, tongues and pens. He has put His lessons for us into long-drawn-out history, covering centuries of time and vast areas of territory. He did not begin with a book, but with the lives of men and nations. Then came the book. It was written by human observers, in human language. The divine oversight, guidance, and inspiration did not interfere with the individuality of each writer. It guaranteed truth, but left the peculiarities of the penman unimpaired. Multitudinous references to races, localities, structures, manners, customs, literatures, and religions fill the book. It is brimful of human nature at its best and also at its worst. It was given in ancient languages, now practically dead; and therefore translation has been necessary. From tongue to tongue the book has gone. Revision follows translation, and after revision, new revision. Research in the Orient, discoveries of monumental tablets, inscriptions and ancient manuscripts, render revision not only possible but desirable. The Book is God's book, but He has used men in the making and completing of it, and by this process man is immensely helped, and is still further to be helped, as the original gift of God in the most ancient tongues, is gradually unveiled and set forth through human investigation and scholarship.

The Bible is full of difficulties. The facts just cited show why it must be so. These ancient languages, these references to almost obsolete usages, the peculiarities of the Bible writers, the Oriental imagery employed, the divine interpositions in miraculous deeds, the mysteries of divine providence, the severities and apparent cruelties of the divine administration, the gross inconsistencies of certain Scripture characters, whose lives are recorded, and who, in spite of their sins, receive proof in words and in official promotion of the divine commendation. Again, the Bible is, in fact, a book so different from the ideal revelation. It is not at all a systematic and carefully classified series of plain and applied principles. It is not like a dictionary or handbook conveniently arranged for reference. It is a book of ancient history, full of hard names, indifferent chronologies, unattractive genealogies, bloody battles, and transactions, some of which it is painful and almost impossible to read to little children. The Bible has been assailed for these and other reasons relentlessly and unceasingly. From the earliest centuries bold denials of its divinity and accuracy have been put on record and widely circulated, sustained by a show of wisdom and scholarship, science and high ethics. The literature of infidelity is varied and voluminous, and is the product in some cases of men of acumen and renown in the world of learning. The application to the Holy Scriptures of the principles of what is known as "higher criticism" has increased doubt in many circles. This no doubt has been the more widely spread by certain characteristics of our time, to wit: independent thought, a free press, an unrestricted lecture platform, and a popular protest against severities of teaching that would emphasize personal responsibility.

The ardent Christian in the discharge of his duty is sure to meet these embarrassments. In this connection the words of an old commentator concerning the difficulties of Scripture are of interest: "Plain places therein are for our nourishment, hard places for our exercise." The Bible as a true history of rugged times must reflect the features of the ages it represents. It was not meant to be "an easy book." While there is a general order in revelation, the Bible resembles the mountain rather than the pyramid. Flowers bloom and trees cast pleasant shadows on the sides of the hill, and from the summits are far-reaching and inspiring prospects, but in the deep heart of it are its best treasures—"the precious things of the lasting hills" (Deut. 33:15). Therefore the Bible student and teacher must search as for hidden treasure, systematically, persistently, patiently. To the man who really desires to know, love, and obey the truth, there are no insurmountable obstacles in the Holy Scriptures. Difficulties that there appear speedily vanish before his spirit of surrender to the will of God. He rises above the realm of doubt. "If any man will do his will," saith the Christ, "he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John 7:17).

—The Student; selected by R. H. Judd.

"My creed," said Robert G. Ingersoll, "is this: Happiness is the only good. The place to be happy is here. The time to be happy is now. The way to be happy is to help make others so."

THE LAND OF JEHOVAH

Land of Jehovah, awake from thy slumber,
Rise from thy years of oppression and pain;
Rise from the bonds that thy soul did encumber—
Look! for the Lord smiles upon thee again.

Sad was thy soul when the Roman oppressed thee,
Sad when the crescent flew over thy land;
Long has the power of the conqu'ring distressed thee:
Tott'ring thy footsteps and feeble thy hand.

Strong were the nations who came up against thee,
Ruthless the tyrants who ruled on thy throne;
Oft on each side cruel foemen encircled thee—
Took from thy heart all that once was thine own.

Strong were thy foes, but the Lord God was stronger,
Strong was the arm that He bared in the fight;
Loud came the cry: "Ye shall tarry no longer,
For He who reigneth shall come in His might!"

There, O ye sons of the long-fallen nation,
There shall ye gather, on David's own hill;
Soon shall your troubled hearts beat with elation,
Praise to Jehovah thy courtyards shall fill.

Soon shall the Day by the prophets long spoken Gleam on thy gladness and light every eye;
Rise, O ye people, once vanquished and broken:
Rise! for thy long-promised Savior draws nigh.

—James Paton; selected by R. H. Judd.

ON GIVING

SAID Robert E. Speer: "Financial support for the church is not simply a business proposition to be handled mechanically through schemes of budgets and apportionments; if it is to be permanently sustained at a high level, it has to rest back on a deep spiritual foundation."

Somewhat similarly, Charles Emerson Burton once observed that "what Christians do with their money is some indication of their spiritual life."

"He gives most," was the opinion of Arthur Warwick, "who gives the best. If I cannot give bountifully, yet I will give freely; and what I want in my hand, supply by my heart. He gives well that gives willingly."

And from Jowett: "We begin to operate with vital forces when we cross the border into the land of sacrifices. The things that we can spare carry no blood. The things that we can ill spare carry part of ourselves and are alive."

Finally, from Frederick A. Agar comes the dictum that "the need of the hour is for a church that lovingly pays to God at least the first-fruits of all time, energy, and money."

—Selected by Lottie E. Young.

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

(Continued from Page Three)

unless He shall return, take possession of the earth, and establish His kingdom here. When the Lord Jesus says, "My kingdom is not of this world," He does not mean that it will not be on the earth, but rather that it is not of this world as to origin or source; for the preposition ek, translated "of," is frequently used with reference to the origin or source of a thing. So the apostles and the baptism of John were truly and literally on the earth and in the world; and yet the baptism was not "of (ek) men," nor were the apostles of (ek) the world." Certainly those who say that the church is the kingdom admit that the kingdom is in the world, for the church is here. The territory or land basis of the kingdom is a prominent item of the gospel of the kingdom. Almost the first thing that a schoolboy finds in his geography concerning any human kingdom is a description of its whereabouts, its territory, its area, etc. Then he reads of the royal family, the capital city, the constitution, the condition of the populace, etc. And this illustrates, in some degree, the method in which the Bible treats of that divine kingdom which is the great theme of the Scripture, from Genesis to Revelation.

The Savior said, "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field." He afterwards explained to His disciples that "the field is the world" (Matt. 13:38). This teaches most plainly that the kingdom, though a celestial germ, is to be implanted and to grow in terrestrial soil. And the same is taught "without a parable," when the disciples, though on earth, are told to pray, "Thy kingdom come." The New Jerusalem will be on earth, and "the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it"; hence, that throne also will be on earth (Rev. 21:2, 10 with 22:3). Could we desire any plainer language than the assurance that "his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth" (Zech. 9:10)? That it shall fill "the whole earth" (Dan. 2:35)? That "the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High" (Dan. 7:27)? That "the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ" (Rev. 11:15)? That Christ shall have the heathen for His inheritance and "the uttermost parts of the earth" for His possession (Psalm 2:8)? Surely I have quoted testimony enough to prove, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that the kingdom will be on earth. The celebrated Dean Alford says, "That the Lord will come in person to this our earth; that His risen elect will reign here with Him and judge; that during that blessed reign the power of evil will be bound, and the glorious prophecies of peace and truth on earth find their accomplishment—this is my firm persuasion, and not mine alone, but that of multitudes of Christ's waiting people, as it was of His primitive apostolic church."—Prologue to vol. 4 of N. T. And now is it necessary for me to remind you that your faith is utterly wrong unless it be the same as that of the "primitive and apostolic church"?

3. That it will be an everlasting kingdom, that shall not pass away, and of which there shall be no end. In proof of this I need only refer you to the following testimonies: "Of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:33). "The everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:11). "His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed" (Dan. 7:14, 27). "The God of heaven (shall) set up a kingdom, which . . . shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever" (Dan. 2:44).

4. That Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and has been appointed by the Father to be the King in that kingdom. Nathanael confessed, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the king of Israel" (John 1:49). Peter also confessed, "Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God" (Matt 16:16). It is to Him that the Father says, "I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession" (Psalm 2:8). It is of Him the Prophet says, "His dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth" (Zech. 9:10). He is called "The mighty God," and will come in the glory of His Father to take His seat on the throne (Isa. 9:6, 7; Matt. 25:31). Accordingly, the kingdom is called "the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ" (Rev. 11:15), "the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:11). Peter, in saying that an entrance shall be—not has been—ministered to the saints into the kingdom, shows that the kingdom is yet future; while Daniel (7:27), in saying of the very same kingdom that it shall be "under the whole heaven," shows that it will be on earth. Now, by adding together these two testimonies, we discover that God is hereafter to establish an everlasting kingdom on earth, into which all who hold out faithful are yet to enter. This argument alone proves that the kingdom is not the church, but the reward of the church. To His church the Lord has promised, saying, "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom" (Luke 12:32). And when will He give it to the little flock? Mark well the answer: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. . . . Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom" (Matt. 25:31, 34).

5. That in order to obtain inheritance in that kingdom a person must become righteous; "for the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God" (1 Cor. 6:9). It is "promised to them that love him" (James 2:5), to "the saints of the most High" (Dan. 7:18, 22), to the "little flock" (Luke 7:32), to "the righteous" (Matt. 25:34, 37). Therefore, the Savior directs us to "seek first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness" (Matt. 6:33). The kingdom is the aim and end; righteousness is the road to it. That righteousness comes only through Christ, and by the merits of His atonement, or at-one-ment, as the word implies. "By the obedience of one shall many be made righteous" (Rom. 5:19). "Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth" (Rom. 10:4). That righteousness long ago purchased by the precious blood of Christ, is now individually applied to the believer of the gospel of the kingdom when he is baptized for the remission of sins; for such is the plain requirement of Scripture: "repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins"; "arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 2:38; 22:16). After the believer has been thus baptized, he is said to be in Christ; and if any man be in Christ Jesus, he is a new creature, for there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit (2 Cor. 5:17; Rom. 8:1).

6. And that in order to inherit the kingdom a person must also obtain immortality; for flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God (1 Cor. 15:50). That immortality is to be obtained through Christ alone, when He shall personally descend from heaven, at the resurrection of the just. "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise" (1 Thess. 4:16). "Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:14). "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23). "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory" (1 Cor. 15:53-55).

I have now proved that to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ is to believe the gospel of the kingdom, which teaches that, in the morning of the resurrection, the Lord Jesus will personally return to the earth and establish here that eternal kingdom in which He will give endless life and happiness to all the righteous—even to those faithful ones who are pardoned and redeemed by His precious blood. This is that "great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him" (Heb. 2:3). "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?" This is a solemn question which neither man nor angel can answer, for there is no escape for any who neglect it. You need not revile or oppose, but merely neglect it, to insure your destruction. You have heard the question, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" Now, if you ask, "What must I do to be lost?" I answer, "Do nothing! You are rushing along the track to perdition; just keep your seat, you need not change cars at all; remain as you are, without hope, without Christ, and without God in the world; go away from here today just as you came; continue to neglect—only to neglect—so great salvation; and you cannot escape the consuming wrath of God." Do you protest that you have not committed any great sin to deserve such a fate? I answer that the sin of omission—the sin of not believing—is a great sin and worthy of death; for "he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:16). "Without faith it is impossible to please (God)" (Heb. 11:6). So you see that if your entire life until now could have been pure as the white lily in the morning dew, this would not relieve you from the necessity of believing the gospel of the kingdom.

I have shown you that the Son of God preached the gospel of the kingdom, and that "he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). Oh, think of the wrath of God! The wrath of Him of whose power and sublimity we have astonishing examples in the creation of man—of the starry sky—of the troubled ocean—of majestic rivers—deafening cataracts—lofty mountains—volcanoes—earthquakes—the solar system—the universe. The wrath of Him who is the source of happiness and the standard of perfection, whose wisdom is perfect, whose greatness is incomprehensible, whose goodness is without bounds. Of Him in whose path yonder great blazing sun is but a glittering sand; while the myriads of stars that form the Milky Way are but as trembling white lilies that fringe the pearly track of His chariot wheels. Of the wrath of Him with whom "the nations are as a drop in a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance" (Isa. 40:15). Oh, "who can stand before his indignation? and who can abide in the fierceness of his anger?" (Nahum 1:6). Unless you believe, you will have to "die in your sins." Oh, how different is this from dying in Christ—from falling asleep in Jesus—from dying the death of the righteous and having your last end like His! Have you never thought of the kind of death you would prefer? When quite a young man I attended on several occasions at the bedside of a gentleman who was dying of dropsy; and the excruciating pain he suffered as the water rose higher and higher, and crowded around his heart, filled my mind with the horror of that disease, and caused me to inwardly pray that the Lord would never allow me to die that way. But what is that compared to the pain and horror of dying in your sins? Better die in the deepest and most fearful dungeon that the ingenuity and cruelty of man could invent, than to die in your sins. Better die in the pesthouse, reeking with smallpox and every other contagious disease, and avoided by your nearest friends, than to die in your sins. Better die in the devouring jaws of wild beasts, all mangled and torn to pieces, than to die in your sins. Better die in the flames of martyrdom, at the burning stake, surrounded by a hissing crowd of persecutors, than to die in your sins. Better die in a midnight storm, "far, far at sea," and sink down into its dark depths with no eye to pity and no arm to save, your cries of distress being drowned by the roar of the winds and billows, than to die in your sins. Better die in the appalling flash of a thunderbolt, without one moment's warning to say, "God, be merciful to me," and with no time to bid farewell to father or mother, sister or brother, wife or children, than to die in your sins. Better die in the fearful spasms of hydrophobia, when it would be considered an act of mercy to smother you between two feather beds, than to die in your sins. And yet surely you will die in your sins unless you believe and obey the gospel of the kingdom.

The object of making known the gospel to all nations is "for," or in order to, "the obedience of faith" (Rom. 16:26). To speak of becoming obedient to the faith, of obeying or not obeying the gospel, were expressions well understood among the early Christians. Thus we have, "A great company of the priests were obedient to the faith" (Acts 6:7). "They have not all obeyed the gospel" (Rom. 10:16). Now, I see not how a message or proclamation which carries no command with it can be obeyed, for command and obey are correlate terms. Hence, the fact that the gospel can be obeyed or disobeyed proves that it carries with it commands to be obeyed as well as truths to be believed. What, then, is the first outward act of obedience after hearing the gospel, believing it, and resolving to become a Christian? Let the vivid examples of Scripture furnish the answer—"Many of the Corinthians hearing, believed, and were baptized" (Acts 18:8). "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women" (Acts 8:12). These examples answer exactly to the instructions given the apostles under the Great Commission—go, teach all nations, baptizing them: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Matt. 28:19; Mark 16:15, 16). And thus it is that in the very first sermon preached by the apostles under that commission, we find them commanding their hearers to be "baptized for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38). Also, when Peter preached at the house of Cornelius the believers were commanded to be baptized (Acts 10:48). In like manner the command was given to Paul, "Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins" (Acts 22:16). I might refer to more instances, but these are enough to prove that baptism is one of the great commands of the gospel. And "what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel?" This question is asked by Peter, and answered by Paul: "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven . . . in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God and that obey not the gospel" (1 Peter 4:17; 2 Thess. 1:8). But it is a most precious privilege that, through the merits of the blood of the Lamb, you can go down into the cool and pleasant baptismal waters and wash away those past sins which, if never remitted, would hurl you into the dreadful and consuming billows of the lake of fire.

Yes, baptism is a command of God. Then, after baptism, should follow all the works of obedience pertaining to the new career that we have begun. For by that ordinance we voluntarily take upon ourselves all the obligations of the Christian life, together with all its glorious privileges and prospects. And now, why not be "baptized straightway"? Can you frame an excuse that will be sufficient in the sight of Him who knows every thought of your heart? Look at Calvary, and see the tender form of the loving Savior stretched upon the cruel cross, and bleeding from His head, His hands, His feet, and even from His heart—for you! Surely "the love of Christ constraineth us" to keep His commandments (2 Cor. 5:14). "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city." Look forward to the resurrection morn, and those pearly gates of the New Jerusalem. See the white-robed and shining ranks of the redeemed; every face is like an angel's, and beams with unutterable joy, as with eager steps they press through those bright and pearly gates that stand wide open to receive them; while from within bright angel choirs hymn sweet welcomes, and strike their golden harps afresh to sing the triumphs of redeeming love. But who are those in outer darkness, weeping, wailing, and gnashing their teeth in hunger, thirst, hopeless woe? They were found unworthy to enter the beautiful gates, for neglecting to "do his commandments" (Rev. 22:14).

Oh, then "why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Hear the blessed Savior's tender and loving invitation, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest; take my yoke upon you, and learn of me: for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28, 30). The Father Himself invites you; yes, the great Jehovah Himself condescends to plead with you—"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18). Angels rejoice over one sinner that repenteth. Saints on earth are glad to welcome you into the church of Christ. Begin today to live the Christian life. The Bible nowhere tells you to put it off until tomorrow, but "to day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts."

MY LAST SERMON

(Continued from Page Five)

Now we begin to understand the words of Jesus—"It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God" (John 6:45). Then when the race of mankind is in harmony with God, Edenic conditions will be fully restored. Read Isaiah 35 once more thoughtfully.

"Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy judgments are made manifest" (Rev. 15:4). "And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away" (Rev. 21:3, 4). "And the desire of all nations shall come" (Hag. 2:7).

All nations under the sun have desired justice, peace, happiness, and plenty for their people. Perfect conditions can only come with God's kingdom. Jesus, the second Adam, gave His life to buy that race, those sons and daughters of Adam, then bring them forth in the same condition as Adam.

Yes, Christ died not only for His church, but for the whole world. "And he is the propitiation (or atonement) for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world" (1 John 2:2). "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

DEMOCRACY TREMBLES!

(Continued from Front Page)

We dare scarcely expect the granting of that petition, however, in the light of conditions we observe throughout the earth, for Democracy Trembles in all quarters of the globe! Russia, Germany, Austria, Italy, France, and Spain—the leading nations of Europe with the exception of Great Britain—already have seen the fall of their democracies. Absolutisms have swept democracy aside on all fronts. Dictators have usurped the seats of presidents in many lands. Manifestoes have taken the place of constitutional law and the will of the people as expressed at the ballot box has given way under the iron hand of dictatorship.

As a result of the settlements made at the close of the World War Russia threw off the oppressive hand of autocracy and became a republic. Germany overturned the militaristic throne of the Kaiser and established a republic. Austria elected to follow her example and transformed her government from that of an empire to a republic. France became a republic in 1871 and retained that system after the war. Portugal changed from a monarchy to a republic in 1919, and Spain did the same thing in 1931. Before the war Italy was a constitutional monarchy and retained that status after its conclusion.

Now let us notice the changes that have recently taken place in these seven countries.

Russia, the so-called Soviet Republic, while established as a democratic government just before the close of the war, is now ruled by a dictator, Stalin. German ceased to be a republic when Adolf Hitler became its dictator. Austria but a few days ago transferred all political authority into the hands of a dictator. France, while nominally a republic, is, according to the most recent reports, heading rapidly toward a dictatorship. Portugal, when its rulers recently (1934) assumed authority to name all candidates for public office, ceased to be a republic and became a dictatorship. Italy, under the absolute rulership of Mussolini, while democratic by profession, with a king-president, nevertheless gave up her democracy when she submitted to the sway of dictatorship. Spain, now in the horrors of civil war, languishes under the control of a composite republican-socialist-communistic dictator. And should the rebels who are now hammering at the very gates of Madrid succeed in gaining control of the government, it will mean but shifting from one dictatorship to another, this time a Fascist.

It is thus clearly seen that Democracy Trembles throughout the world and dictatorships are taking the place of them everywhere.

Now what does all this mean to the student of the Bible? What is its prophetic significance?

Those who have given much attention to the plans of God as they pertain to world affairs have come generally to believe in the future appearance of what is called in the Scriptures the Antichrist or "man of sin." They have agreed that this strange and powerful person will arise in the last days and speedily conquer a major portion of the earth and become absolute dictator over many nations. All this they have seen clearly revealed in the writings of the prophets.

But the period that immediately precedes the coming of the Antichrist has not been so fully understood. We might call it the time of preparation, when the peoples of the earth are being made ready to welcome the coming of the man of sin, just as the church today is being made ready to receive Jesus Christ when He comes.

While the Bible describes the nature of the great anti-christian dictator who is to rule for a time as an impersonator of the King of kings, it provides little definite information as to the manner in which the world will be led into a state of willingness to receive him. That is what seems to be taking place now. Regardless of the differences that separate them in matters of political theory, Russia, Germany, Italy, Spain, and many other nations have submitted to the rulership of absolute dictators each of whom manifests some of the outstanding traits of character which the man of sin is said to possess.

All of these absolute dictators seek to increase the military power of the nations they govern. The Antichrist is to be a military conqueror of great ability. All of these European dictators have shown a disposition to restrict or to eliminate religion. This, too, is a noticeable characteristic of the Antichrist, who will oppose and exalt himself "above all that is called God, or that is worshipped" (2 Thess. 2:4). When the Antichrist comes he will appeal to the public just as the dictators who went before him appealed to them, through racial prejudice and anti-religious propaganda. And because they have been familiar with the dictators who are now exercising power over the nations they will readily accept the greater and mightier one who is to come.

Democracy Trembles, republics are passing, the will of the people is being more and more disregarded by those who have forced their way into positions of political authority. When all these shall have run their course and the people of the world are made ready to receive him, the greater dictator, the Antichrist, will come and work his evil will in the world for a little while, but the dramatic conclusion of his terrible reign is predicted, and "he shall come to his end, and none shall help him" (Dan. 11:45).

After all the dictators, great and small, have come and gone, another, mightier, wiser, more glorious by far than any that have preceded Him, shall "suddenly come to his temple" and to His kingdom and usher in the golden age of eternal peace!

RELIGIOUS INQUIRY

"It is the modest, not the presumptuous, inquirer who makes a real and safe progress in the discovery of divine truths," wrote Lord Bolingsbroke in a letter to the poet Pope. "One follows Nature and Nature's God; that is, he follows God in His works and in His Word."

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Minnesota Does It Again

The editor just received a copy of the first paper to be published by any State Berean society. It is from Minnesota. Its name is The Nobler, from Acts 17:11.

The following poem taken from its pages well illustrates the spirit of the Minnesota Bereans:

“The man who sticks has his lesson learned;
 Success does not come by chance—it's earned
 By pounding away; for good hard knocks
 Will make stepping stones of the stumbling-blocks.
 He does not expect by a single stride
 To jump to the front; he is satisfied
 To do every day his level best
 And let the future take care of the rest.
 For the man who sticks has the sense to see
 He can make for himself what he wants to be,
 If he'll off with his coat and pitch right in.
 Why? Because the man who sticks can't help but win.”

For Evangelism

Not long ago an editorial on this page carried the announcement that the National Berean Society is to do evangelistic work. One hundred dollars was set aside for this use. One hundred dollars will do little work unless we can regularly add to it. We must keep a surplus in this fund.

Let me point out something. I hope the Minnesota Bereans will forgive my use of them as an example of what I believe to be true of most Berean societies. Each society sends one half its dues to the State treasurer, who in turn sends one half to the national. One society paid $2.65, another $1.20, another $2.60. If you figure an average of fifteen members apiece, each society should have sent $9.00. Instead of each member paying 10 cents a month dues, they actually averaged but from 1 to 3 cents. Or, only from one to four out of each fifteen paid dues in full.

Ten cents a month may seem to be a small item. It is. But when so many fail to pay, it amounts to a great deal by the end of the year. It retards the Lord's work immensely. If evangelism is to succeed each Berean member must do his part.

How about it?

Vivian Kirkpatrick, Associate Editor.

Little Things

A story that always fascinated me is about a little Dutch boy. He lived in the lowlands where the people had built great dykes to hold back the sea. One night this boy found a little leak in the dyke. The hole was rapidly becoming larger as the water tore its way through. The boy didn't have time to run for help. He put his finger in and plugged up the hole. As the night wore away he stuck to his duty and when they found him in the morning his whole arm was in the hole. He had saved his people.

Little faults if neglected can do much harm. We are each like an island surrounded by a wall to keep out the sea. Christian character is the wall. Apostasy from God is the sea. Little imperfections in our character are the leaks that might grow until they let in the sea of apostasy to overwhelm our lives. Christian character has three fronts: Faith, Hope, and Love.

A man of faith prays. He is utterly dependent upon God. He tries to understand God, and in so doing keeps the little leaks of doubt plugged. He cannot doubt God, for he knows Him. Where the poison of bitterness would permeate the life of a lesser man because of present world-wide injustices, the Christian understands that the Lord will some day right all wrongs. Six thousand years are not too many to allow iniquity to have its season upon the race of Adam, for God knows what He is doing.

A man of hope rejoices in the promises of God. He loves to read the Scriptures to find out what God has in store for those that do His will. He hopes for the coming of Christ.

A man of love takes into consideration the probable feelings of others. He is good to all and hateful to none. He does not let that little fire, the tongue, kindle a great fire and burn away his love. A man of love tries to understand people. He cannot excuse sin, but he can have a soft spot in his heart for the sinner.

And thus the Christian's own life is filled with the fruits of the Spirit, for he is living in the Spirit. Let no one think that because he is a Christian he cannot be apostate. The price of your rejoicing in Christ Jesus is to watch always in little things. Don't let little things tear down a life's work of good.

Be Firm

You will no doubt be accused of being stubborn if you stick for a certain straight line of thought and action. But there is a big difference between being stubborn and being firm. A stubborn person is that way because he doesn't like to change. It hurts his egotism to admit he was wrong. Or else he can see but one side of a question; he has a small mind. The firm person has considered all sides of the question and has calmly decided that a certain course is right. He sticks to it because it is right, not just because he himself is right. “Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason for the hope that is in you.”

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand."

WHEN PAUL PREACHED IN A SCHOOLHOUSE

TWO weeks ago we left our busy missionary in the city of Corinth. From there he went to Ephesus, which was the capital of Asia. Here there were many who worshiped idols, particularly the idol Diana. Paul found plenty of work to do in Ephesus.

This was Paul's third missionary trip, and he stayed in Ephesus longer than he did at any other place. About three years he preached the gospel there, and he had great success.

The first thing we notice about Paul's stay in Ephesus is that he was allowed to preach about Jesus for three months in the Jewish synagogue. That was a long time for those unbelieving Jews to listen to Paul.

At last they could stand it no longer, and they made things so unpleasant for Paul that he left. And where do you suppose he found a place to preach? Why, in a schoolhouse! There he held meetings for two years.

Many, many people heard about Jesus and the good news of His coming kingdom. Some did not believe, but very many did. And the word that Paul was preaching there spread all over the country.

Another thing we notice about Paul's stay in Ephesus is the mention of his working miracles.

Handkerchiefs and aprons were carried from Paul to many who were ill, and they were made well again. What do you think people would believe regarding Paul when that happened? It showed that he had power from God, surely.

The little story told in verses 13-17 shows that the people couldn't help but realize that Paul had some power they didn't have. It also showed them the difference between a real miracle and a "fake."

In the city of Ephesus were many men who made a great deal of money fashioning little silver images and selling them to those who bowed down to idols. When so many left their idol worship and came to believe in Jesus, these silversmiths became alarmed. They were losing business.

Then one day Paul's followers realized that their books of magic were worthless. So they brought them all to the public square and built a great bonfire around them.

When they counted up the cost of the books, they found that it would have taken one man fifty thousand days to earn the money to buy them. A day's wages were very small in that time, and the value of the books was almost $10,000.

No doubt some of us could find many bad books or magazines that had better be put in a bonfire. And I believe those Ephesians felt much better after their books were destroyed. They gave up their wicked ways and turned to ways of righteousness at last.

The book in our Bible that we know as Ephesians is a letter Paul wrote to his followers in the city of Ephesus. When he wrote it he was a prisoner in Rome, guarded day and night by soldiers. Perhaps that is the reason he wrote about armor.

He saw the soldiers wearing helmets to protect their heads. He told his followers to wear the "helmet of salvation" for their protection.

The soldiers also carried shields which protected most of their bodies from darts. Paul told the Christians to take faith for their shield. It would protect them in time of temptation and evil.

They wore breastplates, too, for safety. Paul said the follower of Jesus had a better breastplate than the soldier, and it was "righteousness."

About the soldier's waist and hips he wore armor, also. The Christian's protection is not found in metal, but in truth, the truth found in God's Word.

In those days the soldiers wore sandals on their feet. Paul told his Christian soldiers to be shod with the "gospel of peace." They should carry peace instead of war wherever they went.

The sword was the most important weapon carried by the soldier. With it he could defend himself and conquer his enemy. What would the Christian's "sword" be but the Bible? He can protect himself at all times and make a friend out of an enemy if he knows his Bible and obeys it.

You know, today we need the armor of God just as much as did those followers of Paul so long ago. And we need to pray, too, just as much as they did. If we are all as good "soldiers" as Paul was we will come out victorious over evil and win a crown of life.

"To be enrolled with those who fight
With courage bold for God and right,
What fit applause can mortals bring
To such a cause, to such a King?"

"Then keep the faith, resolved to win,
To overcome invading sin;
Thy Captain, Christ, depends on thee
To carry His flag to victory."

AMONG THE CHURCHES

THE MISSION WORK

Names of workers and places where work is needed are coming in, but these are not of much use unless more funds can be raised. At last report Bro. Lyon had received $15.80. That will not go very far in an evangelistic campaign.

Remember to send names of workers and places where work is needed to the undersigned. Send all money to M. W. Lyon, 13517 Darley Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

James A. Patrick, Secretary of the Mission Board.
Ashland, Ohio.

David Lyon Duval: Arrived October 13. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Duval, 7405 Ridge Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"AWAY BACK WHEN —"

We gather the following from the columns of The Restitution Herald of twenty-five years ago—October 26, 1911.

"Bro. C. T. Stevenson of Clyde, S. C., is making good use of his spare hours breaking to a hungry people the bread of life."

Bro. H. V. Reed was called to South Bend, Ind., to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Snoke, while Editor S. J. Lindsay rendered the same sad service on behalf of Sr. Libby Thatcher and Mr. C. S. Rossiter, both of Dixon, Ill.

An interesting report of the tenth annual conference of southern Illinois appeared in this issue, signed by Mrs. C. W. Weaver. The speakers at the meeting were L. E. Conner and G. E. Marsh.

The report of the Indiana Conference is also in this number. "The ministers present were D. T. Halstead, Jos. Williams, S. J. Lindsay, and F. L. Austin." The secretary, Sr. Flora Harris, records that the following officers were chosen: president, F. M. McCrory; first vice president, O. A. Roose; second vice president, L. M. Howell; secretary, Flora Harris; treasurer, E. C. Railsback.

BEG YOUR PARDON

I fear a wrong impression may have gone out from what was said in introducing the ministers in the picture on the front page of The Herald. It was said that I was retired.

It might be taken from this that I did not want work of any kind.

Since my health is better than it has been for years I feel that I would like to have some work to do.

James A. Patrick,
Ashland, Ohio.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mrs. B. F. Cook	$ 6.00
W. A. Reid	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller	1.00
Holbrook, Neb., Ladies' Aid
(indebtedness fund)	10.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman	4.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman (indebtedness fund)	5.00
Harriet E. Boice (indebtedness fund)	6.00

EIGHTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Advent Harbinger, edited by Joseph Marsh, October 25, 1851, ten years before the outbreak of the Civil War, contains an interesting article by J. Dingle on "The Restoration of the Kingdom to Israel" and another by Thomas C. Crane on "Life and Death."

Among the news items, we especially note these: Bro. J. S. Gardner, Busti, N. Y., writes: "Through the goodness of God I yet survive the pale nations of the dead. Though my health is very poor, and I am able to preach but little, yet my faith is strong, and I am daily confirmed that soon Jesus will come and mortality may be swallowed up of life. . . . I greatly desire health that I may run to and fro and publish the glad tidings of our soon-coming King, and warn the people to be ready to meet Him in the air."

Six brethren of Elyria, Ohio, J. P. Jacobs, L. B. Wilson, F. C. Rawson, P. Livingston, William Muklig, and M. S. Frary, write of the faithfulness of the little group of believers in that community, which met in the Mechanics' Hall, to teach the "literal advent of Christ, the restoration and the glorification of the earth, &c."

That the question of the Trinity was agitating the churches in those days is evident from the statement made by W. Patterson, Delhi, N. Y. "On the 12th of July the West Meredith Baptist Church withdrew the hand of fellowship from me because I could not believe that man in his present state is immortal, and because I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God: or in other words . . . that man in his present state is not in possession of an immortal soul, and that Jesus Christ is not equal with God the Father."

Arrived October 21: Thomas Glenn Birkey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Birkey, 2305 N. 72nd St., Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Birkey is a member of the Oregon, Ill., Church of God.

WITH OUR STUDENTS AT AURORA COLLEGE

Aurora College, where several of our young people are preparing for the ministry and for other Christian work, last week celebrated its annual homecoming. Former students at the college were present from many parts of the country and even from the mission field of India.

All through the preparations and activities of the homecoming the Student Christian Association, of which Bro. Arthur Mills is president, did not neglect the spiritual work to which it is dedicated. On Thursday evening, Dr. O. R. Jenks, formerly associated with the Church of God in Minnesota, led in an Expectation Service. The service of song and prayer was in charge of Bro. Mills.

The Word

—is the savor of death unto death and life unto life (2 Cor. 2:16, 17);
—is magnified above God's name (Psa. 138:2);
—of God is quick and powerful (Heb. 4:12);
—will be the plumb line of judgment (John 12:48).

BURR OAK, INDIANA

A special announcement: November 23, Monday evening, following the township's union services, we will begin a "Spiritual Awakening" meeting, with Bro. L. E. Conner as evangelist. Preparation is being made for one of those old-fashioned meetings that will stir the hearts of our people as well as bring salvation to the unbeliever. No better one could be selected than Bro. Conner, and we seek your special prayers for him and the church that the gospel of the kingdom be preached and accepted by many.

We are happy to see the churches busy in their own way to promote the teachings of the Word with a sincere heart. We are praying for you.

The basement improvement fund is slowly creeping toward its goal. Bids are being received, and we hope soon to be able to distribute our school classes in the basement, as the place used, mainly the auditorium, is becoming very noisy. Last Sunday there were 72 in attendance. Any of our sisters or brethren over the nation who would like to contribute to the good work may be sure it will be appreciated. Send in your pledge or contribution to Mrs. Mary Hatten, our treasurer, Culver, Ind. We thank those who have already contributed. A list of the names will be published later.

Sunday, the 25th, will be our all-day rally services, with basket dinners. Bro. Parker and several Kokomo folks are planning to attend and have part in the service.

The Gospel Seekers' Class held their meeting last Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Heiser. This meeting was one of the best gatherings, even though it did rain. They are endeavoring to raise money for the new basement. This basement improvement will cost around $500. All are working with plenty of interest to raise the necessary funds.

Bro. Melvin Osborn returned last week from a few days' visit in Iowa.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

"The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword."—Heb. 4:12.

BITS OF THE MAIL

"The Berean page, which we have been passing up for a long time, seems to have taken on a much different tone, and we are glad to see it."—A. G., Winona, Ont.

"If only there wasn't such a thing as debts what a lot more could be done for the truth."—J. M. B. K., Riverside, Calif.

"Just a few lines to tell you how I enjoyed 'It Is to Laugh.' I am thankful I have not the sour nature of the dour Scot mentioned."—D. G. H., Kokomo, Ind.

"I note you mention tithing now and then. I think this is most important. . . . I have found no mention of any of the healing Bible references such as Matthew 10:8. It has always seemed to me the healing should be a part of the Christian life as well as salvation."—C. B. H., Detroit, Mich.

SARAH ELEANOR BRUSH

Sarah Eleanor Sharpe, daughter of John and Sarah Sharpe, was born November 29, 1861, in Livingston County, Ill., and departed this life at her home near Bartley, Neb., October 14, 1936.

In 1880 the family moved to Gage County, Neb. She was married to James M. Brush March 5, 1882, at Firth, Neb. In 1885 they established a pioneer home in Frontier County, later moving to the farm home just north of Bartley where the husband passed away March 30, 1927.

Five children were born into this home: Virgil, Mrs. Elsie Barnhart, Llewellyn, and Izetta of Bartley; and Mrs. Blanche Groves of Loveland, Colo.

In 1889 she was baptized into the Church of God and to this faith she was always true.

Her home and the church furnished an abundant life for this good woman, but she was also a helpful and sympathetic friend and neighbor. However, poor health the last few years has kept her from many of her usual activities.

She is mourned by her five children, sixteen grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, one brother (H. D. Huetson of Adams, Neb.), and several nieces and nephews.

Words of comfort were spoken by our pastor, Bro. Grover Gordon of Holbrook, Neb., from Isaiah 35 and the apostles' prayer, "Thy kingdom come." She was laid beside her husband in Bartley Cemetery to await the call on the resurrection morn.

Mrs. May Moore.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

"What This Country Needs," observes John T. Flynn in the October 24 Collier's, is not fewer machines, but more modern equipment. By fact and argument, Mr. Flynn produces the evidence to show that replacing obsolete equipment in buildings, roads, and machines would not only produce a phenomenal boom but insure permanent prosperity. Ultra-conservatism driven by tradition forbids it, except in unusual cases. So with the church. The basic ideas of the industry remain the same, but the methods require changing. And the religious workers whose ideas have not progressed with the times would, if made to do a right dress, reach around the world four times.

Marc Connolly's "Green Pastures," since it came out in a motion picture, has excited even more comment that it did as a legitimate play. And that means some excitement. What too many who read or see the play fail to appreciate is the subtitle that Connolly has placed beneath the "Green Pastures": "A Fable." "Green Pastures" is not intended as the truth, nor for sheer entertainment, but for education; and it is only incidental that it happens to have been written by a man who's made several fortunes from it. The current negro conception of religion, God, the Christ, finds place accurately and not at all irreverently (when one remembers the story's purpose) in the three acts. It all makes quite interesting reading even in its book form.

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings."

Tch, tch, tch. And after all that line about "It Is to Laugh" (Oct. 13) a typographical error leaped into the final paragraph when we weren't looking. Readers have not permitted it to hide its light under a bushel, either.

It's a good thing for church janitors that William Wrigley learned to manufacture gum. They'd have so little to do if there were no Spearmint to scrape off the bottoms of the pews.

An odd rime, but it had its place on the fly-leaf of a Bible that once belonged to a pitman in the County of Denham:

"God made bees, and bees made honey,
God made man, and man made money;
Pride made the Devil, and the Devil made sin;
So God made a cole-pit to put the Devil in."

"Landon says citizens of this country are living in a fool's paradise. Well, 'the greatest good to the greatest number' is one of the major objectives of a democracy."—Washington Post.

CHRISTMAS CARDS WITH SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Let your Christmas be Christ-centered this year by using only biblical greeting cards. Both these assortments are remarkably varied and of exceptional beauty. Sentiments and Bible verses have been chosen with unusually good taste.

Assortment No. 621 (pictured): $1.00. Purchased individually, the 21 folders in this lovely gift box would cost $1.50. Besides this saving, the box can be used again for containing gifts to others. We offer this particular selection because we believe, after investigation of the market, that no better one exists. The price includes transportation charges.

Assortment No. 612 (not illustrated): 50 cents. There are only 12 folders and envelopes in this box, but their individual retail value is 80 cents. Like the box with Assortment 621, this box can be used as a beautiful container for gifts. The folders are quite as choice as those in the larger selection. Customers west of the Rockies add 5 cents to help cover postage.

The true and largely forgotten significance of Christmas points at the Christ. Help to recall this to your friends with cards based upon the Bible. The texts are not obtrusive, but they do convey a message.

In each assortment are eight different papers and eight different processes. There are two metal seal numbers and several beautifully embossed designs.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON, ILLINOIS

GENTLEMEN: Please send me box(es) of Assortment No., for which I enclose my remittance.

Name

St. & No.

City State

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

BIBLE TEXTS IN CROSSWORD PUZZLES

The third of a series of crossword puzzle books based on the Bible, this product of Charles S. Brown represents something unique in the book field. A whole swad of other volumes to keep the crossword puzzle fan from dusty brains has been issued, but almost none has been centered on the Scriptures.

Fortunately for those who like to cure their insomnia rather than aggravate it, the answers to the puzzles are printed in the back of the book. A study of those answers reveals that each puzzle is founded upon one Bible text, which appears at the top of the puzzle proper.

A large proportion of the word clues are simply the problem of filling in blanks left in partially quoted Bible verses. General reference to the chapters from which such verses are taken is made at the conclusion of each set of word clues. Some clues, of course, necessarily allude to un-biblical language; but by far the majority rest solely on the Scriptures.

There can be no doubt that the fan who solves all, or even part, of the fifty-two puzzles will know a great deal more about the Bible than he has known before; yet the problem of study and research is not so acute that the pure joy of finding solutions will be destroyed. Certainly a boon for the combination puzzle fiend and Christian.

W. A. Wilde Company: $1.00.

INTERNATIONAL BIBLE COMMENTARY

A comparatively new volume in its field, the International Bible Commentary offers something not a great deal different from that offered by most of the other one-volume commentaries on the Scriptures. There is, however, this important distinction: the International Bible Commentary is considerably less expensive—and, to be sure, somewhat less complete—than most.

Every chapter in the Bible is given treatment by the book. Those flaws which the Church of God would normally find in any general religious work are, of course, to be found here, too; but they are not obtrusive, and on the whole the commentary is very acceptable.

It is not technical. Greek, Syriac, Aramaic, and Hebrew are left for other commentators. Twenty-five thousand textual references give the student ample opportunity for comparing scripture with scripture and drawing his own conclusions if he fails to agree with the commentary itself.

Unlike the majority of recent commentaries, this book appears to work on the assumption that God actually is a person and that the Bible is His inspired Word. A motivation of this sort is decidedly refreshing after such tomes as the Abingdon and Peake studies of the Bible.

The Apocrypha is granted space with the regular Canon, but the wordage about it is not nearly so voluminous as that on the Bible proper.

Numerous photographs and a number of full-color maps enliven the text. The photographs are modern, but the atlas, obviously based on that in the Winston Bibles, is not.

John C. Winston Company: $2.00.

"A good book is the best of friends, the same today and forever."—Martin Farquhar Tupper (Of Reading).

THE LIVING BIBLE

After a three-year period of syndication of this material, Amos R. Wells, Litt. D., LL. D., gathered his 1,179 paragraphs together and incorporated them in The Living Bible. The result is intended to be a consecutive series of devotional comments on each chapter of the Scriptures, one chapter and one comment to be read each day.

No effort is made to be dogmatic, and the book consequently is well clear of objectionable matter for any church. The only obvious source of woe to a member of the Church of God is the comment on Genesis 1, and this source is nothing but a very evident misapplication of a New Testament verse to the story of creation.

For me, this type of thing has no special appeal. However, as Forbes recently said of hobbies, tastes in books may be divided into two categories: (1) mine; (2) those that are pretty silly. It wouldn't be at all surprising if you liked The Living Bible quite a bit.

W. A. Wilde Company: $1.50.

REBUILDING PALESTINE

In less than a year, this book has gone through two highly successful printings of 25,000 copies each. And with reason.

George T. B. Davis is the author, and he has written from a first-hand acquaintanceship with Palestine. Up-to-date photographs scattered through the 126 pages give zest and color to the text.

Rebuilding Palestine According to Prophecy is essentially biblical. Many scriptures are quoted in full, and many others are mentioned; but there is not that stilted parenthetical allusion to multitudes of references which ruins so many religious articles. The tinge of authority touches the entire book. Without a doubt, this stands in the front rank of the releases on the effects of Zionism, the Balfour Declaration, and their prophetic significance.

Million Testaments Campaigns: paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents; quantity prices available.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 3, 1936

NUMBER 5

The Kingdom of God

By T. A. Drinkard

I AM interested in the kingdom message because of its importance and its place in the plan of God, the blue-print plan of which God is the Author. He gave the message to His prophets, His Son, and lastly to the apostles. It was necessary that it be preached in the days of the kings, of the Son of God, of the apostles, and why not now, inasmuch as God has never restored it or withdrawn it?

Advice is often given not to reprove the religious world because of their false teachings, saying it will do no good. I find that Jesus Christ was the greatest militant soldier of the Word of God, and His work is a matter of record. He never failed to tell the people the truth regardless of whether the politicians, either civil or religious, liked it or not. He did not start His message with, "Now I don't know whether this is right or not," but, "This is the will of God." He spoke as one having authority, and we need some of that same "saith the Lord" just now. Why compromise the truth with error? It's the most precious treasure on earth.

Go outside the ranks of those advocating adventual truths and what do you hear about the kingdom of God? Just a lot of human rubbish that is fed to the starving thousands to build up and to foster human denominationalism that is a slander against God and His Word.

I had rather not preach if I must strangle the Word of God. Let it shed its rays of light in the dark places of sin and act as a reproof to those teaching error (2 Tim. 4:1-4).

God did not give His kingdom plan to that Gentile king (Nebuchadnezzar) just for himself alone, but for you and me. There are those who have sought to twist its meaning, but after their efforts to wrest its meaning it still stands. Thank God for that.

Time would fail me to mention every detail of this great image that represented so much, and the readers must go and read the entire account themselves to fully appreciate it. Don't overlook these outstanding facts: It was to be established in the days of certain kings. It was to break in pieces kingdoms; and after it had done this, it was to stand forever on the earth.

"In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: . . . it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."—Daniel 2:44.

Herein is a picture of the rise and fall of human empires, succeeded by the stone kingdom that stands forever. Has it been established? There are those who had it set up during Christ's personal ministry, and those who claimed it was set up on Pentecost, and last come those saying it was set up in April, 1878. By referring to the Word of God you will see that all of them were wrong. Why? Simply because facts do not bear them out.

Notice the outstanding, characteristic principle of the kingdom—its power of breaking to pieces human empires. Press those that say it was set up on Pentecost and they will say you are not in the everlasting phase of the kingdom—that is to come. And yet there is no such thing as two phases of the kingdom of God.

I would call your attention to Micah 4:1-3. This prophet is describing the same kingdom, and very ably and forcibly shows the outcome of the kingdom rule. In connection with this read Isaiah 2:2-4, which also is about the kingdom.

Notice at these two scriptures that the implements of carnal warfare are converted into implements of peaceful industry. Did this transpire in the days of Christ, on Pentecost, or in April, 1878? The characteristics will accompany the kingdom—don't forget this.

"These kings" of Daniel 2:44 are living at the time the kingdom is set up and according to Isaiah 2 that is in the "last days," and if I read the signs right we are in the last days now. That mighty kingdom of prophecy could not be set up until Christ comes again as the Scriptures clearly show,

Abreast of the Times

Jews Now Number 16,300,000

"I will . . . make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude."—Genesis 32:12.

BERLIN, Germany, Oct. 27.—According to Dr. Erwin Rawicz, noted Jewish statistician who has just completed a survey of the Jewish population of the world in Central-Verein Zeitung, organ of the Central Union of Jews in Germany, the Hebrew population of the world has multiplied itself six times in the past 135 years, and now numbers 16,300,000.

The Jewish population, the report shows, is divided into three principal regions. Approximately 7,500,000 are located in Russia, Poland, Rumania, and the Baltic States. The United States comes second, with a Jewish population of 4,500,000. The third group includes some 1,333,000 Jews who make their homes in countries bordering on the Mediterranean.

The number of Jews now residents of Germany was given as 400,000, as compared with 550,000 when Adolf Hitler came into power in 1933.

Unemployment

"In all labour there is profit."—Proverbs 14:23.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—According to an estimate made by the American Federation of Labor there are 11,259,000 men and women capable of working who are now unemployed. The cause of unemployment is variously suggested. Undoubtedly increased mechanical efficiency may be named near the top of the list. Some observers dispute this assertion, however, affirming with Joseph Stagg Lawrence (in the current number of Scribner's magazine) that technological developments do not produce unemployment but lead to more work and higher wages. General opinion seems to disagree with this viewpoint.

Changes in public taste have the effect of throwing large groups of men and women out of work, even when such changes, by introducing new materials and styles, serve to open additional factories and provide new work for other groups.

An impressive example of the effect which changing styles have upon the labor market is found in the result that followed the invention and introduction of rayon. This silk-like material, which met with the immediate approval of the womenfolk of the country, quickly displaced such fabrics as gingham, for the manufacture of which enormous factories had been built, expensive machinery installed, and hundreds of thousands of men and women employed.

According to Boyden Sparkes (Saturday Evening Post, Oct. 31, 1936), a single factory engaged in textile manufacture, which in good years employed as many as 20,000 workers, who were paid a weekly wage that ran at times as high as $300,000, has been closed for a lack of profitable market outlets during the past few years.

Of course the new rayon mills took on thousands of workers, but those whose only knowledge of textile manufacture had to do with cotton and woolen fabrics, owing to their lack of experience in the making of the new materials, could not be absorbed, even had their geographical location made them economically available.

Soviet Constitution on Religion

"From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same the Lord's name is to be praised."—Psa. 113:3.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Oct. 30.—The Government of Russia has now under consideration the adoption of a new constitution, which it is said guarantees religious freedom. Among other provisions bearing upon this subject is the following numbered "Section 124": "To ensure to citizens freedom of conscience the church in the U. S. S. R. is separated from the State and the school from the church. Freedom to perform religious rites and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognized for all citizens."

"Section 125" contains these further provisions: "In accordance with the interests of the toilers, for the purpose of strengthening the socialist system, the citizens of the U. S. S. R. are guaranteed: (a) freedom of speech; (b) freedom of the press; (c) freedom of assembly and meeting; (d) freedom of street processions and demonstrations."

All this appears at first sight to be very promising, but whether or not these liberal provisions will be finally adopted in the new constitution remains to be seen. It is evident, however, that religion is making some progress in Russia despite the efforts of the Government to suppress it, for recently the Soviet press was lamenting the advances being made by the Methodist and Baptist Churches and calling upon the authorities to renew their efforts to eradicate religious influence so far as possible.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

SOME MEDITATIONS

By James A. Patrick

EVER since coming home from General Conference, I have been mulling over the many things that happened there. There are many very pleasant memories.

One thing that has recurred to my mind a number of times is Sister Bell's plea for a better paid ministry; pay that would enable them to raise families and live as the average man lives. The answer that was given, it seems to me, was very unfair and misleading. Not that anyone meant to be unfair; and while everything that was said was true, it was the impression that went out from what was said that was wrong.

When Sister Bell had finished her very fine plea, some one asked Brother Conner if he was well paid when he first began to practice law, and the answer was something after this fashion: It is said if a lawyer can starve for four or five years, he will get along all right. Then it was said that doctors usually have a hard time to get started. These things are true in the affairs of men, but God has a different method.

Sometimes preachers do suffer for lack of things to make life what it should be. Paul did, but he asked the Corinthian church to forgive him for doing them a wrong in not being burdensome to them. I guess Paul was like most other preachers. He didn't like to talk about money matters. However, he acknowledged he had done them a wrong. Do we want to be found in the same position as these Corinthians?

Why do preachers not like to talk about church finances? Because there is always some one ready to say, "O he is looking after his own pocketbook." They do this to try to excuse themselves for not doing their duty.

It has been said of me that I am a high-priced man. I don't know why, unless it is because I have always contended for a living wage for our ministers. One of my first pastorates paid me the munificent sum of $25 per month. It was said at conference that I looked on the Lord's work as a "job." Well, the work that I gave up to take my $25 per month "job" paid me more for 180 days' work than my "job" did for 365 days' work. Besides if I had kept on with that work for seven years more, I would have received a certain amount of pension per month for the balance of my life, and if I had kept on twelve years more, I would have received a larger pension.

I can appreciate Brother John Denchfield's action in refusing to take good paying secular work to take church work that will probably pay him less. I pray God will bless him in the stand he has taken.

Why do preachers have to suffer privations? Is God at fault? Does He want it that way? No indeed. He has provided a plan whereby His work can and will be carried on, if His plan is followed. The priests of Israel were always well taken care of when God's plan was followed, but when it wasn't, then they suffered. Who was to blame? Nehemiah said, "I perceived that the portion of the Levites had not been given them: for the Levites and the singers, that did the work, were fled every one to his field. Then contended I with the Levites and singers." Is that the way it reads? That is the way some people seem to think it ought to read, for a good brother used to contend that the minister should go out on his faith and take what he got. If he didn't get enough to live on, that was his lookout, the church was quit of any responsibility in the matter. This would be all right if it were God's plan. I would rather trust Him than any man or group of men, but He hasn't planned it that way, and we may try to improve on that plan with suppers, fairs, grab-bags, etc., but it will never work as well as His plan does.

We find fault with other churches because they are not teaching God's plan. Are we? O yes, we teach the mortality of man, Christ's personal coming to earth, the resurrection, the kingdom on the earth, etc., etc., ad infinitum. But he that violates in one point is guilty of the whole.

Let us finish the quotation from Nehemiah: "Then contended I with the rulers, and said, Why is the house of God forsaken? And I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then brought all Judah the tithe of the corn and the new wine and the oil unto the treasuries" (Neh. 13:11, 12). Whom did Nehemiah blame? He did not contend with the Levites and singers, but he did contend with the rulers.

When we quote from the Old Testament, people so often say, "O that applied to the Jews, and we have nothing to do with that." Paul said of these things: "All these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition."

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

The Dead Sea

I looked upon a sea
And lo! 'twas dead,
Although by Hermon's snows
And Jordan fed.

How came a fate so dire?
The tale's soon told:
All that it got it kept,
And fast did hold.

All tributary streams
Found here their grave,
Because this sea received
But never gave.

O sea that's dead! teach me
To know and feel
That selfish grasp and greed
My doom will seal.

And, Lord, help me my best,
Myself, to give,
That I may others bless,
And, like Thee, live.

—Anonymous.

The Great Commission

God has given to His people in this generation the greatest commission that has ever been given to any people since the creation of the world. God's commandment-keeping people, although comparatively few in number, have been intrusted with the tremendous responsibility of warning the world of its rapidly approaching destruction and the end of all things. To them has been intrusted the great task of carrying the message of salvation to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people. Every member of the Church of God in these last days must be a witness for God and a messenger of salvation to a lost world. On that great day when each one must appear before the great Judge of all the world to give an account of his stewardship, no excuse will be accepted for a failure to do our duty. To every person has been given at least one talent and he is expected to use it to the glory of God and for the salvation of souls. Lack of education will be no excuse, for "if any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him" (James 1:5).

A college education is not required as a requisite for work in the vineyard of the Lord. The great Creator of the universe "in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge" (Col. 2:3) has placed all the resources of heaven at our disposal just for the asking if we "ask in faith, nothing wavering."

"O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God" (Rom. 11:33). Physical weakness will not excuse us. The Apostle Paul was beset with infirmities of the flesh. He says, "For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (2 Cor. 12:8, 9).

If we place ourselves unreservedly in the hands of the Lord for service He will turn our weakness into strength, for "God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty" (1 Cor. 1:27).

Let the weak one say in the language of the Apostle Paul: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13). Noah's message to the antediluvian world was a message of warning, proclaiming the destruction of the world in that generation and a call to repentance and the putting away of sin. John the Baptist preached a message of repentance, "for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (John 3:2), and a warning to flee from the wrath to come in that generation. The message that God's people are to carry today is a message of warning, proclaiming the early destruction of the world, and the setting up of God's everlasting kingdom and a call for repentance and reformation. The Savior has given us the signs that were to precede His coming, and He says: "Verily I say unto you, this generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled. . . . But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only" (Matt. 24:34, 36).

The message that we have to give is a vital one and the time in which we have to give it is very short, "for he will finish the work, and cut it short in righteousness: because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth" (Rom. 9:28).

God's messengers have no time to spend in arguing over obscure points of doctrine or disputing over prophecies that are hard to be understood. "Of these things put them in remembrance, charging them before the Lord that they strive not about words to no profit, but to the subverting of the hearers. . . . But foolish and unlearned questions avoid, knowing that they do gender strife. And the servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient, in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves; if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth" (2 Tim. 2:14, 23-25).

The old, old story of redemption through the blood of Jesus, and a presentation of the great essentials of salvation will bring more lost souls to the foot of the cross and to an acknowledgment of the truth than all the arguments and debates on prophetic questions and points of doctrine that we can engage in. The message that is to be carried to the world in this generation is the greatest that has ever been intrusted to mortal beings, yet it is brief and to the point and easy to be understood. It is so plain that the most ignorant man can grasp the full import of it, yet it is the greatest and most wonderful thing that has ever been offered to mankind and the most far-reaching in its effects. "For it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." It is extending to man the last offer of mercy that will ever be extended to the human race. If the great adversary of souls can get our minds off the great issue and get us to wresting the Scriptures and magnifying less important things that are not essential to salvation, he is holding back the work of God just to that extent. The work was hindered in the days of the apostles in this same manner. Peter, speaking of the writings of Paul, says: "Even as our beloved brother Paul also according to the wisdom given unto him hath written unto you; as also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction" (2 Peter 3:15, 16).

As servants of God let us confine our efforts to preaching the straight message for this time, "sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you" (Titus 2:8).

Let us preach Christ, and Him crucified. Let us teach men the necessity of true repentance that they may be accounted worthy of a home in the soon coming kingdom of God. We should not try to force our opinions upon others but "let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind." We are to speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing meekness unto all men. "But avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain" (Titus 3:9).

There are millions all around us yet to be warned. Are we shirking our responsibilities, or are we doing our part in proclaiming the message? If not, "it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed."—L. D. Lane in The Bible Advocate.

The Christian Rite of Baptism

IT WAS night in a little city of inland China. The sound of traffic in the streets had died away. From a newly established Christian chapel, a group of men and women passed out beyond the ancient city gate, and through rain and mud wended their way to the river, where fourteen of the number were baptized by immersion. It was the first ceremony of its kind to be held in that district, and caution indicated that the service should not be conducted at a time when anti-foreign and antichristian elements might create a disturbance.

Three centuries ago in England, John Bunyan, the celebrated author of Pilgrim's Progress, passed twelve years in Bedford jail because he conscientiously believed in New Testament baptism, and would not conform to the creed and practice of the established church. During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the Baptists of England and other European countries suffered severe persecution, many of them witnessing for their faith in the flames of martyrdom. It is fitting that we inquire, What valued truth had they found that was more precious than life itself? What precept of Scripture so gripped their conscience that, rather than surrender their faith, they resolutely chose death?

The story of Christian baptism begins with the ministry of that remarkable man, John the Baptist. The voice of the reformer "crying in the wilderness," stirred the multitudes of Palestine, and many "were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins" (Matt. 3:5, 6).

Into a small carpenter shop of distant Nazareth, the tidings of the dynamic evangelist and the great spiritual revival penetrated. John was the forerunner of Christ, chosen to "prepare . . . the way of the Lord" (v. 3), and to clear the ground that God might introduce to the world "His new humanity." Recognizing that the hour had come when He was to begin His public ministry, Jesus bade mother and friends farewell, and joined a pilgrim band from Galilee that was traveling to the Jordan.

Although Christ and John were cousins, they had no intimate acquaintance with each other. As they now met, John recognized in Jesus a purity of character that was divine; and when Jesus requested baptism, the other exclaimed, "I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?" (v. 14). Sensing his own unworthiness, John felt that he should never baptize the sinless Messiah. Gently but firmly Jesus replied, "Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness" (vv. 14, 15). Together they walked down the banks of old Jordan, and the Son of God was buried beneath the flowing tide. The record says:

"Straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him: and there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Mark 1:10, 11).

Not as a confession of guilt, nor on His own behalf, did the Master receive baptism. As a member of our race, the divine-human Christ was treading the path that we are to walk; and left "us an example," that we "should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21).

After three and a half years of busy ministry, and just prior to His ascension, our Lord presented to His church as a parting legacy the Great Charter of evangelism: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:18-20).

In Mark's vision of the same far-reaching commission, the vital truth is emphasized: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16). The term "baptize" is an Anglicized word derived from the Greek baptizo; and in standard Greek-English lexicons, the original meaning is given "to dip," "to immerse," "to plunge," "to bathe." In New Testament times it was a familiar word in common use. The apostles of Christ understood it perfectly, and their practice in the early church was in full accord with the command of Christ.

When Philip the evangelist met the secretary of the treasury in the government of Queen Candace of Ethiopia, he was given the opportunity of unfolding to this prominent man the prophecies of the Old Testament and their accurate fulfillment in the advent, life, death, and resurrection of Christ.

(OVER)

"INTO THE WATER"

"As they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing" (Acts 8:36-39).

Following the example of John the Baptist and Christ, "they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch"; and the wondrous guidance of the Spirit in this incident is emphatic evidence of the divine approval. When a person understands the gospel and believes on Christ with all his heart, there should be no delay or hesitation. As God spoke to the penitent persecutor, Saul of Tarsus, so He speaks to every twice-born man today, "Why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16).

Paul's ministry followed the same divine blueprint. When God opened the hearts of Lydia and her friends, they embraced the message and were baptized. When the alarmed jailer of Philippi cried out in the anguish of his soul, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" the Apostle replied, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. . . . And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway" (Acts 16:14, 15, 30-33).

A MONUMENT TO THE RESURRECTION

In the New Testament, the beauty and significance of baptism are impressively set forth:

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection" (Rom. 6:3-5).

Immersed into the death of the Son of God! What words of deep and vital import! Christ's resurrection is the miracle of miracles in which the entire plan of redemption centers.

And God would have the eyes of our understanding opened to behold "the exceeding greatness of his power, . . . which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead" (Eph. 1:18-20).

The miracle of Christ's resurrection includes countless other miracles of transformed, rejuvenated lives; for those who were dead in trespasses and sins "hath he quickened (made alive) together with him"; yes, "risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead" (Col. 2:13, 12).

Few physicians presume to operate upon the delicate structure of the heart. But when the "old man of sin" dies, the old stony heart is removed while the Great Physician implants a new heart, and bids the individual arise to walk with his Savior-Restorer "in newness of life." All along the centuries these miracles, transformations, have been wrought; and today from many lands still comes the wondrous procession of redeemed, resurrected men and women.

Baptized "in the name" of Jesus Christ, born anew into the heavenly family, they inherit the family name, are called "Christians," and become heirs with Christ to all the treasures and benefits of the Father's estate (John 3:1-8; Rom. 8:15-17).

How highly should we esteem our birthright privileges! "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ" (Gal. 3:27). In consequence of the natural birth, we inherit the disposition and characteristics of our earthly ancestors; as a result of the new birth, we become partakers of the divine nature, and inherit His name, His goodness, His forgiveness, His sacrifice, His infinite love, His spotless character.

It is an intimate blood relationship. Genuine Christians are "no more strangers and foreigners," but "made nigh by the blood of Christ," our Elder Brother. And this kinship assures us of complete victory over every inherited and cultivated tendency to evil. The believer verily exchanges the rags of his own righteousness for the characteristics of the royal family, and the court garments of meekness and purity. "He hath set his love upon us," His name upon us, His likeness upon us. Let us never dishonor that "worthy name" by which we are called, and into which we are baptized.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM DOWN THE CENTURIES

Concerning the New Testament mode of baptism, there is general agreement among biblical scholars. The distinguished Dr. Philip Schaff declared: "There can be no doubt that immersion and not sprinkling, was the original, normal form of baptism."—Church History, p. 488. Mosheim, a standard authority, bears this witness: "In this (first) century baptism was administered in convenient places, without public assemblies; and by immersing the candidates wholly in water."—Vol. I, p. 87.

Concerning the baptism of babes or of children too small to understand the meaning of repentance, the following from Neander is explicit: "Baptism was administered, at first only to adults, as men were accustomed to conceive of baptism and faith as strictly connected. We have all reason for not deriving infant baptism from apostolic institutions." And again: "It is certain that Christ did not ordain infant baptism."—Vol. I, p. 311; also, Christian Religion, p. 360.

The brilliant scholar, Dean Stanley of the Church of England, wrote: "What is the justification of this almost universal departure from the primitive usage? There may have been many reasons, some bad, some good. One, no doubt, was the superstitious feeling already mentioned which regarded baptism as a charm, indispensable to salvation, and which insisted on imparting it to every human being who could be touched with water, however unconscious.

"For the first thirteen centuries the almost universal practice of baptism was that of which we read in the New Testament, and which is the very meaning of the word 'baptize'—that those who were baptized were plunged, submerged, immersed into the water. That practice is still, as we have seen, continued in Eastern churches. In the Western church it still lingers amongst Roman Catholics in the solitary instance of the Cathedral of Milan; amongst Protestants, in the numerous sects of the Baptists. It lasted long into the Middle Ages. . . . But since the beginning of the seventeenth century, the practice has become exceedingly rare. With the few exceptions just mentioned, the whole of the Western churches have now substituted for the ancient bath the ceremony of letting fall a few drops of water on the face."—Christian Institutions, pp. 21, 22.

A CHILD OF APOSTASY

In the great apostasy leading to the Dark Ages, when tradition was exalted in the place of the Bible, the "sprinkling" of infants and adults with "holy water" was substituted for Christian immersion. While darkness and rejection of Bible truth became almost universal, history shows that in every age from the founding of Christianity to the present, there have been loyal witnesses to the purity of the gospel, including Bible baptism. Today clear light shines upon the pages in Inspiration, and God sounds anew the call to loyalty, "Buy the truth, and sell it not." Like Pilate, many ask, "What is truth?" The Master replies, "Thy word is truth." (Please turn to Page Eleven)

THE LOST CHRIST

By D. G. Harvey

"And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him."—Luke 2:45.

THE LOST CHRIST? Surely Christ was never lost. But we remember the story of old, how Joseph and Mary took the twelve-year-old boy Jesus to Jerusalem for the annual feast of the Passover, how when the party was ready to return to their homes the boy remained behind. After a day's travel, He was missed. They turned back to find the boy Jesus in the temple, discussing the questions of the day with the learned doctors, and all who heard Him were astonished.

But the strange part of the story was that Jesus was lost by the most unlikely person, His mother! The one who loved Him most, the one who understood Him best, but yet failed to fully understand her own son.

So today Christ is lost by the most unlikely persons! Not by the world, for the world does not know Christ. But by Christians, church members, church officers, yes, even by pastors and evangelists! And the sad part of the whole matter is that, like Joseph and Mary, they "know not of it." They fail to realize their loss. When the loss first becomes apparent, they seek their loss among their companions, "their kinfolds and acquaintances," and fail.

Friend, if you are one who has begun to feel your loss, if you have that indifferent, spiritless desire of service, you have lost Christ. Why? "Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Rom. 8:7-9).

The point is, if you no longer have that Spirit of God, that power which leads you, encourages you in your service, your service will only be of an indifferent, spiritless, careless sort. And always the trouble rests with you and me alone. God's power has not been taken from you or me. No. We have thrown it aside. We then have lost Christ. Let us not look hither and thither for our lost Christ. Do as did Joseph and Mary. Turn back.

Go back where we lost our Christ. Joseph and Mary found the boy Jesus in the most unlikely place, where they left Him, in the temple. We, too, will find our lost Christ just where we left Him. Perhaps in the church! Perhaps a little misunderstanding has caused our loss. Let us turn back and seek Him.

But let us not make the mistake of Mary. Let us never blame our Lord. "Why hast thou dealt so with us?" cried His mother. She forgot that it was she who left her son. Her son had not left her. Oh, so often we make the excuse, "The Spirit seems to have left me," but fail to understand why. The answer of Jesus to His Mother is our answer: "I must be about my Father's business."

There we have failed. We have become slothful. To regain our lost Christ we must repent of our weakness, change our front, strengthen our effort. We must follow our great Example, our Lord, not only in baptism, but in work. Each must be able to say from the heart, "I must be about my Father's business."

Our Father in heaven: We thank thee, O God, that Thou rememberest we are but dust. Thou who knowest all our needs and our weaknesses, strengthen us according to our needs, guide our paths in Thy service, to Thy glory alone. In the name of Jesus, Thy Son. Amen.

Is Evolution Christian?

EVOLUTIONARY teaching has permeated the whole educational system of the land. In public and high schools, in universities and colleges, almost every subject is taught with an evolutionary bias. The daily press and current magazine literature assume evolution to be an axiom accepted by all. Even children's papers are saturated with an evolutionary conception of history and science, so that from earliest childhood the rising generation is being indoctrinated with its seductive teachings.

Little wonder, therefore, that when a college lecturer recently asked his class, "Do you believe in God? Do you feel any need to believe in God?" the students gave an almost unanimous answer in the negative.

Even more serious, however, than the capture of secular institutions of learning and the secular press has been the insinuation of these teachings into the Christian church, thus poisoning the fountains of truth at their source.

IRRECONCILABLE VIEWS

When the doctrine first gained prominence through the advocacy of Darwin, Huxley, and Spencer, it was admitted by them to be antichristian, and was recognized as such by leaders and laity in the church. Huxley declared most emphatically: "Evolution, if consistently accepted, makes it impossible to believe the Bible." Consequently the earliest attempts to introduce evolution into theological colleges and the Christian pulpit were more drastically dealt with.

But before long a profound change began to take place. It was urged by some within and without the church that Christianity and evolution were not irreconcilable. Attempts to harmonize the two began to be tolerated, then viewed with sympathy, and now but a few decades after the expulsion of Henry Drummond and others the heresy has become orthodoxy, and "Christian evolutionists" form the largest group within the organized churches.

Evolution has passed also into the Sunday schools, and even in the mission fields modernistic missionaries are inculcating it into the native converts in their charge.

But, one might ask, how has a system of philosophy so antagonistic to every principle of "the faith which was once delivered unto the saints" been able to subvert such a large section of the professed Christian church?

EFFECTIVE DISGUISE

When the wolf in the fable realized that he could not get near to the flock without a disguise, he covered himself with a sheepskin. And those are precisely the tactics which the Christian evolutionists adopted. They continued to use the familiar terms of traditional Christianity—inspiration, God, Christ, the cross, salvation, and the atonement—as if their acceptance of evolution left their belief in these fundamentals of the Christian faith unchanged. Yet actually their mental reservations gave to them an entirely different meaning.

The teachings of evolution were advocated with evangelical fervor. It was grandiloquently asserted that truth was not static, but dynamic. They claimed simply to be expressing the Christian faith in modern terms, and thereby seeking to draw the younger generation of our scientific age into the fold of the church.

Little by little they weaned their congregations from belief in the Bible as the supreme rule of faith and guide of life, and they persuaded the unwary that this or that doctrine was not an essential part of the gospel of Christ.

Emboldened by their success, they spoke more and more plainly, until now it has become obvious that they have rejected the whole foundation of the historic faith.

The Christian evolutionist's god is not the beneficent Creator and loving Father of the Bible, but a fearsome, remote, and unapproachable being, if "being" he can be called, who is the source of evil as well as good, and who invented the monstrous system of development whereby higher and higher types would arise by trampling underfoot those weaker than themselves. The imperfections and horrors of the past and present in man and beast are all part of his deliberate plan.

A DAMAGING REPUTATION

The Christian evolutionist's Christ is not the historical Jesus of the New Testament, the "Word made flesh," but only the highest product of the evolutionary process of His time. His life was an example of virtue to His own and later generations, but no more. He died a martyr to principle, but His death had no vicarious merit. The biblical doctrine of the atonement, according to one Christian evolutionist, is "impossible."

Not only is the atonement impossible, but it is declared to be unnecessary, since man is no longer regarded as a creature fallen from original innocency, but one who has risen steadily from an original simian stock. And if there has been no fall, there is, of course, no need of a Savior or salvation in the scriptural sense. The left-overs of man's bestial ancestry will be perfectly well cared for by the evolutionary process. The evangelistic appeal has thus entirely dropped out of the Christian evolutionist's preaching, and intellectual enlightenment rather than conversion is assessed the first desideratum of spiritual progress.

As to the future, the Christian evolutionist believes in neither a resurrection nor a judgment, a heaven nor a hell. And he is not quite sure whether he can believe in immortality when he remembers that the Java man, the Peking man, the Neanderthal man, and other unsavory ancestors would have an equal claim to it.

Surely Bishop Barnes, one of the spokesmen of the Christian evolutionists, spoke truly when he admitted that evolution had "destroyed almost the whole theological scheme."

The term "Christian evolutionist" is indeed a flagrantly false designation, for the "Christianity" of the Christian evolutionist has absolutely nothing in common with the Christianity of the Bible. As, Dr. J. M. Gray for the Moody Bible Institute has very forcibly declared, "Christianity according to fundamentalism is one religion. Christianity according to modernism is another religion."—Moody Bible Institute Monthly.

Certain it is that if the Apostle Paul could rise from the dead and listen to the modernistic preachers of our day, he would pronounce theirs to be "another gospel," entirely different from that which he believed and taught. And he would as vigorously anathematize it as he did the false doctrines which were entering into the church in his own day (Gal. 1:6-8).

A DECEPTIVE COUNTERFEIT

Without doubt he would repeat the counsel he gave to Timothy to avoid "profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so-called" (1 Tim. 6:20), as also his message to the church at Colosse: "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit" (Col. 2:8).

"Christian evolution" is no more "Christian" than is "Christian spiritism." Both are counterfeits foisted upon an unwary church which has forgotten the divine admonition, "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them" (Isa. 8:20).

In the light of Peter's great prophecy, one cannot but see in this complete reversal of the Christian witness one of the last great efforts on the part of the archenemy to frustrate God's gracious purpose of salvation, and obscure His last warning message and invitation of mercy to a doomed world. And sad indeed it is that the vast majority of professed Christians should have succumbed to the seductive anæsthetic.

But there is no need to be deceived. Through the word of prophecy the origin and development of this movement has been clearly portrayed so that those who have eyes to see, and ears to hear, and hearts to understand, may recognize and expose this subtlest of deceptions.

On his deathbed Henry Drummond, one of the first to introduce the evolutionary virus into Christian teaching, came to realize the terrible mistake which he had made, and in a letter to Sir William Dawson declared: "I am going back to the Bible to believe it and to receive it as I did at the first. I can live no longer on uncertainties; I am going back to the faith of the Word of God."

If any who read these lines have been similarly deceived, we would most earnestly urge that they, too, while there is yet time, may reconsider their position and seek the same refuge. For as the scoffing of the antediluvians did not hold back the predicted judgments of God in the days of Noah, so the roseate optimism of evolutionary philosophy will not prevent the speedy outworking of the final acts in the great purpose of God.

As "by the word of God . . . the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished," so also, declares the Apostle, "the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men" (2 Peter 3:5-7).

That the end has tarried so long is only because God is "longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." But at the time appointed "the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

"Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved," Peter asks, "what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God?" (2 Peter 3:9-12).

Answering his own question, he says: "Beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless."

As the shadows deepen and this modern delusion gains a greater and greater hold upon the minds of men, blinding their eyes, and closing their ears against the judgment-hour message of warning and mercy, the children of God are to give themselves more fully to seeking that preparation of heart and life which shall enable them to stand "without spot, and blameless," before the throne of God.—W. L. Emmerson in Signs of the Times.

PATHWAY OF CONTENT

When I am dead

If one can say:

"She helped the world upon its way;
With all her faults of word or deed
Her friends did have some little need
Of what she gave"—

Then in my grave

No greater homage shall I crave.

If they can say

It in their heart,

"She did her best; she played the part:

Her way was straight,

Her soul was clean,

Her failings not unkind or mean;

She loved her friends and ever tried

To help them"—

I'll be satisfied.

And when I'm gone

If even one

Can weep because my life is done

And feel the world is something bare,

Call me a knave,—

My life misspent,—

No matter, I shall be content.

—Author unknown.

God's Care Over His Word

AT A TIME when it has become popular to describe the Bible as a remarkable and interesting book but as being no more inspired than any other ancient history, the Lord God has brought to light fresh evidence of His watch-care over the Holy Scriptures. The preservation of the books of Moses and the writings of the prophets from patriarchal times was a great example of divine providence. The translation of the Old Testament books from Hebrew into Greek (B. C. 280), known as the Septuagint, affords Bible lovers down to the present day indisputable evidence of the then existence of the Hebrew Scriptures and of scholars and scribes among the Jews competent to make a trustworthy translation. Both the Hebrew Scriptures and the Greek translation were in use among the Jews right down to our Lord's day, and also in the years following His ascension. That the original Hebrew writers were inspired by the Holy Spirit of God is asserted freely in the New Testament as well as in the utterances of the prophets themselves (2 Peter 1:21; 2 Timothy 3:15-17; Acts 3:21; Dan. 2:16-23, 27, 28; Jer. 1:1-3; Ezek. 1:1-3).

The New Testament is similarly worthy of our confidence as an inspired book. The Gospels are a true account of our Lord's origin, His life and miracles and teachings, and of His resurrection, and of His commission to the apostles, with the promise that the Holy Spirit would lead them into all truth, and would bring to their recollection things necessary to be taught and written about.

In Bible Talks for Heart and Mind we have published a list of ancient Greek manuscripts which contain the whole or portions of the New Testament. This list is a valuable possession for any Christian who wishes to be able to meet objections to the antiquity and worth of the manuscripts. While the Lord desires and exhorts His people to walk by faith in their service to Him, nevertheless He has preserved for us very practical evidence on the reliability of the New Testament writings, by reason of what may rightly be regarded as His miraculous preservation of them, and His making them available by causing the discovery from time to time of manuscripts of unquestionable authenticity.

The discovery by Prof. Tischendorf of the Sinaitic manuscript in 1859 is within living memory. The Sinaitic manuscript has proved exceedingly valuable, for internal evidence shows it to have been written, according to Tischendorf's judgment, about the middle of the fourth century, certifying to the fact that there then existed a still earlier manuscript of which it is a copy. The Sinaitic manuscript contains the whole of the Bible—Old and New Testaments.

Now we are informed by the press of a new discovery of great interest. Evidently to uphold His people still further in their belief in the Scriptures as His inspired Word, the Lord has now brought to light another ancient Greek manuscript containing a portion of the New Testament. As we read—

"Recently Mr. A. Chester Beatty bought from an Egyptian dealer a quantity of manuscript which was found to contain a further part of St. Paul's Epistles, some leaves of which were already in Mr. Beatty's possession.

"The Times states that the whole of the manuscript, which comprises about five sixths of the text of the Epistles, is to be published in a few months.

"Sir Frederic Kenyon, formerly Director and Principal Librarian of the British Museum, who is preparing the work, explained to the London Press Association:

"In Mr. Beatty's collection were originally 10 leaves of the Pauline manuscript. Later 30 more leaves were acquired by the University of Michigan. Now Mr. Beatty has acquired 46 more, making a total of 86 pages. One can calculate that when complete the manuscript consisted of 104 leaves, of which some at the end may have been blank.

"It contains all the Epistles of St. Paul, except Timothy, Titus, and Philemon. The Epistle to the Hebrews is placed second in the whole collection, coming immediately after Romans. This is a novelty. There is no other manuscript with the Epistles so placed.

"The manuscript was found, with a number of others, by natives somewhere in Central Egypt. They disposed of them to dealers from whom Mr. Beatty purchased them.

"No one knows exactly where they came from; almost certainly from the ruins of some church or monastery. The Pauline papyrus quite probably belongs to the early part of the third century. That means it is about one hundred years older than the Codex Sinaiticus. It is the oldest manuscript, of any considerable size, of the New Testament.

"It is written in Greek in the ordinary ink of the time, and the hand is good and clear, and easy to decipher. The papyri generally are in good condition, except that a few lines on the bottom of each page have been rubbed away. There are a few variations in detail, as there are in all manuscripts, but generally it conforms to our existing text."

The opinion expressed by Sir Frederic Kenyon that the new manuscript conforms in general to our existing text is welcome; and we shall, with many other Bible lovers, await with what patience we must until the manuscript is published. In the meantime it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that more leaves will be found to supply the missing Epistles.

The book of Deuteronomy, from which our Lord selected passages to quote in answer to the three temptations in the wilderness, has long been a special object of the hostility of Satan, who was defeated on that occasion. But now there is fresh evidence in its favor, in that a papyrus containing four fragments from Deuteronomy has been found—

"The John Rylands Library at Manchester publishes the text of two biblical papyri that were discovered on a rubbish heap in Egypt. The most important one consists of four fragments of the book of Deuteronomy, written in the second century B. C. It is thus three hundred years older than the oldest biblical manuscript previously known, and it is said to be the only existing pre-Christian evidence for the text of the Old Testament."

The great age of this papyrus (2,100 years) is a wonderful testimonial to the durability of the material and the ink used, to the preservative qualities of the dry Egyptian atmosphere, and to the overruling of divine providence in causing rubbish heaps to lie for centuries undisturbed in Egypt. And the great age of this manuscript, which has been in existence since 200 B. C., encourages afresh the confidence that some day there will be found New Testament manuscripts written while the apostles were alive, perhaps even the apostolic originals!—New Covenant Advocate.

SOME MEDITATIONS

(Continued from Page Three)

Yes, tithing was for the Jews, but was it for them only? Abraham paid tithes to Melchisedec; Christ is a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec. We are Abraham's seed, if we are Christ's; then we are under the Melchisedec priesthood. Is our responsibility any less than Abraham's?

Paul makes an argument in 1 Corinthians 9:9-15 that ought to convince us that tithing is the order of the day. Let us read a few verses: "For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care of oxen? Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope." Should he? or should he starve four or five years? Let us proceed. We will skip the 11th and 12th verses. "Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so (or in the same way) hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." Should they? or should they starve for four or five years? If Paul isn't teaching tithing here, will some one please tell us what he is trying to teach?

Let us continue by reading the 15th and 18th verses of this 9th chapter: "But I have used none of these things: neither have I written these things, that it should be done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my glorying void. . . . What is my reward then? Verily that, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not my power in the gospel." These texts are often used to prove that Paul never took wages for his work. But be careful. These Christians must have been terrible slackers. Turn to 2 Corinthians 11:8: "I robbed other churches, taking wages of them, to do you service." Who will get the reward in this case? Not the Corinthian slackers, but the churches that Paul robbed to do them service. Now turn to 2 Corinthians 12:13 and read, "For what is it wherein ye were inferior to other churches, except it be that I myself was not burdensome to you? forgive me this wrong." How had Paul wronged these Corinthians by not being burdensome to them? They would have no fruit in his work.

Like Paul, I am not writing "these things, that it should be done unto me," but that none of my brethren should lose out in their race for eternal life. I realize that my days of gospel work are numbered, although I am in better health than I have been for many years, and feel more like doing work than I have for a long time. But if I knew this was the last article I would write you, I would not change it in any respect. Why? As I said, I am not writing this looking toward any gain it may be to me, but that none of my brethren whom I love may come to judgment and find themselves shut out, or rather that they may not be left behind when the Lord comes and calls His own.

The matter of supporting the temple and its services by the tithes and offerings was as much a part of the service of the temple as any other part, and when that was not done all the rest stopped. All these things were written for "examples" to us upon whom the ends of the world are come. And surely the end of the world is upon us today. One glance at world conditions shows us that things cannot go on as they are very long.

Are we ready for the shout and the trump of God? If not, why not?

THE CHRISTIAN RITE OF BAPTISM

(Continued from Page Seven)

To summarize: Christian baptism was instituted by John, the herald of Christ's first advent; was observed by Jesus as our example; was practiced by the Master's disciples during His personal ministry; was accorded dignity and strength of Christ's command in the Great Commission; was faithfully followed by all the apostles and evangelists throughout New Testament times; was established as a memorial of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection; was presented to new believers as an outward token of the death and burial of the old nature, and as a resurrection to walk with Christ "in newness of life"; was observed as the door to the church, the adoption ceremony into the Christian family; was performed by immersion only, and never by sprinkling or pouring; was administered solely to believers upon repentance and confession of faith, and never to babes or children too small to understand its significance; was exalted as a precept of Christ, obedience to which prepared believers for the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

As ambassadors for Christ, we would repudiate all tradition and stand upon the unshaken foundation of Holy Scripture.

"Have faith in God," and in the divine promises, a faith that will not shrink from duty, a faith that triumphs over all doubts, and a faith that accepts the Savior's welcome through the gateway of baptism to new life and service in the family of God.—Hope of the World.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Does Prayer Mean Anything to You?

* * * *

By Elizabeth Ford

The word "prayer" to me signifies the foundation framework of a person's religious attitude. It is the core of his faith.

Prayer means thanksgiving and praise for God's kindnesses, and petitions for desired mercies and blessings (Phil. 4:6).

When you pray do you just repeat words, words, words, with no real meaning to you? Is prayer just a habit you have formed because you think it necessary to salvation? When you kneel at the feet (so to speak) of our Lord, is your mind away off on carnal pleasures? Remember the scribes, "which devour widows' houses, and for a shew make long prayers" (Luke 20:46, 47).

Think how our own dear Jesus bowed His head in the Garden of Gethsemane, how many times He asked for the power to perform miracles, how He pleaded with God even as He hung on the cross! Surely such an example is too blessed to pass by! Matt. 26:36-46; 27:46.

Through studying the Bible and prayer we are brought inexpressibly close to our Savior and to God. In the past people have been in direct contact with Jesus and in close access to God. Now, through daily prayer, we have the privilege of communing with God. We know our prayers are being heard because our Intercessor pleads with God in our behalf (Rom. 8:26, 27).

Our entire church organization needs, oh, so desperately, constant and sincere prayer. Pray, and thereby bring yourself close to God and His Son. Notice how contented and happy you become (James 3:15, 16)!

South Bend, Indiana

"The Young People's Christian Training Class" (the Berean class of South Bend) has been growing rapidly. The average attendance is 14. The interest is very good. Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Elmer McChesney, president; Doris Rouch, vice president; Wilma Pierce, secretary-treasurer, 214 Brook St., Mishawaka, Ind.; Maude Stilson, pianist.

Wilma Pierce, Secretary.

Find Me a Loophole

1. Abraham paid tithes to his high priest, Melchisedec.
2. We are children of Abraham by faith (Gal. 3:29).
3. Therefore, we should pay tithes to our High Priest after the order of Melchisedec, Jesus the Christ.

Since being converted to tithing by the above line of reasoning several years ago, I have vainly searched for just one loophole. There isn't any.

At first I rather thought: this is the law of tithing; we are no longer under law but under grace, therefore it isn't necessary to tithe. But on consulting the record I find that Abraham didn't seem to be forced into paying tithes. Rather, he received a wonderful blessing; his heart overflowed with gratitude; he paid tithes. It is not the law of tithing. It is the privilege of tithing.

Then I thought, even though we are children of Abraham, times have changed, Christ brought in a different set-up. None of the apostles tells us to tithe. Therefore it is out-of-date. But Christ said, "If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham" (John 8:39). Paul said we are heirs according to the promise given to Abraham (Gal. 3:29). Our understanding of those promises is brighter than that of Abraham because Christ was a more revealing and understandable spokesman for God than anyone else had ever been. Can we who inherit with Abraham do any less to show our love for God than He did? And anyway tithing is one of the most wonderful promises of God. In it the windows of heaven are opened, and God pours out such a blessing that there is not room enough to receive it (Mal. 3:10).

Therefore I believe in and practice tithing, not as a duty, but as one of the most blessed privileges a child of God can have in his dealings with his Father. I tithe because it makes me happier.

Not Room Enough

What "yardstick" does the Lord use to measure such a blessing as He pours out to tithers according to Malachi 3:10?

It is not a financial yardstick, for there seems to be no limit to the capacity of a rich man nor to the riches he can amass. God does give goods on occasion, but there is a better and enduring substance that He is more concerned about.

It must be a spiritual yardstick that the Lord uses. He measures in terms of the true riches. His greatest gifts to us are the fruits of the Spirit. We are to have faith, hope, and love, than which riches there are no greater in this life. Our mortal capacity cannot measure up to all that God would give us. Does anyone say, "Look how far I have gone in developing a Christlike character," God answers, "But look at the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ that I have promised. Go on to perfection."

The greatest gift of God is eternal life, and in the next life when we have received that, our capacity to receive other blessings will also have been increased. But even then the Lord can keep ahead of us. The things that God hath prepared for them that love Him are infinite in character. "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end" (Isa. 9:7).

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

PAUL PROVES HIS BRAVERY

A LONG and dangerous journey lay ahead for our beloved missionary, Paul. Because of the difficulties and hardships that he had met ever since he first began to preach the gospel, Paul knew there would be many on this trip.

Those who loved him tried to persuade him not to go on to Jerusalem, as he planned. They told him, with tears streaming down their cheeks, that the greatest danger awaited him. But Paul was so anxious to tell as many people as possible about Jesus that he wasn't a bit afraid.

Things were always happening wherever Paul went. One of the strangest, a sad and yet a glad event, occurred at the beginning of this long trip. It was at Troas, and you can find the story in Acts 20:7-12. If you think your preacher speaks too long sometimes, be sure and read that story.

Paul stopped at several places for a short visit, and when he got to Miletus he sent word to Ephesus for the elders of the church to come over. He wanted to talk to them.

When they got there Paul told them he had planned to return to Jerusalem, and he knew he would never see them again. He gave them some good advice about conducting their church work. He told them they should "feed the church of God."

Now we all know Paul didn't mean that they should give the church members bread and meat. But they should give them the "Bread of Life," which we know is what Jesus called Himself.

Paul told them he knew "bonds and afflictions" awaited him, but he was glad to suffer for Jesus and the preaching of the gospel. You know, sometimes we have to suffer for wrongdoing. That isn't so easy to bear because we have so many regrets. Paul had no regrets for suffering from preaching the gospel.

The last three verses in Acts 20 are three of the saddest verses, I think, that are found in the story of Paul's life. Can you see them all kneeling down while Paul offered his farewell prayer to God for them?

They would never forget him. They loved him dearly. He had brought into their lives the greatest blessing of all—believing and obeying the gospel. Now they would never see him again.

Never? O no! They knew they would meet Paul again on the glad resurrection morning. And we will, too, if we are true and faithful as long as we live, or until that happy day comes. May it come soon!

The elders followed Paul to the ship to see him safe aboard. And as he sailed away they stood on the shore, waving good-bye to him.

Paul had to change ships at Patara. Here he took another that stopped to unload its cargo at Tyre. There he found some good Christians and stayed with them a week.

They, too, tried to get him not to go to Jerusalem. And when they saw they couldn't frighten Paul, they followed him to his ship, just as the elders had done at Miletus.

Paul and the Christian workers of Tyre kneeled down on the seashore and prayed to God for courage and for safe-keeping. They knew God was the only one who could protect their beloved missionary. The next stop of any length was at Caesarea.

Boys and girls, can you see Paul as he traveled those wearisome days and nights? You know, they had no comfortable ocean liners, nor even smaller vessels, such as we have today. They were given only the barest necessities of life, yet Paul endured it all gladly.

It wasn't as though Paul could do no other work to earn a living. Why, he was educated as one of the best lawyers of that day. He could have been a wealthy man if he had followed that profession. But he gave up all worldly honor and position to preach the gospel to those who might otherwise have been lost.

Here at Caesarea the same things happened. Those who loved Paul begged him not to go on. One man did a very queer thing to get him to stay. Look in Acts 21:10, 11, and see what it was.

Paul's answer was the same as it had always been—he was ready to die for Jesus, if necessary. Do you think you could be as brave? It's hard for us to stand a little thing like people laughing at our faith sometimes.

From Caesarea Paul traveled overland to Jerusalem. The day after he arrived the elders of the church there had gathered together and Paul met with them. They had a long talk with him, telling him many things that the Jews were saying about him, which were not true.

All of which led to the great danger Paul faced in the lesson for November 15. If you read this page carefully you will be able to tell your Sunday school teacher some of the things that happened to Paul that are not given in the quarterly.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CASHMERE, WASHINGTON

The members of the Cashmere, Wash., church have made plans for a series of twelve chart lectures, to be given by Bro. Cecil Sater, Spokane, beginning November 8.

The charts are of his own handwork, a splendid set of forty pictures on creation and prophecy.

All are welcome; those coming from a distance will be cared for.

Bessie Lawrence, Secretary.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL IN PEORIA, ILLINOIS

The two known Church of God families living in or near Peoria, Ill., have shown praiseworthy enterprise since they were made acquainted with each other at conference and have organized a Sunday school. For the present they are to meet each Sunday afternoon at two o'clock alternately in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Robbins, 1710 N. Glendale Av., Peoria, and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Slagle, Dunlap. They hope, however, to be able soon to add to their attendance and to secure a meeting place where the general public will feel free to come. Regardless of the hospitality manifested by the owners of a private residence, strangers are always more willing to attend services of any kind in a public place.

The group at its meeting on Sunday, Oct. 25, selected Bro. E. H. Robbins as their teacher and Sr. Robbins as treasurer. This was a wise choice, we are sure, as Bro. Robbins has been an earnest student of the Bible for more than a quarter of a century and is well qualified to guide this zealous little company into further knowledge of the truth.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

The tenth anniversary of our church was observed with a most enjoyable and inspiring week-end, October 23 to 25. Not only were our own young people present in gratifying numbers, but many guests were on hand to make the occasion doubly sweet. In addition to Bro. Harry Goekler of Marshall, Ill., there were six young folks from Aurora College, seven from the South Bend, Ind., church, six from Kalamazoo, and one from Cleveland, Ohio.

Besides the general inspiration of the occasion there was the happy privilege of inducting two of our young people into the household of faith. This was done at the Sunday afternoon service, following which the right hand of fellowship was extended and the Communion service observed. The names of these new members are: Vergene Conrad, Keyes Ave., S. E., and Eleanor Hamilton, Lorraine St., S. W. These young people have been brought up in our Berean and Sunday school work, and are well grounded in the teachings of God's Word.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting of young people Sunday night there were 45 present.

Bro. Harry Goekler is doing very acceptable work among our people, and has been retained to act as assistant pastor for the fall work, at least. All are rejoicing over the present upward feeling.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

State Evangelist F. L. Austin
Song Leader J. W. McLain

On October 10, the first regular State evangelism was started at Eldorado, Ill., with protracted meetings. The work started off with a success that surprised not only the members, but the evangelists as well. The interest was slightly lessened the second week because Bro. Austin was called away to Fonthill, Ont., to take care of a funeral. The services were conducted by the song leader in the absence of the evangelist. The third week of the work is now under way and promises to bring a real revival. It is the policy of the evangelists to make personal calls not only to each member's home, but to the homes of those who come and manifest an interest in the meetings.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the evangelists called on isolated members. A very pleasant visit was obtained with Srs. Ida Jeffries and her daughter Irena and husband, Mr. Loren Margrave, at 415 S. Park Ave., Herrin, Ill. Mrs. Jeffries is the widow of James Jeffries, who was the son of the late Peter Jeffries.

In the late afternoon, with Srs. Jeffries and Margrave, we called on Sr. Margaret J. Donaly at 503 N. Division St., Carterville, Ill. Sr. Donaly is a daughter of the late Peter Jeffries. She is confined to the boundaries of her home at present because of injuries sustained in a car accident several weeks ago. She is improving nicely and is able to move about with the aid of a cane. Sr. Donaly is the youngest elderly lady we have had the pleasure of knowing for some time. Her cheer and optimism are quite constant.

We feel sure that these isolated members who are not in easy reach of one of our congregations would appreciate hearing from those of like precious faith.

The evangelists' calendar is not full as yet, so we urge those churches who are contemplating holding meetings to get in touch with either the evangelist, F. L. Austin, 5439 Ohio St., Chicago, Ill., or Sr. Leota B. Hanson, Lebanon, Ill.

Pray for a State-wide revival and for a successful evangelism.

J. W. McLain.

Man to Be Saved Must

- believe in Jesus and His resurrection (Rom. 10:9);
- show his faith in Christ's death by baptism (Rom. 6:1-6);
- be clothed with God's righteousness (Phil. 3:9);
- be made conformable to Christ's death (v. 10);
- attain unto the resurrection from the dead (v. 11).

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The Preaching Mission program suggested by the Federal Council of Churches is providing an incentive to several of our congregations to emphasize doctrinal teaching from the pulpit at this time. Men are hungering for bread but too frequently are being given a cold, lifeless stone by those who are appointed to provide spiritual food to the people. The gospel alone satisfies.

Ripley, Ill., one of our rural churches, has shown its interest in the work of the church at large by contributing a splendid "Moral Obligation Sunday" payment for the liquidating of the N. B. I. indebtedness. This loyal church was the first one to respond to the appeal made at conference that each congregation take up a special "Moral Obligation" offering on the last Sunday of each month. Others have since been heard from, however.

Encouraging reports from Eldorado, Ill., where Bros. F. L. Austin and James McLain, conference evangelists for Illinois, are conducting a protracted meeting, give us much satisfaction. The interest has been good and the attendance one night reached 88. Bro. Austin is one of the most effective speakers the church has, and we know from our own experience that Bro. McLain as song and musical director is second to none.

George T. Rennard, long-time elder of the Niagara Falls, N. Y., congregation, suffered a stroke of paralysis during early October and is still confined to Memorial Hospital in the city.

Leland Berry, Eden Valley, Minn., was baptized October 4 by J. R. LeCrone, pastor of the Eden Valley Church of God.

The poem entitled, "Pathway of Content," which appears in another place, was read by request at the funeral service of Sr. Flora Fish. It expresses the humbleness and devotion of our beloved sister with remarkable fidelity.

Elder John Denchfield delivered sermons on October 21 and 22 at the Ripley, Ill., Church of God. He was accompanied on his Ripley trip by Elder Gerald Cooper, Mora, Minn., whose former home was Ripley, and by Miss Ednah Cooper, who was returning to her Ripley residence.

According to The Bergen Beacon, published by J. R. LeCrone of Eden Valley, Minn., John Denchfield has accepted a pastorate in Iowa for the coming winter. Further details are unavailable.

The interesting information reaches us from Sr. Leota B. Hanson that the church in St. Louis, Mo., has rented the attractive little "Toy Theater" which they first used during the meetings held in St. Louis a few weeks ago. For the past nine years the brethren there have been laboring under the handicap of house-to-house meetings. They are to be congratulated on the forward step they have taken and we pray that much success may result from it.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

It was our privilege to administer baptism on Sunday, Oct. 25, to Mrs. John (Dorothy) Houser of 1120 S. Columbia St., South Bend, Ind.

With this addition five new names have been added to the South Bend church roll during the month of October.

On October 11 four others placed their membership at this place, three of whom were immersed during Bible school last June. The order of service was a fellowship service which followed our sermon on love and closed with the Communion.

Rally Day, on the first Sunday, was very much enjoyed by a fine attentive audience. The program committee, headed by Horace Pierce, well planned and carried out to the delightful satisfaction of all present a very interesting program. For our part of the service we used the words found in 2 Peter 3:18: "Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," as a basis for our remarks.

F. A. Stilson, Pastor.

MINNESOTA STATE CONFERENCE

The St. Cloud Church of God had the pleasure of entertaining the Minnesota State Conference October 16-18. Out-of-town guests were here from a number of different places in Minnesota and the fellowship and spiritual uplift we received by being together were certainly worth all the effort. On Sunday the Ladies' Aid served both dinner and supper in the church basement.

We have set November 1, the first Sunday of November, for our Rally Day program and have announced as our goal for attendance on that day 100. You may watch for our report to see if the goal was reached. It will mean faithful work for everyone, for we have at the present several inches of snow on the ground and icicles are hanging from the eaves of our houses. Brr! Now don't you folks in the South wish you might get a good whiff of this bracing Minnesota air.

Each Friday evening we are having a teacher's training class for all to give a basis for Bible study and Christian service. Pray for us.

C. E. Lapp, Pastor.

Comments the Kansas City Star: "Haile Selassie is pleased to report that he didn't lose all in the war with Italy, and that only one third of his kingdom was lost to the invaders. This, however, is purely hearsay on Haile's part; he hasn't been to Ethiopia lately to find out."

FORTY YEARS AGO

An item appearing in The Evangelist, published by G. M. Myers at Belle Plaine, Iowa, in October, 1896, says: "Bro. I. M. Vickery of Arkansas City, Kan., writes that five were immersed during their late meeting near Bitter Creek when L. E. Conner was with them."

When the item was referred to Bro. Conner, he mentioned the fact that upon his arrival at the place of meeting he was informed that it was expected that his sermons should each be of at least two hours' duration, and he spoke three times during the day and was asked to sing a solo! They sought to get full value out of their meetings in those days!

Bro. Conner also told of one man who came from his home in "the Strip" in Oklahoma some two hundred miles to attend the meeting, riding the entire distance upon an exceedingly poor horse and without a saddle. Those were the happy days!

LOUISA PLATTS

Louisa Platts, beloved wife of Ernest Platts of Welland, Ont., suddenly lapsed into death on the evening of October 18, 1936. Because of heart weakness she had been under the doctor's care for two or three weeks and was supposedly much improved, when without warning the breath of life ceased, on the 37th anniversary of her wedding day.

Sr. Platts was born to Hugh and Drenda Bailey on February 25, 1875. She was united in marriage with Ernest Platts, son of the late Bro. and Sr. William Platts of Fonthill, Ont., on October 18, 1899. To this marriage were born Alice, who died in 1922 in the youth of womanhood, Gladys, and Dorothy.

Early the deceased consecrated her life to Christ. For over seventeen years of the writer's pastorate there she was one of the worshipers, active in Christian service, of the Church of God of Fonthill. With faith toward Christ and hope in His promises she continued till death.

Besides her husband and two grown daughters there remain to mourn her death the large family of her parents, the large ancestral family of her husband, many fellow workers in Christ, and friends numerous.

Her loved ones laid her away in the silence of death, "not as those who have no hope." For, because of her life of faith and service, their hope and expectancy are that in a soon tomorrow this lifelong true wife, mother, sister, friend, will awaken to resurrection splendor at the call of the returning Lord and Savior. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." Come quickly.

F. L. Austin.

FLORA FISH

Flora (Gearhart) Fish, daughter of Conrad Gearhart, was born in Story County, Iowa, April 16, 1867, and died at her home in Maxwell, Iowa, October 20, 1936. She was married to Isaac A. Fish December 29, 1886. The eight children born to them survive their parents' deaths. Most of Mrs. Fish's married life was spent on the farm not far from Maxwell to which they removed in 1918. Since coming here she has made a large place for herself in the hearts of the people of the community, being, as was the case throughout her life, never too busy to answer a call for help in time of need.

During her girlhood she joined the United Brethren Church. Later, having embraced the gospel of the kingdom of God, she was baptized into the faith of the Church of God, to which she remained loyal to the end of her life.

Her desire was to live in the affections of her family, and all that medical skill and kind hands could do was done to prolong her days, but after more than two years of failing health she fell asleep to await her Master's call at His coming. Her husband, Bro. Isaac A. Fish, preceded her in death two years ago.

In addition to the six daughters and two sons who survive her, all of whom are members of the Church of God, and live in central Iowa, she leaves twelve grandchildren, two brothers, and two sisters, besides a host of more distant relatives.

The many who attended the funeral service filled the Presbyterian Church at Maxwell and listened with sympathetic interest to the message of comfort and assurance delivered by the former State evangelist of Iowa, G. E. Marsh. He was assisted by the pastor of the church in which the services were held.

It is doubtful if any one person has exerted a more lasting spiritual influence on the community than has this faithful, efficient, and loving servant of our Lord.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

Insurance rates on ministers are considerably lower than on any other type of life risk. They make us think of Archy the cockroach, who left behind him this brief item in Don Marquis' typewriter:

"live so that you can stick out your tongue at the insurance doctor."

Trains have been named for her. In 1889, Nellie Bly dashed madly around the world in 72 days, 6 hours, and 11 minutes, by liberal use of special trains. "Even," said the New York World, "imagination's record pales before the performance of The World's Globe-Circeler." Nellie worked for The World, which made disparaging reference to Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days." Whereas Herbert Roslyn Ekins, ace reporter for the Scripps-Howard chain of dailies, did an October circumnavigation in a trifle over eighteen days. He used nothing but regularly scheduled transportation agencies.

Six hundred Mennonite families are being driven by the drought from their colonies in the Dakotas, Kansas, and Minnesota to new farms in Alabama fronting on Mobile Bay. These Mennonites are descendants of the old Anabaptists, who were severely persecuted at time of Zwingli because of their conviction that only believers should be baptized, and then by immersion.

Until Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," John Fox's "Book of Martyrs" was the only book except the Bible which was printed in English. Consequently, it exercised a broader effect upon Christendom than any other single secular volume.

The world's greatest best seller, next to the Bible itself, has been Charles M. Sheldon's "In His Steps." The first editions were published without his permission or knowledge, and he subsequently has made very little out of the book. So far, something over twenty million copies have been sold.

The world is becoming pretty well cluttered up with Antichrists. After the Pope came Mussolini, after Mussolini NRA, and now after NRA this to The Literary Digest: "In the latest issue of The Literary Digest, under the heading 'Oracular Cheops,' you write: 'The leader, Robert J. Boyle, wasn't sure what was going to happen, but he hinted it was high time for the Antichrist, Mr. 666, to appear. To his way of thinking, several modern dictators might easily fit the role.' Only one dictator fits, as a simple examination of names and titles will show anyone who is curious as to the identity of your 'mysterious Mr. 666.' Count the letters in this: Fuhrer Adolph Hitler, and there you have six-six-six."

The war in Spain against the church, against Fascism, and against any other handy principles has its quirks. Censors yawn mildly beside news correspondents who drone things like this into the phone: "B for Benjamin, O for Otto, M for Mike." In London, those initials shoot out to the world as a headline: "Bombers Over Madrid."

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

BOOKS—OUR TREASURED WEALTH

Who has written more nobly about reading than Henry David Thoreau? "Books are the treasured wealth of the world," he said in Walden, "and the fit inheritance of generations and nations." This is why, I think, a special quality of life pervades all that has to do with books. One feels it in the manufacture and publishing and vending of books, no less than in the writing and reading of them; there is a continuous undercurrent of excitement likely at any moment to rise to readers' throats in an exclamation of joy at discovery of an increase in the world's treasured wealth.

Your good readers, and I include publishers, are tireless prospectors. The motives are as various as men, but the object is permanent and single; it is to find the precious metals of life itself, the finer substances of the reason and imagination which will enrich the quality of our days. Explain otherwise if you can the impulse of Thomas Y. Crowell who on reading in a newspaper of the French publication of Tolstoi's My Religion, cabled for the book and thereafter brought out the complete works of Tolstoi. This was prospecting on the grand, time-honored scale. Genius blows when it listeth, and critics, publishers, and lovers of books are kept vigilant by that fact.

But talent is a constant. Never is there a dearth of good books. Never is there a list of new books which fails in promise of something to read that is amusing, thoughtful, informative, or instructive, moving or inspiring. Talent moves forward, season by season, like an irresistible army—and irregularly in its ranks appears a genius.

It is a sour attitude, a dull spirit of incuriosity, that says, "When a new book comes out, I read an old one." There is no time in literature. The old great books are contemporary, and the new books are their competitors. We should read them together, since we wish to be contemporaries of living men who are beneficiaries of the "fit inheritance of generations and nations." We should be eager to see with our eyes the torch passed on.

To strike a balance of this kind between the classics and the moderns is to me essential to a full reading life. There is another balance to be achieved, and that is in the variety of one's reading. The pleasures of so-called light reading are not to be shunned. The Greeks had a word for the specific virtue of "jollity" or "good cheer," and no less grave a man than the Angelic Doctor has advised "absurd talk and acts" as the recreation of the soul. If we are balanced, and not what St. Thomas Aquinas called "clownish bores," we shall read not only for creation of fine values in ourselves but for pure unashamed recreation. We shall not despise vers de societe or humor or the light novel but find a place for them. In fine, we shall in our reading give ourselves the range from frivolity to the sublime which life itself spans.—Gorham Munson in the catalog of Thomas Y. Crowell & Company.

THE FOOL HATH SAID

It is difficult to form an adequate appraisal of this book. Beverly Nichols wrote it, and Beverly Nichols has been everything from a reporter to a violent pacifist. His current product carries more than a little of both the two extremes.

The writing is staccato, now and then cynical, not at all devotional in the accepted sense of the word. Yet the prime purpose of Mr. Nichols is to establish devotion and faith in a personal God as a deeply seated part of the reader's thought.

The writer swings from cocktail bar to Westminster Abbey without noticeable difficulty. His newspaper experience has given him a versatility sadly lacking in the majority of writers on religion. And from cocktail bar to Westminster Abbey the Nichols purpose runs in a continuous stream.

By the application of science, history, and common sense to the assertions of the Huxleys, the Darwins, and the Shaws, The Fool Hath Said neatly manages to present a somewhat exceptional argument in favor of the personality of God. If the book had stopped with this, a judgment of it would have been easy.

But the book went on. It went on, in fact, to consider pacifism, sex, prayer, the Oxford Movement. It went on to talk about Socialism and labor and capitalism, about a deep devotion, about miracles and the resurrection.

The Nichols conception of the Pauline Epistles and the teaching of the Christ is not particularly surprising, but for many readers it will be entirely new. Paul, it would seem from Mr. Nichols, injected his own bitterness into the Epistles, and so cast shade upon the beauty of the Christ.

The Nichols conception of the Oxford Movement stamps the movement as the temporary savior of mankind.

The Nichols conception of the Christ goes back to Cry Havoc, the Nichols attack on war. The Christ in the hands of Mr. Nichols becomes preeminently a pacifist.

Finally, the Nichols conception of Christianity and sex strikes not only a new but a definitely reasonable note.

Whatever one may say about its attitude toward Paul, The Fool Hath Said will make salutary reading for either orthodox or heretic, for either fundamentalist or rationalist. And it will not be boring reading, for the style is one of quasi-humor with language frequently unique in a book on Christianity.

Doubleday, Doran & Company: $2.00.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 10, 1936

NUMBER 6

Prayer for America

Lord, while for all mankind we pray,
Of every clime and coast,
O hear us for our native land,
The land we love the most.

Here lies our fathers' sacred dust,
And here our kindred dwell,
Our home is here,—how should we love
Another land so well?

O guard our shores from every foe,
With peace our borders bless;
With prosperous times our cities crown,
Our fields with plenteousness.

Unite us in the sacred love
Of knowledge, truth, and Thee;
And let our hills and valleys shout
The songs of liberty.

—John Reynell Wreford.

Abreast of the Times

Houdini's Ghost Remains Silent

"I pray thee, divine unto me by the familiar spirit, and bring me him up, whom I shall name unto thee."—1 Samuel 28:8.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 1.—"He has not come, I turn out the light." These words came sadly from the lips of Mrs. Beatrice Houdini last night as she turned the switch controlling the electric light which had burned for ten years before the picture of her dead husband, the famous magician. In the presence of two hundred persons the final test had been made in an effort to get into communication with the spirit of the man who had solemnly pledged himself to answer the call of his wife after death if it were possible for him to do so, and the test has brought no result.

Mr. Houdini, who successfully duplicated every feat of spiritist mediums by natural means, had before his death prepared a secret code which was carefully memorized by himself and his wife, and the two agreed that the one who survived the other should, on the anniversary of the death of the other, make an earnest attempt to get into communication with the one who was dead. Mr. Houdini died October 31, 1926, and on each succeeding Hallowe'en his widow has invited the best mediums of the world to aid her in establishing definite contact with her husband, but every attempt, including this, the last and final one, has utterly failed.

LONDON, England, Nov. 1.—The ghost of Houdini would not respond to the plea of Harry Day, a Member of Parliament and close friend of the dead magician, when he held a spiritist seance in the fulfillment of a pact he had made with Houdini years ago. "I am still keeping an open mind on the subject," Day said when no result followed the attempt to get into communication. "I kept my part of the bargain anyway."

It is strange that the lie the serpent told in the Garden of Eden should so long survive—"Ye shall not surely die"—when observation, experience, and scientific experimentation have proved the truth of the Bible throughout the ages, which says that "the dead know not any thing" and that "their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished" (Ecc. 9:5, 6). Only the voice of the Son of God can call forth those who sleep in the darkness of the tomb and enable them to speak once more.

Youth Bandits

"Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son."—Proverbs 28:7.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 2.—Last week's crime record in this city furnished startling evidence in support of the United States Government's crime investigation report published by the Department of Justice in 1935, which declared that crime was rapidly increasing among the young,

A gang of more than a dozen boys, whose ages ranged from 15 to 19, were arrested the early part of the week, all of whom confessed to the police that they had committed a series of burglaries stretching over several months. They had originally organized as a "sand lot" ball club, but soon degenerated into a gang of youthful bandits.

Two other Chicago boys, accompanied by another lad from Beloit, Wisconsin, and a fifteen-year-old girl who was seeking a "thrill," were arrested in Memphis, Tennessee, after staging a holdup. A fourth member of the gang, a twenty-year-old young man, also of Chicago, killed himself rather than face capture when they were surrounded by police officers. The ages of the other boys were 15 and 16. They drove to Memphis in a stolen automobile. The three youthful criminals were sentenced to serve five-year terms in institutions for juveniles.

According to the Department of Justice report on crime, to which reference has been made, examination of persons arrested in the United States in 1934, distributed according to age groups, indicates a rapid increase from ages 15 to 19, the numbers being as follows: (15) 1,512; (16) 6,046; (17) 10,318; (18) 15,174; (19) 17,304. The number of nineteen-year-old persons arrested exceeded the number for any other age group. A large proportion of them were charged with major crimes, as indicated by the following figures taken from the World Almanac of 1936: Criminal homicide, 219; robbery, 1,086; assault, 780; burglary, 2,411; larceny, 2,940; auto theft, 1,145; for carrying weapons, etc., 259.

According to Warden Lawes of Sing Sing Penitentiary in New York, Sunday school training is one of the most effective means of combating crime. Almost none of the prisoners in his charge have ever attended any kind of church service.

May God help our pastors, parents, Berean and Sunday school workers to keep our young people in the church and under the influence of that youthful Friend of youth, Jesus Christ, who was only 33 when He was raised from the dead to become no older throughout eternity.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

We Face the Future

By John Donaly

WHOLLY aside from internal political aspects, the tremendous vote given to President Roosevelt and the New Deal cohorts in the recent American election will have repercussions which cannot be measured until many years have passed.

The problem is not so much financial, not so much social, not so much political, as religious. No man in history has deliberately been given by more than 125,000,000 people the supposedly divine right of kings; yet this apparently will be the ultimate result of the landslide which carried nearly every State in the Union.

Not that it is anticipated that the President will take it upon himself to have a self-coronation. But it is certain that no man, in a presumed democracy, will be able to assume the authority vested in him by the acclaim now given to Roosevelt without seizing, legally or illegally, the autocratic powers of a dictator.

That the Constitution has largely been ignored during the past four years has been obvious, not from mere theory, but from the decisions handed down in rapid succession by the United States Supreme Court. In a short time, more New Deal legislation, including the social security tax act, will go before the court for adjudication.

In view of the enormous plurality of votes given the New Deal policies, it becomes apparent that, should the Nation's highest court declare those policies to be unconstitutional, the Government will be entirely justified and may be expected to take immediate steps either to suppress the court, to limit its power, or to annul or amend the Constitution.

It is thus that the problems raised by the November 3 landslide are religious. For, by the Constitution and by the Constitution only, are churches guaranteed the right to worship as they please. In no country of the world operated by dictatorships is there true freedom of speech, press, and religion. Nor will there be in this or any other nation if written basic guarantees are destroyed for the sake of writing a new form of government into existence.

This is no time for partisan politics; it is no time for regrets; it is no time for anything except a cold analysis of what may lie in the future. That the Bible has predicted the coming of dictatorships throughout most, if not all, of the world is undeniable; but that to have the United States fall victim to an anti-religious oligarchy would be both painful and deleterious, is also undeniable.

Since the World War, the trend in all governments has been definitely away from religion. Not even Mohammedanism has the hold it once possessed on its people. In Christendom, religion has become little more than a society for the abolition of hard liquor, war, drugs, and other social evils. The church has come to occupy no place except that of an adviser to the Government.

Hard on the heels of this trend have followed the inevitable consequences. In Spain, the church has been almost completely suppressed; if it arises on the ruins of what once was a prosperous and powerful country, it will do so subject to every whim of the ruling powers. In Russia, the church only recently has been accorded either rights or privileges. In Italy, the Pope is bound by Mussolini, and was obliged to make a peace pact with him not many years ago. In Germany, the results of antichristian governmental propaganda are still making havoc. In the United States, during the past three years, a number of experimental towns have been erected to which the powers that be have denied churches on the ground that such towns are economically unable to support religious organizations. On the other hand, every such town has been supplied with a theater, a recreation hall, and complete facilities for fun and frolic.

No better time for consolidating the forces of the church on maintaining its freedom from governmental interference could be secured than the present. And this statement cannot be construed to mean that the church as a Christian organization should insert its spoke in the wheel of politics. What is necessary is that each Christian should consider that, according to human rights and, more, according to the divine rule of God almighty, he has the eternal power to worship as he pleases, and to object to any efforts to curtail that power.

All the world has been watching the trend in the United States to determine inter- (Please turn to Page Eleven)

FROM MATTHEW 24

"And you are to hear of wars and rumours of wars. See that you be not alarmed, for such things must be; but the end is not yet. For nation will rise in arms against nation, kingdom against kingdom, and there will be famines and earthquakes in various places; but all these are but like the earliest pains of childbirth..

"At that time they will deliver you up to punishment and will put you to death; and you will be objects of hatred to all the nations on account of my name. Then will many turn against me, and they will betray one another and hate one another. Many false prophets will rise up and mislead many; and because of the spread of lawlessness the love of the great majority will grow cold; but he who stands firm to the end shall be saved. And this gospel of the Kingdom shall be proclaimed throughout the whole world to set the evidence before all the Gentiles; and then the end will come."

—Weymouth, New Testament in Modern Speech.

Universal Resurrection

Is It Scriptural?

By R. H. Judd

"If a man die, shall he live again?"

SCRIPTURE DEFINITIONS of death are so numerous, and in many instances so detailed, as to exclude possibility of misunderstanding. The first occurs in Genesis 3:19, and in every respect is in accordance with the facts of the actual experience of mankind. Another typical passage is found in Psalm 104:29, and still another in Psalm 146:4; but probably the most pithy and irrefutable is that of Isaiah 38:1, where Hezekiah is told, "Thou shalt die, and not live." Language could not be more definite. The pronoun without question represents the actual person, and life and death are placed in direct antithesis. The popular idea of a person being both dead and alive at one and the same time is thus shown to be impossible.

Job's question follows as a natural sequence, and can only find its answer in the Bible doctrine of the resurrection. "Abel, Enoch, Noah, and Abraham . . . all died . . . not having received the promises." Therefore, redemption from "the power of the grave" as expressed by David in Psalm 49:15 becomes an absolute necessity for the promises to be fulfilled.

The next question demanding an answer is: Will all—men of all time—be resurrected? "Orthodox" Christianity generally proclaims that they will, basing its teaching on the single passage of John 5:28, 29. The writer believes such an exegesis to be illogical, for it ignores earlier statements on the subject the language of which cannot by any method of syntax be brought into harmony with the idea of universal resurrection, and which must have been understood by contemporaries quite apart from New Testament statements written centuries later. He further believes that there is no doctrine of vital importance in the New Testament that has not its beginning in the Old Testament. If, therefore, any doctrine is definitely absent in the Old Testament, interpretation of New Testament passages in its favor must obviously be reserved. This is more apparent still when Old Testament passages can be cited which directly deny the doctrine in question. We are thus brought to two very important considerations, viz.:

First. Are there any passages in the Old Testament which can without question be said to teach universal resurrection? We mean, of course, passages the translation of which is beyond dispute. We are unable to recall a single instance.

Second. Are there any Old Testament scriptures which

A somewhat novel idea of the resurrection is presented by Mr. Judd. Although opposed to the conception of a universal resurrection, he holds that a portion of the wicked as well as all the righteous will be resurrected.

will not rise? We think there are many such, and herewith quote a few in substantiation: Exodus 14:13 says, "For the Egyptians ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever." Isaiah 43:17 is evidently inspired comment on that very incident. Uttered some eight hundred years after the event, it has some very notable points of interest. The Revised Version very correctly omits the first "shall": "they lie down together" instead of "they shall lie down together," thus removing one item which might perhaps cast a doubt on its reference to the Red Sea passage. It also brings it into harmony with the tense of the remaining portion of the verse. How is it possible, in the face of the emphatic statement, "They shall not rise, they are extinct, they are quenched as tow," to support the idea for one moment that they will be resurrected, any more than tow (or wick; see margin) can be restored after it has been consumed? To deny language so definite one might with equal reason deny John 3:16 or John 17:3.

In Psalm 49:12-20, David compares man "to the beasts that perish," and says, "They shall never more see the light." That these statements apply to what we term "natural death" is made abundantly clear in verse 17 by the expression "when he dieth." The fate of past generations ("his fathers") is also included, and as if to make doubly certain the statement of verse 12, quoted above, is repeated in verse 20.

Psalm 119:119 (R. V.) tells us, "Thou causest to cease all the wicked of the earth like dross." Proverbs 10:25, "As the whirlwind passeth, so the wicked are no more." Did ever a whirlwind come up the second time? Never! Psalm 88:5; Job 24:19, 20; Isaiah 26:14. What language could more forcibly state the utter end of the ungodly than is used in these passages? "They are dead, they shall not live, they are deceased, they shall not rise." Further, each of these passages declares, in different wording, that they shall be remembered no more.

Jeremiah 51:39 is, if possible, even more emphatic. The same is true of Amos 8:14; Proverbs 21:16; and others.

One cannot for a moment think that when our Lord uttered the well-known words of John 5:28 (upon which so many build universal resurrection) that He had overlooked these explicit didactical Old Testament scriptures. Rather, the writer thinks that He had in mind such scriptures as Psalm 88:5; Job 24:19, 20; and others where it is said that the wicked will not be remembered. Had the Christ used the word "hades," then universal resurrection would have been an unanswerable argument if the words of Christ are to be given precedence over Old Testament affirmation. He came, however, not to destroy, but to fulfill. That "graves" is not the correct thought is evidenced by the change in the Revised Version from "graves" to "tombs." To the average person such a change would seem to be insignificant, indeed unnecessary, but to the student it indicates that the revisers recognized an essential difference they could not well express, hence their choice of the word "tombs" to show a difference existed. Other scholars have suggested "memorial tombs," or "memorials" conveys the correct thought (see Words of Life for September, 1936), thus showing selection rather than universal resurrection. Viewed in contrast with Psalm 88:5, and others quoted already, such a thought seems reasonable.

So numerous and so emphatic are the scriptures that many, with considerable reason, teach that resurrection is the only hope for those "accounted worthy." That such is the main purpose of resurrection would appear to be beyond dispute. There are, however, to the mind of the writer several passages of Scripture that would seem to point to the resurrection of a portion of the unregenerate. For instance that in Luke 13:28, "When ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out," reads like a specific message to a class within Jesus' hearing. Paul's statement of a resurrection of both the just and the unjust also seems to bear this out. As in most things, the middle ground between two extremes would seem more probable to be correct.

SIN

By D. G. Harvey

"Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people."—Proverbs 14:34.

ALL our lives we have been urged to avoid sin, but what a strange thing our conception of sin sometimes is. Often we condemn sin all acts of others who do not conduct their lives according to our own ideas. If we as Christians would fight against sin, we believe it best to first find the thing we wish to avoid. The Bible can and will answer our question.

What is sin? "Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law" (1 John 3:4). The above citation is the one so often recited in class without comment, but with a satisfied expression, as if to say, "There! That settles it." But wait; does it entirely satisfy?

We might perhaps ask, "What law is referred to?" John surely does not refer to the law of Moses, and conflict with Paul's teaching—"But now we are delivered from the law" (Rom. 7:6). Perhaps John refers to what we sometimes call the law of nature. It is but natural that if one goes against all rules of health, he invites disease and early death. But we believe John refers to the great law of Christ. "Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets" (Matt. 22:37-40).

The great law of love calls for complete love of God. "with all thy heart," all our emotional nature; "with all thy soul," all our life and personality; "with all thy mind," all our thoughts to the glory of God. That is love, complete love for God. And the second commandment is, "Love thy neighbour as thyself." How easy it is to transgress this law, how easy to sin.

But we urge we are members of the church. Membership in church may not mean you are a Christian; even prayer can be sin. "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination" (Prov. 28:9). Without love of God and our fellow men, our prayers mean nothing. But like the Pharisees, we pray to be heard of men. For without love, there is doubt and lack of confidence in His Word.

Listen: "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth. And he that doubteth is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: for whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom. 14:22, 23).

There is the answer to our question. Anything that lacks love and faith is sin.

"Every way of man is right in his own eyes: but the Lord pondereth the hearts. To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice. An high look, and a proud heart, and the plowing of the wicked, is sin" (Prov. 21:2-4). How could plowing be sin? "The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor: let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined. For the wicked boasteth of his heart's desire, and blesseth the covetous, whom the Lord abhorreth. The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts" (Psalm 10:2-4). He breaks the law of Christ.

Where Are the Dead?

WHILE the leaders of the various denominations differ greatly in their interpretation of Scripture, yet they are remarkably agreed on one point, namely, "soul immortality" with its consequent evils of "eternal torment," etc. It is evident that they have drunk deeply at the fount of Platonic philosophy, which undoubtedly has its source in the lie of the Devil uttered in the Garden of Eden: "Thou shalt not surely die."

I have before me two articles, one entitled "Where Are the Dead?" and the other "After Death?" The writers belong to different denominations, poles apart in doctrine, yet on this subject they are agreed.

Both commence by seeking to prove that "sheol" is a place of departed spirits. The writer of "Where Are the Dead?" commences thus: "Jacob, we will remember, said he would go down to 'sheol'; while the writer of "After Death?" says, "Prior to the resurrection of Christ the departed spirits of men went to 'sheol.'"

The question might be asked: "Did Jacob believe that 'sheol' was a place of departed spirits?" In Jacob's words referred to, the writer omits a very important point. Jacob says, "For I will go down into sheol (correctly translated "grave" in A. V.) unto my son mourning" (Gen. 37:35). He believes that Joseph is dead, and the same verse tells us that not only did he mourn, but he refused to be comforted. Surely if sheol is a place of departed spirits where the righteous live in conscious bliss, Jacob would have derived some solace from this. He would most surely have comforted himself after the manner of the poet:

"Yonder's the land where the loved ones are,
Soon will the mists roll away!
Joy soon to rest in the realm afar,
Soon will the mists roll away!"

When we also consider the several references Jacob made to death and the grave, it will be increasingly evident that both writers are sadly in error in their definition of "sheol." In Genesis 42 we read of Jacob's sons going down to Egypt for corn, and of Simeon's detention. In verses 36-38 we see how Jacob reacts to this further bereavement, and also to the possible loss of Benjamin. He closes his lament with the words, "Then shall ye bring down my grey hairs with sorrow to the grave (sheol)." Surely no one would seriously suggest that a spirit has grey hairs, and yet one cannot logically escape from this conclusion, if "sheol" is a place of departed spirits. Again in Genesis 45 we read how he greets the news of Joseph being alive. He cannot at first believe that Joseph is alive (v. 26), but when at last convinced, he says, "It is enough: Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die" (v. 28). Surely it is evident from these statements that to Jacob "sheol" meant nothing more than the grave, and that he had no hope of living after death in a spirit world.

The next stage of the two writers is to prove that "sheol" had two compartments, the lower compartment containing the spirits or souls (neither writer correctly defines "spirit" and "soul," and each confuses one with the other) of the unrighteous, and the upper compartment, called "Paradise," containing the spirits or souls of the righteous. They also locate this mythical "sheol" as being in the heart of the earth. Now one would naturally assume that a doctrine of such importance would be plainly stated by the Old Testament saints, and that their references to this intermediate state would be quoted by the writers. It is rather surprising then to find that neither writer bases his statements on any Old Testament scripture, but rather on one solitary portion of the New Testament, and that a parable, "The rich man and Lazarus."

Now it is evident that whatever standing these men may have in their own particular denominations, they have either forgotten, or ignored, two essentials in Scripture exegesis. Firstly, that no Scripture is of private interpretation. A doctrine cannot be built upon one portion of Scripture, unless all other Scripture will agree. Secondly, a doctrine cannot be built up on a parable, but must have plain statements of Scripture for a foundation. The writer of "After Death?" does later in his article give six references in the Old Testament where "sheol" is located as being down, but this does not necessarily prove that it is a place of spirits. He makes much of the incident recorded in Numbers 16, but it is to be noted that he only quotes part of verses 30 and 33. If he had quoted verses 30, 33 in full, they would have probably proved too much for him. These verses tell us plainly that not only the men went down to "sheol," but also their houses and their goods. The "new thing" was that they were buried first and died afterward, in contrast to the common death, i. e., dying first and being buried afterward.

Returning to the subject of the rich man and Lazarus, we are told by both writers that this is not a parable. The writer of "Where Are the Dead?" says, "Some contend that the story of the rich man and Lazarus is a parable, but the Lord did not say so, and when we consider that the name of the poor man is given, and that the number of the rich man's brethren are given as five, these particulars change the possibility of parabolic teaching. To say that it was not real is to imply that it was fiction." To say the least this reasoning is very weak. The preceding stories in chapters 15 and 16 are not said to be parables and yet they are always referred to as such. And to say they are not true because they are not real history is foolish in the extreme.

If Luke 16 is not a parable, and does in fact reveal the state of the dead, there are several resultant difficulties. In the first place it would appear that our Lord contradicted the Old Testament Scriptures, and we know He did not do so, but He rather confirmed them. How then can we reconcile such statements as the following if we accept Luke 16 literally? "For in death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave (sheol) who shall give thee thanks?" (Psalm 6:5). "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence" (Psalm 115:17). "The dead know not any thing; . . . there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave (sheol), whither thou goest" (Ecc. 9:5, 10).

Secondly, it is a contradiction of New Testament doctrine. According to Hebrews 9:27, the next event after death is judgment. If Luke 16 is referring to the state of the dead, then the next event after death is not judgment, but punishment or reward according to the spiritual condition of the dead person.

We have, however, good grounds for believing that Luke 16 is a parable, and has no bearing on the subject of the death state. Much has been said in these pages on the matter and there is no need to go over old ground. Sufficient is it to say that most able Bible scholars give it as their considered opinion that it is a parable. Some tell us that it was already well known to the Jews, and is to be found in the Talmud. It is also to be noted that when Christ was not addressing His disciples He always spoke in parables (Mark 13:34), and on this occasion He is addressing the Pharisees (vv. 14, 15).

We are not concerned in this article as to the true meaning of the parable. The present purpose is to make clear the fact that it has nothing to do with the state of the dead. Men are not divided in death, "all go unto one place, all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Ecc. 3:20). The division between men takes place at the first resurrection, as is so beautifully brought out in Psalm 49:10-15. It was not in death that the upright had dominion over the unrighteous—as they would have undoubtedly had in this Paradise of orthodoxy—but in resurrection. The "out" resurrection is the true desire of the Christian (Phil. 3:11), for this is the time of his reward (Luke 14:14). For the sinner, "God hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world" (Acts 17:31). This is the great day of judgment, one thousand years after the resurrection of the saints (Rev. 20:4, 12-15). How then dare anyone intervene between death and judgment, a period of conscious bliss or torment?

Now it is commonly stated that the Old Testament saints knew little or nothing concerning the state of the dead. In fact the writer of "Where Are the Dead?" goes so far as to say that in the whole of the Bible "very little light is thrown on the state of the dead, between death and resurrection, and the agents of Satan have taken advantage of this to promulgate false teaching on the matter." We cannot, however, be accused of using Satan's lie to promulgate false teaching. The fact of the matter is that the Bible has a good deal to say concerning an intermediate state, but it is not the intermediate state of orthodox theology. The resting place of all men between death and resurrection is clearly revealed as being the grave. "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt"

(Dan. 12:2). Daniel's statement agrees with that of the Lord Himself: "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of judgment" (John 5:28, 29).

Surely no one, except he be tainted with the heathen philosophy of soul immortality, would say that these scriptures only refer to the body. They are clearly in line with the sentence passed upon Adam, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19; Job 34:14, 15; Psalm 146:4; Ecc. 3:20).

Job also asks another important question in the 14th chapter, "If a man die, shall he live again?" (v. 14). Unless death is real the question loses its force, and is in fact illogical. If men do not die, they obviously cannot live again. As we, however, have sought to prove, death is a terrible reality, and therefore the question is of vital importance. Now the answer is given in the same verse as the question: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come." By resurrection, and by resurrection only, did Job hope to live again, and this is the true Christian hope. Perhaps why so many do not realize this is because it is one of the divine mysteries. "Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed" (1 Cor. 15:51, 52). The time of the change is here distinctly stated: not at, or in, death, but at the last trump. This is the same trump as mentioned in 1 Thessalonians 4: "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first (not come down from heaven): then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words" (vv. 16-18).

No wonder Jacob refused to be comforted. He had no false hope of "fording the river one by one," nor yet had he the true hope of the resurrection from the dead. Let it be noted that these scriptures speak of the resurrection of dead saints, and the translation with them of living saints. It is not a resurrection of dead bodies, but of dead persons.

In conclusion we ask the reader not to accept what we have written, but to search the Scriptures and see if these things are so. If the reader will seek diligently he will find that much of the phraseology of popular preachers has no scriptural foundation. One often hears them speaking of "immortal souls," "never-dying spirits," "eternal torment," "the caverns of the damned," "the worm of an undying conscience," and similar phrases, but none of them is to be found within the Book they profess to reverence. Surely, they are guilty of the sin of the lying prophets: "Ye say, The Lord saith it, albeit I have not spoken" (Ezek. 13:7). The nature and destiny of man and his condition in death are not a matter of metaphysics or vain philosophy, but are clearly revealed within the pages of Holy Writ.—W. Bates in Words of Life.

Behold, He Cometh!

A Brief History of the Advent Movement

AS EVERY religious movement of history has had its forerunners who have prepared the way, so the Advent movement of the early part of the nineteenth century was preceded by the sporadic preaching of the doctrine of the second advent by such men as Martin Luther, Bishop Newton, Mede, Faber, Cunningham, and others in Europe. In 1667 Samuel Hutchinson, of Boston, published the first premillennial work in this country, and in 1796 Elder Joshua Spaulding, of Salem, Massachusetts, published a series of nine sermons "concerning the coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the restitution of all things." This met with considerable opposition by the ministry generally and had no wide circulation. In 1800 Benjamin Farnham, of East Windsor, Connecticut, published a work of 150 pages on the second advent of Christ, and a little later a minister named Titcomb of Brunswick, Maine, set forth his views of Daniel's prophecies, claiming that the time periods would end in 1866.

It is worthy of note that the first religious newspaper in the world, The Herald of Gospel Liberty, published in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1808 by Elder Elias Smith, advocated the premillennial, personal, and soon coming of Christ.

About this time several students of prophecy in different parts of the world, each independently, came to the conclusion that the 2,300 days' period of Daniel would end about 1843-1847, and bring the return of Christ. Among these were Edward Irving of England, and Joseph Wolff, a Jewish missionary in Asia. The latter was a very remarkable man. In one of his journals, published in 1835, he says he had "proclaimed the Lord's speedy advent in Palestine, Egypt, on the shores of the Red Sea, Mesopotamia, the Crimea, Persia, Georgia, throughout the Ottoman Empire, in Greece, Arabia, Turkestan, Bokhara, Afghanistan, Cashmere, Hindostan, Tibet, in Holland, Scotland, and Ireland, at Constantinople, Jerusalem, St. Helena, on shipboard in the Mediterranean, and in New York City, to all denominations."

Among the peoples and races he had visited he lists Turks, Mohammedans, Parsees, Hindus, Chaldeans, Syrians, Sabeans, the kings of Organtsch and Bokhara, the Queen of Greece, also pashas and sheiks. The Investigator said of him: "No individual has, perhaps, given greater publicity to the doctrine of the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ than this well-known missionary to the world. Wherever he goes, he proclaims the approaching advent of the Messiah in glory."

It would seem from this that he took seriously the Lord's last commission, to "go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." He literally covered almost all the world in his journeyings. He was indeed a most remarkable man. Rev. Lewis Way, a close friend and fellow-traveler of Wolff, has given the following description of him:

"A man who, at Rome, calls the Pope 'the dust of the earth,' and tells the Jews at Jerusalem that 'the Gemara is a lie'; who passes his days in disputation and his nights in digging the Talmud; to whom a floor of brick is a feather bed, and a box a bolster; who finds or makes a friend alike in the persecutor of his former or present faith, who can conciliate a pasha, or confute a patriarch; who travels without a guide, speaks without an interpreter, can live without food, and pays without money;—forgiving all the insults he meets with and forgetting all the flattery he received; who knows little of worldly conduct, and yet accommodates himself to all men, without giving offense to any; such a man (and such a man is Wolff) must excite no ordinary degree of attention in a country, and among a people, whose monotony of manners has remained undisturbed for centuries. . . . By such an instrument, whom no school hath taught, whom no college could hold, is the way of the Judean wilderness preparing."

And this is the man whom God used to preach the gospel of the coming King and kingdom to peoples whom no others could reach. He was a sort of John the Baptist of the Advent message, preparing the way for the missionaries who should follow later.

In view of his prodigious labors and remarkable talents, why was not this man given a more prominent place in the annals of the Christian church? The reason is, that he bore an unpopular message which the nominal church was not prepared to receive. He was a man who cared not for fame, but whose life was dedicated to God and His truth. The Lord evidently chose him, as He did the Apostle Paul, because of his talents and devotion to truth. Born in Bavaria, the son of a rabbi, Wolff early became interested in Christianity and entered the Roman Catholic Church. While studying theology in Rome, he observed the conditions in the church that were revolting to his ideas of piety and he protested so vigorously against them, he was banished from Rome by Pope Pius VII. He went to England and was recommended to the London Society for Propagation of Christianity among the Jews, and in 1821 was sent by that body to the Orient, carrying the message of the coming of Christ everywhere he went.

It was about this time that William Miller and others in this country were studying the prophecies of God's Word, and beginning to proclaim here the same message that Wolff was carrying to the nations of the East.—Herald of Life.

History records that in 1844, the year set by Mr. Miller for the second advent of the Christ, New York City business was almost totally disrupted on the day the coming was expected. Financiers and newsboys, aristocrats and water front rats, dashed madly about the city seeking to salvage what possessions they could before the awful blast of fire which would destroy the world should overtake them. Clarence Budington Kelland, in his historic novel, Hard Money, has painted a vivid picture of the conditions prevailing in the Bowery, on Wall Street, and along the river fronts as William Miller's day drew to a close. Business houses closed, to reopen with vast sighs of relief on the following day. But through the madness ran the solid thought that something was wrong with the world, and that it behooved men to prepare at once to face a judgment sterner than anything that humanity devised.—A. M.

Liberal Giving—How to Secure It

MORE liberal giving to the cause of Christ seems to be a great necessity. From every quarter comes the cry for money. All around, noble Christian enterprises are languishing for lack of money. In our own and in other lands, whitening fields call for reapers, and on every side willing hearts are saying, "Here am I, send me"; but oh, the money! the money! it does not come.

What shall be done? What can be done? Well, we can all certainly go to work with ourselves. Instead of looking around and thinking what this one and that one ought to do or has failed to do, let each one ask, "What ought I to do? Wherein am I to blame for the scarcity of money? How much could I have given, and ought I to have given to prevent this scarcity? How much might I have made for this purpose by greater industry? and how much might I have saved for it from my pleasures, from my luxuries, it may be from my hurtful indulgence? And now, how much can I give? nay, how much ought I to give, and will I give, to help to fill the empty treasuries of the Lord?"

To stir our hearts, and stimulate our zeal—

1. Let us bear in mind that though we do all we possibly can, our utmost will be as nothing compared with what we have received. God spared not His own Son for us; and that Son spared not Himself, but freely poured out His very heart's blood that we might live; and shall we spare such a thing as money, when Jesus calls for it? It ought to flow as free as water.

2. Consider that giving is not optional with us. Jesus is our Lord, as well as Savior. We are His; our money is His; all is His, and must be for Him. This conviction, taking full possession of our hearts, and becoming a constant and controlling principle with us, as it ought, it will assuredly move us to greater industry in making money, greater economy in saving it, and a greater liberality in giving it.

3. Let us look out over the world and see how great and pressing the necessities of Christ's cause really are; then let us remember that as we treat that cause, so He counts that we treat Him.

In comparing the necessities of Christ's cause with our own and those of our families, and considering which shall have superior recognition, let us not forget who said, "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me." Is Christ first in our hearts? Then let

His cause be first; and let us be more ready to spend our money to relieve its necessities than to meet our own.

5. Let us be very sure that, in providing for ourselves and our families, we do not rob God, and so bring down upon both ourselves and them a curse instead of a blessing. The Scriptures clearly teach that if we spend for other purposes that which should go into the Lord's treasury, we are so far robbing God—truly an awful thing to do!

6. Whenever the question of giving comes up, let us "take heed, and beware of covetousness." Jesus gave us this warning, and He knew our danger. Under various guises, covetousness is ever ready with its suggestion, and if we only give what it approves we shall be sure to give little, and perhaps nothing.

7. Seeing that we shall all soon have to give an account of our stewardship, let us try to realize beforehand how the various uses to which we are putting our Lord's money will look in the light of the great day.

8. Remember that giving is a channel of blessing. So far from suffering loss by giving, the more we give it from right motives, the more we shall be blessed. In pleading with God for His favors, we often tell Him that giving will not impoverish Him, nor withholding enrich Him—He says the same to us. But let us not forget that to be blessed in giving, we must give in accordance with the law of giving; and one of these laws is that we must give liberally. The man who gives one dollar when he ought to give ten, is outside of the promise.

9. Let us consider that the salvation of the gospel has come to us through the gifts and sacrifices of others. We need not, and cannot, send it back to those through whom it came to us, but we can help to send it to those who, as yet, have it not, and they to others still, and so the heavenly tide shall flow on and on to the end of time.

Finally, and especially, let us seek for ourselves and for others an increase of love—love for Christ, who first loved us, and love for the souls of men. The question is often asked, "Why so great a lack of money?" The true answer is, "Because of the antecedent lack of love." And so, after all, the grand necessity for an increase of money is an increase of love. This will set everything in motion, and nothing else can. Is information needed? Love will seek it. Is organization needed? Love will organize. Are plans necessary? Love will devise them; and in the absence of plans, will give anyhow. Has love no money? It will go to work and make it.

Oh, for more of this love! more hearts in which love dwells, and more love dwelling in those hearts! So shall the choicest gifts and treasures of earth be laid in willing offerings at the feet of Jesus.—J. H. Kilpatrick for the American Baptist Publication Society.

THE MEDIATOR OF THE NEW COVENANT

By Henry Dauterich

A MEDIATOR is one who stands between two extremes. Moses was the mediator of the old covenant, he stood between the Lord and the people, to speak unto them and to teach them all the commandments and the statutes and the judgments of God (Deut. 5:5, 31; Gal. 3:19). In the economy of Moses, the people looked to him and desired instruction at his mouth. When they saw the lightning and the mountain smoking, and heard the thunders, and the noise of the trumpet, they were afraid and said unto Moses, "Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die" (Ex. 20:18, 19).

The office of Moses was typical of the official character of Jesus our Lord. Moses was the head of the children of Israel, and they looked up to him as their governor. Moses was a wonderful prophet, and there arose not a prophet in Israel like him, with whom the Lord communed face to face (Ex. 33:11; Deut. 34:10). Moses predicted that the Lord God would in due time raise up a prophet from the midst of his brethren, like unto him, that is, in an official capacity, and Him they should hear in all things (Deut. 18:15, 16).

The Apostle Peter applied this prophecy to Christ, and adds, "And it shall be, that every soul, which will not hearken to that prophet, shall be utterly destroyed from among the people" (Acts 3:22-26; R. V.). Thus we understand that Jesus the exalted One, is the Mediator of the new covenant, a "better covenant," which was established upon "better promises." The old covenant was dedicated with the blood of calves and goats; but the new covenant was dedicated with the precious blood of Christ. By Moses came a legal and temporal relationship; but by Jesus Christ came "grace and truth" and a spiritual relationship. The temporal relationship under Moses was to the Jews in the flesh, who were a typical people, but the spiritual relationship extends to "all nations" (Acts 10:35; Gal. 3:28, 29). God designed that in the new covenant all mankind shall be blessed and understand His laws and know His will, and to this end He hath established the man Christ Jesus as the only Mediator between God and men, and duly qualified Him to make known the principles of the new covenant, in order that man may enter into a covenant relationship with Him, and become spiritual-minded and ultimately "bear the image of the heavenly (spiritual) body" (1 Tim. 2:4, 5; Rom. 8:1-35; Heb. 8:10, 11; 1 Cor. 15:44-58; Phil. 3:21; 1 John 3:1-3).

Christ Jesus is the only way into this grace and fellowship; through faith in Him we have access to this heavenly relationship, which will be fully consummated in the kingdom of God, at the presence of Christ. The mediatorship of Jesus the exalted One is a vast theme, as it is linked with His priestly and kingly office. Jesus the Christ is not only the Mediator of the new covenant, but He is also our High Priest and King after the order of Melchisedec, which order is explained by the Apostle Paul as a divine order. All the types or figures of the Old Testament which stood in a reciprocal relationship to Christ were manifold, and are fully met in Jesus of Nazareth, the antitype. Therefore the Apostle declared that "in him (now) dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily," and that He is the Head of all principality and power.

Jesus our Lord is also the guardian of the sanctuary, or holy things, and in Him are treasured up all wisdom and knowledge, and He is the source of all spiritual blessings, and we are complete in Him (Heb. 8:2; Eph. 1:3; Col. 2:3, 9, 10).

Jesus is the beginning of all eternal things; that is to say, in the Son the Father created all eternal things, even the things future (Heb. 1:2); because He vested Him with power to create them in their order respectively, when due, in strict accord with the design of God, as it is written; for in Him were all things created, in the heavens and upon the earth, things visible and thing invisible, whether thrones or dominions or principalities or powers, etc. (Col. 1:16). Jesus is the "firstborn" after an eternal order; "the beginning of the (eternal) creation of God." There is no creature like Jesus, who is now "the express image of the Father's person," and all things are upheld by the word of His power, which power was given unto Him when God raised Him from the dead, and admitted Him into the order of Melchisedec (Matt. 28:18; Eph. 1:20-23; Heb. 1:3).

This transcending truth is dwelt upon in all the Epistles of the apostles, who constantly exhorted the saints to look unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith.

Through faith in Christ Jesus, righteousness is imputed, and we are thus sanctified in Him, and receive the reconciliation purchased by the blood of the Mediator.

WE FACE THE FUTURE

(Continued from Page Three)

national action. As one English observer declared, "President Roosevelt looks at things from the European point of view, and Mr. Landon does not." The election, then, has not been limited in its effects to the United States, but has spread its consequences throughout the earth.

November 11 is Armistice Day. And nearly every nation is preparing for another war. The largest peace-time appropriations in history have been made by every great Power to increase its military forces. The United States is no exception.

When dictators come, wars follow as a matter of course. Personal ambition fostered by finding himself in the seat of absolutism leads the autocrat to rush in where angels would fear to tread, and for the same reason that fools do. None but an ambitious Mussolini would dare even today to challenge the mightiest empire in the world; yet Mussolini has done it thrice within two years. None but a Stalin would care to challenge France and Italy and Germany and Portugal in a single day; yet Stalin did this, and added Great Britain to his list of challengees.

Without bias, it may be stated that the President today possesses more authority than any other living man. He may be, as yet, without the power to condemn men to the executioner without a trial; he may be unable to send Gestapos throughout the Nation; but the fact remains that, as constitutional President, he is commander-in-chief of the Army and the Navy, and that as representative of the acclamation given him by the American public he possesses supreme power over sums of money, sweeps of general government, and human rights at large that are too huge to be imagined.

The national debt of the United States now stands at the colossal figure of thirty-two billion dollars. And, unless an immediate change is made in the form of government, it will increase at a corresponding rate during the next four years—and perhaps beyond.

No nation can long endure such forays on its pocket-book, regardless of the intrinsic value of the expenditures. Raids made on the treasury by Roman rulers were as much responsible for the downfall of the mighty Western Empire as the reception into the Roman Army of barbarians. In Italy and Germany, taxes have so risen to support the national socialistic plans of the rulers that business is now dependent for its life upon the State, subject to confiscation at the word of a dictator. France faces national bankruptcy. English finances are giving Whitehall many headaches. And some Governments have abrogated their solemn word of honor, canceled their debts, or refused to pay in gold.

In the midst of such economic and social upheaval as that indicated by the current political trends in the United States, wars are inevitable. People, driven to desperation by the need for money, for food, for more trade, plunge into war without stopping to consider the disastrous consequences that always follow hard after the great god Mars.

The United States is only typical. Every nation swings in the direction of the absolute rule of a single individual. Whether the pendulum will go all the way in the Anglo-Saxon, Celtic, and Nordic races remains for the future to determine. It is certain, however, that a definite and ever-growing tendency to depend upon a single man for rulership is sweeping even these phlegmatic races, races accustomed to individual initiative and freedom for more than eight centuries.

The position of the church in a world gone mad with autocracy will be immeasurably hardened. What the Federal Government may do with the constitutional guarantees in the United States is largely immaterial, except to the citizens of that Nation; but what the combined governments of the world will do to Christianity may, within the next half decade, nearly wipe the church from the map of earth.

The Bible has, it is true, predicted this. But it is the bounden duty of the church to stem the tide as far as possible. It remains for every Christian to warn the world of the disasters to befall it; to fight against every effort to annihilate, to limit, to work change within, the church. To permit the world to vote itself or to rule itself into destruction, without endeavoring to preach the gospel that may hold back the storm for a brief time and so allow still others to be saved, is not God's way of performing the tasks laid upon the church.

“IF WE WOULD”

If we would but check the speaker
When he spoils a neighbor's fame;
If we would but help the erring
'Ere we utter words of blame;
If we would, how many might we Turn from paths of sin and shame!

Ah, the wrongs that might be righted
If we would but see the way!
Ah, the pains that might be brightened,
Every hour and every day,
If we would but hear the pleadings
Of the hearts that go astray!

Let us step outside the stronghold
Of our selfishness and pride;
Let us lift our fainting brother;
Let us strengthen, 'ere we chide;
Let us, 'ere we blame the fallen,
Hold a light to cheer and guide.

Ah, how blessed—ah, how blessed
Earth would be, if we'd but try
Thus to aid and right the weaker,
Thus to check each brother's sigh;
Thus to walk in duty's pathway
To a blest life, by and by.

In each life, however lowly,
There are seeds of mighty good.
Still we shrink from souls appealing
With a timid, “If we could”;
But God, who judgeth all things, Knows the truth is, “If we would.”

—Author unknown; selected by R. A. Curtis.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Worry

"If you had your life to live over, would you make any changes?" They all said yes. One girl said she would if she knew as much as she does now. What will she say a few years from now when she knows twice as much? I am not satisfied with the way I lived the last few hours. If our foresight were only as good as our hindsight. . . .

But why spoil the day with such thoughts? One never knows as much until he has been through the experiences of life. There is no other way to learn some things. It is part of the art of living and developing character. "To err is human, to forgive divine." "Make your mistakes stepping-stones to success."

The Bible is against worrying over past mistakes. But there is only one way to put it away forever. "The blood of Christ" shall "purge your conscience from dead works" (Heb. 9:14). "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (1 Peter 5:7). Faith in God is the only true way to overcome worry. Psychologists tell patients afflicted with worry and its attendant physical diseases to read the Bible. In so doing they are cured.

Let us make a practical use of our Bibles, searching the Scriptures daily. We will attain more success, more happiness. Worry is a disease that can be cured.

Testimony

The bells around the bottom of his robe rang as High Priest Aaron moved about his duties within the veil of the Holy of Holies. There was no other soul in the entire structure, and so Aaron jingled his bells loudly to assure the waiting men of God outside that he was still alive. He didn't tarry long, for he knew his weaknesses. He didn't want to die for making a mistake.

High Priest Jesus arrived within the veil of the True Tabernacle on the resurrection morning. He sat down to remain, for His life had been without a blemish. He can endure to live in the divine atmosphere without being fearful of punishment. He has done no wrong. In that marvelous condition wherein He finds Himself, He has wonderful power with God. All power is given into His hand. Figuratively speaking, He also jingles the bells to let His waiting people know He still lives after being within the veil for nineteen hundred years.

Passing over such prominent sights as the rebuilding of the Holy Land and the preparation for Armageddon which we see going on about us in the world of affairs, what is the one thing that proves to us here on earth that our Savior still lives and enjoys the favor of God? It is the regenerated lives of men. We see Faith, Hope, Love being built up in the mortal lives of men, and we know that our Savior lives.

Paul Pleads Guilty

They accused Paul in Thessalonica of turning the world upside down. He escaped by night to Berea. There he found a refreshing willingness to listen to the evidence and to weigh it in the light of eternal truth. The Bereans are called "noble."

But did Paul turn the world upside down? He came into a world of Jews filled with forms of worship but no righteousness of heart, of pagans filled with sensuality. Such a world should be turned upside down and the vile contents emptied out.

Paul pleads guilty to the charge. He did turn the world upside down. Listen:

God "commandeth all men every where to repent."

"The works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revelings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law. And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts."

Yes, Paul turned the world upside down. It was wrong side up.

Minnesota Berean Conference

The quarterly Berean conference was held in St. Cloud, Minnesota, in conjunction with the State Conference. Saturday afternoon, October 17, was given over to the Bereans for program and business meeting.

The meeting was called to order by President pro tem. John Denchfield in the absence of the regular officers. The minutes of the last conference were read and accepted.

Discussion of the official publication, The Nobler, was held. Bro. Richard LeCrone reported that he, his wife, and the corresponding secretary had attended to the first and only issue, owing to the resignation of Vivian Kirkpatrick. Bro. LeCrone, however, felt that he could not do justice to the paper in addition to his other duties. Accordingly, a staff of three was appointed to manage the paper: editor, Gerald L. Cooper, Mora; pressman, C. E. Lapp, St. Cloud; circulation manager, Marjorie J. Ruhn, Litchfield. We feel that our paper will be the source of much good to all our Bereans and any others who receive it.

Our next conference will be held at Eden Valley some time in December. Watch for the date.

Marjorie J. Ruhn, Corresponding Secretary.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ."

A PRISONER SPEAKS FOR CHRIST

LAST WEEK we left our missionary, Paul, in the castle in Jerusalem. Two days later he was taken to Cæsarea by night to be tried before Felix, the Roman Governor. But Felix neglected him, and he was left in prison for two years, awaiting trial, though not losing his faith in God.

In all these stories of the Apostle Paul, you must never forget, girls and boys, that it was not for any wrong that he had done that he was punished. "Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ"—that was how Paul spent his entire time, and for which he suffered all these hardships.

But before Paul got safely to Cæsarea a very exciting thing happened one night. You will find the story of it in Acts 23:12-24. I wonder if Uncle Paul was afraid of those evil men and also just when they began to eat once more.

Two hundred soldiers, seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen—a strong guard for one innocent man!

Do you know how Paul's preaching affected the great Governor Felix? Look in Acts 24:25, and see. What do you suppose made him tremble? Do you think he ever called for Paul?

The next Governor, Festus, was more prompt in doing his duty. But he was a coward, for though he found nothing worthy of death in all the things Paul had done, yet he did not free him. But, never fear, God was watching over Paul all the time and making the evil work out for good. Just so does He oftentimes do for us.

Next Paul had a chance to speak before the King, Agrippa. Paul always had the courage to speak the truth, and the most important men in the whole country couldn't frighten him. God was with him, you see.

If you would like to know what the King thought of Paul's words, look in Acts 26:28. Those were humble words for such a great personage to say to a prisoner. Too bad it wasn't "altogether" instead of "almost."

Now King Agrippa was a Jew and had read and believed the Old Testament writings. What do you think kept him from believing that Jesus was the One promised by the prophets so long ago?

One governor trembled when Paul preached. Another said that much learning had caused Paul to lose his mind. A king was almost converted.

But we must hasten. Much was yet to happen to Paul, and we want to learn about it. Shipwreck, a bite from a poisonous serpent, two weeks with very little, if anything, to eat! These were some of the dangers through which Paul passed. But in it all his courage was strong and his faith in God was unshaken.

Do you think any of us could have thanked God in the midst of it all, as Paul did? I am afraid we would have complained bitterly and would have added to the fear of those about us instead of cheering them.

The story of the shipwreck is much more interesting than any of the stories you read outside of the Bible about shipwrecks and danger. The best thing about the Bible stories, girls and boys, is that they are all true. They really happened, just as they are written down.

In those days they had their winds named, and the one that wrecked the ship Paul was on had a very odd name. Can you find it and pronounce it? The story is in Acts 27, you know, and the name is in the first half of the chapter.

As you read this page, it would be nice for you always to have your Bible handy so you can find out these different things of interest. What you learn now, you see, you will remember for years and years.

Isn't it queer that the only man on board that wasn't frightened to death and the one that they all depended upon to tell them what to do was a prisoner? Paul told them not a life would be lost and only the ship would be wrecked. How did he know all that?

It was Doctor Luke, you know, that wrote this story. Being so sympathetic with people's ills caused him to write it so clearly and forcefully, no doubt.

How many people were on board? Can you figure it out from verse 37? How did they finally get to land?

Don't you believe that island upon which they were cast looked very good to them? The people were not civilized people, as they were. How did they treat them? And what was the first thing they did for these poor shivering, shipwrecked ones?

Then it was that the snake bit Paul. You will surely want to find out how he came out of that. For three months they had to stay on the island until winter was past. You may be sure Paul talked to them constantly about Jesus and His Father God.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

Elder E. O. Stewart of Texas will preach at our annual fall meetings November 15-29. Services will begin each evening at 7:45. Some of Bro. Stewart's sermon titles are: "God, Our Creator"; "Purpose of Christ, First Advent"; "Purpose of Christ, Second Advent"; "Rapture and Revelation"; "The Time of the End"; "Suffering and Glory"; "Forgiveness."

A cordial invitation is extended to those far and near who are interested in the truth that saves.

S. E. Magaw, Pastor.

MORA, MINNESOTA

In the evening of October 14, after our regular midweek meeting, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irene, the brethren at Mora pleasantly surprised their pastor with a "shower," of edibles, money, and linen. It was all very acceptable, and was appreciated greatly. Thank you very much.

Beginning November 1 we are having our Sunday evening services at a funeral chapel in Mora. As our church is inconveniently located, we feel that this change of location will greatly aid our work here. Our Sunday school and morning worship will continue in the McKinley Schoolhouse for the present at least.

The services at Graytown, Wis., were very well attended over the week-end of October 25. Bro. John Denchfield spoke on Saturday and Sunday evenings. We are truly thankful for this faithful group, and pray that it may be enlarged and strengthened.

A pleasant visit was enjoyed with Bro. and Sr. H. S. Bell at their home in LaCrosse, Wis., on the night of October 23. We note with thankfulness the willingness of those who are not permitted to attend services regularly to talk of scriptural happenings, and of the soon coming of Christ.

The brethren here, who knew him, were much pained by the news of the death of Bro. C. A. Matheny of Blackduck, Minn.

Pray for us in our efforts to serve God here in Mora, and at Graytown.

Gerald L. Cooper, Pastor.

KENNARD, NEBRASKA

An all-day meeting will be held in Kennard on November 15 in an attempt to create interest in regular Sunday evening services here. Sunday morning services will be continued in Blair as usual, but we have had no evening services for quite some time. There are two churches in Kennard, neither of which has a resident pastor, so we are starting these Sunday evening services in hopes that they will cooperate with us.

The meeting will be held in the R.N.A. Hall starting at ten o'clock with Sunday school. Preaching services will be held at 11, 2:30, and 8 with the writer doing the speaking. We extend a hearty invitation to all within driving distance to meet with us that day. Bring your basket lunch and stay all day if you can. If this is impossible, come and stay as long as you can.

If you feel as we do that the fields are white unto harvest and that now is the time to do evangelistic and missionary work, then help make this a successful effort by your presence and your prayers,

Lucille LeCrone.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE

The Northwest Conference held its October meeting at Felida, Wash.

Bro. Horace J. Prosser of Newport, Ore., delivered many interesting sermons, including the following subjects: "Christ's Enemies and His Friends," "Constitution of Righteousness," and "Let the Whole Earth Be Filled With His Glory" (Psalm 72:19).

We are glad that Bro. Prosser was able to attend these services. Speaking of him, the reporter wrote, "There surely was a fine spirit of brotherly love throughout the meetings. Love for God and for the brethren seemed to fairly radiate from his face while he was speaking. It must have been contagious, for the members seemed to feel that way, too."

Lessons were led by Srs. Rogers and Kerr. Bro. A. W. Darby spoke on "The Kingdom."

A short business session (no report received) was held Sunday afternoon, followed by a social hour during which Bro. Darby gave a short talk and Bro. Prosser had charge of the Communion service.

Out-of-town members present were: Minnie Rogers, Eugene; H. J. Prosser, Newport; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bark, Eldridge Ellis, and Jay V. Fike, Gladstone; Mabel Dickinson and mother, Mrs. Fike, Portland; A. W. Darby, Gresham; Mrs. H. D. Hathaway, Minnie Kerr, and H. B. Hathaway, Corvallis.

Word has just been received that Bro. Prosser is recovering from a cold, which is no doubt the reason why he has not held meetings at Corvallis.

Watch these columns for notice of the next meeting to be held at Corvallis.

Gladys E. Barber, Secretary.

HERALD RECEIPTS

J. E. Miller; Harriet Reed; Mrs. H. E. Shepherd; E. A. Titus; J. H. Williams; Levi Coffin; Edna Arthaud (for another); Richard E. Powell; Carl Bunch; Flora E. Hogue; Mrs. H. S. Bell (for others); Harriet E. Boice; Mary A. Chapman; Mrs. Roy C. Juden; John Saylor; James Kessler; Hattie Gearhart; W. E. Wharton; Fred C. Smith (for self and others); Mrs. B. F. Cook; Mildred Somers; Mrs. J. F. Richardson; Mrs. Ed. Tomlin; C. T. Roades; Mrs. Allen Claypool; Almeda Glotfelty; Mrs. Bert Sheets; Laurence Chaplin; Josephine Engbretson; Frank Laning; Susan T. Long; Mrs. Austin T. Spindler; H. S. Hunt; Elmer H. Magaw; Mattie Benjamin (for self and others); Irene Holland (for self and others); Eva H. M. Fletcher; J. H. Adams; W. H. Boyer; Julia Ordnung (for self and others).

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Fannie LeCrone; Flora E. Hogue; Golden Rule S. S.; Golden Rule S. S. Adult Class; Harriet E. Boice; Maybelle Hanson; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Netts; E. Dorothy Magaw; Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Fetters; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Helen M. Chisholm; Albert Siple; Ella M. Siple.

EVANGELISTIC STANDARD OF TEACHING

When a congregation finds it necessary to seek an evangelist to carry on a special series of meetings, the committee in charge, if it is wise, will endeavor to learn as much as possible about the belief, the teaching ability, and the Christian character of the men who are available for such work.

To supply such necessary information concerning himself, T. A. Drinkard, well-known evangelist of the Church of God of Handley, Texas, has issued the following statement under the heading:

I Believe and Teach

That there is one God. 1 Tim. 2:5; Deut. 6:4.

That there is one mediator. 1 Tim. 2:5.

That Jesus Christ was God's Son. Matt. 16:16; John 20:30, 31.

That Jesus Christ tasted death for every man. Heb. 2:9; 1 Tim. 2:6.

That there is but one church spoken of in Scripture, the Church of God. Matt. 16:18; Acts 20:28; 1 Tim. 3:15; 1 Cor. 1:2; Eph. 1:22, 23; 2:19-22; 4:4; Col. 1:18.

That man is wholly mortal, and is unconscious from death until the resurrection. Eccl. 9:5, 10; Psalm 6:5; 146:3, 4; Isa. 38:1; Job 10:20-22; 14:10-14; 17:13; 3:17-19.

That only through faith (Rom. 10:9), repentance (Acts 2:38), baptism (Mark 16:16), and a holy life can we hope for immortality. Rom. 2:7; 12:1, 2; 1 Peter 1:15, 16; Gal. 5:19-21.

That the kingdom of God will be established in the earth. Ezek. 21:25-27; Isa. 9:6, 7; Dan. 7:27; Rev. 11:15; 2 Tim. 4:1, 2; Luke 1:31-33; 19:11-15.

That Christ will be King in that kingdom, and the saints joint-heirs with Him. Jer. 23:5; Isa. 3:1; Acts 2:29, 30; Matt. 25:31; Rev. 3:21; 2:26, 27; 1 Cor. 6:2.

That the dead shall be raised, the righteous being immortalized at the coming of Christ. Isa. 26:19; Dan. 12:2; John 5:28, 29; Acts 24:14, 15; Rom. 8:11; Phil. 3:20, 21; 1 Thess. 4:13-17; 1 Cor. 15:51-54; 1 John 3:2.

That Israel as a nation will be restored in the land of Palestine. Ezek. 34:11-13, 28, 29; 37:21, 22; Amos 9:14, 15; Rom. 11:25-27; Luke 13:31-35.

That the wicked will be destroyed. Rom. 6:23; Psalm 37:20, 38; 145:20; 104:35; Isa. 13:9; Phil. 3:18, 19; 2 Thess. 1:7-10.

CLIFFORD A. METHENY

Clifford A. Metheny was born in Mosher County, Minn., in 1872 and died at his home near Blackduck, Minn., on October 23, 1936.

Bro. Metheny is survived by his wife, Alzora, and nine children, namely: Mrs. Lois Lindsey and Mrs. Bill Brownlee of Grand Rapids, Minn.; Ronald of Hines, Minn.; Mrs. Bill Swarthout of California; Keith of Fargo, N. D.; and Mrs. Jim Jensen, Kenneth, Bruce, and Ralph of Blackduck. In addition, he is survived by four sisters and fourteen grand-children.

Bro. Metheny will be sorely missed by his family, his community, and by the little Sunday school at the White Pine Schoolhouse where he was superintendent.

Gerald L. Cooper.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME —

The editor was called to Welland, Ont., last week to conduct the funeral service of Sr. Tryphena Ball, widow of Bro. David Ball and daughter of Peter Bouk, founder of the church at Fonthill, Ont. The obituary of this beloved sister will appear next week.

A new arrival at Golden Rule Home is Mr. August Kaney, a former resident of Forreton, Ill. Mr. Kaney has entered the Home as a regular resident and makes an agreeable addition to the Home family.

Sr. June Nagle, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Romine of Golden Rule Home, is making a short visit with her parents.

All contributions intended for general evangelism should be sent to M. W. Lyon, 13517 Darley Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Please do not send them to the National Bible Institution. It requires, including postage, check costs, and clerical work, 15 cents every time a transfer of funds is made.

Corinth, 45 miles from Athens in the lower part of the Greek peninsula, was the center of commerce for that entire area and had constant connection with Rome. Consequently, introducing Christianity into this city would automatically carry it throughout the entire known world. Wicked with the wickedness of water front and adulterous idolatry, Corinth nevertheless was responsible for much of the rapid growth of the early church.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS
By Arlen Marsh

Speaking of errors, this actually appeared in The Herald not long since: "In the first chapter of his Gospel, John says on seeing Jesus, 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.'"

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To speak of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings."

Now that the nation has indicated its approval of churchless experimental towns, it remains only to move for the abolition of the first amendment to the Constitution and the establishment of a State-controlled sociological religion.

The trend in every government now is toward absolutism. Naziism gains influence in England, the United States prefers presidential fiat to constitutional Congresses, Spain destroys herself to create an autocracy, New Zealand has socialistic riots. No more effective proof could be found of the truth of biblical comments regarding world political developments.

A recent writer of some fame had this bit in a recent Writer's Digest: After you've done your story, cut out two thousand words; then you'll have something that's pretty good. He spoke of stories. The same is true of articles. Power is built on condensation, not on poetic verbosity. Witness the success of Reader's Digest, Religious Digest, Time, The Literary Digest.

Dedicated to evolutionists:

"Nature abhors imperfect work
And on it lays her ban;
And all creation must despise
A tailless man."

That, in case you don't know, is from David Law Proudfit's "Prehistoric Smith."

Add odd designs for churches: Popular Mechanics narrates that patents have been issued for an architect's plan to build a church around and under a huge figure of the Christ kneeling in Gethsemane. At night, floodlights would ring the figure's head with a halo and bathe the cement walls of the building in color.

The only rural National Preaching Mission to have speakers from the international circuit will be Forreton, Illinois, November 21. Doctors Holt and Henriod, president of the Federal Council of Churches and secretary of a European church alliance respectively, will be the speakers.

Now that the United States election is over, the world can safely settle back to wonder if King Edward actually will marry Mrs. Simpson. . . . When gossip is on a national scale, it's news; when it's purely local, it's slander.

CHRISTMAS CARDS WITH SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Let your Christmas be Christ-centered this year by using only biblical greeting cards. Both these assortments are remarkably varied and of exceptional beauty. Sentiments and Bible verses have been chosen with unusually good taste.

Assortment No. 621 (pictured): $1.00. Purchased individually, the 21 folders in this lovely gift box would cost $1.50. Besides this saving, the box can be used again for containing gifts to others. We offer this particular selection because we believe, after investigation of the market, that no better one exists. The price includes transportation charges.

Assortment No. 612 (not illustrated): 50 cents. There are only 12 folders and envelopes in this box, but their individual retail value is 80 cents. Like the box with Assortment 621, this box can be used as a beautiful container for gifts. The folders are quite as choice as those in the larger selection. Customers west of the Rockies add 5 cents to help cover postage.

The true and largely forgotten significance of Christmas points at the Christ. Help to recall this to your friends with cards based upon the Bible. The texts are not obtrusive, but they do convey a message.

In each assortment are eight different papers and eight different processes. There are two metal seal numbers and several beautifully embossed designs.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON, ILLINOIS

GENTLEMEN: Please send me box(es) of Assortment No., for which I enclose my remittance.

Name

St. & No.

City State

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

THE HOUSE OF PRAYER

The precise reason that Florence Converse should have written this piece eludes me. Certainly she and Laura Jean Libby should have gotten along very well together. And John Bunyan.

The House of Prayer seems to be a religious fairy story after the order of Pilgrim's Progress, but written recently enough to have modern language. Simple words and simple writing make the book suited to children of 10 on up to 90.

Timothy—we are kept in the dark as to his last name—has a variety of Hans Christian Anderson experiences by meeting an angel in a little chapel in the woods of his grandfather's estate. Timothy is a small boy of the amazing qualities of Little Orphan Annie, one moment evincing an astonishing intelligence and background and the next moment making the reader expect him to chatter seriously of Santa Claus.

It all starts when Timothy won't say his bedtime prayer after the departure of his mother for parts unknown. His miraculous travels with the angel are all Roman Catholic in character, but their teaching is of a generally acceptable quality. The book specifically is intended to be "the story of a little boy's picturesque 'tour' through the teaching and life of the church."

The whole has an exceedingly sweet tone, and would do no harm to any child. Not much can be said for the story's plot. It seems positively amazing that the thing has sold thirty thousand copies with no advertising.

E. P. Dutton & Company: 90 cents.

STORY OF THE BIBLE

Here is a book which, like Egermeier's Bible Story Book and Bowie's Story of the Bible, covers the entire Bible with a series of short stories. This Story of the Bible, however, unlike Bowie's, is intended for children. It is based upon the experience in Bible story-telling gained during two generations by Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, author of a number of other similar books.

The style is fascinating. Many adults will find considerable appeal in it. It is non-doctrinal, and as far as detailed reading of key stories can tell, free from important errors. Illustrations, in which the volume abounds, occasionally show signs of adherence to tradition rather than to fact, as in the case of the picture of the ark.

Bible quotations are sprinkled liberally throughout the text, but they all are reduced to the modern language of childhood. Those of 8 to 12 will be particularly interested, although a few younger and quite a number of older readers will likewise enjoy the book.

There are many full-page color plates, and many more smaller black-and-white photographs and drawings. No portion of the work is without adequate picturization. Many of the photographs are modern.

That Hurlbut has done an excellent piece of work in his time is undeniable, but we scarcely are prepared to go as far as the publishers and call it "the best of all books." Egermeier's is quite as readable, and apparently as complete, although Egermeier's does seem tinged a bit more with the orthodox viewpoint.

John C. Winston Company: $2.00.

"Worthy books

Are not companions—they are solitudes;
We lose ourselves in them and all our cares."

—Philip James Bailey.

IN THE STEPS OF THE MASTER

Don't confuse this with Charles M. Sheldon's In His Steps. For this magnificent work by H. V. Morton has nothing to do with human-made heavens; it is a travelogue of Palestine.

And what a travelogue! In lo! these many years no book its equal, with the one exception of The Battleground: Syria and Palestine, has been issued. The reader who joys just in the rush and swing of language, the one who prefers facts to fancies, and the one who prefers fancies to facts will find here something to satiate him.

Customs recalling Abrahamic days, costumes, agriculture, folklore, scenery, industries, climate—everything has its place in this inimitable book. And through it all runs the thread of deep devotion to God and to the Christ which inspired Mr. Morton to perform his task as writer.

Photographs, modern, up-to-date photographs, hide here and there among the pages. Where there are no photographs, written description is so vivid that characters, scenes, events stand out like the one-time red flag on the Supreme Court building's flagpole.

The last chapter alone is worth the price of the entire book: a fictionalized, but biblical, account of the betrayal, the trial, Peter's denial, the crucifixion, and the resurrection that has been equaled only by Ben Hur. Other portions of the book are written in semi-fiction form, and make the lands where the Christ once walked live as no mere description could.

For once, previous reviews of the book err only on the side of depreciation. I do not often become truly enthused over a religious book—most volumes on religion are so stodgily dull—but this thing is worthy of rhapsodies, Dodd, Mead & Company: $3.00.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 17, 1936

NUMBER 7

Let other lands, exulting, glean
The apple from the pine,
The orange from the glossy green,
The cluster from the vine ;

But let the good old corn adorn
The hills our fathers trod ;
Still let us for His golden corn
Send up our thanks to God.

—Whittier.

Abreast of the Times

Expanding Jewish Borders

"The east side ye shall measure from Hauran, and from Damascus, and from Gilead, and from the land of Israel by Jordan."—Ezekiel 47:18.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 1.—Palestine proper covers an area of about ten thousand square miles, a little greater than the State of Vermont, and has a population of more than 1,000,000 compared with the 360,000 who live in that New England State. It is not strange, then, that Daniel O. Hastings, Senator of Delaware, who has been making an unofficial survey of the Holy Land, believes that it will be impossible to find in Palestine a home for the millions of Jews who seek a place of refuge from oppression. In a copyrighted article in The Chicago Herald and Examiner, he expresses the opinion that while several hundred thousand more Jews could be received without overcrowding in Palestine proper, the final solution of the problem of finding all of them who desire to migrate to the land of their fathers a permanent homeland lies in the opening of Trans-Jordan to them. According to this observer, it was believed by the Jews when the Balfour Declaration was made in 1917 that Trans-Jordan was included in Palestine, as it had been a part of the Turkish province before the war. Trans-Jordan is also under British mandate and according to Senator Hastings it would not be difficult for the Government to incorporate with Palestine and open it up to Jewish settlement.

Prophetic students generally agree that not even Solomon ruled over all the area which was promised to Israel, and that when the ten tribes and the two tribes are united under the Messiah (Ezek. 37:15-23) the promise of God will be fully carried out and Israel will occupy a much larger territory than ever in the past.

Where Mercy Is Unknown

"Do good to them that hate you."—Jesus.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—According to the New Times and Ethiopia News, the following alleged orders issued to the Spanish rebel troops are said to have been found on captured insurgent officers. Should the particular orders not have been issued, they may well have been, for they express the cruel and relentless purpose of war as it has ever been. The alleged orders follow:

"The first thing to gain victory is to annihilate the morale of the enemy. Therefore, . . . it is necessary to obey strictly the following orders:

"First, when advancing, in order to make sure of the rear, it is necessary to terrorize the population. For this reason, when our columns reach a village, all the local authorities must be shot. If they cannot be found, . . . we must treat in the same manner the members of their families. To these executions we must give as much publicity as possible, making it known that we shall act in the same manner towards all who stand against us.

"Very private. It is proved that what, above all, greatly demoralizes troops in action is to see that hospitals and medical ambulances are attacked. It is necessary to remember this experience of the Great War. . . . If, despite all anticipations, Madrid should offer us a stubborn resistance, we shall consider as our principal and most urgent objective the cutting of water and electric supplies. . . . When we reach Madrid . . . our first duty will be to put Maxim guns on the church towers. From there our troops will fire on the people of the adjoining streets without being hindered by distinction of sex."

(Editorial Note: Last Sunday night it was reported by radio that, as the rebel troops entered the outskirts of Madrid, women poured scalding oil and boiling water from the roofs of buildings upon the heads of the advancing men. One side seems to be as inhuman as the other.)

"Important and private to officers above the rank of Lieutenant: Officers in command of columns shall not permit the rank and file to know that ordinary bullets have been soft-nosed and converted into dum-dum bullets." (Dum-dum bullets, being softer at the point, crush or "splash" on coming into contact with the person shot, and make a great gaping wound, much more painful and dangerous to life than the injuries inflicted by steel bullets. The use of dum-dum bullets is forbidden by international agreement.) "Privates must be told that such bullets are used by the Government forces, and their indignation must be aroused by showing them the ghastly wounds caused by such bullets."

Russia Plans New Anti-Church Acts

"Who opposeth . . . all that is called God."—Paul.

MOSCOW, Nov. 12.—Firmer measures against religion were approved today and it was decided to open anti-religious schools immediately to counteract the growing influence of the church, whose leaders have praised farm women who violated "labor discipline" by attending church.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Kingdom of God

Number 2

By T. A. Drinkard

"In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom."—Daniel 2:44.

AS PREVIOUSLY shown the King of the Babylonian Empire gazed upon a great metallic image that stood for the then existing and the succeeding empires of earth. He was permitted to dream all of this. He forgot just what he had dreamed, but he, in some way best known to God, realized that it was a matter of great importance and he determined to ascertain just what it was. Therefore he called for the several agencies of his time to reveal what he had dreamed, not only so, but what it meant. They petitioned that the King reveal what he had dreamed and then they would tell him what it meant.

God knew just how to confound those astrologers and soothsayers of that day, just as He knows today (1 Cor. 1:19-21). God saw to it that human power could not give a true interpretation, and made it possible for His servant, even Daniel, to reveal it to the King.

Why "set up a kingdom"? Why not leave it to "other people" to control? Why set it up in the days of these kings? There are two ways to ascertain the time for the setting up of this kingdom, viz., (a) by determining who the kings are mentioned herein, (b) by finding the definite time for its establishment; and inasmuch as "these kings" will be living when it is set up, if I can adduce Scripture that shows clearly when the kingdom is to be set up, I have proved when the kings are to rule.

Many writers have taken us through pages of history seeking to prove who they are and to name them, much of which is far beyond the understanding of the general reader. I feel that we should take the other way of determining just when the kingdom is to be set up.

The reason for its establishment is clearly taught by the Scriptures, and that is the inability of human governments to bring about a rule, or rather, a system, of righteousness on the earth.

Let us first take the evidence of Ezekiel 21:25-27, especially the 27th verse, which reads, "I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."

Here is the first passage of Scripture which I adduce to prove that there is a definite time set when the kingdom will be set up on the earth.

The expression "until he come" is equal to saying that when the one whose right entitles him to the kingdom comes, then the kingdom will be set up. In other words, the thought is: "I will overturn it, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it (to) him." Do I misuse the Word of God when I express the truth in this way, a way which even the young in our midst may clearly understand?

The downfall of the kingdom referred to at Ezekiel 21:25-27 is spoken of by even David, the second king to rule on its throne, who said, "Thou hast made his glory to cease, and cast his throne down to the ground" (Psalm 89:44). The third witness which I bring forth is Amos 9:8, which reads, "Behold, the eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from off the face of the earth."

Has God overturned that kingdom? Has He destroyed it from the earth? Has He cast the throne to the ground? He caused His prophets to say that He would, and the fact those things do not exist is proof positive that His word was fulfilled.

Inasmuch as these scriptures point out that a kingdom did exist, that it was destroyed, and that it would remain in that overturned condition "until he come" who has a title to it, let us determine what is meant by "until he come."

To me the word "until" denotes that when a certain time comes, then something will take place. By Romans 11:25, this fact is proved by "blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." This is equal to saying that when the fullness of the Gentiles be come in the blindness will be removed; therefore when Jesus Christ appears, or comes, the kingdom will be set up.

The Scriptures clearly teach that there are only two advents, or comings, of the Lord. Paul says, "Once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself. . . . And unto them that look for him shall he appear the second" (Please turn to Page Nine)

Praise to the Lord

Praise to God, immortal praise,
For the love that crowns our days!
Bounteous source of every joy,
Let Thy praise our tongues employ.

For the blessings of the field,
For the stores the gardens yield;
For the vine's exalted juice,
For the generous olive's use:

Flocks that whiten all the plain;
Yellow sheaves of ripen'd grain;
Clouds that drop their fattening dews;
Suns that temperate warmth diffuse.

All that Spring with bounteous hand;
Scatters o'er the smiling land;
All that liberal Autumn pours
From her rich o'erflowing stores:

These to Thee, my God, we owe,
Source whence all our blessings flow;
And for these my soul shall raise Grateful vows and solemn praise.

—Anna Letitia Barbauld.

Our Heritage of Liberty

IT IS generally admitted that the Pilgrim Fathers were the first settlers in America to plant the seed of religious freedom. Unlike the explorers and adventurers who had previously come to America, the Pilgrim Fathers and their families came to make America their permanent home. They came with ideals and purposes far in advance of their age, though they did not discern the light of religious liberty as clearly as did Roger Williams, who followed them to America ten years later. They advocated religious freedom only for themselves and their own religion, and for those whom they considered reasonably orthodox, even if they were of another religious persuasion. But the Pilgrim Fathers had not yet learned that religious liberty is a gift from God to every man—an inalienable right which governments should not abridge but defend and preserve for all men. They did not realize that it was contrary to the divine plan of the Author of Christianity to use force in religious matters and that the civil government should remain neutral in the realm of religion. Even so, the Pilgrim Fathers were far more charitable and lenient in their punishment of unbelievers and heretics than were the Puritans who later came to America.

Forty-one of the fifty-three men on board the Mayflower entered into a contract memorable as the first recorded civil compact giving equal rights to all men. This social compact in this infant colony became the foundation upon which the free republican institutions of America were reared.

A NEW GOVERNMENT

These men served as an advance guard for a new civil state and an advanced civilization which was to mark a new epoch in human history. They planted the beginning of a new government among men which was ultimately to extend its vast domain from the Atlantic to the Pacific, embracing the richest and perhaps the most influential country in the world. The ideals they planted on the shores of New England, and which were still further matured by Roger Williams in the Rhode Island Republic, founded by him to deal "with civil things only," were in fact the beginning of a new civilization which was ultimately to affect the political administration of civil government and of human rights in all the world. These Pilgrims, as they stepped on Plymouth Rock and bade adieu to the past, severed the connecting link in the chain of events which ultimately freed the New World from the tyrannies of the Old World.

"Here on its rock, and on its fertile soil,
Began the kingdom not of kings, but men;
Began the making of the world again."

"They did the work they had to do,
They builded better than they knew."

Divine Providence designedly led them in their voyage contrary to their plans and to their sovereign's patent, to a place outside the territorial limits and jurisdiction of their proposed and designated settlement, and thus presented to the Pilgrim Fathers the unparalleled opportunity of organizing a body politic, establishing a civil government of the people, for the people, and by the people.

It was the noble ideals of the Pilgrim Fathers—ideals of which they themselves did not fully comprehend the ultimate influence—that have made America the great and glorious nation that it is today in the family of nations. If the selfish purposes of the earlier adventurers and settlers had prevailed in the making of America, very likely the people of America and Europe would be still suffering civil oppression and religious persecution at the hands of tyrannical kings and religious despots, as in mediæval times.

The Pilgrims had suffered indescribable persecutions at the hands of the Anglican church-and-state dignitaries in England before they left Scrooby in Nottinghamshire for Amsterdam and Leyden in Holland. While Holland granted them complete religious liberty, yet the Pilgrims lived as people in exile. They longed for a country where they might rear their children in their own manners and language, and they were actuated by "a hope and inward zeal of advancing the gospel of the kingdom of Christ in the remote parts of the New World; yea, though they should be but as stepping-stones unto others for performing so great a work."

The Pilgrim Fathers obtained a title from King James to land in "the most northern parts of Virginia," and in harmony with their request were granted the privilege "to live in a distinct body by themselves." They promised the King of England, as they would have done to the Babylonian Nebuchadnezzar of the Roman Nero, "obedience in all things, active if the thing be not against God's Word, or passive if it be."

QUEST FOR TRUTH AND FAITH

Only "the youngest and the strongest" of the Pilgrim congregation in Leyden offered themselves for the experiment in the New World. Their venerable Pastor John Robinson, anticipating their high mission and destiny, as they left the Old World to plant the seeds of truth and liberty in the founding of a new nation in the New World, gave them a farewell address which sets forth the Pilgrim's creed of civil and religious freedom in the search for truth and the free exercise of religious faith such as the world had never heard except from the lips of Christ and His apostles. "I charge you," said he, "before God and His blessed angels, that you follow me no further than you have seen me follow the Lord Jesus Christ. The Lord has more truth yet to break forth out of His holy Word. I cannot sufficiently bewail the condition of the reformed churches, who are come to a period in religion, and will go at present no further than the instruments of their reformation. Luther and Calvin were great and shining lights in their time, yet they penetrated not into the whole counsel of God. I beseech you, remember it,—'tis an article of your church covenant,—that you be ready to receive whatever truth shall be made known to you from the written Word of God."

FORERUNNERS OF A GREAT REPUBLIC

The Pilgrims were all Protestants of equal rank and rights, and bound by no code but the claims of conscience, religion, and the public will. They formed a solemn, voluntary compact, which constituted the first "proper democracy" in America. It was the first popular constitutional government where all its citizens stood on an equality before the law, and is perhaps the only constitutional document that has been ratified without a dissenting vote. In the cabin of the Mayflower American liberty and constitutional government by the people were conceived in germ, and in the fullness of time these great principles were brought forth in Independence Hall, Philadelphia.

The Pilgrim Fathers were the forerunners and harbingers heralding the coming of a great republic. They instituted a miniature republic on the basis of "just and equal laws," "for the general good," fortified with a "constitution" which provided that the people should be governed "by the consent of the governed."

When the Pilgrims first stepped upon the soil of the New World, they bowed their knees and uncovered their heads, giving thanks to God for bringing them safely to a land where they could worship according to the dictates of their own conscience without fear of molestation. They felt that they had at last come to a land which they could call their own—a land as bright as the promises of God, and as free and as resourceful as the opportunities of the best Utopia that the human mind had ever pictured. They landed full-fledged Americans, with their Ship of State perfected for the use and enjoyment of freemen. Democratic liberty, equality of rights, and the free exercise of religion for themselves and their children, immediately came into existence in America.

They were really not Puritans, but Separatists, often called Independents and Congregationalists. As Separatists and Independents they were persecuted by the Puritans as well as by the Anglicans. The Pilgrims as Separatists had openly withdrawn from the national, or state, church, and in theory favored a church separated from the state. But they found it difficult to carry this out in prac-

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

Thanksgiving and Sacrifice

Ry R. H. Judd

GIVING thanks in singing of praises to the Most High is surely an outstanding characteristic of worship. The Psalms of David abound with praise.

As the writer was looking up Bible references on the subject he began to wonder how much any of us have realized that throughout Scripture thanksgiving and sacrifice are almost inseparably linked together. For instance, turn to Deuteronomy 23:23; Psalm 50:13, 14. In these passages of thanksgiving and sacrifice we find that not only the will expressed, but the act to do, is required. Note also in this same Psalm that in the 23rd verse the word "praise" in the Authorized Version is rendered "sacrifice of thanksgiving" in the Revised Version. In Psalm 27:6 we have the expression "sacrifices of joy" as an accompaniment to "singing praises unto the Lord." In Hosea 14:2 the same thought is somewhat strangely given in the phrase "we will render the calves of our lips." The Revised Version makes it somewhat clearer, "So will we render, as bullocks, the offerings of our lips." There can be no doubt that sacrifice is here alluded to.

The same thought of sacrifice with thanksgiving is carried into the New Testament. The writer of the Hebrews in the 13th chapter and the 15th verse says, "Through him (i. e., Jesus) let us offer up a sacrifice of praise to God continually." The sacrifice of thanksgiving was to be freely given, nothing to be left over and nothing expected back; therefore, it must be continual.

Paul sums up the whole when he says, "Giving thanks at all times for all things in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, to God even the Father" (Eph. 5:20). Giving thanks with that which cost us nothing is really not giving at all. King David felt this in one of the most trying circumstances of his life when he said (2 Sam. 24:24), "Neither will I offer unto the Lord my God that which cost me nothing." Our Lord Himself gave thanks when the arch-enemy Death had Lazarus low in the grave, and the shortest verse in the Bible records the fact that "Jesus wept."

And what of the present time? Can we raise our hearts in thanksgiving for the present outlook of world unrest, of wars and rumors of wars, and death? "Giving thanks at all times," says Paul, for said his Master, "When ye see these things begin to come to pass, look up . . . your redemption draweth near."

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service" (Rom. 12:1). Have we not here thankfulness for God's mercies, a willing and living sacrifice of ourselves, and as a consequence reasonable service to God in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ?

FUTURE EVENTS

ARMAGEDDON lies in the future. In it Satan's man makes a great endeavor to stamp out everything that savors of God. His special effort will be directed against that nation which God has chosen to be His witnesses in the earth.

The battle gets its name from the locality in which it takes place. "And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon" (Rev. 16:16). Armageddon is connected with and related to the great Plain of Esdraelon. This plain is in the northern part of the land, and unites the Jordan Valley with the Maritime Plain. It breaks the great central mountain.

MacCoun briefly describes it: "Before you lies the flat expanse of loose red and black loam, extremely fertile, covered with corn, millet, cotton, tobacco, or the castor oil plant, one of the richest natural fields in the world. Dotted the plain and the surrounding hills are the white houses of numerous villages, and at periods when the Arabs have come to plunder its harvest or graze their camels and herds upon its grass, it has been thickly strewn with Bedouin tents."

It is surrounded by mountains. The city of Megiddo is located on the slope of the mountains south of the plain, and the plain is sometimes called the Plain of Megeddo. In fact, George Adams Smith, in his matchless work, The Historical Geography of the Holy Land, speaks of it as the "Great Plain of Esdraelon or Megeddo."

Here Barak battled the Canaanites; here Gideon won a victory over the Midianites; here Saul and Jonathan were slain by the Philistines; here Israel met the saddest defeat that ever was hers when her young king, Josiah, was slain by Pharaoh-Necho of Egypt; Jehu raged his chariots up and down this valley; here the Maccabees fought, and the Crusaders; here Napoleon, in 1799, fell back in the first great retreat of his career; here you have the marches and countermarches of the Syrians, the Egyptians, the Saracens, the Persians, the French, the Turks, and the Romans. To this place the last Caesar of Rome will gather his army to war against God's people.

In regard to the Antichrist we know that he will use his power against the hosts of the Lord. It is really the whole kingdom of God against the whole kingdom of Satan. This battle is spoken of as the "great winepress of the wrath of God" in Revelation 14:7-20. Revelation 19:11-19 also speaks of it. No conflict in history compares with this one.

There is no doubt as to the issue of this battle. It is fore-announced. When all seems lost, the Lord will come forth in power to execute judgment in the earth.

The power of the Antichrist will be immediately broken. "And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming" (2 Thess. 2:8).

He and the false prophet will be cast into the lake of fire and brimstone (Rev. 17:8). "And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshipped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone" (Rev. 19:20). The armies assembled against the people of God will be destroyed (Rev. 17:14; 19:21). It is at this time that Satan will be bound and cast into the bottomless pit (Rev. 20:1, 2). Notice the different destinations of Satan and the Antichrist at this time. The Antichrist is cast into the lake of fire, but not Satan. The Antichrist goes into the lake of fire forever; Satan, into the bottomless pit for a thousand years.

At the end of a thousand years, as we shall see, Satan shall be loosed; the Antichrist never again will be loosed. This marks his final doom. This is the phase of Christ's second coming spoken of as His coming "with" His saints. This coming of Christ is, we are told, immediately after the tribulation. "Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken: and then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven; and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matt. 24:29-31).

This descent is seen in Revelation 19:11-16. This passage in Matthew is sufficient to establish the fact that there can be no millennium before Christ's coming; that is, His coming must be premillennial.

The reader will understand that by the millennium we mean the thousand-year reign of Christ on the earth. "Pre" means "before," and "post" means "after." A premillennialist believes that Christ will come before the millennium; a postmillennialist believes that Christ will come after the millennium.

We agree with Sims, who says, "The word 'postmillennialist' is frequently heard; but are there any postmillennialists? They who profess to be such are really anti-millennialists. They deny that Jesus will reign for a thousand years on this earth, really and personally. They are, therefore, anti-millennialists, and should wear the label that belongs to them."

According to the postmillennialists, the world will be saved through the preaching of the gospel, and then, after the world is saved, there will be a "millennium," and following that there will be a pell-mell resurrection, a general judgment, and eternity. Because of their belief they must close their eyes to the truth, and declare that the world is steadily growing better. With the worst war in the history of man just a few years past, with the greed and graft of the present, and with the almost unnumbered multitude of unevangelized pagans in the world today, this is optimism, indeed a blind optimism. The past war should have scrapped postmillennialism.

Dr. Wishart of Grand Rapids said this: "If the Bible is true, then every preacher ought to preach the premillennial coming of Jesus, because it is in the Book. If the Bible is true, there is no excuse for not preaching it. The only reason why preachers say they believe the Bible, and don't preach it, is that they don't believe the Bible, but dare not say so."

Bishop Newton says: "The doctrine of the millennium, as held by the millennialists, was believed in the first three and purest ages."

The premillennialist believes that we are living in an age when God is calling out a people for His name, and that when that calling is completed, Christ will return. He believes that the world itself will go on from bad to worse until its terrible condition will necessitate the intervention of God.

He believes that "as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man" (Luke 17:26). The days of Noah were godless days, not days of "world conversion."

He believes the statement made by Paul, in 2 Timothy, the last letter he wrote, in which he declared that "in the last days perilous times shall come," for men shall be lovers of their own selves, lovers of money, lovers of pleasure more
(Please turn to Page Ten)

The Hope of Immortality

By M. W. Lyon

AT NO POINT is the confusion in present-day religious beliefs so apparent as on the question of the future life. It is commonly believed that all men have an immortal soul, that cannot die, and that lives on in some form after the death of the body. This belief pervades all the literature of the day, it is taught in the creeds of the churches, it fills our hymns, it is voiced by poet and philosopher everywhere, until it has come to be taken for granted even by non-Christians.

There is one place, however, where the belief in the immortality of the soul is not found, and that, of all places, is the Bible! Not that the Bible does not teach immortality, for it does, very emphatically, but not that all men are immortal. The Bible doctrine of immortality is stated very simply in John 3:16: "God . . . gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Thus immortality, or eternal life, according to the Bible, is made conditional on belief, and is not the common property of all men.

Now, if all souls be immortal, then in the very nature of things it would be impossible for a soul to be killed or even be subject to death. Yet the Bible repeatedly and specifically speaks of souls dying and being killed, being destroyed and cut off, as in Ezekiel 18:4, 20. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Men will tell you that the soul that sinneth will be tormented forever and ever, but can never die because it is immortal (a pure assumption). On the contrary, "none can keep alive his own soul" (Psalm 22:29). "He which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death" (James 5:20). "Joshua . . . utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein" (Joshua 10:28-39; 11:11). Can a man destroy anything that is immortal? If so, what advantage is it to be immortal? Or if the bodies only are meant here, why does the writer take pains to specifically mention the soul in each case? Again, Jesus said, "Fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell" (Matt. 10:28). If even God is able to destroy the soul, then it certainly cannot be immortal!

The word "soul" occurs 488 times in the Bible, yet in all those hundreds of times it is never once called immortal! In fact, the word "immortal" is used but once in the whole Bible, and then in 1 Timothy 1:17, when it is applied to God. If you doubt the accuracy of this, turn to your Bible at once and, like the noble Bereans of old, see if these things are so.

This, then, is the difference between what is popularly believed and what the Bible teaches: The popular belief is that all men are immortal, while the Bible holds that immortality is a gift reserved alone for believers. The popular belief is in universal immortality, the Bible teaches conditional immortality. Witness Romans 6:23, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." If immortality be the natural possession of all, then in what sense can it be the gift of God through Christ? In Romans 2:6, 7, we are told to "seek for . . . immortality." Why seek for what we already have? 1 John 2:7 says that only "he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever," and 1 John 5:12, "He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

Reader! You are a poor, helpless, dying sinner! You have no life within yourself. Christ is your life (Col. 3:4) if you believe. Only through Him can you hope for immortality, for "this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:53). Choose the Bible hope of immortality, rather than the unfounded theories of men!

The Life-Giving Touch

WHILE I was itinerating among Arab villages in Morocco some years ago, I climbed into a low-spreading fig tree in a neglected garden early one beautiful morning in June, for a quiet time of Bible study and prayer. The tree promised an abundant crop, for it was full of figs. But as I sat there, I heard the sound of continual dropping, and I noticed that the ground was strewn with fallen figs. When I descended, I examined them. Some were very small, others were larger, and some were more than an inch in diameter, but all were dry and leathery. When I reached the tent in which I lived I asked one of the villagers whom I found there why the figs were falling. "Oh," said he, "those figs will all fall off, every one of them." "Why?" "Because they have not been fertilized." And then I understood.

The fig tree is peculiar in that its buds simply swell into figs, with no visible blossom. The blossom is on the inside of the fig. Pollen-bearing figs grow on one kind of a tree, figs that develop into fruit grow on other trees, and the pollen is carried to them to fertilize them by tiny gnats that are attracted by a sweet liquid that oozes out of a hole in the bottom of the figs. The gnats enter inside the fig that bears pollen, are covered with it, then enter the other figs, carrying to them the necessary element for their continued life. There were no pollen-producing fig trees in this garden, and all that abundant promise of luscious fruit was doomed to fail—these trees had not received the life-giving touch.

The incident illustrates a deep truth that explains, I think, why so many who seem to start in the Christian life soon fall away entirely, or else, if they maintain something of a Christian profession, are so lacking in spiritual life and vigor. They never received the life-giving touch.

And what is the life-giving touch? A ruler of the Jews, impressed by the miracles and teachings of our Lord Jesus, came to Him by night for instruction. He was startled when told that he needed, not more of what he already had, but something entirely new, imparted to him by the Spirit of God through an operation as definite as was his natural birth. Jesus said to him, "Ye must be born again." Then our Lord said: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

To others He said: "He that heareth my words and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into judgment, but is passed from death unto life. . . . And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son and believeth on him may have everlasting life, and I will raise him up at the last day." And again in Peter we read: "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature . . . being born again . . . by the word of God that liveth and abideth for ever." And again: "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. . . . Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man and drink his blood, ye have no life in you." And again: "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."

Let us analyze these simple statements. A very religious and excellent man (Nicodemus) was told that neither he nor anyone else could enter the kingdom of God without the new birth, a change wrought in his nature by the Spirit of God; that without it he (and everyone else) would perish; that all need to pass from impending judgment and from death unto life, made alive by an act of Christ that is like His act of raising corpses from the dead so that they live again; that thus we become partakers of the divine nature, shall be raised again at the last day, and shall live forever. Moreover, believing on the Son of God, that is, trusting Him, relying upon Him, hearing His words regarding Himself and ourselves, seeing Him, apprehending what He is and what He has done; eating His flesh, that is, laying hold of Him by the heart as the sacrifice for sin, as the body lays hold of bread in eating it; believing the promises of God, receiving Christ in the capacity in which He offers Himself—this is our part in that receiving of new life. And though spoken of in various figures, it is all the same thing.

How does the pollen, entering into the budding fig, bring new life? No one knows but God, but it does, and without it, the fig falls, a dry, useless, dead thing. Nothing else can quicken it. So simply receiving into the heart the Word of God as it testifies of ourselves and of our lost condition and of Christ, brings life, and nothing else can.

You may have ever so much religious activity, and zeal, and doctrinal knowledge, yet never have received the life-giving touch.

Let me illustrate it by four examples from real life. A little more than two hundred years ago a young man in New England became deeply impressed with his sinfulness and need of forgiveness. He set to work diligently to pray, to read God's Word, and to cultivate those frames of heart that he believed were necessary in order to be saved. Sometimes he seemed to make progress and was filled with hope; but again, he seemed farther from it than ever. After years of such agonizing efforts he finally saw that they were worthless in God's sight, of no more value than paddling his hand in water. Soon after this there was revealed to his mind a view of Christ as Mediator and Redeemer, for whose sake alone God freely forgives all sin. That day David Brainerd received the life-giving touch, and his abandonment to the will of God and his zeal for the glory of God made his ministry among the debauched Indians of New Jersey the inspiration of much modern missionary effort.

About the same time the son of godly parents was a student in Oxford University. He became very serious in religion, came to have clear views of the breadth and depth of the requirements of God's law, and he determined to give himself with all his might to meeting them, finally persuaded that in that way he could be saved. After years of ardent toil as a missionary and utmost effort to keep God's law he was awakened to the fact that he was unsaved by a terrible storm at sea. His Moravian companions were serene and calm in the face of death and he wondered at the reason. Finally through conversation with them and others John Wesley was led to look to Christ alone as the hope of his soul, and he, too, received the life-giving touch.

A youth in England, likewise the child of godly parents, tried often to make himself a Christian, and of course failed. He finally concluded that salvation was not for him, and he attempted to console himself with infidel views. One day, having a half-holiday, he went into the library of their home to pass away the time. He saw a tract and picked it up, intending to lay it aside when it got dull. He was struck with the expression, "The finished work of Christ." Why, he asked himself, "does not the writer say, 'The atoning work of Christ' or something like that?" The dying words of Christ, "It is finished," came to his mind. "What was finished?" The Spirit of God suggested the reply, "He finished an atonement for sin." "If Christ finished the work, what remains for us to do?" And as the joyful realization entered his soul that all he had to do was simply to accept the work that Christ finished for him, he fell on his knees and poured out his heart to God in grateful thanks. Thus J. Hurson Taylor received the life-giving touch.

An old Chinese lady, with her daughter, for some time had attended a Bible class held by Mrs. Argento, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, but she seemed entirely unresponsive. One morning Mrs. Argento felt an urgent impulse to go to call upon the two ladies. But it was not her calling day, so she purposed to go the next calling day. The impulse persisted. "Well, I will go this afternoon." The urge was insistent, so she called her Bible woman and started out. After the usual salutations and drinking of tea, she began to read and to speak. Suddenly the old lady's face was lighted up as if a window had opened in her soul. "Say that again," she said. "'For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.' What does that mean?" "It means that Christ died for you, and if you trust Him your sins are all forgiven." "Oh," she said, "I have had a burden of sin all my life. I have been a vegetarian for years in order to gain merit, so that I might be forgiven. I have made long, weary pilgrimages to many shrines. I have done everything I ever heard of but all in vain. And now you say that God's Son died for me, that I might be forgiven." That fact was rooted in her heart, and brought her joy. She was so old she could learn little else, but on that joyful testimony she was baptized, and as long as she lived, bore glad testimony to Him who died for her. Old Mrs. Liu had received the life-giving touch.—George C. Reed in Christian Victory.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from Page Three)

time without sin unto salvation" (Heb. 9:26, 28).

Jesus came and died upon the cross in the end of the Jewish world or age. At the time Paul wrote, the Lord's second appearing was still a future event. The expression "until he come" referred either to Christ's first advent or to His second advent. If I can adduce Scripture to show that it was not set up during Christ's personal ministry, then I have proved "until he come" refers to Christ's second advent.

There are several ways to reach the same conclusion in the study of the setting up of the kingdom. For instance, the kingdom to be set up will have certain outstanding characteristics that will be inseparable from the kingdom. They are clearly revealed in Daniel 2:44; Isaiah 2:2-4; Micah 4:1-4.

First, the breaking power of the kingdom causes the implements of carnal warfare to be changed into implements of profitable industry; it destroys war, and the preparation for war; it brings peace to earth, it brings a fulfillment of Matthew 6:10.

A few years ago while engaged in a public discussion with a defender of the theory that the kingdom was set up on Pentecost, I asked him if these characteristics of the kingdom accompanied the kingdom when it was (?) set up on Pentecost. He saw how foolish his position was, and trying to make it better, he made it worse by saying that they were not there when it was set up, but appeared some time later; but he was unable to say just when.

Let us see whether it was set up during Christ's personal ministry. Matthew 3:1, 2 says that John the Baptist preached a message of "the kingdom of heaven is at hand." I note that Jesus also taught, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 4:17). And when Jesus sent out His twelve disciples He commanded them to say, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 10:7). There was nothing wrong with the message, but facts to be adduced clearly show that they failed to understand that "God . . . calleth those things which be not as though they were." And failing in this, they thought that Christ would set up the long-looked-for kingdom of God.

In the interest of our brethren, and to help strengthen the faith of those that are young in the work, I must solemnly affirm that according to God's blueprint plan it was impossible for Him to set up the kingdom during Christ's personal ministry. During Jesus' work on earth, as He neared the cross, and because the disciples thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear, He spoke a parable unto them (Luke 19:11, 12). They thought the kingdom would be set up immediately, but He spoke a parable to correct their impression.

Coming to Pentecost, the Apostle referred to Joel's prophecy, saying, "This is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel," but not once did he say it was a fulfillment of Daniel 2:44; Isaiah 2:2-4; and Micah 4:1-4. According to Acts 1:6 it was not set up, and according to Acts 14:22 it was not set up long after Pentecost. And from Acts 15:14-17 we further learn that God had no intention of setting it up during Christ's personal ministry, nor on the day of Pentecost. Let me read it as it is: "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles (why?), to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up."

According to Amos 3:2; Romans 3:1, 2; and Ephesians 2:12, God only recognized Israel as a nation, and when Jesus began His message it was to Israel (Acts 10:36), and when He sent forth His disciples they were commanded to go only to the "lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 10:6).

In view of these facts, I ask you frankly, When did God through the gospel first visit the Gentiles? From Acts 10:11-12-14; 13:42-49, we learn that He started that visit at the house of Cornelius. Why did He visit the Gentiles? The record says, "To take out a people for his name." At this point He calls our attention to Amos 9:11, and says, "After this" (which to me means after the work of taking out the people, or church, for His name is accomplished) He will return and build again that kingdom about which the prophets have so often spoken. Here again the time is definitely stated—at the return of the one who holds a divine title to it (Ezek. 21:27), which beyond doubt refers to the second coming of Jesus Christ.

Paul surely had the same understanding when he wrote, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom" (2 Tim. 4:1).

I note that there are only seven trumpets to sound, and under the sounding of the seventh "the kingdoms of this world are (to) become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15). I note, too, that it is under this same trumpet that "the time of the dead, that they should be judged" (v. 18) occurs. As there are but seven trumpets to sound, the seventh trumpet is the last one, and "at the last trump . . . the dead shall be raised" (1 Cor. 15:52).

Whether we are able to name "these kings" of Daniel 2:44 or not, we know this, that the kingdom is to be set up in their time. We have found the time plainly given, and to be after the people from among the Gentiles have been gathered. At that time Christ will return and build again the tabernacle of David that is fallen down. What could be plainer? He will set it up and build it as in the days of old.

The kingdom when set up will do a work which no other kingdom has ever done. Jesus Christ is to be the King as Isaiah 32:1 shows, and with Him will be His helpers. See Isaiah 9:6, 7; also see Psalm 72:8, 9. In this capacity He rules upon His father David's throne, according to Luke 1:31-33. Rejoice in the promise of Isaiah 16:5.

Matthew 25:31 clearly shows just when Jesus ascends the throne, "When the Son of man shall come in his glory.

and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Before Him appear all nations for judgment, and what a judgment that will be! What a day!

PEACE AND WAR

A pleasant river, clear and blue,
Went singing to the sea,
The sunbeam joined them hand in hand
To dance the melody.
The courtly rushes bowed their heads
As nobles to the Queen,
And saw, reflected in the wave,
Their coats of Lincoln green.

God made such horrors? Count that word a lie.
God made the pleasant river, clear and blue,
Peace is His handiwork, and love, and joy,
While men make sewers—and artillery,
Grim bayonets, and howitzers and shell,
The battle-squadron surging through the tides,
Ten thousand hecatombs of reeking red
And all the vile magnificence of War.

—Jesse Edgar Middleton.

FUTURE EVENTS

(Continued from Page Seven)

than lovers of God (3:1-4). Paul also states, in the same chapter, that evil men shall grow worse and worse. He is talking about perilous times, not peaceful millennial days, in the last days of this dispensation, and then he goes on in the next chapter to speak of the appearing of Jesus Christ.

The premillennialist believes the word of James concerning the persecution and oppression of the last days, which will only be relieved by the coming again of our Lord, who will usher in righteousness (James 5:1-6).

He believes the 2nd chapter of 2 Thessalonians, in which the sin of man is seen headed up in the man of sin, who is destroyed by the brightness of the Lord's coming. This chapter emphasizes the fact that the day of the Lord will not come until after these events take place.

The premillennialist believes the teaching of the Lord, as recorded in Matthew 24, in which He speaks of the trend and end of the days that precede His coming. Those are days of war and trouble, of cold-blooded betrayals and persecutions of the Lord's people, which culminate in the "abomination of desolation" (man of sin) spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, and "the tribulation, the great one." It is "immediately after the tribulation of those days" that "they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." Certainly there is no place in the Savior's teaching for a millennium before His coming.

He believes the declaration of Peter in Acts 3:19-21, that if Israel would then repent, not only would their sins be blotted out, but God would send once more their appointed Messiah—Jesus. Not until His return from heaven would come the long-expected blessing for the earth.

The premillennialist believes that there can be no millennium until Satan is bound, which is just what Revelation 20:1-6 teaches; no righteousness until the Righteous One sets up the throne of David to rule with a rod of iron; no peace until the Prince of Peace takes the government upon His shoulder.

The millennium will not be a period of absolute perfection, but a period of cessation of idolatry and sin, because of the iron-rod rule of our Savior.—R. L. Mayer in The Jewish Hope.

We search the world for truth, we cull
The good, the pure, the beautiful
From gravestone and written scroll,
From the old flower-fields of the soul;
And, weary seekers of the best,
We come back laden from our quest,
To find that all the sages said
Is in the Book our mothers read.

—Whittier.

OUR HERITAGE OF LIBERTY

(Continued from Page Five)

tice when they assumed the reins of government. They still believed that religion should be supported by the state, and that the civil magistrate should punish heresy and certain offenses against God and the accepted customs of religion.

When they were still suffering oppression from the hands of the civil magistrates for the free exercise of their religious convictions, the pastor of the Pilgrim Church at Amsterdam, the Reverend Smith, wrote the "Confession of Faith" of that church, Article 84 of which reads: "That the magistrate is not by virtue of his office to meddle with religion or matters of conscience, to force and compel to this or that form of religion or doctrine; but to leave the Christian religion free to every man's conscience, and to handle only civil transgressions (Romans 13), injuries and wrongs of man against man; in murder, adultery, theft, etc., for Christ only is the king and lawgiver of the church and conscience (James 4:12)."

PERSECUTION DESPITE THEORIES

But when the Pilgrims secured the power to rule, they failed to carry out their own splendid theories of government. They, too, enforced religious obligations under duress of the civil magistrate, and persecuted dissenters for non-conformity to their ideas of Sunday observance and other church requirements. But religious persecution among the Pilgrims, during the seventy-one years of the separate and independent existence of their colony, manifested itself in the mildest forms, all sects and religious beliefs being tolerated except the Quakers. They failed to carry their theory of religious liberty and equal rights for all men into practice because the full light and realization of the meaning of religious liberty for all men had not yet dawned upon their minds.

Nor should we wonder at their failure to comprehend the fullness of religious liberty, when there are so many today who still lack the ability to grasp the idea that religious liberty is for all men, irrespective of what race, creed, or nationality the dissidents may be. There are many sects and religious organizations today that believe in theory in a total separation of church and state, and in the free exercise of the conscience of the individual in all religious matters; yet these same sects are ardent advocates of compulsory Sunday legislation; they believe that religion should be taught in the public schools, and that it is proper to receive gratuities from the public tax funds of the state for the carrying on of religious education in religious institutions under the control of religious denominations. Entrusted power is very intoxicating, and public gifts are enticing and blinding even to the eyes of equal justice!

It is true that the ideals of the Pilgrim Fathers finally prevailed at the time of the founding of this Republic, so far as the Federal Constitution was concerned. Then our nation became the home of the persecuted and oppressed of Europe, and has gained its greatest prosperity under this reign of equal opportunity for all, equal rights for all, and universal freedom of religion for all sects and beliefs. But this glorious heritage of human freedom is in grave danger, and is being vigorously and insidiously assailed from many sources today. The battles of freedom for the individual as fortified in our matchless Constitution will have to be fought all over again if we are not to lose what we gained in the past. Both our civil and our religious liberties are in jeopardy, and unless certain present-day tendencies are checked, our liberties are doomed. We may yet witness a religious fascism in our land. American citizens need to bestir themselves at every invasion of their constitutional prerogatives; they need to take alarm at every encroachment upon their civil rights. For a destruction of constitutional civil rights always is followed by an invasion and destruction of religious freedom.

These are ominous times. Startling things are happening in rapid succession. America, while geographically isolated from the Old World, is nevertheless in grave danger of invasion from the Old World's theories of government, theories which in many lands have destroyed every semblance of that democracy and religious freedom that seemed to presage the hope of better things in Europe.

Our priceless heritage of civil and religious liberty handed down to us by our forefathers in America, we believe, is still the hope of better things not only for America but for all countries; and if these fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty for the individual are to be discarded for theories which would make the state supreme over the consciences of its citizens, the hope of the world for political and religious freedom is doomed.—Charles S. Longacre in Signs of the Times.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Conscience

"Let your conscience be your guide." That's one extreme. "Pay no attention to your conscience, but take the Bible as your guide." That's the other.

When the hypocritical scribes and Pharisees were convicted of their sin at Jesus' saying, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her," it was their own conscience that convicted them (John 8:9). Conscience means "a knowing with oneself." It can be said of these wicked men that Jesus awakened their slumbering consciences. Each one in spite of his priestly trappings knew in his heart that he was guilty of sin.

There are two kinds of conscience: the evil conscience, seared with a hot iron, defiled; and the good conscience, void of offense toward God and men, pure.

Jesus Christ can clean up the conscience of man. "Shall the blood of Christ . . . purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" (Heb. 9:14). "Having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience" (Heb. 10:22).

That pure conscience is the constant goal of every Christian. It needs to be developed and cared for according to God's commandments. It needs daily feeding upon the Word of God or it might become seared.

Let no one scoff at the true Christian who "lets his conscience be his guide." The true Christian conscience is the result of knowing God's righteousness. A pure conscience can be of great help to you in meeting the problems of life. Let us say with Paul: "I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men" (Acts 24:16).

A few of the other important conscience references follow: "Their conscience also bearing witness" (Rom. 2:15). "My conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost" (Rom. 9:1). "Ye must needs be subject . . . also for conscience sake" (Rom. 13:5). "For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience" (2 Cor. 1:12). "Holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience" (1 Tim. 3:9). "God, whom I serve . . . with pure conscience" (2 Tim. 1:3). "The answer of a good conscience toward God" (1 Peter 3:21). "Pray for us: for we trust we have a good conscience, in all things willing to live honestly" (Heb. 13:18).

Testimony Meetings

"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works."—Hebrews 10:24.

You may provoke some one to anger, or you may provoke him to love. You may provoke him to evil works or to good works. In other words, you excite the other person to some emotion, good or bad, or to some action, good or bad.

We hold it in our power to provoke our friends. What shall it be, to good things or bad?

Shining examples of real Christianity in everyday living will provoke more good in the beholders than will the most eloquent sermon in the hearers.

Nevertheless, the verse following our text reads: "Not forsaking the assembling of yourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more as ye see the day approaching."

Testimony meetings should not be places for boasting how bad I once was and how good I am now. They should be places where praise goes up to God for His having promised and fulfilled in us already some of the promises. They should be places where the weaker brother comes to have his cup filled by seeing the examples of his fellow Christians. The good is not to be measured by the number of times I speak, but by the spiritual uplift we all receive. They should be places for arousing enthusiasm. Every member of the church should attend and be provoked to love and good works.

Righteousness Exalteth a Nation

Americans can truly be thankful to be living in a land that never forgets to send up once a year a cloud of the incense of gratitude to the loving heavenly Father. It is a paying proposition. In the midst of a world torn by strife our own Nation has just witnessed a great political battle the intensity of which if found in other countries would have ended in much bloodshed. But here it is ballots, not bullets, and the citizens then settle down confident that business will go on as usual. The citizens who announced they would leave the country if the election didn't suit still are to be found at the old stand. America will continue to be blessed in accordance with the sincerity of its thankfulness on Thanksgiving Day and its righteousness all the year.

Thanksgiving

It would be hard for a person to be thankful only once a year. Real thanksgiving on Thanksgiving is certainly prefaced by daily thanks all year long. Returning thanks at the table is one of the niceties that build up Christian character in the ones who participate. The participators are not only the ones who say the words but also all whose hearts are lifted toward God in gratitude. If you are the one that leads, speak out plainly, with clear thoughts and words. Let it not be said of you as of some Corinthians: "For thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not edified" (1 Cor. 14:17).

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus."

A SLAVE BECOMES A BROTHER

LONG, LONG ago in the city of Colosse there lived a wealthy man named Philemon. As was the custom with other rich people of that time, Philemon had many slaves to do his bidding. They kept the homes of their owners very neat and comfortable. They worked in the gardens so that beautiful flowers grew in abundance. Many, many tasks were done by these busy slaves.

Some of the rich men who lived near Philemon were very cruel to their slaves. They beat them for the slightest mistake the slaves might make. They mistreated them terribly in return for a lifetime of devotion.

But not so Philemon! He was ever a kind and a considerate master. Most of his slaves loved him devotedly and would have given their lives for him if need be.

Do you know why Philemon was so different from some of the other slave owners living near him? Philemon was a Christian.

You see, Philemon wasn't a Christian in name only, but in action as well. He knew the Golden Rule that Jesus had laid down for all to use in dealing with others. And Philemon used that rule in the treatment of his slaves.

If you had to be a slave, I hear you say, you wouldn't mind being a slave of Philemon's. Yes, a slave was better off being a slave for him than he would have been if some one had set him free.

But there was one foolish slave who was not wise enough to see that. His name was Onesimus. And strange to say, that name means "profitable." Well, we shall see if he was profitable to his master or not.

One day Onesimus did something very wrong. We do not know exactly what, but most likely he stole some money from his master. Then he ran away.

Far, far away he went from the good home he had enjoyed as the slave of Philemon. He took passage on a ship that was sailing for Italy. He left behind all he had ever known and loved. He had to hide, no doubt, so as not to be caught.

After weeks of dangerous sailing, suffering sometimes from cold, perhaps, Onesimus, the runaway slave, arrived in the great city of Rome. Here he thought, no doubt, he would never see anyone who knew him, and he would be free.

Free! free! the very waves must have whispered it to him as the ship sailed over the great ocean.

Free! free! the very sounds of the city must have shouted the words in his ear as he made his way through the strange streets. But let us see.

This part of the story we must write from putting other parts of the story together, and thinking what was probably the most likely thing to happen.

As Onesimus walked the streets of the great city, one day he heard through an open window a man preaching. Just because he had nothing to do he followed some others who were going into this house.

There may have been something in the tones of that preacher's voice that reminded the runaway of his old home. It may have been that Onesimus was just a little homesick. But anyway he stopped to listen to the preacher.

I'm sure all you girls and boys know the name of the preacher. Yes, it was our own missionary, Paul. He was a prisoner, but was allowed to live in a house he had rented himself. And though he was guarded by a soldier he was allowed all the visitors who cared to come and see him.

Evidently Onesimus came often to hear Paul as he spoke to those in the room of the wonderful love of God. Paul may have spoken the very words we find in our golden text one day as Onesimus listened.

Finally Onesimus told Paul he believed the gospel Paul was preaching. He confessed the whole sad story of how he had run away from such a good master as Philemon. He was sorry for his sin.

Now, strangest of all, Paul knew Philemon, was indeed a very dear friend of his. Philemon, in fact, had become a Christian through Paul's preaching on one of Paul's missionary journeys.

And now Philemon's slave was about to become a Christian under the same teacher. Don't you think God must have guided that runaway's steps to the house of Paul in that great city of Rome?

The first thing Paul wanted Onesimus to do was to go back to his master. And that is just what Onesimus wanted to do, too. The words, "Free, free," didn't sound so enticing to him now.

Dear, old Paul! He knew it wouldn't be the easiest thing in the world for Onesimus to go back and confess his wrongdoing. So he wrote this fine letter to his beloved friend, Philemon, asking him to take the runaway back, not as a slave, but as a brother in Christian faith.

In doing so Paul left us an example and a lesson in brotherly love that all of us may learn from, even though we do not own any slaves.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

By the time these lines are in print the local fall meetings should be well started. Bro. E. O. Stewart of Texas is the speaker. His sermons on prophecy and Christian living will help you—if you hear them.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES TO BEGIN AT CASEY, ILLINOIS

On Sunday morning, Nov. 22, the Illinois evangelists, F. L. Austin and J. W. McLain, will begin a series of evangelistic meetings at the Restitution Church near Casey. Everyone in that vicinity is urged to attend whenever possible.

"The Lord has come," or "The Lord is coming": which of these ideas should be the more strongly emphasized in our Christmas number? We solicit your advice.

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

November 1 was our Rally Day and there were in attendance 60. Although we did not reach the goal that was set we feel it was better to strive and miss the mark than never to try. A very nice Rally Day program was given by the children and the special musical numbers were given by the junior choir. We trust that by the time another Rally Day comes around we may have a number twice as large as this time. Remember us in your prayers.

C. E. Lapp, Pastor.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

There will be no services at the Ripley church Sunday, Nov. 15, as Bro. and Sr. Krogh are going to Sherrard, Ill., to hold services.

The Sunday school teachers' training class is held on Tuesday evenings and Bible study and prayer service on Thursday evenings.

Sr. Nora Mallory of Mt. Sterling, Ill., is ill. We pray God's blessing upon her.

Bro. and Sr. Leonard Robbins are the parents of a second son, born October 31. He will answer to the name of James Martin.

The fifth Sunday in this month, Bro. Krogh and Bro. G. E. Marsh will exchange pulpits.

During my visit with my brother Gerald, it was my privilege to visit several churches in Minnesota and also the brethren at Clear Lake, Wis. It is encouraging to see the church work at these places moving forward. The Minnesota Fall Conference was inspiring and spiritually uplifting.

Ednah Cooper, Secretary.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Maybelle Hanson	$ 4.00
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	6.17
Ripley, Ill., S. S. (indebtedness fund)	17.00
J. W. Sweet	2.00
Oregon, Ill., Church (ind. fund)	10.11
R. H. Judd	1.00
Mattie Benjamin	4.00
Irene Holland	3.00
E. M. O.	3.00
Leila E. Whitehead (ind. fund)	25.00
W. A. Reid	2.00
Mrs. C. Seely	5.00

BURR OAK, INDIANA

A "spiritual awakening" is taking place among the churches of this township. This is the continued spirit of the Preaching Mission. We are capitalizing on this advantage, and when Bro. Conner begins his meetings November 23 we expect our folk to be ready for a great time.

The writer spoke last Wednesday evening to a large crowd in Culver in the Evangelical Church. We have been invited to preach at two other churches. These opportunities are golden, when we can present the gospel.

The week previous to our revival, we will have over the community several cottage prayer meetings. While we pray, we ask you to pray for us. And any who read this notice of our meetings may feel that it is a personal invitation to attend.

November 30 Bro. Conner will address our county ministerial association.

The Morning Star Class held their meeting at the home of Bro. and Sr. Samuel Woods in Knox.

Little Paul Overmyer, baby boy of Bro. and Sr. Albert Overmyer, is ill with a bad cold.

Bro. Joe Bender, one of our early members here in the church, has been seriously ill. He was operated on a few weeks ago, but is home now recovering slowly.

The basement improvement fund is slowly creeping toward the top of the mountain. We have raised $278. We need more to be able to accomplish this work. Any who can assist, send your pledge or offering to Mrs. Mary Hatten, Culver, Ind. We want to thank the many friends that have already done this, it gives us courage.

Sr. Cochran has returned to her daughter's home in Knox for the winter. We miss her in our services, and hope she may come at least part of the time.

Our trip to Kokomo last Sunday was enjoyed. We found, however, Bro. Harvey ill again, also Sr. Hazel Maroney and Sr. Hand. May their recovery be rapid, we pray. Our folk here have not forgotten Bro. Parker's two splendid sermons given on our all-day meeting. Lord bless him in his work.

Our son, Carlton Hoskins, wife, and daughter arrived Wednesday. They are here ready for service for the Master. So at this time we are ready to hold revivals anywhere the Lord may call us. These young people are leaders in music, and a very profitable meeting will be assured. Write us, if in need of help.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

REPORT FOR OCTOBER

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 1; Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Brumfield, Ky., 1; Dana, N. C., 1. Funerals: 1; marriages, 1. Money received in Indiana: Pleasant View, $20.00; Rensselaer, $20.00; Hillisburg, $20.83; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $7.00; conference board, $15.00. Expense, $15.00.

I have just closed a meeting at Dana, N. C., and at present am engaged in one at Guthrie Grove, S. C. A report of these meetings will be given in the November report of the work.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist,

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE

Being persuaded that the coming of the Lord draweth very nigh, and that the evangelistic field affords opportunity to reach greater numbers of people with the gospel of salvation than does the local field, I recently consented to undertake this more strenuous labor of service. In doing so it became necessary to discontinue labors for the time with the Pennellwood Church of Grand Rapids, Mich. This I did with much reluctance, and only because I felt it a Christian duty to enter the larger field. I now feel that I would like to say a word to the readers of The Restitution Herald concerning this group of noble Christian people who are working so faithfully, and that under fearful handicap.

When I first began working with them in the spring of 1935—their number was between thirty and forty—I did so because of the deep adversity under which I found them. I hoped that I might encourage them, with the cooperation of others, to regain their former status. But the longer I labored among them the more I realized that the adversity placed upon them from without was but material. And, even by these vicissitudes, their Christian fortitude and hope and devotion were not lessened. Rather, their experiences in their wilderness of temptation evidently made them stronger in faith and service toward God.

Having continued with them long enough to "learn their number" (as slang states it), and to learn it quite well, I want to heartily commend the brothers and sisters of the Pennellwood Church to the brotherhood.

I honor them for their constant efforts to correct their own weaknesses, to forgive the weaknesses of others, and to maintain lives consecrated to the Master.

I hope to meet with the Pennellwood Church—now numbering about seventy—whenever it may be mutually convenient. And I am sure that any message of encouragement addressed to them through their elder, Myron Van Port Fleet, Webster St., S. E., or through their secretary, Mrs. L. F. Slocum, 635 Alexander St., S. E., would be greatly appreciated by all of them.

In His service,

F. L. Austin.

SKINNER-BECHTEL

On the evening of October 24 in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives, Mr. Earl Bechtel and Miss Beulah Skinner stood at the altar of the Church of God at St. Cloud, Minn., and exchanged the vows that made them man and wife. The bridal party stood beneath a beautiful white arch surrounded with palms and flowers. Two candelabra with five candles each gave light for the occasion. After the wedding a reception was given at the bride's home.

The young people will make their home in Minneapolis where Mr. Bechtel is employed and as they leave us we pray God will bless them with a long and happy life and eternal life to come.

C. E. Lapp.

TRYPHENA BALL

Again there devolves upon us the sorrowful task of recording the passing of a faithful "mother in Israel." Tryphena Bouk, daughter of Bro. Peter H. Bouk, founder of the Church of God in Fonhill, Ont., and his wife Mary Ann Bouk, died at the farm home near Welland, Ont., to which she had been taken as a bride more than half a century ago.

Her marriage to Bro. David Ball was solemnized January 31, 1882. Of the three daughters who came to grace the home, one died in infancy, and the other two, Mrs. C. B. (Etta) Elliot and Mrs. Ernest (Martha) Shute, both of Fonhill, Ont., mourn the absence of a devoted Christian mother. She is also survived by five grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Lydia Lent and Mrs. Priscilla Clark, also of Fonhill; and one brother, Jesse Bouk, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Ball was baptized by R. V. Lyon in her girlhood and, like her parents and her brothers and sisters, some of whom preceded her in death, she has remained throughout her life an obedient and useful servant of her Lord.

Her husband, who was likewise a firm believer in the gospel of the kingdom of God, has been awaiting in the land of shadows the Master's call for the past eight years.

Sr. Ball was born in Thorold Township, near Welland, Ont., June 1, 1851. During her long life in the community she has endeared herself to a large circle of friends by her quiet manner and the self-sacrificing service she so willingly rendered to all who were in need.

The funeral sermon, which was given by G. E. Marsh, a former pastor of the Fonhill church, emphasized the far-reaching influence which a godly grandmother may exert over succeeding generations and held out the assurance of a joyful reunion when the Life-giver comes. The principal text was from 2 Timothy 1:5.

BERT E. EASTON

Bert E. Easton was born in San Bernardino, Calif., April 17, 1913, and died October 29, 1936, in a Los Angeles hospital, just eight days after he was seriously mangled by a hit-and-run driver while riding his motorcycle through Hines, Calif. Everything that was possible was done to save his life. Blood transfusions were given by friends, but loss of blood and exposure before he could be gotten to the hospital soon resulted in double pneumonia.

Bert was a young man of very commendable habits and morals. His sudden death is a great shock to his parents, Bro. and Sr. Easton of North Long Beach, and the other members of his family, as also to his many friends.

At the time of his death, his father, Bro. Albert D. Easton, was in the mountains in northern California for his health, while the mother, Sr. Ruby R. Easton, with Virginia, Margaret, Mary Jane, and Duane, the other children, was at home.

The large gathering of relatives and friends who attended the funeral services November 3 at the McFadyen Funeral Parlors of Long Beach attested to the high esteem in which he was held. Words of comfort from the Scriptures were extended in an explanation of why death is in the world, man's condition in death, and the promise of escape from death. The pallbearers were Bert's boy friends. Interment was in Sunnyside Mausoleum Cemetery in the northeast section of Long Beach.

Emma C. Railsback.

DANIEL KELLAR LEHMAN

Daniel Kellar Lehman, oldest son of Henry and Catherine Lehman, was born near Union in Montgomery County, Ohio, September 23, 1855. When he was about two years of age they moved to the Lehman home place where he grew to manhood.

He was married December 25, 1878, to Algierose Louise Haines of Argos, Ind. To this union seven children were born of which six survive.

In the fall of 1880 he moved from Indiana to Iowa, living there about twenty years. In 1901 he returned to Ohio with his family, where he lived until death.

Death came on November 5, 1936, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jones, where his daughter, Mrs. Jones, had cared for him the past two years.

Those who mourn his death are the six children, Mrs. Dessa Benn, Ashford Lehman, Mrs. Edna Brewer, Mrs. Alice Jones, Misses Ethel and Martha Lehman; one brother, John Lehman; one sister, Mrs. Anna Eidemiller; twelve grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer from the Ray Jones home and the Brush Creek Church of God on Sunday, Nov. 8. Burial was made in the Curtis Cemetery.

On January 16, 1873, Bro. Lehman was immersed by Elder Wagner, and became a staunch member of the Brush Creek Church of God, remaining true and faithful to his pledge until death. He lived worthy of his given name, Daniel. While quiet and retiring he exemplified the life of his Savior, was a man of prayer, and died in hope of the resurrection when Christ returns.

Sydney E. Magaw.

EMMELINE E. DAVIS

Emmeline E. Elton was born in Cleveland, Ohio, October 9, 1869, and died October 30, 1936, at Omaha, Neb.

She was united in marriage with Dr. J. W. E. K. Davis June 12, 1907. He died December 5, 1913.

Sr. Davis came to Omaha with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Elton, in 1870. She united with the Church of God and was baptized by her uncle, George of Cleveland, the year of the General Conference in Chicago.

She leaves to mourn two sisters, Mrs. George Haggard of Irvington, Neb., and Mrs. J. V. Hinsman of Omaha; and five brothers, Charles, George, William, and John of Omaha, and Enos of Tustin, Calif.

Sr. Davis has been deaf for several years, unable to carry on a conversation except by writing; but notwithstanding this handicap, she never failed to be present at church and Sunday school.

The funeral took place from the Kremer Funeral Home. Although it was a bad day, the auditorium was filled. The writer based his remarks on 2 Chronicles 16:9, and Sr. Davis was laid to rest in Mt. Hope Cemetery to await the call of the Master.

Almus Adams.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Sarah Kerr; Edith Burchell; Elizabeth Oakley; Louise McRoberts; C. B. Compton; Mary Goodyear; Frances Walls; Emma E. Upton; Mayme and Nancy Penrod; W. A. Reid; Ira E. Bever; E. M. Moran; Mrs. William Lausbery; Lila Kirkpatrick (for self and another); Samuel Metheny; R. E. Griner (for self and another); James R. Moore; Percy Murphy; Lawrence M. Howell; William Laning; James W. McLain (for another); Anna E. Drew; Fred Huber.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

"that stern and rockbound coast felt like an amateur when it saw how grim the puritans that landed on it were"
—"certain maxims of archy"
according to Don Marquis.

Although the American Bar Association insists that no ratifications received after January 2, 1933, would hold under the scrutiny of the Supreme Court, the States go merrily on their way approving the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution. One half the States have ratified. Under the amendment, Congress would have full power to "limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age."

Ninety per cent, our debate coach told us, of our audiences wouldn't think. He was wrong. None of them think. We haven't found one that agrees with us.

Simon & Schuster, New York publishers of best-selling odd books, have brought out an edition of the King James paraphrased, versified, and punctuated with respect to the poetry, conversation, drama, and oratory of the original. According to Dorothy Canfield Fisher (Ladies' Home Journal, December, 1936), the Simon & Schuster idea makes the Elizabethan Bible much more interesting and intelligible. It sells for $3.50.

"Lord, for the erring thought
Not into evil wrought:
Lord, for the wicked will Betrayed and baffled still:
For the heart from itself kept,
Our thanksgiving accept."
That was the novel notion of William Dean Howells.

If you really must cut down on the barber's bill, try the suggestion of Prof. W. T. Astbury of Leeds University, England: "Expose your head to X-rays for six hours, then to steam for two hours. Your hair will contract to two-thirds of its original length and you won't need a hair cut for a considerable time." We wonder what that would do to whiskers.

The Sunday school papers haven't mentioned it yet, but the Lowell, Massachusetts, Park Commission refuses to place either lights or policemen in its Fort Hill Park on the grounds that "it's the people's park and the people's prerogative to pet." . . . And two months ago, somebody was arrested on Long Island for kissing his wife good-bye on the railroad station platform.

If you do like this column, tell us. We won't have to ask you if you don't.

Strenuously praying Moslems today are trying frantically to create a world union of the forces of Islam, with a single leader who can return to their faith the power it once had.

One really should read Scribner's book reviews if he wants to marvel at what language a man can spawn. The reviews sound like something out of Michelson's addresses to the American Academy. Word, words, words.

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

GETTING HELP FROM RELIGION

Three principles are extended by James Gordon Gilkey in this book as being the fundamental doctrines of the Christ: that there is a God who loves each individual; that each human being is a child of God and consequently is of infinite value; that, because of the second principle, every human being owes kindness and respect to every other human being.

Miracles, modern and ancient, are discarded by Dr. Gilkey as one of the delusions of the ignorant. That Paul taught the Trinity, he accepts; that John taught that observance of the rites of baptism and the Communion was essential, he accepts. But in each case, Dr. Gilkey holds that the teaching was an uninspired addition to the basic doctrines of Jesus.

Obviously, the Gilkey work takes its tone from what the author calls "liberal Protestants." However, in spite of the book's congenital modernism, there is considerable about it which will be of interest to the most militant fundamentalists.

The primary object of Getting Help From Religion is that suggested by the title, to propose methods by which the Christian can learn to give God an active place in his everyday life. A careful build-up is given the idea that God is quite as interested in the individual as He is in the conglomerate mass, and thereafter the book proceeds to a discussion of the means by which that interest can be found and practically applied.

The good Doctor makes no effort to explain precisely how one receives direction from Jehovah, but he is insistent on the point that, although God is in no sense responsible for the evil in the world, He is responsible for the frequent conversion of apparent evil into good. A number of case histories drawn from the Gilkey experience and from the great and near-great is used to confirm the Doctor's interpretation of life and the Bible.

Trust in God, regardless of one's personal position in life, is the keynote of the book. The existence of social evils, of natural disasters, and of disease Dr. Gilkey attributes to the desire of God to surround man with a rigorous environment in order to develop human character. These disasters and these evils he believes to be "faith's greatest obstacle."

A peculiar contradiction seems to exist in the Gilkey notion that the army of David was not divinely guided even though it sought instruction from Jehovah, but that Dr. Trudeau did have special help from God in learning how to cure tuberculosis. The author denies the power of the Israelitish high priest to summon help from God in determining Hebrew action, but he blandly accepts the statement of Sir Ernest Shackleton that, while crossing the uncharted antarctic mountains of South Georgia, the Shackleton exploratory expedition was accompanied by an inspiring and helpful Presence.

Whatever one may think about the ideas on essential Christian doctrines as set forth in Getting Help From Religion, he will find a considerable portion of the work well worth reading. And if he is inclined to wonder if God actually does take a vital interest in the affairs of individual members of humanity, he certainly will find the book a blessing despite its flaws.

The Macmillan Company: $1.75.

JUNIOR BIBLE CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Those Wildes in Boston seem to spend all their weekends producing new Bible cross-word puzzles. Every time they issue a catalog, another page of the list is devoted to books or pads or sets of these brain-teasers.

This propensity to increase the sale of aspirin has even invaded the realm of children's literature. Junior Bible Cross-Word Puzzles, series 1, on the miracles of Jesus, is the first group of what apparently is to be a series after the order of the It's in the Bible blanks.

These puzzles on the miracles of Jesus, however, are simple, small. Adults won't enjoy them, but children may. (Now that children grow up at 10, they like so many crazy things.) Every puzzle is founded on some one miracle done by the Christ. There are twelve different puzzle blanks to each set, and the answers are printed on the inside of the wrapper so that parents won't have to expose their ignorance too much when Susie wants to know what's a five-letter word meaning "drink."

W. A. Wilde Company: 15 cents.

THE VALUE OF A BOOK

Only by the exchange of opinions can the world progress. Collaboration among scientists has developed the electric light, the radio, the telegraph and the telephone, the automobile and the airplane. And collaboration among students of religion has corrected misinterpretations, added to the fund of world knowledge and to the joy of life.

So it is that a book is helpful. It preserves opinions, the aggregate opinions of countless writers of the past whose work, through gradual assimilation, has become a part of that author whom you now may read. The true university lies in experience and literature, and not in either one alone.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 24, 1936

NUMBER 8

My Last Sermon

Progressive Christianity

By Sydney E. Magaw

AN ABANDONED half-built house is an eyesore. It is no home, and a poor shelter in any storm. It mocks its builder, mars the beauty of near by dwellings, and is an expensive failure.

There is no glory in a half-developed man. He is a weakling, a runt. He complains of competition. He cannot win. He, too, is a costly failure.

Progress is imperative. Growth is a part of success. Christianity moves. An idle Christian is a Christian with an idol. Meditate Christ's "Go ye," "This do," and "Go, and do thou likewise." Meditate Paul's "Be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord." A half-hearted, half-trained Christian is worse than an eyesore. He makes hearts bleed, he edifies none and offends many. If he refuses to grow he is an expensive failure.

Yesterday's start without today's continuance does not qualify for God's kingdom. Virtue of today is not so grand that it dismisses tomorrow's duty. Jesus said, "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." Looking back, the plowman would make a crooked furrow, and walking in his own crooked furrow he would miss the "strait gate." "Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee." "Remember Lot's wife." "He that endures unto the end shall be saved." "Forgetting those things which are behind . . . press toward the mark for the prize." Only crabs go backward.

All people desire physical growth; few desire spiritual growth. Physical growth is natural; spiritual growth is against nature. Yet spiritual growth is more to be desired. It is better to be a physical runt than to be a spiritual runt. "Bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." "Godliness with contentment is great gain." The physical growth of man is as inferior to his spiritual growth as bread is to God's Word. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Are you as hungry for God's Word as for the food on your table? For which are you paying the more? If your physique needs food thrice daily will an annual revival or even Sunday worship make you "strong in the Lord"?

Though Paul loved his Corinthian converts when they were "babes in Christ," he pleaded, "Brethren, be not children in understanding: howbeit in malice be ye children, but in understanding be men." A parent's love for his babe is no objection to his child's growth. Joy accompanies growth. God's grace abounds when His children creep, totter, stagger, and fall, but God wishes His children to "grow up into him . . . even Christ," that they "henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine." Winds of false doctrine blow spiritual runts into slippery places.

Doubt, indifference, and short vision are enemies of Christian progress. God's reality is doubtful, His Book is doubted, and His people doubt their own possibilities. Doubt is a dam that blocks the intended stream of Christian works. Doubt is akin to denial. "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." God has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." Christ has said, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Paul has said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Where is there any room for doubt? "Dissolving of doubts" was a characteristic of Daniel. Is your life so well ordered that you dissolve doubts in other lives and plant faith where the doubts have been? To do a questionable deed when you doubt if it is correct is to flirt with damnation. The Bible says so. Study Romans 14:23.

Indifference is a sly (Please turn to Page 11)

Abreast of the Times

Wants More Boys for War

"Let all the men of war draw near."—Joel 3:9.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Following the example set by Premier Mussolini in Italy and Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Germany, Great Britain is planning a definite drive to encourage an increase in its birth rate for the purpose of insuring the "maintenance of the Nation's defense forces."

Signs of concern over the falling birth rate have been increasingly evident for some time past, and it is said that the Cabinet is considering issuing an appeal to childless couples and to those who have but one or two children to take the needs of the Nation into account and make the rearing of more children a matter of patriotism.

A drastic drop in population is predicted by Prof. D. V. Glass of the London School of Economics unless more children are born of British parents in the near future. The Professor declared that the population of Great Britain which now numbers 48,000,000 will decrease within the next century "to a mere 6,000,000 sterile old men and women," and that "a vast industrial depression will follow (and that) the economic fabric of the Nation will collapse in ruins."

The immediate problem is military rather than economic, however, the most pressing question being, how can Great Britain secure enough men to man its guns and at the same time manufacture the munitions necessary to carry on successfully the war which all authorities foresee is soon to involve all Europe and perhaps all the world?

The problem is especially pressing at the present time as English statesmen realize that the Empire's distant Dominions are manifesting disinclination to engage in European warfare in which they are not themselves directly concerned.

The British people would find much assurance if as a whole they understood and placed greater faith in the promises of God. The prophets seem to clearly predict that the flag "upon which the sun never sets" will continue to fly undefeated in the face of its enemies until the Lord comes and that the Government it represents will survive the fires of tribulation and pass over weakened, but intact, into the new age.

A Boy's Game

"Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, . . . disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy."—Paul.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21.—Analyzing the 343,132 arrest records sent in to the Department of Justice during the past nine months by police departments all over the country, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has made the shocking discovery that of each 100 persons arrested 17 were boys under 21 years of age.

One of every four persons arrested for robbery during that period was under 21, while close to half of the automobile thefts reported for which arrests were made were charged against those under 21 years.

Nearly 60,000 boys were arrested in the nine-month period covered by the report and fully 526 of the boys were charged with criminal homicide, which is in most cases murder. In addition to the graver crimes perpetrated by boys, which are the only ones reported to the Department of Justice, tens of thousands of lesser crimes committed by the youth of the country are not included.

An editor of a metropolitan daily in commenting on the situation, says, "The answer? We do not know. We suspect it is discipline. But from where? Home, school, fraternity, semi-military unit? Certainly a civilization as clever as ours should find the answer."

No cleverness of men or of man-made civilizations will solve the problem of delinquent youth! In a measure it can be met by the power of the gospel operating on the individual hearts of boys and girls, but for the great mass of young people the coming of Jesus Christ offers the only hope of deliverance from the allurements of crime.

Eight Million Men Under Arms

"Even a great company with bucklors and shields, all of them handling swords."—Ezekiel 38:4.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 11.—It is significant that on the eighteenth anniversary of the signing of the armistice that marked the ending of the war that was "to make the world safe for democracy" the League of Nations, the international body that was created to prevent the coming of future wars, should issue a statement declaring that there are at the present time 8,200,000 men now permanently under arms throughout the world!

The figures released today show that since 1931-32 the soldiers of the world have increased by the addition of 1,700,000 men. In Europe the total armed forces are now 4,800,000, compared with 3,600,000 in 1931-32, the statement of the League said. It further asserted that these figures included only the admitted permanent armed forces.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Tabernacle in the Wilderness

By H. L. Hastings

IN THE book of Leviticus there are minute directions given for the making of the "tabernacle of the congregation," or "the tent of meeting" as it is sometimes translated. In the center of the encampment of Israel was an enclosed and curtained area, in which was the altar of sacrifice, and the brazen laver for washing. Within this enclosure stood the tabernacle, which the Apostle describes (Heb. 9:1) as a "worldly sanctuary." The term "worldly" here signifies "world-like," or as Josephus expresses it, this tabernacle was a representation of the universe. In this tabernacle there was first an apartment containing the golden candlestick or lamp stand, having seven branches, each branch having a socket for the holding of a lamp. Representations of this lamp stand are common, all of them being copied from the sculptures on the arch of Titus, where there still remains a representation of this ancient candlestick and the utensils of the Jewish tabernacle which were carried in the procession by the Romans at the triumph of Titus and Vespasian. A heavy veil, beautifully embroidered, divided the sanctuary into two parts, and behind this splendid veil was "the holiest of all." Within was the golden censer in which incense was burned; the ark of the covenant, overlaid round about with gold; and within the ark were the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant or Ten Commandments, and over it were the cherubim of gold with outspread wings overshadowing the golden mercy seat.

Into the outer court came the Israelite with his offering; and through the first veil, into the holy place, the priests went daily, accomplishing the service of God. First, within the enclosure, at the altar of sacrifice, sins were confessed and the offered victims slain that the guilty might be pardoned. Then there was the brazen laver for washing and purification; then past the first veil, within the holy place, were the lamps of the golden candlestick, kept constantly burning, by the altar of incense and the table of shewbread—the candlestick representing the church of God constantly giving light; the incense of the altar representing the prayers of God's people as they went up like incense before the Lord; and the bread, perhaps, being a symbol of the bread of God, the broken bread of the body of Jesus Christ.

Here the priests came to perform their daily duties, trimming the lamps, renewing the bread upon the table, and offering up the incense with their prayers to God.

Behind the inner veil, in that most holy place, was contained the ark of God; and no man dare enter there except the high priest, and he once, alone, every year, bearing the blood of a slain victim, which he offered for himself as the representative of the people, and for the worshiping congregation. No other person but the high priest could enter that place under pain of death, and he was allowed to enter only on the great day of atonement, when the sacrifice for sin was to be offered, and the blood of sprinkling was presented before the Lord.

All this was a type of other things. The outside world has now its opportunity to gather around the sacred camp of Israel, and the worshipers may come nearer, even within the enclosure; but the people of God, being a holy generation, a peculiar people, a royal priesthood, have the right and privilege of drawing nigh to God, coming where the great sacrifice for sin is offered, and being permitted to partake of the washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost, which makes them acceptable worshipers in the sight of God. Then they may draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having their hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and their bodies washed with pure water, and offer up prayers and supplications in the holy place, their prayers being set forth as incense before the Lord, and the lifting up of their hands like the evening sacrifice. There they shine as lights in the world, and there they partake of that bread of God which has been given for the life of dying men. As priests of God they have a right to join in the worship and unite in the prayers; but in the great work of atonement and reconciliation they have no part. Only the high priest, the chosen and anointed representative of the people, had the right to pass that sacred inner veil and enter the holy place; for anyone else to do it would be to provoke the wrath of God. And while the priests, worshipping there, represented the condition of the church now on earth, Jesus our

(Please turn to Page Ten)

Effect of Example

We scatter seeds with careless hand,
And dream we ne'er shall see them more;
But for a thousand years
Their fruit appears,
In weeds that mar the land
Or healthful shore.

The deeds we do, the words we say—
Into still air they seem to fleet;
We count them ever past;
But they shall last—
In the dread judgment they
And we shall meet.

I charge thee by the years gone by,
For the love's sake of brethren dear,
Keep thou the one true way,
In work and play,
Lest in that world their cry
Of woe thou hear.

—John Keble.

Scientific Accuracies in the Bible

RELIGION and science are in their very nature allied. Religion professes to know the truth of God concerning His universe and salvation. Science seeks to know the truth contained in the universe. From this it follows that science cannot afford to overlook scriptural references to the natural world; but neither can Christians consistently divorce their natural interests from their spiritual ones. God's truth is one; and it is the sole truth. In order to correlate scientific findings with the Bible, experience requires that four general principles of caution be observed.

First, as Prof. Townsend declared some time ago, distinction should be made between what the Bible says and what is said in the Bible. The Bible records accurately the utterances and activities of fallible men, but it does not thereby condone them. In Romans 3:8 may be found the statement: "Let us do evil, that good may come of it." Obviously to accept this as divine precept is unscholarly and unjust.

Again, a valid analysis of the biblical teaching may be made only by trained scholars. Not just anyone is qualified to sit in judgment on the Bible. A lumber dealer once was interested enough in Noah's ark to compute the amount of lumber needed to construct it. Later on he read that "the children of the Levites bore the ark of God upon their shoulder." Thereupon, remembering the enormous size and tremendous weight of Noah's ark, he pronounced the Bible to be "a pack of lies!"

Third, it is well to bear in mind the fact that many of the alleged inaccuracies in the Bible have been judged according to scientific theory, not fact. Prof. Lydell once stated that "in the year 1806 the French Institute enumerated no less than eighty geological theories which were hostile to the Scriptures; but not one of these theories is held today."

Finally, scientific terminology is the language of the few, while biblical terminology is understood by all. Written for the common race of men, the Bible speaks plainly and naturally in language which has been and will be understood throughout the ages. With this fact, too, we must reckon in determining the scientific accuracy of the Bible.

As to the Christian thinker, he must remember that the primary purpose of Scripture is not to be a scientific record, but rather to reveal the will of God concerning His creation and His creatures. But the Christian at once recognizes that the Bible posits many truths which fall within the realm of science; and these truths he accepts on a par with scientific data. In case of conflict, biblical declaration supersedes scientific theory.

Two hundred specimens of plant life are mentioned in the Bible, of which the cedars of Lebanon and the clinging vine are but the two extremes. Botanical classification is also suggested in Genesis 1:11: "Grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after its kind, whose seed is in itself." The Hebrew deshe, which is translated "grass," means simply "greenness without visible seed or stalk."

A strikingly similar classification is given by a textbook widely used today (Textbook of General Botany, by Smith, Overton, Gilbert, Dennison, Bryan, and Allen, p. 484): "... simple water inhabiting forms . . . the primitive seed plants; and finally the angiosperms." In both accounts we have first, plants which are simply green, the seed not being evident; second, plants in which the seed is prominent and exposed; and finally, the forms "bearing fruit" with enclosed seed. This is only one instance of scientific accuracy in the Bible.

It is hard to demonstrate the presence of bacteria in forest areas, writes Dr. Paine of the London Imperial College of Science and Technology, because "the leaves of trees seem to act as efficient bacterial filters" (Vol. II, p. 305, Encyclopedia Britannica, 14th Edition). When I read that, I reflected that the vacationer's penchant for forest regions is based on a sound instinct. And then I recalled the passage in John's Revelation which speaks of the "tree of life" in the Holy City, and "the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations." John's "tree" may be symbolical, but it is then an accurate symbol from the scientific standpoint.

Equally scientific are the Bible's references to animal life. It is unfortunate indeed that the Greek translation of the Hebrew reem should be "monkeros" or "unicorn." It was through this erroneous translation that the English Bible also contains reference to the unicorn, which is now supposed to be a fabulous and mythical animal. The American Revised Version rightly reads "wild-ox"; for the Hebrew text reads (Deut. 33:17), "His horns are like the horns of reem." But reem here is singular; hence the animal could not be a one-horner, or a "unicorn." The text itself thus contained a caution against misinterpretation of the nature of the animal.

The ancients confidently estimated that the heavens contained about a thousand stars. Today telescopes reveal an incalculable number of stars. But Genesis 15:5 anticipated modern astronomy when Jehovah enjoins Abraham to "look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them . . . so shall thy seed be." It was well within the scope of Abraham's powers, surely, to count a thousand stars! Jehovah's promise was a significant one, to which the number of Abraham's seed bears testimony.

How was the earth supported? queried the ancients. Perhaps by pillars; or by a huge tortoise which stood on a coiled serpent; possibly huge elephants upheld it; the giant Atlas might be supporting it. Modern science knows now, however, that the earth is suspended in space, but Job in antiquity stated, "He . . . hangeth the earth upon nothing" (Job 26:7).

The rivers flow constantly into the sea; yet the water is not concentrated there. Modern science can easily explain the process today, but long before they had an inkling of it, Job proclaimed (Job 36:26-28), "Behold, God is great, and we know him not; the number of his years is unsearchable. For he draweth up the drops of water, which distil in rain from his vapor, which the skies pour down." That God is responsible for the process scientists would question, but scriptural writers saw no reason for alienating their science from their theology.

In the field of physics, one of the most absorbing subjects is light. From Hero of Alexandria to Michelson of Chicago, the basic hypothesis concerning light is that it is a form of energy. The logical sequence, it is agreed, is: first energy, then light.

But this very order is given in the first three verses of Genesis, in which Moses records that as "darkness was upon the face of the earth" characterized chaos, the "Spirit of God" brooded, or moved upon, the face of the waters. Now the word used for "moved" is the nearest the Hebrew language can come to express our word "oscillation." Following this "moving spirit," God said, "Let there be light; and there was light." There it is plainly ordered: darkness, energy, light. Science in its tested hypotheses confirms the Bible; it does not contradict it.

Incorrectly the Bible is criticized for teaching a flat earth. Scientists should be cautious when they read Isaiah 40:22, "It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth." A circle is round, not flat. But criticism should be softly
(Please turn to Page Ten)

"Go Ye Into All the"—Churches

By Mrs. Clarence E. Lapp

"WELL open our service by singing hymn number 78," announces the minister as he industriously looks for page 78. Glancing expectantly over the rim of his spectacles to see if the pianist is ready to start, he states complacently, "We'll sing the first, second, and last verses." (Some congregations are so well trained that they sing those verses without being told.) Many times they do sing "page 78" instead of "'Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus." Thus it goes on through the regular routine and everybody knows what is coming next. Afterwards if you should ask some one what he learned at church he would have to stop and meditate a few minutes to recall what it was all about. He has "been to church" and so has fulfilled his religious duty.

Jesus told His disciples, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel," but how can this command be made living and quickened to our hearts unless our worship at home is "living" and real? We get so in the habit of a certain routine that our minds just go to sleep and we sing songs we don't mean and we hear things that don't move us. It is the same attitude we have when we do our daily tasks such as washing dishes while our minds are a million miles away.

Everybody likes surprises and unexpected things. They give us a shock and wake us up. That old saying, "Variety is the spice of life," is still true. I don't imagine everything was so scheduled when Paul preached until midnight but he had a fire and zeal for God that very few of us possess. God's Word needs to be "quickened" to our hearts and then we will worship Him "in spirit and in truth."

As we look about us and see the unhappiness in the world, surely there is a crying need for the "living bread." Some one has said, "There is more pleasure in the world today and less happiness." We need a religion that exists in "deed" as well as "dogma." A Christianity that touches the heart-strings makes the step lighter, softens the voice to kindness, fills the heart with song, and makes the eyes glow with the sunshine of God's love. A Christianity that keeps the mouth closed and the boneless tongue between the teeth when it fain would utter "idle tales" or hastily exclaim the harsh words that cut those dearest to us; a Christianity that comes into the home and keeps Father sweet when the potatoes are burned, keeps Mother sweet when Johnny accidentally spills his glass of milk all over the nice clean tablecloth; a Christianity that makes us humble ourselves and ask forgiveness of one another; a Christianity that knows how to get in touch with God, is far more precious than any earthly treasure.

How can this change be wrought in the lives of men and women? God's Word is still "quick and powerful" but we cannot help to quicken it to some one else unless it has been quickened to our own selves first. I once heard a man say that he had gone to church all of his life and still he didn't know anything about the Bible. Why should such a condition exist? Where is the fire of Paul? the zeal of the apostles? Most people get the majority of their religious education at church. How important it is then that our worship should be "in spirit and in truth," coming directly from the heart with our whole minds centered upon God. Not to see who can sing the loudest or pray the best prayer or watch for mistakes the minister makes, but to worship together "in spirit and in truth." Forget about "the cares of life" for a brief time and think upon the goodness of God.

When we come to this place in our home churches then we will not lack for young men who will be willing to heed Christ's command, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel."

The Revealing of Revelation—When?

By W. R. Young

WHAT is termed the historical interpretation of the book of Revelation places most of the fulfillments of its symbolic predictions in the long past, commencing soon after the visions were given to the Apostle John, and from that time extending over many centuries since.

Another interpretation, quite popular nowadays, is named the futuristic, because it regards the entire book, except the first few chapters, as yet unfulfilled and advances quite an elaborate program for this fulfillment in the future.

A third, however, avoids each of the extremes connected with the others and regards most of those figurative prophecies as applying to the "time of the end," i. e., to a comparatively brief space previous to the end itself, and therefore to recent and current events which clearly indicate that the predicted consummation must be very near.

To the present writer the last of these three suggested interpretations furnishes fewer difficulties than either of the others; not that every point is yet perfectly clear, but remaining obscurities are fast disappearing before the efforts of diligent and prayerful research, so that the general plan appears to fit more closely to present circumstances than does either the historical or futurist view, the latter of which consists of almost pure speculation, while the former, although providing a better basis, appears to conflict with the statements made at the outset in this book of Revelation. See chapter 1:1, where only a short space of time is allowed between the clear understanding of the following symbolic language and the completed fulfillment of the same. How otherwise can we interpret the statements, "To shew unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass," and "The time is at hand" (v. 3)?

We should note carefully the preliminary promise of blessing in that 3rd verse upon those who read, hear, and keep in mind what is written in this book, and then decide whether the words "shortly come to pass" had their complete and manifest fulfillment soon after the prophecy was written; because, if this was the case, what need has there been for all this long-drawn-out controversy during the many centuries since then? The only explanation of this which the writer can think of is that the time had not yet arrived for a clear understanding of the symbolic language.

Some blame has been attached to the suggestion that world events of the past twenty-two years, admittedly in "the time of the end," have fitted better to the symbolic utterances of Revelation than any group or series of oc-

Among the students of prophecy in the Church of God there are some who place the book of Revelation largely in the past and others (who are probably in the majority) who believe that its predictions are entirely of future fulfillment. Mr. Young attempts in this article to strike a "golden mean" between the two extremes. Though we may not agree with his interpretations, the author provides us with some interesting and timely suggestions for further study.

currences in all past history, on the ground that this is visionary; but why will not this charge apply equally well to the other attempted interpretations? Is it not, therefore, the part of wisdom to compare them with one another and select the one which presents the least difficulties in view of current events? Anything visionary is not thereby necessarily untrue.

As one example of the greater fitness of the view here advocated to present conditions, take the language of Revelation 16:14-17 and look for a better fulfillment in all history of what is there depicted than what we are witnessing today and than what is evidently impending. Was there ever before such an extensive mobilization of vast armies, so well equipped with new and more destructive implements of warfare than have previously existed? Do not even secular writers recognize the Bible word "Armageddon" (v. 16) as applying better than anything else to what is now feared to be inevitable? And how perfectly this also accords with chapter 7:1-3, where we find four great Powers endeavoring to restrain the winds of universal warfare, even while preparing for it, resulting in the fact that by God's overruling wisdom their action may have a sealing effect upon His watching and waiting servants by enlightening their minds concerning the prophetic situation. Is it not easy to identify those four Powers at this time?

Where in all history can we find a place where not only universal warfare is seen to be impending, but in which the principal feature of such a conflict will be distinctly and definitely aerial, or, as intimated in verse 17, "upon the air"? Was there ever a time until now when the prediction concerning the outpouring of the seventh vial "upon the air" was so perfectly in evidence?

And can we obtain a more complete fulfillment of 1 Thessalonians 5:1-5 than what we are witnessing at present, a combination of "peace and safety" talk or negotiation, with the possibility of the momentary outbreak of destructive warfare? Mere wordy safeguards are in process of erection by both statesmen and widespread peace organizations, but their efforts to reconstruct broken-down peace pacts or create new ones are manifestly futile because they are building above a magazine of explosives.

Returning for a moment to Revelation 16:15, where else in the Bible can we find such a clear intimation that our Lord's coming "as a thief" upon the unwatchful will occur between a vast preparation for war and its actual outbreak? The position of that 15th verse is undoubtedly God's arrangement, in this inspired book, to give His watching and waiting people a perfect clue to the prophetic "hour" during which Christ may come at any moment. If not, why insert that statement in this place, just where unbelief might say it does not belong?

Many more examples might be furnished, showing that present conditions and circumstances apply perfectly to every prophecy of Scripture, both figurative and literal, concerning the situation which immediately precedes the advent of Christ, but the above-mentioned instances are sufficient to establish the fact that the book of Revelation with its remarkable symbolic statements possesses a closer relation and application to the "time of the end," in which we are now living, than it has to anything in past history or to speculative programs concerning future events which would require years to bring their accomplishment.

The writer is willing, and even eager, to surrender any view he may hold for one which presents fewer difficulties of explanation, but thus far he has failed to find such in the historic or futurist interpretations. The fact that those are older and have many able advocates and defenders does not prove them to be correct, any more than are the doctrines concerning the deathless nature of man and salvation by our own good conduct, which also have many learned and devout supporters. The best test of any doctrine or teaching is, Will it harmonize with the whole of Scripture? because an interpretation of one part of the Bible which brings it into conflict with various other parts cannot be the true one.

To the present writer the entire book of Revelation resembles the keyboard of an organ or a piano, from which either discords or harmonies can be produced; but to secure the latter much study and practice are required. And even the Holy Spirit cannot teach us unless we keep humble and teachable.

THE GOSPEL

By D. G. Harvey

"Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints; and for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the mystery of the gospel."—Ephesians 6:18, 19.

AN OLD colored evangelist, as the story goes, had been holding a long series of meetings in the South, and like most ministers, was at a loss just what subject to speak upon next. So on Sunday morning he offered to speak in the evening on any subject requested. As he stepped to the desk for the evening service he said, "Brothers and sisters, has any of you-all got a subject in mind fo' dis evenin'?" A young wag in the back of the church, thinking to stump the old deacon, called out, "Preach on pills." The old fellow rubbed his head a second, then said, "Brethren, dat's a big subject. Dey is lots of pills, big pills, little pills, sweet pills, bitter pills, white pills, blue pills, green pills, yellow pills, but de bes' pill dey is, is de gos-pill." He then launched into a gospel sermon.

So often we are mistaken in what a gospel sermon means. Many think the word "gospel" means the Bible, so that if a mere text is read, they have listened to a gospel sermon.

It is not needed that we common people should understand just how the word "gospel" was derived from the Anglo-Saxon godspel, which meant "good tidings." No, we need but to turn to Luke 8:1 and read, "And it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the twelve were with him." Compare the above with Matthew 9:35, "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people."

There are two points we wish to emphasize here: first, that the "gospel of the kingdom" in Matthew is identical with the "glad tidings of the kingdom" in Luke's record; second, that the "healing of every sickness and every disease" was the evidence of kingdom conditions Jesus was "shewing" in Luke's account. For Isaiah's prophecy of the kingdom of God says—"And the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick" (Isa. 33:24).

Then if this be true, a gospel sermon would be one showing the good news of the kingdom of God. It was this good news that Jesus taught His disciples. It was this same good news His disciples were sent forth to preach, when He said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15). It was this good news that Jesus said must be preached. "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14).

Let us briefly sum up this good news by pointing out just a few citations from the Galatian letter.

"Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed. So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham" (Gal. 3:7-9). That was good news to Abraham, an old man without a child. God had said—"And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 12:2, 3). And Abraham believed this good news. "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded that, what he had promised, he was able also to perform" (Rom. 4: 20, 21).

It remained for Paul to explain how this good news would affect us. Listen—"Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ. . . . For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:16, 26, 27, 29).

Good news. Yes. It is great news to know that when Jesus, the Son of God, returns to the earth soon, we, if faithful, will have a part in that great work of blessing the nations. Do I believe Jesus will come? How could I doubt it, when the last forty days, after He rose from the dead, yes, the last forty days on the earth, were spent speaking of this very event? "Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandment unto the apostles whom he had chosen: to whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God" (Acts 1:2, 3).

How the Girls Kept Christmas

By Mary A. Gesin

(A short play of one act, designed to be given prior to Christmas. Scene in living room of Suzanne's home, gifts and wrappings strewn about; time, the present.)

Enter Suzanne, muttering to herself; finds Betty Lou, her younger sister, awaiting her arrival.

Suzanne: "Oh, dear! I don't think I was ever so tired in my life! When did you get back, Betts?"

Betty Lou: "Just a few minutes ago. There's such a jam down town I couldn't get a thing I wanted. So I thought I might as well come home."

Suzanne: "Don't I know it! I've been trying to find two identical gifts that would be suitable for Judy and Joyce, and do you think I could? I wish Christmas never came at all!"

Betty Lou: "I wish Christmas didn't mean exchanging gifts. I'm so tired of trying to remember what each of the girls gave me last year and matching them up with my gifts this year."

Suzanne: "So am I. There's Marj, she's sure to give me something much grander than this little inexpensive-looking bottle of perfume, though I did give a dollar for it. Wish now I'd chosen something that would show up more."

Betty Lou: "And Patty! she always thinks of the most unusual gifts. All I have for her is this little comb. It looks nice in my hair, doesn't it, Sis? Maybe I'll keep it for myself and get her something else."

Suzanne: "I saw the girls down town and they said they'd come over awhile. So we'd better get these gifts wrapped and out of the way."

Betty Lou: "I'm so weary I can't wrap another package. Christmas! Season of good cheer! Season of bad temper, I'd say."

Suzanne (hearing knock on door): "There they come now, Betts, and look at this room!" (Suzanne opens door and Judy and Joyce enter.)

Suzanne: "Come in, girls, but don't get tangled up in all this paper and cord."

Judy: "Oh, we're used to this. We've just wormed our way through the stores, and nothing can scare us."

Joyce: "Do or die, that's our motto, and we almost did both. I didn't get Patty's gift yet. What shall I get her, Betty Lou? Can't you give me an idea?"

Betty Lou: "It's more than I can do to think up ideas for my own gifts without lending you my brains. Use your own if you have any."

Judy: "Girls, I counted up my gifts this morning, and I have only twenty-four. I ought to have twenty-five, and for the life of me I can't think who it is I've forgotten."

Suzanne: "Well, if you can't think I guess it isn't important. Forget it!"

Judy: "I have it; it's Miss Markel! And here I am just about broke. You know last year she gave me that lovely pair of clips for my new formal. What can I get her? Something from the dime store? I'd feel grand!" (Joyce and Betty Lou are seated together, while Judy and Suzanne talk on opposite side of room. Marjorie and Patty burst unceremoniously into the room.)

Marjorie: "If I see another package all tied up in gift wrappings I'll scream."

Patty: "And then look at this room!"

Suzanne: "Sit down, girls, if you can find a spot. All finished shopping, Marj?"

Marjorie: "Finished, did you say? Yes, I'm finished, if that's what you mean."

Suzanne: "How about our quiet little Patty; is she all done up in tissue and tinsel, too?"

Patty: "Oh, girls, I was looking forward to Christmas with so much joy this year, and here I am, counting packages and pennies to make them come out even, just the way I did last year."

Marjorie: "Instead of Peace on Earth, Christmas seems to bring just the opposite. Hurry and bustle, trying to keep up with the Joneses in gifts, or giving them one better."

(Strains of a violin, playing, "Silent Night," are heard in the distance. The girls pause in their conversation.)

Betty Lou: "Listen girls, what's that?"

Patty: "It's the girls singing carols outside."

(The music grows louder. At close of "Silent Night," girls, accompanied by violin, sing, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," verses 1 and 2. Suzanne opens door and invites them in at close of song. They sing next, "Keep Christ's Name in Christmas," verses 1 and 2. Singers leave at end of song. Girls look thoughtful.)

Suzanne: "Girls, we've lost the true spirit of Christmas, haven't we?"

Patty: "Yes, Suzanne, we have forgotten that the Babe of Bethlehem had anything to do with the day."

Judy: "It's been the spirit of give so you will get with most of us, I guess."

Joyce: "I, for one, am ashamed of myself. I forgot all about that beautiful story of the angels singing at Jesus' birth."

Betty Lou: "Just the mention of it seems to bring rest and peace, doesn't it?"

Marjorie: "Yes, and the thought of that lovely hymn, 'Silent Night,' is like a blessing coming down from the sky, something like the falling snow covering up the ugly spots in this old world."

Suzanne: "I tell you what, girls, let's chuck this whole business of getting and giving. Take off all the cards from our packages and get together tomorrow to see if we haven't forgotten some of those who aren't able to give gifts this year."

Other girls all together: "All right, let's do it."

All join hands and repeat in unison verse 3 of "Keep Christ's Name in Christmas." If the song, "Keep Christ's Name in Christmas," is not available, another Christmas song may be used. The last verse, to be recited in unison at end of play, is given here:

"Peace, good will, and glory,
Friendly hands stretched wide,
Light and song and beauty
Should mark our Christmastide;
Grateful hearts receiving,
God's gift, His choicest gem,
Thus we'll keep the birthday
Of the Child of Bethlehem."

"Having a Desire to Depart"

Philippians 1:23

By Henry Dauterich

FROM the context of our selected text we learn that the Apostle was a prisoner and in bonds for the gospel. While in confinement he was anxious about the saints at Philippi and wished them to know that even his imprisonment had fallen out rather unto the progress of the gospel; hence he wrote to encourage them, saying that "many of the brethren in the Lord" were bolder to speak the word without fear, being greatly encouraged through the firmness of the Apostle, who cheerfully endured imprisonment. The Apostle earnestly desired to magnify the Lord in his own person or body, whether it be in life, or by death. "For Christ," said he, "is my life, and death is my gain. But since to live in the flesh" (remain alive), "serveth unto more fruit, I therefore know not which I shall choose." (Translated from German Version.) The Apostle was perfectly willing and ready to die for the defense and confirmation of the gospel; but he was not certain whether by his death the Lord would be more magnified than should he continue to abide with the brethren for their furtherance and joy of faith; hence he said, "I am in a strait betwixt (the) two." He did not know which to choose, that is, to die as a martyr or to continue in the flesh and thus magnify his office as the Gentile Apostle, which would serve unto more fruit; but of one thing he was certain and that was, should he abide with them, it would be of great service and benefit to them, which, said he, was more needful for them. "And having this confidence," he said, "I know that I shall abide with you for your furtherance and joy of faith."

Now as to the text, "Having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better." What did the Apostle mean? It would be inconsistent with the general tenor of the Scriptures to interpret the desire of the Apostle to signify that death is a passport into the presence of Christ; because he taught that "death" is a sleep—an unconscious sleep (1 Thess. 4:13-18). We might here point out the case of Lazarus, who had died, and the Master said, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth, but I go that I may awake him out of sleep. Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well. Howbeit Jesus spake of his death." The Apostle used the term "asleep" in the same sense in 1 Thessalonians 4:13 and 1 Corinthians 15:18.

The Apostle Paul believed in a literal resurrection from the dead, and taught that no one shall precede the other in glory, not even the saints who shall abide the coming or presence of the Lord; even they shall in no wise precede them that are fallen asleep, or are dead. But all the saints shall together, simultaneously, be caught up in the clouds, to meet their descending Lord, at His coming (1 Thess. 4:15-18).

Thus it is evident that the Apostle intended to convey the idea that he preferred death to continual imprisonment, being perfectly willing rather to die and thus seal his testimony with his blood, knowing that he would then be at rest ("asleep in Jesus") and next in order would be the resurrection, when he would be with Christ, alive at His coming, and not any sooner. Compare 1 Thessalonians 4:14 with Colossians 3:4 and Philipians 3:20, 21. That the Apostle did not believe that death would usher him into the presence of Christ is very plain when he witnessed the good confession of his faith, when the time of his departure (decease) was at hand. "For I am now ready to be offered," said he, "and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Tim. 4:6-8).

In conclusion, let us remember that some things which the Apostle Paul wrote were hard to understand (2 Peter 3:15, 16), and it is, therefore, necessary to regard the general tenor of the Epistles written by him in order to get a correct understanding of the difficult passages.

SCIENTIFIC ACCURACIES IN THE BIBLE

(Continued from Page Five)

spoken, indeed, when Matthew 24:27, 40 and Luke 17:34 are studied. A round earth which revolves produces the phenomenon of day and night in different places at the same instant. The man in the eastern hemisphere may suffer sunstroke while the man in the western hemisphere is resting in bed. Yet they work in the field at the same hour of day. When God speaks, His word is a statement of fact to whatever branch of knowledge it refers.

Ruskin says that "blue, purple, and scarlet, with white and gold" are the "fixed base of all coloring with the workmen of all ages." And when Moses received instructions for Aaron's priestly robe, which was to be fashioned for "glory and for beauty," God selected "gold, and blue, and purple, and fine linen (white)."

With this comment on biblical reference to coloring we may close. It is reasonable to suppose that Jehovah wanted His high priest's robes to be of certain colors for the definite reason that they typified something of divine attributes. Gold perhaps was to signify the infinite value of His Son; blue as a symbol of His heavenly home; purple to indicate His kingship; scarlet for His precious blood; and white to signify His spotless purity "as of a lamb without blemish."

Proceeding on just principles of analysis and comparison, we might multiply instances of scientific accuracies in the Bible in the fields, as we have shown, of botany, biology, astronomy, meteorology, physics, geology, and art. "God is great; and we know him not; the number of his years is unsearchable."—Alva J. McLain; condensed by Religious Digest from The King's Business.

—0—

THE TABERNACLE IN THE WILDERNESS

(Continued from Page Three)

great high priest has passed into the heavens, the most holy place, and there, behind the blue veil that hides the glory of the eternal God, He has entered the "greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands," not with the blood of goats and of calves, but with His own blood, having obtained eternal redemption for us. There He remains within the veil, appearing in the presence of God for us.

To the Pharisees of old He said, "Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me. Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come" (John 7:33, 34). But again He said to His disciples, "Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you" (John 13:33). The faith and hope of the people of God reach to "that within the veil" whither Jesus our forerunner has for us entered.

When the Jewish nation had rejected Christ as their Savior and Mediator, then that tabernacle was no longer the sanctuary of God and the special dwelling place of His glory; and when the great crime of His rejection was consummated on Calvary, as the Savior said, "It is finished," the veil of the temple, some thirty feet in height, was rent in twain, not from the bottom as by human hands, but "from top to bottom," as though the divine hand had rent it and torn it away. The lesson of this rent veil is that Israel were no longer to worship at that shrine or look for atonement to the Jewish high priest, but "by a new and living way, . . . through the veil, that is to say, his flesh," were to draw nigh to God, and find peace through Jesus Christ.

The earthly tabernacle is gone. The world-like sanctuary is no more. The brazen altar of sacrifice has passed away, for Christ has offered one sacrifice for sins forever, and has sat down at the right hand of God. Behind the blue veil, and in the presence of an unseen God, there is One who is bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, who was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. And as the Israel of old waited until the high priest who passed within the veil should array himself in garments of beauty and glory and come out to bless the waiting people of God, so today the church of Christ is looking upward toward that dimming veil, and calmly awaiting the day when Christ who is our life shall appear, and we shall also appear with Him in glory; for as it is appointed unto men once to die but after this the judgment, so Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for Him shall He appear the second time without sin unto salvation (Heb. 9:27, 28).

“Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind.”

MY LAST SERMON

(Continued from Front Page)

foe. He makes you lazy—and it feels good to be lazy. However, lukewarm service is not acceptable to God (Rev. 3: 15, 16). Being “not redeemed with corruptible things, but with the precious blood of Christ,” Paul beseeches you to “present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.” Let the careless hear, “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself.” Such love will rouse a slumbering faith to action. An I-don’t-care spirit dries the bones. Indifference never feels the throb of victory. “Be fervent in spirit.” “Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life.”

Poor or no vision is a barbed wire entanglement that retards Christian progress. The vision must be clear for progress. What is your goal, Christian? What certain works do you plan to finish before you die? Are you dedicated to your own spiritual growth and to the making of a better church of God? What are you leaving for your children and much-loved grandchildren? They deserve and need your best. Don’t waste your life! Pray more, judge others less, forgive more quickly, cleanse your life of any offenses. Make your religion your most important business. Christ did, and He started at twelve years of age.

What vision is yours of the church after you are gone? Help it while you have that privilege. Plant a tree, prepare a flower garden, or set out a hedge. Make a walk. Enlarge and beautify your church building and grounds. Redecorate the interior. Put modern equipment in the Sunday school rooms. Is the old furnace worn out? Stained glass windows encourage the spirit of prayer and quiet, heartfelt worship. Does your church have a little room just for the pastor where he can take a friend for personal consultation? Will your children be edified by the forty-year-old chairs? True, it is correct to pray even in a private closet, or out in a howling wilderness, but the place of public worship must have an attraction for the world. Beauty is not devilish! Remember Solomon’s temple. The gospel is more often heard and accepted when delivered in a frame of beauty and warmth than when shouted from a stump.

Christian, look about you! Dedicate yourself to the progress of Christianity. “Occupy.” Build your life into the life of the church of the living God, and both you and the church shall have a more abundant life. Will the church have a place in your will?

“Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.” “Stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught,” “and having done all, to stand.” “God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.” “Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you.” “Ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally.” “Covet earnestly the best gifts.” “Desire spiritual gifts.” Whether minister or layman, “whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.” Be strong. Be progressive.

Mary, the mother of Jesus, gave a commandment concerning her son. The secret of Christian progress is in the obedience of her command, “Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.”

What does the Christ say to you?

A LITANY OF JOY

For the gift of life in this wonderful world; for days of health, and for nights of quiet sleep,

We thank Thee, our Father.

For the beautiful face of the year; for the glory of the seasons and the sure and bountiful harvests,

We thank Thee, our Father.

For our home and our friends, for the humble, the faithful, and the loving people of the world,

We thank Thee, our Father.

For the faith that makes us faithful, for Thy gifts to every child of earth, for the privilege of sharing and helping others to obtain their share of Thy bounty,

We thank Thee, our Father.

For the good at the heart of the world, for the faith in the eternal Goodness, for all the gladness of life, and for the heart’s assurance of Life Eternal in Jesus Christ, our Lord,

We thank Thee, our Father.

—Anonymous.

An old Chinese proverb says: “He that standeth on a pinnacle hath no place to step but off.”

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Attention!

The Minnesota Bereans are having their quarterly conference at Eden Valley November 28 and 29. "The Gospel Foundations" is the theme that is to be carried out by classes and sermons throughout the conference.

The Eden Valley Bereans invite all who can to attend.
Marjorie Ruhn, Minnesota Berean Cor. Sec.

Concerning the New Berean Books

The publishing committee is very glad to state that the new Berean books probably will be ready for distribution within a few weeks.

We suggest, therefore, that societies or individuals wanting these books write to the National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois, and state how many they will need.

In the meantime, watch this page for further announcements regarding the books, such as the price and time of completion of the books.

Harry Goekler, Arlen Marsh, Lucille LeCrone, Publishing Committee.

St. Cloud, Minnesota

At 6:30 Sunday evening, November 8, fifteen of the intermediate young people of the St. Cloud church met together and organized a Berean society. All but one or two of these young people are new in Berean work. We are looking forward with great hopes for the future. The following officers were chosen to lead the society:

President, Dorothy Stone, 1026 30th Ave. N.; vice president, June Hopkins, 321 28th Ave. N.; secretary-treasurer, Joy Hopkins, 321 28th Ave. N.

Will other Bereans please write to any of these officers and tell what your society is doing and thus encourage them in the work.

C. E. Lapp, Pastor.

He Careth for You

"The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep." "I am the good shepherd. . . I lay down my life for the sheep. . . No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself." In these words of Jesus in John 10 the cause of the death of Christ is seen to be His care of His followers.

Many Bible students now recognize that the direct cause of the death of Christ could not have been crucifixion, for no mortal injury had been inflicted. Time in which to suffer is the essence of death on the cross. Victims have been known to remain alive in agony for several days. Our Savior's mortal body was a perfect specimen of mankind. It took something even more than that hellish six-hour period of physical agony and humiliation to kill Him.

Medical men point out that He appears to have fallen victim to a very rare malady. They point to the mental agony in the Garden of Gethsemane during which "his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground" (Luke 22:44). What intense mental anguish must have wracked that precious heart for it to force blood from the very pores of His skin! And finally, after the agony of the cross was over, when the soldier pierced His lifeless side, out came blood and water (John 19:34). What had happened to the heart to cause this mixture? His heart had ruptured! Literally, He died of a broken heart.

But why should His heart be broken? Does one's heart break for what one's enemies do to him or for the wounds of a friend? Truly, the wounds of a friend are worse. What had Jesus' friends done to Him? Judas Iscariot had sold Him for thirty pieces of silver! The multitude among whom He had gone preaching the glad tidings and healing their sicknesses had turned against Him! His disciples forsook Him and fled! A faithful handful of women and one disciple were all that came to Him in His hour of need. Why shouldn't His heart be broken? God must have strengthened Him or He couldn't have endured so long as He did.

But was it the humiliation they heaped upon Him that broke His heart? No, He cared for His friends more than for Himself. He was thinking of what was going on inside those He loved. It broke His heart that His friends had gone wrong. He cared for them so much!

We are His friends if we do whatsoever He commands us (John 15:14). He careth for you!

Jesus' Joy

Some call Jesus "The Man of Sorrows." They say He never smiled. True, there is no record of Him smiling, but does it stand to reason that a man attractive to the chief men of His day, One often invited to be a guest of publicans, would be a Jeremiah? Where would His long face be when He turned water into wine for an anxious hostess at a wedding feast? Where was His sadness as He played with the little children and blessed them? He must have smiled. Therefore, He couldn't be entirely a man of sorrows.

In Hebrews 12:2 it mentions the joy set before Him. Even on the cross, His heart broken, there was an abiding joy that stayed with Him, that couldn't be removed from that bleeding heart. It was a joy of faith in God. A man of faith in God can never be a man of sorrows.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

AT THE END OF A LONG LIFE

OUR beloved missionary had come at last to the end of his life. He sat thinking of some of the things that had happened since that day more than thirty years before; that day when he had seen a vision of the resurrected Christ beside the dusty road that led to Damascus.

He could still hear the echo of the voice that spoke to him. The words were engraved on his memory: "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

Ever since, Paul had followed the directions which told him to go into the city and it would be told him what he should do. A life of wealth and ease was not what lay before him, but "great things he must suffer" for the name of Christ, whom he was going to serve.

He began at once to preach about Jesus, showing all who would listen that He was the promised Christ, the Messiah, the Son of God. And though he might have gained great fame and wealth for himself because of his fine education in the law, he gave up all thought of himself to serve God truly and faithfully.

The great Apostle had no family of his own, having devoted his life fully to others. But there was one whom he loved as he would have his own son. Timothy was his name.

What more natural thing, boys and girls, but that Paul, thinking how close he was to the time when he could no longer preach, should write some letters to this young man he loved so well? He wondered if he had taught him all the things that it was important he should know.

These letters of Paul's written to Timothy, are preserved for us through all these hundreds of years. We find them in our New Testament, and we call them 1 and 2 Timothy, and they are the fifteenth and sixteenth books.

Old as these letters are, they are full of good things for us also to know. And some of these wise words from Paul's pen are particularly good. It would be nice for you to read all of these two letters. The first letter, or book as we call it, has 113 verses. Can you figure up how many verses the second letter has?

Now let us pick out some of the good things written by our missionary to Timothy in his second letter. He says he remembers Timothy's faith, the same faith that his mother and his grandmother had and that they had taught to him. See if you can find that.

The next one our eyes fall upon is the desire Paul has that Timothy should be a certain kind of workman. I'll tell you this much—it's in the 2nd chapter.

If you have brothers and sisters you might make a game of this, seeing who can find the places first. You might have Mother or Father reading the directions to you. Then see who can find the most.

Now see if you can find the place where Paul refers to Timothy's childhood. There are two verses that go with this. One verse tells Timothy to keep on in the way he had been taught. The other tells him what will happen if he does. We know what two women were his teachers.

All right, now if you have found them, look for the verse that tells Timothy what Paul was expecting as a reward for the life of service he had given to God. He held out this same hope to Timothy and to all others as well who serve God, even to you and me. Isn't that fine?

This is a wonderful verse, and I hope all of you can find it. It tells so many things in just a few short words. It even tells when Paul could expect his reward. How many of you know when that was?

Is it possible Paul expected to receive his reward immediately after death? Oh, no, you say; on the day of the appearing of the Lord. And we know that the Lord has not yet come the second time.

We have come to the end of our study of the life of Paul. Not one lesson has been dull or too difficult. A little study at home through the week makes the lesson so much more interesting for both yourself and your teacher.

Pick out a convenient time, a regular time each week, and ask some one in the family to study with you. You will be surprised how much more entertaining it is to study with some one. Each of you will get different ideas on the lesson to bring to your class on Sunday.

We picture Paul in prison, an old and weary man, knowing that he is soon to die for Jesus. Is he unhappy or discouraged for all of that? We know he couldn't have been, writing the wonderful words of hope and faith to his "son," Timothy. Those words have cheered many, many readers from that day to this and will continue to cheer until the glad day for which we all wait. Then if we are faithful, we will meet our beloved missionary, Paul, face to face.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CORVALLIS, OREGON

Sr. Anna Cady, 336 N. 12th St., is resting at her home after spending ten days in a local hospital where she was taken after a fall which resulted in a broken arm and cracked shoulder bone. She will celebrate her eightieth birthday soon.

Sr. Minnie Rogers and her son-in-law and daughter, Bro. and Sr. Ray Smith, and Burdena Smith spent Sunday afternoon with Sr. Rogers' son and daughter-in-law who were stopping here. The Rogers whose home is in California were to purchase livestock in this locality.

Sr. Sarah E. Smith, who has made her home in Portland for a number of years, has moved to DeLake, Ore. She has had as a recent guest, Mrs. M. C. Joseph of Salina, Kan., a sister.

Sr. Minnie Kerr returned recently from a trip to California.

Gladys Barber, Sec., N. W. Conf.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

Mr. and Mrs. Durwood York are pleased to announce the birth of a son, Clifford Roger, on October 29.

We were more than glad to have Bro. Austin with us over the week-end. He spoke to a full house both Sunday morning and evening. Sunday afternoon he officiated at the baptismal service for Mrs. Wilma Matson of Rockford, Ill., and Miss Ruth Simpson.

Bro. Austin remained to preside at the wedding of Mr. George Kilmer and Miss Freda Merrifield, on November 17.

Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secretary.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Ontario	$10.00
Harold Hardesty	9.00
Mr. & Mrs. G. E. Marsh (indebtedness fund)	25.00
Enos Elton	8.00
Eden Valley, Minn., Church (ind. fund)	3.19
William H. Moore	12.00
Elizabeth Montross	10.00
Frank C. Montross	20.00
Emma W. Scott	1.00
George C. & K. A. Coats	16.00
Ruchie Alexander (ind. fund)	5.00

ST LOUIS, MISSOURI

Two weeks ago we met at Mrs. Littleton's home to hear a lecture given by a converted Jew who is working with Pastor Dugger. He said there are a number of Jews in Palestine awaiting a business of their own so they may be baptized, as they are not allowed to work if they are baptized unless they have their own business. He has obtained a printing press and machinery to make some kind of cereal out of grain that is raised in Palestine and is shipping some to those people. He expects to pass through St. Louis as he starts to Palestine, which will be around the first of the year, and to show us pictures of various places over there.

Mrs. Claude Graham.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Suppose you have a friend whom you regard highly and in whose salvation you are deeply interested. Your friend is a young man of excellent character, honest, industrious, and respected by all who know him, but he is entirely indifferent to religion. His family background, while not irreligious, was not religious. He is not given to reading, either of books or newspapers, and much less the Bible. You know you cannot induce him to study for himself, to read tracts or other religious literature. It is a bore for him to attend church or Sunday school. He is interested in mechanics and enjoys being out-of-doors. While kind in his attitude toward all, he is very decided in his refusal to talk on religious subjects.

What would you do under such circumstances? Would you forego all further efforts to bring him to faith and obedience to Christ, or would you try new and different methods to arouse his interest in spiritual things?

To the one submitting the most scriptural and logical answer to this question before January 1, 1937, The Restitution Herald will give a copy of Goodspeed's New Testament, which is one of the best of the modern language versions yet produced.

Your answer need not be a literary masterpiece in order to compete successfully in this contest. It is a clear and biblical answer to the question we desire rather than a polished piece of literature. So tell us in your own words what you would do under the circumstances suggested and we, if it should be thought advisable, will condense, revise, and prepare for publication the solution at which you arrive, submitting our edited work to you for your approval before it appears in the paper.

A committee of three competent judges will be selected to pass on the answers sent in, and their decision will be final.

ANOTHER TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTION

Here is another inscription to add to your collection. (See article entitled "Gravestones" in our issue of Dec. 31, 1935.)

"Tombstone inscriptions are sometimes curious," remarks the Religious Digest. "Surely there are few more extraordinary than the one placed on the monument to an old Indian fighter. The epitaph reads:

"To Lem S. Frame, who during his life shot 89 Indians whom the Lord delivered into his hands, and who was looking forward to making up his hundred before the end of the year when he fell asleep in Jesus at his house at Hawk's Ferry, March 27, 1843."

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

Evangelist . . . F. L. Austin
Song Leader . . . J. W. McLain

Bros. Harvey Krogh and McLain and their wives spent November 14, 15, and 16 at Cable, near Sherrard, Ill. Bro. Krogh spoke Saturday evening and Sunday morning. The writer spoke in the evening, Sunday. We had a very pleasant visit with Mrs. Clara VeNard and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Unterkircher. They are both members of the Ripley church. They are working faithfully in the Cable Community Church. Because of their foundation work and the need of pastoral work there, there is a unanimous request for our people to take hold of the work there and provide a speaker.

On the way to Sherrard, we stopped at Bro. Jesse Pestles' and enjoyed a good visit with them. They receive mail at Good Hope, Ill.

November 17 was spent in Macomb, Ill. Those visited were: William C. McGraw, Mrs. Mae Mercer, S. T. Kee. There is a desire on the part of these and their sons and daughters to renew their worship together. For Friday, Nov. 20, a meeting is advertised in the Moose Hall to organize a Berean study class. It is thought there are about ten families who are interested. A group from Ripley plan to meet with them on that evening to encourage their effort. There is an immediate need for a meeting of an evangelistic nature here. There are some who have been waiting for such an event in order to be baptized.

Casey, Ill., protracted meetings start Sunday, Nov. 22.

The meetings at Eldorado closed Sunday evening, Nov. 8. There were no additions, but there are several who are studying seriously for baptism. The predominant tone of thought through the latter part of the meeting was the consideration of all pulling together to obtain a pastor and to surge forward in the work of Christ. We feel sure that God will bless a united effort along those lines, and feel the Eldorado church will appreciate your prayers for their success. We found very much appreciation among the brethren for the patient pastoral work of Bro. C. E. Lapp, who worked among them one week out of each month for several years.

Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh and the writer and family spent the day of November 12 in calling on Ripley church members who are at a distance that makes regular church attendance hard. In the course of our calling we came upon several members of the old Camden Church who have not had speaking for several years and who have neglected to place membership in the next closest church. There are ten or more families of our faith living very near Camden. A portion of these hold membership in the Ripley church. It is hoped that a meeting can be arranged in or near Camden in the near future.

Let's all work and pull together for a State-wide revival and a pastor for every group. Your prayers will help.

J. W. McLain.

Additional copies of Mrs. Mary A. Gesin's play, "How the Girls Kept Christmas," may be secured from the National Bible Institution at 5 cents each or 50 cents a dozen, post-paid.

THE STUDENT'S NOTEBOOK

Baptism in One Name. Dean Stanley of Westminster (that prince of apologists), has his to say in his "Christian Institutions":

"In the early ages it was Baptism which was [THE special sacrament (sacramentum), the oath, the pledge in which, as the soldiers enlisting in the Roman army swore a great oath on the sacred eagles of allegiance to the Emperor, so converts bound themselves by a great oath to follow their divine Commander wherever He led them. And this was further imposed upon them by the name in which they were baptized. It was, if not always, yet whenever we hear of its use in the Acts of the Apostles, in the name of the Lord Jesus. . . . The form of the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, though found in early times was not universal. Cyprian first and Pope Nicholas afterwards acknowledged the validity of Baptism 'in the name of the Lord Jesus.' (See Dr. Smith's Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, Vol. I, page 162.) Doubtless the more comprehensive form in which Baptism is now everywhere (?) administered in the threefold name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, soon superseded the simpler form of that in the name of the Lord Jesus only."

A recent letter from Bro. S. J. Lindsay, Tempe, Ariz., closes characteristically with the remark: "We are well, weather cool, fishin' good!" We are glad that Bro. Lindsay's "bobber is bobbin'" to his satisfaction.

"Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might."—Eph. 6:10.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

In case you've ever wondered how the national magazines keep themselves so free from typographical errors, let it be said that The Saturday Evening Post, for example, is proof-read seven times after its manuscript is set in type. The Restitution Herald is read twice.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "To talk of many things; Of shoes and ships and sealing wax, Of cabbages and kings."

A movement now is afoot among Illinois State women's clubs to sever certain of the cheap magazines (technically known as "pulp") from public newsstands. . . . In magazines, the stuff the women disapprove is salacious; in books, clothed with a grander dialect, it's best-selling literature.

From Arthur Gilbey of Winona, Ontario, comes this clipping from the classified news section of the Hamilton, Ontario, Spectator: "I Found Relief by trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ. He is able to deliver you from mental anguish, physical pain, financial worry, and what have you. All you have to do is trust Him, 'Casting all your care upon him: for he careth for you' (1 Peter 5:7)."

Walter Winchell overheard this, he says, in the Riviera, New York: "It's all over now, He saw her in the daytime." We are reminded of that definition of the modern girl: a vision in the evening; a sight in the morning.

CHRISTMAS CARDS WITH SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Let your Christmas be Christ-centered this year by using only biblical greeting cards. Both these assortments are remarkably varied and of exceptional beauty. Sentiments and Bible verses have been chosen with unusually good taste.

Assortment No. 621 (pictured): $1.00. Purchased individually, the 21 folders in this lovely gift box would cost $1.50. Besides this saving, the box can be used again for containing gifts to others. We offer this particular selection because we believe, after investigation of the market, that no better one exists. The price includes transportation charges.

Assortment No. 612 (not illustrated): 50 cents. There are only 12 folders and envelopes in this box, but their individual retail value is 80 cents. Like the box with Assortment 621, this box can be used as a beautiful container for gifts. The folders are quite as choice as those in the larger selection. Customers west of the Rockies add 5 cents to help cover postage.

The true and largely forgotten significance of Christmas points at the Christ. Help to recall this to your friends with cards based upon the Bible. The texts are not obtrusive, but they do convey a message.

In each assortment are eight different papers and eight different processes. There are two metal seal numbers and several beautifully embossed designs.

NAME _____
ST. & NO. _____
CITY _____
STATE _____
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
REGON, ILLINOIS
(GENTLEMEN: Please send me _____ box(es) of Assortment No. _____ for which I enclose my remittance.)

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

THE ROMANCE OF ARCHAEOLOGY

Originally The Romance of Archaeology was published under the much more enticing title of Magic Spades. We have had so many of these romances, and so many of them have been of a far from romantic caliber, that one wonders why another should be foisted upon a long-suffering public.

The book is the product of two writers: R. V. D. Magoffin, president of the Archaeological Institute of America; and Emily C. Davis, staff writer of Science Service.

The Romance of Archaeology is a volume not so exceptional as to deserve pæans, but exceptional enough to have been a best seller during its Magic Spades days. The writing, thanks, apparently, to the Davis influence, is clear, easily understood, and although no more interesting than that of most such books, packs much material into a very condensed space.

The collaborators have made no effort to include the exceedingly vast field of Oriental research, but have adhered strictly to the dead civilizations which have had their direct pressure on the current Occidental life. The book roams easily through ancient Egypt, the Near East, Greece, the British Isles, the Nordic nations, and the Americas. There is a considerable quantity of illustrations, all photographs.

Emphasis has been placed throughout the book on the sheer excitement—if excitement it seems—of digging into forgotten mounds and ruins of antiquity and revamping the histories of the world. But the book is altogether too objective, too reportorial, to allow the reader to share in the excitement to any great extent. The layman finds it hard to become enthusiastic over a recital of the lares and penates (household gods, to you) found in the dilapidated residence of some ancient Greek.

Considerable attention has been given in the section on the Near East and adjacent lands to the historic narratives recorded in the Bible. Evidence of the Deluge—dated, with the usual scientific reservations, about 5400 B. C.; proof of the accuracy of the description of Paul's experiences on his missionary tours; and observations about Ur of the Chaldees are given a fair treatment.

The Romance of Archaeology is not intended to be exhaustive, nor to be a meticulous work of scholarship that properly documents every statement; but it may be taken as authoritative and as complete as necessary for ordinary use. A broad coverage of the history of the human family from prehistoric eras to the comparatively recent totem pole carvings of Northwest America is included in the book. Reading it provides a sort of Reader's Digest course in the ancient history branch of the liberal arts.

Garden City Publishing Company: $1.59.

THROUGH SCIENCE TO GOD

There will be a good many who will not appreciate the work of Nathan A. Smyth, producer of this piece of speculative philosophy on the physical sciences in their relationship to religion. But the unappreciative will be those who cannot understand, first, the value of learning new opinions and, second, the lack of dogma inherent in any expression of science.

"We can, it would seem, come to a better understanding of our universe by ceasing to attribute it to a man-like Creator and studying the nature and trends of the creative changes that come to pass in the courses of events." Such comprehensions as this form the core of the entire book.

Smyth, of course, accepts evolution as an established fact. On this one point he is essentially dogmatic. But even here, his dogmatism is not insistent, and is used merely as a basis for discussion of his concepts of the universe.

That God has had an almost unlimited number of definitions is certainly true. Smyth finds his objections to the casual interpretation of the Deity on this fact. He feels, and perhaps rightly, that there is altogether too little accuracy attached to the public understanding of the Lord. Through Science to God is his effort to delimit the individual or power which commonly is denominated God.

It is so that he advances what in reality is a modified pantheism. Lord Buddha himself could have produced no more universal an understanding of the Deity. Smyth discards the idea that God may be anthropomorphic, personality in the shape of man, and offers the notion that God is "all the realities that we know and all the actualities that go on behind and beyond them." After which Smyth adds with what seems like a touch of humor, "Then (that is, after accepting his previous definition of God) God at once becomes to us immediately real and yet remains ineffably mysterious." Certainly ineffably mysterious.

The average reader will not be particularly interested in Through Science to God. The book has too much of the philosophical, too much of the speculative, too much of the overtone of difficult language. But the average reader need not be warned, for he would not be inclined to touch the Smyth work anyway. For the man who is willing to take his reading with his thinking, however, Through Science to God will have considerable value. One need not accept all the Smyth conclusions as gospel; but he can accept the Smyth idea that the existence of perpetuated souls is contrary to fact. One may understand that Smyth has an erroneous conception of what the Bible actually tries to teach; but he may also understand that Smyth is right when he insists that we do not know the origin of God.

The Macmillan Company: $2.50.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 1, 1936

NUMBER 9

Will the Old Book Stand?

By H. L. Hastings

THE BIBLE is a book which has been refuted, demolished, overthrown, and exploded more times than any other book you ever heard of. Every little while somebody starts up and upsets this book; and it is like upsetting a solid cube of granite. It is just as big one way as the other; and when you have upset it, it is right side up; and when you overturn it again, it is right side up, still. Every little while somebody blows up the Bible; but when it comes down, it always lights on its feet, and runs faster than ever through the world.

THE MISTAKES OF MOSES

For a book that has been exploded so many times, this book still shows signs of considerable life. I have heard of a man traveling around the country exploding this book, and showing up "the mistakes of Moses," at about two hundred dollars a night. It is easy work to abuse Moses at two hundred dollars a night, especially as Moses is dead, and cannot talk back. It would be worth something after hearing the infidel on "the mistakes of Moses," to hear Moses on "the mistakes of the infidel." When Moses could talk back, he was rather a difficult man to deal with. Pharaoh tried it, and met with poor success. Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, and it is said, found a grave in the Red Sea. Korah, Dathan, and Abiram tried it, and went down so deep that they have not yet got back. But now Moses is dead, and it is easy to abuse him. It does not take a very brave beast to kick a dead lion.

THE BIBLE MAKES THINGS SAFE

Years ago a young infidel was traveling in the West with his uncle, a banker, and they were not a little anxious for their safety when they were forced to stop for a night in a rough wayside cabin. There were two rooms in the house; and when they retired for the night, they agreed that the young man should sit with his pistols and watch until midnight, and then awaken his uncle, who should watch until morning. Presently he peeped through a crack, and saw their host, a rough-looking old man, in his bearskin suit, reach up and take down a Bible; and after reading it awhile, he knelt and began to pray; and then the young infidel began to pull off his coat and get ready for bed. The uncle said, "I thought you were going to sit up and watch." But the young man knew there was no need of sitting up, pistol in hand, to watch all night long in a cabin that was hallowed by the Word of God and consecrated by the voice of prayer. Would a pack of cards, a rum bottle, or a copy of the Age of Reason have thus quieted this young infidel's fears?

THE BIBLE FORETELLS THINGS

The book, to my mind, bears the marks of inspiration in the foresight which it exhibits. This book foretells things. You cannot do that. You cannot tell what will be next year or next week. "The spirits" cannot tell who will be the next president, or governor, or emperor. They may tell a great many things which are past. They may tell you who your grandmother was, and may copy the inscription on your grandfather's gravestone, and may tell things which are written in the family record. They may reveal many things in the past—for the Devil knows about the past—but they cannot foretell the future.

The revelations of prophecy are facts which exhibit the divine omniscience. So long as Babylon is in heaps; so long as Nineveh lies empty, void, and waste; so long as Egypt is the basest of kingdoms; so long as Tyre is a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea; so long as Israel is scattered among all the nations; so long as Jerusalem is trodden under foot of the Gentiles; so long as the great empires of the world march on in their predicted course—just so long we have proof that one Omniscient Mind dictated the predictions of that book, and "prophecy came not in old time by the will of man."

A WONDERFUL AUTHORSHIP

The authorship of this book is wonderful. Here are words written by kings, by emperors, by princes, by poets,
(Please turn to Page Ten)

Abreast of the Times

A New Church in California

"We have no such custom, neither the churches of God."—1 Corinthians 11:16.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—California, which is said to possess "more religions to the square mile than any other State in the world," has become the birthplace and the headquarters of still another religious body. An application was recently made to Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan to incorporate "The International Universal Sign of the Equatorial Triarchy of Truth, Mother Tabernacle of Constructive Applied Spirituality." For convenience in referring to the new sect the initials only will probably be used—T.I.U.S.O. T.E.T.O.T.M.T.O.C.A.S. This name is said to be the longest ever recorded in California.

The purpose of the organization as given by its sponsors is to "spread the gospel of manifested, constructive, controlled spirituality universally, God's self-consciousness, self-acceptance, and manifested constructive brotherhood." Other activities to be carried on by the new body include: the operation of a chain of hotels for the better housing of travelers generally; the maintenance of a licensed employment agency; the establishment and operation of beach, lake, brook, and river resorts; the organization and management of a baseball league; and the conducting of a manufacturing plant where robes for religious purposes will be made.

The head of the church will be known as the "Bishop General Manager." The Rev. H. A. Hilton heads the board of trustees.

Personal pride in high-sounding titles and elaborate sacerdotal garb has led to the establishment of many similar unbiblical and unchristian sects which have a tendency to bring reproach and discredit upon true religion.

Church to Fight Evolutionary School Books

"Let God be true, but every man a liar."—Rom. 3:4.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 25.—Textbooks which teach the theory of evolution in the public schools will come under fire Tuesday at a meeting of Lutheran ministers and laymen and school officials. A delegation, headed by the Rev. Immanuel F. Hodde, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in this city, will demand that certain textbooks used here which discuss the creation of the world by whirling gasses which solidified later into a planet, and also the development of man from the lower forms of life, be taken from the school curriculum. These teachings, according to the delegation, are "diametrically opposed to the scriptural account of creation." The book specifically denounced is Our Wide, Wide World, written by Craig and Baldwin.

In these days of unbiblical teaching in the public schools and colleges the greatest safeguard parents can provide to protect their children against skepticism is a firm grounding in the doctrinal truths of the Bible while they are still small. Such teaching can be implanted in little minds as easily as Mother Goose rhymes or the story of Santa Claus. There are many attractively illustrated inexpensive books that relate the story of creation, of the birth and life of Jesus, and similar primary facts of the Scriptures in a most interesting way.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD will be glad to help you make a selection of books for your children's Christmas gifts.

Hopeless Criminals

"The day of grief and of desperate sorrow."—Isaiah.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 27.—Warden Frank Sain of the Cook County jail revealed yesterday that William Miller, 18, who, with his brother-in-law, Frank Talach, 17, was sentenced Monday to 199 years in the penitentiary for the murder of Martin Mamanskas in a robbery attempt, attempted to commit suicide in his cell a short time ago. Miller tied a handkerchief about his neck and suspended himself from the cell door.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 26.—John Early, 52, paroled from the Joliet penitentiary less than three weeks ago with the usual $10 gift from the State, returned yesterday and pleaded with Warden Joseph Ragen to be taken in again.

"I'll be glad to come back if you'll let me stay," he told the warden. "Life on the outside is too tough for an ex-convict. People just don't want to hire a guy with a record."

Warden Ragen gave the man permission to return to his old prison job on the outside detail and serve four years more.

Few would enter upon a life of crime if they realized in advance the hopelessness of the ex-convict's outlook upon life. O that the "crooked paths" might be made straight for the feet of old and young alike!

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Word Became Flesh

I

By J. Cameron

"IN THE BEGINNING was the Word, and the Word was with God, and Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him: and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:1-3).

This much-expounded passage forms the real introduction to John's Gospel, and we might also say to his three Epistles, especially the first. If a satisfactory explanation of this brief statement of the Apostle can be arrived at, much light will be thrown on his Gospel and letters, as well as on other portions of the sacred Volume.

The key appears to me to be found in the figure of speech known as "personification." This is defined as a "change of things to persons"—giving an inanimate thing the figure, sentiments, and language of a person.

The Holy Spirit operating in the writer of these verses seems to have given here a condensation of ten verses in the book of Proverbs, in which Solomon, also inspired, gives a personification of the wisdom of Jehovah in a bold yet beautiful manner. This passage forms an amplified counterpart of John 1:1-3. The only difference consists in the use of "wisdom" in Proverbs, and the term "the Word" in John's Gospel.

In the first clause of John 1:1—"In the beginning was the Word"—we have a statement which by itself is capable of being accepted as plain testimony in the most strictly literal sense. If we ask the question, "What word was in the beginning?" we have the answer—The word of command. God said, "Let there be light," "Let there be a firmament," "Let the waters be gathered together," "Let the earth bring forth grass," "Let there be lights in the firmament," "Let the waters bring forth abundantly," "Let the earth bring forth the living creatures," etc. (Gen. 1). "God . . . commanded the light to shine out of darkness" (2 Cor. 4:6).

There is no evidence that this word here was either a person or as yet a subject of personification. Being or existence, expressed here by the verb "was," is predicated of inanimate or abstract things—"there was light" (Gen. 1:3). So also in 2 Peter 3:5 and 6—"by the word of God the heavens were of old," "the world that then was," and in 1 John 1:1—"eternal life, which was with the Father."

Logos, rendered "word" in the first chapter of John's Gospel, bears a wider meaning in Greek than "word" does in English. It is defined as signifying ratio, as well as

The following is the first of a series of articles treating of the Logos or Word of God, and is based on the Gospel of John, especially the first chapter. It is believed that this series will be of particular interest and value at this time owing to the fact that the next quarter's International Sunday School Lessons will be taken from this book. The articles first appeared in The Evangelist, published by G. M. Myers, in 1896.

oratio, ratio being the Latin for "reason." Logos is defined by Liddell and Scott as "the power of the mind which is manifested in speech."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Cameron's quotation, while expressing in substance the definition given by Liddell and Scott's Greek-English Lexicon, does not give the exact language of that authority. For the benefit of the critical student we make the following verbatim excerpt from that renowned work: "Logos, the word or outward form by which the inward thought is expressed and made known: also the inward thought or reason itself, so that logos comprehends both the Latin ratio and oratio.")

Logos seems nearly allied to wisdom.

In the New Testament logos is most frequently rendered "word," and with the article, "the word." Sometimes the equivalents, "saying" and "utterance," are used. "Reason," "intent," and "cause" are also rendered for logos. (See Acts 18:14, where "reason" is derived from this Greek word.) This meaning is substantially equivalent to the attribute of wisdom as used in Proverbs, and is doubtless included in the idea intended to be conveyed in John 1:1-3.

The phrase ho logos, although masculine according to Greek grammar, is properly rendered into English in ordinary circumstances by "the word," which is neuter. In cases where the pronoun is used in English it is also neuter, as in Matthew 13:20 and elsewhere.

Ho logos as a term applied to our Lord by John, is alleged by scholars to have had its origin from the Gnostics and not from the Apostle. Professor Burton of Oxford University, in his Inquiry Into the Heresies of the Apostolic Age, says we "may say with truth that . . . the whole learned world at the time of our Savior's death . . . was beset with philosophical systems, in every one of which the term logos held a conspicuous place."

"John was as far as possible from being the first to apply the term logos to Christ. I suppose him to have found it so universally applied that he did not attempt to stop the current of popular language but only kept it in its proper channel, and guarded it from extraneous corruptions," continues Professor Burton. "It is plain that the term (logos) itself was borrowed from the school of Plato; and if it had not been for the Gnostics it would never have been applied to Christ, nor would John have used it in his Gospel." (See

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

PAX OR CHAOS

By D. G. Harvey

"Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord."—2 Peter 1:2.

WE SO OFTEN hear many wonderful sermons on peace, so many beautiful thoughts. But when we ask ourselves the question, "How does he say this peace may be obtained?" there is no answer. In this world torn with strife and confusion, our question is of vast importance. How may I obtain peace? There is but one true source of knowledge, the Bible, God's letter to His children. Listen: "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord" (2 Peter 1:2). How then may this knowledge be obtained? How obtain this peace which Paul says "passeth all understanding" (Phil. 4:7)? Because all the world is torn by strife, for one then to be at peace is strange, almost unbelievable.

If we can picture in our mind a set of stairs, with a broad landing, with seven steps upward and four steps downward, or better still draw such a sketch, and as we continue the study write the name of each step, we may better understand the answer to our question.

Let us start with the landing. Any child will tell you it is much less effort to race downstairs than to climb up; therefore, we will consider first the upward steps.

Let us label our landing "Faith," for faith is the foundation of baptism, and baptism the very beginning of Christian life. We are baptized for the remission of sins, forgiveness of sins in the past. But does baptism end the matter? Can we stand still on our landing of "faith and baptism"? Let us see.

"Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4).

Is it possible for one to stand still and walk? Again: "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us" (Heb. 12:1). Surely Paul implies that action is needed. Not that he means we should literally walk or wander about, nor should we run amuck, but that the activity should be mental, which is but reason, for the mind controls the acts of the body.

"And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind" (Rom. 12:2). "Be renewed in the spirit of your mind" (Eph. 4:23). How then, may the mind be renewed? Let us turn to 2 Peter 1:5-7 and consider these upward steps.

"Add to your faith virtue." "Virtue" here means strength of character, courage, not the false bravery of the boy with a chip on his shoulder, but the brand of courage of the apostles, who would advance over all obstacles. Such courage is needed even today if one will mount the steps to Peace. Let us label our first step as we climb "Courage."

"And to your virtue knowledge." Mere courage without knowledge would be of little or no value. We would have no idea of God's plan or what we as His servants were expected to do. Second step, "Knowledge."

"And to knowledge temperance." Courage and knowledge without the self-control to go on would gain us nothing. Third step, "Self-Control."

"And to temperance patience." Without patience who could overcome the disappointments without becoming bitter? Fourth step, "Patience."

"And to patience godliness." Oh, no, not divine or immortal now, but godlike in purpose, always ready to do God's will as was our Great Example. "Thy will be done," fifth step.

"And to godliness brotherly kindness," that tie that binds all believers into one. "Bear ye one another's burdens" (Gal. 6:2). Sixth step.

"And to brotherly kindness charity," the highest form of Christian love, the love shown by Stephen: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge" (Acts 7:60); yes, the true love of all which will include even the worst enemy. The seventh and last step up should be labeled, "Love your enemies" (Matt. 5:44).

Hear the sum of the whole matter: "For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:8).

The steps are steep and hard for the natural mind to overcome, but when the top is reached, so is the great peace, the hope of future glory. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:16, 17).

But let us notice the failure: "But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins" (2 Peter 1:9). A sad picture of the one who at one time had a portion of faith, or why was he baptized? He lacks courage, knowledge, self-control, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, love. He would not climb up, he could not stand still, so took the easy way.

Let us turn to Romans 1 for a few verses to find a label for our downward steps. "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools" (Rom. 1:21, 22). They had known God, but gave Him no glory or thanks. They had ideas of their own, thought themselves wise, but became fools. "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God" (Psalm 14:1). Our first step down then should be labeled, "Unthankful and Foolish."

Second step: "Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen. For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections" (Rom. 1:25, 26). They changed God's truth to lies. Let this step be "Self-Worship."

Third step: "And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient" (Rom. 1:28). They were not interested in God. They had turned from Him, He could but let them go. And as we read the list of "not convenient" things, we do well to consider where we stand on the stairs as Christians. Space does not permit the full quotation. Read Romans 1:29-31.

But the end of the downward stairs—"Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them" (Rom. 1:32). These on the downward stairs are not of the world, but church members, indifferent, unconcerned, unthankful, selfish, bound only to chaos, "or unorganized state of matter before created in orderly forms." Paul gives us the definition of them: "In flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power" (2 Thess. 1:8, 9).

The Oracles of God

TO THOSE who would witness to their friends, neighbors, and associates about the Lord who redeems from sin, who brings peace in this life and eternal security in the life to come, there are continually brought questions and opinions about the many false prophets who claim to have revelations from God superseding the Bible and adding to the Bible. So many and varied are these questions that at first thought it would seem that a person would have to have at his fingertips a score or more of references to cover these situations or perhaps that all these situations would not be covered by Scripture. But the Divine Mind which dictated His revealed Word knew in the dim æons before Time began that just those situations would arise. And He knew that His children were going to need a weapon, simple and sharp, to combat them. And so once and for all He settled the question of revelation superseding the Bible.

"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" (Matt. 7:15, 16). This passage gives us warning. And as we study these cults, isms, and "off-brand" interpretations of the Word which certain false prophets claim they have received from Heaven, we note that none of these things come from Jews. It may be that an apostate Jew has taught curious things, including refusal of the New Testament, but I have never yet heard of a Jew who claimed to have an especial revelation from Heaven superseding the Bible.

Outstanding among the receivers of these so-called revelations are Mary Baker Glover Eddy, Pastor Russell, Mohammed, Joseph Smith, Swedenborg, Mrs. Besant, the Southcott sisters, Aimee Semple McPherson, and many others. None of them are Jews or pretend to be. They all forgot a most important thing before they went out seeking divine revelation which they never got, but instead satanic revelation. They forgot to look in the Scripture and see what scriptural authority they might have for seeking and receiving such revelation. Let's see now. Can we find a verse or passage that says in the years to come God shall pick out of various corners of the world individuals without any definite imprint on them of being divinely guided to reveal Himself to?

"Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you" (Deut. 4:2). Certainly that says very definitely that there are no more revelations to come. And again, "Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him. Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar" (Prov. 30:5, 6).

"For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints." So we find that, He being a God of peace and not confusion, His mental processes must be orderly. If they were not orderly He would say that when He had finished His revealed Word He would again take up the thread of thought later on and amend His first statement and add something to it.

So the question of the authority of these latter-day prophets is forever settled in Romans 3:1, 2, "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God." Now the term "oracles" means in the Old Testament not only the Word of God in the printed form as we now have it but it means in a larger sense the revealed word which is the shrine or sanctuary of God. And in the Greek use of the word in the New Testament it means the eloquence of the Word. And

(Please turn to Page Nine)

Hints and Helps for Teachers

By Norman John Macleod

IN TEACHING, enthusiasm covers a multitude of sins. If you are enthusiastic it will cover up many of the other faults of your teaching. That is true of many lines, but in no line is it quite so true as in teaching. Enthusiasm is usually the difference between the methodical teacher and the inspirational teacher. If you are one of those people who dote upon methods of teaching, you will probably be horrified at the teaching of the inspirational teacher. The latter does not do many things according to method, but will use methods which are covered up by the veneer of enthusiasm.

Perhaps the first requisite of inspirational teaching is that of thorough knowledge of the subject. You cannot be enthusiastic about a thing that is almost an unknown thing in your life. If religion does not mean a thing to you, how are you going to lend enough enthusiasm to it to inspire others? Verily, it cannot be done. Everybody should have a great cause to which he can tie his whole life: that cause should be a religious one. Every teacher should be filled with not only biblical knowledge, but also knowledge of everything else that he can learn. If you are reading just one jump ahead of your class, you will never be alert enough to make a good teacher. A good teacher must be able to throw away his whole outlined subject and compose a completely new outline in the midst of his teaching if necessary. In other words he must know his subject so well that in case something comes in that was not anticipated he can divert his whole line of thought into a slightly different channel related to the original plan.

Always plan more work to take up in a period than you can possibly cram into it. Then if one thing fails you, you will have more things to discuss with your class. Above all things, plan it.

Do not teach too slowly. Your teaching will be deadening if you drag things out in a lazy fashion. Your class will go to sleep. I found that in my class in Los Angeles I had some hotel workers who were up early and late: they would go to sleep in a minute if I taught slowly. Keep your eyes on your class and do not let them go to sleep on you.

Do not teach too rapidly. Remember that not all the members of your class are as far advanced as you are. They will not grasp things by one hurried glance at the subject. Repetition is the first law of learning. Teaching in too rapid a fashion will be confusing. A certain amount of confusion is good; it will cause the student to attempt to work his way out of that confusion, and so to study.

Avoid undue criticism. Do not raise the issue of things too sharply. Cast the burden of the proof onto the other person: do not give your own opinion or view of the thing until everybody else has stated his. Make the class demand of you what you think; and even then oftentimes it is better not to tell them.

To a generation permeated with the notion that it must be continuously bored and that a display of enthusiasm is a bit passe, Mr. Macleod's exhortations to inspirational teaching will come as something of a shock. Personally we vote, Away with dullness, and leave the indifferent alone!

If a teacher in a public school made no better attempt to assign lessons than does a Sunday school teacher he would be fired immediately. A clear, definite, easily understood assignment is the most important part of a lesson. Some dynamic personalities if given the Bible or any other textbook will delve into it, understand it, and absorb its lessons. But not most people. If most people are asked to study up on a specific question from any book, they will not be able to do it. They need to be told what to look for, where to find it, and what to do with the ideas after they have found them.

When beginning a series of lessons preview the whole group. That is, for instance, in one group of lessons I have used, the following will be noted:

1. They are not exhaustive of the subjects that they cover. They had their inception in the fact that I was teaching a class only every other week. To undergo an exhaustive study of the various topics would be out of the realm of possibility. Certain lines of thought were, therefore, suggested with outlines of how to attack the subject.

2. They cover the principal methods of learning about the Bible based upon the fundamental doctrines of the church. To approach a subject from a new point of view is often valuable even if you do not present a single new idea. It adds a new zest to it. "The Kingdom," for instance, has lost a good deal of its freshness for most of our students. When I took up the subject, however, in these lessons the students were so enthusiastic they were utterly astonished to find that nine o'clock had arrived. With unanimous appeal they asked for more.

3. The studying idea behind these lessons should, if properly carried out, help the teacher and the student to delve further into the methods of teaching without being hindered by lack of a technical education.

After the whole series of lessons has been previewed thus, then turn to the immediate lesson before you and do the same with it. If you do this with the first of the series, then you are always several jumps ahead of the students in the class. The review of the last week's lesson then is all that needs to be put on the previous lesson. That should take but a few moments when you are ready to attack the next unit of work in preview and assignment. The lecture method when used to preview your work and assign it thus becomes something of intel- (Please turn to Page Eleven)

When Temptation Comes

WHEN TIGRANES ransomed his wife from the victorious Roman general, Pompey, people wondered what the beautiful woman had thought of her splendid captor. She had witnessed his might and show, standing close to the victor as he reviewed his army. "Why, I did not even see him," she replied in surprise to those who questioned how she had resisted Pompey's charms.

"Where were your eyes?" her friends inquired.

"Upon him who said he would give ten thousand talents for my ransom—my husband, Tigranes."

Like this steadfast woman, we, too, may resist the glitter of the world and the lure of the flesh by looking, in the time of temptation, to the One who has redeemed us, even to Jesus. He has ransomed us, not with corruptible silver and gold, but with His own precious blood, which was shed for our sins.

Man at conversion has forsaken the Devil; but the tempter has not forsaken his escaped victim. Self has been crucified, yet ever and anon it will strive for the mastery. The fruits of the Spirit have appeared in the life; they, however, are no insurance against tares that will spring up if the husbandman sleeps. Faith rejoices in its newly found powers; but it will be constantly tried.

Therefore we must be on guard, understanding how to resist the snares of temptation. Moses, we are told, resisted "the pleasures of sin," "the treasures in Egypt," and "the wrath of the king," "for he endured, as seeing him who is invisible." Read Hebrews 11:24-27.

At the age of twelve, severed from his mother's influence, the young Hebrew refused to indulge in "the pleasures of sin." He withstood the temptation of laxity in moral relations and the feasts, dances, and drinking of his heathen companions. So well had his mother instructed her son in the science of salvation. Thus Moses became a landmark in history, not because he molded the world to his will, but because he kept himself altogether unspotted from it. But while Moses, no doubt, from his training and observations knew that—"pleasures are like poppies spread;

You seize the flow'r, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snow falls in the river,
A moment white—then melts forever;
Or like the borealis race
That flits ere you can point the place;
Or like the rainbow's lovely form, Evanishing amid the storm," yet this knowledge alone did not save him. He withstood, we are told, in the crisis hour, because "he endured, as seeing him who is invisible."

Also, Moses rejected "the treasures in Egypt." Under the tutelage of his foster father, Moses was trained for an army career. Under his command he had, very likely, chariots and horsemen, and possessed a fine home, servants, and the possibility of one day being the Pharaoh of Egypt. But while he soared in prospect like the skylark, Moses never looked down upon his early training. Always throughout the years spent in Pharaoh's courts, he was "true to the kindred points of heaven and home."

THE WISEST CHOICE

Consequently, when the clock of providence struck, and it was time to make a final choice between Egypt and the cause of God, the young man chose a humble position of leadership in Jehovah's ranks, "esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt." This he did, Inspiration reveals, because "he fixed his gaze on the coming reward" (Weymouth), looking away from the attractions of sin.

Moses' example was such a contrast to the courtly lives of the "insane misers, stuffing into the priceless coffers of their once-irreplaceable lifetime a senseless accumulation of trash, odds and ends of sensations, experiences, fads, and enthusiasms," that his "peculiarities" drew upon his head the "wrath of the king." Some of us know what that means. When father has been planning for you a place in the sun, and you deliberately decide, in spite of his fondest desires, to devote your life to the cause of God, you, too must often endure a wrath similar to that of the King. Or if you have had to forsake a lucrative career because your work meant the transgression of God's law, your apparent idiosyncrasy may have brought a storm of opposition from loved ones, friends, and business associates. The hurricane is doubly furious when it comes from a man's own household, for, as Coleridge wrote,

"to be wroth with one we love
Doth work like madness in the brain."

If you have had to withstand the fury of friends, you can sympathize with Moses. If you have not, take a lesson from his example. For "all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (2 Tim. 3:12). Moses "forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: for he endured as seeing him who is invisible."

What does this mean? Just this. Moses possibly realized that God, the author of psychological law, has placed man's ability to resist temptation upon a reasonable, scientific basis. The mind cannot dwell upon two topics at once. Its attention may flicker between the two attractions, considering first one object and then the other. But it is physically impossible to concentrate on two things simultaneously. The mind, like man, cannot serve two masters at the same time. Either it "will hate the one, and love the other; or else . . . hold to the one, and despise the other" (Matt. 6:24), according to its affinity for either.

Now if man prostitutes this principle, attempting to resist evil in his own strength, he will fail every time. Not to mention the deceitfulness of the human heart, he will be conquered in his struggle for righteousness because sin is stronger than he. Probably knowing this from his own sad experience, Moses refused to battle the world's allurements, turning rather to the most gripping, constraining theme, "Jesus Christ, and him crucified" (1 Cor. 2:2). This held him in the moment of sudden stress. Thus, being victor in the daily battle, it was not hard for Moses to stand for principle in the grander conflict when he forsook Egypt.

Moses' example is for you and me.

"There's life in a look at the sacred cross,
Jesus has said, 'Look unto Me';
Earth with its riches is only dross,
Bright treasures beyond in the cross I see."

You and I must determine to "look to the cross every day and hour,

Trusting the promise God has given;
None ever fall 'neath the tempter's pow'r,
Who trust and obey in the strength of Heaven."

The contemplation of Jesus outstretched on the cross for our sakes has keeping power. We may shut our eyes to the enticement of evil, and by prayer focus the soul on the loving Savior. Keeping the attention on Christ until sin has lost its charm for us, we shall be overcomers, for "nothing is apparently more helpless, yet really more invincible, than the soul that feels its nothingness, and relies wholly on the merits of the Savior. God would send every angel to the aid of such a one rather than allow him to be overcome."

So in temptation, "Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee" (Prov. 4:25) to Jesus. For He has bidden, "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else" (Isa. 45:22).

When the sinner has truly placed his affections on the altar, as did Moses, then he, like him, will "look to his Maker, and his eyes shall have respect to the Holy One of Israel" (Isa. 17:7).

In summary: Accepting God's forgiveness, we are persuaded to surrender self for mortification on the cross. Then we experience new impulses and desires. This is the new life. It is sustained in the midst of trials, by faith; and is developed by Bible study, prayer, and the doing of Christian service. Thus when temptation comes, there is a genuine desire to escape its wiles, and we may indeed escape by looking away for strength to the Invisible One.

—Ashley G. Emmer in Signs of the Times.

Christian Love

ONE of the most heart-searching of the parables of Jesus is that of "The Barren Fig Tree." There was a man who had a fig tree in his garden. It was a good tree at which to look. Its trunk was sound. Its leaves were healthy. The soil in which it was planted was good. The sun of heaven shone upon it and the rain and the dew watered it.

More than this, the owner had lavished care and labor upon it. There was no other part of his garden upon which he had bestowed more pains. But it bore no fruit. For three precious years it had been barren. "Cut it down," was the advice of those who passed by. "Why cumbereth it the ground?" Not only did it bear no fruit itself, it robbed the neighboring plants and vines of sunlight and sustenance. But the vine-dresser is longsuffering. He said to the owner, "Let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it, and dung it; and if it bear fruit, well; and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down."

A tree's excuse for existence is the fruit it bears. It has no claim to live if, after God and man have given to it of their love and labor, it yields no harvest.

Jesus' teaching is very plain here. A Christian's duty in life is to bear fruit in his day and generation. He may be soundly orthodox in his beliefs. He may belong to the church and occupy a prominent place in its councils. He may be morally without reproach. But if he bears no fruit, he is a total loss.

In the 5th chapter of Paul's letter to the Galatians he enumerates nine fruits that Christ has a right to expect in one who is called by His name and animated by His Spirit. The first is love.

If we study closely the teachings of Jesus, we will find that He puts love first in the life of a Christian. "A new commandment," He said, "I give unto you, that ye love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Not only did Jesus set love in the first place in His teaching, but He showed us by His example that love must permeate the life. From the Nativity to the crucifixion love was the actuating motive of His ministry. He loved not only His kindred and those who loved Him, but He loved the unthankful and unholy, those who hated Him. If we are to follow Him, if His Spirit is to shine out from us into a needy world, then we, too, must love.

First, the love of the Christian should encompass the things that God has made. Jesus loved nature. One has only to read His parables, which have to do, many of them, with the most familiar objects in nature, the trees and the flowers and the animals, the wind and the storm and the soil, to know how He loved the world into which He had come.

We find an interesting story in the life of David Henry Thoreau, who lived in Concord nearly a hundred years ago. This good man had such a love for nature that he decided in 1845 that he would live all by himself in the forest. So he built a little cottage in the woods at Walden, where he lived for over two years. Going freely to and fro among the wild things of the forest with love in his heart, they soon discovered that he would not harm them. As one has said, "The news seemed to go through all the wood that a man had come to live among them who would not kill them." A tender sympathy grew up between Thoreau and the birds and animals. Birds came at his call. Animals drew near for him to caress them. Even the snakes were his friends. The fish in the river would permit him to take them in his hands. His affectionate friendship with nature has never had its equal in modern times. Here is where the spirit of love begins—in nature.

If we are to have the spirit of Christ, moreover, we must love our enemies. The King of France, Louis XII, had many enemies before he became King. When he succeeded to the throne, he had a list of these drawn up, and after each was set a black cross. When this became known, the enemies of the King fled, convinced that this was a sign of his intention to punish them. The King, hearing of their fear, recalled them and gave them an assurance of his good will. He told them that he had placed a cross after their names to remind himself of the cross that made possible pardon for all, and he urged them, by his good example, and especially by the example of Him who forgave His enemies, to go and do likewise.

This is the gist of the whole matter. Christ forgave His enemies and He plainly said to His disciples that if they were to expect forgiveness, they also must be willing to forgive.

In one place the Apostle Paul said, "Love is the fulfilling of the law." He never spoke a truer word. If a man has the love of Christ in his heart, it becomes impossible to break a single commandment.

Love teaches us, further, that what we have is not our own. We are given it in trust to be used for the good of others. If we are strong, our strength is to be used for the support of the weak. If we have more of this world's wealth than we need, we are to devote it to the relief of bodily and spiritual distress the world over. If one of us has influence, we are to dedicate it to lead other men and women in the way of God's will. Love transfigures what we possess and shows us our solemn responsibility.

"In truth many of us are little more than insects," a wise man retorts. "Your selfish man can be hurt only in his own person and is fairly secure. He has so small an area to guard. But as we rise in the scale of being, the vulnerable surface becomes ever larger. We can be wounded now in our wife, our children, our family, our friends. And God's plan seems to be that the circle of those who matter to us, and through whom we can be injured, should widen out, until it is coextensive with humanity."

We see Christ on the cross suffering the agonies of the crucifixion, with the weight of the world's sin and woe upon His heart. He might have been excused in that hour if He had forgotten everything and everyone but His own terrible suffering. But He seemed to forget His own sorrows and pain in the need of those whom He loved and who loved Him.—Stuart Nye Hutchison, D.D., in The Presbyterian.

THE ORACLES OF GOD

(Continued from Page Five)

what more high tribute could be paid to anyone's word than that through its eloquence a new soul is born? That is the highest test or tribute of eloquence that the mind of man will ever know. So eloquent is the Word of God, that through it and it alone a man may be born again, may have a new soul.

The Jew is a called-out race whose history of five thousand years has been the strangest racial history ever recorded. Why with his shortcomings, his failures, his disobedience, God has been patient with him is known only to God, but God called him out and delivered His oracles to him and Romans 3:2 forever settles any latter-day claims for a superseding revelation. The oracles were delivered to the Jews and to the Jews alone. The Jew in turn has handed on the printed format, which, praise His name, has retained in supernatural power its original eloquence, the greatest of all eloquence. There are no other revelations. The Holy Spirit teaches and enlightens believers everywhere. But the revelations were delivered to the Jews once and for all.

Two years ago I did not know that the oracles of God were delivered once and for all to the Jews—the Holy Spirit enlightened me. Three years ago I was not saved. The Holy Spirit enlightened me. The Word of God is His sign to this generation, the miracle authenticating believers before men, His complete revealed will to men. "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven" (Psalm 119:89).

—Virginia Nesbit in The Bible Advocate.

MY BIBLE AND I

We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
Through all kinds of weather with smiles and with sigh,
In sorrow or sunshine, in tempest or calm,
Thy friendship unchanging, my lamp and my psalm.
So now, who shall part us, my Bible and I?
Shall ism or schism or new lights who try?
Shall shadow or substance or stone for good bread
Supplant its sound wisdom, give folly instead?
Ah, no, my dear Bible, revealer of light,
Thou sword of the Spirit, put error to flight,
And still through life's journey until the last sigh,
We'll travel together, my Bible and I.

—Selected by Glenn M. Birkey.

If Jesus would come tomorrow you would be surprised beyond measure but you shouldn't be. He has warned us sufficiently by these words: "Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not."

—Harvey Krogh, Jr.

WILL THE OLD BOOK STAND?

(Continued from Front Page)

by sages, by philosophers, by fishermen, by statesmen; by men learned in the wisdom of Egypt, educated in the schools of Babylon, trained at the feet of the rabbis in Jerusalem. It was written by men in exile, in the desert, in shepherds' tents, in "green pastures" and beside "still waters." Among its authors we find the taxgatherer, the herdsman, the gatherer of sycamore fruit; we find poor men, rich men, statesmen, preachers, exiles, captains, legislators, judges; men of every grade and class are represented in this wonderful volume, which is in reality a library, filled with history, genealogy, ethnology, law, ethics, prophecy, poetry, eloquence, medicine, sanitary science, political economy, and perfect rules for the conduct of personal and social life. It contains all kinds of writing; but what a jumble it would be if sixty-six books were written in this way by ordinary men! Suppose, for instance, that we get sixty-six medical books written by thirty or forty different doctors of various schools, believers in allopathy, homeopathy, hydropathy, and all the other "pathies," bind them all together, and then undertake to doctor a man according to that book!

ONE MIND, ONE PLAN

But again, it required fifteen hundred years to write this book, and the man who wrote the closing pages of it had no communication with the man who began it. How did these men, writing independently, produce such a book? Other books get out of date when they are ten or twenty years old; but this book lives on through the ages and keeps abreast of the mightiest thought and intellect of every age.

Suppose that thirty or forty men should walk in through that door. One man comes from Maine, another from New Hampshire, another from Massachusetts, and so on from each State, each bearing a block of marble of peculiar shape. Suppose I pile up these blocks in order until I have the figure of a man, perfectly symmetrical and beautifully chiseled, and I say, "How did these men, who have never seen one another, chisel out that beautiful statue?" You say: "That is easily explained. One man planned the whole statue, made the patterns, gave the directions, and distributed them around; and so, each man working by the pattern, the work fits accurately when completed." Very well. Here is a book coming from all quarters, written by men of all classes, scattered through a period of fifteen hundred years; and yet this book is fitted together as a wondrous and harmonious whole. How was it done? "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." One mind inspired the whole book, one voice speaks in it all, and it is the voice of God speaking with resurrection power.

A DIVINE HARMONY

God's Word declares the end from the beginning. It is not only the chart which guides each weary wanderer to his own eternal rest, but it is the record of the great plan and purpose of the Almighty concerning the world which He has made and the church which He has redeemed. It unfolds God's everlasting purpose, as manifested in Jesus Christ; and if one will read three chapters at the beginning of the Bible and three at the end, he will be struck with the correspondence which there exists. At the beginning of the Bible we find a new world: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." At the end of the Bible we find a new world: "I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away." At the beginning, we find Satan entering to deceive and destroy; at the end, we find Satan cast out, "that he should deceive the nations no more." At the beginning, sin and pain and sorrow and sighing and death find entrance to the world; at the end, there shall be no more pain nor sorrow nor sighing, and no more death. At the beginning, the earth, for man's transgression, is cursed with thorns and thistles; at the end, there "shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it." At the beginning, we find the tree of life in Paradise, from which the sinner is shut away by a flaming sword, lest he eat and live forever; at the end, we find the tree of life again "in the midst of the paradise of God," and the blessed and the blood-washed ones have a right to the tree of life, and "enter in through the gates into the city." At the beginning, man was brought beneath the dominion of death and the grave; at the end, "the dead, small and great, stand before God," the sea gives up its dead, and death and hell are cast into the lake of fire. At the beginning, the first Adam lost his dominion over earth, and was driven out of the Garden of Eden in shame and sorrow; at the end, we find the second Adam, victorious over sin and death and hell, enthroned as King and Lord of all, and reigning in triumph and glory forever.

UNFOLDS THE DIVINE PURPOSE

Now, when you get the plan of this book, you find that it is something more than a book of detached sentences, good maxims, and comforting words. It is a book which unfolds the divine purpose, and not only reveals the way of salvation, but marks the pathway of the people of God through this wilderness, and foreshadows the destiny of the world which He has made and the church which He has redeemed.

When we look at these facts, we see that this is no man's book. When Columbus saw the River Orinoco, some one said he had discovered an island. He replied: "No such river as that flows from an island. That mighty torrent must drain the waters of a continent." So this book comes, not from the empty hearts of impostors, liars, and deceivers; it springs from the eternal depths of divine wisdom, love, and grace. It is the unfolding of the divine purpose, the revelation of the divine will. God help us to believe it, and be saved through Christ our Lord.

"How precious . . . are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them! If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand."—Psalm 139:17, 18.

THE WORD BECAME FLESH

(Continued from Page Three)

pages 215, 220, and 223 of above-named work.)

Be all this as it may, however, it does not affect the fact of the substantial identity of the two utterances through the Holy Spirit contained in Proverbs and John's Gospel to which reference already has been made.

I may mention here that Professor Burton is of the opinion that the popular language of which he speaks sprang up in the interval of thirty years that may have elapsed between the date of John's Gospel, assumed to be A. D. 96, and any other of the apostolic writings, assumed to extend to A. D. 66 or 68.

The fact that the term logos had thus been applied to Christ by the Gnostic errorists is sufficient to account for the Apostle John dealing with it in his Gospel and applying it in a sense in accordance with Scripture truth, and yet connecting it with the person of our Lord.

Let us now consider how the matter stands viewed in relation to the language employed by John and Solomon, noting several points of identity between the two statements.

First, "in the beginning was the Word" has a counterpart in Proverbs the 8th chapter. (Quotations are made by the author from the Revised Version without textual reference.) Compare "in the beginning was the Word" with "Jehovah possessed me, Wisdom, in the beginning of his way . . . I, Wisdom, was set up from everlasting, from the beginning."

Second, "the Word was with God" has a counterpart in "then I, Wisdom, was by him, Jehovah, as one brought up with him; . . . as a master workman."

Third, "all things were made by him," the Word, has a counterpart in "Jehovah possessed me, Wisdom, . . . before his works of old . . . before the hills was I, Wisdom, brought forth . . . while as yet he had not made the earth . . . when he prepared the heavens, I, Wisdom, was there . . . then I was with him."

It may be objected here that it is not stated in so many words that through or by Wisdom Jehovah performed all these works. This is so strongly implied, however, as to be irresistibly certain. Besides, it was expressly declared by the same writer—"Jehovah by Wisdom hath formed the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens" (Prov. 3:19).

Fourth, "the Word was God"—a god or ruler—has a counterpart in "by me, Wisdom, kings reign and princes decree justice." The term "God" occurs twice in John 1:1—the first time with the article in the Greek, the second time without the article. It is often applied without the article to rulers. (See John 10:34, 35.)

Fifth, the masculine pronoun "him," applied to the Word in verse 3, indicating personality or else personification, has a counterpart, not only in the whole drift of the passage in Proverbs, but especially in the expressions, "I was brought forth," which occurs twice, and also "as one brought up with him."

The foregoing remarks, I submit, warrant the conclusion that "the Word" in John 1:1-3 does not import a person, but only a figure of speech. It is allowed on all hands that in form at least Proverbs 8:22-30 treats of the personified attribute of divine wisdom. A writer in Kitto's Cyclopedia says—"The personification of Wisdom in these chapters, including Proverbs 8, is universally regarded as one of the most beautiful examples of propopopeia to be found in the Bible."

HINTS AND HELPS FOR TEACHERS

(Continued from Page Six)

ligence. Otherwise it becomes the "funnel" method. The question-and-answer method is used to stimulate interest. If it fails to do so, it is because you are trying to pump water out of a dry well. It thus becomes the "pump" method. The question and answer are legitimately used to force the student to reconsider his point of view. One lecturer whom I heard recently put it this way. If Johnny during vacation puts a stone through the window of the schoolhouse, that is because his point of view is wrong. He looks upon the school as his enemy. How are you going about changing that point of view: by punishment? That will only make him more vengeful. A few judicious questions will get him to see that he must reorganize his point of view. Be friendly in your teaching. Questions and answers are often ridiculous because they have not definite aim. Force the one questioned into a defense of his point of view and he will then revise it oftentimes. He must needs reexamine his point of view to defend it, or else cast it aside. A reexamination is most desirable even if no alterations are made in convictions.

Outline of an hour's period:

Rapid review of the lesson assigned, either oral or written, if your group is suitable	10 min.
Assignment of the next lesson	20 min.
Explanations of the lesson assigned	30 min.

This outline is ideal. You will seldom if ever follow it, but have it in mind as an ideal. It does not fit in so well as other types of lessons in a religious group. But it will if modified fit in. The review of the previously assigned lesson should work so well into the assignment of the next lesson that a definite break will not be evident in the teaching of the skillful teacher.

Relate facts to one another. Otherwise they are just dead facts. It is a fact that Abraham was born. But how important a part did it play in the Bible history? The day on which he achieved faith in God that could light the centuries is more important than the day of his birth. Only in the case of such individuals as Jesus is the every little event in life filled with significance. Fill your mind full of illustrative material in the form of historical parallelism, anecdotes, comparisons, similitudes, and the like. They always add zest to an otherwise dead class.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Let's Talk Shop

* * * *

By Elna Ruhn

There are four boarders, besides my brother and myself, living in our home. All work at the same mill. Our work interests us; we like it a lot, and we're constantly "talking shop." One day while a friend was here visiting I apologized for the way we kept talking on a subject that was probably of no interest to him whatsoever, and he replied, "Please keep on. I'm learning a lot by just listening."

The work of our Master ought to be even more interesting to us. It ought to be so fascinating that it would creep constantly into our daily conversation. I know that if we would talk more of our Master's work there would be many that would "learn a lot by just listening."

We aren't all gifted to preach the Word of God, neither can we all lecture or debate, but we can all "talk shop," so let's talk shop!

Let's Talk Shop—With Whom?

A few weeks ago I received a letter from a young man in Iowa asking if I would help him find a correspondent of our faith. He was isolated from all of our own church people, and wanted the friendship of one his own age and faith. It brought to my mind the fact that there are likely many such young people that feel that they are standing alone because they are isolated from other Christian young people. Through my correspondence work I am acquainted with quite a number of young people throughout the United States and Canada. If any of the above-mentioned would like a friendship through correspondence I will be glad to help them all I can. My address is: Miss Elna Ruhn, 329 E. 4th St., Litchfield, Minn.

Noble

A noble greatness of heart is evidenced by the attitude the Minnesota Bereans have shown in a matter that might have aroused resentment had they been moved by petty and ignoble motives, as witness the following words from their official and truly named publication, The Nobler:

"As perhaps you noticed on the Berean page of THE HERALD, issue of October 27, the Minnesota Bereans received a 'bouquet' in regard to our paper. In the very next paragraph we received a 'black eye' . . . Thought only of service to God, in place of earning a reputation for ourselves, will correct our errors."

The following items are clipped from The Nobler: "There is a great election coming, greater even than this one through which we are passing. It doesn't matter much, as far as eternity is concerned, who wins this election, but in the Great Election it matters greatly. It is the election of ourselves to the office of priests and kings in the kingdom of God. We are casting votes daily for ourselves by our actions. In 2 Peter 1:5-7 we find some of the things needed. Faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity all are mentioned. The 10th verse says, 'Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall.'"

"If your Berean society is 'dead,' perhaps it is because you have permitted it to become a 'buryin'' society."

"It is my sincere belief that the Christian Thanksgiving should be celebrated every day, but this special day, set aside by our Government, helps us to ponder more fully the blessings God has given us. Let us as a State Berean society be thankful that through our direct efforts some twelve persons came to a fuller knowledge of Jesus Christ and were baptized."

Radio

There are many good programs on the radio. And there are many not so good. It is up to you to turn the dial. The sort of programs we listen to in our leisure time is a good indication of the sort of persons we are.

Radio, like the automobile, has been the means of both good and evil activities. Both are used by both crooks and police. Both have changed the characteristics of the people. You all know how an otherwise perfect gentleman seems to lose all courtesy when driving a car. It leads to discourtesy in other matters. So with radio: we get accustomed to talking at the top of our voices to be heard above the noise of the radio going full blast. Then we go a step further and interrupt when other people are speaking. Children grow up with never a thought that it is discourteous to interrupt. It is up to you to regulate your radio. Use it, before it uses you.

Our lives are like the radio. We can tune in good people—or bad, good places—or bad, good thoughts—or bad. And in so doing we tune in or out all sorts of influences to make us what we are.

Let no one think to blame the influences that make him what he is, for remember, you turn the dial. You are a free moral agent.

The biggest question of your life is: Will you dial God in or out? You may have fellowship with God if you please.

God is always on the air. You may reach Him through Station PRAYER, Station BIBLE, Station CHURCH, and Station SERVICE.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light."

WHEN JOHN SAW JESUS AGAIN

HOW many of you remember that there was one among the twelve apostles of Jesus who seemed to be a little dearer to Him than the rest? There was one who was spoken of as "that disciple whom Jesus loved." There was one who always stood or sat closest to Him when he was in Jesus' company.

Do you remember his name? The very same name that, no doubt, a boy who reads this page has, John! Some Bible names we do not hear nowadays at all. But there are many Johns. Somehow that name has such a dependable sound, as though the boy who bears it can be trusted.

Now I wonder how many can remember how Jesus called John to be one of His apostles. If you cannot recall, do you know where to find the story? Look in Matthew 4:21, 22; and Mark 1:19, 20.

Do not confuse the Apostle John with John the Baptist. You know, the latter came before Jesus, was His "fore-runner." That is, he ran before and told the people to get ready for Jesus. God chose him for that work.

John, the one of whom we are studying today, was chosen by Jesus to go with Him, to learn His ways and His message. So after Jesus was ascended to heaven he could help carry the gospel to others.

It was this same John who wrote the books of the Bible called, "St. John," "1, 2, and 3 John," and "The Revelation." John the Baptist did not write any of the books of the Bible, though he was a great preacher.

Now that we have the two Johns straightened out in our minds, let us see where John was when he wrote the words of our lesson for December 13. It was many years after Jesus had ascended, about sixty years, in fact.

John, you see, was an old, old man. He probably lived longer than any other apostle. At this time he was more than ninety years old, and had been driven from his home and loved ones to a lonely island.

It was not for any wrong that he had done, though this island was the same place to which criminals were sent. But John's only offense was teaching the love of God and the story of Jesus. The wicked ruler of Rome treated all Christians with the utmost cruelty.

Here was John, on this strange island; no doubt wondering how all his friends back home were getting along. Other prisoners had to work very hard in the stone quarries on the island. But John probably was too old for such hard labor.

So the time must have been long. He must have thought often of the days when he had walked and talked with Jesus. Suddenly one day something happened.

As John sat there alone, he heard a voice behind him, and the voice told him to write down in a book the words he would hear and the things he would see. For all of this was to be for others to know.

As you can imagine, John was almost overcome with fright, knowing he was alone. But the voice continued, "Fear not; . . . I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore."

Then he knew who it was. It was Jesus, his beloved Lord and Master, and John was afraid no longer. For that was the voice he had heard many times, the voice he loved, the voice of the ever-living Christ.

It really isn't surprising that Jesus appeared to John in that vision. For John was lonely and sad and needed cheering, and Jesus had a message He wanted to give him so that he could give it to the world.

The message concerns seven churches, said to be those often visited by John when he was younger. But we can take the words to ourselves and perhaps find our church described there if we look carefully.

Notice the beautiful words used by John in describing the appearance of Jesus. He had on a long, flowing garment and a golden girdle. His hair was white as snow, and His eyes were brightly shining. His face was like the sun, and in His hand He held seven stars. No wonder John was dazed!

After that John must have felt much encouraged. No longer was he sad and lonely. He felt that there was still work for him to do for Jesus. And he wrote it all down for us to read and study.

Though boys and girls such as you are cannot understand some parts of the book of Revelation (nor can some grown-ups), yet you can understand what kept John from losing his courage entirely on that rocky island. It was his faith in God and in the ever-living Christ he loved.

And though you are not in danger of being banished to an island, yet there are difficulties you must face today that seem just as hard to you. You, too, must keep your faith in Jesus and continue loyal to Him no matter what others around you may do. Only in that way can you conquer the temptations that come to you every day.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

Blanchard, Mich., December 1-6, are the place and date for the Michigan Fall Conference. Bro. J. Richard LeCrone, pastor of our church at Eden Valley, Minn., will be the guest speaker.

All Michigan churches and isolated members are urged to enjoy the hospitality of the Blanchard people. Come and stay all week. Others that can come also are cordially invited.

Cecil A. Smead, Pastor.

HOLBROOK, NEBRASKA

The resignation of Grover Gordon from the pastorate of the Holbrook church leaves an opening for a new man. Anyone interested in the position should communicate with the secretary of the church, Clyde M. Long, Cambridge, Neb. Bro. Gordon resigned because he felt the place requires a full-time pastor.

When the church was opened for services on November 15 it was discovered that there had been a fire there sometime after the service of Thursday evening. The fire had done considerable damage before it had burned itself out. All the silverware, part of the kitchen utensils, and part of the work tables were destroyed. The walls also were damaged. The loss was partially covered by insurance. Repair work is being done now.

Clyde M. Long, Secretary.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

We this hour arrived from a Thanksgiving service held in our church with the United Brethren folks cooperating. It was a happy occasion. With prayer, song, and testimonies, and Bro. Conner's splendid address, our getting together for an hour proved to be very helpful.

The spiritual awakening under Bro. Conner, our evangelist, is creating an interest. The first evening he spoke on "Faith," presenting this needful subject in a way that was different from what we have heard before. Last evening his message was suitable to the occasion, pertaining to the "Christian's Thanksgiving." The attendance has been good and so far increases.

The writer was absent Wednesday evening, being called to speak at the Methodist Protestant Church at Walnut. Our son Carlton and wife went along to bring them their well-arranged choruses.

Many are having had colds in this community, and this interferes with many activities. Grandma Mamie Currens, 80, mother of Bro. J. W. Currens, fell and broke her left leg and will be confined to her bed for many weeks. It does one good to visit her, for she meets you with her smile and words of encouragement. We pray for her early recovery.

We have gone past the halfway mark in raising the needed funds to improve our church basement. The fund is going a little slow at the present, but we hope this will pick up soon, for we will not let loose until it is completed. So if you are contemplating to help in this work, please send your pledge or offering to our treasurer, Mrs. Mary Hatten, Culver, Ind. We thank all those who have assisted.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

BITS OF THE MAIL

"The dear Lord is merciful to me in providing many blessings and among them vision to enjoy your paper with its interesting articles. Sr. Calkins has beaten me by a few months to the ninety mark."—Mrs. J. F. R., Hudsonville, Mich.

"I have deeply appreciated the sermons that have been sent in by many different ones."—N. J., Briggsdale, Colo.

"I was 84 November 2. I keep house for my brother. He is 91 but active as a man of 60. He is the son of the late John O. Woodruff. My brother is a veteran of the Civil War."—Mrs. C. M., Elizabeth, N. J.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. S. J. Stedman; June DeWitt; Enos Elton; Belle Hartman; J. W. Sweet; Mrs. O. J. Dorsey; William H. Moore; Nellie Blakely; H. H. Hawkins; M. Fetters; May Williams; R. J. Browning; Frank C. Montross; Mary F. Wolf; K. A. Coats; George C. Coats; Nora Johnson; William Kruiswyk; Mrs. A. M. Scroggs; June Macy; Lillian S. Railton (for self and another); Mrs. Frank Rogers; Mrs. C. Moore; Margaret Donaly; Ida Jeffrey; Mrs. Fred Austin; Bertha Lesh; Mrs. C. P. Morgan; Harvey Krogh, Jr. (for others); Elizabeth Dauterich.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Lillian S. Railton	$16.00
A Friend	10.00
Lillian Dauntler (ind. fund)	5.00
Dixon, Ill., Church (ind. fund)	5.00
Oregon, Ill., Church (ind. fund)	7.14
Niagara Falls, N. Y., Church (ind. fund)	7.74
Ontario	5.00
J. W. Sweet	2.00
Clyde M. Long (ind. fund)	10.00
Ripley, Ill., S. S. (ind. fund)	6.00

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

Meetings are well under way at Casey, after a week of effort. The average congregation is approximately 50 to 60. Newcomers and those from a distance are just beginning to attend.

Bible study is being held each afternoon in various homes. Much interest is being manifested in this endeavor.

To those who are not acquainted in Casey, a bit of information concerning the church might be of interest. The building is located six miles south of two miles east of Casey. There are about 25 active members. Many who have been baptized here and are members listed with this church are at considerable distance. We have tentative plans for two meetings at about the first of the year. If you contemplate meetings early in the year, plans should be considered soon and the evangelist consulted as to probable open dates. There are several speaking appointments to be kept during the holiday season that will be reported as they are filled.

Address all business requests for the evangelist to F. L. Austin, 5439 Ohio St., Chicago, Ill. Contributions for the evangelistic work in the State should be sent to Leota B. Hanson, Lebanon, Ill.

We need your prayers and support all the more as new fields are entered.

J. W. McLain.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

According to The Presbyterian (Nov. 19), Charles M. Sheldon has written the editors thus: "I have seen the preview of the picture called 'In His Steps,' made by the Grand National Distribution Corporation, and cannot find any resemblance between this picture and the story that I wrote. The picture as made does not convey the ideals that I intended to portray in my book nor to carry the object lessons that I had in mind in writing it."

Mercy killings, commented Boake Carter recently in one of the finest short sermons we have heard, have been considered wholly from the viewpoint of cold practicality and the human definition of cruelty, whereas, thought Mr. Carter, their chief implications are spiritual. A law to legalize mercy killings of those suffering from agonizing and incurable diseases is being introduced to the English Parliament.

E. A. Freeman, Yuma, Arizona, justice of the peace who has married 25,000 couples during the ten years of his service, will retire to private law practice January 1. He has married some of the most famous twosomes in Hollywood, and he reports that over 99 per cent of his marriages have been permanent. Now he anticipates going in for divorce business.

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings."

And this was a want ad in a Missouri paper: "Wanted—an ear trumpet so I can get bigger and better gossip for distribution."

In California, public school teachers are forbidden to teach evolution, although they must explain the theory if a student asks about it. They always can laugh, though, when some dumb scholar says he believes in the Bible.

"There is more to be feared from unspoken and concealed, than from open and declared, hostility."—Cicero. The Roman must have been a minister with a gossip in his congregation.

And that recalls Scott's definition of calumny: "Cutting honest throats by whispers."

Speaking of evolution, there's that bit from John Garland Pollard's "Connotary": "Darwin—the man who made a monkey out of Adam."

Now that the Red Cross has taken your dollar, it's about time to be getting the pennies out of the children's bank to buy tuberculosis association seals.

LIVING BY INSIGHT

By Theodore P. Stephens

"For I have to lead my life in faith, without seeing him."—2 Corinthians 5:7, Moffatt.

THIS is a startling confession to come from the pen of Paul. Surely he had seen Christ in a remarkable way. His conversion on the road to Damascus was a result of his vision of Jesus. At another time so vivid was his mystical experience that he describes himself as having been caught up into Paradise. Yet he states that he must walk the Christian path "without seeing him."

"I have to lead my life in faith." That is, my dependence is not upon isolated mystical experiences, as wonderful as they may be, but upon an abiding confidence in Christ. I believe in Him; in His way of life; in His love; in the triumph of His cause. Therefore I can walk and not faint.

Some of us need that word. We have been expecting to find some magic key to vital Christian experience in some obscure corner. We read books. We attend conventions. We hang on the words of great Christian leaders. Somewhere we expect to find an open vision of Christ that will solve all our problems.

It reminds one of the cry of Philip, "Lord, let us see the Father: that is all we want." Jesus said to him, "He who has seen me has seen the Father." Philip's need was not for a new revelation, but for a fuller appropriation of the truth already given him.

So it is with many Christians. Useful and victorious service for them does not hinge upon some new vision of Christ but upon a persistent and aggressive confidence in Christ. They need to remember that most great Christians, despite their mountain-top experiences, have walked most of their days "in faith, without seeing him."

GRACE BEFORE MEALS

We thank Thee, Lord, for daily bread
 With which our table now is spread;
 We thank Thee, Lord, for friends and home,
 And may Thy Kingdom quickly come.
 So, hear our prayer and bless us now.
 We humbly in Thy presence bow. Amen.

—Anonymous

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold."

—Proverbs 22:1.

CHRISTMAS CARDS WITH SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Let your Christmas be Christ-centered this year by using only biblical greeting cards. Both these assortments are remarkably varied and of exceptional beauty. Sentiments and Bible verses have been chosen with unusually good taste.

Assortment No. 621 (pictured): $1.00. Purchased individually, the 21 folders in this lovely gift box would cost $1.50. Besides this saving, the box can be used again for containing gifts to others. We offer this particular selection because we believe, after investigation of the market, that no better one exists. The price includes transportation charges.

Assortment No. 612 (not illustrated): 50 cents. There are only 12 folders and envelopes in this box, but their individual retail value is 80 cents. Like the box with Assortment 621, this box can be used as a beautiful container for gifts. The folders are quite as choice as those in the larger selection. Customers west of the Rockies add 5 cents to help cover postage.

The true and largely forgotten significance of Christmas points at the Christ. Help to recall this to your friends with cards based upon the Bible. The texts are not obtrusive, but they do convey a message.

In each assortment are eight different papers and eight different processes. There are two metal seal numbers and several beautifully embossed designs.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 OREGON, ILLINOIS

GENTLEMEN: Please send me box(es) of Assortment No., for which I enclose my remittance.

Name

St. & No.

City State

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

WHEN HOLIDAYS COME

This department has concerned itself with books, good books, bad books, indifferent books. Believing with Carlyle that "all that mankind has done, thought, gained, or been is lying as in magic preservation in the pages of books," I have endeavored to give fair judgment of that literature which is both current and ageless. Books of considerable years have been mentioned here, and so have books fresh from the advertising departments of some of the largest publishing houses on earth.

These reviews have been, as all book reviews must be, essentially personal. They have not tried to give opinions coming from the erudite Chamberlain, who writes reviews for Scribner's; they have not tried to discuss books from the viewpoint of the literary technician; their effort has been to give my own ideas of books which may be met by anyone who reads.

So now, as the Christmas period moves closer through a barrage of parades and tinsel, I give my personal recommendations for gifts that lie in that beautiful, that horrible, that kaleidoscopic realm ruled by the authors and editors and publishers whose task it is to instruct, to edify, to explain, and to perform that equally valuable job of entertaining. Any of the books hereinafter mentioned, together with any of the magazines, may be secured for the prices quoted from the National Bible Institution.

FOR ADULTS

Ben Hur (Lew Wallace). Large type edition. About Ben Hur, prince of Judah; about the Christ; about Miriam and the Roman Messala. The greatest religious story ever written. $2.50.

Christmas. Sixth annual volume of Christmas literature and art. Beautiful color work and photography. Songs, stories, poems, articles. In a lovely gift box. Bound in paper, with a multicolor Christmas cover. $1.00.

An American Translation. Popular edition of the most modern version of the Bible. Written for Americans, but not in any argot that does away with the solemnity of the Scriptures. $2.00.

Religious Digest. Monthly. Condenses the best articles from a large number of the better religious periodicals. $3.00 a year; $5.50, two years.

Reader's Digest. Monthly. One of the most valuable magazines published. Condenses articles on all subjects from practically all magazines and book types. $3.00 a year; two gift subscriptions, $5.00.

Columbia Encyclopedia. One volume. Most modern American encyclopedia published. Condensed, but authoritative. Recommended by all writers' magazines. Backed by Columbia University. $17.50.

The Battleground. A beautifully written history of Palestine and Syria and their significance to the world, from prehistoric eras to 1935. Illustrated. $4.00.

American Magazine. Entertainment for the entire family—clean entertainment. Buys the best fiction available on the open market. Personality articles. $2.50 a year.

Saturday Evening Post. The most important periodical in the country. Stories, articles, humor, semi-fiction. Weekly. $2.00 a year.

Standard Bible Dictionary. Most complete one-volume Bible dictionary on the market. Revised to 1935. Illustrated. $7.50.

Parents' Magazine. For the parents of growing children. Authoritative. Illustrated. Monthly. $2.00 a year.

Literary Digest. Weekly. Oldest news magazine in the United States. Is broadening the scope of its religious department. $4.00 a year; two years, $7.00.

Story of the Other Wise Man. Van Dyke's classic short book about the search of a magus for the Christ. 75 cents.

In the Twinkling of an Eye. Novel about the coming of the Christ. The Mark of the Beast is its sequel. Biblical. Fictionized prophecy. Each book, $1.25.

FOR CHILDREN

St. Nicholas. Monthly. Stories, articles, pictures. $3.00 a year; two years, $5.00.

American Boy. For those in the early teens, or for bright children of 10 to 12. Monthly. Stories, articles, pictures. $1.00 a year.

American Girl. Same as American Boy, but for girls. $1.50 a year; two years, $2.00.

Aesop's Fables. Illustrated edition. $1.10.

Bible Text Stories. Short stories based on golden texts of Sunday school lessons. For small children. $1.50.

Key to the Bible. A Bible dictionary for children. Simple language. Condensed. Illustrated. $1.25.

Pilgrim's Progress. The old classic in large type. For children over 10. $1.50.

Hurlbut's Story of the Bible. Short stories of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. For children of 6 to 12. Illustrated. $2.00.

Popular Mechanics. For the boy mechanically minded. Illustrated. The best of the science monthlies. $2.50 a year.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 8, 1936

NUMBER 10

The Kingdom of God

Number 3

By T. A. Drinkard

"In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom."—Daniel 2:44.

YES, it is God's plan to set up a kingdom, and I suggest that it pleased Him to reveal the same unto those interested in such a plan. God was dissatisfied with humanized governments and proposed to set up one that would bring peace and prosperity to a troubled world. Its conquering power is superior to all and goes forward in the accomplishment of the Father's will, and in that day men will say God's "kingdom ruleth over all" (Psalm 103:19).

Jesus Christ represents the Father in the judgment (John 5:22; Acts 17:31). The judgment will begin "at His appearing" (2 Tim. 4:1). And, too, the kingdom will be "under the whole heaven," hence on the earth (Dan. 7:27). In that day "he shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth" (Psalm 72:8). Having that judgment power and dominion authority, He will break in pieces the oppressor (Psalm 72:4; 2:9).

David, the sweet singer of Israel, seeing a better day coming for the groaning creation, said, "Give the king (Jesus Christ? Yes: Psalm 2:6; Matt. 25:31) thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto the king's son" (Psalm 72:1). In other words, You have judgments; give those judgments to Your Son, let Him execute them upon the people of earth in Your own way. They are for a purpose. They will tend to dissolve the oppression system of earth, but will bring a happy ending after all.

In that day the "abundance of peace" will be enduring (Psalm 72:7). In that kingdom day "his enemies shall lick the dust," and "all kings shall fall down before him" (Psalm 72:9, 11).

These many prophecies cannot possibly refer to the church and her work during the present age. So many try to so apply them and only confusion is the result. There is no scriptural excuse for such a blunder. The church has a work to do now, but that work and her power and her authority cannot and does not equal the power of Christ when He ascends His throne at His appearing (Matt. 25:31).

The church can hardly adjust her own internal trouble, much less that of the sin-mad and money-crazy world. Always it is written that the kingdom will break to pieces and consume all kingdoms, breaking to pieces the oppressor, but never is the church said to break to pieces other so-called churches—but let both grow together until the harvest. Then what? Why, then they will be gathered and disposed of as God sees fit to do.

Looking across the years, David saw Christ sitting upon His throne in Mount Zion and said, "Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion" (Psalm 2:6). Isaiah foresaw the same grand event, and seeing it, said, "Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously" (Isa. 24:23).

Jesus Christ is to reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, not in heaven. There is no Scripture to prove that Jesus Christ is to reign over the nations of earth upon His throne until He ascends that throne at His appearing.

I know the human philosophy used to prove that Christ began to reign on the day of Pentecost, but there is such a thing as deceitfully handling the Word of God, and I do not fail to challenge such a theory. I daily come in contact with those who hold this view.

Such a view misleads those desiring to know the truth. It teaches that the church and kingdom are the same. The leaders of this thought have done much toward undermining belief in the literal reign of Jesus Christ in Jerusalem on this literal earth. They (Please turn to Page Nine)

Abreast of the Times

Nazis Plan New Anti-Jewish Measures

"I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation."—Amos 8:10.

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 2.—Nazi authorities today were preparing new measures against Jews to "prevent clashes" as the trial in Switzerland of David Frankfurter, a twenty-seven-year-old Jew, draws near. The young man is to be tried for the killing of Wilhelm Gustloff, a Nazi leader, in Davos, Switzerland, last February. When the trial starts next Wednesday it is planned to ban all Jewish meetings.

Unfortunately the time set for the trial coincides with the Jewish celebration known as Hannukkah, a feast commemorating the establishment of the new altar and the purification of the temple of Jerusalem, as related in the apocryphal book of the Maccabees.

Among other new persecutions that have recently been directed against the Jews is the requirement now being made by several cities in Germany that shopkeepers display signs indicating that they are Aryans. This measure has been put into operation to prevent the Jewish merchants from profiting from the increased holiday business.

The finance ministry has warned officials that they cannot hope for promotion if their wives shop in Jewish stores. Jewish groups must apply to the GSP (secret police) for permission to meet and must await its decision before issuing invitations. In addition to stating the purpose of such gatherings, a blank is provided which must give the name, birth date, birthplace, nationality, and addresses of all speakers who are to be present, together with the number of persons attending and the number belonging to the group.

World Turmoil

"On earth dismay among the heathen, bewildered at the roar of the sea and the waves."—Luke 21:25, Am. Tr.

LONDON, England, Dec. 3.—The civil war which is now devastating Spain is but one manifestation of the turmoil that now prevails throughout Europe and which threatens to engulf the whole world. The constitutional crisis through which Great Britain is now passing, repercussions of which are being felt throughout the Empire and even in countries which are not numbered among the British Dominions, has introduced another cause for widespread concern. The attitude of Japan, Italy, and Germany toward Russia seems to be leading rapidly to a most dangerous situation in the Far East and also in the West. Trouble has been threatening the French regime in Syria and the Arab riots in Palestine are not yet settled satisfactorily. Apparently the only hopeful happening on the horizon of international affairs is the conference now being held in Buenos Aires, where the nations of the New World are engaged in a promising effort to secure a lasting peace on the Western Continent.

Discouraging, indeed, would be the prospect if it were not for the assurance we have of the coming of the Prince of Peace.

Not So Amusing at That

"Preferring pleasure to God."—2 Timothy 3:4, Moffatt.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 2.—According to the Religious Digest the people of the United States spent more last year for tobacco than they did for the support of their churches and other welfare institutions. "They gave $551,000,000 to the churches, and spent $850,000,000 for narcotics and drinks, and $890,000,000 for amusements."

For years the amusement bill of America has been increasing far more rapidly than has the amount spent for the maintenance of religion. If it were possible to give authoritative figures as to the amount of money professed Christians spend for gasoline used in taking pleasure trips on Sunday when they should be engaged in the worship of God, the comparison would be even more significant.

May Revive Jewish Sanhedrin

"The high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together."—Acts 5:21.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 6.—A movement which may lead to the revival of the ancient Jewish Sanhedrin has been inaugurated throughout the world. An international poll is being taken to determine who are the seventy greatest living Jews, the "Elders of Israel." The work is being carried forward largely by the youth organizations, according to an announcement made yesterday by Ben Aronin of this city. Hundreds of names have already been submitted out of which the preferred seventy will be chosen. When the original members of the seventy "Elders of Israel" die, new ones will be selected to take their places. The object at the present is to encourage Jewish culture.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

Bible or Barbarism?

WHAT is before us? Where is our world tending? The clouds of the future seem to grow darker even as we contemplate them. For our civilization has gone awry. The nations are angry. In a recent issue of the Sunday Express (London), Mr. Lloyd George, in an article entitled "Why Can't Europe Be Frank and Open?" said that "the nations of Europe are today feverishly engaged in preparing themselves for a final suicide of war. They are piling up new armaments and seeking out new alliances in readiness for that insensate carnage toward which they are heading.

... No calm reasoning, no sane reflection, seems to be able to deflect them from the path of death."

A similar conclusion was drawn by Mr. H. G. Wells, as quoted by the Daily Herald (London): "Soon there will be no future to prophesy. . . . We won't need any invaders from Mars to destroy us, . . . because we are going to commit suicide soon. Another war will sweep the world, . . . and will find all nations equipped to annihilate civilization with armaments."

Supporting these statements, there is a growing general impression that there are great perils ahead, toward which the human race is surely drifting. These perils are foreseen in almost every sphere of life. There are perils of war that will destroy civilization; perils in social life, where crime of a violent order is seriously on the increase; perils in the world's economic systems, in which upheavals of a devastating character are frequently threatened or experienced; perils in the church, where there is a marked abandoning of the standards of the Reformation; perils menacing the home life of the nation, where often there is little regard for the sanctity of marriage, and where children rebel against parental authority.

And all dangers have come, strangely enough, at a time when human knowledge and scientific progress have reached unprecedented heights.

Sir A. Ewing once gave the warning, when speaking of the great advance of science, that there was a danger in man's learning to control nature before he had learned to control himself. Today it is easily observed that man's moral fiber is weakening and degenerating, while his access to power is being greatly widened by scientific discovery. It is a serious question, then, to inquire, For what purpose will he use that power? For good or for evil? In the book of Jeremiah, chapter 6, verses 16-19, God makes an appeal to the nations today, just as He did centuries ago, "Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein. . . . Also I set watchmen over you, saying, Hearken to the sound of the trumpet. But they said, We will not hearken. Therefore, hear, ye nations, and know, . . . what is among them. Hear, O earth: behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even the fruit of their thoughts, because they have not hearkened unto my words, nor to my law, but rejected it."

God has set before the nations a good way, wherein they may find rest and security. This is conveyed to the peoples by the communicating of His word and His law; and as this is rejected and human wisdom is substituted, trouble is the unhappy harvest reaped by the nations. "O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea" (Isa. 48:18). Here again is revealed the cause and cure of world distress.

The Bible reveals that it has been natural for men and nations to turn away from the counsel of God ever since the entrance of sin, which produced a wrong bias in man. The natural heart of man is described by Jeremiah as being "deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked" (Jer. 17:9), while the Savior declares that from the heart proceed "evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies" (Matt. 15:19)—all condemned by the law of God. Paul also reveals the rebellious condition of the carnal heart when he says, "The carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be" (Rom. 8:6).

At the time of the Flood man's mind was shown to have greatly deteriorated, as far as morality and goodness were concerned, since his creation in the likeness of his Maker. The record of that time states, "God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (Gen. 6:5).

This natural evil bias in the heart and thoughts of men should lead all to distrust (Please turn to Page Ten)

The Word of God

The heavens declare Thy glory, Lord;
In every star Thy wisdom shines;
But when our eyes behold Thy Word;
We read Thy name in fairer lines.

The rolling sun, the changing light,
And nights and days Thy power confess;
But the blessed volume Thou hast writ
Reveals Thy justice and Thy grace.

Sun, moon, and stars convey Thy praise
Round the whole earth, and never stand;
So when Thy truth began its race,
It touched and glanced on every land.

Nor shall Thy spreading gospel rest
Till through the world Thy truth has run;
Till Christ has all the nations blessed
That see the light or feel the sun.

Great Sun of Righteousness, arise!
Bless the dark world with heavenly light:
Thy gospel makes the simple wise,
Thy laws are pure, Thy judgments right.

—Isaac Watts.

The Coming Era of Pauline Christianity

ONE NEED not travel far afield to discover that many churchmen and particularly many leaders in the field of religious education have somehow or other reached an impasse in their program. The current movement of religious education within the church came out of the warm atmosphere of Christian souls of a generation or so ago. It has been the means of stirring thousands of otherwise inactive Christians into new effort and has produced some rich loyalties. That first group of educational prophets was permeated with the regenerative power of the gospel of the living Christ. But that initial group of creative leaders has almost completely passed from the scene of leadership and in its place have arrived leaders who are imbued with the ideals of their predecessors, but lack the dynamic of their religious experience.

A DEADENING DRIFT

Resulting from such a shift in leadership, the religious educational program within the church has gradually become externalized and mechanized to the point where wide-awake churchmen are noting with alarm its deadening effect upon the spiritual power of the entire church. Moreover, the underlying philosophy of a secular education has entrenched itself in much of the program and often dominates it from beginning to end. The assumptions of this philosophy are in many instances unchristian, if not anti-christian, in the sense that they reflect an imperfect assessment of human personality. Thus, it comes to pass that with the educational leadership of the church accepting such assumptions, decay and death face the larger spiritual life of the church. Until such an unhappy domination is challenged by new leadership and new foundations are laid the Christian church should not place very much reliance upon programs of education to carry the gospel into the hearts of youth and adults.

NOT EDUCATIONAL AT ALL

Now it seems to me that it stands to reason that, historically speaking, the Christian religion is not a religion of education at all in the ordinary conception and meaning of this term. It is, on the contrary, a religion of redemption through and through. Not through any system of education does a person first of all become a Christian in heart, but this does ensue through an act of faith which involves the whole personality. Our common knowledge of early Christian history clearly substantiates such a view. The first Christians were won to discipleship through the proclamation of a "message" rather than by any system of religious teaching. In fact, the major factors in many of our current religious educational programs in the Christian church were non-existent when as many as three thousand souls were added to the church in a day. The hearts of those people were touched with the message of the risen Lord, delivered by people who were aflame with the gospel of a conquering and living Christ. I am doubtful whether these people heard very much about the Sermon on the Mount, the parables, and the organized teachings as embodied in the Gospels as such, except as these were used to substantiate the major message which centered in the resurrected Christ. It was this redemptive message that won the pagan world to the new religion.

CENTRAL MESSAGE SET ASIDE

Now the strange thing about so many of the programs of religious education today is the fact that this central message has all but been set aside and attention is centered upon a system of ethics and a code of morals drawn largely from secular sources, and when thus dominated, nothing but defeat and disaster follow in their wake. In the early years of the liberal theology, certain distinctions were manufactured which have done yeoman service in many arenas of Christian thought and practice. But, during the advancing years, the world of Christian thought is being gradually plunged into the abyss of an onrushing paganism, and today Christian leaders are beginning to take stock and are discovering that some of these distinctions have opened the doors wide for leaders to enter and murder the message itself. Take as an illustration those two phrases, "The Historic Jesus" and the "Christ of Faith." Most of us can appreciate why it was that such a distinction was set up to begin with. It is not necessary or needful for us to list these reasons. But with just a little knowledge of the apostolic age, illuminated by the results of historical research, one understands that the early Christians did not make any such distinction at all. On the contrary, their faith was based upon the conviction, expressed in the phrase, "Jesus the Christ." That phrase represents a "unit" belief and when cut up into seemingly separate parts the Christian message is itself emasculated.

CENTRAL MESSAGE DISCARDED

Much of our religious education today is based upon the so-called principles of Jesus, the teachings of Jesus, to the utter exclusion of the message of a risen Lord. And yet our religion is based fundamentally upon such a conception. It stands to reason, therefore, that a Christianity as embodied in much present-day Protestantism is devoid of religious and moral power, because that central message has been set at naught and a system of ethics and secular morals substituted therefor which so often is controlled by a pagan philosophy.

A "LAW" INSTEAD OF GRACE

Now these ramified principles of Jesus, these modern moralizings and modern systems of ethics are the present-day counterparts of "the law" against which St. Paul thundered his mighty sermons, and as such are a terrible weight rather than a release for the souls of men. And those religious educational leaders who have substituted such moralizings and such teachings are the modern counterpart of the Judaizers with whom Paul fought his historic battles. These modern Judaizers have won the battle on a wide front, and are rapidly turning our churches into synagogues, instead of perpetuating them as Christian altars. All the arguments of the great Apostle to the Gentiles against the "law," all his reasonings against the necessity of rites and ceremonies, are not only valid today against this modern counterpart of "the law," but will be quickly utilized by a new group of prophets who see the havoc wrought through the loss of the central message of the church by the substitution of a system of education for the gospel of redemption.

PAUL'S OLD PROBLEM AGAIN

It is just as impossible today for a person to be "good" by attempting to govern his conduct in its minutest details by the principles and the teachings of Jesus as it was in Paul's time for a person to be a Christian through a meticulous adhesion to the minutest detail of the Jewish law. And what is more, instead of bringing life, it produces death. People just cannot experience the freedom with which Christ makes them free when they are called upon to bear the terrific burdens of "the law." In fact, one can see that a new leadership will again arise to free us all from such an intolerable weight that has been thrown upon the backs of Christian people all over Christendom.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AT A CROSSROAD

The Protestant Christian church is now facing an epochal decision. Either our present program of religious education must be radically changed or it must be eliminated altogether. Christianity cannot continue to function through historic Protestantism unless it moves forward to the place where it sets the message out in front. It cannot continue long to live as merely a system of ethics and a correlated code of morals any more than it could throughout the centuries of its dynamic life. If it continues to follow a "dead Jesus," its issue is clear, and that issue is spiritual death. It must shake off this weight of a deadly pagan culture and a secularized philosophy of education, and take to the highways and byways in the preaching of a religion of redemption through the message of the "resurrected Christ."

NEW MARTYRS

But this will mean a keen and bitter struggle just as it meant in the days of the great Apostle. His encounter with
(Please turn to Page Nine)

"The Dispenser of Bread"

MANY of our words are used so frequently that their real meaning and significance are lost to us. How many of us give any consideration to the word "Lord," which we use so often? There is a wonderful beauty in it. Throughout the Old Testament we find this word used in reference to God, and in the New Testament we find it referring to Christ.

Our English word "Lord" does not convey to our minds the thought which it held for the Englishman of a few centuries ago. "Lord" is a contraction of two Anglo-Saxon words, hlaf, loaf, and weard, guardian. It became changed to laverd, loverd, and finally to lord. The word "Lord," therefore, implies "the giver of bread," or "he who deals out the necessities of life." Ancient English noblemen were wont to keep open house, where all their servants and tenants, and also strangers, had full privilege to enter and eat as they desired. Hence, these noblemen came to bear the name "lords," the dispensers of bread.

So in the Bible we have God, the "Good Being," as the Saxons first called Him, and Lord, the dispenser of bread. He is the "giver of every good and perfect gift," the One who willingly deals out to His own the necessities of life.

Jesus said, "I am the living bread. If any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever." For "I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:51). Jesus is the "bread of life." In everyday life bread is used figuratively. We call it "the staff of life." In like manner Jesus spoke figuratively of His "broken body" as the "staff of life." To Martha He said, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he should die, yet shall he live (again). And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall not die forever."

Yes, Jesus Christ is the "staff of life," future life; but without partaking of that bread no man shall ever have life. The promise is to "him that believeth in me." "He that believeth not shall not see life," said the Life-Giver. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

The world lay in darkness. Man was perishing. God sent the One who died and rose triumphant over death, to give to all "the necessities of life," a new life. Thus God became "Lord," the "dispenser of bread." Jesus said: "I came not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me." Then He could say: "The bread that I give is my flesh, which I give for the life of the world." "This is my body, which is broken for you." Thus He became the dispenser of good things, the Lord who deals out bread. Like the ancient English nobleman, our Lord keeps continual "open house," where His servants, the wayfarer, and the stranger may enter and find a royal welcome and that "bread" which some glad day will cause the partaker to live forever!—Arthur E. Conant in The Herald of Life.

Printed Sermons

FOR many years I have been interested in printed sermons, without much regard as to who was the author or to what class or sect the preacher might belong. A certain sense of sociability goes with the printed sermon not met with in other kinds of literature. Feelings of personal interest, almost of kinship, are aroused that yield a quiet and hopeful satisfaction, and a spirit of goodness creeps into my soul. Politicians, in their speeches, lack the high-grade candor which pervades the preacher's utterances. There is a craftiness, sometimes beguiling, which seems like a warning signal of caution. He has an ax to grind. So in the historian's narrations. It is his business to make a continuous story, even if he has to bridge some quite considerable chasms between the actual events. Sometimes these bridges are too frail, even though the piers are good and strong. Writers of essays presume to instruct, to solve problems, and at the same time amuse and provoke sympathy for their endeavors. They call in science, assume a convenient philosophy, and even take sides in questions of opinion and probability. Now and then they attempt to discover the hidden depths of curiosity, or scale the walls of dubious conjecture. But the true preacher has a message of life. His appeal is to the people of this world, in all their varied callings, to help them to overcome their difficulties and advance their endeavors for a better tomorrow. In short, he strives to make every experience of today a stepping-stone upward toward a grander future.

When we read a printed sermon, we enter the sanctuary of a human heart; we are communing with the author in the very best mood. There is no parleying with fancy and the fictions of the day. That printed page is going to be passed on to the ages, if it be worthy of such glory. Sincerity, utter devotion to the truth and the worth of the theme, this printed appeal, this unfolding of the values of life, this heart-to-heart communion with his fellows, gives an inspiration unknown to the grosser things of today and tomorrow. It is the passion of enduring love of God. It is sanctified by faith; it is dedicated to truth; it is glorified in everlasting hope. His spirit moves upon the anxious soul, and the grace of Jesus Christ amplifies a new creation. The printed sermon is not the toy of an hour; it should be the voice of eternity.

At my hand are two books, bound copies of sermons of a hundred years ago or more. One is devoted to the Evidences of Christianity by Archdeacon Paley; and we quote the first sentence: "I deem it unnecessary to prove that mankind stood in need of a revelation, because I have met with no serious person who thinks that, even under the Christian revelation, we have too much light, or any degree of assurance that is superfluous. I desire, moreover, that in judging of Christianity, it may be remembered that the question is this religion or none: for if the Christian religion is not credible, no one with whom I have to do will support any other." We of the present day are meeting with the same contention. In a review of a book entitled Christianity Confronts Communism Mr. Matthew Spinea says: "The only thing to pit against integral communism is integral Christianity; not rhetorical, tattered, decadent Christianity, but renescent Christianity, working out its eternal truth towards consistent life, consistent culture, consistent social justice." These sermons in their origin are one hundred years apart: but their message is the same; their major proposition is the same; their argument is the same, and their conclusions are equally evident—renescent Christianity, exhibited in practical living, is its own defense. Change the dates and no appreciable change in the truth is apparent.

We now turn to our second book. This is by William Wilberforce, who died in 1833, an English statesman. He proposes "to point out the scanty and erroneous systems of the bulk of those who belong to the class of orthodox Christians" and he says: "View their plan of life, and their ordinary conduct and, not to speak of the things of a religious nature, we ask wherein can we discern the points of discrimination between them and professed unbelievers." This was two hundred years after the Puritan revolution, and the author continues: "Often has it filled me with deep concern to observe . . . scarcely any distinct knowledge of the real nature and principles of the religion which they profess." We turn to another quotation from a sermon by Henry M. Edmons, published last August, entitled "Do Something About It." Listen: "And as we should never know ourselves, neither could we ever know God, without action. He stands by, daring us to undertake and to trust Him with the issue. We are afraid, and we draw back, and we are in the shallows forever." Man's supine fear, or neglect, to step out on the promises of his Maker and his Savior, even after they have proved true through centuries of experience and triumph. Had Wilberforce written in the year 1936 A. D. his words would have been woefully true.

Time has not blurred the truth, nor exhausted God's grace. Neither has the salt lost its savor. And human nature seems to have continued the same. There is the same lack of faith, the same want of confidence in God and mankind, the same indigence in spiritual enterprise, the same sloth and love of ease which caused Israelites to long for the fleshpots of Egypt, all these are still in the world. The printed sermons of generations past reveal this. Yea, they reveal more: they reveal that there are still Joshuas and Gideons and Daniels, Deborahs and Hannahs and Elizabeths among the sanctified. Prophets, too, are still with the church, as in the days of Isaiah and Hosea and Zechariah and Simeon. Their writings, like those of Moses and Solomon, the four evangelists and the apostles, help to make up the printed sermons of the ages. They remain as the harbingers of a new day. What has been done among the children of God has been written for our edification, our encouragement. What has been promised is given to stimulate faith, and to guide the Christians of today and tomorrow along the highway of holiness which leads to the final revelation of the kingdom of God.—Dr. George H. Dewing in The World's Crisis.

Visions of Today

By D. G. Harvey

“Where there is no vision, the people perish: but he that keepeth the law, happy is he.”—Proverbs 29:18.

THROUGH the ages in the past God revealed Himself and His plan through the prophets in dreams or visions. God spoke to Moses, Aaron, and Miriam thus: “Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the Lord will make myself known unto him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream” (Num. 12:6).

We have the example of God's dealing with His prophets all through the Scriptures. Paul reminds us of this fact in Hebrews 1:1: “God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets.” But let us continue to the next verse—“Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things.”

Does Paul here imply that all visions ended with the prophets? Did not God speak to Peter by visions? How then can we explain the great sheet let down from heaven, full of all sorts of beast and fowl? Does not Peter himself call it a vision (Acts 11:5)? Would we deny Peter was of the church? Did not Paul himself see a vision (recorded in Acts 9) when he was blinded by the light from heaven on the road to Damascus? Surely Paul could not be mistaken, for he called it so, in his plea before King Agrippa. “Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision” (Acts 26:19). Was not Paul of the church?

Another of Paul's visions: “And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.” We know that the man did not literally stand and speak so to Paul. But Paul saw the need of the gospel going to Europe. He obeyed. Today many have the vision of evangelism. Like Paul, they have a vision before them. They seem to hear the cry, “Come over into Macedonia, and help us.”

We see the need of the gospel going into new fields. Thousands have not heard. How then can they believe? “How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent?” Four questions for us to answer.

But some one will say, “They must be sent by God.” We agree. But is not the church God's representative? Listen to Paul: “Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: We pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God” (2 Cor. 5:20). Further, we have the example of the early church after the conference at Jerusalem. Notice: “Then pleased it the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas” (Acts 15:22). Who did the actual sending? Notice also the harmony between the preaching brethren and the whole church.

Is there any reason for an evangelist to feel exalted? Let Paul answer our question. “For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel” (1 Cor. 9:16). And yet we have heard evangelists say of a poor field, poor in this world's goods: “That would be a wonderful field, but they can't pay.” No vision there, and little hope of future reward.

But so many are asleep. Speak of the need, of the great need, of evangelism. Try to say we are deep in the “rut” and these sleeping ones will jump to their feet, these leaders of falling churches with small attendance, no Sunday schools, no Bereans, few services of any kind. “I don't see! I don't see!” is their cry. Sadly we think of the Master's words, “Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch” (Matt. 15:14).

The church must awake, must have vision, or perish. God teaches us some wonderful lessons in nature, even by His small creatures. Look at the ant. The wise man says, “Consider her ways, and be wise,” then points out her foresight: “Which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest. How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? When wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?” (Prov. 6:7-9).

What is true in nature, is true also in our carnal life, and must also be true of spiritual things. The church with no plans, no vision, drifts along with a mere form of worship and fails.

Just one thought on the last line of our text—“But he that keepeth the law, happy is he.” Let James explain: “But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed” (James 1:25).

Resurrection and Resurrection Changes

THE hope-inspiring doctrine of the reliving of the dead is absolutely essential. In order for deceased people to be judged and rewarded they must be raised from the dead. The Bible unequivocally teaches a future resurrection of all the dead of every age. Jesus died, was buried, and rose again to redeem man from sin, death, and the grave. Christ was raised from the dead to "the power of an endless life"; therefore, He possesses the divine authority and might to revive the dead. "Marvel not at this," said the Redeemer: "for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth" (John 5:28, 29).

Glorious and eternal transformations await the saints and children of God in the glad morning of their resurrection. Sin has infected the entire race, mentally, physically, and morally. When we commence to live we commence to die. Our mortal bodies have been greatly depressed, distorted, and defaced by sin. Not so the radiant and immortal bodies of the revived saints as they are raised from their dusty couches. Complete perfection will crown those celestial forms. Every feature will be invested with divine beauty and glory. Not a trace of infected sin will be found in the resurrected and glorified beings. First, then, there will transpire in the resurrection of the just, a transcendent change of the physical man. Comparing his present state with the revealed future, we learn: from a mortal being, he will be raised immortal; from a corruptible man, he will be changed to an incorruptible one; from a terrestrial creature, he will become a celestial being. St. Paul makes this very plain in his incontrovertible argument for a resurrection of man: "It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: it is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: it is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:42-44). What a supernatural and marvelous change! How it thrills one's heart to contemplate it!

The saints of God will be made like Jesus. He "shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body" (Phil. 3:21). Ecstatic and amazing thought, and certain as that the Christ of God exists! This will be the consummation of our Christian hope and holy longings. Made like Jesus, abounding in exuberant and increasing life. Perfected in every particular. Filled with perpetual felicity and surrounded with fadeless splendor. This will be the final transmutation to the changeless state.

Secondly, there will be no aged people in the kingdom of God. Senility will be expunged by the resurrection change. There will be no bowed forms nor palsied limbs; no gray hairs nor facial wrinkles; no wasted bodies nor faded eyes; no feeble hearts nor weakened minds. The dotting ones will be brought back to the likeness of Jesus. They will be restored to the stature and fullness of Christ. Their aged, decrepit forms will be crowned with physical perfection and filled with immortal vigor. Their broken-down, worn-out bodies will be refashioned in an angelic symmetry.

Sin is the primeval cause of feebleness, old age, death. The saint grows old and becomes weak as well as the sinner. No one is personally to blame because he is forced to become aged, but this lamentable condition is the direct result of Adam's transgression. It is unthinkable, at least to the writer, that the all-wise Father will awake the elderly saints in the resurrection and seal them with immortal life in all their senile weakness and mental fatuity. No! no! They will be brought back to perfect physical, mental, and spiritual being. Christ died and rose from the grave in the very zenith of His manhood. His followers have the precious promise that they shall be "like him."

The patriarchal children of God in the resurrection will be in the same immaculate state that Adam and his posterity would have eventually attained, had they never violated the command of Jehovah. Jesus died and issued from the tomb to bestow eternal redemption upon penitent man. He is a complete Savior and will fully restore sin-cleansed man to an unblemished corporeal condition. His final salvation will not be incomplete in any sense, but perfect in every particular. Glory to God! My dear venerable parents are sleeping the peaceful sleep of the righteous, but I expect to greet them in the coming morning, shining in godlike perfection and beauty. Our divine Lord will utterly obliterate every last vestige of the ravages and consequences of sin. Praise His holy name!

"But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:20). Jesus was the first-fruits of the dead to rise to an unending life. The grand resurrection harvest of God's children will be like the first-fruits. The little children, matured persons, and aged people who have fallen asleep in Jesus will be raised in His likeness, at the last day. They probably will not all look alike and be of the same proportions, but there will be a strong family resemblance of the resurrected and divinely metamorphosed children of the Father in heaven.

What about personal recognition in the world to come? Will the saved know each other in the resurrection state if they undergo such wonderful changes? Without a doubt they surely will. But they will not know and love as they knew and loved here. Associations will be altered. Human nature will be spiritualized. No parental, filial, or conjugal love will prevail among the residents of the everlasting kingdom. Yet I believe the heavenly acquaintance will be far sweeter and the divine love more intense and ardent than what the most godly now possess. The supreme knowledge and godlike affections will be intuitive or God-given. All will be children of God and will love each other as a pure and holy family. Praise the Lord for the hope of endless life and the Christlike perfection which will crown the resurrection people of God!

Through earth's dark night of gloom we can see the gleams of the resurrection morning. World-wide omens proclaim the dawning of the eternal day. What a rapturous and celestial change is coming! "But we shall all be changed," writes Paul, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump" (1 Cor. 15:51, 52). Are you ready?—E. B. Arnold; condensed from The Messiah's Advocate.

STORIES OF GREAT HYMNS

By Mary A. Gesin

"THE GRANDEST hymn in the English language"—thus did Matthew Arnold designate, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," composed by Sir Isaac Watts.

As a child the author, born in Southampton, England, in 1674, lived in an atmosphere of religious sacrifice and strife. Possessing the frailest health, he nevertheless began the study of Greek, Hebrew, and French when only eight years of age and pursued his studies until in early manhood he was an eminent scholar. He complained to his father that the hymns sung by the Nonconformists were meaningless. To this his father answered, "Make some yourself, then." An entire hymnbook of his own writing was the result.

Sir Isaac Watts wrote the beautiful hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," especially for the Communion service, and took the text of Galatians 6:14 for his inspiration. The original title was, "Crucifixion to the World by the Cross of Christ." In the light of the author's scholarly attainments the words of the first verse are full of meaning:

"When I survey the wondrous cross
On which the Prince of Glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride."

ONE day Jesus walked along with two men and explained the Scriptures to them but they didn't know Him. How many times has He, walking with us, given us a blessing and we gave the thanks to "Luck"?

—Harvey Krogh, Jr.

THE COMING ERA OF PAULINE CHRISTIANITY

(Continued from Page Five)

the Judaizers of his day was but a drop in the bucket in its intensity when compared with the pitched battles of the oncoming years. An era of Pauline Christianity is thus in the making, if it has not already begun. The weapons for that struggle are the same weapons which the great leader used several thousand years ago. When the smoke of this battle is cleared away, many of us will bear about in our bodies and our souls the marks of the Lord Jesus, for it will mean much bitter persecution. And who knows but that when the record is complete, it will include the names of a multiplied number of actual martyrs for the faith once delivered to the saints? However, as in the olden time, it doubtless will be said again that the "blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church."

And I have the feeling that this National Preaching Mission away down deep has come into being because some of the observations of this article have already made a deep impression upon other minds as they have made their impression upon the mind of the writer. The beauty about it all is that there is no need to manufacture a message: all we need to do is to respond to the words of that famous old hymn, which runs: "Tell me the old, old story of Jesus and His love."—Leroy C. Hensel in The Presbyterian.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from Front Page)

use what they call logic, or the science of reasoning. But logic can be made to falsify if based upon false premises.

They argue: (1) Solomon sat on David's throne (1 Kings 2:12). (2) David sat on the Lord's throne (1 Chron. 29:23). (3) The Lord's throne is in heaven (Psalm 11:4).

This argument was offered to me a few years ago in public discussion, and I added the fourth line to it to make the argument rime, viz., (4) Therefore David sat upon the Lord's throne in heaven; but such act threw the whole deceptive plan open to exposure.

All Scripture is true, but deception can be practiced and thus the unsuspecting be led into error.

True it is that Solomon sat upon David's throne, and David sat upon the Lord's throne, but to infer that this throne was once on the earth, and "is now back in its original place," is the very height of human folly. The kingdom to be set up is just as literal and as real as those destroyed by it. Even so is "the throne" to be "established: and he shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, judging, and seeking judgment, and hasting righteousness" (Isa. 16:5).

You will recall that according to Ezekiel 25:27 and Psalm 89:39 the kingdom and throne were overturned and cast down to the ground, but here you find the throne being reestablished and Jesus Christ seated thereupon; and the place of its establishment is in the tabernacle of David. Allow the Scriptures to interpret themselves in the way they were intended and their beauty and harmony will be seen.

To spiritualize Zion and say it is the church is but to err, as such cannot be. Let me carry you back to Psalm 48:2 and read. "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King." And, too, read Psalm 132:13-18, where it is said the "Lord hath chosen Zion," for there it is He will "make the horn of David to bud." Then turn and read Matthew 5:34, 35. Literal kingdom? Yes. Literal throne? Yes. Literal city where the throne will be established? Yes, indeed. Thank God for such promises, that give to our hearts a full measure of inspiring hope.

The intention of God is again referred to by the inspired Apostle, who says, "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne" (Acts 2:30). God raised unto Israel a Savior (Acts 13:23). He raised Him from the dead (Acts 13:30). And "the promise which was made unto the fathers, God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again" (Acts 13:32, 33).

Here is the promise to which this writer refers: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch" (Jer. 23:5). He has been raised for a very definite purpose, and the time will yet come when that Son of God will sit upon the throne of David in Jerusalem, which will be the capital city of the greatest kingdom of all time. David will be there in person to behold the grand work to be done. Not only will he be there, but other prophets as well, especially Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Matt. 8:11).

I know that David will be there, because it is written, "Thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever" (2 Sam. 7:16). How could the kingdom be established before David unless he was there in person to witness the good work?

Another deceptive feature of the teaching that the kingdom has already been set up is this: All those scriptures referring to the establishment, to the power and longevity of the kingdom are applied to the present age. When and if you are doubtful and challenge such a view, you are answered about like this: "O we are now in the first dominion, or first phase of the kingdom, and when we die, or whatever happens, we will be in the everlasting phase of it." And those versed in their theory will often take you to Micah 4:8 about "the first dominion," as if the Lord had two dominions, one on earth and the other in heaven or wherever fancy might try to locate it. They don't seem to know that there never was but one dominion and Adam received it (Gen. 1:28), but by his transgression he lost it; and I read where Jesus Christ, "the second man" or "last Adam," will come into possession of a "dominion" that reaches "from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth" (1 Cor. 15:47, 45; Psalm 72:8).

There will be a day of reckoning for those who deceitfully handle the Word of God, thereby misleading those who otherwise could and would be blessed by the truth (John 8:32). God grant that His people fully realize that we are rapidly approaching the midnight of this age through which we cannot go without His guiding hand and sustaining grace. There is yet work for the church to do before the coming of the kingdom. "Occupy till I come" were the words that the Master left, and to me that means to preach the gospel to those who need it and that is the world (Matt. 28:19, 20; Mark 16:15, 16).

BIBLE OR BARBARISM?

(Continued from Page Three)

their own reasoning and inclinations until they are approved of God. But how may we know the will of God? "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds; casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ" (2 Cor. 10:4, 5). The knowledge of God constitutes a standard of true wisdom, which is always profitable, and brings forth the "peaceable fruits of righteousness." This is found in the law of God.

Man must, therefore, have a true knowledge of God or he will be deceived by his own thoughts, to his destruction. The admonition is, "Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Rom. 12:2). The mind of man is to be renewed according to the terms of the new covenant, which was ratified by the death of Christ. "This is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: for I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more" (Heb. 8:10, 12).

This law of God was in the heart of Jesus, who delighted to do His Father's will, and gave us an example that we should follow in His steps. He it was who said it was necessary for a man to be born again before he could see—that is, comprehend—or enter the kingdom of God. The reception of Him and His word constitutes the basis of the new birth. Man is to "receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save" his soul (James 1:21).

Thus the Bible is the only safeguard to civilization.

Since the Reformation, and for several centuries, the Bible became a revered book in Protestant lands, and has been circulated over the world in a thousand languages and dialects. It has been regarded as a necessary revelation, supernaturally given to human beings, and its declarations as the standard of doctrine and practice.

Unhappily, during the lifetime of a single generation a change of attitude has taken place. The one-time confidence in the Scriptures has been undermined by pagan philosophy. Christian believers, many of them, scarcely know what they believe. The rise of modernism is weakening the last stronghold of the church. Another form of paganism is arising by the spread of various political creeds which would exalt the state above all. This is noticeable in several countries of the Continent. Christianity in Germany, for instance, has been regarded as a source of weakness to the Nation, and therefore as a hindrance to her progress. This was expressed by Dr. Herbert Schneider recently: "Our highest ideal is not Christ the king, but the German people. We do not seek the eternal kingdom, but the everlasting kingdom of Germany."

But commenting on the state of affairs in Germany, Lord Wolmer, in speaking at an annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society, remarked: "We ought not to be under any delusion that we are less menaced than the people of Germany or any other country in the challenge to Christianity which is now being presented; Germany is not the only place in Europe where paganism has raised its head. I believe that Christendom today is threatened with one of the great crises in its history. We see paganism rising its head at home as well as abroad, in a manner which our fathers and grandfathers would not have believed possible. We see the elementary tenets of Christianity publicly flouted and derided."

The situation among the nations of Europe is well defined by the Prophet Jeremiah in these words: "Your educated cause shame, terror, and disgrace, for they reject the word of the Everliving; and what can their education do for them?" (Jer. 8:9, Fentian). He must be born of the Spirit, if he is born at all. His religious experience must begin by the Spirit of God, by the power of the Father, working upon a sinful and unregenerate heart, and transforming that heart into a temple fit for God to dwell in.

And it is by the Spirit that the Christian life continues. "That he (God) would grant you," says the Apostle, "according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge" (Eph. 3:16-19). Apart from the Holy Spirit, we cannot continue to be Christians. "But we have our Bibles!" Yes, but your Bibles are not enough. The Scriptures are important, and they are God's word to our souls. But we can and will find ways to evade that word, unless day by day the Spirit is bearing its witness to our souls. We need our Bibles, and in addition we need the witness of the Holy Spirit to make that printed word a living and true word in our own souls.

Have you ever seen persons professing to be Christians, yet withal so gnarled and withered and ugly in their souls that they must make the holy angels weep? There are such. They are persons who try to live the Christian life without the Spirit of God. Often they are very meticulous concerning the letter of the faith; but they have lost its spirit. Now "the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life" (2 Cor. 3:6). The most flawless orthodoxy concerning what the Bible teaches will not really make a Christian. It will only make a Pharisee, unless that same flawless orthodoxy is sustained and ennobled by the love and grace which can come only from the Spirit of God.

"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit" (Gal. 5:22-25). "Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance"—what is Christianity without these? Yet these qualities can come only through the reception of the Holy Spirit into the heart.

Doctrines, to be sure, are important. They may be compared to the strong bones which support our bodies. But a skeleton is an ugly thing, unless it be covered with the living flesh and blood. So there can be nothing beautiful about the most correct creed, unless all around it there is the living flesh and blood of true Christian experience; and this is the work of the Spirit of God.

Do you recognize the workings of the Spirit of God in your heart and life? If you are in doubt on this point, let me draw your attention to what D. L. Moody once said: "I firmly believe that the moment our hearts are emptied of pride and selfishness and ambition and self-seeking and everything that is contrary to God's law, the Holy Ghost will come and fill every corner of our hearts; but if we are full of pride and conceit and ambition and self-seeking and pleasure and the world, there is no room for the Spirit of God; and I believe many a man is praying to God to fill him when he is full already with something else."

"Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Rom. 8:9). This is warning to us all, that though we may have many things related to Christianity, though we may approve of religion and morality, though we may think that the church is an excellent institution and may even contribute to its support, we cannot justly call ourselves Christians save as we partake of Christ's Spirit.

The Old Testament has many things to say concerning the Spirit of God, and one of the most interesting is a prophecy found in one of the minor prophets: "Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month. . . . And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit" (Joel 2:23-29). Long afterward Peter quoted these words, and applied them to the outpouring of God's Spirit in the Christian dispensation. "This is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel; And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams; and on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy" (Acts 2:16-18). This passage has no reference to a disordered fanaticism. But it is a clear statement that the Spirit of God would work with unwonted power "in the last days," and it attained a remarkable fulfillment in the triumphant witness of the early apostles.

Who shall not say that now in the very end of time, when we are close to that hour when the heavens shall dissolve and Christ Himself be revealed as King of kings and Lord of lords, we may not pray and confidently expect a rich and abundant outpouring of the Spirit of God, to aid His people in warning men and women everywhere for the greatest of all events, the second coming of Christ?—F. C. Bailey in Signs of the Times.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Dancing in Church

A newcomer to town, a certain girl was lonesome. Purely for social reasons she went to dances held in a church, sponsored by the church. The next thing she was going to the worship services. Then she was converted and joined the church. Countless other young people have gone the same route. By church dances, card parties, to Christ. The social life has become the power of God unto salvation.

With others it is the architecture of the building that draws them to Christ and keeps them coming. With many, it is the personality of the minister or teacher. It is everything but the gospel of Christ that seems to be the power of God unto salvation.

My Christian brother, would you go to church anyway if it were a tumbled-down shack, if the preacher stumbled with his English, if there were absolutely no social parties? Would the gospel of the kingdom of God be enough to hold you to Christ? If so, then you are converted. You depend on God.

A lovely building, a good talker, social activities, these all are niceties that no church should remain content to be without, as secondary attainments. But the primary object of the church, before which all else must wait, is to give the people the gospel of the kingdom of God.

In the day of trouble the dancing and card playing you have done in church do not bring relief. Only the gospel can help. A religion that keeps is not made up of social activities. It is made up of the promises of God.

Why didn't Missionary Paul go about holding dances, and when everybody was in shut the doors and preach to them? Because Paul played the game with the rules of God to guide. Dances and cards lead away from Christ even when held outside the church. How much worse in church. God doesn't need the Devil's tools in constructing His holy temple. Any hewn rocks could not be used to build the altars of God. God can bring a holy people to perfection by His own methods and by none other. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation.

You

"I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men" (1 Tim. 2:1).

"Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth" (v. 4).

"Who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time" (v. 6).

The many times that the word "all" is given in this chapter certainly indicates the individual appeal of the gospel. God is not saving people en masse, but individually.

Right now forget about the person sitting beside you, and think: "God knows me personally." Although there are millions of people living God knows each one individually. He is infinite. He is closer to you than anyone else can be. He knows and understands you.

God has certain plans made for your life. You were not put here just to live, eat, sleep, and die. For each one of the teeming millions of earth God has drawn up a plan. This is not predestination, however. We are not forced to follow the plan. God has it for our use if we so desire. The word "will" in the 4th verse of our text is a translation of the Greek word meaning "desire." It is God's desire that each one will follow the plan God has for him. But it depends upon you whether or not His wish is granted. As you may remember, there is mentioned joy in the presence of the angels over one sinner that repents. If God is joyful when you go right, what would He be when you go wrong? My friend, God is concerned most individually about you. You are face to face with God.

What does it matter what your friends think about you on this subject? When you shut everybody else out, and you and your God deal with each other, then you can see what matters.

My friend, what you need is more vision of what your God wants of you.

Although we do not agree with Longfellow's ideas on the state of the dead, since we know the dead are really asleep and waiting for the resurrection, yet we can see an inspirational truth in his poem, "A Psalm of Life," excerpts from which follow:

"Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!

"Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not the goal:

"Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way;
But to act that each tomorrow
Find us farther than today.

"Art is long and time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums, are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.

"In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle!
Be a hero in the strife!"

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another."

THE BEST GIFT OF ALL

GRANDFATHER BROWN was dearly beloved by a large circle of relatives—sons and daughters, nieces and nephews, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Always they gathered together in the home of the son where Grandfather lived, and he was the center of the circle.

Now Grandfather was very old and so frail he was not able to leave his chair. His eyes were dim and his hands trembled. But he loved them all just as much as he had when he was younger. They knew that.

How did they know Grandfather loved them all so much? And wasn't it because they brought him such nice gifts and cared for him every day, that he loved them?

No, indeed! They knew Grandfather loved them because when he was younger he was always doing something for one of them. They had always taken all their problems to him because he was such an understanding sort of person. Nothing had made him happier than to be able to do something for some one who needed a helping hand in any way.

The last years of Grandfather's life had settled like a crown of gold upon his head. The kindness of all his past life was reflected in the lives of those about him. At Christmas time each one tried to think of a beautiful gift to give to Grandfather.

One little grandchild, Beth, puzzled her curly head for weeks over the selection of her gift to him. As soon as she thought of something especially nice she discovered that Grandfather already had that. There didn't seem to be a thing he lacked.

Here it was the morning before Christmas, and she hadn't made up her mind! She could have taken Mother into her confidence, but each one liked to choose Grandfather's gift without asking any other person about it. Grandfather was so very special, you see.

Beth went upstairs to make her bed and to straighten up her room as she always did. As she lifted her pillow her eyes fell upon the little Bible she always kept there. Every night before she fell asleep she read a few verses from it. Some verses she had read over and over.

She opened it now at the first page and read again the words written there: "To My Granddaughter, Beth, From Grandmother Brown. May she learn to love this Book."

How she did love it! And how often she turned to this page to read the loving words written in Grandmother's own trembling hand. It was her very dearest possession.

Suddenly she knew what she would give Grandfather for Christmas. She would give him her little Bible, the one given her by Grandmother, whom Grandfather had loved also.

Beth got her pen and wrote under Grandmother's lines these words: "To My Grandfather From his Granddaughter, Beth. I know he loves this Book." Then she wrapped and tied it very carefully in pretty paper and bright ribbon.

The strangest thing happened Christmas morning when all the relatives gathered to give Grandfather their gifts. Shyly Beth presented her little worn Bible, as gaily decorated as if it had been a new gift, and received Grandfather's gift to her in return. It was a new Bible, larger and more beautifully bound than the other one.

Beth opened it and read almost the same words that Grandmother had written in the old one, except that it was from Grandfather. Then she looked up and saw the tears of joy in Grandfather's eyes as he recognized the little Bible Beth had given him.

God's Gift to us, girls and boys, long, long ago in Bethlehem, was truly a Gift of Love. God knew that there was nothing this old world needed so much as One who could mingle with the people of earth and teach them His Father's love. So He sent His own beloved Son to be the world's best Christmas Gift.

Though the few, short years of Jesus' life on earth were filled to overflowing with deeds of love for mankind and messages of hope, yet it is in His coming again that we will realize fully the value of God's Gift to us. Then it is that the entire world will come to know Him personally.

Jesus will bring such blessings to this suffering and sorrowing world that we never have realized before. He will bring everlasting peace for one thing. And with that many other wonderful gifts for all.

There will be no little children who are lame or sick or blind, nor big people either. There will be no hungry or cold boys and girls, nor grown-ups either. All because Jesus will be here on earth with us to bring us all these things.

Isn't He the world's best Christmas Gift? The best Gift of all is Jesus.

"As with gladness men of old
Did the guiding star behold;
As with joy they hailed its light,
Leading onward, beaming bright;
So, most gracious Lord, may we Evermore be led to Thee."

AMONG THE CHURCHES

POMONA, CALIFORNIA

A board meeting of the California Conference of the Churches of God was held at the home of the president, Bro. Norman Macleod, in Pomona, Sunday, Nov. 22, 1936, at 3 p. m. Others present were Sr. B. G. Bleasdale, Sr. Gertrude Johns, Bro. J. E. Adamson, Sr. Grace Adamson, Bro. William Reid, and Bro. George Rahn.

The purpose of the meeting was to lay plans for the conferences to be held during the coming year. The first one-day conference is announced for Sunday, Jan. 17, 1937, in Los Angeles. Sr. E. C. Railsback will speak at the morning service. Bro. Macleod will have charge of the afternoon service. An effort is being made to secure at least one other speaker for the afternoon service.

A second conference will be held in the spring about the last of April or the first of May, the definite time to be set later. It was suggested that this meeting be conducted by the young people.

Grace Adamson, Secretary.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

On Sunday, Nov. 29, Elder E. O. Stewart of Sweetwater, Texas, gave his closing sermon to a large and interested audience. His two weeks of evangelistic work have been "meat in due season" to the congregation, and all are stronger than before. We pray the Lord's blessing upon our brother wherever duty calls, and that it may be our favor to work with him again.

Special Thanksgiving Day services were held at 10:30 in the morning, when many testified of the true Thanksgiving Day spirit. Following this meeting it was the pastor's pleasure to unite in marriage Alden Overholser and Esther Good of the Lawrenceville congregation.

S. E. Magaw, Pastor.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

Our early morning Thanksgiving service on Thanksgiving Day was extremely well attended. When more than sixty adult members of a church are sufficiently thankful to gather at 6:30 in the morning for a worship and devotional service we feel very proud of the group, and thankful to God for their loyalty.

Bro. Harry Goekler has been doing good work here as assistant pastor for the past two months. His sermons are well presented, and our people have learned to like him. On the past two Sunday mornings he has assisted with the work at Dutton church at the invitation of Bro. Owen Barney and the Dutton brethren.

Work on our Christmas music has been progressing for several weeks. The cantata "Babe of Bethlehem" will be presented at the Godwin School gymnasium on Wednesday night, Dec. 23. The music is under the direction of Miss Evelyn Barr, and the other part of the program is being given by the various Sunday school classes.

A carload from South Lawn Church enjoyed the opportunity of motoring a round trip of 150 miles to attend services at Blanchard, Mich., December 2. Bro. J. R. LeCrone gave a good sermon which we enjoyed being able to hear.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

CASHMERE, WASHINGTON

November 18 brought to a close a series of very instructive lectures by Bro. Cecil Sater. He very ably illustrated and presented many things from the Word of God, speaking of the creation and of the prophecies recorded in Daniel, also of things recorded in the Revelation letter.

Much interest was shown and I believe much good has come because of this added effort in the spreading of the Word.

Not only did this strengthen the brethren, but the following Sunday evening we rejoiced to have three young people, Mildred Watts of Deer Park, Wash., and Alta Brisky and Donald Drake of Cashmere, make it known they wished to be obedient in baptism and have a part in the promises of God.

They were baptized the same evening and immediately after took part in the keeping of the ordinances as commanded by the Master. May God give them the strength, courage, and wisdom to be overcomers.

A goodly number attending from out of Cashmere came from Chelan, Deer Park, Wenatchee, and Puyallup, Wash., and Oroville, Calif.

Lyle Rankin, Pastor.

REPORT FOR NOVEMBER

Sermons: Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; Dana, N. C., 4; Guthrie Grove, S. C., 10; Brumfield, Ky., 1; St. Louis, Mo., 2; Blush, Mo., 2. Baptisms, 4. Funerals, 1. Marriages, 1. Money received in Indiana: Hillisburg, $20.00; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $7.00; conference board, $4.34. Expense, $5.50.

We are glad to report the baptism of Miss Ethel Merrill and Hamilton Stepp, both of Dana, N. C.; and of Miss Hazel Hammond and Mrs. Celey Anderson of Pelzer, S. C.

On Thanksgiving Day it was our pleasure to unite in marriage Mr. Clarence Jennings and Miss Alice Graham, both of St. Louis, Mo. Sr. Jennings is one of our faithful members at the Blush Church. They will make their home in St. Louis, where both are employed. We wish for them the best of life.

While we were in the pulpit in Plymouth last fourth Sunday, word came that Jimmy Clark, our daughter Maggie's son, had passed away. The baby was only one month and three days of age. Its stomach had closed and an operation had to be performed. The child could not stand the operation, so passed away. How we long for that day foretold by Isaiah when nothing will hurt the little babes (Isa. 11:8, 9).

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

C. B. Compton; W. A. Reid; Mary J. Calkins; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Lillian A. Greiner; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Netts; H. H. Hawkins; Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Marian R. Richards; A. Friend; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Maybelle Hanson; Golden Rule Church of God; Mr. and Mrs. J. Don Swartz; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stadden; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Helen M. Chisholm; Silas M. Claypool.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Sr. Tony was taken suddenly ill during the services at Welland two weeks ago. She was rushed to the hospital where she is gradually recovering. Several hemorrhages weakened her, but it is thought she will soon be her normal self.

Just before the close of the regular evening services November 22, some one opened the outside door of the Fonthill church and stepped inside. Bro. W. H. Holland, Sunday school superintendent, went into the vestibule and there stood a well-dressed young man. Asked if he were waiting for some one, the stranger replied that he was. He then inquired if services were nearly over, and was invited to the church basement to wait. Bro. Holland returned to the congregation. At the end of services, it was learned that apparently the young man had made his exit with the overcoats belonging to Irvin Barnhart and John Spry. Police are investigating.

C. E. Randall, Pastor.

Copies of the short play, "How the Girls Kept Christmas," by Mary A. Gesin, may be secured postpaid from the National Bible Institution at 5 cents each, or 50 cents a dozen.

GOOD-OVERHOLSER

At 11:30 a. m., Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, Mrs. Esther M. Good became the bride of Alden Earl Overholser. Both are of Springfield, Ohio, and attend the Lawrenceville church. They will make their home about four miles south of Springfield. We hope they will have many Thanksgiving Days as happy as the one of '36.

Sydney E. Magaw.

Robert Mattison, of the younger set in the Oregon, Ill., congregation, combined the business of life with pleasure when he visited the Casey, Ill., church November 21 and 22. . . . He will leave Oregon in February to spend some time with his grandfather, S. J. Lindsay, in Tempe, Ariz.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Maybelle Hanson	$ 4.00
Anna M. & Almeda Wertz (ind. fund)	5.00
Lottie E. Young	25.00
Frances Wynne	8.00
Mr. & Mrs. C. E. Lapp (ind. fund)	12.50
Jennie Baker	1.00
Mrs. Charles A. Harris (ind. fund)	4.00
Gertrude M. Logan	4.50
Jessie W. Donaldson (ind. fund)	5.00
A. C. Boyer	1.00

According to the Church of God Messenger, bulletin of the Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., churches, Mr. and Mrs. James Moore of the Niagara Falls group have reached Coulee Dam, Wash., where they will spend the winter with their son, Earl L. Moore.

George Rennard, long-time elder of the Niagara Falls, N. Y., church, shows slight improvement from a paralytic stroke suffered some weeks ago. His address is 356 8th St., Niagara Falls.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

Jascha Heifetz, virtuoso, has solace for the devotees of the new rhythm in swing music. "It's the same old music," he barked at Leopold Stokowski, orchestral conductor. "It's just music with enthusiasm." And then Heifetz tuned his violin for a Mozart concert.

The power of the press was responsible for the tremendous influence exerted on the health of the world by the annual Christmas seals of the Tuberculosis Associations of the Nation. The North American, Philadelphia paper, championed the new cause of a Wilmington, Delaware, group in 1907 and by the end of 1909 had raised receipts from the sale of tuberculosis association seals to $135,000 annually. Last year, the figure totaled more nearly $83,000,000.

The columnist who promoted the campaign for the North American has produced a vivid account of the causes and results of the association stamps, and Reader's Digest (December) has printed it. Once the most prolific cause of death in the United States, tuberculosis has been so vigorously attacked by the research furnished through the sale of seals that only 57 deaths from t. b. are recorded in this country each year for every 100,000 in the living population. Children formerly doomed, today are healthy; breadwinners once forced to quit their jobs forever, now are assured rapid recovery.

By buying tuberculosis association seals, one gives something more than a toy to a child ill-favored by the gods of wealth; he provides that child with the opportunity to have the health that will enable him to fight his own battles with life. The purchase of a hundred seals, like the purchase of a Red Cross membership, gives life where there was death, gives happiness for sorrow, turns illness into health.

If this continues, some one will have to start publishing a magazine for others to copy. To date, we know of Christian Reader's Digest, Religious Digest, Fact Digest, Current Digest, Fiction Parade, Reader's Digest, Literary Digest, Digest and Review.

Alois Stephen is probably the world's blue-ribbon husband. He's a young Austrian who's just been arrested in Vienna for marrying 61 girls for their dowries.

The Dionnes nearly—not quite—had rivals. Presses stopped in London newspaper offices. Newsmen and photographers roared from Fleet Street to a Southend-on-Sea nursing home. A telegram had reached London from the home: "Betty gave birth to five." Chastened reporters interviewed the small girl who had sent the message. Betty, it seemed, was an Alsatian dog.

Bloodthirsty, these Chinese. General Pen Yu-hsiang proposes that his people stop using buttons. This would, he insists, save enough yearly to buy 400,000,000 bullets, which could kill 50,000,000 enemies.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53,54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Arlen Marsh filled the Dixon, Ill., pulpit on the morning of December 6 during the absence of L. E. Conner, pastor of the church. Elder Conner is conducting a series of evangelistic meetings at Burr Oak, Ind. Details of the Dixon evening service will be provided later.

All except six of the members of the last Training Class have been married. And if our correspondents have it right, two more are succumbing rapidly.

The Emphatic Diaglott, by Benjamin H. Wilson: the New Testament retranslated; interlinear Greek-English translation; fabri-koid binding; Bible paper, gold edges; Bible dictionary and index; $2.50. National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

CHRISTMAS CARDS WITH SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Let your Christmas be Christ-centered this year by using only biblical greeting cards. Both these assortments are remarkably varied and of exceptional beauty. Sentiments and Bible verses have been chosen with unusually good taste.

Assortment No. 621 (pictured): $1.00. Purchased individually, the 21 folders in this lovely gift box would cost $1.50. Besides this saving, the box can be used again for containing gifts to others. We offer this particular selection because we believe, after investigation of the market, that no better one exists. The price includes transportation charges.

Assortment No. 612 (not illustrated): 50 cents. There are only 12 folders and envelopes in this box, but their individual retail value is 80 cents. Like the box with Assortment 621, this box can be used as a beautiful container for gifts. The folders are quite as choice as those in the larger selection. Customers west of the Rockies add 5 cents to help cover postage.

The true and largely forgotten significance of Christmas points at the Christ. Help to recall this to your friends with cards based upon the Bible. The texts are not obtrusive, but they do convey a message.

In each assortment are eight different papers and eight different processes. There are two metal seal numbers and several beautifully embossed designs.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON, ILLINOIS

GENTLEMEN: Please send me box(es) of Assortment No., for which I enclose my remittance.

Name

St. & No.

City State

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

"Keep Christ in Christmas" is a slogan adopted by a number of the religious publishing houses and dealers which, like Little Lulu of The Saturday Evening Post, tells its own story. The rapid degeneracy of the church has inevitably led to the greater degeneracy of Christmas.

That the day is intended to celebrate the birth of the Messiah is lost sight of in the galaxy of parades, false snow, hirsute Santas, and advertisements of the perfect gift. The Bible has an exceptionally large sale; but this may justly be accredited to the fact that the human imagination weakens ultimately in conceiving of the proper present, and the Bible can always be used.

In an effort, therefore, to aid the readers of this department in choosing their gifts, a selection of books and magazines centered in Christianity, but as entertaining as any piece of secular literature, is hereinafter offered. Reading, of course, is altogether a matter of personal taste; and so if you disagree with the conclusions suggested by the list, lay it to the pitiful prejudices of the reviewer.

Ben Hur is, I repeat from last week, the greatest religious story ever written. First published in 1880, it still has a very considerable annual sale. With the exception of the Bible, it has been the second in the line of English-language best sellers. Historically accurate. Writing the book converted the author (Gen. Lew Wallace) from agnosticism to Christianity. The story itself is pure fiction; but the background and the characters are authentic. This is the only edition printed in large type. $2.50.

Christian Herald, a somewhat innocuous journal of ethics and sociology, spends a good share of its time advertising for money, but you needn't pay attention to that unless you wish. It doesn't pay the word rates the regular commercial magazines of equal circulation pay, and consequently its fiction isn't quite up to par; but its articles will do you no harm and may convey a bit of information now and then. $2.00 a year; if another magazine is ordered at the same time, $1.75.

The Husband of Mary also was mentioned last week. It ranks, I think, with Ben Hur and The Story of the Other Wise Man. It's the tale of Joseph and his betrothed, of the fierce pride of the Jews, of gossip and unholy suspicion. And it's a tale of beauty, of Christian sympathy, of biblical accuracy. $1.10.

The Story of the Other Wise Man is Henry van Dyke's immortal contribution to the world of Christian fiction. Like Ben Hur, this book has marched through many years and a multitude of editions, and its popularity still runs on. A search for the Christ, bitter disappointment, self-sacrifice—these are the theme. 85 cents.

Religious Digest condenses the best (according to its editors) of the articles and books appearing from religious publishing houses. Strongly in favor of the Oxford Movement, it seems to smack more of bias than its great god-father, Reader's Digest. $3.00 a year. It's monthly.

The Fool Hath Said will be an excellent gift for your friend who doesn't altogether believe in God. I've read a considerable quantity of trash on the subject of the existence of God in personal form, but this book is outstanding. If you're easily shocked, however, prepare yourself. For this was written by a reporter. $2.00.

Hurlbut's Story of the Bible will be very good for children, and not too young for you. Even I liked it, and I don't go in very strongly for juveniles with the exception of the Thornton W. Burgess yarns. It covers the entire Bible by a selection of short stories. $2.00. Of course, it's illustrated. What children's book isn't?

The Standard Bible Story Readers (there are six of them) are graded in text and illustration for six different ages. A circular containing full information about them will be sent on request. I've strained the brain for over twelve hours today, and I've run out of adjectives. Ergo, the Readers are swell. They're cheap, too.

In the 25-cent lines, I've seen nothing better than Thomas Nelson & Sons' output of little books for small children. There's a picture in full color on the right-hand page, a dash of narrative text to help make up a complete story about a Bible character on the left-hand page. And there's a circular about these, if you want it.

Thomas a Kempis' Imitation of Christ is issued by half the book publishers in the country. The gift edition by Collins, however, is inexpensive and lovely: large type, limp blue cover, stained edges. The book is a long essay and a famous one about Bishop Kempis' ideas on Christianity. It's written in archaic English, and it's one of those things a lot of people give because they think it's the thing to do. 85 cents.

Then there's the sixth annual volume of Christmas, containing the most beautiful color work and printing these weary eyes have ever seen. Stories, articles, carols, poetry (which I haven't read, although I bought a copy of the book), and sundries fill its pages. And the photography and art work are magnificent. It comes in a special gift box, wrapped in cellophane. $1.00.

Which leaves enough room to mention that the National Bible Institution can supply all these items.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 15, 1936

NUMBER 11

“A Saviour, Christ the Lord”

Our Christmas Editorial

THE DARKNESS that crept across the hills above Bethlehem and filled the deep valleys with impenetrable gloom at the approach of night was typical of the spiritual darkness that shrouded the entire earth in hopelessness and fear before the glory of the heavens fell upon the startled shepherds and the angel's voice intoned the message:

“Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.”

The glory, the beauty, the heavenly splendor of these words can be fully grasped only after devout and earnest searching of the prophetic Word. For they announced the coming of the One in whom and through whom all of the rich promises of God were to be accomplished. And how few are familiar with the magnitude of those promises!

THE HOPE OF ISRAEL

First of all, the message was addressed to those who “waited for the redemption of Israel.” “For unto you,” the Jewish shepherds and their long-suffering brethren, “is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.”

For centuries Israel had waited and wept and prayed for that day to dawn, the day of Messiah's coming, the day when the predictions of the prophets and the promises of the Lord should be fulfilled: “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful Counsellor of the Mighty God and Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.” He of whom it was said that “of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever.”

(Please turn to Page Nine)

Abreast of the Times

King Edward VIII Abdicates

"Thou hast made me king over a people like the dust of the earth in multitude. Give me now wisdom and knowledge."—2 Chronicles 1:9, 10.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The House of Parliament, the magnificent structure that has witnessed the enactment of so many important historic events, heard today an announcement that was absolutely unique in the annals of Great Britain and that was of political importance the extent of which cannot be estimated at this time.

House of Parliament

Amid a solemn hush the House of Commons listened as Prime Minister Baldwin read the following Empire-shaking declaration which had been drawn up and signed by King Edward and witnessed by his three brothers, their Royal Highnesses the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent:

"I, Edward VIII, of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British dominions beyond the seas, King and Emperor of India, do hereby declare my irrevocable determination to renounce the throne for myself and for my descendants and my desire that that effect should be given to this instrument of abdication immediately.

"In token whereof I have hereunto set my hand this tenth day of December, 1936, in the presence of the witnesses whose signatures are subscribed.

"(Signed) Edward R. I."

In these simple terms the ruler of nearly one fourth of the earth's surface and nearly one fourth of its inhabitants expressed his renunciation of that authority. This is the first time in history in which a British sovereign has voluntarily given up his throne.

What effect King Edward's abdication will have upon the future of the vast empire of which he was the titular head only the distant future will reveal. But that it will influence the trend of events throughout the Empire to a pronounced degree is the concerted opinion of observers everywhere. Not only this, but whatever changes of a major nature occur in the British Empire have a positive effect upon practically all other countries of the world.

Editorial comment must of necessity be brief and subject to the limitations of definite knowledge. This, however, we venture to say on behalf of Edward VIII, the most democratic and generally popular sovereign of modern times: One cannot help but admire the determination of a man in such a position who will give up a throne in order to place his union with the woman of his choice upon what he considers to be a moral basis.

With the people of Great Britain and the Empire at large we join in the prayer that the new King, who assumes the heavy obligations of rulership at once, may be given the knowledge and the wisdom for which Solomon prayed when he was called upon to succeed David.

Mormons Would Ban War Toys

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke 2:14.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 6.—The Latter Day Saints, generally referred to as Mormons, the church founded on the purported "revelations" of Joseph Smith contained in the Book of Mormon, has issued an appeal to parents that they purchase only non-military gifts for their children at Christmas. In a general letter sent to their churches throughout the world from their headquarters here, the women's auxiliary, known as the Latter Day Saints Relief Society, pointed out:

"How inconsistent it is on the holiday honoring the birth of Christ to put into the hearts of children, by means of their toys, the very opposite of the message that heralded His birth—'Peace on earth' . . . Counters of some toy stores are covered with tanks, cap pistols, soldiers, machine guns, and cannon. The merchants provide toys that sell. If, this Christmas, parents do not buy this type of toy, on another Christmas they will not be placed in stock."

"At a time when the whole world is troubled with talk of war, a peace attitude even in gift-giving is particularly important," said Mrs. E. M. Empey, trustee of the Relief Society. "We intend to do everything in our power to induce not only members of our church, but all other thinking Americans as well, to put an end to the production of toy armaments. We want the Nation's children to understand that war is not a game."

The Associated Press calls attention to the fact that in 1932 a measure was introduced at the League of Nations' disarmament conference to prohibit the manufacture of warlike toys. The motion was referred to a committee, where it died.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Meaning of the Grail

By Arlen Marsh

IT WAS A NIGHT to make another superstition. Thirteen men were in the room, and thirteen was to be thereafter the mark of all bad luck.

It was Passover.

Tension flicked across the twelve and stayed. The thirteenth, surrounded by the others, somehow remained aloof. Sad retrospection filled his eyes—that, and a dignity that seemed far more than human. The Christ was holding His Communion.

"This," said the Nazarene, "you should do in remembrance of me."

The words were strange. Puzzlement covered up the tension. Was not this the Messiah? Was He not the Son of God? Was He not to establish a kingdom through which Israel would rule the world? Then why should He be speaking of their remembering Him? They were to be with Him—always.

The Master was staring at Iscariot. His voice was sharp: "What you intend to do, do quickly." It snapped out as a command.

And Judas wrapped his cloak about him, passed out into the night. Greed stormed across his face. Now was the time to earn thirty pieces of silver. Jesus was Israel's Messiah. He could never be destroyed. He had escaped the priests before. Judas was poor. He left the twelve behind, moved alone through the narrow crooked streets. He had need to hurry. The Passover supper generally was over, and many were now walking. It would take time to batter through the crowds. The temple, where Caiaphas was waiting, was some distance.

Huge bolts of fire swept through the night. Here and there, along the wall, fell screaming torches that were men. They sizzled as they struck the water in the moat. Flame licked along the water's surface, fed on pools of still-hot oil.

This was Tyre, and the war machines were throwing blazing, oil-soaked balls into the city. But the machines themselves were burning. The defenders could use fire, too. There was no quarter in this war to seek the Grail, the Cross, the Sepulcher. The first of the Crusades was marching on Jerusalem, and Tyre must be taken.

New centuries dragged by. The church, wearied by Crusades that had cost two million men, again turned itself to rest. Mutterings from priests and Popes were the sole disturbing note.

And then came Luther and the German Reformation. John Knox swept Mary from her throne in Scotland. The Inquisition rose and perished within Spain, its methods having gone as far afield as Holland. The Armada was defeated. There were two Napoleons, a Bismarck. The church, stirred from its lethargy by the birth-pangs of Protestantism, went back once more to slumber.

Today, the Grail is practically forgotten. Legends about Richard Coeur de Lion, about Lancelot, about Galahad, about Arthur, about Launfal, are read daily in the public schools, are taken daily from the libraries. Harold Lamb writes histories of the Crusades and stirs the pulses of the people with the dormant memory of glory and the lust to fight in Asia. But vague flutterings, too faint to cause serious disturbance to its peace, are all that mar the slumber of the church.

Communion's purpose, origin, and destiny have been too long neglected ever to be successfully revived. Communion, represented in tradition by the Holy Grail, that cup that Jesus used in establishing the Supper, has come to evil times. Communion is a ritual, no more.

It was Simon the Rock, upon whose effervescent faith the church itself was built, who paralleled the doctrine of the Christ's Communion with his two Epistles. They were written, so said Peter, first named Simon, to stir up the minds of his readers by way of remembrance. And the Communion was instituted for precisely the same purpose.

Peter intended that his readers should remember the gospel that he, Peter, had been preaching. He intended that they should exercise their memories with thoughts of Jesus, God, the kingdom. He meant that they should recall their Christian duty to live exemplary lives.

Peter's purpose is one needed for today. The church, for several causes, has lost sight of its original aim, has changed its character, has degenerated. Those rites once held important, the Communion, baptism, marriage, are considered lightly, as one considers the wierd rituals of voodoo.

Out of Germany, which has spawned a vast number of philosophies as it has wars, came, during the last century, what first was known as higher criticism, and which later, through the process of eternal change, came simply to be known as modernism. Under its new title, higher criticism was hardly criticism at all, but rather a vague form of skepticism of the Bible and its works.

Higher criticism had had a lofty aim. It had been intended that it should

(Please turn to Page Ten)

The Lesson of Bethlehem

GENEVA, London, Shanghai, New York, Paris, and Washington, D. C., represent great centers of our twentieth century civilization. In them are to be found libraries, banks, art galleries, churches, stock markets, universities, political arenas, hospitals, and marts of business; but none of these cities contains an answer to the problems facing a confused and disintegrating society. From these metropolitan areas we must turn to a lowly village "among the thousands of Judah" for the lessons which humanity needs to learn today.

Like the shepherds who watched their flocks upon the hills while the angelic host appeared at night, we must say, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem." It is difficult for the modern man or woman to leave the materially measured success of life and return to the simple Bethlehem of nineteen hundred years ago. The beauty and mystery of the story seem almost incompatible with streamline trains, swift airplanes, lofty skyscrapers, complex international affairs, race hatreds, millions on relief, and the lust for wealth and power. Bethlehem confounds the thoughts of the wise and of the proud.

From this city of David comes a lesson in spiritual values which is the only answer to a careless, pleasure-loving generation. Almost twenty centuries ago throngs of people had traveled far to enroll in their own city, according to the decree of Augustus Cæsar. On that night the inns were crowded with merchants, traders, lawyers—the rich and poor alike—whose only thought was the attainment of material wealth. Probably there was no one in Bethlehem who was talking of the coming Messiah, for the age was a corrupt one. Vice had become a science, and crime was prevalent. Graft in the religious rites and practices in the temple at Jerusalem was becoming so flagrant that in a few years Jesus Christ would cleanse the temple and rebuke its violators.

Within a barnyard hovel Jesus Christ was born of Mary; "and she wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn" (Luke 2:7, A. R. V.). How many a hostelry door was closed against Him that night no one can tell. The real issue for us today is, How many doors would be shut against Him should He come in like manner tonight? There was no place for the humble approach of the Son of God. There was no room in the inn where the throngs of merry-makers held festive sway. "He came unto his own, and his own received him not" (John 1:11). They were too busy. They were concerned about many things, but not about Him. They had no room for Him even in their hearts.

To some of the humblest souls have come the eternal truths of the kingdom. God has stooped low to touch humanity, and the proud and arrogant, the rich and noble, have been many times passed by. The thief on the cross received salvation when the priests and rabbis were rejected. The leper was cleansed when many a rich man's guilty soul remained black with sin. Jesus Christ called fisher folk to proclaim the gospel of the kingdom. And the announcement of the Messiah's birth was heralded to shepherds guarding their flocks by night.

The message of the angelic choir cannot be passed by carelessly. It is the essence of Christianity, and it aims at the greatest problem of a disillusioned world—the problem of the world today.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased" (Luke 2:14, A. R. V.). How often do I give glory to God for all my benefits? Like the nine lepers healed by Jesus who never returned to give Him thanks, so we pass by His providences and blessings without a prayer of thanksgiving.

But with our love to God must come a relationship with our fellow men. "And on earth peace among men." A war-weary world hastens its preparations for another death agony. There is no world court to solve the discordant problems of harassed statesmen. Geneva councils of the League of Nations have proved futile, and wars move on apace. The world must return to Bethlehem to find the Prince of Peace.

As one writer has beautifully stated the relation of God to man: "Heaven and earth are no wider apart today than when shepherds listened to the angels' song. Humanity is still as much the object of heaven's solicitude as when common men of common occupations met angels at noonday, and talked with the heavenly messengers in the vineyards and the fields. To us in the common walks of life, heaven may be very near."

Until man establishes this direct communication with heaven there can be no peace. Jesus Christ said, "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace" (John 16:33). This relationship, broken by sin, will be restored when Jesus Christ returns again. This man "shall be our peace."

"These are the men that devise mischief, and give wicked counsel in this city: which say, It is not near; let us build houses; this city is the caldron, and we be the flesh. . . . But I will judge you. . . . and ye shall know that I am the Lord: for ye have not walked in my statutes, neither executed my judgments, but have done after the manners of the heathen that are round about you."—Ezek. 11:2-12.

The human mind is incapable of fathoming the relationship established between earth and heaven by the birth of Jesus Christ in Bethlehem. "They shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us" (Matt. 1:23). No more precious promise has ever been given to mankind than this announcement made by the angel to Mary. From the time that Adam and Eve sinned in the Garden of Eden there had been a promise of a coming Redeemer (Gen. 3:15). The relation between heaven and earth had been broken, and man had gone farther and farther from God; but Jesus Christ restored that relationship, and "God with us" could truly be said to be the relation of the Son of God to man. The Messiah came that He might show man what the heavenly Father's character was. He was the thought of God in human form that could be understood. It is to Bethlehem that we must return if we would find the most precious relationship between heaven and earth. As we pray, "Our Father," we acknowledge the unity of all men. There is no "forgotten man" with God, for He so loved the world that He gave the gift of eternal life to all men through His Son.

With Jesus Christ came the "more abundant life." It is not a new thing in our day. Jesus gave the true meaning of the term when He was here among men. "I am come," He said, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10).

Bethlehem is not only a place to learn the lesson of humility, the theme of peace on earth, good will toward men, or the relationship of God to man through Jesus Christ; it is also a message of salvation. The birth of Christ in Bethlehem was for one purpose, and that was clearly stated in the message to Mary: "He shall save his people from their sins" (Matt. 1:21). This was the great purpose of the Son of God. In childhood, youth, and manhood He lived an exemplary life. At the age of thirty He took upon Himself a public ministry of teaching the people, healing the sick, and raising the dead. This would have been a noble work, but it would not have saved mankind from their sins. It was necessary that He should take upon Himself the death for sin which belonged to every man. "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (1Heb. 9:28). (Please turn to Page Eight)

The Spirit of Christmas

By Jeannette Rovine

ONCE we get into the real spirit of Christmas we can find nothing like it. There is a kinder feeling in our hearts, and the whole world is a better place in which to live. It takes no diamond bracelet nor expensive new model of the larger cars to make our Christmas a happy one. The small gifts which are made by loving hands and that half fill the stockings are the ones appreciated the most. And it's not what we give but why we give. The love that prompts us is too great for any Christmas bough to hold.

Christmas is very old. On the first Christmas, gifts were given. The star of Bethlehem guided the three wise men to the birthplace of the baby Christ. The wise men came from far away. They brought gifts of rarity and gifts which only the wealthiest could buy. Long ago the spirit of Christmas was born and it has lived through the long, long years. Christmas is the broad-embracing love which we feel for our friends and comrades.

Christmas was not made a festival until the fifth century. Often other dates besides December 25 were set aside for Christmas. But after many years the whole world set aside December 25 as the date of the Nativity. There is no evidence that this date is absolutely correct. However, this is not important; the important thing is the feeling behind it.

Christmas has been celebrated in many different ways. In parts of our own country it sometimes is celebrated by whole communities. In a central location a large evergreen tree is set up. It is decorated with colored lights, tinsel, and glass ornaments. Then the whole community is gathered together. The group sing Christmas carols and Santa Claus comes for the little children. He gives gifts of toys, candy, and fruits.

In French villages the homes are the center of the festivities. A holiday supper is eaten on Christmas Eve. The ceremony of burning the yule log takes place the same evening. At midnight the bells of the various churches ring. The merry-makers then become solemn and each one lights his Christmas candle. They take these candles with them when they go to church and there celebrate the birth of Christ. Here, too, small children are not forgotten. Their wooden shoes are filled with sugar plums.

In merry England, a blazing plum pudding, yule logs, and red-cheeked carolers are symbolic of Christmas.

The Spanish and Italians are more religious. Decorations represent the Nativity. Christmas is a great and holy day.

All over the world Christmas is celebrated. Good cheer is spread and the true meaning of Christmas is kept. Christmas is a day of universal love and great joy.

"For Christmas is a-comin' in. That great day, that high day, that day when the busy world is stopped and the heart is mellow and life is at its crest" (Ladies' Home Journal, December, 1935).

The Decline of Millenarianism

By A. H. Zilmer

MILLENARIANISM is the belief that Christ will reign personally upon the earth with His saints for one thousand years, or an indefinitely long period before the end of the world (Standard Dict.).

There is an abundance of evidence showing that for several centuries immediately following the days of the apostles the belief prevailed in the church that there would be a literal reign of Christ upon this earth lasting a thousand years, that the saints would reign with Christ, and that the coming of Christ and the resurrection of the just would precede such millennial reign. Likewise it can be shown by an abundance of evidence when this teaching began to fall into discredit, through whose influence this was done, and to what extent.

This is just as true of other doctrines taught in Scripture. We mention here the doctrine of the absolute oneness of God, the nature of man, the destiny of the wicked, the scriptural teaching concerning sin, the form and design of baptism, and many others which fell under the baneful influence of speculative minds not content with "the simplicity that is in Christ" (2 Cor. 11:3).

The famous historian Edward Gibbon, who cannot be justly charged with being biased in favor of Christianity, had this to say as touching the millennium: "The assurance of such a millennium was carefully inculcated by a succession of fathers from Justin Martyr (A. D. 105-167) and Irenæus (130-202), who conversed with the immediate disciples of the apostles, down to Lactantius (260-325), who was the preceptor of the son of Constantine." Gibbon styled the millennial doctrine "the ancient and popular doctrine of the millennium," and said that it was "intimately connected with the second coming of Christ" (Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, Vol. I, pp. 397, 398). "This witness is true," as we know from original sources. The ecclesiastical historian Mosheim said that "long before this (the third century) an opinion had prevailed that Christ was to come and reign among men a thousand years." He further said that "this opinion . . . had hitherto met with no opposition, but in this century its credit began to decline, principally through the influence and authority of Origen (186-253), who opposed it with the greatest of warmth, because it was not compatible with some of his favorite sentiments" (Mosheim, Ecccl. History, page 68).

Prof. A. Harnack of the University of Berlin says that Jerome (340-420) "already feels himself emancipated from 'Jewish opinions,' and he ridicules the old anticipations," and then significantly adds, "It was reserved for Augustine (354-430) to give a direction to Western theology which carried it clear of the old millenarianism. He himself had at one time believed in it; he, too, had looked forward to the holy Sabbath to be celebrated by Christ and His people on earth. But the signs of the times pointed to a different prospect. The church had attained a position of supremacy. . . . Under these circumstances Augustine was led to grasp and elaborate the idea that the church is the kingdom of Christ. He was the first who ventured to teach that the . . . church in its empirical form was the kingdom of Christ, and was therefore an accomplished fact. By this doctrine of Augustine's the old millenarianism, though not completely extirpated, was at least banished from the realm of dogmatic. For the official theology of the church it became a thing of the past" (Enc. Brit., 9th ed., Vol. XVI, p. 317).

We shall now give extracts from the writings of the "fathers" of the first three centuries which establish the truth of the foregoing statements, and as nearly as possible give them in the order in which those men lived.

"To Him who is able to bring us all by His grace and goodness into His everlasting kingdom, to Him be glory and honor and majesty forever. Amen" (Polycarp, 69-166, Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol. I. p. 43).

Papias (70-155) testified, "'For He must reign until He hath put all enemies under His feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.' For in the time of the kingdom the just man who is on the earth shall forget to die."

"Other things also the same writer (Papias) has set forth as having come down to him by unwritten tradition, some new parables and discourses of the Savior. Among these, he says, that there will be a certain thousand years after the resurrection of the dead, when the kingdom of Christ will be established visibly on this earth" (Taylor's Reign of Christ on Earth, p. 56).

"If therefore you fall in with certain who are called Christians, who confess not this truth, but dare blaspheme the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in that they say that there is no resurrection of the dead, but that immediately when they die their souls are received up into heaven, avoid them and esteem them not as Christians. But I and whatsoever Christians are orthodox in all things, do know that there will be a resurrection of the flesh, and a thousand years in the city of Jerusalem, built, adorned, and enlarged according to the prophets. For thus hath Isaiah spoken of this one thousand years, 'For there will be a new heaven and a new earth,' " etc. (Justin quoting Isa. 65).

"And when you hear that we look for a kingdom, you suppose, without making inquiry, that we speak of a human kingdom; whereas we speak of that kingdom which is of God, as appears also from the confessions of their faith who are charged with being Christians, though they know that death is the punishment awarded to those who so confess. For if we looked for a human kingdom, we should also deny our Christ, that we might not be slain, and we would strive to escape detection that we might obtain what we expect. But since our thoughts are not fixed on the present, we are not concerned when men cut us off; since death also is a debt which must at all events be paid" (Justin, 110-165. Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol. I, p. 166).

"But I and others who are right-minded Christians are assured that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, and a thousand years at Jerusalem, which will be rebuilt, adorned, and enlarged, as the Prophets Ezekiel, Isaiah, and others declare.

"We have perceived, moreover, that the expression, 'The day of the Lord is as a thousand years,' is connected with this subject. And, further, there was a certain man with us whose name was John, who prophesied by a revelation that was made to him, that those who believe in our Christ shall dwell a thousand years at Jerusalem" (Justin, Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol. I, p. 239).

"If, therefore, the great God showed future things by Daniel, and confirmed them by His Son; and if Christ is the stone which is cut out without hands, who shall destroy temporal kingdoms, and introduce an eternal one, which is the resurrection of the just, as he declared, 'The God of heaven shall raise up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed'" (Irenæus, 130-202, Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol. I, p. 555).

"Thy kingdom come" has also reference to that where-to "thy will be done" refers—in us, that is. For when God does not reign, in whose hand is the heart of all kings? But whatever we wish for ourselves we augur for Him, and to Him we attribute what from Him we expect. And so if the manifestation of the kingdom pertains to the will of God and unto our anxious expectation, how do some pray for some protraction of the age, when the kingdom of God, which we pray may arrive, tends to the consummation of the age? Our wish is that our reign may be hastened, not our servitude protracted. Even if it had not been prescribed in the prayer that we should ask for the advent of the kingdom, we should unbidden have sent forth that cry, hastening toward the realization of our hope.

"Nay, Lord, Thy kingdom come with all speed, the prayer of all Christians, the confusion of the heathen, the exultation of angels, for the sake of which we suffer, nay, rather, for the sake of which we pray" (Tertullian, 160-220, on "Prayer."—Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol. III, p. 683).

"After a little space the stone will come down from heaven which smites the image, and breaks it to pieces, and subverts all the kingdoms, and gives the kingdom to the saints of the Most High" (citing Dan. 7:13, 14). "All these things then are in the future . . . Moreover, concerning the resurrection and kingdom of the saints, Daniel says, 'Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall rise, some to everlasting life.' And John says, 'Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection.' These things I have set shortly before thee, O Theophilus, drawing them from Scripture itself, in order that, maintaining in faith what is written, and anticipating things that are to be, thou mayest keep thyself void of offense both toward God and men, 'looking for that blessed hope and appearing of our God and Savior,' when, having raised the saints among us, He will rejoice with them, glorifying the Father" (Hippolytus, 170-236. Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol. V., p. 209).

"Two advents of Christ are foretold: one in humiliation, which He has accomplished; the other in glory, which is hoped for to be accomplished, when He shall come to give the kingdom to those who believe in Him, and who observe all things which are commanded" (Clement, 250).

We now briefly summarize the teaching contained in the foregoing extracts:

1. Polycarp, living very close to the days of the apostles, with others, was hoping to be brought into the everlasting kingdom of God.

2. According to Papias the just man living on the earth, at the time of the kingdom would forget to die, i. e., he would be immortal.

3. The thousand years spoken of in Revelation 20 would be after the resurrection. This would be the time of the kingdom.

4. It was considered to be orthodox to believe in the millennial reign after the resurrection, and unorthodox to believe otherwise.

5. The Christians of the second and third centuries were looking for the kingdom—not a human but a divine kingdom to be set up on this earth.

6. The expectation of such a kingdom was based upon the prophecies of Isaiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and others, as well as the Apocalypse of John.

7. The Christians during the first three centuries were praying that the kingdom of God might come, using the formula, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven."

8. They were expecting that the kingdom, when set up, would break in pieces all existing kingdoms.

9. To those Christians all this was in the future.

10. In order to obtain an entrance into the kingdom the believers must do those things which were commanded.

11. The doctrine of the millennial reign was both ancient and popular long before the third century, and met with practically no opposition until the time of Origen (186-253).

12. Augustine, the great Latin theologian, was the first to conceive the idea that the church was the kingdom, that the millennium had commenced with the appearing of Christ, and was therefore an accomplished fact.

13. This was due to the fact that by the time of Augustine the church had become wealthy and powerful, and was able to sway theological opinion in the western part of the Roman Empire.

14. This caused the ancient doctrine of the millennium to become, for the official theology of the church, a thing of the past.

We now transcribe the doctrine of Augustine with reference to the kingdom as contained in his work, De Civitate Dei (The City of God).

"The church now on earth is both the kingdom of Christ and the kingdom of heaven . . . The saints reign with Him now. Thrones (Rev. 20) may not be understood of the last judgment, but by the thrones are meant the rulers' places in the church, and the persons themselves by whom it is governed . . . The church which is now is the kingdom of God. Thus then the church reigns with Christ . . . Christ's kingdom is the church" (Augustine, 354-430, in The City of God, Vol. II, p. 256).

Here we see the gradual decline of millenarianism from the days immediately following the apostles down to the full development of the Augustinian doctrine that the church is the kingdom of God or of Christ. Not only did Augustine seize and elaborate this idea but, owing to the tremendous power he wielded in the church, he "gave a tendency to Western theology which carried it clear of the old millenarianism" (Harnack), and the Western church became the most outstanding and resolute proponent of the idea that the church is the kingdom of God. Others before him, such as Origen and Jerome, had opposed the idea of a millennial reign of Christ, but it was reserved for Augustine to develop and introduce into the church the doctrine that the church is the kingdom. The twentieth century teachers who advocate this theory are but following in the wake of Augustine, and upon this point are in complete harmony with the Western church.

We give herewith extracts from two of the published works of Mr. Alexander Campbell, a prolific writer of great ability, and founder of a religious group with various ramifications. Mr. Campbell sets forth the idea that the church is the kingdom of God. The extracts follow:

"The first act of His (Christ's) reign was the bestowment of the Holy Spirit, according to the prophecy of Joel and His own promise . . . Thus commenced the reign of heaven on the day of Pentecost, in the person of the Messiah, the Son of God, and the anointed Monarch of the universe. Under Him His people, saved from their sins, have received a kingdom which cannot be shaken or removed . . . Every immersed believer of good behavior is by constitution a free and full citizen of the kingdom of heaven . . . Such . . . constitute the present kingdom of God in the present world. So far the phrases 'kingdom of heaven' and the 'congregation' or 'body of Christ' are equivalent in signification" (The Christian System, pp. 145-147).

"Some of the disciples not only saw the Son of Man enter upon His reign and the kingdom of God come on the day of Pentecost, and carry its conquest over Judea, Samaria, and to the uttermost parts of the earth, but they saw the Lord come with power and awful glory and accomplish all the predictions on the deserted and devoted temple, city, and people" (Christianity Restored, p. 174).

As the well-instructed reader will see at a glance, this view overlooks an array of scriptural testimony which is not inconsiderable. The writer of these extracts saw Christ as King, and the saints as the citizens or subjects of His kingdom, whereas, according to the scriptural teaching, the saints are to reign with Christ. This is stated often, and with slight variation. "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him" (2 Thess. 2:12; Rev. 2:26; 3:21; 5:15; 20:4-6). Those who shall "enter" into or "inherit" the kingdom must first "do" or forbear doing certain things (Matt. 25:34; Acts 14:22; 1 Cor. 6:9, 10; Gal. 5:19-21; Eph. 5:5; 2 Peter 1:10, 11).

There were some in the church at Corinth who imagined they were reigning as kings. To such the Apostle Paul wrote: "Now ye are full, now ye are rich, ye have reigned as kings without us: and I would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you" (1 Cor. 4:8). Such an attitude was an evidence of being "puffed up" (v. 6). Their reigning as kings was "without" the Apostle Paul and Apollos (v. 6), as well as "Sosthenes our brother," whom Paul associated with himself in the composition of this letter (chap. 1:1). But more than this, the Apostle expressed the ardent wish, "I would to God ye did reign" so that Paul and his associates "might reign with" them. This was a most effectual way of denying that the brethren at Corinth were in any manner reigning in the kingdom of God. The saints have been promised a kingdom (James 2:5), as also a crown (chap. 1:12), but they will only receive the crown at Christ's appearing (2 Tim. 4:1-8; 1 Peter 5:4). No one would think of reigning without being crowned.

Thus the idea of a present church kingdom is proved both historically and scripturally to be erroneous. Better be a "disciple" such as was Joseph of Arimathea, and be "also looking for the kingdom of God" (Matt. 27:57; Mark 15:43; Luke 23:51; John 19:38).—The Faith.

CHRISTMAS CAROL

On the sad and the lonely, the wretched and poor,
The voice of the Christ child shall fall,
And to every blind wanderer open the door
Of a hope that we dared not to dream of before,
With a sunshine of welcome for all.

The feet of the humblest may walk in the field
Where the feet of the holiest have trod.
This, this is the marvel to mortals revealed,
When the silvery trumpets of Christmas have pealed,
That mankind are the children of God.

THE LESSON OF BETHLEHEM

(Continued from Page Five)

The coming of Jesus Christ gave direction and purpose to a chaotic world. As one scholar says, "When we ask what idea of world process was held by the thinkers and teachers of Greco-Roman society, we find that they all thought of it as, in one way or another, a vain eternal recurrence, leading nowhere." It was an age which had many characteristics like our own. The intellect had been highly developed in Greece, and the culture of the Greeks had been disseminated through the Roman Empire. Disillusionment seized the minds of men. Yet into such a world came the Son of God, declaring, "I am the way, the truth, and the life." This is the complete answer to the world in travail.

At this season of the year the heart of humanity must turn again toward Bethlehem. The Christ of the manger is the hope of the world. Without Him there shall never be peace or good will among men. His first advent is the promise of His second coming. When Jesus Christ ascended into heaven He left the promise, "I will come again." The preparation for the return of Jesus Christ in power and glory is the final lesson of Bethlehem. As the world was not ready to meet the Son of God at His birth in the city of David, so it will not be prepared to stand in the day of His second advent. "Be ye . . . ready" is God's message to a careless and indifferent age. Christ comes; do we receive Him? Or is there yet no room?—Merlin L. Neff in Signs of the Times.

—0—

"A SAVIOUR, CHRIST THE LORD!"

(Continued from Front Page)

With sorrow the children of Jacob remembered the fateful words which Jehovah sent to Zedekiah their King by the Prophet Ezekiel, words which condemned them to twenty-five centuries of national living death, but which also assured them of eventual deliverance:

"Thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."

Simeon, "waiting for the consolation of Israel" through sleepless nights of prayer in the temple, thought of the coming Messiah, the Christ of God and the Redeemer of Judah, as the One of whom it had been said:

"I will take you from among the nations, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land. Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean. . . . A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God."

The regathering, the cleansing, and the eternal redemption of all Israel were the hope that centered in the coming of the Messiah to sit upon the throne of His father David in Jerusalem.

THE HOPE OF ALL NATIONS

The blessedness that was to flow from the Savior's birth was not limited to Israel—for "in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; unto him shall the nations seek: and his resting place shall be glorious." The clangor of battle shall no longer reecho anywhere upon the earth, for men "shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

More glorious still, those races that have had no access to Jehovah, "being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world," would be brought into closest unity with the heavenly Father through the "blood of Christ"; both Jews and Gentiles through Him would "have access by one Spirit unto the Father," because in Christ there "can be neither Jew nor Greek, there can be neither bond nor free, there can be no male nor female: for ye are all one man in Christ Jesus."

In Christ is made possible the spiritual unity of all races today, and in Him will be centered the social and political unity of all nations when He comes again!

THE HOPE OF A SIN-CURSED EARTH

Blighted by the curse pronounced upon them because of sin, vast areas of earth are covered with burning desert sands or fathoms of ice and snow—incapable of supporting life in any of its myriad forms. But all these deserted regions are brightened with the prospect of renewal by the Savior of whom the angel spoke to the trembling shepherds on that midnight so long ago.

For when His great work is finished, when He comes the second time and completes His God-given work of redemption and restitution, "there shall be no more curse" in all the earth, but "the throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him." Then "the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. . . . And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

THE HOPE OF A DYING RACE

Countless ages of bitter experience have taught us the lesson that "tomorrow we die." As some unidentified poet has said:

"Our days begin with trouble here,
Our life is but a span;
And cruel death is always near,
So frail a thing is man."

Ever before us are the certainty and the fear of death. We cannot escape from it. "The living know that they shall die." There is no question about it! Let the poet sing as he will, "There is no death," we know he but deludes himself with dreams. "Death is still the ugly fact which Nature seeks to hide."

But, glorious thought! unto us was born that day "in the city of David, a Saviour!"—a Savior from Death! And He who came so long ago under the glory-filled skies of Judea, He whose birth sent the glad echoes ringing throughout the corridors of heaven and earth, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men," is not only the Redeemer of Israel from age-long degradation and misery, He is not only "the Desire of Nations" and the Prince of universal Peace, He is not only the Restorer of earth's lost beauty and productiveness!

Above and beyond all this, piling all this with the great glory of more marvelous accomplishment—Jesus Christ, the Savior of Bethlehem's manger, is the mighty Conqueror of Death, the last enemy of mankind, and that forever! He who "tasted death for every man," is He who said in truth, "Do not be afraid; I am the First and Last, I was dead and here I am alive for evermore, holding the keys that unlock death and Hades!"

"This same Jesus" is coming again to finish the work of grace and glory He began two thousand years ago. We may welcome Him back, if we will!

THE MEANING OF THE GRAIL

(Continued from Page Three)

discover the presumed flaws in the Bible, correct them, and give the world again a "perfect" work. Emendations in the text of Scripture, historical "corrections," and assertions as to the uninspired origin of the Bible were made rapidly.

Schools took up the system. Universities, first in Germany, then in France and England, then in the United States, seized upon the higher criticism as a means to relieve the world of its misconceptions of God and of His Word. Ingersoll gave frequent lectures on the mistakes of Moses, and men like Bryan snorted their defiance. Kel-land produced his one religious story on the subject, which was then one of the chief apples of the public eye.

The church, however, was a sleepy thing. Human inertia is natural, and the church was only human, only trying to make itself divine. Bryan could debate, but it was far easier to laugh with Ingersoll than to be serious with Bryan, especially since Ingersoll had a smattering of fact at his command and Bryan was lacking in information about anything except the Bible and free silver.

The church, sleepily, went modern. A little knowledge had been, for it, a dangerous thing. Darwin had propounded evolution as a theory, and the world had accepted it as fact. Darrow had argued Bryan into his grave in Tennessee. Education had poured a veneer of information over intellects incapable of distinguishing true facts from false. Wars brought credit, mass production, spewed automobiles over the world. Motion pictures moved from nickel street arcades to transplanted European palaces. Harlem popularized the more sensual of jazz. It was a time for laughter, not for solemn silence, thought. Only the scientists were thinking, and they were immersed in work, not caring what the public did or said.

November, 1929. Headlines leaped across newspaper pages, told in three-inch type of the second greatest financial disaster in the history of the world. (The greatest was in 29 and 30 A. D., and nearly bankrupted the entire Roman Empire.) Men committed suicide. The world went mad with a kind of palsied grief.

Depression hardened. Church attendance rose. Men who once had been too busy playing golf returned to Sunday church. They had no money to play golf. Religion could be had for nothing. Slogans were pasted about the stricken country: "Prosperity Is Just Around the Corner" and "Wasn't the Depression Terrible!" Business bureaus pled for prayer.

Communion meant something in a time like that. Men were seeking solace for the loss of the riches that had wings. Promise of a kingdom to be established on the earth, in which prosperity would never end, was sweet to hear. Any rite which would recall the sacrifice that made that kingdom possible was worth consideration, solemn practice.

The March of Time recorded the outpouring of borrowed wealth by the Administration. Governments elsewhere in the world were finding conditions somewhat better, economically. Gradually, the United States came to find them that way, too.

Church attendance dwindled. The church had roused a little, but not enough for its own good. Modernism, which occupied nearly 90 per cent of the Nation's pulpits, had taught that men would build a perfect home for men, and without the aid of God. So men went back to building.

Spiritually, the country, and every other country, was as bankrupt as a Scotchman at the time for paying income taxes. Class fought, and still fights, class; labor unions struck, with or without cause; capital found itself the nucleus for governmental and popular attack, and promptly showed hesitancy about putting more money into business. Religion, as in the palmy days of '28 and early '29, was forgotten.

Church leaders had slept, had tried to be too brilliant. It all was the same thing. And the world had suffered for it.

But the so-called fundamentalists, who clung stubbornly to belief in the inspiration of the Bible, had also slept. Blind prejudice had governed them, and prejudice accomplishes nothing but division. No medium between the humanized religion of the modernists and the fictitious fundamentalism of their opponents had been struck.

Modernism had preached that when man died, he died. Fundamentalism, sticking through prejudice to the fly-papery philosophy it had garnered from Persia and environs, continued to teach that, despite the mediceos, the psychologists, post mortems, and the surgically revived, man, when he died, didn't die. It was far more logical to accept the superficially true statements of the modernists than to swallow the impossible assertions of the fundamentalists, particularly since the latter preached a hellendation which everyone knew didn't exist. So the world returned to modernism, or accepted it more generally.

The Communion service was designed to counteract the sleep of both these schools of thought—those who sleep because a little knowledge is a dangerous thing, and those who sleep because of prejudice. Like Peter, it recalls the death and resurrection of the Christ—both, regardless of the modernists, historically authenticated wholly aside from the biblical narratives. It recalls why Jesus came into the world, it recalls what He taught and what He did. Communion, in short, represents that medium which almost no Christian denomination has yet struck, that medium between fundamentalism and modernism which is the true religion of the Christ. Communion is the center of our faith, points backward to the institution of the service, and its cause, and forward to the second coming of the Christ.

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER

Clarence Budington Kelland, probably the most prolific writer in the magazines today, has long been my favorite author; but it was not until reading Thirty Pieces of Silver that I suspected him of having a religious bent.

Normally, Kelland's style is staccato, ultra-modern. Hard Money, The Jealous House, and some few of his earlier books are rare exceptions. Thirty Pieces of Silver combines the best points of all his literary career—a long one—and does nobly in approaching such classics as Ben Hur and The Husband of Mary.

Despite my prejudice, I am unable to hold that Thirty Pieces of Silver is the equal of Ben Hur. But it does not require prejudice to say that the book is one of the best religious stories that has ever been produced.

As its title suggests, Thirty Pieces of Silver concerns Judas Iscariot. It is based upon the idea of a militant atheist who, through his mania for collecting coins, has a vision of the betrayal, the trial, the crucifixion. Judas, weak, horrified, finally a suicide, plays a villainous and tragic over-tone in the entire piece.

The story is short; the language is exceptionally readable, if not parallel to the simple narration of the other modern Christian classics. Thirty Pieces of Silver would do quite as well for an Easter story, or for a story for any time of year, as for the Christmas season.

Harper & Brothers: 75 cents; 85 cents postpaid.

THE UNUSUAL

Although not technically concerned with a book review department, the scriptural thermometers manufactured by the Gospel Trumpet Company merit some consideration during the Christmas season. For, after all, not everyone likes to read, nor is everyone, owing either to health or to education, able to read, and these thermometers make religious gifts that are both practical and beautiful.

The one illustrated here measures approximately 5 x 7 inches, is lithographed in full dull color, framed in glass, and has an appropriate religious motto. The thermometers are accurate (I've checked them myself with others to test their adjustment), and, because of their being under glass, they are not likely to slip down on their scale or break.

Full information as to the complete line, which includes two sizes and a number of styles, will be furnished promptly on request. The size illustrated sells at 75 cents, postpaid.

POPULAR COMMENTARY

This first volume of an entirely new commentary on the International Sunday School Lessons represents something unique in its field. For the Popular Commentary, covering all the lessons for 1937, ignores the comprehensive departmental idea (from kindergarten to adult) in favor of an extensive commentary on the printed text of the lessons.

In addition to the commentary feature, which appears to be unprejudiced although naturally tinged with orthodoxy, there is a large number of suggestive questions for each lesson. Most books on the International Lessons furnish a half dozen questions, several pages of pointless essays, and allow the teacher to figure out the balance for himself. Not so, Popular, which gives the teacher specific help that all the other commentaries combined don't furnish.

There are blackboard illustrations, poems, quotations, and outlines for teaching the lessons. Space is given to illustrations of the golden texts, and to discussion of methods and subject matter for senior and intermediate departments. All told, the content makes the book one of the most valuable additions to Sunday school literature that has appeared in many years.

Fleming H. Revell Company: $1.00; $1.10 postpaid.

STORY OF THE GOSPEL

This is, in reality, an abridgment of the longer Story of the Bible by Charles Foster. One of the most remarkable things about it is that it concludes by describing with great accuracy the second coming of the Christ to judge the world, and the resurrection of the dead.

As in the case of The Story of the Bible, this book is composed of a series of short stories couched in language suited for children of about 5 to 12. The Story of the Gospel is particularly aimed at interpreting the teachings and parables of the Christ. The chief error seems to lie in the conception that Jesus came down from heaven, the old idea of preexistence. This notion, however, is mentioned rarely, and the fault may safely be disregarded.

The type is large, and there are many line drawings. Only one illustration is in color—the frontispiece.

A. J. Holman Company: $1.00 postpaid.

Richard De Bury said this: "Books are delightful when prosperity happily smiles; when adversity threatens, they are inseparable comforters. They give strength to human compacts, nor are grave opinions brought forward without books. Arts and sciences, the benefits of which no mind can calculate, depend upon books." De Bury was the pen name of Richard Aungervyle.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

The Book of Joshua

By Alberta Lorena Puterbaugh, 15, Brush Creek, Ohio

After the death of Moses, Joshua was appointed by the Lord to lead Israel to the Promised Land. He sent two men to spy on Jericho. They got in trouble and were protected by Rahab, a woman who believed in the Lord. The spies showed their gratitude by promising to save her and her household when the city was taken. The scarlet cord was to hang in the window to save all that dwelt in the house.

Israel came to the Jordan River. After three days the people saw the priests bearing the ark of the covenant. They followed a long way behind. When the soles of the priests' feet touched the waters the waters parted, and the people of Israel passed over on dry ground. Twelve stones were taken from the river bed as a memorial to prove Israel had passed over on dry ground. They were now in the Promised Land. They renewed the circumcision, kept the Passover, and then the manna ceased.

The city of Jericho was given into the hands of Joshua. Rahab and her kindred were saved.

Then they went to take Ai. But Ai smote Israel. One man had disobeyed the word of the Lord and taken spoil from Jericho. When he had been punished Ai was captured. The children of Israel continued in war until all the cities around about were taken.

Cities of refuge were appointed so that a man that killed another accidentally could find refuge. Forty-eight cities were given to the Levites. The land was divided among the twelve tribes according to God's will.

The Lord gave Israel a rest from war when He gave them all the land He had promised unto their forefathers.

In Joshua's old age he called together all the children of Israel and commanded them to follow the Lord.

Why Not Do This?

Mrs. Emory Macy tells how she "stimulates interest in the young people's class of Berean and adds to their understanding of God's Word" in her class in the Brush Creek Church, Ohio, Berean Society. The Berean society gives a Bible to those who complete the following requirements:

- Memorize the names of the books of the Bible in order.
- Give orally ten Old Testament character sketches.
- Give orally ten New Testament character sketches.
- Memorize the 23rd Psalm.
- Memorize any fifteen verses of the New Testament.
- Write a 1,500-word thesis on any book of the Bible.
- Be responsible for three visitors.
- Get one subscription to THE RESTITUTION HERALD.

Thus far three girls and one boy have received their Bibles.

Procustes' Bed

Like the man who, when a traveler spent the night, fitted him to the bed, it is necessary for your editor to fit the articles that come to us. The page holds only 1,040 words less the headings, and unlike the travelers in the old story all must occupy the same bed at the same time. So please excuse me when we find it necessary to lop off a few words. On some occasions I have found it necessary to condense to a fraction of the original length. I find in my own writing that I am apt to be too wordy and need a good condenser. It really improves my articles to have some one go over them ruthlessly with a blue pencil. The same is true of most writers. Please write on only one side of paper. Leave spaces between typewritten lines. And please condense your own articles as much as possible.

Minnesota Berean Conference

"Gospel Foundations" was the theme followed in the quarterly conference at Eden Valley, November 28 and 29. The meeting opened Saturday morning with devotionals led by Bro. C. E. Lapp. Bro. G. L. Cooper then led a class in discussing "Why the Name—Church of God." In the afternoon Bro. Lapp taught a class on "Baptism," and Bro. J. R. LeCrone spoke on the question, "Where Are the Dead?" In the evening, after a song service led by Bro. Cooper, Bro. Lapp brought a message, "The Regathering of Israel."

Sunday morning Bro. LeCrone took as his subject, "The Location of the Kingdom." The business meeting was called to order in the afternoon by President Lester Mills. After a worship period and reading of the minutes, a report was given by Editor Cooper pertaining to The Nobler. The former Berean treasurer having moved out of the State, Lillie Berry of Lester Prairie was elected to fill the vacancy. Reports of local societies were given, and Mora invited the next conference. A report was given on the matter of presenting a radio to Bro. Ronald Thoms of Whipholt, who is confined to his home with a serious illness. We ask all Bereans to join us in remembering him in prayer and deeds of kindness. A program followed the business session.

Miss Lucille Grossard and Mrs. J. R. LeCrone were in charge of the evening song service. Bro. Cooper closed the conference with a sermon on "Be Ye Separate."

Fifty Bereans had registered. Many visitors attended. The isolated members outnumbered any of the visiting societies. Entertainment was furnished by the Eden Valley Bereans in their homes and in the church basement. We feel that much good was rendered from this conference. We pray that the knowledge gained by these studies will help us to so live that we will be better prepared for the coming of the great day of the Lord.

Marjorie Ruhn, Corresponding Secretary.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom."

MANY LANDS LEARN THE GOSPEL

LET US SEE how much we can remember of the lessons we have studied during the past three months. The gospel or good news of God's kingdom, with Jesus as King, was not at first preached outside of Asia, that large continent wherein Palestine is located. But with the first lesson in October we began to learn how the good news spread to Europe.

Do you recall what it was Paul saw in his dreams one night that caused him to cross over into Europe? Remember the voice saying, "Come over and ——." Can you finish the sentence? What sort of help did they need?

Then do you still know the name of the woman who sold beautiful materials, who was the first one to believe what Paul preached? And can you tell where it was those first believers met and prayed?

In lesson 2 we learned about a young woman who was a sort of fortune teller. See if you can tell what Paul did about that and what the "owners" of the girl did to Paul. What happened when Paul was thrown into jail? And who was it that said, "What must I do to be saved?"

Paul immediately taught that man and all his household that if they believed Jesus was the only One who could save them, they should be baptized. And this they did.

Lesson 3 tells us about the first Bereans. Remember that? They were more noble, you know, than those of Thessalonica because they studied their Bibles every day. Studying the Bible makes people noble even today, if they obey it.

Paul was in Corinth in lesson 4, establishing a church and teaching the members to love each other as Christ loved them. You remember, Paul wrote that wonderful letter to the Corinthians, the 13th chapter of which we like so much to read, the Faith, Hope, and Charity chapter.

In lesson 5 the great Apostle tells all those who would listen to him it is a Christian's duty to obey his country. Of course if one's country commands him to disobey God, then God comes first. But a good government would never do that. He wrote that to the church at Rome, but it is a good rule for all of us today.

Paul started a church at Ephesus, too, and the letter he wrote them is called Ephesians. In it he declares the life of a Christian to be sort of like that of a soldier. Do you remember, he said our sword is our Bible, our shield is faith? Can you recall any other likenesses he made? What did he say about our sandals? That was lesson 6.

Can you recall some of the dreadful things that happened to Paul in Jerusalem? You know, he was warned not to go there, but he felt it was his duty, and so he went. Look in lesson 7 and see what happened to him.

Now you begin, I'm sure, to remember more about what Paul was doing. You will recall better some of the lessons, for they are those we have had more lately. Lesson 8, Paul, a prisoner, in his own hired house, but guarded by a soldier! Did he stop preaching? Could anything but death stop Paul, do you think?

Lesson 9 was that most interesting story of the runaway slave. I think every one of you can tell that, for it is so full of exciting events. That story shows how kind and loving Paul was, better than any other lesson, I think.

Timothy was a young man who was very dear to Paul and helped him much, Paul wrote two letters to him, teaching him some important things he wanted him to know. For this young man became a great preacher. Can you tell the names of his mother and his grandmother? That is in lesson 10.

Lesson 11 leaves Paul and goes to the story of John, another great worker for Jesus. This lesson concerns the time when John was very old. Do you remember where he was and why he came to be there? Can you tell something about the beautiful vision God sent to John to comfort him? In what book of the Bible do we find it?

The last lesson of the three months' study is the Christmas lesson. There is no need for me to recall any of it to your memory. All of you know the beautiful story of the birth of Jesus.

As you celebrate the Christmas season this year, stop often to think of the reason for it. We do not observe Christmas merely to see how many gifts we will receive or how many we will give.

God's great Gift to the world was Jesus, the Savior. If we had never been given a Savior we would have no hope for the future. But because Jesus came the future looks brighter than the present.

Soon, soon, we hope, Jesus will come again to earth. And this time He will be crowned King in reality, and all who love Him will receive a blessing from Him.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

"WHAT WOULD YOU DO?"

Responses are beginning to come in to the appeal that was made in The Restitution Herald of November 24, under the above title. Remember, "to the one submitting the most scriptural and logical answer to the question" (as given in the "Among the Churches" department of that issue) "before January 1, 1937, The Restitution Herald will give a copy of Goodspeed's New Testament."

The question in effect is this: If you had a friend whom you wanted to interest in the gospel, but he did not care to read tracts, books, or papers, nor even to talk on religious subjects or attend church or Sunday school, "WHAT WOULD YOU DO" to arouse his interest and influence him to investigate the truth pertaining to the kingdom of God?

This is an important question and your answer to it may result in helping some one to lead a friend to believe and obey the gospel.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Fifty years are a long time under present conditions, but it will be as a moment when the Lord comes and "life flows on in endless song" and youth is renewed as the eagle. Bro. and Sr. Frank L. and Ida Marsh of Ames, Iowa, passed the half century mark in their lives together December 14. The celebration of this happy event, however, will be postponed until Christmas Day, when they will meet with their children at the home of their eldest son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Orland Marsh, in Mt. Morris, Ill.

Congratulating friends will be received in the afternoon on Christmas from three o'clock onward.

Bro. and Sr. Marsh, like their parents before them, have been actively concerned in the advancement of the gospel throughout their lives and their steadfastness for the truth is being reflected in the lives of their children.

It is of interest to call attention to the fact that Bro. Levi Marsh, father of F. L. Marsh, gave the land and furnished the material for the construction of the Church of God in Irving, Iowa, in 1873. This was one of the earliest houses of worship dedicated in Iowa by this denomination. And Sr. Marsh's father was Elder James Prime, a pioneer evangelist of the church in the Middle West.

The Restitution Herald joins with their many other friends in extending to Bro. and Sr. Marsh most hearty congratulations.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. W. H. Poole; Fred Williams; William I. Hunt; William J. Halls; W. H. Klindt; H. J. Stadden (for self and another); Frances Wynn; James Maggard; Jennie Baker; Leroy Hiott; William Platts; A. C. Boyer; Mrs. William Lansbery (for another); Mrs. L. E. Marston; H. W. Patterson; Jessie L. Groves; Rose Barton; Seraphine R. Cleek; Lucy Robinson; Mrs. S. E. Hodges; Sarah E. Smith; Fred N. Patterson; Sherman P. Baker; Clarence Poland; D. F. Beck; Elna Ruhn; Mattie H. Scott; Maude Hickox; James A. Patrick (for others); Mrs. Howard Huey; R. E. Griner (for others); Mrs. Edwin Crosby.

POMONA, CALIFORNIA

There will be a one-day conference held in Los Angeles, Calif., Sunday, Jan. 17, 1937. Sr. E. C. Railsback will speak at the morning service and Bro. Norman Macleod will speak in the afternoon. An effort is being made to secure at least one other speaker for the afternoon.

Grace Adamson, Secretary.

GOLDEN RULE CHURCH OF GOD Cleveland, Ohio

December 20, the pastor's morning Christmas message will be "Gold and Frankincense and Myrrh"; in the evening, the sermon will concern "Our Coming Messiah." The morning topic for the last Sunday of the year (Dec. 27) will be "Life's December," and the evening topic "At the End of the Trail." M. W. Lyon is the pastor.

The young people of the Sunday school will present at 8 p. m., December 23, a playlet showing the fulfillment of prophecy. The playlet is entitled "The Sign of Peace."

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson R. Hicks will leave Cleveland soon to make their home in Orlando, Fla. Mrs. Hicks has been a member of the Golden Rule Church of God from childhood, and has served on the Sunday school teaching staff and in the Ladies' Aid. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hicks have been members of the choir. The Ladies' Aid gave the couple a farewell party on December 1.

The Golden Rule News, monthly bulletin of the church, is publishing each month a church honor roll, listing those members who have attended every service of the church during the month.

Christmas parties are being held by the Ladies' Aid (Dec. 10), and by the Beacon Class of the Sunday school.

Mrs. Frank T. Rogers, long-time organist for the Oregon, Ill., church, is recuperating from a serious operation at the Rockford City Hospital, Rockford, Ill.

MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

The Michigan Fall Conference convened at Blanchard from December 1 to 6, with Bro. Richard LeCrone as guest speaker.

Much local interest was shown and many enjoyed Bro. LeCrone's sermons on "The Great Commandment," "The Profitable Servant," "Resist the Devil," "Who Crucified Christ?" and "The Kingdom." Bro. C. A. Smead, the local pastor, spoke Sunday morning.

Because of the lateness of the season and inclement weather, only a few from away attended. One carload from Grand Rapids attended Wednesday and another carload attended Sunday.

Following a sumptuous chicken dinner on Sunday, a short business meeting was held.

This was Bro. LeCrone's first visit to Michigan as a speaker. We liked him very much and hope the feeling is mutual and that he may be with us again.

Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secretary.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Sickness has been quite prevalent among the members the latter part of November. The pastor was compelled to call off both the Wednesday and Friday night classes recently, on account of contracting the flu herself. Among those affected more recently, are Sr. Laura and Marie Bleasdale, Sr. Mildred Stantial and little Barbara and Tommy, Bro. Roy Juden, Sr. Emily Blackwell, and many of the younger ones.

We were happy to have Sr. Dora Courtney of Norco with us at services on December 6. It had been a long time since she could be with us. Sr. Thelma Moore and son Dean of Red Bluff, Calif., spent Thanksgiving week with relatives in Los Angeles and Pomona, spending two Sundays in worship with us and participating in the worship with vocal solos.

Encouraging letters have been received from a number of our isolated members. We are grateful for the hearty support of the work by those who can seldom attend services with us. They help with encouraging words and in a financial way as well. May God especially bless these true and faithful ones.

Sr. Jessie Kauffman, Y.W.C.A. worker of Riverside, Calif., comes sixty miles to worship with us every first Sunday.

Bro. Alexander Nichols of Cashmere, Wash., is spending the winter in southern California. He is a devout student of the Word and demands a "thus saith the Lord" for every argument produced. We wish every member would adopt this rule. Other newcomers from Washington are Sr. Bernice Alley and husband and Sr. Helen Ridley.

Sr. Effie Farmwold and family have moved to Riverside. We miss them at our services.

Sr. Jessie Seroggs was recently elected to serve as pianist for the Sunday school services. Long years of idleness in this capacity did not affect her accuracy. Bro. and Sr. Carlson and family, recently come from Cleveland, Ohio, are adjusting themselves to the conditions of this locality and particularly to taking hold of the work with a smaller group than they are used to working with. They are the kind who try to be helpful and we appreciate them.

In a few days the deed for the church lot will be in the hands of the church officers. Architectural plans are being prepared for the new building. Early in the new year the trustees hope to take out a permit and begin the work of construction. Anyone desiring to contribute to this work, please send his contribution to our church treasurer, Sr. (Miss) Betty Blackwell, 2804 Phelps Ave., Los Angeles. We are glad to report that contributions have been increasing and we are asking not only your financial help, but your earnest prayers that God may bless our efforts and much good be accomplished in this section of His vineyard. We want to be found working and earnestly contending for the faith when the Master comes.

Emma C. Railsback, Pastor.

During the absence of Pastor L. E. Conner, who was holding a series of evangelistic meetings at Burr Oak, Ind., the Dixon, Ill., congregation joined in a union service with other Dixon churches on the evening of December 6. Dr. Holland of the Little Brown Church of the Air was the speaker.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

The annual church business meeting was held on the first Friday in December. General plans for the work of the coming year were considered, and officers elected to carry out the work. One new elder was added to the working staff.

The church as a whole feels very optimistic, and very grateful for the guidance of the heavenly Father through these past trying years.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

We are happy to report the meetings held by Bro. L. E. Conner from November 23 until December 6 were very successful. The meat given us was palatable, and we feel it will be nourishment to our spiritual needs. Our prayers are that Bro. Conner will be able to carry the gospel many years to come.

Attendance at the services was gratifying, averaging fifty for each night. No conversions, but the seed was sown, and we believe it will in due time bring forth a fruitage.

The choir will give a Christmas cantata Sunday evening, Dec. 20, and the following week a pageant, "The Golden Flame," will be presented.

Bro. Butler has been confined to his home with an illness that demands quietness. Sr. Shearer is better than she was, also Bro. Joe Bender is improving. May we hold them before the throne of mercy for their early recovery.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

The Walrus, the Carpenter, and Alice stood by the sea in Wonderland.

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings."

And there was the title for this column, ready made by Lewis Carroll. We had thought it was all quite clear. But apparently Alice and the Cheshire Cat and the Queen of Spades are not so familiar as we had believed. Readers queried. Now we answer.

Forbes, one of the country's leading business magazines, allows that "Thoughts on the Business of Life" are important enough to fill a full page in each issue. It even gives a book to each reader who submits a favorite Bible text that is accepted for use in the department.

So the Machine Age destroys prosperity, induces unemployment. Bunk! observes Colby M. Chester, business man. For, says he, between 1870 and 1930, while the population increased 218 per cent, those engaged in gainful occupations increased 290 per cent.

Here's a recipe for longevity that we could go for in a big way. Bill Keler, 91, Pasadena, California, informs his public that the secret of his long life lies in his eating blueberry pie for breakfast. He's had a pie every morning for twenty-five years.

Now that feminine skirts are fashionably shorter, the old-timers can go back to talking about how much nicer it was when Mother was a girl. . . . As, for instance, the period of sheath skirts, split to the hip?

A good many citizens are getting hot and bothered about the military toys now on the market. Personally, we'd as soon believe in fairies as believe that the sons of Hapoo, the Stone Age man, didn't play with wooden hatchets. And most of the pacifists played either Indians or cops and robbers.

Reading Clergyman Evans' reports in The Chicago Tribune of the recent eight-day preaching mission sponsored by the Nation's second city leads us to wonder if the Prophet of Nazareth had anything to do with Christianity.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cook	$3.00
Seraphine R. Cleek (ind. fund)	3.00
Lucy Robinson	1.00
Maurertown, Va., S. S.	2.62
Mrs. R. A. Robinson	1.60
Mrs. H. E. Shepherd	3.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman	4.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman (ind. fund)	5.00
D. F. Beck	8.00
Etta Loudenslager	5.00
W. A. Reid	4.00
Emma Eaton	2.00

CHRISTMAS CARDS WITH SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Let your Christmas be Christ-centered this year by using only biblical greeting cards. Both these assortments are remarkably varied and of exceptional beauty. Sentiments and Bible verses have been chosen with unusually good taste.

Assortment No. 621 (pictured): $1.00. Purchased individually, the 21 folders in this lovely gift box would cost $1.50. Besides this saving, the box can be used again for containing gifts to others. We offer this particular selection because we believe, after investigation of the market, that no better one exists. The price includes transportation charges.

Assortment No. 612 (not illustrated): 50 cents. There are only 12 folders and envelopes in this box, but their individual retail value is 80 cents. Like the box with Assortment 621, this box can be used as a beautiful container for gifts. The folders are quite as choice as those in the larger selection. Customers west of the Rockies add 5 cents to help cover postage.

The true and largely forgotten significance of Christmas points at the Christ. Help to recall this to your friends with cards based upon the Bible. The texts are not obtrusive, but they do convey a message.

In each assortment are eight different papers and eight different processes. There are two metal seal numbers and several beautifully embossed designs.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON, ILLINOIS

GENTLEMEN: Please send me box(es) of Assortment No., for which I enclose my remittance.

Name

St. & No.

City State

Now after the birth of Jesus, which took place at Bethlehem in Judaea in the reign of King Herod, there came to Jerusalem certain Magi from the east, inquiring, "Where is the newly born king of the Jews? For we saw his Star when it rose, and have come here to do him homage." . . . After hearing what the king said, they went away, while, strange to say, the star they had seen when it rose led them on until it reached and stood over the place where the babe was. When they saw the star, the sight filled them with intense joy. So they entered the house; and when they saw the babe with His mother Mary, they prostrated themselves and did Him homage, and opening their treasure-chests offered gifts to Him—gold, frankincense, and myrrh. And then being forbidden by God in a dream to return to Herod, they went back to their own country by a different route.—Matthew 2:1-12; Weymouth's New Testament in Modern Speech.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 22, 1936

NUMBER 12

The Rich Man and Lazarus

By Margaret E. Bylsma

SINCE the interpretation of the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, with which we are already familiar, is so complete and entirely consistent with the balance of Scripture, it would seem that there is little that could be added to our present understanding of this passage.

A new interpretation is not the purpose of this study, but rather, a new approach and presentation of the subject, which adds authority to the views already possessed. There is also the further advantage in this presentation, that other important truth is brought to light, having a close relation to the completeness and unity of thought of the whole discourse, to which the parable forms the close and summary.

Particular attention is given the three verses of Luke 16:16-18, in the belief that much of the force of the Master's teaching is lost by a failure to recognize their importance as a connecting link between the discourse and the closing parable, which they preface. These verses are usually omitted from consideration in connection with a study of this parable and its context, and many times are represented as an apparent interruption of the discourse. They are sometimes thought of as an inexplicable confusion, having no relation to teachings of Jesus at this time, neither leading up to nor following their use, and not even bearing a relation to each other. This view is expressed in the footnote in the Emphatic Diaglott concerning this passage. Such conclusions are far from satisfactory, and when fully considered, not even acceptable. The authenticity of these verses is apparently not a matter of doubt, but only that they have any meaning or purpose as used. It would seem that beyond question these words must not only have definite meaning and purpose because of their use by Jesus, but, owing to their position, that purpose would be of importance to the unity and harmony of the whole.

No doubt there are many others who have felt that a study of this short passage is greatly needed, and these thoughts are ventured as a possible explanation, hoping that where other views exist they may be brought to light.

By a study of all that leads up to and which follows these verses, the continuity of thought seems more to be preserved than broken by their inclusion in this particular place. In order to gain a comprehensive view of the whole scene, it is necessary to read from the beginning of the 14th chapter of Luke and continue to the end of the 16th chapter. There is an unbroken sequence of parables and teachings, which run through all three chapters.

Jesus, dining with a chief Pharisee and this man's friends, encounters the usual hostility and hypocritical interest of such a gathering. There is none of the friendliness and hospitality which should be present, and it is easily seen that the watchfulness noted is not prompted by real interest or desire to learn, but by the hope of finding opportunity of belittling Jesus publicly. The greater part of the teachings which follow are directed at these scribes and Pharisees, teachings suited to their needs, as perceived by Jesus in observing their actions, their words, or in reading their unspoken thought. A crowd of the humbler class, sinners and publicans, is drawn by the teachings; and as these gather around, there is a murmuring among the Pharisees in criticism of such association.

Three parables are then told, which we find in the 15th chapter, the teaching common to all three being the value of that which is lost and joy in its regaining. This reproof for their class distinctions and scorn for these lost (Please turn to Page 9)

Abreast of the Times

"We May Only Hope"

"In his days . . . abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."—Psalm 72:7.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Speaking on "The Futility of Imperialistic Expansion," in a review of world conditions with reference to the Christmas message of peace, a radio commentator said that we may only hope that some day the message of Bethlehem will fall upon more receptive ears than those of the present generation. It would seem, the speaker observed, that "we have out-Heroded Herod" in our efforts to win territorial and economic expansion. "The world will not realize the peace it professes to desire for hundreds of years to come." Was the speaker right?

Industry and War

"Israel shall go forth, and shall set on fire and burn the weapons . . . seven years."—Ezekiel 39:9.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—A new drastic plan of industrial mobilization in war time, which would confer upon the President power to draft industrial management, commandeer manufacturing plants, fix prices, ration and distribute commodities, and regulate or close exchanges, was recommended today by the War and Navy Departments.

The new plan does not take into consideration the so-called "take the profit out of war" tax bill, which the House passed last session and which was reported with amendments by the Senate Finance Committee. Referring to the bill, War and Navy Departments recommended, however, that no law be passed which would have a tendency to "hinder, hamper, or destroy the more important mission of producing munitions as required in war."

There are two outstanding features in the proposed legislation that are of interest to the Bible student. First, the concentration of power in the hands of a single individual, here the President. While it is true that in time of war, Congress can confer any power upon the President without regard to constitutional limitations, to do so in time of peace, or to make provision for doing so in time of peace, is significant of the centralization of power tendency which is developing throughout the world and resulting in the assuming of absolute power by individual dictators. The final outcome of this policy will be the acceptance by the nations of the "man of sin," the Antichrist, as supreme ruler.

The second feature that is of particular interest to us is that such legislation will subject every man and woman in the country to "involuntary servitude" to the Government.

No "conscientious objectors" will or can be recognized under such a system. The disciple should take this eventuality into prayerful consideration immediately that its coming may not take him unawares and find him unprepared to take a definite stand as to what his attitude shall be in case he is required to submit to a military dictatorship.

Ezekiel describes the enormous quantities of munitions of war that will remain after the last great conflict is brought to a close. The nations are now engaged in preparing for the manufacture of those munitions.

The Breath of Death

"Thou shalt not be afraid of the terror by night."—Psalm 91:5.

LONDON, England, Dec. 16.—Everywhere in Europe preparations for the inevitable general war are in progress. Switzerland is constructing a line of "pill-box" forts along the border that separates the Alpine land from Germany and plans to man them, not with regular army troops, but with local residents of the vicinity who will be always ready and at hand to repel an attack.

France at the same time is constructing a second line of defense fortifications on her territory between herself and Switzerland as a protection in case Germany should succeed in fighting her way through Switzerland as she did through Belgium in the early weeks of the World War.

In England defensive preparations are taking many different forms, but special attention is being given to guarding against possible gas attacks from the sky. English firms which employ a large number of workers are drilling their employees in the use of gas masks, and one company, at least, has installed a self-sustaining refuge which, according to Popular Mechanics, is equipped with protective means against every known form of poison gas. Air filters, first-aid equipment, food, and water supplies are provided, together with radio and telephone to connect those confined within it with the outside world. It is said that a long siege could be successfully borne by means of this new "house of refuge."

President Roosevelt

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

What Form of Government Next?

IN HIS royal palace, a great king of ancient Babylon pondered this question, "What next?" And God revealed the answer by the inspired word of prophecy, spoken through Daniel the Prophet. King Nebuchadnezzar knew that a divinity above all the gods of Babylon had answered the question. He said to the Prophet, "Of a truth it is, that your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets" (Dan. 2:47).

From of old, divine prophecy foretold the order and course of earthly empire to our own day—and history records the unerring fulfillment. These historic prophecies are found only in the holy Scriptures. No other sacred books so speak; only the living God could tell the end from the beginning. The Author of holy Scripture says, "I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand" (Isa. 46:9, 10).

The "sure word of prophecy" reveals a living God overruling in the kingdoms of men, waiting the time when, in spite of sin and Satan, His original purposes of good for mankind shall be wrought.

The evidence shows that the day dawn of the era long foretold is now near at hand. The Apostle Peter urges us to give attention to this evidence: "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts" (2 Peter 1:19).

Let us turn, then, to the earliest prophetic outline of universal history, leading on through the centuries to the day dawn of a new and glorious era.

We go back 2,500 years, to the time of Babylon's splendor. Its greatest King, Nebuchadnezzar, was thinking of "what should come to pass hereafter." He was given a dream the solemn import of which he felt he must know. But he could not recall the dream. He called in his wise men. Do not picture the Babylon of that day as uncultured and ignorant. As Prof. Rogers says:

"Here were the great libraries of the Semitic race. Here were the scholars who copied so painstakingly every little omen or legend that had come down to them out of the hoary past. Here were the men who calculated eclipses, watched the moon's changes, and looked nightly from observatories upon the stately march of constellations over the sky" (History of Babylon and Assyria, vol. 2, p. 575, 6th ed.).

But all the Chaldean wise men and the priests of Marduk's shrine and the astrologers were helpless. The King saw the falsity of their claim to supernatural wisdom. Then came forth Daniel, a young Hebrew captive, a worshiper of the living God. The Holy Spirit had revealed to him the dream and the interpretation. This, he said, was the dream: "Thou, O king, sawest, and behold a great image, . . . and the form thereof was terrible. This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, his legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay. Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshingfloors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth" (Dan. 2:31-35).

"This is the dream," said Daniel; "and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king." And straightway he showed that the four parts of the image represented the four great universal empires of ancient history from Babylon to Rome.

BABYLON, THE GOLDEN KINGDOM

Daniel's interpretation ran on: "Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory. . . . Thou art this head of gold."

In yet more ancient writings Babylon has been called "the glory of kingdoms" (Isa. 13:19). Not the King personally, but the kingdom he represented, was symbolized by the head of gold. Gold was a fit symbol. The Grecian poet called it "Babylon the Golden." With its palaces and temples, its lofty gardens, and its massive walls and gates, Babylon impressed itself upon the minds of men for generations as the chief symbol (Please turn to Page Eight)

As the Year Ends-- So Does Man

Like as the damask rose you see,
Or like the blossom on the tree,
Or like the dainty flower in May,
Or like the sun, or like the shade,
Or like the gourd which Jonas had,
E'en such is man; whose thread is spun,
Drawn out, and cut, and so is done.
The rose withers, the blossom blasteth;
The flower fades, the morning hasteth;
The sun sets, the shadow flies;
The gourd consumes—and man he dies.

Like to the grass that's newly sprung,
Or like a tale that's new begun,
Or like the bird that's here today,
Or like the pearly dew of May,
Or like an hour, or like a span,
Or like the singing of a swan,
E'en such is man; who lives by breath,
Is here, now there, in life and death.
The grass withers, the tale is ended;
The bird is flown, the dew's ascended;
The hour is short, the span is long;
The swan's near death—man's life is done!

—Simon Wastell.

What's Wrong With the Church?

IT IS NOT an uncommon experience to meet people who lament the conditions which obtain in their church, sometimes because of the type of minister lately called to become their pastor (more or less modernist), and sometimes because of the appalling lack of zeal and enthusiasm for spiritual things on the part of the membership.

Conferences of church lay-workers and of ministers are held for the purpose of endeavoring to discover and, if possible, remedy the conditions which are making the membership disinterested, and the church weak and powerless!

Can the reason be ascertained? Well, some of us think it can!

The church today is powerless because it is voiceless! And it is voiceless because it is lifeless! And it is lifeless because it is careless! By that, we mean this: the church at large has no conviction, and therefore no distinctive message. Instead of being propelled with burning zeal and enthusiasm in proclaiming a gospel message of salvation from sin, it apologetically begs men and women to join its ranks on the strength of good morals and character, irrespective of whether they have been "born again." It is anxious to add to its membership "such as it can by any means persuade to join."

In contrast to the picture given by Peter (1 Peter 2:5), "as living stones, (ye) are built up a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices," the church today endeavors to build itself up with members "dead in trespasses and sins." It is thus fast becoming a dead institution! Is it any wonder that a dying church has become a voiceless church?

When its ministers doubt whether there is anything from which man needs to be saved (thereby making of no effect the death of Christ), is it any wonder that laymen come to disbelieve the gospel? And without belief, where the need of a voice warning men of a danger that does not actually exist?

Can a group that is without hope offer hope to those who are lost? If the church were more concerned about "quality" than "quantity," it would still be a medium through which God could work.

A salvation that is real gives joy. A joyful religion attracts! A joyful church would also attract. As I attend services in different churches in various places, I marvel at the coldness and lack of joy in the worship. Jesus, through John, gave the prophetic picture of the church in the last days: "Neither hot nor cold"—lukewarm! Saying, "I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing," and knowing not that "thou art wretched, and miserable, and blind, and naked."

The prophetic picture which the Apostle Paul saw was somewhat similar, for he saw in the last days perilous times because in the church would be men with all the traits of the unrighteous, "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof" (2 Tim. 3:1-4). In other words, "neither for nor against," that is, lukewarm. Not "denying" by word, but in their lives.

I doubt not that when he said: "From such turn away," he saw an association of churches—those "fundamental" and those "modern"; some affirming the "divinity," others denying it; some honoring the sacrifice on Calvary's cross, others scoffing at the efficacy thereof. Ministers extremely modern are meeting with those fundamental for the purpose of discussing ways and means by which to produce a growth in the churches. Men of the pulpit are meeting on a common platform to confer as "brethren" with those who declare and admit that they dare not or will not preach the gospel, and those who still believe it is the message of the church.

At Pentecost the disciples were thought to be "drunken." Today there is nothing about the church to cause a like suspicion, unless it be thought that the ordinary congregation were in the advanced stage of intoxication, which is "drowsiness"!

Early Methodism had not only "amen-corners" but fervent "Amens!" were heard throughout the congregations. The same was true of Adventists. But this is in the past. If some one in the audience now utters a fervent "Amen!" he is looked at by the congregation as one out of place. Also if some one should be affected by the message to the extent that he should rush to the altar as in the days of yore, well, I know not what would happen. At any rate, the fact is that many churches no longer witness old-fashioned, genuine conversions.

One of the greatest preachers of the last century, Dr. A. J. Gordon, had a most wondrous experience in relation to the power of God, which he relates in his book, How Christ Came to Church. The church had a choir (at the cost of three thousand dollars a year) to sing the praises of God. The larger portion of this group were not Christians. There came a time when conviction came to Dr. Gordon. He saw these non-Christian choir members, standing above the Communion tables leading a divinely appointed ministry of song. Conviction continued in his heart until he felt that he could "no longer have a ministry where the worship appointed by God was so perverted by men."

To the consternation of the church the paid choir of professional singers was replaced by volunteers from the audience. The majority of the membership predicted ruin for the church. At Dr. Gordon's request special seasons of daily prayer were set apart, sometimes extending over several weeks. To the surprise of all, the circle of those praying continually increased. "Then," says Dr. Gordon, "the result appeared in the whole church. Ecclesiastical amusements dropped off, by the displacement of a deepening life. The service of song was quietly surrendered back to the congregation, and instead of the select choir, the church took up the sacrifice of praise anew, and filled the house with song."

I, for one, am simple enough to believe that God will work in the same manner in any church that may desire to have the temple cleansed. If we were more careful in our selection of those to whom church duties were assigned, from the pulpit to the janitor, we would have a spiritual and powerful church. When viewed in a sensible manner, the performance of spiritual duties by non-spiritual persons is the height of absurdity. Likewise, the admittance into a "living body" of "non-living" members is foolishness.

When shall we, the church, wake up to these pertinent facts? Dare we face them and seek God's help in an earnest endeavor to rectify and amend our transgressions? Or shall we continue on in the same old rut?

The power of God is still unlimited. The working of it in the church is limited only by ourselves. Surely it must be plainly evident to all, that the church is not the powerful body that it should be.

Personally, I believe that, all unconsciously, we have changed the program. Jesus founded the church, a group of witnesses to proclaim His message. At Pentecost, and afterwards, it was a group, the business of all being to proclaim the glad tidings. But, in succeeding ages, something has obscured our vision. The result is that we prefer one-man churches. By this I mean that it is easier for us to employ a person to carry on our whole service for us! His duty is to select our praises in song, to select the scripture for us, and to read it, to do the praying for us, to do all the talking (or preaching), and then to ask God's blessing on his attempt to do our worshipping for us. (Turn to Page 9)

The Coming of Christ

By M. W. Lyon

OF ALL the vast multitudes the world around who will celebrate this month the coming of the Christ child, it is quite unlikely that more than a handful will have even the slightest conception of what His birth really means!

How does it happen that, in spite of the fact that Jesus came to redeem the world, the world is still unredeemed? Why is it that, though He came to usher in everlasting righteousness, there is more sin and hatred and crime and wickedness than ever before? Why is it that, notwithstanding He came to bring life eternal, men still die as before? And how is it that, in spite of the fact that He came to bring peace on earth, now after two millenniums the earth is still full of war and rumors of war, arming madly to the teeth and threatening to banish the very thought of peace from the earth with a return to mediæval savagery? Why?

Because only half of Jesus' prophetic work was accomplished in His life on earth which began as a Babe in Bethlehem. The first coming of Christ is relatively meaningless unless we understand the import of His second coming! If we look backward to His birth and not forward to His coming again, we have not discerned the real meaning of Christmas. What, then, does it mean that Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea almost two thousand years ago?

It means that He is coming back to this earth to finish the work begun and to take control of the kingdom that is rightfully His! For "the kingdoms of this world are (to) become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15). This does not mean a symbolic coming, or a figurative coming, or a representative coming, or any such thing. Those who thus emasculate the Word of God are false prophets. It means a literal, visible, personal coming. "If I go . . . I will come again" (John 14:3). "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him" (Rev. 1:7). "This same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11). "His feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east" (Zech. 14:4). "When the Son of man shall come in his glory . . . then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations" (Matt. 25:31).

There are literally hundreds of similar prophecies of Jesus' second coming. Why should we not take them just as literally as those of His first coming?

These scriptures do not have reference to conversion, for that is only a mental change, but this is a bodily. "Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body" (Phil. 3:21). They do not mean death, for some are not to die. "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed" (1 Cor. 15:51). They cannot mean the spread of the gospel through the world, for when Jesus comes, the world will be filled with wickedness as never before. "And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall . . . destroy with the brightness of his coming . . . in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God . . . who shall be punished with everlasting destruction . . . when he shall come" (2 Thess. 2:8-10; 1:8-10).

No, none of these subterfuges will do! "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God" (1 Thess. 4:16). When that blessed day dawns, and the Master is in control, then tyranny and injustice and war and depression and sickness and sorrow and death shall be banished from the earth! Then, but not till then, shall be fulfilled the song of the angels over the Bethlehem hills, "Peace on earth, good will to men."

This is the meaning of Christmas in all its fullness. This is the Christian's "blessed hope" (Titus 2:13). There is no other. Is this hope yours?—Golden Rule News.

The Jewish National Home in Palestine

THE HEARINGS before the British Royal Commission, headed by Earl Peel, now in session in Palestine, have already confirmed the salient findings of the unofficial Senatorial Commission sent to Palestine last summer by the Hearst newspapers.

The facts brought to light by the Royal Commission on the two major issues of the crisis in Palestine—immigration and purchase of land by Jews—are strikingly identical with those unearthed and reported by Senators Copeland, Austin, and Hastings.

While the Royal Commission is empowered to investigate the causes of the recent Arab strike and reign of terror, and to recommend changes in the policy of the Palestine Government, it has not been endowed with the right to alter the basic law of the mandate for Palestine aimed to establish a Jewish national home. Indeed, it could not be otherwise, for the mandate is a trusteeship given to Great Britain by all the civilized nations of the world.

American interest in Palestine is in no sense a matter of meddling in foreign affairs.

It is an interest grounded in a solemn treaty concluded between the Government of the United States and the Government of His Britannic Majesty on December 3, 1924.

According to the American-British Convention, the United States has given its consent to the British trusteeship over Palestine and has stipulated that its assent is required for any modification in the terms of that trusteeship.

It is noteworthy that it was the British Government which solicited America's active interest in the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine, as expressed in a formal communication from the late Lord Balfour to Secretary of State Hughes.

It follows that any inquiry into the situation in Palestine by Americans is fully warranted.

The observance of the treaty concerning Palestine is a matter of proper concern to the people and the Government of the United States.

The Jewish tragedy in Central and Eastern Europe, which is so interwoven with the upbuilding of a Jewish national home, makes it imperative to find a constructive solution for the crisis in Palestine. That such a solution can be found is indicated by the findings of the members of the unofficial Senatorial Commission, which may be summarized in the following six points:

1. The crisis in Palestine has two mainsprings: First, the lack of a consistent and firm British administrative policy. Second, the political conflict between Jewish and Arab aspirations.

As for the policy of the mandatory Power, Great Britain as trustee assumed the obligations to place Palestine under conditions "as will secure the establishment of the Jewish national home" and to "facilitate Jewish immigration under suitable conditions and encourage . . . close settlement by Jews on the land," without impairing the rights of other sections of the population.

These are plain duties. Admittedly they are difficult to carry out. A steady and definite policy is required in their performance.

Yet it is an open secret, as shown by Senator Copeland, that certain elements of the mandatory civil administration in Palestine are not in sympathy with the trust of their office, and look with disfavor upon the establishment of the Jewish national home. This accounts for the vacillating policy pursued by the mandatory Administration, which in turn cannot but encourage lawlessness and strife.

2. The mandate definitely promised security to the Jewish settlers in Palestine.

The failure of the British trustee to provide such security is manifest. According to all the members of the Commission, there can be no adequate excuse for the patent violation of this elementary provision of the mandate. There can be no justification for the outrages committed against innocent Jewish men, women, and children in recent months in the Holy Land.

The injuries suffered by many American nationals, who had settled in Palestine under the protection of the American-British Convention, serve but to emphasize the deplorable failure of the mandatory Government to maintain law and order in the land under its care. No compensation for their damaged property can adequately make up for months of exposure to a reign of terror.

3. The basic cause of the Arab-Jewish discord is political. Certain Arab agitators, who are identified with the Pan-Arab nationalist movement, seek the establishment of an Arab state in Palestine, and make much of the fear that certain Jewish elements may seek the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine.

Now there is nothing in the mandate to justify such ambitions on either side. The responsible Jewish leaders have offered the Arabs a mutual parity pact, which would ensure both sides against domination by either. If Great Britain would reaffirm her declared policy under the mandate in a manner making it unmistakable that Palestine can become only a Palestinian state, the road would be clear for an understanding between the Arabs and the Jews.

4. The Arab demand for the suspension of Jewish immigration into Palestine is an issue of life and death to the persecuted Jews in Central and Eastern Europe. It also goes to the root of the mandate, for the stoppage of Jewish immigration would reduce the terms of the mandate to an absurdity. Only the economic incapacity of Palestine to absorb such immigration could serve as a cogent reason for its suspension.

The inquiry by the Senatorial Commission has demonstrated that there is no economic reason for suspending or curtailing Jewish immigration now.

Palestine has no unemployment problem. The large stream of Jewish immigrants and Jewish capital has not only raised perceptibly the standard of living of the entire population; it has increased the capacity of the country to absorb more immigrants.

As for the Arab fear of an eventual Jewish majority, numbers of population need not determine control. Control can be maintained through implements of government regardless of numbers. Fear of subjection of Arabs to Jews and vice versa should be terminated by the establishment of a legislative council in which Jews and Arabs would have parity of elected representation.

5. The Arab demand for the prohibition of the sale of land to Jews, like that for the suspension of immigration, is political in nature.

The findings of the Senatorial Commission have clearly shown that there is no just economic ground for the stoppage of Jewish land purchases. No Arab landowner is obligated to sell his property to Jews. Moreover, the Government requires that Arab squatters must be provided with other grants before a deal for any tract of land is closed.

The Jews now own no more than 5 per cent of the land of Palestine, although they form 30 per cent of the population.

The members of the Commission were profoundly impressed by what the Jewish pioneers, hailing from the ghettos, have done with the barren and rocky and sandy soil of the Holy Land. They have elevated agriculture to the position of the leading industry of Palestine and raised the level of the Arab peasantry.

There is still enough cultivable land in the country to take care of several hundred thousand additional agriculturists.

6. The practical question, however, of finding an immediate refuge for the several million Jews who are forced to flee or to emigrate from their native lands can be solved, in the opinion of Senator Hastings, if Trans-Jordan were to be opened to Jewish immigration.

Trans-Jordan was originally comprehended in the area of Palestine covered by the Balfour Declaration, but was severed from present-day Palestine in 1922 and set up as a separate Arab kingdom under the supervision of the British High Commissioner for Palestine.

The Arab ruler of Trans-Jordan is understood to be eager for Jewish enterprise and settlement. His country is backward and sparsely populated, but potentially it offers opportunities for development just as great as Palestine on this side of the Jordan.

All friends of humanity will concur with the Senatorial Commission that it would be an act of great wisdom on the part of Great Britain to bring about a friendly arrangement between the Jews and the Arabs of Trans-Jordan.

The opening of the latter territory to Jewish immigration would relieve the tension in present-day Palestine. It would be an act of justice in the face of the plight of millions of homeless Jews, which would gain for Great Britain the approbation of American public opinion and of the great civilized nations of the world. At the same time, it would assure for her the additional prize of a greater and more prosperous Palestine, which would serve as a bulwark for peace and progress at the vital junction of the British Empire.—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

The Brazen Serpent

By Henry Dauterich

THE LIFTING up of the brazen serpent in the wilderness was very significant, because it was a sign of salvation, an evidence of the abundant mercy of God, who healed the Israelites by His power.

The fiery serpents sent among the people were an affliction for speaking against God, and against Moses. To be bitten by a fiery serpent was sure death, for nothing but the power of God could have healed them.

Now after the people saw their folly, they came to Moses and confessed the error of their way, and asked Moses to pray unto the Lord to take away the serpents. Moses prayed for the people and the Lord provided a salvation. He told Moses to make a fiery serpent (an image of brass), and set it upon a pole (for a sign). And the Lord said, "It shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live." Thus they were saved by faith in the word of God: for it was not the brazen serpent on the erected pole that healed them, which was a mere piece of brass, and was afterwards destroyed by King Hezekiah, because the people idolized it (2 Kings 18:1-4).

From the application of this scripture by our dear Savior, it appears that it had reference to His death on the cross, and its effect—compare John 3:14 with chapter 12:32, 33. Through His death the new covenant came into force, of which "he is the mediator" (Heb. 9:14-16). And under the new covenant God mercifully ordained salvation by "grace, through faith" (Eph. 2:8, 9).

All are under condemnation of death (Rom. 5:12, 18) and there would have been no hope in the death of mortal man, if God in His infinite wisdom and unbounded love had not raised up a Savior, even Jesus (John 3:16; Acts 13:23) and vested Him with power to save—"Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth" (Isa. 45:22; Acts 4:12). All upon whom the light shines, and who still love darkness rather than light, and thus refuse the salvation that God provided in His "only begotten Son," must inevitably perish (John 3:16-19).

WHAT FORM OF GOVERNMENT NEXT?

(Continued from Page Three)

of human grandeur and pride and power. Nebuchadnezzar, the great builder, had inscribed on the burnt clay record, "Thus I completely made strong the defenses of Babylon, may it last forever!"

But here stood the Prophet of the living God to tell the King that his empire was soon to pass to another people.

MEDO-PERSIA, THE SILVER KINGDOM

"After thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee."

The breast and arms of silver of the great image denoted another empire to follow. And in the days of Belshazzar (who evidently was a grandson of Nebuchadnezzar) the Medes and Persians, under Cyrus, took the kingdom. One of the most dramatic scenes of history is the picture of Belshazzar's last feast, as he shut himself in the inner citadel and defied the Persians at his gate. He had brought out the golden vessels taken from the sacred temple at Jerusalem, as if to drink defiance to the God of heaven. It was in the midst of the impious feast that the mystic hand wrote the words of doom on the wall of the banquet hall.

Daniel was called to interpret the writing on the wall—the same prophet who had borne that witness to Nebuchadnezzar: "After thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee." Now he told Belshazzar that God had numbered the days of Babylon—it had been weighed in the balances and found wanting; and finally the message ran: "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

History tells us how, under Cyrus the Great and his successors, the Medo-Persian Empire exceeded Babylon in extent, reaching farther west into Egypt and farther to the northwest toward Europe, invading, though unsuccessfully, even Macedonia and Greece in Europe. Larger in extent, yet this second kingdom was, as the prophecy foretold, "inferior" to that of Babylon in grandeur and glory.

THE "BRASS-CLAD GREEKS"

"And another third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth." Thus the sides and thighs of brass, in the metallic image, stand for the kingdom that followed Persia. All history tells us that it was Greece, under Alexander the Great, who overthrew the empire of the Persians. Here again the metal, brass, is appropriate to this empire. Homer often sang the praises—

"Of Trojan warriors and of brass-clad Greeks."

"Shall bear rule over all the earth," the prophecy had said. Long, now, the Prophet had been sleeping in death. But true to the word written ages before, Alexander's brief empire stretched over the ancient world from Europe into India. Eschines, the Greek, says that Alexander assumed the title "Lord of all People, from the Sunrise to the Sunset." "Asia and Europe constitute one state," Alexander said, in explaining his plan to merge the people of the West and the East. "Ambassadors came to Alexander almost from all parts of the world," said Diodorus, the ancient historian. But at the height of his conquests Alexander died; and soon the fourth great empire, represented by "the legs of iron," was to follow and act the part foretold on the shifting stage of history.

ROME, THE IRON KINGDOM

The Prophet Daniel, interpreting Nebuchadnezzar's dream, had said that "the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things: and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise."

It is written across all history that the Roman Empire succeeded Grecia in world dominion. "Legs of iron," said the Prophet, of this fourth part of the great image. How fitly iron stands for its character! "The iron monarchy of Rome," Gibbon calls it. And the Roman Empire did "break in pieces" the nations. No line of history describes the fact more clearly than this prophetic outline spoken centuries before, in the days of Babylon. Students of Scripture who lived in the days of Rome's march to supremacy over the prostrate nations recognized the picture of the prophecy. Hippolytus, who began to write near the end of the second century, declared:

"Rejoice, blessed Daniel! thou hast not been in error: all these things have come to pass. . . . Already the iron rules; already it subdues and breaks all in pieces. . . . We see these things ourselves. Now we glorify God, being instructed by thee" (Ante-Nicene Fathers, vol. 5, p. 210).

It is one of the objects of prophecy that men shall recognize in their own time the fulfillment of what is foretold of that time, so that they may know that the God of Holy Scripture knew the end from the beginning, and that still He is overruling, even in a turbulent, warring world, to bring the final triumph of His purposes of mercy and love to the children of men.

Next, the prophecy passes on to the division of the Roman Empire: "Whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potters' clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided."

And the Roman Empire of Western Europe was divided by the invasions of the tribes from the north. Thus were set up the various kingdoms or states of modern Europe that to this day fill the old territory of the Western Roman Empire.

The prophecy in the days of Babylon had said that this fourth empire, Rome, was to be "divided." Vergil, the famed poet of the Augustinian age, predicted for Rome, "Dominion without end." And later, even when the invasion from the north had begun, Claudian wrote of the Empire:

"Away let trembling fears of age be cast;

As long as both the poles, thy sway shall last."

But the divine prophecy declared, "The kingdom shall be divided." The prophecy was fulfilled to the letter.

NEVER TO BE ONE AGAIN

These kingdoms of modern Europe—some of them now being called republics—were not to be welded into one empire again. The prophecy said: "They shall mingle themselves with the seed of men (by intermarriage): but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay."

In the days of general monarchy, the ruling families of Europe were often pretty nearly all related to one another. But with varying history, these "kingdoms," as the prophecy calls them after their original character, have never been joined into one empire again. Imperial ambitions have sometimes dreamed of union. Charlemagne, Charles V, and Napoleon pondered the idea. "In five years," said Napoleon in 1811, "I shall be master of the world." But in a few brief years he was an exile on St. Helena. He had, he said, planned to "fuse all the nations into one"; but nearly 2,500 years before Napoleon "the sure word of prophecy" had foretold that the fourth great monarchy, Rome, would be divided unto the end. And before our eyes today are the various kingdoms, or countries, which arose out of the division of the Roman Empire of the West.

To us who live today come the next words of the prophecy, with an arresting, a challenging, appeal. After describing the division of the Roman Empire into the kingdoms or countries of Western Europe—now acting their part before our eyes—the prophecy closes: "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed."

That is the answer to the question, What next? The next thing will be the coming of the everlasting kingdom of our God! When? "In the days of these kings"—the countries of Western Europe acting their tremendous part in human affairs today.

The coming kingdom of God that is to displace the order of earthly kingdoms is represented in this prophecy of Daniel 2 by the stone "cut out without hands," that smote the great metallic image, breaking it in pieces, and then filled the whole earth. "Without hands" surely signifies that God's kingdom is no political order to be set up by human forces. It is established by divine intervention from heaven. The new order to be ushered in is beyond the power of mankind to inaugurate. Human governments are recognized in Scripture as agencies of God's providence in the present order of this world. Civil government is a gift of God to men for the preservation of some measure of peace and order in a sinful world. "The powers that be are ordained of God" (Rom. 13:1).

But no human power can do what God's purpose calls for. It will be done "without hands." An end is to be put to sin and death, and a kingdom of righteousness and peace to be set up that will never pass away. It brings us face to face with the judgment, the coming of Christ in power and glory, the resurrection, and the consuming of sin and death and the grave forever by the fires of the last day that shall purify this old earth and bring it forth a "new earth," wherein the eternal kingdom is to be set up.

"WHAT MANNER OF PERSONS?"

No wonder Inspiration cries out to us by the Apostle Peter: "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God?" (2 Peter 3:11, 12).

The essential thing today for every one of us is to know that we are made ready by the grace of Christ to have a part in that eternal kingdom soon to be set up. The Lord of that kingdom pleads with us, "Be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." (Matt. 24:44). And He who says, "Be ready," can make us ready.

The prophecy of Daniel 2 has traced the history of mankind down through the ages to our own day—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, Rome, the division of the Roman Empire into the kingdoms of Western Europe that are living today and acting their part in the history of our time. And the great historic prophecy says that "in the days of these kings" shall the God of heaven set up His everlasting kingdom. That is the next thing.

"The dream is certain," said the Prophet Daniel to the King, "and the interpretation thereof sure" (Dan. 2:45).

Not one word has failed in the history of 2,500 years. The next thing is certain and sure.—Hope of the World.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE CHURCH?

(Continued from Page Five)

I venture the question: Is it any cause for wonderment, that, in the face of these conditions, we, the church, have lost the power of "proclaiming" the gospel, after we have demanded that one person do our job? Dare we throw aside some of the so-called "spiritual conventions" in an endeavor to regain the lost power of the church?—Arthur E. Conant in The Herald of Life.

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

(Continued from Front Page)

ones, added to the words in the beginning of the discourse concerning self-exaltation and motives of selfish gain, serve to increase the unpopularity of Jesus with this self-approving class. His next parable, which is addressed to His disciples, is openly ridiculed. The thought with which this parable is closed, as given in Luke 16:13, is especially distasteful to the covetous Pharisees. They consider themselves to be proof of the nonsense of teaching that God and mammon cannot both be served, for in their own estimation they are examples of outstanding success in serving both God and personal ambition of a worldly order. They are the recognized leaders in spiritual as well as in material affairs. From such a superior position ideas such as these are considered so foolish and impractical as to merit their contempt and derision, more to be laughed at than angered by, especially when advanced by this young teacher of humble origin and no influential following, as compared with their own high standing. The next words of Jesus are clearly directed at this attitude of self-satisfied superiority, pride of position, and their contempt for others, showing the true value of high position founded upon man's approval; there is no sign of favor with God in gaining man's high estimation.

The puzzling words which follow, as read in verses 16-18, are less puzzling if the whole situation is kept in mind. The scene has been one of mounting tension from the very beginning. Antagonism has grown from unspoken criticism to murmuring, and then to open derision. Christ, and all He represents, have been in constant opposition to these Pharisees, representative of false pride, scornful exclusiveness, and a sense of security in high position based on man's valuation. So far Jesus has directed attention and teachings entirely at the attitude shown, with no apparent result except the bringing of this attitude more to the surface. It would be natural for His closing words to be a stronger treatment of the same problem. Such a change in method seems to be the case, beginning with the 16th verse, the balance of the teachings not being directed at the attitude as before, but at the very foundation of that attitude; not at the effect now, but at the cause. What was the foundation of the Pharisaical attitude of haughty pride, contempt of others, and feeling of security in superior position? The whole attitude was based on ecclesiastical supremacy, and that supremacy itself based upon the Mosaic law and its strict observance by the Pharisee. If this fact is kept in mind, and the circumstances from the beginning of this discourse, it will seem only logical that the balance of these teachings should have an especial application to the passing of the Mosaic dispensation and its law as a basis of any kind of supremacy.

In the first two of these three verses which precede the parable, the passing of the Mosaic order, being replaced by the Christian order, is too clearly shown to doubt. The thought is stressed that, although this passing of the old order and law began with the message of John the Baptist, no failure of the law was indicated by that. Not the smallest part had failed or could fail; so the passing denotes accomplishment of the purpose of the law. Considering the purpose for which the law was given, as stated in Galatians 3:23-25, it can be seen that this had been fulfilled for all who would learn under such a schoolmaster. The application of the last of these three verses in Luke is not as readily seen, for apparently there is no relation to the same subject. But if Galatians 4:21-24, 30, 31 is read in connection with this verse, it appears in a different light, and becomes one of the most important links in this chain of evidence that the passing of the Mosaic dispensation with all its structure of selfish exclusiveness is the thought Jesus seeks to impress upon His hearers at this time. In the Galatian passage the old or Mosaic covenant is represented by a woman put away from her husband, and in Luke it seems very appropriate that the same figure should be used, the Mosaic covenant again being the woman put away—marriage to her being adultery. To be wedded or joined to the old put-away covenant and keeping its law are represented as spiritual adultery, a union not sanctioned by God. If this is the purpose of these words, they are strongly prohibitive of any adherence whatsoever to the Mosaic law; for no more serious condition can be pictured than spiritual adultery, the sin of Israel.

The words of Paul in Romans 3:31 are sometimes advanced as evidence that the Mosaic law cannot be set aside in its entirety by the gospel, for it is said to be established thereby, which surely indicates some kind of permanence, even though partial. Such conclusions seem logical when the word "establish" is considered only in the sense of "making fixed," or "firmly placing." If the word is considered in its equally correct sense of "proving," or "establishing the truth of," and the verse is read with this in mind, the difficulty is entirely removed. The thought it conveys is clearly that, since the law pointed forward to Christ and to the gospel, the Christian faith establishes or proves the truth of the law is its fulfillment.

The parable of the rich man and Lazarus is a quite complete summing up of the teachings which characterize the whole discourse: such teachings as the abasement of those who are self-exalted; the value of and rejoicing in finding that which is lost; the reversal of man's valuation by the true valuation of God, showing the insecurity of any greatness dependent upon the valuation of man. Although it has not been the purpose of this study to take up a complete consideration of the parable itself, it will be necessary to consider its details, if only briefly, that the perfect harmony observed from the beginning of the discourse may be completely revealed.

Parables are purely imaginative in conception, designed to illustrate and convey a truth in a more effective way than mere statement of fact could do. Forcing a literal construction upon figurative language can result only in a misfit and confusion. This is clearly shown when this passage is presented as a narrative of actual occurrence, as is sometimes attempted. We know that historical narration was not a part of the teaching method of Jesus; but the results of such an application to this parable are enough to convince any unbiased student that literal acceptance is entirely impossible in this case. If it is maintained that the story is actual, then Christ, the master teacher, is credited with mixing the literal and figurative in one sentence. Lazarus is meeting literal death, but is being carried to a place which can be taken only in a figurative sense. There are many other difficulties equally absurd and impossible to avoid, if the people and happenings of this parable are taken literally. The purpose at present is more to reveal the harmony resulting from the figurative construction, than to show the confusion and lack of harmony in the literal interpretation.

According to the nature of parables, the two men of the story are used as representative of two different groups of people, the happenings narrated also being illustrative of actual experience of these groups. Do these two men and their experiences lend themselves to such use?

By the indication of the verses immediately preceding the parable, we would expect the opening scenes of this story to center about the change from the Mosaic to Christian dispensation as to time. At that time did just such a complete reversal take place, between two classes of people, as would correspond to that which is related of these two men? In the very beginning of the Christian era such a reversal took place, between Jew and Gentile, in regard to religious leadership and spiritual condition.

There is a very striking correspondence, between the rich man and the experiences attributed to him, and the Jewish people and their actual experience prior to and after the gospel call. The clothing of the rich man is that which was characteristic of the religious leaders of Judaism. In the beginning all spiritual riches had been given into their hands (Rom. 9:4, 5); they were the highly favored ones. Was the Jew's attitude toward those not as blessed as he at all generous?

There is just as perfect a representation of the Gentiles and their experiences, before and after the Christian era, to be seen in Lazarus and the experiences narrated of him. The actual condition of the Gentile, as regards spiritual blessings, is well illustrated in the hopeless beggared state of Lazarus (Eph. 2:11, 12). Did they not also humbly crave even the crumbs of the spiritual riches so freely given the Jew? Gentiles, even when proselytes to Judaism, were not regarded as on equality with the Jew. They were of two classes: temple proselytes and proselytes of the gate. Those of the temple were few in number, had full worship privileges, were held accountable for keeping the whole law, but were not considered as heirs of the promises. Gentile converts to Judaism were for the greater part classed as proselytes of the gate, and were allowed very few religious privileges. This larger class of Gentile proselytes were not required to keep the whole law, and were only allowed to worship in the outer court, called the court of the Gentiles. There is a very great similarity between these proselytes of the gate, grateful for even these small privileges, in which the Jews were so rich, and Lazarus, who also was at the gate, craving even the crumbs from the rich man's bountiful supply.

Are the experiences attributed to the two of the parable as typical of actual Jew and Gentile experience as the men are of these two opposite classes? What correspondence is there between the actual experience of the Gentile and that which is related of Lazarus? Can it be said that the Gentile died in any sense and was carried to Abraham's bosom by angels? The Gentile died to his old condition and life, and the step that marks the ending of the old and the beginning of the new life, which is baptism, is often likened to death in Scripture (Rom. 6:3, 8, 11). This figurative death in baptism brings the Gentile into a changed relationship, which is very appropriately expressed as being carried into the bosom of Abraham. He has been received into the family of Abraham as an actual heir of all the Abrahamic promises (Gal. 3:27, 29). The expression "in the bosom of the family" is a very common one, which is still used to convey the idea of being within the family circle. Angels, having the primary purpose of messengers, are the means by which this change was accomplished in the story; and in actual experience this change was accomplished for the Gentile by the aid of gospel messengers or angels.

In all that is related of the rich man a perfect illustration can be seen of what is now recognized as actual Jewish experience. The rich man also dies, but, unlike Lazarus, his death is followed by a burial, torment, and a cry for relief at the hand of Lazarus, relief which cannot be given because of a great chasm, a void space, dividing them. The counterpart is found in facts of Jewish history. The Jew and Judaism died to the former condition of spiritual leadership; clinging to dead institutions, the Jew became buried with them, both spiritually and nationally. His place of burial has been among the nations, and from this place of burial his cry has gone up constantly for relief, and, just as in the parable, this has been asked at Gentile hands, the Lazarus class. Like the rich man, the Jew also looks up from Hades, the simple meaning of which is the state or abode of the dead, and beholding the Gentile now in the place of favor, while he is cast out, his plea has been constant for relief from his intolerable position. The Gentile has even had possession of the land and sacred places, all that is most dear to the Jew. Since the national death and burial of the Jew among the nations, no people have suffered greater trial and persecution. Torment in flame is not too strong an illustration of their experience, and would no more be understood as real than the fiery trial of 1 Peter 4:12, if it were not for preconceived ideas concerning eternal torment as the fate of the wicked, and the attempt to force literal interpretation on figurative language.

Has there been a great chasm or void space separating the two classes represented by these men? The Mosaic law, with its void institutions, is just such a barrier, which makes meeting upon common ground out of the question. As long as the Jew clings to the Mosaic law and its empty rites for his salvation, and rejects Christ, can there be a real understanding between Jew and Gentile? There is proven truth, when applied to the Jew, in the words in answer to the rich man's plea. While Moses and the prophets are not heard, or as long as all previous light is rejected, no new light can be received; even resurrection can carry no conviction in that case. Were the leaders of Judaism, or the Jews as a people, convinced by the resurrection of Lazarus? They plotted his death instead, because some did believe because of it. Did the resurrection of Jesus carry any greater conviction to these leaders and the bulk of the Jewish people? Instead of this, the guards were bribed to give a false account of the happening. How true are the words, "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they believe if one rise from the dead." If Moses had been truly heard and believed, they would have been prepared for the coming of Christ and the passing of the old order (John 5:46, 47).

As Paul asks in his Galatian message, "Ye who wish to be under the law, do ye not hear the law?"

—0—

EVERY good work must spring from faith in the name, being, and goodness of God; and every work that is truly good must have love for its motive, as it has God for its end.—Adam Clarke.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Michigan

Religious Freedom

Religious freedom has come to mean for some, not what it truly is, the right to worship God in the way we believe right, but the license to worship Him not at all. Our forefathers gave their all to obtain that freedom. Shall we become so careless of this glorious privilege as not even to bother to exercise it?

Look at the religious developments unfolding in the world today. The freedom to worship God according to the dictates of a Bible-inspired conscience is everywhere being denied or abridged.

It is one of the laws that God incorporated into the rules of the universe, that whatever is not used shall be taken away. Eyes that are not used become blind. A limb that is not used loses its strength. A talent that is undeveloped leaves its possessor. And our much-vaunted religious freedom unless we exercise it will be taken away from us.

God never intended, when He gave us this liberty, that we should cease to worship Him and so turn every man to his own way. He provided a way of salvation for us, and He expects us to take advantage of it. Hear the warning of the Apostle: "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him; God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost."

Let us resolve that we will take full advantage of our liberty and never will pass up an opportunity to gather with others of like precious faith for the purposes of studying the Word of God and worshiping Him.—J. R. LeCrone in his pastoral bulletin, The Assistant Pastor.

Abdication

Two Bible men loved their wives so much that they abdicated. The happiness of the Garden of Eden, the favor of God, life without end, meant nothing to Adam if his wife couldn't share it all with him. His wife had fallen from grace and awaited only the hand of God in judgment. Adam gave up all he had to join her. How he must have loved her!

The second Adam, the Christ, gave up His perfect life for His bride, the church. He couldn't be satisfied with life for Himself without her. The difference lies in that Adam, in disobedience and lack of faith toward God, was drawn down to the under-condemnation-of-death level to share with his wife, while Christ was sent down in obedience to God to bring back His wife. Why couldn't the first Adam eventually have done the same had he obeyed God?

They each were moved by a great love. One didn't trust God, the other had faith. Which one brought the greater happiness to his dear one? Which one then had the greater love?

If you have absolute confidence and trust in God, your love for your Christian brethren will be perfect. Your love for your own husband or wife cannot help but be more pure. You both will reap the benefits of the real peace of God which settles into your hearts to stay. Let your love be tempered with faith. Then the many abdications you must make will bring true happiness.

Gold, Frankincense, Myrrh

Being wise men, they presented gifts. So does the world today at Christmas time. They presented gifts to the Holy Child, we to each other as unto Him. They gave themselves with the gifts. So must we, to be wise men.

Being wise men one tenth of their income would be offered to God's High Priest, even as Abraham paid tithes to Melchisedec. But being wise men, they would consider that a payment and not a gift. Therefore, these were not tithes they brought, but expressly are said to be "gifts."

The special offerings we make to God's High Priest at Christmas are to be over and above the regular tithe. As you love your Savior, so do not let Christmas go by without making an expression of your love. With every gift, give that which is without price, give yourself.

December 25

People are troubled to think that this date is not really the birthday of the Christ but really a pagan festival date to commemorate the birthday of Horus, son of Isis, Queen of Heaven. When so many pagans flocked into the early church they brought the old associations and December 25 was looked upon as the Lord's birthday. But what people forget is that December 25 was looked upon as a holy day by the apostolic church even before the pagans were admitted. If it is not the Lord's birthday, what then is it?

The early church also looked upon September 29 as a holy day, "the Festival of Michael and all Angels." A great angelic celebration took place the night our Savior was born. September 29 is 280 days, the period of human gestation, after December 25. See also the comments of the Companion Bible on "the course of Abia" which prove that September 29 is the birthday of the Christ and that December 25 is the date of the miraculous conception of the Virgin Mary. John the Baptist was conceived June 24 following his father's service in the temple, and born about March 29. Jesus' birth, being six months later according to Luke's record, verifies the above dates.

So, my dear friend, you do not need to fear that you are observing a pagan festival in setting aside December 25 as a worship day. You are commemorating the blessed event of John 1:14, "the Word became flesh." It "tabernacled among us" on the Feast of Tabernacles 280 days later, when Christ was born.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

JESUS SHOWS US WHAT GOD IS LIKE

WE READ many things in the Bible about God. We know that He is Ruler over all. We see all about us the signs of His power. But it is hard for us to imagine what He is like.

God is the One who created all the wonderful things about us. He did it merely by saying the word. When God wanted light to shine upon the earth, He said, "Let there be light," and there was light. Just like that!

Then God looked at the earth and realized how much more beautiful it would be with grass and flowers and trees. So He said, "Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit," and it was done. The earth was made beautiful.

In just the same way God spoke, and the golden sun appeared in the sky. The silver moon and the twinkling stars shone forth at night in the beginning by the same power. And they have been over us ever since, bringing life and health and beauty to all the people of earth.

The last and the greatest creation of all by the power of God was man. God used dust and breathed His own breath into the man He had formed, and the man lived and moved. What a wonderful God! How powerful!

God gave all the grand things He made to man for his use and for his enjoyment. Only one thing that God made was kept away from the first man, and that, as all you boys and girls know, was a certain tree. Everything he could enjoy but that.

It seems as though we would have been contented with so many fine things, and we think we would have left that tree alone—that tree with the odd name, the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. But I wonder. Perhaps we would have been no better than Adam and Eve. Who knows?

At any rate, they disobeyed God, and down through the years men continued to disobey. Then God, wanting above all else that men should learn to know Him and to love and obey Him, gave His Son, Jesus our Savior, to be His greatest Gift of all.

God felt that if One came as a Babe, growing up into a Man—One who was His very own Son—men would learn better what God was like. Thus they would serve and obey God because they had learned to love Him through His Son.

You often see a boy among your acquaintances of whom people say, "Isn't he the image of his father?" They mean he is just like his father in all his ways, as well as his looks. And if you know the boy, then you know the father, too.

It was something like that with God. Jesus was so much like God, so full of power and love for men, that they began to appreciate God more. And John, the disciple whom Jesus loved best, tells us about it in his book, called "The Gospel According to John."

John tells us in his very first chapter how God spoke the word and light came; how He brought life on the dark, cold earth, just as we have been talking it over. Then John says God sent His Son to live among men, "and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father."

Now the John that is mentioned by name in this book is not the John that wrote it. He never mentions his own name, just calls himself "the disciple whom Jesus loved." The John in the book is John the Baptist. But you all know that, for you learned the difference last quarter, if you did not know it before that.

This John the Baptist says that, though he wasn't good enough even to unlatch Jesus' shoes, yet he was chosen to run before Him and tell people He was coming. John was very proud to be the "forerunner" for Jesus, and he worked hard at the job, you may be sure.

In this same first chapter we read about the calling of some of Jesus' disciples. Peter and Andrew, two brothers, and James and John, two other brothers, the last one the writer. Also Philip and Nathanael were called.

Jesus needed helpers in the great task He had of showing men just what His Father was like. And so, in all, twelve were chosen. The names just given were the first six chosen. I wonder how many of you can name all twelve apostles.

During the first three months of the new year we are going to study the book written by that disciple Jesus loved so much—John. As we read the stories of Jesus that we find on its pages we will learn to love Jesus more, if possible. And learning to know and love Him more, we will know more about His Father, God. We will want to serve and obey such a wonderful God.

Can we do any less for the One who has given us all things to enjoy?

AMONG THE CHURCHES

POMONA, CALIFORNIA

There will be a one-day conference held in Los Angeles, Calif., Sunday, Jan. 17, 1937. Sr. E. C. Railsback will speak at the morning service and Bro. Norman Macleod will speak in the afternoon. An effort is being made to secure at least one other speaker for the afternoon.

Grace Adamson, Secretary.

As a memorial to his wife, Edith, Charles Miller of the Dixon, Ill., congregation has contributed $25 to the fund for meeting the indebtedness of the National Bible Institution.

George H. Slagle, Dunlap, Ill., records that the Dunlap Sunday school, recently organized, started with five members, now has eight, and is ordering fifteen quarterlies.

The author of The Walrus Speaks thanks his fans. One has threatened to pull his whiskers; another has furnished him with clippings of Mr. Bootkins ripped from a Sunday paper. Mr. Bootkins is a sort of human walrus who also talks on occasion of shoes and ships and sealing wax, et al. The Herald columnist still wonders if he's been insulted.

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

Evangelist	F. L. Austin
Song Leader	J. W. McLain

Meetings closed at Casey Sunday evening, Dec. 13. A business meeting was held to consider enlarging the work and hiring a pastor for part time. Final decision was postponed until a later meeting.

Average attendance throughout the three weeks might be estimated at 50. The house was rather full on the last evening.

There is a fine group of young people becoming interested in the work there. A Berean group was organized and will be conducted by Sr. Maude Hickox.

Bro. Austin is speaking at Grand Rapids Sunday, Dec. 20, while the writer is speaking at Cable and Macomb, Ill.

J. W. McLain.

GRAND ISLAND PROVES NOT SO GRAND

Editors, The Herald:

We have been living across the river from Bath, Ill., on an island. We were told we would have plenty of work at good wages at the Grand Island Gun Club. We moved there the 17th of August, but December 3 the work ended; so we rented a house at Ripley, Ill., got a truck, loaded it. We had to cross the river on a ferry. The road was slick and the ferry too far to the right. A man on the ferry told the driver to come on. He did. The ferry went under and the truck turned over in the river, drowning 160 hens and ruining our household goods. We got some out; some we never found. The driver's truck is costing him a lot to put in running order. We were lucky that no one was hurt, and are so thankful.

Mrs. Isabelle Smith,
Ripley, Illinois.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Last Sunday in my absence there were seventy present at the Bible school hour. Bro. Melvin Osborn gave the morning address at the eleven o'clock service.

Sr. Louise LaMunion preached in the evening at the Evangelical Church in Culver. We hear splendid reports of these meetings.

Our people here are anxious to carry the gospel into other places. We feel that we will be held responsible if we do not.

Carlton Hoskins and his wife Lola went with the writer to Kokomo, Ind., for the day's services December 13. They sang their choruses and duets at both services. The attendance was exceptionally good. Monday morning they also sang at a funeral Bro. Parker had. They love to sing, and folks love to hear them. Any church that wishes their service can have same by writing us at Burr Oak.

Wednesday evening the Morning Star Class held their class meeting at the home of Sr. Margaret Weaver.

So many of our people are having bad colds. However, we "keep on keeping on" as the Christmas season is upon us.

The folks at Kokomo are busy with their programs and getting the Christmas baskets ready for the needy. Bro. and Sr. Parker are continually doing something for the less fortunate. Lord bless them, for surely they are not laying up treasures on earth, instead are nobly carrying the gospel to the poor, unfortunate homes.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

"I do not," warns Mrs. Lulu Johnson, author of "Thoughts From a Sermon," "state these things as actual facts. They are only my own meditations."

That old and trifling subject for debate, "the pen is mightier than the sword," is well established by the Pauline Epistles. The might of Rome was insufficient to stem the tide of Christianity, and the religion of Jesus (Christ advanced more rapidly in proportion to its original extent during the Roman persecution than at any time since, for Christianity meant more to people under such circumstances.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution

Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38 and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

Thanks to the editor of this sheet, we have learned that even the glamorous South Seas aren't free from antichrists. In 1828, a native established a sect called the Mamaia, established himself as Jesus Christ. Missionaries were much troubled by the organization for a good many years.

There's an American translation of the Bible that no living man can read. John Eliot gave the Mohicans a dialect Bible in 1661. And today there aren't any Mohicans. See James Fenimore Cooper.

Page Hetty Green, the Witch of Wall Street, who moaned that she had never made over $200,000 in one day. George A. Ball, Muncie, Indiana, manufacturer, mildly told a Senate investigating committee recently how he secured control of three billion dollars' worth of railroads for a total outlay of less than two millions.

So now we'll move to Chicago. The Tribune bares the fact that only 69 per cent of the city's taxes ever are collected.

We always thought that women were all alike. Now The Presbyterian advises that "an ivory rod found in ruins of Lachish, Palestine, is believed to be a hair curler of the sort used 3,200 years ago."

Hello, Hollywood. The Walrus Speaks speaking. . . . Yes. . . . We'll be very glad to substitute for him if Prince Edward doesn't care to sign that contract. . . . That one you offered him. The one calling for a million a year. . . . We just wanted you to know.

Which reminds us that there are only 367 more days till Christmas after next.

WANTED: Good collection correspondent. Experienced. Steady work. To secure payments on outstanding war debts of England, France, Greece, Italy, and others. Apply Treasury Dept., Washington, D. C.

Measurements, comment a General Electric ad, to 3-100,000 inch made possible the all-metal radio tube. We've been wondering who took the ruler off our desk.

The grand gesture has been made by Yvon Delbos, French Foreign Minister, who vigorously informed the Paris Chamber of Deputies on December 3 that La Belle France would cheerfully go to bat for England in the event John Bull was attacked. Delbos, of course, didn't mention that the chances of England's ever being attacked without a simultaneous march on France are about one to one million. But the speech sounded very well in the newspapers.

THOUGHTS FROM A SERMON

By Lulu Johnson

WHILE I was listening to this very interesting sermon, my thoughts kept reverting to other sermons I had listened to many years ago. Sermons on prophecy—how they have made their mark. No other subject is so well remembered.

Bro. E. E. Giesler's sermon on prophecy (preached at Moorefield, Nebraska, October 25, 1936) was the same in substance as one I had heard twenty-five years before. Still there was a vast difference. Then we tried to picture in our minds what the fulfilling of those prophetic words would be like. Now we have them developing and casting their shadows before them until the thing of imagination is become a reality. There have been great wars and many changes since that first sermon on prophecy was preached, yet through the light of prophecy the minister could tell as accurately what to expect as Bro. Giesler.

It was the thoughts expressed concerning the general trend of all churches that impressed me most. The fact that all churches of the world would unite and form one church has been the theory of many in times gone by, but now we see this trend increasing in various ways. Ministers, some holding high positions, pastors of smaller places, prominent people, and much printed matter are advocating that very thing. We can now begin to see how this is going to take place. Soon will be formed, as Bro. Giesler says, a federation of churches to be known as the world church.

Later I came upon these scriptures and, as it seemed to me, they point to a time when a great organization under one head will be a very important development in the last days. Isaiah 23:17 tells us, "And it shall come to pass after the end of seventy years, that the Lord will visit Tyre, and she shall turn to her hire, and shall commit fornication with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth." Also note Jeremiah 51:7: "Babylon hath been a golden cup in the Lord's hand, that made all the earth drunken: the nations have drunken of her wine; therefore the nations are mad."

Then again in Revelation 17:2: "With whom (speaking of Babylon, the mother of harlots) the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication."

Who is the woman of verse 5 upon whose forehead a name was written? There are more than one name written, but they are all one and the same, as they are called "a name." "Mystery, Babylon the great, the mother of harlots and abominations of the earth."

Just what influence can old Babylon have upon our present-day world? Who is the woman who has caused the inhabitants of the earth to err? What are the contents of the cup which causes nations to lose their reason? The contents of the cup are the adulteration of God's pure Word, and to join the one who presents the cup is to commit fornication. It is error in the truth which has caused the confusion and uncertainty in the religious world today.

Verse 9 tells us who the woman is. "And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth." Rome is built on seven hills, or mountains, and Babylon is the mother of her. Catholicism had its origin in Babylon; therefore, Babylon is the mother of Rome religiously.

Right here it might occur to one just how much God values His pure truth, and also to answer the oft-asked question, Does it make any difference what we believe? If in doubt about it, read the final condemnation of those who dare to pervert His Word.

So thoroughly confused are the religions of the world that there is very little truth left. In reality there is little, in doctrinal belief, to hold the majority of the church apart. Many contend that a difference of belief is of no importance, so it seems that we may expect to see in the near future a consolidation of churches. When they do consolidate, it will be under one head. And whose head will it be? Undoubtedly that one from whose hand they have been made drunk. Then all will be taxed and from this general fund all ministers and other workers will be paid. Then many, who with their thimbleful of wisdom have so faithfully worked to bring about this condition, in the hope of a better paying position, will find themselves ejected and jobless.

The woman of Revelation 17:9 in whose hand is the greatest power will give to her children the places of favor. I believe it will be necessary for everyone to pay into and recognize the world church, or face starvation, for those who refuse will be unable to buy or sell.

—0—

BLESSED ARE THESE —

THE other day in New York Ethel Barrymore told a class in dramatics that the Bible should be the textbook for aspiring actors and, at her command, her pupils read aloud the Sermon on the Mount. "Be simple," said Miss Barrymore, "in everything."

We are inclined to go further and to say that the Bible should be the textbook for aspiring writers of all sorts, including newspaper reporters. The world has grown too much adjectival, and one has only to study the fulsome advance notices of movie films which one occasionally encounters at theaters to realize that unnecessary adjectives destroy their own purpose.

There are no unnecessary adjectives in the Sermon on the Mount:

"Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven.

"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

"Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth."

If one read the Sermon on the Mount every morning before leaving the house it is quite likely that one would catch some of the essential simplicity of that great prose, and if everybody did so a great deal of unnecessary conversation might be eliminated from the world.—Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator; selected by Arthur Gilbey.

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

A GENTLE CYNIC

It's the bunk.

A Gentle Cynic, Being the Book of Ecclesiastes, is the entire cognomen. Prof. Morris Jastrow, Jr., who kept university boards in a dither for years giving him degrees, wrote the thing.

Outside of the fact that the Bible isn't inspired, it's a very fine book. And, furthermore, Prof. Jastrow can't quite understand why modern men should be so foolish as to speak of Isaac and Samson and Aaron as historical characters when every sensible person knows they were only myths.

It's higher criticism brought to its acme and centered on a single book. It's modernism carried to the ultimate. And it's the most illogical drivel I've read for a long time.

Ecclesiastes, better known to the Professor as Koheleth (the pen name under which Ecclesiastes was written), was only a late Hebrew effort to do something like the quatrains of Omar Khayyam. It has so many contradictions that reason alone would indicate that only three fourths of it was the product of the original author. The remaining fourth was added by a flock of pious commentators who were displeased with the irreverent cynicism of the book.

About the only valuable feature of the Jastrow masterpiece is its translation of what the author calls the "authentic" parts of Ecclesiastes. The Pennsylvania LL.D., Ph.D. leaves about half the biblical book after his slicing and emending are finished. But the half that's left does contain a translation that's different and, consequently, interesting.

J. B. Lippincott Company: $3.00—and I can't imagine who, besides Morris Jastrow, Jr., would ever pay that much for the bilge.

SENIOR BOOK IV

The chief distinction of this newest of the series of lesson outlines for senior Berean societies is the readability of its cover.

It has fifty lessons. Nine of them are by Sydney E. Magaw, pastor of the Brush Creek, Ohio, Church of God, and have to do with the perennial problem of social behavior. A considerable to-do is raised about dancing, card playing, smoking, drinking, swimming, motoring, and quite a quantity of other items. There'll be a mite of argument engendered by these lessons. They're pretty long to be jammed into one class session.

The remaining forty-one lessons are the preparation of a number of Bible students—Miss Lucille LeCrone, Harry A. Goekler, Mrs. Mary A. Gesin, Norman John Macleod. These forty-one stagger from length to length and cover practically everything in the Bible.

Owing, apparently, to complaints about the monotony of former books of this series, Senior Book IV shows little planning as to sequence. You could take a lesson from any part of it, with one or two exceptions, and have your night's study without reference to any other lesson. This may have its advantages; however, lack of anything definite by which to tie reviews and future assignments to current lessons will, I think, be the cause of some confusion.

The principal flaw in the book is one common to all the old-style Bible lessons: Rather than providing problems that will induce thought, the outlines state a question, list a number of texts which provide the answer, and permit the whole affair to drop. There is little in the book to provoke any great amount of mental exercise.

This very fact makes it easy for the inexperienced teacher to use the lessons. Most teachers, like most students, have neither the experience nor the desire to do a great deal of cerebral gymnasium work, and this book makes it wholly unnecessary. One reads a question, one reads a text, and the lesson is practically ended.

The primary advantage of the Berean publications is the fact that they are Bible-centered. There is, therefore, a sharp contrast between them and the corresponding outlines issued by the young people's organizations of the majority of denominations.

National Berean Society: 25 cents; 5 or more, 20 cents each.

FUN FOR ALL

You've been appointed on an entertainment committee. And your class has had a lot of entertainments, and they've been held by talented directors. Or you want to stage a party of your own. So you start to think, and presently the head begins to buzz, and somebody suggests you get a book from the library, and by that time the library's closed or the book you want has been lent.

Your troubles are ended. What's more, they're ended inexpensively. Fun for All is Dennison's answer to the need for a book of games, of suggestions for favors and prizes and accessories and menus and everything else that goes with a good party. None of the suggestions would cost much to put into effect—a little crepe paper, a spot of two of time, and a few pins. The book has everything from how to tell fortunes to elephant soup. Besides all of which, it's well illustrated with drawings and photos.

What with stork showers, engagement parties, farewell parties, Big Jack Horners, bridal showers, simple banquet table arrangements, Mickey Mouse ideas, and parties of the seasons, Fun for All covers just about all you'll need if you give a party a month for a year.

Dennison's: 10 cents; 15 cents postpaid.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, DECEMBER 29, 1936

NUMBER 13

Condemned to Die!

By the Editor

THE PRISONER at the bar stood with downcast eyes facing the court. The jury had just returned its verdict, "Guilty of murder in the first degree," and the pallid-faced man before the bench waited for the pronouncement of the sentence.

Each juror had been questioned, "Is this your verdict?" and each had answered in the affirmative. Addressing the cringing man before him, the judge asked:

"Have you anything to say before sentence is passed upon you?"

Dazed by the terrible situation in which he found himself, the prisoner did not immediately respond. It was as though he had not heard the words directed to him. His attorney touched his arm and whispered briefly in his ear. Slightly aroused, he glanced toward the man upon the bench, shook his head, and mumbled indistinctly, "Nothing."

The jury was still upon its feet. The crowd in the courtroom stood at attention. Not a sound was heard as the people waited expectantly for the next act in the tragic drama that was to determine the fate of a human being like themselves. A man's life was at stake!

What would the outcome be?

That was the question that agitated the minds of the men and women who filled the room to overflowing. As for the condemned man himself, he remained dumb, apparently uninterested and unconcerned in the events that were taking place around him. Had his mind been clear enough to reason logically, no doubt he would have said in his heart:

"What difference does it make? If I go to the electric chair my suffering and my apprehensions will be over in an instant. If the judge gives me a life sentence in prison it will mean that my misery will be dragged out over a period of years instead of continuing for a few days or weeks."

And could such a fate be given the inspiring name of "hope," his hope would have been for an immediate execution of the extreme penalty, death.

The judge glanced down at the papers before him. He surveyed the jury attentively, searchingly, individually. His gaze passed over the expectant crowd of morbid curiosity-seekers that packed the courtroom. Last of all he turned his eyes upon the figure that slumped dejectedly before him.

"The jury has found you guilty of murder in the first degree," said the judge impressively. "You have indicated that you have nothing further to say in your defense. It therefore becomes my painful duty to pronounce sentence upon you in harmony with the findings of these twelve men who have weighed the evidence presented.

"Every opportunity has been given to you to prepare a defense if such you had. An able lawyer has conducted the case on your behalf. There can be no question as to the fairness of the trial. You have been found guilty according to the law and evidence presented here.

"In the light of these facts I, therefore, am compelled to sentence you to death in the electric chair, the date of said execution to be determined at a later session of this court. Officers, take the prisoner away!"

Death—sure and inexorable—hovered over the slinking figure as he was led away by his guards. Just when the stroke would fall he did not know. (Please turn to Page 11)

Abreast of the Times

Building the Kingdom (?)

"We shall reign on the earth."—Revelation 5:10.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The church is not so much concerned with increasing its membership in these days, as it is in "building the kingdom of God in the life of the city," declared Rev. Harrison R. Anderson, pastor of one of the largest and oldest churches in this city.

"Jesus seldom talked about 'the church,'" he said, "but He talked often of 'the kingdom of God on earth'; not as a remote Paradise, but on earth." The minister, in defining the new concept of church duty, asserted that it had more to do with the developing and maintaining of a higher standard of moral living today than in dealing with abstract problems concerning a future world.

One cannot help but sympathize with the modern interpreter of religion in his recognition of the need for moral and political reform. There can be no question about the crying need for such improvements being made. The only question is, in our estimation, whether or not the church of Jesus Christ should center its campaign on the effort to overcome the moral and economic weakness in our social fabric or, without ignoring the need for such reforms and doing all that it can do consistently to encourage them, direct its major energies to the task of evangelizing the world from an individual standpoint. Which method will produce the more lasting and beneficial results?

Churches Plan War on Reds

"Behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly."—Daniel 7:7.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Recognizing the appeals that are being made to preachers of all churches to join with Socialist and Communist groups in waging warfare against what is termed the evils of the capitalistic system, and how exceedingly dangerous such an alliance would be as far as the church is concerned, the American Forward Movement, composed of laymen and clergy of Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish congregations, is planning a nation-wide campaign against all such propaganda.

"Our purpose," declared Rev. Ralph Nollner, Methodist president of the organization, "is to present a united front against Communist and Socialist agencies working through the churches. Many sincere clergymen have 'fallen' for the buncombe and propaganda sent out by radical groups under the guise of social gospels. We will furnish every preacher in America with a regular information service with documentary proof to set them right."

The Rt. Rev. John Francis Noll, Catholic Bishop of Ft. Wayne, Indiana, and head of his church's anti-Red drive and a leader in the American Forward Movement, added: "Preachers are deluged with propaganda professing a sure cure for evils of poverty and economic insecurity, but the price paid for this specious bargain is slavery."

Speaking on behalf of the Jewish section of the Movement, Dr. Felix A. Levi, president of the American Reform Rabbinate, declared: "We are no apologists for the inequalities of fortune that still mar our social order, but we are deeply convinced that our American principles offer a better opportunity for correcting what is amiss than any sort of dictatorship which must surely grow out of Communism."

Catholics, Protestants, Jews! How times and circumstances do change human relationships! A century ago, or even half that long ago, such an alignment of religious leaders would have been considered utterly impossible. We have observed a rearrangement of religious groups developing for several years. Those church leaders, Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish, who look for world regeneration by political means rather than by individual conversion or by the coming of the Lord, are being drawn into closer unity, while those men and women who still look to the Christ and to the Bible for inspiration and guidance are being brought more into harmony with each other. Is this in preparation for the fulfillment of Jesus' prediction found in Matthew 13:30?

Modern Religious Persecution

"Ye shall be hated of all nations for my sake."—Jesus.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—In many parts of the world it is as dangerous to live and worship as a Christian as it was in the days of Nero. It is estimated, according to The Living Church, that 187,000 men and women have died because of their faith in modern times. Russia alone probably has had as many martyrs as the entire Roman Empire from Nero to Constantine. Add to this the martyrs of Assyria, Armenia, Greece, China, Mexico, and Spain and it seems a fair assumption that the number who gave their lives for Christianity since the World War far exceeds the number who died in the so-called ages of persecution.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Kingdom of God

Number 4

By T. A. Drinkard

AND, too, this portion of Heaven-given law should forever settle or be the end of all controversy as to the location of the kingdom, its duration, and to whom it shall be given.

The kingdom, when "set up"
(Dan. 2:44), will bring new conditions altogether. They will be the opposite to those now existing under the kingdoms of this world. Each nation and kingdom is having its own plans and so-called new deals to bring prosperity to its people, but in the end there are only poverty and want on every hand.

The establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth means a real new deal. It means for a surety that man's rule has come to an end, and that God through Christ takes over the powers of government, and from henceforth a new system that brings an era of peace and plenty to earth is inaugurated that will destroy not only war but the preparations for war (Isa. 2:2-4), and will bring an abundance of peace. It's to be what we term a literal kingdom, just as literal as those that it destroys.

And why not? When we study the kingdoms of man we see about seven parts, and I note that God has revealed that His kingdom has just seven parts and those interested can easily understand them. But should we spiritualize those many scriptures about the kingdom and seek to apply them to the church and her work during this age, we lose sight of the plan and purpose of God.

Men have sought to twist and wrest the Scriptures, and to spiritualize the meaning of the kingdom until the rank of the people know very little about the kingdom, and many of them care less. So much is written about the kingdom that I often wonder why more is not known about it.
As previously stated, the kingdom will be something that the church is not. It will do a work that the church is not doing. It will do a work that the church cannot do. Why?
Simply because God did not plan for the church to do the kingdom work during this age. And the sooner we see that, the sooner we will learn a most valuable lesson.

When God speaks once, yea, twice, and refers to His kingdom as an everlasting kingdom it should end all controversy; but no, the world is partly made up of those who seek to have their own way, by wresting Scripture to "their own destruction" (2 Peter 3:16). And hence people are misled and blinded.

Leaders today as always are optimistic. They plan to do this and that in order to bring plenty and prosperity to the earth, and the very God of heaven declares in thunder-

"And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him. Hitherto is the end of the matter."—Daniel 7:27, 28.

ing tones in Daniel 2 that they cannot, and will not, do it.
Why? Simply because, should plenty and prosperity come, it would mean that the money mongers of this earth would have to lose their wealth, and just so long as money controls governments, just that long the money mongers will fight to retain their hold upon the people. Note the condition in our own nation. Why not plenty and prosperity here when so much money exists?

Only a few years ago there was too much, and they destroyed it! And this, too, when suffering, want, and need stared the people in the face.

The kingdom of God will bring plenty and peace to the earth. When Jesus taught His disciples to pray, it was for a kingdom that would fulfill all the requirements of prophecy. God foresaw the inability of human government to establish and retain a righteous system on earth, hence
His plan to set up a kingdom upon earth with Jesus Christ as its King and His church as His associate rulers (Isa. 32:
1; 2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 2:26, 27; 3:21; 5:9, 10; 20:4; Psalm 149:5-9).

Yes, I am looking for a real, visible, personal Christ who will yet sit upon the reestablished throne of David, and "reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem" (Isa. 24:23; 16:5). The record so states these truths in plain terms, and I believe it so firmly that I can't find words that will make my affirmation too strong.

One of the outstanding facts about the kingdom of God is this: When it is set up or established, it will begin to bring in immediate results; and instead of sin and oppression continuing on, they will begin to come to an end. You will note by the Scriptures (Rev. 20:4; 5:9, 10) that a great change takes place on the earth during the period of a thousand years after the kingdom is set up; and it would seem to me that at the end of the thousand years Christ can gladly and triumphantly say that He has "put down all rule and all authority and power," as Paul clearly indicates by 1 Corinthians 15:25, 24.

Behold the result of a thousand years' reign of Christ upon David's throne on the earth! Compare this work to the so-called reign of Christ since Pentecost. I submit that in affirming that Jesus Christ has been reigning since the days of His personal ministry upon earth or since Pentecost, every passage of Scripture referring to His reign upon earth must be spiritualized, or given a special spiritual meaning so as to refer to the church, and thus the truth be hidden from the people. (Please turn to Page Ten)

Keeping the Faith

"I have kept the faith."—2 Timothy 4:7.

IN THE 4th chapter of 2 Timothy we have the triumphant testimony and parting admonition of Paul, the victorious Christian soldier, the tireless worker, matchless preacher, and heroic sufferer in the cause of Christ. The speaker is fully aware of the impending death approaching: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." Calmly he states the fact. There is no manifestation of fear, regrets, or anxiety—only the confident assurance of well-grounded hope. For years he had been preparing for the event, and when the time arrived he was ready and glad to go.

Paul was a prisoner at Rome under the power of a merciless, cruel tyrant. He was under arrest for the "crime" of preaching the gospel of Christ. He was cut off from the fellowship of his brethren. All had forsaken him in his hour of peril—save Luke, his "beloved physician." But his mind was unfettered and his pen free. Having nothing especially to do, he sat down in his prison and took a review of his past life. Then, with the telescope of faith, he took a preview of the future. Then, with pen in hand, he gave Timothy and all of us the conclusions of his meditations and a glimpse of the things he saw beyond the reach of mortal eyes.

A GOOD FIGHT

As the Apostle let his mind dwell upon the stirring events of his stormy career, knowing that life on earth was drawing to a tragic close, he issued a solemn warning to Timothy to carry on in the same desperate warfare in which Paul had set the example. This impressive charge and warning still rings and echoes across the centuries, inspiring evangelists and missionaries of the cross to emulate the great Apostle and demonstrate the same loyalty and devotion to the high calling of ambassadors of Heaven.

Then, as his mind passed to his personal experience and frightful sufferings, he shouted triumphantly, "I have fought a good fight!" And what a bloody warfare it had been! Foes without and fears within. First, Paul had to fight his own carnal nature which gave him deep concern! "I fight, and keep myself under, lest, after I have preached to others, I may myself become a castaway."

Paul never got away from the fear of apostasy. He never deluded himself, or tried to delude others, with the idea that it is impossible to fall from grace. His constant warning was, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall! . . . Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God."

William G. Burleigh, whose article we here condense from Apostolic Review, has made no effort to be specific in his definition of faith, but has chosen to offer inspirational exhortation in the stead of ironclad creeds. Owing to its length, the original Burleigh work has been considerably abbreviated.

From without, all the powers of darkness were hurled against him. He was in perils by land and sea, from pagan rulers and apostate Jewish church, wild beasts, robbers, false brethren, hunger, cold, and nakedness. In addition to all this he was chained, like a wild beast, for many weary months in gloomy dungeons. (Jesus was showing him what "great things he must suffer for my name's sake.") Yet with high courage and unfaltering steps Paul marched straight forward, bearing in his body "the marks of the Lord Jesus," determined to finish his course with joy.

THE FAITH

In our text Paul reveals the motivating power that held him to his course and enabled him to win the fight. He kept faith with his Lord, and the Lord kept His promise to provide the grace sufficient for all his needs. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith!"

"I have kept the faith." What faith? Why, the only faith there is. There is but one Christian faith. Opinions and speculations are not faith. One may hold a thousand opinions, true or false, on a thousand different subjects, and still be destitute of faith. This seems to be the chief trouble with this modern, muddled, bewildered, blundering world.

Faith comes by hearing the Word of God. Christian faith can come in no other way. Faith is belief of testimony. Christian faith is belief of divine testimony. Where there is no gospel of Christ there can be no Christian faith. Paul believed the Scriptures which testify of Jesus. His faith was in a person, and not in opinions concerning a person. That Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, was the creed in which his faith centered. That is the faith that saves! This is the Rock of Ages on which all else rests! That is the faith which Paul mentions in 2 Corinthians 13:5 when he says, "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith." The Corinthian church had obtained the faith when Paul went to them, determined to know nothing among them "save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." This is the faith Jude referred to when he exhorted the brethren to "earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints."

A DARK PICTURE

In discussing the same subject in 1 Timothy 1:19, Paul admonishes Timothy of the perils of unbelief. "Holding faith, and a good conscience; which some having put away concerning faith have made shipwreck."

We live in a world made sad and dark by sin. Sin has wrecked the world! The far-flung "seven seas" are strewn with battered hulks and bleaching bones, victims of countless shipwrecks. But of all the unhappy, hopeless shipwrecks in the annals of recorded time, none is to be compared with the wreck of a Christian faith. It is a wreck from which there is no recovery. These willful sinners against conscience and divine illumination are adrift on the stream of time without chart, compass, pilot, or port in view—the melancholy victims of a seared conscience and shipwrecked faith. In his farewell address Paul mentions by name one of these doomed souls. It sounds like a funeral dirge and the tolling of a bell: "Demas hath forsaken me, having loved this present world." Here is one of the short-

(Please turn to Page Nine)

The Mediator of the New Covenant

By Henry Dauterich

A MEDIATOR is one who stands between two extremes. Moses was the mediator of the old covenant; he stood between the Lord and the people, to speak unto them and to teach them all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments of God (Deut. 5:5, 31; Gal. 3:19). In the economy of Moses, the people looked to him and desired instruction at his mouth. When they saw the lightning and the mountain smoking, and heard the thunderings and the noise of the trumpet, they were afraid and said unto Moses, "Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die" (Ex. 20:18, 19).

The office of Moses was typical of the official character of Jesus our Lord. Moses was the head of the children of Israel, and they looked up to him as their governor. Moses was a wonderful prophet, and there arose not a prophet in Israel like him, with whom the Lord communed face to face (Ex. 33:11; Deut. 34:10). Moses predicted that the Lord God would in due time raise up a prophet from the midst of his brethren, like unto him, that is, in an official capacity, and him they should hear in all things (Deut. 18:15, 16).

The Apostle Peter applied this prophecy to Christ, and adds, "And it shall be, that every soul, which will not hearken to that prophet, shall be utterly destroyed from among the people" (Acts 3:22-26, R. V.). Thus we understand that Jesus the exalted one is the Mediator of the new covenant, a "better covenant," which was established upon "better promises." The old covenant was dedicated with the blood of calves and goats; but the new covenant was dedicated with the precious blood of Christ. By Moses came a legal and temporal relationship; but by Jesus Christ came "grace and truth" and a spiritual relationship. The temporal relationship under Moses was to the Jews in the flesh, who were a typical people, but the spiritual relationship extends to "all nations" (Acts 10:35; Gal. 3:28, 29). God designed that in the new covenant all mankind shall be blessed, and understand His laws, and know His will, and to this end He hath established the man Christ Jesus as the only Mediator between God and men, and duly qualified Him to make known the principles of the new covenant, in order that man may enter into a covenant relationship with Him, and become spiritual-minded and ultimately "bear the image of the heavenly (spiritual) body" (1 Tim.

2:4, 5; Rom. 8:1-35; Heb. 8:10, 11; 1 Cor. 15:44-58; Phil. 3:21; 1 John 3:1-3).

Christ Jesus is the only way into this grace and fellowship; through faith in Him we have access to this heavenly relationship, which will be fully consummated in the kingdom of God, at the presence of Christ. The mediatorship of Jesus the exalted one is a vast theme, as it is linked with His priestly and kingly office. Jesus the Christ is not only the Mediator of the new covenant, but He is also our High Priest and King after the order of Melchisedec, which order is explained by the Apostle Paul as a divine order. All the types or figures of the Old Testament which stood in a reciprocal relationship to Christ were manifold, and are fully met in Jesus of Nazareth, the antitype. Therefore the Apostle declared that "in him (now) dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily," and that He is the Head of "all principality and power."

Jesus our Lord is also the guardian of the sanctuary, or holy things, and in Him are treasured up all wisdom and knowledge, and He is the source of all spiritual blessings, and we are complete in Him (Heb. 8:2; Eph. 1:3; Col. 2:3, 9, 10).

Jesus is the beginning of all eternal things; that is to say, in the Son the Father created all eternal things, even the things future (Heb. 1:2); because He vested Him with power to create them in their order respectively, when due, in strict accord with the design of God, as it is written, "For in him were all things created, in the heavens and upon the earth, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones or dominions or principalities or powers" (Col. 1:16). Jesus is the "firstborn" after an eternal order, "the beginning of the (eternal) creation of God." There is no creature like Jesus, who is now "the express image of the Father's person," and all things are upheld by the word of His power, which power was given unto Him when God raised Him from the dead and admitted Him into the order of Melchisedec (Matt. 28:18; Eph. 1:20-23; Heb. 1:3).

This transcendent truth is dwelt upon in all the Epistles of the apostles, who constantly exhorted the saints to look unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith.

Through faith in Christ Jesus, righteousness is imputed to us, and we are thus sanctified in Him, and receive the reconciliation purchased by the blood of the Mediator.

The Lost Book

THE topic on which I am to speak to you this morning has to do with Christian education. Personally, I know no greater subject in the light of its full significance and its potentiality for help to our Nation at a critical time than this one. The hope of any people must always be in its youth; sound education is the only basis of national greatness. And nations are very much like individuals. One has but to read the great prophets of the past, such as Isaiah or Jeremiah or Amos, with their tremendous insistence upon the accountability of nations as well as individuals to almighty God, to see one of the missing elements in national and international life today. Yes, education is the hope of the future, if—and that “if” cannot be too strongly emphasized—if it be education in spirit and in morals, in character as well as mind and body. A certain remark of President Theodore Roosevelt has been oft quoted, yet its meaning is by no means worn out: “Show me,” he said, “a man trained in intellect and not in religion and morals, and I will show you a menace to society.” There you have in brief compass one of the fundamental issues of today.

Let me put that issue in question form. Are we in America training our young people in religion and morals as well as in mind? Does education today quicken the conscience and stimulate the moral fiber of young people? Or is there something missing in the training of American youth?

My friends, there is something missing. The thing that is missing is a book. By a strange paradox this book is the most widely printed, most influential, and most generally quoted volume in our country. Yet, so far as American life and training of American youth go, that book is practically lost. Although every great author, from Chaucer to George Bernard Shaw, has been profoundly influenced by this book, although our greatest statesmen have quoted it freely, American young people today are growing up in densest ignorance of its contents. Let me take a moment briefly to picture the extraordinary timeliness of this book.

The date is March 4, 1933. A new President of the United States is making his inaugural address. Banks are failing, business is collapsing. With eager attention, millions of Americans are sitting by their radios listening to the voice of a new leader. As you heard or read that inaugural, did you notice that, woven into its comparatively few paragraphs were a number of clear allusions to this book?

The American Ambassador to Russia has delivered to the Soviet Republic a strong protest against Communist propaganda in the United States. Back comes the reply, written by the representative of an avowedly atheistic nation. And to point his most effective rejoinder, Mr. Litvinoff quotes some words spoken by Him who is the central Character of this book which is so strangely missing from American education.

And that book keeps on making news. A mere fragment of old papyrus is discovered, containing a few words from the book. Immediately the news is cabled throughout the world, and great metropolitan papers give columns to the discovery.

BIBLE NECESSARY TO LIBERAL EDUCATION

What is this lost book of American education? Well, the answer is already apparent. It is the English Bible—incomparably the greatest of all the literary treasures of the human race. No scholar or critic of standing, whether Christian or atheist, would think of denying the preeminence of its influence. Our laws are based upon it. The very ideals of liberty upon which America is built were conceived by men whose thought and character were molded by it. All things considered, it is very doubtful whether anyone can lay claim to being truly educated who does not know the Bible. “I thoroughly believe in a university education for men and women,” said Prof. William Lyon Phelps, of Yale, “but I believe a knowledge of the Bible without a college course is more valuable than a college course without the Bible.” Prof. Phelps knows the value of higher education, having been a university teacher for over forty years. He knows books as do few men living. And he also knows the Bible.

SPIRITUAL ILLITERACY

Now, if this statement is true and if a knowledge of the Bible is essential to a liberal education, what of Christian education? Can our young people today be trained in morals and spirit amid an almost total neglect of the one book which is the source of all that is highest in ethics and spirituality? Can we expect a generation of American youth that is spiritually illiterate to develop the character that will save the Nation from the sag in morals that is only too apparent today?

But perhaps some of our hearers this morning are inclined to question the use of so strong a term as “spiritual illiteracy.” Yes, that term is a strong one to use of the youth of a nominally Christian nation. Yet I know, and every thoughtful educator knows, that it is a true designation. Recently Bishop Edwin Mouzon of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, made a survey in Virginia of the acquaintance of high school students with the English Bible. Of 18,434 high school students in that State who responded to the questionnaire, 16,000 could not name three prophets of the Old Testament; 12,000 could not name the four Gospels; 10,000 could not name three of Christ’s disciples. There is not a shadow of a doubt that similar abysmal ignorance exists in practically every high school and college in America.

IGNORANCE OF THE BIBLE

Only a short time ago, a graduate of Stony Brook, now attending Columbia University, told me of an incident in his class in French literature. A certain poem being read by the class contained a reference to Moses smiting the rock in the wilderness. Just two members of that class, my young friend and one other, had any idea of the source of this simple biblical allusion. And I can well appreciate that incident, for my own experience reminds me of a class in short story writing at another university some years ago. The instructor asked the class to read one of the greatest of all short stories, the book of Ruth, and but two members of that class, as I recall it, knew where to find the book of Ruth.

Listen to the words of the president of our largest university, Columbia, in the city of New York: "The English Bible, a fountain of English literature, is practically stricken from the reading of the American people," said Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. "My own feeling is that what has come to pass can only be described in one word, shameful."

Does it pay, this "shameful" ignorance of the Bible, this spiritual illiteracy? Well, New York City has recently learned, according to Clarence Benson, of Moody Institute, that out of 55,000 children below the age of sixteen who had fallen into the hands of the police, only one-sixth had ever heard of the Ten Commandments. And when this arresting fact was discovered, the same test was given to high school pupils, with the result that in one school, three fourths of the pupils could not write anything at all about the Ten Commandments. As has well been asked, "How shall the youth of our land obey the laws of which they have never heard?"

But enough of illustrations. I could go on with the picture and, by piling evidence, I could make doubly clear the relationship between spiritual illiteracy and crime. The conclusion is plain. The lost book is the most costly omission that our schools have ever made.

THE BIBLE IN THE HOME

What can be done about it? What can you do about it? My friends, you can do a great deal. First of all, you can put the Bible back into your homes. And in the next place, you can use your influence to give it recognition in the schools. You can put the Bible back into your homes. Ah, you say, the Bible is in my home; it has an honored place in my library. We are church members; our children go to Sunday school. That is splendid, but, my friends, let me ask you, especially you who are parents, a simple question. Do you read the Bible regularly? Is it the book from which you derive daily light and guidance? Do your children know that you read it, that you love it and live by it? Even more, do you read it to your children and do you teach it to them?

You know, a headmaster gains as the years pass a certain insight into the American home. And in the fourteen years of my experience as headmaster of a school for boys, I have seen that the American home has practically abdicated its God-given position as a center of Christian education. Take a census of the congregation in the average Protestant church, and you will find only a minority who recognize the bountiful mercy of God by asking grace before their meals. Take such a census again and you will find that a pitifully tiny proportion practice family prayers. Yet the home remains the first and greatest center of Christian education. I recently came across this telling statement from the pen of a man of international reputation in the field of New Testament scholarship—Dr. J. Gresham Machen. Let me quote it: "I did not get my knowledge of the Bible from Sunday school or from any other school, but I got it on Sunday afternoons with my mother at home."

"THE CHURCH IN THE HOUSE"

There is a lovely phrase that occurs several times in the New Testament; it is "the church in the house." "The church in the house." It is literally true that the Christian church began in the homes of the first century believers. And the passage of nineteen centuries has not altered the fact that the most effective means of Christian education remains the home. Now I am aware that this message is being heard quite largely by Christians. May I ask you, particularly you Christian fathers and mothers, a direct question? Is your home a church? Does it have an altar on which the Bible is laid, and do you have fellowship with your children about that altar? The world may forget the Bible, the school may neglect it, but you must remember it. You can teach it to your children, and, though you may be too poor to give them a college training, you can give them the priceless boon of a familiarity with the greatest of all books, the only Book which makes known the Savior of the world, even Jesus Christ the Lord, who shed His blood to take away the world's sin.

THE BIBLE AND EDUCATION

And there is another thing that you can do to help dispel the dreadful darkness of spiritual illiteracy that we have allowed to descend upon our youth. You can take your stand and use your influence against the irreligion that holds our public education in its grip.

Now we Americans believe in religious liberty. The separation of church and state is a fundamental of our national heritage. Very properly we oppose sectarian teaching in our public schools. Yet the pendulum has swung to the opposite extreme. Public education today is so completely negative when it comes to spiritual things; it has, except in a few isolated places, so drastically swept the Bible out of its schools, that it is by implication actually favoring the godless, pagan elements of our population. The one encouraging thing is that powerful voices are being raised to combat this situation, so completely at variance with the intentions of the founders of our country. In a recent annual report, Dr. Butler, of Columbia, bluntly stated that the influence of the public schools is now on the side of one element of the population—the pagan. "Your actions," some one has well said, "speak so loudly that I cannot hear what you say." And our public education, though it speaks of religious liberty, is by its deliberate shelving of the Bible and religious fundamentals common to all faiths telling American young people in stentorian tones that religion simply does not count. Things have come to a ridiculous pass when the Board of Education in a certain city in New York State refused a choral organization permission to present Handel's Messiah in a high school auditorium, on the ground that it is a sectarian work. Even the Jewish rabbi took part in the just protest that led to a reversal of the decision. So great is the fear of sectarian teaching, however, that in certain parts of the country the very Bible itself has been banned from the schools as a sectarian book!

Does the Bible have a place in public education? Indeed it does. It has a place as the greatest of all literary treasures. It has a place as an indispensable part of true culture. To take away from our youth all acquaintance with it is a far more serious deprivation than the removal of Shakespeare and Tennyson and all the other great poets from the curriculum.

But aside from its literary study, the Bible, as a voluntary subject, can be placed in the schools with the cooperation of the churches. This has been done for years in such cities as Charlotte, North Carolina, and Chattanooga, Tennessee, where about 80 per cent of the high school students voluntarily study the Bible under competently trained teachers and receive credit toward graduation for this work. Movements to this end when begun in a community deserve the support of Christian parents.

"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES"

Several years ago, the Government of Great Britain purchased from Soviet Russia the famous Sinaiticus manuscript of the New Testament. The price paid was $550,000, raised by popular subscription! At that time The New York Times printed a striking editorial in which it referred to the British as "the people of the Book." Yes, it is true that our neighbors across the sea cherish their Bible. Their late beloved King read it daily for over forty years. They have been, as nations go, a "people of the Book." And their example is one that we, who share their language and their culture, might well follow. Certainly it is beyond controversy that if the spiritual revival which our people so sorely need is to come, it will come only through the recovery of the Lost Book. May God help us to recover the Bible in our homes, in our schools, but first of all in our hearts. For if we truly recover it, we shall also find its central Character, the Lord Jesus, who said, "Search the scriptures: for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me."—Frank E. Gaebelin, Litt. D.; Yankee network radio address.

The Spirit: No One

By Emma C. Railsback

THE WORD "spirit" is such a flexible word, taking on such a variety of meanings, that Bible students experience much confusion in trying to arrive at definite conclusions on the subject. In my early experiences as a searcher after truth, it was not unusual to hear elderly men say, "I have studied this subject for years and cannot say now that I have a correct understanding of it."

The dictionary classifies the subject under at least ten different headings, some of which are contrary to the Scriptures, but in order to get an understanding of this very perplexing question, it is quite essential to make a number of classifications and then to determine from Scripture context in which class the word belongs.

The heading that comes to one's mind first of all is "the Holy Spirit," which our Savior has defined as "power from on high" (Luke 24:49). It is also designated "the Spirit," "Spirit of the Lord," "the Spirit of God," etc. It is a special God-given power, and the Scriptures refer to those receiving it as being baptized with, filled with, or anointed by the Spirit (Isa. 61:1; Acts 2:4; Matt. 3:11). This Spirit of God was promised to the Savior through the prophetic writings, as in Isaiah 11:2 and other places. "The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him." Then when He was baptized as recorded in Matthew 3:16, and went up straightway out of the water, the heavens were opened unto Him and He saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and lighting upon Him and a voice from heaven saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

John the Baptist testified of witnessing this visible manifestation of the Spirit baptism of the Savior following the water baptism (John 1:32, 33), and later declared that God "giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him" (John 3:34), whereby we understand that this special power was given in the measure needed to some of God's servants, as the circumstances required. 2 Peter 1:21: "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit."

Those through whom God exercised this power or spirit were not always righteous, for we learn that he caused Balaam to utter many prophetic truths (Num. 24) after he had left the way of righteousness because he loved the wages of unrighteousness (2 Peter 2:15, 16), and he was rebuked for his iniquity. The dumb ass, speaking with man's voice, forbade the madness of the Prophet. This instance gives us an example of God exercising this power on a dumb brute, and it also reminds us of a statement of the Savior to the Pharisees when they urged Him to rebuke His followers for saying, "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord": "If they should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out."

On announcing His ascension into heaven to His apostles, Jesus comforted them with the promise of another Comforter, the Holy Spirit, referring to it as the Spirit of Truth, which should teach them all things, guiding them into all truth, and would bring all things to their remembrance whatsoever He had said unto them. His instruction to them to tarry in Jerusalem until endued with power from on high was fulfilled just ten days later, when a vast multitude from every nation was assembled to observe the feast of Pentecost. Here again the Spirit took on a visible manifestation, that of cloven tongues of fire, and this special power given to the apostles enabled them to preach the gospel in every language represented in that great multitude.

This Spirit was given quite generally to all believers in the beginning of this church dispensation, and the apostles had the power to impart it to new converts by the laying on of hands (Acts 8:15-17). The preaching of the gospel was followed by this miracle-working power, which was to serve for a sign to confirm the gospel message and to complete the written word. There is no record of those having received it by the laying on of the apostles' hands being able to practice this apostolic authority. Then again those to whom it was given were not always in possession of it (2 Tim. 4:20, which records that the Apostle Paul saw fit to leave one of his colaborers sick in Miletus and go on in his missionary work).

Peter on the day of Pentecost instructed the believing Jews to "repent, and be baptized, . . . and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit"; but in the case of the household and friends of Cornelius, who believed the preaching of Peter, this power was given before obedience, and this greatly astonished Peter and the six believing Jews who had accompanied him. He asked, "Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, who have received the Holy Spirit as well as we? And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord" (Acts 2:38; 10:44-48).

Personification is used of this power in John 16:7-14, where the personal pronoun "he" is used often in speaking of it, in the same way that wisdom is personified in Proverbs 8 by using the personal pronoun "she."

Other classifications of the word are "breath," "phantom," "strength," "attitude of mind," "teachers," and "the new life." We will take up a consideration of these other meanings of the word "spirit" in later articles.

—0—

KEEPING THE FAITH

(Continued from Page Five)

est and most tragic biographies ever written. It is the condensed history of a soul bartered for this present, fleeting world. Demas stands by the highway to perdition holding out a lurid red light as a warning to all who follow in his steps!

Here were two men, side by side, holding the same faith with clear conscience. They worshiped together, sang the same songs, rejoiced in the same hope, communed together, prayed to the same God, and were happily serving the same Master. One fought the good fight—one listened to the voice of Satan and yielded slowly to the blandishments of this present world. One kept the faith—one tampered with his conscience and wrecked his faith on the rocks of infidelity. One died in the faith—one died without

God and without hope in this or any other world! No wonder Paul feared that he, too, might meet this dreadful fate! The saddest of all sad shipwrecks is in store for the faithless. To fear God and keep His commandments is not only the whole duty, but the supreme happiness and security of man.

Paul had no secret formula for keeping the faith. It is open to all, so that "he who runs may read." Jesus and all the inspired writers and preachers outlined the method.

Faith is a tender plant. It is easily chilled by the nipping frosts of atheism and scorched by the blistering heat of carnal passion. Paul took good care of the faith.

Faith comes by hearing the Word of God. The more one hears the Word read and preached, the stronger one's faith will grow. The Psalmist said, "Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee." That is still a good practice. The Christian who substitutes worldly amusements for church attendance, and the funny papers for the Bible, will soon have no faith, and become a cast-away.

In Bob Ingersoll's palmy days he had a date to lecture in Washington. Congress was in session. Benton McMillian was then Congressman for Tennessee. Another Congressman proposed to McMillian that they go and hear the lecture on the "Mistakes of Moses." McMillian refused.

"You are not afraid of Ingersoll, are you?" asked the Congressman sarcastically.

"No," said McMillian, "nor of any other infidel! But my mother believed the Bible, and in Jesus as her Savior. She taught me to do the same. She lived righteously and died happily in her faith. I aim to follow her advice and example. Why should I pay Ingersoll or any other enemy of God and His Word to try to wreck my faith?"

Paul not only protected the faith, but he cultivated it by active service. "Faith without works is dead, being alone." Faith must be linked with good works to be of value.

Paul never found time to cultivate doubts, to nurse grouches, indulge in self-pity, or retail his troubles to others. He counted all his overwhelming troubles as "light afflictions," not to be compared to the rewards of faith. With this shield of faith he quenched all the fiery darts of his enemies and surmounted all barriers.

FELLOWSHIP WITH THE FAITHFUL

Paul kept his faith by keeping in fellowship with the most faithful. Faith strengthens faith. It is a great help to one's faith to have the privilege of association with those of strong faith. Wherever Paul went in his journeyings, he would look up the most faithful disciples or pious Jews of each community, and make his home with them. Thus he welded a chain of friendship that strengthened him immensely during the dark hours of imprisonment and on lonely journeys in strange lands.

Paul associated with those who valued the faith most highly. When he could not meet with them he wrote inspiring letters assuring them of his love and deep interest in their welfare. Those letters became a part of the Book of books, and are cherished by a great host of faithful souls who seek to keep the faith and win the crown.

STORIES OF GREAT HYMNS

FROM the pen of a young man of twenty-two came the words of that hymn which has cheered countless thousand Christians throughout life—"My Faith Looks up to Thee."

Ray Palmer of Little Compton, Rhode Island, a direct descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, was a teacher in a select school for girls in New York. One day alone in his room he was reading a German poem of the cross, and the words of this hymn were born of his own soul, as he expressed it.

Ray Palmer first wrote the lines on a loose sheet of paper and then copied them in a pocket memorandum, which he carried around for nearly two years. Meeting Dr. Lowell Mason on the street one day, who asked him for some words for hymn music, Palmer gave him the words of this well-loved hymn. Dr. Mason was so well pleased with them that he at once set them to music. The last verse is generally omitted by our own congregations. The second one is particularly appealing:

"May Thy rich grace impart
Strength to my fainting heart,
My zeal inspire;
As Thou hast died for me,
Oh, may my love to Thee,
Pure, warm, and changeless be,
A living fire!"

BOOK MANUSCRIPTS ARE FOUND

EVERY now and then some new manuscript of the Bible is discovered. Not long ago it was a portion of St. John's Gospel. More recently it was a part of Deuteronomy. We are all deeply indebted to those scholars who find these manuscripts and decipher them and decide their date. It is a great help to the cause of religion, for the truth fears nothing but concealment. The more we know of the text the better for all concerned.

However, the life and power of the Scripture is another thing than textual criticism. You remember Nicodemus was an educated man, well versed in the divine law, a master in Israel. Yet our Lord in that famous interview found out that he had missed something. "Art thou a master in Israel, and knowest not these things?" The power of the Scriptures is for all, poor or rich, learned or ignorant, who in an honest and good heart will read the word and take it to themselves. It is possible to belong to "the Order of Nicodemus." One can know a great deal about the letter of the Scripture and miss the power of it.

Then, too, Nicodemus appeared in another light. He dropped in on Jesus one evening. He interrupted the Lord that night. I suppose there is not a person in the land who has not had such an interruption. What have we to say to those of the "Order of Nicodemus" who interrupt the preparation of our sermon or the round of our social life? They come shyly with their problems, their sorrow, or their sin. Have we the message that they need?—The Canadian Churchman; selected by Arthur Gilbey.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from Page Three)

Here the Scriptures clearly show wonderful results in a thousand years' reign of Jesus Christ; but look at the world conditions today, some two thousand years after the birth of Jesus Christ. One would think that surely we could see a change for the better in two thousand years after the kingdom is set up. The kingdom will bring peace to this earth, but it is written that the close of this age will bring trouble and sin, "perilous times" (2 Tim. 3:1; Dan. 12:1).

When the scriptures are taken from their proper setting and meaning and "wrested" to appear to teach something other than their original meaning, darkness will cover the earth and gross darkness the people. John the Baptist was a student of the Word of God, and could see the results of the reign of Jesus Christ. He could see that when Christ begins to reign upon David's throne, yea, His throne (Luke 1:31-33; Rev. 3:21; Acts 2:30), His sharp, retributive judgments would bring immediate results by crushing the kingdoms of the earth. John's prophecy is short and to the point, and here it is: "Whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire" (Matt. 3:12).

John says much in a few words. He could see the result of the reign of Jesus Christ as John of The Revelation saw it and, seeing it, said, "Come, Lord Jesus," and come quickly (Rev. 22:20). To what could John refer by "his floor" if not to the earth? and by "the garner" unless it was to the kingdom? and by "his fan" if not to His word and His judgments? His floor will be swept clean of every vestige of human rule, that has brought so much oppression and sorrow to the people.

To me the Scriptures teach that God through Christ is calling and selecting His church for the special work of assisting Christ in this great work. The church, called saints, is to have a work in the binding of kings and their nobles, and in the executing of the judgments (Psalm 149:8, 9). And those judgments mean the finis to human empires. Imagine, if you will, what that will bring, the breaking up and the passing away of all human governments. Thank God that such is going to be, for it will mean so much to His people, the saints, and to those who become His subjects in the kingdom upon the earth. Pray for that day (Matt. 6:10)!

The new Berean book is ready for distribution. A sample lesson will be found in the Berean Department, page 12.

CONDEMNED TO DIE!

(Continued from Front Page)

This very uncertainty added to his fears as he stumbled drunkenly down the corridor between the officers.

This is not an attractive picture we have painted here. Nothing but grim horror is to be found in it. A man has sinned, grievously sinned against society and against God, and "the wages of sin is death." Death was the prize for which he had labored and death was the reward he was soon to receive. There was no escape possible. He must die!

Should the sentence be suspended for a few months or even years, and should the prisoner during the period of delay, either by his own desire or by compulsion, lead a life of exemplary probity, the time would come when he would be led away to the chamber of death! He could not escape! The penalty would hang over him so long as he should live.

The scene here painted presents an accurate picture of all mankind today, for "all have sinned" and "the wages of sin is death." "We know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God," or in the more accurate rendering of the American Revised Version, "all the world may be brought under the judgment of God" (Rom. 3:19).

The same all-inclusive condemnation is expressed by Paul in a later chapter: "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Rom. 5:12).

Death is the great enemy of humanity, and sin is the weapon with which it wages its relentless warfare. Sin has wrought more havoc, it has brought more distress, it has wrecked more homes and lives and characters, than all other destructive agencies combined. Sin is more to be feared, more to be dreaded, than fire or flood, earthquake or tempest.

Listen to the warning voiced by the Son of God:

"I say unto you my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him" (Luke 12:4, 5).

The corresponding passage in Matthew gives this latter verse even more force:

"Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell" (Matt. 10:28).

According to the "Golden Text of the Bible" (John 3:16), destruction is the thing which all men should fear. It is destruction, perishing, from which God would save men through the sacrifice of His Son.

It is not our purpose here to discuss these verses from Matthew and Luke exhaustively, but we would direct our attention briefly to the latter one: "I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him."

Pestilence, famine, murder, and war, all kill the bodies of men, that is, they take the lives of men, but having done this their power is exhausted. Death places men beyond the reach of all their enemies, but it cannot take them beyond the reach of God! That is what Jesus is saying here.

"Fear God," commanded the preacher of old, "and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Ecc. 12:13, 14). It is God and God only whom we are to fear, for He alone is able to follow our destiny beyond the grave.

The thought is perhaps more clearly expressed in Moffatt's translation, where the two pronouns in Luke 12:5 start with capital letters, signifying that the person whom we are to fear is God: "I will show you whom to fear—fear Him who after He has killed has power to cast you into Gehenna. Yes, I tell you, fear Him."

The word rendered "hell" in the Common Version is derived from the Greek word geenna or Gehenna. Commenting on this word, the Abingdon Bible Commentary says:

"The Greek word for 'hell' is Gehenna, a name originally given to the ravine outside Jerusalem where human sacrifices were offered to Moloch (Jer. 7:31). Later, because the name was of evil omen, it became a metaphorical expression for the place where the wicked were punished (2 Esdras 7:36). As Rawlinson suggests, it calls to mind maggots preying on offal and fires perpetually burning for the destruction of refuse. It typifies the destruction of waste products in God's creation rather than the prolonged torture of human beings."

Gehenna, hell, was a place of utter destruction, the place where the bodies of executed criminals were sometimes cast to be consumed by the quenchless fires and devoured by the worms which fed constantly upon their putrefying carcasses. "It typifies the destruction of waste products in God's creation." The persistent rebel against God, he whom the pleadings of love and the proffer of reward will not induce to repent and become an obedient servant of the Most High, is a "waste product in God's creation"! He serves no useful purpose. He will never, no matter how long he may survive, render a profitable service to the Lord.

Furthermore, sin brings its own punishment. All the pain, sorrow, and disappointment in the world have been caused by the workers of iniquity who refuse to submit to the sovereignty of God. As long as such degenerates exist they continue to bring upon themselves and upon the entire race of mankind the distressful consequences of iniquity. To free the world from sorrow they must be removed from it. They must be made to perish!

As we have seen, only God can bring about utter and irremediable destruction. Therefore, says Jesus, "Fear him!" "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God" (Heb. 10:31), who is able to utterly destroy "both soul and body in Gehenna!"

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Hot Off the Press

The editor just received a copy of the new Berean Book, The Gospel and Christian Living. It contains forty-one lessons on varied subjects, and nine lessons dealing with the problems of young people as they exist today. We are printing herewith a sample lesson from the last group.

LESSON A

AT THE FEET OF SOLOMON

Memorize Proverbs 1:7.

Solomon, third and last King of the united monarchy of Israel, wrote under inspiration three books of the Bible: Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon. God gave Solomon superior wisdom because the youthful King requested wisdom in preference to material blessings. As Saul of Tarsus learned "at the feet of Gamaliel," we trust you may learn "at the feet of Solomon." You shall be students in a classroom of Solomon College for a course in Applied Proverbs.

1. If you would be wise reverence the Lord. Despise God's instructions, and you place yourself among the foolish (Prov. 1:7; Psalm 53:1).

2. Reverence of your heavenly Father (Matt. 6:9) is improbable if you despise your earthly parents. Disrespect for one leads to disrespect for the other (Prov. 1:8; 15:5). An orphan is greatly handicapped. Why?

3. Is wisdom possible without a scholastic education (Prov. 2:1-7)? Compare James 1:5; Matt. 7:7, 8. Where did Daniel find wisdom (Dan. 1:9, 20; 2:23)?

4. Are the righteous to be rewarded in heaven or earth (Prov. 2:21; Matt. 5:5)? Are the wicked to be punished with torture or death (Prov. 2:22; Rom. 6:23)? Does a correct understanding of God's plan build your respect for Him?

5. Does it pay in health, happiness, and in dollars to obey God? See Prov. 3:1-10; compare Matt. 6:33.

6. Does anger or devotion prompt correction (Prov. 3:11, 12)? If God has never brought you to your knees in prayer you must not belong to Him; or is it possible that one might escape correction by true loyalty?

7. Use present opportunities. Be honest with your neighbor (Prov. 3:27, 28).

8. A runner at full speed is a witness to the spectator that there is a goal, though the goal may be invisible. Does your life reveal to the onlooker that there is a goal ahead? Can he see you going at full speed? Study Prov. 4:18. Do you light the way to the "perfect day" for others?

9. Go straight (Prov. 4:27). Let some one in the class who has studied geometry explain why the straight path is the best path.

10. Man sins in the dark to avoid detection, but God "pondereth all his goings" (Prov. 5:21). Be careful of your actions in the dark. You may be deceived to think darkness hides your sin. How many melons were stolen from your neighbor in daylight? It is always daylight with God. Let your conscience be your curfew.

Order Now

Get yourself a copy of the new book right away. You will enjoy an advance reading of it before your class takes it up.

The price is: 25 cents each, or 20 cents each in lots of 5 or more to one address. Order from the National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois.

Janus

The month of January is named for the heathen god Janus, who was supposed to have two faces to look both ways at once. We stand now momentarily on a pinnacle looking back at the old and on to the new year. It is a time of making resolutions. As we look at some of the old happenings we see that what we disliked has many times turned out for our good. By trusting God we are never to be disappointed in the final outcome. We can stand for the moment with Barnabas in Acts 11:23, "who, when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord."

It is right to lay plans according to the true purpose. It is not right to drift aimlessly along life's stream. Let us take this season of the year to restate our aims in life, to sound the high note of a godly vision. Let us heed: Jesus Christ claims leadership in every department of our lives. Lay your plans accordingly.

Taking the Pulse

What have your Berean meetings actually accomplished? What have they done to your faith, hope, and love?

1. Do you experience heartfelt worship?
2. What do you consider high ideals? Are they biblical?
3. What "yardstick" do you use to decide your financial support of the church, what your brother does or what God says to do?
4. How tall is Christ? Does He grow taller in your mind?
5. Is your understanding of the promises of God fuller?
6. How much do you trust God in your activities?
7. How do you do good to your neighbor?

Sit down now and ask yourself these questions and many others. Don't leave out even such questions as, When I drive an automobile do people hate to ride with me? It has a bearing upon your growth in Christianity, for the driver who lacks consideration for his passengers and other motorists needs to learn at the feet of the Christ. The driver who is irritated at petty traffic tie-ups needs to develop Christian tolerance and instantaneous forgiveness.

Remember, Jesus Christ lays claim to leadership in every department of your life.

Your Berean class never can be any better than you help to make it. Resolve now that you loyally will be present every week with a studied lesson, a mind prepared to learn, and a willingness to do the right as you see the right. And this editor wishes you a happy and successful New Year in your fellowship with God.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved."

JESUS ANSWERS NICODEMUS' QUESTIONS

LAST week we started the study of the book of John in our Sunday school lessons. We learned that God sent His Son into the world so that men might learn more about Him. For men seemed so far away from God and God wanted them to love Him.

God knew that Jesus would be able to show the world how powerful His Father was, how loving He was, how wise He was. As men learned these things they would turn away from their own evil ways to the right ways of God.

Now John tells us in the last part of his book just why he wrote the book. Look in chapter 20, verse 31, and you will see these words: "These are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name."

Do you see that no matter how much people might admire Jesus for His wonderful works, if they did not believe He could do them because He was the Son of God, it would do them no good? And if they believed His words and had faith in His works, they would receive eternal life because of their faith. Verse 31 says so.

The very same thing is told us by John in chapter 3, verse 16. You all know that verse, for it is, no doubt, the best known one in all the Bible. Let's all say it together.

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." That verse is found in our second lesson for the new year.

First, let us see what Jesus had been doing since we left Him a week ago. He had just called Philip and Nathanael to be among His apostles. You remember, Jesus called Nathanael by name, and he was surprised. He said to Jesus, "Whence knowest thou me?"

Jesus said, "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee."

Then Nathanael said, "Thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel."

Nathanael realized that no mere man could possibly know all about him. And Jesus blessed him because he believed, and told him he would see greater things than that. All of which came true, as we shall see when we go further.

We read of two great happenings in John's second chapter. The first was a wonderful thing Jesus did at a wedding. The second was an equally wonderful, though quite different, thing He did in the temple at Jerusalem.

Now this first miracle, when Jesus turned water into wine at the wedding, was done to show His disciples the power of God so that they would believe that He was God's Son. Helpers that didn't believe in Him would not be very good helpers, would they? So at the very beginning Jesus showed them that He was exactly what He claimed to be.

The second thing Jesus did wasn't really a miracle and yet it was. It was a miracle that those wicked men obeyed Jesus when He made a whip out of small cords and drove them out of the beautiful temple.

They were buying and selling oxen and sheep and doves in Jesus' Father's house and that was a wrong thing to do. Jesus said, "Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise." And every one of those men went out at Jesus' command.

By this time people began to hear about Him far and wide. One of the rulers of the Jews named Nicodemus heard that a great Teacher had been sent from God. So he went by night to talk to Jesus. The reason might have been that he thought there would be more time to talk at night. Or, being such a public person, Nicodemus knew it would stir up a crowd that might follow him, if he went during the day. Most likely John was there with Jesus and heard their conversation.

The first thing Nicodemus said showed Jesus that this Jewish ruler was sincere and wanted to learn more about Him and His message. So Jesus went on to explain to him that if he wanted to be saved and live in the kingdom of God he must be born again.

Born again! the ruler couldn't understand such an expression and said so. Jesus told him he ought to, being a master in Israel. For the Old Testament, which every good Jew believed thoroughly, spoke of a new birth.

The Prophet, Ezekiel, said that the time would come when they would have a new heart and a new spirit. Then they would walk in God's ways and keep God's statutes. What else would that be but a new birth, a new life, a different way of living?

All of this would come to Nicodemus, and all others who wanted it, just by believing Jesus' words, obeying them in baptism, and following in His steps. It sounds very simple, doesn't it? I wonder what Nicodemus thought.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

POMONA, CALIFORNIA

There will be a one-day conference held in Los Angeles, Calif., Sunday, Jan. 17, 1937. Sr. E. C. Railsback will speak at the morning service and Bro. Norman Macleod will speak in the afternoon. An effort is being made to secure at least one other speaker for the afternoon.

Grace Adamson, Secretary.

CAROLINA FAVORITES

Editors, The Restitution Herald:

If the piece "He Careth for You" in the Berean Department of The Herald for November 24 doesn't bring tears from people, I don't know what will. I repeated it over to my son this morning. He said that was all Jesus could do.

I surely do like the piece from Mary A. Gesin, "How the Girls Kept Christmas," and in fact every piece that comes out in The Herald. They are all so good, it seems that they would help anyone who reads them.

Mrs. R. A. Robinson,
Clyde, North Carolina.

WINNING FINANCIAL FREEDOM

The Layman Company's pamphlet, "Winning Financial Freedom," has proved to be so popular and effective that once more we are offering it to any pastor free of charge. On request we will send, postage paid, enough copies to supply all the lay officials of his church.

The pamphlet describes a simple method by which the pastor may carry on, quietly and steadily, the education of his people in the principles of Christian giving, without interfering with his other work, and at a cost purely nominal.

For $1.00 we will send to any address, 40 pamphlets, 32 four-page bulletins, and 20 two-page tabloids, by about 40 authors. This package includes a Tithing Account Book, two playlets, and "The Scriptural Basis for the Tithe." It contains everything we publish, making 560 pages on the subject of tithing.

When you write please mention The Restitution Herald and give your denomination.

The Layman Company,
730 Rush St., Chicago, Ill.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. C. S. Prime; Mrs. E. R. Burk; Mary F. Cook; Ella M. Rose; Irvin L. Barnhart; Mae Mercer (for self and others); George McMurtrie; C. E. Johnson (for another); Margaret Bylsma; Inez Jefferies (for another); Mrs. Henry Partlow; Marion Partlow; Ethel Weaver; Ella Hanson MacDonald; Eva H. M. Fletcher (for others); J. R. Ham; Ruth L. Arnold (for another); Mrs. Richard Lake (for self and another); Mrs. C. N. Rushton (for another); Mrs. Charles Stedman; Mrs. N. L. Anderson; W. O. Jenter; Jennie Salisbury; T. J. Ellis; Leila E. Whitehead (for another); Azalia Winfrey (for another); N. S. Westfall (for others); Gilbert Bottolfs (for self and another); J. M. Prime; J. H. Williams (for another); Mrs. I. W. Gould; Hanna Barber.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

On the evening of Saturday, Dec. 12, a group of friends and relatives met at the home of Bro. and Sr. George Hoskins to help them celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary.

A week later, Dec. 19, a gathering of the brethren said farewell to the William Ruhn family as residents of this community. The gathering was held at the Earl Brossard home.

The Christmas program was presented at the church on Christmas Eve.

—The Assistant Pastor.

THE TEACHER

The Teacher is a lighter of torches amid the darkness of earth, that his fellow men may follow and find the way.

The Teacher enkindles the candles in the souls of men, that they may learn to know the hidden places of their own spirits.

The Teacher is a learner who has sat at the feet of the aged and garnered from their golden treasures in silence.

The Teacher is a friend of little children, molding their gentle spirits after the heavenly pattern of angels.

The Teacher is a cupbearer, not only to earth's kings, but to earth's slaves, that all may drink of the wine of wisdom and be glad.

The Teacher is he whose eyes have been opened to see the stars, and whose ears have been touched that he may hear the weeping of the willows.

The Teacher is he for whom a book is a jeweled casket and a printed page is a mystic messenger of the soul.

The Teacher's heart has been quickened from the death of self-interest and made aware of the anguish of his fellow men.

The Teacher walks with God and with man in reverent wonder that so great a privilege should be his portion.

The Teacher feels with joy the touch of time's fleeting hours upon his cheeks, but his spirit lives and breathes in the quiet heights of eternity.—B. M. Christensen.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

L. E. Conner (ind. fund)	$25.00
Charles Miller (Edith Miller memorial)	25.00
Ontario	5.00
Ella Hanson MacDonald	1.17
Cecil A. Smead	10.00
Jennie Salisbury	1.00
Leila E. Whitehead	3.00
N. S. Westfall	1.00
A Friend	10.00
Ida Jeffrey (ind. fund)	25.00
Ida Jeffrey	5.00

Before a packed auditorium, the Oregon, Ill., Sunday school held its annual Christmas program in the church on the evening of December 22.

We regret that a picture of the Capitol of the United States appeared in The Herald of December 15 over the description, "House of Parliament."

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

Are we relieved! Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, University of Kansas, at last has broken down with this dose of sedative: "I sometimes believe that incorrect spelling is a sign of intelligence."

The occupation of the Jewish "shadehan" began in the thirteenth century, when it was considered immodest for a young man to do his own courting. A "shadehan" is a marriage broker, and he and his brothers number 140 in the United States today.

AUTO DRIVERS ARE IMPROVED

One Killed and Three

Injured in Crash

—Oklahoma paper.

They must have been the ones we know.

They probably make their money through quantity sales. A firm in Chicago advertises 50 to 100 per cent reductions in clothing prices.

Pronounced F. D. R. to the Pan-American Congress: "We in the Americas stand shoulder to shoulder in our final determination . . . to consult together for our mutual safety and our mutual good." Our memory has stirrings about consultation over Chaco, but it simply won't record that something important ever came of the same. Anyway, the Roosevelt sentence sounds well.

It's hard on Walt Disney, for Chicago's Mickey isn't collecting any royalties. A singing mouse, discovered in the basement of the Chicago Industrial Home for Children, has been aired over one of the broadcasting chains. Dr. Maud Slye, University of Chicago, leading mouse pundit, can't find any precedent for Mickey, despite her friendship with a hundred thousand other mice.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing reports that for the fiscal year 1936 it produced 930,000,000 pieces of currency. Maybe so, fellahs; but this is one time that you'll have to show us.

The dilapidated flivver, relates June Provinces, tottered down Chicago's Michigan Avenue in billows of steam from its frozen radiator. And on the side was printed piously: "Behold, He cometh in the clouds."

"In Madras, India, there is a caste of people called the Cavaravadonques who proudly claim to be descended from the ass, and treat this animal as an equal."—Religious Digest. Yeah? The ones who know don't seem to be so proud.

"Aviator," reports The Chicago Tribune, "shot by woman at altitude of 1,300 feet." We've known the sex to go up in the air, too.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO JOHN
 "The disciple whom Jesus loved."

Each of the four biographies of Jesus contained in the New Testament records not only the life and teaching of our Lord, but also reveals much of the character of the man who wrote it.

Matthew, a wealthy Jewish official of the Roman Government, indicates in the manner of his writing that he was a practical business man and something of a politician, to whom facts meant more than fancies. In his Gospel he enters with minute detail into those phases of Jesus' teaching which dealt with human relations and with the political and legal aspects of the kingdom of God which was soon to come.

Mark, as is generally believed, looked upon Jesus through the eyes of Peter, the fisherman, the laborer, and saw and emphasized more strongly than did the others the Master's lessons on the equality and brotherhood of man—ideas which always attract the attention and win the approval of the workers of the world.

Luke, "the beloved physician" of Paul, was naturally most deeply impressed with the Lord's healing ministry. Consequently his Gospel furnishes an accurate description of the various diseases of which suffering men and women were relieved at the touch of the Great Physician, in the actual technical terms employed by the medical profession.

The first three Gospels resemble each other in many ways. They follow the life of the Master in an orderly chronological manner from the beginning to the end. They relate the facts of His life with equal fidelity. They stress the physical character of His miracles and the practical nature of His teaching. In short, "the first three Gospels are called 'synoptic,' because they give 'a common view' of the ministry of Jesus" (Alfred E. Garvie).

But upon entering the marvelous temple of John's Gospel we find ourselves at once in an entirely different atmosphere. Here chronological order and scientific terminology give place to profound spiritual teaching which is expressed in language that borders on the mystical. Dogmatic and ethical ideas are subordinated to emotional appeals, for the tender spirit of its writer permeates its every line.

John, who twice refers to himself as "the disciple whom Jesus loved," owing to his own affectionate nature reflects most clearly the love quality of Jesus' character. John was at first the "disciple"—the learner—of love as it was taught and exemplified by the Master in word and deed, and after that he became the "apostle"—the teacher—of love, and to this task he devoted his entire life.

It was no doubt because Jesus saw in John such deep and unchangeable affection that He committed His beloved mother, Mary, to his care. A love like John's could be trusted for all time, when such violent protestations of fidelity as those made by impetuous Peter could not always be relied upon.

In both his Gospel and Epistles, John reveals God to us in the most appealing way. He causes God to live in us and through us. More fully than do the others, John presents Jehovah as a tender, loving, and ever beneficent Father. While Matthew applies the paternal appellation to God some 40 times, Mark 5 times, and Luke 13 times, John, the Apostle of Love, names God "Father" 114 times!

Last of all, it is to John that we are indebted for that most blessed of all biblical definitions of our heavenly Father which says that "GOD IS LOVE!"

THE RESTITUTION HERALD
 National Bible Institution
 Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

A circular letter is now going the rounds of the most recent Training Class. It is hoped by its originators that it will be only the first of a series of such letters. The idea is to provide thought stimulation, exchange of experiences, and personal and church news.

COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY
 Fourth Edition

The largest abridgment in the famous Merriam-Webster series. Surpasses all other abridged dictionaries in popular acceptance. Defines 106,000 words. 1,268 pages. Illustrated. Thumb index. Used as authority by every court. Defines many obsolete Bible words. Unusually accurate.

- Regular Style 7 x 10 x 2 5/8 in. 5 lbs.
- Cloth $4.00
- Buckram, marbled edges 5.00
- Thin Paper Style 6 x 8 7/8 x 1 1/2. 2 1/4 lbs.
- Blue cloth, sprinkled edges $3.50
- Brown fabrioid, gilt edges 5.00
- Black Levant leather, gilt edges 7.00
- Limp pigskin, dk blue or natural 8.50

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 Oregon, Illinois

A Dictionary of the Bible

- Edited by John D. Davis, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
- Fourth Revised Edition
- Recommended by Aurora College
- In cloth binding, $3.00 postpaid
- In half leather, $4.00 postpaid
- In full Morocco, $7.50 postpaid
- All proper nouns pronounced
- High quality paper
- Readable type

A satisfying library of Bible information is found in this fourth revised edition, which is now selling at reduced prices. The 856 pages contain 6,000 articles, 229 good illustrations, and accurate colored maps. The articles cover the contents of the books of the Old and New Testaments in both the King James and Revised Versions, together with the First Book of the Maccabees in the Revised Version. The articles on the canonical books have been elaborated to show the place which the books have occupied and to exhibit the personal traits of the writers. Meanings and pronunciations of proper names, genealogical description of persons, and locations of places add to the comprehensiveness of the book.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 Oregon, Illinois

BAPTISM—

by S. J. Lindsay

This is a treatise on the significance, importance, and mode of baptism by one of the most able Bible teachers. The subject is presented in an interesting and logical manner, setting forth the biblical truth that baptism by immersion in water, following a definite belief in the gospel, is essential to salvation.

8 pages—2 for 5¢; per dozen 20¢; per hundred $1.20.

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

THIS, 1936, has been a year of intellectual and educational progress for the Church of God. Those who lead have, in many instances and through many channels, expressed themselves as favoring a broader and certainly a closer contact with world affairs and with world knowledge than has heretofore prevailed within the denomination. Those who follow, in not inconsiderable numbers, have become interested in learning something of the opinions of others, others from without the church, on religion, on politics, on economics, on history, on human and divine prophecy.

It was a good three millenniums ago that a wise man wrote, "Of the making of books there is no end." There could be no end to the making of books as long as a vestige of civilization remained. Great libraries provided for the pleasure and education of ancient Cairo and of equally ancient Babylon, and libraries today, as then, contain the essence of the ages. This, the Church of God has come to recognize in a degree recently unknown.

Time, however, marches on too rapidly for books to keep constantly in touch with events. As the world has become mechanized, so its tempo in the arts, in literature, in transportation, in industry, in education has been speeded. Jazz has replaced hymns, and Silver Streaks have replaced wood-burning locomotives.

For this reason, daily papers, radio, and magazines are quite as important to everyday living, and in general far more influential, than the book publishing business. Recognizing this, the National Bible Institution inaugurated recently a magazine sales agency which handles all reputable magazines and papers published in the world.

There are, however, more than twenty thousand magazines published in the United States alone. Obviously, it is impossible for any one person to keep abreast of them all; and it is quite as apparent that one can waste a good share of his time reading useless trash unless he is familiar with the content and policy of papers and magazines whose covers confront him daily from newsstands.

"On the Shelves" will, therefore, add to its usual book discussions the occasional contemplation of current magazines, not from the standpoint of individual articles so much as from that of general editorial policies. It should be remembered that, as in the case of books, magazines mentioned in this department can be secured from the National Bible Institution, unless stipulation to the contrary accompanies their reviews. Quotations on the single copy and annual subscription price will be given; but short-term subscriptions may be secured in almost every case at pro rata figures.

THREE magazines of particular importance now offer summaries of current events: Time, The Literary Digest, and News-Week. News-Week is a newcomer in the field, but is rapidly building up a competitive circulation.

The Literary Digest is the oldest magazine of its type in the country. Its quadrennial polls for presidential elections and its frequent polling of national opinion on other important questions have made it one of the most important journals in the country. Departmentalized, as are both Time and News-Week, The Literary Digest gives space to foreign affairs, internal news, art, sociology, the press, religion, finance, commerce, travel, books, and humor. Less now than formerly, but still more than any other publication, The Digest summarizes in the original phraseology the editorial opinions of the world on all important events. It now is devoting much time to improving its coverage of the Nation's churches and world religious trends.

Time, in the space of a little more than a decade, has built itself to a circulation of 600,000 weekly. Thicker than either News-Week or The Literary Digest, it devotes more space to the recreations and human interests than the other two books. It has evolved a language and style all its own, a language and style expressive of the spirit of the day. Time is held up to aspiring writers as the model for setting down words one after the other. It's jazzy, ultra-modern. Like both the other news weeklies, it tries to remain wholly unbiased.

News-Week carries more pictures than either Time or The Literary Digest. Its writing style is very much like that of The Digest, not so original as Time's. On the whole, I would say it is not quite so complete, except in picturization of the news, as either of its competitors. It does cover, however, all the major events of the day and a good many not so major, in a wide variety of fields.

Time is the most expensive of the three, a fact which speaks well for its appeal. It sells for $5 a year, 15 cents a copy. The Literary Digest and News-Week are each 10 cents a copy, $4 a year.

A fourth weekly, Pathfinder, the old reliable in many small town homes in the country, is too tinged with its own prejudices to be very valuable in learning of and interpreting the happenings of the moment. Its primary appeal lies in the Bible belt, but it has very little religion in its system. Almost no pictures disturb its solid pages. Its advertising largely would be rejected by the big three in the news field, which look askance at cheap medicines. Pathfinder sells for $1 a year, and no copies, as far as I know, are sold on newsstands.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 5, 1937

NUMBER 14

Growing Old Gracefully

By the Editor

WITH the passing of each year, with the rising and the setting of each day's sun, we are impressed with the fact that life is flowing through our reluctant fingers like sand through an hourglass. We cannot stay its progress, if progress it may be called, when time and life are slipping constantly away into the misty distances of the past.

Time is going backward into the familiar past; life is going forward into the unknown future. The past we know in part, the future is wholly unknown to us. Some people grow old faster, apparently, than do others because they live more in the past than they do in the present or the future.

Happy is the man or woman who never loses a keen zest for life as it is—not as it has been nor as it may be—but as it is! To pluck the golden fruit of the present, to taste its full richness and flavor, to get all of the sweetness and joy out of each passing day—happy indeed is the person who can do this. But how few they are!

Yet that is exactly the way in which God would have His children to live always. He gave us this life to possess and to use. To use life properly is to use it joyfully and fully. To find in life sweetness and beauty and light is what God designed.

It is our unrestrained impatience that robs us of the blessings which God would impart to us. We are impatient with ourselves and with our accomplishments, impatient with those around us, impatient with the slow passage of time and impatient with the swift passage of time. Impatience, with its ever-increasing brood of disappointments and discontent, saps life of its joy and makes it what God never intended it should be insofar as His children are concerned, a galling yoke to be borne, an irksome task to be rebelliously carried out.

It sometimes seems to us that this is the most impatient age, the most discontented, irritating, and unhappy age, the world has ever known. Yet we know that this cannot be true, for men, governed by selfishness, which leads to covetousness and sin, have always rebelled against the flight of time. Never have men in their natural state been content with such things as they have had. No matter how great their accomplishments, like Alexander of Macedon, they have sighed for other worlds to conquer.

How far removed is this sad state of mental confusion and rebellion from the peaceful, quiet, satisfying life God would have His people to experience!

I know a few people—a very few people indeed!—who seem to have achieved the prize of earthly contentment and heavenly peace in this life. They are, of course, men and women of profound faith in God. They must be!

Youth seldom is satisfied with what it knows and feels at any moment. Its venturesome spirit demands new scenes, new sensations, new experiences which will stir the already surging blood to still more rapid motion. And that is as it should be. Youth stands on the threshold of life, vitality pulsing in veins and arteries, stimulating curiosity and arousing ambition to constantly mounting heights.

And this, I say, is as it ought to be! For, humanly speaking, the future of the world, the future of nations, of society, of civilization, and of progress depends upon the nervous discontent that sends young people out “conquering and to conquer”!

Youth denies the definition of happiness given by John Heywood:

“The loss of wealth is loss of dirt,

As sages in all times assert;

The happy man's without a shirt!”

To conquer powerful opposing forces, to accumulate vast riches through one's own efforts, to overcome enormous difficulties—these are the sources and the definitions of happiness in the mind of youth. This has always been true—it will continue to be true to the end of the chapter.

It is not of youth, however, that I would especially speak, but of maturity and age.

A French philosopher once said that “few people know how to grow old.” (Please turn to Page Nine)

Abreast of the Times

We're With You, Canada!

"Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."—Jesus.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Lloyds, the great insurance company which has insured practically anything from the birth of twins to the successful launching of a battleship on time, has issued an announcement that hereafter it will not issue policies protecting the insured against possible losses caused by war except to citizens of the United States and Canada. With other nations the danger of war is too immediate to justify the risk of issuing insurance against it.

The more than a century of peace which has prevailed between the two English-speaking countries of North America seems in the estimation of Lloyds to be a reasonable guarantee that United-States-Canadian friendship is permanent.

Fascism and Communism to Fuse

"Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them."—Matthew 13:30.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Dr. Will Durant, philosopher and lecturer, said today that "within a generation Communism, Fascism, and Democracy will approximate to a common denominator. Similar economic inventions, developments, and problems," he said, in an address on "The World Conflict" at the Free Synagogue, "generate similar, though nationally various, responses and institutions. Liberty will decrease in democracies and increase in dictatorships. Even now, the rival systems cooperate with small regard to their differences," he continued. "Conservative France allies herself with radical Russia. Russia compels French Communists to support the army and the Government of France. Capitalist America tends to side with Communistic Russia against capitalist Japan. Russia's democratization is a gesture to win the aid of the democracies."

Many students of the prophecies are expecting that Fascism and Communism, both of which are dictatorships, will be bound together in a single bundle to be burned when that "great and very terrible" day of the Lord comes (Joel 2:1, 3, 11, 31; 3:9-16; Zech. 14:1-3). It is thought probable that the "leftists" (radical dictatorships, either Fascist or Communist) will be assigned by the Judge to the "left hand" and from thence pass into the "everlasting punishment" prepared for them.

Those nations whose leanings have been toward the political "right," because of their "right" attitude toward religion and toward the Jewish "brethren" of Jesus, will be placed on the "right hand" and "inherit the kingdom (dominion) prepared for (them) from the foundation of the world" (Matt. 25:31-46).

"Anti-Semitism Inevitable" in Italy

"It is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it."—Jeremiah 30:7.

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 31.—Calling attention to a long list of Jews who have attained important governmental posts in France, Premier Mussolini's official newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, declares in an editorial that "anti-Semitism is inevitable where Semitism flaunts itself with exhibitionism." This is not the first time that articles appearing in the Italian newspapers have indicated a growing antagonism toward the Jews. According to the Associated Press, three months ago a series of anti-Jewish articles was published by the former Fascist party secretary, Roberto Farinacci, in his Regime Fascista, which provoked bitter comments from the Jews.

TRIPOLI, Libya, Dec. 31.—The Jewish residents of this North African Italian territory are greatly exercised over an order which has been issued by which the authorities hope to compel the Jews, which equal about half of the entire population of this city, to live and carry on their business wholly in a restricted area in the older part of the city. To accomplish the purpose the edict requires that all business houses must remain open every day in the week except Sunday, when everything must be closed. The order was issued on November 14 and has already resulted in the public flogging of two Jews who did not comply with its demands. The Government gives as its reason for passing so stringent an order the fact that Jewish merchants have appropriated all of the best sites in the business section of the new city and given Tripoli the appearance of an out and out Jewish town.

It is interesting in this connection to call attention to the desire which Italy has expressed more than once to acquire the mandate over Palestine, now held by the British. Due to these late developments further attempts by Rome to accomplish such a purpose would undoubtedly be vigorously opposed by the Jews throughout the world. Premier Leon Blum of France, who is a Jew, would in all probability join the British authorities to prevent such a transfer of authority.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

“How Is It That Ye Know Not?”

IT is a very insensitive Christian who in these days is not haunted by some of the sayings of Jesus. Particularly those Christians who have any responsibility for the opinions or attitudes of others—and who has not?—are likely to be haunted by the sayings of Jesus addressed to the religious leaders of His time, for example, His searching questions to the Pharisees and Sadducees who asked Him for a sign. Matthew reports that He said to them: “When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the heaven is red. And in the morning, It will be foul weather to day: for the heaven is red and lowering. Ye know how to discern the face of the heaven; but ye cannot discern the signs of the times.”

And so the truth emerges that they are hypocrites who “know not how to interpret this time.” Surely that is enough to keep any Christian awake at night!

WHY THE SADDUCEES FAILED

How did it come about that the Pharisees and the Sadducees, the religious leaders of the ancient religious community of Israel, were not able to discern the signs of the times? One is not surprised that the Sadducees were unable to interpret any signs of spiritual significance. Their religion was too worldly ever to rise above the signs of the weather. Something more than weather wisdom, however, might have been expected of the members of the Pharisaic brotherhood, born in a passion for the purity of Israel's ancient religion, resisting unto blood as it strove against the totalitarian idea of religious uniformity which Antiochus Epiphanes sought to impose upon his Syrian Empire! But how quickly the insights of the spirit die, so that shortly those who once were content to be “tortured, not accepting deliverance,” now prefer to be delivered, not accepting the torture of the life of the spirit. When the leaders go blind, both they and the people fall into the pit. When the Pharisees can no longer discern the signs of the times, the multitudes cannot be expected “to interpret this time.”

WHY THE PHARISEES FAILED

Why were the Pharisees blind to the signs of the times? is our present question. What blinded them so that they opposed Jesus, and hated Him? This is a terrible question, because it is a question which we are bound to ask ourselves. Are we blind? Can we not see signs of the times, and interpret this time in which we live?

Perhaps we can learn something about our own condition by attempting to diagnose the blindness of the Pharisees. Why could the Pharisees not discern the spiritual meaning of the time in which they lived, which has been to the world a time of times, but to them just another time?

The absence of God in much of modern idealism is the theme of this series of excerpts from an address by Dr. Harold M. Robinson. The address first appeared in print in The Presbyterian.

I have to suggest three reasons for the blindness of the Pharisees to what was going on about them:

I. GOD WAS LOST IN THE PROGRAM

The Pharisaic brotherhood had a religious program. Jesus discussed it in the Sermon on the Mount, in the third major section of that sermon, where He compared the theory of the religious program of the Pharisees with their practice of it. The three elements of this religious program were almsgiving, prayer, and fasting. But it was their very admirable religious program which helped to blind them. For they had lost God out of the program. “Go on with your almsgiving,” said Jesus. “It pays as it goes. You forget God while you give your alms, and so God forgets your alms. Indeed, He never gets your alms. The true benevolence is a secret benevolence between your Father and a right-handed giver.” And again, “Go on with your prayers,” said Jesus. “Go on praying thus with yourselves. You forget God when you pray, and so God never gets your prayers. The true prayer is a secret prayer between you and your Father.” And again, “Go on with your fasting,” said Jesus. “Go on disciplining yourself, and paying yourself off with your neighbors' admiration of your sad faces. The true self-discipline is a happy secret between yourself and your Father.”

God had gone out of the Pharisees' program and that blinded them to the signs of the times, for the signs of the times foretold the imminence of the kingdom of God.

HAS GOD GONE OUT OF OUR PROGRAMS?

God has certainly gone out of the theory of many of our programs. For illustration, take our programs of religious education. A recent book, on Character and Christian Education, proposes the thesis that America today sponsors two cultures: one is Christian culture, the other is the culture of secular idealism, whose claims are being pressed by John Dewey and Walter Lippmann. The culture of secular idealism has captured the mind of America, and God is not in its program. Religious values are there, but God is not there. And not only is much of our so-called Christian culture flattened out into the terms of this culture of secular idealism, but the conflict of these two cultures sets up confusion and distress in the experience of our children. Indeed, it seems to me that the major intellectual tension of our time is precisely this tension between a Christian culture, which in its purest form finds its blissful center in “a God of transcendent majesty and sole causality,” who is fully revealed to us men in (Please turn to Page Eight)

Worth and Immortality

"Behold the birds of heaven, that they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; and your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye of much more value than they?"—Matthew 6:26.

THE dignity and worthfulness of the human subject have often been proclaimed and emphasized. Man's mind has been analyzed, his ethical nature appraised. His achievements have been recounted, his accomplishments exploited. The hidden potencies of man's being, with all the possibilities and probabilities that they engender, have been duly rehearsed. Not only what man actually is and what he has actually done, but what he might be and do if but he could have time to express himself fully—all these have been taken into consideration. And the conclusion is drawn that man is a being whose values when truly appraised are so super-excellent; he is so great in himself, in his actual achievements, and in his possible performances, that, therefore, he must be immortal. Either he must be immortal because so great worth could not center in one who did not already and actually possess in his own nature the attribute of permanence, or he must be immortal in that so great values foreshow a destiny that must abide and progress endlessly.

But here is something significant. At the close of Volume 1 of his Belief in Immortality, Sir J. G. Frazer presents an epitome of the argument for immortality from human grandeur and dignity (p. 469f.). But he likewise presents its counterpart, the view of the pettiness and insignificance of man. He says:

"On the other hand, there are those who take a different view of human nature and who find in its contemplation a source of humility rather than of pride. They remind us how weak, how ignorant, how short-lived is the individual, how infirm of purpose, how purblind of vision, how subject to pain and suffering, to diseases that torture the body and wreck the mind. They say that if the few short years of his life are not wasted in idleness and vice, they are spent for the most part in a perpetually recurring round of trivialities, in the satisfaction of merely animal wants, in eating, drinking, and slumber. When they survey the history of mankind as a whole, they find the record checkered and stained by folly and crime, by broken faith, insensate ambition, wanton aggression, injustice, cruelty, and lust, and seldom illumined by the mild radiance of wisdom and virtue. And when they turn their eyes from man himself to the place he occupies in the universe, how they are overwhelmed by a sense of his littleness and insignificance! They see the earth which he inhabits dwindle to a speck in the unimaginable infinities of space and the brief span of his existence shrink into a moment in the inconceivable infinities of time. And they ask, Shall a creature so puny and frail claim to live forever, to outlast not only the present starry system but every other that, when earth and sun and stars have crumbled into dust, shall be built upon their ruins in the long hereafter? It is not so, it cannot be. The claim is nothing but the outcome of exaggerated self-esteem, of inflated vanity; it is the claim of a moth, shriveled in the flame of a candle, to outlive the sun, the claim of a worm to survive the destruction of this terrestrial globe in which he burrows" (p. 470f.).

Here, then, we have these antagonistic views. Which is correct? Or are both wrong? Might it not be possible that those who develop true worth, and those alone, are in the way of immortality? That the rest are ephemeral?

Very often, in disquisitions that deal with human values as intimated of immortality, man's actual moral status is not taken into account. It is usually man "at his best" (this is the very phrase used by some writers, and the very idea presupposed by others) who is the subject of analysis and appraisal. And this ideal man, this collective or composite specimen made up of all human excellencies, virtues, and capabilities, is seen to be of so noble and exalted a character that from his transcendent excellencies the conclusion is drawn that the race is immortal in all its individual members.

The argument would seem, not only to deal in values, but in itself to possess some value—were it true to itself and consistent in its parts. But generalities and collectivism will not do in a question of individual immortality. The thing to do is to be more specific, to select some special individual or to lay down some type of moral manhood of which actual specimens are known to exist, and then show forth the excellencies, merits, or values of this individual or of the class that comes up to this standard, and then affirm, or at least plead for, immortality on behalf of such. This would make the argument consistent in itself, would show it equal to the necessary task of appraising actual concrete ethical worth as actually and individually realized and would appeal to man's innate and developed sense of the fitness of things. But to pick out the few large and rosy and sound apples that happen to be in a heap of gnarled and rotten fruit and then attempt to plead for the excellence of the entire lot on the juicy and flavorful excellencies of the few, seems not to be very fair or very logical reasoning. It appears more to favor the spirit and practice of the professional huckster than of the honest and scientific orchardist.

Moreover, the argument as often presented, as we shall show later from actual examples, is in reality not an argument for universal immortality (as it is presumed to do), but for a selected or communicated immortality. What it really shows is often this, that certain reasoners, who deem that man of himself merits immortality for his good parts, are able to present a telling appeal for the immortalization of a selected few, or for the members of that high class of individuals who measurably come up to the intellectual and ethical ideal that they present. But this brings us to the real thesis of this series which is: God's estimation of human worth and its connection with the question of human immortality. And here be it noted that God actually does place upon man a higher relative value than He does upon other earthly creatures (Matt. 6:26; 10:31; 12:12; Luke 9:35). So far as His Word is concerned, this higher value is variously seen. We specify a few things.

(1) Man's origin and nature.—As a direct divine creation, man's bringing into being was an affair of such tremendous importance that it is preceded by the divine colloquy of Genesis 1:26. No matter what particular view we may take of this colloquy, it admittedly is expressive of the superiority of the creature about to be produced and who was to take precedence over all other earthly creatures. Moreover, though formed on earth and of earthly material, yet in being made after the divine archetype, in God's image and likeness, there is manifest the fact of his greater worth.

(2) God's interest in man.—God's deep concern for man shines forth throughout the entire scope of divine revelation. It is something that stands ever to the fore. It may be seen even in the judgments visited upon man, though it is more signally evident in the provisions made for his present and future well-being. So, too, it is displayed in the representations of God as thinking upon man. He is mindful of man (Psalm 8:4), takes knowledge of man (144:3), looks upon man (33:13, 14), knows him altogether (139:1-5). "Thy thoughts which are to us-ward" is a saying significant of deep and permanent regard.

(3) God's love for man.—The revelation that "God is love" is a simple but fathomless unfolding. But, as love, God is one who loves His creature man. Though man is a sinner, a rebel, even an enemy, yet in him God sees something to love. His affection goes out to wayward man and He is moved toward him in tenderness, in compassion, and in intent to benefit and save.

(4) The provisions made for men's redemption.—As a result of God's deep interest in humanity and His profound love for human beings, divine provision for man's redemption is made. And the method employed and the Person sent to mediate such redemption show how precious to Deity lost humanity really is. For the Person is His own dear Son, and the way is the way of the cross.

(5) Comprehensive considerations.—The entire conception and scope of gospel salvation, the entire scope of operation of the work of Christ among men and for men, the active agency of the Holy Spirit upon the minds and hearts of men, the whole body of divine revelation as a progressive record of redemption and as means for the instruction and uplifting of mankind—all these show God's interest in man. And they show, therefore, the worth of man in God's eyes. Such parables as the Lost Sheep, the Lost Coin, the Prodigal Son; such sayings as Luke 15:10; 19:10; Matthew 20:28; and many others, such manifest Heaven's deep concern in man's spiritual and eternal welfare and in the fact that in the sight of God man possesses potential redemptional value.—G. L. Young in The World's Crisis.

The Beginnings of Grecian Science

AFTER the reign of Solomon, the glory of Israel suffered eclipse and decline. Rebellion and apostasy sundered the nation into two parts, and idolatry severed the people's connection with God. A checkered career of three or four hundred years was finally ended by the captivity in Babylon and the end of Hebrew power as far as political influence was concerned.

The story of those hectic years of decline reveals a few bright spots when some king would restore the worship of Jehovah; but as a whole it is a sad record of sin and rebellion against God, and a return to the base worship of the gods of the heathen nations. One might wonder how a people to whom God had revealed such truths as the sublime utterances of the Psalms, could ever turn to the worship of idols of wood and stone. The only explanation lies in the fact that Israel failed to comprehend the meaning of the great light that God had given them; furthermore, there was something in the sensual rites of the pagan religious ceremonies that appealed to the carnal heart, and those who lost sight of the character of God were attracted by the shallow glamor of the false worship used by the surrounding nations.

Israel went into apostasy because she turned to the false philosophies of the heathen nations. "Therefore thou hast forsaken thy people the house of Jacob, because they be replenished from the east, and are soothsayers like the Philistines. Their land also is full of idols." "My people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." Isa. 2:6-8; Jer. 2:13. Instead of following the light revealed to Abraham, Moses, David, and Solomon, the tribes of Israel turned to the nature worship that was prevalent among other nations. The exaltation of nature above the God of nature led them to great evils. By losing their connection with God, they had no barrier against the natural depravity of the human heart. Little by little the grosser forms of idolatry came in, until finally Israel was given up to the luxury and pride, the feasting and drunkenness, the licentiousness and debauchery, of the corrupt peoples around them.

In the darkest period of her history, Israel received a most significant message through the Prophet Isaiah, a message of hope and cheer, "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God" (Isa. 40:1). Then follows the promise of a Deliverer. And in order that the people might know the authority and power behind the message, the Lord gives them some object lessons and comparisons by which they might to a slight degree comprehend His majesty, and by contrast realize how much greater He was than the heathen gods they were serving.

"Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with a span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance?" (Isa. 40:12). The idols of men are nothing but the work of their own hands, formed of wood and stone, spread over with gold and silver—mere physical representations of the qualities with which the human mind had invested its imaginary deities. But God appeals to the greatest proof that can be adduced for His claim to worship, "Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth" (Isa. 40:26). As the Creator, God claims an authority that no other god could possibly have.

The gods of the heathen nations were personifications of natural forces. In imagination men clothed nature with intelligence, and invested each natural phenomenon with power to act independently, as if it were actually in the hand of some literal god or goddess. Worship was largely a ceremonial designed to win the favor of these nature gods in order to obtain their protection and blessing. Such a religious system, as history repeatedly shows, always degenerated into mere formalism. With the loss of living faith came skepticism and eventually anarchy that meant ruin of religious, moral, and political integrity. It was this sequence of events that led inexorably to the downfall of Israel.

UNENDING ANTAGONISM

Not only through the message of Isaiah, but also through Zechariah in the days of Darius, King of Medo-Persia, was held up the hope of restoration from the power of idolatry. "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass. . . . And his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth. . . . Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope: even today do I declare that I will render double unto thee; when I have bent Judah for me, filled the bow with Ephraim, and raised up thy sons, O Zion, against thy sons, O Greece, and made thee as the sword of a mighty man" (Zech. 9:9-13). Here is a prophecy of the controversy between the forces of Israel and those of Greece; and the beginning of that conflict came not long after the prophecy was given. In the third century before Christ Alexander the Great carried Greek culture over the whole East, where it came into contact with the religious thought of the Jews after their reestablishment in their own land. From that time to this there has been an unending antagonism between the two viewpoints, or interpretations, of the natural world.

Greek philosophy had arisen about the year 1000 B. C., around the time that David and Solomon were at the height of their illustrious careers. It had flourished in Asia Minor and in Greece itself until it was spread over the whole civilized world by the conquests of Alexander. From that time it played a powerful part in theology and in philosophy as well as in science. Rogers says: "Our modern thought is a compound into which three main elements enter. The framework of our thought, the concepts and ideas which we use, come to us largely from the Greek" (History of Philosophy, p. 197). The essential feature of the Greek attitude is the explanation of all natural phenomena in terms of inherent natural forces without recourse to supernaturalism of any sort.

Greek thought followed a peculiar trend throughout the centuries of its development. Up to the fifth century B. C., it conceived of nature as being alive with power—pantheistic in its interpretations. The human mind was an outworking of this universal essence of power, and was supposed to be able to solve all the problems of existence unaided. In the fifth century came a period of skepticism, out of which developed the great logical systems of Plato and Aristotle. These logical systems have been a part of all human thinking down to our day.

By a comparison of Hebrew and Greek conceptions of nature we can see that there have been two opposite viewpoints contending for supremacy; one, the doctrine of God's greatness and His control over the forces of nature; the other the philosophy of nature as a self-running mechanism.

Modern science has been built up along the lines of Greek thought. The skeptical, critical attitude has been assumed to be a necessity for the advancement of research. While there is no excuse for the Christian to allow slipshod methods of thought, neither is there a necessity for a skeptical frame of mind in order to make advancement. There is no conflict between sound, careful methods to study and faith in the overruling power of God in nature. The Greek skepticism is unwarranted.

The Bible nowhere allows the notion that nature is self-working. Its operations are always attributed to the power of the Creator. Notice the following: "I have showed thee new things from this time, even hidden things, and thou didst not know them. They are created now, and not from the beginning; even before the day when thou heardest them not; lest thou shouldest say, Behold, I knew them" (Isa. 48:6, 7; italics mine). Here is a direct contradiction of the idea that the universe runs by fixed laws with which God cannot interfere. He says that He brings to pass new situations, new things, new combinations of natural forces, that cannot be interpreted in terms of some preestablished, invariable order of events. Although the laws of nature are systematic in their operation, they are not rigidly inflexible. God, in His omnipotence, can use them as His servants, and bring to pass whatever His wisdom may determine as best. The fact that natural laws are as dependable as we find them to be is only an evidence of the omniscience of the Creator, who can foresee to such a remarkable degree the needs of His creation, and can establish laws that are dependable in their operation. But man has mistaken this uniformity in natural law for rigid fixity. God declares it to be otherwise, saying that He can alter the operation of these laws if He sees best.

Modern science has erected a mechanistic interpretation of natural law that leaves God out of the picture. Scientific research fails to acknowledge God, and as a result our modern system of study is making skeptics of thousands. Nature and her laws are exalted above the God of nature. The greatest minds become confused in their attempt to solve the mysteries of science. Until we shall recognize the fundamental truth that God has revealed in His Word, we shall continue to wander in a maze of human speculation. The call of the ancient prophets is a timely message for the scientific world of today, which it would be well for us to heed.—Prof. Harold W. Clark in Signs of the Times.

The Border Line of Creeds

By A. H. Zilmer

BY THIS border line we mean the maximum of what must be believed, and the minimum of what may be believed by the person seeking admission to a religious community having a creed. The creed defines what the community believes, and what it requires of applicants for membership to affirm as their belief. Consistently the creed can neither be diminished nor enlarged. To diminish it would be equivalent to an admission that it contains too much; and to enlarge it by making additions to it is the same as an admission that it contains too little. Hence its border line may neither be moved forward so as to include more, nor backward so as to include less. In the nature of things, its bounds, once these are established and fixed, cannot be moved. Its maximum may not include more, nor its minimum less, than a certain definite and fixed quantity.

This renders the work of the creed maker at once most delicate and exacting. Everything that enters into the creed as the standard of belief must be carefully weighed, as it were, on the apothecary's scale. Every element, every ingredient, must be exactly the right weight and quantity so as to include neither more nor less than just enough. Here it may be said in the language of the Apostle Paul, "Who is sufficient for these things?" (2 Cor. 2:16). Nothing short of inspiration will suffice in an undertaking so extremely delicate. And yet the creeds of Christendom, one and all, not excluding the so-called "Apostles' Creed," were composed since, according to the general idea, inspiration ceased. The Nicene Creed, the product of the famous Oecumenical Council in A. D. 325, is one of those earlier creeds whose date and place of origin are definitely known. The "Apostles' Creed" was not composed by the apostles sent out by the Lord as its name might imply. Its date and the name of its author are alike unknown. But it is certain that it was composed since the death of the apostles. Less objection lies against it than against the most of those following. Besides its brevity, there is the clearness of its terms and phrases, which cannot but commend it to the reader, especially the person of ordinary intelligence.

As a rule, creeds do not spring suddenly into existence but are a gradual development in the history of religious communities. A doctrine out of accord with the dogmas held by some prominent leader springs up, and forthwith an article is drawn up setting forth a contrary opinion; and this process is repeated each time a divergent theory is advanced. Thus, despite the assumption that the original creed was perfect, entire, and wanting nothing; that "it shall not be made void"; and that "no person shall be allowed to bring forward, or to write, or to compose any other creed," changes were made almost constantly, and new items were added.

Foremost among the articles embodied in the various creeds of Christendom is the doctrine concerning God. The heated discussions upon this point between Arius and Athanasius, two theologians who lived in the early part of the fourth century, led to the convocation of the Council of Nicea in 325, which "settled" the issue in favor of the Athanasian concept of the Godhead. This doctrine was arrived at not by an appeal to the direct teaching of Scripture but by speculation, that is, setting up premises, and drawing conclusions. Robert Flint, Professor of Divinity in the University of Edinburgh, made the very frank admission that "the propositions constitutive of the dogma of the Trinity were not drawn directly from the New Testament, and could not be expressed in New Testament terms. They were the product of reason speculating upon a revelation made to faith" (Encyclopedia Britannica, 9th ed., article "Theism"). Not only were those propositions not drawn from the New Testament: they could not be expressed in New Testament terms. This is an admission from a distinguished theologian that the New Testament does not contain the doctrine of the Trinity.

But the Professor said more than this: "As soon as an inspired record is left at all; as soon as any speculation is allowed on its contents; as soon as the process of forming doctrine is permitted, all conceivable right to stop the movement anywhere is lost." Thus the doctrine of the Trinity is the result purely of speculation. The term "Trinity" cannot once be found in the Bible, Old and New Testament. Had those doctrinaires contented themselves with the inspired record instead of losing themselves in the vagaries of Greek and Roman metaphysics, there would have continued to be the rugged and understandable monotheism which had been for a millennium and a half inculcated in Israel, and which was so clearly reflected in the teaching of Jesus and the apostles. "To us there is but one God, the Father" (1 Cor. 8:6). Equally clear is the rest of the New Testament teaching concerning the sole Deity of the Father. Jesus is the Son of God begotten through the power of the Holy Spirit, and born of Mary, a young woman in Israel. With characteristic clearness the Apostle Peter announced at the home of the Gentile Cornelius: "How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with Holy Spirit and power, who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him" (Acts 10:38). One was God; another was Jesus of Nazareth; and the third, Holy Spirit associated with power. No better opportunity could have been offered to the Apostle had he chosen to preach the doctrine of the Trinity; and no clergyman who finds himself within the bounds of the creed would have failed to embrace that opportunity to the fullest extent. Not so the Apostle Peter. If it was necessary that the hearers have a thorough understanding of that dogma, then the Apostle was woefully remiss in the performance of his duty. Upon the other hand, since the Apostle, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, made no reference to the Trinity, we see clearly that the Trinity constituted no part of the message the apostles were commissioned to deliver to the world for salvation.

The Athanasian Creed begins with the words, "Whosoever will be saved: before all things it is necessary that he hold the Catholic Faith. Which Faith except every one do keep whole and undefiled: without doubt he shall perish everlastingly." The article on the Trinity ends with these words, "He therefore that will be saved: must thus think of the Trinity." The creed ends with the words, "This is the Catholic Faith which, except a man believe faithfully, he cannot be saved."

This is how men "formed doctrine," and shows what an important place this dogma held in the eyes of its framers. Either believe it whole and undefiled, and be saved; or disbelieve it, and perish everlastingly. No one might be received into the communion of the church, or be retained therein, unless he believed all the incomprehensible propositions of this dogma. Everyone, too, whether old or young, educated or illiterate, must believe it in its entirety on pain of eternal damnation. Thus did those men with sharp intellects, and schooled in Greek and Roman metaphysics, manipulate the salvation as well as the damnation of thousands of helpless people, who were as clay in their hands.

As any open-minded person can learn by reading the dismal chapters of ecclesiastical history, there never was a time when there was perfect agreement as to the exact import of any given dogma; and not even the curses and anathemas of ecclesiastical bodies were able to deter independent thinking minds from reading and understanding the inspired record for themselves.

The creed is the church's interpretation of the Bible doctrine concerning God; but that interpretation, having been made by uninspired men, and being the result of the logical process, and not based upon direct Scripture testimony, is wrong. The creed defines the limits which men and women, regardless of their ability or attainments, must reach and, by the same token, must not pass. The creed says in effect, "Hitherto! No less, and no more!" Here is the border line between too much, and not enough. If you stop short of that line you will perish everlastingly; if you overstep it, you cannot be saved.—The Faith.

"HOW IS IT THAT YE KNOW NOT?"

(Continued from Page Three)

Jesus Christ as a God of redeeming grace, and a secular idealism in which God is not, operating with the humanistic methods and the cheerful optimism of modern educational theory. This culture of secular idealism, in which God is not, is widely represented in the Christian pulpit, as well as in the specialized educational program of the Christian church today. Its program is a program from which God is lost out.

II. GOODNESS WAS LOST AMONG THE RULES

If the Pharisees were blind to the signs of the times, because they had lost God out of the program, they were blind also because they had lost goodness among the rules. This is not strange. It is inevitable. When God is lost out of the program, goodness is inevitably lost among the rules. God and goodness are inseparable. To separate God and goodness in thought is the most intolerable of all heresies. To separate God and goodness in emotion leads to the most sterile of all mysticisms. To separate God and goodness in practice is the sin against the Holy Spirit.

So it is not surprising, but predicable with absolute certainty, that when the Pharisees lost God out of the program, they at the same time and by the same process lost goodness among the rules.

ONLY THE GOOD IS GODLY

Now the Pharisees had rules, and they were admirable rules. There is no complaint to be made against their rules. Jesus made no complaint against them. He approved them and He counseled their observance. But there is a complaint to be made against their having lost goodness among the rules, and Jesus makes that complaint over and over again in one of the most terrible denunciations ever to fall from any lips, the denunciations of hypocrisy recorded in the 23rd chapter of Matthew.

III. TRUE RELIGIOUS COMMUNITY WAS LOST IN THE INSTITUTION

The Pharisees could not interpret the times in which they were living, we have been saying, because they had lost God in the program and goodness among the rules. There was another loss which contributed to their spiritual blindness. They had lost true religious community in the institution. They were heirs of a true religious community, the ancient religious community of Israel. In a time of stress, the founders of the Pharisaic sect formed an inner circle of religious community within a disintegrating Israel. They were a true brotherhood, devoted to the preservation of what they took to be their priceless religious heritage. But now the Pharisaic brotherhood was a brotherhood in name only. It was an institution, to be preserved for its own sake. And, being only an institution, it was no longer a true community.

My friends, it is inevitable that when God is lost in the program, and goodness lost among the rules, religious community will be lost in the institution. It is for us to ask ourselves how far in our day the true religious community, the fellowship of the Spirit, the society of those among whom the will of God is law and gospel, is lost today in that great institution, the Christian church.

THE VOICE THAT CALLS

I firmly believe that a Voice calls the visible church today to an examination of itself to discern whether it be indeed a true Christian community, teaching human society the truth about the Christian religion by its being the church of the living God, in which God is living and real; the body of Christ, doing His work of justice and mercy and faith in the world.

When the Christian community does the will of God "in earth as it is (done) in heaven," when it reflects the life of God as perfectly as the mountain pond reflects the morning sky, then the church can fully teach the Christian religion.

GROWING OLD GRACEFULLY

(Continued from Front Page)

Mr. Henry Ford has suggested one reason for this:

"It is usual," he declared, "to associate age with years only because so many men and women somewhere along in what is called middle life stop trying."

When they stop trying they gradually lose their taste for life. They are no longer enamored with it. Taking no interest in what goes on about them, living wholly in the past, they make no effort to keep abreast of the times in thought or in action. They isolate themselves completely from current happenings and, consequently, grow old too soon.

Possibly their divergence from the pathway of happiness was made earlier in life. They may have become self-centered—too much concerned in themselves and not enough concerned in the lives of others. When middle life robbed them of some of their vitality and ambition they had no other interest to attract and hold their attention.

They did not grow old gracefully and attractively because they had not lived gracefully and attractively.

Job provides us in a sentence with a summing up of an ideal life: "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season" (Job 5:26). Selfishness will not produce a life like the one suggested here. To live first for God, and then for our fellow men, will bring us to our graves in peace.

A graceful and happy old age is the product of a graceful, happy, and godly life. The thing for you and me to consider as we think of the shadowed slopes that lie before us is that selfishness, self-centeredness, is perilous to ourselves! Paul warns of this (2 Tim. 3:1, 2).

How like an echo of the Master's words are these of the Bard of Avon:

"Love thyself last: cherish those hearts that hate thee."

When the "creeping palsy of old age" numbs our senses to the emotional appeals that once stirred our youthful pulses, when because of advancing years we are no longer "lovers of pleasures" that are centered in the physical powers of perception and enjoyment, we may still find real happiness and hope in the interest we continue to feel in the lives of those around us.

"What makes old age so sad is, not that our joys, but that our hopes then cease," said Richter. Hopes that are wholly bound up in ourselves grow old with our bodies and with our minds, but hopes which include and encompass the lives of others remain green and fragrant so long as life shall last.

How important it is, then, that we should strive while yet we may to broaden the horizon of our affections and interests that when age has taken away our personal ambitions and destroyed our self-centered hopes we may still have the ceaseless, ageless, joy of watching the enlargement and development of the hopes of younger men and women around us.

How hard it is for a selfish old person to step aside and give his hard-earned place to his juniors! And the more important and responsible one's position in life has been, the more difficult it is for such a person to welcome with a hearty word of encouragement his younger successor.

But right here is where the Christian is in a more favorable position than anyone else can be. He never loses hope! When physical activity is more or less curbed by age there remain a thousand things in which he can take a vital interest and through which he can continue to contribute to the progress and betterment of the world.

In this connection it is worthy of note that the major part of our religious literature has been produced by men and women who were well-advanced in years. Younger people are generally more active than studious. Older folk are often more studious than active. Each has his place to fill at the proper time and each can contribute successfully to the same great work of preparing the Church of God and the world for the coming of the new age of eternal glory.

Judgment is the product of experience. Generally it comes only with ripening years. Activity is a manifestation of the growing period of life, the result of overflowing energy and quenchless ambition. Judgment and activity are both needed to complete the purposes of God. Youth, taught by maturity, advised by age! Such is the proper order of life's advancement and such principles put into practice lead inevitably to happiness, contentment, and peace when the crimson glow of evening sheds its glory across our mortal path.

According to the official bulletin released by the American Consulate General at Jerusalem, the latest authoritative estimate of the Palestinian population set the figure at 1,171,000. This was in June, 1934, and indicated an increase of nearly 136,000 since November, 1931. Religiously, the population is thus split: 70 per cent Moslems; 20 per cent Jews; 8 per cent Christians; 2 per cent Druzes and others.

"AS IT WAS IN THE DAYS OF NOAH"

"And as were the days of Noah, so shall be the coming of the Son of man."—Matthew 24:37.

IN THE prophecy of Olivet, our Lord gave to the disciples an illustration of end-time conditions, just previous to His parousia. By this, He not only approved the historical reference, but gave the conditions as a "sign." He says: "As it was!" How was it?

The answer is given: "They were eating, drinking, marrying . . . until the flood came." This was the supreme occupation of the godless. Nor was this forgetfulness of God and sensuality all. The Genesis account states that "the earth was filled with violence" and, moreover, the human family had been corrupted by illicit intercourse with angels. So "all flesh was corrupted," and "every imagination of the heart was evil only." "Wickedness was great."

These conditions are again to prevail before, and at the time, our Lord shall come in judgment. Every tree must grow. Some rivers flow many miles before they reach the sea, and the state described by Christ is the end of the process. Today, we behold the development!

In spite of the amenities of so-called civilization, there is a marked increase in violence. The world is getting calous, probably one contributing cause being the advance of science and speedy locomotion. We kill a person a day in New Zealand by motor car accidents, and until recently little notice has been taken of the fact. We are also concerned about the increase of "gangster" movements, even in Australia; and every country is crying out against cold-blooded crime. Wherever we look there is disturbance, violence, and the imminence of war.

France, Belgium, and Spain were recently in the throes of strikes and violence, which have developed into civil war in Spain, fomented by world-wide movements of irrepressible power.

The root cause of all the trouble is departure from God. There is an illuminating scripture in Ezekiel 8:17. "Then he said unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? Is it a light thing to the house of Judah that they commit the abominations which they commit here? for they have filled the land with violence."

Violence caused by the apostasy of the men of Judah! This departure from God is caused by godlessness and Satan; and is a clearly declared development for the time of the end. Frantic efforts are being made by the religious, uninformed in the Word of God, to stem the tide; but the tide is too strong. It is rising in politics, literature, amusements, business, and in Christendom (not Christianity), and the age is doomed. The end is sealed, and it were easier to sweep back the ocean with a broom than to stem the great tide of developing conditions moving to make up "as it was in the days of Noah."

The great English buffoon, petted, feted, and nearly worshiped by some—G. Bernard Shaw—wrote in 1932: "It is high time that we got rid of Jehovah. When the question is raised whether our children shall compound for their sins by sheltering themselves behind another's sacrifice, whoever hesitates to bring down the knobkerry is ludicrously unfit to have any part in the government of modern state."—Daily Sketch, London (italics ours).

Here is advocated, figuratively, violence against the Christian faith—and in England!

In the days of Noah there was gross sex-irregularity, the exaltation of woman, and the perversion of nature by demons.

Today, on every hand, we have masculine women, shorn and dressed as men, and refusing to fulfill the God-given function of motherhood. Strong, healthy women (even Christian women) refusing to bear children, to their physical and spiritual undoing. Free-love-companionate-marriage—fornication and adultery—are now condoned, under the so-called "new morality."

We have outgrown the "old morality" of decency, chastity, and godliness, and learned the new morality in which there are all the characteristics of the rottenness of the dying stages of an effete civilization.

If conditions, as in Noah's day, are to be repeated before the Lord comes in glory, then there is to be a big increase of the necromancy of spiritism.

In the Edge of the Etheric, by Findlay, a modern book, the writer contrasts a meeting held forty years ago in St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow, where only a handful were present, with a meeting held in the same place recently, when the subject of the address was "Spiritualism," and the hall was packed. And one is surprised at the notable names given, associated with "Psychical Research."

The book contains authentic cases of spirit-manifestation and spirit-materialization; and what they claim to be the most convincing phase of all—the "Direct Voice"—stated to be "the most convincing psychical phenomenon yet discovered."

We, who know this, and know the Word of God, smile. But this stuff is helping to leaven the world with a false hope which does not depend upon Jesus Christ and the Gift of Life for immortality. It belongs to the apostasy, and that undoubtedly leads to violence.

We submit that conditions are taking shape for the fulfillment of prophecy, and the "day of the Lord" draws near.

Disaster came in Noah's day. "They knew not until the flood came and took them all away." The disaster was not expected. The "ark" to them was a spectacle of imbecility on the part of Noah, who preached righteousness for 120 years. The disaster occurred suddenly, and only the godly, the ones untainted with the national sin of spirit-contact, were saved.

There is an "Ark Refuge" today, a preaching to a laughing, heedless, godless world; but the end will come. The cross of Christ is still "to the Jews a stumbling-block, to the Greeks (nations) foolishness, but unto them that are called, both Jews and Greeks, the power of God and the wisdom of God" (1 Cor. 1:23, 24).

Christ said—not Paul, or Peter, or John, but Christ—"As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be when the Son of man cometh. . . . Therefore be ye ready, for in an hour that ye think not the Son of man cometh."

And the great besom of the apostasy, worldliness, evil, and violence, is sweeping our civilization to the great crisis of Armageddon—and judgment.—J. Salisbury; condensed from The Bible Standard.

ANGLO-ISRAELISM

ANGLO-ISRAELISM is a controversial question in the Church of God but not necessarily a fundamental one. We are, therefore, glad to comply with the request of Brother O. J. Allard to reprint the following editorial by Brother S. J. Lindsay, which appeared in a recent number of The Messenger of Truth. Regarding the matter Brother Allard writes:

"Brother Lindsay's Messenger for November is before me, and for fear that you may not see his article on Anglo-Israelism I send you a copy, hoping that you may reprint it in THE HERALD together with his timely warning and valuable exhortation to our people. How I would like to say to them all, in addition to what he has said, 'O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you? . . . Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh?' (Gal. 3:1, 3)."

Several able leaders of the Church of God have in the past strongly advocated what is known as Anglo-Israelism. Among them were G. M. Myers and A. J. Eychaner. Hence it cannot be said that Anglo-Israelism is a "strange doctrine" among us. THE RESTITUTION HERALD in publishing articles either for or against the idea does not assume responsibility for the thoughts expressed by the various writers, nor does it express the opinion of its editors with regard to the correctness of the views set forth by them.

Brother Lindsay's editorial follows:

"This subject has been occupying the attention of our people in various places for some time and we know of one place where it has all but divided the interest of former workers. The contention that the United States and Great Britain are the descendants of the two sons of Joseph seems to hold the center of the stage. For the sake of the argument, let it be so. What of it? When all is said and done, you still have on your hands Israel in the flesh, a people who were under the law, and condemned of God because of their waywardness. You still have a people described by Paul in the following language:

"What then? are we better than they? No, in no wise: for we have before proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin; as it is written. There is none righteous, no, not one: there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one' (Rom. 3:9-12).

"When you have proved all it is sought to prove by the contention, you still have Israel in the flesh to contend with. To Israel God said (Ex. 19:5, 6), 'Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.'

"This is what Israel sought after, but we read again, 'What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded . . . unto this day' (Rom. 11:7, 8).

"God is seeking out a people for Christ's name and to this end both Jews and Gentiles are invited, and when they have accepted God's offer of mercy they cease to be either Jews or Gentiles. They both become one in Christ (Eph. 2). All must come under the 'new and living way' and that way is Christ (Heb. 10:20).

"Why should we spend our time, energies, and money to prove a matter which can be of little value to the church when it is found out? We should spend our whole activity in the effort to convince both Jews and Gentiles that as such they are in a lost condition. What they need is not a distinction of the flesh but one of the Spirit which abolishes the flesh. We need to know more about broken and contrite hearts in our work today. Shall we bend our energies in this direction?"

EYES ON THE WORLD

By Arlen Marsh

IN REALITY there is no present, for the present is nothing but an imaginary line drawn between the past and future. Life, therefore, relapses into one of two extremes: activity based upon thoughts of the past, or activity founded on thoughts of the future.

The life of the church should consist of the latter form of work. The successes, the trials, the failures of the past are wholly unimportant, except as they may serve as experiences to guide the church in its decisions.

Because of this fact, Christianity, as never before, should keep its eyes on the world. What is passing today may be the corner stone for the building to be erected tomorrow. The shelling of a British freighter by the German cruiser Koenigsburg may be the beginning of a war that will be the direct introduction to Armageddon.

That 1936 was, and that 1937 will be, one of the most crucial years in the history of the world is so firmly established as fact that the notion no longer brooks opposition. The one treaty that could have had some influence in preventing war—the amended Washington Naval Treaty originally signed by the seven leading Powers in 1923—died with the end of the old year. No strings are now attached, either theoretical or actual, on the militarism of any nation in the world, with the omnipresent exception of economic ones.

Now, then, is an opportunity for teaching the gospel of peace and the kingdom of God such as has not before existed. If the church can recognize and take advantage of its chance, it can march with extraordinary speed.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Just a Step

"There is but a step between me and death," said David as he fled from the wrath of King Saul (1 Sam. 20:3). Yet after this David ascended to the kingship himself. He ruled for forty years and became the father of a race of kings, the greatest of which is Jesus the Christ. That step was a long one. "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord" (Psalm 37:23).

It would be foolish of us not to realize that our lives are lightly held. We all know it when we read of the awful toll of lives in automobile accidents. And there are more killed by accidents in the home than by auto accidents. The mighty Sequoias of California are protected from death by two feet of bark. But the hand of death finally lays those giants low. Our skin protection is very thin, a small fraction of an inch. Is it any wonder that "death feeds" upon us?

Yet man is God's noblest creation. Greater than the giant trees, greater even than the earth on which he lives. The earth itself must change as man changes. "The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men" (Psalm 115:16).

Therefore, a pessimistic attitude is folly. The only way really to be happy is to commit that "step between me and death" to be guided by the Lord. "Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed. . . . Commit thy way unto the Lord" (Psalm 37:3, 5).

The Lord is greater than death. Therefore, be an optimist. Jesus took the step into death and the Father raised Him up. "Ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21). Face life with a cheerful heart, doing what needs to be done with courage. Danger spots must surely be eliminated. But when they are outside our control, then we must say, "Danger doesn't matter if it lies in the path of duty."

The Voice of Youth

In every nation on earth the patriotic feet of youth are marching to the drums of nationalism. Enthusiasm runs high. It is the jubilant heart of youth following the various glorious causes.

The church would be remiss in its duty were it to ignore that spirit in youth. Youth wants no primrose path of ease. Youth glories in a thorny path of accomplishment. If we hold forth the church as a means of riding into eternal life on the gentle breezes of happy chance, red-blooded youth will desert the ship for a more purposeful boat.

The true Christian soldier, marching under the triumphant banner of the Christ, finds that he faces more potent danger than any military soldier ever faces. The nationalistic youth of the world are not fighting against anything. They are fighting for the Fatherland. But in fighting for the Fatherland they will be brought in conflict with each other and will destroy each other. The Christian soldier fights a spiritual warfare. The things he destroys ought to be destroyed, the evil propensities. He destroys the things that cause loss of eternal life. And when he faces other people in battle it is to take them prisoner for their own good to eternal life.

As we enlist youth under the battle flag of Christ let us call them as the Lord called Paul: "For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake" (Acts 9:16).

On Your Toes

"Consider any transaction involving the sale of your merchandise incomplete until such time as the ultimate consumer shall have derived the perfect satisfaction to which he is entitled for his investment in your goods."—Instruction of a certain manufacturer to his retailers.

The children of this world seem to be wiser in some ways than the children of the kingdom. Christians are salesmen. We sell eternal life. Although this includes a way of living now, yet the perfect satisfaction can come only when the body has been made immortal. The price was paid by Jesus, but that does not relieve us of our responsibility to one another. How about the ones who used to worship with us but moved away? Did we follow them up and keep them in fellowship with us or place them in relationship with another of our local churches? How many are there in some of the metropolitan areas whose interest has waned in the coming kingdom of God and the things concerning the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and whose spirituality has declined? And all because we let them go and they are not organized into a local church.

Here is just one more job for the youth of our church to consider. This is one more reason why evangelism was made an issue at our last General Conference. Evangelistic committees were organized. Get behind the one you are most interested in and push.

Resolutions

People who refuse to make good resolutions for fear that they might break them are on a par with the man who, having once fallen, refuses to get up because there is a possibility that he might fall again. Josh Billings once said, "It ain't no disgrace fer a man to fall down, but to lay there and grunt is."

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13). "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him" (Col. 2:6). If you fall, don't lie there and moan, get up and walk some more.

—The Assistant Pastor of Bro. J. R. LeCrone.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water."

HOW A STRANGER BECAME A FRIEND

JESUS and His disciples, as we learned last week, started out to preach to the people in Judea, telling them of the love of God. Their message was a message of life, eternal life to all who would believe and obey it. And many people did believe, and they were baptized by the disciples.

Much happiness must have come to them because of their faith. They now had something to look forward to, and something to enjoy day by day, also. All their sins were washed away by obedience in baptism, and if they kept on in their new way of life a great reward would one day be theirs.

In our story for today we see Jesus and His helpers moving onward toward the north into the country of Samaria on their way to Galilee. At noontime one day they came to a well called Jacob's well near the village of Sychar.

Now this well had been there hundreds of years. Many, many people must have quenched their thirst with its clear waters and rested awhile from the noonday heat. Many a traveler had paused there in the morning before taking up his long day's journey.

But never such a traveler had stopped beside Jacob's well as on this day. For Jesus, the Son of God, the Saviour of the world, drank from its waters that noontime. And He met a stranger there at the well.

No, she wasn't a stranger to Him, for He knew all about her. But He was a stranger to her. She had heard that such a person would come one day, but she didn't recognize Him when she saw Him.

The disciples of Jesus, all except John probably, had gone into the village to buy some food. John, we think, stayed behind with Jesus, as he always wanted to be close to Him, and heard the conversation between the woman and the Master.

The woman seemed surprised that Jesus treated her so politely, for the Jews were not generally very kindly in their treatment of the Samaritans. But we can't imagine Jesus as being anything else. And she soon learned more about Him.

She had come with something in which to carry water; Jesus had no cup or pail. What would be the first thing He might say to her? Why, "Give me a drink," most likely. And that is just what He did.

That gave Him a chance to talk to her and tell her who He was. He spoke in what was to her riddles. She couldn't understand Him. She thought He was just an ordinary traveler, such as one might meet any day. And He offered her living water, of which if one drank, he would never thirst again.

She had never heard of anything like that before. Nor had she ever met one who could tell her all her past deeds. She knew by then He was no ordinary person. Could He be the Messiah? she wondered, for she knew He was to come.

"I that speak unto thee am he," were the words by which Jesus told her who He was. And she was so thrilled with the news that she ran home, leaving her waterpot behind.

Read on in your Bibles in this same chapter of John and see what happened as a result of this meeting between Jesus and the woman at the well. Verses 39 to 42 tell you about it. It must have made Jesus very happy to know that many believed in Him because of it.

Now have you decided what that living water was that Jesus offered the woman? It was the gospel, the same message of life which He and His disciples had been preaching to all in Judea.

The one who would believe that gospel and obey it would have his greatest need supplied. That is, life, eternal life. Men need that more than anything else in this world. For when they receive eternal life they will have everything else as well.

That was the greatest day in the Samaritan woman's life. She became a helper of Jesus, though she was not numbered with the others, nor did she follow them on their journey. But she spread the good news among her own people, and she brought many others for a "drink" of that "living water" which she had received that day.

In verse 42 you will find what they said about Jesus: "This is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world."

"By Samaria's wayside well,
Once a blessed message fell
On a woman's thirsty soul, long ago;
And to eyes that once were sealed
Was the glorious light revealed,
Through the fountain that was opened long ago."

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE

There will be a one-day conference held in Los Angeles, Calif., Sunday, Jan. 17, 1937. Sr. E. C. Railsback will speak at the morning service, her subject being, "Partakers of the Divine Nature." In the afternoon Bro. Norman Macleod will speak on a prophetic subject. At this time no definite word has been received from the other two speakers who have been asked to contribute to the program.

Grace Adamson, Secretary.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

For the past two months it has been the writer's privilege to work with Bro. F. E. Siple in the capacity of assistant pastor at the South Lawn Church of Grand Rapids, Mich. It has been a real pleasure to work with such a loyal and earnest group of people and their sincerity and desire to live a Christian life were demonstrated many times. We will not soon forget the friendliness and hospitality manifested by all during our stay among them and surely hope to meet them again in the near future. We sincerely hope that they will continue to grow in numbers and service under the capable leadership of Bro. Siple.

Our return home found things going along nicely here, Sunday school and Berean being held regularly with good attendance at most services. With the advent of bad weather and roads, services throughout the winter will be greatly curtailed. No preaching services will be held until spring.

Harry Goekler, Pastor.

Twenty-five people enjoyed the meetings of the fourth annual Ministers' Conference on the Aurora College campus the week of December 27. Several Church of God ministers were in attendance as well as a few local ministers. The greatest distance was traveled by Clyde Randall of Fonthill, Ont.

VIRGINIA

The Dry Run and Maurertown churches in Virginia are pleased to announce that a very enjoyable and profitable series of meetings was held at these churches by Bro. Grover Gordon of Holbrook, Neb. Although there were no conversions, yet we feel that this effort was very profitable, for renewed efforts and additional activities are being worked out, of which there will be an announcement at a later date. Bro. Gordon also delivered one sermon in the city of Washington, D. C., and we are anticipating some forward action from the brethren at this place.

While the work in Virginia is showing increased activities, yet much of the work will be discontinued during the month of January while the pastor is engaged in another field. The work with our children in the State of Virginia is being organized. At present, nearly every child from our church homes is either enrolled in the Sunshine Scatterer movement or in active class work. Our enrollment now is 140 children; many are from homes outside our church membership. Our aim is to have every child from our church homes engaged in this midweek Bible study.

V. Earl Thayer, Pastor.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

As Christmas has for so long been a time for the reuniting of families, we were glad to have Bro. F. L. Austin, accompanied by Mrs. Austin, return to his home church for the Christmas festivities held December 20. The Sunday school period was used for a program and tree, following which Bro. Austin delivered the morning sermon. In the evening the Comrade Class of junior adults gave a very interesting cantata.

Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secretary.

Duncan Macleod, son of Norman John Macleod (who recently resigned his pastorate of the Los Angeles church to take up high school teaching again), is singing with the Pasadena Boys' Choir over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Programs originate at KNX, Los Angeles. Duncan toured the country with a boys' chorus during the past summer.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

The Christmas program this year was a combination by the Sunday school and the choir. The first part consisted of numbers from the Sunday school classes and then the climax came in the cantata, "Babe of Bethlehem," by the choir, under the capable direction of Miss Evelyn Barr. Bro. M. W. Lyon of Cleveland was present and helped materially with the music. This was presented on the 23rd in the Godwin School gymnasium.

On Tuesday night, Dec. 22, a group gathered at the church parlors in honor of Bro. Harry Goekler, who had been with us nearly three months and who was to leave the 24th so as to be home for Christmas. Bro. Goekler made a warm place in the hearts of our people during his labors here. The future at this writing is uncertain. If he returns after the holidays he will find a hearty welcome. If the Lord directs him into other fields he will be able to know that a loyal group here is praying for his welfare.

South Lawn Church extends its best wishes to the brethren everywhere for the coming year.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

The short article, "Stories of Great Hymns," appearing on page 10 of the last Herald was by Mrs. Mary A. Gesin.

REPORT FOR DECEMBER

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1. Funerals, 1. Money received: Sr. Nellie Evans, $20.00; Pleasant View, $11.00; Hillisburg, $20.83; Rensselaer, $20.00; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $7.50; conference board, $4.00. Expense, $15.00.

We wish to thank the many friends who remembered us in gifts and kind words during the Christmas season. One friend sent us a fine rocking chair, and we can find use for it during the long nights as we study God's Word.

News has just come from Winchester, Va., that Mellie, our daughter, will have to undergo a major operation. We ask the prayers of God's people in her behalf.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

The welfare work in charge of Elder O. J. Parker, assisted by the committee, Leon Thomas, Elmer Hand, and Clifford Gray, is still being carried on at Kokomo. The past year there have been distributed 11,938 loaves of bread; 3,145 dozen rolls, doughnuts, and buns. All this has been donated through the courtesy of Mr. Dale Myers and Oritgens Bakeries.

Through our untiring effort this work has been much more generous than last year. The Lord willing, we will carry on this work on a much larger scale than we have ever done, as we have been promised more help for our needs during the year 1937.

Our committee went through the country with a truck and collected food, such as potatoes, canned fruit and vegetables, cabbage, popcorn, sweet potatoes, and a snug cash collection which made it possible for us to buy meat, butter, milk, sugar, and coffee to contribute to 21 needy families.

A fine program was given at the church Christmas Eve in which 34 children participated. Each child received a present, a sack of candy, popcorn, nuts, and an orange.

Our Berean work is progressing nicely. The adult and junior classes have combined and meet once a month with a social, which we find has been very beneficial. Our average attendance at Berean has been about 14.

Our attendance December 20 at Sunday school was 65.

We are in need of repairs on our church, and anyone desiring to help us will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Martha Parker.

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

Speaking service was conducted in the Macomb church group Friday evening, Dec. 18, and Sunday morning, Dec. 20, in connection with Sunday school. Their work has been changed from Berean on Friday evenings to Sunday school at 10 o'clock Sundays, followed by either Berean class or speaking service.

These people have a vision of a work to do and are making plans to do it. A meeting is planned at Macomb as soon as Bro. Austin finishes a week or more at Eldorado where he went January 3.

Speaking service was held in the home of Bro. Dean Fuqua, 1019 Howett St., Peoria, both morning and evening on Sunday, Dec. 27. Sunday school is at ten each Sunday. Another service was held after the Sunday school on January 3. There are three active families and each has a great desire for a work to be established here soon. Bro. Elza Robbins' address is 313 Fayette St., Peoria; Bro. George Slagle's address is Dunlap (15 miles north of Peoria). There were 12 present at the first meeting and 17 at the second.

We were much pleased at the sincere and prayerful effort to build here even though few in number. This group is 100 per cent in practicing systematic apportioning of income for the Lord's work. A few words of encouragement from friends will be appreciated by both the Macomb and Peoria groups.

Happy New Year.

F. L. Austin,
J. W. McLain.

HERALD RECEIPTS

J. H. Williams (for another); Lilian Railton (for others); Mrs. Frank Beck; Mrs. A. P. Leamon; S. M. Mitchell; Kittie C. Humphreys; Lottie E. Young (for another); A. L. Corbaley (for self and others); William Arbogast; Elza Robbins; Mrs. Hedvie Jackson; Mrs. F. M. McCrory; Mrs. James Buchanan; Albert Siple (for self and others); George Slagle; Mrs. James Sanford.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Lilian Railton	$ 1.00
Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ellis (ind. fund)	50.00
Lawrenceville, Ohio, Bereans	6.00
J. W. Sweet	2.00
Oregon, Ill., Church (ind. fund)	11.37
Ripley, Ill., Church (ind. fund)	9.50
Almeda Wertz (ind. fund)	5.00
Maurertown, Va., S. S.	3.60
Ingomar (ind. fund)	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Austin (ind. fund)	25.00

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Jessie M. B. Kauffman; Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; W. A. Reid; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mary J. Calkins; Lydia Railsback; Albert Siple; Ella M. Siple; Flora E. Hogue; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Starbuck; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew.

During the past month, every regular employee but one of The Restitution Herald has been ill. L. E. Conner, manager, is slowly recovering strength from an attack of flu; G. E. Marsh, editor, has been confined to his home by nose abscesses.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BAPTISM—

by S. J. Lindsay

This is a treatise on the significance, importance, and mode of baptism by one of the most able Bible teachers. The subject is presented in an interesting and logical manner, setting forth the biblical truth that baptism by immersion in water, following a definite belief in the gospel, is essential to salvation.

8 pages—2 for 5¢; per dozen 20¢; per hundred $1.20.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

What with the multitude of views we've heard on the subject, we're inclined to accept the definition of a schoolboy, and have done with it: "A millennium is an insect with many more legs than a centennial."

That's bad. Mattoon, Illinois, police have been doing their beats afoot since December 19. Some lowlife stole the town's one usable squad car.

Tendencies in publishing are all toward combination. Now the Brooklyn Eagle and the Brooklyn Times-Union have gone under one roof, that of Publisher Millard Preston Goodfellow. Freedom of the press is being slowly strangled before intra-city monopolies and one-man chains.

1935, Roger Babson declaring birth control the only means of preventing poverty. 1936, Babson again, holding forth that the basic fault of Protestantism is its declining birth rate. Just what would the Dionnes do with a man like that?

The Watchman-Examiner is telling about a Scotsman who's been putting off buying an atlas until world affairs look a little more settled. We thought we were making a mistake when we got that road map from the gas station the other day.

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings."
—"Alice in Wonderland."

"We are beginning to see the weakness," comments James J. Freeman, D. D., "and futility of a merely humanistic gospel that is good with the supernatural left out. A merely humanistic gospel is about like telling a drowning man to save himself by clutching his own hands."

Owing to persecutions, the Sikhs, redoubtable sect of India, have turned to militarism from religion. They now make up five regiments in the British Colonial Army.

"Too much fat," roared Germany's Goebbels, "makes the stomach greedy." (He spoke last October, when rationing of cooking fats was begun. Now the rationing has been made still stricter.) Goebbels should know. He's probably the fattest man in the Reich.

The town where it happened is Kiszyniew, Bessarabia, and the man was arrested for selling two hundred seats in heaven. Those "near God" went for about $20; ordinary chairs took only $10.

H. Schwedersky (we don't know him) is quoted: "In Italy, it takes 8,300 hours of labor at the going wage scale to pay for an automobile; in Germany, 4,054 hours; in Sweden, 2,786 hours; in the United States, 853 hours." What automobile, Mr. Schwedersky, and whose wage scale? We'd like to know about this.

A Dictionary of the Bible

Edited by John D. Davis, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.
Fourth Revised Edition
Recommended by Aurora College
In cloth binding, $3.00 postpaid
In half leather, $4.00 postpaid
In full Morocco, $7.50 postpaid
All proper nouns pronounced
High quality paper
Readable type

A satisfying library of Bible information is found in this fourth revised edition, which is now selling at reduced prices. The 856 pages contain 6,000 articles, 229 good illustrations, and accurate colored maps. The articles cover the contents of the books of the Old and New Testaments in both the King James and Revised Versions, together with the First Book of the Maccabees in the Revised Version. The articles on the canonical books have been elaborated to show the place which the books have occupied and to exhibit the personal traits of the writers. Meanings and pronunciations of proper names, genealogical description of persons, and locations of places add to the comprehensiveness of the book.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

A Kingdom Vision

By E. O. Stewart

“Verily I say unto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom.”—Matthew 16:28.

THE BIBLE presents two ways in which people may see things. One is by actual sight, and the other is in mental vision. In vision, John saw the dead small and great stand before God, and the books opened (Rev. 20). In vision some six or seven hundred years before John's day, Daniel saw the judgment seat and the books opened (Dan. 7). Both of these men were carried in Spirit or mental vision down the stream of time to the day of the Lord, or the Lord's day, and beheld, or were foreshown, just what God will bring to pass at the time appointed. In this way the disciples to whom Jesus spoke in Matthew 16:28 saw the Son of man come in His kingdom just six days later.

Beginning with Matthew 17:1, let us read right on down to verse 9, and see if this is not true. “And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, James, and John . . . and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light. And . . . there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him. Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias. While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them, and behold a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him. . . . And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.”

That this is a vision certainly will not be questioned, for verse 9 says it was a vision. And now, if you will turn to 2 Peter 1:16-18, you will find just what Peter, one of the eyewitnesses, says about the vision, which makes known the power and coming of the Son of man. Hear him! “For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty (kingly power). For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice . . . we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.”

In this rapturous vision, Peter, James, and John beheld Jesus their King just as He shall be when He comes to put into execution His kingly power. As Moses and Elijah appeared in the vision, the three awe-stricken disciples beheld a mental picture of the change bestowed upon the dead and living saints at the second coming of Christ: Moses, who had been buried in the land of Moab, appeared in the vision representing the dead saints who are to be raised incorruptible at the return of Christ. Elijah, of whom no record of his death is given, appeared in the vision representing the living saints, who are to be changed into a state of immortality at the second coming of Christ, which change will fit them for the grand work of reigning with Christ in His kingdom. The mountain on which the vision was given represented the government of the Lord's house as it shall be established in the top of the mountains in the last days. See Isaiah 2:2-6. The voice represented the law as it shall go forth from Zion, through which the nations shall cease to learn war.

In mental vision, these disciples saw the manifestation of all the kingdom powers as they shall be in reality at the second coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

This vision of the coming kingdom is a deathblow to the theory advanced in modern times by those who claim that during the kingdom age Christ and His saints will be invisible to all but those who are changed into a state of immortality.

In the vision, Jesus, Moses, and Elijah appeared changed, as Jesus and the saints will be in the kingdom age. But Peter, James, and John were not changed. These three disciples in an unchanged state beheld with mortal eyes Jesus, Moses, and Elijah in their transfigured form. If this was a picture of the kingdom age, then as Peter, James, and John were not transfigured, and beheld with their eyes the transfigured ones, it certainly makes known the truth as we have always believed, that during the kingdom age Christ and the immortalized saints shall be visible to those who are the subjects of the kingdom, represented by the three on-gazing disciples in the vision on the mountain.

As we behold the nations arming themselves for war with the most deadly weapons that human hands can invent, we realize that the time is short. Beyond the dark clouds we behold the dawn of the newborn day, when the war clouds shall vanish, and the peaceful reign of righteousness shall spread its dove-like wings over the ruins of a war-torn world and bring to happy fruition the long-looked-for dreams of ancient seers, who brushed away the lingering tears in order to view with rapturous joy the faint glimmerings of that hope which spans the sullen stream of death, promising life in green pastures beside the still waters of life, when the sad scenes of mortality shall be forgotten, eclipsed by the joys that await the faithful in that rest that awaits the people of God.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 12, 1937

NUMBER 15

It Might Have Happened to You

YES, it might have happened to you or it might have happened to me, an experience similar to the tragedy that overtook the prodigal son! Such is not beyond the bounds of possibility.

The world is full of prodigal sons. We see them almost daily traveling in all stages of the downward path. They stand on street corners, listlessly, hopelessly, uselessly. They lean against doorways of the taverns where they have spent their last penny for drink that has sent their physical and moral vitality to a still lower point. They bend their weakened bodies across the green tables of the pool and billiard "parlors," having no higher ambition in life than to drive the clicking balls into winning formations. They hang about the gasoline service stations, occasionally raising a languid hand with pointing thumb. They care little as to which way their hoped-for host may take them, they have no real destination in mind, it makes no difference where they are or where they go; just to be on the road—the Road to Nowhere—that is all.

But they always go in the same direction! Whether they turn east or west or north or south, the road these prodigals take always goes downward, downward to degradation, dishonor, misery, and death!

Not infrequently their aimless journey is brought to an abrupt stop amid the rattle of a gangster's machine gun or the sharp "ping" of a policeman's revolver.

Though they may go on for a little while, escaping for a time such a fate as this, yet will they fall at last exhausted upon an iron cot where narrow bars of shadow creep across them as they sleep and dream dreams of nameless horror.

Or they may lurk in darkened alleys longer still and come to the end of their crooked pathways with shaven heads and slitted trouser legs and hands and feet bound firmly against polished plates of copper to await the lightning flash that will give them the last "thrill" of their excitement-craving lives.

Yes, it might have happened to you—or it might have happened to me—the tragic story of the Prodigal Sons of the World! It might all have happened to us, but for the grace and love of God our Father!

The following sermon was delivered by the editor to his congregation in Oregon, Illinois, following the murder of a prisoner in an Illinois penitentiary.

Paul, looking back over a portion of his very fruitful life, thinking perhaps a little complacently of the success that had attended his efforts to serve the Lord, is suddenly brought to himself with a humbling thought and exclaims:

"For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God. But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me" (1 Cor. 15:9, 10).

Like this splendid soldier of the cross, you and I have nothing whereof we may boast because we are what we are. We are here this morning in the temple of God, our children are here with us, we will return presently to pleasant and comfortable homes, we will bow our faces for a moment above a loaded table and offer a few formal and almost meaningless phrases of gratitude for the food He has provided. Later we may meditate for a moment or two on the hope of everlasting life which is to come to us through Jesus Christ.

Then without fear we will lie down in peace to sleep, knowing, more instinctively than consciously, that "underneath are the everlasting arms"! But how indifferent and forgetful we are that all of these blessings which we enjoy this day come to us through no merit of our own, but by the grace of the Lord our God!

But how different the picture might have been!

Just the other day the barred door of a cell was unlocked, the strong gates of a prison were thrown open, and a man, still young in years, went forth into the outside world—free! He had waited long for the day of liberation to come. Nearly twelve years had passed since he entered the grim structure that was to be his "home" for so long a time. And how strange it was when compared with the home he had known in his childhood! That had been a home of plenty, of comfort, and of affluence—a home upon which the sunshine of prosperity and happiness always shone. That home often came into his mind as the weary years dragged by.

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day

G. E. Marsh, Editor

Jews in Great Britain

"O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?"—Daniel 12:8.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—"I trust," said the Archbishop of Canterbury, of the Church of England, yesterday, "we may be spared the shame of giving any sort of encouragement to the discreditable prejudice which has led to cruel persecution in other countries, and especially Germany, of the race to which our Savior in His human life belonged." The Archbishop expressed this desire in a New Year's letter addressed to his countrymen and especially to the church of which he is the second highest official. He indicated that he was concerned over increasing activity of anti-Jewish organizations in England.

Such racial reprehensible conduct, he said, "is, I know, confined to a few irresponsible people," evidently referring to Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascist followers, "but unless it is checked it may spread."

"He Won't Like Heaven"

"No man hath ascended up to heaven."—John 3:13.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—In an article in the December number of the North American Review, Channing Pollock called attention to a remark some one made when Matthew Arnold, the celebrated critic and religious writer of the past century, died. "Poor Matthew," the friend said, "he won't like God." Mr. Pollock, commenting on this, suggested that more of us would have understood what he meant if the wit had said, "He won't like heaven." He then proceeded to describe some of the ideas of the place of supposed eternal bliss.

"There are many conceptions, of course, ranging from streets of gold down—or up—to the Buddhist state of forgetfulness. I shouldn't care for gold streets, and there is little I want to forget. Nirvana would make a greater appeal to me if it were a place of more vivid remembrance, where you could look at the stars and sea with ten times the thrill they gave you on earth. I'm afraid the Mohammedan hours would bore me to tears.

"The truth is less that I don't believe in any of these heavens than that I don't care whether they exist or not. To me, the question isn't important—I'm too much concerned with what I do while I live. The only heaven that really interests me is the heaven that could be made right here."

This seems to be an idea quite generally entertained by "advanced thinkers" both in and out of the church today. And we cannot help but sympathize with them in their lack of interest in the traditional "heaven" of their fathers. An intangible, wholly immaterial existence in an intangible, immaterial world which no one has visited or is able to describe, cannot attract and hold the interest of men who have known nothing but the realities of the natural world of which they are a part. To completely divorce the natural from the spiritual, the present from the future, robs that future of its strongest appeal.

It is the hope of renewing human relations, of reawakening past pleasurable sensations, of reliving under ideal conditions the best we have known and felt and enjoyed in our natural lives, that causes us to look forward into the misty future with deepest longing. And the gospel of the kingdom of God is "good tidings of great joy" because it brings to us the assurance that if we believe and obey its requirements such an experience shall be ours forever, unmarred by fears of separation or of loss.

Religious Census in Russia

"My word . . . shall not return unto me void."—Jehovah.

MOSCOW, Jan. 5.—That the atheistic Soviet Government has not succeeded in its purpose to destroy religion in Russia is becoming discouragingly apparent to the leaders of the Bolsheviks as the returns from the general census which is now in progress begin to come in. Among the questions which the people are asked is this: "Do you believe in God?" Although returns are kept secret, many Government officials admit that they are surprised at the number who answer that question affirmatively. Assurance has been given that the answers will in no case be used against the one questioned. The new constitution provides for complete freedom in religious worship.

The attitude of the Soviet Government toward religion from the beginning has not been such as to encourage us in the belief that real freedom of worship will be long permitted. Christianity has been making some progress during the last two years, however, and it is possible that under the immediate influence of the new constitution further advancement may be achieved.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Kingdom of God

Number 5

By T. A. Drinkard

"Thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever."—2 Samuel 7:16.

THE longevity of the kingdom and the throne is here affirmed to be forever. This is in perfect harmony with other portions of Scripture. No amount of wresting can change God's plan and purpose for the establishment of the kingdom.

David could see that he would soon go the way of all the earth, and that his kingdom would come to a sudden end, and that it would not be reestablished on the earth "for a great while to come" (v. 19). At this point God made a special promise to David that He would raise up Christ to sit upon that reestablished throne (Acts 2:30), which would be set up in mercy (Isa. 16:5) in Jerusalem (Isa. 24:23).

To cause David to feel a deep personal interest in the promise, God said to him in so many words that this everlasting kingdom would be set up in his presence, and to do this would call for a resurrection of David and other of those God-fearing men who gave all that they counted dear in life that God's promises might come to pass.

Jesus, the Son of God, knew something about those promises which God had given to His prophets and said that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob would be in the kingdom. Not only will these three faithful men of God be there, but others who "shall come from the east and west" (Matt. 8:11) to attend the gathering of the saints of God; and when those saints of God go marching into the kingdom of God, the joy will be unspeakable. They will have forgotten all of their trials and troubles; those things are in the past. Then it is we will fully comprehend what the kingdom will mean to the earth and to the suffering people thereon.

Distress, sorrow, and depression begin to come to an end, because Jesus ascends His throne when He comes and starts His reign of authority over the nations of earth (Matt. 25:31). He proposes to "thoroughly purge his floor" (Matt. 3:12), which means a general clean-up is needed; and He will hold in His hands a commission from God to clean the earth, to eliminate sin, oppression, depression, in fact bring to earth a new day, new conditions, or as the Prophet says, "I make all things new" not "make new things," but "make all things new," that is, give a new covering to the things we have. What a day!

John the Baptist announced the coming of Jesus Christ, and Christ endorsed that welcome address by John. Jesus in turn announced His Father's plan, and the Apostle fully, yet very briefly, explains it in Acts 15:14-17.

Christ began calling out His church from the Jews and caused His apostles to confine their work to the "lost people of the house of Israel" (Matt. 10:6), after which, just after His death, He gave the apostles the unlimited commission to carry the gospel message to all nations (Mark 16:15, 16; Matt. 28:18-20). The Jewish clergy of His day was just as blind as the Gentile clergy of our day. It overlooked the fact that God's plan was, and is, to take out a people, the church, during this age, and for that very reason it thought the kingdom would be set up during Christ's personal ministry (Luke 19:11) or on the day of Pentecost.

Clergymen have tried to apply those many scriptures concerning the kingdom to the church, and no one needs to know so very much to soon determine that such a policy is but human and foolish. If the church is not doing what the kingdom is said to do, that fact alone is proof positive that the church is not the kingdom; it never was intended to be the kingdom. I cannot find one instance where the church is ever called the kingdom, or one instance where the church is ever referred to directly or indirectly as the kingdom; and why professed ministers should seek by so-called logic to persuade men and women that the kingdom is already set up is beyond my ability to understand, unless it is they have a theory and try to wrest the Scriptures to suit that theory. Such a policy will not stand the test. In the last-named scripture you will note that the people misunderstood the teaching of the gospel message. If they could then, it is possible that they can and do today.

The kingdom of promise and prophecy could not have been set up or established by Christ during His personal ministry without the apostles' knowing (Please turn to Page Eleven)

Thy Kingdom Come

Now be the gospel banner
In every land unfurled,
And be the shout, "Hosanna!"
Reechoed through the world:
Fill every isle and nation,
Till every tribe and tongue,
Receive the great salvation,
And join the happy throng.

What though th' embattled legions
Of earth and hell combine?
His power, throughout their regions,
Shall soon resplendent shine;
Ride on, O Lord, victorious,
Immanuel, Prince of peace;
Thy triumph shall be glorious,
Thine empire still increase.

Yes, Thou shalt reign forever,
O Jesus, King of kings:
Thy light, Thy love, Thy favor,
Each ransomed captive sings:
The isles for Thee are waiting,
The deserts learn Thy praise,
The hills and valleys greeting,
The song responsive raise.

—Thomas Hastings.

High Pressure in the Bible Belt

T. H. Alexander tells what his son has told him about the Bible in the South. Reader's Digest is the source of this unusual article; so, of course, "High Pressure in the Bible Belt" is copyrighted, 1936, by the Reader's Digest Association and is here reprinted by special permission.

WHEN agents came to our campus last spring with tales of large profits to be made from selling Bibles during vacation, a veteran canvasser said to a group of us: "Look at this map and observe that I draw a line from Pennsylvania to Nebraska. Now all the States south of this line constitute the so-called Bible Belt of America. Gentlemen, the dough is there; go and get it."

It sounded good. The manager of the crew I joined was even more enthusiastic. He dug up statistics to show that this region absorbs almost three fifths of the five million Bibles sold in the United States each year. Last August a popular novel sold 100,000 copies in a cheap edition, but the sales of the Bible exceeded that in the first day and a half of the month. Salesmen often sell from $500 to $600 worth of Bibles every week, and they earn 40 per cent commission.

I was assigned to sell in North Carolina and given an intensive training course along with six hundred other college men who worked for the same company. We were taught, among other things, how to hitchhike—"goose the ghost" as it is known in the lingo of the trade. We must never ask for a ride in pairs, for this alarms motorists. The Bible seller never hails a woman alone in a car, but two are usually good for a ride.

We were sent out strictly on our own; Bible houses won't advance money. I made the trip of nine hundred miles to my territory at a cost of 90 cents for hamburgers. Our problem then was to live on deposits put up by customers. Some boys who were booking as high as $500 per week in orders found themselves taking in hardly any cash. Hence the average salesman must forage like a soldier. He plans to reach a fine residence when night falls. If, however, the dinner bell catches him before a humble cabin, he must make the best of it. Once in a small North Carolina town I spent the night voluntarily in the jail, which was not only clean but free. The most hilarious meal I ever ate was with a humble Negro tobacco farmer, his wife and sixteen children; I got the only knife and fork in the house and they gave me the first helping. In the training school the salesman refused a sale is taught to say, "Well, Mrs. Jones, I reckon I'll just have to eat with you," and Mrs. Jones usually submits. He is instructed to offer pay for accommodations, but I never heard of an offer being accepted.

Once in our territories, we looked up all the ministers. The fact that a student is selling Bibles gives him a certain standing because you really do meet "the best people" in small town churches. We were besieged by invitations to dine and dance, to play bridge and tennis. About 30 per cent of the students who sell Bibles in the summer are members of college fraternities. I blush when I recall that I sold twenty-six Bibles because I was wearing my fraternity pin!

Training schools teach the salesman to say that he is in the community talking with people about the Bible and religious work in general. Then he asks a person he has met, "What kind of a Bible have you?"

The prospect more than likely will reply, having suspected what he has let himself in for, that he has more Bibles than he can read. The salesman's answer, according to the textbook he has studied in sales school, will be that of course he expected any man in his circumstances would have a good Bible, as all cultured people do, but if it isn't too much trouble, may the salesman see the prospect's latest Bible? If he produces the Bible, the salesman looks it over hastily and says: "You have a very good Bible and no doubt secured the best one you could at that time. But I have a Bible which was gotten out much later, and as you were kind enough to let me see yours, if you don't object I'll show you a few sample pages of mine by comparison." And then the salesman is ready to launch into Canvass No. 1, in which he does everything but get a toe hold or half nelson.

In case the prospect is a woman—and women buy four out of every five Bibles sold in America by commission salesmen—the approach is different. Suppose the housewife is busy. The following technique is quoted from the salesman's guide:

"Explain to her that you observe she is quite busy but you have just one picture you want to show her in the Illustrated Bible. Then you open your prospectus and show her the picture, 'Jesus in the Home of Martha and Mary.' Then say the following: 'We are told that Jesus was better pleased with Mary, who sat at His feet inquiring of spiritual things, than He was with Martha, who was too busy with household duties. Don't you think that women would be better off today if they read the Bible more and worried less about household duties?'"

The first time I attempted this pious line an old lady stared at me so intently over her spectacles that I began to stammer and finally broke down laughing. That lady certainly could make good doughnuts, and she finally gave herself a good sales talk on the Bible and bought one.

But Mrs. Jones is likely to say that she does not want to buy without consulting her husband. The salesman must then spin into this: "Mrs. Jones, did you ever think what an important place women fill in the Bible? (Turn to the picture entitled "The Visit of the Wise Men.") Take these pictures here, for instance; in this one you will notice the wise men worshiping Jesus in the arms of His mother, a woman. You see Him again in His mother's arms fleeing

(Please turn to Page Ten)

My Last Sermon

By C. E. Lapp

SINCE this is to be my last sermon it will be necessary to speak to two classes of people, those who are seeking the Lord Jesus as their Savior and those who are not. As far as we can find out there are only these two classes in the world and they make up the whole of humanity.

The Christmas season has just gone by and once again we have heard the story of Jesus' birth. It seems there have always been two classes of people, even at the time of Jesus. A brilliant star shone in the sky and wise men followed it from the East toward the place where He was to be born. In Jerusalem they inquired of Herod where He was to be born who was to be "King of the Jews." Herod did not know about the new King but immediately tried to find out from those that did know. The chief priests and scribes were called, and when asked this question said: "In Bethlehem of Judea." Upon receiving this welcome news, the wise men went immediately to Bethlehem and after having searched diligently they found Jesus. They worshiped Him. They offered gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh to honor Him. A new-found joy was in their hearts because they had been seeking the Lord, and after having found Him they offered of their very best to Him.

The chief priests and scribes knew where Jesus was to be born, but it was only knowledge with them. The wise men had knowledge, but it was a knowledge that stirred them deeply, even enough to make them search until Jesus was found. Here we are face to face with two great classes: those who know but make no effort to do, and those who are persistently seeking the Lord. It may be that the wise men had read the words of Isaiah, who said, "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found." His words were indeed true, for Herod tried in vain to find the baby Jesus.

In our so-called Christian United States in this twentieth century again we see the same two classes. There are those who have a little head knowledge concerning the Lord, but in a rather indifferent way go on through life caring very little whether they seek the Lord and His guidance or not. These resemble the scribes who knew but did not look for the Lord.

There are today wise men who read God's Word, and have really tasted and found that the Lord is good, that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever, that

He can forgive sins, cleanse from all impurities, and put joy into the human heart where sorrow once reigned.

But what of the multitude in Christian America? Are they wise? During the past few years 21,000 rural churches in the United States have had to close their doors because of financial stress, and the fact that people have too many other places to go. The auto and radio have done much to close these doors; yet the automobile industry is suffering no depression. Millions of new cars are being made and bought by the American public. Millions of radios are being placed in homes where people can sit and listen to so-called sizzling, red-hot jazz orchestras rattle off tin-pan-effect noise (which is called music), when the people could very profitably be attending their church services or assisting in the prayer meeting.

In the United States during the last year more was spent for tobacco than was spent to carry the gospel to the ones who are daily dying without Christ. The total of $340,000,000 more was spent for amusement than for religious purposes last year. Another $300,000,000 went for narcotics and drinks.

The wise men of old were seeking the Lord and found Him, worshiped, and offered rare gifts. Are you wise enough to do the same? Isaiah 55:6 says: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found," and there is only one way to seek Him, and that is through His Word and by prayer. To all appearances the great famine is almost upon us. Not of land, not of bread, not of thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord. How will you seek the Lord in the day when there is a famine of the Word of God? There may come a time when you will not be able to find Him.

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." A wonderful promise of complete forgiveness for the sinner.

Have you set your mind to seek the Lord? Beware lest you fall into the class with the foolish virgins who were unprepared when the bridegroom came. The door was shut, and they were left outside.

You may be either a wise man who found the Lord, or you may be like the scribe. Which is your choice?

Religious Education Goes to Town

By Arlen Marsh

WHAT with this and that, education and the press have undergone considerable renovation during the past several years. In the publishing field, Laura Jean Libby has been forsaken for such jazzy scribes as David Garth and C. B. Kelland; in education, the three R's have gathered dust while children and their elders learned of milking cows and driving cars by practice instead of by books.

Christendom, let it be shouted, has not been altogether immune to these phenomena. But Christianity, like banking, is pretty much the same old thing. The message that was taught in 50 Anno Domini is being taught in some circles even now; and for this reason, the story has been often told that methods should remain stagnant with the message.

But no! The alphabet still starts with A, B, C, although we may not learn that it ends with Z until we've learned that c-a-t spells "cat." Water is still made up of oxygen and hydrogen, but today we prove it in our schools by making water instead of reading about it. There's no good reason that religion should not undergo a similar metamorphosis.

Thomas H. Uzzell, college professor, literary critic, and author, tells in the winter edition of his Blue Pencil Bulletin of a boy who wrote thus when asked by his teacher to compose a bit of dramatic poetry:

"A boy was walking down the track,
The train was coming fast;
The boy stepped off the railroad track
To let the train go past."

The teacher, observes Mr. Uzzell, complained that there was nothing dramatic in those lines and urged the boy to try again. He chewed his pencil for a bit, then wrote:

"A boy was walking down the track,
The train was coming fast;
The train jumped off the railroad track
To let the boy go past."

It isn't, of course, quite cricket for a Christian teacher or writer to change the facts to make his work dramatic; but all too often he ignores the drama that he has readily at hand. Hack writers took the boy, the train, and the railroad track and made old-fashioned melodramas from them; today, it's quite as easy to take a nail, Sisera, and Jael and make something just as dramatic as any play that ever caused hair to rise on Bowery heads.

Jesus made drama out of His religion. He spent no long hours telling His apostles of Hebrew grammar, of which they probably knew little; He wasted no moments lecturing the world on the witch of Endor and the precise meaning of Mosaic turns of speech. He borrowed stories from the folk tales of the day—and folk tales are only fiction—and taught His gospel with those tales as illustration.

Paul, when he sought to convert those who knew nothing of the Bible, threw no minutes to the winds in discoursing on the fine points of the Psalms. Indeed, in his chief recorded sermon that was delivered to the heathen who were not familiar with his creed, he quoted nothing but a heathen poet. And he converted a considerable number. To the Jews, he spoke of Moses; to the Greeks, he spoke of their philosophers and playwrights.

Which, it appears to me, is a pretty good example for modern church leaders to emulate.

Religion can be made as dry as dust, or it can be made as sparkling, as attractive, as dramatic, as any story about Wild Bill Hickok or Ben Hur. It is our job—the job of writers, speakers, teachers, laymen—to make Christianity as attractive, as appealing, as it can possibly be made.

Henry van Dyke did make it appealing in The Story of the Other Wise Man. A newspaper man and author made it appealing in The Fool Hath Said. Harry Emerson Fosdick made his modernism appealing in such slang-filled books as The Power to See It Through.

Why do current magazines carry such columns as O. O. McIntyre's, as "It's the Law," as "Keeping Up With the World"? For precisely the same reason that THE HERALD runs the Berean Department, the Children's Page, "The Walrus Speaks" (adv.). Magazines could be filled with ordinary text; THE HERALD could be filled with ordinary articles. But something different, something aimed at a variety of groups, something calculated to strike at the ones who never would read the paper otherwise, must be included in any successful journal's menu. If you like one portion of a paper, eventually you come to read part of the rest.

The same principle applies equally to teaching, preaching, singing, to anything in life. All students won't be interested in knowing that "Word" in John 1:1 comes from Logos, any more than all students will be interested in knowing that the Aztec story of creation closely parallels the Hebrew story. Some will enjoy arias and oratorios; others will want hymns in four-four time with a tune they can beat out on the back of the pew in front. All this is dramatizing religion—anything unusual, anything out of the normal run of events, has the elements of drama. One needn't be an Omar Khayyam or a Homer to be a dramatist.

Variety, however, is the spites of life. Flaunt a touch of humor in front of the humorless, and it's like waving a red flag in front of Hitler. Bandy three-syllable words about in a congregation accustomed to thinking in monosyllables, and you may as well have waved the swastika at Stalin. Sing arias to an audience used to the simpler ditties, and you'll gather yourself nothing but censure. And, on the other hand, omit the humor for the humorous, the three-syllable words for the bibliophile, the arias for the music-lovers, and you'll be just as ineffective as before.

Religious education must be aimed at all groups. You can't shoot elephants with a shotgun. Neither can you capture individuals for the church without dramatizing religion in their customary language. Consider:

The preacher had preached a sermon. It was, he thought, a pretty good sermon. He had had it full of illustrations. He had painted pictures. He had drawn diagrams. He was well pleased with himself. Came a member of the congregation, and said:

"What d'you mean, talking about 'growing pains,' anyway? Everybody knows there's no such thing."

The critic was a doctor. The audience, all but one of it, had swallowed the sermon, enjoyed the sermon, probably forgotten the sermon. Most sermons are forgotten. But the doctor thought in terms of medicine, and for him there was no such thing as growing pains. Religion had not been dramatized for him; it had only been made ridiculous.

And if a teacher or a preacher or a writer spoke of mounting a horse from the right side, some of his audience might take it, but not the horseman. The leader's facts have to be accurate, or they are not dramatic.

The problem, thus, of religious education is one to be solved only by individual preference. One may work best in the small town, in the country; another may be suited to the city. One may work with an educated congregation, or write for an educated class; another may focus his attention on the less educated. But each one must, if he is to be successful in his work, learn to dramatize religion in the terms of the group he is best qualified to reach. Few can be, as Paul was, "all things to all men."

Then and Now

THAT the reaction to the preaching of the gospel is the same today as it was in the days of the apostles is plainly shown when we study the book of Acts and note the division it caused then compared to now. In Acts 14 we learn that Paul and Barnabas finished their work in Antioch in a great storm. They were even driven out of that part of the country. Can this be true? The Word of God causing a peaceful city to be divided into a hostile camp? It would seem to us that this should not be so, but our reasoning is faulty. "The Son of man came not to bring peace upon the earth, but a sword." So these disciples shook the dust off their feet after finishing their work there, and came into Iconium.

Ah, now that they have escaped the persecution in Antioch and entered this peaceful city of Iconium, surely they will act differently—they have learned that speaking so plainly makes enemies and causes persecution. We correct ourselves by our mistakes, so they will be careful not to make enemies. But not so with these Spirit-filled men. They speak boldly in the Lord! And in speaking boldly they have caused this beautiful city to be divided. Yes, angry division where unanimity reigned.

We find some organizations boasting that they are in unanimity as though that were a virtue. But there is no more virtue in unanimity than in sincerity; and we read that Saul was very sincere while persecuting the church. We may be very sincere and very wrong at the same time. Was it not a shame for these two tent-makers to go around disturbing the unanimity of families and villages? Why not say, "Sleep on and take your rest"? Why preach this fighting Christianity? Why? Because this is the way of Christianity; it saves or it slays; there is no middle ground; it does not compromise; it does not give a little and take a little; it makes no concession. Christianity insists on having everything—it fills the whole mind, soul, and heart. No wonder it breaks up homes and sets father against son and mother against daughter. Christianity comes as with a great iron hammer and shatters all our old idols. It puts everything else out, for it has no partners. Yes, Christianity exposes us to dangers and persecutions. If we have escaped these we have escaped the service. We may be lulled to sleep by some theological narcotic, and be in the Laodicean condition. We may be spued out because of lack of knowledge. "If any man will live godly in Christ Jesus, he shall suffer persecution." You may not be driven out of the country; you may not be stoned with real stones, but you may be stoned with words which are just as soul-destroying as the real article—if you cannot stand persecution.

"The multitude of the city was divided, and part held with the Jews, and part with the apostles." This is how it will always be when truth is preached as Paul preached. And we would have multitudes of followers, too, and persecution. You say you cannot preach? If a thousand men would stand in a thousand different places and read John 3 it would do its own preaching. The Bible says, Read me and you will gain faith—I'll do the work if you will only read. But perhaps you do not feel called to do even this, and still want to preach, want to help, want to have a hand in the work intrusted to Christ's followers. You can help those who are preaching.

Christian service survives ill-treatment. Paul and Barnabas finished their work at Iconium by being stoned. They were not killed, so they fled to Lystra and Derbe. Did they quit preaching now? No, they acted as if nothing had happened, for we read that "there they preached the gospel." They preached better for their stoning, their persecution. We would have some wonderful preaching now had we more persecution. And we would have some wonderful listening, too, if we had to steal into the church by some back door. We would then all be anxious to go, and every word read from the Word of God would be a precious jewel. It is so easy now to hear the Bible read, that it has become commonplace, and is not cherished as it should be.

Paul and Barnabas were considered heretics. Where are our heretics today? Where are our Pauls and our Barnabases with some new doctrine that causes us to sit up and wonder? Who can tell where orthodoxy leaves off and heterodoxy begins? These two words have caused much trouble in the church by their mischief-makers. Yes, self-appointed men have caused division in the church by proclaiming that part of the church was not orthodox, and to reach that higher plane of Christianity the saints should follow them. Just what was the trouble with Paul? It was this: He said a prophecy was fulfilled before their eyes that the Jews said was still future. Yes, an interpretation of prophecy! Who was right? The heretic according to the Word! How like today! Let us make room for every man who has a spotless character and says he has a message for us—has some new light on the Scripture. Let us sit down with him and study. Christian doctrine has yet its issues brighter than our fancy conceives. God has more light for us and we should not despise it. So let us sit down with the heretic and see if new light is forthcoming.

Paul and Barnabas performed many miracles. Where are our miracles today? Had we men today in which miracles had been performed we would have many more miracles before our eyes. Paul was formerly a man who persecuted the church, but when a miracle was performed in him he went out and performed likewise. Peter healed the lame man at the Beautiful Gate of the temple, but not until a miracle had been performed in him. True conversion is nothing less than a miracle. A man may tell of performing miracles or having them performed in his behalf, but this is not necessarily a sign that he is a man of God, for Satan will have lying wonders to follow his gospel of hate. To claim that his organization are keepers of the commandments is not a sign that it is the true church, for Satan will have a church so near the true as to deceive the very elect if possible. Then how may we know who is a man of God?

"To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them," says the Word (Isa. 8:20). If a man comes to your house or to the church to which you have recourse and proclaims Christ and Him only, you may feel sure he is from God. He will love his brethren, he will love the sinner, he will love them who differ with him in Bible interpretation, he will not slander nor cast reflections on anyone. He will not try to influence you to follow him, but will persuade you to follow Christ. He will not boast of his organization being the only true church because it is in unity, but will proclaim what Christ has done for you. We have many organizations that boast of their great work for the Lord, saying, "We have done many wonderful works in thy name," but the Lord will say, "I never knew you." This boasting of unanimity and great works is a sure sign of self-satisfaction. The true church of God will be a humble church, and instead of proclaiming its great work it is proclaiming the great work Christ did for it. Self always tries to forward self, and a Christian always tries to forward Christ. Too many ministers try to get people to join the church instead of Christ, to make the church numerically strong instead of spiritually strong. Too many are going about today trying to obtain candidates for their organization on the ground of its being a duplicate of the original founded while Christ was on earth, but in reality it is a counterfeit and built upon a foundation of sand. Paul and Barnabas were not trying to tear down the church and build anew, for Paul plainly warns against this very thing in Acts 20, and says that some within the church will thus do. Self-appointed leaders of the church have done more harm to the work of the church than all the atheists. From within have come the grievous wolves in sheep's clothing trying to scatter the flock. Christ's words were, "Feed the church of God," not scatter it.

Unity in the essentials, liberty in the non-essentials, and charity in all things. "Charity never faileth."—A. S. Christenson in The Bible Advocate.

Is the Social Gospel Practicable?

"HOW can a man in my position put into my business the ethics of Jesus?" asked the man in the back of the hall. "Why, I'd be ruined in a month."

The speaker, addressing a meeting in the south of England, had been discoursing on the social teachings of our Lord, especially as they are set forth in the Sermon on the Mount. In the English custom, one of the audience had stood in his place and put the question. He went on to this effect: "If I were to carry out this social ethic—sell with absolute honesty, give others the benefit of doubts, pay employees a really decent wage—my competitors with lower costs and lower prices would soon drive me out of business."

What shall we answer? For this is a common situation and a common problem. There are, of course, many concerns, both corporate and private, which are certainly receiving unfairly large profits and therefore may be properly held to account for low wages and unfair practices. But there are thousands of Christian business men in such a situation as the Englishman described. Their businesses are small and competition is heavy. They are barely making a living as it is, and though they may desire to pay higher wages and in other ways practice Christian ethics, they feel that the road is not open.

The English thinker who, from his own experience, relates the foregoing story, proposes a sort of temporary compromise ethics, in view of the present situation. Since we cannot go all the way with Jesus in this thing, he suggests that we go as far as we can, still holding our ideal before us. But we instinctively feel that such a compromise position is basically unsatisfactory, and we cannot seriously entertain that solution.

WHAT DID OUR LORD MEAN?

But did Jesus mean for us to take His teaching literally? May we not be going too far in our very idealism? Must we not allow for Oriental hyperbole in the Sermon on the Mount? To some degree this is true, of course. We are not to give to everyone who asks, and then the cloak as well as the coat, nor are we never to offer resistance to any who attack us. Certainly our Lord intended us to use our common sense, perhaps our poetic sense, in interpreting His words. But our tendency is to explain away His teaching. We easily reject thoughtless literalism in this matter, but fail to find the positive meaning. The basic principle, "Love thy neighbour as thyself," involves no hyperbole; it is to be taken quite literally. And there is no denying that our Lord expects us to go far beyond mere decency, that honesty which is regarded as "the best policy," that "service" which is only a means of increasing confidence, good will—and cash receipts. "What do ye more than others?" Our Lord's question is clear and simple, and it brings us again to our problem: is such a life of self-denial and unselfish love practicable in business?

Let us make a double answer. First, such a life is practicable, but not profitable. That is, it is not economically profitable. Parallel with our Lord's demands that we live unselfishly, in recognition of other personalities as of equal value with our own, is His call to surrender the search for wealth. To follow Him means to leave all. So the business man who is determined to be truly Christian must wholly surrender his goal of wealth. It is not wrong to seek wealth, but no man can seek wealth and wholly love others at the same time. It is not wrong to possess wealth, if the Lord see fit to prosper a man, but wealth must not be his goal. As far as I can see, our Lord will not even have a man seek wealth so far as he can without injuring or robbing others, for then his attitude toward other persons is rather one of passive non-injury than of positive helpfulness. "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself"; if this cannot be rendered, "Thou shalt seek thy neighbor's economic welfare equally with thine own," what under heaven does it mean? Of course, every man must tend to his own affairs, for only thus can he properly serve society; it is the aim, the goal, that we are thinking of.

But there is more than this. Our Lord had no place to lay His head, and He offers a no more comfortable life to His disciples. He offers us only a cross. And so the business man who would be Christian must take up his cross—the cross of sacrifice, of suffering, perhaps of poverty. He must surrender the goal of wealth, but he must also accept the life of simplicity. Most of us are ready to be generous and unselfish—as long as our homes are comfortably furnished and our pantries well filled. Can that business man count himself Christian who requires three or five thousand dollars a year, while his clerk supports a family on two thousand or fifteen hundred dollars or less? Is he loving his clerk as himself? A strangely impractical love, if so! If we are to live as Jesus calls us to live, many of us will have to revise downward our ideas of a decent standard of living—for ourselves. We cannot follow Jesus without sacrifice, but most of us have never learned the meaning of that word. We bear our cross—a cross which might be lifted with one hand! Yes, the truly Christian business life is practicable, but not profitable, and there is no use of our attempting it unless we are ready to go hungry and be cold at times. We might as well face it out.

The second part of our answer is this: the social ethics of Jesus are practicable, but only by faith. Parallel with His ethical teachings is His call to a life of faith, to dependence upon God for our material needs. We are to cease our search for wealth, we are even to cease our anxiety about daily bread, and we are to trust our God for "all these things." We have seen missionaries like Hudson Taylor live such a life of faith. We have seen George Muller care for two thousand children by faith. We see numerous examples of this life around us today, and we are thrilled with the narrative of God's care, of many remarkable deliverances in the hour of need. Strange that we have not applied these lessons to the life of the ordinary layman. If a missionary or minister may go about his work, seeking to do it efficiently for the sake of God and men rather than of selfish gain, and quietly trusting God for daily bread, why may not the Christian business man do the same thing? We call upon him in secular pursuits to do his work as unto God and not unto man; why should he not look for his livelihood to God rather than to man, to divine promise rather than to human efficiency? Indeed, only by such a life can he carry fully into practice the social ethics of Jesus. If in business a man is determined to love his neighbor as himself, and love practically, not only must he give up his goal for wealth, not only must he be ready for sacrifice or even poverty, but, humanly speaking, he faces actual starvation—he and his family. To follow Jesus in this matter is to deliberately throw overboard reliance upon ordinary human means of support. And this is only possible when a man is really trusting God to supply his daily needs. Whether God supplies him through the normal return of his business or through other channels is not here pertinent; he must let God use what channel He will, and simply trust Him. That is the life to which our Lord calls us—or the Gospels are merely pious platitudes.

So the social gospel is practicable, but only when linked with the parallel teachings of our Lord concerning the life of the cross and the life of faith. That means that it is only practicable for the man who is a believer in Jesus Christ. The social gospel has no direct application to the unbeliever or to the world, except in so far as its basic principle of the value of personality is fundamental to all ethics. Therefore, while we are false to our Lord, if we do not proclaim His social ethics, we are missing the point if we divorce that teaching from the evangel of salvation through Christ and the life of the cross and of faith to which He bids us. For a man can live out the social gospel only in connection with a life of holiness, of devotion to Christ, and of whole-hearted faith.—R. Banes Anderson, Jr., in The Presbyterian.

HIGH PRESSURE IN THE BIBLE BELT

(Continued from Page Five)

into Egypt, guarded by an angel. By the way, did you ever notice that nearly all pictures of angels are women? Here is Mary with a mother's fondness watching Him learn the carpenter's trade. (Turn to the picture entitled "Go, Sin No More.") You see here it was through a woman that Christ taught the great lesson of compassion . . ."

After more of this, the salesman is due to remark that of course religion means much to men but it means everything to women, for in some homes where there is no Bible or religion, men make slaves of their wives. He attempts to wind up the sale quickly, gets as large a deposit as possible, and obeys the soundest rule of any type of selling by getting off the premises instantly.

If the harassed Mrs. Jones says that she is afraid her husband won't give her the money to pay for the book, it is the duty of the salesman to show her how she can pay for it, say, by selling chickens, butter, and eggs. If she is still reluctant, he turns to the picture of "The Widow's Mite" and says in a moving voice: "Mrs. Jones, this poor widow sacrificed all she had for the Lord. Now, if she could do that, don't you think you should sacrifice the small amount of $5 for this Bible?"

Salesmen usually get some emotional reaction from women by unconsciously bringing to mind a long-dead son or girlhood lover. One struggling fellow in Indiana was adopted and educated by a wealthy woman he met when he tapped on her door; she was interested in him at once because he bore a striking resemblance to her son who had been killed in the World War. Whenever the salesman talks to a woman who sees in him some fleeting likeness to an absent loved one, he is always certain of a sale.

The easiest person to sell is one who can neither read nor write. It is well substantiated that 5 per cent of all Bibles bought in Southern States from house-to-house canvassers go to illiterates. The Bible houses encourage business with these people and show salesmen how to get it. Upon meeting a prospect who admits he cannot read, the salesman must imagine incidents where the absence of a Bible might embarrass the man—the visit of the minister, for instance. Or the neighbors are often in the house discussing the Bible and religion, and the illiterate could learn a good deal if he got one of the neighbors to read to him. Besides, the children in the family ought to have a Bible. The sales ritual calls for him to wind up thus:

"In fact, I claim that every man ought to have a wife, a gun, a dog, a baby, a Bible, and a hymnbook in his home, even if he has nothing else." The salesman recalls the handwriting on the wall at Belshazzar's feast. Neither the King nor the wise men of Babylon could read the handwriting on the wall. But Daniel read and interpreted the writing because he had the spirit of God in him, which shows that worldly wisdom is not enough to interpret spiritual matters.

A Bible salesman in Alabama last summer found he was meeting with an almost miraculous lack of sales resistance among Negro farmers. He discovered that the belief was current among Negroes that misfortune would dog the steps of any colored man who refused to buy the Holy Book! One in Mississippi sold eight Bibles in a Negro family and when he came back in September to collect he found that not one of his customers could read. Moreover, they couldn't count. He was directed to the bureau drawer, and while the buyers crowded around, he counted out the money. It is common for the salesman to book orders on the condition that he will, upon delivery, write in the book the family record of births, deaths, and marriages.

We even went after the atheist with a talk which began by asking him if it would be possible to live in a community where the Bible is unknown. We cited the Jukes and the Edwardses as examples of environment as well as heredity. We stressed the necessity for authentic records in family Bibles and we always related, from the files of our company, how a woman in Oklahoma lost a pension because she didn't have a family Bible to prove her marriage to a war veteran.

After using all the tactics laid out in our manual, there is still plenty of range for ingenuity. One boy made enough during a summer to keep himself in college for the remainder of his course by deliberately disturbing busy people. Finding a farmer at his plow, he would spread out his samples invitingly in the shade and take over the plowing, while the farmer examined the books at leisure. He sold 95 per cent of those he canvassed.

Another salesman donated a pulpit Bible retailing at $20 to a church on the condition that its members buy three hundred Bibles at $2 each. The pulpit Bible really cost him 40 per cent less than $20; hence at a net expense of $12, he obtained $600 worth of business which paid him $240 in commissions—and he won a handsome bonus from his house, also.

Bible sales were up 20 per cent in the house-to-house field this past summer. Members of my crew made last-minute sales perched on ladders in tobacco warehouses to farmers on near by ladders hanging up their golden harvest. A crew invaded a Pennsylvania coal mine and sold miners deep in the pits. A salesman in dry Alabama found he could make sales in almost every instance to known bootleggers, because the bootlegger was eager to get the salesman off the premises before he saw too much.

We were all pretty philosophical about our sales, no matter how we made them. The man who buys a Bible is getting something that will do him no harm and may do him a lot of good. And my earnings are aiding materially in my present year at college. Many a business and professional man owes his education to selling Bibles. The freshman who is successful generally sticks to Bible selling during his four-year course. He usually can earn more than at any other part-time employment. He may become a crew manager and earn over $100 a week.

In view of the fact that 134,000,000 Bibles have been distributed in this country by one agency alone, you might suppose that every American family has a Bible. But only last year a colporteur visited 8,062 families in a prosperous upstate New York town and found that one fifth of these families had never owned one. In the heart of the South, ministers conducting a house-to-house canvass found that more than 10 per cent of the population had no Bibles. Although eighty thousand are distributed in the world each day, the saturation point seems never to be approached. For many years one house has sold steadily in the tobacco regions of North Carolina $40,000 worth of Bibles each week of the summer season. Alert student salesmen continue to earn from $500 to $2,000 in commissions during the summer in regions which have been worked persistently every year since the Civil War.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from Page Three)

something or all about it. That it was not set up at that time is clearly taught by Luke 19:11, 12; Acts 1:6. How foolish to ask Christ, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6) if such had been set up before His death and resurrection.

Our attention is called to Revelation 1:9 by those who contend that the kingdom was set up on the "day of Pentecost" (Acts 2:1), and it is full of meaning for those who read to understand. John said, "I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ." Even those who use this text to prove that the church is in the kingdom do not admit all that they claim the text teaches. The text may appear to teach that there will be tribulation in the kingdom for the called and exalted church, but other Scripture forbids such a view, as in Acts 14:22, where Paul declares, "We must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God." Revelation 1:9 teaches me that whether John was in tribulation or in the kingdom, he was still a brother to those in Christ.

Another text that is relied on to prove that the church is now the kingdom is Colossians 1:13, and reads, "Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son." We have a similar passage in Luke 16:16, which reads, "The law and the prophets were until John: since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it." Here a preparatory work was being done, and the kingdom was still in its preached state, or prophecy. And you will note that the word "into" comes from the root word eis and always means prospective. The Greek word eis is also translated "into" in Colossians 1:13. If it is prospective, looking forward in Luke 16:16, it teaches the same thought in the other case. Notice the way the Emphatic Diaglott renders Colossians 1:13: "Who delivered us from the dominion of darkness, and changed us for (eis) the kingdom of the Son of his love." We have been translated from darkness and placed in Christ, and therein we are being prepared and qualified for the kingdom of God for which we pray, "Thy kingdom come" (Matt. 6:10).

All Scripture points to the second coming of Jesus Christ, when we will see the kingdom established in power and great glory; then we will see Him on His throne, and before Him all nations gathered (Matt. 25:31, 32). May that day find us ready and prepared to enter upon the great work that will be before Him. He comes to judge the earth, to cleanse the earth of its sin and forever banish therefrom those kingdoms that have brought wreck and ruin and oppression to the people of the earth.

IT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED TO YOU

(Continued from Front Page)

Then there were his college days to be remembered as he sat upon his narrow cot shut in by the stone walls of his cell.

But last week he went out a free man. And yet not a free man, for he was bound more firmly, he was fettered more closely, he was imprisoned more completely and more finally than he had ever been before. For now he had been arrested and imprisoned by death—death which came by a murderer's hand and which reached him within those towering prison walls!

No weeping mourners followed the black car in which he rode forth from the gates of the prison where the lights are dim and the shadows grim into that other prison where in the sun never shines and to which no man holds the key!

Yes! It might have happened to you, or it might have happened to me, or it might have happened to your boy, or it might have happened to my boy, but for the grace of the Lord our God!

Let us put it another way:

But by the grace and goodness of our loving Father in heaven it might have been you, or it might have been I, who is sitting today with his head bowed in bitterest sorrow, shame, and agony, striving to forget the awful thing that has befallen his own loved son! But for the grace of God that might have been.

Mothers—fathers—when you go home this day go down upon your knees in gratitude to God that you have been spared such a happening as this!

Let me ask you:

Is it worth your while to keep your boy—your girl—in Sunday school and under the protecting influence of the church? Is it worth your while to support and to encourage in this community, for your own protection and for the protection of your children, the one institution whose sole duty and purpose in the world is to help you keep your loved ones in the pathway of virtue and to aid you in planting within their hearts the seeds of truth that will grow and blossom and bear fruit to their temporal and eternal good and to your praise and lasting joy? Are the church, the Sunday school, the Berean society, and the Christian home—the agencies through which the grace of God is made available to us and to our children—worth the effort and the sacrifice we put forth to maintain them?

I leave to you the answer to the question.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Appreciation

Your Berean society is made up of persons with differing personalities. There are times when I must grate horribly on some one else's nerves—that is, unless we all make a big effort to overlook one another's faults. Yet as noble Bereans we must make that effort, for it is the Bible admonition: "Speak not evil one of another, brethren" (James 4:11). And there is a "do" to put in the place of it: "If there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Phil. 4:8).

Your Berean society has a Great Mission in the church. We are Soldiers in a common Cause. We are Members of a Great Body, Locals of a mighty Organization. We are an automobile going up a hill. How can we ever get to the top if a tire goes flat or a wheel comes off? We need the tires, the wheels, the cylinders. We all need you, and what you do.

They say, "A rotten apple will spoil the whole box." It works the other way, too. Apples will take a high polish. Flowers become more lovely under encouragement. There comes a glow of satisfaction into the heart of the recipient of honest praise. That glow kindles into the fires of greater accomplishment.

I can say all this because you have sent messages of encouragement to me to pat me on the back. I tell you, my friend: Your message has helped me. I am humbly thankful for your appreciation. With the help of our Lord, I am going to try harder to say that which will do the most good in our Common Cause.

Ours

"Grace, mercy, and peace, from God our Father and Jesus Christ our Lord" (1 Tim. 1:2). This makes a good New Year's salutation. Notice that the word "our" is found here twice. It is found in the preceding verse, the first verse of the Letter, also. "God our Saviour, and Lord Jesus Christ, our hope." As the Father and the Son belong to Paul and Timothy, so They belong to you and to me.

The Father is the Author of things as they are. He is the Giver of life. But He placed the human race in the family of Adam. His own family must be entered by being "born again." To enter the family of God one must follow the same process as for the natural birth, except that the process is spiritual. We are begotten when the seed, the Word of God, is planted in us. Our minds are "born again" when our aims in life change from the carnal to the spiritual and we are baptized. The marginal translation of "born again," in John 3:3, is "born from above." Truly the rebirth comes from the Father above. But there must come also the rebirth of the body in resurrection. When that has happened, then truly we can say we are clear out of the family of Adam and into the family of God.

But in thinking of that sweet fellowship of the future, let us not neglect to enjoy the fellowship of the present. Enjoy your brothers and sisters in Christ. Meditate upon the godly characters of your fellow children of God. Rejoice.

The Father and the Son do not belong to any one of us. They are "ours."

You As an Example

Being a Christian to be pointed to with joy does not necessarily mean that you must be an old and seasoned veteran of years of service. Christianity is not a matter of natural age but of the spiritual. Youth and even comparative newcomers into the family of God can have and do have the mind of Christ. "Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity" (1 Tim. 4:12).

Whether you realize it or not, you are constantly influencing others. Suppose all of you together go to services when the weather is stormy. You know, there are times when it is so easy to let little things keep us home. But people make special efforts even when the weather is stormy if a temporary blessing is at stake. Now the bystander seeing so many of you out in spite of the nasty weather will think: "Well, I see where their heart is." And he will further think: "If it is worth that much to them, it must be desirable for me. I will be a Christian." So you see that your presence together with the other members of the family of God has had an influence on eternity.

You can have an influence for good on others just by yourself, as a Lone Ranger. But your greatest opportunity for service comes when you unite with others and have concerted action. You know, it was just one straw too many that broke the camel's back. Nay, was it not rather the lacking by the camel of a small fraction of an ounce of enough strength? Without little drops of water Niagara could not exist. Where is the resistless force of the church without you? What would Christ be without followers? You are needed.

Bro. M. W. Lyon said: "Suggestion for exercise of faith: Company over Sunday; can't attend church. But why? Is there any reason in the world why they shouldn't come with you? Why should they feel any more disgraced going to church with you than to a show or on a motor trip? If your friends do not hesitate to visit your home on the day of worship and keep you from church when they should be there themselves, you needn't feel any qualms about asking them to suit their calls to your habits of worship. We have some members who use this plan, and it works."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world."

WHY JESUS PERFORMED MIRACLES

ALL of you girls and boys who read this page each week will, I know, study your Sunday school lesson each week, as well. The things that we are learning about Jesus this quarter are so interesting, each lesson is so full of action, that I'm sure you will want to know what is going to happen next.

These events are concerned with the greatest Man that ever lived. No one can even compare with Jesus, much less excel Him. And they were all written down for our learning, so that we, too, might benefit from them, even as the people did with whom Jesus walked and talked so long ago.

Just because Jesus is not on earth now to do those loving deeds and speak those wonderful words, doesn't mean that we are left out. No, indeed! Didn't Jesus tell Thomas that he was blessed because he saw and believed, but how much more would those be blessed who did not see and yet would believe?

That includes you and me, if we will believe. For one day, perhaps soon, Jesus will come to earth again, and He will be looking for those who have faith in Him. Then it is they will receive their blessing.

And now to the stories for this week. Some one has said that the miracles of Jesus are the window through which we look at the heart of God. And that is true, isn't it? Seeing Jesus performing these acts of mercy we realize what sort of Father He had. For He came to show us His Father.

Every sight of helplessness, suffering, or sin moved Jesus' heart to pity, we know. And realizing the power He possessed within Himself, He could not refuse to heal anyone who came across His pathway.

But we think His first purpose in performing these deeds was to plant faith in Himself in the hearts and minds of those near by. For if they didn't have faith in Him they would turn a deaf ear to His message. And He had a life-giving message for them.

The healing of those who were ill or lame was a most gracious thing for Him to do, but the power of the gospel, when once it took hold of their lives, was a much greater. Nothing could compare to it.

Now turn to the lesson and see what Jesus did in John 5. Can you see in your mind the picture of the man who had been crippled for thirty-eight years? Can you see all the other cripples pushing or being carried ahead of him to this pool which was supposed to have healing qualities?

How discouraged the man had grown. Never would he be able to get to the pool first! But one day a Stranger spoke to him and asked him if he desired very much to be healed.

What could he answer? Of course he did! That was why year after year he waited his chance to get to the healing waters.

Did Jesus say, "I'll carry you and put you in next time the angel troubles the water"?

No! all He said was, "Rise, take up thy bed, and walk."

Immediately the man arose, picked up his bed, and walked. Just like that! The one who hadn't walked a step for thirty-eight years arose and walked at Jesus' word.

Wasn't that something like God creating the sun, moon, and stars, just by speaking the word? Could anyone who watched Jesus heal this lame man help but have faith in Him and His Father?

But there were some who didn't and who tried to kill Jesus for that kind act. You will have to read on in the chapter to find out about them. We can't think that such people existed, can we?

The second story of our lesson for the week is found in John 6. It is a story that I believe every one of you could tell me without looking. For it is one of the first stories told to little boys and girls of all the Bible stories.

If Jesus should come to earth today He would find many hungry people, wouldn't He? It would be a very great thing for Him to visit every needy home this winter and fill the empty pantry shelves while the tired fathers and mothers and the hungry little children sleep.

But, do you see, it would be a very much greater thing for these same fathers and mothers and children to believe in Jesus, obey Him, and trust Him and His Father? For even though Jesus should fill their empty cupboards, they would soon be empty again.

If they believed the gospel with all their hearts and obeyed it, they would have a faith that would go with them to cheer them every day of their lives. And burdens can be borne so much more bravely if we have faith and hope and love in our hearts.

Look further on in the chapter to see what the people wanted to do to Jesus after this miracle. It was quite a different thing from the other.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

THE MISSION BOARD

Now that the Christmas festivities are over let us stop and "take stock." How much have we given to Him for whom we celebrated or pretended to celebrate?

Twenty-four were killed in Detroit over the three-day Christmas week-end. Drunk and reckless drivers were blamed.

I am reminded of the time Christ cast the devils out of the demoniac of Gadara and sent them into the swine and the swine ran down into the sea and were drowned. The people of the city "besought him, that he would depart out of their coasts." They would rather have their hogs than to have their people free from the power of the Devil. The people of the United States would rather have their hilarious times with strong drink than to have their people free from the peril of the drunk driver.

If all the money that was spent during the holidays for things that harm, had been spent for the cause of Christ, no one can estimate the good that would have been done.

I am not meaning to intimate that our people are given to undue extravagance at this season of the year, especially for strong drink. I just wanted to call attention to the "perilous" ("exceeding fierce," same Greek word so rendered in Matt. 8:28) times" in which we live, as a reminder that the time of "our redemption draweth nigh."

I know that many of our people put the Lord's work first. I knew a family some years ago, that, if anyone came to visit them on Sunday morning, would say, "We have to go to Sunday school and church. We would be pleased to have you go with us, but if you don't want to go, just stay here and we will be back as quickly as possible." It wasn't long till they had no Sunday visitors except those that came home with them from church. You may say that that doesn't happen today. O yes, it does. I know a family of which the mother sleeps, but the father and daughter and the daughter's husband carry on, and neither company nor invitations keep them from any of the activities of the church, even choir practice. How many of us are as true to God's work?

I have gone a long way round to get to my point, but I hope that these observations will stir us up to greater activities in the Lord's work.

Perhaps some have questioned the meaning of the term "Mission Board." In explanation let me say that our intentions are to confine our efforts within the confines of the General Conference—home mission work. Besides doing evangelistic work we would like to help weak groups till they could become self-supporting. How much it would mean to our work, if the many small groups that exist among us were converted into self-supporting churches.

This is a large program and it will take a good deal of money to carry it out, but I know there are many that would like to see it accomplished. Will you help us?

Send all money to M. W. Lyon, 13517 Darley Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. Send names of workers and places where work is needed to James A. Patrick, Secretary, Ashland, Ohio.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE

The Northwest Conference will hold its next meeting February 5-7 at Corvallis, Ore.

We expect two interesting speakers to be present.

A hearty invitation is extended to all to come and worship with us.

Gladys Barber, Secretary.

MACOMB, ILLINOIS

Bros. F. L. Austin and J. W. McLain will begin a series of evangelistic meetings at Macomb, Jan. 17, in the Moose Lodge Hall, half block west of Square.

These meetings, as have been those previously held by these two men during the past several months, are sponsored by the Illinois State Conference. Anyone desiring to help in the State evangelistic efforts, send your contributions to Miss Leota B. Hanson, our treasurer, 1491 Laurel St., St. Louis, Mo.

Paul C. Johnson, President.

CELEBRATE 52ND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Bro. and Sr. J. H. Williams of Rochelle, Ill., celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary Friday, Jan. 8, 1937. The Rochelle Leader carried a fine reproduction of a photograph of the young couple which was taken in their own home, on the front page of the paper last week.

Bro. and Sr. Williams ("Father and Mother" to the editor and his wife), like their parents before them, have stood faithfully and generously in support of the gospel for many years. We are grateful for their devotion and for the influence for good which they have exerted on the lives of many others.

Bro. Williams is second vice president of the National Bible Institution, an office which he has held for six years.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

Early Tuesday morning, Dec. 29, our church family and the whole community were shocked by the accident which occurred to Bro. Joseph Holland. En route to work his car was struck by a train. The car was completely demolished and thrown 93 feet, while Joe himself was found more than 100 feet up the right-of-way. The injuries were mostly head injuries, and it is marvelous to be able to say that there is gradual improvement each day in his condition and actual hope is now held out for his recovery. He was unconscious practically all of the time the first week, but is gradually having rational moments when he knows people. Will the brotherhood join the local church in prayers for his recovery? This is a case where doctors can do practically nothing. Nature and careful nursing with the help of God are all that can save him.

After the shake-up of the regular schedule caused by the holidays, we are now back on routine, and the various departments are moving along well.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

FINANCIAL REPORT FOR 1936

Although no effort is here being made to present a detailed report of the finances of the National Bible Institution, these are the salient facts. Figures and their interpretation cover the usual fiscal year of January 1 to December 31, and ignore Golden Rule Home, which is actually, if not legally, a private enterprise.

Contributions to all funds were, in 1936, $1,579.45 less than in the year preceding. Despite the fact that business conditions during 1936 were fully at their 1926 level, contributed income of the Institution measured $2,304.16 less in 1936 than in 1926, this in spite of drives for evangelistic purposes and lifting of indebtedness, both of which accounted for approximately $1,000 of the 1936 contributions. Specifically, the figures are these:

Contributions, 1926, $5,582.47; 1935, $4,857.76; 1936, $3,278.31.

This decline in donated income has been marked for some years. As depression has lifted, contributions have rapidly become smaller and fewer in number. Contrariwise, farm income has returned, in much of the country, to high peaks, although drought has cut seriously into the farm income of some sections. Living expenses for urbanites have risen; but this rise has been compensated for by the fact that many formerly jobless now have employment at fair wages.

It is obvious that some remedy must be found for this rapid decrease in contributed income, or the National Bible Institution will be forced into serious curtailment of its services to the church.

In the publishing department, there always is a loss. The Restitution Herald, exclusive of editorial costs, ran up a deficit for 1936 of $1,427.97, somewhat smaller than average. By the time editorial and printing costs are computed on the Truth Seekers' Quarterly, approximately equal figures will be indicated for that.

Book, Sunday school and church supply, and job printing sales served partially to compensate for the loss in general income. Profits on sales amounted to approximately $1,750. Owing to the lack of an adequate cost accounting system, no exact profit and loss figure can be obtained for this department.

Without exception, salaries continued well below 1931 levels. For 1936, they amounted to $4,183.98, and were distributed among four regular and six part-time employees. The printing department (one regular, four part-time employees) accounted for $1,817.74; the office staff (three regular, two part-time employees), for $2,366.24.

Interest accrued at the rate of $1,049.00 for the year. Only a small portion of this could be paid. This accrual, which occurs annually, must be taken into consideration when methods for lifting the debt of the Institution are discussed.

The total loss for the Institution for the year, after deducting all forms of income from all forms of expense, was $913.89.

Arlen Marsh, Asst. Treas.

the Moonlight Sonata is maligned by some prosaic soul who can't see the moonlight; but that doesn't mean you have more than your share of human kindness.

More than fifty thousand already are out of work as a result of the General Motors strike. We understand, however, that Chrysler is trying to Dodge trouble.

They've made paper with cornstalks. Now the Department of Agriculture is building a thousand miles of hard-surfaced road with cotton.

Anyone can tell you that the railroads carry the greatest amount of freight in the country on a ton-mile basis. But only the informed know that pipe-lines carry twelve times as much tonnage as motor vehicles.

(Only 15 per cent of American Jews continue to eat "kosher," the traditional (and biblical) menu which excludes leaven, pork, milk, meat containing blood. The dietary code is called "Surchan Aruch.")

Japan is censoring North China school-books. The idea seems to be that a stitch of propaganda saves nine wars.

Voodooism, with the full paraphernalia of snake worship, devil dancing, charms, and necromancy, still sweeps the Negro element. In New Orleans, the annual sale of luck charms nets about $1,000,000.

Not that it bothers us, but Los Angeles statutes still forbid selling snakes on the city streets. Possibly a councilman has the D. T.'s.

THE WALRUS SPEAKS

By Arlen Marsh

We're indebted to an anonymous contributor for the information that the recent double Dionne case of Chinese couplets was greeted by this headline in the Tokyo Nichi Nichi: "MRS. SANGER WILL BE ASHAMED." Six, you see, of Mrs. Sanger's ten infants died at birth.

Some unknown with a grudge laid down the definition. "A celebrity is a person who can get by with the kind of work that wouldn't make anybody a celebrity."

"Element Wood will help poets for a moderate fee."—Adv. Now if he'd just start giving the poets the fee, we'd be getting somewhere.

After a spell of book reviewing, we're in perfect agreement with Author's Agent T. H. Uzzell: "Volumes are what we calculate deny city from."

According to a correspondent of a Chicago Tribune columnist, a radio announcer on Christmas Eve blurted, "And with Robert Louis Stevenson we say, 'And God bless everyone!'"

Music, opines Music Critic Edward Barry, has no relation to character. It is for pleasure only. You may fall in a dead faint when

A Dictionary of the Bible

Edited by John D. Davis, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Fourth Revised Edition

Recommended by Aurora College

In cloth binding, $3.00 postpaid

In half leather, $4.00 postpaid

In full Morocco, $7.50 postpaid

All proper nouns pronounced

High quality paper

Readable type

A satisfying library of Bible information is found in this fourth revised edition, which is now selling at reduced prices. The 856 pages contain 6,000 articles, 229 good illustrations, and accurate colored maps. The articles cover the contents of the books of the Old and New Testaments in both the King James and Revised Versions, together with the First Book of the Maccabees in the Revised Version. The articles on the canonical books have been elaborated to show the place which the books have occupied and to exhibit the personal traits of the writers. Meanings and pronunciations of proper names, general logical description of persons, and locations of places add to the comprehensiveness of the book.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Sunday evening before Christmas we enjoyed a beautiful musical cantata, "While Shepherds Watched."

Wednesday evening following, another fine program was given by the young people, known as "The Golden Flame." The musical and the play were directed by Sr. Mary Hat-ten. A good attendance witnessed both.

The Gospel Seekers Class held their meeting last week at the home of Marybelle Osborn.

The Morning Stars gave a watch party New Year's Eve at the home of Bro. and Sr. Norman LaMunton.

Our Berean classes are resumed after interference by the revival and Christmas activities. The prospects for the Berean look very promising.

The year has closed and we are gathering the reports from all departments to be given at our annual meeting to be held this week. We will give our readers the reports in an early issue.

We feel very grateful for the work of last year and believe we have been blessed in it. Our pride as pastor and family is in this church, the finest group of Christians to be found. Their loyalty and help in the work are deeply appreciated. But we are not satisfied, for we must "press on" to greater service, primarily to bring the gospel to the hundreds that are indifferent and without light. Pray for us.

Friday, Jan. 1, Miss Arlene Perisho, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle W. Perisho of Waterloo, Iowa, was married to Eldridge Ellis, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ellis, National Bible Institution. The couple will make their home at Jennings Lodge, Oregon.

HERALD RECEIPTS

A. Raitton; Mary Elma Bell; Mrs. A. J. Ad-dington; Mrs. J. W. Dismukes; Alice E. Em-erson; P. J. Thompson; Sarah Manuwal; Mrs. Ray Maysilles; Dorothy Magaw; Silas M. Claypool; Mrs. H. A. Meier; Wilbur Mosby; Bernice C. Tulin; W. D. Tilton; Otto E. Dick; E. Anderson Drake; Clarence Poland; Mrs. H. M. McInturf; Earl Koonitz; H. W. Stadden; W. S. Tomlinson (for self and an- other); Mrs. W. V. Lansbery; Mrs. A. E. Karnett; Gertrude Sigler; Melvin J. Osborn; J. W. Lent; Charles E. Anderson; Watson Weimberg.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mrs. J. W. Dismukes $ 1.00
Silas M. Claypool 1.20
Margaret E. Blyisma 1.00
James Maggard 2.00
Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lapp 1.00
Dixon, III, Church (ind. fund) 4.00
Golden Rule Church of God 3.55
Mrs. Eva H. M. Fletcher (ind. fund) 25.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman 4.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman (ind. fund) 5.00
Paul M. Hatch 5.00
Watson Weimberg 3.00

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. M. Fellers; Dorothy Magaw; Silas M. Claypool; Lillian A. Greiner; H. J. Stadden; Mrs. Ray Maysilles; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Helen M. Chisholm; Jessie M. B. Kauffman; Maybelle Hanson.

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

THE RELIGION OF ISRAEL

This is a quadruplet. The four books in the series comprise a study of what the author, John Bayne Ascham by name, calls the kingdom of God. The volume now discussed is the first of the series.

It is necessary to take sharp issue with the press agent who wrote that The Religion of Israel is "a careful, scholarly, and vital study of the development of the religious ideas of the Hebrew people." The Religion of Israel is neither careful nor scholarly, and certainly not vital—whatever that last may mean.

Mr. Ascham appears to have borrowed something from the modernists, something from the fundamentalists, and concocted a potion that is neither historically nor biblically accurate.

The Ascham idea of the kingdom is the common one, that it is an establishment among men today. Israel carried on this kingdom, Judah carried it farther, and now Christendom is to polish the job. It's the notion that the world is growing better and better, despite crime waves, wars, and economic problems. "Only," confesses Author Ascham, "God can build His kingdom. Yet in the same breath it must be said, only God and ourselves, for we are builders with Him. Through our dreams, our struggles, our sacrifices His kingdom comes."

Most of the book's history is drawn from the Ascham interpretation of the Old Testament. "Baal" becomes merely another name for Jehovah; Solomon becomes a cross between Nero and a Simple Simon. The judgment day becomes nothing but the daily judgment visited upon character and deed by the world; the prophets become only half-cracked fanatics who supported Jehovah.

The Religion of Israel is planned for class use among adults and the older grades of preparatory schools. There are bibliographies galore, an index, and reams of suggestive questions—all, of course, calculated to force the student into accepting the Ascham opinions, right or wrong.

Abingdon Press: $1.00; $1.10 postpaid.

RELIGIOUS DIGEST

Religious Digest, copied frankly from Reader's Digest, is a comparative newcomer in the church world. Monthly it condenses what the editors believe to be the best from recent religious magazines of all denominations. As in Reader's Digest, one book—always religious, and generally a book put out by the publishers of Religious Digest—is condensed in each issue in addition to the usual abridgment of articles.

Religious Digest is notably tinged with the Oxford Movement. Otherwise, it manages to steer an unsure course between most religious theories. For obvious reasons, however, it uses principally articles on very general subjects—articles which might well have appeared, if they had been better written, in secular magazines.

On the whole, I should say that Religious Digest would do no one any harm, regardless of his church affiliations. That it would do anyone any particular good would depend altogether upon the individual. As Mark Twain suggested, if you're one to like this kind of book, you'll like it.

The subscription price is $3.00 a year; 25 cents a copy.

TARBELL'S TEACHER'S GUIDE

So high a quality has been maintained in the past in the Tarbell notes on the International Sunday School Lessons that it is like carrying water to the ocean to comment on the excellence of the 1937 edition.

Where the normal commentary stops, Tarbell's only begins to warm up. Avoiding prosy discourse on good in the abstract, Tarbell's presents the facts of the lesson; geographical and historical data; the best methods of teaching seniors, adults, intermediates, and young people; suggestive questions that really are suggestive, and not merely yes-and-no tests of knowledge; illustrations (both pictorial and textual); and explanations, outlines, and comments on the general lesson subject. There is no detailed verse-by-verse commentary on the printed text.

Not even the lesson on John 1 is particularly trinitarian, although naturally Tarbell's is touched with orthodoxy.

For the teacher who finds it necessary to make his class practically a lecture audience, Tarbell's will be especially valuable; but this in no wise signifies that the Guide is useless for the teacher who has faith in and can make a success of the question-and-answer method.

Fleming H. Revell Company: $1.90; $2.00 postpaid.

WILDE'S BIBLE PICTURES

An excellent set of black-and-white pictures, taken from famous paintings, has been issued to illustrate the International Sunday School Lessons for 1937. Pictures measure approximately 6 x 8 inches.

There are sixty pictures in each set, with at least one illustration for each lesson of the year. Any of the pictures may be purchased separately in quantities of ten or more.

For the teacher seeking to interest a class of intermediates or younger ages, Wilde's Bible Pictures should be an unmixed blessing.

W. A. Wilde Company: 90 cents postpaid.

The National Bible Institution will handle new or renewal orders for all reputable papers and magazines.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 19, 1937

NUMBER 16

Are You Prepared?

By J. R. LeCrone

AS WE look about us and see the many indisputable signs of the soon coming of Jesus our Master and then observe the apparent indifference of the huge majority of people to these signs, we feel a little as Paul Revere must have felt when he rode through the villages and towns shouting, "To arms, the British are coming." We feel like shouting, "Awake, prepare, Jesus is coming!"

There is this difference, however: Paul Revere, by virtue of a prearranged agreement, could give the alarm and then ride on, confident that those whom he had warned would know what to do in order to meet the advance of the British. We dare not assume that people know how to prepare themselves to meet Jesus when He shall come. Indeed, we have been forced to the conclusion that many think that they are ready to meet Him when they have not even taken the first steps of preparation. Let us listen to a few of these people and then see what answer the Scriptures give them.

The first person that we encounter meets our admonition to prepare to meet his Lord somewhat as follows. "I know that He is coming, but I don't think that I have anything to worry about. I go to church occasionally and am liberal in my offering. When I look at others who attend the same church, I find that I live as good if not a better life than most of them. They seem to think that they are all right, so I surely am."

But, brother, are these neighbors your example of Christianity? Is it to them that you must look for an example after which to pattern your life? Consider these words from the Holy Scriptures. "For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves: but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise. But we will not boast of things without our measure, but according to the measure of the rule which God hath distributed to us, a measure to reach even unto you" (2 Cor. 10:12, 13). If we, measuring ourselves by ourselves, find ourselves to be righteous, we are not wise and have forgotten the example that we should look to in our measurements. "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21). Have you obeyed the commandment given in Acts 2:38? "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins."

Prepare yourself. Jesus is coming!

The next person that we interview has us checkmated on the last question. "I was baptized back in 1898," is his reply, "and if you will look in the records of the church at Podunk Center you will find my name there. The only reason that I do not do anything for Christ is that I do not live near a Church of God any more."

"Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing" (Matt. 24:45, 46).

It is a wonderful thing to have your name on the membership record of some church. It makes it so convenient for the secretary to determine the membership of the church when it becomes necessary to send delegates to a conference. It also makes a handy mailing list for the church bulletin and reference for other church business. We have no reason to believe, however, that the Lord is going to peer into musty church records to determine who is worthy of the rewards that He has promised to the faithful at His returning. The record that He is interested in is known as "The Lamb's Book of Life."

You have made a good start. Now go ahead with your preparation. Jesus is coming soon!

"My wife is active in Christian work, and we send the children to Sunday school. Doesn't it say somewhere in the Scriptures that the unbelieving husband is sanctified in the wife?" With these words another man states his hope of salvation.

Yes, the Scriptures do say that. Let's turn and read it. "For the unbelieving hus- (Please turn to Page Eleven)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day
G. E. Marsh, Editor

Russian Martyrs

"For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."—Philippians 1:21.

Moscow, Russia, Jan. 16.—The new constitution which Red Russia adopted last month makes provision for religious liberty and has resulted already in a let-up of repressive measures on the part of the Government. While the earlier reports of the census which was recently taken indicated a sharp decline in religious interest, later reports from the more remote parts of the country show that the church still claims hundreds of thousands of faithful adherents. Under the Soviet regime 25,000,000 children in Russia have been taught that there is no God, and it would be strange if such prolonged atheistic teaching did not show its effect.

Religious publications have long been banned, and priests have been compelled to live outside the cities. Reliable estimates, according to The Literary Digest, indicate that since the Bolshevik revolution of 1917, 42,000 clergymen have died in concentration camps and other "hell spots," and that but 1,200 remain in the country today.

Under the constitution promulgated December 5, 1936, while nominal religious freedom is guaranteed and the right of franchise extended to priests and others who profess belief in God, churches are barred from social activity and denied the right to propagate their ideas except to fellow believers, which prevents any real missionary efforts being carried forward.

In spite of persecution, however, the church still lives in Russia, although it must be confessed that in its teaching and practice it does not resemble the glorious institution established by our Lord and pictured by Paul in Ephesians 5:25-27. In fact, the Greek Church, which before the Russian revolution dominated the religious situation in that country, was exceedingly corrupt. Its priesthood was generally ignorant and its communicants superstitious.

At the tenth anniversary of the League of the Militant Godless, President Emelyan Jaroslawska states that 50 per cent of the Russian youth were still Christians, and that only half of the population of the country were atheists. (Consult "Abreast of the Times," December 29, 1936, and January 12, 1937.)

Jesus Not a Jew, Declares Bishop

"God shall take away his part out of the book of life."
—Revelation 22:19.

BERLIN, Germany, Jan. 14.—Bishop Weidemann of the Evangelical Church of Bremen has recently issued a new version of the Gospel of John which has aroused bitter opposition on the part of the many other churchmen in Germany. Bishop Weidemann, who describes Christ as "the first opponent of the Jews," has published his new version in pamphlet form for widespread distribution as a part of the Nazi project started by the adherents of Adolf Hitler to nationalize religion and take from it all Hebrew elements.

Bishop Weidemann belongs to the group of theologians which holds to the theory that Jesus was not a Jew, basing the idea on the fact that His home was in Galilee, a region which was regarded contemptuously by real Jews.

The Bishop's efforts are regarded favorably neither by the extreme nationalists nor by the orthodox adherents of the Lutheran Church. To the extremists his attempts to harmonize the Christian gospel with Nazi ideology seem futile, as the Germanic faith advocates want a complete break with all religion originating in Palestine, while the established church looks upon the new version of John as a false interpretation rather than a translation.

Bishop Weidemann characterizes Jesus as "the very opposite of Jews," and declares that that was the principal reason why He was crucified. He calls the territory occupied by the Jews in Palestine "Jew Land" rather than Judea.

When the Hebrew element is removed from Christianity its foundation is destroyed, for the religion of Christ is not merely based upon the teaching of Moses and the other Hebrew prophets but it was recognized by the apostles and the early church as a continuation and enlargement of the ancient Jewish religion. Many of the most essential teachings of the New Testament would be wholly without meaning were they divorced from the historic Old Testament facts upon which they are based and out of which they were divinely developed. For example, what would we know of the nature of the "blessing of Abraham" which is "to come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ" and of the "promise" of which the baptized believer in Christ is an "heir" (Gal. 3:14, 29), were we ignorant of the history of God's dealing with the first of the Hebrew fathers?

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Kingdom of God

Number 6

By T. A. Drinkard

"When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"—Acts 1:6.

JESUS CHRIST and His apostles are found "assembled together" (v. 4), on "the day in which he was taken up" (v. 2), therefore the day of His ascension, conversing about one of the greatest subjects of all time—the kingdom of God. The apostles knew John the Baptist had preached about it (Matt. 3:1, 2). Jesus preached the same message, and the apostles themselves had delivered the good news (Matt. 4:17, 23; 10:5, 7). People had "thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear" (Luke 19:11). Now Jesus was preparing to leave the earth without setting up the long-promised kingdom of God. "What is the trouble, Lord?" the apostles may have asked. "The message has ever been since John the Baptist began preaching that the kingdom of God was nigh 'at hand.' Have we failed to see that You had to 'suffer these things, and (then) to enter into (Your) glory'?"

Judging from the question asked, the kingdom was to be a restored kingdom, a kingdom that had once been in existence, but "overturned" (Ezek. 21:25-27) until the coming of Jesus Christ, the heir to David's throne (Isa. 9:6, 7). Allow the Scriptures to interpret themselves and describe the kingdom God will have on the earth when Jesus Christ rules in Mount Zion, in Jerusalem (Isa. 24:23). But if we give these texts a mystical twist, and tell the people that they should not be taken as referring to a real, literal kingdom of God, but to the "kingdom as an ideal," as Jesus Christ prophesied they would teach (Luke 17:20, 21), we are deceitfully handling the Word of God.

When a denial is entered against a literal interpretation of prophecy relative to the setting up of a real kingdom upon earth much violence is done, and truth is perverted. "Literal" means "according to the exact meaning; not figurative" (Webster). I am called a literalist because I contend for a literal interpretation of those Scripture prophecies that tell us in such simple terms about God's plan to set up His kingdom upon earth to break to pieces all human kingdoms, and to eliminate and destroy everything out of harmony with His will. It may seem strange to say that outside of those teaching along Advent lines of doctrine, everything pertaining to the coming kingdom is held in a mystical or figurative way.

Kindly read the Young People's Quarterly of the Southern Baptist Convention for December, 1936, page 40, column 2. After quoting Revelation 11:15, the writer says, "As yet that vision is but prophecy. How shall it become a reality? Only as men enthrone Christ in their lives."

In other words, there will be no real reign of Christ on the earth, but only as people have Christ enthroned in their lives will "the kingdoms of this world . . . become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ" (Rev. 11:15).

Can you wonder at the religious blindness concerning the truth when men and women are taught from childhood to look upon the kingdom as being a condition of the heart? Such is being taught on every hand, hence the Prophet declared that "darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people" (Isa. 60:2).

If there ever was a time when we should talk about the kingdom, and its work, it is now. We see the clouds of trouble gathering, and the only hope for us all is the coming of Jesus Christ to "set up" God's kingdom. One by one our brethren in the truth are going down the valley and shadow of death, and it is our duty to do our utmost toward carrying the kingdom message to as many as will hear.

The kingdom of God is not something mystical that enters the heart of man, but something which man can and will enter when it is "set up," as Jesus Christ clearly showed when He said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 7:21).

I know that "the Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand" (Isa. 14:24).

Has God thought to set up His kingdom on the earth? It will come to pass. Has He purposed to put Christ upon the Davidic throne? He will see to it that such a purpose stands. (Please turn to Page 11)

Pray--Give--Go

Three things the Master hath to do,
And we who serve Him here below
And long to see His kingdom come
May Pray or Give or Go.

He needs them all—the Open Hand,
The Willing Feet, the Praying Heart—
To work together and to weave
A threefold cord that shall not part.

Nor shall the giver count his gift
As greater than the worker's deed,
Nor he in turn his service boast
Above the prayers that voice the need.

Not all can Go; not all can Give
To speed the message on its way,
But young or old, or rich or poor,
Or strong or weak—we all can Pray:

Pray that the gold-filled hands may Give
To arm the others for the fray;
That those who hear the call may Go,
And pray—that other hearts may Pray!

—Annie Johnson Flint in The Jewish Era.

The Value of Prophecy

By the Editor

A LARGE proportion of the sermons delivered by ministers of the Church of God have to do with various phases of prophecy. And why not? Prophecy is the most vital element in the Bible. It is God's most effective means of making Himself known to His people. When definite, unmistakable evidence is presented that God is in the world and accomplishing the purpose of which the inspired writers have spoken ages ago the believer is made to feel the divine presence and to see the actual operation of the supreme will, and his faith is strengthened immeasurably.

Prophecy is not limited to mystic symbols of the order of those found in Daniel and Revelation. More frequently by far the predictive Scriptures are written in the plainest terms.

Much of the difficulty people encounter in the study of the prophets is due to the false and unnecessarily mystical interpretations they place upon them. Some Bible students, seeking constantly for types and shadows and symbols, see these mystical signs in almost every chapter and verse they read, and consequently often overlook the plain, simple statement of fact the writer is endeavoring to convey. The Bible was provided for the instruction of common people like you and me, who have little of poetry or mysticism in their natures. We can usually understand only plain, simply stated facts, and that is what God gives us in the Scriptures.

Prophecy covers a much wider range of subjects than many Bible readers suppose. For example, it is said that the Book contains more than ten thousand promises that God has given at various times to different groups and persons. And each of those ten thousand promises is a prophecy, for everything that God has said that He will do in the future is a prophecy.

There is nothing especially remarkable in the fact of God's ability to make known what has not yet come to pass nor in His inclination to do so. No one is astonished when a physician predicts the approach of the crisis in the development of a disease with which he is familiar or when he foresees what the physical reaction of the patient will be to the medication he prescribes. If he were unable to do these things we would consider him an unqualified "quack." The physician knows the physical constitution of men. He knows how their bodies should function normally and how they will react to a given remedy.

God knows human nature far better than the experienced doctor knows the human body. Why, then, should He not be able to foretell positively the reaction of any individual or group of individuals to whatever impulse or pressure of circumstance may be brought to bear upon them? Knowing the end from the beginning, He knows just when certain conditions will arise and how men and nations will respond to the influence of those conditions and the summary of that knowledge He has caused to be written in a Book for the enlightenment and encouragement of those upon whom the end of the age has come.

"You must understand this in the first place, that no prophecy in Scripture can be understood through one's own powers, for no prophecy ever originated in the human will, but under the influence of the holy Spirit men spoke for God."—2 Peter 1:20, 21, Goodspeed.

Our second question is equally as easy to answer.

Why does God reveal the knowledge He has of the future to His children?

First, God does nothing without a purpose. This was true of the creation of the earth and of all that is in it. "For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited" (Isa. 45:18).

It was true specifically of the creation of man. After all else had been made that now appears in heaven and on earth, "there was not a man to till the ground. . . . And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:5, 7).

Man was created for a purpose, a divine and far-reaching purpose which only eternity will fully reveal. But this much we know now: Man was made to be an intelligent servant and coworker with God. To qualify him for his task the Creator not only endowed him with the faculty of reason, but He also wisely revealed to man much concerning the divine will and purpose that the man might serve Him more intelligently and, consequently, more efficiently than would otherwise be the case. If a builder has a comprehensive understanding of the architect's original plans, if he is able to visualize the finished structure in all its stateliness and beauty before the work of laying foundations and cutting and joining beams to specifications is begun, if he can see the completed work as clearly in his mind as did the designer when he made the blueprints, then and then alone can he render the most efficient assistance to the architect.

It is the same way in our service to God. We must know what God is planning to do in the future and how our rough work today will eventually be made to blend harmoniously into the perfection of the finished temple.

Prophecy gives us this necessary information. The student of prophecy does not labor blindly in his efforts to serve God. He is God's partner in everything.

The Master builder places the earnest, studious worker upon a higher plane than that of a slave or hired servant. Jesus, who always spoke for God, once said, "Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you" (John 15:15).

Let us make no mistake: God requires the assistance of men in the accomplishment of His eternal purpose of filling the earth with His glory. If He could have perfected His work without the aid of men He would not have created them. There are many things in the plans of the Deity which we cannot as yet comprehend. But what we can understand God has revealed to us that we may be qualified now to carry on our part of His labor with an intelligent regard for the main features of the heavenly design.

Here I have touched upon but one of the many valuable results that follow a thoughtful study of the prophets. May we be encouraged to continue to delve more deeply into the rich treasures that lie below the surface of the prophetic Word.

Shall We Preach Doctrine?

THERE is a modern hostility to doctrine. It exists to a greater or less degree everywhere. Doctrines are regarded as unimportant. "The exposition of the teachings of liberalism and the teachings of Christianity, therefore, can arouse no interest at the present; creeds are merely the changing expression of a unitary Christian experience, and provided they only express that experience they are all equally good. The teachings of liberalism, therefore, might be as far removed as possible from the historic teachings of Christianity, and yet the two be at the bottom the same."

The interesting thing about such a statement is that there are such widely varying opinions as to what constitutes doctrine and that there are liberal teachings persistently promulgated which are as surely doctrines as any of the dogmatic doctrines which have been doggedly held by the most pronounced schismatic preachers. The so-called liberal preacher is often only merely objecting to one system of theology, or doctrine, in the interests of another.

The assertion is often made that "Christianity is a life, not a doctrine." "The beginnings of Christianity constitute a fairly definite historical phenomenon" which may be definitely examined. The historical information of the early stages of this movement have been preserved for us in the Acts of the Apostles and the Epistles of Paul, which are generally regarded as genuine products of the first generations of Christians.

One fact is made clear in this information; namely, that the early Christian movement was not just a way of life in any modern sense of the term, but "a way of life founded upon a message."

The Apostle Paul was definitely doctrinal in his preaching and teaching. Doctrine was the very basis of his life. A magnificent tolerance is to be found in his writings (e. g., his attitude to those who preached Christ out of envy—see Philippians), however, his tolerance was discriminate—see Galatians. "Christianity was for Paul not only a life, but also a doctrine, and the doctrine came first."

Paul's differences with the Judaizing teachers of his day might be regarded by moderns as a mere technicality, but with Paul there was a vital issue at stake. Paul said that a man first believes on Christ; then, is justified; then, immediately proceeds to keep God's law. The Judaizers said that a man believes in Christ, keeps the law of God as best he can, then is justified. With Paul justification was a matter of faith and not of works. His was wholly a religion of grace and not of merit.

The distinction between history and faith, fact and doctrine, can be clearly drawn. Yet the two are blended into an indissoluble union. "'Christ died,' that is history. 'Christ died for our sins,' that is not only history but also doctrine." The two together make Christianity.

Considering the resurrection of Jesus, the historical statement, "He is risen," is something more than history. In setting forth this statement there is coupled with it the significance of the event and that is doctrine.

Jesus Himself sounded out the message of repentance as a preparation for the coming kingdom and commissioned His disciples to do likewise. He and they proclaimed the event as still future and coming. Distinct and definite doctrines of the kingdom are clearly seen in the teachings of Jesus and the apostles.

Jesus was positively conscious of standing at the turning of the ages. The writer to the Hebrews in 9:26 brings the thought to our attention: "Now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin." The phrase "the end of the world" contains the thought. The term "world" is "age" and in the plural "ages"; therefore, we have "in the end of the ages"—at the close of the old dispensation or covenant and the ushering in of the new "hath he appeared to put away sin."

Jesus set forth this event Himself when He said: "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." He fully understood the importance of His time and message. The teaching of Jesus was also rooted in the doctrine of His own person. He sets forth clearly and definitely the doctrine of the unique relationship of Himself to the Father. He also had a very definite Messianic consciousness which is an important part of the doctrine of the kingdom. The lofty

(Please turn to Page Nine)

Stewards of the Secrets

TWO things are more and more clear to me in relation to the stewardship movement.

First, I believe that stewardship is the key to vital Christianity. Until one gets a sense of stewardship of Jesus' message and program, he will not have much of a comradeship with Christ nor be of much use to the kingdom.

Second, I believe that the stewardship movement is halted by those who do not see beyond the stewardship of money and property in their own lives and in the churches to which they belong by everlastingly thinking of stewardship as a financial plan.

I can make this latter statement the more readily because I have never consciously soft-pedaled the tithe as a material acknowledgment of the stewardship of property and life. I have long felt that stewardship education is seriously hindered by those who are afraid, for various reasons, to practice the tithe or some other form of proportionate giving. I have said many times that these soft-pedalers take the "teeth out of stewardship." And I still believe it.

But there is another side to this. Sometimes the tithe enthusiast is also a hindrance because he never gets "beyond the kindergarten" into perceiving that the end of religion is not the preserving of the organization but the discovering of life and peace and power for the members of the church.

My first point that stewardship is the key to vital Christianity can be demonstrated by using a book like Margaret Slattery's He Took It Upon Himself. Here is one of the best brief stewardship books in existence. It is a splendid collection of stories briefly written about men and women who "took it upon themselves"—great souls who saw a great cause and gave themselves to it.

You can even make favorable distinction between the young Russian Communist who passionately devoted himself to the "making of a better world" as against some members of our churches who, for instance, have never "taken upon themselves the Great Commission." These latter persons are individuals related to those the writer of Lamentations condemned when he said, "Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?"

Last April Robert E. Speer analyzed the situation in the church in these words: "We face a very grave transitional situation in the matter of support of educational, philanthropic, and missionary agencies which are dependent upon private gifts.

"There are some who think that the golden age of private benevolences has passed by. They point out that the supposition that the noble tide of private philanthropy which we had known in America for fifty years was a natural and permanent phenomenon, is fallacious. It was inevitable, some felt, that this great movement should ebb, and they are now reconciled to what they think to be a new and permanent condition.

"I think that it is true with regard to some of the activities that we have known, but there are some others of which I do not believe it is true. Their work is obviously still undone, and there will be sincere men and women who will recognize the duty of carrying it forward and seeing that the necessary tasks are adequately maintained until they are accomplished."

Then he added: "Collective self-indulgence cannot take the place of self-sacrifice. This is the principle of trusteeship. It has been spoken of as stewardship, and that is the right idea, but that word as well as the word 'trusteeship' has, one fears, been worn dull."

I am quoting Dr. Speer for two reasons. First, because the philanthropic and missionary situation which he describes challenges our attention. But in the second place, because he seems to think that the phraseology of stewardship "has been worn dull."

Now, I have heard this before but I do not believe so much that the phraseology of stewardship has been worn dull as that the concept of stewardship has never gripped the great multitude of our church members.

And I wonder if it isn't the fault of the leadership? Haven't we too easily received members without insisting that the candidate shall understand that to be a Christian is to expect to bear a cross, to "take upon himself" the program and passion of Jesus, to build a regenerated world of regenerated people?

So I say we must see the larger implications of stewardship. Stewardship of property is a good beginning but a mighty poor stopping place. We must get on to something higher and larger. To be externally merely paying the bills in our churches and never getting results for our money is not very inspirational to anyone.

Paul's sentence in the first verse of the fourth chapter of his first letter to the Corinthians grips me. He said, "Let men think of us . . . as stewards of the mysteries of God." Here is something far higher and deeper and wider than the mere stewardship of money. Stewards of the mysteries of God—think of it!

But what are the mysteries of God? Moffatt throws an illuminating light upon the phrase. He translates "the mysteries of God" as "God's secrets." "Let men think of us as the stewards of the secrets of God." Fine!

But what are the secrets that Christians ought to know? Jesus has suggested the answer. When, in the first chapter of the Acts, He says, "Ye shall be my witnesses," it is clear that there are certain essential truths that we must testify to. And that the disciples understood this is evident from the repeated statement on their part, "And we are witnesses of these things."

I remember so well an outstanding layman putting his hands on my shoulders a few years ago and saying to me with a wistful look in his eyes, "I wish you preachers sometimes would throw away your manuscript and your outline and everything you have prepared in the way of a sermon and lean over the pulpit and tell us what Jesus Christ means to you and whether he is reality indeed."

What are some of the secrets of which Christians are stewards and witnesses? Well, when Jesus saw that Nicodemus didn't know the fact of the spiritual birth, He said, "What, Nicodemus, are you a teacher in Israel and don't know these things?"

Here is one of the primary secrets that we should know and which was the secret that came to John Wesley at the Aldersgate meeting. As we face, on May 24, 1938, the 200th anniversary of this event, which Lecky said "meant more to England than all her victories under Pitt," surely we ought to meditate carefully upon this question, "What was the difference between Wesley before and after Aldersgate?"

Is there such a thing as a religious certainty? Is there reality in the new birth? Is there anything in "the witness of the Spirit?" Can a man discover God for himself? We are stewards of these mysteries of God.

I like to remember those words that Stanley Jones spoke at Kansas City in regard to the celebration of Wesley's "heart warming" experience. He said, "We are not calling the church to celebrate an anniversary, but to seek an experience."

And these teachings of Christianity are mysteries to the uninitiated. There is an amazing article in the August,

1935, Harper's Magazine. Prof. James H. Leuba, professor of psychology at Bryn Mawr, is the author of the article on "Religious Beliefs of American Scientists." From his questionnaire sent to a selected list of "American men of science" he concludes that only a third of the scientific men of this country believe in immortality and in a God "to whom one may pray in the expectation of receiving an answer."

We expect to hear some disapproval among scientific men as to Prof. Leuba's questionnaire and his method of coming to his conclusions.

But, if it could be demonstrated that two thirds of America's scientific men really were unbelievers, this need not mean, as the writer seems to think, that the church is in danger of going out of business unless it gets some new methods and a new message "free from discredited supernaturalism."

On the other hand, the unbelief of skeptical scientists might bring a new emphasis to the ancient truth that "out of the heart are the issues of life." Prof. Whitney some months ago stated that the best of the scientists know that they are "little kindergarten fellows playing with mysteries." It seems to me that all of this brings a new warning that we are stewards of those secret truths which God reveals only to the poor in spirit. Here is the really challenging stewardship!—Ralph S. Cushman in Present Truth Messenger.

Seeing and Hearing Me

By S. J. Lindsay

OUR attention was recently called to a text that we had read many times without getting the full force of it. It is found in 2 Corinthians 12:6. The part of the verse that especially interested us is this: "But now I forbear, lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me."

There was no question in Paul's mind but that he had the experiences he is relating in the chapter. In fact, he was getting a great deal of satisfaction out of his experience and had told much of it, yet because of the wrong impression his glorying might do for others, he decided to forbear. By this decision, Paul admitted that his glorying and his daily walk and conversation might not impress others favorably. We think that we all might get a lesson out of this statement. How often we have heard exhorters proclaim their faith from the housetops and shout themselves hoarse to impress others with their par-excellent brand of religion, and all the while they succeed only in convincing those who know them and all about their daily walk and conversation that they are acting the hypocrite. One of the nice things about the Bible biographies is that the character described is shown on both sides. We all have the "both sides," and anyone who tries to carry the idea that he has but the goody-goody side, convinces us at once that while there is much profession, there is not so much in possession. To our way of thinking, the humble Christian is the man who is modest and trying to work out in his life true Christian principles, and admitting that he is weak all the while, yet keeping his conduct before others above reproach. He pays his debts, he is truthful, he watches his conversation with care, knowing that the general public has his measure about correct. We have often thought of this fact when we have heard boastful experiences stated on the part of those who proclaim themselves Christian, concluding that they feel a failure they are ashamed to confess and take this means of trying to fool the people. We have often wondered if this was meant by Solomon (Ecl. 7:16) when he advises us, "Be not righteous over much." Don't be a show-off of your righteousness. People know what you are in so far as your Christianity may be concerned. You don't need to tell it. That class couldn't fool our Lord one bit. They came to Him with flattering words, but He met them with, "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things I say?" It is not a shame to admit that we have weaknesses unless we seek to glory in them. This is the part true humility can work out for us.—Present Truth Messenger.

Mussolini and the Revival of the Roman Empire

BECAUSE many strange things are happening in the world, and men's hearts are failing them for fear. Christian men and women are asking whether the Word of God has any light to bring upon such conditions. They are seeking to know if present-day events are really signs of the times, and whether the prophecies of the Holy Scriptures are lucid enough to give understanding concerning these days. Such questions give the reason why we should search the Scriptures anew and trust that the Holy Spirit may use them to lift His own people out of perplexity into a place of real trust and of patient waiting for our Lord.

The first of these great national and international movements to be studied in the light of God's Word is the resurrection of imperial Rome. For the purpose of clarity, this article will be divided into three parts:

THE PROPHECIES OF DANIEL

To understand the book of Daniel, it is necessary to keep in mind that its twelve chapters deal only with the events which circle around one people, the nation of Israel.

The period covered is limited to the times of the Gentiles. Chapter 1 records the taking of Jerusalem, and the last chapter prophesies the end of the dispersion. Nothing in this book is earlier than the beginning of that captivity. And the latest event prophesied is the commencement of the millennial reign of Christ, which ends the captivity.

The understanding of this simple truth is necessary if the contents of the twelve chapters are to be placed in their proper setting.

Chapter 2 contains the dream of King Nebuchadnezzar and Daniel's interpretation of it. The dream was of the image of a man. The head was of gold, the breasts and the arms were of silver, the body and sides of brass, the legs of iron, and the feet were part of iron and part of clay (vv. 32, 33).

Daniel told the King that the several parts of this image represented kingdoms, and that the main features were prophetic. He also said there were to be four empires. The fourth was to be revived, and its revival was to remain until defeated by the Lord of glory, who sets up His millennial kingdom, coming as a stone cut out of the mountain without hands (vv. 44, 45).

It is to be noted that the period covered by the symbolism of this image was from Nebuchadnezzar, "Thou art this head of gold" (v. 38), to the end of the captivity.

Chapter 7 covers the same period and the same kingdoms, under the figure of wild beasts. This is quite understandable when we recollect that Daniel was God's prophet, who would view these kingdoms from the divine aspect as wild beasts, while an earthly potentate, Nebuchadnezzar, would look on the outward appearance, and see nothing but a great man.

In chapter 7, the four empires, Babylon, Medo-Persia,

Greece, and Rome, are described. But verse 7 states that the fourth beast (Rome) had ten horns. This corresponds to the ten toes of the image in Daniel 2:42.

Continuing our study of chapter 7, we read: "These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth . . . The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth . . . The ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise" (vv. 17, 23, 24).

The rest of the verses in this chapter show, in harmony with chapter 2, that this revived empire will continue until defeated by the Lord, who then sets up His millennial reign. It proves that this part of the prophecy has to do with the latter days.

As the book of Daniel deals only with the times of the Gentiles, and there were to be no more than four universal empires during this period, the four mentioned in chapters 2 and 7 were, as already stated, Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome. The fourth kingdom which was to be revived prior to the millennial reign of Christ must be the resurrection of the old Roman Empire. Also the ten toes of the images in chapter 2, and the ten horns of the fourth beast in chapter 7, must prophesy of the resurrection of this empire in a ten-kingdom form.

THE PROPHECIES IN THE BOOK OF REVELATION

Though the book of Revelation contains many remarkable prophecies of revived Rome, we will only consider chapters 13 and 17, as their contents are of more importance to our study.

Revelation 13:1 speaks of the ten-horned beast which is the same one as in Daniel 7:23. Therefore we need not be surprised to see Daniel's first three beasts of chapter 7 indicated in the second verse of Revelation 13, which reads: "And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion."

This scripture shows that there is centered in this beast all the ferocity, cruelty, and infamy of all the beasts which preceded him. Such is God's estimate of the coming Roman empire.

Revelation 17:3 prophesies that the ten-horned beast will be allied with religious Babylon, while verses 12 and 13 clearly indicate that the ten horns are ten kings which have one mind, and they give their power unto the beast.

The prophecies already referred to are sufficient to confirm the statement made that the empire of Rome will be revived in a ten-kingdom form. Do today's events indicate such possibilities? We must first consider the extent of the territory of old Rome at the zenith of its power.

THE TERRITORY OF OLD ROME

Under the reign of Emperor Trajan, the northern boundary was the Rhine, the Danube, and the Dniester. The eastern was the Black Sea, running southeast of the Jordan River. The southern was the north of Africa, with the Mediterranean as a Roman lake.

The questions which the Bible student needs to consider are:

1. What territory of ancient Rome will again come under a future Roman empire's sway?
2. Is the territory held at the time of her greatest conquests again to be hers?
3. Will Rome be revived according to prophecy if she regains less than she previously conquered and held at the time of her zenith?

These questions are not as simple as they look, and only the briefest discussion is permitted here. At least, such queries become food for careful thought, even if that which is involved is not important.

TODAY'S SIGNS

Previous to Mussolini's march on Rome, Italy was a third-rate Power. But he has raised its prestige enormously. The country was overrun with Communism, and in three months he had swept out every Communist.

Mussolini's treaties with European Powers were remarkably successful until his over-ambitious spirit led him into the Italo-Ethiopian War. Prior to this there were no consultations in Europe without Mussolini, and when any decisions were made between the Powers he demanded the right to be considered. For the sake of peace, European nations had allowed him to practically become the dictator of all conclusions. But what influence would he have acquired if he had been more diplomatic!

Before this war was commenced, Mussolini's prestige was seriously threatened, chiefly because of Italy's economic condition. It is also remarkable that the crown prince is not only the idol of the people, but with his charming wife, is increasing his influence among the rank and file. They fear Mussolini, but they love their prince.

For some years, propaganda has been carried on in the Italian schools and press against Britain as the supposed enemy to Italian colonial aims, until the people have been unconsciously inflamed and ready for war. Italians have always looked upon Britain as their friend until Mussolini inspired their hate, merely because his warlike attitude and his breaking of the Covenant of the League of Nations (which he himself signed) were brought into question.

Mussolini is prepared to risk a European conflagration to avoid personal defeat. At present he is in the saddle, but the first false step and out of the saddle he goes. There seems to be every likelihood of such an eventuality, for when the populace clearly sees the difficulties in which Mussolini has placed them—and this is difficult with a muzzled press—the Prince of Piedmont's chance will have come. The purpose of such discussion will be noted as we proceed with our next statement.

We must clearly understand that the revival of the Roman Empire must come. But we do not see how it is possible while Mussolini holds Italy's reigns. The majority of the countries of Europe do not trust him. But if he goes, the remarkable preparations made by him for the restoration of the glory of the Cæsars will eventually prove to be a great step towards the full resurrection of old Rome.

MUSSOLINI NOT THE COMING PRINCE

After Mussolini another may arise whose diplomacy will be unequalled among the leaders of men and nations. Many have stated that Mussolini is the coming prince. This is utterly absurd. He is too egotistical and blunt to be the cunning and clever diplomat who is to be revealed.

Even if Mussolini were removed from the scene, the revival of the Roman Empire will not be seriously delayed, for the preparations he has made are permanent. Italy has been welded into an armed camp, which will be useful in the hands of a stronger and more cunning dictator. In other words, the resurrection of ancient Rome, even in the eyes of the most superficial observer, is certain of accomplishment, and is rapidly moving toward its goal, as prophesied in Holy Writ.—L. Sale-Harrison in The Jewish Hope.

SHALL WE PREACH DOCTRINE?

(Continued from Page Five)

claims of Jesus are found to a greater or less degree in all of the Gospels. The Golden Rule loses its significance only as associated with the doctrines of the kingdom contained in the Sermon on the Mount. "The Sermon on the Mount, like all the rest of the New Testament, really leads one straight to the foot of the cross," to a sense of sin which is removed only through faith in the sacrificial act of Jesus, and therein is the foundation of one of the greatest doctrines of the Christian church. If it be argued that we should trust in a person—in Jesus—rather than in what He did or in what He said, it must be said in reply that we know Jesus first in the message; by belief in the message we come into spiritual contact with the Person. The message is doctrine. Christian doctrine lies at the very roots of faith. Doctrine is teaching. Teaching must ever pervade true preaching. All points of doctrine are not equally important but some points are fundamental.

NEW TESTAMENT USAGE

The term "doctrine" or "doctrines" appears with considerable frequency in the New Testament. We read concerning the preaching and teaching of Jesus that "they were astonished at his doctrine," for He taught with authority. This expression is found five times and appears in all three synoptics. That this doctrine was something distinct and definite is proven by the fact that it was regarded as "new doctrine" (Mark 1:27) and that it was set over against the doctrines of the scribes and Pharisees. Jesus made such a contrast Himself when He warned the disciples concerning the doctrines of the Pharisees.

This doctrinal distinction was evidently in the mind of Jesus Himself, for He said: "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me," and, "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John 7:16, 17). Jesus was a great, practical teacher and preacher. He also was a great doctrinal preacher and teacher. His doctrines of God, of Himself, of life eternal, and of future punishment and reward, of sin and death, of forgiveness and righteousness, are of the most definite sort and have behind them the voice of authority.

Then when we come to consider the story of the apostolic church we find such expressions as the following: "The apostles' doctrine," "your doctrine," "the doctrine of the Lord," "new doctrine." The specific charge laid against the disciples was: "Ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine and intend to bring this man's blood upon us" (Acts 5:28).

Paul, the great apostle of Christianity, was a man of doctrine. As previously indicated, with him doctrine was fundamental. He writes of "sound doctrine," "good doctrine," "my doctrine," "the doctrine of baptisms," "strange doctrines." John refers to the "doctrine of Christ," "the doctrine of Balaam and the Nicolaitans." Paul warns against being "drawn away by every wind of doctrine," against a "substitution of the commandments and doctrines of men," against all that is contrary to "sound doctrine." He instructs Timothy not to neglect doctrine, to "take heed to himself and the doctrine," to "exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine"—and Titus likewise. He also instructs the members of the church to edify one another "by prophesying, by doctrine," and when they come together to have "a psalm, a doctrine." With Paul, doctrine was indispensable. It was framework to the structure of Christianity. It was meat for the spiritual body.

Two great evils pervade the Christian church today: one, the substitution of the commandments and doctrines of men for the commandments and doctrines of Christ and the apostles; the other, the failure to preach the true doctrines of the gospel. The remedy lies in an introduction of sound biblical doctrine into all of our preaching. The doctrines of Christ and the apostles phrased in the language of today—not in old creedal or traditional forms; in living—not dead language. Such preaching and teaching is sorely needed for a true and permanent revival of faith.

The New Testament is full of very definite doctrines which stand out distinctly. The doctrines of sin and redemption, justification, sanctification, the resurrection and return of Jesus, rewards and retribution, coming judgment, an eternal state of peace and blessedness, an eternity of fellowship with God, an eternity of equity and righteousness free from all sin, taints or consequences of sins; a condition of absolute freedom from sin for eternity—are doctrines which can well be revived; and if presented not didactically—clothed, not in dead creedal statements, but in living present-day language—will awaken interest and result in a more vital type of religion and personal Christian experience.—J. William Denton in The World's Crisis.

CHURCH ADVERTISING

VOLNEY IRONS, advertising counsel, Vancouver, British Columbia, is ready to identify himself with that very honorable, eminent, earnest, and increasing group of men who want to see the church recover its lost ground.

"A weak church," says Mr. Irons, "is like a weak business, and suffers from the same symptoms. . . . To put the church back on its feet again and advertise it as it should be advertised, would require a return to first principles and an acceptance of these principles by all those interested. It is generally conceded that such a wholesale returning to first principles is well-nigh impossible, and any advertising which might be done would not represent the full agreement of the church at large. As an instance of this a questionnaire was sent out in the United States not long ago to thirteen thousand preachers and student preachers, asking if they believed certain truths of the Scriptures. The replies to these questionnaires showed that very few today held to the clear and literal teachings of the New Testament."

A strong advertising campaign by the church at large is not likely to be seen, I fear, during the earthly life of any of us now living.—Selected by Arthur Gibbey.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from Page Three)

He has a "purpose that is purposed upon the whole earth," and no man can "disannul it" (Isa. 14:26, 27). When "the Lord reigneth" the earth will rejoice, and "the multitude of isles be glad thereof" (Psalm 97:1).

Here is a word picture in glowing colors of what the kingdom will mean to those on earth. Peace is coming to this earth, not in a mystical or figurative way, but just as literally as God can make it; and I want to be here to see the meeting of the saints of God, especially Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, who embraced the promises of God, and foresaw a better day coming.

Looking forward to the day of judgment when the reign of Jesus Christ would be in full operation, David wrote, "O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth . . . Then shall the earth yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless us" (Psalm 67:4, 6). The nations who willingly submit to the policy of government of Jesus Christ will rejoice and be glad; and, too, the earth will yield her increase, and I suggest that under Christ's rulership none of it will be plowed under or destroyed in order to make the money mongers richer. The increase of the earth will be used, as God proposed it should be used, to feed and clothe the people of earth. Man proposes to curtail the production of God's earth by the enactment of such laws as may please his human fancy. But he will suffer for tampering with God's business.

The nations will be taught the principles of a righteous government, and the result will be that swords and spears will be made into plowshares and pruninghooks (Isa. 2:4), as there will be no need for war. You will notice that nations have no other way to go if they want to exist, as Revelation 11:15 shows that at a certain time the kingdoms of earth come under the control of Jesus Christ, and their form of government is abolished. They simply go out of business and cease to exist as nations under their own right. Their implements of war are converted into farming implements. Somebody will surely use them, for why have plowshares and pruninghooks if they are not to be used? Before "sin entered into the world" (Rom. 5:12), yea, before man was formed or made (Gen. 1:26; 2:7), God intended to make man "to till the ground" (Gen. 2:5). If it was in God's plan to make man to till the ground before sin entered, would it be out of order to say that man will till the ground after sin and death have passed away? After "the voice of weeping" (Isa. 65:19) has ceased in Jerusalem, the building of houses and the planting of vineyards will go on, also "labor" (Isa. 65:21-23). The thorns will be supplanted by fir trees, and the briars will be supplanted by myrtle trees (Isa. 55:13). And "the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted" (Isa. 60:12).

Jesus Christ came the first time to call and build the church of God, and He comes the second time to establish the kingdom, as Acts 15:14-16 proves beyond all question of a doubt.

This age is the age of the gospel call. The people who will may answer that call and become members of the church that God, through Christ, is building (Acts 2:47; 8:5, 6, 12). This church is called to the kingdom, or in other words is promised a position with Christ on His throne, to which He will be exalted at His second coming (1 Thess. 2:12; Rev. 3:21; Matt. 25:31). Suffering comes before the reign (2 Tim. 2:12).

With all the scriptures concerning the establishment of the kingdom before us, I can assure you that if the kingdom were already set up we would not be seeing such a state of affairs in the world today. May God hasten the setting up of the kingdom, thus answering the daily prayer of His praying people.

ARE YOU PREPARED?

(Continued from Front Page)

band is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband; else were your children unclean; but now are they holy" (1 Cor. 7:14). Can you find there any promise of salvation for the unbelieving husband? He is not even the one under consideration, it is the children. His wife is advised not leave him on account of the children because God in His mercy cleanses (ceremonially) the unbelieving mate in order that the children might be considered as holy. We are confirmed in this belief by the statement of Jesus Himself. "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage" (Luke 20:35). A careful reading of Luke 17:33-37 will still further support the thought that no man is going to ride into the kingdom of God on his wife's ticket. Salvation is a matter for each individual. A man cannot carry his religion as he sometimes does his property—in his wife's name.

If your wife and children are active Christians, brother, and you are not, my heart goes out to you. I fear that you will see your family in the kingdom and you yourself thrust out. Awake! Jesus is coming!

Again we meet the man who is depending upon his ancestors to see to it that he is saved. He says, "Certainly I am a Christian. My father was a minister, his father was a minister, and his father was a minister before him. Besides that my mother is Sunday school superintendent and my family has been a Christian family for generations." He seems to feel that, because he is of a Christian family, he need not exert himself. It is a foregone conclusion that he will, automatically, by virtue of his family connections, be given a place with Christ at His coming.

God answers him thus: "And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear" (1 Peter 1:17). It was this very attitude that led Jesus to issue the following warning to the Jews. "And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham" (Matt. 3:9). In John 15:2-6 He warns that the unfruitful branch will be separated from the vine and burned.

You are fortunate indeed if your ancestors before you were Christians, but don't depend upon that fact for your own salvation. Prepare yourself to meet Jesus!

Almost in despair of finding one who knows how to prepare to meet the Master we turn to another with our announcement concerning the soon coming of Jesus. "Yes, I know that He is coming, and I pray that it will be soon," is the answer that rings sincerely in our ears. "A few years ago I repented of my sins and was baptized into the name of Jesus the Christ. Since that time I have been serving Him to the best of my ability wherever the opportunity presented itself. I have done all in my power to undo the effects of sin in the world, and am daily trying to alleviate the suffering that I see on every hand. But there is so much of it and the little that I am able to do seems to make very little difference. I pray daily that my Master will return and put an end to all of the sin and sorrow in the world against which I am so powerless. I am teaching others to have that hope and pray that prayer with me."

Before such a one we stand in deep humility. This man is prepared for the coming of Jesus.

God bless you, brother. Thou art indeed a profitable servant. We feel sure that when the Master comes He will say to you, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord" (Matt. 25:21).

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Sunshine Spreaders

Just recently I have become connected with the home study work which is sponsored by the National Berean Society. Often I wonder how many Bereans really know of the existence of this course of study, the reason for it, and what it is.

Mrs. Earl Thayer of Virginia is in charge of the classes. I am working under her, in the State of Minnesota. To date, I have twenty-one young people taking this course of study in the State of Minnesota, and hope to have a few from Bro. Denchfield's congregation in Iowa soon. Any young person up to sixteen years of age is eligible. My classes range in age from four to fifteen years. There are three divisions, Bible ABC's, Bible Foundations, and History of Worship, and each child is placed in the class which is most likely to fit his age and Bible education. There is no direct charge made for these lessons, but since this work is supported by voluntary contributions, we let it be known that any amount, however small, will be most welcome. Anyone may contribute financial aid, which will be greatly appreciated, and every cent used in sending the gospel of Christ to those who may not otherwise hear it.

Each child is furnished with the lesson sheets and pictures all ready to color and paste. This material is typed by the person in charge from an original copy sent by Mrs. Thayer, and the pictures have to be drawn, the hand work prepared, etc., then a complete set for two weeks is sent to each pupil. I enjoy the Bible ABC's most of all, and wish I could have all the little folks in a class so that I could watch them work. However, the other two courses are most interesting and instructive, too.

Our "chief," Mrs. Thayer, must spend hours and hours preparing lessons for all our little friends. I know this is true, because of the hours it takes to prepare the lessons for distribution from the copy she sends me. But after all, when these lessons come back to us, and we see the effort which is put into them to have them just right, and know how much the Sunshine Spreaders appreciate what is being done for them, we feel that it is well worth the time and effort it takes.

Mrs. Richard LeCrone.

Oregon, Illinois

The annual business meeting of the Oregon, Illinois, Berean Society was held on the evening of January 2, 1937.

Robert Hardesty was reelected president; Miss Lois Carpenter was elected vice president; and Arlen Marsh was elected secretary-treasurer. Lois Carpenter was appointed pianist by the president.

A party sponsored by the Berean society was held at the B. H. Carpenter residence on the evening of December 29 in honor of Miss Alice Gesin, who was home from college for the holidays.—Arlen Marsh, Secretary.

Intentions

"Young man, what are your intentions?" Many a young man has quailed under those searching words, and unless his intentions were honor bright, has gone off the field vanquished.

That custom of haling the daughter's boy friend up for an interview is no longer popular. But a young man's intentions are none the less put on the stand. He is judged by the way he deports himself. Just a word in favor of gossips: They have their place in the world, and many a person has been deterred from wrong by fear of "what they say."

Your intentions will decide your deportment. Have true Christlike intentions toward everybody, and do not fear to look any man in the face. The person with true intentions need not fear the gossip.

Some one has said: "The road to hell is paved with good intentions." Just a short while ago you were all making New Year's resolutions. Now we all are breaking them. But let us not drop the resolutions just because we break them. Good intentions cannot pave the above-mentioned road as long as we hold on to them. But when we drop them they become part of said pavement. Good resolutions should become part of us.

Perfect Heart

"For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him."—Hanani the Prophet speaking to Asa, King of Judah (2 Chron. 16:9). From this we see that God helps us when we have good resolutions and try to keep them.

There seems to be some doubt among our people as to our capabilities toward living perfectly and not sinning in thought, word, or deed. Some people even excuse themselves for doing wrong all the time by saying their flesh is weak. We recognize all this. In fact we recognize the impossibility of never thinking, saying, or doing wrong. But we cannot countenance that as an excuse for not trying.

What about the above words of the Prophet? God will show Himself strong on our behalf if we try to do right. Perfection of diligent intention is what is required. Paul says: "Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof" (Rom. 6:12). It is who we let have control of our willing obedience that counts. "Yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God" (v. 13). God "is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12).

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"A wise son maketh a glad father: but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother."

WHY A SERVANT LOST HIS JOB

MR. ALLEN was a very wealthy man. He had a beautiful home in the city and also one in the country. The country house was surrounded by level fields that stretched far off into the distance. A smooth, green lawn, graceful shade trees, well-cared-for flower beds—comfort and beauty everywhere.

Now the owner of all this estate was preparing to go on a long trip to a foreign country. He was busily making plans for himself and his family on the journey, as well as for the care of his property in his absence. They all loved their two homes, the one in the city and the other in the country, and they wanted to find them in good condition on their return.

Mr. Allen looked over the men who worked for him trying to choose one in each place to have entire charge while he was gone. At last he selected James Benson, who had been his head servant for years, to care for the city house.

But the selection of a manager for the country home took longer. There were so many things to consider. There were the children's pets which must be tended—the dogs, the cats, the rabbits, and the pony. Besides, there were the gardens, the lawn, and the fields, not to mention the fine, big house.

At last Mr. Allen picked out a man who had not been working for him very long, but who seemed to be trustworthy and capable. Henry Hewitt was his name, and he had come to Mr. Allen with good recommendations.

The happy Allen family—father, mother, John, and Patty—set out on their long trip to be gone three months or more. They visited many foreign cities, saw some strange and unusual sights, and enjoyed it all immensely. It was a real education to the two youngsters, as well as a recreation for all.

Underneath their enjoyment there always lingered thoughts of home. But Mr. Allen dismissed all worry. For had he not left two good servants in charge? They would take the very best of care of everything surely.

At last their wonderful trip came to an end, as all such things do, and they were once more on their way from the station to their beautiful city home. John and Patty could hardly wait till they got there. All their own familiar belongings would be around them. They would find their old favorite books and sleep in their own beds once again.

There was James, opening the door, and Martha, his wife, was standing just inside, waiting to welcome them. Smiles were on both their faces as they greeted their master and mistress and the children.

In the short time before retiring Mr. Allen noticed that everything had been cared for in the very best possible way. And the next morning he could see signs on every hand that James had been a faithful servant indeed. Mr. Allen lost no time in telling James and Martha so, and rewarded them well for their service.

Bright and early the next day they all started out for their country home, which, if they could make a choice, was their favorite. As the car drew near the drive they expected to see the dogs playing in their yard, but the place looked deserted somehow.

The lawn wasn't cared for as they were accustomed to seeing it, and there were actually weeds in among their beautiful flowers. No one stood at the door with welcoming smiles when they entered the house. Dust was on the fine furniture and rugs.

At once Mr. Allen went to the room given over to Henry Hewitt for an office. But Henry was not there, nor was he to be found anywhere. Neither of the other servants was home, only a boy whose job it was to tend and feed the pets, and he was asleep on a little pile of hay in the barn.

John and Patty ran to see the rabbits, the pony, and the dogs. All of them showed signs of neglect, but were overjoyed at the return of the children. John set to work currying the pony, while Patty fed the rabbits.

What do you think was the first thing Mr. Allen did? Yes, he awoke the lazy boy and asked him where Henry was and why everything had been so neglected.

"Why," said the boy, "we didn't think you'd be home until next week."

Little by little, Mr. Allen learned that Henry had been spending more and more of his time in the near by town, in idleness, and worse. He had been drinking and gambling, spending most of his good wages for things that brought harm to him.

At first the others had tried to keep things up, but gradually they grew discouraged and careless, not having a trustworthy manager over them. Henry, you may be sure, did not hold that position another day, nor was he rewarded as James and Martha had been.

Jesus, our Master, has gone into a far country and left us, His servants, in charge. Will we prove to be careless, unfaithful, and lazy servants? Or will we be faithful to the trust He has placed in us and receive the reward He has promised on His return?

AMONG THE CHURCHES

BROTHER CONNER AVAILABLE FOR SERVICES ON LAST SUNDAY IN JANUARY

There being five Sundays in January, Bro. L. E. Conner states that he will be glad to preach for any congregation desiring his services on the last Sunday of the present month. Any wishing to have Bro. Conner with them on January 31 will please communicate with him at once. His address is 610 N. Brinton Ave., Dixon, Ill.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE

The Northwest Conference will hold its next meeting February 5-7 at Corvallis, Ore.

We expect two interesting speakers to be present.

A hearty invitation is extended to all to come and worship with us.

Gladys Barber, Secretary.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

Tragedy has again come very close to our church family. On Friday night, Jan. 8, Charles Barr, father of our Robert and Evelyn Barr, who will be remembered by many attendants of General Conference, was struck by an automobile and instantly killed. Funeral services were held from the church on Tuesday, the 12th.

Bro. Joseph Holland, whose tragic accident was reported in last week's notes, is continuing to gain daily, and hope for his complete recovery is growing.

The pastor and wife were happy last week over the opportunity of accompanying Bro. George Hall on a business trip to Chicago where they visited with their daughter, Marjorie, and Mrs. Siple's sister and husband, the R. C. Duvals. Marjorie will complete her nurses' training at St. Luke's next month.

Sr. Shepherd has gone to Minnesota for the remainder of the winter with her son and family. She will be greatly missed while gone.

Bro. Harry Gockler was a very welcome visitor among our people last week for a few days, en route to Blanchard.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

We are in receipt of a letter from Bro. Elzie Robbins, 313 Fayette, Peoria, saying that they have rented a building in which to hold church services. The building will seat about 125. They will have to equip it with seats and a musical instrument. It is possible that some brother or sister would like to help furnish lumber for seats, or give a second hand organ or piano to this forward moving little group. We are glad for one outstanding fact concerning this group—they don't understand "can't."

As previously announced, the evangelistic party began meetings in the Moose Hall in Macomb on January 17. Length of meeting has not been ascertained yet. We understand that there are a few here who have been awaiting such an opportunity of instruction in order to become Christian. Pray for these and for us.

F. L. Austin,
J. W. McLain.

"THE WHOLE FAMILY CHURCH"

Our churches in various localities have adopted slogans designed to represent some outstanding quality or service rendered by them. For example, the church at Fonthill, Ont., which is situated in the center of the town, used the slogan "The Church in the Heart of the Village." At Niagara Falls, N. Y., it was "The Little Church With the Big Welcome." The Oregon, Ill., church, which always keeps an open Bible on the stand, calls itself "The Church of the Open Bible." One of the most interesting and suggestive slogans that has been recently brought to our attention is that of the Burr Oak, Ind., church, of which Bro. A. E. Hoskins is pastor. He has adopted as the slogan there "The Whole Family Church."

We would be glad if other churches would inform us of the slogans they are using.

"That article 'Growing Old Gracefully' (Jan. 5) is wonderfully inspiring and so helpful to make us take ourselves into account. Bro. (G. E.) Marsh must have a wonderful understanding of life and the words to express it."—Mrs. O. J. Dorsey, Leadville, Colo.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Bro. S. G. Elton, Ventura, Calif., tells of high tides and a severe storm that wrought much damage along the Pacific coast where he makes his home. Fortunately his own cottage was undamaged, but he has thought best to move "to a house more remote from the sea."

A letter from Sr. Claude Graham of St. Louis, Mo., reports that bad weather there has resulted in much sickness among their faithful group of believers. Sr. Blair's baby is recovering from diphtheria and a number, including Mrs. Leota B. Hanson, Ida Vogel, and Ada Graham, have been confined with the "flu."

As has been stated before in these columns, the National Bible Institution cannot accept charge orders for less than $1.00, except in the case of accounts frequently used. On smaller orders, bookkeeping and billing costs and credit losses are considerably greater than possible profits.

For the information of Church of God ministers seeking clergy certificates for railroad transportation, we state that, although no list of ministers will be printed in this paper during 1937, official lists have been filed with the offices of both clergy bureaus. Applications for certificates, therefore, can be made at any time.

The announcement of the marriage of Bro. O. J. Allard and Mrs. Mildred Lansing of Cedar Falls, Iowa, which appears elsewhere in these columns, will be of widespread interest in the Church of God. Bro. Allard during his many years' guidance of the Iowa Conference rendered a splendid and fruitful service to the church. The Restitution Herald extends to the happy couple its hearty congratulations and prays that the marriage will be followed by many years of congenial companionship.

"I believe that the Roman Empire must be rebuilt and that the present war in Spain has much to do with the furtherance of that purpose," wrote one of our most able students of prophecy to a mutual friend recently. The editor of The Herald fully agrees with him in his conclusions—both of them—and is watching with keenest interest and closest attention world developments from day to day.

The 44th anniversary of Aurora College was celebrated January 9. The college was first started in Mendota, Ill., as a seminary, under the name of Mendota College.

We hope you have been following the series of articles we have been publishing lately on the kingdom of God, from the pen of Evangelist T. A. Drinkard. The kingdom is the heart of the gospel. We cannot believe the gospel without first coming to a definite knowledge of the "things concerning the kingdom." Better read those articles again and then lend your papers to a friend to read.

A report on the winner of the contest which closed January 1 will be made in the near future. The answers that have been received are all helpful and it is difficult for the judges to determine just which one is the best, but a decision will be announced shortly.

Accompanying her letter with a generous contribution to help out in the work of the N. B. I., Sr. A. H. Fiske of Baltimore, Md., says: "I am glad to get the paper and think it is the best one published."

If you have not already done so, we suggest that you read the letter from Bro. James A. Patrick which appeared in our news columns last week. Evangelistic work must go on. The Lord requires it at our hands. The time is exceedingly short and our reward will be determined by the effort we put forth to further His cause before He comes.

A glance at the newspapers or a thoughtful reading of "Abreast of the Times" reveals that we are living in a most significant but confused and troubled age. How much the world stands in need of the Lord's return.

Poor little lad! Head crushed, naked, frozen in the snow! The victim of the most cruel of all criminals, the kidnaper. And poor heart-broken parents! You have a load of sorrow and of anguish to bear which time can never remove! How our hearts go out in sympathy to you. And how we long for the coming of the One who loved the children so dearly long ago! When He comes the streets of the city shall be filled with happy boys and girls playing in security and peace (Zech 8:5)!

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

It was the privilege of the writer to spend several days with the brethren at South Bend, and to conduct services for them Sunday, Jan. 10.

Although handicapped by the lack of a church building, this loyal group has maintained a very active Sunday school in the Y.M.C.A. hall for many years. One of the most interesting features of the work in South Bend is their Berean class. Composed entirely of young married people, with an average attendance of 16 to 20, this class meets in the various homes every Sunday night and really has discussions concerning the lesson that are both interesting and profitable.

During the past year a forward-looking step was taken when a building fund was started. It is hoped that within two or three years this fund will be sufficient to build a church building of their own. The possibility for growth is great and with a church of their own the work in South Bend will go forward with increased zeal.

Harry Goekler.

GOLDEN RULE NEWS

Cleveland, Ohio

The January issue of the attractive and informative bulletin of the Golden Rule Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, announces some interesting sermons for the coming month. Pastor M. W. Lyon will speak on the following themes on Sunday mornings: "The House of Prayer," "Betrayed by a Woman," "Rule and Exception in Bible Interpretation," and "Flesh or Spirit." The subjects for presentation in the evenings are: "The Origin of Man," "Men and Trees," "The Origin of Jesus," and "The Gates of Jerusalem." The announcements begin with Sunday, Jan. 10.

Fifty-one names are included in the Sunday school honor roll for the last quarter of 1936, which indicates an encouraging increase in regularity of attendance over the preceding quarter.

Something new in the way of honor rolls is indicated in the "Church Honor Roll," which records the attendance of members of the church from Sunday to Sunday and announces the names of those who do not miss a regular service. It would seem that such a record would serve as a stimulant to a lagging church member to be present at each appointed time of worship.

Why not add to this excellent plan a "Brought a Friend With Me" roll of honor?

The executive board deeply appreciates Bro. Lyon's clear and forcible presentation of the meaning of "Moral Obligation Sunday," to which he gives extensive space in his valuable little paper this month. The statement will appear later in The Herald.

"The Doom of the World Approaches!" is the startling headline of the excellent prophetic article which is contained in the January "Golden Rule News." We will soon find a place for this article in our columns.

LANSING - ALLARD

On January 7, 1937, O. J. Allard and Mrs. Mildred Lansing were united in marriage by the writer at the bride's home, Cedar Falls, Iowa. Mrs. Lansing is a long-time resident of Cedar Falls. Bro. Allard is an elder in the Iowa Conference of the Church of God, was president of the Conference for twenty years, and is one of the oldest ministers in the denomination. May this union prove fruitful of comfort, of happiness, and of divine service.

Charles W. Howe.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

The sick folks are gaining nicely. Sr. Mammie Currens goes to the hospital today for a minor operation.

Our annual business meeting brought us to another milestone in our work here. We had the largest gathering of this kind of which we have any record and the unity of spirit shown was good.

The ladies' class and their teacher, Sr. Guge, arranged the program which consisted of readings and musical numbers. The choir repeated several numbers which had been given by them during the preceding year.

Then came the election of officers—a long-drawn-out affair, but everyone was patient.

Reports of departmental surveys were encouraging. The Bereans had an average attendance of 15; the Bible school (for the last quarter) an average of 60 and for the year, 50. The ladies' society under Sr. Zechariah, like Dorcas, did a splendid work in its labor for the church.

Beginning with an effort to raise money to complete the basement in the church, and recognizing a new spirit of zeal in all departments, we feel that the year before us will see more accomplished than did the last.

Our official board will have new faces in various offices. Bro. Norman LaMunion will be the Sunday school superintendent; Bro. Ferris Zechariah, elder; Sr. Leona Zechariah, Berean president; and Bro. LaMunion, deacon. The other officers remain the same as last year.

Wednesday evening the Morning Star Class held its monthly meeting at the home of Sr. Leona Zechariah. Twenty attended. At the next meeting of the class it is planned to hold a debate on the proposition: "Resolved, That Moses was a greater leader than Joshua." This, it is thought, will be both interesting and helpful.

We thank you for your prayers on behalf of the work here and trust that we may continue to hold each other up before the throne of grace.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

ELIZABETH HARWELL HUMPHREYS

Another dear sister has passed away, the wife of G. M. Humphreys (Mrs. Elizabeth Harwell Humphreys).

Mr. and Mrs. Humphreys were married in 1887 and to this union were born four girls and five boys. Four of the boys and two girls preceded her in death. The three living children are Mrs. Dell Freeman of 2800 Central Ave., Hot Springs, Ark.; Lois Harris, Mt. Ida, Ark.; and Richard Humphreys, Story, Ark.

Mrs. Humphreys was born March 27, 1867, and died November 6, 1936. She was buried November 7 and a short service was held by a Christian minister. Then on December 6 Bro. E. O. Stewart preached the funeral sermon in the church at Bear, Ark.

Aunt Betsy was baptized into the Church of God in Mississippi by Bro. J. S. Hatch in 1891 and was a firm believer and kept the faith to her death. She had borne with much pain, grief, and sickness as she witnessed the death of six of her children, and she had been in ill health nearly forty years. She bore it all with much patience and had a smile for all. She was so faithful to her husband and family. Her Bible was her comfort. Many friends and relatives are left to mourn her death.

Mr. Humphreys is now with his daughter, Mrs. Dell Freeman. Should any of you wish to write him, send all mail to her address.

Rachel Humphreys Morris,

CHURCH OF GOD MESSENGER

In addition to a wealth of local church news, the last issue of the eight-page bulletin of the churches in the Niagara district, Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., contains a splendid article of some length entitled "More Spirit," by the pastor. (We plan to publish this in The Herald soon.) From its news items we cull the following:

Bro. Randall reports that the Midwest Advent Christian Ministerial Conference, to which the ministers of the Church of God were cordially invited and which he attended, was inspiring and helpful. The gathering was held in Aurora, Ill.

In announcing the forthcoming annual business meetings of the two churches, the pastor points out the biblical qualifications of the various officers to be chosen and declares that "if we select individuals for church officers for other reasons than their qualifications, we have failed to catch the spirit of the true church."

Several members of the Fonthill congregation have been quite sick lately. "Irvin Barnhart, Howard Shute, and little Betty Elliot are under quarantine for scarlet fever. Sr. Taylor has been sick for several weeks." In Niagara Falls "Sr. Oakley is still under the doctor's care, Sr. Faye Brown is entertaining the flu, while Bro. George Rennard (an elder of the church) is gaining ground gradually. Put all of these on your prayer list."

"Mrs. Alice Ann Lobb was baptized at our Fonthill services December 27. We bid her Godspeed as we welcome her into the family of God and pray that she may lead others into the truth as it is in Christ Jesus."

The following nine members of the Fonthill Sunday school had a perfect record of attendance for 1936: Fred Jones, Maurice Anger, Margaret Bell, Rena Fletcher, Celaine Randall, Mabel Fletcher, Ruby Haines, James Bell, and Ross Anger.

At the annual business meeting of the Sunday school the following officers were chosen: superintendent, William Holland; assistant superintendent, Joseph Fletcher, Jr.; secretary-treasurer, Rena Fletcher; organist, Margaret Shute; assistant organist, Fred Jones. The Social Committee consists of Margaret Shute, Florence Yarnell, Ruby Haines, Melvin Haines, and Celaine Randall, with Mrs. Holland as chairman.

J. W. GAMBLE

J. W. Gamble was born October 24, 1849, in Antrina County, North Ireland, near Belfast, emigrated to New York at nineteen years of age, married Eliza J. Corrigan in Brooklyn, N. Y., in the year 1871, went to Virginia and farmed for ten years, moved to Frontier County, Neb., in 1885, and was baptized into the one faith by Bro. Almus Adams on March 18, 1889.

He moved to Cambridge, Neb., in 1918 and then to Bartley, Neb., in 1920, where he remained until the enemy death came January 10, 1937. He now awaits the call of the Life-Giver.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, using 1 Corinthians 15:42-58 as a lesson together with Job 17:13 and 19:25-27, by request of the deceased. Services were held in the Christian Church in Bartley, after which he was laid to rest beside his wife in the Cambridge Cemetery, she having preceded him in death thirteen years ago.

Note: This obituary was written by Mr. Gamble February 15, 1933, except the date of death.

Grover Gordon,

On the Shelves

By Arlen Marsh

THE SON OF GOD

Albert Payson Terhune, whose stories about his own Sunnybank Kennels have made half the English-speaking world ache for a thoroughbred collie, produced most of The Son of God for The Ladies' Home Journal. Its magazine success led to its publication in book form.

The bite of cynicism touches almost every page. Jesus, the Son of God; Peter, the only apostle to raise his hand in his Lord's defense; and Thomas, who honestly doubted, are about the only characters mentioned in the Bible to escape the Terhune barbs.

Yet the sarcasm is not objectionable. It is too delightfully written to be objectionable, even if its substance were. And its substance isn't.

For here is a comparison of Jesus with Solomon, with Samson, with Moses, with David—with Terhune himself, in fact—that leaves the Christ as the outstanding character of all time, a semi-divinity, a personification of all that is good and noble and, at the same time, strong.

Newspaperman Terhune has introduced a considerable number of new ideas in his book. His discussion of the Christ's last words on the cross—His "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" and His "It is finished!"—is worth alone the cost of the entire volume. And the Terhune notion of the Communion service is no less worth while.

Jesus, through an entirely valid reasoning from the facts retailed in the Bible, is made to be no pallid ascetic, but a man of brawny arms and powerful torso, a man whose strength was phenomenal in a day when strength was common. And Terhune wonders who was small—Zacchæus or the Christ; the Bible doesn't say.

Terhune is no fault-finding modernist; he believes the Bible is inspired, he believes in miracles, he believes in the divine paternity of Jesus. But Terhune does suggest—proves, frequently—reinterpretations of Bible characters.

Before Palestine became a place for rapid transit busses, airports, and daily papers, Terhune wandered over the Judean hills in the tracks of Jesus. He swam the rivers, stopped in the towns, hiked over the rocky trails—and, although himself a man of exceptional strength, Terhune found that he could not equal Jesus' tours.

Harper & Brothers: $1.00; $1.10 postpaid.

THE POWER TO SEE IT THROUGH

This is a product of Harry Emerson Fosdick, upon whose head fundamentalists heap coals of scorn and whose shoes are licked by modernists who hope to approximate his talent.

The book is a series of twenty-five sermons—properly, not a series at all, for the sermons are not connected. Most of them comprise practical essays on the social gospel—which, after all, is only one phase of the entire gospel. There is no good reason for considering the social gospel outside the pale of Christianity, except as it teaches that man will save himself.

Of particular note is that discourse entitled "A Fundamentalist Sermon by a Modernist Preacher." The appeal of "the old paths," meaning the ancient dogmas of Christianity; the necessity for stirring moribund modernism to action, action of the sort that has been evident only among strict fundamentalists—these are the theme of the sermon.

The rest of the collection, however, is also worthy of note. Little, if any, of the book should be distasteful to the most ardent devotee of Bible inspiration and miracles. Every sermon has something well worth reading, and every sermon is written in a way that makes it interesting reading.

Dr. Fosdick has a habit of making his religion almost entirely intellectual. This, perhaps, is the opposite of the error of most fundamentalists, who try to make theirs almost entirely emotional. If one is capable of interpreting the Fosdick remarks in the light of the general Bible motif, The Power to See It Through will be considerably improved.

Harper & Brothers: $1.50; $1.60 postpaid.

BIBLE DICTIONARY

That's the simple, self-explanatory title of a truly valuable little book. The thing is issued in vest pocket size, suited to milady's purse as well as to a man's pocket. The type is blackface for captions and titles and remarkably legible roman for the body, although it is too small to be suited to anyone whose vision is bad.

This Bible dictionary is well illustrated with line drawings and reproductions of ancient tablets. The text is exceptionally complete for so small a book. Nothing of importance seems to have been omitted.

A. J. Holman Company: 35 cents postpaid.

THE KORAN

This is a large-type edition, with complete notes and a biography of Mohammed, of the holy book of Islam. The translation is the most authoritative and the most popular ever made—that by George Sale. For any student of comparative religion, or for the Christian who desires to know what Moslems believe about Allah—our Jehovah—this book should be the basis of study and information.

J. B. Lippincott Company: $4.50 postpaid.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JANUARY 26, 1937

NUMBER 17

The Inaugural

By the Editor

UNDER most impressive auspices Franklin Delano Roosevelt was, on January 20, reinaugurated President of the United States. With his hand resting upon an old Dutch Bible, an heirloom of the Roosevelt family, Mr. Roosevelt, who twenty-nine minutes before had ceased to be President, repeated after Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes these words:

“I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States.”

Before the inaugural ceremony took place the President, together with his family, Vice President Garner, and his cabinet officers, went to the little Episcopal Church a block from the White House where, at a private service conducted by Rev. Endicott Peabody, Mr. Roosevelt's old schoolteacher, special prayers were offered for the success of the Administration, concluding with these words: “We make our humble supplications unto Thee for this Thy servant upon whom is laid the responsibility for the guidance of this Nation.”

Every Christian might do well to echo that prayer regardless of his political affiliation or whether or not he takes any personal interest in political affairs. Keith L. Brooks, editor of Prophecy, commenting on the enormous majority by which the President was elected, says:

“What has just been witnessed in America is not just another election, nor is it merely the personal popularity of one man. There (Please turn to Page 11)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day

G. E. Marsh, Editor

Floods, Dust Storms, Erosion

"I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood."

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, Jan. 21.—The rapidly rising waters of the Ohio River, which already have inundated thousands of acres of farm land and forced 110,000 people from their homes in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys as it has poured its raging torrents into the "Father of Waters," caused the City Manager of this city of 43,000 to advise 13,000 of its residents to evacuate their homes. The overburdened Ohio swelled steadily from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, to Cairo, Illinois, the confluence point of the Ohio and the Mississippi. Schools are closed and business is suspended in many communities throughout the flooded area. Cincinnati calculated that the losses sustained there already have amounted to close to a million dollars. Fortunately the loss of life has not been so large as might have been expected, due to the excessive care of the authorities to notify residents of the threatened districts well in advance of the rising waters and to assist them in escaping from their homes to higher ground.

Government meteorologists are agreed that the cause of these disasters, the floods of 1913, 1927, 1936, and the present year, is to be attributed to the destruction of timber which permits the water from melting snow and heavy rains to rush unhindered down the hill and mountain sides.

In the "dust bowl" of the West, where semidesert lands have been denuded of their once luxuriant grasses to transform them into farming territory of doubtful value, erosion of winds is ceaselessly carrying off the shallow top soil and leaving the exposed surface barren and useless.

The conditions now being brought about in this country have been experienced in many other parts of the earth in past ages. Assyria, Palestine, Babylon, the Gobi, and even the Sahara Desert, were once abundantly fruitful, but wind and flood and the selfishness of man have made them into stretches of lifeless sand. The "Department of Agriculture" of the kingdom of God in the Age of Restitution will bring these devastated regions back to fertility, and the "solitary places," as the frozen poles, shall also be restored to the productiveness they once knew.

Drink-Crazed Man Shoots Three

"Envyings, murders, drunkenness . . . they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

WASHINGTON, Iowa, Jan. 21.—Crazed by drink, a forty-five-year-old stationary engineer killed a woman, wounded three men, and attempted to kill himself. The shooting occurred at the Diamond Inn, a combination roadhouse and gas filling station on the edge of this town.

What a striking illustration this terrible event provides of the depths to which human nature can go when under the influence of liquor. Not only does drunkenness rob one of his health, his sense of morality, and his temporal success in life, but it brings upon others anxiety, sorrow, and even death. Yet even this is not all. The unregenerated drunkard deprives himself of the possibility of eternal life in the kingdom of God. (Use with Sunday school lesson for January 31.)

The Human Engine

"God created man." "He knoweth our frame."—Deut. 4:32; Psalm 103:14.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 25.—Prof. Maurice B. Vischer of the University of Minnesota, who has been making a prolonged study of the heart action of animals, declares that the mammalian heart, which of course includes that of man, is twice as efficient in its consumption of fuel as is either the steam or gasoline engine that turns the wheels of modern manufactories and provides the power for our various transportation systems. According to Popular Mechanics (Feb., 1937), "A healthy heart can convert 20 per cent of the energy latent in its food supply into useful work. The fuel efficiency of the best steam engine is about 10 to 11 per cent. A good gasoline engine has a theoretical efficiency of 20 per cent, but under usual working conditions, its actual output drops to about half." Prof. Vischer has "isolated the living hearts of laboratory animals in such a way that he could measure the oxygen going in and the carbon dioxide going out."

Even under the curse and consequent inefficiency brought upon the human machine by sin, the work of the original mechanic is far superior to that of any creature whom He has made. The full possibility of the marvelous human mechanism will not be realized until in the time of restoration God "giveth it a body as it hath pleased him" (1 Cor. 15:38), one that will be 100 per cent efficient in its production of power, tireless in its operation, and which will never wear out.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

When the Pump Freezes

By the Editor

"WHEN the Pump Freezes" may sound like a strange topic for a sermon, but after all it is not the name you apply to a pie that makes it good, but the filling you put between the crusts. So let us consider the little allegory that follows and draw from it the lessons it has for us.

Did you ever go out on a cold winter morning and shovel a path through three feet of snow to the well only to find when you reached it that the pump handle would not move an inch either up or down? What a disappointing experience it was!

Back you went to the house, where the kitchen fire was not yet warm enough to melt the frost off the spout of the iron teakettle that stood on the back of the stove. Of course the kettle was nearly empty and what little water remained in the pail on the bench under the north window had turned to ice during the night.

There was nothing for it but for you to take a milk pail, go out and fill it with snow, set it on the stove and wait for the snow to melt and the water to heat so that you could use it to thaw out the frozen pump.

As you placed another hickory stick on the fire an icicle dropped from your mustache and fell hissing on the stove, leaving an unsightly ring on its polished surface. As the snow began to melt, it settled in the pail and you saw that you must go out in the cold again and replenish the supply if you were to have enough hot water to thaw the pump.

Your hand was damp, and as you inadvertently touched the iron lock on the door in going out, your finger was immediately welded fast to its frosted surface. Remembering past painful experiences, you did not jerk your hand away savagely, but breathed upon it for a moment and then gently withdrew it from the latch.

As you passed through the "summer kitchen" and out onto the porch you glanced at the thermometer beside the door and observed with a shudder that the red fluid in the glass marked a point thirty-two degrees below zero.

More snow, and still more snow, you carried in and crammed into the milk pail on the stove, which was now beginning to turn red just over the fire. When the water was boiling you hurried out to the well and poured the hot stream into the ice-encrusted top of the pump, at the same time trying to work the wooden handle up and down.

And what satisfaction you felt when at last the ice gave way, the handle rose and fell, giving forth those delightfully agonizing sounds which only a pump can make on a cold morning. And then the water came gushing from the depths below!

You filled the bucket and set it down, but continued to pump until the wooden trough beside the well was also filled in readiness for the stock which you must bring from the barn before the trough froze over again.

As you hurried back to the house the sun was just beginning to redden the snowy hilltop in the east meadow, but you did not linger to enjoy its glory or to meditate on the promise of the fine clear day which it foretold. You had to get that water to the house, feed and milk the cows, and carry in another armful of wood before the buckwheat cakes began to sizzle appetizingly in the fat pork on the griddle and the delightful aroma of "Arbuckle's" or "Four X" coffee arose from the bubbling pot on the back of the stove.

But there could be no breakfast and no drink for man or beast until the water flowed from the frozen pump! Everything depended upon the thawing of the pump.

In this little reminiscence there lies an allegory, several allegories in fact, which we might consider profitably this cold winter morning.

First, there is the matter of appreciation.

As we review such an experience as that of the frozen pump, those of us who have forsaken the country for the town would do well to ponder on the happier conditions under which we live and work today than those we knew in the past. Anything that serves to remind us of the blessings we now possess is spiritually helpful.

Another lesson the frozen pump teaches is that of sympathy—sympathy for those who still labor to bring water from an ice-bound well. Of course the frozen pump is a symbol of many difficulties and hardships which men and women, less fortunate than ourselves, suffer in the world around us. Sympathy is a Christlike quality which it is well for us to develop.

But these are not the lessons I would draw from the allegory of the frozen pump today. I think it has a deeper, a more important and vital lesson for us. As we approach that lesson I would observe that our story has to do with water, one of the first essentials of life, and with the difficulty we sometimes encounter in our efforts to procure it. (Please turn to Back Page)

The Kingdom of God

Number 7

By T. A. Drinkard

"Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations."—Psalm 145:13.

THE book of Psalms contains a most wonderful message about the kingdom of God. In the first part of his message David discusses the kingdom question, and shows that when it is set up Christ will be sitting upon the "holy hill of Zion" "in Jerusalem" (Psalm 2:6; Isa. 24:23), and closes his message saying that the saints will have the honor of executing "the judgment written" (Psalm 145:5-9). This is in perfect harmony with Revelation 2:26, 27; 2 Timothy 2:12. Nothing short of a literal Mount Zion as a central location for the kingdom headquarters, a literal King, even Jesus Christ, a literal throne, will meet the demands of prophecy.

There is one of two ways of understanding the application of prophecy that we must accept: it is to be understood or taken either literally or figuratively. You will note that I have presented the literal view. Not long ago a minister said to me that no such a man as Jesus Christ ever lived and died, and that all references to such should be taken in a figurative sense.

To be sure, there are figures of speech in the sacred Book, but to figurize prophecy to the point of mystical theorism is but to destroy the real meaning thereof. If Mount Zion and Jerusalem mean something else than what they are, then may the Lord not be something else than what He is? The leaders of religious thought know that these scriptures are in the sacred Book, and that they do not harmonize with their theory; therefore, they try to give them a spiritualistic meaning, that they can't explain, much less their followers, and there they leave it.

I deeply appreciate knowing that God could foresee, and caused His prophets to foretell, the many dangers along the way of life, and saw to it that such instruction was given that would enable His people to stand firm and true to Him. His Word is more precious than gold, and all the glittering theories of human make-up.

Representing the divine plan, Haggai 2:22 says, "And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen." Here are human thrones, kingdoms, and strength of kingdoms referred to. Are they literal? They are to be destroyed—come to an end—and that by the kingdom of God. Were they destroyed in the days of Christ's personal ministry, on the day of Pentecost, or since? They are still here, warring and fighting among themselves; but their end is nearing, thank God.

Jesus Christ, speaking of the time when He will "sit in the throne of his glory," has this to say: "Ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel" (Matt. 19:28). Since Jesus clearly shows that He does not "sit in the throne of his glory" until "in the regeneration," and since He is not now on His throne, the logical conclusion is that "the regeneration" has not arrived. Again we can say, Since He is to "sit in the throne of his glory" "in the regeneration," and since He is not to "sit upon the throne of his glory" until He "shall come in his glory," "the regeneration" will not come until Christ comes again (Matt. 19:28; 25:31).

For me there is a distinction to be made between the Father's throne and the throne of Christ, as you may readily see by carefully reading Revelation 3:21. The Father's throne is present, while the throne of Christ is future. The throne of the prophecy of Luke 1:32, 33 is the throne of Christ and not the Father's throne. According to Psalm 11:4 "the Lord's throne is in heaven," and according to Psalm 103:19 "the Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens." Psalm 45:6: "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever." Isaiah 66:1: "Thus saith the Lord, The heaven is my throne."

I understand that the Father's throne is established in heaven for all time and that He has never abdicated, nor will He ever abdicate that throne for any person or persons, not even for Jesus Christ (1 Cor. 15:27). I say this, for there are those who contend that the kingdom was reset up on Pentecost, and that when the kingdom of God was set up on the earth with Saul as its first king, succeeded by David and Solomon, God abdicated His throne and transferred it to earth, and it was then called the throne of David. And after the kingdom was destroyed the throne was returned to heaven and God was reseated thereupon; hence, when Jesus ascended the Father's throne of Revelation 3:21, He ascended His throne, or rather David's throne.

If there is no difference between the Father's throne and the throne of Christ, which is to be the throne of David reestablished, then when Saul sat on the throne, it having been transferred from heaven to earth, God was without a throne, and heaven was without a ruling King. Such human philosophy is taught to tear down the truth and to build up error, but God's Word will succeed in the accomplishment of its purpose.

Even the covenant that God made with David included the building or establishing of the kingdom and its throne, as we read, "I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations" (Psalm 89:3, 4). God further declares, "My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips" (v. 34). And "his seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me. It shall be established for ever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven" (vv. 36, 37). The sun and the moon are great planetary lights which "God set . . . in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth" (Gen. 1:16, 17). They are established there forever as witnesses, and just as long as they exist, just that long will the throne of David be. The perpetuity of the throne of David is here compared to that of the sun and moon—endless.

The Doom of the World Approaches

By M. W. Lyon

MORE ominous with each passing week grows the lurid glow of Spain's civil war! The fuse of that conflict is burning perilously close to the bombshell of a world explosion. Fear stalks over Europe today. Jealousy, suspicion, and hatred grip the hearts of men. While yet the world is reeling under the effects of the last war, madmen, blind to the lessons of experience, heedlessly plunge their nations and the world toward another even more frightful holocaust! Even now, as though drawn by an irresistible hand into the maelstrom of horror, Americans and Frenchmen are once more fighting Germans, and Italians are pitted against Russians, on the slaughter fields of Spain!

Where are now the high hopes for peace and idealism among the nations? Where are the treaties for limitation of armaments? Within the week they have become as dead as the old year, expiring without renewal. Brute force now reigns supreme. It is back to the law of the jungle! So now we are embarked upon the most appalling arms race in all history. Do you know what all this means?

Across the streets of Madrid the loyalists flung a banner bearing the legend, "Madrid Will Be the Tomb of Fascism!" It may well be the tomb of civilization, if events continue as they are going now! Across the years those warning words of the Master's now assume a terrible import, "Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after the things that are coming on the earth" (Luke 21:26).

Seven years ago, in a sermon on "The Seeds of War" the pastor of this church warned that disarmament was coming too soon, and that the nations would live to regret their folly of scrapping their ships of war. That day is here! The nations are heading straight toward Armageddon. Hear from God's Word what is coming:

"When they shall say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh" (1 Thess. 5:3). "For I will gather all nations to battle" (Zech. 14:2). "Prepare war . . . beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears" (Joel 3:9-14). "There shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation" (Dan. 12:1). "I saw three unclean spirits . . . go forth unto the

The following is one of a series of articles explaining the distinctive beliefs of the Church of God which has been published in Golden Rule News, the paper issued monthly by the Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio. The reader is urged to look up the references given and to study them carefully. The article provides excellent material for the use of Bible classes.—Editor.

11-21). These are not fulfilled prophecies but are associated directly with the coming of Christ, still future. Be not deceived! The world is not getting better and better. The churches will never destroy war and bring in peace on earth, the Federal Council of Churches notwithstanding. All of the misguided efforts of the churches to bring about world peace through agreements are based upon the idea that the church is the kingdom. As the Jews failed to distinguish between the first and second advents of Christ, so has Christendom erred in failing to distinguish between the church and the kingdom!

But the two are quite distinct. God's Word is very clear on this point. The church was to be established at Christ's first coming (Acts 2:47); the kingdom, not until the second coming (Matt. 25:31; Luke 19:12; 2 Tim. 4:1). The church is to be non-political, and deal with individuals (Mark 16:15, 16); the kingdom is to be political, and deal with nations (Matt. 25:31, 32; Rev. 11:15-18). The kingdom is to become universal and stand forever (Dan. 2:44; Matt. 13:31-33; Luke 1:32, 33; Psalm 72:8-11); the church, like her Master, is to be despised and rejected of men (Matt. 10:22-25; Luke 18:8; 2 Thess. 2:1-10; 2 Tim. 4:3, 4; 2 Peter 3:3, 4). The kingdom will operate through law and force (Luke 19:27; 2 Thess. 1:6-10; Rev. 2:26, 27; Isa. 60:12); the church is forbidden to ever use force (Luke 6:27-36; Rom. 12:17-21; 1 Thess. 5:15).

Believe not the false prophets who cry, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." They are discredited by Scripture and now by experience itself. Put your trust in Jesus, and flee from the wrath about to break upon the world in billows of woe which will drive the kings and great men of the earth to call on the mountains to fall on them and hide them from the wrath of the Lamb (Rev. 6:15-17)!

"For the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"

Death and Life—Temporal and Eternal

By W. R. Young

IT IS certainly a fact that death from old age, and even from accident or disease, cannot be precisely the same thing as penal death. And it is equally true that the death threatened to Adam as the consequence of disobedience to God meant something more than a loss of life from either of these causes, but was a penalty to be inflicted immediately—"in the day thou eatest thereof." This would involve violence—a violent death visited upon him in the very prime of life, because nothing short of this could deprive of life any creature in a perfect condition, such as was the case with Adam at that time. Some years ago I ascertained from two leading Hebrew scholars that the idiom "dying, thou shalt die," has no suggestion of a lingering death, but was merely an expression of strong affirmation used also in various other cases.

Why then, was not our first father slain at once? The only possible answer to that question is to be found in the doctrine of expiation as the highest possible expression of divine grace, which provided at once a substitute who would be legally qualified to take Adam's place as a source of new life to mankind, a life which would owe nothing to law, because it was itself the very fountain of all law.

How do we know these things? Is there any Scripture to sustain them? Yes, Christ is termed "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." But was He slain then? Yes, in type, thereby manifesting the divine purpose by the violent death that very day of certain animals. Is not that mere theory? No! Where did those bloody skins come from, with which God clothed Adam and Eve? Only from slain animals. Who had killed them? Not Adam, but assuredly it was by divine act or decree. And this typical slaughter of "the Lamb of God" was repeated a countless number of times, the first mentioned being the animal sacrifices of Abel and then perhaps the murder of Abel himself "by wicked hands" as the first human type of the Victim of Calvary. But this long string of typical sacrifices was cut short by the great antitypical fulfillment of all the types, whereby the second Head of the human family, their new source of life, was violently deprived of His own life at its very prime. No death of Christ by disease, or in babyhood or old age, would have met the requirements of the case. Only a violent death at the summit of life would have qualified the Savior, through His resurrection to eternal life, to counteract the awful damage effected by our first head, which would have left us in eternal death had not a second head been provided who could conquer death.

We see, therefore, that, although death has been entailed upon the human race by the ultimate failure of our natural vitality, this could never meet the requirement of "the law of sin and death" and at the same time provide a way of escape for man from extinction of being, so that he might live forever. In order to make death really effective as an unmistakable penalty for sin without destroying the sinner, a new head for mankind had to be provided, one who was entitled to another kind of life, one which was essentially deathless, and therefore over which the law had no jurisdiction because it was itself the very source of all law and all life. And this was the life of Him who "only hath immortality," but which He shared with His "only begotten Son." No other being in the universe directly shared this essential possession of "the ever-living God." But this Son, being also human, could at first meet the death due to the race of which He undertook a new headship, and then live again in His immortal Father's life, to be a source of this new life of combined humanity and divinity to all who would become His seed by regeneration, initiated by faith and the Holy Spirit during the present life and subsequently brought to full fruition in a resurrection or transformation to complete fitness for death-proof existence.

The tree of life in the Garden of Eden, from which our first parents were excluded after they had sinned, could not have been a channel of God's immortality or inalienable life to man. He never intended to convey immortality through a tree, but it served as a type of His ultimate purpose whenever mankind might become fitted for such an infinite endowment. So long as Adam and Eve had access to that tree they could stave off old age and prolong their natural life, but they were not permitted to do this after they had forfeited their title to that life. The typical tree of life seemed to have some healing virtue to counteract disease or decay, as we learn from Revelation 22:2, but could not be a vehicle of the inalienable life of God, no matter how often it was partaken of. But even this way to prolong natural life was lost on account of sin, although the full penalty of violent and immediate death had been remitted, except in the case of the new Head, in order that a human race might be brought into existence to form a wide field for the operation of the greatest possible manifestation of God's infinite wisdom and power, providing them with the opportunity to obtain a life immeasurably greater than the one they had lost, even if it had continued sinless, which it did not.

We see, therefore, that the language of Scripture so often used in connection with the death of Christ as an all-sufficient penalty for the sin of Adam and for the sins of his posterity, is literally correct, and this could not be better expressed than in Bible language. . . . But if He had not been "obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" there could have been no forgiveness, and no eternal life for us. Nor would there have been any manifestation of such a wonderful combination of divine justice and

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

More Spirit

By C. E. Randall

"The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." — 2 Cor. 3:6.

THE Jews had been trusting in the letter of the law, thereby failing to discover the spirit of the commandments. The law said: "Thou shalt not kill"; they observed the letter and refrained from murder. The spirit of the message of love and good will was lost sight of. They merely drew nigh God with their mouth; their heart was far from Him. This is the result of observing merely the letter of the Word. When the letter is followed and the spirit is neglected, the heart remains cold and unchallenged by the gospel. Sometimes tithing is practiced because of promised benefits. Such a system of giving is cold and truly typical of letter observance. On the other hand, when giving is inspired by appreciation of God's goodness and as evidence of thankfulness, the giving becomes spirit-actuated and is life-giving. Recognizing giving as an expression of love rather than cold obedience to a command gives a different motive to our financial contributions. It carries a warmth and a heartiness which are termed "cheerful giving."

Jesus said, "Follow me." Letter-of-the-word implications would call forth a literal following of Him as He went from place to place in Galilee and Judea. The spirit of the saying simply means, accept My sayings and do them; observe My ways and emulate My actions. There is life-giving power in following Jesus, when His command is interpreted according to the spirit. It is a joyful experience, bringing happiness to the individual.

Careless and thoughtless eating of the bread and drinking of the wine because it is commanded is a far call from the spirit of the Lord's Supper. Many of the Corinthian brethren were eating of these memorials without discerning the Lord's body. Such is tragic! We have known people who were saintly in observing the Communion service at stated intervals, had a good conception of the death of Christ and its reach of redemption from a dogmatic viewpoint, and yet they wouldn't even speak or shake hands with some of their church brothers and sisters. Had they caught the spirit of this service as Jesus intended? Draw your own conclusions. But don't you see the possibility of observing the letter of the Word and at the same time being sadly lacking in grasping the spirit of the teaching?

There can be little doubt or question as to whether we are correct in our conclusions on baptism as far as doctrine is concerned. The letter of the Word is quite plain in stating the mode of baptism as being a burial. A correct baptismal mode is little more than a "ducking" unless we catch the spirit of the operation and walk in "newness of life." It is quite possible in our zeal to correct the false impressions concerning the mode that too little attention is given to the significance and spirit of the service. If after baptism the immersed continues in his old habits and observes his old sinful customs, does it seem that he has sensed the spirit of baptism? He has obeyed the letter of the Word, but it would appear that he has fallen far short of the spirit of the Word.

God, in speaking of forgiveness, says He removes our sins from us as far as the east is from the west and that they shall come into remembrance no more at all. Forgetfulness is thus linked with forgiveness. In our study, teaching, and practice of forgiveness, are we rotating around the letter of the subject—ceremoniously forgiving, but never forgetting? Recently a person was quoted as saying, "I never forget." What would our status be before the merciful Mediator if He never forgot? Don't you agree with the statement, "We need more spirit in our interpretation, application, and practice of Christian teachings?" "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

The power of the Word is its spirit. In one of our early publications we ran across the following, which we believe will fit in nicely with the article. It is entitled "Secret of Impressiveness." In order to make others feel, we must first ourselves feel. Deep conviction is contagious. It wins its way. It speaks in the eye, the looks, the tone, the attitude, the gesture. Other things being equal, a man's force in impressing others is in the ratio of his own "heart force." Goethe said:

"Persuasion, friend, comes not by toil or art;
Hard study never made the matter clearer;
'Tis the live fountain in the speaker's heart
Sounds forth the streams that melt the ravished hearer
Would you teach the heart? The only method known,
My worthy friend, is first to have one of your own."

There must be more spirit in our lives in our daily relationships with our fellow men. Our claim to sainthood is lost as far as its influence is concerned, if in our daily relationships we manifest a Pharisaical spirit, "God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican" (Luke 18:11). It is true that we are in the world, yet not of the world, but this is not a mandate giving us authority to alienate ourselves from the needs of the world or disassociate ourselves from "eating and drinking with sinners." Our duty toward all men is to live and practice the Christ-spirit of helpfulness, kindness, and neighborliness. In this respect we are a very forceful part of the world. "Ye are the salt of the earth." Is the world over-seasoned or can it stand a little more?

—Church of God Messenger.

Giants in the Earth

"THERE were giants in the earth in those days," that is, men of renown, great men, heroes. This was written of the days of Noah. Evidently one of the predominating characteristics of the antediluvians was a plethora of great men, to whose worldly wisdom and leadership the inhabitants of that doomed world looked, rather than listen to the unpopular warnings of God's preacher of righteousness. And though Noah preached to them for 120 years, endeavoring to stem the rising tide of iniquity, they perished, along with their giants, in the flood; and God through Noah's family gave the world and civilization a fresh start.

Looking backward to the time of the flood and forward to our own generation, the Savior uttered the prophetic words, "As the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." And not only have the lawlessness and immorality of Noah's time come to warn us of the approaching end, but surely the day of giants has also returned. Although the World War was fought to make the world safe for democracy, democracy is finished; liberty is being surrendered; and each nation is beginning to look to its one strong man, its idol, to lead it up out of the depression, and give it a place in the sun. The precious heritage of conscience and freedom of speech for which our forefathers bled and died is being sold for a mess of pottage.

Slavish, unreasoning obedience is demanded by these modern giants. "I enjoin on you the strictest and blindest discipline," says one. "Henceforth all individual action must cease." Listen to this oath taken by the members of a certain Girl Guides and Youth Organization: "I swear inviolable loyalty to _____, and unconditional obedience to him and to the leaders chosen by him." No place for conscience here! During the World War the Kaiser is reported to have said, "Conscience? We smash men's consciences!" Now some nations would go a step further, and simply abolish them. The price of safety in several countries today is to "salute and keep your mouth shut," and there is a ruthless resorting to force to stamp out all opposition, and everywhere a determined preparation for war that bodes ill to the cause of world peace.

We do not question the patriotism or the sincerity of these movements and their supporters; but one trembles at the tremendous power for weal or for woe thus placed in the hands of one man. Even in our own country we find forces at work tending to place unlimited power in the hands of leaders at the price of individual liberty. The Constitution is threatened; the foundations of government are being tampered with, while the whole nation looks on, spellbound, hypnotized, seeing the deceitful mirage of promised prosperity shimmering on the hazy road ahead. "We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way" is the uncertain feeling of the great majority.

"A new sort of hero worship is arising . . . which saps the very foundations of individuality and makes the individual prostrate himself before his national leader as before a god. That way extreme danger lies. The disappearance of the sturdy, independent-minded, freedom-loving individual and his replacement by a servile mass mentality is the greatest human menace of our times." This is the opinion of General Smuts of South Africa, as expressed in a speech on "The Future of Liberty," reported in the Cape Times of October 18, 1934.

"I think of Mussolini as a god." This is not the hysterical utterance of some sentimental, hero-worshipping maidservant, but part of a sober speech made by Italo Balbo, Italy's famous Flying Squadron leader who not so long ago flew with his fleet of fifty planes to New York and back—a man whom we may well take to be level-headed and calculating. When a person of his enlightenment and position not only thinks but gives public utterance to such idolatrous sentiments, what can be expected from the common people? While it is a Christian duty to "honor the king" and give loyal support to those in authority, we must raise our voices in protest when men would invest their leaders with the prerogatives of God.

Balbo's statement reminds us of a similar insinuation made long ago to the mother of all living: "The serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: . . . ye shall be as gods." That was the Devil's lie, but it sounded good to Eve; and men still like to believe that old deception that there is something divine, immortal, and omnipotent in themselves. They are ready to pay homage to these supermen, who are pleased to accept a worship which holy men of old, and even angels, refused to receive. When Italo Balbo's countryman of an earlier generation, "Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band," fell at Peter's feet in worship, Peter seized his hands and pulled him upright with the command, "Stand up; I myself also am a man." When John the Revelator was about to worship the angel, he was stayed by the warning, "See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant, . . . worship God." We used to pity the unenlightened Chinese for burning incense to his ancestors—worshiping his dead men; but now some would improve on his heathenism by worshipping the living!

THE PASSION TO BE GREAT

The passion to be great has become an obsession in our age. There are giants and would-be giants in every walk of life. We have our industrial monarchs, our oil kings, steel kings, rubber kings, auto kings, cattle kings, sugar lords, and racketeer millionaires. We have our brilliant lights in the great business of amusing the multitudes—our movie stars whose extravagant portrayal of, and appeal to, the weaknesses of the flesh is only too successfully bringing about the same condition that existed before the flood—"marrying, and giving in marriage, . . . and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away." Some of these stars have been married—can one call it that?—as many as nine times, and are still going strong, shining examples to our modern youth! We call them movie stars, and while they scintillate they command fabulous salaries. The Bible speaks of “wandering stars,” but their final reward is anything but attractive—“to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever”—surely a fitting retribution for the harvest of ruined lives reaped from their sensual sowings in the impressionable minds of millions of youth.

Yes, a species of megalomania is taking possession of this generation, destroying the faculty of sober reasoning. Anything from the ridiculous to the sublime is eagerly seized upon as a vehicle to carry one's name to the front page of the newspapers. Most of our American heroes are made of nothing. Such contests as egg eating, tree top sitting, chimney perching, and many other endurathons, against which some States have had to pass stringent laws, are a sad reflection upon a mentality that would stoop to the foolish in an effort to become great. Equally deplorable is the foolish spirit by which men become admirers of men, imitators of their idiosyncracies, thinkers of other men's thoughts. The virile, independent, pioneer spirit of our fathers is fast disappearing, engulfed in the crowd and in the follow-the-leader spirit of the age. Mass production applies now to men as well as to motor cars; and the leaders know how to exploit this condition. The depression hasn't depressed this trend, but rather accentuated it. At a time when men should turn with humbled hearts to God, confessing their sins and seeking for heavenly guidance, we find them looking worshipfully to their great leaders, their giants, in the blind hope that they will lead them up into the light.

As opposed to this trend of our modern world, the Bible warns us against depending upon man. “Give us help from trouble, for vain is the help of man.” “It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in princes.” “Cursed be the man that trusteth in man.” “Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help.” Lord Wolsey must have realized the truthfulness of these words when, broken-spirited and nearing the end, he exclaimed, “Had I but served my God as faithfully as I have served my King, He would not have forsaken me in my old age.” The ancient giants failed to save the antediluvian world, and their modern counterparts will not save ours.

And there is a still stronger warning to these great men themselves. “Thus saith the Lord, Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches” (Jer. 9:23). “Let not”! Men disregard this divine prohibition at terrible risk. Herod paid for it with his life. “Upon a set day Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, sat upon his throne, and made an oration unto them. And the people gave a shout, saying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man. And immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost” (Acts 12:21-23). The judgments of God may not always fall at once; but we are assured of a final reckoning that none can escape. “The loftiness of man shall be bowed down, and the haughtiness of men shall be made low: and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day” (Isa. 2:17). The last we hear of these great men is in the closing book of the Bible, “The kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?” (Rev. 6:15-17).

The day of God draws on apace. Unmistakable signs in earth, sea, and sky herald its approach. How will it find you—trusting in the giants, following the hero-worshiping crowd down the broad road to destruction, or trusting in God, climbing the narrow pathway to life eternal? “Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is.”—Arthur Mountain in Signs of the Times.

0

FROM HERE—WHITHER?

By Grace M. Marsh

OUR grandfathers who pioneered the land built their log churches at a cost of hard labor urged on by the thought that their children would be better for religious influence. They were naively glad to be hosts to the visiting circuit rider, waiting anxiously for each return. Today experimental towns are being refused the influence of the church on the premise that their budget cannot support it.

Seventy years ago many a student in country schools had only the Bible and the dictionary for his textbooks. Now in elementary and high schools the Bible has no place. Result? Listen as some upper bracket students try to read it intelligently!

Fifty years ago profane men acknowledged their sins by refraining from swearing in the presence of ministers and women. Today the female of the species can often be heard outswearing her mate while her children listen in. And a clergy that does not believe in God can scarcely be expected to be a restraining influence on the profane public.

In 1890 ladies' fashion magazines portrayed styles for wear at church services. Today styles are listed variously as “sport,” “Sunday supper,” “cocktail hour,” or “sun suits” which prove to be no suits at all.

Forty years ago a woman who entered a saloon did so through the back door at the cost of her place in decent society. Today the taverns and bars cater to women whose names appear on the social register of Any Town.

The Recurrence of Doctrine

IN 1885, A. J. GORDON, than whom this country had no greater, was asked to give an address at the Newton Theological Seminary, from which he had graduated in 1863. His subject was on the changes of emphasis made by the church of God through the centuries, and referred to Peter's praise of some of his contemporaries because they were "established in the present truth." He asked: Is not all truth eternal? Is there such a thing as present truth?

But what we call the present time, he reminds us, is simply that part of eternity which is in immediate contact with us. And in a similar sense there is such a thing as "present truth"—that phase of doctrine which presents itself most strongly to our own time and generation.

Progress in doctrine there cannot be, since there is no new truth, but a recurrence of doctrine there must be. That phase of Christian doctrine will push itself so far to prominence which is most needed to meet and correct the most popular error that shall appear, and it is by this very recurrence of truth that great revivals and reformations have been effected.

"Retracing the history of the Reformation from its first beginnings, our Protestant theology seems to have been a century plant which has bloomed every hundred years, filling a whole generation with its fragrance, and with each blossoming yielding a different type of flower and fruit. It was a hundred years from John Huss to Martin Luther; it was a hundred years from Martin Luther to John Owen; it was a hundred years from John Owen to John Wesley; it was a hundred years from John Wesley to Charles Spurgeon. Each of these names stands as the representative of a great religious movement—a movement which has exhibited some special phase and feature of our common Christianity.

"The Bohemian revival, which centered in John Huss, was an extraordinary movement. For profound feeling and widespread agitation it has hardly been surpassed by any reformation. And what was the watchword of this movement? I should say it was 'the eucharist for the people.'

"The Roman Church had deprived the laity of the cup in Communion, and now there was a mighty uprising against this mutilation of the sacrament. In a word, the Bohemian reformation took the form of a sacramental revival.

"The pendulum swings across a century and touches Martin Luther in his pulpit in Wittenberg. The watchword of his reformation, I need not remind you, was 'justification by faith.' That text which fell upon his ear as he was climbing the steps of Pilate's stairway, 'The just shall live by faith,' gave color and complexion to the whole mighty movement.

"A hundred years from Martin Luther brings us to John Owen, the Nonconformist vice chancellor of Oxford University." The watchword of Puritanism was "personal righteousness." Puritanism did not wipe out the doctrine of grace, but it interlined it with the handwriting of the law.

Another century, and from the same university came John Wesley, whose watchword was "the witness of the Spirit." In an age of barren externalism a strenuous plea was put forth for a radical interior piety. Christ's work for us had been set forth by Luther; the Spirit's work within us was the burden of Wesley's preaching.

And now, asked Dr. Gordon, is there any phase of doctrine coming so to the front in this day that it may be called the "present truth"?

"Have you thought," he asked, "how large a proportion of the Old Testament is prediction? And is it, therefore, of no use to the practical working church of today? Nay. This vast profusion of prophetic light falling upon the minds of Isaiah and Ezekiel and Jeremiah and David, and the minor prophets, and treasured up in their inspired pages, may soon be needed. And they who are delving in these mines of eschatology, instead of being engaged in an aimless and profitless toil, may be providing the church with the needed warmth for that predicted time when 'iniquity shall abound, and the love of many shall wax cold,' and light for the day foretold by the watchman of Idumæa, 'The morning cometh, and also the night.'

"And now we come to ask the question whether there is any faulty tendency in our current eschatology which this powerful reassertion of the primitive doctrine of our Lord's second coming is likely to correct. Here I speak with the utmost caution and with the sincerest deference to the views of others. But I am strongly persuaded that such a tendency does exist.

"By a ghastly anachronism, death has been substituted for the coming of Christ in the common teaching; and thus a false center has been set up in our eschatology, by which the doctrines pertaining to the last things have been thrown into eccentric relation. Ask the question, 'When does sanctification end?' and the common answer is, 'At death.' Ask the question, 'When do the rewards of the righteous accrue?' and still the answer generally comes, from evangelical theology, 'At death.' Ask the question, 'When does the resurrection take place?' and the answer comes from Liberals and New Departurists, and from a considerable company of the orthodox, 'At death.' To us it seems uncontestedly clear that the Bible makes the advent, and not the grave, the supreme goal of the church's hope. And lest you should accuse me of speaking presumptuously, I wish you would search the Bible for yourselves, and note how constantly the soul's progress toward perfection is inspired and bounded by that one divine event, the coming of our Lord. You can collate scores of texts to this effect, all finding a fitting climax and summary in that grand utterance of Paul as it stands in the Revised Version. 'And may your spirit and soul and body be preserved entire, without blame, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.' The same may be said of the divine rewards. The promise of them is almost without exception timed by this great event."—The Messiah's Advocate.

MAKING FRIENDS WITH LIFE

REV. JAMES REED of England in a recent volume of essays offers some helpful suggestions on making friends with life. It is an arresting phrase.

Paul discovered the secret. He wrote, "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." However fierce the storms might be without, he had peace within.

Some people, even some Christians, never learn that lesson. They are suspicious of life. They do not fully enjoy the unclouded moment by reason of fear that the sun may not shine tomorrow. Life has them on the defensive. They are never quite happy, never wholly at ease.

They need to learn the art of realizing the joys that pass. It is possible to pass all of one's life getting ready for some good time ahead and so never enjoy the present. There is sound philosophy in the suggestion of Jesus that we live one day at a time. The multitude of lesser joys that are within reach day by day may be more fruitful of happiness than the greater joys for which we plan long and wait in vain.

Then, too, we need to learn the grace of acceptance. Rebellion is the way to bitterness. It is like salt rubbed into a wound. It may spring from pride or from a wrong view of what we think is our desert. Some of our worst difficulties come from impatience or self-will. We get irritated with people. But people, too, may be part of God's discipline. Nothing can really hurt us if we will take it as part of the lot of life and be at peace in the spirit of quiet acceptance.

The deepest secret is to make Christ our Master. First we need to catch His vision of the God who is behind the whole experience of life. He is love. And then we need to seek Christ's fellowship so that we may catch the spirit in which life may be met in faith and courage. "He that drinketh of this water shall never thirst."—Aurora College Notes.

DEATH AND LIFE — TEMPORAL AND ETERNAL

(Continued from Page Six)

mercy. Christ as our second head met the very fate which our first head escaped, that of swift and violent death. One thing, however, was added in the case of our Lord Jesus, and that was several hours of awful suffering; but this, too, was necessary in His case, because it had to be demonstrated that His sacrifice of Himself was entirely voluntary. He could have come down from the cross and saved His own life and still would have lived forever as Son of God, but He would have had no seed, and divine justice would have been required to sweep the entire human race into eternal destruction. The sufferings and death of Jesus were both necessary for Him to become a source of life for man. But His taking Adam's place as our Head, with all its consequences, was what qualified Him to be our Savior. If that did not make Him our real substitute, what better word could express the intention of His atoning work?

O what an awful tragedy it is that so many should be failing to secure a share in the inalienable life of God, on account of the delusion, so utterly baseless, that they already possess this through their dead and dying ancestors!

THE INAUGURAL

(Continued from Front Page)

are tremendous forces at work. . . . Will Mr. Roosevelt make use of the vote of confidence given him to ride roughshod over the Constitution into the seat of a dictator? Or will he now change his course and by a strong hand endeavor to save the American form of government? These are the questions of the hour! And what does the student of prophecy expect? Certainly every Christian should pray most earnestly for the Chief Executive!"

To the same effect Paul admonishes the followers of Christ of his day to invoke the blessing of God upon political rulers:

"I exhort therefore," he says, "that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour" (1 Tim. 2:1-3).

Special prayer services might well be held by religious groups, especially by those who are watching the fulfilling of the prophetic Word, giving thanks to God that our Government still protects us in our worship and grants us freedom to preach the gospel of the coming kingdom without fear, and asking that the divine blessing may be bestowed upon "all that are in authority" that we may continue to "lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness."

Centralization of power is exceedingly dangerous to the free exercise of religion. The concentration of political authority in the hands of one man or one group of men has always reacted against individual liberty of action in the worship of God. Adolf Hitler went into office by what, according to all available reports from Germany, amounted to practically the unanimous vote of the people. And yet Protestants, Catholics, and Jews are tyrannically restricted in their religious privileges in that country.

Among the most bitter sufferers from the election by the majority of the German voters of Mr. Hitler, is a group of religious believers which in many points of teaching resembles the Church of God. These people have been ruth-

(Please turn to Back Page)

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

A New Voice

You will have the pleasure of a new voice on this page for four issues beginning with this. Your National Berean president, Bro. Harry Goekler, will occupy the editor's chair. As has your regular editor, he will appreciate your sending reports and articles. Write to him at Blanchard, Michigan.

Cecil A. Smead.

The New Voice Speaks

There comes a time in the life of every man when he decides it is not good for him to live alone. Your Berean editor came to this conclusion and consequently has taken unto himself a wife. At the present time the Berean editor and wife are enjoying a trip to California to visit his folks, and will be at home in Blanchard after February 10. I am sure that every Berean joins the writer in wishing Bro. Smead and wife the best that life offers to them.

During Bro. Smead's absence, the writer has consented to edit the Berean page to the best of his ability. Articles and Berean class reports will be appreciated.

Harry Goekler.

New Berean Classes

During the past few months two new Berean classes that we know of have been organized, one at the North Salem Church, in Indiana, and one at Casey, Illinois. If there are any other new societies recently organized we shall be pleased to report the same.

Does Some One Need a Boost?

There are many times when the load is heavy and we stagger beneath its weight. We can almost carry it—all we seem to need is just a little lift. It is at this point that sympathetic helpfulness from friends will count for much. Of course, we can always fall back on God. His promise is, at least the Psalmist so stated it: "When my father and my mother forsake me, then Jehovah will take me up" (Psalm 27:10).

But why should it be necessary to trouble the Infinite with such trivial things when we could so easily help each other to bear our common burdens? One doesn't have to go far to find another who needs a boost—it may be father or mother or brother or sister or a fellow toiler or somebody who is having some hard knocks of a very unusual sort. It takes so little to help; maybe a look or a smile or a little encouragement or the smallest kind of a boost. Observe the words of Isaiah: "They helped every one his neighbour; and every one said to his brother, Be of good courage" (Isa. 41:6).

As Others See Him

* * * *

By Mary Hatten

Have you ever tried to look through some one else's glasses? Funny, you couldn't see as well. That is the way people try to present Christ to others, each through his own glasses, not realizing that the other person is still looking through his own. Christians must learn to present Christ so that others can see that He can be their Christ, too. To each He means something else, just as the poet has said:

· "To the Baker—He is the Living Bread.
To the Banker—He is the hidden Treasure.
To the Builder—He is a sure foundation.
To the Doctor—He is the great physician.
To the Educator—He is the master teacher.
To the Farmer—He is the Lord of Harvest.
To the Geologist—He is the Rock of Ages,
To the Jeweler—Pearl of great price.
To the Lawyer—He is the Law-Giver.
To the Preacher—He is the Word of God.
To the Sinner—He is the Living Savior.
To the Christian—He is the Son of God."

Promises Which Do Not Fail

One of the saddest experiences in life is the heartache which comes from the failure of some friend or loved one to keep his or her promises. Burns, with all his shortcomings and weaknesses, is the author of this sterling statement: "A mind conscious of integrity scorns to say more than it means to perform." Amid the failure and weakness of man it is indeed comforting to turn to God's Word where there are many "great and precious promises" which do not fail. When Joshua was an old man and about to go "the way of all the earth," in his farewell address to Israel whom he had led into the Promised Land, he said, "Ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which Jehovah your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof" (Josh. 23:14). There are too many witnesses to the fact that God keeps His promises to doubt the statement for a minute. Truly, some one has said every divine promise is built upon four pillars: God's justice or holiness, which will not suffer Him to deceive; His grace or goodness, which will not suffer Him to forget; His truth, which will not suffer Him to change; and His power, which makes Him able to accomplish.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed: and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

WHEN JESUS PASSED BY

A GREAT celebration was being held in Jerusalem, and people from everywhere were there. It was called the Feast of Tabernacles, and it was kept in memory of the time when the children of Israel lived in tabernacles or tents. Some of you will remember that on their journey from Egypt to the Promised Land they had to live in tents because they were on the march almost continuously.

When the Israelites kept this feast they made tents from boughs of trees and lived in them a week. They were not to do any work during that time, and they were to offer to God their tithes and their freewill offerings. And they were supposed to be happy and rejoice.

You'd like that, wouldn't you, girls and boys? No work and living in a nice green tent would be fun. I imagine the little Jewish girls and boys sang songs most of the time.

Well, it was just such a time as this that Jesus spent in the city of Jerusalem. He had just left the temple, where the unbelieving Pharisees had tried to stone Him. But God had protected Him and He was unharmed.

As He walked along the street He saw people of all classes mingling together—rich and poor, finely dressed and ragged, well people and cripples. No doubt there were many beggars on the streets of the city, too.

Here was a blind man whom everyone knew. The people of Jerusalem had seen him at this spot on the street, no doubt, many, many times. They knew he had not just become blind, but that he had been born blind.

Nowadays our skilled doctors can sometimes cure one who becomes blind. But they cannot cure one who is born blind, that is, if his blindness comes from some lack in the formation of the eye or the optic nerve.

Did that hinder Jesus in the least? No, indeed! The great Healer, through the power He received from His Father, could cure anyone. As He saw this poor man who had never looked on the faces of his friends or loved ones He felt sorry for him.

Jesus knew, too, that this would be a good time to prove to His disciples who were with Him that He really was God's Son. It was most important that they have faith in Him, as they worked with Him day by day, learning the gospel so they could teach it to others.

Almost His first words were, "I am the light of the world," as He stopped to heal the blind man. If you cover your eyes everything is dark, isn't it? So we know it takes eyesight to appreciate light.

But Jesus meant more than just the light we enjoy every day when He said He was the Light of the world. I am sure all of you can understand that. There are many kinds of light.

Now read on, and you will see how Jesus opened this man's eyes. We know He didn't need to take the clay and put it on his eyes. He could have given him sight just by speaking the word. Why do you think He did it?

I think Jesus wanted to give the man something to do to show he believed he would be healed. So Jesus told him to go wash the clay off.

"He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing." Those words mean a great deal, don't they? Think of it, never having seen before in his life! Why, if we close our eyes a few minutes and play a game, it seems like the longest time! Try it now and see.

Mark tells us in his book, chapter 8, verses 22-26, another story of Jesus' healing of a blind man. This man couldn't see perfectly at first, but men looked like trees to him. Gradually he could see more clearly.

Now this man in John's story could see people and things perfectly, but he couldn't see with his mind. By that, I mean he didn't understand who it was had healed him. The people around tried to trap him by saying Jesus was a sinner.

Gradually the cured man began to see that Jesus was the Son of God and that was why He was able to heal him. "If this man were not of God, he could do nothing," is what he said about Jesus.

The story of Jesus finding the man after he had been cast out by those doubters is told in beautiful words in verses 35-38. Read them yourselves; if you cannot read ask Mother or some one else to read them to you.

These verses give us a fine word-picture of Jesus, the tender, sympathetic Healer, the Son of God, the Savior of the world.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

LATEST NEWS ON THE FLOOD SITUATION

As we go to press on Monday morning the latest news via radio concerning the flood that is sweeping down the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys declares that along a front of eighteen hundred miles 452,000 persons are homeless, many of them without food, clothing, and medical supplies. At this time between forty and fifty are known to have perished. Hundreds of villages and cities are completely cut off from the rest of the world except by boats and seaplanes. Short wave radio is the only means of communication in many such places. No information is available concerning any of our own brethren in the flooded regions. We pray for their safety.

CONSECRATION THAT CONSECRATES

Among certain religious groups consecration occupies a very important place. And consecration should be emphasized in all Christian teaching, but more important still, it should be practiced. For true consecration is an act rather than a profession. It is a giving rather than a receiving. It consists of the dedication of one's mind and heart and body to the service of the Lord. And that involves the consecration of the products of labor of body and mind quite as much as it does the consecration of our affections.

Consecration only becomes visible and real when it is expressed in works as well as in words. So those men and women who say little about their service to the Lord, but who do much in His service, quietly, unostentatiously, and continuously prove their consecration "by their works."

We are reminded of all this by letters we have received recently from a family group in Canada. Each January there comes from these faithful sisters a most generous contribution for the furtherance of the Lord's work, to be applied "where you think it may be most required."

They know that they themselves may receive no direct result from the work their consecration and generosity make possible, but to them the Lord's work is world-wide, it is not limited to one community and not restricted by national boundaries. Because they are truly consecrated to the Lord their material resources are also consecrated to Him to be used wheresoever the need may be.

There are many others like them. If this were not so, the effort of the National Bible Institution in all its departments would cease. But because of such constant faithfulness on the part of a few, the work goes on.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Mrs. C. Seely; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mary J. Calkins; W. A. Reid; Lydia Railsback; Ella M. Siple; Mrs. A. M. Siple; Albert Siple; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Netts; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kirkpatrick; Georgia and Wayne Thompson; Ida F. Orem; Lucy B. Groat; Marian R. Richards.

MORA, MINNESOTA

After almost a month of inactivity we are again ready for our work at Mora.

Our Sunday school has been discontinued for the winter and as these lines are written it is not certain whether or not there will be a morning service. Evening worship is held in a funeral chapel in Mora at 8 each Sunday.

Services at Graytown, Wis., have also been discontinued until spring due to the distance in driving and the inclement weather.

Several of our members have been ill with the influenza of late. We pray God's richest blessing upon them that they may be restored to their usual good health.

Gerald L. Cooper, Pastor.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

A request addressed to the editor which he intends to share with you: "Will you please explain Judges 14, 15, and 16?" While the editor is gathering up scriptural strands having to do with this difficult problem—the question as to why a judge of God's people Israel should engage in such bloody acts—he invites you to help him in the matter. Please read those chapters carefully and give us your understanding of their significance.

The following is from Bro. R. H. Judd's poetic pen:

"It may be that you come nearest
To the one who stands in need,
Then give to him that kindly help,
Backed by your word and deed."

Bro. and Sr. James Moore, Niagara Falls, N. Y., are spending the winter with their son, Bro. Earl Moore and his family at Coulee Dam, Wash. Bro. Earl holds an excellent position with the contracting firm which has the dam under construction. That the Moore family never loses interest in the truth no matter where they go is evidenced from the fact that they are sending for a supply of tracts for distribution among their new friends.

"Are You Prepared?" What a timely and well-written article that was on the front page last week! Bro. J. R. LeCrone goes into the question in such a way that the reader is forced to apply it to himself and to no one else. "Are You Prepared?" through service rendered for the Lord's coming? Better read that article again!

One of our ministers and his wife were recently invited to attend a Woman's Club meeting in a city where they were well known. The presiding officer called on the minister for prayer in the following words: "Mr. Fisher will please offer prayer." The minister's name was not "Fisher." Our readers are given one guess as to what it really was.

"I read my Herald through and then give it to some friend to read," remarks a correspondent. We believe this would be a good practice for others to follow.

We now have in preparation a splendid little work on immortality, written by Bro. Laurence M. Howell. It is a scholarly argument designed to hold the attention of all who are interested in this subject. And who is not? The book will be attractively bound and printed in large clear type.

The articles now appearing from the pen of the editor are based upon sermons delivered by him in the Oregon pulpit during the past year. We urge other pastors to embrace the opportunity afforded in the columns of The Restitution Herald to extend the influence of their discourses to a nation-wide congregation in the same way.

While we await a complete report of the encouraging event, we draw the following from a personal letter: In spite of the gloomy weather the brethren at Fonthill, Ont., were filled with joy on Sunday, Jan. 17, when two came forward at the close of the service asking baptism. "The mother was baptized a couple of weeks ago. These will be immersed next Sunday." We rejoice with pastor and congregation, but especially with these dear ones who are pledging themselves to Christ that they may have eternal life when He comes.

At the suggestion of the pastor and elders, the Oregon Church of God asked for a special offering Sunday morning on behalf of the flood victims. The offering amounted to $32.78. The Sunday school collection next Sunday will be devoted to the same objective, the superintendent suggesting that that would give the children an opportunity to have a part in the greatly needed relief work.

Next Sunday evening the pastor of the Oregon church will take as his subject, "Raging Waters," basing his study on Jeremiah 47:2—"Thus saith the Lord; Behold, waters rise up out of the north, and shall be an overflowing flood, and shall overflow the land, and all that is therein; the city, and them that dwell therein: then the men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl." The purpose will be to point out the inability of man to cope with the God-controlled forces of nature.

"One murder every 45 minutes, one major crime of a different nature every 20 seconds. On an average those convicted of murder serve 43 months and 10 days in prison!" Such is the deplorable crime record in the United States according to Boake Carter, radio commentator.

"The article in December 22, 'What Form of Government Next?' is wonderful. It alone is worth the price of the paper for one year."
—Mrs. A. J. Addington, Abilene, Texas.

A QUESTION FOR OUR STUDENTS

The following request is made by Bro. S. G. Elton of Ventura, Calif., and we gladly pass it on to our many studious readers for their consideration.

“Will some competent writer make plain just what the Apostle Paul had in mind when he wrote in Romans 5:12 as follows: ‘For as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned?’

“The question is, Did Paul refer to the race of man, or to the dust-formed man, known as ‘Adam’; or did he include both the male and female, as described in Genesis 1:27? It seems to me that to include the woman as being responsible in any way for the introduction of sin into the world, must becloud the pedigree of the Son of God.”

Let us hear from our writers on this question.

“I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.”—Phil. 4:13.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

The Bereans gathered at the home of Bro. and Sr. Jesse Zechiel last Thursday evening to organize for the coming year. Twenty-four were present. Miss Elizabeth Zechiel is our new secretary. Sr. Leona Zechiel, president, opened the meeting with a short devotional. Plans were discussed, and the formation of a new class was accepted. This will make four classes. Every two months we will have fellowship time when we will meet for a social evening. Prospects for the best Berean year are very evident.

The ladies’ society has five new members and last week they served meals at the County Community Sale. Also they have some quilts to work.

Bro. D. W. Weaver is teacher of the men’s class in Bible school. Bro. Weaver is an interesting teacher. Watch the men’s class this year.

Wednesday evening the writer and wife enjoyed the visit with the Bereans at Bremen. The meeting was held at the home of Bro. and Sr. Annis. A sermon and Communion made up the evening. We thank God for our faithful ones.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

LESH - SMEAD

At the close of the morning service at Blanchard, Mich., Sunday, Jan. 17, it was the writer’s privilege to unite in marriage Elder Cecil Smead and Miss Mildred Lesh. They were attended by Mr. Emery Toogood and Miss Inez Sheets.

The groom needs little introduction to our church people. He was a member of the last Training Class and left the class in 1932 to become pastor of the Burr Oak church in Indiana. Then in the fall of 1933 he came to Blanchard to assume the pastorate of the church here, and has remained since that time. He also served two years as president of the National Berean Society and at the present time is editor of the Berean page. The bride is a member of the Blanchard church, a teacher in the Sunday school, and a woman of sterling character. The happy couple left for a trip to the Pacific Coast, and will be at home to their many friends after February 10, at Blanchard.

We pray God’s richest blessings, both temporal and spiritual, may attend Cecil and Mildred in their journey through life together.

Harry Goekler.

ROBBINS - HAYSE

The announcement has reached us of the marriage of Miss Opal Robbins, daughter of Mrs. W. L. Robbins of Texas, to Mr. John G. Hayse. Sr. Opal Robbins will be remembered by the many friends she made during her attendance at General Conference. The prayers and best wishes of The Restitution Herald and its workers are extended to this young couple for a long, happy, and spiritually prosperous life together. They will make their home at McAllen, Texas.

FLORA ELAINE WRIGHT

One of our little friends of the Oregon, Ill., Sunday school, Flora Elaine Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Wright, was stricken by death on January 11. Flora was born in Oregon March 13, 1929, and had been a regular attendant at our Sunday school since she was old enough to go. She is survived by her parents and nine brothers and sisters. In his sermon at the funeral service Pastor Marsh emphasized the thought that her death was caused by the sin of the race and that God had not taken the life of the child.

MARY A. CHAPMAN

Mrs. Chapman was born May 9, 1853, at La Grange, Ind., and died January 9, 1937, at her home in Lynwood, Calif. The family moved from Arizona to California some twenty years ago and has resided in Lynwood the greater portion of that time. Her husband, John I. Chapman, died in March, 1927. She was laid to rest beside him in Angeles Abbey, in Compton, Calif., Jan. 12.

Three daughters, Mrs. Olena Asher of Pomona, Mrs. Rosa Wilson of Lynwood, and Mrs. Bertha Bunch of Phoenix, Ariz.; one son, Ephraim Chapman of Lynwood; and a number of grandchildren survive.

Sr. Chapman had suffered much in the last four years. Loving care was given by her daughter and daughter-in-law. She was a member of the Los Angeles Church of God and always a devoted student of God’s Word. Consolation from God’s Word was extended to the bereaved by the writer.

Emma C. Railsback.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. A. M. Scroggs; Anna A. Eidemiller; S. P. Dismukes; George O. Renner; Eva L. Page; Mrs. C. Seely; Vivian Magaw; Mrs. George Young; Nora Mallory; Arthur K. Richardson; Nora Gockley; J. A. Johnson; Mrs. Ralph H. Kennard; Zenas Murphy; Mrs. D. W. Brown; Nellie Ling; Homer Baxter; Mattie Vinyard; James H. Lewis; S. G. Elton; Lucian Murphy; Laura M. Pascoe (for self and others); Mary Hogarth (for another); D. S. Kirkpatrick; Mrs. E. T. Renner; L. B. Boggs; Fred T. Blyth; Mrs. J. Chapman; Mrs. George Pry; Lucy B. Groat (for self and others); Lila Drake; H. G. Pierce; E. E. Mills.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Maybelle Hanson	$ 4.00
J. Arthur Johnson	6.00
Mary F. Cook (ind. fund)	3.00
Amy L. Young	5.00
Ida Vogel	10.00
Deborah Knapp	3.00
W. A. Reid	2.00
Abbie H. Fiske	5.00
Zenas Murphy (ind. fund)	25.00
Laura M. Pascoe	65.00
Mary Hogarth	25.00
Mrs. J. Chapman	8.00
Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cook	3.00

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the “restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began,” Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY
Fourth Edition

The largest abridgment in the famous Merriam-Webster series. Surpasses all other abridged dictionaries in popular acceptance. Defines 106,000 words. 1,268 pages. Illustrated. Thumb index. Used as authority by every court. Defines many obsolete Bible words. Unusually accurate.

- Regular Style 7 x 10 x 2 5/8 in. 5 lbs.
 - Cloth $4.00
 - Buckram, marbled edges 5.00
- Thin Paper Style 6 x 8 3/8 x 1 1/2. 2 1/4 lbs.
 - Blue cloth, sprinkled edges $3.50
 - Brown fabrikoid, gilt edges 5.00
 - Black Levant leather, gilt edges 7.00
 - Limp pigskin, dk blue or natural 8.50

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

God’s Covenant With Abraham

- * Written by S. J. Lindsay, pastor and evangelist, former editor of The Restitution Herald
- * Concerns the greatest promise ever made—that to Abraham by God
- * Liberally sprinkled with Bible references which are quoted in full
- * Considers the major dogmatic implications of the covenant
- * Modern printing; bound in heavy blue paper
- * Price: 10¢ each; 7¢ each for 5 or more to one address

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

WHEN THE PUMP FREEZES

(Continued from Page Three)

I do not doubt but there was as much water in the well when the frozen pump failed to function as there had been in the summer time. It was not water that was lacking, but means of bringing it to the surface and making it available to human needs.

So it is with the water of life which God provides through His Son. The water is there in abundance and may be obtained freely, "without money and without price."

But the pumps are frozen! The human instruments through whom the water must reach the thirsty souls of men do not function properly. They are congealed by indifference to the needs of others. They are frozen by the killing cold of selfishness. Love and sympathy alone can melt away the ice and permit them to bring forth from the depths of the divine well "living waters" that others may be refreshed spiritually.

We now approach our subject more directly.

Water is one of the primary requirements of life. We cannot long survive without it. That is why God uses it as a symbol of divine grace.

Water is one thing of which we have no record of its creation. That God made it, we do not doubt, for "all things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:3). But the time and circumstances surrounding the creation of water are omitted from the sacred Record.

Water is mentioned as being in existence before the first creative day of the Lord. When "the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep, . . . the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters" (Gen. 1:2).

Before the creation of light, the work of the first day of creation, "the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."

Nothing is said about their creation, when or how they came into being. The waters simply were there.

Neither is anything said of the creation of air. But air to breathe and water to drink were present before there was a man to breathe the air or to drink the water.

So it is with God's provisions for the maintenance of the spiritual life of men. Before they came into being, long before the transgression of Adam and Eve made such provision necessary, God had planned and made ready all that would be required for man's redemption from sin.

Throughout the Scriptures water occupies an important place in God's plans, both material and spiritual. Should the pump of His great waterworks plant freeze up, should God stop the life-giving flow that comes from it, humanity would miserably perish and perish without hope.

It was in connection with the providing of water for thirsty Israel that Moses committed the one error that marred his otherwise spotless record and won for him an unmarked grave on the mountain from which he had longingly viewed the Promised Land.

On that occasion water meant life to perishing Israel.

No one but God could provide it from out the "flinty rock." But Moses claimed the credit in a moment of discouragement and lost his opportunity of entering into Canaan. Had Moses been content to give God the glory, to acknowledge that he was but the humble instrument through which the gift of God would reach the people, how great a blessing would have come to him! Had he said, "Israel, you cannot provide the water upon which your lives depend, I cannot provide it; only God, who is rich in mercy, can bring to you 'streams in the desert,'" the result would have been the same to the people and Moses would not have lost his own lofty standing with the Lord. But discouragement had frozen the pump of the great leader's spiritual perception for the time and the result was tragic for himself.

Let us pause for a moment with this incident fresh in our minds and draw a lesson from it.

Love, grace, sympathy, understanding sent the waters forth from the heart of the stone. God alone could bring about so marvelous an accomplishment. We recall how the heart of Saul, the future apostle, was filled with bitterness and murder as he made his way toward Damascus and how a great change came to pass within him when the power of Christ, the personification of love, laid hold upon him. Hatred was transformed into love, doubt into faith, and enmity into fullest devotion and service.

Saul's heart possessed all the possibilities of the tenderness and sympathy for humanity which he afterward displayed, but it was frozen by the icy blasts of a cold religious formalism. But the warm influences of the gospel melted the ice and opened in the life of that remarkable man a channel of blessing through which the waters of life have continued to flow freely to this day.

Let us not forget that the water of life in its invigorating purity cannot reach the thirsty world except through the instrumentality of human "pumps" like you and me. If these channels have grown cold through worldliness or indifference, if they have been frozen by the chilling effect of selfishness, Christ's work cannot go on until they are thawed by an aroused conscience and made to function freely once more.

THE INAUGURAL

(Continued from Page Eleven)

lessly persecuted, many of them thrown into prison, and not a few actually killed, because they persisted in teaching the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth and refused to acknowledge the authority of the Nazi Government in matters pertaining to their religious convictions.

So again we say: Let us pray that our President, backed as he is by the conferred authority of a vast majority of the American people, more than half of whom are not Christians, may be preserved from exerting his enormous power in a way detrimental to the spiritual well-being and religious liberties of our people.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 2, 1937

NUMBER 18

"They Shall Be One"

By the Editor

"The custom of sending valentines is the survival of a practice connected with the worship of Juno on or about February 14, and its association with the traditional St. Valentine, who was supposed to have been martyred by the Emperor Claudius about 270 A. D., is purely accidental."

TO HAVE and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do us part."

The familiar words of the Episcopal marriage service, formal as they are, touch a chord in the human heart that vibrates with the deepest and most sacred emotion. The love of a good man for a good woman, the love of a good woman for a good man, have drawn these twain together and made them one! This is indeed "a great mystery."

The solemn words of the minister, "Do you take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife?"—"Do you take this man to be your lawfully wedded husband?"—and the equally solemn responses of bride and groom, "I do!"—"I do!"—place the seal of human approval and acknowledgment upon the most blessed and the most binding compact having to do with human relationships that men and women can make.

As idealistic and impractical as it may appear to many in these days of easily broken vows and shattered romances, God Himself has a part in every lawful marriage that is solemnized. Not alone does the will of God inject itself into the consummation of unions brought about within the boundaries of the church, but wherever in the world one man takes one woman to be his life-companion and faithful helpmate in conformity with the divine purpose as it was expressed in the beginning, God lends that union the sanction of His approval and places upon it the seal of endless perpetuity.

Marriage is not the shackling of two free spirits! It is not the binding together of two reluctant prisoners to serve out a life sentence in a single cell! It is the opening up of the doors of glorious opportunity for the enjoyment of attainments, of pleasures, of joyous experiences which neither of the twain could ever know without the other. The blended experiences of both make for a well-balanced life for each.

Permit me to illustrate it in this way.

"None of us liveth to himself." No life is complete in itself. Looking upon the beautiful home which He had created for Adam and considering all the provision He had made for his comfort, the Lord said, "It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him" (Gen. 2:18). And out of the man's side, out of his own bodily substance that lay nearest to his heart, the wise Bestower of all good formed Woman. She was all that Adam declared her then to be: "Bone of my bone, and flesh of my flesh."

Without her, Adam would have been incomplete. He would have been inadequate to the service for which he was created. Henceforth he would be conscious of qualities which he had not known before. While it is true that all that went into the make-up of Woman had first been in Man, the Man had not realized it all. Certain forces and powers were so far imbedded within his nature that he did not recognize their presence. And yet those hidden sources of impulse and of energy were not only essential to his happiness, but they were necessary to the success of the service he was to render to God.

If Adam was not complete without Eve, neither was Eve complete without Adam. They belonged inseparably to each other. Each brought into the life of the other possibilities and powers which neither could possess or develop alone. Hence, God declared, "They shall be one."

This thought of perfect unity of husband and wife as it was exhibited in the case of Adam and Eve is more accurately expressed by Alexander Pope in his Iliad than it is in the familiar (Please turn to Page Ten)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day
G. E. Marsh, Editor

Bishops "Reform" Divorce Rule

"They twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh."—Mark 10:8.

LONDON, England, Jan. 21.—According to press reports, advocates of divorce reform in England made small gain today when bishops of the Anglican Church, in the Convocation of Canterbury here, refused to bar remarried principals in divorce cases from Communion. Loss was sustained by those favoring more liberal divorce laws, however, when the House of Commons standing committee struck out incurable drunkenness as one of the proposed grounds for divorce. The opponents argued that it would bring the country "dangerously near to what we all know now obtains in the United States."

The Bishop of Ely presented the resolution asking the ban "on persons who, having married after divorce, and having thereby transgressed the law of Christ and the church, continue to live in disregard of the moral obligation which must bind those who are admitted to holy Communion." He compared them to murderers, saying that a condemned man on the scaffold is given Communion, but that it would be refused if he were free to go about and continue murdering.

The Rt. Rev. E. W. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, carried the day for the liberal element in regard to the matter of Communion, asking, "Do we come to holy Communion because we are righteous, because there is no sin in our past lives of which we are ashamed? I cannot see that it is right to exclude anyone from the altar. Christ came, not to call the righteous, but to call sinners to repentance."

Hundreds Dead From Floods

"Behold, waters rise up out of the north, and shall be an overflowing flood."—Jeremiah 47:2.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—A constantly lengthening roll of news indicates that the loss of life occasioned by the Ohio-Mississippi floods will far exceed all advance estimates. Some 200,000 people have been driven from their homes and many millions of dollars' worth of property has been destroyed. Mr. C. A. Donnel of the United States Weather Bureau in this city declared that the present deluge was brought about by an increase in the rainfall over the northwestern part of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys of from 50 to 400 per cent above normal. "Louisville, for example, had more than 400 per cent of its normal rainfall," said Mr. Donnel. No one but God can control the operation of such natural forces.

Growth of Atheism in United States

"The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."—Psalm 14:1.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The truth of the statement attributed to George Washington is becoming ever more apparent. The first President said: "The United States Government is in no sense founded upon Christian religion. The United States is not a Christian nation, any more than it is a Jewish nation, or a Mohammedan nation."

Despite the contentions of those "blind leaders of the blind" who, because they so fervently desire the thing to be true, assert that it is true that the world is growing better and more Christian, evidence of an incontrovertible character indicates the reverse. Atheism is growing with alarming rapidity in this country. Of the 54,000,000 Americans whom The Literary Digest lists on the church rolls a thoughtful survey reveals that a fast-diminishing minority really stand by so-called "orthodox" teaching. The mass of modern church members lean strongly toward the "left" or liberal "wing" theology.

"Growing by leaps and bounds during the depression years, humanism and a farrago of other agnostic and quasi-atheistic movements long have been a puzzle to national tabulators of religious figures. The reason is that non-church members are increasingly reluctant to define their precise beliefs." (This we find is also true of most church members.—Ed.) "At least 70,000,000 people are currently in this category, according to religious liberals."

In some ways humanism is more dangerous to true religion than atheism. The atheist openly denies the being of God, the value of the Bible, and significance of religion in civilized life, but the humanist often carries on his work in the name of the church and purports to be in favor of religion, while in reality his influence and teaching tend definitely to undermine all for which the Christian religion stands. The definitions of the terms "atheist" and "humanist" as given by The Digest point out clearly the difference between the two. "The atheists say: 'We do not believe in God'; the humanists, 'We do believe in man.'"

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Land of Divine Footprints

THERE is a land upon which, above all others, the events of history have focused from the beginning of time. It was here that the curtain first rose on the drama of human history, and here that the curtain will fall at the conclusion of the final act. This land is the southwestern corner of Asia, where the three continents of the Old World meet, the junction point of ancient, mediæval, and modern routes of trade and travel, the very crossroads of the world.

It was here, in the days that followed the flood, that an unbelieving race of men built the heaven-defying Tower of Babel. To the most remarkable city of antiquity that unfinished tower gave its name—to mighty Babylon on the Euphrates, "the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees' excellency." It was here that God interrupted the idolatrous work of building by confusing the speech of man, and compelled the race to scatter over the face of the earth. Thus the grandsons of Noah, departing in all directions from their original habitat, became the progenitors of all the present-day races of men, and fulfilled the divine command to people the earth. To the skilled ethnologist the 10th chapter of Genesis provides the key to all the races of men now living.

It was in this same region of Asia, too, that the great empires of antiquity arose, prospered for their allotted time, passed into decadence, then fell before the advance of younger and more virile peoples. Here were witnessed in kaleidoscopic succession the conquests of Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome. Here, as the centuries came and went, have occurred the clashes between Egyptian, Assyrian, Hittite, Chaldean, Mede, Macedonian, Roman, Byzantine, Arab, Saracen, Turk, Russian, Christian Crusader, and modern European, within an area that has come to be known as the battlefield of the ages, the cross upon which the peace of the world has from time immemorial been crucified.

It was at the very heart of this region, where all the lines of world intercourse met, that God chose to plant the Hebrew theocracy, that the chosen people might impart a knowledge of Him to all the nations round about, and thus become the light of the world; for it was His desire that the temple at Jerusalem should become a house of prayer for all peoples. And so it might have been had the Jewish nation but measured up to its exalted mission. Alexander the Great, in his Tyrian and Egyptian campaigns, passed the Holy City by unscathed, recognizing it as the earthly abode of the Great King. And during the terrible siege of 70 A. D., the Romans pleaded with the Jewish defenders of the city not to make a citadel of the temple, but to spare the sacred edifice.

But the Jewish nation, far from influencing surrounding peoples toward a worship of the true God, were themselves corrupted by heathen beliefs and practices. They recognized the excellent advantages for trade which their geographical position afforded, and they became the merchants instead of the missionaries of the world. By refusing to admit the Gentile world into religious equality with themselves, by erecting a wall of partition against them, they proved themselves unworthy of their mission. (Turn to p. 10)

Abstruse Things

By John L. Denchfield

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."—1 Corinthians 2:9.

THE words given in the verse of our text (1 Cor. 2:9) invite us to consider some things not found along the beaten path of the mind of men, namely, "the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

Man, today, sees many marvelous things. Personally I now recall viewing tall, stately, northern Minnesota pine trees towering as sentinels and compelling profound agreement that "only God can make a tree"; lakes of placid, mirror-like water emanating quiet, peaceful rest, and the same waters furiously rolling and tumbling about in enrapturing beauty; picturesque scenes of wooded hills, fields, pastures, stony waste lands, tiny rivulets and roaring rivers in colors such as no human artist might attempt to reproduce.

Nature, with its grandeur, does not equal the beauty of life as seen in love and faith. I have observed the love of a mother sacrificing time and health, giving her last ounce of energy for her dying babe; and the love of mother and daughter, separated for many years, as they embrace in a moment of deepest grief at the death of husband and father. Such love, it seems, is somewhat akin to "the love that gave Jesus to die."

Another has said, "O for a faith that will not shrink!" I have seen unshaken confidence in God's goodness and constant watchful care manifested when the "cupboard was bare" and no material aid in view; when each movement of the body brought excruciating pain; and again, when the hardest hitting of all enemies, death, had delivered not only one but three successive blows.

Perhaps the greatest marvel man may witness in this day is the inexplicable transformation of the very nature of men and women from lives of useless idling in sin to the usefulness of "new life" in and for Jesus Christ.

The eye of man sees wonderful things, but "eye hath not seen . . . the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

By correct dialing of our radio we may listen to the masters of music in voice and instrumental selections; to orchestra or band; or we may prefer oratory a la excellence with nouns and adjectives carefully selected and enunciated, unexcelled descriptive phrases, and perfect "King's English."

Outdoors we can hear the wind whistling through the leaves, the ripple and fall of water, excited voices of children at play, the chatter of squirrels, and the birds' love songs, all music to our ears.

But to the Christian there is sweeter music, the sound of voices raised rapturously, singing, "If ever I loved Thee, my Jesus, 'tis now," and later, in tones of joyous determination and confidence,

"Keep on keeping on, keep on keeping on!
You're sure to win the victory
If you'll keep on keeping on."

Then, bursting forth from an overflowing heart, one word, expressing joy and Christian love, "Amen!"

We rejoice because we hear, yet the ear has not heard "the things which God has prepared for them that love him."

Sometimes I contemplate the great changes in and about us which Jesus' presence would bring. Let's note some now. At a funeral service all would be turned about—"joy in place of sorrow," for "the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live" (John 5:25). In times of sickness Jesus' word, "Arise, take up thy bed" (Matt. 9:6), brings restoration to health. Want of food would be unheard of, for by obeying His word, "Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find" (John 21:6) plenty would abound. All fear and anxiety would be cast aside. No men to kidnap, murder, or steal. No beast nor reptile to hurt even a little one, for "they shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain" (Isaiah 11:9). There would be no fear of destruction by floods or storms. "for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him" (Luke 8:25). Federal Housing Loans and mortgage foreclosure sales would be unknown. "And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them" (Isa. 65:21). Generally descriptive are these words of Revelation 21:4, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

Our imaginations vary perhaps a great deal as to many future conditions, yet "neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

We perhaps feel that we know a little about some of the good things God has already given us and also of some He has in store for us, and rightly so, for Paul says (1 Cor. 2:10), "God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit." But the same Paul, perhaps knowing how slowly our finite minds follow the direction and revealings of the Spirit, said just a bit later. "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Cor. 13:12). Likewise John says, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2).

In conclusion I would that you review in your mind some of the good things you have seen, some of the things you have heard which you felt were really grand, and some of the contemplations of your heart concerning Jesus' coming and His work and kingdom. Then turn to 1 Corinthians 2:9 and read slowly, carefully, and thoughtfully.

A Message vs. a Program

THE so-called liberal movement in theology, especially in the churches of the Evangelical persuasion, has been passing through a period in which oppositional attack from many quarters is being directed against its central positions. Many liberal leaders decry such attacks as unjustified. A few of the more enlightened, however, are making an attempt to assess the situation in order to discover just what it is in the liberal theology which thus opens itself to serious criticism. The great majority in our own communion are concerned about the peace of the church, and even though they do not continue with the more conservative group in the extreme position this group has taken, are nevertheless quietly measuring the times and trying to discover what it is in the hearts and souls of these conservatives that gives point and power to their religious appeal. It is only when the leadership of the church quietly and without bias or prejudice looks such a matter squarely in the face that we can hope for sure progress and spiritual enrichment.

LIBERALISM BANKRUPT

During my lifetime I have been aligned with the liberal group, and today might be quite naturally thought of as a conservative liberal. But it was my good fortune to be born into a very conservative religious atmosphere and to be reared in such an ecclesiastical life. I must make the confession that my observations over a long period of years have led me to the conclusion that liberalism as a movement in theology has tended in the direction of the erasure of historic distinctions in our religious experience. And with the evaporation of such definite lines of values there has come about a situation where the work and the program and even the message of the Christ have all become externalized and mechanized with a dynamic life excluded therefrom. Instead of the leadership of the church boldly proclaiming the deep and powerful religious message of Christianity, it has gradually permitted this central message to be set aside or minimized in the interest of a program of so-called religious education within the church. Liberalism thus has tended to make its great appeal to the mind of the race and has practically forgotten that the central message is first of all a message for man's heart and soul. Christianity thus in the hands of many of these leaders has ceased to be a religion of redemption and has become a religion of ethics and morals through and through. The church has become a synagogue and Christ a teacher.

AFRAID OF THEOLOGY

It has been my observation that the liberal leadership of the church has always been afraid of "theology," and everywhere has done all it could to bring this word with its historic meanings into shame and disgrace before the public. They claim they are interested in religion, but that theology as such has only a relative value, and can therefore be ignored. Such a distinction between theology and religion is a false distinction and grows out of the fact that liberalism is unwilling to come to grips with a world of facts and to deal with these facts in a most realistic fashion. Over and over, again and again, one hears these leaders saying that "theology is an intellectual formulation of our religious experience," but they forget to understand that, as a matter of fact, one cannot have a Christian experience without a vital and definite belief in God, thus confessing that the first and last great term of theology is quite vital in any religious experience, but more especially the religious experience of a Christian. When everything is said and done, one can never get away from the fact that the Bible through and through is a theological Book, and when it is treated as something else, it is taken out of its atmosphere and denuded of its power. It is this weakness of the liberal position which has brought it to the crossroads. It is such weakness that has permitted our churches under its leadership to become centers of religious education rather than outstanding Christian altars. It is such a weakness that has smothered the deep and eternal message of the faith and dug the grave for the more serious elements of the appeal of the living gospel of the Christ.

THE OLD VITAL CONSERVATISM

Under the regime of a conservative leadership, with its adhesion to the vital and permanent gospel of the living Christ, Christian experience was somehow or other given an intellectual appreciation through definite conceptions. When the human heart accepts by faith the living Christ and enjoys the benefits derived therefrom, it has passed through an experience that is perhaps the deepest and most satisfying experience of life itself. Now, unless this vivid experience is somehow or other illuminatel and clarified from the standpoint of the mind, it will gradually recede into the background of life and become nothing more than a passing memory. The older theology and the theologians of historic times understood quite well this intellectual need and fashioned a theology to meet it. All those significant conceptions, such as conversion, regeneration, sanctification, glorification, represent stages in the process of Christian experience and were filled with intellectual meanings and organized in such a manner that the deep Christian experience of the heart of the believer stood forth illuminated and pregnant with life commitments. It is no wonder that a so-called conservative theology has possessed such a mighty power and held the life of millions of Christians to a firm life direction and determination. It frankly and realistically set up these definite stages in the Christian life, and thus made a rich Christian experience the most valid and permanent experience of the human heart. That experience was thus given a cosmic significance which the most ignorant and the most unlearned Christian could readily understand and appreciate. With such a deep rootage, Christ gradually took possession of the whole personality, and with the passing years stood out as the central fact of life itself. Under the grip of such a power and the guidance of such a practical theology, Christians of a former generation could well say with the great Apostle, "It is no longer I who live, but Christ who liveth in me."

CHRISTIAN MESSAGE LOST

But it is a sad commentary on the liberal leadership of the church that practically all of these significant terms of conversion, regeneration, sanctification, and glorification have faded from the picture, and what is a sadder thing, nothing has been evolved to take their place. And this fading from the picture of such mighty and distinctive terms comes about from the fact that the deep and abiding message of the Christian faith has been practically lost to the present generation of Christian people, and in its place there is an externalized ethic, a mechanized system of education, and a so-called religiously motivated sociology. It is quite evident to the writer, as it is to all students of our religion and all our leaders, that the ethic is necessary, the system of education has a great value, and a Christian sociology is at one and the same time possible and needful. But it is also evident that back of all these there must be life, and since we deal with Christian terms and work within the framework of a Christian terminology, one must say that back of all such ideas there must be Christian life and Christian experience. When this life is lost, when this experience is denied its proper place, when leadership all but murders the message itself, such an ethic, such a system of religious education, such a sociology are nothing but mere form and husks without the substance of religion.

LIBERALISM DETACHED FROM LIFE

Now, whatever is said in its favor as a great movement of an age that is gradually passing into history (and certainly no one will deny that the liberal movement in Christianity has made its historic impress upon the Christian consciousness), one is compelled to say it dispassionately and speak the truth about it. The liberal movement has operated in such a fashion that it has all but lost the eternal message of the living Lord and with this message thrown to the four winds of heaven, it has become engulfed in the externalized trappings of ecclesiastical programs, the mechanized operations of a merely humanized system of ethics and education, and the measured responses to a world paganism. Moreover, granting that the liberal movement does give lip service to some of the central ideas imbedded in the gospel, it stands as a just indictment of this movement that it has not developed an intellectual illumination of the experience aroused within the life. The older theology did thus provide such an illumination. The older theology appealed to the heart of man, while the liberal theology appealed to the mind and dealt simply with ideas and their association. One can thus see how it comes to pass that the liberal theology has been its own worst enemy in that it never went to the root of life and never met the issues of the total personality of man.

REPENTANCE NEEDED

Now, the liberal movement has created values for us all we would hate to lose, and should we lose these values, the church and Christians the world over would contemplate this loss with terrific sorrow. But, unless the liberal leaders bestir themselves and get hold of the deep and powerful "message" of our religion and put it foremost everywhere in the life of the church, all these positive values will be lost anyway. The National Preaching Mission is an evidence of the way the wind is blowing. A realignment of leadership is in the offing. A new era of Pauline Christianity is in the making. The time is here when we must concentrate upon the whole gospel of the living Christ rather than spend our energies upon devising external programs and perfecting a system of moral and ethical education minus this gospel. And this message must be a message wherein the leaders will have the courage to call the world to repentance, the bravery to bring condemnation to individuals and society for personal and corporate sin, and this courage and this bravery must be a super-courage and a super-bravery in the sense that before the leaders make this call upon others and bring such divine condemnation upon the world, they will make the call first of all to themselves and bring this condemnation to their own selfish and sinful living. The church itself and the leaders must ask God to purify their own lives before they can call the world to repentance. Only those with clean hands and a pure heart can act as the agents of the Holy Spirit in this divine program. And one is convinced that when such a preaching of the message is cared for, when, through a deepening faith in the power of the living God and our risen Lord, this central message is again proclaimed to a bleeding world, this world will turn to its Creator and from the Lord of its life draw that strength and power to sustain it in the face of all trials, all temptations, and all seductions.—Leroy C. Hensel in The Presbyterian.

—0—

"Let not thy mind run on what thou lackest as much as on what thou hast already."—Marcus Aurelius.

The Eighth Pillar of Wisdom

THERE was recently published a remarkable book which commanded wide attention: The Seven Pillars of Wisdom, by the late Lawrence of Arabia. This wonderful young man, who had one of the most romantic careers of modern times, fused together many mutually antagonistic Arab tribes, and accomplished great things in Arabia and Palestine during the European war. He was steeped in Eastern wisdom, and in archæology. It was reported after his death, in the public press, that he had written to a friend about his inward uneasiness, and in his letter he used these notable words: "One of the sorest things in life is to realize that one is just not good enough. Better perhaps than some, than many, but there is an ideal standard somewhere, and only that matters, AND I CANNOT FIND IT."

Whatever "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" were to which he referred, his title may be taken, together with his confession, to inspire considerations based on the wisdom of God, leading to conclusions of the deepest satisfaction.

THE WISDOM OF PHYSICAL PERFECTION

This is very desirable. Yet it is remarkable that in various magazines giving valuable exercises for its attainment, there is so much else that is worthless and undesirable that a thoughtful observer concludes that perfect physical development does not of itself bring loftiness of mind. It keeps company with the brutality of the boxing ring and wrestling match without incongruity. One may strenuously climb this "Pillar of Wisdom"; but its top is no nearer heaven, or the life eternal, or real heart-satisfaction. It ends in the grave.

THE WISDOM OF SUPER-EDUCATION

This goes deeper than the body, and instructs the mind. "Knowledge is power." It molds the face on finer lines, and harnesses the mental powers and develops the personality. Does it satisfy, and lead to God, and godliness, and eternal life? It is the friend of crooks, gangsters, forgers, and deceivers of all kinds. In a United States university there is a blasphemous "Society of the Damned"; another of "The Hell-Bound Heathen"; and "The American Association for the Advancement of Atheism" doubtless contains many highly educated people. Education is precious; there is no virtue in ignorance (except ignorance of ways of evil); but super-education is no barrier to perdition. Lawrence was highly educated, yet died unsatisfied. It cannot cure sin, nor conquer death; nor provide a hope of life beyond.

THE WISDOM OF PHILOSOPHY

Philosophy is "general laws or principles of knowledge," "love of wisdom." Various systems of philosophy strive to account for the beginning of all things, to find the cause and reason for their existence, and to inquire as to the future. This is a slippery pillar, surrounded by abstruse ideas hard to grasp. One reaches the top, expecting great things, only to find something like this: "Dr. Alexis Carrell is a wizard of experimental surgery . . . probably knowing more of man in all his aspects than anyone else now living. Dr. Carrell is also by way of being a philosopher. . . . He indicates briefly and in simple language all that is known of man as a physical, mental, and moral being, and how little that knowledge amounts to; how much has yet to be discovered and explained." The river of philosophy ends in a trackless bog. Ancient Chinese philosophers (having lost the primal knowledge of God) thought that the first man chiseled out the earth from a mass of rock. Babylonians thought all life came from an egg (and Easter eggs perpetuate the notion). Modern philosophers have guessed that the earth was once a molten mass, which has cooled sufficiently for life to be possible; and all has "evolved" to its present state. In this philosophy, the individual is merely an infinitesimal speck in a vast concourse of atoms, without past or future; one's only incentive in life being to get as much happiness as possible, and to push off death as long as one may.

Philosophy contains no answer to the problems of sin and death. It yields no true satisfaction to the deep hunger of the human soul.

THE WISDOM OF PHILANTHROPY

This is more heart-satisfying. Our hearts enlarge when we exercise sympathy and helpfulness to others. But there still remains a sense of individual responsibility in life which the exercise of philanthropy cannot discharge. It comes short of that perfection without which human hearts can never find true satisfaction and peace.

THE WISDOM OF ECONOMICS

To find the cause of economic troubles; to find and apply effective remedies, is a splendid endeavor. But such efforts are continually thwarted, not only by the vast complexity of the subject, calling for wisdom more than human, but by human selfishness, greed, and deep-grained sin. It can afford no satisfaction for a personal ideal of life; it applies to this life only, and cannot ensure a life beyond.

THE WISDOM OF NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

To control a nation must surely expand one's personality; to form laws calculated to make people prosperous, happy, and contented; to provide the widest possible service to one's fellows ought surely to go far to yield abiding satisfaction to the human soul. But a Christian peer is reported to have said that all his political efforts for the nation's uplift were to him but dust and ashes. It is certainly most desirable that good men should govern; but there is no satisfaction in striving to govern a nation on the lines of ideal good. Not only is national government an exceedingly complex work; but there are so many people who strongly resent being made good by legislation that there is no abiding satisfaction to the soul in making the experiment.

THE WISDOM OF RELIGION

Surely here is true satisfaction. Religion should reach the inmost fibers of the personality. To be right with the unseen powers that be, surely gets to the heart of all things. But the world is full of religion; each nation has its own. The essence of the total wisdom of the world's religions is this: Live a decent life; do good; be honest, unselfish, virtuous; and you will be all right for time and eternity. But who says so? These are only human opinions. Where shall be found a statement of final authority which can be trusted with perfect assurance and heart satisfaction? Religion has no answer, but only the shifting sands of what men think, or spirits say, or Mahatmas teach, or Karma decrees. This pillar wobbles as we strive to climb it. It has no help for sinners; only inexorable justice. Lawrence said his best was not good enough; but he could not discover that better thing for which he sought. Religion can give no assurance for the future, but leads only to the edge of a dim shadowy mist bordering a vast unknown eternity.

But from the slippery, broken, unstable pillars of human wisdom, we turn to the Word of the living God, and read again, with heart relief, those wonderful words in Colossians 2:2—"That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgment of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ; in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." Here surely are the seven pillars of divine wisdom: "love, riches, full assurance, understanding, treasures, wisdom, knowledge"; and all reposed in Christ. "It pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell" (Col. 1:19); "for in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" (Col. 2:9); "and ye are complete in him" (Col. 2:10).

Let us therefore examine again the seven pillars of wisdom already specified, in the light of the Lord Jesus, the wisdom of God, and we shall then find the eighth, where the heart finds peace.

Physical Perfection. There can be no higher bodily perfection possible than that possessed by Christ Jesus, "being the brightness of (God's) glory, and the express image of his person" (Heb. 1:3). Here is the supreme ideal. But how can human beings possibly hope to reach it? This is exactly what God has promised to them that love His Son. "The Lord Jesus Christ . . . shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body" (Phil. 3:20, 21). "We shall be like him" (1 John 3:2). It is impossible to imagine anything more heart-satisfying than that.

Super-Education. Many humble Christians are unable to enter the higher regions of this world's education. But the Word of God assures that they are "complete in him, in whom are hid all the treasures of . . . knowledge." And the very purpose for which God bestows life eternal upon them that believe in His Son, is to get to know Him. To learn of Him is the highest wisdom for time and eternity. Earthly knowledge changes and fades, but the divine knowledge will never change and never end. Moses knocked at the door of God's university when he said, "Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, shew me now thy way, that I may know thee" (Ex. 33:13). And Christ is "the Way, the true and living Way."

Philosophy. Many humble Christians are unable to explore the intricate ramifications of human philosophizing. But there is immense heart satisfaction to them to know that "Christ Jesus is made unto us, wisdom"; and "ye are complete in him, in whom are hid" (and how can unregenerate men begin to discover them?) "all the treasures of wisdom." "By him were all things created"; "ye are complete in him"; "that in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus." What divine philosophy! All human reasonings are but broken lights, only making darkness visible. The highest possible philosophy is to know that we are in Christ Jesus, and to abide in Him, and to be growing in the knowledge of the Father and of His Son, by His Holy Spirit. That alone can satisfy; and it does.

Philanthropy. Much of the world's philanthropy has found its inspiration in the Lord Jesus Himself. He was rich, but became poor, that we through His poverty might be rich. Yet there may be much philanthropy without Christ, bringing blessing indeed to many; but having no acknowledgment of Him as Savior and Lord, it ends in the grave. But philanthropy which is called forth by true faith in the Lord Jesus is enriched by His blessing now, and is owned by Him also as accomplishing His works, and becomes treasure laid up in heaven, as His reward. The highest philanthropy this world has ever known is that "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Economics. The world strives to increase armaments and yet have balanced budgets. It needs the economics of Christ. It is freely admitted that if all the world developed the spirit of Christ, the world's economics would be vastly simplified. But it will never be accomplished by human efforts. The hope of the world is the return of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace. When He comes, they shall "beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Then the world will see a demonstration of economic wisdom which will realize its highest dreams of achievement. Billions of pounds will be released for peaceful purposes. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Government. A democratic, elected government is burdened with the uncertainty of its tenure of office. At the next election it may be unseated. It must work speedily to achieve results that will justify its continuance. It is constantly hampered in its projects by the criticism of the "opposition." Dictators endeavor to subdue all opposition by force, and to rule with absolute authority. But fear of overthrow by some rival, and the fear of assassination, must haunt them continually. There does not repose in humanity a wisdom sufficient for the ideal government of any nation, much less of the whole world. The wisdom of government will only be realized when "the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

Religion. The gospel of God concerning His Son, proclaimed to all nations for the obedience of faith, is the only real religion in the world. It is couched in straightforward language that all can understand. "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." "Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus . . . for the remission of sins that are past." "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus." "I beseech you that ye walk worthy of the calling wherewith ye are called." "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Here is a completeness for time and for eternity; God revealing Himself as Creator of all things; Christ dying as a sacrifice for our sins; that sacrifice appropriated to each one who confesses faith in the Lord Jesus as Savior; present grace and future glory secured to every believer. Here and here alone is true satisfaction concerning these great problems.

Excelsior. Here, then, is the eighth pillar of wisdom. Here is the undiscoverable ideal. Here, in seven wonderful words, is the divine philosophy of life for time and for eternity, which satisfies, and satisfies abundantly. To own the Lord Jesus as Savior; to know that He acknowledges me; to possess His Holy Spirit, the pledge of redemption; and then to "grow up into him in all things." Here is the highest possible ideal in the whole universe. The grandest satisfaction lies in climbing this pillar of wisdom. Christ Himself is at the top. Also, it bears a wonderful inscription as to its purpose. It is this: "Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

This is the last word in perfection, with infinite possibilities for all eternity; and it is for the children of God. Eternal life is provided by God to every humble believer in the Lord Jesus Christ in order that he may grow continually toward this ideal. In Christ, and Christ alone, is the wisdom that satisfies; "that in all things he might have the preeminence."—William Campbell in The Bible Standard.

"The Good That I Would"

By T. A. Drinkard

"THE good that I would" (Rom. 7:19) is often appreciated by those who manifest a sincere interest in the subject under discussion.

A brother from Arizona says, "I am now taking THE RESTITUTION HERALD and enjoy your articles on the kingdom so much. I hope you write articles regularly."

Such encouragement inspires every writer to do his best, not only me, but you, too, that seek to render acceptable service to your Lord and Master. We do not write merely to be read of men, but there is love for the Master behind it all, and a sincere desire to help some one who may need just such help as we may be able to give.

Here is an excerpt from a letter a sister in Kansas writes: "I was much pleased with your articles on the kingdom, a subject much neglected, and really needed, in our papers."

And there are others who appreciate the messages that come to them each week through THE RESTITUTION HERALD that you never hear from.

Brother, sister, is your pastor doing his best to serve his Master, and thereby helping you? Don't wait until he is sleeping "the sleep of death" (Psalm 13:3) to think of flowers. Let him know about the good he is doing while he is able to realize a blessing from it.

A brother says in THE RESTITUTION HERALD: "Now, then, is an opportunity for teaching the gospel of peace and the kingdom of God such as has not before existed. If the church can recognize and take advantage of its chance, it can march with extraordinary speed."

The church will recognize this her opportunity and chance to go forward if her ministers will do their duty by teaching the gospel of the kingdom without fear or favor. The spirit of compromise is growing in religious circles. The Church of God has nothing to gain by compromising the fundamental principles of truth with the principles of error for the sake of unity, and it is humiliating to see brethren of the Advent faith unionizing with the Pharisees and Sadducees of our time.

Jesus Christ hewed to the line; He taught the truth of God. His doctrine and way were different from those of the Pharisees. He did not say to them, "Now, brethren, we are all going to the same place; so let us lay down our little differences over doctrine and church polity and unite our efforts"; but it was, "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. . . . He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God" (John 8:44, 47). He could not and would not endorse their polity; it was contrary to God's way.

God was not satisfied with such; neither was Christ, and hence Jesus publicly announced that "upon this rock I will build my church" (Matt. 16:18). In other words, "I am going to build My church upon a sure foundation, one that will stand the test of time" (Isa. 28:16; 1 Cor. 3:11; Eph. 2:20).

Not once during all His ministerial work did Jesus offer to compromise truth for the sake of unity. He went to the judgment and thence to the cross alone, fighting like the soldier that He was. He could have, possibly, surrendered to the enemy, but the fact that He did not is proof positive that He did not want to. Neither should you and I care less for the truth of God. When you merge your efforts in building human churchianity instead of Christianity, you are putting your light under a bushel, and such acts are forbidden by the Son of God (Luke 11:33).

"How happy is he born and taught,
That serveth not another's will;
Whose armor is his honest thought,
And simple truth his utmost skill!"

—Sir Henry Wotton.

"THEY SHALL BE ONE"

(Continued from Front Page)

lines of Bellinghausen:

"Two souls with but a single thought,
Two hearts that beat as one."

Pope translates Homer's immortal line on friendship,

"Two bodies with one soul inspir'd."

Adam "became a living soul," a unit soul, before Eve was brought into being. Out of the living soul of Adam was formed another body, a division of Adam's soul, or of Adam himself. Adam and Eve were literally "one soul."

In the process of time that oneness of personality became even more apparent, even more unquestionable. When the marriage of the first Man and the first Woman was crowned with parenthood, the flesh and blood, the mind and heart, the character and disposition, of Adam and Eve were blended forever in the lives of their children. Both parents were reembodied in their sons and daughters. So long as the line of descent continued the oneness of Adam and Eve would go on unbroken. Nothing could separate them.

What was true of the first marriage and its result is also true today of the man and woman who enter the holy estate of wedlock. For, for good or ill,

"Our lives go on in our children."

The oneness established by marriage is eternal. Should a single descendant of a father and mother, no matter how many generations may intervene between them, attain a place in the kingdom of God and the endless life that goes with such a position, that father and mother shall live on as one forever in the immortal character of their child.

Husband and Wife! How good God is! "To have and to hold . . . till death do us part!" And beyond death the quenchless fires of love and of unity burn on! Into the endless ages, into the farthest eternities of God, so long as sun and moon and stars reflect the glory and wisdom of the Creator's handiwork, just that long shall the flames once kindled on the marriage altar of the Home shed forth their divine light!

Husband and Wife! Parents and Children! United forever in love and in service which love inspires, for God has willed it so.

THE LAND OF DIVINE FOOT-PRINTS

(Continued from Page Three)

To the great Christian world at large, Palestine remains the "Holy Land," whose soil was made forever sacred by the feet of the divine Son of God.

"O Galilee, sweet Galilee,
Where Jesus loved so much to be,
O Galilee, blue Galilee,
Come, sing thy song again to me."

It was in a rustic northern village of this land that Jesus spent His youth and young manhood, and learned the meaning of arduous toil. Entering at length upon His appointed mission, it was unto the lost sheep of this land of Israel that He daily ministered. It was across its dusty plains and over its mountain pathways that He traveled, and in its towns and hamlets that He ministered to the needs of men. It was by the shores of its lakes, on the grassy slopes of its hills, and in the synagogues of its villages, that He pronounced His wonderful teachings. It was in its capital city of Jerusalem—yea, in the very confines of the temple—that He was at last rejected, and on a barren knoll outside the city gates that He surrendered His life to redeem a lost world.

Another hill just outside the city was selected by our Lord as His final meeting place with His disciples. Not Mount Zion, the place of David's city, not Mount Moriah, the temple site, was to be thus honored. There Jesus had been mocked and rejected. But He chose the Mount of Olives—the spot so often hallowed by His presence while He dwelt among men. It was here that He gathered His beloved disciples about Him for the last time, while words of the deepest tenderness fell from His lips; and then, with hands outstretched in blessing, as if in assurance of His protecting care, He ascended from among them, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And as they gazed longingly into the heavens to obtain a last glimpse of their departing Lord, angels were sent to bring them the message: "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven" (Acts 1:10, 11).

It was from this mount of holy memories that our Lord ascended; and we are told that upon its summit His feet will again rest when He shall come the second time. "Not as a man of sorrows, but as a glorious and triumphant king. He will stand upon Olivet, while Hebrew hallelujahs mingle with Gentile hosannas, and the voices of the redeemed as a mighty host shall swell the acclamation, 'Crown Him Lord of all.' "

But there are events of other than sacred and religious significance that cluster about this southwestern angle of Asia, and have tremendous meaning for us today. The atmosphere of that ancient land is pervaded by a sinister and withal a most modern spirit of unrest and intense activity. The focal point of history since history began, this region today is under the closest scrutiny of all the great powers of the world. What is happening at the eastern end of the Mediterranean today is merely the modern phase of a situation which has existed for more than three thousand years. The past twelve months have witnessed one more ominous clash of interests as Italy has penetrated Ethiopia, and challenged British domination of the Nile Basin, the Suez Canal, and the Mediterranean trade routes.

To the north lies another fruitful zone of trouble. Napoleon once remarked that the nation which dominates the Dardanelles, Constantinople, and the Bosphorus, holds in its hands the destinies of both Europe and Asia. Ancient Troy controlled this region for centuries until the Greeks built Constantinople in the seventh century B. C. It has been used as a route of conquest and expansion by various hosts—Xerxes and his Persians, Alexander the Great, the Crusaders, the Saracens, and the Turks.

Today the Dardanelles remain the key to one of the most important crossroads in the world. The nation which controls this land bridge connecting the two richest and most populous continents, and the water route that crosses it, can dominate the vast east-and-west trade between these continents, thereby subjugating the ambitions of other trading nations. And recent events in the Mediterranean, backed by the examples of history, indicate strongly that further turmoil will center on this vital world highway.

Ever since the World War, France has sought frantically to maintain a bloc of buffer states between Constantinople and Germany. Undaunted, Germany has been equally busy trying to penetrate and dissolve this bloc, but has been countered at every move by Great Britain and France. Nevertheless, she has aligned on her side Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria. The latter nation is especially important in German hopes because she is the most northern neighbor of Constantinople, and borders on the Black Sea.

Russia still has her aspirations, bitterly resents German acts of aggression, and has taken sides with Great Britain and France in encouraging the Turks to refortify the Dardanelles. Italy, too, has visions of extending her power and influence to the east at the expense of Turkey, Greece, and, ultimately, of Great Britain and France. She has already acquired the Dodecanese Islands at the very gateway to the Dardanelles, where large garrisons of Italian troops are stationed, and where admirable air bases can readily be located.

All this serves to make Turkey, once the dreaded scourge of Europe, the most desired ally of Western powers. She is sitting on the Dardanelles, while all around her ambitious nations are clustered like a ring of buzzards. What part the Turkish nation, highly modernized under the able leadership of Mustapha Kemal Ataturk Ghazi, is to play in the future relations between Europe and Asia, the events of the very near future are likely to reveal. This compact and determined state has its roots in both the Orient and the Occident, and has well been called the spear point of Mohammedanism thrust straight toward the heart of the Western World. Her position serves as one more factor in holding apart the discordant elements of Europe, which divine prophecy declared should never cleave one to another (Dan. 2:43).

Regarding this southwestern extension of the continent of Asia which we are here considering, one more fact of paramount importance must be presented. It is within this area that God will gather the nations of earth together for the battle of the last great day. The scene of this mighty conflict is the age-old battleground of the world—the Plain of Megiddo, or Valley of Jezreel. Called Esdraelon by the Greeks, this is the most fertile and historically important plain in Palestine, and lies between Tabor and Carmel, between the hills of Galilee and those of Samaria. It is the field upon which ancient Israel fought their most decisive battles, and where the great nations of antiquity contended for world mastery.

"He gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon" (Rev. 16:16). This battle is not to be a part of any ordinary war among nations; it is the battle which the God of heaven Himself will fight against the nations. It is the sixth in the series of plagues which are to be poured out upon an unrepentant world after the close of human probation. It is announced by the seer of Patmos in the following terms: "The sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the East might be prepared" (v. 12). That the peoples of East and West are here to meet in final combat is clearly indicated. Of the number who shall participate in that awful struggle, we read: "The number of the army of the horsemen were two hundred thousand thousand: and I heard the number of them" (Rev. 9:16). Thus is eclipsed in its vastness any battle which has yet occurred within the span of human history.

Within this same region, too, so often marked by divine footprints in the past, shall be enacted the final scene in the great controversy between Christ and Satan, between truth and error; for it is upon the site of old Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives that the glorious city of God shall descend. "I John saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband" (Rev. 21:2). Of the hopeless attempt of Satan and the hosts of his deceived followers to capture that city the record is clear: "They went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them" (Rev. 20:9). May every reader of these lines be found within the protecting walls of the holy city in that great day!—L. Donald Warren in Signs of the Times; condensed.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Is Berean Evangelism Too Visionary?

Last summer, during the business meeting of the National Berean Society, it was moved and adopted that a Berean evangelistic fund be established, and that an evangelist be sent out as the opportunity afforded.

The evangelistic committee, appointed by the National Berean board, held several informal meetings and the committee decided, among other things, that the Berean evangelist should go into new places, conduct preaching services, and undertake to organize new Berean societies.

More than five months have passed since the fund was established and as yet no evangelistic work has been done. Numerous letters were sent out to different places, explaining the plan and purpose of the committee; articles have appeared on the Berean page from time to time in regard to the same theme, and it was hoped that from some place, some individual, would come a "Macedonian call." But not one response, not one suggestion, has arrived.

Shall we then conclude that Berean evangelistic work is merely a "visionary" project, without practical value? Is it the desire of Bereans, both old and young, that this work should be started and the Berean work advanced? Or are we satisfied with our present condition, content to stay in the same old rut we have traveled these past years, thinking only in terms of the present?

Let us ever remember that had it not been for the "visionary" ideas of the early leaders of our church and Berean societies we today would not have the churches and societies that now exist in many parts of the country. Their visionary ideas became realities through their desire and effort to spread the truth of the gospel. Shall we, the Bereans of today, allow this spirit of sacrifice and zeal to become lost among us? God forbid! The need of new churches and new Berean societies is just as great today as formerly. The promises of the Scriptures are just as precious, the teaching of Christ's second coming just as important, today as in the years gone by. Are you willing that we should go forward?

We have $100 in the evangelistic fund. It should be realized by all that this will not go very far when active work is begun. If there are any societies or individuals who have some surplus money they would like to contribute to this fund, it will be appreciated. Send all contributions to Mrs. Esta Starbuck, 624 Rockton Ave., Rockford, Illinois. Please specify that it is to be used in the evangelistic fund.

If there are individuals or groups who would like to see this work started in their locality, please write to Harry Goekler, Marshall, Illinois, chairman of the committee. All suggestions and criticisms will be appreciated.

Evangelistic Committee.

Have You Paid Your Dues?

The constitution of the Berean Society states that all State and local dues shall be paid semi-annually, on the first of January and the first of July, to the treasurer of the National Society. If you haven't paid your dues as yet, the treasurer will be glad to receive them any time. Send them to Mrs. Esta Starbuck, 624 Rockton Ave., Rockford, Illinois.

Facing What We Must

When one is smitten with a staggering blow of sorrow, loss, or physical affliction, he can do one of two things. He can swoon, throw up his hands in despair, and surrender, or he can face the conflict with a brave heart and fearlessly fight with an unfaltering trust that somehow God's plans in the end will work out for the good of mortals, and by heroic courage conquer fate. Some one has said that sorrows gather around great souls as storms do around mountains; but, like them, they break the storm and purify the air of the plain beneath. There is no escape. Sooner or later pain and suffering are the inevitable lot of every mortal. It is then that the Christian turns more than ever to the One who said, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30).

True it is that many times pain, suffering, and death come in such measure that we almost doubt the wisdom and plan of God. But again our doubts are soon dispelled by the assuring words of the great Apostle Paul in Romans 8:28: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

May we all, as Christian workers together, face with faith and courage the inevitable problems over which we have no control, looking to the future when Jesus shall come in power and glory.

Let Us Think on These Things

Many times in life we are undecided as to which course to follow. Especially is this true with regard to seeking the right form of pleasure and amusement. In such cases, let us ponder thoughtfully the words of Paul in Philippians 4:8, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

*"I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. . . .
I lay down my life for the sheep."*

OUR GOOD SHEPHERD

HOW many of you boys and girls ever had a pet lamb of your own? Or if you have not, how many of you who live on farms have sheep or have helped care for sheep? At least, all of you have seen sheep, I'm sure.

We all know that sheep are very helpless creatures. They need care and protection from wild beasts. They depend on their shepherd a great deal.

In the western part of our own United States and in Australia there are flocks made up of thousands of sheep. These are driven from one place to another by the men who care for them or by watchdogs.

But in the land of Judea, where Jesus lived, the sheep are always led. The shepherd goes before the flock and shows the way to go. He removes the dangers from the path, sometimes really giving his life for his sheep.

The sheep are safe as long as they stay with the shepherd, but if they roam away they may be lost. No one can take the place of the shepherd without the sheep finding it out. For they won't follow a stranger.

Once a lecturer from Palestine told the story of how he and his brother tried to take their father's place as the shepherds of his flock. They put on their father's clothing, and the sheep followed them until they spoke. Right then the sheep knew the difference, and they halted in their tracks and wouldn't move.

A true shepherd leads his sheep to a good green pasture where they can feed. He finds clear, cool water for them to drink. At nighttime he leads them back to the fold most always, though sometimes they stay out in the fields all night long.

How many of you know of a time when the shepherds watched their flocks by night, all seated on the ground? Think hard!

Yes, you've thought of it! "The angel of the Lord came down and glory shone around." The night the dear little baby Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea.

This same Jesus was grown up at the time of our lesson story, and He was telling those who had gathered around that He was the Good Shepherd. Jesus, a Shepherd? Yes; and who are the sheep and lambs? We are.

When you think of the things we have just learned about shepherds and sheep, you will see how those things are true. Jesus cares for us more than any shepherd ever cared for his sheep. He leads us by love, never drives us by force.

He finds the best paths for us to take if we only ask Him to guide and lead us. He removes dangers from our path that we often never even knew were there. If we, His sheep and lambs, stay close to Him, we are safe. If we stray away we are in danger.

There are many things that cause us to stray away from our Good Shepherd. One of these, you will see as you grow older, is the love of the pleasures of this world. Another may be the love of money. Another is called the desire for worldly honor and glory. All of these may cause us to leave the Good Shepherd's flock and fall into the very midst of danger.

Jesus, our Good Shepherd, really gave His life for His sheep and lambs. That, as you all know, was on the cross. He proved true to His flock to the very last. And because He was such a faithful Shepherd, God raised Him back to life again, to eternal life that He will never lose.

Those of you who know the 23rd Psalm, say it over to yourself now. It is a beautiful chapter. As you repeat it think of Jesus as your own Shepherd, leading you beside still waters, in paths of righteousness. I hope your superintendent will ask you to repeat it before the school.

There are two nice hymns that most of us know that would be good to sing on February 14, the date of this lesson. They are "The Ninety and Nine," and "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Perhaps you have some others in your songbook.

Here is one called, "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd":

"Dear to the heart of the Shepherd,
Dear are the lambs of His fold;
Some from the pastures are straying,
Hungry, and helpless, and cold.
See, the Good Shepherd is seeking,
Seeking the lambs that are lost;
Bringing them in with rejoicing,
Saved at such infinite cost.

"Out in the desert they wander,
Hungry, and helpless, and cold;
Off to the rescue He hastens,
Bringing them back to the fold."

AMONG THE CHURCHES

FLOOD SWEEPS SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

By Elizabeth Martin

Eldorado, Ill., Jan. 30.—With approximately one half of its population of twelve thousand homeless, Harrisburg, Ill., was further endangered today by having its water supply shut off. Orders have been issued by the State Department of Public Health that all water used for cooking and drinking purposes in Harrisburg must be boiled for at least ten minutes.

Every hour the oncoming waters dislodge more and more of the citizens of Harrisburg. It has been necessary to dynamite the ice covering some of the city's streets to provide passageways for boats going to the rescue of persons marooned in various sections of the city.

All freight and passenger service by rail into Harrisburg has been discontinued. The highways leading into the city from all directions have been closed. The only route now open is 13 between Marion and Harrisburg. Mail, freight, express, and supplies are taken into Harrisburg on Route 13, transferred into boats, and transported to within five blocks of the court house square by water.

The Sahara Coal Company has suffered heavy losses. Water boils from the shaft of Number 3 mine that employs 320 men. Officials have given up all hope of ever reopening this mine and are concentrating all efforts in an attempt to save mines Numbers 12 and 1 from the turbid waters.

Warnings have been issued regarding fire hazards. Gasoline and oil float on the surface of the water and all persons have been cautioned in an attempt to avoid a recurrence of the recent Cincinnati conflagration.

Eldorado at present is high and dry. The only route open from Eldorado is Number 143 to Raleigh and Benton. The city hall and Legion hall have been converted into emergency hospitals and supply stations for refugees by the Red Cross. Eldorado is caring for refugees from Shawneetown, Junction, Equality, New Haven, and Ridgeway, Ill. Each hour sees ambulances and army trucks pouring into the city loaded with people whose homes are inundated.

The headquarters of Col. Davis of the Illinois National Guard are located at the main hotel in Eldorado. From this point Col. Davis directs all relief activity in this sector from New Haven south to Carmi.

The various relief agencies, Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, the American Red Cross, Works Progress Administration, and the local relief agencies have the situation well in hand.

We come in contact with so much suffering here in the office. I am secretary to Francis L. Jahn, superintendent of the Commodity Department, WPA. We are supplying food stuff, clothing, and bedding for the disaster-stricken villages of New Haven, Ridgeway, Carmi, Equality, Shawneetown, and Junction.

I am afraid it isn't just a matter of a week or two, as the waters are still rising, and we should realize that it is a situation of which only God knows the outcome.

THE IOWA FIELD

From an interesting letter we gather the following facts relative to the work in Iowa, where Bro. J. L. Denchfield has been laboring for some months. Since conference Bro. Denchfield has held meetings in various localities in Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois, and Wisconsin, but is now situated "permanently and temporarily," as he expresses it in his letter, at Koszta, a rural community not far from Marengo, Iowa. He is pastor of the churches at Koszta and at Hickory Grove. The latter is another rural church between Colo and Maxwell in the central part of the State.

"For the past few months," writes Bro. Denchfield, "services have been held on the first and third Sundays of the month at Hickory Grove and on the second and fourth at Koszta. However, the probability is that a change will soon be made and services will be held at Hickory Grove on the first Sunday only and the remaining three Sundays will be taken by Koszta."

Bro. Denchfield expresses the enjoyment he has found in working with the Iowa brethren and mentions appreciatively the full support which the Iowa Conference board has extended to the work throughout the State.

In spite of his active work in Iowa, Bro. Denchfield still takes a deep interest in the progress of the churches in his old home State, Minnesota. He says that plans are now being formulated for extensive evangelistic work in both Berean and State Conference programs, and he anticipates "a more successful and extensive campaign than that of last year. And that," he remarks, "was quite successful." In Bro. Denchfield's estimation, Minnesota offers a splendidly promising field for Christian work in all lines.

FROM SOUTH DAKOTA

I am sending $1.00 for the paper for six months. Times are hard and money scarce, as it has been so many years since we have raised a crop; but we feel we need the paper, and enjoy reading every bit of it. It is such a help, as we never hear any preaching.

We have had very severe weather since the first of the year. A blizzard has been raging all day, and it is below zero. Roads are all blocked. There has been no traffic since noon.

Mrs. Inez Titus.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

The annual election of the Burr Oak Church of God was held Friday evening, Jan. 8.

Preceding the election, a short social program consisting of readings and songs was enjoyed by all present.

The reports showed that interest and attendance had grown in all departments during the year.

The following officers were elected: elders—Melvin Osborn, Ferris Zechiel; deacons—Gerald Osborn, Norman LaMunion; deaconesses—Louise LaMunion, Leona Zechiel; secretary, Nettie Guge; treasurer, Mary Hatten; trustees—Albert Overmyer, Norman LaMunion, Russel Currens; pianist, Elizabeth Zechiel; music director, Mary Hatten; Sunday school superintendent, Norman LaMunion; Berean president, Leona Zechiel; Ladies' Aid president, Pearl Zechiel.

On Sunday morning, Jan. 17, Bro. Hoskins delivered a very impressive sermon, "Our Consecration," in which he challenged us to become living examples of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and to consecrate and rededicate our lives so that our characters may promote brotherly love. After this inspiring message the officers were installed by the pastor.

Mrs. Nettie Guge, Secretary.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 26, Bro. F. L. Austin gave an excellent sermon on "The Signs of the Times" at Ripley. The hall in Macomb where the regular meetings are being held was not available that night.

Our Sunday school voted to send the offering for next Sunday to help relieve the suffering in the flood-stricken area of our Nation. This should test us and show how practical our Christianity is.

Sr. Mallory is very ill in the St. Mary's Hospital at Quincy, Ill. She will be glad for your prayers.

Bro. William Fey is home and up and about after an operation that kept him in the Macomb Hospital two weeks.

Several of the church folks have had the flu. Our attendance has not been quite as large the past few weeks, but we believe it will be back to normal soon.

Harvey Krogh, Jr.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Sunday, Jan. 31, the Oregon, Ill., congregation was surprised by a visit from Bro. and Sr. H. S. Bell of La Crosse, Wis., and their son Merle of Chicago.

The collection of the Oregon, Ill., Sunday school on January 31 was turned over to the American Red Cross for flood relief purposes. This offering, together with the amount contributed by the church on January 24, raised the total contributions of the Oregon group to the Red Cross to more than $57.

Dorothy Elaine is the little miss who came on January 19 to live with Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp of 340 30th Ave. N., St. Cloud, Minn. We pray that she may come to be as diligent in our Master's service as are her father and mother.

In a personal letter to the editor, Sr. Elizabeth Martin assures us that, as far as she knows, none of our church people in southern Illinois have so far been affected by the flood.

CHURCH OF GOD MESSENGER

Fonthill, Ontario - Niagara Falls, New York
 An effort will be made to accelerate and expand the work at Welland, Ont. The average attendance at the Sunday school since it was started ranges in the twenties. Bro. Fred Jones of St. Catharines, who has been helping in the teaching, deserves much credit for his splendid constructive work. The work at this point is now definitely established and the present membership of fourteen provides a sound nucleus around which to build.

In the past year the pastor of the churches at Fonthill and Welland, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., has preached 146 sermons, conducted 141 Bible lessons, taught 140 Sunday school classes, and officiated at 23 Communion services, making a total of 450. This does not include the many meetings and services participated in outside of the regular church work. That you may grasp the total amount of time these combined services required, they are equal to two and one quarter months composed of 25 eight-hour working days. This does not include the many hours of preparation spent in the study nor the time required to go to and from the widely scattered places of meeting.

The Lord blessed the efforts with seventeen baptisms. Two more have signified their desire to be immersed as the result of the past year's work. Lest some might think that these additions are the result solely of the pastor's efforts, he thankfully acknowledges that "a goodly number can be traced to the splendid work of some of the members. Our people are catching the spirit of individual evangelism. There is no limit to the work that can be done if people set their hearts to the task."

The financial condition of the church is not only sound, but is sufficiently encouraging to warrant a broadening effort. Better times, no doubt, have contributed to some extent to this improvement, but the real cause is warmer hearts. The report from which The Herald takes these interesting items concludes with this significant statement from the pastor: "Your increased liberality toward your pastor for the coming year indicates your quickening spiritual pulse."

A young man has come to board with Bro. and Sr. David Elliott. His name is David Douglas. "David" means "beloved" and "Douglas," a Scotch name, means "defender." "Beloved Defender" is the role this little fellow is to play in the drama of life and in the service and defense of the gospel.

Bro. T. H. Weldon; his daughter, Sr. Will Holland; and his grandson, Weldon, have gone to New York City where they will board a boat for a two weeks' cruise through southern waters and the Panama Canal to the West Coast, where they will spend the remainder of the winter in the sunshine of the "Golden State." Their absence will be keenly felt and we pray their journey may be safe and pleasant.

Irvin Barnhart, Howard Shute, Betty and Dorothy Elliott, who have been confined by scarlet fever, will soon be released from quarantine. Sr. Taylor of Fonthill remains very weak, as does Sr. Oakley of Niagara Falls, N. Y. They need your prayers. Bro. George Rennard of the Falls continues to gain strength.

"Mother Shipton's Prophecies" will be the pastor's subject at both churches on January 31.

"It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth."—Rom. 14:21.

COOPER - WARD

On Christmas Day, J. Wesley Cooper of Ripley, Ill., announced the marriage of his daughter Margaret to Lyle K. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ward of Rushville, Ill.

The wedding occurred November 16, 1935, at Fairfield, Iowa, Rev. U. S. Smith of the M. E. Church officiating. Since that date the young couple have kept their marriage a secret.

The bride will be remembered by many who met her at General Conference. She attended Rushville High School and later Western Illinois State Teacher's College of Macomb, from which she graduated June 4, 1936.

The groom is a young man of high ambition. He also attended Rushville High School and is at present a junior of Western Illinois State Teacher's College.

Their plans for the future are indefinite. Their many friends wish for them the best that life can give.

Eduah Cooper.

The Gospel

- operating in one's life produces a change (Rom. 12:1, 2);
- provides an easement of physical infirmities (Matt. 11:28);
- is a complete armor for Christian warfare (Eph. 6:11-17);
- has never been defeated in any conflict (Isa. 55:10, 11).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
 Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

God's Covenant With Abraham

- * Written by S. J. Lindsay, pastor and evangelist, former editor of The Restitution Herald
- * Concerns the greatest promise ever made—that to Abraham by God
- * Liberally sprinkled with Bible references which are quoted in full
- * Considers the major dogmatic implications of the covenant
- * Modern printing; bound in heavy blue paper
- * Price: 10¢ each; 7¢ each for 5 or more to one address

National Bible Institution
 Oregon, Illinois

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

C. E. Randall	$ 2.00
Catharine Davis	1.35
Anne E. Sleight	3.00
Leva Missman (ind. fund)	4.00
Lorraine Missman (ind. fund)	3.00
Nolan B. Orr	7.20
Maurertown, Va., S. S.	3.13
Fonthill, Ont., Church (ind. fund)	16.30
Maybelle Hanson	4.00
J. W. Sweet	2.00
Happy Woods, La., S. S. (ind. fund)	12.18

LOVE MARKS THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

If you would solve your troubles,
 All your worries and your cares—
 Would find the road to happiness
 And the answer to your prayers;
 You can do it very simply
 And effectually, too,
 By answering this question—
 "What's the loving thing to do?"

In home, that earthly temple
 Where the God of Love holds sway,
 You can solve the little problems
 That confront you day by day;
 You can spread the joy of sunshine,
 You can make the heavens blue,
 By answering this question—
 "What's the loving thing to do?"

In the busy world about you,
 'Mid the struggle and the strife,
 You will find that it will help you
 As you journey on through life,
 To remember that your brother
 May be looking up to you,
 For an answer to the question—
 "What's the loving thing to do?"

Then keep it always with you,
 Bear it constantly in mind,
 Let your life be governed by it,
 And you will surely find
 It will lead you up to happiness,
 It will make your dreams come true,
 If your actions answer fully—
 "What's the loving thing to do?"
 —Anonymous.

COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY
 Fourth Edition

The largest abridgment in the famous Merriam-Webster series. Surpasses all other abridged dictionaries in popular acceptance. Defines 106,000 words. 1,268 pages. Illustrated. Thumb index. Used as authority by every court. Defines many obsolete Bible words. Unusually accurate.

- Regular Style 7 x 10 x 2 3/8 in. 5 lbs.
- Cloth $4.00
- Buckram, marbled edges 5.00
- Thin Paper Style 6 x 8 3/8 x 1 1/2. 2 1/4 lbs.
- Blue cloth, sprinkled edges $3.50
- Brown fabrikoid, gilt edges 5.00
- Black Levant leather, gilt edges 7.00
- Limp pigskin, dk blue or natural 8.50

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
 Oregon, Illinois

Gospel of Service

By C. E. Randall

YES, it is true that the gospel of the kingdom is dogmatic and its teachings positive. This asserted authority of the Scriptures, however, can be easily made arrogant in our application of the letter of the text.

For instance: "Have ye not read what David did, when he was an hungered, and they that were with him; how he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him" (Matt. 12:3, 4). From a dogmatic angle, the act was an open violation of the law. There were those who assailed this unlawful eating as sin. Without going into a discussion of the purpose of the shewbread, it can be briefly stated that it was for a good purpose. Here are some of God's children who are hungry. Must they go unfed? The letter of the law prohibited eating the shewbread. It was not consecrated for that purpose. But these folk need something to eat. An actual need has been created. Must the letter of the law hold fast, or will the spirit of the Word give sufficient flexibility to meet this need of doing good? It is a worthy cause, and though the shewbread is not intended to feed the hungry, yet it is never wrong to do good, so using the shewbread for another righteous cause is lawful, and David is uncondemned in doing good. Jesus uses this case to teach us that doing good is always right and lawful.

In this same connection the account of Jesus and the disciples passing through the grain field on the Sabbath is recorded. The disciples were hungry and began to pluck the grain and eat. This was contrary to the law, which required that food for the Sabbath be supplied on the sixth day. The Pharisees began complaining. They were strict dogmatists, and looked at the law strictly from a letter point of view. They asked Jesus why His disciples violated this law. The letter of the law did not provide for the emergency. The spirit of the law was elastic enough to warrant doing good in response to a human need.

Jesus interpreted the positive gospel in harmony with the people's needs. His gospel was translated in terms of service. "He went about doing good." A dogmatic gospel that overlooks and neglects human needs has little appeal, and, we might add, little place in the world. The Golden Rule is the dogmatic gospel in action. Wherever Jesus went He did good. His attentions to the needs and sufferings of the people won their hearts and ears.

Our gospel of words would have more power if it was accompanied with a gospel of service. Little headway can be made preaching to a hungry man or an ill-clad traveler. Fill his stomach and cover his body and your words will have meaning and will carry a warmth of spirit. Read carefully James 2:15, 16. The most successful way to teach people what Jesus is going to do is to demonstrate in your own life what He has done and by your service of love indicating what He is doing. While many denominations may have neglected a positive gospel, yet they have done a noble work in ministering to the needs of a distressed world. This is the spirit of the truth of the dogmatic gospel.

The gospel of good will is more powerful in action than in word. If nations would act and live peaceably as well as talk in terms of peace, world amity would be on a more enduring foundation. Do not think we are suggesting a "let-up" in teaching and preaching the dogmatic gospel. But we are suggesting something additional to this fundamental work, namely, the gospel of service.

The emphasis that has been placed on Jesus' statement, "They are not of the world," has been such that we have largely isolated ourselves from the very people that He sent us to save. A "holier or wiser than thou" attitude at once erects a barrier which hinders, if not destroys, usefulness. Making the world a better place in which to live and easing the groanings of suffering humanity are not partaking of the things of the world. If such constitutes worldliness, then I am willing to be worldly in this respect. Jesus was accused of being a winebibber because He ate and drank with sinners in His ministry of doing good.

Paul expresses well the gospel of service in his Galatian Epistle, when he says: "As we have . . . opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith" (Gal. 6:10). We have grasped the "especial" part, but what about the first admonition, "Let us do good to all men"? Preaching them the gospel is doing good to them. This does not complete our mission. Nor will we ever grasp or sense the missionary spirit until we catch a vision of gospel service. What has the Church of God as a group been doing in a missionary way? What have we done to help the under-privileged? What have we done to care for the orphans? What have we done to abet human suffering? What have we done to aid the mentally ill? You know what we have done! You know what we are doing!

Do you recall the story of the good Samaritan? Remember the man fell among thieves; wounded and suffering, he needed help. The ambassadors of the law saw his need, recognized his suffering, but passed by on the other side. The Good Samaritan came along and ministered to the man's needs. Who was friend to the wounded? Who exemplified the spirit of the law? Who are ministering to the pains of creation today? Whose hearts are going out to those who sit in darkness and ignorance? Who is showing by example the spirit of the gospel? "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men."—Church of God Messenger.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 9, 1937

NUMBER 19

From a Proclamation

By Abraham Lincoln

IT IS the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord. . . .

We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven; we have been preserved these many years in peace and prosperity; we have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gra-acious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us.

It behooves us, then, to humble ourselves before the offended Power, to confess our national sins, and to pray for clemency and forgiveness. . . .

Let us . . . rest humbly in the hope authorized by the divine teachings that the united cry of the Nation will be heard on high and answered with blessings no less than the pardon of our national sins.—Proclamation of March 30, 1863.

Presbyterian or agnostic—whichever he was, Abraham Lincoln left behind him a heritage at which Napoleon probably would sneer, but which certainly was of far more worth than anything the Frenchman ever did. Lincoln's birthday, February 12, will be a legal holiday in twenty-nine States and in Alaska, will commemorate the causes and effects with which his personality and policies have indelibly stamped American government and institutions.

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day
G. E. Marsh, Editor

Growth of Dictatorships

"The king shall do according to his will . . . till the indignation be accomplished."—Daniel 11:36.

TOKYO, Japan, Feb. 4.—The trend toward Fascism continues under the leadership of the army. Representative Kunimatsu Hamada, 78-year-old leader of the Seiyukai Party, and former Speaker of the House, in an attack on the attempt of the army to gain control of the Government, cited many declarations in 1932 and 1936 as indicating that the military leaders wanted to establish a dictatorship. General Senjuro Hayashi was commissioned by the Emperor on January 30 to form a cabinet, which at this time has not yet been completed. Observers assert that upon the outcome of the fight between the politicians and military leaders in Japan depend the future form the Government will take and probably the peace of the Far East.

MOSCOW, U.S.S.R., Feb. 3.—The relentless hand of dictatorship was again extended last week to pronounce the death sentence on thirteen prominent members of the Communist Party, including the former head of the munitions trust. The convicted men were charged with treason, espionage, sabotage, and plotting to restore capitalism. In the amazing trial which preceded their execution, the accused all pleaded guilty, as has been the case in former trials. Outside observers are wondering as to what methods were used to bring about mass confessions of this kind, but owing to the close censorship maintained by the Government it is impossible to secure the actual facts.

BERLIN, Germany, Feb. 3.—The speech of Adolf Hitler on January 30 occupies the headlines in the news from Germany this week, together with the responses to it by the premiers of Great Britain and France. The dictator re-affirmed his determination to continue the policy of German isolation, to which both France and Britain strongly object on the grounds that such a policy tends to arouse suspicion rather than to allay fear.

In complete harmony with the comprehensive picture of "the time of the end" as it is painted by the prophets, the peoples of the world are being educated to welcome the absolutism by which the nations are to be governed under the system of the Antichrist. The leading nations of Europe, with the exception of Great Britain, are already groaning under the iron hand of dictators. Japan and China are turning strongly in the same direction. Even in the United States a powerful movement is on foot to reduce the power of the Supreme Court, our only protection against centralization of authority and the greatest safeguard to religious liberty.

Ancient Hebrew Language Revived

"Then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve him with one consent."—Zephaniah 3:9.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 30.—Dorothy Ruth Kahn, Jewish newspaper correspondent and author of a new book dealing with the return of her people to Palestine, declares that the ancient Hebrew tongue is rapidly becoming the common language of all classes of Jews in Palestine. Whether it is a gathering of members of the "society strata" for a cocktail party at the magnificent new King David Hotel, where lovely Jewish women in the latest Paris-made gowns sip Martinis with elegantly dressed Jewish men of the world, or whether it is a group of young orthodox Jewish exiles from Germany, Poland, or Russia who have met on the same evening for their frugal supper and simple prayer, all are conversing in the same language, the ancient Hebrew tongue in which no doubt the angels and Jehovah Himself spoke to Abraham as he sat at the door of his tent under the oaks of Mamre (A. R. V.) "in the heat of the day" (Gen. 18:1-21).

The book of which Miss Kahn is the author and to which reference has been made, is Spring Up, O Well! We have not had an opportunity as yet to review this work, but others who have done so speak of its beautiful descriptive passages concerning the Holy Land in springtime, the Festival of the Fruits, the observance of Purim in the exclusively Jewish city of Tel Aviv, and of the products and industries of Palestine. God has not forgotten nor "cast away his people which he foreknew" (Rom. 11:2), but already is rattling the "very dry" bones of Israel in preparation for "breathing" upon them that they may live again (Ezek. 37).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

What Would You Do?

By the Editor

"In those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came unto him, and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live."—Isaiah 38:1.

IT WAS a death sentence that the Lord pronounced upon Hezekiah that day! It came at a time when the King's physical vitality was low and his mind depressed as the result of prolonged illness, and the effect of the startling announcement was consequently profoundly felt.

Seldom does the fatal summons come under circumstances more dramatic than those recorded here. And still more rarely does it come from the Lord Himself. Generally a man is made aware of the approach of death by his attending physician or by an intimate and trusted friend or relative, but seldom does the information come directly from God through the lips of a prophet.

It is hard for us to break such news to one whom we love, to tell him frankly that there is no hope for his recovery! Yet it is a duty that sometimes must be performed regardless of one's reluctance and regret.

"Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live!"

Those were tragic words to say to a sick man, and I have no doubt but that Isaiah was exceedingly sorry to address them to his friend the King. But I am sure that Hezekiah would much rather have received the fateful message from a friend who loved him than from an enemy who might rejoice at the opportunity to make such a declaration to him. Love and friendship soften many a hard blow which we receive in this life; but a blow as heavy as the one which fell upon the King of Judah on that occasion nothing can soften very much.

The way in which the King rebelled against the approach of death indicates clearly that in spite of prolonged suffering and weakening disease his spirit was still undaunted and vitally alive. Unlike Job under somewhat similar circumstances, Hezekiah did not want to die. He may have been ready to lay down his scepter and rest until the great Judge of all should call him forth to life again, so far as his spiritual preparation was concerned, but physically and mentally he was neither ready nor willing to die.

There seems to be a vast difference between a faith that will sustain men in life and one that will reconcile them to death! Many seem to have the former, but few apparently possess the latter to a satisfying degree. Most men are anxious to live under almost any condition however distressful their lives may be. Our animal instinct, prompting us to cling tenaciously to life, conspires with our faith in God to give us courage to want to go on in the face of pain, disappointment, and hopeless defeat. Regardless of anything and everything, we want to live!

This jealousy of life is not due altogether to the animal instinct to which allusion has been made, but is attributable to a large extent to the confidence we have in ourselves, a confidence which we have built up on the foundation of our own experience.

When the way grows dark and danger seems to lurk in every shadow, we remember gratefully that the sun of hope has been eclipsed before for a passing hour and that it has always come forth again to shed its radiance upon our pathway. When disease saps our strength and we notice our friends' reluctance to give a direct reply to our questions concerning the physician's conclusion as to the seriousness of our condition, we generally say to ourselves: "Well, I've been sick before and have always recovered. I'll just show that doctor he can't make a dead man out of me yet!"

And often such a courageous attitude contributes in no small degree to our eventual recovery.

Sometimes we endeavor to assure ourselves with the thought that our task is not complete. We feel that God still has something for us to do, and such being the case, He will not permit us to be taken away until we are able to say with Jesus, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

Of course such an idea is egotistical and probably without foundation, for few indeed are so vitally necessary to the furtherance of God's plans that those plans would be disrupted or delayed should they be called from the scene of action! God's work always goes on! No failure of men can hinder it and no man nor group of men is indispensable to its success. As Jesus said of the self-satisfied Pharisees: "God is able of these stones (Please turn to Page Eleven)

Fidele

Fear no more the heat o' the sun
Nor the furious winter's rages;
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone and ta'en thy wages:
Golden lads and girls all must,
As chimney-sweepers, come to dust.

Fear no more the frown o' thy great,
Thou art past the tyrant's stroke;
Care no more to clothe and eat;
To thee the reed is as the oak:
The scepter, learning, physic, must
All follow this, and come to dust.

Fear no more the lightning flash
Nor the all-dreaded thunder stone;
Fear not slander, censure rash;
Thou hast finish'd joy and moan:
All lovers young, all lovers must Consign to thee, and come to dust.

—William Shakespeare.

A Sermonette

By Mildred Stantial

THE theme of my sermonette is the psychological aspect of religion, or the scientific relation between the mind and religious life. I am not promulgating New Thought, Occult Science, or any other modern movements that are supposed to take the place of religion, but am endeavoring to support the fundamentals of the "old-time religion."

To begin with, let us say that the science of living, or how to live, is the real problem of life, a universal problem. There are things which must be mastered to take a degree in life, just as one studies problems in health to take a degree in medicine, or takes up the problems of law to become a lawyer. As in these professions, so in the Christian profession, one must matriculate in a school to get the degree which is awarded after mastering a subject. The matriculation of a Christian comes when he adopts the Christian faith; he registers in the school of Christian living when he is baptized. The Master of this school, our heavenly Father, does not expect us to have full knowledge or to have attained perfection when we enroll in His school; but with His textbook, the Bible, and His daily help through prayer He will guide us to the completion of our course and we will receive the "degree of the overcomer." We have not, I should say, shown our desire to take up the Christian profession or cannot earn our degree unless we have enrolled by being baptized.

What, then, are some of the things we must master in this school of life? First, there is faith. Speaking from the psychological point of view, reason takes us just so far and no farther. Great confusion comes to those who try to base everything on science or reason. Faith must come into the scheme of things. If those who try to reason things to the last degree could only realize that it is in God's great plan that we should not know everything! God's mind is infinite and limitless, while man's is finite. I always realize the finiteness of the mind when I try to understand the matter of everlasting life; I can't think what forever can be, but I can believe that there is such a thing and that mortal minds are incapable of comprehending it.

After faith comes works. This might be called our laboratory subject. With the wide world as our laboratory and our fellow beings as subjects, we should develop the technique of doing things. If we follow examples in the Bible we will do many things which are not what we want to do, and we will serve others. In the perfecting of service toward others we are overcoming the selfishness in ourselves. Whenever we feel like shirking a Christian duty, we should remember "faith without works is dead."

Another thing to be mastered in this school is defense, the equivalent of military training, should we say? But instead of learning to bear arms, we are to equip ourselves with a knowledge with which we can always defend the truth.

There are those who start the course and withdraw; at any rate it isn't an easy one. But there is a satisfaction in following it and the honors to be awarded are most enticing. When the degree is won, there will be positions for all (as the trade schools advertise). Paul had this assurance when he said, "I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day." We shall be kings and priests reigning with Christ on the earth.

The June, 1936, issue of Reader's Digest contains a condensation of the book, The Return to Religion, by Dr. Henry C. Link, director of the Psychological Service Center of New York City. I want to give a few of his ideas as mentioned in this review that may have some bearing on what I have said. I believe it confirms our faith in this day, when science is running in competition with religion, to find what a scientist has to say on "the return to religion." His daily work as a psychologist is adjusting the lives of people who haven't learned how to live properly. He has found that religion has solved their problems in so many cases, and his psychological tests and studies have led him back into active church work.

Dr. Link says in his book that he was led to return to religion through science, just as science had turned him away from it during his college days. His courses in philosophy had made him think man's power of reason was the supreme thing in the world, and as an agnostic, he scorned everything religious.

Since becoming a practical psychologist he has found by scientific studies that religion is a basic need of man. In a supervised psychological study of ten thousand unemployed people, one fact that he proved was that those people who had a religious belief or were churchgoers stood out as better individuals. He advised his clients to take up church work, whatever their social problem might be. Whether they were seeking an adjustment in their vocation, married life, mental poise, or economic security, the solution of their difficulties lay in a more effective attack on life founded on a broader and truer set of ideals. The type of religion he refers to is not something to help the individual to get away from himself, but a real tool which strengthens and helps him meet the actualities of life. Dr. Link believes in the efficacy of faith. The effect of religion on these people has caused him to return to religion.

He does not claim that just going to church can solve the problems of life, but uses this as a starting point on the premise of "faith without works is dead." In his activities as a church member, the person gets away from self and introspection which may be harmful, and becomes an altruistic member of society. Modern psychology emphasizes activity or doing things rather than thinking and analyzing oneself. All people are naturally selfish, and it requires something outside the individual to bring the proper adjustment. Religion, Dr. Link claims, satisfies this need in a way which nothing else can, and leads to a fuller life. Only in belief in a Supreme Being does one lose his self-importance. The disciplining of oneself—doing things he dislikes doing rather than what he likes (which all church members find is necessary)—produces a stronger personality with self left in the background.

I believe that our far-sighted view of religion—of rewards and blessings that are to come—often makes us overlook the near-at-hand happiness that comes from being a Christian.

Rescue the Perishing

By Mary A. Gesin

"In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him."—1 John 4:9.

THE hearts of all in this great land of ours have been touched by a national catastrophe. America has responded to the call of distress, and money, food, clothing, and medicines have poured into the outstretched hands of those who stand in such dire need in the stricken flood territory. As a great band of brothers our country has arisen to give them aid.

All this is as it should be. Not one of us but would hang our head in shame if we failed to do our utmost for the relief of the needy. For we do not know when disaster may overtake us and leave us just as helpless.

But a far greater danger impends, and we stand idly by, heedless of our opportunity. Men are dying all about us, dying without a knowledge of the only way to obtain life eternal. The path of duty is plain.

Our hearts are touched to pity for those who are losing their lives in the flood, but only the present brief life is forfeited. At best it is filled with the ills of humanity. What of those who go down into death without faith in Christ as their Savior, just because you and I haven't brought them the message of hope?

God's heart was touched with pity for all mankind so that He "gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." God made a greater sacrifice than any one of us, for He sent His Son into the world, "that the world through him might be saved."

Shall we disregard that sacrifice? Shall we not only avail ourselves of it, but pass the word on to our dying neighbor as well? We cannot conceive of the flood sufferers refusing the proffered aid. Do we have any right to say that people will not listen to our message?

If it is true, as the Apostle Paul assures us, and we know it is true, that "death (has) passed upon all men, for that all have sinned," dare we stand indifferent to a world disaster and not render the aid that is in our power to give? Are we not forced by common ties of brotherhood to proclaim that "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord"?

Money is needed, still more money, in the stricken zone. Services of doctors and nurses are indispensable. Further suffering must be alleviated.

Money is needed everywhere to spread the good news of the coming King. Preachers and teachers are indispensable in proclaiming the tidings of God's kingdom of everlasting righteousness to be established on this earth. If you have a talent can you sit idly by in such dire emergency? Even though you may have only a limited income can you refuse a proportionate share for God's work of saving men?

There is opportunity for all to have a part. Whether you have time, talent, or tithe, or all three, you can find just the work you alone can do. If you do not do it, it may never be done, and another may perish because of your neglect.

God assures us through the great Apostle that "there is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Can you think of a happier message to give to one who is without hope?

"The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness," says Peter, "but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

Let us suppose an impossible situation. What if the gifts of generosity for the suffering people of our land were never forwarded to them? Of what avail man's sympathy and response?

"For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God." Shall we not proclaim God's gift in no uncertain tones? How can the world know it except we tell it? "Faith cometh by hearing."

"This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

The Folly of Anger

WE ARE suffering today from a drought of good temper, the gentle rain of good humor has ceased to fall at its usual rate, and the situation threatens to become desperate and dangerous. There is less good temper in world politics than there has been for some time. The European dictators seem to regard anger as a virtue, and they seek to stir up, in the hearts of their people, the spirit of anger and hate against any power that stands in their way. The war spirit is fed and nourished by anger. When serving in the Great War, many deliberate falsehoods were propagated to call forth in us the spirit of wrath and revenge. Dictators and war generals know the power of anger to serve their ends on the field of battle.

I have closely watched the Fascists at their open-air meetings in London, and on their faces I have seen the look of bitterness and hate. Should there be any Jews in their company, they scowl at them and hurl at them some insulting remark. Unless you are a good hater and capable of displaying a fierce wrathful spirit, it seems you are not a sincere Fascist. This is equally true of Communists; the extremists of both sides face each other with a murderous look and shout their hymns of hate at each other. In these and other political movements, a display of bad temper is regarded as a proof of sincerity.

"MORE HASTE, LESS SPEED"

There is no warrant that bad temper and sincerity go together. When we lose our tempers, we are no longer sincere, we cease to be our true selves, and we do more harm than good. When in our quieter moments we come back to our better self, we are ashamed and angry with ourselves for being so rash and foolish. When in anger, men are guilty of uttering false and exaggerated statements, for which many have had to pay heavily in the law courts. The man who keeps sweet-tempered and exercises great patience will achieve far more than the hasty wrathful person in the long run. Dictators are bad-tempered men in a hurry and sooner or later they learn there is wisdom in the old proverb, "More haste, less speed."

SULLEN ANGER

There are some people who derive a certain amount of sadistic satisfaction from their gloom, dark anger, sullen moods, silences, and storms. The power to make those around them unhappy and miserable gives them much pleasure. We recall the story of Scrooge, in Christmas Carol, who, before his conversion and transformation, found a positive delight in scowling at those in need and thus added to their bitterness and misery. Some men find relief when they vent their anger on their wives and children. They usually threaten and harm those who are too meek and weak to retaliate.

Most of us have an attack of irritableness and bad temper at times. In our better moments we are sorry for ourselves, for we feel we ought to have kept ourselves under control. It is better to express one's anger and be finished with it than to be silent and sullen for days, until anger bursts forth in a perfect fury. An anger that splutters over is less horrible than the anger hidden in the heart. There is something very grim in Burns'

"Sulky, sullen dame,
Gathering her brows like gathering storm,
Nursing her wrath to keep it warm."

THE FOLLY OF ANGER

The folly of anger has been repeatedly urged by the wise of all ages. In the fourteenth century, the Italian Petrarch wrote: "Why should one give way to anger, when one can avenge himself calmly, when one can choose the noblest revenge, pardon?" In another of his letters he wrote: "I know that bees do gather honey from the bitterest herbs, but I never found any sweetness in anger. Though to others it may seem sweeter than honey, to me it was always more bitter than gall."

Five hundred years later Amiel wrote: "It is vulgar to be angry on one's own account; we ought only to be angry for great causes. Besides the poisoned dart can only be extracted from the wound by the balm of a silent and thoughtful charity. Why do we let human malignity embitter us? Why should ingratitude, jealousy—perfidy even—enrage us? There is no end to recriminations, complaints, or reprisals. The simplest plan is to blot out everything. Anger, rancor, bitterness, trouble the soul. Every man is a dispenser of justice; but there is one wrong that he is not bound to punish—that of which he himself is the victim. Such a wrong is to be healed, not avenged."

ANGER ROBS US OF PEACE

Resentment and wrath are foolish because they are hurtful to the person who experiences them. They achieve nothing, for they rob us of peace and alienate us from our fellows. The man who keeps his temper under perfect control will say or do nothing rash and will thus keep the peace for himself and his neighbors. It is "the soft answer that turneth away wrath." To learn patience and to acquire the capacity readily to forgive is to acquire protection against unruly and insensate passion. The truly great man is the man who rules his own spirit and is quick to forgive and forget a wrong done against him. "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

In the New Testament, anger is regarded as belonging to the old nature, which we are to cast off. "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and evil speaking be put away from you, with all malice." We are to "put on," says the Apostle Paul, "a heart of compassion, kindness, humility, meekness, long-suffering, forbearing one another and forgiving each other. If any man have a complaint against any; even as the Lord forgave you, so also do ye." In appointing elders, Titus was instructed to choose those who were "not self-willed, not soon angry."

Christians were exhorted by James to be "swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath."

Amiel declares it is vulgar to be "angry on one's own account." But while there is this mean, foolish anger, there is a righteous anger. We would not be worthy of the name
(Please turn to Page Eleven)

Important Requirement No. 1

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

YES, it is faith, "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." But we have heard that statement so often; what does it really mean? According to the Weymouth translation of the New Testament "faith" is defined thus: "a confident assurance of that for which we hope, a conviction of the reality of things which we do not see." Ah! A confident assurance, a conviction. Father says, "Yes, my son, we have decided that you shall have a bicycle." The boy's eyes beam and a bright smile lights his face. He has faith in his father and he knows that his greatest desire shall be realized.

Noah was warned of God and because of faith and by the power of faith he labored for probably more than a hundred years and built an ark. He must have really been assured of the thing that was not yet seen. If some one told you where to find a spring of water that would make you forever young and happy, and if you had faith, you would certainly go to that spring. Why? Simply because faith and the action are so closely related that you cannot have one without the other.

One time God's children began to lose their faith in Him. They trusted in themselves and pleased themselves and forgot all about God. Because they had no faith in God they did not obey Him and completely turned from their Maker. An earthly father is very much grieved when his children have no faith in him. No doubt God was grieved; so He called out one of His children and said, "Depart from these people and go to a place that I will show you." This man Abraham believed God; he had faith, and therefore he obeyed God. Abraham was marked down as a righteous man because of this faith that prompted him to obey.

There and then God started a new nation. Not a nation determined by family or blood relation, color or language, but a nation different from all others in that every citizen has faith in God. The Holy Scripture informs us that if we belong to Christ, God's Son, we also are descendants of Abraham and heirs according to a promise. In Galatians 3:8 this promise is spoken of as a justification of the heathen and a blessing of all nations. Do the nations need blessing? Oh, yes, the war, the disease, the sin are all a curse that needs to be taken away. It seems all this is to come through faith. In Ephesians 2:5 we are told that it is by grace that we are saved, through faith, and that it is a gift from God. How is it that God can give such a rich gift to man and only require faith? Or does He require more than faith? The parent whose child has faith in him need not worry about giving the child valuable gifts. If the child has faith, the parent can trust the child to do as Father says because Father knows best.

May I say this? You trust God. You can trust Him more than you can trust yourself. You can trust Him more than you can trust me. You make an appointment with me; we are to meet at a certain place at an appointed time. My car doesn't get me there on time; maybe an accident prevents me; maybe I become sick. You cannot trust me. But you can trust God. The Psalmist said: "Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish. Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God" (Psalm 146:3-5).

Yes, your faith is in God and you believe that whatever God has said, that will He do. You do not know all that God will do, but you believe in Him and are assured that it will win for you a place in that kingdom that He is to set up with Christ as the great King. I may not understand God's plan exactly as you do, but I believe that my faith in God and His Son allows me to be accounted as righteous and I, too, shall have a position in that kingdom. Does it make any difference what we believe? Indeed you must believe God, and the better you know Him, the more you will put your trust in Him. As to how much we must know about Him or how much of His Word we must know, I cannot say, for only God can judge those things.

If you have faith in God, you will try to please Him. If you continue to put forth every effort to please Him, He will give you eternal life. Can God trust you with eternal life? Yes; if you trust God enough to do all for His glory and honor, He can not only trust you, but He can use you in His great plan of removing the curse from the earth and blessing all nations.

Faith means so much. Let us have faith in God and He will make all things work together for good for us and Himself.

HONESTY

IT HAS been said of public speaking that to get and to hold the group interest it is necessary to tell a funny story here and there. Well, I like funny stories; I am somewhat of an optimist and quite a dreamer. There are times when I like to get away from everyone and for awhile just daydream. I was somewhat comforted in general daydreaming when I ran across these words by Lincoln: "If you have spent your time building air castles, your work need not necessarily be lost; that is where they belong—in the air. Now just put foundations under them." This statement carries great truth. You can build air castles of dreams, but the foundation must be built on facts.

Tonight I will endeavor to hold your interest on facts, for that is what we want, not notions or opinions, because there are as many opinions as there are individuals.

In preparing this talk, I can truthfully say that I did not have any one person in our group in mind from a dishonest standpoint. However, I intend to hew to the line, and let the chips fall where they may.

We have young people here that are in business. We have high school and college students that will soon enter the business world. I think it is entirely fair that they be given an honest view of what they will meet. I believe the average person interested in church, spends about six hours a week in church, that leaves 162 hours outside. As you can't judge any man by his Sunday appearance, it is that 162-hour period of which I am going to speak.

I recently inquired of several people their idea of the word "honesty." I found three popular views.

Honesty is my policy.

Honesty is deeds done whereby the conscience can be at rest.

Honesty is anything within the law.

Now let us put these ideas through the third degree and see if we can break down their resistance.

Honesty is my policy.

The phrase sounds good, but if that is all that a man has in mind in regard to honesty, he hasn't very much. For what is policy? It refers to the management of general affairs. It is a system, an object. You have probably heard this statement in business, "It is my policy to deal strictly on a cash basis; however, I will extend credit in your case." What has happened? The man has broken his policy, temporarily at least. He has upset his management of affairs, changed his system, and lost his object, and if he classes honesty with a policy, that, too, will be disregarded. As a further illustration of policy, let us say you are getting ready for church Sunday morning. A car drives up, a Long it may be, but this paper by Lou MacKinnon, first read at the young people's service of January 3 at the Los Angeles Advent Christian Church and later reproduced in The Messiah's Advocate, is well worth reading. Ever since One Hundred Million Guinea Pigs, debunking the advertising and idealism of modern business has been a favorite indoor sport. Mr. MacKinnon does it religiously.

friend comes to the door and says, "Don't you want to go to the beach with us today? We are going to have a good time." And you explain that you were getting ready to go to church. Then perhaps the friend sells you the idea that you can go to church any time, and what might your reply be? "Well, it is my policy to attend church Sunday, but I guess it will be all right this time," and away you go. What has happened here? You had a policy all right, and it was a good one, but it was laid aside. Your policy may change with the wind, but honesty should be constant. Therefore, honesty should be a long step in advance of the modern term "policy."

I received this general idea from a sermon of Pastor Osman's a number of years ago. He made this statement, "Don't be a Christian just because your mother and father are Christians. Don't be honest, true, and upright to please a friend, but be righteous for the sake of righteousness. Do the job right because you know that is the way it should be done."

Then there is that group of people that have the idea that honesty is deeds done whereby the conscience can be at rest. And with that the phrase, "Let your conscience be your guide." I don't think much of these as ideas. I think they are excuses; for even as cocaine will temporarily deaden the nerves of a tooth, so also will continual wrongdoing and sin either temporarily or indefinitely deaden the conscience. The group of people in mention would not depend upon the word of a sleeping person, yet they expect a dormant conscience to guide them. A deadened conscience would satisfy a lot of people, but no person who is honest with himself.

There are many people that live according to the system that honesty is anything within the law. It is a system all right, but it is not a good one, for its origin is not found in our Bible, and that is in what we are primarily interested. It is true that the Bible upholds the respect for law. But the laws and the technicalities in the laws of today will allow the people to do a great many things that we as Christians cannot do. Perhaps you are a lawyer. I come to see you as a client. I have robbed some one of his property and money, or I have swindled my partner in business. For two hundred dollars or so you will protect me. I am within the law, but I am not honest.

Take the lawyer that specializes in criminal cases. To be a good criminal lawyer a man has to be intelligent, and if he is intelligent, he knows that pardoning the bad is injuring the good. Is he working toward honesty or is his main objective to be recognized as an outstanding attorney? You know the answer.

The loan sharks in this city operate within the law. You go down to the Better Business Bureau, and they will tell you of many a man who has borrowed ten dollars and paid back fifty—extended payments, added interest. It is within the law, but it is not an honorable practice. Many illustrations could be given, and a good speaker could devote an entire evening disproving the theory that honesty is anything within the law.

Ah, these are my ideas; we will turn to the Bible. In the 19th chapter of Leviticus we find various laws given to Moses. Among them some refer to honesty. "Ye shall not steal, neither deal falsely, neither lie one to another. . . . Thou shalt not defraud thy neighbour, neither rob him. . . . Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour. . . . And if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex him. . . . Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in meteyard, in weight, or in measure. Just balances, just weights, a just ephah, and a just hin, shall ye have: I am the Lord your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt. Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them."

This is Old Testament doctrine. But the same thing is stated in the New Testament. Mark 10:19: "Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Defraud not, Honour thy father and mother." These are not man-made laws. They do not suggest pampering a conscience. They are God's laws—God's commands. We have the commands. Now let us see how they are being carried out today in business.

It isn't pleasant to be continually reminded of distressing things, but a person is foolish indeed to close his eyes to facts and grope around in the dark, saying all is well. You know all isn't well. Our Bible tells us what to expect in these days, and we may as well face it. Selfishness and deceit reign supreme in the hearts and minds of people. Hillis, in his book, The Contagion of Character, starts by saying, "It is a striking fact that the world of animals and men live by lying, treachery, and deceit. All things that creep and crawl, practice fraud. The spider's web is spun out of deceits for unsuspecting flies. The fox doubles on the track and by pretense escapes. The wolf, more cunning still, leaps from its hiding place upon the young fawn as it stoops to drink. Man in business is far more deceitful than the animals." This was written a good many years ago, but it still holds good today.

I am not here tonight to condemn business, big or small, if it is carried on legitimately. But I am here to say honesty in business is a rare thing. It's the exception instead of the rule.

I will speak of the better side of life in just a minute, but for the present, look around you in the world of business and see what is happening. During the National Air Races I clipped an article out of the morning paper appearing on the editorial page, in the Voice of the People column. "The world of sports is getting just like everything else. Drain the people of all the traffic will bear. My twelve-year-old boy boarded a bus to attend the Air Races at Mines Field in company with four other boys, all aviation enthusiasts. When they got there, they were admitted to a dusty field in back of the grandstand where nothing could be seen and told to get in, it would be from one to five dollars additional. They came home a sorry and disappointed bunch. On their tickets was stated in fine print that they were not entitled to seats. Why not be fair and advertise the actual cost, then these boys and many others could have been saved the transportation cost and general admission." A case of petty fraud. You are fortunate if you can get down town and back tomorrow without becoming a victim of circumstances. Drive out of your garage and up to a gas station. Many times this is what you will see: "Gas 17 cents a gallon." The "17" is painted in large figures, and alongside of it you see "9-10"; it looks like it had been written with pen and ink. Instead of calling it by its right name, which is petty deceit, the attendant calls it a trick of the trade or some other fancy name.

When you reach town can you depend upon a fair deal in the market? Maybe. A proprietor in a downtown market where his goods are three feet above your head, said this to a friend of mine, "See this piece of ham? I have sold this same piece fifteen times today. I lay it down and wrap up another for the customer." I am sure this is true, but it is the only statement that I will make tonight that I cannot definitely prove. When you come out of the market you see a bank across the street with large letters, "Federal Reserve Bank." What do they mean—Federal Reserve? The Government has no stock in that bank. It is owned entirely by private corporations. No more Federal than the Federal peanut stand on Spring Street. After seeing these things in every line of business from the lowest level, straight through to the highest governmental position—I mean just that, the highest governmental position—I say American honesty is far more extinct than the American buffalo. You can still find the buffalo. I worked for one of the largest chain of termite control companies in Western America. They couldn't afford to pay me a living wage; said business wasn't very good. I was transferred into the laboratory, a small room about 10 x 10, and I really found out something about the business. The following day we had a call. It cost the man $65. How much material do you think was used? Less than $2; labor, $3. Which means the charge was thirteen times the production cost. A company is entitled to a profit, but they are taking advantage of the people.

Take a well-known product like radio. I have heard radio salesmen say, "This set sells for $50. It will receive any station of over five hundred watts in the world." Sounds good, but it isn't true, and the salesman knows it. Stromburg-Carlson builds a radio today that retails for $1,035—as fine a radio as money can buy. They will give a verbal guarantee; but ask for a written guarantee that you will be able to receive all stations in the United States alone; they can't give it. Maybe you would like more authentic word than mine. Listen to this: It is a statement by Stuart Chase of the American Medical Association. He speaks here for the drug business. "I do not know of any patent medicines that should be advertised. The conditions under which patent medicines are sold are hostile to the public health. There is too great an incentive to fraudulent and misleading claims. So long as modern advertising methods call for creating demands instead of filling them, the patent medicine business will continue to be a vast industry of playing on the fears of the public. The Food and Drug Act now provides some protection for the public against certain vicious material. No longer can a baby be kept quiet—a quiet which in many cases has meant death—with morphine once contained in Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. But you have no protection from the misleading claims of at least 50 per cent of the bottles on the shelves of your druggist. A nationally advertised drug does not mean that it is worthy of your purchase. Thymol plus a small quantity of boric and benzoic acid, under the name of Listerine, is recommended by your druggist. It is really too bad that bacteria cannot recognize a superior antiseptic: for $15 worth of Listerine has the antiseptic action of one penny's worth of carbolic acid. The American Medical Association could save the people millions of dollars annually. Ninety cents out of your medical dollar is wasted. Meanwhile, from the economic side, if a woman wishes to spend $3.50 for a jar of beauty clay, when she could get the identical result from a handful of mud in the back yard, that is her business and the advertiser's." This statement may be obtained from your public library: in the book, Your Money's Worth.

Most of you have seen a railroad switch. The steel that forces the train over to another track begins with the thickness of a blunt jackknife blade. Soon the entire train is off and clear on another track. Big crime has its origin in the same fashion. It starts with petty deceit and grows, and the people despise it until a criminal reaches a certain stage, and then the public sentiment changes, the people start looking up to the criminal. And when he escapes from one jail after another, they smile and think it is funny. Maybe you don't believe these things. What happened when Dillinger was shot down? The people attempted to pile on him like ants on a sugar lump. Why? In the years to come they wanted to point with great pride to a piece of the shirt that Dillinger wore. If a criminal isn't killed in his escapades, he finally reaches the top. Then what happens? We, the American people, give him a degree and a title—the title of Public Enemy No. 1. In this respect public sentiment hasn't changed down through the ages. People interested in bettering the world, and the peace-loving citizen, will die and be forgotten. But the name of Jesse James will live forever.

There is one more thing I want to bring you. It is a sheet from last Sunday's Examiner. It says, "Clear heads call for the drinking of whiskey." Here are fifteen professional men that recommend whiskey to you. This type of advertising gets into our homes. Thousands of people see it. The young people see it. They see that it is endorsed by famous people from the Orient to Hollywood. When a young person's ideal from the standpoint of sports or otherwise, attaches his signature to a thing of this kind, what can we say? Listen while I read a short paragraph from the highest authority of my knowledge in the business world in the United States, the Bureau of Standards.

The Bureau of Standards makes known to the public this circular from an advertising agency.

"For those of your organization who require testimonials or special posing of moving picture players, operatic or theatrical stars, famous athletes, society people, and other famous personalities, there is made available a new service called Famous Names, Inc., Chicago . . . branches in New York and Hollywood, Calif." The fee for the exclusive use is from $150 up, depending upon the standing of the star. The rights to use this service are sold on an exclusive basis. Millions of people can be attracted to national advertising through the use of pictures of the stars who are familiar and popular with the buying public. The picture of a star will always attract attention. A large New York advertising agency received the following form letter:

"Promotion Director,

"Dear Sir:

"The writer will be glad to consider arranging for endorsements of commodities or products of national reputation from Her Majesty, the Queen of Rumania. Please let me know by November 1, if any of your clients are interested.

"Yours very truly,

"H. C. Klemfuss, President."

Famous athletes that endorse this kind of thing are not honest with themselves or anyone else. They know children look up to them with some admiration, and betraying the child's confidence for a few pieces of silver is the result. You can expect Max Baer and his class to fall in line with anything that will bring in a few dollars. But when respectable, intelligent people endorse this for growing children to read, in my estimation it points back to a deadened conscience, that will be suddenly aroused in the day of judgment.

This hasn't been a pretty picture I have painted for you, but it has been a true one. It all leads up to one verse found in Matthew 16:26: "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" This verse tells us that some are gaining financially, fast, but they are also losing, just as fast. Using the same illustration I used regarding the gas station, I am not here to declare that a sin, but deceit is very close to the boundary line.

Now I am not going to evade the issue at all. To live we must have money. We're going to get it honestly or we're going to get it dishonestly. I wouldn't be honest with you tonight if I led you to believe that I don't want a nice income, for I do. But I will not deal dishonestly to obtain it.

Honesty doesn't mean throwing up your hands and quitting. You can be righteous in business. Our Bible teaches us to be not slothful in business, but be diligent and use diplomacy. Be wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove. I used to wonder about that verse. But if you are as wise as a serpent you can afford to be as harmless as a dove. The honest, successful business man is the man who thinks and plans. I recall a thought that was given to me a few months ago. If a man is afraid of losing his sleep and reposes comfortably upon his couch, while another man burns the midnight oil in an effort to work out some of life's problems, the sleepy man will awaken one day to find himself at the rear of the procession, while the man who used his head leads it.

Think from the standpoint of righteousness, and keep honesty in mind. Practice it. The highest authorities on earth advise it; and God, the supreme authority, endorses it.

Many complain these days of bad luck, but few of bad judgment. The Word says, "If a man lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not." I, personally, have made no great strides forward of wisdom. Whether I succeed or fail in business, time only will tell. If time should last, and all other things being equal, I have a good many years ahead of me. But whatever happens, I am going to deal honestly, not only in the business world, if and when I am able to enter for myself, but outside as well. I am human like the rest of you. If I do anything that you think is not commendable in the sight of God, I will be glad to have you come to me, and we will talk it over. I don't want to be a stumblingblock to anyone. That is my new resolution—not a New Year's resolution that is made to be broken. I mean to keep it. I repeat, I do not want to be a stumblingblock to anyone.

My time is up and I close with the thought: If you build your life on lies, you build on sand. Fraud is a bubble that will soon burst. Truth is a foundation of rock that shall not be moved.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

(Continued from Page Three)

to raise up children unto Abraham" (Luke 3:8). God is always able to replace any man who for any reason can no longer perform the task that was assigned to him.

Few men are sufficiently humble to place a right evaluation upon themselves, the evaluation which God places upon them. Neither is it possible under the limitations of mortal understanding and foresight for one of us to determine exactly what may be the extent of the service the Lord wishes us to render in this life. We do not know when our real period of service begins, and much less are we able to recognize the hour when our labor for the Father is finished.

There is another problem associated with all this which few men are able to solve, that is, the time when their pilgrimage is to end.

The wise old Preacher declared that there is "a time to be born, and a time to die" (Eccl. 3:2), but no one has definite knowledge so far as he himself is concerned of the first, and few indeed of the second. We cannot foresee the exact day upon which the remaining pages of the calendar will become blank to us.

It is true that Paul was given such advance information, for he declared that "the time of my departure is at hand" (2 Tim. 4:6), but not many men are notified in advance of the time of their death. Very wisely God has kept the majority in ignorance on this point.

We may have set our heart on the attainment of a certain goal. It may have been a worthy one from either a divine or a human point of view. But whether we will reach that goal before the end of our mortal journey is known only to our omniscient Father.

There is but one thing with regard to our life prospects of which we can be absolutely sure—unless the Lord comes speedily, we "shall go to the gates of the grave" (Isa. 38:10). "It is appointed unto man once to die" (Heb. 9:

(Please turn to Back Page)

THE FOLLY OF ANGER

(Continued from Page Seven)

Christian if we remained unmoved in the presence of injustice and cruelty to man or beast. The weakest man when fired with righteous anger becomes a moral giant and will stand up to the biggest bully. When Robert Louis Stevenson was walking through the town of Pitlochry, in Scotland, his soul was filled with righteous indignation when he saw a dog ill-treated. He immediately interposed, and when the owner resented his interference, saying, "It's not your dog," he cried out: "It's God's dog, and I'm here to protect it." Such anger is noble and divine. But even when wrath is justifiable, it is more effective when kept under control. Charles Dickens was moved by the sufferings of humanity far more keenly than most men, but he laughed at the men he hated most fiercely, and when he set the world laughing at them, their day was done.

ANGER OF OMNIPOTENCE

We must not fail to warn men and women that it is tragically possible to incur the anger of Omnipotence. "God is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness," but the divine patience may be exhausted and "the fierceness of his wrath" may no longer be turned away. In the Revelation of St. John, we read of "the wrath of the Lamb," which will be such that men will call on nature to cover and protect them. The church has toned down the harsher notes of the revelation of "God in Christ" with tragic consequences. We need once more to emphasize the fact that while "God is love," He is also "a consuming fire" and that it is "a fearful thing" for the unrepentant and unbelieving "to fall into the hands of the living God."—Arthur Hedley in The Presbyterian.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Should We Study?

Bereans, if you all know as little about your Bible as a cross section I have talked with, at one time or another, I'm ashamed of you!

A good many of those who are supposed to be good Bereans could discuss and even sing the latest songs, knew and could talk on most of the latest books, and many confessed to knowing the latest dances. As far as the world is concerned, they might be considered as successes socially. Contrasted with this social knowledge was their lack of knowledge concerning the Bible and its contents.

Some could answer some of the following types of questions, and some could answer none: divisions of the Old and New Testaments, which would give a general subject contents of the two sections; names of books of both Testaments hung up practically everyone, and very few knew the exact order in which they came. This is important in Bible study, for time is too valuable to waste in going to an index every time you want to go to a certain book.

When it came to the contents of the Book itself the results were no better. Most everyone knew Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, but no one seemed to know who followed them. The number of sons of Jacob was just something to be guessed at, while trying to name any of them was just a waste of breath. No one seemed to know the type of government over Israel after the death of Joshua. Samuel was just a new name and the man he anointed as King in Israel was an unsolved mystery. Naturally his successor was unknown, as was any knowledge of his character and history. The reason for the division of the kingdom and the name of the king who lost most of his kingdom were unknown. The contents of the New Testament seemed to be a little more familiar; they probably got a little more of that in Sunday school.

When we are idle we often speak of just "killing time." A chapel speaker recently brought to our attention the fact that: we don't kill time—time kills us. That thought is rather an unpleasant one to consider, for none of us like contemplating death, and yet most of us have less than fifty of our allotted threescore and ten left, and every minute takes us that much closer to that event. If we would consider it in that way, we wouldn't be so anxious to spend the minutes and hours in idleness. What better way to spend idle moments is there than in the study of our Life Guidebook?

Bereans, the challenge is yours! If you can master the social graces, surely you can learn much of what is in your Bible, and until you do you are of little good to yourself, and you are of practically no use to mankind in general, and of no use in the sense of a Christian example.

Vivian Kirkpatrick, Associate Editor.

Faithfulness

* * * *

By Emily Fyfe

As we turn through Genesis, the first book of the Bible, we learn about Abraham. He was a faithful man, one who believed God; he is called the father of the faithful. When he was tempted to offer up his son he proved obedient (Gen. 22:9, 10; James 2:21).

When we read the 3rd chapter of Daniel we learn about another trial of faith. Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego lived in the days of Nebuchadnezzar the King, but they worshiped God and would not worship anything else; they did not fear the fiery furnace enough to worship the golden image. The King in his fury had the furnace heated very hot. The flames slew the men who carried up these three faithful men. When the King saw four men walking in the fire he called them. The three came forth. The fire hadn't hurt them, for God had delivered them because they had faith in God.

We know that it is impossible to please God without faith, and faith without works is dead, so let us put on the whole armor of God and fight the good fight of faith, so when we meet our Savior we will hear these words, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." If we have entered that straight and narrow path, let us strive to make our election sure.

Don't Shillyshally

There come times in the life of every person when necessity demands a positive, resolute stand upon a certain question or course of action. On such occasions there are always those who cannot make up their minds—as to which course to pursue. They are irresolute, undecided, and seem afraid to make a decision. Such people are known as "shillyshallyers."

There is a great contrast between that type and a Patrick Henry, saying, "I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death," or a Joshua declaring, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord," or a Paul announcing, "I am persuaded that nothing shall separate me from the love of God," or a Martin Luther bravely uttering, "Here I stand. I cannot do otherwise." When character and honesty are involved, be sure you are right, then go ahead. As Bereans and members of the Church of God we stand upon certain fundamental truths of the Scriptures which are beautiful and precious. Let us never be afraid or undecided to stand in a positive way upon our convictions and belief of the Scriptures, but rather follow the words of the Apostle Peter, "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?"

JESUS GIVES LIFE TO LAZARUS

ABOUT two miles from Jerusalem beside the Jericho road there was a little village called Bethany. Here lived three very dear friends of Jesus, our Savior. Lazarus, with his two sisters, Mary and Martha, often had the great pleasure of Jesus' company.

To their comfortable home Jesus went many times to rest and to be refreshed. Always Martha, the housekeeping sister, hurried to fix a nice lunch or a satisfying dinner for Him. It was her greatest joy to draw out the most comfortable chair they had for Jesus so He could rest His weary feet and close His tired eyes a short time.

Now Mary was quite different from Martha. She loved to sit at Jesus' feet and listen to the wonderful words that He spoke. She liked nothing better than to hear Him talk about God, who was His own Father, and about the work He had given Him to do.

Lazarus must have been a very good brother to these girls and, we are sure, they loved him dearly. He it was who gave them their comfortable home and saw that they had everything they needed. The three loved each other very much, and they all loved Jesus best of all.

One day when Jesus was far away preaching the gospel, Lazarus fell ill, very, very ill. The first thought of the two sisters was of Jesus. How they wished He were there! So they sent word to Him to come to them at once.

But Jesus remained two more days in the country of Perea where He was preaching. And by the time He had reached the beautiful little village, nestled among the olive and fig trees, Lazarus was dead. Yes, dead and buried!

When the word came to Martha that Jesus was coming, she ran out to meet Him, and said if He had only been there Lazarus would not have died. Jesus comforted her by telling her that her brother would rise again.

Now Martha must have listened to Jesus many times as she prepared a meal for Him while He talked with Mary. For Martha knew that only by believing in Jesus could one ever hope to have a part in the resurrection.

When Jesus told her that He was the One sent by God to bring life to those who believed, she said, "Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world."

Martha must have found a lot of comfort in her sorrow just by talking to Jesus about it. She ran to tell Mary, who had stayed in the house, that Jesus, their Friend, had come at last. Mary's first words to Jesus were the same as Martha's: "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

As they led Jesus to the grave of their brother, He wept with them, and the Jews standing by said, "Behold, how he loved him!"

Now, I'm sure, every one of you can tell me just exactly what Jesus did next. You all know that their graves in that day looked like caves. A great stone was rolled against the opening, and some of the men rolled the stone away at Jesus' command.

Then it was that Jesus spoke the wonderful words which you see across the top of the page. I wonder what that "glory of God" was that they were to see. How many of you know? Was it a blinding light? Was it a band of angels? Or what was it?

I said that I was sure all of you knew the story. But I wonder how many of you have noticed that when Jesus spoke to His dear, dear friend, Lazarus, He didn't look up and say, "Lazarus, come down!"

You will find just exactly what He said in verse 43. It was, "Lazarus, come forth"—come out of your grave. And the one they all knew had been dead was alive again, for he walked forth all dressed in his graveclothes. And that was the "glory of God"—His power.

They helped unwind the white linen cloth so Lazarus could walk, and then they all went home. We know that Lazarus was really alive again, because the very next chapter tells us that he was present at a supper which Martha prepared for Jesus.

In almost every home one of the loved ones has been taken away by death. Nearly all of you, young as you are, know some one who has been made sad just as Mary and Martha were so long ago.

But not one of us has yet been made glad as they were. For not yet has any of our loved ones been brought back to life at Jesus' command.

Some day, soon we hope, everyone's loved ones will be raised to life by the great Life-Giver, Jesus, our Lord. That will be a happy time, the happiest of all times for the whole world.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

"VOICE OF THE ELDERS"

The last number of this publication, which is issued by the Ministerial Association of the Church of God to circulate among our pastors and evangelists, is full of excellent material of a helpful nature. Several vital questions of general interest are introduced and discussed with ability by James A. Patrick and Richard LeCrone.

Evangelism occupies a fittingly important place in the current issue, and on the editorial page President C. E. Randall asks some searching questions with regard to our failure to make more converts in these days. We trust that our ministers have all been as greatly stimulated by this little paper as has the editor of The Restitution Herald.

VIRGINIA

An unusual and interesting incident has taken place here in our church work that only proves again that God will not allow His words to return unto Him void. Forty years ago a John Boyer, assisted by a brother, Benjamin Boyer, did some preaching over in the edge of West Virginia on Timber Ridge, and at that time they baptized a young man by the name of Charles E. Good. Bro. Good has since that time moved to several different localities, and at the present time is living in Florida where his family has grown to maturity. The family became interested in doing Christian service, but was somewhat unsettled in what to accept as truth, so after the exchange of several letters the writer, accompanied by his wife, started for Bro. Good's home on December 28.

Our stay with Bro. Good lasted for nearly three weeks. Preaching services and children's classes were held almost every evening. On January 17 five members of Bro. Good's family were baptized, his wife, two daughters, a son and wife. Their names are: Mrs. Charles E. Good, Mrs. Hazel Fitzstephens, Mrs. John Somerville, Kendall, Fla.; and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice H. Good, 719 N. W. 1st St., Miami, Fla. We are very glad to introduce these splendid people to the brotherhood through the pages of our paper.

On Monday, Jan. 18, we departed from Bro. Good's hospitable home and started northward. On our return trip we visited the Williams sisters at Anderson, S. C., and Bro. M. O. Williamson, pastor of the North and South Carolina churches, at Pelzer, S. C. We received a very cordial welcome from these, our new acquaintances, which we enjoyed very much. Then on to Skelton, W. Va., where services were held one evening. It was a pleasure and inspiration to meet again with these faithful ones.

V. Earl Thayer.

FROM ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

We are having the worst flood here in history. All the brethren here are out of the water. They are having a terrible time in near by cities. I can see water for miles and miles from the window. There are one thousand men and women in Eldorado run out of other towns. The water is about six feet deep in places where there never was any water before.

Marshall Wiggins.

APPRECIATION

As a former pastor of the church at Niagara Falls, N. Y., for seven years, the editor of The Herald feels that he owes to the memory of Sr. Elizabeth Oakley of that city, whose death is recorded elsewhere, an acknowledgment of appreciation. Like her father and mother before her, Sr. Oakley found her greatest joy in the service of God and of His people. Her father, for many years an elder of the church, before the installation of a resident pastor in Niagara Falls, made the journey from Buffalo each Sunday to take part in the services of Blessed Hope Church and frequently delivered the morning sermon. Sr. Oakley was faithful, dependable, and zealous, cooperating fully in every effort that was made to advance the gospel in her community. We hope to greet her soon in the kingdom of God.

SOUTH LAWN CHURCH, GRAND RAPIDS

Mrs. Paul Ackerman, one of our most loyal Sunday school teachers, submitted to a major operation January 18. She has made very satisfactory improvement, and has been returned to her home on Berkshire Blvd.

Bro. Joseph Holland, who was struck by a train some weeks ago, is also gaining nicely at his home, 160 Abbie, S.E.

Little Vivian Witham had the misfortune to fall and break her arm in two places.

The young people's Sunday school class is taking charge of the annex improvement. They gave a dinner February 3, to which the heads of various departments were invited, and at this occasion made known their plans. Work is to begin immediately, and when the floor has been refinished and the whole interior gone over we anticipate a very cozy place.

This same class of young people also have a club known as the "Oregon Trail Finders," which is attempting to arrange funds and plans so that a number can attend General Conference this year. It is an inspiration to any church to have such a live-wire group of young people.

Bro. Harry Gockler, who is now taking care of the Blanchard work while Bro. Smead is away, expects to take care of our work here the last week in February while the pastor is in Cleveland for special meetings.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

ILLINOIS EVANGELISTS' NOTES

The Lord has abundantly blessed the meetings at Macomb, and as a result twelve people were baptized into Christ at 3:30 p. m. Sunday, Jan. 31.

Those baptized were: Mrs. Mary J. Venard, 928 W. Jefferson; John and Gladys Mercer, 529 W. Piper; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mercer, 519 N. Charles; Mrs. Mary Wilson, 621 N. Madison; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Brewer, 928 W. Jefferson; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Eyler, 733 N. Edwards; all of Macomb; and Mr. and Mrs. George Slagle, Dunlap, Ill.

Bro. and Sr. Elza Robbins accompanied Bro. and Sr. Slagle to Macomb for the services.

Bro. and Sr. Krogh and Bro. Frank Laning and family of Ripley have been faithful attendants at the Macomb meetings. Bro. and Sr. John Long and Sr. Lucy Hendricks came with them part time.

Serious efforts to organize are under way in the last days of the meeting.

The next series of meetings will probably be in Peoria, at 713 Lincoln St., the latter part of the month.

J. W. McLain.

These results were made possible by the preparatory work previously rendered by the few faithful ones living here, as also by Bro. McLain in his preliminary work here, periodically, over the two previous months.

F. L. Austin.

POETRY OF THE BIBLE

A clipping from a Helena, Okla., paper provides the information that at a recent meeting of the Helena Study Club, a remarkable paper on "The Poetry of the Bible" was presented by Sr. J. W. (Fannie) LeCrone. We know from correspondence with Sr. LeCrone on the subject that she has given much study to the value of the Scriptures from a literary as well as from a spiritual standpoint and were not surprised when we read in The Helena Star that her paper was "truly a work of art," and that Mrs. LeCrone "held her listeners in spell-bound interest."

Her analysis was presented under three divisions: poetic insight exhibited, which includes inspirational power; beauty of expression; and praise. The latter has to do with the worship instinct. The study of the Bible is profitable from any standpoint.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The report of Red Cross donations from the Oregon, Ill., church was not complete when published last week. The church and Sunday school contributed to the relief of the flood sufferers a total of $74.03. In addition, a quantity of warm clothing was provided.

We rejoice to learn that up to the time our latest word came from the stricken districts along the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers none of our own people had yet been affected so far as was known.

The church at Dixon, Ill., took up a generous offering for the needy ones in the flood area recently, the exact amount of which has not as yet been reported.

There was much of truth unconsciously stated in a church bulletin recently, where the following appeared in the program for the morning service:

"Sermon subject: 'What Have We Learned From the Depression?'"

"Anthem: 'Search Me, O God.'"

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Encouraging reports have been received in private correspondence from the church at St. Cloud, Minn., Pastor C. E. Lapp confessing that "the Lord has surely blessed us in an unusual way. We came here on faith and He has opened up the windows of heaven and poured out all kinds of blessings upon us, both spiritual and financial."

Of course the pastor and his wife are especially thankful for the little daughter who has come to them, through whom their own lives of service may be carried into future generations.

Sr. Brewer, mother of Sr. Lapp, is at present with them enjoying the fellowship with which she has no doubt met in St. Cloud, but not apparently altogether pleased with the 30-below-zero temperature that greeted her on her arrival.

"The Lord willing," says the pastor, "we plan to hold a week of pre-Easter services to start the summer's work. Our Sunday school has been having an average attendance of about 40, which we feel is quite good considering the snow and cold we have had this winter. At present the flu is keeping a number of our folks at home."

REPORT FOR JANUARY

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; St. Louis, Mo., 2; Blush, Mo., 5. Because of sickness and bad weather we were unable to be at Rensselaer on the second Sunday. Money received in Indiana: Pleasant View, $12.00; Rensselaer, $20.00; Hillisburg, $20.83; Plymouth, $15.00; North Salem, $7.50; conference board, $18.00. Expense, $10.00.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE

According to a report received from Grace Steffa Adamson, secretary of the Southern California Conference, the principal speakers at the one-day meeting held in Los Angeles on January 17 were Emma C. Railsback, pastor of the Los Angeles church, and Norman John Macleod of Pomona, Calif.

Following the regular Sunday school at 10 the conference convened at 11. During this session, it was announced that Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Smead of Blanchard, Mich., would meet with the Los Angeles group on the last Sunday of January. Blueprints for the new Los Angeles church were said to be completed. Building was to have been started within a few days.

A sermonette, "What Think Ye of Christ?" was delivered by J. E. Adamson, Pomona, and was followed by the sermon, "Partakers of the Divine Nature," by Mrs. Railsback. Special music took the form of a trio by Leta Macleod and Verna and Charlotte Rahn, all of Pomona.

A picnic lunch originally scheduled for the city park near the church was held in the church building owing to cold weather.

The afternoon service met at 2. Solos were given by Duncan Macleod, boy soprano who has toured the country and who now is singing over the Columbia Broadcasting System with the Pasadena Boys' Choir, and by Charlotte Rahn. Both singers are from Pomona.

The subject taken by Norman John Macleod for his afternoon sermon was "The Voice in the Wilderness."

At a short business session which followed the afternoon service, Emma C. Railsback was named as fifth member of the conference board.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Born to Bro. and Sr. Clayton Magee of Gary, Ind., a fine boy on January 9. His name is Clarence James. We extend the best wishes to this happy family.

The Ladies' Society and the Morning Star Class realized about $85 serving meals at the community sale. This money will be used for our basement completion.

Twenty-five attended Berean last Thursday, Jan. 28. We have four classes: the juniors, taught by Lola Hoskins; young people, the pastor as teacher; the young married folks, changing teachers; and the adults, also changing teachers. A contest is on, and every two months we will have a fellowship evening.

Bro. Wayne Van Der Weele sang in his beautiful way Sunday, Jan. 31, "The Old Rugged Cross." This was our second anniversary of serving as pastor here. His mother was the accompanist.

Bro. Clayton Magee surprised us January 26 by bringing with him Sr. Walter Randall of Mora, Minn. We hope they will come again.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

FONTHILL - NIAGARA FALLS

The names of Mrs. Alice Lobb and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Kirkwood, all of Fonthill, Ont., are presented to the family as new additions to the household of faith. The three were baptized recently at the Fonthill church.

Another baptismal service is to be held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sunday, Feb. 7.

One of the finest meetings we were ever in took place at the Falls church on Tuesday, Jan. 26. While the meeting took the nature of testimonials or sermonettes, yet it was more than that—it was the culmination of a growing change in the hearts and lives of the members which has resulted in some wonderful experiences. The Lord is working and so are the people. We are anticipating great things. Pray for us—

C. E. Randall, Pastor.

MARGARET PEARCE

The brevity and uncertainty of life were brought to our minds with force when "Peggy" Pearce, a young girl still in her teen age, was taken suddenly ill and in spite of all that doctors could do fell victim to the enemy on Sunday, Jan. 31.

She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Pearce and a sister of Sr. McArthur, one of the first members resulting from the Welland effort.

The funeral was held from the home of Bro. and Sr. McArthur of Welland, Ont., on February 2, and the packed house testified to the esteem in which the young lady was held by those who knew her. Interment was made in Oak Lawn Cemetery with the writer in charge of the funeral.

C. E. Randall.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mr. & Mrs. H. S. Bell (ind. fund)	$25.00
Niagara Falls, N. Y., Church (ind. fund)	2.85
Ripley, Ill., Church (ind. fund)	5.00
Mildred Stantial	1.00
Golden Rule Church of God (ind. fund)	4.05
John Lehman & Anna Eidemiller	10.00
Silas M. Claypool	4.00
Albert Eberhardt	1.00
Mary E. Elton (ind. fund)	50.00
Jessie M. B. Kauffman	4.00
Mr. & Mrs. W. M. Naylor (ind. fund)	25.00

BERTHA A. DREW

After forty years of patient suffering, during much of which time she was confined to her bed or in a wheel chair, Sr. "Bertie" Drew is free at last from her pain, and resting peacefully awaiting the dawn of the new day of eternal life and righteousness.

Sr. Bertha A. Drew was born June 1, 1870, a daughter of Alvah D. and Augusta A. Drew, and died at the hospital in Dixon, Ill., the city in which she has spent her entire life. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mercy E. Scott of Everett, Wash., and Mrs. Emma Kelly of Dixon, Ill. Her parents and three brothers preceded her in death.

At the age of 17 Sr. Drew responded to the call of the gospel and was baptized and has remained faithful in her allegiance to the time of her death.

For the past eighteen years she has made her home with her sister, Mrs. Emma Kelly, by whom she has been tenderly cared for at all times.

Bro. L. E. Conner comforted the family and friends with the assurances of life everlasting in the kingdom of God when the King comes. He was assisted by Bro. G. E. Marsh of Oregon, Ill. The funeral service was held in the Dixon Church of God and burial was in Oakwood Cemetery.

ELIZABETH MILDRED OAKLEY

A lifelong member of the Church of God and a founding member of the Niagara Falls, N. Y., church passed away in her seventy-first year at Memorial Hospital on January 26 after several weeks of suffering and discouragement. Her heart failed her, but it never failed the Lord. She was ever a close companion to the Friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

Most of her life was spent in Buffalo in the home of her parents. Her father and she used to come to the Falls every Sunday for years, where he served the "Little Church With a Big Welcome" as preacher, teacher, and worshiper. Sr. Oakley's unassuming, but ever active, presence will remain a source of inspiration to the other members of the church, whose lives were graced by her life.

A born elocutionist, she was always ready to lend merriment to any social occasion or a divine touch to an inspirational meeting.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor from the Bell Funeral Home, with burial taking place in the family plot in Elm Lawn Cemetery, Tonawanda, N. Y. She rests from her labors awaiting the call of the Son of God.

C. E. Randall.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Sid Martin; Stephen Walker; E. H. Timberlake; Nettie Guge; Anne E. Sleight; Ada Updike; Carl Weatherwax, Jr. (for others); Inez Titus; Edna Arthaud (for others); Frances M. Gillespie; Mrs. Elias Thoren; Elnora Skinner; J. H. Adams (for another); Nolan B. Orr; P. H. Overholser; Tandy J. Stinnette; Mrs. R. C. Drew; V. R. Thoms; Mrs. R. Overholt; M. E. Morgan; Mrs. J. D. Humphreys (for another); Mrs. Henry Fox; Mrs. DeWitt Dauntler; D. Hatten; Arnold F. Sealine; Bert E. Decker; Almeda Wertz; Edith R. Burke; Elsie M. Moore; Mrs. J. H. Snow; B. H. Carpenter (for self and another); Frank Switzer; Freeman Fike; Mildred Stantial; Mrs. Gideon Logan; Virginia Kincheloe; Marshall Wiggins; Albert Eberhardt; Fannie LeCrone.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

(Continued from Page Eleven)

27) and we cannot hope to escape from the common fate of mankind. The Scriptures are conclusive on this point: "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Eecl. 3:20). But just how close we are to the end of the way no man knows.

Now we return to those solemn words addressed to Hezekiah:

"Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live!"

Should an announcement like that be made to us by an inspired messenger, I wonder what our reaction would be. What would we say? What would we do?

Would we, first of all, turn our faces to the wall and pray unto the Lord, as Hezekiah did? I expect most of us would do just that! Whether they are saints or sinners, professed believers or acknowledged atheists, experience has shown that ninety-nine out of every hundred placed under such circumstances, facing immediate and inevitable death, turn instinctively to God in prayer.

For many men and women placed in that situation, even though they were church members of long standing, that would be the first real prayer they had ever made! It is only a deep sense of need—need which neither we nor our fellow men can supply—that wrings such a prayer as that offered by Hezekiah from the hearts of men. We may never before have felt a definite need for God. We had professed belief in Him. We had repeated formally arranged words that we called "prayer." We had joined in the responsive "Amens" of the church service. But thousands of Christians have gone through their lives without ever having learned the real meaning and value of prayer.

But when Death stares them in the face, when the physician upon whom they have relied to preserve their lives confesses his inability to do so longer, when there is no one else to whom they can appeal hopefully for restoration to health, then men turn to God and "weep bitterly" as they offer the prayers which they should have uttered in sincerity and truth throughout their lives!

Yes, you and I would pray, too, if the Lord sent the word to us: "Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live." There would be nothing else for us to do.

I wonder what the words of our prayer would be at such a time? Could we truthfully—it would be useless for us to do so untruthfully—echo the pleading cry of Hezekiah and say: "Remember now, O Lord, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight" (Isa. 38:3)?

Many are the interesting "deathbed testimonies" of which we have heard. Some of them, no doubt, are true and some are false. Some echo a cry of bitterness and hate—which is a dreadful thought with which to leave this life! Others speak of an abiding confidence in God which not even Death can shake.

At the head of the latter class stands Paul.

How resigned he appears and how confident are his words as he watches without shrinking the Death Angel drawing ever closer to him! He gives a reason for his assurance and fearlessness which, in the light of his life of godliness and service, we can understand.

"I am now ready," he declares; "ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand."

And he glances back over the long course he has traveled, the stirring scenes of his life pass before him in vivid moving pictures one after another, and he says:

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

Here is a self-delivered funeral sermon under three heads. Would that sermon be applicable to you? to me? Have we so lived and so served that the one who speaks over our dead bodies could truthfully utter those words on our behalf as a part of our obituary?

As we listened to the announcement: "Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live," as we reviewed our entire past in the light of God's truth and of our relationship to Him, could we say from the depths of our inner consciousness:

"Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Tim. 4:8)?

Will we in that solemn hour think, as Paul did, beyond our own individual salvation, of "all them also that love his appearing"?

What faith Paul had! we cry. And yet it is the faith which every follower of the Lord Jesus Christ should possess. With Paul we should be able to say: "I know," I do not doubt, "whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (2 Tim. 1:12).

These final words of Paul, if we may call them such, remind us of the last words attributed to the poet Joseph Addison, who, when he was dying, sent for his stepson, Lord Warwick, who was a wild young man, and said: "I have sent for you that you may see how a Christian can die!"

Paul has showed us "how a Christian can die." He was ready for the final summons. He was without fear and without regret. Unlike Peter Pinder, he did not plead upon his deathbed that some one should "give me back my youth!" He asked nothing like that, for well he knew that when he opened his eyes again perpetual youth would be his. His awakening would be in the age when "youth is renewed like the eagle's" (Psalm 103:5).

When the time comes for you and for me to say a last "good-by" to our loved ones, to give them a final word of encouragement and perhaps of admonition, what will be the words we shall leave with them? "Of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." Will the overflowing of our heart on that solemn occasion reveal that within us there lives, even at the hour of death, a glorious, deathless, sustaining faith? Will our farewell bring hope and courage and divine strength to those whom we leave behind?

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY, 16, 1937

NUMBER 20

From the First Inaugural

By George Washington

IT WOULD be peculiarly improper to omit in this first official act my fervent supplications to that Almighty Being who rules over the universe, who presides in the councils of nations, and whose providential aids can supply every human defect, that His benediction may consecrate to the liberties and happiness of the people of the United States a Government instituted by themselves . . . and may enable every instrument employed in its administration to execute with success the functions allotted to his charge. In tendering this homage to the Great Author of every public and private good, I assure myself that it expresses your sentiments not less than my own, nor those of my fellow citizens at large less than either. No people can be bound to acknowledge and adore the Invisible Hand which conducts the affairs of men more than those of the United States. Every step by which they have advanced to the character of an independent nation seems to have been distinguished by some token of providential agency; and in the important revolution just accomplished in the system of their united government the tranquil deliberations and voluntary consent of so many distinct communities from which the event has resulted cannot be compared with the means by which most governments have been established without some return of pious gratitude, along with a humble anticipation of the future blessings which the past seem to presage. These reflections, arising out of the present crisis, have forced themselves too strongly on my mind to be suppressed. You will join with me, I trust, in thinking that there are none under the influence of which the proceedings of a new and free government can more auspiciously commence. . . .

I dwell on this . . . with every satisfaction which an ardent love for my country can inspire, since there is no truth more thoroughly established than that there exists in the economy and course of nature (Please turn to Page Eleven)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day
G. E. Marsh, Editor

Repudiate "Old Men's Counsel"

"He forsook the counsel which the old men gave him, and took counsel with the young men."—2 Chron. 10:8.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12.—The fight over the demand of President Roosevelt that authority be given him to immediately increase the number of judges in the Supreme Court of the United States from nine to fifteen, coupled with a pressing "invitation" that members of the Court who have reached the age of seventy proffer their resignations, continues to grow in extent and in violence. Many of the President's most ardent supporters in other matters have already indicated their disapproval of the proposed change, declaring that "tampering with the Supreme Court and bringing political pressure to bear upon it threatens the very foundations of the American system of government." The contention seems to be that if so radical a change is necessary it should be effected by changes in the Constitution and not by the appointment of additional judges who view the basic law as subject to every temporary change in political sentiment.

The religious press, especially the fundamental religious press which is controlled by those who believe the Bible to be inspired and the prophecies to reveal the purposes of God, is practically agreed that the gravest danger that threatens the church in the United States at this time is the concentration of power in the hands of one political leader. Of course the student of prophecy knows that such a condition is to come, but nevertheless he is anxious to see it postponed as long as possible.

The Supreme Court membership has been referred to critically as "the nine old men." That was no doubt the argument that the young friends of Rehoboam put up in their successful effort to induce that unfortunate king to disregard the counsel of the aged advisers of Solomon his father.

Kills to Send Mother to Heaven

"The Son of man . . . is the only one who has ever ascended into heaven."—John 3:13, Moffatt.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 7.—"I did it. Sure I did it. I wanted to send her to heaven, where my father is." Such was the calmly made confession of Vincent Yankavich, 30, former Rockford high school football and basketball star, who is now held in the county jail charged with the murder of his 49-year-old mother, Mrs. Madaljne Yankavich.

According to the authorities, Yankavich did not appear to think he had done anything wrong and frequently declared he loved his mother dearly.

It is not hard for one to understand how a son who really believed in the pagan idea of the immortality of the soul and was convinced that the good went to a heaven of unspeakable happiness at the moment of death, to be united with loved ones who had preceded them there, might look upon matricide as an act of filial devotion. Owing to the false teaching of his childhood to which he tenaciously clung, this sadly deluded young man's act was most logical and indicated the depth of the affection which he professed to have for his mother. He would be the instrument in God's hand to unite his beloved parents forever where separation and sorrow could never come!

"Why, if the Soul can fling the Dust aside,
And naked on the Air of Heaven ride,

Were't not a Shame—were't not a Shame for (her)
In this clay carcass to abide?"

God's solemn response to this young man's argument is this: "All have sinned" (Rom. 3:23), and "the soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezek. 18:4), and "murderers of mothers" (1 Tim. 1:9) come under the condemnation of the law, "and they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God" (Gal. 5:21).

Arabs Protest Jewish Immigration

"The Arabian, and the rest of our enemies. . . thought to do me mischief."—Nehemiah 6:1, 2.

SAMARIA, Palestine, Feb. 10.—A new outbreak of Arabs throughout Palestine resulted in attacks being made on Jewish settlements near this city in which thirty shots were exchanged. The Arabs have appointed a committee to go to London to demand the immediate abolition of the Jewish Home Land project and complete self-government for Palestine. "This is our country and the Jews are trying to take it away from us," declared Auni Bey Abdul Hadi, a member of the committee.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Power of "Positivism"

DURING the past decade or more a notable change has been taking place in the Church of God with regard to both the manner and the purpose of its preaching. Some have looked upon this alteration in our course most favorably; others, principally the older ones, with deepening alarm. The view one takes of the matter determines his own practical reaction to the situation. If he thinks that the present trend is beneficial and biblical, he will of course follow the new pathway and in all probability turn off more widely still from the "old paths." On the other hand, should he be convinced that the new direction which some are taking at the present time leads away from the saving truth of the gospel and consequently away from God and from eternal salvation, he will naturally be driven into definite reaction.

The problem could be approached advantageously from several different angles. The two positions might be studied purely from the standpoint of biblical teaching on the subject. What do the Scriptures say should be the subject of Christian preaching, and what should be the manner in which the preacher delivers his message?

We might also consider the question from the vantage ground of results attained. Did the old message and the earlier manner of presentation result in more converts to the gospel than the revised and modernized system produces?

Before going further the question at issue should be stated clearly.

The matter seems to resolve itself into this: Which should the Church of God emphasize the more strongly in its teachings, the doctrinal or the spiritual phase of revealed truth?

The idea is aptly illustrated by statements made many years ago by two of our best known and most highly regarded ministers of that period. The first, who experienced marked success in the evangelistic field, said, "I can get all the practical or spiritual truth that is needed in a doctrinal sermon." The second just reversed the order and declared, "I can put in a sermon on practical Christian living all the doctrine that needs to be presented."

So far as the interpretation of the gospel was concerned, the two ministers were in essential agreement. Their difference lay in the point of emphasis. The first thought that doctrine was the more vital fact, while the second believed spiritual instruction to be the essential thing.

In the earlier days of the church, I was about to say, "the hard, cold facts of the gospel were presented in a hard, cold way." But that was not altogether true, although many people thought of it in that way. The gospel

In the above title the editor does not use the word "positivism" in the scientific sense, that is, to distinguish a system of philosophy which deals exclusively with "positives" of nature, but he employs the word to express the idea of assurance and definiteness in one's understanding and presentation of religious truth. This is the first of a series of articles on the same general subject.

of the kingdom of God as it was understood by those pioneer evangelists in Canada and the United States could never be rightly termed "cold." It was a message glowing with warmth and life and beauty. But it is true that the harsh, argumentative and repellent manner in which it was frequently given to the public might well have appeared to be more chilly than warm!

Yet in spite of the dogmatic and even bitter manner in which those early defenders (they were not mere teachers, but hard-hitting fighters for the truth) presented their message, they succeeded in bringing in many more converts than most of our pastors and evangelists are winning today.

To what may we attribute their obvious success? Was it due to the fact that the defensive instincts of their hearers were aroused to such a pitch that they were driven back to their Bibles for ammunition with which to repel those arrogant invaders of the sacred precincts of their creeds? The experiences and confessions of many of their converts who remain to this day would support that conclusion.

It is strange but true that most of the converts of Paul and the other apostles were made under just such circumstances. The record provided in Acts shows clearly that invariably the first reaction that the preaching of Paul and Barnabas aroused in their hearers was that of antagonism. The things the apostles taught were contrary to what the people believed, and there was no mistake about it! Berea was a notable exception to the rule which governed almost everywhere. But even here it was because Paul preached a new doctrine that the people were driven to search "the scriptures daily" to see whether or not that new doctrine was true. The result was that "many of them believed." They believed only after they had been convinced by their own study that the things taught by Paul were supported fully by the Bible.

As we analyze all of the sermons of the book of Acts we are constantly impressed with the fact that in their missionary activity it was doctrine that the apostles always preached to the unbelieving multitude. When we say "doctrine" we mean the first principles of the gospel concerning the kingdom of God of which Jesus was to be the King, the necessity for faith in that gospel and repentance and baptism into the name of Christ for the remission of sins.

In these evangelistic discourses we fail to find an instance where the faithful missionaries spoke to the unbelievers on the subject of prayer or consecration, or even on such moral topics as honesty and temperance. It was the "things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ" and faith (Please turn to Page Eleven)

The Coming of Christ

A Divine Necessity

By R. A. Curtis

SCOFFERS may ridicule the idea of Christ's return to earth again and tauntingly ask, "Where is the promise of his coming?" (2 Peter 3:3, 4; Isa. 5:18-24; Matt. 24:48-51). False teachers may even deny the Lord that bought them and try to substitute another Jesus, an intangible, ghostly one, in His stead, as well as another gospel to supersede the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, which Jesus preached and commanded His followers to preach. But none of these things should deter us from an earnest prosecution of the inquiry, "What is truth?" (2 Peter 2:1; 2 Tim. 2:12; 2 Cor. 11:4; Gal. 1:6-9; Luke 8:1; 4:42, 43; 9:2, 60; John 18:38). There are many valid reasons why Jesus should return to this earth once more.

He has said, "I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you." "And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east." (John 14:3, 18; Zech. 14:4.) If He never comes back again, we can never be received unto Himself, be with Him, nor share in His salvation! Our salvation is contingent upon His appearing "the second time" (Heb. 9:28). All this talk about immaterial and immortal souls, going to heaven at death to be with Jesus, is putting "darkness for light and light for darkness" (Isa. 5:20; 8:20). Jesus has said, "Whither I go ye cannot come" (John 13:33). "And no man hath ascended up to heaven" (John 3:13). It was said of David, many centuries after he was dead and buried, that he is not ascended into the heavens (Acts 2:29, 34; 13:36). We are not to go to heaven to be with Jesus; He is coming back to the earth to be with us here! If He never comes back to the earth again to receive us to Himself, His word will be invalid and we shall be left comfortless and hopeless!

The realization of the blessed hope of Christians to dwell in Christ's actual presence, behold His glory, and be like Him for evermore is all dependent upon His coming (Titus 2:11-14; John 17:24; 1 John 3:2; Psalm 17:15; Phil. 3:20, 21). "For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?" (1 Thess. 2:19).

In order for Christians to attain the spiritual plane of existence or enter upon a deathless equality with unfallen angels, there is divine necessity that they should have "part in the first resurrection," or if among those "which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord," to share in that miraculous translation from mortality to immortality that will then take place (1 Cor. 15:44-46, 51-55; Luke 20:6; Rev. 20:6; 1 Thess. 4:15).

Without the coming of Jesus, who is "the way, the truth, and the life," the Christian's faith is vain, his hope a delusion, and he himself perished (John 14:6; 20:30, 31; 1 Cor. 15:13-19).

I often

"Long for a touch of a vanished hand, Or a sound of a voice that is still,"

but my longings will never be realized unless Jesus returns and the resurrection takes place. It all depends upon Jesus and the resurrection (Acts 17:18, 32; 4:2; John 5:28, 29)! "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming" (1 Cor. 15:22, 23). All future life for the dead is dependent upon the coming of Him who has "the keys of hell, and of death" (Rev. 1:18; Isa. 42:7).

The groaning creation calls for deliverance (Rom. 8:19-23). The Life-Giver has repeatedly made the affirmation, "I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:39, 40, 44, 54). His statements will not be broken! The facts of "the resurrection at the last day" will verify the words of Him who is "the resurrection and the life."

There is divine necessity for our heavenly Father to "send Jesus Christ" that "times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." "The times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" await Jesus' return (Acts 3:19-21).

There is divine necessity for Jesus' return in order to have a future judgment day.

The God-appointed day "in the which he will judge the world in righteousness" by His resurrected Son is a "judgment to come" (Acts 17:32; 24:24, 25; Rom. 2:16; Rev. 20:12, 15). The judgment to come of the quick and the dead by the Lord Jesus Christ, whom God has ordained, empowered, and qualified for that work, is now held in abeyance until Jesus' "appearing and his kingdom" (2 Tim. 4:1). If He never appears, the judgment will never take place.

The reward of Christians is made absolutely dependent upon the return of the world's Redeemer (Matt. 16:27; Rev. 2; 5:11; 11:18; 22:12). Their recompense is inseparably connected with "the resurrection of the just" "at his coming" (Luke 14:14; 1 Cor. 15:22, 23).

The retribution of the incorrigibly wicked is not taking place in some remote hell of conscious misery, as frequently taught by "blind leaders of the blind," but will take place "when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven" "to be glorified in his saints" (Matt. 15:10-14; 1 Thess. 1:6-10). The unjust are reserved "unto the day of judgment to be punished" (2 Peter 2:4-9; Job 21:30).

The establishment of the kingdom of God as the fifth universal kingdom on earth is dependent upon "the Son of man" coming "with the clouds of heaven" to inaugurate His endless reign of righteousness over His "possession"—"the uttermost parts of the earth" (Dan. 2:44; 7:13, 14; Psalm 2:6-12; 72).

The prayer for God's kingdom to come that His will may be "done in earth, as it is in heaven," will not be answered until the absent Nobleman returns, "having received the kingdom" (Matt. 6:10; Luke 19:12-19). When "he shall judge among the nations" and the law shall go forth "out of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem," the warlike nations of the earth "shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (Isa. 2:2-4; 26:9; Zech. 9:10; Hosea 2:18; Psalm 110:1-6; 149:5-9). The heirs of the kingdom will then have their heirship terminate in blissful possession of "the kingdom under the whole heaven" and "over all the earth," which will then be filled with God's glory (James 2:5; Dan. 7:13, 14, 18, 27; Zech. 14:9; Psalm 72:19; Num. 14:21)!

Do you not wish to "inherit the earth" "when the wicked are cut off," the curse lifted, death banished, pain removed, tears wiped away, and sorrow for evermore estranged to the immortalized and glorified inhabitants of the earth which "abideth for ever" (Matt. 5:5; Psalm 37:9-11, 22, 27-29, 34; 104:5; Rev. 22:3-5; Eccl. 1:4; Isa. 45:18)? If you do not "love his appearing" with the marvelous events that are associated with it, how can you hope to share in the Christian's triumph "at that day" (2 Tim. 4:1-8)?

This article may be secured in tract form from the National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois, at 15 cents per dozen or 90 cents per hundred.

Seeing Ourselves As Others See Us

By Gerald L. Cooper

"Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."—1 Corinthians 10:12.

DID you ever stop to think what your fellow man thinks of you? Stop and reflect on your actions before others. Is everything you do above reproach?

These, and many other questions, confront us if we stop to analyze our characters.

Perhaps we are too self-confident. We have seen others in public places, even in church, who seem to think that without their services everything would cease to be. Do you suppose anyone has ever thought that of us? Do you?

Perhaps when we go about our Christian duties of serving others, or of giving to the Master's work, we take great pains that many should know of our activities. We have no doubt witnessed this in others, and never thought that we might be guilty, also.

There is a man of the Bible who comes to my mind while thinking upon these things. That man is Peter.

Yes, Peter was a natural leader, in fact, was the spokesman for the twelve disciples. But it seems that this ability was known to Peter, and he always took advantage of it.

Let us review his life briefly. The first instance we have of Peter's overconfidence and pride is when Christ walked on the sea (Matt. 14:25-31). Peter thought if Christ could, he also could. After Christ bade him come from the ship, Peter did so; but he faltered and sank after a few steps. Had it not been for Christ, Peter would have sunk. His faith was lacking, but we find that this incident did little, if anything, to cure Peter.

Next we find the Master asking the disciples (Matt. 16:

13-23) who the people thought He was. After their replies that some said, "John the Baptist; some Elias; and others Jeremias," Christ asked, "But whom say ye that I am?" Without a moment's hesitation Peter replied, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." For this answer Peter was blessed by Jesus. Later we find Jesus telling the disciples of His death at Jerusalem. Peter, perhaps thinking of his previous excellent answer, spoke for the disciples and began to rebuke Jesus, saying, "Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee." For this Jesus rebuked Peter severely, but Peter was not yet cured.

At the scene of the transfiguration told in Matthew 17:1-6, we find another interesting point of Peter's character. Peter, being the spokesman for the apostles, no doubt thought it necessary to always comment on any situation. Thus we find him mumbling meaningless words of building tabernacles at the greatest scene ever shown on the earth. Many of us are as Peter, always thinking it necessary to speak, regardless of the solemnity of the occasion.

We now come to the time in Peter's life when he did the thing that has made him known more than anything else down through the ages, his denial of his Master. In Matthew 26:33-35, we find Peter, as always very sure of himself, declaring before Jesus and the other apostles that even if all the world deserted and denied Jesus, he would never forsake Him. He said this after Jesus told him that he would deny Him very soon. Peter tried to carry out his saying, for we find him cutting off the ear of the high priest's servant when Jesus was captured (John 18:10).

Later we find Peter following Christ afar off, finally coming to the palace. In Matthew 26:69-75 we find the story of Peter's denial of Christ. Three times did he deny his Master, for whom he had said he would even die. When Peter realized he had done even as Christ had foretold he would do, bitterness seized him and he went out and wept. But, alas, it was too late to weep. The damage was done. So it is with us, for we deny Christ many times in our lives, but sometime we will weep even as did Peter.

Later, through the great love of Christ, Peter was vindicated. This touching scene is told in John 21:15-18. Here Christ came to the apostles and ate with them. After He had finished eating He asked Peter these words: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" Peter replied, "Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee."

to which Jesus replied, "Feed my lambs." Three times did Jesus ask Peter this same question, and three times did He say, "Feed my lambs," or sheep. Peter was grieved, but at last he was humble, cured of his old selfish, overconfident ways. Ever after that he served Jesus and His Father, even dying for Them.

Yes, there are many who are like Peter, who even, as I have said, deny Christ. But Christ forgave Peter, and so will He forgive us.

Brethren, such a great man in the service of Christ as Peter could not escape Jesus' rebuke. Shall we?

Let us look at ourselves very carefully and prayerfully. If we can see our faults (and who cannot) let us change our ways so that we may ever be able to do Christ's work as He would have it done.

The Desire of All Nations

"And I will shake all nations: and the desire of all nations shall come."—Haggai 2:7, R. V. margin.

YEARS ago, the popularity of a very touching song entitled the "Better Land" expressed a universal longing for a state of things better than our present human life and conditions; it also showed the universal ignorance on the subject of the "after life." One essential difference between popular sentiment and divine truth is that one expects something of a better state, often of a very nebulous nature, at death; whereas the Revelation of God shows that the "new order" is not established until the return of Christ, and by resurrection for those who have fallen asleep. Then, and not till then, will be instituted the "Better Land"—the "Desire" of all nations. This new order has a very simple and understandable name: it is called the "kingdom of God." At that time, not only will the church be raised, translated, and safe, and Israel restored and the saints of all ages be alive again by resurrection, but the worthy of those then living when the event occurs will be allowed to live on in the flesh under the new and desirable conditions. We call this period the "millennium," which really means a thousand years. This thousand years represents the first phase of the divine kingdom. Satan is bound in the abyss "a thousand years." He is to "deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years be fulfilled." The martyrs of the tribulation period, with all the saints, are to be enjoying the kingdom, for it says: "And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years" (Rev. 20:1-6). This will be a very delightful period—Christ enthroned and the saints attending; Israel happy; evil held in check and the great Deceiver removed. I suppose it is not wrong to agree that every human effort for happiness (misdirected maybe, and often definitely evil) is really an expression of a desire for the "Better Land." Alas, that so many seek in their own way that which can be obtained only in God's way, and on His conditions.

The "desire of all nations" is the reign of Christ, universally longed for with a longing not understood. The "Desirable One" is Christ, for He alone can give that final and lasting heart satisfaction instinctively craved for by the race.

Israel is yet to loom large in the affairs of the world in association with the Messiah in His kingdom. For that purpose, we observe, while yet in a state of unbelief it is wonderfully informed, virile, and awakening. Paul said: "All Israel shall be saved, for the gifts and calling of God are without repentance" (Rom. 11:29).

Not only will Israel be saved, but by them "every family of the earth will be blessed." Theirs is the kingdom, to assist in the ruling, but the King rules over the whole earth (Rev. 14:15; 15:3, 4).

THE POLITICAL ASPECT

We occupy much of our time in criticizing, in many ways, our present-day politics. There are so many nations, and so many rulings; so many rights and fears of infringements; so much inability to stabilize world government; and apparently so much danger, that many nations have provided enormous armaments to protect themselves, and there seems to be no limit to the amounts governments are voting for the materials of war. America voted a billion and France 400 millions a short time ago. And it is a fact that many of the nations regard their neighbors as thieves and brigands.

And what of "party politics" in most of the civilized countries (dictatorship excepted)? Disagreement in policy is displayed wherever there is a "government" and an "opposition" which thinks the "government" is wrong. But what of the One Supreme Ruler, so strong, so wise, so adequate, so loving and righteous, that His policy will make all happy and satisfied?

Imagine a world ruler against whom there are no complaints; who will see that justice is done to all, and who will also be so tender that by His policy He will "wipe the tear from every eye"; and under whose ægis there will be peace abundant as the summer sunshine. And such will obtain when "the desire of all nations shall come"—perfect laws perfectly administered.

GEOGRAPHICAL ASPECT

We have no doubts concerning the locality of the kingdom. The geographical extent is given several times in the Scriptures, as it affects the nation of Israel—one side the "Euphrates"; the other the "river of Egypt" (Gen. 15:18; Ex. 23:31).

There was a partial settlement in the land under the theocracy, as described in Numbers 34, and a promise that all they trod upon was to be their possession (Deut. 11:24).

Jerusalem is to be the metropolis. The King's throne will be there, and the wonderful reign will extend to all the earth, for then the will of God will be done "on earth as in heaven."

"And Jehovah shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one. . . . And men shall dwell therein, and there shall be no more curse; but Jerusalem shall dwell safely" (Zech. 14:9, 11; 1:16).

Much also has been written about the portions of the land for the tribes of Israel during the millennium. It certainly will be divided up among them, from the River Euphrates to the Red Sea, including the whole of the Arabian Peninsula, and Ishmael is to dwell to the east of his brethren (Gen. 16:12).

There will also be the "holy oblation," a portion reserved for the temple, the Levites, and the princes. Its extent is given as 25,000 reeds square. If a reed represents six cubits, then the oblation covers an area of 2,500 square miles or a square of 50 miles. Physiographically this wonderful place will be made possible by the "great shaking" of the earth at the end of the tribulation period, when every mountain and island shall be moved out of their places (Rev. 6:12-17).

Then "Zion will be famous in all the earth."

There will be other topographical alterations in the land, as well as in the rest of the earth, by this terrible "shaking." There is another interesting scripture in Zechariah 14:4: "And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof, towards the east and towards the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south."

Maybe, by this gigantic earthquake, the valley made will admit the streams issuing from "the house" of the "holy oblation" flowing into the Dead Sea and "healing its waters," and flowing out again into the Mediterranean (Ezek. 47:1, 8-10).

MORAL AND ETHICAL ASPECT

This "oblation," situated centrally in the earth, is for the convenience of, and as a place of worship for a righteous people.

"The people shall be righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified" (Isa. 60:21).

"For as the earth bringeth forth its bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord Jehovah will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations" (Isa. 61:11).

"Who shall not fear, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy; for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy righteous acts have been made manifest" (Rev. 15:4).

Goodness will be universal, and the worship of God the paramount occupation and delight of all peoples.

THE HEAVENLY ASPECT

It is the kingdom of God; a heavenly kingdom; a true theocracy; a world God-ruled after the ideal set by our Lord in the Sermon on the Mount. Righteous people, heavenly minded, obeying righteous laws applied by a righteous King; love prevailing; and on the part of the nations a real desire for God and the service of God. The presence of Jehovah will make the environment ideal and delightful in which to serve God. For those still in the flesh, perfect physical health; and for all such a communion with God and heavenly things in joy abounding, that every hill and every valley will echo with the praise of the beneficent God. Of course, they will learn war no more.

THE EARTHLY ASPECT

One of the chief difficulties of our present cosmos is the prevalence of the "curse." By toil and "sweat" man is able to wring from the ground her harvests, fighting against diseases and varied weather conditions. It is almost impossible now to grow vegetables or fruit unless there is a continual contest against diseases and blight that destroy the crops. A perfectly functioning plant or tree should not have its life destroyed, by either insect or fungoid growth, before it has matured and yielded its fruit. During the millennium these conditions will be altered, and the "earth shall yield her increase," when "God, even our own God, shall bless us."

"The desert shall blossom as the rose," and in the land of Palestine "every man will sit under his own vine and fig tree."

Ezekiel tells of wonderful trees that give their fruit every month, and whose leaves are for the healing of the nations.

Psalms 72 gives in addition to a view of the perfect government, a graphic picture of the physical fullness of the earth, with "corn in the land upon the top of the mountains."

LONGEVITY

With this adequate government, there will be in this highly desirable time and its suitable life, not only plenty, but an adequate distribution of the necessities and delights of life. People will live longer. Our present lives are very artificial. Wide areas of the earth are unoccupied and undeveloped, while other areas are overcrowded. We agree that many of our civilized humans are overclothed. Only lately have we tried to be wise in dress, as to quantity and suitability. Some have gone to the other extreme. We carry our own atmosphere about with us, and are really overentertained, and most people are rendered totally unfit to entertain themselves with the peaceful occupation of the simple life, and the quiet joys of family life and friendships. We are also very artificial in our manners and deportment, and we strain to keep alive the unfit, in a health which is only partial; and these, "propagating their species," produce offspring debilitated often in mind and body. But when the kingdom is come "there shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die an hundred years old," and all will "live long" in the "land which the Lord their God shall give them" (Isa. 65:20).

THE CONTINUITY ASPECT

We are so used to the changing conditions of this evil life, and so used to referring to the best side of this life as the ideal, that it is difficult for many to envisage a future life perfect in every respect, and continuing. The world loves to sing: "Change and decay in all around I see," and, psychologically, settles down to these decaying conditions, having little ambition for anything else.

The prophecies declare emphatically: "Of his kingdom there shall be no end."

ITS DESIRABILITY

All peoples crave some sort of utopia in which they imagine conditions ideal; conditions without the present disabilities of sorrow, sickness, sin, and death; a condition where the desirable things are to be enjoyed everlastingly. To the ignorant it may be "the happy hunting grounds," or "Kharma," or a delectable condition of social excesses, or a mere "passing over" to peace.

But to the Christian it is the millennium, in which the King of kings shall triumph and reign gloriously; in which we shall "awake in his likeness," in a condition of things where the worries and responsibilities attendant upon sin and mortality are for us forever at an end.—Josiah Salisbury in The Bible Standard.

Tithes and Offerings

MANY of God's children in their testimony tell how wonderfully the Lord has saved them, how much He has done for them in relieving them from the Devil, from tobacco, drink, amusements, following the fashions, etc. But few give as much to the cause as they spent needlessly when in sin.

If asked to help toward the support of the gospel, some will even declare they cannot afford it. And others are unwilling to give more than a trifling amount to the cause of their Redeemer, who gave His life to save them from eternal destruction. Many come to want, for how can God prosper His children under such conditions? "Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation" (Malachi 3:9).

"The tenth shall be holy unto the Lord" (Lev. 27:32). The tenth is holy because God calls it holy and claims it as His own. If we withhold the tithe, God says we are robbing Him. And, besides tithes, God expects offerings from His people. "Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings."

Some try to excuse themselves for robbing God by saying they are in debt. In the first place they disobeyed God's Word by going in debt: "Owe no man any thing" (Rom. 13:8). When out of debt, they make no effort to keep out. They are like the farmer who is always buying more land, to raise more corn, to feed more stock, to sell for more money, in order to buy more land, to raise more corn, etc. Others keep their money loaned out, and then say it is beyond their control. Such are not dealing with man, but with Him who searches the heart.

Will we be willing to offer such excuses at the judgment bar of God, where everyone will be rewarded according to his works? Various excuses are given, but there is no real excuse. There is not one instance recorded in the Bible where the Jews were ever excused from tithe paying. When right with God, one never thinks of offering an excuse. The Jews realized their first obligation was to the Lord; and it should be so with all Christians through all ages and under all circumstances.

God's people of old never lost anything by giving to Him, for the more they gave, the more they had. Obedience to them was the only safe road to prosperity. "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty" (Prov. 11:24).

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it" (Mal. 3:10). God is rich; He is almighty. He says, "Every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills" (Psalm 50:10). "The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts" (Hag. 2:8). God wants His people to have a part in His work. He could take care of this work without our co-operation, but He wants to give us a blessing, a positive blessing for obedience. He who sows bountifully may reap also bountifully.

"God loveth a cheerful giver." He wants no money for His cause except that which is freely given. God is not so short of funds that He is glad to use what is given grudgingly. Men may do so, but such is not necessary with God.

Christians, what have you received? Life, strength, food, clothing, shelter, air, sunlight, home, friends, and countless other blessings. Still more—pardon, peace, love, hope, and an abundance of promises, chief of which is the all-inclusive one of endless life in a world of joy. You know the blessedness of receiving. Would you know a greater blessedness? Jesus led the way when He uttered the truth and demonstrated the same in His life and death. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Ralph E. Piatt in The Bible Advocate.

The Minister's Wife

SHE knows this man who leads the flock as no one else does. Because she understands the hidden depths of his nature she takes her place many times between the forces that array themselves against him and their objective. He is the idealist (if he were not he would not be in the ministry) of the family, the one who in his daily living stretches to its breaking point the fine philosophy of the Galilean. Mrs. Minister is the practical member of the family. Over and over again the practical and the ideal clash as the following illustrates.

"Well, Mary, I have received a call from the church in . . . You know how earnestly I have prayed for an opening. We must take this from the Lord and plan to move." "But John, what about the salary in this place? Will it pay our bills as nicely as the present salary? Can we get by? Not that I want anything for myself, but I do want to be able to look the world in the face without the burden of another debt. We have just finished paying off the debts of the pastorate before this." "Mary, you know that I never consider money when the cause is involved. I'll admit that the salary is low, but I must accept." "Well, John, if you feel that way I will say no more."

They pack up and move. Mary knows that John would never be happy or satisfied to stay. In the new field things began to slip behind. Bills accumulated. Pressure was brought against them. One day John and Mary in desperation went to the city and secured a loan from a small loan agency at an enormous rate of interest. Mary objected to this procedure but there seemed to be no other way. The months went by and sickness plunged them deeper in debt. They found themselves unable to meet the payments due on their loan. The interest accumulated. People began to talk about the "parson" who would not pay his bills. They did not understand. The gossiping public never want to understand. Mrs. Minister was more deeply hurt than the minister. He could seem to shake everything off. He said that the Lord was testing them and they should have more faith. The truth of the matter was that the people of the flock were robbing God of His tithes and their own pastor and family were among those who suffered for their failures. While this "testing" continued the people to whom they owed money became more demanding. Finally the climax came.

The "ladies" were meeting one evening at the parsonage to sew for the "heathen." The minister had gone to his study on the third floor for an evening of quiet prayer and meditation. The doorbell rang. Mrs. Minister hastened to answer. The man who stood there she immediately recognized as from the small loan company in the city. She quickly stepped out on the porch. He must never be seen by the "ladies of the church." What did he want here? He wanted to look at her furniture! Why should he do that? Because the note they had signed, now long overdue with interest unpaid, must have some satisfaction. The company planned to send a truck for as much of the furniture as he should decide would be satisfaction for them. She tried to put him off. She pleaded for another month. He was determined. Finally in utter desperation she promised him his payment the next day if he would only go away and not enter the house. He grudgingly agreed but advised her that it would be her last chance for redemption. There was much quizzing and questioning when she reentered the house. Mrs. Minister had been in "situations" before this and was able to carry on through the evening with a mask that betrayed none of her hectic emotions.

After the last of the "ladies" had vanished she fought her battle alone. The minister prayed with his unshakable idealism in his study on the third floor while his practical wife prayed as earnestly with head bowed on the kitchen table, surrounded by the sad remains of the luncheon "furnished" by her to the ladies of the church.

The next morning all alone the minister's wife took an early train to the city. In her bag she carried a little box. This little box had been tucked away from all prying eyes for many years in the bottom of her old trunk. It held some old family jewelry highly valued for its antiquity but more highly valued to her for its sentimental attachment. Her mother had guarded and valued it in the same way. Now it was to become the "sacrifice." There were no tears in her eyes, no quivering lips as she passed it over the counter and received the needed money. She had sacrificed for years and the dull ache in her heart had now become a part of her life routine. Besides, she was doing it for him! To her he was the best man in the world! She couldn't understand his reasoning nor grasp the extent of his idealism, but she believed in him. She knew he would rebuke her for pawning her jewels, for not telling him beforehand, and for not trusting God to the "very end." Yet in her heart she was glad—they could face the world again honest and unafraid!

So the minister's wife valiantly plays her part. She is ever "defending the faithful" in matters financial, spiritual, moral—in "ways that he knows or knows not."

—Alfred B. Rollins in The World's Crisis.

Reaching the Heights!

MANY a blind beggar has sat by the gate of the temple and thought it to be merely the gate of the temple. Other blind beggars, souls with a sixth sense that showed them hidden treasures, found God there by the temple gate: found the temple gate to be the very gate of heaven! Pity those souls, young or old, whose spiritual eyes are so blurred or jaundiced or enshrouded in blinders that they cannot see the beauty of the Lord, nor the charm and inspiration of His temple services!

It has been well said that if you are a child of God the heavenly Father, then of course you will love His house, and you will be in it on His day—the day when He especially walks and talks—yes, and sings—with His children of earth—yes, his Children of Eternal Dawn! The church! What a grand place, what a holy spot! Where twice-born men commune with the Highest there is, where they tune in and get the Truth, where inquiring hearts find the Old Wayside Cross, where eager ears hear the still, small voice, and where living miracles happen before an astonished and hard-headed world. The church! His church, our church, custodian of a triumphant hope and of a faith that will not and cannot die!

“We have seen strange things to day,” said men of the Apostle’s day. If the world would awake from its idle dreams, it could see wonders today! Spiritual wonders—God replanting lives torn up by the roots, Satan trafficking in souls!

It is said that the great Emerson once had misgivings and suspicions upon learning that he must share his bed in the inn where he was staying. His roommate might be most any scrupulous or unscrupulous fellow. Emerson knew no more about him than he knew about the first jack-rabbit he might meet in the woods—until the man got ready to retire. The fellow then knelt by the bed in prayer. Instantly Emerson’s fears were gone with the wind!

Say nothing disparaging of the church of God! Its Christmas message, its Easter message, its every message can easily lead the sons of men to peace on earth, to joy and singing today, and then through carols of hope, echoes of mercy, and whispers of love to the seventh heaven of blessings untold tomorrow! Tomorrow—ah!—as bright as the promises of God.

What the church of God promised men has always counted heavily among wise men. Thirtyfold, sixtyfold, a hundredfold in this life—and then in the world to come life everlasting—how much did that all add up? From old priests and scribes read the Word to the people in the market place. The fathers and mothers continued the teaching at home. Paul recommended to young Timothy that he remember his invaluable early training at the hands—rather from the heart—of his mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois. Timothy had a gift to stir up—ah, the gift planted and watered with great love and care! The Word and Way of God exalted those who heard—and those who did the commandment of God. It is inexorable, inevitable, unalterable . . . what words may convey the certainty of the truth. The eternal I Am hath said, “Righteousness exalteth!” The church points the way of righteousness! Whoever ignores, whoever finds in his heart no love for the church of God, shouts to the world his smallness—his unwillingness to try for the exalting heights of righteousness supreme! Pity to him; he needs it! He is one more wreck along the shores of time! He thinks his way wise, but it is a way of death! The church weeps in pity, as her Lord wept over Jerusalem, because the man dreaming out in the fields of sin knows not how badly he is being cheated. Of all his class it is true, “they know not what to do!” Grinding away on the husks! Surrounded with serpents and stones, starving and naked, poor and blind and forsaken, when they might be entering the gates to the feasts in the temple of God! Might be singing joyous hosannahs and glad hallelujahs! Oh my soul, no wonder there have been evangelists—Wesleys and Whitefields and Moodys! As fast as the disillusioned heard the facts, saw the barrenness of their wastelands and wilderness, the futility of lifelong building upon the sands, they leaped upon God’s highway, and two—twenty—thousands—millions went singing!

What can man hope to gain by neither going up to the sanctuary of the Lord, nor sending the children, nor reading to them the Word? The opposite of righteous exaltation results—sometimes with aftermaths of soul-wrenching remorse. Years later come to parents and children belated tears of penitence burning a way at last into their souls, as they sing sadly, “Lord, I’ve wasted many a precious year —.” They lay hold—if they may at so late an hour—on the things that are an anchor of the spirit, a shelter from the storms, the “breath of life” to the soul! Ever afterward they reverently hold fast to the things which cannot fail! Security in the Great Friend becomes cheap at whatever cost!

Young Timothy, try the church! There just isn’t anything that can so quickly, surely help you to life’s greatest heights! On life’s highway there’s nothing—nothing!—like a little of the pentecostal “rushing wind” at your back! How it helps your onward, upward way over the hard places!

Parents, are you hiding the pearls from your children? Are you allowing the crumbs to fall unheeded from the Master’s table—the precious crumbs—the precious drops of living water—that fill the hungry and thirsty today, and yet never fail to bring those who “hunger and thirst” back again tomorrow to the Master’s table? Young people are not easily deceived. To say that the church is a “fine place,” and to drive them off to the place, is often insufficient. It bespeaks the lack of assurance in your own heart! A missionary-minded man may pray for the needy fields, and boast of his great love for the cause, but if he is all talk—if he won’t give even a dime, if he doesn’t care even a dollar's worth—we shrug our shoulders and say, "Humph!" to all his flowery words. By the same token, young folk know that even the parents who do talk piously about the value of the church of God must back up that talk with their attendance and their lives! Else they are deceivers themselves! False teachers! Because no true teacher will lead his pupils where he will not go! Good shepherds play no evil tricks on their sheep! Only enemies recommend a way, and then by actual example go the opposite way! Such are untrustworthy. You follow them to your sorrow and death. "Do not as they do," said the Master of the Pharisees and their way, "because they say, and do not." It is the treacherous way of clever, deceiving hypocrites! A man's own conscience will tell him that. The way Christ Jesus led His disciples was the only way of all ways on earth for Him Himself to go. He chose it, too. He walked it. He loved it. Therefore, He had eternal right to recommend it to others.

So many once honest and worthy souls sought Christ, but once they embraced Christianity, they sat down in smug complacency and have not turned a hand for Christ since. In the Scriptures they think they found eternal life, since the writings testified of Christ. Satisfied, they closed the book of religion for life—or at least until their dying hour, or the hour of trouble. If they miss the kingdom at last they will know that what they got was all their shiftless indifference and apathy were worth. Too late they will see that to have entered the fair portals were worth faithful watching, earnest endeavor—and even sailing bloody seas! The best things cost most, and the harvests are for the sowers and reapers. The redemption of a ruined race demanded God's Son. Life for a disciple involves a charge to keep, a commission to obey, and continued lawful striving until the awarding of the crown!

Drinkwater says: "When the high heart we magnify and the sure vision celebrate; and worship greatness passing by, ourselves are great." Oh, magnify the highest heart—the Lord! He passes by. Worship His greatness, and you yourselves will be great! Shepherds, wise men, paupers, kings, rich men, prophets, soothsayers, jailers, publicans, college professors, and scientists—yes, modern bankers, politicians, sportsmen, and thinkers have found no higher, holier living example than the Christ of the heights! We need to "make" those heights: they are a good place to be when in all its fury the storm breaks that is coming! Make no mistake, beloved! May the sleepers come to themselves before they are rudely awakened from their dream—from their nightmare. All dreams of earth are but nightmares and delusions compared with the visions of God's valiant heirs of immortality!

But you are here in a humdrum world where life is real and earnest, you say. What's the matter with the path of earthly glory? The main trouble is that it leads but to the grave. But consider real influence and its duration, genuine success and glory, my friends: If God is solidly behind you, and you are solidly behind His church and His plan, your earthly influence and its duration will exceed that of your godless brother! But, you will also be in Heaven's Who's Who, and you will be known to the heart of God, and to all those who enter the gates of His eternal temple! And you yourself may go in and out! What more could one wish?—Leroy Victor Cleveland in The World's Crisis.

THE POWER OF "POSITIVISM"

(Continued from Page Three)

in those things, followed by repentance and baptism, of which the apostles preached.

When churches were established, letters treating of these various important Christian graces were written and read to the believers for their instruction, but such teaching did not form a part of the gospel which was preached by the missionaries to the unbelieving world. There would have been no profit in doing so. The heart of the sinner, the unbeliever, must first be illuminated by the gospel and he must be made responsive to spiritual appeals by obedience to it, before he could understand the deeper things of God. His spiritual development could not even begin until he had become "a new creature in Christ Jesus" by faith in the glad news of the kingdom and his faith had been sealed in the waters of baptism.

If the Church of God is to profit by the example of the apostles, its evangelists will devote their efforts primarily to the plain preaching of the simple facts of the gospel. They will not attempt to teach spiritual truth to carnal and unregenerate men.

FROM THE FIRST INAUGURAL

(Continued from Front Page)

an indissoluble union between virtue and happiness; between duty and advantage; between the genuine maxims of an honest and magnanimous policy and the solid rewards of public prosperity and felicity; since we ought to be no less persuaded that the propitious smiles of Heaven can never be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right which Heaven itself has ordained; and since the preservation of the sacred fire of liberty and the destiny of the republican model of government are justly considered, perhaps, as deeply, as finally, staked on the experiment intrusted to the hands of the American people. . . .

Having thus imparted to you my sentiments as they have been awakened by the occasion which brings us together, I shall take my present leave; but not without resorting once more to the benign Parent of the Human Race in humble supplication that, since He has been pleased to favor the American people with opportunities for deliberating in perfect tranquillity, and dispositions for deciding with unparalleled unanimity on a form of government for the security of their union and the advancement of their happiness, so His divine blessing may be equally conspicuous in the enlarged views, the temperate consultations, and the wise measures on which the success of this Government must depend.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

“You Have To”

* * * *

By John Denchfield

“Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.”—John 14:23.

I am informed that the unwritten code of the United States Coast Guard is, “You have to go out—but you don’t have to come back!”

The words, “I don’t have to do that if I don’t want to!” are quite commonly heard. And, true, we are able to choose our course of action to certain extents, bounded by parental authority, social standards, and our Nation’s laws. However, in Christian life I believe there are things which we have to do, “not by constraint, but willingly.”

Paul, servant of Jesus, once said, “Woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel.” His thought seems clearly, “I must preach. I have to go to all the world; it is my commission. Love for Him impels me. Persecution may come, perhaps death. I may not come back, but I have to go.”

Peter and John were brought before the high council, threatened, and commanded “not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus. But Peter and John answered . . . We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard” (Acts 4:18-20). Their voices simply couldn’t be silenced. The glories of Christ they had witnessed in His death, resurrection, and ascension and the precious promises of His return as King could not be retained. They must, and therefore did, tell of the gospel of the kingdom.

Jesus said, “If a man love me, he will keep my words.” Is it possible for one to whom Jesus has become Lord and Master, whose constant prayer is, “Have Thine own way, Lord. Mold me and make me after Thy will,” to deny obedience unto His wishes?

Of course you do not have to love Him, but if you love Him you have to serve; you have to obey; you have to give and forgive; you have to speak; you have to deny former desires; for the new love within you impels and makes action irrepensible.

Now just two questions: Do you love Jesus? Are you keeping His words?

Condemning Others

It is easy enough to condemn others for the mistakes they have made. It is likewise easy and natural to pass judgment upon those who have sinned against the laws of man and God. In such cases we who condemn others so easily and harshly are quick to adopt a “holier than thou” attitude and walk around with a self-satisfied feeling that we are true and righteous altogether.

What a shock we get under such circumstances when we turn and read the first five verses of Matthew 7. If we are honest and sincere, our self-satisfied attitude will quickly disappear in the light of these verses. Let us read: “Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother’s eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and, behold, a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother’s eye.”

As we ponder these words of our Savior, the sins and mistakes of others we had so quickly condemned become small in the knowledge that our own sins and mistakes may be as great or greater than theirs.

The Apostle Paul adds further convincing words to the same theme when he writes, “Therefore thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things” (Rom. 2:1).

Truly, the poet has well expressed the right thought in the following words:

“He erred no doubt, perhaps he sinned;
Shall I then dare to cast a stone?
Perhaps this blotch, on a garment white,
Counts less than the dingy robes I own.”

Dare any of us then condemn others who have fallen? Shall we not rather endeavor to help them in their weakness and lift them up? Our responsibility is made plain in such matters by Paul in Galatians 6:1. “Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.”

May each of us be more willing to assist others in their weakness and less eager to condemn their mistakes.—H. G.

Attention, All Bereans

If you know of any isolated members of our church, especially old people, who are not now on the writing list of the Senior Social Correspondence Committee, please send their names and addresses to Mrs. Rhoda Hanson, Caledonia, Michigan. This is one of the most important and helpful phases of our Berean work, and the Committee is anxious to secure more new names for their work. Your cooperation in this request will be appreciated.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

LOVING ONE ANOTHER

LAST week we studied the story of Jesus and the little family that was so dear to Him and how He brought back to life the brother of this family. Mary and Martha felt very grateful to Jesus for restoring their brother to them, and in today's story we learn what the sisters did to show their love for Him.

A man by the name of Simon was giving a supper in honor of Jesus. To this party were invited some other friends and the little family—Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. It may have been a little celebration, too, because of Lazarus' return to them.

Now Martha helped the host; she served the supper. And you may be sure she gave especial attention to the Guest they all loved so much. That was her way of showing her love. Mary had a quite different way.

Mary had brought with her to the supper a small bottle of very costly perfume. When the supper was ended she poured the perfume on Jesus' feet and then wiped them with her long, beautiful hair. That was her way of showing her love.

People came from far and near to see the one whom Jesus had restored to life. And many believed that Jesus was really God's Son when they saw Lazarus alive and well once more.

But the chief priests felt just the opposite. They watched everything Jesus did to find fault with Him. And they plotted to kill Him and Lazarus, also. Doesn't that seem terrible?

The day after Simon's supper a crowd of people went to meet Jesus. They carried in their hands long palm branches, and they waved them in honor of Jesus.

As they marched along they sang a song. And these were the words of the song:

"Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord."

Only a few hours later the crowd turned against Jesus and was just as ready to condemn Him. That is the way with people who do not think, but let other people decide for them. You boys and girls, no doubt, know just such people today.

Instead of being crowned King, as you might think was to follow after the Palm Song, Jesus was facing the saddest hours of His life. His death was close at hand.

But in Jesus' heart were no thoughts of hate or revenge for those who were plotting against Him. Rather the opposite. For in this very lesson we read that He tells His disciples what it really means to love one another.

All people, young and old, love their friends. Children love their parents, and parents love their children. We just can't help loving those who love us, those who care for us.

The One who was so soon to die told His followers they should love everyone. And the way to show their love, He said, was not alone by words, but by actions, also.

The Son of God was willing to serve others in the humblest way. And He showed it by washing His disciples' feet. If He, their Lord and Master, could stoop to such a lowly task, surely they could serve others in any manner that was needful.

"A new commandment I give unto you," Jesus told them that night, "that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another." That is our golden text for this week.

If the disciples loved each other as Jesus loved them, they would be willing to do anything the other one needed. No matter what it cost, they would be willing to do it.

How much it would change things around us if we followed Jesus' new commandment! If we tried to love each other as Jesus loves us, how wonderful it would be.

We wouldn't each have unkind feelings for each other. We'd never try to "get even" with some one who has done something unkind to us. We'd try to think of some kind deed we could do instead.

Jesus gave us the same rule in other words. They are these: "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."

"Ever let us each be loving,
Show affection kind and true,
Doing always unto others
As to us we'd have them do.

"Ever let us each be loving,
Never give another pain;
If a brother speaks in anger,
Answer not in wrath again.

"Be not selfish toward each other,
Never spoil another's play;
Let us not offend in actions,
Nor in anything we say.

"Oh, be gentle, oh, be tender,
Oh, be loving all the way,
Thinking kindly, speaking kindly,
Acting kindly every day."

AMONG THE CHURCHES

"WHAT'S THE ANSWER?"

A question under the above heading will appear in the news columns of The Restitution Herald each week. You are urged to solve the problem the question suggests for yourself. If, however, you find it impossible to arrive at what you believe to be the correct solution, look carefully through the paper the following week, for the answer will be found somewhere. You may find it used as a filler at the bottom of a page. Or perhaps it may be discovered in the middle of an article, under a poem, hidden away in an advertisement, church notice, or editorial. But don't forget! It'll be there!

It will add to the interest if you copy the questions from week to week and note how many you are able to answer for yourselves before the solution appears.

The questions may also be used as a Bible game at class parties and as quizzes at Berean meetings and Sunday school review periods.

GOLDEN RULE NEWS

Cleveland, Ohio

At the request of the young people of the church, the second Sunday of each month has been set aside as Young People's Sunday, and the morning message on that day will be devoted to them. The topic for the first month, "Does Youth Need Religion?" was chosen by the young people themselves. The pastor, Bro. M. W. Lyon, solicits suggestions for future sermons from the young folks.

A revival is announced to continue from February 21 to 28 under the leadership of Bro. F. E. Siple of Grand Rapids, Mich. This will be the first time that Bro. Siple has been presented in this community, although he is known throughout the brotherhood in the United States and Canada as one of the most forceful, interesting, and successful evangelists of the church.

Mr. Conrad will lead the lesson on "The Family Altar" on Tuesday, March 2. This is a subject we all need to think about.

Eight members of the Sunday school were graduated from Collinwood High School in January. The Herald joins the pastor of Golden Rule Church in extending congratulations.

Mrs. Lederer was the only member of the church whose record for church attendance was perfect last month. Sickness prevented some from being present regularly.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold its regular business meeting on Thursday, March 4.

Mrs. Fred Austin has provided the "spark plug" for many happy birthday surprises, so it was only fair to turn about and repay her in kind. So the evening choir was happy to join in wishing her gladness at a little social gathering after choir practice on February 3. Mrs. W. Lederer, whose birthday comes the same week, shared the honors.

Some of the men of the congregation are using their spare time to ceil the basement. This will not only improve its appearance, but make it easier to heat and the general lighting will be better. "It's an improvement we've needed for a long time." A new classroom is also under construction at the south end of the basement.

CHURCH OF GOD MESSENGER

From the above-named bulletin, edited by Elder C. E. Randall, pastor of the churches at Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., we glean the following interesting items.

Two persons, William and Nellie May Kirkwood, were immersed on January 24, and are now members of the widespread Church of God family. "We trust and pray," says the pastor, "they will be a real asset to the Lord's work and bright illuminators of the Christ-life."

Word from Sr. Will Holland, mailed at Havana, Cuba, says: "We are enjoying everything. Nice smooth voyage. Ship beautiful."

The annual Sunday school election at Niagara Falls will be held on Thursday night, Feb. 11, at the home of the Morelands. Pot-luck supper at six o'clock.

The Niagara Falls Bereans will hold their annual business meeting at the church on February 16. Supper will be served. (How those folks at Niagara Falls do care for the hungry! We know from experience.—Ed. Herald.)

Sr. Elsie Moore of Niagara Falls has completed the extra course of study which entitles her to a teacher's life certificate. She has worked hard and long and under discouraging circumstances to reach this goal and we heartily congratulate her on her success.

An encouraging word was heard in Welland, Ont., at the service last week. A lady said, "Much of the Bible was as darkness to me until I started attending these classes." We expect this lady will soon step out in her new-found light and be baptized.

Sunday school and church services in Welland will be held hereafter in Wilson Hall. The school will meet at 2:30 p. m., with the preaching service following.

The annual report of the treasurer of the Fonthill church was very encouraging. It showed total receipts for the year 1936 to have been $1,634.05. Expenditures amounted to $1,290.41. This leaves a fine balance to be carried over into the new year of $343.64.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

For the past three weeks it has been the writer's privilege to work with the Blanchard church, during the absence of their regular pastor, Bro. Cecil Smead.

Our stay here has been made very pleasant indeed by the friendliness and hospitality manifested by all. The church work is going along nicely, and shows the result of capable and zealous leadership by Bro. Smead.

One of the busiest departments of the church at the present time is the Ladies' Aid. Although supposed to meet every two weeks, for the past month they have met every week and are working overtime. The reason is simple—wedding bells. Several members of the church have recently taken the sacred step of matrimony, the latest being their pastor, and the Ladies' Aid intends to present each couple with a quilt. Thus the intense activity.

We sincerely trust that the work here will continue to go forward as it has in the past and that each one will render service to God until the Master returns.

Harry Goekler.

"There is neither bond nor free, . . . for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."—Gal. 3:28.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mary J. Elton (for self and others); Mrs. William McWilliams; Mrs. H. C. Eickmeyer; Lula Williams; Mrs. Fred Austin (for another); S. G. Humphreys; Mrs. Edward Twibell; S. H. Boyer; Mrs. E. M. Hall (for others); Clint Scott; Robert McInturff; Alletta J. Renner (for self and another); John D. Davis; Ellen Riesener; Clara M. Hunt (for another); Alta King; Alma Orr (for self and another); Mrs. P. T. Hollenback; Anna Cochran; Elizabeth Hutchings; Margaret J. Donaly (for another); Etta E. Elton (for another); Jessie M. B. Kauffman (for self and another); Mrs. Howard H. Moore; Bessie Hoag; Harvey Krogh, Jr. (for others); Pauline Chapman.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Many commendatory letters are reaching us with regard to the series of articles on the kingdom with which Bro. Drinkard has been supplying our columns. Our readers deeply appreciate such articles on the fundamentals of our faith.

Information reaches us of the death of Bro. T. A. Drinkard's father which occurred on January 24. He was 85 years of age and a firm believer in the mortality of man, the gospel of the kingdom, and kindred themes. Our sympathy goes out to Bro. Drinkard in his sorrow, but we are glad that he sorrows not as others which have no hope.

Bro. L. E. Conner of Dixon, Ill., and Bro. G. E. Marsh of Oregon, Ill., have arranged to exchange pulpits for the Sunday morning services on February 21.

Sr. Jeanette Romine, daughter of Bro. and Sr. L. D. Romine of Golden Rule Home, underwent an operation for appendicitis at a hospital in Rockford, Ill., last Thursday morning. Her present condition promises well for a speedy recovery.

That beneficial results follow the publication of sermon topics in advance in local papers has been amply demonstrated. Publishers in the smaller towns are glad to cooperate with churches in this way, and even in some cities editors invite religious organizations to furnish information of unusual services to be held. In some places—Los Angeles, Calif.; Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Dixon, Ill.; etc.—the newspapers have not infrequently published brief reviews of outstanding sermons. All this helps to spread the gospel and should be appreciably utilized.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

What biblical king reigned seven days and then cremated himself? The answer will be found somewhere in next week's Restitution Herald. Look for it carefully. Don't forget! It'll be there!

THE RIPLEY EVANGELIST

Another very attractive church bulletin which reaches us is The Ripley Evangelist, edited by Pastor Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., at Ripley, Ill. The last issue announces a very full regular program of both Sunday and weekday services. They have three services each Sunday, Sunday school and morning and evening worship. Tuesday evening a teacher training class is conducted; Thursday evening, prayer meeting and Bible study. Communion is observed on the second Sunday of the month after the morning worship period.

"Our Sunday school and church attendance has not been as high the past few weeks as it had been. This is partly on account of bad roads and sickness, several members having been suffering from influenza and severe colds."

A special offering was taken up for the Red Cross on behalf of the flood sufferers. Twenty dollars was raised, and "we pray that the Lord will add His blessing and comfort and encouragement to those who are in such great need."

The editor of the Evangelist calls attention to the splendid work accomplished by State Evangelists F. L. Austin and James McLain at Macomb, Ill., and urges that a constant effort be put forth along missionary lines everywhere.

MISSOURI CORRESPONDENCE WORK

Editor, The Herald:

My little daughter sent in the coupon from your paper to the "Sunshine Lady" and received the lessons. I have taken those lessons and added more to them for Bible study and special songs. I run these off on a hectograph and the girls are making a scrapbook of the lessons.

We started with fourteen girls, ages 11 to 13, on January 2, and now we have one more and perhaps Saturday we will have two more.

They meet here at my home every Saturday afternoon at 2:30. I am postmistress here and have been since 1913. I am very busy, as my older daughter and I do all the work in the post office and my store, but I have found time for this work and I enjoy it so much. Since I began this work I have gotten along much better with my other work, for the Lord has made a way.

I have a little granddaughter at Sullivan, Mo., and I send lessons to her. She will take them to Sunday school and her teacher is going to use them.

This Saturday we will fix another scrapbook of lessons to send to my niece at Iron-ton, Mo., where several will study them.

Each week we are going to send lessons to some one who will use them in class.

I enjoy every page of the paper and pass copies on to those who will read them.

Mrs. Belva Maxwell,
Belgrade, Mo.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Maybelle Hanson; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Helen M. Chisholm; H. J. Stadden; Silas M. Claypool; Fannie LeCrone; C. E. Lapp; Jessie M. B. Kauffman; Georgia and Wayne Thompson; Margaret J. Donaly.

REFLECTIONS OF GREAT MINDS

"Think on these things."—Paul.

"We here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this Nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."—Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address as revised by himself.

The historic oration from which this extract is taken is no doubt the most frequently quoted piece of American literature, and yet one of its most significant statements is seldom if ever pointed out. As the martyr President contemplated the future of our Government he did so with full recognition and acknowledgment of God's supreme authority. He said: "That this Nation, UNDER GOD, shall have a new birth of freedom (and) shall not perish from the earth."

The failure to acknowledge God's authority has brought about not only the overthrow of kings like Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. 4:28-32) and Zedekiah (Ezek. 21:24-27), but of entire nations, as Israel and Babylon.

JOHN GORDON BARBER

John Gordon Barber was born near Eagle-ville, Mo., April 29, 1858, and died Sunday, Jan. 17, 1937, at his home near Harper, Kan. after but a few hours' illness.

He was baptized into the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith by Bro. John Foore of Parsons, Kan., the winter of 1910 when ice was a foot thick in the stream where baptism took place. He lived a faithful member of the church until his death. Among his most precious treasures were found gleanings of Bible verses—some in his own handwriting. Comparing his life with the Example set before us to follow, we can say with full assurance that he died in the Lord.

He leaves to mourn his death his devoted wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Barber; one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Millard, Decatur, Ark.; two sons, Charles and Carl Barber; and two stepsons, Clayton and Clarence Parker, all of Harper; also ten grandchildren. May his loved ones look forward to that time with a living faith, and be ready to be caught up to meet the Lord and share with him the glories of the kingdom.

Clara M. Hunt.

The Emphatic Diaglott, by Benjamin H. Wilson: the New Testament retranslated; interlinear Greek-English translation; fabri-koid binding; Bible paper, gold edges; Bible dictionary and index; $2.50. National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resur-rection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortal-ization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Je-sus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE TEACHER

The Teacher is a lighter of torches amid the darkness of earth, that his fellow men may follow and find the way.

The Teacher enkindles the candles in the souls of men, that they may learn to know the hidden places of their own spirits.

The Teacher is a learner who has sat at the feet of the aged and garnered from their gold-en treasures in silence.

The Teacher is a friend of little children, molding their gentle spirits after the heavenly pattern of angels.

The Teacher is a cupbearer, not only to earth's kings, but to earth's slaves, that all may drink of the wine of wisdom and be glad.

The Teacher is he whose eyes have been opened to see the stars, and whose ears have been touched that he may hear the weeping of the willows.

The Teacher is he for whom a book is a jeweled casket and a printed page is a mystic messenger of the soul.

The Teacher's heart has been quickened from the death of self-interest and made aware of the anguish of his fellow men.

The Teacher walks with God and with man in reverent wonder that so great a privilege should be his portion.

The Teacher feels with joy the touch of time's fleeting hours upon his cheeks, but his spirit lives and breathes in the quiet heights of eternity.—B. M. Christensen.

As Snowden hints, the age-old battle between liberals and conservatives as indicated in the necessity for Paul's observing the rites of the Mosaic law while at Jerusalem will never cease until the Christ appears. Progress always has been balanced by the ones who pull back, and consequently nothing has come too rapidly, either in thought or in industry, for assimilation. But it should be true of every Christian that he is ready to change his opinions, however ancient they may be, if biblical evidence to contravene them can be presented. And it should, further, be true of every Christian that he is very slow to accept rumors and gossip at their face value; for more trouble has been caused by disseminat-ing misinformation about people than by al-most any other single factor.

COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY

Fourth Edition

The largest abridg-ment in the famous Merriam-Webster se-ries. Surpasses all other abridged die-tionaries in popular acceptance. Defines 106,000 words. 1,268 pages. Illustrated. Thumb index. Used as authority by every court. Defines many obsolete Bible words. Unusually accurate.

- Regular Style 7 x 10 x 2 5/8 in. 5 lbs.
- Cloth $4.00
- Buckram, marbled edges . 5.00
- Thin Paper Style 6 x 8 7/8 x 1 1/2. 2 1/4 lbs.
- Blue cloth, sprinkled edges $3.50
- Brown fabri-koid, gilt edges 5.00
- Black Levant leather, gilt edges 7.00
- Limp pigskiu, dk blue or natural 8.50

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

The Illuminated Life

By C. E. Randall

"But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions."—Hebrews 10:32.

THERE is more to the illuminated life than the majority of us have realized, let alone experienced. The traditional view among us that Christianity consisted of belief in certain doctrines, that is, that believing a certain amount of dogma was the essential element in being saved, has robbed us of some definite experiences that await those who have been illuminated in a gospel that transforms the life of the believer and in turn makes the transformed a transformer of lives—a life-changer. Doctrine has its place in Bible salvation, an important one, too. It is possible, though, to place too much stress on knowing the gospel and too little on living it. Jesus' works had more influence and effect on lives than did His words. If we would try it, we might find the same result. The "Illuminated Life" may be summarized in part as follows:

1. A transformed life;
2. A radiant life;
3. A Samaritan life;
4. A faith-living and giving life.

The actions of a transformed life are clearly defined and set forth in the Sermon on the Mount. Nothing has ever been spoken or written that is comparable to this masterpiece on human conduct. Nearly every verse has to do with our present life and our relationships one to another. Only a changed life can come within close proximity of this code. Oftentimes it is said, "I was born into the truth." Yes, it is quite possible to be born into a certain doctrine or belief, but being born into a belief through the flesh is quite different from being converted, baptized, and adopted into the family of God. Conversion must always precede a transformed life. "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out," is God's way of bringing us into the illuminated life. Genuine conversion is prerequisite to a Christian life and experience which constitutes the illuminated life. A transformed life is a Christlike life. In such a life, God always commands first place; His work becomes the objective of our strength, the sheep of His pasture our care. With John Wesley, we say, "The world is our parish." When we are meditating on accepting Christ, we are in the process of a change, but when we have put on Christ by baptism, the change has been wrought, we are transformed and as a new creature in Christ our work henceforth is to "preach Christ." Preaching Christ is not to force our views on others, nor is it a ministry of condemnation; it is principally a life of living. As the poet has said: "A heap o' livin'." God defines such lives as "living epistles." Others term them "lifechangers." We call it the "illuminated life." It requires a "heap o' livin'" to change lives and be "living epistles."

The Illuminated Life is a radiant life. "Ye are the light of the world." Caution is needed lest this light become darkness or perhaps a stumblingblock to others. There can be no radiance if there is a bushel over our light. Remove the covering from your light, let it be as a city set on a hill that cannot be hid. Light is necessary to life, both physical and spiritual. The light comes from the Word. "The entrance of thy words giveth light." As the Word takes root in our lives, our actions respond in kind. The radiance of the light is to be seen in our good works, which we do in the name of the Lord.

The Illuminated Life is a Samaritan life. There is a richness of service and feeling that comes from being touched by the feeling of others' infirmities. Easing the travails of a groaning creation befalls the Christian. Fill a man's empty stomach, soothe his wounds, comfort his broken heart, and he will have big ears to hear what you have to say. Give a cup of cold water to a thirsty disciple! Don't first ask what he believes. Never mind that! If he is thirsty, give him a drink of cool, sparkling water. Doing good is always lawful! One of our readers is a widow of considerable means. She is putting her nephews through university and giving them a boost in their life's pursuit. A good work! Oh, there are so many ways of doing good! It is not necessary to tell you are doing it because you are Christian—people will soon discover that.

If some one in the community is in need, don't pass by in priestly or Levite fashion, leaving the work for another organization or individual; be a companion to him and share in his suffering. It is a wonderful work and experience to be partakers in the sufferings of the weak and helpless. Is such work Christlike? Assuredly! Bearing the burdens of others will lessen the weight of our own. It will give us poise and balance. It will be medicine to our body and health to our spirit.

Recently an elderly lady was taken sick and unable to get along on her pension. Another elderly Christian interested himself in the case and secured a raise in the pension, bringing help and peace of mind to a weary life. This is the Samaritan spirit of helping others.

The Illuminated Life is a life of faith. There are two kinds of faith—living and dead. The one is active, the other inactive. You may wonder how faith can be dead. It is stated thus: "But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" This is the law of faith. A living faith is a working faith.—Church of God Messenger.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, FEBRUARY 23, 1937

NUMBER 21

Our Immortality

By Mrs. H. H. Harrington

DURING LENT our minds turn easily to certain characteristic customs and traditions. Faithful followers of Christ press on to more fervent prayers. Daily devotions flagellate us to additional self-imposed denials, thrusting us forward to renewed support of charity and services of compassion.

"Blessed are the merciful," spoke our Savior; but even in our most selfish (self-preserving) motives must we expect mercy from God only, for even a Red Cross worker can hope for no sure mercies from our modern, man-marred skies, for example.

For adults, then, Lent gives to us a period of retreat from the world about us, a yielding to sanctity, a firmly fixed resolve to secure a larger share of spiritual healing from the "Lamb of God," by whose "stripes we are healed."

Can a little child appreciate Lent, too? Not as an adult, of course. Yet this season of the Passover will draw him very near the cross as the dramatic pageantry of Easter quickens the tense, tight chords of the earth. It would be interesting to watch the children's faces at a Passion Play! A shout! A hosanna for the meek mule that surely, stubbornly pushed a way for her Lord through the thickness of the joyful throng.

If the child cannot linger long in Gethsemane, or ponder profoundly on the Mount of Olives, it is because he is innocent in his eagerness to behold "a new heaven," "a new earth"—his desires resolve into the purely symbolical signs dear to the child's heart—that mysterious magic of gay rabbit eggs, the fluffiness of baby chicks peeping from the broken security of eggshells.

Lent will endure for the older disciples and young Christians as a part of the year when we would welcome the clean, the immaculate, by holy offerings. To the great majority, Lent persists only as a time of fasting, a period of repression, a Ghandi-like fast of protest, an extreme thirst or hunger.

Now, John, the beloved Disciple, has no such record. Instead, John gives us the beautiful chapters of Christ's communion with His Father (and disciples): John 14 to 17. Christ's speaking with His Father was to fortify Him for the deep cup of sorrow set before Him, for the (Please turn to Page Eleven)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day
G. E. Marsh, Editor

Polish Pogroms Renewed

"They shall fall by the edge of the sword . . . until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21:24.

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 20.—Poland, one of the first nations of Europe to really extend a welcome to the "Wandering Jew," has now reversed her attitude and turned against them with most bitter persecution. In the thirteenth century King Boleslav of Poland invited the thousands of Jewish refugees who had been driven from Spain to enter Poland and establish themselves there. He granted them remarkable privileges, including that of Jewish courts, business opportunities, and equality with native Polish citizens before the law. They were not required to become citizens of Poland, but retained their own language and customs.

Today the Jews of Poland number one tenth of the entire population of the country. Until comparatively recent years they have been the chief merchants and bankers everywhere. All this, however, is now changed, and the Polish people have raised the cry, "Oust the Jew!" The result is that Jews are boycotted in business and being rapidly shut out from the "learned professions."

One of the beneficial "by-products" of anti-Semitism in Poland is that thousands of Jews are being forced out of the cities into the country where they are learning agricultural methods and accustoming themselves to farm life "with a view to resettlement in the Holy Land."

Pan-Arab Ambitions

"Arabia, and all the princes of Kedar —"

BAGDAD, Irak, Feb. 20.—The ancient jealousy which has flamed between the descendants of Esau and Jacob for thousands of years threatens the East with a new conflagration today. The Arabians have again assumed their position of leadership among the Moslems which was taken from them by the Moors and Turks and are planning an advance along all lines. The total Mohammedan population of the world is estimated to be between two and three hundred millions, of which but a comparatively small part are Arabians. Nevertheless, the head of the religious system is still of that race and exerts a great influence over its devotees everywhere. In addition to this, the sacred city of Mohammedanism is Mecca, in the Arabian Peninsula, where hundreds of thousands of pilgrims go every year for worship and are brought into direct contact with Arabian thought and ambition.

Last year pan-Islamic hopes were greatly strengthened when both Egypt and Syria gained their complete independence, the former from Great Britain and the latter from France. The militant nationalistic spirit is growing throughout the vast regions where the followers of Mohammed predominate, and fears are being expressed by many experienced observers that the bloody riots which last year took place in Palestine may be repeated over a much wider region in the near future. It would pay the student of prophecy to watch developments in Arabia and adjacent lands closely.

Who Was Responsible?

"Everyone is tempted as he is beguiled and allured by his own desire."—James 1:14, Moffatt.

ZION, Ill., Feb. 15.—"I want it understood that my fight is with the Devil," declared Rev. Finis Dake of the Christian Assembly Church in this city in his last sermon before being led away to jail to serve a sentence of six months for alleged misconduct with a sixteen-year-old girl of his congregation. According to newspaper reports, the minister threw himself on the mercy of Federal Court Judge F. A. Geiger at Milwaukee, for violation of the Mann Act.

A business man friend of the unfortunate preacher said, "I believe the Devil wants to ruin the Rev. Mr. Dake and wreck his work."

Throughout the prolonged history of this sinful race men have tried to lay the blame for their misconduct on some one rather than themselves. At the beginning Adam attempted to shift the responsibility for his disobedience to "the woman whom thou gavest to be with me." She in turn said, "The serpent beguiled me." (Gen. 3:12, 13.) It is the latter charge this minister and his friend are making. Why not make the truthful though humiliating confession of David and say, "I acknowledge my transgressions: and my sin is ever before me" (Psa. 51:3)? Or with the prodigal son cry, "Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son" (Luke 15:21)? That is the kind of defense of which the Lord approved and which will win His pardon, for "if we confess our sins," and do not try to lay them off on some one else, even the Devil, "he is faithful and just to forgive" (1 John 1:9).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

Will Your Anchor Hold?

By the Editor

"We have as an anchor of the soul, a hope both sure and stedfast and entering into that which is within the veil."—Hebrews 6:19, A. R. V

WHAT a man believes is of greater importance than what he outwardly appears to be, for what he believes determines the course of his action, the development of his character, and makes him not merely what he seems to be, but what he really is. Jesus suggested this when He arraigned the Pharisees for their hypocrisy.

"Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites!" He exclaimed, "for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess. . . . Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity" (Matt. 23:25-28).

The scribes and Pharisees believed, but they believed in themselves rather than in God. They trusted in their outward appearance of righteousness rather than in the inward righteousness which comes by faith. They appeared righteous to men because they observed a certain code of religious formality which in those days was looked upon as an evidence of righteousness.

The Pharisees believed, but they erred in what they believed. Like Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, they believed a lie and it filled their lives with secret sin.

When Jesus declared that "ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32), He did not imply that any truth would accomplish this purpose. There are many truths which have no power to free the individual from the fetters of sin or from any other form of bondage. Such truth does not constitute the truth of God or the truth of the gospel by which we may be saved. When Jesus used this much-quoted expression He taught that a false belief fetters and binds and enslaves the one who holds to it. Those who depend for the security of their spiritual structure, to change our metaphor, upon the quicksands of falsehood will discover to their chagrin that when the storms of adversity and of trial sweep over their lives the foundation upon which they have built their house will fall miserably, for "hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place" (Isa. 28:17).

I was recently reminded of this fact when I was reviewing a sermon by that most distinguished of modernist preachers, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. The discourse was entitled "A Fundamentalist Sermon by a Modernist Preacher."

Dr. Fosdick introduced his subject by relating an experience he had had with two young men, both of whom were liberal in their religious views. One was a Jew, the other a Gentile.

The young Jew confessed that while he worshiped in the modernistic synagogues, he often felt when the service was over a sense of disappointment, as though something were missing. Somehow it seemed to him that the renewal of spirit which he once had experienced under the old system of worship was absent in the reformed synagogue.

The Gentile modernist, holding in a general way to religious philosophy taught by Dr. Fosdick, told the minister that he, too, felt a similar spiritual lack in the services of the modernist temples and churches. He said they did not seem to have the power to bring him the peace of heart and mind that the older and more fundamental churches had possessed.

After reviewing the experiences of the young men, Dr. Fosdick readily acknowledged that such disappointments were not rare in congregations made up of modernists, and said that they always reminded him of the admonition of the prophet who said:

"Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein" (Jer. 6:16).

While the eminent preacher did not advise anyone to give up modernism and return to the simple biblical faith by which our forefathers lived and died, he did confess that modernism often showed a woeful lack of spiritual power. In times of stress, of need, of sorrow or disappointment, when the burdens of life became too heavy for human shoulders to bear alone, when one's whole universe seemed to be tumbling about his ears—the modernist's miracleless religion did not seem always to supply the needs of men.

Of course Dr. Fosdick had a remedy to propose. He called it "faith," but it is a little hard for me to understand what a (Please turn to Page Eleven)

What Do the Scriptures Teach?

A VERY great responsibility attaches to those who seek to be expounders of God's truth. Fairness, courtesy, and honesty on both sides of any controversy would in the majority of instances result in mutual respect the one for the other, and a ready willingness to relinquish error by the one whose views are proved to be out of reasonable harmony with Scripture statement and incontrovertible fact. There should be mutual recognition that of two opposing views only one can be right.

That such a spirit of fairness is often lost sight of by some, is painfully obvious when those holding to and teaching the doctrine of the eternity of evil, and the eternal conscious suffering of the ungodly, persist in describing believers in conditional immortality (that is, the truth that immortality is only to be had on conditions) as believers in "non-eternity of punishment"; and this in spite of disclaimers to the contrary that to them "eternal destruction" or "death" is an eternal punishment, involving an eternal loss of life, including all that pertains to life.

Were this misrepresentation of the views of fellow Christians the only regrettable feature of the controversy it might well be overlooked, but the issues are far deeper, and result not merely in the questioning of the word of a brother in Christ—serious though that may be under given circumstances—but of definite denial of the Word of the living God by placing an interpretation on passages of Scripture that is entirely at variance with the straightforward, natural, literal, and obvious meaning of the language used.

It is said by those who claim to be "orthodox" and "evangelical" custodians of "the faith once for all delivered to the saints"—in contradistinction to those who differ from them—that "Scripture invariably conveys the thought of the punishment of sin being eternal conscious suffering." The only sure method, and eminently fair on all such occasions, that can be brought to test the accuracy of so terrific a dogma, is to make our appeal direct to Scripture, and to judge by the meaning of the words contained in the passages quoted, which side most faithfully sets forth the actual teaching of the Scriptures on this momentous matter. If it is true that "Scripture invariably teaches that the punishment of sin is eternal conscious suffering," how is the reader going to reconcile the following passages with such an idea? We maintain that they cannot be reconciled, and that any unbiased mind will acquiesce in that conclusion.

Reading from the Revised Version, we find the following: "Yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be; yea, but ye shall diligently consider his place, and he shall not be. . . . The wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the excellency of the pastures; they shall consume; like smoke shall they consume away" (Psalm 37:10, 20).

This article, originally written by the long-dead M. W. Strang, was adapted for tract publication by R. H. Judd. The tract may be secured at 15 cents a dozen, 90 cents a hundred, from either the National Bible Institution or Mr. Judd, whose address is 111 Milverton Boulevard, Toronto, Ontario.

"Ye shall be as an oak whose leaf fadeth, and as a garden that hath no water. And the strong shall be as tow, and his work as a spark; and they shall both burn together, and none shall quench them" (Isa. 1:30, 31).

"What do ye imagine against the Lord? He will make a full end; affliction shall not rise up the second time. For though they be like tangled thorns, and drenched as it were in their drink, they shall be devoured utterly as dry stubble" (Nahum 1:9, 10).

"Behold the day cometh, it burneth as a furnace; and all the proud and all that work wickedness, shall be as stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of Hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch" (Mal. 4:1).

"Even now is the axe laid at the root of the trees: every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. . . . He that cometh after me is mightier than I. . . . whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly cleanse his threshing-floor; and will gather the wheat into the garner, but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire" (Matt. 3:10-12).

"Gather up first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them. . . . As therefore the tares are gathered up and burned with fire, so shall it be at the end of the world" (Matt. 13:30-40).

"If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch and is withered: and they gather them, and cast them into the fire and they are burned" (John 15:6).

"They are the enemies of the cross of Christ, whose end is perdition" (Phil. 3:18, 19).

"But these as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things they understand not, and shall utterly perish in their own corruption" (2 Peter 2:12).

In these passages (only samples of many more of similar import) we have several figures under which the punishment of the wicked is predicted. Is there in a single one of them the idea of "eternal conscious suffering"? Do they not all expressly exclude the thought? An article that consumes away into smoke—what is there left of it? "A garden without water"—what life is there in it? How does the Lord make a full end of those who have an endless existence? How can those who exist forever in conscious, indestructible existence be appropriately likened unto tow or dry stubble or chaff—the most inflammable of all materials? Who would ever think that a tree would continue to exist and live of which it is said that "neither root nor branch" of it is left? Who would ever suppose that an unfruitful tree dug up and cast out and put in the fire, or a withered branch severed from the life-giving stem and cast into the fire, or tares gathered up in bundles to be burned are symbolts of continued life and existence? Who believes that an unquenchable fire—one that cannot be put out—will not automatically cease to be when all the material which it con-

(Please turn to Page Ten)

Patmos Vision

By Lottie E. Young

DID you ever hear people reason, "Why was the last book of the New Testament ever written? The Gospels telling of the life of Jesus are beautiful, the Acts is an interesting book of history, and the Epistles are the most inspiring letters ever written, but Revelation seems to be just a book of symbols, so why try to understand it?" And yet among the first verses of this book are the words, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of the prophecy, and keep the things that are written therein." I grant you there are many mysterious references in it about which probably no two students ever agreed entirely on what was meant, and yet I am certain nothing was ever embraced in the Bible that was not put there for the comfort and edification of those who read it.

Let us look at the first chapter and picture the "beloved disciple," now an old man, in exile on the little rocky island of Patmos, away from earthly friends and associates, but in close communion with the Friend whom he dearly loved. He probably was in a state of spiritual ecstasy as he dwelt on the glories of the future, and of those who would be faithful unto death, when he heard a trumpet-like voice behind him which gave him a message to the seven churches of Asia. Turning about, he saw a wonderful Being, clad in a priestly garment and standing in the midst of seven lampstands. In His right hand He held a cluster of seven stars, and from His mouth proceeded what seemed to the old disciple like a sharp two-edged sword. At such a marvelous vision, John says, "I fell at his feet as dead," and then the words, "Fear not," which he had heard the Master say so frequently revived him, and he listened to the mystery of the stars and lampstands, the latter being the churches, and the former the ministers, while the sword showed power.

What was the situation among the "seven churches" at this time? Many years had passed since anybody had had a glimpse of the risen Christ. His followers had gone on their way, trusting that He was actually with them, and many of them had felt that they were conscious of His presence; but a terrible persecution had come and they had cried to Him for help and no help had come. And they began to doubt. Where was Christ? How could He be with them and not know of their troubles? And if He knew, did He care? Why did He not speak out? Naturally in that condition they lost their faith in the comforting doctrine that the risen Christ was with His people.

To these doubting hearts comes the wonderful vision with the message, "Behold, I am alive for evermore." These words bring joy to their hearts, but instantly doubt begins to question, "He is alive, but where is He?" The vision answers, "He stands in the midst of the churches. He is here among His own people. To the outward eye the churches seem to be forsaken, but when the veil is lifted it is seen that Jesus is standing in the very midst of them. He not only lives, but He lives here among them."

But doubt raises another question: "Though He is here, can He do for them all that He has said that He will do?" Look at the picture. It is the figure of one possessing infinite power. Can He overcome death? Will He be with them when they go down into the grave? Listen: "I have the keys of death and the grave."

Once more doubt raises a question. "He lives, He is here, He has infinite power; but is He interested in them?" Who is He holding in His right hand? His ministers—those who serve Him and their fellow men. How His heart goes out to them in those messages which He dictates!

He lives; He is here; He is clothed with infinite power; He holds them in His right hand; He is deeply concerned about their welfare—what better vision could they want?

Has this vision to John any message for us today? Everywhere one meets people who are thinking of Christ as a being who lived nearly two thousand years ago. They are not sure of anything more than this, and so they only talk about the example of His beautiful life. No wonder the hearts of so many followers of Jesus are failing them for fear. What hope is there for this tangled-up world if there is nothing to depend upon but the example of Jesus? If only Christ's people would go forth with glad faces and spread the news that He who was dead is alive, alive for evermore, and that some day He is coming as the great Life-Giver, the Prince of Peace, to make this world the beautiful place it was intended to be when "God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good."

Are you discouraged, dissatisfied, fearful of the future when you look at present-day conditions? Just remember John's wonderful vision and believe Jesus Christ is "the same yesterday, to day, and for ever," and His promises are sure of fulfillment. He still is "in the midst of the churches," and if more would carry out the command, "Casting all your care upon him: for he careth for you," there would be more happiness and content everywhere.

The Kingdom of God

Number 8

By T. A. Drinkard

"And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power."—Mark 9:1.

JUST as Abraham saw the day of Jesus Christ long before it came, and rejoiced to see it, so the disciples saw the kingdom of God come in power and glory in the vision which they enjoyed upon the mountain (Matt. 17:9; John 8:56). The Apostle Peter was one of the three who saw the coming of the kingdom of God in power, and very briefly refers to it, saying, "We have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty . . . when we were with him in the holy mount" (2 Peter 1:16, 18).

Did Abraham see the day of Jesus Christ? How did he see it? Jesus Christ affirms that he did see it, and rejoiced to do so, because he saw what the day of Christ would mean to men and women. Just so, could Jesus Christ cause the apostles to see Him coming in power and kingdom glory. They could see the kingdom set up upon the earth; could see it operating to bring all the kingdoms of this world in subjection to Him (Rev. 11:15); could see nations, or people, beating their swords into plowshares (Micah 4:3; Isa. 2:4), because they will not need them any more, as "he maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder; he burneth the chariot in the fire" (Psalm 46:9).

God invites men and women to "behold the work of the Lord," and the desolations which He will bring upon the nations of earth (Psalm 46:8, 10) through His Son Jesus Christ. God's plan is going to be carried out in full, for this earth is going to have an experience such as it has never had since the curse of God fell upon it as the result of Adam's sin. The cup of indignation is almost full. God has His ruler appointed and He is ready to ascend that throne of glory at the time set. Jesus Christ is coming back to earth again, thank God, to finish the work He started when He was here in person. Men today are ridiculing the idea, but it stands just the same because it comes from the court of heaven.

Jeremiah was talking about better days when he wrote, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth" (Jer. 23:5). Those are to be happy days for those who have suffered and endured the oppression of unrighteous and unprincipled leaders of human society and governments.

Who are they "who have reaped down your fields" (James 5:4), and "kept back by fraud . . . the hire of the labourers," if not the "rich men" of this earth? Whose riches are corrupted and garments moth-eaten if not those of the oppressive class? Who is it who "have lived (and are still living) in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton," and who "have nourished (their) hearts, as in a day of slaughter" if not the rich element? James solemnly affirms that they "have condemned and killed the just" who have been unable to successfully resist them. Oh, the "suffering affliction" of God's people (James 5:10)! Not only His people in Jesus Christ, but the millions of earth who are poor and broken-hearted. Daily I see many who are in need of food and clothing, and why? Why are millions in our own Nation in need? If human power and authority can relieve the poor and bring back to our land prosperity and happiness, why has it not been done? We, as a people, have ascended to the pinnacle of human greatness in the sun, yet we shall "be brought down" (Isa. 14:15). We are going down now toward the setting of the sun; "hell from beneath is moved" to meet us at the end of the human way: "it stirreth up the dead, . . . even all the chief ones of the earth; it hath raised up from their thrones all the kings of the nations" (Isa. 14:9).

The chief ones of the earth are stirred up, and well they might be, as misery is coming upon them. Some mighty power will dethrone "all the kings of the nations." Why are our statesmen so stirred over financial matters? Why, the Nation is now in the red about $35,000,000,000, and still the water is becoming more reddish, and the end is not yet! Men are wrangling over balancing the budget, while millions go impoverished; improperly fed and clothed.

In ancient times when famine faced the people great storehouses were prepared to care for the surplus food—that was God's way; but in our day we (?) do things in a modern way—burn it up or plow it under. And then when floods come we ask the dear Lord to help us! Oh, the vanity of it all! May God in His own good way bless the poor of this earth, who are broken in spirit and in heart.

It is written, "The profit of the earth is for all" (Ecl. 5:9), but through the power of human legislation laws have been enacted whereby oppressors have come into possession of the greater part of "the profit." Thus by fraudulent ways they have stolen that "profit" that was their gift from God.

Man has had his day, Jesus Christ is just about to start on His work of His day. And when He leaves His mediatorial throne a shout such as has not been heard will be made, and those who hear it and who survive will recall it as being the sounding trumpet of their redemption.

By 1 Thessalonians 4:16 you will note that the first work that Christ does is to call from the "sleep of death" (Psalm 13:3) His chosen ones. This is verified by Daniel 12:2 and John 5:28, 29; and Isaiah 26:19-21 would also prove the same thought. When those saints of God ascend out of the earth they are fully clothed with immortality, they are raised to die no more. They went down natural, but are to be "raised spiritual" (1 Cor. 15:44).

Now you will recall that when Jesus Christ comes, "then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory" (Matt. 25:31). Again you will recall that Christ said, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne" (Rev. 3:21), and Paul said, "We shall also reign with him" (2 Tim. 2:12). Therefore, it can be clearly seen that "the dead in Christ" constitute the redeemed church, and after their resurrection they are exalted upon the throne of Christ, and in their new office are referred to as "princes" (Isa. 32:1) and "kings and priests" (Rev. 5:10).

Now, at the coming of Christ He is on the throne, His church is with Him on the throne which is to be "in the tabernacle of David" (Isa. 16:5). And why? We shall see.

The Many Mansions

"In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."—John 14:2.

THE 14th chapter of John is one of the most precious in the Bible. It is also one of the most profound in its doctrinal teaching. It is precious because it tells of the Savior's preparations to receive His bride when the place is ready, "that where I am, there ye may be also" (v. 3). It is profound because it tells of the Holy Spirit, or Comforter, and its relation to the Father and to Himself, the Son. Our subject now is to consider what are the many mansions, and how can there be "many mansions" in one "house"?

Taking "house" to stand for a building or edifice, and bearing in mind that God is not contained in any ordinary structure such as men are acquainted with (1 Kings 8:27), the Father's "house" can be nothing less than the universe. He is the Creator of all things, and He dwells in the midst of His creation. "Thus saith the Lord, The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool" (Isa. 66:1).

If "house" means a dwelling place, and "mansions" means dwelling places, or resting places, it is obvious that the "many" must be contained in the one. The Standard Dictionary defines a mansion as a large handsome dwelling; but in British usage one large building may contain several "mansions"; accordingly a single structure is often called by the plural title "mansions"—"Grosvenor Mansions," "Melbourne Mansions," etc.—each suite of rooms being a "mansion." Such suites in New York would be called "apartments," or "flats." In Scotland each flat or suite is called a "house," though it be only two or three rooms in a large tenement. In some cases each occupier is part owner of the walls, floor, and ceiling of the particular suite he lives in, but of none of the rest of the building.

Thus it will be seen that the Authorized Version rendering, "In my Father's house are many mansions," is quite understandable on the basis of a large building containing several families, each living in its own particular apartment. And the further thought follows, that some apartments or "mansions" may be larger and finer than others; some on the ground floor, others on the second floor, etc. In most large cities exclusive flats are found, in which only the wealthy can afford to live; all in one building being in much the same station in life. On the European Continent, where almost everyone lives in apartments, one frequently finds all social grades in one building—from the well-to-do occupier of the parterre to the poor tenant of an attic room.

ABIDING PLACES

We shall now seek the aid of various modern translations, as follows: "In my Father's house are many abiding-places" (R. V., margin). "In the house of my Father are many abodes" (Rotherham). "In my Father's house are many 'resting-places' or 'stations'" (Westcott, Variorum Bible footnote).

The Revised Version rendering, "abiding-places," and Rotherham's equivalent, "abodes," are in harmony with the definition of the original Greek given by Strong's Exhaustive Concordance—"a staying, i. e., residence (the act or the place)." The same Greek word is rendered "abode" in this chapter (v. 23)—"And we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." The verb from which the noun rendered "abode" is derived is found in John 1:32, 39; 4:40; 7:9; 10:40; 11:6; etc. These make it apparent that the meaning of "mansions" is a place of abode, a place to live in, a home.

THE FATHER'S HOUSEHOLD

But the word "house" does not always mean a building, nor yet, as in Scotland, a suite of rooms in a building. In Scripture, as well as in our ordinary conversation, "house" frequently means household or family. With this thought Westcott's translation is in harmony. In my Father's household "are many stations," that is, many positions, some superior, some inferior. In the Hebrew household the eldest son held the most honorable position. There were then other sons, and daughters, perhaps other relatives, and finally the servants and slaves, over whom was set a steward or supervisor. Abraham's "house," or household, contained over three hundred persons (Gen. 14:14).

The word "house" also applies to the genealogical line. God promised to build David a house, that is, to grant him a family with many descendants, as He had previously promised to Abraham (Gen. 17:4-6; 2 Sam. 7:11, 16, 27). The descendants of Jacob, surnamed Israel, were sometimes called "the house of Jacob," and at other times "the house of Israel." When the ten tribes separated from Judah and Benjamin, the nation was described as consisting of "both the houses of Israel" (Ex. 19:3; 1 Sam. 7:2; Isa. 8:14).

GOD'S FAMILY

The house, or household, of God is mentioned in Ephesians 3:14, 15 as His family—"For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named."

At the time Paul wrote these words the heavenly members of the family consisted first, of our Lord Jesus, and, secondly, of the angels; while the family on earth was composed of the believers in the Lord Jesus, as the context clearly shows (Eph. 1:20, 21; Phil. 2:9-11; 1 Peter 3:22; Heb. 1:4-6). God's "house" ultimately will include all who will ever believe in Him, and who will acknowledge and honor the Son whom the Father has placed over all. Though occupying different positions or "stations," they are all God's "house."

In 2 Timothy 2:20 Paul takes the different vessels in use in the ordinary household as illustrative of different positions in God's family. In this verse "dishonour" is better rendered "less honour." The vessels of wood and earth are not dishonorable: they are merely used for more humble purposes than are the vessels of gold and silver. The latter ornament the table, and are held in the Master's own hand, while the former are used only by the servants in their routine work. So Timothy, and all the disciples since, should seek to live so as to be regarded by God as precious vessels to be used by His own hands—"And, Let every one that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity" (2 Tim. 2:19-21).

TO PREPARE A PLACE

Our Lord's statement—"I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also"—indicates that a special honor is reserved for those who become His footstep followers in the present gospel age, when faithfulness to Him involves special self-denial and suffering. He speaks as a prospective Bridegroom. No matter how many mansions and houses there are in the world, a young man desires, and strives to provide, a separate and special home for his bride. Our Lord uses this beautiful human trait to illustrate His own love for His prospective bride, and His desire to have her ever with Him. As God's Son and heir He occupies the highest place in the universe, next to the Father Himself; and in that capacity He has in His gift that close and loving relationship symbolized by human marriage. The "place" for His bride, whether it be a locality or a condition, in the very nature of things could not exist until He had Himself been raised from the dead and given His post-resurrection position and honors. When He gave this precious promise to the disciples He was yet on earth, despised and rejected of men, and was soon to experience the humiliation of Gethsemane and the death on Calvary. He then had nothing to give His disciples but the privilege of enduring the reproaches of the crowd and the grief of His loss, except the promises of reward which would be His to give after He had conquered death and entered into the glory, honor, and immortality of His new life with the Father. When He had thus entered into His own reward—we read that, because of His obedience unto death, God highly exalted Him (Phil. 2:7-11)—He was in a position of authority and power, and fully qualified to prepare His bride for Himself, as well as to prepare a residence for her, with all that implies of honor and dignity (Eph. 5:25-27; Rev. 3:21).

The position was prepared when Christ entered into His glory, as He prophetically said in the beautiful prayer recorded in John 17:22-24—"And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me. Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world."

HATH MADE HERSELF READY

And what of the church—the betrothed (2 Cor. 11:2)? She also has a work to do—to make herself ready (Rev. 19:7). Since the church is composed of persons having the imperfections of the fallen human nature, it is not possible for the members to accomplish all the getting ready themselves; for the Apostle wrote to Titus (3:5-7)—"Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Spirit; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life."

Then come the good works, as Paul adds (v. 8)—"This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men."

The first, initial cleansing is called "the bath of regeneration."

After having been forgiven, and received by God as His children—or, to follow the figure, accepted as His prospective daughter-in-law—the members of the church have much that they can—nay, must—do in the way of overcoming faults and failings and cultivating the lovely fruit of the Spirit, seeking to imitate the Lord in His meekness and lowliness of heart and His other characteristics set forth in different scriptures for our emulation.

Not only has each individual believer a work to do to get himself ready: we are all admonished to help to make one another ready, by provoking one another to love and to good works, and exhorting one another daily as we have opportunity. Thus we shall all grow up into Him, becoming more and more like Him, and more and more like each other in all that is good and right and true. Just as a prospective bride of an earthly king cultivates every grace and prepares with care her trossseau, so the prospective bride of Christ assists as far as possible the transformation of character necessary and desirable in one who is to be the associate in glory of the holy King and Heir of all things (Heb. 10:24; 3:13; Eph. 4:25-32; Phil. 4:8, 9; Psalm 45:10-14).

Dearly beloved, let us daily consider these things, and be strengthened by them for the conflict with the world, the flesh, and the Devil. These opponents constantly seek to draw us from the prize; they would, if possible, deprive us of the beautiful mansion which our blessed Lord has prepared for us. But in Christ we shall obtain the victory, and a triumphal entry, or an entrance "ministered unto you abundantly," as the Apostle Peter describes it, "into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:11).—New Covenant Advocate.

The American Constitution

Will Its Liberties Be Preserved?

FROM press and platform, much is being said these days about the Constitution of the United States. It is a frequent subject of popular conversation, as well as a matter for reflective thought by many able leaders in public life. Practical politicians are taking the question seriously, and are going over the whole constitutional structure once more, testing the strength of its foundations and the soundness of its timbers.

Others without hesitation are ready to repudiate its principles, and sweep the whole institution into permanent banishment. They regard it as a relic of an age when men were simpler in life and habits—an age that furnishes no parallel to this striding present in either development or demands. They wish to "lay away with decency and respect" this obsolete, outdistanced, and outmoded Federal Constitution, and substitute an entirely new national policy.

After a steady and persevering service for nearly one hundred fifty years, is the Federal Constitution of the United States now to be retired? Is it in all its parts, both fundamental and auxiliary, so unsuited to the present that it should be displaced by new plans, new policies, new principles—a new philosophy of government? Are time-honored political beliefs and traditional government procedure in this country undergoing a threatening transformation? Is democracy, as understood and interpreted by the founding fathers, likely to pass away?

Is the promise of Socialistic and Communistic reforms so tactfully offered to, and overwhelmingly accepted by, millions of our citizens—is that promise a prophecy of a new era in the political life of our country? Do we have a brand of national leadership which is guided by the unflinching beam of light from our Constitution as it seeks a solution to the painful, pressing problems of every community? Or is America swinging, unconsciously perhaps, to the Left, and coming close to the border line of dictatorship or of Communism, or Fascism, or Socialism, or some other political ism that sounds strange in the ears of a democratic people?

Not alone from temples of learning, where sit erudite professors of history and economics, seeking through the past for light to guide us through the present; not alone from centers of government, where seasoned politicians battle in debate over the faults and fortunes of persons and things, and transact such serious business as they can during convenient intervals; not alone from the sanctums of the press where journalists and observers discuss, both seriously and facetiously, the various correctives and nostrums offered as a relief or a cure for the weird ways of our modern civilization—not alone from these conspicuous sources do these questions come.

For, quite as definitely and intelligently, they come from hamlet and homestead in every part of the country—from these comparative obscurities, the wilderness of the common people, a people of wearing toil and humble surroundings, the people who supply the major portion of the functional energy of the Nation in times of peace or war—from this wilderness come voices of earnest thought and inquiry concerning the present and the future of our Nation. These questions are not prompted by those who are impertinently curious, but by those who have a spirit of deep solicitude.

Irrespective of their individual political beliefs, a vast number of people still have faith in our Government. They are confident that under our present Constitution we may find relief from many of the miseries that have come to human beings as the result of long-standing inequalities.

That there has been during the past few years of emergency and emergency undertakings an actual deviation from established constitutional landmarks is fully indicated in the current change in the political atmosphere. Because of the absence of violent irritability and tempestuous excitement (the frequent accompaniments of national political upheavals), multitudes in the United States are unconscious of the truth that definite political changes are being worked out at the Nation's capital—changes which can easily become the steppingstones to fundamental alterations in governmental policies and in the administering of sovereign authority.

Many of the peoples who live and toil quietly in the humble spheres of life see and think clearly as they ponder the disrupted state of our economic present and its probable bearing on the future. They, as well as many publicists and prudent observers of every shade of political faith, have been watching with deep anxiety the proposed changes in legislative procedure, and have followed with increasing interest the widening ramifications of proposed changes which might weaken our Constitution and destroy its guarantees of civil and religious liberty.

For some time many Americans have been asking: Will these alleged emergency measures bring increased weal or woe? Will this new brand of stimuli that are being injected into the body politic as an experiment carry the patient through the crisis period to a state of natural convalescence? If these expedients and experiments fail, what then? Will we have gone so far in altering our political course and tampering with the American Constitution, that it will be exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to return to the point of divergence?

In these days of almost world-wide tendency toward parliamentary change or abolishment, it is well to recall at least one lesson taught and emphasized in the chronicles of history. That lesson is this: Political revolutions almost invariably travel a one-way road. Once started in the innocence and propriety of much-needed reform, such movements often cannot be held in leash. It became hazardous to proceed; but it is equally perilous to attempt return. What began as reform ends as a national upheaval and calamity.

During recent years it has been declared repeatedly that a national emergency existed in the United States. And in view of this, Congress abdicated much of its controlling powers and delegated them to other agencies. Wise or unwise, such abdication or surrender, except in the conduct of an actual war, may easily be the laying of the first stone in the foundation for radical change in national policy and governmental leadership.

The question naturally arises: Will these emergency measures and changes be limited to the emergency period? Or have we started with quiet and gentle steps on the one-way road of political revolution? Will the logic of argument, the force of facts and circumstances, the march of world events—will these factors bias our judgment and drive us irresistibly onward so that we shall find it impossible to negotiate a return to the middle course of predepression days? While seeking to execute certain urgently needed social and industrial adjustments and reforms, will the Federal and State leadership of this Nation be able to restrain the sinister forces of revolution?

The Federal Constitution of the United States, the great charter of American liberty, is the fruitage of the best and the fullest wisdom of the founding fathers. In principle this document is ever-enduring. Its enshrined humanities, its recognition of the natural elemental rights and liberties of the individual, its generous provisions and guarantees of opportunity and justice make it a monument which we hope shall ever remain as an incentive of loyalty and devotion to American institutions.

Enduring as are the fundamentals of our Constitution, as expressed in representative government, it is too much to say that the detail organizations, the subsidiary institutions under and in harmony with its provisions, are equally enduring and unalterable. Though the framers of the Constitution produced a document immortal in its principles, nevertheless it was not possible for them to forecast the demands of human progress in the undetermined future, and to provide the guiding policies that would be adapted to the recurring cycles of social and industrial development. They could lay down only the broad highway of general principles founded upon the inalienable and intrinsic rights of man. In their mind they knew that the time and the peoples of oncoming generations must develop and expand the detailed policies, institutions, and organizations required to make these general principles of our Constitution workable in practice.

Our past history proves that we have endeavored to follow just this plan. It may be that changes and adjustments and improvements have not been as rapid and complete and definite as they should have been. However, in all the years filled with the changes of development and progress, the Federal Constitution of the United States has remained the Nation's unchanged safeguard.

Long may it so remain! And let us be exceedingly careful, in our efforts to change and alter our social or political institutions, lest by any chance we barter away the liberty of conscience, the freedom of faith and worship, which our Constitution guarantees to every citizen.—Andrew C. Gilbert in Signs of the Times.

WHAT DO THE SCRIPTURES TEACH?

(Continued from Page Five)

sumes is finally destroyed? Who believes that there is no difference between coming to an end and having no end? No one would say or believe any of these impossible things except a man who is turned aside from the truth by believing in the false doctrine of natural immortality.

So completely have our friends (for they are still our friends along other lines of endeavor) failed to consider the plain and logical import of the passages which we have quoted, we might almost wonder if these have not, with scores of other similar passages, been deleted from the Bibles which they possess; and having cast away the anchor of solid fact and "sound speech which cannot be gainsaid," are obliged to pin their faith to doubtful interpretations of a few parabolic and highly figurative passages of Scripture, which when rightly understood unquestionably support the passages we have quoted, and in so doing, as definitely deny the theory we are combating. For what is the plain unfigurative language of Scripture? "The wages of SIN is DEATH"; "the end of these things is DEATH"; "who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord"; and so on ad infinitum.

Again we ask—Who supposes that death means life, that to die means to live forever in misery? Who supposes that corruption means conscious existence, that everlasting destruction means everlasting preservation (in misery), or that the finish of sin means that it shall go on without end? Again we reply—No one but those who have a false and hopeless theory to support, cost what it may; for the scene of the rich man and Lazarus is laid in hades, a place of the dead, where the Scriptures inform us there is no knowledge, nor work, nor praise, but that the worm and corruption are there. The worm that dieth not, is quoted from Isaiah 66, as also the unquenchable fire, and the passage when rightly understood is a strong figure of utter and irremediable destruction. Other passages such as Revelation 14 and 20:10 if considered with their context and the scriptural use of the word "for ever" in its relation to things human, will be found in no way to support a doctrine that is out of harmony with the whole tenor of Scripture statement.

With earnest heart and loving appeal, we ask you to face this question fairly, knowing well what the result will be in your life as it has been in ours, namely, a fresh incentive to serve with all the vigor of manhood and womanhood that you possess, this one great truth that "the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." supreme Sacrifice on the cross, that crucifixion which suddenly, swiftly darkened the gay Galilean skies and shook the very roots of choicest Jaffa groves.

OUR IMMORTALITY

(Continued from Front Page)

I see Jesus going into the wilderness to prepare Himself to endure, to support His spirit and body for the travail—the heaviness of body blows, the sting to a great heart from the fickleness of many folk.

Mark says in his first chapter, "He was with the wild beasts." So, I like to think of Jesus, staff in hand, walking cheerfully into the wilderness, over rocky wastes, over barren hills, beyond the waste places where only the children of the solitude would live secluded from human harshness.

For Christ loved the sparrows. Even He would beg that the barrage of guns spare the ravens and all the wild wings that turn so trustingly to us in the spring. In truth, He would spare the waterfowl that wing, that sing of the breaking up of the sepulchral snows that have held us fast for so long. Yes, Jesus loved the birds, the green pastures, the trees, and all the elements: is He not the Son of the Creator? He could sleep even in a storm! So how necessary to Him was the soothing, the sanity, of a sojourn in the wilderness.

Thus in surrendering His will to His Father, sustained by prayer and communion, He could contemplate "the glory that was set before him" and endure "the cross" (Heb. 12:2). What a renewal of strength for Him as Christ remembered the exalting prophecy of Isaiah—

"Break forth!
Break forth into joy!
Sing together!
Sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem!
For the Lord hath holpeneth his people.
He hath redeemed Jerusalem."

A TESTIMONY

I SAID at New Year time that my high resolve for this year should be an attempt to live out my religion in everyday contacts. I had been active in church work and was sincerely seeking a richer devotional life before, but somehow the formal religious attitudes and activities had become barren for me. I felt that at times they even blinded me to realities and raised barriers of antagonism between me and the people I wanted to help. I found myself seeking elsewhere for the grace and strength to keep on. The Gospels convinced me that it was not that way with Jesus. I resolved to shift the emphasis of my religious life for a time from formal devotions to Christ-likeness in personal contacts.

The results have not been spectacular in any way, but they are helpful to me and I am eager to go on. I have found a few opportunities for service that seem rewarding. Having set out to live my daily life on a higher plan, I am more frequently made aware of the challenge of my ideal and more often humbled by my failures in Christian relationships. I feel more keenly my need of inner renewal, and I am more often driven back upon private devotions for strength to meet real situations and to carry specific burdens. Human fellowship seems sweeter, and the barriers lower than before. I am trying to live the Christian life in the here and now, in terms of the work I am doing and of my relationships with the people I live among and meet every day.

There is nothing new in my discovery except a changed emphasis in individual experience. It is recorded here as a suggestion to others who, like myself, may be seeking a fresh grip on a living faith.—Aurora College Notes.

BY TEMPERANCE in all things, we achieve the balance necessary for the full enjoyment of life.—W. F.

DO IT NOW may appear to be an old chestnut, but it still ranks as a most valuable piece of advice.—W. F.

WILL YOUR ANCHOR HOLD?

(Continued from Page Three)

modernist means by "faith." As we consider his expressed views carefully, it would seem that by "faith" he refers to a mental optimistic outlook on life regardless of the depression and discouragement that weigh down upon us at the moment.

To me the "faith" he advocates has little of God in it. It has little of the Creator who brought the worlds into being by His spoken word—little of the miracle-working power of the One who stilled the troubled waves of Galilee with a brief command!

(Please turn to Back Page)

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

Home Again

Your regular editor in returning to the editorial chair wishes to thank you for your cooperation and Bro. Goekler for his loving service in preparing this page during the past four issues. Out in California it was indeed a joy to pick up THE HERALD and see that all was well.

My wife and I wish to thank you sincerely for the many expressions of good will you have sent us.

Carlsbad Cavern

On our honeymoon trip we were privileged to spend five and one half hours visiting a land as strange as Alice's Wonderland. For once in our lives we were in total darkness, cut off from the life-giving sunlight by 750 feet of rock. High in the Guadalupe Mountains of southeastern New Mexico, built by the finger of God, lies the world's biggest enclosed church room—4,000 feet from corner to corner, with a 350-foot ceiling.

There were about two hundred people that attended church with us that day, indeed a small group for so large an auditorium. There usually were many more. As we entered the portals two by two we appeared like a line of ants raiding some one's kitchen. And we felt about as insignificant.

As in a dream we wandered about amid the fantastic formations, a fairyland of beauty bursting forth from the darkness and silence of the ages. For countless ages little drops of water have plunged through the absolute darkness unerringly to strike the mark below and to leave their tiny deposits to record the passage of what scientists say are millenniums of millenniums. Then thirty-six years ago came a cowboy, Jim White, with his lantern and string, stumbling over rocks and around yawning chasms, the first explorer of these subterranean avenues.

Now, amid the soft glow of indirect electric lighting, the procession passes on smoothly graded paths. Darkness before, leaving darkness behind, but surrounded with light, moves the little group. Even so go the people of God amid the encircling gloom of sin. Only let us pray that we do not leave the fatal darkness to shut in as we pass!

The climax comes as, with visitors seated before the rock named Rock of Ages from its breath-taking antiquity, the lights are turned off. Total darkness! Far off in the corner a chorus sings "Rock of Ages." Then comes the light, four thousand feet away. Another verse; the light is three thousand feet away. Closer comes the light at each succeeding verse, until "see Thee on Thy judgment throne" brings the blaze of glory over our own heads. Amid the memories of that spine-tingling, unforgettable, hushed moment, comes to me yet the awe-inspired voice of a little girl: "Mama, are we in church?"

Of course we were in church, learning about the Light of the World. "Behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising" (Isa. 60:2, 3). "The people which sat in darkness saw a great light; and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death light is sprung up."

A Heart Filled With Light

"The darkness is past, and the true light now shineth. He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now. He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him. But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.

"I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake" (1 John 2:8-12).

Children of Light

Cowboy Jim White was a brave man to venture into the Bat Cave with his Mexican boy, piece of string, and lantern. He needed the boy for moral support, the string to find his way back, but it was the lantern that enabled him to go forward. What courage it took for a man to be first to enter a hole that harbors between three and five million bats, so many that it takes about three hours for them to fly in or out every morning and evening! It would be a courageous thing if electric lights preceded him. But with a smoking lantern!

Thirty-six years later we walk comfortably in half a day with frequent rest stops and lunch in a modern lunch room, where he took three days and crawled much of the way. The difference? Electric lights. Turn the lights off when the people are in there and they would crawl out on their hands and knees over the smooth trails if they could find their way out.

As Christians we are children of light (Eph. 5:8). Do we measure what we should accomplish by what our grandfathers did? No; knowledge has increased; we measure our job by the light we have. Do we limit our effort by what the South Sea Islanders do? No, we live in a more enlightened land. Not how much should we do, but how much are we able to do? Do I measure my Christian duty by what my fellow Christian does? He may have more light than I, or less. To whom much is given, much is required. Sit down now and take stock of the talents God has given you. Notice, it was the man with only one talent according to our Lord's parable that went and hid that one talent in the ground.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Because I live, ye shall live also."

OUR ETERNAL HOME WITH JESUS

WHEN JESUS was about thirty years old He was ready to begin His life of ministry, and He chose twelve men to help Him. You boys and girls know that these men were called "apostles." Some of you know all their names; all of you know part of them.

Now Jesus wanted these twelve men to know as much as possible about Himself and His Father, God. He taught them the gospel. He showed them how they were to live, both by His words and by His example.

For Jesus knew that all too soon He would be leaving this world, and He wanted these twelve men to carry on His work. He wanted them to go into all the world and preach the gospel. He wanted everybody to know about the love of God.

Ever since the first of the year you have been studying about the things that happened during the months that Jesus was teaching His apostles. Along with His words Jesus taught them by miracles. That is, He told them about the love of God and then He showed them how it worked.

Remember how Jesus opened the eyes of the man who was born blind? How He healed the lame man who had not walked for thirty-eight years? How He fed five thousand hungry people with a little boy's lunch?

When Jesus told them that He was the Resurrection and the Life, He proved it to them by bringing their friend Lazarus back to life. Nothing greater could have been done to make Jesus' teachings plain to them or to prove to them that He really was God's Son. Many watching these miracles believed, too.

Now in this week's lesson we are getting close to the end of Jesus' life on earth. He knew that He did not have much more time to teach His twelve followers. He knew that just ahead of Him was a great deal of suffering and sorrow.

But was He feeling sorry for Himself? Did He tell His apostles that they ought to do all in their power to save Him from being taken by the soldiers? Let us see.

His first words in our lesson are, "Let not your heart be troubled." That is, "Do not be sad that I must go away, for I will come again." Always thinking of others, never of Himself!

Jesus knew that after it was all over, after He was dead and buried and then raised to life again, the twelve whom

He had taught would be wondering about many things. He didn't want them to lose their faith in God and in Himself. For it was that faith that would keep them going on in the work they were to do.

Jesus told them they could not expect to follow Him into heaven. For, you remember, forty days after His resurrection, as they stood watching, a cloud received Him out of their sight. Two men dressed all in white spoke to them, and this is what they said:

"Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." You will find these words in Acts 1.

And that is just what Jesus was trying to tell them, all before it happened. Read verses 3 and 28 and 29 of John 14, from your own little Bibles, or have Mother read them to you.

Now if we are to be with Jesus, as He says, and He is to be on the earth, why, then we will be on the earth, too. Do you see? One of the "Blesseds" tells us that. "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth." Can you find it?

The angel which talked to Mary before Jesus was born promised her that He was to be a King and would sit on David's throne forever. Now we know Jesus never was King when He was here on earth the first time. So we know He will be when He comes the second time. For angels' promises come from God and are true.

The earth will be made beautiful after Jesus returns to it. There will be no sin, no sorrow, nothing to trouble those who love Him. Our homes will be perfect, and everyone will be well and strong and happy.

There is a chapter in the Old Testament that describes our eternal home on the earth. It is Isaiah 35. Could anything be more wonderful? Could you wish for a better place to live?

In Jesus' prayer for His disciples just before He was taken by the soldiers, He says, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

In other words, if we want to have eternal life in that beautiful home on the earth which we have just been talking about, we must learn all we can about God and His Son Jesus. If we will do that we can't help but love God and Jesus. If we love Them we will serve and obey Them. And we will receive the reward God has promised us.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

TRAINING CLASS

At the annual meeting of the General Conference the motion was made to reestablish the training class if there were a sufficient number of students desiring it to warrant such a procedure.

The training class will have to be run on an entirely different basis from the preceding classes.

No part-time work nor work of any kind can be guaranteed to the students.

Each student must be able, financially, to pay for tuition, room, board, and incidentals. The minimum tuition will be $100 a year.

According to the resolution adopted by the General Conference each student must give to the officers of the National Bible Institution assurance of his ability to meet his financial obligations.

If it is your desire to join such a Bible training class will you communicate with the committee as soon as possible. You will then be written to personally, concerning courses offered, cost of room and board, etc.

The training school will be run on a ten months basis.

Let us hear from you soon.

Committee:

Leila E. Whitehead,
5439 Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

Floyd Stilson,
411 E. South St., South Bend,
Ind.

G. Eldred Marsh,
Oregon, Ill.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Emphatic Diaglott, by Benjamin H. Wilson; the New Testament retranslated; interlinear Greek-English translation; fabrioid binding; Bible paper, gold edges; Bible dictionary and index; $2.50. National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill.

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Our basement improvement enterprise is progressing in a splendid way. This week we will attempt to make final plans. We need more funds and believe this will be cared for soon.

The Morning Star Class held their class meeting at the home of Miss Margaret Weaver. Plans were made to have a bake sale to raise money for the basement. Also, the Gospel Seekers gathered at the home of Marjorie Hatten for their class meeting. They, too, are working hard to raise funds. They had their election of officers as follows: president, Joe Geis; vice president, Marjorie Hatten; and secretary, Margaret Overmyer.

A number of our folks, largely workers in the Bible school, are taking advantage of conferences held at our County Sunday School Convention held at Plymouth. Some are planning to avail themselves of the opportunity in the County Religious Training School, which will begin March 1. We are grateful for this interest, as we feel the need of more trained leaders, that this new day of work may properly be cared for. The weakest link in Bible school work is not knowing how. We feel that most of our leaders know what to teach, but do not know how to teach.

The church here expresses their sympathies to Sr. J. C. Butler and her family in their lonely hour of bereavement. May they find the needed comfort in these sorrowing days. The day will soon come when there will be no more sorrow, pain, nor death. May we be kept faithful even unto death.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

THE ASSISTANT PASTOR

Eden Valley, Minnesota

From the church bulletin published by Pastor J. R. LeCrone of Eden Valley, Minn., we gather the following items of general interest.

The Clarence Greene family, who moved to the West Coast last fall, write that they are pleased with their new location. They are located at Wilamena, Ore. Brethren in that State and especially in that part of the State would do well to get in touch with them.

Due to weather and road conditions, services at Lester Prairie have been suspended until the fourth Sunday in March.

There will be, D. V., services as usual at Hector the second Sunday of each month.

JOHN CAMPBELL BUTLER

Funeral services for John C. Butler, aged 76, former surveyor of Marshall County and Culver Military Academy and former city engineer of Plymouth, Ind., which position he held for twenty years, who died Saturday, Feb. 13, were held Tuesday morning at the old home. He was buried in the Memorial Cemetery at Plymouth.

Surviving Bro. Butler are his widow, Ada; a daughter, Mrs. C. E. Taylor, Downers Grove, Ill.; two sons, P. Z. Butler, Indianapolis, and M. D. Butler, Terre Haute, Ind.; a sister, Mrs. James Shaw, near Culver, Ind.; and four grandchildren.

He was born April 1, 1860, in Green Township, and was a graduate of the Valparaiso, Ind., Normal College and the American College of Civil Engineers.

Bro. Butler was baptized by his father, who was a minister of the Christian Church. He and his wife were faithful attendants at the Burr Oak church, when they were able to attend. He was a sincere follower of our church and its teachings. We shall miss him in the men's class for his splendid knowledge of the Scriptures.

Our heartfelt sympathies are extended to his devoted wife and family. He rests in the sleep of the dead awaiting that day when his body will be resurrected from the grave unto an immortal life.

The services were conducted by the writer. Write to Sr. Butler, addressing her at Culver, Ind.

A. E. Hoskins.

Said J. A. Froude: "The moral life of man is like the flight of a bird in the air. He is sustained by effort, and when he ceases to exert himself he falls." And Dr. F. B. Meyer interprets Paul's words as: "Peace must wing our steps." The peace brought by love should be the background for a vigorous and continuous battle against all the forces of evil.

Hope

—cannot be destroyed by persecution (Heb. 13:6);

—seeks every opportunity for expression (Phil. 1:20).

—in Christ is purifying (1 John 3:1-3); —of the world will perish (Job 8:13).

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Mrs. J. H. Williams of Rochelle, Ill., wishes to express her deep appreciation to the many who have remembered her during the illness from which she is now happily recovering. Sr. Williams is again able to be about her home a part of each day.

Bro. F. L. Austin, State evangelist of Illinois, made a brief but welcome call at Oregon last Tuesday on his way to his home in Chicago. He has just finished a successful meeting in Macomb, Ill., in which he was ably assisted by Bro. James McLain.

Wanted: Parents who will say to their children, "Come on. Let's all go to Sunday school."

Bro. L. E. Conner spent last week with his son and family on the farm near Macy, Ind. Bro. Conner is very much a farmer at heart and takes an active part in the work whenever it is possible to do so.

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."—2 Timothy 4:7.

THE NEW EARTH

MEN may overlook or discard the theory of a future new earth all they please, and yet the Bible continues to talk about it. It is apparent to theologians that it means something; and not being willing to admit it is to be the final home of the redeemed ones, they have attempted to explain its meaning. One explanation makes the new earth represent a new dispensation to succeed the Jewish age, the Christian dispensation in which we live, and also makes the new Jerusalem indicate the Christian church. But to this view there are insurmountable objections, such as the following:

1. In the new earth and new Jerusalem of the Bible "there shall be no more death," but in the Christian dispensation and church there is just as much death as there was in the Jewish dispensation and church.

2. The new Jerusalem of the Bible comes down from God out of heaven, while it is not true that the Christian church comes from heaven in any other sense than being of heavenly origin, in which sense the Jewish church just as really came from heaven.

3. The new earth and new Jerusalem of the Bible are chronologically subsequent to earth's conflagration, when "the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also"; then, and not till then, according to Peter, "we look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." The Revelator locates it after the resurrection of the dead, and after the wicked are cast into the lake of fire. But the Christian dispensation and church precede these events, and therefore do not fill the bill.

4. Evidently there is a reason why such puny efforts are made to figure away the theory of a future new earth home for the resurrected saints, and that is the fact that theology has arranged an aerial home, which renders the new earth needless; and as it is not easy to literalize the new Jerusalem while spiritualizing the new earth, these being inseparably coupled together by divine wisdom, an effort is made to spiritualize both. Better let God have His own way about the matter, especially when He speaks to us through three chosen witnesses concerning it—Isaiah, Peter, and John. When the predicted restitution becomes a glorious reality, erasing the curse from the earth, and restoring Paradise, the resurrected saints will be satisfied with the home prepared for them.

While it is true, on the one hand, that there is no need of a future new earth home for the saints provided they are to spend eternity in another realm remote from earth, it is equally true, on the other hand, that if God has arranged to have the saints live in the new earth, the theory of a final home for the sanctified above the skies is thereby invalidated. Both of these theories cannot be true, for the one conflicts with the other, and we are left to choose between the two. One is founded on tradition, and the other on the Word of the Lord.

Some, however, attempt to hold on to both, claiming that we emigrate to heaven in a disembodied state, and remain there till the resurrection, and then vacate that realm, and begin a residence in the new earth; but, like all other errors, this sentiment is destitute of scriptural foundation. God made earth for man, and made man of earth; and when fallen man shall be fully redeemed, and his fallen home be renovated, then the predicted glory of the new earth will be a reality, the whole earth being then filled with glory.—W. S. Bowden in Present Truth Messenger.

THE NIGHT IS FAR SPENT

By M. W. Lyon

LOWERING war clouds in the Old World grow darker with each passing month. Lightning of suspicion and hatred flashing back and forth between the nations plainly warns that the inevitable storm cannot be far distant.

Brethren, was there ever a time when our message was more sorely needed than it is at this moment? Was there ever a time when the hearts of men, even of the leaders and statesmen, were so failing them for fear? Truly the words of Isaiah the Prophet are being fulfilled before our eyes, "The darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people." They are confused. They have lost their direction, and know not which way to turn. They have become easy prey for demagogues and false messiahs who have made fantastic promises of impossible things, imposing on the desperation of the people and leading away multitudes.

These are days made to order for evangelism! For generations past the church of the living God has predicted such times would come. Now that they are here, are we going to permit blind guides to lead the multitudes to destruction while we have the water of life which they are seeking in vain?

Let us not say, "There are yet three or four months, and then cometh harvest." Look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest! We should be up and doing. These are no days of little things. While we are busy with the trivial duties that keep our noses to the grindstone, are we not neglecting the weightier matter of our calling? Ours is a threefold duty of evangelism.

I need not remind you that evangelism is a duty; you know the Scriptures. But we owe it to God, who has charged us with the responsibility of witnessing to all the world. When I think of that vast commission, I am actually appalled at how little we are doing to fulfill it, we who think we are the chosen people! Then we owe it to the people who are walking in darkness, and desperately need our light. And last but not least, we owe it to ourselves, and this may be the most vital of all, for if we did not need to awake to this need for evangelism, we should probably be already doing more than we are to send the light abroad over the land.—Voice of the Elders.

WILL YOUR ANCHOR HOLD?

(Continued from Page Eleven)

In fact, Dr. Fosdick's remedy for the ills of life seems as weak and powerless as the entire modernist system of hopelessness is throughout. The trouble is that modernism is a "faith" (if "faith" it may be called) that is centered entirely in man and wholly dependent upon man's power and wisdom. It denies the possibility of God stepping in where man's strength fails and where his wisdom proves inadequate, and superimposing upon the regular enforcement of natural law a new and opposing law which is equally natural because equally divine!

A religion without miracles is a religion without power and without purpose. Such a religion is merely a philosophy of man's creation, of man's conception and invention. There is nothing divine in it except as men faintly reflect a modicum of the divine qualities of life which were implanted in them when they were made in "the image and after the likeness" of God.

When we are passing through real trouble we crave the strength and the assurance that only a miracle-working God can provide—that only the God of the Bible can give. Less than this will not suffice.

It is conceivable that one might find comfort in the social outlook in the contemplation of history, which shows clearly that troubles of all kinds are temporal. History proves that the fires of adversity burn themselves out at last. No matter how fierce the blaze, how prolonged the conflagration, in process of time the flames will die down and the fire expire and society will survive.

From a social standpoint this would perhaps appear encouraging.

The real difficulty, however, lies in the fact that society is made up of individuals and when society suffers individuals suffer. And generally when society ceases to suffer, its suffering comes to an end not because the individuals who were undergoing pain have been released by an improvement in their conscious condition, but because they have ceased to live! Death has brought them the relief which life denied to them.

Such an appeal to history does nothing to remove the fear and anxiety of the individual; it but serves to increase his horror. It leads him to the inevitable conclusion that there is no hope for him except in death and drives an increasing number of pain-wracked men and women to take their own lives rather than to continue to live indefinitely under such distressing conditions.

After all, it is not society, but the individual, who must be consoled and encouraged if humanity is to long survive. Society cannot endure when the individuals who compose it are without hope.

Jesus Christ has the only remedy that will meet the needs of mankind in this regard:

"For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them" (Luke 9:56).

Jesus came, not to save society, but to save men! He came as our personal Savior, as our individual Savior,

While we are aware that this is not the time for social salvation, nevertheless we know that if society is to be saved it can only be done by saving the individuals who compose it. If society is to find hope, it must come through the hope by which individuals are inspired. The hope of society begins and ends in the hope of the individual. We cannot forget, ignore, nor overlook the individual and yet bring salvation to society.

On the other hand the Bible indicates clearly that we may give little or no consideration to society in the mass and focus our entire attention on an effort to save individuals out of the suffering, dying generality of mankind, and eventually bring salvation to all the world.

It was because this was true that Jesus commanded His disciples to go "into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," asserting that "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:15, 16).

We notice the personal nature of this appeal. It is to go to every creature. It is he—the individual who believes—that is promised salvation. Society as society is promised salvation nowhere in the Bible. Of course, social salvation will eventually be achieved, but it will come only when Jehovah's oath shall be fulfilled and "every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear" (Isa. 45:23) in joyful individual obedience to His will.

The social gospel of the modernist's program has little to offer the individual heart in the way of solace. It begins and ends with the material things of the present. When the eye grows dim and the ear dull of hearing and one's interest in the affairs of this world fades at the approach of death, the social gospel means nothing. It is what the future holds that means all!

Will your anchor of hope hold when that hour of worldly disillusionment comes to you? Are your religious convictions so firmly fixed in the Rock which cannot be moved that the trials, disappointments, discouragements, and sorrows of life, however great they may be, will be unable to move you? Is your faith founded on a definite conception of divine truth that reaches out so unflinchingly into the misty distances of eternity that you are able to say with Paul, "I also suffer these things; nevertheless I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded (convinced) that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (2 Tim. 1:12)?

There is real power in a faith like that! To put the thought in the form of the illustration used in our text: The ship of life that is anchored firmly by faith to Jesus Christ the Rock will remain unyielding and secure regardless of the raging of the tempests.

"Will your anchor hold in the storms of life,
When the clouds unfold their wings of strife?
When the strong tides lift and the cables strain,
Will your anchor drift, or firm remain?"

May you and I be able to say in all sincerity, with deepest conviction:

"We have an anchor that keeps the soul,
Steadfast and sure while the billows roll,
Fastened to the Rock that cannot move,
Anchored firm and deep in the Savior's love!"

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 2, 1937

NUMBER 22

Ask What Ye Will

By Lottie E. Young

PRAYER is not the mere saying of one's little speech to God once or twice a day; it is the very breath of one's life, the outpouring of the heart's desire and the heart's gratitude to the Father. This was the Master's idea. To Jesus, prayer was simply a matter of going to the Father and unbosoming Himself; going with all that is in one's heart, going with the impulses or motives which prompt a loving, dutiful child to go to his earthly father; going under the impulse of gratitude to tell Him how thankful we are; going with our burden of sin to ask His forgiveness; going with our tangled problems to get Him to untangle them; going with yearning hearts just to be with Him; going with empty hearts that He may fill them; going with broken hearts that He may heal them; going with all our real needs that He may meet them.

The Master's teaching about prayer began with the simple idea of pouring out one's heart to God as one's Father, and, as a loving, trusting child, leaving everything to His wisdom and love. It ended with the assurance that if one will go to the Father in the name of Jesus (and therefore in such harmony with Jesus that He can desire of the Father only that which is in harmony with the Father's will) he will receive that which he "will" (John 15:7).

In the Lord's Prayer, we are taught that we must approach God as a child approaches his father; that God is our Father; that we are to go to Him as one of His children. And when we go to Him, we should be concerned most of all about the Father's interests and glory. First of all, we should pray that His name may be hallowed; that He may be held in reverence by all men; that His will may be perfectly done here on earth even as it is done in heaven. Then we may ask Him to provide for our daily needs—to give us for today the bread we need for the body. We are to pray for bread, not for cake; that is, for the things we need, not for the things our appetites crave.

Then, too, we are to pray for the forgiveness of our sins, remembering while we pray that God will forgive us just as we forgive our fellow men. Then we may ask Him so to guide us that our way may not be too hard for us; that we may not be led into temptations or trials greater than we can bear, but that He may go with us and deliver us from all evil. In all these petitions we must remember that our real interests are God's interests, that it is His kingdom for which we are praying, that all power resides in Him and all the glory belongs to Him. God is concerned about our little needs, but it is a mistake to think of Him as an indulgent father who is willing to spoil us by giving us the things that are hurtful simply because He would not deny us. Jesus said, "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

We may not always receive what we ask for. God is your Father and He will answer your requests like a father. Will not an earthly father give his child that which is best for him? And if you, as a father, choose the best things for your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give you the best of all gifts, if you will but ask Him? It is plain that while Jesus promises our prayers will be answered, His promise is conditional upon our praying to God as our Father, and it is just as plain that He means that God will answer us as a father. Our fathers give us what is best for us, and even if we ask for a stone it would not be given to us.

"Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give you." Nobody but an enemy of God could have come into this world and told the people that henceforth God would be subject to their orders, and if they wanted anything all they had to do was to ask for it. What would happen if a mother should tell her children that they could have everything they

(Please turn to Page Ten)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day

G. E. Marsh, Editor

Three Threats to Religious Liberty

"While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption."—2 Peter 2:19.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—In the opinion of the religious press, three legislative proposals now before the country threaten the freedom of the people of the United States to "worship God according to the dictates of the conscience." The first of these proposals is that of the President to increase the membership of the Supreme Court from nine to fifteen; the second, to bar from the mails literature that has a tendency to stir up racial and religious antagonisms; the third, the admission of the child labor amendment to the Constitution.

According to various religious leaders, while each of these proposals contains meritorious features which, at first thought, appeal to the Christian's sense of justice and righteousness, careful consideration of their deeper implications and possible results suggests unmistakable dangers.

The Supreme Court: The Supreme Court is said to be the "safety valve" on our legislative engine. Its function is to restrict the enforcement of laws to such enactments as are found to be sanctioned by the Constitution of the United States. The Constitution is the preserver of American civil and religious liberty. To increase the Supreme Court membership in order that the political ideas of any Administration may be put into force without hindrance would threaten the very foundation of our present form of government. If the present Administration is permitted to add to the court judges who will pass favorably upon all legislation it may propose, any succeeding Administration will feel at liberty to do the same thing. Let an atheistic, socialistic, antichristian, or anti-Jewish Administration come into power (as happened in Russia, Germany, and Mexico), and the Supreme Court could easily be "packed" with "liberal" judges who in the avowed interest of "good public policy" would interpret the Constitution in such a way as to prohibit all religious activity except such as might be designated by the Government. Under such conditions the Supreme Court would have no further reason to exist, for it would be but a subservient instrument of the Administration that was in power.

Freedom of the Press: To enact a law permitting the Government to bar from the mails literature that was thought to encourage racial and religious antagonisms would require that the Government should establish a standard of teaching and censor all literature of a religious nature. (This also has been done in Russia, Germany, and Mexico, with most disastrous results to religion.)

Child Labor Amendment: No one wishes to see children forced into "sweatshops" and ground under the iron heel of oppression. But it is contended, and with considerable reason, that the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution would take children, "under the age of eighteen years," out from under the control of their parents and place them unreservedly in the hands of the Government until they came of age. (This has been done in Red Russia, and children have been encouraged to betray their parents for the infraction of many different laws to the Government.) Such a development might well lead to the spread of skepticism, as has been the case in Russia.

Practically all religious leaders who are looking for the literal coming of the Lord have expressed their fears that these three suggested changes point clearly to the development of antichristian conditions and should be watched with the closest attention.

Encouraging Dependency

"This we command you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat."—2 Thessalonians 3:10.

LONGMONT, Colo., Feb. 28.—The Boulder County Welfare Department today disclosed this unique letter from a woman client: "We made application for relief but waited so long that my husband had to go out and look for a job. He found one."

In an interview recently with one of our leading evangelists the evangelist stated that he had been forced to the conclusion that the ease with which material help had been secured from a paternal Government during the past few years had resulted in much willful dependency on the part of people who formerly had supported themselves by their own labor. He stated further that this willingness to receive support from the public treasury was affecting religious activity in that it was creating a disposition in some to make little or no effort to meet the cost of local church work but to depend upon outside assistance entirely. One of the great purposes of the church is to develop a sense of individual responsibility for the spiritual welfare of others.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

The Times of Restitution

By E. O. Stewart

"To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven."—Ecclesiastes 3:1.

THE GOD of the Bible is a God who has a purpose in doing everything He has promised to do and a definitely appointed time set apart by His own counsel in which to do it. "Declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure" (Isa. 46:10).

After Adam sinned and lost his God-given dominion, God promised that the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head (Gen. 3:15). But that was not all God predicted in that verse, for He also said that the serpent should bruise His heel.

In this verse both the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow are foretold. Two events are foretold in the same verse which we can now truthfully say are over nineteen centuries apart. The sufferings of Christ, or the bruising of His heel, has been fulfilled. But the bruising of the serpent's head, which means his destruction, is yet unfulfilled. Isaiah predicted the suffering of Christ when he said, "He was bruised for our iniquities" (Isa. 53:5). And in verse 10 he says it pleased the Lord that He should be bruised. In Acts 4:26-28, we read, "The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ. For of a truth against thy holy child Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together, for to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel determined before to be done." "Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain" (Acts 2:23).

We do not believe that God actually rejoiced over the bruising and suffering of His beloved Son. But when He was comparing the suffering with the glory that should follow, and knowing that His pleasure would prosper in the hands of His Son, it pleased Him to know that He had developed His beloved Son through suffering to where He would gladly lay down His own life in sweet anticipation of the glory that should follow.

"But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law" (Gal. 4:4, 5).

At the proper time, according to God's purpose, His Son was made of a woman, as predicted in Genesis 3:15, and sent forth to accomplish the things planned by God to be accomplished at His first advent. Peter, in Acts 3:18, tells just what those things were. "But those things, which God had shewed before by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled." Then Peter, after calling their attention to this fact that God had been faithful in fulfilling the prophecies which foretold Jesus' suffering, takes that for a basis upon which they could predict faith in God's fulfilling those prophecies which relate to Jesus' second coming, when He shall bruise the serpent's head and remove the curse. So he says, "Repent ye therefore (for this reason), and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:19-21).

"And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive"—

How long is the heaven to receive, or retain, Christ? Listen!—"whom the heaven must receive, until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:20, 21).

Just as certainly as the holy prophets predicted the restoration of the kingdom, just that certainly those who contend that the kingdom has been restored absolutely repudiate the Word of God, which they profess to believe. Just as surely as Peter spoke the truth, and just as certainly as Christ has been in heaven for the past nineteen centuries, just that certainly the times of restitution have not begun, for God will not begin restitution until the times for it. And the times of

(Please turn to Page Eleven)

One of Them!

There are some of ev'ry nation
Who are waiting for the Lord,
And their hope hath this foundation—
'Tis the promise of His Word;
By this lively expectation
How their longing hearts are stirred!

When the blazing light of heaven
Shall the Savior's face reveal,
When the sons of wrath are driven
All the pangs of death to feel,
Then the kingdom shall be given
To the saints who bear the seal.

Ah, this world is transitory,
All its fleeting joys take wing;
Would you share eternal glory
At the coming of the King?
Then believe the gospel story,
With the faithful shout and sing:
Praise God, I'm one of them!

—Copyrighted, 1914, by Thoro
Harris; used by permission.

Did Jesus Preexist?

By A. H. Zilmer

WE SHALL be told that there is a considerable array of scriptural testimony which can be harmonized in but one way, and that is upon the understanding that Jesus preexisted in person before He was born of Mary. This study would be incomplete were we to pass those passages by in silence.

First, we mention John 1:1-3, which reads, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made." Let us ask, What was the Word that (a) was in the beginning, (b) was with God, and (c) was God?

"Word" is from logos, which in its primary signification is the verbal expression of an idea. We believe this to be the sense in which the writer used the word. That word was in God in the beginning of His dealings with man, and expressed the divine mind regarding the woman's seed, which was to bruise the serpent's head (Gen. 3:15). It aimed at the person Jesus in His redemptive work for humanity. For the woman's seed to crush the serpent's head, albeit that in the execution of it the seed's own head would be bruised, was to undo the serpent's work, and open the way into the paradise of God. That word was with God, that is, in His mind and purpose. How about the statement, "And the Word was God"? Quite true, and equally understandable. It "was God" in the sense in which Jesus used the verb "to be" when speaking of bread and the fruit of the vine at the institution of the Memorial Supper. "This," said He in referring to the bread, "is my body." Likewise He took the cup, and said, "This is my blood of the new covenant" (Matt. 26:26-28). As a matter of fact, neither was the bread the actual body of Jesus, nor the cup His literal blood. It could only be true in a symbolical sense, the bread being a symbol of His body, and the contents of the cup a symbol of His blood.

We read in Galatians 4:25, "For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia," etc. It was not literally true that the woman Agar was Mount Sinai. But in the allegory referred to by the writer Agar represented Mount Sinai and the legal system given to Israel at that place.

Likewise, is the statement, "And the Word was God," to be understood in the sense that the word represented God. God had a plan, a purpose. He expressed or gave utterance to this plan by means of His word. That word was with and in God, and represented Him. As He was true, so was the word.

As far as possible is that language from teaching that the word was a person—one of the "persons" of the triune God who existed in heaven in a pre-human state. The same must be said of 1 John 1:1: "That which was from the beginning." What was this? It was "the word of life." This life was "manifested" so that the apostles could "see" or cognize it. The apostles declared to the believers what they had seen and heard with the object that these, too, might have fellowship with them, and their fellowship was "with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ" (v. 3). What makes one "the Father" and the other "His Son"? It is the fact that the Father, through His Spirit, "begat" the Son. The Father was the cause of the existence of the Son, and the Son owed His existence to the Father.

Another passage cited in favor of the idea of the pre-existence of Jesus is John 6:62: "What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?" The "Son of man" here referred to is no other than Jesus. Why is He called "Son of man"? Because of His birth of His mother. Where was He "before"? He was in the Father, and "came forth from the Father" (chap. 13:2; 16:28). Hence when He "went to God," or "ascended to where he was before," He returned to God, who was the Source and Origin of His being.

Again, we are referred to the statement of Jesus before a company of Jews: "Before Abraham was, I am" (John 8:58). The verb for "was" in the Greek text is in the aorist tense, that is, without boundary, and in the infinitive. Hence we read, "Before Abraham to be I am." This is far from teaching that Jesus existed as a person before Abraham's time. Jesus was addressing those Jews concerning His day, saying, "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day; and he saw it, and was glad." The Jews were offended at this saying, and said, "Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?" (vv. 56-58). The "day" to which Jesus referred was not in the then past, nor yet in the present, but in the future. The Apostle Paul, twenty-two years later, informed the brethren at Thessalonica that the day of Christ was still not present, and would not be until after a widespread apostasy should have taken place (2 Thess. 2:1, 2). The day of the Lord was still future when the Apostle Peter wrote to the strangers in the dispersion (2 Peter 3:1-10). Hence we see that the Jews misunderstood or wilfully misapplied the term "my day" as used by the Lord. They thought, or else so construed Jesus' words, as if He claimed to have lived back in Abraham's days, and had personally seen that patriarch. Such was not the intent of that saying. Abraham had a place in the purpose of God in the past, and he, with Isaac and Jacob and the prophets, will have a yet larger place in the kingdom of God when Jesus shall sit on the throne of David His father. "Before Abraham to be I am." That is, Jesus occupied a place in the divine plan which would give Him precedence over Abraham. Also let us consider the fact that Jesus was a descendant, through His mother, of Abraham, and that patriarch was eagerly looking forward to the time when he, with his "Seed," who is Christ, shall inherit the land which God promised to him and his seed.

Attention is directed by theologians and others to a portion of the prayer of Jesus in John 17, "And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was" (v. 5). Let us ask a few questions:

1. As to the glory. Did Jesus mean to say that He had had glory in His own person in a preëxistent state? If so, what was that glory? Theology will have it that the glory was that of the divine nature, and that Jesus laid this aside for the human nature, which is without glory. Now if it was possible for one of the "persons" of the triune God to divest Himself of His glory, and assume that which was not glorious, then it is equally possible that all the persons of the divine Being are subject to change, and may become devoid of glory. We are given to understand in the Word of God that immutability is an essential attribute of God, and since theology affirms that all three "persons" are "of one substance, power, and eternity," it follows that all alike are unchangeable, and not subject to mutation in nature or fluctuation in glory.

2. "With thee." That the glory was contingent upon the prior fulfillment of certain conditions; that it was "with" the Father, and held in reserve until the conditions should have been fulfilled, and the time for its bestowal should arrive, is quite within the human understanding. But that Jesus had glory in His own person as an integral part of the divine Being is a tax upon belief too great to be borne.

3. "Before the world was." This is in the present infinitive, "before the world to be," and does not necessarily mean that Jesus had personal glory before the material creation. It was glory which the Father had in reserve for His loyal and dutiful Son before the establishment of the cosmos or order now existing.—The Faith.

PROBLEMS

THE problems which men have faced, and their solution, have been a never-ending source of interest to me. Sometimes there have been serious ones, as the problem of the making of steel. How to know just how much carbon and silicon must be left in the mass of metal to produce the right hardness and strength, when one could not tell just how much was there in the first place, nor how much was being taken out in the process of turning the ore into pig iron, was a constant problem.

It exercised the minds of the steel makers for years. Finally some one said—in fact, two men discovered the answer independently—"Take out all the impurities, and replace the correct amount of carbon, silica, or whatever you need."

How simple! Why did we not think of that before? It was the answer.

It is not of steel, however, that I would write: it is of more serious things. It is of the problems which concerned the realization of the truths of the Bible concerning the plan of giving life to men. Some men will think, and unless a subject is clear to them their thinking is of little satisfaction.

Can you wonder that such men, faced with the teaching of the second, personal return of the Lord, should say, "Why should He return? The righteous are already in heaven; the unrighteous in hell, receiving their punishment. Why should He return?"

I do not know how long it took our fathers to realize that there was a definite need of the return of Christ, that no man did receive his reward until that day, but they did see it. They began to understand that "they" (those who had fallen asleep) "without us could not be made perfect," and all those so plain texts concerning Christ's return took on new meaning. They learned that heaven is not filled with imperfect saints, but that the sleep of the dead and the resurrection at the last day mean something definite.

There are other texts quite as difficult to understand while a man still believes in the resurrection of all men. Such a one is found in John 3:36: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him."

They even found texts that said plainly that certain of the sons of men should not ever be raised at all, as Isaiah 26:14, and others that taught that certain men are in death "like the beasts that perish" (read Ecclesiastes 3: 17, 21).

At last it was made plain to our denominational fathers that all those texts which taught that Jesus came that men might have life had a meaning, and all texts which dealt with the plan of God to give life to man fell into a clear place and took on a new meaning, when they began to realize that Jesus came to give life, and that no life after this one was possible without Him.

Quite as many texts which had been obscure became clear in the light of the truth that Jesus is a "life-giving spirit," and that if His spirit dwell in a man, that man has the earnest of a future life.

I have sometimes wondered whether men would be so indifferent about that spirit, if they knew that without it they could not even see eternal life.—Mabel S. Miner in The Herald of Life.

THE LIE

THERE is one lie which, more than all others, has laid hold of the imagination of mankind, and is still dominating the thoughts and feelings of men. It is the lie with which Satan countered the threat of God to our first parents in the event of their disobeying the command not to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. God had said, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die," or, since the word "day" is a word of unlimited meaning which may connote any period from twelve hours of daylight to the whole "day" of man's sin and probation, the passage may be read, "In the event of disobedience, dying (as all men must the first death), you shall die (the second or final death)." Satan, out to ruin man and destroy God's work, said to Eve, "Dying, you shall not die, for God doth know that . . . you shall be as God" (or, "gods," Heb. elohim).

This lie it is that is undoubtedly responsible for the world-wide belief that man is essentially a spirit-being from some other sphere temporarily housed in a body which is no real part of him, that he is immortal, indestructible, in spite of the "fall," which is supposed to have made no change in his nature, and that he will never really die, all in complete contradiction of the Word of God. Man being in his fallen nature cruel and vindictive, this lie has caused him to gloat over the doom of his persecutors and sinners generally, and to imagine a God who is "altogether such an one as" himself. Surely a man who has in any way come to know the love of God could not, save under some sinister influence, dream of adding to the awful descriptions of the fate of irredeemable sinners in God's Word. Yet this is what Rome has done, and many Protestants have accepted that lead. It is this lie that forms the basis of most, if not all, of the false religions and philosophies of the world, and is specially responsible for the dangerous cults of spiritism, necromancy, etc., which could not otherwise have existed. It has seduced the best of men to think that they are doing God service by persecuting, and even slaying, those who refuse to accept the lie. In this way Satan has succeeded in inducing men to so misrepresent God, and to so prejudice the gospel, that multitudes have been driven either to repudiate the gospel altogether, or to fly to that other most unscriptural doctrine—the belief in the final restoration of all, and even of Satan himself.

It is plain that events that happened in the early days of man's history will have left some traces of their influence on widely spread branches of the race. The very nature and origin of this lie would make us anticipate that its influence will not be small. And this is the fact. The belief in the spirit-nature of man, and his practical deity, is in some sort or another the common property of all men, and has been from the beginning. It underlies even the most degraded beliefs, such as fetishism and animism, while the belief in ghosts and spirits is world-wide. Yet many seem to be quite unconscious that there ever was a lie, or that it could have any great influence over man. Satan has most cleverly "covered his tracks," and even succeeded in persuading men that the lie is God's own truth which they must hold at any cost. The lie, we believe, is the main basis of present-day rationalism which is made possible by the exaltation of man to be even a judge of God and His Word. Everywhere man is exalting himself and his intellect against God and His truth, and, in the same proportion, depreciating and maligning His character. It is a question whether any member of the race has escaped the influence of this lie. It is noteworthy that it is practically never referred to in sermons or books, except to misrepresent it, while assumptions based on it are extremely common. Satan has so blinded men's eyes that they are quite unconscious that they are blind. There is great need that eyes should be opened, and no prayer should be more earnest than the Psalmist's, "Open thou mine eyes that I may see."

It is a fact, little realized, that there is clear and abundant evidence that this belief in the immortality of a self-conscious soul, which is the chief outcome of the lie, is not to be found in either the Old or New Testaments. Indeed, the very opposite is consistently taught throughout. If there is one proof stronger than others it is found in the resurrection of man from among the dead, a doctrine which is a special revelation of the Bible. Man falls asleep in the first death only to awake to consciousness at the resurrection. Take, for instance, that word in Revelation 20:5: "The rest of the dead (those not covered by the "blood") lived not until the thousand years should be finished." During the millennial reign they are in the grave, certainly not in the "hell" or purgatory of Rome. Or consider our Lord's word about the summons to His people when He comes (John 5:28), "The hour cometh when they that are in the tombs shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." This gives our Lord's own assurance that the dead in Christ are not in any heaven of Rome's imagining, but in the tomb right up to the time of His appearing. Many other scriptures bear out the same truth. The fact is that while men have repudiated much of Rome's errors they have preserved everything connected with the lie, which was not believed during the first two centuries at least of the Christian church, as the inscriptions in the catacombs and the writings of the early "fathers" bear witness. That Plato's philosophy, which owes so much to the lie, had some influence all along is doubtless true, but it was only as the church went down under pagan influence that it began to be accepted as true generally. It was on this false philosophy that Rome built her antichristian system with its great errors. The lie has been responsible, and is still, for much of the cruelty and persecution paid out to those who choose to believe God's Word rather than the lie; but we would remind the reader that such things never had God's sanction. Indeed, they are utterly contrary to the character of Him who "will not always be chiding, neither will he keep his anger for ever." Persecution, whatever form it takes, is invariably a sign of error on the part of those who use it.—Words of Life.

What Tithing Means to Me

IT WAS a pamphlet on stewardship that finally converted me to tithing. It was "A Catechism of Christian Stewardship," by Ralph S. Cushman, and the brochure was issued by the Interchurch World Movement in connection with its stewardship campaign. The point was emphasized that all our possessions are God's, that we receive them from Him, hold them in trust for Him, and are responsible to Him for the use we make of them. There was nothing new in the theories; I had known them for a long while and had formulated enough arguments against them to have converted myself repeatedly, had conversion been possible. But for some reason the way in which the matter was phrased impressed me with peculiar force.

I began to think of the wonderful mercies I had received and was receiving every day. My mind nimbly plagiarized the saying that if a man will trust his wife with his name, his honor, and his children and will not trust her with his money, it is easy to judge which is to him the most precious of his possessions. If I were willing to put into God's keeping my heart and soul and life and those of my dearest on earth and yet held back a due proportion of my personal substance, did I not imply that this was of more value in my eyes than anything else? Could I not give to His work at least the tenth He had asked of the Jews? I brought out my serviceable old battle-horse alleging a "former dispensation," but a twinge of conscience reminded me that our Lord had said of this very item of tithing: "These things ought ye to have done."

Finally, after much pondering, I devised a compromise. I was willing to try anything once. I would give the tithing system a three months' test and see how it worked. So when the next installment of my modest income was placed in my hands I took out one tenth of it and tucked it into a purse in a private drawer of my desk.

I confess that at first it was hard to get the habit. A tenth looks like a good deal when you are not earning a princely stipend. Probably it seems even bigger if you have a larger income, but I did not think of that. I own that I figured out once or twice what a neat little sum I could save for myself if I put this money into the savings bank every week, but my inconvenient biblical memory reminded me of the condemnation pronounced upon putting one's hand to the plow and looking back. I set my teeth and dismissed the wrong side of the subject from my mind.

But now the other side asserted itself. Before I had been following the new method for three weeks the comfort of it began to make itself felt. The money I set aside I simply considered I did not have. I reckoned my income to be just that much less than I had been receiving, and all I kept for myself really belonged to me. I could do with it what I chose. Then came the first-fruits of the delights of the plan.

I did not have to make allowance for so much that I must put in the plate or manage to send to missions or contrive to contribute to the disabled ministers' fund or to any other pet object. When Sunday came around I went to The Purse and took out the fixed sum I had promised to give in my envelope. Particular charities had always appealed to me, and I had sent them what I happened to be able to spare. I knew what I felt was the proportion I could assign to them, and I decided to devote to them the same amount I had in the past wrenched out with a painful and painstaking generosity. When these fixed sums were settled I was at liberty to do what I pleased in the way of giving with what was left of the tithe.

Until I tried it I never could have believed the beautiful sense of freedom I experienced. To have the money actually in hand or in sure prospect when a call came was a totally new sensation. The way in which it accumulated was another astonishing thing. I had never supposed a tithe could increase like that! The small wad of bills grew and when there came a call for some real need it took little time to make up my mind what to give. As always I had to weigh the comparative importance of the demands, but when this was resolved there was no struggle to determine where I could cut down and how I must retrench in order to make my offering.

The fact that I never kept a systematic record of my gifts prevents my ascertaining if I am bestowing more or less than used to be my habit. That is not the point under consideration. The great gain I feel I have won is in peace of mind. I don't mean only in the sense of a duty fulfilled and a command obeyed. These, too, have their effect, but the cessation of worry and the relief from frequent and taxing decisions as to how much I can contribute stand out more than all besides.

I must acknowledge one temptation to which I almost succumbed. My regular income I had decided to tithe systematically, but I had not thought of unexpected receipts, and when a check came for a good-sized sum that I had not anticipated I was rather disposed to put it down to uncovenanted mercies and to feel that it stood outside the compact; this was an extra! I tried to think of nothing but the respectable aspect it imparted to my bank account and the need I had of it all to meet various purchases and expenses. And then I began to feel ashamed. Was I actually bargaining with God? Was not this money His, too? All my old arguments that had been so satisfactory in times past fell from me. The tenth of that check did not belong to me. It must go with the rest into God's storehouse.

So there is where I stand and hope to continue to stand on the matter of tithing. I went into it as an experiment; I shall remain in it as a proven proposition—proven as a means of winning peace of mind, freedom from worry as to duty and as to donation; proven in a sense of satisfaction in recognizing God with one's substance. That is what it means to me. I cannot undertake, and I would not if I could, to decide the proportion in which others can or should give. Each one must settle that for himself. I can only testify to the comfort and ease and liberation from harass that tithing has brought into my life.—Christine Terhune Herrick in Layman Company Bulletin.

Jesus Speaks on Baptism

OUT in the wilderness of Judea, where the sparkling waters of Jordan formed a deeper pool than at other places along its course, a preacher of repentance was daily baptizing such converts as had accepted the call. To this place came the Man Jesus. Just as any one of us might have come, so He came. The people who thronged the waterside paid little or no attention to Him. Perchance some knew Him as the carpenter Joseph's son.

He came asking for baptism, but the preacher recognized in Him the One for whom he was preparing the way, and so he said, "I have need to be baptized of thee." But the voice of Jesus quelled any further argument by saying, "Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness."

John baptized Him, and when He came up "out of the water," the record states that "the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Matt. 3:13-17).

What manner of baptism did Jesus receive? Was He just sprinkled upon the head with a few drops of water? Evidently not, for John was baptizing at a place where there was "much water," and when Jesus had been baptized, He "went up straightway out of the water." He was in the water, and He went out of it. So when this solemn event had been fulfilled, the voice of the Father endorsed the action of the Son by saying He was pleased with Him. What more can we desire by way of authority for baptism by immersion?

Some time later Jesus was having a conversation with a man, one of the rulers of Israel. It was night. Though this man was a teacher and an authority in the Jewish commonwealth, yet the Master told him something that was rather unexpected. Nicodemus, He said, "you must be born again" (John 3:7). "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (v. 5). No doubt Jesus looked back to His own baptism, back to the example that He, the Sinless One, had set for all those who were to follow in His steps. First there was to be a burial, for "except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit" (John 12:24). Death must precede burial, even as Paul records this statement of facts relative to baptism in the 6th chapter of Romans. Only after the individual has died to sin, to self, and to the world, should he be buried beneath the waters in baptism; for only then can he be born again and arise to walk in a new life. "Thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness," said Jesus.

In baptism by immersion we have the complete type of the death, burial, and resurrection of our Savior. It is the only way that we can rightfully be baptized as followers of Him.

In the last words of Jesus just prior to His ascension into heaven, He left a specific command to His disciples, wherein He commissioned them to preach the gospel in all the world, to teach all that He had commanded them, and to "baptize them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

We do not find anywhere in the writings of the Scriptures words that commend or even hint at the baptism of infants. How can an infant believe? Who can teach an infant the doctrines of Christ? "He that believeth and is baptized" is what Jesus said (Mark 16:16). There is no mysterious language here. It is just as plain as it could be. Jesus always spoke so plainly that the common people heard Him gladly; but today men have so cumbered the simplicity of the doctrine of Jesus with a mass of tradition and meaningless phrases, that even the wise man knows not what to believe, let alone the common people. That is why we need to get back to the teachings of the Master, for His words are the words of eternal life.

And so, dear reader, we have come another step of the way. Will you follow the Savior into His baptism? If you do, it will mean that you must be buried beneath the waters; then when you rise you are to be a constant follower of the Lord Jesus, ever living and following Him. Are you willing to do this? It is worth while to listen to the voice of Jesus, for He alone knows the way of righteousness, and He will not lead us astray.

"O now I see the crimson wave, the fountain deep and wide;
Jesus, my Lord, mighty to save, points to His wounded side."

—Wesley Amundsen in Signs of the Times.

Prayer—a Great Privilege

PRAYER, the great privilege of the Christian, is one of the first and sweetest duties of the Christian toward God. By it he approaches the personal ear of his Maker, pouring out his thanks for life, preservation, and salvation, glorifying God, asking aid, assistance, grace, or strength, or making intercession for some other person.

Prayer is the opening of the heart to God as to a friend. Not that it is necessary, in order to make known to God what we are, but in order to enable us to receive Him. Prayer does not bring God down to us, but brings us up to Him.

When Jesus was upon earth, He taught His disciples how to pray. He directed them to present their daily needs before God, and to cast all their cares upon Him. And the assurance that He gave them that their prayers would be answered, is assurance also to us. What a wonderful privilege!

When Jesus Himself dwelt among men, He was often in prayer. We find that He spent much time in prayer. He identified Himself with our needs and weakness, in that He became a suppliant, a petitioner, seeking from His Father fresh supplies of strength, that He might come forth braced for duty and trial. "And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God" (Luke 6:12). Jesus is our example in all things. He is a brother in our infirmities, "in all points tempted like as we are," but as the sinless One, His nature recoils from evil. His humanity made prayer a necessity, and a privilege. He found comfort and joy in communing with His Father. If the Savior of men, the Son of God, felt the need of prayer, how much more should feeble, sinful mortals feel the need of constant prayer. "And he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint" (Luke 18:1).

"Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation" (Matt. 26:41). How necessary it is that we give heed to this scripture, for the darkness of the enemy will certainly enclose those who neglect to pray. The temptations of the enemy entice them to sin, and it is all because they do not make use of the great privilege of prayer which God has given. Why should Christians, men and women who know God, become indifferent, be reluctant in prayer, when it is the very key in the hand of faith that unlocks the great storehouse of God's power? It is the one thing that the Christian cannot live without. It is the means of attaining a deeper experience with God, and is the strongest of staffs upon which to lean when we are weak and troubled.

God never fails to listen to those who come to Him in distress of mind and ask Him for strength or help. But in asking God for things, we must never forget His knowledge and wisdom are infinitely greater than ours, and we must not expect Him to grant our wishes, if in His sight it is not best. No prayer should pass the lips of man without the thought either spoken or in the heart, "Thy will, O Lord, not mine, be done." There are certain conditions upon which we may expect that God will hear and answer our prayers. One of the first of these is that we feel our need of help from Him. In Matthew 5:6 we are assured that those who hunger and thirst after righteousness, who long after God, may be sure that they will be filled. The heart must be open and receptive to God or His blessings cannot be received. "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me" (Psalm 66:18). If we cling or hold on to some known sin, the Lord will not hear us. "Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity" (Isa. 58:9).

Another element of prevailing prayer is forgiveness. Did you ever ask God to forgive you of an offense, while you were harboring in your heart a grudge against some one? Did you expect God to answer that prayer? This, I believe, is one of the greatest hindrances in the Christian prayer life today. It is keeping more people from having power with God than any other one thing, that unwillingness to cultivate a spirit of forgiveness. The enemy takes advantage of this, and will use it to block your source of power. To harbor known sin means severing the lines of communion with God. If sin is not driven out of the heart by prayer, prayer will be driven out of the heart by sin. When we enter the door of God's kingdom, we must go through a door of forgiveness, as there is no other way. If we pray according to His will, as Jesus taught us to pray, we will pray in a forgiving spirit, with a heart that harbors no grudge. "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have ought against any: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses. But if ye do not forgive, neither will your Father which is in heaven forgive your trespasses" (Mark 11:25, 26).

Another element of prevailing prayer is faith. Jesus said to His disciples, "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them" (Mark 11:24). We are told by James to "ask in faith, nothing wavering," for he says of the one who wavers, "Let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord" (James 1:6, 7). Faith brings the very resources of heaven within reach of the humblest petitioner, and yet the sad thing is there seems to be so little of it among Christians. When we do not receive the very thing we ask for, at the time we ask, we are still to believe that the Lord hears, and that He will in His own loving way and time answer our prayer by giving us that which is for our highest good. We must also remember that often in our weakness we ask for things that are not for our best interest, and our heavenly Father is too wise to err, too good to withhold any good thing from them that walk uprightly. Let us therefore not fear to trust Him, even though we do not see the immediate answer to our prayers. Let us rely upon His sure promise, "Ask, and it shall be given you."

Perseverance in prayer is also a condition in receiving. We must pray always if we would grow in faith and experience. "Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints" (Eph. 6:18). "Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving" (Col. 4:2). "Pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5:17). "I waited patiently for the Lord; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry" (Psalm 40:1). He will answer us, too, if we wait patiently for Him in the spirit of persevering prayer.

There is also a necessity for diligence in prayer; let nothing hinder you. We should make every effort possible to keep open the communion between Jesus and our own soul. Nothing else will give us such clear vision of ourselves or of Christ as will secret prayer. What a great privilege! It is the Christian's supreme privilege, and his greatest need, for only by availing ourselves of this privilege can we hope to live the life that counts, the life of victory over sin, and conquer the world for Christ.—R. A. Barnes in The Bible Advocate.

ASK WHAT YE WILL

(Continued from Front Page)

want in the house and that she is going to do everything according to their wishes? If the baby wants a lighted lamp, or the son wants to turn his room into a gambling den, it will be all right! What would happen to the home and that mother's authority? What would happen to the world if God should say to all men, "Ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you?" But if Jesus did not promise that, what did He promise?

In a general way He promised that men's prayers should be answered. What men? In another place the promise is to those who "abide" in Him. What did He mean by prayer? Clearly, not the cry of beggars or strangers, but the going of children to their father. However unworthy we might be, if we would go to God recognizing Him as our Father, submitting ourselves to His will, trusting to His knowledge of what is best for us, and desiring nothing that did not accord with His will, our prayers would be answered. That is to say, God would answer us as a Father; He would not give us what we might wish to have, but He would answer us.

In other words, according to the teaching of Jesus, there is but one way in which a man can get from God everything he desires, and that is to fall in so completely with the Master that when he goes to the Father he will not desire anything that does not harmonize with the Father's will. What He said on this point at the Lord's Supper was that if the disciples would become so completely united with Him that they would have His mind in them and be dominated by His Spirit, if they would become one with Him so that when they went to the Father they would ask in His name, that is, would ask in His Spirit as completely as if they were asking in His stead, they would receive what they asked. Being in perfect harmony with Him, they would be in perfect harmony with the Father, and would desire nothing that the Father did not wish to grant. "Lord, teach us to pray," and to ask all in the name of our Lord Jesus, not be discouraged nor dissatisfied if our requests for things spiritual or temporal are denied, as the Father always answers petitions in the best way.

OUR DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

WHEN in the course of our personal experience it seems necessary to dissolve the social and moral bonds that have held us, and to terminate the servitude under which we have suffered for many years, and to assume among the people of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle us, a decent respect for the opinions of mankind requires that we should declare the causes which impel us to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, God has instituted His church; deriving its just powers from its divine Head, Jesus Christ, our Lord; that whenever any class or power in the world becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abandon it. When after a long train of abuses, pursuing invariably the same object, their leaders evince a design to destroy their faith in God, and to render them unfit for effective service to Him, it is their right—it is their duty—to throw off all such power or authority, and to seek new guards for their future security. Such has been the suffering of us all; and such is now the necessity which constrains us to strive to alter our former manner of life and conduct, and to free ourselves from those bonds of servitude by which we were held. The history of Satan is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object to rob us of our peace, to kill our people, and to destroy our hope of life. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused to assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, and when such have been passed, he has neglected or refused to enforce them.

He has harassed and persecuted those who, with manly firmness, opposed his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has endeavored to prevent the increase of the population of the kingdom of God, and has obstructed the efforts of God's people in their endeavor to win additions to the kingdom.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their office and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of institutions to harass our people, and to eat out our substance.

He has kept among us in times of peace standing armies without the consent of the majority of the people, which majority is averse to war, for protecting his troops by mock trial from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of God's kingdom on earth; for imposing taxes on us for the maintenance of insane asylums, penal institutions, and public hospitals, while he himself is the sole cause of the necessity for such things.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He has excited domestic insurrections among us and has endeavored to bring into the body a host of merciless savages who have no regard for age, sex, or condition.

Our repeated objections have been met only by repeated injuries. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

We must therefore acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold him as we hold the rest of mankind—enemies in war; in peace, friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the church of Jesus Christ in the world, in Victorious Life Conference assembled, appealing to the supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority of Jesus Christ, our Sovereign Head, solemnly publish and declare that we as individuals are, and of a right ought to be, free and independent from all the powers of darkness, and that we are absolved from all allegiance to such powers. And as Christ's redeemed freemen, we have full power to levy war on our common enemy; to conclude peace upon their unconditional surrender to Christ; to contract alliances for the furtherance of the gospel; to establish commerce in the Word of God and kindred literature.

And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.—C. E. Bennett in The Messiah's Advocate.

A W A K I N G

Night after night we dauntlessly embark

On slumber's stream, in whose deep waves are drowned

Sorrow and care, and with all senses bound

Drift for awhile beneath the somber arc

Of that full circle made of light and dark

Called life; yet have no fear, and know refund,

Lost consciousness shall be, even at the sound

Of the warble of some early lark

Or touch of sunbeam. Oh, and why not then

Lie down to our last sleep, still trusting Him

Who guided us so oft through shadows dim,

Believing sometime on our sense again

Some lark's sweet note, some golden beam, shall break,

And with glad voices cry, "Awake! Awake!"

—Gertrude Bloede.

THE TIMES OF RESTITUTION

(Continued from Page Three)

restitution are not while Christ is in heaven, but when He comes again.

"I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counsellors as at the beginning: afterward thou shalt be called, The city of righteousness, the faithful city" (Isa. 1:26).

Here we have God's promise to restore Israel's judges as at the first, and it is spoken by Isaiah, one of God's holy prophets. This cannot come to pass while Christ is in heaven, for the heaven must receive Him "until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."

When God dethroned Zedekiah, the last King over Israel, Ezekiel said the kingdom should be no more until He came whose right it was and God would give it Him (Ezek. 21:25-27). This cannot refer to Christ's first advent, for when Peter uttered Acts 3:19-21, Christ had already made His first advent and had gone into the far country to receive for Himself a kingdom (Luke 19:11), and was to remain in heaven until the times of restitution of all things, which God had spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began. Ezekiel was a prophet, and when any of the prophets speak of restoration, always remember that Peter says the heaven must receive, retain, hold, keep, Christ until the times of restitution.

"In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old" (Amos 9:11). When will He build up the tabernacle of David? All we can tell you is what the Bible says; if you cannot believe that, I have nothing else to offer, and I am certainly not going to apologize for what the inspired Word of God says. James says Christ will return and build again the tabernacle of David (Acts 15:14-16).

Before one can return to a place, He must first be at that place, then leave it, and come back to it. Christ made His first advent, has gone away, will soon return. He says, "I will build again the tabernacle of David." The heaven is to receive Christ until the time for His return. When He returns, He will build again the tabernacle of David. Then the times of restitution shall begin.

"And in mercy shall the throne be established: and he shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, judging, and seeking judgment, and hasting righteousness" (Isa. 16:5). He is to sit upon the throne in the tabernacle of David. But the throne cannot be in the tabernacle of David until the tabernacle of David is restored, and the tabernacle of David will not be restored while Christ is in heaven, but when He returns. Therefore, He will not sit on the throne in the tabernacle of David until He comes again. So "when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." This will be at His second coming. So the times of restitution will begin at the second coming of Christ.

Berean Department

Cecil A. Smead, Editor, Blanchard, Mich.

A Chain Letter

Dear schoolmates of the Training Class days, and their families:

"Was I surprised the other day when I returned home from a busy day to find a big fat letter for me. I surely was, and I told my mother immediately that I bet it was a chain letter. But I never dreamed it was from the Training Class members, and it was certainly a treat. It was almost like spending another morning in that little upper room of the printing office, where we exchanged thoughts, ideas, views, and whatnot. And again my mind went back to the Friday morning classes . . ."

"At the last General Conference I think the forward-looking legislation was largely a result of the evangelical spirit which has been developed in this group. Head religion is sometimes cold, heart religion sometimes says belief doesn't matter, but the two combined make us on fire with the zeal which is according to knowledge. If the forward-looking legislation is to bear fruit, it is up to us to put at least as much fire under the boiler now as we did at conference. God built the fire, let us tend it."

"Let us not be as some have thought, a bloc of the younger preachers united against the older, but a group of Christian workers united, not against men, but against evil, against lukewarmness, and for righteousness. May the coming of the Lord so find us, not a clique, but an organism, a power for good in our church."

"We as young ministers and workers of the Church of God have a tremendous task ahead of us. We have a vital and life-giving message for others, and it is our duty and privilege to proclaim the truths so precious to all of us. Where others have builded in days gone by we find ourselves working today to maintain that work. The admonition that we should not in any way leave the impression that we are a bloc of young preachers against a bloc of old preachers is timely. The old saying, 'Old men for counsel, young men for action,' is truly applicable to our own group. If the spirit that permeated our young ministers of yester year is manifested by each of us, then the Church of God will continue to grow and develop."

"May we as ministers of God so conduct ourselves and so preach that God may be glorified and that we may be recognized only as servants of His and shepherds of His flock. May we allow the Lord to direct us in all that we do, and may we put our trust wholly in Him, knowing that He will protect us and provide for our every need."

"It is my sincere prayer that the Father's blessing rest upon each of us and that our duties, large or small, may be to His glory and honor."

"Prophecy is being fulfilled so rapidly I firmly believe our Lord's return is near, even at the door, and there is so much to be done. Let us be very diligent in teaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ."

"I have tried whenever opportunity presented itself to do all I can to serve my Lord and Master."

"If anyone thinks that we have an oversupply of ministers, let him come to this State and we will show him several places that he can go to work. Somehow, I am inclined to think that the Master knew what He was talking about when He said that the harvest is great but the laborers are few. I will grant that most of these places do not pay what most of us have convinced ourselves that we are worth, but I for one would rather work for what the Lord is willing to give me than to be 'unemployed.' These places never are going to develop themselves and start calling for ministers."

"We need to work with older men to the best of our ability and for the Lord's glory. Older heads always can give advice and stabilize us who are younger. Steam alone cannot make a train run. Neither can enthusiasm make a church go unless it is connected with knowledge, common sense, prayer, and a pure faith in God to work everything for His best interests."

"May I make a suggestion? Right now I can think of at least six fine young men who might enter Training School this next fall and help to carry on the work in the future. Why not every one of us make a list of these young men and pray that the Lord of the harvest will send workers forth into His vineyard? Why not pray that He will call them to give their lives in service to Him for active work in the ministry? Why not make a list to send along with this circuit letter and each one of us pray for the same ones, and then each could add names. Send girls' names, too. We need trained girls."

"The general spirit at Conference was very good last year and many spoke of it, but I feel that it didn't just happen. There was much prayer for the conference long before it ever started, and this conference can be far, far beyond the last one in spiritual uplift if we all will start to pray now!"

"Write for THE HERALD. It'll do you good; it'll build your influence among our church people; it'll develop you for pastoral and evangelistic work."

"It has been most pleasing to hear from all the old associates and to note the spirit of helpfulness and good will that prevails."

"All through the letters I have noted that though our viewpoints and activities vary in some respects, not one has lost the vision of Christian service. I think my pride is justified when I say I am proud that I am a member of such a class."

Sincerely yours,

Former Members of the Training Class.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him."

WHEN JESUS DIED FOR US

JESUS had just finished that beautiful prayer to His Father for His disciples. He had asked God to keep them from harm and evil. He had asked Him to fill their hearts with love that they might go forward in the work He had given them to do. And when He had finished His prayer, He arose and crossed over a little brook and entered a garden.

Now Judas, one of His disciples, had yielded to the temptation to sell His Master for a few pieces of silver. So he had led a band of officers to this garden where they could seize Jesus.

Jesus knew all of this, and His heart must have been sad thinking of Judas' weakness. Jesus walked unafraid right up to the circle of light made by the soldiers' torches. He asked, "Whom seek ye?"

The men armed with swords said, "Jesus of Nazareth." Jesus replied, "I am he."

Then the soldiers, who were astonished by the brave words and the calm light in Jesus' eyes, fell backward to the ground. They were used to seeing men struggle and try to escape when they came to capture them. But not so Jesus!

Peter, that disciple who acted first and thought about it afterward, drew his sword and cut off an ear of one of the officers. But Jesus, putting the ear back and healing the cut at the touch of His hand, told Peter to put up his sword.

Wasn't Jesus a wonderful Person? We, no doubt, would have thought, "Serves that soldier just right for coming to arrest me when I haven't done anything wrong."

But Jesus' heart was filled with love for everyone. And even a soldier must not be harmed because of Him.

Then He was bound with ropes, though He hadn't resisted at all, and was led away to be questioned by Annas first and later by Caiaphas, the high priest, and the Sanhedrin, which was the Jewish Assembly.

Poor Peter, who was weak enough when he was with His Master, was altogether a coward when he saw Jesus taken by the soldiers. Do you know what he said when a young girl came up to him and asked him if he wasn't one of Jesus' disciples?

Look at verses 16-18 of John 18, and see what Peter said.

Three different times he declared he never knew Jesus. You never would have thought it of Peter, would you?

Remember that the charge made upon which Jesus was condemned to die was that He had declared Himself the Son of God. The Jews in authority said that was blasphemy.

They never really proved that the claim Jesus made was not true, and so, you see, He was falsely condemned to death. They brought other false charges against Him, too, for they were so determined to get rid of Him they stopped at nothing.

Pilate was another weak person. He did not believe in his heart that Jesus was guilty of any of their charges. But he was so anxious to please the people that he would not come right out and say so. And so Pilate let them take Jesus away to be crucified.

Now Jesus loved His mother, and so as He suffered there upon the cross, He thought of her and of how sad and lonely she would be when He was gone. John, the disciple whom He loved, was standing near the cross, and He knew that he was just the one to care for her.

So Jesus told His mother that John was to be her son from then on; and He told John that Mary was to be his mother. And I'm sure, aren't you, that John never once failed of the trust Jesus had placed in him.

The angel had told Mary before Jesus was born that she should call His name Jesus, "for he shall save his people from their sins." It took Jesus' whole life of perfect love and service, as well as His willing death upon the cross, to make the angel's words come true.

It is hard for us to understand just why it was all planned as it was, but we can be very grateful for it, nevertheless. Jesus died on the cross to save each one of us from our sins.

Since Jesus died for us, let us live for Him.

"I'll live for Him
Who died for me;
How happy, then, my life shall be!
I'll live for Him
Who died for me;
My Savior and my Lord."

The answer to the question in the paper of February 16 will be found in 1 Kings 16:15-18.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

PEORIA, ILLINOIS

F. L. Austin, evangelist, and J. W. McLain, soloist and song leader, began a series of meetings at the Peoria Open-Bible Church, 713 Lincoln St., on Sunday, Feb. 28. The meetings are scheduled to last until March 21. Sunday morning services begin at 11; evening services each night at 7:30. Anyone within driving distance can lend encouragement by dropping in whenever possible.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE

The Northwest Conference will meet March 19-21 at Corvallis, Ore. This meeting, previously scheduled for February, was canceled because of inclement weather and the prevailing epidemic.

Gladys Barber, Secretary.

NIAGARA FALLS, NEW YORK

The annual Sunday school election of the Falls church was held at the Moreland home on Thursday evening, Feb. 11. A supper which tickled the palate was served previous to the meeting. Officers elected were: Mrs. Elsie Moore, superintendent; Mrs. Jesse Shea, assistant superintendent; Miss Ethel Moreland, secretary; James Engle, treasurer; Mrs. Lida Sullivan, pianist. Special thanks were extended for the excellent work done by the junior choir. Much of that work is due to the untiring efforts of the superintendent.

The Niagara Falls Bereans held their annual business meeting on Tuesday night, Feb. 16. At 6:45 twenty-seven Bereans sat down to a supper that smacked of foreign influence. Reports for the year showed considerable activity. Most visible from a material standpoint is the interior and exterior of the church. Officers elected were: Mrs. Faye Brown, president; Mrs. Bernice Tinlin, vice president; Mrs. Grace Lent, secretary; Mrs. Jesse Shea, treasurer; Mrs. Grace Lent, pianist.

A beautiful service was held at the Falls on Sunday, Feb. 7. Mrs. Faye Brown, gowned in white, a symbol of the righteousness of the saints, was reimmersed in accordance with a feeling she has had for some time. We pray this renewal of the Christ-relationship may redound to her personal good and be a blessing to many others.

The report of the church treasurer for 1936 indicated receipts for the general fund of $270.06, expenditures of $269.10, a balance at the close of the fiscal year of 96 cents. Receipts for the pastor's fund were $713.00, expenditures were $612.50, and the balance at the close of the year was $100.50.

The church at Fonthill, Ont., and the church at Niagara Falls took up special offerings on Sunday, Feb. 7, for relief of the flood sufferers of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys. Over $16 was received at Niagara Falls, and over $21 at Fonthill.

Comments a letter from Miss Julia Fyfe, Lockwood, Mo.: "Bro. and Sr. John Fyfe are Grandmother and Grandfather twice more. Their son Benjamin and wife have a little son, Dwane Franklin. He came on December 26. They also were happy to hear that their daughter Jane and husband have a girl named Jewell Deane. She came on February 6."

BLOOD RIVER CHURCH OF GOD

Near Hammond, Louisiana

On February 14, Bro. Sydney Magaw of Ohio began a series of meetings at the Blood River Church near Springfield, La. The meetings came to a close February 21. Bro. Magaw was accompanied by his wife and son, Malcolm, and also Bro. and Sr. Howard Pearson.

The sermons of Bro. Magaw were very impressive and interesting. His efforts were not in vain, for eleven were united in the faith.

The weather was very favorable, and a large number attended each night.

Mary Richardson, Secretary.

We have just closed a series of meetings lasting from February 7 to 21 at the Blood River Church of God. Many friends were made, and the meetings will ever be remembered with joy. Though the log church is small, the attendance was good, and the people were ready to hear the Word of God. We were cared for in many homes, and always received the very best to be offered. As a crowning feature of the work eleven were baptized into Christ, and will henceforth help the cause of truth to grow.

At a stream near the Barnum home baptismal services were held Saturday, Feb. 20, for Mrs. Mary Barnum, 67 years of age, and three of her children, Clarence, Clara, and Julia. Clarence is head of a family and will be, we hope, an outstanding influence for growth in the church body. Clara and Julia live with their mother. We are trusting the faith of these four new members will encourage others to obey the gospel call.

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 21, seven were baptized in Blood River. They are Lorrin Gainey, Claiborne Lee, Richard Robertson, Cecil Richardson; and Misses Ada Shandour, Orine and Georgia Richardson. The last two named, Orine and Georgia, were the first two to accept the gospel invitation and their stand doubtless encouraged others to follow. Bros. Lee and Gainey are both married men and have brightened the lives of many by their decision. Richard, Ada, and Cecil are all of 'teen age, and should have many years of service for the Lord. There is talent in all these lives.

Following the Sunday baptismal services, Communion services were held for the church members in the little log church house, after which we bade all a reluctant farewell. We are humbly thankful to the heavenly Parent for the meeting at Blood River; also, we are thankful for the patient and faithful ground-work done in this field by other Church of God ministers—in late years by Bros. Frank Siple and M. W. Lyon, and in earlier years by Bros. Allard, Lindsay, Haupt, and Stewart.

We are now holding a series of meetings at Happy Woods Church of God, a historic landmark in Church of God work. Interest is good. Pray for us, and for the success of this meeting.

Sydney E. Magaw.

Bro. and Sr. J. W. McLain are the parents of a new girl. Their present address is 313 Fayette St., Peoria, Ill.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

What once happened to Israel that would have closed all the shoe stores for a generation—if there had been any shoe stores? Look for the answer in next week's paper. Don't forget! It'll be there!

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Thursday evening, Feb. 18, our Berean attendance reached the high mark of thirty. The coming Thursday, we will have a social hour in the home of Bro. and Sr. Zechiel, entertaining the young people's class. This class was awarded winner in the five weeks of contest.

Bro. Joe Bender at this writing is in the hospital at Plymouth, critically ill. Will you pray for him?

Sunday morning, Feb. 21, several of our folks could not get to church on account of the mud; and in the evening the weather was the opposite, a blizzard, and again some of the folks could not come. However, some braved the weather. This is the faith we all need, not letting weather or anything else keep us away; however, sometimes it is impossible to do this.

We are happy to announce that the contract has been given to a local contractor to complete our church basement. Work will begin immediately. Our folks have been laboring to bring this to pass. They are to be commended for their work in this very much needed room.

The writer's wife is staying a few days with Sr. John C. Butler, Culver. Sr. Butler recently lost in death her dear husband, and will appreciate a letter from you.

Ten of our folks attended the County Sunday School Convention in Plymouth. They have brought back many good things for our work here. Some will enroll in the County Religious Training School, which begins March 1.

Sunday, the 28th, I will preach in Kokomo.
A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

Floods in Rock River Valley, northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin, drove sixty families from their homes in Dixon, eighty families from Rockford residences, and covered the Oregon and Dixon power plants with four feet of ice-bound water during the week of February 21-27. Traffic between Dixon and Rockford, through Oregon, has been blocked since February 21. Water has stood six to eight feet deep over the lower parts of the road.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

THE RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint-heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began," Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

MACOMB OPEN-BIBLE CHURCH

Under the above name a new church was organized at Macomb, Ill., on the night of February 12, 1937, according to the rules and constitution of the Illinois Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus.

Its membership of around thirty members is made up of those recently baptized, together with several members of the Ripley church resident in Macomb and vicinity. Not only did the Ripley church approve of this procedure, but also loaned its pastor, Bro. H. U. Krogh, on the third Sunday morning of each month, and on Wednesday evenings of each week to assist this new work.

Bro. Krogh was made first elder temporarily and Bro. Samuel Kee second elder. Sr. (Mrs.) Lillian M. Brewer, 928 W. Jefferson St., was made secretary.

The book for charter membership remains open till Easter Sunday.

Mr. Leo Wilson, 621 N. Madison St., was baptized into the name of his Lord and Savior on Monday morning, Feb. 15.

The reason for adopting the name "Macomb Open-Bible Church" for local use is to avoid confusion, there being a Church of God of another denomination located close by.

We bespeak for this new work the good will and prayers of the brotherhood as a whole. The heart of this people is earnest in an effort to maintain the teachings of God's Word and faith in God until the coming of our Lord and Master.

F. L. Austin.

THANK YOU

Editor, The Herald:

I was glad to see the question in the last Restitution Herald because I had wished and prayed that questions might be asked and answered through the columns of the paper. My hope is that we may have many beneficial questions and replies that will help us to better live the Word of God in our daily lives.

Much good was derived from reading the article, "What Is Sin?" The young people's page has been an inspiration to me. Mrs. Lapp's article made one want to follow a little more closely in the Master's steps each day. Many other articles have been of equal importance in helping to guide in the straight and narrow way. If we each read with the desire to get thoughts that will please God, much good will be done.

Mrs. E. C. Olmstead,
Hines, Minn.

Editor, The Herald:

The articles in the paper are so good. The paper has been such a comfort to me. Each issue seems to bring some message to me just at the right time. I especially enjoyed Bro. Randall's message in the last issue, "Illuminated Life." We cannot be reminded too much to be a living example for our fellow men. In the Berean Department, the article on "Condemning Others" was so good. Also, "The Minister's Wife" in the last issue, and "Tithes and Offerings." These four articles had such comforting messages to me. May God be with us all until we meet in that glorious life is my prayer. I am in need and want the prayers of all members all over the land.

Mrs. Mae Magnus,
Bloomington, Ind.

Editor, The Herald:

We are sure we will enjoy your articles on presenting the gospel you started in the last issue of The Herald. There is much food for thought in the subject.

Mrs. Harvey Krogh, Sr.,
Blair, Neb.

TRAINING CLASS

At the annual meeting of the General Conference the motion was made to reestablish the training class if there were a sufficient number of students desiring it to warrant such a procedure.

The training class will have to be run on an entirely different basis from the preceding classes.

No part-time work nor work of any kind can be guaranteed to the students.

Each student must be able, financially, to pay for tuition, room, board, and incidentals. The minimum tuition will be $100 a year.

According to the resolution adopted by the General Conference each student must give to the officers of the National Bible Institution assurance of his ability to meet his financial obligations.

If it is your desire to join such a Bible training class will you communicate with the committee as soon as possible. You will then be written to personally, concerning courses offered, cost of room and board, etc.

The training school will be run on a ten months basis.

Let us hear from you soon.

Committee:

Leila E. Whitehead,
5439 Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

Floyd Stilson,
411 E. South St., South Bend,
Ind.

G. Eldred Marsh,
Oregon, Ill.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations."—
Matt. 28:19.

COLLEGIATE DICTIONARY
Fourth Edition

The largest abridgment in the famous Merriam-Webster series. Surpasses all other abridged dictionaries in popular acceptance. Defines 106,000 words. 1,268 pages. Illustrated. Thumb index. Used as authority by every court. Defines many obsolete Bible words. Unusually accurate.

- Regular Style 7 x 10 x 2 5/8 in. 5 lbs.
- Cloth $4.00
- Buckram, marbled edges 5.00
- Thin Paper Style 6 x 8 7/8 x 1 1/2. 2 1/4 lbs.
- Blue cloth, sprinkled edges $3.50
- Brown fabrikoid, gilt edges 5.00
- Black Levant leather, gilt edges 7.00
- Limp pigskin, dk blue or natural 8.50

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Bible 6453X. Genuine leather, overlapping covers, leather lined; 450 pages of helps—concordance, Bible dictionary, subject index, full-color maps; India paper, red-under-gold edges; marginal references; good blackface type, pronouncing; page size, 6 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches; index of books stamped on inside front cover in gold. Bible No. 6453X, postpaid, $7.00.

Bible 1006. Text only; excellent pronouncing blackface type; maps; 64 pages of helps; artificial leather, overlapping covers; Bible paper, red edges; 8 illustrations; page size 7 x 4 3/4. $1.00.

Bible 4914. Genuine leather, limp (no overlapping edges); Bible paper, red-under-gold edges; marginal references; excellent pronouncing type; illustrations; maps; concordance, dictionary, 4000 questions and answers, 100 pages of miscellaneous helps; special family record and marriage certificate; page size, 8 x 5 1/2; 2 inches thick. $5.00.

Bible S108X. Genuine Persian leather binding, overlapping covers; India paper, red-under-gold edges; large clear type, self-pronouncing; maps and map index; thorough concordance; marginal references; page size, 8 1/4 x 5 1/2 inches; only 3/4-inch thick. $8.00.

The above Bibles are all the King James Version. Thumb indexes, 50 cents extra.

Executive's Desk Book: contains a 100,000-word dictionary; atlas of the world; digests of grammar, business law, finance, selling, secretaryship, public speaking, parliamentary law; and many other features. A one-volume cyclopedia. Thumb indexed. Illustrated. $5.95.

Bible Atlas: more than 100 maps of Bible lands; historical, geographical, biblical data in exhaustive text; chronological tables; thorough map and textual indexes; numerous photographs; graphs in full color. $3.50.

Bible History: a history according to the Bible arranged chronologically from Genesis to Revelation; numerous tables; maps; charts; biblical accounts harmonized; 430 pages. $5.00.

The Translators to the Reader: a study of the purpose of the King James Version, written by Edgar J. Goodspeed, author of the New Testament portion of An American Translation of the Bible; contains the original King James Preface; one of the most valuable books about the Bible yet published. Postpaid, 60 cents.

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

TRANSFORMATION

By C. E. Randall

"And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."—Romans 12:2.

A TRANSFORMED life! What is it? Well, it means a completely changed life in appearance as well as in fact.

When Jesus was in the mount with three of His disciples, He "was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light." A complete change had taken place. Not only did Jesus perceive the change, but His disciples likewise noted the transformation. His face was radiant—it shone.

The word "transfigured" as used in connection with Jesus in this mountain experience is the same word in the original as used by Paul to express the "transformed" life. "Transformed" means to be transfigured—be a new man in Christ Jesus.

The transfiguration of Jesus in the portraying of kingdom life was such a wonderful experience for the disciples that they wanted to erect some monuments. They were greatly moved and affected by the change which they had witnessed. This new kingdom life which they had seen was different from anything that they had ever been eyewitness to before. They said: "Lord, it is good for us to be here." So it is with the transformed life—a great and noticeable change takes place. It does us good to be around such people. We like their company. They bless us with their virtues. We can easily perceive that they have been with Jesus, as Peter, James, and John, who were pillars in the Jerusalem church, perceived that grace had been given to Paul.

A man of our acquaintance was purchasing a railroad ticket, and he noticed the face of the agent was all aglow, and he said to him, "You seem to be happy," to which the man replied, "Why shouldn't I be? I am a Christian." A person who is thoroughly transformed will show it in his looks, his actions, his words—every phase of his life will broadcast and picture the fact. The transformed life is like smallpox; you feel better when it breaks out.

When Jesus healed the blind man (John 9:1-11) by His touch, a great change came to the man, insomuch that some of his neighbors thought he was a different man.

When we come under the divine touch a transformation ensues. A new life comes into existence. "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me" (Gal. 2:20). Living in the spirit, we also walk in the spirit, and the evidences that accompany such a life are listed under the "fruits of the Spirit" (Gal. 5:22, 23).

There is no greater evidence of a changed man than the case of Paul. Having enjoyed the experiences of the transformed life, he beseeches others to follow after in the same manner. The joy of salvation is largely the after-experiences that come through a transformed life. People are longing for a life that is satisfying in its benefits. "Partakers of the benefit" (1 Tim. 6:2) are so enamored with its charms that they continue to grow in "grace and knowledge," and being filled with the spirit, find themselves so happy and contented that they, with Paul, say: "We are persuaded, that neither death, nor life, . . . nor things present, . . . nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

The transformed life receives its beauty from its pattern, Jesus Christ, who is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness. The old garment of self-righteousness which God defined as "filthy rags" must be cast off before we can be found in Him clothed with the righteousness which is of God by faith. For this garment of divine righteousness we are admonished by Christ to seek (Matt. 6:33). Except our righteousness exceeds that of the Pharisees, we shall all likewise perish.

The abundant life is not of our own making, although it must be of our own choosing. "Whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely."

If people only knew what they are missing in not receiving and living the transformed life! As a person lately said: "It has made a great change in our home." It makes a great change wherever it is manifested.

Jesus, speaking of the lost sheep of the house of Israel to whom He came, said: "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes." The time of visitation was allowed to pass by. Gentiles are making the same mistake. Waiting, but never acting! Considering, but failing to decide! Wanting, but never taking!

The natural, normal life lived in the flesh is constantly being ground between forces which it is victim of, and its own indiscreet actions. This continual struggle in the fleshly life that now is and which is never ending, blocks every approach to the fountain of enduring peace and happiness. In the wake of this conflict for possession of a righteousness that comes by works lies a groaning and travailing humanity, still unconscious that by the works of law no flesh shall be justified. Time and experience have not as yet been able to teach the great mass of weary souls that the way to the abundant life is through the process of transformation by the great Molder of human clay. The humiliating arms of the cross point the way to the transformed life!

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 26

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 9, 1937

NUMBER 23

The Kingdom of God

Number 9

By T. A. Drinkard

THEY will come from the east and they will come from the west to that called meeting with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of God. In the day of the Apostle Paul these faithful men of God were still sleeping "the sleep of death" (Psalm 13:3; Heb. 11:13). But I notice that when the seventh angel sounds his trumpet, which is the last of the series of seven, then these "prophets" are to be resurrected and given their "reward" (Rev. 11:15, 18). This is in perfect accord with Paul's view as given in 2 Timothy 4:1. The Master affirms that they will be in the kingdom, and not only so, but "many" others as well.

What a day, and what a meeting! Can you call to mind any meeting of the past that can compare to that meeting that will take place in the kingdom of God? And it won't be a meeting of immaterial, bodiless spirits that have gone on to some fantastic, ethereal habitation at death, but it will be the very Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob that once lived upon earth, and who are now still in the death state.

Of course, it is not revealed just what Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob will say when they meet in the kingdom of God, but I suggest that no words of human origin can be found that can portray the feelings and joy of those resurrected prophets of God. Will they talk, and will they shout the glorious news of redemption? There is no doubt of that, as it is written that the redeemed will sing "a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation" (Rev. 5:9).

Don't forget that the kingdom of God is yet to be reestablished upon the earth, as Ezekiel 21:25-27 clearly reveals. This reference is confirmed by Amos 9:11 and Acts 15:16. Get this thought again, that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are to be in the kingdom.

Now let me say that those redeemed people of God are going to eat and drink and be very happy in the kingdom. Sometimes I am asked why they are going to eat and drink in the kingdom, since they will be immortal. Well, I can hardly say just why they will eat and drink, but I do know this: that according to the Master they will do this; as also will Christ.

"And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven."—Matthew 8:11.

Now for the proof of this: "And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom" (Luke 22:29, 30). And, "I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come" (Luke 22:18). Again, "I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom" (Matt. 26:29).

Thank God that beyond this vale of tears and this unhappy condition of sorrow and death lies a perfect day when God's kingdom will extend "from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth," and when "they that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him," and "all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him" (Psalm 72:8, 9, 11).

The apostles had Christ's promise that when the kingdom should come they would be in it. He would be there, and they would again enjoy drinking together. Of course, you can clearly see that this calls for a resurrection of those apostles that have fallen asleep in Christ.

I realize that there are "blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel" (Matt. 23:24), by false teaching to misguide hearers. I say this because there are those who, believing the kingdom of God to have been set up on Pentecost, have said to me that Luke 24:30 and Acts 10:41 were a fulfillment of Matthew 26:29 and Luke 22:29, 30. I called attention to the fact that, if so, then the kingdom of God was established before Pentecost.

If an argument will not withstand criticism there is something wrong somewhere. Our position has stood the test all along through the years; it has weathered the religious opposition and fires of persecution and still stands forth unscathed. Why? Because (Please turn to page 9)

Abreast of the Times

Pertinent Comments on the News of the Day

G. E. Marsh, Editor

German National Church Situation

"Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made."—Genesis 3:1.

BERLIN, Germany, March 6.—The subtlety of the serpent is being shown by the Nazi Government in its efforts to bring the German Protestant Church into line with its nationalistic designs. Dissolution of the quasi-governmental organization for the government of the church was announced by the authorities on February 13. Two days later it was made known that the church would be permitted to hold a free election and choose whatever form of ecclesiastical organization it desired. Churchmen who oppose state control of church affairs, while at first encouraged by the Nazi proffer of greater religious freedom, have begun to look for the African in the woodpile on second thought. They think they have already discovered him in the National Socialist intention to capture control of the church government by voting great numbers of Nazi supporters who are de jure church members although they may never go to church, and are, in many cases, downright anti-church if not antireligious.

The German Protestant Church is an established state church, supported by tax money received from the Government on the basis of its theoretical membership, which includes all citizens of Germany who are not members of other denominations or who have not openly declared themselves to be unbelievers. Many of these, however, while not openly opposing religion, are no longer interested in it and are perfectly willing to cast their church ballots in accord with the expressed wishes of their political dictator.

Array Children Against Parents

"They set light by father and mother."—Ezekiel 22:7.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 2.—Under the approval of the Board of Education, school children of this pine belt resort will picket their parents tomorrow in a town-sponsored demonstration to make them pay up a million dollars in back taxes. Led by two bands and carrying placards and banners, the children will parade from ten o'clock in the morning until noon. The reason for the demonstration is the fact that the State Auditor has ruled that Lakewood be given no more time to pay almost $50,000 tax arrears to the State and to Ocean County.

We do not pretend to know anything of economic conditions in Lakewood, New Jersey, or the right or wrong in the matter of the people withholding payment of taxes. The need of money to carry on school work and other civic and State services may be acute. Such consideration does not enter into the real question so far as the general public is concerned. But when a city or State or nation organizes and commands the children of any community to make a demonstration against their parents, every thoughtful American citizen, and every Christian father and mother, should protest most vigorously.

This is the very thing for which we have so severely criticized the Communist Government of Russia and the Socialist Governments of Germany and Mexico: placing children under the immediate control and influence of the Government. Because Italy has done this, she was able the other day to order that all children between the ages of 6 and 18 be required to take physical training in preparation for future military service. Should the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution of the United States be ratified in its present form, the children of this country will be in a position in which they may with the support of the Constitution refuse to help their parents in the house, on the farm, or elsewhere!

Church Lotteries Barred From Mails

"Provide things honest in the sight of all men."—Paul.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 4.—The post office today held up circulars mailed by three Milwaukee church organizations advertising bingo parties and notified the senders that the material violated the anti-lottery laws. Postmaster John A. Flessner said that persons mailing advertisements of lotteries were subject to a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years.

It is possible that the organizations sending out the advertising were ignorant of the fact that to do so was a criminal offense. But how much better it would be if churches would not engage in practices which even worldly men frown upon as dishonest! The Christian should avoid every appearance of evil lest he bring reproach upon the name of His Lord.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

G. Eldred Marsh Editor
Paul C. Johnson Associate Editor
L. E. Conner Business Manager

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. New subscriptions, $1.50 a year.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Entered as second-class matter October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879.

Reasons for Not Tithing

I WISH to lay emphasis upon some objections that have been brought against the practice of tithing. In advance, however, I would make two statements concerning these objections: The first is that every objection brought against tithing in this day is an objection that would bear with equal force against tithing in any day. If it is a valid objection today, it would have been an equally valid objection for the same reason under the old dispensation. If these objections prove that it is wrong to require tithes now, they prove that God ought never to have ordained such a law. The second remark is that nearly all the objections to tithing (though not all) would be objections of equal force against the law of the Sabbath.

AN UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENT

1. The first objection to tithing is that it is so difficult to find out with accuracy what one's income is. I reply that, if there were no other advantage in the practice of tithing than the fact that it compels a man to find out what his income is, that of itself would commend it as a good practice. As stewards of God, have we a right not to know what our income is? We are beginning to recognize very generally that we are stewards of God in all that we possess. We own nothing in our own right as toward God. As toward our fellow men, we have our property rights, but not toward God. The Bible tells us that "it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful." Have we any right as stewards of God to pass on from year to year without knowing how much of God's substance has been committed to our trust? What would you think, if you had a business and employed a man to conduct the business for you and, on the day of settlement, he had said, "I have no idea how much this business has made this year?" It is our duty to keep accounts, not only because we are stewards, but also for many other reasons, and if there were no other advantage in tithing, it would have the advantage of compelling us to keep accounts.

But is it impossible for us to ascertain what our income is? I have known people of a great variety of occupations to practice tithing; lawyers, physicians, ministers, public officials, merchants, bankers, farmers, teachers, clerks in stores, seamstresses, almost every sort of calling in life. The occupation of farming presents the greatest difficulties in reckoning one's income with accuracy. But successful farmers have told me that the questionnaires sent out by the Government for reckoning the income tax will enable even the farmer to arrive at a correct estimate of his income.

It is, at least, sufficiently accurate to satisfy an exacting Government, and, no doubt, sufficiently accurate for tithing for religious uses.

But the unanswerable argument to the objection now under consideration (that it is impossible to estimate the tithe accurately) has been given somewhat humorously in this way: If the case were reversed and God were to tell you that, if you would give a reasonably accurate statement of your income, He would add one tenth to it, instead of taking one tenth from it, you would have little difficulty in forming a satisfactory estimate of your income.

UNJUST NOW, ALWAYS UNJUST

2. Another objection against the tithe is that it is unjust to the poor, because it requires the poor man to give the same proportion of his income that the rich man is required to give. In reply, I submit that it is no more unjust today than it was under the Old Testament dispensation. There were poor people before the coming of Christ. The laws of Moses provided for them and they are mentioned in the Psalms and the prophets. Our Savior spoke of the widow whose whole living was two mites. We are told of one whose only treasure was an alabaster box of ointment. Christ spoke of men whose earnings were only a penny a day, and He said, "The poor ye have always with you." So there were poor people under the Mosaic dispensation, and yet they were required to pay one tenth. So if the tithe is unjust now, it was unjust at any time, and, if this objection proves anything, it proves that God ought never to have instituted a tithe law.

Again, if the tithe law is unjust because it requires the same percentage of income from rich and poor alike, the same argument would prove that the Sabbath law is unjust, because it requires the rich and poor alike to give the same proportion of their time, one seventh.

But you need not be uneasy about the poor nor so solicitous to protect them. They are not complaining of the tithe. I have known many a poor person to pay tithes and I have never known one of them to complain of hardness or injustice in it.

For a number of years after I began preaching on the tithe, I received hardly any response except from the poor. Later on in my ministry, wealthy people began to adopt the practice, but even then the majority of the tithers were among poor people or people of moderate incomes. There are at least a hundred and (Please turn to page 10)

Gratitude

My God, how endless is Thy love!
Thy gifts are every evening new;
And morning mercies from above,
Gently distill like early dew.

Thou spread'st the curtains of the night,
Great Guardian of my sleeping hours;
Thy sovereign word restores the light,
And quickens all my drowsy powers.

I yield my powers to Thy command;
To Thee I consecrate my days;
Perpetual blessings from Thine hand
Demand perpetual songs of praise.

—Isaac Watts.

Ecclesiastical Rationalism

A DEADENING rationalism has finally reached its paralyzing hand into the very citadel of the Christian faith. It has opened wide the gates for an inwash of paganism into the holy of holies of our religion. It has finally wrought havoc with the central theme of the evangelical heritage. Through the adoption of its worldly assumptions and the acceptance of its imperfect ideology our church finds itself in much the same position as the individual who has fallen a victim of our machine civilization out on the public highway.

And the result of it all? People give the church outward respect, but not their deepest love; they praise its past history, but scorn its present status; they admire its imposing edifices, but do not seek shelter within its folds; they find it an agency of social reform, but not a power for human redemption. The result of a completely "rationalized" religion has always been death, and it is "death" in this present situation for the church. For with human reason substituted for a redemptive faith, the faith itself suffers extinction.

Of course, this is no new experience for the church, for there have been other periods when the redemptive values of our heritage have thus suffered a terrific loss. The history of the successful current attack runs back through the centuries, but in order to clarify the issue, one can say that it dates back to the preceding century, when the church faced a complete rout at the hands of the Darwinian biology. That bitter struggle of the 60's was succeeded by a period when men like Drummond began to see the other side of the picture, although they held tenaciously to the tenets of the evangelical faith. "Harmonization" years followed when liberalism led the world to the conclusion that nothing in this new set of biological formula was inimical to this faith; this attitude set the stage for the final capitulation through the assistance of a deeply set pragmatic rationalism in the field of pagan philosophy. One by one, most of the true gospeling preachers were put to sleep; with these leaders gone, the old order became nothing more than a beautiful memory.

After having captured the central position of the evangelical stronghold, these rationalists began the long and tedious process of reducing the conquered country to a semblance of order. One by one, the old fortresses were razed as the movement went apace to victory. It has continued steadily until today one notes everywhere the deadening power of an arid intellectualism which permeates the church from center to circumference. Many of the old phrases continue in use, but only a timid lip service is provided. Even John 3:16 for the majority of ministers today has nothing more than an intellectual value as an ethico-moral truth. No evangelistic power arises from it and no missionary zeal is aroused by it. Whereas, years ago, it was the touchstone of foreign missions, today it remains nothing but the beautifully coined truth of a so-called apostolic age. Indeed, the Christian life itself has been reduced to an idea; Christian conduct is simply a mental reflex; Christian truth is the result of logical reasoning; Christian ideals are identified with linguistic phraseology; deity has been reduced to a wondrous concept originating in the brain of man and conditioned by the social milieu. When faith has been reduced to such levels, it is no wonder even "believers" cannot find in it the bread of eternal life.

REVELATION

Rationalism has destroyed the age-old truth of "revelation." The creed of our church was founded upon the premise of the "revealed" will of God. But this enemy has reduced that possibility to zero. The Bible has been split into many fragments, each of which is made to set forth some flashing insight into the mind of God on the part of man. They tore apart the Book of books just as the physiologists took apart and dissected the human body from limb to limb. The Ten Commandments are looked upon as the contribution of one of the world's so-called "geniuses" without any divine significance. Such "insights" naturally carry with them the imperfections of their contributors and can be set aside when other more significant contributions are received.

The New Testament is treated in a similar fashion. Critical rationalism has set up the teachings, the principles, and the attitudes of Jesus in one large compendium of knowledge. It has elaborated a Johannine, a Petrine, a Pauline theology, and others, ad infinitum. The entire book has been cut asunder and dissected into its minutest parts. Finally, one or more of these parts or all of them together in orderly array have been presented to the world as the sine qua non of Christianity.

What we are objecting to here is not such a process of orderly study, for such an effort is highly useful for Christian faith, even as the most minute examination of the human body is itself most helpful to our medical fraternity. But when our physiologists take this product of their work and set forth these separated bones, organs, muscles, and nerves as the human body, they are trying to convince the world what the world knows is untrue. The human body is not one or more of these separated parts nor all of them combined. When torn apart, they cannot be put together again, and most of all life itself cannot again be injected into such a combination to produce a "living organism." In just the same manner once you dissect the Word of God into separate teachings, principles, and attitudes of Jesus and distinctive theologies and individual messages and try to put them together again, you are bound to fail.

This rationalistic attack has gone to such extreme lengths that Paul has been set over against Jesus, Peter against John, and each against all others. The result is just what these rationalists always want. Instead of there being one gospel, there are many gospels. There is a gospel of Jesus, a gospel of John, a gospel of Paul, a gospel of Peter, and, strange to say, just like Paul in Athens, with his "unknown God." there is the gospel of the "unknown author" of a particular work. Now they go one step apace and say that all of these gospels were conditioned by the "thought forms" of the era in which they were promulgated. The implication is that when such "thought forms" are discarded ipso facto, the gospels must be thrown aside as worthless. This rationalistic process has gone forward in such a manner that if there ever had been a "unit" message of Christianity, it has long since been murdered.

One can take a beautiful rose apart, separate its petals, and arrange them in orderly fashion on a beautiful table of exquisite colors. You can then subject these petals to a thorough scientific examination by the use of the microscope. The result is that while you have a collection of interesting data about the separated petals, you do not have any information at all about the rose. The process through which the rationalists have taken the Word of God brings us to this result: we now have separate revelations, but no revelations; separate theologies, but no theology; separate messages, but no message. Some of these deluded rationalists have the naive idea that, with a stroke of genius, they can gather together these separate revelations, these disjointed theologies, and these individual messages, and through a peculiar mental chemistry merge them into "a" revelation, "a" theology, and "a" message. The world has long since discovered that a beautiful rose is not produced in any such fashion.

MISSIONS

But the attack upon the mission enterprise of the church has been no less deadly and follows logically from the attack upon the thought of "revelation." The story is told of a young Buddhist who attended a missionary conference in the Far East, and at the proper time asked the leader of the conference a pertinent question. "Is it necessary for me to be a Christian in order to get to heaven?" The missionary leader replied: "The question of our friend can be put in this way: 'Will I be saved if I remain a Buddhist?' My answer to his question, thus stated, is: 'What does he think about it?' I would suggest that he make the attempt and then return with his report." Here was a young man seeking Christ, but the missionary could not point the way to his seeking heart. The truth of the matter is that the reply of the missionary was the only reply he could logically give, for he was simply a teacher of ethics and the expounder of a code of morals, not the ambassador of the living Christ.

With the setting aside of the universal gospel of a redemptive Christianity, these rationalists are quite anxious to come to terms with the critical demands of other religions. They are more than willing to surrender the citadel of their own faith if by that means they can come to enjoy themselves in the camp of the enemy. They have the desire to use the same methods against the faith of the Buddhist as they used against the faith of the Christian. They take the petals of his rose and place them side by side with the petals of the Christian rose. Then, they make the bold but impossible attempt to select petals from each group to construct a new rose as a substitute for the former rose of Christianity and the former rose of Buddhism. I am profoundly convinced that it will never be one or the other again, for such roses are not built; they are created.

CHRISTOLOGY

But the most deadly attack is found in the area of Christology. The historic person of Christ has suffered mutilation at their hands and now lies prostrate before the enemies of the historic faith. A catchy slogan has been going the rounds in recent years: it is this: "Sharing Christ." These words have a soothing sound, but they are also a window through which you can view a corpse. It is as if four hunters were to shoulder their guns, proceed to the forest, bring down their meaty animal, and set about forthwith to its slaughter. Each would take a quarter of the pelt and return home for the feast. The animal is shared to the delight and the satisfaction of all. By and large, these rationalists have struck down the Lord of glory, quartered His spiritual body, and proceeded to share Him with the world. The African is invited to take his portion, the Hindu his, and the Confucianist his. These poor leaders have the feeling that in this way they are sharing Christ with the heathen world. Analyzing Him into a mass of separated ideas, disjointed principles, and disconnected attitudes, they present these to hungry souls; dissecting Him into vague ethical insights of the modern mind, they offer all such to starving men; they then take one or more of these ideas, one or more of these principles, one or more of these modern insights and begin to work upon them some modern mental chemistry with the hope that the result of this unique experiment can be presented as the Christian message. A divided and dissected Christ! Think of it. The truth of the matter is that Christ never can be thus divided or even shared. Christ can be received in His fullness and His power. Man never will be satisfied with a single petal or a combination of petals; he knows real well when he sees a rose or tastes the bread of life.

These modern rationalists have criticized the creeds of the church of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but they cannot accuse those credists of ever throwing overboard the evangel of the cross or of setting aside the living Christ. This is the very charge, however, that a newer generation of Christians is leveling against the present-day leaders. They have quartered the personality of Christ, dissected His spiritual body, drained it of its blood, killed its nerves, and destroyed its muscles. What is left is nothing more than a mummy of the first century. But such "defeatist" leaders still have to reckon with the great Apostle to the Gentiles. When they reach the mountain top where his army is encamped, they will find a spiritual leader ready to do battle for the faith of the saints. Sin, salvation by faith, the cross, the atonement, the sovereign God, the organic unity of the race, guilt, penalty, condemnation, the risen Lord, and many others, are a few of the weapons at his command. Ideas, principles, teachings, ethical insights, moral codes, the Jesus of history, and their congenital associates will all be forced again to take their place as servants in the household rather than as rulers on the throne.

THE ISSUE

And where has this movement brought the church of Christ? Without any permanent foundation, people have simply refused to build their mansions of faith upon the shifting sands of a diluted Christianity. In fact, they have not built any mansions at all, for the materials presented to them are seen to be rotting, imperfect, and weak.

Intellectually, the church can boast of a great program. Ideationally, no age can surpass us in our field. The mind of the church is very sensitive to a varied appeal which shows the width and the range of its interests. The curricula of our church schools are almost perfect. But the bald truth remains that the church and its eternal message have been rationalized to death. This attack began by repudiating the foundations and has degenerated into a quagmire of competitive ethics and worldly morality. It has brought the church to the crossroads.

It has elevated the mind, but neglected the heart. It has sublimated human reason and destroyed Christian faith. It has laughed theology to scorn, but this very theology will finally shame it in the wreckage. It has torn apart the rose, but that beautiful flower haunts it in its dreams. It holds Christ captive, but He will break His bonds to set men free. Instead of a leader, we need a Savior. The church has been led to about the same place where Paul was on the road to Damascus; let us pray that the living Christ will appear to it as He did to that sin-sick and defeated soul!

QUO VADIS

Many of our rationalistic churchmen see this dilemma, but they do not know the way out of the impasse. They would like to be evangelists and win men to Christ, but they have only the weapons of their own rationalized insights to use and they know from bitter experience that these will not do the work. You simply cannot go up to a man and say to him: "Mr. Jones, here is a fine compendium of Christian knowledge covering a thousand pages of mental insight into what it means to be a Christian man. You take this 'compendium,' study it for two years, and return to me for an examination on its central positions. If you pass a creditable examination, I will be glad to have you become a member of our church." Just as likely as not the man will hang his head and give you this reply with some sadness in his expression: "Rev. Mr. Smith, I do not believe that I am interested." Now this is exactly what so many have been doing for many years. The ideas, principles, teachings, ethical insights, moral codes, and a hundred and one other marvelous catchy phrases have been invented as the pipe to syphon the water of eternal life into the hearts of human beings. How can such vague and barren things provide food for the heart which lives on faith? It is quite an impossible task to get a person to commit his soul to the Lord Jesus Christ on the strength of an idea or a principle. This is the reason why some candidates for the gospel ministry are forced to take the position that in so far as the physical resurrection is concerned, they have simply a suspended judgment about it all. All that means is that they have regarded this whole matter of the Christ,

His birth and His resurrection, as things of the mind rather than matters of faith. They have the feeling or the idea that until such things can be logically proved, historically demonstrated, mentally assimilated, they simply cannot accept them. In other words, they want the factors of a loving faith rationalized and placed upon the same level as any other fact of organized knowledge. Even their God is a rationalized concept or mental image or picture and nothing else. He has no cosmic significance. The historic position is that the Christian "knows" his God by faith and not through any process of the reason or flight of the imagination; God cannot be logically proved; He can be simply received by faith and trusted. A rationalized deity is a dead deity; yet that is so often the deity proclaimed in our churches.—Leroy C. Hensel in The Presbyterian.

SOUND DOCTRINE

By C. E. Randall

"SOUND DOCTRINE" is usually applied to some particular tenets of faith, such as immortality, resurrection, baptism, etc., otherwise termed "positive theology." Of course, a correct view of these subjects will be sound doctrine, but the biblical meaning of "doctrine" goes beyond the scope of what is ordinarily termed "dogma." The meaning of "doctrine" in the Scripture is simple and plain. The rendering of "sound doctrine" by the majority of versions is "healthful teaching." The Diaglott translates it "wholesome teaching." Any teaching that is from the Word of truth which is interpreted in harmony with truth and is truth is sound doctrine.

Repentance, forgiveness, prayer, daily living, etc., if preached from the Bible viewpoint, are just as much in the class of sound doctrine as any other subjects one can find in the Bible. All that doctrine is, scripturally, is teaching the Word of God. Wherever there is sound teaching according to the Word, there you have sound doctrine. The distinction between practical and doctrinal teaching is man-made rather than God-inspired. To speak of the gospel of the kingdom as being dogmatic in its entirety, or limiting it to practical applications, is to rob it of its full mission. The gospel is sound doctrine or teaching of the Lord which affects every necessary phase of the life that now is and the life that is to come.

The dogmatist can only see certain material aspects of the kingdom in its setting up, such as its supplanting the kingdoms of this world and the administration of justice and equity. The practicalist observes the gospel of the kingdom in its relation to man's present needs as being "righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." But sound doctrine is wholesome teaching concerning every phase of the message. Sound doctrine is broad and all-inclusive, while dogmatism and practicalism serve in a biased field. Each is necessary, but not sufficient unto itself!—Church of God Messenger.

What Is Your Life?

By Harriet E. Boice

OF THE MANY questions given for our consideration, none are more important than that given by the Apostle James. "What is your life?" Listen to the solemn warning given in answer to this question. "It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away." The vapor vanishes so quickly before the heat of the rising sun that it is given as a fitting simile of human life. As the solemnity of the question dawns upon us, we perceive the warning. Life is too brief to waste, too uncertain to allow of boastful plans for tomorrow. "Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. . . . If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that." This language shows in whom we should put our trust—in Him who is able to save or destroy.

AN ANSWER FROM THE OLD TESTAMENT

Inspired men of old have written in a way that seriously impresses us with the importance of culture and virtue in our brief span of life. They have pointed out the folly of sinful indulgence, of selfish passion and appetite. They have marked out the way of wisdom which gives the most true happiness in this life, and a hope of life beyond. "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom" (Psalm 90:12).

Life at its natural length is compared to grass. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him" (Psalm 103). All generations but the present have been swept away by the ever-rushing flood of death. It is written, "Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as asleep." We can see how rigidly the decree issued at the fall of man has been carried out—"Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Yet God in His mercy made man subject to death that he might not live always in sin and suffering.

A SAD STORY OF HUMAN LIFE

On the first pages of the sacred Book the inspired penman shows us the bitterness and ruin caused by man's transgression of God's law, and the sorrow and suffering consequent upon having violated the commandment of God. Here is given the true delineation of human life. "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground, for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Unto the woman it was said, "I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee" (Gen. 3). Here is no rose-colored picture of human life, but a deep significance, a solemn, unalterable verdict in every sentence uttered. When we look back over the pages of history we see how fearful has been the account of human suffering. Look at the world today with all the enlightenment of Christian civilization; with all the learning and science which has been used to lighten the burden of toil and relieve physical suffering, and still the realities of human misery are beyond the power of man to picture in words. Thousands are swept away by disease, famine, and violence each day; and comparatively few live out the allotted span of natural life. What of the future? Is there no gleam of hope that the curse will be lifted from mother earth, and her sons and daughters be free from the bondage of corruption?

THE PROMISE OF REDEMPTION

We turn again to the sacred page, and imbedded like a gem in the jagged rock we find the promise that the seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head (Gen. 3:15). Behold the man! "But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons" (Gal. 4:4, 5). We turn again to the last page of the Book and we find that the Paradise of God is to be restored to man. Again we read, "There shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain." "There shall be no more curse." Here upon this earth the conflict between good and evil is to be fought out until the champion of the human race, Jesus Christ, "shall destroy him that hath the power of death, that is, the devil" (Heb. 2:14). God's purposes are unchanging. Although man sinned and the world has been filled with wickedness, "as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord" (Num. 14:21). "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: . . . for yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: Yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace. . . . The seed of the wicked shall be cut off. The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever" (Psalm 37).

THE PROBLEM OF EVIL

Man was created a free agent and not a human machine. He was capable of choice and was given the power to choose his own destiny. He was placed under the law of faith and obedience that he might exert his power of choice and develop character. The choice was made and the record written, "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Rom. 5:12). "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:13-16). It is needful that we should have a clear understanding of this problem of evil that we may know that man himself, having the power to choose or refuse either good or evil, is alone responsible for his own acts. "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (James 1:12).

What is your life? Are you spending the few brief years of your life following the trail of the serpent, plotting and planning wickedness, developing the character of a devil?

You must choose your own destiny. As Moses set before the children of Israel "life and death, blessing and cursing," so now Jesus points out two paths—the one that leads to destruction and the other that leads unto life. Which will you choose? "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7, 8). Man must prove himself a man worthy of eternal life. If he proves himself otherwise, he will be destroyed in that day when Jesus comes to reward "every man according as his works shall be" (Rev. 22:12). We entreat you to follow in the footsteps of Jesus, trusting in God and doing good, developing a character like the Man among men, who was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. "He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him." "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Which will you choose?—The Visitor.

The Spiritual Birth

By E. O. Stewart

BIRTH means a coming into life. In the natural law, birth is preceded by a begetting, then a period of development which prepares the one begotten for birth. This rule is also true in the spiritual birth. First a begetting, then a period of development which prepares the one thus begotten for birth.

"He that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." Who is it that sows to the Spirit? It is the man who follows Christ. What is meant by sowing to the Spirit? It is Christian development of the begotten child of God, the very thing that will fit him for the life which is to be given to him by Christ through the Spirit. When will he reap, or receive that life? In the world to come (Mark 10:30). We next inquire, Where is the life at present which the Christian is to receive in the world to come? It is hid with Christ in God (Col. 3:3).

CHRIST WAS THE FIRST TO BE BORN AGAIN

At the age of twelve Jesus began to be about His Father's business. At the age of thirty He was baptized, which foreshadowed in figure His resurrection. As He was raised out of the water, the Holy Spirit came upon Him, and a voice from heaven said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." This all prefigured what would take place at His resurrection, when He should become the firstborn from the dead.

How could He have been the firstborn from the dead, seeing that He had already raised Lazarus from the dead? Right here is where the secret of the new birth lies. Lazarus was only restored to the life he had before he died; but Christ received another life, which was endless life (Heb. 7:16). As Lazarus was only raised to the life he had before, it could not have been a birth from the dead. But Christ received a life He had not previously possessed by the new, or spiritual, birth.

As there are only two kinds of birth brought to light in the Bible, the natural and the spiritual; and as Christ was a recipient of both, how can anyone claim that conversion is the new birth, unless he affirms that Jesus was at one time a sinner and became converted? Paul says Christ was the firstborn of every creature, the firstborn among many brethren, the firstborn from the dead. Others were raised from the dead before He was. But He was the firstborn from the dead. Therefore, the life that Jesus received when He was raised from the dead is the new, or spiritual, birth.

THE FIGURE OF THE NEW BIRTH

We should not mistake the figure of a thing for the reality. But that is exactly what the majority of professed Christians have done. They think they have been born again, simply because they have mistaken conversion for the new birth. Noah and his family were saved from the flood. And Peter says, "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us." If baptism is a like figure, then the deliverance of Noah and his family from the flood was also a figure of salvation. Now, if Noah's deliverance was a figure of salvation, and if baptism is the like figure, then we are still in the time for the figure of salvation. Then why claim that we have actually reached salvation while still in the time of the figure of salvation?

"Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope (a hope of living again) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved (not in you but) in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time" (1 Peter 1:3-6). "By his own will begat he us by the word of truth."

This makes it all clear. The Word is the seed. We are begotten by seed, and not born by seed. We have been begotten again, but not yet born again. When Jesus, the first-born from the dead, returns and gives unto us the life that is hid with Him in God, then, as we have borne the image of the earthy through natural birth, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly through a spiritual birth. Christ the first-fruits, and afterward they that are Christ's at His coming. Then we shall be like our forerunner, who is the firstborn from the dead.

The answer to the question in last week's paper will be found in Deuteronomy 29:5.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

(Continued from front page)

it is sustained by the Word of God.

Permit me to remind our readers to always remember that the kingdom of God will have certain characteristics that will be closely connected thereto. In other words, the kingdom will break to pieces all other kingdoms (Dan. 2:44). Has it done so? If not, the conclusion is that the kingdom has not been "set up." The kingdom of God will not be "set up" a thousand years or more before its characteristics are to be put into force; in other words, the enforcement of its laws.

As these articles are being written to teach the truth and expose error, I want to again remind you of that shameful practice of religious leaders who, in discussing the kingdom question, often quote Daniel 2:44; 7:13, 14, 27; and Isaiah 2:2-4 as having been fulfilled; but question them closely and they will "wrest" the Scriptures and tell you that you are now in the first phase of the kingdom, and when you reach the beautiful Isle of Somewhere you will then be in the upper and better phase of the kingdom of God.

To me, this is a fine definition of nothing. It tends to rob you and me of the joy of understanding that message of the kingdom which God intended we should have. I thank God for the reasonable intelligence with which He has blessed me, and that it is not easily carried about by human deceptions.

When Jesus Christ comes again then He sits upon His throne (Matt. 25:31). When He sits upon His throne, the saints, or princes, sit upon the same throne with Him (Rev. 3:21; 2:26, 27; Isa. 32:1; 2 Tim. 2:12).

With these indisputable facts before us I call your attention to: "And before him shall be gathered all nations" (Matt. 25:32). Here is a world brought to the judgment of God. "All nations" are gathered before Him. What a day! What a scene! Can we contemplate the sudden change of all nations going out of business with Christ's work ahead of Him? The nations are called to an account. Jesus the Christ and His saints are sitting upon the throne in the judgment hour (1 Cor. 6:2; Acts 17:31).

Two features of God's plan appear the most outstanding. One is that the nations will not escape the punishment which God has in store for them, and the other is that the judgment decision will be of a righteous nature. Again it is written, "My determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy. For then will I turn to the people a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve him with one consent" (Zeph. 3:8, 9).

A world judgment has come! Nations as such are dissolved. After this national calamity has fallen and brought the desired results, then God turns to the people and gives them an opportunity to serve Him. And, too, God is going to "undo all that afflict" the oppressed (Zeph. 3:19). And He is going to dismantle every sovereign kingdom of this world (Hag. 2:22).

Why wreck and ruin our modernized governments; why molest our advance in our scientific progress? Haven't we accomplished much in our time? With all our accomplishments we have fallen short of the demand of the divine will. The Prophet surely saw a better day for the oppressed of earth, and wrote, "When thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness" (Isa. 26:9). Jesus Christ will "break in pieces the oppressor" (Psalm 72:4).

There is one special act of that day that holds my attention and that is, "they shall not labour in vain, nor bring forth for trouble" (Isa. 65:23). How many today "labour in vain"? In our own Nation less than 4 per cent of the people own and control 90 per cent of the wealth. Yet the poor are condemned because they did not save in the day of plenty. But when the day of plenty did come it was destroyed. Our statesmen today are quarreling over financial matters, not that there isn't enough money, but to see who gets most of it. They invent ways and means of relief (?) and by the time it reaches the oppressed it has become grief. Upon the pages of divine history it has been written that "the love of money is the root of all evil" (1 Tim. 6:10).

